

BIG POTHOLE — An unidentified couple stands near work crew at the edge of a huge hole, all that's left of a section of Nichols Canyon Road in Los Angeles after heavy rains and mudslides washed the road surface away over the weekend. On the heels of "one storm right after the other" the death toll Monday climbed to at least 24 from the rainstorms that began last week and were in the sixth day Monday. Some 3,000 persons were left homeless at the inundated Point Mugu Naval Air Station where 550 homes were in up to 5 feet of water. There was no let-up in the relentless rainstorm. (AP Laserphoto)

Western U.S. Inundated As Storm Follows Storm

By The Associated Press
 A DELUGE in its sixth day carved away more California hillsides and left thousands homeless at an inundated Navy base, Monday, as "one storm right after the other" rolled in from the Pacific.
 The fifth in the series of Pacific storms was expected to strike the already saturated area during the night, and a sixth was due late Tuesday or early Wednesday, the National Weather Service said.
 The death toll climbed to at least 24 in the rainstorms that began last week. The victims included 18 in California, three in Arizona and three American tourists swept away by floodwaters in Tijuana, Mexico, just across the border. One person was missing in Arizona after being swept from a raft on a flooded creek.

By Monday night, the season's rainfall in Los Angeles had reached 19.33 inches, 9.8 inches above normal for this time of year.

Crash Kills Two
 Among the latest victims were two Burbank-area residents, who were killed when a light plane crashed during a storm. Sunday night, in the San Gabriel Mountains north of Saugus, Calif. Two other persons were seriously injured in the crash.

With dams across the Far West brim full, there was no let-up in the relentless rainstorms in Southern California, where mudslides and high water have caused millions of dollars in damage.

"There's one storm right after the other," said National Weather Service forecaster Al Bascomb. "There's so many I can't keep track."

About 3,000 people were evacuated for the second time in less than 24 hours, Monday, when more than 550 homes were inundated with up to five feet of mud and water at Point Mugu Naval Air Station, a missile weapons test center about 60 miles north of Los Angeles.

"Here It Comes Again!"
 "Some people were just beginning to return to their homes, about midnight, when a sailor trying to tow a vehicle from a ditch along the highway yelled over the radio, 'Here it comes again!'" said base spokesman Ray Lucasey.

The wall of water left two-thirds of the houses on the base awash and flooded the base chapel, gymnasium and even some higher-elevation barracks "within a few minutes," Lucasey said.
 "Hundreds of sailors have been going back and forth all night in water up to their necks bringing people and belongings out of the flooded housing," Lucasey said.

Hollywood divorce attorney Marvin Mitchelson saw his home in Hollywood Hills left perched precariously on the edge of a cliff created when the wet hillside gave way and flattened another house down the hill.

Actor Injured
 Actor Andy Griffith fell from the roof of his North Hollywood home, Sunday, as he was trying to cover it with plastic during the rain. Griffith broke a bone in his lower back and will be in the hospital about a week, said Richard Linke, Griffith's personal manager.

At Phoenix, renewed evacuations were urged, Monday night, as a new flood described as potentially worse than one over the weekend headed down the normally dry Salt River. The river became a raging torrent in its 20-mile run through the metropolitan area of 1.5 million people over the weekend and only three of the city's 10 bridges were open, Monday.

Later, however, officials downgraded the threat as new forecasts said rainfall would be less than expected. "What we thought was a very serious situation is now a manageable situation," said Jack Pfister, general manager of the Salt River Project.

Flash flood watches were issued for all of southern and western Arizona, but a flash flood warning was cancelled for Oak Creek Canyon, a scenic area south of Flagstaff.

About 400 homes in the Phoenix area were damaged in flooding, along with hundreds of streets and bridges.

Tech Girls Recruited By Playboy

By KIMBERLY PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
PLAYBOY magazine is looking for a few good women and has come to the Texas Tech campus to recruit.

Continuing its photo review of America's college coeds, in various stages of undress, the male-oriented magazine's editors are searching for women from the nine Southwest Conference schools to pose for its 1980 "Back to School" issue.

Playboy representative David Chan said Monday that first day response to an ad placed in Tech's student newspaper, The University Daily, had been "very good" and that he expected an "avalanche" of applicants before the week-long interview session ends Saturday.

Chan explained that the interview involved nothing more than completing an application and securing a snapshot of each girl — fully clothed.

Three Categories
 Applicants can compete in three categories with the most money going to those showing the most. Chan explained. Posing for a picture (fully clothed) will earn a selected coed $100, a semi-nude pose will bring $200 and a beauty in the buff will be paid $300.

When the tour of the Southwest Conference schools — eight in Texas and one in Arkansas — is completed, and pictures and applications reviewed, then five or six girls from each university will be selected, the veteran Playboy photographer said.

About 900 college women from the University of Texas at Austin, University of Houston, Rice University and Texas A & M University have interviewed with Chan, who said that three or four of the coeds — from UT Austin and A&M — could qualify for a Playmate of the Month title, which pays $10,000 minimum.

Chan said that so far in Lubbock he has not received any negative response to the project. However, women at several Ivy League colleges protested what they said was the magazine's sexist attitude.

Canada's Liberals Return To Power Trudeau Prime Minister Again

TORONTO (AP) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau appeared headed back to the leadership of Canada, Monday night, as early election returns gave his Liberal Party a commanding lead in eastern provinces and indicated a national sweep.

The Canadian Press declared the Liberals elected over the Progressive Conservatives of Prime Minister Joe Clark. Two national television networks — the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the commercially operated Canadian Television (CTV) — projected a majority government for Trudeau, summoned back after the Progressive Conservative minority government collapsed in December over an austerity budget that called for a tax on gasoline.

With 159 of 281 election districts tabulated, the Liberals had won 119 seats and were leading in 24. They needed 142 for a majority. The Conservatives had 36 seats and were leading in 22. The socialistic New Democratic Party had won four seats and were leading in nine.

47 Percent
 The Liberals were winning 47 percent of the popular vote, the Conservatives 31 percent and the New Democrats 18 percent, according to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

For the 60-year-old Trudeau, prime minister from April 1968 to May 1979, this would be his fourth term as government chief. He had said this was his last election and that he would step down in two or three years. He handily won reelection to his Parliament seat in his Mount Royal district in Montreal.

A victim of the Liberal sweep in the East was Fabien Roy, leader of the rightist Social Credit Party, which aligned itself with the Conservatives in the last minority government.

New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent was easily re-elected in his Ontario district.

East Leads Off
 The Liberal tide against the 40-year-old Clark's Conservatives began in the eastern Maritime provinces, where Trudeau's team took four House of Commons seats that had been held by Conservatives in Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, and swept across staunchly Liberal Quebec into all-important Ontario, which has 95 seats in the 282-seat House.

"Obviously we're very encouraged and very pleased," the national Liberal Party president, Alasdair Graham, said of the early results.

The party electing the most members to the House of Commons forms the government and the party leader becomes prime minister.

Canadians, electing 281 members of the House of Commons with one more to be elected in March, had the choice of giving Clark the "fair chance" he had asked for to carry out his tough economic program, or to call in the veteran Trudeau for an encore as leader.

Polls Said Trudeau
 Pre-election opinion polls pointed to a victory by Trudeau, whose Liberal government was defeated by the Conservatives in elections last May.

More than 10 million people — over 70 percent of those eligible — were expected to vote in 281 parliamentary districts. The House of Commons has 282 seats, but one district's election was postponed until March because of the death of a candidate.

The last national Gallup poll gave the Liberals a 48-to-28-percent edge over the Conservatives, with the socialist New Democrats holding 23 percent. Another

$5,000 Declared 'Down Payment'

AUSTIN (AP) — The $5,000 that Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton received in an FBI undercover operation was just a down payment on $600,000 he and others were promised, according to a report published Monday.

The Dallas Times-Herald, in a copyright story filed by its Austin bureau, quoted Justice Department sources as saying that the total amount, offered for help in obtaining a state insurance contract, was to be divided among Clayton and "other associates."

Clayton, contacted at his Springlake home by the newspaper, Monday, acknowledged contributions totaling $600,000 were mentioned during his Nov. 8 survey, by Canadian Television, showed the Liberals with a 10-point edge.

Despite this, the Conservatives had predicted an upset victory, saying Canadians did not want to return to a Liberal government so quickly after 11 years under Trudeau.

The pundits dubbed it "the 18-cent campaign," because the key issue was a proposed austerity budget in which Clark called for an unpopular increase of 18 cents a gallon in the gasoline tax, raising the price to $1.20 a gallon. There was another underlying issue — Clark himself.

For reasons ranging from his narrow background to his youth, to his lanky awkwardness, the small-town Westerner had serious "image" problems and had drawn little public confidence in his personal leadership.

The Clark minority government fell Dec. 13 when the Liberals and New Democrats combined on a vote of no-confidence based on the Conservative budget.

12-Year-Old Nabbed As Suspect In Robbery

A 12-YEAR-old boy, who reportedly robbed a woman at knife-point, was being held by police Monday after he was cornered by the woman's 61-year-old neighbor.

George Davis Overstreet, a neighbor of Maria Valdez, 63, of 3315 E. 15th St., told police he was standing in his front yard when Mrs. Valdez yelled out, "That boy just robbed me." Overstreet grabbed the boy, placed him in his pickup truck and waved down police, who took the boy into custody.

Mrs. Valdez told police the boy walked into her home through an unlocked kitchen door about 2:45 p.m. and asked her about a motorcycle in her front yard. When the woman said that she didn't know anything about the motorcycle, the boy reportedly pulled out an eight-inch paring knife and told the woman he would kill her if she didn't give him the keys to the cycle.

When Mrs. Valdez replied that her husband had the keys to the cycle, the boy demanded money, and she gave him $16 from her purse.

Overstreet stopped the suspect as he was running southeast from the woman's house.

Police found a knife and money in the boy's pockets.

He is scheduled to be turned over to juvenile probation authorities this morning.

'Country Boy' Fight Pledged By Clayton

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FRIONA — Speaker of the Texas House Bill Clayton, presenting a strongly patriotic address here Monday night, said, "We're not going to slow up one bit," despite his implication in a wide-ranging insurance bribery scandal.

"I've had $1 million worth of publicity in the last two weeks and I didn't really want it that way," the Springlake Democrat told nearly 200 supporters at a special appreciation dinner here. "But I tell you they've run into a country boy and he's gonna give 'em a fight to the finish."

The dinner, sponsored by Clayton's supporters in Bailey and Farmer counties, capped the first day of a busy week that includes many personal appearances across his home district.

Clayton still is waiting to testify before a federal grand jury in Houston concerning his implication in a Justice Department undercover probe that alleges he accepted $5,000 from an FBI agent posing as a representative from a major insurance company. The investigation, code name "Bribab," is looking into bribery and kickback charges against several government officials, political figures and businessmen from across the South and Southwest.

After news of the scandal broke about 10 days ago, Clayton said he accepted "a stack of $100 bills" only to avoid embarrassing a supporter in front of a business associate. The speaker contends the money was neither a bribe nor a political contribution because he had not touched the money since and had intended to return it.

"I can tell you for sure, as long as you're with us, we're going to win," Clayton told the crowd between two standing ovations. "We're not going to slow up one bit because of the incidents and reports of the past couple of days."

Bidding for a fourth term as Texas House Speaker, Clayton spoke at length about his optimism for the future of his 74th District, which he has represented for nearly 18 years. He remains unopposed in the district, but is facing a stiff challenge in his attempt to become the first four-term speaker in Texas history.

"Sometimes the burden is hard to bear. Sometimes it's unbelievable," he concluded. "But I'm optimistic. I have confidence that right will win out."

Clayton declined to answer reporters' questions after the dinner, saying he had been advised against it by his attorneys.

A copyrighted story Monday in the Dallas Times Herald reported that Clayton was promised up to $600,000 to influence the awarding of a state insurance contract.

TITO'S CONDITION UNCHANGED
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Doctors treating President Josip Broz Tito said Monday that his weakened kidneys had become the focus of their fight to keep the ailing 87-year-old leader alive. For a second day in a row, their medical report failed to list any improvement in Tito's condition, despite what were termed "intensive measures" to bolster his health.

FBI agents, posing as representatives of Prudential Insurance Co., reportedly offered bribes to several political and labor union leaders to entice them to change employee insurance programs.

Information Sought
 Clayton allegedly was asked to provide inside information to help obtain an $81 million state employee health insurance plan.

The newspaper quoted sources in California, seat of the four-state undercover operation, nicknamed "Bribab," as saying that federal investigators believe evidence gathered during their investigation of Clayton is "the most solid case of them all." The sources said agents secretly recorded the meeting at which the money changed hands, the Times-Herald said.

Clayton told the newspaper he did nothing wrong, and said he constantly receives offers of contributions.

"We hear crap like that all the time," he said. "You just pass it from your mind because most of them are loony. It happens all the time."

Clayton aide Rusty Kelley testified before the Houston grand jury for four hours, Friday, recounting the Nov. 8 meeting involving Clayton, labor official L.G. Moore of Houston and undercover FBI agent Joseph Hauser.

"I think I'm going to come out all right," Clayton told the newspaper, "because I didn't do anything wrong."
 Clayton repeated his intention to seek an unprecedented fourth term as house speaker, insisting he will be cleared when "the facts are in."

Afghans Report Soviet Offensive

United Press International
SOVIET TROOPS, backed by tanks and helicopter gunships, have launched a major offensive against Moslem rebels in southeastern Afghanistan, rebel spokesmen in Pakistan said Monday.

The spokesmen also said rebels captured a strategic airfield at Faizabad, in the northeastern province of Badakhshan, cutting off supplies to beleaguered government forces.

There was no way to confirm the report of the Soviet offensive against rebel strongholds in the southeastern Pakhtia province. But diplomats in the Pakistani frontier town of Peshawar confirmed the capture of the airfield at Faizabad. The latest accounts of fighting appeared to support reports, both from intelligence sources in Washington and from western diplomats in Pakistan, that the 90,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan increasingly are becoming involved directly in the fighting against the Moslem rebels.

A spokesman for the Hizbi Islami guerrilla group said Soviet troops, backed by tanks and helicopter gunships, stormed into Pakhtia province in an offensive that began Saturday.

He said the fighting was now concentrated around three small towns, Sitakanday, Tira and Domandi, and that the badly outgunned rebels were suffering heavy losses as they tried to hold onto their positions.

He conceded that the rebels probably could not hold out for long because they had no defense against the Russian Mi24 helicopter gunships, armed with heavy calibre machineguns and phosphorus-tipped rockets.

The Hizbi Islami group, one of six major Moslem rebel groups in Afghanistan, said earlier it had captured several towns farther north in Laghman province, including Ali Shang, Mehtarlam and Ali Nagar.

It said Afghan army troops defected to the rebel side at Ali Shang and Faizabad airport, killing their 85 Soviet advisers and playing a major role in the rebel victories there.

Diplomats said they could confirm only that the airfield had fallen.

Nearly all recent reports of fighting in Afghanistan have come from the strip of mountainous provinces in the eastern part of the country, bordering Pakistan, where the rebels are holed up.

The reports of more army defections also appeared to support claims by diplomats that the Afghan army, plagued by

Ronald Reagan Offers Apology, Explanation For Ethnic Joke

HILLSBORO, N.H. (AP) — Ronald Reagan apologized Monday to anyone who might object to an ethnic joke he told about Poles and Italians, but said he intended it as an example of humor he finds in poor taste.

"No slur was intended and I apologize to anyone who was offended by it," the former California governor and Republican presidential hopeful told a news conference in a voice alternately halting and rising in anger.

Asked if it would hurt his campaign with the New Hampshire primary a week away, Reagan replied, "It will if people try to make something of it" and if he were unable to explain to "a number of people ... who don't know what my feelings are.

"But I will match my stand against prejudice and bigotry against anyone's in the country because I've been at it a long time, before there was ever a civil rights movement."

He stood in sub-freezing temperatures outside an inn and said of the initial news story about the joke: "Frankly, I think it was a cheap shot" taken out of context.

The joke, which Reagan told to Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., and other aides and supporters as their campaign bus left Keene for Milford on Saturday, went this way:

"How do you tell the Polish one at a cocktail? He's the one with a duck.

"How do you tell the Italian one? He's the one who bets on the duck.

"How do you know the Mafia is there? The duck wins."

Reagan said he had told the story to display the kind of joke he finds objectionable.

"I don't like that type of humor, and in a conversation about stories once, this came about with one of the reporters on the plane, and I had given this as an example," Reagan said in an interview with radio station WCEM in Claremont.

"And on the bus, he (the reporter) asked me the other day, he said, 'what was the sequence of that story,' and I paused and told him ...

day night by ABC News correspondent John Lawrence.

Gary Schuster, Washington bureau chief for the Detroit News, said Monday that when Reagan told the joke to his aides on Saturday, "Somebody else on the bus heard the joke and told me."

"I asked Reagan to repeat it and he did. That was it."

Other reporters on the bus said the joke to Humphrey and other aides came after a rewarding day of campaigning. Reporters said Reagan's aides laughed heartily at the remark.

Reagan was asked about a statement by Vince Albano, GOP chairman of Manhattan, who said ethnic slurs were not funny to anyone and no ethnic groups should be subjected to ridicule as he believed Reagan had done.

Speaking softly, face flushed, Reagan replied:

"I can understand his feeling that way in the manner in which it was reported. I don't go around telling ethnic jokes to be funny or to be slurring them. As a matter of fact I'm very much opposed to that."

At the time Reagan told the joke, one aide reportedly reacted with dismay, saying: "There goes Connecticut." That state has an Italian-American governor, Ella Grasso, and a large Italian-American population.

One six co-chairmen of the Reagan campaign, former state Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli of Manchester, said he was now uncertain whether he would continue to support Reagan.

No Motive Determined In Young Man's Stabbing

DENVER (AP) — A former mental patient accused of murder in the apparently random stabbing of a man waiting in an airport ticket line was ordered held without bond Monday.

Andrew McCoy, 28, of Denver, who was discharged six weeks ago from the Fort Logan Mental Health Center, appeared before County Judge James Urgo and was told he was being charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Steven F. Herren, 20, of Des Moines, Iowa.

No motive has been established for the slaying and Denver Police Detective John Wyekoff said Herran apparently "was just in the wrong place at the wrong time" when he was stabbed Sunday afternoon.

Herran was waiting to buy a ticket for a United Airlines flight to Des Moines when a man walked up to him in the middle of the crowded airport lobby and stabbed him several times.

"I just heard a scream, and that was it," said a United Airlines ticket salesman. "There were people standing in front of me, so I couldn't see. A little girl was screaming, and her mother took her out."

Herran, stabbed several times in the chest, died two hours later at Denver General Hospital.

Patricia L. W. Maes said she heard a commotion at the United counter, rushed in and saw Herran in a pool of blood on the floor. Several people pointed to a man who was running and said he had just stabbed someone, Maes said.

Maes raced after the man and caught him outside on a ramp leading from the airport's upper level. Maes said he took an 8-inch kitchen knife from the man.

A Denver General Hospital spokesman said McCoy was a patient at the hospital's mental-health unit in November, was transferred to the Fort Logan Mental Health Center and was discharged from there Jan. 3.

McCoy's mother, who asked that her name not be used, said he had been "in and out" of Fort Logan in recent years.

She said she called police Saturday when McCoy threatened her 17-year-old son. She said four patrolmen and a sergeant responded, but left after saying the family should "give him another chance."

She said she called Fort Logan on Sunday morning and was told her son probably would have to be hospitalized again. She said he later went to Denver

General's psychiatric ward, where he was referred to a church where he was supposed to be able to find shelter for the day. Police said they did not know why McCoy went to the airport.

AN EDITORIAL:

British Tap Nuclear Reserve

THE OPPONENTS of nuclear power urge us not to hazard the lives of future generations with its potential impairments.

But equal consideration should be given to the reaction of those generations if they are denied its benefits.

Norman Lamont, deputy United Kingdom energy department secretary, in remarks prepared for a Capitol Hill briefing sponsored by Heritage Foundation, predicted:

"On any realistic assumption, it would be very unlikely that the UK would be able to meet demand, at tolerable prices, without a major contribution from nuclear power."

Prior to Mr. Lamont's remarks, Britain announced its decision to authorize a "major and continuing" nuclear power program.

"I sometimes believe that people get the impression that safety consciousness has been forced on the industry... by public protest," Mr. Lamont said, "but in fact very great attention has been given to safety issues from the earliest days of nuclear power."

INDEED THE record speaks for itself. Britain has nearly a quarter century's experience in operating nuclear power stations.

"During that time," Mr. Lamont points out, "no accidents have occurred that have given rise to significant public hazard and there is no evidence that any injury has been caused by radiation to the public from a nuclear power station in the United Kingdom."

Radiation exposure to the UK population.

AN EDITORIAL:

Budget Is Political Document

DESPITE THE seemingly corroborative indicators, the President's characterization of the budget as one of continued restraint is inaccurate.

Reflective analysis reveals that the tightened appearance results mainly from tax revenues swelled by inflation. For instance, the slight real increase in Fiscal Year 81 outlays is not attributable to a particularly onerous fiscal discipline, but rather to a FY 80 budget bloated by last-minute additions.

In addition, the $15.8 billion deficit is dependent on some extremely dubious assumptions regarding congressional approval of proposed cash management policies.

It should be noted, too, that the administration's decision to forego a tax cut will raise the proportion of federal revenue vs GNP to 21.7 percent, a peacetime record.

WHEN VIEWED separately, the FY 80 budget, announced last January, and the FY 81 budget, announced last month, raise total spending $90 billion, or 18.2 percent.

