The End Of An Era

June 21, 1974 marked the end of a colorful era. It was on this date that Jim Stroup signed the deed that conveyed the remainder of the Stroup Ranch west of Quitaque that had been in possession of his family since 1903. It was a very difficult decision for Jim to make, but advancing years and a plaguing arthritic condition convinced him that it was time to step aside and leave the rigors of ranch life to a younger generation. A storehouse of memories, however, surely must have flooded his mind as he signed the deed to Dale and Dona Smith on that last section of land.

Jim's mother, the late Dora Merrell Stroup, came to the area that is now Floyd County in June of 1888, and his father, O. W. Stroup, came to this country in the spring of 1892. For a few years Mr. Stroup worked for the F Ranch, then he was hired by Charles Goodnight, who offered to help him file on two sections of land along the Quitaque River, just above Quitaque Falls. In 1901 Dora Merrell and O. W. Stroup were married, and they lived in a one-room house on this claim. Later this land was exchanged for two sections west of Quitaque in Briscoe County, and four children, Jim, Gladys, Charles and Jack, were added to the Stroup household. Eventually the Stroup ranch expanded to 4,032 acres, plus an adjacent 640 acres that was owned by Jim and his wife, Myrtle. From 1892 until this date the Stroup name has been synonymous with our early pioneers and the development of the Caprock country. On December 10, 1960, at the age of 87, O. W. Stroup passed away. After Mrs. Stroup's passing in 1969 the family knew it was finally time to dispose of the estate, so in 1971 all but Jim's land was sold in two parcels. E. A. Birdwell purchased all but the home place section, and Gerald and Dale Smith became the new owners of the 640 acres where the old Stroup homestead now stands.

Some great changes have taken place around Quitaque since those early days before the turn of the century. When the Stroups came to this country there were no roads, just lines of endless cow trails. The countryside was a picture of raw native beauty, with bountiful grass and trees visible as far as the eye could see. As people crossed the prairie they sometimes drove one way and then another, and eventually the beaten-out tracks would form make-shift roads. There were three choices of conveyances—wagon, horseback or buggy. After the land was slowly settled, and the town of Quitaque was established, Mrs. Stroup recalled that six wire gates had to be opened between their house and town.

But through it all a family was reared, a town was formed and a country was settled. And the blessings of life far outweighed the trials and hardships, and as Jim settled back in his apartment in town and summed it all up, he was probably speaking not only for himself and the Stroup family, but also for all the other pioneers who did so much to mold our country. He said: "God has been so great, so good, and has blessed me in so many ways during my life. He has blessed me with good health, a strong body, a godly wife, a son, and so many friends and other blessings that I can never count them all."

Purpose of having another Junior Rodeo so soon is that the 4-H boys and girls and their leaders want to say "thank-you" to the Silverton Young Farmers for all the hard work they did to get the new arena ready for the first rodeo. The Young Farmers incurred quite a large debt on the $10,000 project while making it possible for the Briscoe County 4-H to make enough money to clear its debts. Now the 4-Hers and their leaders want to try to help the Young Farmers get out of debt with the proceeds from another rodeo.

The 4-H boys and girls will be coming around to ask you to buy tickets to this rodeo, and when they do please buy generously. You will be donating toward the cost of the arena, so buy a few extra tickets.

All 4-H boys and girls who are selling tickets to the Junior Rodeo should note that all tickets and money must be turned in by noon Friday at the County Agent's Office.

The rodeo ticket stubs will be drawn and $50.00 cash will be given to the lucky ticket holder.

Rodeo events for boys nine to nineteen years old will be bull riding, bronc riding, tie down roping, ribbon roping and open team roping. Girls from nine to nineteen may enter barrel racing, pole bending and goat tying. Entry fees of $15.00 will be charged for each event.

RODEO RULES
Contestants must be ready when their turn comes or stock will be released and no score will be given. Entry will be forfeited if in arena unless called.

Judges decisions are final. Books open June 17 and close June 27 and must be postmarked no later than midnight. Official entry blank must be used with notarized release. Cash or money order must accompany entry. No checks will be accepted. Money orders are to be made payable to Silverton Junior Rodeo.

