SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Acting President Choi Kyu-hah announced Saturday that the 2,560-member electoral college will choose an interim successor to assassinated President Park Chung-hee on Dec. 6. Choi is the overwhelming favorite to be

Choi was named acting president after Park's death Oct. 26. He announced the election in his capacity as acting chairman of the electoral college, which is made up almost exclusively of supporters of the late president

Dissident leaders have demanded Choi step down in favor of a democratic caretaker cabinet that would write a new constitution to replace the one written by Park in 1972 to perpetuate his one-man rule.

A Gainesville man was taken into custody for questioning in connection with the killings, Hall County Sheriff's Sgt. Billy Barnes said. No charges were filed by late Friday.

Officers had used bloodhounds borrowed from the Georgia Industrial Institute, a nearby prison, in the search for a suspect in the case, said Chief Deputy Ron Attaway of the Hall County Sheriff's office.

Gacy collapses

CHICAGO (AP) — John Wayne Gacy Jr., charged in the slayings of 33 young men and boys, grabbed his chest and collapsed Friday during a pre-trial hearing. Authorities said later he did not need medical treatment.

Gacy, 37, suffers from angina pectoris — a heart allment that results in severe chest pains.

He appeared to be unconscious when he collapsed during a hearing before Judge Louis B. Garippo of Cook County Circuit Court, and he was taken to Cermak Memorial Hospital by stretcher.

Doctors there said Gacy "does not need any medical care at this time," said Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod, adding, "the doctor says there is nothing wrong with him."

Later, Gacy was taken to his regular room at Cermak Memorial Hospital in the Cook County Jail complex. He is housed there because of his heart ailment.

New home sought

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Ukrainian dissident couple who left the Soviet Union this week after spending a total of 34 years in Soviet prisons plan to settle in the United States, said an Amnesty International spokesman.

Svastoslav Karavanski, 59, and his wife Nina Strokata Karavanska arrived here aboard a Soviet Aeroflot jet en route to London, where they have been invited by Amnesty and the the British Pen club, an international writers' organization. The spokesman said the couple told him they never want to return home.

'Defiant' Iran won't attend U.N. meeting

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A defiant Iranian government, boosted by a second day of huge anti-America: protests, announced Friday it would boycott a U.N. Security Council meeting on the U.S. Embassy takeover. But a top official hinted that the shah's departure from the United States could ease the crisis.

When and where Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi might go remained uncertain, however.

Mexico said it would not allow him to return to his exile home there, but President Anwar Sadat offered him asylum in Egypt. A spokesman for the deposed monarch said he still intends to leave the United States.

The Moslam militants who have accurated the U.S. Embassy since

The Moslem militants who have occupied the U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4 say that if the United States lets the shah go anywhere but back to Iran—to face charges of mass murder and corruption—a trial of their 50 American hostages as "spies" will become "inevitable."

But acting Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, at a news conference announcing Iran's boycott of the U.N. meeting, refrained from making such firm threats.

Asked what would happen if the deposed monarch went to Egypt, he replied, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

"... Certainly the crisis will not be totally defused at that time... If the shah goes, definitely the hostages will not be released immediately."

An estimated one million demonstrators jammed Tehran's streets Friday, the second of two Islamic days of mourning, in a mixture of prayer and anti-American protest.

MANY RALLIED in front of the U.S. Embassy, their backs to the building and praying toward the Moslem holy city of Mecca.

The chanting from rows of seated and kneeling women, clad in head-to-toe chadors, and from the serried ranks of men, carrying symbolic wood-handled chain whips, echoed through the city as its people pledged their willingness to die for Islam.

It had been thought 'Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime might send a top representative to the debate, which some viewed as a crucial opportunity for behind-the-scenes negotiations with U.S. officials.

But Ghotbzadeh denounced the Council as a tool of the United States, said Iran would not take part and declared that any decision it makes "is not binding and we don't accept it."

Although he said at one point, "I don't think the question of compromise arises," and he remained adamant that the exiled shah must be handed over to Iran, Ghotbzadeh left the door open to negotiation.

He said Iran would maintain its contacts with the Security Council and he put forward two proposals — essentially restatements of previous Iranian ideas — that he said would make it "easy" for the United States to hand over the shah:

-The United States must accept that the shah "could be a criminal," agree to an Iranian-directed international inquiry of the shah's 37-year regime and accept its findings.

The Security Council must launch an international investigation of the shah, with the resulting judgments binding on Washington.

The International Court of Justice on Friday set Dec. 10 for a hearing on a U.S. request for a judgment that Iran has violated international law and must free the embassy hostages. Such a ruling would bolster the U.S. hand if it seeks sanctions from the Security Council — which could order anything from economic reprisals to military action against Iran.

Iranian crisis continues to draw protest

By The Associated Press

Several hundred protesters blocked a rally by Iranian students Friday in Columbus, Ohio, and about 350 pro-Iranian students in Washington, D.C., drew jeers from spectators as tension remained high over the taking of U.S. hostages in Tehran.

In New Jersey, 59 Manchester High School students have been suspended for three days for refusing to return to class after burning an Iranian flag, principal Richard F. Fosko said Friday.

"We're not trying to be anti-American," Fosko said. "As a matter of fact, I'm in full sympathy with them."

A sophomore, who asked not to be identified, said the students burned the flag to show support for the American hostages in Iran.

"We wanted to show Iran how it would feel if the situation were reversed. Iran burned our flag and we were insulted. So we burned theirs in return." she said.

LABOR SECRETARY Ray Marshall told a Portland, Ore., news conference Friday that he will not discourage U.S. dock workers from refusing to handle shipments bound for Iran. He said the Portland dock workers' refusal to load goods bound for Iran was "in the tradition of the American labor movement."

Marshall added, however, that it would be "a danger" if everybody concerned about the Iranian crisis tried to do something about it on their own. "In an emergency you need someone in charge and that person is the president," Marshall said.

The students shouted "Go Home, Go Home" and "Nagasaki, Hiroshima, Why Not Iran?" at the Iranians.

THERE WERE ALSO two arrests for disorderly conduct in Washington. Two pro-Iranian demonstrators were charged when they refused to leave the area near the State Department. Several hundred policemen kept the Iranians and spectators apart as the demonstrators marched from Dupont Circle to the State Department. There were no serious incidents, although someone threw an egg at the demonstrators, hitting a placard.

IN OTHER developments:

—The Rev. William Sloane Coffin, senior minister of New York City's Riverside Church, urged the former shah to "confess" sins of torture and repression and called for an international tribunal to review such charges against Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Earlier in the day, several U.N.
officials were among 600 persons at a multi-lingual and multi-denominational prayer service for peace in Iran at the Cathedral Church of St. John —In a series of Seattle campaign appearances, Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan said he believes the United States would not further endanger the U.S. hostages in Iran if it grants permanent political asylum to the deposed shah of Iran. Reagan described the shah as "a great ally" who should be able to stay in this country if he wants.

—Nine more Iranian students living in the state of Washington have been ordered to show cause why they should not be deported, federal officials said. They are among 83 Iranians in western Washington alleged to be in violation of immigration laws.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index designed to forecast business activity signaled Friday that the nation's economy is in for more trouble

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators fell 0.9 percent in October after rising a weak 0.2 percent in September. The October decline was the largest since a 2.4 percent drop in April.

"The index is heading south in earnest and signaling the emerging weakness in the economy," said Theodore Torda, a senior economist at Commerce Department. "The recession is at hand"

cession is at hand."

There has been considerable debate since spring over whether the nation's economy actually has fallen into a recession.

The gross national product, the value of all the nation's goods and services, fell a sharp 2.3 percent in the second quarter this year, then rebounded a strong 3.5 percent in the third quarter. A recession generally is defined as two consecutive quarters of decline in the GNP.

Although some, like Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, contend a recession began in April and that the third-quarter figure was "a false signal," others believe the recession has yet to begin.

The October decline, Torda said, "is not particularly large or alarming itself." He added, "Looking at the trend of the index over the past year, it is signaling weakness ahead."

Torda said he did not expect the downturn to be severe as the 1974-75 recession, when the nation's unemployment rose above 9 percent. But Torda did not rule out some declines in the leading-indicators index that would match the 2 percent or greater declines of the last recession.

The nation's unemployment rate currently is in the range of 6 percent.

The index of economic indicators in

The index of economic indicators in October stood at 138.8, down sharply from its peak of 143.6 in October 1978. The current figure means the index is 38.8 percent higher than its base of 100 in 1967.

More than half the decline in October was due to a sharp drop in permits for home construction, said Commerce Department analyst Adren Cooper.

Six other components of the index also contributed to the decline: the number of companies reporting slower deliveries, liquid assets, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, stock prices, money supply and new orders.

Two components, the layoff rate and sensitive prices, rose. The average workweek was unchanged.

In other economic news Friday, Citibank in New York and a number of other major banks reduced their prime lending rate to 15.5 percent from a record 15.75 percent.

BIG SPRING — A film production crew will be moving into Big Spring soon to work on a movie concerning Unidentified Flying Objects.

Leroy Tillery, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, said about 125 persons with Schick Sunn Classics Productions should begin moving into the West Texas city soon in preparation for filming.

Tillery said the movie will be titled "Hangar 18" with much of the filming to be done at facilities left at Webb Air Force Base. Theme of the movie is a UFO incident which led to a conflict between the National movie is a UFO incident which led to a conflict between the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Department of Defense, he added.

Filming should begin the second week in January with completion scheduled for the middle of March, according to Tillery.

He said there had been some preliminary work done on the movie at Roswell, N.M. But the producer wanted a military atmosphere and the Department of Defense recommended the vacant Webb Air Force

"The base still has furniture and looks military," Tillery said.

The chamber manager said he was told some filming also would be done in Midland and Odessa. And it is possible the movie's leading characters — which haven't been cast yet — will be housed in Midland or

"This (film) is an economic shot in the arm for us," Tillery said.

A crew is coming in now to begin work on the sets. And while filming is in full swing, it will mean someone will have to cater meals each day, local businesses will furnish supplies and motels will be filled, he said.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A University of Texas marine scientist Friday said the federal government is not prepared to battle large oil spills that threaten the Gulf Coast.

