Carter to go on TV to explain shake-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, seeking to speak directly to millions of Americans tonight in a rare prime-time broadcast news conference, says the media have exaggerated the extent of his administration shake-up.

The president and his aides say both American and foreign reporters are blowing up the power of Carter's inner circle of faithful Georgians, especially chief of staff Hamilton Jordan.

"The Washington press has grossly exaggerated this," Carter was quoted by a participant as telling about 250 political appointees Tuesday.

A second source, one of the Georgians, quoted the president as saying Cabinet members won't report to Jordan. Carter said there has been "considerable exaggeration in some quarters of Hamilton's role," said this source, who asked not to be identified.

The meeting participant, who took detailed notes, said Carter specifically blamed the Washington press for the exaggeration.

Earlier in the day, two senior aides, reflecting concern by officials over foreign reporters' negative comments, called in five or six European journalists and one Japanese reporter to rebut some of their accounts.

The aides told the reporters the administration shake-up does not represent a constitutional crisis and denied that political advisers such as Jordan, press secretary Jody Powell and media adviser Gerald Rafshoon will be influencing basic economic and foreign policy decisions.

The aides stressed, according to two journalists who attended, that replacing Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal with G. William Miller does not represent any change in U.S. economic policy or support for the dollar.

The dollar has declined on foreign markets since last week's multiple firings, and several foreign news reports have speculated that Jordan and other political aides may advise against politically painful decisions needed to bolster its value.

Today, Carter announced that he has chosen Paul A. Volcker, 51, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, to be chairman of the Federal Reserve system.

Sources reported earlier that Carter had narrowed the list of possible choices to Volcker and Bruce K. MacLaury, president of the Brookings Institution, a private think-tank.

The responsibilities of the seven-member Federal Reserve Board include regulating a major portion of the nation's banking system, supervising the money supply and determining the level of some interest rates in the economy.

Carter's news conference tonight is scheduled for 9 p.m. EDT in an attempt to get a bigger audience than his usual 4 p.m. sessions.

It is only the second prime-time news conference to be broadcast nationally since Carter took office, and the first to be held in the White House itself rather than the Executive Office Building auditorium.

On Tuesday, Carter summoned members of the Senate Finance Committee to the White House and lectured them on the importance of passing his proposed tax on oil profits, which faces delays and possibly weakening amendments.

Carter had hoped for passage by early August of his proposed "windfall profits" tax on oil. The tax would produce an estimated $140 billion over the next 10 years, much of which Carter wants to give to a new government corporation to spend on finding alternatives to imported oil.

Carter, already worried by proposed Senate amendments that would cut as much as $55 billion from the tax's take, was told by congressional leaders Tuesday morning that it probably would be October before the measure passes.

The president quickly invited Senate Finance Committee members to an afternoon meeting in which he strongly urged approval.

Carter said passage is a matter of national security and cautioned against "parochial or partisan positions that could damage the national welfare," according to a White House aide.

But the committee chairman, Russell Long, D-La., said afterward that no commitments were made and the committee still was divided. He predicted passage of a bill Carter would sign, and said he hoped but could not promise that this would happen before the end of October.

School increases taxes and salaries

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

School trustees Tuesday approved a six-cent increase in taxes, an 8.8 percent increase in teachers' salaries and made preliminary plans for a $12 million bond election this fall.

The board gave preliminary approval to increasing the current school tax rate of $1.20 to $1.26, an increase of 5 percent.

Under the provisions of the new Truth in Taxation Law, any increase of more than 3 percent requires a public hearing before the board can endorse such an increase.

Public hearing on the proposed tax rate increase will be at 4 p.m. Aug. 7 in the board room of the school administration building on 702 N. N St. The board must take action on the tax increase proposal 14 days after the public hearing.

The school board also agreed to continue the policy maintaining teachers' salary schedules 25 percent above state minimums. Continuation of this policy should help get and retain qualified instructors, Schools Superintendent Dr. James Malley noted.

The policy makes salaries for Midland teachers third highest in the state in districts with enrollments of 15,000 or more, said Dr. Malley.

Trustee Parker Humes, in a report from a trustee planning committee, told the board about the preliminary findings for a bond election sometime in October.

Voters would be asked to approve approximately $12 million to cover such items as the construction of two new elementary schools, general repairs and remodeling projects throughout the district and major improvements on the Midland High School campus, Humes said.

In another action Tuesday, the board reviewed the request to serve notice for withdrawing from participation in the social security program. Two studies were presented indicating the feelings of school employees toward withdrawal of the program.

James Leeper, representing a teachers' organization, expressed the teachers' reasons for voting favorably for withdrawing from the program. He also indicated concern that the money used for the social security program should be placed into another fund.

A budget study for the 1979-80 school year showed $25,446,861 would be spent for the upcoming year. The projected budget represented about a 9.9 percent increase over last year's budget expenditures.

Other actions taken by the board on Tuesday's meeting included the acceptance of several resignations, accepting bids for replacement of a boiler in South Elementary and replacement of air conditioning in the trip bus and approving two appeals for transfer requests.

Volcker named to head Federal Reserve Board

WASHINGTON (P) — President Carter announced today he is nominating Paul A. Volcker, a former Treasury official and now president of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, to be chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

In a statement read to reporters by White House Press Secretary Jody Powell, Carter said of his choice to succeed outgoing board Chairman G. William Miller:

"Mr. Volcker has broad economic and financial experience and enjoys an outstanding international reputation. He shares my determination to pursue the battle against inflation at home and insure the strength and stability of the dollar abroad."

The top central bank position fell vacant last week when Carter tagged Miller to succeed the departing W. Michael Blumenthal as Treasury secretary.

Volcker, 51, has been president of the New York Federal Reserve Bank since 1975 and formerly served as undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs.

Volcker also currently is vice chairman of the Fed's Open Market Committee, which makes key decisions on controlling credit.

Because of uncertainties generated in international money markets by Miller's departure from the Fed, Carter had promised to give top priority to the selection of a successor.

The appointments of Volcker and Miller require Senate confirmation.

Initial reaction in Congress to Volcker's selection was positive.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking committee and a frequent critic of Miller, praised the appointment.

"The president has shown outstanding judgment," said Proxmire, whose committee will handle the confirmation. "Paul Volcker is a man of great intellect and proven leadership ability."

Oil companies again report soaring earnings, profits

NEW YORK (AP) — Shell Oil Co. today reported a 55 percent increase in second quarter profits, joining a parade of oil companies reporting higher earnings during a period when many drivers fumed in gasoline lines.

Shell, the nation's eighth-largest oil company, said profits rose from $179 million in last year's second quarter to $277 million this year. Earnings per share climbed from $1.21 to $2.80.

But Shell President John Bookout said rising costs made it unlikely Shell's profits on sales of gasoline and other products will be up for the full year.

On Tuesday, Gulf Oil Co., the nation's fifth-largest oil company, reported a 65 percent increase in second-quarter profits and Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio), ranked 14th among U.S. oil firms, said earnings rose 70 percent in the quarter.

Earlier this week, Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) reported a 36 percent profit jump and Exxon Corp., said its profits had gone up 20 percent in the second quarter, slightly less than some analysts expected.

Gulf, based in Pittsburgh, earned $291 million in the second quarter, compared with $176 million in the same quarter a year ago. Revenues rose to $6.1 billion in the quarter from $4.7 billion.

Sohio, based in Cleveland, said second-quarter earnings were $201.4 million compared with net income of $118.4 million a year ago. Sales rose to $1.82 billion from $1.33 billion in the year-earlier period.

TESCO's rate increase also will hike other bills

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Texas Electric Service Co.'s request for an $88 million revenue hike will result in more than just increased electric bills, Midland City Council members were informed Tuesday.

Winston Barclay, district manager for the Midland TESCO office, said the rate increase for municipal users, which includes the city of Midland, is more on the line of 30 percent.

That increase will be reflected in city water and sewer rates.

The city uses electricity to pump water and sewage, City Secretary James McCullough said.

Barclay spoke during a public hearing Tuesday in council chambers on the TESCO rate hike request.

McCullough said the increase on city utility bills would be less than 5 percent per month.

"I don't think it would be that high," he said.

Residential users are facing an 18 percent increase in their average monthly bill, Barclay told council members.

Overall, considering all users, the increase amounts to 16 percent, he said.

Barclay presented a slide show explaining TESCO's part in the construction of additional power generating plants which would rely on lignite coal and nuclear fuel instead of natural gas.

Texas Utilities, parent company of TESCO, Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light, is constructing the additional plants.

One nuclear generator at Comanche Peak near Glen Rose will be on line in 1981, Barclay said, with the second generator to follow in 1983.

Barclay said the additional construction would "stabilize" electric rates in the future.

"I cannot stand here and tell you rates will decrease," Barclay said.

TESCO filed the rate request in May. The city previously joined other municipalities in the state as an intervenor in the hearing, which will be held before the Public Utilities Commission in Austin.

Intervenor status gives the city access to additional information in the rate request.

Barclay said the company is facing a decline in its return on equity, which affects the bond status for the utility.

"The decline on the return on equity is causing us some problems," he said.

The company received just under a 14 percent return on equity from rate increases in 1977 and 1978.

"We're asking for a 15 percent return," he explained.

Barclay said nuclear wastes from the Comanche Peak plant will be stored on site until the federal government selects a repository site for the nuclear byproducts.

The utility manager said increased rates were promoting conservation.

"We had been experiencing a 10 to 12 percent annual growth rate. Our growth patterns are running about 5 to 6 percent now," he said. "People are using less service."

Barclay said turning thermostats to 78 degrees would result in a 5 percent reduction in cooling costs for each degree achieved.

The council took no action following the public hearing.

City council OKs mobile home area

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Mobile homes and mobile home districts drew fire Tuesday from a citizen who presented a petition to the Midland city council opposing a zoning change that would allow mobile homes to be located near the central business district.

Nonetheless, council members passed on first reading an ordinance that would create a mobile home district in an area bordering downtown Midland.

On a split vote, the council approved G. Thane Akins' motion to make the district smaller than the original proposal.

A second reading on the proposed zoning change will be held at a later council meeting.

Julia Robinson, 501 S. Baird St., presented two petitions to the council opposing a zoning change that would allow the location of mobile homes on vacant lots in an area bounded by New York and California Avenues and Baird and Dallas Streets — about five blocks from the downtown area.

Currently, the area is zoned for retail business.

According to Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development for the city, few businesses locate there because the section is too far from downtown to attract a retail trade.

As a result, there are a large number of vacant lots in the area, Hennessy said.

Five trailer homes have already located within the area in violation of city ordinances, Hennessy added.

Ms. Robinson charged the zoning change would lower property values in the area, which she said had risen lately along with those in the rest of the city.

She charged that locating mobile homes within five blocks of downtown would be unsightly.

"I wish you would reconsider, please, for all of us (in the neighborhood)," she said.

According to Hennessy, a mobile home district requires trailer owners to acquire a lot.

The district does not allow for the creation of mobile home parks, Hennessy said.

Under the motion approved by council, the district's western boundary would be moved 1½ blocks east to South Weatherford Street.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said mobile homes nowadays were the only way some people had to acquire a permanent residence.

"We need to develop a different attitude toward mobile homes," he said.

Accident kills Andrews man

ANDREWS — An Andrews man was killed Tuesday and another man was in satisfactory condition today in an Odessa hospital following a one-car accident at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday five miles south of Andrews on U.S. Highway 385, according to a Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman.

John Erik Pheatt, 39, of Andrews was pronounced dead on arrival Tuesday at Permian General Hospital here by Dr. Paul Rodgers, according to reports.

Pheatt was the passenger in a car being driven by Steven Dorman of Andrews when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve, officials said.

Dorman suffered head injuries and was transferred to Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, where he was reported today to be in satisfactory condition, according to hospital officials.

School crossing provisions revised

Midland City Council Tuesday adopted a revised set of provisions for the city's school crossings which will result in one additional crossing guard and six new flashing-light signals near schools around town.

Defeat of amendment banning busing a 'human rights victory'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House opponents of a proposed constitutional amendment to ban busing as a desegregation tactic say its defeat Tuesday was a victory for "basic human rights."

Jackson believes party will choose Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who once ran for president himself, says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will be the Democratic Party's "undisputed choice" to head the 1980 presidential ticket if President Carter steps aside.

One knowledgeable source said the attitude toward Kennedy is changing among Democrats, explaining, "People are now convinced Kennedy will have to come into the race — ironically, not as the divider but as the savior of the party." The source asked not to be named.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., said if the amendment were passed, "We're going to unleash some forces in this country that God knows should not be unleashed again. The best and the worst of America came out during the civil rights movement and the best prevailed."

UTPB vice president plans to resume position as dean

ODESSA — Dr. J. Edwin Becht, vice president for academic affairs at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, has announced his plans to resume his position of professor and dean of management effective Aug. 15.

He came to UTPB as dean of management in 1972 and was named academic vice president in January 1975. Since August 1977, he has served as academic vice president and acting dean of management.

President Carter also opposed the measure, citing the Supreme Court decision that ended the separate-but-equal doctrine. "The 25th anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision in Brown vs. Board of Education is a time to renew our commitment to this fundamental goal — not a time to retreat," he wrote Rep. Peter Rodino, chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Scientists say oil slick may drift into U.S. waters

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Scientists gathered here to trap the northerly meandering of a Mexican oil slick are predicting portions of the slick could drift into U.S. waters within 10 days.

But Coast Guard Cmdr. Joel Sipes, leader of the multi-agency effort, warned that precise tracking of the slick is impossible.

