Oil slick expected to arrive on Texas coast Tuesday

By KEN HERMAN

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Government scientists preparing for a long and costly battle against a Mexican oil slick are now predicting the runaway crude will spill into U.S. waters Sunday.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration official John Robinson also predicted Thursday that the first traces of the oil may hit the South Texas coast Tuesday.

"We expect to be here a long time," Robinson, who is in charge of the

It took about two months for the oil from the blown-out Bay of Campeche well to make the trek to near U.S. waters. The latest flights over the spill area showed the oil to be about 40 to 50 miles south of Brownsville. It has already spewed globs of tarry oil onto several Mexican beaches.

The leading edge of the slick is expected to drift within 10 to 15 miles east of the South Texas coast this weekend. About 150 scientists, engineers and Coast Guardsmen are now heading U.S. efforts against the

None of the officials at a Thursday press conference would estimate how much the effort is costing.

Robinson said the oil nearest the United States probably came out of the well shortly after the June 3 blowout. The scientist said oil may keep flowing north two months after the well is cappe. Capt. Jse Orozco of he Mexica Navy said Thrsday tha the well may be capped by Sept. 16.

The Coast Guard is sending men and equipment, at the requestof the Mxican government, to the well site to help contain and collect the spewing crude, said a Coast Guard official in Washington.

Orozco said the flow of oil from the well is now down to 20,000 barrels a day - reduced from an original flow of 50,000 barrels.

Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, head of the combined U.S. effort, said he will soon decide when to activiate massive oil containment gear mobilized to battle the world's largest oil spill. The boom and skimmer equipment is now ready for use here and in Brownsville. The "foating fences" will be the first line of defense against the potentially damaging oil.

'We will not attempt to recover all the oil floating in the Gulf of Mexico,' Madson said. "That would be a physical impossibility.

The captain said the top priority is to protect the Laguna Madre. The bay separates South Padre Island from the mainland and is environmentally vulnerable.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service teams are standing by to perform bird cleaning operations if needed.

Madson said Coast Guard planes would today continue their tracking efforts. He indicated the barriers may be set up east of Brownsville Satur-

Construction delay caused lay-off

Hospital official points to reduced patient load

By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

The lay-off of 22 Midland Memorial Hospital employees this week was an 'internal adjustment needed to strike a balance" in the number of employees to the number-of patients in the hospital, according to Tevis Herd, president of the hospital's board of

The action was taken after the contractor for a $10 million renovation and expansion program under way at the hospital told members of the board's building committee construction would be delayed some three to four months beyond the scheduled completion date.

Both Herd and Ed Magruder, president of the board of directors of the Midland County Hospital District, the hospital's taxing agency, were at the meeting, Herd said.

The delay will result in a net loss of about 30 available beds during traditionally high-occupancy months of February and March, hospital administrator Wayne Ulrich said Thurs-

In addition to the 22 let go this week, another 80 to 90 employees will be lost through attrition over the next few months, Ulrich noted.

No professional nursing staff mem bers were laid off, Herd stressed, although future vacancies in the nursing staff will be reviewed carefully before they are filled.

The over-staffing problem, Herd said today, primarily was caused by the construction and renovation program under way at the hospital.

"We've been expanding the hospital and trying to make sure we're not understaffed," Herd said, but fewer patients than expected have come to the hospital during the construction.

Hospital officials expected about 120 to 125 patients in June, Herd noted, while actual patient load was only about 106.

'It's not something you can your finger on, but a certain number have not come here" because of the on-going construction program, Herd said.

"We expect, once the hospital is finished, it will attract more patients, so we will be looking at adding staff within six to nine months," he said.

No public announcement of the staffing change was made, Herd said, because "it was just an adjustment needed to be taken internally to strike the right balance," he noted

Most of the staff cuts were made in dietary, housekeeping, medical records and purchasing departments.

When company personnel arrived at the depot to claim the suitcase, it was discovered to be missing, said Big Spring Police Department officials today.

According to reports, a Midlander then contacted the Midland Police Department and Texas Rangers to report that the informant's friend, a Big Spring resident, had been told by a third man that he had stolen some checks from a bus depot and was

Andrews men released after theft indictments

According to Chief Deputy Roger Andrews of the Andrews County Sheriff's Department, all three men surrendered themselves to the sheriff's office after the indictments were returned.

