Iranians change conditions for releasing U.S. hostages

By The Associated Press

Iranian leaders today offered new proposals for ending the 10-day-old Tehran embassy impasse, stopping short of insisting on the shah's immediate extradition. But the Moslem militants holding 98 hostages at the U.S. Embassy rejected any compromise, Tehran Radio reported.

The officials said the hostages might be freed if the United States acknowledges that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is a criminal, allows an international investigation of the deposed monarch and hands over his U.S. property, it was reported from the Iranian capital.

The State Department said this appeared to represent a softening of the Iranian position.

But a Tehran Radio broadcast said later that spokesmen for the student militants rejected "any conciliatory proposal" regarding the shah.

The students said their movement was based on ideological principles and they cannot compromise, according to the broadcast, monitored in London.

Iranian Foreign Minister Abolhasan Bani Sadr today reiterated the key demand of the students — that the United States surrender the shah to Iran for trial, the Kuwait news agency reported from Tehran. He is currently hospitalized in New York for cancer treatment.

But Bani Sadr added, "The United States should at least acknowledge the shah is guilty," the report said.

Another member of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Revolutionary

Council, Sadeq Gotbzadeh, set out more detailed conditions, said Iran was not retreating from its demand for the shah's extradition, but added that the Iranians were ready "to end the occupation of the U.S. Embassy before the extradition of the shah for humanitarian reasons and the interests of the hostages," the Kuwait agency reported.

"We will get the shah sooner or later," he was quoted as saying.

He said the hostages "may be freed if the United States acknowledges that the shah is guilty" and agrees to an international inquiry "to investigate his crimes," the Kuwait agency reported.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Gotbzadeh said the United States must also agree to return all of the shah's U.S. property to the Iranian government.

Gotbzadeh, who is director of Iranian radio and television, said he was speaking only in his own name and not for the Council. But Bani Sadr's statements might represent the official position, since he has emerged as the leading spokesman for the Iranian regime over the past week.

Supreme revolutionary leader Khomeini has been in seclusion at his headquarters city of Qum, 100 miles south of Tehran.

State Department spokesman Jack Tuohy said U.S. officials were examining the reports. "If true, this would appear to be a softening of their position.... Any movement is welcome as long as it's upward," he said.

The Kuwait agency said Bani Sadr accused Washington of creating a "war climate" and called for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council.

NBC-TV's "Today Show" said the Iranians also said they were willing to receive U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to discuss the situation. But the Gulf News Agency reported in Bahrain that Bani Sadr was quoted on Tehran Radio as rejecting the Waldheim offer.

Khomeini's revolutionary regime responded Monday to President Carter's ban on U.S. imports of Iranian oil with the announcement that the Revolutionary Council already had decided to cut off exports to the United States. Radio Tehran reported early today that workers at the Kharg Island terminal in the Persian Gulf stopped loading a tanker, the 125,582-ton Northern Lion, that was taking on oil for the United States.

It appeared unlikely, however, that the new proposals reported today were in reaction to Carter's ban. Radio Tehran reported Monday before the president's announcement that the Revolutionary Council was going to discuss "a proposal concerning the American Embassy."

The Security Council appealed to Iran last Friday for the immediate release of the hostages held prisoner by Iranian students in the American Embassy since Nov. 4.

Iranian boycott generally praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major rivals in both political parties say President Carter made the right decision in suspending U.S. purchase of Iranian oil.

While there was uncertainty about the likely impact — some raised the prospect of long lines at gasoline pumps — political and congressional leaders generally praised the cutoff as a necessary and timely reaction to the seizure of at least 60 Americans as hostages in Iran.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., urged Americans to drive two fewer miles each day to make up for the decline in Iranian imports. "But in practice what will happen is that conscientious Americans will voluntarily make the cut while the first types will not," he said.

The result, he added, will be "endless lines" at gasoline stations. "If we are to avoid kidding ourselves, prompt and effective rationing, either by coupons or by a gasoline tax ... is necessary," Reuss said at a news conference in Milwaukee.

Texas senior Sen. John Tower said he favored Carter's move, but tempered his statement with criticism.

"I agree completely with President Carter's decision to stop importing Iranian oil," Tower said. "As I stated last week, the loss of that oil was inevitable.

"The announcement of that decision, and the accompanying call for more conservation, points up, however, the lack of any (administration) contingency plan to make up for the shortfall," Tower said.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd said Carter's action "preempts any further opportunity" for Iran to use oil as an economic weapon in its "dangerous game of international blackmail."

"And I believe the American people will be willing to sacrifice for the principles we cherish," Byrd said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said halting purchases of Iranian oil should not cause a renewal of gasoline lines, but warned of a psychological effect. "I suspect the number of cars going to the pumps to top off their cars will increase," he said.

Despite any misgivings about its impact on U.S. motorists, Jackson, a frequent critic of Carter policies, said, "I commend the president for the action he has taken."

Carter's decision also drew support from former President Gerald R. Ford and several Republicans and Democrats attempting to wrest White House control from him.

Ford said in Los Angeles he was "totally supportive" of Carter's move and termed it a "definitive action" toward freeing the U.S. hostages.

Republican presidential candidate John Connally said, "This removes oil as a bargaining chip in delicate hostage negotiations, and I fully support President Carter's action."

Another GOP candidate, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker said simply: "He's dead right." But Baker said the current Iranian crisis is another sign the United States has "lost its clout" overseas.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, campaigning in Iowa for the 1980 Democratic nomination said, "I'd basically follow the president's lead on this particular step." He told audiences Carter's action demonstrates "we put a higher value on the safety and security of those hostages than on fuel oil."

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, another GOP presidential contender, said, "I believe the people of this nation are willing to accept whatever sacrifices are deemed necessary to resolve this crisis."

There was some criticism, mainly from conservative Republicans, that the president should have taken more dramatic action, perhaps in some military move against Iran.

But there was far more bipartisan support than complaint.

New tax would result in more oil production

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional economists say the "windfall profits" tax approved by the Senate Finance Committee would result in considerably more U.S. oil production during the next decade than the version favored by President Carter.

However, the Congressional Budget Office offered no judgment Monday on whether the additional oil would warrant allowing the oil industry to keep an additional $184 billion, as it could under the Finance Committee version.

Analyzing the committee's bill and the rival House version endorsed generally by Carter, the budget office disagreed with the industry's argument that oil production would soar in the absence of any new tax.

Because of inflation in production costs and less oil pumped for each foot drilled, the congressional agency said, "Even if no windfall-profits tax were enacted, future additions to reserves should not be expected to compensate for the reserves withdrawn through 1990."

Midland County Jail needs work to meet requirements of the state

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

Midland County Jail is going to need more work to meet requirements of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, Sheriff Dallas Smith told county commissioners at their Monday meeting.

Smith, who is one of nine people comprising the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, said the jail likely can get "variances" for some of the requirements, but it can't get variances for requirements affecting the lives or safety of jail prisoners.

The sheriff said the jail will need smoke and fire detectors, an emergency lighting system, a smoke and fume removal system and an emergency energy source to run both the emergency lighting system and the smoke exhaust in the event of a power failure.

"We have to have a means of smoke and fume removal," Smith told the commissioners.

Other requirements mandate that the jail's hallways be one inch wider than they presently are and that there be two exits from the jail not counting the elevator, but the sheriff said the county probably can get variances for those requirements.

Another requirement mandates that the jail have a mechanical means for unlocking cell doors in the event of an emergency, but Smith said he believes the county also can obtain a variance on that requirement.

Smith told commissioners he does not know how much the items will cost, but commissioners instructed the sheriff to get an engineer to look at the jail and recommend the most economical manner in which to make the changes.

Following the meeting with commissioners, Smith told news media representatives, "We're in pretty good shape."

He said no major problems exist at the jail to keep it from meeting requirements of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

Those requirements were established in December of 1976, Smith said, and over the past 30 months the county systematically has been taking care of minor requirements.

Most of the major requirements Smith discussed with commissioners would be used in the event of a disaster such as a tornado, he said.

On another item, the sheriff discussed with commissioners a proposed change in the county's pay schedule for the sheriff's department concerning overtime pay.

Currently, sheriff's department employees have to work 48 hours in one week in order to become eligible for overtime pay or compensatory time off.

The sheriff suggested that employees with the rank of captain and above be placed on a straight time basis with no overtime pay or compensatory time off and that employees below that rank receive compensatory time off or overtime pay for work exceeding 44 hours per week.

No action was taken regarding that discussion.

On the request of Henry Pearson of Odessa, district engineer of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, commissioners accepted a minute order which will allow the department to begin final planning on a 3.2-mile farm-to-market road extending from FM 1369.

"This will allow us to start the final construction plans," Pearson said.

A contract on that roadwork is not expected to be let prior to late 1980, Pearson said.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass' Midland facility and the Michelin tire plant are to be constructed along that roadway.

In other action, commissioners agreed to a change in the previously dedicated Wood Drive near Greentree Country Club. The roadway originally was dedicated as a 60-foot easement, but a surveying error deleted by 13 feet the amount of land available for the roadway.

Commissioners voted to allow the road to be built on the 47-foot easement remaining.

They also voted to reduce the speed from 55 mph to 35 mph on county roads 1221, 1223 and 1130 south from Interstate 20 to State Highway 307.

Commissioner Jack Leonard said the change was requested by mobile home owners along those roads.

Odd-even gas rationing not required in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' chief energy advisor said today he sees no need of a return to odd-even gasoline rations just because of the Iranian oil shutoff.

However, Ed Vetter, head of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Council, said the odd-even plan might be reinstated if gasoline supplies get short next year as some expect.

"But not this week anyway," Vetter told reporters in commenting on California's return to odd-even rationing.

Vetter said his office is looking at the fuel situation in Texas "carefully and continually."

"The November allocation (for gasoline) is one percent below October but we are still getting about 93 percent of what we had last year at this time," he said.

He said his reports show there are "some very short lines at gasoline stations but most of these are majors that are selling at discount prices. Motorists shop around and if they can get it 8 cents cheaper they will go there."

Vetter said the Iranian shutoff did not mean an automatic loss of capability of U.S. firms to buy crude. The crude that had been sold to the United States, may be sold to some other country which might in turn release more oil to the U.S. for purchase, probably at a higher price, he said.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is putting California back on mandatory odd-even gasoline rationing in support of President Carter's embargo of oil imports from Iran.

Brown, who announced his presidential candidacy last week, said Monday he backs Carter's action and won't try to second-guess the president while some 60 Americans remain hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

"The best and only short-term defense against capricious actions by oil-exporting nations is conservation," he said.

Crane points to year of progress

Chamber cites Lady Faye Gallaway, Ted Hogan

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

CRANE — E.L. Tipton, who stepped up as president of the Crane County Chamber of Commerce Monday night, said he hoped he could match the progress made by his predecessor, Darrell Warren, who stepped into the background.

And Reagan V. Brown, commissioner of the Texas Department of Agriculture, added one more notch to his slate of 5,000-plus speeches and spiced his motivation-geared talk with more than 20 jokes and anecdotes.

Crane pianist Lady Faye Gallaway was named Crane's First Lady, and automotive dealer-Scout leader Ted Hogan was named the town's Outstanding Citizen for the Year Monday night at the annual chamber banquet in the school cafeteria.

Warren, director of maintenance and transportation for the Crane Independent School District, was elevated to chamber president earlier this year, when the original 1979 president, Ann Smartt, relocated to Andrews and gave up the top chamber job.

"I was behind the lady with the big bag of ideas," he said of Mrs. Smartt. "(It's the) thing to do," quipped Warren. "I thought I was in a safe place" as vice president.

Warren, noting the banquet windmill decor, said a colorful evening was in store for the 145 or so at the affair.

"Even the speaker (Brown) has agreed to bring us some colored, err, off-color jokes," said Warren in an apparently intentional "slip." And Brown did, amid his war, farm, preacher, dog and Polish pope stories and his sermonizing.

Warren recounted chamber accomplishments made under the Warren

Smartt reign:

—Sponsorship of 4-H Club and Achievement Show.

—Bringing a new dentist to town.

—Sponsorship of two basketball playoffs.

—Plans to sponsor football and volleyball tournaments.

—Pushing a Crane clean-up campaign.

—Helping victims of the Wichita Falls tornado.

—Backing the Miss Crane Pageant.

—Hosting a reception for teachers.

—Ribbon cuttings for new businesses.

—Adding 15 members to the cham-

Mondale backs hospital cost-control legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale, a leader of Carter administration efforts to win hospital cost-control legislation.

Urging two groups of elderly citizens to boost the effort, Mondale cornered one man after his speech in the White House family theater.

The hospital cost containment proposal, one of the key elements in President Carter's domestic program.

Just before Mondale spoke, the White House made public a letter Carter sent to all House members.

Abilene man dies of mishap injuries

Gerald Norell, 19, of Abilene died Monday about 11:55 a.m. at Midland Memorial Hospital from injuries received Friday in an automobile accident on Interstate 20.

Norell was a passenger in a pickup driven by Jody Ross Plant, also of Abilene, a Texas Department of Public Safety official said Friday.

Plant was eastbound on I-20 about 9:05 p.m. when his truck was in collision with a van parked on the side of the road.

Plant was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital following the accident.

ber roll. —Work with clubs. —And showing interest in "prospective industries that might be interested" in moving to Crane.

Chamber president Tipton is superintendent of the Phillips 66 McElroy gasoline plant.

In another facet of the banquet, Crane's outgoing First Lady, Claudia Willis, announced her successor.

"Crane and area towns have been benefactors of her great dedication," she said of Ms. Galloway.

"Thank you so very much," said the piano teacher.

Crane's newest Outstanding Citizen, Ted Hogan, was recognized by R.E. Wesberry, who cited Hogan's community involvement in civic and business activities.

"When he gives of himself, he really gives," said Wesberry, who was named outstanding citizen last year.

Hogan, though not speechless, was appreciative of the honor.

"Gosh...gosh," he said. "First thing I'd like to say is 'thanks.' I really appreciate this. Crane has really been good to me."

As Wesberry had lauded him, Hogan praised his town.

"It's great to have this place for your kids to go to school," he said.

"It's great. I do want to thank everybody, because this is one of the greatest moments of my life."

Brown, introduced by Crane County Agent Fred Wilkinson, devoted about an hour to his standard "stir 'em up speech" and received a standing ovation.

Brown, exhorting the people to stand up for their community, country, God and for themselves, also got applause in talking about the work ethic.

"I believe all men are created equal, but they don't have to stay that way," he said.

And Brown paraphrased the Apostle Paul: "He that don't work ought to starve, and we need a federal law to accelerate the program." He made exceptions to the handicapped and elderly, however, and others unable to work.

The food fare, pegged to well-cooked rib-eye steaks, was prepared by Billye Dillard, head of the Crane school cafeteria, and her staff.

Reagan joins race today

NEW YORK (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, in his third bid for the presidency, is taking his place in front of a crowded field of candidates seeking the 1980 Republican nomination.

Reagan, scheduled to formally declare his candidacy at 7:30 p.m. EST today, enters the race with a front-runner's status that even his major rivals acknowledge.

His announcement brings to 10 the number of Republicans seeking the nation's highest office. Three men, including President Carter, are running for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Although Reagan has done virtually no campaigning thus far, his declaration of candidacy has long been planned by his strategists.

How do the other GOP candidates feel about Reagan's candidacy?

"If I didn't think I could catch him, I wouldn't be running around the country," said Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, who is the minority leader of the Senate.

"The way I'll catch him is to convince the Republican Party that I have the best chance to be elected. Nomination is not the name of the game, but getting elected is," Baker said.

George Bush of Texas, who was CIA director in the Nixon administration, said Reagan's formal entry into the race affects his own race "not a whit. My strategy has been predicated on his entering the race some day."

A condensed five-minute version will be shown nationwide on CBS at 10 p.m. EST.

Warmer afternoons forecast for area

The current clear, crisp weather should continue at least through Wednesday, the weatherman said today, but the afternoons should be a little warmer.

High Wednesday is expected to warm all the way up the low 60s, with tonight's low dipping to the low 30s.

Winds should be light and variable tonight, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Monday's high was a chilly 57 degrees with the overnight low recorded at 28.

For comparison, the record temperatures for the date are 84 degrees set in 1938 and 15 set in 1976.

The gauge at the weather service remains dry, so the monthly accumulation is still a mere trace, while the annual total stays at 13.25 inches.

Clear to partly cloudy skies prevailed across Texas today as a large high pressure system covered the state.

Pre-dawn temperatures dropped into the 20s over much of West Texas, while readings in the 30s were reported over most other sections. In the Rio Grande Valley, mild readings in the 50s and 60s were noted.

Northerly winds blowing at 10 to 15 miles per hour were reported over the coastal plains and in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Light and variable breezes were the rule across the rest of the state.

Reagan V. Brown, commissioner of the Texas Department of Agriculture, is flanked by Lady Faye Galloway, Crane's First Lady, and Ted Hogan, the town's newest Outstanding Citizen.

Protests against Khomeini, Iran continue on college campuses

By The Associated Press

The Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was burned in effigy on college campuses in Texas and Utah as students again protested the siege at the American Embassy in Tehran, where 60 Americans were being held by Iranian students.

No violence was reported and there were no arrests at the demonstrations Monday.

In Ogden, Utah, more than 1,000 demonstrators gathered at Weber

State College and burned an effigy of the Iranian religious and political leader. The demonstrators shouted, "Let them eat oil."

Across campus, a spokesman for the school's 181 Iranian students said the Iranian students respect American laws but also support the students who are holding American hostages at the embassy.

About 2,500 students attended an anti-Iran rally at North Carolina State University. Raleigh police said the mood of the crowd was similar to a pep rally, although there was boeing of pro-Iranian speakers.

Hundreds of Texas A&I University students surrounded about 50 Iranians and forced them to take refuge in a dormitory during a protest on the Kingsville campus.

Campus security guards quickly formed a protective line to prevent a confrontation between the two groups, university officials said.

The demonstrators, who burned an Iranian flag and sang "America," demanded the 200 Iranian students attending the college be deported. They remained outside the dormitory for about 30 minutes, then dispersed.

In Beaumont, Texas, about 500 protesters burned the ayatollah in effigy at Lamar University.

Bud Leonard, Lamar's vice-president for university relations, said a "scuffle" between American and Iranian students occurred late Monday morning in front of the campus police office. However, he said, the confrontation consisted mostly of "pushing." There were no arrests and no injuries reported.

Campus police escorted several Iranian students to safety from shouting matches with groups of sign-carrying protesters who called on the United States "to quit beating like sheep and start roaring like lions."

Anti-Iranian demonstrators marched through downtown Houston for the fourth time in five days.

A small bi-plane circled Houston's 40-story Dresser Tower that houses the Iranian consulate and dumped leaflets during another demonstration.

Signed "The John Wayne Society — Every American Citizen is a Member," the leaflets urged that Americans stop buying where Iranians work; that Iranians be fired and denied housing and that restaurants and merchants refuse to serve them.

Meanwhile, officials of Fulton County Community College in Johnston County, N.Y., announced Monday that it had canceled plans to enroll a dozen Iranian students in January "until the college is assured that basic human rights are protected in Iran." The announcement came after the Fulton County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to order the college not to admit the Iranians.

Wanna buy a band? Kuwaiti woman does

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Football fans who see Texas A&M play always are impressed with one thing at its games — the Aggie Band at halftime.

The latest to be impressed was a millionaire from the oil-rich Arab country of Kuwait who offered to buy the 300-member precision marching unit, lock, stock and bugle.

The offer came as a group of visiting Kuwaitis attended the Texas A&M-Rice game as guests of the Gulf Oil Co.

"One woman in the group offered to buy the band and take it home with her," said Leroy Johnson, a Gulf executive and one of the hosts. "She was joking, of course, I think."

The Aggies have nothing to fear, however.

"We'll just have to convince her we're not for sale," said band director Lt. Col. Joe Haney. "We certainly appreciate the flattering offer."

The Kuwaitis had to be content with an Aggie Band record of school songs.

Reeko, counseled by Texas Electric Service Co., took first place in dollar volume of sales with $527 worth of electric meter lamps. Cheveco, counseled by Chevron U.S.A., Inc., took second with $335.35 worth of pen sets.

Thrift shop serves many purposes

STANTON — "You find anything, Alma? Anything you need?" asked Maxine Kelly, a saleslady whose only commission is satisfaction.

Need it or not, Alma Bright did find something — two plastic wall decorator pieces in the shape of bunches of grapes.

Mrs. Bright, who's graying and who's up in years, seemed worn out. She sat down in a rocking chair in the Thrift Store. From her purse, she dug out enough change to pay for the items.