Dr. Jerry Galt, a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration scientist, predicted the bulk of the thick slick probably will remain south of the border. But he added, "The problem for us is to try to figure out how the patches will move."

Galt said several patches have split off from the main slick. The oil has been gushing since June 3 from an exploratory well drilled in the Bay of Campeche by the Mexican national petroleum industry.

The northernmost patch was located 220 nautical miles south of Brownsville.

Officials have said as much as 30,000 barrels of crude are escaping daily.

Sipes reluctantly acknowledged that the team's task is similar to recent attempts to predict where the ill-fated Skylab would fall.

The scientists said some of the patches are as much as 10 miles wide.

A South Carolina scientist hired to study the Texas Coast, said, "The trick is to keep the oil out of the bays."

Dr. Miles Hayes spent a week studying the Texas Gulf Coast. He rated portions of the Coast as to their relative vulnerability to damage from the crude.

"If we could control where the oil would go, it would be on those fine-grain beaches," Hayes said as he pointed to strips of Texas beaches on a map.

Hayes said previous work with slicks has shown that sandy beaches are relatively easy to clean. He said the beaches do not absorb the oil and probably would not suffer lasting damage.

But he warned that four passes connecting the Gulf with the interior bays must be blocked if threatened by oil. He said the southern Laguna Madre and Corpus Christi Bay are among the more vulnerable spots. He also said marsh and mangrove areas could suffer much environmental damage as well as damage to wildlife.

Lt. Cmdr. Jim Paskewich said booms could be used as physical barriers to protect the interior waters.

Sipes cautioned reporters at a Tuesday news conference the team is working under a "worst case" situation. He explained that all the predictions are tentative, but that the team is preparing for the worst possible situation.

Galt said oil probably will hit shore at Cabo Rojo, Mexico — a sparsely populated area south of Tampico.

He also said aerial reconnaissance and shipboard study has shown that the slick varies in thickness and color.

He said some of the areas are so thick that when he threw a paper airplane off the deck of a Coast Guard cutter, "The airplane goes down, sticks, stops, and stays vertical."

"If you pick it up, it's like warm fudge."

Sirhan's sentence cut four months for good behavior

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, the convicted assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy who says he has been offered asylum in Libya, has been given a four-month reduction in his prison sentence for good behavior.

As a result of Tuesday's routine parole board review, Sirhan's tentative parole date is now Nov. 1, 1984. Under California's determinate sentencing law, his life sentence originally carried a parole date of March 1, 1985.

Sirhan, thin and appearing nervous, took issue with the board over whether he shot up to five bullets that struck Kennedy and bystanders in the kitchen of Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel on June 5, 1968.

"My hands were grabbed and held very forcefully by some monster-sized men" Sirhan said. "I don't remember the actual happening. A melee followed ... I don't feel myself to be responsible beyond that first shot."

Both Sirhan, a Palestinian refugee born in Jordan, and his lawyer reported Libya's offer and said the Arab-American Committee had offered to feed and house him if he is released. Sirhan said he was told similar offers will be made by Iraq and Jordan.

The parole board, which has the option of granting a reduction of four months per year in Sirhan's sentence, rejected his personal plea for retroactive reductions and immediate release. According to the board, Sirhan, 34, had made no attempt to rehabilitate himself until this year, when he began taking prison courses and scoring high grades.

Loneliness toughest obstacle for solo trans-Atlantic sailor

FALMOUTH, England (AP) — The solo sailor from Minnesota's White Bear Lake says loneliness was one of the worst things about his 54-day Atlantic crossing in his homemade, 10-foot sloop.

"I badly missed company and had to pass the time reading books and magazines," said 39-year-old Gerry Spiess after he docked the Yankee Girl here at the southwest tip of England to the cheers of 10,000 Britons.

Spiess hadn't spoken in so long "he sounded as though he needed a drink of water," said his 37-year-old wife, Sally, who flew to England with his parents, Louis and Jeanette Spiess.

The Yankee Girl was the smallest craft ever to cross the Atlantic from west to east, displacing the 12-foot Nonoalca in which American William Verity made a 68-day voyage in 1966 from Florida to Ireland.

However, the Guinness Book of World Records says the smallest trans-Atlantic voyager was the April Fool, just under 6 feet, in which Hugo S. Vihlen, another American, made an east-to-west crossing from Morocco to Florida in 1968. His time was 85 days.

Spiess, a former employee of the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co., set out from Virginia Beach, Va., and encountered the usual hazards of a solo ocean crossing in a small boat.

He told a reporter that after one "particularly bad storm the thought crossed my mind that I might have to give up. I felt very despondent during these times, but the boat handled fantastically, beyond my expectations."

"He got pitched overboard after some bad weather when the seas were still rolling," his wife said. "He told me he climbed back so fast he scarcely got wet."

"I did have some bad moments, but I'm absolutely delighted to have made it at last," Spiess told reporters.

"He shows no sign of ill effects," said Mrs. Spiess, who helped make the beef jerky that was a major item in her husband's diet. "He looks tan, looks good. I don't think he's lost any weight.

"It was fantastic to see him in such great shape. He didn't even seem all that tired."

Spiess said he was able to sleep most nights.

He spent most of his last day in patchy fog, cautiously approaching the rocky Cornwall coast after a sleepless night in the busy English Channel shipping lanes.

ART BUCHWALD U.S. government gives 'on the job training'

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON—The beauty of the United States government is that it gives "on the job training" to its Presidents. The four-year course is free, and also provides an intern salary of $200,000 a year, plus free housing.
When Jimmy Carter applied for the job in 1976 he didn't realize it meant he would have to move to Washington, D.C. "I'm just a poor country boy from Georgia," Jimmy told his mother. "I don't see why I have to move to Washington to learn how to be President of the United States."
"But, Jimmy, it will be good for you to go away from home for four years, and it will give you a chance to find out if you want to be President or not."
So Jimmy went off to a town he despised, as a green intern Freshman President of the United States. At first he was surprised how much he liked it. Everyone was real nice to him and tried to show him around. They pointed out the Capitol and explained how the laws were passed. They drove him past the Supreme Court and over to the Pentagon and the State Department and tried to explain what each department did.
They told him, as a freshman President, not too much was expected of him. All he had to do was study papers and smile a lot.

Jimmy excelled at this and everyone thought he was going to make a good student.
But in his sophomore year, life got harder for him. For one thing the training program required him to talk to congressmen and senators and people in the power structure. Jimmy didn't want to talk to anyone in Washington, because he suspected that they were all up to no good. He joined a fraternity made up of good ol' boys from Georgia and they would sit around the first house at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., grousing about what a lousy place Washington was and how nobody liked them because they came from the South, and people thought they were a bunch of hicks.
What Jimmy couldn't learn was that in order to get things done as a President, you had to talk to other people in Washington whether you liked it or not. The way the training program was set up, everyone played some role in running the country, and they could either make life easy for a President or miserable, depending on how they were handled. Since Jimmy wouldn't play ball, he discovered his grades slipping with the public. He couldn't understand it, because he worked very hard in his office and never lied or did any of the naughty things other Presidents had been accused of.
Jimmy's junior year was the worst. Everything seemed to go wrong.
He flunked economics and energy and barely got a passing grade in foreign relations. The taxpayers who put up the money for his "on the job training" were muttering they had made a mistake, and he would never make a President even if he finished the course.
In desperation Jimmy started talking to people to find out what he was doing wrong. They told him "everything."
He accepted their criticism and started to tell anyone who would listen he had made a lot of mistakes but he was now prepared to rectify them. But he couldn't do it alone. He asked everyone to help him. "What do you want us to do?" they asked.
"Be the people I thought you were and not the people I think you are," he said.
"Okay," they said. "We will if you act more like a President."
Jimmy promised in his senior year of training he would act the part of a President. It was a little late to catch up, but Jimmy was told by his advisers if he didn't do it now, he would flunk the entire course. If he washes out in his final year nothing will be lost. The "on the job presidential training program" has had a lot more failures than successes. That's why we seem to be looking for a new applicant every four years.

Nuclear Institute

It is noted that a national institute to monitor and improve the operation of nuclear power reactors has been announced as part of a wide-ranging electric-utility and nuclear-industry campaign to apply the lessons learned from the Three Mile Island accident.

This should be of exceptional interest to those persons who have been much concerned about the installation and operation of nuclear power reactors. And it is a marvelous thing to take full advantage of the lessons learned from the TMI accident, for the benefit and safety of all people. Nuclear power is going to be with us as a major source of energy in the future, and we might as well learn to be comfortable with it.

In describing the functions of the Nuclear Operations Institute, Floyd W. Lewis, head of the committee set up by the electric-utility industry in response to the TMI accident, also announced a series of industry-supported studies of the health effects on residents in the Three Mile Island area. He said also the industry is exploring the feasibility of a mutual insurance program intended to mitigate against the extraordinary financial impact of a prolonged nuclear-plant shutdown on consumers and investors.

The Nuclear Operations Institute will be set up to "establish industry-wide benchmarks for excellence in the management and operation of nuclear power programs, and to conduct independent evaluations to determine that the benchmarks are met."

The Institute is characterized as a highly independent organization reporting to directors who would include senior utility executives and, from outside the industry, prominent educators, scientists and engineers. The Institute will cooperate with the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, but will maintain its identity and independence. Cooperation also will be offered to foreign utilities which are operating nuclear power plants. The institute concept is still preliminary, a spokesman said.

In addition to the "benchmarks for excellence," the institute would:

—Provide a system for monitoring and evaluating reactor operational problems and subsequent corrective actions.

—Provide seminars and generic training for various utility employees, including instructors, executives and upper management, to assure quality in the operation of nuclear power programs.

—Identify research projects and studies to improve the management and operation of such programs.

To gain a better understanding of the physical and psychological impact of the accident on the population around TMI, the industry's Nuclear Safety Analysis Center (NSAC), which was created immediately after the accident, will partially fund nine research studies, in cooperation with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the U.S. Department of Health. The first of these, a population registry, already is being conducted among 50,000 residents within a five-mile radius of the TMI nuclear station. NSAC is said to be contributing $200,000 toward the study.

NSAC was established to carry out detailed technical analyses of what happened at Three Mile Island and to interpret the lessons to be learned from the accident.

Other similar projects and studies are in the mill for further consideration.

Overall, this is a tremendous, far-reaching program which should and undoubtedly will prove to be tremendously beneficial to many persons in many ways.

The industry is cognizant of the fact that many persons shy away at the very mention of nuclear power, because they are not fully informed on the subject.

We can expect to see and hear about other educational and safety programs in this or similar veins as the story of nuclear power, its safety, its possibilities and its need in meeting the energy crisis, is told and retold in America and abroad.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Police chief denies drug ties

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—Arturo Durazo Moreno, chief of police of Mexico City, was named in a secret Mexican intelligence report in 1975 as one of many big shots involved in illegal narcotics trafficking. U.S. intelligence sources say there is no evidence he has severed his connections with the underworld.

At the time of the secret report, Durazo Moreno was chief of election campaign security for Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo. Durazo Moreno was appointed to his present powerful job shortly after Lopez Portillo took office in December 1976.

We contacted Durazo Moreno at his Mexico City office, and he vehemently denied the charge. He told us that both he and President Lopez Portillo have copies of a U.S. State Department document clearing him of implication in the drug racketeering that infected various levels of Mexican officialdom in 1975.

A State Department official refused to confirm or deny the police chief's claim, saying that such information would be considered classified. But earlier U.S. intelligence documents make no bones about Durazo Moreno's involvement in the narcotics traffic. A secret dispatch of March 2, 1976, for example, states that "discussions were begun on how to proceed against the notorious Arturo Durazo..."

The discussions obviously didn't amount to much. Durazo Moreno not only escaped prosecution, he was promoted.

Other Mexican officials were not so lucky. U.S. intelligence sources reported that the attorney general and the federal attorney for the state of Colima, the entire state attorney's staff of Tijuana and key federal and police officials were fired in a wide-ranging shakeup by outgoing President Luis Echeverria.

One U.S. intelligence report indicates that many Mexican judicial officials were protecting big-time drug traffickers; the going rate for police protection was $50,000 a month. This was usually paid to the local police commander, who not only guaranteed freedom to operate but even provided police escorts for drug shipments on occasion, the secret report states.

U.S. intelligence experts doubted whether Echeverria's crackdown would reach politically powerful individuals—like Durazo Moreno. "Most of the accused gained office because of their standing in the governing party, and often because they were personal friends of the president or his closest associates," a secret U.S. document noted. "Any wholesale housecleaning would cause cracks in the power structure."

Therefore, the analysts concluded, "the president will probably continue gradually to transfer or dismiss the corrupt officials." The report added this gloomy warning: "Often a corrupt official is removed only to be replaced by an equally corrupt one."

Footnote: One part of Echeverria's narcotics cleanup campaign had a perhaps lasting beneficial effect. That was the spraying of Mexican poppy fields with herbicide. The resulting drop in supply led drug dealers to "cut" the heroin sold to U.S. junkies from over 6 percent in 1976 to 4.9 percent in 1978. This in turn may have contributed to a dramatic drop in the number of fatal heroin overdoses in the United States—from 1,597 in 1976 to 596 in 1978.

HALL-OF-HEROES: Heroes in war get medals. Those who fight for peace are lucky if they get recognition of any kind.

Take Abie Cohen, a 52-year-old Iranian-born Israeli who has won medals from two governments for his exploits as a wartime fighter pilot, but takes greatest pride in his unsung efforts to promote peace and understanding between Jews and Arabs in the Middle East.

