"FIRST In Lubbock—FIRST On The South Plains"

WHAT WAS THAT? — Those big eyes and that dropped jaw belong to 23-month-old Lori Stevenson, who was wheeling along in front of her 4804 60th St. home Monday when she caught sight of something that must have been pretty scary. Staff photographer Dennis Copeland said pretty Lori, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stevenson, was scared of thunder, but then again, that bewildered expression could have been caused by a good look at Dennis and all his photographic equipment.

Heating Oil Freeze Has Cool Reception

Price Linked To Crude, Refiners Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two major U.S. oil companies told Congress Monday they can't endorse President Carter's request for a freeze on heating oil prices.

A third firm refused to even testify, but later agreed to do so after being threatened with a subpoena by the House Government Operations Committee's subcommittee on energy.

The holdout, Texaco, will appear before the panel Thursday.

Both Gulf and Sun Oil companies told the energy subcommittee that while they plan to hold prices as low as possible they can't make any promises.

The two firms' viewpoints contrasted with that of Mobil Oil Corp., which had issued a conditional pledge to hold the line on home heating oil prices through the end of the year.

"At this time and barring unforeseen circumstances, we do not anticipate any increase in home heating oil prices for the rest of the year," Mobil said in a telegram it sent to President Carter last Friday.

At the same time, the Energy Department released a telegram from Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) in which the company refused to rule out price increases in the coming months.

"While we hope that prices will moderate, continued upward pressure on foreign crude prices, as well as the need to continue to augment supplies in the high-priced spot market, make future necessary price moves impossible to predict," the company said in a telegram to Energy Secretary Charles Duncan.

Duncan has been meeting in recent days with officials from oil companies, attempting to secure pledges that home heating prices will remain stable in the coming months. He saw Jerry McAfee, chairman of the board of Gulf, on Monday.

A Gulf official, testifying before the House subcommittee, said a mild winter might actually mean a slight drop in consumer prices from the present record levels of around 80 to 83 cents a gallon. But he cautioned congressmen against being overly optimistic.

Texaco previously announced it intends to freeze heating oil prices this winter — winning the praise of the president, who held Texaco up as a standard for the industry.

But a congressional staff official alleged Monday that Texaco actually may raise its prices in January despite its public line-holding assertions. And the oil firm Monday failed to show up to defend itself against the claim.

The subcommittee chairman, Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said that of the 11 major oil companies he had asked to testify Texaco was the only one that flatly refused to do so.

Heating oil prices already have risen more than 50 percent since last winter and the subcommittee is attempting to determine whether the industry will heed Carter's appeal for a price freeze.

Eight other oil companies that failed to show up at Monday's hearing all promised to send representatives to a subsequent session, Moffett said.

In a Sept. 14 letter released by the subcommittee, Texaco President John K. McKinley told Moffett:

"As you know, Texaco has already announced its heating oil plan. We do not believe it would be appropriate for us to participate in discussions with competitors regarding their future heating oil pricing policies and related plans."

Texaco said in a statement that it had been unable to appear before the subcommittee because of a scheduling conflict. It said it had been asked on Thursday to appear at a Monday hearing and that Texaco officials are willing to appear before the subcommittee "with reasonable notice."

The statement said Moffett "apparently contends that greater government regulation represents the solution to the problem, when in reality government regulation has been the primary contributor to energy problems presently confronting the nation."

John Galloway, subcommittee staff director, told the panel that Texaco's promise to freeze heating oil prices was misleading. He noted that the "promise" only covers the rest of this year — before the heaviest part of the heating season gets underway.

"Much of the discussion...ignores the fact that Texaco has made no pledge whatsoever concerning heating oil prices after Dec. 31," Galloway testified. And he said that despite Texaco's vow to liberalize its credit policies, "Texaco credit terms remain among the most stringent in the industry."

"Texaco appears to be doing little beyond what the rest of the industry is already doing. Its prices are among the highest in the industry and will remain so with no assurances regarding price increases after Dec. 31," Galloway said.

Moffett said that Texaco's appearance before the panel was viewed as critical inasmuch as other companies were being asked by the president to follow Texaco's lead in holding down prices.

C.H. Bowman, a Gulf vice president, said Gulf's prices for heating oil likely would remain at present levels through the winter if crude oil prices do not rise in the meantime.

But, he said, Gulf could not promise to freeze prices because it would be foolhardy to speculate on "what will happen to the price of crude oil."

"It's our best judgment that if there are price changes, they will be driven only by significant changes in the cost of crude oil," he testified.

"We cannot commit ourselves to a freeze," said Sun Vice President Raymond Winch. "We'll keep costs as low as we can...but we're losing money now on the sale of home heating oil."

Bowman said Gulf and other major refiners have made a maximum effort to meet the president's goal of having 240 million gallons of heating oil and diesel fuel on reserve by Oct. 1.

"If the weather does not get cold early, we may have too much heating oil," he said. That could cause a "softening of the market," possibly meaning lower prices to users of home heating oil.

However, he said, this was only a slight possibility.

Texas Warned On Speed Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five states may be in danger of losing a portion of their federal highway funds if they don't force greater compliance with the 55 mph speed limit, the head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said Monday.

Joan Claybrook said Texas, Missouri, New Mexico, Wyoming and Indiana have failed to meet the federal compliance standard through the first nine months of this fiscal year.

She disclosed the information while appearing before a Senate energy subcommittee considering legislation to require stricter enforcement of the speed limit.

"These are the states we're concerned about," she said after the hearing, emphasizing that no state will have to face the threatened loss of funds for several months at the earliest.

She said she has written the governors of the states informing them that a portion of their highway funds may be in jeopardy.

Under federal law, states were required to devise a program for 1979 to assure that 30 percent of all motorists are observing the 55 mph speed limit.

Any state that fails could lose up to 5 percent of the federal highway aid that goes to construction of their primary, secondary and urban highway systems. Money for the interstate highway system would not be affected.

Mrs. Claybrook said it will be early next year before officials are able to determine whether any state has failed to meet the compliance schedule. The fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

The section of the law threatening loss of aid to states not forcing compliance with the speed limit has been in effect only since the beginning of the fiscal year.

Officials said Texas stands to lose $8.3 million if it suffers the full 5 percent penalty. The other warned states and their amounts: Missouri, $3.4 million; New Mexico, $1.5 million; Wyoming, $1.1 million; Indiana, $3.2 million.

While the 55 mph speed limit is the law throughout the country, it has sparked controversy in some states, particularly those in the West.

Some states threaten violators with only minor penalties. Idaho, for example, has a maximum fine of only $5 for a motorist stopped for speeding between 55 and the road's previous speed limit, 70 mph in the case of an interstate highway.

Mrs. Claybrook strongly defended the law in her committee testimony on grounds of highway safety and energy efficiency.

Warming Trend Forecast Here

A SLIGHT warming trend is expected for the Lubbock vicinity today and Wednesday as the South Plains recovers from unseasonably cool temperatures. Light showers were recorded across the area late Monday afternoon.

Although a 20 percent chance of rain is forecast this morning, temperatures this afternoon should reach into the upper 70s following morning lows in the mid 50s. By Wednesday afternoon, the mercury should be stretching into the lower 80s again.

Winds today should be easterly at 5 to 10 mph.

With a cold front over Kansas Monday night and moving toward the South Plains, Lubbock forecasters are predicting afternoon highs for most of West Texas to remain in the 70s with the lows continuing to fall into the 50s and 60s.

Law Enforcement-Minorities Meet Proposed To Ease Strife

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A "METRO CONFERENCE" of law enforcement officials and minority representatives from Lubbock and area towns was proposed Monday by members of a Human Relations Commission advisory committee and the Lubbock Police Department.

The proposed conference is aimed at improving relations between minority communities and police and is patterned after a successful meeting held earlier this year between South Texas law officials and minority leaders.

Monday's meeting between HRC committee members, Assistant Police Chief C.G. Bartley and Assistant City Manager Jim Blagg was held to announce tentative policies on community relations problems presented to police several months ago.

Also present at the meeting was Robert Greenwald of the U.S. Justice Department's Community Relations Service, who discussed meetings similar to a metro conference that have been engineered in other parts of the state.

HRC Ad hoc committee chairman Bill Crouch suggested that the conference would be a first step in solving some of the problems between police and minority residents.

Police Chief J.T. Alley, who also is president of Texas Police Chiefs, already has indicated he will cosponsor the South Plains seminar, Crouch said.

Greenwald said the forerunner of such a conference was a meeting of law enforcement officials and minority leaders from South Texas who gathered in San Antonio earlier this year.

Greenwald said the conference was the first time law enforcement leaders and Hispanic leaders had met to deal with such issues as excessive force, selection and training of police officers, investigation of complaints against police and the role of the media in reporting such complaints.

"The feeling was so high coming out of there that it was a productive and constructive thing to do — on both sides — that we decided to have another one," said Greenwald.

He said a similar meeting is set for Nov. 9-11 in Fort Worth. A representative from the Lubbock police, a Lubbock Hispanic representative and HRC director Carolyn Lanier will attend that event.

A decision on initiating the South Plains metro conference probably will not be made until after the Fort Worth meeting.

HRC member Gilbert Flores suggested that minority representatives other than recognized leaders attend the conference. "Do you realize that those you communicated with as community leaders have never even been to the barrio?" Flores asked Greenwald.

Flores said that in communicating with Mexican-Americans, the people at the grassroots level must be approached first. "You go where the problem is at," he said.

Greenwald said he agreed with Flores but that in setting up such a community relations conference "it becomes very arbitrary if you don't pick the leaders." He said that working with the elected leaders of minority groups would serve as a starting point in solving problems.

EAGLE KILLED

SEATTLE (AP) — Someone stole a wounded bald eagle from its cage at Woodland Park Zoo, wrung its neck and made off with decorative feathers from the wings and tail, zoo officials said. Police and wildlife agents said they were looking for a young man in connection with the Saturday night incident. An officer said the man had tattoos, wore an earring, bearclaw necklace, leather vest and dirty jeans.

Board Eyes Parking For Lubbock High

THE PURCHASE of property across from Lubbock High School was the topic of a closed meeting of the Lubbock school board Monday night, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.

The property, now used by Calvary Baptist Church, is expected to be converted into parking space if purchased by the school district.

Board members conferred for two hours in a closed executive session, but would not elaborate on details of the reported land transaction, saying only that they still are considering the purchase. Members say they do not yet know how much the land will cost.

Although board members would not discuss the location of the property, Lubbock High principal Knox Williams told the A-J that Lubbock High has a "growing problem" finding adequate parking for students and staff.

Williams, who attended the Monday night board meeting, said that parking spaces now are assigned first to faculty and then to students. But, he said, most of the spaces "are gone by the time the seniors get through."

He added that students are parking their cars in a four- or five-block radius surrounding Lubbock High.

The principal said the school previously had an agreement with Calvary Baptist Church that students could use the parking spaces on the church's lot if the school would pave the property.

But Williams said "time ran out" on the agreement and the school district declined an offer to lease the area.

"That lost us 40 to 50 parking spaces," Williams said.

Williams said parking spaces near Lubbock High have grown scarce because of an increase in faculty and because more students are driving cars.

Lubbock High's student enrollment also increased this year with the initiation of the school's magnet program to attract students from other parts of the school district. The school added nearly 200 students this fall, according to first week enrollment figures.

Atheist O'Hair Files Suit Against Pope

AUSTIN (AP) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair Monday accused the Roman Catholic Church of inviting Pope John Paul II to America to enhance Sen. Edward Kennedy's political future, presumably in a presidential race.

JON G. MURRAY

Mrs. O'Hair and her son, Jon Garth Murray, announced they had filed two lawsuits in federal district court in Washington to stop the pope from conducting mass on the mall between the national Capitol and the Washington Monument.

MADALYN O'HAIR

Murray, director of the American Atheist Center here, and his mother also told a news conference they would lead a demonstration against the pope at Chicago's Grant Park on Oct. 5.

The suits state a permit has been granted for the pope to say mass on the Washington mall Oct. 5. They claim such use of public land is unconstitutional.

The Roman Catholic Church owns land worth more than $162 billion, the suits say, and "if the pope wants to say a mass, he has (other) places to do it." Named as defendants in the suits are "Karol Wojtyla, alias John Paul II, a.k.a. the Pope of Rome"; Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus and William Whalen, director of the National Park Service.

The suit against the pope seeks $10,001 "in damages for deprivation of atheistic civil libertarian rights." The other suit seeks no specific sum.

Mrs. O'Hair said the pope's visit has been timed "to interfere with the political process."

Agency Ready To Collect Bills

By KIM COBB, Avalanche-Journal Staff. If the county commissioners approve the contract Monday with a Houston-based collection agency, Health Sciences Center Hospital will begin the long, "lily" process of trying to collect on about $4.5 million worth of unpaid bills.

to run the hospital through October, is predicting the collection efforts will move into high gear in the next month. Brookwood personnel have been working with the collection agency to sort out those accounts which look promising for collection and will actually turn over those accounts after the commissioners approve a contract.

with EMS is solved. The board is currently negotiating with two private ambulance firms to possibly turn over the emergency service to one of them. Early in the meeting, board members accepted a gift of equipment from Marion Laboratories, Inc. of Kansas City.

Nobody is making any firm predictions as to how much money the collection agency will be able to collect, though Lubbock County Hospital District officials appear to be shooting for about $2 million (half of the amount turned over for collection).

Elliott reported to the board that he has been trying unsuccessfully to obtain the final $120,400 installment of a federal Hill-Burton grant, but expects to receive it soon. The installment is the last part of a grant awarded to the hospital for construction in its start-up phase.

Here are figures from South Plains cities: Abernathy received $5,865 this period and has gotten $32,086 so far this year, an increase of six percent.

The regular monthly board meeting for the hospital district Monday produced little beyond confirmation of reports already heard in committee. The county commissioners were in attendance, as they have been for the past several meetings, and offered to review the collection agency contract at their next meeting to speed up collection efforts at the hospital.

Administrator Robert Berryman told the board that the Lubbock-Crosby-Garza Medical Society recently had voted to ask EMS to go back on the rotation system of delivering patients with no preference to each Lubbock hospital on an alternating basis.

Big Spring, $146,405 and $86,005, up 4 percent. Bovina, $3,028 and $14,283, up 24 percent. Brownfield, $50,633 and $226,689, up 3 percent.

Centers Try To Aid Whole Family

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles dealing with the United Way of Lubbock. Except for officials of United Way agencies involved, the names used are fictitious to protect the identities of those served. However, the stories reflect actual case histories here.)

At age 14, self-image, confidence, appearance and friendships all figure into that crazy, emotional and sometimes painful time called adolescence.

Anna Garcia was at that point when she joined the fashion coordination course offered by Parkway Neighborhood Center. She went into the program 30 pounds overweight, lacking confidence and extremely bashful, according to her mother Marie.

