DEMONSTRATION IN BRITAIN — A London policeman looks on as demonstrators hold up placards denouncing former Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith as a "murderer." Rhodesian Factions Open Peace Parley

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington formally opened Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace talks today, insisting the warring parties reach agreement on a new constitution before deciding who will control the nation's army.

The talks opened on schedule despite last-minute objections by one faction of the guerrillas to being seated opposite the war-torn country's first black prime minister, Abel Muzorewa, and leaders from the previous white minority government.

After the talks began behind closed doors at Lancaster House, a Foreign Office spokesman said the opposing delegates sat down as Britain arranged — facing each other.

"The constitution is the fundamental problem to which we must address ourselves," Carrington told the two sides, whose main preoccupation is who will control the national security forces after any internationally acceptable agreement.

Carrington said progress toward agreement on political issues would mean "progress toward removing the causes of the war."

Just before the talks began, guerrilla chief Robert Mugabe urged Britain to set up a transition administration in Zimbabwe Rhodesia giving a "predominant" role to the guerrillas, but including Britain and representatives of Muzorewa's black-dominated administration.

The Mozambique-based Mugabe, and the Zambia-based forces of his co-leader, Joshua Nkomo, have been fighting seven years for control of the south African nation.

Mugabe told a BBC interviewer the communist-armed guerrilla forces should form the "core" of the new army. But unlike many of his top aides and Nkomo himself, who often demand the total dismantling of the country's white-led army and air force, Mugabe said: "We do agree to include desirable elements from the other side."

He would not elaborate. The current Rhodesian regular army is 80 percent black and regarded as one of the most efficient in Africa.

On the transfer of political power, Mugabe said: "We would like to see a transition arrangement which involves the British, ourselves and representatives of the other side, with the Patriotic Front constituting a predominant element of that mixed administration."

Mugabe described Muzorewa, whom he regards simply as a black front with power retained by whites, as on the "verge of defeat."

Some conference sources said Muzorewa would walk out if the guerrilla leaders pursued their military demands.

Editorial comment in the British papers was somber. The pro-Conservative Daily Telegraph said "the omens and the precedents are discouraging." The pro-Labor Daily Mirror said the conference's chances of succeeding are slight. The independent Financial Times said there were "few grounds for optimism."

Supporting Muzorewa was the leader of the 230,000 Rhodesian whites, former Prime Minister Ian Smith, who declared Rhodesia independent in 1965 to block imposition of a constitution promising eventual transfer of power to the 7 million blacks.

Smith on his arrival Sunday was cheered by white airport workers and a dozen ex-Rhodesians, but about 100 others chanted "murderer" to greet him. He told reporters he thought the conference had a good chance of success.

County Rebuffs Minority Plea

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Minority spokesmen today presented arguments and petitions to Lubbock County commissioners for minority representation to the South Plains Association of Governments.

The commissioners then told questioning Conference of Organizations member Bidal Agiero that they will continue to vote, as they have in the past, for the SPAG board to be made up of elected officials only.

Conference co-chairmen Eliseo Solis and Shakir Muhyee had proposed that the conference elect two representatives to serve on the board.

Asked by Solis if water conservation district representatives should not be excluded from SPAG, Commissioner Alton Brazell said he had voted to exclude them also, but had been out-voted by other SPAG board members.

County Judge Rodrick Shaw told the conference members, who said the new organization represents 32 Lubbock County minority organizations and groups, that he opposes a different method of choosing SPAG board members, not because of racial considerations but because of "my philosophy of government."

Asked by Agiero "if you're going to ignore" the petitions asking for minority SPAG board members, Shaw said, "No,

I'm not going to ignore them, but I'm also not going to ignore the large number of people who call me and tell me on the street that my philosophy of government is right and to stick to it."

The commissioners rescinded preliminary approval of a SPAG-organized economic development district because it would call for minority board members who are not elected officials.

Businessmen On Gulf Coast Get Warning

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Texans suffering financial losses from a Mexican oil spill can expect little immediate monetary help from Washington, despite two days of congressional hearings on the severe blow to businesses.

"The idea that the federal government is just going to open the Treasury to guarantee a profit to anyone is not going to happen, I hope," Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Texas, said after hearing pleas for help from coastal residents and businesses.

"The only place we get money is from your pocket," he told one witness Sunday.

Tourism has dropped an average of 50 percent since raw crude oil from a blown-out Mexican well began threatening Texas beaches by mid-August, heavy deposits of thick brown muck soiled hundreds of miles of shoreline.

The cleanup has cost $85,000 daily. It is being paid by federal funds. However, private business and individual losses are not covered by any federal grant program.

An oil spill relief fund of $200 million has been approved by the U.S. House several times, but has stalled repeatedly in the Senate.

"I feel the oil spill liability fund is clearly aimed at exactly the type situation we have in Texas," said Rep. John

Key Demo Bars Tax Cut In '80

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Budget Committee today recommended increased spending for energy, defense and anti-recession programs, but vowed to resist any tax cut for 1980.

The package outlined by Rep. Robert Giaino, D-Conn., would raise the federal deficit by $10 billion above the $23-billion level anticipated just four months ago. Most of the proposed spending increases were blamed on lingering inflation and the new recession.

Even as Republicans pressed for a major individual and business tax cut, Giaino told a news conference "It would be the absolute height of folly" to cut taxes at this time. "It would be a disaster."

As his committee prepared to draft a final federal budget for the next 12 months, Giaino said the higher spending figures do not mean Congress should abandon its goal of balancing the budget.

"If we can continue to exercise spending discipline, if the recession is as short-lived as anticipated, and if we can develop strategies to bring inflation under control, that goal is still attainable," Giaino said.

"In the meantime, however, we must face the fact that inflation, the economic downturn and our need to respond to overriding national concerns such as the energy crisis will not permit the lower deficit level targeted in the spring," he added.

The budget recommended by Giaino would limit spending in fiscal 1980, the 12 months beginning on Oct. 1, to $49.8 billion, or $7.1 billion above the level proposed by the Senate Budget Committee. The Senate panel anticipates a deficit of $28 billion.

To reach that figure, however, Congress would have to cut spending for several programs a total of $4 billion below levels approved in May.

The Senate Budget Committee will press the Senate to require such cuts later this week. But Giaino said he would have to discuss such procedures with other members of his panel before deciding whether to ask the House to take similar action.

Giaino agreed that spending restraint is the best medicine for curbing inflation. But he said a few major spending increases are necessary to help offset inflation and to accommodate President Carter's proposed energy program.

Giaino asked the Budget Committee to raise spending for energy by $2.6 billion, including $1.6 billion to help low-income Americans pay rising energy costs. These increases would be paid for by a new tax on oil-industry revenues, which already has passed the House.

The committee chairman proposed a $400-million increase in federal aid for areas of especially high unemployment, and an additional $500 million for public service jobs.

The third major spending increase proposed by Giaino would add $2 billion for defense, but only to offset soaring fuel costs and to accommodate a 7 percent pay increase for federal employees.

As Giaino was cautioning that a tax cut at this time would worsen inflation, Sens. Bill Roth, R-Del., and John C. Danforth, R-Mo., were calling for tax reductions as an alternative to a lower standard of living.

City Traffic Toll Climbs

The city's traffic fatality count for this year jumped to 18 at 10:40 p.m. Sunday when Joe Bernal Jr., 19, of 2214 Third St. died at a Dallas hospital from injuries suffered Aug. 12 in an accident in the 4300-block of Quirt Avenue.

Since the mishap, Bernal had been listed in critical condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital's burn center in Dallas. A hospital spokesman said the Lubbock teen-ager died at 10:40 p.m. and his body was to be taken to a Houston funeral home.

Bernal sustained burns over 80 percent of his body in the fiery, early-morning crash. The victim was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital before See TOLL RISES Page 14

They told a news conference they will ask the Senate this week to make room in the 1980 budget for a $24-billion tax cut.

Meanwhile, the six members of the Senate Ethics Committee are seeking a way to unanimously recommend disciplinary measures against Sen. Herman E. Talmadge to the full Senate.

At a meeting Thursday, its first session in a month, the committee is expected to end the financial misconduct case against Talmadge by sending a suggested penalty for the Georgia Democrat to the Senate floor. The meeting originally had been set for today but was rescheduled.

The ethics panel, before beginning final deliberations on Talmadge's alleged misconduct, heard Carl Eardley, its special counsel, recommend that the senator be censured.

A House-Senate conference committee was continuing attempts today to reach agreement on a compromise standby gasoline rationing plan.

WARM WELCOME — Denise Pirtle welcomes Keith Roark and his guide dog, Lottie, to San Antonio Sunday night. Mrs. Pirtle and her husband hope to provide the 'perfect' home that Roark is seeking for his pet. (AP Laserphoto)

TEXANS BID FOR PET

'Perfect' Home Awaiting Dog

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Keith Roark will never see Mike and Denise Pirtle's home. But the blind man will instinctively know if it's right and that will end his devoted nationwide journey to find the perfect home for Lottie, his cataract-stricken guide dog.

Roark of Decatur, Ga., who has been forced to give up his companion of eight years because of her own failing eyesight, arrived here Sunday night and turned Lottie over to the young San Antonio couple until Wednesday.

Either the Pirtles or a Tucson, Ariz., couple will get Lottie by the end of the week, Roark said. His strict requirements have eliminated the rest of the 800 families who read of Roark's plight and offered to adopt the friendly, tan-and-black German shepherd.

"Lottie is part of me and part of me is going to be gone. She is not a dog; she is my eyes," the 47-year-old Roark said Sunday night as he arrived, hugging Mrs. Pirtle at the gate. Lottie shook hands with the Pirtles and nestled beside Mrs. Pirtle as Roark talked to reporters.

Lottie, who is 10, can no longer serve as a guide dog, but is still suitable as a house pet. Roark said it's impossible for him to keep Lottie while trying to grow accustomed to the new dog he'll receive Oct. 1.

Roark said he wanted to find Lottie the perfect home or he would have been forced to have Lottie destroyed. His plight received nationwide publicity.

"It was heartbreaking," said Mrs. Pirtle, 27, who read about Lottie in a San Antonio newspaper and wrote to Roark. "I couldn't see anybody putting a dog to sleep because she is going blind. I grew up with German shepherds. I love them. I want to spoil Lottie. She'll be treated like a member of the family."

Mrs. Pirtle's 13-year-old German shepherd, Sarge, had to be destroyed three years ago. "Reading the story about Lottie brought back so many memories," she said.

Mrs. Pirtle is a supermarket employee and sophomore at San Antonio College, while her husband, also 27, works for the state highway department.

Lottie will remain alone with the Pirtles, but they must call Roark with progress reports each hour they are awake. Roark will remain in his downtown hotel to give Lottie a chance to decide if she likes it there.

Roark will then visit in the Pirtles' home and take Lottie back to the hotel See TEXANS OFFER HOME Page 14

Cronkite Honored By Academy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carroll O'Connor won a fourth Emmy for his portrayal of cantankerous Archie Bunker on "All in the Family," while guest stars from "Taxi" and "The Incredible Hulk" claimed other top acting honors in the Television Academy's annual awards.

President Carter, in a live broadcast from the White House Sunday night, paid tribute to three slain TV newsmen during the show that lasted slightly more than 2½ hours, the shortest in years.

The audience at the Pasadena Center reserved its biggest ovation for CBS newsmen Walter Cronkite who received the Academy's Governor's award. Cronkite gently reminded them that TV entertainment, like news, had "done a pretty fair job, not good enough, but pretty fair."

Another favorite was 71-year-old Milton Berle, who was honored for his long-time contribution to television. In his acceptance speech Berle claimed he had only a single one-liner:

"I can't tell you what this means to me."

"Taxi," in its first year on ABC, was named the outstanding comedy series. "Lou Grant" was named best drama series.

O'Connor's award was for best actor in a comedy series. Ruth Gordon won as best actress in a comedy series for a guest role on "Taxi."

Ron Leibman, whose show "Kaz" was canceled by CBS, was named best lead actor in a drama series. "This is very surprising," Leibman quipped. "Here it is Sunday night, and 'Kaz' is not pre-empted."

Mariette Hartley won as best actress in a drama series for a guest appearance as the ill-fated bride of Bill Bixby on CBS' "The Incredible Hulk."

ABC's "Friendly Fire" was named the best drama special, but stars, Carol Burnett and Ned Beatty, lost the acting honors for the category to Bette Davis for CBS' "Strangers: The Story of a Mother and Daughter" and Peter Strauss for "The Jericho Mile."

"Friendly Fire" told the story of an Midwest farm family's anguish over the death of their son by American fire in Vietnam. In accepting his Emmy, executive producer Martin Starger dedicated the award "to the memory of Michael Mullin and his family of LaPorte, Iowa."

ABC's "Roots II" was selected as best limited series, but only Marlon Brando won in the acting category for best supporting player. Brando, who had refused an Oscar for his role in "The Godfather" in 1973, was not present.

"I'm sure if Mr. Brando were here he'd thank the Academy. Perhaps not," deadpanned actor John Ritter, who presented the award.

CBS' "Lou Grant," which led the nominations with 14, picked up only one additional Emmy — for writing.

The NBC miniseries "Backstairs at the White House," with 11 nominations, won a single craft award.

ABC received 20 awards in all categories, including the craft awards presented Saturday night. NBC received 15, and CBS 13. Five Emmys went to PBS and three went to syndicated shows.

Carter paid tribute to NBC newsmen Don Harris and Robert Brown who were killed in Guyana and to ABC newsmen Bill Stewart, killed in Nicaragua.

"They were killed by some who would suppress the truth, and by others who were merely ignorant," Carter said. "In Guyana and Nicaragua they were our witnesses and they were our martyrs."

Cronkite, introduced by NBC anchorman John Chancellor, received a standing ovation from the audience of nearly 3,000 persons.

"It's been a great privilege — call it luck — to have served during the pioneering years in television," he said. "I think we in news and public affairs have done a pretty fair job, not good enough, but pretty fair. I think that also applies to the entertainment side."

Sally Struthers won her second Emmy as supporting actress in a comedy series as Gloria Stivic in a special return appearance on "All in the Family."

Robert Guillaume, who starts his own series this fall as the irrepressible butler "Benson," was named best supporting actor in a comedy series — for the same role on ABC's "Soap."

Esther Rolle was named best supporting actress in a limited series or special for NBC's "Summer of My German Soldier." She played a maid who stood by a Georgia girl shunned after she befriended an escaped German prisoner of war.

"M*A*S*H," which had received 10 nominations, picked up its only Emmy when star Alan Alda was named best writer for a comedy series. Alda did a cartwheel on the way to the stage and said the writing award "encourages me enormously." He said he had wanted to be a writer since he was 8 years old, and an actor since he was 9.

Stuart Margolin was named best supporting actor in a drama series for his role as Angel Martin on NBC's "The Rockford Files." Kristy McNichol picked up her second Emmy as best supporting actress for her role as Buddy on ABC's "Family."

THERE SHE IS — Cheryl Prewitt, from Ackerman, Miss., left is crowned Miss America 1980 by Kyrene Barker the outgoing Miss America in Atlantic City, N.J., late Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

Miss America Plans To Talk About Faith

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — As the new Miss America, Cheryl Prewitt says she won't use her crown to proselytize, but will take advantage of every opportunity to tell people about her Christian faith.

"I won't use the Miss America title for anything except to represent America," the 22-year-old Mississippi State University graduate said at a news conference Sunday. "But America would be hard to represent without mentioning God. This is a God country."

The Ackerman, Miss., gospel music composer and singer defeated 49 other contestants Saturday to become Miss America 1980, a title that guarantees her a $20,000 scholarship and more than $50,000 in personal appearance bookings during her reign.

A born-again Christian, Miss Prewitt used her unshakable charm to fend off questions from reporters skeptical about the two "miracles" in her life.

When she was 11, her left leg was crushed in an automobile accident. Doctors told her she would never walk again. "I prayed and the doctors prayed," said the 5-foot-7 inch brunette. "I knew God had other plans for me than to spend the rest of my life in a wheelchair."

When she was 17, her physicians told her she would never be able to have children because her left leg was two inches shorter than the right and caused too much pressure on her back.

On Oct. 21, 1974, Miss Prewitt attended a Jackson, Miss., revival meeting, where in front of about 300 other believers, she prayed for her leg to grow.

"I was sitting there very calmly. We prayed and we asked," she said. "I sat and watched my leg grow out instantaneously two inches."

The 35-23-36 pianist and singer, who supports the Equal Rights Amendment, said she was coached on how to curb her Southern accent for the pageant.

"We worked on that as much as my talent competition and evening gown," said the tennis enthusiast who has written 10 gospel songs and performed with her family singing gospel music since she was 5, the age she knew she wanted to be Miss America.

Because of her experience, she said she will donate 10 percent of her Miss America earnings to church charities.

Dalai Lama Delivers Sermon

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Worshipers came from as far away as Virginia and Wisconsin to attend a service under a blue sky in the New Jersey countryside.

The Sunday sermon was delivered by the Tibetan Buddhist Dalai Lama, who prayed and chanted with about 600 followers outside the Lamaist Buddhist Monastery of America.

"I am glad to be here in one of the oldest Buddhist centers in the United States," said the soft-spoken Himalayan exile, on a 49-day tour of the country. He spent most of the weekend at the wooded retreat.

The Dalai Lama, 44, who was formally enthroned as a religious leader at the age of 4, is considered to be the 14th incarnation of Chenresol, the patron deity of Tibet.

He fled his country in 1959 when the occupying Communist Chinese suppressed an uprising there. For 20 years, the Dalai Lama has lived with a community of 1 followers in Dharmasala, India.

Soul Star Performs At Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Soul singer Stevie Wonder broke the musical sound barrier with a performance at the Grand Ole Opry, the 54-year-old country music show.

Wonder sang the Charlie Rich country classic, "Behind Closed Doors," receiving warm applause from an estimated 4,400 persons in the audience and endorsed by repeating a verse. He was in Nashville for a meeting of the Black Music Association, a trade organization.

He is the second soul singer to perform on the Opry this year. James Brown performed in March.

'Little Richard' Tells Of Conversion

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — He used to earn $10,000 an hour singing rock 'n' roll. Today Richard Wayne Penniman — Little Richard — earns whatever the collection plate provides as he preaches and sings gospel music throughout the nation.

The former teen idol of the '50s and '60s was still a master showman for an audience of 600 at the Mount Pleasant United Methodist Church here Saturday night and again Sunday as he told of converting from a drug-addicted homosexual to a messenger of God.

"If God can save Little Richard, he can save anybody," said the star who sold more than 30 million records with such hits as "Tutti Frutti" and "Good Golly, Miss Molly."

Priscilla Presley Joins Wella Corp.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Priscilla Presley is embarking on a new career, but she says her first priority will be her daughter, the only child of the late Elvis Presley.

"I want to keep a low profile because I like my privacy," Mrs. Presley said Sunday as she arrived at a hair designers meeting in her role as unofficial representative for Wella Corp., a cosmetics firm that boosted the careers of Farrah Fawcett and Jaclyn Smith.

Mrs. Presley, 34, divorced from Presley in 1973, said her three-year contract with the firm requires her to pose in magazine advertisements, appear in commercials and on television talk shows.

But Mrs. Presley said 11-year-old Lisa Marie is more important.

"My daughter comes first," she said. "I like challenges, but I want to do things very slowly. To me, this is a good challenge because it puts me with people and I love to be with people."

Fasten Your Seat Belt

BOSTON (AP) — With the help of some half-fare coupons, Charles A. Shattuck, a 62-year-old grandfather, is spending $1,900 in an effort to win a line in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Shattuck planned to leave Boston today for five days of flying. According to American Airlines, Shattuck of East Hartford, Conn., will try to set a record for continuous flying on the same airline.

The journey, taking him from Boston to the West Coast and back, will include 33 flights and 18 airports. It will cost him $1,900, a price he kept low by using 50 percent discount tickets, the airline said.

Shattuck plans to leave Boston for New York and then fly 25,000 miles, stopping six times in Chicago, four in Dallas-Fort Worth, three in Los Angeles, two times each in New York, Detroit, St. Louis and San Francisco, and once each in San Diego, Hartford-Springfield, Cleveland, Tulsa, Buffalo, Newark Cincinnati, Tucson, Washington and Memphis, returning to Boston on Saturday.

Church Deacon Axed To Death

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man who apparently believed the deacon of a Brooklyn church had seduced his former wife decapitated the deacon with an ax Sunday in full view of horrified parishioners, police say.

Police said Deacon Robert Williams was killed while en route to Sunday school services at the Light House Church of Love and Peace.

Police said a man wielding an ax rushed up from behind him and decapitated the deacon.

The horrified parishioners chased the man for several blocks until he was captured by two police officers. He was identified later by a Police Department spokesman as Woodrow Webb, 36.

The spokesman said Webb, a construction worker, had been waiting for Williams across the street from the church.

He said Webb, who is divorced, apparently believed Williams had seduced his former wife, Addie. Witnesses told police Webb had been threatening the deacon for two years.

Crime Line Clears More Than 50 Felony Cases

By DAVE KNAPP
A-J Executive Editor

Rewards totaling $5,995 have been paid to informants and more than 50 felony cases have been cleared from police records since the fledgling Crime Line Inc. program was instituted five months ago, Mayor Dirk West has announced.

In addition, directors elected two new members to the board of the non-profit corporation, increasing its membership to 22. New members are Dan Griffiths and M. B. Smith.

Donations to the unique program, which already has outgrown expectations, still are coming in almost daily and more is needed. The anti-crime effort is funded entirely through contributions. Persons interested in making tax-free donations may mail checks to Crime Line Inc., P.O. Box 2600 Lubbock, Texas 79405.

This week, rewards of $300 are offered for information in each of the following cases:

—Information is being sought into the whereabouts of a wanted fugitive Raul Davila, 31, 5-4, 175 pounds, who is wanted on a justice of the peace warrant alleging threat to kill, warrant 19652-46 for aiding organized crime, another warrant for felony theft and a fourth for theft by check.

—Data is needed in an aggravated robbery incident which occurred Sept. 1 at Town and Country Food Store, 1524 50th St. A black male, about 24, medium length black hair with long sideburns, 5-7, medium build, wearing a tan, short-brimmed flop hat, white shirt with brown diamond design and tan trousers entered the store and browsed around. After purchasing a package of chewing gum, the intruder then drew a small chrome automatic pistol, handed the attendant a note ordering her to "give me all the money." The woman attendant placed $250 in a paper sack and gave it to the gunman.

—Burglars entered a residence at 1902 E. 1st St. on Aug. 25 or 26 and made off with a four-foot by two-inch woodgrain stereo console and felt speaker covers, brand unknown. Also, two large blue lamps, one box fan (blue), five C. R. Anthony's men's suits (size 42, brown, white and black, silver and white, silver and the fifth black). Loss was estimated at $1,000.

—The House of Antiques at 1216 Ave. A was burglarized between Aug. 25 and 27, with intruders making off with a .22 caliber lever action, breech-loader antique rifle, a .32 or .38 caliber bolt action antique rifle, 13 new Dayton 1/4-horsepower motors, seven garden rakes, six hoes, three grubbing hoes, three short-handled scoops and 10 rolls of cyclone fence. Loss was pegged at $600.

—Thieves smashed a window to gain entry into the Radio Shack at 1918 54th St. on Aug. 27, taking one STA-430 Realistic receiver in genuine walnut veneer case with a white and silver front, one LAB500 Realistic turntable Quartz lock direct drive and dust cover, two T200 speakers (woodgrain). Loss was estimated at $1,340.

Persons having information regarding any of these incidents are urged to call Crime Line, 741-1000, as soon as possible. Identities are completely confidential and only code numbers are used. Rewards are paid immediately after a case is cleared.

Prison Replaces Air Base In Big Spring

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

BIG SPRING — A casual glance reveals nothing that indicates the Big Spring Federal Camp is really a prison.

There are no walls, no gates, no guns, no uniforms. There is only the new sign above the old headquarters for Webb Air Force Base and the movement of work crews putting closed buildings into working order.

The minimum security federal prison now takes up nearly 64 acres of the former air installation. When in full operation in January, it will hold a maximum of 500 prisoners.

Inmates will be "white collar offenders" plus good conduct transfers from other prisons.

"Wall types (maximum security prisons) have to take what the judges send them, but we get to pick," the camp assistant superintendent, J. A. Edwards, said.

"The people we get here are more mature."

They include, he added, white collar offenders in narcotics, income tax evasion, fraud and government offenders. There are doctors, lawyers and the like, plus "some congressmen."

Narcotics traffic violators make up the big percentage, but the camp "might have a bank robber" if he exhibited good behavior in another institution.

Non-white collar offenders are inmates "on the short end of the sentence" who have good records in walled institutions. The camp offers an environment to help them ease from maximum security to free society by the time the sentence ends.

"Our first mission is to protect the public and make sure sentences are served," Edwards said.

The aim of the camp is to try to make a change in the person, to discover a way to trigger a change through counseling, vocational training and education.

"If he doesn't want to change, if the community has so ingrained him, he won't change, but it is here for him," Edwards said.

John W. Allman, camp superintendent, described the camp as a safe place for the inmate to function and an educational tool by which he could take responsibility for his own life, re-enter society "and not come back."

Right now, Edwards noted, all emphasis is on "getting doors open and 'off limits' signs removed on property that "has been let lay for two years."

An electronics cable factory is being readied for employing some inmates, and, by the first of the year, a fabric factory is expected to be in operation.

