Big prime rate hikes shock business world

ment's latest credit-tightening actions have taken effect on the nation's major banks in the form of an unprecedented full percentage point rise in the prime lending rate to a record 141/2

The increase spread rapidly through the banking industry Tues. day, shocking many analysts who had felt that banks would take their time gradually raising the prime, which is charged by banks on loans to their best corporate customers.

The increase followed the Federal Reserve's announcement last Saturday of a strong program to fight inflation by pushing up interest rates and the amount of funds that banks must hold in reserve.

The prime does not directly affect consumer loan rates, which are limited by law in many states, but banks use it as the basis for setting interest rates on almost all loans to busin-

Mortgages in Texas face real problems

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Federal Reserve's decision to raise its discount rate means "real problems" for Texas' already sagging mortgage loan market, says Savings and Loan Commissioner Alvis Vandygriff.

He told the policy-making Savings and Loan Section of the Texas Finance Commission on Tuesday that conventional home loans already are drying up in many places."

The Federal Reserve raised the discount rate - the interest rate charged banks when they borrow money from the "Fed" - to a record 12 percent over the weekend.

Vandygriff said the increase in the discount rate "means we've got some real problems facing us ... There is going to be a drying up of this mortgage money the way it is going."

He later told reporters, "I read a good possibility the prime rate will increase before the week is gone. If it does, it will dry up the possibility of additional mortgage money.'

Vandygriff said the discount rate sets off a chain reaction on other interest rates and could quickly force up the interest rate on savings and loan money market certificates. As of this Thursday, they must pay 10.662 percent on new certificates. The certificates are the fastest growing form of savings in Texas, and Vandygriff says they now represent about -34 percent of savings and loan deposits. Meanwhile, he said, Texas' floatingusury ceiling is at 11 percent and will rise to 111/4 percent on Nov. 1.

"An increase in the money market certificates is going to nearly make it prohibitive to lend at 1114 percent, Vandygriff said. "It will make it really difficult for them (savings and loans) to lend at the state limit at this

L.L. Bowman of Greenville, chair-League's legislative committee, said "there is a strong feeling" among nembers of the organization to ask Gov. Bill Clements to include the usury ceiling in a special legislative back to the well one more time on the usury limit ... We've got a stronger message now than we did then, if they'll listen to us," Bowman said

Banks use the prime, which is the rate charged the most credit-worthy corporate borrowers, as the basis for setting interest rates on almost all loans to businesses.

According to financial analysts, the increase Tuesday means that savings banks and savings and loan associations, which provide the majority of home mortgages in the nation, will lose some deposits and have to pay more for the ones they keep. Savings and loans, which borrow from commercial banks, also will encounter the high prime lending rate.

Eventually, mortgage money will become scarce, especially in states that limit mortgage rates, some banking analysts say

According to records at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the average weekly prime rate has never changed by more than half a percentage point since the prime's inception

Although the prime does not directly affect consumer loan rates, it is regarded as an indicator of credit conditions generally.

The prime reflects interest rates in the "money market," a name used to describe dealings in various types of debt instruments and borrowings that are a major source of funds banks use to make loans.

Money market rates, such as the federal funds rate, the interest charged on overnight loans of excess reserves between banks, have soared under the influence of the strong antiinflation program announced by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A

The federal funds rate stood at cause an even higher rise in costsabout 11% percent Friday. On Tuesday the rate hit 15 percent before ending trading at 13 percent, according to Salomon Brothers, an investment banking company The Fed's program included raising the discount rate - the fee charged by the Fed on loans to its member banks - to a record 12 percent and raising the amount of money member banks are required to leave on reserve with the Fed. The higher reserve requirements applied to several types of money market instruments and borrowings that banks depend on as sources of lendable funds.

Excessive growth in the money supply is believed to be a cause of inflation, which has been running at an annual rate of about 13 percent this year, as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

By dropping its emphasis on keep ing the federal funds rate steady, "the Federal Reserve for the first time is allowing the (money) market to set its own rates," said Larry Kudlow, banking analyst at Bear, Stearns & Co. "What we had was an immediate adjustment of market rates to reflect the inflation rate," he said. "Rates took a one-step jump.'

Slow growth, higher prices and a deterioration of the overall current account balance will plague industrialized nations through 1980, according to the director of the West's economic braintrust.

Oil industry rally slated for Tuesday

Support for the oil industry will be demonstrated at noon next Tuesday with a Midland rally to be held on the front lawn of the County Courthouse, according to a statement released today by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association

Sponsors of the event are the West Texas Geological Society and PBPA. The pro-industry gathering is scheduled for the day before a national day of protest against the petroleum industry, according to the PBPA

According to national news reports, on Oct. 17, a coalition of unions, the United Presbyterian Church, Ralph Nader, Jane Fonda and Tom-Hayden will conduct demonstrations in an estimated 20 cities under the collective protest title of "Stop the Oil Profiteers. The PBPA statement said that the Citizen-Labor Union Energy Coalition wants price controls reimposed on crude oil, heating oil and natural gas and price controls placed on gasoline. The group also wants oil company accounting books open for public scrutiny, said the statement.

Other demands include appointing a special federal prosecutor to investigate gasoline and heating oil shortages and establishing a Taxpayer's Energy Corporation that would buy and distribute all imported oil, ex-

Midland's mortgage program set were decided. Mark Tessier with the underwriting firm of Howard, Weil, LaBouisse, Friedrichs, Inc. outlined the program as established by the local corporation, who will administer it.