Cohen was one of the youngest fighter pilots in Britain's Royal Air Force during World War II. Three years later, he flew countless missions against encircling Arab armies in Israel's war for independence.

But ten years ago Cohen followed the Bible's injunction to beat swords into plowshares, and began quietly cultivating peace between his chosen homeland and his former enemies. He operates a "pirate" radio ship in the Mediterranean, beaming messages of brotherhood—along with popular music—to Jews and Arabs alike. Cohen is undeterred by threats on his life from the Palestine Liberation Organization and other war-preaching extremists.

In 1968 he drafted a peace proposal that contained most of the features of the treaty signed at the White House earlier this year. And when he attended the signing ceremonies as part of the press corps, Cohen gave Mrs. Anwar Sadat a check for $10,000 to help three Egyptian foster children whom he and Mrs. Sadat have been co-sponsoring for more than a year.

In recognition of a fighting man enlisted in the cause of peace, we are proud to induct Abie Cohen into our Hall of Heroes.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Navy believes that more than a champagne bottle deserves to get smashed when a new ship is launched. So the night before each shipyard christening, a VIP party is held for Navy brass hats and shipbuilding executives. The cost to taxpayers can run as high as $1,000 per bash, or about $75,000 a year at the current rate of fleet construction. The money comes out of the Navy's $510,000 "official representation fund"—a bureaucratic euphemism for "booze budget."

—More than 1,000 Army reservists showed up recently for their two-week annual training exercise at Camp Blanding, Fla., supposedly to simulate logistical support in a hypothetical European war. But the summer soldiers spent nearly half their time relearning the old Army game of "hurry up and wait." The written problems and orders for the $60,000 exercise didn't arrive for five days, and the headquarters' explanation was astonishing: A lack of duplicating machines.

NICK THIMMESCH

Carter's Cabinet: 'Monkeys taking over the zoo?'

WASHINGTON—I hope that this is the final installment in the trilogy titled "Why Is Jimmy Carter Throwing Everybody Out, and Whatever Is He Doing?" Too bad that in the turmoil the rumor spread that Anastasio Somoza was replacing Harold Brown as secretary of defense.

Citizens and other interested parties have a right to ask what is the purpose of all this body flinging? After all, Mr. Carter formed a matrix early in his Administration, one promising a Cabinet of first-rate people, operating independently. In his presidential campaign, he asked, "Why Not the Best?" and promised excellence which presumably included his appointments.

Mr. Carter has always professed not to like the Washington Way of Doing Business. All right. But he has had two and a half years to show us his way of doing business. Now he is saying that he doesn't even like his own way, so he is firing some of his own "best."

But what does the citizenry get from this? Is the government going to be improved? Will the new crew succeed in cutting wasteful programs and delivering services more efficiently? Are truly better people taking over from those who fell before the White House sword? Or, as one wag put it, "Have the monkeys taken over the zoo?"

Let's begin with Joe Califano out, and Patricia Harris in, at HEW. Califano is independent minded, audacious and seasoned. HEW is the toughest department to govern. Bob Finch literally lost his teeth from overwork as HEW secretary. Elliot Richardson's blood turned to ice water in the post.

Califano tried hard to crack down on fraud and cheaters and reform this incorrigibly profligate progeny of the Great Society. He also flailed against smoking and laggard school integration programs, thus annoying the tobacco industry and some Southern politicians. As a Washington Establishmentarian of the First Order, his dinner table quips about the White House got back to the White House—naturally.

Patricia Harris is feisty but shrewd. She fought the White House for one year and then played ball. She is being rewarded. But at HUD, where she presided, her departure prompts sighs of relief. Mrs. Harris relentlessly dogged her underlings, sometimes humiliating them in front of others. She is also one who likes to spend lots of government money.

The HUD budget was $11 billion last year. HEW's is close to $200 million. If Califano was a reformer and tried to cut fat at HEW, Mrs. Harris' record at HUD doesn't show her an improvement over him on that score. If Califano was faulted for audacity, he will look like St. Francis of Assisi compared with Patricia Harris. If Jimmy Carter chared Califano's skepticism about the value of abortion, the President won't find another sympathizer in Mrs. Harris.

So where is the benefit? Well, Mrs. Harris is a woman, is black and is skilled at rallying these constituencies. There is an election in 1980, you know. She is smart enough to have learned loyalty to Hamilton Jordan and others in the main mansion. As for the dismissal of Treasury

Secretary Mike Blumenthal, what a loss. Fire Blumenthal and keep U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and ACTION's Sam Brown! Incredible. Blumenthal was the best. He was honest and correct in: opposing the proposed $50 tax rebate; warning Carter early that inflation was the No. 1 Enemy; thumping for continued tight money; advising that the tax reform program didn't have a chance in Congress, and trying to work out trade policies to benefit the United States.

His advice was respected and increasingly accepted by Carter. In early June, the President made him No. 1 spokesman on economic policy and gave him an office in the White House, a move akin to that of an employee being promoted by being given a key to the executive bathroom. Blumenthal had reason to believe that his earlier frictions with the Georgians in the White House were being put aside. But after Camp David, it suddenly became throw-them-all-out time, and bam, Mike went. The news hardly added confidence to businessmen here and abroad.

James Schlesinger and Brock Adams? The former is intrepid and unsmiling, the latter is a wily politician bent on survival. The department Schlesinger ran was far worse than anything he did. His spiritual rapport with Carter was not strong enough to withstand the ax. Goodbye, Jim. Go make some money and get all those youngsters of yours (eight) through college.

Brock Adams supposedly pants for the Senate seat occupied by Warren Magnuson and up next year. But "Maggie," though 74, is a popular, powerful figure in Washington state, has already had a big fund-raiser for a re-election campaign and would be a favorite in any primary race against Adams.

Meanwhile, will the Department of Transportation be improved with Adams leaving? Flip a coin.

Finally, I must say that Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's departure is a yawn. He is a charming, sly old fox who always preferred romping through his Watergate apartment building than trying to live up to "Why Not the Best?" Indeed, he was a social friend of the fetching Tandy Dickenson, and during "Koreagate" actually used her apartment to have an international telephone conversation with Tongson Park, Tandy's boyfriend—then.

Griffin Bell did no damage at Justice. He was a sweet-talking good-old-boy who, in Washington, seemed like a catfish who flopped out of his creek. But his down-home stuff irked Sen. John Culver (Iowa) this week, who blasted Bell at a hearing: "You can't say Washington stinks, the bureaucracy stinks, but the Justice Department is a fine place."

Finally, there is absolutely no truth to the vicious rumor that Hamilton Jordan had Califano and Blumenthal fired because they failed to send him a bottle of Amaretto for his birthday.

the small society

Mark Russell says

How can you say Washington is insensitive to the nation's problems when the Cabinet is now on welfare?

After the Tuesday afternoon massacre, one thing is certain. President Carter can't run again because he has already started his second term.

Do you still think Carter is weak? Can't lead? What about his next Cabinet? Is Atty. Gen. Somoza the answer?

It's a new Administration now—especially with the appointment of the Shah of Agriculture.

Agricultural cartel plan would raise farm income

USDA study says AAM's proposal would also change structure of U.S. farming

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan by the American Agriculture Movement to set up international price-fixing cartels to help boost farm income would also add to consumer grocery costs and radically change the structure of U.S. farming, says a new government study.

But the Agriculture Department report, released on Tuesday, said the plan would accomplish AAM's goal of raising farm income, at least in the early going.

Later on, it said, the "real" income of farmers — regardless of the higher commodity prices — would begin to decline because of "increased interest charges, depreciation and real estate taxes which are closely related to increasing land values."

An important factor would be the increase in land prices because of the initial boost in prospective farm profits, suggesting that even with higher commodity prices under the AAM plan "cash flow problems in the farm sector would continue," the report said.

The AAM, which led protesting tractorades here last winter to seek higher government price guarantees, also told department analysts who prepared the report that mandatory crop production controls would be necessary at times to keep supplies of grain and other crops in line with demands.

A spokesman for AAM said the

report was "very biased" and that department analysts "took out everything positive and put in everything negative" relating to the group's proposals.

The AAM seeks a boost in federal price supports to 90 percent of parity on major crops, a formula which at 100 percent would give farmers the same buying power they had in a 1910-14 base period.

For example, the mid-June parity price of wheat was $5.98 a bushel and the actual market price was $3.73 a bushel, or 62 percent of parity.

The government's wheat price support currently is $2.35 a bushel, representing how much farmers can borrow from USDA by using their grain as collateral. At 90 percent, the support would be $5.38 a bushel.

Under the AAM plan, supports for grain, soybeans, cotton and milk would all be raised to the 90 percent level, with the increase passed along to foreign buyers as well as domestic users of the commodities. Stiff tariffs and quotas also would be used to restrict imports of foreign farm products.

"The AAM proposal reflects a radical change in both the basic philosophy underlying this country's farm policy and in existing programs for agriculture," the report said.

"It would establish a highly-controlled and managed agricultural sector and would channel most of the increase in benefits to producers of the controlled commodities."

The proposals include provisions "that would require new and controversial legislation" and, in some cases, violations of current international treaties and agreements, it said.

"For example, the imposition of new tariffs and quotas (on farm imports) would place the United States in violation of the existing General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT)," the report said.

"Further, any cartel arrangement agreed to in principle by the United States would require Senate confirmation, since this constitutes a treaty."

The report said that the AAM plan, including the cartels, also would mean:

—A 15 percent hike in retail food prices this year, compared to the current forecast of about a 10 percent increase. But "after this initial shock," the food price gains would slow to about 9 percent in 1980 and then "largely correspond to the general rate of inflation."

—Retail prices of beef, pork, poultry and milk would go up, resulting in a drop of consumption and a decline in output by farmers faced with rising feed costs.

—Use of grain as livestock feed would decline 7 percent from levels otherwise expected this year, another 10 percent in 1980 and about 11 percent annually by 1983.

—The value of farm exports would climb 15 percent in the first year of the program and by 1983-84 would be about 25 percent more than they would otherwise.

—A reduction in the actual quantity of exports of wheat, feed grains, soybeans and cotton because of the higher prices triggered by the cartels and U.S. price support policies.

The report said it would be unlikely that the Soviet Union — the world's largest wheat producer and second-largest cotton exporter — would join any cartel arrangement with the United States.

"The cartel prices for wheat would encourage the USSR to move significant volumes into the world market and, in turn, to purchase relatively lower-priced feed grains from the world market," the report said.

"The higher cartel prices would encourage grain production in non-cartel countries, and at the same time discourage imports."

As a result, the report said, members of the cartels "would ultimately become the residual supplier" of grain in the world markets.

Wayne Peterson of AAM's office here said the department analysis took "a negative stand on many things" that his group wants.

"We've got proof positive that if Russia runs short of food... they're going to import it," he told a reporter.

"They (USDA) don't take in the fact that availability means more to the importing countries than cost."

The department's report said AAM's proposal "is essentially" the same as a plan outlined — but so far not acted upon — in House and Senate resolutions.

However, the report said "additional specific and detailed information as well as assumptions about how the proposal, if adopted, would operate were provided by leaders of the AAM."

The arrangement of cartels was "a critical assumption" in making the analysis, the report said. Another was the mandatory controls on crops to keep production in line with demand, a provision that would require congressional action.

Canadians worry about new law requiring landowner reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says it has had "numerous inquiries" from Canadians worried about a law requiring foreigners to report their holdings of U.S. agricultural land.

Under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act passed by Congress last year, foreigners must report to the department by Aug. 1 their holdings of all agricultural, forestry or timber land of one acre or more.

"Some Canadians have interpreted this to include homesites and land devoted to recreational uses," the department said Monday.

Ray Fitzgerald, head of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said tracts of less than one acre that produce less than $1,000 worth of agricultural products in gross sales each year are exempt from the reporting requirements.

"This has been a fact since the inception of the program and has been publicized," he said. "But it appears to have been misinterpreted."

Fitzgerald said "reports from Canada indicate failure to report land ownership by foreigners will result in U.S. seizure of the land."

That is untrue, he said.

"While there are penalties for non-reporting of bona fide farm or timberland, seizure of the land is not one of them," Fitzgerald said. "Penalties for failure to report could be fines of up to 25 percent of the land's fair market value."

Fitzgerald said he wanted "to assure Canadian citizens that there is no intent in the act or regulations to penalize or harass foreign owners of homesites in the U.S. or land that is devoted to recreational uses" and that the law was designed "to identify foreign ownership" of land in this country.

In Congress, meanwhile, a House subcommittee plans to hold a hearing Thursday "to assess the progress" by USDA in putting the farmland reporting law into operation.

Rep. Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, the subcommittee's ranking GOP member, said he and its chairman, Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn., are "concerned that ownership reports received by the (Aug. 1) deadline may be incomplete."

"One of the first things we learned in the subcommittee last year was that no one had any reliable information on the extent of foreign investment in farmland," Grassley said recently.

"It's important that the disclosure program works as intended. If it doesn't, we'll be back where we started a year ago, with no reliable information."

The law provides that any foreign citizen who owned an interest in U.S. agricultural land on Feb. 1 of this year must file an ownership report by Aug. 1.

Gasohol briefing slated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday he will be briefed Thursday on the feasibility of a $30 million plant in Central Texas to produce alcohol from milo for use in gasohol.

Clayton Litchfield, Foreman, N.D., chairman of GPI Inc, grain producers, and Ken Johnson, Hutto farmer and chairman of the board of Central Texas GPI Cooperative Inc., will outline plans for the plant. Backers of the plant say it will process 4,200 carloads of grain sorghum into 20 million gallons of alcohol a year.

