Proposal nixed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s proposal to end the University of California's role in nuclear weapons development was rejected Friday on a 15-7 vote of the UC regents.

He was applauded by anti-nuclear demonstrators, some of whom, in protest after the vote, sat in front of an exit — forcing several regents to climb over them — or lay on the ground outside to symbolize death from nuclear war.

The university, a leader in the development of nuclear weapons, holds a $3.5 million Department of Energy contract to supervise the labs.

Bundy 'on own'

MIAMI (AP) — Unhappy with the way a team of lawyers was handling the case, Theodore R. Bundy took over his own defense Friday midway in his trial on charges of murdering two sorority sisters.

The former law student complained early in Friday's court session that he felt "closed out" of his own defense by the battery of four public defenders and one court-appointed attorney.

At that time Bundy backed off from assuming his own defense after presiding Judge Edward D. Cowart warned him, "A lawyer that represents himself has a fool for a client."

But the 32-year-old defendant returned from the midday recess and told Cowart, "I would like to take you up on your offer and proceed as my own counsel."

Attack told

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli commandos disguised as Arabs came ashore in rubber dinghies before dawn Friday and killed three Palestinians and a Lebanese driving past on a coastal highway. Lebanon's official news agency reported.

Israeli gunners also shelled Palestinian positions in the foothills of Mount Hermon as Israeli maintained pressure on the Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

A communique issued by the joint command of the Palestine Liberation Organization and leftist Lebanese forces said three guerrillas were injured and the Israelis suffered "heavy losses." The Lebanese news agency said all four occupants of the vehicle attacked by the raiders with hand grenades and machine guns were killed.

The Israeli command issued a brief statement in Tel Aviv saying four guerrillas were wounded and all of the Israeli soldiers returned safely to base. It did not say how many soldiers were in the landing party.

Is Carter creating 'palace guard'?

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — This was going to be an administration with no White House palace guard looking over the shoulders of Cabinet members. President Carter apparently has changed his mind about that.

For those government chieftains who have survived or emerged in Carter's Cabinet purge, there seems to be a message: If you like your job, it would be wise to get along with the inner circle of the White House staff.

"I would not form a secret White House palace guard," Carter said during his 1976 presidential campaign. "I would not have anyone within the White House try to administer the affairs of the executive branch."

At least part of that remains operative. Carter hasn't kept his palace guard a secret. His closest aides are the real power center of the administration. Hamilton Jordan is chief of staff. Press secretary Jody Powell and congressional liaison man Frank Moore are secure. Nearly half the Cabinet is gone.

Two of the casualties, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano Jr. and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, were marked for ouster because of friction with top Carter aides.

Califano said the president told him that was one of the reasons he was to go, and that another was to get the administration ready for the 1980 campaign. He also said Carter described him as the best HEW secretary in history.

Califano said he wasn't told just how his departure served the campaign goal. "I cannot divine their motivation," he said.

One theory is that the liberal Califano, who had waged an ardent campaign against cigarette smoking, had become a liability in the South, where Carter's home base does not appear nearly as secure now as it was in the last election.

But it is hard to see how Patricia Roberts Harris, who will become the first black ever to head HEW, and who is at least as outspoken a liberal as Califano, will be any more of an asset among conservative southerners. Her promotion certainly should help Carter's standing with blacks and with women.

Whatever the political reasoning, Mrs. Harris is regarded as a team player. Califano wasn't. There were repeated reports of friction with the Carter staff at the White House. Califano didn't hit it off with Jordan. And Jordan, the new chief of staff, is not a good man to cross these days.

So, too, with Blumenthal. He'd been feuding with the White House inner circle for a long time. Sources close to Blumenthal said his troubles stemmed in large part from the fact that an arm of the Treasury pursued one of the most vigorous investigations into the financial dealings of Bert Lance, the Carter confidante who resigned as budget chief after his personal banking practices were challenged.

Lance now is under indictment on charges of bank fraud, conspiracy and misapplying bank funds.

Carter also called in the promised resignation of Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger Jr., who had said he knew he was a political liability and would get out before the 1980 campaign. He also had his troubles with some Carter aides and with Congress.

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell resigned, too, but he had announced earlier that he wanted out.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams put a reverse spin on the process. Adams, a former Washington congressman with Senate ambitions, virtually invited the president to fire him by declaring his independence in the middle of the shakeup.

While he had done some wrangling with Jordan and other Carter aides, he's kept quiet about it. He said Thursday he had been told he could stay in the Cabinet. But he also was told he'd have to get rid of his top aides.

Adams then went public, announcing that he might resign unless he got administration commitments on transportation policy and an assurance of direct access to the president by members of the Cabinet. He made the same request of Carter personally on Friday.

Adams said that when he couldn't get the assurances he sought, he quit.

His demand runs afoul of the new system in which chief of staff Jordan is to decide which officials and which issues get to the president.

'Rare' storms ignite brush fires, flood parts of California deserts

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Rare summer thunderstorms in the California deserts Friday touched off dozens of brush fires and unleashed flood waters that damaged hundreds of homes, washed away roads and a bridge and were blamed for at least one death.

At least 500 homes near Palm Springs were damaged by mud, and the floodwaters knocked out power, sewage and telephone service, authorities said.

In the southern Sierra Nevada, at least 35 lightning-caused fires were reported in Kern County brush and grasslands and an additional 21 fires were reported in Sequoia National Forest.

The largest burned 1,000 acres on Pampas Peak 12 miles east of Bakersfield and "is still growing," said Capt. Ron Marshall of the Kern County Fire Department.

Winds of 30 to 35 mph hampered control, Marshall said.

A body was found in a partially mud-covered car that had been swept into the normally dry Whitewater River Wash in Rancho Mirage, east of Palm Springs, authorities said.

Damage in the Coachella Valley was estimated at several million dollars, said a Riverside County sheriff's spokesman. Rancho Mirage, the hardest hit community, was declared a disaster area by the Riverside County Office Disaster Preparedness Office.

Although the rain had eased by late morning, the National Weather Service predicted more rain and thunderstorms Friday night and early Saturday, decreasing later in the day.

"There are 500 homes hit, some with three to four feet of mud in them," said Riverside County Fire Capt. Pat Kerrigan. "The rain sent the mud down into the canyons, where there are large residential tracts and they were the ones hardest hit."

Heavy damage was reported in Palm Desert, Indian Wells, Cathedral

City, Thousand Palms and Desert Hot Springs.

At least 40 persons were evacuated before dawn Friday from flooded homes in La Quina and there were reports of dozens of others being trapped in Palm Desert-area homes by the cascade of water and mud.

"Apparently the area is flooded and there's a lot of water in these homes," said Riverside County sheriff's Deputy Ralph Woodworth. "Nobody is in immediate danger, but we haven't gotten to them yet."

The storm system, fueled by moisture from the Gulf of California, raged along a several hundred-mile path up the eastern section of the state from San Diego north to Kern and Inyo counties 200 miles north of Los Angeles.

The Palm Springs area, where 2.52 inches of rain fell in a six-hour period overnight, took the brunt of the downpour.

'Depressed biochemist' thwarted in hijacking attempt

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A depressed biochemist pretending to have explosives and saying he wanted to go to Cuba hijacked a United Airlines 727 jet carrying 126 persons from Denver to Omaha on Friday, authorities said. He was arrested about 2½ hours after the plane landed in Omaha, and passengers and crew were freed unharmed.

The hijacking ended abruptly at 4:30 p.m. CDT when two FBI agents boarded the plane through a passenger ramp and forcibly subdued the 36-year-old hijacker, who was wearing blue jeans, tennis shoes and a plaid shirt. The FBI said the man had claimed to have plastic explosives but was actually unarmed.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar said in Washington that the hijacker was tentatively identified as Ronald Allan Rimerman. The FBI said he was a biochemist at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center in Portland.

Farrar said Rimerman had been undergoing mental treatment for depression, but "he appeared to be getting better and was going to Omaha to see his parents." Farrar said when the plane was seized, the hijacker demanded to be taken to Cuba.

"We tried to be as patient with the thing as we could and take just as much time as was necessary to minimize the danger to everyone, including Mr. Rimerman," said agent Richard Held of the Omaha FBI. "We just waited for the best moment."

U.S. Attorney Edward J. Warin of Omaha said Rimerman would either be held in jail or in a psychiatric facility pending arraignment before a federal magistrate, possibly on an air piracy charge, Monday.

The 118 passengers and four flight attendants had been released as soon as Flight 320 landed at Eppley Field in Omaha at 2 p.m. CDT. The hijacker remained aboard with the captain, first officer and second officer, the FBI said. The flight had originated in Boise, Idaho.

Throughout the 2½-hour stand-off, FBI agents were in radio contact with the plane and police SWAT units were on the scene.

The FAA said it got first word of the hijacking at 12:17 p.m. MDT, as the plane was over Hayes Center near McCook, Neb.

One of the freed passengers, Phil Steffen of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, said he had no indication anything was wrong until the pilot addressed the passengers from the cockpit.

"The pilot said there was an unwanted person in the cockpit," Steffen said.

He said sounded "low key," but added, "He must have been pretty damn nervous the way he put that plane down in Omaha and the way we bounced."

The last domestic hijacking was on June 20, when Serbia nationalist Nikola Kavaja seized a New York-to-Chicago American Airlines jet.

Stantonites still look to pumps to relieve flood

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Backed-up waters which flooded 15 to 20 blocks on Stanton's southside and seeped into at least 29 houses "in varying degrees" had receded somewhat by Friday night, said Stanton City Manager Mike Rhea.

But Rhea still was trying to contact the U.S. Department of the Interior's Geological Survey to turn on water injection pumps at the city's catch basin. This would shoot the water underground, causing a reversal of the flooding.

The catch basin, commonly known as Lake Pauline, was created in the mid-1960s by the federal government to catch runoff of heavy rains, which had tended to cause flooding. Pumps were installed in the low area, which the government had made much deeper by digging the lake, to prevent flooding.

And Rhea said American Red Cross representatives were to meet with victims of the flood from 9 a.m. today to "whenever" at City Hall. The representatives will ascertain damage, note needed goods and supplies, determine how the Red Cross might aid the victims and distribute food, if needed, Rhea said.

The representatives again will be at City Hall, which is off the courthouse square on the northside of the railroad track, from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Rains which caused limited flooding in Stanton also led to flooding at Andrews and Lamesa.

Water damage at Andrews was caused by further backing up of the lake in Lakeside Park on the city's west side. Damage was minor.

Before Thursday's rain, the lake had been flooded by previous rainfalls.

Several houses were flooded in low-lying areas in Lamesa. But water, which had reached up to 10 inches deep in at least one house in the north part of that city of 12,000, had receded by Friday night.

"Everything is in good shape now," said Dawson County Deputy Sheriff Jim Nance. "But it wasn't a big deal."

"If it had kept raining, we would have gotten in bad shape, but everything's in good shape," he said.

Water, however, still was flowing down the normally dry Sulphur Draw and into the usually dry Forrest Park. Some rural roads still were flooded in places, said Sammie Jackson, communications officer for the Lamesa Police Department.

In Stanton, a town of 3,000 people, water reached up to four feet high in some houses, including mobile homes, Rhea said.

The catch basin started filling up June 1, when about six inches of rain fell over the city, Rhea said.

At that time, the runoff filled the catch basin. Rhea said he initially tried to contact the Geological Survey officials at Lubbock to get the pumps working to empty the basin.

He got no response. Since then, evaporation caused the basin's water level to drop by half.

But the heavy rains Thursday and the resultant runoff allowed the basin to fill up and overflow.

"If the basin had been dry, we probably wouldn't have been flooded," Rhea speculated.

The city manager said he will continue trying to contact the Geological Survey to get the pumps running. The pumps are routinely maintained by the Geological Survey, he said, but nobody in Stanton knows how to operate them.

"They (Geological Survey people) periodically come down and service the pumps, test them and everything," Rhea said. "We just haven't seen them when we needed them."

He said if the Geological Survey doesn't come to the rescue soon, "I'm going to find out who I can write a nasty letter to."

"The city doesn't have direct contact with the pumps," he said. "We don't operate them; we don't maintain them. I wish we did now."

Rhea said that "nobody has any hope for a successful dramatic lowering of the water" any time soon.

In addition to preventing any flooding, the basin was created and the pumps installed to help "replenish" underground water supplies.

Rhea said he suspects some of that water is slowly seeping underground, but not nearly fast enough.

"Once the hole (catch basin) filled up, it just started rising slowly." The basin is about 35 to 40 feet deep and covers 10 to 12 acres, Rhea said. The backed-up waters also flowed over the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. tracks and on to U.S. Highway 80, which runs parallel to the tracks and through Stanton. About half to three-fourths of a mile of U.S. Highway 80 was flooded.

Funds to be presented

Money raised by a gym-a-thon sponsored by the Muscular Dystrophy Association in May will be presented in September during the televised Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Midland School of Gymnastics, which raised the most money in the local event, will present the money.

The gym-a-thon was held in Dellwood Mall in May and raised $1,200. Participating were 20 girls ranging in age from 2 1/2 to 14 years.

Cheryl Limmer, 12, ranked first with $190. Second was Angela Seltzer, 4, with $175. Coming in third was Valerie Shelton, 5, $173.

The winners will appear on the local segment of the Jerry Lewis Telethon in September.

'Drying' time to begin in area

After bailing out from the latest deluge, Midlanders can expect Mother Nature to start her drying out process today and Sunday.