For the first 90 days, 25 percent of the money will be reserved for applicants having an adjusted gross family income of $20,000 or less, 50 percent will go to families having $25,000 or less while the remaining 25 percent will go to families having $30,000 income or less.

The program, designed for low and moderate income families, will have a top limit in Midland of a $30,000 adjusted gross family income. Maximum mortgage loan will be $75,000 and the applicants must have a minimum downpayment of 5 percent. Term of mortgage loan is 30

Small buisnesses 'hardest hit'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small businesses will be hit hardest — and first — by $500,000 a year, Landry said. rising interest rates, economists say. Many won't find credit, while others may pay more than 16 percent interest in coming weeks.

Small manufacturers, particularly in the Midwest, will be most vulnerable, these economists say. But stores that sell specialty items and long-lasting consumer products also will feel the credit pinch.

As a result, many part-time retail workers will be laid off, the economists say. And since women hold many of these jobs, they can expect tough times People who buy, sell and build houses also will be some of the first victims of rising interest rates. Economists say prospective homeowners will find it more difficult to get mortgages, which in turn will slow homebuilding The Federal Reserve Board last weekend increased its bank lending rate from 11 percent to a record 12 percent and tightened its control on the availability of money and credit. The moves generated immediate upsurges in other short-term interest rates.

The overall effect resulted in stock prices recording their steepest drop in more than five years Tuesday Chase Manhattan Bank on Tuesday boosted the prime rate to its best customers by an entire percentage point, to 14.5 percent. Small businesses, however, rarely qualify as "best customers." They usually must pay 2 percent to 3 percent above the prime rate, said economist

Richard Landry of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. That is almost as much as consumers pay on credit-card interest, and it makes borrowing very difficult for most small businesses with sales below

Moreover, he added, there are growing reports that smaller, regional banks are hesitant to extend loans. Consumers who want loans also will face difficulties, say economists. "I would think that it's going to be a little harder to get a car loan, a little harder to get a mortgage," said economist William E. Gibson of the brokerage house Smith Barney Harris Upham & Co. Inc. It will be very tough to buy or sell homes without mortgage financing available," said bank analyst Jonathan E. Gray of Sanford C. Bernstein & Co.

Inc. "It's difficult to see institutions funding mortgages one or two months in advance when the cost of money is so uncertain. The tight mortgage market is expected to slow homebuilding. And that is likely to mean slower sales and rising inventories for makers of appliances and home furnishings as their major market shrinks, economists explain. Most of the small makers of machinery parts for appliances and cars are located in the Midwestern states. In a credit crunch, small businesses suffer hardest because they lack the avenues to borrow open to larger companies. Few small companies can issue stock to attract funds, nor do they have long-range lines of credit with their

If they must borrow to weather a sales slowdown and maintain inventories, they will pay the prevailing interest rates, said economist Herman Director of

Major banks hike prime rates to record levels

NEW YORK (AP) - The nation's major banks, faced with the soaring cost of acquiring money, have raised their prime lending rates on business loans by a record one percentage point to 141/2 percent, also a

Banks use the prime, which is the rate charged the most credit-worthy corporate borrowers, as the basis for setting interest rates on almost all loans to

According to financial analysis, the increase Tuesday means that savings banks and savings and loan associations, which provide the majority of home mortgages in the nation, will lose some deposits and have to pay more for the ones they keep. Savings and loans, which borrow from commercial banks, also will encounter the high prime lending rate

banking analysts Say. According to records at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the average weekly prime rate has never changed by more than half a percentage point since the prime's inception in 1934.

Although the prime does not directly affect consumer loan rates, it is regarded as an indicator of eredit conditions generally.

The prime reflects interest rates in the "money market," a name used to describe dealings in various types of debt instruments and borrowings that are a major source of funds banks use to make Money market rates, such as the federal funds

rate, the interest charged on overnight loans of excess reserves between banks, have soared under the influence of the strong anti-inflation program announced by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A Voleker Saturday. The federal funds rate stood at about 11% percent the rate hit 15 percent before ending trading at 13 percent, according to Salomon Brothers, an investment banking company The Fed's program included raising the discount rate - the fee charged by the Fed on loans to its member banks - to a record 12 percent and raising the amount of money member banks are required to leave on reserve with the Fed. The higher reserve requirements applied to several types of money market instruments and borrowings that banks depend on as sources of lendable funds. Excessive growth in the money supply is believed to be a cause of inflation, which has been running at an annual rate of about 13 percent this year, as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

By dropping its emphasis on keeping the federal funds rate steady, "the Federal Reserve for the first time is allowing the (money) market to set its own rates," såid Larry Kudlow, banking analyst at Bear, Stearns & Co. "What we had was an immediate adjustment of market rates to reflect the inflation rate," he said. "Rates took a one-step jump."

Davis claims he didn't want to break the law

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) Murder conspiracy defendant Cullen Davis says he refused to discuss price tags for several assassinations with informant David McCroxy because he knew he would be breaking the law.

Davis, 46, testified Tuesday he talked about the purported contract murders because he did not think he would be breaking the law by just talking about it.

"I knew it wasn't against the law just talking about killing people if I didn't consummate the deal," Davis said on his third day on the witness stand. "I thought I'd be sticking my neck out too far. I could be held accountable for making a statement

Haynes said he did not see the need to replay the tape because it involved "technical difficulties."

Effects of impasse felt

Senate impasse over an emergency funding bill to keep the government fully operational has already caused some federal benefit and payroll checks to be held up and could cut into still more later this week.

There was no indication when the stalemate might be broken. The House declined Tuesday to consider the bill already passed by the Senate, opting instead to divide the measure into two sections and send both back to the Senate for further action.

