CEMETERY ASSOCIATION HIRES A NEW CARETAKER RECENTLY

The Quitaque Cemetery Association met in the First National Bank Community Room on March 27th to hire a caretaker to replace Mr. Cain.

It was decided by the Directors to hire Ebb Auston on a trial basis for 60 days. He was to begin on April 1, as there is much to be done, such as moving dirt, etc. before the rains begin.

It has been found that many subscribers have not paid dues for 1964, and 1965 is past due. Statements or cards will be mailed during April to remind you of this fact. If your card has a red check in the upper left hand corner, you will know that the Sec.-Treas. has no record of payments for 1964. Please remember that this is a tax-deductible item.

As of April 1, 1965, we have a balance of $358.53 in the bank. As you may readily see, this will not keep a caretaker at $125.00 per month until work ceases about Oct. 1.

We have a community project here of which we are all very proud. Let's keep it clean and beautiful.

If you wish to send payments now, you may pay at First National Bank; to James Brunson at City Hall; or mail to Sec'y. - Treas. Mrs. Mary Pittman, Box 307.

VOTERS TURN OUT WELL HERE FOR TRUSTEE AND CITY ELECTIONS

A total of 43 votes were cast in the city election Tuesday when three aldermen were reelected.

The Board of Trustees also passed a resolution favoring the Texas State Teacher's Association "$45 in '65" bill that is now before the legislators in Austin.

The resolution reads as follows: "Be it resolved that the Quitaque Independent School District Board of Trustees favor the TSTA plan of salary pay raise for teachers over that offered by Governor Connally."

The board discussed several reasons which brought about this action:

1. The TSTA plan will give the teachers a higher raise at less cost to the local tax payer.
2. That Governor Connally's plan will shift a greater burden of taxation onto the local districts, while at the same time giving the teachers about half as much raise in salary.
3. That Governor Connally plans to do away with the ad valorem tax in the next few years, thereby creating another problem of taxation which will inevitably be placed on the local tax payer.
4. And that at present, the Quitaque Independent School District is under stress of taxation due to recent building programs, drought, increased cost of education, and other factors of which we have no control.

planted in some other crop in years past. This demand for soybeans is brought about by the large percentage of the U. S. beans being exported to other countries. 82 percent of Japan's total soybean imports came from the U. S. A. This ever increasing market is demanding not only more soybeans, but also a product of better quality. At this time, soybeans are the leading agricultural export, bringing into the U. S. more export money than any other agricultural commodity.

The High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway, Texas, has been carrying on an accelerated breeding program on soybeans. This first new variety released by the Foundation and given the name of HINN has proven to be a good producing and high yielding soybean.

Some of the characteristics for which HINN was developed are: higher yielding ability than the other varieties being grown in the area; shatter resistance; fruiting higher from the ground for better harvesting and reduction loss at harvest; will not lodge or fall down. One important characteristic of the HINN soybean is its ability to produce heavy branches which help compensate for skips and will also help in shading for weed control.

Reports from some of the growers who planted part of the 6,000 bushels of the HINN soybean seed during 1964 indicated that an average yield of 33.66 bushels per acre was obtained. This is a composite of all the yields that were reported to the Foundation.

Most of the work with the HINN soybean has been in the irrigation belt, but some very good reports on this variety have come to the Foundation from dryland farmers. Shelton Nunnelly, farming 5 miles northwest of Wellington, harvested 16 bushels of HINN from dryland planted on June 2. After rain fell in June, no rain was received until September. Of this crop, Nunnelly also planted some irrigated land to the HINN and reported a yield of 35 bushels per acre. He said, "It's a pretty good dryland variety. I believe that they did very well considering the season. In a normal year, I believe that the HINN will do even better on dryland."