'The commitment simply has not been heavy enough in terms of money and drive," Dr. Pat Parker said.

Parker told the Texas Coastal and Marine Council the state was fortunate it did not suffer more extensive damage when oil from a blownout Mexican well coated some South Texas beaches. 6

"I can report to you we got out real lucky," he said.

Council Chairman Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, questioned-Parker about Coast Guard efforts in recent spills. Parker agreed with Schwartz the effort was not suffi-

"This country does not have the equipment needed. I saw no gear that could have stopped the oil from coming into Aransas Pass," Parker said of the Mexican spill."

He added if changes in current did not stop the northerly flow, the oil would have come through Aransas Pass "pretty hot and heavy" and 'you'd be scraping oil off your yachts

Parker said little research has been done on oil currently flowing from a burning tanker five miles off Galveston. The Burmah Agate has been ablaze since a Nov. 1 collision with a

The scientist from the UT lab at Port Aransas said the oil from the tanker is fresher than the Mexican oil. The Mexican crude had weathered in the weeks it took to flow

"It would be like being close to the Ixtoc well itself," Parker said of the oil near Galveston. However, he also said the latest spill occurred at a time when animals are not reproducing.

"Probably some of it has found its way into the estuaries. How much, we don't know," he said Parker said toxicity tests on the Mexican oil showed it dangerous only to immature organisms. He said that oil still could have an impact off the Texas coast, although it has stopped flowing to the north.

"The Gulf is a large coupled system. We may eventually feel the effects of that," he said.

He said the oil "may somehow be reflected" in fish caught off the Texas'

Tower uses DOE profit report to renew attack on tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. John Tower renewed his attack on the windfall profits tax by releasing Friday a study he says is proof that oil companies are not getting a fair shake from the Carter Administra-

The Texas Republican said the Department of Energy study demonstrates that oil companies should not be subjected to the proposed windfall profits tax because their profitability. or return on investment, is generally the same as it is for other industries.

Tower said the study "exposes the Carter tax proposal for what it is and always has been - a punitive, politically inspired tax designed to cripple private industries' energy development efforts while raising hundreds of billions in additional taxes to expand an already bloated federal government.

Tower received a copy of the study - clearly marked "draft" - after he threatened to file a complaint against DOE in federal court to obtain the material under the Freedom of Information Act. The study was reported to be the voluntary work of a DOE financial

Tower said the study also shows that in recent years the oil companies' net income and cash flow increases have run parallel to increased capital and exploratory expendi-

For the past three years oil companies' profits have decreased progressively compared with the non-oil manufacturing group, he said. Fred Appel, a DOE spokeman, said the paper could not be considered even a "draft study. "It's just one guy's assembling of facts related to financial structure inthe oil industry," Appel said. "It's nothing; it was just one guy's submission that didn't add up to anything."

He said the DOE financial analyst presented the paper to his supervisor, who said it represented no new information or insights and returned it.

Tower earlier in the week introduced a potentially troublesome amendment for the windfall profits

The amendment would define "excess profits" and impose a tax to retrieve those profits from all industries, not only from oil companies.

"Let's just say that I expect this to provide a talking point," Tower replied when asked if he expected his amendment would be a useful tool for a filibuster.

The senator said he objected to singling out the oil industry as a scapegoat for the nation's energy

"Additional federal taxes on the petroleum or any other industry are totally unjustified," Tower said. "The preident's tax - which does not tax profits at all, but rather imposes an excise tax on oil production - is an attack on the profit motive itself, a fact which should distress anyone who takes pride in the success of our capitalistic economic system.

The windfall profits tax is designed to retrieve some of the funds that will be flowing to oil companies as a result of President Carter's decision to remove price controls from domestic oil

Tower said he expected the debate on the Senate floor would last through next week and possibly continue into the following week.

Senate leader warns that failure of 'windfall profits' tax bill possible

WASHINGTON (AP) - The acting Senate Republican leader cautioned Friday that "there just might not be a windfall profits tax" at all if senators insist on making the tax as tough as President Carter wants.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, whose state produces more oil than any other, said failure of the tax on oil industry profits "wouldn't hurt my feelings at all."

If a majority of the Senate insists on gradually making the tax tougher, Stevens added, "more of us will join those who say there will be no bill" and launch a filibuster that could kill chances of passing the measure this

Action on the tax bill is being blocked already by oil state senators in protest of a pending amendment that would increase the tax by $25

Stevens' statement contrasted with the optimism of Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a leader of the oil state bloc, who said progress was being made toward breaking that

Mayor defends 65,000 'political' letters

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Mayor Dianne Feinstein insists politics was not the reason she sent messages to 65,000 city transit riders at a cost of at least $11,000 in public funds.

"I think a mayor has a right to be a mayor whether there is a campaign going on or not," said Mrs. Feinstein, who is facing a runoff on Dec. 11. "After all, I am the mayor, not the challenger ... This is not a political message.

Packets containing a letter from the mayor and six unstamped postcards for the transit riders to use to register their complaints or compliments were printed under an "emergency" order from Richard Sklar, general manager of the office of public utilities. The 65,000 packets were to accompany Municipal Railway "fast passes," monthly cards that entitle riders to discounted Sklar said there has been a recent flood of rider complaints. A Municipal Railway spokesman blamed a shortage of bus drivers and maintenance problems.

A deputy city attorney said that using public money to print the material was not illegal, but added: "It may not have been the wisest thing to do.' Supervisor Quentin Kopp, who trailed the mayor by two percentage points in the Nov. 6 election, called it a misuse of

Midland Realtor named to state commission

Longtime Midland Realtor Don Harvey was named to the Texas Real Estate Commission Friday by Gov. Bill Clements.

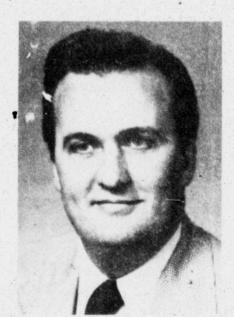

Harvey, 40, said he was very honored by the governor's appointment and expressed confidence that his 17 vears of real estate business experience will be beneficial to the state.

Looking to the future, Harvey said that in a changing world the commission should strive to continue a good real estate licensing act through enforcement of present policies and improvements of policies if conditions

He added that Texas "has one of the best, if not the finest, real estate license act in the country.

He also stressed that the Real Estate Commission, a regulatory body for the real estate business in Texas, is for the benefit and protection of the citizens of the state

Court upholds Carter's right to terminate treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal appeals court overruled a lower court Friday and said President Carter has the authority to unilaterally terminate the mutual defense treaty between the United States and Taiwan.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia said the issue it was asked to decide was "solely and simply...whether the president in these precise circumstances is, on behalf of the United States, empowered to terminate the treaty in accordance with its terms.

"It is our view that he is," the court

The seven-judge panel decided that the limitations the lower court judge saw in Carter's authority "have no foundation in the Constitution.'

Six judges voted in favor of the ruling, while a seventh judge dissented in part. Arguments were heard by eight judges, but one died before a formal vote on the case was taken. Court sources who asked to remain anonymous said the deceased judge shared the majority opinion.

The suit was brought by Sen. Barry Goldwater and 23 other members of Congress after Carter ended the treaty with Taiwan as part of the process of normalizing relations with main-

Lawyers for Goldwater said they would appeal to the Supreme Court next week

The appellate court overturned the decision of U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch, who ruled Oct. 17 that Carter acted improperly in ending the mutual defense treaty

Gasch said that his reading of the Constitution indicated a treaty could be ended only if two-thirds of the Senate or a majority of the House

White House press secretary Jody Powell said, "We are obviously very pleased by the decision."

Daniel Popeo, an attorney for Goldwater, said, "We expect to file with the Supreme Court Monday morning .. we intend to fight this all the way."

He added that the ruling was not unexpected, saying the appeals court is "a difficult forum." But he declined to elaborate.

'We're ready to go all the way," he The U.S. Taiwan treaty is scheduled to end on Jan. 1.

The appeals court majority said that if it ruled a treaty could be terminated by a legislative vote, "we would be locking the United States into all of its international obligations, even if the president and twothirds of the Senate minus one firmly believed that the proper course...was to terminate a treaty?'

The court said several treaties in force carry "potentially dangerous obligations" and the president may have to take immediate action to terminate them.

'The creation of a constitutionally obligatory role in all cases for a twothirds consent by the Senate would give to one-third-plus-one of the Senate the power to deny the president the authority necessary to conduct our foreign policy in a rational and effective manner. The appeals court said that the Senate's right to ratify treaties by a two-thirds vote is a power "not lightly to be extended in instances not set forth in the Constitution. The judges also noted that the president rather than the Congress represents the United States in foreign affairs. "It is significant that the treaty power appears in Article II of the Constitution, relating to the executive branch, and not in Article I, setting forth the powers of the legislative branch," the court said.

The court majority, however, emphasized the narrow scope of its rul-ing, saying, "All we decide today is that two-thirds Senate consent or majority consent in both houses is not necessary to terminate this treaty in the circumstances before us now

At end of visit to Turkey, pope expresses optimism

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Pope John Paul II ended his three-day visit to Turkey on Friday optimistic about results of his reunification talks with Patriarch Demetrius I of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

The pope began the last of his three days in Turkey at a full Orthodox service — becoming the first pope to do so since the Great Schism of 1054 split the churches. He attended the St. Andrew's feast day service at St. George Orthodox church, then visited the ancient city of Ephesus before returning to Rome Friday evening.

The pontiff, clad in a white robe and a red mantle topped with a gold-embroidered red sash, did not join Demetrius in celebrating the Divine Lit-

This visit to the primary throne of the Orthodox church.... My participation in this liturgy...show with clarity the will of the entire Roman Catholic church to go forward in the march toward unity of all...," the pope said to the patriarch and the several hundred persons packed in the tiny cathe-

Replying, Demetrius explained, "We too search and desire peace and goodness.... It is toward this aim that our two churches come out of their isolation and alienation — not to say hostility - in order to take the road of this meeting and reconciliation.'