The sticking points are a pay raise for congressmen and a provision limiting federal funding of abortions.

The Senate Appropriations Committee was meeting today to consider the twin bills fashioned Tuesday by the House. Any committee action must be approved by the full Senate before it could take effect. And any changes made either by the committee or by the full Senate would toss the matter into still another conference between House and Senate negotiators. One of the House bills now contains emergency funds for the departments of Defense, Agriculture, Housing and Urban Development, Transportation and various other smaller agencies. It also contains a 5.5 percent pay vaise for congressmen and some 22,000 toplevel federal employees.

The other bill contains emergency and Health, Education and Welfare. It also contains the strict language on federal funding for abortions which the House favors and the Senate has refused to accept.

The impasse, which began two weeks ago when the House refused to delete its abortion language from the emergency funding bill, already has forced postponement of the mailing of unemployment compensation checks to 125,000 beneficiaries, monthly black lung benefit checks to 2,000 miners, and pay checks for 80,000 public employees in state and local unemployment compensation programs, according to the Labor Department. In addition, monthly payments to some 38,000 federal employees on permanent disability due to go out today are being withheld. The effects began showing up in the paychecks to federal employees as well today. "We're going to get just a half-check," said Labor Department spokesman Don Smyth.

The department's payroll, affecting some 22,000 employes, went to the Treasury Department at 4 a.m. today with instructions to pay only for work done before Oct. 1, the date the new fiscal year began,

Other federal payrolls could be affected in the next few days. The Defense Department, for example, is scheduled to pay some 1 million civilian employees Friday and some 2 funds for the departments of Labor million military personnel three days ate advocates.

Employees of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Department of Transportation are due paychecks Oct. 15 and 16.

The emergency legislation is needed because Congress has not passed the regular appropriations bills needed to ke5p six major federal departments, plus assorted smaller agencies, in operation after Oct. I, the date the new fiscal year began. The emergency bill was intended to keep the government agencies going until the regular bills could be passed. But no agreement could be reached on the pay raise and abortion amendments which the House tacked on the legislation.

Attempts at compromise fell apart 28 when the House to bring new pressure on the Senate to take the House language on abortion, left for a week-long recess. The Senate reacted angrily by killing the bill and by passing new legislation with no pay hike for congressmen and with the more liberal abortion language. Ironically, the impasse allowed a 12.9 percent pay hike for congressmen, federal judges and top bureaucrats to go into effect automaticaly Oct. 1. The question now is whether the pay increase will be scaled back to 5.5 percent, as the House wants, or to 5.5 percent for federal employes and to zero for congressmen, as the Sen-visit to the United Nations this week stirs memories of his boisterous, strutting New York visit 19 years ago, when he teamed with Nikita Khrushchev in the semi-comical, thoroughly vulgar and oftimes belligerent "Fidel and Nikky" show.

Reports, unconfirmed, have surfaced about anti-Castro militants headed from Florida bearing guns and explosives.

Memories of the 1960 visit include the so-called chicken-plucking incident in Castro's midtown hotel and his vitriolic 41/2-hour General Assembly address - still the longest on record for that organization.

And instead of a public hotel, where he lived in 1960, Castro will stay at the Cuban U.N. Mission, a well-secured midtown bastion.

Last Friday 3,500 noisy anti-Castro demonstrators rallied outside the United Nations, leading Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen Fleysher to remark: "If you can get 3,500 people who feel so strongly ... that they'll come out when Castro isn't even here, imagine what they'll muster when he

When Castro flew into New York on Sept. 18, 1960, he was 34 and had held power just 20 months, but already he was a staunch Soviet ally.

The current political climate between Cuba and the United States, almost balmy recently, has turned stormy again because of Soviet troops stationed on Cuban soil.

There was tension in 1960, too, and the smooth, friendly suavity Castro displayed during a 1959 visit had been replaced by snarling, sarcastic anti-American invective.

Castro first booked into the Shel-bourne Hotel at Lexington Avenue and East 37th Street, taking 20 suites for his 90-member entourage.

But 24 hours later, he stalked out in a towering rage, complaining of overly-stringent surveillance and alleged skepticism about his credit. He claimed he was asked to post $10,000. in advance for his housing, plus insurance against possible damage.

Castro threatened to pitch tents in Central Park or on U.N. property, but the Cubans eventually were ensconced in the Theresa Hotel; a sincevanished Harlem landmark.

Back at the Shelbourne, hotel officials claimed the Cubans left their suites in shambles - rooms littered with trash, furniture scarred with cigarette burns, telephones yanked from their jacks.

Most fascinating was the "plucked chicken" story. According to unidentified hotel chambermaids, the Cubans had cooked steak's and chickens in their suites, leaving behind a "dreadful mess" of chicken bones and feathers.

Khrushchev visited Castro in Harlem the next day. Afterwards, the two walked arm in arm to the curb. At the United Nations, Khrushchev went out of his way to walk over to Castro's seat, where the two embraced several Midland College enrollment hits record high, — again.

550 students taking one or more credit courses.

The count set another record, this one up more than 15 percent over last fall's 2,202 students. The increase was 348 students over the fall 1978 count. "As we pointed out earlier, the fall enrollment was up more than we had anticipated, in view of our average increase of about 5 percent per year," noted registrar Dee Windsor.

"Some of the increase was due to new or expanded programs, but many students made Midland College their first choice for higher education when they graduated from high school last spring.

