OSLO, Norway (AP) — Mother Teresa, Calcutta's "saint of the gutters," was awarded the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize today for her work among the poor of India.

The Yugoslav-born Roman Catholic nun, who has devoted her life to helping "the poorest of the poor," is the sixth woman to win the prize and the first since Mairead Corrigan and Betty Williams of Northern Ireland won the 1976 award.

The five-member Norwegian Nobel Committee said Mother Teresa, 69, was given the prize "in recognition of her work in bringing help to suffering humanity." The citation accompanying the prize, which this year is worth $190,000, said "poverty and hunger and distress also constitute a threat to peace" and she was recognized for "her promotion of international peace and understanding."

President Carter had been among the 56 individuals and organizations nominated for this year's prize.

"This year, the world has turned its attention to the plight of children and refugees, and these are precisely (the) categories for whom Mother Teresa has for many years worked so selflessly," the committee said.

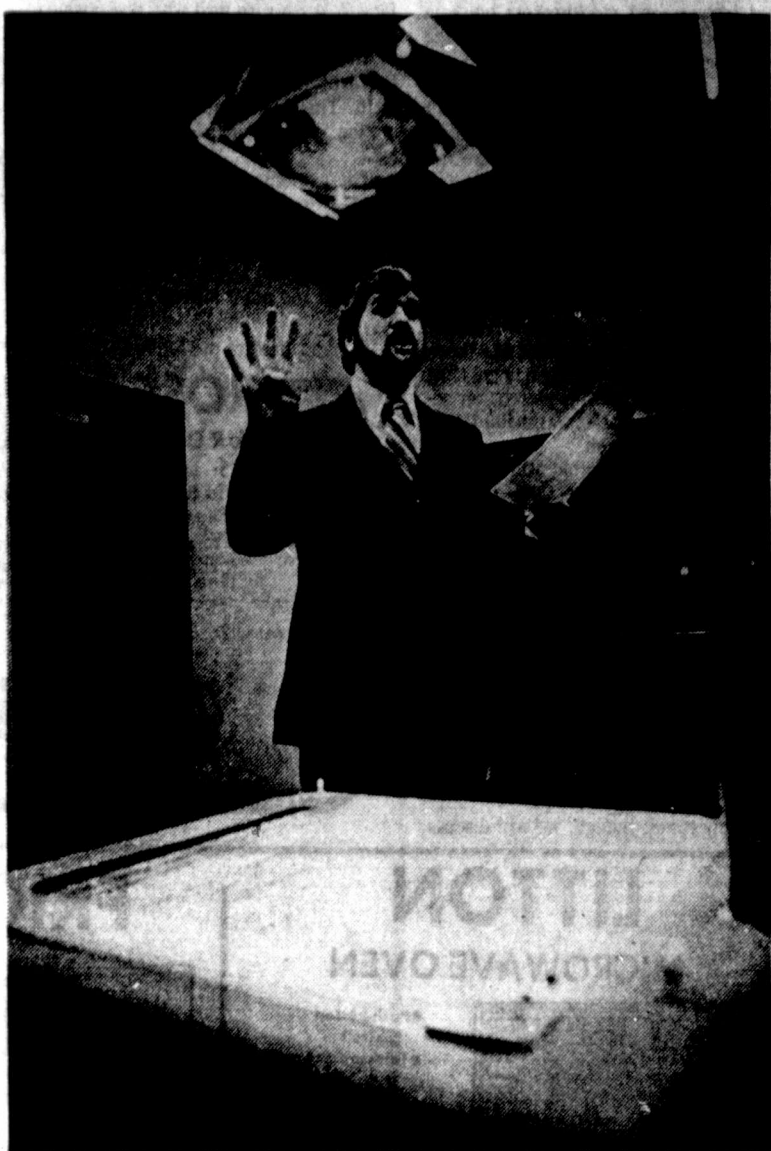

The hallmark of her work, it added, "has been respect for the individual human being, for his or her dignity and innate value. The loneliest, the most wretched and the dying have at her hands received compassion without condescension, based on reverence for man."

Swedish dynamite inventor Alfred Nobel, who established the Nobel prizes, said the peace award should be given to "a person, or society, who has done much to strengthen brotherhood among people."

"In Mother Teresa's case this basic philosophy of life is firmly rooted in her Christian faith," the committee said. "In Calcutta and elsewhere she has enlisted the help of assistants from other religious denominations. She has also been recognized by the Indian authorities and by the (former) Asian Secretary-General of the United Nations, the buddhist U. Thant," it added.

"This is not the first time the Norwegian Nobel Committee has awarded the peace prize for work undertaken in the struggle to overcome poverty and distress in the world, which also constitute a threat to peace. It has awarded the

Grocers Receive Advice On Theft

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Sixteen years ago Jack Henry doubled his income while he went undetected as a dishonest bread man in Lynchburg, Va.

He was an expert vendor who altered invoices and made just the right mistakes to steal from the grocery stores where he delivered his bread.

Today, Jack Henry is a changed man who travels the country conducting seminars for retail grocery merchandisers to show them how to control burgeoning employee and vendor theft in their stores.

"The best controls for internal theft are getting the employees involved in reporting thefts to their supervisors," Henry told a group of local grocers gathered for the day-long seminar at the Holiday Inn sponsored by the Texas Retail Grocers Association.

He suggested setting up employee hot lines or suggestion boxes so employees could report internal thefts and remain anonymous. "It has been shown that at least 50 percent of all employees know who is stealing but are afraid to tell on them."

Henry, who operates the Accurate Inventory & Calculating Service Inc. in Longview, said a perpetual book inventory method coupled with frequent physical inventories is the best way to detect internal theft.

"The U.S. Commerce Department is estimating that white-collar crime will account for more than $60 billion in business losses this year, an all-time record," he said.

Before he goes into methods for controlling internal theft, Henry gives a psychological profile of potential dishonest employees.

"There are three types of individuals who are potential thieves that enter a store each day — the neurotic who is basically honest, those that are totally

Marines Launch Cuban Exercise

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (AP) — Marines swarmed ashore by helicopter and amphibious craft in a practice landing today on the beaches of the only U.S. military base on communist soil. A Soviet surveillance ship stood offshore, and Cuban reservists in the area were called to duty.

"So far as we know, there were no problems" in the 8 a.m. landing, said Cmdr. Howard Matson, a spokesman at Atlantic Fleet headquarters in Norfolk, Va.

Three Navy warships had carried the Marines close to the shore at dawn in the show-the-flag exercise, hastily arranged by the Carter administration as a flexing of military muscle in response to the presence in Cuba of a Soviet brigade, about 500 miles west of Guantanamo.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said there was no overt action by the Cubans.

About 2,200 Marines were involved in the exercise, a practice reinforcement by helicopters and amphibious vehicles at Guantanamo Bay, on the eastern tip of Cuba 500 miles from Havana.

Military officials insisted the exercise was routine and, although they made extreme efforts to accommodate nearly 80 reporters and photographers covering the landing, they denied reports that the exercise was merely a media event.

"This is a training exercise which reinforces the Marines and Naval units (stationed at Guantanamo Bay)," Navy Capt. John Fetterman said at a briefing Tuesday night.

However, Fetterman said, "What you will see ... in no way approximates what would be done under hostile conditions." He said if the base was threatened, reinforcements would be flown in instead of brought in by ship.

"It is not a classic amphibious assault," said Capt. Robert Bowen, a Pentagon spokesman.

Once ashore, the Marines were to move into defensive positions behind the 17.4-mile perimeter fence, then engage in about four weeks of training and drills before returning home.

Sources in Washington said they viewed the call-up of about 3,000 Cuban reservists and other action as "normal precautions."

There was no indication in the Washington reports that the Cubans were moving any troops close to the 45-square-mile base, but about a half-dozen tanks and an equal number of anti-aircraft guns were said to have been shifted to the vicinity of the base.

Administration sources also said a Soviet hydrographic research ship, which U.S. intelligence officials say is a cover for surveillance activities, was reported off Guantanamo. Sources also said there had been an increase in aerial reconnaissance flights by Cuban aircraft, although no Cuban planes have flown over the base.

"I'm sure that they are going to be in their observation areas watching this," said Marine Col. Mark Fennessy, commander of the 420 Marines permanently based at Guantanamo Bay.

On Tuesday, Marine Carter criticized Cuba as "the most highly militarized country on Earth per capita," and said it is "constantly interfering" in the affairs of other nations. He said it has more than 45,000 troops in countries where "they have absolutely no business."

He said the United States will not move to establish normal diplomatic relations with Cuba until it ends its involvement in other nations' affairs and until the regime of President Fidel Castro releases political prisoners.

Despite the highly publicized landing, life went on as usual for most of the nearly 6,000 servicemen and civilians on the base.

"My wife has a ceramics class scheduled in the morning," Fennessy said.

Baker Loses Treaty Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 9-6 today against including the Soviet Backfire bomber in the count of weapons permitted under the new strategic arms limitation treaty.

Democratic Sens. Richard Stone of Florida and Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska joined four Republicans in voting for the proposed change.

The measure was widely regarded as a "killer amendment" because it would significantly change the text of the SALT II treaty and almost certainly foreclose negotiations.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, in offering the amendment, said U.S. negotiators were out-traded by the Soviets, who insisted the Backfire is not a strategic weapon.

But Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, and other committee members contended that had the Backfire been included in the treaty, strong pressure would have been exerted on the United States to include forward-based nuclear weapons in Europe and cruise missiles.

Despite its rejection by the committee, the Backfire amendment almost certainly will be re-offered when the treaty reaches the Senate floor.

Proposed originally by Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, the amendment balanced the inclusion of the Backfire by also counting the U.S. FB-111 fighter-bomber.

Treaty critics say the Backfire is capable of striking targets in the United States, at least on one-way missions or with refueling en route.

Stone also pressed for adoption of an amendment to include under the SALT counting rules Soviet Golf 2 submarines capable of carrying nuclear missiles.

Stone made available the text of a declassified letter, previously marked "secret," from Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance spelling out for the first time the U.S. position on what actions by the Soviet Union would violate the 1962 agreement ending the Cuban missile crisis and a later understanding reached in 1970.

Vance said the United States interprets the understanding as prohibiting the servicing in or from Cuba of nuclear-armed submarines.

He defined servicing as the use of naval facilities in Cuba for accomplishing major maintenance or refitting of Soviet submarines capable of carrying nuclear weapons or the providing of such service by support ships sailing from Cuba.

Vance listed as examples major maintenance on propulsion systems or the rearming of the submarines in Cuba. He differentiated between servicing and port calls, which he defined as short visits with limited activities including refueling, replenishment of food and rest and recreation for the crew.

Stone has said that Soviet Golf 2 submarines visited Cuba in 1972 and 1974.

On Monday, the committee voted 9-1 to implement SALT II only if Moscow agrees that the assurances on Backfire made to President Carter by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev at the Vienna summit meeting last summer are legally binding.

Brezhnev, in an unsigned written assurance, said the Backfire will not be given intercontinental capabilities.

Petting Zoo Lion Mauls Hitchhiker Near Vega

AMARILLO (UPI) — A hitchhiker who opened the cage of a declawed lion used in a petting zoo was attacked by the animal, but was in satisfactory condition today, officials said.

Kenneth Eason, 28, of San Diego, Calif., was brought from Vega to Northwest Texas Hospital in serious condition Monday with superficial back wounds after a 2-year-old lion attacked him. He was later listed in satisfactory condition.

A workman at the High Plains Processing Plant east of Vega, who witnessed the attack, shot and killed the lion, authorities said.

Earlier, a highway crew had awakened Eason, who was sleeping in an Interstate 40 median, a spokesman said.

Authorities said Eason noticed the lion's cage, walked across a service road, located a pair of bolt cutters and cut a section of wire mesh out of the cage, allowing the animal to escape.

The lion, which came from a Chicago petting zoo and apparently had been handled by a keeper most of his life, leaped from his cage onto Eason when he was freed, a witness said.

An unidentified Amarillo resident who owned the lion had planned to include the animal in a zoo to be located near Vega.

Front Lowers Mercury Here

A-J News Services

A cool front moving through Texas took the edge off the record-setting hot weather of recent days and brought a slight chance of rain for the area.

Lubbock had a record high temperature of 92 degrees Tuesday, supplanting the 1965 record of 90, but the front is expected to hold temperatures to the mid-70s today.

There is no chance of an early killing freeze from this front, however, weather-ermen said, with the overnight temperature predicted to drop no lower than the low 50s.

The high Thursday should be near 80 as the effects of the front begin to subside.

There is a 20 percent probability of rain tonight in the Lubbock vicinity.

The South Plains sky will be partly cloudy tonight and Thursday.

By early this morning, the front had pushed southward to near a Wichita Falls-Hobbs, N.M., line.

"The front was not triggering any precipitation as it moved through West Texas," weathermen reported.

Patchy low clouds developed after midnight over South and Central Texas, and dense fog lowered visibility to less than a mile in some parts of East Texas and the Coastal Plains.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s in the west and in the high 60s and low 70s in the central and eastern parts of the state.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over parts of the nation early today, and cold Canadian air continued its incursions into northern states.

A few showers and thunderstorms were scattered from the lower Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley to the mid-Mississippi Valley and the central Plains.

Pats of New England and the upper Midwest had early morning temperatures in the 20s and 30s.

Irons' Stand Questioned By Loter

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Public school administrators fear the economic consequences of including two schools in the Overton South Design-Historic District, but the leader of the Overton South neighborhood group questions the need for such concern.

Ed Irons, superintendent of schools, said that administrators oppose the inclusion of Lubbock High School and Thompson Junior High School within the boundaries of the historic district because the market for the properties in the future might be restricted because of standards imposed on the buildings in the district.

But Roger Loter, president of the Overton South Neighborhood Association, questioned today why the school district would want to sell the two schools.

"I would hope with the LEAP program (magnet program designed to draw students to Lubbock High) at Lubbock High and the city's commitment on the revitalization of Central Lubbock, there would be no need for the school district to ever contemplate" selling the buildings.

Loter pointed out that if Central Lubbock were revitalized, there would be a need for schools in the area.

Irons said he fears that there would

Blind Woman Gets State Aid To Start Astrology Business

DOVER, Del. (AP) — In the heart of Dover's historic district, where prominent lawyers and stockbrokers work in renovated 18th-century homes, the area's first astrologer has hung out her shingle.

But Roberta Jensen says she couldn't have started her Astro-Guidance service without help from the state of Delaware.

Miss Jensen, 32, who is legally blind and restricted to crutches because of rheumatoid arthritis, received funds from the state Division for the Visually Impaired to help her pay for astrology books and training.

"There were some eyebrows raised" when Miss Jensen applied for the funds to help set up her astrological counseling service, admitted James Burcham, administrator of vocational rehabilitation services for the division.

"It caused ripples that were felt all the way through the division, down to the person who read the purchase orders. The usual reaction was, 'You're doing what?'" he recalled with a chuckle.

"The justification for her financial aid was the same as for everyone who receives aid — it's an occupation at which someone could make a living," he said.

Miss Jensen, who started her business only recently, said that most of her customers so far were coming out of curiosity.

"Many times, though, we will discuss problems they have and sometimes I can help them with those problems. Let's face it, it's a rare bird who doesn't have any problems," she said.

Her customers are asked to supply her with the date, place and hour of birth. This and their background information is given in a preliminary meeting.

The customer is asked to come back about two weeks later, by which time Miss Jensen will have prepared an astrological chart showing a personality profile, skills, aptitudes, outlook for marriage and other aspects of a person's life.

"I can't predict the future — I'm not a fortune teller — but I can help a person see trends," she said. "The understanding of this seems to help people a lot. Most people are interested in understanding themselves better."

"Astrology is a tool, like psychology," she added.

East Germany Offers To Talk With West Berlin

BONN, West Germany (AP) — While the Soviet Union warns Western Europe against U.S. nuclear missiles on their territory, the East Germans are quietly offering the olive branch to West Germany in a major diplomatic initiative.

The Communist government in East Berlin has offered to negotiate a range of issues with Bonn, including improvements in the situation in West Berlin, reductions in transit fees for travel to the divided city, greater opportunities for travel between the two Germanys and disarmament.

Informed sources say the East Germans hope the overtures will open the way to a summit meeting between West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and East Germany's Communist Party chief, Erich Honecker.

Some observers think the East German initiative is a Soviet Bloc attempt to take advantage of current strains between the United States and West Germany to try to wean West Germany away from its strong support of NATO and the United States.

East Germany's overtures contrast sharply with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's warnings on Oct. 6 and again Tuesday that West Germany and other West European nations face grave risks if they agree to U.S. proposals to station 572 Pershing II and cruise missiles on their soil.

Schmidt has said West Germany will accept the missiles if at least one other NATO member on the Continent takes them. But Belgium and the Netherlands, the likeliest prospects, are wavering.

Honecker launched the East German initiative and Brezhnev issued his first warning simultaneously, in speeches at the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the East German Republic. Honecker was overshadowed because Brezhnev at the same time announced he was withdrawing up to 20,000 troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany and offered to negotiate a reduction in the Soviet medium-range missiles that threaten Western Europe.

Mayor Guides Children Across Streets

FARMERSVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The mayor of this small central California city has taken to the streets to help get children to school safely.

No, he's not leading an initiative to put in sidewalks. He's a school crossing guard.

Herb Jones, 66, a retired truck driver and mayor of Farmersville since 1974, puts in 1½ hours each school day at an intersection near city hall, helping children cross the street safely.

The children come from their homes on both sides of the main street, Farmersville Boulevard. Some head east to an elementary school, while others attend the town's new junior high school.

"Being retired, I haven't much to do and hang around city hall most of the day," Jones said. "So it's not much trouble for me."

Jones was among the first crossing guards hired by the district. He started work in January 1978.

"It seemed to me like it was kind of hard for them to get anybody that wanted to work these few hours," Jones said. "It's kind of a pleasure for me to do it."

It is not uncommon for the children to offer Jones flowers or candy on their way to school. There is no lobbying intended, just sheer friendliness, said Jones.

"I meet these little guys on the streets during school vacations and it's a pleasure that they know me," he said. "You see a lot of people and it's never a lonesome job down there."

Called "grandpa" by some of the youngsters, Jones says he has them "pretty well trained" to wait for him before they cross the street and to keep within the crosswalk.

"A few times someone won't stay between the lines, but I don't make a fuss about it," he said. "I always give them the benefit of the doubt."

Survey Reveals Lag In Energy Programs

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of 290 banks has pointed up a lag in energy-saving programs, according to an industry publication.

According to Energy User News, only 24 percent of the banks polled have launched formal plans to save energy, and another 13 percent have undertaken no energy conservation methods to date.

The publication said only about 6 percent of the banks surveyed had reported having installed any kind of heat-recovery system.

It reported the most popular low-cost, energy-saving measures included reduced illumination, conversion to low-wattage lamps, lowered hot-water heating temperatures and monitoring of ventilation systems.

The East German leader offered to enter negotiations with West Germany and said: "We see the possibility of clarifying a series of issues which could contribute to the securing of peace and disarmament. Above all, the two German states could cooperate on the question of disarmament."

In a gesture of good faith, his government released a number of prisoners. They included dissident economist Rudolf Bahro and anti-militarist Nico Huebner, who in West Germany are symbols of resistance to tyranny. The East Germans also let it be known that they would be allowed to leave the country if they wished.

A flurry of diplomatic activity followed, including meetings last week between Honecker and Guenter Gaus, the West German representative in East Berlin.

The West Germans responded cautiously to the overtures. Officials praised East Germany's readiness for negotiations while emphasizing that no agreements can be reached which act against the interests of NATO and the European Economic Community.

Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, among the more conservative members of the Schmidt government, said Bonn was prepared to begin talks on many issues, including arms control. But he said the West Germans still believe that membership in NATO is "neither exchangeable nor substitutable."

The Schmidt government is committed to improving relations with East Germany in hopes this will improve conditions in West Berlin and for the East German people. The chancellor is under pressure from groups in his Social Democratic Party to seek closer ties with East Berlin and Moscow.

But Schmidt will be challenged in next year's national election by right-winger Franz-Josef Strauss, perhaps Western Europe's most vocal anti-Communist politician. Too much accommodation might wreck Schmidt's chances for needed conservative votes.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

He Belongs To The Ages

AN HEROIC AMERICAN legend passed into history with the death of the last surviving Marine among those who raised the American flag on Iwo Jima in World War II.

In a moment made famous by an Associated Press photo, faith in ultimate victory over tyranny was boosted when the six American fighting men hoisted Old Glory atop Mount Suribachi, the Pacific island's highest point.

Three of the six men—five Marines and a Navy hospital corpsman—were killed during the 35 days of savage fighting for the island.

Rene Gagnon, the only surviving Marine, died of an apparent heart attack at age 55 last week. He collapsed at his job as caretaker of an apartment project.

WORD OF HIS DEATH stirred memories among all those who are old enough to remember World War II.

It also stirred in them a nagging worry as to whether America would have the will now, as it had in the 1940s, to storm the beaches thousands of miles from home in order to keep the flame of freedom burning.

More than 17,000 Marines were wounded and 5,931 were killed in the attack on Iwo Jima, a small island needed as a base for U.S. bomber raids on Japan.

ma, a small island needed as a base for U.S. bomber raids on Japan. The flag-raising photo was snapped on Feb. 23, 1945, little more than three years after the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Veterans of that terrible war have to wonder if, in today's climate, such photos and communiqués from the fighting front wouldn't be derided as propaganda by warmongers rather than accepted as fuel for a patriotic effort to achieve total victory.

Those were the days when Americans were sure of their rightness as a nation and when dying free was more to be preferred than living in bondage.

"AT THAT AGE (19), I never thought anything would happen to me," Gagnon recalled of the landing in a 1978 interview.

He, and millions like him, had been called to do a job and they did it; grudgingly, to be sure, and unhappily, but determinedly and effectively.

Is such patriotism dead? Of course not. It still beats loudly in the breast of most Americans. It's just that, of late, the ones who've been making all the noise are the ones who would have been unworthy to lick the mud off the boots of men like Rene Gagnon, caretaker of an apartment complex. And of America.

SUICIDE ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

James J. Kilpatrick:

Taxing Away The Ol' Homestead

WASHINGTON—Time is running out for Congress to correct one of the worst provisions ever written into tax law. This is known technically as "the carryover basis rule of estate taxation."

Bear with me on this matter, for tax law is not easily explained. The carryover rule that will become effective Jan. 1, unless Congress acts swiftly to suspend or repeal it, would produce billions of dollars in windfall revenues for the federal government.

That is not the main purpose of the rule. The main purpose is to reorder American family life by making it unbearably expensive to hand down property, such as a family farm or an antique table from one generation to another.

SEN. EDWARD KENNEDY of Massachusetts is the principal author of the carryover rule. The senator has an obsession with what he calls "tax expenditures."

This bizarre perception rests in the proposition that the government has a claim upon our total personal income. When the government takes $2,000 in taxes from a person earning $15,000, the $2,000 is a tax receipt.

But when the government lets this person deduct the interest on his home mortgage, the tax that otherwise would have been collected is a tax expenditure. In the familiar word, the interest deduction is a "loophole."

Three years ago, when Congress was working on the Tax Reform Act of 1976, Kennedy set out to close "the tax loophole of death."

By agreement reached in conference committee and not greatly noticed at the time, the act included a drastically modified carryover rule. When the impact of the change became more widely understood, a public outcry developed.

Congress voted last year to delay the imposition of the rule until Jan. 1, 1980. We are nearing the deadline and Congress will be sitting for another month only.

TO UNDERSTAND THE consequences of the rule, consider the hypothetical case of a small farmer, John Apple, and his son William. John had inherited the land from his father, added on to the property and greatly improved it.

At John's death in 1972, the farm has a value of $90,000. William has to sell a third of the land in order to pay estate taxes at the time.

In 1975, William decides to sell the remainder; meanwhile its value has increased from $60,000 to $70,000.

Under the old rule, William would have paid a capital gains tax on the $10,000, representing the increase only from the time of his inheritance to the time of sale.

Under the new rule, behold what happens: If our hypothetical John Apple should die next year, and the same chain of events should occur, his son William would pay a capital gains tax on the increase in value from the time John himself inherited the land, perhaps 30 years earlier. In a time of vastly inflated property values, the effect would be virtual confiscation.

On the plane, a passenger headed immediately for the upstairs lounge. "Are you first-class?" a stewardess demanded. "Haven't had any complaints yet," he replied.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Front-Seat Driver

HOMOSEXUALS by the tens of thousands have been parading in Washington, D.C. Nobody seems to be surprised.

Wasn't it nice that UT-Austin beat UT-Norman again this year?

After what he saw through them at Jones Stadium last Saturday, My Neighbor Twice Removed says he's renaming his binoculars as his Horror-scope.

Even though he lost Florida's straw vote to President Carter, Sen. Ted Kennedy's supporters claim he scored "one of the greatest political upsets of the century."

I guess they mean they were kind of upset by it.

My, how times change. In the early days, Americans branded adulterers with scarlet letters, prayed in the classroom and gathered for public Thanksgiving. Now, they have incest and adultery on TV, no prayer in the classroom and gather for gay rights public protests.

AS SHE SLID under the steering wheel, My Sweet Wife couldn't resist a catty remark. "Getting into the back seat, huh?" she asked. "How else could you back-seat drive?"

Now, never in my life have I criticized MSW's driving except when she needed it, which isn't often. Sometimes not more than once or twice per block.

"Safer back here," I said, restrainedly. Actually, My Sweet Wife is an excellent driver.

John D. Lofton:

Buck Stops Here More Or Less

WASHINGTON—Of all the non-actions taken by President Carter to deal with the presence of Soviet combat troops in Cuba, none drew more snickers and ridicule than his assembling of a group of intelligence experts to figure out what to do about this problem.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., commenting on Carter's buck-passing ploy, noted:

"I think this is the first time, at least in my memory, that a President has called on outside help. This thing was news a month, two months ago. Now he either has the guts to do something about it or he doesn't."

SENATE MINORITY Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., observed: "Well, when you can't figure out what to do or you can't bring yourself to do it, you do one of two things. You either create a blue-ribbon commission or panel or you pack it off on somebody else. And it looks to me like the Carter administration's headed in both those directions at the same time."

Now, admittedly it is arguable whether it was a good idea or not for the President to choose a group of so-called "wise men" to advise him on the Cuba problem. This is a thing about which it is possible for reasonable persons to disagree.

In any event, this whole thing set me to thinking what it might have been like throughout American history had other individuals been afflicted with Jimmy Carter's unique qualities of fowlship:

— AMERICAN REVOLUTIONARY statesman James Otis still would have said: "Taxation without representation is tyranny." But he would have added: "Just to be sure however that this is so, I have named a panel of eminent economists to advise me on this particular point as well as just exactly what constitutes tyranny."

— Patrick Henry still would have said, as he did on March 23, 1775, at the Second Revolutionary Convention meeting in Richmond: "Give me liberty or give me death!"

But he would have added: "Before I suggest such stark alternatives, and before I actually choose either, I am appointing a commission of experts on both death and liberty. This is too weighty a matter for one to leap to any conclusions."

— Israel Putnam still would have declared, as he did at Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775: "Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes." But he would have added: "On second thought, hold off on that order un-

It's just that she wants to be perfect in my sight. Except, of course, for the "reverse nagging" she practices as she drives.

"Cover your head," she suggested, "and then you won't see what I do wrong."

"I will," I said. "I will. Believe me. I will."

We sat silently for a mile and a half. She braked behind another car waiting to turn left. It turned. She followed.

Into an oncoming lane of traffic on the wrong side of the center median.

Luckily, there was no car coming head-on. Little Daughter and Son doubled up in gales of laughter. I said not a word.

"Hey, dad, you oughta write about that," Little Daughter said.

Who me? Never saw a thing. Hard to see anything when you're in the back seat with your head covered up.

A West German publishing concern, Heinrich Bauer Verlag, is buying San Antonio-based Winn's Stores Inc., which operates 133 variety stores in Texas. It's not the same outfit that bought Lubbock-based Furr's.

A lot of companies which had been courting take-over candidates have lost the urge to merge because of the high cost of money.

My Neighbor Twice Removed says corporate marriage partners are smarter than he; he didn't find out until it was too late that two can't live cheaper than one.

French Renault has bought into American Motors. Leave it to Frenchmen to find a beautiful damsel in a pinch.

TEXAS TECH LAW Professor Rod Schoen acknowledges that his goal is not to restrain government but to insist that government restrain the individual.

"The school board has the authority to prevent it and is still permitting it," he says of religious activity in the Lubbock public schools.

Schoen is president of the Lubbock Civil Liberties Union, which has sued to put a stop to voluntary prayer, meditation periods followed by "amen" and other allegedly unconstitutional religious activities in the schools.

IF THE STATE can't require prayer in the classroom, the reasoning goes, then it can't permit prayer; and if it can't permit such activity, it must perforce prohibit it.

Agree or disagree that prayer has a place in the classroom, the question is one of the relationship between governmental authority and the exercise of individual civil rights.

The suit alleges that the school system "has established a policy expressly authorizing religious exercises."

Schoen told the A-J's Lisa Paikowski that "the Bill of Rights and then the 14th and 15th amendments were put into the Constitution to restrain the majority and I think everybody agrees to that."

It's an interesting concept. Question: Does "the majority" mean the government representing the people, or does it mean the individual who, as one of the people, is restrained?

til we see the report I have called for from my just-appointed assemblage of firearms experts, who themselves will be advised by a committee of renowned optometrists and ophthalmologists. Perhaps we should fire when we see the pupils of their eyes. At this point, I'm just not certain."

