THE HIGH ROAD

L. W. PRENTISS, Executive Vice President
AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

Stretching Road-Building Budgets

The great majority of highway construction projects in the United States are built by private business organizations working under contracts awarded through competitive bidding. Plans and specifications developed for each project describe the work to be accomplished and the standards of quality that must be met. In the case of Federal-aid construction these specifications must meet certain national criteria defined by the Bureau of Public Roads. Construction engineers employed by the highway department inspect every step to make sure that the road is built in the way the design engineers intended.

Highway contracting is a highly competitive business. The low bidder must figure his costs very carefully in order to arrive at a price lower than his competitors. And, because any inefficiency in a contractor's operation increases his costs, the low bidder is likely to be the one best equipped and otherwise best qualified to handle a particular job.

Not all highway construction is done by the Contract Method. Sometimes a highway department uses its own employees to do a job. This happens, usually, when the job is a very small one or a case of emergency construction that has to be accomplished so quickly that the highway department does not want to follow the usual procedure of preparing plans and specifications and advertising for bids.

However, progressive highway departments are finding ways to extend the use of the Contract Method to types of work for which it formerly seemed inappropriate. For example, many cities perform maintenance work by contract, with payment on a unit price basis.

One of the most striking examples of this extension is that of using highway contractors' forces for snow removal. This not only breaks through the tradition that the Contract Method is suitable for construction but not for maintenance, but also demolishes the myth that emergency work cannot be done feasibly by contract. (In this case, of course, the emergency is anticipated, and contracts are awarded on a contingency basis.)

As a highway department increases its reliance on the Contract Method, it is able to effect long-range economies by reducing its payroll and its fleet of equipment.

Through construction by the free enterprise system of competitive bidding for contracts, this country has secured the finest highway systems in the world.

LIQUOR INTERESTS LOOK TO INCREASE IN SALES

"Though the liquor interests piously pretend to be interested in the public welfare, they're actually looking toward an increase in liquor sales of 8 million gallons a year in Texas," Rev. Albert Tucker, Executive Director of Texas Alcohol Narcotics Education, (TANE) said recently.

Advocates of open saloons say that if one could get one or two drinks he wouldn't buy a bottle, therefore total consumption of alcohol would be decreased. "This is just propoganda for the gullible," Rev. Tucker said.

"What they are really after is an 80 percent increase in sales. Right now, one gallon of alcohol is consumed each year in Texas for every man, woman and child. In states with liquor by the drink it is 80 per cent more. If the liquor interests get their way in Texas, their per capita consumption could be increased to 1.8 gallons a year, or an additional 8,000,000 gallons of alcohol a year," Rev. Tucker said.

They're not interested in decreasing sales. They're interested in increasing sales. In the state of Iowa, total sales of liquor are increasing at the rate of approximately 17 per cent a year. They legalized liquor by the drink in 1963. They'd like to do the same in Texas," Rev. Tucker said. (Iowa's rate of increase prior to the new law was 3.8 per cent.)

"With that increase in sales, we can expect auto fatalities to increase at least by 20 per cent; the number of alcoholics will increase by 50 per cent; there will be more early deaths due to disease; more broken homes will result; the evils accompanying increased consumption of alcohol will compound.

All of these will result in higher insurance rates, higher police and court costs—it will hurt everybody," Rev. Tucker said.

TAKE A SLICE OF HAM...

There is no end to the good things you can prepare with ham steaks. Now, any Southerner knows how well the smoky flavor of ham goes with the sweet smoothness of yams. Here's a dish that combines the two. Thin slices of tasty pasteurized process cheese spread are arranged on top of ham steaks. Then the cheese is topped with a savory mixture of yams, saltine cracker crumbs, onion, and herbs. The whole dish is baked to warm the ham, melt the cheese, and brown the yam topping. Mmmmm... happy eating!!!

SOUTHERN HAM STEAKS

 - ½ teaspoon tarragon leaves
 - ¼ teaspoon thyme leaves

 - 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
 - ¼ cup butter or margarine
 - ¼ pound Velveeta Pasteurized Process Cheese Spread, thinly sliced
 - 2 ham steaks, cut ¾ inch thick (about 12 ounces each)
- Combine first 4 ingredients. Sauté onion in butter or margarine until tender. Add to dry ingredients. Mix lightly. Arrange cheese slices over ham steaks. Top with sweet potato mixture. Place in a baking dish. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with a green salad. Makes 4 servings.

A CLEAN BREAK WITH THE PAST

"I would have nothing but an electric Gold Medallion home," says Mrs. Bob Corkins of Alpine, Texas. "I like the low operating cost," says Mr. Corkins who thinks the electric bill a good value. Kathy, age 5, and Greg, age 10 months, smile contentedly, and that means they like the comfort of total-electric living.

The Corkins' Early American style home has 7 rooms, 2 baths, and a covered patio—2,000 square feet of living space. The only fuel used for all purposes is electricity. It operates a 4-ton heat pump with 15 KW Auxiliary Strip heating, 4-ton refrigerated air conditioner, electric range, washer, dryer, disposal, dishwasher, refrigerator, freezer, two 1.3 KW bath heaters, and Medallion light for living, yet operating cost averages only $38.03 per month—22.8¢ per square foot per year!

The Corkins have been living better electrically since 1959 and are well pleased with it all. "I love electric cooking," Mrs. Corkins says. "It's much better, faster and cleaner." The Corkins especially like the even heat throughout the house, and let the temperature stay at 70° year-round.

