

Elections Could Influence Next Year's Races

By The Associated Press

Voters in more than one-fourth of the nation's big cities elect mayors today while Kentucky and Mississippi pick governors in elections expected to be felt in 1980's presidential and congressional contests.

At stake is control of political machinery that could play a prominent role in the outcome of next year's races.

The Democrats were expected to keep their edge in the city halls, which are the base of their grassroots strength and one of the key reasons they are the country's largest party.

In the two statehouse races, Democrats also were favored although the GOP has mounted strong challenges to regain Kentucky and to give Mississippi its first Republican governor since Reconstruction.

New Jersey and Virginia, traditional bellwethers, are electing state legislatures in other tests of the Republican Party's efforts at rebuilding through emphasizing state and local races.

Kentucky and Mississippi, along with Louisiana, which will elect a governor in a Dec. 8 runoff, all were keys to the "Solid South" base of President Carter's 1976 victory. If Republicans were running these states next year, there could be trouble for any Democratic presidential nominee.

The national Republican Party signaled the importance it places on the Mississippi race with its $150,000 contribution to GOP nominee Gill Carmichael's campaign. Presidential contenders Ronald Reagan and John Connally have campaigned for him.

However, his opponent, Bill Winter, has a formidable political base. He is a former lieutenant governor, state legislator, state tax collector and state treasurer.

In Kentucky, former Republican Gov. Louis Nunn is running against Democratic nominee John Y. Brown, a millionaire businessman who is married to Phyllis George, the TV personality and former Miss America.

Nunn was elected governor in 1967, when the Republican ascendancy in Kentucky was at its peak. Kentucky now has a Democratic governor and two Democratic senators. Nunn says he is stronger politically now than he was in his first race, but the polls favor Brown.

The incumbent Democratic governors in Kentucky, Mississippi and Louisiana are all barred by law from seeking new terms.

Mayors are being elected in 49 of the 169 cities with populations of more than 100,000. Most of the 49 have Democratic mayors, and the party is expected to retain its edge.

However, the Democrats are favored to retain control in Philadelphia, the nation's fourth largest city and the biggest electing a mayor today. Mayor Frank Rizzo, after losing a fight to change the city charter to allow him to run for a third term, is heading for retirement.

Nation's Voters To Encounter Varied, Complicated Issues

By The Associated Press

The nation's voters today face a wide variety of propositions ranging from rent control and taxing limits to a possible government takeover of the nation's largest private power utility. But the only thing certain about many of the propositions this election day is that they have confused the voters.

A close vote and a light turnout are predicted on a proposition in affluent Westchester County — just north of New York City — where residents are trying to decide whether to allow the county government to study the possibility of taking over the electrical facilities of Consolidated Edison.

No one knows what such a takeover would cost; estimates range from $754 million to more than $2 billion. It is uncertain what effect passage would have on the rates of New York City customers, who also are served by the utility.

And while backers insist an actual takeover would require a new vote, Con Ed, which has financed a $12 million media campaign, says the current proposition is tantamount to a takeover.

In Oklahoma, a statewide proposition that started out as a straightforward attempt to restore the federal tax deduction on state income tax returns got caught in a highly complex partisan squabble. Now, according to the Oklahoma Tax Commission, voters will have no way of knowing whether they are voting for a tax cut or a tax increase.

Similar confusion reigns in Washington state, which is considering a Proposition 13-style measure that would tie future state revenues to growth in personal income. The problem for Washington's voters is that the state's economy has been booming, and it is thus possible that the measure might raise, not lower taxes.

California voters face two potential puzzles: Proposition 1, aimed at placing limits on busing to achieve racial integration, and Proposition 4, which would allow state and local governments to increase spending by no more than the inflation rate, plus an adjustment for population increases.

But the wording of both California propositions has caused widespread confusion over whether either will live up to its aims, or perhaps even have the opposite effect the authors intended.

Cleaver's Trial Date Set

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, the former Black Panther firebrand who now describes himself as a "born-again Christian," will go on trial Jan. 24 on charges stemming from a shootout with police 11 years ago.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge John Cooper on Monday set the trial date on the charges of attempted murder and assault with intent to commit murder.

Cleaver has been free on $100,000 bail since he returned to the United States in 1975 from self-imposed exile in France.

Black Panther Bobby Hutton was killed and two policemen were wounded as an estimated 1,000 bullets were fired during the shootout.

Cleaver says he has no connection with any radical groups and recently endorsed the movement of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

Mrs. King Endorses Carter

ATLANTA (AP) — Coretta Scott King says President Carter has earned another term in the White House because of "his accomplishments in domestic and foreign policy."

Mrs. King said Monday that her endorsement of Carter did not preclude her supporting Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., should he win the nomination. Kennedy has said he will formally announce his intentions on Wednesday.

The widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. said Kennedy "should understand that this is not a rejection of him, because he has supplied strong leadership in the Senate."

Mrs. King's endorsement came as "no surprise," according to Southern Christian Leadership Conference President Joseph Lowery, who has yet to commit himself in the 1980 presidential race.

"It was pretty well understood that she would endorse Carter," he said. Lowery added that Mrs. King's endorsement was expected because of her "close association with Carter" and with former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young.

Domestic Problems First, Kennan Says

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States should face up to its domestic problems before plunging deeper into foreign policy problems, says historian George Kennan.

"Our inability to solve our domestic problems has led the U.S. to adopt some precarious foreign policy positions," Kennan, a former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, said Monday.

At a news conference at the University of Washington, Kennan cited the energy shortage as the greatest domestic challenge today.

Chavez Praises Boycott Efforts

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Cesar Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers Union, says boycotts such as the 10-month strike against California lettuce growers have sustained his organization.

"This is the 10th boycott we've had since the organization was formed 17 years ago and we've been successful with every attempt," he said Monday of a union boycott against Red Coach brand lettuce. "When the time comes that we can't pull off a boycott, we better fold our hands and quit," he said.

Chavez is touring the Midwest to gain support for the boycott against Red Coach lettuce, marketed by Bruce Church Inc.

He said in a speech at Webster College the company is not negotiating in good faith to renew a farm laborers' contract which expired Jan. 19. Of the 34 companies involved in the negotiating process, only 13 — those led by Bruce Church — have not signed contracts with the UFW.

Chavez said he will ask St. Louis area supermarket operators to pressure Bruce Church "to tell them to negotiate in good faith."

Family Members Rally In Support Of Teddy

WASHINGTON (AP) — They turned out for Jack. They turned out for Bobby. Now the Kennedy family is turning out for Teddy, despite whatever private reservations they may have about his presidential candidacy.

"The family will have an important role in this campaign," said Tom Southwick, press secretary to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Kennedy makes it official Wednesday that he will challenge President Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Specific assignments have not yet been made. But Southwick said that with the possible exception of the senator's mother, Rose Kennedy, who is in frail health, Kennedy's wife, children, sisters, in-laws, nieces and nephews will be fanfaring over the country in the next few months to promote Kennedy for president.

"They will be speaking at places for the senator, meeting people he can't see and generally filling in for him," Southwick said.

Kennedy's wife, Joan, whose distaste for politics and previous lack of enthusiasm for a presidential bid is well known, will make select appearances, Southwick said. Though she still lives separately from Kennedy, she says she will campaign for her husband and move from Boston to the White House if he wins.

"You won't be seeing too much of Joan, but you'll see a lot of the sisters," said another Kennedy associate. "They'll fill in for Joan because they don't want to see her bowled over by the campaign. She's still fragile."

Mrs. Kennedy has been enrolled in an alcohol-abuse program in Boston for more than a year.

If any other members of Kennedy's family have qualms about his campaign, they're not saying so publicly.

"He spent a lot of time with them all during the (congressional) recess last August," Southwick said. "Sure they talked about the possibility of a campaign. And now they're all behind him — 100 percent."

Kennedy's two eldest children, Kara, 19, and Teddy Jr., 18, are considering taking time off from college to campaign, aides say, but no decision has been made. Kara is a sophomore at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., and Teddy is a freshman at Wesleyan College in Connecticut. Kennedy's youngest child, Patrick, 12, attends a private school in the Washington area.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, widow of the late President John F. Kennedy and now a book editor in New York, has offered her assistance to the campaign, said Kennedy aide Bob Donelan. And her children, Caroline, a Radcliffe student who will soon be 22, and John Jr., who is almost 19 and a freshman at Brown University, will also campaign for their uncle, Southwick said.

