Hurricane Takes Slap At Florida

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane David, one of the century's deadliest Atlantic storms, lost some of its punch as it sidestepped the coast of Florida today on a course that could take it to the Carolinas.

Damage was surprisingly light as the hurricane, packing 90 mph winds, skirted

the beaches from Miami to Palm Beach on a path toward the north. At least five deaths in Florida were blamed on the storm.

"We think it's going to parallel the coast and continue north and be a threat somewhere in the Carolinas sometime in the next 48 hours," said Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center here.

Before closing in on the southeast coast of Florida where thousands had fled their homes, the storm had killed at least 640 persons in a 5-day march through the Caribbean islands of Dominica, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, where 150,000 were reported homeless, and the Bahamas.

Hurricane-force winds slammed the wealthy playground of Palm Beach today after the hurricane's eye skipped past Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

The storm's eye and fiercest winds, however, stayed just offshore, drifting northward past populous Fort Lauderdale and the mansions of Palm Beach.

At 9 a.m. CDT the storm was just off Palm Beach at latitude 26.5 and longitude 79.6. The highest winds were clocked at 90 mph.

Hurricane warnings were in effect from Fort Lauderdale to Daytona Beach.

"When it gets by Palm Beach, the coast drops back," Frank said. "If it follows a more northerly course, it'll get farther away. It could go north or north-northwest. It's going to be moving up the coastline today. ... I don't have the expertise to say how closely."

During the night the storm had appeared headed for the densely populated Miami-Fort Lauderdale area. Then it shifted course to take a more northerly track.

The small shift in direction would not have been significant far out at sea, Frank said. "But when you put eight million people in its path, it becomes very significant," he added.

At least five hurricane-related deaths were reported in Florida. Two men suffered heart attacks as they strained to put up storm protection on their homes and another was electrocuted when his car hit a power pole. A driver was killed when his car overturned on a wet road and a woman was killed by a car as she hurried toward an evacuation center.

But property damage appeared moderate.

Arthur St. Amand, civil defense director in Broward County which includes Fort Lauderdale, called the storm "a flop."

Meanwhile, at mid-morning Hurricane Frederic was at latitude 17.7 north and longitude 82.0 west, near the island of Barbuda and about 250 miles east of San Juan. Its winds were clocked at 75 mph.

Frederic was considered a threat today to the northern Leeward Islands and the Virgin Islands. Forecasters said it could follow David's route all the way to the U.S. coast, some 1,100 miles away.

Some 2.5 million persons live in the area of South Florida where David had been expected to hit. As many as 80 percent had never been through a hurricane, Frank said.

In South Florida, oceanside residents deserted plush condominiums, crowding into emergency shelters or heading WAITING IT OUT — Gregory Rexach of Miami Beach gets a brief nap Sunday night as he waits out Hurricane David in the Miami High School building.

Many persons from low-lying areas flocked to this and other emergency centers as the hurricane approached the coast. The Miami area escaped the full fury of the storm, however, as David turned northward during the night and rolled up the coast toward the Carolinas. (AP Laserphoto)

Death Toll Rises In Texas

A-J News Services

The Labor Day holiday highway death toll in Texas surpassed Department of Public Safety estimates today, and state troopers blame the higher count partly on speeding and drinking.

The DPS had predicted 37 persons would die on the highways from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, and at mid-morning today 39 persons already had been killed.

"Early analysis of the accidents so far indicates excessive speed and drinking have been contributing factors," DPS Chief Col. Wilson E. Speir declared.

"The DPS is now soliciting the cooperation of the motoring public to hold speeds down," Speir said. "And if you drink, let a friend drive."

Among the deaths today were two pedestrians killed by a hit-and-run driver near Navasota and two others killed in a one-car crash near Leona.

The DPS identified the victims in the hit-and-run accident as Billy Joe Crenshaw, 44, of Anderson and Faye Young Zanewych, 54, of Pasadena. Troopers reported the pair were walking along state highway 90 five miles east of Navasota at about 12:03 a.m. today, when they were struck by a vehicle that fled the scene.

Phyllis Kay Frusha, 23, of Humble, Texas, and her passenger, Billy Ray Roach, age and address unknown, were killed when Frusha's car ran off a road a mile south of Leona at 3 a.m. today.

The official holiday statistics also included the death of a sheriff's deputy who was run over by a DPS trooper.

Armstrong County deputy Larry King, 28, of Claude was killed at a road-block Saturday night.

The DPS said two Ohio teen-agers being sought for various crimes ran the roadblock, and that when a DPS trooper began hot pursuit his car struck and killed King.

After a lengthy chase the teen-agers were taken into custody.

The deaths reported also included: Adolfo Pena, 18, of Port Lavaca, was killed when his motorcycle ran off a county road in Victoria County late Saturday night.

A two-vehicle head-on collision on U.S. 259 near Lone Star Saturday night killed Randall Darnell Fletcher, 19, of Omaha, Texas.

Alphus E. Deramus, 46, of Corpus Christi, was killed when he was struck by a car in Corpus Christi early Sunday.

Timothy Allen Trull, 35, of Waco died in a motorcycle accident early Sunday in Waco.

Todd Micael Walstrom, 20, of Kingsville died when his car rammed a railroad underpass in Corpus Christi early Sunday.

Woodrow Keith Ratliff, 19, of San Antonio, died early Sunday when his car hit a tree near Bastrop.

Thomas McKinley Garrett, 22, of Grapevine, died when his motorcycle ran off the road Saturday in Coppell.

Alejandro Hernandez, of Lueders, was killed when the car he was a passenger in overturned Saturday about three miles east of Haskell on U.S. 380.

Troops, Jets Push Kurds Out Of City

MAHABAD, Iran (AP) — Kurdish rebels today began pulling out of Mahabad, their stronghold city, under heavy attack from two sides by Iranian army troops backed by tanks, jet fighter planes and helicopter gunships.

(The state radio in Tehran quoted the commander of the 64th army division as saying the city was under complete government control.)

From the roof of the Mahabad Hotel, Kurdish fighters could be seen starting to withdraw and head for the surrounding hillsides after a day's struggle to hold off government troops.

Dr. Saeed Habib Zadeh, chief doctor at the military hospital, said 35 wounded Kurds fled the hospital when "they realized government forces might be in Mahabad in a matter of a few hours."

Complete casualty figures, including government losses, were not immediately available.

Army helicopters rocketed and strafed near the former Mahabad army garrison, which rebel forces had used. At least six government helicopters were seen rocketing rebel positions on the hillsides.

An Iranian armored column of 14 tanks, armored personnel carriers and trucks rumbled into the northern outskirts of Mahabad before noon, under cover of fierce air force rocketing, while a second government force fought the insurgents south of the city, witnesses said.

Rebel troops first began withdrawing heavy guns into the hills surrounding Mahabad while hundreds of civilians carrying their belongings streamed out of the city.

Iran's oil chief warned in Tehran, meanwhile, the government might seek to revise contracts for selling crude oil to the United States if U.S. congressmen continue criticizing the U.S. sale of kerosene and heating oil to Iran.

Rebels said that the army column that moved in from the north had taken control of the suburb of Mudkan and a second government force moved towards the city about 12 miles to the south, according to rebel reports trickling into Mahabad.

Earlier, Kurdish soldiers said that 100 rebel reinforcements had been sent to the south and that they had signed their wills and said prayers for their deaths before leaving.

"We are willing and ready to defend Mahabad to the last man," said Karimi Hesami, a member of the central committee of the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party.

Flames from the former army garrison on the southern edge of the city could still be seen hours after Iranian air force Phantoms rocketed the Kurdish bastion early today.

Downpours Pelt Area, Panhandle

A-J News Services

Sleep was interrupted for many Lubbock residents early Monday as thunderstorms dumped almost an inch and a half of rain in one part of the city.

And forecasts indicated the Labor Day cloudiness would continue for South Plains residents, with a slight chance of thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight.

A pocket of cooler air moving eastward over New Mexico and Colorado Sunday afternoon set off turbulent weather in the Texas Panhandle, and by 10:45 p.m. thunderstorms were developing in the northern counties of the South Plains.

Residents in the south-central part of the city measured almost 1.4 inches of precipitation, while northwest and southeast sections of Lubbock averaged about .8 of an inch.

Dimmitt had the heaviest rainfall in the area with 1.45 inches. Plainview measured .80 of an inch while Abernathy registered .47.

Amarillo, where 1.5 inches fell, experienced some flooding in the drainage areas of the city and appeared to be in for more of the same as a result of heavy thunderstorms skirting the western and southwestern parts of the city this morning. Considerable water remains on the ground there after pre-

Train Crewmen Escape Injury In Derailment

By DEBBI STALTER

Santa Fe Railway officials this morning were still trying to determine the cause of a spectacular derailment near Shallowater before dawn today.

Thirty freight cars went off the track at 5:30 a.m. about four miles west of Shallowater, causing a massive pileup which blocked traffic in one lane of U.S.

84. None of the four crew members aboard was injured.

The 43-car train had left a connection in Slaton and was heading for Clovis, N.M., when the cars jumped the track. Conductor H.R. Merriman Sr. said 39 of the cars were empty, but of the loaded cars, one tank car contained an acid solution, causing the only danger of explosion from the wreckage.

Merriman said, however, the car was not leaking acid this morning so there was no threat of combustion.

Santa Fe public relations officer Susan Metcalf estimated that the cleanup process would be completed by 10 p.m. today. Crew members were expecting an empty car that had fallen onto the highway to be removed by noon today.

Until the car could be moved, crew members were directing traffic away from the wreckage and into the inner lane of the westbound roadway. Several carloads of people stopped alongside the track to view the catastrophe, but were ushered away by Santa Fe workers who were concerned the tons of metal would shift and cause injury to anyone standing near the pileup.

Rear brakeman D.M. Winn said that after the first car derailed, the process of stopping the remaining cars probably took only 30 seconds, "but it felt like about three hours."

The engine and several cars immediately behind it did not overturn, but traveled about a quarter-mile down the track from the point of the derailment.

The damaged cars were left lying on their sides, sticking upward or piled on top of other cars. The overturned cars buckled to both the north and south sides of the track.

A portion of the track in the middle of the wreckage was pushed together into a single line during the accident, See DERAILMENT Page 14

Only one car was carrying a combustible solution, but Santa Fe officials said the car was not leaking and posed no danger to the area. One lane of the adjacent highway was blocked. Handling Of Mid-Career Crises Can Aid Firms

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL
American companies are wasting the talents of thousands of executives and other key employees suffering from mid-career crisis by not recognizing the existence of this widespread corporate ailment and failing to adopt ways of dealing with it. That's the contention of a

New York expert in the fields of industrial relations and retirement planning, who has made a study of how corporate managements can come to grips with mid-career crises.

Henry M. Wallfesh, executive vice president of Retirement Advisors, Inc., a division of Cox Broadcasting Corp., says such a period in the life of an individual — particularly someone who has been on a "fast track" in the business world — can seriously affect his or her performance, productivity and creativity. But despite the impact such a situation can have on the employee's superiors, subordinates and peers, he points out, most companies have been reluctant to get involved in the early stages, partly out of fear that they might be invading the person's privacy.

However, Wallfesh adds, this can be a shortsighted view, since, during a mid-career crisis — which he defines as a period of deep soul-searching during which a person following a clearly defined life pattern loses direction and begins questioning goals, values and career potential — employees tend to blame their jobs and their companies for their personal and business problems. This can make previously valuable people disaffected, nonproductive and even disloyal.

Wallfesh cites the extreme case of a marketing manager who felt blocked from moving upward in a cosmetics company and then began to "leak" bits of proprietary information to competitors at industry meetings and trade shows. There are other cases, he told us, in which trusted employees turn to accepting "payola," cheating on expense accounts, white-collar crime and other practices designed to "get even" with the company they felt wasn't treating them right.

In most cases, though, the symptoms of mid-career crisis are less obvious: changes in self-perception, relationships with co-workers and attitudes toward both the job and work in general. There also can be periods of depression, wide swings of mood, restlessness and feelings of not being appreciated. In extreme cases, mid-career crises can even lead to alcoholism, sexual promiscuity and self-destructive behavior.

In addition to the humanitarian desire to help an individual overcome a difficult period, Wallfesh contends that there are compelling economic reasons to help reclaim employees suffering from this condition. He points out that many people experiencing the problem have moved up rapidly in their companies and are at a career stage during which they can be most productive. And frequently, he notes, those who work their way out of such a crisis can be even more valuable, since "they know themselves better, are more realistic about their strengths and weaknesses, are personally stronger, and are more sensitive to the problems others are facing."

Wallfesh, whose company provides retirement counseling to a number of major corporations and labor unions, rejects the idea that such problems as the mid-career crises are "trendy fads" that have developed out of the recent emphasis on self-fulfillment that has sprung up in many aspects of American life. "It's a real phenomenon," he says, "and business must begin to pay attention to it as an integral part of the human resources revolution and its emphasis on the quality of work."

Also, he adds, as career women move up in the business ranks, they will increasingly face the same situation.

He says that companies can take a number of steps to reduce or eliminate the problem. Among the techniques he recommends are the adoption of job-enrichment programs; more-flexible reassignment and relocation policies; meaningful appraisals of job performance, and the development of an early warning system to spot the symptoms of mid-career crisis as they emerge.

Wallfesh says companies can also help by establishing counseling programs; creating "rap" groups to talk out problems; encouraging experienced managers to serve as "mentors" to younger employees; training executives to deal with people in crisis, and even instituting second-career training programs for those who truly would be better off embarking on a new direction.

DR. LAMB Leaky Heart Valve

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please comment on leaky heart valves? My doctor tells me I have a dysfunction of my heart valve caused by scarlet fever in childhood. Would you explain damage to the mitral valve or the aortic valve and how these problems can be corrected? I'm a 55-year-old male.

DEAR READER — Your doctor thinks you've had rheumatic fever with the complication of rheumatic heart disease. Scarlet fever is a streptococcal infection, a strep throat associated with a rash. When these conditions are not treated adequately at the beginning a person may develop rheumatic fever.

In your childhood, it wasn't widely known that the real cause for rheumatic fever was streptococcal infections. And it wasn't known that administration of penicillin whenever a person had such an infection would prevent rheumatic fever.

Proper treatment has had a lot to do with the closing of many hospitals once devoted almost exclusively to treating rheumatic heart disease in children. It's one of the great successes in preventing heart disease.

The heart valves can actually be damaged or scarred by the inflammation. Normally the little valves in your heart close perfectly to prevent leakage of blood: They are really flap-like valves; if the flaps are damaged, they can't close properly and the leak follows.

The mitral valve is between the upper and lower chambers on the left side of your heart. If it leaks, every time the left ventricle (the heavy pumping chamber) contracts to eject blood out to your arteries, it also squirts blood backward into the upper chamber of the heart.

The aortic valve is situated at the outlet of the left ventricle at the entrance to the aorta, the large artery that carries blood to the entire body except the lungs. If it leaks, the blood will be squirted out into your arteries but some of it will leak back into the heart. This affects the blood pressure, and can overwork the left side of the heart.

If the damage is slight, the heart is able to compensate for this and a person might not notice any significant changes. It's interesting to note that people with damaged heart valves — both aortic and mitral — have held athletic records.

There's not much else that can be done for these valves except surgical correction if needed. You have to rely on studies of how your heart is working as a pump to determine whether you need surgery.

Of course, anyone who has heart-valve defects should be certain to take antibiotics any time he has a respiratory infection, an operation or even has his teeth cleaned. This helps to prevent infections to the heart valve that can cause more serious damage.

Researchers To Test TM As Asthma Treatment

DENVER (UPI) — Psychologists at the National Asthma Center are seeking asthmatics between 16 and 45 years old for a research project to determine whether transcendental meditation can be used effectively to treat the respiratory disease.

Dr. Barney Alexander, director of the research project, Saturday said he hopes to learn whether TM can lessen the severity or frequency of asthma attacks.

He said asthmatics participating in the project must be under the care of a physician and must be taking regularly prescribed medication for their illness.

Alexander said once enrolled in the project, the asthmatics will receive lung-function tests every two weeks and keep detailed daily "asthma diaries" to measure breathing comfort before and after formal TM training.

RABIES REPORTED

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Health Department said Saturday 777 animal rabies cases have been reported this year, the third largest number since the department began keeping rabies records in 1953. In 1953, the department said, 1,325 animal rabies cases were reported.

ALCOHOL FUEL ENERGY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, in keeping with its drive to find alternative sources of energy, is making it easier for people to use fuel derived from alcohol. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms says it has used its statutory authority to waive regulatory requirements and lengthy application forms for those wishing to establish an experimental still to make alcohol fuel for their own use only.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Not 'Labor's Day' Alone

WE CALL IT Labor Day, but generally our practice is the opposite. It is a day not to labor but to rest.

It is not the only paradox about this particular holiday. In most of the world, labor's day is May 1, a date of ideological significance and observed by emphasizing class differences.

Here, it is different both in date and emphasis, a day of mass solidarity at least in relaxation.

But even as we observe it in our way, time and technological progress keep taking us further and further from the original significance.

It was the unskilled and semiskilled laboring man, the blue-collar legions of an industrial society in the making, that the first Monday of each September initially was designated to honor.

MANY A SUNNY day of picnics, parades, ball games and just plain taking it easy has since been crossed off the calendars.

And the nation that was building an industrial society has completed that task and gone beyond. Few cities have parades anymore.

It is now deep into the age of computers and automation, not the least of the consequences being a steadily diminishing role for the nonspecialized worker.

Change, however, often has been at a painfully high price in human terms.

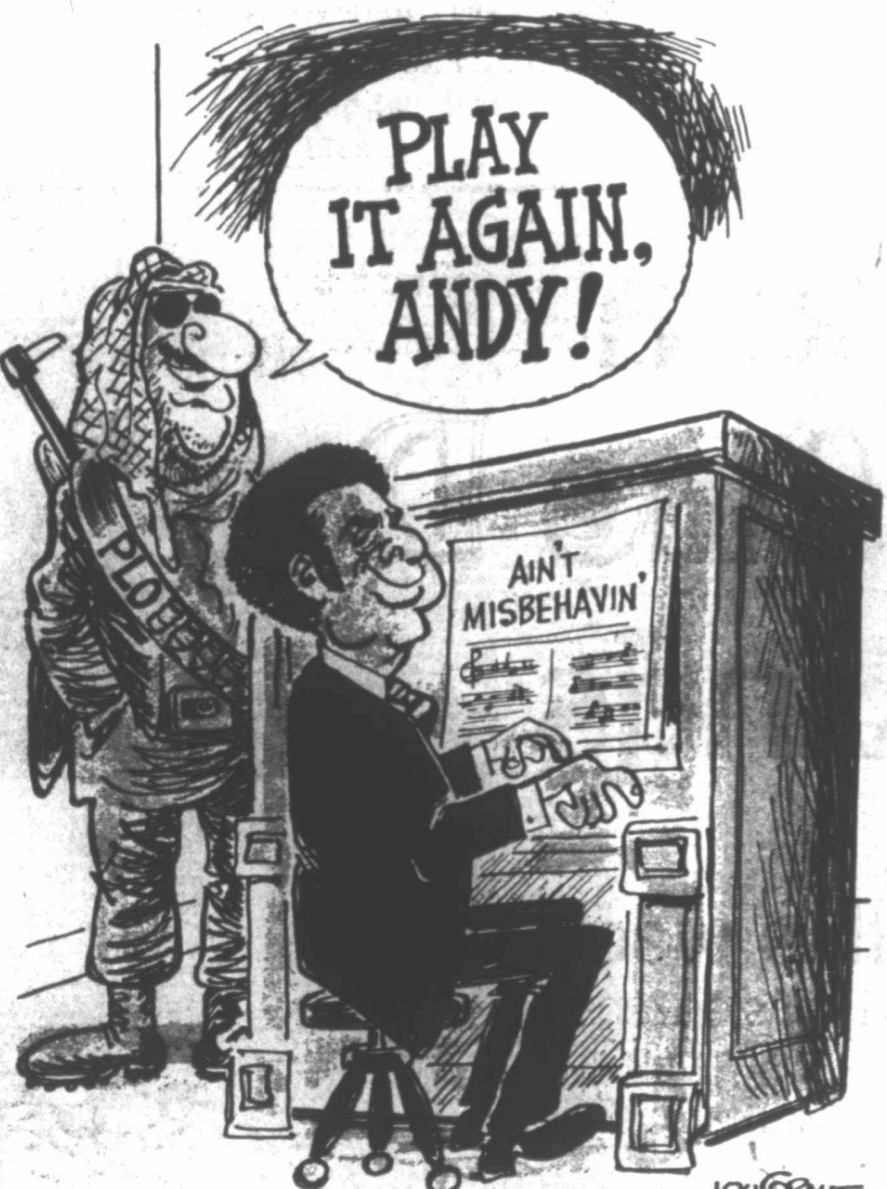

We have succeeded in building a society where much more than muscle is necessary to maintain momentum, for society itself and for the individual.

THE RESULT is the increasing demand in recent years for working people with some degree of technological competence, and declining significance to society of those without it.

On one hand, it is regrettable that the American scene has changed so much, that Labor Day has become a public holiday to be celebrated in private.

On the other hand, this change is part of the success of the labor movement. With recognition has come the loss of a certain militancy, a sense of separateness from "other" Americans.

No, this is no longer labor's day alone. It belongs to all Americans, for all of us are laborers in the sense that the work we do contributes to the country's strength.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Fleece As White As Snow Job

WASHINGTON—William Proxmire of Wisconsin, the Senate's greatest gadfly, stung his brother congressmen the other day.

He gave his Golden Fleece of the Month to the House and Senate for profligacy beyond the bounds of mere extravagance. Seldom has a Golden Fleece been more deserved.

Specifically, Proxmire honored Congress "for the eruption in its staff and spending over the past decade." He had his facts in line.

Ten years ago the two houses employed 10,700 persons; this year the payroll embraces 18,400. The cost has gone from $150 to $550 million a year, and the end is not in sight.

Ten years ago, it made good sense for the House and Senate to enlarge their staffs.

I used to write columns to that effect, pointing out the vast resources of the executive branch in working its will upon the legislative houses.

IN THOSE DAYS the White House sent up a budget so large and so complex that appropriations committees could only look upon the volume in dismay.

The administration had platoons of expert witnesses to support its requests for new weapons, space programs, scientific studies. The committees were little more than eunuchs to the presidential harem.

So the Congress came to life. As a part of the Young Turks' rebellion that overthrew the seniority system, the House and Senate began to enlarge their staffs.

They created a Congressional Office of the Budget. They created an Office of Technology Assessment. They enlarged libraries. They commissioned studies.

Like a fifth banana split, the movement proved to be too much of a good thing. The House was more modest than the Senate: Over the past 10 years the House enlarged its staff by only 60 percent.

The Senate almost exactly doubled its payroll, from 3,400 to almost 6,800. As Proxmire observed, a decade ago each of the 100 senators had 34 employees; now there are 68.

Many of them—perhaps most of them—are hard-working men and women who put in unbelievably long hours.

BUT IT IS commonplace these days to cover a committee hearing and to see the wall behind the bench solidly lined with staffers; they have nothing else to do and no place to go.

Their own cubicles are 6-by-6 feet and they would rather hang around a hearing room than stay back at the office and be cramped.

To resolve this problem—the problem of space to house the swollen staff—the Senate is now building a prodigious structure known unkindly as the Taj Mahal. The building started out seven years ago as a $48 million project.

It is now a $142.6 million project. It will be astounding if the building opens its doors two years hence for less than $50 million. The envious

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Why Bug Andy?

"ALLEGATIONS" that the U.S. government had Andy Young's New York apartment bugged and heard him setting up a clandestine meeting with an agent for the terrorist Palestine Liberation Organization were angrily denied by the Carter administration.

At the least, Young's personal dealings could have upset sensitive Mideast peace negotiations and thus endangered national security.

In view of his secret substantive talks with the terrorists and his denial that he had had them, until proof was presented, if Young wasn't under surveillance he obviously should have been!

Young was a close associate of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. when the famed civil rights leader had the power in the 1960s to start and stop strikes and civil demonstrations with a nod of his head.

IT WAS DURING that period that the FBI concerned over possible foreign-directed Communist attempts to influence King, watched him closely to see who met with him about what.

As U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Young more recently has praised the presence of Cuban Communist troops in Africa and expressed other views closely paralleling those of the Kremlin.

Persons of such great power and influence as King and Young, regardless of how sincere they are, cannot be considered to be immune from manipulation by advisors who have gained their trust.

Paul Scott:

White House Is Home To Texans

WASHINGTON—A new power bloc of Texans is emerging as an influential political force in President Carter's trouble-ridden White House.

Next to the President's long time group of advisors from Georgia, the new breed of Texans headed by Amb. Robert S. Strauss, his Middle East and international trade troubleshooter, now wields more power within the Carter administration than any other political group.

This growing political force within the White House was highlighted in the changes made by Hamilton Jordan, the President's new chief of staff.

In the White House staff shake-up, the two most important promotions went to proteges of the leaders of the emerging Texas bloc—Amb. Strauss and the Democratic National Chairman John White.

ALONZO MCDONALD, Strauss's top deputy in his old job as special trade representative, was shifted to the White House where he will become staff director.

With Jordan becoming more involved in the President's campaign for re-election, McDonald is taking over the day-to-day direction of the White House staff which Jordan had tightly controlled in the past.

The second big power switch involves Sarah Weddington, a former Texas legislator who came to the White House a year ago to replace the ousted Midge Costanza.

After serving as general counsel at the Agriculture Department, Weddington became the President's chief adviser on women's issues.

IN HER NEW role as the President's political liaison officer, the scope of Weddington's duties has been considerably widened.

These two moves give Strauss and White the political clout inside the White House which in the past has been completely reserved for the so-called Georgia Mafia.

Strauss, the senior leader of the Texans, has increased his influence within the Carter administration and with the President.

His ties in Congress, the powerful Jewish community, and the Democratic party have helped the President get a number of important pieces of legislation through this year, while lawmakers have balked at measures pushed by other Carter aides.

In the ongoing power struggle with the Carter administration over U.S. policy in the Middle East, Strauss is credited with getting President Carter to come out recently in opposition to the creation of a separate Palestinian state and pledge that the U.S. would not lift its conditions on dealing with the Palestinians Liberation Organization.

House will not be far behind.

Except for Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, who delights in being perverse, it is hard to find anyone who supports the Senate's magnificent obsession.

JOHN DANFORTH of Missouri sees the edifice as a symbol of what ails us: It demonstrates that "we in Washington, we in the Senate, we in the federal government, have absolutely no way of controlling anything that goes on in this country, including the cost of one lousy office building."

The conditions that have drawn Proxmire's wrath are familiar to every student of Professor Parkinson.

It is an inexorable law of bureaucratic life that the number of paper shufflers rises by the square of the volume of paper to be shuffled.

The reverse of that theorem is equally valid. Work to be done increases proportionately to the workers available to do it.

And so far as the Senate's new building is concerned, another rule applies—the rule of Mr. Blanding's Castle:

IT COSTS $2 million to build another Senate gym, but only $1 million is saved by knocking it out.

Last year the House vociferously rebelled at the Senate structure and ordered construction delayed while economies could be instituted. According to some critics, the delay cost $20 million.

Where it ends, nobody knows, but of this much we may be certain: Proxmire's Golden Fleece Award will not prick the thick skins of his colleagues. The congressional budget for fiscal 1980 will be larger still.

The most dedicated reformers, in fact, are the ones most vulnerable to having some of their efforts channeled wrongfully.

In my opinion, the U.S. government has not only the right but the duty, in the interests of national security, to know all it can about who is meeting with a King or a Young and seeking to influence them.

"ON AUG. 24 LAST," says a note from B.T. Rucker, "you asked 'What is there about the Lubbock environment which tolerates or encourages such rampant crime?'"

"Surely you're not that naive! I agree with many others in that you can thank the so-called Committee 70 which recommended that liquor be brought into our city..."

Anybody agree, disagree or have a better idea?

Headline: "Girl Diets To Get A Grip On Her Sylph."

Dr. L.R. Ansley, interested in recent comments about the possibility of Texas' secession from the U.S. in order to get a better price for our oil and foreign aid to boot, ran across an appropriate bumper sticker.

It is red, white and blue with a Lone Star and one word: "Secede."

My telephone just rang. It was J.B. Hance. He was singing the praises of DA John Montford for cracking down on saloons. Says he's hearing an increasing amount of talk that bars are a breeding ground for crime and that Lubbock should have a new election on the question of once again outlawing liquor by the drink...

TO MAKE ANY sense out of the Carter energy plan, you first have to understand its primary goal.

Bureaucrats and Congressional leaders want to encourage less consumption of gasoline and oil through high prices. That's the primary goal, but how to achieve it?

You achieve it by maintaining a permanent shortage of the stuff, of course. But when a product is in short supply and the price goes up, there's always some red-blooded American who's willing to make the free enterprise system of economics work.

He'll go out and invest his capital in hopes of making a profit. So, to keep him from doing that, the administration and Congress must make certain that he doesn't get to keep his profits.

They propose to impose a "windfall profits" tax on him. Otherwise, competition and adequate supplies would cause prices to come down.

Once you understand that the purpose of the proposed national energy policy is to create shortages rather than a sufficiency of petroleum, products, it begins to make sense.