But Mother Nature gave Midlanders one final brief shower about 7:30 p.m. Friday. The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded .01 of an inch from that quick downpour.

The weatherman still predicts a chance for showers and thunderstorms for this weekend. Probability for rain stands at 20 per cent.

Southeasterly winds should blow somewhere in the range of 10-15 mph.

In other parts of West Texas, the weather should remain the same as before the July watering — hot and dry.

This brings the annual precipitation rate so far this year up to 9.71 inches — more than halfway past the total for the entire year. The average rainfall for the Midland area is about 13 inches yearly.

The record high for a July 20 is a simmering 104 degrees in 1936, far higher than the 81 degrees Friday. The record low for July 20 is a comfortable 62 set in 1959, slightly below the 66 degrees recorded Friday.

Going head over heels in preparation for an appearance on the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon, to be broadcast in September, is 4-year-old Angela Seltzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seltzer, 2312 Fannin St. Miss Seltzer won a second place trophy in a Muscular Dystrophy Gym-a-Thon in May by raising $175 for doing 25 backward rolls nonstop. Krueger confident of appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Krueger, waiting for Senate confirmation of his nomination as ambassador-at-large for Mexico, says he is not worried about announced opposition to his appointment.

"I've seldom had 100 percent," the former Texas congressman said in an interview in his temporary State Department quarters.

Krueger lost a tight and bitter Senate race last fall to incumbent Republican John Tower, said he has no doubt he will be able to show the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the new position is necessary.

Two committee members have objected to the addition of an ambassadorial position, saying U.S.-Mexican relationship needs streamlining instead.

"The government needs one more ambassador-at-large about the same way the Senate needs a new office building. The fact is that there are already too many people working on our relations with Mexico and this as much as anything else probably accounts for the sad state of the relationship at this time," Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., said.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said naming an ambassador-at-large is not the way to smooth the bumps in the U.S.-Mexican relationship.

Krueger, 43, of New Braunfels, said he has been told the confirmation hearing tentatively will be held Friday. The date depends on the committee's completion of its Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty hearings.

"I'm certainly looking forward to the position," Krueger said. "The expectation from the start was this was someone who was to be a coordinator of U.S. policy."

Krueger said a coordinator is necessary because issues concerning Mexico crop up in almost every federal agency. No other country presents the breadth of foreign policy issues that Mexico does, from river salinity to narcotics, immigration and energy, he said.

"I think the appointment reflects the key importance of U.S.-Mexico relations, not only now but for the future," Krueger said. He insisted that the appointment is not a gesture to the importance of Mexico's new energy resources.

The new ambassador-at-large also will be working with the increasingly vocal Mexican-American community.

Krueger met Thursday with national leaders of Mexican-American organizations and said he was "very pleased" with the results.

Raul Yzaguirre, president of the National Council of La Raza, said he would have preferred the appointment of a Hispanic as ambassador-at-large, but he was satisfied with Krueger's nomination and planned to support it.

Since word first circulated of his pending nomination, Krueger said he has been preparing for the office by brushing up on his Spanish, reading about Mexican history and current issues, and meeting people.

He traveled to New York City for a dinner meeting Wednesday with former Mexican President Miguel Alemán.

Although reluctant to discuss issues before the confirmation hearing,

Krueger said he expected the first topics coming to his attention after Senate confirmation would be the trade question of imported Mexican winter vegetables, negotiations for U.S. purchase of Mexican natural gas and preparations for the next meeting between President Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

The position of ambassador-at-large is a reflection of increased interest in Mexico and not a remedy for neglect, Krueger said.

"I'd rather say that I think foreign policy is in part the reflection of generalized public awareness."

Change in electric bills favored

DALLAS (AP) — Public Utility Commission Chairman George Cowden said Friday he will support removing the fuel adjustment from Texas electric bills.

Cowden, speaking to the fourth annual Public Utilities Conference sponsored by the University of Texas at Dallas, also said he wants to step down as chairman of the commission but remain a member of the panel.

"I really would prefer to give that portion of the burden and responsibility to someone else," he said.

Cowden said Gov. Bill Clements is expected to name a new commissioner to replace outgoing commissioner Alan R. Erwin any time. Erwin resigned last month and has been called to Washington where Cowden speculated Erwin may be named to a position there.

Cowden also hinted at a shakeup within the PUC, saying he hoped that staffers who "don't work and don't contribute" will be ousted.

He predicted increased pressure against nuclear power from Texans, but added the PUC does not expect to change its position from supporting nuclear power.

Cowden blasted Texas utilities for failing "at every level to communicate with customers."

As for the National Energy Act, Cowden said the PUC does not "accept it blindly."

Some Texas legislators, he said, would just as soon ignore all of the program's requirements.

"I think sometimes the Department of Energy suffers from the 'right-hand-doesn't-know-what-the-left-hand-is-doing' syndrome," he said, citing a lack of consistency in the DOE's directives.

"One of the most significant things about (PUC's) rating on Wall Street is that we are consistent," he said.

"Consistency also has a positive effect on the ultimate cost to the consumer."

"Our position is to do and to adopt what we consider is appropriate for Texans," he said. "Texans are first in our minds. We expect to be cooperative but not to be bulldozed."

Midland County grand jury returns indictments on eight

Eight persons were indicted by the Midland County grand jury when it met earlier this week. Included in that list was an indictment on a charge of murder against Raymond Wesley Mathis.

Mathis, 20, 1408 S. Dallas St., was charged with murder earlier this week in connection with the Wednesday shooting death of U.S. Army Sgt. J.B. England, 39, of Marion, N.C.

England was found Wednesday sitting against his van 10 miles east of Midland on Interstate 20. He had been shot in the face. England was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital where he died about 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Law enforcement officers arrested Mathis later in the day.

Mathis is in Midland County Jail in lieu of posting a $150,000 bond.

Also indicted by the grand jury was William Robert McGrann on a charge of theft over $10,000. He is free on bond.

Separate indictments on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle were returned against Edward C. Grierson, George William Hester and Ronald Joseph Hester. Grierson is in custody in Florida, but the other two men have been released on $5,000 bond each.

Suzanne Elaine Kennedy Kirk was indicted on a charge of credit card abuse. She currently is free on $5,000 bond.

Johnny Lee Williamson was indicted on a charge of driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense. He is free on $4,000 bond.

Hugh Ryan Cooper was indicted on a charge of forgery by making. He is in the county jail in lieu of posting a $2,500 bond.

Addresses and ages of all those indicted were not immediately available.

Grand jurors also passed five cases and returned no bills in four others.

Australian teenager collects $10,000 for Skylab scraps

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A shy Australian teen-ager on Friday collected the $10,000 bounty offered by the San Francisco Examiner to the first person who turned in pieces of the wayward Skylab space station.

The money went to Stan Thornton, a 17-year-old trucker's helper, after a federal laboratory determined the handful of black nuggets he scooped up in his backyard was indeed Skylab debris.

Thornton turned the $10,000 check nervously in his shaking hand and stared with frightened blue eyes at the gaggle of reporters in the Examiner offices who pressed him for comment on his fortune.

"I'm glad it landed in my backyard," managed the youth from the tiny town of Esperance in sparsely populated western Australia.

Scientists from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration laboratories in Huntsville, Ala., spent nearly a week testing the charcoal-like bits found near Thornton's home.

On Friday they told the Examiner that they had determined the pieces were probably souvenirs of Skylab.

"Although there is no scientific proof that the materials came from Skylab, neither is there scientific proof that they did not come from Skylab," the experts concluded, according to Examiner columnist Jeff Jarvis.

And for Jarvis and his paper's promotion department, that verdict was "good enough for us."

They declared Thornton the winner of the $10,000 prize since he was the first person with Skylab fragments to reach the Examiner office within 72 hours after craft crashed on July 11.

Just as NASA could not predict exactly where or when the doomed Skylab would plummet to the earth, the space agency had a tough time making a precise analysis of the fragments found by Thornton.

"The examination of some of the pieces did strongly suggest that the remnants could have come from elements of the Skylab that were made from wood. Both hard and softwoods were used in Skylab as thermal insulators and cushioning materials," said NASA's W.R. Lucas.

"Other debris from entry 0021 (NASA's tag for Thornton's nuggets) give indications that they are pyrolyzed electrical insulating material."

Jarvis, who chronicled the contest for the afternoon paper, translated: "Pyrolyzed means burned."

Thornton said he'd most likely use his windfall for a "caravan (trailer) or for a down payment on a house" near his parent's home. His parents and girlfriend were en route to San Francisco.

While waiting for his find to be analyzed, Thornton had been seeing the city from cable cars — when he wasn't being besieged by autograph hounds. The visitor from the Australian backlands was clearly overwhelmed.

"I'd heard of San Francisco, but it's a little bit bigger than I thought," Thornton said.

DEATHS

Velma Rodgers

BRECKENRIDGE — Services for Velma Rodgers, 69, of Breckenridge, sister of Roy L. Breeding of Midland, will be at 10 a.m. Monday in the Wilson-Miller Funeral Home chapel in Monahans. Burial will be in Monahans Cemetery.

Mrs. Rodgers died Wednesday in a Breckenridge hospital following a short illness.

She was born Oct. 14, 1909, in Tuscola. She was married to Fred Franklin Rodgers March 7, 1929, in Breckenridge. She was a member of the Breckenridge Church of Christ.

Other survivors include two sons, two brothers, 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Odd-even sales easing gas ills, Clements says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday the odd-even system has "taken the pressure off" gasoline sales in metropolitan areas but 78-degree thermostat settings might do more harm than good.

"It's going to work hardships on some," Clements told a news conference about President Carter's decree of 78 degrees in government and public buildings. "It's going to make work efficiency go down.... Some people may just not be physically able to do it."

Clements said reports of gasoline availability shows "our crunch on the gasoline situation has eased in the metropolitan areas and the 17 counties where the odd-even system is in effect."

Clements said he had not transferred any gasoline from rural counties to metropolitan areas as he once said he might.

"Our studies showed there is an amount that could be moved from rural areas, but the distributors were reluctant to do it and bucked the problem back to me, and I find that I am reluctant to do so also," Clements told his weekly news conference. "As a result there has been no gasoline or diesel moved from rural to urban areas and no action in that regard."

Clements said he was still convinced that Texas oil producers are producing 100 percent of their capacity and "I am convinced some of our oil fields are being overproduced."

He said he based his statement on his personal knowledge of the oil business and his contacts in the industry. He said oil firms do not report the potential output of their wells and the Texas Railroad Commission does not have such data.

"I think we may have a right to demand such figures but there are some in our group that disagree," he said of the Texas Energy Advisory Council, which includes most major statewide officials.

"We are trying to determine if we want to go to the companies and try to force them to reveal their production figures. If we are overproducing there could be a loss of pressure in the reservoirs that would leave oil in place that never could be recovered."

Reactor's builders not 'proud of performance'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top executive of Babcock & Wilcox conceded Friday his company must "sharpen" its evaluation of safety issues, and termed regrettable the burying of internal memos that might have prevented the Three Mile Island accident.

John H. McMillan, vice president of nuclear power generation for the Virginia-based company that designed the reactor for the Three Mile Island power plant, testified before the presidential commission investigating the March 28 accident in Pennsylvania.

McMillan was asked repeatedly about the company memos that warned as early as 1977 about procedures that could lead to uncovering the reactor core.

Babcock & Wilcox designed eight other nuclear reactors around the country besides the one at Three Mile Island.

"I'm not proud of the performance in this particular issue," McMillan told the commission. He blamed communication problem and false assumptions by some managers for the fact the memos were not acted on quickly.

Commission investigators made public the Babcock & Wilcox documents which showed that company engineers in late 1977 and in 1978 warned that confusion by reactor operators when to turn off emergency cooling pumps during an accident might lead to the reactor core being uncovered.

Those concerns were not passed on to utility companies served by Babcock & Wilcox until last April, a week after the Three Mile Island accident near Harrisburg, Pa.

At Three Mile Island, operators shut off the emergency cooling pumps because they thought too much water was going into the cooling system when in fact there was too little.

McMillan said he considered that action "probably the most significant" single contributor to the severity of the accident. But he insisted that operators at Three Mile Island had available emergency procedures which should have told operators not to shut off the emergency pumps.

Those procedures, McMillan continued, should have "eliminated any concern" such as that expressed by two B&W engineers in 1977 and 1978.

The explanation, however, did little to soften criticism by several members of the commission.

Chairman John G. Kemeny called McMillan's comments a "typical reaction by a bureaucracy." He told reporters the commission must determine whether the nuclear industry should "have fundamentally different attitudes" in the way it treats such matters because of the severity of possible consequences.

Earlier, Commissioner Harry McPherson, a Washington lawyer, told McMillan he was deeply concerned that impor-

Shrimp studied for effects of oil slick on Gulf wildlife

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Scientists from the National Marine Fisheries Service began collecting shrimp Friday from boats docked at four ports along the Texas coast to try to determine the current effects of oil in shrimp.

The data will establish the current level of hydrocarbons in the shrimp's tissue to compare with other samples if a massive runaway oil slick ever reaches the U.S. coast, said Coast Guard spokesman Richard Griggs.

Scientists collected several one-pint containers of brown and white shrimp from boats docked at Galveston, Aransas Pass, Freeport and Port Isabel, Griggs said.

The samples will be frozen and stored in sterile containers.

Meanwhile, experts from the Coast Guard and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration continued to chart the movement of the oil, and scientists aboard the Coast Guard ship "Valliant" studied the flow of the ocean's currents.

