Hostages' Peril Grows

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Moslem militants today threatened to kill all 49 American hostages and blow up the embattled U.S. Embassy if the United States attempted to end the 18-day stalemate by military intervention.

(Other Iranian Stories On Page 19, Sec. A)

In a communique broadcast on Iranian state radio, the students also warned that "in the case of the slightest offense from the United States, all Americans resident in Iran will be in danger."

The communique, addressed to the "struggling Iranian nation," said the students were aware of the U.S. fleet movement toward the Persian Gulf and that "the United States has resorted to causing fear and issuing threats."

"We strongly warned the United States government, if it is felt the American threats are becoming real, we shall destroy all hostages at once... and the embassy, which was a place for espionage, will be blown up," the communique said.

The threats came as hundreds of thousands of Iranians converged on the occupied embassy where the remaining hostages face the threat of a trial as "proven" spies.

State Department officials declined today to comment on the reported threats. "We have no way of confirming the validity of those reports or who is originating them," one official said.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini taunted the president Tuesday as helpless and said, "Carter tries to frighten us, sometimes militarily and sometimes economically. He knows it himself that he is beating an empty drum. Neither does he have military capability nor does he have any following."

The students stressed that the Moslem people would not idly watch "military movement in Iranian territories" and would fight "tooth and nail and with full force."

The communique also "reassured the courageous nation (of Iran)" that the "slightest suspicious movement is being checked and conditions enable us to destroy all hostages and the embassy building within one second."

Khomeini also shrugged off a potential U.S. cutoff of wheat supplies to Iran, See IRANIAN Page 18

Americans Rescued From Pakistani Mob

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — A screaming Moslem mob stormed the U.S. Embassy today, killing one Marine, but Pakistani troops rescued about 100 Americans trapped briefly in a third floor vault.

Other mobs of anti-American Moslem militants, enraged by reports of the seizure of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, burned two U.S. buildings in nearby Rawalpindi, attacked the U.S. consulate in Karachi and rioted in the city of Lahore.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the attacking mob set fires inside the U.S. Embassy compound and the Americans inside retreated to a vault — actually a large room — located on the third floor.

Pakistani troops battled their way into the compound and chased the invaders from the roof. The State Department official said there were about 100 Americans inside and all were evacuated through the roof and were escorted by the Pakistani forces to the British embassy.

Deputy State Department spokesman Tom Reston said that the evacuated Americans are in good condition and that the only casualty of the six-hour siege was a U.S. Marine guard, Cpl. Steven Crowley of Port Jefferson, N.Y., fatally wounded in the mob attack.

Reston also said the American school in Islamabad was evacuated. "The children are being housed with some other foreigners," he said.

He said the American Center in Lahore was burned and the American Consulate in Lahore was sacked. American officials at the consulate "were evacuated under police guard."

The American consulate in Peshawar is apparently not harmed, Reston said. "That city is reported to be quiet," Reston said. He said the American Cultural Center in Rawalpindi is gutted.

"There are no further American casualties anywhere" in Pakistan, Reston said. The attackers at the Islamabad embassy, battling Pakistani troops and chanting "Down with the dog Carter," were infuriated by news of the seizure of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, charging it was the result of an "American conspiracy."

There are about 110 Americans assigned to the Islamabad embassy.

In Rawalpindi, other mobs burned down the American cultural center, an American Express office, and the British Council Library.

Rioters also attacked the Bank of America building in Islamabad.

Anti-American rioting also swept the city of Karachi, according to the Pakistani Press International news agency. Pakistani security forces tear-gassed mobs outside the American Consulate in Karachi, about 1,200 miles south of Islamabad, the agency said.

The mobs also attacked the Saudi See AMERICANS Page 18

Holy Shrine Recaptured

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabian troops assaulted Moslem fanatics occupying the Grand Mosque in Mecca and recaptured most of Islam's holiest shrine today, Saudi sources at the Arab summit conference in Tunis reported.

The sources said they had reports that some of the Mahdist fanatics were still holding out on an upper floor of the building. But they said the central area of the sacred Kaaba was cleared of the intruders, and most of their hostages had been released.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's Shiite Moslem leader, seized on the incident to further his campaign against the United States and said in a broadcast statement that it was "not far-fetched to assume that this act has been carried out by criminal American imperialism ... and international Zionism."

A spokesman for Saudi Crown Prince Fahd in Tunis said the mosque was seized Tuesday by more than 100 armed members of an Islamic minority sect in what he said was "a domestic incident" that should have no repercussions in the rest of the Moslem world.

"Saudi armed forces have the situation well under control and there is no need for Prince Fahd to leave the summit before the closing session," the spokesman said.

Arab League Secretary-General Cheddi Klibi announced the summit would end later today, 24 hours ahead of schedule, because it will have ended its work sooner than expected. He made no comment on the seizure of the Giant Mosque.

Arab sources said the invaders were Mahdists, who believe in the imminent coming of a new saviour. The Mahdist sect — a small minority in Saudi Arabia — is closely linked with the Shiite Moslem sect that constitutes a majority in Iran and is led by Khomeini.

Some earlier reports said the invaders were Khomeini supporters.

The sources in Tunis said they had no information on the immediate objectives of the attackers, but they said there was reason to believe the seizure was religious rather than political and was not directed against the Saudi government.

According to the sources, about 150 hostages were believed held inside the See SAUDI ARABIAN Page 18

Seven Perish In Blizzard

By The Associated Press

A howling blizzard socked the Colorado and Wyoming Rockies with as much as 40 inches of snow, closing highways, schools, airports and factories in the worst November storm ever in some areas.

Seven deaths were attributed to the storm as it swept across the mountains into the Plains.

Wyoming Gov. Ed Herschler called out the National Guard Tuesday night, dispatching a 22-ton rotary snow plow, a tracked personnel carrier and a truck to rescue 50 motorists reported stranded on Interstate 25 south of Cheyenne.

The University of Colorado canceled all classes Tuesday and offered $3 an hour and free tickets to Saturday's football game against Kansas State to anyone who would help shovel two feet of new snow off the field.

Larimer County Sheriff Jim Black ordered the purchase of tire chains for department vehicles after he spent three hours driving the 12 miles from his home to his office in Fort Collins, Colo.

Winds gusting up to 50 mph pushed up gigantic drifts on some highways.

"If I didn't have to be here, I would have stayed home," said Gary Franson, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Denver.

The widespread storm system produced drenching rains in Oklahoma and Kansas, flooding roads and farmland and forcing the evacuation of a dozen Ponca City, Okla., residents as waters rose.

As the storm moved east, blizzard warnings remained in effect in southeastern Wyoming and northeastern and east-central Colorado, and heavy snow warnings were posted for parts of Nebraska and Kansas.

The National Weather Service said 40 inches of snow had fallen at Poudre See ROCKIES Page 18

Coastal Residents Brace For Crude Oil Onslaught

GALVESTON (AP) — A force of 340 persons, mopping up a thick blanket of oil on parts of Galveston Island, braced for another onslaught as a ribbon of crude loomed half a mile off shore, the Coast Guard said today.

The oil, leaking from the crippled tanker Burmah Agate, which collided Nov. 1 with the freighter Mimosa, had dropped to a trickle prior to last weekend. However, winds began blowing from the southeast Sunday, pushing the crude onto the beaches.

Coast Guard spokesman Dave Paxton said the winds were expected to begin blowing from the north again today, keeping the 10-mile stretch of crude at sea.

"But the way the weather is around here, it's anybody's guess," Paxton said. "We're in a time game right now."

The pollution-control battle was dealt another setback Tuesday when four explosions rocked the vessel for the first time in more than a week, releasing more oil into the Gulf of Mexico.

"There was one explosion about 5:30 p.m. and three more around 6 p.m.," said Larry Clark, also stationed with the Coast Guard. "There was a slight increase in the fire, but it was hard to tell what effect the explosions had on the vessel because of the fire and smoke."

Clark said there has been no more oil leaking from a crack that developed in the left side of the ship Sunday when the deck of the ship buckled. The fire spread from the right side of the vessel to the left, but went out when the crude stopped leaking on that side.

Clark said the offshore currents have been almost negligible, so the oil was held at sea by winds blowing from north until Sunday, when they began blowing from the south, driving the oil directly onto the beaches.

"There is heavy beach impact along the length of the island and down near Freeport," Clark said. "There are only spots in some places, but in other places the oil is an inch thick and eight or nine feet wide."

Meanwhile, Galveston County Judge

Ray Holbrook was demanding that the sand being removed from the island's already badly eroded beaches be replaced at the expense of the owner of the tanker.

In a letter to Coast Guard Capt. Robert Ingraham, captain of the Port of Galveston, Holbrook said at least 640 cubic yards of sand already had been removed from the beaches.

Holbrook noted that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has a large amount of sand piled at the east end of the island that was dredged from the Galveston Ship Channel and suggested that it might be used to replace the oily sand.

Many Options Available To U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States would face great difficulty in mounting a military operation to rescue the 49 U.S. hostages in Tehran, but it could choose from among a variety of military warning strikes against Iran.

U.S. officials said today the disadvantage of such a warning strike or strikes is that they might make Iran even more resistant to releasing the hostages — and could lead to a mass execution of the prisoners.

But if the U.S. hostages are harmed, the possibility of mounting a strike will obviously assume increasing importance in U.S. calculations.

Pentagon officials said today the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk and accompanying warships are leaving Subic Bay, the Philippines, for the Indian Ocean south of Iran. That journey will take about 10 days.

Meanwhile, the aircraft carrier USS Midway is already in the Arabian Sea, which washes the southern shores of Iran 500 miles from Tehran.

Both carriers carry attack fighters and some helicopters. The fighters are capable of striking anywhere in Iran. But use of the helicopters has been virtually ruled out in any event.

Some possible attack targets: —Iranian military airfields, bases for sophisticated jet aircraft which the United States sold Iran before the crisis. This option may be one of the more likely.

—The Iranian oil fields. Such a punitive raid would be likely to anger U.S. friends, West Germany, Japan, Canada, and others who import sizable quantities of Iranian oil.

—The holy city of Qom, where Ayatollah Khomeini lives. Such an attack is deemed a remote possibility.

—The Persian Gulf island of Kharg, where oil is loaded for export.

Staging a helicopter rescue operation at the embassy is deemed nearly impossible, without initiating major war against Iran.

And no helicopter lift could fly sufficient Marines the long 500 miles to Tehran and back to the carriers.

McCartney To Play At School

LONDON (AP) — Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney is going back to school.
The British star will perform next week with his group Wings at the Liverpool Institute, where he was educated along with another ex-Beatle, George Harrison.
"There is considerable excitement in the school, as you can imagine," said a school spokesman. "I don't think we'll have any worry about absenteeism."
Nearly 1,000 students will get to see the concert, which was arranged at the last minute to precede two other Liverpool concerts McCartney and Wings are scheduled to give.

Godunov Leaving ABT

NEW YORK (AP) — Ballet star Alexander Godunov says he is leaving the American Ballet Theater in hopes that a contract dispute between ABT and its dancers can be resolved more quickly.
Press aide Edgar Vincent said Godunov, 29, was prompted to resign Tuesday by remarks questioning his ability and comments about fees.
Some dancers charged weekly salaries were kept low to provide more money for big stars, including several Soviet defectors. Godunov defected from the Bolshoi Ballet here in August.
The American Guild of Musical Artists, to which the dancers belong, said it hopes Godunov will stay with the company. It added Godunov's presence was not an issue in the strike that began Oct. 29.

Actress, Husband Suing Tabloid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Shirley Jones and her husband, actor Marty Ingels, are suing the National Enquirer for $20 million, claiming the weekly tabloid libeled them.
In their Superior Court suit filed Tuesday, the couple claimed that statements printed in an October edition of the Enquirer that Miss Jones was "driven to drink" by the "bizarre behavior" of her husband were libelous.
The suit also claims invasion of privacy and intentional infliction of emotional distress.
There was no immediate comment from the Enquirer.

Prince Visits Soldiers

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A daring hedge-hopping flight took Prince Charles to what has come to be called "Bandit Country" to visit British soldiers in this war-torn country.
The 31-year-old heir to the British throne spent about six hours near the border of the Irish Republic before returning to London Tuesday night.

Lt. Gen. Timothy Creasy, Britain's top officer in the embattled province, called Charles' appearance a "tremendous boost" to morale.

Soviet Premier Ailing

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin is suffering from liver or circulatory ailments, according to Soviet and Eastern European sources. Kosygin, 75, was last seen in public on Oct. 17.

There has been no official comment on Kosygin's absence.
His health became a matter for speculation Nov. 6-7 when Kosygin failed to attend the 62nd anniversary celebration of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Kosygin would be expected to attend the Nov. 28 meeting of the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, when the country's 1980 economic plans will be discussed. Kosygin helped draft the plan.

Case Of Missing Cow

SEATTLE (AP) — King County police officer Terry Gallagher was in his living room watching television highlights of Saturday's University of Washington-Washington State University football game when he thought he saw a cow in the UW cheering section.

Gallagher called detective Jerry Harris, who had been working on the case of a particular cow missing from Theno's Dairy near Redmond.

Harris talked with Henry Brown, a yell leader, who said the cow had been brought to the field by members of an unknown fraternity.

It was left at the stadium and Brown locked it up after the game.

Owner Bud Theno has it back now and won't press charges. But he welded the cow's hooves to the dairy's roof.

Theno said the 150-pound, life-sized plastic holstein was worth $1,000.

TALKS TURKEY — University of Massachusetts Professor David Stemple talks turkey. Stemple is a bird watcher, photographer and hunter who calls wild turkeys to him either by gobbling himself or by producing an artificial gobble with the aid of a small gobbling box. Professor Attracts Wild Birds

HATFIELD, Mass. (AP) — "Gaahle, gobble-gobble-gobble-gobble." That's "Hello," from University of Massachusetts professor David Stemple, a man who's more than willing to talk turkey.

Stemple is a bird watcher, photographer and hunter whose ability to attract the wild birds with his voice or a special box gives him a kind of Pied Piper status among the beak and feather set.

Either way, his gobble is so good most turkeys can't tell the difference, he says.

Decked out in his camouflage hood and outfit, Stemple sat against a tree near his 100-year-old farm house in this western Massachusetts town and explained the ancient art of talking turkey.

To gobble himself, the 42-year-old computer science teacher uses a small mouthpiece. The call, which starts high and careens down the scale, sounds more like "a screeching whinny," or a series of yelps, than a gobble.

If that doesn't turn on the turkeys, Stemple has a wooden box that produces turkey-like sounds when he moves the lid.

The hardest bird to attract is the gobble, or adult male, who is accustomed to hens coming to him — not vice versa.

If the gobble fails to respond to hen calls, Stemple calls out like another gobble who is mating with a hen. This, he says, arouses jealousy in the turkey's heart, or possibly the Peeping Tom in him, and he moves closer.

"When they strut they swell up to twice their size," he says. "You're sitting against a tree and it's coming right at you. Looks like a dinosaur."

Stemple, who learned to call turkeys as a boy in West Virginia, says he enjoys shooting the birds with a camera as well as with a gun.

"If I'm clicking as he comes on me, he never knows it, and if I'm pulling the trigger, he never knows it either," he says.

Stemple has learned to respect the old birds.

Indians Schedule Fast To Mourn Thanksgiving

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Led by a trumpet-playing descendent of the tribe that greeted the Pilgrims 359 years ago, a small band of Indians is planning a 24-hour fast to mourn Thanksgiving.

"It's important that this doesn't come out as a protest," said the leader, Frank James, moderator of a nine-year-old organization called the United American Indians of New England.

"We're not radicals. We're mourning all the injustices to the American Indian in the past and today. The native American has nothing to be thankful for," he said Tuesday.

"We're telling people that the Indians are still here, that the injustices of the past are still going on ...," James said.

The fast begins tonight.
"I think what should be done is make people realize that Thanksgiving Day is purely for the merchants to hoodwink everybody in the country into going out and buying a big meal ... when the guy next door is starving," said James.

He also criticized what he calls the "myth" of Pilgrim-Indian friendship the first Thanksgiving in this first settlement

Americans Must Pay High Price To Celebrate Holiday In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Despite annual missionary work by the International Herald Tribune, Thanksgiving is still a mystery to most of the French. But everything the American away from home needs for the traditional dinner is available in the gastronomic capital of Europe.

All it takes is money, and plenty of it. If tradition is respected, the city's English-language newspaper will reprint Art Buchwald's classic column "Jour de Merci Donnant" — a literal translation of Day of Thanks Giving — telling in fractured French how it all started with the Pilgrims.

Meanwhile, American housewives intent on upholding their traditions have been stocking the pantry and depleting the purse.

French turkeys, smaller than their U.S. counterparts, can be ordered from most butcher shops at about $3.40 a pound.

Fauchon, the world-famous purveyor of gourmet foods, has a wide selection of traditional Thanksgiving delights.

Sweet potatoes from California are $2.80 a pound. One American woman tried a cheaper local version last year and added orange food coloring because they were an untraditional white. They cooked up chartreuse.

A can of cranberry sauce from Green Bay, Wis., costs $2.40 at Fauchon. A jar of cranberry chutney from Phoenix, Ariz., is $7.50.

Fauchon's other Thanksgiving offerings include pumpkins, pumpkin pie sauce, brandied hard sauce for Indian pudding, mincemeat, wildflower honey and fresh cranberries.

For those who won't or can't cook their own, the American Legion and the American Church serve Thanksgiving dinner for their members, and some of the big hotels offer a complete turkey dinner for about $30.

Most of the eight restaurants operated by Americans also will have special menus. They range from $22.50 at The Studio, which usually serves Mexican food in a 17th century courtyard, to $20 at Mother Earth's, a small place with a coffee-house atmosphere.

Religious Sect Member Given Blood Substitute

NEW YORK (AP) — Jehovah's Witnesses say the Bible forbids blood transfusions even in cases of life or death. Now a member of the religious sect has become the first U.S. patient to receive a transfusion using a synthetic blood substitute.

The patient, who was not identified, was given about six pints of the experimental solution at the University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis to replace blood lost during surgery four weeks earlier, hospital spokesman Bob Lee said Tuesday. Normally, the human body holds 17 pints of blood.

The manufacturer, Alpha Therapeutic Corp. of Pasadena, Calif., quoted doctors as saying the transfusion was a success, but Lee said the physician, Dr. Robert Anderson, felt it was too early to discuss the results. Anderson could not be reached for comment.

Thomas Drees, president of Alpha Therapeutic, said the 67-year-old patient underwent surgery for vascular disease in his leg and was discharged from the hospital, but was later readmitted with severe anemia and an infection.

