

Lubbock Leads Nation With Lowest Jobless Rate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lubbock carried the lowest unemployment rate of all the nation's metropolitan areas during 1979, according to a report Monday by the Labor Department.

Over-the-year unemployment for the Lubbock area was 2.4 percent.

Anderson, Ind., recorded the largest increase among metropolitan areas, the report said, and Kenosha, Wis., the sharpest reduction.

At year's end, Alaska had the highest state unemployment rate, 10 percent. Six states experienced reductions in unemployment of at least one percentage point: Alaska, Florida, Hawaii, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Texas.

Alaska and North Dakota tied for the greatest decline — 1.4 percentage points. But Alaska still remained the highest unemployment state in the nation at 10 percent as of this past December 1979.

North Dakota dropped from 4.3 percent to 3.9.

In recording an 8.7 percentage point increase, Anderson, Ind., jumped from a 6.5 percent unemployment rate in December 1978 to 15.2 percent last December to also lead metropolitan areas in unemployment.

Kenosha, Wis., went from 8.1 percent to 4.5 percent last December for the leading 3.6 percentage point drop in unemployment due to gains in transportation equipment manufacturing.

The data includes statistics from 49 states and the District of Columbia. Figures from Minnesota were not included.

The report said employment declines in Alabama were widespread and included workers in construction, primary metals, textiles and apparel.

On the opposite side, gains in Florida and Texas were widespread, including employees in construction, manufacturing and services, while the boost in Hawaii was primarily in the service industries.

Other metropolitan areas with increases of at least 2 percentage points: Decatur, Ill., 5.8; Peoria, Ill., 2.6; Fort Wayne, Ind., 2.5; Gary-Hammond-East Chicago, Ind., 3.6; Muncie, Ind., 2.2; South Bend, Ind., 2.4; Owensboro, Ky., 2.3; Albuquerque, N.M., 2.1; Buffalo, N.Y., 2.5; Elmira, N.Y., 2; and Williamsport, Pa., 3.6.

VICTOR Manuel Montalvo, a bartender at one of the clubs where Marcella Valenzuela worked, is the man authorities say killed the young night club performer four years ago.

Thursday, Montalvo was named in a sealed indictment which accuses him of strangling Miss Valenzuela with a towel. The 20-year-old woman was last seen alive the early morning of New Year's Day 1976.

Tech 'Slur' Reaction 'Surprising'

AUSTIN — A state higher education official said Monday she had "no intention to slur Tech" when she remarked that Texas Tech and other state universities are not quality institutions, but she also did not back down from her original comments.

Beryl Milburn, chairman of the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board which regulates public higher education in the state, called Friday's criticism of her by Texas Tech regents "so ungrateful after I'd been out there."

She visited the Tech campus Jan. 21 along with Gov. Bill Clements.

Mrs. Milburn said she was "surprised" at the Tech board's reaction, adding that she had "no intention to slur Tech or any other institution."

"People Took Exception"

"Texas Tech regents took it (her comments on quality institutions) so personally," she said, noting, "I think people took exception to what I said."

In a recent interview with the Associated Press, Mrs. Milburn was asked how Texas state-supported colleges rank nationally. She was quoted as replying, "I don't think Texas has a single (state-supported) institution that ranks in the first 20. UT-Austin might be in the first 20. A&M is getting better and better and competing with UT-Austin, but as for the others, I don't think they approach quality."

It was the latter remark that offended Tech regents, but in an interview with The Avalanche-Journal in her Austin office, Mrs. Milburn stressed that her comments were made in the context of national ranking. She reiterated that, with the possible exception of UT-Austin and A&M, "I think, in terms of national ranking, all the other (state-supported) institutions fall short."

Topics In Research

However, she credited Texas Tech with being one of the top research institutions in the state and praised the administration and board of regents "for taking all the steps I think are important," which she said included

Bill Clayton Raps Brilab As 'Plot'

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HEREFORD — "I have done nothing wrong." Speaker of the Texas House Bill Clayton told cheering supporters here Monday night, pledging that he will "get to the bottom" of a wide ranging insurance bribery scandal.

"I'm convinced this is part of some plot; that there's something behind all this that we don't know about," Clayton told a crowd of 350 Deaf Smith and Oldham County residents gathered at a special appreciation dinner. "And I promise you, we'll get to the bottom of this."

The packed dinner marked the three-time speaker's first appearance since his implication in a Justice Department undercover probe that alleges he accepted $10,000 from an FBI agent posing as a representative from a major insurance company.

To Testify Wednesday

Clayton is scheduled to testify Wednesday before a federal grand jury in Houston investigating bribery and kick-back charges resulting from the latest FBI investigation of government officials and political figures from across the South and Southwest.

At a news conference Saturday, the millionaire farmer from Springlake said he accepted "a stack of $100 bills" only to avoid embarrassing a supporter in front of a business associate. The speaker insisted the money was neither a bribe nor a political contribution because he has not touched the money since and intended to return it.

"In Austin, some of my friends are asking me how I've kept going the last couple of days, and I told them I keep going because I've done nothing wrong," the 51-year-old Clayton said to a standing ovation. "I feel no guilt because I've done no wrong."

"The last two or three days have been a difficult time," he admitted. "But my colleagues in Austin have said they'll stand firm behind me and I'll vindicate myself from this political assassination."

With his wife, Delma, Clayton received the first key to the city of Hereford ever presented and a western painting from Hereford's National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. As he accepted the art work, Clayton turned to the crowd, grinned, and asked, "Is this a bribe?"

Clayton concluded his remarks by declaring, "Right will win. I have confidence."

After the banquet, Clayton told The See CLAYTON Page 16

Hostages' Freedom Hinted Near

By The Associated Press
IRANIAN President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was quoted, Monday, by a French newspaper as saying that his government is no longer demanding return of the deposed shah before the release of the American hostages, which could occur "perhaps even in the coming days."

In Tehran, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini marked the first anniversary of his Islamic revolution by vowing to continue battle against "the ruthless devourer," the United States. He made no mention of the 50 hostages, who marked their 100th day in captivity.

Masses of jubilant Iranians celebrated the revolution's anniversary with a victory parade through Tehran. The crush was so great a grandstand collapsed, killing one person and injuring 66, including four who were hospitalized, Tehran radio said. It said three other persons in the crowd were killed when they were hit by a tank during the parade of security forces.

Western reporters said hundreds of thousands of Iranians gathered for the celebration in Freedom Square, but across town at the embassy compound there were only the usual number of armed revolutionary guards at the gates and a few passersby.

One of the embassy militants, who identified himself as Ghassem, was contacted by telephone and said the Americans were given "a little party" with gifts of flowers, pistachio nuts and chocolate to mark the occasion. "All of them are good and they congratulated us on the revolution," he said.

Another militant, who declined to give his name, said he had not heard the report that the shah's return might be dropped as a condition for the hostages' release. He said that if Khomeini approved such a move, the militants would accept his decision.

According to the Paris newspaper Le Monde, Bani-Sadr said the release of the hostages was possible, "perhaps even in the coming days," if the U.S. government

Hordes Of Afghans Said Jailed, Killed

Torture Of Opponents Reported

By United Press International
AFGHAN and Soviet officials in Kabul have imprisoned, tortured and executed thousands of civilians for suspected political opposition or disloyalty to the Marxist regime, travelers from Afghanistan and Afghan rebels said Monday.

The visitors to the Afghan capital of Kabul also said the Soviet-backed government was on the verge of expelling all Western journalists from the country. All American reporters were ordered out last month.

A spokesman for Afghan rebels told the Kuwaiti news agency KUNA that the "Islamic Revolution for the Liberation of Afghanistan" will announce a provisional government by the end of March.

Soviet Moslems Desert

The spokesman also claimed that some Soviet soldiers from Moslem regions of the U.S.S.R. have deserted to the rebels.

He said the desertions by the Moslem Russians led Soviet authorities to "replace its invading force with new groups brought from inside the Soviet Union and East Germany."

There was no independent confirmation of the report from any other source, but news reports had said previously that Central Asian Soviet troops, who spearheaded the invasion, had been replaced by soldiers from European Russia.

A Western reporter, who spent four days with the rebels in Afghanistan, recently told UPI in Pakistan, "There was no military cohesion in anything I saw, no communication between (rebel camps, no communication in a military sense."

Judah Passow, who was invited to the camps by Moslem leaders, returned two weeks ago from a guided four-day tour of guerrilla camps with three European journalists, after crossing the Pakistani-Afghan frontier.

"The rebel operations we saw were primitive to the point of being ineffective," Passow said.

One salesman, who traveled through Afghanistan, said dozens of employees of shops, hotels, automobile rental agencies and restaurants have disappeared since the takeover by the first Soviet-backed government in April 1978.

Another traveler told of a relative of a family employee who was released recently from a Kabul prison with his fingernails "ripped off."

"Presumably his offense was not informing officials of something they thought he should have known or told," the traveler added.

"You can be certain that every shopkeeper in the tourist areas, and in general those who serve or sell to foreigners, is forced to inform," he said.

He said Soviet officials were "often involved," but refused to elaborate.

Another traveler from Afghanistan to India reported that a luxurious house near his in Kabul was used as a "reception center," where political detainees were questioned and tortured.

"Trucks pull up and let out five to 10 people at a time — maybe 30 or 40 a night," he said. "I'm not saying they all died, but I have not seen any walk out."

Thousands of political prisoners have reportedly been executed in Kabul since the Soviets invaded Afghanistan and installed Babrak Karmal as the new president.

The leader of an Afghan socialist party, who traveled to India to marshal support for the expulsion of the approximately 95,000 Soviet troops in his country, said at least 200 members of his Afghan Mellat Party have disappeared from Placharki, a prison known to be overcrowded with political offenders.

"We have given up hope of seeing them alive," said Amin Wakman, the party's secretary general. "We assume they disappeared with the thousands of others the government claims it 'released,'" he said.

Older Homeowners Can Escape Paying Taxes On Sale Of Homes

(12th In A Series)
By RAY DECRANE

One of the greatest tax breaks ever created by Congress provides that homeowners, 55 or older, can sell their personal residence and escape paying an income tax on up to $100,000 of profit on the sale.

Because of the unusual opportunity it offers, many people are now including such a home sale as an integral part of their retirement planning. Such an arrangement provides the opportunity to live off the interest from the proceeds from such a sale.

For example the home seller with $100,000 in hand after all expenses have been paid can easily earn 10 percent or higher interest at today's high rates.

Ten thousand dollars in annual interest can provide fancy housing accommodations and leave a fair sum for ordinary living expenses. Best of all, the principal is never touched.

To take advantage of this rare opportunity, only a few simple conditions must be met.

1. You must have been at least 55 years of age before the date of the sale.
2. The home sold must have been owned by you and occupied as your principal residence for at least three of the five years immediately preceding the sale.

3. The privilege may be used only once.

In the case of a married couple filing a joint return, both spouses must consent to the use of the privilege and once having been used it may not be used again by either party. This means that in the event of a death or a divorce, and perhaps a subsequent marriage, the party involved once in such a transaction may not enter into it again with another spouse.

Since this exclusion can be used only once, it should not be used imprudently.

For example, someone who has just turned 55 might not be exercising good judgment in applying the privilege in a home sale where a $10,000 profit had been realized.

Such a homeowner might be far more prudent in reporting the $10,000 profit (at a 40 percent long-term capital gains rate that would only be adding $4,000 in taxable income for the year) and reserving the exclusion for a later day.

At his age he has ample time to make another home sale where the gain could be far greater and the tax savings would be correspondingly greater.

One caution: If only one of the spouses is 55 and the other is younger, be alert to a possible problem. The law treats both spouses as qualifying where they own the residence as joint tenants, tenants by the entirety, or as community property in one of the eight community property states.

But the exclusion does not fully apply where they hold property as tenants in common (a prevailing practice in many states). When a property is held by a couple as tenants in common and only one of the spouses is at least 55, only one-half of the gain on the sale is subject to the exclusion.

The other half of the gain is subject to tax as a new residence is not purchased and occupied at a higher price within the prescribed time limits. That period is from 18 months before the sale to 18 months after the sale.

The problem could be avoided if the parties convey their title from a tenancy in common to a joint tenancy, or to a tenancy in the entirety. But since such conversion to joint ownership could have unfavorable gift and estate tax consequences, advice of competent legal counsel should first be sought.

New Interest In Silver Brings Life To Old Town

SHAFTER (AP) — Silver fever. That magical phrase is slowly blowing the dusty breath of life back into this tiny, almost-abandoned mining community after more than three decades as a ghost town.

Townpeople say Gold Fields Mining Corp. is trying to reactivate the Presidio Mines, once Texas' leading producer of silver, yielding more than 30 million ounces from the late 1880s until 1942, when the mines closed down.

After the shut-down, most of the 3,000 boomtown residents scattered to the winds looking for work. Shafter's population dwindled to fewer than two dozen.

But with the price of silver inching toward $40 an ounce, and England-based Gold Fields drilling new holes every week, there's a renewed interest in the mines of the 7,500-foot-high Chinatis Mountains.

"We have watched Gold Fields, their operation, for a full two years," said County Judge Charles Henderson, who lives in the nearby county seat of Marfa. "We know the kind of money they're putting in it. We see the people they're accumulating down there."

"They've just spent too much money to back out now."

Gold Fields will not make an official statement about re-opening the mine. But the residents of the hot, arid, mountainous county say they don't miss much.

"They have a big beer bust every time they dig 100 holes, and they've had two so far," said Shafter resident Harold Biediger, who already has reaped the benefits of Gold Fields operations.

He and his wife, Molly, own a trailer park and about half the town's acreage. They sold mineral rights to their land to Gold Fields, leased two school buildings for office space and opened their park to the mobile homes that house employees.

Silver fever spread quickly through the town, but a few people are still claiming immunity.

"I certainly didn't move to a ghost town to be around people," said Pat Sims, who moved to Shafter with husband, Ken, to be near the Big Bend wilderness. "I might move to Peralas. It has a population of six."

"What other place in Texas doesn't have television?" asked Melba Wylie, who retired to Shafter with her truck-driver husband, Raymond. "We used to watch about 200 buzzards fly into town, and light for the night on a patch of cottonwoods. That was excitement — this was the quietest place we'd ever seen. Now the company trucks run all night and keep us awake. It's only going to get worse."

Lupe Munoz, Shafter's postmistress and grocer, said she was hesitant about Gold Fields at first. She remembered too well, she said, how her forefathers sweated in the mines and the panic that shuddered through town after the 1942 shut-down.

But Mrs. Munoz softened to the idea after a town meeting last summer where she said the company revealed plans to go ahead with the mine.

