Near-Perfect Weather Due For Football

ALMOST PERFECT football weather is forecast for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff tonight of the 1979 college football season at Jones Stadium, where Texas Tech meets the University of Southern Cali-

National Weather Service predictions called for temperatures in the lower 80s at the start of the game, lowering to the middle 70s by the game's end, with light southerly winds prevailing

High temperatures today should range to near 90, cooling down tonight to the mid-60s. Friday's high in Lubbock reached 88.

Showers in the Corpus Christi area west of the Valley interrupted a mostly sunny Friday across Texas.

Elsewhere, a late-summer blast of Canadian air surged from the Plains to the Ohio Valley Friday, pushing temperatures to the freezing point in parts of Minnesota and glazing crops in heavy

Rains that had plagued the Northeast ended as Hurricane David, which spread rains from Florida to New England during its week-long trek along the Atlantic Coast, headed for the north Atlantic

A sudden cold snap sent temperatures plummeting to the 30s in eastern North Dakota and northern Minnesota. Heavy frost covered low-lying areas of northeastern Minnesota

A hard frost glazed Thorhult, Minn but a National Weather Service meteorologist said freezing temperatures did not last long enough to cause major crop

Clements Astounded By Alamo Remark

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) -Texas Gov. Bill Clements reacted Friday evening with incredulity to reports that Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt had referred to the Alamo as a symbol of all that is wrong with U.S.-Mexican relations.

Clements called the statement "absurd" but said he would not comment further until he had seen a complete text of Babbitt's remarks.

Clements, heading a Texas agricultural delegation on a People to People tour of Eastern Europe, chuckled quietly as he read the Associated Press report that Babbitt had criticized him for an "imperialistic attitude in recent discussions with the governors of Mexican border Babbitt had told an audience in San Antonio: "We must cease speaking to Mexico in imperialistic terms." He claimed the Alamo was a reminder of territory "plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors.

Charges In Cocaine Case Against Four Dismissed

By KAV BELL Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE FOUR remaining defendants in an alleged federal cocaine-trafficking conspiracy will not go to trial Monday as scheduled after it was revealed Friday that conspiracy charges were dismissed in light of a recent 5th Circuit Court of Appeals decision.

An appellate ruling handed down Aug 27 that overturned a cocaine conspiracy charge against a defendant in a Florida case apparently has prompted dismissal of charges against Lubbock defendants Scott Lamoreaux. Robert Gamble. Robin Houston and David Rankin.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Bass said Wednesday that four defendants, whom he declined to name at that time, still were scheduled to go to trial, but that "negotiations" were continuing.

The four persons reportedly have reached plea bargaining arrangements wherein they will plead guilty to other charges in return for the dismissal of the conspiracy charge. Details of the ar-

Fans Throng, Cheer Holly Tribute Show

A-J Entertainment Editor

THEY TRAVELED to Lubbock from as far away as Scotland and as close by as Littlefield. They came from between 39 states and they all but filled the Civic Center exhibition hall Fiday night for a show which transcended concert status and became an emotional event

It was the first Buddy Holly Memorial Concert and, if it proved one thing, it proved that the spirit Holly put into his music still manages to inspire the industry and its faithful to greatness

Waylon Jennings was the headliner and there's no denying songs like Luckenbach, Texas' earned just as much noise as any others. But the crowd knew why Waylon was there, to commemorate an old friend. And there was no way he could disguise the feeling when he walked on stage at 10 p.m. to oin The Crickets in Holly songs like "It's So Easy" and "Peggy Sue.

The show started a bit late, but the class stood out from the first note. Tony Joe White, an unbilled attraction, got the crowd in the mood with a dynamic country set which included his deeply melodic version of "Rainy Night In Georgia." But the real crowd noise started when the Crickets - Jerry Allison on drums, Joe B. Mauldin on standup bass and Sonny Curtis playing lead guitar - took the stage.

Indeed, The Crickets - three guys who grew up in Lubbock, having fun making music - brought it all back. This was no nostalgia act we were witnessing; this was not a burned-out trio trying to get back into the spotlight with a gimmick. No, instead Allison, Curtis and Mauldin were three talents still rockin', still keeping it simple, still creating excitement sounds of "Oh Boy," but a nifty treat came with Curtis introducing the song the band wrote about the 1978 movie called "The Buddy Holly Story." Funny and heartfelt, the song told of the inaccuracies in the film and the camaraderie of the '50s Crickets. The audience, with its estimated 800 members of the Buddy Holly Memorial Society seated close to the stage, barely had time to quiet its roars of approval before "That'll Be The Day" blared out of the speakers and inspired it once more.

Last week, the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed part of a Florida-based case, U.S.A. v. Harbin et al, that was appealed by seven convicted defendants who were charged after a cooperative investigation involving Drug Enforcement Administration agents in South Texas and Florida law enforcement officials.

The Florida-based conspiracy extended over a 1 1/2 year period and, as in the Lubbock case, agents employed extensive surveillance and wiretapping measures throughout the course of the investigation.

Although the appeals court upheld most of the convictions, pointing out that government prosecutors do not have to prove that alleged coconspirators knew each other or made specific conspiracy arrangements and overt acts. the panel overturned the conviction of one defendant accused of conspiracy to distribute cocaine

The court's opinion states, "the record fails to provide sufficient evidence to support the jury's verdict that (the de fendant) was guilty of conspiring to distribute cocaine. The sole proof of (the defendant's) involvement in cocaine transactions was (a prosecution wit-See COCAINE Page 18

President Cautions U.S. Against Panic

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter said Friday that "firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration" is the way to deal with the presence of a Soviet combat

His national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, called Fidel Castro a Soviet puppet and said Russian military support "goes far beyond Cuba's defensive needs." In a statement he read personally before reporters and television cameras, Carter said that if Moscow expects the United States to be concerned about its sensibilities, the administration has a right to insist that the Russians respect American interests

Carter said the troops don't pose a military threat to the United States. He said the real issue is "the stationing of Soviet troops in the Western Hemisphere in a country which acts as a Soviet proxy" in Africa and elsewhere.

But he did not specifically demand immediate withdrawal of the troops, which he said may have been in Cuba for "quite a few years."

Carter said "intensified intelligence efforts" confirmed that the 2,000 to 3,000 troops are there.

He did not mention the pending strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, which faces new trouble in the Senate because of the troops in

Treaty Defeat Warned

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who publicly disclosed their presence, has said there is no prospect that the Senate will ratify the treaty while the Russian forces remain in Cuba.

Repeating the words of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Carter said, "We consider the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba to be a very serious matter ... this status quo is not accepta-

Carter said the purpose of the Soviet unit is not clear. "It is not an assault force," he said. "It does not have airlift or seagoing capabilities and does not have weapons capable of attacking the United States.

Unit Includes Tanks He did say the unit includes about 40 tanks and some field artillery pieces. Carter said the administration is pursuing the issue with the Soviet Union. "Let me emphasize that this is a sensitive issue that faces our nation, all of us," he said. "And our nation as a whole must respond, not only with firmness and strength, but also with calm for firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration Brzezinski, in remarks delivered to a group of news editors earlier in the day, did not specifically mention the Soviet troop presence in Cuba. But he called Castro's contention that Cuba is not aligned with the Soviet Union "fundamentally ridiculous.

Castro Called "Puppet"

"Castro is a puppet of the Soviet Union and we view him as such," Brzezinski said. "Militarily, Cuba is entirely dependent on the Soviet Union. Soviet military support for Cuba goes far beyond Cuba's defensive needs, as witnessed by the fact that the large proportion of the military equipment supplied to Cuba is used by Cubans in combat abroad and far from Cuba.

Meanwhile, sources in the Soviet embassy in Washington said they are puzzled at the official response to the troop issue. The Soviet sources, who asked that they not be named, said the troops are advisers, not combat forces, and that they have been in Cuba for 10 years.

But Vance has said U.S. intelligence officials have only recently concluded that the troops are not a part of a contingent of 1.500 to 2,000 Soviet advisers or technical personnel known to be in Carter called Senate leaders to the White House for discussions of the Cuban situation before he presented his statement. Among those who met with the president were Church, Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, Republican Leader Howard Baker and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., ranking GOP member of coming mostly fair to-night and Sunday, Highs both days near 90. Details Page 3, Sec.

Gin Trash Alcohol Plant Slated

By DUANE HOWELL Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

PRODUCTION IS EXPECTED to begin next summer at a plant at Petersburg that will utilize cotton gin trash as its principal source of raw materials to produce ethyl alcohol for use in gasohol.

The plant will consume about 40 tons of gin trash daily and cost about $3 million to construct, officials announced Friday. This will be the first plant using technology developed by Union Development

Co. of Tulsa, officials said Jerry Wienke, a Petersburg agribusinessman and vice president of Union, said the area plant will produce about 4,000 gallons per day of 200 proof ethyl alcohol. The company announced the development of a process that converts cellulosic waste materials such as cotton gin trash, crop residues, rice hulls, mesquite and 'scrub' oak into simple sugars that can be fermented into ethyl alcohol and mixed with unleaded gasoline to produce gasohol. Wienke said the new process is covered by a family of patents issued to J. W

Jelks, Sand Springs, Okla inventor

Union is licensing agent for the Jelks technology and conducts feasibility studies of potential plant sites. Jelks and Union have worked together for more than 10 years in developing the technical and commercial feasibility of the process, Wienke

The process is a two-step hydrolysis that first converts the hemi-cellulose to xylose sugar, officials said. Then the residual cellulose is converted into its constituent

"The sugars are separately fermented into ethanol, with one ton of raw material producing about 100 gallons," Wienke said. Wienke said the byproducts also are useful. The yeast and distillery slop can be fed to cattle, he said, and the carbon dioxide can be used to enhance crude oil recov-

Trash from gins on the South Plains, which produces more cotton than any area of comparable land size in the world, can support about 10 such plants, Wienke said. He added that crop residues, mesquite and oak clearing, and forest thinning in East Texas would allow the state to support 100 or more plants of this size. In fact, the United States is plowing under, burning or letting rot enough crop and forest wastes to replace all the oil we are buying from the OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) nations," he said Studies by an agricultural economist in his company, Wienke said, have indicated that ethyl aocohol produced from such cellulosic wastes could be expected to prov-See ALCOHOL Page 18

Hurricane Gloria Roams Atlantic, David Dying Over Canada

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Glo-ria became the first female-named hurricane of the Atlantic season Friday, but forecasters said there was little chance of it reaching North America.

Gloria's winds rose to hurricane strength as the remnants of what had been Hurricane David sputtered over Canada after ripping a path of death and destruction through the Caribbean and eastern United States that left more than 1,100 people dead.

"No hurricane that ever started at Gloria's latitudes or longitudes ever hit the western Atlantic and we're not overly concerned about it being a threat," said Paul Hebert, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center. "But that doesn't mean it won't be the first. But odds are overwhelmingly against that

Gloria continued to pick up strength in the Atlantic. At noon EDT it was located near latitude 26.0 north, longitude 39.0 west, or about 1,000 miles southwest of the Azores.

The hurricane was moving toward the northwest at about 12 mph to 15 mph and was expected to continue the same course for the next 24 hours, forecasters said. Highest sustained winds were 75 mph with gales extending outward 150 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south.

"It may come northwest for three or four days," Hebert said, "and we think it will eventually turn back to the north out over the Atlantic and may affect the

"It's remotely possible it may affect Bermuda, but if it does that, then we'll have to worry about us here. But I don't think that's very likely," he said.

Gloria left the African coast moving northwest and stormed through the ending most of the threat to the United States, Hebert said.

Hurricane David left the African coast on a more southerly track and headed west to the Caribbean before it whirled up the coast of Florida on Monday, then slammed into Georgia and moved up the Eastern Seaboard. More. than 1,100 people were killed, 16 of them in the United States.

Frederic, which once was a hurricane but is now a tropical depression, followed much the same course as David

At noon EDT, Frederic's poorly defined center was located near latitude 22.0 north, longitude 77.5 west. Highest winds were 35 mph. Hebert said if Frederic moved back over water, it could reFO

Red Raider Football Rally Slated

Texas Tech All-American Rodney Allison and a cheerleading competition are among the attractions at a "Football Fever" rally to be held this afternoon at the Security Park Shopping Center located at the intersection of Brownfield Highway and Slide Road.