What emerged at the end of the program, Marie said, was a confident young woman about 30 pounds slimmer and full of the energy to keep up her self-improvement.

Parkway Neighborhood Center, along with Guadalupe Neighborhood Center, are United Way agencies. The two centers will receive $126,739 from the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,803,752.

The Garcia family is a testimonial to the success of the programs at the neighborhood centers. Anna's sister also participated in an activity at the Parkway Center that improved her, according to Marie. Four-year-old Tina joined the "little people's play group" and her mother said she was amazed at Tina's performance.

Tina could not speak English before she went into the program, her mother said, and now she speaks fluent English. Also, Marie said, she learned the alphabet, to comb, brush her teeth, tie her shoes, button clothes and to recognize shapes and colors.

But most importantly, Marie believes, her daughter learned to share and be more independent.

According to Rachel Divers, program director for the centers, the little people's program is designed to "prepare the children for kindergarten and have them learn to be with other children, to share experiences and to achieve emotional growth and social development. She said the program is for children 3 through 5 and is presented three mornings per week.

Marie said she first became acquainted with the centers when she attended typing classes at the Guadalupe Center, about 13 years ago. Since then her family has moved, after the 1970 tornado which devastated the Guadalupe area, to the area where the Parkway Center is located.

She has participated in several programs since then and has encouraged both her daughters to join in the center's activities. Anna has been active in girl scouting, various classes and the Mexican dance group formed by the center.

However, her mother thinks the fashion coordination class helped Anna the most. The girls were taught about fashion and how to buy clothes, how to wear makeup, sit and walk, good grooming, hair styling and dance. The class was taught by a professional model.

Anna feels the class was a great success in her life. "It was a lot of fun learning. We got to meet a lot of people and we learned to communicate. It helped me a lot. I'm in band at school and I used to be scared to get up on stage and play. Now I'm not scared," she said.

Marie said perhaps the most gratifying moment she's had is the one day when Tina came home from the center and told Marie she was her best friend.

Barbara Sommerville said the Garcia family is a good example of what the centers are trying to do in their neighborhoods. "We like to work as much as we can with the total family," she said, "we try to help each person to take the next step to be a responsible person in whatever area he wants to grow and develop."

As well as providing many programs for age groups from toddlers to senior citizens, the center also provides assistance to persons needing help in getting welfare, food stamps or other aid.

The eight, full-time staff members and groups of volunteers from Texas Tech University, who get course credit for their work at the center, serve about 750 people.

The Parkway Center, which has just recently moved to 405 N. Quirt Avenue, plans to expand many programs and provide more informal recreation for teenagers.

The Guadalupe and Parkway centers are among 34 United Way agencies.

SCHOOL EARNING CENTER — Texas Tech University architecture students designed this learning center for Roscoe Wilson Elementary School in Lubbock. The design was developed at the request of a PTA committee, and the concept will be presented to the Lubbock School Board at its meeting at 7:30 a.m. Thursday. Within the center children could learn to care for plants and animals; present theatrical productions; picnic and participate in other learning activities. Working with the PTA has been the UNIT Neighborhood Association. (TECH PHOTO)

Fair Prizes Offered In Cattle Judging

A whopping $6,270 in premiums are being offered in dairy calf, beef heifer (Herefords) and Angus cattle judging during the 62nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair, scheduled here Sept. 22-29.

Fair general manager Steve L. Lewis said the breakdown in premiums would be as follows: $2,600 for dairy calves; $1,680 for the heifers; and $1,990 for Angus entries.

The cattle shows are among the most popular events on the fair calendar each year.

In the dairy calf show, competition will be in milking shorthorn, Jersey, Brown Swiss and Holstein divisions with payoffs of $40 for first, $35 for second, $30 for third and $25 for fourth place. Banners will be awarded to the champion and reserve champion.

In the Hereford judging, top premiums (including payments furnished by the fair and American Hereford Association) will be: $75 for first, $60 for second, $45 for third, $30 for fourth and $20 for fifth place. The champion of the show will receive $200 and a banner and the reserve champion will get $100 and a banner.

Similar payoffs are scheduled in the Angus judging, except for the champion and reserve champion classes, which will earn $100 and $50, respectively, and banners.

In addition to a varied slate of acts scheduled on the outdoor stage throughout the engagement, 11 shows have been crammed into the eight-day run.

Free entertainment outside includes Bob Ford's world of magic; Vandermeide, Europe's fastest hypnotist; the Amarillo Gunfighters; the Flatland Bluegrass band; Sam Hill and the Tennessee Sounds; Lubbock and area square dance clubs; and mime Ruth Rubin.

Booked for the stage of Fair Park Coliseum is the following lineup:

The Charley Pride show, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 23; the Statler Brothers, with Barbara Mandrell, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 24; the Eddie Rabbit show, with Janie Fricke, 8 p.m. only Sept. 25; the Dave and Sugar show, with John Conlee, 8 p.m. only Sept. 26; "The Golden Years of Country Music," presented by South Plains College, 7 p.m. only Sept. 27; the Tom T. Hall show, with Charly McClain, 8 p.m. only Sept. 28; and the Tammy Wynette show, with Rex Allen Jr. and George "Goober" Lindsey, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 29.

The 12th annual old time fiddlers' contest will open the fair on Sept. 22. Admission is free.

Tickets for all other coliseum shows except the SPC event are $4, $5 and $6 and all seats are reserved. Tickets for the SPC show are $2 and $3. Tickets may be obtained at the fair office, Dunlap's, Sears and Hemphill-Weils stores in the South Plains Mall, Luskey's Western Wear or at Ed's Wagon Wheel.

GAS SAVING TIP
WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a gasoline-saving tip from the Department of Energy: Avoid excessive idling. The average American car consumes a cup of gasoline every six minutes when idling.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I will retire as an Army officer in three years and have ample savings, insurance and a college fund. In 1970, I began investing in three no-load mutual funds. I now have more than 1,000 shares of two of the funds and more than 500 shares of the other.

Since mutual funds haven't done well in the past few years, should I continue to invest $100 per month in each of these funds? Or should I vary the amount I put into each, based on its performance? Or should I quit one, two or all three of these funds and do something else with my money?

A. My advice is to continue what you have been doing. You have been following a conservative approach to investing and, although it hasn't made you rich, the performance records of those three mutual funds show that you must be doing reasonably well.

You're right about mutual funds, in general, not doing too well in recent years. But neither has the stock market. The past decade has not been the most rewarding for investors in stocks.

In the period since you began investing, two of your funds just about kept pace with the overall modest gains in stock market prices. The other has done only about half as well — even though over the really long-term it has an outstanding record.

By putting the same amount of money into the same securities at fixed intervals, you are "dollar averaging" — getting fewer shares when prices are high and more shares when prices are low. Considering the low prices we have seen in the market since 1970, your average cost per share, no doubt, is well below the current values for those fund shares.

This means the total value of your holdings should be well above the amount you invested. If you believe, as I do, that the value of good stocks and well-managed mutual funds will rise in the future, there's no reason to change your investment tactics now.

Q. In 1978, I bought 10 shares of stock of a major utility company. I then signed up for the company's dividend reinvestment and stock purchase plan. Through dividend reinvestments and additional payments, I presently own 60 shares. I did this to save brokerage commissions. I pay a maximum of 4 percent or $1.20 on each dividend reinvestment or additional purchase.

I notice, however, that the price of the stock rises at the times dividends are reinvested. Are the few dollars I save on dividend reinvestments worth the higher prices I pay?

A. Sure they are, because you're saving more than "a few" dollars in commissions. The minimum commission charged by most brokerage firms on small purchases and sales of stocks is $25 to $35.

So, unless you buy a fairly large number of additional shares with each reinvested dividend, you still do it at a lower cost than you would pay by buying the same number of shares through a broker and paying a commission.

It has become obvious that the price of a stock often moves up just before its dividend reinvestment date. To suspicious minds, this suggests that brokers bid the stock up and then unload, pocketing profits.

The stock exchanges haven't done anything about this. Perhaps it's time for the Securities & Exchange Commission to move in.

Q. My $1,000 savings certificate, which pays 6 1/2 percent interest matures this month. When it does, I want to invest the money at a higher rate of interest. Being 25 and making less than $12,000 a year, what would be a good thing for me?

A. A money market mutual fund, many of which are now paying about 10 percent in dividends, would seem to be just the thing for you. You'll get the higher yield you're looking for and your investment will be "liquid" — meaning that you can cash it in at any time.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

AN EDITORIAL:

Freeway 'Need Limit' Raised

NEXT TO WATER, the biggest shortage Lubbock needs to protect itself against is a shortage of intercity and intracity transportation lanes.

City Council members were reminded of this when Planning Director Jim Bertram warned again that "traffic volumes at major intersections here are going to be totally impossible by the year 2000."

That's only 20 years away and, considering the time it takes to plan, finance and build an expressway system, we're way behind the times already.

A city thrives or dies on commerce.

IN SOME RESPECTS, Lubbock actually has lost ground in the last decade in trying to keep up with its traffic movement needs.

The classic example was provided by Texas Tech's head-in-the-sand attitude with regard to extending Indiana Avenue across the campus.

Although a street of sorts finally was built, it is far from the traffic-carrying artery the state had funded earlier. Worse still, instead of the grade separation the state would have constructed where Indiana crosses the Tech Freeway, the street was built at ground level.

AN EDITORIAL:

Press Shivering From 'Chill'

THE FIRST AMENDMENT once again has emerged from the breach riddled with judicial buckshot.

The Supreme Court, to sketch in the background briefly, has found that a journalist enjoys no constitutional protection from being questioned about either his personal opinions while working on a story or editorial decisions made during its preparation.

This "state of mind" case, as it has come to be known, arose from a libel suit brought against CBS and others by retired Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert's objections to the skeptical treatment "60 Minutes" TV news-magazine accorded his widely published allegations of Vietnam War atrocities.

QUESTIONED AT LENGTH in pretrial proceedings, the program director declined to comment on his own opinions, decisions and conclusions concerning material prepared for the program or his conversations with others involved in its preparation.

The court's six-justice majority held in effect that there is no constitutionally based privilege in these areas during pretrial proceedings. Furthermore it rejected the contention that to deny such privacy would put a "chill" on news-gathering.

John Hughes, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, remarked after last year's Supreme Court decision upholding police searches of news premises without warning that the way had been opened to governmental intrusion. He said that intrusion "could have a chilling effect on the operations of the press."

ART BUCHWALD:

Sidewalk Vendors Line Road Down Easy Street

NEW YORK CITY—Where have all the radicals of the late Sixties and Seventies gone? Well, those who aren't working for IBM and for Chase Manhattan Bank are in retailing.

You can walk down the main street of any large city now and see hundreds of outdoor stands set up where this generation of merchant princes are selling leather belts, carnations, jewelry, towels, art work and pressure cookers.

They have not only joined the capitalistic system but have learned to beat it.

I was walking past Saks Fifth Avenue the other day and stopped in front of a stand with a sign tacked on the card table: "Max's Fifth Avenue—Established Since June 1978."

MAX WAS selling T-shirts for $4 apiece. He was doing a good business and I had to wait a long time before I could have a word with him.

Finally, his girlfriend took over for him and we could chat.

"What does the fall look like?" I asked him.

"I'm optimistic in spite of the recession," Max said. "Our inventories are down and I believe the consumer is in a buying mood. Volume-wise we're ahead of spring, but profit-wise we're being squeezed by the high cost of card tables and pushcarts."

"Well, you certainly have a good location."

"Yes, we did a survey of the various sidewalks in Manhattan and decided that Fifth Avenue and 50th Street had a class clientele."

"WE WERE first attracted by Saks Fifth Avenue's alluring window displays. They also have an excellent advertising department."

"We looked over Bloomingdale's but discovered that Alexander's, which is located next door, was underselling us."

"For a while we were set up on 34th Street, but we decided to upgrade our merchandise and appeal to the more affluent shopper. My girlfriend wanted us to put up our stand in front of Bergdorf Goodman, but I like to be in the shadow of

This forces Tech Freeway traffic to make an extra stop and creates a hazard that already has claimed lives.

As Bertram told the Council, the Tech Freeway needs to be improved to a true expressway with grade separations not only at Indiana Avenue but also at 19th Street and at 3rd and 4th Streets, which should become a one-way pair with grade separations at Avenue Q and University Avenue.

THOSE IMPROVEMENTS, plus an east-west expressway or some alternative solution in the vicinity of 34th Street—lying in to the already approved Interstate 27 expressway north-south across the city—would do wonders for internal traffic movement here.

University Avenue and other major arteries need upgrading, too, in order for the needs of the total community to be well served.

All of this will cost money, of course—and a lot of it—but spread over the next 20 years the outlay would not be prohibitive and would be an excellent investment for federal, state and local funds.

Leadership is needed to get these projects moving toward realization.

THE CURRENT CASE is a variation in that it directly involves broadcasting rather than newspapers. Furthermore, it applies only to libel suits involving public figures and only to pretrial proceedings.

But in opening the entire editorial process to judicial scrutiny it sets a far-reaching precedent of considerable concern to responsible publishers.

Individuals and news-gathering organizations are, as they should be, publicly responsible for the consequences of their actions and decisions. At the same time, those actions and decisions should be shielded from the intrusion of government working through any of its agencies.

BUT THAT INVOCATION of "absolute privilege" has been specifically rejected by Justice Byron White, author of the state-of-mind majority opinion.

It is neither required nor authorized, in Justice White's words. And besides, he says, scrutiny of the editorial process will discourage "only knowing and reckless error," therefore freedom of speech or of the press as such is not abridged.

Well, nice work if you can get it. But it's not always easy to distinguish in advance the bad from the good guys. Something like this was the theory when witches were being hunted. Theologians assured the innocent that their purity would protect them from the ultimate trial by fire.

Only the certified witches had to worry about getting burned.

Reader Says A-J Is Remiss In Its 'Miss' Application

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
According to Webster's Dictionary, the title "Miss" is used in "speaking to or of an unmarried woman or girl." How odd then, that The A-J repeatedly referred to singer Carly Simon as "Miss Simon" in its feature article on Sept. 2. It was odd because, as the article itself mentioned, Simon is married to singer James Taylor.

I would have dismissed this as a simple isolated typographical error except that I have observed many other routinely repeated misapplications of the title "Miss" in The A-J. One particularly memorable example of this was The A-J's reference, some months ago, to feminist Karen de Crow as "Miss de Crow." Granted, de Crow is unmarried, but she prefers to be addressed as "Ms."

Leaving aside the merits or lack thereof of non-sexist titles, it seems to me that to not refer to an individual by the title which he/she prefers constitutes a gross lack of respect for that person's individuality.

I sense that The A-J clings to such antiquated titles out of some desire not to offend the paper's largely conservative readership. This is unfortunate, since the question of assigning titles to individuals is not a political issue, but a simple matter of courtesy.