To the applause of the congregation, the two church leaders embraced before the altar in a gesture of conciliation

In a joint declaration the two said they had made progress in their talks and an informed Vatican source said the pope felt "quite close" to agreement with the patriarch on some major concepts. "The Holy Father also believes that sister churches could differ in their liturgy, in their usages, in their expressions, in the manifestation of their faith, and even in their theology and still be one," the Carlilé said he would have no trouble filling the vacancies from the 60 applications he has on file.

Tight security was in evidence, as at previous appearances at religious ceremonies since the pope's arrival in Ankara Wednesday Extremist Moslems claimed responsibility for explosions at nine Istanbul bank branches overnight, protesting the pope's visit.

John Paul was flown to the Aegean coastal city of Izmir, then went by helicopter to Ephesus, the ancient Greek city where the Virgin Mary was said to have lived before her death and where the Second Ecumenical Council in 431 proclaimed her the mother of God.

Taking advantage of relaxed security around the mountaintop shrine dedicated to the Virgin Mary, the pope moved about freely, exchanging pleasantries with those who went to

About 2,000 pilgrims including Americans and their families from Turkish NATO installations, greeted the Polish-born pope.

As he toured the shrine, a single shot rang out in the distance, creating anxiety among the crowd. Associated Press reporter Ismail Kovaci reported that a soldier on guard in the area had accidentally fired his rifle and that no one was hit. Very few people apparently heard the shot.

The pope returned to Izmir, then flew to Rome aboard his special Alitalia jetliner.

The split between the Roman Catholic Church and the Eastern Orthodox Churches followed a long-seething conflict over the authority of the pope. Pope Leo IX and Patriarch Michael Cerularius of Constantinople, the name for Istanbul until 1930, each excommunicated the other.

A Todd executive told the Senate Natural Resources Committee on Thursday his firm has 11,000 barrels of low-level nuclear waste stored in the open on Pelican Island.

Clements said he wants to know how much of the waste stored by Todd is interstate and how much comes only from within Texas.

Treasurer having trouble getting rid of office

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Tarrant County Treasurer Howard Green has worked for months to get his $25,000-a-year job abolished, but now a state district judge has ordered him to stay in office.

Judge Arthur Tipps of Wichita Falls has nullified a Nov. 6 vote that scrapped the office, saying voters may not have known what they were doing when they pulled the lever. Green was elected to the post last year on the promise that he would eliminate the office and have its duties transferred to the county auditor's office.

He maintains the office is waste of taxpayer money, gouging residents for $75,000 a year to sign checks and

"make trips to the bank." Green then pushed a bill through the Texas Legislature allowing voters to decide the question. And on Nov. 6, they did just that, voting 3-1 to dissolve the office.

Tarrant County Commissioners then agreed to find jobs for the department's three employees.

But Thursday, Tipps ruled the election unconstitutional and the wording of the Nov. 6 proposition faulty.

"I don't care about a bunch of witnesses coming up and saying what they understood," Tipps said. "The wording of the proposition itself is proof. Nowhere does it use the word abolish' and I am not sure the voters knew they were abolishing a posi-

The Chaparrals came out pumping iron in the second half to quickly break open a very close game (41-37 Chaps at the half). MC exploded for 62 second half points and a 103-90 victory over Ranger. And that was the end of the giant killing image.

Midland College is now 9-0 on the year, and they seem to get serious when someone tries to put up a road block on that record. The more games a team wins, the harder it is for them to lose that streak. Evidently, the Chaps are serious about the unbeaten

MC came out gunning in the second half, however, as Robert Tate, who hit for a game high 27 points, and Kenneth "Big Time" Young, who ended with 22 points, combined for a 15-point scoring binge to open the second half as the Chaps sprinted to a 83-59, 24-point advantage, before the fans realized that it wasn't a close

In other action Friday, Odessa College recovered from its loss to Ranger with an 88-79 victory over St. Philip's College of San Antonio. Odessa led by more than 20 points at one point, but the Tigers came back to make a game of it before it was over.

OC's Kelly Kitchens led the Wranglers with 21 markers while Bill Veolkers, Dennis Johnson and Craig Ehlo all had 12-point nights. John Saroie added 11. The Tigers were led by Herbert Jackson with 23 points and Mike Jones connected for 15. Sam Wauls and George Ward had 13 and 10 points respectively.

In the late game, Howard College met Laredo Junior College. Action begins again today at 4 p.m. with Laredo going against OC. Ranger and Howard meet at 6 p.m. and the tournament concludes at 8 p.m. when the Chaps face St. Philip's.

Tate and Young had a lot of help from their Chap teammates. Three more finished in double figures as Virgil Slay came off the bench for a 12-point effort while Tim Shelby and Kevin Willingham each connected for

Even though Ranger fell on its face defensively and offensively as the Chaps ran crazy to open the second half, the Rangers finished strong. Mack Redish, who had 22 points, scored 16 of them in the last half, 12 coming in the last 10 minutes of action. But even that left the Rangers 13 points behind when it was over.

Rodney Parker punched in 16 points while Mike Hatch hit for 13, and that was the extent of the scoring punch for Ranger.

Fans should be asking: Are Cowboys using mirrors? If it were any other team in football, Disillusioning as it may be, after losses in loyal Dallas Cowboys f ans, love 'em, win or draw, wouldn't be as king, What's wrong with the Cowboys? In stead, they'd probably be marveling, How are they doing it?

Consider for a mom ent and try to think of another team that co'uld survive the retirements, defections, in juries and dismissals the Cowboys have suffered over the last year and still remain a viable contender for their division title.

Jethro Pugh retired last year; Ed "Too Tall" Jones quit, some say to become a boxer, others, less kind, say to join the circus; Charley Wasters' only claim to fame this year is not as: an all pro, but as a bare-chested poster boy as he watches the season from the sicielines; Manster Randy White's absence has almost coincided with the Cowboys' tails pin; indestructible center John Fitzgeral d has proven destructible; and peerless I inebacker Thomas Henderson was fired before the Washington game. Henderson's loss obviously dates well beyond that game, since to earn his pink slip, he has had to have been a handicap defensively for a considerable period of time...like all season. Forget about the injuries that have robbed the Cowboys of an able-bodied fullback for most of the season. As a result, for want of an effective supplementary running game, what may be Roger Staubach's finest hour as a passer may be in the process of going down the drain.

four of the last five games, the Cowboys are be merely mortal, after all.

It has been a year which might prompt most teams to sigh resignedly and start looking to next year. Another loss, and the Cowboys, too, may have to concede to reality, but for now, amazingly enough, they are still in the chase and after the effort against Houston on Thanksgiving Day, their prospects have to look pretty good to make the playoffs as a wild card team, at worst.

And while Dallas fans have focused their attention on the frailities and failures of the Cowboys, if you'll look around, you'll find it's going on all over the league.

Slumps, highs and lows, seem to go with the 16-game (20 counting exhibitions) schedule. The Philadelphia Eagles were about to fall out of the NFC East division, losing three straight before the

It seems like Tampa Bay has been ne away from chinching the NF Central since early October ... and they still are. The Los Angeles Rams looked like a team ready for the scrap heap for several weeks after the 30-6 loss to Dallas, but they are coming back

With the problems Miami has been having, the New England Patriots should have locked up the AFC East weeks ago, but now they appear to have let it slip away.

Even mighty Pittsburgh, America's Super Team, not only has lost four times, one less than the Cowboys, but have been embarrassed a few times.

Compounding the inevitable injuries and longer schedule is also the stronger schedule. The strong teams are matched against the strong teams in the interest of the fan, and the lesser teams face lesser teams, in attempt to prolong the competitiveness of

Rebels rally to nip Coronado

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

It was a real barn burner!

Coach Paul Stueckler's hustling Midland Lee Rebels came from a 13-point deficit in the final period to knock off the Lubbock Coronado Mustangs, 72-71 Friday night in a non-district basketball thriller in the Lee Gymnasium. Trailing 61-48 going into the final eight minutes, the Rebels suddenly found the range and outscored the Hub City team, 24-10, to take the narrow victory

David Keys, a 5-foot-10 senior guard, hit a free throw with only seven seconds left in the game to give Lee the victory. It was the only time Lee led during the entire game.

AFTER KEYS' free toss, Coronado brought in the ball and called time out with three ticks left on the clock, but a steal by Tim Walker turned the Mustangs away empty-handed to seal Lee's fourth victory in six outings. It was Coronado's third loss, all to District 5-4A teams compared to two victories. The Mustangs had lost to Abilene and Abilene Cooper while

JIM MURRAY

Cosell throw back to blunt days of Husing, McNamee

By JIM MURRAY

Los Angeles Times Syndicate Graham McNamee was the first. And one of the best. He didn't know much about sports. But he was a demon on meteorology. He could do 40 minutes on the changing of a leaf color. It was said he went through an entire Rose Bowl game without once alluding to the action on the field. The snow-capped mountains, the Rose Queen, the floats and the movie stars. were enough for Graham. Ring Lardner once said he attended a World Series double-header: the game he was watching - and the game Graham McNamee was describing.

But Graham had the golden throat (which he kept well lubricated with bathtub gin in the course of the after-noon). His idea of a game was . You wouldn't have picked a less

Brown-Columbia. Scores bored him. A man who had listened to an entire MeNamee broadcast of a game one day was asked what the final score was. "Dunno," he said. "It was snowing and Graham never got around to

Ted Husing was, quite simply, the best. At football, that is. Baseball, he found tiresome. He was the first to invent three-syllable words for blocking and tackling, popularizing things like "secondary," or even "tertiary," for defense. He once described Harvard quarterback Barry Wood's play as "putrid" and got banned from their games forever. Harvard would march in the streets for Sacco and Vanzetii's right of free speech, but a guy who criticized its quarterback got probable candidate to join the triumvirate of tonsils than the man who made it up there with Husing and McNamee, not even if you canvassed the streets of Sofia for him.

BROADCASTERS ARE supposed to have accents that are universal, regionally undetectable. They are supposed to fall easily on the ears. Their content is supposed to be as bland as their sound.

Howard Cosell has the abrasive, arrogant accent of the educated Brooklyn street kid. He didn't talk to you, he lectured you. Network vice presidents held their ears. Sound men gritted their teeth. It's the sound of the man who is supposed to think everything west of Broadway is Bridgeport. The other 200 million Americans are bound to hate it.