Correction: It doesn't make sense but at least it makes a very puzzling picture come into focus.

Sylvia Porter:

It's Really Cool Feat To Beat Kitchen Heat

WASHINGTON—Q. Do you know what a convection oven is?

A. It's the most exciting of any item to be introduced into housewares departments since the food processor.

The product is slated to make a big splash in sales during the fall and Christmas seasons and marketers are scrambling to ready their variations on a scale not seen in years.

Q. What does the countertop convection oven do?

A. It circulates warm air to cook food 25 to 30 percent faster than regular ovens.

A built-in blower in the oven bombards the food with constantly recirculating hot air—making it cook faster, more evenly and at a lower temperature than a regular oven, using either gas or electricity.

BECAUSE OF ITS superior time and energy-saving potentials and its ability to cook well, retailers queried at the recent semi-annual national industry trade show in Chicago believe this item will be a winner.

Some store buyers already label it the "oven of the future." Sales could reach an estimated one million units in '79.

"The customer doesn't have to relearn how to cook as with microwave cooking," says Martha Jones of the White House, Beaumont, Texas.

"The oven is a new gift category," adds Bob Nitto, merchandise manager, Gimbel's, New York.

It's a "gourmet cooking" item, add others who emphasize there will be eight full-size countertop convection ovens on store shelves this fall and winter.

NEW THOUGH THE appliance is to American consumers, the concept has been around a long time; the ovens already have been a sales sensation in Europe, and U.S. restaurants have been using hot air ovens for years.

As a shopping guide, here are the key features of convection ovens you'll soon see on dealers' shelves.

- * Cuisinart: Styled with detachable tempered glass top, bottom; $250 suggested retail.
- * Farberware: Model 464 includes electronic temperature probe, rectangular brushed chrome exterior; $260 suggested retail. Model 462, rectangular without probe, brushed chrome exterior; $220 suggested; Model 460/5, rectangular rosewood grain exterior; $189 approximate retail price.
- * MAXIM: ROUNDED SQUARE, white porcelainized steel; $225 approximate retail price.
- * Moulinex Products: Unit broils conventionally, features a rotisserie; rounded rectangular almond and brown porcelain exterior; $193 retail, with introductory rebate.
- * Rival: Rectangular with almond porcelain enamel exterior and smoked glass door; $250 approximate retail.
- * Toastmaster: Model 7060 System 5 operates conventionally, bakes and broils conventionally; rectangular with wood grain exterior; $200 approximate retail.

Even as retailers prepare to launch big promotions for holiday sales of countertop convection ovens, the major appliance industry is rushing ahead with plans to bring out its engineering marvel:

"INDUCTION" COOKING.

"Induction" cooking harnesses electrical current through a coil beneath the stove top to create a magnetic field. The magnetic field induces current straight into the steel pot on the stove.

Because steel is a poor conductor of electricity, literally resisting the current, friction is created. This friction results in the heat.

The smooth cooking surface doesn't heat up itself because it is made of material that won't resist current.

Tested originally by Westinghouse Electric, the idea was abandoned some years back, presumably due to technical problems.

Now, Fassar Systems Inc., Burbank, Calif., has introduced its version of "induction" cooking.

Being prepared for later this year are models from Chambers Corp., Oxford, Miss., a subsidiary of Rangaire Corp., and Roper Corp., a principal supplier to Sears, Roebuck & Co., report informed industry sources.

WHAT'S FASCINATING about convection ovens and induction cooking is not just their newness.

It's the first signal I've detected in years that we may be regaining our capacity to leap ahead with technological advances that have meaning to us, just as "people."

That was the secret of our greatness and leadership for so long. It will be the secret again.

Finland Feeling Soviet Influence

By TOM HOGE
HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—A visitor driving along Finland's superhighways, flanked by endless forestland and breathtaking glimpses of crystal-clear lakes, views a rugged land where the air is crisp, the streets clean and the people friendly.

Heading eastward, however, the tourist soon becomes aware of moving into the shadow of the Soviet Union—a fact the Russians never let their small neighbor forget.

The Russian presence is particularly evident in Helsinki, the spotless capital that juts out into the Gulf of Finland. Recently, two dull, gray Soviet warships rode at anchor in the harbor and a huge Russian freighter lay at the dock.

Tight little groups of Soviet Navy sailors, each group accompanied by a watchful officer, filed through Helsinki's streets, window shopping, but keeping strictly to themselves.

Ships of Western nations also call at the port of Helsinki, but the Soviet craft appear to command more attention.

The Soviet presence seems to intrigue foreigners, and the Finns have managed to make this fact pay off. Tourist brochures tell about the scenic beauties of the Karelian area and note its proximity to the Russian border.

And in Helsinki there are three restaurants that serve Russian food exclusively, washed down with Russian wines. All do a thriving business, with many Americans at the tables.

"This is something we have to live with and we might as well make the most of it," said a Finnish hotel manager who features some Russian specialties on his menu. "After all, Finland was once a Russian Grand Duchy and we have retained some old Russian customs and still cook dishes with a Russian background."

There have been other fringe benefits. Because of its unique location between two worlds, Finland has been the scene of some major East-West conferences. They include the opening of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks in 1970 and the Conference on Security and Cooperation attended by the heads of the United States and Soviet Union governments in 1975.

The Finns proudly recall how their forces, although far outnumbered, showed a proficiency in winter warfare that surprised the Red giant when the Soviets invaded the republic in 1939. The Finns were forced to cede territory, some later recovered. In 1948 Finland signed a treaty of mutual assistance with the U.S.S.R.

A broad street running through Helsinki is named after Field Marshal Carl Gustav Mannerheim, who commanded Finnish forces in 1939-40 and became a national hero.

There is regular traffic between the Soviet Union and Finland over officially decreed routes, but no one casually strolls across the frontier. This can be attested to by inhabitants of Finland's frontier village of Kotkasland, who see from their windows the Soviet and Finnish watchtowers where border guards of the two nations keep lonely vigil.

On the Soviet side of the frontier at that point there is no sign of life, except for the border guards—only lake water and a dense curtain of forest.

Occasionally, the Finns say, a Russian dissident tries to cross over. But if he does get across, Finnish guards must send him back under an agreement between the two countries.

Trade agreements between the U.S.S.R. and Finland have some curious provisos. For instance, Finland, with all its woodland, is a leading exporter of plywood, pulp and paper products. But under a standing agreement, the Finns are required to import a good deal of Russian lumber.

"It doesn't make much sense, but what can you do?" shrugged a Helsinki businessman. "We try to make up for it in other ways."

For one thing, Finland is a major manufacturer of icebreakers, the tough, armored vessels that batter their way through frozen seas. She sells a good number to the Russians, for breaking through their ice-choked waters.

Brown To Campaign In Kennedy's Home State

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is taking his presidential quest to U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy's doorstep this month with campaign appearances in Massachusetts.

Tom Quinn, manager of the Democratic governor's campaign, says he is planning Brown's strategy on the assumption that Kennedy means it when he says he isn't a candidate in 1980.

Quinn predicted Brown would be "very strong" in a two-way race against President Carter in Massachusetts and that Brown could win the March 4 Massachusetts primary.

"If Kennedy is running in Massachusetts, it is unlikely anybody could defeat him. But I do not believe he will be a candidate. In that situation, I would expect Brown could do quite well. I think it is a very strong area for Governor Brown," Quinn said in an interview.

"In Massachusetts, there was a strong feeling Carter is just not up to the job, just not competent to be president," Quinn said.

Brown, who formed an "exploratory committee" and started raising campaign funds in July, is the only open challenger to Carter for the Democratic nomination.

But Brown's campaign is so far miniscule — 15 paid workers, including Quinn, in a Los Angeles headquarters, and one paid staff member and two full-time volunteers who hope to open campaign headquarters this week in Boston and Manchester, N.H.

Nevertheless, Quinn said Brown, who beat Carter in several primaries with a splashy-but-late bid for the nomination in 1976, will definitely campaign nationwide in 1980. "I don't see any circumstance that would lead the governor to decide not to run."

Quinn returned to California recently after a five-day tour of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. He said Brown will make his first campaign trip Sept. 9-12, spending two days in New Hampshire, one in Massachusetts and one in New York.

In addition to a series of private meetings with local Democratic leaders, Brown plans appearances at two political picnics in New Hampshire, site of the nation's first primary next February.

But Brown, whose greatest strength in the past has been among young voters, has picked a campus setting for his major appearance in each state — St. Anselm's College in New Hampshire, Boston College in Massachusetts and Columbia University in New York.

The Brown strategy in Massachusetts is typical of the 41-year-old governor's campaign style — very short on grassroots organizing, but keyed to dramatic bids for news media attention.

By going directly to Kennedy's doorstep, Brown is challenging the Massachusetts senator to respond to his campaign. And at the same time, Brown is focusing attention on Kennedy's ambiguous position as a front-runner in polls. Kennedy says he isn't a candidate, but he stops short of withdrawing completely from the presidential race.

In New Hampshire, Quinn cautiously is cultivating the underdog role, predicting that the advantages of incumbency make Carter very formidable in early primaries.

But Quinn said Brown would make "a significant effort in New Hampshire," campaigning on issues such as inflation, Brown's fiscal conservatism, his opposition to nuclear power, and Carter's handling of the gasoline and fuel oil shortage.

Another key Brown aide, chief of staff Gray Davis, who accompanied Quinn on part of his New England tour, was more positive about Brown's chances in New Hampshire. He said voters in that state "are casting about for an alternative to the president."

Davis conceded that Brown has few dedicated supporters so far in New Hampshire, but that the negative perception of Carter gives Brown an opportunity to present his record to a receptive electorate.

"We are prepared to spend the time necessary to do that. We are very optimistic about New Hampshire," Davis said.

Carter Returns For Labor Day Politicking

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter is returning to the White House for an old-fashioned Labor Day picnic and some old-fashioned politicking, after winding up his hometown vacation playing softball with local prisoners.

Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, have invited about 1,000 labor leaders and rank and file to an evening picnic featuring hot dogs, hamburgers, relay races, hojo-playing and volleyball on the south lawn of the White House.

Some are not coming for the festivity, which is being viewed as an attempt to repair the administration's strained relations with some parts of the labor movement.

One White House source, who did not wish to be identified, described those relations as "almost nil," adding, "They don't feel they have anyone at the White House they can deal with."

Though a handful of union presidents have endorsed Carter's re-election bid, several labor leaders, including AFL-CIO president George Meany, have strongly disagreed with the administration on economic and other issues.

It was uncertain whether Meany, who is recuperating from a hip ailment, would attend. But a spokesman for the International Association of Machinists said the president of that union, outspoken Carter critic William H. Winpisinger, would not be present.

Originally, the event was intended as a sort of tribute to women, with the president planning to speak about the influx of women into the labor market, it was learned. That apparently was the idea of Sarah Weddington, Carter's adviser on women's affairs.

However, the idea was abandoned for fear that emphasizing women would rankle Hispanics and blacks. A compromise was negotiated between Mrs. Weddington and Landon Butler, the White House labor liaison, in which the president would devote a portion of his remarks to women.

Attempt To Get Tickets Fails

ROCKAWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Walter Schulte was intent on obtaining tickets for a concert by rock group Kiss, but police who arrested him say he went a bit too far.

Authorities allege Schulte, 21, tried to extort four tickets to a Kiss concert by impersonating an assistant Morris County prosecutor. He allegedly telephoned a ticket agent several times Wednesday, telling him there were numerous criminal charges pending against him that would be dropped if the agent came up with the tickets.

Police said Schulte called the agent again Thursday to set up a meeting at the home of a youth who wanted to go to the concert, and police met the trio where the deal was to take place.

Schulte was charged with attempted extortion, impersonating a law enforcement officer, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, conspiracy to commit extortion and conspiracy to impersonate a police officer. The boy, who was not identified, was released in the custody of his parents.

Schulte spent Thursday night in the Morris County jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, which was posted Friday, police said.

Actors Involved In Race Mishap

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Television actors Parker Stevenson and Robert Pine smashed their cars into the walls of the Ontario Motor Speedway during a celebrity race preceding the California 500 auto race.

Stevenson, of the former "Hardy Boys" series, suffered only bruises as his car bumped the outside wall on Turn 4. Pine, of the "CHiPs" series, hit the inside wall as he swerved to avoid hitting Stevenson's car. He was unhurt.

Another star of "CHiPs," Erik Estrada, was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident last month.

The race in which celebrities teamed with Indy-car drivers was won by actor Jan-Michael Vincent and professional driver Johnny Rutherford, with Vincent driving the first and last five-lap legs of the 15-lap race.

Debby Boone, Gabriel Ferrer Marry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 500 guests attended the ceremony as Grammy-winning vocalist Debby Boone married Gabriel Ferrer, son of Rosemary Clooney and Jose Ferrer.

The couple planned a brief honeymoon in California after the Saturday ceremony, with a longer honeymoon planned during Miss Boone's upcoming concert tour of Japan.

Miss Boone, daughter of singer Pat Boone, won the best new artist Grammy two years ago for her hit song "You Light Up My Life."

Horseshoe Shoulder

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss. (AP) — After one week of pitching horseshoes toward a world's record and charity drive, Jim Robertson says he has the first recorded case of horseshoe shoulder.

"It's just completely worn out," he said Sunday, as he and five other members of the Ocean Springs Elk's Lodge wrapped up almost 151 consecutive hours of tossing iron in rain and high temperatures.

"That doesn't count all the strained muscles and nerves after that — it's all ours," Robertson said.

The Guinness Book of World Records listed the old record as 120 consecutive hours. The six men were attempting to raise money for a planned facility in Greenville, Miss., to treat burn victims.

They tossed the horseshoes in shifts of two beginning last Monday, each group throwing for five hours, then resting for 10 hours. At noon Saturday, records showed the six contestants tossed 18,164 horseshoes in 500 games, scored 9,618 points, had 2,129 ringers and 182 double ringers.

Results Of China Visit Pleases Vice President

TOKYO (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale said today he was "pleased as punch" with his visit to China and reaffirmed the need for U.S.-Japan consultation on aid to Peking.

Mondale, at a 75-minute luncheon meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira en route home to Washington from his 10-day visit to China and Hong Kong, characterized Washington's relationship with Tokyo as "the most valuable we have." U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield told reporters.

Mansfield, who attended Mondale's meeting with Ohira and other top-ranking figures, said Mondale was "pleased as punch" with his trip to China, in which he became the highest-ranking American to visit China since Washington and Peking established full diplomatic relations last January.

The Vice President repeated his Peking pledges of up to $2 billion worth of aid, most-favored-nation status and electric power development assistance for China, but told Ohira that the United States has no "China card" that is, any desire to play China off against other powers.

Mansfield said Mondale reaffirmed to Ohira the need for joint consultations between the United States and Japan over aid to and trade in China "so they won't be interfering and competing with one another to too great an extent."

Mondale also said he discussed the situation in Korea with China's leaders, but there was no change in the respective positions.

Gold Now Common In Portfolios

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold, once considered an investment for professionals and the very rich, is becoming a common part of many portfolios.

Sales of gold coins in the United States — a popular form of small investment — more than doubled from 50.2 tons of gold coins in 1978 to 116.2 tons last year.

And trading in gold futures — which only rarely results in delivery of bullion — more than tripled from contracts representing 5,909 tons in 1977 to 20,569 tons last year, according to a report by Constantine Michalopoulos, a Washington-based consultant to Consolidated Gold Fields Ltd. of London.

The growth has continued this year, largely because of gold's big price gains. In January 1978 gold was selling for around $176 a troy ounce. A year later it was up to $232 and lately it has been close to $320.

The latest surge in gold prices puts peak levels more than 35 percent ahead of gold's price at the start of the year — a handsome hedge against 13 percent inflation, assuming, of course, that one bought low and sold high.

Analysts differ on gold's future prospects, some arguing that as inflation eases and the economy slows, the so-called "gold fever" will break. But even those who predict that gold hasn't yet reached its peak offer caveats to those considering whether to put money into gold.

"The bullion market we are involved in today has no precedent in past trading history. Volatility now evident in daily trading ranges promises to be the rule rather than the exception," said a recent report by James Sinclair, an investment advisor who operates a company bearing his name.

Gold, trading at about $245 an ounce in October, tumbled to below $225 an ounce in early January after the U.S. government began a dollar defense plan which included increased sales of U.S. Treasury stocks. It wasn't until early March that it recovered to its prices of the previous October. But the price has climbed dramatically since then.

In addition to risks from wide price swings, gold also carries the obvious disadvantage of not providing any return on investment until the time of sale. But the intense interest and wider participation of small investors in the past few years has spawned a number of gold investment instruments for those who decide to buy.

Gold coins, available from coin dealers, brokers and some banks, are one of the most popular types of investments. The one-ounce South African kruggerand is by far the biggest seller. Other popular coins include the Mexican 50 pesos and Austrian 100 corona. Prices can vary from one outlet to another but in general dealers charge 5 to 8 percent above the bullion market price, with purchasers of 10 or more coins getting the lower rates. Similar to coins are a range of gold bars in different sizes starting at a half ounce.

There are some disadvantages in direct purchase of gold, such as concern over safe storage and, in some cases, the need to assay the gold when it is to be sold.

Gold certificates, a type of "paper gold," avoid those problems because they represent receipts for gold on deposit elsewhere. Metals dealers and some banks offer a variety of certificates. But charges for purchase, storage, insurance and other fees may be involved.

Citibank of New York offers one certificate geared to relatively small investors which requires an initial minimum purchase of $1,000 and allows subsequent purchases of $100. It recently announced an effort to market those through other banks around the country.

Citibank charges fees at time of purchase and time of sale. After one year, a storage fee also is involved.

Regaining Of Land Doubted

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Sioux Indians probably won't get the Black Hills back even if they reject a proposed $105 million settlement for the land they consider sacred, says a Bureau of Indian Affairs official.

Martin Seneca, director of trust responsibility for the federal agency, told representatives of eight tribal governments, meeting here to discuss the proposed settlement, that they lost the land in 1877 by congressional action and only Congress can give it back.

"The moral question is one thing, but the law is quite clear," Seneca said Thursday. "Congress could do it, but I don't think it's a very realistic prospect."

"If the great Sioux nation decides it won't take the money, it will be placed in the federal treasury where it will draw interest until the Sioux tribes decide what to do with it," he said.

The Sioux were granted rights to the Black Hills in perpetuity by the Fort Laramie Treaty of 1868. Nine years later, gold was discovered and they were forced to give up the 7 million acres.

The federal government offered $17.5 million to settle their claim, but the U.S. Court of Claims ruled in June that the Indians should also receive interest for the past 102 years, bringing the settlement to $105 million.

"My personal feeling is that it is not monetarily enough," said Melvin Garreau, chairman of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe.

"The tourism industry alone will pick up the full tab in two years because in that area it gets $44 million a year," he said. "The Sioux people know these facts and that is why they take issue with this proposed settlement."

Tribal attorneys will visit eight reservations beginning next week to explain the settlement. Three-fourth of the adult male members of each tribe must approve the settlement in a vote that will come sometime this fall.

Garreau, who is also board chairman for the United Sioux Tribes, declined to predict how the tribe members will vote.

"But apparently they are thinking in the same way that I am or I wouldn't be here," he said.

Pat McLaughlin, chairman of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe, said he feared the tribes would merely vote to accept the money unless their leaders forced them to think about the consequences.

"What they're offering is a little ridiculous," said Roger Trudell, chairman of the Santee Sioux Tribe. "That is sacred land and you can't put a value on it. That land has meaning, but the little bit of money we would receive would soon be gone."

Inflation Driving Up Cost Of Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation is driving up the price of schooling at a time enrollments are continuing to decline, federal statisticians report.

Education programs from kindergarten to graduate school are expected to cost $11 billion more during the upcoming term than the $150 billion spent last year, the National Center for Education Statistics said recently.

Most of that increase was attributed to inflation.

At the same time, overall enrollment in formal education programs is down somewhat again. Enrollments are expected to hover around 58.4 million, down 1.2 percent from last year's 59.1 million. The record enrollment, set in the fall of 1975, was 61.3 million.

Some 3.3 million classroom teachers will be employed to work with the students, along with 300,000 superintendents, principals, supervisors and other non-teaching instructional staff.

Elementary enrollment is projected at 31.7 million and high school enrollment at 15.3 million, both down roughly 2 percent from last year.

Colleges and universities, on the other hand, will experience a slight increase in enrollments — 11.4 million students compared to 11.3 million last year.

The number of high school graduates next spring will drop a trifle from the 3.15 million which has been standard for the last few years to 3.1 million.

Colleges and universities will award 950,000 bachelor's degrees, 330,000 master's degrees, 33,000 doctorates and 60,000 first-professional degrees.

About $58 billion of the overall education spending total is expected to come from colleges and universities while $103 million will come from elementary and secondary schools.

Public colleges will spend $39.3 billion compared to $18.7 billion for their private counterparts. Public elementary and secondary education will cost $92.1 billion compared to $10.6 billion for private schools.

Mannequin Serves As Companion

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The other passenger in Ed Burden's truck has many names. They depend on Burden's mood at the moment.

"I vent my spleen on him. Sometimes, he's my supervisor, or my dispatcher. Sometimes, he's the woman who almost ran me off the road. It really doesn't matter what you call him, he never answers."

Burden rescued his companion — a mannequin — from the scrap heap six months ago. "This department store was gonna throw the dummy away until I offered to take him off their hands."

The clown got a home; Burden got instant company — and a lot of kidding when he returned his rig to the Overnite Transportation Co. in Louisville. His new friend, all smiles, was perched in the seat beside him.

"The guys around the terminal thought I was nuts. Several believed I was weird. Sorta funny, you know."

Most of the laughter subsided when Burden removed the mannequin's wig — "It made him look too much like a woman" — and dressed him in an old sweater. "I'm now shopping around for a muscle shirt and a straw hat for him."

In addition to helping him fight boredom, Burden believes his friend was invaluable during the recent independent truckers' strike.

"I figured if anybody was gonna open fire on my rig, they'd take the first shot at him," he explained. "But I was lucky. Nothing happened to me."

Burden, who came here 30 years ago from Butler County, joined Overnite Transportation in 1974. "I was just another driver until that thing showed up," he said, jerking a thumb toward the life-size figure.

When people stop and stare or ask questions, Burden has a series of one-liners ready for them. A few samples:

"Why should I feed him, lady? I do all the driving."

"You're right, sir. It takes two dummies like us to handle this vehicle."

"Do I take him home at night? Naw. My kids wouldn't approve, and the neighbors might wonder what's going on."

Burden admits there are times when he feels he's the dummy. "I'm doing all the work and he's sitting there grinning at me."

At 42, Burden bears a striking resemblance to country rock singer Mac Davis. Friends have noticed this and so have a number of his customers.

"The comparison made me feel pretty good until the day a woman pulled her car alongside my rig," Burden said. "She saw the two of us in the cab but didn't say anything."

When the light changed, the woman leaned over and yelled: "You know, mister, that dummy looks better than you do."

Burden doesn't remember how many names he called his companion that afternoon.

Job Programs Liked Instead Of Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says he favors direct job creation and federally-funded job training rather than a general tax cut as a way to combat high unemployment.

Marshall said Sunday he does not expect unemployment to hit 6.5 percent this year, but indicated there is a good chance it could climb that high next year. Whenever it does, he said, he will go to President Carter for help. "I'll be in there if it gets to 6.5 saying that we need to do some things," Marshall said on the CBS interview show, "Face the Nation." Unemployment stood at 5.7 percent in July, but the administration estimates it will be at 6.9 percent by the end of 1980.

Woman Accidentally Throws Away $1700.

NILES, Ill.—A major art exchange here reports the tragedy of a Madison, Wis. housewife who sold a collector's plate worth $1700 for just $40. In her letter to J. R. MacArthur, Director of the Board of Governors, The Bradford Exchange, the world trade center for collector's plates, the woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate... which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you then."

MacArthur points out that while the $1700 market value of this plate is exceptionally high, many owners are unaware of how quickly limited edition collector's plates appreciate on the market.

To aid in identifying these plates, the Exchange issues a free report. It contains current prices of more than 900 plates and guidelines on what to look for, when to buy, news of opportunities in promising plates still at low prices and the plate evaluation checklist used by the Exchange.

To get your free report with no obligation, send your name, address and zip code before Saturday of next week to: The Bradford Exchange, 9301 N. Milwaukee, Dept. 85436, Niles, Ill. 60648. A postcard will do.

Egyptians Cheer As Anwar Sadat Sails For Israel

By United Press International
President Anwar Sadat sailed to Israel today for his third visit in nearly three years and was given a hero's send-off by thousands of cheering, shouting and applauding Egyptians.

The Egyptian leader, who will hold talks with Prime Minister Menachem Begin on the thorny questions of Jerusalem and Palestinian autonomy, boarded the presidential yacht "Al Horreya" and set sail from Port Said, at the northern entrance of the Suez Canal.

Vessels in the Port Said harbor blew their whistles as the yacht, once the property of the late King Farouk, weighed anchor.

Thousands of Egyptians waved small flags and shouted slogans from fishing boats to bid Sadat, who wore the white uniform of supreme naval commander, a "bon voyage."

Although this was Sadat's third trip to Israel, it marked two firsts:

—Sadat was accompanied for the first time by his wife, Jehan.

—Sadat traveled by sea, and not air.

The yacht, built in the late 19th century but renovated since, was expected to reach the Israeli port of Haifa Tuesday noon after a 20-hour voyage.

The official delegation accompanying Sadat included Vice Premier Hassan Al-Tohamy, Defense Minister Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali and Foreign Undersecretary Osama El-Baz.

In remarks Saturday, Sadat said, "I expect that by the end of this year we will reach an agreement not only about autonomy but also about Jerusalem. I am optimistic by nature," he added.

"I believe that after what took place between me and Menachem, as friends, we must put the final touch to an overall settlement by the end of the year."

Despite Sadat's optimism, a wide gap still separates the Egyptian and Israeli positions on autonomy and Jerusalem.

Egypt advocates giving the Jordan West Bank and the Gaza Strip much more autonomy during a transitional period and then the right for self-determination, which Israel strongly opposes. Israel also refuses to discuss the division of Jerusalem.

Interior Minister Josef Burg, the head of Israel's negotiating committee on Palestinian rights, said Sunday he had a "feeling that in the next few months Jordan will join the autonomy negotiations."

A spokesman for Burg declined to elaborate on Burg's statement to members of a European Council subcommittee on the Middle East at Israel's Parliament Sunday. Jordan's King Hussein has consistently refused to join the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

Begin Sunday gave a sketchy briefing to his Cabinet ministers on a secretive meeting last Friday with a special envoy sent by Romania's Ceausescu.

Government sources said the envoy carried an offer from Ceausescu to mediate talks among Begin, Syrian President Hafez Assad and PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

The sources said when the envoy, Vassily Pungan, offered to report to Begin on Ceausescu's meeting with Arafat last month, Begin refused to hear a word of it.

Local Man Injured In Argument

A Lubbock County man was fighting for his life early today after being shot in the chest shortly before 11 p.m. Sunday during an apparent quarrel with another man over ownership of a .22-caliber rifle.

The middle-aged man's alleged assailant was apprehended by city police about 10 minutes after the shooting. The 29-year-old suspect, whose name was not released this morning, remained in the county jail on suspicion of aggravated assault.

Jesus Saucedo Castro, 51, of 4214 E. First Place was listed in critical condition this morning at Methodist Hospital. Doctors told sheriff's deputies Castro suffered one .22-caliber bullet wound in the chest, and that the bullet passed through the man's bloodstream and wound up in his leg.

City and county authorities were told Castro was gunned down at his residence about 11 p.m., and that the suspect fled in a white and blue 1969 Dodge. City policemen Dale Holton and T.B. Lincoff said they found Castro lying in his driveway with his son, Philotson, kneeling over him.

Holton and Lincoff said the son pointed to a car, which was speeding away from the scene, and said the driver was the man who had shot his father. The officers chased the motorist to a residence in the 4100-block of First Place, and apprehended him behind the house.

The suspect reportedly told officers he and Castro were fighting over the rifle when the weapon accidentally discharged.

Pieces of the rifle butt were found at the scene and the rest of the weapon was discovered inside the suspect's vehicle, according to reports.

17-Year-Old Killed In Shooting Mishap

KINGSWOOD TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A 17-year-old Elizabeth youth was killed when he pointed a revolver he mistakenly thought was unloaded at his head and fired, police say.

Dominick Didonato was shooting at targets with Michael Caruso, 17, also of Elizabeth and another youth, who was not identified. After firing eight shots with a .22-caliber nine-shot revolver, Didonato raised the gun to his head and pulled the trigger, police said.

