Sorghum Midge Damage Reported In Southern Part of County

Some damage to grain sorghum by the Sorghum Midge is showing up in the southern part of the county and in Floyd county. This insect is considered new to the Texas Panhandle.

Last year, sorghum midge caused extensive damage to late maturing grain sorghum on the High Plains. Losses of grain in individual fields blooming after mid-August, due to midge, ranged from 20 percent to 100 percent in a number of High Plains counties in 1961.

The current situation appears to be somewhat smaller numbers than in 1961. No midge were observed until July 13, 1962. At this time, a few adults were observed near Idalou in Lubbock County.

The sorghum midge is a tropical pest and is most injurious in the more humid parts of the state. The adult midge is an orange-colored, fragile-looking gnat or fly about one-twelfth inch long. Adult females lay their eggs in the spikelet or seed husk of the host plant. The midge will attack grain sorghum, sweet sorghum, Johnsongrass, sudangrass, broomcorn and other wild or uncultivated grasses. The female usually deposits about 50 to 250 tiny eggs on sorghum

CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGER'S WASHINGTON REPORT

Taxes

All of the talk in recent days about taxes and the chance for a tax cut bring to my mind the need for some substantial tax revision. I feel that under the present tax laws many inequities could be erased by some quick amendments. Any tax law, like any other type of law, is subject to human errors. It is only after administration of the law begins that many of the unseen errors become obvious.

As an example, let me cite the case of a young man who was supporting his several sisters and also his mother. The father had absented himself and completely failed in his responsibility to the family. Hence, the mother and the several sisters were directly dependent upon this young man for their sustenance.

Under the income tax laws as they presently stand, however, the young man could claim exemptions for his sisters as dependents, but none for his mother — the reason being that since the mother had not been legally divorced from the father, she was charged with receiving one-half of his income under the community property laws. Actually, she did not receive one dime from the errant husband and had no way to collect any money from him.

Certainly no one would contend that the law should place such a penalty on a young man who was assuming a moral but not a legal obligation in supporting his sisters and his mother. He should be rewarded for his fine Christian attitude. Nevertheless, the law so read. It was obviously an oversight at the time the tax law was written.

I have introduced a bill to correct this gross inequity. If we can get this amendment passed it will not only relieve this young man and others in his predicament of an unfair and burdensome penalty, but it may save many from criminal prosecution. There are undoubtedly a number of cases where the same situation exists, but where the taxpayer is unaware of the actual provisions of the law. Technically, he is in violation of the law and could be prosecuted and would also be liable for the payment of a substantial claim by the government for back taxes. This would be unconscionable — an unexpected bill for a substantial amount of money would upset the budget of almost anyone, to say nothing of the amount of money that would be required should some arbitrary bureaucrat decide to push prosecution.

It is for this and similar reasons that any tax legislation should be carefully and exhaustively studied before it is passed. After it is passed, it should be very carefully administered by individuals with some of the milk of human kindness coursing through their veins.

There have been a number of glaring errors of like nature in the Social Security Act. Some of these we have been able to correct, while others still haunt the people. As each one of these flaws is brought to light by some fact situation not previously anticipated, correction should be made forthwith. Hence, if any of you feel that you have suffered an injustice in any of these particulars, let me know the facts and the ruling that was made in your case so that some attention can be directed to bringing about correction.

PESTICIDE DRIFT INVESTIGATED

College Station — The extent of pesticide drift in the use of agricultural chemicals is being investigated by a team of scientists from the A&M College of Texas, Texas State Health Department, Entomology Research Division of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

In compliance with House Resolution 199 of the 57th Texas Legislature leadership in the pesticide drift project is provided by the A & M College of Texas through the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Field studies with fluorescent dyes and other tracer techniques to determine the extent of pesticide drift and air pollution was conducted during the current growing season at four locations in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Comprehensive data recorded in these field experiments were reviewed recently at the Lower Rio Grande Valley Experiment Station at Weslaco. An evaluation of these findings will be presented to the incoming 58th Texas Legislature.

WHO'S A DIRTY DOG?

Dogs may feel as small boys do about being bathed — reluctant, to say the least! But regular bathing is as essential to the health and well-being of boy's best friend as it is to boy, according to Sergeant's Dog Care Center which has some sound advice to offer on the subject of the dog and his bath.