The blood substitute, named Fluosol, was invented by Green Cross Corp., Alpha Therapeutic's parent company in Osaka, Japan, and has been tested successfully on about 50 Japanese patients, Drees said.

However, the substance has not completed testing for marketing approval in the United States and special permission of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration was needed for the Minneapolis transfusion. Drees said permission also would be required for any subsequent use.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Seesaw In The Straw

AS BEAUTY CONTESTS go, about the only thing proved by the Presidential preference straw vote in Florida was that Ted Kennedy has some flaws on him.

President Carter out-pollled the Massachusetts ultra-liberal, 1,114 to 351, in what Kennedy's supporters dismissed as a meaningless test of organizational one-upmanship.

The victory heartened the Carter camp, nonetheless, because it showed that the Kennedy charisma, charm and nostalgia can be overcome. Voters may look beyond these, and even beyond Chappaquiddick, and judge the young senator on his own record and abilities rather than on those of his slain brothers.

If they do, even the Carter record, combined with the power of the incumbency, could be enough to nail down the Democratic nomination.

REPUBLICANS in Florida, meanwhile, showed that the polls are right in projecting Ronald Reagan as the most likely nominee of the GOP at the convention were today.

But Reagan did not outdistance John Connally all that much and, to the surprise of many, George Bush came on strong to finish third in the Florida straw balloting.

Bush garnered 24.5 percent of the votes at the Florida Republican convention, just a notch behind Connally's 26.6. Reagan received 36.4 percent of the ballots. Considering how long he's been in the battle, and that Bush is new at the game, the results boosted Bush's stock considerably.

A former Midland oilman, Bush is positioning himself well if Reagan and Connally cut each other down between now and the serious business next spring and summer.

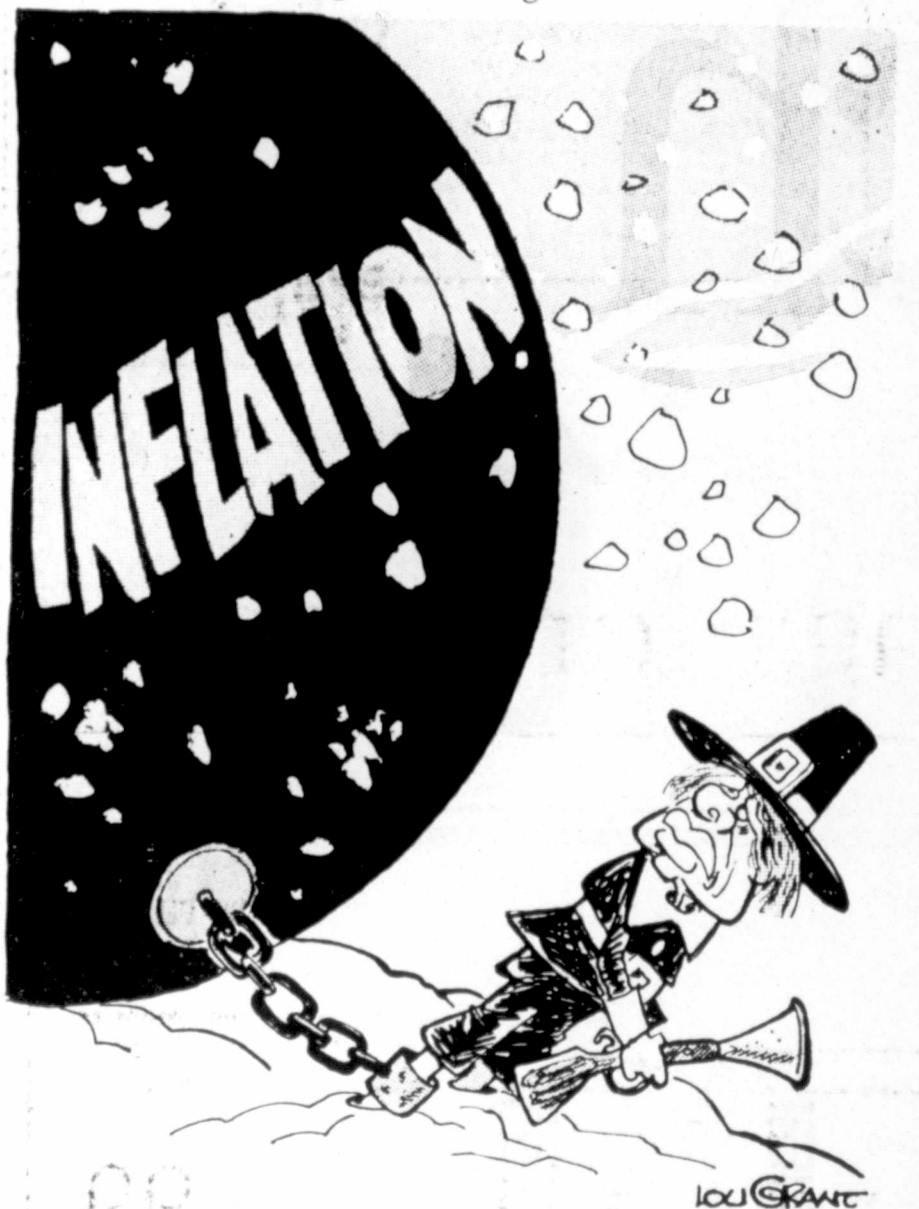

MOST AMERICANS can't really work up too much interest in all the Presidential politicking this early in the game.

Kennedy's overwhelming loss in Florida, Carter's back yard, nonetheless destroys the myth of the Kennedy invincibility.

The senator, moreover, has looked and sounded disorganized and uncertain in recent on-camera interviews. Such an image can be devastating for a candidate whose political enemies accuse him of having panicked and of having been unable to think clearly when his female companion, Mary Jo Kopechne, drowned in his car a decade ago.

Kennedy's campaign is dependent on his projecting an image of leadership and decisiveness in contrast to Carter's vacillation. So far, the senator has failed.

Thanks Lord, For A Grandson

(Reprinted by Request)
SCRABBLE, VA—On a Sunday morning a few weeks ago, my grandson Douglas took me for a walk. He had turned four in September, and four is an advanced and serious age. He wanted to "spect the fences," and he wanted to "see 'bout the apples."

So we set out for the high meadow that overlooks the Seacock property, with the two colliers frisking along the fenceposts and a fine autumn wind asking the trees to dance.

It was a glorious morning for a walk. This has been the most brilliant autumn in years in the Blue Ridge, with the maples and black gums and hickories arrayed like so many massed flags at a pageant. We marched along with a color guard around us.

IT WAS A morning of discovery for Douglas, and a morning of reverent thought for me. At four, a young gentleman can discover all kinds of things.

We discovered an immense groundhog hole; we discovered a tuft of rabbit fur, a bird's nest, another bird's nest quite different from the first nest, and we found a place where deer had been bedding.

There were still a few wildflowers—tiny asters and nefer-say-die daisies—and these had to be picked to form a bouquet to take back to Honey.

We checked the fences and we picked a couple of hard red apples, and with his small hand in mine we finally made it to the highest elevation on the farm.

At the bottom of the hill was White Walnut Run, a pale gold ribbon between scarlet sentinels.

Off to the southwest, we could see Old Rag Mountain, white-haired this morning from a pre-season snow. To the north and west, the land rolled and lifted and pulled the eye to the tapestries of autumn.

"TAKE CARE OF your land," John Randolph's mother used to tell the young Virginia planter, "and your land will take care of you."

This morning, her homespun thought struck home. Not only in rural America but in the cities also, this is about all that is asked of us: to take care of our land.

And what a land it is! I watched Douglas clearing rocks. He put down his bouquet and his apple, and kicked at a rock until it came loose. Then he lugged it to the fencepost and came back for another.

I motioned for him to come along. "Grandfaver," he said, with the air of a man who does not want to be disturbed at his work, "I am very busy." Three rocks later he gave up and we walked down to the bridge.

I WANTED to say some things to this sturdy, tow-headed boy, but the opportunity passed in a gust of autumn wind. Douglas is an inheritor—he and the other 3,137,999 children born in the United States in 1973.

They will inherit our land, not in the literal sense, of course, of these few mountain acres, but in the larger sense. They inherit traditions and values and obligations.

And for all of these, I wanted to say to Douglas, let us be profoundly thankful. Douglas was throwing his apple core at a fencepost.

Listen, I would have said to him, you and your sister Heather and your cousin Alina and all the other children, black and white and brown, are inheriting a land that is a good land.

Yes, America has its faults; none of the seven sins has passed us by. We still have millions of persons who know hunger and poverty and despair.

But you are inheriting freedom; you are inheriting a rule of law that dates from Magna Carta; you are inheriting all the cultural legacy that is embraced in the Judeo-Christian tradition.

I might have added a defensive thought. Don't ever be ashamed, I would have urged Douglas, don't ever be ashamed of that material wealth of your country.

WE WALKED BACK home, Douglas a little tired and sleepy, the wildflowers drooping, the colliers still going strong.

And I thought that, come Thanksgiving Day, I would write about this morning, and I would recall a line from Richard Nixon.

The former President used to end his speeches by saying that if he could choose from the whole history of mankind a particular place and a time to be born in, he would choose to be born an American in the 20th century.

For my grandson, Lord, I thank you.

A Libelous Label

"THANKSGIVING," says My Neighbor Twice Removed, "has a very special meaning this year: It's the last one we'll have before we get a chance to elect a new President."

If you think white males have all the advantages, just ask those that the Ayatollah Khomeini took hostage.

From the Quote Wrack: "The freeing of the black and female hostages...is a cynical attempt to divide the American public. Black people struggling for equality resent the use of our misfortunes (to) embarrass the United States."—Vernon Jordan, black leader of the National Urban League.

DESPITE ITS mounting problems—economically, socially, politically and internationally—the United States remains the greatest place on earth in which to live.

God has been enormously good to America. History teaches that other nations, similarly blessed, have decayed from within and fallen to enemies from without whenever the people have become more concerned with life's pleasures than with preserving their strong moral fiber and their strong armies.

Along with the thanks we give tomorrow, a few minutes of meditation about why we are having so much turmoil at home and abroad—and what we might do about it—would be time well spent.

Teddy Has No Answers, Either

WASHINGTON—We had better recognize Ted Kennedy's Presidential campaign for what it is—an attempted coup d'etat.

If it were painted in the familiar colors of an orthodox takeover of a government by an outside force, the march of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy upon President James E. Carter would be more recognizable for what it is.

If, for instance, it resembled the citizen uprising in Iran against the Shah, we would not mistake the Kennedy usurpation for anything else. But there is really no totally standardized coup.

It can take many forms—of which the replacement of a national leader by another is one.

Before considering any form by name or description, it is well to give heed to the general nature of revolution, whether peaceful, warlike, subtle, overt, seductive of existing constitutions or in defiance of them.

IN HIS HISTORY, "How Russia Is Governed," the classic account of the Czarist overthrow in 1917 by the Bolsheviks, the late Harvard Prof. Merle Fainsod (Russian Research Center) makes clear that such revolutions are natural growths, not transplants.

Had the central government provided political reforms, and satisfied physical as well as psychological needs of the people and the intellectuals, the most famed Revolution of this century might have been averted or ameliorated. Writes Fainsod:

"The triumph of the Bolshevik Revolution was in no sense inevitable...it was an indigenous, authoritarian response to...the environment of Czarist absolutism which nurtured it.

"Autocracy generates its own authoritarian antibodies and endows them with its own peculiar contours."

TRANSLATED INTO PRESENT uses, and applied to the Kennedy uprising against Carter, this professorial discourse means that the Massachusetts senator's bid to replace a Chief Executive of his own party in what Lincoln called "the middle of the stream" could not be viable without certain antecedents.

It is often remarked that Kennedy has unveiled no plan of remedy, has displayed no talent in Senate leadership, but the response to these objections is—Ted doesn't have to.

If he follows the curve, he will follow the Carter lines—giving them, as Fainsod said, his "own peculiar contours." His success would merely mean Teddy instead of Jimmy under the White House chandeliers.

"Totalitarianism," says historian George Ken-

Carter who goes around the country making speeches about how women are discriminated against in their paychecks.

HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris has warned she "will not tolerate sexual harassment," which she says by way of example may be "explicit or implicit promise of career advancement in return for sexual favors."

Good for her. Now, if she'll also crack down on reverse sexual harassment, which could be defined as "explicit or implicit promise of sexual favors in return for career advancement," she'll have covered all the bases.

SOME CIVIL RIGHTS activists long ago learned a sure-fire trick for blunting opposition to their demands and for rendering ineffective those who might stand in their way.

They simply label anybody who disagrees with them as a "racist" or, at best, accuse him of racial discrimination.

The ploy has worked like a charm. Nobody, especially if he's in public life, wants to be branded as anything but open-minded and fair. Thus, rather than risk being labeled with such epithets, they have allowed themselves to be intimidated into pulling their punches.

THIS HAS HELPED the minority activists get things they want, from the naming of a street or park to federal legislation favoring them on the basis of race.

But a jury of eight men and four women, including three blacks, has given those who practice such tactics reason for caution.

Meeting in Kansas City, the jury awarded Dr. Dante Scarpelli $44,000 in damages in his suit for libel against four of his black students.

All I know about this particular case is what I read in the papers, but the verdict can be interpreted as a defeat for those who practice reverse racial bias.

Dr. Scarpelli was chairman of the pathology and oncology department at the University of Kansas Medical School in 1974.

Four black students formally complained that he discriminated against blacks.

SCARPELLI SUED for libel, saying his reputation and professional standing were damaged by the allegation, which he denied and which was in due course dismissed by school officials.

In 1978, a jury deadlocked 11-1 in Scarpelli's favor. On the second trial last week, the verdict was unanimous.

An attorney for the NAACP was outraged, saying "we're all in serious, serious trouble" and promising an appeal "all the way to the Supreme Court."

Baloney. As Dr. Scarpelli said, it was a case of libel, not one of civil rights, from the beginning. It just means that charges of racism can not be indiscriminately hurled.

If that puts issues back on the level of being determined on their merits, instead of on the basis of the race of the parties involved, everyone will gain.

nan, "is not a national phenomenon; it is a disease to which all humanity is in some degree vulnerable."

Nowhere is it indicated that Sen. Kennedy has saboteurs in key positions. We know that Kennedy's power is not stealth or steel. It is wealth, which Kennedys have a knack for mobilizing into national power.

It is an inherited martyrdom. The fanaticism amounts to an insane hysteria that evangelists know how to command. Revolutions have been wrought with slogans, voodooism, charisma and white horses. Whiffs of grapes are not mandatory. Demagoguery will do as well.

Anyhow, this succession of 1980, has too many unusual factors to be considered normal and routine.

It is disturbingly like the mediocre Louis Bonaparte, who had nothing but the name, making himself Napoleon III of the Second French Empire. The ersatz emperor didn't last long and brought his country low.

Sylvia Porter:

Direct Mail Shopping Treat For Your Feet

WASHINGTON—With one or two minor exceptions, I already have completed my Christmas shopping. This is a "first" for me, but apparently all I've done is join a full 25 percent of our population who are now shopping by catalogues and thereby eliminating the annoyances of waiting in lines, depending on indifferent-to-insolent store employees for service, worrying about deliveries or carrying gifts home by some means.

While I haven't been noticing particularly, direct mail merchandising has soared to a $60-billion-a-year business, is slated to balloon to a $600-billion-a-year industry by the end of the 1980s.

And while just a few days ago I alerted you to be on the watch for the con men who use the mails, I haven't even begun to report the many rules which will make shopping through the mails a joy and success, rather than a bitter let-down.

THE FIRST WARNING is: if you haven't placed your orders, you're already late!

Take full advantage of the toll-free numbers provided by many companies to get your order in the works at once. And if you're cutting it close (which you are), you may find it's worth paying a little extra for your gifts to be shipped special delivery or by air express.

Make sure the mail order house with which you're dealing gives you a "satisfaction guaranteed" provision in its ad or catalogue.

If you have any questions about whether the company is reliable or if its name is unfamiliar, check it through your local Better Business Bureau or the Direct Marketing Association in New York.

MOST BIG COMPANIES, such as Hanover House, the mail order division of Horn & Hardart, which has been in business for 45 years, guarantee satisfaction, or "your money back."

Another reassurance for you, the wary shopper, says Hanover House Industries president, Harold L. Schwartz, is a notice that the medium which runs the ad is backing up the mail order house advertisers with its own guarantees.

Always double-check the way you've filled out the order form to make sure that you have supplied all the necessary information, and that it's readable. If you send in a sloppy form, the wrong merchandise easily may be sent.

In addition to never paying by cash, make a copy of the order and the mode of your payment (money order, personal check, credit card). Keep a record of all the pertinent information, as well as the catalogue or ad on which your order is based.

The only way a mail order house can stay in business is by being responsive to its customers and responsible in its methods and merchandise, Schwartz observes. Follow the rules and you'll find the orders easy to fill out and the deliveries satisfactory.

* BUT BACK TO Number One: be fully aware of the time factor!

Read the catalogue with care to find out whether the delivery of the item or items you are ordering is guaranteed in 60 days or more. If, for any reason, shipment is delayed, you should be notified and given the option to cancel—with your money refunded within seven days of receipt of your cancellation notice.

Whether you have the merchandise sent to you, or as a gift to a relative or a friend, it should be examined on receipt. If it is damaged, something is missing, or it is not what was ordered, notify the mail order house immediately.

Of course, before you make any decision to buy from an ad or catalogue, make sure all the information you need about the product is listed (depending on what it is): dimensions, weight, color choices, packing, price, extras, shipping instructions, etc.

ONE OF THE unexpected pleasures I had from my first experience with doing just about all my shopping from the catalogues I routinely receive every fall is the variety of gifts I saw that intrigued me—and I didn't move from my chair or my scotch-on-the-rocks.

Will the upsurge in direct mail order buying slow the growth of department stores? It could be...Schwartz expects that as the business booms, the stores will stop "expanding their walls."

Monument Firm Displays False Tombstones

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Richard Nixon's name once graced a tombstone in Jack Sears' window. Last week, it was the Ayatollah Khomeini's turn.

Understand that Jack Sears does not want harm to befall anyone. But his fake tombstones with famous names do make for snappy window displays for his business — the Sears Monument Co.

"I'm sorry that some people have misunderstood why we do this," Sears said. "It's just to call attention to us. After all, how many people are going to buy a monument every day?"

"You'd be amazed at the number of people who remember back in 1955 when I started it."

Sears' choice that year was the famed Chicago White Sox double-play combination of Tinker-Evers-Chance.

