Can you tell me why, with all the crime headlines one sees in the newspapers each and every day, the Midland City Council fails to understand the need for a third officer in the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department?
Is not a life more valuable than the $25,000 salary the council is afraid to pay?
Residents read just recently of a 76-year-old woman who was killed, with burglary the motive.
The first day of school, nine windows were broken at Sam Houston Elementary School.
These are just a small token of the amount of vandalism going on in the city. What do you say Mr. Mayor — not Fred Poe? — P.A.G.

Just what is 'good discipline?'

Teachers, students, parents cannot agree

EDITOR'S NOTE: Changing ideas in a changing society make school discipline one of the more complex issues facing schools today. This is the first of a six-part series examining the problem and possible solutions.

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Discipline. Most parents think schools need more, many teachers think homes are severely lacking in it, but few can agree on what "good discipline" really is.

In the classroom, discipline is as varied as the teacher and can range from a quiet word to a student whose mind is wandering in class to expulsion for one selling drugs on campus.

Discipline has become the rallying point for differing views of what schools should be trying to accomplish.

Back-to-basics advocates grow nostalgic for the hickory stick, while more humanistic educators want to give students even more self-control. Some teachers claim the new emphasis on student rights and a lack of support from administrators have taken away their ability to discipline students effectively.

Many of the old stand-bys for the classroom teacher have been restricted or eliminated by a changing education system.

SALT backers want Cuban issue solved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union are hoping, with no great optimism, that President Carter can defuse the Cuba controversy and get the pact back on the road toward ratification.

Despite repeated urgings that the fate of the treaty not be linked to the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, many of SALT II's supporters say no action to ratify the pact is likely until the Cuban issue is resolved.

President Carter is to report to the nation in a televised address at 9 p.m. EDT Monday on the reportedly deadlocked negotiations on Cuba between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia called on the president to use the speech to "clearly disconnect Cuba from the SALT treaty."

"I don't think it behooves a great nation to get a case of nervous delirium about 2,000 or 3,000 Soviet troops on an island on which the United States also has a military force numbering about the same," the majority leader said.

Byrd said he is inclined to vote for the treaty but is keeping his options open until he studies the the Senate Intelligence Committee's soon to be issued report on whether the United States can verify Soviet compliance with the treaty.

Meanwhile, Byrd said he is trying to prevent the treaty from becoming embroiled in the 1980 political campaign and "to protect the treaty from being destroyed" by such side issues as Cuba.

There has been no indication Gromyko softened the Soviet position that Russian military personnel have been in Cuba for many years, that their mission is solely to train Cuban forces in the use of Russian weapons and that their status has not been changed.

Cuban President Fidel Castro held to that line in a personal attack on Carter, accusing the U.S. president of lying about the troop issue and of being "dishonest, insincere and immoral."

"He has been deceiving the world and U.S. public opinion by making them believe the Cubans and the Soviets have taken some new, irresponsible step and changed the status quo," Castro said of Carter.

Castro said that what the Americans have been calling a brigade is called a training center by the Cubans. He maintained it has been on the island for 17 years.

has been virtually eliminated for students who must catch a bus back to their neighborhood school in Midland's cluster concept.

Use of the hickory stick—or rather, corporal punishment of a slightly gentler sort—is allowed, but limited by district policy designed both the student and the teacher.

Expulsion occurs infrequently and only after a lengthy process to protect the student's rights. And some teachers contend the threat of failure is eliminated by a district policy that favors social passing.

A recent trend away from strict discipline, however, may be reversing itself.

What some see as a teacher backlash resulted in a law that allows a classroom teacher to remove an "incorrigible student" from her classroom for the remainder of the school year.

But that measure, too, can be used only after complete documentation and a hearing to insure "due process" for the student.

The relatively recent insistence on student rights, some educators claim, may be one cause of the acknowledged erosion of discipline in the schools.

"We're trying to extend the civil rights movement to so many," noted Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant administrator for MISD.

Hundreds protest nuke power

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of anti-nuclear demonstrators, towing mock nuclear waste containers, camped Saturday on the doorstep of a federal nuclear complex in South Carolina as thousands protested in Illinois and New York.

All-day anti-nuclear rallies were held at a nuclear power plant in Zion, Ill., north of Chicago, and at a nuclear disposal site in West Valley, N.Y., south of Buffalo.

Anti-nuclear groups in Missouri said they would rally in Jefferson City, the state capital, Sunday to press for a limit on the growth of nuclear power.

And in New Mexico, rallies were held in opposite ends of the state for and against nuclear power.

Protest leaders said anti-nuclear groups around the country were holding weekend training sessions in preparation for an occupation of the Seabrook, N.H., atomic power plant planned for next Sunday.

At a town meeting in Manchester, N.H., on Saturday, anti-nuclear activist Tom Hayden criticized the planned tactics, saying that non-violence was one of the anti-nuclear movement's greatest strengths.

The three-day anti-nuclear rally in Snelling, S.C., will end Monday when hundreds of activists plan to trespass on the boundaries of the federal Savannah River Project, a nuclear waste burial site operated by Chem-Nuclear Systems and a plant owned by Allied-General Nuclear Services.

The Southeastern Natural Guard, a regional coalition of anti-nuclear groups, organized the weekend's activities, which include a seven-mile march and a rally Sunday. Demonstrations of solar energy technology were held Saturday.

A spokesman for Citizens Against Nuclear Power said more than 1,000 attended the all-day rally in Zion to protest "the threat posed by Commonwealth Edison's nuclear plant" there. The plant has two pressurized water reactors that have been in operation since 1973 and 1974.

In New York, a crowd estimated by organizers at 2,000 turned out in Springville to hear Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., demand an end to dumping of nuclear waste in her state. "How can we permit New York to become a nuclear cesspool for all of the Northeast?" she asked.

She was the keynote speaker at the hilltop rally, called to show opposition to plans to transfer more wastes to a nuclear fuel reprocessing plant in West Valley.

Dr. Marvin Resnikoff of the Sierra Club, one of the rally's sponsors, proposed a "deal" with the federal government that would permit transfer of more wastes only in exchange for a clean-up at the site.

Soviets call bluff

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.

HEARST

NEW YORK — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance served notice to Soviet Russia early last week that it had until this weekend to devise an acceptable compromise plan for the removal or the disarming of its 2,000 to 3,000 combat-ready troops in neighboring Cuba.

On Tuesday of this past week Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko addressed the General Assembly at the United Nations and denounced what he called "the campaign of falsehood" over Moscow's relations with Havana; dismissed as "artificial" the United States' concern over the Soviet brigade there, and urged Washington to drop the matter.

After a late meeting Thursday night between Mr. Gromyko and Mr. Vance failed to reach any agreement, President Carter summoned his entire defense team, including Vance, to The MAJOR DISCIPLINE problems are rare — district-wide last year only two students were expelled for major infractions of the school rules — and most teachers have few problems maintaining a learning atmosphere in their classrooms.

Uniformed off-duty officers patrol the high schools, and some Midland teachers admit to being at least occasionally intimidated by students, but fear is not a pervasive element in Midland's schools — as it is in some larger cities.

A recent National Education Association survey estimated 110,000 teachers in the U.S. were assaulted during the 1978-79 school year and 11 percent of the teachers surveyed reported at least occasional concern they may be physically attacked at school by a student.

Modified guidelines start soon

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since the start of the 1970s, three presidents have tried — and two have failed — to control the inflation that is gnawing at the nation's economic well-being.

President Carter's attempt to do it with voluntary wage and price guidelines will shift directions slightly on Monday when modified guidelines go into effect.

Whether the changes for the second year of the Carter anti-inflation program will help slow the rapid rise in prices won't be known for some time. But the president is aware of the consequences of failure.

"Ultimately," he said, "if not curbed, inflation will sap our confidence as a nation, will erode our faith in the future and will threaten those basic human values which make our country great."

Carter could have added that failure to curb the rate of inflation, currently at a record-setting 13 percent annual rate, also could cost him the presidency.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has said the condition of the economy year will be a key factor in his decision on whether to challenge Carter for the presidential nomination in 1980. Kennedy is well ahead of Carter in public opinion polls at this time.

But Carter has two strong cards in his pocket — cards that neither Richard Nixon nor Gerald Ford were able to play in the anti-inflation battles of their presidencies.

Carter on Friday announced a so-called "national accord" with the AFL-CIO. The pact, intended to give organized labor a greater voice in the nation's economic policy, brings the massive labor federation into the administration's anti-inflation fight for the first time.

His other "trump" is that the economy apparently began falling into a recession in the second quarter of this year. Although unemployment may go up, there will be less upward pressure on prices, economists say.

Nixon and Ford weren't so lucky.

Nixon's price controls, imposed in mid-1971, eventually evolved into voluntary standards that met heavy criticism. When they were lifted in 1974, inflation soared to the post-World War II record of 12.2 percent. Economists blamed part of the price surge to "catch up" from the earlier controls.

And Nixon's effort to involve labor by appointing union chiefs to his advisory board collapsed early on when figures such as AFL-CIO President George Meany resigned and charged that the board was dominated by businessmen and ignored by the government.

Ford tried the slogan approach, mounting a voluntary WIN (Whip Inflation Now) program to talk prices into line. His less-than-successful record on inflation and unemployment were seen as major factors in his defeat in the 1976 presidential election.

Heat in mid-90s forecast today

Today probably will be a bit too warm to qualify for the romantic-sounding Indian summer.

But a forecast breeze may take the edge off some of the heat.

Thermometers across much of West Texas should top out in the mid-90s — "very warm" — today and Monday, but should drop their readings to the upper 50s tonight, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Winds are expected to be light and variable under fair skies today.

Rain was not in the forecast as of Saturday night, according to the weatherman.

No rainfall has been recorded at the weather station since Friday night, when an isolated thundershower dropped .07 inch of rain on the weather service station. Few areas in Basin got any moisture from that shower, however.

Rainfall measurements thus far this year stand at 12.28 inches, slightly above Midland's 11.12-inch normal yearly rainfall through September.

Average rainfall for September is 1.54 inches. This month's tally is .08 inch.

Average annual rainfall for the Midland area is 13.51 inches.

The record high temperature reading on this date is 102 degrees, recorded in 1977. The record low is 42 degrees, recorded in 1936.

'Mud' fire fought at Midland firm

Midland firemen fought fire and smoldering sacks of "mud" at Buckeye Inc., 2301 W. Francis St., much of Saturday afternoon and night.

Seven firefighting units manned by 13 firemen contained the blaze and smoking sacks of paper-composite filler at the oil field "mud" warehouse beginning about 2:30 p.m.

The last unit returned to its station seven hours later, following "clean-up details" at the warehouse.

The filler is used in oil field holes. A number of sacks of "mud" stored in the building were destroyed, but the building was not severely damaged, firemen said.

Cause of the fire had not been determined late Saturday night, firemen said.

'High priority' given more talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Jose Lopez Portillo agreed Saturday to give "a high priority" to discussions on air and water pollution that crosses the border between the United States and Mexico.

The pair agreed to try to negotiate an agreement that would "lessen or eliminate environmental damage in the future" from such sources as the Mexican oil well blowout, which created a huge oil slick in the Gulf of Mexico and tarred Texas beaches.

The discussions also will include U.S.-spurred pollution that crosses the border into Mexico, officials stressed.

It was uncertain, however, whether Carter administration negotiators would press Mexico to pay for damage caused to the U.S. shoreline by the recent oil well accident. Mexico has resisted such suggestions so far, and Carter has conceded publicly that no international agreement exists that would force Mexico to pay.

At the conclusion of two days of talks here, both Carter and Lopez Portillo were smiling and saying they were pleased with the outcome.

Their final, 90-minute session in the White House also covered the Middle East, Cuba, the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty, long-term prospects for U.S. purchase of Mexican oil and cross-border sales of electricity.

White House spokesman Jerrold Schecter said the two presidents spoke for less than 10 minutes about Cuba, but he refused to say whether Lopez Portillo had agreed with Carter's position that the presence of a Soviet combat brigade on the Caribbean island is unacceptable. The Mexicans are believed to be far less concerned about the matter than the Carter administration, however.

The closest thing to a solid agreement that came out of Lopez Portillo's visit, his second to the United States during Carter's presidency, was the anti-pollution accord.

A joint statement issued after the final session said the two leaders "agreed on the need for both countries to prevent actions on one side of the land or maritime boundary from degrading the environment on the other side. They also instructed their administrations to give a high priority to such questions."

Carter and Lopez Portillo asked their negotiators to report on whether an anti-pollution agreement "is possible or appropriate," the statement said.

There has been concern in the United States not only over the highly publicized oil spill, but also over such less familiar problems as the New River, a polluted stream which flows northward across the border.

Mexican officials were said to be concerned about U.S.-spurred air pollution from such border cities as San Diego, and about pollution of the Colorado River, which flows southward across the border.

The joint statement said Carter and Lopez Portillo "paid special attention" to the migrant worker issue, but agreed only on trying to get better information on the numbers of Mexicans who cross the U.S. border illegally. Carter said he had asked state governors to protect the rights of illegal immigrants.

There was no mention in the joint statement of any progress on the question of importation of Mexican tomatoes.

U.S. growers want imports reduced while the Mexicans would like to sell more of their tomatoes north of the border.

this what is our game plan? Or, are we going to accept any answer and lose face throughout the globe?

Are we prepared to do anything in response to arrogance?

President Carter, who ordered an end to U-2 flight surveillance over Cuba many months ago and only recently came across the information that there are combat-prepared Soviet troops in that irresponsible and mercurial land only 90 miles from our shore, has yet to announce a plan to respond to his own nation.

Today, thanks to our politicians who have sought popularity by riddling our defense budget and who have gained applause by exposing to the world the activities of our CIA, our nation is not as strong militarily as the Soviet Union.

It has not taken long for such chickens to come home to roost.

We find it sensible to concur with Senator Frank Church, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, when he says that his panel should withhold its decision about SALT II, the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, until the issue of the presence of Soviet combat troops in Cuba is resolved to this nation's satisfaction.

Mr. Carter has now announced that he will speak to us Monday to let us know what has been transpiring between the Soviet and U.S. negotiators. It is inconceivable that during this eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation the U.S. has not had a contingency plan. We are entitled to be informed.

Russia, of course, is engaged in a face-saving operation, hoping to display to the Third World that it can shake a bear claw under the nose of Uncle Sam any time it wishes.

It knows that the U.S.A. is presently ill-equipped to save its own face on the stage of world opinion.

At the State Department they are betting that the Russians are, even now, declawing and neutralizing their military brigade in Cuba and, after letting us stew and sputter awhile, will inform us of the fait accompli.

There is no other course, if we wish to face real facts.

lives something should be done.

If the current school bond election is passed, there will be funds provided for the paving of parking facilities around the Vocational Building, which will take more cars off of the street. It also was suggested by the school board trustee that the times the two schools release students for the day be varied by as much as 15 minutes, thus alleviating the traffic problem.

We go to sleep and wake up to a neighbor's dog barking. He barks off and on all night and all day also.

Perhaps they do not know to train their dog not to bark and you can explain how, or recommend where they find this information. This is beginning to be a real nuisance and any help you can give would be appreciated. — R.E.

ANSWER: If the problem is really severe, you should telephone a dispatcher with the Midland Police Department, 683-4281, and report the nuisance. An officer will check with the neighbor involved and report the complaint. Possibly, until you neighbors learn how to train their dog not to bark, it could remain indoors, not disturbing the entire neighborhood.

As far as the how to's of training a dog not to bark, suggest contacting the city of Midland Animal Shelter, 1601 Orchard Lane, 683-2941. Possibly the mentioned party could be put in touch with a reliable obedience training facility for animals.

As a concerned resident, taxpayer and new in this vicinity, I would like to ask you the reason why our street has not been paved as yet. It is a caliche road and the dust is unbearable when anybody drives down it. We live across from the Village Country Mobile Park and I don't know why the owner of the park has not had the road paved, as he has several trailers along this road (County Road South 1223).

Also, they drive down here like a bunch of maniacs. The speed limit should be reduced, also, as there are several children that play outside their mobile homes. There should also be a "Not a Through Street" sign put on here. This is a desperate situation. — Alfred Barrett.

ANSWER: Jack Leonard, Midland County commissioner for this particular precinct, says that the county has done as much as it can do at the present time by placing caliche surfacing on that part of the county road which remains unpaved.

Leonard suggested you consult the company or individual from whom you bought the property to determine why the deeds for the plat of land have not been turned over to the county. As to placement of a sign on the road, get the item on the agenda for the Midland County Commissioner's Court and every consideration will be made, Leonard said.

President Carter announced at his "town meeting" at Queens College, New York, that he had an entire list of things that he can demand if the Kremlin stonewalls us. He did not wish to reveal what these were but he had said earlier that any retribution would not include a cutback on the sale of wheat to Russia because it would be harmful to our farmers.

Perhaps we should face some truths about this. Most of the farmers who raise wheat for sale to Russia and other big consumers are not poor. They buy wheat from small farm owners who are not so rich. At any rate, through a wide variety of laws we manage to subsidize them to see that they are not harmed by fluctuating markets since the product of their industry is essential to the well-being of our nation.

It would seem to me that when you measure the threat of nuclear attack against a stiffening of our trade policy with Russia we can much better invoke a tough trade policy and increase our subsidy to our farmers than we can endure the holocaust rain of nuclear weapons targeted on our cities.

Mr. Gromyko, in his 50-minute diatribe at the U.N., swore that the Russian force in Cuba was not armed, and that it was there solely to teach Cubans how to use Russian-made weaponry.

This is the same Mr. Gromyko who sat in President John F. Kennedy's office and swore that there were no Russian missiles in Cuba, when Mr. Kennedy had right on his desk photographic proof that there were missiles in place.

Diplomats are known to use evasive language at times. Mr. Gromyko, to the contrary, has already been caught in a deliberate lie. We agree with Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson when he said of Gromyko's White House visit of October, 1962, when he lied deliberately to President Kennedy, that "there is no reason to accord him credibility at this time."

In shorter, simpler Anglo-Saxon words, he's probably lying again.

Carol Burnett's daughter helped by PDAP program

Midland's Palmer Drug Abuse Program, which began operations several weeks ago, is now in full swing with between 13 and 15 young people and parents being served each week, according to a spokesman for the organization.

Meanwhile, total funds raised for PDAP now stands at $50,643. As the operation becomes organized in Midland, its reputation as a vital force in helping solve drug and alcohol abuse problems also has grown.

In its October 1 edition, People magazine recounts the story of television personality Carol Burnett and her daughter, Carrie, whose drug problems began with marijuana at the age of 13 and had spread to the use of a wide variety of pills, speed, cocaine and other drugs by age 14.

In the article the actress-comedienne describes the two-year ordeal that came close to tearing the family apart and the various avenues taken in order to obtain help before finally being persuaded that Carrie be sent to the Houston headquarters of the PDAP which she entered last June.

Although initially angry and resistant to the program, the girl began to respond by the second week to PDAP's program of individual and group therapy. Now a student at a Houston public high school, attended by 40 other PDAP members, she expects to return to Los Angeles later when PDAP opens a branch there.

Burnett was quoted as saying that prior to learning of PDAP, the problem has reached the point that "We were helpless and totally incapable of dealing with it. I could talk or think of nothing else and it was driving a wedge in our marriage. We reasoned, cajoled and pleaded with Carrie, but you can't reason with a chemical. I felt sorry and guilty and by then Carrie was a virtual prisoner in our house."

Due to the success of Carrie's association with PDAP, two of the entertainer's husband's children by a previous marriage have joined PDAP and are working in Texas. Both have had drug problems.

The program, only eight years old, claims 70 percent recovery with the 22,000 persons who have undergone the program, based partly on techniques used by Alcoholics Anonymous.

In Midland, those interested in counseling or information can call 685-3009 (17 years of age and older) or 685-3836 (for 17 and under).

Public hearing to open Monday on planned nuclear waste dump

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

Several representatives from Sandia Laboratory in Albuquerque, N.M., will be present Monday in Odessa at a public hearing on the draft environmental impact statement for a nuclear waste repository planned for southeastern New Mexico.

Militarily-produced nuclear wastes would be shipped through the Midland-Odessa area to the site — tabbed WIPP for Waste Isolation Pilot Plant — if the facility becomes a reality.

Proposals contained in the draft impact statement also indicate the facility would be used to store highly radioactive fuel rods from commercial nuclear reactors around the United States.

The hearing will begin at 9 a.m. Monday in the Founders Building auditorium at Odessa's University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The hearing is one of three scheduled for next week in Texas and New Mexico on the project. Original hearings on the draft environmental impact statement were held in June in Idaho and Albuquerque, N.M.

The hearings were expanded following numerous requests from public interest groups and New Mexico and Texas public officials — including Mark White, attorney general of Texas.

Several questions on the transportation of nuclear waste, the geologic stability of the proposed site and possible contamination of ground water in the area have been raised.

According to a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy in Albuquerque, speakers from Sandia Laboratory, an engineering and experimental technology facility, will address waste transportation and possible conflict with minerals and water in the area during the Monday hearing.

Bob Jefferson, a Sandia Laboratory official who has worked with the WIPP project, will discuss transportation, while Wendell Weart, the "No. 2 man" with WIPP in Albuquerque, will discuss conflicts between the site and environmental and mineral resources, the DOE spokesman said.

"There will be opportunity as time allows for people to make oral presentations," the spokesman said. "Priority will be given those who have not spoken before."

Meanwhile, WIPP remains in financial limbo in the halls of Congress following an impasse between the Senate and the House on the facility's scope.

The spokesman said WIPP would also address possible contamination of West Texas water supplies, an issue raised by the Odessa League of Women Voters.

The city of Odessa receives its summertime water from an aquifer which overlies the proposed site, according to a spokesman for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, headquartered in Big Spring.

The city of Midland holds water rights on land within 40 miles of the nuclear waste site and currently plans to supplement the city's present supply from wells in that area in the future, a public works department official said previously.

was designed to hold only militarily produced radioactive wastes which are stored at five sites around the country. But the DOE expanded the project to include highly radioactive spent commercial fuel rods. Those fuel rods currently are stored on site at commercial nuclear reactors across the U. S.

Without a place to dispose of the fuel rods, some reactors may be forced to shut down in the near future once their own storage facilities fill up, officials have claimed.

According to Michael Olguin, an assistant to U.S. Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M., a bill on continued funding for WIPP remains in limbo. The House voted to end appropriations for the project in the 1980 budget.

The Senate, said Olguin, meanwhile agreed to provide $25 million for WIPP, but only if it remains a repository for militarily produced wastes.

If the project is confined to military uses, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will forego licensing procedures.

Olguin said the bills are scheduled for a House-Senate conference committee, but the committee has yet to schedule a time to discuss differences.

"There has been no authorization of money for the project," Olguin said. Olguin indicated results of separate hearings on the project's status by a Congressional subcommittee in August will be released this week.

Despite vocal demonstrations against WIPP at the hearings earlier this summer in Albuquerque, little activity is expected in Odessa.

Odessa Police Chief Jack Tomlin said Friday he was not aware of any possible demonstrators.

Tomlin said he did not know the public hearing was going to be held.

"I have no word of any anticipated demonstrations, and I don't anticipate any," Tomlin said.

Midland judge selected to conference directorship

ABILENE (AP) — District Judge Barbara Culver of Midland was among those elected to directorships of the Judicial Section Conference of Texas late last week.

And Appeals Court Judge Quentin Keith of Beaumont was chosen 1980 chairman for the group, but his colleagues probably will remember one of his speeches long after they've forgotten his election.

Keith currently serves as chairman of the conference's judicial ethics commission, and in remarks Thursday he elicited hearty laughter from conference members with his discussion of how complicated the code of ethics for Texas judges has become.

Quentin said many judges probably long for the simpler days, when the code was, "Don't get caught in bed with a dead man or a live woman."

That speech was one of the high points of the three-day conference, and his election as chairman came as the conference ended Friday.

Keith was the unanimous choice of the nominating committee after chairman-elect Sam Johnson asked to be withdrawn from consideration.

Johnson, currently an Associate Justice on the Texas Supreme Court, has been nominated to a position on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

In addition to Keith, the judges at the conference picked these officers: Chairman-elect—Dist. Judge B. B. Schraub of Seguin Directors—Culver, Presiding Judge John Onion of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals; and County Court-at-law Judge Richard Dambold of Amarillo.

In their final business session, the judges adopted a pair of resolutions aimed at giving the newest members of the conference, county court-at-law judges, more say in conference proceedings.

Keith instructed his executive committee to study the resolutions for possible future action.

New businesses need old motto—'Be prepared'

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

"Nobody talks more of free enterprise and competition and of the best man winning than the man who inherited his father's store or farm." — C. Wright Mills

For many Midlanders, owning a small business establishment embodies the great American dream come true.

Unfortunately, the dream can turn into a nightmare within a year or two.

While statistics on the number of small business ventures that fail each year in Midland are unavailable, if Midland conforms to the national average, one in four new small businesses will fail during its first year of existence.

At the end of two years, the success ratio drops to 50 percent. And at the end of seven years, 90 percent of new small businesses no longer are in operation — at least not under the original management.

Reasons for the failures are varied, ranging from lack of experience to poor management practices, from neglect to shortsightedness.

Poor or improper planning is a major contributor to the failure of many small businesses, noted Jerry Lash of Lubbock, assistant director for management assistance for the Small Business Administration.

"There's no substitute for doing a lot of homework," Lash added. Ideally, "you make most of your management decisions before you open the doors."

LARRY COOK, ASSISTANT vice-president and commercial loan officer at Midland National Bank, agreed that making a new small business successful is hard work.

"Opening a new business is about like writing a college research paper in junior high school," Cook commented.

National statistics on small business failures, he said, tend to indicate that "the most critical period appears to be in the first two years of a business' life."

But observations by Cook and Lash do not mean that all small business ventures are destined to fail. As elsewhere, many new small businesses succeed in Midland. Main ingredients, it seems, are hard work and sound planning.

An entrepreneur first must carefully analyze his market and his product and, in fact, determine if there will be a market for the product he intends to sell.

The businessman must select a location for his establishment — a location which will suit his needs.

And, of course, a businessman — or woman — must have adequate capital, not only to keep the business going but also to overcome setbacks.

Undercapitalization, Cook opined, "is probably the primary reason" for the failure of small businesses in their early days.

"ONE OF THE MAJOR factors that can contribute to continuing success of a retail business is the ability of the owner-manager to accurately forecast short and intermediate term working capital needs and the resulting cash flow thereof," Cook noted.

A new businessman must know when experts are needed and be willing to call on them for assistance — attorneys, bookkeepers and so forth. While many new businessmen might not find the idea of night classes in business appealing, such courses can prove beneficial, Lash added.

Which types of small businesses are most likely to fail?

Lash said some businesses with low success rates include food and liquor, apparel and accessories, furniture and home furnishings, automotive accessories, passenger and freight transportation, textile and apparel.

HE ADDED THAT "trucking is a very, very volatile industry."

But that isn't to say such new small businesses will fail.

An entrepreneur just getting started would be wise, Lash said, to consult other businessmen — or former businessmen — in similar businesses to determine how they have succeeded.

Complacency represents a hidden danger, he added, particularly in periods of high inflation. Being satisfied to have the same volume of business this year as last during a period of high inflation actually translates into doing less business, Lash noted.

But the role of small businesses in Midland remains as important as ever. Lash said small businesses are important because they give the consuming public a choice.

The "formula" for success in a new small business is no secret. Success depends on hard work.

A new small business faces numerous obstacles. Overcoming those obstacles is the main factor influencing solvency and profit, and that ability to overcome obstacles must come from the businessman.

"It still boils down to one thing — the entrepreneur himself," Lash said.

St. Ann's Fair celebrated with sounds of celebration

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Midland at night, at least from the vantage point of a ferris wheel, is deceptively calm.

Traffic winds quietly along the Andrews Highway. Midland Memorial Hospital's new facelift appears mute in the dark. Even the moon — at its first quarter phase — seems serene, drifting in and out of ghostly clouds.

But when the gondola starts down, the sounds of carnival at Midland's St. Ann's Fair rush up to surround the rider, engulfing him — or her — in the excitement of a fair.

The one-day event provided considerable excitement for visiting Midlanders Saturday. And the sounds of laughter and celebration surrounded the private school's campus all day long.

It's a family affair, so to speak. Has been for 31 years. There are country stores with homemade fillings for pies. There also are cookies, cakes, turnovers, honey, rolls, cookies, brownies and other pastries.

Some of those pastries are elusive, like the cakes sitting atop shelves behind a numbered barricade Saturday.

Fairgoers breached the barricade time and time again, using a quarter to buy a spot on the board and a chance on the wheel of fortune to choose the cake of their choice.

No. 26 placed his quarters down for spin after spin before his number came up.

He chose the chocolate cake.

There was German sausage "from San Antonio," freshly picked corn, multi-flavored burritos, barbecue, tamales, hamburgers and nachos.

There were fishing games for children, poles topped with elusive bells for strongmen, and football, baseball and coin tosses.

And of course there was Bingo.

Excitement sparkled in the eyes of the little red-haired girl as she showed the three pennies she found in "The Gold Mine" to her parents.

That excitement was matched across the midway each time the Matterhorn received a new load of screaming passengers.

Do you wanna go faster, the operator asked as the cars whizzed by, a kaleidoscope of changing faces and streaming colors.

"Yeah!!!" the minions replied.

Do you wanna go real, real fast? They did — and they did.

St. Ann's Fair is mystery and surprise, an unusual find, like the book on Elements of Trigonometry — a dark, heavy dusty tome.

St. Ann's Fair is pleasant, a bag of multi-colored peppers at bargain prices.

St. Ann's Fair is tasty, like the richly prepared Mexican dinner.

Mostly, St. Ann's Fair is fun.

Juvenile board to study allegations of abuse

ODESSA — The five-member Ector County juvenile board is to consider allegations of abuse of office by a man and a woman employed by the Ector County Youth Center at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Danny Ray Vanderburg, the county's chief juvenile probation officer, said the investigation into the man's conduct began Tuesday after allegations were made that the man was involved in an alleged incident with a 15-year-old girl near Austin on a camping trip last August.

Vanderburg also said accusations have been made against the woman, but he declined to comment further.

The juvenile board is made up of County Court-at-Law Judge Phillip Godwin, County Judge Gary Watkins and the three state district judges in the county.

Godwin is the juvenile judge.

Odessa City Council adopts budget, ad valorem tax rate

ODESSA — The city of Odessa's operating budget for the 1980 fiscal year was hiked 9.74 percent Friday — to $22.4 million — by the Odessa City Council.

The City Council also adopted last year's ad valorem tax rate, which was 89 cents per $100 assessed valuation at 75 percent of true property value.

The council also adopted a budget for the $1.14 million in federal revenue sharing funds.

Fifth-floor jail houses average of 45 prisoners

The Midland County Jail is located on the fifth floor of the Midland County Courthouse. Operated and staffed by the Midland County Sheriff's Department, the jail has a capacity of 102 prisoners, according to Chief Deputy George Thompson.

Average jail population is 45, he added. Majority of the inmates are men, but the jail also has women prisoners.

On the day The Midland Reporter-Telegram visited the jail, there were seven female prisoners, Thompson said.

Sixteen single cells are used to contain prisoners whose stay in the jail is expected to be short and those prisoners who must remain apart from the rest of the jail population due to medical or emotional reasons, said Thompson.

The single cells are also used for juveniles who, according to law, must remain separate from other prisoners, he said.

Two padded cells are available in the jail for prisoners requiring such facilities.

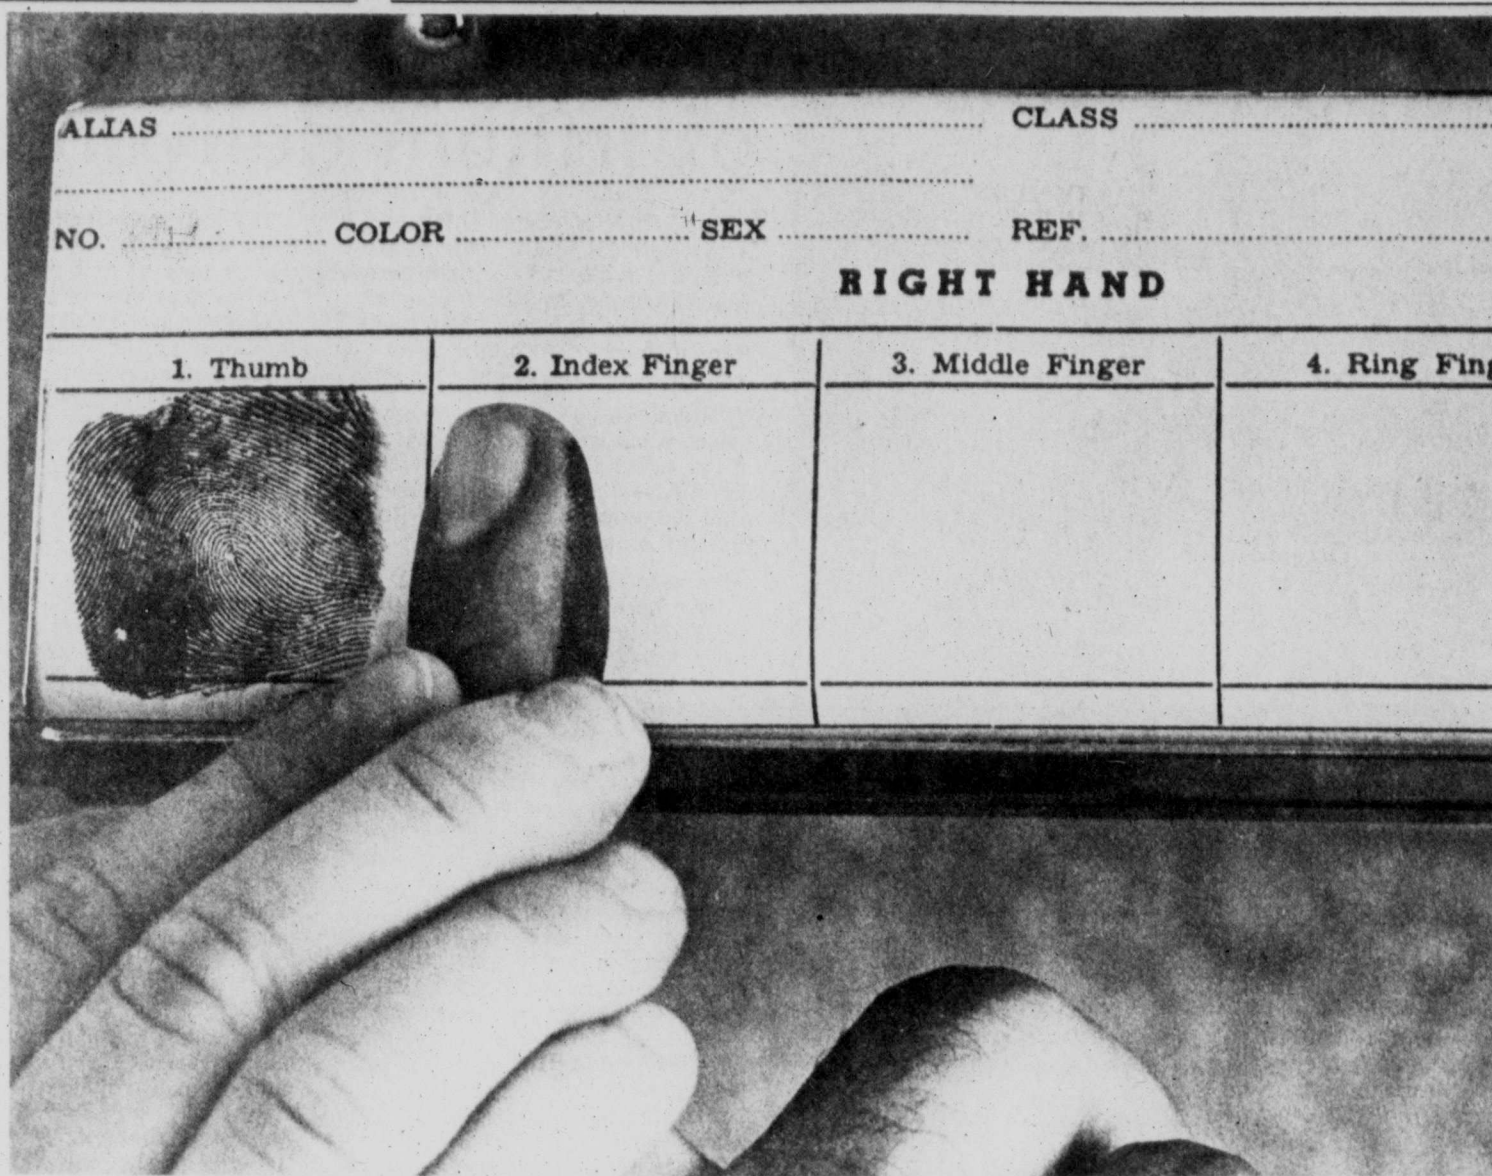

There are two felony "tanks" for men and one for women, said Thompson.

