Withdrawal Seen In Afghanistan

By The Associated Press
THE SOVIET UNION has advised key Asian, European and African countries it will begin withdrawing its estimated 90,000 troops from Afghanistan when the situation stabilizes along the Afghanistan-Pakistan border, and Afghanistan has proposed talks with Pakistan, diplomats in London reported Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Pakistani government said it would welcome such talks but only after a complete Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who is in New Delhi for talks, warned Pakistan that if it wanted peace with Afghanistan it should end "intrusions into the territory of Afghanistan." Indian officials said Gromyko gave them no reason to believe the Soviets plan to withdraw their troops soon.

Rebels Accused

The Soviet Union has charged that Moslem Afghan rebels were receiving aid from American, Chinese, British and Egyptian military experts and using Pakistan as a base to launch their attacks.

The governments of those countries previously denied the charges, but Egyptian Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said Wednesday his government was training and would eventually arm rebels so they can return to Afghanistan and fight Soviet forces.

In other developments Wednesday:

Brzezinski Blasted

The Soviet Union blasted as "strange" and "impudent" Zbigniew Brzezinski's condemnation of any partial withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan. Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser "has clearly forgotten that the language of ultimatums cannot be used in talking with the Soviet Union," the official Soviet news agency Tass said. Brzezinski suggested Monday that a partial pullout would signal the start of a Kremlin "peace offensive" to VALENTINE FOR VALENTINE — Victoria Gonzalez surprises her daughter Valentine Suarez, right, with a heart-shaped pillow the 53-year-old grandmother made by hand as a birthday present for her daughter, Valentine, a namesake for the day she was born, says most of her birthday gifts are symbolic of the day she was born. Valentine's Day Has Double Meaning for Lubbock Family

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FOR THE Suarez family, it's Valentine's Day any way you look at it.

Today is Valentine Suarez's birthday — which, for her family, means it's Valentine's day, plus Valentine's Day.

The Lubbock mother of three, who turns 26 today, was named for the holiday she was born on by her mother, Victoria Gonzalez.

Since then, friends and relatives have helped fill the young woman's home with dozens of heart-shaped gifts as they remember both her birthday and Valentine's Day.

"I always get something heart-shaped," Mrs. Suarez said. "Birthday cakes, necklaces, bracelets and other things."

Additions to her collection this year will be another heart-shaped cake and a handmade red satin and lace heart-shaped pillow from her mother.

Although she often gets combined Valentine's Day and birthday gifts, she says her husband is careful to keep the two celebrations separate. "Daniel gets me something for both occasions," she said.

Mrs. Suarez says being named Valentine and having Valentine's Day as a birthday can be both pleasant and perturbing. As a seventh grader at Alderson Junior High, she was selected by her homeroom as their Valentine Sweetheart representative.

"They always sang Happy Birthday to me on Valentines Day, too," she recalled.

But, she also has encountered occasional difficulties with her name. "People don't believe my name is Valentine," she said. "They think it's a joke or a last name."

"Last year, I tried to get my driver's license, but he (an officer) kept telling me, 'You are joking.' I finally got mad and left," she said.

Mrs. Suarez, a room mother at Hodges Elementary School, also was chosen this year to give a Valentine's party for about 28 students at the school.

Her oldest daughter, Stephanie, is a first grader at Hodges.

Mr. and Mrs. Suarez also are the parents of 3-year-old Veronica and 5-month-old Christopher.

Carter Favors Panel Creation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter endorsed on Wednesday night creation of an international commission "with a carefully defined purpose" to explore Iran's grievances against the United States as a step toward winning the release of American hostages.

Carter did not define the purpose or the scope of such a panel, but it was learned that the president wants a neutral commission conducting a balanced inquiry into past U.S. support for the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Carter's approach clearly rules out a show trial designed merely to assess guilt against the United States, sources here said.

"Step Toward Resolution Of Crisis"

"An appropriate commission with a carefully defined purpose would be a step toward resolution of this crisis," Carter told a nationally televised and broadcast news conference. He refused to discuss the subject further.

At his first White House news conference in 11 weeks, Carter said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, has made statements "damaging to our country" in criticizing policy on Iran and the Soviet incursion into Afghanistan.

His statements have not been true, they have not been accurate and they have not helped our country," Carter said.

Carter Cites "Delicate Time"

Discussing the hostage situation in an opening statement, Carter said he could not afford at this delicate time to discuss or to comment further upon any specific efforts "to gain freedom for the captives, held for 102 days as of Wednesday."

His endorsement of the commission idea was an apparent effort to signal U.S. willingness to compromise with Iran's new president, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

At the same time, though, Carter refused to give ground on Iran's demands that the United States admit guilt for supporting the shah's regime.

Freedom Insisted

The administration had insisted since militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4 that the hostages must be freed before any inquiry into Iranian complaints could be considered.

Carter did not reiterate this U.S. demand in his statement.

Earlier in the day there had been reports that a breakthrough in the hostage situation was imminent.

However, Carter cautioned that despite recent "positive signs," past experience in the negotiations calls for guarding "against excessive optimism."

The militants who occupy the U.S. Embassy reiterated Wednesday their demand for return of the deposed shah to face trial. However, Iranian authorities have already indicated their support for creation of a commission to consider grievances as an alternative.

Waldheim Originated

The idea of a commission, the president said, originated with Kurt Waldheim, the U.N. secretary general. This touched on a running controversy between the administration and Kennedy, D-Mass., who claims credit for the proposal.

Carter specifically refused to acknowledge any U.S. guilt for restoring the shah to the throne in Iran in 1953. "That's ancient history and I don't think it's appropriate for me to go into the propriety of something that happened many years ago," he said.

Iranian officials have said the United States must accept blame for past support of the shah before the hostage crisis can be resolved.

Kennedy Hits Strategy

Kennedy has attacked Carter's strategy in trying to gain release of the hostages in Tehran and contended that a weak foreign policy encouraged the Soviets to move troops into Afghanistan.

"This thrust of what he has said throughout the last few weeks is very damaging to our country," Carter said, and to efforts to get the hostages released and keep the peace.

Kennedy has tried to draw Carter into debate over foreign policy as well as domestic issues.

Carter said he would not resume "normal campaigning" until the hostages are released, but he did not specifically rule out a debate with his rival before then.

The president said he would not resume "business as usual" until the hostages are freed.

Meanwhile, Carter reaffirmed that if the Soviet troops are not withdrawn from Afghanistan by next Thursday he will call

TRIAL DELAYED

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Wednesday again delayed criminal proceedings against former Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., setting an April 8 date for the ex-lawmaker's bribery and conspiracy retrial. Flood, 76, was declared mentally competent last week to stand trial. His retrial already had been postponed three times last year for medical reasons.

Nurses Vent Anger Over HSCH Firing

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MORE THAN 40 nurses, upset by the recent dismissal of a hospital nursing director, grouped Wednesday evening to vent their anger over what they say will add to the Lubbock nursing shortage.

Sherry Whiteaker, president of the local chapter of the Texas Nurses Association, called the 5:30 p.m. news conference to express her group's concern over the firing of Mary Lemons, director of nursing at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Miss Whiteaker charged that the dismissal of Mrs. Lemons would hinder nurse recruitment and subsequently affect patient care. She also said that Gov. Bill Clements has had doubts about funding the nursing school due to ongoing problems in the teaching hospital and Texas Tech medical school and that turmoil in a formerly stable department (nursing) can only make the situation worse.

No Complaint Filed

But Mrs. Lemons was noticeably absent from the meeting and has not, as yet, filed a complaint with either Health Sciences Center Hospital or the TNA. She told The Avalanche-Journal earlier in the week that she prefers not to comment on her dismissal and, according to Miss Whiteaker, did not ask the TNA to take up her cause.

Miss Whiteaker has not lodged a formal complaint with Health Sciences administrator Jake Henry Jr., although she said that action would be discussed with in the next District 18 TNA meeting.

"We're not here as a cause for Mary Lemons," Miss Whiteaker said. She claimed that the real reason for the news conference was to explain how actions such as Mrs. Lemons' dismissal made it difficult to attract nurses to the Lubbock area.

When asked if any member of the TNA could explain Mrs. Lemons' dismissal, none of the nurses filling the Community Room of the Mahon Library could offer an explanation or refute administrator Henry's reasons for dismissing her.

But several nurses attending the conference spoke up from the floor in defense of Mrs. Lemons, drawing applause on several occasions.

"If it hadn't been for Mary Lemons, that hospital never would have gotten two years accreditation," a woman said, prompting a Health Sciences nurse to say Mrs. Lemons was one of the best nursing directors "many of us had ever seen."

The Health Sciences nurse claimed that Mrs. Lemons was "the only reason many of the nurses have stayed at that hospital."

She added that Health Sciences probably would lose many RNs as a result of Mrs. Lemons' firing.

Cable TV Firm Agrees To Pay City Tax Tab

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CITY officials and representatives of Lubbock Cable TV apparently have come to some agreement regarding back taxes the city says should be paid by the local firm.

Assistant city attorney Don Vandiver said he was contacted Wednesday afternoon by a representative of Cox Cable Communications, the parent company of the local cable service.

According to Vandiver, Cox vice president Gary Hokenson advised that his firm now agrees that Lubbock Cable TV should have paid franchise taxes on its Home Box Office business. Hokenson indicated the taxes would be paid in full for the period since HBO was implemented here in 1976, Vandiver said.

Questions about the unpaid franchise taxes have been one of the issues that has delayed City Council approval of a merger between Cox and General Electric. Because the cable service has a franchise agreement with the city, any merger affecting ownership must be approved by the council.

The merger request was first brought

Mass Voter Confusion Feared

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
and MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE REDRAWING of precinct lines in Lubbock County has set the stage for, mass voter confusion in the upcoming city and school elections.

In most elections, the voters' biggest problem is choosing the candidate to vote for. But in the April 5 city-school contests, voters will face even bigger challenges — such as finding where to cast their ballots, determining if they must vote in two different boxes for city and school races and deciding if they are registered to vote.

Complicating the election further is the fact that the U.S. Justice Department must okay any precinct redistricting and that approval is yet to come.

School officials have no real problems because they didn't redraw their precincts. However, if the Justice Department refuses to approve the city's changes, the city could face a postponement of its election.

"I don't know what they (Justice Department officials) will do," assistant city attorney Don Vandiver commented. "Who could speak for them?"

Both the city and county have submitted data concerning the precinct boundary changes to the Justice Department. However, the city was late in turning in its information, and that could present some problems in getting an answer from the Justice Department prior to the election.

The Justice Department was given the authority to review changes in election precincts under the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The law requires all boundary changes to be reviewed to determine if they are discriminatory to minorities.

If it is determined that proposed voting precincts are discriminatory, no changes can take place, explained John Wilson, assistant director for public affairs for the Justice Department.

Changes in the county precinct lines were made last summer, but do not become effective until March 1. The April 5 elections will be the first to be held under the new precinct map.

When the county redrew its precincts, that threw the city out of compliance with the Texas Election Code, Vandiver said. The election code prohibits city precincts from cutting across county precinct lines.

To match the county's redistricting, the city had to redraw the lines on about 25 of its precincts, Vandiver said. The result was the addition of about 10 precincts within the city. Vandiver said some of the most substantial changes

Prisoners' Freedom Speculated

By The Associated Press

PRESIDENT Carter said Wednesday he favors forming an "appropriate commission with a carefully defined purpose" as a way to free the American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, but did not indicate their release was imminent.

There were reports earlier that the United States had agreed in principle to a plan under which the approximately 50 hostages would be released to U.N. officials, possibly in a week to 10 days. Carter did not mention such an agreement, but his statement that he could not comment further "at this delicate time" suggested negotiations to end the 102-day stalemate had reached a critical stage.

ABC News had reported the hostages could be freed in a week or 10 days — after an international commission was set up under U.N. auspices to investigate alleged crimes of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. It said the commission would include representatives of five to seven countries, largely of the Third World, and "several" already had been agreed upon.

Earlier Wednesday, Iran's president said Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini accepted a three-point "action plan" to end the stalemate.

It was not known whether the reported plan was the one disclosed earlier this week by Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr of Iran, or whether Bani-Sadr's initial plan had been changed. Bani-Sadr said Monday he had proposed to Khomeini that the commission investigate "crimes" committed in Iran by both deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and the United States.

The State Department reacted by say-

Stocks Cross 900 In Brisk Trading

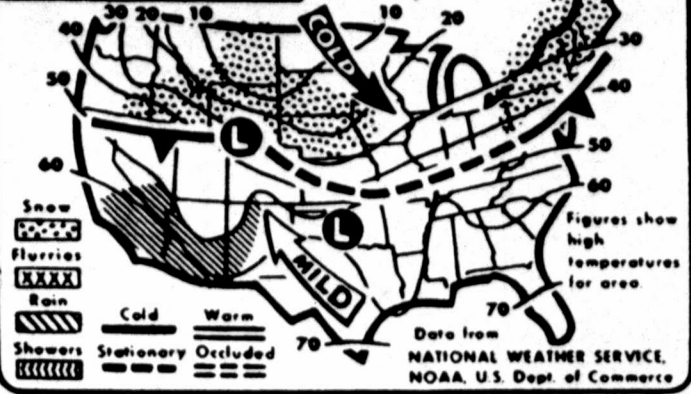

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average climbed above the 900 level Wednesday for the first time in almost a year and a half as the stock market scored its second straight gain.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chip stocks rose 4.86 to 903.84, its first close above 900 since October, 1978 and its highest finish since it stood at 906.44 on Sept. 12 of that year.

In the rush of activity that accompanied the passing of that milestone, New York Stock Exchange trading volume reached 65.23 million shares, the sixth largest total on record.

Some afternoon selling left the Dow well below its mid-day peak, when it was up more than 11 points. But several leading glamor stocks — such as Xerox, Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing and Walt Disney Productions — managed to finish with gains of a point or more.

Drastic Tech Personnel Cuts Rumored

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Fourteen faculty job positions may be eliminated to provide higher salaries for remaining teachers under an administration proposal now being studied by Texas Tech deans.

Dr. Charles Hardwick, vice president for academic affairs and architect of the plan, told the Faculty Senate Wednesday that the cuts will "not be done with a meat ax," but said his proposal for a 1.3 reduction for fiscal 1980-81 would cut about 14 positions from the 1,100-member faculty.

"There's no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow," Hardwick said. "The only way to get more money for faculty is to pay fewer people."

"Yes, it does mean an increase in your workload," he told the faculty, explaining that 14 people won't necessarily be fired, but that when a job vacancy occurs (because of retirement or other reasons) the vacancy may not be filled. Remaining faculty members will take on the additional work, he said.

Hardwick explained that as enrollment stabilizes or possibly declines, so will Tech's money from the state, meaning that the university will have to do more with less money.

Texas Tech University officials maintain that they are taking a "modest" approach to personnel reduction, but before the faculty meeting, rumors were rampant that the administration was going to take drastic steps.

"I saw the meat cleaver coming down," said one faculty member at the meeting, who told Hardwick that by the time the information filtered down to the faculty from the college deans and department chairmen, it was inaccurate and created panic.

Hardwick also quelled a rumor that the university adopted a freeze on hiring. He explained that Dr. William Conroy, acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, has put a temporary freeze on hiring in that college until job positions for 1980-81 are definite.

Moisture Chance Modest For South Plains Today

Forecasters say there's a 20 percent chance of rain for the South Plains today as moisture from the lower Pacific coast moved into the area overnight.

But whatever falls is not expected to add appreciably to the 78 inch of moisture Lubbock has received this year. Totals of generally less than a tenth of an inch are anticipated.

Temperatures should reach the upper 60s for today's high and dip to the mid-30s for tonight's low. Winds today will be gusty at 15 to 25 mph, and lake wind advisories will be in effect.

The extended forecast calls for partly cloudy and mild weather Friday, becoming fair and colder Saturday and Sunday. Highs should be in the mid-60s Friday, upper 40s Saturday and lower 40s Sunday.

Cold temperatures and snow in the Rockies moved slowly southward on Wednesday, and snow was reported along the Great Lakes. Rain soaked southern California and was scattered across southwestern Arizona and along the Gulf Coast.

The rain in southern California touched off a spate of fender-bender auto crashes on slippery freeways. "We definitely have had a lot more accidents than on a dry Wednesday," a California Highway Patrol spokesman said. He said no major injuries were reported.

Afternoon temperatures ranged from a low of 1 in Cutbank, Mont. to a high of 74 in Homestead, Fla.

The forecast for today called for snow from New England through New Jersey, across the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley, the northern half of the Mississippi Valley, the northern two-thirds of the Great Plains, the northern half of the Rockies and from eastern Washington through the mountains of Nevada into Arizona.

The snow was predicted to change to rain over the Pacific Coast and across the southern two-thirds of California through western New Mexico. Rain was forecast for southern and eastern Texas.

Colder temperatures were anticipated from the Plains to the Rockies. Afternoon highs were forecast in the single digits from northern Minnesota through eastern Montana, in the upper 60s over the inland Southwest, near 70 across southern Texas and in the mid 70s over Florida.

Here are some afternoon temperatures and conditions in key cities around the nation and in Canada:

Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 44, cloudy; Boston 37, fair; Buffalo 24, windy; Caribou 21, windy; Charleston, S.C. 57, partly cloudy; Cincinnati 28, fair; Cleveland 26, hazy; Indianapolis 27, fair; Knoxville 38, partly cloudy; Miami 74, fair; Nashville 41, fair; New York 36, fair; Philadelphia 36, fair; Richmond 37, fair; Washington 40, fair.

Central U.S.: Bismarck 11, snow; Denver 45, cloudy; Des Moines 29, cloudy; Fort Worth 55, partly cloudy; Kansas City 35, windy; Minneapolis-St. Paul 25, hazy; New Orleans 50, hazy; St. Louis 28, cloudy.

Western U.S.: Phoenix 59, cloudy; Salt Lake City 44, windy; San Diego 63, showers; San Francisco 52, hazy.

Decision Stalls On City Tax Limitation Charter Amendments

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A court decision on whether the city should call an election on three tax limitation charter amendments ran into another legal roadblock during a preliminary hearing Wednesday afternoon.

City attorneys and attorneys representing the Lubbock Property Owners Association were to meet this morning in 140th District Court to decide the matter. The legal action was initiated by the city last July when municipal officials filed suit against 10 signers of the tax limitation petitions circulated by the LPOA after the petitions were submitted to the City Council.

The proposed amendments would hold the city's tax rate at the current $1.12 per $100 valuation, fix the assessment rate at 60 percent of market value and freeze the city's tax level at its present level unless an increase was approved by voters.

Instead of calling the election, the council voted to ask State District Court Judge William R. Shaver to determine whether such an election could be legally held in light of certain provisions in state law and the state constitution.

LPOA attorneys in turn filed a countersuit, asking Shaver to issue a writ of mandamus ordering the election on the tax issues.

However, Shaver pointed out to attorneys Wednesday afternoon that if after reviewing the facts he decides for LPOA and issues a writ of mandamus, city officers in their official capacity must be made a party to the lawsuit. A writ of mandamus, he noted, can only be issued to city officials and not the City of Lubbock, which in this case is the only plaintiff in the lawsuit.

City Attorney John Ross told the judge Wednesday afternoon that because of a City Council meeting today, city officers would be unable to appear in court for the scheduled hearing. Because of the conflict, Ross must now amend the city's original lawsuit and have city officials made a party to the case before it can proceed.

The unexpected obstacle came up during a hearing Wednesday afternoon concerning frequent city hall critic James G. Marshall's intervention in the lawsuit.

In September, Shaver declared the city's suit against the LPOA petition signers a class action, consisting of two separate classes.

Members of the primary class in the lawsuit are all those voters who signed the petitions. The secondary class consists of all voters who did not sign the petitions, but would be affected by any action concerning the tax limitation measures.

Warren Goss is representing the primary class members, and Shaver appointed Leota Alexander as counsel for the secondary class.

However, in December, Marshall sidestepped conventional legal counsel and entered several pleadings in connection with the case on his own behalf. Among the documents filed by Marshall was a list of 214 questions directed to city officials, with many of the questions dealing with issues settled in Marshall's previous lawsuits.

Marshall had subpoenaed several persons, including Mayor Dirk West and 137th District Court Judge Robert C. Wright, to appear in connection with his interest in the case. City officials, however, filed motions to quash Marshall's subpoenas as well as have him prohibited from joining the proceedings.

After hearing brief arguments from Assistant City Attorney W.M. McKame and Marshall, who acted as his own legal counsel in the matter, Shaver granted the city's requests.

Electric Heaters Being Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that about 1,000 portable electric heaters that may pose a shock hazard are being recalled by their manufacturer.

The heavy-duty heaters were made by Titan Sales Corporation of Kansas City, Mo.

Officials said that during manufacturing some of the heaters were incorrectly wired, allowing the metal casing to become electrified. No injuries have been reported.

The heaters involved are model 267C and they may be returned to the place of purchase for free replacement or repair.

The heaters are intended for use in homes, workshops and classrooms and have a baked enamel finish of tan and brown. The company name Titan appears above the control knob and the model number is on the back.

The 220-240-volt heaters were sold nationwide from last July through November for $88.95.

American and French troops began the siege of British forces at Yorktown in 1781.

Same Song, Soviet Verse

THE RUSSIANS, it says here, may begin a withdrawal of some of their forces from Afghanistan in the not-distant future.

A "peace offensive" can be expected from the Soviet Union and President Leonid Brezhnev, another report says. Major military activity in Afghanistan is leveling off, correspondents on the scene indicate.

Some analysts claim that Moscow's hierarchy, "realizing it has made a major mistake" in flaunting its military power and bringing the wrath of much of the world down on its neck, will seek to soften the impact in the weeks and months ahead.

WHAT DOES all this mean? What does it do for the many dead and imprisoned in Afghanistan, Ethiopia, South Yemen, Angola?

Nothing. But, for those in the Western World, including perhaps the White House and certain State Department people, it all offers a "carrot" of sorts.

Maybe the Big Bad Russian Bear didn't mean it after all, the reasoning goes. After all, Afghanistan or Pakistan, even Iran, isn't worth risking an atomic war over, or for that matter, even a possible renewal of the draft.

Shoot, it's time for the Winter Olympics to start. And it ought to look great in living color—even blood red, yet. And besides, who knows, if the Soviets are given a little more time to consolidate in the Mideast instead of that February 20 deadline, then even the Summer Olympics might go on "as usual."

Dollars Keep Coming...Back

THE STATE of the nation's economy as a whole may have taxpayers concerned, but somebody out there still has faith in it. Make that somebody is.

A growing list of companies from other countries set another all-time record in 1979 with their investments in U.S. industry.

A total of 437 foreign entries into U.S. operations, up from 358 in 1978, were charted by The Conference Board in its annual survey of investment trends.

Incomplete tabulation on dollars involved indicates at least $4.9 billion pumped into the U.S. economy.

Two aspects of the 1979 figures are of particular interest.

THERE IS AN evident trend among foreign investors away from acquiring established U.S. firms and toward building new plants at American sites—54 percent of the year's investments as compared with 49 percent the previous year.

Furthermore, three countries (West Germany, Britain and Canada, in that order) continue to account for the bulk of foreign investment, more than half in 1979.

But the New York-based economic research organization's count also shows a jump in U.S. activity by firms from several other countries. Most significantly, Japan is

IT'S ALL a dream, a nightmare, actually. Nothing has changed really, despite the talk of a cosmetic withdrawal of forces from now raped Afghanistan.

Moscow's aims are the same as always, to eventually take over the world, bit by bit, piece by piece, by cunning and propaganda, by dividing and conquering, but by force if necessary.

It is no coincidence that as new troubles brew in Beirut and Lebanon on Israel's borders, attention is thus diverted, from Afghanistan and Russia's conquest back to the age-old argument between the Israelis and the Arabs. Divide and conquer...

THERE ARE those who will continue to blame much of the U.S. and Free World's troubles on Detente, as once envisioned by former Sec. of State Henry Kissinger and others.

But, the truth is that as long ago as Angola—1976 to be exact—Kissinger and then-President Ford attempted to get Congress, and the American people, to help block Cuban Communist forces in that nation, not by use of men but by material aid. It was rejected.

In the meantime, the Carter Administration has made Detente—in the guise of Human Rights—a prime policy. Today, we see the results.

It is hoped that the new siren song coming from Moscow will fall on deaf ears in Washington and among the American people. The alternative is obvious.

beginning to close in on the leaders.

What that suggests is that repeated words to the wise may finally be proving sufficient. Tokyo has been under intense pressure from Washington to ease the trade imbalance between the two countries in several ways.

ONE OF THE ways suggested to Tokyo was for it to locate manufacturing facilities for products it sells in volume to Americans in America. The alternative could very well be import barriers applied to Japanese goods.

The inflow of foreign investment is not only a sign of long-term faith in the American economy but one with a self-fulfilling aspect.

It is one way of putting to work at home the dollars accumulating abroad as a consequence of the perennial U.S. balance of payments deficit.

It means American jobs maintained and created in the process of continuing to supply American consumers with the products of foreign origin of which they have become so fond.

It also means, of course, increased competition for American industry on its own turf. But a little of that is likely to be good for what ails it—the loss of innovative and competitive edge that has lost it not only foreign but domestic markets as well.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Valentine Cards Aren't Connected With 'Saint'

WASHINGTON—St. Valentine's Day, made for lovers, is the anniversary of the Romans' beheading of a martyr. But it has no connection with the famous saint or with known incidents of his life.

The Valentine dates back to the 16th century. Probably it was first of all a token of your heart's desire. But by 1800, to meet the large demands hand-painted copper plates were produced. Woodcuts and lithographs followed.

St. Valentine was a Roman Catholic priest and physician who died in Rome in the third century. He suffered martyrdom during the persecution of Christians by Emperor Claudius II. He was buried in the Via Flaminia. Pope St. Julius erected a basilica over martyred St. Valentine's grave.

BUT THERE is another St. Valentine. He was the bishop of Termi, likewise martyred and also apparently in Rome. Later, mourners took his relics to Termi. However, possibly these are developments of the same account and refer to the one St. Valentine.

The St. Valentine tradition of sending Valentine cards has no relation with either saint. Instead, the tradition is connected either with the Roman fertility festival of Lupercalia or with the birds' mating season.

As late as 1936, Eduardo M. Fuscuardi wrote in Italian a tract about this entitled "Vita di S. Valentino."

Jesus did not speak of saints. But during the first through early fourth century in which they were persecuted, Christians began to venerate the martyrs as saints.

They believed the martyrs, suffering "unto death" for Christ, were received directly into heaven. Therefore, saints could be effective intercessors for the living.

BY THE THIRD century, it was common to venerate the martyr saints. In 325 A.D. the Nicene Creed of the Roman Catholic Church called itself the "communion of saints."

However, the word "saint" had the broader meaning of "believer" rather than applying strictly to a holy person or numerous personalities worthy of veneration.

In the Roman Catholic Church, saints are venerated but not worshipped. Their spiritual and religious significance make them bearers of special powers, the power of the saint making their relics efficacious.

