

Economic Indicators Show Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) -A government index designed to forecast economic trends showed surprising strength in September, rising by the largest amount since April 1978, the Commerce Department reported today.

The Composite Index of Leading Indicators rose 0.8 percent in September, compared with a 0.1 percent rise in August and a 0.3 percent decline in July. The rise was 0.9 percent in April 1978.

The strong showing, however, reflects the economy before the Federal Reserve Board took sweeping action on Oct. 6 to boost interest rates and tighten the money supply to battle rising infla-

But it also comes at a time when most economists are predicting a recession that could increase the unemployment rate to above 8 percent.

"The economy was a lot strong in September than generally expected," said Michael Evans, a private economic consultant

But now that the Federal Reserve Board has taken action, many banks are not making any mortgage or consumer loans and this will slow up the economy substantially, particularly in sharply reduced retail sales and housing production." he said.

Charles Schultz, the White House's top economist, summed up the situation for Congress recently when he said:

We are going to have further softness in the economy. It's like the case of the missing recession: it's out there somewhere, but you can't find it."

The Commerce Department attributed the surprising strength of last month's 10-point index to an significant decline in the layoff rate.

In addition, new orders for plant and equipment as well as consumer goods were up, as were stock prices, total liquid assets and building permits, the department said. Four of the 10 indicators, however, declined in September. They were the average work week, sensitive prices, the money supply and vendor performance.

Vendor performance was the main cause of the decline, the Commerce Department said. This means that the number of companies reporting delivery delays declined, a signal that their suppliers are not extremely busy and are having no problem filling orders, even though they were increasing.

The overall index last month stood at 141.3, which means that it was 141.3 percent ahead of its 1967 base-year level.

In August, the index was 140.2 and in July it stood at 140.1.

By a 73-13 vote, the Senate approved Monday an amendment by Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., that would override until July 1981 laws in 15 states and constitutional provisions in three others that limit interest on farm and business loans. Unless an affected state's legislature acted to specifically exempt it from the Cochran amendment, the new limit on farm and business loans above $25,-000 by state-chartered banks would be 5 percentage points above the federal discount rate. That would translate to a 17 percent ceiling under current conditions. The state ceilings range downward from

eterans' Delayed Stress Reaction Being Studied

Then something sets off the guns in their heads, the long silent guns of Viet-nam, bringing back the trauma of combat and reopening the festering wounds.

Harold Mann, who was a medic in Vietnam, held 27 persons hostage at gunpoint in a tiny church in St. Albans. a nine days ago. He surrendered after making an obscene statement on the radio in which he complained of medical problems the military had ig-

Clinical psychologists believe the Vietnam veterans who explode so violently are reacting to delayed combat stress, the haunting return of the memories and fears of combat in Vietnam.

These people are not crazy," said Don Crawford, a Veterans Administration official. "They've been traumatized by war and need help to adjust."

Little is known about the delayed stress reaction. Researchers are just starting to study the problem, and they warn that Mann will not be the last veteran to explode.

death. In one case, a vet kept seeing decapitated bodies after 10 years of no problems," said Malcolm Farmer, head of counseling at a local VA center.

"We're going to have to live with it for years and years," said Crawford. "If we had started doing something about it 10 years ago it might have been better. Now the problems are complex beyond our understanding.

"We've made a national error that we're going to have to live with," Craw-

In an effort to deal with delayed stress and other chronic problems that trouble veterans, Congress this summer authorized the VA to set up Operation Outreach. Under Crawford's direction, 71 special counseling centers are being set up around the country.

The program was first proposed eight

Larry Lapelle, a VA vocational counselor in Huntington, dealt with Mann in a number of veterans programs. He also grew up with Ashy Leach, the Vietnam vet from Huntington who held 13 perers of the Chessie System railroad in Both men raged at what they said was the indifference of America to the problems and anguish of Vietnam vets. Before their outbursts, they were quite different, Lapelle said.

Mann, working as an ambulance paramedic, was "very, very upset about where he was in life and what he wanted to do," Lapelle said. Leach - a former Chessie employee - "was a pretty solid citizen without any problems." Leach is now in an Ohio prison. Mann, charged with kidnapping, is at Weston State Hospital for psychiatric tests.

Lapelle said Mann's "reactions were quite normal.

"We just don't know that much about these explosions. Maybe more contact with Mann could have prevented

But there was just no time," he said. Charles Figley, professor of psychology at Purdue University and a pioneer in the study of delayed stress reaction, described the phenomenon as the eruption

"Delayed stress basically is putting off dealing with an extremely difficult period in life," he said.

Combat stress is not new but Vietnam veterans faced unique conditions in combat and at home, Figley said. A nightmarish guerrilla war in a threatening, alien world and the nation's indifference when they returned clouded their minds with feelings that have never been confronted, he said.

'They're acting out of resentment lives and deserve some recognition," Figley said. "If you scratch any Vietnam veteran that hostility will come through. Unlike veterans of other wars they never received any recognition.

Studies suggest that up to 85 percent of Vietnam combat veterans are troubled by war memories and a sense of bitterness and resentment over feelings of being used," Figley said. Within that group, as many as 2,500 veterans may be teetering on the edge of psychopathic

"We would predict that these people are at a highly extreme risk," he said. "And it's never going to go away."

Figley links the surfacing of stress to the veterans' age. "Many of them are in their 30s now, which is a very difficult time when most people naturally reflect on their lives and achievements," he

U.S. Hospitals Offer Bounties To Attract Registered Nurses

NEW YORK (UPI) - The nation's hospitals, facing a worsening shortage of registered nurses, are offering bounties ranging from $100 to $1,000 and other recruiting inducements to attract employ-

The American Nurses Association, in a report issued Monday, said estimates of the registered nurse shortage today range up to 100,000. And Matthew McNulty, president of the National League for Nurses, said the shortage is likely to worsen in the future because of declining nursing school enrollment.

Among those paying bounties or rewards - of $100 to $1,000 - to people who help recruit a nurse are hospitals in Detroit, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Chicago and Corpus Christi, an ANA spotcheck showed.

Yet despite the bounty offers and other unusual recruitment strategies, the ANA said the nurse shortage remains acute in many places in the nation and may not improve in future years. McNulty, who is also chancellor of Georgetown University Medical Center in Washington, D.C., said this year - for the first time in a decade -- there was a decline in the number of students in first-year courses: 111,928 compared to 113,479 a year earlier. The number of applications skidded 16 percent.

One index of the current shortage is the unemployment rate for nurses seeking work. Last year it was 1.8 percent -The lowest since 1969.

McNulty said health care leaders met at Department of Health, Education and Welfare offices last week to plot strategy for dealing with the shortage.

Part of the problem, he said, is a dip in interest in nursing as a career. Salaries, a reduction in government educational funds and on-the-job stress also were listed as problems.

The most recent ANA salary survey. done for HEW in 1977, put the average annual salary for a registered nurse at $13,000 a year. Stress, nursing journals report, causes more and more nurses today to burn out - a term for stress overload.

The county has not met payrolls in two weeks and faces a budget deficit of $19.5 million.

Layoff notices to the county's 5.059 employees were hand-delivered Monday. Richard Manning, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, said the county this week will begin determining when and how many of the workers would be called back. The layoffs go into effect Nov. 12.

A special committee will meet Wednesday to draw up a plan to operate only essential services. Manning said the 'bottom line" of essential services would demand a workforce of 2,400. "although this may change depending on the auditors' recommendation and the amount of money.'

Wayne County was unable to distribute paychecks to 3,350 workers Oct. 19. Those employees were paid Friday after caid payments owed to the county.

Manning said the youth home, the medical examiner's office and the jail could have all employees recalled. Workers for the prosecutor, treasurer clerk and other elective posts also were expected to be recalled according to plans laid out earlier.

The money for the Reuther home is separate from a proposed state assistance plan that has so far been blocked by Gov. William Milliken, who wants the county to reorganize its government with fewer administrators.

He has vetoed aid for the county this year and said Monday the vetoes would continue until the reorganization is un-

Old Guard Still On Duty

THE GREAT guessing game of whether upmanship game with the U.S., or one Russian President Leonid Brezhnev "is or is which may decide to turn its attention to not" still with us has been given another go-

After being out of circulation for about three weeks and being the subject of all sorts of speculation, from the fact he may have been treated by a team of U.S. doctors to the usual rumor that he was dead, the beetle-browed Soviet leader showed up at a public function.

Actually, there is good reason for all the interest in Brezhnev's health and his position as top dog in the Soviet hierarchy. When he goes, who will be his successor?

There has been much speculation about who will take over the reins of the vast Communist setup, not to mention command of the world's most massive military machine.