They say they do. But they don't. The ratings give the lie to the myth. It's the "in" thing to knock Howard Cosell, to say you turn off the sound when he's telecasting and listen to radio. But try it in the next bar you go in, and they may break your arm. They hoot at the screen, but they listen. Cosell's misguided feuds with the press make him the underdog in almost any print discussion, but his is the most recognizable voice in the nation today, inspiring even sidewalk impressionists to imitate it.

Rule No. 2 in broadcasting is you're not supposed to knock the product. But Howard pronounces whole teams "putrid." Confronted with dogs of games, he labels them canine out loud. The whole country gasped on the very second Monday Night Football game when Howard interviewed John Unitas, a legend in his own time, and purred "John, it would appear to this observer your arm is gone and you can't deliver the ball with your old verve. Why do you persist in keeping on playing?" The public had never heard this kind of daring, head-in-thelion's-mouth type of electronic sports journalism before. And, when Unitas didn't hit him on the spot, but kind of agreed with him, a legend was born.

MONDAY NIGHT Football is kind of an improbable olio anyway. Don Meredith kind of represents the farm vote, the bloc from rural America. Frank Gifford manages to sound like a guy breaking up a bar argument or standing there broadcasting in the middle of an air raid and occasionally getting chunks of rubble falling on his head. Howard sits there serenely like the patriarch of the tribe, knowing it ain't anything till he says it is, that his comment is final and his word infalliscending, but he actually flatters his audience by using words that seem more suitable to the Yale Law Review than the Green Bay Packers. He never rushes his words. He pontificates, and his words come down as if meant to be graven on stone, or linked with the Sermon On the Mount. He was a lawyer by trade and is miscast for any show that doesn't give him plenty of landing room for his flights of fancy. In the days when he and Muhammad Ali were doing their version of the Odd Couple, he perfected a kind of probing, let's cut-out-the-bull-Muhammad type of questioning that sometimes made it appear as if Ali were standing in front of a hanging judge. But actually they were the best of friends. Cosell defended Ali as vigorously in private as he seemed to demand straight answers from him in public. "He was, quite simply, deprived of his constitutional, equal protection under the law, and every second-year law student knew it,' intones Cosell. Next case.

He is generous of his time. He logs more hours flying to charity luncheons, roasts, or hokey award banquets than any celebrity this side of Bob Hope. He is convivial. He likes a good cigar, a good vodka, and, above all, a good audience. He can read off from memory the numbers of the entire 1925 Notre Dame varsity - or recite Milton from memory. He likes his life. He appears gruff in public but he will usually sign napkins and, if a question piques his interest, you will get vintage Cosell a lot cheaper than ABC gets it. A hand tremor is builtin and not occasioned by nervousness. Whatever else Cosell is, he's not nervous. The toupee is part of the mys-

IF THERE is a cloud on the horizon of Howard Cosell - and there is - it's institutional, not personal. He's not in trouble, football is. The ratings are down all over, partly because Cosell missed three games this year, doing the World Series. Here to do Monday Night Football at the L.A. Coliseum, Cosell conceded ratings were dropping, "Other networks are embol dened to throw movies at pro football. It's no secret the game has a violence problem, the draft is structured so as to encourage mediocrity, and the game is too available, there'll be another one along any minute.'

Some believe that if Monday Night Football was a success, Thursday Night Football and Sunday Night Football would be more so. That just isn't the case, Cosell says, the public can get cloved.

No ivory-tower journalist, Cosell is as familiar a sight in a locker room as the bat rack. He is particularly resentful of the rap that he dislikes baseball. "I object to its being an anomaly at law, because of its unique exemption from the Constitution or the Bill of Rights, and I resent carpetbagging ownerships. But after the World Series, NBC sent word to its baseball crew that it wanted baseball presented to the public 'just the way Howard Cosell presented it in the World Series.' There were 70 different times during tht World Series that the public met the players and the managers personally on camera and what came out of that for viewers was human identification. Everyone said it was going to be a dud, a so-what World Series, but what came out of it was 86 million viewers, more than had ever watched before. Dave Parker got a movie role as a result of those interviews. Willie Stargell became an institution. If that's disliking Baseball, it's a peculiar form of it.'

It may be as unfashionable as admitting you like a spinach or Jerry Brown, but Howard Cosell would seem to have acceded to his rightful place in front of the same golden microphone once shared by McNamee and Husing, as dominant voices of their times.

Team dissension finished Herzog

Internal bickering last season led to the fall of the Kansas City Royals from first in the AL West, GM Joe Burke said in a copyright interview in the Kansas City Times. "I felt that from the day we left spring trining until we got to August that we had too many people that didn't care whether we won or not.

Burke and several players said the blame did not lie solely with Whitey Herzog, but he came in for his share of criticism. "It got to a point late in the season with the veteran pitchers moaning about the younger pitchers. It was the Pateks (Fred), the Pattins (Marty), even the Busbys (Steve), who were mad at Whitey every day because they weren't pitching or weren't playing. For the first time in six years, we just had people sitting around. It seemed like, to me, they were almost pulling against each other. There just wasn't a happy feeling." Burke said Herzog's demand two years ago that he trade first baseman John Mayberry created bad feelings toward Herzog on the part of some black players ...

The Orioles' volunteer "Designated Hitters." who took on the job of selling season tickets for next year's home games, already have exceeded the amount sold last winter. The 42 businessmen and civic leaders organized two months ago, it has accounted for most of the 2,750 Oriole season ticket purchases to date.

That works out to more than 300,000 seats, a 69.4 increase over last year.

Ousted football Coach Frank Kush will face charges of hitting players, lying and serious personal misconduct at a faculty hearing Dec. 13 at Arizona State, but said "I have no comment whatsoever," to a story in the Phoenix Gazette outling the charges...

Jimmy Johnson, who led downtrodden Oklahoma State to a 7-4 record, was named Big Eight Coach of the Year, after most experts predicted OSU would win two, maybe three games. Despite a heavy run of injuries, the team, held together by walkons, former walkons, freshmen and sophomores, came from behind in five of their seven victories.

Assistant football coach Tom Duffy resigned from the Penn after a series of complaints about his dealings with players, according to Coach Harry Gamble. One player who quit accused Duffy of being insensitive to the academic pressures at Penn..

Dan Pasarini, Houston Oilers quarterback, spent Thursday night in a hospital with a stomach virus. Coach Bum Phillips said he expects Pastorini to play Sunday against the Browns at Cleveland.

Heinz Gunthardt, Switzerland's No. 1 player, defeated sixth-seeded Buster Mottram, Britain, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 and gained the quarterfinals of the $175,000 South African Open Tennis Championships Friday and will meet Jose Luis Clerc, a 6-0 7-5 winner over Mike Cahill. Victor Pecci defeated Rory Chappel 6-0, 6-3 and Rolf Gerhing upset Peter Feigl 6-0, 6-4...

loodbury Conn lost to Barbara Potter, 18, Ann Hobbs 6-7, 6-3, 6-4 Friday but the U.S. took a 2-1 lead over Britain in the Under-21 Maureen Connolly Trophy Cup Tournament as Wendy White beat Debbie Devins 6-3, 6-2 and Alycia Moulton downed Kate Brasher 6-2, 7-5...

Sugar Ray stops Benitez in 15th

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Sugar Ray Leonard knocked down Wilfred Benitez and stopped him in the closing seconds of the fight Friday night to win the World Boxing Council welterweight championship in the richest non-heavyweight bout ever held.

The two men went toe-to-toe for most of the final three minutes. Then with the clock winding down -Leonard crashed home a left hook to the jaw that dropped Benitez in a corner. He got up quickly but was obviously hurt.

Referee Carlos Padilla asked Benitez if he was all right and the Puerto Rican nodded yes. Padilla then waved Leonard to the attack, and after three or four shots to the head, the fight was

NEW YORK (AP) -Amid conflicting reports of Willie Classen's physical condition prior to his fatal fight against Wilfred Scypion last Friday night, a federal probe may be joining the two New York State organizations already investigating the death of the 29-year-old middleweight boxer.

He died Wednesday, without regaining consciousness, of cardiac arrest caused by

Dallas Cheerleaders hottest property in show business

The Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS — Those 36 classy ladies who in their spare time, are the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, might be the hottest property in or out of show biz today. They perform at state fairs and add chills and thrills to ribbon cuttings, but you'll never see them popping out of an enormous cake at a stag party.

And you'll never see anything that looks much like one of these fast-stepping ladies decorating the rear windows of a pickup truck. It doesn't fit the image of class, beauty and vitality, for which these glamorous three dozen rehearse five days

True, they've been asked to do just about everything in the way of personal appearances, for which they get paid - handsomely. The result is that these ladies, chosen from among roughly 2,000 applicants each year, are a big

It wasn't planned that way. They started out with one objective to entertain at Dallas Cowboys football games. But TV appearances, a movie and the success of the Dallas Cowboys football team had a lot to to with it. Of course, the fact that all the Cheerleaders are knockouts with lithe bodies, striking some sort of zenith when they're dancing and moving around the field, has helped.

HOW MUCH in demand are they? Well, in 1978 they were incorporated, just like any big, successful business. When two of them filled an engagement this year, just by showing up at a Toronto mall, a crowd of 50,000 went wild. Toronto newspapers called it a "riot." In Dallas recently, soft drink manufacturers figured it was a genuine coup when a Cowboys Cheerleader attended a ribbon cutting at the Convention Center. The price didn't matter. (To send just one Cheerleader was an unavoidable exception to the rules; the second Cheerleader became suddenly ill and there was no time for a replace-

The ladies, in costume, stayed for about half an hour. The very least they could be paid was $500 each. And when the Cheerleaders take their show on the road - a real production involving at feast 12 of these lovelies — the fee is so large that the lady who guides, counsels, shepherds and controls them won't even say it out loud.

'It's a lot," is the only hint that Suzanne Mitchell gives. Miss Mitchell, once married but not currently, even declined to comment on rumors that placed the price at $2,000 per day per Cheerleader. At the time, she was cradling a manila folder crammed full of paper

'These are the appearance contracts the Cowboys Cheerleaders have filled so far this year," she said. "To most people, it's incredible."