Apart from the felony area is a misdemeanor tank for men.

"Prisoners are classified according to seriousness of the offense, past criminal history and age," said Thompson.

The present jail on the fifth floor of the courthouse was added during the remodeling of the courthouse in 1974.

Prior to 1974, the jail was located on the fourth floor of the Midland County Courthouse.

Go directly to jail

Where 'freedom' is only five floors away...

EDITOR'S NOTE: At the invitation of Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith, staff writer Mike Slaton recently spent a day in the County Jail. No formal charges were filed, but the jail staff was not aware of Slaton's basis for being there. They were told he had been arrested for disorderly conduct, a class C misdemeanor. Slaton's report follows.

Steel bars greeted the eye as elevator doors opened on to the fifth floor of the Midland County Courthouse.

In the heart of the Tall City, the Midland County Jail seemed far removed from activity on the streets below. Far removed even from courtrooms located only one floor away.

The elevator rose — slowly it seemed — from the Midland County Sheriff's Department on the ground floor past county offices, courtrooms (and freedom) to the finality of cold steel and fluorescent lights.

Two sets of barred, electrically activated gates were passed en route to jail...one on the ground floor separating the elevator from the busy offices of the sheriff's department and one on the fifth floor separating the elevator from the rest of the jail.

The ride between the two gates was made under the watchful "eye" of a camera mounted in the corner of the elevator.

Prisoners, lined up in white coveralls and chains, stood just inside the second gate when the elevator doors opened. In the parking lot five floors below, a bus bound for the State Department of Corrections in Huntsville awaited them.

A SECTION OF steel bars rolled to one side as a jailer, surrounded by television monitors and intercom switches in the jail's security control room, acknowledged my arrival.

First "booked," my name, age, address, occupation and other personal information were noted on a jail record card.

The atmosphere, while courteous, definitely was all business.

Watch, ring, glasses, jewelry and other valuables were removed and placed in an envelope. The envelope was filed until the day of my release.

A description of the valuables was entered on the record card and I signed it.

The jail was busy that morning so I was placed in the "holding tank" until a jailer could find time to finish the booking procedure.

About 15 feet by nine feet, the steel walled room's only fixture was a wooden bench at one end and a door at the other.

On one of the cream colored steel walls, the name of a man recently convicted in district court was scratched. Next to the name was scratched the charge: murder.

About an hour passed before the door was opened again.

MY FINGERPRINTS and mug shots were taken and I was escorted to a single cell in the east end of the jail.

Because of the alleged misdemeanor charge filed against me, it was expected I would post the $200 bond within the day.

For that reason, I was not issued the white jail coveralls. I was allowed to keep my street clothes.

The exception was shoes, which, according to a jailer, were taken so I could not use them to hang myself by.

Usually issued is a packet containing a toothbrush, toothpaste, a comb, an envelope and some paper. Due to the expected brevity of my stay, no such packet was issued to me.

Single cell No. 10 was a steel walled room measuring nine feet by six feet.

It was cream colored, like the holding tank, with a grey cement floor tapering to the walls for easy cleanup. A bunk was bolted to one wall, and a blanket lay neatly folded on the plastic covered mattress and pillow.

At one end of the bunk, a steel table jutted out from the wall and over the foot of the bed — a combination table, chair and foot stool.

THE OTHER END OF the tiny cell contained an enclosed shower stall, replete with a shower curtain, a sink and a toilet.

At either end of the cell, near the ceiling, was a wire mesh window reinforced with heavy steel bars.

Behind the window over the toilet was a speaker for the intercom and radio and the room's only artificial light.

There were no controls in the cell for either the light or the speaker volume.

Clean and apparently freshly painted, the cell's only noticeable smell was of cool concrete and steel.

The door swung shut as I stepped into the cell; its closing clang resounded with a pronouncement of guilt all its own.

Morning sun poured from one of the few narrow rectangular windows connecting the jail to the outside world through the door's tiny window.

The distant sound of other prisoners' voices mingled with the droning of the radio speaker.

Every hour, a jailer's face appeared in the window and every hour I looked up in response to the jailer's scrutiny.

AT NOON, THE FAR away jingle of keys and the sound of slamming doors was heard.

The commotion came nearer until finally a small hatch in the door opened and a stainless steel tray loaded with food appeared.

A steel cup quickly followed and the hatch ("bean chute" in jail parlance) slammed shut.

Meatloaf, salad, cream potatoes, two slices of white bread and a piece of spice cake were quickly consumed using a large spoon — the only utensil provided. Ice tea washed the meal down.

It was not "home cooking," but I thought both the quantity and the quality of the food was good.

The afternoon passed slowly as I listened to the unfamiliar sounds drifting through the jail.

Voices intermingled with noises of the radio as prisoners talked to each other, never seeing each other's face. Occasionally, a jailer's voice was heard over the intercom — a prisoner was being advised of an attorney's arrival or being given an answer to a previous question.

A PAPERBACK BOOK was brought by a jailer at my request. No magazines or newspapers were available, I was told.

The reason, the jailer explained later, was that on past occasions the bulky reading material had been used by prisoners to stop up toilets and start fires.

A magazine, the jailer added, could also be rolled up and used as a weapon.

Dinner arrived in the same manner as lunch. The "bean chute" opened, the tray was slid through and the hatch slammed shut.

Meatloaf, same as lunch, was the main entree.

A jailer said later a revision of the jail menu soon was to be implemented. That revision, he said, would offer prisoners something different for each meal.

Following the evening meal, I advised a jailer of the situation that had resulted in my incarceration.

"You see, I'm not really supposed to be here," I said to the face peering through the little window.

THE JAILER'S FACE registered the same disbelief I had felt while I was speaking.

More talk — and the jailer turned away with a sigh that could only have been one of resignation to another long evening.

"I'll check on it," he said as he walked away.

I went back to the bunk feeling all the more a prisoner.

A long hour passed before the jailer called my name over the intercom.

"All I can find is a card that says your bond is $200," said the jailer.

With a deep breath, I began to explain the situation in detail.

Up and down the cell block the quiet grew as other prisoners considered the merits of their fellow inmate's story.

The quiet only emphasized the apparent foolishness of my story.

"Really," I said, "just call the sheriff — he'll tell you."

Another hour passed — half of it probably spent by the jailer as he weighed the consequences of disturbing the sheriff's evening with such a story if it should turn out to be false...the other half considering the consequences of leaving me in jail all night if my story turned out to be true.

Freedom finally came, nine hours after the first door closed, when my cell door opened and the jailer said the magic words: "The sheriff wants to talk to you."

Casa de Amigos seeking tutors

The search is on for more volunteer tutors for the Casa de Amigos tutoring program which begins Monday. Last year the program, which provides one-to-one help for children performing below grade level, served 28 children. "We hope to have at least 30 this year, and we could have 50 children if we could find the volunteers," according to Norma Johnson, one of the organizers of the program. Children are referred to the program by teachers or parents, although occasionally the welfare department will recommend students, she said. Tutoring sessions are from 3 to 4 p.m. twice weekly at the Casa de Amigos building at 1101 Garden Lane. Most students in the program attend DeZavala and Crockett elementary schools, with children from Washington and Pease also participating. Casa provides transportation from Crockett, and the tutor delivers the children to their homes. Volunteers don't have to be trained teachers, only persons interested in children, Mrs. Johnson pointed out. The program is aimed at keeping youngsters in school by increasing their success rate in the classroom. Midland school officials work closely with the program, and resource people and program supervisors are available to help the tutors, she noted. More information about the program may be obtained by calling Mrs. Johnson at Casa de Amigos at 682-9701.

Small leak found in containers of tritium delivered to depot

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — An Army National Guard convoy carted 20 tons of radioactive tritium across central Arizona Saturday for burial at an ammunition depot, then technicians discovered a small leak in the lead-lined steel box holding the gas.

"Right now I can't answer what the potential hazard is," Darrell Warren of the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission said at a news conference after the convoy arrived at the Navajo Army Ammunition Depot.

He said the radiation level was "above background," the amount of radiation normally in the environment. Asked what the Army would do about the leaking tritium, he said, "Leave it."

Warren said the leak was discovered when guardsmen unloaded the steel box, which carried 38 drums that together held 6.4 million tiny steel tubes of tritium gas.

"Nothing was detected in transit," said Warren. "We found we had a slow leak in the container. It's so small we could barely detect it."

The tritium was seized from the American Atomic Corp. plant in Tucson and shipped to the depot. The commission closed the plant in June after tests showed the plant was leaking radiation.

The material is to be moved from the steel box Sunday and stored in a concrete and steel bunker buried at the depot, located about 12 miles west of Flagstaff.

Warren said the material would not remain in Arizona indefinitely but he did not know where it would be sent.

The half-mile-long caravan of three large trucks, several smaller vehicles and a dozen police motorcycles entered the gates of the depot at about 2:15 p.m. after an 11-hour trip from Tucson.

The 30 protesters, Flagstaff residents who oppose the decision to bury the 20 tons of tritium in northern Arizona near their city, carried signs saying "Prove It's Safe!" and "Send Babbitt to the Army Depot!"

The latter referred to Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who ordered the National Guard to seize the tritium from the plant in Tucson and bury it in concrete vaults at the depot, 12 miles west of Flagstaff.

Tritium, used to make luminous watch dials and exit signs, was suspected as the source of radioactivity found in cake at a Tucson school kitchen near the plant.

Earlier Saturday afternoon, about 20 demonstrators were removed peacefully from the path of the tritium convoy by Flagstaff and state police. The demonstrators stood on an overpass above Interstate 17, five miles south of the city, waiting for the convoy.

The convoy pulled to a halt about 40 miles north of Phoenix at a rest stop on Interstate 17 where scientists checked the $500,000 cargo.

The tritium is sealed inside 6.4 million tiny glass tubes which in turn are packed in 38 barrels that are locked inside a steel box.

Tests showed no radiation had been emitted, scientists said.

Army National Guard and state Department of Public Safety helicopters swept ahead of the convoy to make sure the path to Flagstaff was clear.

Shipment of the gas had been in doubt after a Superior Court judge issued a temporary restraining order against the move Friday. But the judge lifted the order five hours later after telephone discussions with state officials.

Dale Pontius, an aide to Gov. Bruce Babbitt, said Superior Court Judge Richard Mangum reversed himself after a conference call Friday night.

October testing dates open to college-bound students

Sophomores, juniors and some seniors in the district will be able to join more than a million other students around the world in taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test in October.

Scheduled for Oct. 23 at Midland High School and Oct. 27 at Lee High School, the PSAT-NMSQT measures verbal and mathematical aptitude — two abilities important in doing college work — and gives students a chance to find out what the Scholastic Aptitude Test is like.

By taking the PSAT, students can enter the competition for scholarships administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. and ask to participate in the College Board's Student Search Service, which gives students an opportunity to hear from colleges they might not otherwise know about.

With their score reports, students receive a copy of a booklet of information about estimated SAT scores, finding out where to get and how to use detailed information about colleges and financial aid and planning for financing a college education.

High school students should check with the counselor's office for information on preregistration.

Americans turning wheels of bikes, alternate vehicles

By CARL HARTMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emulating the lifestyles of Europe and the world's poorer nations, energy-conscious Americans seem to be turning increasingly away from the automobile and toward the bicycle and moped, a research organization reported Saturday.

"Perhaps for the first time since Henry Ford began mass production of the automobile over half a century ago, there are faint signs that the love affair with the automobile is waning," the Worldwatch Institute said.

With oil in short supply, priority will be given to farm machinery needed to produce food, to electric power plants, and so forth, Lester R. Brown, institute president, said in the study.

Worldwatch Institute is a non-profit research organization. The study was supported by the U.N. Environment Program.

Over the past 10 years, Americans have bought 103 million bicycles and only 102 million cars, the report said.

And the Moped Association of America has predicted that moped production will reach the 1 million mark early next year, and by the mid-1980s will reach 3 million to 5 million.

Meanwhile, figures from Detroit indicate automobile sales in the United States are falling. The figures show that for the year so far, Ford's sales are down 16 percent, General Motors 4.4 percent, Chrysler 14 percent and American Motors, 19 percent.

In the study, Brown did not write off the automobile as such. He said he saw no replacement for the internal combustion engine "for the next few decades." And Brown called electric cars "not spectacularly efficient in overall energy terms," even if a durable, easily rechargeable storage battery can be developed.

He recommended automotive improvements such as reductions in weight, promotion of diesel engines, improved transmission systems and better lubricants.

But Brown also noted that bicycles use no gasoline at all — and that Americans growing increasingly aware of fuel supply problems are turning increasingly to this mode of transportation.

Despite the rapid growth of prosperity in West Germany, for example, bicycles have outsold cars there by an even wider margin than in the United States, he said.

Brown also said the British Transport and Road Research Laboratory reports that 20 years of decline in the use of the bicycle was halted in 1974, and that use of the bicycle increased 25 percent in the next three years. In the Netherlands, he noted, some 5 million of the country's men, women and children use bicycles.

IRA offers pope peace possibility

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A statement passed to the British Army here early Sunday said the Irish Republican Army offered "the possibility of ending hostilities" in Northern Ireland in response to Pope John Paul II's appeal for peace.

The statement, attributed to the Belfast section of the IRA's Provisional Wing, said:

"We owe our religious allegiance to the pope, but the Irish struggle is a political one. However, if the Holy Father can offer the possibility of justice for Ireland without violence, we shall be glad to lay down our arms."

"Following reaction from our active service units, we are offering the possibility of ending hostilities, providing politicians offer a reasonable solution to the Irish question," it said.

"We owe our religious allegiance to the pope, but the Irish struggle is a political one. However, if the Holy Father can offer the possibility of justice for Ireland without violence, we shall be glad to lay down our arms." — IRA.

No further details or comments on the message could be obtained immediately. The mostly Catholic IRA has been fighting to oust the British from Northern Ireland.

Protestant leaders were divided in their response to the pope's visit. The Rev. Ian Paisley, firebrand Ulster Protestant leader and a harsh critic of the Vatican, said the papal appeal for peace and an end to violence "will only give comfort to the terrorists ... I repudiate everything he said."

But Harold McCusker, an official Ulster Unionist legislator in the British Parliament, said: "I don't think it will be of any influence to the hard-core men of violence but perhaps other people who might become involved on the fringe of terrorism might now think again ... I sincerely hope everyone will consider his words very carefully."

Protestant extremist groups have warned they will retaliate if British troops do not take steps to end the cycle of violence.

Despite message, visit has political overtones

DROGHEDA, Ireland (AP) — Pope John Paul II came to Ireland's tragic and pious isle Saturday "in the footsteps of St. Patrick," blessed a million Irishmen in a Dublin park and pleaded "on my knees" for an end to violence in a land long steeped in it.

Thousands held aloft babies, their hats or yellow-and-white Vatican flags, joined in singing Handel's "Hallelujah" chorus, and waved and cheered wildly as the smiling pontiff, arms extended wide, rode through the crowd to a helicopter that then flew him to Drogheda, a historic city 30 miles to the north.

Here, at a hillside altar topped by a Celtic cross, he made his strongest statement as pope on Northern Ireland, where mostly Catholic guerrillas are fighting to end Protestant domination and British rule in the latest round of centuries of sectarian strife.

"On my knees I beg you to turn away from the paths of violence," he said in a direct plea to the terrorists on both sides of the bitter conflict.

"I appeal to young people ... do not listen to voices which speak the language of hatred, revenge, retaliation...."

"Further violence in Ireland will only drag down to ruin the land you claim to love.... I beg you: return to Christ."

From Drogheda, the pope traveled by helicopter back to Dublin and rode in an evening motorcade through the heart of the Irish capital. The Irish television network, dubbing his specially constructed vehicle the "pope-mobile," estimated that 750,000 people lined the route.

It was an emotion-filled start to a 10-day pilgrimage to Ireland and the United States, a tour the 59-year-old pope says he hopes will contribute to the cause of peace on this divided island and in the world. He leaves Monday for Boston to begin the week-long U.S. visit.

In his arrival statement and the homily of the noon Mass, the pope did not refer directly to the Catholic-Protestant hatreds that have riven Ireland. But at the airport, quoting the Apostle Peter, he declared he was bringing "peace to all of you who are in Christ."

Before the pope's arrival about 40 persons were treated at the park for broken legs, sprained ankles and fatigue, and one man died of a heart attack.

"It's a tragedy, but he has the honor of being the first man to die for this pope in Ireland" said a police sergeant.

Despite the powerful spiritual meaning of the papal visit to many Irish, its political overtones are unmistakable.

On the flight from Rome the pope said he had no plans to excommunicate Irish Republican Army guerrillas from the church, as demanded by Protestant leaders in the North.

"Oh, no. Oh, no," the pontiff said in response to a reporter's question. "Let those poor people be."

Ulster Protestant leaders were divided in their response to the pope's appeal for peace. "I repudiate everything he said," declared the Rev. Ian Paisley, who is a harsh critic of the Vatican. Harold McCusker, an Ulster legislator in the British Parliament, said: "I sincerely hope everyone will consider his words very carefully."

Drogheda, site of a massacre of Catholics in 1649 by a Protestant army led by Oliver Cromwell, was the closest the pope will come to Northern Ireland, where some 2,000 people have been killed in the past decade's sectarian warfare.

Beside him at the altar here was a bizarre reminder of the earlier bloodshed — the preserved, bronze-colored head of St. Oliver Plunkett, the Armagh archbishop hanged by the English in 1681 after being falsely implicated in an anti-English "popish plot."

The pope's speech here seemed almost exclusively concerned with the Northern Ireland conflict, and made no obvious mention of the wider issue — Catholic hopes of eventual reunification of the island, partitioned in 1922.

Blasting off for the start of the Goddard Junior High School PTA membership drive Monday are Michael Mashburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mashburn, and Hollee Hewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hewett. The school will host an open house at 7 p.m. Monday featuring a short program and a parents' tour of each student's classes. (Staff Photo)

Southern Baptist one of 10 to kneel before the pope

NAPOLEONVILLE, La. (AP) — Gustave Rhodes, a Southern Baptist, has toiled for 32 years under the broiling Louisiana sun, scratching a living for his wife and seven children as a sugarcane field hand.

But Thursday, he will join nine other Americans and kneel before Pope John Paul II — the only non-Roman Catholic in an honored group.

"This is going to be one of the happiest moments of my life," Rhodes said. "When I was told, I wanted to celebrate, but I didn't know what to do. I ended up just talking to the wife all night."

"It's something that one of the people, especially a cane-field worker, doesn't have the opportunity to do."

John Paul is visiting the United States on the third international voyage of his pontificate. He is to celebrate Communion in Des Moines, Iowa, on Thursday before a crowd expected to total half a million and will personally offer consecrated bread and wine to 10 ordinary citizens from throughout the country.

Rhodes will be one of them. Since he is not Catholic, Rhodes will not take the sacraments, but he will step forward to kneel before the pope as a symbol of rural America.

How did a Baptist wind up among the chosen few? Rhodes, 46, is a member of the Southern Mutual Help Association, a Catholic-supported group working to raise the standard of living of sugarcane workers.

"I stopped school at 14 years old and I've been working in the cane fields ever since," he said.

It was through his work with Mutual Help that he was selected by the National Catholic Rural Life Conference as the symbol of non-Catholic country life in America.

Belfast has day of peace...relatively

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Much of Belfast looked like a deserted city Saturday with more than 100,000 of its citizens, a quarter of the inhabitants, reported to have travelled south to the Irish Republic to take part in the visit of Pope John Paul II.

Police said whole areas of the city in both Protestant and Roman Catholic districts were empty. Those who had not gone south were glued to television sets to watch the proceedings.

Belfast newspapers have given wide coverage of events leading up to the papal visit but editorial comment was lacking.

However, the Belfast News, the city's only Sunday newspaper, is likely to give the first reaction to the pontiff's impassioned appeal to Protestants and Catholics alike for peace in this troubled British province in which nearly 2,000 have lost their lives in 10 years of strife.

There was no immediate reaction either from the Irish Republican Army which has been waging a bomb-and-bullet campaign to oust the British from Northern Ireland or from Protestant extremist groups.

In all of Belfast's strongly Catholic areas, the Ardoyne, Falls Road, Andersonstown and New Lodge districts, the story was the same: the streets were deserted and shops had closed early.

The pubs were open and some were crowded with TV watchers.

A banner was stretched across New Lodge Road with the inscription: "John Paul rules, OK."

Huge bonfires were built in waste ground in Catholic areas for lighting after dark.

Police reported only one incident all day: as a group of people in a shop watched the pope's arrival in Dublin, a man walked in and shot one of the viewers in the hand. The man, a Catholic, was only slightly injured.

Boston first stop in U.S.

BOSTON (AP) — City and state workers and hundreds of volunteers worked Saturday to get ready for the biggest crowd in Boston's long history — the 2 million people expected to jam the city during the visit of Pope John Paul II on Monday.

"We're planning for 2 million — 1 million on the Common and another million along the motorcade route," said David Mugar, a supermarket heir who volunteered to coordinate the city's planning.

Precisely how those people will get to and from Boston, where residents number fewer than 630,000, is a big question.

The city has banned cars from downtown for the day, which has been declared a special holiday.

The 900 chartered buses for which advance parking reservations have been made can accommodate only 45,000 to 50,000.

And although the transit authority, which runs the city's subways and local buses, has promised to provide enough service, its facilities are strained by normal commuters.

Pope draws even more than turned out for war

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — An army band belted out "Hey, Look Me Over," and Pope John Paul II moved happily among one third of Ireland's people, gathered since dawn on the green playing fields of Phoenix Park.

From the moment on Saturday when he addressed them in Gaelic as "the loyal people of Ireland," he was theirs, a pope to be cheered and whistled at like a pop star or a football hero.

A million and a quarter people, half again as many as Dublin's population, and more than had turned out for any other event, even a war, in the whole history of Ireland, went wild with enthusiasm when the 59-year pontiff told them "like St. Patrick, I have heard the people of Ireland calling to me and so I came to all of you in Ireland."

Normally the pious Irish do not conduct themselves so exuberantly during the sermon at Mass, but it was a story that every schoolboy knew: how Patrick the exiled Roman slave had come back to Ireland to Christianize his people.

Never having seen a pope before on their native soil, the crowds that had been gathering since dawn in Europe's largest park let their feelings match the mood of the smiling red-faced man up on the altar platform.

The band music, like "Moon River" and "He Got the Whole World in His Hands," seemed more in keeping with the state-fair atmosphere of the outdoor papal Mass than did the solemn hallelujah choruses that greeted his orange helicopter as it arrived over the tall elms of the old park.

The weather was just what the nuns had ordered weeks ago with their prayers. A few fleecy clouds, a warm, bright sun that backlit the autumn reds and golds of the distant Wicklow mountains and a stiff breeze to rattle the 60 enormous papal banners that flanked the altar.

The airport weather bureau pronounced it the finest Sept. 29 in 30 years. "And so it should be," said Sister Juliana of County Leix, celebrating her 62nd anniversary with the Mercy order. "We have been praying for it two hours a night since the visit was announced."

A sliver of a moon still looked down from a star-flecked sky when Dubliners by the tens of thousands, carrying aluminum chairs and picnic knapsacks began crossing over the dark River Liffey bridges in the direction of the great park.

There was such a rush when the gates opened at 5 a.m. that two teenagers suffered broken legs and at least a dozen other people sprained ankles scurrying for better places in the dim glow of the park's venerable gas lamps.

One man died of a heart attack hours before the pope arrived. A woman in birth pangs was rushed to a maternity hospital, but when it turned out to be a false alarm, she returned to the park in time to catch the pope's passage through the crowd.

"The number of people around here in an advanced state of pregnancy is absolutely ridiculous," complained a young Irish garda — policeman — who had been on duty since 3 a.m. "It would suit them right down to the ground to give birth right in front of the Holy Father. Of course if it was a boy, they'd name him John Paul and he'd have to become a priest."

ODESSA — A new and lively production of Shakespeare's great comedy classic, "The Taming of the Shrew," will open at 8 p.m. Friday at the Globe of the Great Southwest.

Soviets want promise on defections

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities had demanded that the United States promise to return any musician who defected during a U.S. tour by the Soviet State Symphony Orchestra, Western diplomatic sources say.
 The sources said the Soviet demand was impossible to meet and last Thursday the Soviets cancelled the six-week tour that was to have opened next Wednesday at Carnegie Hall in New York City.
 The Soviet demand was made to the tour's U.S. organizers, Columbia Artists Management, after the recent defections of five prominent Soviet artists in a one-month period, the diplomats said.
 A source close to the State Symphony said Soviet officials became especially concerned about defections when they learned that Mstislav Rostropovich, the renowned cellist and director of Washington's National Symphony Orchestra, hoped to meet with five members of the orchestra.

Art show of drawings, water colors opens Monday at OC

ODESSA — "Images on Paper," an art show presenting some 50 drawings and watercolors, will open Monday in the Fine Arts Building at Odessa College, continuing through Oct. 26.
 The featured artists in the exhibit will be Catherine Ves Childs of Gray, Ga., and Jeanette Spehr of College of Lubbock. Both are students at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.
 Ms. Childs, who also attended LaGrange College and the University of Georgia, has displayed her art works in shows throughout Georgia the last six years and she has won prizes at a Midland arts festival in 1978 and at the 13th annual Southwestern Area Art Show earlier this year at Midland's Museum of the Southwest.
 Mrs. Colege, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, is studying for a master of fine arts degree at Texas Tech University. She has taught art history and drawing courses at TTU as a teaching assistant, and is a former director of an art workshop in Lincoln, Neb.
 Her work has won awards at shows in Little Rock, Ark., Dallas and Midland. She has exhibited works in shows in Oklahoma, Minnesota, Texas, Arkansas, Arizona and Nebraska.
 The art show is open to the public from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday each week, in addition to 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each Saturday, said Delmos Hickmott, a member of the Odessa College art faculty who is coordinator of the art exhibit.

Area art instructor featured artist

ALPINE — Becky Smiley, an art instructor at Howard College in Big Spring, will be the featured artist in a new exhibit opening Monday in the Sul Ross State University art gallery.
 Using a variety of styles ranging from abstract and non-objective to realistic, Mrs. Smiley attempts in her work to show the unique possibilities of the varieties of two-dimensional art.
 "Art is an ever-changing field," she pointed out. "I try constantly to keep exploring different methods, styles and subject matter. In order to teach, one must be able to experience and share effectively many ideas with others."
 The artist is a December candidate for the master of education degree in art from Sul Ross State University. She holds a bachelor of fine arts degree in art education from North Texas State University, Denton. She previously taught art at Big Spring High School.
 The Sul Ross art show will continue through Oct. 27, open to the public Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Auditions set for 'The Hobbit' at OC

ODESSA — Auditions are scheduled Wednesday and Thursday nights to fill character roles in the Odessa College drama department's production of "The Hobbit."
 The enchanting theater piece by J.R.R. Tolkien will go into rehearsals soon for its November opening at OC.
 The tryouts are open to all residents of the Midland-Odessa area, said Jane Ann Crum, a member of the OC drama department who will direct the play.
 The readings will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday on the Main Stage in Deaderick Hall on campus.
 According to Ms. Crum, persons may try out to play Bilbo Baggins, who is the main character in the play, or the Elvin Queen, Golum or "an assortment of hobbits, trolls, goblins and elves." There also are 13 dwarves in the play, all of whom have speaking parts, she said.

Hitchcocks take pleasure, pride in working with MCT

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Staff Writer

When Midland Community Theatre members and supporters gather at Theatre Midland this afternoon for MCT's annual meeting, Allen and Susie Hitchcock will most definitely be among those present.

The Hitchcocks are devoted MCT workers - backstage, onstage and out front-of-stage. Their work for Midland Community Theatre is something the Hitchcocks take both pride and pleasure in. "It's something that we can do together, as a couple; it provides us with a common interest and it's a great bond between us."

"And, like every project or activity we engage in, it's something that we do for Midland - when you live in a town as great as Midland, and have a community theater as fine as Midland's, then you love working for it."

The Hitchcocks have been active workers in MCT since moving to the Tall City from Lubbock in 1974. However, Allen worked with MCT as a teenager back in the 1950s, and was a member of Ham Hooks, the organization of backstage workers, in its formative years in the late '50s.

Hitchcock is a graduate of Midland High and then attended Texas Tech University. He was in the construction business in Lubbock, where the Hitchcocks lived for 11 years before they came back to Midland five years ago.

Hitchcock now is a building contractor here. His wife, a native of Sweetwater, moved to Midland in childhood with her family.

Mrs. Hitchcock got involved in MCT work shortly after she and her husband returned from Lubbock. The couple has been actively involved in the Midland Summer Mummies each year since 1974, and he has stage-managed Mummies productions for the last several years.

His wife has been in the role of the traditional dance hall proprietress in the last four Mummies shows. She also has worked closely with MCT director Art Cole in the filming of the immensely-popular "Movieola" sequences used in each year as part of the Mummies show.

Susie has appeared onstage in numerous MCT musicals in recent years, among them "Anything

Goes, "Oklahoma!", "Carnival" and "The Music Man."

She also played in MCT's version of the Neil Simon comedy, "Come Blow Your Horn."

Behind the scenes, Susie says she has tried almost all facets of backstage work - "except construction. I've worked with props and done painting, and helped wherever I was needed."

"None of this has been any big deal," she emphasizes, "but it has all been fun."

Susie is in her second term as president of Ham Hooks, and in earlier years she filled other responsibilities for the backstage workers organization.

She is a member of the Theatre Midland Dancers, a group of theater performers and dance enthusiasts which organized last year and since has presented two special dance recitals at the theater.

She also is an associate member of ACT IX, the women's volunteer service auxiliary of the theater. Meanwhile, Allen has served as lights chairman for various MCT productions (one of the latest being "God's Favorite" presented by MCT in its 1978 season) and helps out as needed at the theater.

Lighting, though, is undoubtedly his special love among theater activities.

Susie was one of the organizing members of the West Texas Iris Society and now is an associate member of the organization. She also was one of the founders of the Midland Soccer Association.

"It takes a lot of people to make things go," Susie observed, "and I think Midland Community Theatre is certainly a case in point. Because it involves a lot of dedicated, interested people from throughout the city, it is an outstandingly successful and workable organization. You have to involve people!"

Susie is a member of the choir of First Presbyterian Church and teaches special dancing to 4th through 6th graders there. She also is involved this year in Cotillion, a dance organization for 7th, 8th and 9th graders.

She is a member of the Junior Woman's Association and currently serves as first vice president of the organization. She is vice president of the Senior Citizens Board here.

The Hitchcocks are the parents of two sons: Andrew, 13, is a student at San Jacinto Junior High and plays in the school band. David, 11, attends Bowie Elementary School and plays the cello in the school's string orchestra.

U.S. rodeo hits Europe

By ROBERT WIELAARD

LICHTAART, Belgium (AP) — "Ladies and gentlemen," the baritone voice booms over the public address system, "you'll see before you, in grand review, the American cowboy ... The only true folk hero of America."

Then, music from a Clint Eastwood spaghetti Western. The crowd of 1,500 Belgians is hushed with anticipation. Now, a "real Texas cowboy" gallops into the arena, carrying a gold-fringed Stars and Stripes, his chaps flying and his horse sending clumps of dirt into the stands.

That's "Larry Mahan's Ramblin' Rodeo Revue," high-voltage, true-blue American pizzazz in Flanders fields. It features lots of flags, the U.S. national anthem, 13 professional cowboys, five cowgirls, 36 horses, six bulls, Western music and a stage-coach.

But what the crowd is about to see at the 90-acre "Bobbejaanland" amusement park here is not simply a piece of Americana in "grand review."

It's the latest undertaking of Richard Duryea of Los Angeles, who feels he may have come up with the next best thing to hit American rodeos since fresh air — a year-round professional rodeo circuit in Europe.

"Yeah," says Duryea, 37, after a moment of introspection as he watched the crowd of the afternoon's first show shuffle out the gate. "I'm an idea man."

Duryea is mainly a rock group promoter. But for two years "I've thinking of a new form of entertainment for Europe."

He decided on rodeos "because cowboys are very popular in Europe and we thought this might go over well."

"We" includes six-time U.S. rodeo-champ Larry Mahan, who does not perform in the show that carries his name, and Tom Maier, a weather-beaten former rodeo rider and founder of the California Riata Ranch rodeo school.

Mahan's Rodeo Revue, explains Duryea, is the first step in a five-year project to shape the kind of rodeo for audiences this side of the Atlantic.

"We're trying to establish this as a permanent form of entertainment here in Europe. I compare it to Holiday on Ice," says Duryea. "They have put together a circuit that tours a number of cities for a number of shows and then moves on."

"Larry Mahan's Ramblin' Rodeo Revue" opened this summer near this town about 20 miles east of the port city of Antwerp. It closed late in August after 102 shows, moved on to southern France for shows in Arles and Bayonne.

"Next year we want to do Holland, Germany, Monaco and maybe some other countries. We're also interested in the Soviet Union," says Duryea.

"If the format pays out we can be in every country in five years, including Eastern Europe."

But first, Duryea will have to iron out some snags he ran into in Belgium. The show has met here with mixed reactions.

"As far as we can tell, the audience likes it very much ... They find it exciting," says Duryea. But the Blue World Chain, a Belgian animal protection group, thinks differently.

"In America this may not be considered cruelty to animals but we think it is," says Roland Missiaen, the group's chief inspector. In July, Missiaen visited the rodeo twice and laid charges of cruelty with the authorities.

"In my opinion, the straps they use on the bucking horses and bulls hurt the animals purposely in their most sensitive areas to make them jump," Missiaen says.

Although Duryea doesn't think much will come of the charges, steer wrestling has been deleted from the rodeo for fear of "bad press in case an animal gets its neck broken."

Similar problems may crop up in other European countries, notably in West Germany, which has stricter regulations regarding the care and transport of animals than Belgium.

"England is out," says Duryea, because of that country's exceptionally strict regulations on bringing in animals. And finding good bucking horses and bulls in European countries is difficult because the animals tend to be more domesticated here than in the U.S.

Deposits tally to sizeable sum

Newcomers face added expense up to $600

By KAY HORD
News Staff

$100. $35. $200. $10. $150.

Considered separately in these days of inflation, the amounts are not likely large. But added together, the figures grow until a newcomer to Midland might find himself paying $400 to $600 in deposits.

According to figures supplied by the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Midland's population is growing at a rate of 4 to 4.5 percent per year. And almost all newcomers face deposits for utilities and rent.

Mayoral primary will put scrappy Kucinich to test

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dennis J. Kucinich, the scrappy mayor whose two years in office have embroiled him in bitter fights over the city's tottering finances and his abrasive leadership style, will be judged by the voters Tuesday in a non-partisan mayoral primary.