TODAY YOU can see in Assisi, Italy, in San Rufino Cathedral in a gold-hatched crystal box the brittle, pencil-thin thigh bone of John the Baptist. It was brought to Assisi from the Holy Land by an Umbrian knight after one of the Crusades.

In the early Church, all congregations sought relics to place on altars. But since the sixth century they built side altars in honor of particular saints.

St. Bernard—most famous for the massive dogs used for Swiss Alps' rescues—is buried with his relics in Switzerland's St. Bernard Hospice.

St. Mark died in Alexandria, Egypt. Venice did a large trade with Egypt and in 829 a Venetian merchant stole St. Mark's body, smuggled it across the Mediterranean and placed it on a small ship in the center of Venice's main lagoon.

IN 1070 THE Venetians, replacing an earlier church, completed the Cathedral of San Marco. Four bronze horses, Greek in design, grace the entrance. They pranced in Rome's Forum until sent to Constantinople.

There the Venetians seized this masterpiece, bringing it to glorify San Marco with its five mosaic-faced portals and five golden domes.

Venice's patron saint St. Mark replaced Greek St. Theodore, whose winged lion became Venice's official symbol. There, in a rear altar's large marble sarcophagus, is St. Mark's body. His relics abound in San Marco.

The time-honored custom is to send a Valentine to your heart's desire. But the greeting card must be anonymous. If you sign your name you destroy its purpose.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Prairie 'Bush' Fire

CHICAGO—The neat Illinois alignment of rank-and-file Republicans for Ronald Reagan and party establishment chieftains for John B. Connally in the first big state primary March 18 has been shattered, with defections from both camps streaming toward George Bush.

Ever since Connally's dismal fourth place in the Iowa caucus Jan. 21, the party leaders who leaped aboard his bandwagon a year ago have been perched to jump off—with Bush as the probable landing place.

That's no surprise. What's unexpected is the quick post-Iowa shift at the grass roots toward Bush, as revealed by Reagan's own polls.

His spectacular rise here is based on the crashing impact of Iowa on ancient Republican animosities in this Prairie State.

ANDREW TULLY:

No Need To Talk

WASHINGTON—Saint Jimmy. The way he talks and the way he grins you would think he personally slipped into Iran and rescued those six Americans, using the Canadian Embassy as a quick-food stop.

Saint Jimmy. He was all over TV and the front pages welcoming those nice people home.

Oh, he didn't forget to thank the Canadians, who have seemed delightfully embarrassed by the praise showered on them from all over the world. Our good neighbors smilingly shrugged it off as a piece of cake.

But it was Saint Jimmy here and Saint Jimmy there and Saint Jimmy everywhere. Saint Jimmy the hero.

It figures. Being President, as Teddy Roosevelt found, is a bully job. You can hog a lot of credit when things go well. And when things go badly, well, you can't be expected to go on television and talk about everything.

THAT'S SAINT Jimmy, refusing to debate Teddy Kennedy, or anybody else. Refusing to take to the hustings for votes.

Saint Jimmy. He doesn't even have to go out in the Rose Garden to campaign. Might catch cold? Anyway, a body looks more presidential sitting at his desk in the Oval Office while the cameras whirr.

Saint Jimmy. He's right. He gets into a debate with Ted Kennedy and Jerry Brown and right off they want him to explain how that Iranian thing happened with him—supposed to be—running the show. They want to know why he didn't see it coming and get everybody out of our Embassy.

They say it's the President's job to know what's happening in countries like Iran.

WELL, WHO wants to get mixed up in unpleasantness like that? Who wants to be asked how come the Russian invasion of Afghanistan caught him by surprise? Who wants to be asked how come it took him three years to find out that Russian leaders are liars? Harry S. Truman knew that after only a couple of months in office.

Saint Jimmy. For God's sake, he doesn't want to be explaining why he thinks Russian troops in Cuba are no danger to the U.S. What could he say?

Saint Jimmy. He's great on things like boycotting the Olympics. Showboating never hurt a presidential candidate. He never mentions Chappaquiddick. He just says that a President should be a family man. You get the idea.

Saint Jimmy. He also made history as the only President who challenged another country to a war in the Persian Gulf and then had his Secretary of Defense say we couldn't win it.

SAINT JIMMY. He admitted our armed forces are in such bad shape we may have to revive the draft—which would fix things dandy if the Russians gave us two or three years to get organized.

Saint Jimmy. You can't expect him to debate Teddy or Jerry on inflation. What could he say, except that it's awful and that he has no plan to do anything about it?

A President debates an opponent to defend his policies. But first a President has to have some policies to defend.

Saint Jimmy's only policy is to get re-elected.

Following the old adage that all politics is local politics, the struggle here is for control of the Illinois Republican Party rather than any mere presidential nomination.

State Rep. Don Totten, Reagan's hard-nosed state chairman, is fighting Gov. James Thompson on a wide front involving state legislative issues and intraparty control.

Totten made clear last year that if his Reaganites controlled the Illinois delegation, the governor would not go to the national convention as its chairman.

THAT GUARANTEED all-out war with Big Jim Thompson, whose ego rivals his 6-foot-6 stature. His allies in the legislature and party structure picked Connally as the most promising stop-Reagan candidate.

Second thoughts set in when Connally's politically disastrous Mideast speech offended Jewish Republicans here.

Third thoughts arrived when Connally finished a poor second in last November's Florida presidential convention after privately promising Illinois backers a near-win. After Iowa, Connally's big names were ready to jump—to Bush.

The tip of the iceberg is Robert Hanrahan, a former Chicago congressman who surfaced last year as a member of Connally's "national advisory" committee but recently filed as a self-starting delegate candidate pledged to Bush.

MORE IMPORTANT Connally backers are staying put for now. But unless Connally scores an upset in South Carolina March 8 or Florida March 11, they will abandon ship.

Until the last week in January, it made little difference to the Reagan organization whether the big boys were for Connally or Bush. Reagan was a prohibitive favorite to win the Illinois preferential primary (or "beauty contest").

Reagan slates entered in 23 out of 24 congressional districts (opposing the regular party slates in 10 districts) figured to do well even though Thompson's forces changed the primary to remove presidential preference designations from the names of delegate candidates.

Bush's Iowa upset made little difference to the Reaganites, spiritual heirs of Illinois grass roots conservatives who stuck with Robert A. Taft to the bitter end in 1952 and led Barry Goldwater hard-core delegates in 1964.

BUT SUCH activists cannot control a state primary where better than 1 million votes are expected. To their horror, Reagan's men found a dramatic shift to Bush in their own statewide polling after Iowa. They admit they desperately need a win in New Hampshire Feb. 26.

George Kangas, a young insurance man who is party chairman in suburban Lake County, runs Bush's campaign with this motto: The light is in the window for everybody who does not want Reagan.

Since Bush has no official delegate candidates of his own, he will embrace any who have no commitment.

Sales resistance to this soft-sell is persistent doubt whether Bush has what it takes.

INFLUENTIAL REPUBLICANS were disturbed by Bush's truculent tone in a Los Angeles Times interview reprinted in the Jan. 27 Chicago Sun-Times, so unlike the masterful image conveyed by Bush's paid television commercials.

Thompson is among the skeptical, a situation not changed by Bush's performance Jan. 29 at a governor's mansion dinner for him closed to the press.

Thompson told us he was "impressed" with Bush but thought he was "a little tired" and did not fully explain his views on coal usage (a major economic question in coal-rich southern Illinois).

The morning after the dinner, the governor privately told an aide: "I still have not found my candidate."

But Reagan will not even attend a governor's mansion dinner of the kind provided all other candidates, following the advice of Totten who fears Thompson wants to "set up" Reagan for unfavorable comparison.

Sen. Howard Baker's efforts here, as elsewhere, are very little and very late, run by a Thompson foe, ex-House Speaker W. Robert Blair. Thus have the combination of Iowa caucus results and Illinois tribal rivalries built the Bush fire on the prairie.

JAY HARRIS:

A City On The Go...

YOU COULDN'T buy that sort of publicity for a million dollars...

The remark was heard this week after national news services carried the fact from coast to coast that Lubbock the past year enjoyed the lowest unemployment rate in the nation.

But, is it the kind of "publicity" a city, which many think is "just the right size right now" needs?

In other words, because of the news—that Lubbock led all metropolitan areas with a 2.4 per cent jobless rate the past year—will there be an influx of people seeking "the good life," Sunbelt and West Texas style, along with a job?

Probably not. Employment over the nation is still relatively high and the need to move to find work just isn't that strong, yet...

NOT LONG AGO, we penned a couple of pieces about "the quality of life," as well as the economic well-being of Lubbock.

There were a few snickers here and there from the sophisticates who envision the city's "quiet life" as something akin to a morgue, at least in relation to certain "swinging" cities in Texas, the East and West Coasts.

But, overall, the reception was favorable. Most people live here because they choose to, not because they feel they have to do so.

Nobody, including us, tries to sell Lubbock as the Garden of Eden or the Paris of the Plains. But, despite some snide remarks from columnists who have nothing better to do, it isn't exactly the Cow Chip Capital of the World, either.

ACTUALLY, THE wire service item relating Lubbock's good fortune, and that is what it is, was more or less a statistical one.

There was the business about Anderson, Ind., notching the largest increase among all metro areas, a sharp 8.7 percentage point jump from 6.5 percent unemployment to a high of 15.2 percent.

Kenosha, Wis., on the other hand, chalked up the sharpest drop, going from 8.1 percent to 4.5 percent.

Generally speaking, those areas with large concentrations of heavy industrial type employment were the hardest hit.

This was particularly so in auto industry related situations. However, dents in the textile and apparel sector, primary metals and construction hit some cities in the deep South. Albuquerque recorded a 2.1 percent boost in unemployment for the year. Alaska had the dubious honor of having the highest jobless rate, 10 percent.

WHAT THE story didn't say, Lubbock business and civic leaders did.

"This reflects the diversification of Lubbock's economy," said Grey Lewis, assistant manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

George Miller, chairman of the chamber's industrial committee, noting the "interesting growth" in the city's industrial complex the past decade, cited a key factor, we believe, in the healthy labor climate here: "A quality work force..."

This translates to businesses already here and to those, such as Michelin Tire, which is coming here with a potential work force of 1,000, getting a day's work for a day's pay, a generally satisfied and stable group of employees. It's a good combination for all concerned.

It is no secret that one of the major reasons that such prestigious and worldwide known firms as Texas Instruments and others have chosen Lubbock and expanded their operations here is because of the productive work force. "It's a good thing all the way around..." is the consensus.

IT MIGHT HAVE escaped the notice of some, but during the past December, Lubbock's job total soared past the 105,000 mark for the first time.

It still stands above the 100,000 level, even with seasonal layoffs. That just happens to be, if you accept a "guesstimate" of somewhere over 200,000 as Metro Lubbock's current population, about one out of every two persons, men, women and children included, holding a job!

So what does that translate into, one may ask? Well, for one thing, it means some pretty clogged traffic jams during rush hours. For another, it means a heckuva lot of people eating out, buying gasoline, clothes, tires, getting autos repaired, building homes, purchasing furnishings, seeking entertainment, flying to all points of the compass for business and pleasure...

As we said, it ain't the Garden of Eden, the Paris of the Plains or maybe Ruidoso minus the horses. But, it's home—and a job, and a nice place to raise a family.

ALL OF WHICH brings us down to that elusive thing we call "the quality of life..."

And how it is attained, retained and improved upon.

Having sounded like a paid C-C drummer—and maybe we need to do something in that area—we would be remiss if we didn't take note of a few Lubbock's shortcomings, as well as its plus points.

Lubbock reached its enviable position not by accident. It didn't do it overnight. It didn't do it with an undue amount of acrimonious bickering, political, economic or racial. It didn't do it with selfish interests "hogging" the spotlight or the goodies.

On the contrary, this city didn't just happen. It was built by men, as one of its pioneer C-C leaders—A. B. Davis—often would say. The criteria still holds today. Responsible business leaders, willing to share in leadership, an educated community, Texas Tech and later Lubbock Christian College, a work force that gave a day's work for a day's pay—all of it played and still plays a part.

It's something to think about as we head into the Eighties, City elections, job and people relations. We may not have any mountains, but we can still move 'em, if we work together.

A FAIRLY BRIGHT bunch overall, those professional football players. They test out among the top 25 percent in IQ.

For years they carried the image of morose brawn, perpetrated upon them by facile sports-writers more coordinated of mind than of muscle, wrieters who oh so longed for a superiority they might call their own.

Redrawing Precinct Lines May Cause Vote Woes

 were in Southwest Lubbock.

According to County Judge Rod Shaw, the county's decision to redraw its precincts was brought on by "the legislative redistricting fiasco" of several years ago.

When the Texas Legislature redistricted in the mid-1970s, legislators used an obsolete city limits map to draw its state representative districts, Shaw said. The city limits have expanded even more since that time, he noted, and county officials saw the need to make some precinct changes.

Shaw also noted that many of the precincts had become "very large and unwieldy" and needed to be divided.

However, Vandiver said the county's revamping of the precincts actually increased the size of Precinct 52 in the southern portion of the city. That precinct will extend from 82nd Street to the city limits and from Frankford Avenue to Avenue U.

Where To Vote

City officials are concerned that voters won't know where to vote in the April 5 elections because of the many changes. The city and schools already have plans to conduct a joint voter education program to inform residents where polling places will be located.

City Secretary Evelyn Gaffga also has expressed concern because some voters will have to vote in two different places for the city and school elections. "I don't know how we'll have anything but confusion," she said.

Mrs. Gaffga cited one example in Precinct 59, located in far West Lubbock. Residents in that area traditionally have voted at Mackenzie Junior High. This spring, they will be required to vote in city races at Hardwick Elementary and for school candidates at Mackenzie.

Matters Complicated

There also is likely to be confusion in Precinct 53, she said. Residents will vote in city elections at Lubbock Christian College, but they must vote at Bowie Elementary for the school races. To make matters more complicated, some voters in Precinct 53 are not eligible to vote in the school elections because they live outside the district.

School officials, however, have remained calm amid the gathering storm, and in fact, say they are not aware that a problem with polling places exists.

"There's no flak," said Ronnie Gooch, assistant superintendent for business affairs for the schools. He noted that the school district and city always have maintained some different precincts, even when the city and schools initiated joint elections in 1976.

Gooch said the city and schools share expenses for shared election boxes, and then each absorbs the total costs for any box that the other does not also use.

He also discounted speculation that the schools would not change to the new city-county precincts because they do not want any further entanglement with the Justice Department trying to get a change approved by that agency. The schools have been embroiled in a segregation lawsuit with the Justice Department for more than a decade.

"I don't see that connection," Gooch said, claiming that neither he nor election judge Bob Wyatt were requested by the city to convert to the new precinct arrangement. "They'll be the same as they were two years ago," he said.

Two Maps Required

Gooch said the city and schools simply will have to publish two different precinct maps in the newspaper for voters. "But we did that last time anyway," he noted.

Superintendent Ed Irons also said he was not asked to realign precincts.

"We're satisfied with our voting precincts," he said.

However, he added, he would not want to apply to the Justice Department for a change anyway, because of the exhaustive paperwork and record gathering that is required. "We went through that once (when joint elections with the city were initiated) and I don't care to go through it again."

None of the school officials interviewed knew why the city and schools have continued to maintain some different precincts even when joint elections were implemented.

But schools attorney Charles Cobb said, "We didn't want to disturb the setup we already have. Once you start fooling around with voting precincts you may run into all sorts of trouble."

Neither Gooch nor Wyatt anticipate any significant loss in voter strength because of different city and school polling places. "I think the people will cast their vote wherever they have to go if they are interested in the election," Gooch said.

"I don't think it will mean a loss," Wyatt said. He acknowledged that "it's certainly an inconvenience to have to vote in two different places," but said the number of votes cast will depend on the races, not the location of election boxes.

The precinct changes also have caused some problems for County Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart, who is in charge of voter registration.

In November, Stuart's office mailed out approximately 80,000 new voter registration cards. All of them had the old precinct numbers on them.

Stuart explained that the new precinct lines do not go into effect until March 1.

A special city election was conducted Jan. 19 under the old precinct system, so the cards mailed in November could not carry the new precinct numbers that would not be used in the January election, Stuart said.

"The only thing we can do is send out new voter registration cards," he said. The new cards, which will begin going out in early March, will indicate the voter's new precinct number.

Stuart said he also plans to enclose a letter listing all of the voting precincts and explaining the changes. All of these should be mailed prior to the April 5 elections, he said.

For some residents, the biggest complication may be that they are not on the registered voters list. According to Stuart, about 18,000 of the voter registration cards mailed in November were returned to his office. Stuart estimated that about 23 percent of the 80,000 cards were not received by the voters.

"The number returned is not unusual with the number of people who move during a two-year period," Stuart said.

The names on the returned registration cards have been placed on an inactive voter list. Stuart said these voters can cast ballots in the city-school elections if they go to their old precincts and complete an application for new voter registration cards.

According to a spokesman with the Secretary of State's office, the voter also must fill out an affidavit of residency indicating that he still lives within the boundaries of the school district or city.

However, voters will be able to do this only until June 1. If a voter has not updated his or her registration by June 1, their name will be purged from the voter list, Stuart said.

Any resident new to the city must apply for a voter registration card at least 30 days prior to the April 5 election in order to cast ballots in that election.

Firefighter's Ailment Said Undetermined

A Lubbock fireman was in satisfactory condition at Highland Hospital late Wednesday where he was taken after apparently inhaling toxic fumes while fighting an early morning fire on East Colgate Street.

Paul Geeslin, a driver at Central Station, said he is experiencing a numbness and tingling sensation on his left side.

Geeslin said Wednesday that doctors still have not determined what caused him to become nauseous and lose feeling in his left hand and left side of his body about four hours after he helped battle a house fire at 2903 E. Colgate St. early last Wednesday morning.

While blood and urine tests, as of yet, have been unable to diagnose smoke inhalation or consumption of any other type of toxic fumes, Geeslin said he still feels he inhaled some type of poisonous gas which caused him to become ill.

"There was some kind of toxicity" emanating from the 4:30 a.m. structure fire, Geeslin said. Geeslin, who was not wearing breathing equipment at the scene, said that after the fire was extinguished, he entered the house with a "smoke injector."

The 30-year-old fireman had to remain in the house several minutes to put out a small flame which had been fed by the fresh air.

Appeal In Strangulation Case Rejected

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals rejected Wednesday the appeal of a Gulf shrimper who argued there was not enough evidence to link his confession to the strangulation death of Russell Frey.

Frey was strangled with a thick electric cord and robbed on or about March 10, 1976, in a workshop on Frey's property near Harlingen.

Germany, who worked out of Aransas Pass, was convicted in the slaying and sentenced to life in prison.

One witness testified that Germany told him he and "some cat named Richard" were going to rob someone to get out of debt. Another witness testified Germany said he and Richard Denney, a co-defendant, were going to the Rio Grande Valley to look at boats. The next day, the witness said, Germany had several hundred dollars and bought a car.

Jerry Yardley, Germany's brother-in-law, testified Germany told him he had held a man down while Denney had wound a thick electric wire around the man's neck and tightened it. Germany said he held the man to the floor until he ceased moving, and then he and Denney took money from one of the man's pockets.

An Aransas Pass coin dealer testified that on March 11, 1976, Denney sold him a coin collection. The collection was shown to have belonged to Frey.

"Considering the record as a whole and viewing the facts in the light most favorable to the verdict, we find that there was sufficient evidence to link appellant's confession to his brother-in-law with the strangulation death and robbery of Frey," the appeals court said.

Germany also argued the court erred in granting the state's motion to delay the trial to give Yardley time to get to court. "The record reflects that Yardley was on a shrimpboat in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast. His testimony was critical to the state's case," the appeals court said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals also:

- Reduced the $250,000 bail set for Charles Ivey in a Dallas County armored car robbery. The bail was set at $50,000.

Ivey is charged in a September 1979 Dallas robbery that netted $631,000.

"Threw out a capital murder indictment against Rogers Anthony Solete Jr. of Houston. Solete was 16 when he allegedly gunned down Beverly Saltsgraver during a robbery. The appeals court threw out the case because Solete was certified to stand trial as an adult after a district judge ruled there were insufficient evidence to send the case to a grand jury.

Appeals Court Rules New Brasfield Trial

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Philip Carey Brasfield, sentenced to death in the kidnap-murder of a 6-year-old Lubbock boy, deserves a new trial because of a flaw in the indictment and proof used in his case, the Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The court also ruled that Brasfield cannot be assessed the death penalty if he is convicted again.

Brasfield was convicted in Wichita County on a charge of venue in the death of Johnny Turner Jr., who disappeared from near his house on Oct. 26, 1977, while his mother was preparing supper.

His body was found Nov. 3 in Yellowhouse Canyon. A pathologist testified the child had died of asphyxiation and there were "numerous stab wounds" on the body, the court's opinion states.

Brasfield was identified by a 13-year-old neighbor of the victim as being in a white pickup truck with the victim, and other witnesses testified they had seen Brasfield and the boy together in the Yellowhouse Canyon area.

Brasfield did not testify in his own behalf and offered no witnesses or defense, the opinion notes.

In the opinion, the court says that the evidence was "more than adequate to support the jury's findings" of guilt, but says there was not sufficient evidence to support the death penalty — which requires a showing that the person sentenced would be "a continuing threat to society."

The court noted that testimony indicated Brasfield had visited with two persons "shortly after the commission of the offense" at "their beer-drinking rendezvous a very short distance from where Johnny's body was secreted."

But, the court indicated, there was "no evidence, per se, of any extraneous criminal acts; there was no psychiatric evidence offered... (or) evidence of any prior criminal convictions nor... character evidence..."

The court also said the indictment, which charged Brasfield had caused "the death of the said Johnny Turner Jr. in the course of committing the offense of kidnapping," could be interpreted as meaning that the victim of the alleged kidnapping was a person other than the slaying victim.

The court called the defect in the indictment "readily curable," adding that since "the nature of the offense is grisly to the extreme, we are permitted the assumption that the case will be retried on an amended indictment."

Protest Of DWI Conviction Flops

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the Mitchell County conviction of Billy Bryan Stover, convicted of driving while intoxicated and sentenced to 30 days in jail and a $250 fine.

The court's opinion noted the record showed Stover was found by law enforcement officers injured and lying on the side of the road some yards from where his truck was found in the ditch, its lights on and engine running, after it had struck a sign.

Stover challenged the sufficiency of the evidence to show that he "drove the vehicle, that he was intoxicated at the time, and that it was driven on a public road, highway, street or alley."

The appeals court noted a blood sample showed Stover had a blood alcohol level of 0.31 per cent.

Clayton Lists Two Insurance Firm Loans

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, accused of taking a bribe from an FBI agent posing as a Prudential insurance company official, has $43,100 in two secured loans outstanding with the insurance firm.

Both notes are listed in Clayton's financial disclosure statements filed with the Texas secretary of state's office.

One of the notes is for personal liability for $17,600 at 6 1/2 percent interest, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported. The other, in the name of Springlake Enterprises, solely owned by Clayton, shows a balance of $25,500 owed at 8 1/2 percent interest.

The FBI claims Clayton accepted a $10,000 bribe to help Prudential secure a multimillion-dollar state contract. Clayton admits taking the money from L.G. Moore, a Houston union official, but saved it to return it to him later. He said he has done no special favors for Prudential.

Clayton's 1974 financial disclosure statement shows that 328 acres of Lamb County farmland used to secure the notes are worth $130,473, including improvements.

Clayton and his lawyer, Charles Burton of Austin, said the Prudential debts are not connected in any way with the bribery accusation.

"You have to understand it was a scam," Burton told the newspaper, referring to the undercover FBI operation. "Ask the FBI why they used Prudential. Maybe the FBI looked at his financial disclosure and saw the debts and decided to approach him as representatives of Prudential."

He said Clayton's debts to Prudential will have no effect on his client's grand jury testimony, scheduled today in Houston.

A Prudential spokesman has said the company cooperated with the FBI in explaining how group insurance works, but did not authorize agents to use the company's name during the undercover investigation.

EYES FROM WITHIN — An unidentified New Mexico State Penitentiary inmate peers out at a tour of reporters and photographers Wednesday. The press was allowed inside the Santa Fe, New Mexico facility to inspect the cleanup and reconstruction efforts at the prison. Many other inmates have been transferred to other detention facilities as a result of the Feb. 2-3 riot that killed 33 inmates and destroyed much of the prison. (AP Laserphoto)

Inmates Identified With Dental Charts

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Medical officials used dental charts to identify two charred victims of the inmate takeover at the New Mexico State Penitentiary, officials announced Wednesday.

Authorities had identified 28 of the 33 inmates killed during the Feb. 2-3 uprising within a few days through fingerprints, but the other five victims were so badly burned that other means of identification had to be tried.

Officials declined to release the names of the two victims recently identified until their families were notified. The other three riot victims remain unidentified.

Gov. Bruce King and Corrections Division Director Felix Rodriguez led reporters on a tour of the prison Wednesday. Hundreds of windows are still broken at the prison and smoke still blacks the outside walls. Inside, corridors and cell blocks have been cleared of most debris, but the cleanup is still going on. The only remaining evidence of the carnage is a few bloody rags in the corners of some rooms.

King said he was not upset that the Senate Judiciary Committee had removed $44.6 million from his proposed $82.5 million comprehensive prison recovery bill.

The money for a new 500-person maximum security unit was stripped from the bill after some lawmakers said the state may be moving too hastily and too emotionally to address prison problems. The House already had approved the bill.

King said he expected the Legislature would designate the money and said he could wait until the 1981 session to ask for approval of a specific amount.

He said he still was undecided about the need for a special session of the Legislature to deal specifically with the prison.

"It's about 50-50," he said of the chances that lawmakers will be summoned into special session in six to eight weeks.

Asked if he now thought the proposed 500-man unit was necessary, the governor said, "We'll be looking at that, and we might be able to get away with 300."

Much of the debris in the main parts of the institution has been cleared away, and work was underway to repair the central control station, which inmates seized after breaking the "unbreakable" security glass from a window.

Rodriguez said prison officials planned to restore the steel bars and wire mesh glass that were used in the window before the glass was installed.

He also said three of the six cellblocks and six of the nine dormitories in the prison are being used and said other areas of the riot-torn prison may be put back into order in as soon as 10 days.

"There's a lot more salvageable than we had thought," he said.

The heating system apparently was undamaged in the riot and heat was being supplied to most areas of the prison, but some inmates complaining of the cold had forced blankets and clothes into vacant spaces and windows.

Rodriguez also provided figures on the current disposition of prisoners. He said 532 are housed at the penitentiary, 355 are in the federal prison system, 52 are in state institutions in Oklahoma, 30 are lodged at prisons in Arizona and 31 are in Colorado facilities. Another 44 inmates have been taken to county jails in New Mexico and eight remained hospitalized, he said.

Questioned about conflicting reports from prison officials on the number of inmates, Rodriguez said several prisoners have been ordered released by district judges since the riot and seven others have been paroled.

