Nuptial music was furnished by Toby Penn who sang "Because" and "Always", accompanied by Miss Betty Nan Burson. Miss Burson also played the wedding marches, and softly during the reading of the ceremony.

The candles were lighted by Miss Jo Dean Bedwell and Miss Patsy Stark, assisted by L. B. Garvin and Bobby Jack Ham.

Miss Bedwell wore orchid and Miss Stark wore pink, their dresses fashioned identically of net, with long full skirts, long sleeves caught at the wrist with tiny bouquets. They wore shepherdess hats of the net arnamented with rosebuds, gardenias and feathers.

A white aisle rug was laid for the entry of the bride by Jett Mason and Stanley Price. The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She chose a white satin bridal gown, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, long fitted sleeves, and short train. The veil of lace hung from a coronet of tiny mums, stephanotis and silver maline, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids surrounded by stephanotis and stylized leaves of white satin, showered with satin streamers. Something new in the bridal tradition was her dress, something old was her mother's wedding band which she wore, something blue were her garters, and something borrowed was a double strand of pearls.

The bride's mother wore a green dress with green accessories and Mrs Anderson wore blue with black accessories. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

At the reception in the home of Mrs. Ben Garvin, following the ceremony, the wedding cake was cut by the bride and groom. The cake centered the lace covered table and was topped by a bell in which a rosebud formed the ringer. The cake was served with punch by Miss Dudley and Mrs. Morehouse and Miss Betty Nan Burson presided at the register.

CLEVER GIRL ... that's what your friends will say when they see your new SATIN-LUX rooms.

CLEVER GIRL . . . your husband will agree. He'll like the way SATIN-LUX brushes out . . . covers solidly in one coat ... dries quickly to a hard, smooth satin finish. CLEVER GIRL...you'll tell yourself when cleaning days arrive. Mild soap and water will wash dirt and grease away without harm to the satin finish. Yes...use SATIN-LUX on walls, woodwork and furniture.