Authorities said he apparently miscounted the number of rounds in the revolver and didn't realize the gun was loaded.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually when you do a task you strive for perfection, but tomorrow you may attempt some shortcuts that could cause you some problems. Expediency shouldn't dictate your performance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you want to make a favorable impression tomorrow, eliminate any form of pretense. People will admire you for what you are, not for what you pretend to be.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll have the ability tomorrow to direct situations to your best advantage, but there is a possibility you may not follow through properly. Be persistent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Optimism and positive thoughts are marvelous assets, but don't confuse them tomorrow with wishful thinking. Strive to be realistic and not a daydreamer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be very wary tomorrow of letting anyone who cannot manage things well personally handle matters of importance for you. Run your own show.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Being a shade too indecisive could retard your progress tomorrow. Don't be afraid to make decisions and follow through with the necessary action.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't make excuses to avoid your responsibilities tomorrow. Things you sweep under the rug will only raise a large dust cloud at a later date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be enterprising tomorrow, but avoid impulsive or foolish risks, whether they be of a physical or financial nature. Carelessness may cause you problems.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is no time to rest on your laurels if you want to stay at the top of the heap. What you did lately is not as important as what you do tomorrow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be modest regarding your abilities tomorrow. Friends could find boasting unbecoming, and those from whom you expect support will leave you in the lurch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Business conditions are apt to be more complicated than they appear on the surface tomorrow. Take nothing for granted in your commercial affairs, be they large or small.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you may feel your way of doing things will be the best way tomorrow, don't disregard the opinions of others. They could improve on what you envision.

Egyptians Cheer As Anwar Sadat Sails For Israel

By United Press International
President Anwar Sadat sailed to Israel today for his third visit in nearly three years and was given a hero's send-off by thousands of cheering, shouting and applauding Egyptians.

The presidential yacht "Al Horreya" and set sail from Port Said, at the northern entrance of the Suez Canal.
Vessels in the Port Said harbor blew their whistles as the yacht, once the property of the late King Farouk, weighed anchor.
Thousands of Egyptians waved small flags and shouted slogans from fishing boats to bid Sadat, who wore the white uniform of supreme naval commander, a "bon voyage."

Although this was Sadat's third trip to Israel, it marked two firsts:
—Sadat was accompanied for the first time by his wife, Jihan.
—Sadat traveled by sea, and not air.
The yacht, built in the late 19th century but renovated since, was expected to reach the Israeli port of Haifa Tuesday noon after a 20-hour voyage.

The official delegation accompanying Sadat included Vice Premier Hassan Al-Tohamy, Defense Minister Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali and Foreign Undersecretary Osama El-Baz.
In remarks Saturday, Sadat said, "I expect that by the end of this year we will reach an agreement not only about autonomy but also about Jerusalem. I am optimistic by nature," he added.

"I believe that after what took place between me and Menachem, as friends, we must put the final touch to an overall settlement by the end of the year."
Despite Sadat's optimism, a wide gap still separates the Egyptian and Israeli positions on autonomy and Jerusalem.
Egypt advocates giving the Jordan West Bank and the Gaza Strip much more autonomy during a transitional period and then the right for self-determination, which Israel strongly opposes. Israel also refuses to discuss the division of Jerusalem.

Interior Minister Josef Burg, the head of Israel's negotiating committee on Palestinian rights, said Sunday he had a "feeling that in the next few months Jordan will join the autonomy negotiations."
A spokesman for Burg declined to elaborate on Burg's statement to members of a European Council subcommittee on the Middle East at Israel's Parliament Sunday. Jordan's King Hussein has consistently refused to join the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

Begin Sunday gave a sketchy briefing to his Cabinet ministers on a secretive meeting last Friday with a special envoy sent by Romania's Ceausescu.
Government sources said the envoy carried an offer from Ceausescu to mediate talks among Begin, Syrian President Hafez Assad and PLO chief Yasser Arafat.
The sources said when the envoy, Vassily Pungan, offered to report to Begin on Ceausescu's meeting with Arafat last month, Begin refused to hear a word of it.

17-Year-Old Killed In Shooting Mishap

KINGSWOOD TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A 17-year-old Elizabeth youth was killed when he pointed a revolver he mistakenly thought was unloaded at his head and fired, police say.
Dominick Didonato was shooting at targets with Michael Caruso, 17, also of Elizabeth and another youth, who was not identified. After firing eight shots with a .22-caliber nine-shot revolver, Didonato raised the gun to his head and pulled the trigger, police said.
Authorities said he apparently miscounted the number of rounds in the revolver and didn't realize the gun was loaded.

Local Man Injured In Argument

A Lubbock County man was fighting for his life early today after being shot in the chest shortly before 11 p.m. Sunday during an apparent quarrel with another man over ownership of a .22-caliber rifle.
The middle-aged man's alleged assailant was apprehended by city police about 10 minutes after the shooting. The 29-year-old suspect, whose name was not released this morning, remained in the county jail on suspicion of aggravated assault.
Jesus Saucedo Castro, 51, of 4214 E. First Place was listed in critical condition this morning at Methodist Hospital. Doctors told sheriff's deputies Castro suffered one .22-caliber bullet wound in the chest, and that the bullet passed through the man's bloodstream and wound up in his leg.
City and county authorities were told Castro was gunned down at his residence about 11 p.m., and that the suspect fled in a white and blue 1969 Dodge. City policemen Dale Holton and T.B. Linccum said they found Castro lying in his driveway with his son, Philotson, kneeling over him.
Holton and Linccum said the son pointed to a car, which was speeding away from the scene, and said the driver was the man who had shot his father. The officers chased the motorist to a residence in the 4100-block of First Place, and apprehended him behind the house.
The suspect reportedly told officers he and Castro were fighting over the rifle when the weapon accidentally discharged.
Pieces of the rifle butt were found at the scene and the rest of the weapon was discovered inside the suspect's vehicle, according to reports.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be very wary tomorrow of letting anyone who cannot manage things well personally handle matters of importance for you. Run your own show.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Being a shade too indecisive could retard your progress tomorrow. Don't be afraid to make decisions and follow through with the necessary action.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't make excuses to avoid your responsibilities tomorrow. Things you sweep under the rug will only raise a large dust cloud at a later date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be enterprising tomorrow, but avoid impulsive or foolish risks, whether they be of a physical or financial nature. Carelessness may cause you problems.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is no time to rest on your laurels if you want to stay at the top of the heap. What you did lately is not as important as what you do tomorrow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be modest regarding your abilities tomorrow. Friends could find boasting unbecoming, and those from whom you expect support will leave you in the lurch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Business conditions are apt to be more complicated than they appear on the surface tomorrow. Take nothing for granted in your commercial affairs, be they large or small.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you may feel your way of doing things will be the best way tomorrow, don't disregard the opinions of others. They could improve on what you envision.

Returning Congressmen Face Controversial Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns to work this week, after a month of political pulse-taking, faced with important decisions on President Carter's energy legislation and federal spending.

On another issue, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will resume its hearings on the SALT II arms treaty with Russia, although floor debate is not expected until October.

The House and Senate return to work Wednesday for the first time since Aug. 2. Most members of Congress used the long recess to meet with constituents in their home states.

More than two dozen lawmakers interviewed at the end of the recess agreed the public seems most concerned about energy and the economy — issues that will occupy much of Congress' time between now and the end of the year.

In the Senate, a special Budget Committee task force is scheduling hearings for Wednesday and Thursday to hear testimony on the impact a massive synthetic fuels industry would have on the economy.

The Senate Energy Committee, meanwhile, intends to resume work Thursday on a bill setting up an Energy Mobilization Board. The administration-backed proposal is designed to speed the development of high priority energy projects.

The full House Commerce Committee is expected to resume debate on a similar bill, with a tough fight expected over what powers the board would have to override environmental rules and regulations. Yet a third version of the same proposal already has been approved by the House Interior Committee.

Also in the House, a commerce subcommittee has scheduled a hearing Wednesday on the Carter administration's decision to sell 2 million barrels of kerosene and diesel fuel to oil-rich Iran.

Another important energy bill, one giving Carter standby authority to ration gasoline, is in a conference committee after earlier passing both houses.

On economic issues, the House and Senate both will devote part of September to establishing binding spending limits for the next fiscal year's budget.

The first item of business for the Senate when it returns to work will be a measure appropriating money for the Postal Service and the Treasury Department.

The first bill on the House floor this week will be the $7.9 billion foreign aid measure.

Both houses have several major money bills left to deal with, including one for the Defense Department that is expected to spark debate over the proposed multi-billion-dollar MX missile system designed to shield American warheads from Soviet attack.

Another major bit of unfinished business is the administration's proposal to impose mandatory controls on hospital expenses in 1980 if hospital costs are not held down voluntarily this year.

The House Commerce Committee's subcommittee on health has scheduled a hearing Thursday on the hospital cost-containment measure.

Also pending are the final two appointments Carter made to his new Cabinet.

The Senate Commerce Committee has set a hearing for Wednesday on Neil Goldschmidt, the former mayor of Portland, Ore., tapped to head the Transportation Department.

The Senate Banking Committee will hold a hearing Thursday on Carter's nomination of Moon Landrieu to serve as secretary of housing and urban development. Landrieu is a former mayor of New Orleans.

Irish Leader Blocks 'Hot Pursuit' Plan

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Jack Lynch said he will not allow British troops to pursue IRA gunmen into the Irish Republic, setting a collision course with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at their meeting this week.

"I don't think it is known in any country where soldiers can go into the sovereign territory of another state and carry out military operations... It could well be dangerous for those soldiers of policemen," Lynch told a Dublin radio interviewer Sunday night.

Britain's minister for Northern Ireland, Humphrey Atkins, said in a BBC interview Sunday that Britain wants to send its troops in Northern Ireland across the border into the Irish Republic in "hot pursuit" of Irish Republican Army guerrillas.

Lynch also rejected two other proposals British sources said Mrs. Thatcher will make at their meeting in London Wednesday after the funeral of Earl Mountbatten.

They are that police in Northern Ireland be allowed to sit in on questioning of IRA suspects in the Irish Republic, and that "proper communication links" be established between the Irish army and commanders of the 13,500 British troops in Northern Ireland.

Lynch made clear he would press for a political solution to the long years of Catholic-Protestant conflict in British-controlled Northern Ireland, but stopped short of the official position of his party, Fianna Fail, which demands that Britain free Northern Ireland.

Lynch's reaction to the British proposals had been expected. Opinion polls indicate that his popularity at home has been waning, and to allow British troops to cross into the republic would be political suicide.

Lynch also is reported annoyed at the flood of accusations in the British press that his government has not done enough against the outlawed IRA, which is fighting to unite Northern Ireland with the republic.

The British press campaign was touched off by the IRA bombings last Monday that killed Lord Mountbatten, the war-hero cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, and three others aboard his fishing boat off the northwest coast of Ireland and a few hours later killed 18 British soldiers in Northern Ireland.

The Irish police have charged two IRA men with Mountbatten's murder and are reported questioning four others, in connection with the killing of the soldiers.

The West German newspaper Bild Am Sonntag said Sunday that German terrorists helped plan the bomb attacks. Irish officials had no comment; a spokesman for the British Foreign Office said there had been many reports of links between various terrorist groups.

Meanwhile, 10 guerrillas of the outlawed Protestant Ulster Freedom Fighters, masked and heavily armed, met secretly with reporters in Belfast, Northern Ireland, and said they would take revenge on the Provisionals. Asked what they would do if security forces interfered, a spokesman declared: "We'll shoot them."

Ireland's Catholic bishops in a pastoral letter appealed to both Catholics and Protestants to let Pope John Paul II's visit to the republic at the end of the month inspire them to peace.

"May his visit challenge all Irishmen to put an end to our 'murdering hates' and replace them by Christ's love and forgiveness," said the letter, which was read Sunday at Mass throughout the Catholic republic and the Protestant-dominated North.

"May his visit speak to the hearts and consciences of all those engaged in campaigns of violence and bring them back to awareness of the horrible evil of murder and to the sense of the absolute sacredness of human life."

The pope himself in his Sunday noon blessing at his summer palace outside Rome said the killings last week were "an insult to human dignity" and that God wants his visit to Ireland "to contribute to the triumph of the spirit of reconciliation and mutual understanding."

Terrorists Buy U.S. Weapons

BOSTON (AP) — A former activist with the Irish Republican Army says union and customs officials in the United States and abroad figure in the network that smuggles arms to the terrorist group, the Boston Globe reported in today's editions.

The Globe quoted Peter McMullen as saying he discovered the IRA had friends within the American Embassy in Dublin, contacts who helped him obtain a false passport and visa to the United States, where he is now hiding.

McMullen, 32, who told the Globe he had been marked for death by the IRA since his defection from the organization, said he spent about a year smuggling arms for the IRA from New York City with the help of a passport and visa obtained through embassy friends. In another interview with the Globe published Sunday, McMullen said he was able to leave Ireland in 1972 with credentials that gave him a new identity as Terry Enwright.

He said he then spent a year purchasing and funneling about 1,000 weapons into Ireland while working at Wednesday's, a Manhattan nightclub from which he sometimes skimmed money from the till, without the owner's knowledge, to buy arms.

McMullen said during that period he discovered an entire network of arms-smuggling that already had been established and that involved union and customs officials.

He told the Globe he was a former British paratrooper and used his training to teach mobile IRA units to handle and smuggle weapons while he was in Ireland. He said he also participated in nine bank and hotel robberies in Ireland that netted the IRA about $500,000.

McMullen said he was not surprised by the assassination of Earl Mountbatten, and he predicted more bombings against London's Buckingham and Kensington palaces, Balmoral Castle in Scotland, Windsor Castle and a royal family castle in Wales.

The Belfast native also predicted British soldiers stationed in Germany would become prime IRA targets before the year was out, as well as power stations and fuel depots and other military and industrial facilities in Northern Ireland and on the British mainland.

He said the execution of Mountbatten reflected a major shift in the IRA leadership from older, conservative leaders to more sophisticated leftists who have attracted money and arms from the Palestine Liberation Organization and Libya.

He added "that members of the royal family, even remote cousins, have always been targets. The big difference now is that the IRA has a much better chance of hitting them."

McMullen said he had been on the run since 1972, when after four years of bombing British army barracks, shooting British soldiers and smuggling arms from the United States to Ireland, he disobeyed orders and was court-martialed. He fled to the United States after he was secretly sentenced to death.

Tourists Stay Away From Gulf Beaches

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — South Padre and Mustang islands were clean this weekend — of both oil and tourists.

Workers had stepped up beach-cleaning efforts in anticipation of the Labor Day weekend and reconnaissance flights Sunday showed only a few scattered patches of sheen.

"The beaches are in good shape," said Coast Guard spokesman Larry Clark, a member of the federal task force sent to monitor the world's largest oil spill and guard against environmental damage.

But the hordes of tourists who usually congregate on South Texas beaches each Labor Day apparently remained unconvinced.

Smaller motels were hit especially hard by the dearth of visitors on a weekend that usually marks the peak of the tourist season.

"There's not that many people out today," said Mark Brookman, assistant manager of El Padre Motel. Only two of the motel's 45 rooms were rented.

"I went out on the beach this morning and I saw a handful, maybe 25 or 30 people in both directions," Brookman said. "It's not crowded like it should be."

And although some larger hotels, including the Hilton and Holiday Inn, reported 85 percent to 90 percent occupancy, few of their clients ventured onto the beach.

Tropical Storm Elena didn't help matters any by drenching the northern part of the Texas coast and dumping almost an inch of rain over Corpus Christi Sunday morning.

The sun was shining on South Texas beaches later Sunday, but the combination of Elena's erratic behavior last week and the oil spill threat cast a shadow that frightened away many tourists.

"We have no hopes for a great weekend," said Bob Conwell of the Corpus Christi Area Convention and Tourist Bureau. "Our prime wish is that they get the well shut off so we can get our winter business going well."

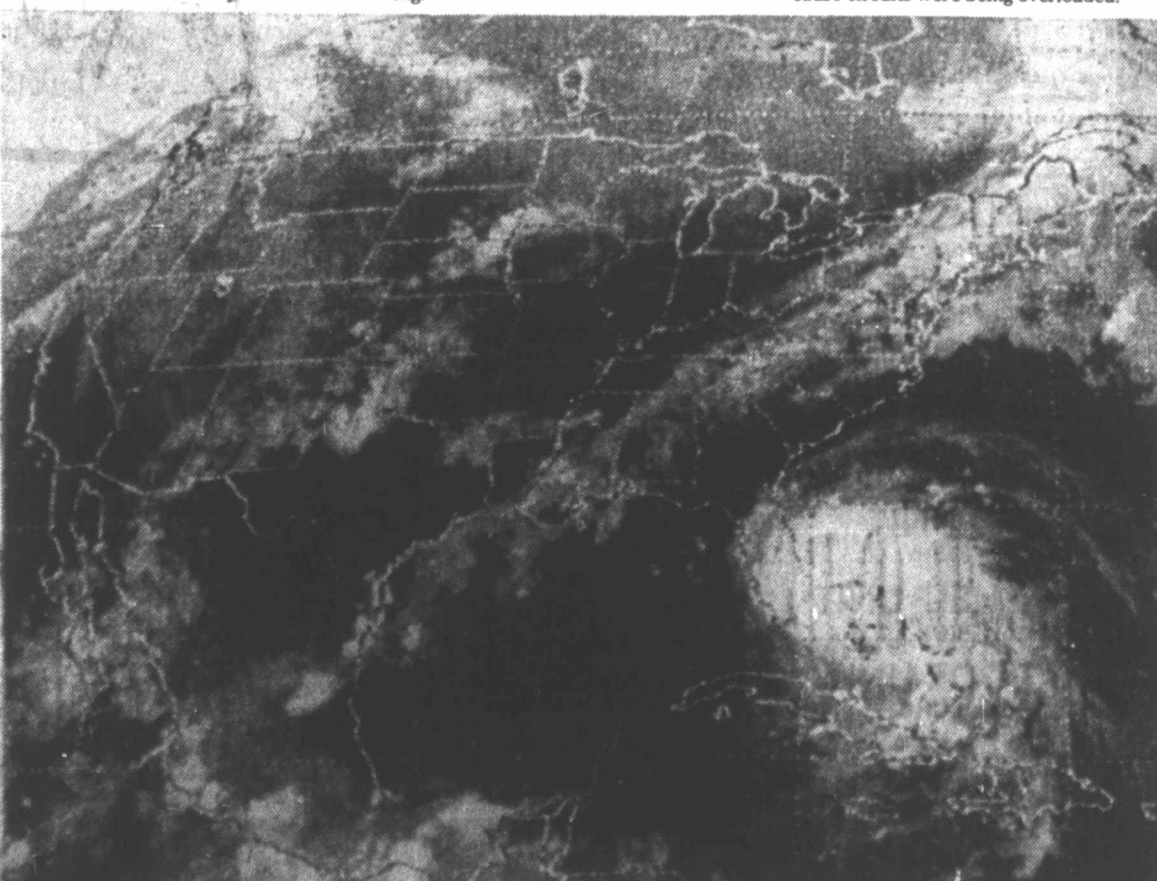

Mexican officials have estimated it will take at least two to four weeks to shut off the flow of oil gushing from the crippled well in the Bay of Campeche, 500 miles south of Brownsville.

Almost 3 million barrels of oil have leaked from the well since it blew out June 3, but the daily flow has been reduced from 30,000 to about 10,000 barrels.

The oil is expected to menace the Texas coast for months after the well is capped.

Coast Guard officials, meanwhile, are more concerned about possible environmental damage than seasonal economic loss to the tourism industry.

TURBULENT WEATHER — Hurricane David sends its clouds across southern Florida and heavy thunderstorms pound the Texas Panhandle and South Plains in this weather satellite photo made at 3 a.m. today. LONELY VIGIL — Raymond Maxwell, 80, meditates and smokes as he waits out Hurricane David at an evacuation center in Miami Sunday night. north on clogged Interstate 95, the main artery out of the area.

The storm skipped north of the lower keys. In Key West, the Florida Highway Patrol reported high tides but no flooding.

"It's pleasant out. It's almost disarmingly calm," said dispatcher Pepper Lawless.

Thousands of evacuees sought refuge in emergency shelters. The famed Fontainebleau Hotel on Miami Beach took in all comers. "We are housing people whether they are guests of the hotel or just off the street," said assistant manager Larry Zanas. He said about 1,200 people were in the hotel, many dozing in the lobby.

Some 500 people, most nursing home patients, fled to the Miami Beach Convention Center. Lines stretched as long as one mile at the few service stations open Sunday as people fled.

Gov. Bob Graham ordered evacuations of 50,000 persons in low-lying southeastern areas. He declared a "disaster emergency" and invoked a state law allowing him to expand his executive powers.

He activated the National Guard, and ordered troops to assist in evacuation efforts and anti-looting patrols.

Airlines canceled all flights to Miami, Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach. Southeast Bell urged worried friends and relatives of South Florida residents not to call until the storm had passed because circuits were being overloaded.

Meanwhile, residents of Nassau, island capital of the Bahamas, slept off their close encounter with David. Government officials said storm damage would be surveyed today, but that no fatalities had been reported after David's sweep through the island group Sunday.

However, many of Nassau's side streets were blocked by fallen trees, limbs and other debris. Dozens of small boats were sunk or damaged by hurricane-influenced waves.

Throngs of coastal residents had scrambled inland, but tourists practically ignored David, which came within 40 miles of the capital. Casino wheels whirled merrily at the Paradise Island casinos, where employees said gaming tables were packed all day.

David took its place among the century's six deadliest hurricanes as new casualty reports were reported in Santo Domingo.

There were 22 deaths reported in Dominica, 16 in Puerto Rico, and Dominican Republic officials said there could be as many as 1,000 fatalities when all areas in that country were accounted for.

The toll rose dramatically Sunday when officials learned that 400 persons were killed in flooding at Oca, 75 miles southwest of the capital of Santo Domingo.

Thunderstorms Slam Northwestern Texas vicious thunderstorms that occurred during the night.

Tahoka residents measured .26 of an inch of rain and Crosbyton and Tulia had a scant 10.

The forecast for Lubbock and vicinity calls for partly cloudy skies today and tonight with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight. Fair skies are expected for Tuesday, with no important temperature changes.

Highs today and Tuesday are expected to be in the low 90s and lows tonight will be in the middle 60s. Winds will be southerly at 10 to 15 miles per hour today.

Area farmers can look for good to fair drying conditions through Tuesday with about 10 hours of sunshine today and 12 hours Tuesday. Evaporation should be about .30 inch today and Tuesday.

Relative humidity should be about 35 percent this afternoon, peaking at 80 percent Tuesday morning and easing back down to 30 percent Tuesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, power has been restored to areas of Houston blacked out by heavy rains and flooding caused by Tropical Storm Elena, which killed at least two persons in the city.

Police said Sunday one Houston man was electrocuted when he stepped on a fallen power line and another drowned in a flooded underpass.

Houston Lighting and Power reported about 3,000 homes were without power Saturday, after the storm dumped as much 5 inches of rain on parts of the city before it subsided and was re-classified a depression.

Some of the heavy rain contained an oil residue apparently picked up when rain clouds engulfed smoke from a burning oil tanker in the Houston Ship Channel.

The oily droplets were reported as far as 15 miles from the site of the tanker explosion.

"My grandson saw it first," said D.C. Gosey, a Houston resident. "At first I told him the shingles on the top of the house were dirty. But after a while when it didn't stop, I knew it had to be something else. I just know it's going to ruin my yard."

The most serious flooding reported in Houston was in northeast residential sections heavily damaged by high waters last April.

Little or no rain was reported in the western part of the city, but a heavy downpour soaked the downtown region.

The storm inundated the basement of the downtown police station and caused roofs on two buildings to collapse.

Large-scale Italian, German and Spanish immigration in the decades after 1880 spurred modernization in Argentina, making it the most prosperous, educated and industrialized of the major Latin American nations.

forming a curve in the otherwise straight path of the track.

Other loaded cars in the wreckage were carrying company track material, rail ties and fertilizer, posing no threat to the area surrounding the crash.

Merriman said crews will have to wait on trucks and derricks to come from Amarillo and Clovis to clear away the mess.

Trains that would normally follow the damaged track will be re-routed from Clovis and Lubbock through Canyon, Merriman said.

Although traffic was moving along U.S. 84 without too much congestion early today, Santa Fe crew members trying to keep drivers moving along smoothly were not looking forward to increased Labor Day traffic along the highway later in the day.

Miss Metcalf said after the wreckage is cleared, Assistant Superintendent Bob Dixon of Santa Fe's Amarillo office and Slaton trainmaster Paul Buchanan will attempt to determine the cause of the derailment.

MARMADUKE by Brad Anderson Bell Wages Costly Legal Battle

"There, now! Does that satisfy you?"

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bell Telephone Co. has reached out and touched a lot of people in a five-year legal fight to withstand government trustbusters trying to shake the firm's grip on the industry.

AT&T has spent more than $100 million and is hiring about 2,000 people to help prepare its case. And the trial of the massive antitrust suit is still at least a year away.

Telephone users are paying the cost of the legal fight, but the company says it could not increase any individual's bill by more than a few pennies a month. The firm said it has not computed the cost to any users.

"The real cost on both sides is borne by the same people," said Jay Grossman, a spokesman for AT&T. "The government's case is paid for by the taxpayers, and (telephone) ratepayers and taxpayers tend to be the same people."

The Justice Department has said the $2 million it has spent on the case is only a fraction of what the company has spent.

Figures filed with the Federal Communication Commission, show the company spent $37.5 million last year and has spent an additional $32.5 million through June this year.

A government official said the cost to phone users is probably insignificant because the money is spread out among so many people. "What's more significant is that a beleaguered government agency is trying to compete with a corporation with limitless resources," said the official, who asked not to be named.

The Justice Department's antitrust division is trying to force AT&T to divest itself of its Western Electric Co. manufacturing unit and its long-distance subsidiaries, and to force some Bell system operating companies to dispose of certain inercity facilities.

The government suit, filed in 1974, charges the firm with monopolizing the market for telecommunication services and equipment.

Government lawyers say the case is now on a "fast track," thanks to U.S. District Judge Harold Greene in Washington, who has been presiding over it for the past year.

Greene has ordered both sides to complete the pre-trial exchange of information in the case, a process known as discovery, by next April. The trial would begin in September 1980.

Greene's plan for accelerating the AT&T case calls for both sides to progressively narrow the scope of the trial through a series of stipulations, or factual admissions. Rather than take trial testimony on these agreed-upon findings, there would be an extensive record already prepared when the trial gets under way.

The staggering cost of the case for AT&T includes the salaries and fees of a legal staff of about 100, including in-house company lawyers and outside legal help. In addition, there is the cost of a document processing center in Orlando, Fla., where the telephone company has hired a staff of researchers, paralegals and clerks.

There are literally millions of pages of data involved in the suit.

AT&T is also involved in 49 antitrust legal battles with private corporations, including MCI Communications Corp. and Litton Systems Inc.

Some of the additional staff that were hired to fight the government suit are also providing material to be used in the private suits.

West Envisions Safer City Through Crime Line

By DAVE KNAPP
A-J Executive Editor

Buoyed by what he termed were "the sensational results" of Crime Line Inc. last week, Mayor Dirk West has issued a verbal barrage at the criminal element in Lubbock, saying, "We want to make the city as uncomfortable as possible" for all criminals.

Since April 1, Crime Line has cleared approximately 50 unsolved felony cases from police files, including a brutal throat-slashing murder last week.

Two vital tips were received on the Crime Line hotline, 741-1000, and the grievance committee unanimously voted to pay both informants $1,000 rewards.

Regarding the criminal element, West also added, "This segment of society needs to know that if they commit a crime in Lubbock, Crime Line will offer rewards for information leading to their capture."

And, the mayor noted, "They stand a good chance of being photographed in the act of committing an armed robbery and other crimes through the use of 'Crime Eye' cameras now in place. Once they are apprehended, they will face swift prosecution and maximum sentences through the criminal district attorney's office."

"These elements, combined with the constant and thorough work of the Lubbock Police Department, will make Lubbock a safer place in which to live and raise a family," West said.

Rapidly becoming one of the most successful programs of its kind in the nation, Crime Line is financed entirely through contributions. Following last week's murder case developments, several contributions were made to the growing fund. In addition, The West Texas Homebuilders Association announced it had set a goal of $7,500 from members and associates to add to the fund.

Other donations may be mailed to Crime Line Inc., Box 2066, Lubbock, Texas 79457. They are tax deductible.

In today's "spotlight crime" Crime Line is offering $1,000 for information concerning a murder at the El Tropical Club at 302 Municipal Drive.

Officers were summoned there at 10:08 p.m. on Aug. 19, finding Joe Angel Garcia, a security guard, wounded by gunfire and Ralph Baragal Perez dead of gunshot wounds.

Witnesses said that both men were standing at the bar when a dark car—possibly dark green or black Buick or Chevrolet—drove by slowly, westbound on Municipal Drive. As the vehicle passed, numerous shots were fired from the car. A car parked near the entrance of the club also had been struck by gunfire.

Persons having information regarding the incident are urged to call the hotline, 741-1000, within seven days to be eligible for the reward.

Rewards of $300 have been posted for each of the following burglary cases:—Six guns were stolen in a burglary at 4305-B 52nd St. on Aug. 28. Taken were a Smith and Wesson Model 28, .38 caliber pistol with a six-inch barrel, SN N543329; a .38 caliber nickel-plated Colt Cobra with a two-inch barrel, SN80451R; a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson, Model 14, with an 8-7/8-inch barrel, SN 3457812; a .22 caliber Ruger, Model NR-4, single shot, 7/8-inch barrel, SN 66-98265; a .223 caliber Colt AR-15, SNSP-88536; and a Smith and Wesson, Model 19, blue steel pistol, with a six-inch barrel and unknown serial number. All of the guns were stolen from a car at the address.

Forty-six Meerschaum smoking pipes from Turkey with a combined value of $1,500 were stolen in a burglary Aug. 26 at 2115 6th St. All of the pipes had figure heads, were hand-carved and made of clay. Intruders had entered through a bedroom window.