— FDR, had he been Jimmy Carter, might well have said, as he did: "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

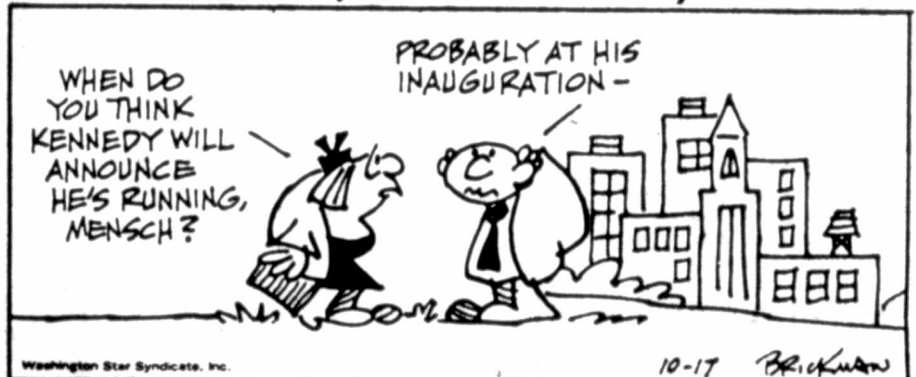

But he would have added: "In all honesty, though, it must be admitted that perhaps a greater fear is the fear of having only fear. Is it the fear of fear we should fear? Or the actual fear itself? Quite frankly, this is much too complex a problem for one man to formulate the answer.

"Therefore, today I am appointing a blue-ribbon presidential commission, composed of psychiatrists, psychologists, and average citizens who in their lives have suffered great fear, and..."

Terminally Ill Get Help In Hospices For Dying

(First of five columns) WASHINGTON—Item: This coming Nov. 7 through Nov. 9, the National Hospice Organization (NHO) will hold its second annual meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio.

At the same time, authorities from all over the U.S. will convene for the Sixth National Hospice Symposium to report on the phenomenal upsurge in the hospice movement, and to debate emerging problems, appropriate directions for progress, other fundamental aspects of this oldest and yet newest concept in care for the dying.

ITEM: Earlier in October, the NHO held a cornerstone symposium in New Haven, to mark the construction of the New Haven hospice's $3.5 million, 44-bed facility to provide inpatient benefits which will be covered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Connecticut.

The New Haven hospice was the first established in the U.S.—and that was as recently as 1971.

ITEM: THERE MAY be as many as 130 hospices in operation in this country today, estimates Walter J. McNeerney, president of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations, as against a "handful five years ago, with at least as many more in the planning stage."

Several Blue Cross and Blue Shield member plans recently have begun demonstration projects that pay for hospice care.

Last summer, for instance, the Blue Cross Plan in Washington, D.C., launched a two-year pilot program that pays for inpatient care for terminal cancer patients who no longer can be maintained in the home setting.

In just the past few years, Americans have been undergoing a basic change in their attitudes toward death and dying—discussing this inevitable more openly, facing it more calmly, accepting the once unthinkable alternative of programming our own deaths.

WE ARE REBELLING against the whole idea of forcibly keeping an incurable patient alive and alone among the tubes and technology of a modern hospital—an institution organized to care for and cure the living, not meant at all to help the terminally ill close their lives with a measure of comfort and dignity.

More and more, we are insisting that we, as individuals, have the God-given "right" to refuse to be kept alive if some horrible disaster turns us into a "vegetable."

The extent to which we have "grown up" is revealed by the books on death and dying on our best seller lists, the great popularity of dramatic plays dealing with the subject on Broadway, etc.

THUS, THIS FIVE-part quiz will help you learn, too, vital points about the exploding hospice movement; its advantages in comfort and cost-saving to you, should you or a dear one ever need this care; its disadvantages as well; its overall future.

Senator Continues 'Training'

By GENE GRABOWSKI
WASHINGTON (AP) — John Heinz is a politician in training, a man who appears to be preparing to seek the presidency.

He's definitely not running next year. There already are 11 candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, and you won't find the little-known, immensely rich senator from Pennsylvania among them.

But in 1984 perhaps, or more likely in 1988, Heinz would like to go for the roses. He is grooming himself now, developing attractive legislation, working in key committee assignments and honing an imaginative public relations machine, all in an effort to master the fine points of politics and law-making on Capitol Hill.

By focusing his energies on his day-to-day work in the Senate, Heinz' "training" is decidedly different from that of Sen. Larry Pressler, another freshman senator who is vying for the 1980 GOP Presidential nomination even though he is little known.

Unlike Pressler, Heinz isn't trumpeting his ambitions. Asked about presidential aspirations, Heinz replies with a coy smile and a stock phrase: "I'll cross that bridge when I come to it."

Heinz is best known for spending $2.5 million in his 1976 Senate race. That isn't much of a calling card, so he is working hard to build his stature and expand his influence.

The tall, handsome heir to the Heinz food fortune is beginning to catch the attention of Senate colleagues in the wood-paneled world where freshman Republicans are sometimes seen but seldom heard.

Earlier this year, the 40-year-old multimillionaire was elected chairman of the National Republican Senatorial

Analysis

Committee. In that post, Heinz is chief fund-raiser for all GOP Senate campaigns and thus a confidant of many of his 40 Republican Senate colleagues.

The committee is a key vehicle in Heinz' self-improvement campaign.

"If I have an advantage as a result of the committee seat, it's simply that I have the opportunity to work with my Republican colleagues one on one," says Heinz, who entered the Senate after serving nearly three terms in the House.

There are other advantages. The committee chairmanship puts 50 staffers and a healthy source of funds at Heinz's fingertips. At recent news conferences, Heinz has toted color charts — bought with committee funds — to display various provisions in bills concerning Vietnam veterans benefits and children's television.

Heinz is also seeking visibility through his committee assignments. He is the third-ranking Republican on the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee and ranking GOP member on its international finance subcommittee.

He also sits on the Senate Select Committee on Aging, an advisory panel that is growing more prominent as a greater percentage of the country's population becomes elderly, and heads the Senate Steel Caucus, one of the more active special interest coalitions that have sprung up in Congress.

"Heinz is successful because he's done his homework in a legislative body that is tough for a newcomer to crack," said Larry McCarthy, spokesman for the GOP senatorial committee and a former Heinz press aide.

Heinz hasn't always commanded respect.

In June, Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., brought a Senate session to a halt when he called Heinz "an idiot" and "devious" during a debate on a proposed steel loan to Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp.

The outburst came after Heinz suggested that Weicker opposed the loan because it might jeopardize the interests of a Connecticut company.

"When a member substitutes innuendo for fact or the persuasion of logic, ... he is either an idiot or devious, and the senator from Pennsylvania qualifies in both ways," Weicker shot back angrily.

Minutes later, Heinz apologized and both men's remarks were stricken from the record.

This sort of personal showdown isn't likely to happen twice to Heinz. He makes a special effort to get along with his colleagues.

Senators Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, Richard Stone of Florida and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona are among several Democrats who have teamed up with Heinz on legislation to limit the federal budget, boost nationwide coal use and expand government benefits for Vietnam veterans.

Heinz works hard to publicize these bills, and eager aides have clipped stories about their boss from newspapers across the country.

"We are not any more actively courting coverage than we ever were," said Jack Bonner, Heinz' current public relations chief. "His (Heinz's) committee positions are very important to the legislative process, and we've always been interested in making sure people know about it."

Estee Lauder Victim Of Robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — Estee Lauder, founder of the prestigious cosmetic firm, was tied up and robbed Tuesday by three armed men who forced their way into her Upper East Side Manhattan mansion, police said.
 Officers said the thieves ransacked the house and fled with about $2,000 in cash and an undetermined amount of jewelry.
 Mrs. Lauder, and four other persons also tied up by the thieves, were released from their bonds about a half hour later when her husband came home.
 Police said a man in a chauffeur's uniform came to a side door of the mansion at about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. When Mrs. Lauder's own chauffeur, John Drummond, answered the door, the uniformed man said he had come to pick up Mrs. Lauder.
 Police said that as Drummond questioned the man, two companions appeared and the three forced their way in at gunpoint.

Family Helped, Betty Ford Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford says her family led her to face her drug and alcohol addiction and seek treatment.
 "It was my family, my husband and my daughter and three sons, who were candid and courageous," she said Tuesday in a speech to the National Forum on Women and Alcohol and Alcohol-Related Problems.
 "They were the ones who sought the expert and professional help for me, and they were the ones who faced me with my illness."
 Mrs. Ford announced in April 1978 that she was addicted to prescription drugs and alcohol. She spent four weeks at an alcoholism treatment center at the Long Beach Naval Hospital in California.

Rally Honors Rosa Parks

ATLANTA (AP) — Rosa Parks, whose refusal to give up a seat on a city bus started a year-long bus boycott almost 25 years ago in Montgomery, Ala., has been honored at a rally in Atlanta.
 About 1,000 spectators — mostly young people and downtown office workers on lunch break — attended the rally Tuesday in a park.
 Mrs. Parks is now a resident of Detroit. Her refusal in 1955 to yield her seat to a white person on a Montgomery city bus led to the boycott which is remembered as the start of the civil rights movement led by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.
 Actress Jane Fonda, who attended the rally with her husband Tom Hayden, presented Mrs. Parks a $5,000 check. The money will be used for the Rosa Parks Scholarship and awarded to "a high school student who has shown concern about social and human issues."

Singer's Sound Equipment Found

GARY, Ind. (AP) — More than $15,000 worth of sound equipment stolen from singer Roberta Flack last weekend has been recovered, Gary police said.
 Miss Flack was here Saturday night to entertain at a fund-raiser for Mayor Richard Hatcher. A van containing the equipment was stolen from a public parking lot early Sunday and police recovered the empty van later in the day. Officers raided a house in the northern Indiana city Monday, recovering the sound equipment and a stolen car, police said.
 Six persons were being questioned, but no arrests were reported.

Prince's Mistress, Son Revealed

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS (AP) — A mistress of the late Prince Hendrik of the Netherlands, father of Queen Juliana, bore him an illegitimate son in 1924, according to an official Dutch history.
 The Prince died in 1934. Juliana was the only child of his 33-year marriage to Queen Wilhelmina.

The previously undisclosed birth of an illegitimate half brother of the reigning monarch was documented in a book written by professor Lou de Jong and dealing mainly with Holland's role in World War II. De Jong is the former head of the Dutch State Institute for war documentation and is the country's official war historian.

De Jong wrote about a reported liaison between Hendrik and a woman identified only by the pseudonym "Elisabeth le Roi." The mother and son were given 47,000 guilders — the equivalent of around 200,000 dollars in present-day purchasing power — and shipped to South America, the book said.

One Dutch newspaper reported Tuesday that the illegitimate son had died but had a daughter who is alive and knows about her relationship with the reigning Dutch Queen.

A spokesman for the royal family declined to comment. But de Jong said at a news conference that both the Queen and Premier Andries van Agt had read the book and given approval for its publication.

Some Dog — Some Life

CHICAGO (AP) — Thumper, a 200-pound Saint Bernard, has found that a dog's life can be great.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

He was chauffeured around Chicago in a limousine Tuesday and pampered in a suite at the posh Whitehall Hotel.

Accompanied by his owners, Carl and Betsy Bodie of Lockport, N.Y., and their two children, Benjamin, 4, and Nathaniel, 8, Thumper was flown to Chicago by Ken-L Ration to receive its "Dog Hero of the Year" award. Thumper rode in a special traveling cage in the baggage compartment.

He drew stares as he made the rounds with his huge head sticking out of the limousine window before being honored at a banquet at another swank hotel, the Ritz-Carlton.

Thumper, not quite 2 years old, beat out other courageous canines to get the 26th annual award — a gold medal, a $1,000 U.S. savings bond, a gold-plated leash and collar and a year's supply of dog food.

Last year, Thumper stayed by Benjamin's side when the youngster wandered from home and was lost 12 hours in an area dotted with farm ponds. Thumper kept Benjamin away from harm until rescuers were attracted by the dog's barking.

"We've got a two-bedroom suite at the Whitehall and Thumper sleeps on the floor in our room," said Carl Bodie, a carpet installer.

"Some of the drawers are filled with dog food. He eats about four pounds a day," said Bodie. "The kids like to play with him. He rolls over on his side and enjoys himself. He's still at the puppy stage and probably will put on another 25 pounds."

Brewer Wants To Reopen

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A former beer brewer has asked the new Islamic regime for permission to start producing beer and other forbidden spirits for "non-Muslims and foreigners" in the country.
 After last February's revolution, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini declared all alcoholic drinks "haram" — taboo — and revolutionary guardsmen began raiding hotels and restaurants throughout the country, destroying millions of dollars worth of beer, wines and liquor. The Tehran Times said the brewery asked government officials and clergy members Tuesday for permission to reopen. The brewery said it had tried making a non-alcoholic malt beer, but the beverage failed to catch on, the newspaper said.

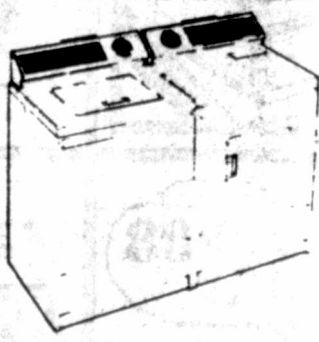

The alcohol for "consumption by non-Muslims and foreigners only."
 The Times said people in Iran were still buying alcoholic drinks on the black market, many of them "home produced" from raisins and "other materials."

The brewery, which is now state-owned, said if it were allowed to go back into the alcohol business, it would stop black market smuggling of alcoholic drinks and this would also stop the flight of Iran's currency being spent on smuggling.
 The brewery said it would only sell

Income Trails Inflation Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose a modest 0.6 percent in September, not enough to compensate for the rapid inflation of recent months, the government said today.

The increase in income, which includes wages, rental income, dividends and social welfare payments, was the same as the August gain, the Commerce Department said.

Incomes are not going up as fast as consumer prices, which have risen 1 percent or more each month since the start of 1979. As a result, buying power is being eroded.

The "squeeze" shows up in sluggish consumer sales, which have contributed to the economic downturn that most economists believe began in the second quarter this year.

In another economic report today, the Federal Reserve Board said the nation's manufacturing plants operated at 85.1 percent of capacity in September, up 0.3 percentage points from the previous month.

The level of factory use — which is a good indication of the strength of the industrial sector — was more than 2 percent below the March peak of 87.1 percent capacity utilization, the report showed.

Factories, on average, operated at 85.3 percent of capacity in the third quarter compared with 85.9 percent in the second quarter and 86.7 percent in the first three months of the year, the Federal Reserve said.

The department reported that pre-tax income rose $12.2 billion in September to $1.96 trillion, or about $8,886 for every man, woman and child in the nation.

The September increase was below the $14.2 billion average monthly rise this year and well below the $18 billion average increase for each month in 1978, said department analyst Adren Cooper.

"What looks good is manufacturing income, which is mostly a rebound phenomenon," Cooper said.

Manufacturing income rose 0.8 percent last month to $332.8 billion after it fell 0.5 percent in August.

This parallels the increase in industrial production, which rose 0.5 percent in September after a drop of 0.9 percent in August, according to a government report released Tuesday.

More strength in manufacturing, partly reflecting the start of the 1980 production season, was offset by declines in farm and rental income.

Farm income, which has been declining since March, fell nearly 4 percent last month to $45.9 billion. The September figure is nearly 13 percent below the March level, department figures show.

The 0.3 percent decline in rental income last month resulted from damage to homes by Hurricane David, the department said.

Carter Signs Bill Establishing New Department Of Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today fulfilled one of his 1976 election campaign pledges by signing legislation establishing a Department of Education, the 13th Cabinet-level agency of the government.

The president signed the bill in the White House East Room before an audience of hundreds of the measure's supporters and a class of fourth graders from Brent Elementary School in south-east Washington.

"I don't know what history will say," Carter remarked. "But my guess is the best move for the improvement of the quality of life in the future might be the establishment of this Department of Education."

The ceremony capped a hard-fought battle in Congress and marked one of the few legislative victories the president has won this year. The House gave final congressional approval to the bill Sept. 24. Carter had made creation of the department one of his top domestic priorities.

Carter said the Brent School fourth graders were invited to the bill-signing because they represent "the real beneficiaries" of the new department.

The president asked Benjamin Mays, president emeritus of Morehouse College and a Georgia educator for more than 50 years, to join a girl from the Brent School class on the podium as he signed the bill.

The new department will consolidate 152 of the government's education programs under one roof. It was the second Cabinet-level department established during Carter's presidency. The Energy Department was set up in 1977.

The Education Department is to have about 17,000 employees and a budget of $14.2 billion, larger than those for the departments of Energy, Interior, Commerce, Justice and State.

Its functions will be stripped from five existing departments. The largest segment will come from the education division in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, now to be called the Department of Health and Human Services.

No secretary for the new agency has been designated, but sources familiar with the selection process said the president's choice may be announced within the next 10 days.

Meanwhile, three names recur on the list of potential candidates: Jerry Apodaca, the former governor of New Mexico; Mary Berry, the assistant HEW secretary for education, and Alan Campbell, director of the federal Office of Personnel Management.

Apodaca is Hispanic and Berry is black. The appointment of either might be expected to boost the president's standing in those constituencies in an election season.

Others whose names are being mentioned include former Iowa Sen. Dick Clark, Panama Canal treaty negotiator Sol Linowitz, civil rights activists Jesse Jackson (Operation PUSH) and Vernon Jordan (the National Urban League), and television newsmen Bill Moyers, a former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson.

By law, six months will be allotted for setting up the department, starting from the time a secretary is sworn in. A transition team already is at work in the Office of Management and Budget to coordinate the changes.

Desegregation Suit May Hurt President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges that Chicago school officials have for 40 years discriminated against minority students appear headed for one of the biggest court battles over desegregation in the nation's history.

The prospect of a federal lawsuit demanding mandatory busing of school children is seen by some lawmakers and Democratic politicians as a potential election-year problem for President Carter.

But unless the Chicago Board of Education makes a last-minute switch in its policy today, Patricia Roberts Harris, the secretary of health, education and welfare, is expected to send the case to the Justice Department with the recommendation of a lawsuit.

The deadline comes a day after Carter left Chicago where he has been courted by Mayor Jane Byrne in hope of getting her re-election support next year.

Chicago school officials sent a telegram to Carter Tuesday, asking him "to use the power of your office to direct HEW to grant" a 170-day delay in instituting legal proceedings. There was no immediate reaction from the White House.

Asked at a town meeting in a Chicago suburb about racial busing to achieve integration, Carter said: "My own experience and my own belief is that mandatory busing ought to be minimized." But he said the law prohibits segregation and "that's got to be honored."

Despite predictions that a desegregation suit would cause Carter problems, some observers say the case would be so complex and slow in starting that the impact wouldn't be felt until after the election.

Also, Mrs. Byrne has given no signal that she would tie her political support to the administration's handling of the desegregation case. She has, however, endorsed the school board's own, mainly voluntary busing plan.

A two-year investigation by HEW's Office of Civil Rights concluded in April that in some cases black students are packed into mobile classrooms to ease overcrowding while space goes unused in predominantly white schools nearby.

HEW's 162-page report said the 475,000-student system has undergone boundary changes to maintain segregation and the board has constructed new buildings in minority areas but not in mainly white areas where integration could take place.

"Through its policies and practices, the Chicago Board of Education for the past 40 years has confined its minority children to schools that are separate and unequal, depriving both black and white children of the educational opportunities promised in the law," Mrs. Harris said in threatening to send the case to the Justice Department.

Work Begins On Wage Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration and organized labor began a fragile effort today to establish new wage restraints and help spare the nation the prospect of "permanent double-digit inflation."

President Carter's Pay Advisory Committee, the product of the new economic alliance between the administration and labor leaders, held its first meeting to consider new voluntary, anti-inflation wage guidelines.

The 18-member committee, headed by former Labor Secretary John Dunlop, is composed of six labor leaders, six business officials and six public representatives. Announcement of the membership was delayed until Tuesday, reportedly because several prominent businessmen refused requests to serve on the pay board.

The members were sworn in by Alfred E. Kahn, Carter's top inflation adviser, who urged the panel to propose new wage guidelines that would not contribute to the inflationary spiral.

Kahn promised that the administration would give "very, very serious consideration to your recommendations."

Charles L. Schultze, Carter's principal economic adviser, asked the panel to work with the administration to prevent current "double-digit inflation from becoming widespread and permanent double-digit inflation."

Schultze said nearly half the current annual inflation rate of 13 percent is caused by soaring energy and housing prices.

Wage and price increases in most parts of the economy have not matched the inflation rate. Schultze said it was important for the government, with the help of the pay panel, to keep inflation from spreading.

After opening statements, the committee recessed to meet with Carter at the White House and then reconvene to work out general procedures for its deliberations.

President Discusses Reasons For Not Recognizing Cuba

DOLTON, Ill. (AP) — President Carter says the United States will not recognize Cuba because of that nation's meddling overseas and jailing of political prisoners.

The president, speaking to a "town hall" audience of 2,800 people Tuesday in the Thornridge High School gymnasium, also talked about the nation's inflation rate and oil imports.

Strickland Probes Davis On Taped Conversation

FORT WORTH (AP) — A tape-recorded conversation about death in the past tense climaxed cross-examination of millionaire murder-for-hire defendant Cullen Davis today.

Chief prosecutor Jack Strickland referred to an Aug. 20 parking lot conversation recorded through a microphone attached to FBI informant David McCrory's body as he talked with Davis.

Strickland hammered at McCrory's voice telling Davis, "I got Judge Eidson dead for you." The reference was to Joe Eidson, Davis' former divorcee judge, who was not harmed. Davis is accused of plotting the hired killings of Eidson and others.

"Did that (statement) shock you a little bit, Mr. Davis?" Strickland asked. "It went right through me. I went right on talking," Davis replied.

Strickland: "You said, 'Good,' didn't you?" Davis did not respond directly. "Didn't it shock you a little bit when he said, 'out there on the parking lot, I got Judge Eidson dead for you?'" Strickland asked.

Davis: "It meant nothing to me." Strickland: "Did it surprise you ... did it make you nervous?" Davis: "I ignored it."

Lawyers Begin Final Debate

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Attorneys began closing arguments in Roger Dale Stafford's mass murder trial this morning after the judge instructed jurors that "the state is not required to prove that the homicide was committed with a deliberate intention."

"A homicide, although unintended, if committed in the commission of robbery with a dangerous weapon constitutes murder in the first degree," District Judge Charles Owens told the jurors, who were expected to begin deliberations later in the day.

Stafford, 27, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the July 16, 1978, shooting deaths of four teenagers and two men at a Siroloin Stockade restaurant here. The steakhouse workers were killed during a $1,300 robbery.

The closing arguments were opened by Assistant District Attorney James McKinney. Other arguments were to be made by District Attorney Andrew Coats and defense attorney J. Malone Brewer.

If jurors find Stafford guilty, Coats said he will ask them to sentence the father of three to death by injection of a lethal dose of a barbiturate. Prosecutors would have to show jurors that one of seven aggravating circumstances was present when the steakhouse murders occurred to get a death verdict.

capped an overnight visit to the Chicago area.

He had appeared earlier at a fundraiser for Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne and eaten breakfast with the mayor, who all but formally endorsed the president for re-election. He called her remarks "perfect."

"I really did appreciate it," he said. When asked if he had expected Mrs. Byrne's formal endorsement, the president said, "I think that was enough." Mrs. Byrne said she would vote for Carter's re-nomination if the decision were to be made now. She warned against a Democratic "intra-party blood bath" and urged "unity and discipline."

At the town meeting in this suburb south of Chicago, Carter was asked 12 questions, the topics ranging from the recent visit to Chicago of Pope John Paul II to whether the number of stop signs should be reduced to conserve energy.

Carter shed his dark-blue suit jacket midway through the hour-long event, rolled up his sleeves and then told Joe Penn, a semi-retired pharmacist from Riverdale, that Cuba "is the most highly militarized country on Earth per capita."

He said Cuba is "almost completely subservient" to the Soviet Union and has more than 45,000 troops overseas in countries where "they have no business." American policy toward Cuba must remain firm until it releases its political prisoners and ends its "unwarranted involvement in the internal affairs" of other nations, Carter added.

A 7-year-old boy gave the president perhaps his biggest chuckle, and brought the audience down, when he said earnestly:

"Good morning, Mr. President. My name is Christopher Stevo. Can you please tell me how we are progressing in developing new energy sources?"

Carter invited the blond-haired, bespectacled youngster from Oak Lawn on stage, then said: "When I get supporters and allies his age trying to help me resolve the energy question, I think we're on sound ground."

"fishing expedition" and said the subpoenas for Harrelson and his wife, Joan Starr Harrelson, were "unreasonable and oppressive."

"These investigations sometime take on the character of a witchhunt and people can find themselves subpoenaed for purposes that can only be described as harassment," Tessmer said in an accompanying memo.

Harrelson told reporters outside the grand jury room, "Why don't you just leave me alone."

Thirty-six witnesses are to appear before the grand jury today and Thursday, including members of the Bandidos motorcycle club and a reputed organized crime leader.

Carter Gains Little From Report

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter stands to reap only small political gains from a special investigator's favorable report on his and his family's major financial operations.

Carter is still being dogged by unsubstantiated allegations about the personal conduct of his chief of staff and shadowed, however faintly, by the indictment of his former budget director, Bert Lance.

Special Counsel Paul Curran reported Tuesday that no criminal charges will be brought in connection with $10 million in loans awarded to Carter's peanut warehouse in Georgia.

While that is good news for Carter and his political team, it doesn't carry the same weight on a positive scale as a reverse finding — one of criminal misconduct — would have brought on a negative scale.

A White House official close to the president said the investigation still carried negative connotations in the public's mind, which could not be erased by one favorable report. The official asked not to be identified.

Had Curran's findings been different, there might have been a thunderclap of critical comments. As it was, little was said.

The president's political operatives chose not to comment.

The White House issued a statement saying: "We are very pleased by the special counsel's findings."

Curran's six-month investigation focused on transactions involving the National Bank of Georgia, once headed by Lance; the Carter Warehouse in Plains, Ga.; and the Carter election committee that ran his 1976 presidential campaign. Lance is under indictment on bank fraud and conspiracy charges, but those charges were not related to Curran's investigation into the warehouse loans.

"Every nickel and every peanut have been traced into and out of the warehouse, and no funds were unlawfully diverted in either direction," Curran said.

The White House statement said: "We said from the beginning of the investigation that no monies were diverted from the Carter Warehouse into the Jimmy Carter presidential campaign or from the campaign into the warehouse, and the report shows our statements were absolutely correct."

Carter, asked about the report at a Democratic reception in Harvey, Ill., said, "I'm glad they have completed their investigation and turned their attention to crime control."

Asked how he felt about being declared "clean," he replied, "I knew it all the time."

Later, on his return to the White House, the president said, "The truth finally came out."

First lady Rosalynn Carter described the report as "wonderful news."

The Curran investigation, underway since the spring, received almost no public attention over the summer and into the fall, as Carter's political position looked more precarious with the apparent blossoming of an Edward M. Kennedy presidential campaign.

Supporters of the Massachusetts senator, perhaps mindful of the questions about Kennedy's behavior at Chappaquiddick, where a young woman died in a car Kennedy drove, did not raise high the flag of morality when criticizing the president.

Kennedy's spokesman, Tom Southwick, had no comment on Curran's findings.

He said he did not think the Curran report would have any effect on the political equation.

Still pending, in terms of political damage that could befall the president, are the outcomes of investigations involving Hamilton Jordan, the White House chief of staff.

Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti must decide whether to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate allegations that Jordan has used cocaine.

There also are allegations about whether Jordan's influence was sought in seeking help for fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

Kennedy Forces May End Florida Drive

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The head of the state's drive to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as a presidential contender says his forces may back down from challenging President Carter in an unofficial straw poll at the Democratic State Convention.

Sergio Bendixen, a Democratic National Committee member, says he will recommend against putting Kennedy's name on the Nov. 18 ballot if the Kennedy forces fail to win Miami, the only bloc of convention votes still undecided from last Saturday's county caucuses.

"If Miami doesn't come in for us, then we're not in the ballgame," Bendixen said Tuesday.

Dade County's 188 convention delegates are the only ones on Saturday's caucuses still in doubt. However, Carter seems assured of getting at least 32 delegates and Kennedy four.

Final returns from 65 of 67 counties showed 377 delegates for Carter, 125 for Kennedy, 45 on AFL-CIO slates and 27 uncommitted. The Carter forces have conceded that Kennedy also will get 115 of Broward County's 116 votes even though the count hasn't ended.

Kennedy hasn't announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination, but has hinted he may run. Carter plans to announce on Dec. 4.

At the convention, the delegates chosen Saturday will be joined by 838 other delegates picked by party leaders and elected officials.

The straw poll has no actual significance, since Florida's delegates to the Democratic National Convention will be chosen in a statewide primary next March 11.

But the poll is expected to have some psychological effect, since the Carter and Kennedy forces have devoted a great deal of effort to making a good showing early in the political season.

The tally of Miami's ballots, which surveys indicate will be close, is not expected before Thursday because of the job of determining the total for each of the 841 candidates for 188 slots in the Miami delegation to the St. Petersburg convention.

Carter campaign manager Jay Hakes said he didn't know if the president's supporters would try to put Kennedy's name on the straw ballot anyway if the Kennedy backers try to back out.

Neither will go on the ballot automatically. Convention rules allow unannounced candidates to be put on the straw ballot if they secure signatures from 425 convention delegates from at least 13 counties.

The Kennedy forces, led by Bendixen and Dade County Democratic Chairman Mike Abrams, began the caucus struggle months ago in hopes of winning most of the delegates so they could embarrass Carter in a southern state that helped him in his 1976 rise to power.

Because most of the appointed delegates are expected to favor Carter, their strategy hinged on building momentum by winning more elected delegates than Carter.

Lane Kirkland Does Not Plan To Reshape AFL-CIO Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lane Kirkland, now certain to become organized labor's chief spokesman when George Meany retires next month, has no intention of altering AFL-CIO policies that he helped shape for three decades.

"You know, I'm not a stranger coming into this house," the 57-year-old AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer told reporters Tuesday as his only potential rival for the federation presidency scrapped a planned challenge. That left Kirkland as the only announced candidate for Meany's job and all but guaranteed his elevation to the labor movement's top post.

What major policy changes would he make as only the second AFL-CIO president, a reporter asked. Why, Kirkland responded, would he consider changing course when he has had a hand on the helm?

"I've been here for quite a while and I've been part of the policy-making structure," said Kirkland, the AFL-CIO's No. 2 man for the last 10 years. "On everything we've done and every program we've undertaken, among the fingerprints are mine."

"I think, on the whole, they have been very sound (policies) and will stand the test of time."

The 85-year-old Meany, who has been suffering from arthritis and other ailments for the last eight months, announced three weeks ago that he would retire after 24 years as president of the 14-million-member federation.

