WARMING UP FOR CHRISTMAS — The mercury climbed to 67 degrees in Kansas City Monday afternoon, forcing this Santa to take a breather. But a cold front moving through the region today will end the December "heat wave." (AP Laserphoto)

TABRIZ, Iran (UPI) — Iran's main opposition leader warned today that if the government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini makes any further mistakes in handling the turmoil in northwestern Iran there will be a civil war.

"If the executive makes mistakes again, the disturbances will continue," Ayatollah Kazem Shariatmadari told newsmen. "Tension will increase, people will start to kill each other and civil war will take place."

From his residence in the holy city of Qom, the leader of the Turkish-speaking peoples of the northwest added, "If they (the government) act according to wisdom and the rules of Islam, there will be no civil war."

Shariatmadari said the government had broken promises made to him about self-government for the region and refused to intervene to halt the turmoil, centered mainly in Tabriz.

Fresh clashes and killings were reported in the area where a government peace commission held talks to try to halt the violence.

At least two people were killed and about 20 wounded in clashes Monday in the west Azerbaijan capital of Urumieh between loyalist revolutionary guards and dissident supporters of Shariatmadari, who bluntly accused the government of renegeing on recent promises to the populous region.

Tabriz, scene of weekend violence, was quiet today as the government commission headed by Finance Minister Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr held a second session of talks to try to halt further bloodshed.

In Tehran, Foreign Minister Sadegh Qotbzadeh urged industrial nations to shun any American "conspiracy" to boycott Iran and said independent observers would shortly visit the American hostages, "hopefully on a regular basis," to judge and report on their health.

Obviously referring to the current European tour of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to try to line up support for the U.S. position on Iran, Qotbzadeh urged industrial nations to "defend their independence and don't join the American conspiracy" to boycott Iran.

Vance arrived in West Germany today on the last leg of his whirlwind campaign through Europe to increase pressure on Iran to release the American hostages.

Earlier, Vance was given assurances of support in Britain, France and Italy. He reportedly urged Japanese officials to curb their purchases of Iranian oil on the spot market, an action which has bolstered Iran's economy and angered American officials.

Young Marine Reports Hostages Separated

DENVER (AP) — A 21-year-old Marine, one of 50 Americans being held hostage in Iran at the embassy he once guarded, says he has "no idea" where 20 of the hostages are being held or how they are faring.

His own treatment has been good, said Cpl. Billy Gallegos in an NBC-TV interview Monday, but he said he does not believe the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is worth dying for.

"We're not ready to hold out here forever," he said. White House press secretary Jody Powell said the Iranians' filming of the interview was "a cruel and very cynical attempt to divert public attention from international demands" that independent observers be permitted to visit the hostages.

Powell said Gallegos' statements "were made under duress and have no validity."

Gallegos, of Pueblo, Colo., and the other Americans have been held hostage since Nov. 4, when students stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The students say that all the hostages will be tried as spies unless the shah is returned for trial in Iran.

"I don't know what would happen then," Gallegos said. NBC said Gallegos' 22-minute interview, beamed by satellite from Tehran for prime-time network viewing, was the first on-camera report from inside the embassy since it was stormed five weeks ago.

The network said it was allowed to interview the hostage on the condition that the entire interview — and a statement from an Iranian student — be telecast. The statement, read by a woman identified only as "Mary," vilified the shah for "the largest thefts and exploitations of history" and repeated the Iranians' insistence that the shah must be returned before the hostages will be released.

CBS News had turned down the opportunity for a similar "so-called" interview, said anchorman Walter Cronkite on See MARINE HOSTAGE Page 18

Americans 'Getting Mad'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Senate Republican Leader Ted Stevens said today he does not know how long the American people will continue to support President Carter's handling of the crisis in Iran.

"People are getting mad," the Alaska senator told reporters. "They are maintaining support for the president, but I don't know how long that is going to last."

Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia charged that Japanese interests "condone if not actually reward illegal actions taken against American citizens" by offering high prices for Iranian oil formerly sold to the United States.

And Sen. Russell Long, D-La., said that if the crisis in Iran led to international hostilities, "Japan will be far less able to defend itself" than the United States.

"If Japan is cheating in this episode, in the future it will find itself in far greater peril than the U.S.," said Long. He said the Japanese have little military might and must depend on the United States for their international security.

In Paris on Monday, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance charged that some Japanese companies are rushing to buy "at extraordinarily high prices" Iranian oil that the United States is no longer buying because of the crisis.

Byrd and Long spoke on the Senate floor. Stevens, who attended one of a series of briefings for senators by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher on Monday, volunteered his comments to reporters.

He said he was "increasingly disturbed over the lack of information concerning the health of the (50 American) hostages" being held by radical students in Tehran.

"So far as we know, no doctor has seen the hostages since the first hostages were released," he said.

The Republican leader also expressed concern about the Japanese actions and about a Soviet battalion which he said was reported to be within 40 miles of the Iranian border.

He said he was sure that Vance "is telling our allies that he does not know how long the administration can continue on its present course in view of the increasing decibels" of the public response.

Stevens did not say what alternative course of action he thought might ensue.

Emerging from a Democratic congressional breakfast with Carter today, House Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said he would not speculate on any possible new initiatives regarding Iran.

But he said the mood "continues to be one of very great concern."

He said it was significant that the administration hoped that Vance's trip to Europe might encourage greater cooperation. See SENATOR WARNS Page 18

Snow, Rain In Forecast For Plains

A-J News Services Dreams of a "white Christmas" may come true for South Plains residents two weeks early this year.

Wintry weather is scheduled to make a return appearance across the area late today, bringing to an end the unseasonably high temperatures experienced during the past several days.

A strong cold front, bringing a chance of light snow, pushed its way into Northwest Texas early this morning. Forecasters are calling for increasing cloudiness and much lower temperatures throughout the area by tonight.

Snow flurries were expected in the Panhandle by this afternoon, with occasional light snow predicted for the northern areas of the state by tonight.

A mixture of rain and snow is possible for the South Plains tonight, changing to snow by early Wednesday. The probability of precipitation is 30 percent tonight, increasing to 40 percent by Wednesday.

The rain and snow is not likely to add appreciably to the area's moisture total, forecasters said, with amounts generally expected to be under half an inch.

Temperatures were expected to dip sharply tonight, dropping to the upper 20s after this afternoon's predicted high of near 60. Highs Wednesday will be only in the low 40s, forecasters said.

Across the state, highs today were to range from the 40s in northwest sections to the low 80s in the extreme south. Lubbock itself has enjoyed mild conditions with temperatures ranging from 75 Monday afternoon to 43 degrees for the overnight low.

Gold Hits Record High On European Markets

LONDON — Gold soared to new record opening levels in London and Zurich today, triggered by renewed concern about oil prices. The dollar fell back in Europe.

Gold jumped $15 in Zurich to a record $446 an ounce and rocketed by $11.75 overnight in London to open at $443.25 — a record opening price in both centers.

One dealer in Zurich anticipated spot prices might touch $450 in the course of the day.

"Gold made a sharp jump today because there is a feeling on the market that the Americans won't hold a gold auction before the OPEC meeting in Caracas on Dec. 17," a Zurich dealer said.

"The market is worried about rumors that oil prices will be increased by 35 to 50 percent and feels that the oil price situation is going out of control."

London dealers also reported speculators returned strongly to the gold market, although prices retreated a fraction after the very high price established at the outset.

"There has been a lot of business around on behalf of the big institutions," said a dealer for bullion brokers Samuel Montagu.

Another expert at Moccata and Goldsmith said: "The market in gold is now swinging on the bull side. Even the Americans who have been sellers recently have now come in as buyers."

A spokesman for Sharps Pixley, another trader, said: "The Middle East situation and an easing in the dollar has brought speculators back into the market on a large scale this morning."

The opening prices outpaced the previous record of October 2 when gold opened at $435 in Zurich and closed at $438.

The dollar fell on the money markets and dealers in Frankfurt reported "very sensitive" trading because of the tense relations between the United States and Iran.

Dealers said they were watching Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's tour of Western Europe to coordinate economic action against Iran "with great interest."

The dollar opened at 1.7450 marks in Frankfurt, down from 1.7515 marks overnight. In Zurich, the rate eased to 1.6102 Swiss francs from 1.6130 and in Amsterdam the dollar rated 1.9330 guilders down from 1.9370 overnight.

In Paris, the dollar rated 4.1055 francs down from 4.1132 and it was marked down at 28.955 Belgian francs in Brussels from 29.025. The dollar was worth 815.75 lira in Milan compared with 817.70 Monday night.

City Council Facing New Controversy Over Street

By SYLVIA TEAGUE Avalanche-Journal Staff

The controversy over renaming Quirt Avenue after Martin Luther King Jr. probably will be fueled Wednesday when the Lubbock City Council considers renaming the street, but not after King or any other person.

At its last meeting the council tentatively approved an amendment to an ordinance specifying how Lubbock streets are named to pave the way for changing the name of Quirt Avenue.

The council will be considering final approval of that amendment Wednesday. At the previous meeting, the council also determined King should be honored by naming the largest of the Canyon Lakes after the slain civil rights leader.

That action has generated criticism from the Human Relations Commission, which requested the street name change, and from many in the minority community.

Also on the agenda for the 9:30 a.m. meeting in council chambers is a discussion of financing for a Southwest Lubbock branch library and community room.

The council reluctantly had decided earlier to use federal Community Development funds to finance construction of the community room.

However, because the federal government would insist the meeting room be used only by low- and moderate-income senior citizens, members of the library board asked the Lubbock County commissioners to pay for the room.

Monday the commissioners voted to pay 40 percent of the construction cost if the city will pay the remaining portion with funds other than Community Development.

Although the county pays 40 percent of current library operational costs, the commissioners had refused until Monday to bear any cost of building the new branch.

The council will hold the first of two public hearings on proposed uses for $3.3 million in Community Development funds at 11 a.m.

Among the projects recommended for funding with the city's annual allocation are neighborhood rehabilitation in seven Lubbock neighborhoods at an estimated cost of $1.8 million, improvements at seven city parks expected to cost $447,000 and construction of a day care center in Arnett Benson for $250,000.

The council also will consider approving a gas contract between Lubbock Power and Light and Pioneer Natural Gas which will raise the average customer's electric bill about $1 a month.

The five-year gas supply contract with a price guarantee for two years would take effect Jan. 1 and increase the total price of gas paid by LP&L from $2.08 per million BTUs to $2.19.

The council will meet again on Thursday at 9:30 a.m., so it will not have to reconvene until January.

On that abbreviated agenda is consideration of bids for the branch library construction and an "analysis" of the 15 percent pay hike for Lubbock firefighters to be voted on Jan. 19.

Another firefighters' request — for collective bargaining rights — will be discussed at Wednesday's meeting.

Lubbock firefighters circulated petitions several weeks ago asking citizens for support in their efforts to bargain collectively with the city and to get a higher pay increase than planned by the council.

Chinese Request Return Of Skull

PEKING (UPI) — China has called for the return of the missing Peking Man's skull, which it said was lost by Americans on the eve of World War II.

Professor Fei Wenzhong appealed to scientists around the world for help at a meeting marking the 50th anniversary of his discovery of the first skull of the Peking Man, who Chinese scholars say lived between 200,000 and 600,000 years ago.

It was unearthed Dec. 2, 1929 in one of anthropology's greatest finds.

But in the chaotic days preceding World War II, the skull and other fossils were "lost in the hands of Americans," Fei said.

Fei, 76, said China's studies in ancient biology were at their peak between 1927 and 1937 with excavation of the Zhoukoudian caves 32 miles southwest of Peking, where the oldest skull was found.

A paper read on the anniversary of the find said a study estimated the cave to be 426,000 years old.

The paper summed up the investigation conducted since the end of 1977 by over 120 researchers from 17 scientific institutions across China, said the Chinese-language news service.

GREATER POPULATION

Although Europe is about the same size as Canada, its population is greater than North and South America combined, according to National Geographic.

The paper said the climate of the period when Peking Man lived was slightly warmer than, or similar to, that of north China today but with some drier or colder spells.

It said more than 30 species of mammalian fossils, hundreds of artifacts and bone fragments have been discovered at the site. Excavations in half of the cave resumed in September 1978, the report said.

LTC Board Announces Lindsey Theater Purchase

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

In an effort to help revitalize the city's downtown area and increase the quality of its own productions, the Lubbock Theatre Centre board announced the purchase of the historic Lindsey Theater, 1019 Main, at a news conference Monday in the theater lobby.

While LTC board president Richard Talley maintained the new stage, to be re-named the Lindsey Center For The Performing Arts, will not be ready for use for at least 18 months, he confirmed that the building's ownership has changed hands. He declined to reveal the Lindsey family's asking price for the property, but did state "between $500,000 and $750,000" will be spent on renovation.

Funds for this renovation will be derived partly from state and national grants, and partly from community contributions, according to Talley. "There are a considerable amount of funds (grants) available for projects like this one," he said. "And that was one reason we decided on this. There are also local and state foundations interested. . . . But we are a community theater, and we will definitely need the support of the community. . . . We'll be announcing our fund drive shortly, and that will play an important part."

