She has been hired to teach next year in the Silverton system.

In Briscoe County, Cook will work with Extension agent Mrs. Sidney E. Hall in conducting youth and adult education programs.

Good Rain Falls Here

SIXTIETH SESSION OF TEXAS LEGISLATURE IS OVER

AUSTIN — Senator Jack Hightower, along with fellow lawmakers of the 181-member State Legislature, returned home Wednesday following adjournment of the 60th session.

The Senator had the distinction Monday of pushing thru the Senate the final bill of the session, a proposal relieving county assessors and tax collectors from liability for civil damages in exercise of official duties.

House and Senate members worked through the final day polishing off last minute work before the 12:00 p. m. deadline climaxing the 140-day biennium work session.

Legislators will be called back to the Capitol sometime next year, however, to appropriate funds for state spending in 1969, Senator Hightower said.

Governor John B. Connally is expected to the special session early in the year, possibly in May after the state primaries.

Legislators last week cleared the way for adjournment by passing the one-year, $446.8 million general spending bill to finance state government in 1968.

The one-year spending measure was proposed by Governor Connally to eliminate the need for new taxes his year. Funds for the second half of the biennium will be appropriated at the special session.

Senate and House members also gave approval to a compromise, $48 million teacher pay raise providing an average increase of about $550 a year for state teachers.

The teacher pay raise was unanimously approved by both houses.

Also included in the appropriations bill is an overall 14.1 percent raise for state employees, with lower paid workers getting as much as 30 percent.

Legislators boosted spending on medical care for welfare recipients to $25.7 million to provide basic health care services under the federally-backed "medicaid" program. Overall increase of education funds is 28 percent.

The total appropriations bill is the largest in the state's history for one-year spending.

The last major hurdle before adjournment was cleared when Legislators approved a House redistricting bill designed to comply with the new one man, one vote federal guideline.

Senator Hightower said he was pleased with the work of the Legislature and listed among its major contributions:

- passage of a local option, one per cent city sales tax bill.
- revision of the Code of Criminal Procedure aiding police and public prosecutors in their fight against crime.
- reclamation and conservation programs preserving the state's vital resources.

Senator Hightower was among Senate leaders credited with the defeat of the Governor's liquor-by-the-drink bill. He also worked against the parimutuel betting bill.

The legislature convened January 10.

Mrs. Bud Bailey and Janet attended the Eighth Grade graduation program at Silverton on Thursday morning of last week where their nephew and cousin, Alvin May, was valedictorian of his class. He is the son of the former Ethelyn Bailey.

Good rains have fallen here in this part of the world this week. Amounts have varied but the lowest total in this community was around an inch and a half, with heaviest reports coming from east of Flomot and the Turkey area where more than five inches fell.

The rain started Sunday, with showers also falling on Monday and Tuesday.

The rain gauge in the backyard at the Owens home caught a total of 2.27 inches of the precious moisture. This was the most rain received here in over eight months and forecasters say there is a possibility of more moisture falling in the region Thursday and Friday.

Some light hail fell here in town but no reports of damage here in town have come in. Out west of town, however, J. T. Persons said they had some hail damage to the roof of their home, also flowers and gardens were damaged. Jim Mayfield had just started cutting his wheat and he reports that it was damaged considerably. What he had cut was making about 20 bushels, too.

Farmers will really go to work now as soon as fields as dry enough and a lot of cotton seed and grain will go into the ground the next two weeks. Things are looking up now.

BRISCOE COTTON FARMERS VOTE "NO" IN RECENT REFERENDUM

Briscoe County cotton farmers overwhelmingly voted NO in the cotton allotment transfer referendum held during the week of May 15 thru 19.

This is the third referendum in as many years held on the question of allowing farmers to sell or lease their cotton allotments to individuals who farm in other Texas counties.

The vote this year is as follows: Number voting "yes", 131; Number voting "No", 227. This negative vote on the referendum question again limits cotton farmers in Briscoe County to sell or lease their allotments only to within county farmers. This referendum has no bearing on buying or leasing cotton allotments from surrounding counties who have voted "yes" in one of the last three transfer referendums.

