ROGERS FAVORS TAX CUT

LANDMARK TAX LEGISLATION

Congressman Walter Rogers' Newsletter

The most important legislation of the year—the "Revenue Act of 1963" will be before the House of Representatives as most of you read this newsletter. Known to most citizens simply as "the tax bill", this measure's major provisions include an across-the-board cut in individual and corporate income taxes. Because of its impact on virtually every American citizen and business firm, the tax bill has brought more concentrated public and Congressional attention than any other piece of pending legislation.

You've probably read of the bill's provisions in your newspapers and heard them discussed at length in television and radio reports. Perhaps you've determined by how much your own taxes would be reduced and the effects other provisions in the bill would have on your own business. Perhaps you've found things in the bill with which you disagree; few persons could agree with every item in a bill 310 pages in length, although they might feel that "on balance" the bill is a good one.

The most significant thing about the tax bill is that it represents a strong reaffirmation of the nation's faith in the free enterprise system. At conflict in recent years have been two theories concerning the way in which government can help bolster the country's economy. On one hand have been those who advocate higher government spending in programs and projects which tie a larger proportion of the labor force and industrial production directly to the government. On the other hand have been those who believe, as I do, that a relaxation of government controls and a will encourage the free enterprise system to provide goods, services—and jobs—in ever increasing abundance. This bill represents the first effort in history to stimulate economic development by free capital through a reduction in taxes, for higher consumer spending and business investment. Congressman Wilbur Mills, my colleague from Arkansas whose House Ways and Means Committee worked steadily for nine months to write the legislation, stated the philosophy underlying it in these words: "This bill reflects an effort by the Federal government to reduce and remove—not to impose—tax constraints on the economy, to give the private sector of the economy greater wherewithal to do what comes naturally to it and which increases the well-being of all of us."

I am convinced that most Americans are anticipating a tax cut. The current strength of the economy reflects, in part, the conviction of many citizens that a tax cut is coming. The high rate of consumer spending, an increase in business investment, booming stock market, a drop in the rate of unemployment—this good news is not entirely due to the anticipation of a tax cut, but I believe that the prospect of lowered taxes is part of it.

The tax bill has wide bipartisan support, the support of business and labor, support of citizens rich and poor.

The main argument being raised against the bill concerns the wisdom of reducing taxes when the certain result would be an at least temporary greater imbalance between the government's receipts and expenditures—in other words, additional budget deficits. As one who has worked long for reduced government spending, I believe that enactment of this legislation will actually help achieve this goal. More Americans than ever will be writing their representatives to say, in effect: "We are glad to have a tax cut—now re-double your efforts to cut spending and balance the budget." Congress, I believe, will become more conscious of the need for economy with taxes substantially reduced.

The objective of tax reduction is to stimulate the growth of the economy to such an extent that the higher levels of personal and corporate income will thus produce more—not less—tax revenue. Section I of the bill, which was authored by Committee Chairman Mills, spells out that objective in these words: "To further the objective of obtaining balanced budgets in the near future, Congress by this action, recognizes the importance of taking all reasonable means to restrain Government spending and urges the President to declare his accord with this objective."

Tax reduction and revision provided for in this bill will help hasten the day when our budgets are balanced in a growing economy, providing adequate employment and investment opportunities—and giving full play to the initiative of our free enterprise system.

U.S.D.A. TO OPEN MEMPHIS COTTON CLASSING OFFICE MONDAY

Monday, Sept. 30 marks the opening of the fifth season for the Memphis cotton classing office, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Operated by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, this office classes cotton for farmers in 11 West Texas counties—Briscoe, Carson, Gray, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Donley, Hall, King Motley and Wheeler.

Kermit T. Voelkel, who has been with the AMS cotton division for 32 years, will be in charge of the Memphis office for the third season. "Last year, we classed 203,115 bales of cotton under the Smith-Doxey program," Mr. Voelkel said.

Cotton from 56 gins goes to the Memphis office which has facilities for classing about 5,000 samples per day.

Early ginned cotton in the Memphis territory was classed in Altus. Should a farmer want a review on any of these classifications, the request for review should be sent to Memphis, according to Mr. Voelkel.

Cotton is classed without cost for framers belonging to organized Smith-Doxey cotton improvement groups.

