Schlesinger latest Carter deputy to get the ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter removed Energy Secretary James Schlesinger today and will nominate Deputy Defense Secretary Charles W. Duncan Jr. to replace him, government officials said. Schlesinger confirmed that Carter has accepted his resignation. Capitol Hill sources said the president told congressional leaders of his selection of Duncan to take over the Energy Department. Schlesinger, at the Capitol to testify before a House committee, was asked about reports that he was leaving the administration. "That is correct," the secretary said. There also was speculation that Transportation Secretary Brock Adams might be ousted today. However, White House officials did not say anything about Adams when they telephoned congressional leaders on the president's behalf to talk about today's changes. Adams was seen leaving the White House shortly before noon, and a Transportation Department source confirmed he had an 11:30 a.m. EDT appointment with the president. "He's pretty much gone," said one Capitol Hill source when asked about Adams. And an influential supporter of Adams, Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, sent Carter a telegram urging him to retain the secretary. "He is extremely capable and very effective on Capitol Hill," said Cannon. Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., chairman of the House Commerce transportation subcommittee, said he had gotten no official word about Adams' future, but "it would be strange if he lasts the day. I know he's unhappy." Asked about Schlesinger, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said he expected Carter to make the official announcement later in the day. Wright said it was his understanding that Schlesinger would remain in office until the fall, while Congress is considering the president's recent energy proposals. "It's cut and dried," one source said of the Duncan decision. Duncan refused to confirm or deny it early today, as did Jody Powell.

Under the shadow of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Duncan, a multi-millionaire and former Coca-Cola executive in Atlanta, has wielded more power than most Cabinet secretaries as he managed the Pentagon on a day-to-day basis. White House political aides have high regard for Duncan and have long sought a wider role for him in the administration. Some administration officials say Duncan has chafed under Brown, but Duncan's associates at the Pentagon deny this and say the two have worked together amicably. Powell said he expected Carter to complete evaluating his Cabinet before the weekend and to turn his attention next week to his own senior staff. A high administration source said the Cabinet reshuffling would be "completed by the end of the day (today)." On Thursday, in three announcements in 4½ hours, Powell said Carter had dumped Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and had accepted the resignation of friend and fellow Georgian, Attorney General Griffin B. Bell.

Rains cause extensive flood damage

About 25 persons routed by floodwaters in Stanton

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Residents of Stanton — 20 miles east of Midland — today were awaiting the sun after three days of rain which resulted in enough flooding to cause the evacuation of about 25 people from the southern part of town. Nonetheless, officials said the four to seven inches of rain that fell in the city Thursday did more good than harm. "It was a life-saver," Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders said today. "I've seen more times when we were praying for water out here than condemning it. We can stand a lot of inconvenience as long as we get some water," he said. Rains fell steadily in Stanton Thursday between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., dousing the city with more than three inches of water in a two-hour period from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. By late afternoon Thursday, water runoff from across town filled the city's catch basin just south of the railroad tracks, forcing the evacuation of seven or eight families, City

Manager Mike Rhea said today. "Some of us are under water; the rest of us are still here," Rhea said. City of Stanton crews worked with trucks Thursday to ferry families out of a low-lying area adjacent to the catch basin, referred to by Stantonites as "Lake Pauline." Some families were transported to the homes of relatives or friends; others to the community center so they could make arrangements for the night. Rhea said some families were reluctant to leave the area. While the catch basin was designed to hold water from heavy rains, it was already half full from a six-inch rain that fell in the Stanton area in early June, Rhea said. "We had two 100-year rains in six weeks," Rhea added. Water Thursday almost covered Missouri-Pacific rails in the southern part of town. Train service through the area was disrupted for 10 hours Thursday because of flooding in the Big Spring rail

Seven inches of rainfall hits Lamesa

By ED TODD

LAMESA — Heavy rains measuring as much as seven inches fell here Wednesday, flooding sections of homes in Lamesa and leaving the area's agricultural fields standing in water. The south, southwestern, western and northern parts of this city of 12,000 were drenched and partially under water. Sulphur Draw, which until Thursday was the Plains Fairway golf course, became a torrent and finally settled down to a rushing river and then to a creek. It flooded much of the low-lying, tree-decked Forrest Park in south Lamesa. "They say this used to be the Colorado River until it went dry," noted 12-year-old Lendon Duke, who was wading in the muddy, rushing flow along with twins Pete and Paul Torres, 11.

THE WATERS THEY played in rushed into Forrest Park, where, ironically, water sprinklers were wetting the already saturated grass on high grounds.

Waters flooded houses in the lower areas about Sulphur Draw. "We've been here over 30 years, and this is the worse I've seen it yet," said a harried Retta Welborn, 69. She lives on the banks of the draw. "Man," she said, "just drive all over town. You better believe it (is flooded)."

Sustaining what apparently was the worse damage was the Chicago Heights addition in north Lamesa.

Jerry Don Pearce's brick house at the corner of North 22nd Place and Lynn Avenue was filled with 10 inches of water from the 10-hour rain that started falling about 3 a.m. Wednesday.

"Didn't know the water was coming up until I got up at 7 to go to work," said Pearce, the city of Lamesa's tax assessor-collector.

He recalled having turned to his 12-year-old son, Eric, to say: "You better get up, son; it looks like we're going to have to swim out of here."

By 7 a.m., the muddy waters were pouring in; by 10 a.m., they had risen to 10 inches, and by 5 p.m., the water

Burleson quits position on hospital's board

By SUSAN TOTH

Preliminary figures show no tax increase should be necessary to meet next year's hospital budget, but more money must be raised to complete the proposed cancer center on the hospital grounds, Midland County Hospital District directors were told Thursday.

The board also accepted the resignation of one of its members.

Dr. Michael Burleson, who has been an outspoken critic of hospital fiscal management while on the board, submitted his resignation effective Aug. 1 in a letter to board president Ed Magruder.

He said he plans to accept a position in a hospital in Eureka, Calif.

"I hope you will continue to work to help bring medical care in Midland to the level at which it should be," Burleson said in the letter.

The directors accepted the resignation "with regret" and decided to draft a resolution commending Burleson for "support of and service to this hospital and for his significant contribution to the life of this district as a director."

Burleson was not at the meeting. Attorney Ted Kerr told board members they might have to go through a series of public hearings on their tax rate despite a preliminary indication that no increase in the current 15 cent rate would be necessary.

Under the new Truth in Taxation Law, any tax increase of 3 percent or more above a "mythical rate" determined by a complex formula must go through a series of public notices and hearings.

The "mythical rate," Kerr said, is designed to take into account increases in valuations that might raise the final tax bill in addition to increases in the tax rate itself.

That "mythical rate," he said, cannot be determined until computer

Relief from rain in sight

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Skies remained overcast over a large portion of the Permian Basin early today. But little rain was falling, as residents of Midland and area communities got some relief from the drenching rains of Thursday.

Lamesa, Stanton and Andrews apparently were the hardest hit areas by the rains, although Big Spring and Midland received significant amounts of rainfall.

House flooding occurred at Lamesa, Stanton and Andrews, and street flooding and closings were reported in other communities.

Andrews received about five inches.

According to Andrews City Manager Len Wilson, low-lying areas in that community flooded Thursday and as many as 25 houses were flooded with 10 to 12 inches of water.

Pumps were installed Thursday and workers began pumping water out of low-lying areas. Wilson said one storm pump burned out, slowing the process slightly.

He said pumps are operating 24 hours a day, dropping the water level in houses about six inches a day. The city will be okay, Wilson said, as long as it doesn't rain again.

Big Spring, which received as much as seven inches of rain in places, had some streets closed and area roads barricaded, but no evacuations were necessary, according to officials.

Varying rainfall amounts were reported in Midland.

Although the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport recorded only an official .96 inch, rainfall reports went as high as three inches in and around Midland.

North Midland apparently received the most rainfall, with several reports placing the measurement there at three inches.

The Midland Farmers' Co-op, in the southeast portion of the city, reported 2.2 inches, while the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum in the city's south central section reported 1.1. A business in the far western part of Midland reported 1.8 inches.

The Greenwood community, located about 10 miles east of Midland, reported 5.6 inches Thursday, but Midkiff, 37 miles south-southeast of the city, recorded only .20 inch.

Rainfall amounts also varied widely in area communities. Rankin, for example, received no rain at all Thursday.

Big Lake received about an inch and Crane got about .25 inch. Garden City received about 1.5 inches in town with reports of rainfall outside the community ranging as high as five inches.

A site east of Midland recorded 1.86 inches while Odessa received about 1.08 and Monahans reported only .04 inch.

In the meantime, the temperature in Midland was setting a record, according to the National Weather Serviced.

High temperature Thursday reached only 72, which shattered the previous "minimum" high of 78 degrees set in 1955. Record high is 102 degrees, set in 1951.

And the low Thursday was a brisk, unseasonable 65. But that didn't set a record. The record low, 62 degrees, was set in 1959.

The weatherman said a chance of rain will exist through Saturday, although temperatures should get warmer again.

A 20 percent chance for rain exists tonight and Saturday.

Possible burglary reported to police

Midland Police Department received a report Thursday of a possible burglary of a residence in the 1100 block of East Magnolia Street. Two color televisions valued at $1,518 were reported taken, police said. Entry to the residence apparently was gained by forcing open the back door, which had been blocked by residents by furniture, police said.

Midland County Sheriff's Department today was investigating an apparent burglary at a salvage yard at 1202 S. Webster St., a deputy said. The report, made Thursday, listed assorted tools valued at $500 as having been taken from a locked shed located at the yard. Entry to the shed apparently was gained by breaking a chain on the door, a deputy said.

South Peter Street in Stanton reflects some of the worst flooding to hit the Permian Basin Thursday when thunderstorms dumped four to seven inches of rain on the town. Officials today said seven or eight families had to be evacuated from their homes as floodwaters crept through doorways. (Staff Photo by Mike Kardos)

Vineland plans hero's welcome for Niehaus

VINELAND, N.J. (AP) — After 3½ years as a hostage of Venezuelan terrorists, businessman William F. Niehaus returned to Vineland today for a hero's welcome of prayers, praises and speeches. "I'm very emotional right now. I can't quite control myself," Niehaus told about 100 friends and former neighbors gathered for a prayer service at the First Presbyterian Church of Vineland. "It's a very great feeling," he said, kissing and shaking hands with the crowd. He exchanged greetings in Spanish with many of the church's Hispanic members. Niehaus, 48, who lived here from 1960 to 1967, is to be honored by this quiet South Jersey city with five separate events during "Bill Niehaus Day," beginning with the prayer service to "give thanksgiving" for his safe return. The worshippers "are gathered here today because we are happy for Bill and Donna and their family," said the Rev. Joseph S. Donchez, pastor of church when the Niehauses worshipped here. The simple prayer service in the plain, gray stone church on Vineland's main business street featured a hymn entitled, "How Long Has It Been?" Donchez said from the church's pulpit that Niehaus went through a "terrible and horrifying experience" during his ordeal as a captive of Venezuelan leftists. "It's a hero's welcome," said Mayor Patrick R. Fiorilli. "He's a hell of a nice guy and everybody likes him. We all hope it will be a real happy day for him." Niehaus, his wife Donna, and three children have been vacationing at an undisclosed New Jersey shore location. On Tuesday night, a number of friends held a 25th wedding anniversary party for the couple at their shore hideaway. Niehaus, former head of Venezuelan operations for Owens-Illinois Inc., was kidnapped by leftist terrorists in Caracas on Feb. 27, 1976. On June 29, Venezuelan police accidentally stumbled on the bearded Niehaus and his captors in the jungle while looking for cattle rustlers. Niehaus then returned to Toledo, Ohio, where his family now lives. In Vineland, Niehaus was director of industrial relations at Owens-Illinois' Kimble Glass plant and was also supervisor of the plant's machine vial department. But most Vineland residents know Niehaus from his many community activities here during the 1960s. He was president of the Vineland YMCA, secretary of the city's Civil Rights Commission and was named the "Young Man of the Year" by the Vineland Jaycees in 1964. Niehaus was also active in the First Presbyterian Church, the local United Way and the Newcomb Hospital building fund. Many Vineland residents maintained friendly ties with the Niehaus family and the continuing story of Niehaus' detention in Venezuela was followed closely by newspapers and radio stations here. In addition to a morning prayer service, local officials planned a welcoming ceremony on the steps of City Hall, lunch at the YMCA, an afternoon reception for Niehaus and former co-workers at the glass plant and an evening cocktail party in Fiorilli's City Hall offices.

Rain in Stanton more help than harm, official says

(Continued from Page 1A) yards, Missouri-Pacific trainmaster R.H. Hanfeld said today. Service was restored at 10 p.m. Thursday, he added. Flooding also closed several roads in Martin County, Sheriff Saunders said. Texas 137 south of Stanton was closed for several hours because of high water. Texas 176 to Andrews was closed. FM 3033 east of Stanton also was closed because of the high water. City Manager Rhea said "four or five streets" in the city still were closed today. U.S. Highway 80 through town was blocked off this morning while waters receded, a spokesman for the Stanton Police Department said. Unconfirmed reports had more than four inches of rain falling throughout most of the county. A spokesman at the Martin County Agricultural Extension Office said Stanton Chemical and Seed Co. had reported seven inches of rainfall since midnight Wednesday. According to Peggy Creech, secretary at the extension office, farmers generally were pleased with the rainfall. "The crops were in real need of rain," she said. "A lot of the crop was real small. The farmers seem to think it did a lot of good." However, Mrs. Creech said flooding in low-lying areas destroyed portions of the crop around the county. A spokesman at Westex Telephone Cooperative said phone service to Luther and Ackerly was disrupted in isolated areas. Service was restored by this morning, he said. Residents were watching cloudy skies with some anxiety this morning. The city manager said additional rains could cause severe problems at the city's sewage lift station south of town. "If water comes up too much higher, we'll have to do something to isolate it (the lift station)," Rhea said. "If our pump station goes down, the sewage will stay in the lines and start backing up. We think we got it under control, though," he added. Sheriff Saunders termed the down-pour "the best rain we've had in six months."