According to Talley, the present Lubbock Theatre Centre playhouse at 2508 Ave. P was "impossible to renovate." There was no way to support energy conservation policies, and the stage was too small. Questioned about faltering LTC attendance, he confirmed the falling figures and explained them with, "There are four reasons attendance has fallen at Lubbock Theatre Centre. First, there isn't adequate parking. Second, the location of the building. Then there's the condition of the building. Sometimes we have heating, sometimes we don't. . . ."

"And finally, we could not put on a quality production at that location because of the stage requirements. We had to build elaborate sets for visual effects. There was not enough in the way of fly space or backstage room."

He said that, while the 1979 fall musical "Gypsy" was a success, "the people never knew what was going on backstage, where we had 65 people working in a 35 square foot area."

The Lindsey Theater, which reopened with "movie palace" proportions in 1940 and closed in early 1979 after being reduced to showing B-pictures at reduced admission rates, will be restored to its original form. The theater offers live theater personnel, the added floor and backstage space, as well as an increased seating capacity. Lubbock Theatre Centre currently seats 280; the Lindsey Center For The Performing Arts will open with a seating capacity between 700 and 900, enough to handle not only live theater but any other performing arts group (ballets, traveling productions) which may want to rent the facility.

Talley said, "Community theater is generally more intimate. And even with the larger house, our increased lighting capabilities will allow us to retain our intimacy."

Talley also does not feel the downtown area has a parking problem, at least not during evening hours. "Most of the theater productions are staged late in the evening," he said. "And after 5 p.m., after the businesses close, I don't feel the parking situation is bad. And besides, that's one reason we're doing this project: to revitalize the downtown area. We had considered building in southwest Lubbock, but we felt the downtown area shouldn't be forgotten. Because of the Civic Center, because of businesses and restaurants, this can be a popular area."

"Downtown needs to be an important part of Lubbock."

Architect Ron Beard, whose firm has been contracted for the restoration of the building, concurred, saying later, "Really, within a one-half to one block distance from the Lindsey, there are close to 300 parking spaces. And that's not including street parking."

Those businesses running these parking lots have not yet been contacted for permission to use the space, however.

Beard added that there is a possibility the success of the Lindsey restoration could once again breathe life into an older plan, reportedly first brought up while Lubbock was rebuilding after the 1970 tornado, to create an "Avenue J Mall" area.

Talley added, though, that his main concern is putting on better plays, drawing bigger crowds and bringing people back downtown. He said the idea of transforming a movie palace into a home for live theater is not that new, that similar projects are already underway in Albuquerque, N.M., and Norman, Okla., and summarized that, "People are discovering that the new buildings are just not that sound. This building (the Lindsey) is extremely sound, all steel construction."

Pioneer businesswoman Mrs. J.D. Lindsey built the Lindsey Theater, Lubbock's first movie theater, in 1916. The next two decades saw tremendous growth and progress in the city — so much so that on April 9, 1940, the downtown Lindsey was closed for what was labeled "remodeling." That remodeling was actually the construction of an entirely new facility: a true movie palace with balcony, stage and 1,300 seats. The new look was unveiled to the public on November 7, 1940, with the local premiere of "The Mark Of Zorro," starring Tyrone Power and Basil Rathbone.

The 1970s, however, saw the Lindsey lose business to the multi-plex theaters outside the downtown area. In 1978, a "dollar policy" was instituted, but the crowds still weren't there. And in January of 1979, Video Theaters, which had leased the theater from the Lindsey family heirs, decided to close the theater.

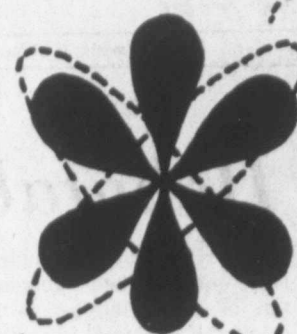

The theater has been owned by members of the Lindsey family since its inception, according to Lindsey family heir Mrs. Bruce Gentry. She said Monday that the theater's ownership was listed in the names of "Lindsey heirs Mrs. Clifton Lindsey, Mrs. Ralph Lindsey, Ralph Lindsey Jr., Tommy Slaughter, Loyette Halffey, Iva York and Mary Gentry."

The Lindsey Theater has also been used for quite some time by the Downtown Bible Class, sponsored by The First Baptist Church, for its weekly meetings. Roe Tipton, president of the Bible Class for five years, said the Downtown Bible Class has met in downtown theaters since 1928 and, more specifically, at the Lindsey Theater "since it opened." The current teacher of the class, I.D. Walker, said "an average of 120 to 125 people come to our classes at 9:45 in the morning on Sundays."

Air Carrier Eliminates Two Flights

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Southwest Airlines is cutting back 10 percent of its weekly departures during the next three months to save fuel, but only two flights will be eliminated from Lubbock International Airport schedules.

"Out of the entire system, only two connections to San Antonio from Lubbock will be dropped," said Camille Keith, vice president of public relations for Southwest. She said that no flights between Lubbock and Dallas will be cancelled.

The cancellations took effect Monday. Mrs. Keith said she was unsure which Lubbock to San Antonio flights will be eliminated, but she said the flights scheduled to be dropped across the state were extra flights added to the airline schedule Nov. 7.

Southwest officials speculate the cut-back will save about 1.5 million gallons of jet fuel, and a slightly slower cruise speed recently instituted should conserve another 350,000 gallons monthly.

"The flights being cancelled have been selectively removed from high frequency markets, such as Dallas-Houston, where Southwest will still offer 26 round trips daily. December, January and February traditionally are lower travel months for business travelers, and we can make these cuts without affecting convenience and available seats," Howard D. Putnam, Southwest president, said.

Despite slower cruise speeds and fewer flights to offset the tight supply of fuel now averaging about 72 cents a gallon, Putnam noted, "Another fare increase will be necessary in mid-January."

Woman Sues Railway In Husband's Death

A Lorenzo woman Monday filed suit against Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co. of Amarillo in the Dec. 10, 1977 death of her husband in a truck-train collision in Lubbock.

Belva March claims in the suit filed in 140th District Court that warning signals were inadequate and the train whistle was not sounded at the North Gary Street crossing where the accident took place.

The accident victim, Randy Ray March, 21, died Dec. 23, 1977 at a Lubbock from injuries suffered in the collision, the suit said. The suit does not ask for a specific amount in damages.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Debates Not Debatable

THE TIME of campaigning has come and the voices of presidential hopefuls are again being heard in our land, tra la.

But this time around, there will be more voices to be heard more frequently and, in most cases, in nationally televised debate with each other.

With a string already scheduled, and more surely to come later, the one-on-one, or several-on-several, confrontation may become as familiar a fixture of the campaign season as the now ubiquitous primaries.

The opener is a five-candidate Republican affair set for the first week of the New Year. But the BIG One comes the following week between Jimmy Carter and Edward Kennedy.

BOTH ARE in Iowa under the sponsorship of the Des Moines Register and Tribune newspaper. The Iowa debates are tests which, if passed, will make them precedents.

The nature of the sponsorship is expected to get around the provisions in federal law, requiring equal time for all candidates, that complicate similar presentations by the networks directly or by organizations such as the League of Women Voters.

The Register and Tribune stated purpose is to sound out the major candidates on matters of special interest to that part of the country. Farm issues, in particular.

However, the focus on regional issues doubtless of national interest could be applicable elsewhere.

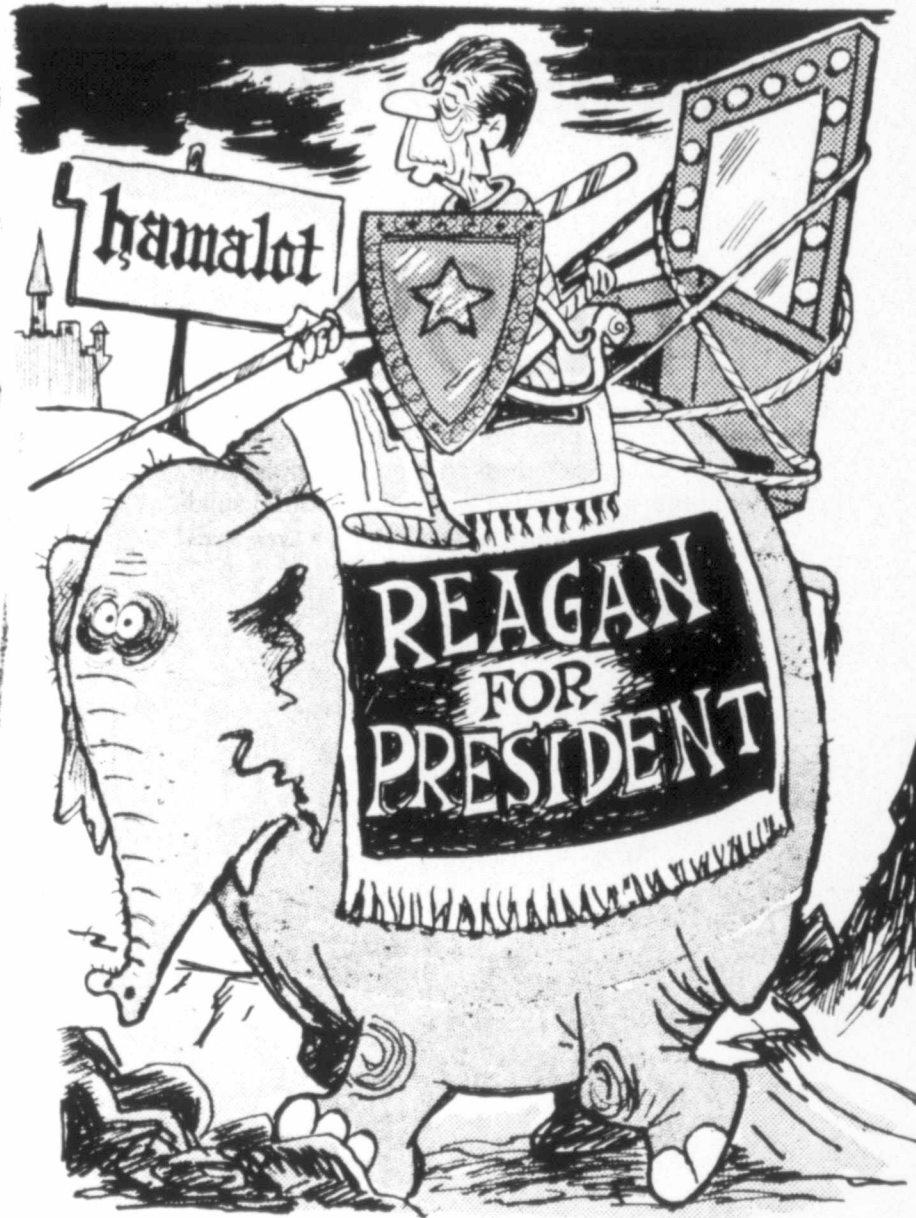

THE DEBATE concept has had slow going since its start in the 1960 Nixon-Kennedy campaign and the reason is not entirely the legal obstacles involved.

That precedent vividly demonstrated the consequences of the merciless scrutiny of cameras which in the words of CBS newsman Dan Rather "never blink."

A candidate may be a stemwinder on the stump before a few hundred local folks. But if he isn't quick on the uptake in live debate on TV, he's a goner before a national audience of millions. There is no opportunity to recoup.

Which is, of course, a primary (you should excuse the expression) reason why the issue will not go away. Voters have a vested interest in seeing each candidate under pressure.

Extension of this forum to the primaries is evidence that the question of whether candidate debates have a role in presidential elections is no longer debatable.

John D. Lofton:

Nicaragua Fetters Free Press

WASHINGTON—Despite the overwhelming evidence that it exists, the reality of repression in Nicaragua continues to be ignored by the Carter administration.

In his testimony late last month before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Viron Vaky, the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said that he was "pleased" that the Nicaraguan government has "re-established an open press." An open press?

On Sept. 22, Nicaragua's Culture Ministry announced that, for the first time in the country's history, journalism would be regulated—that henceforth only members of the Managua Radio Newsmsns Union and the Union of Journalists of Nicaragua would be allowed as newsmen.

When I asked the State Department for a comment on this action, I was given the following answer:

"THE REQUIREMENT of membership in such unions to practice the profession of journalism is not itself either unusual in Latin America nor a danger to free speech and press."

Well, the State Department is half-right. Indeed, press regulation in Latin America is not unprecedented. But such restrictions most certainly are an infringement on freedom of expression.

The Inter-American Press Association has passed a resolution calling on Nicaragua to revoke its media law because it "would severely limit the exercise of independent journalism."

Guillermo Villaneuva, media director of Nicaragua's Culture Ministry, rejected the IAPA's request, calling his country's press regulation law "one of the most important achievements of the revolutionary process."

Pedro Joaquin Chamorro Barrios, the son of the assassinated director of Nicaragua's largest paper, La Prensa, says that his country's press law is "ambiguous and in many respects restrictive," and that it "limits one of the basic rights of man—the free expression and dissemination of thought."

IN A LETTER to me, IAPA General Manager James Canel says:

"The requirement that journalists be members of the radio union or the journalists union is equivalent to licensing journalists.

"In Latin America, the system of licensing began in Havana in 1942, but those who started it—ostensibly to raise the professional level of journalism—now regret their initiative because they realize it can become a lethal weapon in the hands of government."