MAJOR WHEAT POLICY MEETING SCHEDULED

R. T. Price, Chairman, Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, today announced that an informal hearing on the 1968 wheat allotment will be held in Amarillo.

The meeting, one of a series being scheduled in wheat-producing areas throughout the nation, will be held on June 7, 1967, in the Holiday Inn, West, 601 W. Amarillo Blvd., Amarillo. A member of the State ASC Committee will preside and the Wheat Program specialist will participate.

A major goal of the meeting will be to get information and suggestions from those in attendance and bring them back to Washington to assist Secretary Freeman in making the 1968 wheat acreage allotment determinations. Although the wheat program is voluntary, farmers who operate most of the wheat land elect to take part in the wheat program and thus assure themselves of full parity price on the wheat they produce for food use in the United States. The program also protects the farmers to some extent against the effects of bad weather.

"A great many factors must be taken into account in establishing acreage and production goals for a major crop like wheat," the Chairman pointed out.

"Such things as projected production and supplies, domestic utilization and export requirements, and reasonable carryover must be considered before final decisions can be made on next year's wheat program."

The Chairman said special invitations are being sent to leading wheat growers and leaders of general farm organizations, as well as representatives of such organizations as wheat producers, elevator and warehouse operators, millers, and other interested producer, marketing and processor groups. In addition area farmers are also invited to attend and participate in these policy meetings.

Similar meetings have been held in other wheat-producing states.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Stone of Lockney spent Tuesday with his cousin, Mrs. B. E. Myers and family.

Mrs. H. T. Bradshaw and Eula Bradshaw of Claude visited Miss Ina and Euna Bradshaw Sunday.

Wisdom for Women Driving Alone

Driving alone isn't dangerous if you exercise intuition and common sense and follow these basic rules: 1. Plan carefully. Drive in a conservatively styled car and conservatively styled clothes so you don't attract unwelcome attention. Doors should be locked from the inside and windows rolled at least part-way up. On a trip use a direct-route travel plan, available from companies like American Oil, so that you stay on main highways. Study it thoroughly before you leave and drive by daylight. 2. Accept only official help. If you're stalled and doubt the dependability of the first offer of assistance, wait for another, keeping the doors locked and saying that help is on the way. Raise the hood to signal help, tying something white to the left-door handle to reinforce the message.

3. Be self-sufficient. Carry needed cash, checkbooks, credit and identification cards to meet expenses and emergencies. 4. On a trip have an arrangement to call home when you reach your destination; if you are delayed there is someone who can take immediate steps to find you and send help.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Persons and Tommy Lee of Tulia; Mr. and Mrs. Amos Persons, of Farmington, N. M. They were dinner guests and that afternoon all of them visited the cemetery. OUR HEALTH

By J. M. Amberson, M.D.

WHAT AN EKG DOES — AND DOESN'T — TELL YOUR DOCTOR

Millions of Americans, including many who have electrocardiograms taken annually as part of their physical checkups, have only the sketchiest understanding of what these tests are all about. Yet this lack of knowledge is necessary, for the basic idea is simple.

High in the upper right chamber of the heart lies a bundle of specialized muscle and nerve cells called the sinus node or pacemaker. From this spot, an electrical impulse darts forth at the beginning of every heart beat. It travels through the heart's two upper chambers — the auricles — where, ignition-like, it sparks the contraction of muscles that force blood down into the ventricles, the pair of larger chambers below. The impulse then passes to the ventricles, where a second contraction occurs. This contraction pumps blood out of the heart to the lungs and other parts of the body. After rest and recharging, the cycle repeats.

of those sections of the heart through which the electricity passes. It can help the doctor to determine, for example, whether a chest pain means a heart attack or something quite different. It can tell him whether murmurs or irregular rhythms are harmless or potentially risky. It can detect certain abnormalities that may predispose a patient to heart trouble and can gauge the rate of the heart's recuperation after a coronary episode or disease.