Proof of age may be required. All prizes will be awarded after the final performance. There will be a 60% entry fee payback in each event.

Team roping will not count toward being named All-Around Cowboy, and team roping can be entered as many times as the contestant desires. The $15.00 entry fee and names of both members of the team must be turned in together. Header and heeler must be indicated.

Quarter horse poles rules will be used. All slack will be run Saturday morning at 10:00.

All-Around designation will be determined by most points in three events, one or more timed event and/or riding event.

Entries may be sent to Ray Thompson Implement Company, Box G, Silverton, Texas 79257.

A liberty bell and lilies. Both symbols of freedom.

Nearly two hundred years ago, a bell proclaimed our release from political domination. The Founding Fathers gave us our liberty, and today we reap the benefits: a man can speak his mind without fear. This is freedom.

The lilies represent another kind of freedom. Synonymous with Easter, they are symbols of the greatest freedom of all, the freedom from death.

With its promise of everlasting life, with its hope for an eternal spring, the Christian message today rings across the land with ever increasing clarity.

Renew your own freedom. Go to church.

Now that you've retired, put your savings to work.

Trade your E Bonds for H Bonds

Bought a lot of Series E Savings Bonds over the years? Well, you probably want to keep your nest egg intact. But retirement is the time when you need some extra income.

Here's how to get that income. Just exchange your E Bonds (in cash value amounts of $500 or more) for Series H Bonds. H Bonds pay out interest every six months by Treasury check mailed right to your door, and at a rate averaging 6% annually when held to 10-year maturity.

Just the thing for retirement, when you need steady income coming in.

You'll get a tax break on the exchange, too

When you exchange your E Bonds for H Bonds, your tax liability on your accumulated E Bond interest continues to be deferred. Right up until the H Bonds are cashed or reach final maturity (there's an optional 10-year extension privilege after original maturity).

The result? You get more for your money in the exchange. And when your H Bonds are redeemed, and you finally pay your deferred E Bond tax, it's at your lower post-retirement rate.

Get income as it's earned

Steady, dependable income. Twice a year. Or, if you prefer, get interest checks every month. Just buy an H Bond a month for six consecutive months. That way, you've got a regular income guaranteed.

Purchase $500 to $5,000

Your banker has exchange (as well as new purchase) applications for H Bonds. At face values of $500, $1,000 and $5,000. There's an annual purchase limit of $10,000 ($20,000 with a co-owner), but this won't apply if you're trading in E Bonds.

H Bonds. A good way to make sure your money won't retire when you do.

Take stock in America.

Buy Series H Bonds—now averaging 6% when held to maturity of 10 years.

Mrs. Thurman Assists Cooke Citizens

(Gainesville—There's a garden in almost every yard in Cooke County this summer, and home gardeners are busy preserving, freezing or canning a wide variety of vegetables, reports one authority who has helped stimulate this interest in food production.

Mrs. Bernice Thurman, County Extension Agent in home economics whose office is in the Gainesville Courthouse, says that food production and preservation are more important to families this year than in the past.

"Homemakers of all ages have taken to gardening, partly as a creative hobby but primarily to reduce costs and enable their families to have a wider variety of fresh and processed vegetables," explains Mrs. Thurman.

The avid interest in gardening has triggered a lot of questions from backyard gardeners for Mrs. Thurman and other County Extension Agents. These questions range from when and how should various vegetables be planted and cared for, to when are the vegetables ready for processing, what is the best method for preserving specific vegetables, when and how does one use a pressure cooker?

"The increase in home gardening may be a boon to the fresh vegetable industry of Texas. Many consumers will be 'turned on' by fresh produce after having experienced vegetable production on a small scale. Consumers also will have a better appreciation for the vegetable industry, and can relate to problems created by the weather, insects and diseases, plus gardening costs and labor required.

"Growers also mention that they have learned a great deal about how to care properly for fresh vegetables to reduce their perishability," says Mrs. Thurman, who points out that commercial vegetable production in Texas last year was valued at about $200 million—third in the nation.