WILL IT BE some of the so-called "old guard" who will carry on the aggressive worldwide policies which have marked Moscow's actions in Africa and the Mideast in recent months?

Or will it be a new, "younger" elite more prone to gamble in the military one- charge in Moscow.

economic and ethnic problems at home?

The answer holds awesome fallout for the rest of the world, and particularly the American people

Currently, the U.S. Senate is in a major debate over whether to "trust" the Russians on arms control and approve SALT II.

THE CARTER administration, which has not really stood up to Moscow anywhere, is backing the controversial treaty, a point not in its favor in our opinion.

On another front, Russia has given no indication it will cease in its "wars of liberation," and the use of Cuban hired guns to fight such wars in Africa and Asia. More years of unrest appear ahead.

So, whoever the top dog may be in the Kremlin, the real issue remains the fact that the Soviet Union is committed to a worldwide policy of spreading Communism, by force if necessary, in its avowed goal to bury" the West.

In that context, who is "in charge" in the which will take over, one which might be U.S. is more important than who is in

Autumn Of The Splintered Trees

SCRABBLE, VA .- On the night of Tuesday. Oct. 9, an unpredicted storm struck our part of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Over a period of six hours the storm dumped 10 to 12 inches of heavy, wet snow on our country-side. It will not be much of an autumn in Rappahannock County.

Such is the anesthetic selectivity of memory that we tend to forget the violence of nature. The deepest floods, the worst hurricanes, the most devastating fires in time become mere points of

This particular storm was like a mugging; it was swift, vicious and unbelievable. It broke trees, and it broke records also; nothing like it had been recorded in these parts since 1872.

OUR FORESTS HAD barely begun to turn color—they were still in full leaf—when the snow

The same snow in January would have damaged little. But this snow, beginning about 4 a.m., piled its enormous weight upon branches that could not bear it. Almost immediately the electric power went out. By dawn, 200,000 persons over an area of eight counties would awake without service.

I myself happened to be in Texas at the time. My wife told me how it was. She stood in a dark kitchen gazing in disbelief at the steadily falling

There was no wind—that was a part of the misfortune—and the snow simply fell like heavy

She could hear the incessant crack of snapping trees. A row of poplars fell like toy soldiers. A plane tree split in two. A pear tree came up by the roots. A maple 12 inches in diameter broke like a shinbone, splintered in compound fracture. Pines, dogwoods, willows, fruit trees—down they went, mutilated, crushed and broken. My wife wept; but this is country living, and after a while she rounded up candles and made a kitchen

MOST OF THE snow melted in 24 hours, but some of our people were housebound for two days because of blocked roads, and some remote houses didn't have power restored for another

Compared to the disaster that struck Mobile with the hurricane, or compared to the more recent earthquake near Mexicali, our storm was nothing at all.

It was the swiftness of the violence that left us a little shaky. Mother nature can be a terrible termagant when she chooses.

Thus we reach the peak of our autumn with thousands of trees still shattered. In parts of the Blue Ridge Parkway, one tree in four suffered damage. Along every back road, tall trees are on their knees, supplicant, hunchbacked, crippled.

AND YET, AND yet: The familiar beauty emerges even so. This is the time in the Blue Ridge when maples turn out in scarlet, members

Within a couple of weeks the oaks will wind up the parade in the brown of friars' robes. And the whole procession moves against a gallery of dark green pines.

Autumn is the best of our seasons in the Blue Ridge. Spring can be lovely; summer is pleasant until the weeds of August; our winters are utter-

Yet even as we go about the sad business of sawing, pruning and picking up the litter of broken limbs, we know that this too will pass. We will know more brilliant autumns, and we will survive greater misfortunes.

Yes, it will take a generation-two generations, perhaps-for the great trees to replace themselves, but nature has a way about these things. The big oak may not survive, but it will leave a record fall of acorns behind

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Rebuttal To Rebuttal

RUBEN BONILLA Jr., president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, has issued a rebuttal to my rebuttal of his arguments for expanding bilingual programs in the public schools.

Kenneth

May

He had blasted Commissioner of Education A.O. Bowen's position that such programs should be limited to and made effective in helping non-English-speaking students through a transition

Bonilla, I said, has a vested interest in keeping Spanish-speaking people set apart as a separately identifiable group, bunched together in the barrios and voting as a bloc, thus perpetuating his

In order to have upward mobility on the economic ladder, I believe, Mexican-American children need to be freed at an early age from the language barrier rather than be permitted and encouraged to use Spanish as a crutch throughout their learning years.

Bonilla has a different idea and writes from

'IT HAS NEVER been LULAC's intent or philosophy to keep Spanish-speaking people separated from our social structure...

The LULAC constitution states that we must foster learning and fluent use of the English language that we may thereby equip ourselves and our families for the fullest enjoyment of our rights and privileges and the efficient discharge our duties and responsibilities to our country but at the same time exerting equal effort to foster the fluent mastery of the Spanish language which is part of our cultural heritage and a means of extending the cultural horizons of our stated goals. But then, after claiming that I, not he, preach separatism and that he stands for assimilation, Bonilla proceeds to say that racial minorities in this country "will never assimilate."

"ALTON BOWEN HAS stated that we need to make our children literate by a return to basics. thus expediting the mainstreaming of Mexican-American children, and Mr. May speaks of the outdated melting pot theory as the ultimate goal for Mexican Americans.

"To speak of this theory as a workable solution is as anachronistic as Davy Crockett's coon's cap on the floor of the Washington Senate chamber. Mr. Bowen's return to basics and the divorcing of school and community encourages the same criti-"Primordial to the goals of LULAC is the main-

"The Anglo host group will not allow the assimilation of people of darker pigmentation, so the Mexican-American needs English to get along and live a comfortable life but he needs to fall back to his language and culture for the philosophical and esthetic sustenance of mind and spirit. This is the reality facing Mexican-Americans.

Pedagogically speaking, bilingual education is a sound educational approach to deal with the problems of bilingual children.

"Its optional goal is to give the child the basics." the English fluency he needs, but it also wants to raise his morale, his self-concept, by telling him that his existence is a meaningful one and that his heritage equals, and surpasses in many cases. that of any other group.

BONILLA CONTINUES: "Bilingual education is trying to replace the outdated monolingual, monocultural approach to learning.

Because of its multi-cultural nation (sic) it can better prepare the child to become cognizant and sensitive to other cultural groups-not to dwell on the differences but perhaps on the sameness.

The monolingual approach to education traditionally has inhibited the bilingual child and has entrapped him in the barrio, making for the record number of dropouts and inmates in our penal institutions

"THAT IS WHAT bilingual education is trying to deal with and it can do it if the administrators of our federal and state funds pouring into school district coffers evaluate bilingual education on its merits and conversely make themselves accountable as to the implementation of these programs.

"Mexico, much to the dismay of many, is not going to detach itself from the North American continent and lodge itself neatly in the middle of the Indian Ocean.

"The flow of immigrants and illegals will remain to provide opportunities for Anglos and Mexicans to dialogue and to resolve the problems collectively," Bonilla writes.

WASHINGTON-Wouldn't you know it? No sooner do we get the presidency de-imperialized then along comes the imperial first lady and her Rosalynn Carter and her 20 personal, full-time staffers now cost the American taxpayer between $600,000 and $1 million a year.

Twenty years ago, Mamie Eisenhower had one permanent full-time staff member, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, a personal and social secretary, who was paid $11,355 annually.

Thus, in terms of personnel, Mrs. Carter's staff is 2,000 percent larger than Mrs. Eisenhower's: the yearly cost of Mrs. Carter's staff is almost 9,000 percent larger than that of Mrs. Eisen-

VAL GIANNINI. WHO is a special assistant to the President for administration, vigorously defends the size of Mrs. Carter's staff. He tells me that Mrs. Carter's staff is "no larger" than the staffs of other first ladies

In fact, says Giannini, Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Nixon both had personal staffs that were "larger" than Mrs. Carter's. He knows this is true, he says, because long-time White House staffers say so and because "internal documents" show that it is

But Giannini protests a little too vigorously. According to a brief overview of presidential staffing, published last year by the House Subcommittee on Employe Ethics and Utilization:

The record is not clear regarding the beginning of staff assistants for the first lady." It is known that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had a single social secretary. This position became formalized

Rosalynn Carter's staff director, Kit Dobelle, makes $56,000 a year. Mary Hoyt, Mrs. Carter's press secretary, is paid $47,500 a year. Madeline MacBean, the first lady's personal assistant, and Gretchen Poston, Mrs. Carter's social secretary, both make $45,175 a year respectively

Hot Careers For '80s In Automated Offices

WASHINGTON-As the recession of 1979 deepens into the slump of the 1980s and increasing millions of young, ambitious men and women seek jobs in a tight market, the always urgent question will take on even greater significance: What will be the hot new careers of the future?