SHOPPING FOR VOTES — Former Texas Gov. John Connally checks new car prices while campaigning in a Newington, N.H., shopping mall. Questions About Milk Scandal Spark Anger From Connally

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — John Connally is not a particularly friendly sort, especially when questioned about a controversial view — or about his past.

In Miami, wooing Cuban-American delegates to the Nov. 17 Florida convention, Connally barked at a Ronald Reagan delegate who had said he would vote for Connally as a second choice and might even support him in the March 11 primary.

In Portland, Maine, Saturday, the Republican presidential contender retorted, "You're afraid of the future I'm not," to a GOP state convention delegate who questioned his pro-nuclear power stance.

In Miami, appearing uncomfortable in a meeting with seven Cuban-Americans — five of whom said Connally was their first choice — the former treasury secretary was told by Tony Cotarelo "the milk scandal" caused him to switch allegiance from Connally to Reagan in 1974.

Connally was accused of accepting a $10,000 bribe in return for recommending that President Nixon raise milk price supports. He was acquitted in 1975.

Cotarelo acknowledged Connally had been "exonerated," and the former Texas governor shot back, "Isn't that enough?"

Cotarelo explained he was concerned about the news media portrayal of the charges, not about the facts of the case.

"I can't control the media," Connally said impatiently. And, referring to the charges, he said: "I don't think it makes a bit of difference."

Instead of making an impassioned defense of himself, as he has done before to large audiences, Connally glared at Cotarelo. "If you think this impugns my candidacy, you probably shouldn't be for me."

Cotarelo, still trying to get Connally to respond to the milk fund issue in political terms, suggested the candidate's switch to the GOP in 1973 caused the government to investigate him.

Connally still didn't take up the invitation to defend himself. Instead, he retorted, "If that's why you're for Reagan, then I have nothing more to say to you."

After the session, Cotarelo went up to Connally and said he was "very impressed" with his presentation of the issues.

Privately, he told a reporter the good impression was "not enough to make a change" in his presidential preference.

Maine Victory Boosts Bush's Election Hopes

HOUSTON (UPI) — George Bush, who has campaigned for the GOP presidential nomination since January, believes his unexpected victory in Maine's weekend straw vote established him as a candidate going forward while others will be perceived as falling back.

Bush, home Monday for the first time in five weeks, admitted he went into Maine hoping to finish second behind Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

"I said I'd like to do well but I wasn't expecting a win," Bush said at a news conference. "Baker was expecting to parlay this into a major step forward. Well, now I'll parlay it into a major step forward."

"Maine gives my candidacy a tremendous boost mainly because he was putting so much emphasis on it. The result stunned the Baker forces. We came out of nowhere and won a major victory."

Bush, a former CIA director and congressman running a grassroots campaign while trying to establish national name identity, won 34.8 percent of the 1,340 votes cast by Maine Republicans. Baker

Strauss Plans Campaign Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert S. Strauss reportedly is ready to join President Carter's re-election campaign after serving six months as the president's special Middle East negotiator.

"He is coming over to the campaign to run the whole show," a campaign source who asked not to be identified said Monday night.

Strauss will be replaced in the Middle East by Sol M. Linowitz, the source said. Linowitz has formerly served as a negotiator for the Panama Canal treaties, as ambassador to the Organization of American States and as chairman of the Xerox Corp.

On Carter's campaign committee, Strauss would join Tim Krait, who will retain the title of campaign manager, and Evan Dobbelle, who will continue as campaign chairman, the source said.

"We're going to go into a transition period for him to phase in (to the campaign organization)," the source said.

Sneaky Circle Game Will Baffle Friends

By SHARI LEWIS
This sneaky game is called Circle of Circles, and you can win every time, if you know how.

Draw a large circle which is made up of a dozen small circles, about the size of a nickel. (In fact, when I do this, I trace a nickel.) Now place 11 pennies in front of your pal. Say, "Start with any one circle and count one circle after another until you reach six. Lay down a coin on the sixth circle. In this way, counting five circles and laying a coin on the sixth, can you place all of the 11 pennies within the 12 circles without ending up with two pennies on any one circle?"

Secret: Start and count six circles. Lay down a penny on the sixth circle. Then start counting again on the penny you have just put down. Each time after that, too, start right where you left off. Yesterday's Brain Twister: When Columbus landed in America, he was greeted by Indians. How many Indians do you think were living in the part of America that became the United States?

Answer: It's been estimated that there were 1,115,000 Indians living on that land that was to become the United States.

Today's Brain Twister: Can you figure out what familiar phrase is hidden in this arrangement of letters:

Gunfire Erupts Between Gangs

DETROIT (UPI) — Police say dozens of rounds of ammunition may have been fired in a fierce motorcycle gang shootout in which three persons were killed and six others wounded.

The gunfire erupted last week at a party to celebrate the opening of a new headquarters for the U.S.S. Enterprise Motorcycle Club in a renovated taxi garage on the city's west side.

Police said they received conflicting reports about the shootout, but one officer said it appeared like dozens of rounds were fired. At least one of the weapons involved was believed to have been a shotgun.

Investigators said the shooting started when more than a dozen members of a rival motorcycle club, Satan's Sidekicks, attempted to enter the party without paying a cover charge.

"Some of them paid and some of them didn't, and one word led to another and then the shooting started," said a relative of one of the victims.

Among those killed was a city bus driver, 33-year-old Claude Ballard, a widower and father of two young girls.

Also fatally wounded in the shootout were James Evans III and Kenneth Allen Frezzell. Police said the three, all members of the Enterprise Club, were Detroit residents.

Leftist Groups Plan More Rallies Against KKK

By The Associated Press
The burning cross, calling card of the Ku Klux Klan, flares often outside the South these days and leftist organizations are mustering their forces to snuff it out everywhere.

In a backlash whipped up by the slaughter of five persons in Greensboro, N.C., militant groups are organizing anti-Klan rallies in such cities as Detroit and Pittsburgh as well as in North Carolina.

Six of the 14 men arrested in the Greensboro shootings have said they are members of the KKK, police say. Civil rights groups are not sure the various Klan organizations have grown much in numbers in recent years, but Dixie-based KKK leaders have been recruiting from California to Connecticut. "I'm not sure the Klan is rising in significant number, but the intensity of their violence is a grave threat to this country," said James Lowery, president of the Atlanta-based Southern Christian Leadership Conference, founded by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The White House on Monday announced the Justice Department has established a special unit to investigate the Greensboro violence and has two dozen FBI agents on the scene. "The resurgence of the Klan is a matter of concern to the president," said Jody Powell, President Carter's press secretary.

Bill Wilkinson, 38, of Denham Springs, La., an imperial wizard of one of the several Klan organizations claiming national membership, sees the start of a "race war." The Communist Workers Party (formerly the Workers Viewpoint Organization), which sponsored the Greensboro rally, said it will conduct a funeral march for its slain members in Greensboro on Sunday, despite a city ban on parade permits. In Pittsburgh, another branch of the Communist Workers Party scheduled a "Death to the Klan" rally for Nov. 26 at the federal building. Another group,

Justice Department Expanding Anti-Klan Rally Investigation

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department, acting under orders from President Carter, is expanding its investigation of Saturday's slaughter at an anti-Klan rally as organizers of the demonstration prepare to mourn their dead. Police continued to search for at least one more suspect and a white Ford compact, which was seen in a video tape of the shooting. Meanwhile, 14 men charged in the shootings were ordered held without bond after a judge termed them "imminently dangerous to others in the community." A probable cause hearing was set for Nov. 20.

Chief District Judge Robert Cecil. They were led into court handcuffed together in pairs. Twelve of the defendants face an additional murder count, police said, following the death Monday of another shooting victim, Dr. Michael Nathan of Durham. At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said Carter had directed the attorney general to cooperate in the investigation, and the Justice Department had established a special unit to investigate the violence, dispatching two dozen FBI agents to the scene. "The resurgence of the Klan is a matter of concern to the president," Powell said.

Police Chief William E. Swing said six of the suspects identified themselves as members of the Ku Klux Klan and three said they were members of Nazi groups. Three white men and a black woman were killed Saturday at a "Death to the Klan" rally organized by the Communist Workers Party, U.S.A. Nine other persons were injured when gunmen drove up to the rally and opened fire. Two remained hospitalized on Monday. Swing said a fifth murder count would be filed against the 12 men now charged with four counts of first-degree murder and a conspiracy count. Two others are charged only with conspiracy to commit murder.