Oil has been seeping from an exploratory well, Ixtoc I, at a rate of 30,000 barrels a day since a natural gas explosion June 3.

Jane Fonda denied Arts Council post

SACRAMENTO, Calif (AP) — The California Senate Friday overwhelmingly rejected actress Jane Fonda's appointment to the state Arts Council after one senator accused her of treason.

The 28-5 vote against Miss Fonda broke a blockade forged by Senate Democratic leaders to keep the appointment in committee and avoid an embarrassing defeat for Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Brown's appointment of the controversial actress, one of his close political allies, sparked strong opposition in the generally conservative Senate because of her crusade against the Vietnam War.

"Any person in the time of a war effort who gives aid and comfort to the enemy waives the right to serve in any appointive position of state government," said Democratic Sen. Ruben Ayala.

Sen. Robert Nimmo, a Republican, said that by his standards Miss Fonda was "guilty of having committed an act of treason."

Opponents were sharply critical of Miss Fonda's visit to North Vietnam during the war. Supporters argued that Miss Fonda, two-time winner of the Academy Award for best actress, was fully qualified to sit on the commission and accused critics of unfairly labeling her a traitor.

Rejection by the full Senate of the appointment will force Miss Fonda to leave office within 60 days. If the appointment had remained in committee she could have stayed on the commission until the end of the year and been reappointed by Brown.

The Arts Council, one of Brown's pet projects, issues grants for development of the arts in California.

Terrorist priest supports freedom through violence

By CATHY HORYN

CHICAGO (AP) — Stevan Kajevich is a priest and a terrorist.

He believes in God, in a life hereafter, in the sacredness of human life. He also believes in killing other human beings.

He sees no contradiction in being able to both serve God and bomb the home of a Yugoslavian consulate, an act that last month sent him to prison for 12 years.

"To me it's very natural," Kajevich said. "You cannot cut a human being in half: this part is political, this part is religious. We are the same people. The Western world doesn't understand this."

The 43-year-old Serbian Orthodox priest says he wonders if people living in the free world really understand freedom. You seize freedom, according to his ideology, even if it means violence.

Kajevich's ideologies and influence are so strong that on June 20, a Serbian comrade, Nikola Kavaja, hijacked a jetliner en route to Chicago and demanded the priest's release from jail.

When I talked to him on the telephone they connected to the plane, he told me he did it because of me," Kajevich said. "I didn't discourage or encourage him because I know he has a lot of pride. You have to treat him sensitively because he has been under a lot of strain."

Kajevich was not freed, and Kavaja, after releasing the passengers, forced the airliner on to New York. There he changed to a second plane and continued to Ireland's Shannon Airport, where he surrendered.

Two days later, on June 22, Kavaja and Kajevich were sentenced for the 1975 bombing of the diplomat's Chicago home.

Kajevich is jailed at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in downtown Chicago, awaiting action on his appeal.

An intense man with piercing, dark-brown eyes, Kajevich expresses little regret for past deeds. He also realizes that a man steeped in Christian teachings does not become a terrorist overnight.

"But I was pushed into such a corner," he said in an interview last week. "And I questioned, frankly, what happened to this person, Dr. Stevan Kajevich, who never believed in these things."

As a young man, Kajevich says, he felt violence was not a proper means to freedom. He felt freedom was based on love and harmony. He stuck to that belief after fleeing Yugoslavia in 1963 to escape the persecution he felt there and pursue his dream of study abroad.

But then, Kajevich says, he learned that agents of Yugoslavian President Josip Broz Tito had tracked down his Serbian friends in Western countries, sometimes killing them because they spoke out against Tito's communist government.

Kajevich says he, too, was threatened while studying theology in France and after delivering anti-Tito speeches in the United States, where he had come in 1965 to serve in the Serbian Orthodox Church.

"You ask yourself, what happened to me, a man educated in Christian thinking?" Kajevich said. "If I recall Christ's sermon, if someone slaps, turn the other cheek. And I did. I was slapped over and over."

"And then you say, well, 77 times I can forgive. But I could go no further. I'm not Christ! I am just another mortal human being."

Kajevich says murder repulses him. But he quotes Biblical passages and Oliver Cromwell to support his philosophy that "evil is a constant threat to good...and rarely can be annihilated by good."

To the Western world, he says, the evidence of foreign agents persecuting militant Serbians and their disliked but equally committed Croatian counterparts is scant. But Kajevich says it is obvious when emigre terrorists bomb, kill and hijack in the name of patriotism.

"If you don't lose freedom, you really can't understand the meaning of freedom," Kajevich explained. "We grow differently than you: We develop our egos and personalities under circumstances of suffering, while you in the West develop under logical and harmonious foundations."

In short, he says it is almost impossible for people living in Western countries to understand and accept the fact that Serbian nationalists feel they must resort to violence.

RELIGION

Scientists, religious scholars seek answers

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The conversations are searching, the ideas and analyses weighty, the questions basic.

What is Man? His purpose? What is technology doing to him and his world? Are the effects in keeping with life?

That's the type of probing discussion going on here at an international assembly of scientists and religious scholars, seeking ways toward a just, sustainable society in the face of spiraling technology.

"We need to develop a clearer model of just what man is," a biologist told a group on genetic manipulation. "Who is he? It's impossible to tell what modifications are in order unless you define what he's supposed to be."

The group is one of 10 special sections discussing aspects of the relationships of science, nature, God, humanity, manipulation of life, technology, energy, industry and environment, economic and political power.

Between general sessions with internationally-noted lecturers, the groups sit through long meetings, drafting and revising reports that will be offered at the end of this 12-day round of mingled religion and science, now in its eighth day.

"There's been a kind of rapprochement between the two fields here," said nuclear physicist David J. Rose of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where the meeting is being held. "That reintegration is very important. We realize that our modern problems cover the whole spectrum of reality."

Former Midlander named district superintendent of Methodist Church

Dr. Luther Henry, a former Midland resident and a minister in the United Methodist Church, recently was appointed Fort Worth District superintendent of the United Methodist denomination.

Henry is the first black district superintendent in the Central Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Son of Cordelia C. Adams of 1622 E. Magnolia Ave., Henry is a 1958 graduate of Carver High School here. He received his bachelor's degree from Huston-Tillotson College and his divinity degree from the Interdenominational Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga.

He held pastorates in Alabama and at Temple, Waco and Dallas before becoming associate director of the Conference Council on Ministries. He became director of the CCOM in 1974.

Henry has served on the Texas Methodist Planning Commission, the United Communications Council of Texas and New Mexico and as a trustee of the Mt. Sequoyah and Wesleyan homes.

He has worked with the national division of the Board of Global Ministries of the UMC and taught one sum-

Pickets sometimes parade on the campus outside, protesting nuclear power, nuclear arms or technology in general.

MIT opened an exhibit Thursday in tribute to the meeting, depicting new frontiers of science. A graffiti board erected for the delegates showed a touch of humor with such scribbles as these:

"Don't you know the mind can absorb only as much as the seat can endure?" This jibe at the predominance of males, "Men — they're not worth the women they're made of."

Meanwhile, the group discussions roll on. One session analyzing "the two orders of knowledge" — science and religion — produced argument over which could be most fully verified.

"The object of faith is verified in individual experience while science is backed empirically at the public level," an African delegate said. But an American physicist contended:

"The verifications of both the place in communities of shared assumptions and understandings, but in neither case does community consensus protect from error. Maybe we both should be more tentative and not so propositional."

Asked a British science student participant, "Is love a scientific phenomenon or not? Is it empirical? Neither science nor faith is true to what it says unless it embodies love."

Said another delegate, "Believing in invisible black holes in the universe is little different from believing in an invisible God."

FBI investigating kidnapping of religious cult member

DALLAS (AP) — FBI agents say they are investigating accusations that a 25-year-old member of a national religious cult was kidnapped, presumably to be "deprogrammed."

Special Agent James Geer said the FBI has been investigating the alleged kidnapping of Monty Pelto, but Geer declined to reveal details about the case.

Pelto, a graduate of Texas Christian University, had been a follower of "The Way," for six years.

According to two national officers of the fundamentalist group, Pelto traveled from The Way College in Emporia, Kan., to Dallas with his fiancée to visit his parents when he was abducted.

The two officers, Craig Martindale and Vince Finnegan, said Pelto's fiancée, Kerr Stewart, 26, witnessed the abduction and summoned them to help locate Pelto.

Finnegan said as the couple was greeting members of Pelto's family, "Five thugs jumped on him (and) dragged him to the house." He said other men drove Miss Stewart to the airport and gave her a ticket for a return flight to Kansas, which she did not use.

Instead, she stayed in Dallas and called on Martindale and Finnegan.

Miss Stewart said Thursday as the men grabbed Pelto, "He looked at his mother and said, 'Mom, I can't believe you're doing this.'"

Critics have said The Way brainwashes and enslaves its young members — the average age of the group is 27 — but Martindale and Finnegan deny the charges, saying their group is a "biblical teaching and research ministry" that has been misrepresented.

ODESSA — The Rev. Donald Hungerford of Odessa and the Rev. Harland Birdwell of Big Spring are attending Canterbury Summer School in England.

Song service planned

A special musical service is planned Sunday evening at Gardens Assembly of God Church, 2901 W. Kansas Ave.

According to the Rev. Wayne Snyder, the service will incorporate special musical numbers presented by various members of the congregation, with congregational singing. Several new Scripture choruses will be taught during the service, he said.

The public has an invitation to attend the 7 p.m. service.

Unity center opened

GRAYMOOR, N. Y. (AP) — The Atonement Friars have opened their hospitable and scenic mountaintop home and Christian unity center for the 1979 pilgrimage season, which annually attracts thousands.

The season will continue until the last Sunday in October.

The center, sometimes called "the holy mountain," was started by a controversial Episcopal priest, the Rev. Lewis T. Watson, in 1898, who founded the Roman Catholic Society for the Friars of the Atonement.

Their establishment at Graymoor has since become Roman Catholicism's leading U.S. center of work for Christian unity, and Protestant and Catholic pilgrims show up on weekdays and weekends to pray, worship, rest, browse in the bookstore and chat with the friars.

Hazim elected patriarch

INGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP) — Word was received this week by the Antiochian Orthodox Archdiocese of America that Metropolitan Ignatius Hazim, archbishop of Lattakieh, Syria, has been elected as patriarch of the Antiochian Orthodox Church, its chief spiritual leader.

His election was at a synod in Damascus, Syria, church spokesmen said. Antiochian Orthodoxy is the largest Christian body in the Middle East countries of Syria, Lebanon, Kuwait and Iraq.

Board decides to eliminate 1,300 welfare agency jobs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Human Resources voted Friday to eliminate more than 1,300 jobs from its massive agency over the next two years to satisfy the Legislature.

Board members established a new lay-off policy based on productivity instead of seniority and gave their OK to a 1980 operating budget that cuts its staff by 5 percent.

Another 5 percent reduction will be made in 1981 — dropping the number of authorized jobs from 13,900 to 12,455 by Aug. 31, 1981.

The 1980-81 general appropriation bill states the Legislature's intent that agencies "attempt to" reduce jobs by 5 percent a year.

A senior staff member said refusal to make the cuts could cause retaliation when the human resources budget goes before the 1981 Legislature.

The job-cutting will be made somewhat easier by the fact that the Legislature increased the number of authorized positions by 268 before mandating the cutback.

The operating plan by the board makes most of the initial cuts in administrative and support jobs.

At least 150 job reductions must come from increasing productivity and eliminating the "least needed" functions of the department.

When some 2,000 jobs were eliminated two years ago after the Legislature reduced funding, seniority was the chief factor that determined who was laid off and who stayed.

Assistant commissioner D.W. Bond said this resulted in "bumping" and caused front-line workers, who often have low seniority compared with those in administrative jobs, to "take the brunt" of the lay-offs.

This time, he said, persons in jobs that are "red-lined" for elimination will be evaluated and ranked by their supervisors. The least productive will be the first to go, he said.

In other action, the board authorized a pilot program of "dine-out food stamps" for eligible Texans 60 and over in Austin, Abilene and the Houston-Galveston area.

The program will involve contracts with specific restaurants to provide the meals and will be tested for six months starting in October.

Adams doesn't 'go out like lamb'

By JONATHAN WOLMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brock Adams, unwilling to work in a Cabinet which he feared would be dominated by the White House staff, obviously adheres to the two-fisted rule of politics, "Don't get mad, get even."

His departure Friday differed in every way with the smooth ouster of Energy chief James Schlesinger.

Sources say that White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan called Transportation Secretary Adams to a Thursday morning meeting where he delivered a double-edged, "good news, bad news" message.

Jordan reportedly assured the secretary that he had the president's confidence and that Carter wanted him to remain in the Cabinet.

Now for the bad news: Most of Adams' top aides would have to go.

Adams handpicked much of his top staff, ignoring White House recommendations, and sources say Jordan expected Adams to quit on the spot when he heard the ultimatum. He was surprised when Adams didn't.

Then Adams got even.

He went to Boston, where he took part in subway ceremonies, and he issued a statement saying he had been invited to stay in the Cabinet, but he was not certain he wanted to.

Adams said he wanted to consider such factors as "the commitment of this administration to mass transportation and moving Detroit towards a fuel-efficient automobile."

He said he also wanted assurances of "direct accessibility of the president to the Cabinet and the responsiveness of those with enhanced authority at the White House to the Congress and the American people."

No one in official Washington failed to understand that the latter reference was to Jordan himself, Carter's new chief of staff.

This almost certainly sealed his fate and Adams resolved to quit.