About a dozen of the structures turned over to the Federal Bureau of Prisons this spring have been renovated in part since the camp was opened in June.

The 152 inmates on the site are completing the work as their assigned tasks, handling everything from electronics to yard maintenance to overhaul and maintain the facility.

Inmates will do all the work. It is a part of their agreement for coming to the minimum security situation. If they do not work, Edwards emphasized, they are in danger of "losing their good time." In addition, he noted, work records are valuable assets for parole reviews.

All candidates for the camp are screened at a regional office, then screened again at the camp level. Any slight "indecision about ability to fulfill the requirements of personal responsibility and the person is "shipped back to the walls."

Some inmates, he said, need the security of being told every step to take and need the feeling of the walls around them.

In addition, there is the major factor of cost to the taxpayer. While it costs about $14,000 a year per inmate behind walls, a minimum security camp can operate with half the staff and a fraction of the cost.

Camps offer less prison shock with its resulting problems. They also provide an environment easing the transfer to society.

Inmates work a half-hour less than the normal eight-hour day on a five-day basis. The rest of the waking hours can be spent as individuals desire — sports, television, reading or just loafing.

On weekends they are free to receive visitors or continue recreational pursuits.

They move into the community by paying an escort from wages earned on prison jobs to attend rodeos and ball games. Their own teams compete in downtown leagues. Some attend classes at Howard County College.

Dress is the same as for any group — a mixture of jogging shorts, wash and wear casuals, jeans and tee shirts. Occasionally, there is the heavy khaki of prison issue, but not often, and Army surplus khaki does not look out of place at the former military base.

Quarters are new dormitories designed for and occupied briefly by student pilots undergoing jet training.

An inmate is responsible for his own movements after working hours, but, working or not, he is a number on a supervisor's count made many times a day.

The facility, Edwards emphasized, does not make the prison. He could turn the finest Lubbock motel into one.

Loss of freedom, loss of family, loss of the intangibles of life for each individual constitute the prison, he said.

Eventually, there probably will be a fence around the camp property, but for now the acres in the heart of the former jet training base are bordered only on paper.

On three sides and most of the fourth, separated only by strips of pavement, are business operations in Big Spring Industrial Park.

Just south of the old headquarters, now the camp administration building, is the Webb Chapel, boarded up now. It was part of the original prison package.

of renovating for prison use.

Directly across from headquarters, the old officers club awaits use, just granted, by Big Spring's senior citizens.

And, angling southerly, a street sweeps briefly down, then up and disappears past the boarded up security police station at what was once the main gate to Webb AFB.

Activity Increases For UW Drive

The pace of the 1979 United Way campaign quickens this week with a combination of division kick-offs and report meetings from divisions already actively soliciting firm and individual contributions to meet the $1,803,752 goal.

Members of the State division met at noon today at the Lubbock Club to launch their campaign. This division is headed by Major C.W. Bell with co-chairman Joan Turner and James King.

Tuesday, the regular Tuesday morning campaign cabinet will convene at 7 a.m. at the Flame Room in Pioneer Natural Gas Company. The campaign cabinet is composed of 36 people heading the campaign and special divisions.

At 10 a.m. on the same day, member of the Residential division will kick off their campaign in a meeting at First Federal Savings and Loan on 50th Street. Betty Baker and Denece Harris lead the Residential division.

At 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, members of Advance Gifts division will be reporting progress at a session at the United Way office, 2201 19th St. The following day at the same time and place, members of the Professional division will report their progress in campaigning.

Captains in the Metro division meet at 4 p.m. Thursday at the United Way office to plan the Metro division kick-off on September 20. Volunteers in the Metro division call on firms with fewer than 15 employees.

Last official campaign activity for the week is the campaign coordinator's luncheon at noon on Friday at the civic center.

Bond Issue Support Tied To Community Center

DALLAS (AP) — Members of a Dallas Hispanic group say they will oppose a city bond issue in November unless a financial commitment is made for a new West Dallas community center.

Adolph Canales, chief of the Mexican-American Assembly for Civic Involvement, said actions of the city council in the next few weeks will be the "crucial deciding point" in his group's attitude toward the bond election.

The same group opposed a 1978 bond election because no commitment was made for funds for the community center.

Murder Link Sought

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — Ellis County investigators say they are looking for a link between a 1976 murder and a series of sex crimes detailed by 36-year-old Robert Leslie when he killed himself in Detroit last May.

Leslie Rhea Haley was slain in 1976 as she hitch-hiked from Corpus Christi to Oklahoma City.

Indiana police have said that at least three of Leslie's victims were young, female hitch-hikers. Ellis County Sheriff Barney Boyd said linking Leslie to the Haley slaying is a "long shot," but said there are enough similarities involved to warrant a full investigation.

Councilman Rapped

DALLAS (AP) — Charges leveled by City Councilman Steve Bartlett have prompted a federal housing official to say the city of Dallas has given the government inconsistent data and has underestimated the number of substandard housing units in the city.

Bartlett claimed last week that the Department of Housing and Urban Development made "inflammatory, inaccurate and irresponsible" statements about a grant to help low-income residents improve their neighborhoods.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

It's Up To Us--Not U.S.

SHARPLY DIFFERING With President Carter, the Chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Friday proposed adoption of an energy program that he said would solve the energy problem by getting government out of the business.

erical price controls from gasoline, abandoning the misnamed concept of a "windfall profits" tax, amending the Clean Air Act, accelerating the direct use and production of coal.

Plus, putting federal land to better use, developing more intelligent rules on solid waste disposal, modifying the crude oil contingency storage goal, stepping up the development of synthetic fuels, restoring the nation's commitment to nuclear power and encouraging even greater conservation in industry and among the general public.

VANANDEL STRESSED that amending the Clean Air Act was particularly important since this act has the greatest potential to delay or prohibit the entire range of energy activities.

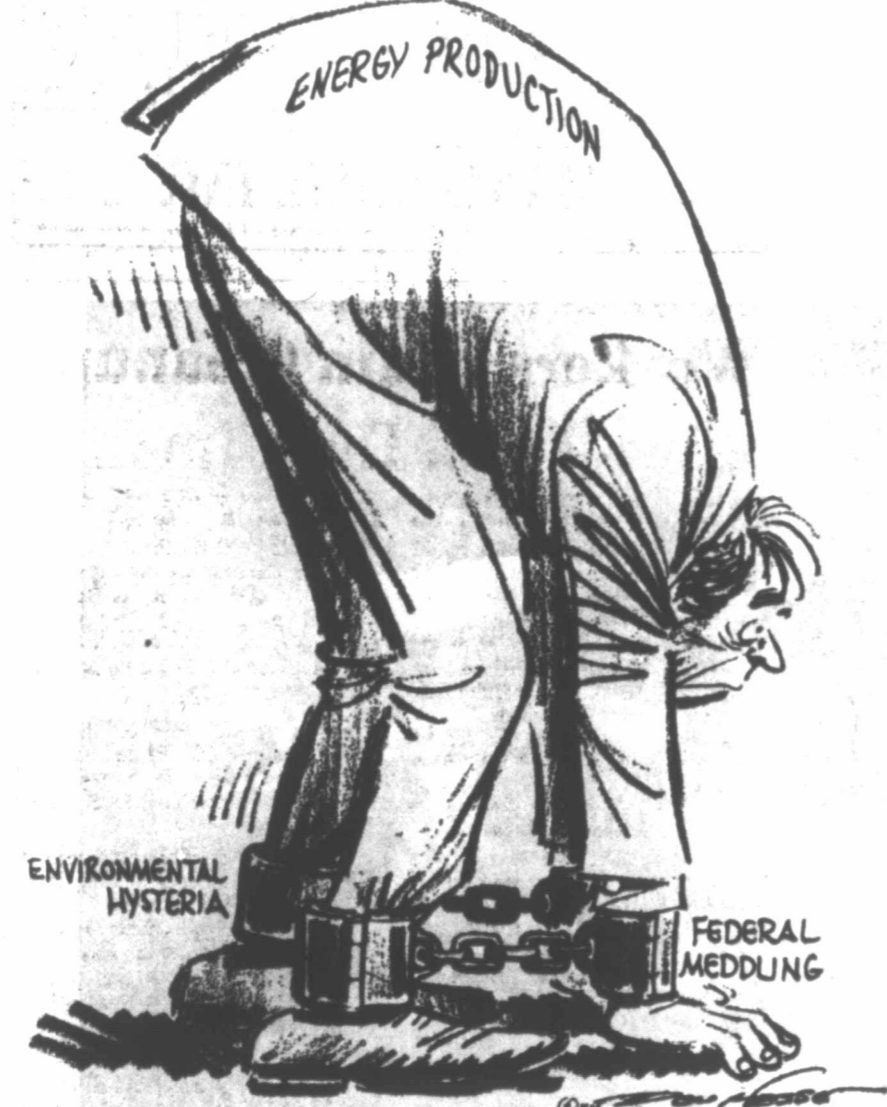

He argued that inflation exists because the politicians to whom we have given the responsibility to guard the value of our currency have had neither the courage nor will to do it. "Its root cause," he said, "is (federal) deficit spending--$354 billion in the last eight years."

Unless we attack directly the basic cause of inflation, guidelines will not help either. The free market with a sound currency based on sound government fiscal policies provides the best guidelines in the world.

THE MICHIGAN businessman said regulation and controls do not create more energy, rather "they only mess up the distribution of that which we have."

VanAnDel urged adoption of an 11-point program endorsed by the U.S. Chamber which essentially calls for the government to step aside and let private enterprise do the job it is capable of performing.

The U.S. Chamber program urges a rapid decontrol of crude oil prices, removing fed-subject to unpredictable moons, but it now appears that a turning point was reached in the 94th Congress of 1975 and 1976.

ORGANIZED LABOR, which had done so much for Carter's campaign, urgently demanded a package of bills identified as "labor reform."

Carter asked for a new Consumer Protection Agency; Speaker O'Neill went to the well of the House to plead for the bill. Democrats deserted their leadership in droves, and the bill died on the floor.

A dozen other examples could be cited of bills beloved by liberals that failed in the 96th. The trend continues in the first session of the 96th. The mood of the Congress plainly is against expansive new programs at the federal level.

EXCEPT FOR A bill to create a new Department of Education, which limped through the House with a score of heavy amendments, no-ing is immediately in prospect that might light up the liberal eye.

The proposed constitutional amendment on direct election of Presidents is a dead duck. Comprehensive health insurance is going nowhere.

BUT REMEMBER THE rule on no-hitters. Plenty of signs indicate that the regulators are still riding high. The Federal Register probably will publish 35,000 pages of new regulations this year, up 60 percent from 1978.

The budgets of regulatory agencies keep climbing. The 96th Congress may yet enact some form of national health insurance, limited at the outset to catastrophic illnesses.

The political game has many linings to play, but for now, conservatives can bank in a feeble ray of sunshine. After all that rain, it feels mighty nice.

ARIZONA GOV. Bruce Babbitt says the Alamo is "a symbol of our problem with Mexico."

During the first week of school, 33,000 teachers were on strike in 14 states, many of them in defiance of state laws prohibiting strikes.

IT'S STRANGE to me that the same people who believe in taxing you blind for governmental charity programs take a dim view of charitable contributions by businesses.

In the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate hearing in Austin, an attorney for the U.S. General Services Administration pointedly questioned Bell's $1.2 million a year in donations to worthy causes.

"From a policy point of view, can you give me a reason why the company should make contributions to any charitable organization?" GSA lawyer Donald Hill asked.

"We want to be good corporate citizens," Bell spokesman Carlton Baker replied.

Voluntary contributions to the United Way, the YMCA, the YWCA, colleges, hospitals, the Red Cross, etc., are the way individuals and businesses help the less fortunate and promote worthy goals.

Holmes Alexander:

He Saved Conservatism's Life

WASHINGTON—Nothing, it's said, is more powerful than an idea whose time has come. Give honorable mention, I say, to the man who discovered and promoted the idea.

In this case it buoyed and satisfied him for some 20 years, with ups and downs, but at the end it burst like the bubble of an impossible dream. He woke up and ruefully smiled.

Henry Regnery, born in 1912, with family means, an appreciation of religion, classical music, foreign languages, literature and a fondness for people, found in himself the itch to publish.

He attended what is now the Illinois Institute of Technology, M.I.T. and Harvard Graduate School. Not until he traveled and studied in prewar Germany (his land of descent) did he discover his calling.

THERE WAS A stint in the New Deal social work, which he found counterproductive. Finally, in 1947, he established the Henry Regnery Publishing Co. in a small space above a Chicago suburb drug store.

But Regnery had lived the glory years. Among other household names he launched the careers of William F. Buckley, Jr., Russell Kirk and James J. Kilpatrick. He as much as any living American brought home our traditional Conservatism.

He saw with surprise and dismay at the end of World War II that the loser and victim of that struggle was the American mentality. He saw that the governmental and intellectual establishment had succumbed to Marxist collectivism and atheism; and, worse, that the Red despot's heel was at the door.

IT TAKES ONLY grade-B perception today to see the falling shades of that grim tragedy, but in the early postwar period the disaster moved upon us in many disguises.

The Iron Curtain had the guise of a halo over our noble ally, Germany was being de-industrialized and converted to a "cow pasture." Japan was an ash heap from firebombs and nukes.

Roosevelt and Eisenhower had halted Patton so that the Russians could capture Berlin. Roosevelt and Stimson had delayed the acceptance of Japanese surrender to accommodate the Soviets.

She was gambling on a margin of 10 percent in (I remember) Cities Service stock and even a modest hiccup in the market was enough to compel her broker to sell her out.

And side by side with these small-time, reckless gamblers were the big-time speculators, the tycoons, who were governed by virtually no rules of law or ethics and who formed "pools" among themselves to manipulate the prices of stocks they chose in order to run millions of dollars of paper profits into tens of millions of dollars of paper profits.

Actually, business in the United States had peaked much earlier in 1929, months before the calamitous series of violent selling waves began which culminated in the stock crash of Oct. 29.

THE STOCK PRICE breaks in, say, Chrysler or RCA did not slash the output of automobiles and radios. The stock price breaks undermined the confidence of business leaders who then cut back production and employment in 1930.

movement to come along to believe in the philosophy of volunteerism.

Certainly there are few of us who would agree with every uplift program and goal for which the federal government taxes us, giving us no choice as to whether we will contribute.

There are those who believe that all money belongs to the government and that anything it lets us keep—individually and corporately—to spend on causes of our own choosing is a "tax expenditure."

Bah! There are a lot of jobs, particularly in the area of uplift, that can be done a lot better through charitable, tax-exempt contributions than through the federal bureaucracy.

Sudden Thought: Any President who can single-handedly repel an attack by a swamp rabbit isn't going to be intimidated by 3,000 Russian combat troops in Cuba!

An anti-gun group won a court ruling that allows its members to buy surplus government rifles at discount prices. After all, why should the pro-gun people have all the fun?

If the Lubbock County Hospital District had been the one to get that blank check from the U.S. Treasury last week, says My Neighbor Twice

A coffee pot manufacturer has asked owners of 18.5 million of its percolators to stop using them because the handles come off.

If those West Germans complete the purchase of Furr's Supermarkets, Jerry Henderson predicts they'll change the name. To Furriers.

Sylvia Porter:

'Sheep-Like' Behavior Baa-ad For Investors

WASHINGTON—Who was in the wildly gyrating stock market 50 years ago in September-October 1929—as the historic "Black Tuesday" of Oct. 29 neared, and a stock price upsurge which had begun way back in 1921 climaxed in a convulsion felt around the world?

My young, financially naive, widowed mother was in with every penny she had inherited from my father, a physician whose primary legacy to her was a carton loaded with IOUs from his poor patients.

They do discuss their stock portfolios and plans. They do tend to "run as a pack"—dumping a particular stock at much the same time, or buying another in a similar time span.

And their "sheep-like" behavior, so unexpected by most of us, repeatedly has been an extremely unsettling influence on individual stocks.

BUT THE INSTITUTIONS generally restrict their purchases to widely held stocks of world famous corporations—and their very nature prevents them from gambling in fringe issues.

Then, came the failures of thousands of U.S. banks plus both the unwillingness and inability of the then Herbert Hoover administration and Congress to adopt effective measures to fight the economic downturn, spreading rash of business bankruptcies, soaring unemployment, etc. And the worst depression of all time kept deepening until it settled on an uneasy bottom in 1932.

As Friday's column emphasized, a first crucial distinction between 1929 and 1979 lies in "how we buy." A second crucial distinction is in "who is buying."

TODAY, INSTEAD OF a greedy get-rich-quick gambler, the typical individual in the market is in the middle-income bracket with some extra money to invest.

In the lower-income groups, he (or she) is typically an employee of a corporation buying stocks under a payroll plan (investing savings). And the active trader is typically upper-income, in the $25,000 and up income bracket.

McCrorry's Testimony Pleases Prosecutor

FORT WORTH (AP) — Prosecutor Jack Strickland says he is pleased with the way his star witness has so far held up under intense cross-examination by flamboyant defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

McCrorry opens his eighth day on the stand today in the seventh week of the murder-for-hire trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

The 41-year-old karate buff is the state's key witness in the case against the industrialist. McCrorry claims Davis ordered him to hire the murder of District Judge Joe Eldon, the jurist presiding over Davis' divorce trial.

"I think David is certainly more relaxed on the stand," said prosecutor Jack Strickland. "David's recollection of those events is much, much clearer."

McCrorry also testified in the state's first attempt to convict Davis on the charges, but his statements did not hold up under Haynes' lengthy and detailed cross-examination. A mistrial was declared when jurors deadlocked 4-4 for conviction.

McCrorry himself labels his Houston testimony "a fiasco."

"Thankfully, this is a different ball game than in Houston," he said.

"He was scared as hell, even in Houston," Strickland said, adding that McCrorry is more "poised" now.

But there are times when McCrorry and Haynes lock horns, displaying their mutual dislike in open court.

"It's distressing to me when he's doing that because he's playing Haynes' game," Strickland said. "In Haynes' game, a large part of Haynes' role is that of a provocateur... that of a bully. To make a witness blurt out things that are wrong or prejudicial."

Haynes successfully has baited McCrorry several times, but Strickland concedes jurors might respond to the exchanges by thinking McCrorry just won't be bullied.

"As long as a pattern is not established, jurors don't expect to see witnesses and lawyers playing games."

While Haynes continues to pick apart McCrorry's story, the witness gradingly admits he has great respect, if not affection, for the attorney.

"He's the best," McCrorry said. "If I ever needed an attorney, he would be the only man in the world I would want to defend me..."

The feeling, however, is not mutual.

Once when McCrorry almost gave hearsay testimony, he stopped himself and apologized.

"Your honor, would you please instruct the witness not to speculate to me," Haynes said. "I don't want any one-on-one with him."

McCrorry says he has had a year to think things over, and is more than prepared for Haynes' grueling attacks.

"I am now on trial," he said. "Richard Haynes tries every witness and will do anything to keep the court from trying Cullen Davis on the offense for which he is charged."

Strickland agreed.

"The key to Haynes' success in a defense is to so thoroughly trash up the lawsuit that no one can remember what the issue or even who the defendant is," he said.

"They're trying to hang the jury. All Richard has to do is convince one juror. And with the shotgun approach... who knows?"

SEARCHERS — Connecticut State Police armed with shotguns and using a bloodhound prepare to conduct a search outside the grounds of the Connecticut Correctional Center in New Haven for Lawrence Pelletier. Connecticut Murder Suspect Escapes From Jail Hospital

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Murder suspect Lawrence Pelletier, described as "extremely dangerous," fled the state jail where he was being held for trial in the deaths of three security guards during the largest robbery in the state's history, authorities said.

Pelletier, 36, fled the New Haven state jail Sunday night by clambering along a beam above a suspended ceiling, dropping down into the jail lobby and rushing through an unlocked front door, said Francis T. Moore, warden at the state correctional center.

"Under the circumstances, he would have to be considered extremely dangerous," Moore said.

Pelletier was being held in the hospital section of the jail because he was not eating and had lost 30 pounds. Moore said the hospital section had security equal to that throughout the three-year-old jail, which houses about 400 inmates.

It was Pelletier's second escape from custody. In 1965, he was recaptured several days after he and four other prisoners broke out of Norwich State Hospital.

The escape took place about 10:30 p.m., with Pelletier fleeing onto the streets of this coastal Connecticut city of 140,000 people.

"It doesn't appear that he had any help," Moore said.

But by 5 a.m., police believed Pelletier had successfully fled the New Haven area. Officers then temporarily halted the search.

Pelletier was one of four persons arrested last April and charged in the killings of three Purolator Security Inc. guards at the firm's depot in Waterbury during Connecticut's biggest robbery. Some $1.8 million in cash and securities was recovered.

Pelletier and a second man arrested in the Purolator case — Donald Couture, 26, of Wallingford — are charged with capital murder in the guard slayings. If they are found guilty, they face possible death in the state's electric chair.

Couture is being held at the state jail in Hartford, officials said.

The woman Pelletier lived with, 26-year-old Evelyn Vega, and Couture's wife, Donna, 23, also were arrested in the case. Charges against them have since been reduced and both were released on bail after they cooperated with prosecutors.

Miss Vega was receiving special state police protection following Pelletier's escape, authorities said.

The guards mowed down in a volley of gunfire early on the morning of April 16 included an off-duty Hartford police officer, Edward T. Cody, 46, who was working an authorized part-time job. Also slain were guards Leslie Clark, 36, of Meriden; and William West, 52, of Cromwell.

Texas Officials Get Response From Babbitt

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — In an open letter to the people of Texas, Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt says recent remarks he made about the battle of the Alamo were not meant to be disparaging.

Babbitt had come under criticism from Texas officials after he told a group of Mexican-Americans in San Antonio last week that the Alamo is "a sacred symbol to Texans and an extension of the American ideal, but to Mexico it's a symbol of territory lost, a nation plundered by overbearing Gringo neighbors."

In an open letter to Texans on Saturday, Babbitt said, "As one who married a Texan and who has lived in Texas, I share our pride in Texas history. It was not my intention to offend anyone."

"To understand Mexico, we must be aware of how Mexicans view our common history, of how events like the Alamo are written in Mexican history books and taught in Mexican schools."

"I share the pride of all Americans in the heroic deeds of Travis, Bowie, Crockett and their followers. But I also believe that we honor history best if we appreciate how those events are viewed by others, in this case by Mexicans."

Church Says Senate Will Reject Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee reiterated his conviction that SALT II stands no chance of passage while Soviet troops remain in Cuba, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin returned from Moscow to discuss the issue with U.S. officials.

Dobrynin, who returned Sunday from a vacation in Russia, was to meet with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance today. The Soviet presence in Cuba will be discussed at that meeting, said a source who asked not to be identified.

U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, cautioned the Soviets on Sunday to take the situation seriously in talks with U.S. officials. Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," Church said "the mood of the Senate" is such that there is a link between the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II) and the troops whose presence was confirmed last week by U.S. intelligence.

Declaring, "I am for SALT," Church said he does not believe the Senate will confirm the treaty while the Soviet troops remain in Cuba.

On Saturday, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said the treaty should not be "held hostage" to that issue. But the West Virginia Democrat acknowledged that "in today's environment, it would have a rough time" and likely would fail to win the two-thirds majority needed for Senate ratification.

On Friday, President Carter and his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, told out-of-town editors the two issues should remain separate. Carter said linking them "would not be in the best interest of the American people."

Brzezinski said tying treaty ratification to Soviet behavior elsewhere "really is self-defeating and if I may go further than that, escapist."

Church conceded the soldiers themselves pose no strategic threat to the United States and may have been in Cuba for several years. But he said the covert manner in which they were introduced to the island nation requires a strong U.S. response.

Birds Keep Man Free Of Mosquitoes

PRINCETON, Ind. (AP) — When Ray Denning isn't rattling around in his truck in search of used eggshells, it could be because he's busy suspending ears of corn from the branches of tall trees.

Some days it's because he's out gathering weeds to pile beside his Princeton gas station. Once it was because he was perched on a ladder, happily slapping purple paint on the outside of his house.

"My neighbors all think I'm crazy," Denning says. "They ask me all the time, 'What the devil are you doing, Ray?' Well, if they understood what I was doing, they might be out there doing it, too."

Ray Denning lives in a mosquito-free world. And he owes it all to the birds he calls "my little heroes" — the purple martins that nest in the 400 tiny tenements mounted on poles outside his service station.

It's a love born of mutual need, says

Denning. For as much as he loves purple martins, that's how much he hates mosquitoes. Purple martins eat the bugs, which explains how it got started, with six wooden birdhouses and a little spare time. Today, 394 houses and $4,000 later, it's anybody's guess how it will end.

"It's my hobby and it's my sport," says Denning, 56, who discovered purple martins eight years ago. "I used to do a little fishing."

To hear him tell it, wrestling catfish from the murky Ohio just can't come close to the feeling he gets around the first of March.

"When I look up at the sky and see that first bird coming in... When you see all those birds flying through the air... When you hear the sound of a thousand wings..." He sighs, pulls his cap down over his sunburned forehead and gives up.

The little bird is said to consume 2,000 mosquitoes a day. Multiply that by 400 pairs of martins, and you begin to see things Denning's way. The purple "skeeter-eaters" exist almost exclusively on insects, but they like to nibble on eggshells.

Puerto Rican Terrorists Released

By The Associated Press

The four Puerto Rican nationalists imprisoned more than 20 years for terrorist attacks in Washington, D.C., were released today. They pledged a continued fight for liberation of their homeland from United States domination.