Allison will be there to meet fans and sign autographs and promote the "fever" which infects the South Plains every fall. Also on hand will be a mock-up of the University of Southern California Trojan riding a horse back to California. The Trojans will meet the Red Raiders in the season opener Satur-

The Saddle Tramps will sell pompons and there will be free refreshments and miniature footballs.

The event begins at 1:30 p.m. and is expected to last until 4 p.m. Highlights will be a giant pep rally and the cheerleading competition. High schools participating in the competition are Christ the King, Friendship, Lubbock Christian, Slaton, Roosevelt and the Western Hills Baptist Academy. Tech cheerleaders will serve as judges.

Arafat Sharpens Oil Weapon

YASSER ARAFAT has served notice via a Washington Star interview from Beirut that Arab oil is committed to the Palestinian

OUR PLADGE

In other words, the Palestine Liberation Organization leader is saying: either shed Israel and support the Palestinians, or the taps are going to be turned off on 80 percent of the world's oil supply.

Can we write him off as some kind of stubble-faced maniac? Are a few oil-rich countries who used to live on the wrong side of the tracks going to be able to coerce us into abandoning an ally and changing the direction of our foreign policy?

THE U.S. has survived three progressively damaging Arab oil embargoes (1956, 1967 and 1973). With gasoline seemingly plentiful at the moment, and the winter not yet upon us, it is much too easy to think we can weather these embargoes indefinitely.

The trouble is, says a Heritage Foundation analyst, the Arab oil weapon, dulled in the past by bad timing and imprecision, has gained considerable clout since the Iranian revolution.

Before 1979, says James Phillips, the threat of an oil embargo, or petro-coercion, was crippled by political, strategic and economic constraints.

Babbitt Flunks Alamo History NOW, DANG IT, we can take it when an the Revolution against a totalitarian regime

hombre calls our governor bad names-but he's done gone too far when he starts disparaging the Alamo!

Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, not the most welcome stranger ever to ride onto our range, took advantage of Texas hospitality to say some mean things in San Antonio this week.

"The Alamo," he opined, "is a symbol of the problem in our relationship with Mexico. a sacred symbol to Texans and an extension of the American ideal. But to Mexico. it's a symbol of territory lost, a nation plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors."

GOV. BABBITT needs to bone up on his Texas history and gain a little better insight into the human spirit.

The Alamo stands as one of the most cherished examples in recorded history of mankind's eternal struggle for human rights. There, a heroic few offered the supreme sacfreedom.

It is not a racial symbol, nor even a nationalist symbol as Gov. Babbitt's ignorance would have him believe, but a beacon for all the world to see that man's struggle against repression is never in vain.

Gov. Babbitt overlooks, if he ever knew. that many Mexicans living in what is now Texas joined in-and gave their lives for- look it up.

"Unfortunately." Phillips says, "the recent Iranian revolution has in effect weakened several of these constraints and significantly boosted the risk that the flow of Persian Gulf oil will be disrupted by local conflict, internal instability or another em-

IN ADDITION. Phillips points out, the Iranian crisis has uncovered several other ominous possibilities:

The Iranian oil shortfall will soak up the excess expected to cushion the world against future supply disruptions:

- Present turmoil in Iran underlines the possibility of domestic groups disrupting oil production to score a point with their own government; and

- Iran's abrogation of long-term contracts could lead others to do the same, setting the stage for precise selection of oil customers-separating Arab friends from

Obviously, we don't want PLO terrorists or any other radicals choosing our friends and enemies. Playing political games with our oil spigot is patent extortion.

We must recognize the dangers involved and be prepared to fight back, lest we become-as perhaps Andrew Young would have us-pawns in a deadly game of international blackmail

Not because it is necessarily rich, but because it personified by Santa Anna. That revolution erupted into armed conflict only after the immigrants from the United States had made repeated entreaties and efforts for a peaceful resolution of their

If any in Mexico view the Alamo as a symbol of a "nation plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors"-and Gov. Babbitt may be correct in saying they do-then they have a problem of facing up to reality.

IT IS WHEN THE Arizonan says that Texans need to "readjust" their own views toward the Alamo that he shows himself guilty of an insensitivity toward basic human values

Such pomposity may win him friends among some elements of Mexican-American voters in Arizona but it will do grievous damage both to racial relations within the United States and to international relations between this country and Mexico.

U.S. citizens of Mexican descent who have studied their history lessons know that they can take pride in their heritage as a part of the people who threw off the yoke of oppression in order to live in freedom.

That happened not only at the Alamo but in subsequent revolutions within what is still Mexico, in case Gov. Babbitt would like to

Oil Supplies Strangled By DOE's Heavy Hand

WASHINGTON-Deep-thinkers in the national media continue to be puzzled and irate about the causes of this summer's gas lines. The Washington Post, in particular, has been trying to stir up a wave of paranoia about the doings of the oil companies.

In a series of expose-type stories on crude oil stocks, petroleum imports, and hinted complicity between the companies and the Department of Energy, the Post has conveyed the impression that the companies were holding back on oil supplies while hapless motorists queued up for gas.

So far, the Post has not produced much evidence to support this notion, but it keeps trying. Its latest effort is a Page One story trumpeting the fact that crude oil imports were up this year, even though there were shortages at the pump.

OIL COMPANY executives and DOE officials are quoted as being unable to solve this deep, dark mystery-the implication being that they have been caught out at something. Actually, the Post's Page One story is a crashing non-story. The fact that crude oil imports were up this year in absolute terms has long been known and alluded to in debate about this issue.

It was pointed out, for instance, in the DOE's July report on the causes of the gas lines-a report the Post and others have doggedly attacked because it said there was no evidence the companies had been engaged in hoarding

On the basis of preliminary data, the DOE estimated net crude oil imports in the four-month period February through May were up by 6.4 percent, on a daily basis, compared to the corresponding period a year before

The report made no particular claims about the precise accuracy of the percentage because the data were provisional, but it clearly noted that crude oil imports in absolute terms were up, not

HOW DOES this fit with the shortage of gas at the pump? You would never guess it from the story in the Post, but the DOE report makes the inswer tolerably plain: The overall shortage in petroleum supplies resulted from a fall-off in domestic production, not imports. According to the DOE, domestic output in the four-month period surveyed in 1979 was 215.000 barrels a day below the level obtaining a vear before

This fall-off is part of a long-term trend that has been going on for years, a direct result of federal price controls which discourage exploration and production.

Such declining domestic output means we have to import more and more oil to fill our consumption needs, with the result that we are now dependent on foreign sources for 48 percent of our requirements, compared to 35 percent in 1973. There is no mention of this in the Post's latest

Second, the DOE report makes clear that the specific problem of the gas lines in some areas— while others were free of such troubles—was created by the federal allocations system.

UNDER THIS program, gas supplies were assigned on the basis of past usage, rather than current demand, and were prevented by federal edict from moving freely from one market to another.

The DOE's report makes this quite plain. Yet the Post story, seeking to solve the mystery of the gas lines, makes not a single mention of the allocations program.

Finally, even with all this interference, the market might have retrieved the situation by importing still more oil to get supply in balance with demand. Again, however, the heavy hand of government was evident, putting pressure on oil companies to avoid the purchase of oil in highprice spot markets.

That fact, plus the existence of controls on the pump price of gas, diverted oil from the U.S. that otherwise might have come here.

Result: Despite the absolute increase in our level of imports, the DOE estimates we received less oil from abroad than we needed, and a smaller percentage of total world production than had been the case a year before. Again, no mention of any of this in the expose provided by the Post.

leaves one pleasantly loggy. He is as placid as a mountain lake. Yet he is not quite content. It is "nice." he says, with delicate understatement, that "for the first time in 15 campaigns" he does not have to ask anyone for money or other help. But he is sounding available for 1980, and that sort of sounding is a way of campaigning. Does one hear a "ground swell" of support, or does one feel it? Whichever it is. Ford says he is doing it. There is, unquestionably, a substantial reservoir of goodwill toward him.

The legend was that wild game hunting was only for the male who was willing and even anxious to take his life into his hands, far from civiliza-

IT HAS BEEN fed with thousands of dreary photographs showing the brawny hero with his foot atop the very dead head of a lion, or leering into the mouth of an embalmed rhino. The Word was that these beasties had been conquered in virtually hand-to-hand combat, and that the ribbon clerk or more sedentary journalist was not fit material for such duels Yet is has developed that there is nothing particularly dangerous about the big game hunt. The professional hunter who guides these barrelchested Nimrods sees to that

He leads them to their prey with the utmost caution, and is always standing by to deliver the killing shot if anything goes wrong. This is doubtful, since the average big game rifle would demolish a battleship.

THE HUNTER of lions and tigers doesn't even get any exercise to speak of.

He's carted off to the scene of carnage in a jeep or station wagon, with built-in saloon and TV set, and he doesn't debark until the carnivore he's about to murder is a conveniently short distance away, usually enjoying post-prandial nap.

And these days it does seem the living is only slighty less luxurious than a weekend at a millionaire's pad.

Native servants whip up gourmet meals, mix Martinis that are the envy of Club 21, style and/or dye the warrior's hair, pitch air-conditioned tents, do the laundry and even, if desired. tuck the weary hunter into a bed Cleopatra would not have snubbed with political questions. He speaks directly. But he picks his words with deceptive precision.

He is, he says, doing nothing "publicly" to encourage political supporters. He says he is not interested in entering primaries, he adds, in an offhand parenthesis. "certainly not the early ones. For the nomination to be "worth having." for him. he thinks he might have to be "invited in"

Suppose, he says, that after the first wave of delegate selecting events (say, the lowa caucuses and the northeastern primaries) there is no clear

Then, he says, several candidates who are clearly failing might withdraw and join in asking him to step forward as a consensus candidate.

THAT IS, to say no more, improbable. The multiplication of primaries, combined with the campaign finance laws, make it highly probable that most candidates will run out of money quickly, and that a majority of the delegates will wind up committed to someone who was in the race at the start and who won something early

Ford's place in history is, for the moment, clear. He is the man the country was fortunate to find at hand when it needed a President it could read as an open, and not very complicated, book You might think he would be glad to saunter on down the road of life without looking back

But the nagging ache of his narrow defeat in 1976 has been only partly assuaged by the knowledge that today, most Americans probably beheve that the country made the wrong choice

BECAUSE FORD is so relaxed, and because as President he was so given to bumping into things, and falling down, it is easy to forget one thing (and perhaps at this point the most important thing) about him.

It is that he once was a fine athlete and still is what most fine athletes are: He is a competitor. He may be a gracious loser, but he does not lose without hankering for a rematch. Since being sentenced to the durance vile of nation giving speeches. He enjoys doing that: it is amazing that anyone can like something so much and do it with so little flair. Oscar Wilde said that Henry James "wrote fiction as if it were a painful duty," and that is, alas. how Ford seems to deliver a speech. The fact that he is only a, well, sincere speaker matters more today than it did in 1976. Jimmy Carter has stirred yearnings for leadership, and rhetorical ability is rightly regarded as an essential ingredient of that

NEW FACES in politics benefit from the fact that, as Samuel Johnson said. "We are inclined to believe those who we do not know, because they have never deceived us.

Game May Be Deadly To Missing Student

EAST LANSING, Mich. - Sweitering police and private detectives prowled a network of steam tunnels under Michigan State University Friday. looking for a missing student and the "dungeon" where he may have been trapped in a fantasy game.

"I don't think he's playing the game now." Anna Egbert of Dayton, Ohio, said of her son, 16-year-old son James Dallas Egbert III.

"I don't think he's living down there," said campus police Sgt. Ted Glynn after a three-hour search in the 115-degree heat of the tunnels Thursday night. "He may be dead."

Egbert, missing for three weeks, had talked of roaming the tunnels in a "livversion of an intellectual game called "Dungeons and Dragons," according to his parents, James and Anna Eg-

"He said that they would walk through what he termed the walls of dormitories, and he said that they had been in the steam tunnels," the youth's father said in a telephone interview from Dayton.

Howard Wilson, MSU director of building services, said the tunnels ranging for about eight miles beneath the campus carrying steam and water pipes - can be entered through buildings, although a key is needed. Students get into the tunnels nonetheless, he said.

It's easy to get out because of safety catches on chains holding down entry grates, Wilson said.

In the game, usually played on graph paper with dice, a "master" fashions a dungeon and challenges other players to

But at MSU, "they went beyond playing it on paper," Mrs. Egbert said. "No one else (who played) will come forth and admit it.