"The danger is that a tight group can decide who is licensed. And here politics and government intervention can play a decisive role."

BOTH H.L. STEVENSON, editor-in-chief and vice president of United Press International, and Norman Isaacs, chairman of the National News Council, agree with Canel. Stevenson tells me:

Paul Scott:

Carter Tunes In TV Diplomacy

WASHINGTON—Several unreported factors were behind President Carter's "television diplomacy" in the carefully managed crisis in Iran.

Most pressing of these was the need to blunt the mounting pressure building up to set a deadline for release of American hostages held since the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran more than a month ago.

Another of these hidden factors was a decision to send the Kremlin's surrogates in Iran a warning not to overplay their roles in the unfolding tragedy—designed as a cover for altering the flow of oil from Iran to Russia and the Soviet bloc over the next two years.

While the broad objective of the new "TV diplomacy" was to create the public image that the President was exerting firm leadership but acting prudently, it was the "unexpected" that triggered the President's return to center stage in the carefully orchestrated drama.

THE TV APPEARANCE became necessary when the Democratic House leadership notified the White House that Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., the No. 3 Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee, was circulating a "Sense of Congress" resolution calling on the President to set a deadline for release of the hostages.

If a deadline is not met by Iran, Stratton's resolution states, the U.S. should initiate "selected, deliberate, sustained, and increasingly severe military operations against Iran" to obtain the release of the American prisoners.

What disturbed the President's foreign policy advisers was that Stratton, a highly respected lawmaker who heads the powerful New York Congressional delegation, obtained 54 co-signers for his resolution in two days.

IT WAS DECIDED that the President should send a public signal to Moscow and Tehran indicating his opposition to a deadline and that everything was on track.

By upstaging Stratton's press conference by a day, the President was able to assure the Soviets and their surrogates in Iran that no change was being made in the game plan worked out in Vienna last June.

White House insiders say privately that Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security adviser, and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance recommended the TV appearance.

Their concern was the Stratton resolution, designed to give the President a powerful new weapon he could use to break the Iranian deadlock, might be misinterpreted by the men in the Kremlin and their surrogates in Iran.

Another fear was that the Russians might think that the oil deal agreed to at Vienna was about to come apart at the seams.

be the first Democrat to announce for the Southwest Lubbock seat in the Texas Legislature gets the 1980 political season in full swing here.

Oddly enough, she enters the fray with better name identification than can be claimed by Republican incumbent Buzz Robnett.

As a freshman representative this year, Robnett had such a low profile that many of his constituents still don't know his name.

Even at his own reception last week, Robnett stood in the publicity shadow of House Speaker Bill Clayton, who as a Democrat raised some eyebrows by attending a Republican's fund-raiser.

CLAYTON EXPLAINED that he goes to such events for all incumbents, a fact which helps him both hold onto his job as Speaker and broaden his base for a run at the governor's mansion.

Robnett and Clayton, both conservatives, don't believe the party label means much in the House of Representatives.

Robnett, who defeated another woman, Democrat Xen Oden, last year, figures that he's philosophically in tune with his conservative district and that his record and hard work during the campaign will win him re-election.

MRS. JORDAN SAYS she's perfectly willing to meet him on those terms. She's a conservative too, she insists, despite a widespread perception to the contrary and she has her record on the City Council "to prove it."

She says her "sensitivity" to minority problems when she first became a councilman, together with the public's natural inclination to think that all women in politics are liberal activists, may have overshadowed her fiscally conservative stance.

"I'm still sensitive to minority problems," she says, "but I'm not as naive as I was. Sitting in court (during trial of a suit to force the ward system on Lubbock) day after day and hearing allegations that Lubbock had not treated minorities fairly, when we have, opened my eyes."

In opting for a legislative race, without any admitted long-range political plans, Mrs. Jordan gives up a shot at becoming the first woman mayor of Lubbock.

Mayor Dirk West insists he won't seek re-election. Councilman Bill McAlister, whose term expires along with Mrs. Jordan's, has tentative eyes on the mayor's chair. So does Mayor pro tem Alan Henry, but his Council term has two years to run.

LUBBOCK WILL ELECT a mayor and at least two councilmen in April. That'll be two months after the smoke has cleared from a Jan. 19 referendum to give the firefighters' union collective bargaining powers.

The union effort, in tandem with the firemen's demands for an 8 percent raise on top of the 7 percent boost they've already received, could get the 1980 political year off to a bang.

Minority voters are hungrily eyeing both the City Council and the County Commission. They, like the Republicans, want a big voice in legislative and county redistricting after the 1980 census.

It could be a year of heavy campaigning for a lot of issues and elective posts.

Whether this backstage maneuvering by the President and the Democratic House leadership will succeed still isn't certain.

With Congress moving toward a Dec. 21 recess for the Christmas holidays, most lawmakers will not want to go back to their home districts without taking action to try to free the hostages.

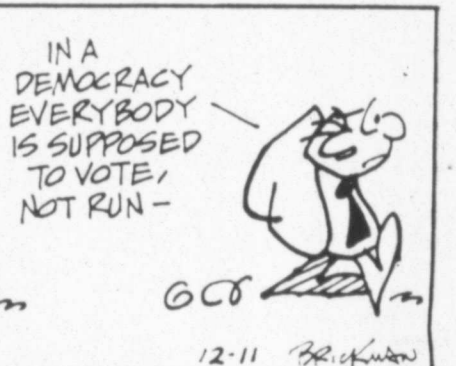

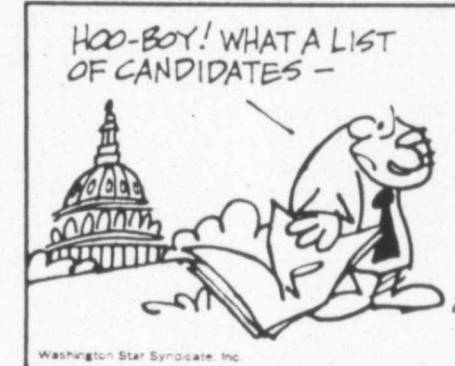

All now appears to be up to the American people to petition their representatives in Congress and the President to act to end this Iranian tragedy before its fallout ignites violent conflict within the U.S.

Many loyal government security officials here believe "TV diplomacy" is the forerunner to the creation of revolutionary conditions in the U.S. by TV. Will the streets of New York and Washington be the streets of Tehran tomorrow?

Help For The Disabled Can Come From Peers

WASHINGTON—ITEM: If you have a small, disabled child, a pair of kitchen tongs could be a perfect way to help your child move toy cars and trucks.

ITEM: If you must drive someone in a wheelchair, you'll find it easier to pull the wheelchair into the back seat of a two-door car than a four-door because there is no door post to get in the way.

Also poor construction and slow service plague wheelchair owners just as they do owners of cars, so make friends with the nearest bicycle repair shop. This shop often can do a fast and efficient repair job.

ITEM: If you have trouble grasping doorknobs, you will find they can be turned easily if you put heavy rubber bands or the nonslip strips that are used in bathtubs around them.

AND IF BENDING is difficult for you, long-handled barbecue tools will make it easier for you to use a conventional broiler, while putting a baking sheet underneath a cake pan or baking dish will make it easier to pull the pan or dish from the oven.

ITEM: If your hands are weak and it's tough for you to hold vegetables steady for peeling or cutting, drive two stainless steel nails about one inch apart through a cutting board from below. The nails will hold the produce firmly.

All these useful tips and many, many more are in the recently published "The Source Book for the Disabled" (Paddington Press; hard cover $15.95, soft $9.95).

THE BOOK IS edited by Gloria Hale, who, among her activities with the disabled, started the first 4H group for handicapped children and worked with the New England Telephone Co. to develop special teaching aids.

Of the other six contributors, two are themselves disabled and thus know from personal experience what life is like not only for the elderly, the handicapped and those with temporary disabilities but also for their families and friends.

It's imperative for all of us to realize that a disabled child is more like than unlike any other child. This disabled child has the same needs for play as any other child, but research has shown disabled children tend to have fewer outings and toys than normal children.

CONCERNED PARENTS and friends may understandably feel that a handicapped child is less able to play—when in fact, what he needs is stronger encouragement to do so.

A disabled infant, for instance, needs to be moved to different rooms and given different toys to grasp—things he could do himself if he could move easily alone. Also, it's essential to know how to:

- * Design and outfit a house to meet the needs of a disabled resident;
* Do simple household chores, personal groom-

Israeli Diplomat Discusses Peace Developments

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

While recent attention has been focused on the Americans held hostage in Iran, there have been positive developments in the Middle East, an Israeli diplomat says.

Tzion Evrony, vice consul with the Israeli consulate in Houston, said the peace process between Israel and Egypt is continuing and should be largely complete with the exchange of ambassadors in February.

As part of that peace process, Israel turned over to Egypt important oil fields in the Sinai three weeks ago.

Those fields were supplying 25 percent of Israel's oil needs, Evrony said, and had the potential of supplying all the country's petroleum requirements.

"We made a powerful sacrifice because we feel peace is more important," Evrony said. It has been a painful and expensive decision for Israel which now must rely almost totally on purchasing oil on the world spot market.

Following a summit conference on Jan. 7 between Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, Evrony said Israel will withdraw from about 60 percent of the Sinai.

Scheduled to occur on Jan. 25, Evrony said the even withdrawal would mark "a historic turning point in the Middle East."

The full normalization of relations between the two countries will follow, he said, including the opening of borders and direct land and air connections between Israel and Egypt.

However, negotiations will continue on the unresolved question of a homeland for Palestinians, he said.

Evrony said he is hopeful moderate Palestinian representatives and Jordanian officials will formally participate in the negotiations, and predicted the next steps in the peace process "may be easier."

But the Israeli position remains firm, he said. "We will never agree to allow the creation of an independent Palestinian state."

"Such a state would be like having a Soviet enclave on the other side of the Potomac or Rio Grande rivers," he said.

"It would be a prescription for war, not a foundation for peace," because of the Palestinian Liberation Organization's commitment to annihilate Israel, Evrony said.

The PLO covenant states the group would use such an independent nation as a springboard to attack the rest of Israel, he said.

Recent reports that the PLO is more moderate and less terroristic are false, Evrony said, adding the organization's covenant calling for the destruction of the state of Israel recently was reaffirmed.

Noting the PLO never has attacked a military target, Evrony said in the past 10 years the group has killed 650 civilians in Israel and 350 Arabs on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

The PLO also has "attacked many American embassies," he said, and killed two U.S. diplomats in Sudan in 1973 and the American Ambassador in Lebanon in 1976.

"Terrorism is an international disease and only international cooperation can uproot this form of terrorism," he said.

The Israeli government has directed its officials not to speak of the events in Iran, despite recent reports the PLO may have been instrumental in the U.S. Embassy takeover, he said.

"We Israelis hope and pray with you for the safe release of the hostages," he said. "Our thoughts and emotions are with the hostages in Iran."

Evrony said he came to Lubbock "to address the Jewish community" and clarify recent misunderstandings regarding the Middle East.

Joe Barnett Announces Resignation

Joe Barnett, Broadway Church of Christ minister for 11 years, has announced his resignation from the position to allow more time for media ministries, including a nationally syndicated television program.

Barnett's successor as Broadway minister will be Dr. Ken Dye, who has preached for the Church of Christ in Stillwater, Okla., for the past seven years.

Barnett's final Sunday with Broadway will be Jan. 13, and Dye will take over the services beginning Jan. 20.

Barnett announced his resignation during church services Sunday, explaining that the decision to end his ministry at Broadway was strictly a matter of conscience. For many years he has been involved in media ministries, including a literature ministry which he founded and has directed since 1974, and the television program which appears on 100 television stations across the nation.

Barnett said the increased demands for time in these projects necessitated his leaving the Lubbock church.

Ken Hancock, chairman of the Broadway elders, expressed the elders' full support of Barnett's plans for expanding his ministry through the media and praised Barnett's 11 years with the church.

The church, one of the largest Churches of Christ in the world, has grown significantly during Barnett's service.

The annual budget has grown from $268,000 in 1968 to a current operating budget of $1 million. The annual special offering for the Children's Home of Lubbock has grown from $5,000 to $50,000.

In the past three years, special offerings for building projects amounted to almost $1 million on May 17, 1977, and $2,268,000 in November 1978. The latter is the largest contribution received on a single Sunday by any church in the nation.

Barnett, who with his family will continue to make his home in Lubbock, will remain as a featured speaker on the national Herald of Truth program and will still serve as editor of the 20th Century Christian magazine, a post he has occupied since 1975.

The majority of his time will be spent in expanding Pathway Evangelism, an organization he founded in 1974.

Pathway Evangelism is primarily a print ministry, which mails Barnett's writings to thousands of people all over the nation. The organization will be expanded to include ministries in radio and television and will continue to be based in Lubbock.

To introduce Broadway's new minister to the congregation, Dye will speak for church services Sunday evening.

Dye is a graduate of Abilene Christian University, with a master's degree from Eastern New Mexico University and a doctorate in family relations and child development from Oklahoma State University.

He has preached for Texas churches in McGregor, Lariat and Denton and has done mission work in Kingston, Jamaica.