After Adams issued his statement, an irritated Jordan reached him by telephone to complain that none of the issues Adams raised in his statement had been broached during their meeting.

At 11:30 the next morning he was on the carpet at the White House.

The session lasted about 15 minutes. Carter spokesman Jody Powell said Adams expressed an interest in a "quick transition," which many took to be a euphemism for "clean out the desk and get out." Adams was the only Cabinet member to leave immediately.

He went with his head held high. In his letter of resignation to Carter, Adams told the president: "I hope you find happiness in your job, and I join with the whole nation in hoping that the remainder of your administration will be successful."

In a statement, he said, "I could not function as a Cabinet officer under the circumstances as they were outlined to me. I strongly believe there must be direct Cabinet access to the president."

Carter sent Adams a handwritten note in response, saying he accepted the resignation "with friendship, respect and appreciation for the accomplishments of our nation during your service."

Schlesinger's long-expected dismissal was as smooth as Adams' was bumpy.

Schlesinger informed his senior staff of his departure — likely to occur in October — during a routine staff meeting Friday morning.

Almost immediately, the meeting turned to energy policy discussions and when it broke up, Schlesinger sat down to write a letter of resignation to the president.

One high-ranking Energy Department official described department executives as suffering from "a little bit of battle fatigue" as the resignation process unfolded.

Claytor on 'familiar ground'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor Jr., a veteran railroad man, will be back on familiar ground when he transfers to the Transportation Department as its temporary boss.

Claytor, a 67-year-old Virginian, was board chairman of the Southern Railway when he was tapped early in the Carter administration to head the Navy.

A lawyer by profession, Claytor has long been a railroad buff who runs model trains in his fashionable Georgetown home after spending his workdays in the Pentagon.

But if he has a soft spot for railroading, his associates say he is a tough manager in presiding over the Navy.

That toughness will be tested, perhaps to a greater extent than before, when he moves from Navy secretary to become deputy secretary of defense after his interim assignment at the Transportation Department.

As the second-ranking civilian head of the huge defense establishment, Claytor will ramrod some of the more difficult weapons development programs and wrestle with a wide range of pick-and-shovel issues.

Claytor showed his toughness in driving through final settlements of years-long disputes between the Navy and several shipbuilders involving billions of dollars in contract claims.

His connections with the Navy date back to World War II when he commanded a destroyer in the Pacific war against Japan as a lieutenant commander.

Toward the end of the war, Claytor risked court-martial by ordering his ship to steam to the rescue of survivors of the sunken cruise Indianapolis, which had been torpedoed by a Japanese submarine.

Standard instructions required a ship commander to wait for his superiors to give him the go-ahead, but Claytor didn't wait and his ship made it in time to save almost 100 American sailors from drowning.

Born in Roanoke, Va., on March 14, 1912, Claytor graduated from the University of Virginia and the Harvard Law School.

He won the coveted post of law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis and later practiced law in Washington with the prestigious firm of Covington and Burling.

Claytor joined the Southern Railway System in 1963 as a vice president in charge of law matters and became president four years later, rising to board chairman in 1976.

At a time when many railroads were ailing financially, the Southern Railway System thrived under Claytor's direction.

He has not said how long he plans to stay in the government, but most associates expect Claytor to return eventually to railroading.

Duncan takes energy post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles William Duncan Jr. is a multimillionaire businessman who became a high-level but virtually unknown government leader. Now he is destined for the harsh glare of the spotlight.

President Carter announced Friday that Duncan will replace James R. Schlesinger as secretary of energy.

Duncan, 52, has been deputy secretary of defense since the Carter administration took office in 1977.

He is a former president of the Coca-Cola Co., quitting that job in 1974 after three years to join the Houston investment firm of Rotan, Mosle Financial Corp. as chairman of the board. At the time, he was earning $205,000 a year and held more than 220,000 shares of stock in Coca-Cola.

When he went to the Pentagon three years later, he still had $14 million in Coca-Cola stock. During his confirmation hearings, the Senate Armed Services Committee allowed him to keep the stock in a trust because the Defense Department's dealings with the firm represented only a small percentage of Coca-Cola's total business.

In addition, he held at least $2.8 million in various other investments, including real estate.

Duncan has known the president since Carter was governor of Georgia, although the two are not considered close friends.

It was reported that top White House political aides had been looking for ways to give Duncan an expanded role in government. He was rumored from time to time to be a possible successor to other top administration officials, including Jay Solomon, who quit his post as head of the General Services Administration earlier this year.

As deputy defense secretary, Duncan has been the Pentagon's second-ranking civilian, wielding more power than some Cabinet officers directing smaller departments.

He has supervised much of the day-to-day running of the Defense Department and handled such difficult problems as working out preparatory decisions on new weapons systems and other matters.

Duncan is a native of Houston who earned a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from Rice University. He went on to do postgraduate work in management at the University of Texas.

Carter halts pullout from Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter ordered a halt in most U.S. troop cutbacks in South Korea until at least 1981, the White House announced Friday.

The decision represents a reversal by Carter of his commitment as a presidential candidate to bring almost all the troops home.

As a long-shot presidential hopeful, Carter began in 1975 to advocate substantial U.S. troop withdrawals. In 1977, during his first few weeks in office, he reaffirmed that intention.

Explaining the freeze, Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser, said North Korea was building up its forces beyond previous U.S. estimates.

"It is the judgment of the United States that further reductions of our combat elements in Korea should await credible indications that a satisfactory military balance has been restored and a reduction in tension is under way," he said. Brzezinski said another reason for the holdup is a steady growth of Soviet military power in East Asia.

Political developments on the peninsula also clearly played a part. Early this month, in a visit to Seoul, Carter proposed three-way talks with North Korea and South Korea on reducing tensions.

Last week, the communist regime in Pynongyang rejected the proposal, but left the door open for South Korea to attend some negotiations with the United States as an "observer."

Administration officials do not consider the proposal a dead issue. But they were disappointed by the vitriolic tone of North Korea's note.

Brzezinski said the freeze on U.S. troop withdrawals will "avoid conveying misleading signals to the North" and also give South Korea more time to step up its defense efforts. There are now 30,500 U.S. Army ground troops in South Korea. About 800 will be withdrawn when an I-Hawk air defense battalion is turned over to the Seoul government next year. About 700 non-combat soldiers also will be brought back, U.S. officials said.

Earlier this week, the Joint Chiefs of Staff told Congress they had recommended to Carter in April that he suspend further combat troop withdrawals until 1981.

At that point, Brzezinski said, the timing and pace of the pullback will be re-examined.

"In that review," he said, "the United States will pay special attention to the restoration of a satisfactory North-South military balance, and evidence of tangible progress toward a reduction of tensions on the peninsula."

Recent U.S. intelligence studies indicate that North Korea's army has increased to about 700,000, far outnumbering the 560,000-member force that South Korea is believed to have.

The original U.S. withdrawal plan, drafted on Carter's orders shortly after he took office in 1977, was based on an assessment that the North Korean army totaled only about 450,000 men, and that the South Korean army of 560,000 had enough of an edge to stand against the northerners without the aid of U.S. ground troops.

Carter's original plan was to pull out all U.S. ground combat troops over four to five years. He was going to keep 6,000 to 7,000 support soldiers in South Korea.

In the meantime, he promised to step up U.S. airpower. Last November, 12 F-4D jet fighters were sent there to bring the U.S. wing in South Korea up to 72 planes.

Nicaraguans welcome junta

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of jubilant Nicaraguans welcomed their new five-member ruling junta to Managua Friday in a joyous explosion of cheering, flag-waving and wild firing of guns into the air.

The five leaders — two Marxist guerrillas, a writer, an industrialist and an opposition leader's widow — rode triumphantly down city streets to the main plaza, where they were greeted and hugged by Sandinista guerrilla commanders Tomas Borges and Eden Pastora.

The rebels completed their takeover of Nicaragua and rout of the Somoza regime early Thursday when hundreds of guerrillas swarmed into this capital city as it was abandoned by fleeing national guardsmen.

The junta members flew or drove in from the south or from the northern city of Leon, then assembled for the victory ride to the old Plaza of the Republic, renamed Plaza of the Revolution, past huge crowds and red-and-black Sandinista flags lining the streets.

Borges, the new interior minister, told the plaza throng estimated at 250,000 that although the civil war had ended, "Now comes a more difficult war — the reconstruction of Nicaragua."

Pastora, known as "Commander Zero," declared, "The revolution will not be betrayed!" Earlier Friday, junta member Sergio Ramirez Mercado, a 36-year-old writer who describes himself as a democratic socialist, said there would be "no executions" by the victorious rebels.

Ramirez, who was meeting here with U.S. envoy William Bowdler, also said the United States had made an official offer of aid and the new government would accept it. He gave no details.

The arrival of the guerrillas in Managua Thursday touched off hours of frenzied celebration by guerrillas and local residents who danced in the streets and fired confiscated guard weapons into the air. The guerrillas freed about 2,500 people, both political prisoners and common criminals, from two jails in Managua and the town of Tititapa.

Calm returned to the city by Thursday evening, despite the fact that much of the population is heavily armed and there is no organized security force on patrol.

Ramirez, who arrived in Managua early Friday from the northern city of Leon, told reporters one of the major tasks in the next few days would be to "disarm the irregular forces. We have no other alternative because the arms are not in the best hands."

Along with the U.S. emissary Bowdler, Ramirez was meeting with the foreign minister of the Dominican Republic, Ramon Emillo Jimenez, and representatives of other Latin American governments, all of whom flew here Thursday evening from Costa Rica with members of the junta's 18-member Cabinet.

Bowdler had negotiated the change of government in talks with the five-member junta in San Jose, Costa Rica, in the final weeks of President Anastasio Somoza's government. Almost all Latin American governments had called for Somoza's ouster.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev sent a telegram to the provisional government Friday congratulating it on its victory over "internal reaction and imperialism" and expressing readiness to normalize relations with Nicaragua.

Another junta member, Marxist guerrilla leader Moises Hassan, who arrived in Managua late Thursday with a column of 4,200 Sandinistas from the south, told reporters that rebuilding Nicaragua's shattered economy would be one of their most difficult problems. He said Somoza, who resigned and fled to Miami Tuesday, had left the country in an economic "shambles."

Hassan, 35, said he and many other Sandinistas were disappointed Somoza had escaped arrest. "We will have to forget about many things," he said.

New transit camp site offered

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — In what a U.S. delegate called a "breakthrough" toward saving Indochina's "boat people," the Philippines offered Friday to establish a transit camp for up to 50,000 refugees on its soil.

Despite this and other new proposals, the opening of a two-day world conference on the Southeast Asian refugee crisis was far from harmonious. An angry Chinese delegate accused Vietnam of committing "genocide" against its Chinese residents and forcing them to flee and risk their lives at sea.

Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Zhang Wenjin urged the more than 50 nations attending the conference to cut off all aid to Hanoi and spend the money instead on emergency relief efforts.

The Vietnamese delegation, meanwhile, expressed a willingness to cooperate in "properly channeling and legalizing" the flow of refugees from Vietnam, which U.N. officials estimate total one million since 1975.

Hale Irwin lines up a putt on the second green Friday during play in the British Open. Irwin owns a two-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the storied tournament despite missing a chance to blow to a big lead Friday. (AP Laserphoto)

Wind, rain, mistakes keep Irwin in sight

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Although the wind, rain, cold and his own mistakes sent Hale Irwin reeling to a 75, the 4-over-par effort was good enough to retain a 2-stroke lead Friday after the third round of the 108th British Open Golf Championship.

But Irwin, seeking to add this ancient title to the U.S. Open crown he won a month ago, knew he'd let slip a great opportunity to put the tournament out of reach.

"It's still a wide open game going into tomorrow (Saturday)," he said. "Nothing has changed."

"No one ran off and hid from the rest of the field. No one disappeared. Everyone who was there before is still there. It's still up for grabs. And I have to play accordingly."

the leaders with a 2-over-par 73. Going into Saturday's final round, he is at 214, only 3 shots back.

And he held that position despite his continued troubles over the difficult back nine, which plays into the teeth of the prevailing wind off the Irish Sea. He's play that par 36 homecoming side in 40, 39 and 39.

"I'm in striking position," said Nicklaus, who owns a record collection of 15 major professional titles. "I still have not played a back nine. I have yet to do that. If I can play a decent front side tomorrow, get it out in shape and then get it home without playing 39 or 40, maybe I have a chance."

"But I'll have to play better than I did today."

"The golf course can yield some birdies. It will take some good golf from me to do it. But I think I have it in me. It's there. I hope it's just waiting to jump out of the box."

Some other scores: Jerry Pate 76-219, Tom Kite 77-224, Lee Elder 76-223, Ray Floyd 71-220, Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller 79-229, Johnny Miller 77-227, Ed Sneed 70-221 and Gary Player 69-220.

Lee Trevino, however, may have put himself out of it, he was in a contending spot until taking a triple-bogey on the 12th hole. He finished with a 74-218.

HIS ASSESSMENT seemed correct. Although his score was, by far, the poorest he's had in the four playing conditions that have plagued the tournament — but failed to discourage record crowds of 30,000 — all the would-be contenders had equal, or even greater, problems.

Irwin finished 54 holes over the 6,822 yards of thistles and thickets, gorse, mounds and hillocks that make up the Royal Lytham and St. Annes Club course in 211, two under par.

That's the only score under par in the tournament and is 2 strokes better than Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, who also shot a 75 Friday.