Five candidates are vying for the $50,000-a-year job and voters will narrow the field to two for the Nov. 6 general election.

Kucinich, whose 33rd birthday is on Oct. 8, survived a recall attempt by only 236 votes a year ago. Last fall, he was sidelined for five weeks with an ulcer — in part because of the hectic pace of his former 18-hour days. The city also has failed twice to meet loan payment deadlines, with a third default looming next Saturday.

Polls show him running a strong second to Lt. Gov. George V. Voinovich.

Voinovich, 48, is a Republican. Kucinich is a Democrat who unseated veteran Mayor Ralph J. Perk in 1977 without party support. Others in the race are Democrats Basil M. Russo, 32, majority leader of the City Council; and state Sen. Charles L. Butts, 37; and machine press operator Thabo Ntweng, 31, a candidate of the Socialist Workers Party.

"It's a referendum on Dennis," said Cuyahoga County Democratic Chairman Timothy F. Hagan. "What you are going to have is Dennis being judged by the voters in the primary."

Hagan said the race is too close to call because of the uncertainty about the turnout. Of the 290,000 registered voters, polls show at least one-third have yet to make up their minds.

Robert E. Hughes, chairman of the county Republican organization, said he is sure the runoff will feature Voinovich and Kucinich.

Kucinich has focused his campaign entirely on Voinovich and has often discussed, without apologizing, his outspoken, often acrimonious style.

"All I had to do in the last two years to gain the favor of the media, the praise of editors, the laurels of the Growth Association, was to remain silent...and keep my lips sealed as dozens of dirty deals danced across my desk," Kucinich said Friday in his only debate with his challengers.

"If I had done these things I wouldn't be here this afternoon facing an uphill battle against the quiet onslaught of corrupt corporate powers secretly funneling cash into the campaign of the Republican, in order to steal back the city quietly, like thieves in the night."

Kucinich says his problems were inherited and that he needs two more years to turn around the industrialized Lake Erie port city of 600,000 residents.

Voinovich, who attacked Kucinich for discord in government, promises an administration of cooperation and maturity.

"You'll hear noise from City Hall, but it will be constructive noise, useful noise — the noise of mature, experienced, professional city officials going to bat for every single resident of Cleveland," Voinovich said.

"It will not be the harsh, destructive, self-serving shriek we've heard for two years that humiliates or degrades people and institutions, simply because they don't happen to agree with the mayor."

Similarly, Butts and Russo have been focusing on Kucinich and on bread-and-butter issues such as clean streets and beefed up police protection.

Basically, deposits may be required for electricity, water, rental property and telephone service.

The gas company requires an installation fee of $8 to $12.

Renters usually face the single largest deposit.

With 731 units in four complexes permitted for construction this year, Midland now has approximately 4,000 to 4,500 apartments, said Grant Billingsley, an official with the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

A telephone survey of 13 of the more than 50 apartment complexes in Midland showed that deposits for a two-bedroom apartment range from $100 to $200.

Of those 13 complexes, the average deposit is $139.

Only three of the 13 allow pets, and that, too, requires a deposit. Those deposits average $108.

Deposits for two-bedroom houses generally fall in the range of $100 to $200, although they occasionally go as high as $300, said a spokesman for a local rental agency.

And water deposits for those in houses and apartments are $10 — less than a month's minimum bill of $11, a spokesman for the Water Department said.

But if a renter shares a duplex and a water meter, the deposit climbs to $25.

There are ways that deposits can be avoided. For example, Texas Electric Service Company gives newcomers a choice.

The deposit is equal to the average of a two-month bill — up to a maximum of $35, should the newcomer go that route.

However, if a newcomer has Midland friends, he can provide a letter of guarantee from a Midland resident with an established line of credit to pay the bill if the newcomer defaults.

The deposit may be waived if, during the past two years, the newcomer has had service with Midland or a city in TESCO's system and has a good credit record, according to Jane Hartwell, credit manager with TESCO.

Telephone deposits range from nothing to $500...or higher, according to Janice Hailey of Southwestern Bell.

"We try to consider each customer and business individually," she said. "Just because someone's never had service with us doesn't mean they have to pay a deposit," Mrs. Hailey said.

Deposits, if one is required, depend on a variety of factors, such as previous credit with Bell or another telephone system, stability on the job and estimates of telephone use.

The general guideline for telephone deposits is that the sum should equal the estimated bill for two months of service. That estimate includes long distance and standing charges, according to Penny Young, also with Southwestern Bell.

Minimum deposit usually required by the telephone company here is $35, according to Mrs. Hailey.

"We rarely take less than $35, and we might, in an extreme situation (such as several people living together), ask for a deposit as high as $300 or $400. We have some deposits of $500," she said.

"Credit lines in the vicinity of $100 to $200 are not uncommon in Midland," Mrs. Hailey added.

Like the electric utility, Southwestern Bell has a letter of guarantee which can be signed by someone in Midland with an established line of credit, according to Mrs. Hailey.

"We try to take the customer's situation into account and still protect ourselves," she said.

National Guard personnel sift through the rubble of a crashed helicopter in suburban Cincinnati Saturday. The helicopter apparently exploded about 500 feet in the air, raining burning debris on a home. Four crewmen of the helicopter were killed, but police say three occupants of the house were treated and released at a Cincinnati hospital. (AP Laserphoto)

Four killed as copter crashes, burns house

CINCINNATI (AP) — An Army National Guard helicopter lost a rotor then crashed in flames into a house Saturday, killing all four people aboard the aircraft and injuring three on the ground, authorities said.

The house in suburban Miamiville caught fire when the helicopter hit and was severely damaged.

June Surber, her 15-year-old stepdaughter, Stephanie Hall, and housekeeper Janice Graham were in the house but managed to escape, authorities said. Mrs. Surber was treated for minor shock and an arm injury, while the other two women were released after being treated for minor shock.

Army National Guard officials identified the dead as Capt. James E. Capps, 40, Birmingham, Ala., the pilot; Staff Sgt. Waymon Nixon, 34, Birmingham; Capt. Paul F. Edgar Jr., 35, Harrisburg, Pa.; and Staff Sgt. Allan K. Piatt, 32, Hummelstown, Pa.

Two Miamiville firefighters also were treated for minor injuries and released.

Authorities said the helicopter was one of six in transit from Birmingham, Ala., to Fort Indian Town Gap, Pa., about 20 miles north of Harrisburg.

It was flying in formation with another helicopter at an altitude of 2,000 feet when the crash occurred, said Warrant Officer Ed Metcalfe, pilot of the unharmed helicopter. The crash cause was "definitely mechanical error," he said.

"He lost the main rotor in flight. That set up a vibration which rolled the copter upside down. It was burning when it hit," Metcalfe said.

The helicopters were being transferred to the Pennsylvania National Guard because the Alabama unit was to receive newer models.

National Guard officials in Alabama ordered the grounding of its other helicopters of the same type. Two of the six helicopters in transit were halted in Pittsburgh and a trailing pair were grounded near the crash site.

Midlander among educators attending task force meeting

A Midland educator was in Baltimore, Md., last week at the invitation of Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Bertha Mae Starks, a school district coordinator, joined 500 selected persons from across the nation at the Thursday through Saturday conference sponsored by the Vice President's Task Force on Youth Employment.

Mondale was the keynote speaker at the Thursday luncheon meeting held at Baltimore's new convention center.

Other speakers participating in the three-day meeting included Ray Marshall, secretary of labor; Robert Taggart III, administrator, office of youth programs, Department of Labor; and Paul N. Ylvisaker, professor in the graduate school of education at Harvard University.

It was the fourth and largest conference sponsored by the Task Force designed to encourage action and increase the awareness of and commitment to the employment needs of youth.

Coordinator of elementary social studies, Mrs. Starks has been with the school district for 22 years. She taught social studies in several schools and was department chairman at Alamo Junior High School.

Bertha Mae Starks

In 1975, she was named director of Law-Focused Education for the district, which includes the Crime and Drug Prevention program.

Spring increase in cost of newsprint forecast

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Newspapers, already laboring under a 20 percent increase in paper prices this year, can expect another jolt early next year, an industry analyst says.

"There could be another $30-a-ton increase next spring which would come on top of the $30 increase that will come into effect next month," Ross Hay-Roe of Pemberton Securities Ltd. said Friday.

"The demand for newsprint continues to be extremely strong. A peak in U.S. consumption levels has been reached at a time where there has been a rapid increase in U.S. capacity. I think before 1980 is over we will see significant weakness in Canadian operating rates, but the market at present continues to be very strong."

Despite a recession in the United States and anticipated lower demand for newsprint next year, prices will continue to rise, Hay-Roe said. He noted that demand was dropping in late 1973, mid-1974 and early 1975, but prices surged ahead nonetheless.

Newsprint producers posted an increase of $30 a ton last spring and another of about $30 this fall, bringing the average Canadian price to $408 a ton.

Congressman Charles Stenholm of the 17th Congressional District will highlight the meeting, which begins at 9:30 a.m.

U.S. rodeo hits Europe

By ROBERT WIELAARD

LICHTAART, Belgium (AP) — "Ladies and gentlemen," the baritone voice booms over the public address system, "you'll see before you, in grand review, the American cowboy ... The only true folk hero of America."

Then, music from a Clint Eastwood spaghetti Western. The crowd of 1,500 Belgians is hushed with anticipation. Now, a "real Texas cowboy" gallops into the arena, carrying a gold-fringed Stars and Stripes, his chaps flying and his horse sending clumps of dirt into the stands.

That's "Larry Mahan's Ramblin' Rodeo Revue," high-voltage, true-blue American pizzazz in Flanders fields. It features lots of flags, the U.S. national anthem, 13 professional cowboys, five cowgirls, 36 horses, six bulls, Western music and a stagecoach.

But what the crowd is about to see at the 90-acre "Bobbejaanland" amusement park here is not simply a piece of Americana in "grand review."

It's the latest undertaking of Richard Duryea of Los Angeles, who feels he may have come up with the next best thing to hit American rodeos since fresh air — a year-round professional rodeo circuit in Europe.

"Yeah," says Duryea, 37, after a moment of introspection as he watched the crowd of the afternoon's first show shuffle out the gate. "I'm an idea man."

Duryea is mainly a rock group promoter. But for two years "I've thinking of a new form of entertainment for Europe."

He decided on rodeos "because cowboys are very popular in Europe and we thought this might go over well."

"We" includes six-time U.S. rodeo champ Larry Mahan, who does not perform in the show that carries his name, and Tom Maier, a weather-beaten former rodeo rider and founder of the California Riata Ranch rodeo school.

Mahan's Rodeo Revue, explains Duryea, is the first step in a five-year project to shape the kind of rodeo for audiences this side of the Atlantic.

"We're trying to establish this as a permanent form of entertainment here in Europe. I compare it to Holiday on Ice," says Duryea. "They have put together a circuit that tours a number of cities for a number of shows and then moves on."

"Larry Mahan's Ramblin' Rodeo Revue" opened this summer near this town about 20 miles east of the port city of Antwerp. It closed late in August after 102 shows, moved on to southern France for shows in Arles and Bayonne.

"Next year we want to do Holland, Germany, Monaco and maybe some other countries. We're also interested in the Soviet Union," says Duryea.

"If the format pays out we can be in every country in five years, including Eastern Europe."

But first, Duryea will have to iron out some snags he ran into in Belgium. The show has met here with mixed reactions.

"As far as we can tell, the audience likes it very much ... They find it exciting," says Duryea. But the Blue World Chain, a Belgian animal protection group, thinks differently.

"In America this may not be considered cruelty to animals but we think it is," says Roland Missiaen, the group's chief inspector. In July, Missiaen visited the rodeo twice and laid charges of cruelty with the authorities.

"In my opinion, the straps they use on the bucking horses and bulls hurt the animals purposely in their most sensitive areas to make them jump," Missiaen says.

Although Duryea doesn't think much will come of the charges, steer wrestling has been deleted from the rodeo for fear of "bad press in case an animal gets its neck broken."

Similar problems may crop up in other European countries, notably in West Germany, which has stricter regulations regarding the care and transport of animals than Belgium.

"England is out," says Duryea, because of that country's exceptionally strict regulations on bringing in animals. And finding good bucking horses and bulls in European countries is difficult because the animals tend to be more domesticated here than in the U.S.

$100. $35. $200. $10. $150.

Considered separately in these days of inflation, the amounts are not killing large. But added together, the figures grow until a newcomer to Midland might find himself paying $400 to $600 in deposits.

According to figures supplied by the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Midland's population is growing at a rate of 4 to 4.5 percent per year. And almost all newcomers face deposits for utilities and rent.

Basically, deposits may be required for electricity, water, rental property and telephone service.

The gas company requires an installation fee of $8 to $12. Renters usually face the single largest deposit.

With 731 units in four complexes permitted for construction this year, Midland now has approximately 4,000 to 4,500 apartments, said Grant Billingsley, an official with the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

A telephone survey of 13 of the more than 50 apartment complexes in Midland showed that deposits for a two-bedroom apartment range from $100 to $200.

Of those 13 complexes, the average deposit is $139. Only three of the 13 allow pets, and that, too, requires a deposit. Those deposits average $108.

Deposits for two-bedroom houses generally fall in the range of $100 to $200, although they occasionally go as high as $300, said a spokesman for a local rental agency.

And water deposits for those in houses and apartments are $10 — less than a month's minimum bill of $11, a spokesman for the Water Department said.

But if a renter shares a duplex and a water meter, the deposit climbs to $25.

There are ways that deposits can be avoided. For example, Texas Electric Service Company gives newcomers a choice.

The deposit is equal to the average of a two-month bill — up to a maximum of $35, should the newcomer go that route.

However, if a newcomer has Midland friends, he can provide a letter of guarantee from a Midland resident with an established line of credit to pay the bill if the newcomer defaults.

The deposit may be waived if, during the past two years, the newcomer has had service with Midland or a city in TESCO's system and has a good credit record, according to Jane Hartwell, credit manager with TESCO.

Telephone deposits range from nothing to $500...or higher, according to Janice Hailey of Southwestern Bell.

"We try to consider each customer and business individually," she said. "Just because someone's never had service with us doesn't mean they have to pay a deposit," Mrs. Hailey said.

Deposits, if one is required, depend on a variety of factors, such as previous credit with Bell or another telephone system, stability on the job and estimates of telephone use.

The general guideline for telephone deposits is that the sum should equal the estimated bill for two months of service. That estimate includes long distance and standing charges, according to Penny Young, also with Southwestern Bell.

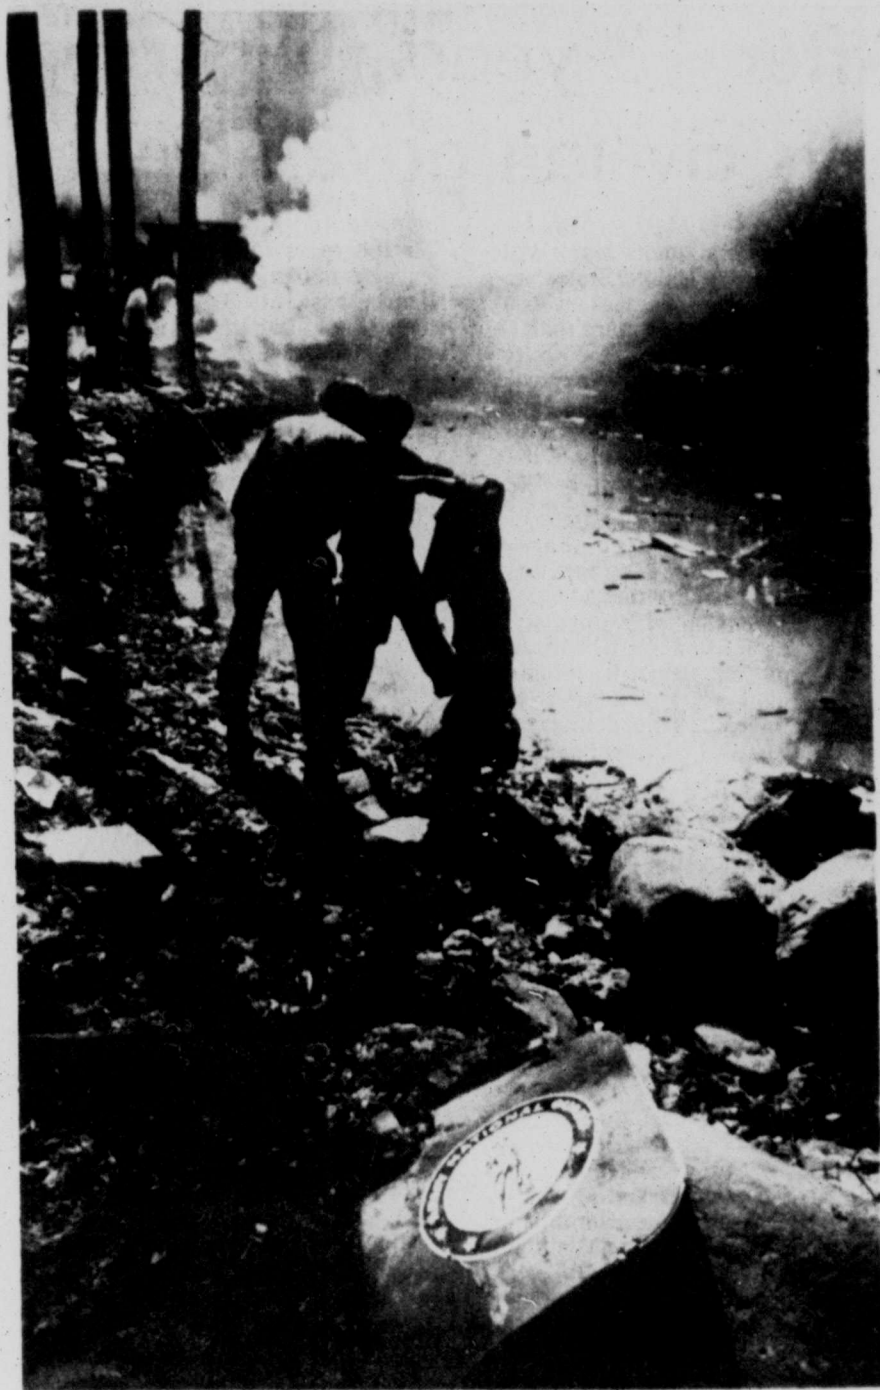

Minimum deposit usually required by the telephone company here is $35, according to Mrs. Hailey.

"We rarely take less than $35, and we might, in an extreme situation (such as several people living together), ask for a deposit as high as $300 or $400. We have some deposits of $500," she said.

"Credit lines in the vicinity of $100 to $200 are not uncommon in Midland," Mrs. Hailey added.

Like the electric utility, Southwestern Bell has a letter of guarantee which can be signed by someone in Midland with an established line of credit, according to Mrs. Hailey.

"We try to take the customer's situation into account and still protect ourselves," she said.

National Guard personnel sift through the rubble of a crashed helicopter in suburban Cincinnati Saturday. The helicopter apparently exploded about 500 feet in the air, raining burning debris on a home. ## Four killed as copter crashes, burns house

CINCINNATI (AP) — An Army National Guard helicopter lost a rotor then crashed in flames into a house Saturday, killing all four people aboard the aircraft and injuring three on the ground, authorities said.

The house in suburban Miamiville caught fire when the helicopter hit and was severely damaged.

June Surber, her 15-year-old stepdaughter, Stephanie Hall, and housekeeper Janice Graham were in the house but managed to escape, authorities said. Mrs. Surber was treated for minor shock and an arm injury, while the other two women were released after being treated for minor shock.

Army National Guard officials identified the dead as Capt. James E. Capps, 40, Birmingham, Ala., the pilot; Staff Sgt. Waymon Nixon, 34, Birmingham; Capt. Paul F. Edgar Jr., 35, Harrisburg, Pa.; and Staff Sgt. Allan K. Piatt, 32, Hummelstown, Pa.

Two Miamiville firefighters also were treated for minor injuries and released.

Authorities said the helicopter was one of six in transit from Birmingham, Ala., to Fort Indian Town Gap, Pa., about 20 miles north of Harrisburg.

It was flying in formation with another helicopter at an altitude of 2,000 feet when the crash occurred, said Warrant Officer Ed Metcalfe, pilot of the unharmed helicopter. The crash cause was "definitely mechanical error," he said.

"He lost the main rotor in flight. That set up a vibration which rolled the copter upside down. It was burning when it hit," Metcalfe said.

The helicopters were being transferred to the Pennsylvania National Guard because the Alabama unit was to receive newer models.

National Guard officials in Alabama ordered the grounding of its other helicopters of the same type. Two of the six helicopters in transit were halted in Pittsburgh and a trailing pair were grounded near the crash site.

Midlander among educators attending task force meeting

A Midland educator was in Baltimore, Md., last week at the invitation of Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Bertha Mae Starks, a school district coordinator, joined 500 selected persons from across the nation at the Thursday through Saturday conference sponsored by the Vice President's Task Force on Youth Employment.

Mondale was the keynote speaker at the Thursday luncheon meeting held at Baltimore's new convention center.

Other speakers participating in the three-day meeting included Ray Marshall, secretary of labor; Robert Taggart III, administrator, office of youth programs, Department of Labor; and Paul N. Ylvisaker, professor in the graduate school of education at Harvard University.

It was the fourth and largest conference sponsored by the Task Force designed to encourage action and increase the awareness of and commitment to the employment needs of youth.

Coordinator of elementary social studies, Mrs. Starks has been with the school district for 22 years. She taught social studies in several schools and was department chairman at Alamo Junior High School.

In 1975, she was named director of Law-Focused Education for the district, which includes the Crime and Drug Prevention program.

Spring increase in cost of newsprint forecast

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Newspapers, already laboring under a 20 percent increase in paper prices this year, can expect another jolt early next year, an industry analyst says.

"There could be another $30-a-ton increase next spring which would come on top of the $30 increase that will come into effect next month," Ross Hay-Roe of Pemberton Securities Ltd. said Friday.

"The demand for newsprint continues to be extremely strong. A peak in U.S. consumption levels has been reached at a time where there has been a rapid increase in U.S. capacity. I think before 1980 is over we will see significant weakness in Canadian operating rates, but the market at present continues to be very strong."

Despite a recession in the United States and anticipated lower demand for newsprint next year, prices will continue to rise, Hay-Roe said. He noted that demand was dropping in late 1973, mid-1974 and early 1975, but prices surged ahead nonetheless.

Newsprint producers posted an increase of $30 a ton last spring and another of about $30 this fall, bringing the average Canadian price to $408 a ton.

Mayoral primary will put scrappy Kucinich to test

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dennis J. Kucinich, the scrappy mayor whose two years in office have embroiled him in bitter fights over the city's tottering finances and his abrasive leadership style, will be judged by the voters Tuesday in a non-partisan mayoral primary.

Five candidates are vying for the $50,000-a-year job and voters will narrow the field to two for the Nov. 6 general election.

Kucinich, whose 33rd birthday is on Oct. 8, survived a recall attempt by only 236 votes a year ago. Last fall, he was sidelined for five weeks with an ulcer — in part because of the hectic pace of his former 18-hour days. The city also has failed twice to meet loan payment deadlines, with a third default looming next Saturday.

Polls show him running a strong second to Lt. Gov. George V. Voinovich.

Voinovich, 48, is a Republican. Kucinich is a Democrat who unseated veteran Mayor Ralph J. Perk in 1977 without party support. Others in the race are Democrats Basil M. Russo, 32, majority leader of the City Council; and state Sen. Charles L. Butts, 37; and machine press operator Thabo Ntweng, 31, a candidate of the Socialist Workers Party.

"It's a referendum on Dennis," said Cuyahoga County Democratic Chairman Timothy F. Hagan. "What you are going to have is Dennis being judged by the voters in the primary."

Hagan said the race is too close to call because of the uncertainty about the turnout. Of the 290,000 registered voters, polls show at least one-third have yet to make up their minds.

Robert E. Hughes, chairman of the county Republican organization, said he is sure the runoff will feature Voinovich and Kucinich.

Kucinich has focused his campaign entirely on Voinovich and has often discussed, without apologizing, his outspoken, often acrimonious style.

"All I had to do in the last two years to gain the favor of the media, the praise of editors, the laurels of the Growth Association, was to remain silent...and keep my lips sealed as dozens of dirty deals danced across my desk," Kucinich said Friday in his only debate with his challengers.

"If I had done these things I wouldn't be here this afternoon facing an uphill battle against the quiet onslaught of corrupt corporate powers secretly funneling cash into the campaign of the Republican, in order to steal back the city quietly, like thieves in the night."

Kucinich says his problems were inherited and that he needs two more years to turn around the industrialized Lake Erie port city of 600,000 residents.

Voinovich, who attacked Kucinich for discord in government, promises an administration of cooperation and maturity.

"You'll hear noise from City Hall, but it will be constructive noise, useful noise — the noise of mature, experienced, professional city officials going to bat for every single resident of Cleveland," Voinovich said.

"It will not be the harsh, destructive, self-serving shriek we've heard for two years that humiliates or degrades people and institutions, simply because they don't happen to agree with the mayor."

Similarly, Butts and Russo have been focusing on Kucinich and on bread-and-butter issues such as clean streets and beefed up police protection.

Midland man is nominated

SNYDER — J. D. Crawford of Midland is one of several individuals nominated for directors' positions on the Sweetwater Production Credit Association.

Election of three directors by stockholders will be the main item of business Friday during the annual meeting in Scurry County Coliseum here.

Crawford is the incumbent Position 6 director. Also nominated for the Position 6 slot is John E. Post of Jal, N.M.

Nominees for Position 2 are incumbent Othell O'Kelly of Trent and Gaines Price of Roscoe. Position 3 nominees are Audrey Head of Snyder, the incumbent, and Harold Hester of Colorado City.

Congressman Charles Stenholm of the 17th Congressional District will highlight the meeting, which begins at 9:30 a.m.

Travel Club sets trip to Dallas

The Midland YMCA Travel Club for men and women 50 years of age and older will take a five-day trip to Dallas Oct. 11-15.

The group will attend the State Fair, Six Flags and the Dallas Cowboys-Los Angeles Rams football game.

Several vacant seats for the trip still exist, according to YMCA officials. Persons interested in joining the group should call 682-2551.

After 13 years, Nigeria gets civilian government

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — This largest of African nations, a major supplier of oil to the United States, returns to civilian government on Monday for the first time in more than 13 years.

The switchover from military rule — 19 years to the day Nigeria gained independence from Britain — is regarded as an ambitious gamble that could mark a turning point in post-colonial African history.

If President-elect Shehu Shagari succeeds in launching a popularly elected government after Nigeria's bloody progression of coups, civil wars, assassinations and military governments that began in January 1966, he could set an example for other African leaders that democracy is workable on this continent.

Andrew Young, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said after his recent visit to Nigeria: "The Nigerian constitution and the Nigerian process has the same kind of impact on Africa and the Third World that the French and American revolutions had on (Western) history."

With its oil wealth, its military might and the sheer weight of its 100 million people, Nigeria is black Africa's most influential state. It produces 2.45 million barrels of oil a day and exports about half that to the United States — the second largest supplier of oil for Americans after Saudi Arabia and accounting for 6 percent of U.S. daily consumption. Nigeria is expected to earn $15 billion this year from oil.

Failure of the civilian experiment in such a potentially rich country could dissuade other authoritarian African leaders from surrendering power and raising doubts among Nigerians themselves about ever handing power to politicians again. In the years since it won independence from Britain on Oct. 1, 1960, Nigeria has suffered four military coups, the killing of two government heads, tribal conflicts and a civil war — the unsuccessful secession struggle of the Biafrans in 1967-70.

It is a country that holds more than a quarter of all black Africa's people, its 250 tribes are sharply divided along ethnic and religious lines, and its military has well over 200,000 personnel.

Despite the heavy oil revenues, at least three quarters of Nigeria's people live in poverty. Agriculture, once a mainstay of the economy, has deteriorated and the flight from farms has made Lagos and other cities almost unmanageable.

None of this, however, stopped the military government of Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo from pressing ahead with a new constitution, national elections and transition to civilian rule.

The critical element in the process is a constitutional system that seeks to balance regional interests and rivalries against a broad-based central government consisting of an executive branch, a Senate and an Assembly.

Part of the scheme included dividing the three monolithic regions inherited from British colonial rulers into 19 states, and insisting that any presidential aspirant prove substantial support from a majority of these.

The system has already survived its first major challenge. Shortly after an electoral commission declared Shagari the presidential winner in August, one of the losing candidates, Chief Obafemi Awolowo, went to court in a bid to have the result nullified.

U.S., West Germany renew commitment to strong dollar

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — U.S. and West German economic strategists renewed their commitment to a strong dollar Saturday but gave no indication of new support measures for the ailing currency.

Following a four-hour meeting, the two delegations — including West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, U.S. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller and Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker — issued a joint statement agreeing on "the need for a strong and stable dollar" and pledging cooperation "toward that end."

"Both sides reiterated their resolve to combat unwarranted as well as erratic movements in the foreign-exchange markets," the statement said. "The necessary interventions will be carried out promptly and in close cooperation between the authorities concerned. The corresponding funds are available to the intervening authorities."

The strategists canceled a scheduled press conference, which caused speculation that Bonn and Washington remained at odds on the details of resolving the dollar's weakness.

Their pledge to intervene promptly in West German Finance Minister Hans Matthoer, who also attended Saturday's meeting, said last week the dollar's slide could "dangerously overvalue" the mark. A falling dollar threatens to price German goods out of world markets, the Bonn government says.

Schmidt said in an interview with the British magazine Economist he would like to see a two-mark dollar, but this was unrealistic in the near future.

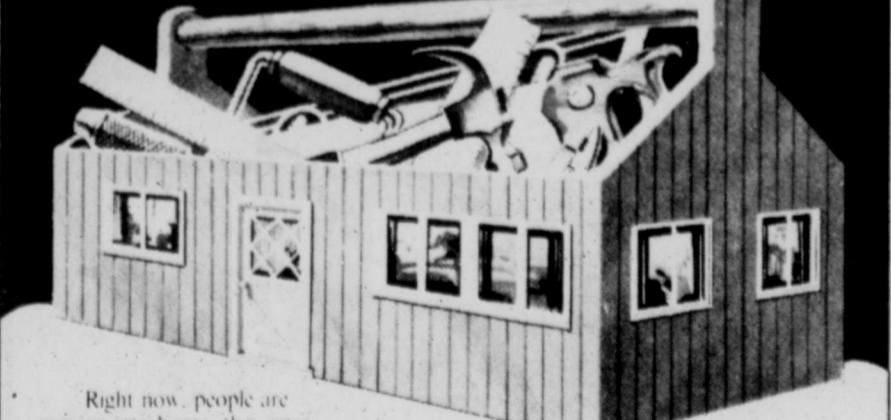

The Saturday statement also called for restraint in world oil prices, which they said "pose a serious threat to the fabric of the world economy by feeding world inflation and reducing world growth."

"Reasonable oil pricing by producers is essential to world economic health," they added.

The two sides also assigned a top priority to the fight against inflation, which has been blamed for much of the dollar's weakness.

"Secretary Miller and Chairman Volcker stressed that the U.S. would continue to pursue disciplined budgetary and monetary policies," the statement said. "A single-digit inflation rate as well as a current-account surplus will be reached in coming months. Strong fiscal restraint will be continued and money growth will be tightly controlled."

Supreme Court facing busy new term starting Monday

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The power of government to regulate the right of citizens to sue public officials, policing the police and open courts are among the issues awaiting Monday's start of a new Supreme Court term.

No single controversy looms as large as the Weber and Bakke "reverse discrimination" cases did the past two Octobers, but the 1979-80 term's sheer volume suggests the justices will be busier than ever.

Before it adjourns next June or July, the court could be asked to consider nearly 5,000 cases. About 150 of those will lead to full-fledged Supreme Court decisions, many of them affecting the legal rights and lives of all Americans.

From the list of cases already accepted for review, it appears the justices will have ample opportunity to explore anew the scope of government regulation and accountability.

The case most closely watched by the Carter administration will be argued early in the term. It tests whether the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration may impose new standards for worker exposure to benzene, a cancer-causing chemical.

The standards, which would affect more than 600,000 workers and initially cost industries up to $500 million, were drawn up in 1977 and struck down last year by a federal appeals court.

The lower court said OSHA had not calculated the precise relationship between exposure to benzene — a highly volatile liquid used in the making of detergents, plastics, solvents and paint remover — and risk of leukemia.

A standard could not be "reasonably necessary" as defined by federal health law unless it produces known benefits or savings commensurate with its known financial costs, the court said.

Government lawyers told the justices the ruling "may well preclude the secretary (of labor) from regulating many of the other carcinogens present in the workplace," thus affecting millions of workers.

Industry representatives praised the lower court's ruling, adding that American workers are being "adequately protected" by current health and safety standards.

In a case over regulation of a different kind, the justices have agreed to decide in a case from Schaumburg, Ill., whether communities may bar door-to-door solicitation by charities who do not put at least 75 percent of their proceeds directly to charitable purposes.

At least a half-dozen cases to be decided by the court deal with what satisfaction citizens can demand when government, federal or state, wrongs them. Questions raised by those cases include these:

—Can the "Gainesville 8" anti-war activists, who were cleared of riot incitement charges in 1973, sue two of their federal prosecutors and an FBI agent? A lower court said they may even though the three defendants live in Florida and the suit was filed in Washington, D.C.

—Can federal prisoners who suffer unconstitutionally cruel and unusual punishment sue the government for damages? A lower court said yes, but the Supreme Court would have to once again deny the so-called doctrine of sovereign immunity to agree.

Currently, the right to hold federal officials liable for constitutional violations is very limited. In 1971, the Supreme Court said such a right to sue exists when a person's 4th Amendment protection against unreasonable police searches is violated. Just last term, the court extended the right to certain instances involving due-process rights under the 5th Amendment.

—Can government-appointed lawyers who defend penniless criminal defendants be sued by their clients for negligence? The Pennsylvania Supreme Court said they could not.

WASHINGTON: could not. —Can state parole officials be sued if a parolee commits a serious crime? California courts said parole officials have absolute immunity in such instances, but the justices agreed to hear the appeal of George Martinez of San Diego. He tried to sue state officials after his young daughter was murdered by a convicted sex offender released on parole months earlier.

OPEN COURTS: Last July, the court broadened the power that trial judges had to exclude the public and press from traditionally open courtroom proceedings. Since then, four justices have taken the extraordinary step of speaking out about the July ruling — fueling a genuine controversy in lower courts and among legal scholars over just how sweeping was that ruling.

Now, appeals from Virginia and New York offer the potential for clarification.

of the suspect's Miranda rights? The Rhode Island Supreme Court said "yes" in a murder case already accepted for review by the justices.

—Can police officers who obtain a warrant to search a public place search all persons who happen to be there. Illinois courts said "yes."

—It is established constitutional law that evidence obtained in a police search conducted without a court warrant cannot be used at trial. But can an arrest be invalidated because the arresting officer failed to get a warrant? New York courts said "no."

FREE SPEECH: Can states prohibit public utilities from using bill inserts to discuss "controversial matters of public policy" or is such regulation a violation of a corporation's recently confirmed free-speech rights?

New York courts said Consolidated Edison Co., a huge electric firm, could be barred from sending certain literature to customers along with their bills. The justices have not yet considered Con Ed's appeal.

—Can the federal government require members of the U.S. armed forces to always obtain approval before circulating petitions? Two lower courts said "no."

RACIAL EQUALITY: Did Congress act constitutionally when in 1977 it reserved 10 percent of $4 billion in federal public work grants for minority-owned businesses? Lower courts are split on this "affirmative action" vs. "reverse discrimination" issue.

—Must the California brewery industry continue to defend itself against a lawsuit charging it with discrimination against blacks? A lower court said "yes."