Sears uses polished plastic letters, then rubs them with wool to activate static electricity in arranging them on tombstones. This lets him achieve the desired effect of engraving that looks real to a passing motorist.

Motorists driving past last week gaped when they saw a household name on a gravemarker: "Ayatollah Khomeini."

"We often put controversial names on there," Sears said, quickly pointing out that his sales manager wanted the Iranian leader featured.

"I don't know why he put his name on there," Sears laughed. "I think you know the answer. I don't think very many people in this country are happy about him. I just don't want to go to war."

In 1615, the sun was first used to power toys, and the first sun-heated steam engine was built in 1864.

Between Khomeini and the White Sox trio, Sears has featured Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge in 1980 as well as a host of local personalities.

Movie Producer Reported Ill

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Darryl Zanuck, one of the last of the old-time flamboyant movie moguls, has suffered a stroke and friends report he is in grave condition at Desert Hospital.

Friends disclosed this week that Zanuck, 77, was gravely ill.

He was admitted to the hospital this week following the stroke at his Palm Springs home. He was in the post-coronary care unit, but hospital officials refused to discuss Zanuck's condition.

Zanuck's physician, Dr. George Kaplan, was unavailable for comment.

As a movie maker, Zanuck reached the peak of his career when he headed 20th Century-Fox and was one of the highest paid executives in the United States with salary and dividends of more than $450,000.

Zanuck began his Hollywood career as a screen writer. He progressed to production chief, and later produced such controversial movies as "The Snake Pit," "Gentlemen's Agreement," "Grapes of Wrath," and "Pinky."

8-A, Lubbock, Texas

Wednesday Evening, November 21, 1979

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: I'm a little tired of all those letters from patients who complain because they have to wait to see their doctors. Please be fair and print the reasons why doctors run late.

Mrs. A. rushes in, hysterical, without an appointment, because she just noticed a lump in her breast. I examine her, then she asks if I would mind taking her husband's blood pressure since he came with her.

After Mr. J. has had his annual physical, he asks if I mind writing out new prescriptions for her visiting aunt from the East who ran out of all nine of her medications — two months ago. And do I think the blotchy rash on her hand could be contagious? Since she arrived, everyone itches.

Mrs. B. (the "emergency" call, whose daughter has to be seen IMMEDIATELY) finally arrives. The emergency? The daughter is 24 pounds overweight, her wedding is two weeks off and the dress won't fit. "Aren't there water pills or something she can take?"

Meanwhile, the hospital is on the phone again. The coronary isn't doing well, the diabetic came out of the coma and insists on being discharged immediately, and the record room wants me to complete my charts before the staff meeting at 3 p.m.

Oh, yes, and that doctor on the phone with another doctor discussing the business deal that sounds like a tax shelter; He needs that deal. It will help him survive until some patients who were treated last year get around to paying their bills.

Most people go through the ordeal of seeing their physicians only once or twice a year; their doctors see 35 or more patients daily. Sometimes I think the wrong people are being treated.

COMPTON, CALIF., M.D.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who works for an airline, has told me some unbelievable tales about some of the stuff they find at the airport in boxes, parcels and suitcases that can't be returned to their owners because they are totally without identification!

Abby, luggage containing expensive jewelry and CASH — ($1000 or more) is somehow lost at the airport.

Please tell your readers to put their names and addresses INSIDE their luggage as well as outside. Sometimes identification tags attached to the handles fall off.

MEG IN ST. PAUL

Dear Meg: Thanks for the timely tip. Holiday travelers, take note.

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to CHICKEN IN DETROIT, the woman whose "super-dude" had bad breath, you said, "if a dentist can't help him, he should see a doctor."

Abby, I resent the implication that a dentist is not a doctor. My husband is a DDS, which stands for "doctor of dental surgery," and he has as much right to call himself "doctor" as do physicians.

I think you owe dentists an apology.

WIFE OF A D.D.S.

Dear Wife: I apologize. I might need a doctor of dental surgery to get my foot out of my mouth!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 79600, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New Drug Tested

NEW YORK (Special) — Women who must face the distressing hot flashes of menopause without estrogen therapy — because replacement estrogen has been linked to uterine cancer — may soon have another, safer drug, reports Medical World News.

UCLA doctors are testing a substitute hormone, progesterone, on menopausal women, after discovering a hot flash may not be caused by blood vessel dilation, as previously thought. Instead, a biochemical mechanism in the brain may be responsible, the magazine reports.

The new hypothesis and a search for a new drug grew out of a study of six menopausal women who suffered severe flushes. UCLA obstetrician-gynecologists David R. Meldrum and Howard L. Jedd found that the flush was accompanied by a hike in body-surface temperature and a release of luteinizing hormone, which is necessary for ovulation. The doctors think the hormone is involved in the complex biochemical changes that affect heat-regulation centers in the brain.

Unraveling the hot-flash mystery would make it possible to tackle the problem with different drugs. Patients could be given progesterone to control the luteinizing hormone spurts. Or other drugs that work through different biochemical routes might be used.

Estrogen has been used all along simply because menopausal women are estrogen-deficient and because it relieves the symptoms. But till now no one had questioned how it worked. Dr. Judd told the McGraw-Hill publication.

Topic Of Recent Seminar Devoted To Role Of Women Volunteers

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

The complexion of volunteerism has changed with the changes in American society in the '70's, but it is still a vital part of community life in many new ways. This is the message which came through from the speakers and participants in the "It's Your Community" workshop held Saturday as part of the "Prime Time for Women" seminar at Texas Tech University.

Panelists for the discussion were Carolyn Mahon and Rose Wilson. Mary Nell Mathis served as panel moderator.

While statistics show that more and more women are returning to full or part-time employment, instead of this trend cutting into the number of volunteers, the actual facts reveal that these same women are also finding time for volunteer activity. However, they, because of time shortage, are being very selective in their choice of volunteer work.

"The fuel shortage and tight money have led people to look more closely at their own neighborhood to see where they can be useful," Mrs. Mahon said.

Volunteers are now looking for experience which gives a measure of satisfaction and where they can know they are contributing to the community. They also look for opportunities which offer training in some areas where they wish to improve their skills or develop new ones. Often, but by no means always, is this training a stepping stone to future employment.

In her keynote address for the conference, Sarah Weddington, special assistant to President Jimmy Carter, had reported that government job application forms now include a section for recording volunteer service as part of work experience. This, she indicated, signaled the acceptance of the value of volunteer experience and training.

Mrs. Mahon said that the future of volunteerism is bright. In view of the tight money situation, she said many state agencies would put increasing dependence on the work of volunteers to fill in with services for which funding had been cut.

Areas in which volunteers are needed, according to the panelists, include political groups, cultural activities, state agencies like the Department of Human Resources, United Way services and agencies, and other health and welfare fields.

Mrs. Mahon, herself involved in politics, appealed to the workshop listeners to use the political process to accomplish their goals in the community. She particularly urged people to get involved at the grass roots level beginning with attendance at the precinct meetings following the closing of the polls on primary-election day.

Lubbock has opportunities for volunteers to serve in all categories of need, Mrs. Mahon said. She listed the RSVP program sponsored by the city for senior citizen volunteers and the SOS program for students as good channels for service.

Rose Wilson, president of the Lubbock NAACP and a mother of five children, told the participants she thinks other women who volunteer do so for the same reason she does — because her family is important. "What my neighbor believes affects me and my kids, too," she said.

Mrs. Wilson urged women who want to volunteer to look around and not to be put off by any area they want to enter. "Just spending some time talking to your neighbors about a common concern is contributing to your community," she said.

Mrs. Wilson also sees volunteering as a way of having input into the direction the community will go. She urged workshop participants to find or form a group which has goals identical or close to their own. Then to take account of the resources of the individuals and organization and mobilize them for attaining the goals.

Other avenues of possible volunteer service which workshop participants mentioned included visiting nursing homes, forming youth groups, and government sponsored programs such as VISTA.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

History, in retrospect, always seems more exciting, more romantic, and never as devastating as what we are living through at the moment.

Tomorrow, all over this nation, families will gather around a table to give thanks. Many will be hard pressed to think of something to be thankful for.

People who settled our land didn't have our problems or our headlines. Or did they? And if they did, what prayers would have come from their lips?

BOAT PEOPLE LAND AT PLYMOUTH ROCK

"Thank you, God, for bringing us safely to these shores and for the compassion of these people who today share our food. May we be the beginning of a nation where people who love freedom are made to feel welcome. May we never forget our past nor take for granted our future."

JAMESTOWN GRIPPED BY WINTER OF SHORTAGES

"Dear God, give us strength to accept Thy will. The cold has claimed nearly half of our number but in Your infinite mercy You have given us a summer with a harvest that is before us today. Help us to endure the long, cold nights and to never forget that below the crust of snow is life preparing to be born again."

HUMAN RIGHTS MAJOR THREAT IN AMERICAN COLONIES

"On this day, look kindly upon all Your people and help us make equality a reality. For those unfortunate people who were transported to this land as indentured servants, release them from bondage so they can be no less than You meant them to be."

CRITICAL ELECTION NEEDS ATTENTION OF SETTLERS

"Heavenly Father, without law — Yours and ours — we are a helpless people. Help us to choose wisely for our life depends upon it. What we are and who we are. Guide us to select a man who is wise and decent, but mainly a man with compassion, for that is the basis of all law."

Every Thanksgiving for the last 200 years has brought prayer at the tables of most of us, from the lips or from the heart. Styles change. Surroundings change. But I suspect the hopes are the same.

It's not a perfect land. It never was. But its potential is in our hands. My prayer for this Thanksgiving is to thank God for peace in our time. For the challenges to test our strength. For the children He has allowed me to bear. For the husband who shares my life. And for this country which I love so much. Somehow as I write those words, I have a feeling they've been said before... maybe on a chilly day in Plymouth Rock by a woman huddled around a table with tears in her eyes.

CHINESE DISH — Bring a bit of China to the dinner table with Chicken Egg Foo Young with Mushrooms. These golden-brown patties are easy to make with holiday leftovers, quick-cooking vegetables and the convenience of canned gravy.

Oriental Dishes Add Flair To Leftovers

CAMDEN, N.J. (Special) — For an enticing, light meal with an Oriental touch, try Egg Foo Yung — China's answer to France's omelet. It's a versatile, easily prepared dish incorporating a variety of vegetables, meat or poultry and seasoning, and a creative way to use holiday leftovers.

These delectable little patties are especially easy to make because they use quick-cooking fresh vegetables and leftover meat and poultry. A flavorful sauce, which blends canned gravy and soy sauce or marmalade, gives these dishes added interest.

Pork Egg Foo Yung with Sweet and Savory Sauce is a tasty variation of leftover pork. Thin strips of pork are blended with crisp sliced celery, green onion and water chestnuts. Give this dish real Oriental flair by spooning a sweetened, brown sauce over the Egg Foo Yung. Apricot preserves flavor the sauce, which is easy to make because the basic ingredient — canned beef gravy — is already prepared.

You don't need a wok or fancy Oriental cookware to prepare Ham Egg Foo Yung with Vegetables. This colorful blend of French-style green beans, green onions and bean sprouts can be whipped up in any saute or fry pan.

Add a rich sauce of canned turkey gravy seasoned with soy sauce, garlic and ground pepper.

Stir up a batch of Chicken Egg Foo Yung with Mushrooms. It's a delicious light repast made with crunchy vegetables and chicken, sharpened with soy sauce. This dish is enhanced by the delicate flavor of mushrooms. The fast-fix sauce, seasoned with garlic and chopped parsley, begins with canned chicken gravy — a great time saver.

Carry out the Oriental theme in this menu by serving small bowls of light, fluffy boiled rice to accompany the Egg Foo Yung.

to come to nine tricks before the defenders collect five. So you elect to defend.

But wait a moment. What happens if, after winning the first trick with the ace of diamonds, declarer cashes four spades and the ace king of clubs, then exits with the jack of diamonds. West can take four diamond tricks, but he will then have to lead away from the king of hearts, giving declarer two tricks in that suit and his contract. Those sharp-eyed readers who spotted this line, no doubt elected to declare. Right?

Wrong. Declarer has played very well, but a shrewd defender can still emerge triumphant. Neither defender must discard a diamond on the fourth spade. Now West, after winning the second diamond with the queen, must resist the temptation to cash out. Instead, he must exit with a low diamond. East can win this trick with the eight of diamonds and shift to a heart. No matter what declarer does, he cannot make more than eight tricks.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Ways To Combat Fatigue Reported

NEW YORK (Special) — Do you plan to do a lot of traveling over the long Thanksgiving weekend? You may want to know how to fight fatigue and promote sleep to make your holiday both safe and enjoyable, says the Better Sleep Council, an organization that supplies information about sleep and sleep problems.

Pay attention to your wake/sleep rhythm, cautions the Council. Long distance travel by jet plane can cause the fatigue of jet lag, until the body becomes readjusted to the local time.

The same fatigue can be brought on by trying to turn night into day — driving a car long hours at night to get to grandma's house — or to get home again. Under these conditions, fatigue can lead not only to discomfort, but to disaster.

Airline pilots can tell us about the dangers of this kind of fatigue. It's not just jet lag that impairs performance, but also the accepted practice of scheduling their flights in random patterns, so they make several flights at odd hours during the same duty period, according to Captain Harris E. Dexter of Western Airlines. He is a member of a special task force of the Airline Pilots Association that is campaigning to get the Federal Aviation Administration to change its rules so that pilots can have duty hours during the same time period each day.

Harris says that pilots are also getting too little sleep between flights. As a result, falling asleep at the controls is a constant threat and has been a factor in a number of incidents.

Whether piloting a plane or driving the family car, or working at a machine or a desk, it is dangerous to tinker with our body's wake/sleep cycle, says Lee Weston, the author of "Body Rhythm," a book just published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich.

The average person is at the high point of alertness and performance between 10-11 a.m. and between 9-10 p.m., Weston stated in his review of the human wake/sleep cycle.

What is this 24-hour wake/sleep ci-

WARNING LABELS

California may soon require labels on all over-the-counter drugs, warning pregnant women and nursing mothers to consult a doctor or pharmacist before using these products, reports PREVENTION. At hearings to evaluate the labeling proposal, doctors pointed out that aspirin, which is taken by 75 percent of all pregnant women, can cause kidney and liver damage to the fetus. If adopted would probably force drug companies to use the labeling nationwide.

adian rhythm built into the bodily function of all of us that makes us want to perform by daylight and sleep in the darkness? Weston says scientists don't know very much about it. They know that sleep is a necessary bodily function, but the reason for sleep has so far eluded them.

Maybe nature puts us to sleep at night to keep us out of trouble, says Weston. Because those are the hours when the human mind and body are at their low point and are most prone to accident. The Three-Mile Island nuclear accident occurred at 4 a.m., Weston points out. He concedes that there were technical factors involved too, but some human mistakes were also made.

If we insist, in spite of good advice, on driving a car all night or sleeping during the day, do the experts have any tips for us?

What do airline pilots do when they have a scant eight hours between flights and need to get to sleep in a strange place away from home, perhaps at an odd hour of the day or night? Captain Dexter says there is no effective "Legal" way. Even when it is not permitted, some pilots resort to alcohol, which they consider the handiest and most effective sleep inducer.

Author Weston says the single best thing to do is take a relaxed attitude toward sleep. "You have to court sleep, just like you have to court daytime performance," he says, "with the difference that you can't get to sleep faster by trying harder. Just realize that whatever sleep you require, you will get, over the long run, whether it be nine hours a night, or only four."

Comfort is also an important factor. The Better Sleep Council points out. And comfort comes from a bed that gives proper support and is large enough for free movement of your body as you shift positions during sleep.

As for staying awake to pilot a plane or drive a car, avoid boredom, says the Council. Find something to do. Keep busy. Use sunglasses to cut the glare of the sun. Shift positions, change speed. In a plane, check charts or adjust engines to reduce vibrations. In a car, get fresh air, or make a rest stop. When snacking, go for fruit and protein. Avoid sugar and starches, which contribute to fatigue. Small amounts of coffee, tea or cola will help. However, smoking decreases the oxygen level of the blood and promotes fatigue.

A new 24-page booklet, "A Guide to Better Sleep," is available by sending one dollar with your name and address to: The Better Sleep Council, 1270 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Kennedy Blasts Oil Decontrol

MILFORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in another attack on President Carter's energy policies, charged today the president's decision to lift price controls on oil will cost the average American family $1,000 a year.

In a speech prepared for delivery in nearby Manchester, N.H., Kennedy urged Carter anew to reimpose price controls on home heating oil. Carter should do so immediately, he said, "before the winter brings harsh weather and even harsher heating bills to the homeowners of Manchester."

Kennedy said price controls on oil and natural gas should not be a permanent fixture in the economy.

"But I do say that decontrol at the present time, when we are already facing double-digit inflation, is an economic disaster for the people of New Hampshire and Massachusetts and every other state," said the Massachusetts Democrat, who is opposing Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy did not explain how he arrived at his estimate that decontrol would cost the average family $1,000 annually.

The speech in Manchester was one of several stops Kennedy had planned in New Hampshire, site of a Feb. 26 primary that Carter campaign aides concede the president probably will lose.

Kennedy's first stop was a dam site in Nashua, where he called for development of New England's hydroelectric potential.

Kennedy also was to attend a fundraising affair in Marion, Mass., for Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., before leaving for the family compound at Hyannis, Mass., for the Thanksgiving holiday.

In emphasizing energy, Kennedy is campaigning on what the Carter aides concede is an effective anti-Carter issue in New Hampshire, where fuel needs are great and where the first state presidential primary election will be held.

New Hampshire will send 22 delegates to the 1980 Democratic National Convention.

"We feel we're making progress," said Ellis Woodward, a spokesman for Carter in New Hampshire. "The question is do we have time to overtake Kennedy. My guess is we don't."

"Energy is the biggest issue, followed by inflation," he said. "People understand that there's going to be enough available, but they're obviously concerned about the price. Those people who are living on $10,000 are going to have trouble paying 90 cents (a gallon for heating oil)."

Underscoring what his aides say is a determination not to take the area for granted, Kennedy made Manchester, N.H., his first campaign stop after formally announcing his presidential candidacy Nov. 7 in Boston. Aides say he intends to return at least once for more campaigning in December, return for a ski holiday at the end of the year and campaign further early next year.