Farmers who know the grade and staple of their cotton are in a good position to get the best market price for it.

"That is why farmers in this area have nearly all of their cotton classed by USDA," Mr. Voelkel said.

In addition to classing cotton, the AMS cotton office releases every Friday the "Texas-Oklahoma Cotton Market Review," describing local, state and national market conditions, trends and quotations, plus facts on picking, defoliating, machine harvesting and ginning.

During the harvesting season, AMS issues a cotton quality report by classing offices every Monday and a quality report by districts, monthly.

During the ginning season, it releases a cottonseed review every Thursday.

Persons wanting these cotton reports can get them without cost by writing to Mr. Voelkel, 221 Noel St., Memphis, Texas, 79245.

He was born June 19, 1896 in Mexico. He married Ninfa Rogers on April 1, 1934, in San Angelo and came to Briscoe County where he did farm work until he was forced to retire due to ill health.

Flomot Home Demonstration Club competed in the Floyd County Fair held recently at Lockney, and came home standing a little taller—and proud of their little farming community in the shadow of the Caprock.

Their agriculture exhibit placed second in competition with the rich Plains' irrigated agricultural products, only three points behind first place exhibit, while third place exhibit was nine points below first.

The club displayed the required number of 15 items, which were judged as follows: J. A. Reed, pears 29 points; Herb Martin, cotton boll 25; Leona Degan, squash 29; Edith Washington, okra 30, and blackeye peas 25; Bessie Sauls, pepper 26 and pop corn 24; Alfred Martin, hegar 25; Allie Martin, corn 25; Ronald Clay, peanuts 24; Leota Isbell, pinto beans 27 and W. W. Merrell, apples 30.

Thirty points was the highest possible score for any one entry, so club members were justifiably proud of their showing.

The club also entered a demonstration on what it believed was Motley's County's most outstanding accomplishment of the past year. A screwworm demonstration was entered, which did not place, but netted the club $5 for the effort. In addition, the club received $5 for 3rd place points for entries and ribbons won, and $20 for 2nd on exhibits, making a total of $30 plus individual prize money.

Handwork Wins Ribbons. Handwork and canned goods entered by members placed as follows: Linnie Gilbert, stole, 1st place, cutwork pillow cases 2nd and applied pillow cases 3rd; Trula Martin, wool poodle 1st, pear preserves 3rd, cup towel 3rd, pepper relish 2nd, and bread and butter pickles 2nd; Mrs. Leon Cloyd, afghan, 1st, hand-tooled leather purse 2nd, and tablecloth 3rd; Hattie Jones, cross-stitch scarf 1st; Edith Washington, picture frame 1st, and cutwork doilies 1st; Bessie Sauls, crocheted sweater 1st, honey 1st, blackeye peas 1st, crocheted bedspread 2nd and cross-stitch doily 3rd.

"The exhibits committee feels that the effort was worth our time and expense," declared the chairman. "We had a lot of fun, and learned a lot about several different things. We wish to take this means of expressing appreciation to everyone who helped us in any way."

Mrs. Hubert Dudley and children visited Mr. Gray Robinson in Amarillo Sunday. Mr. Robinson underwent major surgery recently. He is the brother-in-law of Hubert and Euel Dudley.

HIGHWAY PATROL REPORT FOR MONTH OF AUGUST

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 2 accidents on rural highways in Briscoe County during the month of August, according to Sgt. W. E. Wells, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These wrecks accounted for 1 person injured and estimated property damage of $1000.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county from January through August of 1963 shows a total of 18 crashes resulting in 1 person killed, 14 persons injured and an estimated property damage of $28,335.00.

Now is the time to have all motor vehicles "winterized", the Sergeant stated; that is to have their vehicles inspected at one of the approved inspection stations to determine that all parts are in top condition.

The new 1964 vehicle inspection sticker is now available. All vehicles registered in this state are required to be inspected once a year. All motorists are urged to have their vehicles safely inspected to avoid the rush later on.

The veteran patrol supervisor said, "The Vehicle Inspection Program has proved to be a valuable tool in reducing accidents in Texas."