Ballesteros, who ranks as Europe's finest player, remained only 2 strokes back at even-par 213 despite a double bogey on the second hole.

JACK NICKLAUS, the defending champion, actually closed ground on

HE SHARED the No. 3 spot with England's Mark James, who shot a 69 in the relative warmth and calm of the morning, before rain punished the other leaders.

Ben Crenshaw and Bob Byman, both winners on the American tour this season, and Rodger Davis of Australia were next at 215, four strokes behind Irwin. Davis, another early starter, got in with a 70, while Crenshaw and Byman had hard-won 72s.

Tom Watson, twice a British Open champion and the outstanding player in the game for the past 2½ seasons, hit one out of bounds on the second hole and finished bogey-bogey-bogey for a 76 that put him 5 shots back at 216.

But, Watson insisted, he was not a casualty.

"I still feel I have a chance to win the golf tournament," Watson said. "A good score tomorrow can do it for me."

Tigers sell Staub to Montreal Expos

DETROIT (AP) — Designated hitter Rusty Staub of the Detroit Tigers has been sold to the Montreal Expos of the National League, a club spokesman said Friday.

Tigers spokesman Lou Matland said Staub's move would take effect immediately.

In exchange, Montreal will give Detroit a player to be named by Dec. 31. If the teams cannot agree on a player by that time, Matland said there would be a cash consideration.

"They've (Montreal) expressed a great deal of interest in me," Staub said when contacted Friday night. "I'm pleased to be part of something that wants me very much."

"It's been a great three years (at Detroit)," Staub said. "This year was a cray one, but with the things Sparky (Anderson) wants to do, it's understandable," he added.

Staub said he had received word of the sale from Tigers General Manager Jim Campbell while in Minneapolis. He did not indicate whether he had asked to be traded or if the deal was made without his knowledge. Nor would the Tigers give any explanation for the decision to let Staub go to Montreal.

Chap Center to host prep basketball teams

Midland College President Dr. Al G. Langford announced Friday that all 1979-80 home basketball games for Midland High and Midland Lee would be played at MC's Chaparral Center.

During the past season, only Midland Lee-Midland High games and some playoff contests were held at the spacious MC facility.

Sam Cox, athletic director for the Midland Independent School District, said that all the home court high school varsity and junior varsity games for both high schools would be played at the Chap Center, along with most of the sophomore team games and almost all the high school girls' basketball games.

"Our primary concern is to play where our fans will be comfortable and where the facilities are good," said Cox. "We feel that Chaparral Center is excellent with ample parking, plenty of seating, a good scoreboard...everything necessary for our players and the spectators."

Cox noted there are a few conflicts between the MC basketball schedule and that of the high school girls' games, since both are normally played on Mondays and Thursdays. The high school boys' teams usually play on Tuesdays and Fridays.

"We are delighted that the Midland Independent School District asked about accommodating a full schedule of games for them this coming school year," said Dr. Langford. "This was something that was envisioned when Midlanders were asked to pass a bond issue for construction of Chaparral Center. During the past year, the crowds for the two Midland High-Lee games were great and we also enjoyed helping host the Tall City Invitational Tournament. Chaparral Center was built for use by Midland College, the Midland Independent School District and the general public."

"There should be little problem with the scheduling," continued Langford, "since basketball just runs from November through February, so scheduling other activities in the building won't be a major problem. There are still weekends free during the basketball season for community events and roadshow attractions to play in the building."

Schedules for the high school teams still are being completed and are to be announced later this summer, according to Cox.

Ron Springs springs again

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Rookie halfback Ron Springs, another surprising discovery of the Dallas Cowboys scouting system, continued to steal the show at the Cowboys training camp Friday.

Springs rushed for 71 yards and a touchdown, and completed a 41-yard halfback pass in a rookie scrimmage.

Springs came to the Cowboys in the fifth round of the draft from Ohio State, where he saw a sparkling ca-

Morton cited for DWI

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Denver Broncos quarterback Craig Morton was cited for driving under the influence of alcohol and running a stop sign Friday morning, authorities said.

"What he did is an infraction of our rules. We've taken proper disciplinary action. He has been fined. It's a very unfortunate situation," said Red Miller, coach of the National Football League team.

Morton was released on a personal recognition bond signed by Miller at Colorado State University campus police headquarters. He declined to take a chemical sobriety test, police said.

Campus police reports said Morton was first warned about 12:13 a.m. for making an improper turn into a parking lot near the Broncos training camp dorm on campus. The club's curfew is 11 p.m.

The report said the same campus policeman observed the car leaving the parking lot about 10 minutes later and saw it run a stop sign. The officer then pulled the car over, gave Morton a roadside sobriety test and took him to campus headquarters where he was cited for the two violations.

Campus police said Morton would appear in Larimer County Court within four weeks on the citations.

Renko may be top bargain

BOSTON (AP) — Steve Renko is out to prove he is the free agent baseball bargain of the year.

"It isn't that I have to prove myself," says the big Boston Red Sox right-hander, "but I do want to show something to everyone who wouldn't take a chance on me."

The 6-foot-6, 225-pounder who quarterbacked the Kansas University football backfield that included Gale Sayers and started as a first baseman in the New York Mets organization 12 years ago, is 8-3 with a 2.97 ERA.

He gets a chance to improve on that log Saturday against the Seattle Mariners.

A year ago, Renko was laboring for the woeful Oakland A's. When he tried the free agent re-entry draft, Boston was the only genuinely interested bidder.

Manager Don Zimmer wanted Renko and General Manager Hayward Sullivan signed the 34-year-old veteran to a relatively modest contract. Renko served as his own agent.

"I know I'm no Jim Palmer or Tom Seaver," said Renko. But his mixture of fast balls, sliders, curve balls and change-ups has given Boston a solid performance in nearly every outing. Once he carried a one-hitter into the ninth inning and last week in Oakland lost a no-hitter in the ninth.

Critics of the Red Sox expected little of that when Renko was signed. They wondered why Boston didn't run by balking the runner to second. Max Venable then singled to left and Runnells went to third. After Wayne Pechek popped out trying to bunt, Ken Barton drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly to center field.

Tufts, a graduate of Princeton, never allowed more than one hit in an inning but did have to get out of mild difficulty in the seventh when Javier Fierro singled to center to lead off and moved to second on a sacrifice before Tufts got Darrell Woodard and Bill Hayes on infield grounders to end the game.

snare such heralded free agents as Tommy John, now with the New York Yankees.

Renko, however, was confident. Despite a lifetime record of 89-107, he notes, "I was not much under .500 with teams that were under .500."

With the Montreal Expos, Renko won 15 games in both 1971 and 1973, though his 6-12 mark with the A's last year didn't really hint at his future, value to Boston.

The veteran pitcher said he is especially pleased with Boston's defense, claiming it's underrated with so much attention paid to the team's potent offense.

"And," he added, "the most exciting part of the season is yet to come. Win or lose (in the American League East), it's going to be fun. I'm very happy to be here."

Onofrio begins new job with Seahawks

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — Al Onofrio, who was fired as head football coach at the University of Missouri nearly two years ago, will begin new duties this weekend on the staff of the Seattle Seahawks.

Onofrio, who reports to the National Football League club's training camp here, was hired this week as a staff scout.

Onofrio said he was pleased with the new post.

Steelers hungry for another title

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — They've got three Super Bowl titles under their belts, but the Pittsburgh Steelers talked about staying hungry as the full squad of veterans arrived at training camp Friday.

"There are probably four or five teams that have the talent we have. The competition is there," said defensive captain Joe Greene, a 260-pounder who arrived with the same slim waist he brought here from North Texas State 11 seasons ago.

"But the better the competition, the better the Pittsburgh Steelers," Greene added with a relaxed smile. "We're not going to run around the corner and hide."

Rookies and a few veterans opened camp last Sunday. The balance of the veterans at camp Friday included placekicker Roy Gerela, who earlier in the day signed a new contract and ended speculation that he would take the free-agent route to another team.

"I was ready for this two weeks ago. I'm glad it's here," said defensive lineman John Banaszak, the ex-Marine who made the club as a free agent after Pittsburgh's first Super Bowl title in 1974.

"From the guys I've talked to so far, they seem excited and anxious to get going," said linebacker Jack Lambert.

"You come here, it seems like nothing changes, it seems like you never left," said fullback Franco Harris, fifth leading rusher in National Football League history with 7,377 yards. "Sometimes it's pretty tough, but hey, I'm looking forward to it. It's time to go ahead and start playing."

The only no-shows Friday were wide receiver Lynn Swann and linebacker Dennis Winston, both delayed by legal involvements.

Curl, Weibring fire 65s

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Rod Curl, whose only tour victory was in the 1974 Colonial, and non-winner D.A. Weibring, a former Illinois State University golfer, fired 65s Friday for eight-under-par totals of 132s and took the early lead midway in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open.

First-round leader George Cagle slipped to a 74 after opening with a 63 that matched the course record for the par 70, 6,514-yard Oakwood Country Club links.

South African Bobby Cole, struggling this season with only $4,394 in winnings, fired a 64 for 133 and a tie with veteran Bob Murphy, whose last tour triumph was in 1975. Murphy had five birdies and one bogey in a round of 66.

At 134 were Keith Fergus with a 66 and Bob Gilder with his second 67.

Assured of making the cut was oldtimer Sam Snead. After an opening 70, Snead shot his age, 67, for 137.

Defending champion Victor Regalado, who opened with a 64, and two non-exempt pros, Dennis Sullivan and Canadian Dan Halldorson, who had 65s, were among later starters.

"I putted well for 15 holes and that's the name of the game," said the 36-year-old Curl.

"And I hit most of the fairways."

Curl dropped a 14-foot chip shot for a birdie to start his round and had six birdie putts ranging from 6 to 25 feet. He started the back side with three straight birdies on putts of 10, 6 and 20 feet. A bad chip and a missed four-foot putt cost him bogeys on the 16th and 17th holes, but he birdied the 18th with a seven-footer.

Kane wants out of Games

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — The president of the U.S. Olympic Committee said Friday the U.S. should pull out of the Pan American Games, because it is dominating the pre-Olympics competition.

"We're too big and powerful, and too rich," Bob Kane said in a telephone interview. "I think we receive more discredit than credit for being in the games."

Kane served as an American administrative official at this summer's Pan Am Games which concluded last weekend in Puerto Rico.

Kane said his views about pulling out of the competition were "very personal and not the official position of the USOC."

"It wasn't just this year's games, I think it's been apparent at other games, too. I don't wish to lay this all on San Juan," Kane said.

He said he had "no immediate plans" to bring the topic up at the next USOC executive board meeting, but that, "if the subject comes up, I will express myself on it."

Midland teams take ASA wins

The ASA Texas State Church Men's Open Slo-Pitch Softball Tournament began a three-day run here Friday night with a slate of 12 games at Hogan Park.

Among the early winners Friday night were Tall city entries St. Paul's Methodist, Christians of Midland and First Baptist Men's #1.

St. Paul's trimmed St. Luke's Methodist of Odessa, 11-4, as Anderson unloaded a triple and homer while Tate had a double and triple, Valdez had a triple and Bingham a double. For the losers, Pattille and Tyson had doubles.

Christians of Midland dumped Odessa First Church of the Nazarene, 17-4, as Tanner slammed a homer and double while Autrey added a homer and Manley and Pyle each collected a double. Wagner and Hensley each had a double for the victims.

First Baptist Men #1 received homers from McInturff and Elliott while Davis tripled and McPherson and Tankersky doubled en route to an 18-3 mauling of Cumberland Presbyterian. Olliss doubled for the losers.

In the other early action, Crescent Park Baptist Red of Odessa tripped Crestview Baptist Youth, 12-2, as Hedrick and Gray each doubled in the triumph. Cramer had a double for the losers.

Holloman powered a double and triple while Tyler and Tinsley each doubled to boost First Presbyterian of Odessa past Midland Grace Lutheran, 9-8. The loser's assault was led by House, who had three triples, Henry, who had two doubles and Childress, who doubled.

Rybolt and McLamore each doubled as Odessa First Methodist shaded Odessa St. Mary's Green, 9-6. For the victims, Hattenbusch homered and Pristeroff doubled.

There were six other first round games planned for late Friday night and early today. The tournament continues with games throughout today. Sunday's action gets going at 12:30 p.m. with the title tilt set for late afternoon on field two.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rich Dauer's looping single scored Gary Roenicke with the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning, giving the Baltimore Orioles a 2-1 victory over the California Angels Friday night.

Roenicke singled for Baltimore's fourth hit of the game after Jim Barr, 7-5, had retired the first two batters in the inning. After Lee May walked, Dauer singled over shortstop Jim Anderson's head on a 2-0 pitch.

Scott McGregor, 4-3, was hit hard by the Angels but allowed only five hits, including a fourth-inning home run by Carney Lansford. Ken Singleton homered in the bottom of the inning for Baltimore.

It was the fourth victory in five decisions for McGregor, who has not issued any walks in his last 35 1-3 innings. Barr had a personal four-game winning streak snapped.

The two American League division leaders conclude their season series Saturday night with Baltimore holding an 8-3 edge.

Lemon blast sinks Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Chet Lemon lashed a tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning Friday night to give the Chicago White Sox a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers and a sweep of the three-game series.

Odessa's Richard Wortham, 10-9, overcame early wildness for the victory. He gave up six hits, including a fourth-inning homer to Richie Zisk, before giving way to Ed Farmer with one out in the seventh. Farmer, who came to Chicago from Texas earlier in the season, extended his string of scoreless string to 131-3 before needing help from Guy Hoffman with two outs to go.