SCHOOLS: Should the Dallas, Texas, school district, the nation's eighth-largest, be divided into six subdistricts and bus some 20,000 students to achieve racial balance?

KISSINGER PAPERS: Can Henry A. Kissinger bar the public from transcripts of telephone conversations he had while secretary of state and White House national security adviser? Lower courts said at least some of the transcripts must be made public.

CAMPUS UNIONS: Can a college or university that contends all its faculty members possess "supervisory and managerial" responsibilities prohibit them from forming a union? A lower court said "yes" in a case involving Yeshiva University in New York.

RINGING THE BELL Black experience and the church

With BOB TIEUEL

BISHOP H. HARTFORD Brookins, who presides over 150,000 African Methodists in 17 Western and Southwestern states, believes that black Americans must learn to spend their money and use their votes more wisely in order to make themselves politically and economically strong. He told the black press recently that in 1978 black people spent $3 billion to $4 billion on liquor and $3.5 billion on care.

"Black Americans are the ninth richest nation in the world. We have the buying power to influence any decision the government makes, if we use our money properly. The black church has the responsibility to arouse blacks from a sleeping position," Brookins said.

BROOKINS CONTINUED: "The church is no longer concerned only with getting people ready to die and with opening the pearly gates. We want them to live now. We are interested in opening the gates to the factories of Chrysler, owning shares in automobile factories and obtaining dealerships. We want to import and export diamonds from South Africa."

Bishop Brookins described an economic development program which he started several years ago in his diocese designed to make the black church financially strong enough to make loans to congregations to build new buildings instead of having to borrow from downtown banks at exorbitant rates. A.M.E. members are encouraged to pay $36 a year into the fund which today stands at more than $200,000. Our goal is at least a half-million dollars, he said. Bishop Brookins said he could not support President Carter in 1980 unless he restores the economy and can "provide jobs for black people." The black church is the strongest institution which black Americans have, the bishop concluded.

CHIMES: GARY COLEMAN, nine-year-old star of the hit television comedy series, "Different Strokes," has been named the honorary Gift of Life chairman of the National Kidney Foundation. Gary was a recent guest on the Tonight Show and it was reported that he has his own production company. He underwent a kidney transplant when he was five years old and will help promote the foundation's programs through TV and radio public service spots as well as personal appearances.

ACCORDING TO CARL Rowan, black columnist, American public education is in the grip of a complex crisis caused by widespread violence and vandalism; abuse of alcohol and drugs, even by fourth graders; racial and class hostility; the flight, or repulsion of good teachers; strikes by teachers who stay, and a general financial crisis caused by the tax cut madness of people with no kids in school and by conservatives who "would simply like to destroy the public school system."

NEA claims that if the United States were to meet even minimum standards of public education, the nation would need 440,000 new teachers. Continues Rowan: "Support for public education has waned and many teachers and administrators are wearying of the fact that more than a quarter of a century after the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed racial discrimination in public schools, race remains one of the most divisive and corrosive factors in public education."

ON TOWNHOUSES

There is no doubt about it. The townhouse or "single family attached" residence with a small yard space is by far the most dynamic segment of today's housing market. The houses, built in rows with common walls in both expensive suburbs and in the cities, have become such good sellers they are expected to make up one quarter of the 4 million single family homes that will be sold this year.

A nationwide survey completed recently brought out some interesting facts from townhouse buyers. One of the surprises of a recent survey was that "convenience," particularly the lack of yard work, apparently means more to townhouse able to sell for less than detached homes because they take up less land. Although the lower price is usually considered the biggest asset of townhouses, (national average between $32,000 and $50,000) many luxury developments begin at $100,000 and range upward and upward.

Townhouses are believed to have had their origin in the Middle Ages when they were built wall to wall to improve the defenses of city states.

Musical genius Eva Jessye still going great guns at 84

EDITOR'S NOTE: She's 84 now and looking ahead as she looks back. Composer Eva Jessye, whose musical genius has been recognized by blacks and whites alike, is back home in Kansas. And Kansas has set aside a day in her honor.

By TAD BARTIMUS

PITTSBURGH, Kan. (AP) — Eva Jessye, a relic of American music, is adding another chorus to her life's song.

The black composer, who's 84, is careful to remind the Lord daily: "Please be patient. I'm not finished yet."

She's writing four books, producing her oratorios, founding another choir. "And I've just got to see the trees leaf out next spring."

"When people come by my office door and stare, I feel like the pyramids," says the daughter of slaves who was choral director of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in 1935 on Broadway.

She talks as she rummages through a tin turkey pan that holds her voluminous correspondence.

"I'm looking for a letter to Jimmy Carter," she says, iron gray wig askew. "I've got something uplifting I want to tell him. He could use it these days."

Miss Jessye, the Coffeyville, Kan., girl who went off to New York 60 years ago to make good and did, has come home again. Pittsburg State University has created a museum for her 8,500 pounds of memorabilia.

Kansas proclaimed Oct. 1 Eva Jessye Day.

And she's thriving on 12-hour work days and adoring students who weren't even born when she drew her first Social Security check.

The artist-in-residence reigns serene in Room 102 of McRay Hall. It is a nest of comfortable clutter. Paintings and autographed photographs crowd the walls. There's an old upright piano perfect to pound on. The old woman and her plants bloom in day-long sunshine.

"Sometimes I sit here by myself and wonder what this room will be like when I'm gone, when people know I won't be coming back," she says.

Miss Jessye came back to the heartland "because it's the best place to live. Everybody's got to have one place to call home. I feel needed and appreciated here."

It has been a long journey from the beginning of her circle.

Her parents were freed after the Civil War and as a child "I sang for the joy of it. I'd make up songs. You want to hear about trees? I'd write a song about trees. Birds? Flowers? I'd write them all. It was in my blood."

She says her mother suffered degradation so she could go to college at Western University in Kansas City, Kan.

"She wrote once, 'I paid your tuition. That leaves me with a two-cent stamp.' And my Aunt May wrote, 'Eva, I'm sending you your class dues. Your uncle will do without shoes so you can get them paid.'"

"There he was, only an uncle by marriage and a plain, laboring man from Alabama who could hardly write his own name. When people have that much confidence in you, you can't fail them."

She graduated in 1914, then taught in segregated schools in Oklahoma. In 1922 she went to Baltimore and worked on a Negro newspaper. She sought her musical break in New York but producers told her "we don't have any need for your kind of music."

"Back then, audiences expected black performers to sing nothing but 'Swanee River,'" she says.

To support herself she ironed shirts for $13 a week and saved 25 cents a day to eat on. During slave scenes in silent movies she sang in the wings.

"Don't attach too much importance to a refusal," she says softly in her deep baritone. "Sometimes it is only the wind that closes a door."

Her friends were Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, Paul Robeson, Ethel Waters, Louis Armstrong, Sophie Tucker and countless more "who're gone now."

Her first break came singing in Broadway theaters as a warmup to films. She formed a choir — The Original Dixie Jubilee Singers — and its rich soul sound led the spiritual singers through the doors of theatrical producers all along the Great White Way.

They played the Major Bows Family Radio Hour for a year and then in 1927 Miss Jessye founded the choral group that bore her name for nearly half a century.

In 1929 she helped score and was choir director for the King Vidor film "Hallelujah" and two years later NBC aired her epic folk oratorio "Paradise Lost and Regained." Its inspiration came from a dog-eared copy of John Milton's "Paradise Lost" she'd fished out of a Manhattan trash can.

She was singing and swinging in Harlem at its heyday as America's black stars began to twinkle across the international sky. She went to Paris and visited Josephine Baker, then came back and rode with her choir on a bus through the segregated South. Duke Ellington asked her advice and she paid her rent on time.

In 1934 George Gershwin sought her out to be choir director for his opera "Porgy and Bess." By then she'd made the big time, but she was still humble.

"There was a scene where the washer woman walks out on the stage. No one would do it so I volunteered. I told the other blacks they were there doing opera because their mothers washed clothes, chopped cotton, bowed low, suffered and labored to get them there. Then they began to see. I believe in keeping the dignity of your background."

She walked right behind the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in the 1963 civil rights march on Washington, D.C., and her choir was the official chorus of the demonstration. Recently she was seated beside Lillian Carter at an Atlanta social gathering. "I am no longer the only raising in the rice pudding," she grins.

She has outlived two husbands and is childless. She's never changed her name "because I always felt like an individual. I've never belonged to anybody."

She has played for refugees in a bombed out building in Berlin, slept in palaces, walked arm-in-arm with Eleanor Roosevelt and lived to see her genius praised by black and white Americans.

She is organizing a new Eva Jessye Choir of about 25 people to tour Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

"I think there's nothing greater than opening doors for other people and thinking you have fulfilled yourself," says Miss Jessye, her dark eyes snapping in a strong face that doesn't show a wrinkle. "I'm not ready yet. If St. Peter says he's coming to get Eva at 7 o'clock and he comes at 7:15, I'll say 'You're late and I've made other plans.'"

Marathon waltz ended

HOLLIS, Okla. (AP) — David Waddel celebrated his 26th birthday Saturday by waltzing across the Texas-Oklahoma line at the end of a 19-day, 203-mile dance across the Texas Panhandle.

"Well, I finished it," the country dancing instructor at Amarillo college said.

He danced with 22 partners on his marathon musical trip that began

Sept. 10 near Clovis, N.M.

The feat was inspired by Ernest Tubbs' song "Waltz Across Texas," and the singer planned to honor Waddel Saturday night with a barbecue in Turkey, Texas, the birthplace of late country music great Bob Wills.

Waddel says he next plans to waltz all the way across Texas, 821 miles from El Paso to Texarkana.

Jaycee chapter planning 'Kick the Crown' contest

HAVELOCK, N.C. (AP) — Members of the Havelock-Cherry Point Jaycees chapter are trying to locate Debby Shook to kick off — literally — a new non-beauty pageant.

Miss Shook, of Spruce Pine, had the Miss North Carolina title taken from her in June after she complained publicly that she did not receive all her benefits. A day later, in protest, she kicked her crown on stage during preliminary contests for a new Miss North Carolina.

Darryl E. Nixon, spokesman for the Jaycees chapter, said his group is planning a "Miss Havelock North Carolina Crown Kicking" contest to commemorate Miss Shook's action. Contestants will line up to see who can place-kick a beauty queen's crown the farthest.

"We would like her to kick off the event by kicking out the first crown ... kind of like throwing out the first ball of the season," Nixon said.

The state Jaycees sponsor the Miss North Carolina contest, but the Havelock-Cherry Point chapter doesn't send a representative to it, Nixon said.

Nephrosis occurs mostly in children

Dear Dr. Solomon: The son of a friend of mine has been very ill, and she tells me he has nephrosis. The term is new to me and I was wondering what it means and if he will be all right again. — Mrs. E.S.M.

Dear Mrs. M.: Nephrosis refers to a kidney condition that occurs most often in young children, although it occasionally develops in older people as well. It affects boys about twice as often as girls, and is not a very common disease. The cause is unknown.

The function of the kidneys is to filter water, salts and waste products out of the blood, forming urine; blood cells and proteins are then returned to the blood. However, if the kidney is not functioning the way it should, too much protein may spill into the urine. This condition is called nephrosis. (The word has a Greek root and means "a condition of the kidney.")

There is usually a gradual onset of the symptoms of nephrosis. The child may have a slight cold, appear lethargic, and lose his appetite. Some puffiness or swelling is apt to be noticed under the eyes, particularly early in the morning. This may disappear later in the day, only to recur on succeeding mornings. After a time there is further swelling — of the abdomen, feet, and ankles. Without treatment, the swelling can grow and cause extreme discomfort. It is the swelling that usually prompts parents to seek medical help.

The simplest test for nephrosis is an examination of the urine to determine the amount of protein it contains. Blood tests can measure the amount of protein and cholesterol in the blood, and determine whether the kidneys are ridding the body of waste products. A kidney biopsy may be performed if there is difficulty in diagnosing or treating the illness. This procedure involves removing a small piece of tissue from the kidney, and examining it under a microscope.

Steroid drugs are very effective in the treatment of certain types of nephrosis. Before these drugs were available, the condition would last for years. Eventually about half the patients recovered; the remainder suffered progressive damage to the kidneys and eventual death. The use of steroids suppresses the symptoms of nephrosis so that there is no swelling and the urine is normal. About 80 percent of patients with the condition respond to the steroids and they generally improve within one to four weeks; therapy may continue for from six months to one year.

While the drugs suppress the symptoms of nephrosis, they do not cure the disease, and the child is always subject to a relapse. It is necessary to continue checking the urine for the presence of protein for many years, since early detection permits prompt treatment.

Children with nephrosis are highly susceptible to infection. Fever or any other sign of infection warrants prompt consultation with a physician. There may also be disturbances of the digestive system, which would require a special diet.

Once the symptoms are under control, however, the child should be leading a normal and active life, taking care to get adequate rest and to avoid unnecessary exposure to infectious illnesses.

Pay raise bogs down Congress

Bureaucracy in danger of running out of funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply divided over pay raises and federal financing of abortions, Congress was bogged down Saturday with the Senate in session, the House on vacation and many federal departments in danger of running out of money.

The House and Senate are torn by the emotional questions of whether lawmakers should give themselves more money and to what extent the government should finance poor women's abortions.

The major casualty of a running feud between the two chambers was an emergency money bill, which became the vehicle for attempts by lawmakers to force a showdown on the pay raise and abortion issues.

When the House and Senate couldn't resolve their differences, and the House went on a Columbus Day vacation, the stopgap appropriations measure was killed.

The effects of Congress' failure to pass the emergency funding measure — to keep the departments fully operational after Sunday night — probably will not be felt for "a few days," Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd said.

The West Virginia Democrat commented shortly before calling the Senate into an unusual Saturday session aimed at putting pressure on the House to return to work so the bill can be passed.

That strategy failed, however, and the Senate went into recess after two hours of debate characterized mostly by speeches condemning the House's actions.

Byrd announced that the Senate would meet Monday and would take up the emergency measure as soon as its Appropriations Committee could work up a new bill. This will allow the Senate to pass its own bill — with no pay raise for congressmen — and its own abortion funding language. Most likely, such a move would put new pressure on the House to return to work.

Although appropriations bills must originate in the House, the Senate had several options open that would speed up the often-lengthy process required in passage of new bill.

For example, it could tack the needed funds onto a Federal Trade Commission measure which has already passed the House.

The federal government's new budget year, fiscal 1980, begins Monday. But only two of 13 regular agency appropriation bills have been enacted. Because of this, Congress must approve a so-called "continuing resolution" which permits these agencies to operate normally until their regular appropriations become law.

Byrd had suggested Friday night that President Carter take the extraordinary step of ordering the House to return to work.

But Carter's top congressional assistant, Frank Moore, said Saturday there were no present plans to force the House back in session.

Moore said the White House was monitoring the situation and that Carter had talked with congressional leaders. Moore indicated that some action might occur Tuesday, when the House is scheduled to meet — but only as a formality and not to conduct substantive business.

Texas liberals reject pleas to reject presidential politics

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of predominantly liberal Texas Democrats overwhelmingly rejected a motion Saturday to keep presidential politics off their agenda, despite a warning that such discussions could tear the group apart.

The group, an informal coalition calling itself simply "Texas Democrats," included at least two women wearing "Kennedy" jerseys and several others with buttons that said "Ready for Teddy" and "Kennedy '80."

Ken Gjemre of Dallas asked the group to strike reports on President Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and California Gov. Edmund Brown from the agenda.

Gjemre said instead of discussing presidential politics the Texas Democrats "should see to it that we get a decent Legislature." Cliff Reed of El Paso, who said his $200 trip had been financed by Kennedy supporters, asked to hear the informal reports.

Midlander to foster interest in livestock

COLLEGE STATION — Clayton W. Williams Jr. of Midland is sponsor of the 1979 4-H Club Beef Awards Program designed to bolster interest in livestock, said H.T. Davison, executive director of the Texas 4-H Foundation and 4-H and youth specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Services.

Williams is a Texas A&M University alumnus and is a Midland-based oil operator, cattleman and investor.

The Williams-underwritten program will permit the TAES to recognize the top 4-H members with beef projects in each Texas county.

"Recognition is an important part of each 4-H project," said Dr. John Pelham, state 4-H leader, "and we are indeed fortunate to have secured the sponsorship" of Williams.

The 4-H beef project is designed to teach young people the principles of animal husbandry, including feeding, management and marketing, and is to help youth develop leadership skills, family unity and an understanding of the free-enterprise system.

Williams' ranch operations are noted for their quality Brangus cattle.

Midland producers due hail aid

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bob Bergland, secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has approved emergency assistance to Midland County farmers whose crops were hailed out or water damaged by flooding, announced U.S. Sen. John Tower.

Applications for assistance may be received through June 13, 1980, for physical losses and through Sept. 12, 1980, for production losses.

"If you feel you qualify for such assistance, further information can be obtained through the local county supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration servicing Midland County," Tower said.

Most of the loss came in waves of hail storms this summer.

South Plains cotton 'doing well'

COLLEGE STATION — Cotton is "doing well" and some acreage has been stripped and baled on the South Plains, which includes the Lamesa-Lubbock area, according to William F. Braden, communications specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Services.

Cotton is maturing in the Midland-Stanton-Midkiff-Big Spring area of West Texas. Alfalfa is being harvested. In far West Texas, bell peppers and chili peppers are being picked. Heavy lambs and calves are still moving to the market.

October is 'Co-operative Month'

AUSTIN — October is "Co-operative Month" when the role of co-operatives in the economic progress of Texas and the nation are recognized.

Texas has more than 440 co-operatives that serve 133,000 members and do an annual business of $1.7 billion.

"Co-operatives range from farmer-owned gins, elevators and compresses to marketing, supply and credit organizations," said Johnny Feagan, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Health, housing, insurance, electric, telephone and other service co-operatives are becoming more and more important to all Texas cities," he said.

Family farmers are able to find more dependable markets for their products through co-operatives. They also can get supplies at lower costs through their co-ops.

"Co-operatives evolved from the early American spirit of working together to survive," Feagan said. "They were organized to compete with economic forces which threatened the economic existence of individuals. Today, co-operatives enable Americans to work together to help themselves."

U.S. farm exports increasing, especially to oil-rich nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exports of U.S. farm commodities have shown a phenomenal general growth, and shipments to oil-rich countries of the Middle East and other regions perhaps have been even more astounding.

Figures compiled by the Agriculture Department show that one of the most important groups of buyers — the 13 nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — has been on a shopping binge for almost all products, not just grain and food items.

The report, in a current issue of Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States published by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, shows that U.S. farm exports to OPEC jumped 373 percent from $475.1 million in 1972 to almost $2.25 billion in 1978.

Much of the growth in the value of farm exports has been due to higher prices for grain and many other commodities, but the actual tonnage sold to OPEC and other overseas buyers also have risen sharply from 1972 levels.

The report was written by Robert L. Tontz and Susan A. Libben, economists in the USDA agency. It analyzes the trade patterns of 28 petroleum exporting countries in general, including OPEC, to show how U.S. farm exports to them have increased.

No attempt was made to examine the issue of using U.S. wheat and other food as a level against OPEC oil price increases as some have advocated, the so-called "food for crude" proposal.

The Carter administration has rejected the idea of using food as a "weapon" against foreign oil producers.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, for example, told a group of reporters recently that some of the richer OPEC countries could "buy all the French pastry they wanted" directly from France if they were threatened with a halt of U.S. wheat sales.

The report included these observations about foreign oil-producing countries and their dealings for U.S. farm commodities:

—About 26 percent, or $7.5 billion of all U.S. agricultural exports in calendar 1978, went to the 28 oil exporting nations, including Canada and the Soviet Union, compared to 9 percent of the total in 1972.

—Exports to the 13 OPEC members, which provide about 80 percent of the world's oil exports and most of the crude oil imported by the United States, totaled a record $2.25 billion last year, more than four times the 1972 value.

Super chick exceeds 'egg a day' by producing 371 in one year

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — WB 2988 doesn't have an "S" emblazoned on her white breast feathers, but she's a super chicken nonetheless, one her developer hopes will be the first of a strain of egg-a-day layers.

The leghorn hen with a number instead of a name laid 371 eggs in the past year, a point of pride for Harold Biellier, a poultry husbandry professor at the University of Missouri who developed her.

"As far as we know, that's a record," says Biellier, who hopes to select hens like WB 2988 to begin a strain of chickens that will lay eggs day after day, without taking a day off. "We've been trying to get hens like this for 10 years and now have the technique for selecting these better birds."

Unlike Biellier's super chick, an average hen lays one egg about every 25 hours for four or five days, then skips a day, making average production about 270 eggs a year.

"Your average hen gets about 90 days off each year," says Biellier. "That's a lot more than I get. If I have my way, the super laying chicken of the future will never have a day off."

The key to the selection process is shortening the bird's day to as little as 22 hours during part of the laying cycle, using lights hooked up to automatic timers in the indoor coops.

"Once we've identified them and bred a strain of egg-a-day producers, poultrymen would be able to get production that good under normal 24-hour-day conditions."

Chickens generally start laying at five months and produce for 12 to 14 months with periodic breaks in the cycle. Occasionally, the birds are rested after the first 12 to 14 months, allowed to molt and brought back for another year of production.

Biellier says he's not sure his super-bird will be challenged to go through another year of producing an egg a day. "She deserves a long vacation."

Drive on to improve eating habits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grants totaling $419,000 to agencies in three states have been approved by the Agriculture Department as part of its national campaign to improve the eating habits of children.

The grants, announced Thursday, included: $121,000 to the Iowa Department of Public Instruction; $144,000 to the Maine Public Schools; and $154,000 to the California Department of Education.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, who oversees USDA food and consumer services, said the money will be used to test "new ideas for nutrition education" in schools.

"These researchers will develop experimental approaches to teaching children the importance of healthful eating habits," she said. "The project will provide new ways we can use to present nutrition information in the national nutrition education and training program."

—In Iowa the money will be used for a day-care project called "Iowa Nutriphonics" in which pre-school children will use "talk-with-me style books, activity books and reward stickers in an attempt to change their attitudes about foods.

"The activities are designed to teach them to try new foods, to eat a greater variety of foods and to eat fewer 'empty' calories."

—The Maine project will bring together parents, teachers, principals, cafeteria workers and students "in an intensive two-week nutrition education workshop. Afterwards, the participants will be responsible for teaching what they learned about nutrition to others in the school."

Soaring price spawns new gold rush

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

All that glitters is not gold, but if it is, you'd better put a guard on it. With the price of the yellow metal topping $400 an ounce last week for the first time in history, a toothache could become a financial headache, if you're choosy about your fillings. A simple band of gold for your betrothed could be more expensive than the honeymoon. Regardless of the cost, Americans buy 174.4 metric tons of gold a year for jewelry, dental work and industrial uses, according to a survey conducted by Consolidated Gold Fields Ltd., a South African gold producer. That's about 382,800 pounds, including 99.2 tons for jewelry, 51.1 tons for industrial use and 24 tons for dental work. On Friday's international market, the price of gold had almost doubled since last September when it was selling for $217 an ounce. But the rising price has only spurred the demand for gold trinkets, according to jewelry store operators around the country. They report factories are having a hard time keeping up. New York's prestigious Cartier firm says it is selling more gold jewelry now than ever in the past.

"The general public is becoming more and more aware that gold is a good form of investment," said Fernanda Gilligan, spokeswoman for the store. Cartier said the price for one of its most popular gold wedding bands, "Rolling Ring" — three sections of 18-carat gold linked to form a ring — has gone up steadily, from $90 in 1969 to $175 in 1974, $285 last year and $340 today. "Everybody wants a little piece of gold," said Don Lawrence, who runs the Goldsmith Limited handmade jewelry store in the posh Water Tower Place shopping center in Chicago. "It's a psychological thing. It's an ancient currency. It's something that's tangible. It doesn't burn up or fly away." "People say it was good enough for King Tut, so it's good enough for me." It would take a King Tut to pay for the gold used in telephone systems, computers and spacships. Colorado taxpayers could get a refund if they hocked the capitol dome in Denver. It's gilded with gold. If the prostitute really had a heart of gold, she would probably sell it. "The higher the price increases, the greater the clamor for gold chains, gold charms and gold of all types," said Larry Robinson of Cleveland, Ohio, president of the J.B. Robinson Co., which operates a chain of 50 jewelry stores. "Gold is difficult to get now. Factories can't make gold chain fast enough to keep up with the demand." Art Sheinbaum, president of Melart Jewelers, which operates seven stores in the Washington, D.C., area, agreed. "When gold was $35 an ounce no one wanted it." Nowadays, he said, "It doesn't seem to matter about the cost, people want gold." "They are very conscious that gold is valuable now, although I am not sure whether they are buying for investment. Having a piece of gold on your hand or around your neck is a very exciting thing today." But dentists are feeling the pinch. There is little glamor in a gold filling. Richard Resk, a vice president of Magna Labs Inc., a dental supply company, said the $70 worth of gold it took to crown a tooth a year ago now costs about $125. "The rising price of gold is really affecting our national health," he said. "It's going beyond the ability of a lot of people to pay." Dentist Joseph Cantafio, who has an office in Chicago's Loop, said the cost of an average gold filling is up from about $75 to between $100 and $175. By comparison, an average silver filling now costs about $25 to $30, up $5 to $10 over a year ago. But Cantafio says that sometimes there is no suitable substitute for gold. "With some large fillings, silver won't hold it," he said. "It will crack and break out." One jewelry industry source estimates that the cost of a simple 14-carat gold wedding band rises about 60 cents for each $1-an-ounce increase in the price of gold. Nelson Adams, manager of Frank H. Adams, Inc., which has been in the jewelry business in Albany, N.Y., for more than 50 years, said the price of wedding bands is up "at least 60 percent over a year ago." Adams says the average "good quality" ladies 18-carat band is now selling for about $150 while the men's version is about $223. And, like the other jewelers, he reports the demand for gold items is growing with the cost. "The soaring price of gold has made people stand up and take notice," Adams said. "People are saying, 'Let's not wait until next month.'" But several jewelry store operators said the consider gold a poor investment. They prefer jewels.

New type U.S. Savings Bonds to debut Jan. 2

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A different kind of U.S. Savings Bond is about to make its debut. Starting Jan. 2, 1980, Series EE bonds will replace the familiar Series E bond and there will be some changes for bond buyers. The arrival of the new bonds does not mean you have to — or should — get rid of your old ones. All outstanding Series E bonds will continue earning interest. The earliest outstanding bonds — the ones issued in May 1941 — will not reach their final maturity until May 1981 and most bonds will keep earning interest much longer than that. Here is a comparison of some key features of the old and new bonds:

DENOMINATION
Series E bonds come in denominations ranging from $25 to $10,000. They cost 75 percent of their face value, meaning the cheapest bond sells for $18.75. Series EE bonds will be available in denominations ranging from $50 to $10,000. They will sell for 50 percent of their face value; you will have to pay $25 for the cheapest bond.

MATURITY
Series E bonds mature in five years; after that time you can, if you want, cash them in for their full face value. Series EE bonds will mature in 11 years. There probably will be extensions, just as there have been extensions for Series E bonds.

INTEREST
Series E bonds, if held for five years or longer, earn 6 1/2 percent annual interest. Series EE bonds also will earn 6 1/2 percent if they are held for at least five years.

REDEMPTION
Series E bonds can be redeemed any time two months after their date of issue; Series EE bonds will have to be held for at least six months.

TAXES
Series E and Series EE bonds are exempt from state and local income tax. They are subject to federal income tax, but you do not have to pay the tax until you cash in the bonds. The deferral can be important, particularly if you hold the bonds for many years and cash them in when you are in a lower tax bracket.

SERIES H BONDS also will be replaced after Jan. 2, 1980. Their place will be taken by Series HH bonds. Like the H bonds, the Series HH bonds will be sold at face value and will be available in denominations of from $500 to $10,000. They will have the same 10-year maturity and interest will be paid semi-annually. The biggest change between the H and the HH bonds will be in the way the interest is paid. Interest on Series H bonds is on a graduated scale; you have to hold the bonds to maturity to earn the full interest rate. You can, however, redeem the bonds for their face value any time after six months from the date of issue. Series HH bonds will pay interest on a level basis; you will get the full 6 1/2 percent immediately. If you cash them in within five years, however, you will have to pay a penalty.

Prison inmates get training as solar energy technicians

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT

SOMERS, Conn. (AP) — Bill Shelton, Anderson Atkinson and Norman Theriault hope to find a place in the sun as solar-energy technicians when they are released from Connecticut's maximum-security state prison. "The thing that's pleasing is that this is the first solar-energy training program in a corrections institution in the country," said Edmund Gubbins, superintendent of the correctional school district. The program, which began a year ago with funding from the federal Energy Department, is designed to teach inmates at the Connecticut Correctional Institution at Somers skills which will make them employable when they are released. "One of the things I learned was that very, very few people were trained as solar-energy technicians," Gubbins said. The program, which began with a handful of textbooks, has now developed several working models of various energy-saving devices. The instructors say the solar-energy program, which combines solar-energy technology with skills relating to air conditioning and refrigeration, also builds confidence and pride in the inmates. "For most of us, or a lot of us, it's the first thing that's really caught our interest," said Shelton. Robert Anderson, vocational-education instructor, who developed the course from scratch, believes the program channels the inmates' interests and energies into something that is new and fascinating. He says it makes them feel important to be part of a field like solar energy, which is still in its infancy. "Most of them have never had a chance...and they also get basic skills, which most of them have also never had," explained Anderson, who has worked at the prison for 5 1/2 years.

Sanitation problems plague Alaska

By MARY LENZ

BETHEL, Alaska (AP) — Laying a water line in Alaska's soggy tundra is like trying to float a crowbar in a bowl of oatmeal.

That's why the U.S. Public Health Service has faced tough technological problems since it became responsible for providing water and sewer systems in Alaska's Eskimo and Indian villages.

Although some PHS systems have been successful, skyrocketing fuel prices, maintenance costs and frequent breakdowns in other areas have brought some spectacular failures.

"Right now, sewer lines are broken in so many places ... that sewage backs up into people's yards," said Mayor Royal Harris of the Arctic Ocean town of Kotzebue. He said the city council wanted to ask PHS to take back the system it had built 17 years ago.

Bob Juettner, city administrator of the Kuskokwim River town of McGrath, said its 350 residents had been furious when they discovered a proposed PHS project would have cost a family up to $300 a month in water and sewer bills. The project was delayed, leaving 120 public-housing residents without sanitation.

The Alaska Village Electrical Cooperative shut off electric power to a PHS-built water and sewer system in the central Alaskan village of Minto due to an unpaid $30,000 bill. More shutdowns involving PHS systems are in the works, AVEC officials said.

"I think it's a pretty safe assumption that most native villages are having trouble supporting PHS projects," said Sherry Valentine, of the Rural Alaskan Community Action Program.

Critics say PHS, which has built 200 projects of varying complexity in Alaska since 1960, has applied technology designed for Arizona deserts to the arctic without regard to the effects of the climate on machinery, or to the low income of villagers who have to foot the bill for repairs.

But PHS sanitation chief Dan Rogness said the systems had been designed in Anchorage. He said water and sewer systems "simply aren't going to operate trouble-free in an arctic environment."

Traditionally, village plumbing has consisted of a water bucket and dipper, and a "honey bucket," or outhouse. In larger areas, water is transmitted by pipes laid above the ground.

"In defense of PHS, they have programs up here that are much more full-blown and more expensive than the Lower 48 United States," said Jordan Suhr, a civil engineer from Bethel who studied 30 PHS water and sewer systems in western Alaska.

Suhr said PHS problems had begun in 1959 when Congress had approved legislation requiring the agency to provide sanitation on Indian reservations. Alaska became a state that same year, and Suhr said apparently no one considered the implications.

"Alaskan villages are in a much poorer position than the pueblos or reservations," Suhr said. He said initial cost of providing running water and toilets for a reservation home might be $10,000 but in Alaska it might cost $35,000.

In addition, water in northern Alaska must not only be stored and transmitted, but heated constantly so it doesn't freeze. This means that, in an area where energy costs are far higher, much more energy is needed to operate the systems.

Suhr said Indians in the Albuquerque, N.M., area might have to drive 40 miles to work, but they had roads, cars and jobs. In most cases, there are non-existent in Alaska villages, where residents depend on subsistence hunting for up to 80 percent of their food.

Suhr said one reason for frequent breakdowns was that although villages signed contracts promising to provide constant maintenance for the system, they were sometimes unable to follow through.

"An operator who makes $300 a month can't afford to sit there watching the system when the salmon are running or when it's moose season," Suhr said. "The whole thing goes neglected for weeks on end."

Explaining the action depicted in the "Breach of the North Wall" during the Battle of the Alamo is sculptor Terry S. Gilbreth, right, of Snyder. Dr. Jack G. Elam, center, and his wife Pat have made the recently completed work available for display at the Permian Basin Graduate Center. Gilbreth invested more than two years of research in the five-foot by four-foot work, which weighs 275 pounds. (Staff Photo)

Public Awareness Day event scheduled Thursday in Hilton

Hairpieces becoming more popular with Japanese men

By CHIKAKO YATABE

TOKYO (AP) — Hair on the heads of Japanese men may or may not be getting thinner, but the hairpiece business is doing well in modern Japan.

"I cannot declare that Japanese men have developed a tendency to have thinner hair," said Kazuhiko Ito, an executive in Art Nature, the country's biggest hairpiece manufacturer. "But compared with pre-war times, the number of youngsters afflicted with thinner hair has gained."

Ito said he thought this was a result of changes in diet and environment.

"In other words," he said in an interview, "the Japanese turned to eating oily foods like butter and meat and this is believed to affect hair growth. They also live under great stress."

Supporting his views are sales figures showing the demand for hairpieces. Art Nature, founded in 1966, had sales of 3.5 billion yen (about $16 million) last year. Eight percent of the buyers were men in their 20s and 30s.

A 100 percent natural hairpiece sells here from 200,000 yen ($930) to 300,000 yen ($1,395). The company also sells lower-priced synthetic hairpieces. All are guaranteed for three years and designed individually under exacting examinations at company clinics.

Natural hair is imported from China and Southeast Asian countries.

"We need undamaged, straight, black hair," Ito said. "That of women in developing countries retains the best quality, fresh and strong, and in those areas the custom of selling hair continues."

Ito said a proper hairpiece has far-reaching results in many cases, often inspiring confidence in the wearer.

"We are just as happy as our clients when they acquire self confidence to propose marriage and hear it was successful," he said.

He added that all employees of his company who need a hairpiece use them.

Baylor boils by Tech

WACO, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Mickey Elam passed 22 yards for a touchdown to exciting sophomore Dennis Gentry and rushed for over 100 yards Saturday, lifting the Baylor Bears to a come-from-behind 27-17 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Tech.

With temperatures reaching 102 degrees on the artificial floor of Baylor Stadium, the Bears overcame a 10-0 deficit on parents day to earn their second SWC victory against no losses and tying them with Southern Methodist in the league standings.

A blocked punt by Max McGeary which Vic Vines recovered in the end zone to a touchdown tied the game 10-all in the second quarter and Elam took over with his determined runs off the Baylor option.

After Robert Bledsoe's 38-yard field goal put the Bears ahead 13-10 in the second quarter, Elam lofted a 22-yard scoring toss to Gentry for a 20-10 Baylor halftime lead.

Gentry, who had only carried the ball 15 times all year, scored on a nine-yard run in the third quarter for what proved to be the game clincher.

Tech quarterback Ron Reeves, who suffered from an erratic, took the Red Raiders on a long fourth-quarter drive highlighted by James Hadnot's 45-yard run to score himself on a one-yard keeper.

Tech is now 0-1 in SWC play and 1-2-1 for the year. Baylor, which lost 45-0 to Alabama last week, is 3-1 overall.

The Red Raiders jumped to a 10-0 first quarter lead on an 11-yard touchdown pass from Reeves to Howie Lewis and 39-yard field goal by Bill Adams. Baylor countered with a 40-yard field goal by Bledsoe before Vines made his blocked punt recovery.