No tax hike expected for hospital's budget

(Continued from Page 1A) analysis of the evaluations placed on county property is completed early next week. Estimated figures show that leaving the tax rate at 15 cents per $100 valuation will just miss the 3 percent mark, and the extra hearings and notices will not be necessary, Kerr said. If that is the case, the only public hearing on the budget will be held at the Aug. 16 board meeting, when the budget will be approved in its final form. In other fiscal business, the directors approved a write-off of bad debts and indigent care charges of $85,200.50 for the month of June and authorized a transfer of $60,000 in tax money from the district accounts to the operating accounts of the hospital. Directors also were told they may have to raise another $500,000 to $800,000 to build the proposed Allison Permian Basin Radiation Therapy Center. Midlander Helon Y. Allison has donated $2 million for the center already, but $1.3 million in new equipment recommended by a nationally known authority in cancer treatment equipment upped the bill. Both private and public sources are being contacted for the extra money, board president Magruder said. "We realize it's a considerable amount of money, but I don't see it will be a great problem to raise it," Magruder said.

Nineteen arrested for prostitution in raids on eight massage parlors

ODESSA — Eight Odessa massage parlors were raided Thursday afternoon after a two-month prostitution investigation here, officials said. Nineteen people had been arrested for prostitution or prostitution-related offenses early today, according to a spokesman for the Odessa Police Department. One of those arrested was a 16-year-old girl, the spokesman said. The spokesman indicated there may be more arrests coming in connection with the investigation.

Ector County Attorney Mike Atkins said Thursday the investigation was a combined effort of several law enforcement agencies. Odessa police, the Ector County Attorney's office and special agents for the Department of Public Safety participated in the investigation, Atkins said. While in the process of booking those arrested, a small amount of a substance believed to be marijuana was found, officials said. One person has been charged with possession of marijuana in addition to a prostitution-related charge, an official said.

UAW deals blow to GM strategy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The United Auto Workers organizing victory at the General Motors Corp.'s only non-union assembly plant is a severe blow to GM's alleged "Southern strategy," a UAW spokesman said. The union won a representation election at the plant Thursday by a 2-1 margin. Of the nearly 2,300 workers eligible, 1,479 voted in favor of the UAW and 658 voted for no union representation. UAW officers three years ago charged GM was pursuing a "Southern Strategy" by locating new plants in predominantly non-union areas of the South and Southwest.

Indian authorities proceed with hydroelectric project

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — State authorities announced recently that they are going ahead with a controversial hydroelectric project that will flood part of India's last remaining tropical rain forest, Silent Valley.

National leaders have criticized the project in the southern state of Kerala and conservationists have expressed fears that the plant and related construction activity will seriously upset the rain forest's ecological balance.

Threatened by the 120-megawatt generating plant are a number of endangered species, including tigers, panthers, lion-tailed macaque monkeys, flying lizards and Great Indian Hornbill birds, the Indian chapter of the World Wildlife Fund has claimed.

Home Minister H.M. Patel in New Delhi has called the project an "act of national folly."

Opponents such as Duleep Matthai, a Wildlife Fund trustee and a native of Kerala, have pointed out that the plant is not a necessity, since Kerala already has surplus electric power.

Countering the critics, the state's top elected official said that Kerala is taking all possible measures to safeguard Silent Valley's ecology.

"There will be no major destruction," Chief Minister Vasudevan Nair said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press from Trivandrum, the state capital. "These fears are quite unfounded."

Nair, a member of the pro-Soviet Communist Party of India, said that Kerala's present electric power surplus was not expected to last through 1982.

"We have to plan for the future," he said.

The state leader called unfounded conservationists' fears that the 2,000 persons to be employed in the seven-year construction project will disturb the rain forest's natural environment.

His government recently passed legislation to protect Silent Valley. Provisions ban hunting and the keeping of goats, and cattle will not be allowed to graze freely.

However, Nair confirmed that 10 percent of the valley floor will be flooded by a man-made lake. Conservationists claim this particular area is the richest part of the rain forest in plant life.

Silent Valley, about 625 miles south of Bombay, draws its name from the fact that unlike other forests it has few cicadas, flying insects which emit a loud, shrill sound.

"It's the ultimate in the evolution of a rain forest," said Matthai, 53, former hotel executive who devotes much of his time to conservationist causes.

Inflation's realities

Two intriguing items in the news recently bring home the ravages of inflation.

The newly minted Susan B. Anthony "silver" dollar recently put into circulation is not much larger than a quarter and is devoid of silver. It has about three cents worth of copper and nickel. Of course, it doesn't do justice to the first American woman to be honored on a coin of the realm.

This is a far cry from the time, not so many years ago, when visitors to Las Vegas could get all the real silver dollars their paper money would buy.

Americans needed no economists to advise them when their silver dollars became too valuable to circulate because paper money had been debased. In a classic example of Gresham's law, silver money disappeared because it was driven out by the cheaper currency.

As though to underline the Anthony dollar's weaknesses, the Social Security Administration gave out some startling figures the other day.

A 20-year-old worker starting out today will be entitled to receive $64,000 a year when he or she retires 45 years hence, in the year 2025. The Social Security people predict the average wage in that year will be $162,000, with Social Security taxes being levied on all earnings up to $378,000 a year. How do you like those figures?

By comparison, the maximum individual Social Security benefit now is $6,390 and the average is $5,082, the maximum payroll tax is $1,404 on earnings of $22,900. These figures certainly are more readily understandable as of right now.

The frightening part of all this is the certain knowledge that it will be as difficult to get by on Social Security benefits of $64,000 in the year 2025 as it is for pensioners to make ends meet now on only $5,000. Today's pensioners know full well how difficult that is. And looking into the future, this really does present a scary picture.

Change in Aggieland

Another change has been instituted at Texas A&M University — as women give Aggie tradition the boot.

Yes, women now will be wearing senior boots in the Corps of Cadets for the first time!

Until last month, only male senior cadets were allowed to wear the custom-made cavalry boots, which, it is said, sell for approximately $300 a pair.

But now U.S. Army Col. James Woodall, commandant of the corps, has decided that it is time women received equal senior privileges.

"I think the girls anticipated it," the colonel said. "I know they wanted it."

He added that the women already have purchased their senior status symbols, non-custom-made riding boots, and will order gaucho skirts and riding pants to go with them.

Needless to say, reaction is mixed. It undoubtedly is downright opposed by many of the older graduates, some of them in the Tall City and vicinity.

Some of the older grads have been quoted as saying the change is just another sign of women's influence on campus.

It is noteworthy that about 60 women are in the 1,850-member corps, and a-third of A&M's 30,000 students are female.

Others have said that the boots are odd-looking, but they think cadets can cope with change. We feel sure that this will be the case.

Comparing this incident to similar changes in the military academies, Bill Dugat, student commander of the corps said, "They took change with grunts and groans, but learned it was good. We'll be optimistic about it...the men will have to adjust."

And that's the way it is in Aggieland today.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Cambodians just plain confused

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—The plight of the wretched "boat people," fleeing communist butchery in Vietnam, has made headlines around the world. But little has been reported about the suffering of the Cambodian people who never reached the boats—for the simple reason that the country was effectively sealed off from outsiders after the communist victory four years ago.

Perhaps no Indochinese nation has been so cruelly worked over by war and bloody political repression. The gentle, peace-loving Cambodians were dragged into the Vietnam War by the U.S. incursion of 1970, were subjected to unspeakable savagery under the communist fanatics of the Khmer Rouge, and then, last year, were invaded and occupied by their ancient enemies, the Vietnamese.

We have talked to some of the few Cambodians who managed to escape to the United States since the Vietnamese takeover. At first, they said, the Cambodian people were relieved. Now they are fearful and confused. Neither the Vietnamese nor the Cambodian village councils they set up are in firm control; Khmer Rouge Premier Pol Pot's troops are still fighting a guerrilla war in the bush.

Typical of the confusion that prevailed in Cambodia was the entry of Vietnamese troops into the tiny northeastern village of Sisophon last January 10, three days after they took Phnom Penh. Chey Tith, a literature professor turned bicycle mechanic, was better informed than most villagers; he had been listening to a radio hidden in a friend's hut. At least he knew about the capital's fall.

Yet though his country had been at war for more than a year, Chey had no idea who the conquerors were. He thought Premier Lon Nol had returned to defeat the communists. Then at 10 a.m. that January day a friend ran into the village from the rice fields, flushed and frightened, to tell of the invaders' approach. "They are all Vietnamese!" he told the astonished Chey.

The initial apprehension was followed by relief. "We decided, well, we've got to get away from Pol Pot no matter what, even if it means the Vietnamese," a refugee told us.

"It was harvest time, and we suddenly had the freedom to go out and reap as much rice as we wanted and keep it ourselves," said a former metal merchant. But there was no order, just spreading chaos. Every morning the Cambodians fanned out over the countryside looking for food.

The Vietnamese invaders attempted to restore order in Cambodia. They set up their own committees and named their own officials. In at least one case, they lifted an entire administrative apparatus from a Vietnamese city and installed it in a similar city in Cambodia.

A market economy—banned by Pol Pot in favor of a bartering system—has sprung up. The Cambodians are digging up the gold they hid from the Khmer Rouge and using it to purchase Vietnamese goods and medicine. It also costs whatever the market will bear to ride the new buses that are suddenly available.

Age-old ethnic disputes have flared up when Vietnamese troops, suffering from food shortages, have commandeered rice from the Cambodians. There have also been sporadic reports of physical abuse and rapes by the occupying soldiers. But this is gentle treatment compared to the slaughter that followed the Khmer Rouge conquest.

Recent intelligence reports indicate that the puppet Cambodian ruler, Heng Semrin, has complained to his Vietnamese masters about the shabby way his countrymen are being treated.

The hapless Cambodian people—torn between traditional hatred of the Vietnamese and fear of the Khmer Rouge butchers—don't know where to turn.

CHARLEY REESE Court excludes family from abortion decision

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — The practical effect of the Supreme Court decision that minors do not have to obtain the consent of their parents to get an abortion is to exclude the family from the decision.

Of course, despite what you hear from the abortion peddlers, most teen-agers will not get pregnant and most of those who do will in fact consult their parents. Still, the court's decision has made it much easier for some children to rely solely on the advice of people whose income is derived from performing abortions. You can imagine what kind of advice they'll get.

The decision should have been expected on the basis of the court's earlier decision that an unborn human being is not a person and that non-persons have no constitutional right to life. Having decided that one can commit murder so long as you catch your victim in the womb, all that remains for the court to do is to set the rules of the hunting season.

I do not have religious scruples against abortion. I believe exactly the same way about killing unborn babies as I do about killing adults and that is that the only justification for taking a human life is in defense of other lives. In a case where a pregnancy can cause the death of the mother, then I think you have to make a choice between two human beings and the proper people to make that choice are the human beings involved, the mother and father.

I oppose killing unborn babies as a matter of convenience for the same reason I oppose killing adults whose existence, for one reason or another, may be a burden or a nuisance.

The absurdity of the abortion-on-demand arguments are obvious if you merely transfer them to a mature child. Suppose a mother came to the court and thus argued in a petition for permission to kill her eight-year-old son: the child is an emotional and financial burden. I did not want the child. The child is a product of my body and I have the right to control my body and its products. Since I choose not to want him, the child will have a miserable life anyway, add to the population pressure, and probably become a financial burden on society. The child's father and grandparents should have no say in the matter since it was my womb which produced him.

The abortion-on-demanders simply cannot justify their position so they resort to the fiction that an unborn child is not a human being. The rest of the world is still waiting for a human pregnancy to produce a goat or to hear from the pro-abortionists how something that is non-human can produce a human being.

The Supreme Court could not afford such obvious fictions. It admitted in its decision that the unborn are indeed human beings and so in order to justify its fashionable decision re-wrote the Declaration of Independence by saying that only persons, not human beings, are created with a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and that one becomes a person only when one meets the definition of the Supreme Court. At the present the court has decided that a human being doesn't graduate to person status until and if he or she escapes from the womb.

Those of us who are concerned with liberty are wary of a court which arrogates to itself the power to decide which human beings are persons and which ones are not. It does not take a great deal of imagination to visualize a time when a future court might amplify its definition of a person to exclude other categories of human beings and so set them up for execution just as the Nazis did.

The pro-abortion movement is only one aspect of a larger movement of nasty little social engineers who wish to shape society to fit their own image, the way a sculptor shapes a piece of stone. Only instead of stone chips, these characters are willing to expend the lives of individuals.

Neither efficiency nor ideology are unqualified virtues and much human horror has been perpetrated in the name of both.

The true goal of most of them is the elimination of a free society and of the individual family unit which sustains a free society. They would substitute a conformist mass for the individuals and an all powerful state for the family.

Theirs is a philosophy that is alien to both life and liberty.

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER
AND ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

1. According to Ezekiel 16, nomadic Israel was a mixture of Amorites, Hittites, and Aramaean. Their language was a combination of these three, much as was Anglo-Saxons and Norman French, each adding to the other's vocabulary. During the Hyksos period some of them wandered into Egypt and became slaves. Who was their rescuer? Exodus 3
 2. Tell the controversy over John the Baptist's name. Luke 1: 60-63
 3. Who wrote a letter to Philemon interceding for the slave, Onesimus? Philemon 1: 1
 4. What happenings caused the centurion to proclaim of the Lord, "Certainly this was a righteous man?" Luke 23: 40-47
 5. Which Gospel writer's mother was named Mary? Acts 12: 12

IT HAPPENED HERE

30 YEARS AGO (July 20, 1949):

INSIDE REPORT:

A Connally energy czar? Well, it very well could be

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The White House is seriously considering retired New York business tycoon John deButts as its new energy mobilization czar even though he is backing Republican John B. Connally to replace Jimmy Carter as president.

DeButts retired Feb. 1 as chief executive officer of AT&T and the next day contributed the maximum $1,000 to Connally's campaign. While President Carter's aides are well aware of this, it does not make any difference. "John deButts is extremely well thought of around here, and we'd like to get him to work whether he is a Connally man or not," one White House insider told us.

He is on a list of possible successors to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, expected to leave by autumn. But deButts' more likely role would begin sooner if the White House has its way; as head of the proposed Energy Mobilization Board, eclipsing the lame-duck Schlesinger as federal czar in charge of energy production.