When current adjustments are included, however, federal outlays rise by 24.7 percent, or $121.8 billion, over the two years. Therefore, the net effect of the in-progress, ad-hoc adjustment of the FY 80 budget is an unannounced spending increase of $31.8 billion.

ART BUCHWALD:

Ali Also The Greatest In Bouts Of Diplomacy

WASHINGTON—Teddy Kennedy keeps screaming that President Carter should leave the White House and come up to New England to debate with him I don't agree

In times like these the President must be in Washington dealing with each crisis as it comes up Take early last week. The President was in the Oval Office when his Security Adviser Brzezinski rushed in with a cable.

"Is it from Pakistan?"

"No," said Brzezinski. "It's from Muhammad Ali in Tanzania. He wants to come home."

The President, who never panics in a crisis, said, "He can't do it. The cornerstone of our entire foreign policy depends on his mission."

"I KNOW THAT, Mr. President, but he says in his cable that the president of Tanzania won't see him."

"Why not? Is it because Ali is no longer heavy-weight champion of the world?"

"No, it's because he's black."

"Isn't the president of Tanzania black?"

"That's just the point. The president of Tanzania is sore because we sent a black man to persuade him to call off the Olympics. He thinks you're patronizing him."

"But doesn't he know I didn't send Ali because of his color? I sent him because he's the best diplomat I've got."

"I KNOW IT, and you know it. But nobody else does. Mr. President, what are we going to do?"

"What else does he say in his cable?"

Brzezinski read from it, "All the black Africans here in Tanzania tell me their fight is with South Africa and not with Russia. How come you didn't he says, is less than one-half of one percent of the total radiation exposure from all natural and man-made sources.

For example, the dosage that one would receive from cosmic radiation standing on the steps of the Capitol in Denver, Colo., is twice that on the Capitol in Washington, D.C., and the difference is greater than would be caused by being in the vicinity of a nuclear power station.

THE ASPECT of nuclear power that has possibly given rise to most public concern is the disposal of nuclear waste. Admittedly, we should exercise the utmost caution in dealing with these materials.

But, as Mr. Lamont points it, it is also worth bearing in mind that there are other energy policy decisions, those, for instance, affecting the depletion of fossil fuel reserves, that can have implications for succeeding generations.

"The problems of disposal must be seen," he said, "in relation to the quantities and technologies involved and the technologies that are available. For instance, a method of converting fission product waste into a form of glass has been demonstrated on a pilot scale (in France) and will be operational within the UK within the next 10 years."

Nuclear power, as no other, raises irrational emotions in otherwise rational human beings. Amidst all the sound and the fury, elected leaders like Mr. Lamont are trying to reach rational conclusions. For generations, present and future.

Despite an ever-more pessimistic inflation prognosis, the FY 81 budget calls for new and expanded spending programs. A good indicator of the election year budget largess is the $25.7 billion increase in proposed budget authority.

Subsidized housing, for example, is allocated only $100 million in FY 81 outlays, but its budget authority is $2.9 billion.

THE PRESIDENT focused on the deficit as an indicator of the budget's stringency, stressing that FY 81 red ink is 60 percent below the administration's estimate for the current fiscal year.

But the deficit, particularly when compared to the current fiscal year figure, is a poor indicator of federal austerity. Already it has been noted that the administration failed to include the Defense Department's need for an additional $3.5 billion in 1980 and $4.5 billion in 1981 to cover higher fuel costs.

To fulfill something-for-everyone expectations, and yet maintain a semblance of credibility, the administration permits the level of taxes to rise to a peacetime record.

Consequently, taxpayers will continue to find their real disposable incomes falling—ostensibly as an anti-inflationary measure—while Mr. Carter's supposedly anti-inflationary deficit keeps on rising.

tell me that when you made me Special Ambassador to the Dark Continent?"

"I thought I did," Carter said. "Why don't we cable him and tell him that if he cuts his mission short, the Russians might go ahead with their Olympics, and then they will never get out of Afghanistan."

"I talked to our people in Tanzania and they told him that already He said it doesn't matter because he's the greatest diplomat in the world and he'll lose his title if no head of state will see him."

"BUT IT'S just one country. I'm sure the presidents of Kenya and Liberia will see him."

"Yes, but they have already decided not to go to the Moscow Olympics."

"He doesn't know that," Carter said.

"I think you ought to send him a cable immediately, Mr. President. If Ali cancels his trip now we could not only lose Afghanistan, but Maine and New Hampshire as well."

"All right, send the following wire. 'Dear Champ, As President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief, I am ordering you to continue your diplomatic mission.'

"Your negotiations could mean the difference between a Moscow Olympics or no Olympics at all."

"OUR ONLY hope to avoid a confrontation between the two major nuclear powers is your ability to persuade Nigeria and Senegal to stay home this summer. All America awaits your decision."

Happily for all of us, Ali decided to continue his historic journey.

The only reason I mention all this is that if President Carter had been slogging through Maine last week, as Teddy would have him do, he would never have had time to deal with the Ali crisis, which many diplomatic observers are now describing as the turning-point in Soviet-American relations.

She Blames President For 'Inviting' Soviet Moves

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Sixty-two years of Soviet rampaging tyranny, conquering half the world, but only after the rape of Afghanistan President Carter announces he's discovered "the Soviets can't be trusted." Brilliant!

President Carter's craven appeasement and unilateral disarmament leave a weakened America facing the worst peril in its history.

Paying blackmail to Iranian terrorists holding 50 Americans captive, President Carter concurs with weaseling UN Sec. Gen. Waldheim to try America's staunch ally, the Shah, for his "crimes."

Was it a crime the Shah held the Soviets at bay, kept secure the vital, oil-rich Persian Gulf areas? The crime was President Carter's aid in toppling the Shah. The free world and Afghanistan are paying the awful price of Carter's folly.

The Soviet repression of dissidents grows ever more cruel. Parents teaching Christianity to their children are thrown in labor camps suffering hunger and torture. Andre Sakharov, Nobel Prize scientist, and matchless, heroic dissident is imprisoned. The Soviets and Hanoi are keeping food from starving Cambodians.

President Carter ignores Russia's bastion, Cuba, bristling with missile-laden planes and submarines targeted at America, while Castro Communizes Central America.

In 1980, Americans must elect a fearless American patriot President or face Armageddon. Elizabeth Lippitt, San Francisco

Odessa Man Warns Energy, Tax Policy Path To Ruin

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: When are President Carter and the politicians going to tell the American people that they are going to pay the oil excise tax? Business and industry don't pay taxes, they pass them along to the consumer.

The original point of decontrol was to increase domestic production. Now, the government will get the windfall of 78 cents on every extra dollar realized from decontrol. If there has to be a tax, why can't it be 50-50? What happened to the sense of fair play in America?

Without the oil excise tax, the government will collect between $175-300 billion in new taxes between 1980-90 with the existing tax laws. The excise tax will raise $227 billion on top of that! President Carter only asked for $142 billion for his entire energy program. The federal government is getting the windfall.

While all this is going on the cost of gasoline and heating oil will continue to go up, the Arabs will get richer, the bureaucracy will get larger and worst of all, 10 years from now we'll still be dependent on most of our foreign oil. Bob Madison, 2735 East 8th St., Odessa

Plot Seen By Lubbockite To Keep Up World Crises

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: I have read that Rockefeller and Chase Manhattan Bank have placed money on both Bush and Carter. They win either way. It seems they never get enough!

I've felt all along that some companies are willing to do anything for selfish profit. They like to keep a war going somewhere in the world to feed their fiery furnaces and sell war materials.

They manipulate governments, a Panama Canal giveaway or Iran like playing a game of checkers, as they walk over the backs of taxpayers who may be crying for bread, but the "big boys" say, "Let 'em eat cake!"

There is nothing like a war to keep the profits rolling in. As our young sacrifice life and limb in war no one ever seems to demand of big companies and unions to sacrifice too.

These people are internationalists who use tax money to swing their deals all over the world and we peons vote and pay for it.

We can't win for losing, but will go down trying. Like a stubborn woman I'll say cut it with scissors while they say use a knife. Then when they drag me to a pond and hold me under awhile, I'll still come up yelling scissors. Finally as I'm held under too long I'll hold up two fingers with a cutting motion. Women Have As Much Right To Fight As Men, She Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: This letter is in response to the letter by Skeet Workman which appeared in The A-J on Feb. 5.

Why shouldn't we be talking about drafting women? Why shouldn't women be treated equally with men?

Since we all live in the U.S. and supposedly can all take advantage of its freedoms—shouldn't we all be allowed to participate equally in the defense of our nation and our way of life?

As a great philosopher once noted "Since women make up half of the human race, they must now be made equal so they can hold up their half of the sky."

I agree with Mrs. Workman that "combat is hell." But I do not consider it any more inhumane or contemptible to send young women into combat than it is to send young men. I would feel equal heartbreak if my 17-year-old son (who recently enlisted in the U.S. Army) were in a POW camp or if either of my "draft-age" daughters were. I love my son no less than my daughters.

As far as my reference to "recorded history," I refer Mrs. Workman to an excellent book by John Laffin, "Women in Battle." (It's available at the Tech Library.) If she will take the time to read it she will discover that many women have served in combat in numerous wars with great valor and courage. In response to her comment that Hitler and the Japanese found it more efficient not to use women in combat, one might conclude that their failure to do so may have been one of the factors which led to their defeat.

It might be more instructive to consider the example of our WW II allies, the Soviets, who did have a great number of women in the armed services who contributed valiantly to our common cause.

I sincerely hope that no Americans will be called upon to serve in combat, ever again, anywhere in the world. I think rather than senseless bickering about who should serve in the military, we would be well advised to devote our energies to guaranteeing that some day no one will have to serve. Lou Huyge, 2411 20th St.

Area Woman Wants Leader 'Who Can Be Believed'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: This is my summary of President Carter's three years in office. First he gives away the Panama Canal and makes the American taxpayers pay so much a year for the next 20 years to Panama to take the canal.

He promises a balanced budget by 1980—that hasn't happened. Instead we have the highest rate of inflation in our history. Most of us will soon stop driving our cars because we can't buy gas. That will cause millions to lose their jobs.

He cancels the B1 Bomber and the Cruise missile. Shipbuilding and other military replacements have been cancelled. Our military strength has declined the past three years. The Russians move in to Cuba. He says we won't stand for that. Two weeks later he says that it is alright, no danger.

Then 50 Americans are taken hostage in their own Embassy (which is considered American territory) in Iran. Our President says no way will we allow that, even if we have to use military force. He orders Iran to cut its embassy personnel from more than 200 to 30 in five days and orders all illegal Iranians to leave the U.S. in a few days. This is 100 days later. Our Americans are still prisoners, the Iran Embassy personnel are still here. No Iranians have been deported.

The sanctions he said he would bring against Iran have never been carried out. The American longshoremen are the only ones who have ever tried to keep supplies from going to Iran.

I think it's time for a change in Washington. And I hope we get a President we can believe when he speaks. Mrs. Ben Mouser, Spade

Woman Would 'Lock Up' American Flag Burners

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Why give the American flag-burners front page publicity? They should be locked up and put away for good! We don't need them in our country. Mildred Franklin, 4611 38th St.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Take It Half Off

DALLAS—Something wild is happening up there in the friendly skies of America. There's a not-so-friendly rate war on.

Not everywhere, and not between all airlines, but rate wars have an attractive tendency to be contagious. Remember the gasoline price wars of yesteryear?

The latest and hottest battle is over the Denver-Salt Lake City run and it's almost too good to be true.

Frontier Airlines has locked wings with Braniff and Texas International Airlines in a flurry of give-away fares that started when Texas International launched a $25 "peanuts fare" between the two cities.

Frontier countered with $19, also one-way. (That's a 77-percent discount.) Then Braniff jumped in with a $25 deal. No word yet from United, Eastern or Western on this front, but there's plenty going on between the biggies on other routes.

FOR OPENERS, the family fares are back. American wants you and the missus to "take off together—and take off 50 percent" of her coach ticket. If she can't make it, take one of the kids.

Or take all the kids and save even more—60 percent off for each additional offspring under 18. That's good for anyplace American flies in the continental United States as long as you buy your tickets 24 hours ahead, start your trip by March 17, and make it home by May 31.

United and Braniff promptly matched that, and so did Northwest Orient, which then lowered the ante with its "super saver" flights that knock down the adult full fare anywhere from $30 to $245, depending on where you're headed. (For these you have to buy your tickets seven days in advance.)

That was too much for TWA. Not only would it equal all family fares, it announced, it was going back to letting kids fly free—as long as they're under 18 and traveling with an adult.

AMERICAN AND United said if TWA wants to play that way they can, too, so brace yourself for a mass of moppets on future flights.

That's almost enough right there to set off a rush on first-class fares, which would be serendipitous, indeed, for worried airline officials.

Sound like a price war to you? Or at least a skirmish?

What it boils down to, actually, is a desperate scramble to lure us aloft, especially those of us who can't handle the regular fares since they started taking off at jet speed. Before the shooting started, they were up 30 percent more than this time last year.

The airlines say that barely covers the skyrocketing costs of fuel, and with the sheiks talking about $40-a-barrel oil, costs may hit supersonic levels before it's all over.

BUT THAT'S only part of the problem. Deregulation figures in, too.

According to airline watchers, getting the government out of the flying business brought a lot of travelers into terminals to take advantage of the cheaper flights stimulated by the new free competition.

For a while there, planes took off with people packed in like sardines. Folks who'd never flown before couldn't resist the dozens of come-on-up plans concocted by carriers with new runs.

If Aunt Tillie could puzzle her way through the maze of fine print, Aunt Tillie was in the air.

Then came the fuel crunch, and cheapie flights began to evaporate. So, predictably, did the customers. Clearly, it was time for creative strategy to get people back on planes.

THE PRICE war on the competitive Denver-Salt Lake City run is doing what it's supposed to do, all right. Advance bookings have tripled, and so many travelers are phoning in for reservations the telephone lines can't handle the calls.

Now the biggies are even back in the charter business. TWA has a getaway plan from New York to Florida where you pay airfare, add another $49, and they throw in a car for seven days and two nights in an inn, motel or lodge.

If you act fast (the "sale" ends on March 11.) Pan American will fly you from New York to Grand Bahama and back for $299.95. That includes seven days at a "fantastic" beach-front hotel and casino. Plus free lessons on "the art of gaming." Gambling losses are on you, though.

Delta has a $179 package deal from the Dallas-Forth Worth airport to Las Vegas and back for Friday and Saturday nights at a hotel Sinatra probably never threw a punch in. But at those prices you can afford a taxi to the big-name casinos.

DON'T ASK how they do it. The "why" is another matter. According to the Airline Passenger Association, price-slashing is going to take off in other markets where more and more carriers have moved in to siphon off passengers from airlines who had the routes locked up in pre-regulation days.

Whatever it is, and for as long as it lasts, it's just what poverty-stricken travelers have been waiting for. Now if I can just figure out some reason to fly between Denver and Salt Lake City.

THAT CLASSIC beauty Catherine Deneuve has been quoted as saying, "You will never truly know me until you understand my sister." Students of the mind find it significant. Sisters, they say, influence one another profoundly.

And in a highly complicated manner. A girl can steal her sister's hairbrush—not borrow, but steal—then use it to beat some other girl who tries to steal her sister's hairbrush. Compete. Defend. Compete. Defend. Yet, oddly, sisters rarely kill sisters, though other murders within families happen all the time.

Researcher's Death Unexplained

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Medical authorities are still trying to determine what caused the death of a young scientist cited recently for his research on potential anti-cancer drugs.

John Robert Butterick, age 34, died in his sleep on Jan. 26 at a time when it seemed everything was going his way.

An autopsy showed there was heavy internal bleeding, but no one is sure what triggered it.

"There are some intriguing circumstances that can lead one's imagination to run wild if you let it," said Dr. Thomas Clark, county medical examiner.

Had Butterick become impatient with federal regulations on the use of new drugs on humans? Was he using himself as a guinea pig?

"Last December, dressed in a light blue, three-piece suit, Butterick accepted an award from the National Foundation for Cancer Research. He had been able to remove impurities from a drug that had shown promise in human tests on cancer patients in Ireland.

At West Virginia University, he was a post-doctoral fellow working under chemistry professor Gabor Fodor.

"He was a brilliant young man," said Fodor.

But Butterick, Fodor added, also was stubborn.

"Everybody holds the key to his own life," he said. "For John, it was his stubbornness."

Disregarding the pleadings of colleagues, Butterick refused to see a doctor when he first became ill. He seemed pale and weak on Jan. 24, a Thursday, Fodor said. The next day he called in sick. The following day he was dead.

When police and Clark entered the apartment two days later, they found Butterick in his bed as if he'd gone to sleep. They also found the apartment full of jars of chemicals. Butterick was never far from his work.

Fodor, who had synthesized more than 100 new compounds in his 10 years at the university, began working on methyl glyoxal and found he could extract it from call's liver. But the new substance he made, called MG-AA, contained a toxic impurity that gave it a yellow color.

Butterick was given the task of removing the impurity. His finished product was a white powder.

Doctors used MG-AA on 34 patients in Dublin who had not responded to cancer therapies before. Some dramatic, but short-term, results were noticed, including a drop in inflammation of the tumors, Fodor said.

"I don't believe that it cures cancer," said Fodor. "What I believe is that it helps working out a combined therapy that may cure cancer."

Clark found in Butterick's apartment a chemical dictionary opened to a page describing warfarin, an anti-coagulant used to arrest senility and reduce tumors.

Butterick had purchased 10 grams of warfarin for the laboratory, Fodor said, even though the substance seemed to have no direct bearing on their experiments. Nine-tenths of a gram was used, but no one knows what for.

Dr. James L. Frost, an assistant state medical examiner, is trying to determine if any chemical by-products of warfarin were in Butterick's body.

Fodor said he doesn't believe Butterick committed suicide.

"He had no reason to," said Fodor. "He'd just made a lot of progress. He told the family these two years he spent here were the happiest of his life."

And, a good chemist knows many better ways to die, like sniffing hydrogen cyanide, said Fodor.

"Nobody would bleed to death deliberately," he reasoned.

There were reports that Butterick had a history of bleeding disorders, but Frost said his was not a classic case of hemophilia. The history included excessive bleeding as a child during dental extractions and once when his hand was cut.

Two interviewers from WWVU-TV once had talked to Butterick about new substances that are supposed to increase intelligence.

"They don't work. I've tried them all," Butterick reportedly told them.

Kennedy Backer Wishes Senator Had Waited

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy's honorary campaign chairman in Wyoming says he wishes the Massachusetts senator had waited another four years to run for president.

Former Rep. Teno Roncalio said he still supports Kennedy for the Democratic nomination, but said the political picture has changed considerably since the senator entered the race against President Carter.

"When Kennedy decided to run, it was before the hostages and when he was popular in the polls," Roncalio said over the weekend. "He was asked to run and after that world events have occurred and history has been made that has changed things."

Public Support Urged At Workshop

"If there is one area of communications where the press could stand a few lessons, it's in public relations," said Jean Otto, kickoff speaker for the 1980 Mass Communications Week at Texas Tech University.

Otto, national president of the Society of Professional Journalists-Sigma Delta Chi, said "until we begin to make clear to the American people that the press, both print and broadcast, is their surrogate in courts of law, in state and local governmental meetings, in the fight against closed records, we cannot hope to win the public's support for a free and vigorous press."

Otto added, "Until we win public support, we cannot hope to prevail against those who seek to narrow the channels of information by which the public knows what is happening in this society."

Otto spoke during opening day activities for mass communications week, five days of seminars, demonstrations and lectures by top mass media executives and professional personnel.

Other speakers Monday included Steve Lee, vice president in charge of special events at KCBN Advertising and Public Relations, Dallas, and Lee Sneath, director of marketing for Raymond Nasher Co., Dallas.

Newspaper columnist Jack Anderson will speak on "News Behind the Headlines" at the University Center Theater at 8:15 p.m. today.

Anderson will conclude the Telecommunications Day program, second of five days of activities.

Other speakers scheduled for Tuesday include John C. Butler, vice president for the Mutual Broadcasting System, Dallas, and Richard Wyckoff of the National Association of Broadcasters in Washington, D.C. Both Butler and Wyckoff will speak in room 101 of the Mass Communications Building.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Each year, every company in which I own stock on which dividends have been paid sends me a Form 1099 listing the amount of the dividends. A copy of each Form 1099 is also sent to the Internal Revenue Service. So, the IRS knows what dividend-paying stocks I now own or have owned in the past.

But what about stocks which do not pay dividends? Suppose I buy some non-dividend-paying stock for $2,000 and later sell it for $3,000. The IRS knows nothing about this. My broker says, "Don't report the profit."

I have a feeling you would never advise such a thing. But I would like to if the IRS has any way of learning about my sale and my profit.

A. There would be direct report to the IRS, from an outside source, of your sale and profit. It would be up to you — as a hopefully honest taxpayer — to report your profit as a capital gain on your income tax return.

But you have to remember that the revenooers have many — some people say "devious" — methods.

If your tax returns are ever audited, it's a cinch that you would have to produce the statements you have received from your broker — where your profitable sale of stock would stand out like a sore thumb.

This is not to say that the IRS catches all tax cheats. But you're right about this column never advising such tactics. And I like to think that most brokers also advise against tax evasion.

If I didn't include that last sentence, the mailbox would be full of irate letters from the brokerage fraternity — especially from one old-timer who blows his

Jewish Leader Dies

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Nathan Yellin-Mor, a leader of a Jewish terrorist group responsible for the assassination of a British and a Swedish diplomat in the 1940s, died Monday. He was 67.