The hot ones will be in the area of technological advances, experts in employment agree-and not only for career-centered youngsters but also for people-oriented careerists.

The three executive careers looming up fast, according to executive recruiter Herbert Halbrecht, headquarted in Stamford, Conn., are: (1.) Management information systems (MIS) ex-

(2.) Human resources executives: (3.) Logistics executives (those with extensive skills in distribution of goods and services)

IN SIMPLE TERMS, these positions will require a combination of technical and managerial skills. And to reach the upper levels, you will need either degrees in or extensive study in both business administration and technical or science fields-including data processing, psychology and other social sciences As an office employe, you'll find new prestige, higher compensation and more power as a result of office automation, in the opinion of Dr. James Carlisle, president of Office of The Future, Inc., Guttenberg, N.J.

"Administrative managers, who will most likely rise through the office canks, will be required in the automated office," says Dr. Carlisle.

MOST LIKELY YOU will do for professionals and middle managers what administrative support assistants now do for principals: scheduling, monitoring, coordinating, budgeting, reporting and organizing, all at the touch of a button.

If you are a stay-at-home, disabled, or an elderly person, you, too, will be called upon to serve in new career opportunities as office automation opens the opportunities of in-house work stations. In this respect, working wives will take on a new dimension

Far-fetched? Not at all. It's already happening. Increasing numbers of banks and insurance companies are experimenting even now with in-home computer terminals linked directly into an organizaton's main computer bank.

If you are an adult otherwise shut out of the main labor market, you will be able to "type" reports electronically, receive and send correspondence, do research and file with the aid of these easily handled terminals.

And business consultants also will find new jobs developing as organizations become more and more complex and fast-changing.

"TODAY MOST CONSULTANTS are specialists in particular areas such as manufacturing or distribution or computer information systems." explains Robert H. Schaffer, a Stamford, Cons. productivity specialist.

This new kind of consultant will be needed to help corporate managers integrate the many piece parts' that go into a complex organization and make it work

The combination challenges the managers of tomorrow to mobilize and coordinate the efforts of many skills: planners, technicians, scientists, similar specialists, both inside and outside the organ-

IF YOU ARE to be a member of the new breed of consultants, you must learn now how to help plan overall strategies for increasing organization productivity.

There is your fundamental challenge: finding out and pursuing ways to improve productivity whether in the office, factory, or elsewhere. This is the way you will boost profits-and permit higher wages along with more stable prices.

This is how you, the consultant, will teach corporate managers the skills imperative to meet their evermore complex and fast-changing problems. Fascinating...

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - Louis Lambert says his count of votes showed he ran second in the open primary for governor, but James Fitzmorris is sure he is in second place - and front-runner David Treen says he doesn't care which one meets him in the runoff.

Voting machines in parishes across the state will be opened today and counted for the official tabulation of Saturday's nine-way race for governor.

Lambert, chairman of the state Public Service Commission, said there were several parishes where the clerk's tally differed from tallies reported during Saturday night's unofficial count. He said the changes boosted him ahead of Fitzmorris by 17 votes — 280,913 to 280,896.

"As far as I'm concerned, we are in the runoff," Lambert told a news conference Monday. "I want to ask Jimmy Fitzmorris for his consideration in the second primary. It is that close."

A Fitzmorris spokesman said a recheck of every parish still left the lieutenant governor ahead of Lambert, But he said duplicate calls to some points produced too many conflicting figures and he refused to make the totals public.

We checked all the clerks of court offices and feel we have a substantial lead over Lambert," said Jim Harris, a Fitzmorris campaign aide. "We traded around some votes and we lost a few, but we think this is all shadow dancing."

An Associated Press tally, which wrapped in new figures from the areas pinpointed by Lambert, gave him 280,-124 to 279,727 for Fitzmorris. Treen's total appeared to be 297,468.

Dianne Feinstein Seeking Return To Mayor's Post

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Voters will end a transition period that began in violence and grief when they decide on Nov. 6 whether to retain Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who inherited her office after the City Hall murders of Mayor George

Moscone and a supervisor. The pocketbook issues of housing and jobs and the skyline of this fabled city are central themes in the campaign. For Miss Feinstein, with 10 years in political office, the election offers another chance at the job she failed to win in 1971 and 1975 elections.

She was president of the board of supervisors when she was selected by the board to serve as mayor following the assassinations of Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk last Nov. 27.

Miss Feinstein, who was among those who found the bodies of the two politicians gunned down by former supervisor Dan White, vowed to pull San Francisco together. Her rallying speech was made just 10 days after more than 900 Peoples Temple members, many of them San Franciscans, died in a mass

Large Turnout In Birmingham Race Foreseen

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - A runoff to determine whether black City Councilman Richard Arrington or white attorney Frank Parsons becomes Birmingham's new mayor could draw more votes than the primary, election officials

Election officials predicted as many as 65 percent of the city's 128,561 registered voters would cast ballots in the runoff election today, up to 11,000 more than cast ballots three weeks ago.

Parsons is an attorney and president of a tour service. He served on the Birmingham Housing Authority, was national vice president of the Jaycees and a former president of his neighborhood in the city's Citizen Participation Pro-

Arrington, a two-term councilman, is executive director of the Alabama Center for Higher Education, a consortium of black colleges involved in research and development. He is board chairman of the Birmingham Urban League.

The polls strongly favor the 46-yearold over Supervisor Quentin Kopp, who has accused her of lacking leadership in preparing for $117 million in budget deficits he projects for next year. The mayor's office disputes the budget figures.

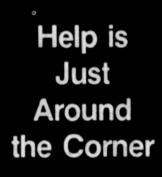

Kopp. 51. a lawyer, has tried to blunt the mayor's advantages as an incumbent by portraying himself as a hard-nosed peoples' advocate. Supporters of Miss Feinstein criticize Kopp as abrasive and contend he is battling her on the basis of Kopp has also endorsed a ballot initiative which would limit new high-rise construction to 20 stories - about 200 feet under the existing limit of about 700 feet. Late into the campaign, the mayor had taken no position on the measure.

One of the mayor's campaign strategies was aimed at winning support from the city's large homosexual community, which criticized her for waiting six weeks to name a successor to Milk, a Polls have given the mayor a lead by as much as 2-1 over Kopp, but the leading candidates could lose votes to David Scott, an acknowledged homosexual, who is expected to have some popularity among gays — estimated to total 100,000 of the city's population of 680,000.

Scott, 44, president of the city Board of Permit Appeals, has downplayed his homosexuality in favor of stands on women's rights, neighborhood issues and programs for the elderly.

New Cottonseed Bread Comes To High Plains

By DUANE HOWELL Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

A nutritional first for the High Plains - with potential benefits for Texas agriculture — is scheduled today when bread made with cottonseed kernels is introduced here.

Reported to contain 60 percent more protein than white or other wheat breads - both good sources of protein the new bread is made with kernels produced from a special strain of cottonseed.

The new loaf, called Proteina Wheat Bread, is being backed and distributed in Texas by Mrs. Baird's.

'A fellow showed us a loaf of bread that was being test baked in Albuquerque," Vernon Baird of Dallas explained. "Not even considering the nutritional benefits, which we were not aware of at that point, we saw it as an opportunity to provide the cotton farmer with a broader market. We felt it could mean an additional source of income for cotton farmers in Texas."

This first commercial application of cottonseed protein for human consumption is the culmination of more than 20 years of research by Texas A&M University, Texas Tech University, the University of Texas, and Texas Women's University through funding of the Natural Fibers and Food

Because of a gossypol gland, cottonseed protein originally was not suitable for human consumption. But in the early 1950s a breakthrough occurred. The U.S. Department of Agriculture discovered a way to selectively crossbreed cotton plants grown by the Hopi Indians to produce a glandless cottonseed. In the ensuing years seed breeders have worked to incorporate this characteristic into commercial cotton varieties.

Using kernels from this glandless cottonseed, researchers at Texas A&M developed a nut-like product which they call "Tamunuts." These are said to have a pleasing nutty flavor. Today Rogers Delinted Cottonseed Co. of Waco produces the only commercially available form of these cottonseed kernels.

The nutritional value of cottonseed gets a high rating from Dr. Betty Alford, dean of the College of Nutrition, Textiles and Human Development at Texas Women's Uni-

"It is as good a plant source of protein as we have available," she said. "Some plant proteins are nutritious but do not taste good. But cottonseed protein really does taste

She explained that cottonseed protein is an alternate food not intended to replace traditional foods.

"The body needs all nine amino acids in sufficient amounts to promote growth and development," she said.

"It doesn't matter whether these essential amino acids come from one protein food or a blend of several. Cotton-seed protein blended with other plant proteins can provide welcome new protein source.