"The company says they will bus people from Presidio and Marfa to work in the mine — they have a rule not to build mining towns," she said. "My daddy always used to say the mine didn't play out — they just had trouble at 900 feet with water."

When miners found water in the lower shafts, the company already was battling union problems, declining ore quality and a decreasing silver prices (as low as 25 cents an ounce). So Presidio opted to close down.

Old-timers who worked the mine say it was "hot, stuffy and the most uncomfortable place there ever was."

"There was good, there was bad," said Ruffino Cortez, 73, who worked the mines with a pick and shovel. "It was a job."

He said he often worked at 700-foot depths by the light of a foul-smelling carbide lamp. He and other miners chipped and picked more than 50 miles into the solid rock of the Chinatis.

His pay: $1.25 a day.

"Now they get $10 an hour to go down in mines," he said. Worker complaints of low wages were largely ignored, he said, because, "there was always somebody standing in line outside the mine to take your place working."

Cortez quit the mines after he developed lung problems, the kind that killed many of his co-workers.

"They just dried up and died," he said, his manner suddenly turning cold.

"They'd get a cough and turn an ashen color. Sometimes, strong Mexican liquor would help the cough a little. But nothing would stop it in the end."

"There was no company doctor then."

Glenn Brooks, 75, worked in the silver mill "ever since I was a kid," because he hated "those old, big, deep black holes — I dread them."

"At times, it was a rough town, especially the ten years they had soldiers here," he said of Shafter. "Pancho Villa and other bandits were working all through here, so we had cavalry, machine guns, and artillery right here in Shafter."

But the deadliest thing was still the lung disease that forced Cortez out of mining.

"That big graveyard out there can tell you that," Brooks said, his eyes drifting toward the hills where hundreds of miners rest. "It's just a pile of rocks — you don't know how many's up there. Sometimes, I'd see five men buried a day."

"They thought this town was gonna be dead forever."

Mining Program Gains Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas' program to regulate strip mining has become the first in the nation to gain federal approval, Interior Department officials announced Monday.

The program was submitted about six months ago to regulate private surface coal mining and exploration under the provisions of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

Texas lignite mines are mostly in Southeast Texas.

They produced more than 25 million tons of coal in 1979 and production estimates project an increase to more than 40 million tons this year, according to department statistics.

Joan Davenport, assistant secretary of the interior for energy and minerals, announced that the department is awarding a $1 million grant to help Texas state government implement its program.

"The Texas program complies fully with the act and the regulations promulgated under the act," Walter Heine, director of the Office of Surface Mining, said.

He said the state program has few, if any, features that could be considered more stringent than the federal act.

The federal government plans to pay about 80 percent of the first year costs, 60 percent of the second year and 50 percent after that, Heine said.

Texas' decision to take over the regulation of surface mining also makes it eligible to receive funds from the Abandoned Lands Fund for use in land reclamation.

The state would receive half of the dime-per-ton fee producers pay to the fund for coal mining, or approximately $1.25 million of the $2.5 million raised at the 1979 production pace in Texas.

Five states — Wyoming, Montana, Mississippi, Louisiana and Missouri — have submitted plans

Mother Expresses Heartbreak As Children Choose Dad's Home

EDITOR'S NOTE: When Peggy Morgan, 36, a staff writer for The Courier-Post of Camden, N.J., divorced her husband recently, she told her 16-year-old daughter and 12-year-old son that it was their decision which parent they wanted to live with. When, "in a spirit of passion," they told her they were leaving to join their father, she described her emotions in her weekly column. The children now are living with their father, Donald Morgan, in his home in Delanco, a small town in southern New Jersey.

By PEGGY MORGAN

HADDONFIELD, N.J. (AP) — The children say they are leaving to live with their father and fill up the house he wants to buy. After two years with me, it is his turn, they say.

My daughter tells me this, her flushed face tortured with tears that burn down cheeks still baby plump. She has always cried inconsolably at leave-takings.

She is bigger than I am now. Her common sense and equanimity often make me feel neurotic. In the night of years, she flew over me. She is more my mother than my mother is — than I am for her.

But now she is grievous with choice and decision. She is a child of 16.

If I had only left the divorce undone and unsaid any talk of custody and support, we might have lived unchanged a little longer. But another love tugged me from sole fidelity to the children.

The legal ties chafed sloppily. They bound another woman, a chrysalis I had cast off. I felt twice unfaithful. It is a war of loves.

"Let them go. ... Let them have him," said my friends — some mothers, some not. God knows I hadn't seen much of a mother the past few years, possessed by work, searching through sad bars and desperate parties — though I found nothing there and tried to live without — for adult love, when the children's should have been enough.

I juggled home and career and social life, as the magazines say, but the bouncing balls fell all over the floor, spilling sobs and screams and guilt, which the magazines never hear.

I was often sorry I fell into motherhood, for which I have no natural talent. It was too hard. It was harder than bleeding words into stories and that is hard enough.

Their father had the knack of a parent. He never had to think about his response or reaction or parental actions.

When the children were in the mountains this summer, alone I embraced the silence. I hugged it to my shoulders like lynx. I came home to no disarray, no laundry, no din from dueling radios, trumpeting stereos or turbulent televisions, no bickering to break up and no charging through the flat like bulls, no air-raid squawks of Mom to quicken blood. Plus, no tree-trunk thuds of sneakers pounding up the stair-steps, no hungry mouths crying that I never cooked.

I ate strawberries over the sink and petted the lynx. I also double-locked the door and burned a night light. My old windows and maimed screens and rusty locks chattered and whispered. The attic crouched overhead with tigers from forgotten nightmares.

At 2 a.m. groggy with sleep, I heard the awful agitated breathing of my first obscene phone call. The tiger leaped alive and raped my luscious quiet. I was glad when the kids came home.

I am almost certain my son should be with his father. I do not share his passion for football, hamburgers and the sun. I disapprove. I want him to write poetry, not howl.

I went crazy with his colic in the cradle and only less crazy since. When he slams doors and bellows, I understand why the only gift my father ever wanted was peace and quiet, a request I and my six siblings noisily belittled and disobeyed.

My 12-year-old rakes my nerves like needles on splinters. He is hyper, distempered, impatient with imperfection, which is all around him. He is my mirror image. But when he broke my blue wind-chimes, he bought me a gold bracelet with his lunch money. When he is not hollering, he is melting glacial hearts.

My daughter, my friend, will be harder to relinquish, that miraculous mistake of a baby, the one who slept or smiled, who grew easily, who didn't itch even with chicken pox. She was the best baby ever born and the first, and her first year of life, till lately, I remembered as my happiest. I was only 20 then.

She can fix washing machines and cook for herself, a witty ballerina who has always known when to leave me alone. With pride, she has applauded my making something from the nothing that was my life, even as it intrudes on ours. She could juggle it all, just like in the magazines.

They haven't left yet. Plans can crack. In any case, my aging babies are nearly grown and gone. I cannot hold them long.

Sister Of Slain Crabber Drowns

SEADRIFT (AP) — The Coast Guard said the body of Josephine Aplin Hall, sister of a Seadrift crabber slain during conflicts with Vietnamese fishermen this summer, was discovered Monday just south of here.

The woman apparently drowned, said Coast Guard Boatswain's Mate First Class Leo Muldoon. She and her husband, Dale Hall, were reported missing this weekend when they failed to return from a crabbing expedition, said Seadrift police chief Bill Lindsey.

Coast Guard crews continued to search for Hall Monday afternoon, Muldoon said.

Lindsey said the Hall's boat was discovered Sunday afternoon, partially submerged in about five feet of water. There was a large hole in the hull, Lindsey said.

"It looked like a place where there had been one of those fiberglass patches," he said. Despite the shallowness of the water, Lindsey said it would be difficult to stay alive because of the cold overnight temperatures.

"I don't think they could have lasted long in that water," he said. "It was terribly, terribly cold. (The boat was found) in an area where they'd been dredging for shell for years and there are holes 50 to 60 feet out there."

Mrs. Hall's brother, Billy Joe Aplin, 35, was shot to death last August at the height of violence between Anglo and Vietnamese crabbers here.

Two Vietnamese brothers, Nguyen Van Sau, 21, and Nguyen Van Chinh, 20, were acquitted in Aplin's death. Testimony indicated the Vietnamese men had been beaten by Aplin moments before the shooting.

Tensions between the two factions erupted into violence and houses and boats were burned earlier in the summer. The Anglos claimed the Vietnamese violated unwritten crabbing laws and placed their traps too close to those of other fishermen.

The violent retributions that followed Aplin's death, including the sudden appearance of Ku Klux Klan members, forced city officials to enforce nightly curfews in August.

Retail Sales Up As Consumers Continue Buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales at the nation's retail stores surged 2.3 percent in January to $78.5 billion, casting further doubt on predictions that the nation's economy is headed into recession, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

The increase was the largest since a 2.9 percent rise in September and was considerably stronger than increases of 0.5 percent in December and 1 percent in November, department data showed.

"As of now the consumer is still buying," said a Commerce Department analyst who asked not to be identified. "That's especially true of autos and furniture — durable goods."

He added that even after adjustment for inflation, "there's growth of 1 percent or more."

The Carter administration and many private economists have been predicting that the economic downturn, expected last year, would begin in the first few months of 1980.

In recent days, however, analysts in and out of government have said the recession could be avoided if consumers continue to spend heavily, as they did throughout 1979.

"I am impressed with the strength of retail sales, but I remain a little dubious

Flights Show Well Spilling Less Oil

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Coast Guard flights over a leaking Mexican offshore oil well show a marked decrease in pollution, Lt. Harry Vaughan said Monday.

The surveillance flights first showed half as much oil spewing from Ixtoc 1 Wednesday as from previous observations. A second flight Friday reported the same conditions, Vaughan said.

Crews saw about 16 barges, ships, dispersment boats and other vessels around the well in the Bay of Campeche off the Mexican Yucatan coast.

"The fire at the well is still about 60 feet in diameter and the oil goes out 40 miles northwest of it, but that depends a lot on the winds," Vaughan said.

Gov. Bill Clements said last week that engineers were close to cementing the well and ending the oil spill that began June 3.

Scientists have said the oil would reappear on Texas beaches if the well is not plugged by March 1. Oil washups last summer drained away tourism along South Texas beaches and threatened wildlife. Scientists have said preliminary reports indicate marine life escaped serious injury from the oil.

Vaughan said another plane will fly over the well Thursday to check conditions.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Valentine's Day is coming. I have a message for all parents and teachers. Please save some little hearts from being broken this year.

Stop and think about that poor child who receives only one or two cards in class. Or maybe even none. How do you think the youngster feels when he or she sees others getting a pile of valentines and he is being passed up? I can tell you, it is extremely painful.

I suggest that the custom of distributing valentines during class time be eliminated completely — or, if there are 35 in the class, those who want to give cards must bring 35. Then, no matter how many give, all will receive the same number.

This would promote equality, teach our children consideration for others, and prevent the indescribable hurt of being left out.

Thanks, Ann. I hope you can print this letter in time to prevent some needless heartache on a day that is dedicated to love. — Scarred By Old Memories

Dear Memories: I am printing your letter in the hope that some sensitive teachers, parents, and yes, even children, will get the message. Thirty-five valentines cost more money than some kids can afford these days, so I recommend home-made cards. They needn't be fancy — just a remembrance that will bring joy unbound to many little hearts on Feb. 14th.

Dear Ann Landers: We've heard gripes from waitresses, telephone operators, hairdressers, etc. Now may I have a turn?

My husband is an appliance serviceman. He might as well have been an obstetrician, the hours he puts in. He is expected to be "on call" around the clock seven days a week.

I can understand emergencies — but a call Christmas Eve to fix a stove that hasn't worked right for two weeks? A legitimate emergency would be a refrigerator or freezer that conks out with food that needs to be saved, or a range not shutting off in the clean cycle, or a washer overflowing.

What burns me up is people who demand that he come at once and have no information except "it isn't working." How about giving the brand name, model and serial number? It would also help to know what the thing was doing before it quit. Was it noisy? Smoking? Grinding? Squeaking?

It would help, too, if people would leave appliance repairs to the experts. I can't tell you how many times my husband has to put something back together before he can fix it. All this takes time, and it costs the consumer plenty. So, please print this for the good of all. — Columbia, Mo. Wife

Dear Wife: Thanks for the short course I learned something today.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old sophomore going with a 17-year-old exchange student from France. His English is quite good, but he prefers to speak in French. Mom says it will help me learn the language. She bought me a French-English dictionary, but I'm not doing very well. I don't want to show my ignorance, so I pretend I know what he is saying and answer "oui," which means "yes."

I think Mom is wrong. I'm more comfortable when he speaks English. What's your opinion? — Hillsboro Hattie

Dear Hat: If you don't understand what a fellow is saying, "Yes" is the wrong answer. Better he should speak English, before you find yourself doing something in French.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

One of the most delightful stories of the late 19th century was Frank Stockton's "The Lady or the Tiger?" The king's daughter fell madly in love with the hero. The king decided to break up the affair, so he placed the hero in the local arena and informed him that he could choose between two doors to open. Behind one was a beautiful girl; behind the other a hungry tiger. The tiger would eat him; the girl would marry him.

As the hero studied the doors the king's daughter gave him a signal to open door A. He promptly opened it and we are left in suspense as to what was behind the door. In today's hand South cashed the ace-king of trumps and the spades. Then, after long study, he decided to throw West in with his queen of trumps. West would have to lead a club or a diamond. Of course, if clubs were going to behave nicely the slam was a laydown. If West did hold four to the jack he might well lead a club and give South his slam.

The play was ingenious, but we are going to do what Stockton did and not tell you what West led. We will say that most players would lead the club and pay off to South but what this West did is going to remain a mystery. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.) Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a grand idea for church groups or anybody who wants to help folks in nursing homes. I'm a registered nurse and work in a nursing home. One of the biggest problems involves laundry. Clothing often gets lost or is unclaimed because it's unmarked, or the mark washes out. Groups could get together and offer to label clothing, especially undergarments, with permanent marking pens. This could be done periodically to insure the names already marked are still legible as well as to name-tag any new clothing. — Suzanne Doll, you've got your old ticker in the right spot on this one. I'm sure those in charge of sorting and doing the laundry will, dearly love you.

And those sweethearts who have taken up residence in nursing homes will give you a double hug for helping them keep track of and retrieve what's rightfully theirs. Come on, folks, get a group together and do something for someone else today. You'll feel a whole lot better for it. — Heloise

Don't bake cupcakes in tissue souffle cups. And never use a closed blender to make meringue! Just call me. "The happy, but helpless, homemaker." — Mrs. Lawson

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE: Years ago, when I first married, everyone, including the newspaper boy, told me what to do to instantly become "Dynamic Dolly Domestic." Well, here are just a few things no one mentioned not to do: Don't boil cabbage to make cole slaw. Don't add baking powder to self-rising flour.