Handley Cabinets in Carlsle were burglarized on Aug. 25. A lock had been broken on a door on the west side of the building, but no forced entry was found at a building on the east side. Stolen were: a Speedair compressor, Model 12724A, with an 80-gallon tank; three Senco headless primers, serial numbers 756910, 76A1026 and 77336; and a Senco stapler, serial number unknown. The items were valued at $2,693.

Labor Chief Says Clements Has Conflict Of Interest Over Spill

MIDLAND (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements has a conflict of interest that taints everything he says or does in connection with the Mexican oil spill that has damaged miles of Texas beaches, the president of the Texas AFL-CIO said today.

Harry Hubbard, in the text for a Labor Day speech, said the governor clearly put his personal interest above the public interest by opposing filing suit against the parties involved in the oil spill in Campeche Bay.

"His own company, SEDCO, owned and leased the drilling rig to the drilling contractors. It was an old rig, which may not have been suitable for use at the depth of water in which they were drilling," Hubbard said.

"Bill Clements represents SEDCO, not the people of Texas, in his view of the oil spill."

He said Clements' statement when the oil began washing ashore in Texas that widespread publicity was "much ado about nothing" reflects an attitude typical of the governor's philosophy.

"By refusing to admit that there was a problem, he put off possible solutions for a month and even now it appears that a business people and employees in the Gulf Coast vacation industry stand to lose hundreds of millions of dollars in lost income and wages," Hubbard said.

"By opposing the suit Clements opposed fixing the blame for the disaster. He either feared the blame might be traceable to his own company, SEDCO, or feared loss of future business in the lease of drilling rigs to Mexico.

"Either way, Clements' interests clearly are in conflict."

Hubbard said the governor should have demanded that those at fault for the oil spill pay for cleaning up the beaches and compensate the tourist industry in Texas for lost revenue.

"The total cost will exceed $100 million," Hubbard predicted.

"Although the taxpayers are being asked to bear a great deal of the cost burden, there is no way it was our fault. We did nothing wrong, yet we are having to spend tens of millions to clean up someone else's mess."

Governor Signs Order Ending Gas Rationing

DALLAS (AP) — Odd-even gas rationing, in effect in 17 counties since June, ended early today, its demise brought on by the end of long lines at Texas service stations.

Gov. Bill Clements, who ordered the rationing first in Harris, Dallas and Tarrant counties and later extended it to 14 others, had intended for the system to end at the end of September. Most of the other 14 counties were counties near Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston.

Clements signed an executive order last Tuesday, bringing the rationing system to an end a month early.

The only portion of the odd-even executive order to remain in force will be the $6 minimum purchase rule, the governor said. This, he said, should prevent "topping" of gasoline tanks.

"I think the situation has eased to the point that it's no longer necessary," he said in signing the order.

The end came after the lines ended and most service stations were back to staying open hours similar to the ones they used prior to the gas crunch in early June.

The rationing system, using the last digit of an automobile's license plate to determine days when the driver could purchase gasoline, was credited for bringing an end to the miles-long gasoline lines in several of Texas' largest cities.

In implementing the system in June, Clements said it would not increase gasoline supplies, but would bring an end to panic buying and "topping."

Clements said he may put the program into effect again next spring if supplies are again tight and lines at service stations lengthen.

Missing Body Located In Debris Of Tanker

DEER PARK (AP) — Coast Guard inspectors examining the burned and broken hulk of the Chevron Hawaii recovered the body of a missing radar technician from the main deck of the demolished oil tanker.

However, inspectors found no trace Sunday of two other men missing since the 870-ton tanker exploded Saturday — sending a wave of burning crude spreading across the Houston Ship Channel.

At least 12 other persons were injured, none seriously, in the fiery blast was being withheld by officials.

Firefighters contained the raging inferno late Saturday, preventing its spread to other tanker docks across the channel.

The flaming alcohol storage tank was allowed to burn itself out Sunday after futile attempts to extinguish the blaze with foam.

Coast Guard inspectors who flew over the Ship Channel Sunday to assess the pollution caused by the disaster said oil from the ship was "pocketing in natural coves," and should be easy to clean up.

"The pollution situation looks good provided we don't have any major wind shifts," said Lt. Edwin Guffey. "We don't anticipate any major environmental damage."

Guffey said about 50,000 barrels of oil were in the tanker when it exploded, but he could not estimate how much leaked into the channel.

Coast Guard Lt. Harry Lee said the partially submerged hulk of the Chevron Hawaii, which sailed out of San Francisco, would not affect navigation at the port since it was tied up at the side of the channel.

The explosion and fire, which began at 2:18 p.m. Saturday, tore the Chevron Hawaii in half and burned about half of it to the waterline, the Coast Guard said.

that rocked the vessel and surrounding area, ignited a nearby ethyl alcohol storage and burned a dock.

The Coast Guard plans a formal hearing Tuesday to investigate the cause of the explosion that destroyed the tanker, three barges, the storage tank and the dock — damages that total an estimated $10 million.

"Initial reports from investigators are that lightning struck the vessel or the tank nearby with the resulting explosion and fire," said Commander J.J. Wicks of the Coast Guard marine inspector's office.

Eyewitnesses told the Coast Guard they saw a bolt of lightning strike the deck of the ship during unloading operations Saturday afternoon.

The Harris County medical examiner's office identified the dead man Sunday as Daniel W. Beemer, 32 of Houston.

He was one of two Raytheon Co. technicians servicing the ship's radar at the time of the blast. The other — still missing — technician has been identified as David Strout, 28, also of Houston.

U.S. Postal Service Projects Surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service is heading into the final month of the fiscal year with high hopes of winding up with its first budget surplus since 1945.

That is not to say, however, that the agency is anywhere close to showing a real profit. The projected surplus of more than $400 million for the year ending Sept. 30 includes a $1 billion government subsidy. And even that qualified respite from red ink promises to be short lived.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K954 ♥65 ○K1072 ♣A98
 Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Your hand is too strong for a simple raise to two spades but a bit underweight for a jump to three spades. Make a waiting bid of two diamonds, then raise spades at your next turn.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠42 ♥KQJ1075 ○A748 ♣7
 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ 2♣ Dbl. Pass ?

A.—Our tendency is to respect partner's penalty doubles, but not with this holding. Our hand is offensively oriented, with a self-sufficient suit and little in the way of defense. We would bid two hearts. Any other action earns a fat demerit.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠4 ♥QJ8763 ○AK5 ♣J76
 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ 2♣ Dbl. Pass ?

A.—As we remarked above, we do not pull partner's doubles except on rare occasions. Here we have two sound defensive tricks, three aces in the opponent's trump suit and a singleton, so there is every reason to expect a juicy penalty, and none to suppose that we have any better spot. Another factor in favor of this decision is the likelihood that partner is short in hearts, which makes a retreat to two hearts less appealing.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q75 ♥532 ○A1094 ♣82
 The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1NT 2♣ ?

A.—Strike while the iron is hot. Since your side can probably make no more than a partial, double and collect what should be at least a 300-point penalty, and what could easily be 700 or more.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A955 ♥52 ○KQ75 ♣532
 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♣ 3♥ 2♣ 3♥ 4♣ 5♥ ?

A.—With full values for your first two aces, you are entitled to both offense and defense, but you don't know which to choose. Therefore, pass. That doesn't mean that you are frightened of further competition. You are simply giving partner the courtesy of the road. Whether he starts to bid on or double, you will make by his decision. With a weaker, less offensively-oriented hand, you should double to warn partner that your hand is not suitable for five spades.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠A76 ○AK1095 ○AQ107 ♣5
 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ Pass 2♥ Pass 3♣ Pass 4♥ Pass ?

A.—Even though partner made a mild response at his last turn, there is still a possibility of slam. Partner liked your diamonds enough to jump to game, so the hands appear to fit well. Since eleven tricks should be safe, we would make a slam try by cue-bidding four spades.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KJ34 ♥AKQ4 ○AJ7 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ Dbl. Pass 2♣ ?

A.—A competitive bid of two hearts not only does not do your hand justice. It also rules out two other perfectly playable suits. The correct action is to double. Since partner has not yet spoken, this double is for takeout, while allowing partner the option of passing for penalties. The fact that West made a takeout double doesn't prevent you from taking similar action.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠104 ♥1097 ○KQ9 ♣AJ642
 The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1♣ 3♠ ?

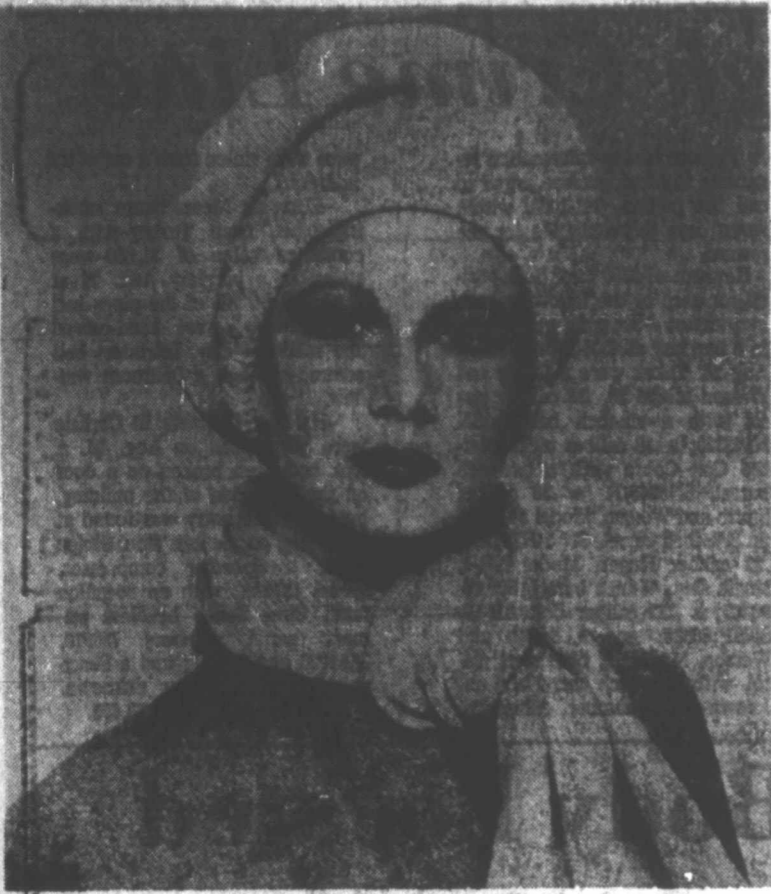

What action do you take?

A.—If partner has a minimum opening bid, game is doubtful for your side. However, on defense against a diamond contract, your hand should produce at least three tricks, so the odds are that you will be able to defeat the contract. Double; you could not get up to 800 points—more if East is a true spirit. But even if the contract is fulfilled, no major harm will have been done.

Club Notables

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
 Family News Staff

The pace of activities for the many service, cultural and social clubs in and around Lubbock is beginning to quicken as the children return to classes and college and university students return to the city.

Many clubs do plan their program year to coincide with the school year. So it is appropriate to begin this very first Club Notables column with a hearty wish for a happy and successful new year to all the clubs in the area.

This column will appear each Monday evening in the Family News section of the Avalanche-Journal. It will contain advance notice of upcoming events, notes about special program features which are not included in the regular Sunday Club Calendar listing, and interesting (we hope!) bits of information about clubs and their members. Please help make this column interesting and informative by providing us with some of the details about what your club is doing.

This week we learned from Lillian Williams and Rita Cannon that a new chapter of P.E.O. will be formed in Lubbock Sept. 20. This will be the sixth chapter of that organization in the Hub City. Thirteen women will comprise the charter membership of this chapter and state officers are expected to be in attendance at its organization.

Nancy Higgins of Lubbock will be the

BERNIER-BAXLEY
 Ruth Ann Bernier and Jimmy Allen Baxley were married Sunday in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony in Grace Chapel. The Rev. Gregory Hagg officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Bernier and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sharron.

Honor attendants were Rosanne Reeves of Mooreland, Okla., cousin of the bride, and Tim Richardson.

The couple was graduated from Dunbar High School. The couple plans to live in Lubbock.

SUTTON-ZIMMERMAN
 MIDLAND (Special) — Debra Sutton became the bride of Scott Zimmerman Saturday in a 7 p.m. ceremony in First Christian Church. The Rev. Steve Edwards officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Sutton and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Zimmerman of Brea, Ca. are parents of the couple.

Honor attendants were Patty Campbell and Trey Ford.

The couple was graduated from Robert E. Lee High School and Texas Tech University.

Following a wedding trip to Horseshoe Bay, the couple will live in Casper, Wyo.

speaker for Tuesday's luncheon meeting of Lubbock Christian Women at the civic center. Magdalen Carpenter will display her bonnet collect. Rejane Wood will present a special musical program.

Pat McWhorter wants Lubbock residents to be aware of an organization known as the South Plains Four-Wheel Drive Club.

This is a club which sponsors activities in which the entire family can participate, according to Mrs. McWhorter. Club members take part in games and rallies and exploring expeditions, she said. Anyone interested in knowing more about this club may call her at 790-6201. Meetings are held on the first and third Mondays of the month at 5 p.m. at the Farmers' Coop Complex, 3009 Southeast Drive.

The American Association of University Women (AAUW) will have its annual membership tea Saturday at the Women's Club. The program will feature fashions for career women. Diana Maddrew, club vice-president is in charge of the membership drive.

The Llano Estebado Audubon Society will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Garden & Arts Center to hear a presentation by Frank Temple on the cultural aspects of the Anasazi and Pueblo Indians from 1 AD to 1492. The society also plans a field trip to find early fall migrant birds Saturday.

Speakers at the Thursday meeting of the Lubbock League of Women Voters will be Tech law professor, Don Benson, and assistant supervisor of the Federal Prison Camp at Big Spring, Jerome Edwards. Edwards will discuss how the prison system works and the rehabilitation programs available to inmates. Benson will discuss methods of rehabilitating offenders outside of correctional institutions. The meeting will be held at St. John's United Methodist Church at 11:45 a.m.

THIS WEEK AT THE LUBBOCK WOMEN'S CLUB: Eager for all of its members to see and admire the newly redecorated clubhouse, the Lubbock Women's Club will have a coffee Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Sunday's Family News section featured more news about the year ahead.

Friday, new members of the Women's Club will be welcomed at a luncheon. All club members are invited and reservations are necessary.

Please let us know about some "notable" activities of your club. Deadline for information to be included in this column is Thursdays at 5 p.m.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem, but my friend suggested I write for a consultation on what she thinks is a most unusual situation. She couldn't believe it when I told her that my husband and I have been happily married for nine years and have never consummated our marriage.

I am a physician who prefers practice in the United States, and my husband is a career officer in a foreign military service, based abroad, 3,000 miles away. We are both in our 30s. We see each other only three times a year for a week at a time. We knew how little time we would have together, but married anyway because we truly love each other.

We express our love by hugging and kissing, but always stop short of completing the act of love because we agree it's easier to live in total abstinence than open ourselves up to insufferable frustrations during our long separation.

We are a well-adjusted, heterosexual couple without organic dysfunctions or psychological hang-ups. We are living proof that a sexless marriage can be fulfilling. Some may think we're weird. Perhaps you do.

My friend insisted that I get a prescription from Dear Abby. However, I don't think there's anything wrong that needs fixing. What is your opinion?

DOING FINE WITHOUT

DEAR DOING FINE: Yours is a most unusual case, doctor. But if you and your husband are totally fulfilled in a sexless marriage, I agree — there's nothing that needs fixing. I can only wish you continued abstinence, because if you ever find out what you've been missing, you may kill yourself.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are fit to be tied! Our son is also angry. My sister says we are making something out of nothing. Here is the situation: My sister's daughter will be married soon. It will be a semi-large affair. Our older son (30) and his wife received an invitation to attend the wedding.

Our youngest son (26) is unmarried and presently living with us. He did not receive a separate invitation. Instead, my husband and I received an invitation addressed to MR. AND MRS. JOHN SMITH AND SON.

My son also feels that he should be allowed to bring a date. Who is right and who is wrong?

J.S.

DEAR J.S.: As an adult, your son should have been sent a separate invitation. However, unless he has a steady girlfriend, he should not dig up a "date" for the occasion.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for CAN'T SLEEP, whose conscience is bothering her over the neglect of her elderly mother, recently deceased.

Go to the nearest nursing home and "adopt" a "mother." Do for her what you wish you had done for your own mother. What enormous pleasure a drive in the country, a small gift, or even a few fresh flowers would mean to an elderly "forgotten-by-family" resident in a nursing home. If you can't take her out, you can go and visit with her and let her reminisce awhile. You will gain a lot. I CAN SLEEP

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

You hear a lot of talk these days about the marriages that don't last.

One of my favorite parts of the newspaper is the section devoted to couples celebrating their 50th wedding anniversaries.

Some of the photographs reflect embarrassment over the fuss being made. Some show them standing three feet apart. Some husbands and wives even look alike.

But the part I like best is where they sum up their lives together. The other day I read where one couple said, "We've hauled water by horse and wagon, coped with the cold and the deep snow, raised and educated a family of ten, and lost a daughter, Virginia."

That's 50 years of living — condensed in 27 words.

You have to wonder. Were there other moments? Did they hang wallpaper together? Argue about who slept next to the wall? Toast a no-baby month? Become jealous over a guidance counselor?

Did she get sick of his same joke year after year? Did he tire of hearing about her arthritis? Did they wonder about their future together the year he taught her how to drive?

The year his mother babysat and cleaned her oven? Was he cheap? Was she boring?

Did he have an annoying habit of picking his teeth with his tongue and making a clicking noise that drove her up the wall? Did she say every night for 30 years when he walked through the front door, "Is that you?"

Did they really love one another through fevers, flu, fatness, nausea, irritability and sarcasm — or did they just hang on?

Did they disappoint one another when the baby died, when he lost his job, or when she felt neglected?

Did she ever know he hated peppers in his meat loaf and she had put peppers in the meat loaf for 50 years? Did he ever suspect she hated house slippers without heels, but buy them every Christmas?

Ten children, that's a lot of shoes, a lifetime of overbites, an eternity of "Can I see" — endless evenings of PTA's, an uninterrupted span of "We've got the children to think about."

Golden anniversaries — like the metal — are very precious in this country. Pound for pound, they outclass everything else.

How do they do it? Different ways. As one golden celebrant replied when he was asked how he held on so long, "I have hopes of getting in the last word."

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

Tech Offers Two Family Courses

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Two courses being offered this semester in the Department of Home and Family Life of the College of Home Economics at Texas Tech University will focus on child development and parenting.

Both courses are open to interested persons without professional training. They are taught in conjunction with the two TV series "Footsteps" and "The Growing Years."

June Read, a doctoral candidate with experience in family and marital counseling, will teach the course Family Relationships 2324. It will be a practical course, offering insight into several approaches to parenting which are popular today, such as positive self regard, social learning, and development skills.

Classes will be small in order to facilitate interchange among students who may be parents or future parents, teachers, or other lay persons interested in working with children. One aspect of the course will be a project in which the students will "adopt" a child with whom to practice their skills.

The course is offered through the Division of Continuing Education and students may register through the Division or at the first class meeting Tuesday at 6 p.m. in Home Economics 230.

Another course, "Child Growth and Development," (CD 2303) will be taught by Dr. Paul McGhee. The television series for this course is "The Growing Years," and students will attend two class meetings a week in addition to their viewing; one of the whole class and one with smaller groups.

According to Dr. McGhee, this course is not designed to give advice on how to raise children but to provide background information to help students be aware of the important dimensions along which children develop.

Historical, sociological and other aspects of child development will be called upon for the course. It will consider the basic aspects of the child's intellectual, physical and personality development at different age levels and explain why developmental patterns occur as they do.

Students may register for the course up until the meeting of the first class Tuesday night. More information may be obtained by calling Dr. McGhee at 742-2892, or the departmental office.

Clip 'n' Cook

BIRD OF PARADISE BREAD
(Makes 1 Large Loaf)

¾ cup warm water (105-115 degrees)
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 tsp. sugar
2 tsp. salt
¼ cup plain yogurt (at room temperature)
2 tbsps. margarine, softened
¾ cup all-purpose flour
1 tsp. milk
1 large piece pimiento, cut into a star
4 slices Muenster cheese, cut into 1-inch triangles
4 1-inch square ham slices, about ¼-inch thick

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in active dry yeast; stir until dissolved. Stir in sugar, salt, yogurt, 1 egg and margarine. Add 1½ cups flour; beat until smooth. Add enough additional flour to form a soft dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Shape into a ball. Flatten to a 10-inch circle. Place on greased baking sheet. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Combine remaining egg and milk; brush surface of bread with mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Remove from oven. Brush again with egg mixture. Place pimiento star in center of circle. Arrange cheese triangles in a cross pattern pointing outward. Place a ham square in between each triangle. Return to oven and continue baking for 15 minutes, or until done. Remove from sheet and place on wire rack to cool.

Club Auctions Bust To Pay Tax Debt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "In this world, nothing is certain but death and taxes," said Benjamin Franklin 190 years ago.

And what better proof of the well-known adage than the auctioning of a bronze bust of Philadelphia's foremost statesman to satisfy a tax debt of the Poor Richard Club?

week as a steel cable was noosed around Franklin's neck to lower the bust from above the door of the club, where it had served as a symbol for 52 years.

It joined other auction items ranging from kitchen equipment to grandfather clocks — all being sold to pay off $20,000 owed to the Internal Revenue Service.

"I came here 16 years ago and this city has been good to me. I want to put Franklin in my restaurant," said Paul Rimmer, a self-described "Philadelphia freak" and promoter who paid $775 for the crowning touch to his new restaurant's decor.

The 200-pound likeness of Franklin was given to the Poor Richard Club many years ago by Adm. Richard E. Byrd.

The club, which opened in 1927, was a fraternity of advertising, journalism and public relations professionals. In June, the building that housed the club closed after being sold to a local union, which plans to use the structure and an adjacent building for offices.

Although the Poor Richard Club didn't have enough money to pay off its taxes, members continue to meet at another location.

An IRS spokesman said at the end of last week's auction, almost $30,000 worth of items had been sold, including some artifacts made from wood taken from Independence Hall.

The bust of Franklin was one of 185 items purchased by the 300 persons attending the auction.

One man paid $3,250 for a grandfather clock and another spent $3,200 for an Oriental rug.

For the record, Franklin did not give the sage advice about death and taxes in his famous Poor Richard's Almanac.

The words, according to Bartlett's Book of Quotations, were penned in a letter to an M. Leroy in 1789. Franklin wrote of his faith that the new republic would survive, but added there are only two certainties in this world.

Hunger Strike Staged By Sara Jane Moore

ALDERSON, W.Va. (UPI) — Miffed at being isolated from her fellow inmates, Sara Jane Moore is staging a hunger strike in the women's prison where she is serving a life term for an abortive attempt to kill former President Gerald Ford.

Another inmate said Mrs. Moore began refusing her meals Aug. 10 to protest confinement in the detention area of the Federal Correctional Institution for Women.

Mrs. Moore, of Charleston, W.Va., was sentenced to life for firing shots at Ford in 1975 in San Francisco. A middle-aged radical who says she does not regret shooting at Ford, escaped the West Virginia prison Feb. 5 but was caught with another inmate in a matter of hours a short distance away.

POOR RICHARD — A bust of Benjamin Franklin was lowered from its perch above the door of the Poor Richard Club recently to be auctioned off to help pay the club's $20,000 tax debt to the Internal Revenue Service, perhaps proving true Franklin's adage that "Nothing is certain but death and taxes." Rubber Band Comes Apart

By SHARI LEWIS

How would you like to do a trick where someone else sticks a length of string through the loop of a rubber band, and holds both ends of the string very tightly. You cover the rubber band with a handkerchief, and when you remove the handkerchief, the band is now knotted around the center of the string. You very gently pull on the band and it comes completely free of the cord — sounds good, eh?

Well, the reason you can do this trick is one your audience never suspects — the rubber band comes apart and goes back together! Here's how:

Take a rubber band about two to three inches long and one-eighth of an inch wide and cut it through the center of either end with a sharp pair of scissors. Now put a dab of rubber cement on the cut surface of each end and let it dry. Stick the two ends firmly together so you don't see any crack where it's been cut. Have a piece of string about two feet long and a handkerchief and you're all set.

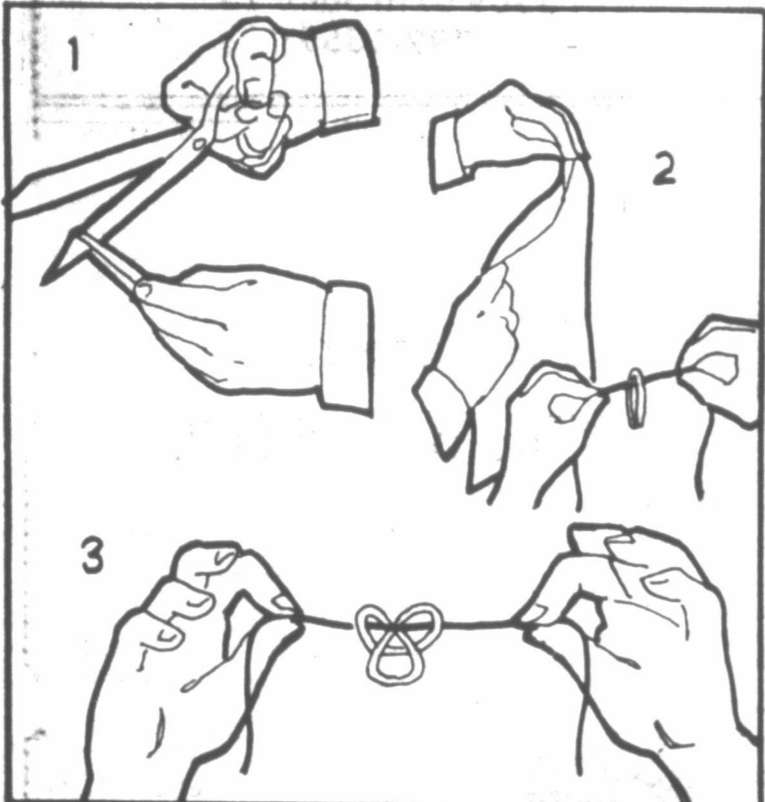

Hand one end of the string to someone. Have him thread the rubber band onto it, and give the person the other end of the string, too. Cover it with the handkerchief. Now reach under the cloth and pull the two ends of the band apart. Remove the band from the string, press the two ends back together, and the cement will make them stick once again. Pull one end of the band around the string and put it through the loop formed by the other end.

Remove the handkerchief to show the band, apparently now knotted onto the string. Pull on the short loop and the band will come off the string into your hand.

Do you think that was really magic or is that stretching it?

Today's Brain Twister: I can think of a couple of ways to write the number 100 by using five identical digits. How about you? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Space Age Fitness Center Popularized By Isokinetics

Space Age Fitness Center, Lubbock's newest fitness center, uses isokinetic equipment to provide individualized fitness programs for all ages. Located in Monterey Center, with a south entry adjacent to Super M, Space Age Fitness Center is open from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m., Mondays through Fridays. Everyone is encouraged to come by and try out the unique equipment, or one can call 793-8775 for further information. (Space Age Fitness will be closed today in Labor Day observance.) "Women and other busy people like the Space Age Fitness Center," its local owner reports, "because it was designed to meet the needs of people who do not have the time other fitness programs demand. Only 15 minutes a day, three times a week, is all the time it takes, and this 15 minutes a day is equal to 1 1/2 hours of tennis or swimming." Limited-Time Offer Both six-month and 12-month programs are available, and for a limited time a special offer is in effect, with memberships at $50 off during this offer. So don't delay; check now for savings and new satisfaction. "The most advanced form of strength building today involves a newly discovered principle. Top coaches, trainers, athletes, doctors and physical therapists agree that this one is superior," Space Age management emphasizes. "It is called isokinetics, and it is the basis of an extra-ordinary new line of strength-building equipment for athletics, physical therapy and consumer use. Principle Explained "Because of the simple principle of accommodating resistance, it is virtually impossible to accidentally exceed the user's physical limitations. When a true isokinetic exerciser, such as the Mini-Gym, is used, resistance equal to the force being exerted is instantly and automatically developed throughout the full range of the exercise being performed.

"There is no eccentric contraction and no sore muscles. With isokinetics, muscles relax momentarily between repetitions. This gives the blood time to clean the lactic acid from all the cells that make up the muscles. When an isotonic unit is used, muscles do not relax between repetitions. The weight must return and this muscle contraction continues to restrict the flow of blood and the natural cleansing process. "Isokinetic resistance creates no erratic or unstable muscular movements. All muscles are worked in direct proportion to each other." Doesn't this make sense? Then become acquainted now with the unique Space Age Fitness Center, locally owned and opened in May, enjoying enthusiastic reception at its Monterey Center location. "Call now, at 793-8775, or come by the facility and learn how Space Age Fitness Center can fit into your own fitness program."