"Oh, Lordie, I've got to go," she murmured, but stayed put in the chair in the dimly-lit store with the tall, peeling ceiling.

She was tired.

"Those little things I'm going to wash and hang up in the kitchen," she said of the ornamental grapes.

She was trying to muster the gumption to get up and walk back to her apartment.

"Oh, I'm so tired."

She pushed herself up.

"Oh, I guess I'd better go."

Instead, she sat back down in the rocking chair. Mrs. Kelly was in the straight chair in front of a small table, where she exchanged second-hand goods for small change or bills. Items for sale at unadvertised low prices included sweaters, pairs of pants or slacks, suits, hats, shoes, socks, purses, clothing patterns, scarves, books and kitchen utensils.

The retiring elderly lady in the rocking chair was without a ray of sunshine. "Oh, I'm so tired."

But Mrs. Kelly radiated life, perhaps because tending to things in the good-cause Thrift Store gave her pleasure. Plus, she has a healthy family on the farm just outside of Stanton. Mrs. Bright didn't appear so fortunate.

She has been in Stanton off-and-on since 1939.

"Oh, we've moved backwards and forwards. We came here in '39, but we've been back a straight 11 years...since Mac died," Mrs. Bright simply said.

Finally, she once again forced herself out of the cushioned rocker and wistfully walked out with her problems.

The place quickly livened up when another silver-haired lady, a widow, briskly stepped into the store with an arm full of folded second-hand grocery bags for the store.

"HOW DID YOU DO YESTERDAY?" cheerfully asked Lu Berry.

"Thirty dollars," replied Mrs. Kelly, who is Mrs. Berry's co-worker in the store operated by the Martin County Hospital Auxiliary. In the past four years, the women's auxiliary has, free-will, raised $22,000 for the hospital.

Yesterday was Wednesday, a big-selling day for the Thrift Store, which is similar, but on a much smaller scale, to the thrift store operated by the Salvation Army in Midland.

The store is open only on the last three weekdays of each week and then only on afternoons. The gross sales on each Thursday usually are $5 to $6. Friday's sales jump up to $6 or $7. A lot of the poorer people trade here, especially at mid-week, when they still have some money left over from payday. Wednesday is $30-day at the Thrift Store.

"A lot of those Mexican kids would go to school barefoot if we didn't have this (store)," Mrs. Kelly commented. "It works both ways." Both the poor and the hospital benefit from the bargain store.

SHOES SELL FOR 25 CENTS TO $1 PER PAIR; suits, for $2.50 to $5; britches and slacks, a quarter, a half dollar, a dollar or two. It just depends.

"You see," said the dark-haired Mrs. Kelly, "if we sell a dollar's worth of clothes, we make a dollar." The merchandise is donated, and the only overhead is the $25 monthly rent, and the light and gas bills.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

Mrs. Berry seemed pleased with her world. She, unlike Mrs. Bright, had just returned from buying new things at inflated prices.

"Oh, I'm so happy," she declared. "I've got my Christmas shopping done. I always shop here (Stanton) first, then I go elsewhere — to Midland."

Presently, a dark-haired woman, dressed in garments of the poor, struggling class, came in and mulled over garments on a clothing rack.

"MAY I HELP YOU?" ASKED MRS. KELLY.

"Oh, I'm just looking around."

"If I can be of any help, let me know."

Moments later, the woman spent $1.75 on two or three clothing articles and left. Her purchase brought afternoon sales to $4.25; last Thursday's was $5.05.

A few minutes passed. And a thin and lean man came in. The pants he was wearing were too short, and he wanted to exchange them. As a rule, no exchanges are allowed, but, as a rule, there are exceptions.

He tried on another pair, priced at $1, liked them, and paid Mrs. Kelly 50 cents, which was the difference between the two pair of pants, and turned to leave.

"Thank you," he said softly.

That brought the day's sales to $4.75.

"We try to mark our stuff real reasonable," said Mrs. Kelly.

The trickling flow of customers in "this friendly little town" had stopped.

"It doesn't look like we're going to be busy," said the saleslady.

"I guess not," agreed Mrs. Berry.

Closing time was less than an hour away.

"Oh, some days we do better. Some days we don't," said Mrs. Kelly.

"Usually, it doesn't pay to open up."

But they do.

Hawaii's residents coping with public workers' strike

HONOLULU (AP) — Coping with a three-week-old strike by public blue-collar workers has become the order of the day for the nearly 900,000 people who call these tropical islands home.

Many are piling their garbage into the family car to drive past club-wielding but generally friendly picketers to the smoldering dumps where growing mountains of stinking refuse go unattended.

Parents are seeking diversions for school children who have been on a holiday since Oct. 26, when lack of school janitors to clean restrooms forced a shutdown of the state's public education system.

Motorists are taking turns at busy intersections where signals malfunction for days before supervisors can make repairs.

Honolulu Mayor Frank F. Fasi also was seen coping Monday, pushing a power mower across the lawn at City Hall.

"The City Hall 50th anniversary celebration is coming up next week and if this doesn't get done, it's going to look like hell," said Fasi, who earlier had hired some private yardmen to do the work before striking city workers dissuaded them.

Federal mediator Gayle Winerter scheduled renewed talks today, in hopes of breaking the deadlock on a new two-year labor contract for 7,700 state and county workers who average $840 a month.

Hostility surfaced at the talks Monday with Henry Epstein, state director of the United Public Workers Union, charging the government with failure to respond to sizeable cuts in the union's wage demands.

State chief labor negotiator Robert Taira accused Epstein of playing "the numbers game" by coming down from what the state sees as "a ridiculously high wage proposal."

One farm family leaves area condemned for Tellico Dam

LOUDON, Tenn. (AP) — One farm family has given up its fight against the Tellico Dam, but two other former landowners remain steadfast in their vow that federal marshals will have to move them.

"We figured it was the end of the trail," Jean Ritchey said Monday as her husband and daughters began packing their belongings. "We didn't give up. We just saw that it was time to go."

Nellie McCall, a 75-year old widow, and postman Beryl Moser promised to stay to the bitter end. Their homes also are on the 38,000 acres the Tennessee Valley Authority condemned for the dam's 16,000-acre lake and planned industrial and recreation development on its shores.

TVA Counsel Herb Sanger refused to say Monday when marshals might serve Mrs. McCall and Moser with eviction orders. Officials close to the situation said it could be today or Wednesday.

S. David Freeman, TVA's chairman, says it is up to the marshals when the holdouts will be evicted.

"I haven't got too long here, so I guess it just doesn't make any difference," Mrs. McCall said Monday. "I'm going to let them carry me out. They're going to have to carry all my stuff out, too."

Boone Dougherty, the Ritcheys' and Mrs. McCall's attorney, met with TVA lawyers Monday in an effort to avoid a showdown. Dougherty told his clients over the weekend that their legal recourses had been exhausted.

The Ritcheys have rented a house off the government's land that is a half mile from their old home. They turned down TVA's offer to pay for moving or storing their furnishings.

"We're doing the work and we're doing it all with our own truck," Mrs. Ritchey said defiantly, her voice cracking. "We don't need the likes of them to help us move."

The Ritcheys mailed back the $115,218 government check they received in 1976 for their land. It and checks of $14,718 to Moser and $86,068 to Mrs. McCall are deposited with the U.S. District Court in Knoxville.

More than 90 percent of the work on Tellico project was completed three years ago, when the dam was halted by the snail darter, a rare tiny fish whose Little Tennessee River home the lake will destroy.

Congress last summer ordered dam completed despite the snail darter and "notwithstanding any other law." TVA finished it a month ago but is waiting for farmers to complete their harvests before closing its gates.

Derailments in Ontario, Florida, Michigan leave total of 222,000 displaced residents

By The Associated Press

While more than 220,000 Canadians forced to evacuate by a chemical train derailment were expected to return home today, about 500 persons were still displaced by a similar accident in northwest Florida.

And in Holland, Mich., the 1,500 people forced to flee in a tank car accident were back in their homes.

Several hundred firemen brought the fires in the wreckage of the derailed Canadian Pacific freight train under control Monday near Mississauga, Ontario.

They put a temporary canvas patch on the rupture in an upended tanker leaking chlorine that vaporized into a deadly gas.

"Propane gas was still burning in another derailed tank car nearby, and Fire Chief Gordon Bentley said until that fire was out, the chlorine could still explode.

The Canadian derailment occurred just before midnight Saturday, when 25 of the 106 cars in a CP Rail freight train loaded with chemicals jumped the tracks half a mile from one of the most densely populated areas of Mississauga, 10 miles west of Toronto.

In Molino, Fla., the six derailed propane tank cars were burning for the third day, and a Texas explosives expert was considering blasting holes in the cars to put out the flames.

Louisville & Nashville Railroad officials brought in Wayne Rutledge of Jet Research

Inc. of Arlington, Texas, to inspect the burning tank cars.

The liquid propane leaking and hissing from three damaged tank cars has fed a continuous blaze since early Sunday, when 22 cars of a 109-car L&N train derailed.

L&N spokesman Peter Gill said Rutledge's strategy was to blow holes in the tankers to allow "rapid burning." He added, "There's still a potential for a blow-out."

Food poisoning hits Hugo school

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — "Our teacher said, 'Anybody who feels sick can just run to the bathroom,' and everybody got up and started running."

The unidentified student was describing a wave of illness that hit her school Monday when students and faculty began "falling like flies," vomiting and complaining of cramps and diarrhea after a school lunch of beef tacos, okra and peach cobbler.

Doctors said none of the almost 270 victims was likely to die, but some might "wish they were dead."

Officials at Franklin Junior High School said the victims contracted what appeared to be food poisoning following the school cafeteria lunch.

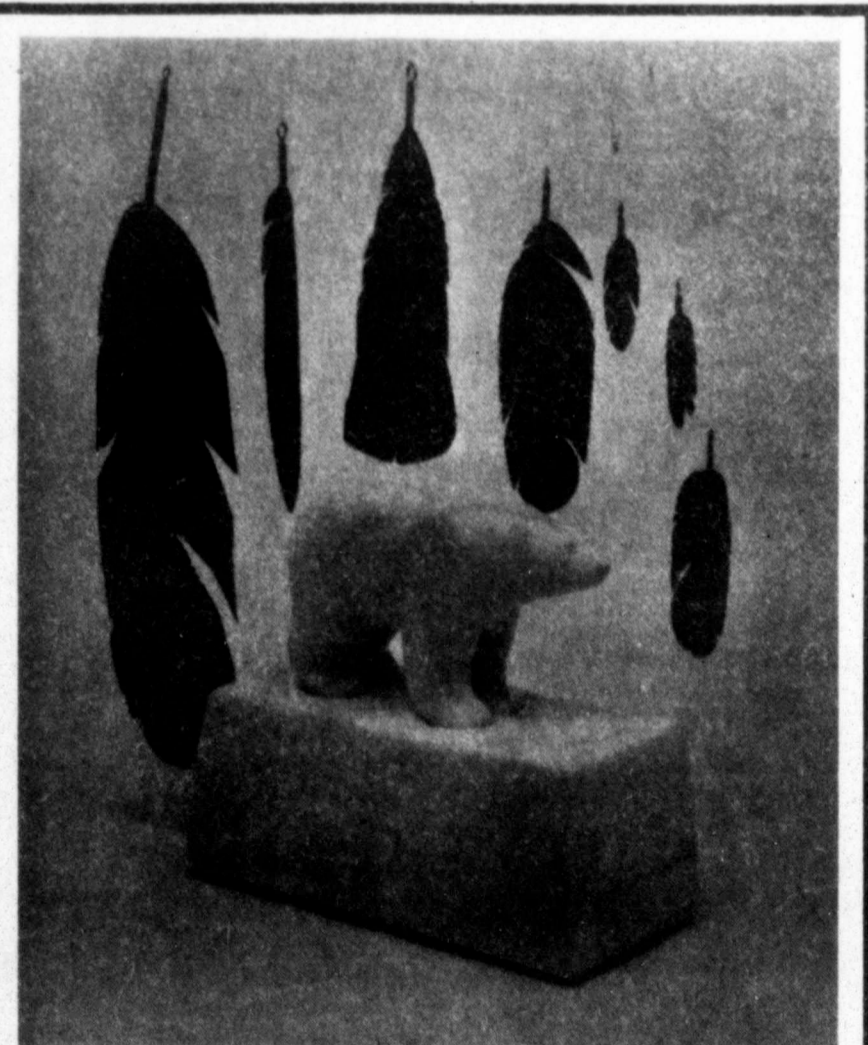

"People just started falling down and bumping into each other," said seventh grader Vince Johnson.

Schools were closed today as four other cafeterias in the school system were checked for possible contamination.

None of the victims was reported in critical condition. About 102 students and faculty members were admitted to hospitals in Hugo, Antlers, Idabel, and Paris, Texas. Another 168 were treated and released.

The 76-bed Choctaw County Memorial Hospital was filled to capacity, and broom closets, lounges and offices were converted into emergency bed space. Mattresses were lined up on hallway floors and intravenous bottles were hung with coathangers from TV sets and door frames.

"Children were everywhere vomiting uncontrollably," a reporter at the hospital said.

I would like a list of outstanding city and county bonds. I want to know the dollar amount due at maturity, date issued, date of maturity, annual interest expense for each bond issue, interest paid to date and specific purpose of each bond. — L. Evans

ANSWER: Well, L. Evans, regarding the question on the outstanding county bonds, the answer was relatively easy to obtain because Midland County, according to Dee Thompson, county treasurer, has only one outstanding bond.

This bond is for remodeling the courthouse and jail, and was issued Jan. 1, 1971, in the amount of $1,950,000.

Today, according to Mrs. Thompson, the county owes $1,160,000. The interest rate varies, with 6 percent for the 1972-73 payment, 4 percent for 1974-79 and 4.2 to 4.75 percent for 1980-86.

The bond will be paid off in January 1986.

The payment made by the county in January 1979 was $130,000. The payment for January 1980 will be $135,000.

Any further information about the county bond can be obtained from Mrs. Thompson, 682-9481.

My husband is a VFW (veteran of foreign wars), unable to work without constant pain.

He goes to the VA Hospital for checkups and to get medicine. One doctor said he should be able to get some help from the government, and another doctor told him because he was married, he would not be able to get help if I worked. Heaven help us if I didn't work. — Mrs. A.R.

ANSWER: Answer Line has explained the situation to Joe Summers, who is with the Waco office of the Veterans Administration.

If you contact him through the Terminal VA regional benefits office, 563-0324, he will be glad to assist, explaining the specifications as related to your particular circumstances:

I would like to know if the employees of Animal Control have had preventive rabies shots?

I think it is scandalous if they have not had the shots. The cost of the preventive measure is much less than the series of shots necessary if they should be exposed to a rabid animal. — Mrs. R. L.

ANSWER: A spokesman for Animal Control says all kennel workers and office personnel have had a minimum of four preventive shots. These shots do not insure complete immunity to rabies, but when the situation arises, the employees would not have to have as many shots.

The employees have blood tests made every three to four months to determine the effectiveness of the preventive shots.

"CANNED GOODS FOR PIZZA" is the slogan being used to promote an effort by Pizza Hut restaurants to gather canned goods for area charities, now through Dec. 20.

The recipient of the canned goods donated in Midland this year will be High Sky Girls Ranch.

By donating a non-perishable canned food item when purchasing any medium or large pizza, Pizza Hut will give the buyer a small regular pizza with up to three toppings free. The restaurant then will donate the items to local charities in time for Christmas dinner.

"We've done this program in other parts of the country and have generated up to 6,000 canned goods for area charities," said Lee Parks, district manager for Pizza Hut in Lubbock. "We've found that area residents are very generous, especially around this time of year, and we sure want to do our part..."

Woman's Club to host PDAP director

Bob Savage, director of Midland's Palmer Drug Abuse Program (PDAP) will be the speaker when the Midland Woman's Club meets for their November luncheon Wednesday.

The "1979-80 Origins," a group of pop singers composed of six vocalists and three instrumentalists from Lee High School, will entertain during the luncheon. Choral director is Walter Wright.

Thursday's meeting is sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club. Directing the program is Mrs. Willie Dubose, president, and Karen McIntosh, program chairman.

Members of the Woman's Club and the Junior Woman's Club have been active in supporting the Midland

PDAP program with contributions and services. A campaign to raise $55,000 from local contributions to cover the first year's operating budget was successfully completed in recent months and the national association provided counselors for the program to begin here Sept. 1.

Bob Savage, director, will be reporting on the response to the program in the past two and a half months of operation in Midland.

The program currently has two active youth and parent groups at two centers. The youngest group, composed of 13-17 year olds, meets at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. Sara Cross is counselor.

The 18-year old group and older meets at First United Methodist Church, where Savage and his wife Michelle are counselors.

Savage will explain why he believes PDAP is the most effective drug abuse program in the world. He also will discuss PDAP as a family program, how it helps to resolve problems caused by continued use of drugs and alcohol during the developmental years, what steps a parent can take when he or she doesn't know what to do with a child on drugs, and other points of the program.

DEAR ABBY

Abby heartwarms a cold shoulder

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed AMERICA FIRST, in which the writer was opposed to our taking in the boat people, sickened me. I was further sickened to read that your mail was running 200 to 1 in favor of turning away the refugees!

I would like to think that the writers of those letters are in the minority, otherwise I fear for the future of our country.

Your answer to AMERICA FIRST must have touched the heart and soul of every decent human being who read it. It was the finest letter you ever wrote. Our founding fathers would have been proud of you.

Keep up the good work, Abby. You may be speaking for the silent majority. — AN AMERICAN IN TUCSON

DEAR AMERICAN: I know now that I was! My mail usually confirms the theory that many more people will take up the pen to oppose something than to support it.

However, since printing a sampling of the discouraging responses, I have received a blizzard of mail from readers — easily 10,000 to 1 — in favor of providing refuge to the boat people. And they're still coming in. Thank you, readers. You are beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old and it's like I am walking around in a fog. I just found out that my "mother" is really my aunt, and my "aunt" is my real mother.

My mother wasn't married at the time, so she gave me to her married sister to raise. Later, my real mother got married and had children. That means my brothers and sisters are really my cousins, and the kids I always thought were my cousins are really my half-sisters and brothers. I feel terrible to think almost everybody in the family has known this all along and I had to find it out from a stranger.

There is nothing I can do about it because I feel toward the aunt who raised me just like any kid would feel toward his own mother, and don't honestly feel anything extra special for my real mother, who I thought was just another aunt.

I guess what I want to say is this: please tell people if they have a secret like this in their family, it's best to tell the kids before they hear it from strangers. — HURT AND IN A FOG

DEAR HURT: Excellent advice!
DEAR ABBY: In reply to LARRY'S GAL, you wisely pointed out that gambling can become an addiction as serious as liquor and tobacco.

That caused me to recall the words of Dr. George S. Stevenson, a medical consultant to the National Association for Mental Health:

"Many people come to adult life suffering from a feeling of inadequacy about themselves, and a feeling of uncertainty about life in general. Unable to meet the demands of life, they may develop neurotic symptoms, take to alcohol or narcotics, or turn to compulsive gambling, which permits them to avoid reality — one turn of a card, one spin of the wheel can make everything come out all right — they hope." — ARTHUR H. PRINCE

CONFIDENTIAL TO LISA: I don't think he was "confessing." I think he was BRAGGING. (Or, possibly, lying.)

'True value of energy'

Joe Melton of Midland forwards a clipping from the "Readers write" column appearing in a recent issue of The El Paso Times. It is worth sharing.

The "True value of energy" letter, written by J.A. Whitacre of El Paso, reads as follows:

"What is the true value of energy?"

It used to be that the value of something was determined by what people were willing to pay for it. Two things have been happening over the years.

"First, our lifestyles have become such that we require large quantities of energy.

"Second, the price of energy has been artificially manipulated so that its value in these inflationary times has been obscured. Now that inflation is impacting energy prices and the government is not going to be able to stop it, people are becoming concerned.

"By the way, inflation is a rise in prices. Inflation is not caused by a rise in the price of energy, food or anything else. Look it up in the dictionary.

"I was taught that food, clothing and shelter were essential to human life. In a series on energy the week of Oct. 15, NBC expanded the three essentials to six. Now fuel is essential. If they want to play that game, I'll go along. Gas energy costs about $4 per million British thermal units, electric energy about $5.6 per million Btu, and gasoline energy about $8 per million Btu.

"What do we pay for the energy in the food we consume? One can obtain prices for bread, meat and vegetables from the paper or at the market. The energy content can be obtained from anyone on a diet. I calculated that food energy costs about $335 per million Btu.