It would greatly enhance the reputation and respectability of The A-J if it would henceforth refrain from what is, in effect, censorship.

William R. Norwood, 2222 5th St., No. 114

(EDITOR'S NOTE: It is our policy to use the title "Miss" with respect to an unmarried woman or in such cases as that of a married entertainer who uses her maiden name or a stage name professionally.)

Federal Worker Supportive Of Collective Bargaining

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
Your editorial of Monday morning, Aug. 27 concerning bargaining rights by public employees stated: "Union collective bargaining has a place, but that place is not among workers on the public payroll who can strike and deny the citizens basic public services."

You also state you doubt there would be any appreciable difference in the city firemen's salaries had they been able to bargain collectively.

I am an air traffic controller, a federal public employee. I am President of Local 452 of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization. I provide a basic public service: the safe, orderly and expeditious flow of air traffic at the Lubbock International Airport, Hale County Airport and Reese Air Force Base.

To be a federal public employee I am a second-class citizen. I cannot, by federal law, bargain with my employer for wages, hours of work, vacation time, sick leave, health and dental plans, profit sharing, retirement plans, etc.

I cannot, by federal law, participate in the political process which is supposed to be a constitutional right of all citizens. I am totally dependent on the President and the Congress for any changes and I do not have the right to strike.

You say without union collective bargaining the benefits would be about the same. Look around. Those who have bargained collectively have obtained pay increases that keep them ahead of, or near, the inflation rate.

Since 1974, federal public employees have received pay increases totaling 36 percent while the inflation rate for this same period was 72 percent. I most strenuously object to your contention that those who do not bargain collectively are about equal to those who do.

Reader Sees Grave Danger Getting In Bed With China

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
"Veni, Vidi, Vici." In 47 B.C., Julius Caesar sent this memorable message.

Few men in history have wielded the power of this man. He conquered lands thought to be impregnable. But Rome fell; he died a mortal.

The Bible says in Revelation the Roman Empire will rise again, and will face the "Kings of the East" (Rev. 16:12). It tells of an incredible army of 200,000,000 that will march to the Euphrates (Rev. 9:14-18); that this mighty horde will wipe out a third of the earth's population by what most experts believe, by Biblical description, will be a thermonuclear war. Experts believe the forces facing these "kings," will be European Common Market nations.

Scripture says that aligned with these European nations will be the young Lions of the Coastlands—meaning the U.S., which will have no choice but to join this confederacy. Our economic posture demands it along with our military strategy. It means if we are to survive, we must fight the Yellow Peril.

Many great nations of the past, like Rome, have fallen: we, too, shall fall, but it will be from a first-rate to a third-rate power. People who thought we were impregnable will find the Red China threat greater than that of Caesar.

I don't know the Chinese equivalent to Caesar's famous dispatch, but I believe historians, if any survive, will write that the Chinese will have chronicled, "we came, we saw, we conquered" the U.S., long before the great conflagration of Armageddon after the Reds cross the Euphrates.

The pieces are beginning to fall into place and they have significant meaning for the U.S. Under our new recognition treaty with Red China, we have started the countdown for our final demise. The Red leaders need industrial know-how; we have it.

They need to know our vulnerable defense spots; they will discover those quickly. Their plan is to subvert this nation by means of a flood of students and immigrants whose sole purpose for coming will be to act as agents for their "fatherland."

We must face the truth: our trade with Red China is like taking a live viper to our bosom, to quote an expert on this danger. The biggest stumbling block to our stemming this human tide through Washington will be the greed of some of our industrialists and a few dishonest lawmakers.

Our only recourse is to flood Washington with protests.

Productivity Takes Back Seat To No One, Says New Mexican

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
In answer to your editorial of Sept. 4, "Productivity Takes Back Seat," I would like to make the following comments.

Productivity in the United States is higher than any country in the entire world! On a standard of 100, for example, for the United States workers, Japan rates a 62. In other words it takes 100 Japanese workers to produce what 62 United States workers produce. Productivity in the United States takes a back seat to no one.

American workers have led the world in production for many, many years. They continue to lead the world despite the oil shortages, the independent truckers strike, the grounding of the DC-10's, and the Three Mile Island incident. All of these happenings were extremely non-productive, because people were still on the payroll without any production.

Also in your editorial, you had a quote by Don Graf. It stated, "Because of increasingly higher labor costs and generous fringe benefits, among other reasons, more industries are falling behind in the race to the marketplace." Since the American worker who does the producing has been limited to the 7 percent guidelines, while many oil companies and other big businesses have had increased profits of 400 percent, can you truthfully justify that statement?

Stanley Doyle, P.O. Box 520, Carlsbad, N.M.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Your figures on workers pay vs. business income are misleading. Also, it is the rate of improvement in productivity, not the current status, that threatens the American economy.)

JOSEPH SOBRAN:

'Lib' For Men Too

WASHINGTON—The public clamors for independent minds. Very well, then. Ladies and gentlemen, I give you R.F. Doyle, advocate of men's rights.

Doyle's may not be a great mind, or even a fine one. But independent it most certainly is. Who else would be so bold as to contend that wife-beating is "sometimes justified, even underdone?"

He also has a kind word for rape. "However uncivilized," he writes, "it is a natural act, the prehistoric means of perpetuating the species." The trouble with the prehistoric is that it is, well, prehistoric.

As G. K. Chesterton pointed out, all we know for sure about the cave-man is that he drew pictures on cave walls—yet we always portray him dragging his woman around by the hair. We know he was an artist; we have no reason to presume he was a brute.

SUCH SUBTLETIES are lost on Doyle, who has written a book called "The Rape of the Male," to reaffirm what he conceives of as nature's plan for the sexes.

No publisher would touch it, so he has published it himself, in a rough-hewn paperback. It is a kind of neo-cave-man's manifesto, and it can be carried comfortably in your loin-cloth.

Doyle knows that his views are unfashionable in the age of women's lib, but then, as he reminds us, Galileo, Freud, and Darwin were unfashionable, too. (I suspect he thinks he has listed them chronologically.)

"In the firm belief that men's liberation is an idea whose time has come," he announces, "this work is intended to unashamedly and unequivocally present the other side of the coin."

Three clichés in a single sentence: that must be a record, at least among seminal thinkers.

HIS CRUSADE is the result of the first of his three divorces. "The book," he assures us, "is not an indictment of all women or of all courts, but of evil, wherever it exists."

Even so, his universal indictment of evil draws heavily for illustration on his memories of his first wife, Marge.

Marge got the kids, the court's sympathy, and much of Doyle's money, despite character flaws that preoccupy him for fifty pages.

Doyle, unfashionable to the end, muses on the possible social benefits of assassinating a few wife-favoring judges.

The sense of mission came to him, as to many reformers, in jail, where, unlike most reformers, was installed for refusing to pay child support.

HE FELT destiny's summons: "God, how I hoped that cross would pass! But it seemed inevitable. Who else would bell the dragon?" (Belling the dragon is original with Doyle. Others slay the dragon, or bell the cat.)

He formed a divorced men's organization, but it fell apart when the members proved incompatible—like the Odd Couple, but on a larger scale. Irrepressible, he started another, married a fourth time, and wrote this book.

Though not exactly debonair, Doyle can hack out an epigram: "Silence is not always golden; sometimes it's just plain yellow."

And he has an earthy wit: "The wife"—of an old neighbor—"was a regular brood sow. She had to go to confession every year she didn't have another baby, but seldom was that necessary."

"Their cat must have been of the faith too," it had had over one hundred kittens, so they said; I think it even had varicose veins like hers."

SOCIOLOGIST PETER BERGER has written of the plight of "cognitive minorities"—groups whose perception of reality clashes with the culture's authorized world-view.

Doyle is truly a cognitive minority of one. Yet in his brawling way, he sometimes grasps things which more urbane people fail to see.

Law and custom give women many advantages over men. Their crimes are punished with less severity. They can choose to abort, or force a man to support a child he doesn't want.

They are automatically favored in most custody disputes. But the feminists seldom draw our attention to such matters.

The subject deserves a more polished spokesman than Doyle. Still, if he can put it on the map, he will deserve credit for belling a formidable dragon.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

THE BRITISH government sometime back froze pay raises for business executives. This shook up the top corporate bosses. How could they compete for the upcoming talents, if they couldn't offer more money?

They found ways. A promising executive there now buys tailor-made business clothes and lends them to the cleaners at company expense. Said climber also enjoys a liberal expense account. And most usually, such a worthy expects a company car without negotiation.

You know those tugboats that pull barges up and down the Mississippi River? Some have passenger accommodations. You can go from St. Louis to St. Paul on same. Or vice versa.

Hardly anybody realizes that the coastline of Norway is so ragged that it's almost as long as Australia's.

HOW DO you account for the fact that a disproportionate number of the world's most famous men have had notably large noses? Facial features don't relate to personal drive in the opinion of the experts.

The receding chin does not necessarily denote a weak character. Black eyebrows that meet in the middle don't necessarily signify a criminal character. Still, those large-nosed fellows seem to make the headlines somehow. Most mysterious.

If you can't quick as a flash identify the only state with a single-syllable name, then you just ain't never been to the most northeasterly corner of this country, sir.

In buying bananas, it's highly unlikely that you'd buy a bunch. A bunch in the talk of the trade is the whole stalk with at least six hands in each of which are from 10 to 20 bananas. What you'd more probably buy is a hand.

It's okay for a bride and groom to go on a honeymoon now in the People's Republic of China. It wasn't okay for a long time there.

Railroad Officials Blaming Joint Bars For Derailment

Santa Fe Railway officials have determined that broken joint bars that fasten segments of track together were the apparent cause of a Sept. 3 train derailment west of Shallowater.

Susan Metcalf, Santa Fe public relations officer, said, however, that the bars were named only as the apparent cause, not a definite one, because the amount of debris resulting from the derailment hampered officials in arriving at an exact cause.

Miss Metcalf said Santa Fe has now closed the investigation into the 30-car accident, which occurred about 5:30 a.m. Sept. 3 and blocked one lane of U.S. 84, four miles west of Shallowater city limits.

Damage estimates, according to Santa Fe figures, came to more than $100,000: $93,000 in equipment, $1,200 for signal damage, $6,400 for track damage and $6,000 for cargo freight.

Although most of the cars on the 43-car line had been empty at the time of the accident, a few had been carrying company track material, rail ties and fertilizer. Another car had been carrying an acidic solution, but the car did not leak, therefore posing no threat of explosion to the surrounding area.

Austin Pilot Found In Canada

FORT NELSON, British Columbia (AP) — He had only a chocolate bar and wild berries to eat, but Walter Yates is in good shape after a two-week ordeal beside his crashed helicopter in a remote area of northern British Columbia.

The 55-year-old Austin, Texas, pilot was found Sunday morning by a search plane that spotted scorch marks made by his helicopter after it crashed and exploded in a densely forested region 42 miles southeast here.

Yates, a self-employed prospector, Party Switching Never Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., said Monday the senator "has never said anything" about switching back to the Republican Party next year, but he "also never, emphatically never, denied it."

The Washington Star mentioned in an article last week on the 1980 elections that the GOP could capture majority control of the Senate if a handful of incumbents were defeated and Zorinsky switched parties.

Zorinsky's colleagues might think he is considering such a move, spokesman Mike Nerud said, but he has not said he is. "I want to make that emphatically clear," the aide said.

Zorinsky, former mayor of Omaha, changed his party affiliation from Republican to Democratic to run in 1976 for the seat being vacated by Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

said in a hospital here that he cracked some ribs in the accident and suffered two three-inch gashes to his face. He is also being treated for exposure, but expects to be released in a few days.

He said he was flying the 180-mile trip to Fort St. John from Fortelson on apt. 2 when a tail rotor control failed. The rotor crashed into the trees, but he managed to escape just before it burst into flames and exploded.

Yates said a chocolate bar kept him going for two days and he then collected cranberries. The berries were all he had to eat, he said, until he was spotted by a Canadian Armed Forces Buffalo aircraft.

A helicopter was called to the area to pick him up.

Yates, who said he had previous experience living in the bush in Alaska for a year, said he phoned his wife and three children in Austin, who "were very happy to hear from me."

He said thinking of them and God kept him alive.

At no point did he consider trying to walk out of the bush, although he was told later that there was a railway camp and a small Indian village about 10 miles from the crash site.

Wearing only light clothing, Yates fashioned a shelter from branches and debris from his helicopter. Branches he cut for a signal fire the first day were too wet to light, so he slept on them to dry them out.

One night he had to contend with a bear that circled his primitive camp, but he scared it away by making loud noises.

Yates said he never gave up hope of being found, but did scribble notes on a paperback novel in case he didn't survive.

Search planes passed over on four occasions, the first about a week after he crashed, but none spotted him, Yates said.

Not all was lost in the crash. Yates said he retrieved a number of gold nuggets he had picked up in Alaska from around the burned-out helicopter.

In rubber bridge North will respond with either three spades or two clubs. The final contract will be four spades by South in either event.

Some match-point players like to respond two diamonds. They are heading for that same four-spade contract, but want to stop the diamond lead.

As you can see the diamond lead holds South to 10 tricks. Without a diamond lead or an ace of hearts lead followed by a diamond shift, South draws trumps, discards his two diamonds on clubs and makes a slam.

For years, match-point players have been bidding the diamond suit in situations like this.

Other players have grown accustomed to this type of action and such bids are like a two-headed rattlesnake. They bite both ways!

This time the two-diamond bid backfired. West would probably have opened a diamond in any event. He opened the suit and South was held to the minimum.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone and anyone who reads your column or has seen you on TV knows you are a blue-nose dry, total-abstainer — blah, blah, blah. (You must be a wet blanket, lousy company and boring as hell.)

I'm sure you know that not everyone who imbibes is a sot. Surely you have friends who enjoy alcohol and do not get dead drunk every night.

Since you seem to be an authority on the subject, will you please attempt to categorize the various degrees of intoxication? People need to know when they are slipping from one category to another. — Huntsville, Ala.

Dear Hunt: I'm not sure it is possible to classify the various stages of intoxication, but I found a reference that might be helpful. It appeared in a periodical of the Office of Health Economics in England. Here it is:

- (1) Dizzy and delightful
- (2) Drunk and disorderly
- (3) Dead drunk
- (4) Dead

Dear Ann Landers: I hate to say this, but my 13-year-old son is turning into a monster. I admit he has been spoiled rotten by me and my ex-husband.

My husband remarried and his current wife has two children by her first husband. My son Rick (made-up name) resents my dating men and wants to come along.

Whenever the boy goes to his dad's house he gets into a fight with the new wife or one of the kids. He also fights with his father — calls him "a cheapskate" because he refuses to buy the boy whatever he wants. I'm afraid Rick will be barred from their home if this keeps up. Frankly, I wouldn't blame the new Mrs. if this happened. He really is an obnoxious kid.