Kirkland, Meany's choice as successor, announced on the same day that he would run for a two-year term as president at the federation's convention beginning Nov. 15 here.

Most labor officials had expected Kirkland to be elected without opposition until J.C. Turner, 62, president of the 400,000-member International Union of Operating Engineers, told colleagues he was considering a challenge against Kirkland. Turner said he already had a third of the votes that would be cast for president.

But Turner, who said he had been led to believe Meany would remain neutral in the contest, announced Tuesday that he was giving up any thought of running after Meany made it clear he favored Kirkland. Turner said he discussed the matter with the retiring labor leader during a meeting at Meany's home.

The meeting reportedly was not known to Kirkland, who was being interviewed by a group of reporters around the time of Turner's announcement.

Voyager 2 Sends Photos Of New Jupiter Moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pictures snapped by the Voyager 2 spacecraft have disclosed a new moon in orbit around the planet Jupiter. Traveling 67,000 miles per hour, it's the fastest moving satellite in our solar system.

The moon, temporarily designated "1979-J-1," is the 16th known to be orbiting giant Jupiter. It is only 18 to 25 miles in diameter and is circling near the outer edge of the Jovian ring, about 36,000 miles above the planet's cloud tops.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday the discovery was made by two researchers at California Institute of Technology, Dr. G. Edward Danielson and graduate student David Jewitt.

NASA said they noticed a star-like object in a picture transmitted by Voyager 2 as it passed near Jupiter last July 6. But after an extensive search they could find no stars in the vicinity.

This led to examination of another Voyager 2 photo of higher resolution "showing the same portion of the ring, the same curious object and trails of some known stars. Verification that the object was indeed a satellite of Jupiter was based on the differing angles and lengths of star trails and the trail left by the target object."

From the two pictures, an orbit was calculated independently by Jewitt and Dr. Stephen Synnott, an optical navigation engineer at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

"1979-J-1" is the closest moon to Jupiter. It is smaller than seven of the planet's other moons, and larger than six of them. The satellite takes only 7 hours and 8 minutes to complete an orbital circuit," NASA reported. "This is the fastest moving satellite in the solar system and it has the shortest orbital period."

The newly-found moon adds to an impressive list of Jovian scientific observations made by Voyager 1 when it probed Jupiter last March and by Voyager 2 in July. Among the discoveries are the ring itself, considerable volcanic activity on the satellite Io and tremendous bolts of lightning in the planet's atmosphere.

Both spacecraft are now en route to Saturn, with Voyager 1 slated to fly by that planet in November 1980.

Fraud Suspect Reappears In New York

MICHELE SINDONA
Banker Resurfaces

NEW YORK (AP) — Michele Sindona, the Italian banker charged with fraud who vanished 2 1/2 months ago while strolling down Fifth Avenue, has reappeared as mysteriously as he disappeared.

Sindona, 56, haggard and weak from a leg wound, called his lawyer's office from a telephone booth about 11 a.m. Tuesday and was picked up by his son-in-law and a lawyer.

It was not learned where he has been since his disappearance Aug. 2.

Sindona is accused of engineering the failure of the Long Island-based Franklin National Bank, the biggest bank collapse in the nation's history, by looting it of some $45 million. He was to have gone to trial Sept. 10 on those charges.

He also is wanted in Italy on charges of the theft and fraudulent use of some $225 million from banks he owned there. He has been free on $3 million bond, which was not forfeited because authorities had listed him simply as a missing person, not a fugitive.

Authorities have been divided over accepting the family's claims that Sindona was kidnapped. The family and attorneys have reported numerous notes and telephone calls from Sindona and his captors but no ransom demand was ever reported.

A spokesman said the FBI hoped to interview Sindona today.

After treatment by a private physician, Sindona was taken to Doctor's Hospital for further treatment of his wound and was put under sedation.

The FBI said authorities have no clue to how Sindona received the leg wound, or whether it is a bullet wound as the physician reported.

"We're not going to rip off the bandage to find out," an FBI spokesman said late Tuesday night.

Dr. Elliott Howard, who treated Sindona at the home of his son-in-law, Pier Sandro Mangoni, said Sindona told him he got the bullet wound three weeks ago and that he was blindfolded at the time.

The only demand in the notes and telephone calls was in a reported note to Mangoni from a group calling itself "Proletarian Justice," and saying Sindona would be killed unless the family provided "all the facts in your possession."

A similar demand was made to Sindona's Rome attorney, according to an Italian newspaper, which said an anonymous caller demanded information on the purported involvement of leading Italian businessmen and politicians in Sindona's deals.

Federal marshals mounted a search guard on the hospital roof, although the FBI said Sindona was not under arrest.

In Palermo, Sicily, Rosario and Antonio Spatola were jailed Tuesday night on orders of judges investigating Sindona's alleged kidnapping, police reported today. Sindona is a native of Sicily.

The Spatolas are co-owners with of a Sicilian bank. They are a large Sicilian construction firm. Sindona was accused of a credit scam in Sicily as an alleged attempt to deliver to Sindona's lawyer a small percentage of the bank's assets.

In the latter part of the year, Sindona asked the marshals to search for his lawyer Rosario Spatola to serve his kidnapping.

Police said the decision to arrest Rosario and Antonio, in part for questioning was a "direct consequence of Sindona's arrest."

Town Votes Out Crank Phones

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Another slice of Americana is leaving the Midwest. The last crank telephone system has been voted out of Iowa.

Residents of Grand River voted 30-15 Tuesday to ratify action taken by the City Council and become one of the last communities in the nation to convert to dial telephones.

"They told us it would probably be about two years before it would be in operation," election official Elmo Mollison said in a telephone interview.

The new franchise for the Grand River Mutual Telephone Co., with headquarters in Princeton, Mo., will mean perhaps only one crank telephone system will be left in the nation.

"Some time ago, there were two left in the United States. This is the last one in Iowa," said Mollison, who could recall only that the other system is located "somewhere in the East."

The interview was accomplished by getting the Grand River operator on the line and giving her the four-digit number for the city hall.

"I don't think there's anyone there," she said after handing the number.

"Can you give me anyone who knows the election results?" she was asked.

"It passed," she replied and then rang Mollison.

The current mutual telephone company, also called Grand River Telephone Co., is a cooperative serving Grand River's 200 residents and a small surrounding rural area. Grand River is located in south-central Iowa in Decatur County.

"This is the old-fashioned system where you have an operator and a phone you can ring, call the operator and give her the number you want," Mollison said. "If the number you want is on the system, she can ring it. If not, she calls the long distance operator at Mount Airy."

Mollison, manager of the Grand River office of the Decatur County, said most people have been satisfied with the crank telephone system, although many look forward to the new system.

Leukemia Victim's Parents Plan Return To Mexico After Burial

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The parents of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green say they will take their son's body to Nebraska for burial Saturday, then return to Mexico to await further developments in the Massachusetts contempt-of-court charges against them.

Gerald and Diana Green said Tuesday that a Massachusetts state Senate resolution urging authorities to let them return to their Scituate, Mass., home to bury Chad without fear of arrest "just came too late."

The couple became the center of controversy last January when they took their son out of the country in defiance of a Massachusetts court order barring use of Laetrile in treatment of Chad's leukemia. Custody of the toddler at that time was returned to the state.

Chad did receive Laetrile, however, at the Tijuana clinic of Dr. Ernesto Contreras. A substance derived from apricot and peach pits and bitter almonds. Laetrile is severely restricted in the United States but legal in Mexico.

Gerald Green told reporters Tuesday that "everyone across the country — in the world — that loved Chad is welcome to attend his funeral" planned Saturday at the boy's birthplace of Hastings, Neb.

The owner of the Tijuana mortuary where Chad's body has been kept since his death Friday said the Greens' attorney, William Ginsberg, planned today to make arrangements to transport the body across the border.

"I believe he will be making arrangements to have the body taken to San Diego, then flown wherever they plan the funeral," said mortuary owner Irene Gonzalez.

On Monday, Green denied reports that Contreras advised the Greens nearly six weeks ago that Chad showed signs of a relapse and should resume chemotherapy.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Advocates claim Laetrile is an effective cancer treatment, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the medical establishment in this country have said there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer.

The FDA has banned Laetrile from interstate transportation. But 20 states have legalized use of the substance within their boundaries: Alaska, Arizona, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, North Dakota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas and Washington.

In 1977, a federal judge in Oklahoma ordered the FDA not to interfere with shipment or use of Laetrile. The agency appealed the ruling in 10th U.S. Circuit Court in Denver.

On June 18, 1979, the U.S. Supreme Court, ruling on a further appeal, said the federal government may continue to ban Laetrile.

Police Widen Manhunt For Killers Of Couple

OKARCHE, Okla. (AP) — Police are widening their search for the killers of a Baptist minister and his wife, seeking two drifters the couple's two wounded children said may have taken the family car, officers said.

The bullet-riddled bodies of Rev. Richard B. Douglas, 43, and his wife, Marilyn, 36, were found Monday night in their home about five miles southeast of Okarche.

Leslie Don Douglass, 13, and Richard Brooks Douglass Jr., 16, were listed in stable condition in an Oklahoma City hospital late Tuesday.

A hospital spokesman said police were keeping a 24-hour vigil near their hospital rooms. Hospital personnel said the girl was shot at least once and the boy was wounded "several times."

"Whoever did this was trying to kill the whole family," said Canadian County Undersheriff Jerry Russell. "It's the worst thing I've ever seen."

Russell said all four had been tied up and apparently shot with a medium-caliber handgun. He said robbery was the only motive being considered thus far by investigators.

After the shootings, the children wriggled free, hopped in a car and drove to the home of Dr. Jack Berry, an Okarche physician.

"It's a miracle itself that the kids made it to the hospital," said Russell. "They were just barely alive, from what I understand," he said.

Limke said the children had reported that a man knocked on their door before 10 p.m. Monday "on the premise of using the telephone," said Tim Limke, OS-BI agent coordinating the investigation.

Once inside, another man bullied his way into the living room, and both men held the family at gunpoint before binding and gagging them, he said.

Steering Failure Cited In Crash

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Steering failure probably caused a Peruvian freighter to crash into a butane-laden barge on the Mississippi River Aug. 30, killing 12 crewmen and injuring two dozen others, Coast Guard investigators say.

The Coast Guard's final report on the crash of the Inca Tupac Yupanqui near Good Hope, La., upriver from New Orleans, will not be complete until at least January.

But Capt. Jack Howell, chairman of a four-man Coast Guard marine board of investigation, said Tuesday the likely cause of the crash was a malfunction in the 514-foot ship's steering.

"It appears to have been an electrical failure within the steering," Howell said. "Pinpointing the location of that electrical failure, I'm not too sure that we'll ever be able to do that."

Howell and other Coast Guard experts inspected the burned hulk of the freighter at dry dock in New Orleans. The freighter careened into the barge Aug. 30, killing 12 crewmen and injuring two dozen more.

Howell said extensive fire damage made it impossible to determine absolutely the cause of the electrical failure.

USDA Strikes Label Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department has withdrawn temporarily a controversial proposal to label as "U.S. ungraded" any meat which has not received a USDA Grade.

The proposal has been languishing since it was first offered in January 1978. The department went ahead and proposed again several other less controversial changes also offered nearly two years ago when the "U.S. ungraded" concept was unveiled.

The new set of proposals should progress more easily now that they are stripped of the "U.S. ungraded" proposal, which will have to stand alone.

Labeling meat as "U.S. ungraded" was adamantly opposed by the meat industry, which charged the designation would confuse consumers and imply the meat had not been inspected.

The term would have meant simply that the meat did not fall under criteria used to determine if beef is prime, choice or good.

The agency said it had not dropped the "U.S. ungraded" proposal, but would consider it separately after completion of a survey to determine consumer perceptions of beef grades. The survey will determine if consumers react negatively to the designation "U.S. ungraded."

The original 1978 proposals were withdrawn last week. Substitute proposals on which the Agriculture Department is moving ahead are designed to assure consumers that grades are as consistent and accurate as possible.

They also are intended to increase grading efficiency.

The public has been asked to file comments on the latest proposals by Dec. 17. After comments are analyzed, officials expect to develop final rules.

Under the latest proposal, meat would be graded only as carcasses or sides. Beef, mutton and lamb would be graded only at plants at which the animals being graded were slaughtered.

Veal and calf could be graded only after the hide is removed and only in the plant where the removal occurs.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman predicted the practice would reduce some grading variations that result from grading of meat first as carcasses or sides and later as quarters of wholesale cuts. Variations also result from grading at locations distant from slaughterhouses, she said.

The proposed regulations also include provisions for grading of damaged sides.

Other regulations under consideration would define "beef carcasses" more precisely to reduce confusion as to what is a carcass.

In addition, beef carcasses would have to be ribbed at least 10 minutes before they are graded to improve consistency in grading.

Officials said that would allow factors that determine grades — marbling, color, texture and firmness of lean beef — sufficient time to develop so that accurate and consistent grade determinations could be made.

In an effort to encourage removal of fat from cuts, the proposals would permit yield grade marks to be removed from graded carcasses or cuts if they have layers of fat three-fourths of an inch or less.

Officials said removing the grade marks would permit sale of low yield cuts after the fat has been removed.

The proposals also would clarify present regulations which prevent trimming to alter fat cover over ribeyes prior to grading.

The clarifications for ribeyes will deal with practices which are considered fraudulent and deceptive when the fat is trimmed before the carcass is presented for grading.

The proposals do not address major grading issues criticized by some nutritionists and consumer groups.

People concerned about reducing fat in the American diet complain that grain-fed beef that produces meat with marbling, or fat, is given high grades and would like to see the entire grading system replaced.

FBI Agents Accused Of Taking Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — One FBI agent has been fired and another suspended after Kansas City authorities alleged they had stolen money earmarked for informants and discussed participation in a theft ring, the FBI has confirmed.

The accusations are contained in an affidavit filed in U.S. District Court in Kansas City, Kan., to support a request for a search warrant. The warrant is being sought in connection with a federal grand jury investigation that began in June.

"It has been my experience as director of the FBI that allegations such as these are isolated and uncommon," William H. Webster said in a prepared statement late Tuesday.

Criminal charges have not been filed against either man. Webster said the investigation was continuing and any charges would be filed by the Justice Department.

The fired agent was identified as Alan H. Rotton, a supervisor in the FBI's Washington headquarters who formerly was stationed in Kansas City, Mo.

Rotton, reached early today at his home in Alexandria, Va., declined immediate comment on the allegations.

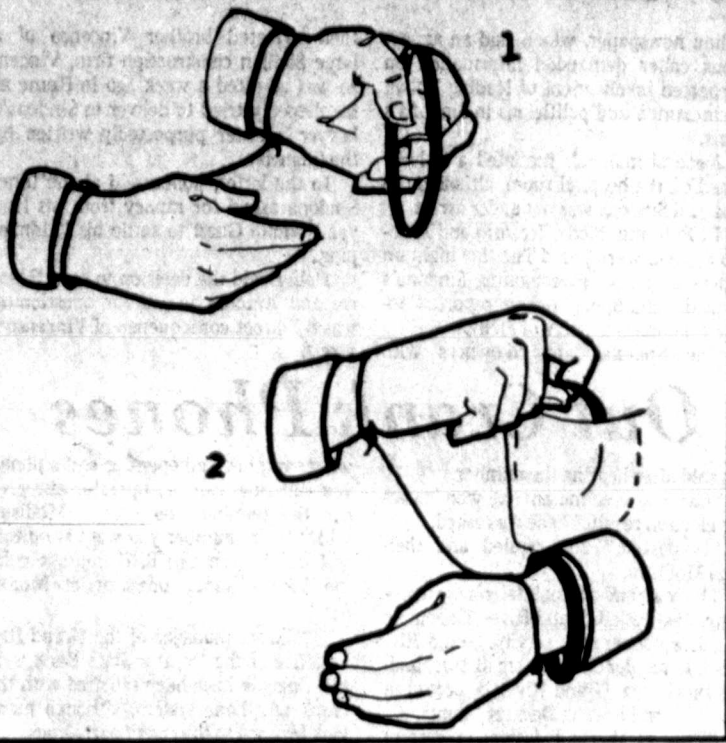

Agent Stephen Travis of the Kansas City office, who was suspended, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Travis is a military veteran and, under civil service rules, has appeal rights before any dismissal can take place, officials said. Webster said if the charges were substantiated, Travis also would face dismissal.

The affidavit says the grand jury has been hearing evidence about a possible conspiracy to defraud the United States, theft from interstate commerce and obstruction of a criminal investigation.

The affidavit includes what are presented as excerpts from several telephone calls in which Rotton and Travis allegedly discussed how to control the investigation they knew was being conducted into their activities.

Bracelet Trick Shocks Friends

By SHARI LEWIS

Yesterday I may have rattled you with all those skeleton jokes, but I did promise to make it up to you by telling you about a good magic trick today. Here it is:

Somebody will be the one end of a string to one of your wrists, and the other end of the string to your other wrist. You then hold your hands spread apart, with the string between them. Pick up a bracelet (from the table) and hand the bracelet to your friend.

You say, "Give me this bracelet, and without untying the string I will make the bracelet appear on the string." Your friend hands it to you, and you turn your back for a moment. When you once again face your friend, the bracelet has amazingly appeared on the string.

See? I told you it was going to be a good trick. This is such a good effect I hate to tell you how it's done, because the method is so dumb. (Effective, but dumb.)

You really have two matching bracelets. The second one is already on your arm, up your sleeve. (If you don't have a long loose sleeve, forget it!)

As you turn your back on your friend, you slip the bracelet that your pal has handed you into your breast pocket. (If you don't have a breast pocket, forget it!)

Reach up your sleeve (with the other hand — if you don't have another hand, forget it!) and slip that bracelet over your hand, down right onto the string. (If you don't have a bracelet that's big enough to slip over your hand, forget it!)

But actually, this trick is worth all of the effort, so don't forget it! Buy yourself two big dime store bangle bracelets, put on a suit jacket with a breast pocket and a loose sleeve, and shock your friends so they'll never forget it.

ZBA To Hear Request For Sign

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Zoning Board of Adjustment will be asked Thursday to approve a computer store's sign which is two and one-half times larger than that allowed by city regulations.

Thomas E. Sowell, representing Am- tex Computer, will appear at the 8:15 a.m. meeting in city council chambers to request a variance in requirements for an existing 96-square-foot sign at 3206-A 34th St.

Based on the store's frontage, the sign should only be 37½ square feet.

Also at the meeting, Burl Masters, representing Lubbock Cable TV, will ask for a variance in the height requirements for a microwave receiving station adjacent to a cable TV office at 68th Street and Hartford Avenue.

The dish-like receiver would be about 15 feet in diameter and about 17 feet tall. However, zoning regulations permit a structure only as tall as the main building, which is expected to be between 12 and 15 feet.

G. Randall Andrews, representing University Park Development, Ltd., will ask the board to vary the setback requirements for a shopping center at 5015 University Ave.

Andrews will request a variance of 17 feet in the setback requirements of University Avenue and 50 feet off 52nd Street.

That would place the building within 10 feet of 52nd Street and within 43 feet of University Avenue.

Other cases on the board's agenda include the requests of:

— Susan E. Nash for a variance in the minimum area requirement for residential lots at 5212 30th St.

— J.W. Newson, representing Advanced Electronics, Inc., for a variance of eight spaces in the parking requirements and a variance in the landscape requirements for an electronic service and repair shop to be located at 1310 19th St.

— Ron Thomas, representing Cardinal's Sport Center, for a special exception to allow a sidewalk sale at 3611 50th St.

— Bill Cox, representing Smith, Baker, Field, Clifford, Inc., for an eight-space variance in the parking requirements for an attorneys office at 3401 22nd St.

Mark Johnson, representing Ra-john, Inc., doing business as Monette's, for a variance in the parking requirements for a restaurant at 3621 Howard way.

— Ron Mullin, representing Oshman's Sporting Goods, for a special exception to allow a tent to be erected for a parking lot sale at 250 University Ave.

— Pat M. Allen, representing South University Veterinary Hospital, for a special exception to expand the hospital.

Jury Finds Ruben Ramos Guilty Of Lubbock Pool Hall Murder

Ruben Ramos was convicted of murder Tuesday in the April 14 shooting death of 23-year-old Curtis Pegues at an Idalou Highway pool hall.

Although Ramos, 17, took the stand Tuesday and told the 137th District Court jury that his older brother killed Pegues, the panel deliberated just two hours before returning with the guilty verdict.

Ramos waived setting of the punishment by the jury and will be sentenced later by Judge Robert C. Wright.

The defendant testified that he had talked with Pegues earlier inside Chocolate City pool hall, 308 Idalou Highway, but only to ask if he could join in a pool game. Ramos said that he then went outside to go to the bathroom because the club's bathroom was occupied and that when he started back inside he saw his older brother, Joe, arrive with another man and also go into the club.

Ramos said his brother, who also has been charged with murder in connection with the incident, fired two shots at Pegues. Ramos said he was wounded in the elbow during the melee and ran from the building beside Pegues and then to his sister's house. The defendant denied the testimony of two prosecution witnesses who said they saw the younger Ramos pump two bullets into Pegues's back as he lay motionless in the club's parking lot.

however, argued that evidence in the trial indicated that the defendant did not instigate the shooting, but that his brother did.

"The evidence shows it was a bloody murder, a terrible killing and the inescapable conclusion is that Joe Ramos is guilty of that murder," Lanehart told the 10-woman, two-man panel.

In testimony Tuesday morning, a friend of Pegues said the Ramos brothers entered the club together, but that it was Joe who fired the first shot at Pegues.

Kenneth Williams, who was playing pool with Pegues the night he was killed, was the last prosecution witness called to the stand.

Williams said Ruben entered the club first, told Pegues to "be here when I come back," and returned a few moments later with his older brother. Williams added that when Pegues lifted his hands and asked the Ramos brothers what he had done, Joe shot him.

Pegues ran out the front door followed by Ruben, Williams said, while Joe exited through a side door.

Palomo Takes Stand In Manslaughter Trial

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Marcelo Palomo Jr. this morning testified the May 31 accident in which he was involved and which killed two Lubbock boys "was just something that happened."

The 25-year-old defendant, standing trial this week for involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of one of the youngsters, told a 237th District Court jury he was not intoxicated when the accident occurred.

Palomo is on trial for the death of 9-year-old Greg Wilson. He also was charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of Kenny Ray McDowell, 10.

Both boys were riding a bicycle in the 1400-block of Parkway Drive when they were struck and killed by a car.

Palomo, of 229 Beech St., said he saw the boys as he was going down one of the small hills in the Parkway Drive canyon area. After passing another car, Palomo said, he changed lanes to avoid the youths, but the maneuver did not prevent the accident.

The defendant also testified police officers told him he had passed a breathalyzer test. In testimony Tuesday, officers said the defendant registered a .11 reading on the machine. The legal presumption of intoxication is a .10 reading on the breathalyzer.

Palomo, however, said of the breathalyzer reading, "Maybe they didn't set it right."

In earlier testimony, defense counsel Pat Simek brought out testimony that before Palomo was given the test, the machine registered a .01 reading. Prosecutor Danny Hurley, however, while questioning the officer who administered the test to Palomo, elicited testimony that the .01 variance was within accepted limits when starting a breathalyzer exam.

Court Reverses Lower Ruling In Local Suit

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — In a five to four decision, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that Lubbock Manufacturing Co. must be sued in Lubbock County for any attempt to prove its negligence in connection with a tractor-trailer explosion in South Texas which killed the rig's driver and several bystanders.

The court reversed the judgments of lower courts that the wrongful death lawsuit should be tried in Maverick County.

The legal action arose over the April 1975 accident in which a tank-trailer, loaded with liquefied petroleum gas, became disengaged from the fifth wheel of the tractor, overturned and exploded after striking a concrete headwall.

Lubbock Manufacturing was sued by the survivors of Jesus Verduzco, who was driving the rig.

According to court briefs, Lubbock Manufacturing constructed the tank-trailer.

In an opinion written by Associate Justice Charles Barrow, the majority of the Supreme Court agreed, "All acts of the manufacturer relating to the design as well as the manufacture occurred in Lubbock County. Petitioner (the manufacturer) had no connection or relationship whatsoever with Maverick County other than the fact that, unknown to it, the tank was being used in Maverick County at the time of the accident."

The four dissenting justices argued the wrongful death suit should be tried in Maverick County, contending that had been the judicial precedent for handling product liability lawsuits.

Authorities have been unable to locate 20-year-old Joe Ramos since the shooting.

Criminal District Attorney John Montford, who led the prosecution against Ramos, called Pegues's death "a calculated assassination," pointing out testimony that when the defendant first spoke to Pegues he told Pegues, "You be here when I get back."

Montford also told the panel the defendant could have gone outside following the conversation with Pegues to call in his older brother, and emphasized "the overwhelming evidence" that Pegues was unarmed when he was shot five times.

Rick Howell, who assisted in the prosecution, also slammed Ramos's testimony of coincidentally running into his brother just before the shooting as unlikely.

Defense counsel Chuck Lanehart,

Antioch College Decides To Close Texas Campuses

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Antioch College apparently is "tired of fighting for its branches in Texas" and will shut them down, according to a copyright story in the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

"I got the word on Monday," said Ellis Harbin, Texas coordinator of the Antioch branches in Austin, San Antonio and Mission.

Texas Education Commissioner Alton Bowen on Oct. 1 declared the state would no longer recognize degrees awarded by Antioch branches, pending an investigation.

Texas Attorney General Mark White rescinded that order, saying there was no legal basis for Bowen's action.

On the strength of White's decision, Antioch officials resumed enrollments for the fall semester, extending their registration deadline to Oct. 12.

But Harbin said he thinks the controversy eventually led to the shutdown.

"We're all upset," Harbin told the newspaper. "When they called me and told me about it they didn't really give me a reason. But I'll guess it's because we've been in Texas 10 years now and since day one the State of Texas has opposed us being here."

House Fire Caused By Floor Furnace

Cool weather apparently activated a floor furnace shortly before 10 a.m. today, resulting in a house fire which did more than $1,000 damage, according to the Lubbock Fire Department.

No one was injured in the blaze at 301 Vernon Ave., home of John Nelson. The fire, confined to the living room, was snuffed out minutes after firemen arrived, a fire department spokesman said.

She said the fire was the apparent result of a floor furnace turning on because of the chilly temperatures. The blaze started when a blanket covering the furnace ignited.

Vista Plans Survey Of Local Residents

Lung Cancer Cases Skyrocket In Colorado Town

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — The uranium that kept this mining town booming in the late 1940s and '50s may have given residents four times the national lung cancer rate, says a doctor who has reviewed local hospital records.

Dr. Scott McCaffrey said Tuesday that records at Mercy Medical Center, one of Durango's two hospitals, show 237 cases of lung cancer diagnosed over the past 15 years. Normally, he said, one could expect only about 60 cases for a town of 10,000 during the same period.

Durango's actual lung cancer rate may be even higher, he added, because his study did not include records from Community Hospital or from patients who may have sought treatment in Denver.

There was no immediate comment from public health officials.

What's left of the uranium boom is a 1.5-million-ton mountain of tailings — leftover material from uranium processing — on the south side of town, just across the tracks of the narrow-gauge silver mine railroad that draws thousands of tourists each year.

Within 50 meters of the 20-year-old tailings pile, radioactive radon gas has been measured at four to six times higher than the normal background level. Federal research has shown that radiation from radon, a product of the radioactive decay of what little uranium is left, causes lung cancer and other respiratory ailments.

It is "impossible to say with certainty" whether the radon seeping from the tailings pile caused the higher incidence of lung cancer, McCaffrey said, because "there are other things that cause cancer."

"I don't want to create a mood of hysteria," McCaffrey said. "But I mean to raise the question."

Last year, a New Mexico firm agreed to remove the tailings, extract remaining uranium oxide and bury the remainder 10 miles outside town. The deal collapsed when federal and state officials insisted on a 10-foot layer of dirt over the final resting place. The company said 2½ feet would suffice, and that any more would make the project economically unfeasible.

McCaffrey said the elevated cancer rate "really came as quite a surprise to me."

The next step, he said, is to look at records in the town's second hospital and check the lung cancer rate before 1964, a cutoff year he picked because he did not have time to do an exhaustive survey, and see how long the patients lived in Durango.

Earlier this year, more than 30 radioactive sites were discovered in Denver and elsewhere in Colorado — remnants of the radium industry that flourished at the turn of the century. It also has been known for years that tailings like Durango's were used as landfills and building material in Grand Junction.

A House subcommittee released a report this week saying there are more than 4,000 such radioactive sites throughout the nation. The report, from the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, recommended that Congress act immediately to eliminate the public health hazard posed by such sites.

'Big Oil' Protest Begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 1,000 retired workers picketed the headquarters of the American Petroleum Institute today, charging that high prices by the oil industry will force America's elderly to choose this winter between food and fuel.

The demonstration was part of a "Big Oil Day" protest scheduled to take place in about 100 U.S. communities.

The API, an oil industry trade group, locked its doors and posted guards, but the pickets stayed outside the building and the demonstration was peaceful.

The demonstrators, based in from Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland, carried signs with such slogans as "The Aged's Dilemma: Heat or Eat," "I don't want to freeze to death in the dark" and "API — Don't let us die."

The institute's employees led reporters behind locked doors to a news conference by API President Charles J. DiBona.

DiBona said the organizers of "Big Oil Day" were playing into the hands of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) by advocating policies that would reduce U.S. production of oil and increase this country's dependence on foreign oil.

"They are making it very possible for OPEC to raise prices," DiBona said. "They're playing right into OPEC's hands."

He said the security measures were taken because "we're concerned about the safety of our employees. We had no idea what might happen so we took simple precautions."

The API's name was removed from the building directory on the ground floor of the downtown office in which it is located.

Outside, Mrs. John Kalembe, 67, of Newark, Del., who came here with other demonstrators from the Newark Senior Center, said it was the first picket line she had ever walked, "and I don't feel very comfortable doing it."

Mrs. Kalembe, a retired postal clerk and the wife of a retired rubber worker, said she feared the price of gasoline would make her forego occasional visits to her son, who lives in Hickory, N.C.

"We won't be able to see him if gas goes to $2 or $3 a gallon," she told a reporter.