Finish-Off Stripping Center Serving At Avenue E Address

The do-it-yourselfer no longer need endure the fumes, mess and time-consuming labor of stripping down articles for refinishing? Finish-Off Stripping Center is introducing to the Lubbock area a unique process that quickly and thoroughly removes layers of paint, stain and varnish. The process is safe for wood, metal and other materials, and does not damage the original surface like harsh commercial products and related methods can. Finish-Off Stripping Center is new to Lubbock, established by long-time Lubbock businessman L.K. Lankford. Operating businesses here for about 20 years, Lankford is still associated with House Clinic. He was the founding owner of Arcadia Stone Manufacturing. Long involved in the home improvement field, Lankford has secured for Lubbock and Finish-Off Stripping Center, the exclusive rights to the Houck's process for professional stripping. The nearest comparable facility specializing in this unique process is located in Dallas. Explains Need Lankford commented that he "felt there was a definite need in this area, since many people enjoy refinishing but don't like the messy part." Now at a reasonable cost, Finish-Off Stripping Center can accomplish the hard work, leaving the do-it-yourselfer the fun part.

Even the largest furniture pieces can be completely stripped without having to be dismantled. Glued joints, formica insets or thin wood veneers are not damaged. The process is safe for even marble or stained glass. Advantages Cited Antique dealers and other individuals involved with restoration of treasured heirlooms have already discovered the advantages of the service offered by Finish-Off Stripping Center. Pieces with ornately carved designs, curved spindles or other hard-to-reach places can be the at-home refinisher's nightmare. At Finish-Off Stripping Center, the most unreachable cracks and crevices are cleared of the old finish or stain. The most delicate of details is safely preserved, and valuable antiques protected from stripping hazards. Grease, grime and rust are dissolved away, making the process useful for cleaning tools and equipment. A rust preventative coating is applied to protect any metal surface until the item can be refinished. Among articles already processed by the recently opened business have been antique car parts for restoring and a Mercedes trunk lid in need of repainting. Other interesting collector's items and decorative pieces received at the Center have included old milk cans, kitchen scales and a hand drill press, in addition to an assortment of chairs, tables, cabinet and antique wardrobes. "Know-How" Assured Owner-operator Lankford and his wife, Barbara, who assists in the business, attended sessions last May in Atlanta, Georgia, to receive their specialized training in the exclusive stripping process. Since then, they have been setting up equipment and assembling materials for the Finish-Off Stripping Center. A representative from the company's home office in Stamford, New York, joined them initially when they began operating on Aug. 9 to oversee the beginning and to train shop foreman David Corder. Lankford and his staff plan to expand their services to offer replacement hardware and refinishing supplies in the future. "What have you got that you've been 'intending' to refinish but have put off because of the dreaded mess and hassle of stripping? Call customer relations director Kenan Curry at 747-3938 or bring your articles to be stripped by Finish-Off Stripping Center at 1922 Avenue E. Achieve completely professional results for your refinishing work by using the quick, thorough and safe process offered exclusively in Lubbock by Finish-Off Stripping Center."

Childress Hardware Serving From New Home, New Address

Meet an old friend... but with a new address and a new functionally beautiful building to serve even better! It is the Fred Childress Hardware, now at 10th & H (915 Ave. H), just a block north of the former 902 Main Street location that has been home of hardware since way back in 1917!

It is no idle statement that hardware needs of the area have been met for decades by the Childress Hardware and its predecessors. As a bit of history, it is recounted that the old Cole-Myrick Hardware was established at 902 Main in 1917. Within a few years ownership passed to the Nislar interests, with Fred Childress in 1924 going to work for that ownership. Then in 1934, just a decade later, the firm was purchased by Childress and O.A. Terry. Then in 1959, Terry disposed of his interest.

The Fred Childress Hardware, Inc., is owned by Dick Jay and Leslie Duncan who have long served at this time-proven and time-honored establishment that prides in stocking needs of the day for every year, every season.

The former Main Street building has been razed to make way for other use of the property, and the new and beautiful building at 915 H marks even greater capacity for service.

Away from the "congested area," more and easier parking is enabled, yet the business still is on a major traffic artery to conveniently serve city and area. The new building was specifically designed for Childress Hardware, and the open displays and other built-in conveniences certainly do not detract from the traditional Childress image of "we appreciate you as a customer and friend, and we're glad you came to see us."

Whether one's immediate concerns and needs involve winter preparation (even need of fireplace accessories, etc.), security via quality mortise locks, or even the unusual hardware items, likely still the first and only place necessary to check is Childress Hardware, now at 10th & H.

Childress for years has stocked the finest in security hardware, and possibly at no time has "security" been more in the minds of most people than today. And properly so. It would be foolish, then to consider security for the home of business without attention to the locks, such as dead bolts etc., that are among the products stocked at Childress.

Correct tools and equipment can be the big item in convenience and accomplishment in numerous home operations or by the professional builder throughout the year, and for these tools, one can rely with certainty upon the Fred Childress Hardware.

For those who appreciate good hand tools, there is a wide stock, including the respected name of Stanley, Crescent, Thorson, Nicholson, Bluegrass, Disston, Lufkin, Plumb and others long associated with quality and integrity in tool-making.

On and on the list could go in enumerating the lawn and the building needs provided at Childress Hardware, but suffice it to say that "if it is in the hardware line, you can get it there."

Thousands of items
One can purchase an old-fashioned sprinkling can or a lawn watering device that negotiates your yard; a well pulley or a lamp chimney; actually more than 10,000 items.

Childress Hardware continues as a popular place with carpenters and craftsmen, who make it headquarters for nails of all sizes, as well as a wide range of other fastenings including stove bolts, cap screws, carriage bolts, machine screws, metal screws, wood screws and brass screws, chain, rope — you name it, for home, industrial or farm use.

Cabinet Hardware
The Fred Childress Hardware also stocks one of the most extensive line of cabinet hardware in the city, with latest designs in hinges, pulls and latches attractively displayed. Here again brands such as Stylecraft, Christensen, Phylrick and Planstiel are indicative of top quality and design.

"May we have the pleasure of serving you soon... and often... at our new home, 10th at H?"

Enrollment Possible In Several Mrs. B's Classes

Openings still are available in a number of the classes beginning at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts and Gifts, 5106 29th Drive, phone 797-5850.

This good news means that one still can have fun, achieve and progress in the variety of art and craft pursuits fostered by the popular southwest Lubbock shop.

To be sure of inclusion in one or more of the classes, early arrangements including pre-registration is necessary.

Appreciated Instructors
Canvas oil painting instruction again will be by Frankie "Pee Wee" Lanier.
Sarah Storrs continues as a very popular and capable tile painting instructor.
One of two newest additions to the teaching group at Mrs. B's is Connie Anderson whose tile classes have been eagerly awaited. Connie graduated in 1975 from Stephen F. Austin State University, majoring in art, and she has pursued art related endeavors since that time. She will instruct at Mrs. B's at both the beginning and intermediate levels.
The other new instructor is Jerry Carper who will conduct once-a-week classes in calligraphy. Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts is especially glad to provide this unique opportunity.

Special Workshops
Special workshops and demonstrations have been arranged for forthcoming weeks, and one is invited to inquire for details regarding these "Specials" featuring Charl Egeland, popular Lubbock tile instructor; Charles Lyles, widely recognized artist from Hereford; Jeanie Lewis of Houston (and always popular here); and Jo Daugherty, local artist hardly needing introduction.

Aside from instruction, Mrs. B's has much to offer.
Owner-operator Margie Berryhill has just returned from market, and new merchandise already is arriving in anticipation of fall project and Christmas preparation needs.

Special On Frames
A good assortment of sizes and styles in picture frames is stocked, with a current "25 per cent off" effective.
(Mrs. B's stocks oils by Grumbacher, Rembrandt, Windsor Newton, Shiva and Permanent Pigment, together with the newly-added Louvre oils. Studio and table easels are stocked, as are numerous other supplies.

Inclusion In Comprehensive Program Still Enabled At Hamilton Gymnastics

As new-term classes are starting at Hamilton Gymnastics, further reminder is given:
Enrollment still is possible.
There are openings for pre-school participants;
A new aerobics exercise class is offered and proving popular.
So why delay; check now with Hamilton Gymnastics, phone 793-1013, at 4811 W. Loop 289 (corner of 50th and the Loop).
A comprehensive curriculum, top-grade instructors, team achievement and facilities that excel are among factors that have made quite a name for Hamilton Gymnastics.

Wide Program
Instruction is afforded in pre-school gymnastics, the regular gymnastics program including tumbling and apparatus; dance, beginner to advanced ballet, jazz and adult ballet; the new aerobics dance class primarily for adults, affording a most desirable dance/conditioning program; cheerleading and baton.

Johnny Hamilton, director of Hamilton Gymnastics, instructs in many classes, together with a blue ribbon team.
Wayne Downing is assistant and has had four years training under Hamilton and has directed gym camps in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.
Hamilton is a former NCAA All-American, Big 10 champion and in 1967 ranked fourth in the world professional champions (gymnastics). He has lived in Lubbock some six years and has earned quite a following in his gym program. He is an Amarillo native.

Sharon Storey, in her third year with the Hamilton organization, is an internationally certified director, along with Elizabeth Gillas. Sharon and Elizabeth have developed a ballet program based on classic ballet techniques and also developing the student along the lines of the performing artist. Both have had extensive training under national artists of the dance world.
Elizabeth Gillas has performed in the American Ballet Theatre School in New York and at the North Carolina School of the Arts, attending each on full scholarship. This is her second year with Hamilton.

Baton instruction will be by a new addition to the Hamilton staff, Terrie Caffey who marks 12 years baton experience and coming here from the Dallas-Fort Worth area.
"We are really excited about the addition of Terrie and the super job anticipated in this department," Hamilton adds.
Karen Cleveland again is on hand as Class III gymnastics team coach, always doing a super job.
Add to this that large, ultra-modern facilities are provided, and one understands the popularity of Hamilton Gymnastics. Don't be left out in the forthcoming programs; come out and visit the big Hamilton Gymnastics School, 50th Street at Loop 289, becoming acquainted with the super staff and facilities, or phone 793-1013 for added details.

LUBBOCK, TEXAS

IN SECURITY PARK — Connie Gregory and daughter Dee Justice, owners-operators of the Well Body Shop, are shown in front of the establishment that has understandably been quite well received in Lubbock. Check the accompanying report for revelations regarding the unique store's stock, purpose and innovations.

Well Body Shop's Uniqueness, Benefits Specifically Listed

There must be a reason when so many Lubbock and area residents turn to the Well Body Shop for leadership in natural foods (and the juice bar)! To fathom the popularity of this unique establishment at B-21 in Security Park, 3602 Slide Road, phone 793-1015, the following question-answer approach is presented to outline "what is the Well Body Shop, why does it exist, and what it can do for you."

Q. In short, why is the Well Body Shop unique in Lubbock?

A. Possibly five factors make it so. We have the only juice bar, the only grain grinder, customers tell us we have the greatest selection of natural foods, and we stock bulk grains (19 on hand presently), and we have what we believe the best herb selection in the area.

Q. Why was this shop established?

A. Well Body Shop was opened in June '78 by Dee Justice and mother, Connie Gregory. Dee's interest in natural foods could be dated from her first pregnancy, and Connie became acutely interested during an illness; both became aware of wrong eating habits, did something about it in their own situations, and then decided to assist in the health and well being of others. They report the store was opened after they discovered many of their natural food and related needs were unavailable elsewhere.

Q. What is meant by natural foods?

A. Natural foods are not processed or preserved; our life style has become so fast that we often just open a box — that may have more preservatives than food value! We help circumvent this practice.

Q. What are customer and doctor reactions to your type store?

A. Many customers come in with a list of needed natural foods from their doctor. Pregnant women seem especially interested in the right diet. (Diets for hyper-active children are available here — the Dr. Feingold special diet as publicized on the Donahue show, etc.) Dee can assist in vegetarian diet recommendations, and Connie is especially adept with diets and vitamins in low blood sugar instances.

Q. What is the juice bar?

A. The popular juice bar provides nutrition and goodness and really appealing modest prices... great for meal-time, snacktime or for school students lunchtime, for sure. Discover in the bar the honey ice cream and milkshakes, each without sugar; the fresh orange juice, fresh carrot juice, high-energy drinks, blended fruit drinks, the highly acclaimed "Smoothie" with protein and lecithin and even yogurt, etc., and the children's Super Kid drinks that are nutritious but still money-saving.

Q. Are there other items within the shop?

A. Definitely so! Everything in the shop is related to natural foods, however. We suggest you check for exciting arrivals at all times. There are the sprouting seeds, as example, to be grown indoors for fresh vitamins and proteins, a complete and natural food ready in three to seven days. And the Arrowhead Mills all-organic foods from Hereford. And juicers and grain grinders stocked for sale. We believe a fantastic stock and an attractive, beneficial store is provided, open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., six days a week.

Edwards & Abernathie Offers 'All Points', Other Services

"Edwards & Abernathie, Realtors, stands tall in the field! Don't just take our word for it; check the record; discover how this Lubbock firm recently won second award out of 700 offices in all points for conversion of referrals with this recognition conveyed at a Washington D.C. meeting."

"Total real estate service" is the picture at Edwards & Abernathie, 3217 34th St., phone 792-5166, with insurance and even arrangement of financing.

Staff Excels

"Edwards & Abernathie Realtors is fortunate in having an outstanding staff headed by veterans in the business. Bernice Turquette is real estate director. Pat Hobbs in relocation director, and Everette Abernathie and Jimmie Edwards are partners in the firm.

Various phases of the firm's services are pinpointed from time to time on these pages, and this week attention is especially directed to the All Points Team that gives you total relocation.

'Total' Relocation Service

Among advantages of this Edwards & Abernathie service are:

"We'll help you sell your old home;

we'll help you find a new home; we'll even arrange to get you there; we'll make your stay enjoyable (when you arrive at your destination, there'll be a clean, new Avis car waiting for you, if you wish); we'll help move you; and arrangements for all these extra services are free!

"Through us, you can have your next move completely taken care of for you.

"For Best Move You'll Ever Make"

"Yes, at the same time we're lining up prospects to buy your present home, we'll be finding you a new one to move into. Our experienced All Points member in your destination city will be screening possibilities according to your requirements and budget; he'll make a thorough check of zoning, schools, shopping and future trends in the areas which he investigates. He'll even send photos of several choices.

"Naturally, you'll want to make your final choice in person, and we'll help you take care of that, too... first class, all the way! We'll arrange for your plane reservations, and all arrangements will have been made in advance... such as Holiday Inn reservations, etc."

"We mean it, through us you can have your next move completely taken care of; it can be the best move you'll ever make."

They want to assist in every way possible, and especially at this time when they are convinced that "now is the time to buy a home", what with the median sales price of existing homes projected to appreciably increase even by end of the year.

Selection in Lubbock at this time is such that any conceivable demand can be met, speedily and most satisfactorily. Whether the primary concern is upgrading one's living accommodations, in securing a home for immediate occupancy upon a possible transfer across the country, or if desiring a fine home seemingly "just built for you", Edwards & Abernathie Realtors is one the job to meet the need. Contact us now at 3217 34th St., phone 792-5166 and let us go to work for you in one or all of our several departments. Capability for service and a genuine interest in your welfare is assured. So why delay?

Business & Industrial Review

LOTS OF NEWS BEING MADE — Mrs. Sonja Jones of Jones Ornamental Decor is shown with units included in the special sale values arranged today (Labor Day) as part of the Store-

Labor Day Specials, End-of-Summer Sale Highlight Firm's Announcements

The store-wide End-of-Summer Sale is underway at Jones Ornamental Decor, the "different" store at 3403 34th St., in Indiana Gardens.

And Jones Ornamental Decor is open today, staying open throughout the day to enable those with a holiday to come in and take advantage of the savings.

Specifically, items are reduced from 20 per cent to 50 per cent in price from the already-low pricing policy of the firm!

Specifies Given
Imagine... 50 per cent off on Woodward wood-top dining sets.

And 25 per cent off on all outdoor furniture including new shipments. (Still other shipments are due, and anything received before today will be marked down as a Labor Day special!)

Added markdowns are scheduled for today in every merchandise category at the Jones firm.

See the many new occasional tables, eterges, plant stands and more that were bought in abundance at recent markets.

New lines have been added, such as the Lyon-Shaw fine wrought iron furniture.

Announcement Made
Something else of exceptional interest:

In order to most truly convey the type store provided, Jones Ornamental Decor is in process of a name alteration, to be known as "Jones Patio & Casual". It is the same great store, the same exceptional selection, same ownership and operation but with a name that more correctly defines the offerings of the big store. (Watch for our new sign soon to be displayed.)

"We at Jones Ornamental Decor (or Jones Patio & Casual as we are becoming known) are most appreciative of the trade accorded us during the more than two years at this location, enabling our growth in stock and service. As a very concrete gesture of our appreciation, we call your attention to the current End-of-Summer Sale and the special Labor Day markdowns."

Featuring indoor-outdoor, all-season ornament elegance for timeless charm and beauty, Jones Patio & Casual is really a "showplace", and a visit there can be of added benefit during the sale.

The big showroom (with more than 5,000 sq. ft. space) is chock full of selective merchandise, and the open display, the easy access, off-street parking and other advantages make shopping here a real treat.

Name brands in home furnishing are attractively and profusely stocked, together with a wide variety of decor items.

For new elegance in home or office, let Jones enter the picture!

Village Craft Corner Expands Class Schedule

Long-familiar and also added instructors at Village Craft Corner enable a new-season schedule of classes and workshops sure to be appreciated. But hurry: enrollment is fast filling the classes!

Classes start as early as Sept. 10, so immediate arrangements should be made for participation. Details on all workshops and classes will be gladly given at Village Craft Corner where examples of the instructors' work are displayed.

Jean Green, Olton, a specialist in oils, landscapes and florals, will teach oil classes Thursday mornings and afternoons beginning Sept. 3. Though she has taught extensively in the area, this is her first Lubbock schedule.

Barbara Bilberry will conduct classes in Beginning Oils and in Intermediate Oils starting Sept. 10. Day classes (10-1) will be conducted at beginning level, with evening (6-9) classes for both beginning and intermediate.

Barbara begins classes on Sept. 11 in Beginning Tole (10-12) and Mini Canvas Painting (1-3) and Tole (6:30-8:30).

Jane Hodgkins will begin Tole Painting classes Sept. 10 from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

On Sept. 11, J.D. Keel Jr., new to Village Craft Corner, will begin Oil Painting Instruction in morning and afternoon classes. Keel is a multi-media painter from S-agraves. He is an avid painter of landscapes, especially the Hill Country with its bluebonnets. On Sept. 12, classes begin under direction of ElWanda Ketron and Mac Carow.

ElWanda will teach beginning and Intermediate Oils from 10 a.m. until 12:30 noon, and beginning oils on Tuesday nights. Mac will teach an all-level still life course beginning Sept. 12, from 6 to 9 p.m. Students will learn how to paint the effective light a la prima technique on small canvases.

ElWanda will place emphasis on basic techniques relevant to the oil medium.

Mac Carow will begin classes in portraits (oils, pastels or charcoal) on Sept. 13 in an evening schedule, and on Sept. 14 daytime (10-3).

Barbara Lindner, another newcomer to Village Craft Corner, instructs in Bread Dough Art. Her work is most unusual. Barbara comes from Montgomery, Ala.

Though her first class is filled, enrollment is being taken for the Oct. 11 beginning of the second series.

Fortcoming workshops include Georgia Bartlett (oil painting, florals) Oct. 13, Nov. 10 and Dec. 8; and Bill Huffaker oils, Sept. 22, Oct. 27 and Nov. 17.

Aside from instruction, Village Craft excels in supplies... picture frames, "how to" books, art supplies, craft needs and all.

WHERE SERVICE IS A MEANINGFUL PLEDGE — Among those on hand to render finest service at Town & Country Chevrolet are (from left) Vic Rogers, Doyle Fowler, Gale Rose and Charles Schneider, all keyed to area needs and preferences by virtue of long association with South Plains folks; they pride in being 'folks you have depended upon for a long, long time'.

Town & Country Chevrolet's Many Advantages Impressive

Check the facts, one by one, and you'll discover that 13 miles is a very short distance to drive to receive the best in automobile care — from Larry Corbell's Town & Country Chevrolet, Hwy. 84 By-Pass, Slaton.

Outstanding in every department, attention this week is focused, however, on the Service and Parts capabilities of Town & Country Chevrolet.

Long On Scene

Key personnel are 'folks you know, folks whom you have learned to trust through the years. Vic Rogers is service manager, with Doyle Fowler serving in shop and service. Charles Schneider is parts manager, with Gale Rose as assistant. Familiar names, aren't they? In fact, these four men alone have a combined experience of 94 years in their field right here in Lubbock, Slaton and immediate area.

Consider these facts:

Convenience Factor

If your repair bill at Town & Country Chevrolet is more than $60, then a lease car is yours without charge while your own vehicle is being repaired! Isn't this a thoughtful consideration?

Experts On Trucks

Truck work, for both gasoline and diesel units, is one of the areas in which Town & Country Chevrolet takes special pride. Complete engine replacements are available with the department specializing in Target gasoline engines, both 396 and 427. Any make or size truck gets top service at the big Slaton facility.

Larry Corbell's Town & Country Chevrolet is an authorized Caterpillar dealer, too, some may not realize.

And "big wrecker" service is available for customers.

Road service for both cars and trucks is available.

The service "flat rate" invites comparison, whatever the job.

Fully staffed, the Service Department can readily meet any truck service need — whether for brake, front-end, 13-speed motors, or whatnot.

And the same expert service can be emphasized for the business or family auto, too, with wheel balancing, transmission repairs, tune-ups, undercoating whatever the need — just as near as Larry Corbell's Town & Country Chevrolet, Hwy. 84 By-Pass, Slaton.

Equipment is top-notch — such as the two "super good" new scopes for engine analysis.

Master Charge and Visa use is welcomed.

It all adds to this — when your truck or car needs work, take it to a real pro at Larry Corbell's Town & Country Chevrolet where you can rightfully expect town service and country friendliness!

Scholarships, Registration Remain Available At Winfrey Private School

Two significant announcements are made by Winfrey Private School, 83rd Street at Salem Avenue, phone 793-0845, in Lubbock.

(1) Registration still is enabled throughout the school that serves children from age 18 months through the 7th grade.

(2) Twelve scholarships are available, for first registrants in grades 2 through 6, with each scholarship worth $228.

"We want you to get full information just as soon as possible. We want you to learn of the comprehensive program, of the outstanding physical facilities provided on the big 3.2-acre campus, with 40,000 square feet under roof. We believe you will find the school and its curriculum an eye-opener, and we hope you'll find how its program can be of service within your own family or scope of acquaintances."

Dedicated Leadership

Dorothy Winfrey is founder and director of the school entering its second school year. She had conducted a school on Broadway for three years before personally designing and establishing the present facility involving 18 self-contained classrooms, all adjacent to a huge 60 ft. by 235 ft. gymnasium accommodating over a dozen sports!

All classrooms are air conditioned, independently heated and opening to the gym.

Construction is functionally attractive, of concrete and steel, and the building is reported completely fire safe. A heat detecting system is installed.

Winfrey Private School is designed to accommodate over 500 students.

Dorothy Winfrey holds Bachelors and Masters degrees from Texas Tech in the field of Elementary Education, she is certified in three special education areas, certified in learning disabilities and physically handicapped, and has completed 40 hours study on the Doctorate level.

'Plus Factors'

Discover at Winfrey Private School how "the best in education" is afforded.

Directions Given

Just turn off 82nd Street on Toledo, the school is two blocks west and one block south of the Quaker Avenue-82nd Street intersection. You can't miss it!

Student-teacher ratio in the grade school age is one instructor for 20 students or less, for ages 3 and 4 it is one instructor for 15 students, and in the nursery, 18 months to 35 months, the ratio is 1-10.

Modest Charge

Rates are said most reasonable, with youngest children generally accommodated at less than baby sitting charges.

Many parents are surprised to find that their children can get the best in care and in educational opportunities at such modest fees — at Winfrey Private School.

Aside from the comprehensive curriculum, after-school private instruction (for ages 3 and up) is available in baton, gymnastics, tap, ballet and piano.

Every teacher in the school is "degreeed" and certified (even those associated with the nursery).

To give a hint of the school's concept and opportunities — and quality, a special sheet applicable to age 3 and 4, a suggested curriculum content for early education, points out the school's assistance and leadership in social development for the child, art and music opportunities, nature study units, writing readiness, number concepts and math readiness, and language arts and reading readiness helps.

Business & Industrial Review
Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon
Specializes In Hair Styling

"Fashion is from the tip of your toe to the top of your head, and the right hair style completes the total look." This is the message and correct observation from the highly talented staff at the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon, 50th & Boston, phones 795-8221 and 795-0557. Sharon Denton is manager of the salon and marks 11 years experience and achievement in cosmetology. Staffmembers include Nellie Johnson and Lucy Hernandez, both most adept in their field. Lucy enjoys hair cutting and conventional styling, and Nellie prides in the art of pin curls for the controlled set.

Most perms at the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon are guaranteed for 30 days! There are many times that areas "do not take" for many reasons, or one finds it is a little too tight, and these can be easily taken care of. The salon staff also finds it important for each customer to know how to take proper care of their hair style at home. The staff can give every important pointer.

Men are always welcome for their hair cutting and perm needs. Senior Citizen Offer Also, a 10 per cent discount to senior citizens is offered on Mondays through Wednesdays.

"What you and your hairdresser should take into consideration when you are looking for a new style" is listed here, and should convey the expertise and interest of the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon staff in every customer's beauty and hair style.

Styling Considerations Given
 A large-framed person with a half inch of hair all over her head looks as out of proportion as a petite who has the appearance of all hair! It is the amount of hair you have, not the thickness of each single hair, but the total amount on the head that must be considered.

Hair texture, the coarseness or fineness of each individual hair, must be considered, as is the natural curl, wave direction or straight.

Natural growth pattern is considered (how the hair grows at the neck line, bang area, crown area, and cowlicks). Head and facial structure comes in for attention, too, in style selection and corrective make-up.

And length of hair: is the hair long enough to complete the desired style or is it too long and needing to be cut?

Hair that is weak from dryness tends to break and split and often will not respond properly during chemical processing.

Individual life style enters in, too, how much time can you spend on your hair each day?

Chemical processing and coloring must be considered, also, as well as will I feel comfortable in this style?

These are what we look for and consider when styling.

For A Quick Change
 We suggest that above all else that the operator and customer be able to communicate, being sure that both are talking about the same thing!

Many styles are known by different names. You should be told three different ways to wear your new style — you may feel like a quick change one morning!

Your hair growth comes from within, general health, diet and medication have a great deal to do with how your hair responds not only to chemical processing but how well sets hold.

Check the Monday ads of the Montgomery Ward Beauty Salon for other helpful hints, of the many services to help one find the right style at the right price. Feel free to call us or drop by and talk about your particular needs.

Optical Store & Boutique Extending Student Welcome, Explains Services

"Doesn't the new school term call for renewed awareness of the correct optical needs?"

"Then, we wish to direct your attention to the Optical Store & Boutique, 5202 Slide Road, phone 792-0901, where we know that we can serve you within one or more of our departments — where we welcome your visits and believe you will appreciate the professional yet friendly service and the truly relaxed atmosphere traditional here."

"Here's something of special interest that we want you to consider, regardless of your eyewear situation, especially if you have too often found yourself in this predicament."

"Upon selecting new frames for your eyewear, hoping of course to get those frames that look the very best on you, desiring frames with which you would be pleased day in and day out, you have found that selection was difficult because in trying them on, with your present glasses 'off', you just couldn't see to select intelligently?"

The Optical Store & Boutique, just south of 50th & Slide, has done something about this!

New video tape equipment has been installed to enable one to be photographed with the various frames, then the tape is played back through a color television set to enable one to see exactly how the frames look upon him or her!

Doesn't this make sense?
 "We at The Optical Store & Boutique think so, and we believe we are the first optical company in Lubbock to offer this brand new innovation to optical dispensing."

"We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique."

"Our Boutique is Unique" actually is the motto but nevertheless an understatement of the services and products of the Optical Store & Boutique, phone 792-0901.

Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize:

(1) Children should have an eye examination annually.
 (2) Adults should take the same step every two years.
 (3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended.

(4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities, with you benefitting.

"We want to see you keep your frames in good repair, and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!"

"And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"

A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) the Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Designer Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures), a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness.

One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Fustenber, Oscar de la Renta and other top designers.

Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex. And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor deornates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty.

Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany.

"See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

EVERYTHING FOR BAND AND ORCHESTRA AT JENT'S, ON 34TH

Jent's House Of Music Affords Rent, Lease Plans Among Aids

Whether as a beginner, advanced band student or a professional, one finds Jent's House of Music a worthy source of supply and service.

Jent's, at 2646 34th St., can be of special benefit as the new school terms commence throughout the area.

In addition to Jent's regular rental plan, for example, musical instrument leasing for the entire school year has been arranged, economical and otherwise advantageous.

Under this lease program, Jent's provides a name-brand instrument in perfect playing condition. As a purchase option, one will receive a full 100 per cent of the lease fee paid towards the purchase of a brand new instrument of one's choice. This option is available at any time during the lease and 20 days after expiration.

Examples of the economy of lease until end of the term, May 31, include flutes and clarinets, $50; piccolos, $60; alto sax, $75; tenor sax, $90; and oboes, $100. Violins are $50, and violas are $65. And cornets, trumpets, trombones and drum kits are just $50!

A service policy is available at Jent's, with 20 per cent of lease fee covering all maintenance on instruments and cases.