Approximately 120 inmates from Dormitory B were able to visit with a member of their families Wednesday for the first time since the uprising. The brief visits were conducted at the security fence because officials said there was no place inside for large numbers of visitors.

Texas' Own Moscow Bids For Olympics

MOSCOW, Texas (AP) — People in this tiny East Texas timber town say they have the solution to the Summer Olympics squabble.

"They just said Moscow, they didn't really say anything about Russia, did they?" said Mark Williams of Moscow Auto Sales.

The friendly people here say the town of about 800 has most of the facilities needed for the summer games. There's a little pond for the swimming events, there's a flat stretch of highway for the marathon, and tents can be brought in from Houston for housing.

And, perhaps most importantly, no one from here has crossed into Afghanistan in recent years.

"I think we can handle it," Williams said with a smile. "We can use Highway 59 for the marathon. Have 'em run to Livingston and back."

There's plenty of pastureland for the other events. Local postmistress Joyce Rowe said it's just a matter of clearing the cow patties.

Robert Herman, a local mechanic, knows a perfect place for the swimming competition. There's a pond near the stretch of railroad that connects Moscow to nearby Camden.

Herman said the swimming hole might prove conducive to world record performances.

"I understand there's a little alligator in it. That'd get 'em kicking," he said. The Olympics would add excitement to the little town of abandoned buildings. The decline began in 1938 when a fire leveled most of the city. The old buildings now stand as a neglected reminder of the old days.

The town was named Greens when it was started in 1841. In 1853 it became Moscow, named for the birthplace of the first local postmaster — Moscow, Tenn.

Residents of other Moscos in the United States also have talked about hosting the Olympics. Williams said they all ought to draw straws to pick a host.

Texas Gold Strike Disclosed, Sort Of

DALLAS (AP) — Everyone knows there's gold in Texas — black gold, that is — but a Dallas geologist says he's found microscopic particles of the precious metal and silver as well in North Central Texas.

Don't bother to ask Victor Oppenheim where. He's not saying, not just now, anyway.

Oppenheim, an independent consultant who has explored for oil and minerals all over the world, said the discovery of the particles came by accident. The amounts involved probably are too small to make mining economical for the time being, he said, but noted that spiraling gold prices might lead to eventual attempts at recovery of the Texas gold.

Oppenheim said the particles, embedded in rocks, are too small to see with the naked eye and cannot be recovered by sifting through stream sediments with a pan.

He says he cannot disclose the location of his discovery because he is working for a client he declined to identify. But the Latvian-born geologist says he will disclose more details next month when he presents a paper at the meeting of the Texas Academy of Sciences in Corpus Christi.

Oppenheim said he made the discovery after being called by a client to examine some geological formations on a farm he described only as "within a few hours of the Dallas area."

He said he was not specifically looking for gold or silver, but found the particles during a chemical analysis of rocks that had been dissolved in acid.

"At first I just didn't believe it," Oppenheim said. "I thought something might be wrong with the assays. But then I repeated and repeated and repeated and the evidence was there."

He is quick to say it's not a mother lode that will make him or his client rich. "You can't take microscopic particles to the bank," he said.

He said he considered it amazing to find the particles in sedimentary rocks, the type formed from silt and sand deposited by rivers over millions of years and then compressed.

Most gold, he said, is found in igneous rocks, the type formed by cooling of molten material, such as lava from volcanoes.

Thomas Evans, a geologist and author of a 1975 publication concerning gold and silver in Texas, said the discovery by Oppenheim would be a new discovery and geologically unusual.

Evans, who now works for the Wisconsin Geological Survey in Madison, said the discovery of gold and silver in sedimentary rocks is rare, but he said it is not "unheard of."

Geologist Gary Smith says the fact that the gold discovered by Oppenheim cannot be seen does not mean that it could not be recovered.

Three Face West German Nazi Crimes Trial

LUDWIGSBURG, West Germany (AP) — Three men will be tried in the Baltic Sea port of Kiel this year on charges that during World War II they were Nazi security officers who helped deport 26,000 Jews to the death camp at Auschwitz, an official said Wednesday.

Ernst Ehlers, Konstantin Canaris and Kurt Asche are accused of helping send Jews to the extermination camp from Belgium and Northern France between August 1942 and June 1944, said prosecutor Adalbert Rueckert of the Central Office for Nazi Crimes.

The Kiel court will review 38 files of evidence beginning in May and hopes to open formal proceedings in October, said a spokesman for the justice ministry in West Germany's northernmost state.

The trial follows a parallel case in Cologne, where a court Tuesday sentenced former Nazi SS members Kurt Lischka, 70, Herbert Hagen, 66, and Ernst Heinrichsohn, 59. Kischka was given 10 years, Hagen 12 years and Heinrichsohn six years for helping to deport 76,000 Jews from France to extermination camps in Eastern Europe.

County Woman Charged In 1978 Slaying

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
 A Lubbock County woman was charged Wednesday with voluntary manslaughter in connection with a two-year-old city slaying. It is the second criminal charge filed in less than a week in connection with two previously unsolved Lubbock killings.

Wednesday morning, Kathleen Baskin was charged with the second-degree felony of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the Feb. 7, 1978 shooting death of Virgil Wesley Watts Jr.

Investigators went to Miss Baskin's Carlisle home Tuesday afternoon to question her about the shooting incident outside of the Red Raider Inn, and she then accompanied them downtown where she reportedly gave a statement concerning Watts' death.

After giving the statement, the 33-year-old woman was booked into Lubbock County Jail, but was released pending Wednesday morning's filing of formal charges.

Miss Baskin returned to the courthouse Wednesday afternoon to be arraigned in Justice of the Peace Charles Smith's court. Smith appointed attorney George Thompson to represent Miss Baskin and set her bond at the $15,000 recommended by the criminal district attorney's office.

Wednesday night, she had posted the bond.

Investigators said Miss Baskin apparently had just met Watts shortly before he was shot the early February morning two years ago. Officials said an argument preceded the shooting, but declined to comment on what sparked the fight.

A voluntary manslaughter charge, which carries a maximum 20-year prison term upon conviction, indicates the suspect fired the weapon "under the immediate influence of sudden passion arising from an adequate cause."

Watts, a Wichita Falls resident, was found dead outside the door of his room at the 6025 Ave. A motel about 6:45 a.m. two years ago this month. Two 25-caliber bullets, one in Watts' chest and another in his forehead, were recovered from his body.

Officers, however, have not recovered the weapon Miss Baskin allegedly used to shoot Watts.

Police said Watts apparently was shot within a 10-minute period that February morning. A man walking through the motel parking lot found Watts' body lying next to his pickup truck, which was parked just outside the door of his downstairs corner room. Another man, who told police he had been in that area only 10 minutes earlier, said he did not see the body.

The pickup's driver side window was broken out, and glass — along with Watts' jacket and wallet — was found inside the vehicle. Watts was found face-up, and officers said there were no signs he had been involved in a struggle.

The 50-year-old Watts arrived in Lubbock and registered at the motel the night before he was shot. A Lubbock resident told police he talked with Watts on a CB radio about 6:30 p.m. Feb. 6 as Watts was driving toward the city on U.S. 62-82.

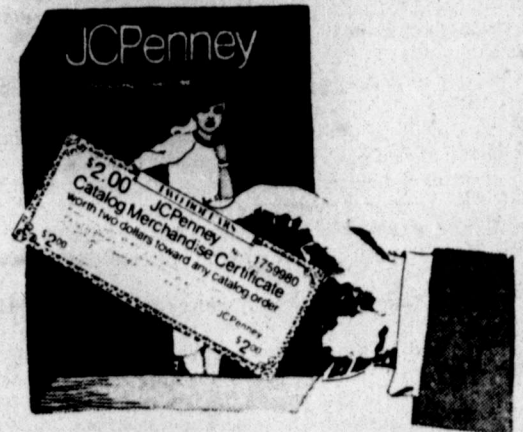

Wednesday's criminal charge in the two-year-old slaying came on the heels of a Lubbock County grand jury indictment of a suspect in the Jan. 1, 1976 slaying of nightclub entertainer Marcella Valenzuela.

Last Thursday, a 140th District Court grand jury indicted Victor Manuel Montalvo for murder in connection with Miss Valenzuela's death. Montalvo, 32, is accused of strangling the 20-year-old woman with a towel.

Montalvo, whose last known address was in Littlefield and who had been a bartender at one of the clubs where Miss Valenzuela worked, remained at large Wednesday night.

Islamic Group Plans Saturday Program

A program styled "The Effects of Slavery and New Names for African-Americans — Bilalians" will be conducted from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at Mae Simmons Community Center at 23rd Street and Quirt Avenue.

Imam Shakir H. Muhyee of Masjid Muhammad, the World Community Islamic house of worship at 212 Cherry Ave., will be the main speaker.

The monthly program is the third offered by the religious group in the past three months.

Saturday Program

"Bilalians" is a new name given to African-Americans by Al-Islam leader Wallace D. Muhammad "after one of our ancestors," spokesman John A. Mu'min said.

The group has been gaining support in Lubbock, Mu'min said, "because people see us working in the community and see that we are sincere."

Its best-known member is former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali.

Soviet-Made Tanks Said In Possession Of PLO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department confirmed Wednesday that Soviet-made tanks have come into the hands of Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

Spokesman Hodding Carter would not confirm the details offered Tuesday by Israeli sources, who said the Palestinians have 60 of the Soviets' T-34 model tanks.

Carter said the department did not know whether the Palestinians got the tanks directly from the Soviets or through a third party.

Inactivity, Disease Of Heart Linked

BOSTON (AP) — A comparison of blood samples taken from marathon runners, joggers and inactive people shows new evidence that exercising may prevent heart disease, researcher

The scientists noted that HDL in the blood of the runners was elevated "to a level associated with a significant reduction of coronary risk."

The study found that the more people exercise, the higher their blood levels of high density lipoprotein cholesterol, or HDL, a substance that is associated with a reduced risk of coronary heart disease. The researchers said it was the amount of running, not what people ate, that determined whether they had high or low levels of this blood fat.

Unlike low density lipoprotein cholesterol, which is suspected of causing narrowing of the arteries, the high density substance is believed to provide protection from heart trouble. The study, conducted at Methodist Hospital in Houston, was published in Tuesday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"Results suggest that HDL differs among the three groups were primarily the result of distance run, not dietary factors," the researchers concluded. The researchers took blood samples from 59 marathon runners, 85 joggers and 74 inactive men, all between the ages of 35 and 66.

HDL levels were 65 milligrams per liter in the marathoners, 58 in joggers and 43 in non-exercisers.

Earlier studies have shown that high levels of HDL are associated with a low risk of heart disease. But researchers were unsure whether people could raise their HDL levels by varying what they ate.

There have been reports that HDL levels go up if people drink alcohol moderately or lose weight.

"The marathon runners and joggers do not differ substantially from the inactive subjects in their reported dietary habits, although they had significantly higher HDL-cholesterol levels," the researchers wrote.

They attributed the differences to the men's exercising habits. "Even the joggers, who averaged only 11 miles per week, had significantly higher HDL levels than did the inactive men."

Bank Sues Widow For Mistake in Savings Account

ATLANTA (AP) — After her husband's death, Catherine Meinhold was surprised to learn he had left $6,000 in a savings account. Now, the bank says it made a mistake and wants the money back.

Trust Company Bank has filed suit in Superior Court in Atlanta demanding that Mrs. Meinhold return the money.

But Mrs. Meinhold says she used the money to pay bills, including the one for her husband's funeral.

"I'm well past retirement age," she said. "If I had money stacked up some place, I would have repaid them. But I don't have it, I just don't have it."

After her husband died in May 1979, Mrs. Meinhold found a Trust Company account card belonging to him and on July 6 went to the branch office to check the account.

"I figured my husband had some money some place," she said Tuesday night. When he bank operations officer Steven Harrison told her there was money in that account, she said, "I was so happy and relieved. I paid all my bills, the funeral, and others."

According to the bank's suit, Harrison gave Mrs. Meinhold a check for the $6,256.57 in the account. In January, bank officials realized Meinhold had closed the account in 1975 and the number had been issued to a new customer.

"I know they're short the money, but it's really not my fault," said Mrs. Meinhold.

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS: Physical: 21, Emotional: 17, Intellectual: 19

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Study Of Distant Stars Supports Uniform Physics Law Theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most distant stars ever studied individually support the theory that the laws of physics are the same throughout the universe, an astronomer said Wednesday.

The National Science Foundation said the astronomer, Dr. Roberta M. Humphreys of the University of Minnesota, for the first time closely studied individual stars in galaxies outside the Milky Way and its small group of neighboring galaxies.

The astronomer said she used new light amplification systems and spectrographic equipment to collect and study the faint light of stars many light-years away.

A light-year is the distance light travels in a year at 186,000 miles per second — about six trillion miles.

Most individual stars previously studied are in a tight cluster of galaxies that extends for two million light-years and includes the Milky Way.

Miss Humphreys studied three stars in a spiral galaxy called M101, about 24 million light-years from Earth, and four stars in galaxy NGC 2403, about 12 million light-years away. For her work, she used the giant 158-inch Mayall telescope at Kitt Peak National Observatory near Tucson, Ariz.

"Photographs reveal that these stars I observed are supergiants — the brightest, most massive stars known," she said. "They have luminosities (brightness) more than a million times that of our own sun and masses greater than 80 times the sun's mass."

Of the Milky Way's billions of stars, several hundred thousand are supergiants that can be compared with similar ones in distant galaxies, she said.

The astronomer said in a telephone interview that these supergiants are not freak stars or stellar oddities like supernovas, which are large exploding stars.

"They are unusual in the sense that they are at the upper limit in size for normal stars, but their physical properties are representative of typical stars and make them comparable in different galaxies," she said.

Analysis of light from the distant stars show they have similar temperatures, brightness and chemical composition, and are in the same evolutionary state, as their counterparts in our galaxy, Miss Humphreys said.

This is consistent with the theory that the physical processes seen in our galaxy are basically the same throughout the ob-servable universe.

"It may be many decades before astronomers have comparable observations of the much fainter stars like our own sun in such distant galaxies," Miss Humphreys said, "but already we expect from these and other observations that they will also be similar to their galactic counterparts.

"It is not unlikely to expect that they would also have solar systems and perhaps even life," she added.

Goodyear Engineers Designing New Photo Computer For NASA

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Engineers at Goodyear Aerospace, a division of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., are designing the world's fastest computer to keep track of the enormous amounts of data sent back to the earth from orbiting satellites.

The machine, developed under a $4.7 million contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will be used to convert the satellites' transmissions into photographs of the earth's surface, the company said.

The machine will be capable of performing up to six billion mathematical functions a second, said Fred R. Nebiker, manager of advanced programs at Goodyear.

The computer, called the "massively parallel processor," will be able to add or subtract six billion times a second. In a more complicated function like multiplication, the machine will slow down to two billion times a second.

The machine gets its speed from 16,384 tiny silica "processor" chips. The parallel arrangement means it can do many computations simultaneously, instead of one after the other as conventional computers do, Nebiker said.

Data beamed back from a satellite is in the form of "pixels." With one pixel covering about one acre of land, "each pixel has a lot of data in it," Nebiker said.

"The satellite is about 570 miles above the earth, going around from north to south every 103 minutes." Noting that the satellite views a band 150 miles wide on each pass, Nebiker added, "All that data has to be converted to pictures within 103 minutes or you're going to be on top of yourself."

The old computer, with 1,024 processing elements "does only one acre at a time," he said. "We're now working with

The London Company sent three ships to colonize Virginia in 1606.

16,000 at a time, which makes it vastly more powerful."

To the viewer of the final product, it would mean a better picture.

The quarter-inch silica chips are produced with the help of photographic circuitry, "reduced down to microscopic size," Nebiker said. "That gives you an enormous amount of capability in a very small space."

It also cuts the cost and doesn't use much power.

Nebiker said the computer will also be valuable for earthly tasks, such as structural engineering, where large amounts of data must be processed to determine the best materials to use on particular projects.

GAO Warns Against Losing Lead In Technology

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is in danger of losing its lead in space technology unless it invests more in the promising new field of space manufacturing, the General Accounting Office warns.

Russia, Japan and several European countries, particularly West Germany, are devoting strong efforts to this potentially exciting research, which could lead to a big commercial payoff, the GAO said in a report released this week.

Many scientists, the agency said, envision that by the end of this century there will be orbiting factories producing new or better metals and alloys, perfect crystals, composite materials, glasses, semiconductors, chemicals and high purity medicines and vaccines that can't be made on Earth.

If the United States is to exploit this relatively unknown field, the government must develop an innovative plan with private industry, and both must be prepared to take financial risks, the report stated.

"Failure of such creative and extraordinary measures on the part of the U.S. government could lead to the loss of U.S. preeminence in space, both technologically and economically," said the GAO, which is the investigative arm of Congress.

Although experiments conducted aboard the American Skylab and Russian Salyut space stations have been encouraging, the agency said it is too early to predict what materials might be manufactured in the weightless vacuum of space or their economic potential.

"Thus, the program receives little visibility or support in the Congress or by the administration, and correspondingly, low priority and funding by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration," the report said. "Similarly, private industry cannot be expected to risk high, long term investments at the present stage of research.

"However, if preliminary assessments by many scientists are correct, the eventual economic and social impact from new scientific discovery could be enormous," the agency said. "To prove or disprove these assessments depends on government's willingness to invest with no guarantee of success."

As a start, it said, the government should be spending two to three times the $20 million that is in the current NASA budget, just to maintain parity with other nations.

"There is concern in this country that once the space shuttle and Spacelab are in operation, emphasis by other countries could lead to technological and economic advantages which may be difficult to overcome," the GAO said. "Many industrialists and economists believe that being 'first to market' with new products or processes is extremely important in gaining a large enough market share to remain competitive."

The reusable space shuttle being developed by NASA is scheduled for its first manned flight later this year. In 1982 it will host into orbit the first Spacelab, a research laboratory being developed by the 11-nation European Space Agency.

The report cited these developments in other countries:

•The 11 European nations, led by West Germany, have made substantial commitments to materials-processing experiments, and there will be a total of 39 on the first Spacelab mission. In contrast, the United States has funded only 14 such tests and only nine have been designated for flight. West Germany has purchased an entire shuttle-Spacelab flight to conduct its own tests, and France is building an unmanned satellite lab called Mimos.

•The Soviet Union has 350 top materials scientists active in space-related research, and Russian cosmonauts conducted impressive materials work aboard Salyut 6. Other Communist-bloc countries have access to the orbiting station and at least one. Poland, performed a number of materials experiments there.

•Japan has a strong research program that may be aimed at improved glasses, optics and semiconductors. It hopes to fly experiments aboard a Spacelab to be orbited by the U.S. shuttle in 1985.

"It is evident the United States has reached a point where it must decide on the importance of retaining worldwide technological leadership in space," the GAO said.

The report said NASA's current processing program provides a good base, but Congress and the administration should encourage private sector participation.

• NASA has begun exploring joint ventures with private industry, and last month signed an agreement with McDonnell Douglas Corp. to test in orbit a pharmaceutical process that could lead to improved treatment of diabetes, hemophilia and other diseases.

What are the characteristics of space which may make all this possible?

On Earth, gas bubbles rise in a liquid, heavier particles and dense metals separate and settle at the bottom of a solution, and heated fluids flow in a random and unpredictable way, all because of gravity. None of these happen in the weightless vacuum of space, permitting composite materials to be formed and facilitating both separation and synthesis processes.

Khomeini Supports Plan On Prisoners

ing it would not "profess guilt" to any U.S. actions in Iran and appeared to view the plan with caution. Since then U.S. officials have said they will not answer questions on the hostage crisis.
U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who has been trying to negotiate release of the Americans since they were seized Nov. 4 at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, declined comment on developments. He said he would not go beyond statements made by his spokesman that negotiations for release of the Americans are at "a very sensitive stage" and that he was in "constant" touch with U.S. and Iranian officials.
Waldheim's spokesman, Rudolf Stajduhar, said the secretary general watched the Carter news conference on television and would have no comment.
Islamic militants have said they would not release the hostages unless ordered to do so by Khomeini.

In his interview with the radio station France-Inter, recorded Tuesday and broadcast Wednesday, Bani-Sadr would not say whether he envisioned the imminent release of the hostages. "It is a possibility. It depends," he said.
He refused to reveal details of the plan, saying only, "We have presented new proposals to Khomeini and he has accepted."
The secretary of the ruling Revolutionary Council, which Bani-Sadr heads, said Wednesday the council was examining new proposals that would end the hostage crisis and the government wanted to find a solution as soon as possible.
In an interview published Monday in the French newspaper Le Monde, Bani-Sadr said he had given Khomeini new proposals, approved unanimously by the ruling council, for freeing the hostages and was awaiting an answer.

As outlined by the newspaper, Bani-Sadr's proposal was that the Americans would be freed if the United States did three things: acknowledge its "crimes" in Iran over the past 25 years; accept Iran's "right" to extradite the shah and his wealth and promise not to interfere in Iranian affairs.
In the radio interview broadcast Wednesday night, Bani-Sadr reemphasized that these three points still must be met.
Shah Not Demanded
He also told Le Monde his government no longer demanded the return of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi before the hostages' release.
In a separate interview broadcast Wednesday night by two French television stations, Bani-Sadr repeated, as he had first said to Le Monde, that the return of the shah and the release of the hostages "were not linked."
According to French radio and television officials, Bani-Sadr met with French journalists in Tehran on Wednesday for a group taping session with the radio station France-Inter, the television stations TF 1 and Antenna Deux. French print journalists also were present.
Earlier Wednesday, Iran's foreign minister and Mohammed Beheshti, council secretary, indicated a settlement was near.
New Proposals Seen
Beheshti told reporters in Tehran that the ruling body was discussing new proposals on ending the crisis and for an international commission to hear Iran's grievances against the shah.
Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, visiting Athens, Greece, said he felt formation of an international commission would "resolve the crisis." Ghotbzadeh said Tuesday he believed such a commission would arrive in Iran within a week.
Sen. Edward Kennedy suggested the hostages be released to a third country while a commission is set up to investigate the shah. Campaigning for the Democratic presidential primary in Nashua, N.H., he said his proposal was "consistent with negotiations" while still "preserving our position of not yielding to blackmail."
There were these other developments:
Khomeini Improves
— Khomeini's doctors announced he will remain hospitalized for an indefinite period although his condition continues to improve. The 79-year-old religious leader, confined to a Tehran hospital after a heart attack in late January, will remain in Tehran rather than return to his residence in the holy city of Qom, they said.
— A group of private Americans in Tehran at the invitation of the militants blamed Western media and U.S. reporters specifically for the continuing hostage crisis. Norman Forer, leader of the group of 49 Americans and a Kansas University professor, told a news conference that inaccurate reporting had made negotiations aimed at ending their captivity "nearly impossible." American reporters were kicked out of Iran in mid-January but other Western journalists remain.
Americans "Expendable"
— A hand-printed letter from one of the hostages in Iran sent to Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of The Washington Post, says the Americans feel expendable and fear for their lives because of "the apparent lack of action by our government." The letter from Bruce W. German, 43, from Kensington, Md., was dated Feb. 7.
— Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar announced Iran was reducing gas exports to the Soviet Union by 70-75 percent and increasing the price by 500 percent.

Russian Withdrawal Proposal Speculated

counter international condemnation of the Soviet intervention.
Dmitry F. Ustinov, the Soviet defense minister, repeated claims that the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan followed "the launching of an undeclared war on Afghanistan by the U.S. imperialists and Chinese hegemonists. Having lost an important bridgehead in Iran, the United States intended to create its military base in Afghanistan close to the southern borders of our country."
— In Peking, the Chinese Communist Party newspaper said the Soviet Union wanted to "hoodwink the world public" and legitimize its presence in Afghanistan by staging only a partial troop withdrawal. A commentary in the People's Daily said Moscow was spreading word of a partial pullout "in an attempt to pass itself off as a good guy and absolve itself from world condemnation."
— At the U.N. Commission on Human Rights in Geneva, Switzerland, the United States charged that executions, torture and arbitrary arrests which became "commonplace" under previous communist regimes "tragically continue" under the current government. "For whose offenses the Soviet Union must be held directly responsible," U.S. delegate Jerome Shestack said executions may now total 5,000 — with summary executions reportedly carried out at one prison alone at the "rate of 20-50 each night for months."
— The Red Cross warned that thousands more Afghan refugees are expected to cross into Pakistan, where the situation could soon "rapidly deteriorate." An estimated 500,000 Afghans have fled since the Soviet intervention.
Cuban Troops Reported
— An Egyptian newspaper, Al-Akhar, reported more than 1,000 Cuban troops are on their way to pro-Soviet South Yemen aboard a Soviet passenger-cargo ship that went through the Suez Canal. The report said the 21,370-ton vessel, Leonid Sobinov, made its way into Port Said at the northern tip of the canal Tuesday night. U.S. officials in Washington revealed Tuesday that the United States is sending an 1,800-man Marine amphibious force into the Arabian Sea.
— The British government rejected a demand by a left-wing member of Parliament that it condemn the American decision to send the Marines. Sir Ian Gilmour, deputy foreign secretary, said the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan "is the danger to world peace."
The Soviets began pouring troops into Afghanistan in December in an effort to crush a 21-month-old Moslem insurrection against the communist regime and ensure the success of the Dec. 27 coup in which President Hafizullah Amin was executed and replaced by Karmal, regarded as a more pro-Soviet leader.
Initiative By India
Diplomats in London also said the Indian government has begun an initiative — with the support of other Third World countries and France — to head off a superpower confrontation in the region.
Prime Minister Indira Gandhi sent an emissary to the Afghan capital of Kabul this week to confer with officials of Babrak Karmal's Soviet-backed government, according to Indian officials, who quoted the Afghan government as saying it would "invite" the Soviets to withdraw as soon as it has assurances there would be no "outside aggression."

Cable Firm To Settle Tax Bill

before the council Jan. 24 by Jim Brown, manager of the local cable firm. At that meeting, Brown said the HBO receipts were not being included in the gross revenue figures used to determine the tax payments.
Cox representatives have maintained that no back taxes are owed because the HBO business was not included in the original fee base. However, Hokenson made an about-face on Wednesday, saying that his firm apparently had received poor legal advice on the matter.
More Than $80,000 Asked
Still to be determined is the exact amount in taxes that the company owes the city. The city staff has estimated the tax bill at between $80,000 and $90,000. Vandiver said the Cox representative estimated the total at approximately $80,000.
The merger issue is back on the council's agenda today, and Brown is scheduled to make an appearance during the morning session.
Even if the franchise issue can be settled, the council may still raise some questions about the local cable service. Councilman Alan Henry said he has received approximately 90 complaints from residents about "the service or lack of it."
Brown has advised the city of recent changes made by his company to upgrade its service on weekends and at night. Within the past month, the company has added a rotary line, another technician to work Saturdays and Sundays as needed and an additional five hours for service calls on Sundays.
The cable company also has advised the city that it is considering a proposal to provide Spanish programming on the local cable.
But Henry said he still has some questions about the service provided in Lubbock and feels the council should receive a statement from General Electric regarding proposals about future service.
In other business Thursday, the council will hear a request from a Lubbock man who wants the city to erect a barrier at the intersection of Chicago Avenue and 82nd Street.
Ron Modawell, of 8016 Brentwood Ave., is asking the city to place a traffic median barrier in the T-shaped intersection to prevent vehicles from ramming his house. On Dec. 8, 1979, a car apparently ran the stop sign on Chicago Avenue and crashed into Modawell's home, and he fears the same thing could happen again.
However, the city's legal department said the city could be held liable for creating a dangerous condition.
At 11 a.m. Thursday, the council will hold a public hearing to consider entering into a cooperation agreement with the Lubbock Housing Authority.
The Housing Authority has submitted a preliminary application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for 132 units of public housing. Approval of the application is pending on receipt of the cooperation agreement with the city.
The 132 units will be about a $5 million project and will help meet the housing goals set in the city's Housing Assistance Plan.
Council members will meet beginning at 9:30 a.m. today.