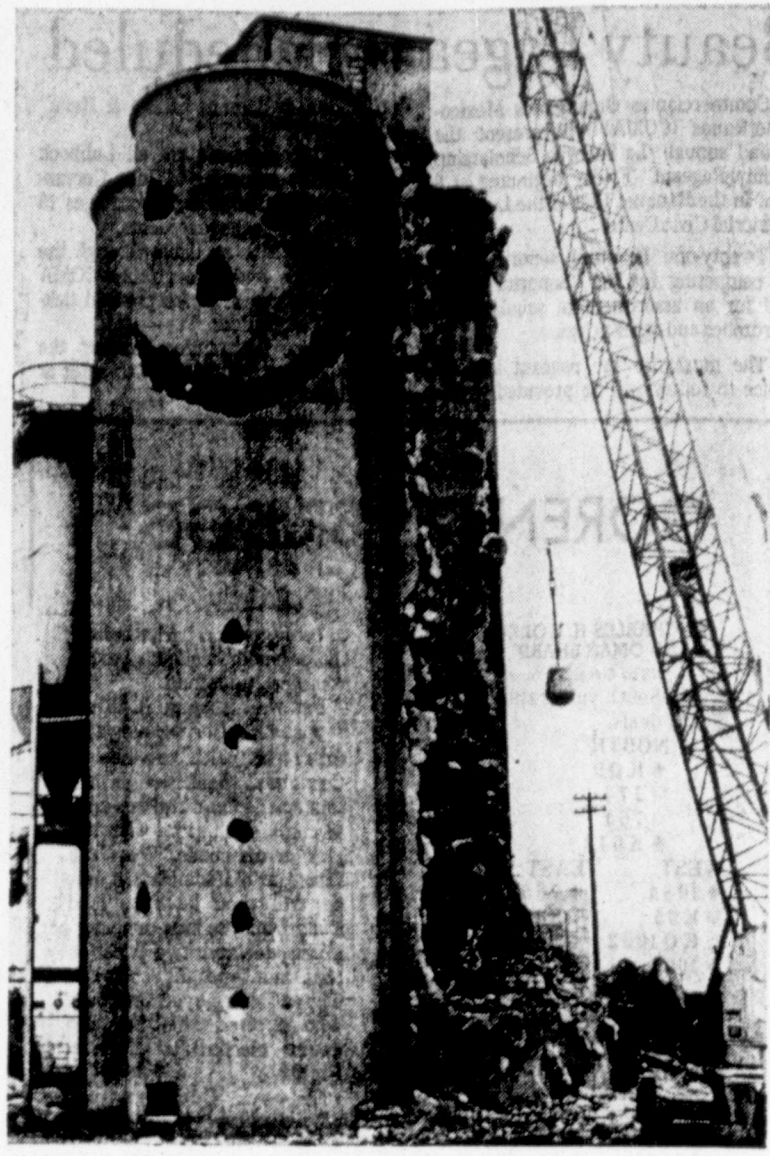

"We're running the same type of campaign we would if he were behind 2-1," said Jeff Petrich, a full-time Kennedy worker in Manchester.

Petrich said the New Hampshire campaign has drawn heavily on the structure set up by the Draft Kennedy movement that began operating last July. Kennedy already has a campaign organization of 26 workers in the state, and expects eventually to open offices in six cities.

In contrast, the Carter-Mondale Committee has offices in eight cities with a combined staff of 13, according to Woodward. He said the president would spend $265,000 in the state, the maximum allowed by law.

Woodward said that while the president has not visited New Hampshire since April, first lady Rosalynn and son Chip have been in the state three times in recent months and Vice President Walter Mondale twice.

Carter and Kennedy have split endorsements from the state's top two Democrats, with Gov. Hugh Gallen backing the president and Sen. John Durkin supporting Kennedy.

Networks' Refusal To Sell Time Ruled 'Unreasonable' By FCC

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a victory for President Carter's re-election committee, the Federal Communications Commission has termed "unreasonable" the refusal of all three major TV networks to sell it 30 minutes of air time next month.

The FCC said Tuesday the networks had acted unreasonably by refusing to consider the needs of the candidate, one of the factors the commission suggested a year ago must be considered in such cases.

By a 4-to-3 vote, the commission ordered ABC, CBS and NBC to advise it by Nov. 26 how they intend to adhere to the reasonable access provision of the Communications Act.

A spokesman for CBS, David Fiske, said Tuesday night that the network would "definitely contest the decision, but we can't say how as yet." ABC officials refused immediate comment, and NBC said it was studying its options in light of the equal time statute.

That equal time law would require the networks to grant equal access to other presidential candidates if Carter were allowed to buy air time.

A challenge to the ruling could come in the form of a court fight or a petition to the FCC for reconsideration. The networks also presumably could try to show that they did consider the needs of the candidate in rejecting the Carter request.

Charles D. Ferris, the commission chairman, spoke for the majority in saying he was concerned the networks were exercising the power "to decide when a presidential campaign starts."

The Carter committee had argued the air time was needed in early December to coincide with the president's election announcement, and that a date in January would not be suitable.

"What we have is a one-month delay here," countered Commissioner Abbott M. Washburn, in dissenting with the majority. "The committee wanted early December; ABC said early January. That's a close call. What is reasonable? I don't think the January offer was unreasonable."

The issue of providing advertising access to a presidential candidate was presented to the FCC when the three networks refused to sell major blocks of air time until after Jan. 1.

The Carter re-election committee then filed a complaint, focusing on a section of the Federal Communications Act that allows the FCC to revoke any station license for "willful or repeated failure to allow reasonable access to or to permit purchase of reasonable amounts of time ... by a legally qualified candidate for federal elective office." The law does not specify when "reasonable access" must first be provided.

Officials Say Citizen Former Nazi Officer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department sought today to revoke the citizenship of Karl Linnas of Greenlawn, N.Y., on grounds that he was an officer and in a Nazi death camp in German-occupied Estonia during World War II.

The department filed a complaint in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, N.Y., accusing Linnas, 60, of concealing from U.S. immigration officials his activities at a Tartu concentration camp in Estonia from 1941-1943. Estonia is now part of the Soviet Union.

In an affidavit the government said that Linnas took part in "cruel and inhumane acts against civilian men, women and children, including beatings, shootings, killings and starvation."

Linnas came to this country in 1951 and was granted citizenship eight years later.

If the government is successful in revoking his citizenship, it may then move to have him deported to the Soviet Union.

Linnas was not reached for comment immediately.

On Tuesday, the Justice Department announced similar action against two other alleged Nazi war criminals who have lived in the United States since 1949.

The department filed a complaint in federal court in Miami against Bohdan Kozly, 56, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and another in Philadelphia against Wolodymir Osidach, 75, of Philadelphia.

The department contends both men were Ukrainian police officers in German-occupied Poland in World War II and took part in the persecution, beatings and murder of unarmed civilians.

"I don't care what you write," said Kozly. "I hate to be rude, but I've had it. I am innocent."

Osidach could not be immediately reached for comment.

Sources, asking not to be named, said it likely will be at least six months before trials can begin and, if the government is successful, even longer before the department can move to actually deport the men.

The government's complaints contend Kozly claimed to have been a tailor's apprentice and a farm helper during the war when he sought entry into the United States.

Kozly became a naturalized citizen in 1956.

12-Year-Old Suspected In Stabbing Of Friend

DALLAS (AP) — A 12-year-old boy told police "the only friend I have" was stabbed to death during a tussle over $3.75 worth of dog food, flea repellent and heating pads allegedly taken during a neighborhood burglary, police said.

The victim, Erwin Keith James of Dallas, was dead on arrival at Parkland Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon. He had been stabbed once in the chest with a 6-inch boning knife.

The 12-year-old remains in police custody, pending a hearing in juvenile court.

Homicide Sgt. Joe Poe said James and the 12-year-old boy broke into a house in their South Dallas neighborhood and took three heating pads, a sack of dog food, a can of flea spray and a can of flea powder Tuesday afternoon. Poe said the total value of the loot was about $3.75.

He said when the boys returned to the James' resident they "began arguing when splitting up what they got."

The argument grew into a fight, Poe said, and James' 15-year-old sister, Carrie Lynn Hayes, watched while her brother was stabbed.

Another sister, Marsha Hayes, said James was a hard working boy, a middle school student who mowed lawns and collected bottles for spending money.

"He was a nice boy," she said. "But he did little things he wasn't supposed to do."

She said her brother had been told not to associate with the 12-year-old suspect.

"We told him we didn't allow him in this house."

Youth Division investigator Jane Adair said the young suspect told her James was "the only friend I have."

"I think he may be in shock as much as anything over the events that happened," she said.

"I don't think he's even realized his friend is dead."

Inquest Hearing Slated In Area Woman's Death

An inquest jury next month will hear evidence and rule on what killed a 26-year-old Shallowater woman, whose decomposed body was found Saturday.

Doris Christy appeared to have been dead about two months when her body was discovered by a jogger. The woman's body was under a piece of farm machinery in a clump of weeds about two-tenths of a mile east of Shallowater on FM 1294.

Relatives told Lubbock County sheriff's deputies that Mrs. Christy had been missing since Sept. 1 and that a missing persons report had been filed Sept. 8 with the Lubbock police department.

Deputies found a .22-caliber pistol under Mrs. Christy's head, but said initial investigations by Lubbock authorities and Texas Rangers did not indicate foul play was involved in the death.

However, Shallowater Justice of the Peace Dardie Williamson said she requested the Dec. 3 inquest to obtain as much information as possible concerning Mrs. Christy's death.

Man Assaulted At City Club

Donnie R. Rowlett, 21, of 2510 Ave. K was in Health Sciences Center Hospital today with injuries he reportedly suffered early this morning in a fight at a club at 28th Street and Avenue K.

Rowlett told Lubbock police he was at the club when he saw a man strike a woman. He said when he intervened the man and two of his companions turned on him.

Reports indicate the victim staggered to a patrol car outside the club and told police he had been in a fight with three white men. He was being treated today for a possible broken jaw, multiple bruises and a four-inch cut on the left ear. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Rowlett described his assailants as between 18 and 25, of medium build and with black hair. However, the club owner told police the victim had been involved in an altercation with a white man, about six feet tall with long brown hair.

The owner said he told the two men to leave the nightclub after the fight.

Lane Kirkland Seeks Changes In AFL-CIO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lane Kirkland, despite his professed allegiance to the durable policies of George Meany, is quickly bringing some startling changes to the AFL-CIO.

Within 24 hours of succeeding Meany as president of the labor federation, Kirkland broke twice with his mentor: —He openly beckoned the outcast Teamsters and other independent unions to return to the AFL-CIO.

—He suggested that the all-male executive council, which sets policy for the 13.6 million-member federation, abandon a long-time custom that effectively has blocked women from serving on the council.

Officials of the AFL-CIO, which ended its convention here Tuesday, believe Kirkland, 57, is only beginning to change the course of the organization, which in its first 24 years knew only Meany as president.

A faithful student of Meany's for 30 years, Kirkland is expected to put considerable emphasis on organizing non-union workers, an area Meany largely ignored. During his tenure, the unionized portion of the nation's workforce fell steadily.

Kirkland is more conscious of organized labor's public image than was his gruff, 85-year-old predecessor, and likely will cultivate better relations with the media, particularly television.

He has promised to be an efficient business manager and streamline the organization by bringing in young talent, modern technology and new ideas.

He is encouraging debate and disagreement during meetings with his executive council, which used to defer to Meany on important issues.

Kirkland is planting seeds of change even as he insists he is committed to the programs and policies established long ago by Meany. When Kirkland discusses what appears to be a new policy, he notes that it has his predecessor's support.

Some colleagues say Kirkland believes his views are akin to those of Meany on all major issues. But others say the new labor leader is unwilling to acknowledge a break in policy out of the deep respect and awe he has for Meany, whom Kirkland regards as a father-figure.

"This convention is a tribute to Meany, and no one, least of all Lane, wants it marred by dissension or a repudiation of past policies," explained one union president.

Another official said, "George's spirit is too thick in the air. Nobody wants to appear anti-Meany."

One of the most significant changes occurred during the summer, when Kirkland, then secretary-treasurer, was running the federation in the absence of the ailing Meany.

It was Kirkland who negotiated an agreement with the Carter administration to end a year of bitter fighting between President Carter and Meany.

Under the accord, the administration has made organized labor a partner in the development of economic policy in exchange for labor cooperation with the government's anti-inflation efforts.

Both sides hailed the accord as unprecedented and a testament to Meany's leadership. In private, both sides said the agreement was a tribute to Kirkland's skills as a negotiator, and said it would have been much more difficult — perhaps impossible — to reach were Meany the top bargainer.

"There's no question in our mind that Lane is easier to deal with," said one administration official. "We believe he'll give organized labor a whole new image."

For a start, Kirkland vowed upon his election as AFL-CIO president Monday to urge all independent unions back under the AFL-CIO's roof, including the two-million-member Teamsters, which Meany expelled in 1967 on corruption charges and refused to readmit ever since.

On Tuesday, Kirkland announced another proposed change that would go a long way toward changing the image of the federation's leadership as a group of "old men."

Russia Wary Of U.S. Military Buildups

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet leaders are worried the U.S. debate over the SALT Arms control treaty is spawning a new impetus in the United States to build up the nation's military might, Soviet sources say.

Moscow sees as particularly threatening the administration's effort to deploy in Western Europe Pershing-2 and cruise missiles capable of hitting targets well within the Soviet Union.

"You are trying to tilt the European balance in your favor, and we think that it is unequal," the Soviet sources told a

PLASTIC NOSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Danish astronomer Tycho Brahe (1546-1601) wore an artificial nose of silver and gold. His real nose is presumed to have been lost in a duel. The story of Brahe's discovery of a new star, disproving Aristotle's theory that the heavens were "fixed," is re-enacted in a new science film series, "The Search for Solutions." The actor portraying Brahe wears a silver-colored plastic nose.

Corporations' Profits Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Profits of U.S. corporations rebounded in the third quarter while the nation's overall economy proved even more resistant to recession than first believed, the government says.

However, government economists said Tuesday the much-anticipated recession still is on the horizon.

And they cited blemishes in the corporate profit picture that could portend reduced incentives for businesses to invest and for people to buy stock.

The Commerce Department reported that corporate after-tax profits in July, August and September increased from the second quarter at an annual rate of 6.2 percent. They had declined about 2 percent in the previous quarter.

The department also said the gross national product, after being adjusted for inflation, increased at an annual rate of 3.5 percent last quarter, rather than 2.4 percent as originally estimated.

That easily offset a 2.3 percent decline in the second quarter.

The GNP — the total output of goods and services — was at an annual rate of $1,434.4 billion in the last quarter compared with $1,422.3 billion in the second quarter, the department said. Both figures are adjusted for inflation to give an accurate comparison in actual growth.

"The upward revision will delay the advent of the recession to some extent," said Commerce Department economist William Cox. "But it's still a bounce back from the second quarter's depressed level."

That second quarter decline caused many economists to say the nation had entered a recession.

Many economists believe the GNP will fall during this quarter due largely to rising oil prices, the eroding income of Americans and tight-money policies that have pushed interest rates skyward.

The 6.2 percent increase in after-tax corporate profits was calculated on raw figures that went from an annual rate of $139.3 billion to $147.9 billion, the Commerce Department said. Before-tax profits in July, August and September increased from $227.9 billion to $242.5 billion, a 6.4 percent rise.

A large portion of the increase was due to sharply higher overseas profits by U.S. oil companies and banks, the Commerce Department said.

However, U.S. automakers suffered large earnings losses in the third quarter, said Kenneth E. Petrick, a Commerce Department economist.

Many other companies that produce long-lasting consumer items also recorded a decline in profits, he said.

Corporations use their profits basically in three ways: to replace inventories and worn-out equipment; to pay stockholder dividends; and as retained earnings that can go to expand their business.

Because of inflation, Cox said, much of the third-quarter profits went to replace inventories and equipment at much higher prices than the original items had cost.

"After taking these inflation-ridden costs into account," he said, "companies had slightly less profit remaining (than they did in the second quarter) for distribution to stockholders and for investment in expansion projects."

Government Could Force States To Obey Conservation Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state energy-saving plans requested by the administration are voluntary, but could be made mandatory simply by a presidential emergency declaration, officials say.

Deputy Energy Secretary John Sawhill said Tuesday the administration is pressing for the voluntary conservation plans while also working on ways to make them enforceable under a new law.

President Carter asked the states to devise conservation plans after he announced a cutoff of Iranian oil imports last week.

The law, which also provides presidential authority to ration gasoline, requires states to submit plans to meet federal conservation targets assigned them.

Once the law is invoked, the government can enforce its own energy-saving measures in any state that submits an unacceptable plan or whose plan is found wanting during a trial period.

Unlike rationing, which can be triggered only by a 20 percent gasoline shortfall, the conservation program can be imposed on a presidential declaration of "a severe energy supply disruption."

Energy Secretary Charles Duncan said last week individual state conservation targets will be announced by the end of November.

Sawhill spoke of a national oil reduction target "that will be the basis for state targets" for reducing heating oil and gasoline demand.

Department spokesman Maria Ohrenko said that while the requested state plans are voluntary, "the plans could be used as the basis for mandatory plans if the act is put into place."

"We have the authority to use the law, but we're not at the trigger point yet," she said.

Utah Senator Appalled By Nader's Suggestion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jake Garn has labeled consumer advocate Ralph Nader's suggestion that the death of Garn's first wife may have been caused by a faulty automobile design "one of the cruelest comments you have ever made."

Nader raised the possibility Tuesday during a Senate Banking Committee hearing on proposed government loan guarantees for the financially ailing Chrysler Corp.

"What kind of a human being are you?" Garn asked Nader while other committee members sat in stunned silence.

Nader replied that he considered himself to be "the kind of human being who would like to see lives saved on the highways."

Garn's first wife, Hazel, died Aug. 17, 1976, when the car she was driving overturned near Sunol, Neb. Three of the couple's four children were in the car but escaped serious injury. The Garns had been married for 19 years.

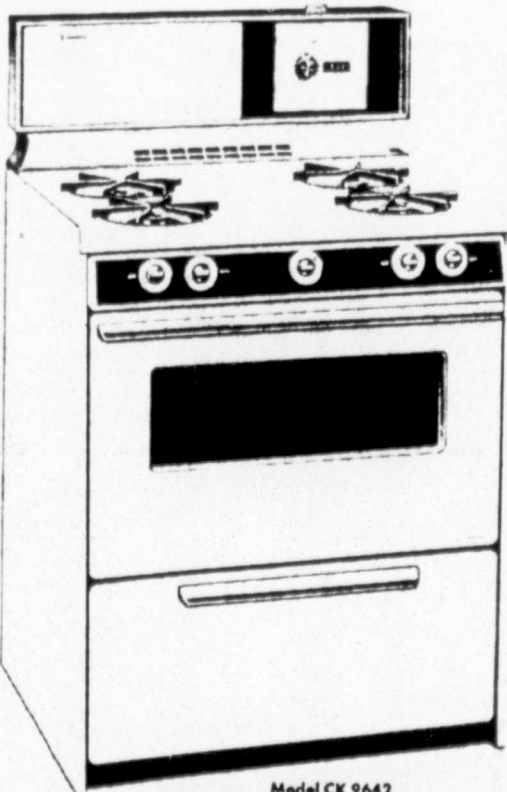

Nader, criticizing Chrysler officials for blaming some of their economic woes on the cost of government safety regulations, said "some senators' personal tragedies might not have occurred" if safety standards had been more stringent.