Jent's, marking its eighteenth year in business on the same 34th Street block in Lubbock, makes everything as easy as possible in student band and orchestra needs.

Staffed To Serve
Ray Jent takes pride in the merchandise and staff. Two area band directors recently have joined the firm. Rusty Sherman, former band director at Floydada, is one of these band instrument consultants, and Ralph Smith comes from the band directorship at Dimmitt to be the other valued fieldman addition to the Jent's family.

John Skouloudis is another new firm member, specializing in percussion and band instrument sales. John is a five-year Lubbock resident, a professional drummer, and marks 12 years in the music business.

A complete repair department is one of Jent's best known services, with Lealon Staley, long-respected repairman, heading this service.

A complete stock of accessories for all instruments is provided.

For leadership, for the correct instrument at an affordable purchase or lease plan, for service that is unexcelled, one can do well to rely (as in the past) upon Jent's House of Music, 2646 34th St., phone 795-5579.

'High Volume, Low Profit' Contribute To Don Crow Used Car Sales Records

Customer-oriented in its every department, this business concept of Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc., is likely nowhere more evident than in its Used Car department.

In searching for a quality previously-owned car, one can easily discover that the Don Crow selection enables "one-stop shopping."

Whatever the make, whatever the model, most likely one can inspect and compare and select at the big Don Crow Chevrolet, Slide Road at South Loop 289.

Under direction of Rick Kitchens, used car manager, special attention has been directed to stocking of late-model ('78 and '79) autos — purposely, not by accident! Even though older cars are stocked, too, the effort has been made to secure quality, late-model vehicles, wherever they have to be found, and placing them on the lot for Don Crow customers.

Graphically proving this statement, it is revealed that a $750,000 inventory now is involved in the Used Car department at Don Crow Chevrolet!

Programmed To Serve
Kitchens, coming here from a highly-successful tenure in Houston, has initiated a 3-point program to which each of his eight staffers is dedicated:

- (1) High volume;
- (2) Low profit; and
- (3) Treating the customer in such manner that repeat business is invited, expected and earned!

The energetic staff members know their cars, whether selection is from the compacts, intermediates or big 'uns. From the youngest member to Howard Whitfield with his more than two decades of serving in Lubbock and area, professionalism and friendly interest is evident.

For specific prices and special opportunities, one is invited to check the Don Crow ads in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

"Small wonder that the Don Crow Used Car Department makes it a habit to set records (with last month no exception), what with the huge selection of better used cars and with a team that aggressively prospects but never overalls."

"Isn't it time you considered a purchase from the Used Car Department at Don Crow Chevrolet, 5211 Loop 289 Southwest?"

LABOR OF LOVE — This big banner, with its acrylic art, greets one upon entry this week to Woolco. Staffmembers La-Nelda Gordon and Laura Lindsey created the banner as a visible and sincere appreciation gesture from Woolco and its staff, a firm that salutes student endeavors and achievements, a firm that is glad to count students in all city and area schools as its special friends.

APPROPRIATE FOR SEASON — The Early Bird Special this week at Woolco is effective from 9:30 a.m. until 10 a.m. today and Tuesday, and features the pictured TV at just $69. It is a quality Capri 12-in. diagonal black/white model, 100 per cent solid state and complete with ear phones for private listening! The unit is shown here by Jim Robie, major appliance manager at the Lubbock Woolco center. Robie is a six-year veteran with the company, originally joining the organization in Kansas City, Mo., and coming to Lubbock from Texas City. Robie comes especially well recommended, and customers find that his knowledge of the products and his adherence to the Woolco policy of customer service prove again that 'Woolco Wants to be Your Favorite Store'.

Follow these instructions for a very profitable garage sale.

Gather up all the things that've been cluttering up your house. Clean out the attic, the basement, even the closets

Now, at least a week before the sale, prepare a list of all the things you'd like to convert into cash.

2

Now, call your Avalanche-Journal AD-visor at 762-8821 for professional help in writing and preparing your ad.

3

The day before the sale, move everything that's for sale out to the garage. Or put a tent up on your lawn. (Just make sure there's nothing out there that you don't want to sell!) Next, set everything up in neat displays and put reasonable asking price tags on them.

4

When the big day comes, get up early, practice your sales pitch and put your directional signs up around the neighborhood so people won't have any trouble finding you.

Now, relax, enjoy yourself and sell... sell... sell!

Non-Aligned Countries Divided At Conference

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The Non-Aligned Movement's sixth summit meeting opened today with its growing membership engaged in a tug-of-war over what the movement's ideology and priorities should be.

The conference president, President J.R. Jayawardene of Sri Lanka, gavelled the meeting open before more than 40 heads of state and government at the $33-million Palace of Congresses built for the meeting. An additional 60 countries are taking part, and will be represented either by national leaders or lower-ranking officials.

For Cuban President Fidel Castro, delivering the inaugural address, the summit represents a personal triumph. Invaded, quarantined and embargoed in the 1960s, Cuba is now host to the largest summit meeting ever convened.

Nations from Afghanistan to Zambia, some rich but most poor, will try to reconcile their diverse interests on a broad array of economic and political issues during five days of give and take.

Their ambassadors and foreign ministers, who have been holding preparatory meetings here since last Tuesday, agree that a consensus declaration won't be easy to achieve.

The movement, which held its first summit in Yugoslavia 18 years ago with only 26 members, brings together conservative military regimes, Marxist-Leninist governments like the host country, oil-rich Arab countries, fledgling mini-states in the Caribbean, economic cripples from Africa, liberation movements from southern Africa and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

As the host, Cuba has dominated the preparations. It has circulated a draft declaration which some interpret as an attempt to shift the movement from an independent position into open support of Soviet foreign policy.

The Cuban resolution accuses United States of "imperialism" around the world, supporting "Zionist aggression" in the Middle East, interfering in the liberation struggles of southern Africa and aggravating tensions in Korea.

The Cuban draft also says the non-aligned countries should continue to "make every effort to cooperate with other peace and progress-loving forces of the world, successfully strengthening their ability to wage a determined battle against the forces of imperialism."

The Cubans said this and similar statements should not be interpreted as an attempt to align the movement with the Soviet Union. But veterans of non-aligned conferences say "peace and progress-loving forces" in the non-aligned as well as the communist lexicon refer to the Soviet Union and its allies while "imperialism" means the United States and, on occasion, China.

Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, whose government like Cuba's is closely tied to the Soviet Union, said that it is not enough for the Non-Aligned Movement to remain outside the two major power blocs. Its first purpose, he said, is to "oppose imperialism and colonialism."

But Singapore Foreign Minister S. G. Rajaratnam spoke for a number of more moderate nations when he said that many amendments to the draft resolution would be required to keep the movement an independent course.

Kissinger, Haig Call NATO's Future Grim

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Gen. Alexander Haig see a grim and dangerous future for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as it moves into its fourth decade.

At a 30th anniversary symposium organized by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies in Brussels, Kissinger and former NATO chief Haig argued Sunday that the alliance is falling behind in strategic, tactical nuclear and conventional strength.

Kissinger said NATO faces in the decade ahead "an unfavorable balance of power, a world in turmoil, a potential economic crisis and a massive energy problem."

He said the alliance is beset by the dilemma of having unusable strategic overkill coupled with inadequate means to defend itself in the field.

"We need to build urgently, urgently our forces," Kissinger said. "We cannot wait two or three more years."

"The dominant fact of the current military situation is that the NATO countries are falling behind in every significant military category, with the possible exception of naval forces where the gap in our favor is closing."

"Never in history has it happened that a nation achieved superiority in all significant weapons categories without seeking to translate this at some point into foreign policy benefit."

Haig, a possible Republican contender for the U.S. presidency in 1980, called for a sharp increase in military spending by the United States, up to 5 percent a year for five years.

Ship Makes Record Boat People Rescue

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — An American warship fished 154 Vietnamese refugees from the South China Sea today in the single largest rescue by the U.S. 7th Fleet since it began searching for the "boat people" 45 days ago.

A navy spokesman said the refugees, 20 of whom were ill, were packed into two small junks, one towing the other, when a Navy P-3 Orion patrol plane first sighted them Sunday afternoon. The U.S.S. Whiteplains, a combat supply ship, conducted the rescue early today.

The Whiteplains sank both junks after the rescue since it was impractical to tow them and they could have become navigational hazards, the Navy said.

The spokesman said the rescue occurred about 250 nautical miles west of Manila. It was the third rescue operation in four days by the 7th Fleet, and its largest batch ever since President Carter ordered the fleet to look for refugees on July 21.

To date, the fleet has rescued a total of 308 refugees. Most of the sightings and rescues of refugees have occurred in the past 10 days in a new refugee upsurge from Vietnam.

In Macao, an 11-year old boy told the tragic story of how 250 refugees drowned in the South China Sea after their boat sank. He was the only survivor.

The skinny and sunburned Ma Nam-sang told Macao officials Sunday how his older sister gave up her life to save him from the latest tragedy in refugees' flight for freedom.

His sister thrust over to him a wooden plank she had been holding on to and then she sank beneath the South China Sea with more than 250 other refugees on the motorized wooden boat.

The boy clung to the plank for nearly an hour and a half in choppy water before being rescued by a passing fishing junk.

Nam-sang told officials of the Portuguese colony of Macao that the leaky boat was bought by the refugees and left Tang Ha village near Haiphong more than a month ago. It sank 10 miles south of the colony on Aug. 29.

"The motor stopped and water came in from everywhere," Nam-sang said with fear still etched on his face.

He recalled how the refugees, crammed shoulder to shoulder on the boat, fought to bail the water out.

"We tried to clear the boat of water but holes were everywhere and water finally poured in," Nam-sang said.

The boat went down with more than 250 refugees, among them the boy's sister and cousin. Nam-sang's parents, who are farmers, remained in Vietnam to make arrangements for their own passage.

When everyone was struggling in the water after the boat went under, "my sister gave me a wooden plank," Nam-sang said. "But as I grabbed the plank, my sister vanished in the water. I don't think anyone made it."

Fishermen in the area said they have sighted several bodies floating near the site.

The crew of the fishing boat that rescued the Vietnamese boy put him ashore and disappeared because Macao does not accept refugees.

The colonial government decided to let the boy stay after a police patrol spotted him wandering on the waterfront Saturday.

Literature Sent For Book Fair Confiscated By Soviet Censors

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities today confiscated about 40 books intended for exhibition at the Moscow International Book Fair, including works by Alexander Solzhenitsyn and the daughter of Josef Stalin.

Seven Soviet censors went through the rows of English language books offered for publication in the Soviet Union, and plucked out titles that Boris Stukalin, chairman of the Soviet state publishing committee, said were "insulting."

Among the banned works were five books by Solzhenitsyn, the best-selling author who until his exile was a leading Soviet dissident. Censors took away his "First Circle," "World Split Apart," and the three volumes of his best-known work, "Gulag Archipelago."

Svetlana Alliluyeva, daughter of the late Soviet Premier Josef Stalin, was also banned from the fair by censors who took away her "Twenty letters to a Friend," and "Only One Year."

"White Night," a memoir by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin detailing his years in a Stalinist labor camp was also taken away by the Soviet authorities, as was "My Country and the World," a book by Nobel Prize-winning Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov.

Jeri Labor, an official of the Association of American Publishers, watched the Soviet censors confiscate the books and said, "It's an incredible process."

Random House had 15 books confiscated, the most of any American publisher.

Among the other books taken away by the Soviets were "Adventures in Living Judaism," "An Illustrated history of the Third Reich," and a book dealing with Mikhail Baryshnikov, who defected in 1974 from Leningrad's Kirov Ballet and has performed in New York ever since.

Asked why some titles were being banned from the fair, Stukalin said, "They cannot be permitted for exhibition because they do not serve of the purpose of detente, they do not serve the spiritual exchange of mutual understanding between peoples but encourage hostility."

Pope Hopes To End Bloodshed

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (UPI) — Pope John Paul II hopes his visit to Ireland later this month will help Roman Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland put an end to the hatred and violence that separates them.

In a Sunday blessing from his summer villa south of Rome, the pope also called for Christians throughout the world to pray for an end to wars.

"At this time one cannot but be reminded of the recent bloody events in Northern Ireland that have once again caused numerous victims, among them Lord Louis Mountbatten," the pope said.

John Paul visits Ireland for three days beginning Sept. 29 before flying on to the United States where he will address the U.N. General Assembly, meet President Carter and visit six American cities.

Earlier, the pope was considering a brief visit to the diocese of Armagh in Northern Ireland during his stay in Ireland, but the plans were shelved after the killings a week ago of Mountbatten.

Earl Scudday Just Showin' Off

A FELLOW IN THE OFFICE considers himself something of an authority on professional football. He understands those diagrams the coaches draw on the blackboard and can explain the difference in Red Right formation and Brown Left. He has Cliff Harris' unlisted telephone number and Roger Staubach calls him ol' Scudder. How knowledgeable can you get?

This guy has avoided participation in the office football pool for years, on the theory that it would be like setting a wolf loose in a pen of lambs for him to compete against the poor mortals who have to depend on Howard Cosell for their inside information. Even among the sports scribes, there's no one else who has watched the Sunday morning cartoons with Tom Landry and has an autographed picture of Jim Zorn!

The fellow couldn't resist the temptation to show off a bit last weekend, though, and jumped into the contest. Just this one time, he said with a confident smile, to show you blokes how easy it is when you know all about the teams.

Down the list of opening games he went, not even hesitating as he picked Tampa Bay, Dallas, Baltimore, the New York Jets, Houston, Miami, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Minnesota and Pittsburgh. He did ponder just a bit before selecting Atlanta, Cincinnati, Green Bay and Seattle. Oh well, Zorn would pull it out somehow, and how could Denver win without a quarterback?

Late Sunday the results rolled in. Oakland surprises the Rams. The Browns edge the Jets. The Chiefs shut out the Colts! The Bears clip the Packers. (Who needs an offense?) The Chargers outscore the Seahawks. (Who needs a defense?)

The pro grid expert was last seen burning his NFL record books and scrapping the Seahawk decal off his typewriter. So much for expertise!

THE COWBOYS HAD SMILES on their faces as they flew back to Dallas Sunday night following their 22-21 thriller over the St. Louis Cardinals. Any win is a good one, of course, and victories at Saint Looney haven't been all that numerous for the 'Pokes during the last decade.

There was the old revenge factor, too. This edition of the Cardinals has a lot of new faces, but some ancient enemies named Mel Gray and Jim Hart still were across the line of scrimmage. The game was the latest in a whole series of barn-burners.

The Cowboys answered a few of the questions hanging over them during the tussle. They can win, it seems, without Charlie Waters and Ed Jones. And they can survive without Tony Dorsett against most folks, although Landry will be much happier when the swift tailback returns to the lineup.

Dallas is not as good a team as it was last year, when the roster was at full strength, but it may be good enough by November to at least dream of Super Bowl XIV.

THE ROOKIES CONTINUE to provide a lot of spark for the Cowboys. Tailback Ron Springs made one of the more impressive debuts in the National Football League Sunday, replacing Dorsett in the Dallas lineup. Springs ran hard and threw a halfback pass for a touchdown that will cause opposing coaches to do a lot of head-scratching in the weeks to come.

Wade Manning, the free agent blur from Ohio State, did it again as he returned a kickoff 47 yards to set up Dallas' game-winning drive. It was Manning, remember, who returned a punt a mile or so against Pittsburgh a week ago to put the 'Pokes back into that contest. If the converted baseball player keeps up this pace, he may change the whole scouting system in pro football!

Some of the old guys sparkled, too. Staubach looked very sharp most of the time, along with Robert Newhouse, Tony Hill, Drew Pearson and Billy Joe DuPre.

The defense had its problems, but Landry has warned that there will be some bad times until the players reach that level of coordination necessary for the flex. Precise execution is a must in that system.

Injuries still are the biggest problem for the Cowboys. Even in victory, they lost — at least temporarily — Dave Stalls, Newhouse and Larry Brinson. They cannot stand much more of that.

Landry probably feels a bit like an ancient king named Pyrrhus, who, history tells us, kept winning battles but losing wars.

Cowboy fans hope that the 'Pokes don't travel down that road.

Lions Lose Second Quarterback

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions Coach Monte Clark may be dipping into the free agent quarterback pool again after losing his starter and backup signal-callers after only one NFL regular season game.

"We're trying to get into contact with people now," Clark said Sunday night after announcing that backup quarterback Joe Reed was injured in the Lions' Saturday night National Football League loss to Tampa Bay.

"We'll have to see what we can do," he said.

Reed, who played his high school football at Lorenzo, had replaced four-year veteran Gary Danielson, the bright spot of Lions' offensive attack. Danielson tore a ligament in his right knee in Detroit's final exhibition game. He is on the injured reserve list and expected to miss most, if not all, of the season.

After Danielson's injury, Clark moved Reed into the starting role while signing veteran free agent Scott Hunter last week.

Among other free agent quarterbacks available are Bob Lee, who failed to come to terms with the Minnesota Vikings this season, Billy Kilmer and Gary Huff.

Clark said Jeff Komlo is the new starter for now. Komlo was a ninth-round draft pick from Delaware and completed five of 21 passes in the one quarter he played in the 31-16 loss against the Buccaneers.

Clark said Reed aggravated a recurring stomach muscle strain, which will put him out of action for "probably a few weeks, anyway." The quarterback, "is having trouble walking right now."

Dallas Keeps String Going

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' string of triumphs in National Football League openers is intact at 15 — thanks to the gifted toe and steel nerves of Rafael Septien.

Septien, dispelling doubt from his mind, booted a field goal with 1:16 left and clamped the lid on a wild fourth quarter by pinning a 22-21 defeat Sunday on the St. Louis Cardinals.

Afterward, a composed Septien downplayed the feat amid the din in Dallas' dressing room. "If you're thinking negatively, you're going to miss," he said.

"The hold was good. Everything worked out," he continued in reference to his 27-yard kick. "Only my timing was off. We had hurried onto the field. I looked up, and I saw the ball being snapped. But it went through."

Septien, in capitalizing on his chance, clinaxed a closing period marked also by rookie Ron Springs' left-handed halfback option touchdown pass for the Cowboys and a 76-yard gallop to the end zone by rookie Otis Anderson of St. Louis.

Jim Hart's 18-yard aerial to Pat Tilley lifted the Cardinals to an abbreviated lead of 14-13 late in the third quarter. But, as it turned out, the touchdown only ignited Dallas.

Roger Staubach first clicked off pass completions of 12 and 21 yards to Doug Cosbie and Drew Pearson to set up a 30-yard pass to Tony Hill from Springs, a former Ohio State back playing for ailing Tony Dorsett.

Then, after Anderson booted over the left side to establish a 21-19 St. Louis edge, a 47-yard kickoff return by rookie free agent Wade Manning refueled the Cowboys.

Robert Newhouse slammed 9 and 5 yards on runs after Staubach shot a 7-yard pass to Springs. Hill was Staubach's receiver at the two-minute warning, and a 9-yard scramble by Staubach afterward set up Septien's winning kick.

Glenn Carano, a third-year Dallas player, was Septien's holder. Earlier, he also held for kicks measuring 37 and 24 yards, although Carano dropped the snap on the extra-point try after Hill's TD reception.

"All of the holds were good," said Septien. "We only worked together three days in practice. But there was no problem. Each time, the ball was there."

Septien's first field goal and Newhouse's 4-yard touchdown plunge sent the Cowboys ahead 10-0 in the opening half. But Anderson's 33-yard run soon afterward awoke the Cards, who closed to 10-7 late in the second quarter on Hart's 2-yard pass to Al Chandler.

Anderson's 193-yard rushing aggregate on 21 carries for the day overshadowed a 455-yard Cowboys offense. Septien's field goals not withstanding.

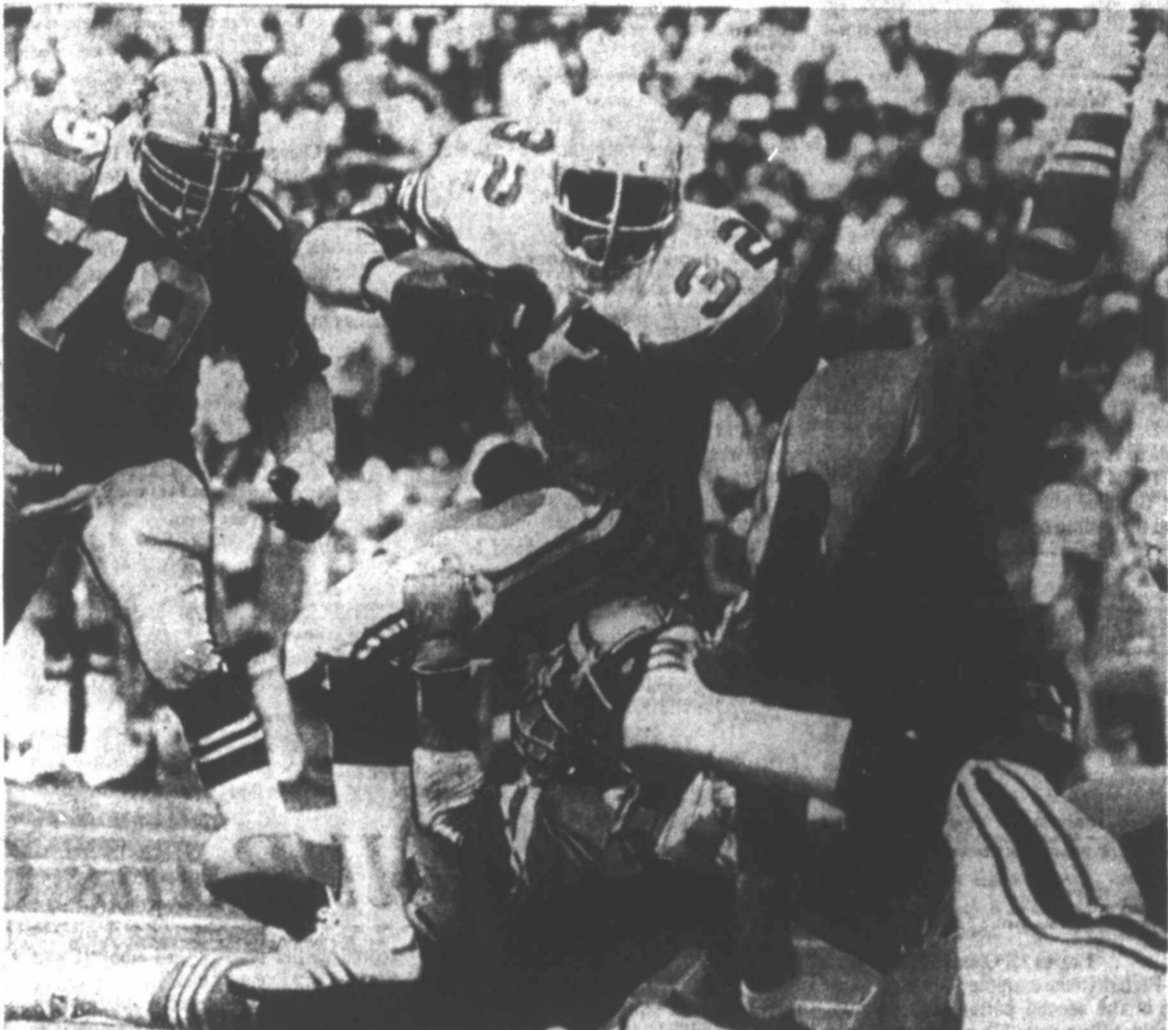

Anderson's 76-yard romp was the sixth-longest from scrimmage in St. Louis team history. It also fell a yard short of matching the highest pickup by a rookie in his NFL debut — the 194 gained in 1955 by the Baltimore Colts' Alan Ameche.

"He's going to be a star in this league," Dallas Coach Tom Landry predicted of the 210-pound Anderson. "He's just got too much power and too much speed not to be."

STRUGGLING FOR YARDAGE — St. Louis Cardinal Otis Anderson (32) struggles to free himself from the grasp of Dallas Cowboy defensive tackle Larry Cole (63) as he goes for a gain of six yards during the fourth quarter of Sunday's NFL contest between the two squads. Anderson ran for 193 yards, including a 76-yard touchdown gallop, in 21 attempts, but the Cowboys game out on top 22-21 with a last-minute field goal by Rafael Septien. (AP Laserphoto)

B.C. Open Won By Twitty

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Howard Twitty had all but conceded the $275,000 B.C. Open championship to his friend Tom Purtzer, but after the 18th hole at the EnJolie Golf Club course knocked off two leaders the $49,500 winner's purse was all Twitty's.

He sank a four-foot par putt on the 18th hole after Purtzer lost his lead there with a bogey and Doug Tewell blew his chance to win the PGA event when he made a double bogey.

"I was starting to think the tournament was just about over and I was really playing for second place. Then I birdied the 15th," said Twitty after his first victory in four years on the pro tour.

Twitty finished with a 4-under par 67 in the final round and a 270 total that was 14 strokes under par and 1 stroke ahead of Purtzer.

Tewell, of Edmond, Okla., had entered the final round sharing the lead with Brad Bryant of Amarillo, with Twitty trailing by one stroke.

The competition was intense the final day, with the 20 leading golfers entering Sunday's round within 5 strokes of each other. With six holes left to play, 10 golfers were still within 2 strokes of the lead.

Purtzer eagled the 12th hole to move into the lead, but Twitty stayed close behind with two birdies in the last three holes that put him in position to take the championship when the others faltered on the last hole.

Twitty and Purtzer both live in Phoenix, Ariz., and Twitty said he had mixed feelings seeing Purtzer lose his lead.

"That's the tough part about winning," said Twitty. "But he'll win a lot of tournaments."

Twitty said he felt no pressure teeing off on the last hole, and did not realize he had the lead until he reached the 18th green.

National League Roundup

Expos Feared Weather More Than Cincinnati

By The Associated Press
The Montreal Expos were leading the Cincinnati Reds 10-0 after two innings and were worried.

Not about the Reds. The Expos, having scored six runs in the first inning and four in the second, were looking anxiously up at the threatening skies over Olympic Stadium.

"We were kind of concerned about the possibility of rain catching up with us," winning pitcher Steve Rogers said Sunday after he had coasted to a 13-1 victory and limited Cincinnati to four hits.

"We were sort of in a hurry-up situation with that lead," Rogers explained. Montreal's hurrying batters apparently didn't intend to wait around for any walks, and they didn't get a single one. Their enthusiastic swinging resulted in 21 hits, nine in the first inning, tying a club record.

The victory gave the Expos a sweep of the three-game series, and kept second-place Montreal 3½ games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East. The Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants 5-3.

The Reds lost an opportunity to regain the lead in the NL West. The Houston Astros remained half a game in front despite losing 5-4 to the New York Mets.

In other NL games, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 2-1 in 10 innings, St. Louis beat San Diego 2-1, and Los Angeles rallied for a 6-2 victory over Chicago.

The rain the Expos were concerned about showed up briefly in the middle innings, but only as light showers, and was not a factor.

The victory was reassuring in more ways than one to Rogers, who had off-season surgery on his pitching elbow and was hit by a line drive just below that elbow in Cincinnati on Aug. 22.

Given a big early cushion, Rogers said: "I just wanted to stay in there and recapture the pitching rhythm that I've been missing lately."

Warren Cromartie, Tony Perez, Gary Carter and Ellis Valentine all had three hits for Montreal. Cromartie's came in his first three at-bats and gave him seven hits in seven at-bats over two games before the string was snapped.

Cromartie accepted congratulations for the feat, but said, "I want seven in one game for the major league record ... maybe tomorrow."

Pirates 5, Giants 3
Two doubles by Steve Nicosia keyed Pittsburgh's offense. One drove in two runs and the second led to another score. John Candelaria, 13-8, struck out 10 and walked only one. The Pirates victory, their 17th in 22 games, gave them a 6-0 season sweep in Candlestick Park, the first team to do that in San Francisco since the Giants moved west in 1958.

Mets 5, Astros 4
Rookie relief pitcher Neil Allen choked off a last-inning Astros threat after one run scored, with the tying run in scoring position, and relished the idea of the Mets being spoilers.

"This is what keeps us going, to be able to give some of the other clubs trouble," Allen said. "We hope to do something to decide who gets into the playoffs." He noted that the Mets next play Montreal.

John Stearns drove in two runs for New York and center fielder Jeff Leonard's error on a fly ball set up what proved to be the winning run breaking a nine-game Mets losing streak.

Astros Manager Bill Virdon complained, "We can't play like we did today and expect to win the pennant," but he conceded, "We are going to lose some more games and Cincinnati will lose some more. I just hope the Reds lose more."

Phillies 2, Braves 1
"It's not going to last forever but it's certainly fun right now," said Dallas Green, unbeaten in three games as Philadelphia's interim manager since replacing Danny Ozark. "I'm laughing now."

Latest to tieke Green's funny bone was a run-scoring double by Greg Luzinski in the 10th, scoring Bake McBride who opened the inning with a single.

"I'm really pleased with the reaction of this team, seeing their manager go and then playing the way they have in this series," Green added.

Cardinals 2, Padres 1
St. Louis moved into third place in the NL East, one game ahead of Chicago, by completing a three-game sweep and winning for the 12th time in 15 games. Bob Forsch scattered five hits for his eighth victory in 18 decisions. Tony Scott scored the winning run in the ninth on Ken Oberkfell's sacrifice fly.