Yellin-Mor, born Nathan Friedman, was one of the commanders of the Fighters for the Freedom of Israel, known as the Stern Gang, with battled the British mandatory rulers of Palestine with spectacular bombings and assassinations. In later life, Yellin-Mor became a leading leftist journalist who supported establishment of a Palestinian state.

Yellin-Mor, who immigrated from his native Poland to Palestine at the outbreak of World War II, was the leader of the Stern gang in 1944, when its members shot Lord Moyne, the British Minister for the Middle East, in a Cairo street.

The group also killed Count Folke Bernadotte, the U.N. mediator in 1948 who was trying to work out a peace between the fledgling Jewish state and its warring Arab neighbors. Stern Gang members stopped Bernadotte's jeep at a roadblock outside Jerusalem and riddled him with bullets.

Bernadotte's assassins were never found, but Yellin-Mor was arrested and sentenced to eight years in prison. He was released in a general amnesty and served in the Israeli parliament.

Roommate Mistakes Man For Intruder

A Reese Air Force Base airman, apparently the victim of mistaken identity, was in satisfactory condition Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital, where he was being treated for two stab wounds to the upper left arm.

Kevin Griffin, 20, was stabbed by his roommate shortly before 1 a.m. Monday as Griffin was trying to get into his 5525 Fourth St. apartment.

When police arrived at the apartment complex, they were told by Griffin's 33-year-old roommate, also a Reese AFB airman, that a man had been stabbed. Police reports indicate the porch of the apartment was covered with blood, as was the apartment door.

Officers found Griffin on the other side of a fence by a neighboring apartment, where he was bleeding profusely from the stab wounds from a butcher knife.

Griffin's roommate told police Griffin had called earlier in the evening and said he was being followed by a man with a gun. The roommate said he thought the man following Griffin might be the estranged husband of a 22-year-old woman staying at the two men's apartment until her divorce is final.

The roommate said when Griffin called, he hung up the telephone abruptly and early this morning, when a car pulled up at the apartment, he thought it might be the man pursuing Griffin.

He said he sent the woman into a bedroom and turned out all the apartment lights. The roommate said someone then began fumbling with a key to the door and was able to get it open, but that the door's chain lock prevented the person's entry.

The roommate said he was able to push the door closed once but that the person at the door continued to try and get inside. He said no words were ever exchanged.

When the door opened a second time and the person stuck his hand inside and began turning the lights on and off, the roommate said he stabbed at the arm twice.

After he stabbed the person, he said Griffin identified himself and then apparently fell away from the door.

Lubbock Man Critical Following Car Wreck

David Clinton Blaylock, who had to be cut from his vehicle after it rammed two street light poles and nine guard rails early Monday, was in critical condition late Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Blaylock, of 1321 E. 52nd St., was the lone occupant of his 1978 Ford pickup truck when he apparently lost control of the vehicle at 1:13 a.m. Monday while heading east in the 1500 block of N. Loop 289.

After leaving the road near the intersection of North Avenue N, the 24-year-old Blaylock veered northerly about 18 feet into the bar ditch and traveled another 135 feet before striking the first of the city street light poles, police reports indicate.

Heavy damage to Blaylock's truck indicate the vehicle rolled several times, police said, but they were unable to determine the exact number.

Griffin told police officers he did not want to file charges against his roommate because, "He wouldn't have done it if he'd known it was me."

Two teen-age girls told police that three men forced them to drink beer, refused to take them home and that one of the girls was raped by two of the men during a Sunday evening incident.

The girls, aged 15 and 16, said they had left their 33rd Street residences about 6 p.m. Sunday with two men known by the father of the 15-year-old and went with the duo to buy beer.

After buying the alcohol, the girls said, the men forced them to drink the beer and refused to take them home. Instead, the victims said, the men drove to an apartment in 600 block of East Broadway where they met a third man.

At the apartment, the men reportedly offered to take the girls home, but instead took them to Mackenzie Park and then began driving toward Shallowater on the Clovis Highway.

They said the men drove along the highway about a mile and then stopped. The girls said they took advantage of the opportunity to jump from the car and begin running.

But the 16-year-old said she fell and was caught by one of the men, who dragged her back to the car. She said he threatened to break her arm if she did not cooperate and then raped her.

She said the man they had met at the Broadway apartment also raped her. The third man, she said, remained in the car during the assaults.

After sexually attacking her, she said, the trio gave her clothing and then drove away and she began walking. A Shallowater man picked her up and took her to Health Sciences Center Hospital, where she spoke with officers.

The younger girl, who was able to escape, also was given a ride by a motorist, who took her to her home.

The suspects are described as Mexican males, two about 30 and the third in his early 20s.

Two Missouri truckers, arrested Sunday after they allegedly tried to sell law officers $150,000 worth of frozen beef, remained in Lubbock County Jail this morning.

Rhodesian Guerrillas, Police Join Forces

ROME CAMP, Rhodesia (AP) — After fighting each other for seven years, guerrilla chiefs and police forces are now working together in relocation camps to organize national elections later this month.

Voting that will guarantee black majority rule in the overwhelmingly black British colony is scheduled Feb. 27-29, and approximately 22,000 guerrilla fighters have returned to camps throughout the country under a cease-fire agreement that became effective Jan. 4.

"We might have been enemies before, but we're allies now," said Lookout Masuku, a onetime commander in Joshua Nkomo's arm of the Patriotic Front guerrilla army.

"I never thought I'd see this day," commented police inspector Ber Cubitt, a former anti-guerrilla fighter, as he accompanied Masuku around this camp of 700 former guerrillas.

Masuku, who wore a Russian general's uniform indicative of Soviet support for the guerrilla fighters, last week visited three of the 14 assembly camps to meet British election supervisors and to instruct his 7,000 guerrillas how to vote.

The other 15,000 guerrillas who returned to Rhodesia are loyal to the rival Zimbabwe African National Union, the party of former guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe, who is regarded as the frontrunner in the race.

Blacks will elect 80 members to the 100-seat National Assembly. Last Thursday, white Rhodesians elected legislators to hold the 20 seats reserved for whites in the assembly.

British supervisors organizing elections and commonwealth troops monitoring the truce maintain Nkomo's forces are complying with the cease-fire, but charge that thousands of Mugabe's guerrillas are delaying it and intimidating villagers.

"The two armies are sharply different," said a British officer who has inspected camps throughout Rhodesia. "Nkomo's blokes are disciplined and properly trained under east bloc conditions. Mugabe's chaps are mainly taught just to shoot and run."

At this camp which is monitored by British soldiers, Masuku inspected the guard of honor and ordered his wary field officers to admit police officers.

"I was told I would be shot if I came anywhere near this camp," police inspector John Munro said at Mike Camp, which is 120 miles southwest of here and monitored by British and New Zealand soldiers.

That was a week after a police patrol shot dead four refugees returning from neighboring Botswana in a dusk-to-dawn curfew zone near the camp.

"The guerrillas thought it was deliberate provocation," said Munro. "It wasn't. Our blokes told them to stop or be shot and they ignored us."

Following the incident, Munro flew here in a British monitoring force helicopter from his base 20 miles away and conferred with Masuku.

"We talked it all over, he accepted there was a misunderstanding and now we're welcome back here," said Munro.

Rhodesian police forces will guard polling stations during the balloting and ultimately will replace forces monitoring the cease-fire, the elections, the installation of a new government and independence.

"We must forget the past," Masuku told field commanders at Camp Papa, which is some 80 miles north of here and is monitored by British soldiers. "We must move towards a happy, peaceful future. And we must have integrated friendly forces by independence day."

The local commander at Camp Papa, Comrade Todd, had refused to allow police to enter the camp, charging that they were spies sent to check local defenses. Masuku urged him to allow the police in.

"We've all got to work together," he said.

In at least five camps, guerrillas and police are jointly patrolling the outskirts to prevent occupants leaving to "politicize" villagers, British officials say.

The joint patrols between old enemies are expected to extend to all camps by elections.

"This cooperation makes the whole exercise worth it," a British government spokesman said.

Guard Claims 'Patriotic' Reasons For Massacre

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A former member of Gen. Francisco Franco's honor guard testified Monday he helped kill five Communists and wound four others in a Madrid law office but said he acted out of patriotic motives.

"I fired ... because it would let Spain live in peace," Jose Fernandez Cerra, 33, said under oath as the state put on trial five rightwing extremists in Spain's most explosive court case since the end of the Franco dictatorship 4 1/2 years ago.

The audience, packed with right-wing supporters, cheered when Cerra testified he went armed with a pistol to the offices of leftist labor lawyers on the night of Jan. 24, 1977, "because they were Communists and I had to defend myself."

The slaying of the four unarmed Communist lawyers and an administrative assistant during a labor meeting came four months before centrist Premier Adolfo Suarez legalized the Communist Party. Franco had banned it after winning the Spanish civil war in 1939.

Outside the heavily guarded Justice

Palace, rightwing demonstrators with badges demanding amnesty for the defendants jeered as Communist labor leader Marcelino Camacho entered.

Called the "Atocha Massacre" after the street where the slayings occurred, the case set off massive street demonstrations three years ago. Both leftist and rightist extremists have threatened to step up violence during the trial.

A member of the honor guard that waved the Falange flag and gave the fascist salute at Franco ceremonies, Cerra faces a prison sentence of 33 to 39 years for terrorism, if convicted. Both the private prosecutors, nearly all leftist lawyers, and the state are asking a similar sentence for the other triggerman in the case, Carlos Garcia Julia.

Lawyers representing the victims pressed both Cerra and Garcia Julia about possible links with a right-wing political plot.

Cerra testified he thought the slayings would be a blow against the post-Franco government. Garcia Julia said he believed the visit to the law office "to spare" the Communists "would serve Spanish justice." But he said he had no real motive for firing beyond nervousness.

The joint prosecution alleges Francisco Albadalejo, head of now defunct Franco transport union, arranged the killings as a reply to a leftist transport strike. It asks 38-42 years imprisonment for Albadalejo.

Two other defendants, Cerra's girlfriend Gloria Herguedas and Leocadio Jimenez Caravaca, face lesser charges for aiding and abetting and supplying arms.

Banished Dissident Says Police Used 'Crude Physical Force'

MOSCOW (AP) — Banished dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov said in a statement issued Monday that Soviet police had resorted to "crude physical force" against him and his wife.

The statement was released to Western correspondents by relatives who brought it to Moscow from Gorki, the city 250 miles away to which the Nobel Peace Prize winner was banished last month by the Kremlin.

Sakharov said he had sent a telegram to KGB security police chief Yuri V. Andropov protesting an alleged roughing-up incident and police efforts to bar a close friend from visiting him.

In another statement, issued Feb. 4, Sakharov said he had been threatened by two men armed with a pistol. He also said he had received a postcard with an implied death threat.

The latest incident occurred last Friday when police detained a friend of Sakharov's, Yuri A. Shikhanovich, as he was about to enter the dissident leader's apartment house in Gorki, Sakharov said.

In his statement, Sakharov said he and his wife, Yelena Bonner, then went into a nearby police station to ask what the problem was.

"They threw us out of there, after knocking us down on the floor and hitting in the eyes my wife, who is an invalid in her eyesight," Sakharov said.

Sakharov's wife suffers from a chronic eye disease, and she has gone to Italy several times for special treatment.

At a news conference, Lisa Alekseyeva, a Sakharov family member, told Western reporters that Sakharov had sent to Andropov a telegram reading:

"My friend Shikhanovich, who had arrived to visit, was illegally and without cause detained at our entrance and taken away in an unknown direction. Officials refuse to explain why Shikhanovich was seized, where he is located.

"With regard to us they used crude physical force, knocked us onto the floor, hit my wife in her unwell eyes. I demand that Shikhanovich be immediately allowed to come to us and guilty persons be punished for their illegality."

Miss Alekseyeva said Shikhanovich went to Gorki after the telegram was sent but again was not allowed to see Sakharov.

In another statement, dated Feb. 12, Sakharov said that as of the middle of the previous week he and his wife had begun receiving in Gorki about 20 to 25 letters a day, more than half of them from abroad.

Most of the letters from the West carried greetings or friendly messages, Sakharov said. But he said he had received no word yet from his children in the United States or from personal friends.

Sakharov said letters to him from within the Soviet Union ranged from those accusing him of "fanning up war" and anti-Soviet hatred to letters "wishing me health, cheerfulness and filled with a feeling of solidarity."

Poland Names New Premier

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Edward Babiuch, an economist with responsibility for Communist Party personnel matters and activities, became premier Monday, replacing Piotr Jaroszewicz, who resigned amid worsening economic conditions.

Communist leader Edward Gierek nominated Babiuch for the position at a special session of the Polish parliament, the official news agency PAP reported.

At the same meeting, Jaroszewicz, 70, asked that he be relieved of his functions. His resignation was made public last week during Poland's Communist Party congress.

Babiuch, 52, formally will be premier for only five weeks because he and his government must submit their resignations to the new parliament to be formed after the general elections March 23.

This is a mere formality and Babiuch said Monday he will present his broad program to the new parliament.

In a brief acceptance speech, Babiuch said his government will take as guidance the program worked out by the recent party congress. "One of the government's chief tasks is to increase the efficiency of economy in all fields of the nation's life," he said.

Babiuch has been a member of the ruling party politburo and a secretary of the central committee. In the party secretariat, Babiuch, a close associate of Gierek, coordinated party activities and was concerned with personnel matters.

Babiuch was born into a miner's family at Dabrowa Gornicza. Although an economist by profession, he started his life as a worker in a coal mine.

Babiuch joined the party in 1948 and until 1955 worked in Communist youth organizations.

Later he was named party chief of the Warsaw province — not the city — and returned to headquarters as leader of the organization department.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a student doctor who will be receiving his M.D. in a few months at the University of Miami Medical School. May I comment on the letter signed, "Exposed Against My Will"? The male patient complained about lack of privacy and the insensitivity of doctors. The blame was put totally and I felt, unfairly) on the physician.

I agree, some doctors forget about patient dignity at times, and I find it inexcusable. However, I myself have been forced to work under miserable circumstances in multiple-bed wards. I wish I had more privacy, too, so I could give my patients complete examinations. I find it demoralizing to have to work like this, but often there is no private examining room available, and how can I tell the other patients in the ward not to listen through the fabric curtains?

Ever try to hear heart sounds with jackhammers and plectrums going full blast outside? That's another problem.

Due to crowded conditions, tons of paperwork and increased hospital costs, there's a great deal of pressure on both patients and doctors these days. But please remember our goals are the same, to heal the sick — Resentful

Dear Resentful: If we can put a man on the moon, why can't someone come up with a portable, well-constructed, three-sided screen that will shield a patient from the eyes of strangers during a physical examination? It should be no big deal.

Doctors who have had to be hospitalized invariably treat their patients with more compassion. Walking a few miles in the other fellow's bedroom slippers can be a great teacher, my friend.

Dear Ann: A few months ago our Phi Beta Kappa daughter married a handsome, 6-5 high school football coach. "Bob" is a very pleasant person, but his education is grossly inferior to our daughter's. The intellectual difference is startling, especially when one hears "Bob" speak. He says, "Between you and I," and "We done it." His table manners leave a lot to be desired, too. Last night, in the presence of guests, he said, "I'm sorry I flang the biscuits." (Two landed on the floor.)

We aren't snobs, Ann, but we wish we could help our son-in-law become a bit more refined. Any suggestions? — Very Anonymous, Of Course

Dear Very: I suggest you accept your son-in-law as he is. If your daughter is inclined to help him improve his grammar, she will. (Your letter is additional evidence that love is not only blind but deaf.)

Dear Ann Landers: So many things have changed in the last few years I wonder if it's still rude for people to ask, "How much did you pay for that?" When I was growing up, such inquiries were considered impolite.

We have friends who ask how much we pay for everything, including our house and every piece of furniture in it. Some of my women acquaintances ask the price of my dresses, shoes, jewelry and fur coats.

I don't mind discussing the price of food, fuel oil or utilities, but I cringe when asked about lamps, rugs and pictures on the wall. What's a good response, short of "None of your business"? — Hempstead Gripe

Dear Hemp: Yes, dear, questions about price are still rude. Try this: "Why in the world would you ask a question as personal as THAT?"

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

It is much more difficult for a defender to count tricks than it is for declarer, but there are some occasions when a defender has no real excuse for not making correct discards.

South won the first heart in dummy and promptly led a trump. East showed out and South rose with the ace and continued with the queen. West took his king and continued hearts with South ruffing as soon as he could. Then South started to lead out his trumps.

West should have made things easy for his partner by signalling club strength, but West had not bothered to count declarer's tricks. If West had taken the trouble to do this he would have seen that South had six trumps, a heart and two diamonds as starters and that if South held even one club he would be able to lead toward dummy's king and make his contract.

Still West's wool-gathering did not give South his contract. It was just as easy for East to see that the only way the defense could gather in four tricks would be if West held the doubleton queen-jack of diamonds and South had been dealt four little diamonds and no clubs.

So somewhere along the way East chucked a diamond and South was able to set up his eight-spot of diamonds and fulfill his contract.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: After my baby, my doctor told me I was low on antibiotics. My baby was healthy. He said I needed a rubella shot, then told me not to get pregnant within the next few months. If I get pregnant, would my baby be deformed? — Mrs. C.

There's a misunderstanding here, for sure. Antibiotics have no effect against a virus infection, which is what rubella is.

Antibiotics (like penicillin) are drugs to combat bacteria infections. Antibodies are the body's natural protections. The body makes them as a defense against any infection. They help disarm invading germs so the body can fight the infection on its own.

For some infections, such as rubella (German measles), you can measure the specific antibody level. If there are enough antibodies ready to go to work the person will not get the specific illness, in your case rubella.

The rubella vaccine contains the actual virus that causes the disease. So when you get the shot your body responds by making the antibodies and you are protected thereafter. This is how most vaccines work. Some are less permanent than others. Rubella vaccine provides lifelong immunity. Girls are immunized before childbearing age unless they are already protected because of earlier exposure to the virus and thus have the antibodies. This can be confirmed by tests, if there is doubt.

If a pregnant woman gets rubella there is danger of the fetus being affected seriously. And while the vaccine is not potent enough to cause a person serious illness, it can produce serious effects in the fetus if given during pregnancy. Thus your doctor's warning not to get pregnant for a few months. Follow his timetable.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you say a few words about the Achilles tendon? If it is injured or torn when one is middle aged will it ever heal properly? If so, how long does the healing process take? Is this the same as the hamstring muscle? — M.W.

The Achilles tendon is the strong cord that attaches the calf muscles to the heel bone. The hamstring muscles and tendons are different. These tendons attach muscles to bone at the back of the knee.

There are different opinions about how to treat a torn Achilles tendon. Many orthopedic surgeons sew together the two torn ends. After the operation, the foot and leg are usually placed in a cast. Most heal well at any age. The process may take two months or longer. Other doctors have tried oasting the leg without surgery, hoping the tendon will heal on its own. The surgical procedure is the more common approach. Your age should not affect the treatment or healing.

FOR MRS. M.H. — Cimetidine is the generic (non-trade) name for your Tagamet. It is a newer drug and is quite effective in reducing the amount of acid produced in the stomach. It is used in conditions associated with excessive acid production, like duodenal ulcer. The booklet you want is "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers," which is on its way. Other readers may order a copy by mailing 25 cents, to cover costs of printing and handling, to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it normal for a woman to put on weight at the time of menopause? — Mrs. T.S.A.

No medical reason for it. If there is any weight gain it would be attributed to a lessening of activity.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it harmful for small girls to take bubblebaths? I said it will hurt them. My daughter-in-law insists it will not hurt them. Please settle this question between us. — Mrs. M.S.

Some bubblebath soaps have been implicated in development of vaginal irritations in little girls. They may cause discomfort and vaginal discharge. Eliminating the bubblebath preparation eliminates the problem.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I spent a most inspiring day today when I took a lovely lady, who has limited vision, to her bank to cash a check. She didn't have to stand in line along with the other customers as her bank has a special service teller for handicapped individuals. She put part of her money into traveler's checks, as she feels they are easier to handle than money orders or filling out checks — she just has to sign her name. She then went to a private safety deposit room to fold her paper money. The 20s, 10s, 5s and 1s were each folded in a special way to designate each denomination. She wrapped a different color paper around each stack of bills, securing them with a rubberband. This way she knew at a glance what was what. Also, if there is a question as to what amount of money she hands a clerk at the grocery store, she can tell by the fold of the bill what she has given. It's like having her signature on every bill she handles. I must say, she sure "opened my eyes" to something we, who are blessed with sight, take so for granted. — Anita Kingman

P.S. Take any mistakes I made in writing this as "hugs."
You're a doll, Anita, and thanks for being such a special friend.

This little thought came to me while making my bed this morning and I thought it might give you a chuckle: "People run, walk and jog 'til they drop dead but are always looking for shortcuts to making a bed." — Mrs. Lillian Hulton

DEAR HELOISE:
I was always burning my lemon pie fillings, gravies, sauces, etc., until I discovered the pancake turner!
It's perfect, because it moves more of the pudding at one time, keeping it from getting too hot, yet letting it cook.
I use a pancake turner for all types of stirring and would feel lost without it. The shorter size turner is stronger and works better for thick puddings, fillings and such.

DEAR HELOISE:

NEW YORK (Special) — First-time visitors to New Orleans' annual Mardi Gras celebration usually wake up the morning after its roaring climax convinced that half of what they saw just couldn't have happened anywhere.