Elam rushed 15 times for 109 yards and it was his best day ever running as a Baylor quarterback. Gentry tore off 68 yards in 12 carries.

The Baylor defense led by end Andrew Melontree and middle linebacker Mike Singletary sacked Reeves six times trying to pass.

Fullback James Hadnot, the fourth leading rusher in the country, thundered 127 yards in 17 carries.

Baylor received a first half jolt when fullback Frank Pollard suffered an apparent broken jaw.

Pollard fumbled Baylor's first play from scrimmage and defense back Tate Randle recovered on the Baylor 26 and the Red Raiders cashed the gift for a touchdown as Reeves passed 15 yards to Kevin Colby to set up the touchdown pass to Lewis.

The blocked punt for McGeary was the fifth of his career. He has nine blocked kicks in his collegiate career.

Texas tames Tigers, 21-0

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — John Goodson kicked four field goals and the quick, swarming Texas defense dominated Missouri's offense Saturday, leading the fourth-ranked Longhorns to a 21-0 victory over the previously unbeaten and fifth-ranked Tigers.

A record crowd of 75,136 watched Goodson, a 200-pound sophomore, tie a Texas record with field goals of 23, 50, 35 and 25 yards.

The Longhorns, 2-0, took an 8-0 lead in the first quarter on two Goodson field goals and a safety. Texas' first four scores followed Missouri turnovers or mistakes as the Tigers were unable to overcome miserable field position at the game's outset.

Texas quarterback Donnie Little was shaken up in the first quarter and left the game briefly, but returned to pass for 122 yards. A.J. (Jam) Jones carried 27 times for the Longhorns for 133 yards and one touchdown, the first back to go over 100 against the Tigers this year.

Little's 39-yard pass to Les Koenning and Little's 21-yard quarterback keeper gave the Longhorns a first and goal from the 10 in the final minute of the first half. Three straight stabs into the middle of the Missouri defense by Jones resulted in Texas' only touchdown and sent the Longhorns into intermission with an 18-0 advantage.

Missouri mounted only one brief threat in the second half, when Bradley connected with Gerry Ellis on a 46-yard screen pass to the Texas 32. But three plays later, Kenneth Sims charged in and sacked Bradley for a 12-yard loss to take the Tigers out of field goal range.

A 14-yard run by Leroy King and Little's 25-yard gallop in the fourth period set up Goodson's fourth field goal, tying the record set last year by Russell Erxleben.

Missouri, 3-1, launched its first four drives from its own 13, 20, 13 and 5 yard lines and was stopped cold each time.

Texas, after a 27-yard Jeff Brockhaus punt, took over on the Missouri 34 and quickly set up Goodson's 23-yarder on its first possession.

Vance Bedford intercepted a Phil Bradley pass moments later and put Texas on the Tiger 32. The defense held and Goodson was called upon to boot a 50-yarder which gave the Longhorns a 6-0 lead with 7:46 remaining in the first quarter.

Steve Sly fumbled the ensuing kickoff off but Ron Fellows fell on the ball at the 5. Three plays later Brockhaus stood deep in his end zone and punted into the chest of hard-charging Richard Slaydon, the ball bouncing out of the end zone, and the safety put the Longhorns in front, 8-0.

The Texas defense was so dominant Missouri ran only 28 plays in the first half and 18 in the second.

In the second quarter, linebacker Doug Shankle knocked Bradley loose from the ball and Texas took possession on the Tiger 39, setting up a 35-yard Goodson field goal.

Texas quarterback Donnie Little was shaken up in the first quarter and left the game briefly, but returned to pass for 122 yards. A.J. (Jam) Jones carried 27 times for the Longhorns for 133 yards and one touchdown, the first back to go over 100 against the Tigers this year.

Green Wave washes Mania

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane tailback Marvin Christian burst 19 yards up the middle with 1:22 left to give Tulane a 24-17 victory over 19th ranked Southern Methodist University in an inter-sectional college football game Saturday night.

Christian also scored in the first half on a 14-yard run.

He carried 17 times for 108 yards, including the winning touchdown, which came after SMU had rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit to tie the score at 17-all.

Tulane appeared to be going in for the clinching touchdown early in the fourth quarter, but an interception and a 45-yard runback by linebacker Eric Ferguson, put SMU in position for the tying score.

With the ball on the SMU nine-yard line, Tulane quarterback Roch Hontas hit freshman fullback Reggie Reginelli in the flat and the ball popped up in the air.

Ferguson grabbed it and set off down the right sideline, rumbling to the Tulane 47. From there, it took SMU eight plays to move the ball to the Tulane six-yard line.

The ninth play in the drive was a six-yard pass from quarterback Jim Bob Taylor to tight end Mark Gann. Bad snaps from center cost Tulane

USC escapes Bayou

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Paul McDonald tossed an 8-yard touchdown pass to Kevin Williams with 32 seconds left Saturday night to end a 79-yard march that lifted No. 1-ranked Southern California to a pulsating 17-12 football victory over Louisiana State.

The Trojans trailed 12-3 after three quarters, but All-America tailback Charles White, who carried 31 times for 185 yards, started the comeback with a 4-yard touchdown plunge with 9:54 remaining.

It was a bitter defeat for LSU, which had won its first two games, and 78,322 fans, second largest crowd in Tiger Stadium history, who screamed themselves into a frenzy as their team gave Southern Cal all it could handle until the fateful final period.

The Tigers, heroic in defeat, built a 12-3 lead on a 13-yard scoring pass from Steve Ensminger to Leroid Jones and field goals of 32 and 28 yards by Don Barthel after Southern Cal went ahead 3-0 on Eric Hipp's 32-yard field goal at 10:02 of the opening period.

LSU, ranked 20th in the nation, saw its momentum start to fade when Southern Cal got the ball at its own 43 with 12:23 remaining. McDonald fired an 18-yard pass to Williams to start the Trojans' first touchdown drive, and five plays later, White rammed across from 4 yards out. Hipp's conversion made it 12-10.

The Trojans fumbled the ball away with 5:52 to go but got it back at their 21 with 4:16 left.

McDonald passed 14 yards to Vic Rakhshani, 15 yards to Dan Garcia and 17 yards to Hoby Brenner as Southern Cal, aided by a face mask penalty, drove to the LSU 10.

White gained 2 yards and McDonald hit Williams in the left flat one play later for the winning TD.

It was USC's fourth victory of the season and enabled the Trojans to keep a share of the nation's longest winning streak with Alabama at 12 games. White, whose 185-yard effort moved him into eighth place on the all-time NCAA rushing chart with 4,172 yards, gave LSU a taste of things to come after Raymond Butler returned the second-half kickoff 20 yards to the Trojans' 25.

White carried five consecutive times to the LSU 36 but the drive eventually stalled when Hipp, who missed a 26-yard field goal attempt on the final play of the first half, failed on a 32-yarder.

LSU led 9-3 at that point and David Woodley, the Tigers' starting quarterback, directed a drive that ended with Barthel's second field goal at 11:27 of the third quarter for a 12-3 LSU lead.

It was all Southern Cal after that as the Trojans scored the first touchdowns against LSU this season.

UT-Arlington defeats TCU as Dewalt sparkles

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Roy Dewalt rushed for 122 yards and two touchdowns, setting up one of the scores with a 58-yard bomb, as Texas-Arlington defeated Texas Christian 21-14 Saturday night.

After a scoreless first quarter, Dewalt led the Mavericks 81 yards in 12 plays, sending halfback Kent Sharp the final five yards.

Four plays later, UT-Arlington got the ball at its 41 after a punt and Dewalt threw a pass that Scott Burt caught at the TCU 5-yard-line. He fell at the 1-yard-line after the lunging catch and Dewalt carried it over on the next play for a 14-0 halftime lead.

Dewalt scored from 15 yards in the third quarter, but quarterback Kevin Haney came off the bench to lead Texas Christian to two touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Haney capped a 74-yard, 11-play drive with his five yard touchdown run and then fired a 24-yard touchdown pass to Bobby Stewart. Craig Richardson's 37-yard punt return set up the Horned Frogs final score.

Texas-Arlington is now 3-1 and TCU is 0-3.

The conversion attempt failed because of a poor snap but Barthel kicked a 32-yard field goal with 2:36 left in the half to offset Hipp's 32-yarder in the opening period.

The setback was especially bitter for LSU's defense, which held the mighty Trojans, who had piled up 111 points in their first three games, to a lone field goal for three periods, intercepted a pass and recovered two fumbles.

Ensminger, a senior and a hometown boy, took over for Woodley with LSU trailing 3-0 late in the first period and immediately led the fired-up Tigers on a 60-yard drive. He completed 15-yard passes to Carlos Carson and Tracy Porter and Jude Hernandez ripped up the middle for 24 yards before Ensminger hit Jones in the end zone at 2:22 of the second quarter for a 6-3 lead.

Sims scores 3 TDs in rout of Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Oklahoma's Billy Sims scored three first-quarter touchdowns and set up a fourth with a picture-perfect 40-yard run to start the third-ranked Sooners on a 63-21 rout of hapless Rice Saturday night.

Oklahoma, 3-0, scored on six of its eight first-half possessions to take a 42-0 lead at intermission. Quarterback J.C. Watts added two Sooner touchdowns on runs of 4 and 1 yard. Backup quarterback Kelly Phelps ran 14 yards for another touchdown with 18 seconds to play in the half, with most of the OU starters sitting on the bench.

Rice, 1-3, had only one chance to get into the ballgame early in the second quarter when Earl Cooper took a pitchout and ran 50 yards to the Sooner 8, with the Owls trailing 21-0. But Rice quarterback Randy Hertel threw a desperation pass that was intercepted by Richard Turner and returned 16 yards to the OU 27.

The OU offensive parade, which included 12 Sooner ball carriers, continued in the third quarter with touchdowns runs of 5 yards by Jay McKim and 1 yard by Chet Winters. Rice averted a shutout with 12:19 to play when Hertel handed off to Cooper at the Sooner 1. Cooper fumbled the ball backward, Hertel scooped it up and stumbled into the end zone for the touchdown.

Tom Watson takes lead in World Series of Golf

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson, the outstanding player in the game for the last three years, fired a solid, no-bogey, 5-under-par 65 and took the lead Saturday in the rain-delayed second round of the World Series of Golf.

Watson, who has acquired a record $447,636 and five titles already this season, took command of the chase for a $100,000 first prize with a 36-hole total of 133, seven shots under par on the rain-soaked, 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course.

Nancy Melton makes it look easy

DALLAS (AP) — Nancy Lopez Melton made it look easy Saturday, strolling around the Bent Tree Country Club course in just 67 shots to take a four-stroke lead with a score of 204 after the third round of the $150,000 Dallas Open. Sandra Post, with a 69, was second at 209 and Donna Caponi Young stood third at 210.

Country Club course. "The greens are so soft, and putting so true, you can't help but shoot a good score."

Lon Hinkle, one of the longest hitters on the PGA Tour, moved into second place at 134, a single stroke back. Hinkle birdied five of his first six holes but had to resort to some luck — including skipping one off the surface of the pond to the green on the 16th — to salvage his round of 67.

Melton said after Saturday's round, which included an eagle, three birdies and no bogeys. "I was pretty consistent all day."

Melton's 67 Saturday, combined with a 71-66 the first two rounds, gives her a three-round total of 204, one shot away from the best 54-hole score on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour this year.

Hogs ride freshman's arm to 33-8 triumph

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Freshman quarterback Tom Jones, playing with poise beyond his years in his first college start, guided 13th-ranked Arkansas to a 33-8 victory over Tulsa on Saturday. Jones threw a 38-yard scoring pass to Bobby Duckworth on the Razorback's fourth play of the game and then took Arkansas to touchdowns on two of its next three possessions. Jones also scored Arkansas' fourth touchdown that gave the Razorbacks a 33-0 lead late in the third quarter.

Arkansas, which upped its record to 3-0, led 21-0 with less than two minutes deep in the second period before a stadium record crowd of 45,742.

Jones, younger brother of Baltimore Colt quarterback Bert Jones, got the starting assignment because senior quarterback Kevin Scanlon was bothered by a back bruise. Jones wound up completing 7 of 12 passes for 125 yards.

Houston buries Buffs

HOUSTON (AP) — Backup full-back David Barrett scored three second-quarter touchdowns, including a 48-yard run on his first carry, to ignite eighth-ranked Houston to a 49-10 victory over outmanned West Texas State Saturday.

The Cougars, 3-0, scored on four of their six first half possessions, but didn't get cranked up until Barrett entered the game to start the second quarter. On his first carry, Barrett dashed 48 yards for a touchdown and later scored on runs of 6 and 1 yards as the Cougars took a 28-3 halftime lead.

Houston jumped to a 7-0 lead on its first possession when Terald Clark ran 11 yards.

Running back John Newhouse fumbled into the West Texas end zone on Houston's next possession and the Buffaloes, 1-4, drove back to a 46-yard field goal by Press Theriot.

Tide, Vols, Wolfpack, Heels romp

Alabama 66, Vanderbilt 3—Senior quarterback Steadman Shealy and junior running back Joe Jones scored two touchdowns apiece in leading No. 2-ranked Alabama to a 66-3 Southeastern Conference college football victory Saturday over Vanderbilt. Shealy's first touchdown of the game came on Alabama's third offensive play when he kept the ball on an option and raced 64 yards through a paper-thin Commodore defense. Alan McElroy converted.

Later in the first quarter, Alabama's Bobby Scott recovered a fumble by Vanderbilt tight end Flavious Smith. Forty-two seconds later, Major Ogilvie ran it in from the 8 on a sweep around left end. McElroy again kicked the conversion.

Vanderbilt scored its only points of the game early in the second period when sophomore kicker Mike Woodard capped a six-play, 61-yard drive with a 47-yard field goal.

North Carolina 41, Army 3—Tailback Amos Lawrence gained 209 yards and scored two touchdowns as unbeaten North Carolina won its third game, walloping Army 41-3 Saturday as the Cadets suffered their first defeat under new Coach Lou Saban. North Carolina broke open the game with a pair of lightning offensive drives bracketed around the halftime intermission. The Tar Heels scored with 10 seconds remaining in the first half for a 20-3 lead and converted their first possession of the second half into a score which put the game out of reach.

Tennessee 35, Auburn 17—Gary Moore returned the opening kickoff for a 98-yard touchdown and broke two tackles to score again in the second quarter, leading Tennessee to a 35-17 football victory over Auburn Saturday. The game ended Auburn's three-year winning streak against the Volunteers in the Southeastern Conference rivalry and represented a plateau for Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors' three-year rebuilding program. The previously unheralded Moore took Jorge Portela's opening kick and, picking up a host of blockers along the way, sprinted 98 yards along the left sidelines, giving Tennessee a fast start. Quarterback Jimmy Streater scored on runs of 28 and six yards and connected on a nine-yard scoring pass to Reggie Harper.

NC State 17, Wake Forest 14—Nathan Ritter's 41-yard field goal with 5:13 remaining in the game short-circuited a fourth-period comeback by Wake Forest and gave unbeaten North Carolina State a 17-14 victory Saturday and undisputed possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Wake Forest quarterback Jay Venuto threw two touchdown passes and N.C. State quarterback Scott Smith ran for two scores earlier, setting the stage for Ritter's game-winning kick.

The Wolfpack, 4-0 overall and 2-0 in the conference, averted a possible defeat when linebacker Joe Hannah sacked Venuto, and Mike Nall fell on the fumble at the Wolfpack 47 with 7:57 left in the game.

SPORTS SCRATCHPAD Moon wins European women's golf crown

Susan Moon shot a 68-292 to win the women's PGA European championship Saturday as Irene Koehler took a final round 75-294 to finish second. Manuel Orantes defeated Jose Luis Clerc 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 and Yannick Noah beat Jose Higueras 6-1, 3-6, 6-4 to gain the Madrid tennis finals.

ABC-TV will delay broadcast of its Monday night pro football game because President Carter will be addressing the nation at 8 p.m., joining the Packers-Patriots game in progress.

Adriano Panatta defeated Vitas Gerulaitis 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 and Bjorn Borg downed Harold Solomon 7-5, 6-1 to gain the European tennis finals in Madrid. John McEnroe defeated Tim Gullikson 6-4, 6-2 in a semifinal match of the San Francisco tournament Saturday.

ABC will televise Sunday's Pittsburgh-Chicago National League game between the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates to most areas of the country.

San Diego's Chargers signed kicker Roy Gerela, the Pittsburgh Steelers' all-time scorer, Saturday and placed ailing kicking Rolf Benirschke on the injured reserve list.

Ex-Rebel nabs 2 TDs as Huskers maul Lions

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Quarterback Tim Hager connected with tight end Junior Miller, former Midland Lee star, on two touchdown pass plays and Nebraska scored two others on the ground, all in the second quarter, as the Cornhuskers defeated Penn State 42-17 Saturday.

Nebraska trailed 14-0 at the end of the first quarter, the third consecutive game the Cornhuskers have faced such a deficit. But the Hager-Miller combination tied it up and Nebraska went ahead when wingback Kenny Brown, following a Penn State turnover, carried the ball in from 16 yards out on a reverse flow play for the go-ahead points.

Penn State's two-touchdown lead in the opening quarter came on a 19-yard pass and a 40-yard pass-run play. Penn State opened the scoring when Brad Scovill caught a pass from quarterback Dayle Tate a step out of the end zone with 8:23 left in the quarter. The Nittany Lions' second touchdown came on an interception by defensive halfback Tom Wise after Nebraska quarterback Hager passed to Miller.

Buckeye comeback nips UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Art Schlichter guided 14th ranked Ohio State 80 yards in the closing moments and climaxed the drive with a two-yard touchdown pass to tight end Paul Campbell with 46 seconds left as the Buckeyes rallied Saturday for a 17-13 victory over UCLA.

A crowd of 47,228 at the Coliseum and a national television audience watched the unbeaten Buckeyes march to the game winner after a missed 23-yard UCLA field goal attempt minutes earlier.

Schlichter, who completed 13 of 22 passes for 159 yards, hit all six of his aerial attempts in the winning drive. The key play was a 22-yard pass from Schlichter to Gary Williams which gave the Buckeyes a first down at the UCLA 3-yard line. The winning TD came two plays later.

The Bruins had taken a 13-10 lead with 11 minutes to play on a 39-yard

BYU whips UTEP; Kansas breezes by North Texas

BYU 31, UTEP 7—Senior quarterback Marc Wilson passed for 326 yards and two touchdowns to lead Brigham Young University to a 31-7 homecoming victory over Texas-El Paso Saturday.

UTEP took its only lead of the game at 7-3 with 5:55 left in the first quarter on a 24-yard pass from quarterback Dave Stone to Larry Smith. The scoring drive was set up on a fumble recovery by UTEP's Don Rawls.

The Cougars got touchdowns on runs of one yard by Eric Lane and 10 yards by Homer Jones. Wilson passed 25 yards to Scott Phillips and 10 yards to Kent Tingley for Brigham Young's other two scores.

Kansas 37, North Texas 18—Pass-minded Kansas, which had not moved the ball at all on the ground in season opening losses at Pittsburgh and Michigan, had its best rushing day in two years to defeat North Texas State 37-18 Saturday.

The Jayhawks ground out 300 yards, most of it in second half drives of 65, 61, 67 and 89 yards that produced three touchdowns and a field goal.

Kansas had not exceeded 200 yards since beating Kansas State 29-21 in 1977, and had netted only eight yards on the ground in its first two games.

Kansas led only 13-12 in the third period when it suddenly got the big play it needed to shake the Mean Green. Kevin Clinton hit David Verser on a 37-yard pass to the North Texas State 37.

Kansas then pounded away until freshman Wayne Capers smashed into the end zone from the 3 on the sixth play, capping a 65-yard march and making it 20-12.

Cubs keep Expo hopes alive with win in 13th

By The Associated Press

The prospect of a playoff to decide the National League East race loomed larger Saturday after the second-place Montreal Expos won and the first-place Pittsburgh Pirates lost — leaving the teams one game apart entering the final scheduled day of the regular season.

The Expos beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 on a ninth-inning RBI single by pinch-hitter Dave Cash. Then the Chicago Cubs bested the Pirates 7-6 in 13 innings when Willie Stargell's throwing error allowed Mick Kelleher to score the winning run.

Unless the Pirates win and the Expos lose in single games Sunday, Montreal will play a makeup doubleheader in Atlanta on Monday. If the race isn't decided after the twinnish, the Expos and Pirates would meet for a one-game playoff at Montreal on Tuesday with the start of the NL playoffs being pushed back to Wednesday.

The Expos nursed a 2-1 lead into the Philadelphia ninth inning, but the Phillies tied it when pinch-hitter Greg Gross walked, took second on Pete Rose's infield hit and scored on the 1,500th hit of catcher Tim McCarver's career.

Midland hosts Texas Seniors golf tournament

Some 250 golfers will be in Midland this week for the 43rd annual Texas State Seniors championship tournament Monday through Friday at Midland Country Club, headed by Bill Trombley, Dallas, who won the championship in 1977 and 1978.

Trombley will be exempt from Monday's championship qualifying round in which the top 55-and-over golfers in the state will vie for 31 championship flight berths. Play will begin with a shotgun start at 8:30 a.m. An afternoon Fun Run will give other golfers an opportunity to "scout" the MCC layout before match play begins in the rounds below the title flight Tuesday.

Shotgun starts are scheduled at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday with finals in all flights scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m. Friday.

Contestants from throughout the state will register from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today followed by a Texas Golf Association's annual meeting at 4 p.m. Monday's activity will be capped by the 7:30 p.m. buffet dinner at the MCC.

Challenging Trombley for his title will be a K.K. Compton, Lieutenant General, retired, from Marble Falls, and John Kline, major-general, retired, from Houston. Compton was the USGA Men's Senior Amateur champion last year and Kline was the runner-up in the same event.

Winless Bengals catch Dallas at worst time

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The winless Cincinnati Bengals came to Texas Stadium Sunday at the worst possible time for an upset: The Dallas Cowboys have undergone an intense week of soul-searching.

As longtime Cowboy watchers can tell you, the two-time Super Bowl champions play their best after they've hit the bottom which they did Monday night in a 26-7 loss to Cleveland.

"I can't say that was the Dallas Cowboys," said Bengals Coach Homer Rice. "I would rather Dallas had played good."

Dallas was 6-4 last season, then won eight straight games to get into the National Football League playoffs. The Cowboys are 3-1 this year but quarterback Roger Staubach has saved three games with fourth-quarter heroics.

The Cowboys are 10-point favorites before a soldout house of 65,000 for the 3 p.m. kickoff with the Bengals.

Oilers tackle Browns

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, who have victimized rookie quarterbacks with 14 sacks the past two weeks, may have a more elusive target Sunday when the Oilers host unbeaten Cleveland and veteran quarterback Brian Sipe in the Astro-dome.

It's a statistic Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano likely has mentioned to assure that the Browns don't overlook the Oilers to Cleveland's Oct. 7 showdown against Pittsburgh.

The Oilers decked Kansas City's Steve Fuller seven times two weeks ago and last week threw off to another fast start as the No. 4 passer in the American Football Conference, has been tagged only six times this season for 46 yards in losses.

Ferguson sparks Irish to win over Spartans

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Vagas Ferguson bolted for touchdowns runs of 24 and 48 yards and gained 167 yards in 28 carries Saturday to lead 15th-ranked Notre Dame to a 27-3 victory over seventh-ranked and previously undefeated Michigan State. The loss ended a 10-game winning streak for the Spartans, whose last defeat was to Notre Dame a year ago.

Michigan State's vaunted passing game and chances went out with quarterback Bert Vaughn, who suffered a back injury and left the game in the first quarter.

The triumph was the second in three starts for the Irish, while Michigan State suffered its first loss after three straight victories.

Ferguson capped an 87-yard drive in the third quarter with his 24-yard touchdown run and then on a fourth-and-one situation, the Irish opted to go for it. Ferguson swept around the right end then cut up the middle for his 48-yard touchdown run.

Purple beats Bonham

Midland Freshman Purple was the only Tall City 9th grade team to post a victory and that came Thursday when they defeated Odessa Bonham, 21-12 at the Permian High practice field. Also on Thursday, Odessa Crockett while Midland Lee Maroon, 27-14.

In Saturday's 9th grade action, Odessa Nimitz won its third straight shutout, 21-0 over Midland Gold while Odessa Hood blasted Midland Lee White, 35-14; Odessa Bowie captured an 8-6 win over Odessa Ector to round out 9th grade games.

In the Midland City 8th Grade B Conference, San Jacinto posted a 2-0 victory over Midland Christian.

San Jacinto Green, Goddard Red and Alamo Grey all captured wins Saturday in 7th grade games. Green posted a 22-6 win over Alamo Scarlet; Red a 28-0 triumph over SJ White and Grey won, 2-0 over Goddard White.

He wanted to fly but it's hard without engines

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Randy Bortree, who lives south of Midland, always wanted to fly.

So he bought himself an airplane that couldn't.

The broken craft just sits there looking like a broken classic. The plane cannot taxi, lift-off, yaw, pitch, roll or crash. The engines are gone, and the tail, though intact, is detached from the aircraft just behind the cockpit.

"I've always wanted an airplane," said Bortree, who still has intentions of piloting a flying machine.

HIS INTEREST in flying has peaked since he gave up "flying low" on those two-wheel convertibles called motorcycles.

He was almost "wiped out" last May 17, surviving his first crack-up in 17 years of riding motorcycles.

"I never even got a scratch (until then)," said Bortree, who has "logged" thousand of hours on the 50 or so motorcycles he has owned through the years.

"I have put aside the motorcycle and definitely am going to fly where it's safe."

The motorcycle he crashed was a 1966 BMW 600cc.

"I've always wanted one (BMW) all my life..." he said, "and I got one and had it for a month and got 'wiped out.'"

HE FOUND a moral there.

"I learned a good lesson (not to ride motorcycles), and walked away from it." Afterwards, he sold his classic 1941 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, which was equipped with a side car.

Since his crash, Bortree, 33, pretty well has firmed up an opinion on the survival odds of cycling and flying.

"On a motorcycle, you can do everything right — never 'mess up' — and it (or something) will turn on you.

"In an airplane, if you 'mess up,' it's because you did something wrong."

BORTREE, a motorboat mechanic, was injured in May when a pickup truck, without warning, turned into his lane of traffic on a service road, he recalled. He was hospitalized and had to drop out of work, but said he soon expects to return to the job.

Slightly more than two months after the crash, Bortree and a pal, Richard Knight, bought their first airplane: a 1956 CamAir Model 480.

The low-wing plane is a twin-engine conversion

Arafat would talk with U.S.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestine guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat told a group of black Americans Saturday he would accept an invitation to meet U.S. officials about peace in the Middle East.

Arafat, relaxed and smiling, talked with the Americans in his living room for two hours Saturday night, insisting over the objections of his aides that reporters sit in on his rare English-language session with the 17-member delegation headed by the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

One member of Jackson's group, referring to America's pledge to Israel not to talk with the PLO, asked Arafat if he were interested in talks with the U.S. government.

"Please, if you find a way, I will accept," said Arafat, dressed in the familiar khaki and black-and-white kaffiyeh head-dress. "I am not an idiot to neglect this superpower."

of a single-engine North American (later, Ryan) Navion.

"It's a single-engine airframe with twin-engine mounts," said Bortree, "and I imagine in its day it was pretty good little airplane." The wings once were fitted with fuel-tip tanks.

The old Navion was outfitted with two engines by Aviation Research Development Manufacturing Co. at Galveston.

"I'd love to fly this thing one time," Bortree mused of the lame aircraft, which belly-landed in a cotton field some time ago. The engines have since been removed, but Bortree has the two bent propeller blades, new flaps and other parts in his backyard south of Midland, just off the Rankin Highway.

THE REST of the aircraft reposes out front and is readily within view from the highway. The aircraft bears Federal Aviation Administration registration number N239.

Bortree and Knight found the aircraft in a fellow's back yard in Odessa. They hauled the plane's tail section in a pickup truck and carried the rest of the craft over on a flatbed trailer.

Their intent was to make the plane flyable once again.

"We bought it with the idea we were going to fix it," said Bortree. But after they got to considering the complexities of aerodynamics and restoration, they decided a wrecked airplane was nothing to tinker with.

"We didn't even try to fix it. It was too involved for us," Bortree said. "I don't want to build an airplane. I just want to fly one."

TO DATE, Bortree has logged two hours of flying time; he has just begun. That was up in Pennsylvania before he and his family moved to Midland two years ago.

Bortree's idea is to trade the restorable but "broken lady" of an airplane for an old but airworthy taildragger with rag wings and the whole bit.

"Oh, flying's my thing...I've always wanted to fly."

Ex-motorcyclist Randy Bortree of Midland has given up on the idea of restoring this Twin Navion aircraft, but he's banking on a flying buff somewhere taking it away and

Lives of refugees much like puzzles with missing pieces

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

For two Cambodian families who have been transplanted in Midland, life is like a jigsaw puzzle ... with missing pieces that may never be found.

Those missing "pieces" are children who were left behind in Southeast Asia. Whereabouts of the two — a boy in one family and a girl from the other — are unknown.

Tang Chung Eng, who celebrated her 32nd birthday last week, and three of her children survived the long trek from central Cambodia through the jungle into Thailand.

But they were trucked back to the Cambodian border and it was there she lost her 10-year-old son, Ear Kim Ho.

Ta Thoun and his family lived in Cambodia near the Thailand border. They too escaped into the neighboring country to flee communist soldiers.

For a while they lived in a refugee camp. But when the Thailand government kicked all the Cambodian refugees out of the country on June 12, Ta Thoun and his family stayed in the jungle near the Laos-Cambodia-Thailand border.

TWO DAUGHTERS were turned over to farmers for safekeeping. When the family was taken to a refugee camp in Bangkok one daughter was returned. There has been no word about the 17-year-old daughter, La Tan.

Mrs. Douglas Peterson, who heads the Midland Resettlement Program, is working to locate the two youngsters. But there are snags — neither family knows precisely where the children might be.

When Cambodia fell in 1975 to the communists, Tang lived in Phnom Penh with her husband and six children. She was a seamstress; her husband had a meat stand.

The soldiers came and took the family — along with others — into central Cambodia. Her youngest daughter, Miav, was only 3 days old.

"She'll never survive," her friends said of the infant.

"Yes, she will," Tang replied. "She has nine lives." The name Miav is the equivalent of the English word "meow."

THE TRANSPORTED families had to work the land and were rationed one tablespoon of rice for lunch, another for supper.

In 1978, the father died.

"He was so hungry," said Tang, speaking through an interpreter. "He went to communists and asked for potato. He steal and keep asking. They get mad at him. One day when son and husband in jungle looking for potatoes (which grow wild in the jungles), soldiers catch them. They tie him up and beat him to death."

The son, Kim Ho, went back and told Tang what had happened. "When I hear, I want to see body, but afraid. So I leave it there (in the jungle)."

Later, three of her daughters died of starvation and sickness while in that village.

When it came to punishment from the soldiers, no one was spared.

Short in height, her hair cropped, Tang acts out one episode in which she was caught with some extra rice.

DROPPING TO HER knees and speaking rapidly to the translator, Tang picks up a square of cloth and ties it around her head like a blindfold.

The soldiers, she says, tied her to the back of a horse which dragged her over the ground to a pit grave.

Waving her arms about her head, Tang describes how the soldiers were going to hit her.

"She shaking all over; she knows she's going to die," relates the translator as he watches Tang act out the scene. "She just fall into pit. Soldiers see her last piece of gold in a pocket. They take it and pretend they killed her."

On April 8, Tang escaped into the jungle with her three children. They arrived in a Thailand refugee camp on May 10. But the soldiers packed all the refugees into trucks on June 12 for the trip back to the Cambodian border.

When Tang and her children were told to get out (of the truck), Kim Ho refused.

"He say he die if he go back to Cambodia. He die if he stay (in Thailand). He prefer to stay in one place," Tang says in a solemn tone.

One of the Thailand soldiers said he would take Kim Ho back to Thailand. A few days later, Tang said, the soldier told her his commander was upset about the child. To settle the matter, the soldier gave Kim Ho to his commander.

TANG VOICES TWO ideas as to what may have happened to Kim Ho. "Maybe the commander like my son and want to adopt him. Maybe they shot him to death."

"Adopt," by the refugees' definition, means to care for — not a legal process as in the U.S.

Tang and the two girls — Miav and 11-year-old Ear Kuy Huong — lived in the jungle near the Thailand border until the Red Cross found them and took them back to a refugee camp. By this time Miav was 4 and weighed only 18 pounds.

The family was processed and shipped to Midland.

The Ta Thoun family also lived in the jungle several days before being picked up by the Red Cross and sent to Midland in early August.

That family consists of Ta Thoun, the father; Ying Ong, his wife; Cheng Pan Thoun, his 19-year-old son; Kin On Thoun, 16-year-old daughter; Yu Phin Thoun, 6-year-old daughter; Che Mouy, his mother-in-law; Tan Mong, his wife's brother, and Khit Ong, a niece.

Living near the Thailand border, they escaped the next day into the neighboring country, arriving on May 20. Then, on June 9, they were taken by truck back to the Cambodian border.

Ta Thoun and his family, along with other refugees, camped near a Buddhist temple at a spot called Prevehere, in the Cambodian jungle.

Every day the men would go out looking for food — wild potatoes, roots and cicadas.

ALTHOUGH WARNED not to help the Cambodians, Thailand farmers would sometimes give them food when they came across refugees, Ta Thoun said.

It was in this manner that Ta Thoun met a farmer one day who said he would take La Tan for safekeeping. Kin On was given to another farmer. Both promised to send the girls to a refugee camp once the family got there.

"Everyone who went back (to the border) thought they were going to die. We left girls with farmer and thought they would have a chance to live," Ta Thoun explained.

"Farmer not try to do anything bad. He has a family. They live in the country and want to help the people (refugees) by giving food," Ta Thoun reported through the interpreter.

Kin On was taken to Bangkok shortly after the Red Cross picked up the refugees in Prevehere.

But word of La Tan has never come. The stumbling block is that Ta Thoun never asked the farmer his name.

Since the Thailand government forbids its people from helping the refugees, Ta Thoun reasoned the farmer may be afraid to let anyone know he has the girl.

Adding to the missing pieces are Che Mouy's husband and a son who are stuck in Bangkok. Even though the family knows where the two are,

Mrs. Peterson theorized the government may not let them out easily.

The husband, she explained, is from Thailand and was in a Bangkok hospital when Cambodia fell to the Communists.

THE OLDER MAN and his son, then, aren't considered refugees.

Both families are adjusting to the American way of life. The adults have jobs and the children go to public school.

But there still is something missing.

Ying Ong, speaking softly, said she thinks about La Tan every day. "Day after day I pray for her and that someday my daughter come to live with me."

Tang Chung Eng said she is happy with her home and job in Midland. But there are many times when she thinks about her son, Kim Ho.

"When I am eating or sleeping I think about him. When I eat something good, like ice cream, I wish he could taste it. He always in my prayers," she said quietly.

Kim Ho and La Tan: The missing pieces of two families.

Point by point, Tang Chung Eng, 32, reviews the takeover of the Cambodian government by Communists in 1975. (Staff Photos by Mike Kardos)

Waving arms through the air to describe treatment by the Communist soldiers, Midlander Tang Chung Eng tells of life in Cambodia and escape into Thailand. She once lived a quiet life in Phnom Penh with her husband and six children. Today, her family is reduced to 4-year-old Ear Miav Huong and 11-year-old Ear Kuy Huong. Ear Kim Ho, 10, a son, was left behind in Thailand.

Balloon continues to drift far south of projected course

SCOTT CITY, Kan. (AP) — A helium balloon with four adventurers bound for the Atlantic Ocean floated on the vagaries of the wind over the rolling prairies of western Kansas Saturday, far south of its projected course.