Nurse Backed After Firing

which ran the teaching hospital for three months during the early fall, also had planned to terminate Mrs. Lemons' employment before their own contract was ended after the 90-day trial period.
An administrative nurse leader at Health Sciences said a letter expressing 100 percent support of the nursing staff for Mrs. Lemons was sent to Brookwood during their time at the hospital and that a similar letter was sent to administrator Henry just a few weeks ago.
"The morale at the hospital is at an all-time low," the nurse leader said.
Though many of the nurses present were on staff at Health Sciences, school nurses, Well Baby Clinic nurses and RNs from other area hospitals also were present.
Czech Leaders Looking At Dormant Industry
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovakian leaders are taking a new look at the country's dormant gold-mining industry in the wake of a 17-fold increase in bullion prices since the last gold was unearthed in 1970, the Communist Party newspaper Rude Pravo reported.
Much of medieval Bohemia's prosperity was based on its gold mines and silver mines, but gold production in what became Czechoslovakia ended when the mines at Jilove outside Prague and at Kremnica were closed as unprofitable.

Two Randall County Officials Indicted

CANYON (AP) — Two Randall County commissioners were indicted Wednesday on charges of aggravated perjury in connection with a grand jury investigation into county finances.
Grand jurors also released an eight-page report critical of a county budgeting process containing "gross deficiencies and lack of judgment which have caused Randall County citizens to pay many unnecessary tax dollars."
The indictment alleged commissioners Jim Fletcher and Dee Griffin Sr. made false statements to a grand jury investigating county finances.
Griffin, a two-term commissioner, was indicted on two counts of aggravated perjury and two counts of official misconduct. The misconduct charges allege Griffin tried to avoid investigation and that he had refrained from performing the duties of his office.
Seeking State Office
Fletcher, who is leaving his commissioner's seat to run for the Texas Legislature, was named on a single count of aggravated perjury.
Grand jurors also charged in the report that the county auditor's office has not been functioning according to law and that County Auditor William F. Tirney has been negligent in his job.
The panel said the auditors office had not provided the Commissioners Court with timely financial statements.
The grand jury returned the indictments and released the report about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. Fletcher, Griffin and Tirney could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.
The report also said the Commissioners Court "must be more diligent in observing the letter and spirit of the laws governing their activities. Past actions have indicated a blatant disregard for these matters."
Criminal District Attorney Randall Sherrard said his office will prosecute the indictments even though the grand jury had acted against the wishes of his office in returning the indictments.
"It was not my office's recommendation that the indictments be returned," said Sherrard. "From the standpoint of the evidence, however, there is evidence to sustain them."
The panel, which has been investigating county finances for three months, asked State District Judge George Dowlen to allow them to meet again March 8.
The grand jury fixed most of the blame for the county's troubled finances on the Commissioners Court.
No Justification Seen
"There is and can be no justification for the laxity and negligence we found in the administration of Randall County financial planning," the grand jury said in its report.
"Although most of the cause for the failure of Randall County's fiscal planning and reporting lies with the county auditor's office, the ultimate responsibility for the present situation belongs to the members of the Randall County Commissioners Court."
"Their ignorance of both the factual situation as pertaining to our county's finances and the legal requirements ... is shocking," the grand jury wrote.

Labor Leader Cites Refusal Of Money

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas labor leader said Wednesday an FBI informant, posing as an insurance representative, once offered him money to help any political candidates the union was backing.
Sherman Fricks, business manager for the 8,000-member Pipefitters Union, Local 211, and once secretary-treasurer of the Texas AFL-CIO, said he refused the money.
Fricks said the offer was made by Joseph Hauser, a central figure in an undercover FBI investigation of alleged insurance kickback schemes.
Code-named "Operation Brilab," the FBI probe has reached across several states and into the Texas Legislature, the Houston City Council, and labor unions.
Fricks, talking with newsmen prior to an appearance before a federal grand jury that is following up on the FBI report, said he was now convinced, "I was being set up to talk about money."
The labor leader also is a member of the Texas Deep Water Port Authority that is studying the feasibility of building a state-owned offshore crude oil terminal.
Fricks said in one of the four meetings with Hauser, "he talked about the mayor's race in Houston and said he would be happy to support our candidate."
"He said he would give us some front money for the candidates and then talked about how to raise campaign money that did not have to be reported."
Fricks said Hauser identified himself as a consultant for Prudential Life Insurance Co. and an expert in handling union policies.
"He promised us all kinds of special services, said he would take care of any problems we might have, and even came back later with a better premium offer."

The pipefitters local took out a policy with Prudential, making monthly premiums of about $420,000.
But, Fricks said, "We were already in heat for Prudential before Hauser came around. The majority of our members wanted Prudential."
Another key figure in "Operation Brilab," labor leader L.G. Moore, was to testify Wednesday, but moments before his appearance U.S. Appeals Court Judge Reynaldo Garza in Brownsville granted him a temporary delay.
Moore, regional director for the Operating Engineers International Union, refused to answer any questions as he left the federal courthouse.
His attorney, Michael Ramsey of Houston, had earlier asked U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue to stay the subpoena. Bue rejected the request. Ramsey then went to the appeals court and was successful.
Ramsey wants a hearing before a three-judge panel on his motion to quash the subpoena. Ramsey argued the U.S. Justice Department had purposely leaked criminal accusations about Moore's alleged involvement in Brilab.
Published reports said Moore had given Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton $10,000 during a Nov. 8 meeting when insurance coverage for state employees was discussed.
Hauser also was at the meeting with the House speaker.
Clayton is scheduled to appear before the grand jury Friday.
Clayton said he accepted "a stack of $100 bills" from Moore as a campaign contribution, then had it put "in a safe place" so it could be returned the next time the labor official was in Austin.
Clayton is serving a third term as speaker for the 150-member House and is seeking a fourth term.

Gunbattles, Kidnapping Spur Lebanese Talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian militiamen of the right-wing Phalange Party clashed with pro-Syrian Christians in northern Lebanon on Wednesday and the Phalange command said one of its key leaders was kidnapped.
Premier Salim el Hoss flew to Damascus, the Syrian capital, and met for four hours with President Hafez Assad and Prime Minister Abdul Raouf Kasm. A Syrian spokesman said they held "a comprehensive discussion of the Lebanese situation."
Twenty-four persons have been killed in Lebanon since the Syrians announced the decision to withdraw 5,000 troops, setting off fears of renewed civil war between Christians and a leftist Moslem-Palestinian alliance.
Militiamen of the Phalange Party, which opposes the Syrian presence in Lebanon, fought pro-Syrian followers of former President Suleiman Franjeh with mortars and machine guns in the Bcharri Province, 50 miles north of Beirut.
Phalangist spokesmen said one person was killed and 10 were wounded in the fighting in two villages that control the highway to Bcharri.
Ten persons died last week in similar clashes that the Phalange command said were started by the Syrians.
The Phalange Party, which fielded the largest Christian militia in Lebanon's 1975-76 civil war, said Edmond Rizk, 45, a member of Parliament, was kidnapped Wednesday while on his way to meet on American athletes to boycott the Olympic Games in Moscow this July.

He said there is no possibility he will change his mind if the Soviets carry out a withdrawal between that deadline and May 24, when national Olympic committees must decide whether to send teams.
Carter repeated his position that the Soviet Union must be made to pay a steep price for its military intervention in Afghanistan.
"We must convince the Soviet Union through peaceful means, through peaceful means," the president stressed, "that they cannot invade a neighboring country with impunity."
"Grave Consequences"
Carter declared that "any further adventurism" on the part of the Soviets would result in "grave consequences" for that country.
He termed the Afghanistan crisis "a great one," and said the Soviet move signaled a willingness by that nation to use its forces beyond its own borders.
"What we would like to have, first of all, is a Soviet withdrawal and a commitment ... that the Soviets would not invade another country," Carter asserted.
"We would like to have a neutral government," Carter said. "If there had to be a transitional phase ... then perhaps some peacekeeping force could be set up through the auspices of the United Nations."
"Not Acceptable"
But the prime consideration that I have is to make sure that the Soviets know that their invasion is not acceptable," the president said. "Through strength, we can maintain peace."
Carter refused to be drawn into a discussion of the options that Kennedy has suggested for resolving the hostage crisis.
But he said a statement made earlier Wednesday by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance reflected his position on Kennedy's allegation that the administration missed an opportunity for securing the release of the hostages by opposing formation of a commission to investigate Iran's grievances against the shah.
Working For Months
Vance said the United States had been working "for months ... on the possibility of creating an international commission that would lead to release of the hostages."
Carter reminded the nation he is the incumbent Democratic president and said, "I didn't ask for a challenger."
"I've had some success in politics," the president said. "I look forward to the time when the hostages are released and I can go out and campaign actively ..."
"I want the world to know I'm not going to resume business as usual as a partisan campaigner out on the campaign trail," Carter declared.
On another subject, the president agreed with a questioner that there had been a "gross overreaction" by American youth to his call for reinstating registration for the draft.
No "Actual Draft"
"I do not anticipate calling for an actual draft," he said. Carter added that registration could save 90 days in the event of a mobilization, and thereby deter possible Soviet aggression.
The president also made these points:
— The administration remains confident that Yugoslavia "is a strong, fiercely independent, well equipped nation that can defend itself."
— He would strongly oppose any effort by Congress to reduce the defense budget below the level he has proposed. Carter said there have been steady increases in defense spending throughout his administration, and said the proposal to increase that spending by 5 percent, discounting for inflation, is proper.
— He signed "with enthusiasm" the congressionally approved legislation providing for $1.5 billion in government loan guarantees to the Chrysler Corp. Carter said he would not support such actions as a continuing policy of the government.

Las Vegas Entertainer Leaves Stage For Continental Cockpit

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Last week, Claudia Jones performed at the Las Vegas Hilton. She has just recorded a Country and Western single that she wrote, produced, directed and sang, and she can play 19 instruments.

She also is the only woman co-pilot flying Boeing 727s for Continental Airlines. Mrs. Jones is one of four women hired by the major airline to pilot the large jets across the United States and Mexico. She also is the only female ranked by the airlines as a first officer or co-pilot. The other three women work as flight engineers.

Mrs. Jones has worked for Continental for almost three years and has accumulated more than 6,500 hours of flying time.

In this month's edition of "Glamour" magazine, she is featured as one of the nation's top 10 working women. "Last week, we were honored at a tea with Rosalyn Carter," she said.

The 35-year-old woman began flying in the middle 1960s to provide transportation for her night club act, "Carol and Claudia — The Living Dolls." Within two years, she had received all of her ratings (multi-engine, instrument and instructor), and by 1969, the young woman was hired as a part-time flying instructor in Toledo, Ohio.

Five years before Mrs. Jones began working for Continental, her band broke up. She then did solo performances on stage, was a flight instructor and eventually formed a business partnership with her future husband, Hal Jones.

Mrs. Jones applied for a job with Continental "while I had a Piper (plane) dealership in Las Vegas," she said. She said she saw several other male instructors filling out applications and asked them, "What are you guys doing?"

She said the men encouraged her to apply with the airlines too, but that one of the men jokingly said, "Don't let her, or she'll get the job and we won't."

"I got the job," she laughed. Upon being hired, Mrs. Jones, who also had flown helicopters with her husband, went through the required two months of ground training and then simulation and aircraft training.

The enthusiastic pilot said the biggest difference between flying smaller aircraft and commercial planes is "crew coordination."

"When you're flying a small plane, you do everything yourself," she said, "but in the airlines, you rely on other people."

Mrs. Jones explained that as first officer, she sits in the right seat of the cockpit. "The pilot will fly one leg and I'll work the radios, then I'll fly one leg and he'll work the radios. I make a take-off and a landing and then he does," she explained.

"I've startled some people when they saw a woman pilot," she said, "but nobody's ever gotten off."

Mrs. Jones says the women's rights movement probably helped her get a job traditionally held by men, but she criticized some of the movement's tactics.

"I'm sure the women's movement has helped women, but it's gone about it the wrong way — too militantly. You don't have to lose your femininity to be liberated and I'm probably the most liberated woman in the country."

Just because I do a job traditionally done by men, it doesn't mean I don't want to be a woman. I enjoy being a woman," she stressed.

Then she grinned and pointed to the knot in her tie. "I don't know how to tie a tie," she admitted. "My husband tied this and I just have to leave it together."

Mrs. Jones' original profession as an entertainer, which she pursued upon graduation from Florida State University in Tallahassee, appears to be completely unrelated to her current job.

But the transition was easy. "When I was on stage, I had an audience and I had to give them the best show I could. Now, it's the same thing. The cockpit is my stage, and I want to give my passengers the best flight I can."

She added, "The hardest thing about flying was my first lesson."

Mrs. Jones also said she doesn't miss her performing days when she sang, danced and played 19 instruments. "I'm still doing it," she said, although on a part-time basis.

The pilot's most recent show was last week on the stage at the Hilton Inn in Las Vegas. "I rehearsed 35 hours for it," she said. Her voice still is husky from laryngitis she developed after the performance.

Mrs. Jones performs about 10 shows a year and has just released a Country and Western single titled, aptly enough, "Leaving Tomorrow."

She said that she not only sings the song, but "wrote it, played the instrument, conducted the orchestra and produced and directed it."

"It was a lot of work," she sighed.

CONTINENTAL CO-PILOT — Claudia Jones, a former night club entertainer, is the only female co-pilot on the Continental Airlines staff. She's been flying planes for the major airline for almost three years. She generally flies passengers between Miami, Denver, Acapulco and El Paso. The pilot is based in El Paso, but also owns a home in Las Vegas. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

Burial will be in City of Levelland Cemetery under the direction of George Price Funeral Directors.

Issacks died at 5 a.m. Wednesday in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock after a long illness.

The Georgetown native moved to Hockley County in 1935. He married Inez Murphy here on Nov. 26, 1939.

He was a farmer and a member of Fifth Street Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Howard David of Levelland; a daughter, Diane Cook of Levelland; his mother, Mrs. H.B. Issacks of Levelland; a sister, Frances McDonald of Levelland; and three grandchildren.

Palbearers will be J.D. Moreland, Jimmy Newsom, Jimmy Morgan, J.L. Hill, Daniel Gonzales and Jerry Sanders.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalock today ruled homicide in the shooting Sunday of 16-year-old Ray Vasquez, who died early Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital from a gunshot wound.

It was the city's third homicide of the year.

Vasquez, of 310 Ave. U, died despite efforts of more than 200 residents to save the boy by donating blood, a plea which was broadcast by area radio and television stations Sunday. He had been shot in the lower right portion of the abdomen.

Another 16-year-old youth who was being questioned in connection with the incident admitted shooting Vasquez about 1:10 a.m. Sunday inside a residence in the 1800-block of Sixth Street, but maintained the shooting was accidental, said investigating officer Ed Hernandez of the Lubbock Police Department's juvenile division.

The youth was released to the custody of his parents Monday following a hearing in 140th District Court.

N.J. Murdock

Services for N.J. "Jay" Murdock, 54, of 5004 52nd St. were at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Resthaven Chapel with the Rev. Dudley Strain, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Resthaven Cemetery under the direction of Resthaven Funeral Home.

Murdock died at 6:40 p.m. Monday in Methodist Hospital after a lengthy illness.

A native of Norwood, Mo., he was a veteran of World War II and an accountant. Murdock also was past president of the Hub Toastmasters.

London Exhibition Explodes Myths About Vikings

LONDON (AP) — Contrary to what you may think, no Viking ever wore a horned helmet and Viking women had the right to divorce their husbands. So says David M. Wilson, director of the British Museum and an expert on the Vikings. He made the disclosures in previewing a Viking exhibition that will open to the public today. It will run through July 20 and then will transfer to New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art for opening in the fall.

Heavily based on archaeological discoveries from burials, townships and rivers, the show describes the culture of the famed sea raiders who flourished for 250 years from the late 8th century A.D. in what is now Denmark, Norway, Sweden and northern Germany.

There are glass cases filled with gold and silver ornaments and jewelry, as well as everyday combs, toys, shoes, needles and farming tools.

There are ice skates of bone, a ship's wooden bucket, a gilt-bronze weather-vane and a helmet — pierced by an arrow and slashed with a sword blow — found in a grave at Gjermudbu, Norway. Only one other Viking helmet has been found and that is in Budapest.

POSTMARK VALENTINE — An old gate on ranchland near Valentine in West Texas is superimposed on a postmarked envelope. Small West Texas Town Becomes Favorite For Valentines Each Year

By BILL GREER
 VALENTINE (AP) — Doris Kelley gritted her teeth while bearing down with all the weight on her little frame to hand-cancel a stamp on a stranger's Valentine.
 Mrs. Kelley, postmistress here for the past 25 years, receives packages of Valentines from across the nation — all to be post-marked from Valentine.
 "Quite often they even put one in for me, she said. "It's nice." She shows one with a note inside reading, "Please cancel with your Valentine, Texas cancellation stamps and mail."
 Valentine, a tiny West Texas town of about 400, is located on a desert highway between Marfa and Van Horn, about 160 miles from El Paso.
 Last year I received about 2,000 valentines to remail," said Mrs. Kelley, whose tiny post office houses only 180 boxes.
 Asked about the extra work each February, she replied, "Really, there's not much to it. It's a fun time."
 She says she has sent the Valentine postmark to places as far as Australia and Saudi Arabia.
 Valentine's mayor, Jesus Calderon, 29, standing in his sneakers outside his grocery store-gas station, says there are different stories on how the town got its name.

"Most people say the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks were completed here on Valentine's Day in the late 1800s," the mayor said.
 Valentine is a town with two gas stations, two cafes, three grocery stores, a trucking company and a bar.
 "It's been growing for the last year and a half," said Calderon, who is also coach at Valentine's school.
 "The railroad exchanges crews in Valentine, so that brings more people," said the mayor. "All trains — except Amtrak — stop here."
 He says Valentine is a ranching, farming and railroading community.
 The window of Calderon's Valentine Grocery is decorated with hearts and cupid. Inside the rock building fan belts and radiator hoses hang above the detergents and food items next to a purple-ribboned white swan pinata.
 "I've lived here all my life and I don't plan to move," said Calderon.
 Meanwhile in the white post office next to the grocery-gas station Mrs. Kelley starts hand-stamping another stack of valentines. "This is a leisurely thing that people like to do out of friendship," she said.

Inspector Stresses Building Permit Importance

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
 Avalanche-Journal Staff
 Lubbockites who fail to obtain building permits for remodeling or construction work on their homes or property often are the victims of their own folly, according to city building inspection administrator Cecil Turquette.
 Turquette views the issuance of building permits and the resulting inspections by his department as a safeguard for the homeowner, protecting him from unscrupulous contractors more interested in a fast buck than in meeting city building code specifications.

 "If you get an inspection, you can be sure he (the contractor) has put in proper materials and done the work properly," Turquette observed. In his opinion, homeowners who don't get their new construction work inspected are taking a risk that could end up costing them a lot more money.
 City ordinances require anyone planning some type of remodeling or construction to apply to the building inspection department to determine if a permit is required, Turquette said. In most cases of normal repair and maintenance work, no permit will be required, he added.

 However, if a homeowner is planning a major remodeling job or the addition of a room, a building permit is required. Permits also are required for garage conversions, addition of a tool shed, construction of a driveway or replacement of gas, water or sewer lines.

 Turquette explained that either the homeowner or the general contractor who will be doing the work can apply for the permit. But he warned residents to be leery of any contractor who refuses to seek a permit. The contractor may not be bonded by the city, which is required of anyone engaging in general contracting work, Turquette said.
 "Anybody retaining a tradesman to do anything in the construction business should get his name and address and check to see if he's bonded," the building official stressed.

Turquette also advised property owners to ask to see the contractor's building permit for doing the construction work. When the work has been completed, the owner also should check the inspection cards to be sure all the construction has been okayed, he said.
 One of the chief reasons many property owners don't seek building permits is because they fear major renovations will raise their taxes, Turquette noted.
 "Of course it's going to (raise taxes)," he said. "But every four years, they will be reassessed anyhow."
 "You may save a few hundred dollars on your taxes over the three years, but what if the contractor gets to you with several thousand dollars in faulty construction? Which is cheaper?" Turquette asked.

proposed, the code would require each contractor to execute a new bond form within one calendar year from the time the code is adopted.
 Contractors also would be required to renew their bonds annually and to supply a certificate of general liability insurance when filing for a new bond.
 Also of interest are some new provisions governing the use of smoke detectors. In all new construction, smoke detectors would be required to receive their primary power from an electric supply without a disconnecting switch.
 Smoke detectors also would be required on an existing home when a bedroom is added or when remodeling work exceeds $1,000 in value. The code calls for the entire residence to be equipped with electric or battery powered smoke detectors.
 Another provision of the code would enable a building official to order the termination of utilities to occupied buildings found not to be in compliance with code requirements. The builder and occupant of the structure must be given 10

Officer Learning 'Bluesuiting' Life

Ronald Keene sticks out like a sore thumb at Reese Air Force Base. The Navy lieutenant commander is the only khaki-clad figure in a field of 2,776 bluesuiters.
 Somewhere in the Navy, his Air Force counterpart is just as obvious among a host of sailors.
 It's all a part of a military exchange program to promote better awareness among branches of the service.
 "The Navy thinks all the Air Force does is fly planes and the Air Force thinks all the Navy does is drive ships," Keene, who has been at Reese a month, said.

Already, the former Seabee has discovered very little difference in Navy and Air Force civil engineering branches. A matter of terminology adjustment was about all necessary in duties to construct and maintain real property at military bases.
 He did discover a difference in assignment policy.
 Keene came to Reese to become chief of operations for the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, but soon afterward found himself the acting commander after the squadron head, Lt. Col. Roger G. Holcomb, moved up to acting commander for the 64th Air Base Group.
 That couldn't happen in the Navy, Keene said, since assignments stay in the career field.
 Keene's entire 14-year career has been construction oriented, where Holsummer, a study committee has been reviewing a proposed new code, which will be presented to the city council during its regular meeting today.

 The code used in Lubbock is put together and published by the International Conference of Building Officials, Turquette explained. Members of the local committee go over every provision of this nationally used building code, amending it to comply with state laws. The committee also adds provisions not dealt with in the national code, Turquette said.
 One of the major changes in the proposed new building code concerns the bond forms for general contractors. As

Reader's Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Wish we could have used all the Banana Split Cake recipes that were received! But thanks everybody, including Carol Peden, Annette McArthur, Mickey Jent, Theola Peterson, Joni Rose and Linda Ellis, all of Lubbock; Dorothy Luttrall of Idalou; Mrs. Joe Pryer of Hobbs, N.M.; Cynthia Popejoy of Sundown; Mrs. Irene Ruark's recipe courtesy of Billie Walton, Billie Meeks, both of Slaton; Mrs. Charley Brown of Littlefield; Mrs. Robert Morton of Midland and Mrs. Deryl C. Evans of Floydada.

Mickey Jent likes to purchase large sizes of things like pickles, green olives and pimento. But how to prevent scum from forming on the tops?

Dorothy Luttrall sometimes will have leftover potato and other chips. Have any casserole recipes, so she can use them up?

Mrs. W.A. Shelton, Slaton, requests a recipe for "Trail Mix." She believes some of the ingredients might include raisins, peanuts, sunflower seeds and granola.

Mrs. Ronny Bolding of Plainview enclosed the best tea cake recipe. But, unfortunately, the amount of flour was left out (please write).

Peggy Bryant, Lubbock, requested a recipe for Teriyaki Chicken. She wrote, "We love it but haven't come up with a good recipe."

Mrs. John Jackson of Lubbock wrote, "I am looking for three recipes — Syrup Pie, Caramel Pie and Truffles. The first two are '40's' recipes. The Caramel Pie is like a cream pie. Truffles are a confection using almond paste."

Geraldine Butler of Post wrote, "Here is a recipe for Black Forest Cherry Cake. Although I haven't tried the recipe, it sounds good."

BLACK FOREST CHERRY CAKE

To simplify this recipe, use a chocolate cake mix to make three round 8-in. layers. For the filling and topping you will need:

- 1/4 cup Kirsch liqueur
- 3 cups chilled whipping cream
- 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 cup chopped red maraschino cherries
- 6-12 red maraschino cherries with stems, well drained
- 4-6 oz. semi-sweet baking chocolate at room temperature

For the syrup you will need 1/4 cup sugar, 1 cup cold water and 1 1/2 cups Kirsch liqueur.

Make the chocolate layers and set them on racks to cool. To make the syrup combine sugar and cold water in a saucepan and bring to a boil over moderate heat. Stir until sugar dissolves. Boil briskly for five minutes. Remove from heat and let stand until lukewarm. Stir in Kirsch. Transfer cake layers to waxed paper and poke with a fork several times. Drizzle syrup over layers and let stand for five minutes.

Beat whipping cream until it thickens slightly. Sift 1/2 cup of confectioners' sugar over cream and continue beating until cream makes stiff peaks. Pour in Kirsch and beat until liqueur is absorbed. Place one chocolate layer in the middle of your cake plate. Spread top with 1/2 in. layer of whipped cream. Sprinkle 1/2 cup chopped cherries over it.

Add second layer and repeat process. After adding top layer, coat top and sides of cake with remaining whipped cream. Make chocolate curls with carrot peeler and put them on the cake. Add stemmed maraschino cherries to top. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serves 8-10.

SPAGHETTI SKILLET MEAL

sent by Mrs. T.W. Thaxton, Lubbock. Melt 2 tbsps shortening. Brown 1 lb ground meat and 1 medium onion (chopped). Add 1 tsp salt and 1 1/2-oz. can spaghetti in tomato sauce. Sprinkle over top. 1/2 cup grated cheese. Cover and heat over low simmer flame for 15 minutes or until cheese is melted.

TEA CAKES

sent by Mrs. John Jackson, Lubbock. 1/2 cup sifted cake flour, 1/2 tsp baking powder, 1/4 tsp salt, 1/3 cup shortening.

- 1 cup sugar
 - 2 eggs, well beaten
 - 2/3 cup milk
 - 1 tsp vanilla
- Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening with sugar until fluffy. Add eggs. Add flour alternately with milk in small amounts. Add flavoring. Fill greased cupcake pans 2/3 full. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) 15 to 18 minutes. Makes two dozen.