Dodgers 6, Cubs 2
Davey Lopes belted a bases-loaded homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth to cap a five-run inning, and off Bruce Sutter, no less.

Sutter had allowed only two other homers all year, and went into the game with a 1.30 ERA and 35 saves. Lopes seemed especially pleased at whom he had victimized. "He's tough enough to punt, let alone get good wood on him," he said of the ace Cubs' reliever.

Included in the Dodgers' earlier offense was a major league record 14th career pinch hit by Manny Mota. It came off starter Lynn McGlothen, and lifted Mota out of a tie with Smokey Burgess. Showing the patience of a 41-year-old major leaguer, Mota waited for the pitch he wanted.

American League Roundup

Opportunity Knocks For Oriole

By The Associated Press
Opportunity knocked all day for Gary Roenicke, but it wasn't until the fourth time that he knocked back.

"I had so many opportunities," said the Baltimore outfielder, shaking his head. "I was fortunate to get another chance."

In his first three appearances Sunday, Roenicke — Flied out with two runners on in the first inning.

— Grounded into a double play in the fourth.

— And flied out again with two runners aboard in the sixth.

Then came the eighth inning, and Roenicke finally came through with a two-run homer that provided the American League East leaders with a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

"I was tired, run down a bit," said Roenicke. "I felt tight at the plate — it might have been in my head — but I came into the clubhouse and ate a candy bar and some honey to get going again."

Baltimore's first run actually scored on Roenicke's double-play bouncer in the fourth, but he obviously considered that less than a noteworthy performance.

In other American League games Sunday, Texas edged Boston 7-6 in 11 innings. New York stopped Kansas City 6-5 in 10 innings. California defeated Cleveland 5-2. Milwaukee beat Chicago 7-5. Oakland ripped Detroit 5-4 and Toronto whipped Seattle 8-5.

Roenicke's 23rd homer made a winner of Scott McGregor, who hurled five-hit ball to improve his record to 11-4. He walked none and has allowed just 20 walks in 146 innings this season, including six in his last 99-1/3 innings.

"As long as I don't walk anybody, they don't get cheap runs," McGregor said. "That seems to be my strategy."

The victory kept Baltimore's lead at a substantial eight games over second-place Milwaukee.

Rangers 7, Red Sox 6
Willie Montanez's home run leading off the 11th inning powered Texas over Boston. Montanez, capping a four-homer barrage by the Rangers, drilled reliever Dick Drago's first pitch over the right field fence at Fenway Park to end a close struggle.

The Rangers also got home runs from Richie Zisk, Eric Soderholm and John Ellis.

Jim Kern, 12-4, the third Texas pitcher who came on in the ninth, earned the victory. Drago, 9-5, the fifth Boston pitcher, took his second loss within 24 hours.

Yankees 6, Royals 5
Graig Nettles' two-run homer capped a game-tying, three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning and Oscar Gamble walloped a solo shot in the 10th, rallying New York over Kansas City.

Nettles connected off rookie Gary Christenson and Gamble unloaded against Steve Mingori, 3-3, both shots coming after the Royals brought in left-handed pitchers to try to combat the Yankees' left-handed power hitters.

The victory went to Rich Gossage, 3-2, the fifth New York pitcher.

Angels 5, Indians 2
Dave Frost and Mark Clear combined on a five-hitter and Don Baylor drove in two runs with a single and his 31st homer as California defeated Cleveland, 14-9, gave up four of the Indians' hits before needing eighth-inning relief help from Clear, who posted his 14th save.

"Right now, every game is crucial," said Frost, "but if you think about pressure, you can't pitch well. I try not to think about it."

Clear: "I had been struggling a while of late, but I've got my concentration back and I've been doing all right the last couple of games."

Brewers 7, White Sox 2
Gorman Thomas smashed his 37th home run to take over the AL leadership and Sixto Lezcano added his 26th, a two-run shot in the fifth inning, to lead Milwaukee over Chicago.

Lezcano's homer off loser Ken Kravec, 11-13, followed a single by Cecil Cooper and gave right-hander Moose Haas, 10-8, a 5-1 lead. The two-run blast improved Lezcano's season RBI total to 93.

Thomas' homer capped a two-run uprising in the seventh when the Brewers improved their lead to 7-2. The homer moved him ahead of Boston's Fred Lynn for the league leadership.

A's 5, Tigers 4
Right-hander Rick Langford survived 10 hits and Dave Revering triggered three rallies with a single and two walks, scoring each time, as Oakland beat Detroit.

Langford's mistakes included Steve Kemp's solo homer in the sixth inning and Alan Trammell's three-run blast in the ninth. The Oakland pitcher won his 11th game against 13 defeats.

Blue Jays 6, Mariners 5
Roy Howell drove in four runs with three hits, including a three-run homer in the fourth inning, to lead Toronto over Seattle.

Rookie right-hander Dave Stieb, 6-5, was the winner with late-inning relief help from Jesse Jefferson, who earned his first save of the year after pitching out of a bases-loaded situation in the eighth.

John Mayberry had a run-scoring single for Toronto to set a club record of 71 RBI.

O'Meara Nudges Cook For Amateur Crown

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Cook shrugged and pointed at old friend Mark O'Meara standing nearby. "That guy blew my socks off. It was like getting hit by a buzzsaw."

O'Meara, the current California amateur champion, aborted Cook's bid to win his second straight U.S. Amateur golf crown, overwhelming the Ohio State golfer 8 and 7 in a scheduled 36-hole finale Sunday at Canterbury Golf Club.

The 22-year-old O'Meara, a three-time All-America at Long Beach State, and Cook both are graduates of the extremely successful California junior golf program, although neither lives on the West Coast anymore.

O'Meara, who grew up in Mission Viejo, now plays out of St. Charles, Ill., where his family moved last year, while Cook, whose early years were spent in Mission Hills, now resides in Dublin, Ohio.

"John and I are good friends and we've spent a lot of time together this summer playing in tournaments," O'Meara said. "This is really exciting, especially winning by beating John, but I just played better golf today."

"I don't know if John felt that way, but I think there was a lot of pressure on him this week as defending champion. But I didn't put a lot of pressure on myself at all. It just felt good to get here."

"All week long I just tried to take the best shot I could each time and blank out everything else. Sometimes the best player may not win in match play. John is by far the best amateur in the nation — he's proved that this summer."

The slender, dark-haired O'Meara ignored a steady rain and a 2-up lead by Cook after the first four holes to charge into a 4-up edge after the first 18 holes.

He got the benefit of a string of poor iron shots by Cook that helped him win five straight holes on the first nine. Cook bogeyed four of those holes.

Then it was O'Meara's chipping and putting that put the match away. He birdied the last two holes of the first round, birdied the fifth, sixth and seventh holes of the second round, then ended the match with a 13-foot birdie putt on the day's 29th hole.

"It just all caught up to me at once," Cook said. "I peaked way too early. I was playing very well ... hitting the ball real well ... last week."

Futurity Draws Texas Horses

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — The eyes of Texas will be on this compact mountain track today like never before as 10 of the nation's fleetest quarter horses compete in the 21st running of the All American Futurity which, with its purse of $1,200,000, is the world's richest horse race.

And with very good reason. Eight of those two year-old sprinters vying for the $437,500 first prize money hail from the Lone Star State, giving Texas a dominance no state has ever enjoyed in any major equestrian event.

Those Texas entries, five colts and three fillies, include the three early betting favorites and the race's fastest qualifier, so the state's chances of winning its third consecutive All American title are nothing if not great. Moon Lark from Coppell took last year's edition while Hot Idea from Estelline won the 1977 running.

The All American is the last of the three futurities comprising the quarter horse Triple Crown and, this year, as always before, there can be no Triple Crown winner. No horse has ever won the Triple Crown — the series is so demanding that only one horse, Pa Pa Wheelie of Houston, even qualified for the Kansas, Rainbow and All American Futurities. Only five horses from the Rainbow are back for the All American, and other than Wheelie, only one horse from the Kansas made the All American.

The 10 finalists reached this impressive point by beating out nearly 350 challengers in a grueling series of qualification heats. The cream tends to rise to the top though and, in this most prestigious of quarter horse events, that is definitely the case. All the horses come from blue ribbon stock and many have very similar pedigrees.

Three of the contestants, including Streakin' Six and Sages Belle Star, the two pre-race favorites, as well as Easy Azuree, were fathered by Easy Six, who won the 1975 Kansas Futurity on his way to becoming Ruidoso's two year-old of the season that year. And 1969 All American champion Three Oh's is represented by offspring Ask The Boss and Manifestoh.

Easy Jet, perhaps the finest quarter horse of all time with 22 wins including the 1969 Kansas and All American Futurities, produced this year's fastest qualifier in Pie In The Sky. And All American speed record holder and 1973 champion Timeto Thinkrich is represented by a daughter, Denim N Diamonds.

Back Of 10 Race Participants

Here's a detailed look at the 10 participants in today's race:

— Pie In The Sky, a colt owned by Dan Urschel of Canadian, qualified first with a time of 21.66 seconds over the quarter mile distance. For the year, Pie has won three of his seven races and placed third in the other four while winning $63,918. This is his only Triple Crown start.

— Sages Belle Star, a filly owned by J.H. Crouch, Jr. of Midland, ran a 21.87 to qualify second. She has won five times and finished second three times in her eight starts to win $133,190 this year. She placed second in the Rainbow Futurity five weeks ago.

— Pa Pa Wheelie, a colt owned by B.N. Adams of Houston, qualified third with a 22.02 and is the only horse to run in all three Triple Crown events this season. He placed second in the Kansas and ninth in the Rainbow on his way to winning five times and $131,920 in eleven starts — an enviable record for a colt that cost only $1,200.

— Streakin' Six, a colt owned by the Tom Burnett Cattle Co. of Fort Worth, ranked fourth with a 22.05 but, after winning the Rainbow, is the pre-race choice to win the All American. Streakin' Six has four wins and two seconds in six outings this season — and while he has the fewest starts of any horse in the field, he has won the most money, a whopping $182,551.

— Afternoon Surprise, a filly owned by Ben McCutchin and Bill Walker of Dallas, qualified fifth with a time of 22.06. The horse has run 13 races this season, the most in the field, but has won only $14,514 in her eight victories, indicating her wins may have come in relatively insignificant races. This is her first Triple Crown start.

— That's Raney, a colt owned by Hugh Tucker and Bill Reed of Stamford, also qualified with a 22.06. In nine season starts, Raney has five wins and two seconds and has won $54,252. He placed third in the Rainbow after missing the Kansas.

— Ask The Boss, a colt owned by R.C. Howell and V.H. Pearch of Cypress, Calif., ran a 22.38 to qualify seventh. The horse has won three of its seven races this season in piling up $48,034. This is his only Triple Crown start.

— Manifestoh, a colt owned by Dan Stroh of Abilene, has won only once in eight tries this season for $7,615. Despite possessing the worst track record in the field, Manifestoh qualified eighth with a 22.39.

— Denim N Diamonds, a filly owned by R.D. Hubbard of Wichita, Kan., has won five of her eight races this year, but finished sixth in the Rainbow. Denim has won $29,720 this year and ran a 22.40 to qualify ninth.

— Easy Azuree, a filly owned by John May and Mack Yates of Fort Stockton, was the slowest qualifier with a 22.45 clocking. The horse has won six of nine races this year for $31,866 and is the only horse other than Pa Pa Wheelie to qualify for the Kansas and the All American. She finished eighth in the Kansas.

The horses qualified Aug. 23 and 24, with five of the top six qualifiers running the first day, which track officials said was the more conducive to speed. But differences of days aside, all 10 horses ran the quarter mile within eight-tenths of a second of each other, so certainly any horse in the field can win the race.

The All American Futurity will be telecast live in Lubbock and across the South Plains beginning at 7 p.m. central daylight time on Channel 28.

Tanner Makes U.S. Open Noise

NEW YORK (AP) — He was a finalist at Wimbledon. He is seeded fifth in the U.S. Open. Then why is Roscoe Tanner always playing before relatively small crowds on the outside courts of the National Tennis Center?

On a day when all but one seeded player — Gene Mayer, rated 13th, who lost in straight sets to Pat DuPre — was advancing to the fourth round, Tanner was making the most noise.

The hard-serving left-hander defeated Nick Saviano 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 on Court 16 Sunday, then wondered why he has played just once in two years on the stadium court that will be the site of the semifinals and final.

"It's really unfair to the guys who play on the outside, get to the round of 16 or the quarterfinals and find they're playing inside or in the grandstand," noted Tanner, who lost to Bjorn Borg in a five-set final at Wimbledon in July. "When others are used to it and you haven't played there, it's a huge advantage to the Borgs, Connors or McEnroes who never go outside the stadium."

"The outside courts are faster than the ones inside (the stadium and grandstand)," added Tanner. "As courts get older, they get faster. The outside courts are faster than they were last year."

Today's feature men's matches — on the stadium and grandstand courts — paired Vitas Gerulaitis, seeded fourth, against No. 10 Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina; top-seeded Bjorn Borg against unranked Dick Stockton; No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina versus No. 9 Eddie Dibbs; and unseeded Yannick Noah of France against South African Johan Kriek, also unseeded.

Among the women, No. 9 Billie Jean King met Kathy May Teacher, No. 2 Martina Navratilova faced 10th-ranked Greer Stevens, fourth-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain met Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia and Evonne Goolagong, seeded fifth, was paired against Jeanne DuVall.

Tanner's next opponent is 14th-seed

Tim Gullikson, who topped Buster Mottram 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in the stadium. Tanner may very well play the remainder of his matches on center stage, but despite his complaints he admitted he isn't worried about which courts he's been scheduled on.

"I'm getting more into the feel of the courts," he said. "I'm more confident, the same as at Wimbledon."

"I lost in the finals at Cincinnati last week on the same type surface as here. It was a tournament I would like to have won — the Association of Tennis Professionals championship. But the idea is to peak for the U.S. Open and I think I'm doing that."

Six-Mile Road Race

Set For Sept. 8

FRIONA (Special) — A six-mile run will be staged here Sept. 8, and it is open to any person without charge.

Dixon Six (Rt. 2, Friona) is sponsoring the race which will begin six miles north of here on Highway 214. The race will begin at 8 a.m. on Sept. 8.

All competitors will run together with only one class involved. Persons seeking additional information can contact Six at 295-6392.

Pair Tied Entering LPGA Final Round

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Carole Jo Skala and Sylvia Bertolaccini were tied for the lead entering the final round today in the $100,000 LPGA Rail Charity Golf Classic.

Miss Skala, from Fair Oaks, Calif., tied Miss Bertolaccini with a 54-hole total of 207, which was 9 under par, by making a birdie on the 18th hole Sunday. After three rounds of play, 19 women had sub-par totals over the Rail Golf Course, and eight players are within four shots of the co-leaders.

Miss Bertolaccini, who was one of three leaders after second-round play, managed to stay atop the pack by carding a 1-under-par 71 on Sunday.

"I would like to have more birdies, but I'll take the round," said Miss Bertolaccini, a native of Argentina who plays out of Dallas. "I was happy with the way I hit the ball, but the putts just didn't go in."

At 208, one shot off the pace, are Jo Ann Washam and Betsy King. Miss King carded a 70. Miss Washam, who shot 68 Sunday, closed spectacularly with an eagle on the par-4, 18th hole by hitting a wedge shot 120 yards into the cup.

It was the second eagle of the day on the finishing hole. Earlier, Cynthia Hill holed out from 130 yards with a 7 iron.

Cathy Thompson and Shelley Hamlin finished the day with 7-under-par totals of 209, two strokes back.

The low round Sunday was scored by veteran Vivian Brownlee, who fired a 5-under-par 31 on the back nine to record a 66.

Duo Take Lead At Lovington

LOVINGTON, N.M. (Special) — Layne Holder and Terry Franklin took the uncontested lead after the second round of the Joe Gullede Memorial Partnership Golf Tournament Sunday at Lovington Country Club.

The pair had tied for the lead after the first round Saturday but now hold a three-stroke advantage with a score of 129.

Mortgage companies and homesteads will begin taking applications Wednesday for $86 million available for home loans at a low 7.6 percent interest.

The low-interest money, which will be split among four income level groups, was made available by the sale of government-backed bonds. Most of the "tent city" residents said they would be unable to afford a house without the low-interest money.

"When you consider each day we're out there we're saving $7,000 on a 30-year note, it's absolutely thrilling... and a damn good bargain," said Don Crist. "Everybody's having a ball and making lots of new friends. It's like Carnival (Mardi Gras) out there."

Potential buyers, armed with beach chairs and shade umbrellas, began lining up outside the offices last week. Leaders emerged among the groups at most offices and became impromptu mayors.

Each group devised systems to keep track of those in lines, taking role every hour, and keeping the peace. They learned Friday that the parish's Home Authority agreed to allow the lines to remain on office property.

"We were being told about big crowds and the very serious possibility of lines and property damage," said Burnett Tappel, chairman of the authority. "I really was under the impression there'd be a murder if it were allowed to continue."

Instead, families sitting in lines reported an instant sense of community, with strangers sharing birthday parties, organizing marathon Monopoly games and sharing babysitting duties.

Despite the 90-degree heat, afternoon monsoon-like rains and nightly attacks of mosquitoes, sheriff's deputies have reported no trouble among those taking up temporary residence outside the mortgage offices.

More than 100 applicants at the Carruth Mortgage Corp. named their line "Carruthville" and a couple outside a Canal Street office wore T-shirts emblazoned with "We're Sixth in Line at Riverside Financial."

One woman left her beach lounge chair when she went into labor — and her husband and mother took turns keeping her place in line — and another woman sat in line for her son and daughter-in-law, who were on strike at a parish school.

Fisherman Nets Whale, Loses Herring Catch

LUBEC, Maine (AP) — Herring fisherman Carlton Leighton was philosophical about losing $14,000 worth of fish as fishermen and divers struggled in chilly waters to free a 30-foot whale trapped in his nets.

"This was the first time I ever had a whale by the tail," he said. "The young whale was weakened from its long struggle when the last confining webs were cut away, but it gained strength as it headed out to sea, leaving Leighton's nets behind."

"That goes along with fishing," the fisherman said. "That stuff happens, and you can't control it."

The whale apparently got tangled in the herring seine at the entrance to Carrying Place Cove late Saturday or early Sunday. The humpback calf's plight was first noticed Sunday morning by Marshall Stone, managing editor of the Bangor Daily News, who said the whale, caught primarily by its tail, was able to surface frequently for air.

Fishermen hurried to the cove and pulled away as much of the netting as possible. Working "eyeball to eyeball," diver Hank Stence cut the netting from around its fins and mouth.

"His eyeball was six inches in diameter," said Stence. "When I was working around his fins underneath him, it was like working in a cave with that big body above me. He kept his fins pretty close to his sides."

"The whale acted as if he knew we were trying to help," he said. "But later, when I had his tail free and the netting fell off from most of his body, he got feisty and it was harder to work around him."

On his first dive, which lasted 20 minutes, Stence managed to cut from the whale's tail. On the second, he was able to cut almost all the remaining netting and buoys.

Spaceship Reveals Mild Atmosphere On Saturn

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Scientists who had feared Pioneer 11 might not survive its brush with Saturn are poring over information that indicates "Saturn is a very nice place and it's got a little something for everybody."

"I think it's gone better than anyone could have hopefully expected," continued chief scientist John Wolfe as the robot ship sailed off from the planet and its glowing rings.

Scientists met reporters throughout the weekend at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center to describe their preliminary findings, including the discovery of a new ring encircling the planet and the possible find of a new moon.

Pioneer also found the Saturn neighborhood to hold only mild radiation levels with the shielded space beneath the rings as radiation-free as any found in the solar system, scientists said.

The 568-pound spaceship climaxed a 6½-year journey with a flight Saturday just 13,000 miles above the pale yellow clouds that whip around the giant planet.

Twice it survived without a scratch the potentially hazardous crossing just beyond the famous rings. Mission officials had worried that a collision with space debris thought to be in the region could destroy the ship and end the flight.

After examining Saturn, Pioneer swung Sunday past Titan, a huge moon some 700,000 miles from its parent planet.

One of five pictures taken 200,000 miles from Titan showed a rather fuzzy, reddish-yellow ball with what seemed to be a large bright spot on its lower half.

Tiles To Shield Shuttle From Heat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first space shuttle will be covered with heat insulation tiles to enable the rocket plane Columbia to withstand the enormous heat of re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere.

But the loss of even one tile might mean catastrophic heat.

So scientists and officials of the Johnson Space Center in Houston now are considering equipping the astronauts with a spray can and caulking gun for space-walk repairs in case one or more tiles are damaged during launch.

The square, silica tiles — a novel feature of the revolutionary rocket plane — are designed to make sure the winged ship can repeatedly withstand the 2,000-degree-plus heat of re-entry from orbit.

Minor damage to the tiles occurred last winter when the Columbia was ferried atop a 747 jet from California to Cape Canaveral, Fla.

That trip was in preparation for launch, now expected next spring or summer. The damage caused concern that, during launch, ice breaking off the shuttle's external tank might damage the Columbia's underside, or that severe aerodynamic stress during the climb to orbit might hurt the tiles.

Two weeks ago, officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration headquarters directed Houston to examine options for solving the problem, in case ongoing tests indicate the tiles are vulnerable.

"A lot of people are working very diligently to understand the characteristics of the tile and to relieve any concern that we presently have about the possibility of either tile damage or tiles coming off during the ascent phase," said Reginald Machell, manager of the engineering team studying the inspection and repair possibilities.

He said in a telephone interview that an inspection and repair system may not be necessary, "but if you don't start doing the work now, you close out the option by default." Machell said decisions will be made in the next few weeks.

He said one problem — how to inspect the outside of the shuttle in orbit — might be solved by rigging a television camera to an extendable boom attached to the shuttle's remote-controlled manipulator arm.

A second option is to provide astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen with a device that would let an astronaut fly around the shuttle spacelike-fashion to inspect it.

Aerospace contractors already have been asked to bid for contracts to provide insulation repair kits, Machell said.

Three concepts are under study, and he said all three might be made available if the space-walk repair option is chosen.

Martin Tomasko of the Pioneer team said it was too early to tell what were features of the moon and what might be problems with the radio signal traveling almost a billion miles to earth.

Scientists confirmed the discovery of the new ring, a thin band of orbiting particles about 2,300 miles beyond the outer edge of the previously known four rings. And they reported the discovery of an object that apparently is a moon

Solon Not Expecting Censure By Senate

RIVERDALE, Ga. (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge is expecting criticism, but not a censure recommendation, when the Senate Ethics Committee returns to Washington this week after the month-long congressional recess.

"I assume they will criticize me for negligence in bookkeeping practices in my office. Maybe I deserve that," Talmadge said in an interview with The Associated Press.

The committee, which was not able to agree on a recommendation before the recess, is considering five charges of financial wrongdoing by Talmadge or his subordinates. It could recommend censure, expulsion or some less severe penalty.

The 66-year-old senator, who is a candidate for a fifth six-year term in 1980, said he would "seriously doubt" that the committee would recommend censure.

But he was reluctant to talk about what might or might not occur. "I can't speculate on what others may do," he said in the interview conducted last week. "If I ask you what that fella's going to eat for supper over there, you'd think I was a damn idiot. You don't know and I don't know. Yet that's what you're asking me."

The chief witness against Talmadge during the weeks of hearings was his former top aide, Daniel Minchew, who said he set up a secret bank account to funnel campaign contributions and excess Senate expense funds to Talmadge.

Talmadge says he did not know of the account and has called Minchew a "liar, cheat and embezzler."

For the first time since Talmadge was elected to the Senate in 1964, he appears likely to face a strong re-election challenge.

During the recess, Talmadge mixed a heavy schedule of engagements with some fishing and some relaxation at his son's home in Riverdale.

"I have been in virtually every section of the state speaking," he said.

Man Tormented By Fear Of Family's Murderer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lloyd Cotsen, president of Neutrogena Corp., looks like a normal executive, busy with paperwork and staff conferences. But not far away stand his bodyguards.

Cotsen, who is also a respected amateur archeologist, is a haunted man, moving from place to place at night, sleeping — if he can — in hotels or friends' homes, not sticking to a routine.

The 56-year-old executive has been leading a tormented life since May 23 when a masked gunman invaded his spacious Beverly Hills home, tied up his wife, son and his son's schoolmate, then shot each of them fatally through the head.

Cotsen, in New York on business, heard the story on a car radio, drove to the airport, called his home, and had his worst fears confirmed by a police officer.

"I'd first like to know why, then who," Cotsen said recently, puffy bags of fatigue under his eyes.

"I don't know if we'll ever know who. But I have to know the why. Then I can adjust my lifestyle accordingly. I now have guards. I can't live like that forever."

The case remains unsolved, unexplained.

Cotsen and a group of business and professional persons formed a group that offered a $50,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and charging of a suspect in the case.

The offer expired Friday, but it brought no results and police said Sunday they did not know if it would be extended.

After killing Cotsen's wife Joanne, 50, his son Noah, 14, and Noah's friend Christopher Doering, 16, the killer fled after being surprised by a young man, accompanied by his girlfriend, who had been renting Cotsen's guest house.

The couple thought the gunman spoke with a Middle Eastern accent.

beyond the rings — adding it could be a previously identified moon, a previously suspected but unconfirmed moon or a completely new body.

The region dominated by Saturn's magnetic field turned out to be "a very much smaller, sedate and benign sort of magnetosphere than... the wild and woolly" region around Jupiter," said James Van Allen of the University of Iowa.

Iran Notes Distributed
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The government on Saturday began circulating booklets with the image of the deposed Shah splattered by an Oriental design stamped on the bills. A Central Bank official said bills in storage at the time of the February revolution were being circulated as old, unaltered notes could be withdrawn.

Cleanup Efforts Begin After David's Rampage

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Rocks filled main streets and rooftops jutted from the flooded Ozama River as the Dominican people dug out hundreds of bodies and began to clean up some of the devastation left by Hurricane David.

Power poles were broken off at their bases, major hotels were damaged and restaurants were no longer recognizable in the wake of the storm, which killed at least 600 Dominicans and left 150,000 homeless, 90,000 of them in the Santo Domingo area, officials said.

The hurricane left 22 dead Wednesday in the tiny eastern Caribbean island of Dominica and another 16 in Puerto Rico, then swept into the Dominican Republic late Friday, ripping chunks of concrete from sidewalks and crushing cars waiting on a dock like toys.

Palm trees were uprooted and tossed about like straws, a large cargo plane was tossed upside down onto the top of a building at the airport. The long concrete walkway along Santo Domingo's George Washington Avenue was shredded, its remains hurled across the street by the storm.

Waves then pounded directly into the hotel fronts, smashing in glass walls and windows and sweeping through the buildings. Foreign businessmen and tourists staying in the hotels had been evacuated to public buildings on higher ground and no casualties were reported among them.

But in the tiny town of Ocos, 75 miles southwest of Santo Domingo, 400 Dominicans huddled in a church and a school were killed when flood waters from the rain-swollen Yaque River swept through the buildings, civil defense officials said.

"The waters kept rising and rising until everything was flooded and dozens of persons drowned. The few who saved themselves had to climb to the top of the church steeple," a local official said.

Fifteen others were killed when high winds knocked down a concrete block church in the city of San Cristobal, 12 miles west of Santo Domingo.

Salome Franco Guillen, 63, and his wife Gloria grieved for their 30-year-old son, Daniel, and Guillen's brother Luis, who died in the little church on the hill. They had watched in horror as the walls collapsed and killed him along with 14 others.

"The zinc on the rooftop went first, then the wooden section," Guillen said. "That wall on the right collapsed," he said, pointing. "They were right there. They died right there."

The ruins of the Guillen's home was nearby and the rolling countryside looked as though a giant tidal wave had swept through.

"I'll help rebuild the church and my home," said Guillen. "I have nothing else."

Some of Santo Domingo's residents sat on their front porches Sunday, apparently still not believing what had happened. Two women rocked slowly on a porch in a well-to-do neighborhood near the city's tourist zone. The roof of their house was heavily damaged and their front yard was full of debris.

On a winding road near the Las Minas slum section where Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass in January, thousands watched as a helicopter rescued four soldiers one by one from the roof of a building surrounded by floodwaters.

Armed soldiers kept the crowd back. The driving wind from the whirling helicopter blades sent some running, almost in a panic.

"We have no water or electricity, we have nothing," said Julia Maria Reyes, 37, as she and her 21-year-old brother Carlos led reporters up a road path to the ruins of their one-room shack.

Without running water and with food growing scarce, officials imposed a 7 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew in an attempt to establish order. Armed soldiers patrolled the streets to prevent looting from storm-ravaged stores.

The government said there will be no electricity for at least three weeks. David also destroyed a storage tank with thousands of gallons of fuel, and the power shortage will delay resumption of refinery operations.

All commercial and private flights were cancelled because of a damaged runway at the airport.

Authorities estimated 30 percent of the nation's crops were destroyed by David.

Floridians Evacuate To Higher Ground

MIAMI (AP) — Thousands of South Florida residents scrambled to find safe shelter — in opulent Miami Beach hotels and simple school auditoriums — as deadly Hurricane David bore down on them.

"You can't fight God," said 84-year-old Sarah Hyman of Miami Beach as she took refuge Sunday in a school evacuation center.