Swing said police have confirmed that "seven or eight" cars associated with the attacking gunmen drove through the area of the rally. All but two had left the scene when the shooting erupted, he said, and one of the two remaining cars — a white Ford compact visible in video tapes of the event — remains at large. Nelson Johnson, an organizer of the rally, charged the FBI, police and unidentified government officials were behind the attack. "This was not the action of a disorganized, motley group called the Klan," he told reporters Monday. "We can't give you the names of the FBI agents, but our position in it was the United States government and the agencies in it used the Klan as a front."

White Sues To Prohibit Radical Prison Groups

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White has filed suit to prevent state prisoners from forming "radical groups" such as the Ku Klux Klan while they are serving time. White's class action suit was filed Monday in state district court on behalf of the Texas Board of Corrections. The board adopted a rule Oct. 7 prohibiting prisoners from forming certain organizations and subjecting inmates to disciplinary action if they violate the rule. An assistant attorney general said White filed the suit in hopes of having the board's rule validated by a court.

White said he wanted "to maintain peace and order in the internal operation of the system and to prevent an organization whose only intention would be to abuse the rights of the inmates." Asked for further comment, White issued a statement through information director Mary Hardesty which said the suit "is a basic effort to regulate the internal operations of the prison system and to prevent the organization of the Ku Klux Klan and other radical groups which might challenge the safety of the inmates."

The suit claims Frank X. Leahy, who is confined in the Ramsey Unit at Rosoharon, "recently has undertaken activity in connection with the organization and establishment of a Ku Klux Klan or Klan-related organization within TDC (Texas Department of Corrections), and he already has threatened (the board) and TDC officials with a lawsuit ... if (it) adopted the rule at issue — as it now has." White's suit says the rule "was intended to permit TDC to prohibit activities by inmates as part of or behalf of racially divisive organizations such as the Ku Klux Klan and organizations having no reasonable relation to the rehabilita-

Newspaper Views Political Crisis In South Korea

By United Press International
Following is a sample of what the nation's newspapers have been saying this week.

Dallas Times Herald
The assassination of South Korean President Park Chunghee... pushes an unexpected political crisis upon a nation with little experience in handling the transfer of power.

The people of South Korea have been denied their voice in the fate of their government, as they were frustrated in recent years by Park's changing of constitutional law to insure his ability to stay in power for life. Park's political party lost the last parliamentary elections but stayed in power because Park's new constitution gave him the right to appoint one-third of parliament.

Return to power with the popular and direct election of a parliament and a president is the most ideal outcome of the current political crisis. Achieving that will require greater nobility among ranking officials in Park's party and administration than we can imagine they possess.

The U.S. should privately encourage the South Korean officials, who seek American advice and assistance, that restoring a true democracy in South Korea might be the best way to proclaim its stability and insure its continued peace.

The future of the U.S.-South Korea relationship is closely tied to the preservation of a popular government in South Korea, one which does not use American arms to repress its citizens and does not become more like its Communist twin across the demilitarized zone in North Korea.

Domestic Tensions

Memphis Commercial Appeal
The United States faces a political crisis in South Korea, without, it seems, much leverage to affect the outcome. As in Iran, the Carter administration and its predecessors were primarily concerned about strategic issues while looking away from potentially explosive domestic tensions.

The specific reasons for the killing of President Park Chung Hee may not be easily learned.

Park's death could be an opportunity for South Korea to become a more democratic nation capable of providing its people with greater political and economic benefits. It also could be an opportunity for the country's enemies, especially North Korea.

The United States, having stood aside from South Korea's internal agonies, now may be able to do little more than hope that the new government will be friendly and cooperative.

But the assumption that a military and economic partner in a strategic part of the world will remain steadfast under the rule of a strongman has once more proven dangerous.

Void In Government

Bridgeport (Conn.) Post
The surprise resignation of Moshe Dayan as Israel's foreign minister leaves a major void in the 28-month-old coalition government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin... (and) could also spark a crisis in the Middle East peace negotiations.

The rift between the 64-year-old Dayan and Begin which precipitated the resignation centers around the issue of "autonomy," or self-rule, for the residents of the West Bank and Gaza. Israel agreed to self-rule in principle as the price for Egypt signing the historic peace treaty earlier this year.

Nevertheless, it has become increasingly evident that Begin defines autonomy as administrative control over local affairs, and nothing more.

Dayan is to be commended for his tireless efforts on behalf of the Israeli people. His recent resignation by no means will mark the end of his distinguished career in public service.

Money-Saving Order

Texarkana Gazette

In a move which could save taxpayers up to $226 million this year, Admiral Roland Freeman III, recently appointed director of the General Service Administration (GSA), has forbidden any purchase of new office furniture by or for any federal government agency until a complete inventory of its furniture on hand has been completed and filed.

...GSA manages, or mismanages, some say, most of the buying of supplies and the construction and maintenance of buildings for the government. Efforts to uncover the extent of illegal practices have become mired in a morass of bureaucratic obstructionism.

Admiral Freeman has brought a new concept to GSA, Common sense. It is good management to require people to use what they have before they buy more. This approach clearly never occurred to the career bureaucrats...

Spectator Sport

Keene (N.H.) Sentinel

Increasingly — especially since the advent of television — presidential races have taken on many of the aspects of spectator sports. Candidates work up game plans and strategies designed to win primaries and caucuses and eventually "the big one" in November. And all too frequently, the media — and, once again, especially television — dwell endlessly on these tactical elements, pushing aside all important matters of substance.

This politics-as-sports reporting is at least silly, and it could eventually pose a threat to our democracy.

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: When I was six, my mother, a widow, died. The state put me in an orphanage and found a family to legally adopt my two little sisters. They were three and four at the time.

I want to establish contact with my sisters, but so far I've had no success, even though I was able to contact their adoptive mother. My sisters are 19 and 20 now, and they live with their adoptive parents in another state.

First, I wrote to their mother, explaining who I was, and asking her permission to write to my sisters. My letter was never answered, so I called and asked if she ever received my letter. She said, "Yes, I got it, and why don't you mind your own business and quit trying to mess up my daughters' lives?"

I told her politely that I didn't want to mess up their lives. I just thought that since we were blood sisters they might want to know me because I remember them and still love them very much.

She said, "Please leave them alone and find somebody else to love!" Then she hung up on me.

Abby, I am a respectable married woman. My husband advised me to forget about trying to see my sisters, but he agreed to abide by your decision.

was filled with patients looking for the doctor.

What a picture I must have been: half naked, barefoot, with this short gown, open in the back, flying in the breeze!

Well, a nurse grabbed me and escorted me back to the examination room, and you can bet the doctor was there in less than a minute.

STILL LAUGHING

DEAR STILL LAUGHING: I'm laughing, too. But I don't recommend that method of getting the doctor's attention.

DEAR ABBY: I was particularly interested in the letter from the man who loved his parents, but it tore him up to visit their graves, so he never went. His sisters and brothers went often, which made him feel guilty, so he asked you if he should go for "appearances' sake." Thanks for saying, "The poorest reason to do anything is for 'appearances' sake." I agree.

My sister and I fell out over an argument we had about how much to spend on our mother's casket.

When we were shown a $6,000 coffin (with an innerspring mattress!) I burst out laughing, even though I was sad and heartsick at the time.

My sister was all for putting our whole family into debt to give Mama an expensive funeral just so people wouldn't think we were cheap. We had some bitter words about it. We finally settled on a nice coffin for $1,500, which was plenty.

I've left instructions with my family to spend the absolute minimum on my funeral. When a poor family goes into debt for a fancy funeral, it's usually because they feel guilty about the way they treated their loved one while he was living, and are trying to make it up to him after he's dead.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Sometimes just watching the cards the opponents play will enable declarer to ferret out even the most subtle booby trap planted by an ingenious defender.

The bidding was quite orthodox. South's response of one heart was an attempt to locate a 4-4 major suit fit. Despite the fact that he held only three hearts, North correctly raised to two hearts because of his ruffing value and good trumps. Now South's jump to three no trump described his hand perfectly — game going values, a balanced hand and only four hearts. If North held four-card support, he would obviously have corrected to four hearts.

West made his normal opening lead of the jack of spades, dummy played low and East won the king. The spade return knocked out declarer's only entry to the long club suit in dummy. He came to his hand with the ace of diamonds and ran the ten of clubs, West following with the seven. East could see no way to defeat the contract if he took the queen, so he ducked smoothly. If declarer could be induced to repeat the finesse, the club suit might be shut out.

Declarer continued with the four of clubs and West contributed the eight. Just as he was about to insert the jack of clubs from dummy, declarer paused to consider the situation. From the fall of the cards it became evident that West had a club higher than the eight. Therefore, repeating the finesse would be necessary only if West had started with the Q-9-8-7 of clubs. But had that been his original holding in the suit, he would also surely have covered the ten to insure a trick in the suit.