"Now, what is the true value of energy?"

That is the question — and a good one, indeed.

Egg tossers, beware

The mayor of New York City — one Edward Koch — isn't one to fool around with when it comes to an egg-tossing incident.

Two men and a woman pelted the mayor with eggs as he delivered a welcoming address in a New York hotel one day last week.

Soon after the mayor started his speech, two men and a woman jumped on the stage and splattered him with eggs.

Koch responded quickly and effectively by grabbing one of the men around the neck and wrestling him to the floor.

The mayor, with egg yolk pouring down his head and nose and dripping from his clothes, then turned to his audience and asked those who preferred to have the egg-throwing trio removed from the hall to stand up.

Approximately three-fourths of the audience stood.

"OK, cops, remove them," Mayor Koch ordered.

"If you can't get your way out of the ballot box, you're not going to get it through force," Koch said. "This is not Iran." And the audience cheered.

The mayor followed this up by going to the police station afterward to personally file a complaint against the egg throwers. He also received a tetanus shot at a hospital because of scratches he received in the scuffle.

The three arrested said they were members of a group called International Committee Against Racism and were critical of Koch's proposed cutback in municipal hospitals in poor, minority neighborhoods.

Mayor Koch, 54 and a trim 6-foot-1, got the attention of the egg throwers involved, and perhaps others who might have similar ideas.

Memoirs distort the real facts

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — To paraphrase Gen. Douglas MacArthur, old presidents and their sidekicks never die; they just keep writing memoirs. In the process, they have a tendency to rewrite history.

Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, for example, have come up with a fascinating, if far-fetched, explanation for their famous tilt toward Pakistan during the 1971 India-Pakistan conflict. This is a subject we know something about, having uncovered and published the secret documents on the tilt.

There wasn't space, of course, to publish the hundreds of documents we examined. We can report, however, that they told a different story than Nixon and Kissinger are now trying to peddle.

First, this background: While Pakistan and India fought over the dreary, humid, painfully impoverished piece of earth now called Bangladesh, the United States, Russia and China maneuvered dangerously near the edge of world war.

They had started choosing sides even before the Indian army crossed into Bangladesh. The Chinese, who had secretly sent supplies over the Himalayas to aid Pakistan, had troops poised to cross into India.

In the White House, Nixon had decided that the past Chinese-American hostility had been a ghastly mistake, and he set out to restore good relations with Peking. This worthy quest led him into a close relationship with Pakistan's military dictator, Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan, who had helped to open the doors to Peking.

A warm friendship developed between the two leaders. As early as August 1971, four months before the outbreak of the fighting, Nixon told his foreign policy planners that he intended to back Yahya Khan in his conflict with India.

Indian diplomats, finding the air chilly at the White House, tried to win friends on Capitol Hill. In late August 1971, Kissinger summoned Indian Ambassador L.K. Jha to the western White House at San Clemente, Calif. He delivered this secret warning, never before published:

"The very fact that our system is different must make you realize that, no matter how much you succeed in influencing important Senators, you have to deal with the administration — and this means the President — for bringing about any change in U.S. attitudes."

"The President does not feel, that apart from East Coast intellectuals among whom I used to be counted at one time, there are many people in this country who are genuinely interested in or excited about the affairs of the (Indian) subcontinent."

"The congressional leaders who support you do so because they want to use any excuse for attacking the President and not because they have any deep sympathies. Most of them have solidly opposed foreign aid and are parochial in their outlook."

When the fighting began, the Nixon administration deviously supplied the Pakistanis and dispatched a naval task force, led by the nuclear carrier Enterprise, to the Bay of Bengal. On orders from Washington, the ships

CHARLEY REESE No such thing as right to destroy another's rights

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Now that we have a new, nationwide campaign of demonstrations under way, it would be well to remember that once you abandon a system of laws, then you can't contain the violence.

The demonstration campaign this time is directed against nuclear power, but I am not going to debate that issue now. In fact, I hope this column will be read by people who are opposed to nuclear power.

The Constitution guarantees that American citizens have the right to peaceful assembly. The key word is "peaceful." There is nothing wrong with a group of citizens walking a picket line, holding rallies, or petitioning their government officials. This is what a free society is all about.

The right of peaceful assembly, however, does not include trespassing on another's property, blocking the entrances to buildings, interfering with another's right to go somewhere, destroying property, or attempting to close business and government offices. There is no such thing as a right which involves the destruction of another's rights.

Civil disobedience is also an acceptable method of political protest, if you mean by civil disobedience, the quiet, orderly and deliberate violation of a law in order to have an opportunity to test the constitutionality of the law in a court.

Civil disobedience, defined in this way, is perfectly consistent with a society of laws, for it recognizes the operational validity of the laws with which the protesters disagree and also recognizes that the proper way to change or abolish a law is to use the courts and the legislative hall.

When protests exceed these bounds, however, the protesters are in effect asserting anarchy, a system without laws. They are asserting that the righteousness of their cause negates any law, any legal process, or any other citizen's rights.

If there is an identifiable antecedent to the assassinations of John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King; to the attempted assassinations of George Wallace and Gerald Ford; to the deaths of the Kent State students, and to the deaths and injuries caused by the riots in the 1960s, it is the decision on the part of the earliest demonstrators at Berkeley, Calif., to abandon the lawful society.

There is a terrible logic which governs human affairs. If you are prepared to assert that the righteousness of your cause is sufficient to negate all law, then you must live with the assassin, the vigilante, and the terrorist, for that is precisely their logic.

I think many of the people involved in the nuclear protests are decent human beings motivated by a genuine concern for their fellow humans. They must be wary of becoming pawns of anarchists who would use the nuclear issue to further their own goal of destroying the society.

The nuclear demonstrations have begun to take on that character. The leaders are not content to hold rallies or to picket. They are advocating trespassing and destruction of property.

Cowardly politicians made a fearfully drastic error in the 1950s when they failed to assert the primacy of a rule of law because the cause of the demonstrators was politically popular. The harvest of their decision came in the 1960s in the form of death and destruction.

What has preserved this nation for 200 years has been a consistent respect for the concept of a society which governs itself by law, not by force. Those who wish to abandon this concept, and those who are too cowardly to defend it, should be aware of the terrible consequences of their decision, for they are really advocating a society in which the strong rule the weak.

I doubt if a majority of the young people opposed to nuclear power really wish to place themselves at the mercy of death squads and vigilantes; I doubt if they wish to see their meetings broken up by hoodlums swinging axes; I doubt if they wish to see their leaders shot down by assassins.

Well, they had better think before they let themselves be led toward anarchy. If the law cannot protect the corporation, the corporate investor, and the nuclear plant, then neither can it protect the protester. The philosophy that the end justifies the means can be adopted by anyone if it is tolerated at all.

INSIDE REPORT:

Moscow gains from breakdown of U.S.-Iranian relations

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although the Soviet Union cannot be credited with a major role in the revolutionary student takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Moscow will reap large rewards from the breakdown of U.S.-Iranian relations.

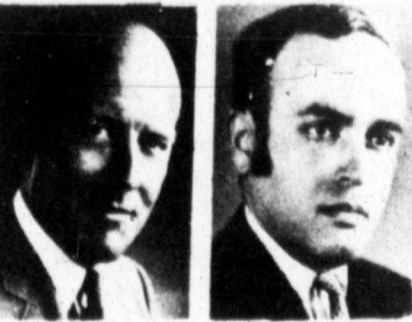

The Russians have kept up a battering-ram attack on the U.S. in its "National Voice of Iran" clandestine radio broadcasts from Baku into Iran. These broadcasts, crafted right in Moscow with the Politburo's obvious blessing, charge the U.S. with plotting to take over Iran and with using the U.S. Embassy as a center of imperialist and anti-Iranian conspiracy.

The benefit the Kremlin hopes to reap from a total U.S.-Iranian break is special oil concessions from Iran, long a major U.S. supplier. The U.S.-Iranian confrontation also helps clear the decks for Soviet plots along Iran's borders. An Afghan attack against Iran in the southern border region between Iran and Afghanistan, where the Soviets seized political control a year ago, could give Moscow its long sought warm water port on the Arabian Sea.

CONNALLY WATCHES 'TEDDY'

John B. Connally's longtime fascination with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy showed itself again when he interrupted campaigning in Florida to watch "Teddy," the CBS documentary Nov. 4.

Connally informed aides that he did not care where he was or what he was suggested to be doing but that he wanted a television set in front of him at 10 p.m. that night. Connally watched in silence but shook his head, in apparent disgust, during Kennedy's stumbling replies to questions.

Evans

Shortly thereafter, Connally again predicted Kennedy would be the Democratic nominee and that the Republicans would need an "alley fighter" — John B. Connally — to beat him. He began talking about a Kennedy-Connally duel well over a year ago, long before either seemed a serious possibility.

SO LONG, CIA

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) has suddenly disappeared from George Bush's Republican presidential campaign literature.

Earlier leaflets stressed the year spent by Bush as CIA director as part of his extensive government experience. What's more, ranks of Bush campaign volunteers are studied with CIA alumni. But polls show the CIA with a negative public ranking, partly because of alleged abuses of civil liberties.

So, the new leaflet says this of Bush's CIA days: "Head of our national intelligence system. Initiated reform to protect individual rights of Americans while ensuring our national security." The CIA in Bush's literature has gone the same place as the anonymous congressman in John B. Connally's literature (Lyndon B. Johnson) who brought him to Washington.

SCOOP'S JEWISH VETO

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, prime mover of the Jackson-Vanik amendment denying trade concessions to the Soviet Union without guarantees of Jewish emigration, has refused an all-out plea by a leading American Jewish group to drop the ban.

The appeal came from an umbrella Jewish organization called the Committee on Soviet Jewry, which worries that the record emigration rate of 50,000 this year may soon slow to a trickle if the Russians are not given full equality in trade with the U.S. More militant Jewish organizations, including the American Jewish Committee, still support Jackson.

The Committee on Soviet Jewry claims that the Soviets have now given good-faith proof of liberalized Jewish emigration. They worry that U.S. refusal to grant the trade concessions would soon drop the Iron Curtain on future emigration of Soviet Jews.

MEDIA WHIZ OF '79

Just as the Nov. 6 off-year elections were a Republican disaster, they were a personal triumph for Washington-based media expert Robert Squier.

Squier's television commercials were an important ingredient in electing as governor two candidates given little chance at first: John Y. Brown Jr. in Kentucky and William Winter in Mississippi. Squier also could help elect a third Democratic governor in Louisiana: state Public Service Commission Chairman Louis Lambert, who came from nowhere to make the runoff Dec. 8.

Squier's success in using television to lift Lambert from obscurity should give cause for alarm to Sen. Richard Stone of Florida. Squier is handling the media campaign for state Sen. Buddy MacKay, who in the Democratic senate primary will harp on Stone's support of the Panama Canal Treaty.

Run For Money

"The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox," a 20th Century Western film starring George Segal as a card shark and Goldie Hawn as a dance hall singer who team to outsmart bank robbers, airs on Tuesday, Nov. 13, on NBC's "Tuesday Night At The Movies." This parody of Western films plays on bank robbers who are clumsy at their task and do not collect the money they have hidden until after Segal and Hawn have stumbled upon it. Chasing them across country, the bank robbers finally lose their stash to the agile Segal-Hawn team.

Lynch watches first rodeo in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Prime Minister John Lynch of Ireland watched his first rodeo, tasted Texas barbecue and announced that nine U.S. corporations had agreed to spend $26 million in his country during a goodwill visit here.

"This year will conclude a remarkable decade of economic growth in Ireland's history," the prime minister said Monday. "This economic miracle, which has seen Ireland's growth rate outpace all other Common Market member states in the past three years, has been fueled largely by American investment."

The prime minister was scheduled to continue his U.S. tour in Chicago today.

Lynch said the commitments announced Monday were part of a record volume of American industrial investment in Ireland this year. He said more than 50 U.S. corporations during 1979 have agreed to establish manufacturing plants in Ireland involving $500 million.

Lynch said $2.5 billion of American industrial capital had flowed into Ireland in the past 10 years, five times the total volume of the previous years.

Prior to making the economic announcement, Lynch attended a rodeo in suburban Stafford where he watched Indian dances and was presented a miniature bale of cotton and a sulphur paper weight, symbolic of two of the area's products.

The prime minister said his country currently was negotiating with five other U.S. companies to other major industrial projects.

Lynch said Ireland is now one of the leading electronics manufacturing centers in Europe, due to the influx of American companies.

More than 10,000 flee to Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — More than 10,000 Cambodians, fleeing a new round of fighting in their homeland, crossed into Thailand today, and 20,000 more are expected to cross the border later this week, the Thai command said.

The command said the refugees are civilians loyal to ousted Cambodian Premier Pol Pot who is leading a guerrilla war against the Vietnamese-backed regime in Phnom Penh that ousted him in January.

A group of U.S. congresswomen toured refugee camps along the Thai-Cambodian border and flew to Phnom Penh Monday for talks with Cambodian leaders on relief aid to sick and starving refugees in Cambodia.

Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen told them he was grateful for international aid arriving by plane and ship but termed "not practical" an earlier plan by three U.S. senators to truck in supplies from Thailand.

The congresswomen also had been given permission to visit Vietnam today but decided that such a trip would "not be worthwhile."

Sources in the U.S. mission here said they were "puzzled" by such a decision especially since the Vietnamese are a key to the humanitarian problem in Cambodia.

The congresswomen left Thailand for the United States today but returned shortly after takeoff when one of their aides took ill.

The U.S. Embassy said Sally Brown, a staff aide to Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., was stricken "apparently with serious chest pains" about 15 minutes after the aircraft departed.

The embassy said Ms. Brown was rushed to the Thai air force hospital at Bangkok's international airport for a diagnosis.

Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., led a team of five other congresswomen into Cambodia Monday for talks with Phnom Penh authorities on prospects of more and speedier aid.

The congresswomen told a news conference after their one-day trip that they were encouraged by a positive attitude among Phnom Penh authorities toward receiving aid.

But Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan said the congresswomen told him there were differences of opinion between them and the Cambodian officials and that they hoped conflicts could be ironed out.

Kriangsak also said he was happy that the United States has shown a greater interest in this region by dispatching several missions here.

THE CONTINENTAL SHORTCUT.

FOUR WAYS CONTINENTAL CUTS THE TIME TO NEW YORK.

1. Continental has found the fastest way into New York. With service to Newark Airport, Newark's fifteen minutes less flying time than if you head into JFK. It's also in a different traffic pattern. You'll avoid those stackups that happen so often over JFK.

2. You save time on the ground, too. Newark serves about 15,000,000 fewer passengers a year than JFK. So you still have a good chance of getting your baggage in a reasonable amount of time, without the frustrating delays.

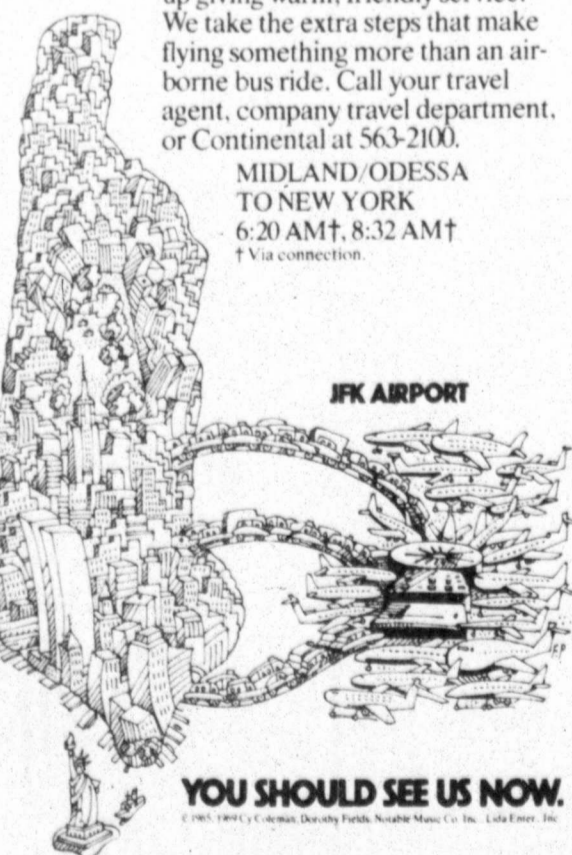

3. Because Newark is modern and well laid out, people are able to come and go without the huge jams you get at most International airports. You can get through the terminal without the shoving, crowding and delays that cut into your time.

4. You can get into Manhattan about 45 minutes faster from Newark than from JFK. That's according to the Official Airline Guide.

Finally, Continental saves wear and tear on your soul. We've grown up giving warm, friendly service. We take the extra steps that make flying something more than an airborne bus ride. Call your travel agent, company travel department, or Continental at 563-2100.

Monday night haunts Pokes

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

IRVING — One thing about the Dallas Cowboys, when it comes to Monday night football, they are consistent.

Despite some late hour heroics, the Cowboys, who found against Cleveland earlier this season, lost to the mistake proof Philadelphia Eagles, 31-21, at Texas Stadium.

That makes the Cowboys 7-8 for Monday appearances and marks only the third time in the last 22 meetings that they have lost to the Eagles, two of those defeats coming on Monday nights.

Coach Tom Landry blamed the Cowboys' mistakes, particularly in the kicking game, and the Eagles ability to come up with the big play after one of those mistakes as the difference.

"I didn't think we were flat. We came out strong running and passing, but then started to make mistakes," Landry said.

As a matter of record, the Cowboys held to one touchdown in their previous 10 periods, scored in the first minute of play as quarterback Roger Staubach found Tony Hill open on a 48-yard stunner and then had another good drive going on the Cowboys' second possession.

Staubach noted that Dallas might have gone in for the touchdown, "But I put Hill in the 'I' instead of the Red Formation. He was in the open, but I didn't see him and I got hit. If he had been in the Red, he would have run an out route where I was looking. We put ourselves in a hole by not scoring."

Actually, it was the Cowboys breakdown in the kicking phase of the game that encouraged Philadelphia after the second Cowboy possession failed to produce points.

Two penalties, holding that nullified a punt and offensive offsides on a field goal attempt, kept alive the Eagles' drive and quarterback Ron Jaworski made the Cowboys pay dearly with a 32-yard touchdown pass to 6-7 Harold Carmichael on a fourth and one after the Eagles got a second chance following Tony Franklin's missed field goal attempt.

"Carmichael played a good game," praised defensive back Cliff Harris. "He gets up for us. Tonight we controlled him except when we needed to control him."

Harris said a mixup in assignments turned Carmichael loose on his first TD pass. "I wound up with him in a man-on-man situation, but I was supposed to be covering the middle."

Philadelphia took a 14-7 lead with 13:57 gone in the second period when reserve quarterback John Walton hit Charles Smith with a 29-yard scoring pass. Then an interception led to Tony Franklin's 59-yard field goal that made it 17-7 at intermission.

"We didn't think he could make it," Landry was to lament later, "That's why we didn't accept the penalty yardage."

A 13-yard Jaworski to Carmichael pass made it 24-7 in the third period and half of the crowd of 62,417 had gone home in disgust after Dallas frittered away an opportunity with 10 minutes left in the game, so they missed the 75-yard Staubach to Hill pass with five minutes to go and the 5-yard pass to Billy Joe DuFree that narrowed it to 24-21 with 1:19 left in the game.

Although it was billed as something of a showdown, it wasn't really that big of a game. Dallas went into the game leading the NFC East by two games, so the Eagles were in a desperate situation. It was either beat Dallas or look forward to 1981. However, the loss combined with a trip to Washington Sunday and a visit from Houston the following Thursday, making three games in 11 days, does serve to thicken the plot and emphasize the importance of the game.

Buckeyes close in on Alabama

By The Associated Press
Ohio State's freshman football coach, Earle Bruce, won't admit he is eyeing No. 1, but the national title loomed closer for the Buckeyes today.

Bruce and his Buckeyes have moved from third to a close second behind Alabama in The Associated Press college football poll, with Nebraska dropping to third from the runnerup spot.

"I can't say I ever thought about being No. 1," said Bruce, whose Buckeyes clobbered Iowa 34-7 last Saturday and face a tough Big Ten Conference test next weekend against Michigan. "I have thought about being 10-0. I never thought about being 0-10."

"I am going to have to let those things (rankings and bowls) concern themselves after we play our 11th game."

In balloting by a national panel of sports writers and broadcasters announced Monday, the 10-0 Buckeyes received 14 first-place votes for 1,218 points, Alabama, which eked out a 3-0 victory over Louisiana State Saturday night, had 34 top votes and 1,262 points.