Richard Riddle of Dallas, one of five private investigators hired by Egbert's parents, said graffiti and beer cans were found in the tunnels Thursday. But Riddle said there was no tangible evidence of Egbert.

FRISCO, Texas (AP) - Two purple blobs that Sibyl Christian found on her front lawn have defied analysis by space scientists, who say they haven't ruled out the possibility they could be a rare form of meteorite

"It's kind of like plum pudding," according to geochemist Doug Blanchard of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration near Houston. "It has round, solid chunks in it that remain after the goo goes away. We don't know what it is," said Friday.

M.B. Christian said that on Aug. 11 his wife noticed three blobs "about the size" of an old box telephone on their front yard in this farming town north of Dallas, "but one of them disappeared. It just faded away.

A spokesman for the Dallas planetarium said that Aug. 11 is the day that a recent meteor shower reached its peak.

Blanchard said the two remaining blobs have been placed in deep freezers at NASA headquarters to keep them from evaporating while exhaustive tests are conducted.

"That may take a month or a month and a half," he said.

Sibyl Christian said that when she found the blobs they "looked like smooth whipped cream, purple

"I stuck this stick into the object. It went in easily, very easily. I punctured it. On the inside it was the same thing just like real whipped cream, and it looked like it was melting, but it was a deep rose.

She said she called the police, and officer Jaime Davila decided to try to pick up one of the blobs.

Upward Bound Plan Begins Accepting '79-80 Applicants

Texas Tech's Upward Bound program is accepting applications for the 1979-80 academic year from any interested high school student in his or her ju-

Upward Bound is designed to help high school students from low income families develop the skills and motivation necessary for success in college. Each student's family must meet the low income criteria set up by the U.S. Commissioner of Education.

Preference will be given to students who have demonstrated academic potential and scholastic ability in their high school courses. Students must be able to participate in sessions held every Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the Tech campus. They also must be able to attend a six-week on-campus program next summer. The summer program allows students the opportunity to become better acquainted with college life.

High school students in their junior year interested in the Upward Bound program should contact their high school counselor or the Upward Bound office located in the Texas Tech library. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., or students can call 742-3616.

Woodpecker Might Alter Amusement Park Plans

woodpecker may create some bureaucratic red tape for businessmen interested in building a large amusement park and resort complex in the suburban woodlands of St. Tmmany Parish, La.
The proposal to build the park, a hotel and accompanying facilities on 5,000 acres of pine forests 40 miles north of New Orleans was announced last week by Gov. Edwin Edwards. Promoters said the project could expand to 20,000 acres with related developments and the governor described it as a major boost for the tourism industry.

But the red cockaded woodpecker. which is on the endangered species list, nests in the the general area, possibly on the same acreage the developers hope to buy for their park.

"Our general records indicate that St. Tammany has red cockaded woodpeckers in it, but we're not sure exactly where," said Wendell Neal, a biologist with the Interior Department's Wildlife Agency in Jackson, Miss.

Fred Barry, a bird enthusiast and columnist for The Times-Picayune, said he spotted a pair of the woodpeckers last spring near a highway that traverses the tract of land sought for the park.

He said the birds measured approximately 8 1 2 inches. Their non-migratory nature meant their nest must be in the vicinity. Barry said.

Energy Chairman Predicts Rationing Bill's Use

Senate conferees began piecing together a compromise standby gasoline rationing bill Friday, with the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee saying the plan may soon see use.

"I think that what we do here in the rationing area may be implemented, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said as House and Senate energy conferees met for the first time to reconcile their differences over the legislation.

He said the plan should not be viewed as just a standby measure to be left forgotten on the administration's amendments were shucked suggested

One major difference is a provision in the House bill that would prohibit rationing from being imposed unless there were a 20 percent drop in fuel supplies over a 30-day period.

Senate conferees tentatively proposed on Friday that the measure be amended to permit the president to impose rationing if the shortage were only 10 percent.

It was part of a package deal the Senate negotiators offered their House counterparts. The other part would give Congress the right to veto a rationing plan when it is developed, not just when it is put into effect by ohe president as proposed in the House-passed bill.

'I want to see it reduced to writing," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the chief House negotiator.

Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., another key House conferee, said the Senate "ofing oil and "is making every reasonable fer" might form the basis for an eventueffort to avoid any price increases in al complomise. But he said that he, too, home heating oils for the remainder of Republicans on the conference panel sought to give Congress a greater say over details of a rationing plan.

Under the legislation as currently written, Congress could veto rationing but only after the president tried to invoke it. Republicans contend that in such a crisis situation, it would be unlikely that Congress would block any ra-

With Michigan already accounting for third of the 31,000 teachers on strike in the nation, 12,000 Detroit teachers finished voting Friday on whether to accept a contract or walk off the job in the 220,000-student district.

Teachers began voting Wednesday. and Detroit Federation of Teachers officials, who asked not to be identified, said the vote appeared to be close. The tally was expected to begin Friday night, but the union gave no indication on when the results would be announced. Rejection would prompt a strike beginning Monday, the union said.

Nearly 11,000 teachers in 29 of Michigan's 529 school districts were on strike Friday, affecting classes for 26,000 students - about a third of the 670,000 pupils affected by teacher strikes in 15

The Michigan Education Association said an additional 177 districts were without contracts.

"Two things are holding up negotiations in the state: economics would be No. 1, and the protection of teachers' rights would be No. 2," said Harry Boyes, a spokesman for the association.

Teacher strikes continued in Alaska, California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Washington. Included were walkouts in Indianapolis, Oklahoma City. Spokane, Wash, Eugene, Ore, Anchorage, Alaska, and Jefferson Parish, a suburban area of New Orleans.

Three colleges - the University of Rhode Island, Farleigh Dickinson University and Union College in New Jersey - also have been hit by teacher strikes, and clerks, technicians and librarians were on strike at Boston University. A bus drivers strike in Michigan City, Ind., kept half the district's 10,000 students out of school

In Rutland, Vt., striking teachers obeyed a court order and returned to their classrooms Friday. Most of the district's 240 teachers, who have 3,700 students, had been on strike for a week. Union officials said they would ask the judge to lift his order pending an appeal.

A similar back-to-work order in Paterson, N.J., was ignored by 1,700 teachers whose strike has stopped classes for 26,500 students. Assistant School Superintendent Jack Weber said school officials and union representatives would be back in court Monday.

In Louisiana, officials of the Jefferson Federation of Teachers said the Parish's school board had made a new proposal and invited the union to resume negotiations. Union spokesman Bob Crowley said teacher representatives would discuss the proposal over the weekend, but neither side would comment on details.

The district's 466 bus drivers, most of whom had been honoring the strike, joined the 2,000 striking teachers on the picket lines Thursday. The district has kept classes open for its 64,000 students by using non-striking teachers, substitutes and administrators.

Nearly 270 teachers returned to work Friday in Allegheny County's Chartiers Valley District after ratifying a contract that will raise salaries $4,600 over three years. The district's 5,000 students are scheduled to begin classes Monday.

Teachers in New Britain, Conn. meanwhile, threatened to join the ranks of strikers Monday, saying a final decision would be made Sunday. The district has 9,000 students and 663 teachers.

John Hill may have left big shoes in the attorney general's office, but Mark White thinks his feet are big enough to

White, attorney general since January, came through Lubbock Friday on a series of stops around Texas to talk about his accomplishments in the past

"I'm just going to do the best job I can," he told the Avalanche Journal We have taken a tough stand on the issues that have arisen, and I feel that we can handle these issues very well.

White, winner over favorite Price Daniel Jr. in the Democratic primary last year, told listeners at every stop that his office has collected $14 million through litigation for the state since the first of the year and recently concluded the largest civil damage suit ever collect-ly involved in negotiations with Mexico about oil spill damages along the Gulf. The attorney general stopped for a short speech and a news conference at

Police Arrest Youths In Marijuana Incident

Two Estacado High School youths were arrested Friday for possession of marijuana.

Police reports indicate that a biology teacher at the high school noticed one of the youths start to roll a marijuana cigarette during class.

The teacher confiscated the cigarette, but while escorting the youth to the principal's office, the teacher noticed one of the students toss something into a trash can. A plastic bag containing threeeighths of an ounce of marijuana was recovered from the trash can.

The two youths were turned over to juvenille authorities

In other activity, three women, ages 24, 28 and 34, were arrested about 1:45 p.m. Friday after police found them fighting at a club in the 1700-block of Fourth Street.

Officers said they entered the nightspot and saw the two younger suspects on the floor pulling at each other's hair.

The other woman reportedly confronted the police while the two women continued their scuffle and said the club manager gave them permission to work out their differences by fighting.

Then the third suspect grabbed the manager's hair and they fell to the floor. according to reports. Police, after managing to pull the combatants apart, took the three women to the county jail where they were booked for disorderly

A 39-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 12:30 a.m. Friday after he alllegedly exposed himself to two Texas Tech University coeds at 38th Street and Avenue Q shortly before midnight.

The public meeting was the first of our in the state to help finalize a policy statement on nuclear issues.

The state committee will host subseuent meetings in Austin, Houston and Dallas through Tuesday to gather public viewpoints on a proposed statement the committee plans to submit to Gov. Bill Clements for his consideration in forming a state policy on selected nuclear is-

Two formal presentations were made during the morning session of the hearing in Lubbock.

Otto F. Zeck. radiation safety officer for the Texas Tech University School of ledicine, told committee members that ne realizes prior notification of daily hipments of radioactive materials hrough the state would greatly hamper hipping companies, and instead proposes routes around major urban areas to prevent possible major spills from afecting dense population zones

Zeck, who emphasized that his views were his own and not necessarily those of the medical school, said he supports the development of a program for surceillance and enforcement of regulations regarding major shipments of radioactive materials

He also pointed out the need for ciies the size of Lubbock or larger to establish their own radiological emergency response teams to assist in the case of a major spill. Committee members noted that city health department branches already have the right to form such teams.

Zeck said he upholds the Texas Energy Advisory Council's proposal on nuclear fuel reprocessing which he feels will eliminate some of the waste disposal problems. He said plutonium, whose toxicity has caused most public concernin the area of nuclear waste, can be reprocessed for use as nuclear fuel, thus

The Grass Everyone's Talking About

ELITE OVERSEEDING MIXTURE BEAUTIFUL GREEN LAWN FOR ALL SEASONS

The STORY BEHIND "DIXIE GREEN"

Seven years ago, Dianne & I began looking for a grass that we could overseed our Bermuda with to have a green lawn in the winter. We were tired of having a dormant turf for 5 months out of the year. After all these years of tyring different grasses, we finally heard about & tried the "Dixie Green" After going through one full year in our yard, Dianne and I knew we could recommend "Dixie Green" grass 100%. A beautiful emerald green grass that has almost caused accidents in front of our home. Our lawn has looked like a golf green for the past 2 winters and blended beautifully with the Tex-Turf 10 Bermuda.

> Jimmy Foy — Landscape Architect 4502 -80th St., Lubbock

HOW DO I PLANT "DIXIE GREEN"

1. Overseed an existing Bermuda Lawn

- a. Scalp, or mow existing lawn or bermuda as low as possible, and pick up the clippings.
- b. Apply "Dixie Green" seed with a cyclone or drop type spreader at a rate of 2-4 pounds
- c. Apply fertilizer (Zipp 16-8-8, Fertilome w/iron, or Pax Winterizer, note: DO NOT USE ANY WEED & FEED FERTILIZERS!
- d. Water & keep damp for approximately 10 days. Do not allow water to puddle or run

2. New Yard, Bare Areas Caused by Shade, or No Existing Turf.

- a. Rototill soil to a depth of  $1\frac{1}{2}$ "-2" in order to loosen soil. (Note: some new yards, that have just been prepared by the builder have enough loose soil on top that no tilling is
- b. Rake until a good level seed bed is prepared.
- c. Sow, seed, fertilzer, and water as above

NOTE: The Dixie Green is not meant to take the place of Tex-Turf 10 or any other Bermuda, however, since it is getting too late to have coverage with Bermuda, the "Dixie Green" will give a beautiful lawn this fall & winter, then Bermuda may be sprigged into "Dixie Green" next spring.

With the hijackers on the Alitalia DC-8 were 11 airline crew members, including two fresh pilots who agreed to fly the craft to Tehran, Iran, airline president Umberto Nordio said. The plane, hijacked on a flight from Tehran to Rome after a scheduled stop in Beirut, Lebanon, had been on the ground here for 121/2 hours.