But not to Miss Mitchell, a slender blonde with enough pizzaz to glamorize her small office on the eleventh floor of a North Central Expressway building that accommodates the Dallas Cowboys menage.

"I am not surprised at all. Their success hinges on the taste of the people, who have always liked pretty ladies and sports," Miss Mittchell said. "Combine the two and you have something very special."

THE CHEERLEADERS are simply following the success of the Dallas Cowboys, in the opinion

Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders more than just sideline pastries (Staff photos).

Mitchell. "Let's face it. The team itself has unusual charisma, and their effect on the general public compares with the New York Yankees baseball team of years ago," she said. "Why, even at their games away from home, thousands of fans in the stadium are for the Cowboys

Miss Mitchell, now vice president and director of the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders Inc., doesn't need it but has all kinds of evidence about the team's popularity.

"After the last Super Bowl, which you may remember the Cowboys didn't win, they got more than 50,000 pieces of mail, addressed simply to the team," she said.

The popularity of the Cheerleaders got another nationwide boost from their TV movie last year. It ranked ahead of "Roots," drawing the top viewing audience the evening it was shown.

Now, they're making a sequel, much of it shot in Dallas, and when scenes were recently filmed at Scottish Rite. Hospital for Children, it was as if the hospital had an emergency a minute, the children were so excited.

The Cheerleaders even took time to visit with many of the youngsters, and in one scene many Scottish Rite children are in the crowd.

FUNCTIONING in the background for the Cheerleaders is a New York firm, the William Morris Agency, recognized as the foremost talent agency in the country It represents the 36 ladies, yet nothing is accepted for them without the okay of the Cowboys management in general and Miss Mitchell in particular.

"We had to have an understanding with the agency people," Miss Mitchell said. "Football and everything that goes with it may be considered a part of show business, all right, but still everybody has to know that we - the Cheerleaders and myself - are not of the show business

Nobody tries to get into the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders group for the money. If they do, they make a mistake, because the only outright pay they get from football is $15 per game. And there are three stipulations that Miss Mitchell makes certain every cheerleader understands.

"First, our ladies must be either fully employed elsewhere, or a full-time student, or be a wife and-or mother," she explained. "And if our ladies can yell, that's a bonus. 'The first qualification is that they can dance professionally. They are entertainers - it's part of the glamor and excitement of athletics today. Right along with that, of course, go personality and en-

It isn't unusual for the Cheerleaders to take long trips to meet terms of a contract. This year, for example, 12 flew to Portland, Ore., to give their 30-minute stage show at the Multnomah County Fair. Miss Mitchell went along, as she always does.

For an outing like this, each girl gets a flat, negotiated fee, with transportation, hotel and food also paid. Of that total, cumulative fee, the Dallas Cowboys get a cut of not quite one-third, and the Cheerleaders get one-half of the remain-der. The other half, Miss Mitchell explained, goes into a pool and is split between all 36 Cheerleaders at the end of the year.

'And regardless of what contracts we have." Miss Mitchell said, "we never send less than two girls - and we never send two rookies, so to speak'. We're like the team, I guess. We have our rookies, but we also have those capable of guidance and leadership. Veterans naturally help us maintain our high level."

ADHERING to the "big business' aspect, the Cowboys Cheerleaders have ready and waiting for all callers a typed sheet of information about their availability for personal appearances. It has a list of 20 stipulations about a contract, including notice of from two to three weeks.

The girls never perform longer than two hours without a break, and demand at least two uniformed security guards from the time they arrive until they leave in Toronto, they ended up with 14, and the city called out more.

Also, they require an elevated area not lower than two feet for the girls to perform on, and an hour and a half must be allotted for lunch and rest. A client might know that he wants the Cowboys Cheerleaders for a certain event, and he might be willing to accept all the stipulations, but he has no choice in selecting which Cheerleaders appear.

It is no accident or coincidence that Suzanne Mitchell has the role she has today. The Cowboys have never been known for picking somebody out of left field and giving them heavy responsibility. She was born in Dallas and graduated from Hillcrest High School, where she was named the best member of the drill team in 1961. She has never been a cheerleader.

Miss Mitchell got a journalism degree from Oklahoma University in 1966 after attending Lindenwood School for Girls at St. Charles, Mo., and the University of Texas at Austin.

Final football weekend packs plenty of bowl pressure

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer In a situation that would make any professional league envious, it has taken until the final pressure-packed weekend of the regular college football season to settle the playoff pic-

College football's "playoffs" are the bowl games and four pairings still are not decided. However, three of Saturday's games will take care of all that - top-rated Alabama vs. No.14 Auburn in Birmingham, No.6 Texas at Texas A&M and No.10 Houston at Another top-notch match takes place at State College, Pa., where No.19 Penn State plays host to No.11 Pittsburgh. The rest of a slim schedule finds Army vs. Navy in Philadelphia, Vanderbilt at Tennessee and Boston College at Holy Cross, plus two night games - Florida at Miami, Fla.

and Arizona State at Hawaii. The Texas-Texas A&M clash will decide three bowl games. If Texas wins, the Longhorns go to the Sugar Bowl, Arkansas to the Cotton against Nebraska and Houston to the Sun against Washington.

If Texas loses — and provided Houston wins - it's Houston in the Cotton Bowl and Arkansas probably in the Sugar, with Texas in the Sun. Alabama must beat or tie Auburn to go to the Sugar Bowl. An Auburn victory would back Georgia into the Sugar and send Bama to the Fiesta against Pitt.

ALABAMA knows it must keep winning - and probably keep winning big - to have a shot at a second consecutive national championship since No.2

Southern California meets No.3 Ohio -State in the Rose Bowl.

"The team, I think, feels as I do," says quarterback Steadman Shealy. 'We've got to beat Auburn. If we don't, the Rose Bowl won't matter." Alabama-Auburn won't be televised because Auburn is on probation and ineligible for (1) TV, (2) a bowl game and (3) the Southeastern Conference championship. Pitt-Penn State will be the first half of a national TV doubleheader (ABC-TV, 11:30 a.m.), followed by the traditional Army-Navy

"I've often said that I'd rather beat Pittsburgh than go to a bowl game or anything else," says Joe Paterno, whose Liberty Bowl-bound Nittany Lions could do both. "This game will decide the Eastern championship, so the Pittsburgh game is a big one for us. It's Pitt and Penn State, and that's the big game, as far as we're con-

AUBURN'S Tigers find themselves in the unique position of having the Sugar Bowl people rooting hard against them although they did the folks in New Orleans a large favor by beating Georgia two weeks ago and preventing the Bulldogs from gaining a Sugar Bowl berth.

Although a two-touchdown underdog, Auburn is banking on the running tandem of James Brooks and Joe Cribbs, the first thousand-yard teammates in SEC history, to overcome a talent-deep Alabama team which actually leads the league in rushing

There is no doubt in my mind that Auburn is the best team we have played this year," says Bear Bryant.

Wittenberg slight pick in 4th Stagg appearance

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP) - Unbeaten Wittenberg, a two-time champion appearing in the finals for the fourth time, tangles with an old playoff rival, the Ithaca Blue Bombers, in the NCAA Division III championship football game Saturday.

The Tigers are a slight favorite in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl, a regionally televised (ABC) event that will begin at 11:50 a.m.

Ithaca, 9-2, is no stranger to championship competition either, having lost to Central Iowa 10-8 in the 1974 Stagg Bowl and to Wittenberg 28-0 in the 1975 finals. Wittenberg captured the first Division III playoff in 1973 with a 41-0 decision over Juniata and dropped a 24-10 decision to Baldwin-Wallace last year after eliminating Ithaca from the playoffs in an earlier round 6-3. "We're worried about Ithaca because we had a tough time with them last year," said Coach Dave Maurer of the Tigers. "They have a more diversified attack this year, plus their usual outstanding defense.

"Wittenberg does everything well," said Coach Jim Butterfield of the Bombers. "They don't have any superstars, but they play good team football and are solid offensively and defensively.

Alabama A&M faces big hurdle

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) - Alabama A&M will be faced with a big hurdle Saturday when the unheralded southern school takes on powerful Youngstown State in an NCAA Division II semifinal football playoff

Youngstown State, led by tailback Jim "Robby" Robson, is 10-1 this season, has won 20 of its last 23 games and has made it into the Division II playoffs for the second straight year.

The Penguins, who were eliminated in a 26-22 heartbreaker by Eastern Illinois a year ago, this time have the advantage of playing at home and against a team that has not made it to the playoffs before. Alabama A&M, under first-year-old

Coach Ray Green, has posted an 8-2 record. The Bulldogs pounded betterknown Morgan State 27-7 last Saturday to reach the second round.

Meanwhile, Youngstown State, under veteran mentor Bill Narduzzi, opened the playoffs with a 50-7 romp over South Dakota State.

The winner of this matchup will take on the winner of Saturday's Delaware-Mississippi College game on Dec. 8 in Albuquerque, N.M., for the national championship.

Saginaw, Presbyterian clash today

CLINTON, S.C. (AP) — Saginaw Valley State football Coach Frank Waters, who brings his Cardinals to South Carolina to meet Presbyterian in an NAIA playoff game Saturday, admits he doesn't know much about the Blue Hose.

He says he and Presbyterian's Cally Gault, however, "swapped a few films, then we swapped lies over the telephone.

Neither could lie about success.

Presbyterian, 10-1, is the top-ranked NAIA team while the 8-1-1 Cardinals are No. 8. But both teams are in their first playoff.

The winner of Saturday afternoon's game advances to the NAIA championship semifinals next week.