JODY'S BATTLE FATIGUE

For the first time to anyone's knowledge, President Carter criticized press secretary Jody Powell in the presence of outsiders. But that mild criticism, during the Camp David meetings, does not suggest downgrading, much less removal, for Powell.

Evans

Novak

Powell was brought up during Carter's sessions with non-governmental wise men invited to the mountain. After the senior staff (including Powell) had left the room, one outsider commented that he thought Powell was shooting from the hip a little too much lately and might be suffering from battle fatigue. He added that he felt the normal adversary relationship between Powell and the press was degenerating into all-out war.

To the surprise of those present, the president did not spring to the quick defense of his long-time aide. Rather, he noted that Jody seemed a little overwrought, was smoking even more than usual and was putting on weight.

Nevertheless, nobody expects any diminution of Powell's position. Next to Rosalynn, Powell is Carter's most trusted adviser. What some White House insiders would like is for Powell to be removed from the press secretary's daily firing line and be given a counselor's role. But even this is not likely unless initiated by Powell himself.

A footnote: Even more than Powell's politically damaging crack about long gasoline lines being good for Washingtonians, his snap reaction to White House domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat's now-famous memorandum generated ill will within the White House. Several presidential aides grumbled that a crack at the hard-working, long-suffering Eizenstat was uncalled for and unfair.

ROSALYNN'S DICTION

There was an audible gasp at Bardstown, Ky., when Rosalynn Carter seemed to tell a Democratic party fundraiser that "Jimmy is competent" — seemingly a public rejoinder to scurrilous private rumors that the president had retired to Camp David for psychological reasons.

Actually, Kentucky ears were having trouble picking up the First Lady's soft Georgia accents. Careful listening to tape recordings of her remarks showed her saying that "Jimmy is confident."

Apart from the unfortunate misunderstanding, Mrs. Carter put in a masterful performance substituting for her husband at the Kentucky dinner. She has progressed as a campaigner and is obviously one of the president's top political assets.

HAIG'S DEBUT

debut as a practicing Republican politician will be made before a closed-door audience of fat-cat contributors with newsmen and ordinary citizens barred.

Haig will speak before the meeting of the Republican Eagles at the posh Beverly Wilshire Hotel in Los Angeles July 22-23. Minimum contribution to Republican war chests of $10,000 is necessary for membership in the Eagles.

A footnote: Haig still rejects any campaign for a U.S. Senate seat from Pennsylvania but is openly interested in a dark horse shot at the presidency. Old friends, fearing that his effectiveness as a voice on national security questions would be undercut by a humiliating presidential flop, want Haig to get immediate expert speech coaching.

had dropped to only four inches in his house.

OTHER HOUSES ON the block were turned into water locks by the backed-up rainfall, which had risen almost to the top of a fire hydrant. Water stood three feet deep in the streets.

The Boy Scout Hut was flooded, and youngsters were paddling canoes down the streets and alleys of north Lamesa.

Across the street from the Percars, Lemoine Lee was visiting her son, Brice Lee. Not much water poured or seeped into his house, which had been dammed up at front to keep the water out; his place was somewhat higher than Pearce's.

"It's unbelievable," said Lemoine Lee.

Her son, who was in the Lamesa hospital recovering from a back injury when the rains came, quickly checked himself out and rushed home after his wife, Betty, called him from home about 7 a.m.

"I got me a fistful of pain pills and said 'I'll see you later,'" to the nurses.

Lee said Lamesa, certainly had harder downpours and far more rain in a relatively short time, but no flooding such as that which struck the city Thursday.

"WE'VE SCRATCHED our brains and everything in trying to figure out why," Lee said of the flooding. "I guess everything (already) was water-logged and filled up."

Rainfall in Lamesa this time measured about four, five or six inches — depending on location of the rain gauge — in town and up to nine inches just west of town and near Sulphur Draw.

But in the past two months, "six or

Bill to raise price of sugar OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Carter administration-backed bill that would raise sugar prices this fall for growers and add an estimated $1 a year to each American's food bill has been passed by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Sugarcane and sugarbeet growers and processors have pressed for such legislation saying they cannot survive at current prices.

On a 6-3 vote hursday, the anel passed the measure that is imilar to one already adopted by the House Agriculture Committee in April.

The House will now consider both bills.

Texas oil baron buys '21' Club

NEW YORK (AP) — Not just any old gift would do, so a Texas oil baron plunked down more than $10 million to buy part of Manhattan's swank "21" Club as a little something for his wife.

The buyer is Baron Enrico di Portanova, a close friend of the deposed Shah of Iran.

In a deal worked out by the club's lawyer, Roy Cohn, the baron bought into the restaurant at 21 W. 52nd St., with its current partners.

Idaho Supreme Court stays execution

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has decided to stay the Aug. 20 execution of convicted murder David Alan Osborn, who was scheduled to become the first U.S. criminal to die by injection.

Osborn, at his June 29 sentencing, told District Judge Arthur Oliver he didn't want to appeal, but the Supreme Court decided to go ahead with a review, which is automatic under Idaho law.

Osborn, 30, of Slaterville, Utah, was sentenced to die for the murder last year of his girlfriend, Pocatello waitress Charlotte Carl.

C.W. Crowl, director of corrections, said he was notified of the stay

Thursday afternoon. "The law specifies that the convict gets a stay, whether he wants one or not," Crowl said.

seven inches" of rain have visited Lamesa and the cotton country surrounding the city.

"As soon as this mess is straightened out," said Lee, "there's going to be a for-sale sign going up. And I'm going to sell this place and move to the top of a hill. I don't want to put up with this nonsense."

When he moved into the neighborhood 16 years ago, Lee said, the "developer said there was a water outlet."

COTTON FARMER Don Archer, his wife Norma, and Archer's cousin, Roy Archer, were driving around town in a pickup truck to survey the damage and flooding.

"I've never seen it like this," said Mrs. Archer.

"It's never been this deep that I know of," said her husband. "I've lived here all my life."

Cotton fields were well wet all around Lamesa — perhaps too wet. Most farmers didn't need the rain right now, anyway.

About 3 1/2 miles north of Lamesa and for a quarter of a mile along U.S. Highway 87 leading to Lubbock, waters up to four feet deep had blocked traffic for most of the day; traffic was re-routed.

Waters flooded a few acres of the Jack McBride farm, adjoining the inundated highway.

By late afternoon Thursday, the heavier truck traffic was slowly creeping through the waters, which had receded to about a foot in depth.

Water flowing into Sulphur Draw and the Plains Fairway, a municipal golf course near the National Guard Armory, had flooded a section of the Seminole Highway, U.S. 180.

Youths disarm would-be rapist

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A group of about 15 youths held down and disarmed a would-be rapist in a city park Wednesday, police said.

Capt. Bob Bond said the youth followed a 22-year-old woman into a park restroom, where a scuffle ensued.

Bond said the woman's screams frightened the attacker outside and into the park. The group of 12-and-13-year-olds who frequent the area and knew the woman tackled the assailant and took a knife away from him, Bond said.

"We certainly want to congratulate these kids," Bond said after the attacker was taken to a juvenile facility at the Smith County jail.

The woman was treated and released for a laceration and bruises at a local hospital.

Potassium may aid diuretic

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother, who is 84 years old, suffers from heart failure. The doctor has prescribed both a diuretic and a potassium supplement for her. I don't understand the connection between the two.—Joan

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been finding it very hard to cut down on salt, although my doctor has advised me to do so because my blood pressure is higher than it should be. Is the desire for salt instinctive—is a person born with it?—Mr. P.T.

Dear Mr. T.: Newborn infants do not respond to the taste of salt, and children between the ages of 1 1/2 and three years generally reject it to some extent. By the age of four, children begin showing a preference for salt, and this tendency increases as they grow older.

As your doctor indicated, there appears to be an association between the intake of sodium (one of the elements in table salt) and high blood pressure. People in the United States consume an unnecessarily large quantity of salt, and this appears to be increasing. Population studies have shown that among groups which use very little sodium, hypertension is not a major problem. However, when these people adopt diets which include large amounts of salt, they increase their susceptibility to high blood pressure. No direct proof of cause and effect has been established, but the evidence is convincing.

While table salt (which is 40 percent sodium) is a major contributor to the problem, there are many additional sources of sodium in our diets. Sodium phosphate is an emulsifier; monosodium glutamate is used to enhance flavor; sodium benzoate is a preservative, and sodium nitrite is a flavoring and preservative. Processed meats and cheese contain sodium, as do some medications, such as antacids. It has been estimated that processed foods, which are largely responsible for our increased salt intake, provide an average of five grams of salt a day.

The obvious culprits, which should be avoided by everyone on a salt-restricted diet, are snack foods such as potato chips, pretzels, salted nuts, olives and the like. Health professionals have requested federal guidelines to restrict the quantity of salt in processed foods, and to require the disclosure of salt content on food labels. This should be helpful to those people, such as you, who are attempting to reduce salt intake.

Show, that became shows that didn't, returns

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a few weeks, CBS will debut a summer show that is really an old successful sitcom that became three other sitcoms, which were all done away with before ever getting on the air. This is fun. There is more.

The new show will feature one star from the original successful sitcom and three stars from the three derivative shows, but it will be missing the main star from the original show (who also starred in the first of the later three sitcoms).

Okay, that's enough. But it is a curious history that "Hanging In" brings to the tube this summer. This show, in its various incarnations, has been: —A new format for CBS' "Maude," which would have brought Maude to Washington as a freshman representative. This was canned after production began because Bea Arthur didn't want to be Maude anymore.

—"Onward and Upward," which also would have featured a freshman representative in Washington. Only he was to have been a black former football player. This was dumped, after production began, when John Amos, who was to have starred, walked out of the thing.

—"Mr. Dooley" came into being for a short while, but the title had to be done away with because it belonged to the old Dooley cartoons.

—"Mr. Dugan," the third-generation child of the original "Maude," came closest to actually going on the air. Cleavon Little was to have been the jock-congressman, but Norman Lear, whose TAT Productions made the show, thought that blacks were not properly presented. The congressional Black Caucus agreed and "Mr. Dugan" was dumped five days before it was to go on the air.

CBS, intrepid, was still apparently interested in the idea, (though by this time it's hard to say what the idea was), and told TAT to go on with still another production.

Thus, "Hanging In." Maude, who became two black football players that never made it to airing, is now a college president. And playing the college president — Bill Macy, who was Bea Arthur's husband in the original "Maude."

Got that? "This is sort of the bastard child (of 'Maude')," says TAT's Barbara Brogliatti, a good-natured lady who has somehow kept score of "Maude's" various after-lives.

"The reason we kept doing it is because everybody loves the relationship between Barbara Rhoades, Dennis Burkley and Nedra Volz." Some of us might not be familiar with that relationship, since it has only existed in shows that were never aired.

Ms. Brogliatti explained. In the Washington phase of the show, Miss Rhoades was to have been the congressman's legal assistant, Burkley the staff assistant and Miss Volz was to have been the housekeeper.

Now they're all doing similar things for Macy, except at a college instead of in Congress.

"It's been very difficult," Ms. Brogliatti says. "They'd done the show three times — with Bea, John Amos and Cleavon Little."

So, beginning Aug. 8, "Maude," "Onward and Upward," "Mr. Dooley," "Mr. Dugan" and "Hanging In" finally get to be on television. Maybe.

'Meatballs' has some of the old madness

"MEATBALLS" has some of the guys who brought you fraternity house madness in "Animal House" — director Ivan Reitman and writer Harold Ramis, to name two — training their sights on another American institution, summer camp. It's all there — the lighthearted summer romances, the intercamp rivalry with the rich kids across the lake and, of course, the nonstop practical jokes. If one or two fall flat, so what. The next probably will hit your funnybone. There's also a terrific all-round performance by "Saturday Night Live" alumnus Bill Murray as the head counselor. His wisecracks and John Belushi-like manic energy are tempered — but not cloyingly so — by his friendship with a lonely first-term camper and a romance with his female staff counterpart. That gentle quality keeps "Meatballs" from being as totally off-the-wall as "Animal House," but there are plenty of laughs. Besides, the raunchiness lost is a PG rating gained, so more family members will probably share in the fun.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE
Can You Be Too Rich?

By Alfred Sheinwold

Is there such a thing as being too rich? Where else could you get an authoritative answer?

South took the king of spades and got to dummy with a heart to lead the queen of clubs for a finesse.

Life being what it is, the finesse lost. And West's hand being what it was, back came a heart.

South took the ace of hearts and tried the diamond finesse with a horrible feeling that this was not his night.

It was South's first accurate thought. East took the king of diamonds and the rest of the hearts. Down one.

WOULD MAKE GAME

South would make the contract if he were less rich. If South had the king of clubs instead of the ace he would lead a low club at the second trick.

If West took the king of clubs, his hand would be dead. If West failed to take the king, South could develop the diamonds for nine sure tricks.

Yes, dear reader. There is such a thing as being too rich.

Latest Bond breaking box office records

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— From his booth in the Beverly Hills Hotel Polo Lounge, Roger Moore was talking by telephone to Cubby Broccoli, somewhere at the "Moonraker" nerve center.

"I see...we're beating 'Saturday Night Fever' at the Gemini I and II," said Moore, repeating the intelligence. "At the Rivoli we're beating 'Jaws'...headed for a $190,000 week at the two theaters in New York...in L.A. $350,000 for the week...we'll know in two days whether we beat 'Close Encounters' in London.

While this might sound like a James Bondian code to an outsider, to the movie cognoscenti, the report from producer Broccoli would be understandable — and impressive. Roger Moore, appearing as 007 for the fourth time in "Moonraker," couldn't have been more pleased if he had received an Oscar.

"If the trend continues," he theorized, "it means that 'Moonraker' will be right up there with the all-time winners."

"In today's market, most hits earn 50 to 60 per cent of their profits in the United States. The Bonds have been different; 70 to 80 per cent of their receipts have come from the foreign market. While they have always earned very well in the U.S., they haven't gone through the roof like 'Star Wars' or 'Jaws' or 'Close Encounters.' Until now."

Moore, who is a participant in the profits, has a proprietary interest in the box-office figures. He pooh-poohs certain critics who claim "Moonraker" is merely a reworking of the Bond formula.

His attitude toward reviews: "I don't believe in the bad ones, I don't believe in the good ones, I don't believe in any of them. Critics have never paid any attention to me as an actor; why should I pay any attention to them?"