The hijackers, believed to be Lebanese, freed most of the passengers shortly after landing here and demanded a flight to Cuba to plead their case before the conference of non-aligned nations meeting in Havana. When they were told Cuba was having stormy weather and Iran said it would accept them, they agreed to go to Tehran instead, authorities reported.

They said the gunmen promised to surrender to government officials upon arrival in Iran

The hijackers had held 36 passengers and nine crew members as hostage.

Nordio said that under the agreement reached with the aid of a Rome-based representative of the Arab League, two fresh pilots joined the original crew of nine for the flight to Iran and the remaining passengers were allowed to disembark when the plane's engines were running and it was ready to take off.

Several senators have proposed putting off the Senate's consideration of the arms control treaty with the Soviet Union until the troop issue is resolved. After Carter's statement, a senior

The official said many of the senators who met with Carter made strong statements about their desire for a calm reaction to the Cuban situation and "no one said they weren't going to support SALT

But after the meeting with the president. Church said he has found no senator willing to take issue with his judgment that SALT is dead as long as the Soviet troops remain in Cuba. He said U.S. officials have received a message rom the Soviets indicating that talks on the issue should begin shortly.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Carter had shown a lack of leadership and that we ought to have said to the Soviet Union — calmly — get those troops out of there or no SALT II."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said Cartor "should have said that from this point any consideration of SALT will be linked to Soviet behavior

But Javits called the Carter statement "a good one" and added: "It would be unwise to call off the Senate proceedings relating to SALT II at this time. There will be plenty of time to react to SALT II when all the facts are

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he plans to press his effort to seek a vote next week on a resolution to block Senate consideration of the treaty until all Soviet combat forces are removed from Cua or the president certifies that any remaining troops "pose no threat to the security or foreign policy interests of the inited States or of our treaty allies hroughout Latin America."

Wholesale Prices,

the economy in the face of the new recession, the government said Friday. And in another report with bad news for consumers, the government said wholesale prices rose another 1.2 perployment in months ahead cent in August, with higher prices for Layoffs Increase food and fuel largely to blame.

Unemployment was 5.7 percent in July. The bulk of the increased joblessness was among adult white males, said Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. She said the latest jobs reports "reinforce the signals of weakening economic performance.' Food Prices Rise unemployment rate rose sharply in August to 6 percent, the highest in more than a year as job layoffs spread through

The government's Producer Price Index showed that food prices rose 1.2 percent at the wholesale level, reversing a four-month period when food prices had either declined or showed no change.

"It's certainly going to drive up the retail price of food," said one food industry expert who declined to be named.

In another development, four of the nation's largest banks raised their prime lending rates to a record 12% percent, in a direct response to actions by the Federal Reserve Board to drive up interest rates to help slow inflation.

The government reports showed that the recession is finally putting people out of work in sizeable numbers, while inflation continues out of control.

Fewer Pavchecks

The result will be fewer paychecks to cover the rising prices of goods throughout the economy. The purchasing power of workers' paychecks already has declined about 4 percent in the past year.

The rise in the bank prime lending rate likely will be reflected in increased borrowing costs to businesses and consumers, including homebuyers.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said, "It is discouraging to see the (producer) prices increase so rapidly." Although noting a new jump in food prices. Powell said: "There is no reason to believe a rapid run-up in food prices is beginning. Our crops are in good shape. Our supplies of pork and poultry are imroving.

"Not Worsening" As for the higher jobless rate, Powell said this "does not indicate our economic situation is suddenly worsening - it's just that it's catching up with the other statistics we'd seen earlier

Powell said the administration sees no need to revise its forecast of a 6.6 percent unemployment rate by year's

Lyle E. Gramley, a member of President Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, said the increase in unemployment was not surprising in view of the showed production declining as the economy slipped into a recession.

"What we're seeing now is reflecting underlying economic weakness," he said. "That's unfortunate, but that's what we had to expect. We have to be prepared for further increases in unem-

The Labor Department said unemployment increased by 300,000 to 6.2 million in August. "Much of this increase was due to a sharp jump in the number of persons on layoff," it said.

Mrs. Norwood told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that unemployment has increased 400,000 in the past two months, and that most of the job losers were adult men, especially

The unemployment rate for whites increased to 5.3 percent in August, up from 4.9 percent in July. The unemployment rate for blacks and other minorities rose to 11 percent from 10.8 percent. The jobless rate for adult women increased to 5.9 percent from 5.5 percent.

The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations, so the statistics don't always accurately reflect the employment developments at any one point in time.

A separate survey based on actual employment data showed that 125,000 manufacturing jobs were lost in August. with cutbacks in electrical equipment. machinery, food processing, apparel and rubber and plastics industries.

While there is also "substantial evidence" of employment cutbacks in theauto industry, these layoffs have not yet shown up conclusively in the employ ment data, the department said, indicating they will show up in later months.

The rise in joblessness to 6 percent of the labor force was the highest since unemployment was 6.1 percent in July of last year. For the past year, the rate had fluctuated around 5.8 percent.

The administration had been predicting that its policies to slow the economy would push unemployment to 6.6 percent this year and 6.9 percent next year However, an unofficial administration forecast said the jobless rate could hit 8.2 percent in 1980.

Kennedy Gets Okay From Wife, Mother

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Edward the 1980 Democratic presidential nomi M. Kennedy said Friday that his wife and mother have told him they will not object if he runs for president, removing what had been perceived as a major barrier to a 1980 Kennedy campaign.

"Both my mother and my wife indicated they would support any decision I would make," Kennedy told reporters after a speech here.

Although he reiterated his position that he is not now a candidate, he added: "I am concerned about the direction of the country.

Asked if he knew when he might decide whether to seek the Democratic nomination, Kennedy replied: "I don't have any particular time frame or any particular date

Joan Would Campaign

Reached in Boston, Kennedy's wife Joan said if there is a campaign, she will join it. Mrs. Kennedy, who has lived apart from Kennedy for almost two years, said that if he becomes president, she would return to Washington and live with him in the White House

"Yes, I would campaign, and of course, I'd live in the White House," Mrs. Kennedy said in a telephone interview from her apartment. "Ted said to me, 'Joansie, I don't know what the fuss is all about, and I said, 'I don't either.'

The Massachusetts senator has said repeatedly that he is not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and expects that President Carter will be the nominee.

Repeats Not Candidate

He repeated Friday that he is not a candidate, but skipped the rest of the lit any. "I am concerned about the direction of the country," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said he had discussed the subject of a presidential campaign with his family because "personal considerations, family considerations, have always been a matter of enormous importance and they continue to be. I suppose it is only natural I would talk with the members of my family

The approval of Kennedy's wife and mother is expected to encourage the "Draft Kennedy" movements already active in 19 states.

Kennedy's press secretary, Tom Southwick, said earlier that Joan Kennedy and Rose Kennedy, Kennedy's mother, told the Massachusetts senator during the congressional recess last month that they would support him if he decides to challenge President Carter for

Asked if Rose Kennedy would campaign, Southwick said, "She is pretty much ensconced in the Hyannis (Mass. compound, but she has said that whatever he wants to do is all right with her

Publicly, Kennedy has not changed his long-stated position that he expects Carter to be renominated and that he intends to support him. But as Carter's political fortunes have slipped dramatically, there has been considerable pressure on Kennedy to change his mind and enter the race. But no decision has been made yet." Southwick said.

In his talk with reporters Friday Kennedy said again that "I expect to support the president." He said: "I have every intention of working with the administration, but I am concerned about the direction of the country

Miss Houston, Gamble, Rankin and Lamoreaux were the last of 14 arraigned cocaine conspirators to reach agreements with prosecutors.

However, only one plea bargaining arrangement has been made public.

Wednesday, Randy Tom Leavitt, a third-year student at Texas Tech University School of Law, pleaded guilty to a single misdemeanor charge of possession of marijuana in January.

Leavitt was assessed a $1,000 fine and a six-month probated sentence, which may be discharged by Jan. 15 if he meets all probation terms by then.

In return for the plea. Leavitt was to give testimony during a trial regarding an envelope which he was asked to deliver to a person he knew in April of this year. However, Leavitt's attorney, Herman Gotcher of Austin, said Leavitt had no knowledge as to the purpose or contents of the envelope

All other defendants indicted on cocaine-related charges by a federal grand jury in June also have reached agreements eliminating the necessity of jury trials. However, three of the accused conspirators still are at large.

TEL AVIV. Israel (AP) - Security forces, making the largest crackdown this year in occupied Arab territories, have broken up four guerrilla cells in the Gaza Strip and arrested 70 suspected ter-

Carter Approves $33 Billion MX Missile Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced approval Friday of a $33 billion deployment plan for the MX mobile missile force, saying it would do "the best job" of meeting a Soviet threat to current U.S. fixed-base missiles.

Under the plan, 200 MX mobile missiles, each carrying 10 nuclear warheads, would be mounted on giant transporters and shuffled among some 4,600 blast-proof underground shelters built in race-track-like patterns in some 40 Utah and Nevada valleys.

It is a variation of the "shell game" idea of deterring a Soviet surprise attack by preventing the Russians from knowing where the missiles are at any given time.

Carter said "it's a system we need" because of the looming threat increasingly accurate Soviet missiles will pose in the 1980s to the present force of 1,000 U.S. Minuteman missiles.

The MX missile itself will be testfired for the first time in 1983 and the system will become partially combatready in 1986, with full readiness planned by 1989.

The president said the new system is compatible with the U.S. Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty and would help point the way to negotiating reduced forces on both sides.

But, the president said, "it's not a bargaining chip."

At the same time. Carter said he hopes the 190,000-pound MX missile, the biggest ever built by the United States, will be "the last missile system of enormous destructive power that we will ever have to build."

Defense officials said the $33 billion estimated cost would include $15 billion for procuring the missiles and transporters. $10 billion on construction and $8 billion on research and development.

Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown stressed that the "racetrack" deployment will minimize the impact on the environment in the Western states, where it will be deployed on government-owned land.

Carter's approval of the "racetrack" deployment plan was expected after most of his top security advisers had recommended it last month.

The president last June authorized development of the MX missile, this country's first land-based ICBM in over 10 years, but left a final decision on how it should be deployed while costs, environmental impact and other considerations were studied.

Despite the huge $33 billion cost, the

Despite the huge $33 billion cost, the president described the system as "affordable" and said it meets all the key tests, including the critical one of "survivability".

Some senators critical of the SALT II treaty have indicated that approval of the MX missile and other actions to strengthen the U.S. nuclear strike force would weigh heavily in their decision on whether to vote for ratification of the treaty. The Joint Chiefs of Staff also conditioned their support of the SALT treaty on the MX deployment

The transporters would move the missiles along surface roadways, shifting them from shelter to shelter about once a month. Each transporter vehicle, which would weigh about 670,000 pounds, would be covered by a shield that would prevent Soviet spy satellites from telling whether or not it was loaded with missiles.

For verification purposes. Brown said, each shelter would be fitted with "removable plugs" to allow the Russians an occasional glimpse inside, reassuring them that the United States was not hiding missiles above the limits set in the SALT treaty.

Each missile would be moved among 23 shelters located on spur roads off the main "racetrack" pattern. There would be about five such patterns, or clusters, in each of about 40 valleys. The plan also includes two assembly bases, one each in Utah and Nevada

Brown said the governors and legislatuges of the two states have expressed support for the "racetrack" deployment. And while Brown conceded that there are many in Congress "who will raise questions," he noted that in very case where money requests for the MX system work so far have reached the Senate and House floors, they have been approved.

Apparitions Or Elusive Girl? Young Vacationer Skeptical

STEWARTSTOWN HOLLOW, N.H. — When Alberta Buffington returns to school this fall she'll have a whale of a composition to write about what she did during summer vacation.

What she did was see a ghost.

Some people think it was a ghost, anyway. Alberta, 14, does not. She believes it may have been a missing person. or a runaway, or someone in trouble. In any event, nobody in this mountainous Canadian border settlement know who or what it was that made a strange appearance a few

Alberta says her experience began on a warm Friday afternoon when she and a playmate, Jean Appleby, 11, were occupying the swings to the side of community's tiny schoolhouse. The school, empty, stands on high ground which is bordered on three sides by sloping ravines and a Apparently, Jean Appleby saw it first. She turned to Alberta and said, "Berta, there's a girl over there." Allegedly, a child had come out of the forest and was sitting on a large rock at the end of the playground. Alberta estimates she was about 7 years old, and she was all alone.