DEAR HELOISE: When putting items in the freezer, make a list of what and how much. Tape a zippered plastic bag upside down on the inside of the freezer door and put the list in the bag. This makes the list easy to find and remove for adding new items, or marking off items used. I find this a real time-saver. Love your column. — Mrs. Paul Markle

To Your Good Health

BY PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Do you think it's possible for loneliness to kill a person? I'm a widow and have been for almost two years. I live alone and cannot cope with it. I don't see my children too often. I keep losing weight and am very weak all the time. I have a good appetite, but don't eat as much as I did when I was eating with someone. Please tell me if depression could cause all this. I'm a diabetic, but am not on insulin.—Mrs. A.D.

Depression and loneliness can affect health very adversely. Your letter is very touching. Normally, it would be difficult to be clinical in response to such complaints as yours, but your diabetes does raise very definite medical suggestions.

You are a diabetic and are not on insulin. In any event, as you must know, diet is important in diabetes control. If you have fallen away from your previous diet regimen, this might seriously alter matters. This should be investigated promptly.

Depression and loneliness will not of itself kill anyone. But what flows from those conditions as your apparent lack of concern for your diet, might.

I wish you had given me your address so that I could suggest some of the social services available in your city. Even though you may not feel like doing so, you must try to get more active socially. Most hospitals welcome volunteers, who perform valuable services. You might try that. At least it will help you meet other people. You'll even find nice folks to eat with.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I wonder how you feel about the idea of a person having his cholesterol count checked regularly once a year. I am in my late 30s. I am referring to the fact that cholesterol seems involved in heart disease. There is history of heart trouble in my family.—D.L.

There is still some argument about whether or not a cholesterol level alone is an overriding factor in development of heart disease. If cholesterol is a factor, it is only one of several involved. It does seem wise, however, to try to keep the cholesterol as low as possible through diet and sensible exercise. This would be especially true for you because of your family history of heart disease, and particularly if cholesterol levels and hardening of arteries were involved. A once-a-year check is reasonable for people with the problem. You should also pay attention to other means of prevention of heart attacks — no cigarette smoking, keeping your blood pressure within safe limits, losing excess weight and keeping physically active. The booklet, "How to Control Cholesterol Sensibly," discusses the blood-fat controversy in greater detail. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611 this newspaper.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a high school student who has selected a career in medicine. I am wondering if you have any information on requirements for a doctor.—C.K.

The usual requirements for medical school entrance are three to four years of college. Most medical schools require certain college-level courses in biology, physics and chemistry. The aspiring medical student should have heavy exposure to such courses at the high school level. This helps in college.

There are four excellent medical schools in your city. You can get information on specific requirements there. And, I might add, nursing schools are associated with these medical schools, so young people interested in that area of medicine can get information there also.

Dear Dr. Donohue: In discussing bedsores you did not mention granulated sugar as a cure. Why not? I have heard about it for years.—Mrs. R.R.

I didn't mention it for two reasons: (1) There are better methods, and (2) I'm not crazy about the sugar trick anyway. It is messy and may, in fact, set up an environment for bacteria to grow. If it has to be used for lack of any other available measure, the sugar is sprinkled on and the sore covered with a sterile bandage daily until it heals.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 50 plus and in good health. My fingernails split and peel. They split down the center no matter how I cut them. I put nail polish on them, but it doesn't help.—J.B.

The polish won't help, and it can hurt. Try eliminating all cosmetics on the fingernails for a month or two. You may find improvement.

If afflicted with problem fingernails or toenails, learn about the practical, medically correct form of treatment.

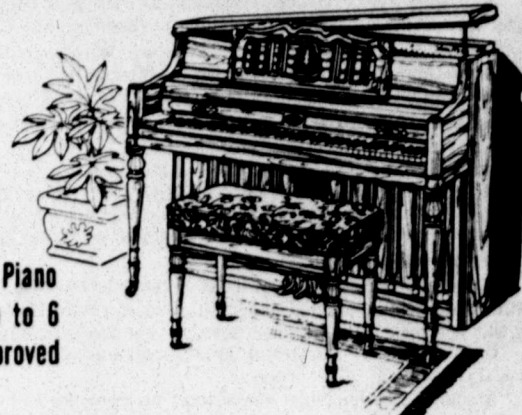

Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Pat Walker's is dedicated to the theory: Every Woman can look and feel younger . . .

C. Clifton has lost 52 pounds & has gone from a size 20 to a size 8.

I walked into Pat Walker's Figure Salon in Lubbock a few months ago, ready to try one more time to lose weight. I had tried everything else, even to having surgical staples put in my ears.

After my courtesy treatment, the counselor explained the Pat Walker figure correction program to me. When she assured me that the program was guaranteed, I felt I had finally found the solution to my figure problems.

When I began my program at Pat Walker's Figure Salon, I weighed 178 lbs. and wore a size 20 dress. Today I weigh 126 lbs. and wear a size 8 dress. My life style has changed completely because today I can do "skinny" things. I can't wait for summer so I can lounge around the pool in my new size 8 bikini!

By DUANE HOWELL

ARE YOU SUPERTITIOUS?

Cotton futures going into this week had advanced for 13 consecutive weeks, one market analyst points out.

Do you know how extraordinary that is?

In the bull market of 1973, the analyst says, the longest streak was for seven weeks. In reaching the 99-cent peak, still the record high of modern times, prices went up the limit eight days in a row.

In the 1976 market, the longest streak was four weeks.

"So what we are experiencing today is the Joe Dimaggio of all cotton records," the analyst says.

The market has never been this high this early in the season. New all-time highs were set again last week for volume and open interest.

"There's no indication the end is in sight," the analyst says, "and the only comfort to shorts is that each day brings us closer to that time."

"All of us who were cautious enough to have stayed around this long know that the market has gone too far too fast, but here it is. What can we do about it?"

FIRST NOTICE DAY FOR THE MARCH OPTION IS FEB. 25

"We think someone will be there to take the deliveries," the analyst says. "If we are right in that very chancy suggestion, we would hardly expect to see any relief in prices."

"Anytime a reasonable man looks at these levels, asks himself how much more cotton will be planted this spring, and asks what chance there is of passing this price on to the consumer, he has a right to be cautious."

"But the technical scenario is uncommonly bullish — more so than ever before, if you will."

"A cautious businessman would limit his exposure as much as possible in markets like these. Prices that go up too high usually go up even higher, and wishful thinking will not bring a 10-cent correction just to please us."

Another analyst says mills have done a lot of price fixing during the past few weeks and unfixed call sales as a percentage of open interest continues to decline sharply.

Unfixed call sales in March as of Feb. 1 totaled 5,462 contracts, down 580 from a week earlier, and unfixed call purchases were 1,151, off 83. Open interest in March going into Friday's session totaled 14,115 contracts.

THE CARTER ADMINISTRATION'S 4-million-ton wheat reserve proposal is a "Trojan horse" which will extend government intervention well into the future, says Jack Feigenhauer, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers.

Feigenhauer said in a statement the administration's plan to establish a federally-owned wheat reserve will "put the U.S. government into the grain business and establish a long-term dumping ground for embargoed grain."

The bill is scheduled for final action today before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Farmers don't want another tier of reserves which the government can use to beat down prices," Feigenhauer said. A food reserve administered by the government and held by producers already is in place, he pointed out, and added that action instead should be taken to develop new markets and a viable gasohol program.

THE NEWLY ELECTED NAWG LEADER said President Carter's suspension of Soviet grain sales will increase the amount of excess stocks in the United States to 30 percent of the world's reserve supply. Feigenhauer declared that there "is no humanitarian or foreign policy reason to add to this stockpile."

The administration's proposal calls for the federal government to accumulate 4 million metric tons of wheat during low price periods, and it authorizes release of this grain when it determines supplies are too tight to continue concessional sales or donations to certain importing nations.

There also is a provision for the release of up to 300,000 tons in any year to provide "urgent humanitarian relief."

Feigenhauer said NAWG members have written clear policy on government-owned reserves and "their position is no."

The administration's reserve proposal would extend rather than minimize the adverse impact of Carter's ban on Soviet grain sales, he said, and he warned that it represented an effort to increase the federal government's role in grain markets.

LATE LONG LIQUIDATION PULLED MOST cotton futures months from limit gains Monday and final prices were up 55 points to the 200-point limit in traded contracts.

Estimated volume was 15,050 lots. Floor brokers said trade price fix selling near the highs was followed by commission house liquidation.

Brokers attributed selling to a dip in gold prices and rumors the New York Cotton Exchange might take further measures to curb recent volatile trading. The exchange's higher margin requirements on all new positions, effective Monday, had little market impact, they said.

Original margin requirements on all speculative positions have been raised to $2,500 per contract, up from $1,000. The hedge margin requirement has been hiked to $1,250, up $750 from the previous level.

In addition, the new speculative spread or straddle is $1,000, up $500, and the hedge straddle initially will cost $300, up $225.

The last previous change in margin requirements was on Nov. 3, 1977.

HEAVY COMMISSION HOUSE ACTIVITY bid the front four months up the limit at the opening, brokers said, with few sellers in the market. These months remained locked limit up at mid-session, with an overall estimated total of 300 contracts left unsatisfied.

The limit up close in July was described as an aftermath of the allocation and subsequent limit moves in the front months last week. The market was attempting to get July at least partially back into line, sources said.

Trading on Telcel was up sharply from Friday on a volume of 22,458 bales, which brought an average price of 56.80 cents and an average over the loan of 1.329 points.

Price quotes were up 150 points, believed to be the biggest daily upward move this season. Offerings were said to have been slowing in relation to demand and much of the cotton remaining under grower control was reported in strong hands.

Spot quotations at Lubbock were steady to 200 points higher. The base quality was up 100 points. Discounts were widened for grades 11 through 51 and grades 12 through 41, all in staples 25 through 30, and all mikes of 3 1/4 and lower were up 100 points.

U.S. GINNING PRIOR TO FEB. 1 totaled 13,834,692 running bales, the Census Bureau reported after the futures market closed. This compares with 10,048,806 bales a year earlier and 13,858,587 bales two years ago.

Texas ginnings were pegged at 5,145,757 running bales, compared with 3,460,717 bales at the corresponding point last season and 5,365,411 bales two years ago.

The USDA after the close also estimated world cotton production for 1979-80 at a record 65.3 million bales (480 pounds), up from last month's forecast of 65.1 million and last season's output of 59.8 million.

Yields in both the Soviet Union and China were both above earlier predictions. The Soviet crop was estimated at 13.1 million bales, up 100,000 from last month and up from the 1978-79 crop of 12.3 million. China's crop was pegged at 10.2 million bales, up 200,000 from both last month and last year.

Estimated output in all other major producing countries was unchanged on the month. The production forecast in a number of small producing countries was down a cumulative total of 100,000 bales.

Farmland Bill Meets Defeat In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has defeated a bill that would have provided $60.5 million in federal matching funds for a program to seek ways of stopping the conversion of farmland to other uses.

The bill defeated on a vote of 210-177 proposed spending the money over four years beginning in 1982 with states and local communities matching the federal grants.

Opponents said the measure would give the federal government a foothold in usurping land-use control from states and cities.

Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio, called the measure "the first step toward federal land-use control. The American farmers do not want the bill."

But Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee said the purpose of the bill was "to test ways of reducing the conversion of agriculture land to non-agricultural purposes. The bill respects private property and the role of state and local governments in planning policy."

Sponsors said that each year the nation has a net loss of over 3 million acres of farmland. The land is permanently converted from crop production to such uses as housing, transportation, industry and natural resource development, they said.

The end result is urban sprawl that is depleting the nation's limited supply of cropland, supporters argued. They contended the money in the bill would have been used for testing various tax incentives, zoning improvements and agricultural districting.

Experts Increase Soviet Grain Imports Estimate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union now is expected to import about 28 million metric tons of grain from all foreign sources this year, some 3 million metric tons more than U.S. experts had been predicting, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Even so, officials said the Soviet Union probably will be under severe pressure this spring to find enough feed for its record-large livestock inventory.

On Jan. 15, the department estimated the Soviet Union's grain imports would be reduced to about 25 million metric tons in 1979-80.

"A continuing reappraisal of amounts (of grain) likely to be available to the USSR from all origins prompted the increase in the USSR import estimate," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

Before President Carter announced on Jan. 4 that U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union would be sharply reduced — including an embargo on 17 million metric tons that had been earmarked for delivery this year — the department projected Soviet imports at about 34 million from all foreign sources.

Although the United States has received support from other major exporting nations to enforce the grain embargo on the Soviet Union, department officials have admitted for some time there will be "leakage" in the system.

"Grain shippers in Argentina, for example, have been reported making deals with Soviet buyers who, according to some accounts, have been offering premium prices for Argentine grain."

Even so, the new analysis said the Soviet Union — which had a short harvest last year — "is still expected to suffer a grain shortfall during the latter stages" of the 1980 marketing year which will end on June 30.

"Of the total projected imports of about 28 million metric tons, nearly 60 percent had been shipped to the USSR by early January," the report said.

"Consequently, the slowdown in imports due to the U.S. suspension of sales could start to impact on the USSR as early as March and will be most significant during the April-June period prior to the new crop harvest," it said.

"Despite the tight feed situation, reported livestock inventories on Jan. 1, 1980, were at record levels," the report said. "Adjustments in feeding rates and livestock inventories may be necessary as feeds supplies tighten."

Looking at the current crop situation in the Soviet Union, the report said the weather has been "generally good, with moisture supplies improving in some regions" where winter crops were planted last fall under dry conditions.

"In the event that favorable conditions continue, the 1980 Soviet winter grain area could parallel the large 1978 winter grain area," it said. "Moreover, many spring wheat areas have received normal or above-normal precipitation, enhancing the outlook for the spring crop."

WIFE Pushes For Energy Independence By 1985

MEADOW (Special) — Members of the Texas unit of Women Involved in Farm Economics have a definition for "the family farm," according to Kay Reese of Meadow, WIFE spokeswoman.

The definition is "an agricultural production unit in which management, economic risk, and most of the labor (peak seasons excepted) are provided by a traditional family unit and from which that family receives the bulk of its earnings," she said, with no stipulation on income or acreage.

She said WIFE believes that the executive and legislative branches of the federal government "provide leadership that will make our nation energy independent by 1985."

In "recognizing the critical need of energy," she said, WIFE has urged that the secretary of agriculture seek immediate implementation of gasohol legislation which would provide:

— Guaranteed low interest loans (excluding oil companies) for building alcohol plants to utilize renewable resources.