Moore considers the new film the best of the Bonds, and that includes those of Sean Connery, not to mention "On Her Majesty's Secret Service" with George Lazenby.

"This one has every element of entertainment," said Moore, unabashed at sounding like a press agent. "It has more comedy than any of the others, and I like anything that makes people laugh. It has outrageous stunts. We didn't know how we could possibly top the ski chase at the beginning of 'The Spy Who Loved Me.' We did it with sky diving."

"Everything is different. The set pieces (standard scenes in every Bond) are different, and for the climax (gun intended?) James Bond goes into space."

"I think the timing is right, in view of other films that are on the market today. Here is a picture that audiences stamp their feet and cheer over. You don't find many movies that people can participate in today."

Moore was sporting a beard he had grown for "North Sea Hijack," an oil rig film he had just completed in Ireland, England and the North Atlantic ("I do make other films, you know").

Andrew McLaglen directed the adventure story, which had been titled "Esther, Ruth and Jennifer" after the names of rigs. Since the film stars Moore, James Mason and Anthony Perkins, a title change seemed prudent.

"Moonraker" was the hardest of his Bonds, Moore remarked, because of the shooting schedule — 28 weeks vs. 20 to 23 for the earlier ones. The star worked "every frigging day" and managed to mash a knee cap and burn his skin with the wrist gun.

More Bond in Moore's future?

"I'm always asked that question. What can I say? If I vow never to do another one, I might change my mind. If I say yes, I'd like to continue, supposing they don't ask me. They might hire Joe Goodlooking with the explanation that he is more what Ian Fleming had in mind, and besides, he needs the money."

Cubby is a friend as well as producer. I suspect that when the next one comes up, he will call me and say either: 1. 'Call your lawyer and tell him to call mine and we'll make a deal'; or 2. 'Look, we're going to shoot this one in Timbuktu, and you wouldn't like Timbuktu, so let's skip it.'"

Blockbuster movies nothing next to 'Animal Crackers'

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Remember last February's ratings "sweeps" period, when the networks were beating each other over the head with blockbuster movies?

"Gone with the Wind," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Marathon Man" — you can have those. As far as I'm concerned, CBS saved its knockout-punch for the summer.

"Animal Crackers" makes its network-television debut on CBS Saturday night. I've canceled my frog-gigging date for this.

"Animal Crackers," made in 1930, was the Marx Brothers' second movie, and beyond a doubt, their best. It was their biggest Broadway hit, transferred practically intact to film.

Because of some legal difficulties, the movie was out of circulation for more than 30 years, and reappeared in theaters in 1975. Groucho himself attended the Los Angeles reopening.

Forget storylines — the plot here is thinner than the one you'll find on ABC's "Love Boat" rerun playing opposite. This is pure crazy. I think the story has something to do with some missing art the brothers are trying to recover for plump and rich Mrs. Rittenhouse (Margaret Dumont), but it doesn't matter.

You know the plot doesn't count as soon as Groucho enters Mrs. Rittenhouse's plush Park Avenue digs in a sedan chair borne by four Nubian slaves. He is Captain Spaulding, famed explorer. You can tell that because he is wearing boots, riding pants and a pith helmet.

And because he dances his bizarre dance and sings the song that was to become his theme, "Hooray for Captain Spaulding":

"Hello, I must be going, I cannot stay I only, Came to say I'm going.

"I'll stay a week or two, I'll stay the summer through, But I am telling you, I must be going."

Some of Groucho's classic jokes are here. When he climbs out of his sedan chair, he recounts the rigors of life in the jungle.

"Up at six, and back in bed at seven... One morning I shot an elephant in my pajamas. How he got in my pajamas, I'll never know."

More.

"What this country needs today is a good seven-cent nickel."

"You go Uruguay and I'll go mine."

CBS has had the rights to the movie for a few years now, "but we've been waiting for the right moment to show it," a CBS spokesman said.

Well, anytime is the right moment as far I'm concerned. Hooray for Captain Spaulding, hooray, hooray.

Hearst official elected to board

NEW YORK CITY, N.Y. — Frank A. Bannack Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corp., has been elected to the board of governors of The Society of the New York Hospital at the board's meeting earlier in July.

"With his vast knowledge of the publishing and communications worlds, Bannack brings an additional facet of authority to The Society of the New York Hospital and to the health services provided by The New York Hospital," said Stanley de J. Osborne, president of the Society.

Bannack, who has been with Hearst more than 20 years, has served as vice president and general manager of newspapers and in a variety of management posts, the most recent being chief operating officer of The Hearst Corp., before assuming his current position.

A native of San Antonio, Bannack attended the University of Maryland and St. Mary's University. He holds honorary doctorates from The University of Texas at San Antonio and Our Lady of the Lake College.

Currently, he is treasurer and a director of the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, a director of the Advertising Council and is active with the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Bannack is a testamentary trustee under the will of William Randolph Hearst, and a director of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation of California and the Hearst Foundation of New York. He is a director of the Hearst Corp., the San Luis Mining Co. of San Francisco and the National Magazine Co. Ltd. of Great Britain.

'Soap' star makes film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Guillaume, the butler on "Soap" and the star of the new ABC series "Benson," will star in the NBC movie "The Kid from Left Field."

Guillaume will play a washed-up baseball player and the father of Gary Coleman. Gary, the star of "Diff'rent Strokes," has absorbed all of his father's baseball strategy and uses it to turn a losing team into a winner.

Guttenberg featured in CBS movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Steve Guttenberg stars as a blind student struggling through Harvard Law School in the CBS movie "To Race the Wind."

The film is based on the autobiography by Harold Krents, whose life was also the inspiration for the stage play and movie "Butterflies Are Free."

Miss Universe contestants injured as stage collapses

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Hysterical screams shattered the triumphant climax of the Miss Universe contest today when part of the stage collapsed and pitched eight beauty queens down a 6-foot hole moments after Maritza Sayalero of Venezuela took the coveted crown.

The 18-year-old Miss Sayalero was unhurt but Miss Malta, Dain Borg Bortolo, 21, and Miss Turkey, Fusan Tahire Demirtan, 21, were taken to a hospital. Miss Demirtan suffered a concussion and Miss Bortolo was badly bruised.

Officials at the Perth Entertainment Center, where the contest was held, blamed the collapse on the sudden surge of reporters and photographers onto the stage as Miss Sayalero took the throne.

"The back of the stage was designed to hold 75 girls. It was not designed to hold 200 people pushing and shoving," one official said.

The third and fourth place finishers, Miss Britain and Miss Brazil, were among those who fell through the hole that opened in the wooden stage. Seven or eight newscasters toppled with them.

"There was a rumble and one end of the platform dropped about six feet," said David Tanner, a photographer for the Perth Daily News. "The girls slipped down in a heap, and I fell among them."

Pageant officials hauled the women back to the stage. Miss Brazil, her $3,000 silk chiffon dress torn badly, and several of the other contestants wept hysterically. Others trembled with shock.

The section of the stage that collapsed was about three feet from Miss Sayalero, and one witness said the tall, brown-eyed beauty from Caracas was a heroine. When her throne tipped, she jumped up and pushed Miss Colombia, Ann Parra, out of danger.

"I was shaken and so were the others," Miss Sayalero told reporters later.

Wearing a dazzling white dress, hand-embroidered with hundreds of silver sequins, the beauty lamented that she would miss a year of her studies to become an architect. "But I will continue... I want to become an architect," she said.

Miss Sayalero will reign for a year and collect $18,500 in cash and other prizes.

There were 75 entrants in the international pageant.

Panel studies divisive SALT issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is sorting through the most divisive issues in the Salt II treaty in an effort to agree on some key policy stands, including the ability of the United States to deploy advanced missiles in the future.

The committee has completed two weeks of hearings into the terms of the pact, taking testimony from a long list of supporters, opponents and technical experts.

The hearings were continuing today and will continue, on and off, into September.

Senate sources who asked not to be named said the committee is acting now to adopt positions on possible reservations on which there is a consensus to head off possibly more drastic proposals by the Senate Armed Services Committee, which begins its own set of hearings Monday.

One concern that has arisen in the Foreign Relations Committee hearings is the possibility that temporary restraints on deployment of a U.S. mobile MX missile and U.S. cruise missiles could become a precept to permanently prevent the United States from adding the weapons to its nuclear arsenal.

The MX missile is intended to counter growing Soviet heavy missile systems which will make the U.S. minuteman ballistic missiles vulnerable to attack in the early 1980's.

The cruise missile is basically a pilotless airplane capable of being launched from air, sea and ground and which can be predicted to strike a fixed, long-range target.

Deployment of both missiles is restricted by a protocol which expires Dec. 31, 1981, four years before expiration of the treaty itself.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman, and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., its ranking Republican, suggest the Senate go on record to insist the protocol in fact does expire on that date unless the Senate extends it by a two-thirds vote.

Another proposed reservation under consideration would incorporate the verbal assurance given President Carter by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev that production of the Soviet Backfire bomber will be held to 30 a year and that the plane will not be given intercontinental capabilities.

The Soviets have insisted that the Backfire is not capable of attacking the United States and should therefore not be included in the treaty limiting strategic nuclear arms.

Suspect arrested in slaying

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — A man wanted in Texas for investigation of a mutilation slaying was to be returned from Wyoming to Texas today.

Casper police said the man, identified as Lynn Nicely, also known as Gary "Rusty" Webster and Lynn Weber, 32, was to leave Wyoming for Texas today.

He waived extradition during a hearing before Court Commissioner Duan Myres in Casper Thursday.

Nicely is wanted in connection with the 1977 mutilation slaying of a woman tentatively identified as 20-year-old Betty Shirley Webster of Greenwood, S.C. She was the second wife of Gary Webster, a former choir director and high school music teacher in South Carolina.

The woman's nude body, its arms cut off above the elbows and legs amputated below the knees, was found crammed in a 2-by-5-foot homemade casket in a Garland, Texas, mini-warehouse.

The mini-warehouse was rented in May 1978 by a man calling himself Lynn Weber, Garland police said. His handwriting matched Webster's, police said.

Mrs. Webster had not been seen since the fall of 1977, when she and Webster disappeared from Jacksonville, Fla., where he had been playing in a band.

Casper detectives, acting on a tip by Garland police, arrested Nicely at a Casper hotel Wednesday noon. Garland detectives arrived Thursday to question Nicely about the slaying.

DEATHS

Roger Wheelus

BIG SPRING — Services for Rogers Ray Wheelus, 46, were to be at 2 p.m. today in Sheppard Chapel of Memories here.

Wheelus died Thursday in a Big Spring hospital. He was born Sept. 21, 1932, in Winsboro, La.

He was an operator for Price Construction Co. He was a Baptist. He was a Korean War veteran and a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Judy Fennell of Snyder and Lynn Wickeliffe of Robert Lee; two sons, Ray Wheelus and Marvin McClanahan, both of Snyder; a sister, Helen Mathis of Monroe, La.; three brothers, W.H. Wheelus of Winstonsboro, La., Ralph Wheelus of Atlanta, Ga., and James Wheelus of Eldorado, Ark., his mother, Mrs. Henry Wheelus of Monroe, La., and two grandchildren.

Yale Edward Key

Yale Edward Key, 64, 2500 Seaboard St., a pioneer in the oil business in Midland, died Thursday in a Midland hospital following injuries sustained in a fall.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Dr. Daniel Vestal officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Key was born in Hot Springs, Ark., July 25, 1914. He moved to Texas at an early age and was educated in San Antonio schools and San Marcos Teachers College.

He moved to McCamey in 1936 to work in general insurance and automobile financing. He later bought the business and branched out in banking, oil well servicing and other businesses.

He owned Yale E. Key Oil Well Service Co., which he formed in McCamey in 1948. He continued to operate his business in Midland beginning in 1951, when he and his family moved here.

His company swabbed in the discovery well in the Spraberry field. He also "hydrofractured" the first job of that type in this area. At the time of his death, he was chairman of the board of the First State Bank in Crane.

He was married to Wilma Loving in San Angelo April 16, 1939. Mr. and Mrs. Key worked together until his death.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Catherine Key Emmert and Carol Key Dignan, both of Dallas; a sister, Marzelle Hall of Los Angeles, Calif.; a brother, Jack Key of San Antonio, and six grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Ed Staggs, Val Collier, Olan Brock, Ted Loving, Wayne Negley, Don Chaney and George Eng.

Honorary pallbearers will be J. Allen Rhodes, Donald G. Dwight, Bill Tully, Dr. Charles Harris and Paul Malone.

Bundy's lawyers to attack state's 'bite mark' evidence

MIAMI (AP) — Defense lawyers have found a dental expert who says Theodore R. Bundy's jagged, crooked teeth cannot be positively linked to a mark on the body of one of two sorority sisters he is accused of murdering.

Bundy's lawyers planned to open their case today with Dr. Duane Devore of the University of Maryland who says that at least five other sets of teeth could have made the same marks.

Public defender Lynn Thompson said the defense planned to attack the state's "bite mark" evidence. Two prosecution dental experts have testified Bundy's teeth match a bite found on 20-year-old Lisa Levy.

Miss Levy and Margaret Bowman, 21, were clubbed in their sleep and strangled by an attacker who slipped into the Chi Omega house at Florida State University in Tallahassee, Fla., on Jan. 15, 1978.

Two other residents of the Chi Omega house and a woman in a duplex four blocks away were beaten senseless that same morning. Bundy is being tried on charges of murder, attempted murder and burglary.

Bundy's lawyers said the defendant probably would not testify. "There is nothing at all to gain from it," Thompson said late Thursday after the state rested its case against the 32-year-old former Utah law student.

Presiding Judge Edward D. Cowart hopes to give the case to the jury late next week.

Prosecutor Dan McKeever, meanwhile, told a Salt Lake City television station it will be "difficult" to get a conviction.

Highway, Transportation Department schedules public meeting Wednesday

ODESSA — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has scheduled a meeting of the Policy Advisory Committee with the annual public meeting for the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the department's district office, East Highway 80 in Odessa.

The session will give members a chance for comment, review and approval of recommendations of various items that are required for continued certification of the transportation planning process.