Carnival, as the full season of madness is locally known, begins sedately enough with the ball of the Twelfth Night Revelers in early January, and picks up in fervor as day follows day. Between then and Mari Gras Day or Shrove Tuesday — February 19th this year, sixty-five elaborate costume balls will be staged and, in the ten days immediately preceding the opening of the Lenten season on Ash Wednesday, February 20, more than twenty parades will attract thousands of viewers on historic St. Charles and Canal Streets in "the city that care forgot."

The parades and street revelry which feature Mardi Gras belong to everyone. Preceded by massed bands and horse-mounted marshals and captains and, if at night, by boys carrying kerosene-fed flambeaux, most of the parades follow a traditional five-mile course which snakes through the heart of the city. They get their greatest response as they move through the narrow streets of the historic French Quarter.

Each parade has its own unified theme, running the full range of human imagination. The twenty or more floats which make up each parade and the hundreds of colorful costumes of the participants are a year in the making, with the theme shrouded in secrecy until the command to march brings them forth.

But the real spirit of Mardi Gras comes into being when the parade turns into St. Charles Street for its slow progress into the downtown area. Here, thousands of people line the curbs, often waiting for hours to be sure of a good vantage point. Chances are that the clamor will startle the first-time visitor. But there is no need for concern, for this is Mardi Gras and who minds a bit of noise on a good-natured pushing! You spot the veal easily, for he stands quietly, often in the back of the crowd, taking in the beauty and color of the oncoming parade.

And so it goes throughout the ten days of pulse-quicken celebration.

Amidst all the merrymaking and madness in the streets, New Orleans restaurants brace for their biggest crowds of the year. You must book months in advance if you want to dine in the finest ones, and even then you'll probably find yourself waiting in line. But the wait is well worth it, for while these restaurants are known for the best in Creole cooking throughout the year, they really lay out the table during Mardi Gras. Legendary establishments like Brennan's Antonine's, the Caribbean Room, Broussard's and Dooky Chase are the most in demand.

If you haven't planned a trip to New Orleans for this year's Mardi Gras chaos, but would like to join in the excitement, here is a selection of traditional New Orleans dishes, courtesy of some of the city's finest eateries. If you're really ambitious, prepare the entire menu and invite your friends over for an evening of Mardi Gras madness.

1/2 lb. beef, cubed
1/2 lb. smoked ham, cubed

Lower heat and cook for 10 minutes more before serving. Serves 8 to 10.
Remove shells, entrails, and legs. Cut crabs in half and use along with paws.

Creole Sausage or Creole Hot Sausage: a very hot and spicy sausage common to the Louisiana region. It is not to be confused with smoked sausage or "Polish" sausage, although in some cases either can be used as a substitute for Creole sausage.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are brief profiles of five men understood unofficially to be prospective members of the international commission to investigate charges against Iran's former Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Diplomats at the United Nations said they are U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's choices to form the panel, which has been considered a step leading eventually to release of some 50 Americans being held hostage at the American Embassy in Tehran.)

A respected moderate, he served for six years as his nation's minister of justice and keeper of the seals, and then as ambassador to France and permanent representative to UNESCO in Paris. Educated at the University of Grenoble and the Institute of Political Studies there, Bedjaoui began his legal career before the Grenoble Court of Appeals. In 1955, he went to Paris and worked as a research fellow at the National Center of Scientific Research, France's most prestigious scientific institution. After independence he served as president of the office of the president of the National Assembly, as a delegate to the United Nations, as president of the Algerian national railroad and dean of the faculty of law at Algiers University. From 1964 to 1970, he was minister of justice, serving in 1965 as a special reporter to a U.N. commission on international law.

In 1970 he was named ambassador to France, and the following year permanent representative to UNESCO, the Paris-based U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. One of the battery of international lawyers defending Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky, he was refused permission to attend Shcharansky's trial.

Several months ago, Czechoslovak authorities refused to allow him into that country to see dissident dramatist Venceslas Havel.

Born Jan. 14, 1916, Pettit was admitted to the Paris Bar at the age of 19. Thirty-two years later he was named to its prestigious Council of Order, which considers questions of ethics and policy for its lawyers.

Pettit, who writes extensively for human rights publications, has played key roles in the development of several international organizations involved with protection of human rights.

In 1968, he was named president of the International Movement of Catholic Jurists and as such traveled widely on several missions. He is also secretary general of the Association of European Jurists, vice president of the Society of Comparative Law, and serves on the Commission of Barristers of the European Community.

On Jan. 29, 1980, he was named a judge on the European Court of Human Rights, which gives the right of appeal to individuals or groups who bring grievances against their individual European governments.

Premier To Strengthen Syrian Armed Forces

By The Associated Press
Syria's new premier, Abdul Raouf al-Kasm, pledged Monday to bolster his nation's armed forces following stepped-up anti-regime unrest and claims of an Israeli military threat.

"We shall devote all the capacities we can to strengthen the Syrian Armed Forces which have to put an end to the Israeli aggression," Kasm said in an address to the parliament in Damascus outlining his government's policy.

Syrian security forces killed eight members of the banned Moslem Brotherhood earlier Monday in a gun battle in the northern city of Aleppo, a high-ranking Syrian security source said in Damascus.

Palestinian guerrillas fired on Christian villages in southern Lebanon for the first time in a week and Christian militia forces returned the fire, a military spokesman in Tel Aviv said. He had no report on casualties. The artillery fire occurred about five miles from the Israeli border. Israel radio said the Christian forces damaged one wing of the guerrilla fortress, but there was no damage to the Christian villages.

Donald F. McHenry, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, met in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and opposition leader Shimon Peres and said he believes what he heard "will be very productive in terms of increasing and improving my ability to understand Israel's position."

Israel opened its embassy in Cairo in another move toward normalization of relations.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was reported considering a new proposal for autonomy for Palestinians living in land occupied by Israel in the 1967 war. Two Israeli newspapers said Sadat will call for placing the area under joint rule by Israel, Egypt and the United States.

Begin's spokesman, Dan Pattir, said the 75-minute meeting with McHenry was a wide-ranging general discussion and "did not deal in operative matters."

Begin said again that Israelis had a right to settle anywhere in the occupied territories and that settlements were essential for Israeli security.

DEMANDS U.S. ADMIT GUILT — Iran's President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr addresses a crowd Monday in a stadium at Ahwaz, capital of Khuzestan Province in southern Iran. He spent the day touring the area hit by severe floods last week. Meanwhile, Tehran radio said Bani-Sadr repeated his demand for a U.S. admission of guilt for alleged misdeeds during the shah's reign as a condition for the American hostages release. Leftists In El Salvador Seize Offices Of Education Ministry

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Some 50 members of a leftist-dominated group identified as the National Teachers Association seized the payroll and administrative offices of the Education Ministry on Monday and held almost 200 persons inside.

"We have done this to demand the freedom of political prisoners," a spokesman for the teachers group told a reporter through a window of the Education Ministry building.

Israel said Monday it was closing its embassy, the sixth nation in recent months to do so because of the violence in this Central American country. Israeli officials said the embassy will be closed at the end of the month.

Israel has not had an ambassador in this country for several years; the embassy has been operated by lower ranking officers.

Negotiations continued for the release of two remaining hostages at the Spanish Embassy, occupied Feb. 4 by leftist militants demanding freedom for several arrested militants.

The same militants from the Popular Leagues of Feb. 28 also occupied the Panamanian Embassy twice this month but later freed the Panamanian diplomats.

Occupation of embassies and government buildings and the taking of hostages have become a routine tactic.

A plan to increase Citibus fares and require riders to pay in exact change was recommended to the City Council Monday by the Transit Advisory Board.

The plan, which would be implemented over the next six to eight months, replaces weekly passes with discount punch cards for adult and student fares, and requires identification cards for handicapped and senior citizen discounts.

To eliminate the need for drivers to carry cash, exact change would be required from passengers and weekly punch cards would be sold at the Citibus office and not by bus driver.

The plan also proposes that the regular adult fare be raised from 40 to 50 cents when the new larger buses arrive in September. Fares for students would be increased from 25 to 30 cents and the fares for handicapped and elderly would be upped from 20 to 25 cents.

Transfers would remain free.

If approved by the City Council, the exact change policy would be implemented as soon as possible. But, fares would not increase until the arrival of the new buses.

Currently Citibus offers a 40 cent general fare with discounts available to youths riding to and from school, and to handicapped and elderly passengers with identification cards. A weekly unlimited ride pass now is available for $3.50.

Under the new plan, the "thrifty $3.50" weekly pass would be replaced with a $4 pass good for 10 rides.

City transit planners say the plan, which must have a public hearing and be approved by the City Council, would eliminate the need for drivers to carry cash and generally streamline bus boarding and ticket sales procedures.

Noting that Lubbock is one of the few cities left where bus drivers carry change, city transit coordinator John Wilson said the fare change plan would reduce the possibility of robbery. The last time a Citibus was robbed was in 1977, he said.

Transit board members voted to make all students eligible to buy a discount punch card with 10, 20 or 50 rides. The card would be available with a student identification card through Lubbock schools, colleges and Texas Tech University.

Currently, only students through high school may ride to and from school at a reduced fare.

A public hearing regarding the fare change will be held at the March 27 meeting of the City Council, said Wilson.

The Transit Board was eager to implement the second phase of the plan — in which the "thrifty $3.50" weekly passes and 25 cent student fares would be replaced with multi-ride punch cards at 30 cents per ride — as quickly as possible after council approval of the plan.

Transit planner Clyde Shannon said the second phase could go into effect as early as May of this year, and no later than July.

In other business, Wilson reported a 41 percent increase in Citibus ridership during January over the same period a year ago.

"Ridership is going through the roof," said board member Bill Dean.

Wilson attributed the dramatic rise first to the price of gasoline and second to a two month advertising campaign, currently drawing to a close.

While Citibus is benefiting from the rising price of fuel, in one respect, Wilson told the board "there's no way" his operating budget will be able to keep up with it.

"Wholesale fuel currently is 98 cents per gallon, where I had budgeted 88 cents for this month," he said.

He said he believes increased revenues will help offset the loss from skyrocketing gasoline prices by the end of the fiscal year.

Electrical Short Halts Power In Much Of Northern Nevada

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The glittering lights of this 24-hour-a-day gambling town died early Monday when an electrical short halted power to almost all of Northern Nevada for up to three hours.

In the casinos, the ringing bells and glowing lights of slot machines stopped at about 4 a.m. Most of the large gambling palaces switched quickly to emergency generators.

But at the Sahara Reno, where the slots weren't on the emergency generator, security officials said most of the people standing before machines waited patiently for the power to return.

And at the Comstock Hotel-Casino across the street, slot manager Dennis Overbay said his operation was without power for two hours. Employees just locked up their cash boxes and checked the machines.

Sierra Pacific Power Co. spokesman Mike Reed said a short on a major power line leading to Utah caused all the company's generating facilities to shut down, leaving 165,000 customers without electricity in an area stretching for hundreds of square miles, from Lake Tahoe to Battle Mountain and south to Goldfield.

"We had nothing," Reed said.

At MGM Lanes bowling alley in the bowels of the big MGM Grand Hotel-Casino, about 200 people were trying to bowl when the lights went out — and the lane equipment was stilled for about two hours.

"It was disaster," the manager said. "There were a lot of free games."

Elsewhere in the plush, red-tinged interior of the MGM, one of the world's largest casinos, action continued at the slot machines, the craps tables and blackjack games, but under dimmed lights.

Casino workers said elevator service was halted for the 1,000 rooms on two dozen floors of the hotel. Clocks stopped and showers ceased to work due to low water pressure.

And security devices locked doors behind people who had left their rooms during the three hours or so until full power was restored.

"At 4 o'clock in the morning there aren't too many people out," a security officer said. "Surprisingly, we really didn't have any problems at all."

Reed said power was restored to most areas by 6:30 a.m., but many of Reno's traffic signals remained fully or partially disabled for hours afterward. Officers complained that drivers were speeding through intersections or going so slowly they caused traffic to back up.

Computer equipment was knocked crazy by the erratic power supply, causing problems for police, casino bookkeepers and journalists alike.

In downtown Reno, where normally the casinos keep Virginia Street brightly lit all night, Bob Pumpfrey, graveyard security chief at the Eldorado Hotel-Casino, said he went outside "and it was total blackness."

Car's Designer Testifies Ford Pinto Was Safe

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — A Ford Motor Co. executive who said he was responsible for designing the 1973 Pinto testified Monday that the car was safe and was involved in no more fatal fire crashes than other subcompacts.

Ford is charged with reckless homicide in the burning deaths of three young women in a 1973 Pinto that exploded when hit from behind on a northern Indiana highway in August 1978.

The state contends that Ford recklessly designed the Pinto, knowing the fuel tank was subject to explode in rear-end collisions, but sold the cars anyway without making repairs or warning the public.

Harold C. MacDonald, now Ford's vice president of engineering and research, said he was in charge of development when the Pinto was designed.

He said that the Pinto met all proposed federal standards and Ford's own standard for withstanding a 20 mph rear-end collision by a 4,000-pound moving vehicle without leaking more than one ounce of fuel on impact and one ounce afterward.

The 1973 Pinto's fuel system integrity also was "fully equal to other subcompacts of that time," MacDonald said.

MacDonald read from a federal study which he said showed that in 1975 and 1976, 1.9 percent of the nation's cars were Pintos, and 1.9 percent of the fatal accidents involving fire occurred in a Pinto.

"These figures mean Pintos were having the same number of fatal accidents with fire as all other cars — no better and no worse," MacDonald said.

He also defended his decision to place the Pinto's fuel tank behind the axle, a location the state has argued made the Pinto more dangerous. He said his father burned to death in 1932 when his car, which had the fuel tank over the axle, ran into a tree.

"Because of that I feel the gas tank should be as far from the engine as possible," he said.

Prosecutor Michael A. Cosentino told reporters he still believes former Ford President Lee A. Iacocca — and not MacDonald — was responsible for the design of the Pinto. Iacocca now is chairman of Chrysler Corp.

Earlier Monday, a traffic death researcher who gave lectures to Ford engineers testified that he never discussed the danger of fire because "fires are extremely rare as injury-causing accidents."

Donald F. Huelke, a University of Michigan anatomy professor, said he served as a consultant to Ford from 1964-73, giving about 10 lectures a year to the automaker's engineers.

The lectures were designed "to show the people at Ford what was happening in the real world," Huelke told the Pulaski Circuit Court jury. But he said none of the lectures concerned fire deaths or fire in rear-impact collisions.

However, Huelke acknowledged that of 3,500 accidents he has reconstructed, only two involved deaths by fire.

As the trial entered its seventh week, chief Ford attorney James F. Neal said the automaker's defense "will speed up this week. It certainly will go for the next two weeks. I can't say beyond that."

Huelke said he has served as a consultant to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

That agency had prompted Ford in June 1978 to recall 1.5 million Pintos and Mercury Bobcats made between 1971 and 1976 after government crash tests showed the fuel tanks leaked large amounts of fuel in moderate-speed, rear-end collisions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some questions often asked of the Veterans Administration, and the answers:

- If a veteran dies before a home loan guaranteed by the VA has been paid off, will the VA pay off the balance?
- No. The surviving spouse or other co-borrower must continue making payments. However, mortgage life insurance, available from private companies, can provide protection against a survivor inheriting large monthly payments.

- My wife and I are both veterans. May we acquire property jointly, combine our entitlements and increase the amount of a home loan guaranteed by the VA?
- Irrespective of the combined entitlement, VA will not guarantee more than 60 percent of the loan.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWEL

IT NOW APPEARS VIRTUALLY CERTAIN that the six-year-old disaster program which expired with the 1979 crop will be extended through 1981, according to Donald Johnson, executive vice president of the Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The House last week on a vote of 202-140 approved a two-year extension as part of a bill establishing a new and expanded all-risk federal crop insurance program.

A similar measure was approved by the Senate late last year and the bill now goes to a joint House-Senate conference committee.

Before approving the bill, the House rejected, 265-81, an amendment in the form of a substitute offered by Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford. It would have extended the disaster program for two years and retained the present federal crop insurance program.

The disaster extension portions of the two bills are almost identical, Johnson says, adding, "So we don't anticipate any serious problem in getting the bill out of conference or back through both houses."

THE ONLY MAJOR DIFFERENCE IN THE bills relates to the federal crop insurance program. The House measure would give producers the option of securing private hail and fire insurance in return for a 25 percent credit on federal premiums for other coverage. There is no such provision in the Senate bill.

Complete details on the insurance program may not be available until after the final measure becomes law, Johnson says. Nor is it now clear when all farmers will have access to the new insurance, he says.

"But it doesn't seem reasonable to expect that federal crop insurance in 1980 will be much, if any, different from that available in 1979," Johnson says.

Meanwhile, he adds, producers will have the disaster program in 1980 and will have the option of either retaining that protection or taking federal crop insurance in 1981. A producer who took federal crop insurance would be ineligible for any prevented-plantings or low-yield payments under the disaster program.

The hail and fire option, offered as an amendment in the House, was strongly supported by private insurance interests.

THE NEXT ACTION ON A DISASTER PROGRAM extension is expected today when House and Senate conferees meet on legislation to raise target prices for wheat and feed grains.

As passed by the Senate, the bill also would extend the disaster program for one year but would limit payments to $50,000 per producer.

The Senate bill also would give the secretary of agriculture authority to limit producers in 1980 and 1981 to their normal crop acreage (NCA) to be eligible for loans, deficiency payments, and other program benefits.

Johnson says Washington sources have indicated it is possible — but by no means certain — that the target price conferees now will agree to drop all mention of the disaster program from that bill.

Disaster protection first was written into the Agricultural Act of 1973 and was extended for the first two years of the four-year 1977 farm law.

Farmers in the 25-county High Plains area represented by the PCG, where the disaster program was conceived, collected more than $273 million in disaster payments for the five-year period of 1974 through 1978.

Final disaster payment figures are not yet available on the 1979 crop but are expected to bring the six-year total to more than $300 million.

TRADING ON TELCOT, WITH THE FUTURES market closed, was light Monday on a volume of 2,246 bales. Offerings were slow and bidding was lack-luster.

The cotton brought an average of 57.61 cents, an average of 1,543 points over the loan. Price quotes were unchanged.

Mill business continues good, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Sales of yarn, velour, twills, denim, corduroy and terry extend into third quarter months and beyond.

Most mills last week remained on six-day work weeks, filling orders. A little softness was reported in selected industrial fabrics and a few styles for the household market. Some mills producing these goods have cut back to four or five-day work weeks.

Quotations on goods for third and fourth quarter delivery reflect significant price increases. A number of mills continued testing lower miking cotton and, where possible, increased usage.

Mills continued to fix prices on earlier cotton purchases but new buying remained slow. Shipments of cotton arrived in heavy volume, keeping mill receiving departments and warehouses busy.

Efficient Operation Of Wells Can Save Money

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — With energy costs continuing the upward spiral of recent years and the operating margin for area farmers becoming even thinner, a spokesman for a local irrigation firm points out that efficient operation of irrigation wells will be more important than ever to area farmers in the coming year.

And, according to Rob Marshall of Big T Pump Co. of Hereford, simple things like tuning the irrigation engine and adjusting its carburetor can pay off in immediate fuel savings, while upgrading the overall efficiency of a pumping unit can often yield the farmer more water on the same amount of fuel consumption he was registering with an inefficient operation.

Marshall and other representatives of the local pump-firm were on hand recently at the Bobby Veigel farm north of Hereford to make a case for testing well efficiency and following up on the results of the test.

Big T, using custom-built equipment which features a torque meter feeding into a well efficiency monitoring unit with a digital readout, conducted a test on a well on the northwest corner of the Veigel farm at Milo Center last fall during the Deaf Smith County crops tour.

That test revealed that the well was operating at only 48 percent efficiency, below even the average of Texas High Plains wells of 52 percent and well below the 75 percent that can be achieved practically.

During the test last September, the well produced only 340 gallons of water per minute, with a horsepower rating of 43.

Veigel opted to re-work the well for better efficiency and the local firm then deepened the well 90 feet, dry-diced it, added gravel packing and reworked the bowls to match the well capacity.

The recent gathering at the Veigel farm marked the acid test of the success of re-working the irrigation unit for efficiency.

In an initial test, Big T officials and Veigel noted only a 7 percent improvement in the efficiency of the pumping unit at 55 percent, and they began looking for the culprit that was holding back the well's peak performance.

A combustion test quickly revealed that a faulty carburetor setting was robbing the irrigation engine of performance.

Proper setting of the carburetor resulted in an improvement of nearly 100 rounds per minute in the engine, while consumption of natural gas dropped off.

Water output climbed to 618 gallons per minute, compared with 340 gallons prior to pump work, and the overall pumping efficiency climbed to 64 percent.

Repairs had prompted an improvement in overall pump efficiency of 25 percent, with bowl efficiency hiked by 71 percent and the gallons per minute production of the well went up by 45 percent. Matching the pump to the engine and properly adjusting the carburetor gave the engine a horsepower rating of 66.

"This repair gave the operator more water production for about the same amount of fuel. He can probably pay for the repair from an improved efficiency standpoint during this summer's pumping season," said Marshall.

The Big T spokesman added that re-staged bowls, a lowered pump, proper impeller setting and a properly adjusted carburetor and tuned motor will frequently help a farmer get more water for the money he's spending on gas to get it to the surface.

Marshall explained that the firm offers efficiency tests for area irrigators, using the torque meter to record the horsepower load of a pumping unit.

Together with other data, the efficiency of a well can then be computed and recommendations made on how to upgrade efficiency.

According to Marshall, even minor things which farmers may not have considered in the past can't be overlooked now in this time of high natural gas costs and increasingly longer lifts to get water to the surface.