Recently Rick started to smoke pot. He says he has to or the kids won't have anything to do with him. He has a terrible fear of being rejected. I want to help my son, but I don't know how. He's a smart-aleck and thinks he knows everything. I need your help. — Teed Off In Evanston

Dear T. in E.: You need a great deal more help than I can offer in a few inches of newspaper space. The boy should have professional counseling — and you need counseling too. Mother, contact the Irene Josselyn Clinic (North Shore Mental Health Assn.) for an appointment. They have excellent counselors and are not far from where you live.

Dear Ann Landers: I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes. A business in San Antonio has the motto, "We can supply everything for the bride except the groom."

This family-owned enterprise offers maternity-style wedding gowns. They come in ivory or candlelight. When I was growing up, pregnant girls were not treated like celebrities. What are your views on this subject? — Dizz-gusted

Dear Dizz: Who said anything about celebrities? It sounds to me as if pregnant brides now have an opportunity to wear nicely-styled gowns instead of binding themselves up like mummies and praying nobody notices — when almost always the whole town knows.

I'm not pinning any medals on girls who get PG before marriage, but for those who do, it must be comforting to know they can have a gown that looks decent.

Roller Skaters Warm Up With Special Exercises

By BEVERLY BARR
Women's News Service

A "rolling epidemic" has spread from coast to coast. It has become popular with children, teen-agers, parents and grandparents.

While roller skaters are having a free-wheeling good time, they also are improving their circulation, balance and coordination. And one hour of roller skating burns off approximately 350 calories.

Make sure you can move your toes easily in your skates. And be sure the laces are pulled tight so that your ankles and arches are firmly supported.

Every sport needs its own warm-up exercises. It's also important to repeat a few of the same exercises when you have finished your sport, to relax the muscles.

Here are your warm-up and cool-down exercises for the roller-skate fever:

1. There is a wonderful feeling derived from an all-over body stretch. Reach both arms over your head toward the ceiling, stretch arms from this position to the count of three. Bend knees slightly as hands and arms are lowered, then place hands on knees, with elbows pointed away from your body. Lower the torso (your head should be reaching toward the floor), then slowly unwind to a standing position, drop your head in back of you, and slowly bring your head back to place. Repeat this exercise twice.

2. Here is an exercise to strengthen stomach and leg muscles. It can be done from a bench at the local roller rink, or a bench at your local park. Sit up straight on the edge of a bench. If necessary, support yourself with your hands on the bench. Extend legs slowly as you lift both legs at the same time until they are parallel to the ground. Hold the the count of six. Slowly lower legs to the ground. Repeat this exercise five times.

3. This exercise is a lesson in balance, and a great way to stretch, strengthen, limber, thighs and knees. Stand up and face the back of the bench. Hold onto the bench with left hand. With the right hand, pick up your right leg from the knee, and touch your heel to the buttocks, while you are holding the foot. Hold for a count of 10. Repeat this exercise 10 times on both sides.

4. This one is the easiest of all. I call it The Swinger. It is designed to stimulate movement in the hips and to warm up the legs. While one hand holds onto a rail, stand up straight as you swing the leg easily away from you. Without touching the floor, swing the leg in back of you. Repeat this exercise as often as you can do it easily. Then turn around and repeat the exercise on the opposite side.

5. Ankle must be strong, and the best exercise to help this is also the easiest. Sit on a bench and lift feet slightly from the ground. Rotate ankles away from each other. Repeat this exercise as many times as you possibly can and as often as you find the time.

'No better way to lose pounds and inches' — Mary Anne Paschal

The radiant beauty of a slender figure, dramatically illustrated here by Mary Anne Paschal, undoubtedly is the most obvious advantage you'll derive from losing unwanted weight at Pat Walker's. Improved appearance, however, is only part of the story; Ms. Paschal cites other benefits:

"[More than a year ago] I completed my prescribed number of treatments, losing 22 pounds and 45 inches. Since then I have easily maintained the loss of pounds and my newly proportioned figure by following the Pat Walker way of eating sensibly, a plan I intend to continue for life.

"There are absolutely no gimmicks, no calorie counting, no carbohydrate counting, no special foods — thus enabling the patron to continue on her own to manage her weight forever. Two important additional benefits are the renewed energy for zestful living and the uplifted spirit as the 'new you' emerges... In my opinion there is no better way to lose excess pounds and inches."

Reduce with dignity
Pat Walker's is not a gym, spa or health club. Rather it is an elegantly decorated salon in which you can shape your figure pleasantly and privately — without stringent diets or strenuous exercises. And you'll enjoy:

- a proven program of weight reduction
- safe passive exercise
- a personalized program to meet your needs
- guidance from trained professional counselors

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: I realize you are not an eye doctor, but I'm hoping you can find an answer for me. I am curious to know why a person with poor vision can see almost perfectly underwater with a skindiving mask and goggles on. I am near-sighted. Does this only happen to those who are near-sighted? — L.M.R.

It is strange, isn't it? It does not work for far-sighted persons, though.

Under normal circumstances, the near-sighted person's problem is that his eyeball is slightly enlarged (front to rear). If he does not wear corrective lenses the light rays come together in front of his retina and he sees a fuzzy image. The retina is the light-sensitive area at the rear of the eyeball. For him, the water acts the same as would a corrective lens. It bends the light rays so that they focus directly upon the retina.

The far-sighted person has a different focus problem. His eyeball is shorter than normal and he has the opposite focus problem, which the water "lens" does not help.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I went through an emotional conflict about a year ago. I lost about 10 pounds and have since gained it back. I noticed that my bowels were moving much more than ever before. Well, my life is going much more smoothly now, but my bowels still move much more than normally. It really puzzles me. Also, I notice this mucus in my stool. Can you comment? — Mrs. H.W.

Mucus in the stool calls for a doctor's firsthand evaluation. No ifs, ands, or buts. Attributing such symptoms to emotional conflict can be too easy a diagnosis. Lots of other, more serious problems have to be investigated. I'm not going to list them all for you. That might make you put off the examination you should have. After that, if you have further specific questions I might be able to answer, write again. The booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints," discusses such problems. If you want a copy of that, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

University of Texas Student Sets Record For Longest Enrollment

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With champagne fizzing in the summer air, friends of Pedro "Pete" Chapa Jr. toasted his college graduation at a recent backyard celebration.

In acquiring a bachelor's degree from the University of Texas, Chapa had brought to its climax an educational career that possibly should be mentioned in the Guinness Book of World Records.

It is noted in the record book that George Goutly of Guildford, Surrey, England, was a student for 23 years before submitting his thesis for a doctorate, which was Goutly's ninth degree.

Chapa enrolled in the university in January 1961 and, with the exception of a 1½-year layoff, was an undergraduate student in search of a single degree until January 1979 — 18 years.

His graduation almost coincided with his 40th birthday.

Hundreds of professors and thousands of students over the past two decades have known Chapa, the bachelor son of a weekly newspaper publisher in Hebronville in South Texas.

His friends cannot imagine the campus without him.

One student was so impressed with the Chapa story that he made a film hailing him as the "spirit of Austin." In the film, Chapa did what he does best — talk about life.

Chapa, a bilingual Mexican-American, tried four scholastic majors — journalism, English, Spanish, and radio-television-film — before graduating in American Studies, an academic program started by his good friend, William Goetzmann, a Pulitzer Prize winner in history.

His academic career began as a 21-year-old freshman, after he had served during the Berlin crisis and been discharged as a Spec. 4 from the Army. He was smart enough to get credit for 14 hours of Spanish as a result of pre-enrollment testing, but parted so much he flunked out of school his second semester with all F's.

Parties, in fact, are a large part of the Chapa legend.

He averages an average of eight parties a week, often addressing every person by name, and invitations to his own "galas" are so highly sought that some students crash them.

A 1978 party commemorating the sale of the century-old stone house Chapa

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband is 41 and has had his first attack of gout. He is a heavy beer drinker (at least two six-packs a day or more). His doctor advised him to cut down because it will aggravate his condition. My husband does not believe that beer will bother his gout. Please comment. — E.C.

Diet restrictions were once of great importance in treating gout, but are not emphasized today. Once, doctors restricted foods high in "purine," a substance associated with the formation of urate stones and the pain of gout. The major purine foods include organ meats and meat extracts, also some fish, like sardines and scallops. Such diets often became counterproductive, since they tended to leave the gout patient nutritionally deficient. Also, it was found that purines from foods actually play a minor factor in gout. Besides, newer drugs were found to do the control job adequately.

As to the beer, it was once believed that the alcohol-produced lactic acid had an effect on how the body utilized uric acid, the immediate cause of gout. Today, alcohol in moderation is thought to be OK so long as it doesn't induce a gout attack. Regardless of whether alcohol worsens your husband's gout or doesn't, two six-packs daily will certainly aggravate his liver. He should taper off.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have so much gas in my lower bowels most of the time. I am taking an iron supplement preparation (over the counter). I wonder if this could be the cause? — Mrs. E.Z.

Iron itself does not produce gas, but can be irritating to some people, causing either diarrhea or constipation. There are many iron preparations available, probably at the same counter where you get yours. Trying another one is worthwhile if you truly do need any iron supplement at all. Why do you use it?

Dear Dr. Donohue: Have you heard of a perforated eardrum healing itself? — M.T.

If the perforation is small it might heal itself.

Troubled with gout? To learn about new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint from a bachelor who is lazy but likes to entertain. When preparing stews, soups, or spaghetti sauce, I cook in large quantities sometimes making up to sixteen quarts.

After using what I need the first and sometimes the second night, I ladle graduated amounts in stainless steel double boiler pans, label each one with contents and date and set the pans in freezer.

After frozen, I run a little hot water on bottom of pans, slip the contents in freezer bags and return to the freezer chest with proper identification.

When I am ready to entertain a guest or two (or many), I take out an appropriate package or two, return the mold to the double boiler (the fit is perfect since that is what it was frozen in) add some water to the heater pan, set the boiler pan inside and there is really very little else to do except cook some spaghetti or whatever accompaniment one chooses.

Believe me when I say I get a lot of raves of how easily I can prepare what would ordinarily be a very complicated feast. — Warren G. Showalter

Now that's a smart gent. Thanks for writing. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I find that a large grass or leaf plastic bag is great when you get caught in the rain on the golf course.

You can use it to cover your golf cart as well as the clubs. Sure helps to keep them dry. — Mrs. P. Zidek

You can use those handy bags to help keep yourself dry as well.

Just cut a hole in the bag where it is sewn across the bottom and slip it over your head and shoulders. Now you have a poncho that will cover you to your knees.

If you want to, you can also cut slits for your arms to stick out. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Being brought up in an era when dolls just lay there inert, and toy cars didn't move unless you pushed them, I was not aware of how much this new generation depends upon batteries until the following event took place.

A couple of years ago our granddaughter had just learned how to snap her fingers. Being right-handed she was naturally more facile with the fingers of that hand, but the left hand posed some problems.

One day she was busy practicing her new-found ability but after a little while we noticed her eyeing her left hand with discouragement.

Finally we asked her what was wrong and she said, holding up her left hand for inspection: "They won't work." "Why not?" we asked and she raised huge, brown eyes, and said sorrowfully "I guess my batteries are dead!" — Mrs. Ray D. Cook

DEAR HELOISE:

When buying stew meat, always purchase a chuck roast. Cut the tallow off and render down in a frying pan. Save the bones and boil off and use the liquid for gravy. You can brown the meat in the tallow renderings.

There is very little waste and money is saved per pound of meat. — K.E. Ruhl

Hugs to you for this money saver — we all can use them. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I had my rugs cleaned, and in order to protect my new drapes I took a large plastic bag and pulled it up over each drape.

The rug cleaner was very happy and appreciative of this.

After I pulled the plastic bags up as far as they would go, I just put a few pins to hold the bags up. I suppose you could use tape as well. — Margaret Essex

Oil Production Bringing Money, Problems To Mexican People

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mexico's vast oil deposits are bringing prosperity and problems to its oil boom towns. This second of a five-part series on Mexico examines one of these towns and the nation's oil boom.

By ROBERT LOCKE
Associated Press Writer
MINATITLAN, Mexico (AP) — They come by the hundreds — a stream of job-hungry men who fill the oil workers' union hall here every Wednesday and Friday.

They sweat on the wooden benches inside the nondescript yellow building, hunt for shade in front of the open-air Benito Juarez Theater and buy ice cream from busy pushcart vendors.

But mostly they wait for jobs — temporary but high-paying jobs in the huge government refineries, petrochemical plants and construction projects that have changed this once-drowsy town into a prosperous, bustling and polluted city.

Minatitlan is a product — and perhaps a symbol — of Mexico's oil boom. The country claims to have the world's way to the Gulf of Mexico 15 miles away, fisherman Segundino Cruz, 39, takes less and less money home to his 10 children.

"I was born on this river. Once it was very pretty and there were many fish," he said. "Now it is dying. There are not many fish and they taste different."

Cruz' little homemade fishing boat floated through a brown, oily sheen that coats the river, reflecting a dull rainbow of colors and staining every boat that enters it.

The refinery and the gaggle of petrochemical plants pour their wastes directly into the river. A great black cloud rises from smokestacks inside the refinery fence and spreads over the busy city.

The barefoot fisherman furrowed his brows and tried to explain to the first outsiders who had ever asked: "The benefits from this refinery are very important for the country. But the fish and all the natural resources, they are the life of the country."

"The people in the cities must remember this. They must stop this pollution. Otherwise their children will be eating it."

Throughout much of Mexico the vast pools of oil and gas are leaving a trail of money, jobs, construction, pollution and war, confused farmers and fishermen like Segundino Cruz.

Pemex, which controls the entire petroleum industry, says it and its contractors are providing 167,000 jobs in a nation where almost 40 percent of the population is out of work or working part-time.

The agency reports proven reserves of 40 billion barrels of oil and natural gas. And it claims the nation's potential — but unproven — reserves could go as high as 200 billion barrels.

The figures are subject to some debate, but few experts doubt this poverty-ridden and overpopulated land sits on vast pools of crude.

"Even if they fudged the numbers by a few billion barrels or so, we're still talking about one hell of a lot of oil," said a U.S. energy expert in Mexico City.

President Jose Lopez Portillo took office in December 1976, when Mexico claimed a scant six billion barrels and production was 750,000 barrels a day.

He quickly launched a $15 billion Pemex investment program for his six-year term. Until 1976, only $4.5 billion had been invested in petroleum development during all the years since Mexican oil was nationalized in 1938.

The money is producing dramatic results: estimates of reserves have been climbing rapidly and production has more than doubled in less than three years.

By the time he leaves office, Lopez Portillo expects to have boosted oil production to 2.2 million barrels daily, while doubling the nation's refining capacity and tripling production of petrochemicals.

But the efforts are also producing chaotic times for booming oil towns that find themselves totally unprepared for sudden prosperity and instant growth.