Items on the agenda include reaffirmation of the Level II Transportation Plan, which includes the Midland-Odessa Transit Study and its supplement study — Midland's Transportation Development Program — to the area plan; reaffirmation of the Urban Transportation Planning Process Agreement and the Prospectus; adoption of the System Management Element; adoption of the Transportation Improvement Program and the annual Element and Unified Work Program.

Specific projects to be reviewed include those expected to be started within the next three to five years.

The Policy Advisory Committee includes State Rep. Tom Craddock of Midland, chairman; U.S. Rep. Richard C.

White of El Paso; U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock; State Senator W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, State Senator E.L. Short of Tahoka; State Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa; State Rep. Richard C. Slack of Pecos; Ector County Commissioner Willie Hammond; Midland County Commissioner Charles Welch; Midland Mayor Ernest M. Angelo Jr. and Odessa City Councilman Frank Childs. The meeting is open to the public.

Reactor repairs at Comanche Peak completed

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has reported that repairs to correct a misalignment problem with one of the reactor vessels at Comanche Peak nuclear plant have been completed, according to Winston Barclay with Texas Electric Service Co.

The most recent of the periodic NRC inspection reports on Comanche Peak concerns inspections made during the last two weeks of May.

The report also makes note of two potential problems identified by Texas Utilities Generating Co. — one involving pipe thicknesses and the other involving pipe hangers.

The reactor vessel problem was discovered by TUGCO in late February and reported at that time to the NRC.

Support pads for the reactor vessel at the plant's second generating unit were found to be out of alignment with the vessel.

The support pads have since been realigned and placed in proper positions, according to Barclay. Installation of the vessel on the new support pads was completed July 5.

The misalignment problem had no bearing on the safety of the plant, he said. Similar problems have occurred at other nuclear plants under construction, according to Barclay, serving as a spokesman for TESCO.

At first, it was estimated the repairs would cost about $500,000. However, the actual cost was less than half that amount, about $193,000, Barclay said.

One of the potential problems reported to the NRC concerns certain pipe supplied since May 1978 which may not meet the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' code requirements for wall thickness.

The second involves some pipe support hangers which may not meet requirements for withstanding seismic, or earthquake, criteria for the plant site.

TUGCO is investigating both matters to determine if problems do exist. The company will do whatever is necessary to ensure that the pipes and pipe hangers meet all safety requirements.

In the report, the NRC also reported on the progress made in improving welding at the construction site. A program has been under way at the plant to reduce the number of welds that have to be repaired or rejected.

The NRC reported "a significant improvement in welding performance with a comparable significant reduction in the amount of repair work required to obtain acceptable welds."

All welds must pass strict inspection standards before being approved. The NRC, to date, has found no defective welds among those that have passed final quality assurance inspection, according to Barclay.

The NRC inspection report will be available to the public in the Region IV office of the NRC in Arlington and in the public document room at the Somervell County Public Library in Glen Rose.

Comanche Peak is jointly owned by Texas Electric Service Co., Texas Power & Light, Dallas Power & Light and the Texas Municipal Power Authority. TUGCO acts as agent for the three companies in construction of the plant.

TWC approves permit

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission approved a permit renewal application for the city of Midland's waste water treatment disposal plant at Midland-Regional Airport.

The renewal is a routine matter, according to John Lowe, director of public utilities. The permits are issued only for a specific amount of time and then must be renewed.

The plant is authorized to dispose of up to one million gallons of sewage a day from the facility located adjacent to the northeast quadrant at the intersection of Interstate 20 and FM 1788.

The waste is discharged into Monahans Draw, then to Midland Draw, Johnson Draw, Mustang Draw, Beals Creek and into the Colorado River.

Billy Campbell

Services for Billy G. Campbell, 53, 4812 W. Storey Ave., will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Jim Bradshaw, pastor of the Wilshire Park Baptist Church, officiating.

Campbell died Friday at his residence.

He was born Oct. 22, 1925, in Powell, where he grew up. He attended school in Corsicana. A career military man, he entered the U.S. Army and served in Europe. He was a recipient of the Bronze Star for valor.

Campbell later transferred to the U.S. Air Force, retiring in 1965. He lived in San Angelo until 1969. He was employed with the U.S. Post Office for a short time.

Survivors include his wife, Beatrice; two sons, Charles W. Campbell of Dallas and Joseph B. Campbell of Austin; four daughters, Carolyn Rivera, Kathryn Conklin and Kelly Campbell, all of Midland, and Jean Long Haughton of Louisiana, his mother, Gertrude Campbell of Corsicana, and eight grandchildren.

H. Owens Jr.

LAMESA — Services for Howard Owens Jr., 60, of Lamesa were Thursday in the White Funeral Home Chapel in Tahoka with the Rev. Grover Hall, pastor of Sweet Street Baptist Church of Tahoka, officiating. Burial was in Lamesa Memorial Park.

Owens died Wednesday at his home following a brief illness.

He was born July 19, 1918, in Brownwood, and was married to Zola Mae Wommack on Aug. 15, 1938 in Robert Lee. He attended schools at Lometa, Maverick and Bronte. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Owens moved to Dawson County in 1938 and farmed near O'Donnell.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Teresa Owens of Arlington; two sons, Howard Carroll Owens of Lamesa and Harold Don Owens of Houston, and a grandchild.

Gloomy predictions about coming recession expected to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gloomy predictions about the U.S. economy's slide into recession during the second quarter of the year were expected to be borne out by the latest set of government economic data. Commerce Department figures being released today on gross national product — the total value of the nation's goods and services — were expected to show a decline for the first time since early 1978.

The nation's output, adjusted for inflation, showed a modest 0.8 percent growth in the first three months of the year after rising almost 7 percent in the vigorous, final quarter of 1978.

The last quarterly decline was recorded in the January-March 1978 quarter with a 0.1 percent drop.

A recession traditionally is defined as two consecutive quarters of "negative growth." And that's just what economists in and out of government say the United States is in for, if not more.

Growth figures are important because they reflect personal and industrial well-being, which in turn reflects the ability of Americans to get and hold jobs and acquire income.

The Carter administration, which for months denied that a recession was on the way, reversed itself last week and acknowledged that the economy was in for declining output, possibly through the end of the year.

The administration forecasts that gross national product, adjusted for inflation, will fall 0.5 percent in 1979. It rose 4.4 percent last year.

The deteriorating economic conditions, which Carter's advisers said could cost more than 1 million persons their job before December, was blamed on the impact of price hikes enacted by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

OPEC has raised prices by more than 50 percent since last year.

G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and President Carter's choice to replace W. Michael Blumenthal as Treasury secretary, gave an even gloomier forecast to Congress earlier this week.

Miller said the nation's output could fall as much as 2 percent this year and that as many as 1.4 million people could lose their jobs.

"It appears likely that they (the new Commerce Department figures) will indicate that real gross national product declined somewhat after advancing only marginally in the first quarter," Miller told Congress.

In other economic news Thursday: —The most recent Associated Press-NBC News poll found that more Americans than ever now say their families' finances have been damaged by inflation. Nearly one-third of those interviewed earlier this week said their families' financial picture had worsened over the last 12 months, the highest such response in three years.

—The Commerce Department reported that the personal income of Americans rose 0.5 percent in June. The total for wages, farm income, interest and dividends had risen 0.7

percent in May.

—The Treasury Department announced that it had discontinued its investigation of alleged below-market prices on imported Mexican vegetables. The anti-dumping investigation was stopped because Florida growers withdrew their complaint to see if the United States and Mexico could resolve the issue during discussions starting in August, the department said in a statement.

Dead man still gets three tickets

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — City police recently placed three parking tickets on a blue van parked in the downtown area before noticing the driver was dead in his seat.

A police spokesman confirmed Thursday that the van had accumulated three tickets last weekend.

But, said Sgt. Archie Hall, the man had suffered from multiple sclerosis, and a special device he used to lift himself behind the steering wheel had kept him partially out of sight.

"Because of the equipment, if you just glanced, you really couldn't see the man, unless you were looking very hard," Hall said.

Police finally discovered the body on Monday. His identity has not yet been formally established and the cause of death is still not known, but foul play is not suspected.

They won't fly DC-10 this time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About half the people aboard a National Airlines DC-10 that returned to Los Angeles after developing engine trouble refused to board a substitute DC-10, one of the passengers said.

Jane Manbach, a film executive who was aboard Flight 68 to Miami, said she was among those who decided not to get on the second DC-10 after the disabled plane returned to Los Angeles early Thursday.

...Do you sometimes get the feeling you scare people away? Are you tired of being brushed off as "cute and frivolous" or do people think you're too tough? People may be reacting to your hairdo, notes an article in the August 7 Family Circle on how to project the image you want through your makeup and hairdo.

As psychologist Judith Waters of Fairleigh Dickinson College, who was interviewed in the article, says, "Society has determined that certain looks have certain meanings."

David Daines, owner of Manhattan's Davian Salon, provides an example: "A woman with very severe short-cropped dark hair may make people tense when they first meet her, because what she is projecting is a tough, masculine image." On the other hand, bright blond hair, carelessly coiffed may be a way of telling people you're still not grown up, while severely pulled-back hair may send out a warning to the world to "stay away."

Makeup or the lack of it is also a clue to the image you are projecting. "A lack of makeup can mean poor self-esteem, a cry for help," says Dr. Waters. "Too much is frequently an attempt to recapture your lost youth."

Changing your makeup or hair may be the key to getting people to react to you differently or to bringing your appearance closer in line with your own self-image. To make people respond more warmly to the soft, feminine you, replace tightly pulled-back hair and dark eyeliner and pale skin with a softer hairstyle and color on your cheeks.

But, if you decide to change your appearance, even if others notice it immediately, it may take about a year before you get accustomed to the new you...

Anthony coin not circulating

—ADAMS, Mass. (AP) — The Susan B. Anthony dollar coin, introduced to American change purses nearly three weeks ago, is having trouble getting around in the famed suffragette' hometown.

Ms. Anthony, whose likeness appears on the new, light coin, was born in this western Massachusetts mill town in 1820, and many of her relatives live here.

"It's disappointing more people don't want to use it, especially after the big celebration and all," says Margaret Anthony, whose husband Ralph is one of the feminist's distant cousins.

On July 6 then-U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal came to Adams to dedicate a plaque and congratulate Ms. Anthony's relatives, several of whom live on rural West Road in the shadow of Mount Greylock.

Stella Hackel, director of the Bureau of the Mint, says 500 million of the coins have been produced and 300 million have been distributed nationwide since they were introduced July 2.

"Acceptance eventually will be good," she predicted.

But here and elsewhere the coin is causing confusion and attracting collectors.

The silver-colored coin is sometimes mistaken for a quarter, which is slightly smaller.

"You have to look at your money," said local bank manager Janet Zabeck.

Next week, she and other members of the Adams Chamber of Commerce will meet to discuss how to promote the coin. The Treasury Department has suggested poetry contests and bingo games.

Bankers say part of the coin's circulation problem lies with people who think the coin is pretty and distinctive — a great souvenir.

Consumers should be using the coins, not keeping them, said Michael Kwasniewski, president of the South Adams Savings Bank.

He said his first shipment of 2,000 coins lasted one day, with most of them going for keepsakes. The next batch of 2,000 has moved very slowly, he said.

William Foster, president of Coffee Time Vending Machine Inc., said he would not mind seeing the coin drop out of sight.

"I hate them," he said. "It's a pretty coin and certainly a tribute to Susan B. Anthony. But people are mistakenly using them for quarters" and jamming up his machines.

Poor circulation is bad enough, but last week a local coin expert revealed that Ms. Anthony is not even the first woman whose likeness has appeared on American money.

According to the expert, James R. Harrington, that honor already had been extended to Martha Washington, George's wife, and Queen Isabella of Spain.

Mrs. Washington made her appearance on the front of a $1 silver certificate in 1886. Ten years later, she shared top billing with her husband — she on one side, he on the other.

Isabella — the monarch who pawned her jewels to pay for Columbus' journey to the New World — appeared on a quarter minted to commemorate the Columbian Exhibition of 1893 in Chicago.

DEAR ABBY

Her 'real' father isn't real father

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-five years ago, when I was 2, my parents split up. My mother was an alcoholic and didn't want me. My father couldn't raise me alone, so I was given up for adoption. The only parents I have ever known are the wonderful couple who adopted me, loved me, gave me their name and a good life.

Recently, out of the blue, my "real" father contacted me by telephone and said he was coming out to meet me. I had always known I was adopted and thought it rather exciting to be meeting my "real" father.

I'm not sure what I expected, but this man was a terrible disappointment. He is a heavy drinker, smokes like a chimney, has had a rough life and looks it. The father who raised me is exactly the opposite.

Although I feel sorry for this stranger, I don't know how to tactfully discourage him from wanting more of my life than I want to give him. I'm grown up now and have no desire for a close relationship. I don't want to shut him out completely, but we have nothing in common and I see no basis for more than a distant friendship.

How would you or your readers handle this?—FOUND IN OREGON

DEAR FOUND: I would be respectful and courteous, carefully avoiding any phony expression of affection in order to make him feel better. Any pretense of feelings that are not sincere would be more cruel than kind.

DEAR ABBY: This is our first baby, and my husband and I couldn't be happier but, wouldn't you know it, there is a problem.

My husband absolutely, positively refuses to change our baby's diaper. He says he will do anything and everything in the line of housework, cooking, laundry, marketing, etc., but he simply cannot bring himself to change a diaper! He says that is a MOTHER'S job.

Abby, my husband is the dearest, sweetest, most considerate guy in the world, but his mind is closed on this particular subject and he will not budge.

What is your opinion?—IRRITATED IN IDAHO

DEAR IRRITATED: Diaper-changing is no more a mother's job than a father's. However, if he agrees to do anything and everything BUT, don't hassle the dearest, sweetest, most considerate guy in the world.

DEAR ABBY: A big thanks to you for warning people to never leave discarded refrigerators where youngsters can crawl into them and suffocate before they're found.

After reading that item I literally ran to our garage where mine is stored and removed the door as you suggested.

We have a 3-year-old and a 1-year-old, and I would never forgive myself if they became victims of such a tragic accident. I hope other readers did the same.—THANKFUL MOM

DEAR MOM: I hope so, too. But unfortunately, some will not. Read on for another life-saving letter on that subject.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote about her small daughter being found blue and nearly lifeless after having been trapped for hours in an abandoned refrigerator in a neighbor's yard.