— That the secretary of agriculture direct that alcohol plants be constructed in the area and remain where the agricultural commodity is produced.

— That the alcohol blend of gasohol be increased beyond the present 10-90 percent ratio.

— That permits be issued by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and that there be an "expeditious" reduction in regulations on denatured alcohol.

— Prompt approval of Farmers Home Administration loan applications for producing alcohol fuel.

— Assistance to producers of alcohol fuels in initiating and implementing a market structure for alcohol and the by-products.

On other subjects, Mrs. Reese said the embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union "has brought economic chaos to the agricultural producers of this nation."

She said WIFE believes that all segments of the American economy should "share the burden of enforcing our national interest."

National WIFE policy, she said, stipulates that "the secretary of agriculture immediately raise the loan rates on all embargoed commodities to 90 percent of parity and provide interest free loan and storage" on these products.

If Congress implements a diversion program, she said, the national WIFE organization has urged that "producers be paid for all diverted acres, based on the present normal crop acreage (NCA)."

Corn Purchased To Aid Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says it has bought 281,349 bushels of corn to help relieve congestion in the marketing pipeline and to bolster market prices for farmers.

But the purchases represented only a fraction of 1 percent of about 54.4 million bushels offered for sale by about 5,000 country elevators in 19 states.

The grain bought included 140,762 bushels in Iowa, 50,000 in Indiana, 33,587 in Minnesota, 30,000 in Missouri, 17,000 in Nebraska and 10,000 in Illinois, officials said.

Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of the department's Commodity Credit Corp., which does the buying, said the rejected offers involved prices that were higher than the market price.

Fitzgerald said the grain purchased was bought for a national average of $2.40 a bushel or less, the price of corn on Jan. 4 when President Carter suspended further sales to the Soviet Union.

Under law, the commodity Credit Corp. cannot resell them for less than $3.15 a bushel.

Although Carter's order suspended further deliveries of about 17 million metric tons of wheat and corn to the Soviets, an earlier amount — 1 million metric tons — was permitted to remain on order.

However, dock workers have refused to load the remainder of that grain on Soviet-bound ships and department officials feared the bottleneck would worsen as corn piled up at elevators.

Thus, the plan announced in 1976 involves the direct purchase of some of that corn by the credit corporation to help relieve the transportation pressure and bolster farmers' prices.

Fitzgerald said the department "will continue to monitor prices and inges-

Youth Held In Shooting Death

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 16-year-old Lubbock High School student shot in the abdomen early Sunday died at 1:20 a.m. Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital, and another Lubbock High student was in police custody in connection with the fatal incident.

Ray Vasquez of 310 Ave. U died from a single gunshot wound to the lower right portion of the abdomen despite futile efforts by more than 200 area residents to save the boy by donating blood.

A boy, also 16, today has admitted shooting Vasquez about 1:10 a.m. Sunday inside a residence in the 1800-block of Sixth Street, but he has maintained the incident was accidental, said investigating officer Ed Hernandez of the Lubbock Police Department's juvenile division.

The Lubbock High student, who was turned over to the Lubbock Juvenile Probation Office, told police he was playing with a .357 magnum revolver when it accidentally discharged.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack, who pronounced the victim dead and ordered an autopsy, said Monday he is withholding a final ruling until he receives police reports.

Police also were investigating to determine whether the report of gunshots about 8 a.m. Monday near Sixth Street and Avenue S, near where Vasquez was shot, is somehow connected with the fatal shooting incident. A spent bullet was found in the alley near the intersection, police said.

Hernandez said there reportedly were eight persons inside the house, six of them in the living room where the teenager was fatally wounded.

The boy in custody told investigators he was sitting on a couch beside Vasquez and was playing with the revolver. Vasquez got up and walked in front of the other juvenile when the weapon accidentally discharged, police were told.

Several witnesses to the shooting and the youth with the gun then attempted to drive the victim to the hospital, but their pickup truck went out of control on the icy streets in the 2600-block of Sixth Street. Texas Tech police arrived on the scene and transported Vasquez to HSCH.

The gun had not been located by early Monday afternoon, Hernandez said.

Statements police were given Monday contradict earlier reports.

The student who allegedly shot Vasquez told police Sunday that he and the victim were on the front porch of the house when they heard a gunshot. The boy in custody said they ran into the house and Vasquez was grabbing at his stomach and screaming that he had been shot.

The 17-year-old man who lives at the residence also said when first confronted by police that Vasquez was wounded on the porch. He later changed his story and said the shooting occurred inside the house, Hernandez said.

Hernandez said Vasquez, the suspect, three young men and a 19-year-old woman were inside the living room when the victim was shot. All of the witnesses had not been contacted by police, Hernandez said Monday.

"They're now saying it was an accident," Hernandez said, adding that the later reports seem more realistic.

More than 200 persons lined up outside headquarters for the South Plains Blood Services at 415 Ave. R between 4:30 p.m. Sunday and 1:45 a.m. Monday to donate a pint of blood each in an attempt to save Vasquez's life.

John Richmond, executive director of the service, said 206 units (pints) of blood — 70 percent of which was the requested Type A positive — donated by area residents was a new record.

Murder Suspect Charged

Willie David Jordan, 19, of Shallowater Monday was charged with attempted capital murder after two Lubbock County sheriff's deputies were injured Sunday as they thwarted an escape attempt by him and three other inmates at the county jail.

The criminal district attorney's office recommended bond at $100,000.

Jordan reportedly injured deputies Lonnie Bright and Mike Guerra after the escape attempt when he refused to go from his fourth floor cell to an isolation cell on the third floor.

Jordan reportedly splashed scalding water on Bright's back and hit Guerra in the mouth and face. Both deputies were listed in satisfactory condition Monday at West Texas Hospital.

Jordan, attempting his second escape in less than a month, has been sentenced to 40 years for burglary of a habitation and was in the county jail awaiting formal sentencing before he is transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville.

The other inmates involved in the escape attempt were Floyd Lee Ellis, 27, Maurice Dancy, 19, who two weeks ago was convicted of the murder of Texas Tech graduate student Claude Ventry Bridges, and Valton Donnell Lewis, 22, convicted last fall of the armed robbery of a city convenience store equipped with a Crime-Eye camera.

Law enforcement officers said the would-be escapees never got off the fourth floor of the jail during the escape attempt, which occurred about 4:50 p.m. Sunday and was thwarted within 15 minutes.

Jordan and Ellis reportedly were hiding in a shower stall when they made their attempted escape, while Dancy and Lewis reportedly refused to go back into their cells but did not leave the cellblock.

Suspect Listed As Satisfactory

A suspect in the Sunday night shooting death of Catrino Lopez Adame Jr., 35, of Kress, was in satisfactory condition Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital with a stab wound to his left leg.

Plainview Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone pronounced Adame dead on arrival at Central Plains Regional Hospital in Plainview. Hale County sheriff's deputies said Adame was shot four times — twice in the chest and twice in the back — with a .38 caliber pistol about 11:30 p.m. Sunday at the Amigo Country club about one mile east of Plainview.

The 36-year-old suspect told sheriff's deputies that he and Adame had argued in the club, that Adame had pulled a knife on him and he shot Adame in self-defense. However, the suspect claims that he doesn't know who knifed him in the leg.

Capt. Richard Sims said that deputies searched both inside and outside the club but did not find the pistol or a knife. Sims said Monday that the shooting still is under investigation.

A prayer service for Adame will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in the Wood-Dunning Colonial Chapel in Plainview. Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Primera Iglesia Bautista Mexicana with the Rev. Lynn Godsey, pastor of Calvary Spanish Baptist Mission of Kress, officiating.

Burial will be in Plainview Memorial Park under the direction of Wood-Dunning Funeral Home.

The Raymondville native moved to Plainview in 1962 from Raymondville and moved to Kress in 1970. He was employed by Kress Nursery. He married Olga Hernandez Feb. 12, 1964, in Plainview.

Survivors include his wife, three sons, Eddie, Armando and Catrino Lopez III, all of the home; a daughter, Irene of the home; five sisters, Estefana Cavazos of Lamesa, Francisca Adame of Edcouch, Mercedes Moreno of Plainview, Josefine Salinas of Clarksdale, Miss., and Maria Aguilar of Plainview; and three brothers, Juan of Lyford, Domingo of Plainview and Armando of Denton.

City Youth Reports Indecent Exposure

A 14-year-old Mackenzie Junior High School student told police that a man exposed himself while she was walking in the 1500-block of Bangor Avenue about 8 a.m. Monday.

The victim said the man opened his coat and exposed himself to her while he was standing in an alley in the 5400-block of 15th St. The suspect reportedly ran west after the incident.

The suspect was described as a white male, 18 to 25, tall, of medium build with brown hair and a moustache. He was wearing an ankle-length blue and red plaid coat, a straw cowboy hat, red socks and blue tennis shoes.

A 24-year-old Lubbock man was wounded by an apparent sniper early Monday while walking to his residence.

Frederick Michael Myers, who was shot once in the leg in front of his 2020-B 16th St. apartment about 12:30 a.m. Monday, was treated and released at Methodist Hospital.

Myers' female companion told police the shot sounded as if it came from the victim's upstairs apartment. However, the woman said she helped the victim to his residence and found it unoccupied.

Myers' companion then went to a nearby house where police were called. A woman living near the victim said she had earlier heard what sounded like gunshots, according to reports.

Myers and his friend said they did not know who had fired the shot. Attending doctors told police the angle the bullet passed through Myers' leg near the knee indicated the gunman was shooting from above at the man and woman.

The wound was from a .22-caliber bullet, reports state.

In other activity, a 23-year-old Ralls man was arrested shortly after midnight Sunday after he allegedly threatened to shoot two employees at a club in the 1700-block of Fourth Street after being told to leave the nightspot.

Palestinians Shell Christian Lebanese

United Press International
PALESTINIAN guerrillas shelled Christian areas of southern Lebanon, Monday, and a bomb, apparently planted by Arabs, exploded in the Israeli town of Petah Tikva in actions that claimed the heaviest casualties in months.

Bomb explosions and artillery fire killed at least three people and wounded five others in the southern Lebanese village of Deir Mimaas, the Tel Aviv military command said. Israeli radio said four people were killed and four others were wounded in the incident close to the Israeli frontier.

A bomb placed in a trash can at a bus stop in Petah Tikva wounded 10 people, one of them seriously, in the second explosion of its kind in Israel in eight days, police said. A bomb in Rehovoth, Feb. 3, wounded six people.

Police rounded up about 100 Arab suspects for questioning in the area of Petah Tikva, about eight miles northeast of Tel Aviv. The town is used as a drop-off point for Arab laborers entering Israel from the occupied West Bank.

Lebanon's state radio said the leftist-held market town of Nabatiyeh and its surrounding hills also came under artillery fire during the exchange between the guerrillas and militia. It said the shelling was coupled with an overflight of Israeli warplanes, but reported no aerial bombardments.

"The situation is deteriorating along the frontier," a broadcast said.

The radio said later that U.N. peace-keeping forces in the area intervened and arranged a ceasefire.

The guerrillas bombarded Deir Mimaas from the Crusader-built Beaufort

Castle, which overlooks the village of 1,500 from above the northern bank of the Litani River. The village is nestled in a valley on the southern bank.

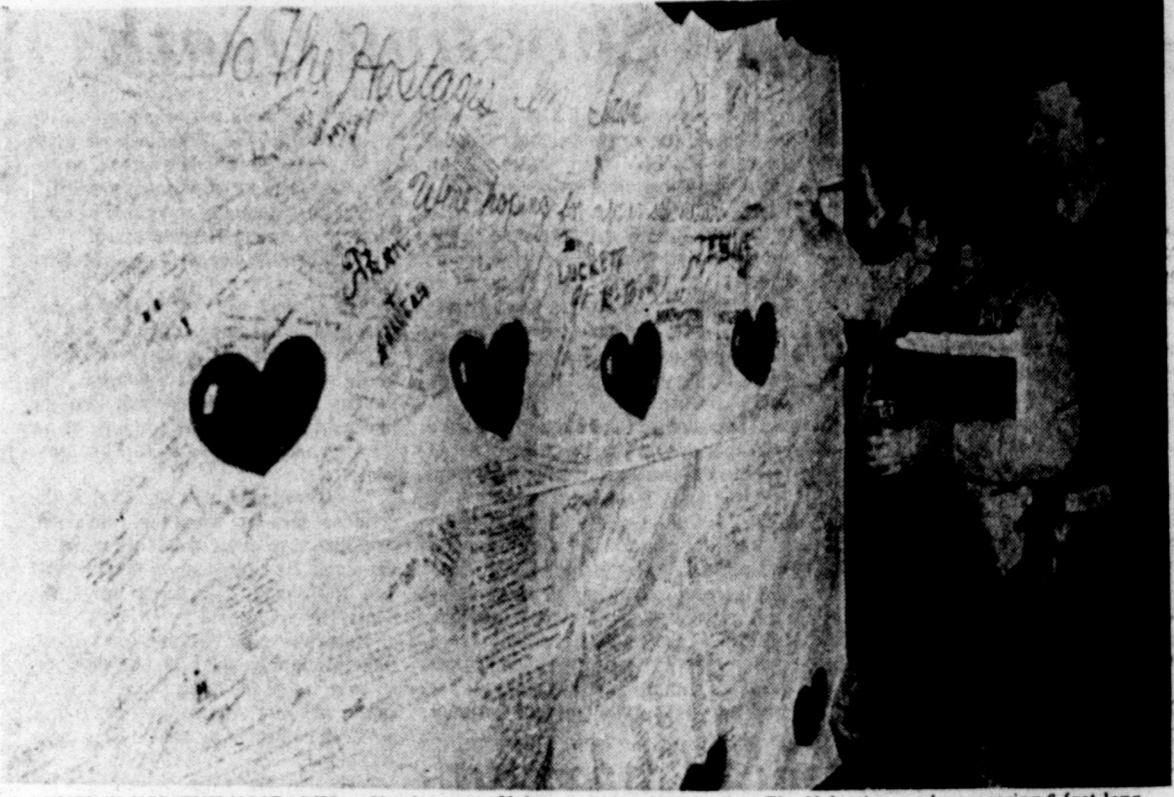

Help Asked
 "We can't afford this," Christian militia leader Maj. Saad Haddad told Israel Radio from Deir Mimaas, situated three miles northwest of the northernmost Israeli town of Metulla.

He called on Prime Minister Menachem Begin "to help us by keeping his promise and putting in the army."

A radio report from Deir Mimaas said the guerrillas first sent a squad into the village at dawn to set explosives near two buildings. The blasts killed a man and a 12-year-old girl, the report said.