"We are marching against the API because it is the symbol of the immense power that the oil industry wields in the Congress," said William R. Hutton, executive director of the National Council of Senior Citizens, which organized the demonstration.

Led by a bus converted to run on alcohol, the demonstrators planned to take their protest to the Capitol for a rally.

Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO, sent a telegram to the rally organizers saying: "There is no more urgent business before the Congress than to curb the insatiable greed of the oil companies that are squeezing the economy dry, accelerating inflation and ripping off the American people."

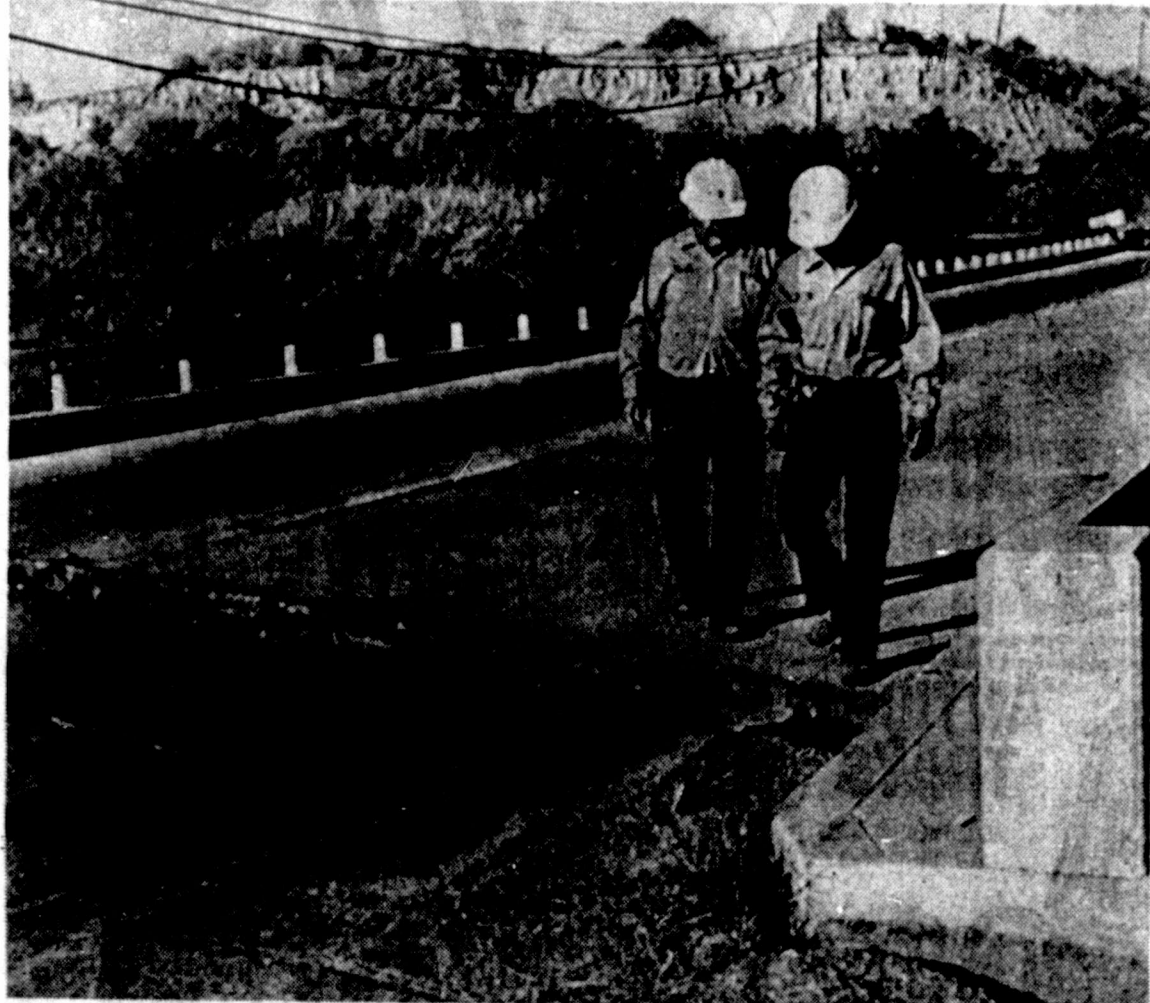

In a written statement, DiBona said the proposals of the demonstrators would cut into domestic oil production.

"Their proposals would deprive consumers of 2 million barrels of domestic oil a day, tighten OPEC's grip on the American economy, make gasoline lines more likely, export jobs to foreign countries and increase unemployment," DiBona said.

He said the API sympathized with "Americans who are distressed by today's energy prices and with the resentment felt over the inconvenience of last summer's gasoline lines."

He endorsed subsidies to help the poor meet this winter's fuel bills. But the solution, he said, did not lie in controlling prices of oil produced in this country.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Reps. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., and Harold Ford, D-Tenn., were to speak at the Capitol rally. Organizers also hoped for an appearance by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. All oppose President Carter's successful efforts to remove controls on oil and natural gas prices.

Farmers Face Problems In Aftermath Of Quake

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — After-shocks as strong as moderate earthquakes continue to joggle the valley floor, but the farm towns of Imperial County are returning almost to normal following the state's worst quake in eight years.

Damage estimates from the quake, measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale, range up to $10 million, but are expected to rise as debris is removed and experts can see hidden damage to buildings, bridges and highways.

As Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. stopped in El Centro on Tuesday, an aftershock measuring 5.2 rattled the area.

Monday's quake left cracks in State Highway 86 up to 4 inches wide. The six-story Imperial County Service building in downtown El Centro tilts to one side with its windows shattered.

Stores and restaurants have begun reopening, however.

The quake was felt in Los Angeles, 200 miles away, as well as in Phoenix, Las Vegas and San Diego. Ninety-one people were reported injured but there were no deaths.

The All-American Canal, which supplies all drinking and irrigation water for most of the valley, was damaged and flowing at about 15 percent of normal capacity. Some towns had only a two-day supply of water in reservoirs.

Imperial County Irrigation District manager Bob Wilson estimated damage at $1 million along five miles of the canal near Calexico, the border town nearest the quake's epicenter. Where the Imperial Fault intersects the canal, earthen embankments had caved in, chunks of canal wall were lifted up and cracks spread.

"A lot of farmers are going to be hurting," Wilson said. "We're holding our (storage) ponds for water for the residents. It's a bad time of the year because the tender vegetable crop is coming up — carrots and lettuce."

But his assistant, Lonnie McGlocklin, said, "We will be moving towards normal flow by Thursday. We'll be back to where it won't be a major problem."

Most gas and electrical power was restored, but lights still flickered when the earth rumbled. Pacific Telephone Co. officials said phone lines were all right, but were jammed by incoming calls.

The incessant aftershocks were a worry to firefighters overseeing the draining of 630,000 gallons of gasoline and diesel fuel at a tank farm. Three of the tanks had cracked and leaked.

Officials were worried that a jolting aftershock could spark a fire "that they'd see in Los Angeles."

Speakers Support Oil Industry, Rap Government, Jane Fonda

MIDLAND (AP) — Oil industry advocates rallied near the core of the petroleum-rich Permian Basin, lashing out at critics and chastising the federal government for "dastardly" decisions that victimize producers.

More than 1,000 people attended a pro-industry rally Tuesday in Midland, where for more than a generation the economic life blood has been pumped by oil wells that dot the West Texas region.

"We're here to support the oil industry, but we're really here to support America and fight for the free enterprise system," said independent oilman Bob Bailey, the only producer to speak at the rally.

"In some parts of the country, particularly Washington, D.C., the oil industry is held in antipathy and distrust," said rally speaker Harrell Feldt, an attorney.

"But actually, it stands for free enterprise."

Organizers called the rally to counter protests — labeled "Stop the Oil Profiteers" — by a coalition of private citizens and labor unions that scheduled the demonstrations in at least 20 U.S. cities today.

"Our government is saying leaders of the oil industry are disqualified" from helping shape a national energy policy, said Feldt. He called that decision "dastardly" and urged the noontime crowd

Collision Probe Eyes Engineer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Conrail today denied a report that the engineer of a packed commuter train may have ignored a signal and caused an early morning three-train pileup Tuesday that sent 442 commuters to area hospitals.

All but 26 of the passengers treated at 24 area hospitals had been released by Tuesday. A conductor on one of the trains, George Faust Jr., 32, of Haddonfield, N.J., was reported in critical condition early today.

The accident disrupted service on the line all day Tuesday while workers repaired track and removed damaged cars. But normal service was restored early today.

"I was standing in a rear vestibule when I suddenly found myself plastered against the wall," said Robert Burke in describing the wreck.

"The train was going at high speed when I suddenly realized he (the engineer) was applying his emergency brakes. Two seconds later — boom," recalled Burke, whose train hit the rear of another train, forcing it into the rear of the third train.

About 1,200 passengers were aboard the trains when the accident occurred about 8:15 a.m. Tuesday on the Media-West Chester line just beyond a curve in Southwest Philadelphia, officials said.

The Philadelphia Bulletin reported that Conrail officials said a preliminary investigation indicated the engineer of the last train failed to obey a signal telling him to stop and then proceed slowly.

However, Conrail spokesman Gary Fulton today denied that Conrail made the statement.

A statement released by Conrail on Tuesday said that "a preliminary investigation of the events leading to the collision revealed that the signaling system along the right-of-way was in proper working order."

A full investigation of the accident is being conducted by Conrail, the federal Railroad Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board.

The impact, which caused five of the 15 cars involved to derail, hurled passengers down aisles and into seatbacks. And with the fronts of some cars crushed, many passengers were forced to climb out windows.

The passengers, many dazed and dabbing their bloody faces with handkerchiefs, stumbled from the cars as police wagons, ambulances and rescue vehicles went to the scene.

She was born Aug. 27, 1910 in Skopje, Yugoslavia, one of three children of an Albanian shopkeeper, and her original name was Agnes Gonxha Bojaxhiu.

be few willing buyers of the buildings if they had to conform to historic district standards.

According to standards adopted for the Overton South historic district, any new construction or remodeling of existing structures would have to be compatible, but not identical to, one of the nine architectural styles featured in Overton South.

Irons said, "We cannot tie the hands of future boards and future administrators" who want to sell the buildings. "We have to sell to the highest bidder. We're talking about tax money here."

Irons added he thinks "it's great" that Overton South is attempting to preserve the neighborhood, but said he had to be concerned with the school district and not just isolated neighborhoods.

Irons pointed to the planned addition of a greenhouse at Lubbock High as a problem for the school district if the school were included in the historic district, because "any addition or renovation that would change the exterior of the building" would be prohibited.

Loter said, however, that the school district would merely have to apply to the Urban Design Commission for permission to expand and the architecture would have to be compatible with the Lubbock High architecture — "they wouldn't have to have a Spanish colonnade for the greenhouse."

Loter said he believes school officials, as well as many residents, do not understand or do not know the standards for the district.

School district attorneys and city officials have questioned whether the city could enforce the standards of the historic district on the school buildings because the two entities are two equal legal units.

Loter acknowledged the legal question involved, but said whether the buildings are included in the district or not, the school board should make a commitment to preserve the architecture of a school like Lubbock High.

honest and the psychopathic thief who will steal and feel no remorse."

He said it is the neurotic thief who will steal because the opportunity is there.

"The neurotic thief will only steal if three basic criteria are present: the need for money, the ability to steal undetected and a rationalization that what he is doing is all right."

Henry emphasized that eliminating the ability to steal while going undetected is the key to stopping internal theft.

"The neurotic thief doesn't like to steal. He does it because he knows he won't be caught. If you eliminate his ability to go undetected, he'll stop stealing."

Henry said 85 percent of the population fit into the neurotic category, 5 percent are psychopathic stealers and can't be helped and 10 percent are totally honest.

He said it is in years of recession when internal theft is at its peak, citing double-digit inflation, higher gas prices and high interest rates as reasons people begin stealing.

"In 1976, 34 percent of all businesses that failed to stay in business was due to employee theft," he said.

"For every $1 a customer steals, an employee will steal $4, according to statistics compiled by the U.S. Commerce Department."

Henry said the proper inventory controls and internal security methods would help eliminate the problem. He suggested formal training programs for all new employees so they know it would be hard for them to steal, strict punishment programs for those who get caught stealing and placement of undercover agents in stores where the problems are the greatest.

As for Henry, he said the pressures built up from his own greediness finally snapped and he made restitution about 10 years ago.

Problems With Recession Measured By Location

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Will there be a recession? What will it be like? How bad will it be? The answers depend a lot on what part of the United States you live in.

There is much dispute about recessions these days, but one thing is clear — their impacts are rarely even-handed.

Chase Econometrics Associates, a well-known economic forecasting firm, Tuesday gave Congress' Joint Economic Committee this view of where it believes the current recession will be felt:

— The northeastern United States — from New England to the Great Lakes — will bear the brunt. Unemployment there will average almost 9 percent, while averaging only 7 percent in the rest of the country.

— The mountain and Southwest states will be affected least. Although recession normally means an economic decline, these areas will continue to grow.

— Growth in the Pacific, Southeast and farm belt states will slow significantly, but not decline.

One measure of growth is the number of people employed. Chase expects this to drop by an average of 1.3 percent in 1980 in the Northeast (including New England and the Mid-Atlantic and East North Central states) while climbing in the rest of the country by an average of nearly 0.4 percent.

Another is real personal income — income from all sources after accounting for inflation but not for taxes. Chase expects this to decline 0.6 percent in the Northeast, while rising 0.3 percent in the rest of the country.

All this is for a recession that Chase believes already has begun and will result in a national unemployment rate of 8 percent in 1980 compared to 5.8 percent last September.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller gave the committee a similar picture of how the recession will vary in different regions, although he didn't put it in exact numbers.

The administration is forecasting a somewhat less severe recession than Chase, with unemployment rising only to about 6.9 percent.

High Costs Hit Rental Market

CHICAGO (AP) — The high cost of borrowed money will make it increasingly difficult for people to find apartments, and renters will have to pay more for less space, housing experts say.

"The rental market has reached the crisis stage," said Lawrence Simons, assistant secretary for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. "And every indication is that the situation will get steadily worse."

Long-time apartment residents will be displaced, rents will become even more inflated, buildings will deteriorate and get overcrowded, Simons told the annual Mortgage Bankers Association conference on Tuesday.

"I cannot in good conscience urge all of you to go out and invest in unsubsidized rental housing," he said. "It is just not a good investment."

Simons said the Carter administration "knows the problem and (is) working on the answer" but he would not be specific.

Many bankers, however, say the solutions, already elusive, have become virtually impossible as interest rates rise to unprecedented levels. Some developers may pay as high as 18 percent to 20 percent for loans, the bankers said.

The inflated interest rates — a result of Federal Reserve Board anti-inflation policies — aggravate already severe problems. These include rent controls, tenant disorders, and the loss of many upper-income renters to home ownership, particularly condominiums.

Currently, only about 5 percent of the nation's apartments are vacant, the government says, an uncomfortably small number.

Nevertheless, numerous banking experts say the estimate may be deceptively large.

"That 5 percent mainly represents apartments being painted before a new tenant arrives," said Kenneth Dickinson, senior vice president of Cameron-Brown Co., a Raleigh, N.C., mortgage firm. "A 95 percent occupancy rate is tantamount to a 100 percent rate," he added.

Alan Schiffman, a Miami consultant says the vacancy rate in Dade County, Fla., is only 1 percent; so is the rate in Seattle, Wash. The situation is just as serious in Los Angeles and Atlanta, says the Mortgage Bankers Association.

CAR CONSULTANT — Mike Fitzgibbons, a former car salesman, talks on the telephone with a customer in his new business — Automotive Consulting Service. The business started because Fitzgibbons didn't like the tactics of most salesmen. Fitzgibbons helps buyers find the best deal possible, charging 10 percent of what he saves the buyer. (AP Laserphoto)

Car Counseling Agency Attempts To Make Buyer, Dealer Happy

BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. (AP) — Mike Fitzgibbons, a former car salesman, says he lacked the killer instinct some auto dealers seek in their salesman. That's why he started an automotive consulting service to help match buyers with the right buggies.

"What I try to do is get a deal where the dealer makes a fair profit, the salesman gets a fair commission and the buyer gets the car he wants for a fair price," he said.

Fitzgibbons, 39, says his recently established Automotive Consulting Service charges 10 percent of whatever it can save a car or truck buyer.

The minimum fee is $25 and the maximum is $100 — but Fitzgibbons says he scales down the charge for a retiree "who already has paid his dues and is trying to live on a fixed income. If I don't save him anything, I don't charge anything."

When a prospective buyer comes to him, Fitzgibbons first counsels on what car to buy. Many people know only what they want — not what they need, he says. They also discuss the options the car should have, and what the client's trade-in vehicle should bring.

The customer then goes shopping and returns to Fitzgibbons to report on the "best deal" he found. Fitzgibbons then tries to better the deal.

That's where his expertise and "connections" become important, Fitzgibbons says. He knows dealers' costs, including that of options, "right down to the cigarette lighter," and also is aware of manufacturer rebates to dealers and which dealers are "short of money."

Fitzgibbons examines the deal and tells the customer what to offer when he returns to the dealer. If the dealer won't accept the offer, Fitzgibbons finds one who will.

Fitzgibbons tells his clients not to believe a dealer who says he can't provide the car and options that are wanted and tries to persuade the buyer to take something else, frequently "loaded" with extras.

"If the dealer doesn't have the car the customer wants, he can get it," Fitzgibbons says. "Dealers have a locator system and they trade cars with other dealers. They do it all the time. Or they can order the car from the factory, with exactly what the buyer wants in the way of options."

Fitzgibbons recalls selling a new car to a retired couple who traded in a van. He made an offer that was fair to the buyer "and which the dealership should be able to live with." But the manager squeezed another $1,000 out of the couple, and it bothered Fitzgibbons.

He saw customers buying cars without the options they wanted and with options they didn't want. It was that type of thing that got him to thinking about quitting to go into automotive consulting.

Car salesmen are trained to intimidate customers and to "stay in control," Fitzgibbons says.

Official Says Cartel Losing Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister says the oil cartel has lost control and it is up to consumers to stop price boosts "before it is too late."

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani told reporters Tuesday night after a speech to a group of geologists: "I think we are losing control of everything."

He called for a slowdown in consumption and curbs on buying on the spot market, where prices are far above those set by Saudi Arabia and other cartel members.

Oil is selling on the Rotterdam spot market for $40 a barrel or more.

By contrast, OPEC's official ceiling price is $23.50 a barrel. And Saudi Arabia sells its oil at $18 a barrel, the lowest price charged by any of the cartel members.

Yamani said OPEC's loss of control "is due to the high consumption and loss of control on the Rotterdam market."

"The consumers are responsible for this," he said. "You have to do something about it before it is too late."

Earlier this month, after appeals from President Carter, Saudi Arabia announced it would produce 9.5 million barrels a day through the end of the year — 1 million barrels above the production level last spring.

"We did our part," Yamani said. "It is now your turn to do something."

In his speech to the U.S. Geological Survey, Yamani said drilling for new wells in the United States this year is expected to decrease by 5 percent from 1978. This would reverse a trend stimulated partly by the quadrupling of oil prices after the 1973 Mideast War.

In 1978, for instance, drilling for new wells in the United States increased by 13 percent. The number of wells drilled since 1974 has about doubled. Yamani told the U.S. Geological Survey.

He said this year's decline may be due to inflation neutralizing the effects of price hikes.

"I hope that this reduced rate does not mark the beginning of a new cycle of lethargy in drilling activity," he said.

OPEC Officer Sees Moderate Price Boost

TOKYO (AP) — The chairman of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said today oil prices "are bound to go up at the next meeting of OPEC but not at the steep rate that some oil producing countries would like to see."

Mana Saeed Al Oteiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates and current chairman of OPEC, told Japan's minister of international trade and industry, Masumi Esaki, "OPEC's actions will reflect a sense of responsibility toward the rest of the world," a spokesman for Esaki reported.

Oteiba told Esaki that hard-line OPEC members have been putting pressure on the organization to have a special emergency session in order to raise the $23.50-a-barrel OPEC ceiling currently supposed to be in effect. The next scheduled session of the oil export cartel is in December.

Libya broke through the ceiling this week, raising its price to about $26 a barrel.

Oteiba reportedly defended the cartel's price-setting, saying, "If there were no OPEC at this moment, oil prices would be in far greater turmoil and the effect on the world economy would be far worse."

In discussions with Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, Oteiba was quoted as saying, "These are times when oil is so important one could sell it at any price but it is necessary to take a moderate stand on the price issue."

He said price rises have to take into consideration what effect more expensive oil will have on developing countries, the world economy, and inflation.

Carter Decides To Stick With Political Game Plan

By DON McLEOD
 WASHINGTON (AP) — In football, a team that sticks with its game plan under pressure has a better chance of winning than one that changes signals. In politics, that's what President Carter has decided to do in the face of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge.

Soviets Assail U.S. Reporter

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya has accused a Washington Post Moscow correspondent of distorting facts in reporting that the Soviet oil industry is facing a crisis. The paper also implied the reporter, Kevin Klose, worked for the CIA. Sovietskaya Rossiya said Klose made his facts up "out of thin air" in a Sept. 1 article it said was inspired by a CIA report predicting serious problems for the Soviet oil industry. "For many years Klose worked on his paper as a police reporter," Sovietskaya Rossiya said. "Even then he made contacts with special services of various types. These contacts subsequently grew into closeness, of the closest kind, and now the Washington Post correspondent is zealously singing the same tune as the CIA."

After soulful deliberation, the White House and the Carter-Mondale Committee announced last week that Carter will make his presidential announcement on Dec. 4, more than two weeks after his first showdown with Kennedy.

This was a deliberate decision to wait for their own time instead of announcing early in reaction to the inroads of the Kennedy draft movement in Florida. Although Kennedy is not a candidate, his boosters have mounted a highly active and professional campaign in Florida, where caucuses Saturday will begin the first test of the 1980 presidential nomination battle.

Delegates chosen in the caucuses will go to a state convention in St. Petersburg, where they will cast straw ballots Nov. 18 for their presidential favorites.

The vote will have no official meaning whatsoever because Florida's delegates to the Democratic National Convention won't be chosen or committed until the primary next March.

But if Kennedy, who already leads Carter in public opinion polls, should defeat him even in a non-binding preference vote in Florida, it could cripple the president for the early primaries next year.

Nevertheless, Carter chose to stick to his plan, and for these reasons:

- Although obviously concerned, he is not all that unsure about Florida.
- Rushing an announcement to boost his cause in Florida would have been an obvious sign of panic and could have done more harm than good.

— And Carter still thinks his best chance of a political recovery lies in his doing well in Washington this fall. Any overtly political turn to his presidential role might have endangered legislative successes that he hopes will help him later. "And the game plan makes sense," a campaign official said. "There was a reason for it. For one thing, we want the president to run on his record, and we want the record to be as good as possible."

"We don't want to distract him from his legislative program for the next month or six weeks," the official said. "Right now, things are going better on the Hill."

In his news conference last week, Carter confirmed this strategy, saying the December date is "late enough to give me a chance to do what I can with this year's Congress," but in time to meet the primary filing deadlines.

And there are other tactical considerations. Kennedy's best chance will come Saturday, when roughly half the Florida convention delegates will be chosen.

These will come from the rank and file, where grassroots organizing and his personal popularity will have the most impact. The other half will come from public and party officials more tied to the survival of the Carter administration.

"We hope to carry the caucuses, but even if we had a bad loss in the caucuses it would be possible for us to still win the straw vote," one Carter adviser said.

Just a look at the calendar, then, shows Carter couldn't have put together a respectable announcement before Saturday, and an announcement after that time would have been too late to help him over the toughest obstacle he faces before December.

The planned announcement is an elaborate affair, coordinated with local events and kicking off a week of campaign travel by Carter, his wife and Vice President Walter F. Mondale. It could not have been rushed without risking chaos.

Nevertheless, last week's unusually conspicuous announcement of an announcement sent a signal to supporters in Florida. It was as much of a gesture as his managers thought necessary.

And Carter clearly had begun to counter-attack against the Kennedy threat. His campaign committee filed formal charges with the Federal Election Commission charging the Kennedy draft committees with illegally conspiring to coordinate their fund-raising and targeting activities.

Carter may be playing catch-up ball, but the game plan has survived the anxiety attacks brought on by Kennedy's challenge.

Irons Opposes Listing Schools As Landmarks

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A recommendation against designating two schools as historic landmarks within the new Overton South Design-Historic District will be considered Thursday morning by the Lubbock school board.

School district administrators are recommending that Lubbock High School and Thompson Junior High School be commemorated with a simple historic marker rather than be included in the district and designated as historic landmarks.

The school buildings are among 10 structures approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission in September as historic landmarks within the Design-Historic District.

Administrators oppose classifying the schools as historic landmarks because according to standards approved for the district, any new construction or remodeling of existing structures would have to be compatible with one of nine architectural styles featured in Overton South.

Superintendent Ed Irons said the school district would be "frozen in" by the restrictive standards should the district ever want to demolish or sell any part of the two schools.

Irons said that if the school district wished to build another structure to add on to Thompson Junior High, for instance, "We wouldn't want to build it in the 1920s vintage" prevalent in the Overton South area.

He added that future sales of the two buildings could be a problem if the buyer was required to conform to Design-Historic District standards.

Beverly Stribling, chairman of the Urban Design Commission, explained that the regulations for structures designated as historic landmarks within the district are slightly different from the

CD Funding Priorities Suggested

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY and RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Housing improvements were named as top priority for federal Community Development funds by a group of East Lubbock residents Tuesday night, while across town, a gathering of West Lubbockites said their share of $3.3 million in federal CD funds should be spent on zoning and housing code enforcement.

The West Lubbock group also honored nine police officers for their swift arrest of a suspect in the August slaying of Texas Tech graduate student Claude Bridges, a resident of the neighborhood.

The two gatherings were part of a series of public meetings to solicit input on proposed CD projects in low to moderate income areas.

The nearly 30 residents gathered at Posey Elementary school named housing rehabilitation as their area's most pressing need for the federal funds.

The group also requested that current CD-funded rehabilitation projects in the East Lubbock neighborhood be expanded to include property lying between 19th and 18th Streets and Quirt Avenue and Guava Street.

The city tentatively has allocated $200,000 for neighborhood rehabilitation in the Posey Elementary area. An equal sum also has been set aside for rehabilitation in the Elliston neighborhood, just north of Posey.

Several residents complained that many areas in the neighborhood "are a mess and need to be cleaned up."

Isaac Jimenez said the area between David Street, Main Street, Fig Avenue and the Idalou Road particularly are unsightly.

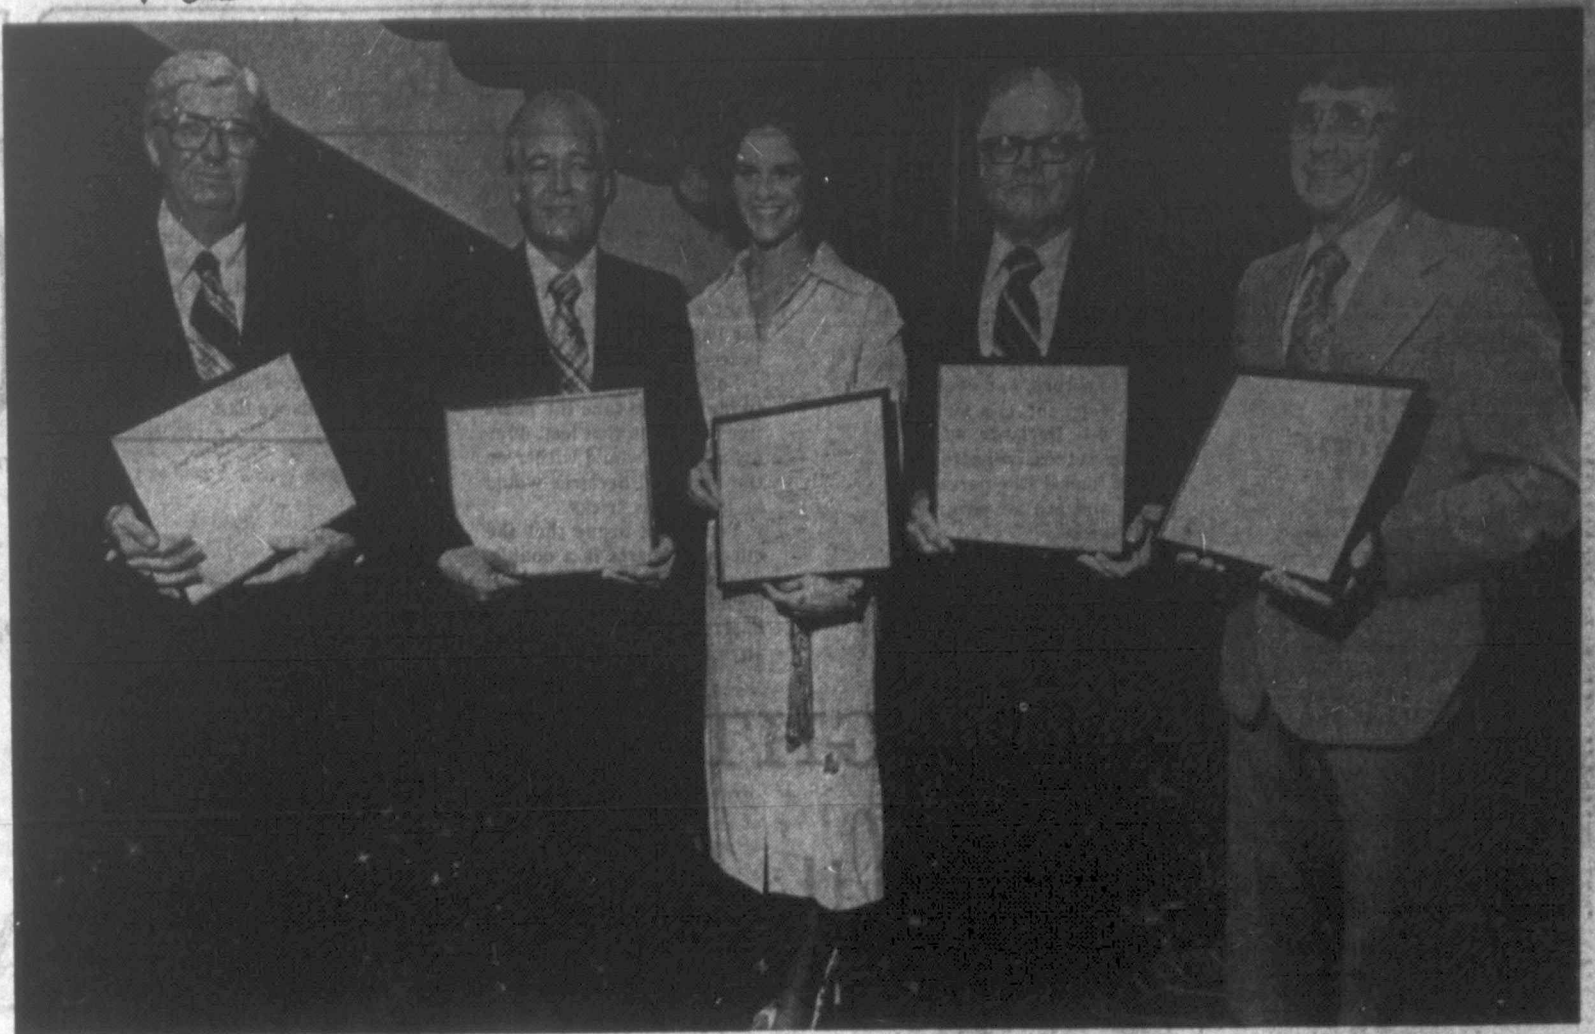

An area surrounding the 19th Street and Vanda Avenue intersection also was termed "a mess," by Vicente Arridondo, who added that road conditions sometimes are bad enough that "the mailman can't even get to the mailbox."