Your advice was good, but parents should also be aware of the potential danger of refrigerators and upright freezers that are IN USE!

Children have been known to climb inside these (in basements) to "hide." They are equally as dangerous.—ALSO

Blind children experience circus

By CYNTHIA KADONAGA Associated Press Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The three-ring circus was only a blur of bright colors to the 50 blind children, but a radio disc jockey with a microphone put the acts into focus with his report.

In voices imitating cartoon characters Snagglepuss, Yogi Bear, and Tweetie Pie, 33-year-old Sonny Melendez of radio station KMPC gave blow-by-blow descriptions of the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey circus Thursday to his cheering audience from the Braille Institute.

spun from the ceiling by her hair, Natalie Orrell of Orange sat listening, and said she thought the woman had a blonde mane that reached to her waist like a fairy princess.

The children, from Los Angeles and Orange counties, listened to the commentary with earphones, and leaped from their seats to wave as Melendez said in an excited Snagglepuss lisp, "The clowns are all tumbling and walking around the ring. They're waving, kids! It's OK to wave back."

"But I can't see the monkeys," said 9-year-old David Myhren.

David, from the Orange County community of Orange, tugged in frustration at his black horn-rimmed glasses, and crumpled the name tag identifying his handicapped.

Melendez consoled the child, saying, "I'll help you see them."

The disc jockey, who also co-hosts the Emmy Award-winning ABC-TV show "Kids Are People Too," said the project was part of his continuing effort to encourage parents to spend time with their children. Melendez is leading a campaign to have Aug. 19 as national "Sunshine Day" in honor of children.

While thousands of other children saw bengal tigers jump across flaming sticks and acrobats swing across the rafters of the Inglewood Forum, the 50 blind children saw the same acts in their imaginations.

"These kids have wonderful imaginations," said Melendez. "They can see things in their minds that adults and sighted kids can't."

While Melendez described a woman who

Refugee meeting opens

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim opened a conference today on Indochinese refugees with a plea for concrete international action and a warning that the outcome "will literally involve the life or death of thousands upon thousands of people."

Waldheim called on the delegates from 50 countries, including Vietnam and China, to "refrain from acrimonious debate" so as not to interfere with relief efforts. However, he acknowledged that the problem "has political roots" and said the conference must "deal with the symptoms rather than a cause."

Waldheim organized the conference at the suggestion of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to seek aid for the hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese and Cambodians that the governments of Thailand, Malaysia, Hong Kong, Indonesia and the Philippines say they can't settle on their territories.

According to U.S. estimates some 57,000 Indochinese refugees made it to safety in Southeast Asian camps last month, while 20,000 to 60,000 were lost at sea.

In his opening remarks, the U.N. chief said the world was recognizing "the grave difficulties" posed by the refugee exodus on those countries which offer "first asylum" to the boat people. "It is essential, therefore, that the rest of the world act dramatically and in concert to ease in a major way the problems faced by the countries of Southeast Asia," he said.

The two-day session is expected to yield pledges from the United States and other Western nations to give refuge to more of the homeless and contribute more to the refugee camps.

A verbal battle between Vietnam and China was also expected. Many governments called in advance for Vietnam to stem the refugee flow, but Vietnam warned it would not be arraigned or cross-examined.

"It is urgent to adopt humanitarian measures right away for the refugees," said Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hein. "If there are those who wish to divert this discussion to the political scene, we will not accept the disapproval of other countries. We did not come here for diatribes."

"The question of Indochinese refugees is not a purely humanitarian issue," said Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Zhang Wenjin.

WORLD NEWS

Somoza to leave for better 'climate'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ousted Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza says he'll leave on a vacation by the end of the week because the United States has tried to draw him "into things over which I have no control."

Somoza said he won't return to exile in Miami until "the climate gets clarified." He would not reveal his destination, other than to say it "could be (in) this hemisphere or in Europe."

Somoza said by threatening to deport him unless his successor relinquished power, the U.S. State Department was "making me responsible for an act I had no control over."

USSR's Pravda comments

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said today that President Carter's Cabinet shakeup reflects the "emergency" now besetting the United States, particularly in the energy field.

Pravda carried a lengthy Washington-dated dispatch, largely referring to various U.S. news media accounts of the Carter administration unrest.

"American political observers agree that the extreme and unusual method of reorganizing the administration, as well as urgent measures in the field of U.S. energy policy ... are necessitated by the emergency and are a manifestation of deep, latent processes taking place in the country," Pravda said.

Egyptian airmen graduate

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A group of Egyptian pilots and weapons systems operators, being trained in the United States as part of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, will graduate here today from a seven-week English course in preparation for F-4 flight training.

The training was part of the $594 million sales package that sent 35 F-4E Phantom fighter-bombers to Egypt. The sale was agreed to as part of the Egyptian-Israeli peace accord.

Texans trapped in Managua

DALLAS (AP) — Surrounded by the military trappings of revolution, five Texans remained holed up in a small U.S. consular office today, awaiting transportation out of Managua, Nicaragua.

Jim Conley, a writer for the Abilene Reporter-News, has been trapped for three days, along with Abilene businessman Jack Cox and a three-man television film crew.

The group flew to Managua to do a film on the last days in office of former Nicaragua President Anastasio Somoza.

Somoza resigned and fled to the United States. Conley and his compatriots were not as lucky. Conley, Cox and the three-man film crew of David Dodge, Max Anderson and his son, Kirk, have been sleeping on the floor, eating chocolate bars, taking each other's pictures and telling stories to kill time.

"Truckloads of rebels and sympathizers drove by here waving to us, and now it's like a celebration," Conley said. "Everyone has turned into a rebel."

Supertanker in collision

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A supertanker and a small freighter collided in the Atlantic overnight, setting both ships ablaze and forcing the crews to abandon ship, the U.S. Coast Guard said today. Rescue efforts were underway this morning and 41 crewmen were reported picked up, including all those from the tanker.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the collision occurred between 7 and 8 p.m. Thursday about 20 miles east of Tobago.

The Coast Guard identified the ships as the tanker Aegean Captain and the freighter Atlantic Express. Both vessels are registered in Liberia, according to Lloyd's Register of Shipping.

The circumstances of the collision were not yet known, the Coast Guard spokesman said. It was not known how much oil the tanker was carrying.

Begin to remain hospitalized

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin is suffering from a slight blockage of an artery and will remain hospitalized for 10 days to two weeks, hospital officials said today.

"He is in generally good condition, but doctors discovered a clot in one artery that is causing fatigue and dizziness," said spokesman Azariya Rappoport of Jerusalem's Hadassah Hospital. Begin has a history of heart trouble.

Japanese photographer dies

TOKYO (AP) — Shoji Yamagishi, a former photography magazine editor and freelance writer, died today of a heart ailment. He was 51.

Yamagishi directed a New York Museum of Modern Art exhibition "New Japanese Photography" in 1974 and was a major influence in introducing Japan to foreign photographers.

Sandinistas move on Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leaders and guerrillas of the victorious Sandinista rebel movement converged on Nicaragua's capital from north and south today to tackle the monumental tasks of relief and reconstruction as jubilant crowds up and down the little Central American country celebrated the downfall of the Somoza dictatorship.

Two of the five members of the junta arrived in Managua with members of the new Cabinet from Costa Rica. The other three junta members were expected today from Leon, their provisional capital from early Wednesday until the remnants of the dictatorship capitulated.

Concluding a seven-week uprising, the Sandinista guerrillas took control of Managua early Thursday, two days after President Anastasio Somoza fled to Miami Beach and a day after his handpicked successor, Francisco Urcuyo, helicoptered to Guatemala.

About 700 guerrillas poured in from Leon, 55 miles northwest of Managua, and charged into the deserted Bunker, Somoza's military headquarters. Some grabbed weapons and uniforms. Others entered the dictator's apartment, and one guerrilla couple posed for photographers on Somoza's bed with a red and black Sandinista flag tacked up over the headboard.

A second column of 4,200 marched in from the southern cities of Masaya, Granada, Jinotepe and Diriamba late Thursday afternoon. Most camped in front of the Intercontinental Hotel adjacent to the Bunker. They said they were awaiting further orders and that many of them likely would be sent back to their hometowns after it was determined how many soldiers were needed in Managua.

There was no indication the guerrillas looted or molested Managua residents. Hundreds of local people picked up automatic weapons abandoned by national guardsmen who changed into civilian clothes and tried to blend into the civilian population.

Delighted teen-agers careened through town in cars and trucks, firing automatic rifles and pistols in the air. Thronged through the streets, shouting, "Victory has arrived!"

Junta members Daniel Ortega and Moises Hassan flew in about 5:30 p.m. on a chartered DC-3 from Costa Rica.

Raid in Zambia

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Troops and planes from Zimbabwe Rhodesia raided a black nationalist guerrilla camp in neighboring Zambia today, eight days before Queen Elizabeth II visits Zambia for a Commonwealth conference, the military command said.

A communique said all ground and air forces returned safely from the raid on "a terrorist re-supply base" at Sindi Plots, just across the border from the Zimbabwe Rhodesia town of Livingstone.

There was no immediate report of casualties in Zambia.

"This attack was to prevent an imminent terrorist crossing as well as to counter re-supply of terrorists within the country," the communique said.

Officials here have assured Britain they would mount no cross-border raids during the Commonwealth conference.

450 baby turtles airlifted to safety

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Government scientists rescued 450 baby turtles from a Gulf of Mexico oil spill Thursday, but couldn't fine the oil.

The scientists were in a specially equipped C-130 cargo plane, and their primary mission was mapping the oil spill resulting from a blown-out well off the coast of Mexico.

The airlift of the tiny Kemps Ridley sea turtle hatchlings was part of a joint effort by the United States and Mexico to save the endangered species from the runaway oil slick.

The oil has been gushing from the Ixtoc I, an exploratory offshore well owned by the Mexican government, at the rate of 30,000 gallons a day since a natural gas explosion June 3.

Experts from the Coast Guard and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration boarded the airplane Thursday to begin a systematic mapping of the spill.

Although the plane flew to within 13 miles of where the slick's leading edge was supposed to be, the observers said their instruments and visual observations found no sign of the oil.

Officials have reported no significant movement of the slick since aerial photographs located it about 300 miles south-southeast of Brownsville five days ago.

Marine biologists said the oil was headed for Playa el Rancho Nueva, an area of Mexico which is the traditional hatching grounds for the sea turtles, whose numbers have declined from more than a quarter million in 1947 to about 2,500 last year.

The turtles rescued Thursday with airlifted to Galveston. From there, scientists want to try to establish a new hatching grounds at Padre Island, according to Jim Woods, a biologist for the National Parks Service.

Meanwhile, scientists are on board the Coast Guard ship "Valiant" measuring the ocean currents off the coast of Tampico, hoping they can predict whether the oil slick is likely to head northward, toward the Texas coast.

They are to fly back to Corpus Christi today to compile their data, but officials said they probably wouldn't have an accurate interpretation until Tuesday.

A second research team has been working the Texas shoreline between Corpus Christi and Brownsville to identify areas which might be environmentally vulnerable should the oil reach the coast.

Carter sends EMB specs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter sent Congress Thursday his specifications for a new Energy Mobilization Board that would cut red tape and speed decisions on critical energy projects.

Bert Carp, a member of Carter's domestic policy staff, told reporters "specifications" were sent, rather than a draft of legislation, because similar bills already were before Congress and could be modified to match the administration's views.

The board proposed by the White House would be authorized to name "critical" energy projects and then establish schedules for federal, state and local agencies to review them and decide their fate.

If the agencies failed to meet the schedule, the board could make the decisions for them. But it could not reverse decisions made by other agencies if they meet their schedules.

Carp said the purpose of the board was to speed up decision-making, not to take it over.

Under the White House plan, the board could not waive existing environmental or other legal requirements for new energy projects.

But the board could waive new legal requirements adopted after construction begins on a critical energy project.

"I would be very surprised if this board is not in business by January," Carp said.

At the same White House briefing, presidential assistant Anne Wexler said work began Monday, the morning after Carter's Sunday night speech to the nation, on developing details of the energy legislative proposals to go to Congress.

Too much environmental overkill, asserts Wallace

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace denounced "radical environmentalists" Thursday in asking President Carter to restrict federal environmental standards to aid in energy production.

"We've had too much bureaucratic mismanagement, and environmental overkill, and too little national leadership," Wallace told oil and gas executives.

The Railroad Commission routinely set the statewide oil allowable for August at 100 percent. Starting in April 1972, Texas has had a 100 percent allowable every month except three.

As a result of the energy shortage, Wallace said, America has never been so "dependent on monarchs speaking foreign tongues."

Commission Chairman John Poerner noted that crude and petroleum products imports totaled 7,907,000 barrels per day for the four-week average ending July 6. This is 300,000 barrels a day below the ceiling proposed by Carter.

Wallace used a large map to show how Alaskan crude oil must be transported 7,000 miles by tankers past Cuba and through the Panama Canal to refineries on the Gulf and Atlantic coasts because of the lack of cross-country pipelines.

Wallace said a proposed pipeline from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, Texas, was "recently pronounced dead," and the proposed pipeline from Port Angeles, Wash., to Clearbrook, Minn., has been delayed for four years because of the "monstrous task of obtaining approximately 1,500 federal, state, and local permits."

The two pipelines could save consumers more than $2.5 million a day, Wallace said.

Also, he said, the construction of refineries from Maine to Virginia have been blocked by "radical environmentalists with shrill voices." Such delays, he said, are a "modern American tragedy."

"We're not out of gas because we're out of confidence; we're out of confidence because we're out of gas," said Wallace.

dence because we're out of gas," said Wallace.

"The National Energy Mobilization Board is an important step in the right direction if the president and the Congress do not want to make the hard choices," he added. "A bolder and more significant proposal by the president would have called for the restriction of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and the immediate lifting of price controls on all forms of domestic energy."

The executives applauded Wallace's remarks, and Poerner praised him for an "outstanding presentation."

As usual, in setting the allowable, production in the East Texas and Kelly-Snyder fields was restricted to 86 percent to avoid possible waste.