"We checked a well out west of Hereford recently and found the carburetor wasn't set exactly right. After proper adjustment on the motor, the operator reported a $50 per month saving on gas. Figure that 'minor' savings over 10 wells and you've saved $500. Over the course of an irrigation season, that amounts to a lot of money," Marshall emphasized.

Area Cotton Growers To Meet Here

Officials have announced that the 23rd annual meeting of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, will be Wednesday afternoon, April 2 in the Banquet Room of Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Complete details will be announced later says executive vice president Donald Johnson. But it has been decided the meeting will be built around Cotton Inc. (CI), a subject that Johnson says has been under intense discussion in High Plains cotton circles for over a year.

"PCG is a service organization," Johnson says, "and we could think of no more timely or valuable service to our membership than to use our annual meeting as a forum for clarifying the issues surrounding the controversy that has developed over CI's use of producer funds in national and international development of markets for U.S. cotton and to bring producers up to date on CI accomplishments."

After studying results of a CI investigation released in June of 1979 by The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Inspector General (OIG) and reviewing actions taken to answer OIG criticism, the 50-man PCG board of directors last October passed a resolution reaffirming CI support and at the same time calling for continued efforts to improve the fiber company's efficiency.

CI operations are conducted under authority of the Cotton Research and Promotion Act of 1977. The act stipulates that the programs and policies be established by a CI board of directors composed of cotton producers, subject to approval by the Department of Agriculture and the Cotton Board.

"The OIG report found fault with certain CI staff actions and also accused the CI board of directors, the Cotton Board and USDA of laxity in oversight responsibilities," Johnson said.

Consequently, he said, PCG will include on its program representatives from all CI entities. All speakers are not confirmed, but P. R. "Bobby" Smith, assistant agriculture secretary for marketing services, who is responsible for USDA's part in CI operations, has agreed to appear.

"Smith, someone from the Cotton Board, a representative of the CI board of directors and at least one Cotton Inc. staff member will be available for questions," Johnson said.

Farm Credit Board Names Chairman

The Texas Farm Credit Board has announced re-election of Dee W. Martin of Plainview as board chairman.

The board is the policy-making body for the Federal Land Bank and its associations, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and its Production Credit Associations, and the Texas Bank for Cooperatives.

Heinie A. Bade of Cuero was re-elected board vice chairman.

Martin was first elected to the Texas board in 1973. He is a director of Producers Grain Corp., based in Amarillo, and farms in Hale County. His principal crops include cotton, grain, sorghum, corn and soybeans. Martin is the first cooperative-elected member to serve as board chairman.

Other board members include John "Dub" Roberson of Devine; Wilmer Smith of New Home; Ray Robertson of Plainview; W. Clyde Ikens of Kent; and Roy A. Seaberg Jr. of Huffman.

The Texas Farm Credit District is part of the nationwide cooperative Farm Credit System which last year provided more than $57 billion in loan funds to the nation's agricultural producers and growers. Supervisory agency for the Farm Credit Banks and their associations is the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D.C.

Smith is the Texas district's representative on the Central Bank for Cooperatives Board.

Further Grain Stockpiles Indicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year's huge corn harvest, even larger than experts had been forecasting, will mean a further buildup in U.S. grain stockpiles to their largest levels since the early 1960s, a new analysis by the Agriculture Department has indicated.

The larger corn estimate, issued earlier, put the 1979 harvest at a record of more than 7.76 billion bushels. That was an increase of 178 million bushels from November, when the department's previous estimate was about 7.59 billion bushels.

Consequently, farmers — who already have seen the loss of the Soviet Union as a major foreign market — may see further downward pressure on market prices as a result of the larger grain supply.

In fact, the new "supply and demand" report projected the average farm price of corn over the entire 1979-80 marketing year that began Oct. 1 at between $2.25 and $2.45 a bushel.

Prior to President Carter's lid on grain sales to the Soviet Union, the corn price forecast was in a range of $2.25 and $2.55 a bushel. That forecast was held by USDA experts even after the embargo action because, they said, the government's plan to buy the canceled grain would protect prices at the previously estimated levels.

But Howard W. Hjort, the department's chief economist and policy analyst, told a news briefing in anticipation of the new report that it would be premature to draw firm conclusions on what prices may do because of the larger grain supply.

Hjort acknowledged that the new corn production figure was "significantly above" the previous estimate and noted that grain trading, domestic use and exports had been computed on the basis of the earlier, smaller 1979 harvest level.

However, he said, final figures for total grain use in the last three months of 1979 will not be released until Jan. 25 in a quarterly "grain stocks" report. It will show the amount of corn and other grain on hand as of Jan. 1 and will indicate how much was used in the October-December period.

"Until we get a grain stocks report, our analysts are not in a firm position" to estimate accurately how much corn was consumed in the first three months of the 1979-80 marketing year, Hjort said.

That will have a bearing on the supply outlook for corn — and total grain — in the coming months, along with prospects for prices and how much will be left over at the beginning of 1980 harvests.

But Hjort said the additional 1979-crop corn probably means more of the grain will have to be isolated from the market through the reserve storage program in order to maintain objectives of the administration to keep prices of corn at the farm from remaining below what they were before Carter ordered the Soviet shipments suspended on Jan. 4.

It also means pressure on the administration to take further action, including the possibility of announcing a "paid diversion" program under which farmers could voluntarily take some feedgrains land from production this year in return for federal payments.

Hjort said the larger corn supply "adds to the case" for having a paid diversion program this year, but he said further assessments would be required before a decision is made.

Soybean production in 1979 also was revised upward to a record of almost 2.27 billion bushels, some 32 million more than had been estimated. But the new analysis said soybean prices at the farm still are expected to average $5.75 to $6.50 a bushel in 1979-80, unchanged from the earlier estimate.

Hunger Experts Blast Political Moves

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (UPI) — International politics stand in the way of solving world food supply problems, three nationally recognized authorities on food and world hunger agree.

But three state agricultural leaders who responded to the speakers' remarks at the Consultation on Food and Hunger at Texas A&M University indicated they believe the solution should begin with farm problems at home.

Food is too vital a resource to be used as a lever in political diplomacy, said Dr. Ronald D. Knutson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Food and agricultural technology is used to achieve foreign policy goals and as a tool of international diplomacy," he said.

"But food is too powerful to use as a tool of international diplomacy. For example, will Russia attempt to capture the bread baskets of the world in order to feed the people? These issues must be considered."

"Use of food, particularly grain, as a political weapon certainly is not new. The United States used it 1812," said Dr. L. Robert McClean of the United Methodist Church.

"Causes of hunger in Texas are the same as elsewhere in the world, and they concern the problem of access to food. This is a political rather than an economic cause."

McClean predicted the politics of food supply will continue to prevail in developing countries, most of whose populations will remain underfed unless governments are willing to apply research breakthroughs.

Dr. C. Dean Freudenberger, professor of international development studies and ecumenics at the School of Theology in Claremont, Calif., called hunger "the consequence of resource plunder and social injustice."

"The hunger problem is a critique of agricultural and food policies," he said. "Two-thirds of the human species is malnourished or undernourished."

In response, Ted Godfrey of Spearman, a farmer and member of the American Agriculture Movement, said the AAM was organized because producers were interested in saving their farms as well as trying to prevent hunger.

"Low prices paid to producers means that we were operating at a loss," he said.

"If you are going to avert hunger in the world, a political system that guarantees individual freedom — the right to produce — is very necessary," said Bill Hoover of Waco, information director for the Texas Farm Bureau.

"Farm Bureau also wants to get income from the marketplace and recognizes the right of farm labor to organize, but farmers cannot stand a strike at harvest time," Hoover said.

Ron Butler of Waco, state secretary for the Texas Farmers Union, said: "A fair farm income policy, rather than boom and bust policies that create surplus and then shortages, is needed by the farm sector and especially by family farmers if they are to remain in business."

ABC Reports' Success Prompts Talk Of Late-Night Newscast

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — It began with little fanfare the night of Nov. 14, less than two weeks after Iranian militants stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran as a regular summary and explanation of events in the Persian Gulf nation.

Interest in ABC News' "The Iran Crisis: America Held Hostage" broadcast weeknights at 10:30 CST, was high from the start. And today, more than three months later, the series continues to attract a huge audience — an estimated 12 million viewers each night through Feb. 1.

The rather remarkable success of "The Iran Crisis" has raised the possibility of a permanent late-night network news program. ABC has made no firm commitment to continuation of the program after the Iranian situation is defused, but Frederick Pierce, the network's president, declared not long ago: "Before 1980 is out, we will have some form of news in late night... not necessarily every night."

"The reason for the program in the first place," says David Horwitz, who's produced "The Iran Crisis" since mid-January, "was this extraordinary interest among the American people in the hostage situation."

"There wasn't room each night on 'World News Tonight' or the other evening news programs to tell the people all they needed or wanted to know about Iran, and we could do that."

"But there is something else interesting going on here. We probably take a more intellectual approach to discussing American foreign policy than they can afford to do with the nightly news. And since the oil embargo of 1973, Americans have shown they are interested in foreign policy and what it means."

"Our research shows there are people out there who want to know about Iran and Afghanistan and their effects on American foreign policy," Horwitz says. "Lots of people."

The first late-night special was Nov. 8, and viewer response to the 45-minute program convinced ABC executives there was a market for the show on a regular basis. Indeed, the 56 late-night specials broadcast between Nov. 14 and Feb. 1 attracted a full 30 percent of the audience against some formidable competition, notably NBC's "Tonight" show and CBS' late movie.

"The Iran Crisis" normally is 15 minutes each night, though the program often runs longer as news conditions warrant. A recent broadcast on the hostages 100th day in captivity was an hour long.

"Several weeks ago," Horwitz recalls, "we were putting together a theme show, 'Has Interest in Iran Waned?' We were polling the public and checking our sources for information."

Then, all of a sudden, the Canadians helped some Americans escape from Iran. And interest in the story was regenerated. It seems as if every time interest in the story begins to fall off, something like that happens."

Horwitz draws on the resources as the producers of ABC's "World News Tonight," but the late-night show normally is more explanatory and analytical than the earlier newscast. "Some nights," he says, "we are all even-oriented, and others we are entirely explanatory."

Often, Horwitz says, people interviewed for "The Iran Crisis" take positions not particularly popular in this country. "Then we get a lot of calls. We tell them, 'You ought to know what they've got to say.'"

The general feeling, Horwitz says, is that even though public interest in the story fluctuates, there is a substantial audience for the late-night series that varies little in size.

"It's my opinion," he says, "that a lot of our viewers are people who either can't or don't see the evening news, and that these are generally people who don't want 'World News Tonight' repeated at 11:30. They're looking for more than the headlines that the evening news format requires."

Acne Treatment Advertising Under Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission told two companies that market acne-treatment medicines Monday they must advise consumers that "no product cures acne" if they expect to continue advertising.

The agency had accused Hayoun Cosmetic Inc. of New York, and AHC Pharmaceutical Inc. of Miami — of falsely claiming in past ads that their preparations could cure acne.

AHC and its president, James Fulton, sold an "Acne Control Regimen" kit consisting of medicated soap, a gel preparation and a booklet, for $13. Hayoun sold the "Hayoun Cosmetique Kit" containing four preparations plus instructions for $40.

Under the settlement, Hayoun will be required in all of its ads for a period of six months to run the same disclosure.

Psychologist Researching Lying Technique

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Liars beware. Most people are going to catch you.

People are usually accurate when they think someone's fibbing, said Bella M. DePaulo, a University of Virginia psychologist who is researching lying.

But, she said, they're not as good at determining the reason for the lie.

Subtle changes in eye contact, voice tone, gestures, body movements and energy are the usual tipoffs to a lie.

When somebody's lying, the voice pitch almost invariably rises.

"It would be very obvious to me if I were lying to pay attention to the words I was using, but not to the tone of voice," she said.

"People do think to control their faces, but they seem to be less able to control their voices, or at least think less to do it."

She said studies show people generally can detect a liar when talking with them on the telephone, although most people believe they need to see somebody's face to tell if they are lying.

Remaining Disney Leaves Family Company To Produce Films

BRANCHES OUT ON HIS OWN — Roy E. Disney, whose uncle was Walt Disney, has left the company and made a picture on his own called "Pacific High." The movie is the story of the Newport, Calif. to Ensenada, Mexico yacht race in which he has sailed his own yacht for 20 straight years. (AP Laserphoto)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He has the Disney look: slender, raw-boned, with a plain, open face that bespeaks mid-America. He also has the Disney manner: fiercely independent.

So much so that Roy Edward Disney three years ago left his work at the studio founded by his uncle Walt and his father, Roy Oliver Disney.

"It was a power struggle, and I'm not a player of corporate politics," says Roy Edward. His 7 percent ownership of Walt Disney Productions makes him the largest single stockholder, and he remains on the board of directors. He says he is still friendly with those running the company, but he retains his right to criticize their actions.

Right now Roy Edward (as he has been called most of his life to distinguish him from his father) is putting his own reputation as a film maker on the line. He has produced a movie called "Pacific High."

No, the film is not about hot rods and pot heads at a California high school. The "High" refers to the exhilaration of riding a sailboat over a windswept ocean.

Disney explained the origins of the movie: "For 20 years or more I have been sailing, mostly as a family thing. I found that the best way to get together and talk as a family is to be out on the ocean sailing. It's a terrific way to communicate with your kids." He and his wife Patricia have two sons, two daughters and a 52-foot sailing yacht, the Shamrock.

Like many Southern California yachtsmen, Disney had sailed in the annual race from Newport Beach to Ensenada, Mexico, 200 miles away. He dreamed up the notion of filming the race from beginning to end, focusing on 11 of the 550 boats in the 24-hour-plus race.

"That didn't seem practical, so I settled on four boats, including the Shamrock," said producer Disney. "I also had a helicopter and a crew at the starting line in Newport, another on the chase boat — the power boat that follows the race — and two in Ensenada."

"I gave the crews two instructions.

One, they were not to help out on the boat: when things go wrong the tendency is to throw down the camera and lend a hand. Those are the moments I wanted to capture on film."

U.S., Iran Okay Panel Members

By The Associated Press
The United States and Iran have accepted the membership of a commission to investigate the former shah, and the panel will go to Tehran in a few days, the United Nations announced Monday. There was no word, however, on how or when this might bring release of the hostages held in the U.S. Embassy there.

Firefighters Recruited In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of men recruited to replace striking firefighters reported to work Monday, as the city suffered its first fire death since the start of the five-day-old walkout. Positions on both sides of the bitter dispute seemed to harden. The strikers repeated their determination to defy back-to-work court orders and $40,000-a-day fines, and Mayor Jane Byrne said she would never again negotiate with the Chicago Fire Fighters Union or its president, Frank Muscare.

In a telephone interview with a radio station, the mayor was asked whether she planned talks with federal mediators or union officials.

"No, I am not. It wouldn't make any difference," Mrs. Byrne said. "I will never again sit down with Mr. Muscare, nor his men. Not again — not ever. I will never subject anybody in the mayor's office or the staff or the corporation counsel or the commissioner of fire" to negotiations with the union.

Mother Perishes
A 37-year-old mother of four, Diane Williams, died in her basement apartment as fire swept through the frame building on the South Side, police said. Her children and other residents escaped and called the fire department.

A fully manned fire truck arrived a short time later, but Mrs. Williams perished. "It wouldn't have been any different" if there had been no strike, said one non-striker at the scene.

The 3.5 million residents of the nation's second-largest city have been dependent on makeshift fire protection since the walkout. Thursday, by most of the 4,350 firefighters. They struck after the city refused to grant them a written contract to replace previous handshake agreements unless the union would agree to a no-strike clause.

An estimated 300 recruits arrived for processing at the Fire Department Gymnasium, crossing picket lines to the jeers of striking firefighters. About 100 police officers stood by, some wearing riot helmets. There was no violence and no one was arrested.

Hired Temporarily
On Sunday, Mrs. Byrne said the city was hiring the men temporarily to replace strikers who stayed off the job.

About 400 recruits had accepted job offers telephoned over the weekend, but "some have not shown up. Others have come down but decided not to go through with it," said Charles Pounian, city personnel director.

Officials said the diplomatic plan for release was "on track," but with no firm timetable. The officials, speaking privately, said the United States probably will not be certain about the freeing of the hostages "until we see the whites of their eyes."

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was quoted by a Vienna newspaper as saying the hostages would be released "in the course of the commission's work. Otherwise one would not have received the agreement of the two sides."

According to Die Presse's Tuesday edition, Waldheim said the commission's report would be handed over to him and he would forward it to the U.N. Security Council for whatever action it saw fit.

The commission to investigate Iranian grievances has been considered one of the steps that would lead to release of the approximately 50 Americans who have been held hostage at the occupied embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4.

U.N. spokesman Rudolf Stajduhar, who announced U.S. acceptance of the members on Friday, said a Tehran official has given Waldheim Iran's acceptance by telephone from Tehran. He said Waldheim was awaiting telexed confirmation before officially announcing the panel members' names.

Stajduhar told reporters the timing of the hostages' release as part of a package deal had not been finalized, but the commission's guidelines had been completed.

Inquiry Not Enough
Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who indicated last week the hostages might be freed when the commission begins its work, was quoted in Tehran on Sunday as saying the inquiry would not be sufficient to ensure their release. He also repeated his demand for a U.S. admission of guilt for alleged misdeeds during the reign of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. The United States so far has refused to apologize for past U.S. actions in Iran.

Waldheim met separately with U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and the charge d'affaires of the Iranian U.N. mission, Jamal Shemirani.

Vance met with Waldheim for nearly seven hours. He told reporters it had been "a very good meeting" and they had "a chance to review the situation in depth." He declined to elaborate.

The Washington officials said a major part of the Vance-Waldheim agenda was making certain both sides understood the rules under which the commission will operate. They described the commission as part of a fragile understanding with Iran that is supposed to lead eventually to release of the hostages. They said Bani-Sadr's three other requirements do not violate the terms of the understanding.

Pledge Required
In addition to the investigation and an admission of U.S. interference in Iran's internal affairs, Bani-Sadr says Iran requires a pledge that the United States will not interfere with Iran again, including its efforts to extradite the shah and recover his fortune.

The administration has made a concession to Iran by agreeing to creation of the commission without first obtaining the release of the hostages.

The commissioners, Stajduhar told reporters, would be meeting in Geneva and would fly to Tehran this week.

Two men among Waldheim's reported — but still unannounced — choices for the commission were also on his appointment list for meetings Monday — Algeria's U.N. ambassador, Mohammed Bedjaoui, and Venezuela's former ambassador to Washington, Andres Aguilar.

The others reported in line for the commission were Adib Daoudy, foreign policy adviser to the president of Syria; H.W. Jayewardene, 63-year-old lawyer brother of the president of Sri Lanka; and Edmond Louis Pettiti, former president of the Paris Bar Association.

Oklahoma City Hostage Free; Gunman Held

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A man who allegedly held a lawyer hostage for about five hours Monday, was arrested shortly after authorities gave the gunman $15,000 in cash, a police spokesman said.

The gunman, identified by police and the lawyer's employees and co-workers as Raymond Smith, took attorney Robert R. Buck hostage in his central Oklahoma City law office, about 11:30 a.m. Monday, police said. Officers at the scene said the man threatened to kill Buck unless the ransom was paid.

Buck was released about 4:30 p.m., after $15,000 raised by Buck's co-workers was paid to the gunman.

Pulled To Safety
When the money arrived, Smith sent Buck into the hallway to get it, police said, and Buck threw the money to his captor. Police officers then grabbed the attorney and pulled him to safety.

Detective Don Pennington, one of the police negotiators at the scene, said Smith was calm during most of the seizure. "He wanted the money and he wanted out," Pennington said. "Once he got the money and saw he couldn't get out, he surrendered."

Moments later, police tactical team members took Smith out a rear door of the office building in handcuffs. Officers said he was wrestled to the floor when he stepped into a doorway to talk with a police negotiator. Smith was taken to the city jail for booking.

A police spokesman said no shots were fired and neither Buck nor Smith was injured.

Holiday Delay
Collection of the money was delayed since banks were closed for Washington's Birthday. "It's somewhat tense, and I'm sure the hostage has become very fatigued," Detective Bob Rowell had said, as the hours dragged by.

Marsha Black, an assistant to one of Buck's associates, said several people, including other clients, were in Buck's office when Smith entered brandishing a small-caliber handgun.

Smith ordered everyone except Buck to leave, Mrs. Black said. Police were then called.

The three-story Classen Terrace Building was evacuated and police set up a command post in an office near Buck's to begin telephone negotiations with the gunman, Rowell said. A heavily armed police tactical team was at the scene.

Leftists In Mexico Occupy Embassies

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Leftists peacefully occupied the Belgian and Danish embassies Monday, to demand freedom for political prisoners and better living conditions for Mexico's poor.

A spokesman for the activists, Juan Lopez, said they belonged to the National Democratic Popular Front, a small, leftist group active for the past year among peasants and workers in poor rural areas. Lopez said they were unarmed.

He claimed there were "20 occupiers, including an eight-year-old boy," at the Danish Embassy and "maybe about a dozen" at the Belgian mission.

No Violence
Police cordons assembled around the embassies, and no violence was reported.

The Danish Embassy is on the fifth floor of the building in the Poanco district of the capital, a fashionable residential area. The Belgian Embassy offices are on the 11th floor of a building in the nearby residential area of Anzures.

Diplomatic officials described the actions as "invasions," the activists called them "occupations" and a police officer at one embassy said, "You could probably call it a sit-in."