Donaldson and Brewer posted bonds totalling $6,000 each and Pipkin posted a $3,000 bond. Two indictments were returned against Donaldson, District Clerk Vernis

The indictments allege that on May 9, 1979, Donaldson, then supervisor for Phillips Petroleum in Andrews, converted to his own use contract labor employed by Phillips Petroleum. The indictments allege he used contract roustabout labor for work in

State workers don't get paid until they pay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - More than 200 state employees who defaulted on college student loans may not get their August paychecks, says State Comptroller Bob Bullock, a computer

Bullock said state law prohibits a person who owes the state money from receiving state payments.

The former students who owe debts were identified in a computer crosscheck of loan defaults against July state payrolls, he said Thursday in a statement.

The 200 former students owe the state $327,000 in amounts ranging from $48 to $7,781, Bullock said.

"This is the first time we've worked overdue student loans, and it's safe to say it won't be the last," Bullock

The 200 employees are among 24,685 named by the Texas College Coordinating Board as having defaulted on education loans totaling $39.6 mil-

Bullock said the August paychecks will be held by his department until the coordinating board reports the debts have been settled.

"Leaving college without paying back state-sponsored education loans is going to be a lot tougher than skipping book fines," said Bullock.

Duncan on Thursday rejected the school board's request that busing be implemented in a two-step process, with elementary school students bused at the start of this school year and older students a year later.

The plan he approved more than a year ago will be implemented, school officials said. It calls for busing mre than 3,000 pupils in the 83,400-pupil school system, which is 36 percent

Superintendent Joseph Davis said he is calling school administrators back to work Aug. 6, a week ahead of schedule, to prepare for opening of school Sept. 5.

Columbus Board of Education President David Hamler, one of three minority members on the board, said, "the time for procrastination is over" and the district must set about the task of desegregation

Investigators probing nuclear drama say it didn't have to happen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators probing the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island say there's plenty of blame to go around. Yet a key question remains: Was human or mechanical error the chief villain in the nation's most frightening atomic drama?

Nuclear Regulatory Commission investigators concluded Thursday that operators at the Pennsylvania plant could have prevented a serious accident if they had followed written procedures and not interfered with automatic safety devices.

Yet the NRC also attributed some of the operator actions to false training and noted that if equipment had been designed differently, "that too could have prevented or reduced the consequences" of the accident

"The result of the investigation makes it difficult to fault only the actions of the operating staff," wrote Victor Stello, director of the NRC's Office of Inspection and Enforcement.

Yet Stello said the NRC's investigation showed that the plant's emergency procedures, design and equipment were adequate "to have prevented the serious consequences of the accident, if they had been permitted to function or be carried out as planned."

The chairman of the presidential panel investigating the March 28 accident agreed with the NRC's general conclusions, but argued that operator error probably was only one of perhaps 10 or 20 factors that contributed

"I think by now everyone concedes there was operator error," declared commission chairman John G. Kemeny, "That's very different from saying that operator error was the cause of the accident."

The degree of blame attributed to operator error contrasted to design or mechanical deficiencies could have significant implications in future law suits arising from the accident, including possible legal action by owners of the reactor against manufacturers who designed it, some investigators say privately.

Furthermore, say these sources close to the presidential commission's probe, segments of the nuclear industry have emphasized human error and inadequate training as opposed to questionable design and machinery because it will be easier and cheaper to change training procedures than re-design reactors

In testimony before the Kemeny Commission, Three Mile Island technicians and NRC officials said repeatedly in recent months that the accident demonstrated the need for better instrumentation to determine the water level in the reactor core; the need for better monitors of radiation inside the plant; and venting valves that do not stick open when they should be closed.

Perhaps no part of the sequence of events at Three Mile Island better demonstrates the complexity of human as opposed to mechanical error than the dispute over the "misunderstood pressurizer level."

Plant operators shortly after the March 28 accident began used the reactor's pressurizer level as a signal that there was enough water in the reactor core. As the level rose, the operators began to fear the reactor cooling system would overfill — that is, "go solid."

As a result, at a critical time a plant operator turned off the high pressure injection system that was forcing emergency cooling water into the core when in fact the reactor core was uncovered.