The best nutrition is provided, she added, with a blend of both vegetable and animal protein in the diet. She has been doing nutritional research on cottonseed protein for 10 years.

The help that Texas farmers may get from this broader use of cottonseed was described by Carl Cox of Dallas, executive director of the Natural Fibers and Food Protein Commission of Texas.

'The development of a glandless variety of cottonseed means we are able to go from producing food primarily for animals to food for human diets in one step, opening a whole spectrum of food utilization potentials," he said. 'This is probably the most important thing we have been involved with in the last 20 years.

The commission Cox heads is a state agency created by the Legislature in 1941 to "more fully develop a national and international image for Texas and its natural fiber resources through research - and to disseminate such information, both basic and technical, to our producer-manufacturer-consumer markets in an effort to promote and increase the utilization and marketability of cotton, wool, mohair, and Texas oilseed crops.'

Cox said the commission uses the research facilities and staff of four state universities.

The new strain of cottonseed is kept separated from other strains from planting through ginning. The same system is used to keep it pure as is used in producing certified planting seed.

Each farmer who plants the seed is required to certify that the cotton will be raised under specific conditions. The ginner handles the cotton just as when ginning cotton for certified seed, making special arrangements to maintain the purity of the strain.

Ginners receive a premium for the special handling and farmers also receive a premium for the seed

E. B. Burelsmith, Levelland farmer and ginner, who has been growing and ginning glandless cotton for six years, said he sees "a real good future" for the production of this kind of cotton on the High Plains.

He gets the planting seed from Rogers at Waco, where the glandless seed also are processed.

We haven't had any more problems with insects on the glandless cotton than we have on the other (standard) varieties," Burelsmith said. "This glandless cotton has been real good to us, and improvements are being made all

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: Seven years ago I I'm a fat, ugly junkie, and they're telling wrote you a letter, signed BORN AGAIN. You printed it. I just want you to know that I have stayed within 10 pounds of my ideal weight, which is saying a lot when you consider how much I had to lose

Perhaps if you ran my letter again it would help others the way it helped me. I enclose a copy in case you can't find the original.

DEAR FRIEND: Yours was one of the most rewarding letters I have ever received, and I rerun it with pleasure:

high blood pressure or heart trouble didn't kill me. I'd have done it myself. I was a heroin addict and a 23-year-old divorced mother of three on welfare I hated myself enough to prostitute my body to get money for dope. I suffered humiliation after humiliation. (A 300pound prostitute gets all the sadists and perverts no other hooker will take.) I had no self-respect, no hope, no God -

I wrote to you, never expecting an answer. Your letter was the first word of encouragement I had had in years. I took your advice and went to an OA meeting 18 months ago. I believed none of it. These people are crazy, I thought, me I can get thin and regain my self-respect if I want to!

No way, I told them. Nobody threw me out. A beautiful, middle-aged man put his arm around my shoulder and said, Come back and listen. Try us for 30 days. What can you lose?

I didn't believe him, but I went back and back and back.

Today I've lost 121 pounds and I'm still iosing. I'm drug-free, and I'm learning to like myself. I have a good job, a belief in a power greater than myself. and the love and respect of my children and people who believed in me when I didn't believe in myself

There is no scale in OA. They don't shame you if you backslide. They are a group of loving, caring, supportive people who are there to help you because they have been helped themselves

After sinking so low. OA gave me a chance to be what I've always wanted to How can I thank you for sending me

Change In Eating Habits Encourages Weight Loss

EMMAUS, Penn. (Special) — You know there's still salad or even sour can start an effective weight control program just by reversing the order in hich you eat dinner tonight. That's the advice of Mark Bricklin, executive editor of PREVENTION, who lost 24 pounds two years ago and kept them off. One of the tricks, he writes in a recent issue of the magazine, is to eat backwards.

It takes about 25 minutes after you start eating for your appetite control system to decide if you're getting enough real nourishment, writes Bricklin. So, he advises the first item dish of the meal should be the one with protein and fat.

These two substances are exactly what the appetite control system waits for before braking your appetite," says Bricklin. "Apparently it realizes that if protein and fat are being absorbed, al-most inevitably, there will be a sufficiency of calories, vitamins and minerals with them. So eating protein and fat at the beginning of the meal you immediately send these substances on their way to the appetite control system so your eating momentum doesn't continue any longer than it has to."

If you want to feel full quickly, Bricklin points out, eat the main course first. No matter what it is, it probably has more protein and fat than appetizers or even desserts, or else have a bowl of soup that has solid protein in it, like clam chowder. Even a small antipasto, with its meats and cheese and oil, fills the bill - although it may overfill it.

As you eat your main course, you'll soup and salad, the protein and fat from your main course should begin to be absorbed and ring down the curtain on the show. You could easily end up eating less by reversing the order of your food intake, but you won't end up eating

"Agreed," says Bricklin, "even after a big meal there's always room for something sweet, even if it's only in your mind." Your salad at the end of the meal will help overcome that feeling because we rarely eat sweets right after a salad. A cup of unsweetened pepper-mint tea, which leaves the mouth feeling clean and satisfied, will also help.

Dear Charlie:

From my last letter you might have gotten the impression that nothing went well at Deauville. Quite the contrary-my French teammates and I succeeded in winning both team events.

Pass Pass Pass

In the finals of the exhibition teams, we defeated a young Dutch squad trained by one of my favorite partners, Benito Garozzo. This hand contributed significantly to our victory. If the auction surprises you, it can be attributed to the fact that I ged that we needed to pick up some points so I chose an aggressive course. When my partner showed a good two no trump opening with excellent heart support, I really should have quietly bid four hearts. But I elected to show my diamond values, and I really can't blame my partner, Paul Chemla, for going to slam.

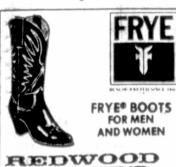

West led the ten of clubs, and I was not enchanted with my prospects. Not only was I faced with two potential trump losers, I also had to find parking spots for my third spade and fourth diamond. The simplest approach was to play the hand as a dummy reversal, hoping to find hearts 3-2 with the king onside, and clubs 4-3, or one of the defenders with the doubleton king of clubs. This was not a percentage slam,

I won the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. When that fetched the king, prospects improved considerably. I led a heart to the queen, which held. Now I cashed the ace of hearts, and when both defenders followed, I was home I left the king of hearts outstanding and ruffed a club. The king of spades was an entry to ruff dummy's remaining low club, and after that, there was nothing but win-

Agent Says Rodriquez Took Money

By KAY BELL Avalanche-Journal Staff

Another Amarillo narcotics agent this morning told a 237th District Court jury that Jose Deleon Rodriquez accepted $5,100 in exchange for about 60 pounds of suspected marijuana on Oct. 13, 1978.

Department of Public Safety agent Charles Carpenter said he accompanied DPS agent Dawson L. Stubbs to a North Lubbock residence last year as part of a narcotics investigation.

Carpenter was the first witness called this morning as the 30-year-old Rodriquez's delivery of marijuana trial entered its second day

Also testifying this morning was DPS narcotics agent Walter Eeds, also of the Amarillo office, who was in charge of the money the agents brought with them to make the purchase. Eeds said he waited in a car outside a North Uvalde Avenue house the evening of Oct. 13, 1978, while Carpenter and Stubbs went inside.

However, Eeds said he saw the defendant accept the money for the suspected drug.

Monday afternoon Stubbs told the eight-woman, four-man panel the agents went to the residence last year to buy 100 pounds of marijuana.

But when they arrived at the house, Stubbs said, the occupant told them he had only 70 pounds of marijuana and wanted to sell only 60 pounds. Stubbs said he agreed to the arrangement and while they were discussing the sale price. Rodriquez entered the room.

Under cross-examination, Stubbs said he had never dealt with or seen the defendant until the night of the alleged

But the agent said while Rodriquez did not actively participate in the price negotiations for the marijuana, the defendant did weigh the suspected marijuana bricks on a scale in the kitchen of the house. And, Stubbs said, Rodriquez helped the resident of the house load about 60 pounds of the suspected drug into the trunk of the agents' car.

After testifying, Stubbs stood in front of the jury box and identified two suitcases, a large plastic trash bag and a paper bag containing 20 "bricks" of the suspected marijuana he and other agents confiscated following the alleged sale.

Following the identification of the prosecution exhibits, Rodriquez's attorney John Mann of Amarillo objected to the material remaining on the table in front of the jury box. Mann asked Judge John R. McFall to order the material entered into evidence."