Ruby Farris of Slaton wrote, "I found this recipe for Boiled Coffee, in my mother-in-law's collection. This was taken from 'GentleWoman' (May, 1916 issue). Although I have several others, I thought this would be interesting, especially to our younger generation. Or will it?"

BOILED COFFEE

- 1 cup full freshly ground coffee
 - Shells from 2 eggs
 - 1 cup full cold water
 - 6 cup fulls freshly boiling water
- Mix the coffee and eggshells with half the cold water and pour this in the coffee pot. Stop the spout with soft paper so the aroma will not escape. Pour freshly boiling water on the grounds, and mix well and boil for four minutes.

Remove the paper from the spout and pour out a little coffee to clear the spout. Add the balance of the cold water, which clears the coffee (cold water is heavier than boiling water and sinks to the bottom of the coffee pot, carrying the grounds with it).

When carrying the pot to the table, be very careful not to shake it, or the coffee will not be clear. Serve with undiluted evaporated milk.

Lucy McDaniel, Amherst, wrote, "I have a couple of my favorite recipes that I haven't seen in your column. Both are easy-to-prepare and are good to take to reunions. We'll use just one for now."

DUMP CAKE

- 1 No. 2 can of cherry pie filling
 - 1 No. 2 can of crushed pineapple
 - 1 white or yellow cake mix
 - 1 cup of finely-flaked coconut
 - 1 cup chopped pecans
 - 1 cup of melted oleomargarine
- Grease pan (13 x 9-in.). Spread cherry pie filling and crushed pineapple evenly over bottom. Sprinkle white or yellow cake mix dry over above mixture; then sprinkle coconut and pecans over mixture. Pour melted oleo over top. Bake one hour in slow oven (325 degrees).

Karen Lively of Amherst sent two wonderful recipes. We'll use just one this time. She wrote, "I got this recipe from my sister-in-law, and it has been in her family for generations."

OLD FASHIONED TEA CAKES

- 2 cups sugar
 - 1 cup buttermilk
 - 1 1/2 cups shortening
 - 4 eggs
 - 1 1/2 tps baking powder
 - 1 tsp soda
 - 1 tsp vanilla
- Mix and add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Blend well. Roll out very thin. Cut out with cookie cutters, place on a cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees until done.
- Filling:
2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
1 tbspc cocoa
1 tbspc white corn syrup
1/2 stick butter
1 cup marshmallows
- Cook until mixture reaches softball stage. Let cool completely. Spread on tea cakes as icing or spread between two cookies as a cookie sandwich.

Mrs. S.B. Schramper of Lubbock sent the hot dip recipe for Grace Davis.

HOT DIP

- 1 lb sausage

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

You know the latest fashion in skirts is slits — either one on each side seam or one in the front, sometimes one in front and in back too.

Well this presents a problem. Slits that are slit in the proper places are extremely expensive and besides they always seem to show.

So I've come up with the perfect slip for skirts that are slit in front, or in front and back. Pajamas! Practically everyone has nylon tricot pajamas. Use the bottoms as a slip.

If you need a short slip, cut the pajama legs off to the proper length. Otherwise just leave them in their natural state — long!

I haven't figured out how to use them for side-slit skirts yet! But I'm working on it. — Carla G.

DEAR HELOISE:

I've read tips in your column about various ways of turning flat sheets into fitted ones.

Want to know the easiest way? Tie a knot in the two bottom corners of a flat sheet and fit it over the foot of the mattress.

See how easy? — Jean Boughton

DEAR HELOISE:

The reader who said she uses oleo or butter wrappers to grease bread brought to mind my uses for them.

I use a microwave oven to bake potatoes. They aren't greased but bake dry. When I take them out of the oven I roll them in oleo wrappers which leaves them with nice soft crust, just like the ones baked in a regular oven.

I used to think saving these papers was silly but I've changed my mind. — Mary Miller

DEAR HELOISE:

Save the corrugated paper that light bulbs are wrapped in. It is ideal to put around small, delicate objects when mailing them.

Then, after putting these objects in a strong box, stuff in tissue paper so they won't rattle around, wrap and tie thoroughly. — Evelyn H.

DEAR HELOISE:

When putting sheer curtains on rods, place a plastic sandwich bag over the end of the rod. The curtains will go on over it without tearing or snagging.

For long rods that come apart in the center, place the bag over the end of the largest part of the rod, then slide the curtain on. — S.R.

DEAR HELOISE:

Some of the more painful kitchen accidents are caused by jabbing fingers on knives and forks that are in the sink when you're washing dishes.

I put a tall plastic glass on its side in the sink and place these pesky pointy utensils in it (sharp edges toward the bottom). Not only do I know where they are but I never get stabbed.

As for larger knives and forks, they all go on one side of the sink pointing away from me. — Mrs. Jerry Wright

Speaker Addresses Meeting

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

People hunger for the message that they are acceptable and that someone cares for them. Dr. Ross Whetstone of Nashville told the annual meeting of CONTACT-Lubbock, Inc. Friday.

The whole question of identity, the speaker said, is a very pressing concern to those around us. "It matters to the world...to your family and friends...and to yourself," he told the workers and community supporters of the 24-hour crisis intervention telephone ministry.

Saying, "All of life has an accent," Whetstone said that people communicate to each other in much more than actual words. In fact, he told the gathering at First Christian Church, actual words form a very small percentage of what is communicated among persons. He said that intonation, expression, body language and general appearance all contribute to the total message that is communicated. A unity of all these elements is important and the incongruity of these elements will result in a "mixed message," he said. This kind of contradiction in fact that he is a very minuscule speck. As a result, many have come to think that family communications can lead to disturbed children, he said.

Easy Dessert Adds Flair To Holiday

NEW YORK (Special) — Have a heart — make Cherry Cheese Pie for someone you love!

Anyone can turn out this sweet-and-lovely dessert with ease, for it begins with that miracle-working product, sweetened condensed milk. Not a minute's cooking or baking is required, because this pre-blended, creamy dessert base thickens instantly with the addition of lemon juice. Cream cheese contributed additional lusciousness and body, resulting in a filling that's light and delicate, but just firm enough to support the heart-shaped decoration — easy and fun to make with cherry pie filling.

It's a delicious way to say "I love you" on Valentine's Day!

CHERRY CHEESE PIE

- 1 9-inch graham cracker crust
 - 1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
 - 1 14-oz. can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
 - 1/3 cup reconstituted lemon juice
 - 1 tsp. vanilla extract
 - Canned cherry pie filling, chilled
- In medium bowl, beat cheese until light and fluffy. Add sweetened condensed milk; blend thoroughly. Stir in lemon juice and vanilla. Pour into crust. Chill 3 hours. Top with desired amount of pie filling before serving. Refrigerate leftovers.

Tip: To make heart design, outline a heart shape on surface of chilled pie with a toothpick; arrange pie filling within lines of heart. Chill.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My sister, age 37, was diagnosed recently as having cystic fibrosis. I am very worried. I have read in my encyclopedia that they treat this with antibiotics and with enzymes. Can you write on this subject? She is very depressed. — Mrs. B.

It is important to be very positive about the treatment of this illness to avoid the depression you speak of.

Your sister must have a very mild form of cystic fibrosis for it to be diagnosed at her age. It is most often discovered in infancy or early childhood.

There is an abnormally thick mucus produced in the lungs and in the pancreas, leading to blockage and malfunction there. As I mentioned, mild forms may appear in adults. If there is a family history of cystic fibrosis, heredity is blamed.

Involvement of the pancreas is somewhat easy to establish with laboratory tests. There is also an abnormally high level of chloride in the sweat, and certain changes can be found in the glands of the gastrointestinal tract (by biopsy).

There are several therapies available to help patients with cystic fibrosis. Use of expectorants, postural drainage to help clear the lungs and pancreatic enzymes (to replace those not being produced in the pancreas) are but a few. You live near a large city where there may be a local unit of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Your sister can obtain much useful information there and perhaps meet other persons with her illness to compare notes. Parents should suspect cystic fibrosis if a child has repeated lung infection and is failing to grow normally.

Quinine does have an effect on muscles. It decreases their excitability and therefore tendency to cramp. There is a preparation that contains quinine in combination with another medicine, aminophylline. It is given to help people with muscle cramps, especially those that occur during the night. It is not always helpful. Often cramps can be due to an underlying circulation problem, and that has to be treated. I suspect this is what I was telling F.B.S. with regard to her specific problem.

Congratulations on your own success. Other readers with the leg cramp problem might want to read further in the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pain," which they can order by mailing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: The agony suffered by the compulsive gambler, his wife, family and friends is so great I would appreciate very much your thoughts about it and where help can be obtained. — Mrs. A.D.

Compulsive gambling is certainly recognized as a psychiatric problem. The best advice I can offer is for you to locate a local branch of gambler's anonymous, a national organization which uses group therapy techniques to help men and women overcome or control this compulsion.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 17 and have a problem. I am beginning to feel it is a serious one — bed-wetting. I have heard that children of four or six years or even 12 years old have this. What about me? What should I do? — U.D.

Enuresis, or bed-wetting, can be found in as many as 10 to 15 percent of normal children at five years. It may even be found in 1 percent of children at 15 years.

Medical causes are few. They include chronic urinary tract infections, diabetes and some nervous system illnesses. You should have an examination to make sure one of these illnesses is not causing your loss of bladder control at night.

Otherwise, a few simple steps may help. Don't drink fluids after dinner, urinate before going to bed. Have your parents waken you when they retire so you may urinate again then. This problem often ends with time.

FOR READERS: Please! Do not mail originals of any material you may want to keep. If you do have material you care to enclose with your letter, it's safer to make a copy and keep your original. When dealing with many thousands of letters a month there is a chance (a good chance) it might get lost. Thanks.

Bed-wetting can be a frustrating problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Bed-Wetting: Ways To Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail

DEADLINES

Any information for a daily edition must be in our office two days in advance of publication.

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You wrote about leg cramps recently in answer to F.B.S. I used to have them and finally went to a doctor. He gave me quinine pills to take at night. It helped within two weeks. He was an older doctor. He told me it was not known why they worked, but I kept them on hand just in case. I haven't needed them for two years. I am 74 now. How does this help? — A.S.

Novel Boxes Wrap Valentine Candy

CHICAGO (AP) — For a new twist on an old favorite this Valentine's Day, say "I love you" with a customized candy box that will be cherished long after the goodies inside have been eaten, suggests the National Confectioners Association.

A novel, handmade gift box that reflects the recipient's personality and special interests is a token of affection that shows extra thought and effort went into its creation, the NCA points out.

Start with any size or shape container — department store gift box, shoe box or coffee can — and add some imaginative covering materials; then fill with appropriate confections.

Some sweet ideas for making one-of-a-kind candy boxes that speak volumes of love are offered by the NCA:

—For the business executive, a box covered in pinstripe fabric, complete with a paper necktie designed with cut-out hearts, and inside, foil-wrapped chocolate "dollars."

—For the art deco fanatic, a box covered with silver foil papers and diagonal stripes of gold paper layered in narrowing widths, to hold flavored hard candies (since chocolate was hard to come by during the art deco-war years).

—For the Americana collector, a keepsake box covered with remnants of calico and a tack cotton lace border, containing old-fashioned pastilles, cinnamon sticks and other country-store treats.

—For the music lover, a box covered in sheet music — perhaps your loved one's favorite tune — and within, the musical notes of black licorice sticks and white and dark chocolate drops.

—For the sports fan, a box covered with the sports pages of a local newspaper or sports magazine, opening to caramel popcorn, chocolate-covered peanuts and raisins, and peanut nugget bars.

—For the disco freak, a box wrapped in gold or silver foil, with hearts made of glue and glitter, revealing red-hot cinnamon candies, foil-wrapped chocolate "kisses," and "records" to keep the beat — chocolate-covered coconut and peppermint patties.

—For the teen in your life, a coffee can covered in blue denim, complete with pocket for your card, containing an assortment of miniatures of today's most popular candy and chocolate bars.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: This is your Problem Girl, phoning in today's column from the doghouse.

After that meat-loaf fiasco, I swore off recipes. But hope springs eternal. What's more, that lemon meringue pie recipe not only sounded fail-safe, but I had it tested in my own kitchen.

Well — Mrs. James Seyferth of Fremont, Mich., phoned Chicago to say, "Thirteen cups of lemon juice seems like an awful lot for a pie..." That, my friends, is the way it appeared in the Muskogon Chronicle. Soo-oooo, a bouquet of skunk cabbage to the typesetters up there. And if anyone missed the recipe and wants it, DON'T write to me. Call your local paper. I've had it.

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you told an eight-year-old that he shouldn't keep his collection of more than 1,000 pennies in a jar. "Take them to the bank where they will collect interest," you said.

Enclosed is a clipping from the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. It tells about an 11-year-old girl who saved her $2-a-week allowance and went to the bank last June to open a savings account. She had $20. Months later, when the girl returned, she had $19.69.

It seems many banks impose a service charge on savings accounts with balances under $50 or $100. Other banks simply skip the charges but pay no interest on small accounts. The 11-year-old girl whose account shrank was charged 50 cents a month because her account was under $50. Her passbook showed 50 cents deducted in October (when the fee policy started); ditto for November, and 69 cents interest. Thus her $20 deposit went down to $19.69.

Her mother said, "This makes me angry. We were trying to teach the child to save. If a kid puts $10 in the bank, she'll be down to $4 in a year because of the 50-cent monthly service charge."

What do you say NOW, Ann Landers? — No Squirrel Myself

Dear Squirrelly: Banks, like other businesses, are suffering from inflation. It costs money to maintain records, and they have to make it up somehow.

But there are many banks that invite small accounts, pay interest and charge no fees. So check out the bank's policy before you put your money in, folks.

Dear Ann Landers: This is my second letter, and I am desperate. My husband and I are swingers. (We meet new couples to have sex with them.) My husband kept after me for months until I agreed to go along with it. We've tried it a few times, and I don't like it. I just don't care about having sex with other men. I love my husband very much, and I guess I am afraid I'll lose him if I don't go along with it.

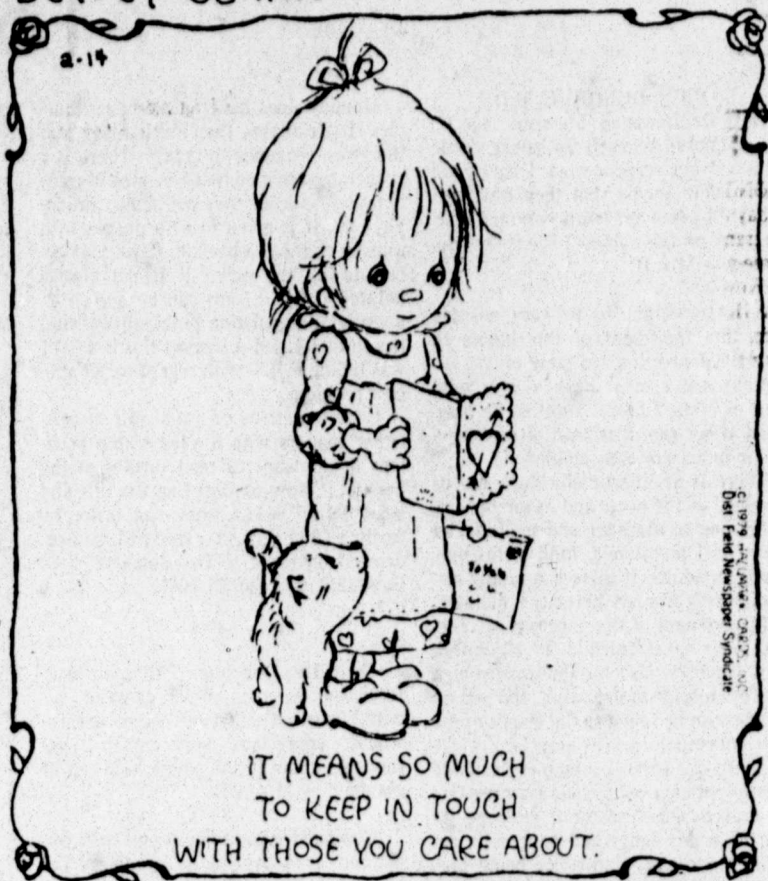

We've always been able to communicate, and I've talked to him till I am blue in the face about how I feel — but I keep getting myself in deeper and deeper. What do the authorities on this subject think about it? I'd also like to hear from your other readers who are into this lifestyle. — Desperate In Williamsport

Dear Desperate: Every "swinging" couple I've heard from (and over the years I've heard from hundreds) has told me it's a real bummer. They are the best "authorities" I know.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Traditional Cards Losing Ground

NEW YORK (Special) — There will still be plenty of traditional crimson hearts and cuddly Cupids around today. But there are unmistakable signs that valentines may be in the midst of a quiet evolution as we enter the 1980s.

"The century-old rule that a valentine is not a valentine unless it contains hearts and flowers, a deep red background and a rhymed message of love and affection seems to be breaking down a bit," explained Alan Doan, editorial manager for Hallmark Cards, the nation's largest publisher of valentines.

"In recent years there has been a growing interest in nontraditional cards," he said, and added, "Designs that incorporate romantic mood photography, shiny black background and bold modern graphics are becoming increasingly popular."

"But the most dramatic changes are occurring in valentine sentiments. A number of valentines this year are written in a conversational prose style that expresses the inner feelings of the sender as well as the endearing qualities of the recipient in a very straight-forward fashion."

Doan said the new valentine sentiments also tackle the issues that touch the lives of modern-day couples such as the problems faced by a wife working outside the home. One valentine this year, captioned "For My Husband," reads: "We don't always have as much time together as we'd like, but there are many times every day when my thoughts turn to you. I don't always take the time to tell you how much I love you, but I hope you know how very much I do."

No longer sent only to lovers, the valentine has evolved into a greeting exchanged by one of the broadest spectrums of people for any card-sending occasion. The following sentiment, captioned "For My Dad," demonstrates an unusually open approach toward parent-offspring communication on a valentine. "Even though we may not always think the same way, live the same way or have all the same interests... you are someone I respect, someone I care about, someone I really believe in."

Even the "sweetheart" caption has been touched by a down-to-earth style this new Hallmark sentiment demonstrates.

"I love to be the one you think of the one it helps to talk to, the one you want to share with — I'll always love to be the one you love."

"Most people still prefer their valentines to be as sweet as sugar," says Doan. "But the number of people demanding sugar-free sentiment is growing."

Miscellany

The Rotary Club of Lubbock will hold its Valentine Day dinner at the Lubbock Country Club at 7 p.m. Thursday. This event traditionally is held to honor "Rotaryans," the wives of members of the Rotary Club. Dates and friends of members are also invited.

Dr. Jeffrey Elias, associate professor of psychology at Texas Tech University, was recently elected a fellow in the Gerontological Society. The Gerontological Society is composed of scientists and other professionals interested in the problems of aging. Fellowship is granted to those members whose work has achieved prominence in the field of aging research. In addition to authoring numerous scientific articles, Elias is co-author of a recent textbook on aging, and is a consulting editor to the journal "Aging Research."

The City of Lubbock and the Municipal Garden and Arts Center will be represented by Georgia Booker at a mid-winter executive board meeting of National Civic Garden Centers, Inc. in Tulsa, Okla. Officers at this meeting will be from nine different civic garden centers over the United States. Mrs. Booker, vice president of the organization, will help direct the program planning for the 1980 Symposium. This annual activity will be at the Amarillo Garden Center in August.

Caprock Council will sponsor a workshop for Cadette Girl Scouts focusing on international lifestyles, 9 a.m. — noon

Saturday in the Municipal Garden and Arts Center, 4215 University Ave. Speakers will include Mrs. Becky Talley, a U.S. citizen from Thailand; Barjaporn Cox, a native of Thailand; and Mrs. Maya Rambram, a native of South Africa.

Topics for discussion will include cuisine, family and household organization, dating customs and geographical background. Cost of the workshop is 50 cents per person and registration deadline is today.

The South Plains Muscular Dystrophy Association announces its annual Youth Conference which will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. — 5 p.m. at the Christian Renewal Center, 303 Toledo Ave. Guests will include Sharon Hibner of KLBK, representatives of local and national MDA sponsors, Texas Tech's Raider Red, and special guest, Rocky Arizzi, national poster child for MDA.

The Lubbock League of Women Voters will hold unit meetings on Title IX and secondary schools today. Discussions will be held at 9:30 a.m. at 6613 Norfolk Ave. and at 7:30 p.m. at 7710 Louisville Dr. The public is invited and reservations are not necessary.

Transit System Opened

HONG KONG (AP) — Britain's Princess Alexandra on Tuesday officially opened Hong Kong's multi-million dollar mass transit railway system after taking a three-minute ride across the harbor from Kowloon to Hong Kong Island.

In Hong Kong's busy commercial center, the princess unveiled a plaque marking completion of the $1.8 billion transit system.

The system has been carrying more than 500,000 passengers daily and with the link to Hong Kong Island completed, the number is expected to increase to 750,000.

Princess Alexandra arrived from London on Feb. 5 for a nine-day visit.

Say It With Gorillas

SCOTCH PLAINS, N.J. (AP) — Is there someone you're ape over? Someone you've gone bananas about? You could have said it with a gorilla for Valentine's Day.

For $25, Vicki Christensen dresses up in a gorilla suit and delivers candy, flowers or a personalized song or poem to your love on Valentine's Day — or any other day, for that matter.

The 41-year-old former research chemist, professional cook and mother of two girls calls what she does Monkey Business.

She borrowed the concept from a Colorado business that delivers "gorillagrams" — everything from flowers to divorce papers.

Christensen specializes in personalized lyrics sung to popular tunes in a growling falsetto. She will sing or deliver a greeting for most any occasion.

However, she refuses to do anything insulting or "off-color." She will take a job involving very young children, lest she frighten them.

After discovering that buying a gorilla suit can cost up to $900, she sewed the torso of the fur costume and bought only the mask, hands and feet.

"When I took my gorilla feet to a shoemaker to have soles put on, I naturally asked for a ticket. He just stared at me and said, 'Don't worry, lady, I'll remember you.'"

Nephew Won't Return

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Carter's nephew, William Carter Spann, says he won't return to his wife even though their domestic strife has put him back behind bars.

Spann, 33, was arrested Monday following a weekend fight with his wife, Jane Frey, a 41-year-old insurance broker. They've been married 10 months.

Authorities said the discord may have violated the terms of Spann's parole, and officials must decide whether he should be returned to prison. He's in custody in the San Francisco jail.

His arrest came less than three months after his parole from state prison, where he served almost four years on a robbery conviction.

"I love my family, but we're in unique positions. (The president's) in the White House, and I'm in the big house," Spann told reporters in a jail interview.

In January, Spann said, the president told him he "was still a member of the family in good standing. He said the media thing I was doing, all the appearances, would wear out, and when it did, he told me to land on my feet as he knew I could."

Vegetable Recommended

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee House Agriculture Committee has recommended a state vegetable to take its place beside the state rock, state insect, state bird, state flower, state tree and state wild animal.

Without debate, the committee Tuesday approved legislation by Republican Rep. Dale Kelley to designate corn, even though corn is not a garden-variety vegetable. It's more widely considered a farm grain.

The lawmakers apparently decided that if you're playing animal, mineral and vegetable, corn is a vegetable.

Film Of Sextuplets' Births To Be Shown

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Two private Italian networks said Wednesday they will show a film later this week of the births of the Florence sextuplets.

The film showing the delivery sequence and interviews with the parents will be broadcast Friday by the Milan and Rome-based networks. The film, titled "A Six-Seat Cradle," also reportedly has been purchased by a number of foreign outlets, including some in the United States.

The birth of the sextuplets at Florence's Careggi Hospital last month was surrounded by secrecy because the parents had sold exclusive information rights to a magazine and a film company, saying they needed the money.

Will Accept Gold Medal

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Canada's ambassador to Iran, Ken Taylor, says he will gratefully accept a U.S. congressional gold medal on behalf of his country. It was Taylor who masterminded the escape of six American diplomats from Tehran last month.

"I'm very, very honored, and I am particularly glad it's directed toward Canada," he said Tuesday in Calgary, where he was visiting his parents.

The U.S. House voted earlier Tuesday to award the medal. The Senate has yet to act, but no opposition is expected.

Elephant Roller Skates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — She hasn't learned to disco yet, but Baby Tarra is doing just fine on her 35-pound roller skates.

Baby Tarra is a six-year-old Indian elephant trained by 25-year-old Carol Buckley of Ojai, Calif.

Designing the skates presented problems, particularly when she told a welder what her strange-looking plans were for. But once convinced of her seriousness, the welder custom-made four steel frames mounted on rubber-coated wheels of the type found on a piano dolly.

Then a shoemaker fashioned four huge boots out of two cowhides. After a couple of false starts with laces, Miss Buckley found that automobile safety belts worked just fine.

Three months ago, Baby Tarra had her first adventure on wheels — with her front feet only. In a few days, though, the back two skates were added and the 3,000-pound elephant began gliding with the greatest of ease.

"Basically, she rolls on the front ones and kind of drags the back ones," Miss Buckley said. "But she's improving every day. We generally practice twice a week, and she can even go in reverse now."

Football Coach Protected

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The home of Florida A & M football coach Rudy Hubbard is getting extra police protection after a cross was burned on his front lawn.

Hubbard, who is black, found the cross 10 feet from his front door Sunday morning in the racially mixed neighborhood. Cross burnings are usually associated with the Ku Klux Klan, but police said they did not know who placed the cross on Hubbard's lawn.

"It's a shame to have this kind of thing going on. I have to look at my neighbors and wonder if they did it," said Hubbard, who moved to the neighborhood less than three months ago. He said he hasn't had any problems with his neighbors.

A Secret Admirer

TORONTO (AP) — Meryl Dunsmore's secret admirer has sent her a valentine — for the 53rd year in a row.

This year's card, decorated with a red heart of flowers, arrived with a Honolulu postmark. "It's amazing," said Mrs. Dunsmore, 68.

She and her husband moved last fall, so she didn't expect the valentine this year. "But it got here all right, with the correct address," she said.

Each year since 1928, Mrs. Dunsmore has received a valentine, always signed "Your secret admirer."

Governor Surprised

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Dick Thornburgh got a surprise Wednesday when he cut into a cake marking the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters.

Linda Bennett, president of the Butler Area League, popped from the cake and gave Thornburgh a single yellow rose, the symbol of the women's suffrage movement.

The governor said later, "I think it's singularly appropriate that we have a birthday cake instead of cheesecake — if you'll pardon a dreadful pun."

Director Reports Crime Cuts By Program

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Crime in Lubbock's housing authority projects has been cut "to almost zero" by a federally funded security project, Security Director Fulton Berry told the Housing Authority Board Wednesday.

Some 241 incidents of burglaries, assaults and vandalism have been reported to police since the program's inception 18 months ago, said Berry. Prior to August 1978, 40 to 50 incidents were reported every week, he said.