The NRC investigation concluded Thursday: "Had the operators allowed the emergency core cooling system to perform its intended function, damage to the core could most likely have been prevented.' The report continued, "There is considerable evidence of a 'mind set' not only at TMI ... but by operators at other plants as well, that overfilling the reactor coolant system was to be avoided at almost any cost ... (leading) them to ignore other procedural instructions and indications that the core was not being properly cooled."

Operators have conceded their mistake but say they were following their training and the NRC investigators said its own training section concluded that the operators acted as they "would be expected to do based on their training and experience.'

Furthermore, the NRC has said since the accident that instrumentation to determine the status of the reactor core was inadequate and directed that separate instruments be installed to specifically measure the

Manual's instruction to slow plane caused DC-10 crash

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) - A DC-10 manual instructing pilots to slow down if they lose an engine contributed to the May 25 Chicago crash that killed 273 people, says a spokesman for the Airline Pilots Assocation.

Testifying at a National Transportation Safety Board hearing, Dale Leppard said Thursday that slowing down the American Airlines plane left it without enough velocity to stay in the air. The hearings on the crash at O'Hare International Airport enter their fifth day today.

Leppard said when the engine fell off during takeoff, pilot Walter Lux followed instructions and immediately reduced speed, which prevented the plane from pulling out of a stall. A stall results when an aircraft has insufficient lift to stay aloft.

Art Kressley, an aerodynamics specialist for McDonnell Douglas Corp., maker of the DC-10, said slowing down hurt Lux's attempts to right the plane.

Kressley said the minimum airspeed "may not be the best speed to correct for the problems resulting from a lost engine.

The DC-10 manual is issued by McDonnell Douglas and approved by the federal government.

Capt. Walter - W. Estridge, DC-10 pilot training director for America, said th instruction bout engie loss should not be changed because of the "I don't believe procedures could be written that could handle that situation in that time frame," he said. "It would take some time to evaluate what course of action to take in that situation" of multiple system fail-

Since the crash at O'Hare, the worst crash in the nation's history, airlines have increased the minimum speed for their DC-10s, which is determined individually for each flight by a computer that calculates the plane's weight, wind conditions, runway length and other factors. A program manager for the Federal Aviation Administration, James Smith, testified that he was able, in flight simulator tests, to bring a DC-10 out of the same condition that confronted Lux.

But Smith said he knew before the tests that an engine would drop, that a stall would develop and that the hy-draulic and electrical systems would fail almost completely.

Estridge said he was "extremely proud" of the way Lux reacted during the 30-second flight. "He was doing exactly what he was taught in that combination of bizarre circumstances.'

The NTSB has said pilot error did not cause the crash. Investigators said Lux could not have avoided the crash with the time and information available to him.

Mexican-American to be put up for federal judgeship

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Only one Mexican-American will be among those U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen will recommend to fill four federal judgeships in the heavily-Hispanic Western District of Texas, the San Antonio Express said today

The newspaper quoted federal sources as saying Bentsen would recommend State District Court Judges H.F. "Hippo" Garcia and Fred Shannon of San Antonio, Odessa attorney Lucius Bunton and U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth of El Paso.

Bentsen spokesman Jack Devore declined comment, but said the senator would make his recommendations

Garcia, Shannon and Bunton, contacted by the Express, declined to confirm or deny the report. Hudspeth was not available for comment.

If confirmed, Garcia would become the first Mexican-American named to a judgeship in the sprawling district, which stretches from Waco 600 miles westward to El Paso. Garcia would be the third Hispanic federal judge in Mexican-American leaders, displaying Southwest Voter Registration Education Project figures that show 33 percent of the district's residents are Hispanic, had demanded that Bentsen recommend at least two Mexican-Americans.

One of the vacancies was created by Congress and another by the assassination May 29 of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. The other two were created when Chief U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears and Judge D.W. Suttle took senior status. Spears and Suttle plan to remain

Garcia, 52, was elected to the 144th District Court in 1974, while Shannon, 36, was appointed by Gov. Dolph Brisco to the 131st District Court position Bunton is president-elect of the

Jackson sees end to apartheid

NEW YORK (AP) -Describing South Africa as both a "treasure and tragedy," the Rev. Jesse Jackson predicts that the "anti-human phenomenon of apartheid" would end in his lifetime.