It was the highest toll in the Christian-held buffer strip along Israel's northern frontier since Oct. 20, when guerrilla bombardments killed two people and wounded a third.

Israeli military sources estimated that between 700 and 800 guerrillas have infiltrated the area under U.N. control since a cease-fire went into effect in southern Lebanon, last Aug. 26, nearly doubling their number.

Ex-Karate Instructor Foils Knife Wielder

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — A knife-wielding bandit picked on the wrong man, early Monday, in an attempted holdup at a convenience store, police said.

The clerk, Fred Daily, 34, is not your average behind-the-counter man.

He's a former karate instructor who spent 10 years in the army.

Daily said the suspect strolled into his store about 2:30 a.m., briefly looked at a toboggan cap, and then pulled a knife.

"I want all your money," Daily quoted the man as saying.

The clerk said he backed up, just out of reach, and told the man, "You are going to have to take it."

The bandit said, "Let's get on

Begin Repeats Support

In Jerusalem, Begin reiterated Israel's support of the Lebanese Christians.

"We will not allow them to be destroyed," he told a gathering of American Jews. "The Christians can defend themselves, of course, because they have something to do so with as a result of the assistance we gave them."

Israel backs the Christians with everything from heavy weapons and ammunition to clothes and food.

Begin also told the visitors that Israel has made all the concessions it will make to the Palestinians in the Camp David agreements, and the West should not look to sacrifice Israel to appease the Islamic states.

In Kuwait, Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmad al-Jaber al-Sabah told visiting U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry that "the door is open" for direct talks between the United States and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Like Afghanistan
 Commenting on their meeting, Sabah told reporters outside the foreign ministry, "Jerusalem is both an Islamic and a Palestinian question, which does not differ from that of Afghanistan. The United States is urged to avoid having a double standard in its approach to these two problems."

Kuwaiti officials also told McHenry, who is on a seven-nation tour of the Middle East and North Africa, that no Persian Gulf state wants American bases on its territory.

McHenry told reporters that the stand by Persian Gulf nations on not wanting bases in the region applies equally to the Soviet Union, which he accused of an "unfortunate miscalculation in Afghanistan."

In Cairo, Egypt accused Israel, Monday, of violating the letter and spirit of the Camp David peace framework and obstructing the Palestinian autonomy negotiations by allowing Jews to settle in the largely Arab city of Hebron on the occupied West Bank.

Hostages' Freedom Rumored Quite Near

 ment acknowledged its "crimes" in Iran over the last quarter century and pledged to stay out of Iranian affairs. It must also recognize Iran's right to "obtain the extradition of the shah and the restitution of his fortunes." Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying, He said he was waiting for Khomeini to make a decision on the proposal, perhaps in the next few days.

The official Pars news agency said Bani-Sadr had been misquoted, but did not say what the alleged misquote was.

No Profession
 In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the United States will not "profess guilt" for its record in Iran as part of a deal to win release of the hostages. Carter ruled out that possibility when he was asked about the statement by Bani-Sadr. Carter had no further comment on the American efforts to release the hostages.

According to the newspaper, Bani-Sadr also said:

— He had made a separate proposal that the Americans be removed in the next few days from the guard of the Islamic militants to a third party. He said that, too, would have to be approved by the Revolutionary Council, which he heads, as well as by Khomeini.

— He would "never resort" to violence against the Islamic militants. "In the case of a divergence of views, I would eventually go to the U.S. Embassy to convince them to fall in line with my view."

— He favored a compromise solution involving both some form of tribunal to investigate U.S. actions in Iran and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's proposal for an international commission to investigate the shah's rule.

Meanwhile, a U.N. spokesman said Waldheim's negotiations for release of the Americans "are at a very sensitive stage." Spokesman Rudolf Stajduhar said Waldheim "is very closely following all statements by President Bani-Sadr, including the statement given to Le Monde."

In his fiery message, read to the crowds attending the military parade, estimated by state radio at two million, Khomeini urged Iranians and countries around the world to "unite and cut off the hand of the criminal America." Iran must be prepared to "topple from the positions of power anyone who is inclined to compromise with the East and West," said Khomeini, whose son, Ahmad, delivered his father's message to the crowd.

The celebration in Tehran and others around the country marked the anniversary of the forced resignation of Shahpour Bakhtiar, the last prime minister appointed by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now living in Panama after

Blast Misses Guatemala Minister

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Terrorists detonated a remote-controlled bomb in a parked car as Interior Minister Donaldo Alvarez-Ruiz drove past it, Monday, but the cabinet official escaped without injury, witnesses said.

The witnesses said the breakfast-time blast damaged Alvarez-Ruiz's automobile and shattered nearby windows but caused no personal injuries.

None of Guatemala's political extremist groups claimed responsibility immediately for the assassination attempt, and police declined comment.

The witnesses said Alvarez-Ruiz's car, which carried several other persons believed to be bodyguards, was moving through a narrow, winding street when the blast occurred.

Triggered By Radio
 The bomb had been planted in a parked car and apparently was triggered by a radio signal as the minister's vehicle passed, police sources said.

The bombing was the latest political violence to shake the Central American nation of some 6.4 million people, ruled by President Romeo Lucas-Garcia with the backing of conservative military officers and wealthy landowners.

The London-based Amnesty International human rights organization has said that some 2,000 people, most of them leftist and centrist politicians and union leaders, died in political violence in Guatemala in the past year.

In Washington, diplomatic sources said the Carter administration considers that a change in Guatemala's government "is inevitable in the 1980s," similar to the pattern in Nicaragua, where a leftist revolution overthrew President Anastasio Somoza in 1979.

The sources said John Bushnell, deputy assistant secretary for inter-American affairs, gave the warning to high executives of American companies working in Guatemala in a meeting at the State Department, Jan. 15 and 16.

Bushnell said the United States already had begun to cool its relationship with the Guatemalan government and to establish contact with moderate opposition leaders.

Last Jan. 31, some 39 persons were killed in a fire triggered by a police attack on the Spanish Embassy in Guatemala City, which had been taken over by peasants complaining of army repression in the countryside.

The Madrid government broke relations with Guatemala, charging that the police had no legal right to attack the embassy. Spanish Ambassador Maximo Cajal y Lopez said police had used "extraordinary brutality" in raiding the mission.

Mrs. Milburn also was chastised by Tech regents for her opposition to a new music building at Tech, a project she calls unnecessary.

A decision on the building was tabled at the Coordinating Board's January meeting, but the project is due to be reviewed in April. When asked about the building's prospects, Mrs. Milburn said her opposition stemmed from considerations of energy costs and space utilization.

Weak Heart Adds To Tito Illness
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A freshly discovered weakness in President Josip Broz Tito's heart prompted his doctors, Monday, to undertake "indispensable medical steps." They did not disclose the nature of these steps.

A medical report by his doctors also said that the 87-year-old Yugoslav leader whose left leg was amputated Jan. 20, still had kidney problems.

On Sunday, a medical report had said that Tito's post-operative recovery had been slowed because of problems relating to digestion and kidney function.

The Monday report, disclosed by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug several hours after the usual noontime period, dropped the mention of digestion problems, but, for the first time, mentioned "certain signs of heart weakness."

"The indispensable medical steps are being undertaken," the eight-doctor medical panel reported.

Tito was admitted to the modern clinical hospital at Ljubljana on Jan. 12 after medication administered earlier in January, failed to relieve a circulatory blockage in his leg.

Medication had been recommended by an American and a Soviet doctor, who joined a panel of eight top Yugoslav specialists for consultations.

During the night of Jan. 12, surgery was performed on the leg of the Yugoslav president, but without success.

On Jan. 20, doctors removed part of his left leg after serious signs of deterioration of the blood vessels in the leg began to be apparent.

Teen-Age Girls Seized In Kidnapping Rash

ZAMBOANGA CITY, Philippines (AP) — Eleven teen-age girls have been seized in a rash of kidnappings in the southern Philippines, according to authorities.

Police said Monday they still had not received ransom demands for six of the girls, seized in an eight-day period in late January and early February.

The captive held the longest is a 16-year-old girl taken off a bus here last October by five armed men. The men also took the bus driver hostage, but released the conductor with their ransom demand: about $410 in cash, 10 packs of cigarettes, medicine and a sack of rice.

Robbery Suspects Remain At Large

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Two suspects remained at large late Monday in connection with the armed robbery of a convenience store here about 12:55 a.m. Monday.

Plainview police said that two black males entered the Allsup's store, and one of the men forced store attendant Heron Gomez to the rear of the store at gunpoint while the other man began taking the money from the register.

In the meantime, Ronnie Lee Arnn of Lubbock walked into the store, and the man at the register took $50 from him.

The robbers ordered Gomez and Arnn to lie on their stomachs face down in the back of the store before fleeing on foot.

Land Mine Kills Two

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A land mine explosion killed two Northern Ireland police officers patrolling the border area with the Irish republic, Monday, police reported. No group claimed responsibility immediately.

Clayton Vows To Untangle Brilab 'Plot'

 Avalanche-Journal. "We're going to whip this thing. If I have to be an example to find out what brings these attacks on, then I will. I'm really gratified with the turnout tonight and with the support we've gotten from all over Texas."

He told reporters, however, that he could not answer specific questions "under the advisement of my lawyer."

"I'd like to speak openly and freely with you, but I can't because I don't know the answers," he said before returning to Austin.

Other Politicians Hit
 At least 21 political figures and union officials from Louisiana and Texas are going before federal grand juries this week to discuss the FBI's so-called Brilab investigation — a "scam" involving alleged kickbacks to influence insurance purchases by government agencies in four states.

Brilab is the second major undercover FBI investigation to surface within two weeks. The other probe, called Abscam for Arab scam, allegedly involves eight members of Congress as well as businessmen and politicians in several states who took money from undercover FBI agents purporting to buy influence — for special immigration treatment and investments — on behalf of Arab investors.

Guerrilla War Renewal Threatened In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe, one day after an attempt on his life, said Monday that he would renew Rhodesia's seven-year guerrilla war if any more candidates from his party are banned from campaigning in the parliamentary elections.

He arranged to meet, Tuesday, with the British governor, Lord Soames, to demand that security forces be restrained and warn Soames that Mugabe's guerrillas will leave assembly points if representatives of his Zimbabwe African National Union are prohibited from campaigning for the Feb. 27-29 elections.

Threat Blamed
 The governor, who restored British rule here last Dec. 12 after 15 years, Sunday suspended one candidate from Mugabe's party from campaigning in one region for reportedly saying the war would resume unless Mugabe's party won the elections.

Mugabe told a news conference that recent killings, detentions and arrests of members of his party were part of a "strategy worked out by British, South Africans and Rhodesians to disable my party" from participating in the election aimed at returning this country to black rule.

"If, indeed, the governor proceeds further to ban our party from operating in any one area... we will obviously start fighting," Mugabe said.

Mugabe said security forces had tried to kill him, Sunday, when a bomb exploded in a road at Fort Victoria, just after his car passed.

Two district leaders of Mugabe's party, as well as one of their wives, were killed in separate incidents during the weekend.

13 Guerrillas Killed
 The military high command reported, Monday, that 13 guerrillas had been killed by security forces in the past 24 hours. Twelve of the victims were identified as fighters for Mugabe's party, and the 13th as a member of the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union, headed by rival guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo.

Mugabe criticized Soames for obtaining the power, last week, to ban political parties and candidates, and insisted that Soames wanted to install former Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa as head of an independent Zimbabwe, another name for Rhodesia. British sources said the special powers were implemented because of intimidation and lawlessness largely attributable to Mugabe guerrillas.

Muzorewa said at a news conference that he would not accept the results of the elections if either Mugabe or Nkomo wins a majority of the 80 seats in parliament that will go to blacks.

Mugabe, Nkomo and Muzorewa head three of the nine parties participating in the elections that officially will end nine decades of rule by a three percent white minority. The whites, who have been allotted 20 parliament seats, will hold a separate election, Thursday.

Dallas Man Found Stabbed To Death In Apartment

DALLAS (AP) — The body of an 88-year-old retired bus driver, who had been stabbed repeatedly in the chest and abdomen, was discovered by a friend who followed a trail of blood in the victim's apartment, police said.

The victim was identified as Eldridge Skelton. After he was stabbed, he apparently walked or crawled to the door of his bedroom where he collapsed and died, said a field agent for the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

Investigators said Skelton's wallet, containing $374, was found hidden beneath the mattresses of his bed.

Search On For Nursing Director

By LISA PAKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The top administrator at Health Sciences Center Hospital refused Monday to comment on the firing of the hospital's director of nursing, saying only that a search has begun for a replacement.

However, a spokesman for a local nursing organization said the group has scheduled a news conference for Wednesday to discuss the firing and indicated that the shortage of nurses in the city also will be addressed.

Executive director of HSCH Jake Henry Jr. said he would rather not discuss the dismissal of Mary Lemons who has held the post of nursing director since March 1978. But he did say that "we have a search on at this point" for a new director.

Mrs. Lemons, contacted at her home Monday, also declined to comment.

But representatives of the Texas Nurses Association District 18 indicated they will discuss the firing at a news conference Wednesday.

Betty McInnes, secretary of the local chapter, would say little about what subjects would be covered at the conference, but indicated that the association's president would address a broader area than just the firing.

"We need to make the consumer aware of why we can't get nurses in this area," she said. She added that the press conference has been called to "explain" but did not elaborate on that statement.

Mrs. McInnes said she understood the action was taken so that the new administrators at the hospital could bring in a director of their choice for the job.

Henry and chief financial officer Charlie Trimble Jr. were hired in December in hopes that they would be able to ease the financial woes of Health Sciences.

Gwen Stafford, vice chairman of the HSCH board of managers, said Monday that the board was not involved in the firing action, but said she thought it was an "efficiency move. I think he's (Henry) trying to make the hospital efficient and productive and if this is the way to do it, I support him."

Mrs. McInnes said the firing was particularly unfair "especially in view of the nursing shortage" at the hospital and in the Lubbock area. "We're supposed to be recruiting nurses," she said, adding, "Something like this just makes our job all the more difficult."

She said the administration has fired a "professional who is doing her job," and that the nurses association has called the news conference "to protest this type of thing."

The conference is slated for the Community Room at the Mahon Library.

The latest chapter in the stormy history of Health Sciences Center Hospital comes amid moves to trim the payroll, which some staffers say have seriously damaged morale among hospital employees.

The financially troubled institution also got another jolt recently when a consultant hired by the Health, Education and Welfare Department predicted the hospital district would be in bankruptcy before the end of the year. The report, however, was discounted as giving an inaccurate picture by the new administrators.