Another of the EKG's many vital functions is the discovery of "silent" heart attacks, which strike roughly one person in ten. These small but significant coronary incidents pass completely unrecognized by the victim himself, but like other attacks they scar portions of the heart. Thus a "hole" or "de-tour" on an EKG may not only testify that an attack has taken place but helps reveal the size and precise location of the heart tissue starved of blood — critically important information which a physician needs to help prevent another attack.

But the EKG has its limits. The electrical "highways" it monitors may bypass certain areas of the heart where trouble can avoid detection. And tissue whose blood supply is soon to be cut off by a coronary attack may still be a good electrical conductor until the very moment of attack, giving no clue whatsoever that any danger is imminent.

Yet when supplemented by other medical tools — blood tests, X-rays, physical exams, and so on — the EKG is enormously useful.

IS THERE A CURE FOR THE COMMON COLD?

Physicians treat a cold; Nature cures it. Bed rest, liquids and aspirin ease the discomforts of the cold while it runs its course. If sore throat is present, a non-prescription topical anesthetic called Chloraseptic may be sprayed or gargled to bring prompt temporary relief to irritated throat tissue. It is more soothing than salt water.

STARKEY-VAN CLEVE MARRIED IN HOME CEREMONY

put on a pretty face

BY
Aubrey McDonald

The ideal face shape is the perfect oval. Unfortunately, most of us are blessed with facial contours that are round, oblong, triangular, square, diamond or heart-shaped, and with less than exquisite features.

Using the Perfect Oval and dark or light Magic Stick, originated by Fashion Two Twenty, a leading cosmetic house, you can effortlessly create the illusion of an oval face and redesign your features to suit your fancy.

Immediately following application of liquid make-up, hold the Perfect Oval about 18 inches from your face. Close one eye, and look at your reflection in a make-up mirror. Adjust the Perfect Oval so that your chin rests on the bottom of the outline.

All facial areas which extend beyond the oval outline should be subdued with dark Magic Stick.

To lengthen appearance of nose, upper lip or forehead, apply light Magic Stick to the highest points and blend.

To shorten or subdue the nose or hide a double chin, apply dark Magic Stick to the most prominent points and blend.

Giving a longer look to a short face is easily accomplished by applying a broad line of light Magic Stick from the forehead, down the nose to the chin. Just blend in the Magic Stick and a leaner, lovelier face is yours.

If you doubt that these make-up methods really work, experiment by using them on just one side of your face. You'll be amazed at the difference dark and light Magic Stick can make.

With these simple and subtle contouring techniques, any woman can create the optical illusion of a perfectly oval and perfectly beautiful face.

Corned Beef In Oriental Dish

Very clever, the hostess who serves Corned Beef with Celery Cabbage! A dish in the style of the Far East, this one, like many other oriental meat-and-vegetable dishes, is easy to put together and quick in the cooking, with a wealth of flavor and unusual attractiveness. In addition, the meat is ready for instant use the moment the can is opened, so preparation time is cut to the nub.

Canned corned beef needs no special preparation — no precooking, no sizzling, high-heat cooking that characterizes many Chinese dishes, no dicing or cutting up. Flaking with a fork (and this can be done right in the skillet) is all that's required to separate it into pieces just the right size for even distribution throughout the dish. Having been cooked to doneness during processing, it only has to heat through to blend its goodness with the hot cabbage and sauce.

This is an interesting way to use celery cabbage, one of the less familiar but no less delicious vegetables on the market. If celery cabbage is not available, the familiar green cabbage can be used.

Corned Beef and Celery Cabbage

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 head celery cabbage, cut in 1-inch thick slices
- Water
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 1/2 teaspoons soy sauce
- 1 can (12 oz.) corned beef, unchilled
- 1 pimiento, sliced
- Crisp fried noodles (optional)

In hot butter in large skillet, cook onion just until tender. Add washed and drained cabbage, 1 cup water and bouillon cube. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, about 7 minutes or until celery cabbage is almost tender. Combine cornstarch with 2 tablespoons water and soy sauce; stir smooth. Stir into cabbage; cook stirring until thickened.