Savings Bond Sales Report For Briscoe County Now Total 100.4 Percent of Goal

Savings Bond sales in Briscoe County during the month of August totaled $14,837 according to Perry Whittemore, who is Chairman of the Briscoe Co. Savings Bond Committee.

Savings Bond sales in Texas for the first 8 months of 1963 totaled $99,644,534, which represents 66.2 percent of the state goal.

The Briscoe County goal for 1963 was 80,000 and total sales for the county to date is 80,334 or 100.4 percent of the goal.

"The 1963-64 School Savings Stamp Program is again in full swing. This has been an important feature of the bond program since 1941. All children buying their first U. S. Savings Stamp this Fall—whether at school or at the post office—will receive certificates signed by the seven Mercury Astronauts, making them 'Junior Astronauts,'" Chairman Whittemore announced.

MORE ROOMS IN DALLAS FOR STATE FAIR SEASON

DALLAS — With more than 12,000 quality hotel and motel rooms in greater Dallas, local innkeepers are rolling out sparkling red carpets and offering a host of new, free services.

They are also stamping out those antiquated annual rumors. Annual Rumor #1: "No rooms available for the Texas-Oklahoma football weekend."

"This is not true," says Ben H. Roberts, president of Dallas Hotel & Motel Association.

Since last October, some 610 plush new guest rooms have been added.

And when Texas met Oklahoma before a Cotton Bowl capacity crowd of 75,504 last October 13, five of the member hotels and motels reported an average occupancy rate of 78.4 per cent. Throughout the 1962 State Fair of Texas sixteen members reported an average of 79.6 per cent occupancy.

Annual Rumor #2: "Dallas hotels and motels overcharge for peak weekends." "Scalping is outlawed", Mr. Roberts proclaims.

"By state law, hotels and motels are prohibited from raising their posted rates, which must be displayed inside each guest room."

Three-day minimums are definitely not required.

However, no hotel or motel could possibly accept all football weekend reservations for the same day's arrival. The rooms are simply not all available simultaneously.

Thus, the most popular hotels and motels must sometimes stagger guests' arrival dates.

For example, if you call or write for a room reservation to begin on a Friday, the room clerk might have to suggest that you arrive on Thursday or Saturday.

The 1963 State Fair of Texas runs from October 5 to 20, with attendance forecast at nearly 3 million. This is America's largest annual exposition, in terms of attendance, and fourth largest in the world.

The October 11-13 weekend is actually a Cotton Bowl triple-header. Navy plays Southern Methodist Friday night; the annual Longhorn-Soner sellout is set for Saturday afternoon, while the Dallas Cowboys and Detroit Lions' clash in a National Football League game on Sunday afternoon (Oct. 13). "Comfortable accommodations will be available in every price range," states president Roberts.

Virtually 100% of the member hotels and motels will give you a free crib, free TV, free parking and a baby sitter list. Cots range from $1.50 to $3.50 per night. Pets are accepted by at least half of the hotels and motor hotels, and some even provide kennels, as well as playgrounds for the children.

Family and weekly rates are available throughout greater Dallas. Beginning rates among member establishments range from $4.00 to $12.00.

Advance reservations are suggested. A free copy of "This Month in Dallas" is available from the Dallas Hotel & Motel Association, Dallas Chamber of Commerce, Dallas 1, Texas.

This publication lists the Dallas Hotel-Motel Association members, their starting rates and locations, telephone numbers and managers.

You can then make reservations directly with the hotel or motel of your choice, or through your travel agent, or the association office.

The Dallas railroad station, Union Terminal, as well as the Greyhound and Continental Trailways stations, are located in the downtown area.

For air passengers, the Airport Limousine Service is available from Dallas Love Field to all downtown hotels, and two motor hotels, for $1.00 per person. Several nearby motels provide free limousine service.

Highlights of the 1963 State Fair of Texas include the award-winning Broadway musical comedy, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," the all-new "Ice Capades," the Pan-American Livestock Exposition, Texas International Trade Fair, new Southwestern Historical Wax Museum, as well as automobile, industrial and agricultural exhibits.