Presbyterian, 10-1, is champion of the South Atlantic Conference, while the 8-1-1 Cardinals of Saginaw, Mich., won the Great Lakes Conference

Martin praises Kuhn, rips old Yankee boss

HONOLULU (AP) - Fiery Billy Martin was extravagant in his praise of baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Friday, but had aome unkind words for his former boss, New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

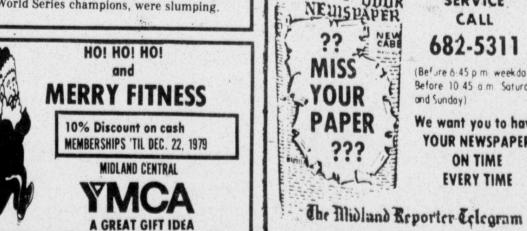

Reacting to Kuhn's decision not to fine or suspend him in the aftermath of an altercation with marshmallow salesman Joseph Cooper of Lincolnshire, Ill., in a Bloomington, Minn., hotel last month, Martin said:

"I am very happy about the outcome, and I think Mr. Kuhn has shown that he is an honest man, he is a reasonable man, he understands what happens when people get in certain areas when other people just can't handle themselves, and I appreciate and respect him very much on his decision.

Following the incident, the commissioner launched an investigation and could have fined or suspended Martin. He decided not to do either. but warned him that any repetition of trouble would bring "stern disciplinary action."

In response to the warning, Martin said, "The commissioner has a right to do and think whatever he wants to. I think also as an American and as a person, I have the right also not to be intimidated and bothered by people who can't handle whatever they're doing.

While Kuhn was investigating the case, however, Steinbrenner wasted little time in forming his own conclusion and fired the feisty manager, whom he had brought back in mid-season to replace Bob Lemon when the Yankees, defending World Series champions, were slumping.

World's Shiite Moslems join. in bloody festival of Ashura

By ALY MAHMOUD

NABATIYEH, Lebanon (AP) Screaming ambulances rushed off bleeding, unconscious zealots Friday as Lebanon's Shiite Moslem admirers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini spilled their own blood in a delirious festival showing the strength of their religious faith.

The sunrise celebrations began quietly, with young men and children donning white "kafans," death shrouds, and beating their heads and chests to lament the slaying of the Shiite saint Imam Hossein 14 centuries ago.

The festival gradually built to a crescendo and, by midday, the whirling crowds brandished scalpel-sharp swords and hit their heads amid shrieks of joy and pain.

Bleeding profusely, many fell senseless to the ground and were taken to hospitals by six ambulances escorting the 25,000-strong gathering in the main square of this southern Lebanese town.

Nabatiyeh, often the target of artilery shelling by Israeli-backed Christian militias, was secure and festive through the day. The militiamen of Lebanese army renegade Maj. Saad Haddad had told the townspeople there would be no shelling, out of deference to the Shiites' religious feelings.

"The Israelis and Haddad's men are being considerate, for a change,' said Majid Kamel, 33, a department store owner and devout Shiite. "Allah is my witness, the celebration will continue even if the sky rained

The Shiites are a minority in Islam, which is dominated by the Sunni sect. Shiism is strongest in Iran, but Lebanon has an estimated 1.2 million

The swelling crowds, visibly moved and weeping, and undaunted by a heavy downpour, watched elderly clergymen enact the "martyrdom of Imam Hossein" on a crudely built stage in the square. The men in the crowd beat their heads and the women struck their faces.

Nabatiyeh dignitaries contributed kafans, tea and sugar for the celebration. Even swords were available for those who did not have their own means of self-bloodletting.

Friday was the 10th day of Moharram, the first month of the Moslem lunar calendar, and the day called Ashura by Shiites, the day of Hossein's death, an occasion for masoch-istic lamentation. On Oct. 10, 680, Hossein and scores of his supporters were massacred on the southern Iraqi plain of Karbala by their political arch-enemies, the Omayyads.

Hossein was lured by the Iraqis to head for Karbala and claim the caliphate from Yazid, the second monarch of the Omayyad dynasty. But the Iraqis rejected the man to whom they had promised fealty, precipitating his tragic death.

Hossein was the grandson of the Prophet Mohammed and the son of Ali, the last Orthodox caliph, or successor, who also was assassinated by a group of Khawarij, or seceders,

Like Iran's 32 million Shiites, Lebanon's Shiites contend they are in constant revolt in hopes of restoring the glory of Islam. They believe that a saviour, known as Al-Mahdi Al-Muntazar ("The awaited divinely guided one") will one day come forth, evict the Jews from Jerusalem, conquer the world and together with Jesus Christ institute a short millenium of prosperity and justice before the end

Like the Sunnites, the Shiites regard the Koran as a divine writ imparted by the angel of Allah, Gabriel,

Demonstrating Iranians face crowd of angry spectators

WASHINGTON (AP) - About 350 persons, most of them Iranians, faced angry spectators Friday as they marched through downtown Washington in support of the Iranian regime of Ayathollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"Go home, get out!" shouted some passersby. Others chanted "deport, deport, deport," as the march wound under heavy police protection along two miles of streets crowded with workers on their lunch hour.

There were no serious incidents as hundred police on motorcycles and horseback and on foot kept opposing sides apart. Two of the demonstrators were arrested near the State Department, however, when they broke through police lines after a heckler spat on the protesters, police

The two men, charged with disorderly conduct, were identified as Steve Pritchett, 29, and Jimmie McEachen, 29, both of Washington. They were among about a dozen blacks in the demonstration.

As the protesters marched four abreast they chanted "Long Live Immam Khomeini" in support of the Iranian leader. Many carried placards and banners and about a dozen held pictures of Khomeini.

The four-hour march wound from Dupont Circle in downtown Washington about a mile to a park near the State Department and then back to where it began. The protesters dispersed under police protection. The last 50 had to be escorted through a line of policemen to waiting cars as angry bystanders shouted curses at

"Go home, get out, Khomeini is a pig," shouted a 29-year-old carpenter who would identify himself only as Don. "Go back to Iran," others shouted as motorists honked their horns to show their displeasure with the Irani-Bahram Hanidian, a Georgetown rug merchant said to have close ties with the Iranian Embassy, said the demonstrations were to show support to Khomeini and protest "tyranny, inhumanity, injustice.

"Nobody is demonstrating against the United States people," said Nahidian, a former Iranian student who has been in the United States for 20 years and is now a prosperous businessman. He said the target is the U.S. government and the deposed

The demonstration, which came on the second day of a two-day Moslem holday, the feast of Ashura, was portrayed as a symbol of unity among all Moslems, but most of the marchers were believed to be Iranians.

Shortly after the procession left Dupont Circle, four men and a woman, carrying American flags jumped a short distance ahead of the procession and preceded the march all along the

"We all just felt it's unfair what happened over there in Iran and we just wanted to make our protest known," said the woman, Patty Brinkman 24

Carter joins friends, family of slain Marine at funeral

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) - The first American serviceman to die in hostile action since Jimmy Carter became president was buried Friday, a grimfaced Carter among the mourners.

The president joined some 600 others at the funeral of Steven J. Crowley in a standing round of applause for the Marine, who would have been 21 years old next March.

The moment was unusual and emotional. It came after the mourners heard a letter in which a young man told Crowley's mother that when he read of the Marine's death: "I actually started to cry All I could think of was, 'My God, he's just a kid.' '

Crowley, from Port Jefferson, N.Y., was shot to death last week when a mob stormed the U.S. embassy at Islamabad, Pakistan. The incident, coming in the most crisis-filled month in Carter's presidency, put an end to one of his fondest boasts - that not one drop of blood had been spilled by a U.S. serviceman or woman in battle during his administration.

Crowley's widowed mother sat next to the president during the funeral mass, said in the chapel at Ft. Myer, Va. Her seven surviving children were there. So were the secretary of state, the secretary of defense, the commandant of the Marine Corps, two senators, and 13 congressmen.

"Let's for a moment imagine the scene when Cpl. Steven J. Crowley, United States Marine Corps, reported to the pearl gates," said a Navy chaplain, Lt. Lawrence J. Finegan, in the "Can we imagine him in the best Marine Corps tradition saying, Cpl. Steven J. Crowley reporting for duty,

"Can we imagine him further being asked by the Lord to continue his guard duties there... Let us hope and pray today that that's what Steve is doing now. That he is guarding well and faithfully those pearly gates.

Addressing Mrs. Crowley, the chap-lain said, "I hope you realize that...when you get there, you've got it made."

The mourners included 500 State Deprtment employees and former members of the U.S. Embassy staff in Pakistan. There were also 100 members of the Marine Security Guard Battalion from Quantico, Va., where Crowley trained just a few months

Mrs. Georgene Crowley, the Marine's mother, was escorted to the service by the president, who several times put his arm around her. She, in turn, kissed him on the cheek at one point. The president did not go to Arlington National Cemetery, where Crowley was buried with full military

The president was represented there by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who presented Mrs. Crowley with a citation lauding Crowley for providing "defensive cover until he was street down and fatally wound-

heredity to Ali's sons Hassan and Hossein

The pleasure-seeking Hassan abdicated in favor of Yazid. Hossein refused to offer fealty to Yazid and tried to wrest the caliphate.

Many Shiites in Iran, Lebanon, Oman, Pakistan, eastern Turkey and elsewhere in the world insist that Ali and Hossein were greater than Mohammed, that while Mohammed's message was limited to transmitting the verses of the Koran, its inner spiritual significance was personified by Ali and Hossein after him.

The majority Sunnites reject this as blasphemy, arguing that Mohammed was the chosen messenger of Allah and that Ali was only a successor who held temporal authority.

While the Sunnites maintain that Koranic teachings can be based on analogy - patterning present-day practices after Mohammed's attitude in his lifetime — the Shiites contend the holy book is open to creative interpretation.

After Hossein's death, Sunnite Moslems opted to side with the monarchy of Yazid, precipitating the great schism of Islam

Car theft 'tutor' continues testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) - A prison inmate who once tutored car thieves boasted to Congress Friday that he could break within about two hours virtually any ignition security system assembled by U.S. auto-

Wilfred Charles Bunnell Jr., appearing at the fourth day of Senate hearings on auto theft rackets, testified that his job was to find "the quickest and easiest ways of defeating the new security systems that Detroit kept devising.'

Car thieves would take cars off dealers' lots on the ruse that they were taking them for "test drives" and instead would take them to Bunnell to allow him to study new locking devices, he told the Senate Governmental Operations Committee.

"It actually took me several days to determine a quick way of beating the lock," Bunnell said. He added that if GM had made the entire locking system out of the steel, he probably could not have figured out a way

Habit' costs woman nine years

DALLAS (AP) - Jacqueline Taylor said she started writing hot checks in 1971, when her husband went to work in Vietnam and she didn't have the money to support her six children.