CINCINNATI (AP) — A $11.25 million lawsuit contends the city of Cincinnati failed to follow crowd control measures at the Riverfront Coliseum rock concert where 11 people died in a rush of fans Dec. 3.

The suit was filed Monday in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court by attorney David A. Chicarelli, on behalf of John and Betty Snyder, parents of Phillip Snyder, 20, one of the victims.

The city has authority over the Coliseum, it knew beforehand of possible trouble, it ignored safety recommendations two years ago by the Cincinnati Human Relations Commission and failed to enforce the liquor and drug laws, Chicarelli said in an interview.

Named as defendants in the suit were the city; Riverfront Coliseum Inc., members of The Who, performers at the concert; the promoter Electric Factory Concerts of Philadelphia, and Cal Levy, the local agent, and off-duty Cincinnati policemen employed by the Coliseum.

The Snyder suit claims the organizers failed to provide adequate seating, security, ushers, ticket-takers and crowd control devices.

Shop Offers Expensive Gifts

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Puzzling over a Christmas gift for the star or business tycoon who owns a $1 million piece of exclusive Beverly Hills? How about real gold sandals? A silver-plated gas can? Or the world's smallest toy train?

To much of the outside world, this exclusive Los Angeles community is home to the big name movie stars, to the wealthy who can pay for homes worth a few hundred thousand to millions, to the people who have everything.

And retailers here are staking the "one who has everything" with a vengeance this Christmas.

If the gent still misses his toy trains as he dominates the business world, how about the Marklin Z? Billed as the world's smallest train, a Oarkin set — about $6,000 — can be set up inside an at-tache case.

The Marklin is available at The Price of His Toys, a Beverly Hills shop also offering a $3,000 all-wood clock, $500 kaleidoscopes and a gold gasoline can for $350. The economy aersion — silver-plated, for, no doubt, those who can't send the chauffeur in search of an operating service station — goes for only $250.

Some toys apparently get too expensive for millionaires. For $250,000, investment banker Chris Cord will let you sponsor his race car on the 1980 International Motorsports Association circuit.

Despite a Thanksgiving rush, Geary's still has silver-plated turkey panties to dress up the drumsticks of a holiday bird. Just $15.

BIFOCALS INVENTOR
Bifocal eyeglasses, with the upper part for viewing distant objects and the lower for near, were invented by Benjamin Franklin.

For the man who has everything but his own hair, the Aderans salon will do some preliminary reforesting for just $300. "Lifetime maintenance," however, can cost up to $25,000, depending on the state of his follicles.

Gucci's reports brisk business again this year, with one Beverly Hills matron ordering sandals of real gold studded with diamonds, rubies and sapphires. Price $7,500. Also flush was the plastic surgeon who plunked down $20,000 at Gucci's for a bedspread made of "amber glow" fox skins but ignored the $1,050 sterling silver telephone.

Bowser Boutique doesn't want man's best friend neglected during the holidays. Their $2.50 dog toys sit beside a $20 plastic fire hydrant that can store Fido's playthings — or serve in some other capacity.

Games are still big, and several stores are offering "Beverly Hills — A Game of Wealth and Status." Players don't use cash — that's tacky — but start with a $25,000 credit line in their drive to accumulate "status points." If players fail to act appropriately snobby, they are sent to the San Fernando Valley, a Los Angeles bedroom suburb.

Some gifts are practical. A legal group is offering $15 gift certificates that entitle the recipient to a 30-minute consultation with the slogan "Put a Little Law Under Your Tree."

Then there is the $15 solar-powered beanie, which uses a tiny solar cell to turn a propeller atop the hat.

Inventor Clyde Wagner hopes to have another solar-powered toy — a cheeseburger that dances in sunlight — on the market next Christmas.

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Christmas dinner? And your answer is always, "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year — as our children are ready to strike out on their own — that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself — and then complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't. Abby, please urge young marrieds to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

Sign me... "DOING MY OWN THING"

DEAR DOING: You make an excellent point. Your answer was better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas Eve, during my busy preparations for 18 dinner guests (and also during our meal), I was called to the telephone three times and kept there from 20 to 30 minutes while the callers wished me a "Merry Christmas." Each said, "I decided to phone rather than send cards this year," then proceeded to bring me up to date on their health, families and activities!

I appreciate their thoughts, and realize that by placing such calls they probably filled an otherwise lonely Christmas Eve, but if they must save the expense of sending Christmas cards, why can't they wait until the holiday is over, and then phone with their annual accounts of joys and sorrow?

Am I the only one who feels such calls are impositions?

UNAPPRECIATIVE IN OREGON

DEAR UNAPPRECIATIVE: Probably not. But if it's inconvenient for you to take the call, say so. And ask if you may return the call when you're able to visit longer.

GROWN-OUT PERM

What to do with a growing-out perm? Very little! Grown-out curls have the loose, subtle look that's perfect for holiday hairstyles this year, according to the hair care experts at Helene Curtis. Just remember to have hair trimmed to even the ends and shape the style. Use a blow-dryer attachment to dry hair gently and keep the curl from blowing out, and keep hair conditioned so that the wave will last throughout the holiday season.

The bidding: Four of ♣.
When the opponents freely bid to slam, you seldom double just to increase the penalty—if they know what they are doing, you will lose more in the long run than you stand to gain. Most experts, therefore, double a slam to suggest that an unusual lead, usually the first suit bid by dummy, is required to beat the contract. This double is known in the trade as a Lightner double. However, they might change their minds after they learn of this hand from the Cavendish Invitational Pairs, reported by Eric Kokish of Montreal.
This does not look like the sort of bidding you would expect from the field in one of the strongest events in this part of the world. We have no idea what North was doing, but South's slam bid was not an unreasonable gamble. It seemed likely that his partner was void in diamonds, so a slam would have a chance. Also, there was the possibility that the opponents would not allow six hearts to play, and that they might be talked into a phantom sacrifice. East did what you and we would have done—he expected to defeat six hearts, regardless of the lead.

If West had led a trump, a diamond or a club, this article would never have been written. But West "knew" that his partner wasn't doubling just to increase the penalty. The double had to be of the Lightner variety, requesting the lead of dummy's first-bid suit. So he dutifully led a spade.

Declarer called for the ten of spades from dummy, and ruffed away East's ace. Since there was no quick entry to dummy to take the trump finesse, declarer had no trouble guessing that suit —he banded down the ace, felling the king.

The rest was easy. Declarer entered dummy with a trump and discarded two clubs on the king-queen of spades. He was delighted to concede a diamond trick and score 1,210 for making six hearts doubled.

Accountants Debate Financial Solutions

By JAMES A. WHITE
NEW YORK (UPI) — "In recent years the change in the value of the dollar — the accountant's yardstick in this country — has been especially serious," wrote accounting theorist W.A. Paton in 1922. Today U.S. accountants are doing something about it.

But the intervening 57 years have produced only a consensus that action is needed to correct the distortion of financial statements caused by inflation — not solutions as to how the corrections should be made.

"A lot of people feel there isn't a good answer to inflation accounting but there was pressure to do something," says Dennis Beresford, partner in the accounting firm of Ernst & Whinney.

"It's like getting in the car and driving around the block — you're moving

Major companies and their auditors actually have no choice but to go along with the dual additions to the financial statements and are trying to figure ways to make the new information understandable.

Profit and loss figures prepared under the traditional historic cost method, which makes no inflation allowance but at least is familiar, will continue as the basic financial data for all companies.

"Accounting is an art, not a science, so there isn't necessarily going to be one right answer," says E&W's Beresford. "But probably the best thing that's happened is the historic cost statements will be retained.

"As long as we have those, we'll have sanity in accounting."

but you're not sure what direction you're going in."

The accounting firms that audit corporate financial statements have split over the best ways to account for inflation. Two principal methods have emerged:

— Constant dollar reporting adjusts a company's cost of goods sold and depreciation for general inflation as measured by the consumer price index.

— Current cost reporting adjusts for inflation as it applies to a company specifically.

The two approaches are significantly different, both in terms of results and reliability. Constant dollar is easier to compute and check but it has a major drawback because the general inflation rate can vary sharply from a company's actual price changes.

Current cost is aimed at specific price changes and so could be more useful in figuring how an individual company is doing. But it also has problems since many more inflation estimates are required, making verifiable data more elusive and expensive.

"Everybody agrees current cost is the ultimate but it's too hard to do," says partner Robert W. Berliner of Arthur Young & Co., a constant dollar advocate.

Equally adamant in the opposite position is Big 8 competitor Ernst & Whinney. Current cost is "much more relevant and not that much more subjective," says Beresford, adding that the constant dollar concept "has been around for 40 years and never caught on."

Unable to resolve the conflict but determined to act, the profession's rule-making body ordered both methods be used experimentally as supplements to the traditional unadjusted financial data provided shareholders. Big companies will include constant dollar figures in their 1979 annual reports and add current cost no later than the 1980 report.

The Solomon-like solution announced in October pleased few in either camp. Price Waterhouse & Co. called it a "dismaying result."

Fred Tepperman, another Arthur Young partner, complains, "It confuses an already confusing issue."

Corporations also howled, some displeased at the cost and all concerned over how shareholders will take the inflation adjustments that are likely to show company operating profits lower than the figures produced by conventional accounting.

TV Show Crew Hurt In Airplane Crash

NEWHALL, Calif. (AP) — Two members of the "Dukes of Hazzard" crew received only cuts and bruises when their plane took an unscripted crash, says a spokesman for the producers of the CBS television series.

Pilot Adam Berg and Jim Mohlman were playing bad guys when their single-engine plane flipped over in a gust of wind as it touched down in a ravine, said Warner Bros. spokesman Mike Casey.

The script had called for them to make off with the show's female star.

TABRIZ, Iran (UPI) — The Turkish-speaking Moslems of northwest Iran, less than a year after they fought to topple the shah, are spilling their blood again for a cause.
 That at least nine of them were killed in the seesaw battles for control of the radio and television station in the city of

But Khomeini may have overplayed his hand in laying the blame for the Tabriz killings on the United States.
 It will take a considerable stretch of the imagination to believe the United States has any influence anywhere in Iran these days, much less in the northwest.
 The northwest region of Iran has been untouched by the shah's so-called "greater civilization." The barren and mountainous terrain is predominantly brown and bleakly surrounds the city of Tabriz and its largely poverty-stricken population.

 Shepherds move herds along the streets past shops that display countless pictures of Khomeini and Shariatmadari, ayatollahs who with their beards and gray robes, look somewhat similar.
 Even before the battles erupted around the station, business was bad in Tabriz, the unofficial capital of Turkish-speaking Iran.
 "Before, I could get a letter of credit for six months," said a former entrepreneur.

"Now everyone wants cash."
 As youths supporting Shariatmadari marched past, they looked as grim as they did less than a year ago when they helped knock the shah off his Peacock Throne.
 The radio and TV station that overlooks the city is the most visible structure left by the shah's regime.
 For the present, at least, it is in the hands of militants who may be heading for a showdown with the government that replaced the shah.

Analysis

600,000 is a measure of their determination to win a stronger voice in the Islamic republic led by 79-year-old Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.
 But they also revere Ayatollah Kazem Shariatmadari, 73, who guides their drive for more self-rule in the northwest from the holy city of Qom.

"I was not in a position to control my people," Shariatmadari said as the shoot-outs at the station escalated toward Sunday's bloody confrontations.

For his part, Khomeini said, "This is a rebellion against Islam" and blamed "plotters who receive their orders from America."
 There has been no open split between Shariatmadari and Khomeini though statements from the two leaders have become more bitter.

But there are wide areas of agreement in that both sides are staunchly Moslem and anti-American.

As to what effect the violent internal strife could have on the fate of the 50 U.S. hostages in the American embassy, it already appears to have prompted Khomeini to step up his attacks on President Carter and the United States.

If Iranians generally perceive the holding of the hostages as a problem, the internal dilemma may divert them from seeing a need to deal with it soon.

That, of course, bodes ill for the United States.

Shah's Sister Grieves For Son, Denounces Islamic Regime

PARIS (UPI) — Princess Ashraf of Iran, whose son was assassinated in Paris last week, said in an interview today she was ready to die with the rest of her family if it could help overthrow the Islamic Revolutionary regime.

The 60-year-old twin sister of deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi told the conservative newspaper Aurore she grieved for her murdered son, but that her sorrow had moved her closer to fellow Iranians killed under the Islamic regime.

The interview was published as French police brought to Paris for questioning an Iranian student, turned back by British authorities after he landed at Dover, England.

France reiterated its warning it will combat with redoubled strength violence by Iranian fanatics.

Princess Ashraf, nicknamed by her enemies "the black tigress" or "the black panther" and charged with being the power behind the toppled shah, spoke in New York four days after an unknown assassin shot with two bullets her 34-year-old son just outside their Paris villa.

"I would gladly sacrifice my life, just like my son was ready to do so, and the life of our other children if it could help Iran pull itself out of its tragedy," she said.

"For a mother, the loss of a son is very sad," The princess said. "But this grief perhaps moved me even closer to my fellow-countrymen who died under the bullets of criminals."

"We must pray for all those who, like myself, have been made to suffer," she added. "The one thing I regret is having stopped him from returning to his country. Each day away from Iran for him was sheer hell. He was a true soldier. He wanted to return to his motherland at all cost."