In a statement distributed to reporters at the Danish Embassy, the militants said the occupations were intended "to unmask the Mexican government, which puts on a democratic face. In our country, we die of hunger, they take away our lands, they fire us unjustly, they oppress and violate peasants."

Until Release
Lopez said the actions will continue until the government hears the group's demands for the release of what it claims are political prisoners and others who were arrested and have not been heard from since.

"We will stay especially until the 100 or so political prisoners are freed and 600 persons who disappeared are located," Lopez said.

The Front called for Mexicans to demonstrate in the streets for an hour, Tuesday morning.

An unidentified spokeswoman for the leftists said in a telephone interview that about 10 unarmed militants entered the Belgian Embassy shortly after 11 a.m. and demanded to speak with Ambassador Ronald Watteuw. She claimed no one in the embassy was being held captive.

A diplomat who asked anonymity said, however, that all the occupants of the Belgian Embassy fled to safety through a side entrance — with the probable exception of Watteuw.

Invaders Locked In
It could not be immediately confirmed if Watteuw remained in the building.

The diplomat said that at one point, as employees were fleeing, Watteuw managed to lock the door of a front-office room with about 11 of the approximately 15 invaders inside.

Eva Hoelgaard, the wife of Danish Ambassador Vagn Hoelgaard, said a score of militants occupied the embassy offices at about that same time.

Militants claimed the Danish ambassador, six Danish diplomats, three Mexican secretaries and a chauffeur were being held hostage. However, an official who went inside the building said the militants were in the office reception

Shortly after midday, a senior Mexican official from the president's office entered the Danish Embassy to try talk the militants into leaving peacefully. There was no immediate word on the talks.

Top Kuwaiti Attacks Carter's Gulf Policy

KUWAIT (UPI) — Kuwait's foreign minister Monday attacked President Carter's plan for an American security umbrella over the Persian Gulf, saying the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan posed no threat to Arab oil. "We do not need anyone saving us," he said.

Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmad al-Jaber al-Sabah, deputy premier and foreign minister, said, "The oil is going smoothly and nicely. Why do they make all this nonsense in our area?"

Sabah is a senior member of the ruling family and his comments are believed to reflect the consensus within the country's leadership, and perhaps many other Gulf oil producers.

Fifth Largest
Kuwait, with a 1978 output of 110 million tons, is the world's fifth largest oil producer. It is a leading member of OPEC.

In a wide-ranging interview at his foreign ministry office, Sabah was asked if the Soviet takeover in Afghanistan threatened Kuwait.

"Not at all," he said, shaking his head. "Not at all."

Though Kuwait strongly disapproved of the Russian attack on Afghanistan, Sabah said he did not see it as the prelude to Soviet occupation of Gulf oilfields.

"We are not afraid of any action of Russia. This is something we are 100 percent sure about. Not only Kuwait, but all the Gulf."

"We know these big powers, whether Russian or American, they don't like us simply for our black eyes. It is for their interests — nobody will touch them — but we do not like them to be in our area."

Rhetorical Questions
The foreign minister posed rhetorical questions about the U.S. drive to organize the Gulf states into a defensive framework against the Soviets:

"What do they want from me? They want oil. Well, if I stop the oil, they have the full right to do everything. Then, I say I do not blame them. But if nothing like that is happening, why do they pressure me, or have a policy for me, or put their troops here in the Gulf to save the Gulf? From what?"

"This is something that makes me unhappy about American policy," the 49-year-old Kuwaiti said.

"Saving us?" he shrugged. "I don't believe we need any saving. Nobody will threaten us... they would like to stop the Russians. Well, they cannot stop them here. Let them go to Afghanistan to stop them. We do not need anyone saving us."

Oman Criticized
Sabah criticized Oman's decision to grant the United States use of airport and harbor facilities near the Straits of Hormuz, the 30-mile-wide mouth of the Gulf through which two-thirds of the free world's oil supplies transit daily.

"I believe, for Oman itself, they should not have this (American facilities). Nobody threatens them directly. If

Gas Station Hit By Bandit Trio

The assistant manager of a 34th Street service station and his wife were tied up by three black men who entered the station late Monday and robbed them of nearly $170 and 40 cartons of cigarettes.

The three suspects, two of them reportedly armed with guns, walked up to the Go Gas self-service station at 1515 34th St. about 10:10 p.m. Using white nylon cord, they tied up 21-year-old Duane Harrod Jr. and his wife, Rena, after taking $140 from the station's cash register and a purse containing $27 from Mrs. Harrod.

The couple were left tied up by the side of the station, but managed to free themselves. They then drove to the manager's home and called police.

Neither of the couple were injured, police said.

Soviet Offensive Said Rolling In Afghanistan

desertions and low morale, is falling apart.

Another indirect indication of that came Monday, when the Soviet newspaper Pravda reported from Kabul that the Kremlin-controlled regime of Babrak Karmal has called for volunteers to join a people's militia.

The Pravda report said Karmal has "called on the people to create voluntary detachments for the fight against killers, saboteurs and thieves."

The detachments, jointly with army and police units, must guard the roads,

The Front occupied the Swiss Embassy for nine days, last August, to attract public attention for similar demands. Police forced them out after a few minor scuffles.

President Jose Lopez-Portillo's administration enacted two amnesty laws in 1977 and released 300 political prisoners, most of them leftists accused of bank holdups and other common crimes committed in connection with their political activities.

Government spokesmen have since maintained that there are no more political prisoners in Mexico.

anybody threatens them directly, well, they will have the full right to go with the devil. But nobody is trying."

Sheikh Sabah, whose brother is the country's ruling Emir, said Kuwait's policy is to have friendly but arm's-length relations with both the Soviet Union and the United States. Except for Iraq, Kuwait is the only Gulf state which maintains diplomatic ties with Moscow.

"We don't like to find ourselves alone with the Americans. And we don't want to see ourselves with (just) the Russians," he said.

Holding out his hands like an evenly weighted scale, Sabah said, "Our policy is nonalignment. Maybe this is helpful for them (the superpowers) too."

Turning to what he saw as an even more destabilizing problem — a homeland for the Palestinians — Sabah urged that the United States open a dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"Let them talk to the PLO," he said. "What do they have to lose? Believe me, they will find the Palestinians more with them than they think."

Illegal Alien School Law Due Test

HOUSTON (AP) — The endless flow of illegal aliens across the Mexico-Texas border, the thousands of children who come with them, and a state law affecting their education all will be factors in a federal court trial opening in Houston Tuesday.

Lawsuits filed against 17 school districts have challenged the constitutionality of a 1975 law that limits state financial aid to "all children who are citizens of the United States or legally admitted."

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals said the trial will focus on the state law and delay legal action against the individual school districts.

If the law is declared constitutional, the 17 cases will be heard one at a time. If it is unconstitutional, the matter is settled for all involved.

Some Texas school districts, including populous Houston, admit aliens who pay $162 a month tuition.

Many other districts exclude aliens entirely.

A school district may admit the children of illegal aliens, but it will receive no state financial aid for these pupils.

Susan Dasher, an assistant state attorney general, said recently a study showed 111,284 illegal aliens of school age living in Texas.

She said the state will argue that "the quality of education will be diminished if illegal aliens are admitted tuition-free."

The study, conducted by a Dallas consulting firm, estimated 21,592 illegal alien children now living in Harris County (Houston), 15,745 in Dallas County, 15,860 in seven counties along the Rio Grande border with Mexico, 16,055 in Bexar County (San Antonio) and 9,657 in El Paso County.

Peter Williamson, an attorney representing some Hispanic youths in Houston, said the state estimate is out of line, and no more than 5,000 illegal alien children live in Harris County.

To Williams, the issue is a human one.

"As long as they are here, they should be in school," he said.

The Rev. Thomas Sheehy, pastor of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church of Houston, said the tuition requirement is preventing several hundred undocumented children in his neighborhood from attending school.

bridges, mountain passes and transport caravans. They must guard villages and towns, the honor and dignity of the country," Pravda said.

In an article entitled "The Problems of Afghanistan," Pravda also admitted that the task faced by the regime Moscow installed in the wake of its invasion, last December, was "not an easy one."

Foremost among Karmal's problems, diplomats said, was his apparent failure to win the support of Afghanistan's Moslem population, which is more sympathetic to the rebel goal of establishing an Islamic republic than it is to the idea of a Soviet-run, communist regime.

Candidate Seeking To Overturn Puerto Rican Election Results

By ISMAEL TORRES

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Ben Fernandez, the only Hispanic attempting to win the Republican Party nomination for president, said Monday he would ask the Federal Election Commission to set aside the results of the Puerto Rican primary.

He claimed poll watchers acting in his name were denied an opportunity to vote, that ballot boxes were stuffed and that many voters were told he had dropped out of the race. He said, "I believe this to be only the tip of the iceberg. This is what I call a Puerto Rican Watergate."

Fernandez came in fourth with less than 1 percent of the vote in Sunday's primary. George Bush won with about 60 percent, Howard Baker was second with 37 percent and John Connally was third with only 22 votes more than Fernandez.

With all but 242 of the 3,342 polling places tabulated, Bush had 123,217 votes, Baker 80,782, Connally 1,934 and Fernandez 1,912. As the winner, Bush will take all island's 14 delegates in to the national convention later this year in Detroit. No final count is expected before next week.

Bush said he was "ecstatic" about the victory, but said he still doesn't consider himself the front-runner in the GOP race.

"I don't want to get expectations higher than I can deliver, but we're doing well, he said Monday while campaigning in New Hampshire. "I think what Puerto Rico shows is that this is a national candidacy."

A spokesman for Ronald Reagan, who was not on the ballot in Puerto Rico but received some write-in votes, said Bush's victory would have little effect on the Feb. 26 New Hampshire primary. "We expect to win here and Puerto Rico doesn't alter that in the slightest," said Reagan's news secretary, Jim Lake, in Claremont, N.H.

With 99 percent of precincts reporting, Bush had 113,987 votes, Baker 70,354, Connally 2,043, Fernandez 1,844, Harold Stassen 591. Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas 464 and Reagan 58.

While campaigning Monday in New Hampshire, Baker said in Salem that his second-place finish in the Puerto Rico primary disappointed him, but it won't change his campaign strategy. "I had hoped to do better in it. I had hoped to win in Puerto Rico," he said. "But I have no intention of changing my campaign tactics."

Fernandez, a Mexican-American and a California businessman, said he had expected to make a good showing here because of the common Hispanic heritage he shares with Puerto Ricans.

"I'm asking the U.S. Justice Department to intervene," Fernandez said. "I want a special investigator from Washington to come down here and look into this situation."

He blamed the alleged primary shortcomings on the local Republican organization, forced to handle the primary on their own after a judge blocked the use of public funds; and the backers of Bush.

Hernan Padilla, vice president of the Republican Party in Puerto Rico, called the election "a clean one." Asked about the Fernandez charge, he said, "I think he confused personal affection for voting strength."

Padilla said he would ask state Sen. Oreste Ramos, who was in charge of the primary election, to report to him on possible of primary irregularities.

Man Branded As Communist 27 Years Ago Wants File Expunged

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Almost 27 years ago, electrician Paul McCarty was fired from his job at an Atomic Energy Commission plant in Kentucky because someone — he doesn't know who — told the FBI that he had been a Communist.

He denied it, and demanded a chance to confront his accuser. Instead, he was marched off federal property by armed guards.

Today, retired at age 66, McCarty of Cedar City, Utah, wants his FBI file expunged. He isn't seeking damages from the government, although he lost at least four jobs because of that file. He just wants his name cleared for his children's sake, and as a matter of pride.

He is being helped by the Project for Open Government. His attorney, Theodore Jacobs, says there are many people like McCarty who have been harmed by information in FBI files that is inaccurate, untimely, irrelevant or incomplete.

When McCarty was confronted by the FBI and Atomic Energy Commission security officers in 1953, he was told his alleged membership in the Communist Party was "on his record."

"They told me that if I denied it, I would never work for the government again," McCarty says. He denied it, and they kept their promise.

Until 1974, he didn't know that the "record" was information supplied the FBI by someone who wouldn't give his name or testify openly against McCarty.

After being fired by the AEC from his job in Paducah, Ky., McCarty was hired — then fired — from jobs requiring security clearances in Grand Junction, Colo., and Denver. He went back to a job in Grand Junction that didn't require a security clearance, but he was warned to "keep his mouth shut."

"They thought I had been a communist, I guess, but were willing to hire me if I didn't get into trouble," McCarty says.

A year later, he noticed he was being followed. The man even asked a cafe waitress what McCarty had talked about during dinner.

"I decided to leave there because I thought if anything went wrong, or if anyone got hurt, I'd be the prime suspect," he says.

He was also laid off by General Chemical Co. under unusual circumstances.

"They laid off some troublemakers, and my name was on the list," McCarty says. "The foreman couldn't understand why my name was on the list." He thinks the FBI may have been responsible.

McCarty says every time he tried to clear his name with the FBI, he was given the brushoff. Once, he wrote President Lyndon Johnson asking for help. Johnson referred the case to the Justice Department, which later told McCarty there was nothing it could do.

McCarty's lawyer says the FBI has taken the position that it is not responsible for the validity of a person's file. The FBI will only vouch for the accuracy of what its agents were told by informants.

The anonymous informant told the FBI McCarty had been a Communist Party member in Los Angeles in 1943, and that he was a member of a front group in Los Angeles in 1949.

McCarty says he didn't even live in Los Angeles after 1946, and there are no documents which back up the informant's claim.

He was accused of subscribing to a communist newspaper, the Daily People's World.

"They were distributed at the Bendix plant where I worked," McCarty says. "We all read it because it had war news in it. We would bet on which city would fall to the Nazis next. Toward the end, I suspected it might be Communist, because it was so pro-Russian."

McCarty says he wants his name cleared simply because that's what he set out to do 27 years ago. And he worries about his 33-year-old son in the military.

"If we get into a war with Russia, they're liable to investigate him and find that file on me. I don't want to see him hurt by it," McCarty says.

U.S. Should Not Admit Guilt, Kennedy Says

KEENE, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Monday the United States should not admit guilt in connection with any alleged crimes by the deposed shah of Iran against the Iranian people.

But Kennedy said at a news conference that a United Nations grievance commission should follow any lines of investigation "wherever they might lead."

Iranian officials have said that as a condition for the release of American hostages in Tehran, the United States should admit complicity in the alleged crimes of the deposed monarch.

But campaigning in New Hampshire for votes in the Feb. 26 Democratic presidential primary, Kennedy said, "I'm not prepared to make any admission of guilt because I think that there has to be an investigation. But I would not limit or preclude any areas of where that commission should review" the record.

Kennedy also said, "I think the mandate of that commission ought to be to review the grievances of the Iranian people and I think those grievances ought to lead wherever they might lead."

As he has previously, Kennedy said he faces an "uphill battle" in next Tuesday's primary against President Carter. Aides traveling with the Massachusetts senator say a survey taken by Kennedy's own pollster shows the president with a lead of about 2 to 1.

These aides say, however, that Carter's support appears to be "soft," presumably meaning that Kennedy could successfully overturn that lead.

Aides also said there was a significant group of undecided voters, about 25 percent. The survey was taken by telephone by pollster Peter Hart among Democratic and independent voters in New Hampshire.

As Kennedy emerged from a tour of a tool plant, he told reporters that the National Rifle Association is conducting a campaign "distorting" his position on gun control.

Kennedy favors legislation to ban the sale of so-called Saturday-night specials and to place restrictions on the sale of other small handguns.

But he repeatedly has assured voters in this state that he would do nothing "to interfere" with the ability of hunters to obtain and keep rifles and sporting pistols.

Aides said Kennedy is asked frequently about his position on gun legislation by hunters who have read National Rifle Association circulars.

Press spokesman Tom Southwick said the circulars say Kennedy's legislation is a first step toward eventual confiscation of all guns, something Kennedy does not favor.

"There's no question that there's a very active serious campaign distorting, misrepresenting, my position," Kennedy said. "I think that there are people that are reading the material and are paying attention to it."

Carney conceded in an interview appearing in the March issue of "Ladies Home Journal" that he's in love with Caroline, but replied, "I can't answer that," when asked if marriage was a possibility. "The whole interest in Caroline and me on the part of the press has been stressful," Carney said. (AP Laserphoto)

Bill May Aid Grandparents' Rights

DENVER (UPI) — Grandparents, who either through death or divorce in a family are barred from seeing their grandchildren, would have the right to go to court to seek reasonable visitation rights under legislation given preliminary approval in the Senate Monday.

Sen. Ron Stewart, D-Longmont, chief sponsor of the bill, said the legislation was patterned after laws now on the books in 25 other states.

Under the bill, grandparents could ask a court for visitation rights if they have been barred from seeing the youngsters because of divorce, legal separation or the death of the parents or because of out-of-home placement of the children.

The judge could order a hearing held if either party requested it or if the judge felt one should be held.

Among those urging support for the bill was Sen. Dennis Gallagher, D-Denver, who said current times made it especially important.

"In this the age of the nuclear family, not only are we seeing an increase in the divorce rate, we are seeing many cases where people have to live away from their grandparents," Gallagher said.

"This would be one way to give children, who are in a situation where the parents are divorced, would have continuity of family that is so important."

Sen. Dan Schaefer, R-Lakewood, questioned whether there actually was a need for such law and expressed fears it could even lead to custody battles where a grandparent tried to gain custody of a child.

"It has nothing to do with custody," said Stewart. "We have a number of grandparents who have not been able to see their grandchildren and have not been able to resolve the problem because Colorado statute does not provide a solution."

Stewart said a Denver attorney told him he had gone to court to try to establish visitation rights, but a judge refused the request because the law was silent on the matter.

"Twenty-five other states actually have this kind of language on the books," he added.

Mississippi Senator Enters Hospital

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi Sen. John C. Stennis, 78, has entered a hospital for treatment of what was described as a respiratory infection and a mild case of pneumonia in one lung. Aides said Stennis was responding well to treatment but was expected to remain in the hospital for several days.

admitted to F.G. Riley Memorial Hospital in Meridian Saturday evening, suffering from influenza symptoms.

Thorton said Stennis, a Democrat and Mississippi's senior U.S. senator, was "doing fine." Aides said they had intended to keep the hospitalization quiet but newsmen learned of it and called the hospital for information.

Canadian Officials Blamed For Slow Response To Sinking Ship

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — A coroner's jury investigating the capsizing of a Taiwanese freighter that killed 30 crew members on Christmas Day has placed much of the blame on the slow response of Canadian authorities.

The jury determined that the ore carrier Lee Wang Zin freighter struck Celestial Reef off the northern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands, ripping a hole in its port side. The ship rolled over within a few minutes.

The report countered earlier speculation that shifting of 1,100 tons of oily ballast water in the ship's hold was responsible for the capsizing.

Among the jury's finding and recommendations issued Saturday:

• Search and rescue vessels capable of withstanding severe weather conditions off the northern British Columbia coast should be stationed at Prince Rupert.

• Federal and provincial governments should improve the coordination of disaster response services. The Victoria Rescue Coordination Center should be evaluated independently and regularly.

• All search and rescue centers should have a list of the call signs of vessels entering and leaving British Columbia ports.

A Canadian Coast Guard report released at the inquest said it took nearly an hour to identify the Lee Wang Zin as the vessel sending a vague distress call — and even then the discovery was made by chance. The Lee Wang Zin radioed its call sign but not its name or position.

The jury was told that the Pacific Pilotage Authority in Vancouver keeps a list of vessels operating in provincial waters, including call signs. A pilot boat stationed near Prince Rupert could have identified the call sign within five minutes and reached the freighter within 1½ hours, despite bad weather, officials said.

A Coast Guard helicopter was the first to arrive at the ship, about four hours after it radioed for help. And the first surface vessel to reach the freighter, a tug based in Prince Rupert, did not arrive until about 2 p.m. the next day.

Tug captain Michael Stevenson testified he would have been prepared to venture out Christmas Day to save lives but was not instructed to do so by the Coast Guard.

Coroner Hal Murphy criticized Fred Bullen, Prince Rupert port warden, for issuing a certificate for the ship to sail without inspecting the loading of 55,000 tons of iron ore pellets.

He also said the assistance given by a British Columbia marine pilot to the ship's master in plotting an outward course toward Japan left much to be desired.

Football Season Almost Here

AS DIEHARD TEXAS FOOTBALL FANS love to remind newcomers to the Lone Star state, there are only two recognized sports seasons in Texas — football season and spring football season.

It may be hard to believe, but we are rapidly approaching the latter. The Goodyear blimp hasn't even been fully deflated yet and Mr. Touchdown U.S.A. is still recovering from 1979's bumps and bruises, but spring training is only days away for some college football programs. When the prep recruiting wars cease Wednesday (the national letter-signing day), all the reorganizing, re-vamping, re-fueling and re-evaluating begins.

Although Texas Tech football coaches must leave Lubbock Tuesday evening to get those precious Red Raider recruits' autographs on national letters of intent Wednesday, the winter conditioning program at Tech officially began Monday afternoon.

Tech strength and conditioning coach Russ Polhemus and the remainder of the Red Raider coaching staff put four separate groups of football players (60 scholarship athletes and 50 walk-ons in all) through an hour of weight training, flexibility exercises and running.

THE PURPOSE OF THE PROGRAM? To make sure the Raiders are in shape when spring drills do arrive; to shed those few extra pounds picked up during the holidays; to rehabilitate the injuries that sidelined players last season.

Rex Dockery has announced regular spring training will begin the day following Tech's spring vacation, Monday, March 24. Dockery had planned to begin drills the week before spring break, but changed his mind for two reasons.