Dow Jones Average Declines

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were lower in moderate trading today, after an initial rush of selling near the opening.

Traders said confusion and worries about spreading turmoil in the oil-rich Middle East prompted a sharp selloff shortly after the New York Stock Exchange opened.

But it gradually recovered some of that loss in less hectic trading. By noon, the Dow Jones industrial was off 7.26 at 801.96.

Big Board volume was 17.39 million shares at noon, compared with 15.22 million in the previous session.

Analysts said outbreaks of violence in Saudi Arabia, where a religious sect seized a mosque in Mecca Tuesday and attacks on U.S. facilities in Pakistan by angry mobs underscored concerns about growing trouble in the oil-rich Middle East.

Oil issues were actively traded and generally lower today. Gulf slipped 1/4 to 35 1/2. Exxon was off 1/4 to 57 1/2 and Texaco lost 1/4 to 29 1/2.

K Mart, up 1/4 to 23 1/2, topped the noon NYSE most active list. Trading included a 226,600-block share at 23 1/2.

Overall, losing issues outnumbered gainers by a 3-to-1 margin on the NYSE. The market's composite index of all listed stock fell 23 to 58.86.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.1 to 219.50.

Dollar Falls; Gold Rises

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar slumped in Europe this morning while the price of gold bullion rose sharply in markets dominated by the violent events in the Middle East and Pakistan.

Psychological factors alone seem to be dominating trading, first uncertainty over future oil pricing and the likely solution to the hostage situation in Tehran, one European money trader said.

Mid-morning dollar rates compared to late Tuesday were: Zurich — 1.6385 Swiss francs, down from 1.6421. Paris — 4.1220 French francs, down from 4.1370.

Gold, which has been off the boil since soaring to an all-time high $444 an ounce in Zurich on Oct. 2, rose quickly this morning in reaction to the latest events in Tehran, the shootout and siege at the holy mosque in Mecca and reports of the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan.

The metal was quoted at a median price of $395.50 per troy ounce in Zurich at mid-morning, up from $388.

Israeli Air Opposition To Program

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's capital erupted in violent protests over the government's drastic "beat inflation" program and demonstrators demanded funds be used to fight poverty rather than create Jewish settlements.

Police Tuesday used batons and tear gas to disperse hundreds of protesters who stoned passing cars and burned tires and garbage trolleys to protest a 50-percent hike in the price of bread, milk, and other foods and a slash in government food subsidies as a money-saving move.

Police said there were several injuries on each side and at least 17 demonstrators were arrested.

The frenzied demonstrators, who tied up traffic and caused property damage, shouted "Begin, go home!" and "Down with price hikes and (Jewish) settlements!" when confronted by police in full riot gear.

The protests, which took place simultaneously in five different Jerusalem locations, were organized by the Israeli Black Panthers, a militant group of Oriental Jews pressing for economic equality.

The violent demonstrations coincided with the start of a Knesset (parliament) debate on the new economic measures approved Monday and designed to curb Israel's 150 percent annual inflation rate.

The debate was put off to today after lawmakers defeated three no-confidence motions over plans by Prime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition government to expel Nablus Mayor Bassam Shaka and boost Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank at a cost of $4.7 billion.

The no-confidence motions were presented by the Labor Party, the largest opposition group, and the tiny Communist and Leftist Shelli parties.

Shaka, 48, has been on a hunger strike in an Israeli jail since Friday to protest his detention and threatened expulsion. His wife appealed the deportation order and a Supreme Court hearing is scheduled for Thursday.

Begin, responding to an appeal from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the matter is before the Israeli Supreme Court. Begin also gave a similar explanation in a letter protesting Friday's U.N. General Assembly vote asking Israel to rescind the expulsion.

In both messages, Begin said the deportation resulted from Shaka's support of the Palestine Liberation Organization in the occupied West Bank. He said evidence will be presented proving that Shaka has acted for the PLO.

Zambian Paper Warns Whites Residents

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — A government-owned newspaper today warned Zambia's whites they would bear the consequences of continued Zimbabwe Rhodesian attacks against Zambia.

"We must warn that if the British do not tame the rebels (Zimbabwe Rhodesian troops) and stop these acts of sabotage the war will be fought at the doorsteps of the white people in the country," the Daily Mail said in an editorial.

"It will be a clean-up exercise and there will be no commander to order the cease-fire."

The editorial came one day after President Kenneth Kaunda ordered a full mobilization of his armed forces in response to stepped up air and ground attacks by Zimbabwe Rhodesian forces against the Zambian bridges and roads that link the landlocked nation with the outside world.

The Daily Mail splashed the headline "War Alert" across the front page while the Times of Zambia, owned by the ruling United National Independence Party, carried the headline: "It Is Full War."

It was the prayer of every Zambian that the London talks aimed at bringing peace to Zimbabwe would succeed, the Daily Mail said. "But... We must warn the British not to push us too far, because if we react to the activities of their rebels we can turn the white man's happiness in this country into sorrow overnight."

"If we were barbarians like the rebels and their supporters, we would demand the life of one white man for one bridge destroyed," the paper said.

Some whites were openly concerned about their safety and considered plans to leave the country. One diplomatic mission advised its subjects to keep a low profile during the crisis.

Pierre Trudeau Resigns Post

OTTAWA (AP) — Former Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau announced his resignation as Liberal Party leader today and called for a leadership convention of the party.

Trudeau, 60, whose Liberals lost in the May elections to the Progressive Conservatives of Prime Minister Joe Clark, became prime minister in 1968 upon the retirement of Lester Bowles Pearson and won elections in 1968, 1972 and 1974.

Trudeau's sudden announcement was made at a hastily called news conference, but he gave no reason for his resignation other than to say the party needed a new leader. It was believed he would keep the party reins until March, his suggested date for a conference to choose a new leader.

During his career Trudeau fought to keep French-speaking Quebec united with the Canadian Federation.

Writer Sees Limitations Of Business Management For U.S. Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — It's one of those oft-said statements about all cities, but especially about this one with all its fiscal woes.

Something like: "If only we could get some real managers from private business to come in and clean up the mess in City Hall. Then this city wouldn't be in the sorry shape it's in."

Many cities beside New York have been sold on that view. It became particularly attractive as many declining cities lost jobs and people. It became common to blame the urban crisis on waste and mismanagement in City Hall.

And corporations in those cities, eager to create a better business climate, were convinced that private management techniques could do much to save the cities.

David Rogers, a professor of management at New York University, is one person who doubts it.

After spending much of the past decade consulting for the Economic Development Corp., a business-backed group in New York which believes very much in the above philosophy, Rogers wrote a book in 1978 in which he laid out his skepticism.

It's been a year since that book, "Can Business Management Save the Cities" was published, and if anything, Rogers says he is even more pessimistic.

City governments — in fact government at all levels — spend millions of tax dollars on business consultants, with very little thought to what good it really does.

"The point of view that business management can save cities has a long history. There has been a fair amount of use of business consultants in New York and in other cities, and I don't think there is an awareness of the complexities."

"I think it's important to indicate what its serious limitations are," Rogers says.

Rogers makes several points: —Business groups which offer advice on how to straighten out tangled city bureaucracies are practically doomed to failure if they agree with the city in advance not to go public with their findings. And such agreements are commonplace.

Rogers contends, for instance, that when the EDC tried to work on the inside to improve the management of New York City schools, the consultants found themselves completely swallowed up and co-opted by a city agency whose politics were beyond the EDC's comprehension.

Rogers insists that business can make its impact on city management best felt by joining forces with other groups and agitating publicly from the outside.

—Private business techniques lend themselves best to small cities, and small bureaucracies. The goals should be limited and relatively short-term, and should deal with technical aspects of city services, for example, processing defendants or teaching students.

—What really ails most cities has nothing to do with management. While true that mismanagement is widespread in cities, the root of the urban disease has much more to do with policy and political decisions relating, for instance, to collective bargaining agreements.

As an example, study after study by business consultants has urged New York to have two-man crews on garbage trucks and to use private garbage firms. But the failure to do so is a political failure, not a management failure.

—The value of bringing in outside business consultants to cure city ills has been grossly oversold — by city politicians, by the consultants themselves, and by the press.

In fact, says Rogers, the attitude some business consultants bring with them in tackling complex city problems borders on naive.

"A lot of these consultants have a kind of pure-efficiency notion. They come into a politically charged situation and think, 'We're going to save the day.'"

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Whatever happened to Murray Franklin, the comedian-producer who made stars out of Don Rickles and Roberta Sherwood at his laugh club in Miami Beach a couple of decades ago? Does he hear from either of them? — R. Rubin, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: Yes — Roberta contacts Franklin whenever she's within hearing distance. And Don mentions Franklin's name on TV network shows whenever he gets a chance to do so. Franklin, meanwhile, got back into action only recently hosting the minipub in the Voyager Motel in Miami. There he still unleashes a torrent of one-liners such as: "A psychiatrist is a doctor who's scared of the sight of blood!" When asked if he has an ulcer, Franklin snaps: "No, I don't have an ulcer — I'm just a carrier!" To a heckler at the bar, the host (always ready with a quip on his lip) countered an insult with a one-liner — "I don't like you and I always will!"

Personal Opinion: We think the most disgusting sight we've ever witnessed on television was that of demonstrators shouting and carrying signs reading "Death to the Shah" right while the cancer-ridden exiled ruler was fighting for his life in an operating room of a New York hospital. It was a new low in hatred (whether you like or loathe the shah). Fortunately, the patient couldn't hear a thing because he was under anesthesia.

Q: I was in Paris years ago when the police raided clubs which featured cancan dancers. Got any idea what the object was? — A. Ruter, Jersey City.

A: The girls, though they wore ruffled skirts, sexy black stockings and black garters, sometimes did their high-kicking routines with a few, "accidentally on purpose," forgetting to slip on their panties.

Q: Hasn't Johnny Carson become cynical about the institution of marriage? — Cynthia D., Seattle.

A: Not marriage. Just the first two girls he happened to marry. Carped Carson in his Vegas nightclub act: "I still can't figure out something. When Joanne and I first married, I had to back her up constantly on the simplest mathematical matters. She was just a lousy student of adding and subtracting. She claimed it always gave her a splitting headache. Then, after we separated, we wound up in her lawyer's office and she displayed a computer brain and mathematical genius of an Einstein. My first wife wasn't too bad either. She and Joanne should start a savings and loan company!"

Q: I'm curious. Do they employ kids as stand-ins for movie and TV shows featuring youngsters? — Nettie Weiler, Forest Hills, N.Y.

A: Not usually, because of the tough child labor laws. Instead, adults get the assignments, if they're short of stature and work. An example is Martha Lane, 29-year-old divorcee who stands in for both 10-year-old Bret Shryer and 9-year-old Tracey Gold on NBC's "Shirley" series. "Being short is a tremendous professional advantage for me," says Lane. "It's less expensive for producers to use someone like me. That's why, during the two years I've been doing this kind of work, I've been the stand-in for 15 different kids on TV." (Note: Stand-ins are exactly what the name implies. They're never seen on the screen. They're strictly anonymous.)

Q: Who was it who said, "Kissing a man without a mustache is like eating an egg without salt"? — Mrs. H. Dutton, St. Louis.

A: Rudyard Kipling originally put it this way, "Being kissed by a man who didn't wax his mustache was like eating an egg without salt."

Communist Party Picks Presidential Candidate

NEW YORK (AP) — The Communist Party USA has chosen Gus Hall as its presidential candidate for 1980 and black activist Angela Davis as his vice presidential running mate.

The nominations, decided at a party convention here and announced this week, mark the third presidential bid for Hall, who is 68 and in his 20th year as the party's general secretary.

Now hospitalized with a spinal problem, Hall hopes to begin campaigning soon. He drew some 25,000 votes in 13 states in 1972 and nearly 60,000 in 19 states in 1976.

Miss Davis, 35, is making her first run for public office. She is the former University of California philosophy teacher who was acquitted of murder, kidnapping and criminal conspiracy in connection with an unsuccessful Los Angeles courtroom escape attempt by three black convicts in 1970.

Four persons, including a judge and two of the convicts, died in the attempt. Hall, who once served eight years in prison on charges of conspiring to teach and advocate forcible overthrow of the government, has recently called for resisting plans to send some 550 new U.S. missiles to Europe. He favors approval of SALT II by the Senate.

Another leftist group, the Workers World, announced this week it will run party editor Deirdre Griswold for president and black activist Larry Holmes for vice president. It is the party's first bid for national office.

Forecasts Can Hurt Campaigns

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Given the lessons of campaigns past, presidential candidates and their managers should have learned by now that forecasting the outcome of a political contest can magnify a defeat and take the edge off a victory.

They haven't.
For some reason, inside every campaign is a would-be oddsmaker. The wise ones try to convince the world that their candidates will be delighted to limp home second or third in this or that presidential primary election.

But enthusiasm often overcomes wisdom. It's happening again in the 1980 campaign, and the primary season hasn't even started.

The perils that await the overly optimistic oddsmaker are dramatized in each campaign. Nevertheless, there will be an ample crop of forecasts this time.

Some will magnify defeats, as Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. did by counting too heavily on victory in an otherwise meaningless straw poll in Maine. Baker lost to former CIA Director George Bush.

Some will help take the edge off smaller-than-expected victories, and make them look like defeats. That happened dramatically two campaigns ago, when Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's manager in New Hampshire said anything less than 50 percent of the vote in that opening primary would be grounds for suicide. Muskie won with 44 percent. His campaign went downhill from that point.

Last campaign, Ronald Reagan had problems with forecasts that exceeded performance. His people in New Hampshire began by forecasting a landslide. When Reagan lost by a handful of votes to then-President Gerald R. Ford, his claim of satisfaction at having come that close to an incumbent was undermined by the early claims that he was going to win.

In the 1976 Florida primary Reagan's campaign manager, E.L. (Tommy) Thomas, forecast a 2-1 victory over Ford, then toned it down to 55 percent. Ford won with 53 percent of the vote, and Reagan once again said he was delighted with the outcome.

Thomas is still working for the Reagan cause, and he's still into forecasting. He said weeks ago that Reagan would win 2-1 over former Texas Gov. John B. Connally in last Saturday's Republican straw vote in Florida. Once again, the initial forecast was hedged later on, with the Reagan camp saying the former California governor would win by 8 to 10 percentage points. He did.

While the initial Reagan claim was overly optimistic, the Connally people got into forecasting, too, and then had to admit they were disappointed at the final numbers.

Connally's state chairman, Ander

Crenshaw, said on Oct. 20 that the Texas was going to score "a major upset victory" in the straw vote, and would demonstrate dramatic slippage in Reagan's strength.

Crenshaw cited the original Reagan victory claim, and said that anything less than 50 percent of the vote would be a serious defeat for Reagan.

Reagan got 36.4 percent. Connally was second, but nearly 10 points behind, and only 5 points ahead of the third-place Bush.

"But you're always supposed to offer your chair to a lady!"

Britain, Canada Capture Television Emmy Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — British television, cited for excellence in drama, documentary and the performing arts, has won three 1979 International Emmy Awards, while the Canadian Broadcasting Co. has taken one for the popular arts.

The winners, announced here this week at the seventh annual awards gala of the International Council of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, were chosen from a field of 79 entries from 14 nations.

"The Secret Hospital," a two-part program by Yorkshire Television Ltd. which revealed mistreatment, cruelty and torture at British mental hospitals and their effects on a patient, was the winner in the documentary field. The program was produced and directed by John Willis, executive producers were John Fairley and Michael Deakin.

The British Broadcasting Co. took the drama award for its production of "On Giants Shoulders," a true story of a family which adopted a thalidomide child and struggled to help him overcome his handicap.

The film, based on the book by Marjorie Wallace and Michael Robson, was produced by Mark Shivas and dramatized by William Humble and director Anthony Simmons.

Winning the performing arts award was Allegro Films, which produced "Elegies for the Deaths of Three Spanish Poets," a film based on composer Cristobal Halffter's three memorial pieces on poets Antonio Machado, Miguel Hernandez and Federico Garcia Lorca.

Jim McConn Re-Elected In Houston

HOUSTON (AP)— Mayor Jim McConn withstood a bitter verbal attack from one of his chief critics, City Councilman Louis Macey, to win a second two-year term and will preside over a council containing the first woman and first Hispanic in Houston's history.

McConn did what he had to do in this nonpartisan runoff — keep his support solid in the white middle-income precincts and pickup a giant share of the voters in the black and Hispanic sections.

In some black areas, McConn won as much as 80 percent of the vote.

Macey drew most of his strength from the affluent and Republican strongholds.

Although there were no party designations in the election, Macey had the backing of most GOP voters, while McConn was the choice in the Democratic precincts.

With 346 of 355 precincts reporting the vote was:

McConn 87,033, Macey 68,653.

Although the mayor's race, with its sharp exchanges between the two candidates, took the spotlight, the runoff changed the face of the Houston City Council.

Two women won council seats. Never before had a woman served on the governing body of this, the nation's fifth largest city.

Eleanor Tinsley, former president of the Houston School Board, stunned incumbent Frank E. Mann, a 20-year veteran, by some 13,000 votes.

Christin Hartung, a 38-year-old former county judge's aide, defeated incumbent executive Don Hogan, 37.

The face-lifting actually began in the Nov. 6 general election.

State Rep. Ben Reyes became the first Hispanic to serve on the council and the black representation rose from one to three.

One other incumbent, Johnny Goyen, easily won re-election Tuesday.

About 25 percent of the 666,000 registered voters marked ballots.

McConn said of the outcome, "This was a smashing victory that indicates the confidence in the McConn administration. I am looking forward to working with the new council."

In the runoff campaign, McConn was endorsed by the three black and one Hispanic councilmen-elect.

This apparently turned most of the vote received by Leonel Castillo in the first election into the McConn camp.

Castillo, former city controller who resigned recently as commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, received 23.6 percent of the vote Nov. 6.