First to be released was Lolita Lebron, who had been in a federal prison at Alderson, W.Va., where she served 25 years for a shooting attack in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Miss Lebron was granted clemency last week by President Carter along with the two others who were involved in the 1954 attack and one man who was jailed after a 1950 assassination attempt on then-President Truman.

Vowing a greater commitment than ever to the cause of freedom for Puerto Rico from U.S. ties, the 59-year-old Miss Lebron was greeted by a group of sympathizers who chanted "Lolita, Lolita, Lolita" and waved nationalist flags and banners.

With tears in her eyes, Miss Lebron responded with a cry of "Long Live Puerto Rico."

Miss Lebron, Irving Flores Rodriguez and Rafael Concel Miranda were convicted of spraying gunfire from the House visitors gallery, wounding five congressmen.

Miranda, 49, was released shortly before noon from a federal facility in Marion, Ill. Flores was released from another prison facility, the U.S. Medical Center at Springfield, Mo.

Oscar Collazo, imprisoned for the attempt on the life of Truman, also was released this morning. Upon gaining freedom, Collazo told reporters outside the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., that "the fight for freedom is always a long fight and always a hard fight."

"I have nothing to be disappointed about," the 65-year-old Collazo added.

Miss Lebron, serving a 56-year sentence, was released at the gate of the prison, where she was greeted by supporters. She rode away with supporters of the nationalist movement.

A spokesman for the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party, Luis Canals, said Miss Lebron was going to Chicago to be reunited with her two comrades in the 1954 attack.

Miss Lebron and her companions will attend rallies in Chicago and New York before returning to Puerto Rico next week, Canals said.

Speaking in Spanish and English to the crowd that awaited her, Miss Lebron said she would continue to work for Puerto Rican independence and said she did not regret her time in prison.

"I have a great satisfaction. We have succeeded in our struggle for victory. We are stronger than ever, more committed than ever," she said.

Workers Begin Cleanup After Train Derailment

JOAQUIN (AP) — Work crews kept a cautious eye on three still-burning tank cars today as they began cleaning up the wreckage from a derailment, explosion and fire on a freight train loaded with flammable and corrosive chemicals.

But officials have decided the danger of more explosions apparently has passed and residents near the accident were allowed to return to their homes.

"A cleanup crew is on the scene," said Shelby County sheriff Paul Ross. "They're from Louisiana and this is all they do. They're already cleaning off part of the tracks with cranes and all."

Two locomotives and 32 cars of a Southern Pacific train derailed Saturday afternoon. A tank car filled with liquefied petroleum gas exploded and burned, causing two other tank car explosions with flames shooting as much as 500 feet into the air igniting trees and grass along the tracks, Ross said.

Five people, including one trainman, suffered minor burns and injuries, he said.

The danger of more explosions in nearby cars filled with flammable and toxic materials caused officials to evacuate residents as far as three miles from the accident, and just before sundown Saturday two more cars exploded "with big flames erupting 'way up into the sky, billows of it, making a loud rush like jets coming over," Ross said.

"I was half a mile from it and I heard it real loud," he said. "It (the noise) lasted about 45 minutes."

"Some residents are moving back in now," Ross said. "But it's at their own risk. We're not telling them to, but we're not telling them not to. We're letting them back to within a half-mile, unless they live downwind."

Three separate fires continued to burn at the accident site and Southern Pacific public relations manager Joe Bart said, "Our strategy is to let it burn itself out."

"The two locomotives have been repaired and will be sent to Pine Bluff, Ark., for inspection," he said.

Bart said railroad officials had not determined what caused the derailment, and could not estimate how long it would take to clear the damage and repair the torn-up sections of track.

Bart said the wrecked cars contained several potentially dangerous chemicals, including butadiene, isobutylene, tetrahydrofuran, hydrofluoric acid, ethyl oxide, vinyl acetate, methanol and others.

"The train was going from Temaha to Joaquin," a distance of about 15 miles, Ross said. "It came around a curve and down a hill when it jumped the tracks."

"There's a new brick home and several trailer houses there," said Ross.

Food Company Stocks Promoted

By CHET CURRIER
 NEW YORK (AP) — With a recession brewing, some investment analysts are suggesting stocks of food companies as a way to ride out the storm.

Their case is based on the food companies' wide recognition as a "defensive" group — one whose earnings and stock prices tend to fare better than those of most other industries in economic slumps.

"Most food-packaging companies are characteristically recession-resistant," Standard & Poor's Corp. analyst Richard A. Bogacki declared in a recent report.

"Since consumer demand for food is largely inelastic, sales volume in recent decades has been unaffected by economic conditions. Profit margins, moreover, have usually been maintained during economic slowdowns."

A study by S&P of past market performance shows how the food stocks won their reputation as a recession haven.

In the past six economic downturns, the advisory firm found, the S&P food index posted an average gain of 12.2 percent, while the firm's composite index of 500 stocks managed only a 0.1 percent average rise.

In its best recession showing, the food group rose 42.3 percent, and in its worst, it declined by only 6.2 percent.

"The explanation for the group's good showing may be that in times of economic uncertainty some investors sell stocks that have historically fared poorly (such as autos and steels) but, unwilling to keep their dollars out of equities, then buy recession-resistant issues," Bogacki wrote.

Of course, there is no automatic mechanism in the market that makes a given stock or group of stocks behave the same way it did in the past. Mechanical reasoning, in fact, is considered a good way to get yourself in trouble in the market.

Bogacki also points out that there are a number of adverse factors to be considered by anyone who is considering the food stocks — including recent criticism of food industry "middlemen" by President Carter.

"In coming months, assuming that the inflation rate remains high, the industry may get additional heat from Washington," Bogacki observed.

"Investors must also consider the possibility of a tightening of price guidelines — any tightening would likely hurt profits — and even of mandatory controls."

Further, he said, "consumer resistance to some price increases may be encountered. The crusade waged against coffee some time ago because of out-sized price jumps is an example of what can occur."

"Consumers will become especially cost-conscious if signs of a business contraction increase and unemployment rises. Although over-all demand for food holds up in economic slowdowns, the product mix of some manufacturers may well become less favorable."

Bogacki also pointed out that, along with their tendency to resist declines in weak markets, the food stocks often lag behind when many of the more volatile stocks are doing well.

For the first two thirds of this year, for example, while the S&P 500 rose 13 percent, S&P's food index was up only about 5 percent.

Particular weakness in the food stocks early this year coincided with a surge in prices of the companies' raw materials — agricultural commodities.

"Commodity prices are highly volatile and, therefore, often are the most important determinant of food company profitability over the short term," Bogacki noted.

"It's not surprising, then, that fluctuations in commodity prices have an impact on the performance of food stocks."

Cattlemen Battling Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cattlemen's Association is waging an all-out effort against pending legislation which the organization says would mean a hardship on U.S. cattle producers by imposing controls on the export of hides, shoes and other leather articles.

For months the domestic shoe industry has been working hard itself to gain support on Capitol Hill for amendments that would restrict hide exports. It says controls are needed in view of the smaller supply caused by a sharply reduced cattle slaughter.

But the NCA, the Agriculture Department, some other farm groups and segments of the meat industry contend export controls are short-sighted and would mean a slowdown in the expansion now under way in the U.S. cattle industry.

The main interest now is in the House, where amendments have been or will be offered to legislation extending the Export Administration Act.

In recent reports to its members, the NCA agreed that global hide production is down "mainly as a result of the cyclical reduction in cattle slaughter," but added that the U.S. cattle and packing industries "are producing more hides than the domestic leather industry can use."

Prices of hides, before they began slipping from their peaks earlier this year, more than doubled what they were two years ago.

"All the hides they can use, and more, are available if they will pay the going price," the NCA said of the leather industry's complaint about costs.

According to the industry, more than 80 percent of America's cattle hides are being shipped abroad, up from less than 50 percent four years ago.

"Controls on hide exports wouldn't be enough to revive the U.S. leather goods industry," says the NCA. "It's been going downhill for the last 23 years. In 1978, leather good production was 19 percent less than in 1955, while the output of all non-durable manufacturing increased by 170 percent."

The National Independent Meat Packers Association, which has sided with the NCA against export controls, says a quota on overseas shipments "would have an immediate effect" of pushing hide prices down further from their peaks last spring.

"This is not a guarantee, however, that the price of shoes and other leather goods would go the other way," the association said. "Export quotas were implemented in 1966 and attempted in 1972. As expected, the price of hides dropped, but the price of shoes continued to go up."

Further, in the overall cost of shoes, "the best available estimate is that leather makes up about 10 percent of the retail cost of men's shoes," it said.

Further, in the overall cost of shoes, "the best available estimate is that leather makes up about 10 percent of the retail cost of men's shoes," it said.

Canadian Job Trends Noted

MONTREAL (AP) — If you're a tax accountant — go north, young man. And if you're a woman the best thing to be in Canada is a personnel director.

These are the job candidates in greatest demand in Canada today, according to a recent survey about Canadian employment trends. Also among the conclusions gathered:

One in five employed Canadian managers has a resume circulating. This is a surprisingly high figure to most employers, yet not as high as in the United States, where 29 percent of managers are considering a change of jobs. The study also concludes that when managers leave their jobs their action comes as a complete surprise to three out of five employers.

The survey was taken among the Canadian affiliates of National Personnel Associates, a network of independent personnel agencies throughout the world that cooperate in filling management-level positions.

Artist Puts Action In Kid's Books

MARMADUKE by Brad Anderson

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Though he once made the Red Sea part for Moses, he insists his most difficult accomplishment has been constructing a palace ballroom for Cinderella.

On any list of unusual occupations, Bruce Baker's job would be a worthy addition. Officially described as a "paper mechanicals engineer," he designs paper pop-ups for children's storybooks.

Pop-ups are intricately folded and cut paper designs that spring to life as a book's pages are turned. They also include special mechanical designs that can be manipulated by small paper wheels and pull tabs. Turn a page, and up "My job is to take what would be a regular children's storybook and animate the characters and setting to make the story a tangible plaything for a child, full of ideas and action," explains the Kansas City artist whose pop-ups have been featured in scores of Hallmark children's books.

"Small children really enjoy having their mom or dad read a pop-up book to them. It lets them participate more and encourages them to read on their own. This makes my job very gratifying."

In his 14-year career as a pop-up artist, the 37-year-old Baker's subjects have ranged from Bible stories to barnyard animals, prehistoric monsters to moon landings. He's coaxed Little Bo Peep's sheep over a fence, helped Ben Franklin fly a kite, made bucking broncos buck and ghosts jump out from behind paper gravestones.

A pop-up is glued to two adjoining pages of a book and works from the leverage generated as the book is opened or a page is turned. While it sounds like a great deal of fun, designing a workable and reasonably durable pop-up is often an exercise in avoiding pitfalls, Baker says.

The more elaborate the design, the more likely it will bind up, get caught on itself as it unfolds and rip apart. Even the grain of the paper is critical. If not aligned in a strong vertical plane, the pop-up becomes a droop-down.

Baker said a single design might take him only an hour, or as long as three or four days. The entire process of creating a pop-up book, from idea to finished product, can take up to a full year.

Many of the basic principles of paper mechanics were developed by the Chinese and Greeks as early as 400 B.C., but pop-ups as we know them were probably first developed in Western Europe in the late 19th century, Baker notes. Pop-up designs became popular in America during the late '40s with the introduction of greeting card "story-books" that folded into 360-degree scenes. Today, the required hand-assembly and resultant high production costs have driven all but a handful of publishers out of the pop-up book market.

So how does one go about becoming a paper engineer?

"Paper mechanics requires not only artistic talent, but also a working knowledge of geometry, physics, architecture and mechanical engineering, as well as unlimited patience, Baker explains.

"It really helps to be naturally mechanical," he adds. "I'm the kind of person who enjoys fixing things. I majored in art, but I never learned anything like this in school."

He learned the basics after joining Hallmark's mechanical-design department. "I spent four years working on special greeting-card designs," he said, "making bunnies' ears pop up and tails wiggle. It was a real education."

After 14 years, what's Baker's favorite pop-up creation?

"Well, there's this one with a farmer in a pig pen counting his pigs," he said. "He can't find his spotted pig. You pull a tab and the farmer reaches into a box in the middle of the pen. Then the spotted pig jumps out."

"Living with him has taught us we can learn to live with anything!"

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Sept. 10, the 253rd day of 1979 with 112 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.
The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American physicist Arthur Compton was born Sept. 10, 1892.

On this day in history:
In 1813, U.S. naval units under the command of Capt. Oliver Perry defeated a British squadron in the Battle of Lake Erie.

In 1846, Elias Howe received a patent for the sewing machine.

In 1889, Empress Elizabeth of Austria-Hungary was assassinated by an anarchist.

In 1963, Blacks entered the white public schools of Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile, Ala., after President Kennedy federalized the state's National Guard.

A thought for the day:
American essayist, poet and philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson offered this advice: "Make yourself necessary to somebody."

Seminars Given On Retirement

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Many people who long for retirement find themselves psychologically unprepared for the change and too often suffer from an increase in mental depression and health disorders, says the head of a company retirement program.

Feelings of idleness and uselessness are most commonly the problem, says William Hayes, manager of the Pitney Bowes Retirement Administration here. In an effort to prepare their employees for retirement, the company provides seminars on health care, financial management, legal planning and attitude adjustment.

In addition, employees over age 50 enrolled in courses on second careers and hobbies get tuition, books and fees paid for everything from accounting, cabinet-making and cake decorating to golf.

LINDSTROM NAMED.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vince Lindstrom, cultural coordinator for public schools in Fargo, N.D., has been named to the new position of special counsel for arts and education for the National Endowment for the Arts and the U.S. Office of Education.

Study Shows Parents Want To Teach Kids

NEW YORK (AP) — A great majority — 84 percent — of parents still want to be the main source of birth-control information for their teen-age children. This is among the findings of The General Mills American Family Report 1978-79: Family Health in an Era of Stress.

The study, conducted by the research firm of Yankelevich, Skelly and White, showed that only a small minority — 7 percent — are ready to see the schools take over the responsibility, while 6 percent were willing to have teen-agers receive the information from doctors.

BORNY'S LAW: INFLATION IS A GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (AND WE DO MEAN GROSS!)

House To Make Decision On Draft Registration

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 11 on a Tuesday morning, a receptionist is sealing envelopes, a whistling mail clerk wheels his cart by, somewhere a typewriter is slowing tapping out a letter. The phones rarely ring.

Selective Service headquarters is hardly the bustling place it must have been when the late Gen. Lewis B. Hershey oversaw the registration during World War II of 40 million men and the induction of 10 million of them.

These days the Selective Service System, on deep standby and subsisting on an annual budget of $7.8 million, drafts nothing but plans for what to do if the draft is revived.

It has been more than six years since a young man in America has reached into his mailbox and pulled out a summons to serve his country. The last draftee was inducted in Oakland, Calif., in June 1973.

And no young man has had to register for the draft since March 31, 1975, leaving Selective Service with little to do.

But Congress now is considering reinstating registration as a first reluctant step toward reinstating the draft.

The House is expected to vote this week or next on re-opening registration. Re-opening the draft itself — a far more controversial proposition — would take a separate act of Congress not now likely.

Advocates of registering young men say the all-voluntary military isn't working. They argue that in a war, having men registered would make it possible to raise an army faster than starting the process from scratch.

The Pentagon is divided on the issue, but the administration opposes registration and hints President Carter would veto such a bill.

And Robert E. Shuck, of all people, also opposes a new draft registration. Shuck, from Kokomo, Ind., has been acting director of Selective Service for two years and will go back to his old job as deputy director once the Senate confirms President Carter's choice of Pentagon manpower expert Bernard B. Rostker for the top spot.

Shuck says that under a plan he's drawn up, the country could raise a huge civilian army in a hurry if it had to.

He says he needs $2 million more than Congress has been willing to appropriate to develop his plan for a "quick registration system" under which four million men would register on a single day. He opposes drafting women, incidentally, "until men develop the capability to have babies."

The $2 million would go for finding and training citizens in every county who would serve as unpaid members of local draft boards.

Their job would be to classify registrants and hear appeals from those who felt they were misclassified — men, for example, arguing they were needed at home as the sole support of mothers and sisters and brothers.

But there would be fewer deferments and exemptions than there were during the Vietnam War, when enrolling in college was a way to avoid the draft — and a source of irritation for those who were drafted.

Shuck believes the one-day registration could be carried out by local election officials, who are accustomed to registering large numbers of people.

He says the first draftees would register within 10 days of a presidential proclamation of a national emergency, receive his induction notice — greetings delivered by Mailgram — 10 days later and be in uniform 10 days after that.

But his computerized plans fail to take into account changes in American society. Will America ever again require an army of six million? What would be going on in this middle age during the months it would take to raise an army?

And would today's young people loyally march to register and unquestioningly respond to a draft notice?

Shuck reads the Defense Department bulletins for the latest military thinking. He believes a non-nuclear war requiring large masses of troops is still conceivable.

As for how young men would respond to a draft, he says, "We've learned that the people of this nation are not going to mobilize for anything that they don't perceive of as a threat. In the Vietnam war, fewer than 1 percent failed to register and fewer than 1 percent ignored an induction notice — though it sometimes took a communication from the local U.S. attorney to induce compliance."

Lillian Carter's Statement Shocks Crowd

DOVER, N.H. (UPI) — The president's mother, Mrs. Lillian Carter, has left partisans in all three Democratic presidential camps in a state of shock with the statement that she hopes "nothing happens" to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Miss Lillian, California Gov. Edmund Brown, Jr. and key draft-Kennedy leaders, traveling separately, formed something of a Democratic campaign caravan Sunday as they cut across New Hampshire from one political picnic to another.

A hush fell over more than 1,000 Democrats attending a chicken barbecue in Nashua when the 81-year-old "Miss Lillian" spoke of Kennedy's snowballing but as-yet undeclared candidacy.

Miss Lillian, sharing the podium with Brown and draft-Kennedy leader Dudley Dudley, told the gathering she does not expect Kennedy to run.

"If he does run, I wish him all the luck in the world," she said. "I hope to goodness nothing happens to him. I really do."

Her remark was first greeted with silence, then a smattering of boos from Kennedy partisans at the gathering which attracted about 200 reporters and photographers from across the nation.

"I don't know whether you are booing me or him," Miss Lillian said. "But don't you boo either one of us."

Later at a picnic on the other side of the state in Dover, Miss Lillian said she hoped she hadn't offended anyone with her remark about Kennedy.

"I didn't mean anything by it. I certainly did not mean it the way it sounded," she said.

But key Carter supporters in New Hampshire were troubled.

"She really screwed it up," one said. "She has got to get her act together."

The Kennedy camp also was taken aback.

"I couldn't believe she said that," one said. "It blew me right away."

Earlier in the day, Miss Lillian arrived at the Nashua picnic on the arm of Gov. Hugh Gallen, Carter's campaign chairman in New Hampshire. Surrounded by Secret Service agents, she hinted her son might not be totally committed to running for re-election.

"If Jimmy runs, he will win," she said.

Later, in Washington, Carter told reporters he is "not a candidate... yet."

Miss Lillian's apparent reference to the assassination of Kennedy's older brother, John and Robert, overshadowed the much publicized arrival of Brown.

The California governor was making his first presidential campaign swing through New Hampshire, home of the nation's first Democratic presidential primary.

Brown drew hearty applause from followers at both picnics by voicing his strong opposition to nuclear power.

Kennedy Aide Calls Story Inaccurate

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is denying published reports that the Massachusetts Democrat considers President Carter a "political cripple" who cannot win re-election.

"The story is inaccurate," said Kennedy's press secretary, Tom Southwick. "The reporter did not speak to the senator."

The story, published in Sunday's editions of the Atlanta Journal and Constitution, quoted unidentified political sources as saying Kennedy feels Carter could drag other Democrats down to defeat.

"I don't know who the sources were, but they're not the senator and they're not people who are close to the senator," Southwick said.

The article also said Kennedy told Carter during a luncheon meeting last week that a battle between them for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination could pave the way for a Republican victory.

Although Kennedy has denied he is a candidate, he made it known last week that his wife and mother would support him in a campaign, an announcement widely viewed as another step toward a Kennedy campaign.

The newspaper story said Kennedy expects party leaders to pressure Carter not to seek a second term, and believes Carter will bow out early in the campaign.

Chairman John White of the Democratic National Committee said Sunday it was "pure fantasy" to think Carter would withdraw, adding, "That is the most naive thing I ever heard."

Rosalynn Carter, asked about the reported remarks, said, "I think it's time for Democrats to unite" behind the president.

She said she attended the Friday luncheon meeting between Carter and Kennedy for about a half-hour, while they discussed pending mental health legislation.

Of Kennedy's reported suggestion that Carter bow out of the race, Mrs. Carter said, "I was not in on the conversation, but I can't believe that happened."

Asked about Kennedy's reported characterization of the president as a "political cripple," she said, "I have no comment," adding softly, "It's not true."

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A J ♠K Q 9 7 5 4 ♠AK ♠K 4
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Dble.
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the strength of your hand, don't jump to three hearts—if the bidding is honest, your partner has nothing and sine tricks might be beyond you. Be content with two hearts. This sequence in itself virtually shows this type of hand, especially since you are competing vulnerable against two bidding opponents.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠7 4 ♠Q J 7 ♠6 4 3 ♠A Q 10 9 5
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—Your hand is worth only one constructive bid, not two, so don't make the mistake of responding two clubs. That will leave you with a problem if partner either raises or rebids his hearts, for you won't be able to support hearts without oversteering your values. By simply bidding two hearts now, you will be admirably placed if partner makes any sort of forward-going move.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠7 4 ♠5 2 ♠K Q 9 7 4 3 ♠7 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—What started out as "the pits" has developed into a reasonable hand. Partner has made an enormously strong bid opposite what might be a yarrow, and you actually have a fine six-card suit. Jump to four diamonds to advise partner of this. Since you limited your hand with your first pass, this bid doesn't show any more strength than you actually possess.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J 10 9 6 ♠K J 3 ♠Q J 5 ♠5 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Although partner almost certainly has a four-card spade suit for his takeout double, we feel that a one no trump response, rather than one spade, is preferable here. This accurately describes your balanced hand, values in the opponent's suit and general strength. If no trump is not to partner's liking, you can always show your spades later.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠7 5 3 ♠A 10 7 6 5 4 ♠Q 4 ♠7 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ ?
What action do you take?

A.—If you could respond two hearts, confident that partner would pass with a weak hand, we would heartily endorse that action. Unfortunately, a two-heart bid by you would be forcing, and could propel you into deep trouble. The correct action is to pass. If partner is strong, he will reopen. If he is not, you will have avoided a potential disaster.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠7 4 ♠6 5 3 ♠A 9 7 5 4 ♠K 9 6
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
A.—Partner's bid is a takeout for the minors—if he were interested in spades as well, he would have doubled. Since your ace and king in his long suits are pure gold, we would be willing to contract for six diamonds, but wouldn't criticize a conservative five diamonds.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A Q 3 2 ♠A J 5 4 ♠J 10 7 ♠Q 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♠
Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—If partner has either four spades or a stopper in the enemy suit, you probably have a game. If not, the limit of the hand might be a partscore. However, West has given you another option which, at this vulnerability, we suggest you seize. Double! This might seem strange without a trump trick, but when this hand was dealt at rubber bridge a double would have netted 800 points.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K Q 10 9 7 6 5 ♠4 ♠5 ♠K Q 10 4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass
What action do you take?

A.—The key to the hand is your singleton diamond. Partner must have the aces of clubs, hearts and spades to justify his bidding, and he is worried about the possibility of two diamond losers. You can set his mind at rest about that situation. Bid six spades.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of Doubles for penalties and for takeout. For a copy of his Doubles booklet, send $1.70 to "Goren Doubles," P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

This fall is a very special time for all the people associated with the Museum of Texas Tech University, for The Museum is celebrating its 50th anniversary. The West Texas Museum Association and Women's Council have planned some appropriately festive events. The Women's Council coffee, which will be held Sept. 17, is the first of these.

Today at 7:30 p.m. the Texas Heritage Chapter of ABWA will hold a fall enrollment event at the newly-rededicated Lubbock Women's Club. Sue Wagner will direct a skit entitled "Happily Ever After."

Mrs. W. C. Marks of Dallas, current president of the Texas Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, was in Lubbock Thursday en route to start a new organization in Lockney. She will return to Lubbock Sept. 26 when Hub City hospital volunteers host the District 1 Meeting.

Five area residents were among 150 participants in the first annual meeting of the German-Texas Heritage Society held Sept. 1-2 in Austin. Lubbock residents, Mrs. Chris Gleis, Mrs. Elsie Wilbanks, Mrs. Mardena Ogletree and Robert Robinson-Zwahr and Slaton resident Mrs. Geneva Kallich attended. The purpose of the organization is to preserve the language, culture and history of the state's German community.

Lubbock Mothers of Multiples will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the O'Brien Room at St. Mary's Hospital. Judy Rogers of the Chamber of Commerce will be the speaker. People wanting more information on this group may call Christy Knapp, 793-8069.

The Lubbock League of Women Voters is planning membership events this week, hoping that each old member will make it a point to bring along a friend who might be interested in League activities. Tuesday night, Anne Burkholder, 3801 53rd, will host a wine-and-cheese get-together beginning at 7:30 and Wednesday, at 11:30 a.m., a light luncheon will be served in the Community Room of the Mahon library.