The black activist cites growing internal and external forces within the country as reasons for his confident statement.

Jackson spoke at a news conference Thursday night after returning from a two-week trip to South Africa, where he met and spoke with government officials, black ministers, students, and American and African business leaders.

Internally, he said a growing number of white South Africans were beginning to see the "futi-lity" of apartheid.

'Windfall profits' doesn't set well

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry still is not sitting well with the Senate Finance

Members of the committee Thursday renewed their criticism of the measure, which seeks to tax the expected flow to the oil industry of billions of dollars from higher oil prices. The price rises are due to Carter's decision to gradually lift price controls on domestically produced crude oil.

Committee chairman Russell B. Long and, apparently, most members of the tax-writing committee want to let the oil industry keep most of the increased revenue.

But the administration wants to impose the excise tax and use the money to finance development of alternative fuels, aid mass transit and help the poor pay their energy bills. The House has gone along with this approach.

Long, a Democrat from the oil-state of Louisiana, said he felt it was "very important to get more (oil) production before the next election."

"If we have people standing in line next year," he said, "I think that's going to be very bad fo the president and it might even be bad for me.' Long is running for re-election next year, as Carter is expected to do.

The committee will resume work on the measure on Sept. 6 following the August recess

In a related development, outgoing Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger predicted Congress would pass a windfall tax by winter.

At a news conference Thursday, Schlesinger said he also expected the House and Senate to adopt some type of standby gasoline rationing authority and an Energy Mobilization Board to speed up major energy decisions.

But the dwindling gas lines and recent Carter Cabinet shake-up have served to cut into the momentum toward passage of the president's new energy proposals, he said. He also said the long gas lines are probably gone for the summer but could return next summer. In another development, Energy

Card rule reversed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Department of Energy reversed itself Thursday and said that service stations cannot charge motorists extra if they pay by credit card for gasoline and other services.

On Tuesday, the department issued final regulations allowing service station operators to charge a fee for honoring credit cards. But in a joint announcement Thursday, the agency and the Federal Trade Commission warned dealers that the practice was illegal under the federal Truth in Lending Act.

Energy Department officials had been besieged with criticism over its original ruling, leading to a restudy of the regu-

"It is unfair to put the service station operator in the middle on this issue," Rep. Frank Annun-zio, D-Ill., chairman of the House consumer affairs subcommittee, said Wednesday.

"On one hand, the Department of Energy leads the operator to believe that there is nothing wrong with surcharging a credit card, when such an action could land the service station operator in jail," he said.
Under federal law, Annunzio said, anyone adding a surcharge to a credit card purchase can be sentenced to up to a year in jail or fined $5,000, or both.

Even before the congressman's warning, independent dealers were lambasting Energy Department rules that let them charge extra for such services as washing windshields, checking oil and filling tires, as well as honoring credit cards.

Mexico gas deal snagged

By JOHN M. BERRY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Negotiations between the United States and Mexico over natural gas are apparently snagged because the Mexicans have raised their asking price, but the Carter administration Thursday denied reports that the talks had col-

'The negotiations...have been encouraging," said outgoing Energy Secretary James Schlesinger. "They continue. We are hopeful, though have no certainty, that they will ultimately result in a contract price that is agreeable to both nations."

If an agreement on price is not reached soon, it could mean postponement of an official visit to the United States by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo planned for late this month or next. Signing of the agreement to sell the United States about 250 million cubic feet of gas a year is supposed to be the high point of the planned meeting with President

In a news conference, Schlesinger reiterated earlier assurances that there will be ample home heating oil supplies this winter. He also predicted that gasoline prices could decline slightly later in the year, but that some spot shortages could develop next year.

U.S. officials had been optimistically predicting that agreement would be reached at a meeting in Mexico last Friday. That did not happen, however, and there were unconfirmed reports that the Mexicans had upped their demanded price unexpectedly to more than $4 per thousand cubic feet of gas (mcf).

Currently, U.S. buyers pay about $2.80 per mcf for gas exported by Canada. Two-hundred and fifty billion cubic feet of gas a year is less than 2 percent of U.S. consumption. Schlesinger said that "the original contract that was signed by six American firms (in 1977) called for a price equal to the Btu equivalent of No. 2 fuel oil in New York Harbor. If that original contract were now in effect, the price would thus be something on the order of $4.40 per thousands cubic feet, about twice as much as we are paying for new gas from our own domestic producers. Schlesinger was widely criticized for blocking implementation of that contract. He has stressed repeatedly that he believes there will be no market for the gas unless it is prices to compete with residual fuel oil - a heavy oil used by industry and electric utilities.