Investigators who accompanied the Iranian student from Dover to Paris refused to reveal his identity. But they cautioned that preliminary questioning by Britain's Special Branch and French detectives dispatched to Britain has not produced any evidence of his involvement in the crime.

The French Justice Ministry launched a formal case against an unnamed person in the case and named Judge Guy Joly to handle it.

Anti-Iranian Protesters Clash With Students On Hunger Strike

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About 50 anti-Iranian protesters today ripped up the signs being carried by five Iranian students involved in a hunger strike on the steps of City Hall.

The confrontation erupted after country-western disc jockeys Ricci Ware and Jud Ashmore urged listeners on their morning show to join them at City Hall for what they termed "peaceful debate."

Only moments after the pair arrived, Ashmore approached the five students sitting on the steps and asked, "Would you mind taking your signs and getting the hell out of here?"

Ashmore then added, "We pay taxes and we think you are littering the steps. I've asked you to leave, now would you please do it?"

As the stunned students whispered among themselves, Ware grabbed a poster of Iran's new ruler Ayatollah Khomeini and tore it up in front of the students.

Ware and Ashmore's followers then ripped up the other signs. A police officer forced Ware to step back, but there were no arrests.

Until the confrontation, the students had quietly maintained their hunger strike, started Monday to protest the presence of the deposed shah at nearby Lackland Air Force Base.

Spokesman Mohsen Towliat said they also were protesting the city's refusal to issue a parade permit for a rally that had been planned for last Friday near Lackland.

Several persons who walked past the SAC students Monday stopped just long enough to fling an obscenity or two at the protesters.

A woman in a car stopped and made a common obscene gesture at the students. Police officers kept a wary eye of the situation.

The students merely sat silently with their anti-shah signs and a poster of new Iranian ruler Ayatollah Khomeini. They took a prayer break at 1 p.m., chanting and bowing to the East in Islamic tradition.

Towliat, 22, said, "This (the hunger strike) is the only way we can express our opinion of what is going on. We'll do it as long as we can survive."

As the students dodged insults and intermittent raindrops, the former monarch spent a quiet ninth day at Lackland. He is secluded at the base for an indefinite stay while American diplomats try to find him a home.

During the early hours of the hunger strike, one white-haired woman stopped on the stairs to challenge Towliat and the others.

"Do you think if I was in Iran they would allow me to sit on the steps of your city hall and do what you're doing?" asked the unidentified woman.

"Yes," responded Towliat. "No," the woman fired back. "An American would be killed for doing what you're doing. That's the kind of country your country is under that ruler (Khomeini)."

The five students are missing classes in order to pursue the protest. Associate Dean Earl Wright said the students could face expulsion if they miss classes for three weeks. If expelled, their visas could be canceled.

The hunger strike is one of the few Iran-related protests to develop since the shah's Dec. 2 arrival. Air Force officials installed extra security precautions for the weekend, when Lackland and nearby Kelly Air Force Base are almost deserted.

The extra precautions — including barbed wire and floodlights — remained in use Monday at Kelly, but an extra lane of traffic was opened to allow the 17,500 civilian employees to get onto the bases.

"For the first week I would say that the first four days we were blindfolded most of the day," he said. The eye coverings and ropes binding our hands were removed "when you ate and when you went to the restroom. Whenever you felt uncomfortable, if you told them, they would loosen them up."

He said the hostages were given toothbrushes about four days after the takeover.

Ex-Hostage Says Students Not Behind Takeover

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An Air Force sergeant held for two weeks in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran says he believes a power other than the group of Moslem students was behind the embassy takeover.

"The ones that we saw on a continuous basis I felt were students," said Master Sergeant Joseph Vincent. "However, those that were above them you could do an educated guess and say that they were not."

Vincent, released during the Thanksgiving weekend with other black and women hostages, said Monday he never was threatened or punished by his captors, but was forced to sleep tied and blindfolded on hardwood floors listening to the rhythmic chanting of thousands of Iranian militants outside.

"My main concern is for my fellow workers," said Vincent, who was in New Orleans visiting family members Monday. "I just hope and pray they are able to get out of there safely."

He said the remaining hostages were alert and in a good mental state when he and the other released personnel left.

"I did not receive any threats," he said. "I was not punished in any way. I was always moved with gentleness. They always spoke in a calm and polite manner."

Vincent, a 23-year veteran of the Air Force, said U.S. Marines guarding the embassy did all they could to defend the compound from militant students, who stormed it more than a month ago.

He said the Marines were under orders to refrain from shooting because the students were unarmed.

Kucinich Plot Revealed

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich was to be the target of an assassination plot, according to a Cleveland television station report quoting a convicted killer who said he was approached about the killing.

WKYC-TV on Monday quoted an unidentified man as saying he had been contacted by organized crime figures about killing Kucinich in October 1977, but was arrested in another case before he could plan the slaying.

In the report, the man, who is in the federal protective custody program for witnesses, said he would tell only police who offered him the job.

No attempts on Kucinich's life were ever reported, but Edwin Nagorski, Cleveland's acting police chief, told the station that police had indications in the fall of 1978 "that there would be a professional attempt on the mayor's life...and we started taking immediate steps to ensure that could not happen."

The television station quoted the man as saying the reason for the plot was: "We can't buy Kucinich, that is what I was told. He was cut from a different cloth."

Kucinich, elected mayor in November 1977, was defeated last month in his bid for re-election.

Misadventures Of Traffic Control

NEW SHARON, Iowa (AP) — Since 1948, the town fathers have wanted a four-way stop sign for the community's main intersection.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

They finally got one, but only after a costly misadventure with a traffic pole that was a foot too short and a flashing light that missed the center of the intersection by four feet.

Mayor Keith Miller said state officials recommended the $1,800 pole because there wasn't enough traffic in the town of 950 for a four-way stop.

So the city council ordered one. But the specifications for the pole failed to account for the contour of the intersection, and the pole and arm with the flashing light were too short by state standards.

Miller was for standing the pole on a pedestal and welding a four-foot section onto its arm. But the state wouldn't approve that plan.

While the debate raged, the town went ahead and put in a four-way stop.

"If someone wants a pole, we'll give them an awful good discount," Miller said.

Bell Gives Ideas On Cutting Crime

ATLANTA (AP) — Griffin Bell, former attorney general and now a $1-a-year anti-crime adviser, says this city needs to get the drunks out of downtown Atlanta and politics out of the police department.

The recommendations for slowing Atlanta's crime rate were contained in a seven-page letter to Mayor Maynard Jackson released Monday.

Atlanta, with 220 murders so far this year compared to 144 in 1978, has been wrestling with a disgruntled police force, a rising crime rate and flight to the suburbs.

Bell said interference by City Hall in police affairs reminded him of Watergate-era abuses in the federal government.

He also said the city needed a detoxification center, ordi-

Mayoral Runoff Election Slated In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Dianne Feinstein faced Supervisor Quentin Kopp in a runoff election today as she attempted to become the first woman elected to the city's highest office.

Mrs. Feinstein, 46, was president of the Board of Supervisors when her colleagues appointed her to the post following the 1978 City Hall assassinations of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk. She has been endorsed by President Carter.

Kopp, a 51-year-old lawyer supported by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., stunned pollsters predicting a 2-1 loss for him in the Nov. 6 general election. He snared 40 percent of the vote, enough to force a runoff under a regulation which requires a candidate to receive more than 50 percent to win.

Instead of the expected victory, Mrs. Feinstein found herself with 42 percent of the vote. She blamed her showing on the poor turnout. Just over 50 percent of the potential voters cast ballots on a wet and chilly day, one of the smallest turnouts in San Francisco history.

Like the initial campaign, the early stages of the runoff left the candidates wallowing in polarity and rhetoric laced with name-calling. The city's two major newspapers split their endorsements.

But increasingly, the campaign turned to a $117 million budget shortage projected by the city comptroller for next year.

Although the election is nonpartisan and both candidates are Democrats, Kopp has a decidedly conservative bent when it comes to city finances. He established himself as a "financial watchdog" during eight years as a supervisor.

Kopp advocated meeting the projected shortage with such devices as leasing the city zoo and golf courses to private operators, civil service reforms and detailed pruning of expenditures.

The mayor proposed doubling parking fines and some city transit fares and extending the amortization period to pay the costs of city pensions to 20 years from 14.

Also at issue was support from the gay community. Both Moscone and Milk, the city's first acknowledged homosexual officials, were popular with the city's gay population, estimated at 15 percent of the city's 650,000 residents.

Kopp hoped to have the gay community behind him. But Mrs. Feinstein won endorsement from David Scott, a gay activist and a former president of the Board of Permit Appeals. Scott placed third in a field of 10 candidates in November, drawing about 20,000 votes.

Lawyer Says Aluminum Wiring Caused Supper Club Disaster

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Aluminum wiring in the Beverly Hills Supper Club was a time bomb ready to explode, says an attorney at the first trial stemming from the 1977 fire at the club in which 165 people died.

Scout Council Sets Meeting

The South Plains Council of Boy Scouts of America will meet tonight to elect officers for 1980 and to receive annual reports, according to Council President Bobby J. Moody.

The dinner meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church here.

Max Tidmore will serve as nominating committee chairman. Officers to be selected include president, vice presidents, commissioner and treasurer.

The council also will elect a 50-member executive board to carry out the business of the council. Annual reports from chairmen will include: Bill Fernier on camping, Mike Stevens on membership, Lonnie Hollingsworth on finance, Alan Henry on activities, James Anderson on advancement, Dr. Bob Nicholson on Exploring, Dr. Charles Taylor on training and Charles Neil on commissioner service.

The council also will hear a membership report, expected to show the council is serving 200 more youth members than at this time last year.

The council, headquartered in Lubbock, serves 20 area counties.

And attorney Stanley Chesley pinpointed Monday in his opening statement what he believes to be the spot where that "time bomb" exploded — the cubbyhole area used by a receptionist on the first floor of the Southgate club.

Survivors of those killed and persons injured in the fire are suing the aluminum industry, claiming that "old technology" aluminum wiring caused the fire. Industry lawyers have denied the allegation.

Some cases have been settled out of court and other cases are pending both in federal and state court. "While tons have been written on the subject, we are in a position to fill you what happened the night of May 28, 1977," Chesley said. "And it is not all that complicated."

Four Lubbockites Held For Burglarizing Autos

Three Lubbock men and a 16-year-old boy were taken into custody about 11:30 p.m. Monday after they allegedly burglarized several cars parked in a lot in the 2900-block of Third Place.

When the suspects' car was stopped in the 2700-block of Dartmouth Street, one of the men reportedly attempted to run until he saw there were two policemen on the scene.

Before officers had a chance to question the 17-year-old suspect, the teenager blurted out that he had done nothing, that he had just been picked up by the three men, police said.

A guitar case, two eight-track tape players, a CB radio and a calculator were confiscated from the suspects' car. Reports indicate the 18-year-old driver told officers the items had been stolen in several car burglaries and showed them several vehicles on Third Place he said they had hit.

The men were taken to the county jail and booked on suspicion of car burglary. The boy was turned over to juvenile authorities.

In other activity, the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department was looking for a man who allegedly attempted to kidnap a 16-year-old boy Monday just south of the city on U.S. 87.

The youth told deputies his pickup truck had broken down in front of a liquor store about 7:45 p.m. when a bearded white man confronted him and asked if he needed help.

After attempts to start the boy's truck failed, the man told the youth to forget about the truck "and come go for a ride with me," reports indicate. When the youth said he could not because his boss was waiting for him, the man allegedly said to "forget your boss, come go with me."

After the victim again declined the offer, the suspect reportedly grabbed the boy's arm and tried to pull him into his pickup truck.

The teen-ager said he persuaded the man to let him go into the liquor store after he said he would call his boss and let him know he was going to be late. While the man waited outside, the boy went inside the business and called the sheriff's department.

Reports indicate the suspect waited outside the store several minutes and then drove toward Lubbock. He was described as a white man, between 18 and 23, about 6 feet tall and weighing 125 pounds.

The suspect reportedly had brown hair and a beard. He was driving a cream-colored 1977 Dodge pickup truck with a long, wide bed, deputies were told.

A 22-year-old Lubbock man, who reportedly said he was going to "whip up" on another man for harsh words said in the past, was instead injured when he was stabbed in the back by the other man shortly before midnight Monday.

The stabbing victim, who was not identified, was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital for treatment. However, the man reportedly decided he did not want treatment and left the hospital against his doctor's wishes.

An indecent exposure suspect, who managed to get his pants on before he was chased down by police about 1 p.m. Monday, was taken to the county jail and booked on suspicion of aggravated assault on a police officer, indecent exposure, unlawfully carrying a weapon and attempting to elude police.

The pursuit began after the suspect allegedly ran naked towards a 23-year-old female in the South Plains Mall parking lot at 6002 Slide Road.

After the woman got into her car and locked the doors, the 25-year-old suspect reportedly got back into his vehicle and drove off. Officer Dennis Kelley, who was off duty and working security at the mall, said he ordered the man to stop, but that the suspect refused and almost rammed the officer's patrol car before exiting the mall parking lot.