Some products to be 'plentiful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pork, chicken, turkey and eggs will be "plentiful" for consumers next month, but beef and milk will be only in "adequate" supply, says the Agriculture Department.

The August supply of pork is expected to be at least 16 percent larger than a year ago; broilers, up 10 percent; turkeys, 20 percent; and eggs, 2 percent to 3 percent, the department said Monday in a monthly "food marketing alert."

By USDA definition, when an item is plentiful there is "more than enough for requirements." When it is adequate, the supply is "enough to meet normal needs."

The beef supply reaching retail stores in August will be down from a year ago by 9 percent to 11 percent, the report said. Milk production will drop seasonally but will be "about the same as last year" in August.

Treehouse wrangling settled

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — A lofty legal issue of whether a children's tree house needs a building permit has been settled by down-to-earth reasoning.

Fourteen months of wrangling with village officials and a Superior Court suit have ended peacefully with a building permit for the already completed backyard playhouse belonging to the family of Dr. Edward Self.

Building Inspector Albert Streelman "came over and apologized for all the trouble," Judi Self, the orthopedic surgeon's wife, said Tuesday. "He found it extremely safe and well built," she said.

But some neighbors who complained when the tree house was built still find it an eyesore. "All the hullabaloo they caused didn't sit too well with me," said neighbor John Flynn. "They shouldn't have brought the media in on it."

Self, having seen enough broken bones in youngsters during working hours, determined that his children's tree house would be safe. So he had a carpenter build the Early American-style bough home with $400 worth of pine beams, plywood paneling and roof shingles.

Neighbor Donald Frisfield, whose back yard abuts the Self property in an area of large older homes, claimed the structure needed a building permit, and village officials agreed.

Firefighters battle 3,000-acre blaze, request limited water use

By The Associated Press

Residents of the Oregon city of Bend were asked to limit their water use as U.S. Forest Service firefighters battled a 3,000-acre blaze in the Cascade mountains of Central Oregon that has burned across part of the city's watershed.

Forest west of Bend spread toward the city after it was discovered Tuesday afternoon. The blaze reached within 10 miles of the city then began spreading north and northeast.

Forest Service spokesman Denver James said lines to halt the fire's advance had been established to protect the city of 15,000. He said there was no indication when the fire might be contained.

The cause of the fire had not been determined.

James said the fire could make the area less useful as a watershed. He said Bend has no filtration plant to remove silt that might get into the water as a result of fire damage.

Bend's water supply was switched to city-owned wells and city officials asked residents to restrict their water use.

Deschutes County Search and Rescue volunteers began evacuating people from the 15 to 20 homes threatened by the fire, a spokesman from the Search and Rescue office said. However, James said, no homes were burned and no one was injured.

Meanwhile, a fire that scorched 900 acres of timber in the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest was contained late Tuesday morning, a spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service said.

Gay Broeckus of the agency's Baker office said the blaze was discovered about 2 p.m. Monday afternoon about 10 miles southwest of Unity in northeast Oregon.

About 170 firefighters dug fire lines around the blaze, including crews hired by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management in Boise and firefighters from two national forests in Washington state.

Most of the burned area is federal land containing pine and fir trees. The fire also involved several small tracts of privately owned land.

The fight continues near Omak, Washington, today as firefighters seek to contain that state's largest forest fire this year. Reports Tuesday indicated the blaze, which has burned about 6,500 acres of rangeland and timber, was 'mostly contained.' (AP Laserphoto)

Midland educators participate in recent clinical workshop

Some 43 Midland secondary teachers, administrators and counselors participated in an eight-day workshop on individually guided education at Midland High School recently.

English, social studies and foreign languages teachers and an Education Service Center consultant participated in the event.

The clinical workshop was directed by Sandy Clay, a service center consultant, and Dr. Robert Carter, coordinator of social studies, secondary English and foreign languages for the Midland schools.

Dr. Patty Smith, assistant principal for instructional services at MHS, La Juana Rathjen, a Rusk Elementary School teacher, and consultants Adela Vasquez and Davis Depew assisted in the effort.

The first four days of the workshop were spent introducing teachers to the individually guided program which stresses assessment of student needs and interests, designing a program based on those needs and evaluating the program and student learning.

Teachers spent the last four days testing the program on some 200 MHS summer school students.

Teachers who participated from MHS included Connie Ladd, Merritt Hudson, Helen Ann Barton, Millie Howard, Paul Colgin, George Scott, Kerry Davis, Linda Tervooren, Eva Johnson, Helene Curry, Dials Wolski, Lucinda Windsor, J.C. Gotcher, Janice Saylor and Leonard Boyd.

Dwight Bellamy, Susan Orr, Terry Nabi and Sally English represented Midland Freshman School.

Junior high school teachers participating included Viola Milan, Zoe Carter and Robert Mahoney, all from San Jacinto; Carol Clay from Goddard and Beverly Holmes from Alamo.

Marie Neece, a consultant from the Education Service Center, also participated.

New hours announced by museum

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, located in southwest Midland on Interstate 20, now is open to the public seven days a week.

Heretofore, the facility as been closed on Mondays for cleaning, changing of exhibits and maintenance and repairs. Now, the museum will open on Mondays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., said Homer Fort, executive director.

Visiting hours on other weekdays also are 9 to 5, he said, and Sunday visiting hours are 2 to 5 p.m. The museum closes only on Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

Fort said the new Monday hours are considered a test and will continue through the end of the current year when factors such as attendance and costs will be reviewed.

Fort said that the museum's volunteer service organization, the Santa Rita Club, has recruited members for work on the additional day.

The volunteers' help is making the Monday opening experiment possible, he said. The Santa Rita Club members work in the gift shop and serve as docents, or tour guides, for persons and groups visiting the museum.

Doctor 'guilty'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Tennessee physician, who had been embroiled in a stormy divorce case, has been convicted in federal court here of mailing a letter bomb last month to his ex-wife in Kerrville.

Jurors took less than half an hour Tuesday to return the guilty verdict against Dr. M. Dean Loftis, 28, of Rockwood, Tenn. The doctor, who faces up to 20 years in prison, is scheduled to be sentenced Aug. 13.

"This man who deals in life and death chose that Mrs. Francisca Loftis should die," Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck told the jury in final arguments.

Retired farmer goes back to full-time work as maker of harnesses

LaSalle Daily News-Tribune

DANVERS, ILL. (AP) — Paul Murphy of Danvers does more than remember the past — he makes it a part of the present. The 70-year-old retired farmer now devotes all of his time to the art of harness making.

Each morning, Murphy rises at 4:30 a.m. and starts to work in his leather shop in the basement of his home. What started out as a hobby soon became a time-consuming effort to keep up with a growing demand for his specialized craft.

"Farming with horses is beginning to make a comeback, and the registration of purebred horses has doubled in the past 10 years," Murphy said.

He gives the impression of being an energetic man but his energy is channeled into his craft, which takes patience, a good eye, and a good degree of manual dexterity.

Much of the sewing is done by hand with heavy thread that has been treated with beeswax and pine tar. The stitching has to be exact because it follows a groove that has been cut into the leather with a special tool.

This is done so that the thread is recessed, making it barely noticeable and so that the thread is not exposed to unnecessary wear.

"Sewing is harder and takes longer than rivets, but it's better because rivets cheapen the harness," he said.

Murphy likes to work primarily on harnesses, halters and saddles, but occasionally he takes on an unusual job.

A Lacon woman brought an ottoman to Murphy to see if it could be fixed. "The thing came from Peru and was made out of a thick leather. There was a map of the world on top and I was surprised to find out that it was stuffed with buffalo grass. It was a slow job but the lady was real happy to get it back because it had been in her family for a while," Murphy said.

On another occasion, a woman who had just returned from England brought a set of old horse brasses (harness decoration) to have them put on a specially designed leather strap.

"Each of the brass pieces had the head of an English king on it and the date of their reign. I think she hung them over her fireplace," he said.

Handmade harnesses for both show and work are designed and made to order by Murphy, and have been sent to 15 states.

Murphy knows the practical side of harness making because he did all of his farming with horses until the 1940s, and continued to use Belgian work horses in his operation until his retirement in 1976.

"I sold good horses for $50 back in 1940. Horses of the same quality brought $3,000 when I sold out in 1976," he said. He had as many as 16 Belgian draft horses at one time.

During his years farming with horses he bought only two sets of harness and that was back in 1931.

"I bought them for $30, and the other one sold for $85 in 1976," he said.

Although he has had no special training, Murphy is proud that he has been able to fix anything that has been brought to him.

"I learned a little from my father and a little from two harness makers from LeRoy. I grew up with it. That's how I learned."

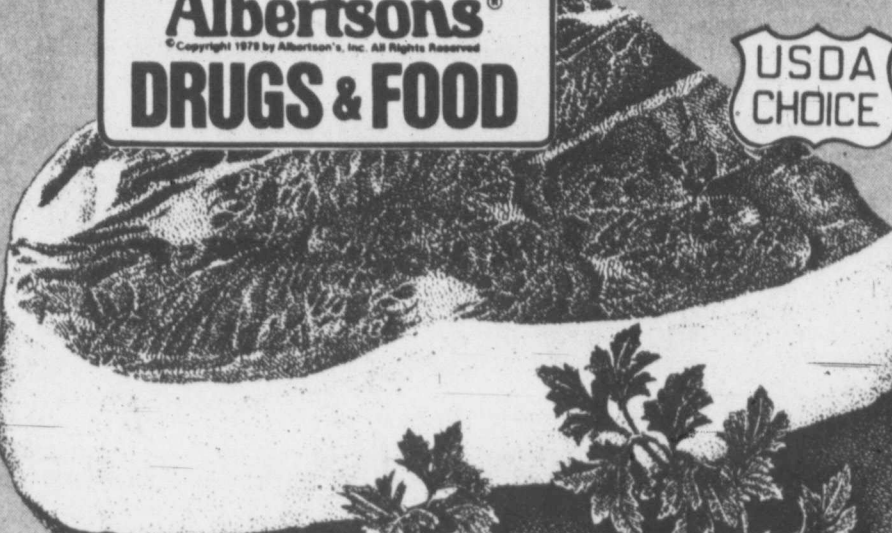

Covering the walls and work tables of his shop are rolls of leather; brass, nickel and chrome harness trimmings.

Safety unsure after 7 says junta; Snipers to be shot

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The revolutionary junta said it could not guarantee anyone's safety on the streets of Managua after 7 p.m. because of shooting by pro-Somoza gunmen and warned that snipers will be shot.

Alfredo Cesar Aguirre, the junta's chief of staff, said one or two shooting incidents were being reported each night. Interior Minister Tomas Borge claimed they were the work of members of dictator Anastasio Somoza's national guard who were slipping out of the Red Cross refugee center where they were interned.

Led by Borge, Sandinista troops Tuesday night surrounded the national guard refugee center at La Franca, about a mile from the Managua airport.

The interior minister designated the compound a prisoner-of-war camp and said all national guardsmen who turned themselves in at other Red Cross refugee centers around the country would be brought there.

The Red Cross has estimated about 4,000 national guardsmen and their families are in its camps. It is making a list of them for the government which will determine those to be brought to trial for alleged war crimes.

Borge said the guardsmen's families could leave the country immediately if they wanted to but the men would have to be cleared before they could go.

The junta took control of the government last Friday, three days after the seven-week uprising by the Sandinista guerrillas drove Somoza from the country. Cesar Aguirre reported water and electricity have been restored to more than three-quarters of Managua.

"We have done in four days what we expected to take 10 days," he said.

He said the junta thought it would be at least two weeks before Managua was under "its physical control but

One injured in motorcycle accident

ANDREWS — A motorcycle accident today resulted in injuries to a 19-year-old Andrews man, according to Sgt. Mike Angel of the Andrews Police Department.

Johnny Walls, 19, was listed as being in guarded condition at Permian General Hospital here with head injuries after he was struck by a motorcycle at 8 a.m. today, hospital officials said.

According to witnesses, police said, Walls was standing in a roadway when Troy Harrell, 18, of Andrews lost control of the motorcycle he was riding and the vehicle struck Walls. Harrell was not injured in the incident, police said.

have agreed on our action." Pezzana, a member of the leftist Radical Party, said Iran's Shiite Muslim patriarch "must be punished for his crimes against sexual freedom and ethnic minorities."

He claimed that many Iranian homosexuals were executed by Khomeini's followers in the weeks after the triumph of the revolution in February.

"We already have thought of the Turin Sports Palace as a site for Khomeini's trial," said Pezzana, who is secretary of the Italian gay association.

Other Officials of the Homosexual Front said they are not seeking underworld figures or bounty hunters.

"We have put a reward to have someone bring Khomeini here. He will be guaranteed international rights for prisoners. We will not be seeking a death penalty or life term. We are against such penalties. We will put a symbolic penalty on him," said Ugo Cucco.

Enzo Franccone, who was arrested and expelled from Iran last March after he demonstrated in Tehran against the new regime, said the Front will pay cash for Khomeini's "extradition."

Timothy Talley

ANDREWS — Services for Timothy Lee Talley, 21, of Aberdeen, Ohio, and formerly of Andrews, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Wayne Peniel of Great Falls, Mont., officiating.

Four men jailed on charges of conspiring to run guns

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The consul general to the Dominican Republic, a factory worker and two Miami men have been arrested on charges of conspiring to run guns to Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua, authorities say.

Consul General Sandino Grullon was arrested at his home in nearby Cherry Hill, N.J., Tuesday night.

No weapons ever were delivered, but the conspiracy was aimed at delivering $1,038,000 in weapons and ammunition, including 1,000 M-16 automatic rifles and 300 M-60 machine guns, according to James McClung, special agent in charge of U.S. Customs service here.