Yet the interior dimensions of its Body by Fisher provide a generous amount of head, leg and shoulder room. (Chevelle's trunk is big and roomy, too.) The ride is surprisingly smooth with a rugged coil spring at all four wheels. And not so surprisingly for Chevrolet, the new Chevelle offers a choice of engines ranging from an economical 120-hp 6 to a 220-hp V8 (optional at extra cost.) Choose the Chevelle you like best from the three series—the Malibu Super Sport, the Malibu and the 300 Series, eleven models in all—at your Chevrolet dealer's. This is the time of year when respiratory diseases of cattle begin to appear again.

One point to remember about such diseases is that they can occur singly or in combination. This can lead to confusion and substantial losses unless a prompt diagnosis is obtained.

One of the most costly of these diseases in recent years has been infectious bovine rhinotracheitis (IBR), also known as "red nose." Generally this disease affects 25 to 100 per cent of the cattle in a feedlot.

Fortunately the death loss is low in most cases, but IBR does cause a sharp loss of weight and condition. This really hits the farmer's pocketbook because the ailing cattle must be fed longer to reach market condition. Among dairy cattle, a similar loss comes in lowered milk production.

Watch out for respiratory diseases. They can run up feeding costs enormously.

IBR is only one of the respiratory diseases with which cattle raisers need to be concerned. Some of the others include bovine virus diarrhea, malignant catarrhal fever, ulcerative stomatitis, bovine para-influenza 3 and sporadic mucosal disease.

In general, symptoms of the various respiratory diseases of cattle look a lot alike. They include a nasal discharge, fever, rapid breathing, loss of appetite, depression, excessive drooling and scouring. A low, throaty cough also may be noticed.

Because these respiratory diseases do resemble each other a veterinarian should be called to make a diagnosis at the first signs of sickness. This also will help spot any secondary bacterial infections which can sometimes complicate the situation seriously.

Prevention is a good watchword, too, in dealing with respiratory diseases. In the cases of IBR, cattle can be protected through vaccination. It also is a good idea to isolate replacement animals for about 30 days before turning them in with the home herd.

"U.S. Savings Bonds have helped the American people to become a nation of savers"

Says MR. M. MONROE KIMBREL, President, American Bankers Association.

"Savings Bonds have had an important part in preserving a way of life which rewards individual initiative.

"But in addition Savings Bonds have made it easy for tens of millions of Americans to save for the important things in their lives.

NEWS from the High Plains
Research Foundation

At the Seventh Annual High Plains Research Foundation Field Day, September 13, Dr. Earl Collister, Director announced that Goodpasture Grain & Milling Company, Inc., Brownfield, Texas was donating a Wagner Sprinkler Pipe Mover to the Foundation. This unit, when purchased by a local farmer, would entail an expense of approximately $6,000. The pipe couplers and sprinkler head were donated to the Foundation by Ross Irrigation and Supply, also of Brownfield.

This unit is one that was developed after many years of experimentation and field trials, and is manufactured by Goodpasture Manufacturing Company, division of the parent organization.

Tetanus Deaths Unnecessary, Says AMA Health Official

Despite the outpouring of new "wonder" drugs, man's ancient enemy, tetanus, has not yet succumbed to a cure.

Even so, death from tetanus, or "lockjaw" as it is commonly called, is "almost entirely unnecessary," says Raymond L. White, M.D., Director of Environmental Medicine for the American Medical Association.

"As a disease, tetanus is completely preventable," Dr. White noted. "The only reason it persists is that people fail to get immunized, or fail to maintain their immunity. Out of sheer neglect, three-fourths of the people don't have the protection they need."

"If it weren't for medicine's continual concern over the possibility of tetanus—if practically every time a physician saw a wound he didn't take precautions against tetanus—the disease would rank much higher among human killers."

Tetanus is caused by a deadly poison emitted by certain bacteria which contaminate certain types of wounds—especially puncture wounds, or wounds with imbedded dirt.

The bacteria itself cannot survive long enough in the open air to infect wounds. But its seeds or spores can.

Tetanus spores are usually produced by bacteria growing within the air-free intestinal tracts of mammals, including man, and reach the ground in animal manure. Within the intestines, bacteria cause no harm to their host, other than to serve as factories for the production of spores.

Once on the ground the spores, which are unaffected by air, and are borne great distances on the wind, can survive for as long as 11 years. Besides cultivated land, they are commonly found in household dust and the grime of city streets. Some have even been detected in hospital operating rooms—tracked in on street shoes.