"We cannot avoid the problems of boom towns," said a veteran Pemex official. "When you remodel your house, you have a real mess for awhile. Everything is torn up, carpenters are all over the place and your wife is close to suicide. But it's worth it when you finish."

"Mexico is remodeling its house." Typical is Cardenas, a town between the refinery-petrochemical center at Minatitlan and the oil field city of Villahermosa farther south. A sign on the road says it is home to 23,000 people.

"Oh my, but this town has been growing. There's maybe 100,000 people here now," said Maria Enriqueta Lopez-Perez, whose family owns a perpetually full hotel in Cardenas.

"We have a lot of floating people here. They come to build the roads and the factories and to drill the oil. They come here and they spend here, so it's good for commerce. Any business in Cardenas is a good investment — there's just so much money."

But, she added, "We also get some bad things from this."

Farm girls are becoming prostitutes, the cost of living is soaring and drunkenness is commonplace because the once-small town offers scant entertainment beyond its many cantinas.

And while many campesinos are leaving the land for money in the oil fields, not all farmers are happy with the oil boom. Some oil country farmers don't have a choice on whether to leave: The government owns the oil and wells grow wherever it is found.

"We don't want Pemex here," said a farmer near Veracruz. "They will take our land and throw us a few pesos — just the leftovers."

Earlier this year, peasants in the state of Tabasco blockaded several wells to press their demands for greater compensation for farmland taken by Pemex.

Mexico has seen a lot of this before. Oil was discovered along the east-central coast near Tampico in 1901. American and British companies developed the region until 1921. Mexico was second only to the United States in oil production.

But production dropped rapidly after that and the relationship between the government and the oil companies soured. Mexico nationalized its oil in 1938. When the foreign companies left, they took their technology with them. Mexico needed decades to even begin rebuilding its petroleum industry.

For years, Pemex was widely regarded as a political pork barrel and corruption was often its major product.

But much of that is changing and U.S. oilmen say Pemex has many top-quality geologists and engineers.

"Don't forget that they discovered all this oil themselves," said a U.S. energy expert. "And they are accomplishing a hugely complex technological feat with a largely untrained labor pool."

But he notes that the pace of development is so fast that "their capable engineers are spread very thin and that could cause some real problems."

Some of the old Pemex heritage still lingers, however.

Numerous sources say Pemex jobs, at least at the blue-collar level, are sold by the oilworkers' union at prices that total several thousand dollars for especially choice positions.

But Mexicans have learned to live with bribery.

"There are people at Pemex who will loan you the money to get a job," said a refinery worker in Minatitlan.

sixth largest proven reserves of oil. The pace of exploration and development is frantic.

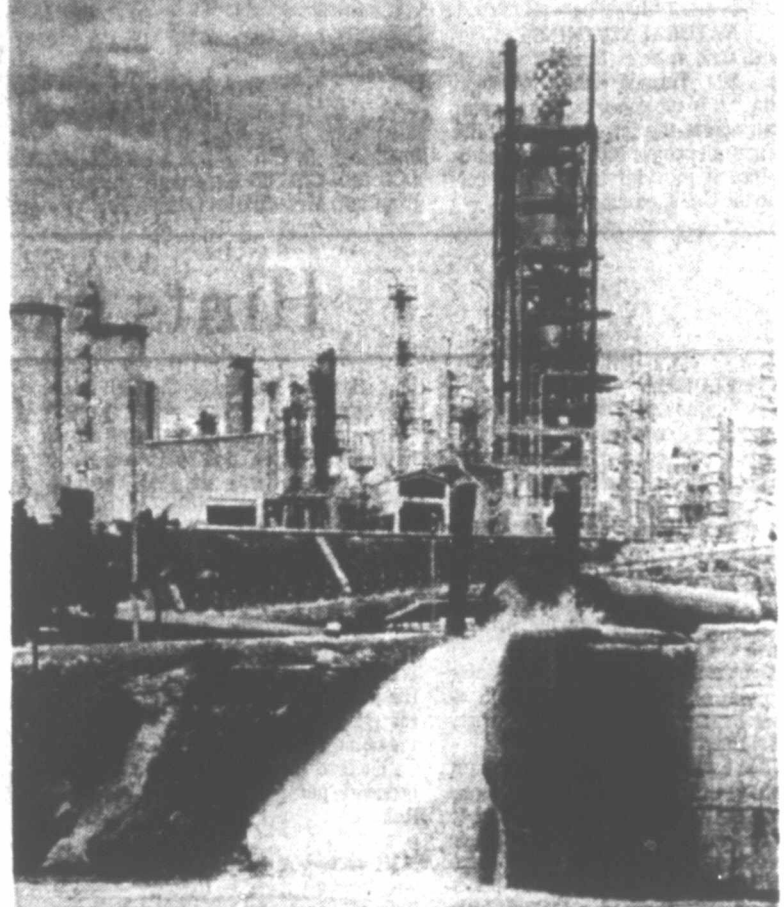

New refineries and plants are being built here and in the nearby port city of Coatzacoalcos. Modern stores, office buildings and apartments are springing up to serve perhaps 25,000 well-paid workers.

Farther south, oil derricks rise in clearings hacked from the steamy jungle or reclaimed from fields of sugar cane. Huge offshore drilling rigs are parked out in oil-rich Campeche Bay.

"You can make an awful lot of money in there," says a well-dressed 17-year-old waiting to see if he'll be chosen for a 15-day job at $117 a week, which is four times the average wage.

He says he hopes someday to get one of the coveted permanent jobs with Pemex, the government's oil monopoly. But, in the meantime, "There's lots of work. Everybody's making money."

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

OLDER COTTON BOLLWORM INFESTATIONS

remain high in some areas of the High Plains, but further problems with this pest now are expected to be rare.

While low nighttime temperatures recently will worry farmers about delays in fiber development, they will spell the end of bollworm problems for another year, says Dr. James Leser, area extension entomologist at Lubbock.

"Cotton with open bolls is a rare sight so far this season," he says. "Most fields are blooming at the top at last. This usually greatly diminishes the threat of further bollworm infestations and reduces the economic damage caused by bollworms already present in the crop."

Most producers facing bollworm problems at this time are up against "an impossible situation," Leser says. "Most worms are larger than one-half inch and many of these are real 'snakes.' For the most part, bollworms are buried away in bolls and pink blooms, making it impossible to get any chemical to them."

PRODUCERS SHOULD EVALUATE

field infestations realistically, Leser emphasizes. "While some fields exist where control measures would pay, most would not benefit from further expenditures of money," Leser says.

"These large worms have caused most of the damage they're going to already," the entomologist adds. "All that is left is the monetary loss that will result from spotting due to damaged bolls and boll rot resulting from bollworm damage."

Cool weather will slow egg and larval development. In many instances, Leser says, egg development will be delayed sufficiently to prevent successful hatching.

"Worms will slow down and development will be prolonged 20 to 25 days," he adds. "Sometimes even the larger worms will crawl out of bolls in the morning to 'sun themselves' when the night has been cold. This provides a unique opportunity, when treatment is justified, to get at these larger worms."

On other crops, Leser says sorghum midge continue to be reported at non-damaging levels on late-blooming heads in sorghum fields. When 30 percent of the heads are blooming and one midge per head is found, he says, treatment is justified.

Economic infestations of up to five sorghum headworms have been reported, Leser says. One or less headworm per head as a field average may warrant treatment, he says.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED 41-49 POINTS higher in nearby Monday, with light speculative and commission house selling easing prices in late afternoon from the session's highs.

Floor brokers said trade buying late in the session offset some of the commission house selling and kept prices from slipping back to the day's lows. Volume was estimated at 4,550 lots.

Cool temperatures on the High Plains were mentioned but were not considered a prominent market factor. Normal temperatures for the third seven-day period in September at Lubbock, or roughly the third week of the month, are 83.0 degrees for the maximums and 57.4 degrees for the minimums, according to National Weather Service data.

Ag Control Plan Lauded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House official said recently a plan by the Agriculture Department to begin a new voluntary quality control system for meat and poultry products is "an important and innovative" example of President Carter's approach to regulatory reform.

The plan would enlist processors in a voluntary program in which Agriculture Department inspectors would have access to company records to make sure their frozen pizzas, canned meatballs and chicken soup live up to federal safety and labeling standards.

Peter J. Petkas, director of the President's Regulatory Council, said the proposal "incorporates in one way or another our efforts to identify and use market-oriented approaches" and to "expand where feasible and appropriate industry self-regulation."

Petkas was asked at a news conference about criticisms from some quarters that reliance on industry information — such as in the area of nuclear power — may not be enough for effective federal enforcement.

The voluntary concept "is a valid one in appropriate situations," Petkas said.

"It's very important that we recognize that President Carter's regulatory reform effort is not an effort to eliminate clean air, clean water, clean food...and all the rest, but rather to make it possible to achieve those goals in a more effective way," he said.

All meat and poultry for the consumer market now must meet federal or state inspection standards at the time it is slaughtered. The proposal applies only to plants where meat and poultry are processed further into soups, frozen dinners, hot dogs and similar items.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the program would provide "more effective and efficient use of inspectors" at processing plants.

Companies that qualify for the voluntary program would maintain records on the condition of all raw materials used in their products, including temperature and time information.

Federal inspectors then would have access to all information gathered by a company in operating its quality control program.

Miss Foreman earlier told a reporter that a pilot program involving about 15 large and small processors will get under way "fairly soon" to test the quality control program.

"We're not changing the (federal) standards," she said. "We're changing the way we look at them, the way we check to make sure the standards are being met."

If the general proposal is adopted, she said, about 50 plants are expected to be in the new program by a year from now.

Miss Foreman said the proposal would help streamline the entire inspection system and enable the department to improve monitoring of meat and poultry for chemical residues, inspection of imported products and closer inspection of "problem" plants.

An example of quality control, Miss Foreman said, involves overseeing a product so it is consistent in taste, color, fat and moisture.

"All we would ask them to do is to show us their quality control system is reliable in demonstrating there is not more than 30 percent fat in a hotdog, for example," she said.

"Most of the quality control systems of the big companies already do that. They have their own reasons...for example, if you have soup being made and the recipe that the company is using calls for 2 percent chicken in the soup, it's economically important to them to make certain they're not getting 4 percent chicken in the soup."

Cattle Futures Close Lower On Exchange

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 65 to 150 points lower with October through February at the limit decline Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales were held to 9,956 cars with prices locked limit level most of the day. August briefly gained 5 but prices otherwise were lower from the start.

Fewer than expected marketings and somewhat more expected placements put pressure on futures which expanded as cash cattle turned weak and beef also declined sharply. The cash cattle connected commission house was an aggressive seller.

Wholesale beef was off 2 1/4 at 103 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off $1.50 to up 50 cents with the best top $69.25 per hundredweight, which is a two-week low also at Omaha. Slaughter was 111,000 head. About 11,900 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 125 to 150 lower with most contracts at the limit decline. Sales totaled 2,057 lots with thousands of unsold offerings. Prices were lower from the start and slipped to 1 1/2 week lows.

Selling spilled over from the live cattle pit following the cattle on feed report. Adding pressure was the lower slant to beef and easy trend to cash cattle. Prices fell 2 1/2 cents from recent highs.

There have been 150 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $2 with the best top $131 per hundredweight at Louisville. Receipts at the ma-tor terminals today are expected to total 1,700 head.

Hog futures closed 70 lower to 15 higher on 7,068 contracts. December was the weakest with August at the best gain. Earlier, July fell the 150 limit the second day in a row, while August ran up 95.

Selling continued from Friday on heavy hog runs and mostly lower prices coupled with mostly easier pork trade at noon. Heavy hog slaughter was also a negative factor and forced prices to two week lows, off 3 1/2 from highs.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1/4 at 70 to 72 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off 75 to up 50 cents with the best top $40.50 per hundredweight at Joliet. Kill was 339,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 30,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 170 to 195 lower led by May, which was limit down for a time. Volume was 5,215 cars. The market was lower from the start and fell to the lowest in 2 1/2 weeks.

The limit decline was the second in a row and stemmed from spillover weakness from cattle. Traders also noted sharp declines in cash values at noon and heavy slaughter.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 3 at 32 to 37 asked cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Soviets Purchase Additional Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought an additional 200,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat for delivery in the coming year, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Officials said the new order raised to more than 6.6 million metric tons of total grain — including 2.7 million wheat and 3.9 million corn — that the Soviet Union has bought for delivery through Sept. 30, 1980, the end of the fourth year of a purchase agreement.

Sales for the current year total more than 15.4 million metric tons, including 3.9 million wheat and 11.5 million corn.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Meadow Crops Fair Set Friday At Ag Building

MEADOW (Special) — Cotton, grains, wheat and alfalfa are among the products to be displayed Friday at the Meadow Crops Fair, according to Jake Coleman, agriculture instructor.

The projects will be judged prior to being displayed.

Members of the Meadow Future Farmers of America chapter will display their projects from 9:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. before entering them in the Panhandle South Plains Fair in Lubbock Saturday.

The public is invited to view the projects at the Meadow Agriculture Building.

Check Follows Leakage

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Workmen began dismantling equipment Monday in a hog processing plant where the banned chemical PCB apparently leaked from a transformer into animal feed shipped to seven Mountain and Western states, a spokesman said.

The chemical, used as a coolant and lubricant, has been found to produce cancer in laboratory animals and is poisonous to humans in large doses.

Keith Markegard, plant engineer at the Pierce Packing Co., said a Portland, Ore., contracting firm specializing in decontamination was taking apart equipment in that part of the plant that manufactures meat meal. The meal, which is fed to chickens, is derived from bones, skin and other hog parts unfit for human consumption.

Contamination had been found at Rite-way Egg Co. in Franklin, Idaho. The major egg supplier voluntarily smashed more than 1 million eggs and destroyed thousands of chickens last week.

Leroy Gomez, federal Food and Drug Administration district director in Denver, said it is believed seven states received PCB-contaminated feed from the Billings plant. The largest shipments, totaling 150,000 pounds, were to points within Montana. Other shipments went to Utah, Idaho, Washington, Minnesota, North Dakota and possibly Oregon.

plant Monday to be slaughtered and made into bacon and other products destined for supermarkets. "We've been given a complete bill of health for our fresh meat operation," said Darrel Peterson, Pierce's advertising director.

Meanwhile, two physicians from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta headed for eastern Idaho Monday to take blood tests and possibly breast milk samples from residents to determine how much PCB individuals may have ingested from contaminated eggs.

First Dawson Bale Ginned

LAMESA (Special) — Bobby Hawkins of Lamesa claimed the $400 first prize for producing the first bale of cotton in Dawson County on Sept. 8, by dropping a 460 pound bale in the Lamesa City Square.

That Sept. 8 date makes this bale the earliest yet recorded for the summer cotton crop across the South Plains.

Ginner Jim Lightfoot at the Cotton Center Production, Inc., Gin produced the bale.