Would you like to live in total-electric comfort? Then see your electric contractor or visit WTU.

NEWS from the High Plains Research Foundation

"A word to the wise should be sufficient." It is evident that West Texas in 1967 is going to see a considerable increase in acreage planted to soybeans. The big question in every farmer's mind is, "What variety am I going to plant and where am I going to get the seed?"

There are a number of varieties considered acceptable for this area. The variety chosen by an individual will have to depend on his own situation. There are five varieties which seem best adapted to the West Texas soils and climate. The HINN, HILL, and LEE varieties are full season varieties with high yield potential. The PATTERSON and CLARK 63 varieties are short season types. There are many farms where the latter will fit into a farmer's planning better than the full-season varieties.

Regardless of the variety chosen, one extremely important fact must be taken into consideration. Soybeans are no longer a "step-child crop." If you are going to expect a profitable yield from your 1967 crop, the germination of the seed you planted must be known. Normal recommendations on seeding rate could result in a severe loss in yield if germination of the planted seed happened to be quite low. Due to a set of unfavorable weather conditions, many fields of soybeans grown in 1966 for seed have low germination. Combine damage at harvest or rough handling can crack the seed coat and reduce germination of soybeans. Immature seed at time of killing frost can also contribute to low germination. It is strongly recommended that registered or certified seed be obtained if possible. If a farmer is going to use non-certified seed, a germination test should be made to know how much seed will be necessary for a good stand. Once more, if you are planning on a good soybean crop in 1967, the first rule of success is good quality planting seed.

Boating Tips...

DISTRESS SIGNALS

With today's finely engineered motors and modern boats there's seldom need to summon aid while afloat. Statistics show that the major reason for distress cries is simply "running out of gas." If you ever find yourself in this embarrassing position, here's how to attract attention, say the Mercury outboard people. If other boats are in sight, stand with your arms spread and move them up and down like a bird's wings. Or you can attach a white shirt to a fish-pole or oar and wave it back and forth above your head. Some other ways are: signal "SOS" (three dots, three dashes, three dots) with a flashlight; activate one of the smoke flares designed for just such situations; continuously sound any fog-signal apparatus; raise a square flag with a ball or something resembling a ball underneath it; carry emergency flares with you and set one off whenever anyone approaches in a boat or airplane. Better still, carry enough gas.

BAPTIST W. M. S. NOTES —
The W.M.S. of First Baptist Church met Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with 14 members present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. J. Harmon. Mrs. O. R. Stark led the ladies in singing "The Woman's Hymn." Mrs. Sid Bogan presented the opening devotional for the Call to Prayer, followed by prayer led by Mrs. Leon McCracken, praying for the missionaries who have birthdays, or have requested prayers.

FAO Issues Blunt Warning

Famine Threat Growing

Most people know the term "population explosion." But few understand the awesome warning behind the words. A man who does understand is Dr. B. R. Sen of India, Director-General of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. In a recent New York address, he spelled it out: the world is producing people faster than food.

"The enormous increase, both actual and potential, in the world's population, has created a situation of immense gravity and danger for mankind. At present about one half of the world's people are underfed or badly fed, or both."

For the rich countries of North America and Europe food is no problem. Dr. Sen said. "But for the developing countries the threat of hunger is always present, and the spectre of famins just waits around the corner. It is not that these nations have failed to step up their output of food. They have achieved almost exactly the same rate of increase between the pre-war years and 1965 as the more advanced countries. But per capita production has fallen because of the population explosion."

The earth already houses above three billion people and this number will double within 20 years. If the peoples of Africa, Asia and Latin America are to receive an adequate diet, by the year 2000 their food production must be increased five-fold.

Despite its dimensions, Dr. Sen said the situation was far from hopeless.

Many scientists believe that rational exploitation of the earth's prodigious resources could usher in an era of plenty for all men. The oceans, for instance, cover 71.7 per cent of the globe but supply scarcely 1.5 per cent of man's food, which certainly could be increased. Chemists, using inorganic substances, can effect a synthesis of most elements essential to human nutrition. Proteins can be extracted from

But these are hopes for the future and the immediate problem of feeding hungry people is already upon us. In the past food stocks from rich nations like Canada and the United States helped save the day.

"But these stocks have recently fallen dramatically, and it is therefore all the more essential for the developing countries to increase their own production," he said. Yet to do this they need fertilizers, pesticides, farm equipment, which cost money they don't have.

"The only way in which they can be supplied, therefore, is through a new international program of assistance . . . a massive program of at least $500 million per annum."

Dr. Sen welcomed the United States' proposal for the creation of a World Food Reserve of 10 million tons.

"The time has surely come for a more equitable sharing of the burden of food aid as part of an expanding total flow of aid. Some countries will have actual surpluses to contribute, others have the potential capacity to increase supplies, while still others could make cash and services available. All these contributions are needed."

The FAO head warned that only greater efforts by both rich and poor nations could achieve "a stable balance between our numbers and our needs."

Mrs. O. R. Stark, Jr. read the minutes of the past two meetings, and also presented the treasurer's report.

After several items of business were discussed, the meeting was turned to program chairman, Mrs. Wilburn Leeper.

Each lady present was given a question to read and a panel, composed of Mrs. Leeper and Mrs. Jack Cheatham, answered each of the questions. It made a very interesting program.

Mrs. Bill Curry led the closing prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Grundy of Lamesa spent Saturday night with Mrs. Jess Grundy.