Nominations for Texas crude oil in August totaled 2,728,735 barrels a day, a decrease of 7,452 barrels a day from July.

Armstrong makes bid to exempt revenue for fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The windfall profits tax on domestic oil production should not apply to the revenue Texas receives for its permanent school funds, state Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong told a Senate committee Thursday.

The income Texas receives from oil and gas production on state land is placed in permanent school funds, and the interest on the body or "corpus" of the funds is used for education.

"Therefore, the application of any crude oil 'windfall' profits tax to royalties paid to states with respect to state school lands not only will reduce directly the amount of funds otherwise available to such states for their educational programs, but take away a part of the corpus that we have struggled to maintain," Armstrong said.

"These sales have never been taxed by the federal government," he added.

The House made state royalties exempt in the windfall profits tax measure it passed. The Senate Finance Committee presently is considering the proposal.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., asked if the federal government had the authority to tax another government in any event.

"To my knowledge, there has never been a tax levied on the sale of property belonging to a state," Armstrong replied.

He said exempting the state royalty from any windfall profits tax would affect eight-tenths of one percent of the total Texas production.

At the same hearing, industry spokesmen requested exemptions for independent producers and production from stripper wells. They warned that a higher tax will mean less exploration and lower production.

Strippers wells are those which maintain an average daily production of 10 barrels or less.

Mobil oil raises gas allocation

By The Associated Press

Mobil Oil Corp. said Thursday it was raising its gasoline supplies to 100 percent of last year's levels for the remainder of July and for all of August. Under the new allocation plan, Mobil dealers will get 87 percent of the amount of gas they got last year.

The move represents a 3 percent increase in July allocations, now running at 97 percent of 1978 levels.

Industry analysts attributed the action to increasing supplies and declining demand in recent weeks, due in part to odd-even gas rationing plans in several states. Mobil said it had also obtained additional supplies of gasoline, but did not specify the source.

Spot checks Thursday indicated gasoline should again be in adequate supply this weekend, but the outlook for the end of the month was less clear as some service stations had been expected to begin running short of July allocations.

Odd-even restrictions remain in effect in 10 states and the District of Columbia, and officials say there are some indications that the rationing may have a long-term effect on driving habits.

In California, the nation's most populous state and the first to institute odd-even rationing this year, freeway traffic is down about 3 percent while use of mass-transit is up from 14 to 20 percent.

"As long as people continue to cut back on their driving, everything will be cool," said Nikki Case of the California Transportation Department. "But if people starting driving like they did in the past, then we could run into some problems."

In the Washington, D.C. area, odd-even rationing began on June 21, and officials reported a surge in mass-transit use and a corresponding decline in auto volume on major commuter highways.

However, as more gasoline becomes available, the trends appear to be reversing itself. Local officials report traffic is increasing and area merchants say weekend sales are returning to normal levels.

A spokesman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey said traffic on the six bridges and tunnels between the two states was down 7.5 percent last week from the same time a year ago. He said the figure has remained steady for about a month, since both states put odd-even rationing into effect.

While the gasoline situation has improved for New Jersey motorists, some service station operators are complaining that government regulations have cut into their profits.

A caravan of about 70 station owners parked their cars and wreckers outside the state Energy Department offices Thursday to register a protest over the federal government's 15.4-cent-a-gallon profit ceiling on gas sold in the state.

Moon landing anniversary is celebrated

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years after he became the first man to step on the moon, Neil Armstrong stood before the Apollo 11 command ship Columbia today and said he would take the flight again "in a minute."

Michael Collins said he would go again too, "but it would take more than a minute to get ready."

Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin, who has suffered mental depression, alcoholism and the breakup of two marriages in the last decade, said, "I'm not sure I would go again."

Armstrong and Aldrin, who walked on the moon July 20, 1969, and Collins, who waited in orbit in Columbia, discussed their historic flight at a news conference and posed for pictures in front of the command ship, on display at the National Air and Space Museum.

They also were to attend a public ceremony on the Mall and a trip to the White House to present President Carter with a small American flag they had taken to the moon.

Armstrong opened the news conference with a statement hailing American space achievements in the last decade.

"We can hope the next decade can be marked by equally or even more striking projects," he said.

"We are looking forward to flights of the space shuttle starting next year with great expectation. It can lead to many advancements in space and hopefully to a permanent space station in earth orbit."

Aldrin spoke at length about the problems that have made his life a personal hell since his return.

He no longer suffers from the mental depression that he had in the early 1970s, he said. It was not until 1975 that he realized alcoholism had been creeping steadily into his life and that he had become an alcoholic, he added.

Aldrin said recently that he hasn't had an alcoholic drink for some time. He said today that he recently made a decision that he wants to use his experience with alcoholism to help others with the disease.

"Apollo 11 may have been a small step for Neil, but it was a big hurdle for me," he said. "That hurdle led to alcoholism and I'm not the same person I was 10 years ago."

"Now," he said, "I feel quite comfortable and at peace with myself and the world."

More than 500 million people watched on television as Armstrong climbed down a ladder, planted a boot in the dusty soil and reported: "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind."

Aldrin followed minutes later. Together, the astronauts uncovered a plaque that read: "Here men from the planet Earth first set foot on the moon... We came in peace for all mankind."

They erected an American flag, talked by radio-telephone with President Richard M. Nixon, collected rock and soil samples and after about two hours returned to Eagle. The next morning, after 21 hours, 17 minutes on the moon, they blasted off to rejoin Collins in Columbia for the trip home.

They were welcomed as heroes and thrust into an exhausting year-long round of public appearances that disturbed all three men, none of whom liked the limelight.

"That eventually took its toll emotionally," Aldrin said recently.

Armstrong gained the privacy he sought in the academic world. He is now a professor of aerospace engineering at the University of Cincinnati and lives on a farm.

Collins became a public affairs specialist for the State Department, then director of the National Air and Space Museum, overseeing its construction and development as one of Washington's top tourist attractions. He is now deputy director of the Smithsonian Institution.

Dallas policemen use pedal power

DALLAS (AP) — Hopefully hidden among the growing number of Americans trying to beat the gas shortage by riding bicycles is a small squad of Dallas police astride two-wheelers, wearing canny camouflage to blend in with their surroundings.

Pedaling among the populace, the officers are hard-pressed to conceal their handbags and walkie-talkies beneath their shorts and polo shirts.

They're an experimental unit whose members concentrate on problem areas like shopping centers, and there's usually a regular squad car with uniformed officers nearby in case things get hairy.

And in a society where most police chastise citizens who don't want to get involved, the pedal patrol doesn't want to get involved.

"If we see something going on, we can call a patrol unit to the scene so that we don't have to get involved," said officer Brian Faulkner. "We'd rather do that."

While most undercover police operations shun the limelight, the bicycling policemen think it can help them.

"People have to have second thoughts now about continuing their illegal operations if someone on a bike drives by," said officer Ray Ball. "It may be an officer."

Lt. J.L. Williams said the fledgling program has been under way for about three weeks, and only about 20 arrests have been made by the pedalers.

"We still need to work on some problems, like the time of day we use them," Williams said. "Sometimes the heat is too bad to send someone out there. But it has been very effective with residential burglaries and with thefts of auto accessories. Overall, we're pleased with the program. It helps morale and is a nice change in a normal routine for an officer."

There are identity crises.

Ball said he caught a man stealing gas from a car and summoned uniformed officers to the scene. "But it turned out that he was stealing it from his friend's car, who came out there and didn't want to press charges," Ball said. "After I left, I found out that he asked, 'Who's the creep on the bicycle that turned me in?' So even after it was all over, he still didn't know that I was an officer."

Aside from the pleasant change of pace, the program also offers side benefits.

"My wife thinks I need the exercise," Ball said.

Cubs lose Tracy to Wichita

BY TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

Jim Tracy's quest for a Texas League triple-crown, batting, rbi and home run titles, ended suddenly Thursday and you couldn't blame the Marietta, Ohio, College product if he greeted the news with mixed emotions.

His promotion to Wichita of the AAA American Association meant a promotion, but he is leaving a league where he had a chance to accomplish a rare feat and a team that is in the thick of the pennant race.

Tracy left this morning to report to his new club,

Cubs at home
Tonight 6:30 p.m., 2 games—Cubs vs. Captains, Two-Bit Beer Night.
Saturday 6:30, 2 games—Cubs vs. Captains.

leaving behind a .354 batting average, 15 homers and 66 rbi.

Wichita will dispatch first baseman Gary Krug, who was with Midland briefly last year, to take Tracy's place, although General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., wasn't sure he would arrive in time for tonight's doubleheader with Shreveport.

"I think they wanted to see how Tracy would do in AAA and Krug has been in a slump the last two weeks and they feel a shift to Midland may help him snap out of it."

Krug, 24, 6-4, 210 from Colorado Springs, Colo., played at the University of Oklahoma and joined the Cubs from Bakersfield, Calif., late last season to bat .364, hit three homers and knock in 14 runs in 18 games with Midland. He had hit .318 with 103 rbi at Bakersfield before reporting to Midland.

Despite the slump,

Krug was batting .271 with seven homers and 39 rbi at Wichita.

Rained out of a doubleheader, Rigney rescheduled twinbills for tonight and Saturday, both 6:30 p.m., and was checking with Texas League President Carl Sawatski to see if a game could be made up here Sunday, since both teams have open dates.

"There was so much water on the field Thursday, there were actually waves in centerfield," Rigney said. "I'd never seen it like that before. When we called the game Wednesday night, I checked with the weather bureau to see what the forecast was and they told me it would improve. I've since found out the weatherman is a duck or raises cotton."

Of course, another rainout today would mean the Cubs would have to make up any games rained out here on the trip to Shreveport, a prospect Manager Randy Hundley would just as soon avoid.

Jim Tracy...quest ends.

Cowboys no longer go for 'best athlete' in pro draft

By BOB OATES
The Los Angeles Times

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Of the 14 teams in the National Football Conference, 10 have never played in the Super Bowl.

On the other hand, one AFC team has been there five times. This is Dallas, which is favored again. It will be the Cowboys' sixth Super Bowl in 10 years if they make it once more this season.

What keeps the Texans up there?

"A big reason, I think, is the kind of players we have now," club president Tex Schramm says. "Our scouts are stressing different things in this era (since Dallas lost four straight title games in the late 1960s). When your goal is to become a contender, which is when you're just coming up, you concentrate on getting good athletes. But to win AFC and NFL championships, you need something more; good athletes who also have two other things: intelligence and character. We found this out the hard way."

A decade ago when the Cowboys "couldn't win the big one," they lost two NFL title games to Vince Lombardi's Green Bay team in 1966-67 and two Eastern championship games to Cleveland in 1968-69.

"Those were four tough losses coming one after the other," Schramm says. "And analyzing them, we began to see a correlation between intelligence and mistakes, particularly under pressure. We decided to abandon the policy that had got us that far — drafting the 'best athlete available,' on each round. Instead, we deliberately set out to build a team with the qualities and characteristics needed to win big games, the no-tomorrow games. Since then we've watched other teams draft an average of seven first-round players a year that were on our reject board. But we've got character and intelligence in all positions now. And I'm convinced that's a big reason for our consistency."

THIS IS the 20th anniversary year of the Cowboys, who have reached the playoff round a record 12 times in the last 13 years. Founded by Schramm in 1960 and coached since then by Tom Landry, they have spent their most recent 17 summers on the practice field in Southern California at California Lutheran College in Thousand Oaks.

As their leader, Schramm is the man who hired Landry and made the difficult decisions that took the Cowboys to the top. By turns hard-boiled and affable, the Dallas president is the NFL's most fluent philosopher. "The pro game today," he says, "is so sophisticated that you can't play it on physical ability alone no matter how much ability you have. The no-tomorrow games at the end of the season are won by the teams that combine character and intelligence with physical skill."

How do football coaches define character?
"It's the quality that gives a man internal strength," Schramm says. "The strength to rise under pressure, to fight back, to preserve when (Continued on 4D)

Chisox sweep 2 from Texas

ARLINGTON Texas (A) — The Chicago White Sox are 12 games out of first place in the American League Western Division and seven games below .500, but they can't blame the Texas Rangers for their fifth place standing.

Chicago rapped out 26 hits—including five home runs, two triples and six doubles—Thursday night in battling from behind twice to sweep a doubleheader, 9-6 and 5-4.

It was the White Sox' 10th victory in 12 games this year, and over two seasons Chicago is 9-4 at Arlington and 12-2 at Chicago for a 21-6 record.

"We sure hit the ball well tonight. It's nice to do that. Maybe the three days off helped us," said Chicago manager Don Kessinger.

"We've been very fortunate against Texas, but they're a great ball club. I'm very happy with the wins we've had, but in spite of our success against them, no, I wouldn't want to have to play them every day."

RALPH GARR hit a two-run homer in each game and added a single and double in the first contest. Jorge Orta hit a double and triple in both games and Lamar Johnson hit a three-run homer to win the first game, then came back with three singles in the nightcap.

"I've been making good contact and swinging the bat good all year, but tonight I was finding the holes," said Orta who tripled in the eighth inning of the second game and scored on Johnson's single for what proved to be the winning run.

Steve Trout, 4-3, won the first game after surviving a shaky first inning in which the Rangers scored three runs and got half their hits off him.

Ken Kravec, 9-8, was the winner in the second. He gave up only five hits, including three home runs. A two-run shot by Richie Zisk and a solo homer by Pat Putnam gave Texas an early 3-1 advantage.

Ed Farmer, who as a Ranger gained notoriety several weeks ago when he disabled two Kansas City batters in a single game by hitting them, came on to pick up the save in both games. It gives him three saves for the season, all against Texas since the Rangers traded him.

JIM SUNDBERG'S infield single loaded the bases in the ninth right after Kessinger summoned Farmer in the first game, but he struck out Larvell Blanks to end the game.

Farmer rescued Kravec after Buddy Bell's homer in the eighth inning of the second game move to within 5-4.

Astro nosedive continues

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For better and for worse, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Houston Astros both picked up where they left off before the All-Star break.

"You've got to play like this to win a pennant," Phil Garner said Thursday night after he, Willie Stargell and John Milner rapped homers to help the surging Pirates sweep a doubleheader from Houston 9-5, 4-2.