Gov. Bob Graham ordered evacuation of low-lying areas in a four-county district that included Miami, Miami Beach's hotel row, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach and Palm Beach, wintering ground for some of the nation's wealthiest families.

Tolls were suspended to speed travel on many roadways. The few gas stations open did a big business, with lines up to a mile long.

Food sales were brisk, too, as residents laid in stocks, and fights broke out in hardware stores as tempers flared over flashlights, batteries and even parking spaces.

"They were animals," said hardware store co-owner James Saunders. "They tore us apart."

Managers along Miami Beach's famed hotel row had employees prepared to open both front and back doors to allow the storm-driven seas to pass through their lobbies when it hit early Tuesday.

The luxury Fontainebleau Hotel took in all who came to the door.

"We are housing people whether they are guests of the hotel or just off the street," said assistant manager Larry Zanas. He said about 1,200 people were in the hotel.

The Red Cross brought in emergency food supplies after about 500 persons, most nursing home patients, sought shelter in the Miami Beach Convention Center only to find there was nothing to eat.

Graham recommended that people make preliminary plans to evacuate in four other counties covering an area running north to the Kennedy Space Center near Cape Canaveral.

In Key Biscayne, near downtown Miami, the Miami Seaquarium put Flipper, star of movies and an old television series, and other performing dolphins into a sheltered tank.

"They're secure," said spokeswoman Jennie Stewart. "They've had these happenings before."

No hurricane had struck the Florida peninsula since Betty's onslaught in 1965. Inez hit the Florida Keys in 1966. Officials estimated that as many as 80 percent of the nearly 2.5 million South Florida residents had never been through one of the giant storms.

Some hardy surfers took advantage of the large waves whipped up by the storm.

And in Coconut Grove near Miami, businessman Earl Smalley threw a hurricane bash and said he was equipped with 16 friends, lots of food and 10 cases of whiskey.

Kennedy Space Center Protects Two Spacecrafts From Damage

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two spacecraft stood wrapped in steel cocoons today at the Kennedy Space Center, ready for the fury of Hurricane David, space officials said.

"We have gone on Condition One alert," Dick Young, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Sunday. "We have evacuated all non-essential personnel and closed the gates."

Some 1,000 NASA workers and contract personnel spent Sunday securing equipment, including the Space Agency's Atlas Centaur rocket and a classified Titan III Cowned by the Air Force.

The Atlas Centaur was poised on its pad at Complex 36 at the tip of Cape Canaveral not far from the Atlantic Ocean. The Titan was sitting on a man-made island in the Banana River, which borders Cape Canaveral.

Young said the launch pads are designed to withstand hurricane force winds and scientists were not worried about damage to the pads or spacecraft. Both spacecraft were surrounded by service towers, which include working platforms and doors that close around the payloads.

The huge Atlas Centaur was being readied for a launch of a High Energy Observation spacecraft, the third of a series designed to help determine the formation of the universe.

The Air Force refused to say the purpose or launch date of the Titan. Normally, Titans carry classified payloads or communications satellites.

Young said some 700 to 800 people were called in to serve on "ride-out" crews at various operation centers at Kennedy — such as the Orbiter Processing Facility where the space shuttle Columbia is housed, the giant Vehicle Assembly building and the Launch Control Center.

"These people will mainly sit it out for the duration," said Young, adding that the facilities were built to withstand heavy winds.

Patrick Air Force Base, the center's support station, is a few miles south of the space center. Almost 3,000 military men and some 3,000 dependents were evacuated to Orlando, some 56 miles inland.

Aircraft from Patrick were moved to nearby bases. That included 35 twin-engine planes from the 940th Tactical Support Group to Shaw Air Force Base in South Carolina and 11 A7 jet fighters to Alexandria, La.

"We don't have some evil force manifesting itself out there as a hurricane," says Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami. "It's a necessary part of atmospheric conditions. It releases the heat built up in the tropics."

The most destructive part of the hurricane is the high winds swirling around the calm of the eye, which averages about 25 miles in diameter but sometimes grows 50 miles wide.

A 1900 hurricane is responsible for the worst natural disaster in U.S. history. The storm hit Galveston, Texas, on Sept. 8 and killed more than 6,000 people.

Hurricanes are also accompanied by a storm surge, a great dome of water often 50 miles wide that sweeps across the coastline near the area where the hurricane eye makes landfall. The surge, aided by the hammering effect of breaking waves, acts like a giant bulldozer sweeping everything in its path.

Nine out of 10 hurricane fatalities are caused by the hurricane surge.

Although knowledge of hurricanes has grown through modern technology, scientists still are baffled by many aspects of the storm.

"We recognize what conditions are necessary to form hurricanes," says Dr. Robert Sheets, chief of Hurricane Group for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Hurricane Called Nature's Safety Valve

MIAMI (AP) — The hurricane is a safety valve of nature, a fact of small consolation to those in the path of one of the most powerful forces on Earth.

Known as a typhoon in the Pacific Ocean and a cyclone in the Indian Ocean, these largest of atmospheric disturbances can affect an area of 200,000 square miles and create more energy than is generated in the United States during several decades.

"If you dropped an atomic bomb in a hurricane, it would just suck it up — it just wouldn't do anything," says research biologist Lloyd Shapiro.

A hurricane, swirling with awful violence, can move 3,600 million tons of air up to 200 mph, churn up 25-foot waves and dump torrential rains that bring flooding and death.

A hurricane can move erratically, changing direction, making loops, slowing up, even temporarily stopping. Some hurricanes in the past along the mid-Atlantic and New England coast moved at more than 30 mph.

Coastal States Targets Of Devastating Storms

By The Associated Press
Hurricanes have claimed thousands of lives, caused billions of dollars in damage and terrorized residents of practically every state along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts from Texas to Massachusetts.

In terms of lives lost, the most destructive hurricane struck at the United States on Sept. 8, 1900, from the Gulf of Mexico in the days before sophisticated warning systems. At least 6,000 residents of the Texas island city of Galveston died when a tidal wave built by the 85 mph winds inundated the city.

Hurricane Agnes, which moved across Maryland, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania and New York on June 21, 1972, was the most costly disaster in history in terms of property damage.

Agnes' rain caused rivers in those states to overflow, isolating cities along the James and Susquehanna rivers. Highways were cut, bridges collapsed and thousands of residents in river cities were isolated.

Agnes claimed 118 lives, ruined an estimated $132 million in crops and caused property damage estimated at more than $3 billion.

The so-called Eastern Seaboard Hurricane hit New York City, Long Island and most of New England on Sept. 21, 1938. It killed 600 persons and caused property damage estimated at $1 billion in Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York.

Hurricane Camille carried winds that reached 200 mph during gusts and raised tides 30 feet in the Gulf.

Camille struck at the coasts of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama on Aug. 17, 1969. Before it abated, 241 persons were killed.

The most recent storm to strike at South Florida was Hurricane Betsy — on Sept. 8, 1965.

Betsy raked Miami Beach, Miami and the Florida Keys and then moved across the peninsula to the Gulf and on to Louisiana. Seventy-five persons were killed, 58 of them in Louisiana.

Writer Predicts Success For 'Lazarus Syndrome'

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — The anatomy of a hospital, the drama of disease and the personal lives of doctors all meld to make "The Lazarus Syndrome" one of the classiest new series of the fall season.

A big reason for the success of the two-hour premiere, to go on ABC Tuesday at 8 p.m. (CDT) is the elegant and sensitive performance of Louis Gossett Jr.

Gossett plays a doctor, the highly skilled chief of staff of a hospital poorly administered by E.G. Marshall.

Gossett's competence as a physician is countered by his faltering marriage. His wife tells him, "I fell in love with a student, lived with an intern, married a doctor — and each step up was a step apart."

Enter Ronald Hunter as Joe Hamill, newspaperman with a sick heart and a terminal marriage. Gossett brings Hunter through his heart attack (nobody could save that marriage) and the two form an uneasy but deepening friendship.

Complications in the first episode include Marshall's crackup as hospital administrator, Hunter's peculiarities as a patient, and Gossett's marital distractions.

By the end of the show, the stage is set for the continuing series, when Hunter agrees to replace Marshall as administrator and he and Gossett jogg off into the distance.

The series promises a good mix of emotion and disease in the old hospital formula jazzed up by fine performances. The title refers to a patient's tendency to think of his doctor as a miracle worker.

Competing for the time slot on Sept. 4 is the two-hour "No More Vietnams, But ... An NBC White Paper on Oil and American Power," anchored by Edwin Newman and reported by a team headed by Garrick Utley.

The show portrays American dependence on oil, particularly the Saudi-Arabian brand. Talk about foreign entanglements, we have really gotten ourselves tied up in this one.

The show is divided into three parts. First there's the portrait of Saudi Arabia, from whom the United States gets 20 percent of its imported oil. They are an exotic tribal people under an absolute monarchy, struggling into the 20th century from the Middle Ages and enjoying a "special relationship" with the United States.

That "relationship" is marred in Saudi eyes by American policy toward Israel. Cautious Americans also fear that Westernization and modernization may encourage revolution, as occurred in Iran.

Another present danger is the Soviet Union's foothold in the area through the party-line government of South Yemen. Will we get involved in the Middle East to protect Saudi Arabia, or Saudi interests, or even try to take the oil fields in case of revolution in Arabia?

The questions are posed by "No More Vietnams, But..." Only future history knows the answer.

Survey Head Says Reef May Hold Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the U.S. Geological Survey says there is a chance of finding significant quantities of oil beneath a reef more than 100 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic Ocean.

However, H. William Menard said last week there is no certainty the reef holds any oil at all. He said the estimates of a potential discovery there are based on comparisons with similar geological formations where oil has been found.

Another catch is the location. The depth of water over the reef and the rock covering it would make exploration difficult and expensive.

Menard said the geological "trend" stretching from Mexico through the Gulf of Mexico and up the Atlantic Coast from Florida almost to Canada might contain 2-billion to 15 billion barrels of oil.

The most likely place to explore, he said, is about 140 miles off the New Jersey coast — an area that could contain anywhere from 1 billion to 6 billion barrels of recoverable oil.

The nation's total proven reserves, a measure of known deposits that can be economically recovered, are now estimated at 30 billion barrels. Saudi Arabia is believed to have five times that much.

Menard's remarks were made at an energy seminar in Atlanta and issued in Washington by the Geological Survey, an agency of the Interior Department.

He said the 100-million-year-old reef is about 15 miles wide and 20,000 feet thick. But it is buried under some 6,000 feet of rock and 6,000 feet of water, making drilling from conventional offshore rigs impossible.

The Glomar Explorer was built at a cost of $550 million for the Central Intelligence Agency by the late Howard Hughes' Summa Corp.

Novel's Success Gives Author Time To Write

By PHIL THOMAS
NEW YORK (AP) — "Writing is a very hard life," says novelist John Irving. "But since I was never able to convince myself that there was anything else I was good at, I became a writer."

However, with the success of his fourth and latest novel, the best-selling "The World According to Garp," the writing life has become a bit easier for Irving.

"Garp," the amiable, 37-year-old Irving explains, "brought me enough money to be a full-time writer."

Previously, Irving says, he had often had to fit his writing time into those hours when he wasn't teaching college-level English and literature courses.

"I taught for six out of the past 10 years," he says. "The other four years I was able to write more or less full time because of various grants I got and of some money from my other novels that bought me some writing time and I was able to get away from teaching. I was lucky."

Irving says he spent about a year thinking about and another four years writing "Garp." He adds that, "It was a rough time for me. I was teaching full time — during the summers also — for three of those years."

"When I was teaching I could only work about an hour and a half to two hours at a time in the morning before I had to leave for classes. That way I had to carry a lot of the book around in my head because I didn't have the time to get it down. Luckily, I got a grant and was able to give more time to the book. If I hadn't gotten the grant, I'd probably still be working on "Garp."

Irving, who lives in Putney, Vt., with his wife and their two young sons, is quick to point out that, "The thing is I like to teach, but I don't like to have to teach. I like working with young people who have no preconceptions about what literature should be. But when you have to teach you can't help but be a bit resentful because it cuts into your writing time."

He says he resigned from teaching after "Garp's" success but has plans to go back to the classroom on a part-time basis that won't interfere with his writing. "That," he says with a smile, "is the kind of teaching I really can enjoy."

Looking back, Irving notes his first two novels, "Setting Free the Bears" and "The Water-Method Man," did moderately well, but his third, "The 158-Pound Marriage," sold "very poorly and probably would have been on the worst-seller list if there was such a thing."

He adds, however, that "I've always been reviewed fairly well, never ill-treated. I feel that at least two of my first three books could have been best-sellers. But this didn't happen. So I feel especially good that 'Garp' made it because this shows I do have a wide audience."

"I've always felt that I was not a writer's writer, that I was not inaccessible, difficult or off-putting to people who haven't had a highly literary education. People don't have to have graduate school degrees in contemporary literature to understand 'Garp.' I've never found any contradiction between writing seriously and being popular. There are often two or three books by serious writers on the best-seller lists and this is encouraging."

Irving, who uses a typewriter because "my handwriting is so bad that when I sign checks the people I give them to frown and ask me to print my name and Social Security number under the signature," says he is now some 200 pages into a new novel.

"It's called 'The Hotel New Hampshire,'" he says. "When I was working on 'Garp' and people asked me what it was about I'd say 'It's about a man with a famous mother' or 'It's a life-affirming novel in which everyone dies.'"

Victor Hubert Work Opens Opera Season

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — Victor Hubert's first hit, "Naughty Marietta," opened the New York City Opera season recently at the New York State Theater.

"Naughty Marietta" opened the season last fall, too, but this time director Jack Eddleman went back to the original 1910 stage opera. Now each character sings as soon as he arrives on stage and talks later. One traditional duet — not in the original — is out and a comic character named Lizette is back.

What Eddleman should have been doing is cutting dialogue and songs like "It's Pretty Soft for Silas." This "Naughty Marietta" seems unnecessarily serious, "operatic" and long.

The overture was conducted by John Mauceri so that each lovely tune has a breathing space before the orchestra plays the next one. It may be the high point of the evening.

"Tosca" will start the season of repertory on Sept. 11 and end it Nov. 11, after which the company will sing in Los Angeles for four weeks, starting Nov. 14.

Store Attendant Attacked By Knife-Wielding Man

A convenience store clerk was struck several times in the face by a knife-wielding man during a holdup about 6 a.m. today in the 800-block of Avenue Q, according to police.

Martha Scott, a 46-year-old attendant at the 7-Eleven Store at 802 Ave. Q, told police the bandits, one man and a woman, fled the business with $160 cash, but reports indicate the money was recovered from under a car parked in front of the store.

Officers arriving on the scene saw the suspects leaving the business and began chasing them. However, the bandits were lost when the man ran into a nearby apartment complex and the woman apparently hid in some bushes.

Mrs. Scott said she saw the woman slip a sandwich in her purse while the pair were in the store. The clerk said when she asked the woman if she was going to pay for the food, both suspects became angry and left.

However, reports state the couple returned and the man waved a knife and struck Mrs. Scott several times in the face. Another employee, Jim Sziller, said he walked out from the back of the business and was confronted by the bandits. The suspects ordered the employees to empty the cash registers into the woman's purse and then fled, according to reports.

The woman apparently threw the handgun under a car and the man dropped the knife when they saw police.

The female suspect was described as a Mexican-American, between 18 and 25, short, heavy and wearing a dark blue coat and jeans. Her companion reportedly was a black man, described as tall and wearing a white shirt and khaki pants.

In other activity, a 20-year-old man was arrested about 1:10 a.m. today for allegedly assaulting and attempting to rape a teen-age girl at a 42nd Street residence.

The 17-year-old victim told police she awoke early this morning when the man crawled into her bed and began making sexual advances.

The girl said she was able to break away from the suspect, but not before he tore off part of her clothes. Reports state the man followed the girl into the kitchen and began telling her he was sorry and not to tell anyone.

The confrontation moved into another room, police were told, when the suspect displayed a knife, held it to the girl's throat and said, "All I want to do is go to bed with you."

The girl said she was able to break free again and ran out of the house, with the man following behind. The suspect then went back into the house where he was detained when several of the victim's friends arrived.

The suspect, who allegedly attempted to steal several of the woman's albums, was taken to the county jail where he was booked on suspicion of aggravated assault, attempted rape and theft.

A 27-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was sexually assaulted about 3 a.m. today by two of four men who confronted her near Loop 289 and Quirt Avenue.

The woman said she was with her husband and several other persons when their car ran out of gasoline. She said everyone but her left the vehicle searching for more fuel. Reports state four men stopped and asked if they could help, then two of the subjects pulled her out of the car and sexually assaulted her in a nearby field before fleeing.

The victim described her attackers as black and wearing white shirts and blue pants. One of the suspects had a large scar on his face and wore an earring, she said. The other man reportedly had a large scar on his stomach and wore a ski cap.

Burglars broke into an 18th Street residence early Sunday morning and made off with more than $2,500 worth of property, said Lubbock police.

Debra Perry said she returned to her 1514 8th St. residence early Sunday to find her TV set, stereo sound system and some jewelry removed from the apartment, said police. The missing items were valued at $2,563.

Intruders apparently entered through a window and left through a door, said police.

Intruders broke into the Luther North American Van Lines warehouse at 320 33rd St. early Sunday, said police.

The burglars ransacked the warehouse, breaking into several packing boxes full of personal belongings being stored. Warehouse officials told police they were not sure what, if anything, had been taken, but would conduct an inventory to find out.

Entry to the warehouse was made through an overhead door, according to police reports.

Vandals shot into a wall and through a door of the Hi-Fidelity stereo store at 2217 34th St. early Sunday. Police reports indicate the damage to the storefront may be about $300.

Two juvenile girls were arrested for shoplifting at the Fashion Conspiracy clothing store in South Plains Mall late Saturday. A store employee said she noticed the two girls leaving the store with clothes they had not paid for, and followed them outside, where security guards arrested them. The girls were taken into custody by Juvenile Division officers, and $140 worth of clothes returned to the store.

An employee at Yesterday's Restaurant at 3602 Slide Road told police someone removed $255 in cash from her purse while she was working at the restaurant Saturday. Police said Linda Borik told them she thought the money might have been taken while she was working.

Oscar Coleman told police someone destroyed two roses bushes and a cactus plant that were in front of his 210 Cherry St. residence Saturday. Coleman said he heard noises outside his house Saturday night but did not discover the damage to the plant until early Sunday.

A TV set, valued at $100, was removed from Allen Gibson's residence at 2707-A Weber Dr., Saturday. Gibson said he found the set missing when he returned there about 7:30 p.m.

Robert Stewart said he is minus $600 worth of tires, wheels and automotive tools after they were removed from his car, which was sitting outside his residence Saturday.

Ostracized Mennonite Arrested For Attempting To Accost Wife

CARLISLE, Pa. (UPI) — For seven years, Robert Bear has fought to regain the family he lost when he was ostracized by the Reformed Mennonite Church for daring to challenge religious doctrines.

It still is a losing battle. A preliminary hearing will be held Tuesday for Bear, 50, who was arrested last week in Lemoyne, Pa., for allegedly accosting his wife at the West Shore Farmer's Market and forcing her into a vehicle.

Gale Bear and the couple's six children, as well as friends and religious leaders, have "shunned" Bear, a potato farmer, since 1972. Shunning is a 400-year-old form of punishment.

"He was holding her against her will," said officer Gary Anderson, who answered a report Friday that someone was "dragging" a woman from the produce-and-meat store.

Bear was charged with disorderly conduct, simple assault, unlawful restraint and false imprisonment. He was jailed in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Neither Bear's lawyer nor Mrs. Bear could be reached for comment.

Robert Finkenbinder, who owns a local butcher shop, said the shunning has wounded Bear, his friend.

"It's not very often that you see a man who has that much love for a woman," Finkenbinder said during the weekend.

"And then, she turns on him like that. It makes you stop and think. I think he's a whale of a nice guy."

Mrs. Bear, even after she started shunning her husband, said she still loved him, though she believed he had to recognize the error of his ways.

"I do certainly love his soul and I wish him peace, but the building stones of marriage have been deeply damaged," Mrs. Bear said in testimony during a court trial over the shunning.

In 1976, Bear unsuccessfully asked Cumberland County Common Pleas Court to bar the practice of shunning. He claimed the Mennonite Church was trying to run over him the way a steamroller would squash a dog in its path.

Bear, who was excommunicated, said his court battle against shunning could have destroyed the Reformed Mennonite Church.

Identified by the black clothes worn by its 500 members in North America, the Reformed Mennonite Church believes it is the only true Christian religion.

Bear encountered financial problems as a result of his ostracism. In the first years, his farming income dropped from $100,000 to less than $20,000. Last year he lost part of his farm in a sheriff's sale.

UAW, GM Negotiators Continue Bargaining

DETROIT (UPI) — Negotiating teams for the United Auto Workers Union and General Motors Corp. planned to celebrate Labor Day today with intensive collective bargaining.

With 11 days left before the expiration of contracts covering 750,000 U.S. auto workers, the two sides ordered bargaining subcommittees to press for agreements on specific issues assigned to them.

Most demands must be processed through subcommittees before they can come to the main bargaining table for final resolution. Practically none of the many complex demands have reached that final point, officials said.

UAW and GM negotiators, bargaining toward a pattern settlement for the auto industry, put in their first full weekend of main table work in nearly two months of talks.

Discussions centered on guaranteeing that auto industry Supplemental Unemployment Benefit funds would not run dry in future layoff periods. There was no resolution.

Optimism that an agreement can be reached before contracts expire Sept. 14 was still running high.

"There's no bitterness at the bargaining table," UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone said in describing the congenial atmosphere of the talks. "There is no table-pounding."

The opening of Sunday's session was delayed while both sides watched UAW President Douglas Fraser's appearance on the ABC News program "Issues and Answers."

Responding to GM's recent price hike of an average $244 on some 1980 models, Fraser said the union would moderate its contract demands if GM agreed not to raise car prices.

Fraser thus turned the tables on GM negotiators, who have frequently denounced the union's contract demands this year as contrary to the nation's anti-inflation goals.

The price hike, Fraser said, was inflationary.

"We would moderate our demands if we could get a commitment from General Motors Corp. that they would not raise prices" during the contract now being negotiated, Fraser said.

When the UAW picked GM as its strike target last week, Fraser said there was a possibility the union would use selective strikes aimed at the company's hottest-selling models if no agreement is reached by Sept. 14.

Disclosing a few additional details of that strategy, Fraser said such selective strikes probably would not involve more than 30 percent of GM's hourly work force at any one time. The strike pattern would change as car inventories changed, he said.

But Fraser repeated his optimism that a strike can be averted.

"A strike is a very serious event," he said, and could have a dampening effect on the overall economy. "That's why we're going to try with every means at our disposal to avoid a strike."

Conservative Union Gives Ratings Of Texas Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Conservative Union says its latest survey of House and Senate voting records indicates Congress is taking a more conservative stance.

Composite figures released by the group over the weekend show members of the 96th Congress agreed with the ACU position 46.9 percent of the time during the first six months of 1979 compared to 44.9 percent during a similar period in 1978.

An ACU analysis accompanying the figures attributes the trend to 96 senators and House members first elected to Congress last year.

The scorecard, which included individual rankings of all 535 senators and House members, was based on 20 votes on separate issues considered during the first half of 1979.

The issues ranged from gasoline rationing to food stamps, to the question of whether to continue economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

Also included was how legislators voted on efforts to ban court-ordered busing to achieve school desegregation, to declare that an attack on Taiwan would be a threat to U.S. security, and to impose automatic cuts in federal income taxes.

Here are ratings assigned Texas representatives and senators by the American Conservative Union. The figures are percentages based on vote the ACU considers favorable on 20 issues during the first six months of 1979. For example, a rating of 90 would mean that person backed the ACU position 90 percent of the time.

Employment Figures Criticized By Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employment figures compiled by the government often do not tell the whole story because of incomplete data, a study group says. As a result, various federal aid programs may not get distributed on an equitable basis.

The National Commission on Employment and Unemployment Statistics said Saturday the information needed at the local level is simply not available in many areas. And it concluded there is not much the government can do about the situation short of spending a lot more money.

Agencies Draw Criticism For Weather Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators charge the Commerce and Agriculture departments are doing an inadequate job of communicating specialized weather information to farmers and agricultural business.

A survey showed one-third of farmers and ranchers could not recall ever hearing of specialized agricultural forecasts and one-half could not recall hearing of weather advisories directed specifically at farmers.

In one area where forecasts had been available for a decade, 30 percent of farmers, ranchers and businessmen were unaware of it. Yet the National Weather Service, which is under the Commerce Department, spends $3 million a year on the project and the Agriculture Department adds $1 million annually.

However, users of the forecasts said it was better than general public forecasts, which they criticized for inaccuracy.

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, said this is not the first time it has called for a better program of targeting specialized weather information to groups who need it.

Last year, the agency criticized Congress for failure to define the extent to which the National Weather Service should target special service not only for agriculture, but also for aviation, marine, forestry and environmental air quality needs. Congress has not yet acted.

Weather forecasters are capable of delivering more specific forecasts than they disseminate to the general public.

The difficulty is distributing weather reports to narrowly targeted audiences.

Congressional investigators said more than half of farmers, ranchers and agricultural businessmen indicated that agricultural weather forecasts were important enough for the government or a private firm to make them available on a 24-hour, toll-free telephone number.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration provides weather reports on a radio band, but half of farmers and ranchers and a fourth of county agents were unaware of it.

Yet many of them said they were willing to invest in a simple radio that would give them that information.

Most radio and television stations — where farmers and ranchers get most of their weather information — who had heard of agricultural weather services said they broadcast them. Those who did not reported there were too few farmers in their listening audiences or said the general public forecast is adequate for most users.

The weather information can be provided by county agents, but few people depended on them for special forecasts.

The first of two basic weather services for agricultural needs includes forecasts of expected cloudiness, exact geographical areas where precipitation will fall, wind speed and direction, dew duration and intensity, and high and low temperatures.

The second basic service advises farmers how to relate daily weather to farming operations. For example, an advisory could tell farmers that fertilizing pastures is a good idea because a light rain with minimum runoff is anticipated. Or it might recommend the best time to irrigate crops.

Even though Congress has not acted to improve the agricultural weather system, the Agriculture and Commerce departments should act themselves to publicize the service to users and potential users, the General Accounting Office recommended.

The bureaucrats should update a 1971 plan for agricultural weather, the congressional agency said. The existing plan fails to describe goals of the program, responsibilities of participating government agencies or how they can cooperate.

The report said the agencies must cooperate more on research to determine what kind of weather information is most valuable to agriculture.

It said the National Weather Service and Agriculture did agree recently to improve cooperation, but the agreement did not address use of government satellites for agriculture forecasting or research goals.

The General Accounting Office concluded, "the information obtained does show a need for strengthening the program" but at least two aspects of the report tend to contradict that.

Of farmers, ranchers and businessmen familiar with the report, most never used it or used it only two or three times a year.

In addition, some farmers in areas where the report was unavailable said they used it, which tended to reduce the credibility of responses in areas where it was available.

Libraries Get Boost From Celebrities

CHICAGO (AP) — Author James Michener pledged his friendship to libraries when he donated proceeds from a recent speaking engagement to the Richmond, Ind., public library. Stipulation: that the library buy books with his gift.

Michener joined, too, with actor Charlton Heston and a host of other celebrities at the opening of a Manhattan bookstore. The store's first-day sales benefited the New York public library.

Mae West, Elmer Zimbalist, Olivia de Havilland and Sammy Cahn are among the entertainers who frequently gather to give the University of Southern California library a boost.

These celebrities are among thousands of Americans who value the library and want to be sure it stays healthy, says Robert Wedgworth, executive director of the American Library Association (ALA).

The association's executive reports that people all over the country — young and old, rich and poor, the famous and not-so-famous — are becoming "friends" of the library.

"Considering the plight of many of the nation's libraries, they need all the friends they can get," Wedgworth says. "Inflation has touched libraries just as it has affected every citizen. Book costs have almost doubled since 1970. Magazine prices are up 9 percent in the past year alone."

Wedgworth notes that a recent book-industry study predicts that by 1981 libraries will need to spend far more to buy much less.

Working independently of the library administration, Friends of the Libraries Boards build community support for libraries and tell the public of libraries' specific needs, Wedgworth points out.

They work to pass laws favorable to libraries, seek out donations and raise extra funds through special events. They help organize special library exhibits, conduct study groups, workshops and classes, and even sponsor cultural activities.

Among the examples of support for the library Wedgworth cites is the Littleton, Colo., friends' group. More than $10,000 was raised for the library and the Littleton Museum this year through a musical revue, a satirical production written, produced and performed by friends, interested community residents and staff members of the two institutions.

A basketball marathon is staged annually in Scranton, Pa., with proceeds benefiting Scranton Public and the Oslerhout Free Library. Personal phone calls made by volunteers and library staff on their off-time to 18,000 voters helped the Tulsa City-County Library with a mill levy passage which increased the library's budget 50 percent.

Wedgworth suggests that people interested in becoming a friend of the library call their local public or college library to find out how they can join. If there is no friends of the library group in the community the ALA suggests working with the director to form a citizens' group to aid the library.

"If it weren't for the core of concerned citizens who recognize the value of libraries and the tremendous role they play in information delivery, some libraries might not even exist today," Wedgworth says. "The more friends a library has, the better."