So reasoning, declarer rose with the king of clubs and cashed the ace. He was rewarded for his perspicacity when East's queen fell under the ace and the contract rolled home. East's boldness ended up costing him a trick, but against a declarer of lesser analytical talent he would have had a glorious story to tell the boys in the back room.

The mother-to-be, 12, told Charles Riker and his wife, Audrey, "My boyfriend said he was using 'an IUD' and we could do it and I wouldn't get pregnant."

Riker thinks that's when he got missionary zeal about making sex education in the schools mandatory by grade seven.

An IUD — for intra-uterine device — is not something boys use, but no one ever told the girl about IUDs. All she knew she got from friends, from the media, by piecing things together.

Her street-wise sex education hadn't gotten to IUDs yet.

There were other "horrors" that spurred the Rikers into the missionary column among sex educators. The evidence came from pregnant teenagers among hundreds they talked to during a nine-month, fact-finding tour of 33 states.

Dr. Riker is a professor at Purdue University's School of Consumer and Family Sciences in West Lafayette, Ind. His wife is a psychologist at Lafayette's Wabash Center for the Learning Disabled.

Other findings making them sick at heart included:

— In a major hospital in the south, learning doctors had delivered babies to 13 girls at the age of nine.

— A pregnant teen complained she really didn't know much. "When I was in the eighth grade," she said, "we were given a college book and told to read the chapter on reproduction. Most of the words I didn't understand and we didn't get a chance to ask questions. That was supposed to be sex education."

— A girl of 10 gave birth to twins at the Indiana University Medical Center.

— Forty percent of the 1 million pregnant teenagers are 14 or younger.

"The situation has changed in a radical way in the last 10 years," Riker said. "We knew for years teenagers were experimenting at 15 or 16."

"Now, the ages are much younger and the attitude is extremely casual."

"Sexual intercourse seems to rate about the same in importance as a game of frisbee for many young adolescents."

"Unlike their parents, they consider their behavior neither harmful nor sinful. And a great many parents choose not to notice."

The Rikers think it's a national tragedy that responsibly delivered sex education in the schools still remains controversial. They deplore endless debates about what part of sexuality to teach and at which grade level.

"While all these meetings go on, Rome burns," Riker said. "In some communities, vocal minorities feed the flames by impeding the efforts of dedicated adults working to plan a program of human sexuality or to improve one already begun."

"The situation is getting worse, actually. Due to nutrition and health care puberty onset is at a younger age these days."

"It's about 12.4 for girls and a little later for boys. They experiment in ignorance and we have these pregnancies."

Riker compares the current national picture of sex education to a five-link chain with one serious flaw — the weakest link.

Here are the links in his chain:

— 1. Compilers of statistics regarding adolescent sexual activity. They are doing their job well.

— 2. Dedicated sex education proponents such as Dr. Mary Calderone, president of the Sex Education and Information Council of the United States. These are "alarm sounders."

— 3. Sex researchers providing new information about human sexuality, especially Dr. William Masters and Virginia Johnson.

— 4. Available delivery system. This already is in place. "The same schools that have taught our children to read, write and calculate are capable of delivering accurate information about the topic."

— 5. "Race starters" or community leaders who fire the gun to send the runners down the track. These initiators of desperately needed sex education programs are locked up in endless meetings in so many communities.

"Despite the readiness and availability of sex education programs, few schools offer comprehensive and effective courses," Riker said.

"Many of them that do have some form of limited sex education either begin too late or the courses deny students a chance to discuss the psychological dimensions of sexuality in a protected setting."

Riker said the weakest link must be strengthened as soon as possible — "if we care about our children bearing children and I think we do."

Some teachers are bootlegging information in a fear-filled atmosphere, he noted. Others play dead about the subject rather than risk being fired.

One told him:

"A 15-year-old told me she was pregnant and what should she do. I couldn't say anything to her. If I did, I would be fired if it got to the authorities. Can you imagine how I felt?"

What Riker calls the weakest link must be strengthened. Other "alarm sounders" agree with the Rikers about the need for action now.

The points in their case:

— In the past 15 years Ammerican teenagers have been bombarded with informal sex education through television, films, song lyrics, pornography and, most recently, sexually explicit cable television.

— And yet fewer than 10 legislatures have mandated sex education for all students in their state.

"We teach kids about their teeth, eyes, nose, throat, feet, skin, hair, muscles, digestive system and all the rest," Riker said.

"But it isn't 'all the rest.' We skip over the parts having to do with reproduction."

What about mothers and fathers passing the word about the parts between the navel and the knee?

A not-so-bright idea — if you're interested in thoroughness, according to Riker.

"No matter how well intentioned, many fathers and mothers are not the best persons to teach adolescent offspring about sexuality beyond the issues of anatomy and reproduction," he said.

During their travels and interviews with parents, teachers, teenagers and others, the Rikers found most parents favor high quality sex education in the schools.

Teachers and administrators also told them they want the students to understand better the bodily changes that occur during puberty as well as all attendant risk factors that follow.

The Rikers, authors of "Finding My Way" — a text on family living, reject the contention that knowledge about sex encourages sexual activity.

And they remind parents:

"It is impossible to protect young children from erotic stimuli in this saturated culture."

The only way to win, according to Riker:

"Raise teaching about human sexuality to the same high level of attention and thoroughness presently devoted to water safety and driver training."

THOUGHTS ON WEIGHT

A woman asked me:
"What should I do to lose weight?"
"Is your health good?"
"Yes."
"How are things going for your husband?"
"Fine."
"Then why do you want to lose weight?"

Christ The King Presents Play

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

The Drama Department of Christ the King High School will provide a reflection on the past with its production of "I Remember Mama" Wednesday and Thursday nights at 8 p.m. on the CTK stage.

John Van Druen's play, which is adapted from Kathryn Forbes' "Mama's Bank Account," recalls the time of coffee costing five cents, children enjoying the classics, and a family sharing everything together.

The 1910 comedy takes place in the home of Marta and Lars Hanson, Norwegian immigrants living in San Francisco. The young daughter, an aspiring writer, relates the story of her mother's common sense way of dealing with life and its problems.

Els De Keyser, exchange student from Belgium, portrays Mama. Anna Mehta, Gabor Racz, Karla Vival, Pam Blackwood and Robert Giovannetti comprise the rest of the family.

Peter Coward, Matthew Little, Deanna Short, Mary McGann and Missy Burns characterize the ever-present relatives from the "old country."

Berniece Jones directs the play assisted by Lorrie Boullion, Bob Conover and Cody McCauley.

As part of CTK Homecoming Week, the drama club will have nostalgia calendars for ex-students which recall past plays performed since 1975.

Tickets for "I Remember Mama" may be purchased at the door or by calling 795-6477.

U.S. Taxpayers To Spend More On Former Presidents In 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. taxpayers will be spending an estimated $18.3 million on past presidents in 1980, nearly 300 times more than was spent 25 years ago, a senator examining the soaring costs said today.

"This year for the first time the amount we will spend on former presidents will be more than the appropriation for the entire White House operation," said Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., in an opening statement at a Senate hearing.

The $18.3 million in costs include presidential libraries, Secret Service protection and office staff for former presidents. In 1980, White House salaries and expenses will total $18.2 million.

U.S. taxpayers spent $64,000 on former presidents in 1955.

Chiles said presidential libraries have proved four times more expensive to operate than was originally thought, even after inflation is discounted. The six presidential libraries cost a total of $9.5 million a year to operate.

The senator questioned the spending of $7.9 million a year on around-the-clock Secret Service protection for former presidents and first ladies. When started in 1964, the protection cost about $50,000 a year.

"We will examine this protection in contrast with the need for it posed by actual threat levels," he said in a prepared statement to open a joint oversight hearing by Senate Appropriations and Government Affairs subcommittees.

Chiles also questioned the spending of $798,000 a year for former presidents' office allowances, compared to about $160,000 in 1959. Former presidents also receive pensions of $69,670 a year.

The senator termed the increase in office staff costs "remarkable" because "former presidents have no official duties or responsibilities that they are expected to perform in exchange for these public funds."

Chiles noted that historically, many past presidents have ended their lives virtually penniless and others, such as Ulysses S. Grant, became involved in dubious commercial enterprises.

However, Chiles said recently presidents have become wealthy after leaving office by selling their memoirs or offering exclusive television interviews.

Ray, 30 yards from freedom in the mountains, slumped to the ground and waited for guards to pick him up.

