CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS' WASHINGTON REPORT

LAKE MEREDITH RECREATION PLAN

I have received from the National Park Service its proposed recreation facilities development plan for Lake Meredith. The report presents Park Service recommendations for spending $1.1 million authorized by the Rogers Bill passed in 1963 to insure proper recreation development at the reservoir. The plan will be reviewed by the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, with special attention to be given by my Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation, which has initial legislative jurisdiction over Federal reclamation projects such as that on the Canadian River. Construction will begin after changes, if any, are made following committee review and contracts are let.

Now, construction is completed or underway on projects costing $790,000. This was the amount authorized several years ago for access roads, boat ramps, and other projects to insure adequate access and accommodation of the public for fish and wildlife use of the reservoir. The $1.1 million total provided by my bill enacted last year will provide supplemental facilities.

The National Park Service report presents in detail its plan for developing the eight designated shoreline sites—Sanford-Yake, Blue West, Fritch Fortress, Alibates, McBride, Plum Creek, Bugbee, and Blue East. Work under the fish and wildlife authorization has begun at the first six of these areas; the new plan provides for completing the developments as well as providing initial developments at Bugbee and Blue East, both of which are located on the north shore of the reservoir not far from Sanford Dam.

Meanwhile, in Washington and Santa Fe offices of the Park Service a prospectus is being prepared for mailing to prospective concessioners who would make private enterprise investments in facilities at the reservoir. The bid invitations, I understand, will be ready to go out sometime this fall. The suggested concessioner program at Lake Meredith includes overnight accommodations; meal services; grocery or general store operations to provide camping, picnicking, fishing, boating, and sporting goods; souvenir or curio shops; transportation, boat rentals and sales; operation of mechanical boat-launching facilities; marina or dock operations; marine fueling stations, automobile and boat repair services, trailer park facilities—and, perhaps, a helicopter and small plane landing strip. Park service policy is not to suggest concessioner developments inside recreation areas when similar accommodations or services exist or can be developed by private enterprise outside the area but in the vicinity.

As an example of proposed development, the Park Service proposal affecting Sanford-Yake would be of special interest because this area is now perhaps most familiar of all to the general public. Thousands of persons have viewed the dam in stages of construction from the Sanford-Yake vista point high above the river bed. In this area, $173,000 is being spent from the fish and wildlife allocation and $155,000 is the proposed expenditure from the $1.1 authorization for roads, launching ramp, parking areas, water supply, sanitary facilities, picnic areas and other projects. An interpretative shelter (presumably containing a map of the project area and explanatory information) and extensive picnicking facilities are planned for the former overlook. The concession plan, when completed, may call for a concessioner-operated marina there. Another of the recreation sites already familiar to thousands of Panhandle residents is Fritch Fortress, also on the reservoir's south shore, a high peninsula providing a spectacular view of the lake and surrounding land. In addition to roads; launch facilities, picnic areas and so forth mentioned in the report, the Park Service expresses the view that Fritch Fortress would be well suited for "a concessioner lodge or similar development which will attract visitors who want the comforts and convenience of luxurious facilities and who expect to pay for extra services." The report notes also that a marina, a golf course, and landing strip would be other likely concessioner projects.

As many of you know, Congressional action was completed in recent days on my bill to name the reservoir "Lake Meredith" in memory of that great conservationist and Borger citizen, A. A. Meredith, and to establish the Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument in conjunction with the Alibates recreation area.

Guests in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Bill Curry for the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Slayton, Lazbuddie, who spent Sat. and Sunday, Sunday evening Mrs. Curry's mother, Mrs. Jewel Breland of Olton and her sister, Mrs. Charles Brothers and her husband and children of Clovis, arrived for a visit.

ROGERS SAYS ALIBATES BILL NEXT STEP IN NATIONAL PROJECT

Washington, D. C. (Spl)—Congressman Walter Rogers said today that it is his hope that the Congress can approve before the end of the current session an appropriation to begin development of the Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument.

"Now that the President has signed into law my bill creating the Alibates Monument, I am going to exert every effort to see that development of the site can begin as soon as possible," Congressman Rogers said.

The Alibates National Monument, including the flint quarries used by the American Indians for more than 12,000 years and the ruins of the pueblos inhabited during the 12th and 13th centuries, is the first national monument to be designated for Texas.

"We in the Panhandle can take special pride in the fact that the Alibates Monument is a first for our state," Congressman Rogers said. "Designation as a national monument is the highest classification that can be placed on a historical site."

At the same time the President signed the Rogers Bill creating the new national monument, he signed another Rogers measure naming the Canadian River reservoir "Lake Meredith."

"For many months, Panhandle residents have been calling the reservoir 'Lake Meredith' in honor of the late A. A. Meredith of Borger. Now the name is official," Congressman Rogers said.

The Alibates National Monument will be located near the south rim of Lake Meredith and adjacent to the Alibates recreation area, one of the major recreation areas to be developed by the National Park Service at the reservoirs.

In the meanwhile, Congressman Rogers has scheduled sessions of his Irrigation and Reclamation Subcommittee for Thursday and Friday of this week to consider the proposed construction of a third powerplant at the Grand Coulee Dam, in Washington. He will also attend sessions of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce considering legislation affecting jurisdiction of the National Railroad Adjustment Board.

The Full House of Representatives will consider, as its major item of business, Foreign Aid appropriations, Congressman Rogers said.

L. W. PRENTISS, Executive Vice President
AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

The Beauty of Highways

Highway beautification—subject much in the news these days—consists of two related but distinctly different kinds of things. One category of things includes those measures which are taken to give aesthetic appeal to the highway itself. The other category might be called "roadside beautification," since it consists of steps taken to make the strips of land along the highways more attractive.