During her 23 years as an educator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Cooke County, Ms. Thurman has provided leadership through many informal educational programs and activities for adults and youth. And during this time, she has earned a number of awards for her innovative educational efforts.

She has offered a series of programs on managing family resources and getting more mileage from the family food budget, which proved popular for homemakers of all ages. Special programs also were provided for older homemakers who needed assistance on food budgets, and for limited income homemakers.

"Special programs on food and budgets have been offered to all interested groups, but we have found that many prefer small group discussions or assistance given on a one-to-one basis," the Texas A&M University System authority reports.

The County Family Living Committee has helped Mrs. Thurman set educational priorities and plan varied programs of interest to young and older homemakers. One of the most popular courses for younger homemakers was on sewing for men, where sport shirts and even suits were among the fashions created.

"A series of workshops relating to problems in clothing construction—with emphasis on sewing polyester knits—received widespread interest and had an excellent attendance," Mrs. Thurman emphasizes. Clothing renovation workshops have received considerable attention, too, she adds.

Weight control and good nutrition workshops—for men and women—are educational efforts that have been popular for a number of years. Meal planning, creative arts and recreation for older citizens are among other popular projects conducted on a county-wide basis.

"We have concentrated on keeping club programs—especially those for Home Demonstration Clubs—ready to meet requests and needs of today's families, and as new concerns emerged, we planned and presented workshops on these subjects," the professional home economist says.

These Home Demonstration Club women, she adds, have volunteered to provide information to families eligible to receive food stamps, and earlier for those who received donated commodities. "They have also referred persons who needed assistance to welfare or church groups who could provide that type of assistance," she says.

Community improvement work is another major interest for the county educator, who has assisted with leadership activities for eight organized communities in Cooke County. "One of my first assignments when I came here was to help organize one of the communities, and I'm extremely proud of all of these top-rated and award winning communities," she explains.

Citizens of the county have worked vigorously to make communities such as Era and Sivelles Bend quite outstanding, and their labors have earned prize money and other awards. "And they have enjoyed creating these top communities," says Mrs. Thurman.

The professional home economist, who began her Extension career in Cooke County in 1951, has announced that she plans to retire on August 31. But she expects to remain busy with many projects, including several with the Committee on Aging that has announced a goal of an Older Citizens Center.

"A building for this purpose has been purchased, but it will require complete remodeling in order to serve as a recreational and social center for older groups. Several local organizations, including the Soroptomist Club, are assisting with the project, and we believe that the goal can be reached," Mrs. Thurman adds.

The petite brunette also will continue active in projects of Whaley United Methodist Church, where she and one other woman served on the building committee.

"We worked for six years to plan and build a new church for our community, and literally built it from the inside out. It was planned for specific needs of the congregation, and we are pleased with the results," she says.

Her innovative teaching methods have won accolades and awards for Mrs. Thurman. She received the Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of Extension Home Economists for her leadership efforts, and the Farm Bureau gave her an award for county leadership, "in appreciation for assisting with organization of the local unit." Other groups have cited her for distinguished service to county citizens.

A native of Denton, she grew up at Quitaque and graduated from high school here. She has a B.S. degree in home economics from Texas Woman's University. Before joining the Extension Service, she was clothing supervisor for six years at the Methodist Home in Waco.

Mrs. Thurman has been an officer in the Texas Home Economics Association, the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists and the TWU Alumnae Association. She also has been active in the American Home Economics Association and Epsilon Sigma Phi, Extension professional organization.

The home economist plans to continue to reside in Gainesville. Her husband, Lonnie, died recently. Members of her immediate family include a sister, Mrs. Bill Woods, her 81-year-old mother, Mrs. Bessie Nall, and a niece, Mrs. Weldon Griffin, all of Quitaque.

Looking back on her career, Mrs. Thurman says that "County Extension work is the most rewarding and challenging work that I am aware of, and to be in a progressive county such as Cooke is indeed fortunate. The 'latch string' at my home will be out to all friends."

Mrs. Tom Joyce Cunningham, District Extension Agent in Dallas, has not yet named a successor for Mrs. Thurman.