The $400 prize is paid annually by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce to the first cotton farmer producing a bale in the city square.

STOCK MARKET INDEX

Stocks Up, Then Retreat

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices rose sharply in early trading Monday as traders reacted to settlement of the auto contract dispute, but then retreated later in the day amid fears of further increases in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up more than 8 points in early trading, fell back to close at 881.31, up 2.21 for the day. General Motors' agreement with the United Auto Workers, averting an auto strike for the first time in 15 years, helped fuel the early gains.

But some economists warned the settlement, complete terms of which were not released, could fuel inflationary pressures. Larry Haxel, an analyst with Bache Halsey Stuart Shields, said the Federal Reserve is likely to open up interest rates when its Open Market Committee meets.

New York (AP) - Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices also volume, consensus, also traded on other markets.

Japanese Robot Cartoons Irk Filipino President, People

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — It began last year with "Voltes V."

It ended not long ago with an order from President Ferdinand E. Marcos to remove from Philippine television a series of loud, colorful violent Japanese cartoons about futuristic robots.

In between, there were irate letters to editors about "teaching Filipino children to settle problems with violence" and equally irate editorials and newspaper columns about Japanese cultural imperialism.

There were charges that the cartoons were insidiously teaching Filipino children — whose parents remember the excesses of World War II occupation by the Japanese — that the Japanese are destined to be the saviors of the world.

While most of the cartoon characters generally appear to be of indistinguishable nationality, Filipino critics pointed out that many have the indisputable facial characteristics of their Japanese creators. Some of the teen-age heroes and heroines who control the robots have Japanese names.

"Voltes V," a series about a five-year-old team of spaceship-operators who form a single, gigantic robot to fight alien perils, was the first. It replaced the peaceful American series "Sesame Street" last year, to the chagrin of parents whose complaints have forced the national network that canceled it to reschedule its return this fall.

"Voltes V" was followed by as many as a dozen other robot shows. One nationwide hookup set aside 5:30 p.m. daily for different robot programs, and viewer surveys showed a huge audience.

The shows have similar formats: the world is endangered by some incredibly violent menace which is put to rest by an incredibly violent robot.

The programs are in Japanese, dubbed in Filipino and English for the Filipino audience.

The presidential palace said Marcos "ordered the immediate cancellation of all robot shows on television because of their harmful effects on children."

"Complaints reaching the president indicate that these robot shows have become extremely warlike and tend to create a wrong attitude among children toward violence," the announcement said.

"Poor programming of the TV networks have resulted in the robot programs being viewed at a time when children should be studying their lessons and thus hampering their studies."

It was unclear what specific power Marcos used in canceling the shows, other than his authority to rule by decree under martial law. The government claims it exercises no censorship of the news media, although members of the media generally follow unwritten self-censorship guidelines.

Although the government has a board of censors for motion pictures, the board reviews movies and usually confines itself to sex.

The allure of the robot shows was widespread among children in the Philippines, both native and foreign.

"Retailers say robot T-shirts and toy robots are among their biggest sellers."

"Toy store owners in nearby Hong Kong, which as a free port has a much larger supply of robot toys than the protectionist Philippines, joke with foreigners who buy the toys that they must be from the Philippines."

"At a Cub Scout sing-along, two children — a Canadian and an American — sang for their pack of mostly foreign children the "Voltes V" theme song, in the original Japanese.

British Affected By Birth Pills

LONDON (AP) — More British women aged 25 to 44 die from side effects of birth control pills than from complications during pregnancy or childbirth, a study in the British Medical Journal reports.

Results of the study, published in the Sept. 15 issue, said that women aged 35 to 44 took a particular risk in using the pill. In 1975, the latest year calculated, "there may well have been more than seven times as many pill-related deaths as pregnancy-related deaths" for women in the 35-44 age group, it said.

The report said that in 1975 an estimated 155 women died from adverse effects of the pill.

Director Happy With Western

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will Michael Cimino ever finish "Heaven's Gate"? Will the film become Hollywood's most expensive western? Will United Artists ever get its money back?

Such questions have contributed to the talk of Hollywood in recent weeks. The answers seem to be:

1. Yes, the director will complete shooting the film at the end of this month.

2. Yes, at $30 million "Heaven's Gate" will become by far the costliest western.

3. If the movie does blockbuster business, United Artists will certainly turn a profit. If it doesn't...

Nothing succeeds like trouble as a conversation piece for the movie crowd, and "Heaven's Gate" has been troubled from the start. It began as a $7.5-million project about the Johnson County War of 1892, when cattlemen and outlaws engaged in a Wyoming skirmish that required federal troops to quell.

Before production began, the budget had swollen to $11.6 million. Immediately after winning the Oscar for directing "The Godfather Part II," Cimino departed for the wide open spaces to begin "Heaven's Gate." His cast included Kris Kristofferson, Jeff Bridges, Christopher Walken (Oscar winner as supporting actor in "The Deer Hunter"), John Hurt, Sam Waterston, Brad Dourif and newcomer Isabelle Huppert as a frontier hooker.

Five months later, Cimino was still shooting — and shooting. Production cost soared, but United Artists is maintaining a calm attitude in public. Says publicity-advertising vice president Bill Werneth:

"The picture is definitely over schedule and over budget. It seemed that once he (Cimino) started the picture, it just grew and grew. Everyone is pleased with the results, and we feel that 'Heaven's Gate' will be a winner."

"Many things about the project have been exaggerated. It will not cost $40 million; it will cost $30 million. It will not shoot until December; it will finish before the end of September."

"The country up there is beautiful, but it is also unpredictable. It even snowed in June. When you have snow, you can't continue production. That's just one of the things the company ran into."

Other things included the costuming of 1,200 extras, construction of an 1892 mining town, control of vintage railroads and herds of horses. Because of the troubles, Cimino has permitted few visitors to the locations. A rare, inside view was provided by Les Gappy, a one time journalist who owns a cherry orchard in Montana and who worked as an extra in "Heaven's Gate."

In an extra for The Los Angeles

Times, Gappy reported complaints by his fellow extras that "We're doing things that stunt men should do." He described a battle scene between settlers and Texas mercenaries:

"Because of the mad rush, there are several injuries as the scene is filmed over and over for several days. Some of the immigrants, mostly local extras, are brushed by horses and knocked into the mu. One minor actor has both feet stepped on by horses. Several persons tumble out of lurching wagons."

"One extra almost comes to blows with a crew member who tries to speed up the movement of the wagons and horses by telling one driver, 'If people don't move out of the way, run them over.'"

Early filming took place in Glacier National Park.

BACK AT WHITE HOUSE — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, right, says a few words at the White House after a first anniversary gettogether of Egyptian and Israeli leaders who took part in the Camp David peace talks. U.S. Blacks Begin Mideast Mission

By The Associated Press
A group of American black leaders spurred into action by the political fall of Andrew Young began an unofficial peace mission to the Middle East on Monday, arriving in Beirut to meet with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

Egypt and Israel, meanwhile, found themselves in a new squabble on the anniversary of the signing of last year's Camp David peace accords. This time the dispute was over an Israeli decision to open up occupied Arab territories to private land purchases by Israelis.

Egyptian Warning
The warning, voiced by Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak during a White House visit, said — without specifically naming Israel — that "the policy of confrontation and 'fait accompli' is contrary to the spirit of Camp David."

In Washington, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan attended a White House ceremony marking Monday's Camp David anniversary, and President Carter telephoned his two partners in the historic 1978 summit — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin — to discuss the status of the peace process.

Dayan was in Washington for talks with U.S. and Egyptian officials on setting up a permanent peacekeeping force in the Sinai Peninsula.

The 10-member black delegation flying into the Lebanese capital was led by the Rev. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Walter E. Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's congressional delegate.

tionists we can do without them," he said. Most of the Arab world, angered by Sadat's bilateral peace with Israel, has isolated Egypt economically.

Anniversary Marked
President Carter assembled Egyptian and Israeli officials on the South Lawn to mark the first anniversary of the Camp David agreements, which set the stage for the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Carter, who played a direct role in both events, said he is prepared to step in again if current negotiations over the future of the Palestinians should founder.

But, Carter said, good progress is being made, spurred by a "burgeoning friendship" between Egypt and Israel.

Mubarak, however, took a stern view.

Reading slowly from a prepared statement, he said Egypt's commitment to peace is unwavering.

But, he said, "we should refrain from any rash act that would jeopardize the prospects for peace at this crucial stage."

Central Question
Also, the Egyptian offered a reminder that his government considers the Palestinian question to be the core problem in seeking peace in the Middle East.

The third speaker, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, said he was hopeful of a settlement.

In fact, Dayan said, Israel's differences with Egypt when the two countries opened peace talks in November 1977 were greater than Israel's current differences with the Palestinians.

"The gap that we had between the two of us when we started the negotiations," he told Mubarak, "believe me, it was wider than the gap that we have between us and the Palestinians when we talk now about an agreement."

Dayan arrived earlier in the day for talks with Egyptian and U.S. officials on setting up a permanent peacekeeping force in the Sinai Desert.

Combined Patrols
To overcome Soviet resistance, a stopgap arrangement involving mixed Egyptian-Israeli patrols was adopted earlier this month, but Dayan told reporters a long-term solution is required.

Dayan planned to hold talks with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance beginning Tuesday morning on a peacekeeping force that the Israelis would like to see set up in Sinai before the end of the year.

Although Israeli officials said this was the sole purpose of Dayan's visit to Washington, other touchy topics are likely to crop up. These include Israel's policy on expanding Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River and bombing raids against Palestinian installations in southern Lebanon.

Meeting Of Law Enforcement Officials, Minorities Urged

Jones said the black community "is getting away from identifying people as leaders. We want to make everybody leaders."

He said he wouldn't "have any problem with whoever represents the black people" at the conference as long as he or she truly represents the black community and has the backing of the community.

Greenwald suggested that all cities involved in the South Plains Association of Governments might want to participate in the proposed conference.

Crouch also noted that the policies on problems discussed by the police and advisory committee members still "has room for discussion," but said the police "have been very responsive" in the talks. The items discussed will be presented at the next HRC meeting.

Problems presented to the police by the committee included citizen complaints against police, shootings by police and the recruitment of minorities to police ranks.

The police recommended that citizens bring complaints to the HRC, which will assist in making contact with the internal affairs division of the police department. The investigation would be handled by the police, but the HRC could ask for the "disposition" of the case after 10 days.

Tentative policy on police shootings states that the officer will be transferred to another beat or to an administrative job until after an internal affairs investigation. Crouch said. The HRC would be used as a rumor control center in the event of a shooting.

The HRC police-community relations committee also had suggested a relaxing of civil service requirements so that more minority police officers could be hired.

Bartley said, however, that the statute that spells out the requirements was amended "a lot" during the last state legislature and said he "fully supports it."

Blagg said that in order to change the statute, which has been in effect in Lubbock since 1949, a referendum would have to be initiated.

Boy Shot By Pellet Gun In Serious Condition

A 9-year-old boy, shot with a pellet gun Saturday in front of his trailer home east of Lubbock, was in serious condition Monday at Methodist Hospital.

William Clemmer of Route 7, Box 701, Lubbock underwent surgery shortly after the Saturday night incident, and doctors removed a pellet from his heart.

Deputies were questioning an 11-year-old Lubbock County boy, who reportedly told them he was pointing the pump-action pellet rifle at young Clemmer when the weapon discharged.

The victim's stepfather, Doug Diver, said the boy had gone outside to play about 8:30 p.m. Saturday and that minutes later he heard the youngster scream.

Diver said he ran out of the residence and saw the boy sitting on the porch, and that he was sweating profusely and appeared to be about to lose consciousness.

An ambulance was called and the boy was taken to Methodist.

Deputies, after leaving the hospital, went back to the trailer park, where they talked to the young suspect and two other juveniles.

The 11-year-old said one of the other boys had been holding the rifle and dropped it when Clemmer slapped him in the back of the head.

Deputies were told the victim was being chased by the boy who had dropped the gun when the 11-year-old picked up the rifle and pointed it at Clemmer. The youngster who was holding the gun said he did not realize the weapon had discharged until he saw Clemmer drop to his knees and yell, "I've been shot."

Deputies said the rifle was shattered to pieces by a father of one of the boys after he learned of the incident.

The juvenile suspect was not in custody early today, authorities said.

High Court's Brennan Has Light Stroke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. "suffered a small stroke" that has impaired his use of his right hand, court and medical sources said Monday.

Brennan, 73, was hospitalized for four days, following the Sept. 4 stroke, his doctor and court spokesman Barrett McGurn said.

Brennan is the court's oldest member and its only Catholic. Appointed in 1956, he also is its most senior justice.

Hand, Arm Weakness
According to a written statement from Dr. Freeman H. Cary, attending physician of the U.S. Capitol, Brennan "suffered a small stroke manifested by weakness of his right arm and right hand."

Cary added that "physical therapy was prescribed and some return of strength has been noted."

In a telephone interview, Cary added that Brennan was not experiencing any pain or discomfort.

"His arm and hand strength is about 15 or 20 percent of what it was, so the fine movement is not as discriminating as it was," Cary said. "But he does have some fine movement... he is able to write, but not without some difficulty."

"There's no discomfort. Right now, it's a matter of regaining strength," Cary said.

Coed Hurt In Crash In Critical Condition

A Texas Tech coed was in critical condition Monday at Methodist Hospital with injuries sustained early Saturday in a one-car rollover on North University Avenue about a mile north of FM 1294.

Her companion was listed in serious condition.

Critically injured was Laura Gayle Reins, 19, of 611 Wall Hall, who was a passenger in a Corvette Sting Ray driven by Aaron Stark, 19, of Rt. 2, Box 299, Lubbock. Stark was hospitalized at Methodist with serious injuries.

Department of Public Safety reports show the crash occurred shortly before 3 a.m. when the vehicle driven by Stark went out of control and left the road at an apparent high rate of speed.

The car skidded sideways several hundred feet before overturning at least four times. It traveled another 300 feet before coming to rest on its top in a cotton field, the DPS said.

Bolshoi Couple Defects To U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. government granted political asylum on Monday to a husband and wife team from the Bolshoi Ballet, federal officials said — the second defection during the Soviet troupe's U.S. tour.

Sue Pittman, a spokeswoman for the State Department in Washington, said the couple asked for and was granted asylum, adding that they were under the protection of U.S. authorities.

She identified the dancers as Leonid Koslov and Valentina Koslova. Both are principal dancers with the top-rated Soviet ballet company.

Earlier, Verne Jervis of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Washington said the couple was being interviewed in Los Angeles.

The defection occurred before other Bolshoi members boarded a charter airliner on Monday at Los Angeles International Airport for their return to Moscow. The troupe completed its U.S. tour here Sunday night.

The details of the actual defection were sketchy, but Jervis said he believed the Soviet couple first contacted Los Angeles police, who called INS officials. "We're talking with them out there (in Los Angeles)," he said.