THIS WEEK AT THE LUBBOCK WOMEN'S CLUB: A Members' Day event Thursday and Friday will feature a fall fashion show called "Getting it Together for Fall." Debbie Clark will narrate the fashion show for Hemphill-Wells. The fall fashion show is always a special event at the Women's Club, and reservations for the luncheon are sure to be in good demand.

MORE SIMPLE HOMES
The keynotes of economy and conservation carry over into a growing skepticism with electronic gadgetry and expensive detail—costly extras that homeowners of the late '60s and early '70s came to expect. Delight with "labor saving devices" has given way to a more modest outfitting of homes, while an earlier generation's interest in luxury has been replaced by a growing need for the simple and the spare. The times demand clear thinking from architects and homeowners alike.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to DESPERATE WIFE, who came home early and found her husband in bed with his best friend (another male), was not very well thought out. You said, "Bisexuality is a fact of life that can occur in any family. Give him up graciously, he has already consciously or unconsciously made a choice."

Abby, if he had been a wonderful husband for 18 years, and a great father, as she stated, she should have been encouraged to try to save her marriage rather than demolish it.

Granted she is in shock, and granted there has been deception on his part, but she isn't the only woman in the world who's married to a gay man. If she lives in a big city, there is a mental health clinic and a gay community service agency which can put her and her husband in touch with a support group for gay married men and their wives. Counselors will help them deal with the realities of their marriage and show them how to build a new relationship based on honest and open communication. Or they may conclude that it's best to separate. But at least they should consider the alternatives instead of scrapping the marriage.

I am sorry that you viewed the situation as hopeless. It isn't.
GAILY MARRIED IN S.F.

DEAR GAILY MARRIED: Although my answer was (I thought) very well thought out, a surprising number of readers wrote to say that they are happily married to bisexual mates, and my advice was way out in left field.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sorry DESPERATE WIFE didn't ask ME for advice instead of you. I have been happily married to a bisexual man for 33 years and have no regrets. We raised four wonderful children who knew nothing of their father's activities until they were grown and able to understand it. None of them love him any less for it, and all are heterosexual, I might add.

I knew my husband was gay when I married him, but I never felt threatened by it. He was 38 and I was 34. We are both in the theater. I could bet my life he has never had an affair since our marriage.

If I had caught my husband in the arms of another man at any point in our marriage I would no more have considered divorcing him than I would had I caught him with a woman. He's a fine, beautiful man who by nature is able to relate sexually to both sexes, which is not as rare as most people think.
NAMELESS, PLEASE, IN N.Y.C.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to DESPERATE WIFE, who had been happily married for 18 years to a bisexual man, was simplistic.

Human beings are capable of more flexibility than you give them credit for. You didn't present any options. One was to get help in adjusting to the idea that her husband is bisexual. She said they loved each other, had terrific sex, and great children. None of that has changed, nor has HE changed. Only what she KNOWS has changed.

My husband is gay, but we have come to realize that what we have together and what we give each other and our children is more important than what happens when we are apart.

We can allow each other to live full and complete lives—whatever that may mean. You should have told that wife that leaving a loving husband isn't the only solution.
FOUND ANOTHER WAY IN MASS.

DEAR ABBY: As a neuro-psychiatrist, I have had many married bisexual male patients. Most of them were vigorous, successful men in high-paying positions with intelligent, good-looking wives. In every case there also were healthy, well-adjusted children. There was a close rapport between these patients and their families for years until circumstances forced the skeletons out of the closet.

In every case the wife preferred to continue in the marriage. Not one man I ever treated was willing to give up his homosexuality—but he didn't want to give up his wife either. Such individuals seek help only when they get arrested, lose a lover or are exposed for some reason.

DESPERATE WIFE may have wanted only your confirmation of her wish to keep her husband; you let her down.

L.A. PHYSICIAN
DEAR PHYSICIAN: Possibly. But the fact that the husband had an affair in his own home tells me that perhaps he WANTED to get caught and end the closet capers.

ALTERNATE ENERGY SOURCES
Perhaps the greatest challenge to architects and homeowners is in the area of energy conservation. Although solar energy holds great promise for the future, consumer adoption is slow due to comparatively high initial costs, slow payback, and the continuing need in most areas to provide a conventional heating system as backup. Until technology is perfected, solar energy will remain a potential but largely untapped resource. For now, however, there are effective devices for designing energy efficient homes. Conditions like site and location are critical considerations which can be utilized to exploit the natural environment—for cooling in the summer and heating in winter. In the South great care is given to cross ventilation and protective foliage, while in the North homes tend to be heavily insulated.

The loudest snore, according to the Guinness Book of World Records, was measured at 69 decibels at St. Mary's hospital in London.

Until last night, the record was broken in the bed of mine by my husband, who snored life at a rousing 72 decibels. (Seventy-two decibels is the equivalent of firing a cannon go off in the seat next to you in the Astro.)

You would expect the snorer to have some compassion for the spouse, but this is never the case. Angry retorts of, "How do YOU know I'm snoring?" have to be accompanied by lampshades blown off the ceiling, pictures blasted off the wall, and restless farm animals as far as 50 miles away.

Frankly, I'm sick of all the therapist remedies that never seem to work, like hypnosis, earplugs and rolling the snorer off his back.

The following are the only methods of relief that have worked for me: Change beds: Get the snorer out of his own bed and into a strange one...preferably in another state.

The pillow technique: Get a large fluffy pillow. When the breathing becomes deafening, put it squarely over every opening in his face and hold there until some demands are met.

Forestilling sleep: This one works as well as any I've tried. Just as you are about to climb into bed, get every nerve in his body on alert by offhandedly mentioning, "The IRS called you today, but will call you back tomorrow," or, "You seemed so tired today. I hope you don't have the same thing like I had Fred Withersall had."

Humiliation route: Place a tape recorder by his bed and the next night when he is watching TV, play it and tell him someone is stealing his car.

Other experts believe you have to get to the root of a husband's reason for snoring. It has been suggested a person snores because he is troubled, his dentures don't fit properly, he indulges in excessive smoking or drinking, has swollen tonsils or suffers from old age.

My husband doesn't snore for any of those reasons. He snores for one thing alone...to annoy me. As I yelled to him the other morning at 3 a.m., "You'd do anything to keep from talking to me." I thought I saw him smile.

Hospital Auxiliary Welcomes President

By JACQUE HUTCHINS
Family News Staff

Health education, preventative medicine and hospital costs are very much in the public eye. Mrs. W.C. Marks feels the Texas Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, of which she is president, can help educate the people on these matters.

"Most people who work in hospitals as volunteers work in other areas too. They can give a first-hand account of their experiences and what they encounter. By word of mouth, soon communities will become informed," explained Mrs. Marks.

The auxiliaries are comprised of approximately 100,000 members, serving 316 hospitals throughout Texas. These people are responsible for holding down hospital costs, says Mrs. Marks.

The Dallas woman has been involved with her local auxiliary for 22 years and served in almost every area. She says people are becoming more involved lately because of the interest in physical fitness.

"I am very impressed with what the volunteers have done in Lubbock. Businessmen are even becoming members, realizing they can become volunteers for the hospitals as well as anything else," she said.

Mrs. Marks will be promoting health education when she returns to Lubbock Sept. 26, for the district meeting at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Couple Discovers Native Handicrafts

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT
Associated Press Writer

PLAINVILLE, Conn. (AP) — Clare and Burges Smith probably would have gone into the business of importing crafts from the world's developing nations even if they hadn't been arrested in Haiti on suspicion of being Cuban spies.

But that's another story. "No one looked less like Cuban spies than Burges and me with our sporty clothes and tennis rackets," recalled Mrs. Smith, who with her husband operates "Primitive Artisan," an unusual importing firm that specializes in crafts and curiosities from Third World countries.

But as a result of their accidental arrest while on vacation, and their subsequent detention in Haiti in the early 1960s, they made a number of friends on that Caribbean island and that led them to their present business.

Today, with 15 years of experience behind them, the Smiths scour the back country in some of the world's most remote lands looking for handicrafts to bring back to the old mill that houses their business here in central Connecticut.

"They are traditional skills, all of them," said Mrs. Smith, referring to the crafts-filled warehouse. "We are providing a market for their skills."

Three or four times a year, the Smiths make buying trips from southern Mexico to Sri Lanka, stopping in between in places like Thailand, the Philippines, northwest Pakistan, Fiji and the Solomon Islands.

"We have not yet gone to Africa, but that's just because we haven't had the time," Mrs. Smith said.

The Smiths buy crafts on the local level from self-help groups, village cooperatives and church groups.

The crafts the Smiths are seeking, which they wholesale to dealers, boutiques and department stores in the United States, are not usually a central part of the economy in the countries where they are made.

"Everything we deal in are crafts and crafts are not a major part of the economy. It's what they do between crops," she said.

She noted that large orders of one particular type of handicraft from a village had been known to result in the villagers abandoning their crops.

"It's important not to disrupt the economy," she said.

MISCELLANY

During the recent Texas State Cosmetology Convention in Fort Worth, Jessie Lee Sharpley received the honor of being named to the newly-created Texas Cosmetology Hall of Fame. She is the only woman to be inducted into the Hall of Fame and the first West Texan.

Several members of F.O.E. Aerie and Auxiliary No. 3435 participated in the recent Jerry Lewis Telethon. Those members participating in the telethon for muscular dystrophy for 12 hours were Pat Autrey, state chairman for MDA; Leeta Godard; Cheryl O'Neal; Jimmie Smith; Jerri Fair; Wilbert Fair; Jerry Colburn; J.W. Hammersley; Sonny Janvin and Sarah McLeod.

Preschool classes at Lubbock community centers will be open to the public this fall. A $1 registration fee will be charged for classes that will begin the week of Sept. 24 and will run through the week of Dec. 3. Registration is ongoing through Sept. 24 at all of the Lubbock community centers.

Lubbock Police Auxiliary will host a style show at 7 p.m. today at Greas-ham's in Security Park Shopping Center. Admission is $2, all proceeds will be donated to Meals On Wheels.

SMALLER, EFFICIENT HOMES

The most obvious trend is toward smaller homes. It is no longer practical to have a "formal living room," "formal dining room," and "guest room." These specialized and seldom used rooms are now being combined to form large, expansive spaces serving a variety of family needs. Imaginative design assures privacy and ease of movement, despite an overall reduction in size, while the smaller home guarantees less waste of floor space and energy consumption.

LOCAL AUTHOR HONORED

A "Meet The Author" Party was held Saturday, August 25, at New Braunfels for local researcher-author Robert R. ("Bob") Robinson-Zwahr, 3801 57th Street, at which time his book, Die Bremervandtschaft in Deutschland und in Texas (The Bremers and Their Kin in Germany and in Texas), was unveiled to the public. Approximately 800 guests were present from throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana at the event which was held at the River Restaurant's Rapids Room and Biergarten. Lubbonites attending were Mr. and Mrs. Rex Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Matt J. Smith and son.

The book, a two-volume work, containing 1,660 pages, approximately 2,400 pictures and illustrations, and a surname index of approximately 7,400 family names, has been acclaimed by the head of the Association of German-speaking Authors in America as "without doubt the major German-American genealogical publication of the year."

Robinson-Zwahr, a native West Texan graduated from Spur High School in 1950, receiving his BBA degree at UT Austin in 1963, with additional schooling in Mexico and Germany while a UT student. A former associate editor of the Journal of German-American studies, he is a charter member of the German-Texan Heritage Society, serving as a Special Consultant to that organization, and also holds membership in the South Plains Genealogical Society, the Sons of the Republic of Texas, the Society for the Development of German in Texas, the Texas Wendish heritage Society, as well as many other local, state and national genealogical, historical and cultural organizations.

Food Seminar Encourages Pioneer Preparedness

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

When Doc Savage, a local health food restaurateur, first opened a restaurant in the Tech-Broadway area, he wanted the best products he could find to serve his customers. After sampling the products of various health food companies, he found he preferred those of Arrowhead Mills. To his surprise, he learned the Arrowhead Mill was located in an area town, Hereford.

Savage later moved his restaurant to another Lubbock location, but continued to buy and serve Arrowhead products. And as he enjoyed these particular natural foods more and more, he became interested in meeting the nearly-legendary man, Frank Ford, who had first envisioned a natural food processing plant in the 50's, eventually established it, and helped the organization grow.

So, as Savage related, "One day my wife and I bundled up the kids and went to Hereford to visit with Ford and tour the processing plant that was supplying all the pure foods we and our customers liked. We liked what we saw that day, but were even more impressed by Ford himself. Of course we already knew some things about him — that he'd grown up in Lubbock, helped his father, J. Frank Ford Sr., (now deceased) on the family's Deal Smith County farm, and was a Texas A&M graduate (he now professes to also espouse Tech).

Savage said Ford literally built his business almost single-handedly, by taking his products to food chains himself and vouching for the purity of everything he sold. As Savage related, "I guess his dedication paid off, and food buyers must have believed him, because we saw the results of his efforts when we visited the Arrowhead Mills."

Ford's wife, Marjorie, is co-author of the famed "The Deal Smith Country Cookbook." In a telephone interview recently, Ford credited Marjorie for stimulating his interest in natural foods.

Ford said he plans to visit with his mother, Mrs. J. Frank Ford Sr., who lives in Lubbock, when he is in town today for the seminar. The seminar, entitled "Pioneer Preparedness for the 80's," concerns Ford's beliefs that people should become more self-sufficient in the future, not only about food but everything else.

Although Ford will be present only today, a videotaped presentation will be shown every night. For a nominal fee, those attending can sample various Arrowhead foods, the special dinners being served each night of the seminar from Sept. 10-15. The Sphere Brothers will provide original music for the entertainment prior to each seminar.

Seminars will be held at the Green Haus Restaurant and the Southwest Natural Food Reserve, 5601 Aberdeen from 6-10 p.m. Reservations are necessary and can be obtained by calling 793-2062 or 793-9331.

DIVERSITY OF DESIGN

There are also new architectural developments in an increasing diversity of design, with a greater freedom to utilize elements from other cultures or other ages. A Japanese roof, a capped column, or a barn detail may be used to achieve an eclectic and evocative design. There is also emerging a regional or vernacular design which may be noted in country houses of a "Shaker" bent, beach houses with a nautical feel, or houses in the southwest with a Spanish, adobe flavor.

Strauss Gives Push To Mideast Talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — U.S. Mideast negotiator Robert Strauss and Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil agreed today there should be a speedup in negotiations with Israel on Palestinian autonomy.

"This is a time for stepping up the tempo of more action around that (negotiating) table," said Strauss, President Carter's special envoy, after meeting with Khalil.

Both men sought to dispel recent news reports in Israel that President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin decided at their Haifa summit last week to slacken the pace of the talks, aimed at providing some level of autonomy for the Arabs living on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

"It is not true that there was an agreement to slow down," Khalil told reporters. "That is not the goal. On the contrary, Mr. Strauss is here to speed up the negotiations."

After meeting with Sadat for 90 minutes on Sunday, Strauss said he was "absolutely confident" the negotiations and the rest of the peace process will "conclude successfully."

It was the American's third trip to Cairo since President Carter tapped him to mediate the peace drive last spring, and he said none of his previous trips had been as "constructive... informative... positive or as encouraging."

Obviously buoyed by Sadat's report on his meeting with Begin, Strauss said the two leaders appeared to have made "considerable progress" and were developing a "good chemistry."

Sadat said his reception last week in Haifa had been so enthusiastic that "I was telling Bob (Strauss) I could not distinguish who is an Arab and who is a Jew."

"To a fellow like me, a good personal relationship is the most important thing," said Strauss, known for his folksy approach to diplomacy. "It creates the kind of climate I think is best for a settlement."

Strauss, who goes next to Israel, noted that the two nations are on a "long and tedious road" with many problems still ahead. But he said he was "absolutely confident that the peace process, would conclude successfully."

En route to Cairo, Strauss told reporters he wants to map out "what we realistically can hope to accomplish by the end of the year" in the thorny Israel-Egyptian talks on Palestinian autonomy.

A U.S. official traveling with Strauss suggested that the talks would take a new turn in the next month and focus on "decision making."

Until now, Israel and Egypt have concentrated on marginal issues, such as agendas, while skirting the basic questions, including the scope of home-rule planned for the Palestinians living on the occupied West Bank and in Gaza, and the future status of Jerusalem.

While Strauss extolled the peace process, its foes in the Arab world marked a partial victory against it at the non-aligned movement's summit meeting in Havana.

The summit ended Sunday after approving a resolution "energetically condemning" the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty and the U.S.-sponsored Camp David agreement that made it possible.

Arab hard-liners had demanded Egypt also be drummed out of the non-aligned movement, but the numerically superior African contingent argued that a member nation should not be suspended for waging peace. Instead, the conference in effect put Egypt on probation, naming a commission to review the matter and decide whether the Sadat government should be suspended.

Egyptian Vice President Hosny Mubarak and Israeli Defense Chief Ezer Weizman were due in Washington today, Mubarak with a note from Sadat to Carter, presumably about his meeting with Begin, and Weizman to discuss Israel's arms needs.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan went to Bonn Sunday for a three-day visit aimed at countering what Israel sees as a pro-Arab shift.

COMMENTS ON MEETING — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, left, gestures as he speaks with newsmen Sunday night after a meeting with United States envoy Robert Strauss in Tropical Storm Threat To U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical Storm Frederic was stalled over Cuba early today and hurricane forecasters quickly revised their advisories to tell the Florida Keys and southwest Florida to be especially watchful.

"The threat to the Keys was decreasing as the storm moved west-northwest," National Hurricane Center forecaster Miles Lawrence said Sunday night. "That's not the case anymore. That doesn't mean it's increasing — we're in a holding pattern. We just don't want to let the Keys off the hook."

Once Frederic, which has 50 mile an hour winds, clears the coast of Cuba "I see no reason why it couldn't intensify into a very respectable hurricane," Lawrence said. "It certainly wouldn't take too much for its winds to climb to 75 miles an hour."

Lawrence said his best guess is that Frederic's direction will shift toward the northwest "when and if it starts moving again. That would put it in the Gulf a little farther east than we've been saying."

"If it moves in a northwest direction, then this would give us a little more time," he said. "If it moves due north or east — a little less likely at this point — a watch could be necessary as early as (this) morning."

At 5 a.m. today, the storm center was estimated to be about 175 miles southwest of Key West and still over the south coast of extreme western Cuba, near latitude 22.5 north, longitude 83.0 west.

A slow northwest motion is likely and Frederic is expected to reach the extreme southeast Gulf of Mexico during the day," the advisory said.

"It has a fairly well-defined center — the winds are all drawn around a fairly small circle. But no eye. Only a well developed hurricane has an eye. When you see the eye you know it's really cooking. At its most efficient level," Lawrence said. "A tropical storm is a weaker stage of a hurricane. A storm doesn't quite have its act together as far as energetics goes."

Small craft from Boca Raton, Fla., southward and westward to the Dry Tortugas were advised to remain in port. Boats along southwest Florida were advised to use caution. Miami and Key West were already feeling some ancillary effects of Frederic Sunday night with showers and winds gusting to 25 mph.

Lawrence said Cuba may already have received 5 inches of rain, which could have produced flash floods. He said Cuba has not supplied rainfall amounts to the hurricane center.

Frederic became a tropical storm Aug. 30, grew to a hurricane, then dropped back to storm strength as it began a zig-zag course that dumped heavy rains on the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic before those Caribbean Islands could recover from the ravages of killer hurricane David a week earlier.

Frederic emerged from Hispaniola Thursday as a weak tropical depression in the Windward Passage between Haiti and Cuba and has lingered on or near the south coast of Cuba the past three days, bringing heavy rains to the island nation.

Meanwhile, the season's seventh tropical twister, hurricane Gloria remained far out in the Atlantic, about 900 miles southwest of the Azores. Forecasters said Gloria's 75 mph winds were no threat to any land point as it moved on a northwest course at about 12 mph.

New Plea On SPAG Rejected

(Continued From Page One) morning session, the commissioners heard County Treasurer Connie Nicholson renew her request for a 1980 salary increase more on the order of the 23-percent increase the commissioners have planned for themselves than the 8-percent raise planned for her.

Commissioner Jim Lancaster of Idalou said the 1980 salaries of all county employees should be re-evaluated, but found no immediate support from the other court members.

"It seems to me that that's what we've been doing the last 10 or 12 years," Brazell said.

Brazell added that the commissioners raised their own salaries to $22,000 for next year so that they would make the same as the county clerk and district clerk and that the percentage increase was not considered.

Commissioner Coy Biggs of Slaton made and got approval of a motion to give Mrs. Nicholson a full-time assistant next year instead of the half-time employee previously approved.

The court took no action on her request for $19,300 next year instead of the $16,900 planned for her now.

A discussion of a request by County Courts-at-Law Judges J.Q. Warrick and E.H. Boedeker and Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford for a county courts-at-law administrator was carried over into the afternoon.

Shaw said indicated he would support adding an administrator, who Montford said the judges said is necessary to deal with an increasing workload.

Airport Fee Hike Urged By Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional watchdog agency says airport delays could be reduced by charging planes an extra fee for takeoffs and landings during peak hours.

The General Accounting Office says air traffic delays in 1977 cost U.S. airlines over $800 million, delayed the traveling public more than $0 million hours.

While bad weather is partly to blame, the GAO says many delays occur during peak periods.

Texans Offer Home For Ex-Guide Dog

Wednesday to make his decision.

Roark, who lost his sight 10 years ago while serving with the Air Force in Vietnam, said he has been to 10 cities in his quest for Lottie's retirement home. He and Lottie visited last week in Tucson with the Richard Johnson family, the other finalist.

Roark, who was a basic trainee in San Antonio, came here from Las Vegas, where another prospective family was eliminated because they lived in a condominium without a large enough yard for the dog.

Roark's decision, he said, also will be based on whether he encounters any discrimination against his seeing-eye dog in the cities where the families live. Roark said he has encountered such discrimination in many cities.

The Pirtles have signed a notarized agreement in which they promise to adhere to an incredibly strict set of requirements.

Lottie must be groomed twice per day, walked at least a mile and a half each day and taken to the veterinarian every 90 days. She is to be fed a certain type of dogfood and vitamins and cannot be left alone for more than an hour.

And when she dies, Lottie must be returned to Georgia for burial in a cemetery plot Roark has already selected.

"I already love that dog," Mrs. Pirtle said as she waited for Roark's flight to arrive. "I've already gone through a lot to get her."

European Parliamentarians Air Support For SALT Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of European parliamentarians told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today that Western Europe's support for the SALT II treaty is genuine and not caused by any yielding to U.S. pressure.

"There can be no disputing the fact that Europe has overwhelmingly declared its clear support for the treaty," said Klaus G. de Vries, a member of the defense committees of both the State General of the Netherlands and the North Atlantic Assembly.

"To be sure, a few isolated, and not entirely unpredictable objections have been heard," de Vries said. "But they have been drowned in the flood tide of public European support for the treaty."

Senate opponents of the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms-limitation treaty have said that European backing of the pact is ineffectual at best and that many European leaders have strong reservations about it.

"It seems astonishing to have to respond to the suggestion that, at worst, we do not really mean what we say, or, at best, that what we have said should be discounted," de Vries said.

"To suggest the European governments would knowingly and deliberately prevaricate on an issue of such signal importance as strategic arms limitation is tantamount to declaring that there is no basis for trust in relations between the proud nations of the Atlantic Alliance," he said.

Paul Thyssen, a member of the Norwegian parliament and president of the North Atlantic Assembly, said it is difficult to believe that negotiations toward the mutual reduction of NATO and Warsaw Pact forces could prove successful if the Senate defeats SALT II.

He said rejection of the treaty would destroy public backing in Europe for the modernization of nuclear and conventional military forces.

"In my opinion the acceptance of SALT II would not produce a climate in Western Europe that would undermine military vigilance," Thyssen said.

"On the contrary, it would signify a willingness on the part of the Western world to go along with serious arms control measures and a reluctance to participate in an unrestrained arms race that could erode public support for maintaining an adequate defense posture," he said.

A much different view was voiced by another witness, Patrick Wall, a member of the British parliament and chairman of the North Atlantic Assembly's military committee, who stressed the growing military power of the Soviet Union.

Detroit Teachers Strike In Hassle Over Contract

By United Press International Teachers in Detroit, the nation's fifth largest city, struck today as the second week of the 1979 school year began with teacher strikes in 14 states, affecting at least 700,000 students.

Twelve thousand unionized teachers at Detroit's 303 schools rejected a proposed contract providing for a 25 percent pay hike over three years. School officials advised the district's 213,000 students to show up for class anyway.

"We gave them a terrific package," said school board member Joan Gaekle. "As far as I'm concerned, they can sit out until Christmas."

In Ohio, busing — not teacher strikes — was the issue. Thousands of elementary, junior and senior high school students in Cleveland began court-ordered busing without incident today under tight security and a threatened boycott by parents.

Contract talks continued into the morning at Eugene, Ore., where 1,200 teachers have been on strike since last Tuesday. A second week of extended vacation also began today for students in Daley City, Calif., where 13 striking teachers of the Jefferson Union High School District were arrested on charges they occupied a principal's office and refused to leave.

A teachers' strike has been settled in Lodi, Calif., and a settlement was reached Sunday night in a teachers' dispute that had threatened to close schools for 35,000 students in San Jose, Calif.