The first was the loss of outside linebacker coach Donnie Laurence, who left the Raider coaching staff last week to take the head coaching job at Texarkana (Texas) High School. At the present time, Dockery is looking for a successor.

Dockery wants to make sure that Laurence's replacement and David Knaus, who joined the Red Raider staff in December, are thoroughly familiar with Tech's system before they start putting Xs and Os on the blackboard and feeding the material to the Raider players.

Dockery's other major reason for setting back workouts a few days was to give some of the players who suffered injuries requiring surgery a little more time to recover completely.

SOME OF THOSE PLAYERS who are coming off surgery include quarterback Ron Reeves (shoulder separation); outside linebacker Roger Jones (knee); cornerback Alan Swann (knee); and tight end Kevin Kolbye (knee). Dockery obviously wants to avoid reinjury.

The Red Raiders have 30 days in which to conduct 20 practices, according to NCAA guidelines. Dockery plans to scrimmage his squad every Friday or Saturday during spring practice. The annual Red-White scrimmage has been scheduled for Tuesday, April 22 at 7:30 p.m.

Included with the walk-ons during Monday's first conditioning session was Willie Wright, a Class AAAA all-stater from El Paso Burges who signed a SWC letter with Tech in 1978, but who selected Oklahoma on national signing day and played for the Sooners for two seasons.

Wright, 6-0, 195 pounds, returned to Tech at the semester break and walked on. Wright must sit out the 1980 season because he played last year. It will be a long wait for the former high school star before he is eligible to taste varsity action again. Some 18 months to be exact.

FORMER RED RAIDER WIDE RECEIVER Brian Nelson, who was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings last year and survived all but the final player cut, signed a one-year free agent contract with the National Football League champion Los Angeles Rams.

Nelson signed the pact the night before the Rams upset the Dallas Cowboys in the NFC divisional playoffs.

"I think I have a very good chance to make the team," declared Nelson, who has been working out regularly and tips the scales at 185 pounds. "They (the Rams) like to throw the ball a lot, which helps. I also like the fact that the Rams have some good receivers. I like that type of competition."

Nelson must report to the Rams' mini-camp in April and then will try out with the full Los Angeles squad in July.

Lamesa's Follis Not Near Mark

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

All season long, the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes have been trying to win game No. 810 for coach O.W. Follis. Victory No. 810, they believed, would give their legendary coach the national record for career victories at a single school.

Last Tuesday, the Tors beat Brownfield 57-43, giving Follis 809 career wins, supposedly tying the record. Friday, Lamesa lost to district champ Snyder, putting the emphasis on tonight's game with Sweetwater.

Sorry fellas, hate to rain on any parades, but coach Follis is not one win short, but about 87. It seems the 1979-1980 National High School Sports Record Book, put out by the National Federation of High School Coaches, was wrong.

That's the reference book used by the officers at the Texas High School Coaches Association, and they're the ones who supplied the faulty information to the folks in Lamesa and the area.

The real national record holder, oddly enough, comes from Hawley, a small school just north of Abilene, only 140 miles east of Lamesa.

He's C.E. "Nig" Womack, and in 28 years of coaching the Hawley Bearcat boys he compiled a remarkable won-loss record of 896-147 — a winning percentage of .859. In addition, he coached the girls' teams from 1948 to 1966, taking a 673-110 record there.

Womack started coaching at Hawley in September of 1948 and retired to devote his full energies to the school superintendent's job in 1979. He layed off the boys' coaching from 1964 to 1968 to be with his wife, who was terminally ill.

Follis' record of three state championships in Class AAA still holds, but that career-win mark is going to have to wait another four or five years. Not surprisingly, Follis seemed less upset about the

RAIDERS HOST 'HORNS Seniors Ready For Finale

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

This could be it. The last hurrah and all that stuff for Texas Tech seniors Kent Williams and Thad Sanders. But, fittingly enough, that's still up in the air.

The Raiders will meet the Texas Longhorns at 7:30 tonight in the Municipal Coliseum and if the Raiders win — in all likelihood — it will be the last Lubbock appearance for Sanders and Williams.

Now if the 'Horns come out on top, the Raiders are almost certain to play an opening-round Southwest Conference tournament game in the Coliseum. The word "almost" is emphasized because at this stage of the game nothing is certain.

Both Tech and Texas own 8-6 SWC slates — as do the Houston Cougars. All three are currently tied for third place, so tonight's game should go a long way towards deciding the eventual third-place finisher. And no one is more aware of that than Sanders and Williams.

"Of course, I'll be thinking about it being my last game and all," said Williams. "But I'll be in the back of my mind. Because if we don't win now, we'll have another one at home."

"I'm not ready for it to end yet. We've had some great games in here — and we've had some bad ones."

This year, at least, most of the Raiders home games have been enjoyable for Williams. Tech owns a 10-1 record in the Coliseum.

Sanders, who's done an excellent job as the Raiders' sixth man this year, hasn't been able to enjoy a career as a three-year starter like Williams — but he plans to take everything in carefully tonight.

"I'm going to take a real good look at everything," Sanders stated, "like the crowd and coming out the tunnel and seeing everybody — I want a vivid picture to look back on."

"I want to be able to remember how it was. But when it's time to play, I'll be concentrating — it'll be time to get serious."

"It's good the way it turned out," added Sanders. "This is a real big game — that makes it exciting."

The SWC race this year has provided more excitement than any in recent memory as the top five spots are still up for grabs with only two games left. And while he admits that's good for the league, Tech coach Gerald Myers could probably live with a little less excitement.

"It would be nice to have a spot sewed up," he admitted. "But it's probably good for basketball to have a race like this. We've worked hard these last two days, though. We ought to be ready."

The Longhorns also boast a couple of seniors — Ron Baxter and John Danks — who have given the Raiders fits. Baxter, a strong contender for SWC player of the year, is averaging 18.2 points and 7.6 rebounds a game, while Danks is scoring 15.5 per outing.

Although Baxter hyper-extended a knee in the 'Horns loss to Texas A&M Saturday, he's expected to play tonight. Baxter and Danks will start at the forward spots with 6-10 freshman LaSalle Thompson at center, and 6-6 Henry Johnson and 6-1 freshman Fred Carson at the guard spots.

"Baxter has always given us trouble," Myers said, "he's just so versatile — strong inside and a good outside shooter. We've never been able to do much with him."

Jeff Taylor led the Raiders in that earlier victory with 18 points and David Little tallied 16. Besides Taylor and Little, the Raiders will go with their set lineup of Ralph Brewster at the post, Williams at point guard and Ben Hill at a forward position. As

Monterey Ready To Tear Into Sandies

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Asking Tim Tasker if the Monterey girls' basketball team is excited about tonight's bi-district contest with Amarillo High is like asking GuntherGebel-Williams if his big cats enjoy a little raw horse meat around dinner time.

"They want them bad," commented Tasker, head coach of the District 4-AAAA Plainsmen. "They're so excited I don't know if they can wait (for tonight's 7:30 contest in Plainview's Hutcherson Gym)."

There are a number of reasons why the Plainsmen are biting at the bits for a shot at the Sandies. First, the winner advances to Friday's regional tournament in Abilene. And second, there's the revenge factor. Amarillo is one of only two teams this year that defeated Monterey during the regular season.

In the first meeting, Monterey shot a horrid 25 per cent from the line and wound up falling 56-55 in double overtime.

"We played terrible (in that first meeting)," noted Tasker. "Without a doubt, it was our worst game of the season. We were flat and just stood around and watched."

The Plainsmen, winners of District 4-

AAAA with a perfect 8-0 mark, enter the game with a 27-2 record and are ranked second in the state behind Dallas South Oak Cliff by one coaches' poll.

Meanwhile, Amarillo, which had a much harder time reaching the bi-district contest, captured the first-half title in District 3-AAAA and then defeated second-half winner Palo Duro 64-40 Saturday night in a post-season playoff to garner the spot opposite MHS.

"I'm glad they (Amarillo) beat Palo Duro," continued Tasker. "We might have had a harder time getting up for them (Palo Duro). We sure aren't having that trouble with Amarillo... just the opposite."

So the natives are getting restless? "To say the least," laughed Tasker.

Sisters Kriss and Kamie Ethridge are Monterey's top two scorers, averaging 15.8 and 13.3 points respectively. In all, MHS has five girls, including the Ethridge twins, who average in double figures. Barbara Ragu sports a 13.0 mark, followed by Kelli Crow (11.5) and Janet Mears (10.8).

Amarillo does have one slight advantage over MHS. That's in the height department. Marcey Dale, who hit 24 points in the Sandies' win over Palo Duro, stands a flat-footed 6-1 — which is almost five inches taller than the tallest Plainsmen.

"She sure killed us the last time we played," said Tasker. "It's hard for us to stop her since she's so much bigger."

And, according to Tasker, as Miss Dale goes, so goes the Sandies.

"If she has a good game," said Tasker, "they're going to be hard to stop."

Tasker hopes Monterey's overall quickness will offset AHS' height advantage to some degree.

"We can't stand around against them," said Tasker. "and wait for the ball to come to us. We've got to move in and go."

Also on tap tonight, the Coronado and Lubbock boys' teams close out the regular season.

The Mustangs, looking to end the year with a winning season (they are currently 14-14), entertain Hereford in the CHS gym at 7:30 p.m.

Lubbock High, still hoping to win at least one conference game this season, travels to Plainview.

Both games are, in effect, meaningless affairs since Monterey has already won the district title and a place opposite the 3-AAAA winner in the bi-district playoffs. The MHS boys will be in action next Tuesday.

Area Squads Eye Bi-District Play

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Now that most of the area prep districts have basketball champions, the bi-district playoffs can begin this week. But for districts 5-AA and 5-A, league playoff action continues.

Friendship and Denver City, which tied for the District 5-AA second-half boys' title with 6-1 records, will play for the championship tonight at 8 p.m. in Plains. The winner of the game will then play a team both beat in the second half of play, district first-half winner, Seminole, for the overall title.

District 4-AAA champion Abilene is waiting for the outcome in 5-AA because the two district champions will meet in bi-district play.

Slaton's girls, who breezed through District 5-AA play, will play Merkel. District 6-AA champions, in Snyder tonight in a bi-district clash. The 5-AA champion Tigertees are going for their third straight state title.

The Shallowater Mustangs, the Cinderella team of District 4-A, which finished third in the regular-season standings, but won the post-season tournament, will play 3-A champion Vega in a bi-district clash February 26 at 7:30 p.m. in Muleshoe. The Mustangs' record is 23-5, while Vega has a 19-10 mark.

Tulia will be the site of tonight's bi-district clash between girls' 4-A champion New Deal and 3-A champion Vega. The game will begin at 7:30.

District 5-A first-half boys' champion Seagraves and second-half champions Stanton will square off for the overall title Friday night at 7:30 in Lamesa.

Girls' 5-A champion Forsan, which has a 26-5 record this season, will play 6-A champion Iraan in bi-district action tonight.

The Motley County boys, who took the District 12-B championship while going 20-1 this season, will have to wait until Wednesday for the 11-B champion to be decided. Harrold and Chillicothe will play for the district championship, then take on Motley County in bi-district.

The Motley County girls also won a 12-B championship. They will be playing 11-B champion Lakeview in Valley tonight at 7:30. The Motley County girls have a 21-2 record.

District 9-B champion Sands, which has gone through the season winning 28 games and losing only three, is still waiting for District 10-B to come up with a bi-district opponent. The 10-B championship game will be played Thursday.

Borden County's girls, winners of the 9-B title, will play District 10-B champion Westbrook tonight at 6 p.m. in Big Spring. Borden County has a 29-2 record, while Westbrook is 20-7 this season.

Spade, the state's fourth-ranked Class B boys' team, won the District 6-B championship with a 27-4 record. It will play the champion of the District 5-B race between Nazareth and Valley. Nazareth won the first-half championship and is tied with Valley for the second-half title. The two teams must play for the 5-B championship before a bi-district game can be scheduled.

The Nazareth Swiftettes, who are going for their fourth straight state title, captured the District 5-B girls' banner and will take on 6-B champion Sudan in bi-district action tonight at 8 p.m. in Levelland. The Swiftettes are 30-2 this season and Sudan has a 29-2 record.

The Southland Eagles, champions of the District 8-B race, will play the Sundown Roughnecks, the District 7-B representatives, Feb. 26 in Levelland in a bi-district battle. The Eagles are 22-4, while the Roughnecks stand 16-8.

The Meadow girls, who rolled through the District 8-B race with a 21-10 record, will play 7-B champion Three Way tonight in Sundown.

Matadors, Panthers End Seasons

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Expect a full house of screaming fans tonight at 7:30 when the Estacado Matadors and the Dunbar Panthers resume their basketball rivalry in the EHS gym. But something will be different.

The game will be meaningless. It'll be the first time in several years that the contest won't have a direct influence on the District 1-AAA championship.

"I can't even remember playing a Dunbar-Estacado game that didn't mean anything," said Panther coach Joe McWilliams.

"Oh gosh, I don't know," chimed in Matador coach J.J. Wood, when asked when the last time EHS and DHS met in this manner. "It's been a long time since we played when it didn't have something concerning the district championship involved."

In the 1975-76 through 1977-78 seasons, Dunbar needed the last-game victories to clinch district titles. Last year, the Mats won district.

Since 1967, the teams have played only five times without the district championship riding on the line for one team or another. In that time, Dunbar has collected 26 wins and Estacado has nine.

The story might have remained the same this year. Estacado tied for the district's first-half lead, but has blown three of the last four games to drop completely out of the second-half chase. In fact, the district cellar rides on the outcome of this game.

"We've just kind of let the air out of the ball, haven't we?" asked Wood. "It's been real disappointing to us. I probably won't figure out what exactly has happened until later. But I don't think we've ever fully recovered from that first Levelland loss."

That loss cost the Mats sole possession of the district's first-half title. Until then, Estacado had won nine of its last 10 games. Since then, the Mats have dropped three of five.

McWilliams and the Panthers never not even enjoyed that much success, though. Dunbar lost its first eight district games before finally topping Dumas last Tuesday night.

"I'm really pleased with the way our kids have played in the last four games though, especially with the effort we've gotten," said McWilliams.

Will a win over Estacado make up for all those losses?

"I don't think that can be done with just one ball game," he said. "But the last four games have really helped us. We've showed a great deal of improvement."

That, plus we've got such a young ball club, probably means a win would mean more to us than it would to them."

Whatever, Wood guarantees: "It'll be exciting. There'll be a good crowd. It'll be just like all the other games. When Estacado and Dunbar play, it's always exciting."

Only one South Plains district race remains undecided and that one could be concluded tonight. Snyder plays at Brownfield (13-12) tonight and a win would clinch the district title for the Tigers.

Right now the Tigers stand 2-0 in the second half with two games remaining. Trailing them by a half game is Lamesa (2-1 with one game left) and back by a full game is Sweetwater (1-1 with two games left). A win tonight over Brownfield would mean that the best anybody could do is tie Snyder for the second-half title, and since the Tigers won the first half outright, they would represent the district in the playoffs.

SOUTHLAND SLATES PRACTICE
 District 8-B champion Southland will travel to Western Hills Baptist Academy to play a practice game tonight at 7 p.m. Southland, which has beaten Western Hills once this season, has a 22-4 record. Western Hills is 15-25.

SMU Clips Hogs 62-58

DALLAS (AP) — Reserve forward Gordon Welch canned two free throws with six seconds to play Monday night and Southern Methodist severely damaged Arkansas' Southwest Conference championship hopes with a stunning 62-58 upset of the Razorbacks.

Arkansas dropped to 19-6 overall and 12-3 in SWC play, a half-game behind Texas A&M which hosts Texas Christian Tuesday night.

The Mustangs, who clinched sixth place and a home berth in the SWC tournament beginning in a week, raised their record to 7-9 in league play and 15-11 overall.

It was the first victory for SMU over Arkansas in the last 10 meetings of the series and it all started with a vital steal by Phil Hale, with the Mustangs leading 58-56.

Richard Harris connected on two free throws with 10 seconds to play, but U.S. Reed countered with two free throws of his own just four seconds later. The Razorbacks swarmed the Mustangs with a full-court press, but Greg Skulman was ruled to have fouled Welch, who is averaging only 1.6 points per game.

Welch cleanly dropped both free throws and the Razorbacks threw the ball away as the Moody Coliseum crowd of 8,410 shouted their delight.

Brad Friess of Arkansas had a game high 20 points while Mustang guard Billy Allen scored 14 — 12 of them in the second half. Mustang forward Brad Branson, who blocked six shots in the first half when he scored 14 points, made two points in the second period for a total of 16.

The SMU win also boosted Texas Tech's hopes of a third-place finish. Should the Raiders defeat Texas tonight and Texas A&M win its two remaining games — the Raiders would be assured of a third-place finish, even if they were tied with Houston and Texas.

There are two possibilities for the Chaparrals to be dropped from their coveted sixth position. They are:

- If No. 7 Texas College, which plays a minimum of three games this week, hits a hot streak; 2. If a team other than McMurry College wins the annual Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament which begins Friday in Alpine.

The Indians, champs of the TIAA during the regular season, are favored to win the event. They already are rated well ahead of the Chaps in the district poll.

LCC, ineligible for the conference tournament in this, its first season in the TIAA, is the only other TIAA squad to be ranked... but a surprise champion at this weekend's tourney would automatically move that team into the top six in the district, thus bumping LCC from its precarious position.

"We're in limbo," Hays said, Monday. "I feel like, since we're rated sixth, we've got a chance. The main thing is that McMurry has to win the conference tournament. That's the key."

Last season, Sul Ross State shocked McMurry by winning the TIAA playoffs even though the Indians had breezed to the regular-season crown.

"I'm going to have to buy Hershel Kimbrell (McMurry coach) a hamburger and tell him to go get it," Hays said.

Hays, LCC Cagers Await New Ratings

Coach Larry Hays and the Lubbock Christian College basketball team have closed out regular-season play with a 17-1 record, and now await release of the next edition of the Dunkel ratings early next week before knowing whether or not they qualify for the NAIA District VIII playoffs.

The post-season tournament begins March 1 and the top six teams in next week's rankings gain playoff berths. LCC currently is listed sixth.

There are two possibilities for the Chaparrals to be dropped from their coveted sixth position. They are:

- If No. 7 Texas College, which plays a minimum of three games this week, hits a hot streak; 2. If a team other than McMurry College wins the annual Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament which begins Friday in Alpine.

The Indians, champs of the TIAA during the regular season, are favored to win the event. They already are rated well ahead of the Chaps in the district poll.

LCC, ineligible for the conference tournament in this, its first season in the TIAA, is the only other TIAA squad to be ranked... but a surprise champion at this weekend's tourney would automatically move that team into the top six in the district, thus bumping LCC from its precarious position.

"We're in limbo," Hays said, Monday. "I feel like, since we're rated sixth, we've got a chance. The main thing is that McMurry has to win the conference tournament. That's the key."

Last season, Sul Ross State shocked McMurry by winning the TIAA playoffs even though the Indians had breezed to the regular-season crown.

"I'm going to have to buy Hershel Kimbrell (McMurry coach) a hamburger and tell him to go get it," Hays said.

Raider Women Tip Oral Roberts

TULSA (Special) — Pam Stone scored 19 points to lead three Texas Tech scorers in double-figures, as the Red Raider women nipped Oral Roberts in a thrilling 91-88 overtime victory Monday night.

Tech was ahead by seven points with 2:49 to play in regulation, but at that point Oral Roberts began using a full-court press. Amidst a barrage of bad passes by the Red Raiders, Louise Davis made five of six free throw attempts in the final minute of play as the game went into overtime with the score even at 79-79.

With one minute left in the overtime period, Stone hit a 10-footer to give Tech the lead for good, 89-88. Stone then hit a pair of free throws with three seconds left to give the Raiders the 91-88 victory, their twenty-second of the season against nine losses. Oral Roberts' record is now 20-7.

The Tech women will be in action again today as they continue their Oklahoma road trip with a game against Tulsa. The game will begin at 6 p.m.

Following the two games in Oklahoma, the Raiders will travel to Nacogdoches to play in the second round of the Texas Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women's state tournament against Wayland Baptist Thursday.

second team was put in the game with 3:15 remaining and with the score 64-38, and outscored the Monahans team 14-11.

The Demonettes used a patient offensive attack, which melted the Monahans full-court press like butter in the latter stages of the game, and 2-3 zone defense that allowed the Lobos only 15 total field goals in the game.

The Dumas girls will now advance to the regional stage of the AAA state tournament — two steps away from a state championship.

Softball Leagues
Slate Registration

The Lubbock Parks and Recreation Department will offer a spring softball season again this year. The spring season will begin on March 24 and end prior to June 12.

The organizational meeting for all Men's Leagues will be on Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at Hodges Community Center. 42nd and University. A meeting for Women, Church and Industrial Leagues will be held at the same site on Feb. 21 — also at 7:30 p.m.

The Parks and Recreation Department has decided to sponsor non-roster Recreation League's and an Open League which limits a team to a 16-player roster. The entry fee for the 1980 season is $175 and is due prior to Wednesday, March 5.

Dumas Girls Bomb Monahans

Trish Fortenberry ripped the nets for 40 big points as the Dumas Demonettes routed the Monahans Lobos in a Class AAA girls' bi-district basketball game at Coronado High School Monday night.

Miss Fortenberry hit 17 field goals, mostly on bombs from the outside, and six free throws during her torrid scoring performance.