Loser John Henry Johnson, 4-11, gave up six hits, three of them in the third inning when the White Sox picked up their first run. Greg Pryor singled and moved up on Mike Colborn's sacrifice. Kevin Bell singled to put runners on the corners and Alan Bannister's sacrifice fly brought in the run.

Parrott blanks Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Parrott pitched his first major league shutout Friday night, scattering five hits as the Seattle Mariners routed Boston 8-0 and ended the Red Sox' five-game winning streak.

Parrott, 7-7, struck out four and walked four, allowing only three hits after the first inning.

Dan Meyer hit his 14th home run, a solo shot in the first, off loser Mike Torrez, 9-6, and later drove in a run with a single as the Mariners struck for three runs in the first, three in the third and two in the sixth off Allen Ripley.

Carl Yastrzemski had one of the Boston singles, giving him a career total 2,956 and moving him into 16th place on the all-time list, one ahead of Wee Willie Keeler.

The Mariners got a run in the first on a wild pitch and Willie Horton knocked in another with a sacrifice fly before Meyer homered over the left field screen.

John loses to Oakland

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Brian Kingman recorded his first major league victory Friday night, scattering eight hits in seven innings-plus as the Oakland A's snapped a five-game losing streak by defeating Tommy John and the New York Yankees 5-1.

Kingman, 1-2, fell behind 1-0 in the fifth when Bobby Brown doubled with two out and Thurman Munson singled him home.

John, 13-5, gave up only two hits through five innings but the A's, helped by two New York errors, nicked him for three hits and three runs in the sixth inning.

Rob Picciolo singled to open the inning. Rickey Henderson beat out a bunt toward first base, which was fielded by catcher Munson after some confusion between him and John. Munson threw to first hit Henderson and caromed into the outfield, putting runners at second and third.

Twins run past Tigers

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Consecutive home runs by Ken Landreaux and Glenn Adams highlighted a nine-run fifth inning that rallied the Minnesota Twins to a 14-6 triumph over the Detroit Tigers in a 28-hit slugfest Friday night.

The Twins trailed 5-0 after three innings but scored four runs in the fourth and sent 13 men to the plate in the decisive fifth.

The game featured six home runs. Detroit's John Wockenfuss slammed a three-run shot in the second inning and Steve Kemp hit the first of his two homers in the third with a man aboard.

Roy Smalley slammed a two-run shot in the fourth as the Twins closed to 5-4, but Kemp drilled a towering 440-foot blast in the fifth for a two-run Detroit lead.

Gary Serum, 1-3, picked up the victory with six innings of strong relief. The loser was Kip Young, 2-2.

Royals rip Tribe, 9-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rich Gale allowed three hits in eight innings and Amos Otis, Willie Wilson and Darrell Porter combined to drive in seven runs Friday night as the Kansas City Royals cruised to a 9-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Before yielding to Dan Quisenberry in the ninth, Gale, 7-8, surrendered a double to Jim Norris in the third inning, a home run to Cliff Johnson in the seventh and a single to Ted Cox in the eighth. He struck out four and walked four while snapping a personal three-game losing streak and winning for the first time since June 22.

The Royals, snapping a five-game losing streak to Cleveland, pounced on Rick Waits, 9-9, for five runs in the first inning. After Frank White and George Brett walked, Otis slammed a 3-2 pitch over the center field wall for his 11th home run. Another walk and John Wathan's bunt single preceded Wilson's two-run double.

Lezcano breaks up duel

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sixto Lezcano broke up a scoreless duel with his 12th homer leading off the seventh inning, powering Milwaukee to a 2-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Friday night for the Brewers' seventh consecutive victory.

Jim Slaton, 10-4, scattered seven hits for his seventh victory in his last eight decisions.

Lezcano, who beat the Blue Jays with an 11th-inning homer Thursday night, hit a 2-0 pitch from Tom Underwood, 3-13, and the ball landed about six rows from the top of the left field bleachers.

Underwood then walked Sal Bando and a sacrifice and a two-out single by Charlie Moore scored pinch-runner Jim Gantner with the second run.

Former Cub lifts Yanks

By ALAN GREENBERG
The Los Angeles Times

SEATTLE — He's "Sodbuster" to Reggie Jackson, "Country" to Thurman Munson and "Vulture" to the starting pitchers. But mostly, gangly, bespectacled 23-year-old Ron Davis, the former Midland Cubs pitcher, is one of the main reasons why the 1979 New York Yankees are still entertaining serious notions of successfully defending their world championship.

A year ago, suggesting that Ronald Gene Davis of Houston would be central to the Yankees' 1979 pennant hopes would have been as laughable as the thought of a Carter presidency in 1974. For the 1978 Yankees were twice blessed. Not only did they have the 1977 Cy Young winner in reliever Sparky Lyle, overwintered in the Pirates' Rich Gossage as a free agent.

Giving Gossage the ball was like giving Goliath the slingshot. More often than not, opposing batters surrendered meekly.

SO DID Lyle. Awesome fastballer Gossage got 27 saves, 10 wins, numerous awards and most of the work. Lyle was traded to the Texas Rangers. Being No. 2, he seemingly saw no reason to try harder.

All of which left the Yankees in another fine mess in the wake of the events of April 19, otherwise known as "The Great Thumb Incident." The consensus is that full-time clubhouse clown and sometime catcher Cliff Johnson, angry because he hadn't caught that night against the Orioles, started some horseplay with Gossage after the 6-3, 215-pound pitcher told him to quit bellyaching. Not in the mood for being pushed around by the 6-4, 225-pound Johnson, however, playfully, Gossage shoved him away, tearing a ligament in his right thumb in the process.

Enraged because he knew instantly that he was badly hurt, Gossage traded about a dozen punches with Johnson before teammates intervened.

Gossage had surgery and didn't return to the active roster until July 9. Where before the Yankees had two superior relievers, now there were none. Enter Jim Beattie, Ken Clay, Dick Tidrow, Paul Mirabella, Ray Burris (acquired from the Cubs for Tidrow) and even starting ace Ron Guidry in an attempt to ease the crisis. But to no avail. The Yankees 13 times went into the seventh inning leading or tied, only to lose.

WHICH BRINGS us to Davis, who the Yankees acquired from the Cubs on June 12, 1978, in exchange for long-time dissident pitcher Ken Holtzman, a charter member of baseball's take-the-money-and-sulk school. In recent years, he was to major league clubhouses what Solzhenitsyn was to Russia's ruling hierarchy. The only solution was exile.

"Even without Davis," Yankees publicist Mickey Morabito said, "getting rid of Holtzman was addition by subtraction."

After a period of adjustment, Davis' worth increased exponentially. Sent to the Yankees' West Haven Double-A farm club, Davis went 9-2, with five saves and a 1.50 ERA in half a season. But his brief stay (four appearances) with the Yankees last season — his first trip to the majors — was a debacle. He made his first appearance on Old-Timers Day, but the combination of his meeting the Yankee stars of yesteryear and the circus atmosphere resulting from owner George Steinbrenner's stunning announcement that Billy Martin would be back as manager in 1980, lessened his already shaky confidence.

"Last year I was so scared I didn't even know where the rosin was," Davis said. "I couldn't feel the rosin. I couldn't feel my arm. I'd throw a pitch high and up and have no idea how to adjust."

"It changed my whole outlook on pitching," Davis said. "If I got hit as a starter, I had to wait five days to atone for it. Now, if I miss up Monday, I can still get them Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday."

And with Davis in top form and Gossage raring to go again, the Yankees are approaching the second half of the season with the kind of quiet confidence that becomes part of men who have overcome adversity time and again. Around the American League, nobody's snickering.

Kenny Stabler reports to Oakland training site

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Saying "I stand by everything I said," Kenny Stabler returned today to the practice field of the Oakland Raiders, a team whose management and players he blasted in the off-season. He also has demanded to be traded, but no deal has materialized.

Appearing fit and in a good mood, Stabler showed up at the morning workout — more than a week after he had been required to be at the Raiders' training camp.

After dressing in his football gear, Stabler sat by the locker room door and greeted his teammates. There appeared to be no animosity and smiles and laughs were the first order of business.

Stabler arrived at camp late Thursday and met for 15 minutes with new head Coach Tom Flores.

Stabler did not talk to reporters the final 12 games of last season as the Raiders missed the playoffs for the first time in eight years. But today he spoke easily about his strong criticism of some team members and Managing General Partner Al Davis.

"I stand by everything I said," Stabler said, referring to a magazine article in which he said he didn't want to play for Davis and that he felt Davis had unfairly blamed him for a mediocre year. Stabler was quoted as referring to Davis by saying he wanted to "bury the hatchet — right between his shoulder blades."

Stabler also was quoted in the article as criticizing several teammates.

In his off-season criticism, Stabler had demanded to be traded, but when asked today if that were still the case, he replied, "That's between me and the club."

The Raiders have given Stabler's attorney, Henry Pitts, permission to negotiate a trade. In return, the Raiders want two first-round draft picks and two young players.

Midland team earns national tourney berth

The Chemical Weed/Midland Industries men's softball team recently qualified for the United States Slo-Pitch Softball Association's Class C national tournament to be held in Cincinnati.

The Weedmen, losers of only two sanctioned games this season, qualified for the national berth with three victories in the recent Pecos Invitational.

Weedmen making the all-tournament team at Pecos were Larry Linne, Larry Clark and Charley Pierce.

Other members of the Weedmen are Ronnie Ainsworth, Dale Lubinski, Bob Benne, Bobby Puckett, Danny Thompson, Bruce Boyd, Doug Noel, Mike Mathis, Grady McGowan, Roy Williams, Don Hughes and Dan Boyce. Williams and Roland Day are the coaches and the sponsor is Mutt Gandy.

Tennis diet proves useful

By RICHARD VINCENT
Sports Writer

It was about 11 years ago that Vicki Vasicek began knocking tennis balls around.

Her start in tennis was rather simple, but it also reflected the dedication she would later put into the game.

"My parents would always go out and hit and I always wanted to get out there," recalled Vasicek Friday. "After a while, my mom started feeding me buckets and buckets of balls."

Rest assured, the heavy diet of tennis balls that Vicki practiced on paid-off.

After all, it isn't just anybody that's named to the Junior Wightman Cup Traveling Team. Rather, it's the top five 18-year-old tennis-playing women from Texas as determined by computer rankings using past tournament results.

By being named to the team, Vasicek will be able to mingle with some of the finest national and international competition. It's something that the recent Midland High honor graduate cherishes and hopes to make the most of.

"I was really excited to have this opportunity, it should let me become more experienced," she said.

"I want to become a lot more consistent," she explained, "a lot more aggressive at the net. And I want to work more on head tennis...knowing where to place certain shots and when to hit a certain shot..."

Before she joins the Wightman team, Vasicek has an assignment this coming week in Memphis for the Girl's 18-year-old National Clay Courts tournament, where last year she competed against Tracy Austin.

Austin, of course, won't be there this year, but there's still a challenge playing on clay. "I think it will help my consistency," said Vasicek of the "lot slower" surface.

Then there's the first Wightman match June 30, an intersectional competition in New Jersey.

August 5, she'll be in Middlebury, Conn. for the Girl's 18-year-old National Championship before getting some world-class opponents August 12 at the Wightman meet in Philadelphia.

By the way, the Philadelphia meet will be a rerun for Vicki and will be one of her few opportunities to play on grass courts, rather than the usual "hard" surfaces. "It's really different (grass court), the ball doesn't ever bounce up," she said.

Joining Vicki on the Wightman team will be Lila Hirsch of Beaumont, a recent victim of Vasicek in a Lubbock tournament, Tracie Blumentritt of League City, Tenley Stewart of San Antonio and Kirsten McKeen of Dallas.

Vasicek cringed just a tad when she mentioned Blumentritt and McKeen. It was understandable, though. They were the ones that denied Vicki the state prep singles title the last two seasons.

Still, Vasicek has won bundles of awards for her tennis since her first victory at a small Midland Country Club event as a 7-year-old. She said her first instructor was Les Berkis at Midland Country Club.

For starters, try three District 5-AAAA titles, three region crowns, state runner-up as a senior and junior, semifinalist as a sophomore and Midland High's outstanding female athlete two years. The list goes on and on, and not just for interscholastic meets.

To maintain that high level of play, Vasicek drills and plays "lots of matches. I play every weekend in the summer."

And to help with some of the technical aspects, Vicki works with three coaches—Keith Diepraam of Midland Country Club, Neill McClung of the Racquet Club and Midland High coach Larry Burgin.

But to hear Vasicek tell it, it ain't all peaches and cream with three coaches. "I've found my contemporaries have one coach only. My coaches have such busy schedules they have no time to devote to just one player."

Vasicek, who ranked fourth in Texas as a 16-year-old and is seeded tenth after one year in the 18-year-old, has another reward from her tennis scholarship to SMU, a school she always had a desire to attend.

Yet, all isn't business for Vicki. In her free time, she skis and "I like to ride bikes with Karin Farquhar (her doubles partner and number two player for Midland High)."

Heck, she might even go out and pound a bucket of balls.

Vicki Vasicek

Spartacade to serve as Moscow's big rehearsal

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow's big rehearsal for next year's Olympic Games starts seriously Saturday with the official opening of the Spartacade sports festival, and some 2,500 athletes from 80 nations are here to check things out.

Few of the visiting teams will have their strongest athletes in action. Some have sent only token squads. But they are all interested in discovering how conditions will be for the Olympic Games, which start almost exactly one year from Saturday's opening ceremony.