A smiling McFall, however, overruled the objection "because of the physical impracticability of doing it right now," and instead prosecutors Rick Howell and Mark McBride lifted the packages from the table and placed them on the floor in front of the jury

KIDS-ONLY CLUB Special Effects Add To Halloween Story

Ghost stories are fun to tell on an eerie Halloween Eve. As you tell the tale of terror, ghastly things can happen to your guests not in any way dangerous, but all creepy enough to scare 'em out of their sneakers! Here's how you can have clammy hands and spi-der webs brushing sainst the listeners as the gory story is told in a darkened room. Clammy hands: Take two rubber gloves, half fill each with water and close the open part very tightly with rubber bands. Keep them in the refrigerator. Before the story starts, set them in hiding places where you and your secret assistant can get them. At the right time, just reach out and touch people with these frightening fingers.

Spider webs: In one corner of the room fasten a long thread. From this thread hang other strands of thread (each about 36 inches long) knotted about 18 inches apart.

Before the guests arrive, lay this thread along the floor at the base of one wall, where you and

At the right time, you lift the end of the thread and tiptoe across the room, walking the thread across the room, too, so that the dangling strands wipe across the faces of the group lis-tening to the story. When the strands have touched everyone, you just drop the thread, and nobody will notice the evidence!

Man Suggests Stiff Gas Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — II you like $1-a-gallon gasoline, you'll probably love Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith's latest idea.

Galbraith called this week for a $5-agallon federal tax on gasoline to reduce consumption and cut oil imports.

"Gasoline prices at the pump should be raised by taxes to a penalty level," he told the Joint Economic Committee. "One thinks of $4 or $5 a gallon, although even this is not astonishing by European standards."

MARATHON KICKING A kickball race that can go on for 200 miles is a favorite sport of the Tarahumara Indians of Mexico, according to National Geographic. Known for their running skills, they take turns kicking aloft a wooden ball — all day and night.

Cars certifiably in use for car pools and business purposes would get a larger allocation, he said. Unused stamps could be saved for an emergency and would expire at the end of the year "when there is the least danger of a burst of driving to use them up."

Reshuffled Cabinet Aids Begin's Political Plight

By United Press International

A major Cabinet reshuffle that would leave Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin in temporary control of the foreign ministry appeared today to have bettered Begin's chances of surviving the worst political crisis of his tenure.

But the beleaguered Begin, 66, still faced problems arising from a Supreme Court order to dismantle a Jewish hilltop outpost in the occupied West Bank and a debate in the Knesset (parliament) today on an amendment to the abortion

A seven-woman, five-man jury took

Professor Studies Meteorites

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — It took about five billion years to discover that the chemical building blocks of life on earth also exist in outer space. An Arizona State University professor hopes it won't take as long to discover how they got there.

Cracking open meteorites from around the world and using atomic instruments, George Yuen of the Arizona State chemistry department and partner John Cronin have identified several amino acids and carboxylic (fatty) acids, both of which are vital to organic life.

Most of the acids found in meteorites are different from those taken from earth creatures and appear to be formed by chemical reaction rather than a biological process, Yuen said.

To learn how the amino acids in meteorites were formed, Yuen has been combining oxygen, nitrogen, hydrogen and carbon with an electrical charge or with heat in the presence of meteorite particles.

"Maybe we can duplicate these (outer space) conditions," Yuen said. "But we just started a year or so ago. In terms of laboratory experimental work, that's yery young"

The experiments with flasks and glass tubes are aimed at discovering the origin of organic life, but Yuen says they may have little bearing on a popular scientific theory that the earth and its neighbors in the solar system were formed by the sudden compression of a gas cloud.

"About all we can do is simulate the conditions for forming these organic compounds," said Yuen. "I doubt if we can even determine how these meteorites were formed."

But radioactive dating pegs the age of most meteorites at 5 billion years. "The current theory still has it that all these things were formed at about the same time," Yuen said.

No. 8 America's energy problem is complex. This is the eighth in a series in which we will discuss each of the individual factors affecting the energy situation.

Crude oil:

Made in America

Has never been so important,

America's heavy dependence on foreign oil has left us vulnerable to unexpected shortages and crude oil price increases. Alternate energy sources will help someday, but for now, conservation and increased oil production in America are what's most needed.

Chevron has the technology and the experience to find new oil and increase production from existing fields. However, if we're to expand our present efforts, certain roadblocks need to be removed.

Roadblocks to more U.S. oil.

Excessive government and environmental restraints have closed off many promising new exploration areas, and have frequently restricted us from using the methods needed to extract hard-to-recover oil from existing fields.

The problem of rising costs.

Ten years ago, finding oil in America was easier and cheaper. Today, in addition to increases due to inflation, finding new oil costs a lot more because wells must be drilled in more difficult, less accessible areas.

The above are average oil industry costs for all wells drilled, both successful and unsuccessful. However, the last exploratory well Chevron drilled in Alaska cost over $23,000,000—unfortunately a dry hole.

In addition to expanding our efforts to increase America's oil production, all of us must do an even better job of conserving energy.

Thank you for listening.

DR. LAMB

Too Easy Bruising

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I need your dvice on a problem. With the slightest bump on my hands or lower arms, I bruise so badly and then it takes a week or two for these to clear up. The blood seems to raise up under the skin.

I'm 72 and would like to know if there's any way this can be correct-

DEAR READER - Like so many things in medicine, a tendency to bruise easily is a symptom, not a diagnosis. And like most symptoms it can be caused by a long list of different things.

A tendency to bruise easily is common in older people and it also occurs in people who are not so old. Sometimes it's because the blood vessels are just more fragile which may be related to aging or it may be asso-ciated with medicines people are taking such as common aspirin or medicines they have bought themselves which contain aspirin.

I realize that many people don't know the medicines which they have bought contain aspirin, so I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines. It will give you a list of many of the common medicines that people commonly buy for their colds and aches and pains that contain aspirin. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of The Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City station, New York, NY 10019.

Other patients have problems with vitamin deficiencies such as a significantly low level of vitamin C. In still other instances, it is an indication of some abnormality in the blood clotting mechanism that can be associated with a long list of different

So see your doctor and let him do some blood tests on you and see if he can find out the cause. Also ask your doctor about all the medicines you are taking, including any you bought without a prescription.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 28year-old man and I'm sexually active with more than one person. During the past four months I have noticed that when ejaculation occurs I have a reddish brown discharge of semen. Could you tell me what could cause this? Could this be from an ulcer or an infected tooth?

DEAR READER - I can't under stand why you think an infected tooth would produce such a finding, or, for that matter, an ulcer - unless you mean an ulcer within your urethra or reproductive tract.

The reddish brown color should have suggested to you that it may be blood. A likely cause is some bleed ing from an irritation in the urethra which may be from mechanical irritation or an inflammation. You can also have some bleeding from the seminal vesicles. These are little saddlebag-shaped structures where seminal secretions are stored. The only way to find out what it is is to go see a doctor. You might choose to go see a urologist who specializes in genitourinary tract problems if one is avail-

I do think you should do some thing about it. If you have an inflammation in the urethra, it can cause scarring and contraction which could cause you some difficulties later. Any evidence of unexplained bleeding from any part of the body deserves a

Prisoners Perform Skits For Youths

JAMESTOWN, Calif. (AP) - They're about as far off-Broadway as actors can get, but 11 prison inmates here are presenting some uncomfortable realism through skits aimed at convincing youngsters that crime doesn't pay.

What you just saw is as real to life as you're ever going to see," Robert Drush tells the audience of juvenile-hall inmates in Modesto, west of here, after a skit in which an inmate is slashed with a knife. "Eight guys a year get killed in state prison; many, many more get Drush speaks from considerable experience. He's serving six years at Sierra Conservation Center here for robbery and, at age 36, has spent 15 years in state prisons.

Drush, an award-winning speaker, has been addressing juvenile offenders for some time but received a jolt last January that committed him to increase his efforts. While making a speech at the Stanislaus juvenile hall, Drush encountered his stepson.

"He told me he wanted to be a professional thief just like dad," Drush recalls. "I knew I had to do something more. I've spent my life taking from society without any regard for other people's feelings. And now I'd like to spend some time giving back."

Some of the houses now have the hefty deadbolt locks favored by city dwellers.

After the break-in, the Vorsts installed a $2,000 alarm system with a siren that can be heard a mile away. If the alarm is tripped, phone calls automatically go out to the state police, the sheriff and a nearby neighbor.

A month ago, the Kerkers bought a menacing Doberman named Zeke, so fierce it allows no one but the family near the house.

Townspeople are now religiously jotting down license plate numbers of any cars or trucks they don't recognize.

The change hasn't been easy for peo-ple who never used to give crime a second thought. Kerkhove says he finds locking and unlocking his front door "mighty unhandy" and he still refuses to put a lock on his gas pump, although neighbors have had gasoline stolen.