Word received here from Leon McCracken, who has been in University Hospital in Lubbock several weeks, is that he is improving. He has had surgery on both hips. His wife reports he will have to be there three more weeks.

At the Western Conference of Public Service Commissions officials outlined the 2600 mile Arctic Gas pipeline system intended to move arctic natural gas from Prudhoe Bay and the Mackenzie Delta to southern markets. All of the Alaskan gas would be provided to U.S. markets on the West Coast, in the Midwest and on the East Coast. Whatever Canadian gas is excess to Canada's needs will also go to U.S. markets. The project is gaining momentum as the energy crisis expands throughout the country, and could supply up to 6% of the total U.S. demand for natural gas by 1980. The $5.7 billion Arctic Gas pipeline between the Arctic and the U.S. border will be the largest construction project in history, as well as the most environmentally studied.

MRS. DANNY STEWART

Stewart - Lane Vows are Exchanged

Miss Laura Lane, route 1, Box 87A, Turkey, Texas 79261, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lane, Turkey, Texas, were united in marriage Wednesday, June 19, 1974 at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The double-ring ceremony was read by minister Jess Browning in the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lane, in Turkey before an archway decorated with orchid carnations and greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal-length gown with sheer white overskirt. It was accented with orchid trim. She wore a large, floppy hat trimmed with lace and orchid trim. She carried a white basket of white carnations. For something old, the bride wore her great-grandmother's wedding band. Her wedding gown was new, she wore an old blue garter, and placed a 1955 penny, representing the year of her birth, in her shoe.

Miss Dodi Lane of Turkey served as maid of honor. Miss Connie Ferguson, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore floor-length dresses accented with white trim, and orchid hats with deep purple ribbon. Stan Price of Quitaque served his cousin as best man. Smitty Lane, cousin of the bride, was usher.

Mrs. Lane chose a blue and orchid floral print fitted, floor-length dress for her daughter's wedding.

Mrs. Stewart wore a floor-length dress of orchid designed with an empire waist. Both mothers carried corsages of white carnations tied with purple ribbons. Wilda Fuston, Sandy Fuston, Paulette Lipscomb and Rita Mullin presented music in song.

A reception was held in the grandparents' home immediately following the ceremony. The table was laid with a white linen cloth, centered with an arrangement in triangular design of orchid carnations and white lilies. The wedding cake was baked as an open Bible accented with white roses and orchid rope design with a purple icing ribbon.

- TRASH COMPACTOR: Remove any accumulated trash.
- TELEVISION SETS: Unplug from electric outlet and disconnect the antenna lead-in cable.
- CLOCK RADIOS, ETC.: Check these and all other items with automatic "On-Off" controls. Disconnect the ones that won't be needed.
- LIGHTING: Be sure that all lights are off except those needed for security, such as: 1) yard light and/or other exterior lighting with automatic controls — on at dusk, off at dawn; 2) portable lamp in living area with automatic control; 3) hall or bathroom light.
- AIR CONDITIONING: Normally, air conditioning should be turned off completely while on summer vacation. However, if there is anything in your home that might suffer heat damage, the thermostat setting could be raised 5 to 10 degrees above normal operation and the unit left on. For comfort, you might have a friend or neighbor turn on the unit the day of your return.

Chef's Touch Ideas for Quick and Easy Cooking

NEW YORK (ED)—Using a basic mix, like a spaghetti sauce one, you can come up with a wide variety of dishes. The prepared sauce makes an interesting basic basting sauce for both chicken and spareribs. Browned pork chops cooked in the sauce take on a different character. Serve these with rice or even noodles.