But while some residents stressed that clean-up operations were a strong need for the Posey neighborhood, others asked whether CD funding should be used for such maintenance uses "when it is needed so badly for other things."

Residents also named a weatherization program to insulate homes of the elderly and a shelter for battered women.

Action Awards are made for contributions enhancing the South Plains cultural environment. This year's honors went to the late Roy and Lela Furr, James Spears, the Lubbock Symphony Guild and the Lubbock City Parks and Recreation department.

The three Furr children received individual plaques for their parents' many cultural contributions over the years.

Spears received the award from Dr. John Bradford for his work toward achieving goals of Committee 70. The committee was set up to broaden the base of citizen involvement, achieve representation and cooperation among all cultural and ethnic groups, provide exposure to the best in visual arts and the history of the area, and encourage a general awareness of the need for beauty of environment.

The symphony guild was lauded by James G. Allen, who presented the award to Mrs. Carl Cannon for its musical contributions and especially for its work with the summer pops program.

John Alford accepted the city parks award from Bob Nash, who detailed how the department had made arts and crafts readily available to all city residents.

Coffee Conner, who moved from vice president to fill the vacant presidency position earlier in the year, was elected to his own term as president. Walter Taylor was named vice president, Ruby Tom Maeker was elected secretary and

Airplane Safe After Dual Tire Blowout

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — There were no injuries or problems Tuesday when the two front tires on a Boeing 727 blew out as the airliner was landing at San Antonio International Airport, officials said.

The dual blowout on Continental Airlines Flight 226 occurred shortly after the plane touched ground and was half-way down the runway, officials said. The plane, which was carrying more than 60 passengers, remained on the runway.

Charles Pope was chosen as treasurer. New members of the executive committee are Taylor, Carroll McDonald, Bill Armstrong, Mrs. Harris Underwood, and W. G. McMillan Jr.

Trustees named include Taylor, Vernon Clem, Roy Holmes, Mary Louise Livermore, Charles Perry, Ron Ritchie, Grey Lewis, John Logan, Mrs. Charles Maedgen Jr., Giles McCrary, Dill Edd McLaughlin, Fred Timberlake and Joe Ayers.

The flight originated in Houston and was scheduled to end in El Paso. There was a 90-minute delay while the tires were replaced, officials said.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Seven of ♣.

There is an old bromide: "Second hand low," which can best be described as a crutch for those who are unable to walk without assistance. For those who are completely ambulatory, the rule for second hand is the same as for any other hand: "Think before you play!"

Because of his plethora of aces and kings, South judged his hand to be worth more than 18 points, so he opted to show his strength by opening one of a suit and jumping in no trump. North's hand was more designed for suit play, so he suggested an alternate contract by rebidding his hearts. But with only a doubleton heart, South correctly persisted in no trump.

West led his fourth-best club and declarer held up until the third round. Then he led a low heart, and West reflexly played second hand low. The contract could no longer be defeated.

Declarer inserted the nine of hearts, and East won the jack. However, he had no club to return, and even if he did, it meant the suit was split 4-4. Declarer won the spade return, repeated the heart finesse (the percentage play) and ran for cover with nine tricks.

Had West inserted the queen of hearts when the suit was first led, he would have scuttled the contract. Declarer could not afford to let him hold the trick, for then West would cash two more club tricks to beat the hand. He would therefore have to win the king, and his only hope of making the contract would be to play West for specifically Q-J-x in hearts.

So, declarer would return to his hand to take the heart finesse. When that lost, dummy's hearts would wither on the vine and declarer would be held to six tricks.

You might argue that the queen of hearts is a double-dummy play. Not so. If declarer has the jack of hearts, he is going to finesse anyway and bring in the suit.

And in the unlikely event that South has three hearts, it makes no difference what West does; declarer will always be able to get to dummy. At worst, the play of the queen of hearts might cost a trick. At best, as we have seen, it stands to gain a small fortune. Those are the kind of odds we like.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: The other evening I saw an outstanding ballet company perform. At the end, the audience responded with enthusiastic applause, but as the dancers took their first curtain call a large percentage of the audience rushed out of the theater, no doubt hurrying to get to their cars first.

These people were not only being rude to the performers but to others in the audience by obstructing their view of the stage.

As an actress, I have felt anger and resentment after having given my all in a performance only to be deprived of my few moments of glory because some people didn't want to stick around for an extra five minutes.

The curtain call is important to performers. It's the only opportunity we have to step out of our roles and express our gratitude to an audience that rewards us with their applause.

Please print this, Abby, to remind audiences that performers need those few precious moments of appreciation. Withhold my name and sign me...

ACTRESS

DEAR ACTRESS: Name withheld (but I'm saving your letter). Take another bow for a beautiful letter on behalf of all performers.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has this long-time girlfriend I'll call Muriel. She's my wife's age (30), divorced, fairly attractive, but doesn't have a steady man. Muriel fancies herself to be some kind of femme fatale and has given me the come-on several times, but I've never given her any encouragement.

A couple of months ago, after I had taken my wife and Muriel to a disco, my wife told me Muriel had called her at work and said that I had propositioned her!

Abby, I don't know what Muriel's game is, but I am fed up with her. I have never fooled around, but if I decided to start, it wouldn't be with Muriel. I have the feeling my wife isn't convinced that I am totally innocent. How should I handle this?

NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT: Ask your wife to invite Muriel over. In the presence of both you and your wife confront her about her accusations. If your wife is really a good friend, she will encourage Muriel to get professional help. The poor girl could be less malicious than disturbed.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to your response to the 82-year-old man who wants to marry a woman 20 years his junior! May I add:

I am 34, beautiful, well-educated and popular. I've had wealthy, young professional men beg me to marry them, offer me trips to Europe. One wanted to buy me a $17,000 Cadillac! I turned them all down because I am deeply in love with a 70-year-old man who has never given a material gift to me in the two years we've been caring for each other. What he has given me is an incomparable inner joy I've never felt with anyone else. He's so alive, warm and loving. I thank the Lord for this wonderful man daily.

I have proposed to him, but he had cold feet. I know he loves me, but he's "too old" for me. (He has never married.)

We are both workaholics, so we don't get to see each other more than a few hours every week.

I love him, I want him, and I'd marry him tomorrow. So, to all those men up in age and reluctant to marry a younger woman, I say, "I'd rather be an old man's darling than a young man's slave."

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

In wrapping up the garbage the other day, my eyes caught a story about executives who were complaining about the five most time-consuming events in their day.

They included (a) telephone conversations, which wore them down; (b) mail, especially on Mondays; (c) meetings, which were often ego trips for the people who called them; (d) business lunches, in which the conversations were often indigestible, and (e) commuting, which is nothing to do.

Do you know what that sounds like to a woman who stays at home? A free pass to Disneyland.

The home front has an entirely different set of time-wasters which I have listed below in no particular order.

Looking for my reading glasses. I spend an average of four hours a day trying to find my glasses so I can read labels, manuals, instructions, and recipes on how to save time.

Having a meaningful conversation with my husband. When the history of waste is written, having a conversation with a man who is comatose will go down as the most futile exercise of all time. Little teasers like, "What do you want for dinner?" "Why would Sgt. Miller, 13th precinct, be calling you?" "Dr. Foxfire wants to talk with you about your tests." "It only cost $450, but I figured you only live once," all fall on deaf ears.

Cleaning the bathroom. I am convinced nothing will ever come of this. Within minutes, yea, seconds, the tiles will bead up with moisture, hair will sprout in the drain and begin to grow, towels will fall to the floor, soap will turn to liquid, empty shampoo bottles will multiply, faucets will drip and toilets will run.

Packing school lunches. It's something to do while the kids are going through the dirty clothes hamper looking for their favorite underwear or writing a 500-word essay on "The Analysis of Inert Gases in the Earth in Relation to the Solar System," which was assigned the first day of school and is due today.

In an informal survey, only two percent of the lunches are ever eaten. A total of 18 percent are left on the school bus, 53 percent are left by the sink, 27 percent are traded for gum, rubber snakes, pens, junk food or a large rubber band that when tied around your wrist turns your hand purple.

The other night I asked my husband, "How was your day?" He talked for 45 minutes and then asked, "What did you do all day?"

Thank goodness, we didn't waste time listening to one another's answer.

Writer Sees Threat To Career Ambitions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The saying that life begins at 40 has comforted a few generations of middle-aged Americans, but Jerome Rosow says career life could end at 40 for many bright young people born in the baby boom after World War II.

Rosow, a former assistant secretary of labor, is president of the Work in America Institute. His views on potential problems for executive-level talent and some proposed solutions are contained in an article in the Advanced Management Journal.

Demographics and social change have caused a population explosion in the middle management bracket that the nation is ill prepared to cope with, he says. The number of persons in the prime working age group, 25 to 44, will have jumped to 60.5 million by the end of the next decade from 39 million in 1975.

Equal employment laws that have opened opportunities to women and minorities and the opening of college and graduate school to a vastly larger proportion of youth has enlarged the middle age executive population bulge.

In the periods before inflation, reduced productivity and intense foreign competition began to plague the economy, Rosow says American companies tried to meet the problem of the executive bulge by lowering the retirement age to 62 or even earlier.

But that no longer works. Longevity has increased and many executives want to stay on the job longer. By passing the Age Discrimination Act, which raised the mandatory retirement age to 70, Congress has helped people who want to keep active but has aggravated the middle-management bulge.

Rosow says the bulge already is creating fierce competition for promotion and survival in the middle executive ranks, leading to bitterness and frustration for those who lose out in the struggle. Since there are more losers than winners the lower morale could result in a further decline in American productivity, he says.

The classic solution for such a bulge is pruning of employment ranks, but Rosow offers some productive alternatives.

He proposes a variety of retraining programs and "lateral moves" with various job enrichment proposals for the middle management persons who lose out in the race for promotion. He urges "educational sabbaticals" for executives who have found their original skills made obsolete.

He argues it will be cheaper in the long run to pay for educational updating than to carry such executives as managerial producers — which the present legal and social climate may compel.

"In a society plagued by inflation and other drains on personal income, job advancement is more than a mark of success; for many it's an economic necessity," Rosow says.

Early retirement is being challenged, he said, principally because of inflation which erodes pensions and creates uncertainty about the future. And retirees in their 50s have had to deal with stereotypes about age that previously applied to employees over 60.

If a company has a greater number of middle-level executives than it can advance, Rosow says, "it must respond somehow to these people and their hopes and expectations (with) greater candor, earlier warning and choices for some to opt out."

SECRET OF YOUTH? — For almost 100 years, arthritic sufferers from around the world have traveled to Mount Clemens, Mich., to soak their pained limbs in the dark and briny mineral water pumped into numerous bath houses, the last of which closed in 1974. Attendee Karl Lynn, 86, is shown in a stainless steel whirlpool tub, one of four installed in a hotel last year in hopes of revitalizing a tradition. The swastika designs in the floor are symbols of peace and friendship. (AP Laserphoto)

Girl Achieves Swimming Goal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Suzannah Miller, 11, of Tiburon, Calif., has become the youngest girl to ever swim the Golden Gate between San Francisco and Marin County.

"It's been my goal for almost a year," Suzannah said after completing the feat Monday. "I want someday to get to the Olympics."

The sixth-grader was accompanied on her 1 1/4-mile swim by Denis Rice, 48, a veteran swimmer and Marin County supervisor. They plowed through the strong current and chilly, 59-degree water in 29 minutes and 45 seconds.

The youngest person ever to swim across the Golden Gate was Dick Poe, 9, of San Carlos, Calif., who accomplished the feat in 38 minutes in 1955.

The previous record for a girl was set last year by 12-year-old Lorelei Morino of Daly City, Calif.

Forecasters Caught Off Guard

By CHET CURRIER
 NEW YORK (AP) — The sudden break in stock and bond prices that rocked Wall Street last week caught some market forecasters off guard.
 But a good many others had taken a negative view of the outlook in advance of the selloff, even as the market was coasting along at its highest level of the year.
 And several predicted the decline with notable accuracy.
 Those are the conclusions that emerge from an informal sampling of more than a dozen representative brokerage-house and investment advisory letters published in the days leading up to the market slide.
 Among the optimists was the Merrill Lynch Market Letter for Oct. 8, which stated "The technical picture continues to indicate the likelihood of no more than a moderate reaction from current levels in the weeks ahead."
 And the Oct. 8 edition of Standard & Poor's weekly publication "The Outlook" declared, "The underlying up-trend in stock prices seems likely to be extended." (The firm did advise the "risk-averse income investors" among its readers to reduce their stock holdings a bit).
 The Inger Letter, published in St. Louis, forecast "no fall this fall" in its Sept. 27 issue. "We believe that a defini...tive upside move is near, and that many bull market records will be set."

 Lined up on the bearish side, however, was Market Logic, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., advisory letter whose Oct. 5 issue declared: "Despite all the Federal Reserve's recent tightening moves, money supply is still growing at a fast clip."
 "If Fed Chairman (Paul) Volcker means what he is saying (e.g., 'If we're going to get inflation under control, we have to look at the money supply'), the Fed will have to clamp down a lot harder."
 "That means that the short term outlook is for higher interest rates, with a growing threat of an old-fashioned credit crunch. In the face of risks like this, large liquid reserves are appropriate."
 The LaLoggia Letter, published in Rochester, N.Y., declared on Sept. 14: "The stock market is on the verge of a significant decline. The prime rate has hit the 13 percent level and will move higher in the weeks ahead. Investors who purchase stocks on margin will soon be paying 15 percent interest on money borrowed from their stockbrokers."
 "Even a minor stock market selloff could trigger a wave of forced margin selling as interest charges pile up while stock prices decline."

Such margin selling, whether forced or voluntary, was widely cited as a contributing factor in the slide that drove the Dow Jones industrial average down some 65 points between last Monday's opening and mid-afternoon Wednesday, before the market began to steady.
 And analysts agreed that new moves by the Federal Reserve to clamp down on credit, which touched off an unprecedented increase in the bank prime lending rate from 13 1/2 to 14 1/2 percent, set the decline in motion.
 Investors Intelligence, a Larchmont, N.Y., service that monitors the recommendations of dozens of advisory letters across the country, reported that as of early this month 40.2 percent of those letters fell into the "bear" category, while 29.3 percent were bullish and 30.5 were calling for a "correction." — a short-term decline in a generally rising market.

 In other words, the majority were right, if only by a modest plurality. That might not seem so impressive at first glance, but consider, if you will, that many knowledgeable Wall Street analysts routinely expect the majority to be wrong.
 Investors Intelligence itself uses the figures as an indicator of what NOT to do. As it says in explaining its philosophy: "Since most advisory services are trend followers, they are most bearish at market bottoms and least bearish at market tops."
 Marboev, who identified himself as a coal mine worker on Sakhalin Island off Siberia, told Japanese investigators he drank two bottles of vodka to warm himself in the cold weather while duck hunting. He fell asleep and ended up at Sarufutau Port.
 Aleksandr Nikolaevich Markeev, 29, fell asleep in his boat and drifted into a small port on Japan's northern-most main island of Hokkaido.

Russian Drifts To Japan Port

TOKYO (UPI) — A Russian duck hunter who drank too much vodka and drifted into Japan on a small boat, will be deported to the Soviet Union next week, immigration officials said.

DR. LAMB

Extensive Hemorrhoids

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a long history of hemorrhoids. At first they'd bleed profusely after a bowel movement. For a while I had some discharge associated with them and was in the hospital for treatment but no operation. I've had a complete examination several times including careful examination of my colon and nothing other than the hemorrhoids has ever been found.
 They're so large that after a bowel movement hemorrhoids bigger than my thumb will stick out and need to be replaced. It's a daily problem of cleaning up and wearing pads to keep from soiling my clothes.
 On my last check-up the doctor at a public health hospital and his assistant did a very thorough examination and said I had both large internal and external hemorrhoids. He said the rubber band treatment wasn't for me and that he would advise against surgery because I might end up with a problem of controlling my bowels. Presumably the sphincter would be affected.
 He thought I should try to live with the problem. But if I decide I can't live with it, he will operate. The whole thing is a real nuisance. I guess my question is: Do I try to live with it or should I take a chance with the operation?
 DEAR READER — Hemorrhoids are simply very large dilated veins. The internal ones are inside the sphincter. They are the ones that can bleed even though they may cause no pain at all. There are no pain fibers inside the rectum.
 The external ones are outside the sphincter and they're the ones that make you feel like you're sitting on a little ball. They're also the ones that cause pain and itching. That's because there are pain-sensitive nerve fibers in the external area.
 There are a lot of things that can be done for hemorrhoids these days and to bring you up to date, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-12, Hemorrhoids: New Treatments For An Old Affliction. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.
 Slipping a rubber band on internal hemorrhoids is one of the new forms of treatment. You doctor was correct in telling you that it won't work for your case because it only works on internal hemorrhoids, not external ones. Injections around the internal hemorrhoid area are also used.
 There are cases, particularly those that involve extensive internal and external hemorrhoids, in which surgery is the only solution.
 There are sometimes complications of hemorrhoid surgery. It's more apt to be uncomfortable if the patient is programmed to think it's going to be difficult. That's already happened to you. There are a number of people who do go through hemorrhoid surgery thinking positively and have limited difficulty afterward.
 The risk of your losing control of your bowels may have been overemphasized to you. Perhaps you should seek a second opinion. Your hemorrhoids will not improve under the present circumstances.

Much Money Wasted On Heating Homes

Energy

Book On Saving Energy Offered By Government

By The Associated Press

Help! The federal government offers more than half a dozen booklets on saving energy in the home. They are all available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Here is a list of some of the booklets (Be sure to order by number):

- Tips for Energy Savers, 610G. Free. A 48-page guide on heating, cooling, lighting, appliances, etc.
- In the Sink or Up the Chimney? 056G. $1.70. A 70-page "how-to" booklet, with instructions for installing weather-

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

More than half the money you spend to heat your home this winter may be wasted. And it doesn't have to be.

Your dollars leak through cracks around windows and doors. They flow from attics that don't have enough insulation. And they vanish, like smoke, up the chimney.

Terms like thermogram, energy audit and payback period are becoming household words, as consumers — faced with warnings of fuel bills that could be double last year's — try to find ways to cut costs by saving energy.

Utility spokesmen say anywhere from 10 percent to 60 percent of the heat produced to warm U.S. homes is wasted. That means that you may be throwing away from $1 to $5 of every $10 you spend on heating.

The cure may be something as simple as setting back your thermostat at night — a move that can cut energy costs by 9 percent to 15 percent depending on where you live. Or it may require a major insulation effort — a project that can mean a savings of 50 percent to 60 percent for some homes.

The Department of Energy estimates that 40 million single-family homes — a little less than two-thirds of the total — are not properly protected against the weather.

Government studies show that about one-fifth of the energy consumed in the ings, install storm windows, etc. To get more information, contact your local Community Action Agency or the state energy office and ask about grants under the National Energy Act.

The savings can add up. John Shearer of Gulf Power Co. in Pensacola, Fla., said that if you spend $2,000 to save energy on a typical home built before 1971 you will save that much money in 10 years at current rates. And as the rates go up, the payback period gets shorter.

Shearer said that owners of older homes could reduce their heating and cooling costs by 40 to 60 percent through conservation.

In California, Willhoit said that 200 therms of gas — about the average monthly usage for a homeowner in a moderate climate — would have cost $45 last year; the same 200 therms will cost $65 this year. But the homeowner who weatherstrips doors and windows, insulates the hot water heater, installs a low-flow shower head, lowers the thermostat at night and, if necessary, adds insulation, will be able to cut energy consumption enough so that this winter's monthly bill will be only $35.

Tomorrow: Insulation and the Fourth R

First In A Series

is used in private homes. Almost three-fourths of that amount goes to provide heat and hot water.

Regulations being developed under the National Energy Act of 1978 will require large utilities to help you find out where you are wasting energy and suggest ways you can save. The utilities also will have to help you arrange to pay for and install energy-saving devices.

Some states already require this kind of effort by utilities; in other areas, companies have voluntary programs to encourage customers to add insulation, caulk and weatherstrip windows and doors, etc.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. of California, for example, has offered energy audits to its three million residential customers since last November. By the middle of September, the company had completed 14,000 audits, according to spokesman Mike Willhoit. By the end of the year, it expects to finish an additional 6,000 audits.

Utility-sponsored conservation programs vary; some are free, others cost from $3 to $10. Some utilities send a trained inspector to the customer's house; others require the homeowner to do his or her own checking. In most cases, however, the end is the same: a computer analysis that tells you what you can do to cut energy use, how much it will cost, how much it will save and how long it will take you to save enough to cover the expense.

Willhoit said Pacific Gas & Electric's "energy conservation specialists" visit customers' homes, spending about an hour and a half or two hours, to check things such as the amount of window space, the number of appliances, the exposure, the construction of the walls and frame, the amount of actual living area, the setting of the thermostat, the type and size of heating and cooling systems used and the amount of insulation.

The results are fed, via telephone, into a central computer and, within minutes, a mini-printer gives the homeowner a set of conservation recommendations. If he or she decides to add attic insulation — one of the biggest energy savers and one of the things that is most often needed — the company will arrange for installation, financing and inspection. Loans for up to $500 are available at an interest rate of 8 percent a year.

Willhoit said it is too early to tell how many people are following the advice of the auditors. "But we do know that 15 percent to 20 percent will install insulation through our service program," he said.

Utilities in Iowa are using thermograms — infrared photographs taken from the air to show where heat is escaping — to boost conservation. The Skyscan program run by the Iowa Utility Association began in the fall of 1977 and spokesman John Lewis said about 35 percent of the major communities in the state have been surveyed.

Once the thermogram for a city is finished, customers are invited to look at the prints, to see whether their houses are losing energy. "We have had excellent results," said Lewis. About 35 percent to 40 percent of the customers have viewed the thermograms and about one-fourth of those have done something to plug leaks.

Lewis said he doesn't know how much energy is being wasted in Iowa homes. "Almost any home you might pick, there is something that could be done in the way of insulation," he said, adding that "60 percent to 65 percent need to do something substantial."

Jan Hickman of the Long Island Lighting Co. just outside New York City said the utility's energy audit program, started in June 1978, has been "quite successful." But the real response came this summer. "There's been quite a jump since the gas lines," Miss Hickman said.

Long Island Lighting — known as Lilco — offers three types of audits: a free, do-it-yourself one; a $3 mail-in audit; and a $10 on-site inspection. Almost 10,000 of the utility's 800,000-plus residential customers have signed up for one audit or another.

The federal government offers help in several ways. Tax credits are available both for basic conservation equipment and for things like solar systems and wind-powered devices. The credits apply to work done on the taxpayer's principal residence after April 19, 1977 and through 1985. Information is available in Publication 903 from Internal Revenue Service Offices.

Legislation pending in Congress would expand the tax credit. The revenues lost by the federal government would be offset by President Carter's proposed tax on the increase in oil company earnings resulting from deregulation.

Low-income homeowners and renters can qualify for grants of up to $800 for materials and labor used to insulate ceil-

OIL-RICH FORMATION
The Green River formation, underlying about 10,000 square miles in several basins in Utah, Colorado and Wyoming, contains what has been described as one of the richest deposits of petroleum shale in the world. Oil shale, an organic-rich substance, yields substantial amounts of oil by conventional methods of distillation.

Submarine Volcano May Emerge As New Island

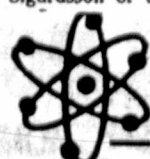

By AL ROSSITER JR.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — An active submarine volcano known as Kick 'em Jenny is growing steadily in the Caribbean north of Grenada and two geologists say it could emerge as a new island by the end of the century.

Kick 'em Jenny — the origin of its name is a mystery — was discovered when a black column of volcanic ash and steam burst through the tranquil waters of a sailboat route to the spice island in 1939.

A deep sea survey in 1962 showed that the top of the submerged volcanic mountain was 750 feet below sea level. By April 1978, the peak's crater was only 525 feet down.

"The present evidence indicates a mean growth rate of 15 feet per year, which could result in Kick 'em Jenny's emergence as a new volcanic island in about the year 2000," reported Haraldur Sigurdsson of the University of Rhode Island and Stephen Sparks of Cambridge University.

They reported in the current issue of Natural History, the journal of the American Museum of Natural History, that the undersea volcano is known to have erupted eight times since 1939. They said the likelihood of another eruption within several months is very high.

"Volcanic eruptions will become more violent and affect a wider area as they occur in ever shallower water," the researchers said.

They suggested it might be wise for sailors to steer clear of Kick 'em Jenny and avoid the fate of the Japanese oceanographic vessel Kaiyo-maru which disappeared with a crew of 29 when a submarine volcano erupted 230 miles south of Tokyo in 1952.

Sigurdsson and Sparks said Kick 'em Jenny is one of a number of volcanic peaks in a mountain chain that separates the Atlantic Ocean from the Caribbean Sea. The tallest peaks extend above the sea and form the islands of the Lesser Antilles.

They said if the volcano emerges from the sea as expected within a few decades, it will probably resemble its 1,000-year-old sister, the extinct volcano of Isle de Caille, a barren uninhabited island four miles to the east.

The two geologists have been studying Kick 'em Jenny since 1972 when, working from a British research ship, they found that the volcano's summit crater was a bowl-shaped depression 600 feet wide and 65 feet deep.

In 1976, a temperature probe lowered from the University of Miami research ship Gillies found a hot spring near the crater floor.

A return visit to Kick 'em Jenny in 1978 aboard the University of Rhode Island's research ship Endeavor found an 80-foot bump of hardened lava on the northern rim of the crater. A dredge pulled up 450 pounds of basalt from the volcano.

Analyses of the rocks showed they came from a depth of 10 miles beneath the volcano.

But the ultimate source of the molten material that makes up the peaks in the Lesser Antilles is believed to be an area 50 to 60 miles deep where the westward drift of a massive crustal block beneath the Atlantic Ocean flows under a similar rock "plate" beneath the Caribbean.

"This volcano provides a rare opportunity to follow the growth process of an underwater mountain from the sea floor to its ultimate emergence as a new island — expected in the near future," Sigurdsson and Sparks wrote.

RIVER IN SEA
The Gulf Stream is a vast river in the sea, about 50 miles wide and 1,000 feet deep. It flows at the rate of about 30 miles daily and carries 2,000 times as much water as the Mississippi. It is so named because it is fed partly by water from the Gulf of Mexico.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: We miss Jim Bishop's historical books about a day in the life of our presidents. Is he busy now penning such a study about President Jimmy Carter? — Hattie Lambert, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: No. He's busy researching a new book (his 21st) which he tells us is the hardest he's ever tackled. But it's not about Carter. It's about the author's own life and is tentatively titled "The Bishop's Confession," and will be published next summer by Little Brown.

Talking about it, Jim, who learned his trade working as a copy boy for the late Mark Hellinger at the N.Y. Daily Mirror, recalled this anecdote: "After learning that 'The Day Lincoln Was Shot' had been selected as the Book-of-the-Month, I flew home to Jersey and gleefully broke the news to my wife. 'You know what that means,' I said, 'at least $50,000 or $60,000 in the bank!'"

"My wife shared my happiness. But to bring me back to earth said, 'Now maybe you'll pay the Book-of-the-Month Club that $12.50 you've owed them for the last two years.'"

That brings to mind the time Jack Benny had especially high ratings for his TV program. And in the middle of a speech to a gathering of friends at his house, was interrupted by his wife, Mary, with this request: "When you're finished Jack," she said, "don't forget to take the garbage out."

Q: We heard that Pat Boone is opening a radio station in all of Lebanon. What's the lowdown? — Mrs. Lee E., Syracuse, N.Y.

A: Under the dateline "Tel Aviv," Variety reports that Pat and the High Adventurers church group have established a studio in an old and tiny two-story abandoned building in Marjayoun, Lebanon, along the barbed-wire, patrolled Israeli border to broadcast good news to the areas' mixed populations.

The antenna is aimed at Lebanon and Syria and will be on the air 24 hours a day. In addition to its religious messages, the station will devote part of its time to the United Nations forces stationed in Lebanon. U.N. troops from Ireland, Norway, Fiji, Nigeria and Senegal — about 6,000 — will be able to communicate to each other. Called the "Voice of Hope," the station claims that most of its airtime has been completely sold out to U.S. corporations.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL: Despite unwell-wishers gossiping from time to time that the long enduring marriage of Sophia Loren to Carlo Ponti is shaky, the screen superstar silences all such rumors with one tender sentence. Telling Donald Zee, in his intimate biography, "Sophia," "All I can tell you is that when I am without him, it is as though I were without oxygen!" ... A London News-of-the-World item, referring to spunky President Carter nearly collapsing in that grueling jogging race, coined a new nickname for him — "Jelly Legs Jimmy."