He was taken by guards to a "more secure" unit of the prison to await a Wednesday disciplinary hearing.

"When the guard fired, James Earl stopped crawling," Tucker said. "The 12-gauge is pretty loud. I guess James thought a lot, but it didn't take him long to make up his mind."

Wolverton was found a few minutes later, lurking between two air conditioning units by the wall.

Ray and five other convicts bolted from the prison in 1977 by using a homemade ladder to scale down a rear wall in a hail of gunfire. Ray was tracked down by a bloodhound 55 hours later under a pile of leaves.

Ray's Escape Attempts Baffle Prison Officials

PETROS, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray is "polite, real nice, a model convict" at Brushy Mountain State Prison, but officials are at a loss to stop his repeated escape attempts.

The assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. made his fourth break-out attempt Monday. He was crawling on all fours — under a green blanket — toward his last barrier, a 12-foot-high chainlink fence, when a tower guard spotted him.

"He's cool, polite, a model convict. I guess while the other guys are fighting and everything, he's planning on how to get out," prison information officer Ray Tucker said.

"We sort of let down our guard after each one, and before you know it, he's trying it again."

"I don't know what else we can do," said Tucker. "We can't just sit and watch him all day.

"Maybe somebody else will come up with something, but blame if I know anything else to do."

Ray, serving a 99-year term, and his cellmate Sam Eugene Wolverton left paper-filled, plastic bag dummies in their bunks — topped by some of their own hair — and sawed their way out of their cell in the pre-dawn darkness Monday.

They crawled to the fourth floor of their cellblock through a duct system, and slipped onto the roof, which forms part of the prison wall.

Then, they slid down a drainpipe into the "no man's land" between the wall and the fence — which was erected after Ray escaped two years ago.

Ray, carrying a plastic bag containing food and a pair of small wirecutters, was crawling for the fence under a green blanket to camouflage him in the grass when the guard saw him, fired a shotgun blast into the air and yelled, "Halt or I'll shoot."

Tech Student Attacked After Football Contest

The outcome of the Houston Oilers-Miami Dolphins football game apparently did not settle too well with one viewer Monday night as a Texas Tech student told police he was attacked by the outraged fan.

Rodney S. Ratheal, 18, of 425 Coleman Hall, Texas Tech, told police he and another man got into an altercation while watching the game at a pizza parlor in the 1400-block of University Avenue. Ratheal was pulling for the Oilers — who won the contest — and the other fan was rooting for the drowned Dolphins.

Ratheal said that after the game ended about 11 p.m., he and the other man shook hands and were going to call it a night. However, the disappointed fan, apparently wanting to show one last gesture of loyalty for the Miami team, swung at Ratheal and hit him in the eye, according to reports.

The Oiler fan went to Methodist Hospital to have his eye attended to, and the other football follower walked to an apartment complex behind the restaurant.

In another incident, police were called to Methodist Hospital shortly after 11 p.m. Monday and were somewhat bewildered after a 15-year-old boy told them he had been kidnapped while jogging near 47th Street and Avenue Q.

Police said the youth, his young wife by his hospital bedside, told them he was running near the intersection when four or five men offered him a ride. He said that when he declined the offer, one of the men pulled him into the vehicle and drove him to an unknown location.

The investigating officer, in his report, stated the youth said he could not describe the alleged abductors or the vehicle they were in. The boy said he persuaded the men to let him out so he could go to the bathroom, and while he was outside, he felt an injection.

Reports indicate the boy could not show officers where he had been punctured and hospital personnel said they could find no needle marks. Police said the teen-ager, while telling the story, became belligerent, refused to finish his account of what happened and would not sign the offense report.

The investigating officer said hospital staff members told him they could find no traces of drugs in his bloodstream, but that they measured a .19 percent level of alcohol in his system.

Two boys, ages 16 and 14, and a 12-year-old girl were apprehended by Lubbock police about 11:45 p.m. Monday after they allegedly attempted to burglarize a coin machine at a laundromat in the 200-block of Zenith Avenue.

Answering an alarm at the business, police apprehended the older boy and girl inside the building and the other suspect was taken into custody in a nearby alley after he attempted to run from the officers.

The damage to the coin machine was estimated at about $100.

A 25-year-old Lubbock man was arrested shortly after 10 p.m. Monday after his car apparently ran out of gasoline in the 200-block of North University Avenue and he allegedly attempted to siphon fuel out of a nearby vehicle without the owner's permission.

The man was taken into custody after a policeman, on routine patrol, spotted the suspect attempting to get the gas out of the other car, according to reports.

The occupants of the suspect's stalled car, including two children, two men and a woman, were allowed to go free.

Terry D. George of 4407 Canton Ave., Apt. A, said she came home about 3:45 p.m. Monday and found her apartment ransacked, with damages amounting to an estimated $3,000.

Reports indicate a coffee pot and cookie jars were shattered and pots and pans scattered on the kitchen floor. She said expensive chinaware and crystal were broken, 22 pictures were thrown on the floor and beds, chairs, tables and a television set were turned over.

She reported stolen silverware, stereo equipment, a hair dryer and clock radios.

The woman also named a suspect in the incident and said that person also had set a fire on her front porch on Oct. 17.

A 17-year-old male was arrested for possession of marijuana after police stopped him at a hamburger stand near Matthews Junior High School about noon Monday.

Jessie Garza, assistant principal at the school, told officers that the suspect had been selling drugs on school grounds.

When officers stopped the youth for questioning at a nearby hamburger stand, reports show one of the officers saw the suspect throw a cigarette to the ground. Police said the substance in the cigarette appeared to be marijuana.

School officials at Lubbock High School and O.L. Slaton Junior High School Monday reported that someone had spray-painted obscenities on the outside of the school buildings during the weekend.

Bill Carter, vice principal for Lubbock High, estimated the damage at $850, and Edgar Payne, principal for O.L. Slaton Junior High, said damage to the buildings totaled $500.

Derrial Head, manager of King Trailer & Equipment Co. Inc., 405 34th St., said that thieves removed from the firm 16 truck tires and wheels, valued at $2,500, sometime between noon Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday.

Debbie Barber of 1001 University Ave. reported that someone took $2,000 worth of jewelry from her apartment sometime between Friday afternoon and Monday afternoon.

Julie Margaret Simpson of 3001 Grinnell St. told police that burglars made off with $1,500 worth of goods, including a stereo system and jewelry, from her home sometime between 8 p.m. Sunday and 6:30 a.m. Monday.

Ex-Trooper Called As First Witness

By DON CUNNINGHAM
A-J Correspondent

KERRVILLE — A former state trooper Monday told a 216th District Court jury here about a high-speed chase in south Lubbock County the night the body of William Drew Young III was found in the trunk of his burning car two years ago.

Max Gunn, an insurance salesman and former Department of Public Safety highway patrolman stationed in Lubbock, was the first witness to testify as Jim Gordon's murder trial for his alleged role in Young's death began Monday.

Gordon's trial was moved here on a change of venue granted by Lubbock's 99th District Court Judge Thomas L. Clinton, who is trial judge in the case.

Under questioning by Jim Bob Darnell, first assistant criminal district attorney for Lubbock County, Gunn recalled the arrest of two men following the chase on a dirt road south of Lubbock.

The former trooper said he, his partner and a DPS sergeant were on routine patrol when they saw a dark-colored Buick convertible parked beside a burning cardboard box on Quirt Avenue the night of Dec. 24, 1977.

Investigator Testifies At Dugas Murder Trial

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A Jefferson County investigator says five members of the Bishop Phillips family apparently fell into a pre-dug grave after each victim was shot back of the head.

Pat Hayes of the Jefferson County district attorney's office Monday identified 24 photographs of the bodies and the bullet taken from 3-year-old Jason Phillips' head.

Hayes testified Jason lay on top of the pile of bodies with his arm draped around the neck of his father, Elmer Phillips.

Ovide Joe Dugas Jr. is accused of capital murder in the death of the child. The boy and four other family members were taken from their home near Winnie, and executed during the July 4th holiday in 1978.

Dugas' former wife, a member of the Phillips family, was not among those slain.

Elmer Phillips' torso was bent around his legs, Hayes said.

"I believe the man was standing when he was shot and fell forward," he said.

Hayes said the other adults' bodies were in similar positions, except for Elmer's wife, Esther, who was on her side.

He testified all of the victims appeared to have been shot in the back of the head, and that all of the adults had masking tape over their mouths.

In earlier testimony, Dugas' brother said Dugas bragged about committing the "perfect murder."