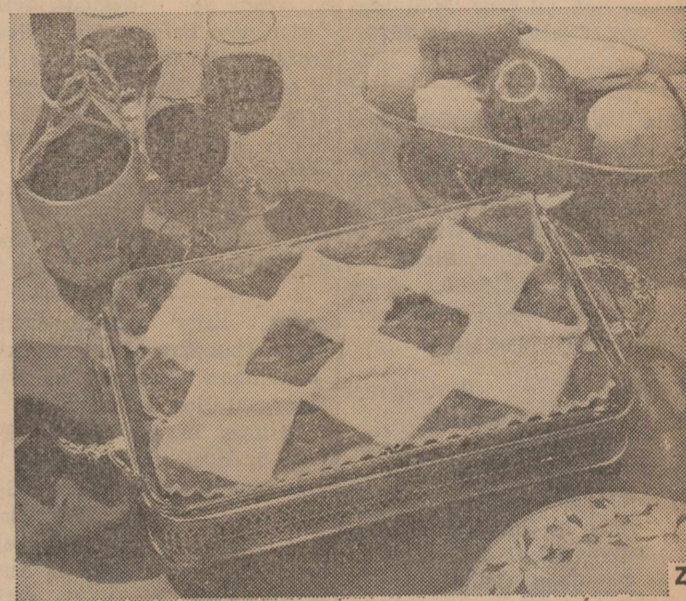

Substitute white wine for part of the water called for when preparing the sauce, and you have an interesting flavor for children. Simply brown chicken pieces, put in casserole and pour the wine-flavored sauce over the top. Cook in the oven until the chicken is done.

And, of course, spaghetti sauce mix may be used to prepare the traditional Italian dishes such as pizza, veal or eggplant Parmesan and lasagne.

Following is a recipe for Lasagne Supper. It's an old recipe with a new twist. Chopped broccoli has been added for color, flavor and extra nutrition. It's also meatless to help the budget. To give yourself a night off from cooking, make two at one time and freeze one before baking it. It will be ready for one of those days you had no time for cooking or just didn't want to cook.

LASAGNE SUPPER

- 9 lasagne noodles (about 1/2 pound)
- 1 1/2-ounce package McCormick/Schilling Spaghetti Sauce Mix, prepared
- 1 pound ricotta cheese
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 teaspoon McCormick/Schilling Italian Seasoning
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon McCormick/Schilling Black Pepper
- 3 cups cooked chopped broccoli

Lasagne is quick and easy when you use prepared spaghetti sauce mix. The packaged mix can also be used to prepare pizza, chicken cacciatore, eggplant Parmesan and, of course, spaghetti. A tossed green salad and vegetable round out the Italian meal.

6 3x3-inch slices American cheese
Cook lasagne noodles following package directions. Arrange 3 of the noodles in a lightly buttered 11 1/4 x 7 1/2 x 1 1/4 inch baking dish. Spread 2/3 cup spaghetti sauce over noodles. Spread ricotta cheese over sauce and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of the Parmesan cheese. Combine Italian seasoning, pepper and salt; sprinkle 1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning mixture over cheese. Arrange 3 of the lasagne noodles to form next layer, spread 2/3 cup of the remaining spaghetti sauce over noodles. Arrange broccoli over sauce and sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons of the Parmesan cheese and 1/2 teaspoon of the remaining Italian seasoning mixture. Top with remaining 3 lasagne noodles; spread with remaining spaghetti sauce and sprinkle with remaining Italian seasoning mixture. Arrange American cheese slices on top and bake in 350°F. oven 40 minutes. Makes 6, 3 1/2 x 3 1/2-inch servings.

Through the Zoo With Eye and Camera

NEW YORK (ED)—A spring photographic safari to your local zoo offers an overwhelming variety of animal subjects as they react happily to being outdoors again. In the spring there is the added attraction of the new and lively young animals.

Whether yours is a big city zoo with acres of building and outdoor runs, or a small, one-building menagerie, a little planning on your part will result in better pictures. As a start, find out when feeding time is scheduled. The animals will be at their most alert when they know their food is coming and, of course, feeding time itself is usually good for pictures. In some cases, such as a sea lion leaping for a fish, the results can be spectacular.