To Mrs. Jo Ann Hrusky, Belleville, Ill.: That lovely Hollywood model-actress whose one-minute TV camera commercials with James Garner provide some of the most refreshing moments on the troubled tube is married (but not to Garner, as supposed) to another movie colony man. Incidentally, she'll be seen in a film in the role of "Winnie the Witch" (Oh — we almost forgot to note her name, its Mariette Hartley).

Congratulations on Twigg, celebrating her 30th birthday. When we first met and interviewed the fragile actress, her waistline measured only about half that much.

Fed Seeks To Destroy Cynical Speculation

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — It was like a big bowling ball rolled down Wall Street and the other counting house lanes such as LaSalle Street, Chicago, and Montgomery Street, San Francisco, and many a Main Street too.

Stock prices dived, then rallied. Bonds prices gold, and silver prices exploded. Long-term money rates leaped, and short-term rates scattered chaotically but in every instance landed on higher ground.

The pattern of trading last Wednesday, the busiest day for stocks and for some other securities and commodities too, symbolized the pattern of thinking. Big bankers and small investors were equally confused.

When that happens, it has been observed, investors think more of security than anything else, profits included. And so the dollar, which is supposed to benefit from monetary restraint, sank too.

This was the scene on Wednesday, Oct. 10, third business day after the Federal Reserve announced a more restrictive monetary policy, meaning that money, especially credit, will be harder and more costly to get.

Ordinarily, such a day might have alarmed a rather small circle that included brokers, professional traders and knowledgeable outsiders. It was a bad day, disastrous for many, but not that rare. Just a year ago, almost to the week, the stock market had similarly whipsawed.

Still, it was unique. It was the general atmosphere that made it so. Everyone is aware these days of economic problems. They are warned that a recession is due. They see the national problem in their own wallets.

And there is more to the atmosphere too: This is the anniversary of the great

Paul Volcker and the Federal Reserve Board do not agree. We need not remain at the mercy of rampaging, ruinous prices. We created inflation and we can restrain it. It is our child; we don't take orders from it.

The Fed's action is making less money available for lending, and forcing up the price of what is lent, is aimed at removing the decision-making process from such people. It is an edict, nothing less.

Or a bowling ball. What the Fed has done, or attempted to do, is to destroy the spirit of cynical speculation by scattering the speculators like duckpins and making it difficult for them to regroup quickly.

In the process, of course, it has created chaos, but out of that chaos it hopes that the spirit of restraint and equilibrium will recapture the marketplace, and that people will recognize it as the common good.

Analysis

fall, the economic collapse in which the country went as splat as Humpty Dumpty instead of bouncing, as it used to, like a ball.

So much has been written and will be written about that experience and the confidence-shattering decade that followed that it is almost being relived. Kondratieff's name will even be heard in saloon disputes.

Kondratieff? He's the Russian economist who discerned the 50-year economic cycle of long waves in production, trade, prices. For certain, some will therefore insinuate we are helpless against inflation.

Corncrake Joins List Of Vanishing Birds

LONDON (AP) — The corncrake, a curious and secretive bird of the fields, is disappearing from Britain and Ireland and could vanish from all of Western Europe, birdwatchers say.

"Its future does not look bright," says James Cadbury, head of research at the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.

Cadbury organized 176 ornithologists to search for the elusive, seminocturnal corncrake during the breeding season. Covering some of the remotest areas of the country and working mostly at night, when the rasping cry of the male bird is likely to be heard, they counted 650.

Cadbury said these birds were located in only 23 percent of the places in which corncrakes were recorded in a survey 10 years ago, "a dramatic and alarming contraction," he concluded.

"Corncrake populations on the European continent and in Ireland also have suffered major declines," the RSPB reports.

The seldom-seen corncrake, which doesn't eat corn and prefers hayfields, is a buff-brown bird, 10 inches from beak to tail, with long legs and toes and a high-stepping gait. It is a summer visitor to Britain, flying fast and high from southern Europe, Africa, Arabia and India, arriving at April's end and departing in mid-September.

When it gets here it stops being a high-flyer and goes to ground, skulking about in the thickest herbage and resorting to flight only as a last resort. If surprised, it shuts its eyes, collapses and feigns death, but recovers instantly for an escape chance and dashes away. The Romans named it Crex crex, syllabing the doubled, rasping cry of the male bird.

A corncrake in full throat will creak away hour after hour, night and day, but will hardly ever be seen. It also grunts, whistles and croaks, and emits an eerie scream when driving off a predator.

Aristotle mentioned the corncrake, and its fossil bones have been found dating back to the late Ice Age, 11,000 years ago. It has several other names: landrail, daker-hen, grass-quail, corn cracker and corn creak. It is protected under English law and lives on insects, slugs, snails, worms and seeds.

Theories vary about its decline, which coincided with the introduction in the last century of hay-cutting, nest-destroying machines. The sowing of rye grass to produce an earlier hay crop than meadow grass meant corncrakes could not get a nesting start at all.

The RSPB believes machinery drove the corncrakes farther and farther north, until now their only strongholds are in the small fields on the Hebridean Islands off northwest Scotland.

However, some naturalists point out that other ground-nesting birds have survived machinery and there would be more subtle reasons.

Max Nicholson, who has studied birds for many years, feels there is still a lot to discover about the corncrake — it survives to be studied.

The reason for its persistent calling remains a mystery, he says. It may have something to do with gathering a number of birds in one place before they can breed successfully.

Scholarships Ease College Cost Crunch

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite rising college costs — this year up 9 percent over 1978 — middle-income parents may find the burden of putting their children through college somewhat eased, says the head of an organization that tracks down sources of financial aid through a computer information bank.

"In addition to scholarships, some long-overdue relief is now provided by the passage of the Middle Income Assistance Act," says S. Robert Freede, president of Scholarship Search, which has been locating funds for students since 1972.

This marks the first time the federal government has offered economic aid to parents of college-bound youngsters where the parents' income does not exceed $25,000.

"It's a step that has been applauded by most student financial aid experts," agrees Mary Ann Maxin, financial aid director of the Student Assistance Council, a financial counseling group. "But the grant may not exceed $1,800 a year, an amount that doesn't cover half a year's tuition — even at state-supported colleges and universities where average tuition costs are up to $3,500 as opposed to $3,000 last year.

"Parents can make life easier on themselves," she advises, "by utilizing the new federal program along with a resource tool for locating scholarships."

More than 75 percent of the nation's college students are on some sort of financial aid package, according to Miss Maxin. The typical package, she says, is one-third scholarship, one-third grant and one-third work-study.

Organizational Meeting Set For Kennedy Drive

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A "Draft Kennedy" initiative is underway in Lubbock with the expectation that Sen. Edward Kennedy will enlist as a presidential candidate before his draft notice can arrive.

Dan Donovan, a third-year Texas Tech University law student, has been soliciting volunteers for the past two weeks and has scheduled a 1 p.m. Saturday organizational meeting at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

State Rep. Froy Salinas of Lubbock will speak at the meeting.

Donovan said more than 300 persons have signed a petition endorsing a Kennedy candidacy and "a sizable number" have promised to work in the campaign if Kennedy enters the race.

"I am very concerned about the Democrats retaining the White House in 1980," Donovan, former Democratic county chairman in Freestone County in East Central Texas, said.

"While I feel that President Carter has been right on almost all the issues, I think it's undeniable that he has been ineffective and is perceived as ineffective by the American people. Therefore, we just made a rational choice of who we think the better candidate is to carry the White House in 1980."

Donovan said, however, that he will support Carter if the president is re-nominated.

He started running a classified advertisement in the Avalanche-Journal 1. days ago and has developed his South Plains Texans for Kennedy almost entirely during that period, he said.

Because of the method to be used on selecting state delegates to the National Democratic Convention next year, the organization will concentrate on getting Kennedy delegates elected in precinct and county conventions rather than on a presidential preference election which might or might not be held next spring.

Delegates from the counties will take part in the state convention, where 138 delegates will be chosen to the national convention. Of those, 104 will be elected in senatorial district caucuses and 34 in at-large voting at the state meeting based on preferences listed by county delegates as they register at the convention opening.

A presidential preference election would be non-binding on delegates, Donovan noted.

Asks if he expects Kennedy to be hampered in the South and Southwest by an image as a liberal, Donovan said, "I think that on most of the major issues in this country, most everyone is in agreement that we may differ in philosophy in how to reach the result, but that we all want to reach the same end."

"I think Sen. Kennedy could provide the leadership to bring forth a comprehensive energy policy and to do something about the economy. Something in particular that should be attractive to people in the South is that he has come out in favor of deregulating the trucking industry."

"His record on the Senate Judiciary Committee is one of very strong stands as to law and order. He has been for making parole requirements tighter and seeing that there is rehabilitation rather than just turning inmates out to make room for others."

"I would be very disappointed if he was perceived as someone such as a McGovern. He's much further toward the middle of the road than Sen. McGovern was (as a 1972 presidential candidate)."

Donovan said Kennedy supporters generally are certain Kennedy will enter the race because of his statement that the economy would have to improve considerably by the end of the year for him to stay out and the slowness with which the economy changes.

"We feel like Sen. Kennedy, if he announces, will win the nomination," he added. "Therefore, what we're doing at this time is trying to put together precinct organizations so that, should he win the nomination, we would be ready to go to work immediately."

"We'll be working to canvass to find where Democratic voters are, to make sure they are registered and then to make sure that they get out to vote in November."

In the nominating process in Texas, he said, "What this comes down to is whoever of the two candidates has the better organization and not necessarily who has the most popular support in particular areas."

Donovan said South Plains Texans for Kennedy "is an unauthorized committee at this time" and might be replaced if Kennedy announces.

"Should he announce, I am sure he will come in and set up his own campaign committee," he said. "We may or may not be a part of it. In any case, we'll certainly be working for whatever committee he establishes."

Lubbock County Democratic Chairman Madison Sowder said he will attend the Saturday meeting but will maintain "a hands-off attitude" as to its workings.

The meeting will be in Room 108 of the civic center. It is scheduled to last from 1 to 5 p.m.

"I'm not really surprised at this," Sowder said, explaining that he expected a Kennedy committee to be formed here when Kennedy indicated that he might make the race. "You just kind of wait around and see where the call is going to come from."

Area Men Charged In Plane Thefts

Two South Plains men were charged with second-degree felony theft Tuesday in connection with the disappearance of two private airplanes from Lubbock County airports.

Danny Joe Green, 19, of Plainview was arrested Tuesday by Texas Ranger Gene Kea and Jerry Johnson of the Department of Public Safety Motor Vehicle Theft Division. Green is charged with two counts of theft and a bond of $25,000 was recommended on each count by the criminal district attorney's office.

Eagle Scouts Honored In Ceremonies

A group of South Plains Eagle Scouts have been honored in a ceremony at St. John's United Methodist Church for achieving the highest rank in scouting.

The recognition ceremony was held Sunday for 68 scouts from the South Plains Council.

State Rep. Froy Salinas, speaker at the ceremony, encouraged the Eagle Scouts to accept citizenship responsibilities and strive for leadership roles in their communities.

Council president Bob Moody, advancement chairman J.W. Anderson, council executive Bob Bouse, Clyde Morganti and Dub Rushing conducted the ceremony in which the Eagle Scouts were recognized individually with their Scoutmasters and parents.

Eagle Scouts honored included Robert E. Housout, Tracy P. Hatch, Joe Nemrow, Warren D. Taylor, Calvin D. Hunt, Chris H. Carpenter, Thomas N. Ashley, William D. Cash, Steven P. Luke, Jon D. Word, Brad F. Parker, R. Dewayne Proctor, Steven R. Long and Douglas C. Cato Jr., all of Lubbock.

Gregory Westmoreland, David L. Hensley, Bill Hewett, Mark W. Lee, Jared B. Long, L. Larkin Shaw, Peter M. Taylor, Louis F. Rothenberg, W. Steve Addison, Mark McDonald, Andrew D. Saxton, Gregg A. Thomason, Andrew D. Nicholson, Doug James, Ronald Hewett, Mark D. Proctor, Weldon T. Pierson, Darrell Glenn Whitten, John M. Johnson, James T. Wetterau, and Robert A. Aycock, all of Lubbock.

Gary A. Branch, Marc H. West, Mason D. West, Scott L. Robison and Jeffrey L. Wright, all of Plainview.

Jesse Cedillo, Felix Soliz, Oscar Barrera, Sammy Rodriguez, Mike Salazar and Tony Soliz, all of Floydada.

Charles E. Taylor, Gregory O. Taylor, Dean Tankersley and Stephen Joseph Woods, all of Ralls.

John A. Logan, Damon L. Pearce, Steve R. Cox, Sidney H. Schmidt, Steve E. Barkowsky, James E. Freeman, Earl Jeff Jackson II and Danny W. Gruben of Lamesa.

Andy W. Richardson of Plains, John B. Rhodes of Sundown, Rodney Sport of Slaton, Ivan Lee Jones Jr. of Post, Martin G. Rice of Morton, Teddy L. Willis of Plains, Michael W. Sides of Brownfield, James Randall Stewart of Littlefield, Brad L. White of Tahoka and David Baldaras Jr. of Lockney.

Charged with one count of theft was Paul Richard Bradshaw, 19, of Cotton Center. A bond of $5,000 was recommended in Bradshaw's case.

Both men are accused of taking a single engine plane in early September that belongs to a U.S. Air Force lieutenant stationed at Reese Air Force Base.

Authorities found the aircraft about 5:30 p.m. Sept. 4 parked on a private airstrip at a farm 3 1/2 miles east of Cotton Center. The farmer who owns the landing strip told officials he saw the plane land and a white male leave the cockpit.

Lt. Stephanie Wells, the owner of the craft, had parked the plane at Shallowater Airport and did not know it was missing until contacted by authorities.

Green also is accused of being involved in the theft of a Clovis, N.M., man's plane that was parked at Town and Country Airport south of Lubbock to be repainted.

James E. Foster's plane was reported missing Sept. 4 by airport employees after they reportedly received a call from a man identifying himself as Foster. The caller reportedly told the employees to fuel his plane and have it ready for take-off and he would be in to pay for the paint job and pick up the craft.

The plane, a twin engine Piper Aztec, was located two days later at Tulia Airport, after reportedly being spotted at the Dumas and Plainview airports.

Administrators Oppose Landmark Designations

regulations that apply to other structures.

If the structure is within a Designated Historic District, but is not declared a landmark, the structure can be torn down, she said. However, the building that is replaced in that designated spot must meet the criteria set out for the district.

A landmark cannot be torn down without a public hearing and the approval of the Urban Design Commission, she explained.

Thus, said Mrs. Stribling, if the school district sold one of the two buildings in the historic district to a buyer who wanted to convert it to a restaurant, for example, that buyer would "not be prohibited from remodeling, adding on or from going through any other zoning process any other property would go through." But the building could not be torn down, and any materials used for additions or renovations would have to be compatible with the materials used in the original structure.

However, City Planning Director Jim Bertram said the city and the school district "are on equal footing," and he questioned whether the city would have the authority to enforce the regulations of the historic district as far as the schools are concerned.

Mrs. Stribling said the Urban Design Commission does have provisions for a simple historic marker that carries no restrictions or requirements with it. Several months ago, she said, the commission approved a plan that would provide for three types of markers — one for a landmark, one for a landmark district and one to commemorate an area "that did not make it through the designation process."

The school board will meet at 7:15 a.m. Thursday in the Administration Building, 1628 19th St.

Lubbockites Voice CD Requests

en and children, as high priorities.

Members of the crowd also asked Rick Childers, administrative assistant with the city manager's office, if shopping centers were planned for the east Lubbock area.

Childers said that the city could not develop shopping centers, but could encourage developers to "build in low income areas" with special programs.

Before analyzing other CD projects proposed by the city, the crowd also heard pleas from representatives of other organizations, including the Lubbock Soccer Association's request for soccer fields near the softball complex at North Loop 289.

Ray Medina, representing the Business Development Center, asked the group to recommend that $75,000 of funds reserved as contingency money be used to expand the organization which works to enhance economic development in minority communities.

Another $75,000 was requested by Rose Wilson, representing the Lutheran Council for Community Action, to expand the Neighborhood House at 2009 E. 13th St. She said the building, an old church, needed remodeling and expansion.

About 50 residents of the UNIT neighborhood, meeting at Roscoe Wilson Elementary, urged that high priority be given for CD funding for zoning and housing code enforcement in their area between University, Indiana, 19th and 34th streets.

Although in a question-and-answer session with CD coordinator Vicki Foster residents asked for other items, Miss Foster explained that CD funds are "primarily for low-income areas" and said the UNIT area is not a high priority neighborhood for such money, although it is eligible for code enforcement money.

Several residents expressed their concern for north-south sidewalks, including Texas Tech professor Dr. Paul Dixon who said it was ironic that in an energy crisis, "There is money for freeways for cars, but not money for people to walk on sidewalks."

A group headed by Rodney Pace voted a special need for sidewalks on Boston and Flint streets leading to the Tech campus.

Projects in the Arnett-Benson area and East Lubbock neighborhoods were given high priority by the UNIT residents, something which Anne Cochran said was "very admirable. It shows our neighborhood is concerned about other parts of the city."

Other concerns expressed by the residents included weed and pest control.

Police Continue Search For Assault Suspects

Police today continued to look for two men and a woman who allegedly beat, robbed and sexually assaulted a 26-year-old Lubbock woman early Tuesday.

The victim told police she was driving home from a friend's house when two black men and a black woman got into her car near 13th Street and Avenue X and started beating her on the head and neck.

She said the intruders drank a full bottle of vodka they found in her car, then drove her to an East Lubbock apartment where she was beaten and raped.

Reports state the woman did not remember how she escaped her attackers, but that she woke up in her car and drove to a service station.

The station attendant notified authorities after seeing that the woman was covered with blood, according to police.

The woman reportedly suffered scrapes on her face, lacerations on the left side of her head, two black eyes and teeth marks on her neck.

The victim also told police the suspects robbed her of $10 cash and her watch.

In other activity, a 13-year-old Lubbock girl said she was attacked by another girl about 4 p.m. Tuesday in the 1800-block of East First Street, near her home.

The girl said she was walking home from school when the young suspect confronted her and asked what her problem was. The teen-ager said that before she could answer the other girl struck her in the mouth, knocking her to the ground, and then began kicking her in the back.

Reports indicate that several witnesses pulled the suspect off the girl. The victim suffered a cut lip and numerous bruises on her back, according to reports. She was taken to a local hospital by her mother.

The young assailant was described as black, between 14 and 17, and short.

Bobby Jarvis, owner of American Iron & Steel Inc. at 3202 Quirt Ave., told police his business was burglarized between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 12:20 a.m. today, netting the intruders $400 in weapons, including a .38-caliber pistol and a double-barrel shotgun.

Anita Dominguez said she suffered more than a $1,000 loss when her 2409 E. Sixth St. residence was broken into between 9 p.m. and 10 p.m. Tuesday and a television set, stereo equipment and jewelry were stolen.

Tombstone Disappears Again

DALLAS (UPI) — He's been dead almost 50 years, but gangster Clyde Barrow has become part of the tradition of the Texas-Oklahoma football game weekend.

As has happened for the past four years, the tombstone that Barrow, co-leader of the Bonnie and Clyde bank robbery gang, shares with his brother, Buck, disappeared, coinciding with the football game last weekend — apparently taken as a prank by fraternities from the University of Oklahoma.

"We are assuming they did it again partly because of the time and partly because lifting something that heavy would have taken several people and an organized effort," said police officer Vance Shearer.

Barrow and his girlfriend, Bonnie Parker, were killed in 1934 in a police ambush near Arcadia, La., and became the subject of a movie.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is predicted for Thursday in the upper Northwest and over much of Minnesota, Michigan and adjacent states. Showers were expected in southern Florida and over sections of Nebraska, Colorado and adjoining areas, according to the National Weather Service. (AP Laserphoto)

Queen's Sister Tours NASA Space Center

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—The little girl, in her pink dress with a matching ribbon in her hair, said, "I have read stories about it, but this is the first time I have seen a real-live princess. She is pretty."

The real-life princess was Margaret, younger sister of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, who was on a tour of the Johnson Space Center.

Her audience was about 50 pupils from a suburban elementary school.

Tami Love, another of the youngsters sitting on the grass watching, said, "Just say this is terrific, this is great, this is fantastic."

And one young boy said, "Is that the queen?"

A classmate answered, "That's the princess silly. Can't you tell a queen from a princess?"

Princess Margaret also met with officials of the space center and with astronauts as she asked numerous questions about the United States space program.

The princess is on a tour of the nation in an effort to raise $4.5 million for improvements of London's Royal Opera House, where the royal ballet also performs.

The opera house at Covent Garden is in need of at least $16.4 million worth of major repairs. Some $12 million has been contributed to restore the historic site.

Dr. Chris Kraft, director of the space center, gave the princess a tour and went into details on the solar power satellites, which, he said, may some day provide the world with 50 percent of its energy needs.

The princess looked at the drawings of the proposed giant space energy system and asked, "And how do you get them up?"

Kraft answered, "In sections and eventually they can be built in space."

At the space shuttle section of the center, the princess talked with astronauts Vance Brand and Dr. Rhea Sedon.

Brand was a member of the Apollo-Soyuz mission during the U.S. astronauts linked up with a Soviet space craft.

The princess studied the space shuttle carefully and said, "It doesn't at all look like something that should be in space."

She arrived in Houston Monday afternoon from Chicago and will leave today for visits to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Cleveland.

Official Refuses To Comment On Princess' Remark On Irish

CHICAGO (AP) — A spokeswoman for Princess Margaret offered no comment today on a report that the princess referred to the Irish as "pigs" during a dinner party conversation with Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, who is of Irish descent.

Chicago Sun-Times columnist Irv Kupcinet reported Tuesday that the princess and the mayor were sitting at the same table when Mrs. Byrne remarked that she had attended the funeral of Margaret's cousin, Lord Louis Mountbatten in London. Mountbatten was killed last month by a bomb planted by Irish Republican Army assassins.

"The Irish," Princess Margaret was quoted as saying, "they're pigs."

Then, she told the mayor, "Oh, oh, you're Irish," Kupcinet reported. Mrs. Byrne left the party as soon as possible, he wrote.

Princess Margaret's private office at Kensington Palace in London offered no comment today.

"I haven't been able to speak to anyone there and until I've been able to, I have no comment," said a spokeswoman for the princess.

She added, "I've had several things to do that were more urgent than ringing America."

Princess Margaret, who was in Houston, was unavailable for comment.

The British tabloid press splashed the story across front pages today. The London Evening Standard said, "She Did Say It."

money for London's Royal Opera House.

Mayor Byrne would not comment on the story to him, Kupcinet said, but he said his sources told him she "kept her anger under control."

"She left (the party) early, giving the excuse that the president (Carter) was coming on Monday night and she had to work on that," he said.

Michael Sneed, a spokesman for the mayor, said Tuesday night, "I haven't been able to talk to the mayor about it (the report) yet. I don't think that it was anything anybody heard. I think it was just between the princess and the mayor."

Group Begins Program For Handicapped

A group of concerned parents of handicapped persons older than 21 is initiating a program to provide facilities currently unavailable to their children on the South Plains.

"These people are not being served at all because of a lack of representation," said Weldon Ferguson, vice president of the newly formed South Plains Center for Mentally and Physically Handicapped.

The group has received a charter making it eligible for tax deductible donations and making it tax exempt, and has been assigned an aide by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance to help it get on its feet.

Members have toured facilities similar to the one they are proposing in San Angelo and Amarillo and have contacted more than 40 potential clients. They suspect many more "simply are out of touch."

Officers and directors of the proposed center hope the new facility will include a work activity center, production workshop, respite care, extended day care, recreation, and extended sheltered living for all handicapped persons.

A state law became effective in 1975 which requires public schools to provide free, appropriate education for the handicapped to age 22, said Ferguson, "but after that its nothing but a hodge-podge situation."

Limited services in Lubbock for the older handicapped group are provided in Lubbock through Goodwill Industries, the Texas Rehabilitation Commission and Mental Health Mental Retardation Center. The services usually are limited according to degrees of affliction.

Services for handicapped children also are varied depending upon functional capacities of the clients, said group members.

Group Begins Program For Handicapped

Those defined as "educable" are placed in special classes in public schools, those considered "trainable" attend Ballinger, and those in the "severe and profound" category may attend Milam Children's Training Center, a private school.

The Lubbock State School cares for handicapped persons whose parents have decided they cannot care for their children at home, Ferguson said.

Engineer Suggests 'Blowout Schools'

AUSTIN (AP) — A college petroleum engineering instructor recommends that workers on offshore rigs go to school to learn how to shut down wells in emergencies.

Bruce Dameron of Texas A&M University said company men, tool pushers and drillers should be taught in "blowout schools" how to respond to emergencies, "instead of on the rigs — that's not the place to learn it, really."

Dameron and general manager William Sky-Eagle Jr. of the Corpus Christi Area Oil Spill Control Association testified Tuesday before the House Committee on Environmental Affairs.

House Speaker Bill Clayton instructed the committee to investigate the blowout of IXTOC 1 well in Campeche Bay. The PEMEX well spilled oil that flowed onto Texas beaches, apparently endangering fish and wildlife and severely crippling the summer tourist industry.

Dameron said starting Jan. 1 the U.S. Geological Survey will require workers on wells in federal waters to pass a one-week school that includes simulated practice in shutting down a well that has gone out of control.

Their training certificate must be renewed each year, Dameron said.

Asked if the Mexican government requires employees of PEMEX, the national oil monopoly, to attend such schools, Dameron replied:

"To my own knowledge, I don't think they do."

The committee clerk said as of midday Tuesday, IXTOC 1 still had not been capped. It blew out June 3.

Dameron said blowouts result from "kicks," which he defined as intrusions of fluid into the formation.

"When you take a 'kick' is not the time to be scared," said Dameron.

Traditional Sources Of Energy Favored

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans are going to have to forget about the "glamorous, sexy exotics" and look to traditional sources of energy for the rest of this century, says Gov. Bill Clements.

The governor spoke Tuesday to the Texas Association of Broadcasters annual meeting. He touched on a variety of topics, including energy.

"These exotics can have no impact on our energy requirements by 2000," Clements said in chiding supporters of solar and geothermal energy.

He said he knew of "no experts worthy of that name" who view solar and geothermal energy as an answer in the near future. Clements said Texans also should forget about a "quick fix" to the energy crunch and realize it's a long-term problem. He said the answer lies in petroleum, coal and nuclear fuels.

"It's a disgrace that there are fewer miners in the coal mines now than there were one, two or three years ago," Clements said. "That doesn't make any sense."

The governor also scolded Americans for being "not serious about addressing this energy problem."

"If you like 16 percent interest, keep doing what you're doing. You're doing a great job," he said sarcastically.

Clements also told the broadcasters he enjoys Austin reporters and called them a "delightful bunch."

But he gave the media low marks for its coverage of the Mexican oil spill.

"I think the media has done Texas a great disservice by the way you handled this particular project," Clements said, drawing a smattering of applause.

Asked about the upcoming presidential race, Clements said polls he has seen show Texans favor any GOP candidate over President Carter.

"There's a terribly strong negative vote out there against Carter. It's not for someone, it's against him," Clements said.

Clements said a current political "snapshot" shows former Gov. John Connally the favorite among Texas Republicans, but Ronald Reagan appears to be the leading contender nationwide.

City Riding Group Takes Top Horse Show Honors

Several members of the Mackenzie Meadows Horsemen's Association took top honors last weekend in the 23rd annual Eddy County Sheriff's Posse fall show in Carlsbad, N.M.

The show was the last of 14 English and western event competitions on the New Mexico circuit. About 150 riders participated in 90 classes, with riders coming from throughout New Mexico and West Texas.

Lubbock placers included: adult class winners, Jodi Bravo, first in green hunter and hunt team of two; Lynn MacDuff, second in hunt seat pleasure; Billie Briggs, first in open hunter, jumper, hunt team of two, equitation over fences and western horsemanship, and second in hunter; and Jamie Quest, first in handy hunter, and second in fault and out jumping, equitation over fences, pre-green hunter and adult jumper.

Others included, in the age 17 and under riders, Kathy Lindsey, first in hunter over fences; Ann-Marie Simmers, second in hunt seat pleasure and equitation over fences; and in the age 11 and under category, Elaine Simmers, first in handy hunter, western pleasure and hunt seat pleasure, and second in hunt seat equitation and in equitation over fences.

Major awards were won by Billie Briggs as high point English adult rider and by Elaine Simmers as high point English rider, age 11 and under.

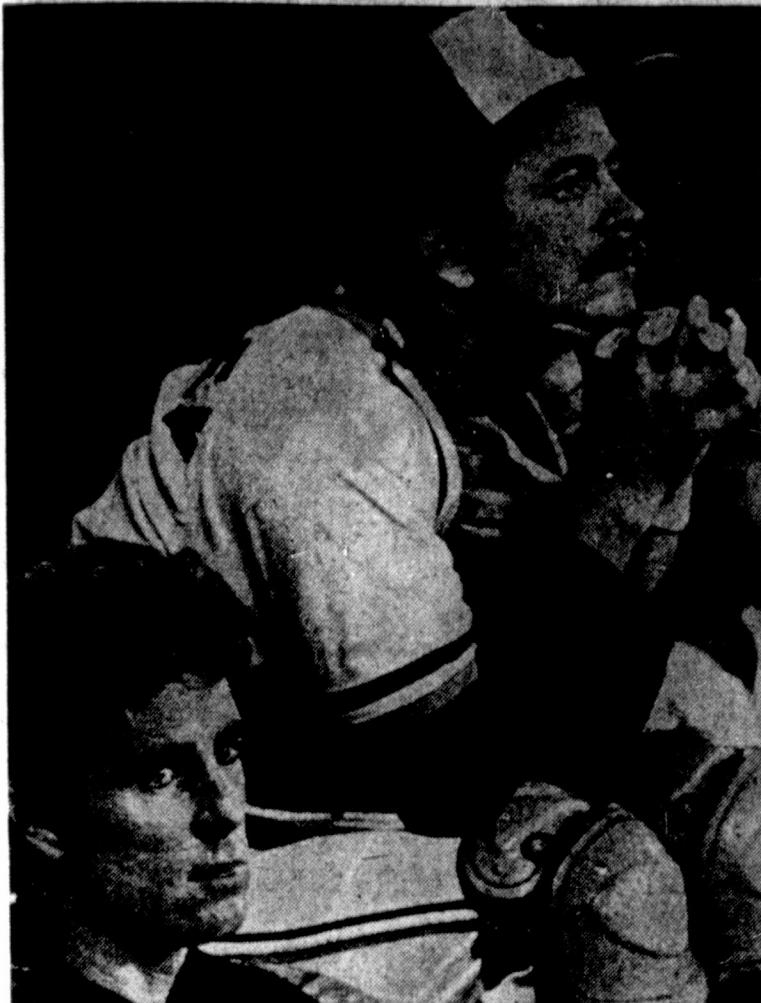

Kathy Lindsey won the English hunt seat medal class, which is offered by the New Mexico Horse Show Association to riders under the age of 17 who have attained the highest standards in horsemanship.