The nonstop flight drifted in an east-southeasterly direction after crossing the Colorado state line shortly after daybreak.

"The balloon was reported about 12 miles south of Scott City, in western Kansas, shortly after 9 a.m.," said Bob Rice of the Weather Service Corp. of Bedford, Mass.

"We don't expect too much movement in any direction Saturday," Rice explained. He said the balloon's drift was about 12 to 13 knots an hour.

Rice said the balloon was brought down to the lower altitude to await weather developments and a change in the wind direction. He said the balloon would rise and fall with the temperature.

Weather Service Corp. has been providing weather information and ground support for the 100-foot-tall DaVinci Trans-America crew, which hopes to be the first to fly in a balloon nonstop across North America.

The balloonists are using only a radio-telephone to keep in contact, Rice said, and at lower altitudes the information received is only in patches because at times the balloon is out of range.

A private plane pilot reported sighting the balloon about 10 miles northeast of Leoti, Kan., at 6,000 feet earlier Saturday.

Sunds continued to carry the big bag through southeastern Colorado on the unwanted southeasterly course Friday.

The crew gradually ascended to about 13,000 feet and intended to settle in for the night, but winds persisted in pushing them to the south-southeast.

Committees to study cities' ills

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton says legislators realize problems facing Texas cities "will become more acute" during the 1980s, and two committees will work in the next year on public policies to deal with those problems.

A nine-member Select Committee on Urban Issues has been formed, with the members selected from metropolitan House districts, Clayton said in his recent newsletter.

"The committee will concentrate its efforts in seeking to determine if there is an ample water supply, if environmental concerns are met, and if there is adequate recreational space set aside," Clayton said.

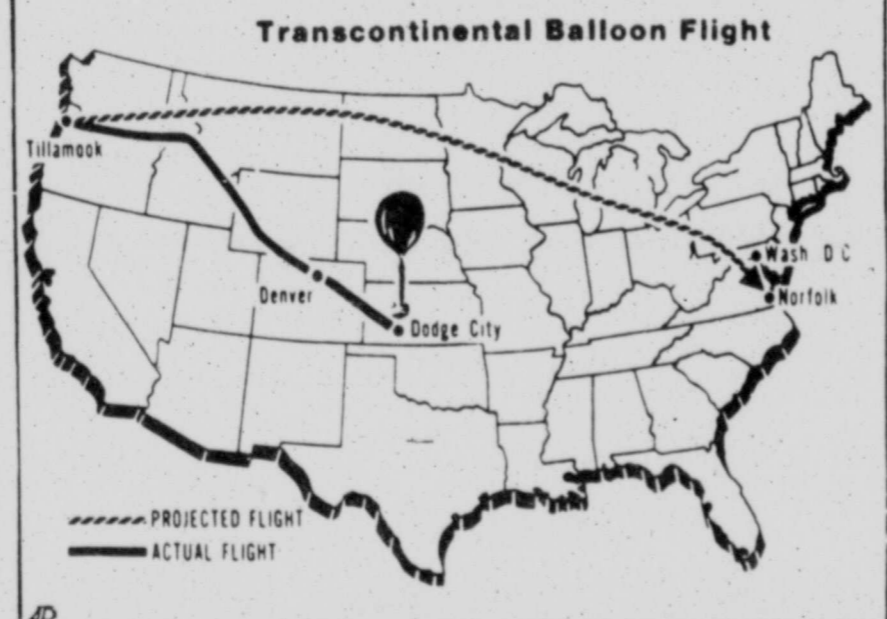

He said the study also will include "scrutinizing public schools from elementary through university level, vocational training, and continuing education with an eye toward future needs. Lawmakers need to know how population growth is affecting annexation of property into cities, and how property taxes, zoning, and related issues are affected."

A second committee — the Joint Committee on Urban Needs in the 1980s — "will deal with the economies of metro areas and attempt to resolve concerns such as revenue and expenditure levels," Clayton said.

This committee will be made up of six standing House committees.

Clayton said the committee "will pinpoint energy needs for our homes, businesses and manufacturing. Questions will be asked concerning health services available in cities; what transportation needs will be in the 1980s; the labor force; and how well residential houses are being built. Crime prevention will be a topic of concern and the emphasis will be on neighborhood efforts and a look at where our shortcomings are today."

"There are no cure-all studies that will provide instant answers," Clayton concluded. "They are a response of concerned legislators who want to identify problems and possible means through which legislation can offer relief to city dwellers."

“For $500 a year a woman can be well dressed if she wants to start with a really good, but restricted, wardrobe. It all depends upon what you have to build on. If it complements what you have, within a reasonable amount of time everything you touch in your closet will be of quality.”

Grace Jones purveys chic deep in the heart of Texas.

She is bringing her style and grace to the Tall City Oct. 16 for a fashion show and luncheon to benefit Midland's Palmer Drug Abuse Program.

The social period begins at 11:30 a.m., followed by the luncheon and style show.

PDAP is a treatment program in the field of drug and alcohol rehabilitation for teenagers and young people recently begun in the city.

Mrs. Jones operates a high-fashion outpost in Salado (pop. 400), the destination of many rich, well-dressed women. In fact, the village had had to build an airstrip so private planes could fly in.

The atmosphere at Midland Country Club will abound with 1979 fall and winter creations by such designers and manufacturers as Jean-Louis, Galanos, Geoffrey Beene, Trigere, Michael Vollbracht, Oscar de la Renta, Mary McFadden, Koo's Van den Akker, Bill Blass, Ron Amey, Sandor Witlin, Valentino, Joan Vass, Fiandoca, Bogner and Halston.

The doors to her shop, aptly called Grace Jones, were opened 18 years ago in a remodeled, 100-year-old bank building on the only cross street in the unincorporated town, some 147 miles from Dallas and 56 miles from Austin.

Couture generally is associated with sophistication, the money and awareness of metropolitan centers, but Grace Jones has proven that generalization wrong.

The unusual is the norm for Mrs. Jones, a native of Smithville, former Women's Air Force Service Pilot, former John Robert Powers model and bridge enthusiast.

"I've always thought that whatever I'm doing at the moment is the most exciting thing in the world," she said. For the last few years, the most exciting thing has been selling designs by top designers to a largely Texas, but even international clientele.

It seems that there is a good possibility that Grace Jones invented personal service. Her salon includes private dressing rooms, a staff of maids to run packages out to parked limousines, a pick-up service at the airstrip and the reportedly best-stocked bar this side of the Pecos.

Her customers come from neighboring Temple, Waco and Austin, from the Texas fashion centers of Dallas and Houston, from Los Angeles, New York and Mexico City, and from places along the way.

Among them is Mrs. Bing Crosby, Liz Carpenter, Jane Murchison and Jessica Cato, wife of the State Department's chief of protocol.

A Houston socialite, Mrs. Jeanne Sonfield, was quoted as saying, "I don't buy a thing except from Grace. She understands the look I want."

Mrs. Jones, who has a reputation for personally outfitting each customer, said, "I want my customers to be singled out as the best-dressed at any function."

Midland PDAP opened its doors just three short weeks ago and averages about 13 to 14 young people and parents each week, according to Michele Savage, a PDAP counselor.

The Palmer Drug Abuse Program was established in 1971 by a former heroin addict. The program is patterned roughly after the Alcoholics Anonymous plan.

The three trained counselors now at the center are former drug and alcohol abusers who have been helped through the Palmer method. They are Bob Savage, Mrs. Savage and Sarah Cross.

Two centers have been established here at the First United Methodist Church and the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. Mr. and Mrs. Savage are counselors at First Methodist, where the young people 17 to 25 years of age are being treated. Actually, Savage is executive director of West Texas Central, which includes Midland.

Mrs. Cross is located at Episcopal Church and this is where teens 13 to 17 are treated.

PDAP is in the process of securing a fourth counselor to serve with Mrs. Cross.

Treatment includes family counseling.

Reservations for the benefit will be taken through Friday, Oct. 12, and can be made with Mrs. Don Ewan, 694-2231.

Invitations have been mailed and anyone desiring to receive one can do so by contacting Mrs. Ewan.

Registration of bikes set

The school cluster, Henderson, Emerson and Pease, has been selected as the pilot schools to participate in a bicycle registration program.

The registration will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday at all three schools.

The program is being jointly sponsored by the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department and the Midland City Council of PTAs.

A form has been sent home to the parents explaining the program and they are asked to sign the form giving their permission and to send the drivers license number of one of the parents.

The license number will be electrically engraved somewhere on the bicycle by members of the Police Department.

Officer Steve Otto will be at Pease, while Officer Tommy Wilkins will be at Emerson and Sgt. Lalo Camarillo at Henderson.

The significance of using the drivers license number, said Otto, is simply to give the officer something to check with to determine who the bicycle belongs to, as in the case of a stolen automobile.

Once the number is engraved on the bicycle, an ID number will be kept on file at the principal's office of each school and at the Police Dept.

Although the program was mainly implemented for the students, the officers explained that no parent or adult who owns a bicycle and wants it engraved will be turned away.

Only the bicycles of the students who attend the pilot schools will be marked, however.

TESCO representative discusses advantages of AWARE group

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

"Aware is the key word," said Tiny Batts of Fort Worth, representative of Texas Electric Service Company, who was in Midland recently to meet with several of Midland's women community leaders on the possibility of forming an AWARE group.

AWARE (Alerting Women About Resources and Energy) is a Texas organization formed to present factual information on energy and energy sources to Texans and Americans in order to better educate women and the public on today's energy issues.

"As you well know, the availability of energy and natural resources is of vital concern to all of us," Ms. Batts addressed the group which met at the Midland Hilton.

"Women, in most instances, pay the household bills," she said. "They are, therefore, sometimes more aware of the energy problem and have a lot of concerns about the subject."

"We want to help women meet together, learn as much about the energy problem as possible, gather speakers, etc., all to get better informed. We also want you to pay close attention to the issues and make your legislators aware of how you feel."

As Texas chairman of AWARE, Ms. Batts discussed the objectives of the organization and the possible interest in forming a Midland group such as she has done in chapters throughout Texas. The event here was hosted by Sara St. Clair, customer representative for TESCO in Midland.

Other state officers of AWARE in addition to Ms. Batts are Sharon Potter of EBASCO Inc., vice chairman; Betty Watson of Dallas Power and Light, East Texas coordinator; Rose M. Kimist of Brown & Root Inc., South Texas coordinator; and Lucy Dubuis of TESCO, West Texas coordinator.

Ms. Batts explained that AWARE is a federation of sister organizations under the name NEW—Nuclear Energy Women—which exists throughout the U.S.

"The common goal of all AWARE members is an educational, realistic and factual portrayal of this country's energy and energy resources and their commercial availability," she said. "We believe that educated and informed decisions on crucial energy issues will secure a better future for each of us."

AWARE works primarily through slide presentations, lectures and roundtable discussions, taking the energy perspective to civic and garden clubs, professional groups, parent-teacher associations, sororities, fraternities and to the nucleus of the American family, the homemaker, Ms. Batts explained.

Following a slide presentation on "Women and Energy," a discussion was held by the 21 persons attending on what subjects a local AWARE group might focus.

Ms. Batts urged participation in the upcoming Energy Day Oct. 18 sponsored by AWARE in Texas. Rita Clements, wife of Governor Bill Clements, is chairman of the event.

In addition to her position as administrative assistant to the vice president of TESCO, Ms. Batts is also active in Fort Worth community projects. She is administrator of Leadership Fort Worth; past president, Fort Worth Symphony Association; chairman, Fort Worth Conservation Council; and board member of several major non-profit organizations. She was also named 1979 First Lady of Fort Worth by the Altrusa Club.

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

BERKELEY, Calif. — Alan Dundes, professor of folklore at UC Berkeley, has a roomful of jokes.

There are absent-minded professor jokes, good news-bad news, knock-knocks, windup dolls and shaggy dog stories, Martin and moron jokes, Little Audrey, Confucius say, elephant jokes, Tom Swifites, ethnic jokes and jokes from Afghanistan to Zambia.

He also has file cabinets spilling over with myths, tales, riddles, games, customs, pranks, graffiti, jatinialia, limericks, parodies, proverbs, puns, rites of passage, yells, blessings, dances, gestures and obscenities.

These are supernatural, cadaver and nose-picking stories, toasts, taunts, evil eyes, will-o'-the-wisp, witchcraft and weather stories.

"It is just endless," the 44-year-old professor said.

During the interview someone sneezed. Dundes whirled around to the opposite wall and opened a drawer full of sneezing stories.

"Dites. You know dites?" he asked. "Dites are definitions." He pulled an envelope full of dites from his files and recited definitions like:

"Snowing: An old lady shaking her pillows. Raining: God's tears. Thunder: God moving potato wagons."

He has a list and descriptions of thousands of games played around the world including the traditional American favorites "Kick the can," "Mother, may I?" and "Ring around the rosie."

His jump-rope rhymes include old standbys like "Charlie Chaplin went to France," "Grace, Grace, dressed in lace," "I love coffee, I love tea," "I was born in a frying pan," "A sailor went to sea" and "Pickle, pickle."

There are Tom Swifites, also known as Wellerisms, such as: "Doctor, I think your knife slipped," said Tom Halfheartedly."

There are transpositions of sounds called spoonerisms, like, "Let me sew you to your sheet" for "Let me show you to your seat."

There are drawers full of proverbs, such as "It's always darkest before the dawn" and "Lightning never strikes twice"; of weather lore, like, "Ring around the moon," "Mackerel skies and mares' tails"; of tongue twisters, "A skunk sat on a stump," and taunts, "Fatty, fatty, two-by-four, can't get through the kitchen door."

Dundes has collected thousands of superstitions, like the traditional Chinese parents' warnings to their children about rattling chopsticks against their bowls.

Beggars in China would always rattle their chopsticks against their bowls to attract the attention of passersby. The superstition goes that if you rattle your chopsticks you, too, will end up a beggar.

Dundes has written nine books and more than 100 scientific papers on his material including his contribution to the Kroeber Anthropological Society papers entitled, "Here I Sit—A Study of American Latrinalia."

The Berkeley professor coined the word latrinalia to describe writings on bathroom walls. His paper on the poetry of the smallest rooms includes references about the influence of television in the latrines — "Smile, you're on candid camera."

"Content of latrinalia commentaries varies," Dundes notes. "Some are unexpectedly intellectual: "God is dead," Nietzsche. "Nietzsche is dead," God.

Dundes said anthropologist Allen Walker Read in 1928 spent several weeks compiling everything he saw written on restroom walls in an extensive trip across America. Read at the time attributed the practice "to the wellknown human yearning to leave a record of one's presence."

Dundes' prime source of material is his students at the University of California Berkeley.

Since 1962 he has had students of his popular courses turn in at least 50 items each per semester for his archives.

"I have an average of 250 students a semester; that totals on the order of 25,000 items a year," Dundes said. "We have a large number of foreign students at Berkeley and many are enrolled in my classes. They contribute enormously to the overseas collection."

"All of these subjects are important ingredients of our culture and cultures throughout the world. We analyze the meaning of the material, the historic and social significance."

Doctor makes house calls for shellfish

By AILEEN JACOBSON
Newsday Post

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. — Dr. Louis Leibovitz makes house calls on a large and delicate segment of Long Island's population. Specifically, he is a clam and oyster doctor.

Leibovitz, 51, is a veterinarian who specializes in shellfish diseases. He (or his assistant) visits Long Island every month from Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., to check on the general well-being of local clams and oysters.

They check temperature, growth rate and other health-related items for six shellfish companies in Southampton, West Sayville, Greenport, Northport, Blue Point and Bayville.

Leibovitz is an important part of a $150-million-a-year industry that is cited by the local Nassau-Suffolk Regional Planning Board as having growing economic potential for Long Island. His work is financed by a $42,000 grant from the New York Sea Grant Institute at Cornell, a federally funded agency charged with conserving coastlines.

Recently, Leibovitz arrived at the Frank M. Flower and Sons oyster company in Bayville — the final stop on his three-day rounds — bearing the tools of his trade. A little black box, containing test tubes and chemicals, was among them. So were a box of petri dishes for culturing bacteria, a spectrophotometer to measure water quality, pipettes, loops, an alcohol lamp, distilled water and other instruments.

Within half an hour, he turned a room of the greenhouse, or hatchery, where oysters are spawned and grown indoors before being planted in Oyster Bay, off Long Island, into a laboratory. Instead of a white coat, though, he wore striped overalls, ready to check the tanks of pinhead-sized juvenile oysters or examine the juiciness of a grown oyster cracked open by Butler Flower, the company's owner. His bedside manner, reserved for beds of oysters and clams, mixes good humor with exacting science. Leibovitz is a man who obviously enjoys his work.

"His oysters are about the meatiest you'll see," said Leibovitz, his white-whiskered cheeks crinkling with a smile of satisfaction. "You can't find a fatter or plumper oyster. For one thing, they're free of all serious diseases. Butler has done a miraculous job." Flower, 77, is credited with restoring oysters to Oyster Bay in the last several years through his greenhouse operations, after pollution stymied natural spawning.

Flower beamed but also gave credit to the water quality of Oyster Bay and to Leibovitz, who has been visiting his firm since 1973 and has been called in two or three times in emergencies. "He's a good man," Flower said. "without someone like him, this wouldn't be too successful an operation. You've got to have somebody like that, and it can't just be anybody. He's the main one in this part of the country."

Dr. Bruce Calnek, chairman of Cornell's Department of Avian and Aquatic Animal Medicine, said Leibovitz "has provided a service that wasn't available before in the shellfish industry on Long Island.... He stepped into a vacuum and he's been a blessing for them. They see him as walking on water."

Leibovitz has helped Flower and the other companies control diseases by teaching them how to identify and isolate diseased shellfish, how to keep water salinity at optimum level and how to identify water filled with dangerous organisms so it can be kept out of tanks. In one case, he found that poisons released from parts of jellyfish, crushed by Flower's filter system, were causing oysters to die. The versatile doctor then helped the grower design a better filter.

Oysters are susceptible to various bacterial diseases, which can cause the larvae and baby oysters to die before reaching maturity. The mature oysters used for spawning will not reproduce properly without the right salinity and water temperature. Leibovitz makes sure the environment stays right for the artificial cultivation of oysters, from spawning through the various stages (at first in jars and later in large tanks) until the oysters are ready several weeks later to be spread out on the bottom of the bay. At each stage bacteria or a foreign organism — or poison released from chopped-up jellyfish — could stymie their growth.

The sunken, two-level garden covers nearly two acres.
During the first phase of renovation, two ramps are being constructed along the garden's north border to give visitors who have mobility impairments access to the major viewing level.
The second phase of renovation, for which funding has been requested, calls for construction of an access ramp from the upper to lower levels of the garden and the remodeling of steps near its western end.

Mysterious mechanism easy to understand

By ANDY LANG
AP Newfeatures
The seemingly mysterious mechanism inside your toilet tank is easy to understand if you watch it work a few times. Step number one in any contemplated repair, therefore, is to remove the cover on top of the tank and turn the flush handle several times, each time observing closely what occurs. When water drips into the toilet bowl, the usual cause is too much water in the tank, causing some of it to flow downward through the overflow tube, the vertical pipe into which a bent rod is placed. To lower the water level, examine the metal or plastic float attached to a horizontal rod. (There are other newer systems, which will be discussed in a moment.) If it has lost its buoyancy because water has entered it, buy a replacement float. If it is still in good condition, then bend the rod to which the float is attached. Bend it downward, using both hands and working carefully so that the tank mechanism will not be thrown out of alignment. When you flush the tank now, the chances are the water level will be a bit lower and no water will go into the overflow tube. Another, but less frequent, cause of water dripping into the bowl is the need of a new washer in the valve at the top of the supply pipe, which is the vertical pipe usually at the left side of the tank. Turn off the water. As you take off the valve gadget, be sure you remember how it is done so that you can reassemble it properly.

Still another possible cause of the dripping is a leak under the valve at the bottom of the tank. Be sure the "stopper" is dropping exactly on the valve seat. If not, make the necessary adjustment. Also, rub steel wool around the inside of the valve seat to clean off any grit. Occasionally, the valve ball must be replaced, in which case it screws off the vertical rod to which it is attached.

Everything described so far applies to the old, conventional toilet-tank equipment, still in the majority of tanks throughout the country. When your tank is becoming too balky, consider the installation of more modern fixtures, which are less likely to give trouble and more likely to operate without whistling and other strange noises. While it may be advisable to get a plumber to install one of the new types of mechanism, it is possible to do it yourself if you are fairly handy with tools.

The hardest part is getting under the tank to unloosen the nuts that hold the main part of the equipment in place. Remember that everything that must be loosened should be turned counter-clockwise. If you feel capable of making the installation, be sure of two things — that the water is turned off first and that, when putting in the new equipment, you tighten the nuts securely enough to prevent leaks without making the common mistake of over-tightening.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a graduate student from Bombay, India. I am informed that in your column a few years ago you very eloquently defended the religious practices observed in foreign countries, and particularly of my homeland — India. I would be most grateful if you would repeat that letter. — STUDENT AT N.Y.U.

DEAR STUDENT: I found the letter. And here it is:
DEAR ABBY: How long are you going to pollute the world with your ignorance.

Someone wrote and told you that in his native country (India) it was all right under certain conditions to do something which is absolutely immoral. You then replied, "Thank you for illustrating a point which we in the Western world are apt to forget. We represent a very small part of the world, and what WE consider 'immoral' or 'unethical' is not necessarily immoral or unethical in other countries and for other cultures."

Well, he is wrong and so are you! Just because they do it in other countries doesn't make it right.

You ignorant woman. Have you not read the Ten Commandments? Have you not read in the New Testament that Christians are to go all over the world and teach the gospel? That includes India, too.

It is polluters like you who delude ignorant people into believing that immoral acts are all right. It's time Christians everywhere wrote to you and demanded that you speak the truth.

— DISGUSTED WITH YOU

DEAR DISGUSTED: The essence of all religions is to love your neighbor as yourself. And to love one's neighbor, we must respect his beliefs, though they be different from our own. To try to impose our values on others is not only a denial of their rights but also a form of arrogance, which in itself is irreligious. An ancient Hebrew prayer put it very well:

"From the cowardice that shrinks from new truth,
From the laziness that is content with half-truths,

From the arrogance that thinks it knows all truth,

Oh, God of Truth, deliver us."
DEAR ABBY: (I never thought I would be writing those words!) This is in response to Mary, who hated her name, and signed her letter, "I'd rather be Susie."

Well, my name IS Susan, and everyone calls me "Sue" or "Susie." I hated my name when I was younger, because my uncle used to say "Susie" was a name fit only for a mine mule or a cow. And then there was a song titled "Runaround Sue," and another one titled "If You Knew Susie." And that awful one called "A Boy Named Sue." As though that wasn't bad enough, they had to name a circular tray a "Lazy Susan."

So, Mary may hate her name, but I hate mine, too.

Abby, do you think anybody really likes her own name? — SUE DEAR SUE: I like mine. I selected it. CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURTING IN CHICAGO": An anonymous letter is the ultimate in cowardice. Disregard it. A person who would stoop so low is not above lying.

Eartha Kitt, a timeless kitten

By MARGARET MASON

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — The idea was to talk with Eartha Kitt about age.

Anybody at "50-plus," as she puts it, who can prowl the stage turbaned, spangle-toed and green-eyeshadowed and look not ridiculous — but like a timeless kitten — must have something to say about it all.

She enters a restaurant with the same regal presence, head back, feet testing the air in front of her. You can almost see an entourage, such as the one for her opening performance in "Timbuktu" now at the National Theater. And then you realize that she's refusing to parade ahead, insisting on following behind in the long walk to a far corner table.

A brandy, some small talk. No. Strike that. Eartha Kitt may be incapable of small talk. Everything she touches on is charged with her own electricity. Immediate. And never boring. From labor pains — "I don't want to forget them" — to the '40s in Paris when, over small glasses of grog, she read and discussed Moliere and Dostoevski with Richard Wright, James Baldwin, Jean-Paul Sartre.

"We were all poor, and whoever had money at the time would buy the food."

It is as if Eartha Kitt carries all of her life far forward in her consciousness, etched in the lines on her forehead and ready to be plucked out whole, not in fragments, but with complete names, places, precise feelings at the moment.

"I really should eat calves liver," she says in that voice that is somewhere between a growl and a caress.

And then, "I'm so glad to wake up in the morning at 50-plus. Every stage of my life is important... Why would anyone want to stay young, when aging is so beautiful."

"I hope to hell I am never vain enough to have my face lifted... I'm not saying I won't, but this is how I feel about it now."

She asks the waitress where she is from (Nigeria) and talks with her about that country's politics.

And then, "I don't look at myself as an age."

That's just a number. And some people use it as an excuse to stop. To stop what? To stop living. This gray patch on my head is a notch on my belt. Every line is a notch on my belt.

She brings up her daughter Kitt, 17, who will enter Hunter College with a major in business and drama. "And then she can take over. Why do I need an accountant, when I have my daughter?"

While traveling as an "international personality," as she once described herself, Kitt took her daughter everywhere. "We played a game every night before she went to bed. I'd have her go all around the room, connecting everything into a story, and without ever saying 'and' or 'but.' She called me recently to say 'I want your recipe to bring up my own children.'"

It's simple: "Let her be the child and let me be the mother."

And then the brown eyes that look at once like they've seen everything and can't get enough of everything go soft and the graceful fingers do a kind of dance in the air. "One must have a sense of timing in life... the same thing I do on stage. There's a time to step away from a friend, or from a child, and a time to step forward. The cosmos is telling us all the time... telling us what to do. Why don't we listen to it?"

Somewhere there is a reluctant mention of that long-ago 1968 outburst at a White House luncheon given by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, during which Kitt turned a discussion of juvenile delinquency into a diatribe against the Vietnam war.

She comes back instantly. "Do I want to forget it? Never. I might as well be dead. I adore this country. I did it all. Everything this country says you are supposed to be able to do. And I thought I could speak up on what I believed in. Everybody was so upset because I was a guest in their house. Well, it wasn't their house; it's our house."

Later, as she pokes at what is now cold liver on her plate, she says, "What hurts me most is the abuse of a friendship... trust and abuse, like what this country did to me after I spoke up."

From out of nowhere, she announces, "I'm tired of this goddamned black and white business. Everyone is using it for the dollars."

At the table she demonstrates shadow-dancing, which she learned in Hong Kong. "I followed a group behind the Mandarin Hotel. They didn't know I was there, and I'm not sure they would have liked it." Besides dancing, she jogs, "when I feel like it."

She talks about life being "a learning process, and we're all in school every day" and, "There should be a recognition of those of us who have survived. A club for survivors."

"Should I punish myself for what happened to me? That my mother gave me away, that my skin is neither black nor white, that people said I don't want this yellow girl in my house?"

She rolls her head back and laughs deep down, captivated by her sense of irony as she plucks out still another memory.

"I was sitting in the Churchill Hotel in London. I had a Polish boyfriend at the time. We were having Dom Perignon champagne, steak au poivre, fresh asparagus, salad endive, Beluga caviar. Through the window came this bomb... And my Polish boyfriend was saying 'you're older than I am.'"

"I took my Dom Perignon champagne, my steak au poivre, my fresh asparagus, my salad endive and Beluga caviar up to my room and got out my typewriter — I always have one with me — and wrote a song, 'Life Made Me Beautiful at 40.'"

Researchers now seeking mass-production technique

By EARL ARONSON AP Newsfeatures

Tissue culture, or micropropagation for mass-producing house plants has been in use for several years. Now researchers are seeking to make the technique feasible for mass-producing fruit trees and berries.

More than 700 strawberry shoots have been propagated in a jar about 4 inches in diameter — each one a potential full-sized strawberry plant — at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Science and Education Administration in Beltsville, Md. Similar 4-inch jars house masses of apple shoots and clusters of blackberry and blueberry shoots supported by a synthetic growth medium. And the scientists are coaxing tiny cuttings to multiply rapidly in a clear medium containing nutrients and hormones.

Plant pathologist Richard Zimmerman says the technique could cut to a fraction the time required for nurserymen to propagate these plants, also reducing the space needed for the propagation of fruit trees.

Currently, for example, apple trees are propagated by grafting shoots from the parent tree onto rootstocks. One tree is produced for each shoot. In tissue culture, thousands of trees could be produced from a single shoot. Now it takes up to 12 years and several acres for nurserymen to propagate a new cultivated variety to introduce to the general market. With micropropagation, or miniaturization, it might take only a year and little space, Zimmerman says.

Tissue culture is also a good way to produce virus-free plants which, unlike field propagated plants, are grown in a sterile environment.

Unaffected stock, the researchers point out, is especially important to strawberry growers because strawberry plants are susceptible to many viruses that rob vigor.

What Zimmerman's team is striving for is to make the culture method more uniform for the many strawberry varieties and to inform producers who will be setting up strawberry culture laboratories. The main object is to find the combinations of nutrients and hormones that produce the best shoot and root development for each fruit.

This is how it works: To start a culture, the scientists implant a shoot or meristem in a shoot-inducing medium. If the nutrients and hormones are in proper amounts the shoot tip will grow many new shoots. These can be separated and moved to a fresh medium to produce more shoots. The multiplication process can be repeated every 3-4 weeks to produce thousands of shoots in a 4-month period.

In an additional 3-4 weeks, the shoots will root if placed in perlite, vermiculite, an agar-based medium, or a combination of these. To stimulate root development, an auxin (organic substance that promotes such growth) is added.

The researchers report fine multiplication and rooting results with strawberries and thornless blackberries. But apples and blueberries and other woody plants are more difficult to propagate by tissue culture.

Horticulturist Olivia Broome, using observed growth as a basis of calculation, figures that, starting with one shoot tip, tissue culture could provide 2 1/2 million blackberry cuttings ready for rooting in 28 weeks.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Should you wait until problem goes away?

By the Staff of Family Services

When Junior was 5 years old he listened with breathless admiration to everything his parents said. It was obvious that he considered them paragons of virtue, and was trying to be as much like them as possible.

Now Junior is 16, and the situation has changed. His hair is growing down to his shoulders, and last week he was seen walking barefoot down Chapel Street. He leaves his room in a mess, and comes in at 2 a.m. from a date. He also seems quite immune to broad hints from his parents about his shorter hair, cleaner feet and rooms and earlier hours.

AT THAT POINT some parents seek counseling from Family Services. They've read all the books and articles about allowing their teenagers to develop independently. They want to be good parents, and they want their youngsters to have ideas of their own. On the other hand, they feel quite hurt that the youngsters, who admired them so much only a few years ago, suddenly seem to be oblivious to their good opinion. What should they do? Just wait until the problem goes away? After all, Junior doesn't seem to be listening to what they say anyhow.

Some parents find it easier to be insistent on relatively minor matters like making the bed before going to school, and very difficult to be firm in relatively vital matters like study habits or not going into an unsafe neighborhood late at night, or repeated crash diets which might be seriously harmful to an adolescent's health.

Family counselors have found that parents are often so afraid that Junior won't listen anyhow, that they don't dare to give their opinion any more. The same parent would not hesitate for a moment to give an opinion at a cocktail party or a PTA meeting, when there's a fairly good chance that no one is listening either. But somehow it hurts more to be seemingly ignored by one's own children than by a relative stranger.

FAMILY COUNSELORS have also learned that Junior may look as if he weren't listening...but he is. Sometimes he's trying to find out whether his parents are really willing to set standards and insist on having them kept. Sometimes he may even be looking for an excuse to behave in a way he knows to be right, while protesting all along that his parents are totally unreasonable. He may be quite tired of that long hair, and with cold weather coming on, may be quite ready to put on shoes again. And it's so much easier to tell his friends that he had to get rid of that Beetle hair-do because the old man is a square.

In any case, youngsters usually know how their parents feel about things. A parent who is seething on the inside and smiling sweetly on the outside makes his child feel uncomfortable.

A PARENT WHO insists on acceptable behavior is, of course, taking a chance that Junior won't listen. He also is taking a chance that Junior will listen and still insist on going his own way. But parents who expect to be listened to usually are. And children have a fantastic ability to discover a basic uncertainty in a parent...and at the same time, to know when the parent really means what he is saying.

So, whether they listen or don't listen, they still know what's important to the parents. And if the parents find it impossible to communicate their feelings and ideas to their children, the whole family might be able to use professional help. And that's what Family Services is for.

Good news for short on space

By ERMA BOMBECK

Good news for all of you apartment dwellers who are short on space and long on imagination. I have before me a magazine article in which a decorator, faced with a dinner party, makes what she calls an "amusing transformation."

She converts her dressing room-bathroom into a dining room.

The tub is covered with an upholstered, cushioned board which serves as a buffet. She adds a folding table, extra chairs, puts the champagne into the sink to chill (thank goodness, she didn't go for the cooler with the lid) and stores her glasses on the vanity shelf.

She covers each of the walls in a different flowery fabric and for accent, sets baskets of fresh fruits about with tangerines peeled and ready to eat as "a nice surprise for hungry guests."

The peeled tangerines would be the least of the surprises. Can you imagine for a moment herding your guests to the bathroom for dinner?

I don't even want my guests to use the bathroom when we have dinner in the dining room. I cannot imagine that the idea will catch on like wildfire. Our bathroom is entirely out of the question.

1. The dressing room IS my bathroom.
2. My menus can never be adapted to harsh lighting.
3. The bathroom door has not been open, or for that matter ajar, in 15 years.

4. I couldn't eat a bite facing a full-length mirror.
5. I couldn't relax in a chair that was bolted to the floor.

To tell you the truth, I hate to see the bathroom exploited as a room for entertaining. To me, that sacred part of the house has been the last bastion of privacy for the American family.

The toddler who regards it as Disneyland with faucets; the teenager who barricades himself in there until puberty has passed; the father who seeks peace in his reading room.

But mostly, it is needed by the woman of the household as a haven from havoc...a port for post-natal depression...a refuge from reality...a retreat to regroup...a chapel in which to pray...a cloister in which to cry.

It's no place for peeled tangerines.

Balmain dictates sleek, slinky

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The look this winter for the fashion-conscious who follow the guidelines of French designer Pierre Balmain is sleek, slinky and svelte, emphasizing a woman's waistline — and femininity.

In an hour-long showing Wednesday of his winter collection for 1979, Balmain treated an audience of over 700 to an eye-ful of cocktail and evening dresses, including three originals made with Egyptian longstaple cotton, rated the best in the world.

The showing of the collection at the "Ivoire Evening" at the Mena House Oberoi Hotel in Cairo, where the first Egyptian-Israeli peace conference was held in 1977, marked the opening night of a three-day gala fundraiser for the Wafa Wal Amal Rehabilitation Center for the Handicapped.

The guest of honor at the fashion show was the center's founder and patron, Egypt's first lady, Jihan Sadat. Seated with her at the VIP table was Frank Sinatra's wife Barbara, here with her husband whose concert tonight is the main event of the gala.

The exhibition, staged and orchestrated by the Balmain himself, started with a collection of traveling outfits, in whites and beige. Most were two-piece suits, worn with matching fur coats, of fox or astrakhan.

The next items were cocktail dresses. Balmain had said in an interview that in such a setting, by the poolside at the base of the pyramids, it would be "too poor to show morning clothes. The setting requires dramatic outfits."

In black silks, satins and velvets, or flowing chiffon in the primary colors, the collection of evening dresses, while not introducing a new style, was characterized by a softness in line accentuated by draping and fullness, and a richness in look created by heavy embroidery and glittering rhinestones, once out of vogue in the search for simplicity in the early 70s.

The styles were mainly those of the past summer — slit skirts showing a lot of leg, off-the-shoulder strapless décolletées, and straight-legged trousers for the pajama suits.

The highlight of the evening was Balmain's tribute to Egypt, a tableau in which he introduced his new perfume, "Ivoire," and presented three evening outfits made of Egyptian cotton in striped off-whites.