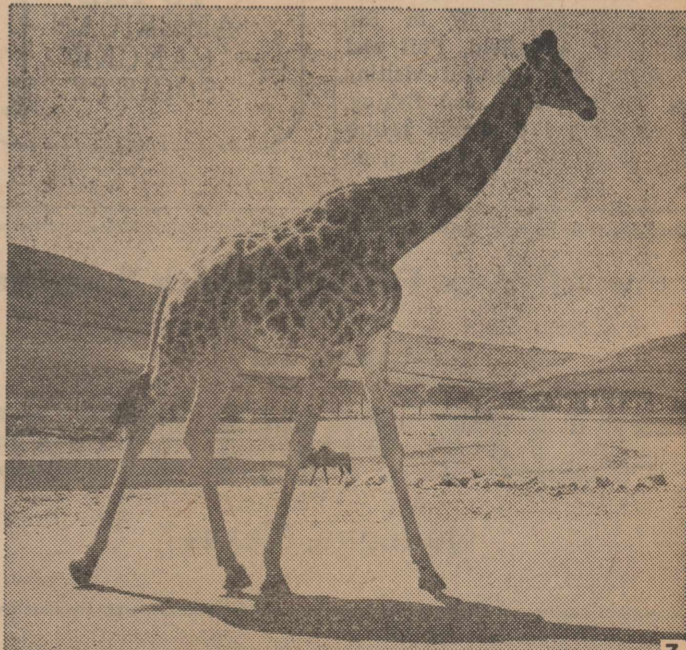

At a large zoo, it might be wise to limit yourself to, say, the monkeys or the big cats. Then just watch. Your patience will be rewarded. While you're waiting, give some thought to lighting angles.

With the animal on one side of the bars or moat and you on the other, it's true you are somewhat limited in your choice of angle. When it's possible, however, try to shoot so that backlighting will heighten the texture of the animal's fur.

Use a camera that won't slow you down and cause you to miss some good shots. An aim-and-shoot Kodak pocket Instamatic 10 camera leaves you free to concentrate on your picture subject.

Now being offered in a Kodak pocket Smile Saver kit, the pocket 10 gives you a choice of vertical or horizontal format for big 3 1/2 by 4 1/2-inch color prints. A handy pouch carrying case and a transparent plastic frame for your two favorite prints are also included in the kit.

Background, as in all pictures, is important in zoo photography. Try to shoot when the background is un-

When the zoo is one you can drive through, you have excellent opportunities to photograph animals on the move in a more-or-less natural setting.

Backlighting emphasizes the texture of the animals fur as well as adding a sense of depth to the picture.

A reclining rhinoceros, in all his wrinkled ugliness, is not only an interesting picture subject, but he's also big enough to fill your camera frame from a safe distance outside his pool.

cluttered and in contrast to the animal, so that he will not blend into it.

Look for the humorous or unusual expression. The worried orangutang, the supercilious camel or the deceptively cuddly ocelot are all good possibilities. Enlarged and mounted as a wall display, they will make a trophy collection to be proud of.

So, start your photo safari planning now by stocking up on film and, come the weekend, head for the zoo.

TEXAS FU PRESIDENT SAYS BUTZ LACKS UNDERSTANDING

In a statement released from the Waco office, Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman charged that Secretary of Agriculture Butz "has little understanding of the severity of the livestock price situation," which Naman says is a direct result of government policy. "Since the depression which has struck the livestock industry was set into motion by government policy, it is the responsibility of government to correct the situation," Naman said.

The head of the Waco based general farm organization charged the Nixon administration with starting the long down-trend of livestock prices by imposing price controls on beef and suspending the import quotas.

"Secretary Butz's program to talk the chain stores into reducing red meat prices along with a token purchase program will have little more than a temporary effect on livestock prices, if any," according to the farm leader.

"If Butz wants to help livestock producers, he must convince the President to rescind the order suspending import quotas until livestock markets begin to react. He must then show his determination to help the producer with a meat purchase program by requiring the processors who contract with the government to supply the meat to pay a fair price to producers for the live animals. A massive meat purchase program without a guarantee that the processors will pay a fair price will provide windfall profits to the packers and not help the producer."

"The Administration should support the proposals in Congress to provide emergency low-cost disaster loans to the cattle feeders. Stocker and feeder cattle are going begging because the feedyards livestock feeders to continue their operations would go a long way toward bolstering the prices on stocker and feeder cattle that are being moved from drought stricken pastures in the southwest," the state farm leader said.