Nebraska, which beat Kansas State 21-12 Saturday to remain unbeaten in nine games, attracted five first-place votes for 1,209 points. The Cornhuskers were followed in the poll by Southern California, 9-0-1, with 12 first-place votes and 1,164 points, and Florida State, 9-0, with 983 points. Florida State had been seventh the previous week.

The remaining first-place ballot was split three ways among No. 6 Texas, No. 8 Arkansas and No. 9 Houston. Texas, 7-1, had 981 points, Oklahoma was seventh with 960, Arkansas had 859 and Houston 788. Brigham Young, 9-0, rounded out the Top Ten with 705 points.

Texas was eighth, Oklahoma sixth,

Arkansas ninth, Houston fifth and Brigham Young 11th last week.

The Second Ten this time was No. 11 Pittsburgh, No. 12 Purdue, 13th-ranked Michigan, No. 14 Clemson, 15th-rated Auburn, No. 16 Washington, No. 17 Wake Forest, 18th-ranked Temple, No. 19 Tennessee, and Baylor and Tulane, tied for 20th.

Last week, it was Brigham Young, Pitt, Notre Dame, Purdue, Washington, Auburn, Baylor, Clemson, South Carolina and Wake Forest. Temple and Tulane made the Top Twenty for the first time this year, and Tennessee returned to the ratings with a 40-18 drubbing of Notre Dame.

Temple has lost only one of nine games this season, a one-point decision to Pitt, while 8-2 Tulane moved into the poll after crushing Mississippi 49-15.

Is NFL playoff system in need of adjustment?

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

If the National Football League season ended today, the Detroit Lions and San Francisco 49ers would be delighted.

But seriously, if the season ended now, there would be more than a couple of teams in the American Football Conference wondering if there is any justice in the world.

Consider, the NFL's playoff formula — three division champions plus two "wild cards," non-championship teams with the second- and third-best records in each conference.

It is possible, of course, for the runnerup in one division to have a better record than a champion in another. Witness last year's Miami Dolphins, 11-5 and second in the AFC East while Denver won the West at 10-6. Or, in the National Football Conference, take Philadelphia (East) and Atlanta (West), the two wild-card teams, each at 9-7 while Minnesota was first in the Central Division at 8-7-1.

Now consider today's standings. In the AFC, seven teams have records of 7-4 or better — New England and Miami in the East, Pittsburgh, Houston and Cleveland in the Central and San Diego and Denver in the West. In that group, there are two teams which, no matter how well they play, will sit out the playoffs. And there are the Oakland Raiders, lurking in the background at 6-5 and hoping for some team to stumble.

In the NFC, excluding Monday night's game, only three teams have records of 7-4 or better — Dallas, Tampa Bay and Washington. And one of them — Washington — isn't even a division leader. Three other teams — Philadelphia, Chicago and New Orleans — were equal to Oakland's 6-5.

So what we have here is inequity. And perhaps what we have here is a crying need for a change in the playoff structure.

Unless more than a couple of teams take a tumble of gigantic proportions, or unless a few suddenly catch fire, there are going to be some frustrated football players mulling to themselves about the injustice of it all.

Imagine, for example, being a member of the Miami Dolphins or the Houston Oilers, or maybe the Denver Broncos. (This is all hypothetical; no need to get worked up over it.) You've just spent 16 weeks working hard trying (without success) to win a division title and have, instead, finished with a record of, say, 11-5 or 10-6. Not bad... but not good enough to make the playoffs. The wild cards have been dealt to the guys sitting on either side of you while all you've gotten is a plane ticket home and a "better luck next year."

Then you glance at the NFC and what do you see? A division winner with a record of maybe 8-8 or 9-7? Wild-card winners with the same mediocre marks!

It is time for the NFL to get rid of the conference concept. Leave the six conferences as they are, but discard the NFC and AFC tags (the NFL, unlike baseball, does not keep them apart until the championship).

Bulldog netters turn in strong showing at state

The Midland High tennis team certainly has a knack for upstaging other squads.

Considered nothing more than just another team heading into last weekend's State Team Tennis Tournament in College Station, the Purple Pack brought home a sixth place finish in the annual Fall event.

But not only was the team a giant-killer. Lance Armstrong, playing number one boys' singles for the Bulldogs, won all of his matches — including two major upsets that greatly abetted Midland's chances.

"All the kids did well," said MHS coach Cindy Hazen. "Our finish was really good. I'm real happy."

Perhaps the brightest spot was the play of Armstrong. According to Hazen, the junior is ranked fourteenth among players in Texas 16-years-old and under.

Yet, he easily defeated Alamo

Height's Danny Stewart, the state's top-seeded 16-under, 6-2, 6-3, in one match and then, in a later contest, shocked Richardson's Jeff Berg, ranked fourth in 16-under, 6-4, 6-0.

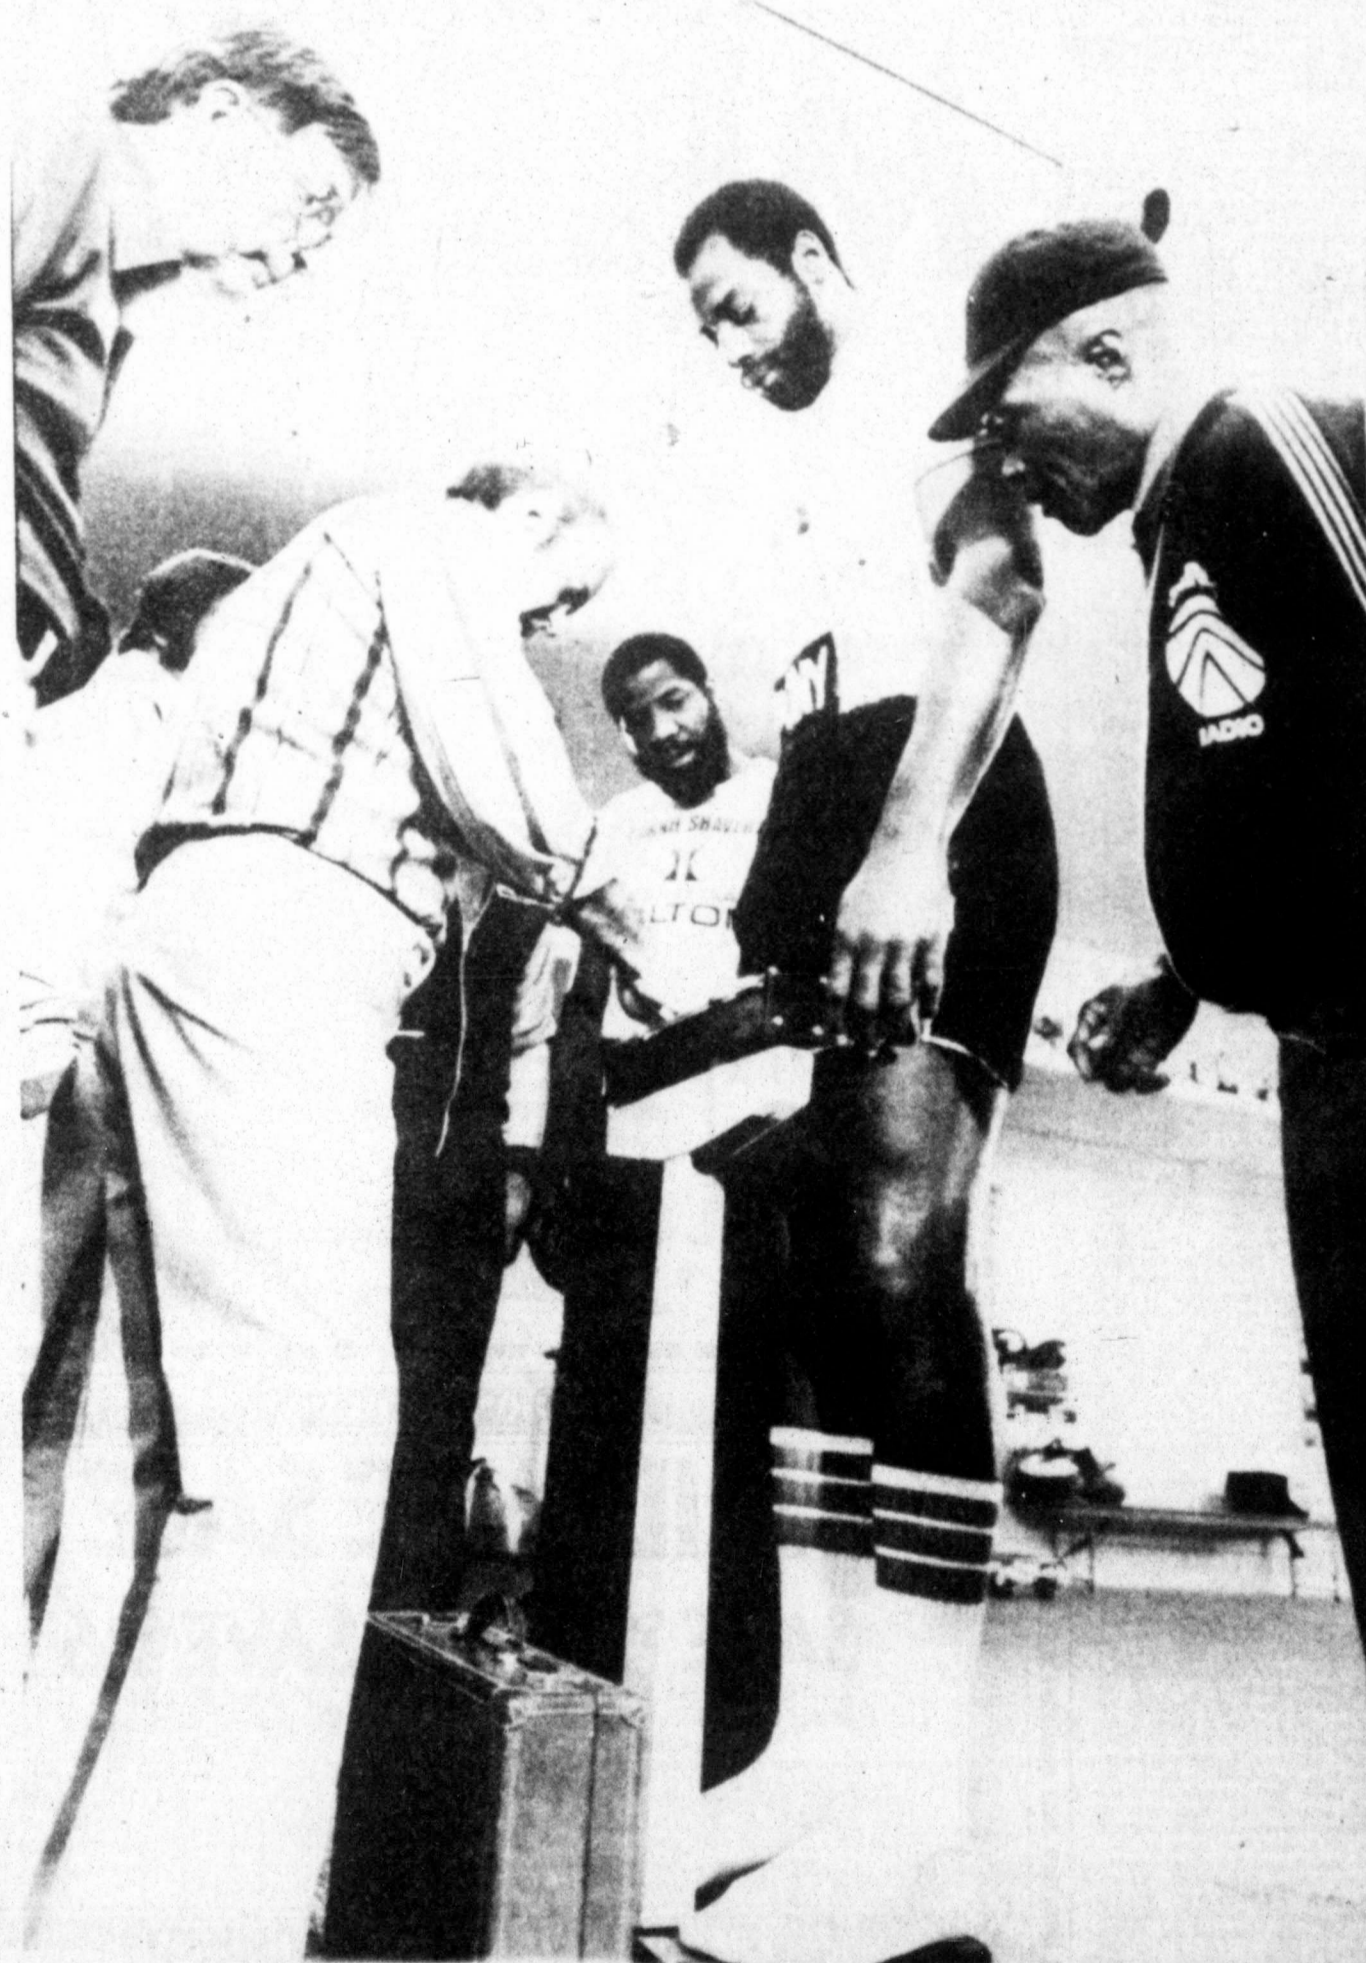

The Bulldogs began the tournament on a high note as they defeated Plano on a match-play event that consisted of each squad's boys' and girls' teams playing nine matches — six singles and three doubles.

Then the Pack encountered the top-seeded team, Alamo Heights, and despite Armstrong's brilliant effort, the Bulldogs fell 11-7.

In the third round of the two-day event, Midland trimmed Richardson 10-8.

Midland's last match came against District 5-4A nemesis Abilene Cooper, the team that won the crown for the region tournament in which the Bulldogs finished second.

The Cougars shaded the upset-minded Pack 10-8 to earn fifth placé.

'Horns still thinking Cotton Bowl

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Coach Fred Akers of Texas is still thinking Cotton Bowl even though the odds are against his squad winning the South-west Conference football title and host spot in the bowl.

Asked about Texas' bowl chances, Akers told his weekly news conference Monday. "We've seen several bowl representatives, but right now the only bowl bid we're concerned with is the Cotton Bowl."

Eighth-ranked Texas upset No. 5 Houston, 21-13, Saturday to scramble the Cotton Bowl picture.

Texas, Houston and Arkansas each has one loss with games yet to play, and Texas has the toughest schedule — facing Texas Christian and Baylor at home and Texas A&M on the road.

A THREE-WAY tie would boost Arkansas into the Cotton Bowl as Texas and Houston have played in the post-season game since Arkansas.

Texas would go to the Cotton Bowl only if Arkansas should lose to Texas A&M or Southern Methodist and Texas should win its three remaining games.

"Nothing is less important now than the Houston win. ... That's over and gone with," said Akers.

Nevertheless, he said, "That was probably the most complete ball game we've played."

He said the upcoming game with Texas Christian, 2-6-1 for the season, "will require our full attention. ... They're acting like they want to win."

Asked if Texas coaches had spotted anything in Houston game films that enabled the Longhorns to block two punts, Akers said, "Nothing concrete."

On the block by 6-foot-6 tackle Kenneth Sims, Akers said coaches had not called for a rush, but Sims just made a "great effort."

Asked about two missed field goal attempts by John Goodson, who had kicked 15 of 22 prior to the game, Akers disclosed Goodson had hurt a foot when playing Southern Methodist player hit him on an extra point Oct. 28. He said Goodson was having trouble "planting" his left foot to kick.

Asked about the difficulty of revving his team up to play Texas Christian after the emotionally charged victory over Houston, Akers said, "I don't think you are obliged to be 'up' only a certain number of times a year."

"Regardless of how difficult it is to come back with a fine performance after a fine performance, it's necessary," said Akers.

He said junior linebacker Mark Martignoni, who had earned his first starting role this season against Houston, dislocated a shoulder and will miss Texas' three final regular season games.

Akers praised Texas Christian as "probably the most improved team in the league. They've come on strong their last four games and have earned the respect of every team they played."

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Sugar Bowl executive says it is too early to speculate on an opponent for the Southeastern Conference representative in the Jan. 1 college football classic.

Mickey Holmes, executive director, responded to reports that either Arkansas or Texas would play in the Sugar Bowl under an arrangement that was to be presented Monday to bowl sponsors.

"Sure, that's one of our options," Holmes said Monday of the possibility that either Texas or Arkansas might get a Sugar bid.

He said there would be more meetings, one of them today, "and that is one of our options. But there are others, too. There still exists quite a series of ifs."

Although No. 1 Alabama has the SEC championship locked up, unranked Georgia — with four non-conference losses — could be the SEC Sugar representative since the Crimson Tide went to the New Orleans bowl last year. If Georgia beats Auburn this Saturday, it would send a four-time loser to the Sugar Bowl for the first time ever.

Last Jan. 1, Alabama bested Penn State in the Sugar Bowl and went on to be named national champion.

"Georgia?" responded Holmes. "That's certainly one of our options."

Then Holmes focused on reports that the other Sugar Bowl berth might go to someone other than Texas or Arkansas, like Oklahoma.

"Don't forget, Oklahoma's got to play at Missouri. And don't forget, Missouri hasn't pulled its annual upset."

"You could go another step further and note that an interesting situation exists in the Big Ten. Who knows, maybe Ohio State will pop loose."

He said there would be more meetings, one of them today, "and that is one of our options. But there are others, too. There still exists quite a series of ifs."

Borg thrives on competition

An AP Sports Analysis
By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis' heavyweights aren't playing a cat-and-mouse game as do their boxing counterparts, insists Bjorn Borg — they're just grubbing for the sport's mother lode.

"I don't purposely duck John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors or anybody else, and I am sure they don't dodge me," said the Golden Swede, the world's recognized No. 1 player. "It's just the way our schedules fall."

The 23-year-old Borg was in New York briefly Monday to accept another trophy and a $10,000 check as the men's tennis winner in the Seven Crowns of Sports competition. It marks the third time he has won it.

The competition is sponsored by Seagrams. Borg is in good company. Among others honored are Tom Watson in golf, Fred Lynn in baseball, Walter Payton in pro football and Guy Lafleur in hockey.

BORG, EN ROUTE FROM a Pacific tour to his home in Monte Carlo, paused long enough to answer those critics who contend that men's tennis suffers because the star performers — principally the "Big Three" of Borg, McEnroe and Connors — rarely meet, except in major championships.

As a case in point, while Borg was heading for the Mediterranean, Connors was winding up a tournament in Hong Kong and McEnroe was beating fellow American Gene Mayer in Stockholm.

"If there were fewer tournaments, we would face each other more often," the young Swede explained. "But with promoters willing to put up so much money, and as long as they insist on name players, you naturally are going to see the top players split up."

"It's more practical for the sponsors. It's financially better for the players. But we don't work it out among ourselves. Individually, we just make out our schedules and let them happen."

THE NEXT CONFRONTATION of the king and his chief challengers probably will be in the Grand Prix Masters at Madison Square Garden in January. Then there will be the early summer WCT Final in Dallas, followed by Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. It's a mad circle.

"There may be a few other tournaments where two of us meet, or maybe all three," Bjorn said.

Borg has a 3-2 lead this year over the 20-year-old McEnroe (they are 3-3 for their careers), and 4-0 over Connors, having given Jimmy a straight-set lacing recently in Tokyo.

The blond Viking acknowledges that the fiercely competitive and maturely poised McEnroe poses the greatest current threat to his No. 1 ranking, but he disdains comparisons.

"I never think of one player being better than another," he said. "To me, they're all tough. It's not just McEnroe and Connors, but also (Vitas) Gerulaitis, (Roscoe) Tanner and (Guillermo) Vilas. I must play my best, or anyone beats me."

Borg, whose topspin thunderbolts and unflappable court demeanor have made him a sports institution, said he would play a few exhibitions in Europe and spend the month of December on the Riviera with his fiancée, Mariana Simionescu, relaxing and practicing for the Masters.

HE SAID HIS TOP priority for 1980 is to win the U.S. Open, a title that has escaped him although he has won four straight Wimbledon.

"It isn't the surface," he said. "I have had bad luck. In 1977, I defaulted to Dick Stockton because of a bad shoulder. In 1978 I had a bad thumb when I lost to Connors. This year, Tanner beats me — no excuse. But I am determined to win."

A Swedish paper reported that Borg already had earned $13 million from his tennis and outside activities and would add $30 million if he stayed healthy.

"I wish it were so — why didn't they say $100 million?" he said. "No, I don't know how much longer I will play. A few years, maybe. The important thing is not to get tired and bored. You must enjoy life."

Parker's clouts boost NL stars

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates slammed two home runs Tuesday, powering the National League All-Stars from a 7-0 deficit to a 12-9 victory over the American League All-Stars.