Puncture wounds are a common cause of tetanus.

The spores in some sections of the country are nearly as common as dirt, and await only the right kind of wound to start their chain of infection.

Because of its peculiar nature, tetanus has never been a mass killer like some infectious diseases. It is, however, a vicious enemy, killing 60 per cent of those it strikes.

Development of immunity against tetanus, says Dr. White, requires a series of inoculations —three injections four weeks apart, followed within six to twelve months by a booster dose. To maintain this protection, additional booster shots are necessary every four years.

"Protection," he said, "should begin early in life—one to two months after birth—for the scrapes and falls of childhood offer tetanus many opportunities."

"But adults need protection too. With the new emphasis on outdoor living, with accidents on the increase and with the spore of tetanus in the dust and dirt all about us, we can only look forward to an increase in this deadly disease unless we make better use of our good sense, get immunized and keep immunized."

The Wagner Sprinkler Pipe Mover is primarily designed for use by farmers who already own their own sprinkler system, but it can be tailored for use by farmers who desire to convert from open-ditch to sprinkler system.

According to officials of Goodpasture Grain and Milling Company, the system is designed for the express purpose of modernizing a farmer's irrigation operation. Under ordinary circumstances, each unit on one fourth mile of sprinkler system is driven by one gasoline powered engine unit, and each joint of pipe is individually carried by one carrier unit. The Wagner sprinkler type mover was designed by farmers, and built with farmers in mind.

Mr. Wellon Callaway, representing Goodpasture Grain and Milling Co., said, "It is indeed an honor and a privilege to be a forerunner and pioneer in sprinkler irrigation research at the High Plains Research Foundation. We are extremely proud of the fact that this project is being undertaken by an independent, free enterprise research organization. We have long been a subscriber and supporter to the basic principles of the Foundation."

Dr. Collister stated that the Foundation appreciated the kind co-operation of Goodpasture

Grain and Milling Company in furthering the Foundation's research program. The sprinkler irrigation equipment will be of great value in determining more efficient irrigation methods for row crops and pastures.

Dr. Earl H. Collister, Foundation director, announced today that the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., through its Executive Vice-President, George W. Pfeifferberger, has provided the Foundation with $10,000, which will be used to replace the cotton gin building destroyed earlier this year by fire and also erect a modern farm machinery center. The funds will be applied to the $25,000 cost of a completely new steel structure nearing completion now at the Foundation.

Mr. Pfeifferberger said, "There is a definite need for this building, and the Plains Cotton Growers Board members feel this a worthwhile investment toward cotton progress on the High Plains."

Dr. Collier stated that the financial support of Plains Cotton Growers would permit the Foundation to proceed with an accelerated program on cotton research.

Because veterans are living longer than was predicted in the actuarial tables on which the rate of their GI insurance premiums was determined by law, Veterans Administration returns their overpayments to them in the form of dividends.

What They Wore... by PHYLLIS JOYCE

IN THE SIXTH CENTURY A.D. WHEN EMPEROR JUSTINIAN RULED THE ANCIENT KINGDOM OF BYZANTIUM WOMEN WORE COSTUMES REVEALING BOTH GRECO-ROMAN AND ORIENTAL INFLUENCE. OVER A STRAIGHT TUNIC WITH LONG SLEEVES A ROYAL LADY WOULD WEAR A LARGE MANTLE TRIMMED WITH JEWELLED EMBROIDERY AND FASTENED AT THE SHOULDERS WITH A JEWELLED FIBULA OR CLASP.

OFTEN THE ORIENTAL INFLUENCE WAS MORE PRONOUNCED; A KIMONA-LIKE UNDERGARMENT (SHOWN AT RIGHT) OF DAMASK OR HEAVY SILK WAS COVERED BY A RICHLY PATTERNED SLEEVE-LESS OVERGARMENT.

IN THE DRESS OF THE BYZANTINE COMMONER THE GRECO-ROMAN INFLUENCE WAS APPARENT; A PALLA OR TOGA WITH A DECORATED BORDER WAS WORN OVER A LONG SLEEVED GARMENT RESEMBLING A ROMAN STOLA.