The child, who said nothing, was reportedly welldressed. She looked in fact as if she'd come from a party. Alberta says she wore a white dress and had a pink ribbon tied around her waist. Her black shoes were polished. She looked none the worse for any wear. She had shoulderlength brown hair.

But if she was groomed, she was not friendly. When Alberta and Jean left their swings to approach the child, she jumped off the far side of the rock. Alberta says she got within arms reach of the stranger and asked what her name was, but the child fled down into the thicket and disap

Alberta went immediately home to report the incident to her parents. This is a small community, and its few dozen residents are all acquainted with one another, so Alberta says the child she saw was definitely a stray. The police were called. A short search was made. But no trace of the child was found Page 2.

The next day Alberta's story spread throughout the Hollow. And as it happened there were others who had also noted curiosities near the school house. Donald Placey, for instance, who lives across the road from the school, says he heard someone crying near the playground on the previous day.

"It went on for a long time," Placey recalls. "I was in my yard fixing the school bus (Placey's wife is a school teacher), and I heard it for two or three hours. I thought it was just some kids playing. But it was funny. It was like wailing, or somebody afraid; it came from the woods.

Besides Placey, Clara Denton heard the cries. Only she describes them more nearly as "screams." She heard them in the late evening at various intervals. When she went outside to investigate the commotion, she called out, "but all that I could see was the bushes rustling back and forth."

Soon police in nearby Colebrook began to receive a host of similar complaints. Sylvia Hubbard said she saw some one playing near the schoolground. Another woman reported hearing cries for help. But each time the police investigated, they could find no indication of anything untoward.

So then, inevitably, the rumors of the supernatural started. Folks reasoned that if the child in the woods was human, she'd come out, or at least leave a trail that could be followed. And what about the wailing screams? Some parents in the Hollow began ordering their children inside at

At about this time Kenneth Poore put his oar into the murky waters. At 93, he is the eldest citizen in the Hollow, and he remembered a time in the past where a girl child, or an aberration, was seen picking potatoes in the community. No one knew that girl, either - and when she was approached she ran.

Was the child of yesteryear the same one as this summer? And how is that possible? Donald Placey says he doesn't believe in ghosts, but he can't forget the wailing he heard "with my own ears." Alberta Buffington also does not believe in ghosts, but she had terrible nightmares following the incident.

On the third day of the story, Alberta's nightmares came

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Dear Dr. Donohue: Our son is going on a diet of 650 calories a day. All he has to lose is 35 pounds. The nurses tell him he will lose this in about five weeks. They check him each day. He is 5 feet, 11 inches. Also, he does office work. I think this will hurt him to lose so fast. Would you please comment if it will or

There's much you don't tell me about your son, his present weight, for example, or if he is presently hospitalized while undergoing this weight loss pro-

In any event, a 650 calorie diet used over an extended length of time is potentially dangerous unless done with close medical supervision.

It will probably be deficient in nutrients - carbohydrates, proteins, fats, minerals, and vitamins. There is risk of severe electrolyte imbalance, meaning lack of vital chemicals, potassium, etc. There may be low blood sugar and increased uric acid (as in gout) and a chronic type of acidosis (too much acid

All of these deficiencies may make him weak and thirsty and perhaps even cause him to faint or lose consciousness in some cases. Unless he is hospitalized and there is a medical purpose behind this extreme dieting he should seek a more realistic program, one to lose a couple of pounds a week, for example.

Photographers Plan 'Kickoff' Meeting

Harvey Madison, a local professional photographer, will present the fall kick-off program for the Lubbock Photographic Society Tuesday at 7:30 at the Lubbock Garden & Arts Center.

Topic of the program will be close-up photography, an area which Madison claims as his special interest. The presentation will cover equipment and techniques for photogrpahing insects and other small subjects.

The program, which begins the sixth year of the club's operation, will be of interet to amateur photographers of all levels of experience, and especially to those with single lens reflex cameras.

Lubbock Photographic Society plans for the remainder of the year include a program on underwater photography by Dr. Stan Lefkowitz of the Texas Tech School of Medicine Oct. 9, and a membership exhibit scheduled for March 29 and 30. The club also schedules photogrpahic outings and encourages family participation in all events. The Lubbock Photographic Society "Calendar of Events," listing all programs and meetings for the 1979-80 year, is currently available in local camera stores.

All meetings of the society are open

The sclerosing procedure is still done, however, but with newer, more effective techniques. Many doctors are not comfortable treating purely cosmetic problems. # ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You are probably ted up with letters from homosexuals. Well, this one will be different. I hope you will print it because I am not the only one who feels this way. I am, however, one of the few who will admit it. I believe it is my duty to speak out for those who don't have the courage. Being gay is not of my choosing. I remember having sexual fantasies at the age of five, and they weren't about girls they were about members of my own sex. To this day I don't know if I am the way I am because I was born different, or whether my parents' attitude influenced me in this direction, or what. But I am definitely gay, and no matter what the reason is, it doesn't matter much. I have traveled in homosexual circles for a long time and it may surprise your readers to know that most of us are not limp-wristed, lisping sissy-types. As a matter of fact, no one would ever point a tinger at me. There is not a single socalled gay trait in my looks, speech or behavior pattern I have kept my true identity so well-hidden that members of my family have no idea I am not perfectly straight. Furthermore, I hope they never find out. My parents would die. (Sometimes I think I'll explode when my mother and aunts suggest a lovely "date" for me.)

I am not asking for sympathy or, heaven forbid, pity. What I AM asking for is understanding. Individuals who are crippled are treated with compassion by decent people. Well, we are emotionally crippled. It happened at some stage in our development and we are stuck with it. Although some gays say they have no desire to be straight, most of us would give anything if we

Dear Southland: I didn't trim a word. Here's your letter exactly as you wrote it, with my thanks for expressing yourself so honestly.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married to a wonderful woman for 16 beautiful years. We had one child, a daughter. My wife died three years ago. Our daughter was 14 at the time. She was so upset at her mother's death she asked me to promise I would never get married again. I did so. Periodically, at three-or four-month intervals, she reminded me of that promise and asked me to promise again. Last year I began to keep company with a very fine woman. I would like to marry her, but as recently as last month my daughter asked if I remembered my vow. She must have read my mind.

Your headquarters should be equipped with:

- Marking and tagging equipment, or replacing lost or damaged tags or making tags with new prices. - Sign-making equipment, for making

If you anticipate a fair volume of besiness, be ready with a supply of nickels and dimes saved from your pocket hange during the weeks before the sale. Then, a day or so before your sale, go to a bank and get a roll of quarters (ten dellars' worth), 20 one-dollar bills, a few five-dollar bills and at least one ten-dolar bill

Most of the cash you accumulate during a sale will be in the form of currencg. It will be safer on your person than in a cigar box, purse or other container that may be left unattended.

One idea would be to keep your currency in a money clip. You won't have live part series gives trans advice on how to contain valuable papers, credit cards and so forth.

If you're doing a brisk sales volume. In arranging a garage sale area, make currency may stack up quickly. Periodically, take out some bills and secrete them in a secure part of the house or apartment rather than display too big a pile in front of strangers.

You'll also accumulate a lot of silver Put coins in a box or other container. Then establish a system for keeping the box under observation and control at all

Anyone selling merchandise to the public should have a policy on extending credit. The garage sale is no exception.

If you have a fair number of items priced at several dollars and more, sooner or later someone will probably ask if you'll take a personal check in payment

If you'd feel uncomfortable taking a check instead of cash, plan ahead what you'll say so you won't offend a customer with a hasty, unintentionally rude re-

Explain cordially you're simply not prepared to handle checks; that you're terribly sorry, but yours is strictly a cash-and-carry sale.

If you have firmly decided on this policy in advance, it would be a good idea to place a sign prominently in your sales area stating "ALL SALES CASH. PLEASE "NO CHECKS. PLEASE

There is always some risk in accepting checks from strangers. On the other hand, if you don't accept checks, you might miss some big sales.

One way of handling the would-be buyer who doesn't have enough cash is to accept a deposit, and then to hold the item until the buyer returns with the full payment

Here are some tips on displaying vour merchandise:

- Be sure all tables, benches and other objects holding merchandise are sturdy enough to remain standing even though jostled.

When laying out items on a counter or table, put the small items in front and the big ones in back. This will lessen the chances of items in front being knocked down.

 Pay special attention to the aisles Is there enough room for people to move without bumping into one another and or into your display tables? And are the aisles clear?

If you are selling lamps or small electrical appliances, have an outlet available where customers can test

Hang coats, dresses, jackets, sweaters and so forth on some kind of rack rather than pile them in a heap. Buyers can see the clothing easier. Also, have a mirror available.

 If you have a "quarter box. 'Penny box' or other box filled with merchandise jumbled together, be sure all the merchandise is sturdy and relatively impervious to damage. Things in those boxes sometimes take a terrific beating.

The more populous the area in which you live, the more likely that your lastminute preparations will be interrupted by visits from one or more early birds.

'Early birds' are nearly all semiprofessional dealers or hard-core junque addicts. They're trying to take advantage of your confusion and inexperience to buy something valuable for as close to nothing as possible.

They're hoping your merchandise will include treasures whose true value you fail to recognize. They want to snatch up those bargains before anyone else does. Many also know that in the confusing hours before the sale, you haven't had time to establish all your prices. You may be rattled by their approach and inadvertently quote too low a price off the top of your head or accept a ridiculously low offer

Unless they are your friends or neighbors. I'd recommend against allowing any "early birds" into your house or apartment until the day of the sale because.

- It isn't fair to customers who do abide by the rules.

- It's more important for you to complete your last-minute preparations - pricing, making signs, cleaning merchandise, setting up your display area and so forth - than it is to drop everything to show one "early bird" around.

- Anything the "early birds" might buy before a sale starts, they will also buy after it starts.

- Unless you have badly underpriced your merchandise. "early birds" don't buy much anyhow. If an "early bird" begins buying right and left, your things were worth a lot more than you thought. Many "early birds" are doing what they do because they want to take advantage of you. Why encourage them? Anyone who sells merchandise to the public risks being victimized by shoplifters. No neighborhoods are immune to It's not likely you would be visited by professional shoplifters. Those people confine their efforts to stealing fast-movng new merchandise at stores.

But you could be visited by some amateur shoplifters, and the first rule in guarding against them is to be reasonably alert at all times. Some shoplifters try to strike during a sale's first hours. when sellers are busiest. Especially watch customers who dawdle for long periods in far-off corners for no appar-

Another rule is to watch people who watch you. Most amateur shoplifters are self-conscious. Before pocketing an item, they will keep glancing at the owner of the merchandise to see if they are being observed.

Other precautions include:

If you display merchandise in more than one room, try to have someone helping with the sale posted in every

- If you're selling item of considerable value, display them under lock-andkey, perhaps in a locked cabinet. - If you're selling small, easy-to-conceal items, such as jewelry, put them in or near your "command headquarters." so it will be easy for you to watch the display. A common tactic used by shoplifters working in pairs or groups is for one to distract the seller while the others steal what they can. Any seller alone in the sales area should be alert to this possi-Another tactic is to lure the seller away from the sales area. In the case of garage sales, often this is done by send-items. This person then asks for help in carrying these items to a car While the sellers are so engaged, the buyer's confederates, perhaps hidden down the alley, will hurry into the garage and steal as much as they can carry, probably heading first for the seller's

Illiteracy has never been higher, despite the fact that the United Nations has spent more than $12 million in various programs to combat illiteracy and that the U.S. taxpayer is currently paying $80 billion annually to their educational system," she said. knocking at the doors of private schools, colleges and even professiosn where literate standards have been impeccably preserved for hundreds of years.

Altrusans, she said, "are truly dedicated to eradicating illiteracy - hopefully by the year 1990." She urged all Altrusa members and interested citizens to expand their efforts at the local level to help solve the problem.

Trash Man Nets Small Reward After Search For $20,000

Even collecting garbage can put you in the money in this chic desert resort. Trash collector Ruben Nieto found $20,-000 cash in the county dwmp.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) -

It turned out the money belonged to a Palm Springs restaurant owner.

Here is how Jim Cunningham, vice president and general manager of the Palm Springs Waste Disposal Company, tells the story:

The restaurant owner had her daily receipts in hand but couldn't make it to the bank in time. So she put her money in the restaurant trash, stored in a bin outside, for safekeeping.