Students Returning To Classes Following Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Students, some of them "hungry to get back" to classes, flooded through the doors of public schools for the first time in two weeks Monday, as teachers ended their strike in the nation's third-largest district.

"It gets a little boring watching TV and going to movies," said one high school senior. Early attendance estimates showed that most of the 473,000 students were in classes.

Meanwhile, Chicago firefighters, who have been threatening to strike to win a written contract, met with city officials in the presence of a mediator. Firefighters have previously had only a handshake agreement with the city.

As school opened, Board of Education officials were officially informing 300 teachers and 200 teachers' aides who had received termination notices that their jobs were being restored.

The Chicago Teachers Union had insisted that the board sharply reduce the number of jobs being eliminated in trimming millions of dollars out of the budget.

The board had planned to eliminate the jobs of 638 teachers and 200 aides. Later, the board agreed to limit teacher cuts to 338 and restore all the aides' jobs. In return the union agreed to take one unpaid day off at the end of the school year — a measure calculated to save $3.7 million.

Accountants for both the board and the School Finance Authority, set up to oversee the district's muddled finances, were trying Monday to determine what the latest financial juggling act would mean for the board's precariously balanced budget.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Civic Federation, a citizens' group, criticized the past school board practice of "hiding" its deficit in phony budget statements.

William J. Mc Glone called the the practice "unheard of." It had consisted of publishing the phony budgets during the past seven years which understated the amount of cash that would be required to pay school employees, the Chicago Tribune said.

But returning teachers were less concerned with budgeting tricks than with ending their strike. "We're happy it ended well," union President Robert Healey said after announcing that teachers voted 4,645 to 213 on Sunday in favor of ending the walkout.

Two weeks ago, the teachers refused to work because they weren't paid on time. They struck last week over the loss of jobs.

The total worth of 1979 U.S. crops is an estimated $61 billion.

Talks Stall, Classes Canceled

WARWICK, R.I. (AP)—Classes in the Warwick public schools were canceled for 15,000 students Monday after negotiations between non-teaching employees and school officials broke off without an agreement Sunday night, school officials said.

Because the employees included bus drivers, the schools were ordered closed because pupils would not have transportation, said Dominic R. DiLuglio, school superintendent.

They are asking for pay hikes of 9.6 percent a year, plus improved health benefits. The school committee offered a two-year pact with raises of 8 percent a year. The union represents 400 bus drivers, custodians and teachers' aides.

Clayton's Appearance Before Grand Jury Moved To Wednesday

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury is to hear testimony today from several Texas political and labor officials who have become central figures in an undercover FBI investigation of an alleged insurance kickback scheme.

The politicians subpoenaed to appear before the Houston panel have denied any wrongdoing.

The investigation, code-named "Operation Brilab", has reached from the Texas Legislature to the Houston city council.

Subpoenas have been served to:

- Texas House Speaker William Clayton, a 51-year-old West Texas millionaire farmer
- Russell Kelley, Clayton's executive assistant
- Robert Johnson, executive director of the Texas Legislative Council and House parliamentarian
- Randall Wood, an Austin attorney who said his firm had been asked to research the state employee insurance program
- L. G. Moore, Deer Park, regional director of the Operating Engineers International Union
- James Westmoreland, a lawyer serving his fourth term on the Houston city council
- Homer Ford, an architect serving his ninth term on the council.

Frank Mann, an 18-year veteran of the council who was defeated for reelection last November.

Clayton's appearance before the grand jury has been delayed until Wednesday because his attorney has another case pending in court.

U.S. Attorney A.J. "Tony" Canales met with the grand jury Monday to outline the case.

FBI agents, posing as representatives of the Prudential Insurance Co., were probing possible government bribery in the awarding of insurance contracts.

Federal sources said the investigation originally was focused in Louisiana and they (Houston and Texas officials) just happened into the investigation.

The Houston city council recently approved by a 7-2 vote acceptance of a new contract with Prudential that has a premium value of about $14 million a year. An insurance contract with the state would yield premiums of between $72 and $80 million for the more than 80,000 active and retired employees.

Clayton, now serving an unprecedented third term and seeking a fourth as head of the 150-member house, said at a Saturday news conference he was the victim of "an apparent political assassination."

Clayton acknowledged he was given "a stack of $100 bills" as a political contribution Nov. 8, but said he kept the money in "a safe place" and never intended accepting it.

Published reports said Clayton accepted $10,000 during a meeting with Joseph Hauser, who reportedly was working for the FBI, and Moore.

Clayton said the labor leader told him he wanted to leave a campaign contribution and then placed some money on the desk. As soon as the two men left, Clayton said, he told his executive assistant to put the money in an envelope so it could be returned to Moore the next time he was in Austin.

Clayton said, "I have not taken a bribe."

Councilman Ford said, "This is the biggest laughing thing I have ever heard. Between you (news media) and the FBI, you have built up something that doesn't exist."

Westmoreland said he would attempt to assist the grand jury in any way possible because "I personally have committed no wrongdoing."

Former councilman Mann said FBI agents who served him with the subpoena Sunday asked him if he had ever discussed insurance matters with an official of the Port of Houston Authority.

Mann said he told the agents that the only time he had discussed the insurance plan was during an open session of the city council.

Houston Mayor Jim McConn said he has ordered an investigation of the insurance transaction, but knows of no wrongdoing by any city official.

Moore, who reportedly set up the meeting with Speaker Clayton, has been unreachable for comment. His role in the FBI investigation remains a mystery.

Depositions Planned In School Trial

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Justice Department will take depositions this week from three city residents in preparation for the conclusion of the city public school desegregation hearing which is expected to focus on the development of northeast Lubbock.

Schools attorney Tom Johnson said Monday that depositions will be taken Thursday from Orville Alderson, director of the Urban Renewal Agency here, and from Jim Bertram, director of planning for the city.

A deposition will be taken Friday from Maxine McCormick, a former Urban Renewal employee.

Johnson said Mrs. McCormick will not be present in Judge Halbert O. Woodward's court for the hearing on Feb. 22, but said he does not know whether the other two will be called as witnesses.

He also said he does not know yet whether the school district will call any rebuttal witnesses.

Government attorneys previously took depositions from Alderson and Bertram prior to the 1977 desegregation hearing that resulted in a partial integration plan in the district.

Alderson said Monday he does not know what the government attorneys plan to ask him this time and Mrs. McCormick said she would not comment.

But Johnson said their deposition testimony probably will concern information on the development of northeast Lubbock as was requested by Judge Woodward when he called for a delay on Jan. 31 in the final stage of the federal court trial.

Woodward called for a postponement of the second federal court hearing that began Jan. 23 when he learned that a Justice Department witness had been in the courtroom to hear testimony he was to rebut.

Harry Stokley Jr., a member of the Planning and Zoning Commission, was expected to testify on the development of northeast Lubbock, and particularly the Cherry Point housing division as a minority area, including any effects school board actions may have had on the development.

But Stokley was in the courtroom earlier in the week and heard school district witness Dr. E.C. Leslie's testimony on the subject.

Under a sequestration rule invoked by attorneys for both sides, all witnesses, except expert witnesses, were prohibited from listening to prior testimony in the trial.

Woodward told attorneys that since the information concerning Cherry Point is "very important and critical" to this case, he would allow government attorneys to locate a new witness to testify in that regard.

Woodward said, "I'm hopeful the government can come up with someone else to testify to the facts."

The case was heard again by Woodward after it was remanded by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in August. The appeals court ordered Woodward to determine whether deliberately discriminatory school board acts affected housing patterns, thus preserving segregation in the district.

Bess Truman To Observe 95th Birthday Quietly

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman, the widow of President Harry Truman, will observe her 95th birthday quietly on Wednesday at home with a few visitors and friends.

She's doing just great. She's in good spirits. She's just getting along great.

said Robert Adams, a retired hospital executive director.

Adams and Rufus Burrus, who help look after Mrs. Truman's business and personal matters, will be among those who visit her Wednesday.

Lance's Attorney Chides Prosecutor's Conduct

ATLANTA (AP) — Attorneys defending former federal budget director Bert Lance against bank fraud charges asked the judge to throw out the case Monday, saying the conduct of prosecutors had been "reprehensible."

U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moyer denied the motion. Lance's chief attorney, Nicholas Chilivis, argued that prosecutors tried to introduce as bank records about a dozen documents that had been supplied to the bank by the government.

"We contend that it's reprehensible conduct," Chilivis said. "We feel that the court ought to be offended."

The motion was the latest in a series of attacks by Lance and his three co-defendants on the conduct of the government's investigators and attorneys.

The judge later admitted several of the challenged documents as evidence and reversed his decision on the remainder.

As the trial entered its fifth week, prosecutor Edwin Tomko urged Moyer to ask the jurors if they had seen a television commentary critical of the government's methods.

Tomko said the commentary and a news report on Atlanta station WXIA-TV misrepresented what happened last week when Moyer rejected two documents prepared by an Atlanta bank at the request of FBI agents.

When Moyer polled the 12 jurors and six alternates, none said they had seen the television commentary.

During his service as budget director, Lance was one of President Carter's most influential advisers. He was forced to resign in September 1977 after publicity about investigations of his practices as head of two Georgia banks.

The documents challenged by the defense on Monday were photocopies of records of loans from the National City Bank of Rome, Ga., to Lance, his 1974 gubernatorial campaign, members of his family and defendants Richard Carr and Jack Mullins.

The fourth defendant, Thomas Mitchell, also had dealings with the Rome bank while he kept track of Lance's financial holdings in a blind trust during Lance's government service.

The television commentary, broadcast Friday on the station that once employed Lance as a commentator, concluded by saying, "In view of the whole Lance affair, it is becoming harder and harder to believe that the government wants justice as much as it wants his scalp."

Firemen, Police Union Leaders Warn Of Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Union leaders raised the threat of a strike by police and firemen angry about layoffs Monday, as union members snarled traffic around City Hall again with their third mass protest march.

"There is a distinct possibility there will be a strike," said Charles Gallagher, president of Lodge 5 of the Fraternal Order of Police. "A lot depends on the mayor." He urged officers to continue their refusal to write traffic tickets.

"A strike is not what anyone wants," said John A. Reilly, president of Local 22 of the city Fire Fighters Association. "But the feeling of the men is running very high now."

Union leaders were to meet with Mayor William Green later Monday afternoon.

State law prohibits strikes by firemen or policemen.

Police spokesman Don Fair said absences were "just a few more than normal" Monday at districts where police had called in sick over the weekend. The "Green Flu" named after the mayor, first struck the 17th district last week, and nearly 75 percent of the officers at two of the department's 26 districts were out over the weekend.

Green last week ordered 738 jobs cut from the city's 8,500-member police force and the layoffs of 246 of the city's 2,350 firefighters to counteract a $167 million budget deficit over the next 17 months.

The mayor refused to reconsider the layoff order, involving 1,219 city employees overall, when he met with the union leaders during the first and most unruly demonstration last Thursday.

Monday's rally appeared the largest of the midday marches thus far. Police estimated 3,000 off-duty police officers and firemen were involved, although union leaders estimated 7,000 protesters.

Country To Nationalize Banks

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's ruling junta on Monday announced the nationalization of private banking — including foreign banks — a land reform program and government control of exports in a move to appease leftists and restore peace to the violence-racked Latin American country.

Col. Adolfo Arnoldo Majano said on national radio that the country's constitution would remain in effect, ending fears it might be suspended to make way for the reforms.

Among the banks affected by the order are Citibank of New York, Bank of America, the Bank of Panama, Spain's Santander Bank, Britain's Bank of London and South America, plus about six Salvadoran banks.

Arnoldo Majano, one of three military members of the five-man junta, did not detail the land reform program.

He said an article in the country's 1962 constitution permitted the measures, which he said respond to the "military proclamation of Oct. 15 in which then President Carlos Humberto Romero was deposed."

McBee, chairman of the House Elections Committee.

"A special committee, with subpoena power, appointed by Speaker Bill Clayton.

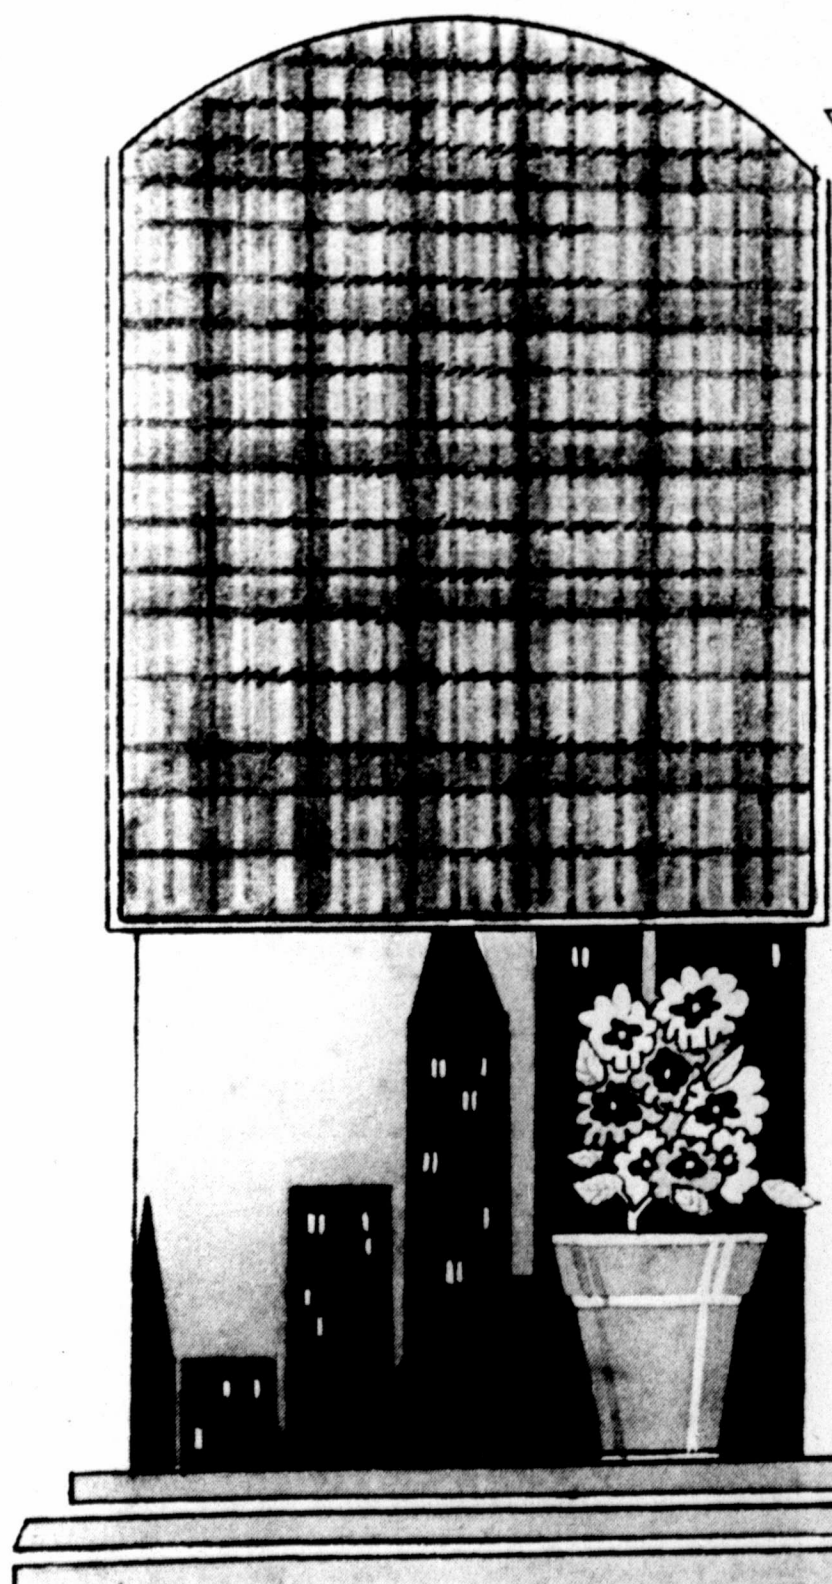

Smothers said there had been allegations that widespread voter fraud took place in the recent Dallas City Council election.