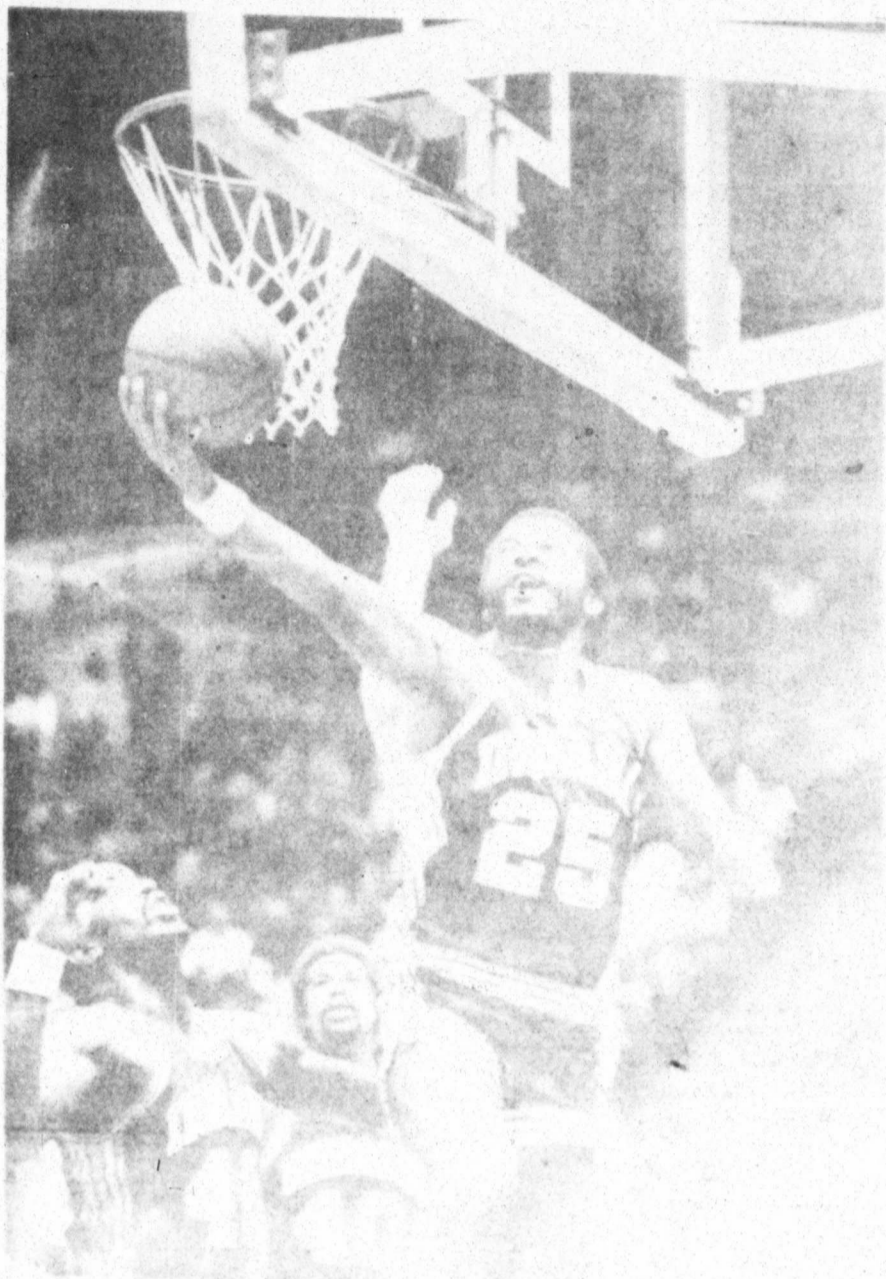

George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds also homered for the National League while Ken Singleton of the Baltimore Orioles and Carney Lansford of the California Angels slugged roundtrippers for the AL before a crowd of 24,000.

The victory evened the series between the two all-star teams in Japan at two victories each with one tie. The American All-Stars will take on the Japanese All-Stars Wednesday in Nishinomiya Stadium in Osaka.

But, in the top of the fourth, the NL bounced back with four runs — three on Foster's homer. The senior circuit took an 8-7 lead in the fifth when Parker belted a three-run homer.

But Parker slammed his second home run of the game — a two-run shot off Mark Clear of the Angels — in the sixth and the NL added two insurance runs in the seventh.

Three-point play gives 'Slick' 500th career win

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Coach Bob Leonard said Indiana didn't deserve to win, but thanks to a three-point play, Leonard had the 500th victory of his career, all with the Pacers.

A three-pointer by Pacer Joe Hassett tied the score at 99 and forced the game into overtime as Indiana beat Utah 113-105 in the only National Basketball Association contest played Monday night.

Indiana's Johnny Davis missed a three-point attempt, then Hassett, who played only 16 minutes, hit with two seconds left to knot the score in regulation play.

Indiana trailed most of the game and went ahead 96-95 on a short jumper by James Edwards with 27 seconds left in regulation play. But Utah's Tom Poquette sank four straight free throws to give the Jazz a 99-96 lead with 20 seconds left and set the stage for Hassett's heroics.

The Pacers went on to outscore Utah 14-6 in the overtime period.

"We didn't deserve to win," said Leonard. "We did some things good when it counted, but we weren't sharp overall."

Utah coach Tom Nissalke watched his team lose its eighth straight and fall to 2-13 while Indiana improved its record to 8-9.

Adrian Dantley led the Jazz with 39 points and Poquette added 20, season highs for them.

Davis had 29 for Indiana, James Edwards 20, Alex English 18 and Mickey Johnson 16.

Jones better prepared for second pro fight

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ed "Too Tall" Jones says he is relaxed and confident in taking the second step in his transition from pro football player to fighter.

"I'm a lot more relaxed than I was before my first fight," the former Dallas Cowboys' defensive end said Monday as he weighed in at 253 pounds for tonight's bout against Abdullah Muhammad. "Now I can concentrate and do some of the things I didn't do last time."

The 6-foot-9 Jones managed a majority decision over Jesus "Yaqui" Meneses of Mexico in his boxing debut Nov. 3 debut at Las Cruces, N.M. Tonight's opponent also has beaten Meneses, and has an overall record of 4-7.

"I'm going to press him," said the 6-foot-3, 214-pound Muhammad. "I'm going to come at him and get him out of there."

The six-round bout will be a preliminary to a 10-round feature between middleweights Robbie Epps and Henry Walker. Epps is ranked 16th by the World Boxing Council with a 23-1 record, and has been beaten only by Walker.

Promoter Steve Eisner predicted a crowd of 5,000 in the 5,900-seat Phoenix Civic Plaza.

Jones' manager, Dave Wolf, called tonight's fight "very serious — not what I wanted for the second fight."

The debut was marred by weigh-ins on a bathroom scale, a spongy wrestling mat covering the boxing ring, and a punch at Jones while he was down, Wolf said, vowing: "I'm never going back to New Mexico again."

Meanwhile, Wolf said CBS-TV was interested in carrying a Jones fight in December "if things go right."

"Needless to say, we would love it," said Wolf. "We'd love to look good tonight to mend the damage caused by the first fight. Then we'd like to appear again on TV and erase the thoughts created nationally by the first fight."

Ed 'Too Tall' Jones' manager seeks tussle with angry state representative

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The boxing camp of Ed "Too Tall" Jones accepted a fight challenge from a Texas lawmaker on Monday, but not on the terms laid down by Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas.

"We're prepared to make this guy a counter offer if he really wants to be shown up," said Dave Wolf, Jones' manager. "But it won't be to fight Too Tall. It'll be to fight Too Tall's 58-year-old trainer, Murphy Griffith."

Smothers challenged Jones to a three-round match last Thursday, following Jones' six-round majority decision victory over Jesus Meneses on Nov. 4. Smothers called Jones' debut a terrible fight, and called for Jones' return to the Dallas Cowboys as a defensive end.

Griffith, uncle of former middleweight and welterweight champ Emile Griffith, "is so

Poerner backs move

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman John Poerner of the Texas Railroad Commission approves of President Carter's decision to end United States oil imports from Iran and thinks the president should issue an order emphasizing domestic production.

"It is right and proper for the president to cut off oil purchases from Iran, and I am gratified that he has taken this step," Poerner said in a statement Monday. "It will mean tighter supplies for the United States, but this nation will rally behind his leadership."

Poerner said for seven years Texas oil wells have been pumping at maximum rates "consistent with optimum recovery practices, and will continue these efforts."

"Another thing that would help is a return to all-out encouragement of our drillers and wildcaters," Poerner said. "Every incentive should be placed before them, and all artificial barriers should be removed. There will be plenty of time to complete the paper work after we bring in the wells."

Reaction favors president's decision to halt purchases

By The Associated Press Here is some editorial reaction to President Carter's decision to halt the purchase of Iranian oil for consumption in the United States.

Albany (N.Y.) Times Union: "The religious fanatics now running

ENERGY OIL & GAS

The Iranian government are being served notice that, contrary to their apparent belief, we don't need them or their oil. It may help to bring the Ayatollah Khomeini and his followers to their senses.

"...there's been a growing community of interest in our country striking back, in moving violence against Iran itself, or on its many thousands of students in this country. The Carter move to end Iranian oil purchases can transform this negative feeling into a forceful positive common effort to intensify our oil conservation measures to show the Iranians — and the world — that we have not lost the spirit and the pride that lately seem to have been on the decline..."

Miami Herald: "The president acted wisely yesterday in ending U.S. imports of Iranian crude oil. In doing so, he deprived Mr. Khomeini of the psychological advantage of cutting off that oil, and he also subtracted oil from the hostage equation."

Yield drop not explained

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil industry executives and government officials say they're not sure why production of oil from American wells dropped in June, a time when many Americans were waiting in gas lines.

The decline, similar to another one earlier this year, showed up in newly released Energy Department statistics. Oil industry officials also were unable to explain the other production drop, which occurred last winter. A government investigation found that production decline was an important part of last summer's oil shortage.

Some oil executives pointed out that domestic production has been dropping gradually for years, but the decrease from May to June was much larger than normal.

"There shouldn't be that much of a fluctuation," said Melvin Mesnard, statistics director for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, a producers' group not affiliated with major oil companies. "I wish I had an explanation for it, but I don't."

"I don't have any explanation for why it happened," said James Diehl, acting director of the DOE's statistics division.

June is the most recent month for which the DOE has accurate production figures. The figures are based on reports from state energy agencies and data from government surveys, rather than oil company estimates. Energy Department officials say the chances are small there could have been a statistical error in the figures.

The DOE figures showed that crude oil production from domestic wells in May was 5,885 million barrels a day. It fell 2 percent in June to 4,809 million barrels daily. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

About 100,000 barrels of the 176,000 barrel-a-day decline were due to repair work on the Alaskan pipeline, which sprang a leak June 10 and was restored to service two days later.

But the rest of the drop — 76,000 barrels a day, about 1 percent of U.S. production — could not be explained by oil industry officials.

Some questioned the origin of the statistics, citing an older set of figures, released a month earlier by DOE and based on estimates by the oil industry's lobbying group, the American Petroleum Institute. Those showed virtually no production drop for the month.

The new statistics are a revision of the earlier figures and were circulated by the DOE to oil companies earlier this month.

Some industry officials said that a drop of 76,000 barrels a day in production outside Alaska was not very significant.

"We haven't paid an awful lot of attention to it because it didn't seem to be too far out of the ordinary," said Edward H. Murphy, the API's director of statistics. "It does have a way of going up or down each month."

Firm could be harmed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — President Carter's cutoff of Iranian oil imports could cause problems for Ashland Oil Inc., one of Iran's biggest customers in the United States.

Almost one-quarter of Ashland's total crude-oil inventory comes from Iran, according to Dan Lacy, an Ashland spokesman.

"We have a contract with the National Iranian Oil Co. for 100,000 barrels of crude oil a day," Lacy said in a telephone interview Monday from his Ashland, Ky., office.

Ashland Oil, the 15th largest oil company in the United States, uses 450,000 barrels a day, Lacy said.

Des Moines Register: "President Carter did the right thing in cutting off U.S. purchases of crude oil from Iran. As long as the United States was buying Iranian oil, Americans were pumping money directly into the government of the Ayatollah Khomeini that is holding 62 Americans hostage inside the U.S. Embassy. The idea of continuing to provide financial support for this lunatic was repulsive."

"The United States must get more serious about reducing its reliance on foreign oil. Otherwise, Americans are going to get kicked around by a lot more fanatics like Khomeini during the 1980s."

The Arizona Republic: "... President Carter's embargo... is a symbolic demonstration to Iranians that the United States will not be held hostage by oil. It also shows the resolve of Carter to gradually escalate our displeasure over the embassy takeover. "Make no mistake, however, Wild-eyed fanatics in the ayatollah's revolution will not budge easily. They are prepared to sacrifice revenues from American purchases of oil, and worse."

"Short of the unthinkable — an armed and therefore bloody American strike on Iran — the president must continue to press American allies to join in repudiating the diplomatic outrage committed by the Khomeini government."

New York Daily News: "Each day that passed without some initiative by the administration raised the risk that the public would vent its wrath on Iranian students in the U.S. and trigger the slaughter of the captives in Iran."

"Now, at least, people can let off steam in a constructive way by reducing their driving or the heat in their homes to make good any oil lost by the embargo. "... In practical terms, Carter's boycott may not have any earth-shaking impact. But it is still a worthwhile move for its psychological effect and as a boost to American morale."

New York Times — "President Carter is being both wise and firm in his contest against Ayatollah Khomeini. Removing oil as a factor in that contest will not liberate the 60 hostages at the American Embassy in Tehran. It also risks economic damage to the United States and other oil importers. But it summons the entire nation to join in the defense of principle and preserves the hope of someone getting 700 vulnerable Americans out of Iran alive."

Poerner backs move

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman John Poerner of the Texas Railroad Commission approves of President Carter's decision to end United States oil imports from Iran and thinks the president should issue an order emphasizing domestic production.

"It is right and proper for the president to cut off oil purchases from Iran, and I am gratified that he has taken this step," Poerner said in a statement Monday. "It will mean tighter supplies for the United States, but this nation will rally behind his leadership."

Poerner said for seven years Texas oil wells have been pumping at maximum rates "consistent with optimum recovery practices, and will continue these efforts."

"Another thing that would help is a return to all-out encouragement of our drillers and wildcaters," Poerner said. "Every incentive should be placed before them, and all artificial barriers should be removed. There will be plenty of time to complete the paper work after we bring in the wells."

Reaction favors president's decision to halt purchases

By The Associated Press
Here is some editorial reaction to President Carter's decision to halt the purchase of Iranian oil for consumption in the United States:
Albany (N.Y.) Times Union: "... The religious fanatics now running

the Iranian government are being served notice that, contrary to their apparent belief, we don't need them or their oil. It may help to bring the Ayatollah Khomeini and his followers to their senses.

"... there's been a growing community of interest in our country striking back, in moving violence against Iran itself, or on its many thousands of students in this country. The Carter move to end Iranian oil purchases can transform this negative feeling into a forceful positive common effort to intensify our oil conservation measures to show the Iranians — and the world — that we have not lost the spirit and the pride that lately seem to have been on the decline."

Miami Herald: "The president acted wisely yesterday in ending U.S. imports of Iranian crude oil. In doing so, he deprived Mr. Khomeini of the psychological advantage of cutting off that oil, and he also subtracted oil from the hostage equation."

Yield drop not explained

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil industry executives and government officials say they're not sure why production of oil from American wells dropped in June, a time when many Americans were waiting in gas lines.

The decline, similar to another one earlier this year, showed up in newly released Energy Department statistics. Oil industry officials also were unable to explain the other production drop, which occurred last winter. A government investigation found that part of last summer's oil shortage.

Some oil executives pointed out that domestic production has been dropping gradually for years, but the decrease from May to June was much larger than normal.

"There shouldn't be that much of a fluctuation," said Melvin Mesnard, statistics director for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, a producers' group not affiliated with major oil companies. "I wish I had an explanation for it, but I don't."

"I don't have any explanation for why it happened," said James Diehl, acting director of the DOE's statistics division.

June is the most recent month for which the DOE has accurate production figures. The figures are based on reports from state energy agencies and data from government surveys, rather than oil company estimates. Energy Department officials say the chances are small there could have been a statistical error in the figures.

The DOE figures showed that crude oil production from domestic wells in May was 8,585 million barrels a day. It fell 2 percent in June to 8,409 million barrels daily. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

About 100,000 barrels of the 176,000 barrel-a-day decline were due to repair work on the Alaskan pipeline, which sprang a leak June 10 and was restored to service two days later.

But the rest of the drop — 76,000 barrels a day, about 1 percent of U.S. production — could not be explained by oil industry officials.

Some questioned the origin of the statistics, citing an older set of figures, released a month earlier by DOE and based on estimates by the oil industry's lobbying group, the American Petroleum Institute. Those showed virtually no production drop for the month.

The new statistics are a revision of the earlier figures and were circulated by the DOE to oil companies earlier this month.

Some industry officials said that a drop of 76,000 barrels a day in production outside Alaska was not very significant.

"We haven't paid an awful lot of attention to it because it didn't seem to be too far out of the ordinary," said Edward H. Murphy, the API's director of statistics. "It does have a way of going up or down each month."

Firm could be harmed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — President Carter's cutoff of Iranian oil imports could cause problems for Ashland Oil Inc., one of Iran's biggest customers in the United States.

Almost one-quarter of Ashland's total crude-oil inventory comes from Iran, according to Dan Lacy, an Ashland spokesman.

"We have a contract with the National Iranian Oil Co. for 100,000 barrels of crude oil a day," Lacy said in a telephone interview Monday from his Ashland, Ky., office.

Ashland Oil, the 15th largest oil company in the United States, uses 450,000 barrels a day, Lacy said.

Des Moines Register: "President Carter did the right thing in cutting off U.S. purchases of crude oil from Iran. As long as the United States was buying Iranian oil, Americans were pumping money directly into the government of the Ayatollah Khomeini that is holding 62 Americans hostage inside the U.S. Embassy. The idea of continuing to provide financial support for this lunatic was repulsive."

"The United States must get more serious about reducing its reliance on foreign oil. Otherwise, Americans are going to get kicked around by a lot more fanatics like Khomeini during the 1980s."

The Arizona Republic: "... President Carter's embargo... is a symbolic demonstration to Iranians that the United States will not be held hostage by oil. It also shows the resolve of Carter to gradually escalate our displeasure over the embassy takeover."

"Make no mistake, however. Wild-eyed fanatics in the Ayatollah's revolution will not budge easily. They are prepared to sacrifice revenues from American purchases of oil, and worse."

"Short of the unthinkable — an armed and therefore bloody American strike on Iran — the president must continue to press American allies to join in repudiating the diplomatic outrage committed by the Khomeini government."

New York Daily News: "Each day that passed without some initiative by the administration raised the risk that the public would vent its wrath on Iranian students in the U.S. and trigger the slaughter of the captives in Iran."

"Now, at least, people can let off steam in a constructive way by reducing their driving or the heat in their homes to make good any oil lost by the embargo."

"In practical terms, Carter's boycott will not have any earth-shaking impact. But it is still a worthwhile move for its psychological effect and as a boost to American morale."

New York Times — "President Carter is being both wise and firm in his contest against Ayatollah Khomeini. Removing oil as a factor in that contest will not liberate the 60 hostages at the American Embassy in Tehran. It also risks economic damage to the United States and other oil importers. But it summons the entire nation to join in the defense of principle and preserves the hope of somehow getting 700 vulnerable Americans out of Iran alive."

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have a 7-year-old son with cerebral palsy. I've been attempting to use a system of rewards to encourage him to control his movements; however, his progress has been minimal. Do you have any suggestions for me? — Mrs. J.B.B.

Dear Mrs. B.: The Kennedy Institute in Baltimore is using biofeedback techniques to help children with cerebral palsy and related disorders reduce or control their movements. An important factor in these efforts is use of an electromyograph (EMG), a piece of equipment that provides instant feedback about muscle movements. The patients are encouraged to reduce the pitch of audible signals produced by the EMG, an indication of improvement in muscular control. The machine can be set to generate a high-pitched sound when a muscle contracts, and a low-pitched sound when it relaxes. Dr. Bruce Bird, one of the Institute's psychologists explains that the patients have moments of normal muscular control. By use of biofeedback, they can learn to prolong the length of time during which they remain relaxed. Eventually, some children are enabled to stay relaxed even when they are not hooked up to the EMG.