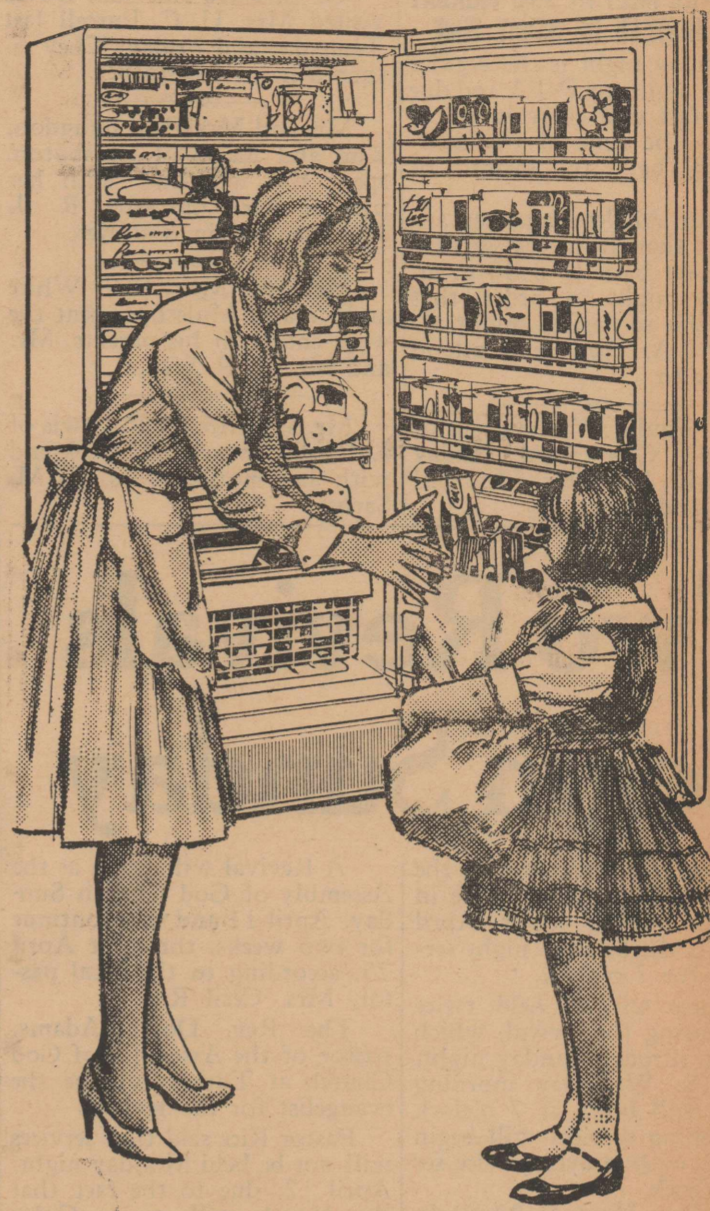

"They're a pretty good bean." So said R. S. Francy who grew some of the HINN soybeans on his place southwest of Happy. "The neighbors had some of the Hill soybeans, and they had mostly two beans to the pod. My HINN had three. This neighbor was disappointed in his yield last year and plans to plant some of the HINN this year."

Francy's HINN beans yielded 40 bushels per acre in 1964 on two irrigations and received one two inch rain after pod set. Some of the growers reported high yields of over 50 bushels per acre and the yields ranged down to 16 bushels grown on dryland. In general, the HINN out produced all standard varieties by from 3 to 8 bushels per acre. During harvest time, most receiving points were paying points were paying around $2.50 per bushel. At an increase of 3 bushels, this would mean $7.50 per acre extra income to the farmer.

THE QUITAQUE TRIBUNE — THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1965

At this time, the High Plains Research Foundation has a good supply of Foundation quality HINN soybeans on hand for any of the farmers wishing to plant some for the coming crop year. For more information on how to obtain planting seed of the HINN soybean contact Jack Werner, High Plains Research Foundation, Drawer 2200, Plainview, Texas.

NEWS from the High Plains Research Foundation

Many area farmers are watching with interest the development of soybeans as an additional crop that can be grown on the Plains of Texas. At this time, Texas stands twenty-third in the nation in acres devoted to soybean production. However, at the same time the state of Texas leads the nation in average bushels yield with 28 bushels of beans per acre in 1964. About two-thirds of the total world production of soybeans is in the U. S. A.

During the crop year of 1964, Texas had only 63,000 acres of land planted to soybeans. Most of the available land is planted with either cotton or grain sorghum, but each year soybeans gain some in popularity.

Due to the unusually dry year in 1964, the yields on all varieties of soybeans were down. In most years, there is some supplemental rainfall to help in crop production.

1965 will see an increase for the nation of over 2 million acres of soybeans that have been

CAPROCK ASSOCIATION W. M. U. MEETS AT FLOMOT CHURCH

The Caprock Baptist Association W.M.U. met with the Flomot Baptist Church on Friday, April 2 for their Quarterly meeting and Prayer Retreat.

Eighty persons assembled at 10:00 a. m. for worship in song, prayer, testimonies and a challenging sermon by the Rev. Shelby Bishop of Afton. A covered dish lunch was served at 1 o'clock in Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. W. B. Allen of Crosbyton, the W. M. U. President, presided with Mrs. Harold Trull leading the singing. Mrs. Franklin Swanner of Plainview led the Bible Study; Mrs. Jack Sims presented the Calendar of Prayer and Devotional; and Mrs. John Scott's subject was, "What Spiritual life development has meant to my life."

Testimonies on prayer were presented by Mmes. Scudder, Jeffrey, L. B. Turner, Mabray and Henry Heck of Plainview.

The sermon by the Rev. Bishop was preceded by a special song, "Go, Send I You" by Mrs. Trull.

Those who did not attend the meeting missed a blessing.

"Don't overload circuits if you want to avoid blown fuses," caution 4-H Club members engaged in electric projects. They point out that the fuse box is the "heart" of the electric system and should be given proper care.