It hit 1,500 in 1974 and had the largest jump in 1975 when 2,039 students enrolled just as Midland College was completing the initial phase of its

Enrollment increases since that time have been modest until this fall. "Along with the added programs, the extra enrollment likely could be attributed to the reputation at Midland College for quality instruction in university-parallel programs, and the lower cost of attending Midland College for the first two years," Windsor pointed out.

Following are the annual fall semester enrollment counts: 688 in 1969; 792 in 1970; 1,085 in 1971; 1,108 in 1972; 1,268 in 1973; 1,523 in 1974; 2,039 in 1975; 2,122 in 1976; 2,202 in 1978 and 2,550 in 1979.

Young Soviet defector now a free man

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - A young Soviet defector who jumped ship a week ago seeking asylum is a free man today and says, "I like it."

"It feels good," said Igor Alexandrovich Ponomarenko, 19, smiling Tuesday as he left the federal building here after he was granted asylum by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The young Soviet naval engineering student spent Tuesday in interviews with Russian and American diplomatic officials on his decision to defect.

"He felt his freedom of expression was too limited in the U.S.S.R. He would have more opportunity in the United States," said INS chief Joseph Ponomarenko spent 35 minutes talking with Vitaliy Pukalov, attache of the Russian Embassy, while representatives from the U.S. State Department, the FBI and Immigration service observed. He told the embassy official he wanted to continue his naval career at an institution here and feared religious and political persecution at home, McFadden said.

Pukalov treated him in a "fatherson type conversation" and did not try to block his defection, McFadden said. Ponomarenko is the latest in a wave

Chinese students stage a sit-in PEKING (AP) - Shouting "Give Us Back Our School!" more than 2,000 People's University students and teachers staged a sit-in today at the gates of the Communist party and government offices, demanding the army move out of their campus.

"We will not go to school while the army remains! Give us back our dormitories and our kitchens!" chanted the highly organizd crowd hat carried huge banners and waved hand pen-

Hobby, two representatives of the Texas Industrial Commission and 12 officers of Texas drilling equipment companies returned Sunday from a 15-day trip to China.

It was the first state-sponsored trade mission to China.

The officers included President J. Ray Pace of Baker World Trade, Inc., Houston, whose company has done $40 million of business with the Chinese in the past year.

Hobby said Baker "was able to secure repeat orders and even more important he was able to meet with high officials that he had not been able to see before.

"Our list of business contacts is endless and all Texas businesses should benefit, particularly Texas' oil-related industry, which will-most certainly be assured of lucrative business dealings with the PRC (People's Republic of China) in the very near future," Hobby said.

Absent from the mission was any representative of SEDCO, the international drilling company founded by

Hobby said the Chinese have only about 600 drilling rigs in operation but their schedule calls for about 2,000 rigs to be in operation within the next

A CIA report distributed at the news conference said China's oil reserves total approximately 78 billion barrels, with production expected to rise from 1.7 million barrels a day in 1976 to as high as 2.8 million barrels by late 1980.

Hobby said high-ranking officials such as Qin Wen Cai, vice minister of the Oil Ministry, and former Ambassador Han Xu "greeted us with open arms ... They also welcomed us back for future trade missions.

He said within six months, the PRC will announce the site of a proposed warehouse and assembly plant for the imported drilling equipment. The possible locations have been narrowed to Shanghai or Tientsin.

The state paid only for the trips of Executive Director Gerald Brown and Antonito Alagna of the Industrial Commission, Brown said. He estimated the cost of the trip at $4,200 per person. Other members of the trade delegation paid for their trips, he receive assurances the army would leave.

There was no official comment or explanation of the army's occupation of the campus.

One of the student posters showed a fat, gorilla-like soldier smoking a cigarette, posing with a rocket ship and leaning back against a school book. The poster had a Chinese proverb about a guest who came to dinner and moved into the house, and added: "Oppose Barbaric Power."

There were no incidents in the demonstration. Student monitors kept the crowd in line and soldiers and police kept them from approaching the entrance bearing the golden slogan of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung, 'Serve The People.

At least 1,000 bystanders spilled over onto the sidewalks and blocked bicycle traffic.

Student organizers wearing red armbands said the school in the northwest part of the city has been closed since 1972 and occupied by the Second Artillery Division of the People's Liberation Army.

The government issued a decree ordering the army to vacate the campus by August 1979. Since then, students said, the army has gradually returned only about one-third of the campus, mostly classrooms.

"But they still are living in our dormitories and Peking students must commute," said one student. "What is the point of going to school?

Students said their campus has 1,-600 students and researchers and 1,-000 teachers. They said they did not know exacly how many soldiers were occupying their campus. The army occupied many campuses

Pope's visit may cost public over $7 million, despite suits

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite lawsuits and protests against the use of public funds for Pope John Paul II's visit to the United States, preliminary estimates indicate it could cost the public well over $7 million.

Although Roman Catholic archdioceses picked up the tab for some expenses arising from papal Masses, substantial sums were spent for police overtime, traffic control, crowd barriers and trash disposal in the six cities the pontiff visited.

setts put state costs at about $900,000 for 6,000 National Guardsmen, 600 state troopers and other personnel and services. The city of Boston, first stop on the pope's tour, had allotted $740,000 for police overtime and traffic control

King personally led a fund-raising drive to help pay $150,000 of the $250. 000 the Boston Archdiocese spent for the pope. He also reportedly used money from political fund-raisers and donated $1,000 to $2,000 from his campaign surplus.

Iowa spent about $147,000 for National Guard troops, the pope's air travel and other expenses, about $42,-000 less than originally announced, said Kenneth Quinn, an aide to Gov. Robert Ray.