Macey accused McConn of foot-dragging on the big problems facing Houston — a rising crime rate, poor city services, pot hole-marked streets, and a sluggish mass transit system.

McConn said progress had been made in the past two years and more would be made if he was given the time.

Macey also charged McConn with trying to tag him as "anti-black."

The change in the council came after the Justice Department ruled the city in violation of the Voting Rights Act because recently annexed areas were diluting minority voting strength.

Houston residents then voted in August to enlarge the council from eight to 14 members, with nine elected on a single district basis and five at-large. Previously there were eight council members, all elected at-large.

urgency increased protection for American diplomatic facilities after first reports of an armed attack on the Grand Mosque in Mecca.

In spite of the show of strength, the Pentagon insisted the United States has not yet ordered a military alert in the deepening crisis over the capture of American hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

State Department officials Tuesday said Carter will consider using military force if Iran's revolutionary regime orders trials for the 49 Americans still held captive.

The dramatic escalation in the war of words began when Khomeini warned the hostages may be tried as spies if the United States refuses to hand over ailing Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. In the past, trials by Khomeini's Moslem revolutionary courts have led to the swift execution by firing squads of hundreds of Iranians.

In a speech over Iran's state radio, Khomeini accused the remaining captives of being "proven" spies, dispelling any optimism in Washington over the freeing of 13 black and women hostages.

A grim-looking Carter responded by taking a break in his Thanksgiving sojourn at the nearby Camp David presidential retreat for an hour and a half of talks in Washington.

After the meeting with top military and diplomatic advisers, he personally cleared the toughest American statement so far in what he has called the worst crisis of his presidency.

The White House statement warned that putting the Americans on trial "would be a flagrant violation of international law and the government of Iran would bear full responsibility for any ensuing consequences."

"The government of Iran must recognize the gravity of the situation it has created," the statement said.

It said the United States is "seeking every peaceful solution" to the 18-day crisis, but bluntly warned Iran of "the other remedies available to the United States."

"Such remedies are explicitly recognized in the charter of the United Nations," the White House said in a statement.

But Carter left it to State Department officials to say he was referring to Article 51, Chapter 7, of the U.N. Charter, which says each member of the world organization has "the inherent right of self-defense."

The charter also says a member nation can take "appropriate action by land, sea or air forces" to protect itself.

"Nothing in the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations," the provision says.

Under international law, attacks against individual citizens of a nation can be considered attacks against the nation as a whole.

In previous statements, the White House insisted that a military operation was not being contemplated for fear of endangering the lives of the hostages.

Iranian Militants Stage Anti-American Rallies saying Washington could not get others to join such an economic boycott.

The threats came as hundreds of thousands of Iranians converged on the occupied U.S. Embassy where 49 remaining American hostages faced the threat of an Islamic trial as "proven" spies.

The massive anti-American rallies that swept the capital and provincial cities nationwide came one day after Carter hinted he might order military action if diplomacy fails to free the captives.

The demonstration outside the embassy, where protesters chanted anti-American slogans in support of the militant Moslem students in control of the compound, was the largest anti-American protest since the shah was ousted in February.

The hundreds of thousands of demonstrators came from surrounding villages around the capital and villages farther south on the road to Qom, Khomeini's headquarters.

Khomeini, in a nationwide speech Tuesday, said if Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi was not returned to Iran, "it is possible they (the hostages) may be put on trial and Carter will know the consequences if they are put on trial."

He said Carter calls the hostages diplomats, but the 79-year-old religious leader labeled the Americans held for the 18th day as "these whose spying has been proven according to evidence."

In the past, trials by the Moslem revolutionary courts have led to the swift execution by firing squads of hundreds of Iranians.

Thirteen American hostages have been freed since Monday, but 49 Amer-cans and 40 non-Americans remain in the compound. State Department officials said Carter will consider using military force if Iran's revolutionary regime orders trials for the remaining Americans, but the Pentagon insisted the United States has not yet ordered a military alert in the lengthy war of nerves.

mosque and several Saudi policemen were killed in fighting during the takeover.

The attackers arrived unarmed, as though to enter the mosque to pray, at dawn Tuesday. Some time later, a truck drove up to the mosque with a load of weapons. The conspirators seized the arms and immediately began firing at the unarmed guards, the sources said.

Out of respect for the holy site, armed Saudi troops usually keep away from the vicinity.

The Japanese Embassy in Riyadh said about 10 persons had been killed.

A Kuwaiti newspaper, Al Rai Al am, said Saudi sources in Tunisia told it that one of the dead was "a former official personality" who tried to convince them to leave.

The Saudi news agency, quoting an Interior Ministry statement, called the invaders "religious deviators." It said they joined a crowd of Kuwaiti pilgrims for dawn prayers. "then presented one of their ranks to be the 'awaited Mahdi' and demanded at gunpoint that those present recognize him as such."

Sunni Moslems, the majority Islamic sect, believe the Mahdi, or restorer of the faith, will make a messianic appearance at the end of time to establish universal Islam. The Shiites, who number less than 15 percent of Islam, believe he will be a former caliph who will return at the end of this world to take control of Islam.

Khomeini, supreme leader of Iran's Shiites since his successful revolution against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, has been criticized by Saudi leaders and other moderate Moslems for inciting the Nov. 4 seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the holding of American hostages by Iranian students.

In Washington, State Department officials said earlier they had unconfirmed reports that the gunmen in Mecca were Iranian Shiites. They said American diplomats in Saudi Arabia reported "the violence appears to be confined to the mosque and Mecca itself is quiet."

The raiders struck on the last day of the Islamic year 1399, during a religious period when Moslems traditionally go to Mecca and the Grand Mosque.

Reports from Tunis said the invaders also occupied the Kaaba, which sits in the center of the mosque courtyard and is

Moslems Enter Century Of Islamic Reawakening

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The world's 800 million Moslems entered Islam's 15th century today with a new fervor fueled by oil dollars and manifested in Iran's radical fundamentalism and activism among Moslems from the Philippines to Morocco.

"Allah willing, it will be a century of Islamic reawakening and unity, of a re-discovery of our Islamic identity, after a century of painful servility and dissociation," a leading scholar in Beirut prayed.

Islam's 14th century did not start out favorably for Moslems, but it ended with fresh expectations born of the oil wealth in the Islamic heartland and the toppling of a powerful secular dictator, the Shah of Iran.

The collapse of the Ottoman Empire after World War I marked a sad decline for the Islamic Empire, which once spread its message of submission to the will of God from the Himalayas to Spain. European colonial powers controlled the Islamic East until the early 1950s, when the seeds of Moslem nationalism began to flower.

Today, many Moslems complain about the "great letdown" they felt at the failure of European ideals to aid the Moslem world and they are turning back to Islam for a new identity. "Britain and France had been seen as a shining example which many Moslem countries, mainly Turkey, tried to emulate," Sheik Abdullah Ayali of the Lebanese University explained. "By the middle of the century Moslems witnessed the dismaying downfall of the British Empire and the French dominance. As we enter the 15th century, we realize that our divine creed, Islam, is the only hope left to us for survival."

Leftist ideologies also appear to be frowned upon by the emerging generation of Moslems who "tend to invest undivided hopes in Allah (God), the teachings of the Prophet (Mohammed) and their resolve to relive the dawn of Islam," the sheik said.

Moslems observe a lunar calendar that dates back to 622 A.D., the year of the hejira, or flight, when Mohammed fled from the Arabian city of Mecca to Medina to avoid persecution and to propagate the new faith.

Holy men — the ulama, or those who know — kept a close watch on the sky Tuesday night for the first sighting of the faint crescent of the new moon ushering in Moharram, the first month of the lunar year.

New Year's Day dawned on ferment in the Moslem world. Iran's Shiite Moslems, a minority sect making up less than 15 percent of Islam, have overthrown the shah and are challenging the United States by holding 49 Americans hostage for the return of the deposed, ailing monarch.

Hostages To Return Home Thanksgiving

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — The 13 Americans undergoing medical checkups here after being freed from the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran will be flown back to the United States on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, Undersecretary of State David Newsome said today.

Newsome said the families of the 13 Americans would be flown to Andrews Air Force base outside Washington, D.C., to meet the flight from Frankfurt. He said he did not know whether President Carter, who has been vacationing at Camp David, would be on hand to welcome them.

The first three Americans arrived here Monday, followed by 10 more on Tuesday. They had all been held since Iranian militants overran the embassy

Nov. 4. Those freed are women and blacks released by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, leader of the Iranian revolution.

The Iranians are still holding 49 Americans, and they are threatening to try them as spies unless the United States returns the deposed Shah of Iran.

Newsome said the freed hostages were in reasonably good physical condition although "psychologically it has been very difficult."

"For 16 days they were cut off from any knowledge of what was happening in the outside, including efforts to obtain their release," Newsome told a news conference.

He declined to say whether their Iranian captors had subjected the hostages to special psychological pressures, and would give no details on what American officials had learned from the hostages of their treatment.

Newsome said the brief stay at the U.S. Air Force Base hospital here had been planned because authorities were not certain about the condition of the hostages before they left Tehran.

"This whole experience is an unusual situation for the United States," Newsome said. "The holding of American citizens in a hostage situation in a group such as this has been rarely replicated." Some of the hostages were to meet with reporters later today, he said.

The Americans have been housed in a three-story wing of the Air Force hospital located in a quiet German residential neighborhood.

Security at the hospital has been very tight since the first Americans arrived. Military police from the Air Force and Army have been stationed at every entrance to the hospital, stopping all pedestrians and vehicles and admitting only those with U.S. military identification.

One air policeman told a reporter that the freed hostages were instructed to stay away from the windows for security reasons.

American officials said they feared possible demonstrations by Iranians when the Americans were brought to West Germany, but there have been no protests or crowds gathering at the hospital.

Writing in the magazine Al-Hawadess, Galal Kish claimed portents of a Moslem-Christian collision were in the air.

Others disagreed and one commentator accused Kish of "knowingly or unknowingly contributing to twisting the East-West oil war into a Moslem-Christian conflict."

"The oil war could well take on an undue religious tinge in the 15th century if our clergymen resort to beating the drums of jihad (holy war)," said a Moslem professor at the American University of Beirut.

Texas Mother Plans To Meet Released Son In Washington

By United Press International Arie Ruth Walker began a trip today to accomplish something she has dreamed about for almost three weeks — seeing her son again face-to-face.

David Walker, 25, one of the 10 U.S. Embassy hostages flown out of Iran, called his mother at her Prairie View home Tuesday from a U.S. military hospital in West Germany.

"He sounded good. He sounded very good. I felt proud, happy, elated. I thought I would cry but I didn't," Mrs. Walker said.

She said he "asked about his girlfriend."

"I told him she's fine — she's been here (at the Walker house)," said Mrs. Walker.

She said her son, a Marine security guard at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, did not talk about the almost three-week occupation of the embassy by Iranian students.

"I had just two minutes to talk to him so we talked family," she said. "The operator came on (after two minutes)."

"He's fine," said his mother. "He asked how everybody was. I told him and he seemed to be OK. He wanted to know how his sisters and brothers were and everybody back here."

"I told him the good news that I was flying up (to Washington) to see him (on his return to the U.S.). He said, 'That sounds good.' I'm packing now. I'm flying out first thing (this) morning."

Informing that President Carter had ordered a naval task force into the Indian Ocean, Mrs. Walker said, "I don't think that's so good — but I don't know. That's one of the things they (the Iranians) asked not to be done, but maybe he (Carter) thinks they're going to do some of the things they've threatened to do."

"I don't think I would have made that move, but I'm not the government."

In Houston, Patricia Robinson, wife of Air Force Capt. Neal Robinson, 27, said she also received a telephone call Tuesday — from her husband.

She said she felt "just great. Just great. I couldn't express it in words."

Mrs. Robinson said, "He sounded tired but he sounded good, relieved. Of course, he was still very concerned about those who are still there."

"It was a poor reception. It wasn't the best phone connection, so we were

Group Seeks Shah's Return

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A dozen members of the Socialist Workers Party carried signs saying "No Iran War" in front of the federal building in demand that the shah of Iran be returned to his native country as requested by Moslem students holding Americans hostage in Tehran.

Spokesman Anthony Gonzalez, the party's candidate against Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, said the group got favorable responses Tuesday night from passing motorists.

"We got lots of honks but it was all positive. Some people raised their fists in support," Gonzalez said.

"Rather than extradite the shah of Iran, a mass murderer, President Carter offers us higher gas prices, a racist hysteria against 'foreigners' and the danger of a new Vietnam," Gonzalez said. "Americans have nothing to gain from such threats."

He maintained most of the American people agreed that the shah should be deported to Iran.

"The people of the United States don't want another war," said the young Gonzalez.

just yelling at each other."

Mrs. Robinson said she talked with her husband for about 10 minutes and "they still don't know yet" when the freed hostages would be returning home or when she could meet him.

Freed Captives Worry About Friends

WIESBADEN, West Germany (UPI) — The major concern of the "lucky" 13 American hostages freed from the besieged U.S. Embassy in Iran is the fate of their 49 countrymen still being held by militant Moslems.

Officials said the four women and six black hostages released Tuesday enjoyed "a very emotional reunion" at the U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden with the three American hostages who were freed Monday.

But George Sherman, State Department official for Near East and southern Asian affairs, said the joyful reunion, the applause and embraces from the hospital staff did not ease their worries about the captive Americans, now held for the 18th day in Tehran.

"All 13 have uppermost in their minds the release of those friends and colleagues that they left behind in Tehran," he said.

The 10 freed hostages were brought to the hospital Tuesday after a flight from Paris to the Rhein-Main military airbase near Frankfurt. The hostages flew to Orly airport in Paris on an Iran Air flight from Tehran.

Sherman said all were "in excellent spirits, considering what they had been through in the last two weeks."

He said a team of 10 doctors examined the freed hostages and pronounced them healthy, although strained "after a terrible experience for every one of them."

The hostages were debriefed by U.S. military experts to try to assess the prospects for the Americans still held. Sherman said, "I obviously do not need to hide the fact that people in our government are interested in finding out exactly what has been going on in Iran."

The hostages, expected to return home to spend Thanksgiving with their families, are spending their time calling their families from the isolated wing of the wartime Luftwaffe hospital and enjoying what Sherman called "a rather raucous party in the (separate) shower rooms."

INS Officers Check Visas Of Iranians

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 10 percent of the Iranian students interviewed by immigration officials during the past week are subject to deportation, the Immigration and Naturalization Service reports.

The agency said Tuesday it had interviewed 6,700 Iranian students under a program launched Nov. 13 to determine how many of an estimated 50,500 Iranian college and university students are in the United States illegally.

The Carter administration established the program last week in response to the crisis in Iran, where American hostages have now been held for 18 days in the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

The program has drawn some criticism from civil liberties lawyers, who say singling out Iranian students for visa checks is discriminatory. A group called the National Emergency Civil Liberties Committee says it will file suit in federal court today in an effort to halt the program.

Of those checked in the first five days of the program, 700 are deportable and 90 of those have agreed to leave the country voluntarily, said David The rest face deportation, a process that takes varying amounts of time, depending on whether deportation orders are challenged.

An additional 760 students are being checked further to verify their status, Crosland said, and the remaining 5,200 are in compliance with the terms of their student visas.

Crosland said that 200 students, some with visa violations, are seeking U.S. asylum. The INS will consider asylum for those who could face political or religious persecution if forced to return to Iran, officials say. The burden of proof rests with the students.

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements basked in the warm light of recognition today after Republican governors backed his "Texas Position" on energy and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger awarded him high praise.

The governors unanimously adopted an energy resolution Tuesday calling for decontrol of oil and gas prices to stimulate domestic production, the keystone of Clements' Texas position.

The assembly of governors also called for a change in federal rules inhibiting the use of coal.

Kissinger addressed the governors, and took the opportunity to pay homage to the host.

"We couldn't have gotten through the crisis in 1973-1976 without the strong hand of Bill Clements," said Kissinger, who was secretary of state in the Nixon and Ford administrations while Clements was deputy secretary of defense.

The energy resolution also endorsed Clements' concept that "resulting above normal revenues be plowed back into domestic energy production of all energy firms."

Clements' press secretary, John Ford, said the governors position was adopted without any need for "behind the scenes salesmanship," even though several governors come from consumer states that produce little or no oil.

Ford said Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio visited with the staff members who wrote the resolution and persuaded them to toughen the language, which blames the Carter administration for the current energy problems.

Besides decontrol and plow back of windfall profits into energy production, the governor said it was "imperative" to adopt a national policy calling for:

- Conversions of oil burning generators and boilers to coal, the use of coal in new industry and modification of existing environmental regulations that inhibit the use of coal.
- Expanded construction of nuclear power plants but with "reassuring safety standards" and "appropriate safe disposal" of radioactive wastes.

Governor Criticizes White's Involvement

AUSTIN (AP) — Protocol was the issue Tuesday as Republican Gov. Bill Clements assailed an unbothered Attorney General Mark White, a Democrat, for overstepping his authority.

In a hotly worded letter distributed by his press secretary, Clements accused White of misrepresenting his authority in regard to oil spills and of "politicizing" the issue of the Campeche Bay run-away oil well.

Attached to it was a copy of a telegram Clements said White sent to various oil companies on Nov. 12. The telegram invites the companies to send representatives to a meeting in White's office Tuesday to discuss what might be done in response to future spills.

White said Clements handed him the letter and read him part of it at the close of a meeting they had Tuesday afternoon on another matter. White described Clements' demeanor as "mercurial," but added "We left on very kind terms. As I have said before, I intend to get along with all the elected people."

In the telegram, White says he had been "unimpressed with the ability of the existing governmental and commercial structures" to respond to the Mexican oil spill and the collision of a tanker and freighter that has resulted in an ongoing spill fouling beaches around Galveston.

As I told you in a telephone conversation today, I take strong issue with inferences you made in the attached telegram," Clements told White.

He said the telegram impugns actions taken during the oil spills by agencies ranging from the U.S. Coast Guard to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, as well as the governor's office.

Your communication inviting attendance at today's meeting amounts to a misrepresentation of your authority, and I hereby urge you to limit your activities to those matters within the purview of your office. I also call upon you once again to quit politicizing the oil spill issue," Clements said.

He said White had refused the governor's request to allow either Clements' general counsel, David Dean, or Frank Cox, state coordinator of disaster emergency services to attend Tuesday's meeting with the oilmen.

White said he refused to let Dean and Cox attend because he then "would have had to let everybody else in. I was just trying to get an exchange of ideas with industry."