In New Jersey, strikes continued today in Paterson, Perth Amboy and Woodbridge, where teachers were notified they would be fired unless they show up for class today, said union president Raymond Peterson.

Strikes also continued at Union College and Fairleigh Dickinson, and teachers at Monmouth College threatened to walk out today unless negotiators agreed on a new contract.

Nationwide, some 700,000 students were affected by teacher strikes — most of them over salaries — in Alaska, California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Washington state.

In Michigan alone, strikes by more than 10,000 teachers idled 225,000 students in 27 districts. Detroit's last walkout by teachers in 1973 dragged on for 43 days.

"I don't think anyone wants a strike who has enough sense to know what it means," said Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers. "But the union has made its decision. We urge that parents not send their children to school, because the teachers won't be there."

School officials said the contract proposal rejected by teachers Friday would have cost taxpayers $54 million. The union said it voted down the proposal because being transferred to Dallas. Police said the man was driving north on Quirt Avenue at a high rate of speed when he apparently lost control of his 1977 Trans Am and struck a light pole in the center median.

A passenger in Bernal's car, Ray Travena, 19, of 218 David Ave. was detained and released at HSCH.

After the car's gas tank ignited on impact, the vehicle continued across the southbound traffic lane and came to rest west of the southbound lane, according to reports.

Firemen said the car was completely engulfed in flames when they arrived on the scene. They had the blaze under control within 16 minutes, reports show.

cause there was no cost-of-living allowance provided.

In Oklahoma City, the longest strike in the nation this fall comes to an end today with public school teachers returning to work after a three-week strike. The teachers voted late Sunday during a closed rally to end their walkout.

School Board president Paul English said he was not sure what effect the union's decision would have on a hearing, scheduled for today in federal court, on an application for a permanent injunction barring the board from recognizing the American Federation of Teachers.

In Illinois, 70 teachers in Highland Park were to vote today on a pact reached Saturday. Strikes continued in Springfield and four Chicago area districts, however.

A contract ratification vote also was scheduled today in Pennsylvania's South Butler County School District where teachers have been on strike two weeks. Strikes continue in 12 other districts and Delaware County Community College.

In Connecticut, a tentative agreement was hammered out early today in eleventh hour negotiations between the New Britain, Conn., Board of Education and 660 union teachers, narrowly averting a strike. The teachers, without a contract since school began Wednesday for 9,000 students, were to report to work today and vote on the tentative contract Wednesday.

In Southington, Conn., officials said they would close the town's two short-staffed junior high schools and high school today. Leaders of the union representing the 470 striking teachers were to appear in court to answer for defying an injunction against their job action.

Angry parents in Metairie, La., a New Orleans suburb, threatened to go to court themselves to shut down the 32 schools in the strikebound Jefferson Parish system. More than two-thirds of the 3,500 teachers, joined today by school bus drivers, are on the picket lines.

Public schools in Portsmouth, N.H., remained closed today as the town's first teacher strike continued. About 3-100 pupils stayed home.

Busing At Cleveland Gets Smooth Start

CLEVELAND (AP) — Schools opened peacefully in Cleveland today, with some first-day confusion but only minor demonstrations in a modest first step toward implementing court orders to end a history of segregated education.

George Mazzaro, business manager for Ohio's largest public school system, said at least 2,500 students had been bused, and that the figure might be later revised upwards to about 3,500.

He said plans were to place 4,500 to 5,000 students on the system's 123 buses this morning, some to spend an hour traveling each way from one end of the sprawling city of 600,000 to the other.

But routing mixups and lack of information left some buses with few, if any passengers. Police said there were no major incidents.

Anti-busing organizations were promoting a boycott of classes. But at a stay-out-of-school picnic sponsored by Citizens Opposed to Rearranging Kids, only 60 persons showed up late in the morning.

School Board President Jon E. Gallagher told reporters, "If we're successful, today will serve as an excellent example for people concerned about their children's safety."

School officials said that of high school seniors who reported for class today at two desegregated high schools, only one opted to be bused. Twelfth graders had the choice of graduating from their neighborhood school.

At John Marshall High School, in an affluent, white west side neighborhood, the first six buses from Cleveland's mostly black east side deposited a total of eight students after 45-minute trips. "I came because it's the law," said Kevin Lee. "We have to live with it. I've got to go to school. They're messing me up anyway."

Union Withdraws Santa Fe Pickets

CHICAGO (AP) — Workers striking the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad extended their picketing today to two other railroads, but the pickets were withdrawn within hours.

The United Transportation Union had set up picket lines against the Santa Fe Lines, one of the nation's largest railroads, and the Denver and Rio Grande railroad.

Santa Fe spokesman Bob Gehrt said the company talked with UTU representatives today and reached an agreement that the Santa Fe would not help the Rock Islands operate its trains during the strike. Gehrt said pickets were going down at some locations by late morning.

Meanwhile in Denver, a federal judge banned picketing of the Denver and Rio Grande. A formal hearing was set for Sept. 20.

Bergland May Inspect Farmland

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland personally may inspect West Texas farmland at the request of Rep. Kent Hance to view crops destroyed by a recent violent hailstorm, Hance said this morning.

Hance told the Avalanche-Journal that in addition to approaching Bergland with a request for reductions of outstanding loans owed by affected farmers, he asked Bergland to examine the damage himself.
"I would say there's a good chance he'll come," Hance said. Bergland is currently examining damage estimates and other information submitted by the Farm and Home Administration before making a decision to come, he added.

Nine counties in Hance's 19th Congressional District have been declared disaster areas as a result of the Aug. 24 hailstorm. Affected counties are Deaf Smith, Castro, Parmer, Lamb, Hockley, Terry, Gaines, Dawson and Martin. Hance predicted Bailey County — hit by a later storm — would be added to the list.

Hance has asked Bergland for a 20 percent reduction of outstanding loans for those farmers who suffered at least 70 percent loss of crops scheduled for harvest this fall. He's also asking for a deferment of at least three years on all loans to farmers with 50 percent or greater crop damage.

But Hance is not optimistic for the chances of existing loan reductions or deferment.

"I think the chances are slim with the tight budget this year," Hance said. "But we needed to try."

Aid beyond the usual disaster loans is pretty rare, Hance admitted. He remembered an across-the-board loan reduction of $5,000 for U.S. farmers in 1973 after severe storms inflicted massive damage to the nation's crops, but stressed that the circumstances leading to the reduction were unusual.

Official Issues Homicide Ruling

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack has ruled homicide in the death of an elderly Lubbock County man who sheriff's deputies said apparently committed suicide.
Blalack said he ruled in the early August death of Elias Rodriguez, 79, after receiving reports Friday from the Department of Public Safety in Austin.
The reports did not indicate Rodriguez had been holding a .22-caliber pistol, which was found next to his head when he was found lying in a pool of blood at his house Aug. 5 on FM 2641 about two miles south of Shallowater.
However, sheriff's Capt. Alton Hobbs said tests on the dead man were run too late for results to be conclusive. Rodriguez was estimated to have been dead about 15 hours before several of his relatives found him.

"There are too many contradictions in the (sheriff's deputy) report," Blalack said this morning. Blalack, who pronounced the man dead at the scene, said it also appeared to him that Rodriguez' body had been moved after he was shot.

He said he also questioned how the pistol found at the scene was lying on the left side of Rodriguez' head when the man suffered a single gunshot wound in the right temple.
Hobbs and other investigating deputies said they based their conclusion that the man killed himself partly on the fact that about $1,000 cash was found in the house and that the residence apparently had been locked from the inside when Rodriguez was shot.

"Our investigation showed it was suicide," Hobbs said. "There was nothing to indicate anything but suicide," he added.

The captain said, however, that if Blalack leaves his ruling as homicide the sheriff's department would submit the case to Criminal District Attorney John Montford's office and leave it up to Montford on whether to present it to a grand jury.

Obituaries

Glen D. Barrett

Services for Glen Dale Barrett, 56, of Midland are pending with Resthaven Funeral Home.

Barrett was pronounced dead at 5:30 p.m. Sunday by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack after the Midland man was found here in his car.

Blalack said Barrett had suffered an apparent heart attack while in his car about 500 yards south of Loop 289.

Barrett was believed to have a brother in Lubbock but further details were not available this morning.

Man Charged In Father's Death

A 26-year-old Lubbock County man was charged this morning with murder in connection with the Sunday shooting death of his father, Chester D. Burks, 63, of 1122 96th St.

Davey R. Burks of Route 9, Box 101, was charged about 11:30 a.m. today and the district attorney's office recommended bond at $25,000. The suspect was still in county jail near noon today.

Sheriff's deputies found the elder Burks lying in a pool of blood outside his residence about 6:55 p.m. Sunday. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack pronounced the man dead at the scene and ruled the death homicide — the county's 10th of the year.

Deputies said they arrested the dead man's son at the scene after seeing the suspect sitting on a couch about 15 feet from the body. A .30-caliber rifle also was confiscated at the house.

Preliminary reports indicate Burks suffered multiple gunshot wounds in the back, chest and hand. An autopsy report was to be performed today at St. Mary's Hospital.

Deputy Lonnie Bright said that an argument had erupted between the two men Saturday night over a car that Burks had accused the suspect of damaging.

Bright said the suspect was arrested for public intoxication Saturday and taken to jail.

Services for Burks are pending with Henderson-Singleton Funeral Directors.

Energy Audits Spot Potential Trouble Spots

By The Associated Press

If you can tell how hard the wind is blowing before you step out of your own front door, you are a prime candidate for one of the newest tools in the arsenal against costly fuel bills. It's a home energy audit.

The phrase is up-to-date terminology for a thorough inspection by qualified individuals of the efficiency of your home in terms of its use of energy.

A qualified professional who checks the heating system, the amount and condition of insulation in floors, walls and ceiling, the condition of windows and doors and the location and setting of the thermostat will probably be able to spot potential trouble spots and methods of saving energy.

New York utility companies, as a result of a law which went into effect last summer, are making home energy inspections for the nominal sum of $10. The companies follow up with a written report estimating the cost and probable savings to be realized by making the suggested improvements.

Utility companies are not the only ones in the business. A growing number of private firms also makes audits for varying fees. In some cases the estimates are free. The companies which do not charge for the survey, however, usually earn their money by doing the repairs they recommend. Consumers can protect themselves from possible conflicts of interest in such situations by obtaining a second audit as a comparison.

According to Mark Bruce, an energy specialist in a New York suburb, homes built less than 10 years ago probably do not require an energy audit. Owners of older, drafty homes can profit by having an expert in to evaluate their heating and insulation.

"People should realize, however, that energy surveys are exercises in statistics. It's very difficult to predict exact savings and I'd be suspicious if someone made extravagant claims for specific savings," said Bruce.

Before hiring someone, he suggests, consumers should ask for references and make sure to check those references.

"If in doubt, get another estimate," he said.

Among typical problems in homes is the absence of insulation where the frame of the house meets the foundation. A homeowner can correct this by blocking off the drafts with fiberglass blanket insulation. Cracks and chinks on the outside of the house should be caulked as well.

Leaving the fireplace chimney flue open is a sure way to raise heat bills. The heat produced by the heating system goes right up the chimney. Fires built in fireplaces, it has been shown, take more warm air out of circulation than they bring in by drawing the heated air out of the room to feed the fire.

To convert a fireplace to a heating plant, it's necessary to capture and recirculate the heat. Glass doors help. So do a variety of devices on the market which recirculate fireplace heat.

Rooms with cathedral ceilings are energy wasters, too. The heat rises to the top of the room where it doesn't do anybody any good. A partial solution is to install a fan to provide a downdraft to circulate the heat downward.

Although new energy-conservation products are coming on the market at the rate of at least five or six a week, the best way to start saving energy is by changing personal habits.

Lowering the thermostat an average of 1 degree produces a saving of about 3 percent on the utility bill. Switching to fluorescent lighting could save 25 percent of the electric-lighting bill. Installing thermostat-setback devices, and device which turn off the hot-water heater at night also produce savings.

Besides welcome reductions in energy bills, homeowners improving household energy efficiency between now and 1986 may gain some tax benefits.

A 15 percent tax credit on a maximum expenditure of $2,000 may be allowed by the Internal Revenue Service for a large variety of energy improvements such as insulation, adding storm or thermal windows, weatherstripping or installation of a variety of heat-saving devices.

Consult your local IRS office for details.

KNOW-HOW AND RIGHT EQUIPMENT — Jess Nichols, service manager at Don Crow Chevrolet, conveniently located off Loop 289 and Slide Road in southwest Lubbock, is shown with one of the scope units in the big service department in which the firm takes special pride.

Don Crow Chevrolet's Service Staff Stresses 'Preventative Maintenance'

The Service Department at Don Crow Chevrolet is so interested in seeing that customers drive safely, comfortably and economically that they put the emphasis on "preventative maintenance."

"Such maintenance is the key to long life of the vehicle," Service Manager Jess Nichols points out, adding that "of course we offer all the services of a better dealership."

From the service manager to the service advisors and technicians, the entire service staff at Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc., Slide Road at South Loop 289, takes pride in the ultimate in customer service.

All service work is guaranteed 90 days or 4,000 miles on all General Motors parts and accessories.

Fourteen technicians and three service advisors are on the job.

Areas of service within the department include new car make ready, used car make ready, quick service, heavy line service and the paint and body department.

Service advisors include Mrs. Jess (Eve) Nichols, Ron Scott and Andy Holt. Both Holt and Scott have completed GM training as service advisors, and Mrs. Nichols is certified from the Cadillac Motor Division.

The advisors, together with technicians, mark both practical experience and special training among their qualifications. Several are certified as master technicians.

Service Manager Nichols, a 25-year

Lubbock resident, recently has returned to Don Crow Chevrolet after a short absence (he was formerly with the firm for 7 1/2 years). He is especially well known in the Lubbock and Brownfield areas.

Special Convenience
 "Mini Maid" service is one of the benefits at Don Crow Chevrolet, with a Mini Maid picking up and delivering service customers as need is presented.

Rental cars are available, also at the firm.
 The Service Department of Don Crow Chevrolet is open five days weekly, from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., with 7:30 opening of the service drive to enable one "getting to work on time" when leaving the vehicle at Don Crow Chevrolet "where the customer signs our paychecks."

Jack Faulks Auctioneers Puts Emphasis On Complete Service

An auction can be the quickest, easiest way to liquidate business or personal property.

"The use of an auction service, such as Jack Faulks Auctioneers, phone 806-763-4919, can save you the hassle of trying to sell your business inventory, estate, farm equipment or other items on the open market.

"Besides assuring the highest market price through competitive bidding, the auctioneer also assumes the responsibilities of advertising the sale, all bookkeeping and check and tax collection."

Follows Rules
 Jack Faulks is bonded and licensed by the State of Texas and adheres to the rules and regulations set forth for auctioneers by the Department of Labor Standards.

An escrow account, in which the receipts of a sale are deposited so that they remain separate from the auctioneer's personal funds, is another service Jack Faulks provides his customers.

Not all sales at public auction are exempt from state and city sales taxes, therefore an auctioneer must have an understanding of sales tax laws and hold a sales tax number issued by the Office of the State comptroller of Texas. A failure on the part of the auctioneer in this regard can mean the customer could, in some instances, become liable for the uncollected tax.

Jack Faulk's clerking and cashiering personnel are familiar with all sales tax laws so that they may deal with persons holding exemption certificates or resale permits. They are also experienced in making the proper reports to the State.

Though a written contract is not necessary, Jack Faulks Auctioneers feel both parties should be fully aware of the obligations of both sides in the auction transaction.

Added Service
 Jack Faulks Auctioneers also take the responsibility of collecting all checks from buyers he brings to the sale through advertising.

The process of settling the auction should only take a short period of time. Because an auctioneer ordinarily does accept checks, it will take a short time for them to go through normal banking channels so settlement of the day of the sale is not possible.

Jack Faulks is a professional auctioneer who has spent a great deal of time building a good financial reputation and good will with former customers. A new customer or prospective customer who is entrusting his assets to Faulks has a right to check references.

Professional System
 Jack Faulks Auctioneers boasts a reliable and professional clerking and cashiering system. Because the pace of an auction is fast and furious, Faulks employs a consistent system to keep up with the price and buyer of each item.

Faulks also maintains a complete file on each auction for reference by the seller if the need arises in the future.

Advertising Stressed
 The Print Shoppe, a subsidiary of Jack Faulks Auctioneers, handles all brochures, and advertising. The able staff has an excellent knowledge of design, printing and all forms of media advertising.

All of the advertising, including brochures and catalogues, for Jack Faulks Auctioneers sales is handled through the Print Shoppe. The advertising department maintains a file of all area papers and many larger dailies throughout the state.

A continuously growing mailing list of several hundred proven buyers is also maintained by the Print Shoppe for the customers of Jack Faulks Auctioneers. The list is completely updated at the beginning of each year.

Besides handling advertising and printing for the auction service, the Print Shoppe accepts outside commercial work and welcomes all inquiries.

Jack Faulks Auctioneers is a full-time professional auctioneering firm and is active member of the State and National Auctioneers Associations.

Appraisals
 Appraisals for customers or potential customers is just another service of the firm. Over the past three years, their business liquidation appraisals have proven a high degree of accuracy.

While real estate is not normally sold in this area at public auction, it is becoming popular in other areas of the United States. Jack Faulks, by holding a real estates broker's license, can and has sold farm and ranch land for more than the original asking price in this area.

Jack Faulks handles many sales for the Small Business Administration and Bankruptcy Courts. Their business is liquidation and appraisal of all types of merchandise, including real estate.

All inquiries are held in strictest confidence. For more information contact Jack Faulks Auctioneers at 806-763-4919 or write P.O. Box 5701, Lubbock, Texas, 79417.

CONVERTIBLE TOPS SUN ROOFS CARPETS

SURELY, ULTIMATE IN ROOF CONCEPTS — Helen Jones, outside salesman at Mr. T-Top, graphically demonstrates the available sporting T-Tops that preserve the graceful lines of the auto, yet allowing a maximum roof opening.

Today's Auto Deserves Beauty, Utility Provided By Mr. T-Top

"Invite the sky into your car...Mr. T-Top at 2507 Texas Ave. makes it so easy!"

Yes, for T-Tops, vinyl tops, even windshields and complete upholstery jobs and materials, one need know no other firm than Mr. T-Top and related enterprises at 2507 Texas, phone 747-8764, where Steve Varga and staff are on hand for really specialized service.

Quality is guaranteed; in fact, Steve Varga guarantees everything for a full year, a really unique concept in the trim and related businesses.

Varga, as owner, founder and operator of the "modern concept" business at 2507 Texas Ave., maintains a most capable staff. T-Tops can be installed on most vehicles (models '71 and later) and sunroofs can be put on almost any car.

Steve is on the job to personally guard the reputation of craftsmanship and integrity the firm has enjoyed.

Through Dealers, Too
T-Tops not only are available at the Texas Avenue headquarters, but also are available through many dealers, including Gene Messer Ford, Modern Chevrolet, Frank Brown Pontiac, Don Crow Chevrolet, and more.

With a lot of "after-market" products on hand, together with parts, Mr. T-Top is open six days a week, stocking digital clocks and other items. Both Master Charge and Visa use is welcomed.

It is a factory-type product and factory-type job one can expect at Mr. T-Top. These roofs have become a tradition in style and craftsmanship, unparalleled in looks and technology. So why wait? Let

Mr. T-Top, the professionals, install the ultimate roof concept in your own vehicle.

Become a part of your driving environment in a way you've always wanted, invited the sky into your car, we'll make it possible, you'll thrill at discovering that being face to face with the sky is the mere pull of a lever away!

Also check with Steve Varga for electric sunroof repairs, for what Varga emphasizes is the largest stock of auto upholstery in town, and for quality service in any installation. Watch these pages for the ads of Varga enterprises, and for further stories pinpointing services and products that can make driving more pleasant for you, your family and friends. It could be a whole new world of motoring enjoyment that awaits!

Water Conditioning, Equipment Needs Given Full Lellem Welch Attention

Lellem Welch, Inc., at 1401 Ave. J, sells and services Bruner water conditioning equipment for home, commercial use and industrial situations.

The Lellem Welch firm has scads of other products and services, but its message this week is devoted to tips on water conditioners, tips that can be a very real benefit to you as a resident of Lubbock and area.

"Water isn't always what one expects! Sometimes it is hard, soft, tastes bad or is even tasteless. But no matter the source, water usually needs some treatment to be the kind of water one needs for all the uses you will put it to."

"City water is invariably safe for drinking purposes, but in order to keep water rates low, and because over 80 per cent of city water is used for sprinkling lawns, flushing toilets, fighting fires, washing cars, and industrial use, very few communities make it of the highest quality for drinking. Improving water can be done simply and economically in the home or at the point where it is used, and this is where the quality products and services from Lellem Welch can be of key benefit."

Hard Water Damaging
It is reasonably simple to detect hard water. Soap doesn't lather, or scantly so, if any. It combines with water's hardness minerals to form a curd that leaves a scummy deposit on surfaces, hair or clothing. When water is heated, minerals deposit as a rock-like scale. It may clog plumbing pipes, heaters, shower heads and can interfere with the operation of water-using appliances.

"To find out how hard your tap water really is, check with Lellem Welch. The folks there can tell you its condition. In addition, obtain a comparative analysis of the water from your local health department to ascertain the need of a water softener when private wells are concerned."

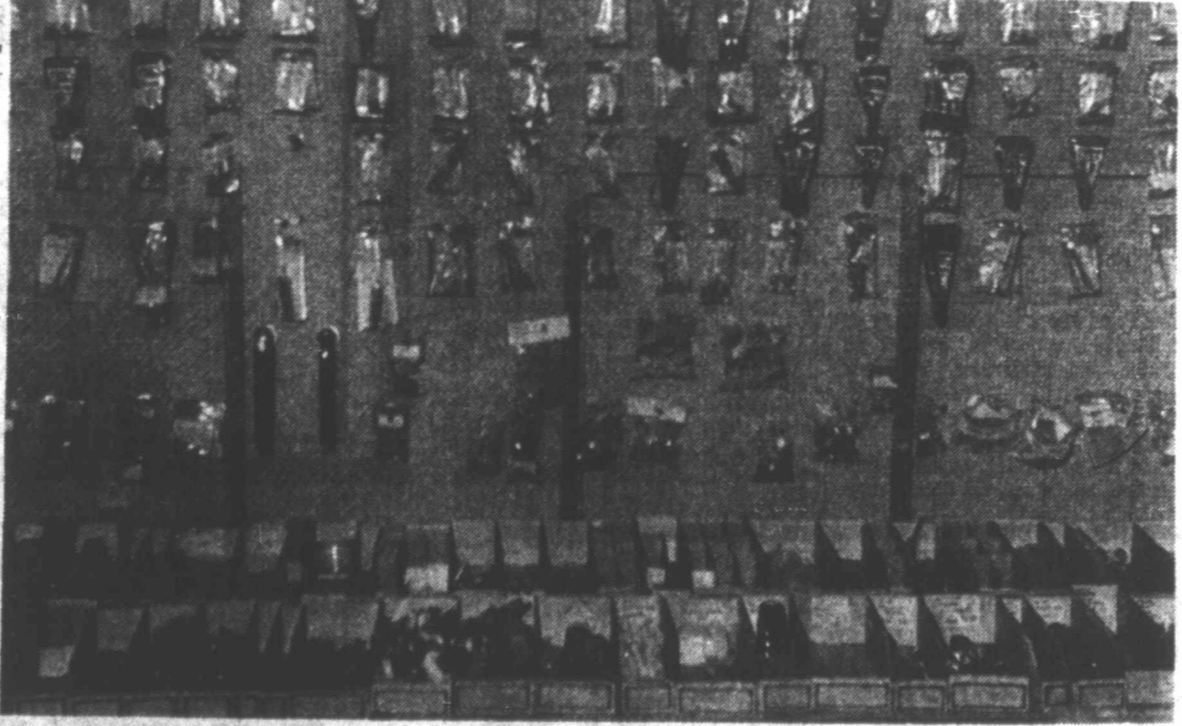

Water hardness can be measured as grains per gallon (gpg).

Lubbock water is between 22-30 grains per gallon, Welch reports. GPG less than 1.0 is considered soft water; and 10.5 and over is very hard.

Buying Tips Given
Water is softened by the use of an appliance that removes sediment by filtration, and invisible dissolved hardness by a process called ion exchange. The ion exchange process substitutes sodium ions for the calcium ions present in hard water. Because this increases the sodium content of the water, users of a low-salt diet should be informed of this fact, as a high salt content in the soft water can be hazardous to some people, Welch points out.

Lellem Welch is glad to tell one what to look for when buying a water conditioner, a selection actually a bit more involved than when buying the average appliance. No single type of water conditioning appliance will cure all water problems. The water should be sampled and analyzed to determine if water conditioning equipment is needed, as example. And the size of unit also is determined by amount of water consumption.

Then... buy from a reputable dealer. Lellem Welch at 1401 Ave. J. is such a firm.

National Fire Extinguisher Cited For Products, Services

National Fire Extinguisher Co., Inc., at 3407 Ave. A, phone 765-6532, can fill all your fire extinguisher needs. A master warehouse and distributor of quality portable fire extinguishers, the firm is owned and actively managed by the husband-wife team of Furd and Betty Taylor, assisted by an experience, well-trained and customer oriented staff. Take a good staff, a good product and service, and a genuine desire to serve best, and there you have a firm worth turning to in this instance the National Fire Extinguisher Co., affording 24-hour service.