The conspiracy "cooled off" about two weeks ago, possibly because one of those arrested was alerted to a subpoena of some telephone records, Assistant U.S. Attorney John Penrose said.

A five-man junta representing the Sandinista guerrillas was sworn into power Friday in Managua, Nicaragua, following a seven-week offensive against the regime of President Anastasio Somoza in which an estimated 20,000 persons died.

The Dominican Republic minister for cultural affairs, Dr. Dario Suro, attached to the country's embassy in Washington, declined comment early today.

Virgilio Armando Mejie, 52, of Philadelphia, was arrested Tuesday night at Consolidated Container Co. of Philadelphia where he was a production worker, McClung said.

Grullon and Mejie were charged with conspiracy, violating the Neutrality Act and conspiracy to smuggle cocaine.

Arrested in Florida Tuesday night and charged with conspiracy and violating the Neutrality Act were Michael Karasik and Ramon Barrientos, both of Miami.

Karasik was identified as part owner of a Miami Springs, Fla., advertising agency and Barrientos as a flight engineer for Tan Airlines of Nicaragua.

The investigation by Customs, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency began in February on the basis of a tip, McClung said.

The Neutrality Act charges stemmed from the alleged gun conspiracy, McClung said. "In order to transmit weapons of this sort you have to obtain a state department license and no such license was granted," he said.

Police told of burglary

Midland police Tuesday received a report of a burglary at Mr. Muffler, 2324 W. Wall St., officials said.

A white cash register containing $200 in checks and $25 in change was taken in the burglary, police said.

Entry to the business was apparently gained by breaking a window on a garage door and unlocking it, officials said.

A theft of two vending machines from 409 N. Baird St. was reported Tuesday, police said.

The machines, one for chewing gum and one for mints, were taken between July 19 and July 24, police said.

Italy's gay association has declared war on Khomeini

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Italy's gay association declared war on Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today, offering a $1 million reward for delivery of the Iranian revolutionary and religious leader to Italy to be tried for "crimes" against homosexuals.

Angelo Pezzana and Renzo Franccone, leaders of the Front of Revolutionary Homosexuals, said a large amount of the reward has been already raised through self-taxation by Italian gays. They said they expected financial support from international gay associations "which in general

PLO head fighting for life after being shot in assassination try

CANNES, France (AP) — Zuhair Mohsen, military operations chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization and head of its Syrian-backed Saiga wing, was in a deep coma and fighting for his life today after a gunman shot him in the head at point-blank range, police sources said.

Mohsen, 43, was shot just before midnight Tuesday as he returned to his rented apartment in a luxury block in this French Riviera resort. The attacker was one of two men waiting for him on a landing, the sources said.

He was taken to St. Roch Hospital in nearby Nice, where sources said he underwent a "delicate operation" and doctors were "very pessimistic" about his condition. Police sources said his condition was extremely critical.

Officially, police would say only that a PLO leader had been shot. They said had strict orders "from very high up" to reveal nothing.

But PLO officials in Europe confirmed the victim was Mohsen. He was staying in Cannes with his wife en route home from leading the PLO delegation to last week's summit of the Organization of African Unity in Monrovia, Liberia.

Sources said French police and the counter-intelligence service, the DST, did not know of Mohsen's presence in the country. He was believed to have arrived last Friday from Monrovia.

The sources said he possessed many passports, including one from Chile, and passed through immigration control unnoticed.

Sources said it appears Mohsen's wife may have witnessed the shooting and although police had difficulty questioning her Wednesday because of her distressed condition, they got an idea of what happened.

The entry doors to the luxury Gray d'Albion building are locked at night and residents open them by remote control after checking visitors' identity on closed circuit television.

Mrs. Mohsen, in the fourth floor apartment, opened the door for her husband, the sources said. As Mohsen arrived at the floor and walked to the door, which Mrs. Mohsen was opening, a man hidden in a service staircase fired at Mohsen from about six feet away.

The sources said another man apparently kept watch. A night watchman saw two men flee the building.

Farouk Kaddoumi, the PLO political chief of equal ranking with Mohsen, was being received in Paris today by French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet, a meeting scheduled some days ago. Ministry officials said reporters and photographers would be barred.

In Beirut, Saiga operative Abul Hassan said in a telephone interview, "We are conducting some contacts to establish the identity of the perpetrator. Until we obtain some clarifications we will have no comment whatever."

Almost a year ago, on Aug. 3, two Arab gunmen assassinated the Paris PLO representative, Ezzidine Kalak, in his office in the French capital. They claimed they were working for Abu Nidal, the head of a rejectionist front Palestinian terrorist group based in Iraq.

On Jan. 25, 1973, Basil El Kubaisi, a leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, was shot and killed on a Paris street by unknown assailants. On Dec. 8, 1972, one of Kalak's predecessors, Mahmoud Hamchari, was fatally wounded when a bomb connected to his telephone exploded in his Paris apartment. He died a month later.

No arrests were ever made, and there was speculation those attacks were Israeli secret service operations.

The Saiga branch of the PLO was created by Syria in 1967. Mohsen, who was born in Tulkarem, in the West Bank of the Jordan River, had been an early member of the Baath Party, of which different factions rule Syria and Iraq. He was arrested several times for political activity in Jordan, and was expelled from there in 1957, and from Qatar the following year.

settling in Kuwait until joining Saiga in 1968.

Mohsen rose quickly in the organization and was elected in 1968 vice-president of the Palestine National Council. After President Hafez Assad took power in Syria in 1970, Mohsen reconstructed the Saiga leadership, and was also a member of the Baath Party leadership.

Some diplomatic sources in Paris said he was being groomed by Syria as a potential successor to PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

He played an important role in the Lebanese civil war in which Saiga forces were engaged.

Diplomatic sources in Paris said Iraq then bitterly opposed to the Syrian regime, backed the Abu Nidal organization as a rival to Saiga, and that Abu Nidal himself was considered a personal rival of Mohsen.

But since the recent rapprochement between Syria and Iraq, the status of the rivalry now is unclear, according to the sources.

They noted that the Eagles of the Revolution, which the Arab press often connects with Saiga, claimed responsibility for the recent seizure of the Egyptian Embassy in Ankara, Turkey.

Navy pulls nineteen boat people from sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen Vietnamese refugees have been plucked from a small boat in the South China Sea by the Navy's oiler Wabash as part of the United States' effort to rescue the "boat people."

The Pentagon said Tuesday that the refugees — seven adults and 12 children — would be taken to the ship's "next regularly scheduled port of call." The port was not identified.

The refugees all appeared in good health, according to the Wabash's doctor. They were picked up about 370 miles west of Subic Bay in the Philippines and were given clothing and food by the U.S. crew, the Defense Department said.

The U.S. 7th fleet is taking part in an international effort to rescue the "boat people" adrift off the coastlines of Southeast Asia.

The exodus of refugees from Vietnam is estimated to be about 60,000 a month. Some 400,000 refugees are temporarily housed in Southeast Asian nations and are awaiting permanent shelter.

In a related development, the State Department Tuesday said again it intends to send several consular officers to Vietnam within a few weeks to screen immigrants.

Department spokesman John Trattner said arrangements for the delegation were made with the United Nations refugee office.

The statement was made in response to Vietnamese officials who said their government had not authorized the presence of U.S. diplomats in their country.

Fate of Texas' refugees rests on appropriation bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State welfare officials say Texas' ability to take care of needy refugees from Vietnam and Cambodia depends on a supplemental appropriation pending in Congress.

Right now, says Richard Gresser, program manager for the Indochina Refugee Program of the Department of Human Resources, almost all federal money is gone. No state money is involved.

"Due to the increased numbers being received in the state the funds (from Health, Education and Welfare) are insufficient and without them we cannot operate," Gresser said Tuesday. "There is no state money furnished."

Gresser said refugee assistance operations for August and September, will depend on a supplemental appropriation to HEW now pending in Washington.

Texas has an estimated Indochina refugee population of 27,000, the second largest in the nation.

Gresser said about 3,000 of these receive financial and medical assistance through state welfare administration. Monthly payments have been about $100,000 a month in Texas or about $30 per person, on the same basis as Assistance to Families of Dependent Children.

He estimated the refugee program will cost about $3 million during this financial year, all federal money.

He said many of Texas' refugees were sent to other states first but moved to Texas because of the climate.

Houston has about half of the refugees receiving assistance, Gresser said, but there are sizeable populations also in the Beaumont, Port Arthur and Dallas areas.

Israel to return 2,400 more miles to Egypt in desert rites

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Israel returns 2,400 more square miles of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt at a brief desert ceremony today.

The flag-raising near Abu Rudeis, on the Gulf of Suez, marks the second of five withdrawals which by January will leave Egypt in possession of two-thirds of the 25,000-square-mile, wedge-shaped peninsula it lost in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed in March provides that Egypt is to get the rest within three years.

Israel withdrew first from a 425-square-mile enclave on the north coast that included the desert capital of El Arish. Today Egypt is getting back a 75-mile-long strip down the west coast.

The first transfer on May 25-26 was a major diplomatic occasion attended by President Anwar Sadat, Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

By contrast, the second withdrawal was left to Israeli and Egyptian military delegations with no fanfare even though about six times more territory was involved.

The turnover was scheduled some 12 hours before the expiration of the mandate for the 4,000 U.N. peace-keeping troops in the buffer zone between the Egyptian and Israeli armies. Lack of agreement on a replacement threatened to delay future withdrawals but was not expected to affect the pullout today.

The Soviet Union said it would veto extension of the peacekeeping force's mandate, and Israel refused to accept a Soviet-American proposal for unarmed military observers from the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization which since 1948 has kept watch on Israel's armistice lines with Lebanon, Syria and Jordan.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced in New York that despite Israel's insistence on the armed U.N. force called for by the Egyptian-Israeli treaty, he would send a detachment of observers to Sinai, apparently as a temporary measure while the United States tries to work out other arrangements.

Only about 4,000 Bedouin nomads and their camels populate the territory changing hands today. But it includes the road from the city of Suez to the Abu Rudeis oil fields which Israel returned to Egypt in 1975, half a dozen wells that were once part of the oil field and a manganese mine north of Umm Bugma which Israel has been exploiting.

Officials in Cairo say the oil wells are no longer producing although the potential for oil in the area is still good. But American aid officials say the manganese mine's potential may be more promising.

Iranian princess' house for sale

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Iranian Princess Shams' modern, two-story mansion, which made headlines in January when it came under siege by 500 demonstrators, is now for sale for $4.2 million, the Los Angeles Times reports.

The Times' report in today's editions was based on information from a real estate broker who asked to remain anonymous. The broker said the property is the exclusive listing of another Beverly Hills broker, who was not available for comment.

Princess Shams no longer lives in the mansion, which features an indoor-outdoor swimming pool and security cameras throughout. Four persons living on the grounds are caring for the property, the newspaper said.

The mansion was the scene of a violent protest Jan. 2 against the princess' younger brother, the deposed Shah of Iran. Demonstrators broke windows and set more than a dozen small fires on the grounds during the incident, when at least 45 protesters and 22 police were hurt.

The princess and the queen mother, Tadj El Moulouk, were at home when the melee began, but were taken away when violence erupted.

The wreckage of a Puerto Rico International Airlines plane is seen on the cargo runway of Alexander Hamilton Airport in St. Croix, part of the U.S. Virgin Islands. Authorities say eight persons were killed and three critically injured in the crash.

Texas missionary team members killed in crash

CHRISTIANSTED, Virgin Islands (AP) — Five Texans were among eight persons killed in the crash of a small inter-island plane as it took off from the airport on the island of St. Croix.

The 13 other persons aboard the De Havilland Heron were injured, three of them critically.

The 19 passengers included 12 Texans from Baptist churches in Abilene and Clyde on an annual missionary trip to St. Kitts, in the Leeward Islands.

Puerto Rican International Airlines said the dead were Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Connel Jr., Stephen Sepaugh and Jack Rosinbaum, all of Clyde; Sharon Geyer of Rising Star, Texas; the copilot, William Pinero of Puerto Rico, and an unidentified man and woman who were not from the U.S. mainland.

A hospital spokesman said the critically injured were the Rev. Riley Fugitt of the First Baptist Church of Clyde; Caleb Watson of Clyde and the pilot of the plane, Jose Rivera of Puerto Rico.

The other Texans aboard were Mrs. Fugitt, her son Mickey, Pam Patton and Mrs. Preston Porter, all of Clyde. They and the other six injured passengers were reported in stable condition.

The plane had come from San Juan Tuesday, picked up eight passengers at St. Croix, one of the U.S. Virgin Islands, and was taking off for St. Kitts, 125 miles to the southeast, with a full load.

"The plane took off in a steep incline at first," said an eyewitness, charter pilot Bill Kelly. "It stalled and then it veered to the right before it crashed. The plane's nose and right wing hit the ground at the same time. There was no fire."

The Federal Aviation Administration said the weather was good.

The National Transportation Safety Board sent a team to investigate the crash and determine the cause.

End of four-state funding trip near

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter, nearing the end of a four-state trip, received a less than enthusiastic welcome at a campaign fund-raiser in the lush foothills outside San Francisco.

Attending the $500-a-plate dinner Tuesday night were some 170 well-heeled San Francisco area residents.

The event was organized by long-time Democratic financial backer Walter Shorenstein, an influential San Francisco real estate magnate, and held at his home in the wealthy Portola Valley section of Palo Alto.