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington, John Russell, said the couple had been scheduled to leave with the company on a jet. "They were not on it," he said. He said he had no information on how the couple left the ballet company, but he said: "Normally if people do come to us, we do make an effort (to help them)."

Atheist O'Hair Files Suit Against Pope

tical process — to make Kennedy a more favorable candidate.

The trip also was designed, she said, to gain support for public aid to parochial schools and for an anti-abortion constitutional amendment.

"It's a power show of the Roman Catholic Church," Mrs. O'Hair said. Even if the U.S. Supreme Court said the church could not hold mass, she added, "they would go ahead and hold mass."

The suit against the pope alleges that use of public land for a mass violates the U.S. Constitution in that it "has no secular purpose, fosters government entanglement with religion, and has the principal effect of advancing religion through the use of U.S. government property."

Murray said it would cost $10 million in taxpayers' money to pay for police protection for the pope at his scheduled stops, "not counting rumors that he will appear in Los Angeles or San Francisco."

Altars at each of his stops, Murray said, would cost from $150,000 to $700,000.

"This is the first widespread use of public land for a specific religious rite," he said.

He said the Roman Catholic Church is asking its member families for "$5 a head." This could result, he said, in $50 million "tax-free" being "raked in."

Ms. O'Hair described the pope as "one of the most repressive persons on the national scene in 50 years." Because of his anti-abortion pronouncements, she said, "he should be brought before the United Nations (International Court of Justice) in the Hague and charged with crimes against humanity."

Four Yanks Freed From Castro Prison In Unofficial Swap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Americans held in Cuba on espionage and other political charges since the mid-1960s were released Monday, 10 days after four Puerto Rican terrorists were freed from U.S. prisons.

In announcing the release of the Americans, the State Department denied that there was any "package deal" with the Cubans involving the release of the four Puerto Ricans.

However, State Department officials acknowledged being aware of Cuban President Fidel Castro's public offer to release the four Americans in return for the release of the four Puerto Ricans.

The Carter administration dispatched a plane to Havana to pick up the released prisoners and return them to Miami, where they were to be released to their families, later in the day.

The Americans were identified as Larry Lunt, a rancher from Saratoga, Wyo., who was sentenced to 30 years for espionage in 1965; Juan Tur, a native of Tampa, Fla., sentenced to 30 years for "counter-revolutionary activities" in 1963; Everett Jackson of Los Angeles, sentenced to 30 years for espionage in 1967; and Claudio Rodriguez Morales of Mayaguez, P.R., sentenced to 20 years in 1966 for smuggling people out of Cuba.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter had no comment on whether the four were in fact American agents as alleged by the Castro regime. But

Senate Hits Nomination Of Krueger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Krueger, hoping to become ambassador-at-large to Mexico, faced stiff opposition Monday, from senators who questioned whether his new post would hinder rather than smooth troubled border relationships.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee called for the State Department to send a representative Thursday to explain why the Carter administration chose to propose adding an "ambassador-at-large and U.S. coordinator for Mexican affairs" to the bureaucracy.

Krueger, 44, is a Shakespearean scholar and two-term congressman from New Braunfels, who lost a tight and bitter Senate race last fall to incumbent Republican John Tower.

His qualifications drew fire only from Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who produced leftover campaign charges and asked if donors might have paid off campaign debts with an eye toward influencing U.S.-Mexican policy.

Krueger replied that contributors who donated after his nomination were checked to rule out any potential conflicts of interest.

The position of ambassador-at-large itself, however, was received less amiably.

"I think it's one of the more asinine positions that's ever been recommended for creation," Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., said.

The title "ambassador-at-large" has never been given to someone responsible for only one country. Senators asked if it would set a precedent, infringe on the authority of U.S. Ambassadors to Mexico Patrick Lucey or add another layer to an already complicated bureaucracy.

Krueger said Mexico is different because of the border, and major decisions that affect U.S.-Mexican relations can be made by a number of agencies, sometimes at cross purposes.

Chilly Models Strike For Heat

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Nude models for San Jose State University art classes are engaging in a coverup until they get a pay raise and some heat.

The models, who pose for 20 sculpture, painting and drawing classes on the San Jose campus each week, left their clothes on Monday, to press their demands for a $2-an-hour pay hike — from $4 to $6 — and warmer rooms to pose in.

"Modeling is a physically demanding job which is seasonal, part-time only and has no paid benefits," complained Hal Lombardi, a spokesman for the 20-member South Bay Models Union.

And, he says, it's hard to do that when you're underpaid, naked and shivering.

Art professor Maynard Stewart, who supports the models in their demands for more than the bare minimum, said the federal guidelines for a maximum winter room temperature of 67 degrees is "simply too cold for models to survive."

He said he was trying "to get the building and grounds people to take a realistic and sensible approach to heating those rooms."

His nomination to the nation's highest court won Senate confirmation over a sole negative vote cast by Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis.

Brennan's liberal views in matters of individual rights helped shape an activist and controversial court majority under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren in the 1950s and 1960s.

A 60-year-old Lubbock man testified Monday that an aggravated robbery defendant threatened him with a baseball bat "like he was going to knock a home run" and robbed him last June 5.

Johnny A. Dyer testified in 140th District Court that Jerry L. Timmons, 29, of 2801 E. Fifth St., accompanied by another man, accosted him alongside some apartments at 16th Street and Avenue C and robbed him of the few dollars he had in his pockets.

Angry Father Injured In Family Disturbance

A Lubbock man, angered Monday morning when his 4-year-old boy wet the bed, began whipping the child and was struck in the head and stabbed with a kitchen knife by his wife when he refused to quit, police were told.

The 25-year-old man was in serious condition late Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Police, arriving at the Avenue H residence about 1:35 a.m. Monday, were told by the man's wife that she struck her husband in the head with an iron, then stabbed him with a kitchen knife when he refused to quit whipping their child with a belt.

The 21-year-old woman said her husband came home drunk and began beating their son after he discovered the youngster had wet the bed. The man was found lying on a bedroom floor, bleeding from the head and stomach.

The man reportedly told police the incident was his fault and asked officers not to take his wife to jail. The woman remained free Monday, according to reports.

In a separate incident, a 23-year-old Lubbock housewife said that her husband hit her on the head with part of a jack Monday morning.

The woman told police that she was waiting for a bus at the corner of East First Place and Redbud Avenue when her husband drove up and tried to force her into his car. When the woman refused to get into the vehicle, reports show that the man hit her on the head with part of a jack. The victim was taken by EMS to HSC, where she was treated and later released.

C.L. Sweet of 2200 15th St. reported that burglars removed tools, travelers checks and a checkbook, valued together at $1,100, from his car sometime Monday morning.

Julian Clifford of 620 40th St. lost $1,700 worth of goods, including a TV, stereo, groceries and clothing, to thieves after a Sunday night break-in at his home.

Joseph A. Worthington of 5702 50th St. told police that someone took his $600 motorcycle from his apartment complex Monday morning.

In a separate assault late Sunday, Ruben Gonzalez, 21, of Levelland was treated and released at HSC after he and a friend were forced to drive off the road at Sixth Street and Avenue R, then beaten by two young Mexican-American men.

Raul Gonzalez, 20, also of Levelland, told police the assailants forced them off the pavement about 11:40 p.m. Sunday. The pair then got out of their car and assaulted the two out-of-towners, according to reports.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Preliminary returns in the Swedish general election continued to show the country's socialist and non-socialist blocs in a near dead heat. Unofficial returns early Monday showed the socialist bloc headed for a one-seat edge in the 349-seat Parliament.

With the vote so close, the outcome could hinge on even a few hundred votes in some districts. It was expected that the still-uncounted 40,000 mail votes turned in on election day and 8,000 votes mailed in from abroad could be the deciding factor.

Officials said the mail votes would be counted Wednesday, and complete results would be available Friday. All other votes have been counted.

With preliminary returns in from 356 of Sweden's 357 communes, the non-socialist coalition held an apparent one-seat lead in Parliament. But the last commune to be counted shifted the margin back to the socialists, giving them 175 seats to 174 for the non-socialists.

Winners and losers among the individual parties, however, were more evident by midnight, four hours after the polls closed on a sunny Sunday that produced an unusually high turnout of about 91 percent of the six million eligible voters.

Nixon In Peking On 'Working Visit'

PEKING (AP) — Former U.S. President Richard M. Nixon returned Monday to China, where seven years ago he initiated Chinese-American relations, and he said the friendship of the two countries has bipartisan support in the United States.

Making his third visit to the mainland, Nixon said, "The purpose of my visit is to be brought up to date on the relations between our two countries; what progress can be made in the future."

The former president was the first to alight from a China airline flight from Canton and he said, "I am delighted to be here for the first time since we now have normalized relations with the PRC on a formal basis."

Nixon first visited China in 1972, when he signed the Shanghai communique that paved the way to increasingly hospitable relations that were normalized last Jan. 1. His last visit was in February 1976.

Although he was toppled from office by the Watergate scandal, the Chinese maintain that Nixon is their old friend and they always cherish their friends.

Nixon's four-day visit is billed as a working visit, and he is expected to meet with Premier Hua Guofeng (Hua Kuo-feng) and Deputy Premier Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiao-ping).

"I am here to exchange views and to get the views of others," Nixon said, adding "Sino-American relations are so important to the survival of both our countries and peace in the world."

Wearing a dark suit and looking fit, Nixon received a polite and correct welcome from U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock and Chinese Minister of Culture Huang Zhen (Huang Chen), the former head of the Chinese liaison office in Washington.

Red Raiders Scheduled For Rare TV Appearance

SAFE AND SORRY — Toronto Blue Jay Rick Cerone (9) safely crosses home plate while Boston catcher Mike O'Berry lunges in desperation. Umpire Bill Deegan made the call during a doubleheader Monday night in Toronto. (AP Laserphoto)

The last time the Texas Tech football team made a television appearance, Steve Sloan was the Raiders head coach, Jimmy Carter was still doing well in the polls and the only crisis on the Tech campus involved alcohol — not gasoline.

That was late in 1977 when the Texas Tech-Arkansas clash in Lubbock was regionally televised by ABC Nov. 24, and again Dec. 23 when the Raiders met Florida State in the Tangerine Bowl that was seen via the Mizlou network.

Now Rex Dockery and the Red Raiders will make their first appearance on the tube since that ill-fated Tangerine Bowl (Tech lost 40-17) Saturday in Tucson against the University of Arizona.

would give the Raiders a slight mental boost.

"It should make our team work a little harder," said Dockery. "This will give us a chance to show what kind of team we have."

Tech has been on television 28 times since its first appearance in 1954. Seventeen of those have been regional tele-

"It should be a close, exciting game." But Dockery's biggest concern isn't putting on an exciting show for the television viewers — it's something much more important.

After two games, Tech still lacks a passing attack.

"We've got to do better (passing) this week," said Dockery. "Sometimes that just takes a little longer to come around. I'm hoping that's the case — we need some success in the passing game."

In two games, quarterback Ron Reeves has thrown the ball 26 times and completed only nine. An even bigger concern is that the opposition has already intercepted the sophomore six times.

Last year Reeves gave up only nine interceptions in 10 games. But last season, Reeves was throwing the ball in the direction of veteran receivers Godfrey Turner and Brian Neison.

"You have to remember," said Dockery, "that the entire strong side of our offensive line is new. And we've also got new wide receivers."

"Our defense did very well against New Mexico," added the coach. "Offensively, we've just got to do a better job of execution. We really made some errors on critical downs — that's where we need to improve."

And Raider fans will be able to judge Saturday how much the Tech offense has improved — courtesy of ABC.

The game will be telecast regionally by ABC in Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and parts of Utah and Colorado. The pre-game show begins at 12:30 p.m. with the kickoff slated for 1 p.m. (CDT).

It may not be The Tonight Show, but Rex Dockery is plenty excited about his team's television debut.

"It is important for our team to be on television for a number of reasons," said Dockery, Monday. "First of all, it gives our players' parents a chance to see them on TV and it also helps us in our recruiting."

But Dockery also figured that the rare television appearance for Tech casts and 11 national, but the last time the Raiders won on the tube was in 1975 when they defeated Baylor 33-10.

In fact, the Raiders haven't been overwhelming on TV. Tech's overall record is 10-16-2.

And the Raiders will have their hands full once again Saturday. Arizona is 2-1 for the year after dropping a heart-breaking 10-7 decision to California on Saturday.

"Their (Arizona's) offensive line is very big," said Dockery. "They are a whole lot stronger inside than they have been. Defensively, they are also very big."

Hill's 'Thrill'

Staubach's Idea

DALLAS (AP) — Tony "The Thrill" Hill was on the sidelines Sunday when Roger Staubach decided something was wrong with the play Coach Tom Landry ordered at the Chicago 22 with two minutes to play.

What was wrong was "The Thrill" wasn't in the game.

Hill has become the clutch receiver for the Dallas Cowboys, replacing Drew Pearson, who is usually double-covered, in that role.

Trailing the Chicago Bears 20-17 in Sunday's National Football League game, Landry called for a hitch screen pass to Hill.

Only Jay Saldi was in the game.

"Roger told me to get into the game quick," said Hill. "That's my play I love to run with the ball."

Hill caught the short pass and followed a crushing block by tackle Pat Donovan for the winning score.

"I just wasn't going to be denied," said Hill. "I'm grateful to Roger for calling me back into the game."

Hill said Staubach is a marvel to him at the age of 37.

"No receiver is better than the quarterback and I've never seen the guy throw the ball bad," said Hill. "At his age you might expect him to be slowing down. But he moves extremely well."

Staubach has brought the Cowboys from behind in the fourth quarter in all three Dallas victories this season.

"We always have a lot of confidence in the last two minutes," said Hill. "Coach Landry works us hard during the week on being prepared for the worst. We're always prepared."

Hill said the erratic but winning start for the Cowboys is an omen for better things to come.

"We will have an outstanding season," said Hill. "I can't foresee the Cowboys losing."

Hill got his nickname one day when Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson suggested the Cowboy wide receiver have a catchy tag to grab media headlines. Henderson suggested "The Thrill."

The next day Hill arrived at practice with "The Thrill" stenciled on his socks.

Hill's confidence also is one of his trademarks.

The former Stanford star showed up Monday at the weekly Dallas-Fort Worth media meeting wearing a T-shirt that read: "I'm No. 1. Why Try Harder?"

Tech Picadors Open Campaign At UNM

By NORVAL POLLARD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Texas Tech Picadors, Tech's junior varsity football squad, began preparation Monday for their first of three contests during the 1979 season — a Thursday encounter with the University of New Mexico junior varsity.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. MDT (8:30 p.m. CDT) at UNM Stadium in Albuquerque.

Tech's junior varsity will play the remaining two games of the light schedule at home — Oct. 15 against the Houston JVs and Oct. 25 against Ranger Junior College.