The District of Columbia and federal taxpayers can expect to pick up the $1.5 million tab for the pope's weekend in Washington, nearly two-thirds of it for police overtime. Tax funds also were spent for security fences, food and housing for some personnel and extra health and sanitation work-

About $400,000 went to increase service on the area's subway system. The District saved some money when 1,200 Boy Scouts and members of Roman Catholic youth groups helped clean up tons of trash left on the Mall by the crowd of 175,000 who attended the papal Mass on Sunday.

The Washington Archdiocese estimates it spent,$400,000, much of it for an altar and backdrop on the Mall. Families in the 136 paris asked to contribute $5 each to help defray the cost

The New York Archdiocese refused to answer questions about its expenditures during the papal visit, saying the pope was a guest.

The city of New York hasn't calculated its final figure, but before John Paul arrived, officials estimated $2 million would be needed for overtime and other police costs. The New York Times reported today the city's expenses would exceed $3 million.

Philadelphia and Chicago also have been unable to figure out final costs. Philadelphia officials earlier estimated the city would spend about $700, 000, including $75,000 for costruction of a 27-foot high platform the pope used for a Mass.

However, court papers filed Tuesday by the American Civil Liberties Union indicate costs for the platform reached $200,000. The suit, which asks that the archdiocese be required to pay for the platform, says the city violated the constitutional provision for separation of church and state.

'Stand by to raise the mainsail," barks First Mate Lou Buck from the foredeck as his young crew scurries among the 66 wide-eyed tourists sitting amidships.

The Young America, the largest American-built square-rigger still sailing, as its crew proudly boasts, is a modern replica of an old-time sailing ship working the Atlantic for $10 a passenger off the New Jersey gambling resort.

And although she is only 4 years old, not 100, and her hull is reinforced concrete, not wood, the Young America plies the sea in the tradition of the great sailing ships of old.

Algeria tells plan

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) -Algeria will increase sales of refined petroleum products in 1980 to compensate for a cutback in exports of crude oil, the official news agency Algerie Presse Service says.

"In order to satisfy traditional buyers of Algerian crude," the state-owned Sonatrach oil com pany "has worked out a rigorous program" to offer refined products, the news agency reported Tuesday

American oil companies that buy oil and oil products from Algeria were not immediately available for comment on the

The report also confirmed earlier suggestions that Sonatrach planned to sell crude on the spot market, observers

Although the news agency gave no figures, on export of refined products, it noted that the refining capacity at the Hassi Messaoud field had been increased. It also noted new refineries at Skikda, with an annual capacity of 15 million tons. and In-Amenas, with 300,000 tons, would start up soon. Skikda should be operating at 50 percent of capacity next year, it

Algeria produced -8 million tons of refined products in 1978, of which 3.5 million tons were exported. It exports about 50 million tons of crude oil annually, about half of it to the United

No long lines, says DiBona

HOUSTON (AP) - Charles J. Di-Bona, oil's top Washington spokesman, says a gasoline shortage of just 2 to 3 percent can cause panic buying and long service station lines.

But the president of the American Petroleum Institute rejects a forecast motorists may be forming gasoline lines again by the end of October.

In an informal session Tuesday with petroleum and energy writers, DiBona reported reading that a West Coast newsletter on retail gasoline Location is 660 feet from north and marketing trends had said motorists rming long lines by the end

The possibility was blamed on the federal government's emphasis on 5the industry building winter heating oil inventories at the expense of gasoline stocks. That is so unlikely, very very unlikely," DiBona said of the long lines

'I don't think that is a viable prediction. I just don't know how that would happen.

DiBona said gasoline stocks are now about 11 million barrels higher than a year ago "and in a comfortable range

August gasoline demand, he said, was 10 to 11 percent below year earlier requirements, adding there is indication the not yet available September statistics will reflect a similar

'Two-thirds of that decline resulted from increased prices," he said.

'If gasoline had still been selling at about 65 cents a gallon, demand would not have been down.

DiBona said there also is reason to "feel fairly comfortable" about heating oil inventories.

Committee to decide who gets taxes from 'windfall'

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Finance Committee, its work on a "windfall profits" tax nearly complete, is ready to decide how to distribute the billions of dollars the tax would raise

Some is expected to go to the U.S. Treasury, some to the poor and some to the nation's oil savers. The committee voted Tuesday for a 60 percent "windfall profits" tax on the bulk of the country's domestically produced oil, including billions of barrels from Alaska's North Slope. The decisions to impose the same tax rate on "new oil" and on crude oil from the only producing area on the North Slope were the final major tax questions facing the committee. which has spent several weeks work ing on the new levy proposed by President Carter.

The committee agreed to use today's scheduled session and the remainder of the week to debate low-income assistance and tax credits for businessmen and homeowners who invest in conservation measures or non-petroleum energy sources.

Committee aides said the panel's tax would raise about $65 billion through 1990, far less than the figure Carter asked for or the figure approved earlier this year by the said Tuesday.

The Houston-based conglomerate announced an agreement in principle to offer 0.78 shares of Tenneco stock for each of the 125,059 shares of East Tennessee Natural Gas stock it does not already own.

the issuance of 97,546 shares of Tenneco stock. Tenneco's closing price Monday on the New York Stock Exchange was $38.25. The Houston firm now owns 1.170.-047 of East Tennessee Natural Gas' 1,295,106 shares. Reed said serious negotiations to acquire the remaining 125,059 shares began in August. The acquistion, exected to be completed before the end of 1979, will be accomplished through the merger of East Tennessee Natural Gas into a Tenneco subsidiary, Reed said.