"Folks You Know"
In operation since back in 1963, the firm has only recently come under ownership of the Taylors. Furd Taylor is a Texas Tech graduate of '59 and is certified as a safety professional (earned by examination) by the Insurance Board of Texas. Mrs. Taylor, the former Betty Meyers, is a lifelong resident of Lubbock and is a graduate of Cooper High School.

Jerry Frasier is shop manager, with Eddie Cox in shop and service; and Ron Childers and Joe Threatt are in sales and service. All are licensed and experienced service men.

Two lines dominate the stock of the firm... the General fire extinguishers (since 1903) and the Badger-Powhatan lines, both for home and business.

Last a Lifetime
All extinguishers sold by National Fire Extinguisher are best quality, all fully rechargeable, and being all-metal products, they last a lifetime.

Sales and service, retail and wholesale, are provided. The Lubbock firm also sells through dealers in eastern New Mexico and throughout the south plains. Routemen ply the entire area.

A really good stock of fire extinguishers is kept in stock; the shop is fully equipped; and the firm does all its own work, never sending extinguishers elsewhere for repairs.

"See why we say that National Fire Extinguisher can fill all your fire extinguisher needs!"
Whether selection is from a General (think of fire before it starts) unit, or one from Badger-Powhatan (the protection people), assurance of a quality, long-lasting unit is the picture. General is the only manufacturer in North America with a complete line of portable fire extinguishers, and has long been recognized as a leader, the knowledgeable management at the National Fire Extinguisher firm emphasizes. General manufactures all its vital component parts: valves, shells, hose assemblies, powder and many other parts. This integration assures the buyer of a quality product manufactured under strict control.

"For the best in portable fire protection equipment, depend upon the home-owned National Fire Extinguisher Co., Inc., 3407 Ave. A, phone 765-6532, in Lubbock."

Economical Quality, Fashion, Variety Marking Like-Nu Shop

"Welcome to the Like-Nu Shop, 1918 Ave. Q, one of Lubbock's most unusual clothing shops. Clothing is handled on a consignment basis, and people who have clothing or accessory items that they no longer use or wear are invited to bring their items. The policy of the shop specifies only clothing of good quality, with no stains, tears, missing buttons or hems out. Also, up-to-date styles are preferred. The women's clothing categories include street-length dresses, long dresses, blouses, slacks, jumpsuits, pantsuits, skirts, jeans and coveralls. Men's clothing is divided into shirts, slacks, sport coats and suits. Men's accessories such as ties also are available. Even Shoes The Like-Nu Shop is now taking shoes in all sizes, too. New costume jewelry is available, and some wedding dresses are presently in stock. Accessories stocked include handbags, gloves, hose for young girls, scarves, belts and knitted caps. Some gloves are in stock for children at this time. (Some of these things will come in especially handy for this winter. Coats and sweaters also are coming in all the time now.) The Like-Nu Shop has moved from another Lubbock location to its present 1918 Ave. Q shop where parking is available on both north and south side of the building. Super-Bargain Rack The Like-Nu Shop has one rack that always has items priced at one-half or less. Toward the end of each 90-day consignment period, each item left for sale will be marked one-half price for quick sale. "At today's clothing prices, the entire family can expect considerable savings by shopping the Like-Nu Shop." Martha Morris, manager of the shop,

LIKE-NU NO IDLE CLAIM — New-season budget-considering consignment wear is shown here by manager Martha Morris at the Like-Nu Shop where a special September discount offer is offered and outlined in the accompanying story.

FOR HAIR CARE AT SENSIBLE PRICE — Shown at Bernice's Hair Fashions, near Methodist Hospital, are staff members (standing) Barbara Huffman, manager; and Judy Tate and Judy Garcia; with Helen Cross seated. Each has a record of top training, achievement and expertise.

Bernice's Hair Fashions Reveals One-Week Offer, Other Benefits

Bernice's Hair Fashions, 2107 Knox-ville Ave., has a most attractive back-to-school offer.

After the long, hot summer sun, your hair needs to be conditioned. Right? So during this week only, at Bernice's one will receive a free conditioner with a hair cut and set at the regular low price for which the popular salon is known.

Near Methodist Hospital, the salon is especially convenient to hospital-related personnel, and "walk ins" are welcome. Special attention is called to the all-new Zotos texture foam perm (go foam, its fabulous!).

For Men, Too

The friendly staff is schooled and most adept in all the new hairstyles and latest methods, and one could do well to form the habit of depending upon Bernice's, phone 795-2604. Early and late appointments can be arranged.

Men are welcome at the shop, too, with expert hair care assured.

Barbara Huffman, a Jessie Lee graduate well recognized in the trade and by customers who appreciate quality in beauty and hair care, is manager. Barbara has been with Bernice's for over 15 years.

Bernice Sturdivant still is owner of the shop. Barbara is assisted by an able staff including Helen Cross, Judy Tate and Judy Garcia.

Helen is a graduate of Mickie's Beauty Academy, and though most proficient in all the beauty services, she specializes in sculptured nails, hair straighteners and men's hair services. She presently is offering a back-to-school look on a new luster curl for controlled curly look, also a new ERA gel hair relaxer.

Both Judy Garcia and Judy Tate are Jessie Lee graduates and render a really superior beauty service. With these operators, one can be sure of expertise and friendly attention.

Stylish, Yet Inexpensive Whether long or short hair styles are the situation, or if old or new style cuts are preferred, Bernice's can be a sensible solution... for style without exorbitant expense.

Bernice's is open six days a week. Remember the location, one-half block south of Methodist Hospital at 2107 Knoxville Ave., phone 795-2604, a location especially appreciated by residents of that area and by hospital personnel, visitors, etc.

"The best of beauty care is just as near as Bernice's Hair Fashions in Lubbock, where the coffeehop always is on and a friendly, casual atmosphere prevails.

"And don't forget this week's special offer."

Selection, Expanded Stock Highlight Storkie's First-Year Serving Region

Storkie's Maternity and Baby Shop, in the Family Park Shopping Center at 34th & H, is one year old, and owner Faye Spoth says "thank you for your patronage during this first year of operation."

Since the Sept. 1, 1978, opening, Storkie's has expanded its maternity and baby departments considerably.

Attention is directed to current advantages at Storkie's (next door to Anthony's in Family Park):

"Working girls, we're listening at Storkie's! We have some sharp looking dresses, pant suits and tops arriving. You want to look smart on the job, and marketing was done recently with you in mind. Merchandise is arriving daily."

Blue Jeans

Storkie's has a fantastic selection of blue jeans including designer jeans, straight legs, X-long jeans, flares and the new jeans as featured in Glamour magazine, the jean designed to be worn not only during your pregnancy but afterward as well. This is a real saving, and jeans are priced from $9.50 to $19.50.

There are many dress pants, colors and sizes to supplement the wardrobe.

Formal selections for those special occasions, such as pretty long dresses and party pant suits, always are available.

Storkie's is now carrying a new underwire nursing bra as well as our regular stock of bras, nursing gowns, robes, nursing smock top and related items.

"If this is your first pregnancy and you need information and help in selecting your wardrobe or if you need questions answered in the nursing department, please feel free to come in and chat. Faye will be delighted to help answer your questions or help you coordinate a wardrobe."

Convenient layaway, Visa and Master Charge purchases are available.

Storkie's has sizes 4 to 24 in maternity wear, taking care of the small girl, the large person and those in between. The Baby Department is growing and marks apparel for infant boys 0-24 months and girls 0-4T with fuzzy dresses and long dresses for toddler girls.

There is plenty of parking, and Family Park is a center where leisure shopping is the norm. You'll enjoy shopping at Storkie's, and Faye is available to help in any way she can.

"Remember, for maternity needs, baby and toddler girls selections, Christening sets for boys and girls, shower and baby gifts, Storkie's Maternity & Baby Shop is the place. It has been stated over and over again that Storkie's not only has the best selection in West Texas, but the best prices; you be the judge. See you at Storkie's, open 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, phone 747-8331, at 34th and H."

McLaughlin Marks Tenth Year Serving Area At Auto Corral

It is Tenth Anniversary time for Jerry D. McLaughlin at the Auto Corral, 2811 Texas Ave. in Lubbock. A decade in one location, with ever-increasing business, speaks well of any firm, and Jerry believes the formula is in treating folks right, adhering to an honorable code of ethics, providing the right product and at the right price.

On occasion of the anniversary, owner Jerry McLaughlin and his wife, Penny, invite old customers to come by, together with new ones.

"There's always a cup of coffee or a Coke waiting for you at The Auto Corral. Its just that kind of place . . . friendly and appreciative of friends and customers."

As a bit of history, it can be pointed out that Jerry McLaughlin is no newcomer in the business or in Lubbock. He marks 21 years in the auto field here, and is a lifelong Lubbock resident. He is a '57 graduate of Lubbock High School where he lettered in football, playing with the Westerners three years, and he attended Texas Tech for three more years.

"It always is a pleasure to visit with old friends and customers," Jerry emphasizes, "and my wife and I especially want you to come by this month during our anniversary."

"Honesty, integrity and dependability" are characteristics McLaughlin likes to use and prove in describing his business concept.

Customer Comes First

"Personal service and a meaningful guarantee has resulted in a situation of absolutely no customer relations problems," he adds. "In fact, some of my customers have been repeat buyers, time and again, some trading with me since I first was in business."

The Auto Corral sells both retail and wholesale, specializing in late model used cars, with some new cars also on the lot. Jerry can secure any make new car and welcomes the opportunity of finding one's preference.

McLaughlin is a member of the Lubbock Independent Auto Dealers Association, of the Texas organization of which he is a director, and a member of NADA, also.

The Auto Corral, easy to find at 2811 Texas Ave., is open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, closing at an earlier 3 p.m. on Saturday.

One-stop shopping is enabled for the auto buyer at The Auto Corral, with late model intermediates and pickups dominating the stock. Bank-rate financing, insurance arrangements and all can be transacted right at the firm's offices.

"I can honestly say we've had the very best year yet at The Auto Corral," Jerry McLaughlin reports, "and our low overhead helps us continue selling for less."

"May we have the pleasure of your visits, consideration and trade? It has been a pleasure serving many of you for a decade in this location, and some even longer in my other associations. We want to make new friends, too, so come on down!"

Mahon Martinizing Cleaners' Multiple Services Itemized

"Did you realize that at any of the Mahon Martinizing Cleaners in Lubbock cleaning brought in before 11 a.m. Saturdays can be picked up the same day before closing at 3 p.m.?"

One likely has recognized that 1-day cleaning service is available throughout the week, but the added Saturday convenience may not have been realized . . . and all this considerate service is at no extra charge.

In Lubbock there is a Mahon Martinizing Cleaners easily accessible to you, no matter your Lubbock address.

The same great services are available at each of the plants . . . at 49th Street and Knoxville Avenue, at 3322 83rd St. (one block east of Indiana on 83rd) or at the 30th & Slide unit.

Students Welcomed

College students and other students alike can appreciate this convenience, together with other attributes of these better cleaners. Students, just as traveling men, etc., often can find the quick service a lifesaver. (Ask about quick-service deadlines other than the specified Saturday hours listed above.)

With back-to-school demands on the wardrobe, with a change of seasons and with new materials popular this year, expert cleaning attention at this time is advised. Summer wear should be cleaned before storing for the winter. And there are lots of wools this year; these deserve no less than the gentleness and other advantages of Valene dry-cleaning. (If you have a problem garment, ask your cleaner to Valene!)

Pillow Cleaning

Check other Mahon Martinizing advantages:

Pillow cleaning is a very important and specialized service, whether foam rubber or leather bed pillows.

In the pillow cleaning process, all feathers are removed from ticking and the contents are individually sanitized. Refuffed and clean, they are put into new ticking, returned soft and buoyant as new.

Choices Available

Ozone gas is utilized in deodorizing the feathers. New ticking plus added feathers as desired are part of the finished operation. (You get your own feathers back, with added ones as asked.) A choice of ticking in coloring and patterns is available, with all guaranteed fast color 100 per cent new cotton that is leather-proof and down-proof.

Other Mahon Martinizing advantages:

Waterproofing is available, great for raincoats, jeans, etc.

Complete alteration service is afforded.

Pockets and half pockets are available, too, as are the two-way reversible zippers. Unusual lengths and several colors of zippers are kept in stock.

Drapery cleaning is a specialty. There is Steamex rental for carpet cleaning.

Each Martinizing facility here serves as a pick-up station for laundry, too.

Drive-in window service is afforded at each of the locations.

With the Lubbock facilities owned by Gordon Mahon, each is managed and manned by capable, respected personnel. Sam Caddell is manager of the Knoxville location; Johnnie Bates heads the Slide Road unit, and Scott Rickman is manager of the newest facility, at 3322 83rd St.

Special Capabilities

For cleaning of suedes, bonded fabrics, knits, most plastics, fur-lined and trimmed garments, leather and even jeweled garments and pile coats, one can entrust the job with confidence to the nearest Mahon Martinizing Cleaners!

Century 21 Cross-Town Real Estate
Simplifies Home Search, Transaction

"Call Century 21 Cross-Town Real Estate for all your real estate needs; it is just that simple!"

The number: 792-4868; the location: 3416 Knoxville Ave.

Established five years ago, Century 21 Cross-Town Real Estate is headed by Terry Menefee, owner and broker, who marks 14 years real estate experience in Lubbock.

Real estate is the only business of the firm, with all personnel concentrating their efforts in this one field of service.

Residential properties are the specialty of the company, but a commercial department also is part of the business, and customers find that whatever the real estate need, Century 21 Cross-Town is of exceptional service.

New Homes Included

Homes are available in all price ranges, with new homes in the southwest Lubbock Meadows Addition included.

Every assistance possible is given the customer in purchase and sales, re-location and all. Help is given in financing arrangements.

The firm is a member of Multiple Listing Service (MLS), and nationwide referral service is enabled through the valuable Century 21 affiliation.

Terry Menefee is a member of the Lubbock Board of Realtors, a past member of that group's board of directors, past president of the Women's Council of the Lubbock Board of Realtors, and past president of the Century 21 Brokers Council in Lubbock.

The eight-person sales staff of Century 21 Cross-Town Real Estate is headed by Jim Smith, sales manager who has lived in Lubbock throughout his adult life.

Smith is especially adept and helpful in real estate counseling and is a certified instructor with the Southwest College of Real Estate.

Professional assistance that still is the most friendly imaginable, is the assured situation at Century 21 Cross-Town Real Estate. Newcomers to Lubbock and area find out what a lot of longtime residents already know... that a special welcome and genuine interest in customer satisfaction comes first at Century 21 Cross-Town Real Estate, 3416 Knoxville, phone 792-4868.

Gunther Piano Studios Reveals Fall
Pre-School Openings Still Available

There's good news from Gunther Piano Studios, 4819 58th St., phone 793-1672, a fantastic studio by any measure:

There still are openings in the exciting Fall '79 semester for pre-school piano students, with accommodations for several more, especially in the 4 and 5-year-old groups. (The Gunther Studio welcomes piano students age 4 through adults, but most classes other than the pre-school group have been filled to capacity.)

Gunther Studios are located across the street from Williams Elementary School, just three blocks east of South Plains Mall, easy to find and easy to reach.

Bonnie Apple Gunther, a Texas Tech graduate of '64, an area native (from Monahan) is more recently from Urbana, Ill., where she was assistant professor of music at the University of Illinois. As a special consultant to the national education offices of Baldwin and Wurlitzer Companies, Mrs. Gunther has conducted workshops and seminars in class piano at universities and public schools throughout the nation. She often is featured as a special clinician on national and state convention programs.

The group instruction in which she is specializing here is most innovative.

Electrical pianos dominate the big studio, and during piano practice, Mrs. Gunther and the children wear headphones. Switches on the piano enable the students to tune in only on their own and the teacher's piano or to listen to the entire class. The instructor can tune in or talk to any of the students when desired, and the pianos can be turned to full sound or muted. Sounding boards are replaced by an electronic device.

Fun exercises, such as a giant keyboard to serve as "home base" in a catching game, are part of the comprehensive programs arranged at the Gunther Studio.

Operating on theory that children learn best when they learn with others, in a lab atmosphere and with finest lab facilities, the students grouped by age level acquire such important skills as solo performance, sight reading, transposition, harmonization and improvisation.

In addition to learning to play the piano, students learn here about music in general through theory study, rhythm activities and critical listening.

It is a real delight to be included in studies at the Gunther Piano Studios! Classes are available for beginners, intermediate and advanced. Special exciting pre-school classes for 4 and 5-year-old children are conducted.

Morning and afternoon classes are available, and each involve four to six students.

Pre-schoolers come for one hour, twice a week. All other classes meet once a week for an hour and 15 minutes.

Bonnie Gunther is a member of the Lubbock Music Teachers Association, Texas Group Piano Teachers, and Music Teachers National Association. She has co-authored a series of studies used in public school labs and is now in process of authoring another.

Bonnie enjoys teaching. "It is fun," she emphasizes "to introduce and assist the student to new achievements and joys", and a visit to the studio will correctly convey that the student... from age 4 to even those above 70... share in the pleasure. It is a different kind of studio, a fun laboratory, an innovative gateway to new horizons.

Beck's Warp 'n Weave Slates Workshops, Classes For Fall

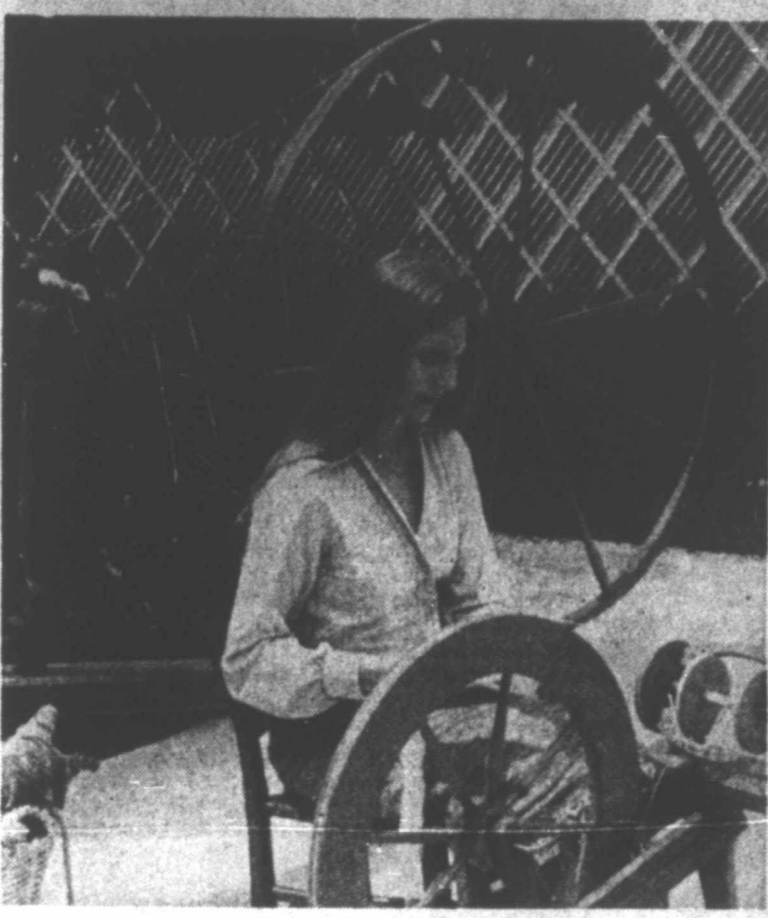

Beck's Warp 'n Weave, at 3021 34th St., phone 799-0151, has done it again! A really exciting schedule of Fall classes and workshops has been arranged, and of immediate special interest is the Joan Holborn Beginning Spinning Workshop, for two days, Sept. 29-30.

Involved will be preparing of the fleece, cleaning and then spinning of the fleece.

Joan is from Hobbs, N.M., and her previous instruction here proved most, most popular. A Michigan native, she has taught spinning, natural dyeing and weaving for three years in Roswell (N.M.) where she has been president of the Roswell Fibercraft Guild before recently returning to Hobbs. She has held numerous one-person shows and is now working on a commission of several pieces for Eastern New Mexico Medical Center in Roswell.

(Advance registration and arrangements are necessary for this workshop, as for others at Warp 'n Weave, due to the enrollment limits and the popularity of the classes. The Joan Holborn Workshop fee is only $29. For full details on class content, supplies, costs, etc., Warp 'n Weave should be contacted at earliest possible date, phone 799-0151, at 3021 34th St.

The above workshop is just another of the special events at the shop that not only has a tremendous selection of yarns and supplies for the fiber arts, but that prides in an instruction schedule "second to none."

JOAN HOLBORN WORKSHOP NEAR — Registration is now being taken at Warp 'n Weave for the Sept. 29-30 Beginning Spinning workshop conducted by Joan Holborn, popular New Mexico instructor and weaver of note. Numerous classes and other workshops are announced by Beck's Warp 'n Weave.

New Kits
 In brief, for anyone interested in tating, crochet work, knitting and numerous other fiber projects, Beck's Warp 'n Weave has a most intriguing presentation of goods and services.

Punchwork kits are available at this time both miniature and regular rotary punch, great for apparel or wall hangings.

And the shop has the finest textured and handspun yarns ever for knitting, crochet, weaving and all.

Classes Listed
 A Harness Loom class, under direction of the firm's owner, Tom Beck, will be conducted on Tuesdays, from Sept. 18 to Oct. 23, from 6:30 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Beginning Frame Loom classes, on Thursdays, Sept. 20 - Oct. 11, will be at the same evening hours on announced dates, and taught by Nancy Beck.

Nancy also will teach Coiled Basketry on Thursdays, Oct. 18-Nov. 8, in the evening.

Beginning Tating, by Betty Bradford, begins Sept. 20 for Thursday classes 7-9 p.m., and on Tuesday, Oct. 30 for a 1:30 p.m. schedule.

Advanced Tating, also by Betty Bradford, will be on Tuesdays, Oct. 9-23, in evenings.

Mark Hammack, with a Texas Tech degree in Interior Design will conduct a new Needlepunch Design with Rotary Needlepunch class, Tuesdays, Oct. 30 - Nov. 20, from 6:30 p.m. until 9 p.m.

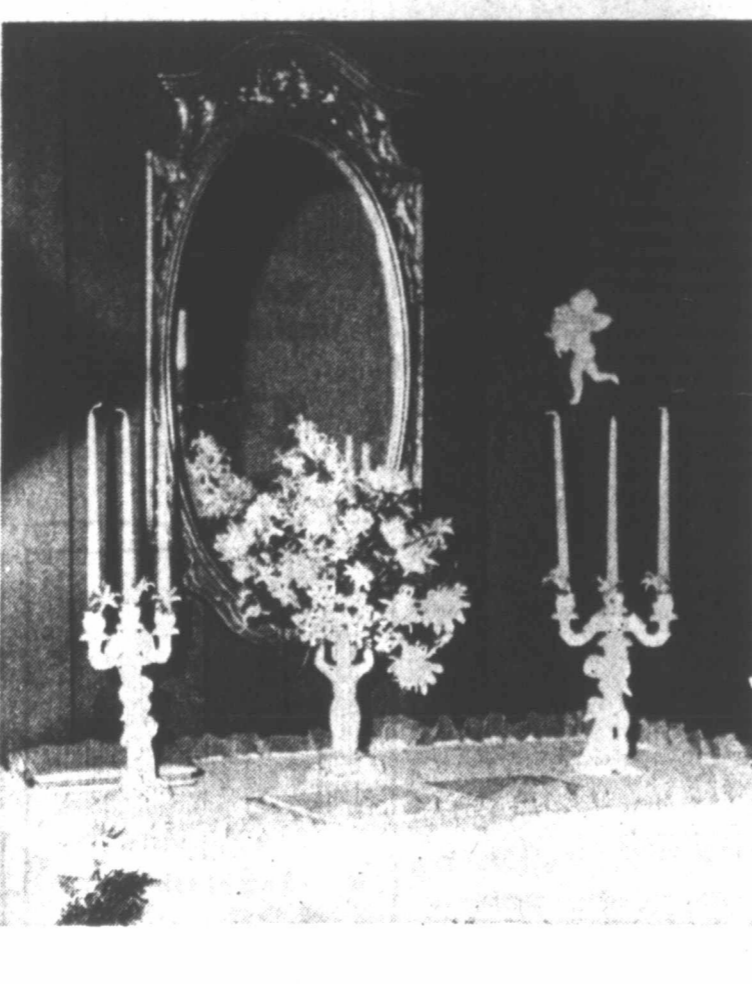

Cardweaving by Virginia Riggs is scheduled Saturdays, Sept. 15 and 22, from 1:30 p.m. until 4:30 p.m., and again Nov. 3 and 10.

Later workshops include Advanced Basketry by Lynn Haney on Oct. 27, and 28; Color (Harness Loom), Nov. 17, 18, by Charlotte Funk.

One must come in to the attractive and "different" 3021 34th Street store to fully comprehend the incredible supply provided in weaving and related fields. Customers from throughout the Southwest have expressed amazement at the shop's large but selective offering.

Discover how Warp 'n Weave is really "something special," with distinct appeal to beginner, advanced weaving enthusiast, or for just anyone who appreciates beautiful yarns and the other products brought to the areas by Warp 'n Weave.