"She figured it would be the last place anyone would look if the restaurant was robbed. Only one problem: she forgot that the trash was scheduled for pickup the next morning.

The woman, whose name Cunningham declined to disclose, arrived at the restaurant the next day to find both garbage and cash gone.

She rushed to the garbage collection firm, which dispatched a small army of workers to the Edom Hill dump to sift through tons of trash from all over the Coachella Valley.

He said about the same percentage of the teaching staff complied with the time clock rule on Wednesday when 112 people punched in.

The time clock rule was established by the school board last month in an attempt to keep track of what Allen said were a few teachers who arrived late and slipped out of school early.

But the measure is not working - in part because Allen cannot get school principals to enforce it.

John Klomp, principal of Pueblo County High School, said he has more important issues to contend with than forcing his teachers to punch the clock.

"I explained the directive to them." he said. "That's about all I could do. Whether they sign in or not is up to Allen said the rule "has become an

PLAINS AGRICULTURE By DUANE HOWELL

A PLAN FOR INCREASED FUNDING of cotton dust research was presented to directors of the National Cotton Council this week at a board meeting at Little Rock.

Dr. Philip J. Wakelyn, a former staff member of the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech and now NCC manager of safety and health technology, said an intensive short-term research effort is needed to eliminate the source of byssinosis.

Cotton dust has been implicated in byssinosis, a respiratory illness found in a few susceptible workers.

Wakelyn outlined a program calling for $4 million to $6.5 million "over and above current expenditures.

"There is every reason to believe that a crash research effort over 18 to 24 months would identify a practical means of eliminating or deactivating the causative agent," Wakelyn said.

THE THREE-YEAR BOLL WEEVIL eradication trial in its second year in Virginia and North Carolina is going "extremely well," technical research director J. Ritchie Smith told the board. He said no weevils have been found in the trial zone since June 27, indicating that the goal of eradication may have been reached a year early. If the trial program is successful, the eradication effort will be expanded to other areas of the belt. Donald A. Johnson of Lubbock, executive vice president of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., discussed successful promotion of cotton. Johnson, a member of a recent trade team which promoted U. S. cotton in the Far East, said the team approach is successful and should be continued. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture P. R. "Bobby" Smith told the directors about new membership enlistment efforts by the International Institute for Cotton, made up of 11 cotton-exporting countries, including the United States.

ADDITIONAL COTTON NATIONS are expected to join IIC in the next few months, Smith said.

Hoke Leggett, NCC president and North Carolina cotton farmer, told the directors that the Carter administration apparently is leaning toward favoring small" farms at the expense of larger, more efficient ones.

He cited the Interior Department's proposed regulations limiting federal reclamation project water to 160 acres per person and the proposed "national dialogue" on farm structure and size.

In other reports, the directors were brought up to date on farm fuel supplies — tight and expensive; the cotton economy — sagging in a recession but still bright because of consumer demand for denim, corduroy, and other textile favorites; exports of U.S. cotton — going strong; and legislative developments concerning reclamation law and crop insurance.

SPECIFIC PROPOSALS WILL BE MADE in about three weeks by the U S Department of Agriculture in response to a government report that urged greater USDA oversight on the activities of Cotton Inc., Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jim Williams said this week

He told a meeting of food industry officials that final USDA action covering Cotton Inc. will be taken after CI resp onds to the report.

The USDA's Office of Inspector General in late August issued an audit report recommending, among other things, that the USDA assert greater oversight concerning the activities of Cotton Inc.

GRAIN SORGHUM HAS BEEN RELEASED from the farmer-owned reserve for the second time.

The USDA said the five-day moving average market price for sorghum was $4.33 per hundredweight Wednesday, the effective date of the release. The reserve release for feed grains is reached when the market price is 125 percent of the commodity's loan rate. Sorghum, which has a national loan of $3.39, has a release trigger of $4.24 per hundredweight.

Sorghum prices will be reviewed Oct. 31 to determine if the release authorization should remain in effect, the USDA said.

Grain sorghum was released June 22 when the price was $4.25 per hundredweight, but the authorization was withdrawn Aug. 1 when the price dropped to $4.21.

About 29 million hundredweihts of sorghum are in the reserve.

Hog futures closed 102 lower to 15 higher on 8,734 lots. June was down the most after losing 117 with distant October at the best gain after rising 67.

Heavy hog runs and kill coupled with mostly lower cash hogs brought profit tkaing and other selling ahead of the weekend. The market reacted after limit gains Thursday. Selling came despite higher cash hams and loins at noon.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 155 to 200 lower paced by August. Volume was 7.929 cars

Heavy hog runs and kill along with weakness in cash bellies touched off profit taking and other selling. Prices turned downward after rising to the highest since May, 101/2 cents up in the

Food Costs Reach Historical Heights

Food costs rose more rapidly in the past four years than in any other peacetime period in the country's history.

That's been quite evident to everyone who buys food.

But it may not be so evident that 85 percent of those increases in food costs, which have reached record levels, were due to higher food marketing costs.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Grain and soybean futures drifted in quiet trading Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade, with grains closing slightly higher and soybeans mostly lower.

Traders cashed in on profits and liquidated trading positions ahead of the weekend, when clear, cooler-than-normal temperatures are forecast for much of the corn and soybean belt.

Futures opened mostly lower after private crop analyst Conrad Leslie predicted a record 7.3-billion-bushel corn crop and a record 2.2-billion-bushel soybean crop after the close Thursday.

But the bearish effects of the report were brief. Traders said the figures had been expected, and many were awaiting an Agriculture Department crop report next Wednesday or furthe direction.

Interpretations of weather forecasts were maed, withsome traders expecting beneficial crop effects of a few days of clear, drying weather.

Financial Aid Available To Many College Students

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

For thousands of high school seniors, the start of the school year means the start of the search for acceptance by a college or university. For many families, it also means the start of the search for help to pay the bills.

The cost of a four-year education at a private college or university is already more than $22,000; according to figures compiled by the College Board, and tuition and fees are expected to keep going up.

Millions of dollars of public and private money are available to help students and their families, but it is important to plan ahead to Ask colleges about financial aid when you ask for application forms. Make a note of deadlines and mark them on a calendar. Do not wait until you are accepted at a school to investigate scholarships and other aid programs; it may be too late by then.

The next step is finding out whether you qualify for help. Eligibility is usually linked to family financial status, but you should not make the mistake of thinking that income alone makes the difference. Financial status depends on a lot of things: the number of youngsters in school, for example; assets, like a house; or special expenses.

Most schools and scholarship agencies rely on one of several standardized forms to decide eligibility. These forms are published and analyzed by testing services; you and your family fill in the form and mail it to the testing service which, in turn, sends it to colleges you se-

The details of the forms vary, but they generally are designed to determine how much a family can reasonably be expected to contribute to a student's education. Colleges compare this amount to individual costs to see whether a student needs help. You may be eligible for aid at one school and ineligible at another.

Among the most commonly used forms are the Financial Aid Form - FAF - issued by the College Scholarship Service of the College Entrance Examination Board and the Family Financial Statement - FFS - from the Student Need Analysis Service of the American College Testing Program.

They are generally available from high school counselors; students should pick them up late in the fall and should complete them as soon as possible after Jan. 1. There is a processing charge, plus a separate fee for each school you want the form sent to.

The federal government has five basic aid programs, several of which have been expanded recently. They are: Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, National Direct Student Loans, College Work-Study and Guaranteed Student Loans. All but the Guaranteed Student Loans are tied to financial need; starting this year, guaranteed loans are available regardless

The broadest program is the one providing basic grants. The amount of the grants varies from year to year; for the current academic year, grants range from $50 to $1,600 depending on eligibility

Financial need is determined according to a complicated formula, but, as a general rule, students from families with incomes of up to to re-apply for a basic grant each year. You can use either the Financial Aid Form or Family Financial Statement to apply for a basic grant or you can fill in a special application form distributed by the Office of Education.

All students who are eligible for basic grants receive them. The money is generally paid by the school. You will not be given the money until you are actually enrolled: the school may issue you a check for the grant or may simply credit the amount to your account.

Guaranteed loans are granted by banks, credit unions and other participating financial institutions. You pay no interest at all during the four years you are in college and for a brief period after you graduate. When you do begin to pay interest, it will be at a relatively low

Undergraduates may borrow up to $2,500 a year up to a maximum of $7,500. It is up to you to find an institution willing to lend you the money under the guaranteed loan program; not all lenders are willing.

Church To Celebrate 25th Anniversary

RALLS (Special) - Twenty-five years ago this month the first Catholic Church community in Crosby County began under the direction of the Most Rev. Bishop John Morkovsky, now the bishop of the Galveston-Houston Diocese. Sunday at 5 p.m. a special service will be held at San Miguel's Catholic Church to commemorate this anniversary.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor L.T. Matthiesen, newly elected Apostolic Administrator for the Diocese of Amarillo, will concelebrate this worship service of thanksgiving with members of the college of priests from the Amarillo Diocese. Among the concelebrants will be all the former pastors. The first Catholic worship service in Crosby County was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Chavez of Lorenzo. Under the direction of the Rev. Kevin Calrke, the church was located in Ralls and held services in movie theaters and the American Legion Hall. San Miguel's Catholic Church was built and consecrated for worship in 1958. The Ralls church was responsible for the starting of the mission churhes of San Lorenzo in Lorenzo and San Jose in San Miguel's had added to the original church property and the parish now includes 250 Mexican-American families.

Runcie, ordained as a churchman 28 years ago after a distinguished career as an army tank commander in World War II, was named Friday as the 102nd Archbishop of Canterbury - leader of the Anglicans and the U.S. Episcopalians. Runcie, 57, who calls himself a progressive and has stated liberal views on social topics, will succeed the Most. Rev. Donald Coggan, 69. Coggan, who has held the post for five years, announced he would formally resign Jan. 26 to make way for a younger man.

Upon installation shortly thereafter in a ceremony at England's Canterbury Cathedral, Runcie will assume the title of Primate of All England. He will be spiritual head of the Church of England and leader of the world's 65-millionmember Anglican Communion, including 3 million U.S. Episcopalians.

The appointment was announced by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office. All high appointments in the Church of England are made through the prime minister's office by Queen Elizabeth II, the temporal head of the church, after consultation with church leaders.

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Planned Parenthood withdrew as an agency of the United Way on Friday after the Roman Catholic hierarchy urged a boycott of the fund because some of the money would go to the family planning group. p I nomas Drury had said Catholics should not contribute to the community fund-raising agency because Planned Parenthood - which offers abortion referrals - joined Corpus Christi United Way in June.

United Way officials had said the boycott could result in a loss of $800,000 from their goal of $2.4 million. Planned Parenthood would have received about

The board of South Texas Planned Parenthood of Corpus Christi voted Friday to withdraw membership "so that the position of the Catholic leadership will not injure the many people who receive the valuable services of the United Way agency," said Paula Campbell, board chairman.

She said her agency "will continue to meet the needs of the community by providing multiple family life services.

Monsignor William T. Thompson, vicar general of the Coastal Bend Diocese, said Drury "was very pleased with the news" and would urge Catholics to support United Way.

"The development is a significant step foward in the paramount struggle of our time — the struggle to uphold the sanctity of life," Thompson said.

What's up in inflation?

What are the best ways of fighting inflation? That question was posed to the winners of this year's Media Awards for Economic Understanding, administered by Dartmouth's Amos Tuck School of Business Administration and sponsored by Champion International Here are their leading responses:

 Reduce government spending. Decrease or eliminate the federal deficit.

- Discourage wasteful spending by the public. But one winner suggested that now - not later - is the time to travel, buy consumer goods and build homes. Reform taxes. Cut income taxes. Create tax incentives for saving and investing as opposed to Encourage resource conservation. Develop new energy sources.

Tighten the money supply Stimulate freer trade.

Make home ownership easier - or speculation in the housing market more difficult.

— Buy gold. Or land. Elect public officials who better understand economics and who offer specific anti-inflation programs. Curb workers' wage demands. Increase productivity Instill greater pride of Ease government regulation of business. - Provoke a recession.

Religious Program Supporters 3 Vent Rage Based On Rumors

tees people the right to petition their government for redress of grievances.

And that's just what they're doing these days. Washington agencies report a barrage of complaints regarding fuel shortages, bureaucratic regulation, inflation and all the rest

But the biggest petition grumble of all may have nothing to do with the popular controversies. According to the amount of mail on the matter, the principal grievance in the nation is the highly emotional worry that new laws are being prepared to prohibit Christian programming on radio and television.