"What better place to introduce a new perfume than in the land of antique civilization that created cosmetics and perfume," Balmain said in introducing the tableau. He also praised the Egyptian fabric he used for the first time in the three outfits, calling it noble and pure.

Mexico asks U.S. to lead way to disciplined solution

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo has called on the United States to lead the way toward a "disciplined" solution to the energy crisis.

In this country for his third summit meeting with President Carter, Lopez Portillo said during a state dinner Friday night that Mexico knows its oil reserves are depletable. The Mexican president rejected "absurd solutions needing no discipline" for the energy crisis.

He said the world could weather the energy crisis in disciplined fashion, "if the United States expresses its political will in this direction."

The Mexican president's toast reflected the policy State Department officials say they have been consistently hearing: that Mexico will not dramatically accelerate oil production simply to meet the extravagant demands of the industrialized nations, including the United States.

Its gravity recalled the controversial "lecture" he delivered in Mexico City last February when he criticized the United States for "sudden moves and deceit."

Lopez Portillo this time complimented President Carter's handling of U.S.-Mexican relations. The system of consultations they established in 1977 "is working well," he said.

He added that conflicts are inevitable between neighbors. "As we say in my homeland, it is only the dead who do not make noise. Noise is life, and our two countries are vital countries."

White House spokesman Jerrold Schecter said that the two presidents talked about the human rights of Mexican migrants as they began their two-day summit meeting at the White House Friday.

Lopez Portillo had previously promised Mexican-American groups that he would broach the subject to Carter, and the president was ready.

He gave Lopez Portillo a copy of a letter he has written to governors in southwestern states, urging them to protect the human rights of the migrants, even when they are in the country illegally.

The Mexican-American groups say migrants often put up with abuse and inhumane working and living conditions, rather than complain to police and risk being deported.

The migration issue is among the most sensitive in U.S.-Mexican relations. Schecter said it was "significant progress" that the two sides have begun to agree on methods for counting the illegal workers. They have yet to approach agreement on what to do about them.

The State Department estimates that almost one million people cross the border from Mexico illegally every year and that between three million and eight million illegal aliens are in the United States, the majority of them Mexican.

Mexican officials say the flow should be legalized so the workers will be protected. They say the aliens benefit both countries, giving the United States a source of temporary labor and Mexico a way of relieving its unemployment problem.

But Carter is under pressure, particularly from labor unions, to restrict the border crossings.

Institute head shocked by defeats, few victories

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Henry R. Linden describes himself as a surviving synthetic fuels activist of the 1940s and 1950s.

Linden is a veteran gas technology researcher who says more than three decades in the see-sawing energy war with its many defeats and few victories have left him a bit shell-shocked.

The president of the new Gas Research Institute in Chicago also is the originator of the concept of the "Gas Option," which he defined in 1977 as the spectrum of gas supplies needed to maintain a primary energy market share for gas.

Linden says an expected lull in energy policy-making following last year's passage of the National Energy Act did not materialize because of the Iranian crisis, rapid OPEC price increases, the recent gasoline and diesel fuel shortages, and the specter of heating oil shortages for the winter.

But he said such events created unprecedented enthusiasm for massive federal subsidies of synthetic fuels commercialization programs.

And, as a fortunate side effect for the consumer, he said, the events also led to the recognition that gas is the most credible short and mid-term option to stem the tide of rising oil import needs.

Such import needs, Linden said, appear to be almost beyond hope of fulfillment because they would be in excess of OPEC production goals and, therefore, would accelerate the price increases that already threaten world economic and monetary stability.

Linden said the new gas momentum should be pleasing but, in addition to leaving him a bit shell-shocked, his 30 years in the trenches of the energy war also have made him quite cautious.

"I am now a lot less certain about what are the right and the wrong solutions because I know how radically my own view of the U.S. energy future has changed over this span years," he said.

"My early expectations for a need of 140 quads of primary energy supply in the year 2000 increased first to 160, then to 180 and finally to more than 200, and have now declined to only 120 quads."

Linden said his firm expectations of tripling of the world oil productive capacity by the year 2000 have now been replaced by the "hope of being able to muddle through with little more than we have now while we develop alternatives costing two to three times as much."

"And my expectations that nuclear energy would be the next mayor fuel in the 60-year cycles which have seen firewood, wind, and water power give way to coal, which in turn gave way to oil and natural gas, have dwindled."

"I now merely pray that the electric utility industry will be able to satisfy a modest 3-4 percent growth rate without much more nuclear capacity," Linden said.

But, he added, there has been one expectation from which he has never retreated.

"It is that whatever may happen, pipeline-quality gas -- methane now, and hydrogen later -- will play a major role in delivering clean, reliable, and cost-competitive energy to the nation's consumers," he said.

Linden said the reason, in retrospect, is obvious.

"It is in the consumer interest to preserve the current energy supply and utilization infrastructure, 75 percent dependent on oil and natural gas, as long as possible," he said.

Linden said production costs form only a minor part of what determines the overall economics of the various energy services.

"Since the investment in transportation, storage, distribution, and utilization of the major energy sources is so huge, radical changes in the mix and properties of the energy supplies could cause appreciable dislocations in the existing economic, social and environmental balance," he said.

Corrosion meeting set

ODESSA — The Permian Basin Section of the National Association of Corrosion Engineers will meet Tuesday at the Western Plaza Cafeteria in Odessa.

The event will get underway with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

The speaker will be Ed Quirsfield, regional sales manager for Peabody Tec Bank in Houston.

He is a graduate of Southern Illinois where he earned a B.B.A. degree. He earned his M.B.A. degree at Texas Tech University.

Quirsfield will speak on "Factory and Installation of Precoated Panels Used in The Construction of Bolted Tanks."

282 rotary rigs working in Permian Basin areas

Drilling progress in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico, as recorded by Reed Rock Bit Co., showed a slight decrease as 282 rigs were spotted in the two-state area.

The previous weeks count showed 284 rigs going and a year ago at this time the Reed survey spotted 263 rigs making hole.

For the last two weeks Lea County, N.M., has reported 40 active rigs and kept its lead in drilling activity.

Pecos County, the West Texas leader, took second place on the survey as 26 rigs were shown and a gain of five from the last count.

Eddy County reported a gain of two as the Reed survey counted 25 rigs turning to the right.

Andrews County reported 12 rigs, having decreased activity by four from the last count.

Howard County picked up one unit and brought their count to 11, while Crockett lost six units and reported 10 rigs going.

Upton and Ward counties each reported nine rigs, with Upton gaining two and Ward decreasing activity by one.

Association meeting starts

SANTA FE — Petroleum industry leaders in New Mexico will gather in Santa Fe to discuss matters of interest to the industry and the public.

Government officials will welcome delegates to the 51st annual meeting of the New Mexico Oil & Gas Association, which convenes today and through Tuesday morning at the Santa Fe Le Fonda Hotel.

According to Association President William Abbott of Hobbs, more than 1,000 persons are expected from throughout New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado and Wyoming.

New Mexico Governor Bruce King will deliver welcoming remarks at Monday's luncheon. The keynote speaker will be Richard M. Morrow, president of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Gohlke line completed

PGP Gas Products, Inc., of Midland, a Perry Gas Companies, Inc. subsidiary, has announced completion of the Gohlke gas transmission line, connecting its Giddings gas gathering system in Lee County to an intrastate line in LaVaca County.

The Giddings system began operation in November 1977 serving wells in Lee and Bastrop Counties. Initial volumes were 1.5 million cubic feet of gas per day in 1977, and increased to 10.5 million cubic feet of gas per day by the end of 1978. Current average daily volume from the Giddings system exceeds 35 million cubic feet of gas per day.

The combined systems, consisting of about 200 miles of pipeline extending throughout South Central Texas, represent an approximate $22 million investment. Approximately 150 wells will be connected to the system.

$3.6-billion deal talked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Belridge Oil Company, part owned by Mobil and Texaco agreed to be acquired by Shell Oil Co. for a price that may top $3.6 billion, in what participants describe as the most expensive corporate takeovers in history.

The little known oil company, which has proven reserves of 376 million barrels of heavy oil in the Taft area, had been sought by several major oil firms. But Belridge executive vice president, James Greene, said Friday that Shell had prevailed. He declined to say who else had bid.

Under terms of the agreement, Belridge will decide by Oct. 17 which of Shell's three merger proposals it will accept.

There was no immediate comment from Mobil or Texaco. Both companies had earlier sued Belridge in a dispute over plans by the majority owners of the firm to put it up for sale.

Forty-four year employee returns to old Bellevue Hotel

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It said Fairmont Hotel over the door, but it was the Bellevue-Stratford that Anna Taggart returned in the vintage Cadillac in which she left the grand old hotel three years ago.

Mrs. Taggart, a 44-year employee of the Bellevue, and her husband were the first guests at the renovated luxury hotel now owned by the Fairmont Hotel Co. The Bellevue closed in 1976 after an outbreak of what later came to be known as Legionnaires' disease.

longed to John Graham Jr., a retired real estate executive who drove Mrs. Taggart home after the Bellevue closed.

"We promised ourselves we would come back, and we have," said Graham, 69, doffing the same black derby he donned in 1976.

The renovation cost more than $22 million, including the refurbishing of the lobby and restaurants and reduction of guest rooms from 725 to 565. Only 150 were rented for opening night.

"We are opening slowly to give our staff a chance to do their best," said general manager Herman D. Wiener.

Mayor Frank L. Rizzo cut the red satin ribbon across the main entrance. Inside, workmen's hammers could be heard putting the finishing touches on bars and restaurants expected to be fully operational within two weeks. xslow delivery of some furnishings will keep some rooms empty until mid-October.

Built 75 years ago for $8 million, the hotel in 1976 hosted a state American Legion convention. Twenty-nine people died and 150 others fell ill from a virus later named after the convention. Occupancy dropped as low as 3 percent and the hotel was closed.

"I THINK THE CITY WAS EMOTIONALLY INVOLVED WITH THE HOTEL," SAID Ronald Rubin, whose family bought the hotel and restored it. "When the hotel closed it was really a sad day for a lot of people and the city itself."

Nine-year-old hotel reservation confirmed

DENVER (AP) — Frank Rozich has received a letter confirming a motel reservation he made nearly nine years ago.

What interested him was the price of the room at the Sheraton Motor Inn: $14 per night. These days, the room costs $27 per night.

Denver Postmaster Gary Packer says he thinks the letter may have languished for years in the bottom of someone's drawer or file basket. When the letter was discovered, someone just dropped it back into the mail, Packer said.

The notice confirming Rozich's room reservation was mailed with a 6-cent stamp. The same letter would require a 15-cent stamp now.

Rozich recalled that he stayed in the Portland, Ore., motel anyway nine years ago, despite not receiving confirmation of his reservation.

Reckless negligence was responsible for the accident, a state district court jury ruled. The jury ordered Firestone and Avis Rent-A-Car Inc., to pay Charles Waters, 31, $544,000 in actual and exemplary damages.

Waters and another passenger were injured May 26, 1976, when a rental car plowed into a palm tree in McAllen.

The accident was caused when a Firestone 500 steel-belted radial tire blew out, lawyers for Waters contended.

Bruce Schram of Houston, driver of the car, was killed in the accident. Another passenger, Bobby Josey, also suffered injuries, although he was not a part of the suit.

City gets $703,000 utility jolt

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — East Baton Rouge got a $703,000 jolt when it asked Gulf States Utilities for some tips on energy conservation.

As part of the research, consumption was checked and it was discovered the city-parish — which operates like a county government in other states — had been "underbilled" for two years.

The error apparently occurred when the number "10" was used as meter constant in determining usage and cost, rather than the number 100, public works director Ray Burgess said Thursday.

Gulf States Utilities vice president Calvin J. Hebert said that error was compounded by a mistake in recording of the reading. The last digit of the meter, which should have been rounded off to the nearest whole number, was dropped altogether.

"It hit us square in the face," said Mayor-President Woody Dumas. "I don't see how we can pay the whole thing at once. Maybe they'll let us pay it over the next couple of years."

The city-parish, which encompasses about 250,000 residents, is negotiating with the utility to see if it will have to pay the total amount.

"I think they have a definite responsibility in this themselves," Burgess said.

Hebert said the situation was unfortunate, but called it "an honest error."

The mistake apparently applied only to the city-parish government and did not involve any residential customers served by the utility.

Firestone may appeal verdict

BAY CITY, Texas (AP) — Lawyers for Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. say they may appeal a verdict awarding $544,000 in damages to a man injured when a rental car rammed a tree after a tire blew out.

"We've talked about it but just haven't made a decision," said lawyer Daniel O. Goforth Thursday concerning a possible appeal.

Reckless negligence was responsible for the accident, a state district court jury ruled. The jury ordered Firestone and Avis Rent-A-Car Inc., to pay Charles Waters, 31, $544,000 in actual and exemplary damages.

Bazargan creates ministry

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan of Iran has shuffled his cabinet, and created a new petroleum ministry to replace the national oil company, whose chief has been summoned by the public prosecutor, Tehran radio reported.

The national prosecutor said he wanted Hasan Nazih, managing director of the National Iranian Oil Co., to appear within 24 hours "to answer charges" following "repeated complaints" against him. But the radio broadcast, monitored in London Friday, did not specify Nazih's alleged offense.

Earlier this week, sources in Paris said Nazih had been placed under surveillance and ordered not to leave the country.

Bazargan named Mostafa Chamah as defense minister, replacing Gen. Taqi Riahi, who resigned ten days ago following a disagreement over jurisdiction with the leader of Iran's Islamic revolution, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

In other cabinet changes, Ezzatollah Shahl was named minister of state for planning and budget, Hoseyn Bani Asadi became minister of state for executive affairs, and former labor minister Darius Foruqar became minister without portfolio, Tehran radio reported.

"A ministry of petroleum will be created. At a later stage it may include other mines and companies. These changes cannot be enacted within a month or two... For the time being, the petroleum minister will automatically act as chairman of the board of each constituent company," Bazargan said.

Bazargan said creation of the oil portfolio should come as no surprise. "The change is very natural. As far back as five months ago the issue was raised at the council of ministers. I myself was in favor of the change, I supported the idea that oil should be a ministry portfolio. However, considering the daily difficulties of the problem, the matter was postponed," Bazargan said on Tehran radio.

Oil company head says Canada to slash exports

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada will virtually eliminate exports of high-quality light crude oil to the United States in November and December to help avoid a heating oil shortage at home, an oil industry source said last week.

But the source said the cutoff was not expected to cause hardships in the northern Midwest, the destination of most Canadian oil shipments.

Canada, which supplies 4 percent of U.S. oil imports, announced earlier this month that it would reduce light crude shipments to the United States from 55,000 barrels a day to 14,000 barrels a day in October. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

On Friday, a spokesman for a major U.S. oil company said it had received unofficial but strong indications the shipments would be cut to a token 50 barrels a day by November.

"It's about as official as it can be," said the spokesman, who asked not to be quoted by name.

In Ottawa, National Energy Board spokeswoman Ann Plante said that while U.S. refiners already "have been put on notice there is a 50-50 chance they won't have any" light Canadian oil this winter, "I don't think the board has reached any decision yet."

The board licenses all Canadian oil exports.

Canada plans to ship 94,000 barrels a day of heavy oil to the United States in October, up from 82,000 in September, but light oil is more desirable because it yields greater quantities of gasoline and other fuels.

The latest cutback will not affect exchange agreements with Canada. Under these agreements, U.S. refiners receive Canadian oil in the Midwest and in return ship oil to refiners in eastern Canada.

Conoco Inc., whose refineries in Minnesota and Montana depend on Canadian oil, will be able to keep its refineries running for the rest of the year because of swaps totaling 50,000 barrels a day in each direction.

Commissioner raps federal regulations

DALLAS (AP) — Many new federal regulations and interpretations infringe on long-standing Texas development and production practices, Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent said Friday.

"Several recent interpretations of regulations by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission interfere with the basic system of oil and gas regulation in Texas by meddling in the state's determinations of production units, gas production allowances, and numerous administrative and legal procedures," Nugent said in a speech for the Petroleum Engineers Club of Dallas.

He said there is a new requirement that natural gas must be produced from sands which are three times less permeable than oil field cement in order to qualify as "tight-sand well" entitled to the equitable Natural Gas Policy Act prices.

"This is so restrictive

Refiners optimistic

TULSA, Okla. — U.S. refiners are cautiously optimistic about the adequacy of heating oil and diesel supplies for this winter.

Stock buildups of distillate fuel oil in the past several weeks should put the nation on firm ground during the October-March heating season, reports Oil & Gas Journal in its Sept. 24 issue.

But the Journal adds that refiners are cautious about being too optimistic. That's because their projections are based on the assumption of adequate crude oil imports, a factor which could be changed overnight by an interruption overseas.

The U.S. Department of Energy's goal of having 240 million barrels of distillates in primary inventories held by refiners, pipeline companies, and bulk terminal operators in October should be reached sometime during that month, most refiners say.

At the end of the first week of September, the nation's primary inventory level had surpassed the 200 million barrel mark and had forged ahead of the inventory level recorded in the same week in 1978. By Sept. 14, it was up to 211 million barrels.

But even if the stock level should fall short of the government's target, many refiners are saying that the 240 million barrel level was overly cautious to begin with and the nation could get by with much less in storage at the beginning of the heating season.

The Journal points out that the 240 million barrel level has been surpassed by the end of October only once before. That was in 1977 when, in the aftermath of the severe winter of 1976-77, stocks were built to 268 million barrels on Nov. 1.

Graduate Center sets seminar, four courses

The Permian Basin Graduate Center has announced an upcoming seminar and four more courses in the center's headquarters at 105 W. Illinois St. in Midland.

The "Seminar on Structural Geology of The Permian Basin," conducted by Dr. Jack G. Elam, will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays, Oct. 16 — Nov. 20.

A short introductory session will be held from 4:30 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. Tuesday.

The six-week seminar is designed to update geologists on the latest plate tectonic concepts, especially as they might be applied to the Permian Basin, and to review the literature on Permian Basin structure.

In addition, theories of the mechanical behavior of materials will be applied to the solutions of geological problems in the Basin. The text will be Arvid Johnson's "Physical Processes in Geology."

Topics to be reviewed are: Structural mechanics, overview of global tectonic setting, compressional tectonics, wrench fault tectonics, gravity and extensional tectonics, and vertical tectonics, especially as these have been applied to Permian Basin problems.

Dr. Elam received his A.B. and M.A. degrees in Geology from U.C.L.A. and his Ph.D. from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He is president of the Permian Basin Graduate Center and has worked for both a major and an independent oil company, a firm of consultants, and has been a consulting geologist since 1951.

Fee for the course is $150, including course materials plus $17.50 for the textbooks.

The center will offer a session on "Title Opinions; Curative Materials, How to Acquire a Valid Oil and Gas Lease," from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday.

Robert C. Bledsoe, who has practiced Oil & Gas Law 23 years, will be instructor. He is an attorney with Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe, Morrow & Dawson. Bledsoe received his B.B.A. and L.L.B. degrees from The University of Texas at Austin.

Fee for the course is $75.

"Well Completions and Workover Techniques" will be presented from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday from Oct. 9 to Oct. 19.

Sloan J. Black, a registered professional engineer with Prentice & Records Enterprises, Inc., of Lafayette, La., will be the instructor.

The 10-day course will cover a broad range of the more significant areas of knowledge concerning well completion and workover techniques.

The fee for the course is $700. A set of note-taking outlines will be given to each participant.

DOE lawyer, member of ICC don't agree

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Department of Energy lawyer and an Interstate Commerce Commission member have disagreed on what is an emotional issue in San Antonio — the rapidly escalating costs of hauling Western coal to generate electricity in Texas.

Lynn Coleman, DOE counsel, last week charged the ICC forces San Antonio and other coal customers to subsidize unprofitable railroad operations. That, he said, makes the railroads a "silent partner" to the Organization of Producing and Exporting Countries.

But ICC Commissioner Betty Jo Christian countered that Congress approved federal subsidies to deal with the problem.

Meanwhile, city officials regularly blast the railroad and the ICC. They have also unsuccessfully sought aid from Washington, pointing out that the ICC's rate increases could ruin President Carter's energy plan encouraging the increased use of coal.

"We must do everything possible to use more coal, thus lessening our dependence on foreign oil," said Coleman. "But coal rate hikes allowed by the ICC have a potentially negative impact on development of a national policy based on coal."

He was cited for the achievement by Carl Hare, president of the firm.

Jones named Hearst VP

NEW YORK — Gordon L. Jones Jr. will become vice president of The Hearst Corp. Monday, reports Frank A. Bennack Jr., president and chief executive officer of the corporation.

Bennack and Gilbert C. Maurer, president of the Hearst Magazines Division, also announced that K. Robert Brink has been elected executive vice president of Hearst Magazines.

Jones was president of McGraw-Hill Publications Co. Joining Hearst as a Group Executive, he will oversee book publishing and trade magazine publishing activities. He worked 26 years with McGraw-Hill.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Official may take long look at holding firms

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Multi-bank holding companies in Texas may find their expansion efforts coming in, for increased scrutiny from Federal regulatory authorities, as indicated by a decision by the Federal Reserve Board this month.

On a 4-3 vote, the board approved the merger of First City Bancorporation of Texas, Inc., Houston, with $7.5 billion in assets, and First Security National Corp., Beaumont, with $509 million.

Lessening of competition was cited by the three dissenters as the reason they voted against the proposal, and even the majority cautioned that the merger approached the limits (given present conditions) they find acceptable for the size of an acquisition, and in terms of effects on competition.

First City is the second largest multi-bank holding company in Texas; First Security was the twenty-first largest.

In their dissenting statement, the three board members said they feel the acquisition "merely perpetuates a pattern of acquisition whereby the largest banking organizations in Texas acquire the leading banking institutions in the state's secondary metropolitan areas."

Continuation of that trend, they conclude, will increase the disparity between the largest holding companies and other banking organizations.

At least two more proposals involving mergers of large bank holding companies in Texas are expected to come before the board "in the near future," the statement adds.

Review of bank holding companies is among the matters contained in the interim charges to the House Financial Institutions Committee from Speaker Bill Clayton, and that committee has included that topic in its efforts — but as part of the overall study effort.

Several attempts have been made in recent legislative sessions — and in the 1974 constitutional convention — to limit the size of bank holding companies in Texas, with no success — and little support from lawmakers.

This year saw an attempt, in the House of Representatives, to limit an individual holding company to 12 percent of the total deposits in the state — a limit which would have covered

Apartment complex bolsters city permits

Building permits in the Tall City jumped up another $2.4 million last week, thanks mostly to a new 148-unit apartment complex scheduled for construction at 4315 Neely Drive.

Total new construction in Midland this year has reached the $75.5 million mark, according to information released through the city's Inspections Department.

Permits for new residential construction were issued to: Tabor Construction, 5112 Daventry Place, $90,000; Trend Homes, 1415 Sparks St., $90,000; Hamilton-Woodard, 4315 Neely Drive, (148 unit apartment complex), $2,000,000; Simpson & West, 2704 Wydown Drive, $69,000; and Russell Miller, 4503 La Salle Circle, $50,000.

Permits for alterations to existing residential structures were issued to:

Joe Avina, 2803 Roosevelt Drive, $5,000; Tabor Construction 4701 Cindy Place, $3,000; Eddie Sosa, 3225 Travis Ave., $500; David Cromwell, 700 McDonald St., $20,000; Glen Burton, 2501 Andover Place, $5,000; Joe Rodante, 209 E. Shandon Ave., $10,500; Bud Butler, 3117 W. Michigan Ave., $7,500; Daniel C. Jones, 401 W. Spruce, $20,000; O.C. Smith, 404 E. Wadley Ave., $24,500; Bobby McKandes, 4513 Pasadena Drive, $1,000; Walt Thibeau, 3618 Imperial Ave., $7,500; and Grant Blevin, 2903 Princeton Ave., $5,500.

Permits for new commercial construction were issued to: Broken Spoke, 3305 W. Front Ave., (sign) $2,000; HBF Corporation, 414 W. Texas Ave., $10,000; and Carol Hill, 1409 N. Lamesa Road, $750.

Unhealthy ingredients assist stocks in decline

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Record gold prices, a falling dollar, higher interest rates and jitters about what the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will do next are never the ingredients for a healthy stock market.

All of those factors were present this past week, and stock prices, as might have been expected, declined. But analysts said the damage was not nearly as great as it might have been.

The number of theories about why the market absorbed many of the shocks with relatively little damage is roughly the same as the number of analysts on Wall Street. Yet the experts agreed that the market as a whole is showing an impressive ability to, as one put it, "hang tough."

When the week was over, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues, with small gains in midweek not nearly offsetting big drops on Monday and Friday, stood at 878.58, down 15.36.

The New York Stock Exchange's composite common-stock index finished down .64 at 62.24, and the American Stock Exchange's market value index ended with a 2.06-point increase to 225.18.

The Big Board's volume averaged 34.62 million shares daily.

Despite the big declines at the beginning and end of the week, the market seemed to ignore a great deal of bad news.

Gold prices, setting records almost daily and climbing over the $400 mark for the first time at week's end, seemed to have little effect on the market, possibly because it has already seen a doubling in gold prices in the past year.

"It's just amazing the market has held up the way it has, considering the enormous rise in gold prices," said Eldon Grimm, an analyst at Birr, Wilson & Co.

It also took pretty much in stride the falling dollar, rumors of an increase in the price of Nigerian oil, the rise of the prime interest rate to a record 13 1/2 percent and reports that OPEC, meeting in Vienna, was considering turning from the dollar to a combination of the dollar and British pound as the cartel's official currency.

There was some good news, as well, including a drop in the latest money supply statistics and several oil discoveries. And the rapid run-up in the price of gold and other metals boosted stocks of metal-producing companies. "Metal mania ... seems to be the sequel to gambling mania, deal mania and oil mania," said Newton D. Zinder, an analyst at E.F. Hutton.

The relatively moderate volume, following several very strong days in recent weeks, led some analysts to suggest that the market might be tired after its summer-long rally.

"The market needs a little Geritol," said Larry Wachtel, an analyst at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields. "It's suffering from tired blood."

But that may have been a factor that helped prevent the market from reacting badly to the week's news. The relatively slow volume prevented any sort of big losing streak from gaining momentum. It also indicated that many big institutional traders were content to "sit on the sidelines," in Wall Street parlance, waiting for things to get better before reentering the market.

The feeling that these investors expect the turmoil in gold, credit and oil markets to end soon is keeping the market buoyant, Wachtel said. "They've got a lot of money, but they're playing it cool," he said. "Every time the market begins to back away, they sock some money in, to keep it from falling too far." Zinder, though, said he doubted the market would rise too far in the immediate future.

There are too many things (happening) for traders to be aggressive or optimistic," he said.

"It isn't exactly a spiffy market, it isn't exactly an aggressive market," said Wachtel. "It's just a market that's able to deflect bad news."

L. Torres promoted

Lorenzo Torres of Odessa, formerly of Midland, has been promoted to area supervisor for the Midland-Odessa-San Angelo area of Whataburger, Inc.

He joined the firm in 1975 as manager trainee at Arlington. He was transferred to Odessa in 1976, and in March 1978 was moved to Midland.

Ford strike threatened

DETROIT (AP) — If talks do not produce a new contract by midnight Thursday, the United Auto Workers union said it will strike Ford Motor Co.

Negotiations — most recently at the subcommittee level — have been slowed somewhat while Ford waits to see if an agreement between the union and General Motors Corp. is ratified.

In voting thus far, the UAW reported generally favorable reactions. The only local rejecting the GM offer was the Lordstown, Ohio, plant where 75 percent of the members were opposed.

The General Motors settlement is expected to be ratified by Monday, said union officials.

Once that happens, "the tempo of bargaining should pick up rapidly" at the Ford talks, UAW spokesman Karl Mantyla said Friday.

The tentative contract sets a pattern for UAW agreements, yet to be reached, with Ford and Chrysler Corp. Among other things, it provides a 3 percent wage increase in each of the three years of the contract, a cost of living increase and retroactive pension rates that will be increased during the life of the contract.

The union expects to do at least as well by Ford as it did by General Motors. However this

Gold rush adds sparkle to other precious metals

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — All that glitters is not gold.

The gold rush — which brought bullion prices to a spectacular $400 an ounce this past week — also has added sparkle to other precious and non-precious metals.

Silver prices, for instance, have climbed to about $16 an ounce, almost double their price in June and up 52 percent since the start of the month. Platinum rose to a record $565 an ounce this past week, up from $420 an ounce less than two weeks before.

Even copper, a non-precious metal with many industrial uses, has experienced a phenomenal spurt, jumping to about $2,400 a ton, a rise of more than $200 in a week.

The most common explanation for the sudden burst of trading in metals leads back to gold as the engine that has fueled interest in all sorts of metals.

"There is concern about not only the value of the dollar, but other paper currencies as well," said John Hing, the director of commodity research for Merrill Lynch. "They are seeking to put their money into physical assets that may retain value."

"AN AWFUL LOT of traders left silver and gold alone and went into copper futures," said Irving Louis, the chief of the metals department at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

But it did not follow last week that gold prices suffered as interest in other metals grew.

On Thursday, the price of gold in Zurich, Europe's leading bullion market, prices jumped $20.50 an ounce in the single day to a new peak of $395.50 an ounce and by Friday gold was trading near the $400 an ounce mark in major centers around the world.

Less than two weeks before gold broke the $350 barrier and at the time, it was widely predicted that the price would sink for a while as speculators sold off to take their profits.

Only two months ago, a forecast of $400 an ounce gold "would have been unbelievable," commented one dealer.

"Nobody expected gold to rise so quickly. The professionals are really worried about currencies and the prospect of yet higher oil prices and so everybody wants gold," commented one dealer at the London metals firm of Sharps, Pixley and Co.

Gold was trading at about $225 an ounce at the start of the year, it passed the $250 barrier in February, climbed above $300 an ounce in July and, with minor fluctuations, has been rising steadily since.

SOME EXPLANATIONS for gold's continued rise this past week were tied to new rumors about the possibility that Arab oil-rich countries would decide to change their pricing mechanism for oil away from the dollar which has been the traditional currency for oil trades with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

With widespread reports that Middle East wealth has been heavily involved in the gold boom, there has even been speculation that a new pricing system might directly or indirectly involve the price of gold as well as a "market basket" of other currencies.

OPEC ministers have denied that. The highly volatile gold market, however, has left investment advisors sharply divided on its future course. James Sinclair, a New York analyst whose precious metals firm bears his name, argues that increases in gold prices may represent a fundamental and long-lasting change in how the world views the metal.

Sinclair suggests, for instance, that after a period in which major countries have dropped gold as a backing for their currencies, traders fears of inflation and mistrust of major currencies may be creating a flight back to gold "as an alternative currency."

IN THAT CASE, he argued in a recent commentary, "the number attached to gold's valuation becomes irrelevant, whether it is $200, $300, or even $400 an ounce."

"If this is indeed a major market change, then the highest price objective — in the $900 level — predicted years ago ... is not impossible," Sinclair argued.

While he does not necessarily forecast $900 an ounce gold himself, Sinclair still falls on the optimistic side of gold watchers.

The Predictor, a New York investment letter, for instance, recently —Citibank, the nation's second largest, led still another round of interest-rate increases by major banks across the country. The prime lending rate was raised to a record 13 1/2 percent, up 1/4-point from its previous level. It was the seventh boost since early August in the rate banks use as a base for loans to corporate customers and a guide on general interest rate trends.

—Inflation continued to rise in August. The Labor Department reported consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 13.2 percent last month, compared with annual rates of 12 percent in the previous two months. The latest report said rising energy and house costs were major causes for the overall increase in the Consumer Price Index.

—International Business Machines announced plans to hold the largest securities sale in corporate history. IBM said it would sell $1 billion worth of short and long-term notes next month to raise funds for construction of manufacturing facilities and rental equipment.

compared gold's boom to a host of historic boom-bust cycles including the 1920's Florida land boom "which featured sales of underwater lots and the Great Crash of 1929."

It argued that "present activity in the gold market might just be writing the prelude to a story which could take its place with those boom-and-bust sagas of bygone years."

Court orders new life for four Amtrak routes

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — While Amtrak officials decided what to do next, supporters of passenger rail travel expressed relief at court orders giving temporary new life to four of the line's five doomed routes.

Federal judges in Wichita, Kan., and Washington issued restraining orders Friday blocking Amtrak from halting service on the four lines Monday as planned.

In Washington, spokesman Jim Bryant said Friday that Amtrak was continuing with shutdown procedures, including laying off employees, until attorneys study the orders.

"We are not accepting reservations at this point," Bryant said Friday evening, adding that officials were to decide today whether to continue with plans to close the lines.

Bryant said continued operation of the four trains would cost Amtrak about $200,000 a day. Another spokesman, Brian Duff, said keeping the trains in operation would be possible, "but it would require a very frantic effort over the weekend."

The order by U.S. District Judge Frank Theis in Wichita affected the Lone Star, which runs from Chicago to Houston; the North Coast Hiawatha, which runs from Chicago to Seattle, and the Floridian, which runs from Chicago to Miami and St. Petersburg.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington issued an order blocking Amtrak from halting the National Limited from New York to Kansas City, Mo.

"At the beginning of August, the Amtrak's future in Minnesota was bleak," said Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., who helped prepare background material for the lawsuit that led to the Wichita order. "Now, we have a ray of hope that the trains will keep running."

The four routes were to be eliminated as part of Amtrak's reorganization plan, cutting 20 percent of the passenger railway's service nationwide. A fifth route included in the cutback, the Hilltopper from Boston to Catlettsburg, Ky., was not affected by a court order.

Theis set a hearing on his order for Oct. 11, but said it might have to be continued to Oct. 15. The appeals court order would keep the National Limited running through Oct. 13.

Union orders walk against railroad

CHICAGO (AP) — Officials of the clerks union that has struck the financially ailing Rock Island line say they have ordered their members to walk picket lines until all are recalled to duty.

The railroad that was authorized to take over service on the strike-bound line agreed Friday to pay striking union members the prevailing national rail wage when they go back to work.

However, the agreement between the Kansas City Terminal Railway Co. and the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks appeared to settle only the pay issue. Still to be resolved was the question of how many of the 4,200 clerks union members would be recalled and when.

The KCT has indicated that only a few members would be recalled at first.

The pay agreement came out of meetings in Washington between negotiators for the clerks and the KCT, a spokesman for the union said.

Grain shipments throughout the Midwest have been disrupted since the strike began Aug. 28.

'Go' signal awaited

Announcement that the application for the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Treatment Center has received a favorable recommendation from the regional Health Systems Agency was heartening and certainly most encouraging to residents here and elsewhere throughout this section of West Texas.

The governing body of the health planning group last Monday approved a favorable report from its project review committee by a 12-6 vote, with two members abstaining. The project review committee, which developed its findings from information presented at a public hearing held Sept. 20, voted unanimously for a favorable recommendation on the proposed center, which would be located at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The HSA report now goes to the Texas Health Facilities Commission at Austin, which will hold its own hearing on the application on Nov. 26.

The state agency must issue a certificate of need before the $3.4 million regional cancer treatment center can be built and equipped. Hopefully, the "go ahead" signal will be flashed by the agency before the end of the year. Such action certainly appears to be well merited, judged by testimony presented by the facility's sponsors.

This seems like a tremendous amount of wasted time and effort to go through in order to build a facility which would serve the health needs of a wide area, particularly when the funds for same have been and will be contributed by private citizens. It's not surprising that many persons are confused by it all. But that's the way the system works these days.

You will recall that Mrs. Helon Allison of Midland has contributed $2 million to get the facility under way. It is a most generous, benevolent gift, and residents of this great section of the state will be the beneficiaries for years and years to come, saving cancer patients and their families the inconvenience and expense of long trips to Houston, Dallas or San Antonio for advanced therapy. This is what it is all about, added health care and service for residents of the Permian Basin Empire.