Periodic bathing should start when the puppy is three months old. A tubbing, every week if necessary, is recommended for the average active dog. But more important than the frequency of the bath is the type of cleanser used in it. The Center warns all dog-lovers that only cleansers created especially for dogs should be used. Ordinary household cleaning agents may contain materials that are irritating to the dog's skin and harsh detergents that can ruin his coat.

Special dog shampoo or soap add a glossy sheen to the coat and help keep skin soft and healthy. Some cleansers also act as pesticides, killing fleas and lice as well. For use between tub baths, there's an aerosol lather which merely has to be rubbed into the coat and wiped off. Convenient and effective, too, are liquids requiring no additional water and which take only minutes to apply.

ARE COLLEGE STUDENTS CHURCH-GOERS? NOT USUALLY, TEXAS U. SURVEY INDICATES

Could Be Laziness, Could Be Doubts— Might Be Home Life
By JOHN CRISS REAGAN
(Criss Reagan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Reagan, is a Senior at Texas University this year and is majoring in Journalism. The following story, written by Criss appeared in the Friday, August 10 issue of The Daily Texan, the newspaper published by the University. The editors of the Tribune think that the story is well worth reprinting.)

A recent report from the Registrar's office, indicates that out of 18,740 students enrolled at the Main University, 16,072 cards showed students' church affiliations or religious preferences in the Religious Council cards filled out at registration. This figure represented 87 per cent of the student body.

Are the students claiming a church affiliation active in the churches in the University area? To the disappointment of churchmen, they are not.

Why do some students who were active in their hometown churches have almost passive attitudes to church activities when they leave home? Is it because Mother is not there to get them out of bed in time for services, or are there deeper, more basic reasons?

Some students say that those who attend church activities are outcasts from other campus social activities.

Another reason given is that some students are too indoctrinated in religion to be happy any other place. It is maintained that those who do not attend church activities are too socially active in other affairs or have been to "liberalized" by the college in their thinking to participate.

"I can never get up on time. Besides, Sunday is my one day to catch up on sleep."

This is the reply given mostly by students when answering why they were not in church last Sunday. And it is perhaps a valid reason when one considers the busy life the average student lives. Classes, labs, long hours of study, dates, meetings, ball games, part-time jobs — the Student Employment Bureau reports show that more than 80 per cent of the students work either part or full time at some point during their stay at the University — the list of student activities is long indeed.

But is "laziness" the main reason, the basic reason for students not being active church members? Do social attractions or engagements keep them from attending church activities?

In a recent study toward his master's degree, Julian Lawson Eigers, Jr. indicated that these are not reasons but excuses. In Biggers' study he suggests that a student's activity in his college church is determined greatly by his pre-college activity.

Biggers concentrated his study on one denomination of Protestants — Episcopalians. Episcopalians rank fourth in number in the University with 1,633 members according to a recent count published by the Registrar's office.

He studied three groups which he labeled core, participant, and non-participant. He describes these three groups as being very active, active, and inactive, respectively. His findings indicate that previous activities in student programs (in high school) and the age confirmed are clearly related to the degree of participation by students.

Those students who were the most active, the core group, were active in their hometown churches, and they were confirmed to their faith at an earlier age than those of the less active groups.

But this does not fully explain the students' participations in church activities. Why do some remain active while others do not? Why are some only Easter-Sunday Christians?

Perhaps the answer lies in a recent sermon delivered by a pastor of a University-area church. His explanation was that many students never had their religion tested before coming to college. Before then, they were identified by the religion of their parents. Many students attended church activities because they were as much a part of the students' social life as school or going to parties.

But when they came to college and left the securities of home behind, their attitudes and values began to change. From new friends, professors, and instructors they learned new concepts concerning life, religion, and the arts. They began to question and test things. The "intellectual atmosphere" in which they now live is perhaps responsible for this questioning. The religions which they followed as children do not give them the assurance and stability they need for their emotions. Their college lives have become transition periods from the religions they knew as children to the ones they accept "conscientiously" as adults.

D.P.S. PREDICTS THAT 30 PERSONS WILL DIE OVER HOLIDAY
AUSTIN — Colonel Homer Garrison Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today announced the official estimate that 30 persons will be killed in some 3,000 traffic crashes during the upcoming 72-hour Labor Day weekend.