"The junior varsity games help our varsity a lot," said Tech junior varsity head coach Jerry Bomar. "It gives the younger players a chance to play and the opportunity to gain some game experience."

"It gives the coaches a chance to see the younger players on film and gives them an idea of what they can really do in a game situation. Really, it lets the coaches know what they've got. Some younger players perform better when you turn on the lights."

The squad that will play against the Lobo junior varsity had not practiced as a unit until Monday. The team is made up of freshmen, walk-ons, some sophomores and scout squad members.

"The freshman rule has hurt us (the Picadors) to some extent because so many of our freshmen work out with the varsity that it hasn't given us any time for individualized work," Bomar added.

The starting offense for the Picadors is expected to consist of sophomore Ricky Ethridge at quarterback, freshmen Clifford Bailey and Fred Brietbarth at the fullback and tailback slots, respectively, and sophomore Ricky Hobbs at flanker.

Freshman Curt Cole is expected to start at tight end and first-year player Brian Williamson will open at split end.

The offensive line will have freshman Herb Pearce and scout squad member James Person at tackles, freshmen Shayne Crosby and Blake Feldt at guards and freshman David Joeckel at center.

Defensively, the Picadors will start freshmen Jeff McCowan and Rob Willis at outside linebackers, and another pair of freshmen, Stan Williams and David Smith, at the inside linebacking posts.

John Blanchard and Van Hughes, both freshmen, will start at the defensive tackle positions and junior scout squadman Rick Kempf will open the clash at noseguard.

The starting defensive secondary will have four freshmen — Ricky Sanders and Steve Heniford at cornerback and Keith Davis and Jerry Hatchett at safety.

Another freshman, Jesse Garcia, will handle all of Tech's kicking duties.

Robinson Ready As Pirates Take Lead

By The Associated Press Don Robinson appreciated Chuck Tanner's confidence, and showed it with a fine performance for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Given the key starting assignment by Tanner, Robinson responded with a sparkling six-hitter to edge Montreal 2-1, boosting the Pirates into a one-game lead over the Expos in the National League East Division.

"I was scheduled to pitch Wednesday night but because we had a rain-out last Thursday, Chuck let me pitch tonight. I'm glad he showed the confidence in me," said Robinson.

"It's definitely the best game I've pitched all season and I'm delighted that it came when we really needed it."

Robinson was in trouble only once, allowing a leadoff double by Larry Parrish in the fifth inning and a single to Rodney Scott, on which Parrish scored when center fielder Omar Moreno had trouble picking up the ball.

"You have to tip your cap to Robinson," said Tanner. "We gave him plenty of rest and he pitched just a super ball game."

Montreal Manager Dick Williams was quick to add his praise for Robinson's performance.

"Give the credit to Robinson," said Williams. "He did a job. We only had that one opportunity to score all night."

Dave Parker provided Robinson with offensive support, knocking in both Pittsburgh runs with a pair of singles.

Orioles 2, Tigers 1

Al Bumby and Ken Singleton hit two home runs to power the Baltimore Orioles to a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Bumby's homer in the eighth was his sixth of the season and broke a scoreless pitching duel between Detroit's Milt Wilcox and Baltimore's Scott McGregor. Singleton's shot in the ninth was his 35th.

Twins 10, White Sox 3

Bombo Rivera's two-run triple, the only hit in a five-run fifth inning, helped the Minnesota Twins keep alive their pennant hopes with a 10-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Dodgers 9, Braves 4

Joe Ferguson hit two home runs and Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker had one apiece to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 9-4 victory over Atlanta as the Braves' Phil Niekro absorbed his 20th loss.

Ferguson hit his 19th homer in the second inning when the Dodgers scored five runs, four of them unearned. Bill Russell's bases-loaded double accounted for two of the runs.

Redskins Rattle Giants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defensive tackle Karl Lorch returned an intercepted pass 31 yards for a touchdown and Joe Theismann threw and ran for two more scores Monday night as the Washington Redskins defeated the winless, error-prone New York Giants 27-0 in a nationally televised National Football League game.

Lorch's touchdown came in the second quarter after he picked off a pass from beleaguered Giants quarterback Joe Pisarcik, intended for running back Billy E. Gault.

Taylor in the flat. He ran unmolested into the end zone to give the Redskins a 10-0 lead.

The Redskins added another touchdown later in the quarter when the Giants were penalized three times on one drive, twice for running into the kicker.

The Giants' fortunes didn't improve any in the third quarter. Kelley once again was penalized, this time for kicking Washington's Benny Malone, and that helped the Redskins hold the ball for 7:58 and drive 78 yards for their third touchdown. Theismann ran it in from the seven to make the score 24-0.

Mark Moseley, who had missed only one of five attempts going into the game, kicked field goals of 46 and 40 yards.

Theismann, the NFL's top quarterback the first two weeks of the season, connected on 18 of 28 pass attempts for 153 yards, one touchdown and two interceptions.

Pisarcik, who was sacked 14 times in the first two Giant games, continued to suffer physical abuse from the opposition, getting sacked three times and being called for intentionally grounding once as he underwent a heavy rush from Washington's veteran defensive line.

Pisarcik finished the night with only seven completions in 24 attempts for 112 yards and two interceptions.

The victory was Washington's second after losing the season opener.

McPherson Exterminates Injury Bug

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When Silverton's starting tailback, Mark Brown, hurt his shoulder on the opening kickoff of the season's first game, it might have seemed like an omen.

But the meaning of omens lies in the eyes of the beholder.

And for Silverton, the omen might have been good. Subbing for Brown, who separated a shoulder and suffered a hairline fracture of his shoulder blade, was Bobby McPherson. And McPherson has gone on to become the fourth leading rusher and the fifth leading scorer on the South Plains.

In two games, he has carried the ball 62 times for 295 yards, second best of all Class B rushers. He has also scored four touchdowns, also second best for Class B athletes.

"Brown's loss hurt us considerably as far as having two backs who can run with the football," Silverton boss Jerry Watson said. "But as far as injuries go, I think we're better off than the rest of the teams in our district. It just means we can't run Bobby at fullback and Mark at tailback."

The other teams, primarily Valley and Nazareth, have been hit hard by the injury bug. Valley lost fullback James McNary while Nazareth, the other one of the three picked to win District 2-B North, lost quarterback Chris Hatla and wingback Dewayne Heck.

"Valley is our biggest rival," said Watson. "We've got to be ready for them and Nazareth always seems to get up for us. As far as I'm concerned, I guess we're about even."

Silverton upset Lubbock Christian High Friday to regain some stability after the opening 43-0 whumping by Kress.

"We didn't play real well in the first half (of the LCHS game)," Watson said. "But in the second half we started looking like the football team we should be."

As far as the rout by Kress goes, Watson doesn't seem overly disturbed.

"I'll tell you what," he said, "Kress played a real good game. And we played pretty well too. We played better than the score indicated. At the half it was 12-0 and then it was 18-0 at the end of the third quarter. Then boom, boom, boom, they scored three right quick."

He also says he sees a lot of improvement in his team from last season. "Last year we lost 28-0 and 33-0 to those same teams," Watson said.

"We had minus-yardage total-offense in both games. As far as I'm concerned, we're a little ahead of schedule."

The only back in all of the Class B schools on the South Plains who has gained more yardage than Silverton's McPherson is Eliseo Curiel of Meadow. He is also the only player who has out-scored McPherson.

In fact, Curiel is second in the area (counting Classes AA-A-B) in both categories. He has rushed for 300 yards on only 48 attempts and has scored 38 points, including six touchdowns in two games.

"He's got a chance to be as good a running back as I've had here," Rick Hulet says of the 5-11, 160 senior.

"I think we've got a better ballclub than we did last year too," he said. "I don't know if we're going to win more games, but we've got better speed and we've got a lot better attitude than we did last year."

"These kids want to play. Last year I didn't feel that we played up to our capability all the time. But this year we've got better leadership."

"Curiel is doing a fine job at tailback and we moved Lance Bingham to quarterback. I think he's the best quarterback in the district now."

"We've played Whiteface and Smyer already. Now we find out how good we really are. We play Ropes, Tatum and Sundown in our next three ballgames."

Does he think getting the "softies"—Smyer and Whiteface—early in the season helps?

"Well, I kind of wish we had the other three to open up with and then Whiteface and Smyer before district," Hulet said.

Six-Man 3B Makes Foes Wince

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

In bygone days, the National Football League's Central Division earned a reputation for its "black-and-blue" style of roughneck play.

These days, 6-man high school football's premier division — the home of mean, winning teams — is District 3-B.

Eight of nine opponents have fallen to 3-B squads in the first two weeks of the season, and those numbers are bound to multiply.

"If Whitharral hadn't been beat last Friday night, we'd be 9-0 in the district," said Harvey Wellman, coach at Wellman High School.

"This district is strong; real strong. You have to consider that there are teams like Cotton Center, which was runner-up in the state finals last year. This has to be one of the toughest in the state."

Wellman is "real satisfied" with his 6-man standing.

Southland 58-18 and Higgins 48-27. Coach Pat Risinger would not feign surprise at his team's blazing start.

"So far, we've done about what I thought we would," he said. "Our offense is small, and it relies on quickness and technique. Our best individual is a senior back named James Simpson. He has gained 307 yards and 134 yards in our first two games."

Cotton Center, which Risinger said is "a shoe-in for the district championship," has not dragged its feet in defeating Harrold 39-13 and Guthrie 70-26.

According to Coach Monte Lee: "With four of six starters returning from last year, and all of them in good shape, we've started a real good season. To give you an idea, Guthrie was not a weak team. In fact, they're pretty strong, I thought."

Lee's major concern is that his squad not overlook any opponent during its attempted 6-man title march. "One of the bad things is that our players are thinking in terms of state night now. They've set their sights pretty high. You have to have the goal set to get there, but there is a long way to go."

Loop went a long way against Western Hills Baptist Academy last Friday in a 57-0 victory. Coach Don Jones pulled his starters after the first quarter of the season-opener thanks to a 26-0 lead.

"We did an exceptional job," Jones said. "Western Hills didn't get a first down until late in the third quarter. I expected us to look the way we did, but I felt better just seeing it."

Whitharral, 1-1, lost to Paint Rock 26-12 Friday night, after braving a 240-mile bus ride the day of the game.

Coach Gary Patterson hopes that the game with Western Hills Friday will "get us rolling again. I think we'll do okay," he said.

District 2-B teams Hermleigh and Southland are both 0-2. Hermleigh coach Clarence Spieker said, "We have a way to go before we're on the level of last year (10-1). My boys don't back off from work and that has made my job easy."

Southland coach Keith Gast has seven freshmen on his 11-man roster. They are a prime ingredient in his winless record.

"I was hoping to go 5-5, but the chances of that are getting dimmer," Gast said. "I think we'll win some ball games because we have a real good attitude. It's tough to expect a lot out of freshmen when you put them up against seniors."

Portales Back Poe Honored

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Shades of Steve Grogan?

Portales High School's junior quarterback Eddie Poe rushed for 76 yards and passed for 140 in the Rams' 22-0 pasting of Goddard Friday night.

Poe's effort, which included 7 of 10 passing with no interceptions and two touchdowns, has earned him Offensive Player of the Week honors for eastern New Mexico.

Poe was starting only his second game at quarterback for Portales, which is off to a hot 2-0 start.

Texico tailback Herbert Bibbs, last week's offensive star, gained 170 rushing-yards in 27 carries as the Wolverines defeated Christ the King 21-14. Bibbs also ran 80 yards for a touchdown in that game.

The embattled Eunice defensive secondary — David Paschal, Ken Downlearn, Ernie Montanez and Rod Chapman — distinguished itself against Van Horn, Texas, during a 28-12 Cardinal victory Friday night.

An outbreak diagnosed as infectious pleurisy left the Eunice defensive backfield bedridden except for Downlearn.

Paschal and Montanez stepped in to play positions unfamiliar to them, while Chapman, normally a reserve, started despite sickness that kept him out of school until the day before the game.

The quartet defended against 25 Van Horn passes, of which only six were complete. Their performance prompted Eunice coach Ed Davis to comment: "Boy, those guys really rose to the occasion."

LCC Women Host Volleyball

The Lubbock Christian College women's volleyball team will have the home-court advantage tonight when it hosts West Texas State and Abilene Christian in a triangular volleyball match.

West Texas and Abilene Christian will play at 6 p.m.; the Lady Chaps and ACU tangle at 7 p.m.; LCC meets WTS at 8 p.m. LCC is currently 1-1 at home and 3 overall.

Coach Larry Rogers added a new offense at practice Monday and the Lady Chaps will likely unveil that offense tonight. However, he plans to keep five of his six starters intact: seniors Diane Fogarty of Bettendorf, Iowa, and Gayla Parker of Seminole; junior Cheryl Skages of Glendora, Calif.; and sophomores Bridget Biggers of Lancaster, Calif., and Janice Wilkey of Fillmore, Calif. The lone new starter will be freshman Irene Ramirez of Seminole.

The Lady Chaps next will head for Alpine and the Sul Ros Invitational Friday and Saturday.

U.S. Davis Team Scores An Ace

MEMPHIS (AP) - No more begging for Jimmy Connors' services. No more last minute lineup changes for the United States Davis Cup team.
Victory, the new tradition, and money are attractive, and for the first time since the beginning of the '70's, the United States has a full pool of willing talent for the international tennis competition.

Connors has refused steadfastly to play for his country since 1974, saying that it doesn't suit his schedule - or, more often than not, saying nothing at all. Trabert has been snubbed more than once by Connors and his mother.
'I don't think we need him,' said a satisfied Smith over the weekend as he and his teammates were beating Argentina 4-1 in the American Zone finals.

An excellent chance of overtaking the No. 2 spot soon.
Gerulaitis is a Top Five player, too, and so the United States finds itself fielding the best two singles players of any of the Davis Cup nations.

'You can't go back to that,' said Lutz.

Ford May Seek Full Eligibility

DALLAS (UPI) - Southern Methodist coach Ron Meyer said Monday that junior quarterback Mike Ford, out for the season after knee surgery, had indicated to him that he would like to remain at SMU an extra season if he should be granted a bonus year of eligibility.
Southwest Conference officials said that if Ford wanted the extra year, it was almost a foregone conclusion that he would get it.

Pastorini To Return

HOUSTON (UPI) - If healthy, Dan Pastorini will return to the Houston Oilers lineup Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals, his coach said Monday.
'He's all right. He could have played against Kansas City. If we had had to put him in the ball game, we could have.' Oilers coach Bum Phillips said.

Quarterbacks Star In NFL Injury List

The list of battered National Football League quarterbacks is growing.
Ken Anderson, who missed most of the 1978 season with a broken right hand, staggered out of Sunday's game against New England with a bruised back, this after rejecting a protective vest similar to Dan Pastorini's that might have saved him from injury.