Clements told White the attorney general has neither constitutional nor statutory authority to involve himself in state actions to clean up oil spills.

"I take offense when you purport to exercise authority over matters outside your jurisdiction, and I will not let such actions go unchallenged," Clements said.

Republican Governors Pledge GOP Comeback

AUSTIN (AP) — There are only 18 Republican governors, but they came away from their annual convention convinced they know the way to a GOP comeback: Hanging the energy problem on the ruling Democrats.

"This will be a battle cry. It will be a crusade," said Ohio Gov. James Rhodes. "And I know the Republican candidates will start speaking out after this meeting concerning energy."

"If we can solve the energy problem," Rhodes said, "we will elect a Republican congress and also a Republican president."

The Republican Governors Association concluded its three-day meeting Tuesday by adopting a resolution charging the "National administration and the Congress have failed to respond to the nation's energy crisis."

"The people of America suffer from crippling inflation and unemployment and a weakened national defense because of our over-dependence on imported oil," the governors said.

The resolution called for maximum and immediate production and use of domestic oil, gas and coal reserves, development of nuclear energy and relaxation of federal environmental and land-use regulations.

Gov. James Thompson of Illinois invited governors from other energy producing states, or any others who want to join the crusade, to meet in Chicago "to see that this resolution is followed up and implemented with our congressional delegations."

No date was set for this energy war conference, but Thompson said it should be held "shortly."

Gov. Lee Dreyfus of Wisconsin said

City Businesses, Schools To Close

Most businesses, public buildings and schools will be closed on Thursday in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Lubbock public school students will not attend school today through Friday because of teachers' meetings and Thanksgiving. Teachers will be on duty today for in-service meetings.

Public buildings in Lubbock also will close on Thursday, but should open Friday morning, although the Lubbock County courthouse will remain closed through Friday.

All banks, savings and loan associations and most retail stores within the city also will close for a one-day holiday for Thanksgiving.

he is "not so sanguine about urging the federal congress. I think we have to go over their heads to the people."

"The present energy program as espoused by Washington is a political fraud on the people, and I think the opportune time for the Republican Party is 1980," Rhodes said.

"The failure of this administration and this Congress in the last three years to give us any sort of energy program in the face of ruinous inflation and actual threat to our national defense is in itself a national disgrace," Thompson said.

"It's a blame that is equally shared by the president and Congress who have allowed narrow parochial considerations to get in the way of getting the American people together and united on a policy that could help free us from the kind of bondage which is so graphically portrayed today in Iran," Thompson said.

PERKINS

Irsay's Moving Problems

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ
And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Why did Robert Irsay try to move the Colts out of Baltimore to Timbuktu or somewhere? Doesn't the NFL have a rule about taking a franchise back from someone who is obviously running it into the ground? Or, why didn't they know he was a foul ball when they gave him the franchise?

—Tim Ladnor, Norfolk, Va.

A. The NFL will NOT let Irsay move his franchise out of Baltimore. You're right in suspecting that there is no league provision for reclaiming a franchise, but there should be — and before the next expansion there might be an insertion stipulating that the NFL can repurchase a franchise if the team has no winning record after 10 years.

Irsay became a franchise owner through the machinations of the late Carroll Rosenbloom, who got him to buy the Rams and trade them even-up for Rosenbloom's Baltimore team. Irsay was the only man in the world Rosenbloom could find to agree to this.

Q. During the World Series broadcasts, several mentions were made about the players' slugging percentages. How is a slugging percentage figured?

—L.S., Mission, Kans.

A. You divide a player's total bases (one for a single, two for a double, etc.) by his official times at bat. Babe Ruth had the highest slugging percentage of all time, .690.

Q. The United Way (UW) television commercials featuring various NFL players are well done. I want to know who pays for these commercials, or do the networks donate them free. If the latter, what would they cost to pay for?

—L. H. Handley, Miami.

A. In one of the first TV contracts negotiated by Pete Rozelle, after he became commissioner, he asked that CBS-TV give the leagues one 1-minute commercial spot for each game for its own use. At that time, the early 1960s, the NFL used the spots to boost its image against that of the AFL, trying to encourage college prospects.

After the merger, the NFL began using this time for charitable purposes. The United Way has been the beneficiary for the past five years, one commercial for each of the 224 regular game telecasts. This would cost any other advertiser $20 million annually.

Q. Reading about the Niekro brothers trying to be the first to win 20 games each in the same year. What about Paul and Dizzy Dean? Didn't they win 50 games between them in the same year, as well as 20 or more in a given year?

—L.L. Hammial, Houston.

A. Paul Dean never won 20 games in a season. The year Dizzy won 30, Paul won 19. The greatest pitching brother act was more lopsided. Old Hoss Radbourn won 49 games in 1883, and his brother George won one.

DALLAS (AP) — Wide receiver Butch Johnson ticked off the names. . . Ed (Too Tall) Jones. . . Jethro Pugh. . . Charlie Waters. . . and Thomas Henderson.

"Let's see, we've lost lost the strong side of our defense now," said Johnson. "Doomsday Junior, R.I.P."

With Thomas Henderson's sudden departure Monday, the Dallas Cowboys face the distasteful task Thanksgiving Day of trying to stop Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers with a patchwork defense.

"Doomsday has ceased to exist," said Johnson. "It's all on the offense now. We've got to dominate the game, control the ball."

Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry said Tuesday that Mike Hegman will start in Henderson's strongside linebacker spot against the Oilers.

He said recently acquired John Dutton could be in Jones' old defensive end post. At left tackle where Pugh used to hold forth, Larry Cole could move in for Dave Stalls.

Of course, Randy Hughes has been substituting for the injured Waters, out for the season.

"I think our defense can overcome all these problems," said Landry. "We have good backup people. I have a lot of confidence in them."

But Landry didn't have confidence anymore in Henderson who was fired outright rather than demoted.

"I decided he couldn't function (on the bench)," said Landry. "It would have been hard for him to handle a second-string role. His ego is such that he needs to start. I definitely thought it would affect the team with him on the sidelines."

Landry told the fifth-year player he was going to be put on waivers but the controversial Henderson, who had held the media spotlight at the Super Bowl in January, announced his retirement at an emotional press conference.

"Yesterday was a trying day," said Landry at his weekly press conference, "but I believe we'll get things back in the groove."

Houston coach Bum Phillips was asked on a telephone hookup Tuesday if he wanted Henderson and he replied: "If a guy can't get along one place, the chances of him getting along somewhere else are not too good."

Landry said Tuesday that injured defensive right tackle Randy White is "the least likely (player on the team) to play."

Pressed about lineup changes, Landry said fullback Robert Newhouse would start because of an injury to Scott Laidlaw and that Dutton might start at left defensive end with Larry Cole being moved into left tackle. Kickoff in the nationally televised contest from Texas Stadium is at 3 p.m.

The Cowboys are currently tied for the lead in the NFC East Division with the Philadelphia Eagles and Washington Redskins, each holding an 8-4 record.

Angels' Baylor Selected MVP

DON BAYLOR

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Baylor became the first member of the California Angels to win the American League's Most Valuable Player Award when the outfielder-designated hitter was made an overwhelming choice today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Baylor collected 20 of a possible 28 first-place votes from the special BBWAA committee to win by a runaway margin over outfielder Ken Singleton of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles.

The California slugger, who led the Angels to their first title ever in the AL West with a league-leading 139 RBI, 36 home runs and a .296 batting average, piled up 347 points to 241 for Singleton.

Third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals was given two votes for first place and a 226-point total for the third spot.

Baylor, Singleton and Brett were the only players named on all 28 ballots.

Boston's Jim Rice, last year's MVP, finished fifth in the voting with 124 points, behind teammate Fred Lynn's 160½.

The 30-year-old Baylor's offensive totals also included 33 doubles, three triples and 22 stolen bases. The California slugger, one of the first crop of free agents in 1976, signed with the Angels on Nov. 16 of that year.

Singleton, 32, who had three first-place votes, had a .295 average that included 35 homers and 111 RBI.

Brett had a big year with the Royals, finishing second to Lynn in the AL batting race with a .329 average that included 23 homers and 107 runs batted in.

Mike Flanagan, the Cy Young Award winner from Baltimore, collected the record.

SMU, Aggies List Cripples

By The Associated Press

The injury picture in the Southwest Conference football schedule was bleak in Dallas and College Station, but there was some good news in Austin.

Texas coach Fred Akers said quarterback Donnie Little's foot injury was on the mend, and that Little could start against Baylor Saturday.

"The swelling is down, and he's off crutches," Akers said.

The casualty list at Southern Methodist featured the backfield, where running backs Lott McIlhenny, Charles Wagoner and Eric Dickerson were doubtful for the Mustangs' closing contest against Arkansas.

"It looks like all three will have to miss because of injuries," coach Ron Meyer said. Wagoner has a cracked vertebra, Dickerson is nursing a sore ankle and McIlhenny has a pinched neck nerve.

Starting noseguard Charles Hunt also was doubtful for SMU because of a bruised knee.

Craig James was expected to start at tailback, Michael Charles at fullback and Waldo Theus at noseguard.

Texas A&M has a longer injury list, but free safety Elroy Steen was the only victim expected to miss Saturday's game against TCU. Steen suffered a severely sprained ankle last week against Arkansas.

Texans Named All-America

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Michigan, Oklahoma, Southern California and Texas each contributed two players to the all-America team selected by the Football Writers Association of America, association officials announced Wednesday.

Running backs Charles White of USC and Oklahoma's Billy Sims, already named on several all-America teams, were selected for the second consecutive year in the football writers' poll.

Completing the backfield are 10th-ranked Brigham Young quarterback Marc Wilson and Notre Dame running back Vegas Ferguson.

Texas defensive back Johnnie Johnson was named all-America by the Football Writers for the second time. Also named from the roster of sixth-ranked Texas was defensive lineman Steve McMichael.

Defensive lineman Curt Greer and linebacker Ron Simkins represented 15th-ranked Michigan on the All-America team.

Southern California offensive lineman Brad Budde was named to the team for the first time along with Oklahoma linebacker George Cumbly.

Budde, Greer and McMichael are three of the nine Football Writers' all-Americans who are eligible for the Outland Trophy, awarded to the nation's outstanding interior lineman. The award is scheduled to be announced Sunday.

Peach Bowl Tickets Scarce

ATLANTA (AP) — The Peach Bowl has gone from "the outhouse to the penthouse" in ticket sales since last year, when the post-season football game almost went under for lack of sales, bowl officials say.

The bowl's Atlanta office sold out its ticket allotment Monday for the New Year's Eve afternoon match between the Clemson Tigers and the Baylor Bears.

"I've never seen so many people before or gotten so many phone calls. It was a heck of a mess," ticket committee chairman Tommy Crambley said Tuesday. "I think ticket demand will far exceed availability of tickets anywhere."

The game was scheduled for Christmas Day, and the Peach Bowl barely made an NCAA mandate to sell 24,000 tickets locally. The goal was reached after Janet Rodgers, wife of Georgia Tech Coach Pepper Rodgers, and other coaches' wives persuaded local civic and business groups to buy the tickets.

Matadors Triumph

MORTON (Special) — Estacado's Tim Williams scored 34 points to lead the Matadors to an 85-77 basketball victory over host Morton.

The win was Estacado's second in as many nights as it opened the season.

Jeff Groves poured in 20 points for Morton, which lost Monday night to Dunbar.

day." Red Raider head coach Rex Dockery said. "I thought we had a good practice. We got quite a bit done."

The Red Raiders take their 3-5-2 record into the Astrodome and in front of the nation's viewing public at 2 p.m. Friday for the nationally televised battle with the 8-1 and ninth-ranked Cougars.

Freshman Jim Hart and Mark James continued to run Tech's top two offensive units. Hart is scheduled to start against the Cougars and James will also see playing time. Hart has started the last two outings for Tech because of the absence of regular starter Ron Reeves, who has been out of action since the Texas contest three weeks ago.

The Red Raiders didn't have a great deal to cheer about during last Saturday's 35-10 loss to Southern Methodist, but two players emerged to capture the Avalanche-Journal Player of the Week honors.

Junior tight end L.M. Cummings, who suffered a shoulder injury against the Mustangs, hauled in two passes for 17 yards and graded out well as a blocker to earn A-J Offensive Player of the Week honors.

Defender Andrew Thomas was cited for his aggressive play against the Mustangs.

Estacado Girls Overcome Morton

Joy Dale Guyton poured in 27 points to lead the Estacado girls to a 48-44 win over Morton in a girls high school basketball game Tuesday night.

Miss Guyton hit 12 shots from the field and added 3 free throws to account for the high-scoring effort.

The win evened Estacado's record at 1-1.

Chaps' Sayles Voted To All-TIAA Team

Although going winless against Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association competition, Lubbock Christian College landed one player on the all-conference team as picked by the coaches.

Freshman defensive lineman Neil Sayles, a 205-pounder from Estacado, was a first-team selection on the team which was dominated by league champions Austin College.

Austin, which finished the year nationally ranked in NAIA Division II and which lost last weekend in the NAIA playoffs, had the league's offensive player of the year (Larry Shillings), defensive player of the year (Price Clifford) and the top lineman (Ty Quick).

Tarleton's running back Ricky Bush was picked the top freshman in the league, and AC coach Larry Kramer was picked for coach of the year honors.

Sayles, in helping the Chaparrals open their football history, was in on 91 tackles — 58 of them solos — recovered two fumbles and had a quarterback

LCC Drops Verdict To Panhandle State

GOODWELL, Okla. (Special) — Joe Baker scored 28 points and Bob Wakefield pumped in 26 to lead Panhandle State University to an 84-70 basketball win over Lubbock Christian College here Tuesday night.

The loss dropped the Chaps to 2-4 for the year, while Panhandle opened its season on a high note.

In the first half, Panhandle hit 17 of 32 shots from the field, while LCC, which had entered the contest hitting a 53 percent clip from the floor, connected on only eight of 23 shots.

Panhandle jumped out to a 6-0 lead early in the game and then with about 16 minutes left in the period rolled out to a 22-8 margin.

LCC threatened in the second half and pulled within 9 points of its host but could not overtake the hot-shooting Panhandle.

The game was Dennis Aye's first as PU's head coach. To mark the affair,

Mondt Mum On Firing

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — University of New Mexico football coach Bill Mondt has declined to discuss a decision by the school's regents to fire him.

The regents voted in a closed-door session Tuesday not to renew his contract or those of his assistants after the Feb. 1 expiration date.

The University of New Mexico closes its football season Saturday against Wyoming.

"I won't have anything to say on it until after the game Saturday," Mondt said.

New Mexico wide receiver Dave Wyrick said he thought the regents could have waited until after the contest.

"I think the timing was bad," he said. "It wouldn't have hurt them to wait."

Tight end Chris Combs said he was shocked at the regents' decision.

"They could have waited until next week," he said. "I just hope they're not making a change for the sake of changing. I hope they pick the right man for the right job."

Mondt, 42, has compiled a 31-36-1 record with the Lobos since assuming the head coaching spot in 1973.

Jess Price, a spokesman for the university, said he presumed school president William E. "Bud" Davis made the recommendation to fire Mondt.

CTK BOYS WIN
Ed Connors scored 23 points and grabbed down 12 rebounds to lead Christ the King to a 54-39 victory over Cooper Tuesday night. Andy Sparkman led Cooper with 17. The Trojan girls were defeated in overtime by the Cooper girls, 41-39. Sara Fredenburg had 18 for Cooper while Leslie Schmidt had 15 for CTK. The Trojan boys are now 2-0 while the girls are 0-3.

Ramsay, Shue, NY's Holzman Hit Milestones

By The Associated Press
Jack Ramsay and Gene Shue have joined the exclusive 500-win club in the National Basketball Association.

Red Holzman, already a member, joined an even more exclusive club when his New York Knicks did a number on the Houston Rockets Tuesday night.

Ramsay, the Portland coach, and Shue, of San Diego, each reached the euphoric plateau of 500 NBA victories after the Trail Blazers defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 114-99 and the Clippers stopped the Phoenix Suns 117-110.

Holzman, meanwhile, became only the second coach in NBA history to win 500 games with one team when the Knicks defeated the Rockets 130-125 in overtime.

Red Auerbach, who did it with the Boston Celtics, is the only other NBA coach to win that many games with one team. The new 500 Club members joined Auerbach, Holzman and Dick Motta in

Grand Prix Circuit May Bypass Watkins

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The roar of powerful motors may not be heard in Watkins Glen next October as Formula I racing appears ready to abandon the gentle hills of the Finger Lakes for the bright lights of Las Vegas.

"At best there is only a 50-50 chance that there will be a U.S. Grand Prix at Watkins Glen next year," according to Tommaso Binford, the lone U.S. representative on the body which controls Formula One racing.

Binford, chief steward at the Indianapolis 500 for the last six years and president of the Automobile Competition Committee for the United States (ACCUS), said by telephone from his Indianapolis, Ind., office Tuesday that he hopes to defend the Glen race at the executive committee meeting Dec. 13 in Paris of the Federation Internationale du Sport Automobile (FISA).

Binford said he had confirmed "to my satisfaction" that FISA's 12-member Formula One Commission met secretly last week and voted unanimously to end formula one racing at the Glen. That recommendation must be approved by the FISA executive committee, however.

"I'm not very optimistic," Binford said. "I have still not been told anything officially by FISA."

Westerners Match '79 Win Total

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

His season is only two games old, but already Lubbock High coach Craig Wells is ready for track to start.

"I think I'm going to quit now and retire as the only undefeated coach in the city," Wells said Tuesday night as his Westerners beat Dunbar 51-49 for their second victory in as many games.

That may not seem like enough to base a career on, but it equalled the total number of wins Wells and his LHS bunch racked up all of last year.

"We've already done as good as we did all last year," the ebullient coach said in his locker room after the game. "But we worked excellently hard for it. It took patience and just pure guts."

Patience almost lost the Westerners the game, as they let a 27-22 lead just after the half be whittled to 31-30 with about a minute and a half left in the third period.

The Westerners ballooned the margin to 35-30, but then were outscored 7-0 over a 3 1/2-minute span that saw Dunbar take the lead on a short jumper from the wing by Joe Bagley with 7:23 remaining and then add a free throw by Daryl Harris with 6:30 showing.

The teams see-sawed the remainder of the game before Kirk Cole made a field goal and then sank a pair of free throws with 26 seconds left to insure the win.

Cole led Lubbock scorers with 18 points while Oscar Lopez added 15. Dunbar was led by Stanley Whitfield's 19.

"We knew we were going to have trouble with Whitfield," Wells said. "He's 6-8, and our biggest guys are 6-3. We knew we had to shoot well from the outside to make up for that."