The community turned to a strategy to fight crime much like that being used by many urban neighborhoods - organize to defend itself.

The first step was a meeting of about 40 people in Mrs. Vorst's living room. She calls that first gathering the "vigilante meeting" because some of her more incensed neighbors urged people to buy guns and take matters into their

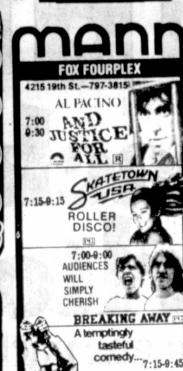

More meetings were held. At one gathering last June, more than 100 people from neighboring towns attended, as well as Tippecanoe County Prosecutor John Meyers and state police Detective Jim Kesterson.

BOISE, Idaho (AP) - The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has ordered natural gas and electric utilities not to cut off service to customers during winter months without the customers' con-

In what it called a "pragmatic, common-sense approach," the PUC said Fri-day that utilities cannot cut off service during December, January and February or whenever the temperature forecast is below freezing unless the utility contacts an adult member of the customer's household by telephone or in person and obtains permission to terminate the service.

The management of the New England Patriots said the National Football League team's players will meet with students in the city's racially tense schools. Black and white athletes will The ecumenical convocation Nov. 19 visit the schools in pairs, said club president William Sullivan.

Racial problems in the city's high schools have escalated since the Sept. 28 shooting in the Charlestown section of Darryl Williams, 15, a black high school football player.

There have been walkouts at some schools, numerous demonstrations and violent confrontations.

The tense atmosphere led WBZ-TV to cancel a two-part NBC drama "Freedom Road," set in the Reconstruction South and starring former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali. The program was to have been aired Monday night and tonight. In a statement, the station said the decision was based on "unusually graphic incidents of racial violence depicted, particularly violence against children."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The television industry has failed to meet its obligations to children and should be required to set aside minimum amounts of programming for them, the staff of the Federal Communications Commission said today.

The staff, in a report to the commission, said the industry has not complied with voluntary FCC guidelines in effect since 1974 and "is unlikely without further government action to increase voluntarily the amount of educational programming for children."

The report recommended that commercial stations be required to offer at least 2½ hours of programming directed at school-age children and 5 hours aimed at preschoolers a week. All would be on weekdays under the staff proposal.

The staff report saw little hope for improved children's programming on commercial television beyond meeting any mandatory minimum time requirement, however, and urged the commission to encourage alternative program sources such as pay and cable television. The report also called on public broadcasters to increase children's programming.

The report, compiled by a staff task force, said the industry has by and large complied with the commission's 1974 ad-

Hale County Agent Ollie Liner at Plainview said cotton "was strung out" on the ground and a lot of dirt and sand kicked up into the bolls there, and the ASCS (federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service) office in Plainview had had several reports of severe crop damage.

The Parmer County ASCS office reported damage at Lariat and Progress near the Texas-New Mexico border, with two inches of hail on the ground in some places after the storm.

Hockley County Agent Bill Taylor of Levelland reported some hail damage, but said there was little cotton left to be destroyed after a disastrous August hailstorm left only a five-mile strip of cotton inside the eastern and western county lines undamaged.

In Northwest Texas, first reports of tornado damage came at 7:23 a.m.

LCHD Panel Favors Roberts For Top Job

Officials for the county hospital district apparently think they have a man for the job of interim executive director for Health Sciences Center Hospital -Charles Roberts, one of the few administrative survivors of the recent management reshuffles.

Deciding against a two-year contract with Brookwood Management Services, Bubbock County Hospital District board must now quickly find someone to run the hospital in the interim period before a permanent administrator can be hired. Finance committee chairman C.

Wayne Smith said this morning that the board is already considering Roberts. presently serving as assistant administrator, for the job. There is a young man there that they (the board) feel can do the job on an interim basis," Smith said. He confirmed that Roberts is being considered. Roberts and nursing director Mary August Smith explained that since the board had agreed by contract not to negotiate with anyone during the Brookwood interim, they were precluded from making any plans to fall back on in the event the board decided not to renew the Brookwood contract.

The board must find a chief financial officer for the hospital as well, Smith said, to replace Brookwood employee Tom Kearney Kearney has worked closely with the business department of the hospital - an area requiring close supervision in light of the hospital's continuing financial problems.

"I think the chief executive should always have his own financial man," Smith said, but he added that the hospital may not have the time to wait until a new executive director is hired.

"I have mixed emotions about it," Smith said.

The hospital has several priorities which must be attended to, Smith said. He outlined those areas of concern for the board:

 Continuing financial problems at the hospital.

 Budget completions and revisions. When the county commissioners approved the 1980 hospital district budget, it was with the understanding that it would be subject to a great deal of revisions. Recent negotiations with Texas Tech have made some of the revisions necessary in the area of shared services between the university and the hospital.

Gambling Seahawks Stun Falcons 31-28

Herrera is dragged down by an Atlanta defender during first set up Seattle's go-ahead touchdown. Seattle won the game 31half action in Monday night's televised tilt. Herrera caught the pass from quarterback Zorn on a fake field goal attempt. The

SEATTLE SNEAK ATTACK - Seahawk place kicker Efren catch was the former Cowboy's first ever in a NFL contest and tle Seahawks tossed the standard National Football League playbook out the window for their Monday night televi-sion debut, then sat back and sweated out a last-minute rally by the Atlanta Falcons, whose miracles apparently ran out a year ago. The Seahawks, conceived through expansion four years ago, used three fourth-down gambles in trimming the Falcons 31-28, but not before Atlanta had the hometown crowd of 52,566 screaming. The Falcons scored with 51 seconds left, then recovered an onside kick and marched to the Seattle 13 before Steve Bartkowski was intercepted in the end zone by Dave Brown with only 35 seconds left.

"The turning point wasn't the gam-bles, though," said Seattle Coach Jack Patera, whose youngsters are now 4-5. "The turning point was Dave Brown's interception.

Bartkowski called the pass his most disappointing in his five years with the

"I can't remember a pass that was any more disappointing than that one," said the dejected former No. 1 draft choice. "I thought we had a chance to

Jim Zorn, the scrambling Seattle

Sports Tuesday, Oct. 30, 1979 20-yard pass to place-kicker Efren Her-rera, also thought the Falcons had a great chance to win in the final mo-ments. The Seahawks had apparently wrapped it up on a 26-yard touchdown run by Dan Doornink with 1:51 left to play for a 31-21 lead. Doornink had converted a fourth-down play only moments earlier to keep the drive going.

"My thoughts were it's either overtime or we're behind. But if they had scored, there's nothing we could have done," said Zorn.

Bartkowski did a super job coming back the way he did. But Dave Brown and the rest of the guys hung in there and got the key play. That's what really won it for us," he said.

Seattle stunned the Facons with fourth-down gambles four times during the game which was played in an intermittent drizzle, converting three and barely missing on the other.

Zorn scored Seattle's first touchdown on a 34-yard run on a fourth and five situation and tossed a 4-yard pass to Sherman Smith for another score in the second quarter for a 14-14 tie.

Doornink scored on an 8-yard run to give the Seahawks a 21-14 halftime edge. The TD was set up when Seattle faked a 55-yard field goal attempt by Herrera, who broke through the middle and caught the fourth-down pass from Zorn at the Atlanta 17.

The gamble that failed came on a fourth-and-12 at the Seattle 32 when punter Herman Weaver passed 9 yards to Jesse Green. The Falcons failed to capitalize, however, when Tim Massetti missed a 25-yard field goal.

The Falcons scored on a 25-yard run by Lynn Cain and a 30-yard fumble recovery by Rick Byas in the opening half and Bartkowski hit Ryckman with touchdown tosses of 17 and 20 yards.

As for the gambling Seattle offense, Zorn said he didn't consider the fourth-down plays gambles. "Unusual maybe," he said.

he said.

"You don't see it every day but we don't call them gambles. It's fun. We work on it seriously. We don't laugh about it, but everybody enjoys it. We just let it all out tonight."

Patera also pointed out that the Seahaws work on the plays in practice.

"Some work and some don't. We do them in practice," he said. "I felt com-fortable with the take field goal. Fourth See SEATTLE Page 2

Concern Cited In Martin Case

AP Special Correspondent It wasn't disgust or impatience that provoked Yankee Owner George Steinbrenner to yank the rug from under his belligerent manager, Billy Martin - it was brotherly concern.