The opening parade and the eight-day track and field program are scheduled for Lenin Stadium in Luzhniki Park, which will be the main area for the Olympics. It is a 20-year-old stadium that has been partly rebuilt for 1980.

Olympic facilities are being used also for gymnastics, fencing, cycling, shooting, rowing and soccer. Other Olympic sites are not ready yet, and swimming and some other sports are being held in old arenas.

This is the seventh Spartacade, which is usually an all-Soviet festival but has been widened for the first time to include competitors from other countries.

Mikhail Yefimov, a former journalist who heads the Spartacade press services division, said, "This is not really planned as an Olympic warmup. You will witness only the finals of this competition, which began two years ago and involved 100 million people."

The Spartacade preliminaries begin at sports club level in virtually every hamlet in this sprawling nation of 263.4 million people and 130 languages.

The 2,500 foreign athletes are invited guests,

Yefimov explained, because of the Olympics a year ahead. They have found the same moderate summer temperatures they can expect when the Olympics open July 19, 1980.

The teams from abroad, including those from the United States and all the European countries, go into action Saturday when track and field and basketball start.

Since so many overseas stars are missing from their countries' lineups, many events are expected to be dominated by the Russians.

Legal break-ins boon to forgetful automobile owners

By MIKE STANTON

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — George Wells makes his living breaking into other people's cars outside the Saratoga Harness Racing track here.

What he does isn't illegal, though, and most of the owners of the cars he jimmyes open with coat hangers offer to tip him for his services.

Wells drives the track's maintenance truck, and a large part of his job is to bail out track patrons who do what many Americans have done at one time or another — lock their keys in their car.

"I've gotten so used to opening cars, I could almost do it blindfolded," said the 69-year-old Wells, who last year broke into 316.

Wells can't remember how many cars he has opened in his 50 years working in the parking lot business. He used to write down how to break into various types of cars, but gave that up when the list grew too long.

Wells has opened doors to cars that still had their engines running. Sometimes he even opens a door twice, when people are so relieved that he opened it the first time they forget about taking their keys and slam the car door again.

Relying on a simple, straightened coat hanger, Wells has opened locked cars that thwarted locksmiths and their complicated array of skeleton keys. He once even opened the car of a locksmith who had been summoned to his parking lot to open another locked car.

Wells believes more people are locking their cars and forgetting their keys nowadays than in the past.

"People just don't think, and they're always in such a big hurry," Wells observed on a recent night in the track parking lot, between break-ins. "Middle class people always seem to be in more of a hurry than anybody else."

People get very embarrassed about locking themselves out of their cars and often try to smooth over their humiliation by offering Wells a few dollars.

"We're not supposed to take tips, but sometimes the people insist," Wells said with a chuckle.

The easiest car to open, according to Wells, is any American-made model. The most difficult challenge is presented by cars with electric locks. Despite his expertise, Wells admits that he has locked the keys in his own car.

"A lot of time I'll slam the door and forget my keys," Wells confessed with a grin.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Leave Extra Chance

By Alfred Sheinwold
When you can't tell which way to develop a suit, make the play that leaves an extra chance.

South took the king of hearts and quite properly got to his hand with a club to begin the diamonds.

East played low on dummy's queen, and for no particular reason South continued with a low diamond from dummy. East played low again, and South won with the king. When West discarded the ten of spades South had to abandon the diamonds.

South could win four clubs, two diamonds and two hearts but before South could develop a spade West would get three hearts and two spades to defeat the contract.

After winning the first diamond with the queen South should get to his hand with another club to lead a low diamond to dummy's jack.

East would win, but South would still have the K-8 of diamonds and would later finesse through East's 10-7 to make the contract. That finesse is the extra chance that South must preserve as he develops the diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold ♠ A K 10 ♣ Q J 10

What do you say?
ANSWER: Bid three hearts. Partner will raise to four hearts if he has three or more hearts. He will bid three notrump if he has only two hearts.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90033.

La Porte trading stamp man uses hobby to assist needy

LA PORTE, Texas (AP)— Each morning, Carl Reich opens stacks and stacks of mail; removes the trading stamps and begins licking and sticking them into books.

When he gets enough for a toaster or a frying pan or even a television set, he redeems them and waits until he hears that a poor family needs that toaster or a home for the elderly or a hospital could use a TV.

Reich, 74, the retired manager of the La Porte Chamber of Commerce, recently learned the Locust Grove Nursing Home in the East Texas community of Wills Point needed a movie projector. So, off went the number of stamp books required.

Over the years he has collected enough stamps to send 21 television sets to the East Texas Chest Hospital at Tyler.

And, he has brought many a smile to a child's face with his annual donation of stamps to be redeemed for Christmas toys for those who otherwise would have known a bleak holiday.

"Just yesterday," he said in a recent interview, "I took $1,200 worth of books to an organization here in La Porte that will redeem them for toys."

Reich said he believes each book is actually worth about $3, so that adds up to 400 books and here it is only mid-summer.

By Christmas time, Reich hopes there will be enough toys available for most of the needy children, not only in La Porte, but surrounding communities.

It all started 18 years ago when Reich and his wife were on vacation near Santa Fe, N.M. There the owner of a vacation resort showed a pickup truck loaded with sweaters, shoes and other things to be distributed to the Indians of the Taos, N.M., area.

"The owner told me," Reich said, "that all of the stuff had come from collecting those stamps. I decided it would be a good idea to do the same thing back home in La Porte."

He started with a local appeal for "all those who were going to flush the stamps down the commode to send them to me."

Then a report of the project appeared in The Houston Chronicle and "I began getting more and more stamps," Reich said.

"Even people who lived here and then moved away continued to send me their stamps from New Jersey or New York or California. If there is no office around here, I will order the articles, put them in a closet, and then hear about someone needing something and I have it on hand."

"You know there are some people too proud to take welfare and it is those I try to help," he explained.

Griffin Bell

Exit of Bell was expected

By JAMES H. RUBIN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Attorney General Griffin Bell had problems during his stint with the Carter administration, but he sidestepped most of the pitfalls pointed out after his controversial appointment.

Initially, critics complained Bell was too close to the president and lacked sensitivity about the needs of blacks. But most of his subsequent battles concerned other issues.

There were charges he was playing politics with prosecutorial and judicial appointments. Liberal critics accused Bell of not being tough enough with the intelligence community, while from the conservatives came allegations that he had damaged the FBI by pressing charges against former officials accused of civil rights violations.

By the middle of Carter's term, Bell appeared to have weathered the storm and gave himself high marks. On a scale of one to 10, he said in a typically blunt and feisty manner, "Probably I'm up around eight."

Thursday, President Carter announced that he had accepted Bell's resignation and would nominate Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to replace him.

But unlike other Cabinet members who left Thursday, Bell's exit was strictly voluntary and long expected. He has said repeatedly he was just waiting around for his successor to be selected.

Before moving to Washington to join the Carter administration, Bell served for nearly 15 years as a federal appeals court judge in the South, an appointee of President John F. Kennedy. In March 1976, he resigned the post to become a partner in the Atlanta law firm of King & Spalding. Jimmy Carter's close friend and adviser, Charles Kirbo, was another partner.

The attacks on Bell's civil rights record stemmed primarily from a time before he was named to the bench and partly from his membership in all-white social clubs.

From 1959 to 1961, he was chief of staff for the late Gov. S. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia, who had pledged in the racial turmoil of the early '60s to resist school desegregation with "every legal means" he could find.

During Senate hearings that led in early 1977 to his confirmation as attorney general, Bell was criticized by, among others, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for failure to "exercise leadership in the development of civil rights law at time of critical and rapid change." But Kennedy said Bell should not be judged on his past shortcomings and voted for his confirmation.

Bell also took office with a stigma that he was a crony of Carter, and he set out to change that image.

Recently looking back on his stewardship as attorney general, he said his most important accomplishment was creating a political "neutral zone" in the Justice Department.

And he had made it a point to promise to leave government before the 1980 presidential campaign to ward off any charges that he was using his power as the nation's chief law enforcement officer to enhance Carter's political career.

But if Bell stuck to his pledge to avoid acting as a political adviser to Carter - a traditional role for many of his predecessors - it didn't save him from a political controversy that became known as the "Marston Affair."

David Marston, a Republican U.S. attorney from Philadelphia who had success in prosecuting Democratic politicians on corruption charges, accused the Carter administration of trying to fire him for reasons of politics and possibly for more venal motives. He said a Democratic congressman who was under investigation by Marston's office was behind the move to oust him.

The ever-candid Bell had already made clear his position on the political nature of prosecutorial appointments.

He said early in 1977 he was replacing Republican U.S. attorneys with Democrats because "we had an election last year and the Democrats won." But Bell said any new appointees would have to be "as good or better" than his GOP predecessor.

Eddie Safford, 28, of Boston, plays pool in the recreation room of a Boston hospital where he underwent surgery last month to restore four fingers severed in an industrial accident. The fingers were restored 28 hours after the accident. (AP Laserphoto)

Fingers restored after 28 hours

BOSTON (AP) — Four fingers severed by a paper cutter were reattached to a man's hand 28 hours later in what doctors said was the longest interval ever recorded in the United States between an accidental amputation and successful restorative surgery.

Dr. James W. May Jr., who directed the 23-hour operation, said the surgery shows that there is enough time to assemble teams of experts competent to perform such tricky, exacting work.

"If somebody amputates something, they don't need to race to the closest hospital and let the first person they see — who is possibly inexperienced — give it a go," said May. "They have the time to go to a replant center, where a careful approach to the problem can be exercised."

In the operation June 15, a team of five surgeons reconnected four fingers on the left hand of a 28-year-old worker at a Boston School Department bookbindery.

The victim, Eddie Safford of Boston, severed his fingers while working with a paper-cutting machine. When the ambulance arrived, the driver asked: "Where are the fingers?"

The fingers were found, packed in ice and transported with the patient to Massachusetts General Hospital, where the first successful replantation in history was performed in 1962.

May assembled a team of surgeons familiar with the tedious work that involves the use of microscopes to reconnect severed blood vessels, nerves and muscles.

"We started out all together," said May. "All the work was done that could be performed separately. Only two people can work on the hand at once after we start putting the fingers back on. Then we spelled each other off."

Each finger took about four to six hours to reconnect. The last was finally sewn back onto his hand 28 hours after the accident.

May said recently that until now there have been no documented reports of replantations being successful longer than 24 hours after the amputation. However, there have been unconfirmed reports of longer delays in China.

The doctor said the patient found within a couple of days that he could wiggle one finger, then another until he regained limited use of his hand. Safford was released from the hospital 12 days after the operation.

May said Safford's hand will never work as well as an uninjured one, but he will be able to grasp objects and use the hand for everyday chores.

"The criterion for which we replant something is not so much how close to normal it will be but rather how much better than amputated stumps it will be," said May. "And this will be a great deal better than that."

May said there are about a dozen hospitals in the United States that have experienced replantation services.

Memories of Mao alive in Tibet

EDITOR'S NOTE: Tibet, land of the Dalai Lama three miles above sea level, has been seen by only a few Westerners, particularly since it came under communist control nearly 30 years ago. AP Correspondent Victoria Graham toured Tibet with a party of foreign correspondents recently. Here is a report.

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

LHASA, China (AP) — On the desolate "roof of the world," a red flag flies from a yak herdsman's tent. Hills bear a painted inscription in Tibetan: "Long live Chairman Mao." The late chairman's portrait looms from a mud wall covered with fragile Tibetan herbs.

The Chinese presence pervades the Tibet Autonomous Region, where China pursues a delicate balance of encouraging ethnic identity while demanding allegiance to the "motherland." TIBET BECAME PART of the People's Republic in 1950 and China calls it an "inalienable part." A revolt was put down in 1959, and over the last 29 years, China has poured thousands of people, millions, perhaps billions of dollars, and a whole new political canon into modernizing and reforming Tibet, once a feudal, theocratic state.

"Gone forever is the dark, poor and backward old Tibet," says the official Chinese statement on minority nationalities. "Only when the economy and culture of their region develop and flourish as much as the Han (Chinese) areas can complete equality among the various nationalities be achieved."

In the meantime, the Han culture is clearly the model and it raises the question of balance between civilizing and colonizing. China is imprinting itself upon Tibet with every step of a soldier through a Lhasa street and every plaster bust of Mao on a worker's shelf.

Tibet's scattered population of 1.7 million is about 120,000 or 7 percent Han. The capital of Lhasa is about 58 percent or 70,000 Han. Most of the Chinese are cadres, workers and their families. Few of them do the agricultural and herding work which is the mainstay of the Tibetan economy.

THE POPULATION FIGURES, given by Redi, Tibetan vice chairman of the TAR Revolutionary Committee, do not include the People's Liberation Army in Tibet. He called the size of the military presence a secret, but other sources have estimated it at about 200,000 or more.

China emphasizes that Tibetans, not Chinese alone, are in charge of their autonomous region.

About 40,000 or 64 percent of the 62,500 cadres in Tibet are Tibetan. About 60 percent of the 30,000 to 40,000 party members in Tibet are Tibetan. There are 500 Tibetan delegates to the 700-member regional People's Congress. Among the 80 members of the regional Revolutionary Committee, 56 are Tibetan.

Still, the top cadres are Han, for example Ren Zong (Jen Jung), chairman of the provincial Revolutionary Committee.

And at an electrical machinery factory in Lhasa, one-third of the 315 workers are Tibetan, but only eight — one-eighth — of the 63 cadres are Tibetan.