Coastal files federal suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Coastal States Gas Corp, filed a federal court suit Tuesday alleging harassment and intimidation by the Justice Department while threatening indictments involving crude oil sales.

The company seeks an injunction against what it termed unwarranted and unconstitutional use of ambiguous or invalid Department of Energy regulations as a basis for the indictments. The lawsuit contends the govern-

Canales said he had not seen the suit and could not comment. "The government's threats against the company amount to a blatant attempt to interpret its price regulations on domestic oil, which have been an obvious disaster, to cover foreign transactions entirely outside its jurisdiction," a Coastal States spokesman

The House version would raise an estimated $104 billion for a special trust fund to pay for programs Carter wants to reduce American dependence on imported oil. The threshold price for the tax would be $13 a barrel, with adjustments for inflation. Thus, as the price of "new oil" rose above $13, the tax would take away 60 percent of the increase. Carter has called on Congress to market loses

Stock

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market took its steepest drop in more than five years Tuesday in a day-long slide blamed on spiraling interest rates and fears of a deepening recession.

Bank stocks, savings and loans and other financial issues came under particular pressure amid fears of a credit squeeze.

But blue-chip industrial and transportation stocks also tumbled, as the selling swept into virtually every corner of the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 26.45 to 857.59, marking its largest loss since it tumbled 26.99 points on Jan. 9, 1974, in the midst of the last recession and the Arab oil embargo.

The record decline was 38.33 points on Oct. 28, 1929, during the Great Crash that preceded the Depression.

The daily count on the New York Stock Exchange showed the most one-sided tally in modern memory. with 1,768 declines and only 73 stocks gaining ground.

Big Board volume came to a 55.56 million shares, the heaviest ootal this year and the fourth largest ever at the exchange.

The apparent catalyst for the selloff was the decision by many of the nation's banks to raise their prime lending rates from 131/2 to 1412. The unprecedented increase of a full percentage point, which followed new credit tightening moves by the Federal Reserve over the weekend, came as a shock to many Wall Streeters. Analysts said interest rates had been expected to rise, but not so rapidly.

Brokers said the fastbreaking developments appeared to have increased fears among investors that the Fed's tough anti-inflation tactics might lead to a more severe economic slump than had been expected earlier.

Among the 30 big-name stocks in the Dow Jones industrial average, 19 posted losses of a point or more.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index dropped 2.05 to-60.53.

Standard & Poor's index of 100 industrials slumped 3.58 to 119.35, and S&P's 500stock composite index was down 3.25 at 106:63. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index posted a record 12.26 drop to 220.15. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market fell 5,78 to 145.20.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed sharply lower Tues day on the Chicago Board of Trade.

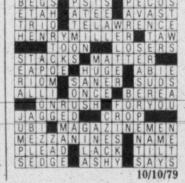

After holding moderate gains throughout most of the session heavy pressure turned the market mixed in mid-session and a wave of of late hedging and commercial house selling turned prices around with wheat futures closing down the daily allowable limit of 20 cents a bushel.

Traders said the early upturn was largely a reaction to Monday's lesses and in sympathy with silver futures prices which were up the daily allowable limit when grain trading opened.

There was also some speculation that if the dollar continued to firm it would increase foreign demand for grain and soybeans before the dollar exchange rate climbed further.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

BUSINESS MIRROR

'Pretty wicked' recession seen

JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - In the past few days Americans learned that September unemployment declined to 5.8 percent from August's 6 percent, consumers added to their debt and purchasing agents expressed optimism.

Taken together, these bits of intelligence hardly convey the idea of recession, which some economists maintain already has us in its grip and which many more say will pounce upon us before the end

Albert Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics and former White House economist, is among the latter.

Did the news in recent days shake his recession theory? "No," he replied. "If anything, it strengthened my conviction that the recession will wind up deep and long."

In fact, said Cox, he was already this Monday morning writing a report raising to 60 percent the likelihood of a severe downturn. He said it will come by yearend, and reach its depth in the first half

By the third quarter of next year, he maintains, unemployment will have reached 8.9 percent, and retail sales will be off badly. It will, he said, be pretty wicked," almost as bad as in 1974-1975. What is it that makes men such as Cox so concerned? "The underlying trends," he said. Factors such as the flattening out of employment increases, sluggishness in productivity, consumer buy-ng weakness. The trend is weakness," he said. "Inflation is eating away at incomes and confidence." September's figures mightn't look bad now, he said, but over the long term they'll be seen as oddities in a

Cox believes they might even deepen the reession by giving business and consumers a false sense of hope. Purchasing agents, for example, might be inclined to build up inventories, which then cannot be sold. That situation occurred in 1974. During the first six months of the year companies built their inventories to "wildly excessive" levels. "I fear it is happening again," he said. During July, he points out, inventories grew about about $90 billion, the biggest ever for a month. Cox blames what he sees as a worsening situation on some of the earlier forecasts in which the word "mild" was repeated over and over by economists, Cox included. He said it may have lent false hope. As he sees it, the recession will be in two stages. The first part, in which we have been for the past six months by Cox's, reckoning, will be mild, its impact scattered rather than pervasive. The second part will be "wicked," a word he used several times in an interview. Unemployment, traditionally the measure of severity used by millions of Americans, will spurt. Everyone will feel the impact. Cox concedes that unemployment in recent years does not produce the level of hardship it once did, partly because of jobless benefits. But 8.9 percent of a 104-million-person labor force is still severe. Is there anything to be gained from a recession?