Richard Dugas, 30, testified that although his brother had on several occasions tried to solicit his help in the killings, he never took him seriously.

"I just never believed him," Richard testified. "I didn't think he had the guts to do it."

He said his brother told him about the killings as the pair drove alone in a truck on July 4, 1978.

Richard said his brother told him he met a woman on the parking lot of a nightclub near Port Arthur and the pair drove in her car to a spot near the Phillips home.

Joe Dugas and the woman, wearing "jungle fatigues," crawled to the house through a rice field, Richard Dugas said.

Hospital Board Elects Joe Stanley Chairman

By DEBBIE STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Hospital District board members voted in a new chairman Monday, naming Joe Stanley to that position.

But Stanley made it clear he wants to hold the spot only temporarily.

Stanley, who has served for many years as the board's secretary and most recently as chairman pro-tem, was unanimously voted to the post, with board member Dub Rushing to take over Stanley's pro-tem seat.

Stanley, however, would accept the position for only as long as his term on the board extended, meaning the board will be looking for still another chairman in January, 1980.

After serving 10 years on the board, Stanley said Monday he plans to retire from the governing group when his term expires and said he has asked the County Commissioners not to reappoint him to the chairmanship.

"I feel like it's time to make a change," Stanley told board members. He said he accepted the position Monday "for the sake of continuity."

In other action, the board seemed to have found an angel in disguise in solving its problem of selecting an alternate data processing system for hospital billing before March 15, 1980.

The district's board of managers was faced with the task of selecting a new firm to provide bill processing for Health Sciences Center Hospital because Health Management Services, the hospital's current provider, is going out of health care business in March.

If the March deadline for finding a new system is not reached, the hospital could be faced with major difficulties in its billing department.

Although the board first voted to hire an auditing firm for consultation in finding a new system, board members later were made an offer by Shared Medical Services.

Bob Flippin, representing the Pennsylvania-based firm, offered the board a solution to replacing the hospital's current data processing method within the necessary time frame — and at a lower cost for the first year than the system which is now in use.

Board members first decided to follow its finance committee's proposal to draw up an in-house guideline report for review by a Dallas auditing firm, Ernst and Whinney, which has been hired to conduct the hospital's year-end audit for this year.

Richard David, who serves on the consulting staff for data processing for the firm, told finance committee members Monday his fee for participating in the search for a system ranged from $38 to $40 an hour.

Flippin explained the hospital now pays about $17,000 monthly for its current system and said his firm's rate would probably be closer to $14,000 when installed.

Flippin told the board, though, that for the first year, the hospital would only be charged $8,884 for data processing, with the same services now available to the hospital.

This fee includes equipment rental and all other facets of the operation, excluding the cost of the forms that are run through the system.

The board approved rescinding its motion to consult with the Dallas auditing firm on the selection process and voted to accept Shared Medical Services' proposal, pending a formal written agreement.

City Police Officer Appeals Suspension

A Lubbock police officer, suspended in August for listing a traffic violator's occupation as "pimp," Monday appealed that suspension to the state district courts.

Patrolman Patrick Hastings was suspended without pay for three days Aug. 18 and the Lubbock Civil Service Commission, to which Hastings appealed, upheld the department's suspension on Oct. 22.

Department officials handed out the suspension after a man to whom Hastings issued three traffic citations July 24 complained to police disciplinary officials.

Lake Sampling Rules Altered

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has decided to require daily sampling of brine discharges into Whalen Lake in Andrews County rather than twice-a-day sampling.

The commission also voted Monday to relax its requirement that a floating boom be placed around each brine discharge point.

On Oct. 23, 1978, the commission banned the disposal of brine into the lake. The agency had reports of substantial oil and grease pollution in the basin.

In July 1979 the commission adopted a temporary order to let Whalen Corp. of Dallas use the lake to dispose of brine if the company would meet 13 requirements set out by the commission. The order required that a floating boom be placed around each brine discharge point and required the operator of the disposal facilities to sample and test the water for oil and grease twice-a-day.

Monday, the commission said Whalen Corp. must contain oil and grease by installing a floating boom or by constructing a containment pit "or by any other means adequate to ensure the early discovery and prevention of any discharge or any visible oil or globules or grease into the main body of the lake."

The commission said the water level in the lake is so low that installing a floating boom would be impractical if not impossible.

Charge Names Local Woman

A 22-year-old Lubbock woman Monday was charged with the second-degree felony offense of compelling prostitution in connection with an October incident in which a juvenile allegedly was using the woman's home as the base for her own prostitution activities.

Deneice Hodges is accused of allowing a 14-year-old Lubbock girl to sell sexual services out of Miss Hodges' 709 Ave. R, No. 24, apartment.

A bond of $2,500 was recommended for Miss Hodges by the criminal district attorney's office.

Both Miss Hodges and the teen-ager were arrested Oct. 18 on suspicion of prostitution after allegedly offering to have sex with plainclothes Lubbock police officers in exchange for cash.

At the time of the arrests, officers said they believed both women were adults. According to police reports, the juvenile had no identification, gave police a false name and told arresting officers she was 18.

But Friday, a juvenile probation officer contacted police and told them he had received a runaway report on the girl and that she was only 14.

After receiving the new information, Miss Hodges was charged with the felony offense.

In 1685, Louis XIV revoked the Edict of Nantes, ending 91 years of partial toleration of Protestantism in France.

Area Hospital Files Lawsuit

Administrators of Hi-Plains Hospital in Hale Center Monday filed a federal lawsuit against the Internal Revenue Service in an attempt to recoup what hospital officials contend are incorrectly levied taxes.

According to the hospital's petition, IRS audits of the tax-exempt facility's statements for 1973-1976 resulted in the hospital being taxed for $13,805 and charged an additional $1,128 in penalties.

Hospital officials say they received notice of the taxes due in December 1978 and paid the full amount in February. However, the taxes are "illegal and erroneous," the lawsuit charges, and hospital officials want a jury to hear the case and award the hospital the paid taxes and penalty payments, plus interest.

IRS audits indicate that while the hospital is a tax-exempt facility, a percentage of sales from the hospital pharmacy is unrelated to hospital business and therefore subject to tax, according to the suit.

Hi-Plains officials admit in the petition, prepared by Lubbock attorney Edward R. Smith, that some of the pharmacy sales were made to persons other than hospital patients, but that because the pharmacy is operated "primarily for the convenience of hospital patients," all of its business transactions should be exempt from taxation.

Mayor Dirk West Pronounced 'Ornery Citizen' At Mule Feed

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MULESHOE — The gleaming white Lincoln Continental tried to sneak into town about sunset Monday night, but was met at the city limits and immediately surrounded by the entire Muleshoe police force.

What with the streams of swirling lights and screaming sirens, and police officers blocking off every intersection, it certainly looked like the locals had just trapped the head of the Mob, sitting there inside the plush limousine, dressed to the gills and escorted by a burly policeman.

Bonnie and Clyde they weren't, but Lubbock mayor Dirk West, and his wife Mary Ruth certainly topped Muleshoe's most wanted list Monday — especially since West has been stinging the town with barbs about its cuisine in his Southwest Conference Football cartoons that appear twice weekly in the Avalanche-Journal.

West's cartoons have three times included sidebars questioning Muleshoe's culinary prowess this season — touting Muleshoe as Maalox's "City of the Year" and the "Site of the 1980 Kaopeacte Festival." But Muleshoe struck back Monday and issued West the ultimate challenge — to come to town and try the food for himself.

The unique warfare between big city cartoonist/mayor and smalltown pride climaxed Monday night in the First Annual (and quite possibly the last) Dirk West MiniBanquet, held at the Capitol Freehold Land and Investment Co. restaurant, which along with the Corral, El Nuevo Leal, the San Francisco Cafe and the Pizza Hut, put together a spread never before seen in this town of nearly 5,000 persons.

West was greeted at the city limits by Police Chief John Richards, who read him his rights, "including the right to remain silent," and escorted him to the feast. As the limo pulled into the parking lot, the Muleshoe residents fired off a two-gun salute, which West said "was quite enough."

Once inside the restaurant West Texas hospitality took over, and the hour-long fete was nothing but laughter and fine food, which the menu noted as, "Mule Ribs, Mulatini, Mulagetti, Mule Ear Tamales and Mule-ionaire Pie."

After West was seated, he tucked his napkin into the collar of his dinner jacket, and asked the crowd of about 50 organizers and invitees dressed in black tuxedo T-shirts, "Is this how you do it?"

