This And That About One Thing and Another

April 1 dawned as lovely and balmy a Spring morning as a poet's dream. Only a West Texas weatherman could produce the variety we have had the past month. Below zero temperatures, rain and sleet and snow, a perfect Easter Sunday, wind and dust and sand, down to 24 degrees Wednesday night and April was born on a bright, clear, perfect morning. We hope April showers will make their appearance soon. March moisture was about normal. The book at the city office shows .88 inch for the month. Snow the first week of March resulted in .25 inch of moisture; snow the second week was responsible for another .24 of an inch. A meager .04 is recorded for March 19 and last Wednesday night's shower measured .35 of an inch. At Gasoline, the moisture was even less, but out at Flomot a nice shower was reported.

Another new house started this week. The foundation was poured for a new four room and bath, stucco, located in the northwest part of town, which will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hunter. Hunter is manager of the Farmers Co-op gin. The house now owned by the gin will be repaired and improved and used for a rent house, it was stated.

And we were informed, after last week's paper appeared (and in no uncertain terms) that Ernest Morrison has two helpers in the construction of his house whom we failed to mention and which error of ommission we hasten to correct, Glynn Morrison and P-John Monk. Sorry, boys.