Apparently Cax's economic forecast through 1989 is quite the caposite of his short-range outlook. He foresees real economic growth and only moderate inflation. He is optimistic that the United States will overcome many of the factors he feels have produced such a chaotic economy in the 1970s. And his forecast is based on assumptions that: 1. "Government spending, especially for social welfare programs, will slow substantially. 2. "Economic growth will be powered by an acceleration in business investment, reflecting the reduced role of government and increased investment-oriented changes in our tax structure. 3. Government regulation will be reassessed. sharply curtailed, and in some cases rolled back or abolished." In the meantime, he said he was more convinced than before that the nation will have to wrestle with a severe recession, second in the post-World War II era only to that of 1974-1975.

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Brontosaurus, the best known of the dinosaurs, is pictured as a snub-nosed behemoth. But two researchers at the Carnegie Institute here now claim that picture is all wrong.

'He's got the wrong head," said David Berman, an assistant curator helping give the 180-million-year-old monster a new-look. "There are four other major museums that have brontosaurus skeletons on exhibit, and they all have the wrong heads." Berman and Wesleyan University professor John McIntosh, an institute research associate, contend they've determined that brontosaurus, also known as apatasaurus, actually had a long snout and tall, pencil-like teeth.

Until now, the animal looming over museum visitors, plodding through science fiction movies and appearing in comic strips has had a short snout and broad, leaf-like teeth.

The mistake, discovered as the two men sifted through racks of brittle bones and piles of paleontological papers, was reported in the institute's 'Carnegie Magazine' and "Bulletin." CarnegieMuseum's own brontosaurus is about to be fitted with the

"It sure is significant, because, brontosaurus is the best known of the dinosaurs," said McIntosh. The beast, whose name means thundering lizard, weighed as much as 30 tons, and its thin neck and long tail helped it reach a length of about 80 feet.

The confusion about its head began in 1883, when paleontologist O.C. Marsh of Yale University first de-scribed the brontosaurus based on a headless skeleton excavated in Colorado, McIntosh and Berman said.

'He actually used a head that was found three or four miles away from the skeleton," said Berman. "But no one knew. He never mentioned this in his article.

'He guessed," said McIntosh. "He usually guessed right in things like this, but this time he didn't."

In 1909, a Carnegie Institute expedition coordinated by W.J. Holland discovered two large brontosaurus skeletons in Utah.

"Lying beside these two skeletons was a large skull," Berman said. "Holland and his field assistant, Earl Douglass, realized right away that Marsh's skull was, in their words, 'a PEKING (AP) - Chinese law professors say a chief lieutenant of the radical "Gang of Four" will be tried with them for counter-revolutionary crimes.

New York human rights' activist Orville H. Schell, leading a 26-member lawyers' group on a visit here, said professors at the University of Peking Law School told them Tuesday a fifth defendant will be tried with gang members, who were arrested a month after Mao Tse-tung's death in September 1976.

Schell said the professors did not identify the fifth defendant, but diplomatic sources said it might be Mao's nephew Mao Yuanxin, once powerful in Manchuria's Liaoning Province. Mao's nephew, in addition to being accused of aiding the gang, has been publicly reviled for ordering the 1975 execution of a middle-aged housewife for criticizing the gang. Premier Hua Guofeng announced Sunday the gang would stand trial. Although he did not specify the charges or say when the trial would begin, he said the defendants would not face the death penalty. Gang members, who presided over the tumultuous 1966-69 Cultural Revolution, include Mao's widow Chiang Ching, former vice president Chang

Chunchiao, Wang Hongwen and Yao Wenyaun. In the minds of many Chinese, Mao himself will be on symbolic trial. Although current Chinese leaders continue to praise Mao for directing the revolution which brought the Communists to power in 1949, they have implicitly condemned him for condoning the purges of the Cultural Revolution Schell said the professors told him they anticipated no trouble document-a panel session at which 500 of the 9,000 bankers on hand for the threeday convention were able to question the seven top men of the FDIC. The agency regulates the banking industry and insures depositors' funds.

There was a roar of applause and vells at the session after James H. Kimbrough, president of a Brooksville, Fla., bank, told the FDIC it ought to stick to legal duties.

'We would prefer, I believe, that you not step out and make policy statements where it is not mandatory that you do so, because we have already got enough laws to work with," said Kimbrough, who is not an executive of the association.

Association officials could not be reached immediately for comment. Nearly all banks, from big city giants on down, finance memberships for top executives in various exclusive clubs. Kimbrough said banks

BOSTON (AP) - The famous rocking chair, the carved coconut shell, the doodles and other flotsam and tokens of a lifetime in public office are back together, assembled in the long-delayed John F. Kennedy Li-

In a dramatic glass and concrete building at the edge of Boston Harbor, workers are completing the exhibits that will make the museum section of the library a magnet for tourists and Kennedy buffs.

The Kennedy family is turning the library over to the federal government on Oct. 20. President Carter and dozens of friends and appointees of the late president will attend the bfficial ceremony The following Monday, the public will get its first look at what's inside. They will find a slickly displayed collection of the documents, gadgets and trivia that were handled, owned or somehow made special by Kennedy, his ancestors, relatives and political pals. For 75 cents, they can watch a half-hour-movie and browse amid the exhibits, which takes about an hour.

They will-see the flag from PT-109 and the coconut on which Kennedy cut a plea for help after the boat sank in World War II, Kennedy's collection of ship models, the gown Jacqueline Kennedy wore to the inauguration, Robert Kennedy's Harvard letter sweater, the family Bible, campaign buttons, and telegrams sent between the president and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev during the Cuban missile crisis.