Dr. Herman Allgood, who wrote the first fiery letter to West, quipped down at the head table, "Live dangerously, Dirk. Take a bite." West did, and proved there was nothing dangerous but plenty that was delicious about the lavish feast, even though all the tables were jokingly covered with Maalox, Kaopeacte and Pepto-Bismol bottles.

After the dinner, West sat through a series of humorous pokes, many of them not suitable to print, at his ability as a mayor and cartoonist. Banker Harmon Elliott noted that West was so popular in high school that he got pregnant when he was a sophomore.

Grain dealer Max King said that, "Not only has Dirk closed down the massage parlors in Lubbock, he's also stopped the Grecian Formula 16 sales there."

And Allgood explained that he was "a little late getting here because he was visiting a Muleshoe couple who had contracted ptomaine poisoning Monday — they ate in Lubbock today."

When it was West's turn to respond, he told the crowd, "You've ruined all my best material — the food here is fabulous." The comment met with a thunderous cheer from the stuffed audience. The Lubbock mayor also presented Muleshoe mayor Charles Bratcher with a proclamation designating Muleshoe as an honorary suburb of Lubbock, and a large rug with West's Red Raider on it.

Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce Manager Jim Gulley reciprocated by presenting West with a proclamation designating him as an "Ornery Citizen" of Muleshoe and a key-chain to the city. "We would have presented you with a key," he said. "But we didn't have time to get all the locks changed."

"I'll tell you one thing," West said on the way back. "This was a terrific evening, but it sure cured me of picking on the little towns."

California Governor Receiving Low Ratings In National Polls

By ROBERT B. GUNNISON
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — One year before the presidential election, the campaign of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. looks more like a secret society than a race for the White House.

Hidden in the shadows of the battle between President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Brown nearly escapes national attention as he hops around the country scraping for support.

His standing in the polls is low. He has trouble raising money. His campaign events are sometimes amateurish. But don't count out the 41-year-old iconoclastic Democrat. Not yet.

"This is definitely a guerrilla campaign," observed one veteran Brown staffer in his cavernous national headquarters in Los Angeles that lacks the bustle usually found in such offices.

Brown is an energetic campaigner. Recently, he has spent more time in New Hampshire, where personal contact with voters is considered important, than he has in Sacramento.

He spurs talk about campaign strategy. "That's low-level intellectual activity," he told a reporter. "I'm working on the future of the world."

For the record, Brown still hasn't said definitely he is in the race: "I'm looking for the right moment to say the obvious."

Brown's association with singer Linda Ronstadt and their trip to Africa is one of the things that has contributed to the bachelor governor's image as a "flake."

He is doing his best to put forth a serious image. "The California sunflake doesn't exist," insisted campaign deputy Richard Mauldin. "That's a figment of an unknowing mind."

He is against nuclear power ("A hell of a way to boil water") and the MX missile program ("Mass transit for missiles.")

He wants a balanced federal budget and strong environmental protection. A former Jesuit seminarian, Brown is against the death penalty, but generally is pro-abortion.

Brown is the politician other politicians love to hate. In California, fellow Democrats openly sneer at him. They regard him as a political opportunist who cares only about running for president.

To raise money, Brown may soon start rock concerts, a technique both he and Carter used in 1976.

One of Brown's strongest and wealthiest backers is Jeff Wald, husband of singer Helen Reddy and manager of the rock group Chicago, who is organizing a series of concerts for the campaign.

New York Seeking TV, Movie Business

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey of New York made a quick trip to Hollywood this week to drum up movie and TV business for the Empire State, seeking to increase employment and income in his bailiwick.

The governor brought with him Theodora Sklover, director of the New York Office for Motion Picture and Television Development which has an annual budget of $300,000 to lure studios, producers and directors to the state.

Carey toured Universal Studios, appeared on a local TV talk show and was winned and dined by Hollywood bigshots.

Carey diplomatically said his visit did not constitute a raid on Hollywood production, admitting the inadequacy of sound stages and that post-production facilities in New York were no match for the major studios.

But he let it be known New York wants its share of locations and is smoothing the way financially and with labor-management-government cooperation.

Politics being what they are, New York City's Mayor Edward Koch sent his own movie-TV development operation, Nancy Littlefield, to make certain Manhattan wasn't overlooked while the governor was hustling the dubious merits of Buffalo, Ausable Chasm, Sing Sing and Schenectady.

The governor's press agents distributed a pamphlet modestly titled "We've Got It All!" It sings the praises of New York's wonders, including "Long Island's sinuous shoreline," a sexy slap at Malibu.

It puaistes with descriptions of Albany's new shopping mall, glows with the "thundering power" of Niagara Falls, heralds the "majestic mountains of Lake Placid," and trumpets New York City as "our crown jewel."

The pamphlet concludes, "So if you're making a film or TV show, make it right. Make it in New York. Call us. It failed to provide a telephone number.

At a Beverly Hills hotel cocktail party hosted by Warner Bros., Carey said his state was not challenging Hollywood as the world center for movies. Local unions, after all, are enraged by runaway production.

Frank Wells, Warner's president, thanked the governor for his concern for the film industry and said that the studios would cooperate. Among those applauding were Dennis Stanfill, president of 20th Century-Fox, and Lew Wasserman of Universal.

Later, Wells said, "New York has cleared up its labor strife in the past couple of years. The state has made financing easier with definite tax advantages. Also there's a big talent pool in New York City and I understand they are building new studio facilities in Astoria."

Wells was quick to admit studios do not arbitrarily assign production to New York or elsewhere. Locations are dictated by the script and the director.

Carey naturally is anxious to increase employment of New York film craftsmen — and citizenry used as extras — and to collect the millions of dollars film companies leave behind on locations in hotel rentals, goods and services.

Actually, Carey is treading a well-worn path. Wooing Hollywood production away from Southern California amounts to a back-country mania.

Movie locations are excellent chamber of commerce ploys. And rare is the politician who doesn't like to mingle with movie stars. It's good for the image and generally creates newsworthy pictures for newspapers and magazines.

Shulman Supports Treaty Ratification

NEW YORK (AP) — The presence of Soviet troops in Cuba should be closely monitored but should not be linked to U.S. ratification of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, says a Carter administration adviser on Soviet affairs. Speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press," Dr. Marshall Shulman said he does not believe U.S. Soviet military competition will lead to war, and said it makes no sense to tie SALT to other aspects of Soviet behavior.

And, Shulman said, the United States is ahead in the arms race.

Tongue-Tied Casanovas Offered Survival Kit

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Norman Solomon calls it "a basic survival kit" for the world's tongue-tied Casanovas. Or anyone else who might be willing to fork over 10 bucks for a change at romance.

Solomon recently invested "more than $50,000" to market a copyright love letter that he swears will work when Cupid won't.

"Many times you see a person you want to meet, say at a party or on the street," Solomon explained, "and there's just no discreet way to make your presence known."

He whips a sealed envelope out of his briefcase. "Please read this in privacy at your earliest opportunity," it reads.

The idea is simple and time-tested, Solomon continued. You merely walk up to the attractive stranger, hand him/her the mysterious envelope containing "The Love Letter" and beat it.

It works "without the risk of rebuff or humiliation, since you don't have to say anything," Solomon said. "It's a very proper letter of introduction, without any sexual overtones."

Solomon refused to divulge the exact wording of "The Love Letter," but a $16,000 full-page, full-color ad in a women's magazine solemnly vows, "It works with such brutal efficiency, one should almost have a permit to carry it."

More than 1,000 requests for the letter have poured in over the past 30 days, Solomon said, "and we're shooting for three times that response."

Requests have filtered in from entire wings of college dormitories, as well as sororities, offices and "a few married people," Solomon said.

Solomon said he researched his love letter idea for two years in San Francisco, recruiting both men and women to hand out various versions.

George Bush Promotes Personal Image As Quiet, Tough Texan

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Herbert Walker Bush would just as soon get rid of those two middle names. They lend an Ivy League image to a man who'd prefer to be regarded as quiet, tough Texan who made it on his own rather than on his father's money.

Bush is, however, all of the above. If that appears to conflict, it's only one of many contrasts along George Bush's uphill hand-shaking marathon from Iowa to New England and around the country he hopes will win him the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

George Bush, at 6-2 and 190 pounds, jogs to keep trim and "retain my sanity" in the almost endless string of receptions, cocktail parties and small town visits that mark his underdog effort. His credentials for the job include service as a Texas congressman, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, chairman of the Republican Party, envoy to Peking and director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

He says Americans are looking for someone like him — with proven experience in national affairs — to lead the country.

He's been campaigning hard for more than a year, but he's still barely known to the voters, let alone their choice for president.