She got caught up in the habit, she said, and during the next eight years, court records show, she wrote at least 150 checks totalling more than $5,000 on banks in four cities.

County Criminal Court Judge Tom Price said he tried for two years to work out rehabilitation programs for Mrs. Taylor, but she just wouldn't cooperate. So Thursday, he handed her the stiffest possible sentence: nine years in the Dallas County

And the judge said he said he will never approve work release for the 41-year-old Carrollton woman. 'I did what I did because I want her in jail," he

'Good Lord,' said O'Byrne Cox, assistant director of detentions at Dallas County jail. "I've never heard of that (long a sentence in a county jail.) The last thing I remember like that was 20 years ago. And, as I recall, I think that case was just two, 2-year

"It's definitely not usual." If the sentences are not overturned on appeal, Mrs. Taylor could be out on good behavior in eight

"You get sucked into it and before you know it, it's over your head," the sobbing woman told a county jury. "And you think that some time, something will happen to clear it all up. But it just doesn't happen

Mrs. Taylor first was arrested in Dallas County on hot check charges in May of 1977. She already had been placed on probation for writing bad checks in Collin County, north of Dallas.

After 10 months with 18 new hot checks and not a cent of retribution, misdemeanor prosecutors filed a motion asking Price to revoke the probation.

This week, Mrs. Taylor pleaded guilty to the nine charges, each with a maximum one year sentence, and asked a jury to assess punishment. They did, and gave her the maximum for each charge.

Prosecutors then filed a routine motion asking Price to set the sentences one after the other instead of concurrently.

And Price, saying Mrs. Taylor has cost merchants, banks and Dallas County thousands of dollars, granted the motion.

Bunnell eventually testified against his former associates after he was arrested on the stolen-car charge. He said he'd gotten out of the racket and had shunned his former associates, but that he purchased a car from one of them. It turned out to be stolen car

The witness said he never stole cars himself but made large profits by instructing thieves on how to steal them

At one time, Bunnell said, he returned to a legitimate occupation for $2.97 an hour but later re-entered the illegal field, where his weekly takehome pay was about $7,000.

He said the stolen cars were taken to "chop shops," where they would be broken into parts to be sold to body shops that used them to repair da-

The thieves, given an order for a certain kind of car in the morning, would have it in the "chop shop" by that afternoon, Bunnell said.

The demand for replacement body parts was virtually unlimited," he said, explaining:

We provided a service for legitimate body shops that the automobile manufacturers simply did not provide. Automobile manufacturers frequently take weeks, perhaps months, to deliver replacement parts to repair shops. We could supply those parts in one day at half the cost.

The Senate committee is considering legislation sponsored by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., that would require identification numbers on a host of automobile parts besides engines and transmissions, for which serial numbers already are required.

Tuckwell says a horn player must almost be two persons - one cold and calculating, the other wildly romantic. In concert, one sees a stiff, unemotional Tuckwell, betraying no trace of effort; one hears the romantic in the glorious sounds pouring from his gleaming forn.

In his hotel room, with a cold bottle of beer in hand and an empty on the table, the two Tuckwells alternate. He often stops to consider his answers, but he can be a lively raconteur, whether discussing music or discoursing authoritatively on Austra-

After 36 years of performing, Tuckwell often says that his schedule is too busy, that he longs to spend more time in London with his wife and three children. Next year, he vows, he will play only 100 concerts. Well, only 120, for sure.

Although his hair is silver, and a bit of a paunch peeks over his belt, Tuckwell says the sheer physical challenge of playing the horn has diminished with

'I've thought of a lot of things I could do where I could have a more stable existence," he says, "but then I think, 'That's hanging the horn on the hook.' And I can't do that.

So he carries on his marriage by telephone, and continues the endless practicing of tiny phrases, searching for that intonation that will astonish an audience.

When you hear someone play something that makes you gasp," he says, "it's because you don't know what they did.

"That's the secret - to mystify people."

Look What Carmela's

Coleman and Carmela White are proud to announce the opening of their new restaurant in the Village Shopping Center on Saturday, Dec. 1. Carmela's Pizza and Italian Food Restaurant, formerly at 510 East Illinois, is now much bigger and can accompdate all their old triends, as well as their many new ones. Coleman, who likes to be called Pop, makes the best pizza in town, as well as the most delicious sub sandwiches. Pop is a friendly man who especially likes teen-agers, and the feeling seems to be mutual. Since moving here from the Northeast over a year ago, their business has skyrocketed. Texans seem to like Carmela's delicious food, friendliness, and casual atmosphere. To celebrate their new location, all next week, they are giving a free coke with lunch and a free glass of wine with dinner, which is served after 5:00. They are also giving free balloons and lolipops to the children. Come on out to their new location and help them celebrate!

An apology to a nun

AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - This column owes Sister Theresa Kane a fervent apology and must set the record straight forthwith.

Sister Theresa Kane has not, repeat not, announced any intention of refusing to attend Mass or assist at services retaining sexist sounding language

That statement, reported here recently and erroniously attributed to Sister Theresa Kane, was made by Sister Mary O'Keefe after the bishops of the United States at their annual meeting turned down a proposal to remove such wordings as "for all men" and "brothers in Christ" from the prayers of the faithful. Sister Theresa Kane, president of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, has made no press statements and given no press conferences since her dramatic appeal to Pope John Paul II during his visit to America in October to consider giving women full participation in the mission of the church, especially ordination to the priesthood. She is head of the Sisters of Mercy.

Sister Mary O'Keefe, whose announced intention to boycott services and prayers using the generic term "men" was attributed in error to Sister Theresa Kane, is President of the Natinal Assembly of Religious Women, a Chicago-based organization that works closely with Sister Kane's group but is com-limited to superiors of orders and congregations as is the Leadership Conference. She is a Dominican.

So all the angry mail and all the favorable mail on the wording of prayers issue should go to Sister O'Keefe in Chicago, rather than Sister Theresa Kane in the Washington area. So far there has been little, but Sister Kane's friends and sister nuns did protest to this corner that she had made no pronouncement on the prayer question and never proclaimed any intention of not attending Mass or assisting at services where the traditional liturgy was in use. This column's sole intention in entering this heated religious dispute, was to defend the English language from attack by those who would tamper with accepted usage in the name of sexual equality, but getting the two nuns mixed up did not do anything to cool the situation.

Friends of Sister Theresa Kane are trying to arrange a meeting for her with the pope for further discussion of the role of women in the Roman Catholic Church. I hope the statement attributed in error to Sister Kane won't detract from the efforts to bring about that meeting. It was a stupid error, but an honest one, which usually is the worst kind. Malice at least keeps you on your toes If Sister Miriam Louise, our eighth grade nun at St. Patrick's in Long Island City, were sitting on the editorial desk she would keep us after school for a week and make us write 500 times every day: "I must re-check all sources, especially the usually reliable ones. Our first resolution for the New Year and the new decade is to keep out of all religious arguments, even if the beloved English language is at the core of the

IN RECENT weeks, the newspaper's letters column has been dominated by a controversy over the county budget. The Proposition 13-style battle began when the county commissioners forgot to announce the time and place of their vote to approve the budget - and a tax increase needed to balance it. Citing procedural requirements under a state law, Garratt's sole state House delegate, DeCorsey E. Bolden, had the higher rate overturned Aug. 2 by the local judge. Since then, the county whom sides with Bolden - have alternately confronted and delayed cutting the $10 million budget by $707,000, an awesome task for a government that needed state permission last year to change its meeting day from Monday to Miss Spencer pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to killing the school principal and custodian at Cleveland Elementary School in La Mesa last Jan. 29. Eight schoolchildren and a police officer were wounded in the attack.

After the diagnostic study she faces what prosecutors say will be a 25-year to life sentence and will be eligible for parole in 16 years.

Her court-appointed attorney, Michael McGlinn, asked that after she is sentenced Miss Spencer not be sent to a women's prison.

"We received word after the offense was committed that she would be endangered if placed in the local women's facility in San Diego, the holding facility," said McGlinn. "So I assume those same feelings would exist if she was right now housed with older women.".

McGlinn expressed hope the legislature would approve a law per mitting under-age girls, tried as adults, to be handled in a youth authority facility until they are mature, as is the case with under age

MEET THE MINISTER

Rev. Mark Mueller to take post Sunday

Rev. Mark A. Mueller

By ROGER SOUTHALL Staff Writer

The congregation of Midland's Grace Lutheran Church recently called the Rev. Mark Allen Mueller as the church's first associate minister.

Mueller will be officially installed in his new position at a service scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road.

In his new post, Mueller is working with the Rev. Donald V. Hafemann, who has served as pastor of Grace Lutheran Church since the 1960s. Grace Church is a unit of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod, one of the largest branches of Lutheranism

At Sunday's special installation * service, the Rev. Carroll Kohl, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Big Spring, will be the liturgist. The Rev. Dean Kelm, area vice president of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod and pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church of Odessa, will be the AP Religion Writer In the first publicly known crackdown on de bate over admission of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood, a Jesuit priest and leading advocate of it has been silenced and ordered transferred.

The move seemed to reflect a stricter stand on the matter by Pope John Paul II. Ironically, the action against the Rev. William J. Callahan of Washington, D.C., was implemented by a Jesuit superior who had himself in 1977 signed a protest to a Vatican declaration against women's ordina-

But the orders for disciplining Callahan came from higher up, from the worldwide director general of the Jesuit order, the Rev. Pedro Arrupe of Rome, following some firm admonitions by the

Gift giving the real purpose of Christmas, says program

Gift giving - its origin and real purpose - is the subject of this year's "Christmas at First Methodist" program to begin at 6 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of First United Method-

"There Is a Gift In Everyone" is the Christ-centered theme in whichthe concept that there is a gift in us from God, for us and for others will be

A short drama, directed by Mitchell Williams, the minister-in-training at First UMC, will feature Bishop Nicholas, the model for our present-day Santa Claus, and what he had in mind when he started the tradition of gift

Saint Nicholas was an early church bishop who lived in Asía Minor, where he died as a martyr in about A.D.