Berry, a former Lubbock police officer, said Greenfair Manor and Hub Homes before the security program was instituted were both "battlegrounds." He credited the federally funded program with "cooling off crime ridden areas."

With $46,000 in Community Development money and a staff of 16 part-time officers, "We were able to get to the root of the problem" by evicting some residents for committing illegal acts, Berry said.

In some cases the guards would "stake out" a residence where bootlegging or narcotics trafficking was suspected, he said.

"The main problem now is vandalism," he continued, predicting that it, too, would diminish as occupancy rates rise in the two housing developments.

Berry also said residents' confidence in Lubbock's police force has been increased as a result of the security program. "We've made leaps and bounds as far as public awareness goes. Even the police feel safer going into the (housing projects)."

Cherry Point, a third housing authority development, consists of single-family homes and relies on the police department for its security, said Berry.

Greta Wood, the housing authority's social services program director, told the board she had "scratched the surface" of meeting residents' needs during her first year on the job, but forsee "five years of work before we see any real fruition."

Mrs. Woods said she primarily serves as a "coordinator for all kinds of non-shelter problems," referring sick, unemployed, handicapped and elderly residents to agencies to help solve their problems.

In other business, the board approved a request by Mike Brown of Lubbock's Legal Aid Society for space to provide weekly after-hours outreach clinics in Lubbock Housing Authority community centers.

Member Dr. Charles Henry endorsed the idea, calling housing authority residents' need for legal services "excessive."

Anything we can do to provide some kind of assistance would be a positive step," he said.

The Legal Aid Society is a United Way agency located in Lubbock County Courthouse. It deals mainly with family law problems, Brown said.

Board members also voted to relinquish all housing authority rights of ownership to a 40-unit housing project to be built at 38th Street and Brownfield Highway, acknowledging that building costs have risen beyond the amount of their U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development grant to construct the project.

The housing authority still may manage or administer the project, said Director D.C. Fair.

Estimated Tax Payments Explained

By RAY DeCRANE
Every year thousands of taxpayers express surprise when, after filing their returns and paying taxes in full, they receive a penalty notice from Internal Revenue.

When they demand an explanation, they are told the penalty resulted from their failure to file an estimated tax return and to make quarterly estimated tax payments.

This is a reminder, then, that not everyone is through with his tax chores for the year with the filing of his Form 1040. Many still have the obligation to file an estimated tax return for 1980 and to make at least a quarterly payment on it by April 15. The remaining payments are due on June 15, Sept. 14 and Jan. 15 of the following year.

This excess tax generally results from

Japanese Agency Sends Jets After Soviet Plane

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese Defense Agency sent two U.S.-built F-4 Phantom jet fighters aloft Wednesday morning when a Soviet reconnaissance plane appeared over the Pacific Ocean about 120 miles southeast of here, the agency said.

The Soviet plane appeared off Japan's northernmost main island of Hokkaido and flew south at an altitude of about 5,000 feet until the Phantom's were sent up, then headed back toward its base at Vladivostok.

self-employment income, where there is no tax withholding; from high-salaried income where the withholding tax tables are not geared to taking enough to cover the tax obligation; and from capital gain, interest and dividend income, where there is no withholding at the source.

For those on a regular withholding basis, there is a way to avoid the filing and the payment of quarterly estimated taxes. Make arrangements with your payroll department to have additional sums taken from your earnings to cover the amount of the additional tax that you expect to owe at the end of the year.

The purpose of estimated taxes is to put all taxpayers on an equal pay-as-you-go basis throughout the year. The filing of estimated returns is not an optional matter.

If you meet the requirements for filing (generally, if you expect to owe at least $100 in tax at the end of the year) you must do so or run the risk of incurring penalties.

Additionally, if you underestimate your tax you could be penalized. The penalty for underpayment doubles to 12 percent from the former 6 percent, on Feb. 1, 1980. It will remain at that high rate through all of 1981.

This is the final chapter in a 14-part series designed to help you in the preparation of your tax return.

Little mention of deductible items has been made in this series, so that other, less generally known topics could be covered.

A complete explanation of all the deductions, plus many filled-in same tax forms and schedules is contained in the book "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save," available through this newspaper.

Maine's Senate To Trim Mobile Barbershop Bill

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Rural lawmaker Ed Dexter wants to get a haircut in his own hometown. All he needs is a law putting barbershops on wheels.

"Look at this hair," Dexter said, pointing to a ducktail sprouting on his neck. "It's way too long. I've got to drive 22 miles to get a haircut and some people in my district have to travel 75 miles."

The Maine Senate has voted, once to cut down a bill submitted by Dexter, a Republican from the northwestern Maine town of Kingfield, to authorize the State Board of Barbers to issue special mobile barbershop licenses.

But a fellow lawmaker will try to save the bill today by an amendment limiting the mobile shop shops to certain rural areas not served by a stationary barbershop.

"I'm an old grandfather growing up in a conservative district. If there were mobile barbershops my hair would be much shorter," he said.

The current short session of the Maine Legislature has been trimmed down to consider only emergency bills that cannot wait until a longer session next year.

"Sure this is an emergency," Dexter said. "But I hope some good will come of it even if it doesn't pass. Maybe some barber would set up shop up there."

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

Are you preparing to organize a coupon club where you and your friends can swap coupons and refund forms?

The first meeting of such a club is always a little frightening for the person in charge. But if you follow this program, your meeting should be successful.

As your guests arrive, write down their names, addresses and phone numbers for future reference. When they find seats, ask them to look through their coupons and refund forms to discard any that have expired.

Try to star your meeting promptly at the appointed time. Begin with a few introductory words. Thank everyone for coming. Explain that your purpose is to help everyone save money at the supermarket through the smart use of coupons and refund offers.

Mention that there will be a couponing and refunding class for beginners and that most of the meeting will be devoted to trading cash-off coupons and refund forms.

It now is time to put some excitement and enthusiasm into the meeting. This is easy to do if you have a few experienced refunders introduce themselves and "Show 'n Tell" about some of their interesting money-saving experiences.

One of the can show a certificate for a free product and explain how it was obtained.

Another can exhibit a refund check and detail the discount the refund represents, the proofs of purchase required to obtain it and whether a refund form was required.

It is also fun to show a gift you received from refunding, such as the Pringle's Sports Bag or the Maxwell House Coupon Keeper Wallet.

Don't forget to describe the double and triple discounts that can be obtained by combining coupon and refund discounts with supermarket specials.

This type of "Show 'n Tell" is a morale booster for everyone.

After all your guests have introduced themselves, it is a good time to present a door prize, such as a few refund forms or a batch of cash-off coupons.

Whatever the prize, it will contribute to the sociable atmosphere of the meeting and make your guests really feel like members of the club.

Once the meeting has warmed up, it is time for announcements and shopping news.

Ask members for news about which stores have refund forms, good specials and unadvertised bargains as well as other information of interest to smart shoppers. This is also a time when a member who has something to sell or give away can tell everyone about it.

Now you should be ready to ask the beginners to move into another area for their class in basic couponing and refunding. As this class begins, the experienced refunders can start their trading session.

There isn't enough space here to detail all the information that should be given to beginners.

Start with cash-off coupons. Show them how coupons can be organized more effectively by separating them into my 12 easy-to-use product groups.

Next tell them about the thousands of refund offers manufacturers make each year.

Show the beginners how a good collection of proofs of purchase is a gold mine of refund opportunities that actually turn trash into cash.

Explain the many ways that experienced refunders obtain refund forms, such as trading them by mail. Show them how to make a request list of needed forms.

After you go through the basics, be sure to take the time to answer questions. If there are any questions that you cannot answer, please feel free to recommend my new book "The Supermarket Shopper's 1980 Guide To Coupons and Refunds."

Junior Picky With Vegetables? Ice Cream Could Be Solution

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ted Hansen has come up with a great way to get kids to eat what's good for them — vegetable ice cream.

After seven years of experimenting, the owner of Polly Ann Ice Cream shop devised the right combination of ingredients to make spinach, beets and zucchini palatable to even the fussiest of young tasters.

Residents Threatening To Burn Military Plane

SAN MATIAS, Bolivia (AP) — Residents of this isolated village on the Brazilian border are threatening to burn a military plane and secede from Bolivia if the government doesn't pay more attention to their needs.

The rebels blocked the village's dirt airstrip last weekend and seized two military transport planes and two small, private planes. About 10 crewmen were unable to leave.

The 4,000 residents of San Matias, about 700 miles east of La Paz, are demanding a highway link with the rest of Bolivia, an all-weather airstrip and a visit by President Lidia Gueiler.

The establishment, opened 14 years ago, features 275 flavors of ice cream, including such children's favorites as tomato, celery, asparagus, parsley, lima bean and carrot.

"You don't have to eat your vegetable at home — you can tell your folks we have vegetable ice cream," reads a sign on the front window.

"The usual response is, 'I like it.' But when I tell them what's in it they say, 'ugh,'" said cashier Dawn Dyer.

Since the shop offers so many unusual flavors, Miss Dyer said she often lets customers taste before they buy.

"Sometimes they get so full that they can't buy anything. But they do come back," she said.

Polly Ann Ice Cream also caters to the older set, with such enticing flavors as pina coloda, creme de menthe, pomegranate, pumpkin and sunflower seed and "American Beauty," made with roses.

Impeachment, inspired by the Watergate hearings, combines peach and mint.

"People enjoy the idea of having something different," said Hansen.

Developmental Meet Set At Tech Feb. 23

The Gesell Institute of Child Development will present for the second year a seminar on developmental placement and testing techniques at Texas Tech Feb. 23.

The day-long seminar is designed for principals, kindergarten and primary teachers, college teachers, school psychologists, in-service training coordinators, preschool directors, reading specialists, early childhood supervisors, special education teachers, curriculum directors, guidance counselors, superintendents and other professional educators.

To be held in the Senate Room of the University Center, it is sponsored by the College of Education and the Division of Continuing Education at Texas Tech. Teachers and educational leaders from a wide area of West Texas are invited to attend.

The morning program will feature a discussion of most commonly used reading readiness tests, showing how they compare in measuring critical factors with the Gesell method of developmental placement, based on scientific aspects of human growth and development.

Seminar speaker will be Harold J. Price, principal of Antioch Elementary School, Dalton, Ga. Price formerly was chief counseling guidance consultant for the Georgia State Department of Education. He is a certified institute lecturer.

The morning presentation also will feature films demonstrating the institute's testing procedure.

The afternoon session will be devoted to administering tests to children between the ages of 4 years 9 months and 5 years 5 months and a question and answer period with discussion and comment from participants.

Persons can register for the seminar by either calling Programs for Education Inc. in New York at (212) 689-3911 or by contacting Dr. Michael Mezack, Division of Continuing Education, Texas Tech, Room 104, Administration Building, for brochures and registration forms.

The $75 registration cost includes a portfolio with a seminar manual, an illustrated guide explaining developmental placement and offering practical advice on aspects of implementing a school readiness program and a cassette of the lecture portion of the seminar.

REJECTS APPEAL

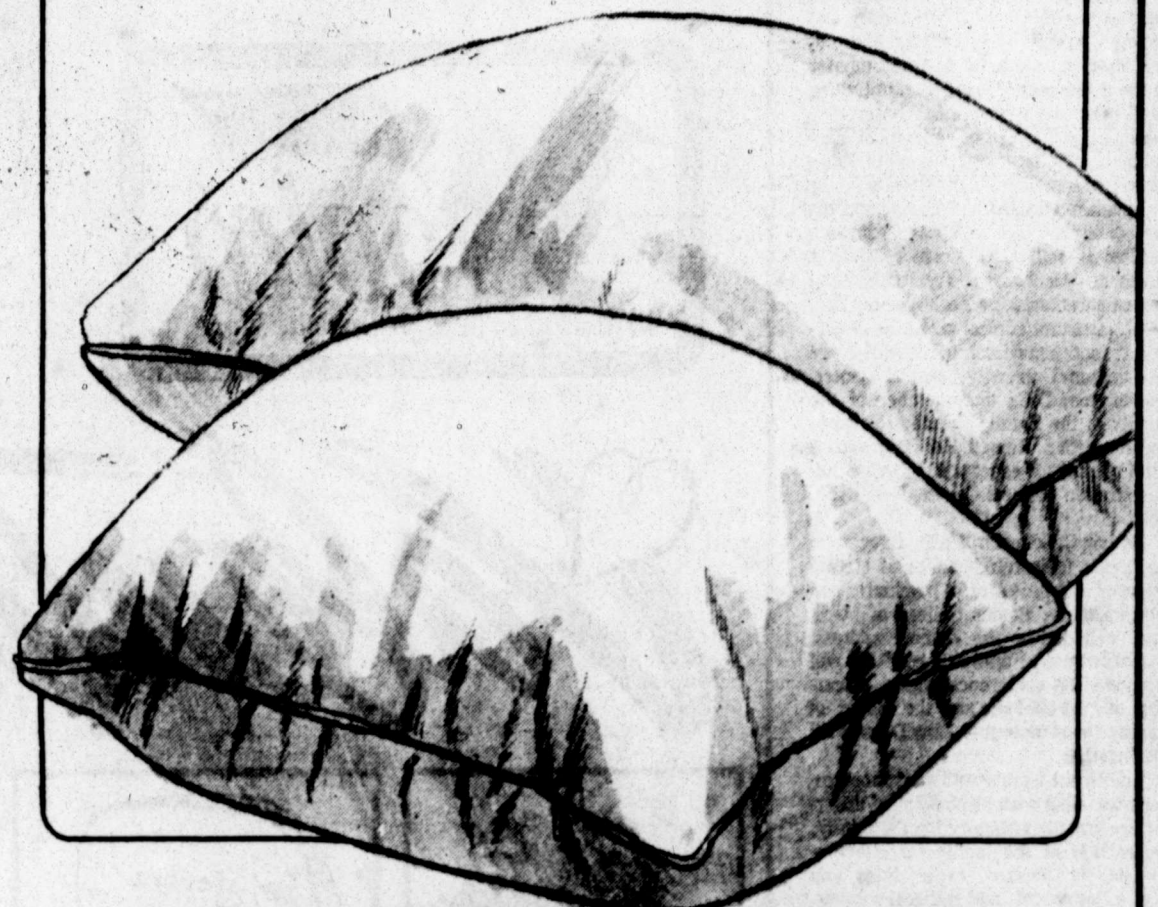

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — The School Board has decided not to appeal a court ruling that voided North Dakota's law on the Ten Commandments. A federal judge in Fargo said last month that the 1927 law, requiring that the commandments be posted in public school classrooms, violated the constitutional separation of church and state.

Alcoholism Conference Scheduled

Physicians, nurses, psychologists, social workers, counselors and members of the clergy will meet Feb. 21-23, in El Paso to discuss alcoholism as a family illness.

The meeting is sponsored by the Texas University Health Sciences Center departments of psychiatry and continuing education in cooperation with the Texas Research Institute of Mental Sciences, Baylor College of Medicine, the Texas Medical Association and the Texas Commission on Alcoholism.

The meeting, the fourth annual conference on alcoholism, will feature lecture and workshop sessions.

"Alcoholism is a problem of increasing magnitude affecting the family and society," said Rudy Arredondo, assistant professor of psychiatry and coordinator of the conference. "There is a continuing need to update health practitioners with the latest knowledge of patterns of alcohol abuse, the bio-social context of abuse and new approaches to intervention."

Specialists in alcoholism will address the conference. Invited speakers include LeClair Bissell, M.D., former chief of Smithers Alcoholism Treatment and Training Center, New York; Jeffrey Jay, Ph.D., assistant clinical professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences, George Washington University Medical Center, Washington, D.C., and member of the faculty of the Family Therapy Institute; and Kenneth S. Russell, Ed. D., associate chief of staff for education, Veterans Administration Medical Center, Fort Lyon, Colo.

Joseph C. Schooler, Ph.D., director of the Texas Research Institute of Mental Sciences and professor of psychiatry and pharmacology, Baylor College of Medicine, will deliver the keynote address, "Alcoholism: A Family Illness." He will conclude the conference with a discussion of "Alcoholism and the Stages of Family Development — How Does It All Fit Together?"

Additional lecture and workshop sessions will deal with alcoholism in different age groups, alcoholism in the family, preparation of the family for intervention in the disease, expectations and risks in treatment, and spiritual recovery.

The conference has been approved for 14 hours of credit in Category I of the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association. Application has been made for 16 CEU's for nurses and for 14 CEU's with the Texas Association of Alcoholism Counselors.

Conference information and registration details may be obtained through the Office of Continuing Education, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, Lubbock, Texas 79430. Conference sessions will be held at the Texas Tech Regional Academic Health Center, 4800 Alberta St., El Paso, Texas.

New Religious Course Begins At Texas Tech

A new course on religious art, "The Romanesque and the Gothic — An introduction to Religious Art," is being taught at Texas Tech University this spring.

Sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education, the class will be conducted from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays, Feb. 12 through March 11.

Hari Vishwanadha, research assistant in the Texas Tech English department, is teaching the course. After a general introduction of the course, including scope and nature, Vishwanadha will begin to reveal how art depicts religious ideas.

Instruction will incorporate slides and pictures.

The course is intended for the community at large, especially persons interested in religion or art or desiring to develop an interest in one of the areas, Vishwanadha said.

"It will show the intimate relationship between religion and art in Medieval Europe. One of the major reasons Medieval Europe has survived is the synthesis of religion and art. It will be shown how religion influenced art and, to some extent, how art influenced religion," he said.

A candidate for a doctoral degree in 17th century English literature, Vishwanadha has an interest in medieval art and religion. Throughout the course he will discuss historical background, present slide shows and explain their meaning.

The course will be taught in Room 173 of the Home Economics Building. Registration will immediately precede the first session.

Fertilizer Embargo Asked For Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, appealed again to President Carter Wednesday to permanently halt shipment of phosphate fertilizer to the Soviet Union.

"It doesn't make sense to deny the Soviets access to American grain if we're going to turn around and send them enough American fertilizer to more than make up the loss through increases in their own production," he said.

The administration halted the shipment of 17 million metric tons of grain to Russia last month in response to the Soviet intervention of Afghanistan. Last week Carter suspended shipment of phosphate fertilizer for two weeks and said any further shipments should be approved on a case-by-case basis.

Harkin said there should be a complete cutoff of fertilizer and "anything less undermines the impact of the embargo."

omb's background includes navigator-photographer duties in high-flying missions for observation and weather reconnaissance.

Another first for the Navy architect came with his West Texas arrival — removing snow from runways and sanding streets for icy driving.

He grew up in California and had known only warm climates from Guam to Florida to Spain. He came to Reese from South Texas where the Navy had sponsored his pursuit of a master's degree at Texas A&M.

Being landlocked at Lubbock is no great change. No ships, except for meals as a dinner guest, have been in his Navy experience.

Seabees, he explained, fly to their construction sites, sometimes in an Air Force C-141, but more often in a chartered commercial jet that can hold twice the personnel.

Supplies go by ship enough ahead to be there when Seabees arrive.

His military duties have been administrative — planning and constructing base buildings or overseeing contract construction — though Keene admits to trying out every phase of construction since boyhood in San Jose, Calif.

He was right out there on "a series of falseworks weaving in the breeze" while building a deep water pier at Diego Garcia Island.

"Very carefully" is the way he learned to stay on the weaving "toothpicks" while reaching out with a pile driver to add more to construction.

Knowing when the pile was deep enough was the key to the operation accomplished with Seabees who were great workers but had no prior experience.

The number of blows per foot told how firmly the pile was imbedded.

"When you first begin, you get feet per blow."

Seabees made up the population of the island that was 35 miles long and so narrow that a golf ball thrown from the road would hit beach to either side.

Wherever Keene has been, he has learned from people, from the situation.

He expects it to be the same at Reese where the squadron mission is to maintain, construct and operate real property and resources as well as provide fire and crash protection, engineering and management service to the entire base.

He is looking forward to another learning experience soon. Always stationed near, but not on the water, Keene is anticipating his first West Texas sandstorm.

It will be something special to talk about when his attire is just like the rest of the personnel back in Navy bases.

days written notice of the planned termination.

During the 10-day period, the builder must either bring the building into compliance or make a written appeal to the Building Board of Appeals to prevent discontinuation of utility service.

Other major changes in the new code deal with requirements for bedroom windows and separation requirements between a garage and residence, townhouses and apartments.

The council meeting begins at 9:30 a.m. and the presentation on the new building code is expected to come during the morning session.

KELLOGG BLASTS STUDY

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Kellogg Co., has lashed out at a federal study that said the three major cereal companies could be broken up with few job losses. Kellogg on Tuesday called the study "inadequate and conjectural."

Restaurant Owner Files For Trustee

Restaurant owner Jose Ramirez today entered his bid to retain his Place 4 seat on the Lubbock public school board of trustees.

Ramirez, 60, is one of only two candidates who have thus far filed for that board spot. His opponent, oil businessman Don Tonroy, filed as a candidate on Monday.

The six-year school board veteran is owner of Jose's Restaurant and serves on a number of civic committees. He is a member of LULAC, COMA, the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce; the beautification committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and works with the Better Business Bureau.

Ramirez is thus far the only minority candidate to enter the school board race this spring. Other candidates are incumbent Deaton Rigby for Place 3 and realtor Med Hunt and accountant Roy Medina for Place 5.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE appears to be making a "sincere effort" to improve the commodity statistics and economics programs conducted by the Economics, Statistics and Cooperative Service (ESCS).

This was the report of Donald Johnson, executive vice president of the Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., after returning from an agricultural economics and statistics data users workshop earlier this month in Dallas.

"Of course the results," Johnson added, "are yet to be seen."

The workshop was designed to obtain input from users of the agency's information and statistics for use in the development of future ESCS budgets and programs. Johnson was invited to represent cotton producers.

Also attending from Lubbock was Elbert Harp, executive director of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association. Wheat, rice, sheep and goats, cattle and citrus fruits were other commodities involved in the discussions.

The Texas Federation of Cooperatives, Texas Department of Agriculture and Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service also were represented.

THE MOST VISIBLE OF ESCS ACTIVITIES hinge around production and demand estimates, prices received by farmers, and prices paid for production inputs.

One of the major points made by Johnson was to the effect that ESCS should upgrade the accuracy of its in-season cotton acreage and production estimates. William Kibler, deputy ESCS administrator for statistics, responded.

Noting that cotton is one of the most difficult commodities on which to make accurate estimates, Kibler admitted that ESCS hasn't done as well with the fiber crop as with some other commodities.

Then he pointedly remarked that much of the problem in cotton forecasting stems from the huge acreage and extreme variability and unpredictability of growing conditions on the High Plains.

Kibler did say, however, that attempts to make changes in ESCS sampling procedures, at least one of which will require legislation, if successful should prove beneficial.

Agency personnel told the workshop that efforts are being made to expand the educational program on how producers can better use ESCS data and analysis in the development of production and marketing plans.

Under questioning, Kenneth Farrell, ESCS administrator, stressed that the confidentiality of individual producer replies to questionnaires has never been violated and said every precaution is taken to preserve that record.

AN ENDING OF THE EIGHT-MONTH extension of cotton price support loans after their initial expiration after 10 months would have little market impact under current circumstances, according to some sources.

This, they explain, is because relatively few loans are due to expire within the near future.

If the official nine-market spot price for strict low middling 1 1/16 averages 78.45 cents or higher this month, a global U. S. import quota would be opened for the first time under the 1977 farm act. The quota would total around a half-million bales and be valid for 90 days.

The reaching of the trigger point also would mean the eight-month loan extensions would be disallowed.

UNDER CURRENT WORLD CONDITIONS, some sources say, the opening of the quota would not necessarily result in the importation of a significant volume of cotton.

They point out that supplies outside this country also are tight and prices by no means cheap after allowance for shipment costs to the United States.

Recent downward reactions in New York cotton futures perhaps were understandable from an international standpoint, according to some international observers.

The basis for better-quality U. S. current crop supplies had become uncompetitive in export markets by the middle of last week, they say, as the international trade took profits at slightly lower levels on its modest holdings of outside growth.

Other sources had said that under an import quota U. S. cotton still probably would be the lowest priced in the world.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED WITH SMALL gains Wednesday after a large commission house buy order at limit gain was disallowed by the New York Cotton Exchange.

Floor brokers said cancellation of the trade caused considerable confusion among traders and left the cotton pit in some disarray.

They said there was no immediate reason offered for the unusual move, and initially this left some doubt as to exactly where cotton prices would settle.

The disallowed trade came as the market already was trying to cope with record high volume, estimated at 23,500 lots.

Overall, nearby registered gains of 5 to 56 points after overcoming earlier limit losses in March and May on long liquidation, which touched off sell stops.

DEALERS SAID THE MARKET RECOVERY reflected renewed commission house buying, which reportedly attracted trade and local support.

There were unconfirmed reports after the close that around 27,000 bales were headed to Galveston for certification. Certificated stocks Tuesday totaled 47,057 bales, another 1,683 bales were awaiting certification, and 19 were awaiting decertification.

Open interest going into the session Wednesday again had climbed to an all-time high of 60,339 contracts, up 5,037 from a week ago. Open contracts in spot March totaled 12,078, off 3,072 from a week earlier.

Trading on Telcel was uneventful on a volume of 5,733 bales and an average price of 58.44 cents, an average of 1,683 points over the loan.

Federal Crop Insurance Expansion Bill Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to expand federal crop insurance throughout the nation and phase out disaster aid to farmers was approved Wednesday by the House.

The measure passed, 202-140. A similar measure passed the Senate last September and differences between the two bills may be ironed out in a conference committee with members from both houses.

Opposition to the measure centered largely around the proposal to eliminate emergency disaster assistance which costs about $500 million a year. The impact of the phase-out was softened through an amendment that will extend the aid until October 1983.

The cost of the crop insurance program would be an estimated $50 million this year and $260 million by 1984.

Sponsors of the legislation said it could end up saving taxpayers money by doing away with the disaster grants. They also argued that the insurance program would be more equitable by providing help to farmers nationwide.

Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., said farmers support the idea because "they won't have to wait with hat in hand for the government to help after a disaster has struck."

But some congressmen from farm states said the program will increase costs to farmers because they would have to pay most of the premiums if they choose to buy the federal insurance.

Rep. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Texas, said the cost to farmers would be $1.3 billion.

Under the current disaster aid program, Texas last year received nearly half the outlays, which help rescue farmers whose crops are wiped out by drought, storms or other natural causes.

The expanded insurance program would cover all commodities in all sections of the country. The Federal Crop Insurance Corp. is limited now to 150 counties and three crops each year.

The proposed legislation provides that the government pay up to 30 percent of the farmer's premiums for up to 65 percent of the farm's appraised average yield. Higher subsidies would be available for smaller farms.

Farmers could insure up to 75 percent of their crop.

Some opponents of the bill said it would not provide a big enough role for private insurance companies.

The measure was amended to meet some of that criticism by granting farmers a 25 percent credit on their federal premiums if they prefer to buy private coverage for damage from hail storms and fire.

The bill also gives farmers the option of signing up for crop insurance or remaining eligible for the disaster aid while it remains in effect.