Some of the guests indicated they attended the roast beef dinner because of Shorenstein's persuasion or because the firms for which they work bought tickets. Several, including former Nixon Cabinet member George Shultz, said they were Republicans and didn't buy tickets at all.

Nonetheless, Evan Dobbelle, national chairman of the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee, called the fund-raiser a "great party" and said it raised $115,000 for the re-election effort.

Dobbelle said he asked Shorenstein to host the party six weeks ago, prior to President Carter's domestic summit at Camp David, Md., and the reshuffling of his Cabinet.

Mrs. Carter spoke briefly, once again reassuring the crowd that her husband was healthy, happy and well-rested, a point she has made at almost every stop on her four-state trip, which winds up today after a Los Angeles campaign reception.

Her remarks drew only weak applause from the guests, and only then after Mrs. Carter paused between sentences.

Many guests said they perceived the president as an underdog with a poor public image but they were dissatisfied with other possible Democratic contenders. But others were clearly supportive of the president.

"People tend to rally around the underdog," said San Francisco realtor Stanley Berger.

Even the host admitted Carter needed to recover a lot of lost ground to shore up his public image.

"Now is the time his supporters should express themselves," said Shorenstein. "It's very easy to become a supporter when the man is on top."

"If I were going to keep a scorecard and a report card, I would rate him very high," he said, "certainly in excess of anyone on the scene today."

Several party-goers characterized the president as willing to make tough decisions and discounted California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. as a creditable contender.

One, who asked not to be named, said Brown had seemed fresh and different to the voters in 1976 but his performance since has proved he has not "the white knight of politics."

Two of those present, an accountant and a lawyer, said their San Francisco business firms bought tickets for them.

"This is not a personal commitment from me. It is a commitment from the firm. We like to spread our money around," said the accountant who declined to give his name. "I am impressed by Carter but I'm kind of for (Sen. Edward M.) Kennedy."

Robert Froehn, an electrical contractor who does work on Shorenstein's properties, said he bought a ticket even though he is a Republican because Shorenstein asked him to.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Carter attended a $250-a-head fund-raiser in Fresno, Calif., hosted by Sam and Betsy Reeves. Dobbelle said the event raised $35,000 for the campaign chest.

Suit seeks repayment in land sales scheme

CHICAGO (AP) — A suit has been filed seeking repayment to more than 3,500 Illinois residents allegedly cheated in Colorado land purchases.

Illinois Attorney General William Scott filed the suit Tuesday in Cook County Circuit Court to recover more than $20 million lost in the land deals.

He said the suit is the largest consumer fraud action in the state's history, exceeding an earlier suit against General Motors for putting the wrong engines in cars.

Scott says people lost between $2,000 and $20,000 each on land purchases in Colorado City, a 20,000-lot development 150 miles south of Denver. The lots are now worth as little as $500, Scott added.

Church members gather to await news of crash

CLYDE, Texas (AP) — As reports of a Caribbean air crash slowly filtered through this small West Texas community, teary-eyed members of First Baptist Church huddled in small groups to offer prayers and to comfort relatives of the victims.

"There were a lot of people upset," said Katrene Davidson. "But I guess it just takes something like this to bring you closer to God."

Members of the 800-member congregation gathered at the church Tuesday morning to wait for word on the fate of 12 members aboard the four-engine commuter plane that crashed on takeoff from a St. Croix airport.

"People flocked over here. It was a time of prayer, a time for Christian people to be with other Christian people," said Eunice Chambliss.

"We were shocked and dismayed," said one resident. "How could this happen to them. Think of all the good they were doing."

Dallila Sturdivant sat alone. She had been among those to see the missionary group off when they departed last Sunday.

"It was a very sad situation. They were like members of my family. We were just broken to pieces," she said.

At 2 p.m., music minister Bill Keck stood before the silent gathering to tell them that five of their fellow worshippers were dead.

"It was the hardest moment I've ever spend in my career in the ministry," Keck said.

George Giles, 15, would have been a sophomore classmate of one of the victims, Stephen Sapaugh, this fall.

"You can't imagine. We were cutting up together Sunday night at my house. You just can't imagine," the misty-eyed teenager said.

"We don't know what to do. We don't understand," said Ms. Sturdivant. "I guess God does, though. And that's what counts."

First test-tube baby marks first birthday

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Louise Brown, the world's first authenticated test-tube baby, is a year old today, but the controversy set off by her birth continues.

"She is the perfect baby, pretty, big for her age, and very forward," her 32-year-old mother Lesley told the Daily Mail, which signed an exclusive contract with the Browns before the baby was born.

"She began talking at 10 months, and we think that she's not only going to grow up into a very pretty blonde but a very intelligent one too," Louise's 39-year-old father, John, told the newspaper.

The Mail published a photograph of a chubby blonde toddler and said she managed to get a foot into the chocolate batter of her birthday cake as it was being mixed.

It said the cake had pink and white icing and was crowned with a single pink candle.

Mrs. Brown could not have a baby normally because the fallopian tubes leading to her womb were blocked and the blockage could not be removed surgically, the same problem 40 percent of the infertile women in the world have.

She went to gynecologist Patrick Steptoe and physiologist Robert Edwards, who had been doing pioneer research for 12 years into microsurgical techniques for fertilization in vitro, meaning in glass, and embryo transfer.

The British doctors took an egg from her ovaries, fertilized it with her husband's sperm in a glass dish in Steptoe's laboratory in Oldham, and reimplanted it in Mrs. Brown's womb where it developed normally.

"We found nature could not put an egg and sperm together, so we did it. We do not see anything immoral in doing that," Steptoe said.

Louise was delivered by Caesarean section on July 25, 1978, at Oldham General Hospital. The government Medical Research Council confirmed she was the first test-tube baby on record.

The births of at least two other test-tube babies have been reported since, one, a girl, in Calcutta, India, on Oct. 3, 1978, and the other, a boy, in Glasgow, Scotland, on Jan. 14. Both infants were reported normal and in good health.

But with these and other test-tube births said to be on the way, religious leaders, scientists and many others are still divided over religious, ethical, scientific and legal issues raised.

For women with Mrs. Brown's physiological problem, the technique offers hope of motherhood. But the Roman Catholic Church is opposed in principle to artificial insemination, and a Vatican spokesman said church doctrine holds that fertilization "must be carried out according to nature."

Pakistan's leading Islamic scholar, Ehtishamul Haque Thanvi, called test-tube birth "a defiance of the laws of nature." But Rabbi Israel Klavan of the Rabbinical Council of America said it "does not present a large problem, provided that those involved are the husband and wife who want to have a child."

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare imposed a moratorium on government funding of test-tube research in 1975. On March 16, a government ethics advisory board took the first step to end the moratorium, saying it had no ethical objections to the procedure if its purpose was to help infertile couples. But HEW delayed action until after mid-August at the earliest to await comment from interested parties and the public.

AT WIT'S END Guests divide

By ERMA BOMBECK

At a party the other night, the smokers and the non-smokers parted and lined up on either side of the room.

Splintering off these two groups were those who believed there was truly a gas shortage and those who didn't buy any of it.

Dividing again were those who didn't want to bring children into "a world with a Salt II agreement" and those who were willing to take the chance.

I figured I had a pretty good evening with a non-smoking woman who belonged to a grocery car pool and was pregnant.

I was wrong. She turned out to be a tub freak. I am an orthodox shower person.

I had never actually talked to any length with a tub person before, but I knew all about them. They were the classic stereotypes. Without asking, I knew she drank Perrier, had knots between each of her pearls, still used bath powder, watched Dick Cavett, read Willa Cather, grew her own dill, and had a doll lamp by her bed.

I told her I couldn't work up enthusiasm for the soaking-in-a-hot-tub-jump-in-the-jacuzzi-last-one-into-the-family-tub-has-to-stand syndrome.

I had tried it a couple of times and pretended to have a good time, but the truth is I never know what to do with my hands. Also my body does not have the insulation to walk into a tub of boiling water without a blood-curdling cry coming from my lips.

She said she knew I was a shower person by looking at me. The type who couldn't stand to have a phone ring without answering it, used the same towel to dry my hair and body, slept with her watch on, put onions in every salad, collected swizzle sticks and threw change in the bottom of her handbag.

She said showers were fine if you were washing sand off at the beach, but frankly considered them the turning point of decadence in the 20th century.

"Whatever turns you on," she said and wandered off to another group.

May the phone ring the next time she has a jet spray in just the right place.

Woman, 91, still operates clip joint in Washington

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Jack Dempsey was the heavyweight champion. Prohibition was the law of the land and the Depression was still a thing of the future when Florence Brower gave up her beauty shop to go into barbering.

Six days a week, Mrs. Brower — now 91 — still clips the hair of Spokane residents, charging $3 a head. For some gents — those over 65 — she charges only $2.

"It's just enough to get by on," says Mrs. Brower, who has operated her own barber shop since 1925, when cuts cost a quarter.

Mrs. Brower still spends seven hours a day, six days a week giving shaves and haircuts in a shop that evokes memories of the days before hair styling and razor cuts, when shaving cream was applied with a brush and witch hazel was the mainstay.

"You've heard the old saying, 'Shave and a haircut six bits.' Well, that's what you could get a shave and a haircut for back then, 75 cents," she said.

Why does Mrs. Brower continue to work? Partly to augment the $195 a month she gets from Social Security, but mostly to meet and talk with people.

"I don't want to stay home alone," she explained after trimming the locks of a white-haired gentleman. Most of her customers have little income, many live on Social Security and small pensions.

"When I'm here, I don't get lonesome. I have people to talk to and I can work or sit here and not be lonely."

or almost 40 years, Mrs. Brower operated a shop on Main Street until the aging buildings in that part of town were torn down to make way for Expo '74, Spokane's environmental world's fair.

She moved to her present location about three years ago.

"This isn't the best place I've ever had, but it's a place to work," she said, looking at the ceiling.

A customer came in.

"Are you open today?" he asked.

"I sure am," said Mrs. Brower, and back to work she went.

Bridal courtesy honors Miss Danna Strickland

Danna Strickland, bride-elect of Jimmy Chatwell, was honored with a miscellaneous shower in the Reddy Room of Texas Electric Service Co.

Corsages of white daisies with baby's breath were presented the prospective bride. Special guests were Mrs. Danny Strickland of Andrews, mother of the future bride; Mrs. Jim Chatwell of Midland, mother of the future bridegroom, and Mrs. Willie Fortenberry of Big Spring, grandmother of the bride.

Co-hostesses for the party were Mrs. Lucile Tipton, Lyrisa Lisso and Kaynelle Johnson.

Colors used in decorations were yellow and white. A picture of the couple and their wedding book decorated the registration table.

Punch, coffee, mints and nuts were served with Coconut Bars and Banana Cookies from a table covered with a white cloth. Centering the table was a basket of yellow and white silk daisies accented with baby's breath, also presented the honoree by the hostesses.

Also enhancing the serving table were napkins ensigned "Danna and Jimmie." Serving pieces included a crystal punch bowl and silver coffee service.

Approximately 30 guests attended.

The couple plans to be married Aug. 11 in the First Baptist Church Chapel in Andrews.

Social security for women still unequal, says Lynda Johnson Robb

WASHINGTON (AP) — American women face "severe and crippling inequities" in Social Security benefits, Lynda Johnson Robb said Tuesday, adding that she will keep giving that message to President Carter.

"He has assured me I will have his ear on some of the issues that are most important, and I think Social Security is one of those," said Mrs. Robb, chairwoman of the President's Advisory Committee on Women.

"The discrimination that exists is based on archaic notions of the different value that is placed on work done by men and work done by women," she said.

The Social Security system is based, she said, on "a 1930s social philosophy — the two-parent, 2.6-children family where men are wage-earners and women do not work, where divorce does not occur, and widowed mothers will be taken care of in their old age by their devoted children."

"We know that structure no longer exists," she said, adding that large numbers of women now work, though many still take time out to raise families, thereby sharply reducing their Social Security benefits.

Also testifying before the House committee's task force on women and Social Security was Edith Fierst, representing the government's inter-departmental task force on women, a group headed by Carter's chief adviser on women's issues, Sarah Weddington.

Mrs. Fierst said changes are needed ranging from the sharing of husband-wife earnings for benefit purposes to the providing of temporary benefits to help new widows adjust and find work.

But such changes should be made over a long period of time, she said, to avoid big cuts in current-program benefits counted on by elderly women and to make sure the changes won't result in raising payroll taxes that support the program.

Simple steps given for patching

By AL CARRELL

A friend used a tire tool to chip ice off the concrete steps. Along with the ice, he chipped off a corner of a step. He carefully patched the corner with some mix, and about three months later the patch fell off. There are two ways to better lock in such a patch. First, paint the old with a bonding agent, a compound available wherever cement is sold. Additionally though, you can give the new patch something to lock onto by installing masonry nails or large screws or bolts inserted in a properly installed masonry anchor. Install at least a couple of fasteners and have them sticking out far enough so the patching mix can go in around them. The farther the better, but just be fittings are so hard to get to. Sometimes you can make your life easier by locating some of the new right-angle, long-stemmed fittings. If your auto parts dealer doesn't have them in stock, get him to search the catalogs and get them before your next grease gun shootout.

Dear Super: This will sound kinky, but it works. As you know, when you go to a tourist spot or amusement park, someone sneaks around and puts a bumper sticker on your car. If you don't get it off immediately, you may need a jackhammer to get it off. Here's my trick. After peeling as much of the top layer off as possible, I smear a thin film of mayonnaise over the entire sticker. I leave this on overnight, and the next day all the sticker and adhesive can be ruffed off with a heavy towel. — L.G.