Commenting on Labor Day travel, Garrison said: "Many Texas families will take advantage of this last long summer weekend to take trips prior to the opening of school. As a result, traffic will be heavy and the possibilities of traffic crashes will be increased."

"Because this holiday is so much a family affair, more people will be occupying cars. Thus any traffic accident might result in several casualties. This has been evidenced several times on Texas highways in recent weeks. During one seven-day period in August, three crashes claimed the lives of 20 persons."

Garrison noted that during the past eight weeks traffic deaths have increased from four per cent below to two per cent above the toll for the corresponding period of last year.

"But the most alarming thing is that the number of fatal traffic accidents is now running four per cent above last year's figure," he said. "Experience has shown that in nearly every fatal accident a violation of traffic law has been a major causative factor."

In an effort to focus public attention on the hazards of holiday travel and to compile additional data which will be helpful in improving the State's traffic management program, the Department of Public Safety will conduct "Operation Motorcade" from 12:01 A.M. Saturday, September 1, through 11:59 P.M. Monday, September 3.

During this period, the Department will tabulate all traffic deaths in the State and will issue daily bulletins at 10:00 A.M., 3:00 P.M., and 8:30 P.M.

In an all-out effort to insure driver compliance with traffic regulations and to hold traffic crashes to a minimum, the DPS has made plans to augment its regular Highway Patrol force with some 150 uniformed officers from its other services during this three-day period.

"But the solution to the traffic problem in Texas is in the hands that hold the steering wheels," Garrison said. "Drivers should remind themselves during the Labor Day weekend, and every time they drive, that the operation of a motor vehicle is a full-time job. At no other time are your loved ones more dependent upon you."

CURBY-EDDLEMAN VOWS SPOKEN SUNDAY AT SILVERTON

Double ring vows were exchanged in a candlelight service Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the First Baptist Church, Silverton, by Miss Anita LaJuan Curby and Randall Ray Eddleman. The pastor, Rev. Carlos McLeod officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Long, Silverton are parents of the bride, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Eddleman also of Silverton.

Baskets of giant white mums, pompon mums and greenery, tied with orchid ribbons featured the altar decorations.

Mrs. L. B. Garvin, Silverton, presented the nuptial music at the organ and Sam Brown, Silverton, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and imported organza, fashioned with fitted lace bodice with square neckline framed with scalloped lace and long sleeves terminating in petal points over the hands. The bouffant skirt of organza with lace tiers, flowed into a chapel train. The scalloped lace tiers were gathered with organza roses. Her fingertip illusion veil was held by a double pearl encrusted crown and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid.

The brides attendants were Becky Mallow, Silverton, maid of honor; Karen Walls, Frederick, Okla., Ann Wingo and LaQuetta Chitty, Silverton, and Mrs. Morris Degan, Turkey, bridesmaids.

Small Patti Carol Marshall, Lubbock was flower girl.

They wore dresses of orchid crystal peau de soie and carried bouquets of white mums. The flower girl's dress was similar to the others and she carried a basket of rose petals.

Rocky Curby, brother of the bride and Carolyn Garrison were candlelighters.

Richard Eddleman, Abernathy, was his brother's best man. Gary Allen Walls, Frederick, Okla., was ring bearer.

Serving as groomsmen and ushers were Lane Cushenberry, Amarillo, Steve Jarrigan, Silverton Murry Wayne Morrison, Quitaque, and Don Powell, Colorado City.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The refreshment table was centered with flowers and greenery, flanked by the decorated tiered cake and punch, all denoting the bride's chosen colors of orchid and white.

Mrs. Chris Ward, Tulia and Miss Barbara Fisch, Silverton, presided at the serving table. Sam Brown provided music during the reception hours.

The couple went to various points in Colorado on their wedding trip. For traveling the bride selected a purple two-piece suit of pure silk, with gold accessories.

After September 1 the newlyweds will be at home seven miles northwest of Silverton where the groom is engaged in farming.

The bride is a graduate of Silverton High School. Mr. Eddleman graduated from Quitaque High School and Amarillo College. He will be a second semester junior at West Texas State College where he plans to continue his studies.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Monk and their daughter, Mrs. Earl Jones and her husband and 4 children of Mountaineer, N. M. visited his brother, Mr. and Mrs. P. John Monk last Wednesday afternoon.