The beautification program proposed by President Johnson is essentially a roadside beautification program. It is concerned with restrictions on outdoor advertising and junkyards and with the preservation and restoration of scenic features along our highways. The President has also proposed increased emphasis on the construction of roads leading to recreational areas and traversing areas of special scenic appeal.

Legislation along the lines proposed by the President would strengthen the power of the State highway departments to improve the appearance of roadside areas. As a general rule, the highway departments have had little authority to deal with conditions outside the highway right-of-way.

Within the limits of the right-of-way, of course, the highway departments already have a great deal of authority with regard to the design of highways, and much has been done to make the highways attractive to the eye.

Aesthetic highway design is particularly noticeable in areas where the terrain is hilly or rolling, and where there is sufficient available land to permit median strips of generous and varying widths. In such areas, the two roadways of multilane highways are often separated by natural park-like areas, with groves of trees and other indigenous growth, outcroppings of rock and even small streams.

This kind of highway design is not only appealing to the eye but, also often proves to be the most economical design since a roadway which conforms to the natural contours of the land usually can be built with a minimum of excavation.

In some States, the highway departments, working with the conservation authorities, have built highways which, as a secondary function, dam small streams. The resulting ponds and small lakes have contributed to the attractiveness of the landscape.

The provision of eye-appealing highways is an important factor in reducing the nervous strain of driving. It has been found that drivers who are tense or tired are especially accident-prone. Hence, there is a very practical reason—improve safety—for the interest which highway authorities are showing in making highways and roadside areas as attractive as possible.

PROPER LIGHTING FOR STUDY

Correct lighting for reading and study doesn't just happen. It's planned. Back-to-school should be backed up by lighted study areas planned to protect the student's eyes. Vision specialists caution: "You have only one pair of eyes.

Take care of them." Ask a WTU representative to advise you about proper lighting for your family's needs. Then visit your local store where lighting equipment is sold and make your selections.

NEWS from the High Plains Research Foundation

Farmers the world over are looking for ways to make higher yields in crops, and at the same time, cut the cost. The High Plains Research Foundation, Halfway, Tex., has been working on a system to help solve this problem.

In 1958, the Foundation began research in what was called "skip-row interplanting" now known as High Plains Foundation Farming System. This method of planting two rows of cotton, skip one row and plant two rows of another crop, not only boosts yields and quality of crops but also cuts water needs by 50 percent.

One 160-acre field of skip-row interplanted cotton and grain sorghum required only 7 (seven) days to irrigate. Formerly, this same field planted in the conventional method took 21 days to irrigate. Reason? In the High Plains Foundation Farming System (skip - row interplanted) pioneered by the Foundation, only the rows planted are irrigated. In this method, irrigation water is allowed to run between the planted rows.

Water conservation is not the only advantage of this farming. Yields are boosted in both of the crops grown as in the quality. The yield increase of the crops by far off-set having one blank row every third row.

Research at the High Plains Research Foundation has also shown that blow-outs in early spring are greatly reduced by using this system. When planting two rows of cotton, skip one row, two rows of grain sorghum, skip one row and so on across the field, blowing out and other wind damage is greatly reduced and in some instances completely stopped.

Foundation personnel have found thru research that these are some of the advantages of skip-row planting: (1) raise production significantly, and therefore, farm income; (2) conserve irrigation water and speed irrigation; (3) lower production costs; (4) make the best possible use of available crop land; (5) improve cotton quality; (6) maintain organic matter level of the soil; and (7) reduce wind and sand damage to seedling cotton.

The grain sorghum and other crops interplanted with cotton help to cut down on the wind action blowing around the cotton. This, along with the blank row, helps to keep the soil temperature up for better cotton fiber development.

Fiber development, or cellulose synthesis, has been found by scientists to be related to the degree and hours that air temperature is above 70 degrees F. This temperature can be maintained longer at night and earlier in the morning due to the blank row. By irrigating only between the planted row and not the fallow rows, a higher temperature is maintained for better fiber development.

Under research at the Foundation, comparisons of cotton yield and quality of High Plains Foundation Farming System and conventional planted cotton resulted in a yield of 1,065 pounds of lint per acre in the skip-row while at the same time the conventional cotton yielded only 769 pounds of lint per acre. Micronaire on the skip-row was 4.16 and on the other 3.62, while the percent of white cotton harvested on the skip-row was 73.0 and the white cotton on the conventional was 1.8 percent.

The high yield on the skip-row was obtained by using only 50 percent of the irrigation water needed to make the solid planted crop.

On the Texas Plains, the miracle of irrigation has made it possible for this area to produce over one-half of the cotton grown in the state. Texas leads the nation in production of cotton for these reasons: good land, advanced farming methods and techniques and irrigation.

Cotton is grown on 1.6 million irrigated acres in the Plains which is 16 percent of all the cotton grown in the nation. Here also is grown 40 percent of the nation's grain sorghum on 1.9 million acres of highly irrigated land.

This production is possible as long as the underground water supply lasts. Skip - row interplanting is one way that the life of the irrigated Plains can be extended while the farmer still makes a good return from his crops.

This year, the High Plains Research Foundation has selected some 25 different farmers throughout the Plains of Texas to set up demonstration plots of the High Plains Foundation Farming System and the HINN soybean. These plots, under the direction of Loyd Langford, Associate Agronomist for the Foundation, are located from the top of the state at Dalhart and Perryton to the north to Seminole on the south, to Farwell on the west, and Ralls on the east.

On each of these farm sites, research will be taken to determine "on farm" conditions the advantages in yield increase and reduction of irrigation water necessary to make a good crop.

For further information, contact the High Plains Research Foundation, Post Office Drawer 2200, Plainview, Texas.