The Great Tech Basketball Mystery

THINGS GET PRETTY QUIET after midnight in Waco — even on Saturday. And it was well after midnight, but there was no way Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers was going to get much sleep — quiet or not.

The Raiders had just turned in what would safely be called their worst performance of the year — taking a 79-56 licking from the Baylor Bears. Thursday in Houston, it was the Rice Owls who embarrassed Myers and Tech with a 71-61 defeat.

Taking nothing away from either team, the Bears and Owls had a combined total of six Southwest Conference wins before their encounters with Tech. They were not, and are not, what you would call your basic powers.

Texas A&M is a powerhouse, though, and last Monday the Raiders gave the Aggies a 63-53 licking in the Municipal Coliseum. That was the Aggies' only conference loss to date. The Raiders also defeated third-place Texas in Austin earlier this year and lost to second-place Arkansas in overtime on a last-second shot at the buzzer.

IF ALL THIS SEEMS HARD to understand, well, join the crowd. No one seems to know what the devil is going on.

"I've never had a team like this," said Myers as he paced the floor that night in Waco. "I don't know what to do. I guess I've got two choices — I can hire a psychiatrist or get a baseball bat."

"I think a baseball bat would be a lot cheaper — and more effective." What concerns Myers is the way his team appeared to give up in the second half against the Bears. Besides that, the Raiders seem to be getting worse with every outing — instead of better.

"Everybody else in the conference is improving," he said, "but we're getting worse. We're making the same old mistakes over and over. Obviously something is wrong."

After the game Saturday, Myers promised that Tech fans would see a change in the starting lineup. Something simply has to be done.

Right now senior Thad Sanders looks like the most likely candidate to earn a starting berth this Saturday's game with the SMU Mustangs. Sanders could replace either Ben Hill or David Little at a forward spot for the Raiders. Neither Hill nor Little played well on Tech's disastrous road trip last week.

After that, Myers' choices are rather limited. His starting five may not be playing the best basketball in the conference, but his bench isn't the deepest in the world, either.

TECH AND MYERS ARE STANDING at the turning point. Either they lay down and die right now — or they regroup during their next two home games with SMU and Texas.

The Raiders' schizophrenic personality has not done much for Myers' health this year. The Raiders are 9-1 in the Coliseum (losing only that overtime game to Arkansas), but a dismal 4-9 on the road. Right now the Raiders are 7-6 in SWC play and alone in fourth place. Texas is in third with a 7-5 mark. Knocking at the door are the 6-6 Houston Cougars.

With the SWC Postseason Tournament in sight, every conference game has become critical. Should the Raiders win against SMU and Texas, and A&M win the rest of their games — Tech could claim third in the conference and get a bye past the first round — thus assuring the Raiders of a spot in San Antonio.

But a fourth-, fifth- or sixth-place finish would mean that the Raiders would have to win a first-round game in Lubbock before advancing to San Antonio.

Right now nothing is certain. The way the Raiders played against Rice and Baylor does not do much to instill confidence.

"What am I going to do with this team?" Myers asked on that glum night in Waco. "I've beat my head against the wall about as long as I can. Tonight (Saturday) we started out pretty good and then the bottom just fell out. The same thing happened against Rice."

Theories abound as to Tech's sudden turnaround — but none of them give any answers. The obvious question of how can you beat the best team in the conference (A&M) by 10 points and then lose to Rice and Baylor by 10 and 23 remains unanswered.

ONE ANSWER IS THE CONFERENCE schedule. The Raiders played seven games in 14 days and went 2-5 during that span. Both wins came at home, one against last-place TCU and the other against the first-place Aggies.

But Tech can't use the tough schedule as a crutch anymore. They've got a full week to prepare for Saturday's clash with SMU — and Myers says they need the practice. And you can bet your red balloons (that fell from the Coliseum roof prior to the A&M game) that Tech practices will not be a barrel of laughs this week.

The Raiders also have this thing about success — they can't stand it. Tech has never won more than three games in a row at any point in the season.

Then there has been the problem with turnovers. Although the Raiders haven't shot as well as they did earlier in the year, their field goal percentage hasn't been that bad. But when you throw the ball away before you ever get a chance to put it up — it's kind of tough to score.

It's not time to panic yet — the Tech cagers still have time to make a run at the tournament. But it's now or never. The Raiders need wins over SMU and Texas worse than anything except maybe a 7-foot-2 center.

The Raiders have proven that they can play as well as anyone in the conference — but they've also displayed an uncanny ability to play worse than anyone in the league.

Blue Demons Garner All First-Place Votes

By The Associated Press
Unbeaten DePaul was the unanimous choice for the top spot in The Associated Press college basketball poll for the fourth consecutive week Monday as the top six teams remained the same and preseason favorite Indiana fell out of the elite 20 for the first time this season.

The Blue Demons were tabbed No. 1 on all 58 first-place ballots and received a perfect score of 1,160 points in the voting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. In its only game last week, DePaul edged Dayton 65-63.

Syracuse, Louisville, Oregon State, Kentucky and Louisiana State filled the next five positions, respectively.

The Orangemen collected 1,047 points in outdistancing Louisville for the No. 2 spot. The Cardinals, who posted victories over Cincinnati and Providence last week, garnered 1,012 points.

Oregon State, which nipped Arizona State in overtime last week, was fourth with 959 points, followed by Kentucky, 898, and Louisiana State, 874.

St. John's moved up one spot this week and took over the No. 7 position from Maryland with 774 points. The Terps were next with 749 points while Ohio State and Clemson rounded out the Top 10.

Politics Tarnish Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — In politically disturbed Lake Placid on the eve of the 1980 Olympic Winter Olympics, there appeared no thawing of opposition Monday to a U.S. plea to pull the Summer Games out of the Soviet Union.

The argument over whether the Summer Olympics should be held in Moscow continued before the International Olympic Committee, while courts dealt with another politically rooted issue in Albany, not far away.

The Appellate Division of the state Supreme Court upheld the committee's rule barring Taiwan athletes from using the flag or anthem of the Republic of China.

If upheld by higher courts, the decision could provoke a walkout by the Taiwanese. But it would clear the way for the first participation ever by the People's Republic of China, or communist China, in the Winter Olympics.

The unanimous decision reversed a ruling last Thursday by state Supreme Court Justice Norman L. Harvey of Plattsburgh. But lawyers for the Taiwanese immediately headed for the Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, to file an appeal.

With the Winter Games set to start to day, Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, again presented President Carter's demand that the Summer Games be moved from Moscow, postponed or canceled if the Soviets do not withdraw their troops from Afghanistan by Feb. 20.

Carter has said he will ask that no U.S. team be sent to Moscow if his conditions are not met. U.S. officials abroad have lobbied other friendly governments to take the same stand.

But there were strong indications that the International Olympic Committee would reject Carter's plea before it concluded its special session in Lake Placid on Tuesday. Lord Killanin, president of the international committee, had said repeatedly the Summer Games could not be moved.

In the Albany courtroom, Taiwan pressed its challenge to the arrangements made by the International Olympic Committee to have China compete in the Winter Olympics for the first time since the Communist takeover in 1949.

Taiwan was trying to overturn rules that forbid it to compete as the Republic of China and require it to use a different flag and anthem than it currently uses.

In a concession to mainland China, which has refused to compete in international sport with any team that calls itself the Republic of China, the International Olympic Committee had told Taiwan to use the name Taipei Olympic Committee and to change its flag and anthem.

Taiwan won a lower-court order overturning the rule, but the international committee and the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee appealed. The Taiwanese contended they were the victims of unfair discrimination since the Olympic committee did not dictate what names other countries use.

Taiwanese athletes remained housed in hotels around town, unable to train. Lake Placid officials had refused to admit the athletes to the Olympic Village or to the competition sites since the Taiwanese insisted on registering as the Republic of China.

But the U.S. efforts to get the Summer Olympics moved out of Moscow was the dominant issue at the International Olympic Committee meeting in Lake Placid since it began Friday.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance traveled to Lake Placid on Saturday to personally make the U.S. case.

Mats Must Defeat 'Dogs

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

What more can be said about tonight's District 1-AAA showdown between Estacado and Borger that hasn't already been said over and over again? Apparently, not much.

Estacado — 18-10 overall and 1-1 in the district's second round of play — simply has to win. A loss knocks the Matadors out of title contention, and means EHS will be playing the rest of the season for pride.

Borger, on the other hand, is sitting pretty. After coming from behind to tie Estacado for the first-half championship, the Bulldogs have regained their form and are once again playing like a 20-2 team.

If you don't believe it, ask the Dumas Demons.

The Demons, who handed Estacado its opening loss in the 1-AAA second round by a 63-57 count, were butchered by Borger 74-50 in Dumas Friday night.

Meanwhile Estacado, which at one point had won nine of 10 contests, has lost two of its last four.

A 68-60 defeat at the hands of Levelland cost EHS sole possession of the first-half title (as well as a sure playoff berth), and last Tuesday's setback to Dumas put them in a must-win situation for the remainder of second-half action.

Even if Estacado beats Borger, the Mats would still have to win three more games before they could call themselves district champs.

After Borger, Estacado plays at Levelland and then hosts Dunbar. Should the Matadors win those three games, they would likely finish in a tie with the Bulldogs for the second-half title and would then play Borger in a playoff game.

Dunbar is in a must-win situation, too, though of a different sort. The Panthers have not yet won a district ball game.

Many Area Basketball Races Remain Undecided

By RICHARD DAVY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Reversing the old cliché, "Life is lonely at the top," several area district basketball races are still undecided with contenders vying for the top spot heading into the final week of district play.

District 5-AA, which has Tahoka, Denver City and Frenship deadlocked for first place, may never be decided.

Tahoka, which beat Frenship 44-40 in overtime Friday, hosts Slaton tonight and plays at Denver City Thursday night.

Frenship, which has a 16-9 season record and a 5-1 district mark, hosts Cooper tonight.

Tahoka's Bulldogs control their own destiny in their two games this week. If they beat Slaton, the winner of Friday's game between Tahoka and Denver City plays the winner of the first-half championship. Seminole, for the overall championship.

The Slaton girls, who have won every 5-AA game this season and lead the race with a 13-0 district record, will be in Tahoka tonight for their final regular season game. Going into tonight's clash, the Tigerettes are 28-2.

Abernathy, winner of the first half of District 4-AA play, will host Tullia tonight for the second-half championship. Going into their final regular season game, the Antelopes are 19-6 and 3-0 in the second half of 4-AA play.

Morton, which looks to be in the driver's seat of the District 3-AA race, will travel to Olton tonight and be in Littlefield Friday night. The Indians are 15-10 this season and 2-0 in the second half of district play.

The Dimmitt girls, who are still in the thick of the 3-AA race, will host Friona tonight and Olton Friday, but the game they will be most interested in will be between Muleshoe and Littlefield tonight. If Muleshoe wins, the Bobbies of Dimmitt will have to meet Muleshoe for the district championship.

The Hale Center boys and New Deal girls are in control of their District 4-A races, and will be the favorites to win the post-season tournaments which will be played Thursday and Friday.

Motley County, whose teams both have 3-0 district records, will host Guthrie tonight. The boys, which have an 18-1 season record, have clinched their District 12-B championship.

But the 20-1 Motley County girls will be playing for the second-half championship. Motley County won the first-half title.

In District 9-B, the Sands boys have clinched the title with a 4-0 record. They will be traveling to Wellman tonight to close out the regular season. The Mustangs have a 27-2 season record.

Klondike and Borden County's girls are tied for the 9-B girls championship, and will have to play for the overall championship in a playoff game. A date for the title matchup has not been decided yet.

Wilson and Smyer, each with one loss in the second half of District 8-B play, will meet for the title tonight in Smyer. Wilson is 9-12 this season and Smyer is 25-2.

The Meadow girls have clinched the District 8-B title with a perfect 10-0 record. They are 20-9 this season.

The Nazareth boys will host Slaton tonight and be hoping Valley loses one of its remaining District 5-B games. Nazareth won the first-half title, but lost to Valley in the second half. The two will play for the overall championship if they both win tonight.

The Nazareth girls, 29-2 this season and perfect in 5-B play, have already clinched their district championship.

Mustangs, Plainsmen Renew Old Rivalry

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

What started out as a showdown might just turn out to be nothing but a showup tonight.

For awhile, it looked like tonight's meeting between the Coronado Mustangs and the Monterey Plainsmen had the makings of a first-class barnburner. But all that changed last Friday night when the Mustangs blew a 17-point third-quarter lead and wound up losing to Plainview 71-70. And while the Mustangs were allowing the Bulldogs to celebrate Christmas 11 months early, Monterey was also giving more than receiving.

Like a Studebaker with locked brakes,

Joe Michalka's Plainsmen saw their 23-game winning streak come to a screeching halt last week. Hereford, which faces Lubbock High tonight at 7:30 in the LHS gym, defeated Monterey 64-53.

Let's set the scene for tonight's game then:

• Both teams still have a chance at tying for the District 4-A AAAA crown.

But, in reality, neither can win it outright with one loss already under their belts. (At least, no team has won the title with a defeat since the district was re-organized 12 years ago.) But that doesn't mean the 7:30 p.m. contest is strictly for pure enjoyment.