The use of the biofeedback technique actually is an extension of the principle of rewarding a desired response. In this situation, the reward can be achieving the desired pitch on the instrument. Therapists studying EMG biofeedback at the Institute feel that this method is superior to that associated with the use of human observers. The equipment is able to provide feedback that is more precise, sensitive and immediate than that attainable from a human. The EMG can detect even very small decreases in muscular tension, for very brief periods of time, and give almost immediate feedback. Parents are encouraged to work with their children at home, in the hope that the skills learned during biofeedback sessions can be transferred to the home environment. A system of rewards and encouragement for desirable behavior may then be helpful.

Alan Morrison, 17, is shown during KKK rally in Barnegat, N.J., last August. Officials at Holy Spirit High School are refusing to issue a diploma to Morrison because he is an active Klan leader. (AP Laserphoto)

Student active in KKK may not get diploma

ABSECON, N.J. (AP) — Aaron Morrison may not get his high school diploma because his principal doesn't like the teen-ager's extra-curricular activities.

The 17-year-old is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Officials at Holy Spirit High School say Morrison's diploma, which should have been issued after Morrison completed summer school, is being withheld because he will not renounce his membership in the white supremacist organization.

But Jerry Kay, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said Morrison is being penalized for exercising his "freedom of association, freedom of political belief and freedom of speech." Kay said he would sue the high school if Morrison does not get his diploma. But an attorney representing the school and the Roman Catholic Diocese of Camden says Morrison's rights have not been violated. And Msgr. Glendon E. Robertson, diocesan secretary of education, says the church will stand behind the school's decision.

Morrison organized a Klan rally in August on the front lawn of his family's split-level home in Barnegat. During the rally, 19 Klansmen faced about 100 anti-Klan demonstrators amid rock-throwing, name-calling and scattered bursts of violence.

"It's not fair," said Morrison, who is now working in Louisiana on the senatorial and presidential campaign of David Duke, a leader of one of the Klan's many factions. "I don't think a school should dictate or impose its beliefs on students.... They don't have an in-depth understanding of my beliefs," he said.

The Rev. Thomas E. Ploude, principal of the Atlantic County high school, described Morrison as an "above average student." He said the school will send a copy of Morrison's transcript to any college, but will not issue him a diploma.

Mayors resign to protest an Israeli expulsion order

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Mayors of seven towns in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River resigned today to protest an Israeli expulsion order against the Arab mayor of Nablus, Bassam Shakaa.

Israel also expected protests from Egypt at today's negotiating session on Palestinian autonomy. Egypt's Foreign Ministry has denounced the arrest of Shakaa and a new plan for more Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank as obstacles to peace.

Kerim Khalaf of Ramallah, north of Jerusalem, and Ibrahim Tawil, of El Bireh, handed in their resignations along with five other officials of towns in the Ramallah area.

Stereo equipment reported taken

An estimated $2,220 worth of stereo equipment was taken from a residence at 704 Dellwood St., Midland police were told about 5 p.m. Monday. Police investigators could find no sign of forced entry to the home, officials said.

MCT wants a few good actors

Midland Community Theatre is looking for a few good actors. Old or young, male or female, experienced or brand new — there is a part for you in Charles Dickens' immortal classic, "A Christmas Carol."

Auditions will be today and Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Redfern Room of Theatre Midland. The production dates will be Dec. 20-23.

This "cast of thousands" includes both young and old and even a few ageless "spirits". Scripts are available at the theatre office. This production, directed by UTPB's Dr. Jim This, is made possible through a grant from the Mobile Foundation, Inc. If being in the spotlight isn't your cup of tea, help is also needed running the spot lights and performing the many tasks required to prepare for the night the first curtain rises.

Bridge game for novices to start on weekly basis

A duplicate bridge game for novice players will be started on a weekly basis Wednesday night at the Helon Y. Allison Bridge Center at Wadley Road and A Street. Mrs. V. V. McGrew will be director of the game which will begin at 7:30 p.m. The Permian Basin Duplicate Club's regular Wednesday night game also will be played in the new bridge center which was formally opened Sunday. Game time for this event also is 7:30. Mrs. McGrew requests that the novice players be in the bridge hall approximately 15 minutes before game time. The novice game is designed for players with less than 20 American Contract Bridge League master points. "This game is ideal for persons who have some rubber bridge experience and for those persons who have taken the bridge classes at Midland College," Mrs. McGrew said.

The first test of grassroots strength will be in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the scene of a Democratic caucus scheduled Jan. 21. (AP Laserphoto Map)

'Proving ground' to be Cedar Rapids

By MARGY McCAY

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — By day, the cafeteria at Cleveland School sees the usual parade of children turning up their noses at buttered peas and carrots.

But on the evening of Jan. 21, the cafeteria will be the scene for the Democratic caucus of Precinct 20 — one of 2,531 in Iowa that will offer the first test of grassroots strength for President Carter and challenger Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

"We had 34 last time, and we plan on doubling the size," said Bob Schorg, a business representative for Teamsters Local 238 who is organizing the caucus. "I've got a gut feeling there's going to be a big turnout."

At the 1976 caucus, 34 Democrats met at Cleveland and chose 10 delegates for the Linn County Democratic Convention. Five supported Jimmy Carter, one favored George Wallace and four were uncommitted.

Schorg, a Carter backer last time, hasn't decided who to support.

"The big thing with the Teamsters is deregulation of the trucking industry — we're against it, although maybe some things need to be changed."

It was in a speech to the Iowa State Bar Association here in June that Kennedy called for truck deregulation, and that is enough to cost him a Teamster's vote.

"Personally, if Carter would say he'd come out in favor of modified deregulation, I'd support him," said Schorg, 48, whose local represents about 5,000 teamsters in Cedar Rapids.

But that hasn't happened yet.

"We met with (Secretary of Labor) Ray Marshall and Tim Kraft of the Carter campaign, and we told them how we feel," said Schorg. "They're definitely wanting our support, but they haven't said anything" about deregulation.

THE LABOR VOTE IS A MUCH-COVETED one in Cedar Rapids, which Schorg described as a union town, boasting more than 50 locals and some 20,000 union members. It was the Machinists union that helped organize the local "Draft Kennedy" effort.

Precinct 20, which is in the west-central part of town, is a middle-class, predominantly white neighborhood "with a good mix of white- and blue-collar workers," said Schorg.

Of the 1,969 registered voters in the precinct, 32 percent are Democrats, 21 percent are Republicans and 47 percent list no party affiliation.

One of those independents is Gay Dahn, dean of community education at Kirkwood Community College. Although he once ran for the state senate as a Republican and is registered as an independent, Dahn said he would attend the Democratic caucus.

"I'm more of a Democrat than he is," Dahn laughed, referring to Schorg. "I voted for Carter in 1976. I really liked what I saw; I was impressed with him."

But Dahn, 48, said he grew disenchanted with Carter's foreign policy and his inability to get legislation through a Democratic Congress. He also confessed to a vague uneasiness about Carter's leadership: "I wish I could really put my finger on it."

THE APPOINTMENT OF A CALIFORNIA LAWYER, Shirley Hufstедler, to head the new Department of Education did not sit well with Dahn, either.

"That was a slap in the face to educators — like putting me in charge of the attorney general's office," he said. "And the educators I've talked to agree. It was totally political — he wants to carry California."

In a contest between Carter and Kennedy, "there's no choice, I'd go with Kennedy," Dahn said.

The fact that Kennedy's campaign is headed by Dick Clark, former U.S. senator from Iowa, will help his chances, said Dahn.

"Clark is a well-respected individual, a good organizer and a loyal friend of Kennedy's. He gets things done."

CLARK'S ORGANIZATIONAL ABILITIES, which are readily acknowledged by the Carter camp, will get a severe test in the two months before the caucuses.

"Carter is much better organized," said Schorg. "Clark is capable of putting it together, but I don't see how they can do it before the caucuses."

Joe Novak is a Carter staffer who has been beating the bushes in Linn and three adjoining counties for four weeks.

"This campaign is really an organizational effort," said Novak. "Iowa is important. Linn County, next to Polk County (Des Moines), is the most important area in the state. And Cedar Rapids will be a much more visible and vocal battleground."

"There are more labor leaders, more movers and shakers. It's a union town," he said. "The Machinists will be yelling for the senator. The IBEW (International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers) will be yelling for us."

"In Linn County we have identified people who are for the president, and we've asked eight area coordinators to find precinct chairmen," said Novak.

Kennedy portrays himself as 'underdog' in Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Portraying himself as the underdog in the fight for Iowa's support, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says President Carter has a big head start in the state and "can't afford to lose."

Campaning in union halls and farm communities, Kennedy is striving to galvanize his supporters in preparation for the Iowa Democratic Party caucuses Jan. 21.

"The president of the United States can't afford to lose the Iowa caucuses," Kennedy told enthusiastic audiences at United Auto Workers union halls in Newton and Des Moines. "The Carter-Mondale committee has on the ground here an effective organization," Kennedy told the UAW. Earlier, he told reporters his own campaign is "just getting started" in Iowa.

Coordination of on-land, port transportation development encouraged

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Port cities must coordinate their on-land transportation systems with their shipping facilities when they seek federal port and transportation funding in the future, Secretary of Transportation Neil Goldschmidt said.

In a speech late last week to the Washington Press Club, Goldschmidt said "all regional transportation planning in the country must include a component which addresses goods movement and, specifically, the link between rail and highways, particularly in port communities."

Too often in the past, Goldschmidt said, transportation planners have looked only at the movement of people and not the movement of cargoes in laying out highways, roads and rail routes.

The movement of goods must be given high priority to eliminate botlenecks, and improve efficiency, he said.

As an example of waste, the former mayor of Portland, Ore., cited Los Angeles and Long Beach where, he said, marine containers must be trucked 25 miles from the port to ramps near downtown Los Angeles "simply because rail, truck and port planning have not developed together."

Although a "small revolution" has occurred in the last ten years in maritime trade with containerization, roll-on and roll-off handling, the on-land transportation links — highways and railways — have not kept pace or been connected, he said.

"We have, in essence, difference generations of transportation capital investments which have not been meshed or synchronized," Goldschmidt noted.

He also said that, with the Department of Commerce, he was launching an analysis of the on-land transportation at all of the nation's port cities to determine what is needed to coordinate port and on-land transportation systems.

On other issues, the 39-year-old secretary, who has headed the transportation department for just over two months, said he would:

— Urge President Carter to veto the airport noise abatement bill if congressional amendments which weaken the standards remain in the legislation.

— Support funding for growing communities, such as many Western cities, which want to buy right-of-ways and build transportation systems before people move into now underdeveloped areas in an attempt to have more comprehensive transportation systems. The alternative in the past he said, has been to rip down houses and build highways or rail systems after the community is built up.

Fewer mortgage loans closed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Mortgage loans in Texas have dropped by $1.2 billion in the first eight months of 1979 compared to 1978, including a $16.7 million decline in the Midland area.

Pat Malone, administrative vice president of the Texas Savings and Loan League, told the Senate Interim Committee on Financial Institutions that the dollar volume of mortgage loans made by Texas savings and loan associations dropped by 24 percent during the first eight months of this year and single-family mortgage loans dropped by nearly 30 percent.

Those figures compare to declines of 6 percent on mortgage loans and 4 percent on single-family mortgage loans nationally during the same period.

"The pace of mortgage lending activity in Texas had dropped markedly even before the sharp increase in interest rates in October," Malone said.

Statistics presented to the committee in a report entitled "Texas Mortgage Markets" showed that Texas savings and loan associations have closed $4 billion in mortgage loans during the first eight months of this year compared to $5.2 billion during the same period of 1978.

The report was prepared by California consulting firm Kaplan, Smith and Associates and presented to the committee by Malone.

Malone blamed Texas' interest rate ceilings on the decline in mortgage loans closed and in forcing Texas savings and loan associations out of the secondary mortgage market.

Virtually every area of Texas has suffered the sharp decline in lending activity in 1979.

Dr. Joseph Ewers of the University of Texas Finance Department also blamed the interest ceilings for the decline in mortgage loans closed and advocated a free market system in Texas.

"The mortgage market is sufficiently competitive that no ceiling is necessary," Ewers said.

The report presented by Malone shows that in the Midland area, total mortgage loans closed dropped 53.5 percent, single-family mortgage loans dropped 59.4 percent, construction loans dropped 7.4 percent, new commitments to make mortgage loans dropped 76 percent and new savings flow into savings and loan associations dropped 49.5 percent.

Abilene, Bryan, College Station and Wichita Falls were the only area to show any increase in mortgage loans. Much of the increase in Wichita Falls was due to the tornado damage in that city, Malone said.

Construction loans, which can be made to contractors for up to 18 percent, was the only category showing any significant increases and many cities experienced declines.

In Odessa, total mortgage loans during the eight-month period declined $13.7 million with mortgage loans closed declining 41.4 percent, single-family mortgage loans dropping 41.4 percent, construction loans dropping 62.9 percent, new commitments to make mortgage loans declining 26.2 percent and net savings flow into savings and loan associations increasing 67.4 percent.

'Misfit' may face life imprisonment

By JIM CHURCH

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A man described as a "misfit and a loner" faces a maximum penalty of life in prison after being convicted of the shooting death of six persons more than two years ago.

DeWitt C. Henry, 29, was found guilty of murder last week by a jury of eight women and four men after six hours of deliberations and an eight-day trial. He also was convicted of attempted murder in the wounding of two police officers during his capture after the shootings outside a Klamath Falls nightclub.

Henry showed no emotion as the verdict was read. Two young women jurors began crying aloud as the jury was led out of the courtroom.

Multnomah County Circuit Court Judge John Beatty Jr. scheduled sentencing for Nov. 23. The law calls for a life in prison sentence, with the minimum time served being up to the Oregon Parole Board.

The killings occurred before voters passed a law in 1978 reinstating the death penalty for murder and requiring a 25-year minimum sentence without parole for those sentenced to life in prison.

Henry could receive 20-year terms on the attempted murder charges.

The defense contended Henry, of Klamath Falls, suffered a mental breakdown and didn't know what he was doing when he began firing an automatic rifle after 2 a.m. on July 23, 1977, outside the nightclub.

Henry's attorneys sought a verdict of innocent by reason of mental disease or defect, or manslaughter rather than murder. They made no attempt to prove Henry did not kill the six persons.

Psychiatrists testified Henry was distraught because of a divorce petition filed by his wife, Vikki, a day before the shootings, but that he could tell right from wrong.

Henry testified he did not know what happened from the time he got into a fight at the club until he awoke later in a hospital.

He said he also was upset about not finding a job and that he took drugs, drank and had not slept for five nights before the incident.

"He had a rage inside of him," defense attorney Sam McKean told the jurors in closing arguments. "He started out defective and he had a mental breakdown."

"He wants you to believe he's crazy," Klamath County District Attorney Ulys Stapleton said. "He was angry. He was vengeful and he vented that anger."

Stapleton called Henry a "misfit and a loner." "Guns were his equalizer," Stapleton said. "Guns made him equal to others and made up for a deficiency in his personality."

Get ready for MHS games

By GINA BARD, KAREN FIDLER and LEIGH ANNE JONES

Hang in there, Rebs, the big one is still to come. It was a long trip back from Abilene — but a good football game, and besides, there's always next year. But don't miss this Thursday night as our Mighty Stonewall Brigade takes on those mangy Mutts from M.H.S. at Memorial Stadium. — BE THERE — 'cause we're home team for that one. Then Friday night, roll on out and watch our Maroon Platoon mangle those Dogs from MHS. Coast Guard still fighting Burmah Agate oil spill

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard pollution-fighting specialists today worked to corral an oil spill from the crippled Burmah Agate after fire destroyed some of their containment equipment.

Coast Guard officials said about 200 feet of expensive rubber booms caught fire Monday from burning oil that spewed off the ship.

Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Richard Griggs said there were no new explosions on the tanker Monday but firefighters reported the intensity of the fire had increased.

Banking application submitted by Midlanders

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Banking has received an application by several Midland residents and a Dallas woman to acquire control of the First State Bank of Memphis.

The application, received Oct. 24, was filed by John E. Crosby Jr., Dr. Thurston E. Dean, Charles B. Gillespie Jr., Thomas O. Harrell Jr., W. Goodrich Hejl, E.M. Little, Pen-Dee Corp. and John Wood, and Marshall E. Syrratt, all of Midland, and Annie Laurie Drews of Dallas.

Banking Commissioner Robert E. Stewart has 60 days to approve or deny the application.

If the application is denied, the applicants may request a public hearing on the matter.

District governor to visit Lions

Ben L. High of Sweetwater, governor of District 2-A1, Lions International, will pay his official visit to the Midland Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

President Ray Gwyn said the governor, who was elected at the district's annual convention held here earlier this year, will be the honored guest and principal speaker at the club's noon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

An induction ceremony for new members will be held prior to the governor's address.

State board upholds 'punishment for 'papering'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Despite comments from State Board of Education members who said wrapping a home in toilet paper is a sign of "affection," the board last weekend upheld the punishment recommended for a Pasadena, Texas youth, who wrapped his teacher's home.

In a split vote, the board denied an appeal by Mike Emmons of Pasadena High School. The Pasadena school board ordered Emmons, 17, to spend six days in the school district's community guidance center.

Several board members said the case was a minor matter that should not have come before the board.

"This is flat absurd," said William Sarsgard of Fort Worth. "This is just absolutely ridiculous. There's got to be another way found for dealing with this minor matter."

Dr. Virginia Currey of Arlington said the Pasadena Independent School District showed a "complete lack of sensitivity" in ordering the punishment. She said as a teacher she can understand a "younger boy having a crush" on a teacher. The teacher in the case complained she was harassed by Emmons.

Dr. Currey said,

"Given the hormones and energy of a 17-year-old boy, I cannot help but feel embarrassed" by this case.

"That goes with the territory of being a teacher," she said.

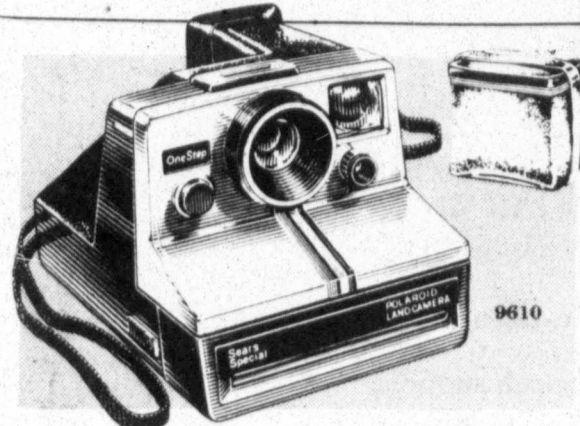

Dr. Joseph Gathe of Houston said "in my part of the state this is a sign of affection. Almost all the kids would like to see their home wrapped.

"He caused no permanent damage and he didn't intend to cause any permanent damage," Gathe said.

Despite still-full agenda, Congress busy choosing sides for 1980 race

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has widely missed its Oct. 15 adjournment target and still has much to do before quitting for the year. But that doesn't stop members from reflecting endlessly on presidential politics. It's a time for choosing sides. And some lawmakers concede openly that they have ulterior motives for picking a particular candidate. Like Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., who wants Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to go the full distance to the White House. "I'm pleased by the notion I might be the senior senator from Massachusetts," the first-term senator explained. "It's not very pleasant being the junior senator," he added, noting that when he and Kennedy walk through an airport, people inevitably mistake him for a Kennedy aide. "It happens every time," he grumbled.

For Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, Kennedy's candidacy may bring back memories of the only election defeat ever suffered by the youngest Kennedy brother. It was in 1971 when Byrd upset Kennedy for the job of assistant Senate majority leader. Kennedy doesn't forget that election either. "If I hadn't lost I might be Senate majority leader today," he told a Democratic rally after being introduced by Byrd. "And Bob Byrd would be out running for president." Meanwhile, President Carter may sometimes give the impression of feeling a little left out. The other day he warmly thanked a group of applauding congressmen who had accepted his invitation to come to the White House for dinner.

"Kennedy's on the cover of Time, Rosalynn's on the cover of Newsweek. It's nice to know someone wants to see me," he quipped.

'Truth Squads' after candidates

By GRACE-MARIE ARNETT
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Ted Kennedy and Walter Cronkite have more in common than fame and a desire to spend their summer vacations at Martha's Vineyard.

Both are targets of "Truth Squad" campaigns. Truth squads are springing up around the country as critical issues and controversial figures gain public attention.

These groups purchase television and radio time, buy newspaper ads and hold news conferences to present information they feel is not getting an adequate public hearing through regular news coverage.