Critics of the measure said it survived the House Agriculture Committee only because of the threat of a presidential veto of any measure unconditionally extending the disaster aid program. The committee approved the bill, 22-20.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy commission house liquidation and commercial selling in wheat pushed futures prices sharply lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade, with corn and soybeans making modest price gains.

Traders said a major commercial firm started the price plunge by selling wheat and buying corn.

Venezuela Preparing To Develop Untapped Petroleum Reservoir

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela is gearing up to develop the Orinoco heavy oil belt, one of the world's largest untapped petroleum reservoirs and a potential source of heating oil for North American homes for the next 100 years.

The multi-billion-dollar undertaking, described by one U.S. oil man as "more challenging than the Alaskan pipeline," may provide an opportunity for the United States to nail down a secure source of foreign oil for many years to come, say diplomatic sources.

U.S. energy officials have converged on this South American nation in recent months to offer Venezuela help in developing the technology needed to tap the gargantuan deposits of Orinoco oil.

The governments of the two countries are close to signing an agreement for cooperation on developing heavy oil technology that could pave the way for further joint efforts in the Orinoco Belt, U.S. Undersecretary of Energy John Deutch said during a recent visit here.

"Venezuela has the world's largest heavy oil deposits," notes a high Venezuelan energy official. "In 15 or 15 years the United States will be in great need of this oil. Now is the time to help us with massive aid to develop it."

Says a foreign diplomat close to the Venezuelan oil industry: "The assumption is that the United States would have the first option on buying the heavy oil from the Orinoco Belt."

Geologists estimate that the Orinoco Belt contains as much as two trillion barrels of tarlike oil that yields a large proportion of residual fuel when refined. The deposits are lodged beneath an expanse of sun-baked savannas stretching along the north bank of the Orinoco River and covering an area twice the size of Massachusetts. They have been known about since the 1930s, but were considered uneconomical to exploit until world oil prices began soaring a few years ago.

Venezuela currently supplies the United States with nearly a million barrels daily of crude and refined oil. It is a major source for the East Coast of residual fuel oil.

Less Electricity Consumption Predicted

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumption of electricity in the United States will grow by 2.5 percent in 1980, a drop from last year's growth rate of 3 percent, the Edison Electric Institute predicted Wednesday.

The association of investor-owned utilities last year had predicted 1979 electricity use would increase by 4 percent. But institute President William McCollam Jr. said "the results fell short" because of some conservation, lower than expected growth in the economy, "and much cooler than normal summer weather."

McCollam spoke at a New York Society of Security Analysts luncheon. He said the industry expects nuclear power to supply 20 percent of U.S. electricity needs by 1985 and "over 30 percent" by the year 2000.

That prediction was lower than the 1976 industry forecast that nuclear power would supply nearly half the nation's electricity needs by the end of the century.

"This year it's a whole new ballgame," McCollam said in discussing the changing role of nuclear power since the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear generating plant in Pennsylvania last March.

He also predicted coal will supply half of U.S. electricity needs by 1985 — up slightly from 1979 — and about 54 percent by the year 2000.

Oil and natural gas were used to produce 28 percent of U.S. power needs last year, but will supply "less than 7 percent" by the end of the century, he said.

McCollam held out little hope that solar, wind, and "other so-called alternative energy sources" will be able to "account for more than 3 percent of electricity generation by the turn of the century."

Overall, McCollam said "we foresee growth in electric power requirements at an average annual rate of nearly 4.5 percent to the end of this century.

"By 1985, about 35 percent of all the energy used in the United States will be devoted to the generation of electricity, compared to some 30 percent in 1979," he said.

By the year 2000, he said, electric power is expected to use "almost 50 percent" of U.S. energy needs.

McCollam predicted that peak demand for electric power — the maximum load utilities must build their plants to meet — will grow by 3.5 percent in 1980.

The industry organization had forecast last year that peak demand would grow by 4 percent, sharply higher than 1979's actual growth of just 0.5 percent.

McCollam said electric utility companies' earnings in 1979 "remained at about the same level as in the previous year," with 88 companies increasing dividends, compared with 87 in 1978.

The investor-owned utilities received rate increases totaling $2.85 billion in 1979, up from $2.42 billion the previous year. McCollam said the increases do not include automatic adjustments for rising fuel costs.

Company Claims Wyoming Gas Find

NEW YORK (AP) — Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) says that tests at a highly touted southwestern Wyoming discovery have yielded substantial amounts of natural gas.

But a spokesman said Tuesday that further tests are needed to determine if the discovery is the key to what could be one of the nation's largest gas finds.

The tests were performed at the Kewanee Federal wildcat well situated in the Overthrust Belt, a geological formation along Wyoming's border with Idaho and Utah.

The well, drilled by Indiana Standard's Amoco division, is between two already proven gas fields, and analysts have speculated that the Kewanee discovery might provide evidence of the existence of a vast, 15-mile-long field beneath the three areas.

The two biggest gas producing areas in the United States are the Hugoton field in Texas and the Prudhoe Bay field in Alaska, each of which contains 25 trillion to 30 trillion cubic feet of gas.

But "we still don't have the answers" to whether the Kewanee discovery is of the size of the Prudhoe Bay field, said Indiana Standard spokesman Carl Meyerdirk.

Meyerdirk said in a telephone interview from the company's Chicago headquarters that tests showed the Kewanee well "is a good gas-producing well," but is "not a phenomenal well."

In a statement, Indiana Standard said the Kewanee well produced gas at a rate of 8.5 million cubic feet of gas a day at a depth of 15,070 to 15,190 feet.

"Present plans call for extensive testing" at other depths in the well, the company said.

Shares of companies involved in the Kewanee find have risen sharply in recent weeks on speculation over the discovery.

Indiana Standard, which has a 37.16 percent interest in the well, climbed $2.25 a share to $108.25 in New York Stock Exchange consolidated trading Tuesday. The price of its shares has risen about $30 since the beginning of January.

Other companies with interests in the well include Gulf Oil Corp., Dow Chemical Co. and Union Pacific Corp.

Associated Press To Install 400 Satellite Earth Stations In 1980

NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press announced on Wednesday the start of the installation of 400 satellite earth stations scheduled for use in 1980.

"This is a momentous event. We are all proud of the years of effort that have brought it," AP President and General Manager Keith Fuller said.

The equipment is being purchased from California Microwave, Inc. of Sunnyvale Calif. for about $4 million.

The AP-owned system will initially carry all Associated Press high-speed data services, the APR Radio Network, and the RKO Stereo Network.

The AP has invited all news agencies to join the system on a shared-cost basis. RKO was the first to accept, and Fuller said he expected others to do so.

"Our offer to them stands and will stand," he said.

He noted that transmission of several newswire and audio services from the same transponder in the same satellite means that a broadcast station or newspaper will need only one earth station to receive multiple services.

The satellite system will provide higher quality than has been economically feasible on circuits leased from the telephone company and it will stabilize the costs of high-speed news-wire transmission.

Fuller said the first 50 earth stations would be installed and operational by April 1980. There will be a short pause as the additional units are manufactured, with all 400 scheduled to be in service by the end of the year. The length of the pause will be determined by the Federal Communications Commission whose approval of a 19 decibel power level in the satellite is a condition for expansion beyond 50.

Fuller said AP is flexible on the question of ownership of earth stations. However, the consensus of members is that AP should own, maintain and operate the network of earth stations, which will be located on property owned by newspapers or broadcast stations throughout the country.

The majority of the terminals will be 10 feet in diameter, AP Vice President for Communications Dave Bowen said.

The earth stations will receive signals from a Western Union satellite parked in stationary orbit over the Equator.

Fuller and Bowen said that the number of earth stations will eventually grow well beyond the initial number as AT&T savings materialize and as other organizations join the system.

"I can't think of a more worthwhile contribution to the America of the 1980s than satellite news distribution," he said.

The first 50 cities selected for installation of the earth stations are:

anapolis; Kansas City, Mo.; Las Vegas; Los Angeles; Louisville, Ky.; Memphis, Tenn.; Miami; Milwaukee; Minneapolis; New Haven, Conn.; New Orleans; Oklahoma City; Omaha, Neb.; Orlando, Fla.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Portland, Ore.; Richmond, Va.; Rochester, N.Y.; Sacramento, Calif.; Seattle; Salt Lake City; San Antonio, Texas; San Diego; San Francisco; St. Louis; Tampa, Fla.; Tulsa, Okla.; and Washington, D.C.

Approximately 460 species of birds have been recorded in Britain.

Red Raiders Sign 25 Prep Prospects

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

The Texas Tech coaching staff, looking for a few good, strong and fast men to beef up the Red Raider football program, signed 25 schoolboy prospects Wednesday — the official Southwest Conference signing date.

There were no heart-breaking surprises for Rex Dockery and his Tech coaches. The prep recruits who indicated during the past three weeks that they were sold on Tech made it official Wednesday by placing their names on the dotted line.

"I feel very good about our recruiting effort," declared Dockery. "We signed skill athletes who are going to help us. Of course, it's hard to evaluate the players until they get here, but we definitely have signed some class athletes."

Wednesday's SWC letter signing did not end the recruiting battle being waged among major college football programs across the nation. Six days remain until the national letter-signing date, and only a signed national letter of intent binds a player to his chosen school.

The Red Raiders made a strong showing in the running back department Wednesday, landing blue-chipper Freddie Wells of Lewisville. Donald Moore of Splendora, Jesse Kimbrough of Mineral Wells and Stanley Sims of Gatesville.

Wells was one of the Raiders' top prizes Wednesday. The 5-10, 205-pounder was selected the Dallas-Fort Worth area offensive player of the year following the 1979 season. Wells, a 4-6-second 40 man, rushed for more than 1,000 yards in each of the past two seasons.

Moore is another outstanding prospect for Tech. The 5-11, 190-pounder covered more than 2,000 yards during his senior year and ended his career over the 7,000-yard rushing mark. Moore doubled as a defensive back in high school and snagged 59 career interceptions.

Kimbrough was an option quarterback at Mineral Wells, but has all the tools required to be a great running back. The 4.5 sprinter checks in at 6-3 and 205 pounds.

Another high school quarterback who could help the Raiders in several different areas is 6-0, 200-pound Perry Morren of Childress. Morren passed for more than 5,000 yards during his career with the Bobcats and surpassed the 1,800-mark in 1979. He connected for 29 touchdowns in leading Childress to the Class AA semifinals.

Caldwell's Donnie Green, a blue-chip linebacker prospect, is another versatile athlete who could step in and help the Red and Black immediately. Green, 6-2 and 225 pounds, possesses 4.6 speed and has indicated he would like the opportunity to play running back at Tech.

El Paso Burges wide receiver William Wagoner is another pass-catcher with solid credentials. Wagoner, 6-2 and 175 pounds, hauled in 27 passes for 536 yards and three touchdowns last year.

Seven-foot high jumper Kenneth Storey of Plainview is another player with quick feet and a knack for catching the football.

Storey was one of seven West Texas area players signed by Tech. The other six were Monterey offensive lineman Kelly Grammer (6-3, 235); Tahoka tight end Brad White (6-6, 210); Borger center Joe Dumas (6-3, 220); Pampa offensive lineman Danny Buzzard (6-4, 240); and a pair of Odessa Permian gridders — 6-2, 215-pound linebacker Brian Lambert and 6-2, 220-pound offensive lineman Tim Hendrix.

In the linebacking department, Tech grabbed Breckenridge's Mike Funderberg, a 6-1, 215-pounder with all-star credentials. All-Greater Houston selection Keith Porter (6-1, 215) also declared Tech would be his home for the next four or five years.

Norman Hill, a 6-1, 190-pound high school all-America defensive back from Nashville, Tenn., is another blue-chipper who may be able to bolster the Tech defense immediately.

Joining Hill as defensive secondary recruits are Clay Renfro, a 6-1, 180-pounder from Houston Cypress Creek, and Rene Baker, a cat-quick (9.7 in the 100-yard dash) 6-0, 190-pounder from Blinn Junior College.

Ronald Byers, a 6-3, 225-pounder from Baytown Lee, DeWayne Jiles, a 6-5, 230-pounder from Linden-Kildare, and Harland Maisel, 6-3 and 225 pounds from Pearland, and Kilgore's Roderick Smith are headed to Lubbock as defensive linemen.

Another defensive lineman, 6-4, 215-pound Rene Reyes of El Paso Cathedral, also signed with Tech Wednesday.

Texas A&M Takes Home Most Blue-Chip Stars

By The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies sacked the most schoolboy bluechips Wednesday on Southwest Conference letter-of-intent signing day, but the Baylor Bears made big hometown headlines by landing local glamour boy, quarterback Alfred Anderson of Waco Richfield, who ran and passed for 31 touchdowns last year.

Coach Tom Wilson of the Aggies said he was "pleased and excited" about his crop which included large and mobile linemen, a highly sought running back and the No. 1-rated placekicker in the state.

"If the people who evaluate the Texas high school players (coaches, writers, and scouts) know what they are doing, we've got an outstanding crop," Wilson added.

Wilson's delights included such all-stars as linemen Tommy Robison, a 260-pounder from Gregory-Portland, Scott Polk of Dallas White, and Kermit Foster of Beaumont Hebert, running back Bubba Hill of LaPorte, and placekicker Alan Smith of Texas City.

Baylor coach Grant Teaff motored a few miles from his home to sign Anderson, who was highly coveted by the University of Houston.

Nobody was more delighted than Anderson's mother, a big Baylor fan, who said, "I'm very happy Alfred decided on Baylor. Now I can see him play every game."

Teaff said he, too, was happy to get the chance to see Anderson play, wearing green and gold.

"He's a great kid," said Teaff. "He'll work hard and could help us right away."

Most schools had reasons to be happy although Arkansas, Houston, Texas, Texas Tech, and SMU banded together in a news blackout because they feared raids from other schools before the Feb. 20th national signing day.

Word filtered out anyway that Texas had signed bluechip running backs Terry Orr of Abilene Cooper and Mike Luck of Houston Spring Branch; Houston signed sensational wide receiver Lloyd Archie; SMU signed bluechips quarterback Lance McIlhenny of Highland Park and tight end David Randle of Dallas White, and Texas Tech got running back Freddie Wells of Lewisville.

Arkansas made its usual homestate haul, including top-rated quarterback Bill Pierce of Crossett and running back Eddie White of Camden.

Regarding the signing of Archie, Huntsville coach Joe Clements said Colorado is still in the running for the national signing date but thinks it is 80-20 that Archie will stay with Houston.

"Lloyd is a good friend of Allen Polk, who played here a couple of years ago and now is a running back at Houston."

Clements said, "He lives across the street from Lloyd and he's been a great influence on him."

Rice got two top quarterbacks in Doug Johnson of Pasadena Dobie and Phillip Money of Edinburg.

Wide receiver was one of Dockery's priority recruiting areas throughout the three-month talent search. Following Wednesday's signings, it appears Tech has latched onto several pass-catching threats.

The Raiders were locked into a day-to-day struggle with the University of Houston for the rights to speedy McKinney kick returner-wide receiver Jamie Harris. Harris put an end to the fight by autographing a Tech letter.

Harris is not big — 5-9 and 165 pounds — but is living proof that good things come in small packages. Harris is another player who can cover 40 yards in under 4.5 seconds. He proved his explosiveness against Bay City in the Class AAA state championship when he returned two punts for touchdowns.

How can "Touch" help you?

Top Austrian Skiers Told To Requalify

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — "We have already finished our first Olympics," Werner Grissmann said Wednesday after a controversial decision by the Austrian Ski Federation forced him and two others to requalify for the Olympic downhill team.

The decision, which surprised and shocked the Austrian team, forced Grissmann, Peter Wirsberger and Josef Walcher to fight for two remaining spots on the Austrian downhill team. Walcher, one of Austria's most successful downhillers, was the slowest among the three Wednesday, and thus was dropped from the lineup that will compete for the downhill gold medal Thursday.

"I came close to screaming, and then suddenly I laughed," Walcher said. "I said, 'OK, I am a man. I can bear it.'"

Before the Austrian team came to the United States to prepare for the XIII Winter Olympic Games, the four men were picked to race — Walcher, Wirsberger, Grissmann and Hartl Weirather. Leonard Stock was to have been the alternate.

However, when Stock began turning in the fastest times in training, team manager Karl Kahr told the five Austrians they would have to race Wednesday for the four spots. Then Wednesday morning, Kahr changed his mind. He told Stock and Weirather they had made the team, and the remaining three would have to compete for a starting berth.

They said that Stock and myself had made the team," Weirather said. The other three would have to qualify. They were surprised. They were shocked at first, but that is sport.

They were not happy, but they can't do anything about it," Weirather said. They must ski.

Herbert Plank of Italy, the bronze medalist in downhill at the 1976 Games in Innsbruck, had the fastest time in training Wednesday over the 3,069-meter course — 1 minute, 43.91 seconds. Despite missing a gate, Plank said he knew he had a quick run.

Wirsberger had the second-fastest time, 1:45.12, and said he was angry because the Austrian team was forced to compete so hard one day before the Olympic downhill.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. figure skating team has the capability of winning three of the four gold medals, which would make the 1980 Americans the best Olympic skating team of all time.

Many countries have won two skating golds at a Winter Olympics, including the 1956 and 1960 U.S. squads. At Cortina, Italy, Hayes Alan Jenkins and Tenley Albright won the men's and ladies' titles. Four years later, at Squaw Valley, Calif., Hayes' brother, David, won the men's crown and Carol Heiss took the ladies' event.

Since the 1976 Olympics, when Dorothy Hamill won the lone gold medal for the U.S. figure skaters, Americans have won world championships in three different skating disciplines. Linda Fratianne won the ladies' event in 1977 and 79. Charlie Tickner won the men's crown in 1978 and Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner won the pairs title in 1979.

The capability evidently is there, but will the timing be right? "We have the strongest team from a gold medal standpoint we've ever had," said Dick Button, who revolutionized the sport with his athletic skills and won successive Olympic titles in 1948 and '52. Button now is the expert skating commentator for ABC Sports.

Button says Fratianne has a great chance for a gold medal. "She's clearly a stronger skater than Annet Poetsch (East Germany)."

He sees the men's event as a three-way race among Tickner, European champion Robin Cousins and Vladimir Kovalev of the Soviet Union, the 1976 Olympic silver medalist and the defending world champion.

He rates as a tossup the pairs rivalry between world champions Babilonia and Gardner and 1976 Olympic titlists Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitsev of the Soviet Union. "The judging will come down to whether they like blue or red... which style do they like better?"

So who do we like? "The pairs event this Friday and Sunday should be a classic. Russia vs. America... experience vs. youth... East judging vs. West judging... the Russians' fast skating and strong lifts vs. the Americans' style, grace and superior choreography."

Miss Babilonia and Gardner won the world crown in '79, while Rodnina-Zaitsev were taking a maternity-paternity leave to give birth to their son, Sasha. Rodnina-Zaitsev looked the same — and

U.S. Dominates Speed Skating

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Speed skating may not be the most popular of winter sports in the United States. In fact, until they built the 400-meter oval in Lake Placid for the Winter Olympics, there was only one refrigerated competition site in the country.

But somehow a very small self-perpetuating band of ardent athletes has managed to bring the United States its greatest success in the Winter Games. Of the 94 Winter Olympic medals — gold, silver and bronze — the United States has won since 1924, 32 have been in speed skating — more than the total in any other discipline.

And when the speed skating competition opens Thursday with the women's 1,500-meter event, the United States will present its strongest team ever.

Eric Heiden, the star of the Games before they even started, is the favorite to win all five men's gold medals — and he rates as the overwhelming favorite in at least two distances. The men's events start Friday with the 500 meters.

Within eight days last month, Heiden set unofficial world records at 1,000 meters (1:13.60) and 1,500 meters (1:54.79). Last weekend he captured his fourth consecutive World Sprint Speed Skating Championship.

His sister, Beth, is one of the top female skaters in the world, although she is not as certain a winner as Eric.

The Heidens, who live in Madison, Wis., are backed up — as well as challenged — by — Peter Mueller of Dousman, Wis., the 1,000-meter gold medalist at Innsbruck four years ago who holds the Olympic record at that distance (1:19.32).

— His wife, Leah Poulos Mueller, who won the 1,000-meter silver medal in 1976 and who set an unofficial world mark of 1:23.07 at 1,000 meters last month.

— Dan Immerfall of Madison, the bronze winner at 500 meters in 1976.

The foreign opposition among the men comes from Canadian Gaetan Boucher, Norway's Frode Roenning, Lieuwe Boer of the Netherlands, Kazuaki Ishimura of Japan and Sergei Khlebnikov of the Soviet Union in the 500.

In the 1,000, it's Boucher, Bert de Jung of the Netherlands and Norwegians Roenning, Terje Andersen and Kay Arne Stenshjemmet. In the 1,500, look for Jan Egil Storholt of Norway, the former record holder, Tomas Gustafson of Sweden and Andersen and Boucher.

In the longer distances, possibly Heiden's weakest points, the best skaters are Tom Erik Oxholm and Alf Rakstad of Norway, Viktor Loskin of the Soviet Union, the record holder in the 10,000, and Gustafson.

In women's races there is a new threat from little-known Karin Enke of East Germany, who skated past the field in the World Sprints, winning three of four events. She is expected to race in the 500- and 1,000-meter events.

The other top female contenders are Natalia Petrusheva of the Soviet Union, who won the women's all-around title in Norway last month, and Sweden's Bjoerg Eva Jensen. Two other Soviet powers, Tatiana Averina and Galina Stepankaya, have been out of form but could threaten if they compete.

Start lists for the first races were not available Wednesday.

The rest of the 12-man U.S. field includes Jim Chapin of St. Louis, Erik Henriksen of Champaign, Ill., Kent Thometz of Minnetonka, Minn., Michael Plant of West Allis, Wis., and his brother, Tom, who upset Heiden and the rest of an international field in the first 500-meter race of the World Sprints last weekend.

Young American Hockey Team Faces Challenge Of Underdog

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — It isn't as if Jim Craig is stomping around with a scowl on his face these days. The question of amateurism in the Olympics, however, is a sore point with the goalie for the United States hockey team.

"When you're playing European teams, it gets you very upset because we're all amateur and these guys are making money all the time," said the 22-year-old Boston product. "It kind of makes you madder and more determined to beat them."

"I don't think I hate them or despise them," he continued, "it's just that not too many people know what goes on behind the scenes in those countries. I don't think people understand what kind of uphill battle it's going to be for us to beat them."

"It's not the hockey players you despise, but the system, it's not the team you're mad at, but the uniform," said Craig.

Craig took his anger out on the team from Sweden in Tuesday's opening game, stopping 34 shots and helping the Americans to a 2-2 tie — a crucial point in the Blue Division they share with Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Romania and Norway.

The American hockey players are paid $7,200 in living expenses for their six-month tenure with the team. They are not subsidized with jobs, apartments and automobiles as are members of other European teams who play amateur hockey year-round. It is that system with which Craig quarrels, and Canada — equally upset it could not use its professional players to compete against what they termed European professionals in the Olympics, did not send hockey teams to the last two Winter Games.

Craig, meanwhile, tries to use the emotion positively, as indicated by the feelings he expressed before the Sweden game.

"I've heard everyone saying we're underdogs and everything, but I think we're only underdogs to one team: the Russians," he said. "I just think if we can play our game, we have a lot of talent. The crowds will be behind us, we have our families here, and I think we'll do just fine."

There had been some doubt — especially about Craig, says coach Herb Brooks.

"Jim Craig had not been playing well the last couple of three weeks, but he said, 'Don't worry. When we get to Lake Placid, I'll do it for you,'" said Brooks.

True to his word, Craig was a stand-out in the contest — surrendering goals to Sture Andersson and Thomas Eriksson but keeping the game close until Dave Silk could score with 28 seconds left in the second period and Bill Baker could tie it with 27 seconds left in the game.

"I'm not really nervous or anything," said Craig. "I was tossing and turning a month ago, but now I'm ready. I really can't control what's going to happen, anyway. If you're gonna get hurt, you're gonna get hurt. If you're gonna play bad, you're gonna play bad."

If Tuesday's performance is any indication, however, Craig needn't worry.

His next appearance comes today against Czechoslovakia, which breezed to an 11-0 shutout of Norway Tuesday. Other games Thursday pit Sweden against Romania, West Germany against Norway, Russia against Holland, Canada against Poland and Finland against Japan.

Russia, Canada, Romania and Poland also recorded victories Tuesday, the latter two coming as upsets. Russia blasted Japan 16-0, outshooting its foe 67-17. Canada trounced Holland 10-1. Romania upended West Germany 6-4 and Poland held off well-regarded Finland 5-4.

Countries React To IOC

The Australian and United States governments have discussed setting up international games to rival the Moscow Summer Olympics, Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said Wednesday.

Fraser, responding to a White House call for American athletes to stay away from Moscow, said he believes there is a "good deal of support" for alternative games.

The International Olympic Committee Tuesday night rejected President Carter's call to move the Games from Moscow because of Soviet military action in Afghanistan.

A statement issued by White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said, "The president urges the U.S. Olympic Committee to reach a prompt decision against sending teams to the Games."

The Soviet news agency Tass said Powell's remarks show "the U.S. administration will continue the efforts aimed at disrupting the coming Olympics."

The British government said it was disappointed with the IOC decision and will continue its campaign to have the Games moved.

Japan, meanwhile, said it is too early to decide whether its athletes should compete in Moscow.

The Japan Olympic Committee said it will study the issue after the Lake Placid Winter Olympics.

Golf Tournament Set

The Pan American Golf Association will sponsor an 18-hole tournament Sunday at Meadowbrook Municipal Golf Course. There is a $10 greens fee to enter the tournament, which will begin at 9 a.m. The event will consist of four flights with the first three places in each flight receiving prizes. Golfers interested in participating in this early season event should contact Lupe Gonzales at 763-0025 for more information.

CHS, MHS Netters To Clash

A high-powered shootout between Coronado and Monterey is expected to highlight the District 4-AAAA Team Tennis Tournament that will open today at the Lubbock Municipal Tennis Center. The action begins today at 9 a.m. and again at 9 a.m. on Friday. The points scored in this tourney, added with the totals scored in dual match competition in the fall, will determine the district team champion. Currently the Monterey boys teams leads Coronado 33-29 but the Mustang girls lead the Monterey girls by an identical 33-29 count. Not surprisingly, Monterey's Kenneth Coulter is the top seed in the boys' singles division while the MHS doubles team of Coulter and Chuck Rogers is the top seed in the doubles bracket. But in the girls' division the top seeds belong to the Mustangs. Beth Nickels is the top-seeded girls' player and Susan Mangum and Maggie McNamara are the favorites in the doubles play. All are from Coronado. The tournament was originally scheduled for Friday and Saturday, but with bad weather forecast for the weekend, it was moved up a day.

LCC Names Top Players

Basketball player Kevin Wharton and baseball catcher Bob Nottebart are co-recipients of the Lubbock Christian College athlete of the week award, it was announced Wednesday. For Wharton, it is the fifth time this season that the senior center has been so honored. He scored 48 points, 44 rebounds and seven blocked shots in three games last week. Nottebart had two key hits and threw out two base runners during LCC's season-opening doubleheader set against the University of Texas-EI Paso. The Chaps won three of those four games.