THE CHINESE INFLUENCE is more subtle than statistics and head counts.

Every morning the residents of Lhasa awaken to loudspeakers blaring "The East is Red," a song dedicated to Mao Tse-tung, who died Sept. 9, 1976.

Department stores are stocked with Chinese consumer goods, such as the ubiquitous tin dishware and spoons decorated with carnival flowers. At the Zhe Bang Monastery, lamas — priests — pour hot water for tea from vacuum bottles covered with gaudy scenes of Shanghai.

Tibetan national costumes — fur hats, intricate embroidery and striped aprons — are available. But they are yielding to proletarian Chinese uniforms of dark-colored baggy pants and jackets. Women who once coiled their hair with colored thread now wear simple pigtails.

Peppermint red and white traffic stands have turned up in Lhasa and smartly dressed officers direct horse-drawn carts.

The auditorium at the Lhasa Teachers College is dominated by an enormous picture of Chairman Mao and current Communist Party Chairman Hua Guofeng (Hua Kuo-feng). Tibetan men and women perform a Tibetan dance "In praise of Chairman Hua." Musicians play Chinese instruments and a woman sings in Chinese, "I give a snow lily to Chairman Hua."

A CHINESE GUIDE said the college has, in effect, an affirmative action program for Tibetans, who number about 400 of the 650 students. They are given special consideration on entrance exams, the guide said, "because their culture is not so high as ours."

At the Jokhang Temple and Zhe Bang Monastery, red-and-gold silk banners quoting Chairman Mao hang beside opulent tapestries. "All nationalities of China unite," proclaim the banners.

The lamas, like the buildings they inhabit, fall under the authority of the state and local bureaus for the preservation of relics.

At the home of Ishidoji, 50, and his wife, Pudi, 60, a bust of Chairman Mao occupies the place of honor on an old dresser in their tiny mud house. The walls of the former servants' home are lined with certificates that honor him and his children for high productivity, studying Chairman Mao and criticizing the "Gang of Four."

And at the remote Yu Lan commune, more than 100 miles from Lhasa, the spirit of Chairman Mao presides over 6,000 people, 7,098 yaks, 6,780 sheep, 6,079 goats and 208 horses.

"Long live Chairman Mao," is written on hills in white-painted letters that can be seen for miles — a hold-over from the Cultural Revolution. His portrait hangs in dark mud rooms, in herdsman's tents and in the herbal medicine center.

Blazing supertankers, oil slick approaching beaches of Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — The blazing hulks of two abandoned supertankers drifted within sight of Tobago on Friday and a huge spreading oil slick threatened to foul the resort island's glistening white beaches.

The tankers — reported fully laden, one with crude oil and the other with refinery products — collided during the night and 34 crewmen were reported missing. Officials said one tanker was listing badly and in danger of sinking.

Police said coast guard boats from Trinidad and Tobago, joined by a number of private craft, saved 41 crewmen — all 36 from the Aegean Captain and five of the 39 from the Atlantic Empress.

THE SURVIVORS WERE TAKEN to a hospital on Tobago. Coast Guard Petty Officer Austin Pratt in Miami, Fla., said reports were "circulating that 1.6 millions barrels of oil spilled." He said the Coast Guard had no firm figure, but if both tankers were loaded such a huge spill would be possible.

A spill of 1.6 million barrels — 67.2 million gallons — would make it the largest ever involving ships.

A spokesman for the insurance group Lloyd's of London said the collision could be the most costly accident in marine history, with claims that could reach $50 million. He said that was based on $50 million for the ships and $100 million for their cargoes, although Lloyd's did not know exactly how much oil the ships were carrying.

He said claims in most previous marine disasters did not exceed $50 million. Lloyd's is an international insurance market with about 270 underwriting syndicates that take in more than $1.5 billion in premiums each year.

THE DUTCH-BASED salvage firm,

Smit International Americas Inc., is sending tugs to the scene, according to Roger Wilson, Smit spokesman in London. "We're working with the German salvage company Bugsier," he said.

Lloyd's Register of Ships and the American Bureau of Shipping Record list both tankers as Liberian-registered. But Lloyd's Shipping Service in London said registration of the Atlantic Empress recently was transferred from Liberia to Chios, Greece. Sources in the United States said Greek interests own both tankers.

Many oil tankers are registered under Liberia's "flag of convenience" system, under which noncitizens can operate ships under the Liberian flag and avoid their own nations' taxes and inspections.

LIBERIAN-REGISTERED ships have been involved in a number of oil spills including the worst previous involving the Amoco Cadiz, which broke in two off the French Coast last year and spilled 34.6 million gallons.

The Torrey Canyon, which ran aground off the English Channel in 1967 and spilled 29.4 million gallons, and the Argo Merchant, which went aground, sank and spread a 7.7 million-gallon oil slick over 215 miles of water near Massachusetts in 1976, also were of Liberian registry.

Tobago is off the northeastern coast of oil-rich Venezuela, and is part of the island nation of Trinidad and Tobago.

THE U.S. COAST GUARD said the two ships, each longer than three football fields and each carrying an unknown quantity of oil in its holds, collided Thursday night about 20 miles east of Tobago.

They burst into flames and their crews abandoned them, the Coast Guard said. "There is a possibility that the Aegean Captain may sink," Coast Guard spokesman John Hollis said in Puerto Rico. He said the tanker was listing 40 degrees, "and anytime there is fire, there is a possibility of an explosion."

Residents of Roxborough, a fishing village on Tobago's east coast, could see thick columns of black smoke billowing thousands of feet into the sky.

Liberia's admiralty counsel in the United States, Frank Wiswall, said at his office in Reston, Va., that Liberian investigators had been told the Atlantic Empress was carrying a full load of crude oil, although it was unclear where it was headed, or from where. He said the Aegean Captain had left a refinery at Curacao, a Dutch island 500 miles to the west, with a full load of refined oil products.

AJRA rodeo, delayed by weather, to resume tonight

The second performance of the American Junior Rodeo Association rodeo, delayed due to rain, will get under way at 9 a.m. today in the Joe Thorp Championship Rodeo Arena, west of Midland and just off FM 868.

Performances Thursday and Friday were canceled because of rain, which made the arena grounds soggy and "like a river," said Christi Wade, niece of rodeo promoter Joe Thorp.

"Rain or shine, we're going to have it," Ms. Wade said of the rodeo.

Events will include bucking-bull riding, barrel racing, steer and calf roping and bareback bronco riding.

Performances will be held at 7:30 p.m. today and 2 p.m. Sunday.

About 400 teen-age and under rodeo performers from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma are entered in the rodeo, Thorp said.

The Showdown band will play at a country-and-western dance beginning at 9:30 p.m. today.

"If it rains or anything, we're going right on with it," Thorp said of the rodeo.

Business reports theft of $2,000

About $2,000 was reported missing from a Midland business early Friday, according to Midland police.

Someone entered Falcon Marine Inc., 2714 W. Wall St., through the north side alley window, said a police spokesman.

Someone had opened a soft drink machine, using the machine's keys. About $175 was taken from the machine's change box, according to the spokesman.

Police were told that someone had kicked open the northwest office door and pryed open a center desk drawer and two metal cabinets where the money was located. About $2,000 in various denominations was taken, the spokesman said.

The front cash register was also broken into and about $150 in change removed, police were told.

Burglary of city restaurant reported

Someone apparently took about $200 from a Midland restaurant early Friday, according to Midland police reports.

A tire tool was used to open the south window of Johnny's Barbecue, 316 N. Big Spring St., according to a police spokesman.

The person apparently then went to the west part of the building where the money was located near an oven hood vent, according to the spokesman, took the money and exited through the south window.

Gasoline shortage cutting back freeway tolls, taxes for maintenance of highways

By WILLIAM GLAS-GALL
AP Business Writer

The nation's roadway system could be headed for rough times, experts say, because the gasoline shortage is keeping Americans at home and off thoroughfares financed by fuel taxes and highway tolls. Without these funds, government officials and Wall Street analysts say, needed repairs and new construction may have to be canceled. Officials are concerned about a dip in revenues said Richard Reilly, spokesman for the Federal Highway Administration, because highway needs are so great at the present time — especially the older roads which need reconstruction. In April, the last month for which national figures are available, Reilly said Americans drove just 2 percent more than they did a year before, down from an expected gain of 8-10 percent.

He said preliminary figures for subsequent months show "travel was substantially reduced" as the fuel shortage grew worse.

State figures bear him out. In some areas of Illinois, traffic in June was down by as much as 25 percent from a year ago, while on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, traffic was off by 12 percent.

But for a toll rate increase last August, the Pennsylvania highway "would be breaking even or less right now," said spokesman Robert Costello.

Toll collections on New Jersey's Garden State Parkway from mid-May to late June ran $450,000 behind those of year ago, and "we're hurting," said Executive Director F. Joseph Carragher.

The 118-mile New Jersey Turnpike between New York and Philadelphia may be insulated from some effects of the gas shortage thanks to a steady weekday flow of commuters and trucks.

But "a sharp fall-off in weekend traffic" has cut into toll collections, said analyst George P. Gregorio of the brokerage house of Prescott, Ball & Turben. He said an extended fuel crisis or the threat of one could hamper the turnpike's ability to pay bondholders, who must be paid before maintenance reserves are established.

On the Kansas Turnpike, where driving was down by 6.1 percent in the first half of June, tolls will be increased by 7 percent Aug. 1 to offset rising repair costs and slumping revenues, and to maintain interest payments to bondholders.

The decline in driving also shows up in the tax tallies kept by oil companies. Standard Oil Co. of Indiana spokesman Mike Thompson said the company's Amoco stations in 46 states collected $180.2 million in state and federal fuel taxes in the second quarter, down nearly 2 percent from the second quarter of 1978.

The federal taxes go into the $12.3 billion Highway Trust Fund, which provides about $7 billion a year for new highways and major road rebuilding projects.

In Arizona, estimated revenues from the state's 8-cents-a-gallon fuel tax were $9.7 million in June, off 7 percent from a year earlier.

State highway spokesman Robert Hedlund said crews are laying new pavement over worn highways.

Reservations should be made by telephoning the park information station, 915-828-3385.

Participants should be in good physical condition and carry a sack lunch with a large canteen of drinking water. Sturdy boots, hats, sunglasses, cameras and binoculars also are recommended.

More hikes slated

CARLSBAD, N.M. — Nine more hikes into the Bowl area of Guadalupe Mountains National Park have been scheduled, according to a spokesman with the National Park Service.

This event is a seven-hour, seven-mile loop hike. Starting point is Pine Springs Canyon Campground, about 1 1/2 miles west of the information station. From there the group will climb about 2,000 feet in elevation over a primitive trail to the heavily forested Bowl.

Dates for the hikes are Saturday, Sunday, Wednesday, July 28-29, Aug. 1, and Aug. 4-5. Hikes start at 8 a.m. (MDT).

Participants should be in good physical condition and carry a sack lunch with a large canteen of drinking water. Sturdy boots, hats, sunglasses, cameras and binoculars also are recommended.

Classes will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday in room 100 of the Occupational-Technical Building. Instructor will be Larry Freeman, and the course fee is $12.

Those who wish to pre-register may do so Monday through Thursday in room 140 of the Occ-Tech Building between 7 a.m. and noon and 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

Defensive driving course set at MC

A three-evening short course in Defensive Driving will be held at Midland College beginning Tuesday.

In making the announcement, James Bramlett, director of the MC Community Services department, noted more than a million people in Texas have graduated from similar courses.

"All drivers should take the Defensive Driving Course," Bramlett said. "It is part of a state-wide campaign to save lives by preventing traffic accidents."

Students who successfully complete the course and receive their certificates are entitled to a discount on their auto insurance premium. The discount is applicable for three years. The course may then be repeated to continue the discount.

Classes will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday in room 100 of the Occupational-Technical Building. Instructor will be Larry Freeman, and the course fee is $12.

Those who wish to pre-register may do so Monday through Thursday in room 140 of the Occ-Tech Building between 7 a.m. and noon and 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

Picture reminder to seniors

Seniors who want to appear in the yearbook next year must schedule an appointment soon to have their senior pictures taken.

There is no charge for the photos, but no pictures will be taken after Sept. 28. As the deadline approaches, school officials warned, scheduling an appointment will become more difficult.

Students should call Hollis Studio at 684-4343 Tuesday through Friday to arrange for a sitting time.

Girls are asked to wear a simple, long-sleeve, dark or medium color top. The traditional "drape" will be provided by the studio for those who request it.

Boys should be clean shaven except for beards or mustaches. They should wear a dark or medium color coat, white or pastel color shirt with little or no pattern and a tie. Coat, tie and shirt will be provided for those who request them unless the student wears exceptionally large or small sizes.

No insurance relief

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An insurance industry spokesman said today that auto insurance rates will not go down until the costs to repair damaged cars and broken bodies goes down.

"The high injury and fatality rate due to smaller and lighter cars has had a serious impact upon Texas auto rates," said Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service.

Johns said a recent study was made in Houston and Dallas about repair costs.

"Estimates for repairs to a damaged 1977 automobile were obtained from eight body shops in Dallas and seven body shops in Houston," he said.

"The price range for identical repair work in Houston ranged from a high of $1,032.31 to a low of $754.41 while in Dallas the range was from $822.65 to $391.76."

He noted that the Consumer Price Index reflects a 68.5 percent increase in charges for a semi-private hospital room during the past seven years.

"These kinds of costs must be contained if insurance rates in Texas are to be stabilized," Johns said in a statement.