What, you've never heard of the problem? Well, Washington has. A spokeswoman for the Federal Communications Commission says an army of people has become convinced that Texas atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair is trying to outlaw religious broadcasting, and they think the FCC is about to honor her demands.

None of it is true, of course, O'Hair, from Austin, says she has never even considered the idea. And Maureen Peratino, the FCC spokeswoman, insists that her agency could not censor the religious shows if it wanted. Both ladies agree that the whole thing is, as O'Hair puts it. a rumor gotten out of hand.

Out of hand, indeed. The FCC regularly receives as many as 60,000 complaints a day on the issue. And the mail at one point has "filled several large No one has been able to keep a precise count of the cards, letters and phone calls, but Peratino believes the total "is in excess of 10 million."

What's more, the barrage is not merely a recent aberration. Peratino says the complaints have been coming in steadily since the middle of the decade. That's when the rumor began, apparently, in 1974 or 1975; and back then, Peratino adds, there may have been some small substance to the fears.

Peratino believes the fears grew out of a 1974 incident. Two men from California. Lorenzo Miland and Jeremy Lansman, wanted to start a small FM radio station, but could not get federal approval: reportedly, all of the FM bands in their location were already taken by religious broadcasters Miland and Lansman felt the Christian saturation was unfair, and they formally asked the FCC for relief. Specifically, they filed a petition (RM2493) asking the government to open some of the FM bands to alternative programming. The FCC considered the request, and on Aug. 1, 1975, denied it.

O'Hair says she was never a party to the complaint. In fact she says she never agreed with it. Despite the failure of the petition, however, radio evangelists soon began condemning the "coming censorship of Christianity." and O'Hair, long a eading atheist, was inevitably linked to

And so the correspondence started. Then it exploded. Over the years the FCC has received single-sentence expressions of outrage, and awesome tomes citing scriptural admonitions. Even people who should know better have written in: officers of the DAR, VFW and Boy Scouts, for example, have remonstrated.

Many of the complaints are carried on form letters clipped from church bulletins. Typically, they condemn O'Hair as much as the rumor. "Our minister has advised us of this terrible conspiracy," reads one of the forms How can you allow this hateful woman to dictate the radio and TV programs?

BERLIN, Ohio (NEA) - "Behalt!"

The fanciful red lettering on the sign fairly leaps out at motorists wending their way through this "Switzerland of Ohio" region. The message beneath inites one and all to stop at the somewhat ecrepit church just behind the sign to vatch Heinz Gaugel at work on what may rank as one of the most important eligious murals of our time.

Inside, Gaugel perches atop portable scaffolding, his arm virtually flying over the mammoth canvas before him. A steady stream of charcoal powder wafts down upon the slightly curled lower edge of the canvas, occasionally spilling over onto the well-worn floor below.

The sight is awe inspiring. Before the artist stretches a canvas 45 feet long and 10 feet tall, every square inch filled with drawings related to the history of the Anabaptist religious movement. What's more, this segment is just a fraction of the entire painting, a cyclorama - only the fourth in North America - measuring 180 feet around. By the artist's reckoning, it includes more than 2,-000 individual figures, at least 150 of them life-size.

Born in a small village near Germany's Black Forest, Gaugel worked as "a house painter and a wall washer" in his homeland before turning artist.

He moved to Canada in 1951. During the next two decades, he achieved international acclaim with more than 300 murals, sculptures and stained-glass windows in Canadian churches, schools and public buildings. Gaugel came to the United States in 1971 when commissioned to construct a 100-foot-tall statue of Christ and other exhibits for a proposed biblical park. He learned only after his arrival at the Ohio site that financial problems had forced the park's backers to give up the vengrations of the Anabaptists, including ture

Gaugel himself faced near financial ruin because he was prevented by immi-gration authorities from working for three years. Eventually he set up a stud-io in the Ohio town of Millersburg, where he quickly made many friends among the area's large Amish communi-

Ultimately, the Amish located an abandoned farm and farmhouse for Gaugel, his wife and his two teen-age sons. The artist gleefully dubbed the farm "Das Hexenhaus" (The Witch House) in reference to his wife's being one of the country's leading handwriting analysts. That unusual talent at first caused the Amish to believe she was a witch.

Gaugel's fascination with the area's heritage led him to create a line of furniture decorated in the best early Pennsylvania Dutch tradition. As his interest in the local Anabaptist faith continued to deepen, so did his desire to depict its little-known history in a cycloramic mural.

"I don't want there to be anything superficial about this work," says Gaugel of his extensive research for the 18,-000-square foot undertaking. "I am attempting to make it accurate in every respect from the faces of the people to the clothing they wore, the weapons and torture devices they used and the tools they employed."

Those faces are one of Gaugel's toughest challenges. Since many of the people in his mural are remembered only in footnotes, their portraits and descriptions are rare. Even figures as well-known as Martin Luther pose substantial

"Back in the 16th century," observes Gaugel, "people painted many portraits, but they were almost always a full-front or a direct-profile view, expressionless

What I have to do is portray Luther nailing up his 95 Theses, angry and defiant. But there are no portraits of Lu-ther showing anger. So what I have to do is study all the portraits of Luther I can and from them paint an angry Luther.'

The completed cyclorama will be housed in a specially constructed round barn just outside Berlin. It is intended to be the focal point for a planned Amish-Mennonite cultural center.

Reaction is mixed to Gaugel's project among area Amish and Mennonite clergymen, says the Rev. Harold G. Stolzfus, a Mennonite.

"We are not interested in commercializing our theology," says Stolzfus, "But we understand the great contributions that come from the artist and we are always open to seeing and hearing outsiders' views and interpretations of our faith." (Gaugel is not an Anabaptist.)

In looking over Gaugel's work, only one thing really worries Stolzfus. "I appreciate Heinz's efforts to tie our church in so directly with the biblical story," he says. "I just hope viewers don't feel that the Mennonites have some sort of an inside track."

Study Shows Likelihood Of Robbery Violence

Gun-wielding robbers are less likely to fiarm their victims than are unarmed robbers

By the same token, gunslingers are less likely to hurt robbery victims than robbers who carry knives, clubs, tire irons or other weapons

When they do get violent, however, the gun-carriers are five times as likely to kill, according to a study by Phillip Cook and Daniel Nagin, who are professors of policy sciences at Duke University. Cook and Nagin examined records of the Washington, D.C. Superior Court, a study of robbery-murders in Atlanta and data from the National Crime Panel surveys of 26 large cities.

Criminals without guns, they found, apparently feel a need to intimidate victims by attacking them. Unarmed robbers attacked 71 percent of their victims. knife users, 36 percent and gun-wielders, 20 percent

The researchers also found that gangs of assailants are more prone to violence than are solo stickup artists. Cook points out that such violence would seem to be needless, since several robbers "could presumably intimidate a victim by their very mass presence." However, Cook speculates that these cases may involve a group of non-professionals out looking for kicks and egging each other on.

A majority of people in nursing homes may be stuck there because of Catch-22 rules and regulations, not because they have medical conditions that require the care most nursing homes provide.

That charge comes from two psychologists at Yale. Jettrey Wack and Judith Rodin, who recently summed up several vears of work on the characteristics of nursing home life in the Journal of Social Issues.

Only a "minority" of elderly patients require more than "a relatively brief period of convalescent care following treatment in a hospital." Wack snd Rodin say. The rest soon become well enough to get by at home, although they may need the help of visits from nurses or meals on wheels" services.

Federal regulations, however, have encouraged most nursing homes to be

His remains were cremated March 6. 1978, and Mrs. Smith said she picked them up in a plastic bag and cardboard carton two days later, along with a certificate that said the remains were those of Wesley J. Smith.

She said that recently she decided to bury them, but first wanted to go through them. "I wanted a tooth so I would be buried with a part of him, While sifting through the ashes. Mrs. Smith said, she found 29 false teeth, and no real ones, plus bits and pieces of metal. The suit says she concluded that the ashes were "the cremated remains of some other person, or persons un-Mrs. Smith said Tuesday that she called the crematorium right away. But she said the person she spoke to told her that someone else's teeth might have gotten into the sides of the crematorium and suggested she "come in and see how a body was burned.

Ed Peyser, a spokesman for the crematorium, said he was not familiar with the Smith case and no one was available for comment.

Montayne, informed of the suit by a reporter, said he could not discuss how cremated remains are identified.

Mrs. Smith said she considers her action a "consumers" suit. "I am filing on behalf of everybody else who have these dreams of being cremated together. I think they have that right.

Apparitions? Girl Remains Doubtful

(Continued From Page One) true. She returned to the school, sat again in the swings, and encountered the mysterious child once more. The stranger was still dressed in party clothes, and she was still spooky. "I tried to catch her that time,' Alberta sighs, "but I couldn't '

Area police say they are baffled. Some residents suggest the whole matter is an invention. Donald Placey insists something was in the woods, and may still be there. But whatever the realities, it appears Berta Buffington is going to be off to a grand start this semester in English composition.

set up on the model of hospitals. There, the role of patient requires the person not to engage in any activity without the permission of the physician." Even dayto-day activities are controlled by nurses

In this passive atmosphere, other investigators have found, elderly people begin either to lose, or to think they have lost, the skills it takes to manage their own lives. These skills include the ability to decide when to have visitors. and even when to dress themselves. Creeping feelings of helplessness contribute to making many healthy elderly people reluctant to leave

A more devastating barrier to departure is that by the time many nursinghome residents are well enough to go home, they are too poor.

To qualify for Medicaid, residents must 'spend down' their own financial resources to a level determined on a state-by-state basis. Often, it is only enough to cover burial costs. The result?

Wack and Rodin cite a 1977 study by the Congressional Budget Office showing that "over 47 percent of the patients whose costs were paid by Medicaid were not initially poor by state definations.

Most elderly people want to remain active and contributing members of their families and communities if they are able, according to a 1975 Harris poll. Hence. Wack sand Rodin call for overhauling the assumption that most nursing-home residents need to stay until

BEAUTIFUL CLOCKS!

One way of hastening recovery turned up in a study done several years ago by Rodin and Ellen Langer, also a psychologist. A selected group of residents in a Connecticut nursing home were given responsibility for matters such as arranging their rooms and deciding when to attend a movie

With these simple measures, these residents become more alert, more active and happier than comparable residents who were treated in the traditional way. A follow-up study two years later showed that the patients who had decisions to make had remained healthier as Wack and Rodin also call for financial changes to keep open a patient's option of leaving. They suggest eliminating spend-down requirements, or making turn to living in the community grants available to people who could re-

Damage Suit Granted Change Of Venue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State District Judge Herman Jones agreed Friday to move a $9.4 million damage suit against former White House press secretary George Christian and his wife away from Austin.

The widow of the junior high English teacher Wilbur Rodney Grayson Jr., whom the Christians' son, John, killed in his classroom May 18, 1978, filed the

Jones granted the Christians' motion for a change of venue but made no immediate decision on where to send the Young Christian, then 13, shot Grayson. 29. on May 18. 1978, with a .22 caliber semi-automatic rifle before a room full of classmates. The youth was committed to a private psychiatric hospital in Dallas after the incident.

The suit by Laura Grayson on behalf of herself and the couple's young son alleges the Christians were at least partly responsible for the death of her husband. The legal action alleges that the rifle was "in all probability" the one the Christians gave their son for Christmas Pollster John Henson testified extensive media coverage of the shooting made it impossible for the Christians to get a fair trial locally. He said his firm polled 501 Travis County residents by telephone and found almost half believe the Christians must share the blame for their boy's action.

Christian was press secretary for the late President Lyndon Johnson.

The Christians' lawyer, John Wilson, said it would be "impossible to attain a fair and impartial jury" in Travis Countv. He suggested moving the trial to a county where there is no daily newspaper, such as San Saba or Mason County.

Mrs. Grayson's lawyer, former Austin Mayor Jeff Friedman, said, "I don't believe - in any shape or form - any prejudice exists at this time.

Friedman said, however, he probably would not oppose a change of venue if the trial would not be moved further than 100 miles. He mentioned Bexar, Comal, Caldwell or Bee counties as possible sites

"But, if we try to find a place without a daily newspaper, we might as well exclude the press from a public hearing." Friedman said

Gas-Guzzler Owner Donates Auto To Goodwill Industries

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The owner of a gas-guzzling, eight-cylinder car said Friday he decided Goodwill Industries would be "the best home" for his car after trying unsuccessfully to sell it.