Chaps Rate Sixth

The pre-season baseball poll of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) was released Wednesday and shows the Lubbock Christian College baseball team ranked sixth in the country. The Chaps, who were 42-24 in 1979, won three of their first four games of this season against the University of Texas-EI Paso last week. LCC accumulated 137 points in the poll. David Lipscomb (Tenn.), with 10 of 17 first-place votes, was first with 243 points. Grand Canyon (Ariz.) is second at 229. Rounding out the top five are Southeastern Oklahoma, third, Birmingham Southern (Ala.) fourth, and William Carey (Miss.) fifth. Sam Houston State ranks eighth. The Chaps return to action with doubleheaders against Jarvis Christian Monday and Tuesday in Hawkins.

Young Wooten Getting Attention

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
For most of the current basketball season, Steve Wooten has experienced a first-rate identity crisis. Oh, he knew who he was, but the press didn't. Steve was referred to as Mike in a couple of box scores. Mike is Steve's older brother.

But Steve won't have any more ID trouble, not after his performance Tuesday night against Coronado. The younger Wooten pumped in 20 points and led Monterey to its narrow 54-50 over the Pones in a crucial District 4-AAAA contest. The victory allowed the Plainsmen to keep pace with Plainview in second-half title chase.

Whenever Monterey needed a couple of points, the 6-1 senior always seemed to be around to provide them. He scored MHS's final six points in the first quarter. Those two free throws and that pair of layups by Wooten gave Monterey its first lead of the game 12-9. "He played a super game for us," said MHS head man Joe Michalka. "We needed that from him."

Wooten was especially deadly from the free throw line against the Pones, hitting a remarkable 14 of 15 tosses from the strip.

He started the free throw onslaught with 6:21 left in the third quarter when he bucketed a pair of technical foul shots which tied the game at 31-31. Then, 18 seconds later, he went to the line again and connected on two more to up MHS's count to 33-31.

But he didn't stop there. With 1:03 remaining in the game, Wooten was fouled by Jimmy Johnson while attempting to drive toward the bucket. At the time the game was knotted at 48-48, so the pressure was certainly on. But Wooten canned both shots and gave Monterey a two-point lead, 50-48. But he wasn't through yet. After drawing another foul — this one by John Lord — Wooten again stepped coolly to the line and hit both ends of the one-and-one. Only 24 seconds remained on the clock. The two points gave Monterey a little breathing room.

LCC Chaparrals Tangle With ENMU Tonight

PORTALES, N.M. (Special) — The Lubbock Christian College basketball team, which has lost four of its last five games, meets Eastern New Mexico University here at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

The Chaps defeated the Greyhounds 80-69 last month in the fieldhouse, but LCC coach Larry Hays is wary of the 'Hounds despite their disappointing 5-15 record.

"The fact that we're going there to play 'em makes a difference," Hays said. "They're a better team at home. It's a game we could win if we play well and a game we could easily lose if we don't play well."

A key to the early Chaps' victory was the effect of a match-up zone defense on Greyhound scoring star Al Massenburg. He averages 22 points per game, but was held to only 11 by LCC.

"The game will be decided by defense and how well we contain Massenburg," Hays said. "We held him down once; we'll have to do it again."

LCC will open with center Kevin Wharton; forward Keith Gardner, and guards Bruce Carver, Marshall Smith and Bill McGee.

The Chaps are 15-16 this season. Other scoring threats for ENMU are forward Austin Henderson and guard Royce Blackshear.

NEW DEAL SEEKS GAMES
The boys' varsity basketball team of New Deal High School needs games Dec. 2, 1980 and Jan. 6, 9 and 13, 1981. Opponents must be class AAA, AA or A as per next year's classifications. Contact Steve Bigham, (806) 746-5933.

GOLF ASSOCIATION TO MEET
The board of directors of the South Plains Women's Golf Association will meet Saturday at the Meadowbrook Golf Course clubhouse. The meeting is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. The dates of all play-days and locations will be set for the 1980 golf season at this meeting.

praises from Michalka, prompting the coach to comment: "He played the best game he's played all year (against Coronado). Hyslop pumped in 14 points and played an aggressive defensive game against the Pones."

Cody Love of Coronado, who came off the bench to give Coronado a much needed lift against the Plainsmen. During the second quarter against MHS, Love hit eight of Coronado's final 10 points, including two free throws with 38 seconds left that gave CHS a 31-29 half-time lead.

Darryl Polk, who "didn't score that many points," said Lubbock High coach Craig Wells, "but he did so many other things that hurt." Polk, of Hereford, pumped in 12 points to help lead Hereford to a 56-47 win over the Westerners. And in HHS's big 52-43 victory against Monterey, he had 21 points.

Raul Romero of Lubbock, who continued playing a fine brand of basketball. He bucketed 13 points against Hereford to lead the LHS scoring attack.

Smith's Hot Shooting Helps Boost Borger

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Going up to Borger Tuesday night, the Estacado Matadors knew they had a fight on their hands. They desperately needed a win to stay alive in the District 1-AAA race and they knew the Bulldogs were tough from their 65-56 win earlier in the season.

But they probably didn't realize how tough Borger's 6-5 post Brett Smith devastated the Matadors as the Bulldogs took an 84-74 win, all but assuring them of the District 1-AAA title.

Smith hit 11 of 16 shots from the floor and 11 or 14 from the free throw line in scoring 33 points and pulled down 17 rebounds.

That was good enough to earn him

The Avalanche-Journal's player of the week honor.

The girls' player of the week was Cindy Maddox, who scored 21 points over the Matador girls Friday night in a 55-42 win that all but clinched the second half of district play for them.

Combined with the Eagles' win over Levelland Tuesday night, it forces a playoff between Canyon and Dumas for the district title and the rights to advance to the regionals.

Borger, on the other hand, probably won't need a playoff to claim the district crown.

"We knew if we won it, it would get us in front of everybody else," said Smith of the game which put this Bulldogs at 3-0 in second half play. "I've scored that many before and I've gotten more rebounds, but I think that win meant more to me than any of the other ones because it was an important game."

Borger now leads everybody but Canyon by two games with two games left and the Bulldogs have already defeated the Eagles in the second half.

"We're just a step ahead now," said Smith. "Now we want to beat Dunbar, that'll clinch it."

Of the Matadors, now relegated to spectator status as far as the playoffs are concerned, Smith said "They were tough. We've lost to three teams this year (Snyder, Plainview and Estacado) and they were the toughest team we've played."

Smith credits much of his success this season to summer workouts. "We're not allowed to practice in the summer, but there's usually a gym open somewhere in town where we can go shoot and play against some college guys. It's good experience."

In a 1979 football game, UCLA ran the ball 91 times against Oregon.

Longtime Boxer, Referee Still Watches Ringside

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When the bell sounds to start tonight's Regional Golden Gloves tournament, look for Bo Sexton at ringside. He'll be there, all right. But that's nothing new. Sexton, the self-imposed czar of local Double-G boxing, has been following the sport since, well, since.

"I think about 1945," commented the 82-year-old Sexton. "But I'm not sure about that. It's been a long time, a long time. Probably longer than anybody around here can remember."

Sexton's love for the gentlemanly art began in, well, in.

"A long time ago," continued Sexton, "back when I was a kid (growing up in Palestine). We had to fight. I mean we had to. I enjoyed it, too. I guess I always have."

Sexton moved his bouts out of the alleys of East Texas and into a gym at College Station. Following a collegiate career at Texas A&M, Sexton turned professional, earning as much as $1,500 for one fight and as little as a five spot for another.

"I was lucky," noted Sexton. "I never got a cauliflower ear."

Then, following his brief ring career, Sexton's interests turned to refereeing. He just couldn't stay out of the ring, he said. He was third man in fights that featured Max Baer, Buddy Baer, Jess Willard and King Levinsky. He even worked two years as a referee for the local professional wrestling matches.

Asked what kept him going for so long, Sexton replied: "It was an good place to pick up a little extra money."

But he also admits a sincere love for the game. "I used to referee 30 or 40 fights a night for about 15 years," said Sexton. "You've got to like something to do it that long. I liked it."

However, Sexton recalls one night in Clovis, N.M., when the sidelight wasn't so much fun. Tired of watching his fighter get pounded, a trainer tossed a towel into the ring. Immediately Sexton kicked the towel out. The incident resulted in Sexton and the trainer going two-to-two for a couple of minutes following the bout.

"He couldn't throw in the towel," laughed Sexton. "That's against the rules. Still I think. After it was over we fought. It was something."

Sexton hasn't refereed a bout in 15 years. But that hasn't stopped members of the local Golden Gloves board from asking him for an exhibition. "I'm just too old," said Sexton who looks like a man in his 60s, not 80s. "I couldn't stay up with them (the boxers) anymore."

Within the last few months, four boxers have died in the ring. Sexton says that would have never happened if he'd been in the ring.

"That's the referee's fault," said Sexton. "I never had anyone hurt seriously in one of my fights. I watched it too close. I've had them fall backwards but never forwards. When they fall forward, they're hurting."

Since the middle 40s Sexton has seen the local boxing scene move like a roller coaster gone mad. For a few years, he says, it picks up speed, then for no reason, interest trails off. Currently, commented Sexton, the program is in great shape.

"I think fighting in the Civic Center has a lot to do with it," said Sexton. "It's a nice place. It's not like when we just to fight at the Tech gym or Fair Park (Coliseum). People didn't want to come out there (to Fair Park). They were scared. But not anymore."

"And the recent fights (the Tournament of Champions sponsored by the Lubbock Warriors) have helped, too. I've never seen so many people at fight. But they had the champions in. That had a lot to do with the crowds."

"I know amateur boxing is up, maybe higher than it's ever been. That's great, too," concluded Sexton.

Sexton didn't want to compare boxers, but said two of the top local fighters — Levelland's Robin Blake and Gilbert Castillo of Lubbock — could certainly hold their own against ringmen of the past.

But boxing isn't Sexton's only love — there's also Texas Tech football and basketball. He has missed only two Raider football games since 1925. And, he says, not too many basketball games. However, Sexton is faced with a tough choice Saturday night. The Raiders meet SMU in the Coliseum at 7:30 p.m., and at the same time the boxers will be fighting for a right to move onto Fort Worth and the state tournament.

Asked which he'll attend, Sexton said: "I guess I make half of each."

Spoken like a true sportsman.

HOPE IT GOES OVER — Tech's Jeff Bramlett, a freshman from Midland, grimaces as he hits a low forehand volley in his match against Angelo State's Tom Rapson. Raider Tennis Team Blanks Angelo State

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Texas Tech men's tennis team opened its spring season with a 9-0 ace victory over the Angelo State Rams.

The Red Raiders completely dominated Angelo State, winning every match in straight sets.

Despite the shutout victory, Tech coach Mark Hamilton was not overly excited about the way the Raiders played.

"Going into the match we knew Angelo State did not have a very strong team," Hamilton said. "And despite the straight-set wins, several of our players were a little flat."

Hamilton attributed the flat play to the fact that his players were looking forward to this weekend's West Texas State Invitational Tournament in Canyon.

"It's always good to start off with a win though," the Tech coach added.

The Raiders will play Southern Colorado at 1 p.m. Friday in their first tournament match. At 6 p.m. Friday, New Mexico will be Tech's second opponent of the day.

"New Mexico is going to be tough," Hamilton said. "We beat them 6-3 in the fall, but it could go either way this time. They have a fine program there, so it will be tough."

Saturday's schedule has the Raiders playing Oklahoma City at 8 a.m. and West Texas State at 6 p.m.

"Oklahoma City always has a strong team, but West Texas will be our toughest competition," declared Hamilton.

"We're hoping to beat them after losing to them 6-3 in the fall."

Trevino, Bean Favored At Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Lee Trevino says he really likes the newly renovated Tucson National Golf Club course, and he gets a chance to demonstrate his fondness today when he tees off as co-favorite with Hawaiian Open winner Andy Bean in the $300,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Trevino, who finished second, three strokes behind Bean, in last weekend's Hawaiian Open, says of Tucson National: "It's an excellent course, 200 percent improved."

Trevino, Bean, defending champ Bruce Lietzke and 141 other pros are aiming for the top prize of $54,000 in the four-day tournament on the rangy par 73

Tucson National course. The tournament returns there after one year away — at the par 70 Randolph Municipal Course — for the renovation.

Tom Watson, 1979's top money winner on the tour, along with Ben Crenshaw, Hubert Green and 22 other of last year's top 60 money winners, are skipping the Tucson Open.

The last two rounds of the tournament are scheduled to be telecast nationally by NBC.

Tucson National's back nine has been virtually rebuilt, with bunkers moved in tightly around the greens and the greens reduced in size and elevated. It's been turned into a shotmaker's course, and that is the reason master shotmaker Trevino likes it.

"Before, the greens were too big and bunkers too far from the pin," he said. "Now, the bunkers are close to the green. Now you need tough iron shots. You can't hit the green without a good iron shot, and that's what golf is all about."

Trevino, a two-time winner of the Tucson Open and No. 2 all-time money winner in pro golf, is coming off an excellent performance in Hawaii, his first tournament of the year.

"I felt like I had won," he said. "I haven't played in six weeks. That gives me a tremendous amount of confidence, to play well in my first tournament of the season. I hope I can continue it this week."

Bean, meanwhile, enters the Tucson

Open after setting a Hawaiian Open tournament record with a 22-under-par 266. He's a long-ball hitter, and his style of play also fits well with Tucson National.

The course is 7,095 yards long, including one par 5 hole that measures 622 yards.

But while the pros could simply hit the ball a long way on their drives and approach shots to make National's greens in past years, their long shots now must be accurate as well, said club pro Frank Boynton, who picks Trevino as the favorite.

"The thinking behind the design of the course is to reward shotmaking instead of putting," Boynton said. "Whoever wins the tournament will be a shotmaker. I think you'll see Trevino could repeat because he's one of the best shotmakers on the tour."

One thing is for sure, said three-time Tucson Open winner Johnny Miller. "Nobody's going to shoot 25 under like I did a few years ago."

Girls' Basketball Team Delays Game

CLOVER SC (AP) — Fort Mill High School girls basketball team held the ball during their Tuesday night game against Clover High but still lost 6-2.

The Yellow Jackets held the ball most of the first period, all of the second and third periods, and most of the last.

Clover led 2-0 at the half after scoring early in the second quarter. Fort Mill had a shot at the buzzer but it fell short. Clover then increased its lead to 4-0 in the third period.

Melinda Helms scored Fort Mill's only basket late in the game, but Clover countered with two free throws to preserve the win.

Fort Mill is now 0-17 this season and has lost 40 games in a row over three seasons.

Bean, meanwhile, enters the Tucson

Table with columns: PEOIA III (A.P.) - Here are the results after the first qualifying round - six games - of the $175,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

By The Associated Press Houston's Robert Reid scored 13 fourth-quarter points and Moses Malone capitalized at the free throw line in the final two minutes to rally the tiring Rockets to a 122-117 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Knicks Wednesday night.

Reid finished with 16 points for the game and hit nine of Houston's first 13 points in the fourth quarter to keep pace with the Knicks, who led 108-102 with 4:30 left in the game.

The Rockets tied the game at 108-all with 3:57 left on a basket by Reid and took the lead for good on Malone's two free throws with 1:42 remaining that gave Houston a 116-115 lead.

Malone, who led Houston with 28 points, then hit four more free throws and Rudy Tomjanovich hit a pair for Houston's final score.

Bucks 111, Bulls 101 The Milwaukee Bucks, behind 32 points by Junior Bridgeman and 23 by Brian Winters, opened a 13-point fourth-quarter lead Wednesday and held on for a 111-101 National Basketball Association victory over Chicago.

A layup by Richard Washington gave the Bucks a 63-55 lead with 7:19 left in the third quarter, and 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore of the Bulls was charged with his fifth foul on the play. Gilmore went to the bench, and the Bulls began working inside. The Bulls stayed close by sinking 10 free throws in the last 5:20 of the third period.

But Winters put in 13 points in the period to help Milwaukee open a 90-77 lead with just over 10 minutes left in the game, the club's fourth consecutive victory.

76ers 107, Jazz 85 Bobby Jones scored 23 points as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated Utah 107-85 Wednesday night - handing the Jazz their fourth straight National Basketball Association loss.

Utah's only lead was when Ron Boone put the Jazz ahead 2-0. Darryl Dawkins put the 76ers on top for good at 5:17 with a free throw to break a tie and make it 14-13. Philadelphia led at half-time, 45-38.

Utah's Terry Furlow paced the Jazz with 22. Philadelphia's Steve Mix scored 18 and Julius Erving and Darryl Dawkins had 16 each. Caldwell Jones snared 20 rebounds for the Sixers.

Cavaliers 107, Pistons 102 Forward Mike Mitchell scored 20 of his game-high 40 points in the final period Wednesday night to rally the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 107-102 National Basketball Association victory over the Detroit Pistons.

In winning, the Cavaliers snapped a five-game losing streak, while sending the staggering Pistons down to their seventh consecutive setback and 44th of the season against only 14 victories, the league's poorest record.

Nets 96, Pacers 96 Maurice Lucas scored 21 points and had 12 rebounds to lead New Jersey in both categories Wednesday night as the Nets edged the Indiana Pacers 96-96 in National Basketball Association play.

Ed Jordan, one of six Nets in double figures, recorded 8 steals with one coming as Indiana tried to regain the lead in the final minute.

Suns 135, Celtics 134 Walter Davis hit two free throws with 10 seconds remaining to boost the Phoenix Suns to a 135-134 come-from-behind victory over the Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Association contest Wednesday night.

The Suns, who had trailed by as many as 11 points in the final period, outshot the Celtics 14-4 in the final two minutes to raise their season record to 38-20. The Celtics, who were led by a career-high 45 point effort from rookie Larry Bird, dropped to 43-14 as they had a seven-game victory streak snapped.

Davis had 20 points while Paul Westphal led the Suns with 34.

Women's Swim Coach Retires From Tech Texas Tech women's swim coach Anne Goodman announced her resignation today, according to the Tech Women's Athletic Department.

Goodman, the Raider coach for the last four years, will be married May 10 to William L. James IV of San Angelo, the older brother of Tech freshman swimmer Janie James.

Miss Goodman was a Tech swimmer herself for four years and led the Raiders to state championships in 1972 and 1973.

After completing her Masters degree in biomechanics and working with legendary swim coach Doc Councilman at Indiana University, Goodman returned to Tech in 1976, replacing Millie Roberts as women's swimming and diving coach.

Her teams have improved their finishes in each of the last three years. Last season the Raiders finished fifth in the state.

Veteran Television Actor David Janssen Dies Of Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor David Janssen, who led detectives on a tense chase for years as the falsely accused murderer in television's "The Fugitive," died of a heart attack Wednesday at age 48.

Janssen suffered the attack at his Malibu home, said actor Stuart Whitman, a longtime friend who happened to be driving by about 4:30 a.m. on his way to his ranch in Santa Barbara.

Whitman stopped when he saw an ambulance and a fire truck outside the Janssen home. He went inside and saw paramedics summoned by Janssen's wife trying to revive the actor.

"They had taken him out of bed and they were working on him, and working on him," Whitman said. "It must have been half an hour altogether. One of them then said, 'I think I've got a heartbeat,' and they took him to the hospital." Janssen was pronounced dead at Santa Monica Hospital.

The death came as a shock to friends and colleagues. Janssen's agent and manager of 21 years, Abner Greshler, said Janssen had "no history whatsoever" of heart problems and that his doctor "is in just as much of a state of shock as we are."

Producer Jean Moore Edwards said Janssen had started work on a television film, "Father Damien," about a leper priest in Hawaii, only two days earlier.

"He had put in a full and productive day and was in high spirits when he left the set yesterday," she said in a statement.

Janssen was born David Meyer on March 27, 1931, in Naponee, Neb. His parents divorced when he was young and his mother brought him to Hollywood, where he made his film debut at age 9 in "Swamp Fire," portraying the brother of Johnny Weissmuller.

Janssen, who took his stage name from his stepfather, appeared in numerous movies as a young man before making his dent in television playing the title role in the detective series "Richard Diamond" from 1957 to 1960.

But it was "The Fugitive" that made him a bona fide star. From 1963 to 1967 he played the role of Richard Kimball, who was accused of killing his wife but who eluded authorities week after week as he sought the shadowy one-armed man who had really committed the murder.

"The Fugitive," loosely based on the famed Sam Sheppard murder case in Ohio, earned Janssen three Emmy nominations. The last show of the series, in which the true murderer finally came to light, won the highest-ever A.C. Nielsen rating for an episode of a continuing series with 72 percent of the audience.

Before his TV career skyrocketed, Janssen had been under contract to 20th Century Fox and later Universal, where — after spending two years in the Army in Korea — he made what one of his own publicity releases described as "32 forgettable films."

Things picked up after "Richard Diamond" and "The Fugitive." He went on to star in such theatrical films as John Wayne's "The Green Berets," "The Shoes of the Fisherman," "Marooned" and "Two Minute Warning."

He also returned to the small screen in two more series: "O'Hara, United States Treasury," and "Harry O."

Recently he had starred in the television mini-series, "The Word," and he had just completed filming of "Oh, In- chon" with Sir Laurence Olivier as Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Janssen played a reporter, as he did in "The Green Berets" and in "City of Fear," a television film tentatively scheduled for airing in April.

Janssen is survived by his wife, Dani. An earlier marriage to Ellie Graham ended in divorce after 10 years. Funeral plans were pending.

Network Announces Schedule Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — "Laverne and Shirley" will return to a Tuesday night timeslot just behind "Happy Days" as ABC attempts to regain the No. 1 ranking it held for nearly four years, the network announced Tuesday.

The schedule change was one of several by ABC, which began the current season in first place but has since fallen to second behind CBS.

NBC, third in the networks' ratings competition, announced its so-called second season schedule Monday. CBS so far has not revised its program lineup for the remainder of the season.

ABC's changes include two new shows, "When the Whistle Blows" and "That's Incredible!," and a revised edition of a 1978-79 entry, "Battlestar Galactica," called "Galactica 1980."

"That's Incredible!" features John Davidson, Fran Tarkenton and Cathy Lee Crosby in an hour of stranger-than-fiction happenings. The Monday night series, originally called "Incredible Sunday," will premiere March 3 at 8 p.m. EST.

"When the Whistle Blows" is a comedy set in the world of heavy construction. It airs Fridays 8-9 p.m., beginning March 14.

"Galactica" premiered to considerable fanfare a year ago, but never quite got off the ground. The concept has been revised for the new run. The series, which will air Sunday nights at 7-8 p.m. beginning March 16, returned to ABC as a special several weeks ago.

"Laverne and Shirley," with "Happy Days" as a lead-in, was introduced in 1976 and became television's No. 1 prime-time series the next season. ABC moved the show for the current season, first to Thursday night, and later to Monday evening, with only moderate success.

In addition to "Laverne and Shirley," ABC said "Family" and "Stone" will swap Monday night timeslots, with "Family" moving to 9 p.m. and "Stone" to 10.

The comedy series "Angie" and "Goodtime Girls" will leave the schedule Feb. 26 and March 3, ABC said, stopping short of announcing their cancellation.

'The Exorcist' On TV Draws Protests

By The Associated Press
Protests prompted several television stations to reschedule Tuesday night's showing of the movie "The Exorcist," while others, despite the protests, decided to keep it in the time slot CBS designated for its CBS Special Movie.

At Grand Junction, Colo., WREX-TV Station Manager Bill Sullivan said the station was moving the film to 11 p.m., local time.

"From the sounds of our calls this morning, probably one of our ministers did a little sermonizing," Sullivan said Monday, when the station received about 60 calls.

Of those calls, Sullivan said, most said they had not seen the movie or read the book on which it is based.

The movie is about a 12-year-old who is possessed by a demon, and efforts to rid her of the spirit through exorcism. It contains scenes which some people have said are excessively violent or sacrilegious.

(Lubbock's KLBK, Channel 13, aired "The Exorcist" at its scheduled time.)

Another station choosing to change the scheduled showing time was WQWT in Omaha, Neb., which moved the movie to 10:30 p.m., local time.

"By carefully watching the program, we determined that it was not suitable for prime-time viewing," said WQWT Program Director John Dixon. "We've had a lot of calls, the vast majority complementing us on moving it — over 80 percent."

After viewing the film sent by the network to affiliates by cable, Dixon said: "I didn't feel it was edited enough, for this market at least."

But in Detroit, a spokeswoman for CBS affiliate WJBK said the movie "has been so edited it won't be shocking." The spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified, said that when the station's switchboard opened Monday morning, it was deluged with protests.

Despite the 800 calls which had been received by Monday night, she said, the film would be shown in its scheduled time slot.

And in Minneapolis, Marsha Stanville, promotion director for WCCO-TV, said the station had received more than 5,000 telephone calls Monday and Tuesday protesting the showing of the film in prime time.

However, she added, "CBS and WCCO have taken pains to tell people that parental guidance is suggested. I have seen other things on TV that are as objectionable, such as the Frankenstein monsters."

Stations in Denver and Colorado Springs, Colo., also said they received protesting telephone calls and letters, but decided to go ahead and show it in prime time.

Paul Jensen, a spokesman for KOLN in Lincoln, Neb., said his station also was showing it at the scheduled time, despite about 45 requests not to show it at all. "I would have had a lot of calls protesting if I had moved it," he said. "In an instance like this, a program that could be considered by some controversial in content, the station, no matter what its decision, would have people who disapprove of it."

Hundreds Approve Sadistic Video Program

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hundreds of persons telephoned KQED-TV after it televised an explicit documentary on sadomasochism, and about 70 percent of the callers approved of the program, station officials said.

"We normally get maybe a hundred calls when we have feedback after a program, and we got eight to 10 times that amount," KQED-TV news director Roxanne Russell said Tuesday.

She said she was surprised that about 70 percent of the callers approved of the show, which included scenes of persons being placed in stocks, whipped for pleasure or harnessed as slaves.

"We were really surprised. When we planned the program we had no idea how the viewers would react. Most of them wanted repeats," Mrs. Russell said.

Production assistant Erik Schotz said callers' comments ranged from "my compliments to the producer" to "I want to withdraw my subscription."

He said one caller praised the station for its hour-long program and the 30-minute discussion that followed, while objecting to sadomasochism — obtaining pleasure from the infliction of physical or mental pain on others or on oneself.

Mrs. Russell said the 30 percent of the callers who disliked the show seemed "troubled more by the subject matter itself rather than whether it belonged on television. People didn't want to believe... (it's) really here."

Wishful Thinking.

If you wish you could save for the future, remember this: Wishing won't make it so.

But United States Savings Bonds will.

All you have to do is join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

That way, each payday, a little bit will automatically be set aside to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

And you won't even miss the money. Yet, before you know it, you've got the savings for the vacation of your dreams. Or a down payment on that house you always wished for.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan. You'll wish you joined sooner.

Take stock in America.