Never use a higher rated fuse than recommended or substitute something else which will keep the fuse from functioning properly, 4-H'ers warn. They regularly check electric circuits to guard against overloading—a frequent result from using more and more electrical equipment in the home and on the farm.

For 30 years the national 4-H Electric program has sparked millions of boys and girls to undertake a wide variety of projects. After learning the fundamentals of electrical energy and its place in modern living, they engage in projects that range from simple jobs like repairing cords to servicing motors, appliances and assisting with wiring and lighting surveys.

In recent years electronic devices including robots, radios and hi-fi sets have been constructed by club members. Participation in the program has enriched their knowledge and given comfort to their families as well, club leaders report. The work is supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Sponsor of the program for the last three decades is the Westinghouse Electric Corporation. Members who complete the best projects receive recognition awards consisting of gold-filled medals, a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress and a chance to compete for six $500 educational scholarships.

Local electric power suppliers also strongly support the program through recognition, technical assistance and teaching aids.

Any student who is interested in participating in the tryouts is welcome to attend. Each boy will be responsible for furnishing all of his own personal equipment.

The tryouts will be conducted in three areas: (1) Test on fundamentals; (2) Defensive ability; (3) Team play. The entire schedule will be under the supervision of Lawrence Overcast, the new basketball coach who was hired last week following the resignation of Billy White.

Mr. Overcast has produced six district championships during his coaching career and has an impressive win record. He has coached the past three years at Miami and the previous five years at Canadian, Quail and Vega. He attended Samnorwood Public Schools, Clarendon College, and earned his B. S. degree in Physical Education from West Texas State University. Mr. Overcast is married and has two children. He will assume his fulltime duties at the college on June 1st.

GOVERNMENT VERSUS THE GOVERNED

The basic right of private ownership of property is being seriously challenged. The method being used affects only a few people at a time, hence the subject has received little publicity. It is the exercise of the right of eminent domain by the Federal government. Eminent domain has been defined by the Supreme Court as "the right or power to take private property for public use." More precisely, it is the right of the nation or the State or the sovereign power, or of those to whom the power has been lawfully delegated, to condemn private property for public use, and to appropriate the ownership and possession of such property for such use on paying the owner a due compensation to be ascertained according to law. This right or power in the sovereign to take private property is supposedly justified on the existence of a common necessity and interest of a whole community that overrides the basic right of the individual. The exercise of the right of eminent domain by the sovereign is usually and commonly called "condemnation." I was taught in law school that condemnation was a harsh procedure because it was the action of the all-powerful government taking property from a private citizen without his consent. It is true that the private citizen is entitled to just compensation; however, the owner of the property might not want to sell it for any purpose. Since such action by the government was unusual and harsh, it was generally taught that there must be a present need for the use of the property for public purposes; a present need or necessity that completely overshadowed the rights of the individual owner.

In recent years there has been a marked change in the thinking of government officials on this subject. A school of thought has developed on the theory that "anticipated" needs of the government should be ample justification for taking private property from a private citizen. In other words, if government officials think that government might need some land for highways, reservoirs, building sites, recreation purposes, military establishments, or any other purposes in the future, condemnation proceedings would be justified to take property and hold it in government until a need arose. This is in direct conflict with the basic proposition that there must be a present public need and necessity for the property. However, this conflict does not deter the government-minded bureaucrats, many of whom have been raised in government by forebears who were in government, and have never had to meet a payroll or past due rent in their lives. An excellent example of the wrongs that can occur under such thinking took place within the shadow of the Capital. Some years ago government officials decided that a new airport site was needed near Washington. They chose what was called "The Burke Site" in northern Virginia near the Potomac River and very close to the Capital. They condemned this land, ran landowners off the land whose families had occupied it for 200 years. This property was then held by the government without being used for airport purposes or any other purpose. It was subsequently determined that a grave mistake had been made and an airport could not be properly located at this site. The government officials then moved further up the Potomac and chose a place near Chantilly, Virginia (which is the present location of Dulles International Airport). They started condemnation proceedings against the landowners in that area. Some of the landowners at the Chantilly site were the identical landowners who had been kicked off their land at the Burke site. They told the government that they would be most pleased to trade their Chantilly land to the government for the land that had been taken away from them at Burke, or that they would repurchase the land at Burke from which they had been ejected at the same price that they had been paid. The government officials advised them that this could not be done, even though the Burke site had never been used for the purpose for which it had been condemned. These citizens, who were being ejected from land which they owned as private owners twice in few short years by their own government, were told by government officials that the land at the Burke site had increased in value due to the expansion of the city of Washington and its environs, and that if they wanted their former homes it would be necessary that they pay the Federal government a profit. Several of us in the Congress tried to correct this situation but we were overruled. We are presently undertaking another movement to put a stop to Federal bureaucracy trampling on the rights of individual citizens in this matter. We hope to be successful this time.