Kelley reported he continued pursuit of the man and that the suspect several times attempted to run him off the road. He said as he passed the suspect's vehicle, he saw him attempting to pull on his pants and drive at the same time.

The suspect was stopped at about Chicago Avenue and 50th Street after officer Michael Searfoss rammed his patrol car into the man's vehicle. The suspect was handcuffed and taken to the county jail after a brief struggle with the six policemen on the scene.

Reports indicate a loaded .22-caliber pistol was found in the suspect's right pants pocket.

A 30-year-old Lubbock bookkeeper told police that a man, who was wearing only a waist-length, dark brown coat, exposed himself to her about 8 a.m. Monday in the parking lot of a city church.

The woman said that she was preparing to take her child into the church nursery when she noticed that a two-door, green car had driven up next to her vehicle. She said that when she looked up again, she saw a man standing next to her car.

She said the suspect, who was clad only in a coat, then began dancing back and forth. The woman said that she backed her car away, and that the suspect got back into his car.

When the woman left the parking lot, she noticed that the suspect had followed her to work, where she notified police about the incident.

She said the suspect was black, 26 to 35 and of medium height and build.

Police Monday also were investigating the theft of money, checks and receipts which were taken during an art sale Sunday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

A representative of World Art Gallery told police he lost $400 cash, $700 in personal checks and $700 in credit card receipts from the center's banquet hall between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Sunday.

David Steven Schoenberg of Oklahoma City said the money and various other items had been in a bag which was taken from under a table in the hall.

Representatives for the show said persons who made purchases at the sale can contact World Art Gallery, P.O. Box 14626, Oklahoma City, Okla., or call 405-755-3555 to make arrangements to stop payment on their checks and to notify credit companies.

Andrade Unaware Victim Hurt

Murder defendant Jerry Andrade said today he did not know Bobby Prado had been hit in a shooting at Clovis Road and University Avenue until police picked him up on a murder charge the next day.

Testifying in his own defense in 140th District Court, the 23-year-old Andrade said he thought one of the two men approaching his car had a gun and that he fired at Prado "because I was scared."

He said Prado had opened the door on the other side of the car and hit a man riding with Andrade in the head with a beer can.

"I didn't really intend to fire," the defendant said. "It just happened."

"I didn't think I had hit him because after I fired he ran."

Andrade said he had had a fight with the other man two months earlier and that he took a .38-caliber revolver from under the car seat when the man reached into his belt and said, Andrade testified, "Either 'I've got one' or 'I've got a gun.'"

Prado, 18, was dead on arrival at 2:19 a.m. Aug. 19 at Health Sciences Center Hospital with a bullet wound in his left chest.

Angelita Prado, 20, sister of the dead man, testified when the trial opened Monday that her brother hit one of the occupants of the Andrade car with a beer can before being shot.

She identified Andrade as the driver of the car and the man who fired the shot.

Phil Gamble is defending Andrade. Prosecutors are Clint Averitte and Rick Howell.

Tests Allow Student To Finish Early

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Less than seven months after his high school graduation, Anthony L. May, 18, is about to become a college senior.

The 1979 co-valetictorian of Blue River Valley High School in central Indiana has made the three-year jump by testing out in 71 credit hours through the national College-Level Examination program, the College Board's achievement program and departmental examinations here at Indiana University.

"I'm not smarter than other students," May said modestly. He will have 91 credit hours — only 31 less than he needs to graduate — when he goes home for semester break on Dec. 22. "It's just that many of them are unaware of the opportunities and the many different ways to earn college credit through testing."

Seventeen credit hours were earned in regular classroom courses since he arrived here last September.

May started accumulating his credits by earning three hours between his junior and senior years in high school through the university's collegiate credit program for high school students.

Then he began taking a battery of tests in English, history, political science, humanities, biology, economics, psychology, Latin and English composition.

He has failed one college-level test in algebra.

"Math is not my strong point," said May, who averaged a score of 3.93 out of a possible 4 in high school.

May, a political science major, said he began planning his accelerated college program as a high school sophomore. He credits his high school English and speech teacher, Delonda Jarvis, with influencing his decision.

He explained that Mrs. Jarvis had completed her undergraduate degree in two calendar years through the testing programs and encouraged him to take advantage of the opportunities.

He also credits his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles May of Mount Summit.

"They were very supportive of my plan and that was very important to me," he said.

Saving money — getting in and out of school quickly — is one benefit of the quick progress, May said.

Allergy To Sun

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 61 years old and I am allergic to the sun. My daughter wants me to come to Hawaii to live with her and I'm wondering if you know of something I can take or do to help me with this problem. I can tolerate the sun for a few minutes and that is all. I sure would appreciate it if you would help me with this. Thank you.

DEAR READER — Yes, there is such a thing as being allergic to the sun. It can cause hives. Technically, we call this solar urticaria. Even the specific lengths of the sun's rays that cause such reactions have been identified. Individuals who have a severe form of this really should avoid the sun because it can even cause the person to collapse.

It can be treated. Antihistamines sometimes help as they do with other allergens. And then you can use various creams on the surface of your skin. These will filter out the sun rays. I would like you to see either a dermatologist or allergist to discuss this problem with him. Some specialists in allergy think that hydroxychloroquine (Plaquenil) will protect some sensitive people who anticipate exposure to the sun.

There are a number of skin disorders that are caused or made worse by the sun. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots And Cancer. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Many people can profit from sun protection in the winter as well as summer to prevent skin aging.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My brother passed away from acute myelomonocytic leukemia. He died 10 days after the onset of his symptoms. I've made numerous inquiries to determine the approximate length of time that he had this condition prior to his symptoms. The opinions have varied from one year, eight months, three months, or to the day the symptoms were detected.

I'd like your opinion on a more definite length of time. My brother was 72.

DEAR READER — Unfortunately, no one can give you a definite time. Untreated acute leukemia usually has a stormy course and ends in death in less than one year. Treatment in recent years has altered this picture in many instances.

You must remember that we do not know the exact cause of leukemia although there is a body of evidence that suggests certain forms of leukemia may be related to viral infections that alter basic cell reproductive mechanisms.

To make matters more complex, a chronic form of leukemia can change suddenly to an acute form. A person may live for years in relative comfort with no symptoms at all with chronic leukemia, then suddenly it changes to the acute form and the life expectancy may be very short indeed.

It's not unusual for a person to have leukemia, particularly the chronic form, and have no symptoms. The acute forms usually cause symptoms by affecting a certain organ or by causing a severe anemia, bleeding or what appears as a respiratory infection. When the doctor examines the patient for the symptoms, he finds out there's an underlying leukemia.

Rogers To Star In TV Version Of 'House Calls'

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Traditional physicians are the ultimate television heroes, dramatically saving lives under pulse-stopping circumstances.

No lawyer, cop, private eye nor cowboy is as sacrosanct as the doctor, scalpel in hand and peering over his gauze mask, who saves a patient's life only seconds before the final commercial.

The doctor as TV hero probably began with Richard Boone as Dr. Konrad Synner in the "Medic" series in the 1950s although there were other, earlier heroic TV sawbones, to be sure.

There followed a plethora of men in white whose surgical skills were matched only by their personal humanitarianism — Richard Chamberlain in "Dr. Kildare," Vincent Edwards in "Ben Casey," Robert Young and James Brolin in "Marcus Welby, M.D.," and Chad Everett in "Medical Center."

Pernell Roberts started the current season in the title role of "Trapper John, M.D.," which is indirectly related to the "M.A.S.H." series in which Alan Alda stars as a doctor operating under Korean War combat conditions.

The role of Trapper John originally was played in "M.A.S.H." by Wayne Rogers, a tall, curly-haired Alabamian of independent mind who left the series after its third year in a somewhat murky dispute with the producers.

As of Dec. 17 Rogers returns to prime time TV to star in "House Calls," a half-hour situation comedy based on the hit movie which starred Walter Matthau and Glenda Jackson.

Rogers will play Dr. Charley Michaels (Matthau's role) and Lynn Redgrave will portray the hospital administrator part originated by Jackson.

"House Calls," marking Roger's second doctor role, will follow "M.A.S.H." in the Monday night CBS lineup, thereby creating an immediate comparison between the two medical sitcoms.

Because the new show is a contemporary series set in a modern hospital in a large American city as opposed to "M.A.S.H." which is set in the Korean War the shows have little in common.

The comedy notwithstanding, Rogers points out, his character will take the practice of medicine as seriously as the medics of "M.A.S.H." take their life-and-death responsibility in the operating room.

"Dr. Michaels cares about his work and saving lives," Rogers said on the eve of his show's debut. "And while he may be irresponsible and sometimes petulant in his private life, he is close to Trapper John in his devotion to medicine."

"Trapper John was more of a cynic in 'M.A.S.H.' than Michaels, who is naive in some ways. Michaels has more enthusiasm for life and as a bachelor he's unwilling to make a commitment to a woman. My character and Lynn's are involved romantically but they aren't headed for marriage."

"The story is as much involved with comedy and romance as medicine. I feel it's better to hang jokes on the serious premise of medicine than doing one-liners in the operating room."

"I saw the movie 'House Calls' on an airplane. Matthau has a great ability to play silly. I feel a little queasy playing silly. I can't play Matthau any more than he can play me. So my doctor is different from his doctor."

Rogers' involvement with medical shows is purely coincidental. He has never wanted to be a doctor and doesn't spend his free time hanging around hospitals trying to get the hang of doctoring.

If he were to play to type, Rogers would be starring in a series about a tycoon. He runs a management enterprise business involving real estate, financial investments and corporate financing along with a prospering vineyard.

Complex Satellite Lost In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Satcom III, a one-ton, $20 million RCA communication satellite intended for cable television, was lost in space today and may have exploded, officials said.

"We don't know if it exploded or has just gone into a screwy orbit," said Donald Quinn, a vice president of Americom, an RCA subsidiary in New Jersey.

But sources close to the RCA project told the newspaper TODAY in Cocoa, Fla., that technicians believe the satellite exploded.

The craft suddenly disappeared from tracking screens just 15 seconds after the kick motor was switched on Monday. No tracking station has been able to locate it.

"This leads us to the conclusion it probably blew up," the unidentified source told TODAY. "If the spacecraft had shot into outer space, the tracking network would have seen it shooting out. It would have come up as a blip on the screen because you can track satellites that go to distant planets, and we would have seen it."

John Williamson, a spokesman for Americom, said that if the satellite fell to earth it would burn up in the atmosphere before reaching the ground.

Satcom III was launched from Cape Canaveral Thursday night by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration under a contract with RCA. James Lacy, public information officer at a NASA tracking station in Maryland, said the craft went into a temporary looping orbit, and NASA tracked it for two hours before turning the job over to RCA.

NASA officials said the only similar disappearance was on Feb. 14, 1963, when an experimental communications satellite, SYNCOM I, disappeared from tracking screens. The craft was later located in space by observatories.

Williamson said the kick motor was to have sent the satellite into a permanent orbit 22,300 miles above the Pacific, midway between Hawaii and California.

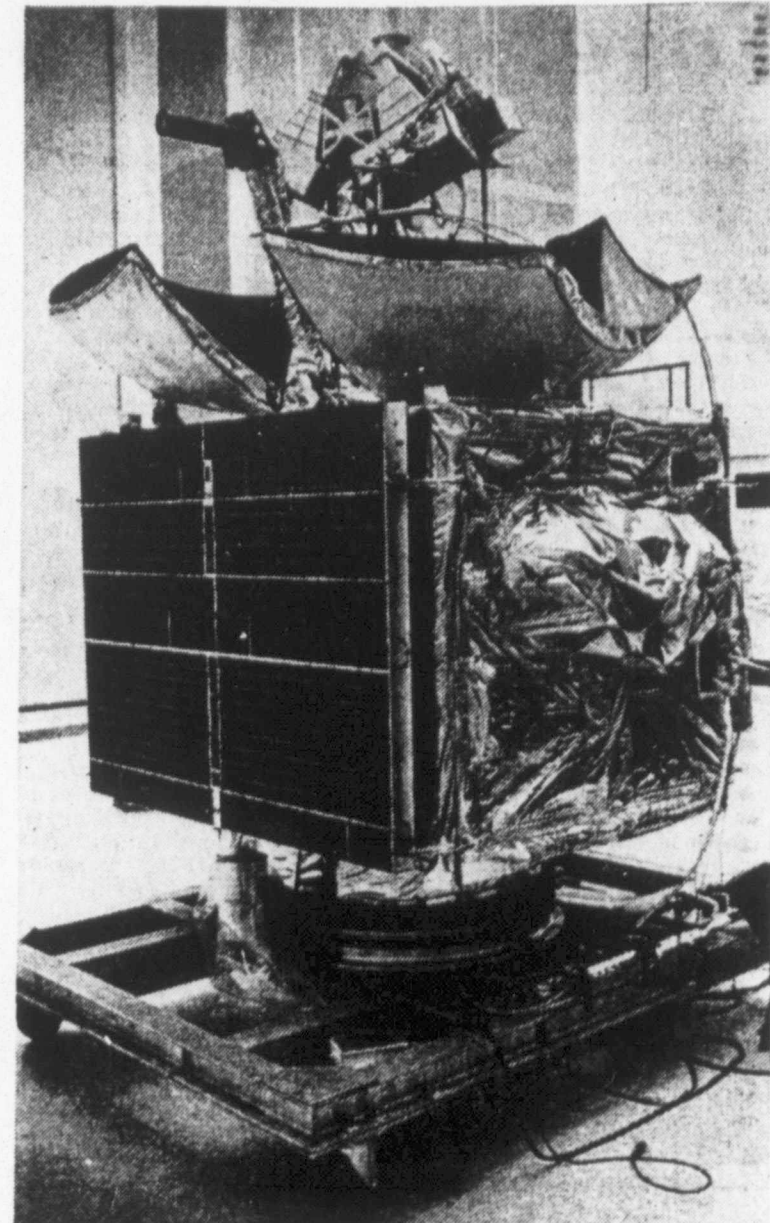

The North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs joined in the search for the box-like satellite. Capt. Mary Noeller, public information officer for NORAD, said the search was being conducted by the agency's Worldwide Space Detection and Tracking system.