George was afraid something terrible would happen to Billy if he continued in this barroom gunslinger role," says Bill Fugazy, a close friend of both men. "He feared that, if this were allowed to continue, Billy might be killed or might kill

After the stunning Sunday night announcement that Martin had been fired - his second loss of the Yankee job in 15 months - because of another brawl - Steinbrenner went into seclusion, refusing interviews, and Martin was conveniently out of

So, to get the facts on what triggered the latest episode in the continuing Steinbrenner-Martin drama, we turn to the man who has been a non-dispassionate ob-

Fugazy, who heads Continental Travel Corp., a vast travel-limousine leasing-credit card empire, is an intimate of the great and near-great in sports. He is often seen on TV with comedian Bob Hope. Golfer Arnold Palmer stays at his home during the Westchester Golf Classic. Fugazy is an associate and golfing partner of both Martin

"The two guys really like each other," Fugazy said. "They've disagreed a lot but each admires the other's forcefulness and leadership qualities.

"Billy once told me: George is good to me. I love working with him." Shortly after Martin took over the manager's job again this summer, George said, 'Billy is behaving absolutely wonderfully. We have a good rapport now. We spend a lot of time talking trades and other Yankee matters together."

Fugazy said Steinbrenner was at his home the evening before the now fabled Old Timers Game at Yankee Stadium July 29, 1978. Five days before, Martin, under severe pressure because of his feud with Reggie Jackson and uncomplimentary remarks about Steinbrenner, created shock waves by resigning. Bob Lemon was named to replace him.

"Steinbrenner really agonized over Martin's resignation," Fugazy recalled. "He new of Billy's drinking problems and his fiery temper but he thought he was a fine manager. He worried about Billy's future and the impact Billy's decision might have on his teenage son, Billy Joe.

"George told me that night what he was going to do at the Old Timers Game the next day. You know what happened. The Yankee players were introduced and then the electric scoreboard flashed the message: 'The Manager in 1980 and Hopefully for Many Seasons After That Will Be No. 1 ... Billy Martin!' Then Billy ran out on the diamond. The crowd went mad

Fugazy said he drove Martin to Yankee Stadium that day and they talked seriously about Billy's problems. "I urged him to try to get along with George," Fugazy added. "He promised he would,"

Nevertheless, on Nov. 11, Martin was charged with hitting a sports writer in a bar in Reno. His future again was clouded but on June 18, with the Yankees slumping, Steinbrenner plucked Martin out of the ranks of the unemployed and returned him as manager, replacing Lemon.

All went well until last week when Martin was involved in a skirmish with Joseph Cooper, an Illinois marshmellow salesman, after a meeting in a Bloomington, Minn., bar. Cooper wound up with 15-20 stitches. Martin said the man fell on a rug

"George was absolutely crushed," Fugazy said. "He kept saying, 'I can't be a watch-dog. I can't let this keep going on."

Martin meekly sent word to Steinbrenner that, contrary to his previous account, he had actually struck the guy. That, says Fugazy, broke the camel's back.

"I never saw George so upset," the travel tycoon related. "He told me when the guy fell he almost hit his head on a wrought-iron railing. Billy could have been up for manslaughter. "George was concerned about several things. One was the investigation that the commissioner had launched. He feared Billy might be barred from baseball. He was worried about Billy's drinking and penchent for bar-room brawls, like an old-fashioned gun fighter.

"He told me, 'Billy can't stay in this battlefield. He has to learn to solve his own probems, wash his own laundry. The fans love Billy. I love Billy. But there's more to think of than Martin or Steinbrenner. We have to think of the Yankee image, the Fugazy said Steinbrenner told him that he was not walking away from his deposed manager but hoped to work closely with both Billy and his son, Billy Joe.

Dockery Relays Leak To Wilson

Executive Sports Editor

Someone down College Station way obviously doesn't care much for Texas A&M head football coach Tom Wilson and that person has used some back-handed and cowardly tactics in an attempt to sink Wilson and the Aggies.

It was reported in Sunday morning's edition of the Bryan Eagle that an anonymous telephone caller revealed portions of Wilson's game plan to be used against Texas Tech several days before the Oct. 6 matchup with the Red Raiders.

The information concerned A&M's flip-flopping of its tight end at the line of scrimmage.

Our coaches notified Coach Wilson and told him exactly what had been said to the secretary who took the call," Tech head football coach Rex Dockery said Monday. "At the time, we thought it was probably just a crank call because we occasionally get crank calls the week before a big game such as A&M. Dockery added that the information received played no factor in Tech's 21-20 victory over the Ag-"It had no effect on the outcome of the game,

Dockery said. "We had seen other teams flip-flop their ends and our defense had worked on it during practice."

Wilson admitted he was grateful with the way the Tech coaching staff handled the situation.

"We were very definitely pleased that the Tech coaches informed us of the phone call," said the former Tech quarterback great who is in his first full it. They didn't have to call us, but they alerted us to the situation.

Wilson had no idea who was behind the call to tip off the Red Raiders

'I don't have any idea who would have made the call." Wilson stated. "We would never try to blame such an incident for any defeat.

We have talked to our players and told them to be careful who they talked to concerning upcoming games and game plans. Wilson did not intend to reveal the situation and Dockery said he felt it wasn't his position to make the telephone call public We have our hands full trying to get back in the win column," Wilson added. "We had no intentions of making this a big deal."

try, Sunday's game here between the Dallas Cowboys and the Pittsburgh Steelers was hailed not so much as a rematch of Super Bowl XIII as a preview of Super Bowl XIV. It's as though 26 teams were being

Detroit? San Francisco? You can make a case for ignoring them and a few other clubs who are just about resigned to playing out the schedule. But Tampa Bay? Houston? Washington? Cleveland? New England? Philadelphia? San Diego? And others? One little bounce of the ball can send one or two of them flying into Pasadena next January while unceremoniously bouncing last year's Super Bowl participants into oblivion for

And the Cowboys and Steelers know

"Usually a team that plans on being in the Super Bowl is certain not to be there," Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach said after the 14-3 loss to the Steelers. "If you plan to be there, you're sure to be knocked out of the running."

His counterpart on Pittsburgh, Terry Bradshaw, also downplayed the significance of the meeting. "Just another game," he said. "One of 16. Sure, it's nice to hear people say it's a preview, cause if it is it means we'll be in Pasadena. But we don't think that way. We can't afford to

"Maybe we'll be in it again and maybe Dallas will, too," added Lynn Swann, the Steelers' lithe receiver. "But even if that's the case, you can't say the Super Bowl will be like this game. There's none of the pressure, none of the distractions. This game didn't prove anything, except that this time we played a little better than they did '

Only one other team has a record as good as the 7-2 owned by Dallas and Pittsburgh. That's Tampa Bay. And the Bucs aren't about to concede anything to the Cowboys and Steelers.

champions got beat - beat bad," Tampa Bay quarterback Doug Williams said, reflecting on the 34-10 pounding Pittsburgh took in Cincinnati. "You can have a bad game anytime, now or in the playoffs. If it happens then, goodbye. You don't win this game just on talent. You win on breaks, too. Cleveland has a lot of talent but maybe not quite as much as Dallas. But they beat up on the Cowboys. You've got to have talent to get into the playoffs, but after that "People forget that while some teams are winning, others are growing, maturing," says one of Williams' teammates, linebacker David Lewis. "It's almost always just a matter of time, like with us Eight teams are within one game of

Listen, if you want to talk about who's the odds-on favorites for the Super Bowl, maybe you've got to go with Pittsburgh and Dallas. They've been there before, been there more than anybody else. But you can't just ignore everyone else. Says offensive tackle Leon Gray of Houston, one game back of Pittsburgh in the American Conference Central race: "I think saying they're going to be in it is a loaded statement. If everybody thinks they're the only two teams in the league, why don't they just schedule 'em every other Monday night?"

There's a lot of teams with a shot at Nobody's packing their bags. OK, Dallas and Pittsburgh are certainly the teams you look for in the playoffs, but a lot of others will be there, too. One little mistake and maybe one of them will be out of it after one game.

Michael Candidate For Yank GM Post

most surprising part of Dick Howser's appointment as manager of the New York Yankees is the fact that he got the job and Gene Michael did not

The reason for that, however, is that the Yankees have other plans for Michael, who is expected to be named the team's general manager Thursday when Howser is officially introduced at a news conference.

Howser was hired to replace Billy Martin after a brawl involving Martin in a Bloomington, Minn., hotel left marshmallow salesman Joseph Cooper of Lincolnshire, Ill. with a cut lip requiring 15 to 20 stitches.

Martin's public explanation was that the marshmallow man had fallen and cut himself. But privately, the manager got word to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner that he had hit the man, a source told The Associated Press. That disclosure convinced Steinbrenner to make the change.

Martin was reported distraught and unavailable for comment Monday

Michael had been considered a prime candidate for the dugout job in New York after winning the International League pennant in his first season with Columbus. He is a favorite of Steinheep ner, who has used him in a variety of organizational capacities including coach and administrative assistant over the past few years.