Business & Industrial Review

HUNTERS' HEADQUARTERS — James Oswald of Woolco points out how a fine selection of firearms is stocked from manufacturers such as Mossberg, Remington, Springfield Winchester and Ruger. A variety in gauges and calibers is provided to meet one's needs. For the beginner, a .410 single shot Stevens might be the thing, and Woolco priced at just $49.99; or the Mossberg 600 AKTV 12 ga. pump shotgun with vent rib, at $129.99. In rifles there is the Marlin .783 22 mag rifle at $64.99, or model 336C, 30-30 lever action rifle at $129.99. 'Should we conceivably not have your needs, we can special order for you', is the pledge in the Woolco sporting goods department.

EARLY BIRD SPECIAL SEEN AS FANTASTIC VALUE — Between 9:30 a.m. and 10 a.m., today and Tuesday at Woolco, one may purchase shredded foam packets (as pictured) at the low price of 3 for $1, instead of regular $1.17 price. Limit is three per customer at the special low price. Shredded foam is ideal for toy and decorative pillow stuffing, and is non-allergenic.

FISHER VALUES EMPHASIZED — The Fisher line of audio component systems is one of the effective ways Woolco proves it wants to be your favorite store! Three different packages are featured. The first consists of receiver, turntable and speakers which if bought separately would cost $529.80; but Woolco's low price is just $299.95 which means a saving to you of $229.85! The middle unit consists of receiver with graphic equalizer, record changer and speakers which if purchased separately would cost $589.80, but Woolco's low price is a much lesser $399.95! Our top-of-the-line with receiver, also with graphic equalizer, 45 watt RMS per channel, professional belt driven turntable and speakers with 10-in. woofer, 2-in. tweeter, 3-in. mid-range driver, which if bought separately would run $1,019.80. Woolco's low price is $649.95, saving you over $369! And Woolco has some nice stereo cabinets for these units, selling for only $119.95.

JFK JR. AT THE HELM — John F. Kennedy Jr., son of the late president, spends a late summer day at the helm of a small power boat, the "Sea Craft," off the shore near his home here in Hyannisport, Mass., Sunday. Today John registered as a freshman at Brown University in Providence, R.I. (AP Laserphoto).

Suspect Held In Club Incident

Police entered a Fourth Street club shortly after 11 p.m. Sunday and found three persons suffering from minor cuts and the man who allegedly did the cutting.

While officers were questioning the victims, a man ran out of the club and police began chasing him after they were told he was the one with the knife, reports indicate.

The 27-year-old Lubbock man was apprehended after he slipped and fell on some gravel. He was taken to the county jail where he was booked for public intoxication, disorderly conduct and using loud and profane language.

The persons injured in the club did not require hospital treatment, according to reports.

In other activity, police arrested three men about 10:30 p.m. Sunday after they were seen in two cars traveling at high speeds down 19th Street.

Police who joined in the pursuit managed to stop the vehicles in the 4400-block of 19th Street. Two of the men said they were chasing the other subject because he owed them $15,000 and had pointed a revolver at them earlier in the night.

The 21-year-old suspect was arrested on suspicion of unlawful carrying of a weapon after police found a .357-magnum pistol under the front seat of his car, according to reports.

The other two men, ages 19 and 20, also were taken to the county jail after a check showed they had warrants out for their arrest, police said.

A 37-year-old Lubbock woman was treated and released at Methodist Hospital after she suffered a 1 1/2-inch cut on the forehead when someone allegedly struck her with a lead pipe at her residence about 11 p.m. Sunday.

Mary Moreno of 1111 41st St. told police she was hit in the forehead by one of three persons she had told to leave her house. The other two persons threatened her, she added.

Reports indicate the assault was the result of an altercation which broke out between the victim and her visitors.

Esther Garza of 2711 Erskine St. said she lost $5,000 in furniture when her house was burglarized between Friday and Sunday.

Police investigated a number of assaults during the weekend, including two which were reported following Saturday night's football game at Jones Stadium.

Gary Nelson Daniel, 22, of 5708 Brownfield Dr. told police that after the game, a fight began in the stands and he was hit with either a beer or wine bottle.

Daniel, who was treated and later released from Methodist Hospital, had no description of his assailant in the incident.

In another incident at the stadium, Danny R. Dipprey, 21, of 2402 9th St. said that he and a friend were assaulted by three white males in the stands following the football game.

Dipprey reported that when the game ended, one of the men spit on his friend and that a fight ensued. Dipprey was treated and later released from Methodist Hospital.

The victim said the men were between 18 and 25 years old.

In another assault, Robert Larch, 38, owner of the Westwind Club, 910 Slaton Road, reported that a man whom he had fired entered the club Saturday, demanded his paycheck and then began cursing and hitting him.

However, the suspect told police that Larch began cursing at him, told him he would pay him later and struck him.

A 30-year-old Lubbock woman reported that she and her two-year-old nephew were assaulted by a man she had formerly lived with Saturday night.

Man Confesses To School Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — A murderer and arsonist says he set the 1958 fire at Our Lady of the Angels school on Chicago's West Side that claimed 95 lives and left scores of children injured, WGN-TV reports.

The unidentified man said in a taped interview that he set the fire in the basement of the 49-year-old school and had no intention of hurting anyone.

It was not known if the man, who is reportedly now on parole, had been a student at the school.

The three-story building caught fire about 2:30 p.m. on Dec. 1, 1958, while most of the grade school's 1,300 students were still in class on the second floor.

The blaze, which killed 92 students and three Catholic nuns, has never formally been ruled an arson case, and authorities said as recently as last year that it may have started accidentally.

The 32-year-old man made the admission during a televised interview with WGN-TV producer Alex Burkholder, Battalion Chief George Schuller of the Chicago Fire Department, and former Chicago Daily News reporter John Kuenster.

Police and fire officials and a spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office refused immediate comment.

Thunderstorms Predicted For South Plains

Lubbock and the South Plains will be sunny and warm today and Tuesday but skies may darken with rainclouds later this week, weathermen predict.

The forecast calls for temperatures in the low 90s today, low 60s tonight and near 90 Tuesday.

Winds were expected to be southerly at 10 to 15 mph today and 5 to 10 mph tonight.

The extended West Texas forecast says the region will become cooler with a chance of showers and thunderstorms in the north at midweek spreading over the south by the latter part of the week.

Texas skies were mostly clear when the sun came up today.

Some early morning fog was reported in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from 54 at Junction to 75 at Galveston. Lubbock's low this morning was 62 degrees.

Widely scattered showers were forecast for the Gulf Coast and far South Texas.

Early morning temperatures dipped below freezing in northern New York today while residents of Phoenix, Ariz., slept through temperatures of 90 degrees.

High temperatures in the Southwest were expected to climb to 100 or higher today, while showers and thundershowers were forecast for the northern Plains, Great Lakes, New England, Florida and Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms fell early today along the eastern Gulf Coast and from the Great Lakes into Minnesota and the upper Midwest.

General Overcomes Incredible Odds To Remain Fighter Pilot

ABUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The Air Force career of Gen. James Young is over, but he vividly remembers the crash, 40 months of pain, 67 operations, drug addiction, alcohol and finally — defying all odds — a return to duty as a fighter pilot.

Young, 53, major general when he retired last week, joined the Air Force during the Korean War. He had run 38 combat missions as a fighter pilot before March 21, 1953, the day his P-51 spun and crashed. His body was seared, his leg, face, back and skull fractured.

"I actually died for a while," Young recalled. "They were flying me to a better hospital in Japan because the burns stopped my body's effort to fight off shock. Just outside Japan, my heart stopped."

A doctor restored the beat by injecting adrenalin directly into Young's heart and massaging his chest. Doctors did not think he would live through the night.

IRS, Couple To Debate 'Tax Divorces' Issue

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — David and Angela Boyter have been divorced from each other three times and have remarried twice to take advantage of tax rates for single persons.

The Internal Revenue Service calls the on-again off-again marriage a "sham transaction" and is taking the couple to court in a test case of "tax divorces."

Contending federal income tax laws discriminate against married couples, the Boyters have been divorced three times since they were married in 1966. They say they pay less taxes as singles living together.

The IRS, however, has decided the Ellicott City couple would make an ideal test case so it is taking the Boyters to U.S. Tax Court in Washington, D.C., on Oct. 9. The federal agency contends "tax divorces" do not relieve a couple of their married tax status.

"Many corporations merge and diverge strictly for tax benefits and nobody questions it as a sham," Boyter said. "Why should couples be treated differently than corporations?"

The Boyters earn about $30,000 each as employees of the federal government. Boyter, 39, is a physicist, while his wife, 33, is a procurement officer.

Last year, they paid $11,800 in federal income taxes filing as single adults, Mrs. Boyter said. Had they been married, she said they would have paid an additional $2,800.

Mrs. Boyter noted that the federal tax laws look at marital status as of Dec. 31. Therefore, she said, three times they have taken a trip to Haiti or the Dominican Republic before the end of the year for a speedy $350 divorce.

Twice they have returned from their 10-day vacations in the Caribbean only to be married again at the Howard County courthouse in January.

"We will probably stay single until this tax case is settled," Boyter said. "I am confident that we will win."

"If it is settled adversely, we plan to stay divorced because the taxes get worse every year, and by staying divorced we should qualify as single adults," he added.

IRS attorney Charles B. Zuravin said it is the "government's position that the law does not allow tax divorces."

He said the IRS "would not object necessarily, if a couple divorces and stays divorced — but not as a tax gimmick or sham transaction."

Boyter said the divorced status has resulted in "considerable loss of the value of our survival and pension benefits. So, there are trade-offs involved."

"We are hoping our case will push the Congress into making the tax laws more equitable for married couples," he added.

"I remember waking up in the hospital and thinking I was hurt, but that I would be going home soon," Young said. "It was to my advantage I didn't know what the doctors knew."

Young made it through that night and 40 months of hospitalization, 67 major operations and bouts with drug addiction and alcoholism.

"Anyone subjected to months of intense pain just can't stand it alone," he said. "They give you drugs and you start building up a tolerance. Soon drugs become an escape mechanism, when the pain is gone but the frustration is high."

Young tried to break his dependence on pain killers after leaving the hospital. But instead of taking pills, he drank.

"There were so many setbacks, medically. It wasn't until I could become more active that I finally stopped needing to escape from reality," he said.

Young had made up his mind he would fly again, and he did, 46 months after the accident. As a lieutenant colonel, Young became one of the first squadron commanders to fly 100 missions over North Vietnam.

Six years later he returned to Vietnam as wing commander of the Air Force's largest tactical fighter wing. He was promoted to brigadier general in 1972 and major general in 1974, when he assumed command of the 25th North American Air Defense Region Air Division.

"I was still having operations and setbacks once I started flying again, but it didn't slow me down. In fact, the accident drove me to be better than before," he said.

Paroles Given To Area Men

AUSTIN — Three persons convicted of crimes in the Lubbock area have been paroled by Gov. Bill Clements on recommendations of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Jesse Chavez, convicted of possession of marijuana in Gaines County Oct. 30, 1978, was paroled to Gaines County after serving and earning one year and three months of a five-year sentence.

Jose Lopez, convicted of burglary in Castro County May 19, 1977, was paroled to Castro County after serving and earning three years and 10 months of a six-year sentence.

Theodore Tovar, convicted of unauthorized use of a vehicle in Howard County Oct. 27, 1978, was paroled to Bexar County after serving and earning 11 months of a three-year sentence.

Missing Youth Still Puzzles Investigators

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The disappearance of a 16-year-old Michigan State University student has baffled police and private investigators who scoured sweltering steam tunnels and analyzed graffiti in their three-week search for the youth.

Investigators hired by the family of James Dallas Egbert III said Sunday they may have to return to their base in Texas unless new information on the Dayton, Ohio, teen-ager turns up.

A tip that Egbert might have attended a games convention in Kenosha, Wis., was being investigated over the weekend, said Capt. Ferman Badgley of the campus police.

Egbert, a sophomore computer science student with an intelligence quotient measured at 145, was last seen in his dormitory dining hall Aug. 15.

Police and investigators searched eight miles of 115-degree steam tunnels under the campus last week for Egbert, an enthusiast of a medieval fantasy game called "Dungeons and Dragons" his parents said he played "live" in the tunnels.

In the intellectual game, usually played on paper, players assume the roles of medieval characters and a "dungeon master" creates a prison from which the other players must escape.

Badgley said tips received late Friday from people attending a "Dungeons and Dragons" convention in Kenosha possibly placed Egbert there.

Earl Scudday Year Of The Zebra

FLAG DAY AND THE FOURTH OF JULY are long past, according to my calendar, but there must have been something special about Sunday. The zebras were tossing those yellow handkerchiefs around like confetti in both of the big NFL games on the tube, playing havoc with the teams and viewing public alike.

Lest this be construed as just another blast at the guys in the striped shirts, I will stipulate that the officials probably were correct in 99 percent of their calls. But even if the zebras were batting 1.000, all the flag-throwing and whistle-tooting certainly detracted from the games.

Take a look at the statistics. Dallas was penalized 14 times for 125 yards and San Francisco eight for 64. Houston was flagged 10 times for 64 yards and Pittsburgh eight for 74!

Were there ever two games featuring three championship teams in which a total of 40 penalties were called and 327 yards stepped off? There were a few other penalties that were declined, too.

Enforcement of the rules always has been a problem in football. Call too many infractions and the zebras ruin the game. Call too few and it is legalized mayhem. Many of the rules depend on the judgment of the officials — to make things more difficult.

Now the problem is much worse, with the new regulations on blocking and the additional protection for the passers and receivers. Is it possible for any team to run an absolutely legal play under these conditions?

THE COWBOYS ARE ASKING THEMSELVES that question today, even though they finally pulled out a 21-13 victory in San Francisco Sunday afternoon. The 'Poke offense was stalled throughout much of the game by penalties, some of which wiped out big gains. Those 14 penalties for 125 yards, plus at least another 150 yards in gains erased by the flags, turned what should have been an easy romp into a white-knuckle duel.

The penalties kept the 'Pokes in the hole throughout the game. Roger Staubach faced so many first-and-20s that he must have thought it was a bad dream. Uphill and against the wind all the way.

Perhaps it was symbolic, late in the game, when the Cowboys drew three flags on the same play. Harvey Martin was offside, Dennis Thurman was lagged for roughness and Cliff Harris was called for unsportsmanlike conduct when he challenged the zebras. That was something of a record, even for the 'Pokes!

ALL THAT ASIDE, DOOMSDAY SAVED the day for Dallas when the chips were down. Defense and the passing of Staubach. Fitting and proper, too, since defense has been the cornerstone of the Dallas dynasty for more than a decade.

This Dallas defense is a long way from the level of performance that made Doomsday an NFL legend. The front four, with two new faces in the lineup, is more vulnerable to the run than it has been for many years. There is no Lee Roy Jordan or Chuck Howley among the linebackers, either, and the secondary is not the same without fiery Charlie Waters.

Still, the defenders have played tough enough in the clutch to win on successive Sundays. They have given up yardage in big chunks, by Doomsday standards, but they also have made the big plays at the right time.

That was the story at San Francisco, with the clock ticking away and chances for an upset growing by the minute. But D.D. Lewis, a veteran who played with Jordan and Howley, came up with the big interception to give the 'Pokes a crucial scoring opportunity.

Then it was Martin, an All-Pro who also remembers when the Flex caused fear among foes, who sacked 49er quarterback Steve DeBerg in the end zone for the safety that virtually put the game out of reach for San Francisco.

It wasn't artistic, but it was a victory and protected the Cowboys' unbeaten record. Not too bad, even if the zebras did get the game ball!

'Pokes Overcome 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are unbeaten, perhaps untested and definitely frustrated heading into the third week of the National Football League season.

"We're 2-0 but we've been playing like we're 0-2. The real test will come when we play a contender," said defensive end Harvey Martin, whose endzone tackle of San Francisco quarterback Steve DeBerg gave the Cowboys two late insurance points in Sunday's 21-13 victory over the 49ers.

The National Football Conference champions, who slipped past the St. Louis Cardinals in their season opener, trailed the 49ers 10-6 late in the third period.

San Francisco's O.J. Simpson returned to action with a promising performance that included a go-ahead, 1-yard touchdown run just before half.

contest. Dorsett started for the Cowboys after missing five weeks of action with a broken toe. The Cowboys defeated the 49ers 21-13. (AP Laserphoto)

"I felt pretty good. In fact, I wish we had run the ball more," said Simpson, held out of the early exhibition games because of a sore knee. His rushed for 43 yards on 14 carries in his 1979 debut, delayed until Sunday because of the death of a daughter in late August.

"He will have a good season," predicted 49ers Coach Bill Walsh. "We didn't have enough running offense for him in this game. I'm not giving away any secrets when I say that you can expect us to have a lot more for him next week."

Roger Staubach's first two 1979 touchdown passes, 22 yards to Drew Pearson in the third period and 13 yards to Billy Joe DuPree in the final quarter, sent the 49ers to their second straight defeat.

"We're doing some good things but not doing them consistently," said Staubach, who had hoped the Dallas offense would have a lot more success running, especially since Tony Dorsett was back in the lineup.

"The combination of their defense and the penalties really hurt. We'd make a big play and it would be called back. We had a lot of first-and-20s," added the quarterback who completed 20 passes for 259 yards.

The penalties against the Cowboys kept piling up until they totaled 125 yards.

"I'll be seeing yellow flags in my sleep," said Coach Tom Landry. "If we didn't have those penalties, it wouldn't have been a game. It would have been a rout."

Dorsett, recovered from a broken toe, carried the ball 19 times for 54 yards.

Two big defensive plays, an interception by linebacker D.D. Lewis that set up Staubach's second touchdown pass and the tackle by Martin for the safety, were necessary to make the Cowboys feel comfortable late in the going.

Young Netters Claim U.S. Titles

NEW YORK (AP) — She's 16, quiet, reserved, steady rather than flashy, a sprightly suburban schoolgirl with pig-tails and pink dresses.

He's 20, brash, brazen, a shoot-from-the-hip street kid in sneakers with the talent to back up his words.

Tracy Austin and John McEnroe. They are tennis' younger generation, and Sunday they showed a sellout crowd at the U.S. Open and a national television audience that the future is now.

Miss Austin, playing her patient baseline game to perfection and capitalizing on her opponent's uncommonly frequent errors, dethroned four-time defending titlist Chris Evert Lloyd 6-4, 6-3 to become the youngest champion in U.S. tennis championship history.

Then it was McEnroe's turn, and the outcome was never in doubt. In the first all-New York final in U.S. Open history, McEnroe's strong serve and volley game proved far too effective for Vitas Gerulaitis. McEnroe won 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, to become the youngest winner of the men's singles title since Pancho Gonzalez, who was 19 when he won in 1948.

Both singles winners earned $39,000 from the total prize money of $563,600.

When it was all over, McEnroe beamed his racket 25 feet into the air, his ruddy face contorted in ecstasy. He had proven himself a champion before an orderly hometown crowd that earlier in the two-week event had cheered his every fault.

"This is by far the biggest win I've ever had, especially because this tournament is practically in my backyard," said McEnroe, who lives with his family in Douglaston, some 10 minutes from the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadow.

"I didn't think I got nervous at matches, but these last two have really been something. I was so nervous it was a joke."

McEnroe, the No. 3 seed, had a tumultuous road to the finals. Two of his opponents defaulted. His second-round match against Ili Nastase was a circus, an unruly crowd holding up play for 15 minutes and forcing the removal of umpire Frank Hammond.

Saturday he faced Jimmy Connors, the defending champion who had beaten McEnroe in straight sets in the same circumstances a year ago.

"Last year I went in with a negative attitude — I knew Jimmy was going to beat me," said McEnroe. "This year it was different. This was the first time I came into the tournament confident I could win."

McEnroe knocked off Connors 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 and rode that high into the final against Gerulaitis. "I'm sorry I had to beat Vitas, because he's a friend of mine," said McEnroe. "But I'm glad he went out there and played lousy."

Actually, Gerulaitis — the No. 4 seed who grew up in Brooklyn and Howard Beach and now resides in nearby Kings Point — didn't play that badly. McEnroe played that well.

Of 15 service games, McEnroe was broken only once. The rest of the time he dominated play with his brilliant net game. Gerulaitis, whose strength is his speed and agility, was simply no match for McEnroe's power.

After Gerulaitis scored his only break to even the first set at 5-5, McEnroe broke right back and then held to close out the first set. From that point on he dominated the match, assuring himself the title by winning five games in a row from 4-3 in the second set.

The match was a calm one, with few disputed calls by either player. The record crowd of 18,288 — boosting the tournament total to a record 305,311 — cheered for Gerulaitis until the end, but McEnroe said he didn't mind. At least they didn't boo him. "I think they were pretty fair," he said. "They clapped when we both hit good shots. Obviously they rooted for Vitas because they wanted to see a longer match."

TRACY AUSTIN
Youngest U.S. Open Winner

It was not to be. McEnroe did not let up until his first major title was won and the championship trophy was in his hands. But despite the victory, he still does not consider himself the best player in tennis.

"On a given day I'm the best, but for the year I think Bjorn is best," he said, referring to Bjorn Borg, the four-time Wimbledon champion and No. 1 seed who was upset by Roscoe Tanner in the quarterfinals. "I'm No. 2 or No. 3 (behind Connors), depending on judgment."

Miss Austin, also seeded third, feels the same way about the women's rankings.

"That's reaching a little bit," she replied, when asked whether her victories over second-seeded Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova and top-seeded Mrs. Lloyd in the last two rounds of the Open made her No. 1. "It's very close, though. I might be No. 2, behind Martina."

Miss Austin displayed patience beyond her years against Mrs. Lloyd, hanging five feet back of the baseline and returning everything hit her way. Her strategy was to keep the ball in play and let her opponent make the mistakes, and since Mrs. Lloyd was unable to mount any formidable attack and committed numerous unforced errors, it worked to perfection.

"I wasn't going to change a winning game," reasoned Miss Austin. "That would be kind of stupid, wouldn't it?"

Miss Austin closed out the first set with her third service break, then put herself firmly in command by winning the first three games of the second set.

"I can remember when I was her age," said Mrs. Lloyd, who at 24 was denied her bid for an unprecedented fifth straight Open crown. "She had nothing to lose and she went for her shots. She didn't make any mistakes. I could see she was really mentally tough. I doubted that at the beginning. I thought winning the title might intimidate her, but it didn't. She played it like it was just another tournament."

What did Miss Austin think about becoming the youngest Open champ in

Quintet Wins Frisbee Title

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — A hard-throwing, sticky-fingered quintet from Pasadena, Calif., captured the 1979 World Guts Frisbee championship on Sunday, breaking a 10-year domination by midwestern teams.

Led by the Steve McLean, the tournament's most valuable player, Foothill, which finished third in the competition last year, notched a 25-27, 21-18, 21-14 come-from-behind win over the Motor City quintet from Detroit.

Guts Frisbee is played by two five-member teams standing 15 yards apart, throwing the plastic discs at one another at speeds up to 100 mph.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Alou Pushes Astros Aloft

By The Associated Press
As the sun set over National League West, the Houston Astros were back on top — thanks to a 35-year-old, part-time player in the twilight of his career.

Jesus Alou has spent this season as a coach-pinch-hitter for the Astros. He has batted only 37 times, with nine hits — the latest a two-run double in the fourth inning that carried Houston to a 4-1 triumph over the San Francisco Giants Sunday.

The Astros trailed 1-0 and had managed only four hits through seven innings. Then in the eighth, pinch-hitter Dave Bergman and Cesar Cedeno singled off San Francisco reliever Greg Minton.

Shortstop Craig Reynolds was the next scheduled batter, but when Giants Manager Dave Bristol brought in left-hander Gary Lavelle, Astros Manager Bill Virdon went looking for a little more right-handed power than Reynolds usually displays.

"I just tried to pick somebody to hit the ball hard and get something started," said Virdon, whose glance at the reserves on the Houston bench came to an end when he spotted Alou.

The veteran was ready. "You have to think about the base runners and situations in the game and still try to prepare yourself to pinch hit if you are called," said Alou, who answered the call with the double that produced the winning runs, then departed for pinch-runner Julio Gonzalez.

Denny Walling's single scored Gonzalez and Enos Cabell's double scored Walling to cap the explosion that sent the Astros past the Giants and back into the West Division lead.

The Cincinnati Reds, who had taken a one-half game lead Saturday, lost it when Steve Garvey's seventh-inning homer snapped a tie and gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 3-1 triumph.

In the other NL games Sunday, the Pittsburgh Pirates retained their one-game lead in the East with a 5-5 triumph over the New York Mets, but the second-place Montreal Expos kept pace by downing the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 for their 12th triumph in 13 games.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Cubs blasted the Philadelphia Phillies 15-2 and the San Diego Padres defeated the Atlanta Braves 4-1.

Dodgers 3, Reds 1
Garvey's seventh-inning homer snapped a 1-1 tie and helped Los Angeles defeat Cincinnati to leave the Reds a half-game out entering a two-game series with Houston.

Dodgers right-hander Rick Sutcliffe hurled five innings in pain after being struck on the pitching arm by a line drive off the bat of Johnny Bench. Sutcliffe told Manager Tom Lasorda he felt well enough to continue after the mishap, "but if I'd have been smart, I probably would have come out of the game. I figured I had nothing to gain and everything to lose by coming out."

As it turned out, it was the Reds who were the losers.

Pirates 6, Mets 5
Willie Stargell doubled home Dave Parker with one out in the ninth inning, snapping a tie and carrying Pittsburgh past New York.