A SUPER HINT — There are lots of ways to combat a screw that has come loose because the hole has become reamed out. The female approach to most problems is usually simple, direct and effective. One lady, instead of bothering with tools and dowels, merely removed the screw, dabbed fingernail polish into the hole, dipped the screw in some more polish and reinserted it. In a few moments, when the polish dried, the screw was in with all its original holding power. Thanks, Mrs. Y.

Dear Al: I ran across a place where workmen were demolishing a building, and there were several full-sized sheets of plywood. I asked if I could have them and got an OK, but was told I'd have to haul them away right away as the truck to remove the debris would be along soon. I was in my mid-size car, but got the sheets tied to the top without any risk of damage to the car. I just took the floor mats out and used those as padding between the plywood and the car top. FNot a scratch on the car, and when I got home with my prize, the mats went back in place. — G.C.

Moms are priceless

NEW YORK (AP) — The things a mother does for a family are priceless, but if she were paid for her labors, today's American mom would earn some $35,000 a year, according to Parents magazine.

Adequate financial payment for full-time homemakers, says the magazine's August issue, is about $700 a week.

The magazine estimates that house care currently costs $3 an hour, day care is $4 an hour, on-call care is $3 hourly, driving costs $5 an hour and managerial work is $4.50 an hour.

DEAR ABBY

Adopted reconsider before hunting parents

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: I can understand the adopted child's desire to know who his "real" parents were. I'm sure that almost every person who sets out to find his "real" parents imagines that he or she is the product of a beautiful, impetuous love affair between a couple who were forced by circumstances to part.

Such is not always the case. A child can be born as a result of lust, greed, fear, intimidation, blackmail, rape and a number of other ugly situations. Abortions were not always possible, and if they were, many would have refused. Before a person starts searching for his "roots," I suggest he or she ask this question: Would I be more or less happy if my real mother were to say to me, "I don't know who your father was. You were conceived in a brothel and he had $5."

Or, "I got drunk one night and found out later I was pregnant. When I told the boy, he took off and I never saw him again."

Or, "Your father forced my car off the road one dark night."
 Or, "I was an Army nurse in World War II and your father was a superior officer and I was afraid to report the attack."

Who would want to be the product of an affair between the Jewish girl in Holocaust and the prison guard who promised to keep her young Jewish husband alive in return for her favors?

I think someone should point out that these mothers might well be protecting their illegitimate children from further pain by disclosing the circumstances of their conception. — Speaking for Myself

DEAR ABBY: Our son has been going with the same girl for the last four years. They met in college and have been going steady ever since. We have met her and like her very much.

They are planning to marry this November. Although we live in the same city as the girl's parents, we have never met them. I know of no reason for this except that neither side has ever taken the initiative.

Is there any rule regarding which set of parents is supposed to invite the other first? If the parents of the boy are supposed to make the first move, when and how do we go about it? — His Folks

DEAR FOLKS: It's your move. Telephone the girl's parents and tell them how happy you and your husband are about the engagement. Then invite them to join you as soon as possible for lunch, dinner, cocktails, tea or whichever is mutually convenient.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter thinks she knows everything. She says that if children have the same father but different mothers, they are half-sisters and brothers. But if they have the same mother and different fathers they are step-sisters and brothers.

I say that when children have the same mother but different fathers or the same father but different mothers they are considered half-sisters and brothers.

And stepchildren are simply "adopted" children. Please straighten this out since we are having some very loud arguments about it. — Proving a Point

DEAR PROVING: Stepchildren are the children of one's husband or wife by a previous marriage. Half-sisters and half-brothers are sisters and brothers through one parent only.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "JUST ME" IN YAKIMA, WASH.: To paraphrase Goethe: "You can tell a great deal about a man's character by what he laughs at." (The same goes for a woman.)

Court orders return of children to lesbian mother

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A divided state appeals court has ordered two girls returned to their lesbian mother, saying children are better off living with a dutiful homosexual mother than with a "deviant" heterosexual father.

In a 2-1 ruling, the Appellate Division of Superior Court ordered the girls returned to their mother from a father found to have a "troubled and deviant" personality.

The majority opinion, written by Judge Melvin P. Antell, conceded that the girls, ages 11 and 15, would be forced to cope with "community disapproval" but said "this does not necessarily portend that their moral welfare or safety will be jeopardized."

Antell suggested that he had grave doubts about the "stable atmosphere" in the father's household in light of testimony that the father's new wife posed in the nude for pictures taken by the family dentist.

The mother was portrayed in testimony as a dutiful parent who did not encourage her children to become homosexuals, Antell said. In his dissent, Judge John Ard said, "Children should not be victims of an avant-garde tolerance that does not represent the thinking of the vast majority of society."

The split decision automatically qualifies the case for a hearing before the state Supreme Court.

The unidentified parents were divorced in 1969 after a six-year marriage. The mother retained custody until 1976, when she was found "unfit" by Superior Court Judge Phillip A. Gruccio.

By CHRIS CONNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laetrile, the purported cancer cure that has had more proven success in the political arena than in medicine, remains in a scientific and legal limbo — legalized by a score of states but rebuffed by the Supreme Court.

A cancer patient still can legally import the drug extracted from the pits of apricots and other fruits, provided a doctor signs an affidavit that the patient is terminally ill. But Laetrile is not freely available even in the states that have legalized it.

The Supreme Court in June upheld the Food and Drug Administration's power to ban Laetrile from interstate commerce, even for the dying, but it did not disturb the legal mechanism for importation that U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon in Oklahoma City set up in 1977.

The agency is still fighting to close off Bohanon's affidavit system, and the court fight is far from over.

"APPARENTLY, it will be litigated forever and forever," said Michael Culbert, president of the Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy, a California-based Laetrile lobbying group.

And while the legal briefs pile up, the National Cancer Institute is still waiting for permission to start testing Laetrile on humans.

Last September, after prolonged soul-searching, the institute announced plans for a clinical trial of Laetrile on 300 advanced cancer patients for whom conventional therapy had failed.

BUT THE FDA, which must approve any experimental use of unapproved drugs, has not yet decided whether to allow the $250,000 test.

The FDA wants to know more about the source of the institute's Laetrile, said spokesman Wayne Pines. He said it also is concerned about the ethics of "testing a substance on humans that has shown no safety and effectiveness in animals," particularly in light of a recent study that found Laetrile was poisonous in test animals.

Some cancer experts feel a clinical test is justified, given the scope of the Laetrile movement. "Certainly, we can't go chasing every quack drug," said Dr. Charles G. Moertel of the Mayo

Clinic's Comprehensive Cancer Center. "But Laetrile has assumed proportions that no other quack medicine has assumed before."

MOERTEL SAID that a clinical trial could show whether Laetrile has any impact on tumor size, provides pain relief, or even imparts a sense of well-being, as its advocates claim.

No one knows how many Americans have used Laetrile. The most common estimates range from 50,000 to 75,000, but Moertel cautions, "These are all off-the-top-of-our-heads estimates primarily gleaned from Laetrile distributors."

Laetrile promoters estimate 4,500 Americans cross the Mexican border each year to spend $1,500 to $3,000 for three- or four-week Laetrile treatments.

MOST LAETRILE in this country is reportedly sold on the black market, and the FDA has warned Laetrile may be impure and toxic. At least two deaths by cyanide poisoning from Laetrile have been documented: a New York infant who took her father's tablets and a California woman who took massive amounts of breast-cancer. But Moertel and others say Laetrile is not usually toxic in its customary dose.

Laetrile, known generically as amygdalin, contains cyanide surrounded by glucose molecules. It is found not only in apricot pits and bitter almonds, but in lima beans, sweet potatoes and other foods whose "cyanogenic glucosides" usually are not harmful, experts say.

AMYGDALIN was first found in bitter almonds in the 1830s. In the 1920s, San Francisco physician Ernst T. Krebs Sr. developed a product from apricot kernels he called Sarcarsinase. He patented it a decade later as "an enzyme for treatment of malignant growths," but it was so toxic it killed rats.

Krebs refined it over the years, and in 1949 his son renamed it Laetrile and propounded the theory that the cyanide in amygdalin attacked cancer cells but not healthy ones.

Its backers currently view cancer as a type of vitamin-deficiency disease and recommend a regimen of vitamins, minerals, enzymes and a largely vegetarian "metabolic" diet as well as Laetrile.

"Laetrile should never be used by itself. Laetrile simply is not a magic bullet. We never claimed it was," said Robert W. Bradford, founder of the Committee for Freedom of Choice and owner of a firm that sells Laetrile products.

LAETRILE backers see themselves as the successors to Copernicus, Galileo and other discoverers who were pilloried in their day.

The FDA notes that boosters of other "miracle" cancer cures made that claim, too. And Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall noted in the Laetrile decision that FDA annals include such purported cures as "lineaments of turpentine, mustard, oil, eggs and ammonia... and pastes made from glycerin and Limburger cheese."

Marshall said this explains why Congress decided to protect the public against "the vast range of self-styled panaceas that inventive minds can devise."

Some observers suspect that use of Laetrile is down or, at the very least, has leveled off.

Chemical industry luring engineering students

NEW YORK (AP) — During the next few years record numbers of new chemical engineers are expected to be seeking jobs in chemical process industries, according to Chemical Engineering magazine. Luring students to enroll at U.S. chemical engineering schools are high starting salaries and plentiful job opportunities, says the publication.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin is recovering slowly after being hospitalized for a blood clot that blocked a small artery in his brain, and his doctors say they will stop issuing daily medical bulletins of his condition.

Dr. Assa Harel of Hadassah Hospital said Tuesday that Begin was continuing to improve gradually as expected, but there were no dramatic changes.

Two family doctors reached by The Associated Press said that from the information released by the hospital they believed Begin had suffered what commonly is called a stroke. Begin's doctors have refused to use the term because it usually indicates paralysis and is not a precise medical word.

Begin was expected to be released next week, and his doctors said he should be able to function normally in office.

LONDON (AP) — Actors and actresses mingled Tuesday with showgirls, ballerinas and impresarios, slowing traffic to a crawl in Piccadilly, as 3,000 British entertainers gathered to protest the theater policies of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government.

The mile-long procession Tuesday from Hyde Park Corner to the royal opera house at Covent Garden was organized by the actors' union, Equity, to protest cuts in government subsidies and an across-the-board increase in sales tax.

Among the participants was Susan Hampshire, star of the television series "The Forsyte Saga."

"The Scrooge-like cuts by the government will only worsen what is already a critical situation," said Sir Ralph Richardson, 76-year-old stage star and veteran of more than 42 British and Hollywood movies.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the teen-agers accused in the beating last year of former Olympic ice skating champion Dick Button knocked his lawyer to the floor and injured two court officers before he was dragged away from a court appearance.

On officer was hospitalized with a groin injury and another suffered an arm injury in the incident Tuesday.

Kenneth Straw, 19, leaped from his chair when he saw his mother, who was in court, apparently slip and fall to the floor.

While the jury of nine women and three men looked on, Straw rushed toward his mother while screaming obscenities about homosexuals.

Straw and two other youths were on trial in Manhattan's Supreme Court on charges of beating at least four persons on July 5, 1978.

Straw later returned to the court and assured the judge that he would remain calm.

NEW YORK (AP) — The producer of a movie starring Al Pacino as a detective who goes on a psychopathic murder spree after discovering his own homosexuality says "we're not making an anti-gay picture."

"All we're doing is making a film called 'Cruising,'" says producer Jerry Weintraub. Gay rights groups contend the film's portrayal of homosexuals harms their cause.

The movie focuses on an undercover police officer, played by Pacino, who is supposed to stop killings of homosexuals in Greenwich Village, where the movie is being made.

However, the detective goes on a psychopathic killing spree when he uncovers his own homosexuality.

Protesters showed up Tuesday during filming. Many called the mayor's Office of Motion Picture and Television to demand a halt to the movie.

French Concorde may be grounded

PARIS (AP) — The French government is considering grounding Air France's Concorde supersonic airliners because of mounting operating costs as a result of the latest oil price increases, the business newspaper Les Echos reported today.

Comments from the Transport Ministry and the Civil Aviation Authority were not immediately available.

Citizens nuclear panel resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — A citizens' panel created to advise the president's commission investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant accident has dissolved in a dispute over its function.

The panel's 10 members resigned en masse Tuesday after the commission turned down their requests for investigative data on the March 28 accident near Harrisburg, Pa.

Their major request sought information on personal radiation exposures during the accident.

The commission issued a statement expressing regret about "this misunderstanding."

In its statement, the commission noted it wanted the citizens' panel's advice as a counterweight to another advisory group representing the nuclear power industry.

But it said it felt "the active participation by any outside group in the internal workings of the investigation is inappropriate to the commission's commitment to a completely independent and objective investigation."

Meanwhile, federal regulators are drawing up new directives aimed at making atomic power plant operators, as well as state and local officials, better prepared for crises like the Three Mile Island mishap.

The directives call for better instruments for monitoring radiation on and off plant sites, permanent emergency operation centers at all plants, assurance by utilities that state and local emergency plans are adequate, and periodic plant testing.

Staff technicians of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission advised NRC commissioners of the planned directives this week. Details will be given to operators of the country's 70 commercial reactors at a meeting next Wednesday, officials said.

"We think that it will be a substantial increase in the quality of emergency preparedness around these (nuclear) facilities," said Brian K. Grimes, an assistant director of the NRC's division of operating reactors.

The directives will apply to operating plants as well as plants going on line during the next year. Most of the requirements will take effect in January, with some deferred until mid-1980 or January, 1981, Grimes said.