Add corned beef and flake coarsely; add pimiento; cover and simmer until beef is heated through, about 5 minutes. Serve at once, over crisp fried noodles if you wish.

Makes 6 servings.

Variations On A Theme — Favorite Toll House Cookies

Are you a typical home-maker, cookie-wise? That does not mean what kind of a "cookie" are you. It means how often do you bake cookies and what kind? If you're typical, Toll House (R) Cookies are the kind you bake most often. And you make them at least twice a month. That's the kind of statistic that sets mathematics-minded people to pondering how many times that many cookies would go round the moon monthly. We'd rather eat the cookies than orbit them, but it's easy to see that the figure is, to coin a phrase, astronomical.

Since typical homemakers bake Toll House Cookies so often, a few delicious variations on the theme are in order. It's a simple substitution. Instead of using the nuts, try raisins for Boating Tips...

PORPOISING

This rhythmic up-and-down motion of the bow usually occurs at or near top speed. Porpoising can be eliminated quite simply in most cases, according to the Mercury outboard boating authorities.

First, try moving weights forward, a bit at a time, to see if this helps. Moving the gas tank or anchor, or changing seating positions, may do the job. Next, try experimenting with different motor tilt positions. Sometimes porpoising is caused by deformation of the hull bottom. That portion of the hull on which the boat planes should be a straight line when viewed from the side.

Internal stiffeners can sometimes be installed to straighten out bulges, hooks or warps.

a change, and a nip of grated orange rind, or how about some chopped dates for a Near East twist? Try, enjoy, these flavor variations on America's favorite cookie:

TOLL HOUSE (R) COOKIES (original recipe)

- 3/4 cup butter or margarine
- 6 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 6 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 egg
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon water
- 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted all purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

1 6-oz. package (1 cup) Nestle's Semi-Sweet Chocolate Morsels

Cream together butter and sugars. Beat in egg; add vanilla and water. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. Stir into creamed mixture. Add nuts and semi-sweet chocolate morsels; mix well. Drop by well-rounded half teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes.

YIELD: Approximately 50 cookies.

Variations: Substitute one of the following for the nuts:

Raisins: 1 cup chopped raisins and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel.

Dates: 1 cup chopped dates. Cornflakes: 2 cups cornflakes, uncrushed.

Bake at: 375 degrees F. 8 to 10 minutes.

Hi-Plains Hi-Lights

NEWS from the High Plains Research Foundation

Cotton planted in 40-inch rows had the highest yield and fiber quality in a row-spacing study utilizing three different methods in 1966. The methods used in the High Plains Research Foundation were: Standard 40-inch rows, two rows 10 inches apart on top of 40-inch beds (double - row), and four rows 10 inches apart on top of 40-inch beds (drilled). The data collected for the three systems was as follows:

The standard method yielded 914 lbs., with a staple length of 33/32; micronaire was 3.5; and the U.H.M. was 1.07. The double - row yield was 757; the staple length was 32/32; micronaire, 3.5 and U.H.M. 1.04; the Drilled yield was 619; staple was 31/32; micronaire 3.6; and U.H.M. was 1.03.

A broadcast application of one pint of Treflan per acre was used preplant for weed control. The cotton was irrigated three times; preplant, and at the first - bloom and peak-bloom stages of growth.

Fiber - length, when measured as upper-half mean, showed a definite increase using the standard 40-inch spacing compared to the two other methods.