THE KENNEDY TRUTH SQUAD is the most recent addition to the list. The group, formed by the National Conservative Political Action Committee, placed newspaper ads and held a news conference in Washington the day after the Massachusetts senator announced his candidacy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

The group urged reporters to ask Kennedy a set of questions it had prepared. Among them: "What makes you think that an extreme liberal like yourself is able to be a good president?"

Chairman John T. Dolan said he believes the anti-Kennedy activity is necessary to "ask questions the liberal media won't ask." Kennedy's office said the senator would not respond to the truth squad.

SIMILAR ACTIVITIES ARE BEING conducted by other groups. Mobil Oil and the nuclear power industry are waging truth squad campaigns of their own in a somewhat less vitriolic tone, although their methods are similar.

Mobil was angry over a CBS news broadcast of Oct. 24. Cronkite reported Mobil Oil's third quarter profits were up 131 percent over the same period a year ago.

Mobil bought two full-page ads in 13 major newspapers at a cost of $325,000 to outline "19 facts the networks didn't tell you."

The message was that the bulk of the profits came from foreign sources and not U.S. consumers and that the increase in U.S. energy earnings was "modest at best."

"Cronkite's Oct. 24 story was such a gross distortion of reality that we felt we had to correct the errors," said John Flint, spokesman for Mobil.

"There is a good deal of obvious skepticism about our company," he added. "When there is a hot public issue and we feel the press isn't giving our story, then we feel a responsibility to get the word out ourselves even if it means buying the time and space."

WILLIAM MORRIS, VICE-PRESIDENT of a utility industry trades association here, shares the belief.

Morris conceived the idea of sending a truth squad to follow actress Jane Fonda and activist Tom Hayden along their 52-city, 30 day anti-nuclear tour last month.

Morris sent Sandy Keifer and Dr. Linn Draper, both nuclear engineering experts, to hold news conferences either simultaneous, or nearly so to the main Fonda-Hayden event in every city.

"We felt it would be irresponsible for the public utilities to let the Fonda and Hayden charges go unanswered," Morris said.

"We felt Fonda and Hayden were uninformed and inaccurate, but we knew the media would give them a lot of attention, so we tried to give our side of the story," said Stan Soloway, a public relations account executive who accompanied Keifer and Draper on the tour.

A SURVEY OF THE NEWS CLIPPINGS and television news tapes shows the pro-nuclear duo was successful in getting equal coverage in many of the cities they visited.

Smith and Harroff, the firm that coordinated the truth squad tour, said the project cost about $50,000.

"The timing was everything," said Keifer. "There is a great deal of interest in nuclear issues since the Three Mile Island accident, so we could draw the media's attention. If we had done this at any other time, we might not have been so successful."

Neither Fonda nor Hayden could be reached for their reaction to being dogged for a month by the truth squad.

They did express displeasure with the duo during the trip, however, saying they felt hounded and didn't understand why the truth squad should get equal coverage.

ONE OF THE MOST EXPENSIVE TRUTH squad campaigns currently underway is being organized by the same group forming the Kennedy truth squad.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee has targeted five liberal Democratic senators for defeat in the 1980 elections. They are Sens. Alan Cranston of California, Birch Bayh of Indiana, George McGovern of South Carolina, Frank Church of Idaho, and John Culver of Iowa.

The formula for truth squads is identical but the names are changed depending on the state the group is working in. In Idaho, for example, the group is called "Anybody But Church," and the advertisements warn: "If Frank Church wins, you lose."

Only the names are changed in the other four states.

The group plans to spend $700,000 before election day to defeat the incumbents. Sharon Snyder of the Federal Elections Commission here says the activities are entirely legal.

"They can raise and spend any amount of money they please so long as their activities are not coordinated with any of the opposition candidates," she said.

TO CARRY THE CYCLE ONE STEP FURTHER, another group is planning to counter the truth squad activities.

The National Committee for an Effective Congress says it will spend $1 million next year on candidate support aimed primarily at undoing some of the damage of the truth squad campaigns.

The group, which supports liberal candidates, will be joined in its efforts by Americans for Democratic Action which also plans to work in the 1980 elections for candidates who support abortion, busing and assistance for Vietnamese boat people.

Cranston says he believes the truth squad activities may actually be helping him by stimulating interest in his campaign and drawing in early contributors.

FBI drops nuke probe

HOUSTON (AP) — The FBI is dropping its investigation into construction of the South Texas Nuclear Project, U.S. Attorney J.A. "Tony" Canales said.

"My office will take no action on it," Canales said Friday. "Whatever information we gathered, we are forwarding over to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission."

Canales refused to comment on the reasons for his decision. The FBI spent about three months investigating the $2.7 billion nuclear power plant being built near Bay City.

The investigation became public a month ago, about the same time a former quality control inspector at the project, Dan Swayze, charged on national television that the plant was unsafe and should not be allowed to operate.

He said his crew of concrete inspectors were intimidated by construction crews and filled out approval forms for six months in 1977 without doing any inspections.

Brown & Root Inc., which is building the plant for Houston Lighting & Power Co. and three other utilities, said the charge was ridiculous.

It produced records showing inspectors filed 21 deficiency reports during the time Swayze said they were doing nothing but "playing cards."

Canales said he ordered the FBI investigation after unnamed citizens gave him statements and affidavits reporting problems at the project.

Acquifer polluted, newspaper reports

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — A federal report says small parts of a water supply beneath a U.S. Energy Department laboratory near Idaho Falls have been contaminated by billions of gallons of radioactive wastes, a northern Idaho newspaper says.

In a copyright story in Sunday's editions, the Lewiston Morning Tribune said the unpublished report shows federal contractors also have dumped large amounts of hexavalent chromium — a non-radioactive, cancer-causing agent — into the Snake River aquifer through injection wells.

The aquifer, a water-bearing layer of rock or soil, stretches 180 miles across southeastern Idaho, from Bliss to St. Anthony. An estimated 1.4 million acre-feet of water a year is pumped from the aquifer for human consumption and irrigation.

Idaho officials said they were aware of the radioactive discharges but powerless to stop them.

According to the paper, the 1974 report by the U.S. Geological Survey said that between 1952 and 1970, some 16 billion gallons of liquid waste containing 100 million pounds of chemicals and 70,000 curies of radiation were discharged into the ground above the aquifer. The aquifer flows 500 feet to 600 feet beneath the federal facility, known as the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, near Idaho Falls.

"Seventy thousand curies is a hell of a lot of radiation," said Robert D. Funderburg, chief of the Idaho Health and Welfare Department's radiation control unit. "They're within the ceilings on radioactive discharges, however, so we'd have no ground to stand on if we tried to make them stop."

But concentrations of the radioactive isotope strontium-90 and of chromium have consistently exceeded federal drinking water standards in a one-square mile portion of the aquifer, the report said.

The Tribune said it had obtained a copy of the report earlier this month.

The report said some of INEL's radioactive wastes, including strontium-90 and tritium, a low-energy isotope, were injected into the aquifer through deep shaft wells, as was chromium. Salt and tritium have spread to approximately 12 square miles to 15 square miles of the aquifer, although the tritium level is within federal standards.

The study said the aquifer's capacity to accept low-level waste was "conservatively utilized," but warned that increased environmental concern by the public might warrant ending the discharges.

Jack T. Barraclough, one of three geologists who wrote the report, said injection of toxic materials has continued through 1979. He said some discharges have been reduced but that strontium-90 and chromium levels in parts of the aquifer still exceed federal standards.

The practice continued even as state officials, including Gov. John Evans, expressed concern over possible aquifer contamination by solid radioactive wastes stored aboveground at INEL.

State to accept highway work bids

The highway department also plans to construct comfort stations and arbor units, water and sewage systems and lighting systems on I-10 6.5 miles west of Sonora in Sutton County.

Estimated cost of the project is $671,617 and completion time is estimated at 180 working days.

'Deepest mine in hemisphere' to be drilled in Idaho

MULLAN, Idaho (AP) — The deepest mine shaft in the Western Hemisphere, nearly 1 1/2 miles underground, will be drilled at Hecla Mining Co.'s Lucky Friday mine near the Montana border, officials say.

The new $26 million shaft is expected to boost ore production from 725 tons a day to 1,000 tons a day, Philip Lindstrom, manager of public relations, said last week.

It will five years before miners reach the 7,500-foot depth and can hoist ore.

In 1978, Lucky Friday was the nation's third-largest silver producer with more than 2.4 million ounces. Estimates say the mine now produces more than 3 million ounces.

The new shaft should put the mine near the top of national silver and lead production, company officials said.

Last year, Lucky Friday produced 158,600 tons of silver, lead and zinc ore. Silver production has been about 15.6 ounces per ton of ore, with lead at 11 ounces and zinc at 1.5, records show.

Hecla is encouraged by new ore bodies in the mine, Lindstrom said, and silver prices "have been so high and have come up so strong that we can easily justify this approach."

The J.S. Redpath Corp. of Tempe, Ariz., will do the design engineering and a construction contractor will be on board by March, Lindstrom said.

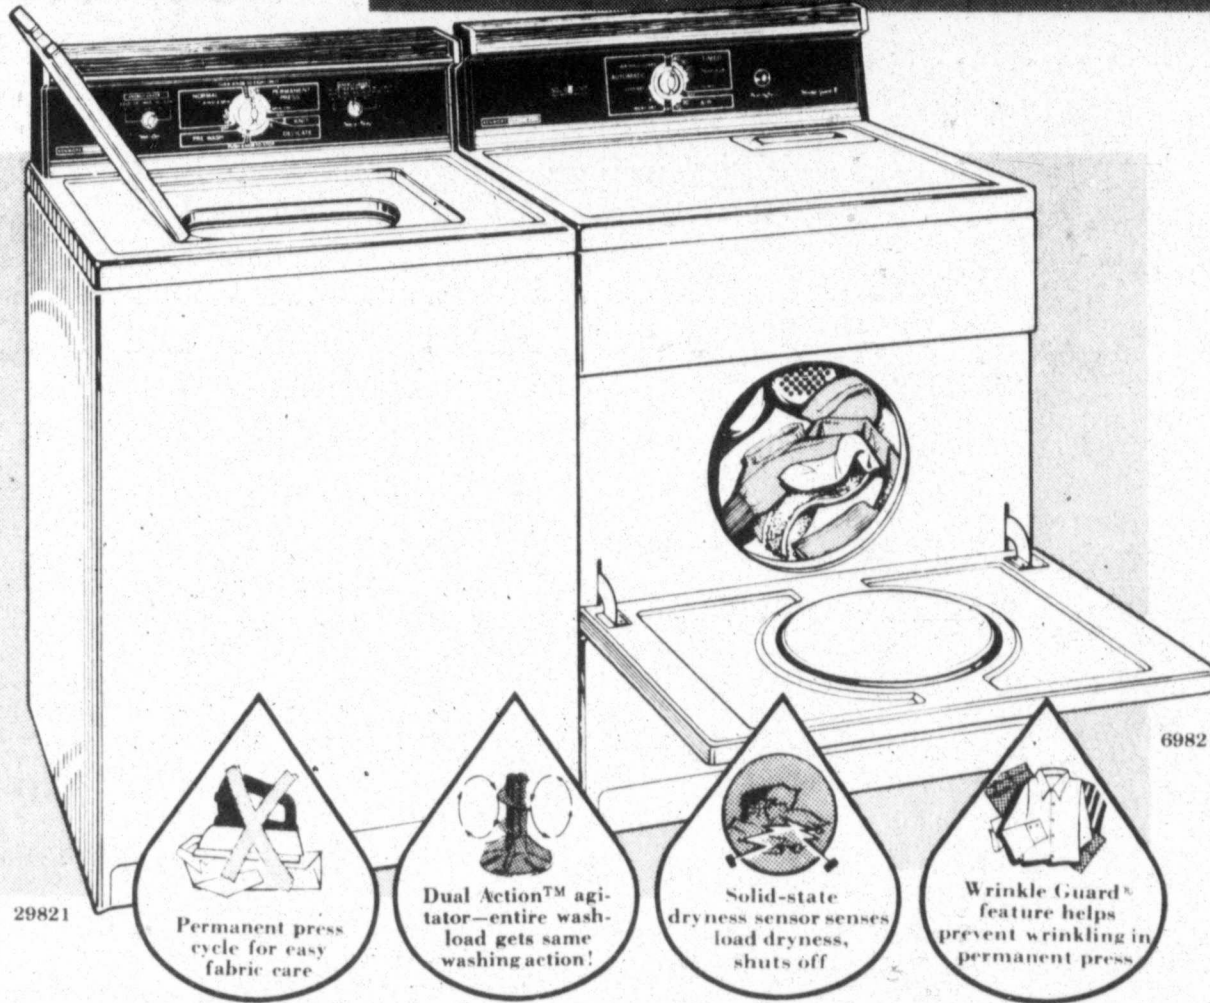

The mine first opened in 1900 and was patented in 1926. The first commercial ore was found in 1941, two years after Hecla bought the mine.

Art Brown, manager of operations, said the firm believes "there is enough ore still to be found in the Coeur d'Alene Mining District as has been mined in total to date."

Will Carter 'high command' aid re-election?

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three months after his Cabinet purge, President Carter has achieved a unified high command that he hopes will forcefully promote his quest for a second term in the White House.

The mid-summer shake-up that replaced half the Carter Cabinet has brought no major policy changes, but that was not its goal. Rather, the president sought to replace officials who he felt brought discord into his administration. In their place, he hoped to recruit a lineup of team players for his upcoming re-election effort.

IN DOZENS OF INTERVIEWS, PRESENT AND past administration officials, Democratic politicians, lobbyists and congressional sources agree that Carter has achieved this goal with his new Cabinet members.

The one note of concern, both within the White House and outside, is over the performance of Moon Landrieu at the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Off to a slow start administratively, Landrieu has crossed swords with White House officials over several appointments.

But Landrieu's failure to win control over his agency is not viewed with as much alarm as was the independence of ousted secretaries Joseph Califano at Health, Education and Welfare and Brock Adams at Transportation.

BEFORE THE CABINET SHUFFLE, White House aides had collected dozens of examples of disunity that convinced the president that he had not assumed full control of the government. They saw these as a major factor in the public perception of Carter as ineffective.

Now they say they've seen an end to such antics as:

—A Health, Education and Welfare secretary letting it be known he opposed Carter's plan for a new Department of Education.

—An assistant transportation secretary urging a House member to hold back votes for a Carter energy proposal in order to pressure the president into signing a highway bill.

—Treasury officials telling members of Congress that a consumer cooperative bank was not a top priority at the same time White House officials were saying that it was.

"Finally, all our people are sending out consistent signals, which is essential to making the government function," said one White House official. "We can't have one person saying one thing and someone else saying another."

The view is shared by a longtime Democratic professional, neutral in the competition between Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy: "You're not hearing all the squabbling that went before or the horror stories."

AND THERE ARE EXAMPLES OF SURE-handed political moves and of once-stalled legislation beginning to move through Congress:

—A major bill to curb inflation in hospital costs was recently approved by a House subcommittee that buried it last year and a welfare reform measure being pushed by the administration passed the House last week.

—Energy Secretary Charles Duncan journeyed to New England to discuss heating oil problems with groups that could never see his predecessor, James Schlesinger, even though their support was needed for Carter energy policies.

—At a time when Kennedy was criticizing administration efforts to aid refugees, new HEW Secretary Patricia Harris refused to accept the bureaucracy's word that it would take eight months to get aid to school districts swamped with refugees. She told her agency to get the aid out in 45 to 60 days.

Even several administration officials who privately support Kennedy were unable to cite major disruptions in the government or missed political opportunities.

But, one Kennedy sympathizer still in the administration sees a risk stemming from the Cabinet purge. "They set several key agencies adrift at the worst possible time. Any incumbent's best re-election campaign is based on running the government well and letting people know that," said the official, who like most of those willing to talk, asked for anonymity.

This official wondered whether new secretaries would know their departments well enough to spot the best opportunities for using federal grant programs to political advantage.

NOW CARTER HIMSELF IS MOVING to be sure those opportunities won't be missed. At a White House dinner last Monday night, Cabinet members were told they would be assigned states in which they would appear on behalf of Carter. They were also directed to assure that their political appointees will back Carter wholeheartedly, implying that Kennedy sympathizers should be dismissed.

Here is a rundown by department of the impact of the shifts:

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT —

Even Landrieu's friends are worried. Last month, John Gunther, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, privately urged the former New Orleans mayor to move more quickly on appointments. And last Tuesday, Carter's chief domestic adviser, Stuart Eizenstat, initiated a heart-to-heart discussion with Landrieu on how best to operate in Washington.

When Landrieu struggled with the White House over some key appointments, the battle over a new general counsel took on some bitterness. HUD officials objected when White House personnel chief Arnie Miller suggested his wife, Margaret McKenna, for the job.

Carter aides were angry that HUD officials ignored Ms. McKenna's 10-year record of service at the Justice Department and the White House. Finally, Landrieu got the person he wanted, Jane McGrew.

White House officials also said Landrieu was seeking top appointive posts for too many colleagues from New Orleans. "He was doing exactly what got Brock Adams in trouble when he packed the department with his former congressional aides," said a White House official.

"As far as I'm concerned, my relations with the White House staff are fine," Landrieu said. And Miller said, "Any differences we had are behind us."

Other friends worried about Landrieu's grip on his own schedule. Last month, Phil Wise, Carter's appointments secretary, arranged a session with Landrieu for Mayor Jake Godbold of Jacksonville, Fla. Godbold had helped Carter trounce Kennedy in his area in an Oct. 13 straw vote and wanted federal help for a redevelopment project.

Landrieu ended up in a 90-minute debate with the mayor over whether his project was eligible.

"Ideally, Moon needed someone with the knowledge and nerve to call Wise and tell him to send Godbold to Commerce which has a program for his type of project," said one source.

Earlier, HUD's 1981 budget proposals were delayed 10 days so Landrieu, who had just arrived, could look them over.

"Moon is like a fawn on ice," said one White House official, "but I expect like all fawns he'll be gambling through the woods in three months."

And White House officials like his political enthusiasm. Already, he's appeared in Florida to help Carter, and they anticipate his skills will help steer sensitive urban programs through Congress next year.

One urban lobbyist put the risk this way: "The question is whether Carter's Georgia Mafia is so turned off by these initial problems that they won't take advantage of Moon's political savvy."

TREASURY — White House and congressional officials praise the replacement of W. Michael Blumenthal with William Miller.

One White House official said, "Miller absolutely dominates economic policymaking which Blumenthal was never able to do."

A top congressional staff member said, "Miller is perceived on the Hill as being more able to speak with the authority of the White House. We were never as sure with Blumenthal."

At the White House, officials say Miller is less worried about protecting his turf and more willing to reach out for good political advice. One White House source said that when the decision on loan guarantees for Chrysler Corp. went to Carter for a final decision both Landrieu and Transportation Secretary

Doctors to hear talk on diabetes

An assistant professor of medicine at Texas Tech University School of Medicine, Carlos Menendez, M.D., will speak to the medical staff of Midland Memorial Hospital at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the medical staff conference room.

Menendez will speak on "Metabolic Management of the Pregnant Diabetic."

He is a member of the board of directors of the American Diabetes Association of Lubbock and was instrumental in establishing a diabetic teaching clinic there. He completed his fellowship at Columbia University in New York and was chief of endocrinology service at Brooke Army Medical Center during his military service.

This program is being sponsored by the Continuing Medical Education Program of Midland Memorial Hospital and was arranged by Dr. Ralph G. Greenlee.

tary Neil Goldschmidt were in the meeting along with Miller and economic advisers. "Miller actually thanked Neil for his contribution when Neil had to leave," said one White House official. "That would never have happened under Blumenthal."

TRANSPORTATION — "Neil is the star of the changes," said one White House official of Goldschmidt. Already, he is traveling widely to boost the administration.

One lobbyist said Goldschmidt quickly made friends by implementing one of the few policy changes to come about in the shift. "In the first week, he let it be known he's killed Brock Adams' proposal to merge the Urban Mass Transit Administration with the Federal Highway Administration," this lobbyist said.

One Kennedy sympathizer in the government labeled a blizzard of Goldschmidt policy stances as "government by press release."

One White House official recalled problems with Adams:

"We got airline deregulation virtually over his dead body. He was an absolute roadblock at every turn. That kind of thing won't happen under Neil."

ENERGY — Charles Duncan is rated by the White House, some lobbying groups and inside the department as a plus over James Schlesinger. But there is distress in the agency over the number of personnel changes.

An urban lobbyist was astonished to be called in for a meeting shortly after Duncan took over. "He's really opened up the department. We never talked to Schlesinger," this source said.

Internally, one energy official gave Duncan credit for tightening decision-making, but said of the almost total change in top appointees, "the cast of characters changes every day and we often don't know what is going on."