He was a wealthy man who gave all his possessions to the sick, the suffering and the destitute. He taught that the true spirit of giving is to do it anonymously and without thought of

The values taught in the legends of Nicholas and Santa Claus are quite different. Saint Nicholas taught that we are truly blessed by giving without thought of receiving. The tradition surrounding the American version of Santa Claus focuses on the receiving

Participants in the drama will be Tommie McSorley, Glenn Walton, Jack Pallick, D.A. Harrall, Jim Artley, Margaret Wade, Beth Schwartz, Melody McFadden and Bill

Music, provided by the youth of the church, will be a big part of this year's event.

The 2- through 5-year-olds will sing two songs to start the program, followed by the first through sixth

A processional with the Youth Bell Choir, a living nativity and the Chrismon Tree, where children will place. their gifts of warm clothing for the Navajo Indian children, also will be featured in the program.

After the program, all will adjourn to the Fellowship Hall for refresh-

A special addition this year will be a display of "alternative" gift items.

St. Mark's begins seasonal events

Special events Sunday morning and evening at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., will inaugurate the Christmas season for the congregation.

During the 11 a.m. Sunday worship service, the first candle will be lit to mark the beginning of Advent, the season leading up to Christmas.

A covered dish meal is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the church fellowship hall. This will be followed by a short program, after which the congregation will move to the sanctuary for a Chrismon service and carol singing.

The special events will be open to the public.

Bishop Williams to visit Midland

The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton of Lubbock, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, will be a Midland visitor Sunday.

Henton will be making his annual visitation to St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave.

During the parish's 8 a.m. Sunday service, Henton will confirm persons being presented for confirmation from both St. Nicholas' and Holy Trinity parishes here, and he also will preach at the service.

During the 10:30 a.m. service, the bishop will institute the Rev. Dr. Joseph H. Schley Jr., as rector of St. Nicholas' Church. Schley came to the parish Nov. 1 from an Episcopal parish in Florida. He is a native Texan and a former resident of Amarillo and

A reception in the parish hall in honor of the confirmands will follow the early service, and another reception honoring Schley and his family will be held following the later service. The services and receptions will be open to all interested persons.

Special sermons to be presented

A series of sermons leading up to Christmas will be presented this month at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland, 3400 N. A St.

The Rev. John Stewart MacPhee, who recently moved to Midland, will be preaching the following sermons:

Begin''; Dec. 9, "Let the Festive Days Have Depth"; and Dec. 16, "Let the Festive Days Have Meaning.'

Sunday gatherings begin at 10 a.m. with a coffee and fellowship period.

Formai services begin at 10:15, with a discussion and "talk back" time following the sermon each Sunday.

The public is invited to attend the worship events.

NATO crucial step depends on December meeting

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - The defense and foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meet here in mid-December to decide on a plan that is seen as one of the most crucial steps in the alliance's 30-year history.

The ministers must decide whether to base in Western Europe 572 highly accurate nuclear-tipped missiles aimed at the Soviet Union. At the same time, however, the 15-nation Western alliance will act on opening arms control talks with the Warsaw Pact, the Communist bloc's equivalent to NATO.

Western opponents of the new missiles find this paradoxical, if not slightly hypocritical.

But military analysts at the NATO headquarters here say that the notion "arm to disarm" makes perfect

"There is no inconsistency," said one NATO spokesman. "We have to re-establish military equality in order to negotiate (arms control and reduction) and you've got to have something to negotiate with.'

AT A RECENT meeting in the Netherlands, 11 NATO defense ministers gave their blessing to producing the medium-range missiles, clearing the way towards a final alliance-wide approval of the plans in December.

Only the Netherlands objected, by asking for a delay on stationing the missiles. The Dutch government believes that postponing a final decision will promote arms control talks.

U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown told the ministers that separating the production and the basing of the missiles was "completely unrealistic." He said the U.S. Congress could not be expected to foot a hefty multi-billion dollar bill without assurances that the missiles would be

The missile decisions come at a critical time for NATO - a time when Western experts believe that new Soviet weapons have opened a crack in the allied defense.

WITHIN THE LAST two years the Soviet supersonic Backfire bomber has been introduced, which is faster than any predecessor and has a third greater range. The new Soviet SS-20 surface-to-surface missile is mobile, which makes it difficult to destroy, and its pinpoint accuracy means it would annihilate any European military installation with its three separate warheads NATO officials say the number of Soviet bombers could grow to 100 and SS20 missiles to 200 by the mid-1980s if no lid on production is negotiated.

Secretary Brown said improvements in the Russian air defense and the vulnerability of British airfields that host planes with nuclear weapons capable of reaching the Soviet Union Soviet targets well beyond Moscow present "a tempting basis on which the Soviets might try to attack."

Despite American assurances that U.S. and NATO interests are inseparable, Europeans fear that the Russians could attempt a local nuclear war without chancing a full-scale American attack, which would invite Russian retaliation on the United

Therefore, NATO has suggested closing the European "gap" with the new 108 Pershing II and 464 Tomahawk cruise missiles. They would be scattered throughout West Germany, Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy

THE CURRENT generation of NATO land-based missiles can only reach eastern Poland, but a new West German-based Pershing II could reach Soviet soil. The pilotless, ground hugging missile could strike from British basas.

Both systems are even more accurate than the new Soviet missiles and may be launched from trucks, which make them extremely mobile and hard to knock out.

The Soviet Union has indicated its concern for the missiles program by sending its diplomats to West European capitals and through commentary in the official Soviet press.

'Europe will be drawn into a new round of the arms race," said the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia. "The fate of detente will be threa-

But NATO officials say they are convinced that the alliance must bargain from a position of strength.

ONE MAJOR CONCERN for Europeans is that SALT II - the U.S.-Soviet agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons - does not include the new missiles under discussion for the European "theater." There is a clause in the treaty, however, that calls for starting SALT III talks, which would cover the new weapons.

The Dutch are particularly concerned about inviting a new spiral in the arms race and have pressed for SALT II ratification to insure that talks on the new missiles would

But NATO officials reject any direct linkage, particularly since the treaty has run into trouble in the U.S. Senate. "If you don't have SALT II, that doesn't stop you from proposing SALT III," a NATO spokesman said.

But NATO officials are confident that a double-edged decision in December - to go ahead with the new generation of missiles while offering to start arms control talks immediately - is an offer the Warsaw Pact will find difficult to refuse.

Iranian minister an unknown 20 years ago

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - No one knew much about Sadegh Ghotbzadeh when he returned from 20 years abroad on the same airplane as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, but the new foreign minister has emerged as one of the most outspoken hard-liners of Khomeini's Islamic revolution.

His membership in the secret Revotutionary Council, which actually rules Iran, was not known or suspected until the names of its 14 members were revealed earlier this month.

The council membership was disclosed after Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and his Cabinet resigned after the Nov.4 seizure of the U.S. Embassy and hostages in Tehran.

Ghotbzadeh became director of Iran's radio and television after his return home in February with Khomeini. The media he controls have been unyielding in Iran's demand for the return of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and its violent denunciation of the United States.

Ghotbzadeh, 45, is a suave, cosmopolitan man fluent in English and French who presents a sharp surface contrast with religious figures on the council, but his restructuring of the most influential media in the country to spread the message of Islam reflects their views

In some of his first acts, he purged Iranian radio and television of Western-style artists and banned Western music, substituting religious instruction and revolutionary talks.

He denounced his critics as "bankrupt, leftist kids" and "frustrated camera bugs." He said in an interview, "We have the ideology to distinguish right from wrong and we would not hesitate to tell people, here and abroad, what is wrong with them," From the day he took control of the radio and television media, he has pratically lived in the television building directing operations. He has given frequent interviews to foreign correspondents. explaining the ideology of Khomeini's revolution. Ghotbzadeh has sometimes appeared at the res taurant of the fashionable Intercontinental Hotel to dine with correspondents. He is handsome, dresses well, and is reputed to be popular with women. The new foreign minister says he was a dissident student for 20 years. He says he spent five years studying at Georgetown University and claims he was expelled twice from the United States.

He has lived in Paris, where he joined Khomeini's entourage when the exiled Iranian leader moved there from Iraq in October 1978 to direct the final phase of the revolution that toppled the shah.

Japan noted for its low crime rate

By PETER CLARKE Copley News Service

TOKYO - Accosted by two Japanese youths in Tokyo's central park the other night, a visiting New York businessman was just about to sprint to safety when one of the young men asked: "Sir, could we practice our English with you?"

The incident serves as an apt-example of one of Japan's greatest assets: the country's safe streets and incredibly low rate of crime.

Women in Tokyo — the world's largest industrial-ized city— do not think twice about traveling alone at night and many residents never lock their doors. And it is no wonder that Japanese can walk their streets and parks at night in safety. Much to the envy of policemen elsewhere the rate of serious crime in this country of 115 million has declined over the last decade. In 1978, for instance, the number of murders in Tokyo - a city with a population of 12 million - dropped to 205 from 209 cases the year before. Crimes of violence, including robbery, assault and other bodily injuries, declined from 13,088 in 1977 to 11,243 cases last year. Incredible as it may seem, the police recorded only 680 mugging cases in the whole

While New York has been plagued by a spate of robberies in recent months, there were only 68 cases of bank robberies in Japan last year. And, believe it or not, bank robbers only carried firearms in six

Cases of rape are also on the decline. In contrast, the rate of crime in New York - with a smaller population - seems horrific. For example, last year the New York police reported 1,518 murders, 27,234 cases of assault and 3,882 incidents of

But in Japan the police authority's single biggest headache is the high rate of bicycle thefts. Last year there were 250,824 bicycle and 71,762 motorcycle thefts. Together, these cases accounted for 24 percent of all criminal offenses.

There are many reasons why the Japanese can boast of their enviable crime rate. But it is not without significance that the police reported that the number of crimes involving firearms declined in 1978 to 233 cases - the lowest record in five years.

Those figures are a reflection of a rigid ban on the sale and possession of most firearms in Japan.

As a result, many policemen claim they have never drawn their weapons in 20 years of service except on the target range.

In addition, the use of drugs and drug trafficking are harshly suppressed in Japan.