"I have a relatively low name identification," Bush says in classic understatement. "I rather confidently feel I have a breadth of experience no one else has." He's probably as conservative as any of the Republican contenders, especially on the economy and national defense, and he hates political labels. But he carries the label of a moderate. He says his proudest accomplishment is that "My children still come home. They do now, and they did in the 60s." He declares himself an "idealist about this country" who wants to "restore the stars in third-graders' eyes."

But that sort of talk just fuels speculation that George Bush may be too nice, too decent to be president. Decency, responds Bush, does not mean weak and ineffective.

"Leadership comes from a candidate's ability to think a problem through — to make the right political and moral distinctions — and come up with a decision that serves the best interests of the country," says Bush.

Chaps Take 97-96 Victory

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Lubbock Christian College opened its 1979-80 basketball season wound up tight like a toy locomotive — chugging and steaming to a seemingly insurmountable 17-point lead late in the first half of action Monday night.

But that train made several unexpected stops — turnovers, that is — later in the opening period and during most of the second half.

The Chaparrals gave the basketball away 34 times, squandered the 17-point advantage and fell behind the Paul Quinn Tigers by 11 points with only 3:12 remaining to be played.

But much like the little train that could, LCC didn't quit. The Chaps went full-speed ahead those final three minutes and pulled out a 97-96 victory over the Tigers on Rick Murdock's layup with seven seconds showing on the clock at LCC Fieldhouse.

"We had the game won, but our turnovers let them right back in it," said a relieved LCC coach Larry Hays following the heart-stopping win. "We ran so well early in the game that we hated to give up the running game. We stayed with it too long and they (the Tigers) got right back in it."

It looked like the LCC locomotive needed a quick trip to the roundhouse for repairs following sophomore forward Leonard Vanduring's follow-up basket that gave the Tigers a 94-83 lead over the Chaps with 3:12 left to play.

At that point, the Chaps began the long, uphill journey.

Behind some excellent defensive play by senior post man Kevin Wharton and six points by junior guard Bruce Carver, the Chaps reeled off 12 points in a row and took 95-94 lead with 27 seconds left to play.

Vanduring drove the length of the court and laid in an easy bucket to put Paul Quinn back on top 96-95 with only 16 ticks remaining on the clock.

LCC quickly put the ball into play and Carver was fouled by sophomore forward Ray Stephens as he crossed the center-court stripe. Carver, who had hit three of four free throws before stepping to the charity line for the crucial one-and-one attempt, bounced his first shot off the back of the rim.

Amazingly, Murdock didn't even have to fight for the rebound. The ball bounced right to him and he simply took one step and laid the ball in off the glass for the deciding points. He was fouled after the shot and missed the first end of the one-and-one.

That left the Tigers with seven seconds to pull the contest out of the fire. Vanduring drove the baseline and tried to lay the ball in, but it bounced off the rim into the hands of teammate guard Quincy Shelton about 10 feet to the left of and slightly behind the backboard.

Shelton quickly put up a high jumper and it hit nothing but the bottom of the net. It appeared that the Tigers had de-railed LCC, but the officials ruled that time had expired before the ball left Shelton's hand and the game belonged to the Chaparrals.

The excellent shooting of Carver and the inside play of senior forward Keith Gardner and sophomore post man Jim Steensma sparked the LCC fastbreak midway through the opening half.

The two teams traded buckets the first five minutes of play. With the scored tied 14-14, Carver canned three short-range baskets and Gardner added a pair of jump shots to push LCC in front 24-14.

Poor shooting on the part of the Tigers and the Chaps' ability to get the ball downcourt quickly allowed LCC to add to the 10-point margin. Carver hit three charity shots, and Steensma and Wharton each dropped in layups as the Chaps pulled out in front 53-36 with 2:32 left in the first half.

Turnovers plagued the Chaps the remainder of the half and the Tigers took advantage of the problem. Sophomore forward Lorenzo Scott drilled two 20-foot baseline jumpers and four free throws and junior forward Michael Grimes added four points as Paul Quinn outscored LCC 16-6 in two and a half minutes and trailed at intermission by only seven, 59-52.

The Tigers continued to take the ball away from the Chaps throughout the second half and quickly whittled away the once-enormous lead. A slam dunk by Vanduring and a Grimes tip-in put the Tigers ahead 73-72 with 11:47 remaining in the contest.

LCC managed to stay with the Tigers, until Vanduring and teammate Darrell Brown came up with consecutive steals under and Chap basket and turned them into easy two-pointers.

Carver paced all scorers with 33 points, 21 of them in the first half. Other players in double figures for LCC were Gardner with 20, Steensma with 12 and Wharton with 11.

The Chaps take their 1-0 record back into LCC Fieldhouse tonight at 7:30 for a contest with Oklahoma Christian. Paul Quinn is now 1-1.

Fritsch Boots Oilers Past Dolphins 9-6

MIAMI (AP) — The Houston Oilers' coaches were yelling angrily in the post-game locker room, but the Miami Dolphins' locker room was quiet — an angry quiet.

Three field goals by Toni Fritsch and some costly Dolphin turnovers enabled the Oilers to escape the Orange Bowl with a 9-6 victory Monday night.

"We played good when we had to," Coach Bum Phillips was saying after the game.

Suddenly, one-by-one, Phillips' assistants began shouting as they discovered their lockers had been stripped of watches, wallets and rings during the game.

"I've heard of poor losers, but that beats everything," Phillips said. The victory marked the fourth time this season a Fritsch field goal provided Houston's winning margin. He tied the game with a 46-yarder to open the second quarter, broke the tie with a 48-yarder with 5:05 left in the third quarter, then opened a 9-3 lead with a 39-yarder just before the quarter ended.

"Toni, I think, is the best kicker in the league," Phillips said of the 34-year-old Austrian who has hit 15 of 17 field goals this season.

Rookie Uwe von Schamann belted field goals of 32 and 51 yards himself and was warming up for a potential game-tying two minutes left and the Dolphins at the Houston 20. But on second-and-7, linebacker Gregg Bingham picked off a Bob Griese pass at the 15 and returned it 54 yards to clinch the game.

Griese, under fire through most of what's been one of the worst slumps of his 13-year career, said: "Of course, that's the worst thing in the world that could have happened in that situation. I didn't plan it that way. Bingham just made a great play."

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, no stranger to criticism, agreed.

"It was one of those things: he had the guy open and made the throw, but Bingham gambled and made the interception. Knowing Bob Griese, he could make the same throw 100 times and it would not happen again," Pastorini said. Griese's teammates weren't as quick to defend.

"We just choked up. We didn't challenge them with our play calling. We played a contender and we choked up. We played conservative instead of taking the challenge to them," said wide receiver Duane Harris.

Harris set club records the previous week with 10 receptions for 180 yards but didn't catch a pass Monday, while fellow wide receiver Nat Moore had just two receptions.

"I only got the ball thrown to me twice all night," Harris said. "I know what I can do to help this team, but if I don't get the ball I can't help. It's frustrating to work hard all week in practice for this."

"We took what they gave us — the short stuff to the backs. They were double covering the wide receivers," an annoyed Griese said. "I'm getting tired of hearing grumbling from my own team."

Gary Davis, in the starting lineup while halfback Delvin Williams recovers from two broken ribs, fumbled twice — at the Houston 15 in the second quarter and at the Houston 48 in the final quarter.

"There's no excuse for the way I played. It really bothers me that I didn't do the job when I had a chance to," Davis said.

Ironically, Davis was the training camp roommate this year of fullback Leroy Harris until Harris was traded to Philadelphia. Harris fumbled twice in the Dolphins' 17-9 loss to Houston in a wild-card playoff game here last season.

Formidable Earl Campbell, slowed to 41 yards the previous two weeks as he recovered from a thigh bruise, gained 121 yards on 32 carries to become the first running back to break 100 yards against the Dolphins this season.

But overall, Miami's defense was solid, holding Pastorini to 25 yards passing and holding tight in the thrilling fourth quarter.

"Our defense played their guts out, getting the field position many, many times for the offense to score some points," said Coach Don Shula. "But we really hurt ourselves with fumbles and interceptions. The interception at the end was the only thing we couldn't let happen and we did."

The victory kept the 7-3 Oilers tied with Cleveland, one game behind Pittsburgh in the AFC Central. The Dolphins, 6-4, fell a game behind New England in the AFC East.

They have yet to beat a team with a winning record.

"To get to where we want to go at the end of the season, we have to start beating some winning teams. Tonight was a good time to start," Shula said.