The comparability of different fuels is often measured in terms of heat content expressed in British thermal units, or Btus. Currently, the price of natural gas corresponding to the price of residual fuel oil is about $3.75 per mcf, but that does not include the cost of delivery. The price U.S. negotiators were believe to be urging was about $3.50 per mcf.

Schlesinger sarcastically noted that reports that the talks had collapsed originated in California. "Some of the sources seem to be located in the capital city of that state, Sacramen-'he said.

President will have to wait for gas rationing authority

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - House and Senate negotiators are trying to fashion a compromise standby gasolinerationing plan, but President Carter will have to wait until after Labor Day to get it.

The president and Democratic congressional leaders had hoped to have the bill on the president's desk by Thursday night - before the start of the congressional August recess. But that was not to be.

"We had to weigh symbolism against practicality," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., one of the Senate conferees of the bill.

He said he hoped a final version acceptable to the House, the Senate and Carter could be enacted "by early September.'

Both Senate leaders and the White House denounced the standby rationing bill passed by the House late Wednesday. The Senate rejected the House version by voice vote Thurs-

Among the House-added provisions the White House would like to see scrapped are:

-A Republican-backed amendment weakening the president's 78degree thermostat program.

Liter sales to begin

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — A Standard Oil of Indiana Co. subsidiary will try selling gasoline by the liter in the Muskegon area this month - and if it is a success, the sales method may be used nationally.

Owen Wavrinek, a spokesman for Amoco in Chicago, said Thursday that the Muskegon tests will decide if pricing by the liter is practical nationally. He said Standard Oil of Indiana sells gasoline across the nation, except fo the WestCoast. The liter, a metric unit, is just over one quart. There are 3.8 liters per Wayrinek said seven Muskegonarea stations were chosen for the tests since "we feel it's a typical Midwestern market.' Naph-Sol, a Muskegon-based oil company, began selling gaoline bythe liter here in May and now has 31 of its 61 company-owned Zephyr stations across the Midwest using that system. That firm will convert all its company-owned stations to sales by

"I can't see any other way to go but metric," said Bruce Decker, manager of retail stations for Naph-Sol.

Decker said his company rejected as too expensive converting gasoline pumps to show prices of more than $1 per gallon and considered charging by the half gallon deceptive since the purchaser must pay twice the sum shown on the pump's meter.

House "has been riddled with loopholes," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committeee.

"It has all the appearance of a rationing plan but it's really not a rationing plan that makes any ratio-nal sense," Jackson said.

But House Democratic Whip John Brademas said senators shouldn't be so quick to find fault with the House bill. He noted that the House had completely rejected the president's original rationing plan last May 10 by a wide margin. "It wasn't easy to turn it around," he said. "I'm going home to say to my constituents that the House, after making a mistake (in May), redeemed itself and passed a bill. It was a victory. Byrd, in a Senate speech, dismissed the symbolic importance of sending the bill to the president before the "Symbolism is not the issue," he said. "There is no gain in passing a plan for the purpose of symbolism if the plan isn't going to work."

He also indicated the White House shouldn't be critical of Congress for not getting the measure out before its August recess — noting that when the House rejected Carter's original plan in May, the president refused to propose a new one. The president could have sent another plan up to the Hill rather than simply washing his hands and saying, 'I challenge you to come up with something," Byrd said.

The House passed its amendmentladen version of the rationing bill by a 263-159 vote late Wednesday.

And although the Senate planned to continue working today before beginning its recess, the House adjourned at 6 p.m. Thursday until after Labor

Committee recommends Texas tax on uranium

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - An energy advisory committee has recommend ed that the Legislature levy a uranium production tax, which the committee estimates could bring in at last $200 million during the 1980s

The committee also offered recommendations on the emotional issue of the storage of nuclear waste, some of which remains potentially dangerous for thousands of years.