RCA also has asked NASA, Western Union, Comsat General Corp. and Telesat of Canada for help.

Williamson said the total cost of the mission was $50 million, including the space craft itself, insurance and launching costs.

Before the launch, RCA officials said they paid $5.3 million for a 90-day insurance policy on the mission. The satellite's 24 channels were to be leased for $800,000 a year to insured users and $1.2 million a year for insured users, officials said.

"For the protected user, we would have to go out and lease space from another satellite corporation if we failed," Americom president Andrew Inglis said at a briefing last week.

Solons Chill Gas Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders are telling the White House that chances of enacting a suggested 50-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax range from slim to nonexistent.

Top administration economic officials, in a closed-door meeting Monday with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, reportedly listed the tax as one of the options the president has under serious consideration as he prepares his 1980 agenda, sources said.

Administration economic officials see the tax as a way of forcing conservation of gasoline by making the fuel much more expensive at the pump.

But O'Neill, according to a participant at the meeting who declined to be identified, immediately threw cold water on the idea, telling the officials there was "little enthusiasm for a gas tax" on Capitol Hill.

Other sources said White House officials got much the same signal in a recent meeting with Senate Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and other Senate leaders.

O'Neill reportedly told the administration officials he didn't see much support in the House for either a 50-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax or a strengthened gas-rationing plan also being considered by the administration.

good to us," Gallegos said of his captors. "It's hard to believe, I know, but we haven't been asked any questions about what really our job was."

I'm going to be taken out of there and where I'm going to be taken to."

At KOA-TV in Denver, Dick and Theresa Gallegos watched anxiously Monday night as Billy, the oldest of their four children, answered questions. They said he seemed nervous and looked pale and thin.

"I'd give my life for any American," the corporal said as he sat in front of a huge poster of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. "I can't see it now. In some ways, I don't see this as a good cause."

"The students here have been really

Asked whether he was worried, the corporal at first replied, "I imagine we'll be OK... Nobody's been mistreated."

Later, he acknowledged that only 30 of the hostages are kept together in "little cubicles" where they could see one another. The other 20 hostages, including senior embassy officials, were separated from the others a week after the embassy was captured, he said.

"They were taken away," he said. Now, he added, "I'm wondering when

He and the others he can see are allowed to exercise, their hands are bound only loosely and they have books to read and enough food. But "the rule is 'Silence is golden' here," he said, and hostages are not allowed to talk to one another. They can talk to their captors only when asked to, he said.

"The strain is showing" in other hostages' eyes, he said. "I don't know how much longer we can take it."

The hostages have just begun to receive their mail, Gallegos said, but all news of the outside world is censored. Gallegos said the only thing he knew about American response to his situation was that Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy said last week that the shah should be returned.

facts" and added, "to connect all happenings to American imperialism will not solve any problems."

"We're relying on his decision," the young American said. "No matter what."

Shariatmadari countered with charges the 79-year-old religious leader was moving steadily toward a political dictatorship and breaking agreements designed to end the current strife in northwest Iran.

The moderate Shariatmadari said he would not actively intervene to halt the crisis in Tabriz, where his supporters battled loyalist revolutionary guards for days to control the radio and television station and other public buildings.

"How can I guarantee peace in a city where agents of the Islamic republic, without any reason, have caused deaths and injuries?" he said.

Shariatmadari's bluntest warning to the government and his charge that the Tabriz violence was government-inspired effectively appeared to deadlock the crisis.

Khomeini, in his Monday statement, said Carter "has been a bad politician and president for the American people and is not qualified to be a president. He has been a traitor to the American people. The American people must know this and not vote for Carter."

ABC News reported late Monday the Carter administration had signaled the Iranian government it will try to topple the Khomeini regime through economic sanctions if the 50 hostages are not released in 10 days. But the State Department said there was no substance to the ABC report and "no such deadline has been made."

"I'm leaving it up to my country and my people. I have great faith in them."

Later, his father said he was worried about the dark circles under his son's eyes, and said that Billy seemed to have lost about 25 pounds over the last five weeks.

"He's very tired, very strained," Dick Gallegos said. "He's not being a traitor in any way."

His mother, whose eyes filled with tears when Billy first appeared on the screen, said she agreed with her son's assessment of his duty.

"As a mother, I would not give any of my sons' lives for anything other than a war," she said.

Dirk West Declares Sunday Prayer Day

At least nine people died and 60 were wounded during several days of fighting, said Tehran radio said Monday there was renewed fighting, including one report of another three deaths. But correspondents at the scene saw no evidence of renewed clashes.

Shariatmadari said Khomeini and his aides should "have the courage to state

Despite the domestic crisis in the northwest, diplomatic sources said delicate contacts still were being maintained to try to secure the release of the hostages.

And in the capital, Canadian Ambassador Kenneth Taylor said today U.S. Charge d'affaires Bruce Laingen and two other embassy officials in protective custody at the foreign ministry are in good health. Taylor was allowed to visit them several days ago.

In a television interview with NBC-TV released Monday, U.S. Marine Cpl. William Gallegos of Pueblo, Colo., said he and other hostages were being well treated, although they were kept in "cubicles" with their hands loosely bound.

Mayor Dirk West today proclaimed Sunday a Day of Prayer for Americans held hostage in Iran.

West, in a 10:30 a.m. ceremony at City Hall, presented a proclamation to local ministers asking Lubbockites to use Sunday "to offer a prayer for the safe return of these Americans to their country and to their families."

"This holiday season is the appropriate time to pray for our fellow man and for continued peace throughout the world," the proclamation continues.

crimes against Iran during the shah's regime.

Iranian authorities also have said they are giving serious consideration to trying some or all of the hostages as spies.

Brademas declined to speculate about whether Carter would have any difficulty finding support for an Iranian trade embargo in Congress. He said he did not know whether the president would need congressional approval before imposing such an embargo.

Meanwhile, Navy officials said a Indian ship had been dispatched to the Indian Ocean, indicating U.S. warships will remain in proximity to Iran indefinitely.

Officials said the destroyer tender Dixie entered the area over the weekend from the China Sea. With the arrival of the supply ship White Plains, U.S. naval strength in the region has now reached 23 ships.

Officials stressed the shift did not mean there would be a permanent U.S. fleet in those waters, but it suggested powerful units would be stationed there for the duration of the standoff with Iran.

Two persons were injured in a two-car collision.

POST (Special) — Two persons were injured, one critically, in a two-car collision in Post about 4:45 p.m. Monday.

Winnie Rogers, 80, of Post was listed in critical condition this morning at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

Opal Wood, 53, also of Post was listed in serious condition today at Methodist from injuries suffered in the same mishap.

The two victims reportedly were traveling in the same vehicle when the accident occurred.

Reports early today were sketchy about the collision. However, a Garza County Sheriff's Department spokesman said the two women were the only persons seriously injured in the collision at Eighth Street and South Avenue S.

crimes against Iran during the shah's regime.

Iranian authorities also have said they are giving serious consideration to trying some or all of the hostages as spies.

One senior administration official, who asked anonymity, said of that proposal: "The idea of taking these American citizens who are being held contrary to every... basic standard of civilized behavior and parading them before some totally unjustified public propaganda show would be repugnant not only to the government and people of the United States, but, I suspect, to the rest of the world."

The Iranians who have held the hostages since Nov. 4 say they will release them only if the United States hands over the exiled shah for trial.

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Owners of about 6,000 John Deere snowmobiles are being notified that the vehicles may have faulty steering mechanisms, a company spokesman says.

Ray Brune, Deere spokesman, said Monday that letters have been sent to customers notifying them that the small part of the steering linkage must be replaced on four 1980 models — the Liquifire, Sportfire and both sizes of the Trailfire.

pected to blow at between 20 and 30 mph this afternoon, decreasing to 10 to 15 mph by tonight. Winds from the east are expected on Wednesday.

Effects of the cold front are predicted to be short-lived for this area. Fair skies and a gradual warming trend are back in the forecast for Thursday and on into the weekend.

Elsewhere, the far-ranging cold front swept through the Rockies and Great Plains today, spreading bitter cold temperatures and snow at least 5 inches deep in some areas.

The front spread snow from Colorado to North Dakota, with the heaviest snow restricted to the mountain areas of Montana and Wyoming, the National Weather Service reported. Temperatures dropped to below zero in many sections of the Rockies and the Dakotas.

A snowfall of 5 inches was reported at Casper, Wyo., and Red Lodge, Mont., Monday night. Two inches of snow fell at Moberly, S.D.

The mercury quickly dipped to 19 degrees at Rapid City, S.D., where winds gusting to nearly 50 mph during passage of the front. Northerly winds gusting to 58 mph at Norfolk, Neb., put a bitter edge on near-freezing readings.

Early today, temperatures as low as 12 below zero were reported in Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas.

crimes against Iran during the shah's regime.

Iranian authorities also have said they are giving serious consideration to trying some or all of the hostages as spies.

One senior administration official, who asked anonymity, said of that proposal: "The idea of taking these American citizens who are being held contrary to every... basic standard of civilized behavior and parading them before some totally unjustified public propaganda show would be repugnant not only to the government and people of the United States, but, I suspect, to the rest of the world."

The Iranians who have held the hostages since Nov. 4 say they will release them only if the United States hands over the exiled shah for trial.

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Owners of about 6,000 John Deere snowmobiles are being notified that the vehicles may have faulty steering mechanisms, a company spokesman says.

Ray Brune, Deere spokesman, said Monday that letters have been sent to customers notifying them that the small part of the steering linkage must be replaced on four 1980 models — the Liquifire, Sportfire and both sizes of the Trailfire.

Rabies Law Poses Problems For Owners, City

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A rabies control act passed during the waning days of the 66th Legislature came back to hound Lubbock County Commissioners Monday.

Under the statute, the commissioners court and the city councils for each municipality within Lubbock County must appoint a "local health authority" to investigate any outbreak of rabies in the county. The health authority will be responsible for taking reports of any suspected rabid animals or animal bite cases in which a rabid animal might be involved.

However, in what appears to be a basic flaw in the statute, the primary responsibility for reporting a rabid animal falls to the animal's owner. The law apparently does not require the county to pick up stray animals, which are the most likely to contract rabies.

The act does state that animals suspected of having rabies must be quarantined for 10 days, with the costs for the quarantine to be borne by the animal's owner. This requirement presents the biggest problem for county officials, who have not been in the "dogcatching business" in the past and have no place to house animals.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Yvonne Faulks advised commissioners that they can contract with public or private agencies to provide the quarantine facilities.

The rabies control statute becomes effective Jan. 1. County Judge Rod Shaw plans to contact city officials to see if a shared service contract can be negotiated and to determine the likely cost to the county.

Commissioner Coy Biggs expressed a reluctance to share the costs. "We're furnishing their (the city's) prisoners a free place to stay, and I think they could furnish our dogs a free place to stay," Biggs commented.

However, money is not likely to be the only factor involved in the situation, at least not from the city's point of view. City officials are more likely to be concerned about the magnitude of dog-bite cases in the county.

Thomas Trombley, supervisor of animal control for the city, said there could be a problem if the animal shelter is called on to provide quarantine facilities for the county. According to Trombley, the shelter often is "strapped for space" during the summer months. If the county has a large number of quarantine cases during the peak periods in the summer, time, Trombley is not sure whether the animal shelter can house all of the animals.

The decision whether the city's animal shelter also can serve the county rests with members of the city council. If the council agrees to provide the service and establishes a fee, then it will be up to commissioners to decide if they want to pay that fee.

SAGITTARIUS — (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Rely only on yourself and you'll be freer to utilize unexpected opportunities, thereby slanting the odds in your favor for attaining a tough goal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend's well-meaning advice is more emotional than logical. If you need counsel, seek opinions from outsiders who can separate the two.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will be a trifle too susceptible to other people's opinions tomorrow. You could be led down the wrong path. Follow your instincts, not their views.