Now Michael is expected to fill a front office post that has been more or less vacant with the Yankees. Cedric Tallis, a club vice president, has operated as GM without portfolio.

Yankee-watchers will recall that Bob Lemon was supposed to get the GM job. That was part of the grand plan Steinbrenner pieced together following Mar-tin's tearful resignation July 24, 1978 and the manager's triumphant return on Oldimers Day at Yankee Stadium five days

The scenario had Lemon remaining as manager through 1979 and then yielding that post to Martin who would return for 1900. But when the Yankees struggled early last season, Steinbrenner speeded up the timetable and returned Martin to the manager's post in June. Lemon then drifted into an undefined front office limbo, operating as something less than GM. Meanwhile, Martin, seeming almost serene, was unable to move the Yankees up in the standings but was set as manager until the Bloomington affair. Howser, the Yankees third base coach for 10 years, had left the club after the 1978 season to become baseball coach at Florida State University in Tallahassee, Fla. His team posted a 43-16 record in his first year there and he seemed set, too, until Steinbrenner called him in the dugout during a game against Indian River Junior College on Saturday. The two men met Sunday and the change was made. The news stunned most Yankees players. "I'm surprised he was named," said outfielder Roy White, who has declared for this week's free agent draft.

Baseball Disassociation baseball as a result of the 1919 Black Sox

NEW YORK (AP) - With a tear in his eye and an ache in his heart, Willie Mays has walked away from baseball.

Forced to choose between the game he loves and a lucrative contract to work for an Atlantic City hotel and gambling casino, Mays announced he would terminate his active relationship with the Commissioner Bowie Kuhn had warned Mays that the Hall of Famer could not maintain his position as a parttime coach and goodwill ambassador for the New York Mets if he accepted the job with Bally Manufacturing Company, operators of the Park Place Hotel in Atlantic City.

Mays met with Kuhn for one hour Monday morning before heading for the news conference that made his move of-

"The commissioner didn't try to change my mind," Mays said as tears welled in his eyes. "We just talked the matter over. When I saw that his decision was going to stand, I said, 'Thank you,' and got up and walked out.

"Don't blame the commissioner," he said. "The decision was with me. We left with kind words. I have no bitterness in my heart."

Still, Mays seemed troubled by the turmoil his decision had caused and by the impression that Kuhn had barred him from baseball. He said he felt he had been lumped in the same class as Shoeless Joe Jackson, the Chicago White Sox outfielder who was banned from

"The commissioner told me that the only restriction was that I couldn't wear a uniform and represent any team," Mays said. "I can still play in oldtimers games and do other special events. I can always return to baseball if I give up this

Tearful Mays Announces

Mays will do community work, visit hospitals and work with youngsters in his promotion position with Bally. He will be paid $100,000 a year for the first three years, and his salary will escalate over the next seven years to a top of $150,000 in 1989. He was making $50,000 a year from the Mets under terms of an agreement he signed with Mrs. Joan Payson, the late owner of the club, after New York acquired him from San Francisco in 1972. That deal had two years remaining.

"Baseball has been my life," Mays said. "I worship the game." He said he did not plan to test Kuhn's edict in the courts.

"I am not going to fight baseball," he said. "If I challenge the commissioner, I challenge baseball. I am not going to do

Kuhn said his primary concern in the Mays affair was protecting the integrity of baseball. "The greatest single thing we've got in this game is integrity," the commissioner said. "The commissioner's main job is to protect that integrity." Kuhn defended the involvement of some baseball figures, particularly owners, in horse racing.

"When I came into office in 1969, there was an acceptability of baseball's involvement in racing," he said. "Commission Landis had not tolerated it. It gradually was accepted by succeeding commissioners. When I became commissioner, it was a fait accompli."

Kuhn said he had explained his position to Mays and Bally.

tion to Mays and Bally.

"I love Willie — I always have admired him," the commissioner said, "I told him he had never done anything wrong I am disappointed that the deci-sion could not have been made without such sensationalism."

Mays is not the first baseball figure to go with Bally. Al Rosen resigned as president of the New York Yankees last summer to take an executive post with the company.

Rosen said last week he still holds stock in the Yankees and has not been asked to sell it by the commissioner or

"I don't know why the commissioner made the decision," Mays said. "I have regrets because I love baseball. But it's very important that I take care of my

Southwestern Bell recently installed a "charge-a-call" phone in the lobby of Methodist Hospital. Charge-a-call phones are specially designed, non-coin phones for collect, third-party and credit card long distance calling from publ-

The phones are to be placed in areas with a high volume of traffic, such as transportation terminals, truck stops, hospitals, military bases, universities, prisons and resorts. The phones provide only operator-assisted calls and are mainly for long distance use. Local calls are handled as collect calls, and a flat rate is charged. Charge-a-call phones will help leave coin phones open for shorter, local calls, said Bob McNamara, Southwestern Bell's district business office manag-

Plans to install two of the units in the Lubbock International Airport are tentatively set for mid-1980.

At this time, the service is limited only to central business offices equipped to handle the phone system, but Southwestern Bell is planning to make the system available in all public facilities by 1982, McNamara said.

"These phones are less expensive and more convenient," he said. "They provide savings for us both in capital and in maintenance expense

McNamara said coin-operated phones require many movable parts which will be eliminated in the charge-a-call phones and therefore will decrease maintenance problems and dispense with collection of the money

Tougher Fuel Standards Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration, calling conservation its No. 1 energy priority, told Congress today that new mandatory fuel-saving steps are being considered, including tougher car and truck fuel economy

Deputy Energy Secretary John Sawhill said the high priority placed on conservation "is reinforced by our concerns about the instability we are currently experiencing in world oil mar-

Sawhill testified before a House energy subcommittee after President Carter appealed Monday night for support for his energy programs.

At a White House dinner meeting with a bipartisan group of about 100 House members, Carter accused the Senate Finance Committee of decimating his proposed "windfall profits" tax and urged the House to join him in fighting for a stronger tax.

Carter also said he will sign the recently passed standby gasoline rationing bill, even though he does not think it gives him enough flexibility.

The president was reported to have said he was unhappy with a requirement in the bill that there be a 20 percent shortage in gasoline supplies before rationing could be imposed. Carter said he would sign the bill, though, as the best compromise he could get from Congress.

Sawhill said today the administration hoped to have its standby rationing plan completed within the four months set by legislation, but noted, "it will be a tough deadline to meet."

More than 1,000 persons were collared by New York City police Monday as protesters tangled traffic and blocked doorways in an unsuccessful effort to close the New York Stock Exchange on the 50th anniversary of the 1929 stock market crash.

In Bangor, Wash., some 18 miles west of Seattle, 106 demonstrators faced court appearances today on charges of unauthorized entry after scrambling over a fence at the Trident nuclear submarine base and parading on base

Meanwhile, 200 anti-nuclear demonstrators, some wearing red arm bands, blocked doors at the Energy Department Building in Washington, D.C., and protesters were arrested at demonstrations against the Trident in St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Groton, Conn.

Some workers in the Wall Street area had to climb over demonstrators to get to offices and a few scuffles broke out at police barricades as a brass band played Dixieland music and clowns on stilts paraded through the New York City crowd.

"I haven't had this much fun since the 1960s," police Capt. Thomas Ryan told demonstrators.

Leaders of the Wall Street demonstration, aimed at corporate investment in the nuclear industry, said they were satisfied with their protest, although it seemed to have little effect on the stock

"It was a bit unrealistic to think we could have closed down the market," said Grace Hedemann, press coordinator for the protesters organized by a coalition of 100 anti-nuclear groups. But she added, the demonstration managed to get the investment brokers "to notice us, see us and hear us. Among those taken into custody were

WASHINGTON (AP) - A special commission investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear accident presented its findings to President Carter today, with a call for fundamentally new attitudes about safety in the nuclear industry as well as by its regulators.

EATONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - The body of a 74-year-old postmistress known to her neighbors as "mama" and missing for four days was discovered in a nearby community, and a couple was arrested in connection with the case, authorities said early today.

Catherine Alexander's body was found laying in a ditch on the side of the road by a passing motorist in Taft south of Orlando late Monday, Orange County Sheriff's Department spokeswoman Jean Moe said. Miss Moe said the cause of death would not be determined until an autopsy is performed later today

Investigators say she was forced into a car by a tall, thin man after the small post office was robbed.

Authorities searched parts of Orange and Seminole counties late Monday after an anonymous male called Mrs. Alexander's home, the Eatonville mayor's office and a Tampa postal inspector.

"The message was the same," said Mrs. Alexander's son, Hubert, the eldest of six children. "He said she was tied to a tree in the Eden Park area. Before we