The Advisory Comittee on nuclear Energy of the Texas Energy Advisory Council said Thursday the Office of Nuclear Waste Isolation in Columbus, Ohio, has narrowed from 263 to eight the salt domes it is considering for underground nuclear storage in the interior Gulf Coast.

The eight include the Keechi, Palestine and Oakwood domes in East Texas. The committee said salt formations in the Permian Basin near

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market slipped lower in late trading on Thursday on news of a worsening recession and a larger trade deficit.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up slightly for much of the day, declined in the last hour and closed down 2.39 at 847.95.

But advancing issues outnumbered gainers by almost a 4-3 margin as 37.72 million shares were traded on the New York Stock Exchange, the highest volume since July 10.

The Carter administration's internal economic forecast, reported Thursday, predicts the recession will be deeper than the government had previously admitted, although still not nearly as severe as the most recent recession, in 1974-75. The forecast, which was leaked to reporters, also said inflation and unemployment will be higher in 1980 than previously predicted, al-though the 8.8 percent infla-tion rate forecast for that year is still well below the current figure.

The Commerce Depart-ment reported the nation's second quarter merchanise trade deficit was $7.64 billion, up from a first quarter deficit of $6.1 billion largely due to increased imports of oil and small cars.

"The market expects a relatively contained recession, which will cause a decline in interest rates and the rate of inflation," said Monte Gordon, an analyst with Dreyfus Corp., adding that even the latest forecast still calls for a recovery to begin in 1980.

While the major stocks in the Dow showed little move-ment, the NASDAQ composite average for the over-thecounter market rose .64 to 142.54, for its sixth consecutive record. CNA Financial rose 1% to 13% after Loews Corp. said it planned to boost its holding in CNA from 57 percent to 76 percent. Loews climbed 3%

'Ramada Inn closed down 1/4 at 11% despite the deci-sion of the New Jersey Casino Control Commission ap proving Ramada's plans for an Atlantic City casino. The Commission delayed action on a bid by Resorts International to expand its casino, sending Resorts A stock down 1% to 45% on the American Stock Exchange.

Chrysler, reeling from a $207 million second quarter loss and seeking government aid, said it will not pay a third quarter dividend on its common stock, which fell 1/4

MGIC Investments, which gained 3% on Wednesday when it said it was holding preliminary merger discussions with several companies, fell back % to 32% Thursday. Retailing stocks were mixed, with K mart gaining 1/4 to 26 after reporting a 13 percent boost in July sales. Sears Roebuck slipped 1/8 to 18% after saying its sales fell 4.8 percent.

The Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials was down .15 to 115.02 and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down .07 to 104.10. The NYSE's composite index of 1,500 stocks declined .01 to 59.35. The Amex market value index rose .62 to

BUSINESS MIRROR Social Security beneficial, but it can be unfair

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Social Security is complex, beneficial and costly, among other things. And among the other things, according to Bill Gowan, it might also be unfair, inflationary and thieving.

Gowan's complaint isn't of the usual sort, although it's not uncommon. He recognizes that nearly everyone has a word of praise or going about the statement of the stateme one has a word of praise or a gripe about the system, but it didn't matter much until a few weeks ago.

It was then that he joined Goodyear Tire & Rubber as a regional office executive. At the time, he had already paid more than $900 in Social Security and Medicare withholding taxes through his previous Soon, he thought, he would complete his obligation for the year, which for 1979 amounts to $1,403.77, or 6.13 percent of the first $22,000 earned. But to his financial shock, that wasn't to be so.

INSTEAD, HE FOUND that Goodyear would have to ignore the $900 already paid into the fund and begin all over again. It would continue to deduct 6.13 percent of his paycheck for the rest of the year.

As a result, Gowan will by the end of the year have overpaid his obligation to Social Security by about $700. He couldn't believe it.

"Already I have deductions for federal, state and city income taxes," he moaned. "Now I have to pay Social Security twice." His finances, he said, were strained by the additional payments.

The company could do little to help, since it is obligated to see that employes pay their full amount into the system. To begin from scratch is apparently the only way, or the best way, to be certain.

Gowan will receive an income tax rebate for payments over $1,403.77, but it probably won't be received until next April or May. In effect, he will have lent out his money interest free for many months

WERE HE ABLE TO put the $700 in a passbook savings account at 5.5 percent interest for, say, six months, Gowan would be richer by $19.25.