• A win would mean quite a bit more to Monterey than to Coronado. Reason: Monterey ends its conference race Friday night against Plainview. A win tonight over Coronado and a victory Friday translates into a district championship for the Plainsmen. And that means a bi-district contest against the District 3-AAAA champ. But a loss to either the Mustangs or the Bulldogs means post-season playoff between Monterey and — in all likelihood — Plainview a week from Friday. (Monterey, remember, has already won the first-half title with a 4-0 mark.)

• Oh, Coronado still has an outside shot at the title. But it's comparable to hitting a moving target in the dark with a pea shooter at 100 paces. Coronado must win its remaining three games (Monterey, Lubbock High and Hereford) and hope that Plainview loses to both Monterey and Lubbock. That's all it takes.

"We brought it on ourselves," said CHS coach Barry Armwine, following the loss to Plainview.

Both Monterey and Coronado are in excellent condition, according to the two head coaches. So excuses can be dispensed with.

The Monterey girls, which meet Coronado prior to the boys' contest, can wrap up a district championship with a win over the Mustangs. Monterey, however, has already won a trip to the bi-district contest opposite the District 3-AAAA winner.

Chaparrals Drop Two-Pointer To Trinity

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — The Trinity Tigers took advantage of a Lubbock Christian College turnover with seven seconds remaining Monday night to post an 84-82 victory over the Chaparrals in TIAA competition.

Trinity held an 83-82 lead with seven seconds to play when Wyatt McVea missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw situation and LCC's Kevin Wharton came down with the rebound. But before the Chaps could get the ball across the midcourt line, the Tigers picked off an errant pass and picked up an insurance point on a Dan Marquez free throw with one second left to ice the win.

The loss was LCC's fourth in the last five games and dropped the Chaps to 5-4 in TIAA action and 15-16 overall. Trinity is now 5-4 in conference play and 9-9 overall.

The game was tied 13 times and the lead changed hands 23 times. The lead changed hands 20 times in the second half alone.

LCC had the biggest lead of the night, 44-38, with 17:08 remaining in the second half. The Chaps trailed at intermission 38-36, but scored the first eight points of the second stanza to pull ahead.

Keith Gardner and Bruce Carver led the Chaps with 22 and 20 points respectively. Wharton added 16 counters and 16 rebounds. Jim Steensma also dropped in 10 for the losers.

McVea led all scorers with 35 tallies. 21 of them in the second half. Mark Taylor added 16 points for the winners.

Flying Queens Bomb Red Raider Women

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The Texas Tech women's basketball team was turned back in its quest for win No. 20 for the third straight time here Monday night, dropping a 72-61 decision to the Wayland Baptist Flying Queens.

The Raiders, after losing three straight, are 19-9 on the year while WBC is 16-9. Earlier this year the Raiders took a 75-72 decision from the Queens in Lubbock.

The game was close until the 6:44 mark of the final half when the Raiders went six minutes without scoring a single point. Tech had trailed by only three, 57-54, but during that stretch fell behind 68-54.

Kathy Booth paced the WBC attack with 20 points and Jamie Horacheck added 18 for the Queens. Although Wayland did not get a single free throw in the first half, they were 14 of 15 at the line in the second stanza.

The Raiders got 14 points from Pam Stone and 11 from Vicki Lee. But usually high-scoring Gwen McCray was held to only two points before fouling out late in the contest.

Tech's next action comes Friday night in the Municipal Coliseum when the Raiders host Amarillo College at 7:30 p.m.

LCC Women Drop Heartbreaker

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — The Lubbock Christian College women's basketball team lost a 68-66 heartbreaker in overtime to Trinity Monday night.

The loss dropped the Lady Chaps to 4-16 this season and 4-5 in Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association competition. Trinity is now 5-14 and 3-6. The game was tied 12 times, including a 32-32 tie at halftime and 60-60 at the end of regulation time. Trinity then outscored LCC 8-6 in overtime for the victory.

The Lady Chaps' biggest lead was eight points, 20-12, with 8:59 left in the first half.

Trinity then came up with eight straight points, to tie the score. Trinity had two six-point leads in the second half.

After an LCC shot was missed at the end of regulation time, the game's leading scorer, Trinity's Terri Hailey, hit a pair of free throws with 40 seconds left in the overtime period. The Lady Chaps then had a chance to win, but were called for a three-second violation with 20 seconds to play.

Estacado Tests Tough Bulldogs

first half, Dumas beat DHS 104-60. Borger won 73-63 and Estacado took a 88-72 win.

If there were any other school but Dunbar, it might not be so surprising. But since 1967, Dunbar has had only one losing season — and that squad went 13-14.

In all of those 14 years, Dunbar has never had a losing district season.

The fewest wins the Panthers ever had in loop play was six last year and during the 1972-73 season. Over a full season, the fewest Dunbar wins was 13 in the losing 1972-73 year.

Now Joe McWilliams' bunch stands 10-16 and 0-7, with only slim hopes of improving on that.

"I don't think Dunbar has ever gone a season with as few wins as we have this year," said McWilliams, a star for the Panthers in his playing days. "I think from here things have to get better for us."

"Really, I think we have a bright future. We'll be young again next year, but we'll have some experience."

Along with experience, the Panthers may also have a team leader, something McWilliams says Dunbar has been lacking all season.

"I think the lack of senior leadership has really hurt us the most," McWilliams declared. "That and being as inconsistent as we have been all year. How are we going to do against Dumas? It's hard to say. It's the same old story, it's been that way since the beginning of the year."

"I don't feel like we have anything to lose," he continued. "This might be our last chance for a win. It looks that way. If we can't beat Dumas, it's going to be tough against Borger. And Estacado will probably be even more difficult."

Certainly, the last time Dumas and Dunbar played is etched in McWilliams' mind. The Demons ran up a 104-60 count, not pulling their starters until three minutes remained in the game.

At that time, McWilliams said "I will have no mercy in my heart for them the next time we play."

And if Dunbar returns to its old ways, you can bet he'll make good on that threat. His first three years as coach, the Panthers went 33-3 in district play.

In the other 1-AAA game tonight, Levelland visits Canyon.

Tonight is the last night's competition across the South Plains. In District 1-AAA, second-half leader Canyon hosts Levelland and first-half champ Borger hosts Estacado. Only a combination of a Canyon loss and a Bulldog victory would prevent a playoff for the district title.

A win over the 0-3 Eagles would clinch the district's second-half title and force a playoff with Odessa Ector.

A loss, and Ector would tie for the second-half and win the overall championship.

In 3-AAA, Sweetwater and Lake View are 2-1 while Snyder is 2-0 with a game still to be made up against Brownfield. Tonight, Sweetwater is open and Lake View is at Snyder.

Several rescheduled area basketball games were played Monday night.

The Klondike girls captured the District 9-B second-round title by whipping Dawson 65-30. Dana and Cathy Cave paced Klondike with 15 points apiece.

The Klondike girls will face Borden

County next week to decide the district champion.

In boys' action, Dawson whipped Klondike 63-53.

Matt Barron pumped in 19 points to lead the Plains boys to a close 51-48 win over Ropes in a District 5-A thriller. Mark Jecoffate led the losers with 12 points.

In the girls' tilt, Regina Melton tallied 20 points to lead the Ropes girls to a 70-58 victory. Sonia Nance had 20 to pace the Plains attack.

In a non-district contest, Jana Edwards cannoned 21 points to lead Borden County's girls to a 59-48 triumph over Robert Lee. The loss was the first of the year for Robert Lee, now 25-1. Borden County is now 28-2.

Group Pledges To Reopen Music Hall

LONDON (AP) — The 4,000-gas-jet candelabra blazed light, and glittering mirrors bounced it round the walls. The audience of sailors, dockers and their girls thundered applause. And on stage strolled George Leybourne, the original "Champagne Charlie."

He wore a top hat, striped pants and a huge mustachio, and carried a bottle of champagne. He was a buck, a rake, a swell, a tot! He paraded, strutted and swaggered outrageously. And to a foot-stomping rhythm, with the audience roaring out the choruses, he sang the song still familiar to some today.

"Champagne Charlie is my name,
"Champagne Charlie is my name."

The date was 1870, at the height of Victorian music hall, the British name for vaudeville, and of Leybourne's popularity. The place was Wilton's Music Hall at Stepney in the heart of East London's then bustling Cockney dockland.

Imitation "Champagne Charlies," taking bribes to work commercial brand names of the popular wine into their songs, sprang up at many of London's other 50 or so music halls and the city's army of delivery boys whistled the tunes day and night.

The dingy, neglected, empty shell of Wilton's stands today as Britain's oldest surviving vaudeville theater. The stage is still there along with the balcony with its ornate plaster work and the twisted iron columns like sticks of barleysugar that support it.

But the lights are out, the stage is bare and the audiences are gone, mostly home to their television sets.

But with luck and money they may soon be back, applauding Liza Minnelli and a host of other stars in the flesh.

For the London Music Hall Protection Society Ltd., formed to restore Wilton's to its former glory, and its steering committee containing some of the best-known names in British show business are pledged to reopen the theater as the National Center of Variety Entertainment.

Miss Minnelli has promised to play a one-night stand there when it does, appearing on the same stage that Leybourne trod 110 years ago.

The American actress made the pledge when she launched a fund-raising appeal for the project last year at a dinner at London's Cafe Royal.

An audience of up to 500, with those in the balcony able to dine while they watch, will be able to see daily shows by top-ranking modern entertainers that mostly now can be seen only on television.

A training school in variety theater techniques is also planned. Want to learn singing, dancing, acrobatics, how to juggle, how to be a ventriloquist? If the professionals associated with Wilton's reckon you have the talent, classes two or three times a week will be available for up-and-coming hopefuls.

The artistic director of the Wilton's project is actor Peter Honri, who comes from a music hall family. His great grandfather Harry Thompson was part of a musical clowns act called Virtu and Thompson who were "working the halls" when Wilton's opened in 1859, although they never appeared there.

Honri, a 50-year-old theater veteran who made his first appearance on stage at the age of 4½, says the project's organizers hope Wilton's will be re-opened by 1983.

They are seeking $2.3 million. So far they have raised about $462,000 in cash and promises. This includes a loan of $115,500 from the Greater London Council which owns the building and has leased it to the company, said the company's appeal organizer, Edward Marsh. He is a director of Taylor Woodrow, one of Britain's leading construction firms which has undertaken to carry out the work.

Wilton's was built by John Wilton as an extension of the Prince of Denmark Public House after he took over the tavern in 1850. He planned it with an audience of up to 1,500 in mind.

The lights went out on this colorful world Aug. 14, 1880. When Wilton's staged its last performance, and they never came back on. Why is something of a mystery.

TO BE RESTORED TO VICTORIAN SPLENDOR — Now a dingy, neglected shell, this was once Wilton's Music Hall at Stepney in the heart of London's bustling, Victorian Cockney dockland. The London Music Hall Protection Society Ltd. has been formed to restore Wilton's to its former glory. (AP Laser-photo)

Americans Attend Fewer Movies During 1979

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans went to the movies 1.12 billion times in 1979, just a bit less often than the previous year, Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said Monday.

Movie theaters took in a record $2.8 billion at the box office, an increase of 6.7 percent over 1978, Valenti said in an optimistic review of the industry's condition.

"The outlook for the future has to be valued as cheerful," Valenti said in remarks released here but prepared for delivery in Las Vegas at a meeting of ShowEast, a federation of exhibitors in 12 Western states. He said a new generation of film makers is giving the movie public what it wants to see.

Movie admissions in 1979 declined by 0.65 percent, but higher ticket prices produced the highest revenues in the industry's history, Valenti said. The average movie ticket cost $2.52 last year, an increase of 7.4 percent.

All told, 186 new films were offered to the public last year and 37 of them earned more than $10 million each, Valenti said. Motion Picture Association members spent an average of $8.4 million on each new film they produced — a tripling of costs since 1972, he said.

"With all my admonitions of caution, I do believe we are entering a new level of public attraction for movies in this, the beginning of the fourth generation of movie creators," Valenti said.

"We are breeding a new litter of... film makers," he said. "They understand magic, and mystery, and romance, all of which lie sourceless in every person who enjoys and believes in storytelling."

Million-Dollar Salaries Becoming Commonplace In Film Industry

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—As the film industry glides into the 1980s in an atmosphere of prosperity, one unsettling element appears: those million-dollar star salaries.

Ten years ago, a $1 million fee for a star was almost unheard of. Five years ago, perhaps five actors could draw such payment. Today at least a score of stars can exact million-dollar salaries, and the list is growing.

Late Comedian Eulogized During Service

NEW YORK (AP)—Jimmy Durante was eulogized on Monday as a man who "didn't have a great command of the language but rather a great command of love, and he gave it freely to his fellow man."

Comedian Joey Adams recalled during a memorial service at St. Malachy's Church in Manhattan that Durante, who died Jan. 29, was "always there with a buck, a gag, and most of all encouragement."

Jimmy is now the court jester for the Lord and he must be having a great time," Adams noted after he asked those attending the service to give "my pal his final standing ovation."

Among those attending were former

Steve Martin earned a reported half-million dollars for his film debut in "The Jerk." Its success will no doubt double that figure. Because of "10," Dudley Moore and Bo Derek are approaching the million-dollar mark in future deals.

Steve McQueen, who has been drawing $3 million per film, now sets the figure at $5 million. Stars like McQueen can also demand a percentage of gross receipts, without waiting until the producer's profit is calculated.

Standard fees for both Paul Newman and Marlon Brando are now $3 million, plus a percentage. Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman and Burt Reynolds are in the same category. Woody Allen, Clint Eastwood and Warren Beatty would be expected to choose to work for their own companies.

Barbra Streisand and Jane Fonda appear to be the only actresses in the million-plus ranks; they, too, prefer to develop their own projects.

Others in the elite fraternity: Al Pacino, Robert DeNiro, James Caan, Sylvester Stallone, Peter Sellers, Jon Voight, Richard Dreyfuss, Jack Nicholson, Sean Connery, John Travolta.

"It's a matter of supply and demand," observes one high-powered agent. "If a producer wants a star badly enough, he'll pay, no matter what we ask."

Thus if a producer needs Laurence Olivier to lend distinction to a film, Olivier can receive a million dollars.

"It was the independent producers who were the first to set the prices," observes Alan Ladd Jr., who now has to lure stars to his new company. "It wasn't the major companies. But the majors had to follow. It became a matter of 'are you going to pay the price or not?'"

"Certain projects require expensive stars. Sometimes you have a strong, central character that needs immediate recognition. A Western would fall into that category."

"Star salaries have been creeping up over the past two or three years," adds Eric Pleskow, president of Orion Pictures.