It is noteworthy, too, that officials of Odessa's Medical Center Hospital withdrew their opposition to the application at the recent hearing, although they yet appear to be somewhat less than enthusiastic concerning their support of the planned Midland facility. It is hoped this tension will ease as the program progresses.

The Odessa hospital's contention that the center as originally planned merely duplicated facilities already available at Odessa was a major stumbling block in granting the required certificate.

It now has been acknowledged by the Odessa Hospital group that the Midland facility, as proposed in the amended application, will provide more sophisticated treatment than that available at Odessa.

The new equipment asked for in Midland's amended application includes 6- and 20-megavolt linear accelerators, a therapy stimulator, and a treatment planning computer which will allow the center to house a regional tumor registry and perform a number of other functions.

Odessa's cancer treatment facility utilizes a cobalt machine which has been in operation there since 1971.

It has been explained that Odessa's opposition in the first place stemmed from fear that the new center might force the closing of the Odessa unit.

Midland Memorial Hospital officials have made it clear that they had no intention of seeking to close the Odessa cobalt treatment facility. Rather, Midland interests were solely concerned with expanding cancer treatment facilities for cancer patients in the region.

Hopefully, this will settle the dispute once and for all. There is no reason why the neighboring centers could not work together for the benefit of all.

It is just so wonderful that there are those persons in this great region who are willing to give of their time and means to provide fine, modern facilities to meet the health needs of their fellow residents in the Permian Basin.

Hopefully, the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Treatment Center will be under construction in a matter of months now.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Too bad: Nobody's choosin' Susan

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The feminists' triumph in getting a woman's likeness on an American coin has turned to ashes. The Susan B. Anthony dollar is a costly fiasco, rejected by merchants, bankers and the public alike.

That the U.S. Treasury has laid another egg should come as no surprise in light of its earlier failure to change Americans' monetary habits by reissuing the two-dollar bill. The only surprise in the flop of the Anthony dollar is the fact that Treasury officials appear to have been surprised.

For the sad truth is that the coin's doom was foretold as far back as the summer of 1976.

That's when the Treasury ordered its own internal market research on the chances for success of a new "silver" dollar roughly the size of a 25-cent piece. Sources told us the researchers saw no hope for such a coin unless its acceptance were forced by withdrawal of the paper dollar from circulation.

Ignoring this gloomy prediction, the Treasury pressed on with its new dollar program. It was approved by Congress and signed by President Carter on Oct. 10, 1978.

Meanwhile, the Detroit branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, more skeptical than the bureaucrats in Washington, commissioned an independent study of the dollar coin's potential. The $20,000 study, undertaken by the University of Michigan's business school in August of 1978, reached the same conclusion as the treasury research team: As long as the paper dollar was available, the Anthony dollar didn't stand a chance.

The Michigan report also found the public had deep misgivings about the supposedly handy size of the new coin. "The consumer perceives a confusion of the dollar coin with the quarter and there is some real fear concerning this aspect," the Michigan researchers reported, adding: "There is a major potential for non-acceptance on the part of the general public."

In addition, the study found resistance among retailers and fast-food chains, banks and armored-car companies. They were concerned about such everyday problems as handling costs, confusion with the two-bit piece and the "reconfiguration" of cash drawers that would be made necessary by the new coin.

The warnings, like those in 1976, were ignored by the Treasury. The reaction of Mint Director Stella Hackel to the Michigan report was to complain that the university had no business testing public acceptance of the Anthony dollar. It was, she said, only supposed to find the best ways to promote the new coin.

A meeting last February of Treasury and Federal Reserve officials became emotional and acrimonious, sources told our reporter Adam Pfeffer. The bureaucrats would hear no criticism of the Anthony dollar. Instead, they tried to blame the Fed for the failure of the two-dollar bill — not to mention the Eisenhower dollar and Kennedy half-dollar before that.

One Federal Reserve official came out of the meeting in a sour mood, with the impression that the treasury people regarded the Fed as "a stodgy old bank that didn't know a damn thing about marketing."

The Treasury is stubbornly determined to make the Anthony dollar

Gold bugs are out, with mad glint in their eyes

WASHINGTON — They used to be very quiet and you rarely saw one. But lately the gold bugs have come out of the closet. You can recognize them by the mad glint in their eyes.

My friend Bob Levin is one of them. He's hard to live with these days. This isn't just my opinion — it's his wife's.

She came to see me the other day. She looked as if she'd been crying. "You've got to do something about Bob," she said. "He's gold crazy."

"Well, if he can afford it, it's not a bad investment."

"He can't afford it," she said. "He's putting everything we have into gold. He says it's the only safe thing left in the world."

"Maybe he's right."

"I told him I'd rather put some of it into food for myself and the children."

"What did he say to that?"

"He said, 'How can you think about food when South African Krugerrands are going up five percent a week?' I told him you can't eat Krugerrands, and he said, 'Maybe not today, but when gold hits $600 an ounce, we can have caviar for breakfast while everyone else will be starving to death.'"

"He sounds as if he's really got the bug," I said.

"Last week I told him I had to buy shoes for the children. I asked him for $50. He screamed at me, 'How can you ask for paper money when it's losing its value every day?' So I said, 'All right, give me a Mexican gold 50 peso coin instead. He said, 'The gnomes in Geneva would really like that. They're counting on people like me getting out now, just when the market is going to soar.'"

Art Buchwald

"I don't know what I'm going to do. The only thing we've bought for the house in the last six months is a scale. Bob spends his evenings weighing tiny bars of gold in cellophane wrappers. When I tell him to come to bed he says, 'Not until I find out what's happened in Tokyo.' The other night I asked him, 'What has Tokyo got to do with going to bed?' and he said, 'Everything. If you watch the Japanese bankers, you'll know where the dollar is going.'"

"What did you say to that?"

"I said I didn't care where the dollar was going as long as I could go with it — at least to a store. He said if I just held on for six more months we could buy the store."

"Where does he keep the gold?"

"In the house. He took the insides out of an old television set we have in the attic. Every day he calls up from the office and asks me to go up and check to see if it's still there. He doesn't even like me to go out any more because he's afraid someone will break in while I'm gone."

"Why doesn't he put it in a safe deposit box in a bank?"

"Because he says the way gold is going the banks could close any day and he won't be able to get at his box."

"Has he seen a shrink?"

"He went once at my request."

"What happened?"

"He said he persuaded the doctor to put all his earnings into 10 gram bullion."

"I don't see how I can do anything," I told her as she pulled out some tissues to dry her eyes.

"I thought you could talk to him. He suggests you and perhaps he'd invest in what you're investing in now."

"I told her, 'My broker has me up to my ears in silver. I've got so much of it I can't even get it into my freezer any more.'"

Mark Russell says

I must have dozed off because just days ago I thought Yasser Arafat was one of the bad guys.

But then I saw Yasser Arafat on TV hugging my congressman, so we must have made him a good guy. Why doesn't somebody tell me these things?

I might have gone to a party and criticized Yasser Arafat, showing my ignorance because I didn't know he had been reclassified.

Then everyone would have started whispering about me and the hostess would say, "No more bean dip for you — nobody comes to my party who isn't up on things."

Anwar Sadat used to be a bad guy but even though he's now a good guy, you never see him hugging Yasser Arafat. Maybe Sadat's not up on things either.

I guess my excuse for not knowing Yasser Arafat had achieved good-guy status is that, as a kid, I was influenced by the old cowboy movies when the bad guys always needed a shave.

Debate between U.S. Blacks, Jews over Palestinian rights

WASHINGTON — Black and Jewish leaders, those possessing precious U.S. citizenship, are getting a bit mean with each other over the Palestinian issue. Admittedly, the rhetorical volleys are being fired by those who fancy themselves as spokespersons, but it's getting thick.

Andrew Young ushered in the Jewish New Year last weekend by publicly stating that American Jews should consider repenting during their high holy days for the way Israel treats Palestinians and bombs Lebanon. He will hardly win the B'nai B'rith award of the year for that advice.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson pushes his way through crowds of Jewish and Arab folks in the Middle East, and takes time to not only warn Israel of the political power of American blacks, but also to declare that it is unfair that Israel gets the lion's share of U.S. foreign aid, and that poor Arabs are short-shrifted. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was not moved by those words to reverse his snub of Jackson and invite him in for tea.

The Rev. Joseph Lowery, an imaginative divine with considerable elocutionary skill, who is also president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, has visions of 100,000 Palestinian refugees marching from their camps into the promised land of Israel where, presumably, they would make claims on the local real estate. The Knesset is not planning to appoint a welcoming committee.

Now American Jewish leaders fire right back at what they regard as the impudence and ingratitude of these black lamas, most of whom they have had in for brotherhood sessions or a generous donation at one time or another. Various Jewish leaders now question their patriotism, denounce them for "meddling" in U.S. foreign policy and associating with PLO "cutthroats," and even charge them with "anti-Semitism," though Jews and Arabs are both Semitic, and so are some of the black brethren.

I gather that the collection of black leaders who visited with Yasser Arafat and sang "We shall overcome" still supports Israel's need for security, and proclaims that it is trying to make peace between the children of Moses and the Palestinians.

These American black leaders see themselves as mediators between two Middle East peoples who they say both deserve justice and protection. They claim they played a similar role in mediating between millions of blacks demanding justice in the civil rights Sixties and the white majority holding the power.

Jewish friends of mine shake their heads in disgust as these leaders cry out and justify their mission. They deplore the prospect of a Rev. Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's nonvoting representative, showing Congress shrapnel from U.S. bombs dropped on Lebanon by Israeli planes. "Why are they doing this to us?" one Jewish friend asked.

They're probably doing it because they haven't had a good civil rights go in several years. They are responding like old fire horses and getting the limelight. Blacks have long identified with the Moslem world and its black heroes like, say, Sunni Ali Ber-King of Songhay, presently celebrated in Budweiser advertising in black publications. Blacks tend also to identify with the downtrodden, and the Palestinians are depicted as downtrods.

Moreover, blacks who have seen the destruction from Israeli shelling and bombing are not going to buy the Israeli argument that it might suffer an Arab Holocaust. Over the years, Israelis have killed Arabs on at least a 5 to 1 basis. The admonition not to "meddle" in foreign affairs is ignored, too, because many U.S. congressmen and other prominent cause pleaders, including American Jews, have visited other countries and uttered strong opinion. The black leaders argue, why should we be told not to do the same?

The charge that the blacks are propagandizing for the Arabs is a case of the pot calling the kettle something or other. Israel has enjoyed the benefits of considerable propaganda in the United States, and nobody has squawked much about that. Finally, while American Jewish leaders accurately describe the PLO's terrorist units as "power-hungry butchers," their Palestinian counterparts regard Israel's extreme military actions as arrogant butchery, too.

The passions involved here are deep indeed and involve blood, religion and race, all dangerous combustibles. I have never met a Palestinian who didn't support the PLO, even those who deplore the violence of its terrorist units. And virtually every Jew I know supports and defends Israel, though some qualify by backing Israel as a homeland but not as a religious state.

It is easier for white, non-Jewish Americans to "tut tut" both sides on this growing dispute. But it's not unreasonable to mention, when there is a moment of intermission, that American blacks and Jews are U.S. citizens, and that it is the genius of this nation that such debates can take place. The interests of the United States are still paramount to whatever claims are being made now by these disputants.

Moot bond issue

To The Editor:
The renovation and expansion of Midland High School for educational purposes are critical and needed immediately. A new elementary school has also become a necessity but, at this point, the bond issue presented by the school administration becomes moot.

In the great Illinois-Tennessee land purchase, the administration and board recently acquired 4-plus acres at a cost of approximately $100,000 per acre. Now, they propose to acquire additional land and in the process dispose of homeowners in the area. The purpose of this land — athletic fields and parking lots ($100,000 parking lots) — is absurd. The money for the above mentioned purchase came from a contingency or surplus fund. The same $400,000 could have been used to replace air conditioning and heating equipment at Lee High which is also on the bond issue. Parking may well be a problem at Midland and Lee Highs, but it is also a problem for people who work downtown. Many walk several blocks to and from work; the same can be applicable to students. Carpooling can also alleviate this problem.

Perhaps the immigrants of earlier times were right in their desire to come to America for they believed the streets were paved of gold. If this land purchase is approved, then our parking lots will be paved of gold (tax dollars).

The ravages of inflation are weighing heavily on the tax paying citizen who is constantly having to re-evaluate and cut back to make ends meet. It is unfortunate that the administration and board have lost sight of this fact.

On construction and renovation issues, I will support the bond issue; but, on land purchases that displace people who do not wish to move and is used for noneducational purposes, sorry folks, I respectfully pass.

Reese defended

To The Editor:
I wish to applaud your carrying the very excellent column by Charley Reese. Please be assured that many of your readers appreciate a spokesman for the taxpaying, productive American citizen whose energy, initiative, and desire to build a better America has resulted in a nation such as we have.

Ours is a country where ostriches can stick their heads in the sand and be clothed and fed by the over-production of others.

Ours is a country, the envy of all the world, where millions of useless paper shufflers, millions of pool-room hangers on, millions of poor and needy, and hundreds of environmentalists can be nurtured and fed by fabled petroleum hunters and grain growers. If Charley Reese is on the side of the latter group, Bless Him!

'Pro-choice'

To The Editor:
I would like to comment on two letters appearing in the September 23 issue concerning abortion.

That the fertilized egg and the fetus are human beings is a religious belief not shared by all religions. No one has been able to answer the question of when a fetus becomes a human being. Not doctors, not lawyers, not anyone. It would certainly solve the abortion question if we knew the answer, but we don't, so the issue of abortion, in reality, is one of differences of opinions in answering this question.

The "pro-life" or right-to-life people are obviously of the opinion that abortion, for whatever reason, is wrong. It is murder. They advocate compulsory pregnancy. It does not matter if you are 12 years old, if you were raped, if you already have 10 children, if you are poor, if you will give birth to a child with serious defects. They say you must stay pregnant and have a baby. You cannot have a choice. I would like to know whose life they are "pro." It is certainly not the life of the woman. It is certainly not the life of an unwanted and neglected child.

On the other side of the fence we have the pro-choice people. Not "pro-abortion" — pro-choice. They do not encourage abortion; they support your right to decide for yourself. They do not "promote" abortion as a means of birth control; they do believe you should be able to have an abortion as an alternative after pregnancy has occurred.

Your right to make your own decision is being seriously threatened by the so-called "pro-life" movement. Our legislators are under terrific pressure to make abortion illegal again. As long as we have failable birth control methods, we will have unwanted pregnancies. As long as we have abortion, the question of whether or not you should have an abortion is answerable only by you. No one else should presume to answer it for you.

Times of peril

To The Editor:
I am sure that you will agree that we are indeed, living in times of great peril. In almost any direction one might dare to look. The Communists are past masters of deceit. It is always, therefore, very important that one concentrate on that which is most important to us. In my case it happens to be the Catholic Church. I am a Roman Catholic, Traditionalist and was so terribly grateful that the priest we know as Father Francke, O.S.J. flew in here to say Requiem Mass on the day of burial for Jeremiah McCarthy and conducted the grave-side ceremony as well.

We all know that the present pontiff, Pope John Paul II is to visit in Washington, D.C., and speak to the United Nations General Assembly in New York on October 2. Thence on to Chicago, where there is some concern over whether or not a building can stand the weight of the expected crowd. God forbid that anything should happen!

We have seen the great welcome this pope received when he returned to his native Poland and said Mass. Their affection for this pope is quite understandable.

What is not so easily understood is that when Cardinal Alfredo Ottaviani died recently at the age of 88 he was denied the Mass he so deeply desired. Cardinal Ottaviani was a staunch opponent of the Novus Ordo Missae.

The Cardinal wrote to Pope Paul VI Sept. 25, 1969, pleading with him "not to deprive us of the possibility of continuing to have recourse to the fruitful integrity of that Missale Romanum of St. Pius V, so highly praised by Your Holiness and so deeply venerated by the whole Catholic world."

One has only to look around now to see the disunity in worship and doctrine which are so palpably manifest for all to see.

BMPs don't come to the 'point' of pollution

The government that's better known for gobbledygook than for lucidity has come up with "BMPs" to try to bump out waste and bring in conservation.

BMPs, in three words, is Best Management Practices.

It's something conservationists more or less have been preaching since George Perkins Marsh came out with his book "The Earth as Modified by Human Action" in 1864.

Back then, the Manifest Destiny still ruled, while the nation was being torn asunder by the Civil War. And the land and its yield were being plundered as if natural resources were inexhaustible.

They aren't. The world knows it. And, unlike The Universe, planet Earth is quite finite.

The federal government, paradoxically, probably is the nation's No. 1 conservation spokesman and ranking prodigal spender while preaching a soil, water and air pollution that which cannot be readily ascertained: non-point pollution.

It's the opposite of point pollution, which has to do with "point-source pollution." And all that means is that the point of discharge, such as through pipes or down river streams, is evident.

Non-point isn't always. BMPs suggest on a broad scope how to prevent pollution.

"How do you enforce something that's not enforceable?" asked Bobette Higgins, who referred at a recent Waterwatch Workshop, underwritten by the EPA.

Moore could only answer: "You can only do as much as you can do under the laws that you have at this time."

Meanwhile, pollution continues.

Section 208 deals in large part with water quality. It deals with pollution generated from agriculture, construction, mining, silviculture (forestry), urban development and the such. Pollution of the water table via injection of brine or oil field waste into oil wells comes under the point-source pollution.

BMPs suggest on a broad scope how to prevent pollution.

"How do you enforce something that's not enforceable?" asked Bobette Higgins, who referred at a recent Waterwatch Workshop, underwritten by the EPA.

Moore could only answer: "You can only do as much as you can do under the laws that you have at this time."

new slant on anti-pollution conservation.

BMPs got a generous boost this decade when the Environmental Protection Agency started touting Section 208 of the Clean Water Act.

POSITIVE THINKING

Every prayer should have its follow-through

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

The telephone in my hotel room rang late at night and a troubled voice said, "Please pray for me." I had retired after speaking at a meeting and was just about asleep when this telephone call came.

The man on the wire was a stranger and after apologizing for his late call said, "I heard your talk tonight... I'm having a bad time of it. Of course I know that my main problem is myself. I know that without you or anybody telling me. Sure I get in my own way. I need to do something about myself, that's for sure. But what I want to ask of you is not advice but just to pray for me."

"Of course," I said. "What's more I will do that right here and now." From something in the man's voice I sensed a real need and he seemed quite sincere. I explained that we would pray over the telephone.

"This instrument," I said, "is merely a device for communication and the Lord, who is always where two or three are gathered together, is with both of us, so you listen and I will offer a prayer."

I know he was surprised but he agreed and his reverent "Amen" echoed my own.

After a moment he said "That helps. I needed that. Thanks a lot." Then he added, "I will get busy and follow through on that prayer."

When he had hung up I found myself pondering that remark, "I will get busy and follow through on that prayer." That was an unusual thing to say, but it showed perception. For prayer should have its follow-through.

I began to wonder whether I ought not examine my own prayers and honestly ask myself if I really follow through on my prayers. That is, I wondered, was I helping the Lord to help answer my prayers?

Here are a few questions we could all ask ourselves: How often are my prayers "gimme" prayers or imploring petitions from which nothing seems to result?

After praying, do I really believe that God had heard and then proceed with more confidence?

Or do I close myself off from any help my prayer might bring by continuing to fret, worry and expect the worst?

Do I try to see what more I can be doing toward possible solutions?

In other words, do I really try to do my part? Or do I expect God to do everything while I just sit and wait for things to turn up? Is my follow-through what it should be?

Some months ago I met a man, a traveling supervisor, who had worked out a personal formula for handling problems. He assured me that the formula consistently got results, and I found it to be a very good example of sound praying and sound follow-through.

He told me his job was to visit various district offices, meet with groups of salesmen, servicemen and other personnel, discuss job activity with them and advise them how to get more efficiency and greater productivity.

This meant he was always listening to other people's problems — in addition to having problems of his own. He had read a few things of mine and generously said, "Believe it or not, I got something out of your stuff."

"That's nice to know," I said. "I'd like to know how my 'stuff' helped."

He said that my writings had given him new and creative ideas about problem-solving, but the main thing they did for him, it seems, was motivate him to study the Bible. And as a result of a rather serious Bible study he evolved this formula of his which worked so well in problem-solving.

He produced a piece of paper on which he had written it out. He handed it to me and I read it with interest. With his permission I copied some of the key phrases. There are six points to his formula. The first prescribes prayer; the other five represent the follow-through.

1. When faced with a problem pray about it, asking God's will, rather than your own, be done.

2. Having prayed, believe that God will bring the matter out all right.

3. Write the problem out in detail. This prevents mental confusion. By writing a problem out you get a clearer view of it.

4. In considering possible courses of action, always ask yourself what is the right thing. Nothing that is wrong ever works out right. Ask yourself if it is fair to everyone concerned.

5. Keep working at the problem and keep thinking. Try first one thing, then another, until you find the right solution.

6. When your problem is satisfactorily solved, thank God and give something to God's work. Keep alive the flow of his blessing.

Well, that was one man's program. It worked for him. When you pray you might give his system a try, and always "get busy and follow through."

William Wordsworth wrote in a favorite poem once: "The world is too much with us; late and soon, Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers: Little we see in Nature that is ours." Even that is gone.

When the Catholic Church reaches the state we are now in, I say we are living in times of great peril, indeed.

Another 'rip-off'

To The Editor:
Yesterday, Monday, I purchased a can of "flaked" coffee at a Midland supermarket, and on the top were three price tags, one on top of the other. The bottom tag showed a price of $2.45; the middle tag showed a price of $2.65, and the top tag showed a price of $2.89, the latest price.

The usual reasons given for higher coffee prices are:

A. Freeze of coffee bushes in Brazil.

B. Increased transportation costs.

C. Increased labor costs in roasting, packaging or local handling.

But how can these reasons apply to raising the price of a can of coffee originally on the shelf at $2.45?

The answer: just one instance of hundreds of similar "rip-offs" against the consumer by his (or her) "friendly" supermarket manager.

Thank you, Tim

To The Editor:
Praise God for a 16-year-old young man who has the courage to stand up for his convictions!

Thank God for a young man who knows what the word of God says about the pervasiveness that the rock group KISS promotes and is willing to speak out against it.

It is indeed ironic that a 16-year-old will write on an issue so important while an ordained minister prattles about the legality of printing our currency!

Selfish action

To The Editor:
"I think we have done our homework and the need is there." According to The Midland Reporter-Telegram, Sept. 19, this was one of the statements made by Trustee Johnny Warren in reference to justifying a $10.2 million bond issue that the Midland school board is proposing.

School board members also stated they were optimistic that progressive Midland citizens would "go along with us."

Has the board really done their homework? Yes, certainly a need has been determined. More funds are necessary to sustain an educational system for a growing community. However, has the board considered what the public will accept as a personal commitment? Have they forgotten or are they disregarding the heated atmosphere of this past summer?

Over 4,000 people signed petitions protesting the exploitation of eminent domain... seizure of land the board deemed necessary to expand Midland High. Petitioners were not only making a plea to "save the Hill house" but expressing disapproval of the manner in which the board conducts business. During this period the board's wisdom was questioned in the selling of properties already owned and demolishing a school building already in existence.

Perhaps one issue here is not whether the school board was justified in their actions but whether or not the public accepted their reasoning.

When viewing Midland High from certain angles, it appears to be resting on an island in a sea of parking lots (albeit streets are present). Convincing voters who have perceived the view that tax dollars should be used to uproot near-by residents for "needed expansion" may become a task that shall never be accomplished.

Should the board deny intelligent, progressive citizens the right to specify priorities in school spending? By asking for an all-or-nothing, the board is also asking for a vote of confidence. Through this selfish action, they risk losing the whole ball game.

Hidden meannies

To The Editor:
Although "Alcoholics Anonymous" has become more public now, it was originally "anonymous" for a very good reason. Years ago, people were ashamed to admit they were alcoholics.

One of the latest of the "Anonymous" groups can be found right here in Midland. Less than 30 in number, and so conscious of public opinion, they hold no meetings. That's obvious, with a name like "Meanies Anonymous."

These people object to spending public money for even a good or humanitarian purpose without some use of judgment and reason. They are for unlimited spending of private money for good and humanitarian causes. But, they are for careful review and practical controls in the spending of public money for any cause and for all causes.

Any form of this meanness will qualify one for membership in "Meanies Anonymous." But, because human nature is so prone to reju-dice, many people have one form of this disease. We insist that members prove their eligibility by admitting to two forms of this disease.

As an example: In my case, I admit that I believe, even in the extreme case of need of the Vietnamese boat people, the government should exercise judgment and reason. Some thought should be given to the immediate and the future effect on our country and our economy when we receive the very large numbers of refugees we have promised to welcome.

And, my second form is even more disgusting. I believe that reason and judgment should be used in determining how much should be spent by government to aid the handicapped. Being somewhat physically handicapped myself, I am conscious of the many ways people are handicapped.

Certainly there is a responsibility for the government to help handicapped citizens. Government responsibility is, therefore, measured in money. How much should we spend to help the handicapped? But, even more important is how and where it is to be spent.

So, I qualified as a member of "Meanies Anonymous."

Burial for pets

To The Editor:
I have read with interest your very fine front page article about Midland's Pet Cemetery in the Sunday, Sept. 16, edition. Your community is fortunate to have such an excellent facility when needed by pet lovers.

Your article stated "the only other pet cemetery close to Midland is in El Paso." That is not quite the case for here in Abilene there is a privately owned pet cemetery which has been in operation since 1968. Deceased pets have been brought here for burial from Big Spring, Snyder and other nearby places and one was brought from Ohio.

We thought your local people would like to know that they are not really so alone.

Misquoted facts

To The Editor:
I would have to agree with others that the sports coverage of local sports is minimal. But when the facts are misquoted like they were in Saturday's paper, they need to be corrected.

Bob Dillon stated that it was the first time in 13 years that Midland Bulldogs defeated Lubbock Monterey. Let's look back just four short years ago (1975) when Coach John Reddell's crew did it easily with a score of 28 to 14. In fact it was 28 to 0 at the half. Don't get me wrong because this year's team is a good strong team that will win a lot of ballgames. Some of the team members of the '75 team were James Zachery (Texas A&M), Philip Ward (Baylor), Rusty Maroney (Texas Tech), Shene Fletcher (Eastern New Mexico) and many others that contributed to this victory.

So let's get the facts straight and print a correction.

On KISS, Reese

To The Editor:
In response to two articles in the September 23 edition of this section of your paper, I would like to render my opinion, please.

The article by Tim Hicks concerning "KISS" was very refreshing, and showed wisdom beyond his years. I agree with his views and would encourage every Midlander to boycott this type of programming scheduled in the Chaparral Center. If the promoters of this type trash lost money, they would include us OUT the next time they were looking for suckers to fleece. Everyone understands cancer of the body and what it can lead to; "KISS" and similar garbage leads to cancer of the SOUL. I think we should be careful and avoid this unnecessary contamination.

I do not agree with Burr Williams concerning Charley Reese. I think Mr. Reese is a very informed, concerned, and brave man. He is one of a few that has the guts to tell it like it is. Every one will not like what he says, but rest assured, he knows what he is talking about. Not to imply that he is in the same category, but just you remember this, everyone did not like what JESUS CHRIST preached either. Personally, I'm glad I can love them both.

Sierra Blanca ranchland doctor practices in boots, jeans

By BILL GREER

SIERRA BLANCA, Texas (AP) — Before Gordon Cox, a city-educated doctor, turned down an $80,000-a-year private practice for jeans, boots and a one-man practice, this little West Texas town had been without a physician for 27 years.

And until Cox opened his office in July, the 600 residents of this little railroad boom town made the 80-mile roundtrip to Van Horn when they needed medical attention.

Now the town has a doctor, who says he stays busy in his tiny office — so busy that he can't even leave town on Sunday, his day off.

"We're in a position now where there is a lady who is going to have a baby any time. I'm available all the time."

"Right now, since the lady is so close, I don't leave."

Cox also keeps watch over a 2-month-old girl who spent her first six weeks in intensive care at an El Paso hospital, about 85 miles west of here.

"She just stops breathing," he says. "Three times now she's almost died and I've been able to get her breathing again."

Cox, 32, interned in Brooklyn, N.Y., and was completing his residency at Texas Tech's regional health center at El Paso when he heard townspeople were looking for a doctor.

With a smile beneath his thick, dark mustache, Cox says, "We were sitting around at lunch shooting the bull when this guy came down the hall and said, 'We need a doctor.'

"I came out and looked and I liked the town."

The "guy" was Henry O. "Tex" West, a husky, 64-year-old Sierra Blanca rancher who led the search to find medical care for his town.

"I realized the need for a doctor when a very good friend died and there was no medical facility. So I went after one," West says, slamming his sunburned and weatherworn hamlike hand to the table.

West worked for a year to get a doctor. He helped Sierra Blanca start a non-profit corporation to fund the operation. Cox was hired by the government to man the small clinic, previously a land sales office.

"The community set up this building," Cox says. "They had a bingo game and a cake sale." A loaf of bread went for $80 and a candy bar for $100.

Cox sees most patients at the office. But he does make house calls in his four-wheel drive vehicle.

"I got that Jeep because I have to make house calls 30 or 40 miles out in the middle of nowhere," he says. "If someone calls and says there is an elderly person who can't get out of bed, I jump in my Jeep and go see them."

The doctor wears a stethoscope over his western-style shirt. His laboratory smock covers part of his jeans. And he never goes out without his boots and straw cowboy hat. He is ready for the tough country he covers.

His apparel also fits his sideline, raising cattle. Cox says he has a partner who takes care of the 50 head of cattle grazing on nearby leased land.

He says the townspeople pay what they can for his services, adding that ranchers don't often visit doctors.

For recreation, "there's the movies and there's a small lounge across the street from the movies," says Cox, who is single. He lives in a trailer but plans to build a ranch home if he finds he has enough patients to sustain his practice.

Cox says the government will take a look at the operation next summer to determine if the money is being spent wisely. A decision then will be made on whether to continue the service.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When my son and daughter-in-law gave me a surprise birthday party for my 70th birthday, my granddaughter decided to do something different, since my birthday was on Valentine's Day. She made a large red pillow in the shape of a heart out of material that can be written on. She had each guest write a few words and sign their name. I keep it on my sofa in the living room and look over the fifty names and sayings very often. It's been six years and many are deceased, but this is a memory long to be treasured. "Bubbe Lilly" Now wasn't that sweet! Memories are priceless, as are our friends, and I consider you one of mine. Hugs, Heloise

They are wonderful walking shoes and I'd be so happy to get the squeak out!
Evelyn Dauter
Wow, nothing's more embarrassing than to squeak when walking down the street. Seems your problem may be a little more than just moisture in your shoes. Since the powder trick didn't work, you might try putting a couple of tacks on the soles of your shoe, one on each side of the metal arch support. If this doesn't do the trick, then it may be necessary to take them to a shoe repairman. He may need to remove the sole or heel and, either cement a piece of cloth between sole and shoe, or put talcum powder between them. Heloise

DEAR READER:
This is your column. If you'd like to share a hint, ask a question or make a suggestion, write me care of this newspaper. Hugs, Heloise

Just for Kids

MY DOLL'S NEW DRESS!
DEAR HELOISE:
My grandma and I were just fiddling around and sewing. I folded some cloth, cut it in the shape of my little stand-up doll, making a hole for the head. I then put it over her head and tied a piece of cloth around her waist, and wow! some doll clothes, and I didn't sew one bit. Kristy Beal, Age 10

SEE MY PRETTY PENCILS!
DEAR HELOISE:
I found a great way to get a pencil holder without spending any money. First, you get a bathroom tissue roll and glue a piece of cardboard under it (this will let it stand up). Then put paper around it for decoration. This will hold your pens and pencils. Janine Fusco, Age 12

TRICK OF THE WEEK
DEAR HELOISE:
For a nourishing snack treat for our grandchildren when they come to visit, I make ice on a stick out of the unsweetened orange juice, diluting only by two and one-half cans of water instead of the suggested three. They love them this way and can have as many as they like without fear of too many sweets before meals. Grandma
Susan VanderGeest

MY MAGAZINE RACK
DEAR HELOISE:
You can use large detergent boxes to store magazines in. Cut the top of the soap box off at an angle. Then cover the box with adhesive-backed paper of your choice. It makes a handy place to keep magazines you want to save. Susan VanderGeest

A PURL OF TIP
DEAR HELOISE:
When I knit or crochet a pattern where each row is different, I have trouble staying with the right row all the way across the instruction sheet. Now I underline each row in the pattern with a felt tipped pen, each row in a different color. It's a lot easier to stay on Row 1 when it's underlined in red, Row 3 in green, Row 5, purple, etc. Isabelle J. Richter

THAT'S GRANDMA!
DEAR HELOISE:
When I make a gift such as a little dress for a granddaughter who cannot yet read, I enclose a picture of myself in the pocket. The family lives at such a distance that she sees me infrequently, and this little system works well, as she recognizes me as the donor. Betty Shank
I like this idea, and you for writing. Thanks, hon. Heloise

BOX TOP TIP!
DEAR HELOISE:
We all save coupons and box tops for one thing or another, and sometimes mail them in. I found I could slip a knife under the coupon and pull it off the cardboard, leaving a thin paper. When enclosing 100 coupons, or even 50, it saves postage not to have all of that cardboard to pay for. Mrs. Wesley Moore

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

By HAL FOSTER

Our Story: LORD VANOC ARRIVES IN CAMELOT WITH A RETINUE OF SERVANTS, SQUIRES, LADY'S MAIDS... AND... ONE DELIGHTED PAGEBOY, GALAN.

FIRST GALAN HAS TO SEE THAT THE SERVANTS BRING ALL THE RIGHT LUGGAGE TO THE RIGHT ROOMS. THEN HE RACES TO THE ROYAL STABLES TO WASH, BRUSH DOWN AND FEED HIS WHITE HORSE.

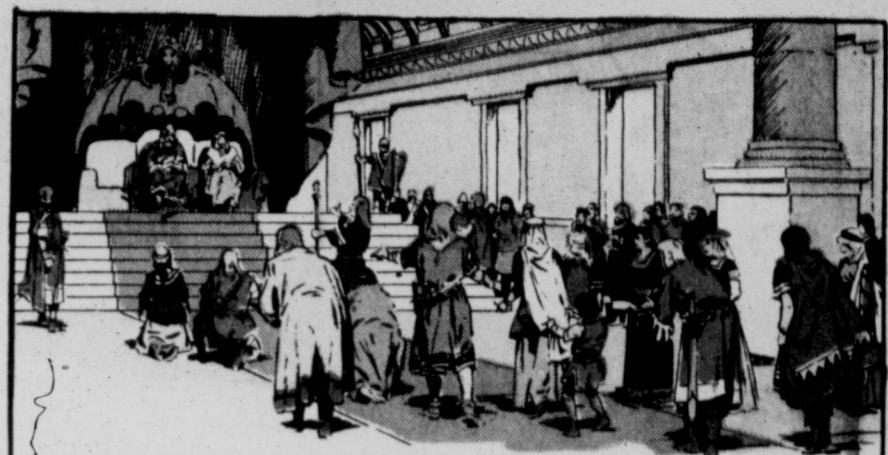

THEN, HIS WORK DONE, GALAN HURRIES TO THE FAMILY SUITE TO GREET HIS MOTHER. OH, HOW GOOD IT IS ONCE AGAIN TO FEEL HER FOND CARESS!

ANOTHER PROUD MOMENT COMES WHEN HE SEES THE MIGHTY SIR GAWAIN ATTENDED BY HIS YOUNG SQUIRE, PRINCE ARN. IN GALAN'S EYES, ARN IS JUST AS NOBLE AS GAWAIN.

... AND HE MUST HELP LORD VANOC DRESS FOR HIS PRESENTATION TO THE KING.