But that's not the extent of his loss: His rebate, when he gets it, will be in cheaper dollars. At 10 percent inflation for six months, for example, he'd lose another $35, or a total of $54.25.

At least he'll get something back. The extra payments made by the companies, which by law must match his weekly deductions, are kept by Social Security. They make no attempt to return the money. None. "This is the way it was in the original law," one

Social Security spokeswoman "explained." She added: "It's just a cost of doing business." Further explanation, she said, must come from Washing-The Social Security spokesman in Washington did his best. "There are two reasons:" he said. "One philosophical, the other practical." FIRST THE practical: "The employee at income tax time gets a rebate, but how do you do that with the employers? The employers would have to get together and match data, and then we would have to And the philosophical: "There are two separate taxes involved. The employer tax is an excise on payroll; the employee tax is an income tax. People think of it as one tax shared by employer and employee, but it really is two different taxes." But, he was asked, why should either the company or employee be over-deducted? Shouldn't the worker and the company be able to verify the tax status during the year, so the proper amounts could be The spokesman's answer: It's impossible to do so.

Even Social Security officials, he said, don't know the status of a worker's payments during the year. He claimed they don't even receive such data until There is a way for the employee to fix matters on his own, even if the Internal Revenue Service might not like it. He can simply adjust his exemptions and therefore the amount withheld from each pay-

THAT IN EFFECT tosses the problem back to the government, but it does little to resolve the underlying difficulties. It may even create some bookkeeping problems between IRS and Social Security. But why worry?

Meanwhile, the search for logic continues but with few results. Gowan says he was read an IRS regulation covering some of the situation, number 31.3121.(a)(1) - (3), but doesn't know what to make He calls the situation "a gross theft of employee and employer, and an inflationary tax on business." He feels it is illogical that Social Security should benefit from worker mobility. Or from it's own slow data retrieval. Why, he asks?

Gowan understands that when the practice originated the sums were tiny, and that probably nobody really cared. But now, he correctly observes, the dollar numbers are big, both personally and corporately. INDEED, SOME corporate rumblings are being heard, but seemingly few. "Companies figure it as part of the cost of hiring," said Michael Romig, Social Security specialist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "For most it's peanuts. It doesn't amount to a hill of beans."

Shamrocks gain tourney finals

FREEPORT - Alan Koonce struck out 10 Thursday night in pitching the Midland J. I. O'Neill Shamrocks past Waco, 4-2, in the Texas Teen-Age State Hi-Junior Baseball Tourna-

The victory assures the Shamrocks, the only remaining undefeated team in the tourney, a spot in tonight's championship game, set for 6 against the winner of the Waco-Victoria game.

The Shamrocks' seven-hit attack was paced by Frankie Garromone who homered, Clay Bateman who tripled, Koonce who doubled and Russell Hays who went two for three.

In the first, Midland scored when Hays singled and came in on Bateman's triple. Then Bateman tallied on Jerry Zachery's sacrifice fly.

Upon learning of the death of one of the key players of his 1977 and 1978 world championship teams, Steinbrenner himself noted

Yankee Manager Billy Martin, the equal in toughness of the longtime Yankee catcher, called Munson "a close friend."

'I had one heck of a day today," said Expos outfielder Warren Cromartie. "I didn't sleep well last night, I got to the ball park at 11 o'clock, I got everything scared out of me by lightning and I took an 0-for.

Cromartie, 0-for-4 at the plate, nervously paced in left field in the top of the first. His mind, he admitted, wasn't where it should have been and his eyes were focused outside Olympic Stadium, where work crews were using two huge cranes to build a

'I kept looking up at those cranes," said Cromartie. "I didn't want no ricochet from those things. All I had in mind was to head for cover.

The first rain delay lasted 75 minutes. The second was 38 minutes and the third lasted two hours.

'He doesn't like thunder and lightning," Williams said of Cromartie, who was upset enough to commit a fielding error in the first inning. "I guess none of us do, but he doesn't like it more than the rest of us."

Montreal got two RBI from Larry Parrish, who knocked in Andre Dawson with a double in the fifth and had a run-scoring single in the sixth.

Williams didn't want to talk about the weather but he did mention a former teammate who took a unique approach to such conditions.