"Duncan walked into the worst of all worlds," said one White House source. "He had the most divisive issue around and a department with no political base. Now we have someone who enjoys the political process and knows how you build constituencies to support policy."

HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE — Patricia Harris moved from HUD, the smallest Cabinet agency, to HEW, the largest. Even administration officials worried that she might have trouble with a staff loyal to Califano. So far, her reviews have been good.

She gets high marks with Carter political strategists for her appointment of women to succeed men in the key posts of general counsel and civil rights chief.

Even a former Califano aide applauds her for easing out a female, minority appointee of Califano's. "This woman just couldn't administrate," this source said. "But Mrs. Harris is probably the only one who could have removed her. Certainly a white, male like Califano couldn't."

As for the increased success in Congress, one White House aide said, "A lot of people on the Hill were angry at Joe, because he was strident and bruised egos, but we've been hearing very good things about Pat up there." Still, a former Califano aide said that two key congressmen courted by Califano had complained recently about their lack of contact with Mrs. Harris.

JUSTICE — The promotion of Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to succeed Griffin Bell was so long in the works that this department has undergone the fewest changes.

Civiletti received some public criticism for accompanying Carter on a trip to an Italian neighborhood in the new attorney general's hometown, Baltimore. Critics argued it was merely a quasi-political trip to promote administration accomplishments, although Carter has pledged to keep the department out of politics.

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Two newlyweds missed death by inches when they fell together from a sixth-floor balcony during a photo-taking session at their wedding night party, police say.

Kenneth Burke and the former Donna Kriehn, his bride of a few hours, barely missed a brick wall and concrete patio but slammed into rain-softened grass about 72 feet below the balcony, police said.

"It was a miracle. A couple of inches and they wouldn't be alive," Chief Salvatore Malinconico said Monday.

Although the two were conscious immediately after the Saturday night fall, they suffered serious injuries and were placed in the intensive-care unit of Yale-New Haven Hospital.

Burke, 39, an employee of Xerox Corp. in Rochester, N.Y., was in critical condition Monday with multiple face and skull fractures, a dislocated and broken hip, liver injury and damage that required removal of his spleen, a hospital representative said.

Mrs. Burke, 30, was listed in guarded condition with a broken left arm and spine and hip injuries.

At about 11 p.m. the couple went onto the balcony for Burke's brother

Kevin to photograph them sitting on the brick ledge or railing with city lights in the background, police said.

"That ledge must have been a little higher than sitting height," Malinconico said.

Kevin Burke told police his brother climbed onto the ledge first and was helping his bride up when he faltered, the chief said.

"When he did, he must have lost his balance and pulled her over as he fell," the chief said.

Rural crime rate on the increase throughout U.S.

By LEE MITGANG
The Associated Press

Indiana farmers used to worry about kids cherry-bombing their mailboxes. Now farmers are locking their doors against thieves and vandals.

Cattle-rustling in New Mexico jumped 300 percent in the past year.

Fruit by the truckload is routinely ripped off in Florida.

From the cornfields of Ohio to the coalfields of West Virginia to the cow country of the Southwest, an almost fivefold increase in crime in the past two decades is threatening the easygoing, secure lifestyle of rural America.

Annual FBI statistics show that since 1960, crime in rural America is increasing more rapidly than in urban areas.

In 1960, the rural crime rate was 423 incidents per 100,000 population. In 1977, the latest year for which figures are available, the rate stood nearly five times higher at 2,012 per 100,000 population. During the same period, crime in metropolitan areas rose about four times higher.

Put another way, in 1960 the odds of someone in a rural area being a crime victim were about one in 236. By 1977, the odds were one in 49.

Professor Howard Phillips of Ohio State University says the FBI figures show that rural crime is now roughly equal to urban rates reached in 1967.

"The question I have," says Phillips, "is do you have to catch up to the problems of urban centers before Washington and others will pay attention?"

Information on the nature and extent of the problem is sketchy, but researchers generally agree rural crime has certain characteristics:

—Property crime is the leading problem, especially vandalism and theft. Phillips estimates that in rural Ohio, vandalism accounts for as much as 50 percent of crime. Purdue University studies of two Indiana counties found vandalism accounted for 23 percent of crime.

In Hampshire County, W.Va., farm equipment theft is the most prevalent crime, according to researchers Thomas Bean and Layle Lawrence, and a local hunter there was recently caught shooting up a farmer's house.

This summer, someone took a four-wheel drive vehicle and ripped through cornfields on the outskirts of Toledo, Ohio.

Around the country, tractors, combines and other expensive farm machines are easy prey for thieves, because many rural Americans can't get used to the idea of locking things and removing keys.

—Rural crime is generally not as violent as urban crime, but the murder rate in rural areas is only slightly less than in cities.

—Rural criminals are almost always young males. They usually commit their crimes in their home county, although not in the same town.

"One thing's for sure. It's not people from metropolitan areas running out and victimizing rural areas," says Purdue researcher Joseph Donnermeyer.

Several reasons are offered for the rise in rural crime. A leading cause cited is the lack of law enforcement personnel in rural areas.

A second factor is the wealth in many country towns: there's plenty worth stealing and not much protecting it. Rural America is much more affluent these days.

In Montmorenci, Ind., Thunderbirds are parked in front of $100,000 homes. As often as not, the keys are left in the cars, and the front doors of the houses are unlocked.

Inside are stereos, color TVs and microwave ovens.

New highways and new industry have helped open the way for crime in rural America. Strange cars cruise through, strangers move in.

In many towns, city people buy country homes. The distinction between country and suburb is gradually blurring.

Phillips notes that the past decade witnessed the first increase in rural population in years. Rural communities are losing their first line of defense: knowing your neighbor, knowing who belongs.

"What you have is homogeneous communities becoming more heterogeneous. People don't know each other," he says.

Life for rural teen-agers has also changed. In many states, tight money has forced small high schools to consolidate into sprawling county schools just as crowded as their city cousins.

Donnermeyer says peer pressure and lack of adult attention in these county schools often lead to drug use, drinking and sometimes crime.

Ironically, according to sociologists, rural America finds itself facing the same basic problem faced by crime-ridden city neighborhoods: the ripping of the social fabric, of knowing and caring about neighbors.

Many, including the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and the National Sheriffs Association, feel the answer is to restore the strength of country neighborhoods, to make the neighbors care again.

Since 1972, the sheriffs' group has received an annual $250,000 grant from LEAA to operate a National Neighborhood Watch Program. The program, initially geared toward the suburbs, is shifting its emphasis toward rural crime.

Director Ben Gorda says the program teaches people to fight crime with common-sense precautions like locking doors and vehicles and installing anti-burglary devices.

It also encourages people to keep an eye on strange cars driving along rural roads, and note license plates if they appear suspicious.

But beyond such programs, many who have studied rural crime complain the problem has gotten meager attention from government.

"There is a myth about rural areas being relatively crime-free, and that's not true," says Donnermeyer. "I don't think the government recognizes the problem yet."

Alfalfa study financed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has approved a research grant of $121,000 for a three-year study at Washington State University to seek ways of combating Verticillium wilt in alfalfa.

Verticillium wilt is a disease that was first detected in the Northwest in 1976. Officials said it can cut alfalfa yields in half and threatens to spread to other parts of the United States. So far, it has infected more than 500,000 acres of the valuable crop in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Canada.

"Because of Verticillium, Australia — one of the biggest importers of alfalfa seed — has already placed an embargo on seed from the Northwest," the department said Monday. "Other major alfalfa seed importers are threatening to do the same."

High fuel prices bring back the old-fashioned cattle drive

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Down home on the range, the discouraging word is diesel. Amid rising fuel prices, ranchers used to herding their cattle onto trucks for the drive to market are organizing a different kind of drive these days — the old-fashioned cattle drive.

To save shipping costs, some ranchers are rounding up extra cowhands, stocking a chuckwagon and climbing atop horses to drive their cattle across the windswept South Dakota prairies, just as their grandfathers did at the turn of the century.

"We went through a period when energy was too cheap," said Vern Rausch, a Hoven rancher. "It was cheaper than labor. Now the situation is reversing and energy is worth more than our time again."

"So we'll spend the time trailing the cattle rather than burning the energy," he said.

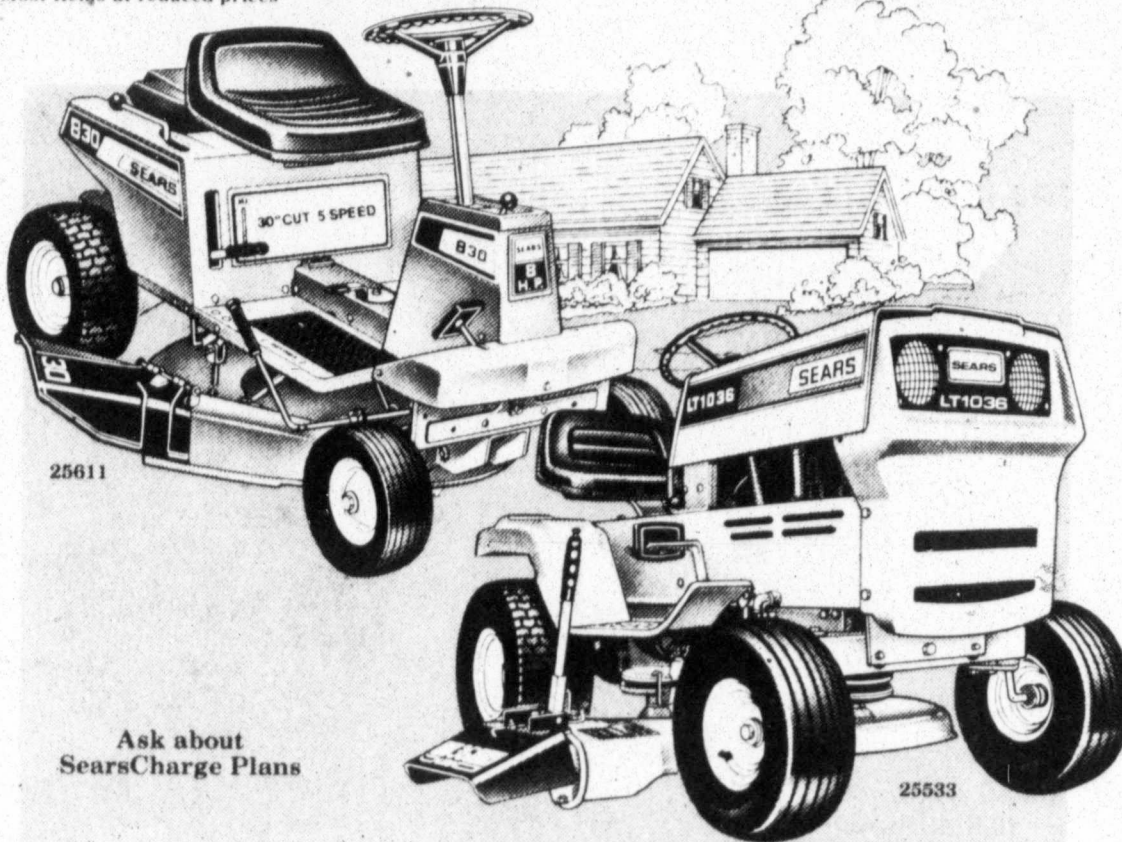

Clair Smith ran the first major drive this year, herding some 1,500 cattle 75 miles to Belle Fourche in western South Dakota early in September.

The biggest drive in local memory got underway two weeks later when Smith's brother-in-law, rancher Wayne Besler of Bison, enlisted 70 cowboys to herd 4,500 steers as far as 75 miles to a stockyard in St. Onge, just north of Deadwood.

"I decided when I got those 4,500 cattle together that I probably had more guts than brains," Besler said. "That was one hell of a bunch of cattle. It stretched out five or six miles at times."

Pilot sights UFO — promptly lands

VALENCIA, Spain (AP) — The pilot of a Spanish charter flight to the Canary Islands made an emergency landing here after sighting an unidentified flying object, airport officials reported. Military authorities launched an investigation.

Valencia airport tower officials said the unidentified pilot, flying early Monday from Salzburg, Germany with 119 passengers, spotted the object near the Balearic island of Ibiza and put down in Valencia.

There was no description of what the pilot reported sighting.

The aircraft landed before dawn, the passengers spent several hours in Valencia hotels, and they flew to the Canary Islands about midday Monday aboard the plane, the tower said.

Family helped grain dealer fake drowning

IOWA PARK, Texas (AP) — Grain dealer Bobby Johnson faked his own drowning in 1977 without getting wet because a nephew in a smaller boat pulled alongside Johnson's cabin cruiser in the dark of night and picked him up, a federal prosecutor has confirmed.

Johnson, 44, was reported missing from the fishing yacht "Honey Beau" Jan. 3, 1977 and at first was presumed drowned.

But according to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Johnson's nephew, Steve Johnson of Dallas, pulled alongside the "Honey Beau" and Johnson jumped onto the speedboat.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying the two men sped back to a marina in Aransas Pass, drove to Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport where Johnson took a flight to San Francisco.

"That is consistent with the information we have received," Assistant U.S. Attorney R.H. Wallace said. Wallace has worked on Johnson's $2 million wheat swindling case since it was filed in October of 1977.

Johnson was arrested last July 15 in Rexburg, Idaho, after running a stop sign in the truck he was driving. He had been using the name Donald Wayne Colter and other aliases while hiding from federal authorities investigating grain missing from his storage elevators.

Last month, he pleaded guilty to two counts of transporting stolen grain across state lines. In return for the plea, federal authorities dismissed 15 related charges.

He is now awaiting sentencing in the Wichita County jail in Wichita Falls under $500,000 bond.

Johnson pleaded guilty to transporting $23,266 in other farmer's wheat from his storage elevators in Geronimo, Okla., to Fort Worth and Houston where it was sold to feed companies.

But prosecutors said 444,587 bushels of wheat valued at more than $1.9 million had vanished from elevators owned by Johnson and his brother, Henry C. Johnson.

Henry was paroled in June after serving 16 months of a 16-year prison sentence for signing false warehouse receipts for grain stored in some of the 10 elevators he operated with Bobby in Texas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

According to the Star-Telegram, Henry's son, Steve Johnson, flew to Corpus Christi Jan. 2, 1977, to help with the faked disappearance using a boat that belonged to Bobby Johnson's brother, Darrel.

The newspaper said the pickup was made about 2 a.m. and others on board the "Honey Beau" were not aware of the plan. Authorities said they have uncovered nothing to indicate the other passengers were involved in the disappearance.

Bobby Johnson's youngest brother Douglas Royce Johnson, had originally been tagged to drive the smaller boat and help spirit Bobby from his crumbling business empire, the newspaper reported.

But the article said at the last minute Doug's parents in Iowa Park did not want him involved and "yanked him out of there."

Five days later Bobby Johnson phoned nephew Steve, who was working in Dallas at the time and agreed to help his uncle, the Star-Telegram reported.

Darrel Johnson, whose boat was used, was in Portland, Texas, watching a football game on television the night of Johnson's disappearance and did not participate in the scheme, the newspaper said.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Less Than Dazzling

By Alfred Sheinwold

You'll admire South's play today if you think a great player should dazzle his opponents with fancy footwork. Come to think of it, the result was less than dazzling.

South took the first trick in dummy and lost the spade finesse. When a diamond came back South won, cashed the ace of spades and ran the diamonds, discarding a spade, a heart and the jack of clubs. It was very impressive, but South was down one. All the finesses were off, and no squeeze developed.

THE WRINGER

"You sure put us through the wringer," the defenders said admiringly. North just looked sour.

South should take only two diamonds and then lead dummy's heart to finesse with the eight. West wins, of course, but any return gives South a free finesse for his 12th trick. If East puts up the nine of hearts at the third trick, South covers with the jack and still has a finesse position.

No fireworks, but the slam is unbeatable.

Dazed 5-year-old dies when she wanders back into fire

PAULSBORO, N.J. (AP) — A dazed 5-year-old girl was killed early today when she wandered back to her smoky bedroom as her mother tried to evacuate the family from their blazing home.

In the confusion, Rosalba Feudale left the safety of the downstairs area, where her mother had put her, and sought the security of her second-floor bedroom, where she died in the thick smoke, police said.

"The sad thing was the girl did appear at her window. It was like a silhouette. The windows were fogged with smoke," said Patrolman Ken Ridinger, who was among the first at the scene.

"Then, she drifted away. We were hollering, but there was no ladder up yet. I ran to my car and grabbed a jack and smashed the window in the next room, hoping she would hear it and come back."

The officer said the fire began about 1:30 a.m. in a rear porch and spread rapidly through the two-story, frame house in the heart of this small Gloucester County community.

"The mother had the kids downstairs but they drifted back upstairs to their bedrooms. Kids usually do that," Ridinger said.

He said the mother got the two boys out safely but the fire was raging too fiercely to reach the girl's bedroom. Cause of the fire was under investigation.

Thanks for the dance

Two of Chicago's Brookfield Zoo polar bears appear to be dancing, top, and then nuzzle in their pool, bottom. Chicagoans remember last year as one of the worst ever in the windy city, and fear a repeat this winter. The city's polar bears, however, appear to be looking forward to the colder temperatures they know are just around the corner. (AP Laserphotos)

Bill Clements joins employees' group

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements this week became the first Texas governor to join the Texas Public Employees Association. "You want my signature or my check first?" he asked Gary Hughes, executive director of TPEA, at a brief public ceremony. "Both," said Hughes. "Then what is the secret handshake?" Clements said. "We just ask that you be an active member," Hughes said.

Sales tax payments are ahead of last year

AUSTIN (AP) — Payments of local sales taxes to Texas cities are running 11 percent ahead of last year, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday. Total 1979 payments to cities of the one percent sales tax now total $390.4 million, compared to $349.8 million through November of 1978, Bullock said. November payments to cities totaled $25.8 million with the largest check going to Houston for $4.9 million. Houston's total this year is $81.4 million, up 11 percent from the previous year. Dallas got a November check of $3.5 million, bringing this year's payments to $46.7 million, an increase of 14 percent over last year. Other November checks, with the yearly total included: Fort Worth $1 million, $15.6 million for the year, up 7 percent; San Antonio $1.4 million, $21.7 million, up 7 percent; Austin $1 million, $13.1 million, up 11 percent; Corpus Christi $426,336, $8 million, up 13 percent; El Paso $5617,605, $9.9 million, up 7 percent.

Young Demos to honor their national president

AUSTIN (AP) — Dwayne Holman, outgoing national president of the Young Democrats, will be honored Nov. 16 at a reception in a downtown Austin hotel, Texas officials said Monday. Those scheduled to attend include Chip Carter, son of the president; Attorney General Mark White, State Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg, former State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest and former Attorney General John Hill. Proceeds from the $10-a-person reception will go to the Texas Young Democrats.

Dance team to perform in Monterrey, Mexico

AUSTIN (AP) — The Golden Spurs, a precision dance team from J.W. Nixon High School, Laredo, will represent Texas in Monterrey, Mexico, Nov. 20 at a parade honoring the "Dia de la Revolution." The Texas Good Neighbor Association said the girls organization received an invitation directly from Nuevo Leon Gov. Alfonso Martinez Dominguez and were officially designated as Texas' ambassadors of good will by Gov. Bill Clements. The 35 girls chosen for the trip will travel to Monterrey on Nov. 19 by chartered bus, then take part the next day in the parade.

Oldest inmate celebrates his day

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — John Davis, the oldest prison inmate in South Carolina and perhaps anywhere, cut the cake, praised the Lord and accepted a batch of kisses for his 103rd birthday. A group of beauticians, who have helped "Uncle John" celebrate his birthday for years, was on hand for the party Thursday at a minimum security center where the spry inmate has lived since the early 1970s. The 30 young women, students at Columbia's Waverly School of Beauty, filed past Davis, giving him small cash gifts and singing his special request: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Several planted kisses on his bald head.

Cleveland mayor takes over

CLEVELAND (AP) — George V. Voinovich, who ousted Dennis Kucinich as mayor of debt-ridden Cleveland, took office Monday, saying he felt like a soldier going off to war. The 43-year-old Republican, who had been Ohio's lieutenant governor, described his new job as "a lot more difficult situation, a lot more serious, than even I pretend to understand." Ohio's largest city is struggling to lift itself out of defeat, reverse years of flight to the suburbs by its residents and maintain long-neglected public utilities and services.

"I feel like a man who has volunteered to serve his country in time of war and has just been inducted. My war will be to save one of this country's greatest and largest cities," Voinovich told a crowd of 2,900 at his Veteran's Day inauguration at Public Hall.