The state's championship show will take place Oct. 25-27 in Carlsbad. Several Mackenzie Meadows riders are eligible for the championship classes because of their placings in the earlier circuit shows.

Information on becoming a member of the Mackenzie Meadows organization may be obtained from Bobbie Green or Ron Quest.

Now, It All Comes Down To One Pirates Even Series On 4-0 Shutout

CONCERN — The direction the game is going is reflected on the faces of the Baltimore batterymates, pitcher Jim Palmer, left, and catcher Rick Dempsey in the seventh inning of Tuesday night's World Series. Their concern was real, as the Pirates scored 2 runs in the inning and went on to win 4-0. (AP Laserphoto)

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Candelaria stood in the Pittsburgh Pirates' dressing room after practice Monday and held aloft a crumpled ticket for the seventh game of the World Series.

"After tomorrow night this will be worth a lot of money," shouted Candelaria, who usually hasn't too much to say.

Candelaria went out Tuesday night and put his arm where his mouth was and made that last-chance ticket worth the asking price. He combined with reliever Kent Tekulve for their fourth tandem shutout of the season.

The National League champion Pirates scored four late-inning runs and beat the American League champion Baltimore Orioles 4-0 to tie the Series at 3-3.

Pittsburgh now is within one game of becoming the fourth team in history to come back to win baseball's showpiece from a 3-1 deficit in a best-of-seven World Series.

Jim Bibby, the starter in Game 4 who was not involved in the Pittsburgh loss, has the assignment for tonight's seventh game, which begins at 7:30 p.m. CDT. He'll be opposed by Baltimore's Scott McGregor, the winner of Game 3.

The 25-year-old Candelaria went six pain-wracked innings, gave up just six hits and no runs. Tekulve followed, allowing only one hit in three innings for his second save of the series.

"He (Candelaria) pitched through pain tonight (Tuesday)," said Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner.

Tanner explained that his star left-hander went out despite an aching side. Candelaria has been bothered with a rib cage injury for more than a month.

"He's a money pitcher, one of the best in the game," gushed Tanner, who has to be living with mixed emotions. He needs one victory to gain his first Series triumph.

And win or lose, when it's over, he has to go home to New Castle, Pa., and attend the funeral of his mother, Anne, 70, who died Sunday morning.

Tanner had a pitcher warming up from the first pitch.

"We were concerned about his side all the way," Tanner explained. "If there was any indication he wasn't Foli, who reached third on Parker's hit, then raced home on Willie Stargell's sacrifice fly. That's all the Pirates needed to hang the loss on Baltimore's Jim Palmer, who went eight innings and gave up all four Pittsburgh runs.

The Pirates wrapped it up with two more in the eighth.

Ed Ott singled with one out and irrepressible Phil Garner followed with a ground-rule double, the ball bouncing over the left field fence, sending Ott to in the six games for a .384 average, highest in the Series, with five RBI. Garner, however, would make no prediction on tonight's seventh game.

"It's a totally different situation," said Garner. "We go up against the left-hander, Scott McGregor. I'm not going to predict an all-out win tomorrow (Wednesday)."

Now that the Pirates are even, has the outlook changed?

"I don't think it's changed at all," said Garner. "We had a job to do. Now we have to win one more or it's all for naught."

The Orioles have scored just one run in the last 19 innings and manager Earl Weaver said he couldn't put his finger on why.

Bibby said that he takes pressure off himself by going over the hitters.

"I reminisce in my mind what guys can hit and the way I want to pitch them, and then I fall asleep," Bibby said.

McGregor said he would pitch the same as he did in any other game.

"I'm going to try and give up as little runs as possible," he said.

McGregor said he didn't think the Orioles were emotionally affected about losing two straight and being forced to a seventh game.

"I don't think you can let them (the losses) affect anything. You have to throwing right, I was going to go out and get him. I know it hurt him."

Candelaria, who struck out two and walked none, admitted that it hurt when he pitched.

"It hurt then and it hurts now," said the pitcher after he emerged from the shower.

The Pirates' pitcher said that he worked without a pain shot. He also said there was nothing wrong with his shoulder.

"It's my side and back," he explained.

Why did he start to leave the field after warming up in the sixth?

"I saw Chuck coming out and thought he was coming to get me," Candelaria said.

The winning runs came in the seventh inning when, with one out, Omar Moreno singled. Moreno reached second on an infield hit by Tim Foli and scored on Dave Parker's single.

Bill Robinson delivered one run with a sacrifice fly and Omar Moreno's third hit of the night scored another.

Tekulve, meanwhile, came on in the seventh and faced just 10 batters in the final three innings. Pinch-hitter Billy Smith singled with two out in the seventh for the only hit off the reliever.

The Pirates appear to have put their defensive act back together, playing errorless ball. Second baseman Garner and third baseman Bill Madlock made fine plays.

Garner was in the middle of one double play, increasing his World Series total to nine and breaking the record of eight by Washington's Bucky Harris in 1924.

Garner also has 11 hits for 21 at bats

Foresight

AT LONG LAST, area high school teams are through with the nonsense.

I mean, nondistrict games are a lot of fun — they get the 'ol school spirit flowing, get teams ready for district competition — and yet nobody'll lose his job for losing one of them. That's fine. But when a school plays five or six of the things before it ever gets around to the real action, it gets a little old.

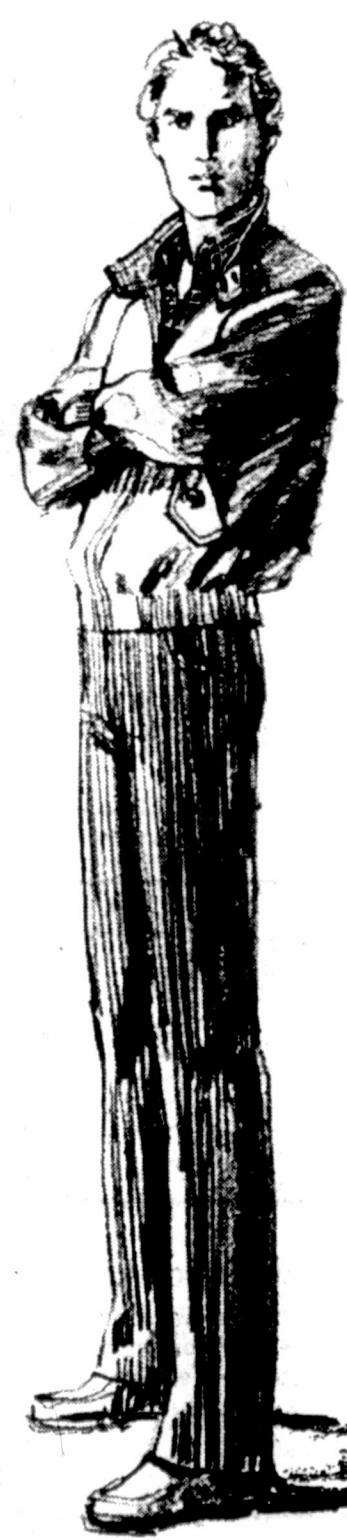

How'd you like it if the Dallas Cowboys played six exhibition games and the regular season consisted of just four contests? Now you see what I'm talking about.

Ah, I'm not complaining. Everybody knows that out here on the High Plains, the towns are so far apart that your districts can't be very big. So naturally, a school will play a lot more nondistrict contests than district ones. It's just that games that don't mean anything can get a little boring after a while...

BUT NO MORE. Good gosh, things are about to start hopping on the 'ol prep pigskin scene. And right now, everybody starts even. It doesn't matter if you've got a 1-4 record like the Dunbar Panthers or a 5-1 slate like the Monterey Plainsmen.

And don't think that a few local coaches have been pounding that thought through the helmeted skulls of their pupils all week long. But some of the area coaches are going to have to come up with a new approach once the week is out. So let's take a quick glance at the high school schedule and gaze into the future a bit. Let's pick the winners...

PLAINVIEW AT MONTEREY: Well, not only does the real season start this week, but for the loser of this contest it just may come to a screeching halt. The Bulldogs were a runaway district favorite before the season started but things have gone sour for the Angry Red.

They've already lost three tough ballgames in predistrict play and now they face the 4-1 Plainsmen. Monterey has piled up an incredible 100 points in its last two outings while the Angry Red has managed only 73 through five tilts. When the two schools meet Thursday night at Lowrey, the Angry Red may leave a little red-faced.

The Willie Johnson-Ervin Davis shootout should be worth the price of admission alone, though. Monterey's Johnson and Plainview's Davis have emerged as the premier backs of the district.

The winner of this contest should, in all likelihood, take the District 4-AAAA crown. Soooo, look for the Plainsmen in the bidistrict game this year. . . Monterey 21, Plainview 8.

DUNBAR AT LEVELLAND: This one doesn't quite have the prestige of the MHS-PHS contest. Neither team was expected to do much in '79 and neither has. Each team has given up points promiscuously.

Dunbar has allowed 95 points en route to posting a 1-4 record and Levelland has handed out 105 while managing a 2-3 slate. This one could come down to who wants to lose it the worst. And the Lobos are playing at home...

But the Dunbar speed — and the Panthers do have plenty of that — could wear down the Lobos. In the battle to stay out of the District 1-AAA cellar, let's call it Dunbar 22, Levelland 19.

DUMAS AT ESTACADO: Let me put it to you this way; Estacado is 4-1 and excellent, Dumas is 1-4 and horrible. Don't let that lone Demon victory fool you either. That marker in the win column was earned with a 28-7 loss to Pampa.

It seems like the Harvesters used an illegal player and the game was forfeited to Dumas. The Demons should get no such gift from the Matadors. In fact, Dumas won't get anything from the stingy Mat defense. The Estacado defenders have been guarding the goal line the way Mr. Whipple defends his toilet paper.

After five contests, the Mats have allowed only 14 points — 7 to Plainview and 7 to Monterey. The win Saturday at Lowrey Field should send them marching toward a District 1-AAA crown.

Coach Louis Kelley has moaned all year that his team just can't get emotionally ready to play. But they'll be ready Saturday. . . Estacado 42, Dumas 0.

CORONADO-LUBBOCK HIGH: I've put this one off until last because it's the hardest to call. Two weeks ago it would've looked like Coronado by a landslide, but lately Army's Army has looked like a Panzer battalion.

First-year coach Army Salinas has whipped his Lubbock Westerners into a frenzy that culminated with a stunning 20-13 come-from-behind victory over Amarillo Caprock last weekend. But the Mustangs also scored a big upset last week when they demolished powerful Pampa 20-0. And Coronado managed the Harvester harvest on the Pampa field no less.

So here you have it: The District 4-AAAA opener for two schools fresh off big wins. Coronado is 4-2, the Army 2-4 — but neither team has exactly been piling up the points. Both schools have averaged 11.1 points an outing. So what would you call it, an 11.1-11.1 tie?

Not exactly. The Westerners still may have a way to go. . . Coronado 13, Lubbock 10.

Baylor Duo Praised

DALLAS (AP) — For a redshirt freshman, there was a lot of talk about young Mike Brannan on the Southwest Conference press tour.

The whispers had it that he had the talent to be Baylor's starting quarterback.

The SWC and Southern Methodist got a taste of his talent Saturday night. The taste was poison for Musang Mania.

With 65,000 fans jammed into Texas Stadium, Brannan bounced off the bench when senior Mickey Elam got hurt and SMU's 14-0 lead disappeared like an Eskimo pie in a refugee camp.

Brannan carried 19 times for 120 yards, a school quarterback rushing record. He scored a touchdown on a one-yard fourth down carry.

He also passed for 134 yards, including strikes of 57 and 30 yards to set up

Garner Denies Potential For Series MVP

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pittsburgh's little Phil Garner carries the hottest bat and flashiest glove into the seventh game of the World Series tonight, but he entertains no visions of driving home in a flashy new sports car.

"I never think about it. It's the farthest thing from my mind," insisted the sure-handed Pirate second baseman, son of a Tennessee preacher, when reminded that he is the leading candidate for the Most Valuable Player award.

"I'd be willing to go hitless and make 14 errors if we could only win the Series."

Garner rapped out his 10th and 11th hits to boost his series batting average to .524 and figured in his ninth double play, a record, in the Pirates' 4-0 victory Tuesday over the Baltimore Orioles, tying the Series at 3-3.

He was the most modest man in the locker room as the Pirates savored their comeback from what appeared to be hopeless odds after falling behind in games 1-3.

"One man can't take any credit for double plays," he said when told that he had erased a mark set by Bucky Harris in the seven-game Washington Senators-New York Giants series in 1924.

"The pitcher has to make the batter hit the ball on the ground. It has to bounce just right and then you have to count on two other guys — the shortstop for a relay and the first baseman to handle what may be a hurried and inaccurate throw."

"I can't tell you how many times Bill (Madlock, Pirate third baseman) has kept me from getting my legs sawed off by the spike-flying runner."

By Pirate standards, Garner is just a wisp of a man — 5 feet, 10 inches tall and 177 pounds — with a wispy mustache and a molasses drawl he picked up in his native East Tennessee hill country.

Now 30 years old, he broke in with Charlie O. Finley's wild, feuding Oakland A's in 1973, the middle year of their three world championships, and remained there until he came to the Pirates in March 1977 in a six-for-three deal.

The only similarity in the champion A's and the current Pirates lies in the fierce fighting spirit of the two teams. The A's thrived on discord. The Pirates prevail on togetherness and mutual respect.

"We're a free-swinging team," Garner said. "We are aggressive even when we play cards and backgammon. But the bond among all of us is very strong."

Garner came to the defense of his Baltimore counterpart, Rich Dauer, who misplayed Dave Parker's infield scorcher in the seventh inning, opening the door for the Pirates' first run and setting up the second. "I looked at the spot when I took the field," he said. It looked like it took one hop and bounced off to the right.

The sparkling infielder expressed the highest respect for the Orioles and wasn't about to gloat.

"They're a tough ball club," he said. "They don't look awesome. But their pitchers throw strikes, their hitters hit and their runners run. They are patient. They never beat themselves. They are a typical Earl Weaver team."

Garner, a three-sport letterman in high school at Knoxville, Tenn., and a business major at the University of Tennessee, is a great kidder, joining big Dave Parker in the Mutt-and-Jeff act that keeps the Pittsburgh locker room loose.

"I can't forget that bad error in the first game when I threw the ball away," he said, referring to a two-run error on a sure double-play chance.

"At times this club has seemed ready to pack it up and go home, yet it puts its nose in the dirt and goes out and does the job. It never quits."

He was reminded that on occasion he had guaranteed his team a victory. Would he do that today?

"I've only done that a few times," McGregor said. "And then the press got hold of it and blew it out of proportion. . . I'm just going out and do the best I can and if I win I'll say I guaranteed it."

Lubbockites Claim Altus Race Events

Two of five Lubbock drivers who journeyed to Oklahoma over the weekend won main events at Altus.

John Bain was the winner of the semi-late model main and John King snared the feature in the street stock division.

Of three Lubbockites competing in late model/modified ranks, Danny Everette managed a third in the main event. Charley Whorton left the main with a blown rear end and Jimmy Bilbrey suffered a blown tire and bent tie rod and was forced to retire.

Sun Devil AD Brands Ouster Request 'Hasty'

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State athletic director Fred Miller, pledging new data to support his firing coach Frank Kush, says a booster organization's call for his own suspension is "hasty and based on emotion, not fact."

The call for Miller's suspension came from the 13,245-member Sun Angel Foundation, Arizona State's largest athletic booster organization, which also announced it was suspending its financial support of the school.

Miller, who has conducted news conferences repeatedly since firing Kush last Saturday, called yet another to "make sure that everything I said before is validated."

The Arizona Republic, the morning newspaper in nearby Phoenix, said today that what Miller referred to only as "new data" would be sworn statements from persons with knowledge of Kush's having punched a player or of what Miller has called Kush's covering up the incident.

Former Arizona State punter Kevin Rutledge has filed suit seeking $1.1 million, alleging he was driven into quitting the team by physical and mental harassment by Kush and other coaches, including Kush's having hit him after a bad punt during a 1978 game.

Miller said it wasn't the alleged blow itself but an attempt to cover up the situation that led him to fire Kush.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Court Judge William Copple, acting on a request by Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing, ordered both sides in the controversy limit their comments to matters of public record.

Hing charged in the request that Kush told members of his coaching staff they would have to "lie to protect him and their jobs."

The Sun Angels Foundation, calling for reinstatement of Kush, said it would hold off on plans to build a $1.2 million golf course for the Tempe campus and "cannot consider" going ahead with once-planned $6 million completion of an end zone section for the football stadium that would expand it to 86,000 seats.

It also contended that Kush's dismissal jeopardized a current $700,000 debt for stadium construction.

Hing's motion, on which Copple has scheduled a hearing for Friday, accused Kush and his attorney, Harry Cavanagh, of "hounding and harassing" players by hiring an investigator.

Hing also charged that Kush intimidated linebacker Gary Bouck by saying players wanted Kush to take Bouck off the team because they thought he was a "rat fink." Bouck reportedly is one of three players who made depositions as eyewitnesses to the blow Kush is alleged to have struck, though none of the three has been identified officially.

Kush admitted meeting with Bouck but said the player denied having seen Kush hit Rutledge. Kush also denied there was any intimidation in the meeting.

Extra security measures remained in effect for the major parties in the controversy.

Meanwhile, the new head coach named by Miller, former defensive coach Bob Owens, switched team workouts from the evening to afternoon hours, saying "we worked the kids extra hard...to get their minds on football."

Lubbock Duo Enters Races In California

Two Lubbock area drivers competing in NASCAR's late model sportsman division are en route to Bakersfield, Calif., today to compete in the first of a pair of western states auto race classes.

J.D. Hughes of Sundown and Jay Turner of Lubbock will drive Camaros in the Bakersfield event this weekend and then will head back to Las Vegas, Nev., for another LMS event the following weekend.

Both drivers began their racing careers here were favorites with crowds at Lubbock Speedway. When the track reverted to dirt from pavement late in 1978 they began campaigning major paved ovals in the South, Midwest and West.

Last outing for the pair was earlier this month at Colorado Springs, where both experienced engine problems.

Turner, now running without a sponsor, said last week he hoped to attract sponsorship for two major winter calendar events that will follow the western race dates.

Both Turner and Hughes are entered in the fourth annual Texas Race of Champions slated Sunday, Nov. 11, at the two-mile Texas World Speedway at Bryan. That event will consist of two 50-mile heats bracketing the U.S. Auto Club's Texan 250 for late model stock cars.

In late January the pair will go to Phoenix for the Copper State Classic, contested at 100 laps over the high-banked mile at Phoenix International Raceway.

Sanders Displeased With Chap Performance

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Jerry Don Sanders said Tuesday he really is looking forward to homecoming—the 1980 one.

This week is Lubbock Christian College's homecoming football game, but Sanders, in looking to the distant future, remarked, "Maybe by that time, we will be playing better."

"We have a couple of seniors, and maybe by next year, we can show Joe Green how much we've improved."

Green is a senior this year, and the wide receiver leads the team in receptions with 16.

Sanders' Chaparrals will go into this week's homecoming contest with a 1-6 record, the last coming at the hands of Sul Ross 49-0 here last Saturday.

That caused part of Sanders' humor about this week's homecoming, a noon date with Panhandle (Okla.) State in Lowrey Field. Not only are the Chaparrals on a losing streak, but Panhandle is the lone team LCC faces this year that gives football scholarships.

"Against Sul Ross, Sanders said his Chaps "didn't play well, we didn't play with intensity, and we didn't play with enthusiasm."

Bluntly, then, "We were not pleased with the performance," added Sanders.

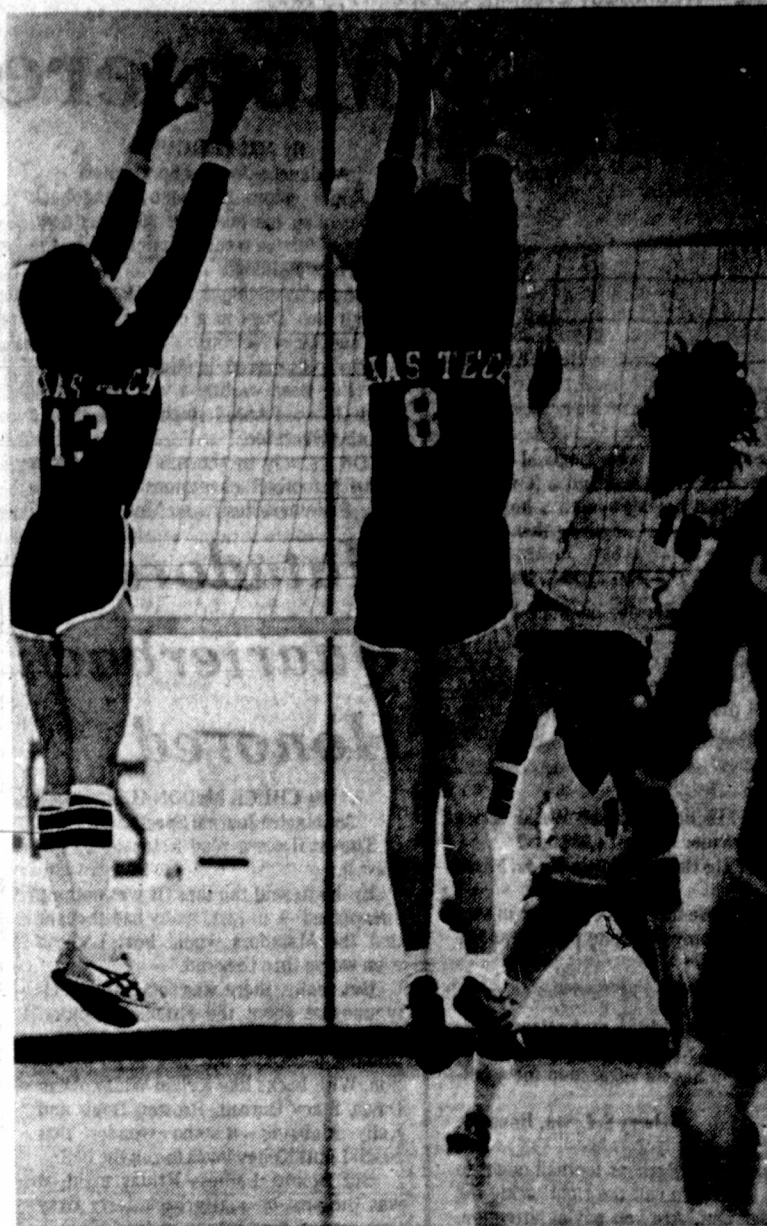

The LCC coach, speaking at his weekly press luncheon, said he hoped to be able to regroup this week. He commended the offensive efforts of his running backs, Marvin Wiley, Ted Thornton, and Pat Worthey, and he pointed to the work of backup quarterbacks Curtis Dean and Paul Elkins as "showing some things right."

Defensively, Neil Sayles was singled out for praise.

Sanders indicated that defensive back Craig Jordan could be sidelined by knee surgery, and another defensive back, Roland Mosley, is out for the remainder of the year (two games) with a broken wrist.

After Saturday's game, the Chaparrals will wind up on the road against Tarleton State.

As a part of Saturday's homecoming activities, LCC will stage a pair of alumni games. This year's basketball team will take on the exes in a game at LCC at 10 a.m., and the baseball contest with the same matchups will be played at 4 p.m.

Lady Raiders Win Third From LCC

For the third time this season, the Texas Tech women's volleyball squad defeated Lubbock Christian College's Lady Chaparrals.

The Red Raiders took the match in straight games—15-8, 15-6, 15-4.

Tech is now 18-13 on the year, while the loss dropped the Chaps to 20-14.

The Red Raiders will next be in action Friday during the Sooner Invitational in Norman, Okla.

A Matter Of Timing

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ
And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I can't help wonder if the trade of Leon Gray by New England wasn't timed as it was intentionally to hurt Leon because of his walkout a few years back. With his wife about to have a child and just having bought a home, it couldn't have happened at a worse time. Do you know of anything that might lead credence to this?

—Randy Bell, Houston.

A. The timing was due to the Oilers' need for an offensive lineman, but the new general manager at New England, Bucko Kilroy, had been looking for a spot to unload Gray, due to this contract hassle with the club.

Kilroy is a hard-nosed guy of the old school who once won a lawsuit against Life Magazine when it called him the dirtiest player in the NFL. Kilroy is determined that New England will win with its own kind of people, and hold-overs don't fit the mold.

Q. Did Lou Brock's 3,000 hits include the hits he got in the World Series and All-Star games? Has there been any major leaguer who got 4,000 hits?

—Pete Hughes, Battle Creek, Mich.

A. Brock's 3,000 all came in league games. Those other hits are kept in separate categories for those events. Ty Cobb is the only player to pass 4,000 hits (plus 191).

Q. Isn't it about time the designation offensive tackle in professional football was changed to something more original? The person playing that position seldom is required to tackle anyone. Do you have a suggestion for a better name?

—Harry S. Levin, Houston.

A. You may have an idea whose time has come. Perhaps football ought to take a leaf from the nomenclature used in soccer, to call the right tackle the outside right and the right guard the inside right. Are you paying attention, Roome Artsidge?

Q. Now that college football season has started again, I am curious about Woody Hayes and Ohio State. Does he sit in the stands or in a booth in the press box, a padded booth, that is?

—N. Gessner, Anderson, Ind.

A. They don't know what to do with Woody at Ohio State games this season. If he sat in the stands, he would be mobbed by many of his still-adoring fans. If he sat in some area of the press box, he would be in the proximity of (1) writers or (2) athletic director Hugh Hindman, the man who fired him. Hayes solved the opening game problem by telling everyone he would be out of town that weekend, then watched the game at home via cable television.

Q. I have been going to games in Houston since they got major league ball there, when they were the Colt .45s. On my recent trip I have never noticed if the original outdoor baseball stadium is still there. Is it used for high school games or has it been torn down?

—James H. Dufour, Lake Charles, La.

A. When the Astrodome was built, someone asked Judge Roy Hofheinz what they should do about the vacated ball park. "Color it vanished," the judge said, so they painted it battleship gray.

But the Colt .45s stadium lives on in Mexico. The owners of the Union Laguna Cottongrowers, a team in the Mexican league, bought it, had it dismantled and shipped to Torreón, Mexico, where it was put back together and renamed Parque Superior. The Cottongrowers correctly claim they have the only major league ballpark in the country.

Q. Please answer the following questions concerning the designated hitter rule in this situation: In the sixth inning DH goes into the field at first base, the first baseman goes to second, and the second baseman is taken out. For the batting order the DH hits in his same spot, while the pitcher has to hit in the second baseman's spot in the lineup. Is this change correct?

—Dave Irwin, Atkinson, Neb.

A. You've got it right. When the designated hitter is inserted as a fielder, the team loses its DH advantage.

HOT LINE FEEDBACK — Tom Landry is not a "young 56." He is a young 66. (Alicia Landry, Dallas.)

In reply, you are correct, of course, Mrs. Landry. The coach was 55 on Sept. 11 this year. He used to be a certain number of years older than the authors, we thought, but then we have been aging faster than he has.

Volleyballer Selected For Weekly LCC Honor

Cheryl Skaggs, leader in Lubbock Christian College's two volleyball victories last week, was named the school's athlete of the week.

It was third time around for Miss Skaggs, who twice previously had been nominated for the honor.

"Cheryl has been very consistent the past few weeks and has been exceptional in her defensive play," said volleyball coach Larry Rogers.

The Lady Chaps won two matches last week, and Miss Skaggs came up with 10 points, 10 of them in the 15-4, 15-3 win over Northwest Oklahoma State.

Defensive tackle Neil Sayles, volleyball player Linda Russell, and tennis player Steve Joiner were nominated for the weekly honor. Sayles had ten solo tackles and four assists in the Chaparrals' 49-0 loss to Sul Ross.

Joiner won two matches last week, and Miss Russell scored on 20 serves in the two matches with Northwest Oklahoma and Panhandle State last week.

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
James Odom has been sitting back and cooling his heels for 361 days now, waiting for a return match with the Plainview Bulldogs.

Thursday night at 7:30, Odom hopes to put the "Dogs in a combination half, full and Ricky Nelson.

No holds barred, in other words. "I've been waiting a year for them," said Odom. "And I might be waiting another year, too."

On its way to the school's first-ever district football championship last season, Plainview destroyed Monterey 46-27.

Matadors' Quarterback Honored

By CHUCK McDONALD

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
The final score read Estacado 35 Lamesa 0.

Ho hum, said the fans. It was nothing unexpected — in fact, many had thought that the Matadors would beat Lamesa even worse than they did.

But really, there was something pretty unusual about the Estacado victory. The Mats have always been known as a running team and this year is no exception. With backs like Kelvin White, Alvin Davis, Stacy Burrell, Preston Davis and Kelly McBride, it's no wonder that coach Louis Kelley loves to run the ball.

But against Lamesa Friday night, it was the arm of quarterback Jerry Gray that carried the Mats to victory. Gray, a 160-pound junior, has directed the Matador offense well all year but his passing performance against Lamesa was the biggest of his career in the Estacado backfield, landing him the Avalanche-Journal Class AAA Player of the Week.

And Gray couldn't have picked a better time to get hot. With time running out in the first half, the surprising Lamesa defense had held the mighty Matador running attack in check.

That's when Kelley elected to go to the airwaves — and the move paid off.