"We're going through one of those things," said Friday's British Manager Bill Virdon of the Astros, sagging leaders in the National League West.

The Pirates, winners of four in a row and eight of their last nine games, climbed to within 2½ games of first-place Montreal in the NL East.

"We're a second-half ballclub, and we're excited at being this close," said Pirate second baseman Rennie Stennett. "We know we have to play September ball from now on, and we know we have the club to do it."

over Cincinnati. "We're not putting runs together," Virdon said. "Our pitching wasn't really that bad tonight. The long balls made the difference."

Art Howe had four hits for the Astros in the opener, to no avail. "We're still on top. Once we get things together, we'll widen that lead again," Howe said.

"Myself, I'd like to play Cincinnati the rest of the year to find out who is better."

In the nightcap, Milner hit a first-inning homer and Bruce Kison blanked the Astros on four hits until the ninth, when he needed relief help from Grant Jackson.

Milner's homer followed Tim Foli's single off loser Joe Niekro, 13-5.

HOUSTON, by contrast, has lost 10 of its last 11 games, and its lead in the NL West has been cut to four games things are tough. It gives him the courage or whatever it is a football player needs to play as well as he knows how to play when it's third down, fourth quarter, he's tired, beat, and the game is on the line. Somehow he finds the strength to go the extra step, to live up to the promise of his physical ability at the moment when that ability counts the many details as possible on a college player's background. Put it in a word, they have to be alert. They're constantly aware of this intangible that has so much significance. You can usually tell when a college coach is impressed by a player's attitude. Beware of the player whose coach talks about him this way: 'He's a great athlete, but...'

Character and intelligence win the big ones

In recruiting for the Cowboys, do you regard character as more important than intelligence?

"No, we have a way of saying our intelligence standard is inflexible whereas we'll take a chance on character. Assuming 100 is the IQ dividing line, I don't mean we'll automatically throw out a 99. But we'll think about it. And if on balance the basic intelligence doesn't seem to be there, we'll pass."

What exceptions do you make?

"Let's say we have a prospect from a school that might be suspect academically. If the player comes in from that college with an intelligence grade that is a bit below what we want, we might take him anyway. The theory is that he might have done better at a better school. But if he has gone to a good school and had all the advantages and still doesn't measure up, we'll pass. A dummy just can't play NFL football today."

What's different there?

"Every Sunday a Dallas player lines up against a professional athlete who's getting his big chance this year to whip the big guy. He's up against an athlete who can make his whole season by outplaying the Cowboys. It takes character to handle that kind of pressure day in and day out."

How do you determine whether college prospects have the character you want?

"It's like anything else. You work at it. Your coaches and scouts pay attention to it and they're ready to make sacrifices to get it. They write off the kid with great talent and not much character. Most of the burden is on the scouts. They've got to do a job of talking and listening to the people with whom they're involved on each campus. They have to dig out as most. Whatever all that is, that's character."

Why is this more rewarding to the Dallas Cowboys than it is in any NFL game between, say, 500 teams?

"Well, it's rewarding anytime, but it isn't so essential to the 500 guy. Nothing much is expected of him. He's a hero if he wins a few games and he can do that on ability alone. But to keep winning championships in a football conference requires a different kind of guy: one with the character to keep putting out, week after week, through a long arduous season, knowing he'll be judged on one thing only, whether he wins the last game."

It doesn't seem all that difficult to a spectator.

"It is, though. To take one simple example, it's imperative in offensive football for a wide receiver to run the same route about the same way each time. But we've found that below a certain IQ, a player can't even learn to do that. The correlation between intelligence and mistakes in this game is definite and obvious."

Is it possible to have too much intelligence to play it well?

"I don't know if it's too much intelligence or too much what, but some players can't adapt to the repetitions that are necessary in practice to get smooth execution. We've had more than our share of players retire prematurely."

Don Meredith and who else?

"Blaine Nye is a Stanford professor now, Don Perkins, Bill Walton's brother Bruce, too. Tall Jones. There've been others."

In fact, I can recall at least one ex-Cowboy who was known as a character, not for it. What about flukes you've had?

"That's your word, not mine. But, yes, some of our players over the years haven't been typical Cowboys — Duane Thomas, Pete Gent, Jean Fugett, Calvin Hill. On today's teams, Hollywood Henderson isn't typical, though personally I find him delightful."

Roenicke, Flanagan give O's split with Angels

By The Associated Press

Gary Roenicke drove in two runs to back Mike Flanagan's six-hit pitching as the Baltimore Orioles beat the California Angels 3-0 and split Thursday's two-night doubleheader between the American League's division leaders.

The Angels won the opener 4-3 in 11 innings with Dan Ford driving home the winning run with a single following an error by shortstop Kiko Garcia. Doubles by Roenicke and Rick Dempsey snapped a scoreless tie in the fifth inning of the nightcap and Roenicke's two-out double scored two more runs.

In the opener, California scored three runs in the first inning, two on Willie Aikens' homer, and the Orioles scored three in the ninth. In the 11th, Rick Miller singled, Ford delivered his tie-breaker after Garcia dropped a throw from pitcher Dennis Martinez on an attempted force.

In Texas, the Chicago White Sox rode Ralph Garr's pair of two-run homers to a 9-6, 5-4 twinbill sweep of the Rangers.

Brian Doyle drove in three runs to back the six-hit pitching of Luis Tiant as the New York Yankees beat Oakland 10-2.

Ben Oglivie's homer in the ninth tied it, then Sixto Escobar's 11th-inning homer powered Milwaukee past Toronto 3-2. Lance Parrish drove in three runs and unbeaten rookie left-hander Pat Underwood won his fifth game to pace Detroit to an 8-3 victory over Minnesota.

The Cleveland Indians took advantage of Kansas City pitcher Dennis Leonard's first-inning mistakes and beat the Royals 2-1.

In Los Angeles, Steve Yeager, Joe Ferguson and Dave Lopes homered and Bert Hooton scattered six hits as the Dodgers beat Montreal 7-3 and snapped a five-game losing streak.

In Chicago, Atlanta's Jeff Burroughs hit a tie-breaking single in the fifth-inning and a homer in the Braves' 8-2 victory over the Cubs.

Ray Knight drove in six runs with a grand slam homer, a single and a sacrifice fly, pacing a 19-hit assault that powered Cincinnati to a 16-4 rout of St. Louis.

John Curtis of San Francisco six-hit the Philadelphia Phillies to chalk up his second straight 1-0 victory, and Dave Winfield's 23rd homer carried San Diego past the Mets 3-1.

Rosen quits; Cosineau jumps

Eighteen-year-old Vic Wilk found himself behind before he began, but that didn't stop him from advancing to the quarterfinals of the U.S. Public Links golf championship with a 2-up win over Tony Grimes, Safford, Ariz., and today's quarterfinals. Jeff Short of Van Nuys, Calif., takes on Dennis Walsh of Groves, Texas, in another quarterfinal match. Short was down three holes with five remaining but rallied to down Gene Parr of Minneapolis, 2-up in the third round while Walsh beat Art Diaz, Phoenix, 3-2. In other third-round matches, Jodie Mudd of Louisville, Ky., defeated Jim Blandford of Scottsdale, Ariz., 3 and 2; Lawrence Perkins of Allentown, Pa., topped Robert F. Hawkins of Tacoma Park, Md., 4 and 3; Biancalana defeated Art Robidoux of Brunswick, Ohio, 2 and 1; Eric Mork of Wichita, Kan., downed Michael Taylor of Milwaukee, Wis., 2 and 1, and Thomas Hines of Lehigh, Hawaii, edged Ken Kelley of Waller, Texas, 1-up...

George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the Yankees, began looking for a new president after Al Rosen resigned "to explore several other business opportunities." Rosen said "contrary to speculation, I have not, nor will I, accept any of those business opportunities in the near future." Rosen's resignation, which had been rumored for several days, apparently was triggered by a dispute between Rosen, Steinbrenner and manager Billy Martin... Steinbrenner

Willie Wood and Corey Pavin continued toward a semi-final showdown by winning the first two matches Thursday in the Western Junior golf championship. In other match play action, Mark Brooks of Fort Worth, Texas, lost to Billy Tuten of Palatka, Fla., 5-4. John Corzilius of Wilmington, Del., had to survive two extra whole matches to reach the third round, including longest of the day—a 24-hole victory over Florian Wade King...

An Aug. 6 trial date has been set for the damage suit Rudy Tomjanovich filed against the Los Angeles Lakers after being punched by a Laker during a Dec. 9, 1977, game. Tomjanovich will ask a jury to hold the Lakers liable because of the actions of Kermil Washington, former Laker now with San Diego. After the one-punch affair during a Lakers home game, Tomjanovich underwent surgery for nose, jaw and skull fractures and missed the remainder of the 1977-78 season...

Central, Okla., State University has decided to drop out of the NCAA Division II and become a member of the NAIA this fall. Charles Murdock, CSU AD, said "one of the major factors in our decision to drop our dual membership in the NCAA and NAIA was the January Division II meeting in which the NCAA passed a rule requiring its membership to play 50 percent of their football and basketball games against other Division II schools. This creates a big problem for us because the people we play are NAIA people. There are no Division II schools in close proximity to us..."

Travs, Diablos split

Gene Dotson's three-run home powered the Arkansas Travelers to a 4-1 Texas League baseball victory over the El Paso Diablos Thursday night. The Diablos, however, rebounded in the second game to take a 4-2 victory.

In the only other Texas League action, Tulsa beat Amarillo, 7-1 as Dave Pennill singled and Fred Tisdale reached base on an outfielder's error before Dotson's second inning homer. The other Travelers run came when Neil Fiala tripped and Joe DeSa drove him home with a single.

100 letter-writers share beef(s) with this editor

By JULES LOH

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Well, Ron Dillman somehow pulled it off again. He threw his annual bash, a dinner for the town's 100 angriest, most outspoken, most critical citizens, all collected in one room. Dicey. Yet not a single fist fight broke out, not even a respectable shouting match.

The event was his yearly Letters-to-the-Editor banquet.

"It never crossed my mind that anything untoward might happen," Dillman said.

"This was our 16th banquet. Every one has been a pleasant, stimulating occasion. Don't forget, these are thoughtful, concerned people."

My, yes. They are the ones who remind us to pray, feed the birds, be temperate and fly the flag on the Fourth.

But they are also the rare ones in this impersonal society who are willing to discipline their thoughts, write them down, sign their names, take the heat and be involved.

In an age of letter-writing machines and recorded phone answers, real human beings who actually take pen in hand fall in the category of an endangered species.

Ron Dillman is the addressee. He is editor of the Commercial-News, the target of the thoughtful, concerned messages that appear daily under the heading "Your Views."

A sampling: "Your readers may be uninformed but are not as dumb as you think." So began Dan Brown's letter. Dan was at the party.

"Where do you get off?" wrote Sandra Purdy. "How can you tell people how to live? Who do you think you are?" Ms. Purdy was at the party, too.

"I personally am sick and tired of reading letters in your paper written by Allen Keith Jr.," wrote R. L. Winland. Reader Winland was there. Reader Keith, prudently, was not.

Obviously, Editor Dillman admires plain speaking.

Those are the sort of letters, out of about 899 his paper receives each year, that earn their authors a chance to eat beef (appropriately) with Dillman and his staff.

The idea of throwing a party for the 100 "best" letters was that of a former editorial-page editor, Bob Wright, since retired. Ron Dillman went for it in a hurry.

"We're serious about involving ourselves with our readers, finding out what they expect of us," he said.

"Every two or three months, we pick about 50 citizens at random, sometimes just take names out of the phone book. We invite them to a restaurant and ask them to tell us what we are doing right and what we are doing wrong."

"We call these meetings accountability sessions. Sometimes they get downright nasty."

The Letters-to-the-Editor dinner was far from nasty.

It was fun. And with such a guest list, conversation was bound to sparkle. Dillman had a reporter stationed at every table, listening.

"You bet we listen," Dillman said. He pointed out one of his dinner guests, Arthur Wade.

Reader Wade had addressed Dillman's "unforgivable sin" of replacing "Our Boarding House" with "Marmaduke" on the comics page and suggested he poll his readers when such "monumental changes are contemplated."

Dillman polled his readers. Major Hoople returned.

Firm finds Carter's orders save both energy, business

By LES SEAGO

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — For a company that wouldn't believe fans had gone the way of the buggy whip, President Carter's call for energy conservation is icing on a cake already layered by nostalgia.

Electric fans are selling so fast the 1,100 employees of Memphis' Hunter Fan Division of Robbins and Myers Corp. are having problems keeping up with demand. Joe Harriman, Hunter's fan product manager, said this week, "Our business is 68 times what it was just a few years ago."

One reason for the fan's revival today is simple economics.

"You can operate a ceiling fan for the same money as a 60-watt light bulb," said Harriman. "They supplement air conditioning. You can set your thermostat on 80 degrees, like the president wants us to do, and a fan can make it seem like 72 ..."

Company policy prevented him from saying just how many fans the firm produces. But he said the biggest seller is a ceiling fan straight out of the pre-air conditioning days when they were part of the decor in drug stores and neighborhood groceries.

"It's hard to believe," Harriman said. "The energy crisis didn't precipitate this, but it isn't hurting us at all."

Hunter has been making electric fans of all types since 1903. The ceiling fan has been its mainstay all along. But until recently, most of them were sold abroad.

"We exported most of our ceiling fans to Africa and India," Harriman said. "It may have been our fans you saw in the (Humphrey) Bogart movie 'Casablanca.'"

The electric-fan business was becalmed when air conditioners became common. People began closing their windows and learned to get along without the soothing hum and cooling breezes of a fan, Harriman said. But about 10 years ago, the bug began biting.

Man pays for phone

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — An elderly well-dressed gentleman walked into a suburban office of General Telephone and paid for an illegal phone extension that had been in his home for 20 years.

He called himself John Doe and he left $160 with the startled Phone Mart clerks.

"He just walked up and asked how much an extension rotary phone would have cost 20 years ago," said customer representative, Joan Petersen. "It kind of shocked me. I've only been with the company for nine years."

"I said I thought it was 70 cents a month and he started multiplying," she said. "He said 'I knew this was wrong, but I did it to satisfy my wife', and then he pulled out a wad of new $20 bills and he said 'I feel this will cover it.'"