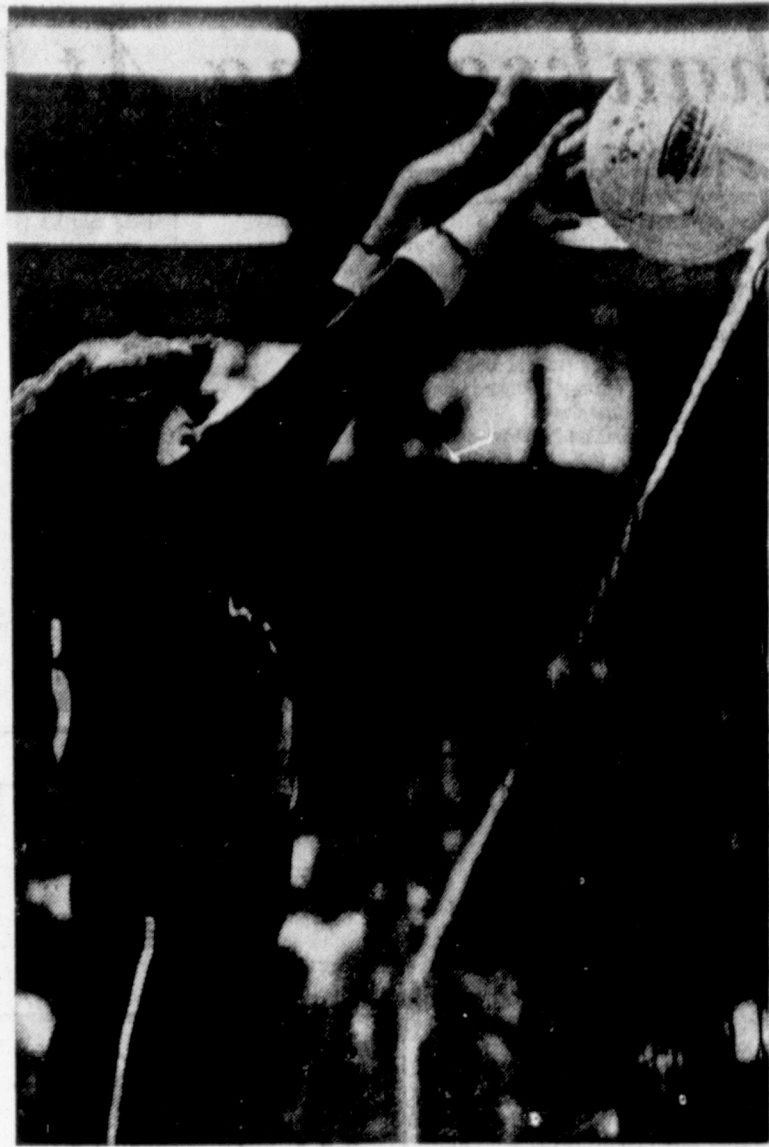

"But we did. Heck, anytime you go 2-24 (last year) and then win the first two games of the season, it's great."

Amarillo Takes VB Title

Coronado seemed to have everything going in its favor during Tuesday night's decisive final game of the bidistrict volleyball matchup with Amarillo High.

The Mustangs had the homecourt advantage, for one thing. And for another, the Patti Jones-coached club was just coming off a big second-game win.

But somehow the roof fell in, rafters and all. Trailing only 6-3 in the third and final game, Coronado lost eight straight points and in the process fell to the visiting Sandies 15-4. AHS won the first game 15-10, but Coronado had evened the series with a 15-8 win going into the final game.

Shanna Kelley swung the winning paw in the third game. She took over service with AHS nursing a narrow 4-point lead and commenced to serve the 8 winning points.

Coronado managed to break Miss Kelley's serve and take over trailing 14-3. Tammy Scott helped with 1 point, but it wasn't quite enough.

On the next point, Stacey Youngblood, who dominated play at the net all night against the Mustangs, served the ball and after a couple of sets by the Sandies, Cindy Hunt slapped home the winner.

Tammy Edmonson had given Coronado a 1-0 lead on her first serve. But that was the only time the Mustangs would lead the Sandies in the deciding game.

Amarillo's Karen DeArmond stepped in, following Miss Edmonson's serve, and reeled off 5 straight points. After that, the Sandies never looked back.

Coronado and Amarillo, winners of Districts 4-AAAA and 3-AAAA, respectively, had entered the bidistrict clash with similar records. The Mustangs were 24-7 and the Sandies 27-4. The similar won-loss marks had prompted Miss

Wharton Gets LCC Honors

Kevin Wharton, the Chaparrals' 6-6 forward, has been picked as Lubbock Christian College's athlete of the week.

During the past week, Wharton collected 28 rebounds and 13 blocked shots. He hit 21 of 36 field goals during the three-game stretch and made four of five foul shots. He also had off seven assists.

However, he was in foul trouble and the Chaps lost two of three games last week.

Women's basketballer JoAnn Phillips was mentioned for the weekly honor, as she scored 12 points and had four rebounds in an 84-45 loss to Abilene Christian. Miss Phillips, a junior from Lubbock High, hit three of ten shots from the floor, six of ten from the line, and had 14 rebounds.

LCHS WINS

DIMITT (Special) — Tim Perrin pumped in 15 points as Lubbock Christian High boys opened the basketball season with a 63-53 win over host Dimmitt. Vicente Salinas scored 14 points for DHS.

Jones to comment prior to the contest. "It should really be a close one."

She wasn't far from wrong. The first game proved that. The two teams battled down to the net before Amarillo was able to take a notch the win.

Coronado had come with a point, at 11-10, of catching the Sandies, but after Miss Hunt had added a point, Carol Smith came on and served 3 straight points to notch the win.

In the second game, Coronado led from the start to the wire. The game was never close, with CHS leading 5-0 before the Sandies even got on the board. Laura Richards held the hot hand in the game, serving 5 points.

But late in the second game, Amarillo seemed to pick up momentum. The Sandies, behind Miss Youngblood, scored 4 points late in the match.

Amarillo will now move on the Region I meet, to be held on Dec. 1 in Abilene.

Mustangs Withstand Late Rally

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
If somebody's looking for a scapegoat, then Barry Arnwine will gladly oblige his carcass.

Probably even change his name to Billy.

Substituting almost too freely, Arnwine watched as the Coronado Mustangs blew a big fourth-quarter lead and then had to hold off Amarillo Caprock for a 67-63 high school basketball win Tuesday night.

"I did what I thought was best," grinned Arnwine following the game. "I just felt it was better to give the younger kids a chance to play when we were winning by 20 points. That doesn't help that much. But I'm going to be counting heavily on the bench all year. They've got to get in some playing time."

Touche. Late in the third quarter, Coronado erupted for 14 unanswered points to hold a 57-43 lead going into the fourth and final stanza. It looked like a cakewalk from then on out.

But with a little over two minutes remaining in the game, Caprock's Phil Platt hit a four-foot jumper to close the gap to 63-62.

"Let's say then I started to pucker," commented Arnwine. "But Sam Law didn't."

The CHS senior hit both ends of a one-and-one attempt with 40 seconds left that gave CHS a three-point lead 65-62.

With 13 seconds remaining, Greg Ewing bucketed a free throw to cut the margin to two points, 65-63. But on the second freebie, Ewing intentionally missed the shot, hoping the ball would bounce back into his hands in front of the goal. But the plan didn't work quite that way.

So Coronado, off to a fast start, upped its record to 2-1, while Caprock fell to 0-3.

Raider Women Win Over TWU

DENTON (Special) — The Texas Tech women's basketball team defeated Texas Woman's University 81-59 Tuesday night in winning its second game in as many days.

Monday Tech tripped North Texas State in a game at Lubbock.

The Lady Raiders blew open a 39-34 lead at halftime as Pam Stone scored 19 of her 28 points in the second half for Tech.

Miss Stone also led in rebounding with 17.

Tag-Team Bout Tops Mat Card

Karl Krupp will tangle with The Lawman tonight at the Fair Park Coliseum in a "no holds barred" match-up in the main event on the weekly wrestling card.

There will be no disqualification allowed for either Krupp or The Lawman — so this one could get bloody. The action starts at 8 p.m.

In other matches Dory Funk Jr. will battle the Super Destroyer and James Dillon will tangle with perennial favorite Ricky Romero.

The tag-team match will feature the rugged duo of Larry Lane and Gary Young against equally tough Gypsy Joe and Alex Perez.

Alex Rodriguez will meet Ricky Dox in the night's other match.

CHS Girls Triumph Over Caprock 49-41

AMARILLO (Special) — The Coronado girls basketball team beat Amarillo Caprock 49-41 Tuesday night.

Patti McSarren scored 11 points to lead Coronado which brought its record to 2-1.

The Amarillo Caprock girls junior varsity beat the Coronado High girls JV 34-31.

Cool Thanksgiving In Store For Area

A clear and cool Thanksgiving holiday is in store for the Lubbock area, forecasters said today.

Temperatures will be a bit on the chilly side for the holiday with a high of near 50 predicted, but that will be slightly warmer than today's forecast high in the mid-40s.

A hard freeze is expected tonight as the mercury sinks to the mid-20s. The thermometer barely made the freezing point this morning, dropping to 32 degrees.

Temperatures were mainly in the 20s and 30s over the South Plains this morning, although Paducah had a mild reading of 41 degrees. Muleshoe's 21 was the lowest in the area.

The extended forecast calls for a gradual warming trend to continue over the weekend.

Elsewhere in the state today, a cold front stretched from Dallas to Del Rio, bringing showers and brisk temperatures to portions of Texas.

The front moved eastward early today, dropping temperatures to the 20s in far West Texas, the mountains and northwestern Panhandle while some cities in East and South Texas reported mercury readings in the 70s.

Scattered showers added a dank chill to the front, although rainfall was light, topping at 0.38 in Wichita Falls.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Thursday morning, for the Great Lakes regions. Mild weather will continue in the East but most of the country is expected to be colder. (AP Laserphoto)

Hightower Raps Railroad Fees

AUSTIN (AP) — A candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission charges that body has short-changed the city of San Antonio by not investigating rate increases levied by the railroad that hauls coal power to the city's utilities.

Jim Hightower, former editor of the "Texas Observer," said Alamo City residents are being "gouged" by the Burlington Northern Railroad.

"Burlington Northern's rates have gone from $11 per ton to more than $19 per ton in the last three years," Hightower said.

"Worse yet, despite their complaints about the rate increase, granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroad commission turned around in late October and kicked a little rate increase of their own — a 1.1 percent rate hike supposedly to cover the rising cost of diesel fuel," Hightower said at a capital news conference.

"It appears obvious that the railroad commissioners are more concerned with Burlington Northern fuel costs than those of the people of San Antonio," he said.

Hightower also claimed that San Antonio switched to a coal-fired utility system because the commission insisted it do so.

He also said a pair of lawyers found the railroad "has been giving preferential rates to some of its corporate shipping customers."

He said International Paper and Scott Paper have been allowed to buy timber from Burlington Northern forests at a "fraction" of the market price.

"These special low prices have cost Burlington Northern at least $84 million in lost revenues since 1973," Hightower said.

"This $84 million amounts to an illegal rebate on shipping costs to these two paper companies," he said.

Hightower is challenging Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent in the Democratic primary.

Former Grain Dealer Assessed Stiff Prison Term For 'Greed'

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Citing the "human weakness for greed," a federal judge Tuesday sentenced former Iowa Park grain dealer Robert Johnson to 17 years in prison for interstate transportation of stolen grain.

"It is so great to see someone go from rags to riches," U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon said. "So sad to see that individual end up in a different light ... we get back to that human weakness for greed."

Mahon sentenced Johnson to 10 years on one count and seven on another, with the terms to run consecutively.

He also accepted a plea bargain agreement under which an additional 11 counts against Johnson were dismissed in return for his guilty plea.

Johnson was penitent, and vowed to pay back farmers whose grain was lost in the episode.

His bizarre saga began in January 1978, when he was reported missing from his boat during a cruise in the Gulf of Mexico.

Subsequent investigations by state and federal authorities revealed grain shortages in Johnson's elevators.

He was arrested earlier this year in Idaho on a traffic charge and transferred to Wichita County, where he has been held in lieu of $500,000 bond.

At his sentencing hearing Tuesday,

Johnson said his problems started when his fertilizer business began to go sour. He said he concocted his "disappearance" to try to help employees hurt by the business reversal.

"I knew at that time I had to find something else," Johnson said. After banks refused him loans, Johnson said, he began selling grain farmers had stored in his elevators.

He said he panicked. "I found I would rather have my family and friends think I was dead than be in the penitentiary," Johnson said. "I started figuring out how I would do it. I didn't mean to hurt anyone."

Johnson said he thought he would leave enough assets to "take care of" the farmers who entrusted their grain to him.

Johnson's attorney, Gene Douglass, presented three witnesses who spoke in Johnson's behalf, but Mahon said the premeditation involved influenced his sentence. "The court can't help but be influenced by the crime," said Mahon.

The judge also criticized Johnson's attempt to fake his death. "There are too many people involved in this kind of hoax," he said.

After the sentencing, Douglass said, "He (Johnson) wants to thank all his friends, and he believes he still has many. He is very sorry for the disgrace."

Douglass said Johnson hopes to re-turn and repay all the farmers.

Cowhands Nearly Finish Rounding Up Wild Cattle

ABILENE (UPI) — Only a few stray cattle — remnants of a herd of 800 that stampeded from west Texas corrals — continued to roam early today in the mesquite-dotted country north of town.

A pack of wild dogs spooked the herd early Monday, causing the crazed cattle to burst from pens at Triangle Cattle Co. and stream onto nearby Interstate 20 where the stampede was blamed for traffic accidents that injured two persons.

Taylor County Sheriff's deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety officers enlisted the aid of about 40 cowhands to round up the herd, and the job almost was complete by early today, said Brenda Butman, a dispatcher with the sheriff's department.

"There are still a few strays," she said, "but I believe they about have them. We haven't had any calls that any cows were loose on the highway today."

At the peak of the stampede, a Continental Trailways bus plowed into about 15 cows, investigators said, injuring Tennie Mae Williams of Dallas, a passenger on the bus. A tractor-trailer truck driven by Lester Bassham of Winterhaven, Fla., also struck the excited cattle. Both Miss Williams and Bassham were treated at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene and released.

A third wreck was reported as officers closed the interstate about 7 a.m. Monday and kept it closed until 10 a.m. while the lawmen and cowboys worked the bulk of the herd from the roadway and back to the corrals. Some of the animals escaped into the adjacent mesquite pastures and kept many of the riders in the saddle most of Monday and Tuesday.

Optimist Club Honors City Youngsters

Seventy students representing 12 schools were honored Tuesday night as Lubbock's most outstanding junior high citizens.

In ceremonies at First Christian Church, the Monterey Optimist Club honored for the 15th consecutive year the city's top seventh, eighth and ninth grade boy and girl.

Students from nine public and three private junior highs received certificates during the Monterey Optimist's annual Youth Appreciation Week program.

Principal speaker was Ron Reeves, Texas Tech quarterback and a product of the Lubbock school system. Reeves attended elementary school at Roscoe Wilson, junior high at J. T. Hutchinson and high school at Monterey.

The welcome was extended by Larry Clark, president of the Monterey Optimist Club, and Ed Irons, superintendent of Lubbock public schools, gave the response.

Awards were presented by Bob Baucum, chairman of the club's Youth Appreciation Week. Burle Pettit of the Monterey Optimist Club was master of ceremonies.

WIFE Selects Area Woman As President

Nita Gibson of Seminole was elected president of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) at the national convention just concluded here at the Civic Center.

She and her husband, Charles, live on their family farm west of Seminole. She is a graduate of Texas Tech, a member of the Seminole Business and Professional Women, Seminole area Chamber of Commerce, and Texas Agriculture Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Gibson has been on the national steering committee of WIFE for two years and also this past year was head of the national finance committee.

She has testified before the U. S. House and Senate Agriculture Committees on several occasions as well as before the Texas House and Senate.

In 1975 she was elected president of Cotton Pool Inc. of Texas, a cotton marketing association, and presently holds that position.

Bob Soleta, a farmer and businessman from Minnesota, who is head of the synthetic fuels division of the National Corn Growers Association, told the convention earlier that he refutes the argument that gasoline will take food away from people.

"Alcohol plants will extract excess carbohydrates out of cereal crops and then concentrate the nutrition," he said. "This will eliminate two-thirds of the shipping costs and still provide nutrition at better quality and quantity."

"If we can do this, agriculture will be the first to become energy independent," Soleta said. "The true wealth of the nation comes from the land through the production of renewable resources."

SW Bell Rate Hike Goes Into Effect

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. today placed into effect new rates that are expected to raise the company's income by $138.7 million.

Bell spokesman Dale Johnson said the detailed tariffs, carrying out rates authorized Nov. 9 by the Texas Public Utility Commission, were approved Tuesday by the commission's staff.

Johnson said it would be a while before customers started feeling the full impact of the new rates.

The commission said Bell could increase rates for basic residential service by $1.15 a month and for basic business service by $3.45 a month and raise the price of pay telephones from 20 cents to 25 cents.

In addition, Bell will raise prices for a variety of business telephone services such as Centrex and PBX.

Johnson said the increase in basic residential and business rates will be applied immediately, but it would be about a month before bills show the impact of the increase.

For example, he said, a residential bill dated Friday will have added to it a pro-rated share of the $1.15 increase for two days, he said. Johnson said the telephone company would have to modify each of the thousands of pay telephones in Texas to take advantage of the nickel increase in the cost of a coin-operated telephone call.

"It will take a minimum of two weeks," Johnson said.

NRC May Strengthen Emergency Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is considering staff proposals for new regulations that could empower the agency to close nuclear plants if state and local emergency plans do not meet commission standards.

The proposals presented to the commission this week could be in effect by early next year. Among other things, the emergency plans would contain estimates of the time required to evacuate people up to 10 miles from the plant; procedures for notifying local, state and government agencies; protective measures, and emergency first aid.

Gunman Threatens Paramedics

HOUSTON (AP) — When paramedics answered what proved to be a fatal shooting call they were held at bay by a man with a pistol.

"He pulled a pistol and told us to leave," said Ken Primeaux, a member of the Fire Department paramedics team.

Primeaux drove down the street and called police.

Officers M.E. Harris and H.E. White said the man also pointed the pistol at them but was persuaded to drop the gun and was arrested.

The body of Elaine Gordon Robicheaux, 30, was found in the living room of the home. Police said she had been shot several times.

No charges had been filed.