'We had a pitcher with Baltimore back in 1956 or '57, Connie Johnson," Williams recalled. "He said 'I don't mind them moving the furniture up there, but when they start messing with that electric light switch, I'm leaving.' He used to go inside and sit in his locker."

In other NL games, St. Louis rallied to nip Pittsburgh 5-4; the Phillies and Mets split a pair, Philadelphia taking the opener 7-4 and the Mets winning the second game 2-1, and Atlanta beat San Diego 7-2.

four-run St. Louis eighth inning robbed Jim Rooker of his 100th career victory. Keith Hernandez climaxed the comeback with a two-out single that scored Dane Iorg with the winning run.

Rooker, 99-105 lifetime, held a 4-1 lead entering the eighth but Ken Reitz led off with a double and a Rennie Stennett error followed.

Grant Jackson relieved and surrendered consecutive RBI singles to Mike Tyson and Iorg. Tyson scored on a fielder's choice prior to Hernandez' hit. "The Pirates have beaten us so many times in the ninth inning," noted Hernandez, "that it was nice for us to shut the door on them.' "All they did tonight was halt our

The Phils took the opener as Greg Luzinski drove in three runs and hit his 14th homer and Ron Reed, 8-6, hurled 52-3 innings of two-hit relief.

Mike Schmidt hit a major-league leading 37th home run in the nightcap but the combination of Pete Falcone, 3-6, and Neil Allen allowed just four other Philadelphia hits.

Braves 7, Padres 2 Tony Brizzolara, 6-6, threw an eight-hitter, Pepe Frias had a two-run triple and Gary Matthews knocked in two runs with a pair of singles for Atlanta.

"The last three games I haven't pitched too well and so it was about time I had a good one," said Brizzolara, a rookie. "I seem to pitch better at night. I've pitched three day games here and lost them all."

Munson had stormy career with Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) - Pitchers weren't the only ones who found Thurman Munson hard to handle.

"I'm a little too belligerent," he said at one point in his stormy career with the New York Yankees. "I cuss and swear at people. I yell at umpires and maybe I'm a little too tough at home sometimes. I don't sign as many autographs as I should and I haven't always been very good with the writers.'

Munson, who died in a plane crash in Ohio, Thursday, left a tough public image, reminiscent of baseball's oldtime "battlin' backstops."

And he earned it the hard way. While establishing an identity as one of the toughest catchers in the game, Munson literally fought his way to the top. One of his biggest adversaries along the way was Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox, with whom Munson kept up a running feud as well as a race for the best catcher in the American League. The fiery Munson finally established his position as the AL's top backstop when he won the league's Most Valuable Player award in 1976 while leading the Yankees to the pennant. He was also a key figure while the Yankees were winning World Championships in 1977 and 1978.

Along the way, Munson received the ultimate tribute when he was named captain, an honor that quite frankly puzzled him.

"Maybe they made me captain because I've been here so long," he mused in 1976. "(But) If I'm supposed to be captain by example, then I'll be a terrible captain."

Munson became a grim, uncompromising leader on a grim, if successful, team. Easily approachable to interviewers when he was in the minors, Munson soon professed a harsh dislike for the news media. Even after the best of his days, he would leave reporters languishing around his locker area while he remained in the shower or dawdled in the trainer's

"I'll talk about anything but baseball," he once said but even then would rarely talk at all.

When New York sports broadaster Jim Bouton tried to interview Munson once during spring training this year, he was rebuffed by the stocky catch-er, who grabbed his microphone and threatened physical violence.

New faces dot Cowboys' lineup

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) -The Dallas Cowboys starting lineup against the Denver Broncos Saturday night will include two new faces on offense and three on defense.

Head Coach Tom Landry said he wants to break from tradition and start some of his experienced back-up players during the pre-season Butch Johnson will start for Tony Hill at wide receiver, and David Hudgens will play right tackle for Ray-field Wright, who has been bothered by leg problems. On defense, Randy Hughes will fill in for strong safety Charlie Waters, Dennis Thurmond will replace Aaron Kyle at right cornerback, and Mike Hegman will start at strongside linebacker for Thomas Henderson. Kyle has a bruised left knee, Waters

a sprained left ankle, and Henderson an injured groin and wrist.

"We'll take another good look at our back-ups and rookies this week before starting to play the regulars more next week," Landry said.