Dumas, now 28-2 this season, outscored the Lobos 14-6 in the first quarter, and continued increasing its lead throughout the game. The Demonette

East Germany Assumes Lead In Medal Chase

WENZEL ON WAY — Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein whips up a cloud of snow as he speeds around a gate on the giant slalom course on Whiteface Mountain Monday during the first portion of the Olympic event. Wenzel placed first, edging Hans Enn of Austria and Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark. The event concludes today. (AP Laserphoto)

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Barbara Petzold gave East Germany the medals lead in the XIII Winter Olympics Monday when she raced to the women's 10-kilometer cross country ski victory. And Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein grabbed the giant slalom ski lead over favored Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden in the first run of the event.

Wenzel won the gold medal in his second run today, he and his sister, Hans, would pull off the first brother-sister Alpine medal winning act in the history of the Games. Hanni won the silver medal in the women's downhill Sunday.

Jan Hoffman of East Germany held the lead over Americans Charlie Tickner of Littleton, Colo., and David Santee of Park Ridge, Ill., after the compulsory figures round in the men's figure skating event Monday. Robin Cousins of Great Britain was fourth. World champion Vladimir Kovalev of the Soviet Union withdrew after finishing fifth in the first phase of the three-phase competition.

Soviet team manager Aleksandr Vedenin said Kovalev has had the flu. "He tried to do his best because he really wanted to skate in the Olympics. But after the second figure his temperature rose," said the compulsory our doctors decided not to let him skate.

The compulsories are normally Kovalev's forte. He has been reprimanded by the Soviets in the past for training violations and has not been attending practice sessions.

Miss Petzold won the only gold medal awarded Monday, skiing the 10 kilometers in 30 minutes, 31.54 seconds. The victory gave East Germany 12 medals for the Games, one more than the Soviet Union. And the U.S. has four, all in speed skating. The Soviet Union led in gold medals with six to East Germany's three.

Finnish skiers took the silver and bronze medals in the 10-kilometer race, with Hikka Riihivuori timed in 30:35.05 and Helena Takalo in 30:45.25. Alison Owen-Spencer of Indian, Alaska, was the highest American finisher, in 22nd place with a time of 32:41.33.

Eric Heiden, the American speed skater who already has won two gold medals, goes for his third today in the 1,000-meter race. A third gold would equal the Olympic men's speed skating record last matched in 1972 by Ard Schenk of the Netherlands. Heiden hopes to go on to a live-event sweep Thursday and Saturday when he skates in the 1,500 and 10,000-meter events. Ivar Balangrud of Norway won three in 1936 and Hjalmar Andersen of Norway won three in 1952.

The toughest races, the 500 and the 5,000, are behind him, but there was some uncertainty about Saturday's long race, the 10,000. Heiden has gone that distance infrequently of late while a crew of young European skaters, including Tom Oxholm of Norway, have posted good times. Oxholm won the bronze in the 5,000.

Ulrich Wehling of East Germany led Monday at the halfway point of the Nordic combined event — ski jumping and cross country racing. After the 70-kilometer jumping competition, Wehling had 227.2 points to 221.8 for Walter Malmquist of Post Mills, Vt. Hubert Schwarz of West Germany was third with 219.6.

Wehling has won the event in the last two Winter Olympics and had the best jump of the day Monday — 85 meters on his second attempt. Malmquist hit 84 meters.

Today, the competitors complete the event with a 15-kilometer cross-country race.

Andreas Wenzel's performance in the first run of the men's giant slalom was Monday's big surprise. He was timed in 1:20.17 through the 56 gates covering 1,354 meters. Hans Enn of Austria was second in 1:20.31 and the heavy favorite, Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden, was third in 1:20.49.

Swedish pasted Norway 7-1 earlier Monday.

Stenmark refused to talk to reporters after the race. "I will talk with you tomorrow," he said. Earlier in the week he had said "The gold medal is more important to me than the World Cup. I have won the World Cup three times."

Temperatures at the top of the slalom course were near zero Monday and a blustery wind put the chill factor at 25 below zero. A warming trend was expected.

When Stenmark came out of the closed gate, he went wide and his left ski slid out on him, causing him to lose precious time. The fastest American was Phil Mahre of Yakima, Wash., who was 14th with 1:21.74. Steve Mahre, his twin brother, was 15th in 1:21.86.

The Olympic bus transportation system seemed to be working better Monday after a chaotic weekend, but organizers still predicted delays of up to two hours for spectators after events. The U.S. Army loaned tents to the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee to keep people warm while they waited for the fouled-up bus system to get coaches to them.

"To expect it to be faster is not common sense," said state Environmental Conservation Commissioner Robert Flacke, indicating that officials do not really expect to further reduce the waiting time.

U.S Hockey Team Clobbers Romania

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — More and more in these Olympic Games, the United States hockey team has been getting leadership from the forward line of left wing Buzz Schneider, center Mark Pavelich and right wing John Harrington.

On Monday, Schneider scored two goals on assists from Harrington and Pavelich added an assist as the unbeaten United States recorded a 7-2 triumph over Romania and pulled back into a first-place tie with Sweden in the Blue Division.

Sweden pasted Norway 7-1 earlier Monday.

usual. Sanders is also slated to see plenty of playing time.

Sanders and Williams came to Tech with a freshman class of four players. But Ronnie Phenix and Paul Richards didn't last too long on the Tech campus.

"I've had my ups and downs at Tech," admitted Sanders. "but I'm glad I stuck with it. I feel like I've accomplished something this year."

These last couple of games have really had me thinking about my career at Tech," added Williams. "Every time we've played on the road — I've known that was my last time."

"What I really want to do, though," offered Williams, "is make the Texas game the start of a great finish. Me and Thad have never played at a conference championship team — that's something we'd still like to do."

Staubach Finishes Tests

DALLAS (AP) — Joking that he bangs his head up against the wall every day to see if it's still working, Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach underwent the last in a series of examinations Monday to determine whether he can play football another year.

However, the 38-year-old Staubach, who was knocked unconscious five times during the last National Football League season, refused to say he would play even if he gets a green light from the physicians.

"That (the result of the examinations) will be a part of my decision," said Staubach. "But there are other factors. Right now I just don't want to paint myself into a corner on making a decision."

Staubach, who has guided Dallas to two Super Bowl victories but has never made All-Pro, said "I still enjoy playing the game, but there comes a time (to retire) when it's time."

"It's a demanding profession and I've got five kids. I'd like to start spending some time with them."

Staubach reiterated that the team was in excellent shape at quarterback with backups Danny White and Glenn Carano.

Organized Labor Spokesman Endorses Defense Spending

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Organized labor's new chief spokesman endorsed President Carter's call for increased defense spending Monday and only mildly criticized the administration's economic policies.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland predicted the labor federation's executive council, which opened a week-long winter meeting here Monday, would back Carter's 1981 budget proposal to increase defense spending by 5 percent, after taking inflation into account.

Earlier Monday, the 35-member executive council met for about 90 minutes with Defense Secretary Harold Brown, who urged the labor leaders to support the larger defense budget and Carter's call for resumption of draft registration. Carter announced both moves in response to Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

At a news conference, Kirkland said the 13.6 million-member federation was "seriously disappointed" that the Carter administration has deferred a schedule for reducing unemployment from the current 6.2 percent to 4 percent by 1983. Kirkland also said he opposed the Federal Reserve Board's decision last week to raise interest rates in a move intended to help combat inflation.

In general, however, Kirkland shied away from any direct attack on Carter's economic performance.

His restraint was in vivid contrast to statements by his predecessor, the late George Meany, who was a frequent and strident critic of Carter. Meany, AFL-CIO president from the federation's founding in 1955 until his retirement last November, died in January at the age of 85.

When reporters noted the contrast, Kirkland attributed it to an accord reached between the AFL-CIO and the White House last fall. Under the agreement, the federation is cooperating with Carter's voluntary program of wage restraint to fight inflation in exchange for a larger say on economic policy.

Asked if his statements translated into support for Carter's re-election bid this year, Kirkland, 57, said he was sticking to the AFL-CIO's policy of staying neutral in a Democratic presidential contest.

At the same time, however, he expressed a difference of views with Carter's chief rival for the Democratic nomination, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., on the issue of nuclear power.

Kennedy has called for a moratorium on the construction of new nuclear power plants, and more recently said existing nuclear plants should be phased out as new sources of energy can be phased in.

Kirkland said he was very concerned about the safety problems of nuclear energy, but added, "I've found no one who can project to the year 2000 — who can write off a major role for nuclear power without a major (energy) shortfall."

The executive council is expected to come out in support of resuming draft registration at the same time it supports increased defense spending, probably in a statement next Monday.

Biologists Say Ship Hit Whale

DEPTFORD, N.J. (AP) — Marine biologists concluded Monday that a 35-foot whale found dead in the Delaware River had been hit by a large ship that snapped its spine and crushed its ribs.

The biologists carved through the whale carcass for several hours Monday to learn why the mammal died and why it was found 100 miles up the Delaware River. It's the first whale known to have gone so far upriver in 171 years.

"If these large tankers hit a whale they wouldn't even know it," said Robert Schoelkopf, program director for Atlantic City's Marine Mammal Stranding Center.

Schoelkopf speculated the whale may have been hit by a tanker, perhaps in the open sea. He said it may have become caught on the ship's bow thruster, used to stabilize the craft, and have been dragged upriver until it became dislodged and floated near the shore.

The scientists could not determine the precise time of death or age of the whale, but estimated it had been dead two to five days and was not fully grown. The biologists said the whale either died upon impact or was paralyzed by the blow and drowned.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard station in Gloucester City said the 17-ton whale was buried at the Kinsley landfill, where the autopsy was performed.

Participating in the autopsy were Schoelkopf, his assistant, Sheila Dean, technicians from Yale Medical School and representatives of the National Marine Fisheries Service.

The scientists hoisted the whale, believed to be a minke, onto a 40-foot flatbed truck and hauled it to the landfill early Monday.

"We dug a hole and the animal is placed next to it. We then take the pieces we need, and any remains of the animal are dumped into the hole at the end of the operation," said Schoelkopf.

The scientists were using "flensing knives" for the operation. "It's the same kind of knife used by the whalers in the 18th and 19th centuries — big half-moon shaped things," Schoelkopf said. "The blades are about 18 inches to two feet long. There's six to eight inches of blubber to cut through alone."

The whale was first spotted Sunday morning floating two miles north of the Benjamin Franklin Bridge. The carcass was towed to the Coast Guard station at Gloucester, N.J., by Philadelphia police.

The experts are puzzled by its journey to Philadelphia, nearly 100 miles up the Delaware River from Delaware Bay.

"If it is that far up the river, it was probably sick and lost its bearings and just kept on going," said Alleta Hohn of the Smithsonian Institution Marine Mammal Center.

"It's big, it's gray, it's dead and it stinks," said Philadelphia police Inspector Robert Miller. "You boil him down (for the oil) and you could heat your house for the rest of the year."

The minke is a baleen whale related to finback and blue whales.

Robert Alotta, a local historian, said whales apparently were not uncommon in the river before 1723. The last recorded sighting was in 1909, when a bull whale was chased south to Chester, Pa., and caught. Thomas Pivor bought it, and put it on display with an armchair in its mouth. Alotta said.

Boy Killed Attempting To Save Dog

SEATTLE (AP) — One boy was killed and another critically injured trying to rescue an English sheepdog who fell into an icy swamp.

"All the boys were very brave," said Brad Roberts, whose 5-year-old son, Michael, was in critical condition Monday at Children's Orthopedic Hospital.

"The doctors can't promise us anything," Roberts said. "His brain swelled from lack of oxygen. It can go either way."

Matthew Kitchener, 6, who drowned, had still been grieving over the death of his father following kidney surgery last year, according to his mother, Alice Kitchener.

The tragic story began Saturday afternoon in Black Diamond, located about 25 miles southeast of Seattle. Witnesses pieced together this account.

Matthew, Michael and two other children had gone looking for arrowheads Saturday afternoon along a small creek that runs into Lake Sawyer near Black Diamond, 25 miles southeast of Seattle.

Witnesses gave this account of what happened.

The dog fell through a partially iced-over swampy area, created by overflow from the lake.

Michael ran to help the dog, couldn't reach it, and retreated. Then Matthew tried to save the struggling animal, but plunged into the water.

Michael then ran out again to save his friend, and also fell in.

Another playmate, 9-year-old Jason Hamlin, also met the same fate trying to help the boys. But he was a strong swimmer, pulled himself out, and ran with his brother to get help. The dog, Bambi, owned by the Hamlin family, also reached firm ground.

The Hamlin boys' father, Randy Hamlin, and Michael's father rushed to the scene. Hamlin held a rope while Roberts inched along it in the water to where the two boys were floating.

He pulled his unconscious son from the water, but could not reach Matthew, who was farther out.

Fire rescue units finally arrived, retrieved Matthew and tried to revive both boys. Roberts said only his son showed any signs of life.

Michael was rushed to Valley General Hospital and then transferred to Children's Orthopedic Hospital in Seattle.

Store Robbed By 25 People At Once

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — About 25 people, including women in long dresses, jewelry and "a lot of makeup," walked into a grocery store and distracted employees with questions as their companions pilfered $5,000 to $10,000 from the store, officials said.

Afterwards, the band of thieves piled into three dirty automobiles and fled, said Frank Van Winkle, manager of Best's No. 2 grocery store.

He said the theft of cash and checks

Sunday took about five minutes. "They snookered us all," he said.

"They came in and had all the employees busy asking them questions about tomatoes or dog food or plants or something like that," Van Winkle said.

"I'd been counting the money out of the safe when they called me over to the soft drink machine," the manager said.

Van Winkle said he was about 10 feet from the office when he saw two of the people run out the door.

"I thought something was strange so I checked the office. They'd taken all the cash and checks out of the safe," he said. "It didn't take them more than five minutes. I saw it took three to five minutes."

Van Winkle said the group escaped with more than $5,000, while police Sgt. Don Liles said the loss may be $10,000 or more.

The theft occurred about noon when the grocery store on Stillwater's north side is usually busy with shoppers just returning from church, Van Winkle said.

Police were questioning a number of witnesses, but were getting confusing or conflicting stories.

"They just confused everybody, it happened so fast," Van Winkle said.

Police were not able to provide exact descriptions of the cars because of conflicting eyewitness accounts.

"They were plumb full of people and might have had Illinois license plates," Van Winkle said.

Researchers Claim Discovery Of Cavity-Preventing Chemical

DENVER (UPI) — Three Denver researchers report they have discovered a chemical found naturally in saliva that could prevent tooth cavities.

Alfred J. Crowley, James M. Joneja and George J. Revis, researchers at the Webb-Waring Lung Institute, said they discovered the chemical while researching gum and tooth disease.

They said Monday the chemical, one of nine antigens found in human saliva, could provide the key to why some people have cavity-free teeth, while others are susceptible to decay no matter how much they brush, floss or avoid sweets.

Each antigen in saliva or any other body fluid has some function," said Crowley. "While studying these, we noticed that people whose teeth are resistant to dental cavities have a high level of this one component. Others who are susceptible to cavities have lower levels or none at all of this chemical."

Crowley said he and his colleagues now are working toward developing the cavity-preventing chemical synthetically.

Revis, a Denver dentist and researcher, said the findings could have a significant impact on the practice of dentistry.

Clinically, we know that some people have a natural resistance to cavities," he said. "If we could predict early who will be susceptible to cavities, we could say to a parent that he has a child who will be very prone to them. We could then take strong measures to prevent cavities."

New Mexico Leads In Uranium

SOCORRO, N.M. (UPI) — New Mexico is the leading producer of uranium in the nation, figures released by the New Mexico Energy and Minerals Department show.

In its report released Monday, the EMD said in addition to producing the most uranium, the state has more than half of the country's reserves and a "significant portion" of the world's supply of the mineral.

The report said the state ranks sixth overall in production and reserves of oil, gas, coal and uranium.

The report placed New Mexico fourth nationwide in gas production and reserves. It said gas production rose slightly last year after falling in 1978.

Crude oil production dropped 8 percent during the first quarter of 1979 and will continue to drop, the report predicted. It said, however, that rising oil prices offset this decline, listing the state's revenue from crude oil production as $103.9 million in 1978, $113.7 million in 1979 and estimating it to reach $183.8 million by 1985.

Coal production in New Mexico increased 7.5 percent during 1978 and will continue to rise, the report stated.

Man Believes Missing Brother Still Alive; Continues Search

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert R. Dumas promised his mother on her deathbed that he would never give up the search for his brother, a hazel-eyed, teen-age soldier who vanished in North Korea nearly 30 years ago.

Despite government red tape and years of bureaucratic back-passing, Robert Dumas has kept that promise. He still refuses to believe what the Army tells him — that Pfc. Roger A. Dumas has been dead for more than a quarter-century.

"I've always believed my brother, Roger, is still alive, but even if he's dead, I want to know when, where and how it happened. Then I could accept it," said Robert Dumas.

His brother, Roger, was born July 21, 1931, in the eastern Connecticut town of Plainfield, the youngest of seven children. Roger was six months shy of his 18th birthday when he asked his mother to sign for him so he could join the Army. The Korean War had not yet started.

"When Roger left, my mother said, 'Write to us. We'll be seeing you,' and Roger said, 'I don't think I'll see you again.' Later, she cried when she thought of that," Robert said.

After the war began, Roger was assigned to the 24th Division and became a machine-gunner near the Manchurian border. On Nov. 3, 1950, Roger wrote his family he had just crossed a river and was camped in an apple orchard.

He said in the letter they had had some good news. Gen. (Douglas) MacArthur had told them the enemy was on the run and they'd be home for Christmas," Dumas said.

It was the last time Roger's family heard from him. The next day, the 24th Division was trapped by Chinese troops north of Sine-Anju. Pfc. Roger A. Dumas was reported missing in action.

For nearly three years there was no further word. Then, on Sept. 23, 1953, the Dumas family received a telegram saying there was reason to believe Roger Dumas was a prisoner at one time, but that he could no longer be accounted for.

Government records show Roger Dumas was one of 389 American soldiers who were listed as unaccounted for after the Korean War. They could not be traced, could not be determined to be alive or dead.

Finally, the government declared on Feb. 26, 1954, that Roger Dumas and the other 388 Americans were "presumed dead."

But Roger's family would not accept the idea that he had simply vanished in that distant war, that he had disappeared as though he had never existed.

In 1959, as Mrs. Dumas was dying, she asked Robert to grant her one last request.

"I walked in front of her bed and she thought I was Roger," Robert Dumas recalled. "I said, 'No, I'm Bob.' She said, 'I thought it was Roger. I know he's alive. Promise me you'll always look for him.'"

"I promised," Dumas said. "I took my role as an older brother very seriously even though I was only 14 months older. I remember my mother would say, 'Bob, go find Roger. He's out skating. Bring him home.'"

Wire Short Blamed For Costly Fire

A short in an electrical wire connected to a heater caused the costly Sunday night blaze that gutted the Town and Country Shopping Center Radio Shack, fire marshal investigators said Monday.

Fire Marshal Robert Stokes said the fire began in the northeast corner of the display room at the Fourth Street and University Avenue store. No one was injured in the blaze.

Store Manager Jim Lambert said

Monday he estimated $50,000 to $60,000 in merchandise alone was destroyed. He described the store, one of six such facilities in Lubbock owned by the Tandy Corp., as "pretty close to a total loss."

Two engines and a booster truck from Lubbock Fire Department answered the call at 9:14 p.m. Sunday and arrived to find the structure already heavily damaged. It took firemen about 1 1/2 hours to make sure the fire was under control.

Five other businesses at the shopping center — Anthony's Department Store, Jones Jewelry, Jones-Roberts Shoe Store, Flip Side Records and Key Finance also sustained heavy smoke damage from the blaze.

Lambert said Monday he was not certain how long the Radio Shack store would remain closed but added, "Hopefully, we'll be right back before too long."

City Meeting In Clovis Produces Shake-Ups

A-J Correspondent CLOVIS, N.M. — After three and a half hours behind closed doors Monday, the Clovis City Commission announced they were accepting the resignation of City Manager Darrel Kreighbaum and were firing Assistant City Manager Cleve Teague.

The two men had been on extended leaves of absence since January, after the New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration asked them to step down during the department's investigation of city finances.

The state finance department and the Ninth Judicial District Attorney are conducting probes into alleged misappropriation and misuse of city funds. The investigation was begun about two months ago after a former city clerk-treasurer was fired for conduct unbecoming a city employee.

The commission had met with Kreighbaum for more than two hours

Thursday night in a closed session and had announced that they would meet again Monday. Six of seven commissioners went into the executive session without saying anything to reporters gathered outside.

When commissioners emerged and went into open session, Mayor Chick Taylor Jr. read a prepared statement saying that City Manager Darrel Kreighbaum had announced his resignation from city employment, effective immediately.

The mayor said the city commission wished to express its regret about the resignation and commissioners felt that Kreighbaum had made a real contribution to local government in Clovis.

"The city commission knows of no criminal misconduct on the part of Kreighbaum in the performance of his official duties. The commission is confident that all blame will be placed where it belongs as the investigations presently underway are concluded, and knows that Kreighbaum has not been personally involved in these difficulties.

"The city commission will immediately commence a search for a qualified individual to act as Clovis city manager as a replacement for Kreighbaum," the statement said.

The mayor also announced that Assistant City Manager Cleve Teague was released from city management and that personnel director Marie Dodson had been told last week that her job was being abolished.

After Monday's meeting Kreighbaum said, "The cumulative effect of these ongoing developments has resulted in severe strain to the mutual trust and respect that must exist between the city commission and the city manager."

"The cooperative working relationship that has existed has been destroyed. I therefore believe my resignation is in the best interest of the Clovis City Commission's best interest."