PISCES (Feb. 20—March 20) Keep everything realistic and out in the open in your dealings tomorrow. The truth might hurt, but not accepting it could halt what you hope to accomplish.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Early mistakes could at first have you in a dither tomorrow, but don't let this intimidate you. Set about repairing them and things will turn out fine.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone you were depending on could let you down tomorrow. If you still need help, you'll be pleased to know it's available from tried-and-true pals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you find yourself with more chores or responsibilities than planned on tomorrow, just make certain you don't sacrifice speed for efficiency. You can handle it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things may not go as smoothly as you had hoped tomorrow, yet good advice from an experienced person can iron the wrinkles out if you follow it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're Christmas shopping tomorrow, stay clear of the sparking things. Stick to practical items for your family. There's less chance of getting stuck.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Because of a disappointment, some on-the-spot decisions may be called for tomorrow. Use your head instead of your emotions. The answers will be easy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A hesitancy to bargain a little could cost you money you didn't have to spend. You'll have to speak up when the opportunity to negotiate presents itself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be extra careful with whom you do business tomorrow, especially of those acquaintances about whom you know little. If in doubt, don't mix pals and business.

Atheist Compares God To Adolf Hitler In Book

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Some days David Mills is sure he knows how early Christian martyrs felt when the Romans threw them to the lions.

Mills is a 20-year-old atheist who has written a book that has been hailed by Madalyn Murray O'Hair and other atheist leaders; a book that compares God to Adolf Hitler, dismisses the Bible as "fairy tales" and brands religion as a dangerous disease.

The author of "Holy Hypnosis" says he believes religion manacles the minds of its followers, blinding them to reality and robbing them of free will.

"I want people to know there is an alternative. If someone's only indoctrination has been religion, they haven't been exposed to the choices," he says. "Their choice is between God and the devil. We need another choice."

But advocating atheism in the middle of the Bible Belt is far from easy, Mills ruefully admits. Since the publication of "Holy Hypnosis," Mills says he has been shunned, insulted and threatened.

Among the many letters, most of them abusive, Mills has received since becoming an atheist was one addressed "Dear Fellow Upright Mammal" and another from a former friend that read, "I can hardly wait to get to heaven so I can watch you atheists roast in hell."

"I've never had anybody threaten to kill me. But many people have threatened to beat me up," Mills says.

Far from discouraged, Mills — who is studying at a business college to be a court stenographer — spends his spare time writing, making public appearances, forming atheist groups and picketing the services of popular revivalists.

Search Continuing For Test Victims

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With a third deadline less than two weeks away, the federal government is still looking for 16 black men awarded a share of a $1.8 billion lawsuit settlement five years ago.

The men were part of a 40-year study by the U.S. Public Health Service on the effects of untreated syphilis. Most of the 600 men who participated — or their heirs — have been contacted.

Mills says he particularly enjoys curbside encounters with Christians who try to convert passersby, because he used to be one of them.

"For a few years I was the typical churchgoer. But in high school I met a group of militant Christians," says Mills. "I became excited about religion and would want to share my religion with others. I used to go around school and the streets with little tracts telling people how to be saved."

But some of the people he approached challenged him to prove his beliefs, using arguments Mills says he found harder and harder to ignore. He looked for evidence to counter them only to find that he was beginning to ask himself the same questions.

After a period of confusion, Mills says his religious beliefs were overwhelmed by the conviction that he had been duped and that there was no God. The zeal that had prompted him to seek converts to Christianity now sent him out to spread atheism.

He also began trying to put down some of his ideas on paper. At first, he says, writing was very difficult, but what began just as a working out of ideas slowly grew into a book.

Mills showed the manuscript to a few other atheists, and eventually it reached Miss O'Hair, head of the American Athe-ist Movement, who arranged for its publication.

"Holy Hypnosis" argues fiercely and resolutely against the idea of God, heaven and hell.

Mills says the number of atheists in America is growing. "But getting them under one roof is difficult. It's not easy being identified as an atheist. There is a lot of hostility."

Whatever the risks, Mills says he plans to spend the future encouraging atheists to declare their beliefs and helping others to become atheists.

"I'd like to see the end of religion," he muses. "After people read the book I want them to convert to atheism."

Oilers' Win Avenges Earlier Losses To Steelers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, following sage advice, declined to spit into the wind or step on Superman's cape Monday night.

Having come within one second of defeating the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers, Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini politely fell on the ball for the final play of the game at the Steeler one-yard line and the Oilers trotted into the dressing room with a 20-17 victory.

The Oilers had better sense and sportsmanship than to rub the Steelers noses in the Astroturf.

"Pittsburgh is too good a team to rub their noses in a loss," Oiler coach Bum Phillips said.

"If the touchdown would have made a difference in the division championship, we could have scored," Pastorini said. "We weren't trying to rub their faces in it."

Houston had accomplished its goal. It kept the Steelers from clinching their sixth straight American Football Conference Central Division championship and kept alive its own chances of claiming a title for the first time since 1967.

"After the way we lost to them the first time we played this year we had to be a little psyched up," Pastorini said.

"So we just went out and got a little sweet revenge."

The Oilers, who lost to the Steelers 34-5 in last season's AFC championship game and 38-7 in their first meeting this season, clearly were ready for the challenge this game.

Houston held the Steelers to four first downs and took a 7-0 halftime lead on a 25-yard pass from Pastorini to Ken Burrough. They went ahead 13-3 on field goals of 24 yards and 34 yards by Toni Fritsch in the third and fourth quarters.

The record crowd of 55,293 in the Astrodome and a national television audience kept waiting for the sleeping giant Steelers to wake up and they finally did.

Matt Bahr kicked a 37-yard field goal in the third quarter and Lynn Swann ran nine yards for a touchdown on an end-around play that narrowed the Oiler lead to 13-10.

But the Oilers didn't fold. Rob Carpenter ran four yards with 2:10 to play to boost the lead to 20-10 for what proved to be the winning margin.

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw whipped the Steelers to the game's final touchdown with a 34-yard bomb to John Stallworth with 1:18 left in the game. But the Steelers tried an on-sides kick that found its way to Oiler tight end Mike Barber.

"They took that damn football and ran it down our throats for five minutes and scored a touchdown," Steeler defensive tackle Joe Greene said of Carpenter's touchdown. "That was as disappointing as anything that happened and they did it the way they weren't supposed to."

The Oilers weren't supposed to be able to run on the Steelers but that's where Oiler running back Earl Campbell came into the picture with 109 yards on 33 carries, his first 100-yard performance ever against the Steelers.

The Oiler performance brought words of praise from Steeler coach Chuck Noll.

"I thought the Houston Oilers played the best game I have ever seen them play," Noll said. "I'd like to play Houston every week of the season. That would be interesting, wouldn't it?"

Following Bradshaw's 34-yard touchdown to Stallworth, the Steelers tried an on-sides kick and Bradshaw couldn't wait to get on the field.

"We had them right where we wanted

Raiders Nudge Airmen 58-54

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (Special) — Texas Tech struggled at times but got some cool free throw shooting by senior Kent Williams to hang on and defeat the Air Force Academy 58-54 here Monday night.

The win was the Raiders' fourth of the year and Tech's first on the road. Gerald Myers' cagers are now 4-1 on the year while the Air Force dropped to 2-3.

Leading by 3 points at the half, Tech came out cold in the second period and couldn't generate much scoring in the early going. Eventually, the Air Force tied the contest at 40 on a Dean Christen layup.

Moments later Simmons hit both ends of a one-and-one situation and the Cadets led 45-44. Air Force led one more time, at 49-48, but then the Raiders went on a tear.

Jeff Taylor hit from 15 feet. Thad Sanders came back with a layup and Ben Hill — who had his best game of the year with 15 points — hit another layup and the game was on ice.

Well, nearly on ice.

Ralph Brewster and David Little both missed the open end of one-and-one's and Tech kept its 54-50 advantage.

Then in the final moments, Williams went to the line four times and came away with 4 points. That provided the Raiders with their final 58 points.

"It was a good win for us," said

IT WAS THE winter of 1968, and the Baptists were restless. Baylor hadn't had a football championship in quite a while — since 1924, to be exact. But, this was different, they felt it was their time.

And John Bridgers couldn't, some of the Baylorites felt, bring it to them. So, spurred by some of the wealthier and more influential members of the clan scattered about the state, Baylor's officials let Bridgers go. He just couldn't do it, they said.

Fact that he had led the Bears to three bowl games — Baylor had been to only seven to that time — and no other coach had brought more than two holiday trips mattered little. Neither did that near-upset of national champion Texas in '63, when Bridgers authored one of the most exciting offensive shows in this part of the nation.

So, they fired John Bridgers and brought in Bill Beall. Bridgers had been 49-53-1 in his eight years; Beall followed with only three victories — not bowl games, victories — in three seasons. Finally, Baylor folks realized there had been some mistakes made in judgment, but by that time, Bridgers was not to be found. He had a new challenge and in the state of Florida.

FLORIDA STATE HAD been riddled by rumors and problems within its football program. Investigations and adverse publicity followed.

Uphavals resulted, and Bridgers had a challenge of righting the Seminoles' shaky ship. Well, now, the rudder, sails and rigging are all ship-shape. This season, the Seminoles went undefeated in football and now are preparing for a Jan. 1 date in the Orange Bowl against Oklahoma.

Hoosiers Retain Lead In College Cage Poll

By The Associated Press

Indiana, which drubbed Xavier of Ohio and Texas El-Paso in winning the Hoosier Classic last weekend, maintained the top spot in The Associated Press college basketball poll although its lead over runner-up Duke dwindled some.

The Hoosiers, 3-0, received 29 first-place votes and 1,146 points out of a possible 1,200 in the balloting by the poll's 60 sports writers and broadcasters. The Blue Devils, 5-0 following easy triumphs over Princeton and East Carolina, collected 20 first-place votes and 1,132 points.

Just a week ago, Indiana held a 28-18 advantage over Duke in first-place votes and a 20-point edge in total points.

The remainder of the Top 10 is a carbon copy of last week's poll with the exception of the No. 9 and 10 positions, which are now occupied by Purdue and Syracuse, respectively.

By The Associated Press

When the Texas Aggies lost to tiny Iona and cross-state rival Lamar in a basketball tournament in Alaska, people were beginning to wonder what was wrong with the Aggies, the pre-season favorite to win the Southwest Conference basketball crown.

Vernon Smith, who was suspended for three games because of participating in an unauthorized summer league and was not in the lineup for the two tournament losses, is back and no one's wondering about the Aggies. Just ask Sam Houston State's basketball team.

Smith and teammate Rynn Wright combined for 31 points to lead the Aggies to an easy 71-47 nonconference victory over the Bearcats Monday night. It was the first loss for the Lone Star Conference team after six victories and boosted the Aggies, who were once 0-2, to 5-2.

Overall, the conference wound up the night Monday with a 3-3 record against nonconference foes.

Texas Tech beat Air Force 58-54 and Arkansas beat Athletes in Action 68-67 in overtime for the other victories.

Texas dropped a 66-60 decision to Depaul, Tulane edged Rice 56-53 and Illinois beat TCU 79-64 to account for the three losses.

Two games are to be played tonight. McMurry takes on Baylor at Waco and Houston hosts Texas Lutheran.

U.S. Reed had 19 points, Scott Hastings pitched in 14 and Alan Zahn had 10 in Arkansas's overtime win over Athletes in Action.

The one alternative to the Mazda RX-7 GS.

The Mazda RX-7 S: '8084*

The ultimate value in sports cars today. Standard equipment includes: AM/FM stereo radio • Steel-belted radial tires • Front stabilizer bar • 4-speed trans. (3-sp. automatic optional).

16 ESTIMATED mpg 25 EST. hwy mpg

*Price includes dealer prep and freight charges. Taxes, license fees, optional equipment extra.
**Remember, compare this EPA estimate to the estimated mpg of other cars. You may get different mileage, depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, and trip length. Your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway mileage.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Parent Has Trouble With Acorn Whistle

By SHARI LEWIS

It's weird. Kids can do things that their parents can't. Wait, let me explain. My name is Mallory. I'm Shari's kid. I'm 17 and last weekend I was a counselor on a camping trip. I showed the younger kids how to set up a tent, read a compass and follow a trail; meanwhile I learned a thing or two from them. My favorite tidbit was taught to me by the rowdiest boy in camp. His name was Millet, and he showed me how to make a whistle by blowing into the cap of an acorn. I then taught it to everyone else in camp.

As soon as I got home from the trip, I sat my mother down, gave her my very own acorn, and set to teaching her how to make it whistle. I failed Totally! Try as I might, I couldn't seem to explain to her. She just couldn't make it work.

Actually, it's very simple. You need an acorn, two thumbs (preferably attached to two hands) and a pair of lips. Make fist with both of your hands, leaving your thumbs loose. Put your fists together, with only the first knuckles touching. Rest the acorn (with the open end of the cup facing upward) right at the spot where your pointer fingers meet. Hold it in place by laying your thumbs lightly on the outer edges.

Now make the knuckles of your thumbs meet, turning the tips outward. Squeeze so that the only opening is an upside-down triangle formed by the sides of the tips of your thumbs and the top edge of the acorn.

Now blow up into the acorn cap. Blow under the top edge. Blow hard, blow soft, but make sure that the air goes into that upside-down triangle.

My mom still can't do it, but Millet showed me how, and then I taught it to all the other kids on the camping trip. It just takes practice. Good luck, and good luck on teaching your parents. You'll probably need it!

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Eight of our 51 states were named after Indian tribes. How many can you name?

ANSWER: Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri and Utah.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What does the letter "D" have in common with a sailor? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)