First, Gray connected with wingback Preston Davis for an 11-yard gain to give EHS a first down. Then he hit split end Kenneth Cade on a beautiful 33-yard scoring strike to give Estacado a big boost going into the locker room.

Cade was well covered by a pair of Golden Tor defenders but Gray's pass was perfectly thrown and the Matador receiver made a diving catch for the TD. After the contest, Kelley said that the pass was the turning point in the game.

"We really needed to get something on the board at that time," he said. That really gave us a lift."

But Gray's heroics didn't stop there. He went on to connect with Warren Lyons for a 22-yard touchdown in the third quarter and then executed a beautiful screen pass to Stacy Burrell.

The touchdown by Burrell was the Mats last of the night, and by that standard, meaningless. Still, it was a pretty play to watch. Facing a fourth and 8 at the LHS 27, Gray dropped 8, 10 and then 15 yards behind the line of scrimmage.

A host of Lamesa defenders trailed him, smelling a sack. But just before they arrived for the kill, Gray flipped off his pass that Burrell caught around the 30. The only people around him were Estacado teammates and he went into the end zone untouched.

"We've worked on the screen in practice," said Kelley, "but that was the first time we've ever tried it in a game."

"Jerry handled it pretty well."

before a record crowd in Bulldog Stadium. But that was the same season the Plainmen recorded their short-est ever win-loss mark, a 3-6-1 record. This time, MHS comes into the clash at Lowrey Field with a 5-1 mark, while Plainview is at 2-3.

"I'm ready to play," commented Odom. "But I wish we had a couple of more days (to practice), though. That'd be nice."

Over the past four or five years, the Plainview-MHS contest has turned into a real grudge game for both teams. And there'll be little love lost between the two when they meet in the important District 4-AAAA matchup.

What makes the contest so important is that it's a loop-banger. And with only five teams in the district a loss can all but put a team out of the race for the year.

"No one has ever won the district outright with a loss," confirmed Odom. "There's been quite a few ties."

So a win "would go a long way in deciding whose going to win the thing", said Odom.

Not only is Odom "excited" about the meeting, but so are the Plainmen, he said. But the team hasn't gotten to the point of walking MHS' hallowed halls with glassy eyes and sweaty palms.

"You can get too excited about a game," said Odom. "I don't think we're at that point. But we're excited. We're just ready to play... that kind of excited."

Defensive back Arthur Hanna, also valuable as a punt-returner, is the only questionable starter for Thursday's game. Hanna suffered a knee injury during the second quarter of last week's 51-18 win over Clovis. Odom said a decision on whether Hanna will play against Plainview will be made at the last possible moment.

This will be the first time in two years the Plainview-Monterey contest has been played at Lowrey Field. That suits Odom fine.

"Let's just say I'd rather play in front of a home crowd," said Odom. "Be it ever so humble..."

HS, College Cross-Country Meet Scheduled

Thirty teams will come from miles around to run around for miles as the Texas Tech Invitational cross-country meet is held Saturday in conjunction with the prep Lubbock Invitational beginning at 10 a.m. at Mae Simmons Park.

More than 400 runners will compete in six different races that include both girls' and boys' races on the junior varsity and varsity levels, a men's junior college event and, of course, the main feature, the men's major college varsity run.

The Raiders are co-defending champions of the Tech Invitational along with West Texas State University. According to Tech coach Corky Oglesby, duplication of that feat may not be anticipated.

"West Texas State should be favored, without a doubt," Oglesby said. "Oh, gosh, they're tough. We just don't have the experience and the manpower to go against them."

WTSU will enter five runners from Kenya, some of whom have world-class abilities. Tech will counter, principally, with senior star Greg Lautenslager, who ran in last year's NCAA meet and is now tuning up for the Southwest Conference meet later this month in Houston.

"We've got as good, or better, a runner than WTSU has, in Lautenslager," Oglesby said, "but after that we don't have the depth. New Mexico State University has pretty good strength and I think they'll probably challenge us for second."

Also entered in the major college division are Angelo State, Abilene Christian, Eastern New Mexico and Wayland Baptist.

The Tech cause will be hindered by the absence of junior Bert Torres, Lautenslager's main support, who has been hobbled by shin-splints.

The high school runners will come from — in addition to the five Lubbock public schools — the four Amarillo schools, Pampa, Borger, Dumas, Levelland, Brownfield, Abertathy, Midland, Midland Lee, Odessa, Odessa Permian, Abilene, Abilene Cooper, Big Spring and Clyde.

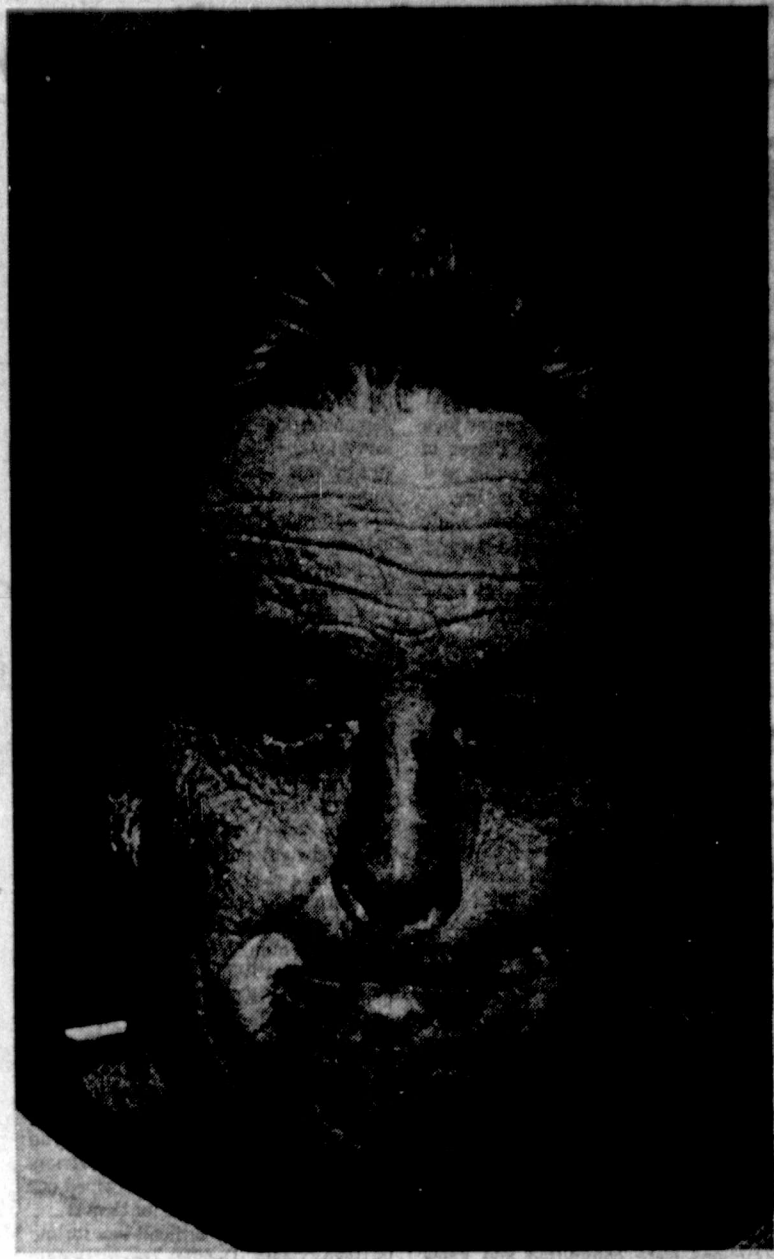

Defending champion in the boys' varsity division is Midland Lee, while Amarillo High will aim for two in a row on the girls' varsity level.

Fleet Freshman Honored

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

People who watch him scurry around the football field stare with awe and amazement. They want to know how he does it. They want to know how a man who weighs 300 pounds is quick enough to chase down the fleetest of college quarterbacks.

But Texas Tech freshman noseguard Gabriel Rivera isn't choosy. He doesn't mind chasing down quarterbacks, or fullbacks, or tailbacks or anything — as long as it has the football.

Rivera, a 6-3, 300-pound giant who runs a 4.9 40, first gained notoriety by tugging about the time he ate some 15 Big Macs at one sitting, but he has gained a lot of respect as of late with his ability on the gridiron.

Rivera, who has seen action in all of Tech's games this season, had the biggest game of his short career Saturday against Arkansas.

The San Antonio-Jefferson graduate led the Red Raider defense with 13 tackles against the Hogs, seven of them being solo efforts. For his performance, Rivera has been named the Avalanche-Journal Tech Defensive Player of the Week.

Rivera and junior defensive tackle Jamie Giles were all over the field for the Raiders. Giles had an excellent game himself, finishing the afternoon with 11 tackles, six of them unassisted.

"Both Gabe and Jamie have been improving every week," Red Raider mentor Rex Dochery said. "We've been very pleased with both of them. Being able to get the type of performance from them that we did Saturday just makes our defense that much stronger."

The man who scored all of Tech's points during the 20-6 loss, senior kicker Bill Adams, has been selected this week's Tech Offensive Player of the Week.

Adams, a 5-11, 155-pounder from Fort Worth Arlington Heights, is Tech's career field goal leader. His 34-and-30-yarders Saturday gave him 25 over his career. Even more impressive is Adams' percentage over the past two years. He has been successful on 67 of 100 goals and 67 of 100 extra points in the 17 contests.

The Raiders practice for the home Tuesday, putting in the offensive and defensive game plans they will use against Rice Saturday.

"We had a very good practice today," Dochery noted. "The practice showed us as it went on. Our players showed great intensity and concentration."

Raider starting quarterback Rex Reeves saw limited action during Tuesday's workout because of a hip-painster he sustained in Saturday's contest. Dochery said Reeves was expected to see more action today and should be ready to go against the Owls Saturday.

Tech's injury situation appears better now than it has at any time since the season opener against Southern California. Senior strong safety Larry Flowers' ankle is stronger than it has been since that time and fullback Wes Hightower, who missed the first six games of the season with a knee injury, is back practicing with the team.

NY Rookie Cartwright Leads Win Over Rockets

By The Associated Press
 Before playing the New York Knicks, Houston's Moses Malone was warned by his coach, Del Harris: "You'll be seeing a lot of Bill Cartwright for a long time."

He saw all he wanted to see of him Tuesday night.

New York's gifted rookie center took on last year's Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association as if he had been playing Malone all his life.

Cartwright scored 31 points while holding Malone to 17. And the result was a 126-121 victory for the Knicks.

"Tonight I learned how to play Moses Malone," said Cartwright. "I decided to keep Moses away from the boards and keep him from getting inside the basket area. Basically, I think I succeeded."

ed. He was taking shots he didn't want to take. If I had to play against Malone tomorrow, I'd play him the same way I played him tonight."

Cartwright, the 7-foot-1 product of the University of San Francisco who was the Knicks' No. 1 draft pick this year, is demonstrating durability as well as court savvy for a rookie. In the Knicks' early victory this season, a 125-118 overtime game against the Washington Bullets last Saturday, Cartwright played 50 minutes and was the team's high scorer with 27 points. Tuesday night, he played a game-high 43 minutes.

"Frankly, I thought Cartwright would be good but I did not envision him being so good so soon," said Knicks coach Red Holman. "He's tough to play against, getting his good position, getting the ball at the right place at the right time. He looks like he will be an important force for us. I'm glad we got him — to say the least."

When the Pacers built a 21-point lead and coasted past New Jersey.

Alex English came off the bench with 22 points and Billy Knight added 20 as the Pacers, leading from the start, had little trouble against the Nets.

Cavaliers 137, Pistons 117

Randy Smith scored 23 points as Cleveland routed Detroit for coach Stan Albeck's first victory in three outings. The Cavaliers took a 46-26 lead into the second period and collected a club record 79 points in the first half.

Spurs 118, Hawks 116

George Gervin, the defending NBA scoring champion, collected 30 points, including the game-winning basket with four seconds left, to lead San Antonio over Atlanta. The Spurs squandered a 22-point lead amassed in the first half to fall behind the Hawks in the third quarter before rallying behind the 6-foot-7 Gervin.

Suns 107, Sonics 86

Center Alvin Adams scored 26 points and Truck Robinson added 22 as Phoenix defeated Seattle. The game was the first between the two Western Division powers since the Sonics eliminated Phoenix in the conference finals last year.

Blazers 88, Clippers 81

T.R. Dunn pumped in 18 points and harassed San Diego's high-scoring guards all night to lead Portland over the Clippers. The victory was the third in as many games for the Blazers, who grabbed the lead for good at 38-36 on Dunn's 18-footer with 4:57 left in the first half.

Lakers 105, Bulls 96

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 21 points and collected 10 rebounds to lead Los Angeles past Chicago. Jamal Wilkes added 20 points for the Lakers and rookie Magic Johnson and his backcourt mate, Norm Nixon, had 19 points apiece for Los Angeles, which was playing its home opener.

NCAA Penalizes San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—University of San Francisco basketball coach Dan Belluomini says he's known the NCAA would punish his school — he thought it would. Now that it has hit USF with a one-year probation, Belluomini says he's relieved.

"To tell the truth, it's really a weight off our shoulders," Belluomini said Tuesday after the official announcement of the probation was made. "We've known for the past two years when we were out recruiting that the investigation was going on. There were infractions and when the NCAA finds them they penalize you."

"I was assistant coach at the time the infractions were committed and knew some of them were occurring. But those, like letting the players use complimentary Warrior tickets, I didn't know were against the rules."

The use of the free pro basketball tickets were among several somewhat minor infractions cited by the NCAA as the reason for USF's probation.

None of those infractions occurred more recently than in 1976, the NCAA said, and included allowing players to use the athletic department car, the department phone for long distance calls without charge and giving players small gifts and small loans of up to $20.

With New York and Houston tied at 119, Cartwright put the Knicks ahead to stay with a close-in shot from the baseline with 43 seconds to go. It marked the fourth straight basket for Cartwright in a span of one minute, 53 seconds.

Guard Ray Williams also scored 31 points for the Knicks. Robert Reid had 22 to lead the Houston offense.

Warriors 108, Nuggets 106

John Lucas and JoJo White ignited Golden State's fast break in the third period, triggering the Warriors past Denver. The two Golden State guards, who combined for 30 points, led the Warriors to a 29-point third period that wiped out a 60-54 halftime advantage for Denver.

"This was a very difficult loss for me to take," said Denver coach Donnie Walsh. "I guess that's because we played so much better than we have been playing."

Major Meat Buyers Favor Computerized System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although some stubborn resistance may develop against a nationwide computer system for the wholesale meat trade, two of the government's biggest meat-buying agencies say they would go along with the plan.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Tuesday that the Agriculture and Defense departments endorse the idea. But it should be set up by private industry, free of direct government subsidies, new laws or new regulations, Bergland told the House Small Business Committee.

Advocates of the computerized system say it would make the wholesale meat business more competitive and eliminate opportunities for price manipulation by a handful of big meat packers and supermarkets.

The committee has been sharply critical of the current system by which supermarket chains, large meatpackers and others use "average prices" from only a few sales by others as a basis for buying and selling beef.

The cotton and egg industries have a computerized system now, with producers offering goods for sale and buyers bidding on them through the network. Bergland said the programs operate like the computerized market in over-the-counter common stocks.

Bergland put the beef industry on notice this summer that it had a year to change its practices or he would consider legislation to require a different approach. His warning stemmed from findings of a task force on meat pricing he appointed a year ago under pressure from the committee.

"We're waiting for someone in private industry to begin a system. ... As soon as they do, we're in" as a large-volume buyer for school lunches and other feeding programs, Bergland said.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown wrote him this week that the Pentagon also would participate. The two agencies alone would make such a system "commercially sound very quickly," he said.

However, "imposing mandatory price reporting ... is premature today and hopefully can be avoided through voluntary cooperation," Bergland said.

Committee members were skeptical, saying only outsiders are dissatisfied with present arrangements. "The big guys aren't going to mess around with it," commented Rep. Dan Marriott, R-Utah. "They already get the prices they want."

Egg Industry Requests Assessment Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The egg industry is asking Congress for authority to increase assessments of egg producers for a research and promotion program at a time when producer-financed projects are facing scrutiny.

A top Agriculture Department official told a House Agriculture subcommittee Tuesday producer-financed programs should focus more on research and advertise only nutritional or educational material.

The policy was adopted as an Agriculture Department inspector general's audit recommended the department tighten its review of programs and budgets of Cotton Inc., the farmer-financed cotton promotion organization.

The Agriculture Department was criticized for lax oversight of the cotton program.

All the programs — eggs, dairy, potato, cotton and wool — are financed by producer assessments under authority of federal law with oversight by the Agriculture Department. Wheat and beef programs have been proposed.

Under all programs, producers are able to receive refunds of their assessments. About 11 percent of egg producer funds are refunded.

The egg industry now raises $6 million a year with assessments of 5 cents for a 30-dozen case of eggs. The pending legislation would raise the assessment to 7.5 cents per case and by increments to 10 cents per case, subject to approval in a referendum of egg producers.

If passed on to consumers, the estimated extra cost would be 0.1 cent per dozen eggs.

Barbara Lindemann Schlei, Agricultural Marketing Service administrator, told the subcommittee the Agriculture Department would not oppose a higher assessment if the egg industry's promotion is devoted to nutritional and educational information, including research results.

She said the department also wanted two consumers on the Egg Board, the organization which runs the research and promotion effort.

"Nobody likes competition," added Rep. Berkeley Bedell, D-Iowa.

"If we run up against a stone wall, we're prepared to come back with legislation," replied Bergland. He said he hoped for "tangible movement by spring," after a February seminar on electronic marketing he's sponsoring for the industry.

Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, the committee chairman, has been conducting hearings and investigations on meat pricing for two years. He said he was encouraged by Bergland's endorsement of electronic marketing, "but I'm still impatient."

He and Bergland said about 70 percent of today's meat is sold by "formula pricing." Critics say the system is based on a "thin" market that reflects only a small portion of the actual transactions in the U.S. market.

In formula pricing, a buyer will agree, for example, on a Monday to buy a carload for Wednesday's quoted price in one of the trade pricing publications, usually the Chicago-based Yellow Sheet.

"So there is an opportunity for the tail to wag the dog," Bergland said. He said he soon will require more information on sale invoices to help check possible manipulation.

Agriculture Report Predicts Cutback In China's Imports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Tuesday predicted that China will import slightly less grain this crop year than the estimated 10.9 million tons imported last crop year.

So far the Chinese are committed to buy about 6 million tons in the year which began July 1.

A record Chinese grain crop last year, an expected record crop of 132.5 million metric tons this year and relatively higher prices may cause China to cut back on its grain imports. This month's world grain situation report indicates China can use 9.5 million tons more grain than it will produce.

Unlike other major grain exporters, the United States has no formal agreement to sell grain to China. In the year ending June 30, China bought more than 5 million tons of U.S. grain. As of Oct. 12, China had contracted for 1.4 million tons of U.S. grain for the current crop year.

U.S. officials said Chinese imports of American grain "may be influenced by the ability of the other major exporting countries to ship all their commitments."

In September, China bought only 2 million tons for the first year of a three-year agreement to buy 8.4 million to 10.5 million tons of Canadian wheat. The commitment is 800,000 tons below the lower limit agreed to in the agreement.

China also has a three-year agreement to buy 7.5 million tons of wheat from Australia. In the 12 months ending in November, China bought 3 million tons from Australia, 2.5 million tons of which was counted against the first year of the agreement.

Argentina has a three-year, non-binding understanding to sell China up to 3 million tons of grain. U.S. officials said they expected China to buy 1 million tons from Argentina this year.

Over the long term, Chinese imports will be affected by the speed with which China can carry out plans to expand its livestock industry and improve diets.

U.S. officials said the world would produce 1.38 billion tons of grain, counting rice on a milled rather than a rough basis this crop year. The world is expected to consume 1.42 billion tons, which is more than will be produced.

Consequently, stocks are expected to be drawn down to 13 percent of utilization, compared to 12 percent during the relatively tight period of 1973-75.

World trade is expected to be a record 191 million tons, 10 percent above last season's record. U.S. exports are expected to account for nearly 60 percent of world trade, compared to 53 percent last crop year.

Jessica Savitch Likely Prospect To Anchor News

By TOM JORY
NEW YORK (AP) — One name you're likely to hear in any discussion of the future of NBC's "Nightly News" is that of Jessica Savitch.

"I try very hard not to think about it," says Miss Savitch, a most likely prospect to become the first woman since Barbara Walters to anchor a network's evening news program on a regular basis. "The only time I do is when I'm asked, and I'm asked a great deal."

"I would probably welcome the challenge and the opportunity to do 'Nightly News,' and I have to say I'm flattered when I hear my name mentioned that way."

"But I'm only 31 years old and there are a lot of things I'd like to do and learn."

Barbara Walters spent 12 years with NBC News before she was hired by ABC in the fall of 1976 to co-anchor that network's evening news with Harry Reasoner. Miss Savitch has, however, covered a good deal of ground since joining NBC News in Washington barely two years ago.

She currently is principal reporter and anchor for weekend editions of "Nightly News," as well as "NBC News Update" reports on weekends, has substituted for Tom Brokaw and Jane Pauley on NBC's "Today" program, and recently sat in for Tom Snyder as host of the network's "Tomorrow" interview show.

Recently, Miss Savitch was assigned to NBC's struggling "Prime Time Sunday," joining Chris Wallace and Jack Perkins as a principal reporter for the weekly newsmagazine. She'll continue to anchor "Nightly News" on weekends.

"What few people realize," she says, explaining her rather rapid ascent in the business, "is that I've worked half my life to be this overnight success."

"That doesn't mean I don't stop now and then and look around and say, 'Wow, it really is terrific.' To be biased about it is to not understand the situation."

Miss Savitch, a native of Kennett Square, Pa., began her career in broadcasting while in high school, and worked at radio station WBBF in Rochester, N.Y., while attending Ithaca College.

She worked at WCBS Newsradio in New York City in 1969, and spent two years, 1970-72, as a reporter and anchor for KHOU-TV in Houston. She joined NBC News after four years at Philadelphia's KYW-TV.

Chances are, "Nightly News" will have a new look before too long. David Brinkley recently was removed as Washington anchor for the program to provide periodic commentary on politics, and John Chancellor has said he'd like a similar role as correspondent and commentator.

Brinkley has anchored or co-anchored "Nightly News" off and on since 1956, and Chancellor took over as the program's principal anchor in New York in 1971.

Miss Savitch says the "Prime Time Sunday" assignment was not proposed to her as a step toward "Nightly News," nor did she take it that way.

"I didn't say, 'Gee, is this positioning me for another move?' My consideration in taking the assignment," she says, "was that you don't always grow a lot in the studio, and I've been spending most of my time there recently."

"A person grows in this business in many ways — covering stories, writing, reporting. I think you move in direct proportion to the stories, and the variety of stories, you cover."

Miss Savitch says she's optimistic about the future of "Prime Time Sunday," which premiered in June with Tom Snyder as anchor. The program has not done well in the ratings, and her assignment by NBC News' new president, William Small, is something of a shot in the arm for the show.

"It needs to build up a loyalty," she says. "Everyone tends to forget it took '60 Minutes' a good four years to build an audience, and longer than that to improve in the ratings."

"The program has a tremendous potential, and it does not have the luxury of being up against Mickey Mouse, and that's saying nothing against '60 Minutes.' It's a great show."

"'60 Minutes' has flourished in the protected 7 p.m. Sunday time slot, with NBC's "World of Disney" the primary competition.

ABC Waiting To Make Major Changes In Television Schedule

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI)—ABC plans to wait a while before making any major changes in its television lineup.

So says Marvin Mord, the network's vice president, research services. "I would not expect that our program schedule would go intact through the first quarter," Mord said, which translates into significant schedule changes around mid-January.

ABC, battling unexpectedly fierce ratings competition from NBC, already has yanked the hospital series "The Lazarus Syndrome" for revamping.

Mord said that the scripts after the opening pilot special — which received good audience sampling — appeared to bog down in a single story line, instead of offering a secondary plot that could "present lightness, humor, counterbalancing elements." Expect it back "at some point in 1980."

A similar fate befell "Nobody's Perfect," a half-hour detective comedy that never made it on air, starring Ron Moody as a bumbling Scotland Yard man on loan to the San Francisco police department.

"After the pilot script, it started to be increasingly geared to solving mysteries. It ended up Sherlock Holmes instead of Inspector Clouseau. I'm certain it will be a part of our schedule in the early part of next year."

Among other new ABC series, "Benson" looks like a hit, and "Hart to Hart" is expected to do well in its new Tuesday night slot.

Mord says "240-Robert," like "Emergency" and "CHiPs," to which the show bears distinct similarity, is a slow starter that could build to hit proportions. The network has not given up on "A New Kind of Family," despite dismal ratings, but look for "Out of the Blue" to vanish from whence it came.

ABC surprised the industry by opening the new season with some of its hit combinations broken up and old favorites in new time slots. "Fantasy Island," for one, was a disappointment on Friday night and has been rescheduled to Saturdays.

The network's top hits are not in trouble, but neither "Happy Days" nor "Laverne & Shirley" are rating as high this year as when they were teamed on Tuesday nights. "Mork & Mindy" doesn't fare as well on Sundays as it did on Thursdays.

"We recognized going in that this would occur, but we felt that it was necessary and something we had to live with if we expected to be able to do two things — be very competitive in every time period on the schedule, and use the audience base of established programs for building new hits. We tried that with "Angie," "Benson" and "The Associates." So far we've been successful with "Angie" and "Benson."

"The Associates" may get another chance in a later time period — Mord admitted the comedy might not be compatible with its lead-in, "Mork & Mindy." "Detective School," on the other hand, is expected to flunk out.

Sunday remains ABC's biggest problem. Monday and Friday need bolstering. Midweek so far remains ABC territory.

University Receives $16 Million Gift

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Nova University, founded less than 15 years ago, has entered the ranks of the nation's top 100 schools in endowment wealth with a $16 million out-of-court settlement from the will of insurance millionaire Leo Goodwin Sr.

Goodwin, founder of Government Employees Insurance Corp., set up a trust a week before his death in 1971 by setting aside a small part of his fortune which he said should be distributed to local schools.

The trustees agreed to give the 5,500-student school most of the funds. They reversed themselves in 1978, arguing in court that Nova was controlled by the New York Institute of Technology on Long Island, N.Y. The out-of-court settlement was reached last week.

Frank Loesser's 'Most Happy Fella' Reopens On Broadway

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — With revival fever lurking here, Frank Loesser's "The Most Happy Fella" has reopened on Broadway — "Peter Pan" was revived there last month — after a rest of more than 20 years.

The rest hasn't done it all that good. The 1956 hit that ran 677 performances seems routine now, a soap opera boasting only of good music. It's a pleasant show, but only its dancing really shines.

It bowed last week, reprising the tuneful tale of a middle-aged grape-grower in Napa, Calif., his young bride and her brief one-night fling with his handsome young foreman that results in pregnancy.

Giorgio Tozzi, the former Metropolitan Opera star, plays Tony, the Italian immigrant who grows the grapes. Sharon Daniels plays his bride and Richard Muenz his respectful, strapping young foreman.

As in 1956, Tony falls in love with a pretty, foot-weary waitress (Miss Daniels) while visiting San Francisco. He sends her a barrage of love letters and wins her heart, though she can't recall his looks.

He proposes by mail. She accepts. Trouble is, his maiden sister (Adrienne Leonetti) reminds him that he's middle-aged and homely. He fears rejection. He sends his beloved a false picture of himself.

The mug on the photo actually is that of handsome Joe, who is unaware of this development. But Joe wises up and so does the waitress when she arrives at the ranch.

She goes into shock upon learning her beau is old. She's shocked again when he's felled by an accident and, badly battered, he pleads for her to marry him before he leaves this world.

She marries. She wants to leave his ranch immediately, but is delayed by Joe. He keeps telling her Tony is a wonderful man and gives her a hug. This leads to a night of amour, an accident, of course.

All this is in the first act. The second has Tony recuperating and the audience waiting for him to learn she is pregnant by another.

The prelims, waiting, disclosure and bittersweet but happy finale are only fitfully entertaining. Sadly, none of the leads turn in strong performances that might have redeemed the predictable plot.

The best work comes from supporting players, such as Dennis Warning, cast as a dim, amiable ranch hand, and three of Tony's sidekicks, played with gusto by Gene Varrone, Darren Nimnicht and Franco Spoto.

Also quite likeable are the dance routines created by Graciela Daniele, particularly the funny "Standing On the Corner" bit in the first act and a lovely waltz-tempo ballet in round two.

Douglas W. Schmidt's spare, but colorfully imaginative sets are a strong plus. And Loesser's score — including the gentle "Joey, Joey, Joey" — is still a delight to hear.

But this revival, directed by Jack O'Brien, just doesn't click. The pace sometimes drags, mainly in the first act and it seems false — at least in this age of cynicism — that no one in it is a bad die. Everyone is kind, thoughtful and decent, and that does get mighty old after a while. Whether such old-fashioned virtue dooms this 1979-model "Fella" remains to be seen.

If it doesn't work, more revivals of past Broadway hits are in the wings for this season and the next. They include "West Side Story," "The Music Man," "Camelot" and "My Fair Lady."

Processing Plants' Violations Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the latest preliminary tests show violations by four processing plants in the amount of nitrosamines found in bacon after it is fried.

The plants were identified this week as: John Morrell and Co., Memphis, Tenn.; Dearborn Sausage Co., Dearborn, Mich.; American Stores Packing Co., Lincoln, Neb.; and Cudahy Co., Denver, Colo. However, the weekly report said John Morrell and Co. met federal specifications after the company made "procedure changes" in its bacon processing. Another plant that had been found in violation earlier, Greer's Inc. of Pryor, Okla., also made changes in its processing and now is in compliance, the department said. Nitrosamines have caused cancer in laboratory animals, although their effects on humans are not known.

Why The Precision Haircut Might Be Right For You.
If you hate the way your haircut disappears the day after, come to Command Performance where we specialize in the precision haircut.
Precision haircutting is our technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. So, as it grows, it doesn't lose its shape. And because the hair is cut to fall naturally, you don't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.
The precision haircut with shampoo and blow-dry costs just fourteen dollars for guys and gals. We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. No appointment is needed, just come in. And you'll see that precision is right for you.