Their most arresting first impression, though, likely will be the building itself. It is a sculpture of dark glass and gleaming white concrete arranged in three geometric shapes. The main building, which holds the museum and archives, is a nine-story triangle lying omits side. Its point juts into a soaring glass cube; an empty block crisscrossed by the matrix of steel that holds it all in place. This room, called the pavilion, is decorated only with a flag, and it is the last stop on the museum tour.

Off to one side is a low circular wing that holds the museum's two 300-seat movie theaters. The whole thing fits together like a child's set of blocks. It is expected to attract 1 million visitors during its first year of opera-

Architect I.M. Pei says the building is placed like a lighthouse, sitting * atwater's ege on Columbia Point, once a city dump.

The Kennedy family reluctantly decided to build the library there after trying futilely for years to locate it near Harvard.

In October 1963, a month before he was assassinated, Kennedy chose a site that held a subway repair yard. He envisioned a scholarly center for political study where he would have an office after the White House years were behind him. Plans for the library went on after his death, but when the transit authority finally moved the repair yard, nearby residents - worried about traffic jams - threatened to go to court to block construction.

The pavilion and landscaped grounds offer panoramic views of the harbor islands, South Boston and the downtown skyline. By opening day, the builders plan to have Kennedy's yacht, Victura, resting on a sand dune outside the windows, headed out to

The building was constructed with $18 million raised by donations to a private-corporation controlled by the ennedy family, who also approved the introductory movie and the exhibits. Patricia Lawford, the president's sister, oversaw this part of the

The glass-enclosed wall exhibits begin with displays of Kennedy's ancestors and childhood. Brief captions accompany such family mementos as Rose Kennedy's high school diploma and Joseph Kennedy's baseball letter from Boston Latin. Next come the political campaigns - and exhibits of artifacts showing the high points of foreign affairs and such domestic projects as civil rights, the Peace Corps and the space race.

One large case contains the homey memorabilia of Kennedy's cigar cutter, golf clubs, scrimshaw collection and flight jacket.

Mini-theaters show tapes of presidential news conferences and scenes from a typical day in the White House.

Most of the exhibits are arranged around a large round room that holds a glassed-in replica of the Oval Office as it looked during the Kennedy years. The desk, however, is a copy, because the real one is still in the White House.

The pavilion area of the Kennedy Library in Boston nears completion for the scheduled dedication by President Jimmy Carter on Oct. 20 along with members of the Kennedy family. The library will houe such memorable artfacts as campaign buttons and telegrams sent between the late President John F. Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev during the Cuban missile crisis. (AP Laserphoto)

Battle is developing rapidly for Meany's AFL-CIO job

WASHINGTON (AP) - An unex pected battle is rapidly developing for organized labor's top prize - the powerful AFL-CIO presidency that 85-year-old George Meany is giving up next month.

The president of a major construction union says he is picking up substantial union support for a possible challenge to Meany's hand picked successor, Lane Kirkland, the federation's secretary-treasurer.

And the head of another big construction union says he also may enter the fray if frontrunner Kirkland stumbles in his quest to succeed Meany

J.C. Turner, president of the 400,000-member Operating Engineers Union, moved Tuesday toward openly

Turner said he is still not a formal eandidate, but in testing the political waters has lined up pledges from union leaders who control nearly onethird of the votes that will be cast for a new president at the AFL-CIO's biennial convention, which opens here

At the same time, the president of the 350,000-member Plumbers Union, AFL-CIO's ruling executive board, Martin J. Ward, said he was eyeing the possibility of making it a threeway race if Kirkland's candidacy proves more vulnerable than most labor observers had expected.

Kirkland, 57, the AFL-CIO's No. 2 man and only announcd candidate for the top spot, has been considered the ailing Meany's heir apparent for a decade. In fact, many union leaders have expected him to succeed Meany to recognize African government

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister .. Margaret Thatcher came under increasing pressure today from members of her Conservative Party to recognize the Muzorewa government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia as black guerrilla leaders continued to resist key provisions of the new constitution proposed by Britain for the breakaway African colony.

The chairman of the Zimbabwe Rhodesian peace conference, Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, went to Blackpool today to report to the annual Conservative Party convention Right-wing delegates there were campaigning for recognition of the biracial government headed by Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, who has accepted the British draft consti-

Carrington, after demanding that guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe accept the Britishproposals without change by Monday, gave them an extension until Thursday when they refused to accept several key points. But there was no indication that they would modify their position or their demand that the conference shelve the constitutional proposals and negotiate the composition and powers of a new govern-

Kirkland remains the leading contender for a two-year term in the post. But the forecast of a dull, uncontested race has evaporated in the two weeks since Meany announced he would retire after 24 years of rule.

Turner, 62, and Ward, 60, are among 33 union presidents who sit with Meany and Kirkland on the which will meet before the convention to select single candidates who will be presented to delegates for federation president and secretary-treasurer. In this way the organization can avoid an embarrassing floor fight in pub-

'I'm exploring the possibility of being a candidate, but I don't consider myself as a candidate at this time," Turner said in a telephone interview from San Diego, where he, Ward and 15 other AFL-CIO construction union leaders are holding their annual convention. But Turner, 62, whose union represents heavy equipment operators, acknowledged he is "looking for votes wherever I can find them.

He said he already has pledges of support from delegates who control more than 4 million of the 13.6 million votes to be cast for president.

But Turner would not say which unions are backing him, and other union presidents said they were skeptical of Turner's count. Votes are assigned based on the number of dues-paying members each union has. Ward said he is not "actively soliciting any support" for federation president and probably would back Kirkland if the secretary-treasurer remained the clear choice of the executive council