Manager Joe Torre, whose Mets

wanted a 4-1 lead, said the Pirates were his choice to win the East race "because of their experience. I picked them in the spring and I'm not going to change now. The Expos have a ton of talent, but I've still got to give this club (Pittsburgh) the nod."

Expos 4, Cardinals 1
Gary Carter and Ellis Valentine had three hits apiece, pacing Montreal's eight-hit attack and boosting the Expos to their victory over St. Louis.

Carter hit his 21st homer of the year, singled and doubled while Valentine had a double and two singles.

Manager Ken Boyer, whose Cardinals are third in the East — eight games back — had his own observations on the race. Speaking of Pittsburgh and Montreal, he said: "They've both got a lot of depth in their pitching staffs. Pittsburgh maybe has the edge in power."

Then he spoke of his team's chances: "The body's still alive, so we're not going to bury it."

Cubs 15, Phillies 2
Barry Foote had four hits, including a grand-slam homer in Chicago's five-run fourth, and Larry Bittner also had four hits as the Cubs amassed a season-high 22 hits in their rout of Philadelphia.

Padres 4, Braves 1
Gene Tenace hit his 17th homer of the season to help Randy Jones and San Diego beat Atlanta and Phil Niekro, 17-19.

2,999TH FOR YAZ — Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox watches the 2,999th hit of his career, a ninth-inning single, leave his bat during Sunday's game against the Boston Red Sox. Yastrzemski's next hit will make him the first player in American League history to collect 3,000 hits and 400 home runs. (AP Laserphoto)

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Scrappy Orioles Continue Drive

By The Associated Press

Few teams beat the Boston Red Sox at their own game in Fenway Park.

But Sunday, the ball took a Baltimore bounce.

"Our ground balls just went through," said Baltimore Orioles Manager Earl Weaver. "They hit some hard ground balls that were double plays and that turned it around."

The Orioles also hit some balls over the fence — three of them, in fact — and the result was a 16-4 rout of the Red Sox, who slipped 14½ games behind in the American League East.

"I don't believe I ever sat in a ballpark and said, 'I hope we don't get any more runs,'" said Weaver. "But I did today."

Rick Dempsey blasted a grand slam home run and Gary Roenicke and Al Bumbry also hit homers in the 16-hit Baltimore attack that helped the Orioles improve their lead in the AL East to 12½ games over Milwaukee.

"We feel like we have to prove ourselves every day," noted Baltimore's Terry Crowley. "We just go out and scratch and claw. What it comes down to, is we have 25 guys who can play."

Meanwhile, Boston Manager Don Zimmer continued to be astonished over his team's inexplicable drop out of the East race.

"Every day I come here, I think something good is going to happen, but it's been a long time," said Zimmer.

The Brewers fell further behind the Orioles in the East race by dropping a 5-2 decision to the California Angels. Elsewhere in the AL, Kansas City beat Seattle 3-1, Texas edged Minnesota 6-5; Detroit turned back New York 3-1; Cleveland outslugged Toronto 14-10 and Oakland blanked Chicago 3-0 in the opener of a double-header before losing the second game 7-0.

Dempsey and Roenicke each drove in four runs and Bumbry and Rich Dauer scored three times to enable Boston starter Steve Stone, 10-7, to gain the victory with relief help from Tim Stoddard.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, nearing the 3,000-hit career mark, lined a single to center leading off the ninth inning for his 2,999th hit, giving the 34,419 hometown fans at Fenway Park something to cheer about.

Baltimore reached Boston starter Mike Torrez, 14-11, for six hits and six runs before he gave up the mound, and three relief pitchers followed. The Orioles scored five runs in the fifth inning and got four more in the sixth, including Dempsey's shot. Roenicke's two-run homer in the second inning was his 25th of the year and Bumbry's solo shot in the sixth inning was his fifth.

Angels 5, Brewers 2

Frank Tanana, trying to come back from tendinitis in his left shoulder, gave up five hits in 5 and 2-3 innings to gain his first victory since June 5 as California defeated Milwaukee.

Tanana, 6-4, struck out four and walked only one in his second start since the shoulder problem forced him out of a June 10 game against Detroit. Tanana got relief help from Dave LaRoche and John Montague, who earned his sixth save.

Royals 3, Mariners 1

Larry Gura fired a six-hitter and George Brett collected three hits to lead Kansas City over Seattle. Gura, 11-10, walked two and struck out two, losing his shutout in the sixth inning on Tom Paciorek's home run.

"My ball was sinking," said Gura. "It was moving good today. I can't afford throw high pitches in this park (the Kingdom)."

Rangers 6, Twins 5

Johnny Grubb hit a two-run homer and two relief pitchers preserved Steve Comer's 15th victory as Texas beat Minnesota. Grubb's shot, his 10th of the year and first since June 6, came off loser Paul Hartzell, 6-8, and capped a three-run burst by the Rangers in the fourth inning.

Comer, 15-10, left in the eighth with a 4-2 lead with runners on first and second and no outs. Sparky Lyle and Jim Kern finished up for the Rangers, with Kern gaining his 26th save.

Tigers 3, Yankees 1

John Wockenfuss drove in three runs and Mike Chris and Aurelio Lopez combined on a four-hitter, leading Detroit over New York.

Wockenfuss hit a sacrifice fly in the first inning and doubled in the third following a one-out single by Alan Trammell and a walk to Steve Kemp. The sacrifice fly followed singles by Ron LeFlore and Trammell and a walk by Tommy John, 18-8, that loaded the bases.

Indians 14, Blue Jays 10

Bobby Bonds' grand slam home run climaxed a five-run rally that led Cleveland over Toronto. Blue Jays reliever Tom Buskey, 6-9, entered the ninth with a 10-9 lead before the Indians made their comeback capped by Bonds' 23rd homer of the year.

The blow made a winner of Sid Monge, 9-9, who hurled 1 and 1-3 innings.

"It was a slider, up," Bonds said of the home run pitch from Buskey. "The infield was in and I wanted to hit the ball in the air. I was looking for a pitch over the plate that I could hit hard."

Oakland 3-0, Chicago 0-7

Oakland defeated Chicago in the first game of their double-header as Brian Kingman pitched a four-hitter. Kingman improved his record to 6-5 with his first major league shutout.

Rookie right-hander Richard Dotson, pitching his second major league game, hurled a six-hitter to pace Chicago in the second game.

Rookie Takes Auto Race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rookie Rusty Wallace, whose driving has drawn complaints from the regulars, overcame such veterans as Joe Ruttman and A.J. Foyt to win the Governor's Cup 250-mile U.S. Auto Club stock car race Sunday.

Wallace, 23, said the victory on the State Fair Park mile oval — his third in his first USAC season — had a lot to do with ignoring a near-empty fuel tank.

"I don't think there is more than a couple of quarts of fuel left in that car," he said after his Firebird finished three seconds ahead of Ramo Stott of Keokuk, Iowa, who drove a Camaro.

"The last time here, I went 99 miles on the 22 gallons," he said. "I was skeptical about making it (this time). I was worried real bad, but the car was running consistently and I decided to stay with it."

There was some question about how the more experienced drivers might treat the kid from Arnold, Mo.

Ruttman was deprived of an apparent victory in a 500-mile race at the park in August when Wallace rammed him into a spin.

Sal Tovella groused about Wallace after a collision similarly put him out of a 200-miler at the fairgrounds.

Wallace took the lead to stay at the 199th lap after Ruttman's Phoenix blew an engine and hit a wall at the 100th lap.

Tech Inflicts Pain On USC

By The Associated Press
Texas Tech was the surprise team in the Southwest Conference last fall and dressing room testimony Saturday night indicated the Red Raiders may be the team to watch again this year.

The Red Raiders fell 21-7 to top-ranked Southern California but not until some severe bruises were inflicted on the Trojans in a game much closer than the score indicated.

"We had to play hard to beat one of the best teams in the country," said Southern Cal Coach John Robinson. "Watch out for Texas Tech. They are a good football team."

Southern Cal had four linemen including All-America tailback Charles White, who suffered a bruised shoulder.

"I thought we had a chance to win it right down to the last," said Rex Dockery, who was SWC Coach of the Year in 1978 in his rookie year at Texas Tech. "I think we are a lot better football team than we were last year at this time."

Dockery added, "We are much better defensively than I had hoped."

Then he smiled: "I think maybe Senor Sack has something to do with that."

Dockery was referring to 300-pound Gabriel Rivera, a massive freshman from San Antonio who runs an incredible 4.9 in the 40. The young noseguard made five unassisted tackles against the Trojans, including one where he chased down Southern Cal quarterback Paul McDonald on a sideline to sideline run.

"We're still not going to start him until he gets into shape but ain't he something?" said Dockery. "I told you he would be a player. I don't know if I want him to lose weight now or not."

Southern Methodist unwrapped two heralded freshmen running backs, Eric Dickerson and Craig James, in a 35-17 SWC victory over Rice and the crowd of 60,217 in Texas Stadium wasn't disappointed.

Dickerson scored three touchdowns and James scored one.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer called it just an average night for Dickerson.

"We were very, very ragged. Eric can play better than that. I consider this just an average Eric Dickerson game," Meyer said.

"I think I can play with this league," Dickerson said.

And James commented: "I wasn't as nervous as I thought I would be. But you could tell it was my first college game. Seeing that big crowd really lit my eyes up."

In other games, defending SWC champion Houston popped UCLA 24-16, the Texas A&M Aggies tumbled 18-17 to Brigham Young and Baylor finally subdued scrappy Lamar University 20-4.

Baylor hosts Texas A&M and SMU is at Texas Christian Saturday in league action.

In other games, out-of-state Florida, Colorado State is at Arkansas, Rice entertains Tulane and Texas Tech hosts New Mexico.

Graham Victorious Despite Pressure

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — On the 17th hole, Lou Graham set up for a tough chip shot when a fan on the hill shouted: "Don't let the pressure get you."

The fan obviously didn't know who he was addressing. The 41-year-old Graham has been playing golf under pressure for a long time, winning more than $1 million in prize money on the PGA tour since 1964.

"That made me more determined," Graham said. "I didn't look up. I just stepped back, looked at my ball and hit right up to the hole."

Then, with a two-stroke lead, the pressure became more intense. As Graham got set for his short putt on the 17th green, he heard a tremendous roar from a huge gallery on the 18th. Ben Crenshaw had finished with a birdie and Graham's lead was cut to one stroke.

"Nobody had to tell me," Graham said. "I knew what had happened. I didn't even turn around to look at the leader board."

Graham played the final hole cautiously, getting down in par by two-putting from 12 feet and winning the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Classic with a 72-hole score of 275, nine under par.

Crenshaw, a local favorite who made his pro debut here on a sponsor's es-emption in 1973, was a bridesmaid once again—for the fifth time in the last six tournaments — taking runner-up money of $27,000 instead of the winner's share of $45,000.

"Well, hell," Crenshaw said with a grin. "Here I am again. I had a bunch of chances, but I just didn't make enough birdies."

"It's unbelievable, but I'm trying to look at the positive side. When you second so many times, you have to be playing well. I've just got to keep trying. It will happen sometime."

Graham, who held a two-stroke lead after the second round of the rain-delayed tournament Saturday, fell one stroke back with a par 71 Sunday morning as young Dave Edwards, the 1978 NCAA champion, fired a five-under 66. Then he went to the putting green for practice.

With his putter working, Graham shot a final round of 69, one stroke better than Crenshaw.

Terry Diehl went over par for the first time in the tournament with a closing round 72, finishing third but earning $17,000. Jeff Mitchell was fourth, another stroke back. Edwards soared to 282 in the afternoon, ending in a tie for 10th at 282.

Sally Little Captures Third Tournament

DENVER (AP) — As she tucked a $15,000 first-place check in her purse, Sally Little was asked if she felt she was approaching the status of superstar on the women's golf tour.

"I feel I'm gaining," she answered. "You have Nancy Lopez, and you have your established world players like Kathy Whitworth and Jane Blalock. I'm just starting to reach that level. I still have to prove myself."

Miss Little's victory in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here Sunday was her third of the season and boosted her into fourth place on the year's money-earnings list with $115,442. Miss Little had won only two tournaments in her previous eight years on the tour.

"This victory tells me I can win," said the slender, blue-eyed blonde from South Africa who now lives in Dallas. "I've been fighting it for a long time. I haven't been the most positive player under pressure. I've choked a lot — lost some tournaments I could have won."

Why the improvement? "I think the main difference now is that I've matured," she said. "On the 15th hole today, I hit a terrible tee shot into the rough. But instead of going for it on my second shot, I played a safe 7-iron. I had looked at the board and knew where I stood. I told myself I could still make par, but I wanted to be sure I didn't make a double bogey."

"I think that's a sign of my maturity. I used to just step up and try to crunch it. Now I think of the consequences."

She settled for a bogey 6, but she still was three shots in front.

Miss Little, who led the tournament from the start after an opening 66, finished with an even-par 72 Sunday for a three-round total of 209, 7-under-par on the 6,401-yard Green Gables Country Club Course. She wound up two strokes ahead of Judy Rankin and rookie Beth Danziel.

Miss Little, who led Mrs. Rankin by one shot entering the final round, got birdies at the second and fifth holes to help calm her nervousness.

"That birdie on No. 2 was very important for me, it really calmed me down," she said of her 5-foot putt.

CBS To Present Tragic Story Of Comedian Freddie Prinze

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — The fascination with sharks, swimming sinuously through the ocean and baring their batteries of teeth is never-ending.

The same cannot be said for show business tales of the poor boy from the slums who made it big and let it all go to his head — not even when the story exploits the real-life tragedy of Freddie Prinze.

Shows on both subjects go on the air Tuesday. "Sharks!" a Survival Anglia production narrated by "Jaws" author Peter Benchley, will be broadcast on NBC at 7 p.m. (CDT).

From 8-10 p.m., CBS presents "Can You Hear the Laughter? The Story of Freddie Prinze," starring Ira Augustain, normally seen on "The White Shadow," and Kevin Hooks of the same show.

The Prinze drama depicts the young Puerto Rican growing up in the slums of New York, hungrily ambitious for show business fame and fortune — and willing to cheat on the girl he loves and eventually leaves.

With success comes profligate spending, hangovers, cancerous ego and eventually involvement with drugs. The story

PACKAGING PROCESS
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Two scientists have developed a packaging process to preserve lemons for up to a year without refrigeration, one of them said Friday. He said the method might also work for other foods. Dr. Shimson Ben-Yehoshua said the process which he and Dr. David Nahir invented involves wrapping lemons in a special polyethylene film, mixed with fungicides and chemicals to protect the skins, and doesn't alter flavor.

ends with Prinze's tragic suicide, but offers few clues beyond the stereotype to explain the man. It may be a comment on the quality of the show that it did not appear on NBC, the home network for "Chico and the Man."

Augustain tries hard with skimpy material to make Prinze come alive, and he is helped by a remarkable physical resemblance, but Freddie Prinze himself couldn't overcome that script.

In "Sharks!" Benchley talks about sharks haunting the human mind "in some dark corner where nightmares hide." There's nothing mysterious about the reason — at that point on the screen a great white shark is flashing teeth that look like they could bite through the Titanic.

The show produces a few harmless sharks that wouldn't hurt anybody, but that's not what the audience comes to see Next, the divers carry out various and dangerous experiments while swimming around with species of reef sharks in the South Pacific, then come closer to home with the blue sharks and makos off the California coast.

Watch, but do not imitate, a diver hand-feed a blue shark. Ask yourself how the shark knows where food fish ends and human hand begins. And does he care?

Along comes a big mako and in comparison the blue shark looks like a friendly puppy wagging his dorsal fin. The mako has horrible teeth, and apparently a disposition to go with them.

Nobody tries to hand-feed the mako. They did feed him a fish — not by hand — rigged up with a gadget to measure how much pressure goes into the mako's bite. The gauge measured 8,000 pounds per square inch were exerted by the tips of the shark's teeth.

Problems Plague 'Peter Pan' Revival

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — "Peter Pan" was last sighted on Broadway 25 years ago when Mary Martin flew in the title role of the boy who never wants to grow up. It's back and Sandy Duncan now does the flying.

All the old familiar are present — Peter Pan's fairy friend, Tinkerbell; Peter's young friends Wendy, Michael and John, and a passel of scruffy-looking pirates led by mean old Captain Hook.

Once again, Wendy, Michael and John learn to fly with Peter Pan and are whisked from their London nursery to Neverland to meet new young friends and whooping Indians, see the ticking alligator that got a hand canape from Captain Hook, and face doom on his bad ship.

Alas, this revival of the 1954 musical based on James M. Barrie's 1904 fantasy for the young doesn't quite fly, although the current crop of tykes may enjoy the version that bowed here recently.

That it isn't a tour de fantasy for this ancient isn't just because my associate critic, a nine-year-old named Josh, son of a friend, is quick to note "you can see the wires" that enable Peter & Co. to fly.

Nay, it has other problems. But let us cheer the good stuff first. Such as:

—The great original score by Carolyn Leigh and Mark Charlap — including "I've Got to Crow" — and seven nice tunes by Jule Styne, Adolph Green and Betty Comden.

—Peter Wolf's wonderfully detailed and imaginative sets, particularly his moss-covered, swamp-like Neverland where gnarled old gray trees occasionally are sighted cavorting with the cast.

—The space-age Tinkerbell, a tiny, glowing green figure that zips and flutters about the stage, thanks to the magic of a laser beam projected from the balcony.

—Marsha Kramer, Jonathan Ward and Alexander Winter, respectively perfect as Wendy, Michael and John.

The minus side, which includes two intermissions and a 10:30 p.m. finale that may prove too late on weeknights for urchins facing school at dawn, mainly seems this:

Rob Iscove's direction is busy, but none too inspired, likewise his choreography. There's a lot of movement, but little real effect.

George Rose, fine as the hurfurously blustering father of Wendy, Michael and John, lacks villain power in his main role as the wicked Captain Hook. He plays it too light and fluttery.

Miss Duncan, while fresh, wholesome and appealing, just hasn't a powerful enough voice to really put her songs across. Her distinctive, child-like voice works well in dialogue but sounds too thin for the often-difficult score.

Nevertheless, she gives her all, never lets up. Indeed, she got a standing ovation at a Wednesday preview show heavily attended by pre-teen patrons. They applauded as if there were no school tomorrow.

My associate critic, Josh, was among them. He indicated afterward that if I knock this newest version of "Peter Pan" I will not live happily ever after.

The verdict: Well, it's really a show for kids.

The slopes of extinct volcanoes, with soil rich in potash, are excellent areas for growing coffee trees.

"HOLOCAUST"

The internationally acclaimed drama which won 8 Emmy Awards, a George Foster Peabody Award, a Congressional Record citation and 20 additional honors.

Fritz Weaver as Dr. Josef Weiss. The devastating decision: his family, his patients, or himself. He couldn't save all three.		 She believed it couldn't happen in the land of Goethe, Beethoven and Schiller — unfortunately, none of them were in office.
Meryl Streep as Inga Helms Weiss. She had married a Jew and would do anything to stay with him — even if he were in a concentration camp.		James Woods as Karl Weiss. He somehow lived through the horrors of Buchenwald, and tried to warn the world through his art.
Michael Moriarty as Eric Dorf. An unemployed attorney looking for an easy government job. He didn't know it would include mass murder.		Deborah Norton as Marta Dorf. She was the perfect wife. The perfect mother. The perfect Nazi.
Joseph Bottoms as Rudi Weiss. At 23 he escaped from the Nazi cruelty — until he knew he must return to finish the fight.		Tovah Feldshuh as Helena Slomova. Her intense love for Rudi Weiss was more compelling than all the powerful forces of war.

Estacado In Position To Move Up In Prep Poll

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Don't be too surprised if the Estacado Matadors jump into first place in the Associated Press AAA school poll — due to be released later this week.

Estacado, which had been ranked fourth in the poll last week, defeated the powerful Plainview Bulldogs of District 4-AAAA 13-7 Friday night in Plainview. That victory, coupled with losses to the top two AAA teams, could move the Mats into the driver's seat.

No. 1-ranked Brownwood was humiliated 50-14 by Abilene Cooper and No. 2-ranked McKinney dropped a 15-14 decision to Paris. The Nos. 3 and 4 AAA teams were victorious, but the wins came against unknown and unranked opponents.

And if the Matadors do advance in the rankings, they can credit a stout defense and a little bit of dippy-doodle.

On the field for most of the contest Friday night, the Matador defense held back repeated drives by the Bulldogs that allowed them to come from behind in the fourth quarter.

And the first Matador score came on a play right out of the Tom Landry playbook. EHS quarterback Jerry Gray flipped a pitch out to halfback James Rose who took a couple of steps backwards and lofted a 37-yard bomb to receiver Kenneth Cade who was all alone at the five.

That score seemed to ignite the Mats, who scored quickly again for the victory.

But Lubbock's other 1-AAA team, the Dunbar Panthers, didn't fare as well. For the second straight year, the were shut out by the defense of Dallas St. Marks and dropped a close 7-0 decision.

The only other school in the district to record a victory was Levelland. Bert Gravitt's Lobos took a 14-13 thriller from the Brownfield Cubs of District 3-AAA. Berger also scored a win as they took an easy 21-7 decision over Lubbock High Thursday night.

Canyon and Dumas weren't as fortunate as they suffered opening game defeats.

District 2-AAA schools ventured into non-district competition in the first weekend of play and found the menu much to their liking. Andrews, Fort Stockton, Odessa Ector and Pecos all took lopsided victories Friday night. Only Monahans spoiled the district record by bowing to Seminole 13-7.

But Andrews rolled over Big Spring 40-6, Fort Stockton clobbered Canutillo 20-0, Ector blanked Amarillo Caprock 20-0 and Pecos pulverized hapless La Mesa 26-0.

In District 3-AAA though, the squads found the going a little tougher. Only San Angelo Lake View was able to salvage an opening-game victory as they defeated Del Rio 25-0.

South Plains AAAA Favorites Suffer Opening Setbacks

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It was certainly a tough week on the district favorites last week on the South Plains.

And they're still smarting, a bit. Amarillo, pegged the favorite in District 3-AAAA by the loop's head coaches, was edged by Odessa High Friday night 15-14. Meanwhile, in Plainview, the Bulldogs, also heavily favored to win the 4-AAAA crown for the second year, fell to Estacado 13-7.

In fact, the only loop favorite, Abilene Cooper, posted an opening-night victory. Against the state's top-ranked Class AAA team, Brownfield, the Eagles romped to an easy 50-14 victory.

By the way, the Eagles are the numero uno team in Class AAAA, if both wire services in the state are to be believed.

In the balloting among the loop's bosses, Amarillo garnered all but one first-place vote. The other one, went to Caprock, expected to finish second behind the Sandies.

The two, Amarillo and Caprock, are followed by Pampa, Tascosa and Palo Duro. The battle between Caprock and Pampa was quite close, with the Longhorns grabbing 12 points and the Harvesters notching 11.

Meanwhile, Monterey, picked to finish second in 4-AAAA, was the loop's only opening-night winner. The Plainsmen, using the strong running of senior Willie Johnson and the passing of quarterback Kent Potts, raced to a 35-7 victory over Canyon at Kimbrough Stadium.

Point-wise, it was the largest victory, for Monterey since it defeated Hereford back in 1977 on the final Friday night of the season.

Not only the was the Monterey offense, which racked up 396 total yards, awesome, but so was the Plainsmen defense. In the first half, Monterey held Canyon to zero first downs and just five yards total offense. The Eagles finished the night with just four firsts.

In the loop balloting, Monterey finished with 13 points while Plainview had 16, Coronado 10, and Hereford and Lubbock High five points each.

As expected, District 5-AAAA teams romped and stomped on opening night. Only three of the eight teams comprising the loop lost. Abilene was edged by Wichita Falls Rider 14-10. Austin nipped San Angelo Central 16-2 and Andrews bopped Big Spring 40-4.

The 40-6 setback turned out to be Big Spring's 19th consecutive loss. The losing streak dates all the way back to Sept. 16, 1977 when the Stiters lost to Snyder 12-7.

While Cooper was garnering all the first-place votes in 5-AAAA, Big Spring received every last-place ballot. Cooper finished with 49 points, followed by defending champ Permian with 43, Midland Lee 30, Odessa 27, Midland 20, Abilene 14, San Angelo 8 and Big Spring 7.

Knight Presents His Version Of Story

BLOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Convicted, he would not have gotten a fair trial in Puerto Rico and already convicted in absentia, Bobby Knight has sought to "at least present" his own version of the incident that led to a six-month jail term he has no intention of serving.

Knight told a news conference on Sunday he would not return to San Juan, where a judge set today for imposition of the jail sentence and $500 fine for aggravated assault of a policeman.

And the embattled Indiana University basketball coach, who guided a U.S. squad to the gold medal at the Pan American Games in San Juan under what he called "the most emotionally charged...the most hostile atmosphere" he has ever seen, hoped the matter would be put to rest for good.

Knight was convicted of hitting San Juan policeman Jose de Silva during an argument over who had rights to a practice court during the Pan Am games in July. Knight claimed he unintentionally brushed de Silva's face in a reflex action after the policeman struck him first.

Knight said he and the American team later were "spit at, spit on and cursed," and our National Anthem was booed," and that he was accused of making racial slurs and inciting the Puerto Rican crowd at the Pan Am championship game with derogatory comments and gestures. He called those charges "blatant lies."

Judge Rurico Rivera said he would hear an appeal, and hinted he would suspend the jail term if Knight appeared in person.