Gerald L. Gordon said of his 1972 Buick

We've already sold quite a few of the cars," he said. Some were bought by Goodwill employees at reduced prices. Gordon said that although no one was interested in his car for $1,000, but Goodwill may find a buyer for $300 or $400.

"If Goodwill sells it for $300 or $400, then somebody can buy a lot of gas for that $600 he saves," Gordon said. "It becomes relative.

Wichita Falls Pounces On Mustangs In Opener

By RANDALL PERRY Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Oh. those first-game blues! The Lubbock Coronado Mustangs experienced a bad case of first-game blues when they dropped a 20-6 decision to the Wichita Falls Coyotes Friday night at Lowrey Field

Wichita Falls quarterback Kevin Gandy fired two touchdown passes and fleet halfback Robert Morgan raced 81 yards with the second-half kickoff for the Covote scores.

Meanwhile the Coronado offense. which seemed to be running on diesel fuel. could churn out only 136 yards against the tough Covote defense, including an embarrassing minus four yards rushing in the first half.

Coronado was plagued with offensive problems, including three interceptions and a lost fumble.

The Mustangs had to drive only seven yards for their lone touchdown with just over seven minutes left in the game. After Wichita Falls had built their

The college football season is just getting under way but the coaches are in midseason form as far as moaning and groaning is concerned.

Bear Bryant of defending national champion Alabama, which travels to Atlanta for a nationally televised (ABC-TV. 3.30 p.m.) clash with Georgia Tech, laments that "I don't know if we are going about getting our team ready the right way or not. One minute they do things fairly well, then the next minute they look like football is a foreign language."

Bryant's English can sound like a foreign langauge to those hearing the old coach's growl for the first time but the Bear is serious when he says that his Crimson Tide. despite a No. 2 preseason ranking in The Associated Press poll, is not as good physically or as ready mentally" as last year's club. "We don't have and No. 20 Arkansas are idle. the great talent in certain spots."

Although the 3-4-5-8-9 teams - Oklahoma, Texas, Penn State, Nebraska and Notre Dame - don't open until later this month, 10 other members of the preseason Top Twenty are in action today. In a trio of Big Ten Conference games, No.6 Purdue entertains Wisconsin, seventh-ranked Michigan hosts Northwestern and No. 10 Michigan State is at home against Illinois.

In the Second Ten, it's San Diego State at No. 12 Missouri, No. 13 Stanford at Tulane at night, Brigham Young vs. No. 14 Texas A&M under the lights at Rice Stadium in Houston, Wyoming at No. 15 Washington and three more night games - No.16 Houston at UCLA, California at No. 18 Arizona State and Southern Mississippi at No. 19 Florida State. Eleventh-ranked Georgia, No. 17 Pitt

The Alabama-Georgia Tech games marks the renewal of a once-popular series that has been dormant since 1964. Although there were a couple of overplayed slugging incidents that made headlines, Georgia Tech asked out be-cause Coach Bobby Dodd dropped six of seven meetings with the Bear and Alabama and grew weary of having to play Bama and Louisiana State consecutively in November just when bowl-pickin' time rolled around

The unpredictable Pepper Rodgers is now Georgia Tech's coach and that has Bryant concerned, too.

We don't know what to expect from Tech," he says. "They've got Steve Spurrier and Norm Van Brocklin running the offense now, so you have to guess they will be using some pro type offense, but Pepper might come at us with something else entirely. We're trying to pre-pare for every formation known to man.

"We respect Tech because they have some fine athletes and they have a lot of people back on defense and should be tough. We are sure they'll really be ready to play against us, so we hope that we can get the point across to our players that this will be as tough an opening game as we've had."

Of all the ranked clubs, Michigan is expected to have the easiest time against a Northwestern team that didn't win a game last season. But don't go looking for complacency from Coach Bo Schem-

"Taking a look at Northwestern, I'd have to say that we'll see the stadium filled with footballs," he says. "They're going to try to pull some tricks on us. and all we can do is be ready. You know have a fine quarterback in Kevin Strasser. On defense, Northwestern uses quite a few tricks, Last year, they had injury problems when we played them. This season, Northwestern will be in excellent shape and I don't think we'll

One of the Saturday's most-watched contests doesn't involve Top Twenty teams. That's the Ohio State-Syracuse game in Columbus, Ohio, which marks Earle Bruce's debut as Ohio State coach.

Cowboys to Romp, Steelers Over Bum

By the Associated Press

Houston's been waiting all winter, spring and summer to watch the Pittsburgh Steelers fall this autumn.

Not a chance. The Oilers, mauled by the Steelers in the American Conference championship game last Jan. 7, will fare no better in Sunday's rematch. Oh, the score may be closer than the 34-5 pounding administered last time, but you know what they say about close. It ain't horseshoes or hand grenades

Last week's performance (8-6) in the National Football League's opening weekend left a lot to be desired. So did the Baltimore Colts and Cincinnati Bengals, which is why we're picking the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Buffalo Bills to upset them.

PITTSBURGH 21, HOUSTON 13: Break out the ol' flak jacket, Dan. The Steelers will be coming at you with all their big guns.

TAMPA BAY 16, BALTIMORE 13: The Bucs' defense is as good as before, and now they're putting together a formidable offense.

BUFFALO 14, CINCINNATI 10: If the Bills could play Miami so evenly, they should be able to take care of Ken Anderson & Co. OAKLAND 28, SAN DIEGO 20: If Ken Stabler's really back, he'll put the Idalou kicked off. And, not wishing to appear ungracious, New Deal fumbled. The Wildcats crossed the 22 yards in only four plays. Emery again scoring - this time on a seven-yard run. Still not satisfied. New Deal spoiled a 10-play march on its next possession by shanking a three-yard punt, giving Idalou the ball on the Lion 30. The Wildcats managed two plays bethe next play when New Deal fumbled the ball right back: Get the picture?

After that the see-saw settled down And, just before the end of the half, so did the Wildcats - settled down to serious work that is.

With the score tied at 14 and only four seconds left. Emery scored his third touchdown of the evening on a two-vard run.

Dennis Green, an all-South Plains selection at offensive tackle last year. proved that coach Tom Ritchey's decision to move him to tight end was wise, grabbing a two-point conversion pass to make the score 22-14, Idalou.

The teams battled scoreless through the third period. New Deal proved that its vaunted interior line was worth its weight in clippings. holding the Wildcats to a standstill. Idalou, for its part, kept the Lions at bay with a fine punting exhibition by Gary Smith, who booted the ball 32 and 47 yards.

Then, early in the fourth quarter, The 'Cats broke through. An intercep-down on the Lion 15.

Five plays later Green came through again, making a fine twisting catch as he crossed through the end zone from the left side of the line. Emery added the two-points and Idalou was in command,

Not satisfied with that, the Wildcats scored again after an interception by Raymond Hill put the ball on the New Deal 14. Idalou used just three plays to cover the territory, Ruben Reyes capping from five vards out

Littlefield Opens With 35-14 Victory

LITTLEFIELD (Special) - Littlefield Wildcat Tailback Rex Freeman scored three TDs here Friday night to lead the home team to an impressive opening game win over the scrappy Frenship Tigers, 35-14.

In the first quarter, Freeman scampered two yards to paydirt, and David Smith's PAT kick was good, for a 7-0 lead with 11:12 left Freeman hit again with 4:20 remaining in the first quarter, this time from eight vards out, and Smith's kick made it 14-0.

Frenship came right back for a TD with 1:48 remaining in the first quarter on a 1-yard TD run by Armando Cruz, McNary. Valley's leading rusher and Frenship halfback. Steve Bradford's kick the only Patriot to score, was taken to made it 14-7 as the first quarter expired.

John Paul McCanick took a 13-yard TD pass from Littlefeld Quarterback Eddie Gregory with 9:52 left in the second stanza, and Smith's kick made it 21-7.

Freeman struck again in the second quarter, this tie with 6:02 left, and Smith's kick made it 28-7.

Manis, in his varsity debut at quarterback, flipped a 10-yard touchdown pass to all-state end Shawn Williams to open the scoring with exactly 6:00 minutes to play in the third period. Manis had connected with senior flanker Randy Stumbo for 26 yards on a crucial third-down call earlier in the Eagles' 81-yard drive

Manis engineered a 15-play thirdquarter drive that concluded with his 8yard touchdown pass to halfback Steve Sikes with 4:46 left in the fourth quarter. Williams reappeared long enough to miss the extra-point attempt.

Nazareth, which had gained more than three yards on only one play through the third period and the first six minutes of the fourth, went to the air successfully as Steffens hit Schmucker for 29 yards and Book for 10 during their 64-yard scoring march that culminated with 2:15 remaining on halfback Bryan Huseman's 22-yard burst.

Manis spooned out the irosting as he threw 48 yards to Stumbo with two seconds left for his third TD pass. Eddie Crouch kicked the final point.

Plainsmen Explode Past Canyon In 35-7 Rout

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche Journal Sports Staff
CANYON — The Monterey Plainsmen posted their biggest win since 1977 by whipping, beating and toying with the Canyon Eagles at Kimbrough Stadium.
The final read: Monterey 35, Canyon 7.

It could have been a lot worse. Halfback Willie Johnson inflicted the most pain on the Eagles by rushing for 105 yards and scoring a couple of touch-downs. But he wasn't the only Plainsman getting in a few kicks. Kent Potts, senior quarterback who has already been compared to former MHS great Ron Reeves, had a sparkling night, passing for 117 yards on six completions and hitting Johnson on a pair of touchdowns. He also scored one himself

"I thought we got after it pretty good." said MHS coach James Odom. appearing much more pleased than after the 6-6 tie the two teams fought to a year ago. "We were a little crippled up in places, but everybody came on and played well."

The win by Monterey was its largest ever over the Eagles in the four year match-up. In 1976 the game ended at 21-7 and it finished with a 7-0 count two years back.

The victory also kept Monterey's win streak — now at three — alive.

The only flaw for Monterey came in the fourth period when the defense gave up its only TD, a 23-yard scoring toss from David Harbin to end Gary Fletcher. Monte Johnson booted the extra point, which cut the Plainsman lead to

The score was meaningless to everybody but the MHS defense and especially Odom who rushed out on the field following the play to dispute the call.

"He (Fletcher) never had control of it," said Odom. "He juggled the ball before he fell out of bounds. It wasn't a really holding that much," recalls Odom. And what did he say, "Not a thing," said Odom. "He just sort of shrugged." But by that time the Plainsmen were well in control of the contest. Canyon ended the game with only four first downs and 55 yards rushing, while the Plainsmen wrapped up 25 first downs and 275 yards on the ground. The total offense count was certainly lopsided with Monterey accumulating 396 yards compared to only 165 for Canyon. And most of that yardage for the Eagles came late in the game on Monterey's second and third defenses.

The Monterey defense looked stronger than it had in years during the first half. It held Canyon to five yards total offense and nary a first down.

"I really thought the defense played exceptionally well," touted Odom. We've still got some work to do Monterey got on the scoreboard in all

Oil Issues

Pace Market

NEW YORK (AP) - Oil issues with exploration interests in Canada's Beaufort Sea set the pace for the second straight session as the stock market posted a solid gain

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials picked up 6.83 to 874.15, reducing its loss for the week to 13.48 points

New York Stock Exchange volume expanded to 34.36 million shares from 30.33 million Thurs-

The rush of buying in the energy stocks was touched off Thursday by Dome Petroleum's report Thursday of a Beaufort Sea discovery that might be "of important commercial significance.

All of the six most active Friday were companies with Canadian oil interests: Dome, up 51/4 New York: Gulf Oil of Canada, up 101/4 at 793/4; Bow Valley Industries, up 21/4 at 34%; C&K Petroleum, up 2% at 1916; Total Petroleum of North America, up 31/4 at 251/2, and Aquitaine of Canada, up 41 at 403 a

Among Big Board volume leaders, Gulf climbed 14 to 334; obil 31/4 to 45% and Texaco % to 2914 Superior Oil, which said it had stake in a Norh Sea hydrocarbon disovery, piked up 29 to 509 The market's advance came in spite of a further rise in interest rates and more bad news on infla-

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials was up 1.03 at 119.83, and S&P's 500-stock composite index added .81 to 107.66.