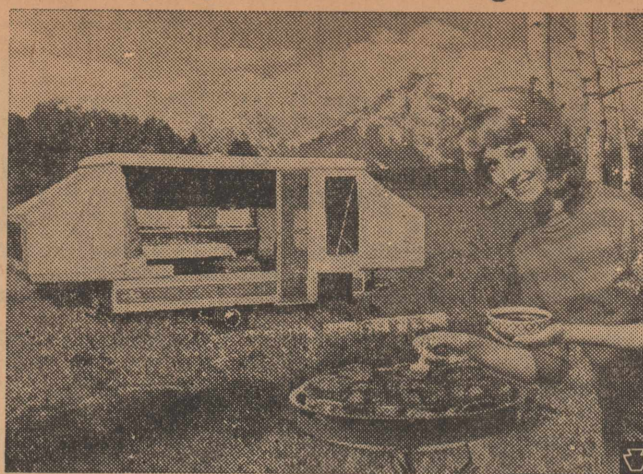

Plant-height was about the same with the 40-inch spacing and the double - row cotton. The drilled cotton was approximately 30% shorter than the plants in the other methods.

Since the advent of more effective herbicides for weed control, close-row planting has become more practical for all crops. This caused the row spacing study on cotton to be installed at the Foundation in 1965 with the idea in mind of the possibility of increasing crop yields.

Full details of the row-spacing study are contained in report Number 221 in the 19-66 Research Report. James Valiant, Soil Scientist, and Dr. Arthur Gohlke, Principal Soil Scientist, conducted the tests on the Research farm at Halfway.

Camping Makes Cooking Fun

Camping is rapidly becoming the nation's vacation pastime. Millions of Americans fill the highways each summer in search of their ideal vacation campsite. Some just use camping as an economical and convenient way of living while seeing the country...

Others camp for the love of getting close to nature. Whatever the reasons for camping, everyone can enjoy camping more now because of the wealth of camping equipment being marketed by companies catering to the campers. Travel trailers and camping trailers of every size and description offer comfortable and often luxurious accommodations to campers who like to "rough it."

Deluxe camping trailers offer the advantages of luxurious trailer living and the compactability of a tent. Nylon screen doors and windows keep the living quarters pleasant and comfortable.

Meal preparation is one of the nicest parts about camping out. One of the most widely used methods is the old reliable Coleman Camp Stove... though campers use everything from the camp fire to ultra modernistic ranges in the fancier trailers. Whatever method of cooking is used, the food seems to taste better when cooked outdoors.

To promote good living in the great outdoors, Kraft Barbecue Sauce is offering complete camping outfits as prizes in the Kraft Barbecue Sauce Sweepstakes that is now being conducted. Twelve Grand Prizes of fully equipped Nimrod Camelot Deluxe camping trailers are being offered as first prizes, 30 Hettrick Aluminum-frame Tents are second prizes while Coleman 2-Burner Camp Stoves, Coleman 2-Mantle Lanterns and Coleman 2-Gallon Picnic Jugs are offered as third, fourth and fifth prizes. Entries must be submitted by July 15, 1967.

Comfortable camping is the new trend. With equipment such as offered in the sweepstakes, everyone can enjoy camping. It is even possible for families with small children to enjoy camping in the country's vast natural resources.

Campsites now dot the country from coast-to-coast. Numerous directories are available that list the thousands of sites to choose from national forests and national parks, state forests and state parks, and numerous private parks and facilities. Our country is blessed with natural beauty and splendor and space for all to enjoy it. More people are becoming aware of the fact and are taking advantage of traveling and camping more each year.

to a roomful of 18-year-olds recently by a sociologist at San Jose State College, their answers revealed mixed emotions relating to adulthood. Disdain and fear of becoming an adult were revealed by the young people, says Mrs. Patsy Yates, Texas A&M University Extension specialist in family life education.

Dr. Mervyn Cadwallader, a sociologist at the California college, said answers he received after hours of discussion may explain the disdain and even fear that many young people display for adulthood.

The young people he questioned thought "an adult is someone who no longer plays, who is no longer playful." While the teen - agers didn't want to remain children, they would like to remain youthful.

long as possible," says Mrs. Yates.

Adults can help relieve this conflict and struggle by introducing the youth they know to the realistic world rather than segregating them into their own world with little exposure to the adult world, says Mrs. Yates.