NRC inspection teams will check all plants to assure compliance, according to a staff summary of the directives.

"The first sites to be reviewed by the teams will be those scheduled for operating licenses within the next year and those sites in areas of relatively high population," Harold R. Denton of the NRC staff told the commissioners.

Under the directive, the NRC will require nuclear power plant operators to:

—Upgrade their emergency plans to meet uniform NRC standards.

—Assure adequate instrumentation to sample high-level radioactivity on the plant site and improve off-site monitoring at least five miles from the plant. At Three Mile Island, numerous monitoring instruments went off-scale because of high radiation.

—Assure that state and local emergency plans are adequate to handle a serious nuclear accident and cover a 10-mile area surrounding the plant.

—Hold exercises of approved emergency plans, involving federal, state, and local authorities as well as plant operators. The tests must be conducted at the rate of 10 per year nationwide, with all plants having tests at least once every five years.

Grimes said the directives are aimed at upgrading emergency preparedness until a more complete rule-making procedure is completed.

In a related matter, an NRC official said Tuesday he expects owners of the Three Mile Island plant to submit plans within several weeks for removal of contaminated wastes.

Lack of information caused panic after TMI

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — County officials, saying they were forced to grope toward decisions, told a special committee a lack of good information and shifting evacuation plans nearly caused a panic after the Three Mile Island nuclear accident.

The officials told a congressional panel Tuesday they had to rely on news reports because the administration of Gov. Dick Thornburgh failed to keep them informed directly.

Thornburgh, who did not attend the hearing, was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Mayors and other officials appeared before the House Select Committee on Three Mile Island as the committee resumed its investigation of state and local responses to the March 28 accident, the most serious in the history of the U.S. commercial nuclear program.

"Following the accident, I initiated a call to the office of the governor, but was referred to a press secretary. ... The responsible city staff and I were, in effect, left to grope our way toward making decisions," said Lancaster Mayor Albert Wohlsen.

"It was a total chaotic situation," said Kenneth Reighard, mayor of Elizabethtown.

Jack Tracy, chairman of the Lancaster County commissioners, agreed. He told the panel, "We had all the ingredients for a widespread panic."

The local officials also complained about the state's evacuation preparation.

Plans in effect since 1975 called for evacuation of an area 5 miles around the nuclear plant. But three days after the accident, local officials were told to extend the possible evacuation radius to 20 miles.

Of Lancaster County's 340,000 residents, only 7,000 live within five miles of the plant but 200,000 live within 20 miles, Tracy said.

"The first thing I was going to put in front of that convoy was a big bulldozer, because traffic would be a nightmare," Tracy said of the possibility of a 20-mile evacuation.

Inspectors' reports pose threat to construction of Marble Hill plant

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Inspectors' reservations about documentation and quality control at the Marble Hill nuclear power plant present a new threat to construction of the troubled facility, according to the Indianapolis Star.

In today's editions, the paper says the engineering organization that sets national construction standards has been asked to withdraw its "seal of approval" for the plant.

Removal of the seal would mean rejection of the plant's plumbing work by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and could result in the state's refusal to allow the plant to open, the Star said.

Representatives of the National Board of Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors visited the site 30 miles upstream from Louisville, Ky., June 12-14, the Star said.

In a report submitted to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' nuclear certification committee on Tuesday, the inspectors recommended that the certificate of authorization for Public Service Indiana, the utility building the plant, be revoked unless the problems were resolved.

However, the newspaper said the committee put off any action until September and that a member of the committee warned that PSI is "more or less proceeding at its own risk" by not complying.

PSI, in a statement to the paper, said the findings were "technicalities" and that its failure to comply with ASME codes was the result of a misunderstanding. PSI also said it is developing a program to meet the codes.

The panel's findings are unrelated to problems with concrete work that have prompted the NRC to request two work stoppages in potential radiation areas. Those problems have prompted an investigation by a House subcommittee and a call for a Senate investigation.

Two men indicted in nuke sabotage

SURRY, Va. (AP) — Two former nuclear plant workers who admit they damaged nuclear fuel rods worth $30 million have been indicted on conspiracy and burglary charges.

A circuit court grand jury returned the indictments Tuesday in what some officials believed to be the first case of sabotage at a nuclear plant in the nation.

The indictments accused the two men of "the willful damage of property, conspiracy to commit burglary, conspiracy to commit damage to utility property, ... actual damage to utility property and actual burglary," said Surry County Commonwealth's Attorney Gammie Poindexter.

Movie debut

Actress Cheryl Ladd will make her dramatic television movie debut on ABC as she stars in "A New Start," a straightforward look at the growing problem of child abuse in America.

Robert Ulrich co-stars with Ms. Ladd as her husband in a role that is an equally dramatic departure from the course of his career. Ms. Ladd, a parent of a small child, is an activist in the rehabilitation war against child abuse.

Girl, 7, receiving rabies shots following bite by rabid skunk

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Tests show a skunk that bit a 7-year-old girl was definitely rabid, and doctors are hoping anti-rabies injections will prevent her from getting the disease, which is virtually always fatal.

"So far she has no sign of reaction, but it's too early to tell if she has it or not," said Dr. Gary Williamson of John Peter Smith Hospital. "She's certainly not out of the woods yet."

The child, Donna Martel Boone of Oklahoma City, was bitten in the hand when she tried to pet a wild skunk that had strayed into the backyard of her grandparents, who live 15 miles northeast of Denton near Pilot Point.

The girl's father, Jack Boone, killed the skunk with a hoe and the animal's head was sent to Austin for tests, which showed Monday the skunk was rabid.

Two children from Eagle Pass, along the Rio Grande, have died of rabies in the past two months, and more than 600 cases of rabid animals have been confirmed in Texas so far this year. That compares with last year's total of 572 confirmed cases in animals.

In Dallas County 19 rabid animals have been destroyed, more than any year since 1956, said Don Stewart of the state public health department in Arlington.

Last two of Charlotte 3 moving nearer parole

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Parole Commission is considering paroles for James Earl Grant Jr. and T.J. Reddy, the two members of the Charlotte 3 still in prison.

James Woodard, chairman of the commission, said the decision would depend on investigative reports.

Gov. Jim Hunt reduced the sentences for Grant and Reddy on Friday, making them eligible for parole. Both men met with parole officers Monday and before the commission Tuesday.

The Charlotte 3 — all of whom are black — were convicted in 1972 for the 1968 burning of the Lazy B Stables in Charlotte. Fifteen horses died in the blaze.

Amnesty International and several civil rights organizations became interested in the case when doubt was cast upon the testimony of the two main prosecution witnesses. It was revealed two years after the trial that the witnesses, both of whom had long criminal records, had been paid $4,000 by the federal government for their testimony in another case.

Grant, 38, is assigned to the Triangle Correction Center in Raleigh on a work-release program. He has served more than three years of a 25-year sentence.

Reddy, 33, is at the Camp Greene prison unit near Charlotte. He has served nearly four years of a 20-year prison term.

The third member of the group, Charles Parker, was paroled earlier this year.

The three men asked Hunt for full pardons in January 1978.

Holy month finds Islamic world in ferment

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The world's 600 million Moslems began their holy month of Ramadan today with the Islamic world in even more of a ferment than usual.

The Egyptian-Israeli peace pact, the Iranian revolution, religious unrest in Syria and a trend toward Islamic fundamentalism added tension to the dawn-to-dusk fasting.

Sheiks in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and a dozen other Mideastern countries scanned the skies Tuesday for the luminous crescent which ushers in the holiest month in the Moslem lunar calendar.

At dawn today, thousands of Musaharatis, or awakens, strolled through villages and cities beating drums and singing to awaken Moslems for the Sohour, the dawn meal.

Afterward guns boomed, marking the beginning of the first day's fast, a total prohibition of food, drink, sex, tobacco and evil.

Government-run radio stations around the Arab world have been blaring the theme of "Islamic unity" this week, urging Moslems to heed lessons from Ramadan and observe the Koranic injunction: "And hold ye fast to the cord of God, all of you, and break not loose from it."

It was during Ramadan, 1399 years ago, that the angel Gabriel descended to the Prophet Mohammed and imparted the wisdom of the Koran, according to Moslem belief.

Since then, fasting and unity in a perennial jihad, or holy war, has been required of all Moslems capable of them.

In Egypt, the unity-jihad theme has been retolored to serve the objectives of peace with Israel. In Syria, Iraq, Libya, Algeria and among the Palestinians the call for jihad during Ramadan underscored the theme of war preparedness and sacrifice.

The oil-rich countrils of the Persian Gulf led by Saudi Arabia have been preaching a middle-of-the-road approach — to unite for peace with a view to eliminating the specter of war.

The Mideast hardliners have successfully ostracized Egypt from the Arab fold, and the world Islamic community has reluctantly rebuked the Egyptian-Israeli peace process.

Domestic troubles have been snowballing in Iran, Afghanistan and Syria. The Syrian government has been cracking down on radicals of the Moslem Brotherhood organization who allegedly perpetrated the recent military academy massacre at Aleppo.

The fanatical Moslem Brothers of Egypt, preaching a newer brand of Islam, have rejected the Egyptian-Israeli peace process as heresy.

The Iranian leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, clamped a strict ban on music, comparing it to opium.

Meanwhile, the Saudi leaders continued to muster petrobillions in hopes of uniting the world's scattered Moslem nations, divided by political and theological feuds.

"I urge all Moslem leaders to forget their bickering and unite under the banner of Allah as of the first day of Ramadan, if they want to invoke the blessing of Allah," said Sheik Abdullah Alayli, Lebanon's leading Islamic historian and Arabic linguist.

The sheik noted the Koran's stress on unity and affirmed that the month of fasting is the "best occasion to launch a campaign of fraternity and amity among the faithful sons of Islam."

"Jihad," he said, "means overwhelming mischief and discarding animosities among the sons of the one Islamic family. Jihad does not necessarily denote wars and violence and bloodshed."

But a Palestinian guerrilla said, "Jerusalem is still in Jewish hands, the Israeli flag is atop the Dome of the Rock, and our shame must be expunged with sacrifice and blood during this Ramadan."

He and other guerrillas and Palestinian refugees in Lebanon have called for a "new jihad with the Koran, the dagger and the Kalashnikov," the Soviet-bloc assault rifle.

47 dead, missing on first holy day

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A boatload of Moslems sailing out to sight the new moon starting the holy month of Ramadan capsized off the Kenyan coast Tuesday night, and 47 persons were dead or missing, police reported.

The police said 17 bodies had been recovered and 30 persons were missing. The official Kenya News Agency said 15 survivors were hospitalized on the island of Lamu.

Police chief's death brings executions in Iran to 364

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The former police chief of Amol, in northern Iran near the Caspian Sea, was executed Tuesday night, raising the total put to death by revolutionary firing squads to 364, Radio Tehran announced. The broadcast said a revolutionary tribunal convicted Maj. Iraj Zolfaghari of killing two people, wounding innocent persons and insulting Islam.

Security men executed for political murder

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Four former security men were executed today for the political murder that former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was hanged for April 4. Mian Mohammed Abbas and Soofi Ghulam Mustafa were hanged in Rawalpindi, Arshad Iqbal in Faisalabad and Rana Ifthikhar Ahmed in Lahore.

Bhutto was convicted of ordering the ambush of a political opponent whose father was killed instead, and the four men were convicted of carrying out his orders. All four confessed their part in the murder, but Bhutto insisted he was innocent.

Indonesian earthquake 6.0 on Richter scale

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A strong earthquake in the Indian Ocean 350 miles southeast of Java was recorded early today and measured 6.0 on the Richter scale, the government meteorological office reported. Officials said there were no reports of casualties or damage.

Japanese leader resigns in conflict

TOKYO (AP) — Raizo Matsuno, former director-general of the Japanese Defense Agency, resigned his seat in Parliament today because of accusations that he took $2.3 million from McDonnell-Douglas and Grumman to promote sales of their aircraft to the government.

Matsuno, 62, a senior member of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, admitted receiving the money from the Nissho-Iwai Co., the Japanese representative of the two American companies. But he said the money was a political contribution not a bribe.

The statute of limitations prevented his being indicted, but other Liberal Democrats demanded his resignation to absolve the party.

Ten dead, four missing in coal mine explosion

SIDNEY, Australia (AP) — Ten bodies were recovered and four other miners were missing and feared dead following an explosion in the Appin coal mine 37 miles southwest of Sydney. One man was hospitalized with burns, but doctors said his condition was not serious.

A company spokesman said the explosion late Tuesday occurred about two miles from the mine entrance. The injured man, electrical engineer Jim Hoffman, said he and the 10 men whose bodies were recovered were drinking tea about 2,000 feet below the surface when the blast occurred. Queen's visit puts spotlight on 'island' of calm in Africa

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II's visit to Malawi this week put the spotlight on an oasis of peaceful prosperity amid black African nations ravaged by political or economic problems.

The royal visit to agriculturally self-sufficient Malawi was sandwiched into a Commonwealth tour that also includes Tanzania, Botswana and Zambia, all active supporters of the guerrillas fighting for control of Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

Malawi, often maligned by other black states for its diplomatic relations with South Africa's white-minority government, is neutral on the question of recognition for the controversial Zimbabwe Rhodesia government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, the chief issue to be considered by the Commonwealth Conference that the queen will open next week in Lusaka, the Zambian capital.

Surrounded by Tanzania, Mozambique and Zambia, this tiny free-enterprise nation of 5 million people remains aloof from the internal problems of other countries and cooperates quietly with its much larger socialist neighbors.

It sells its surplus corn to Tanzania and Mozambique. This year it gave famine-threatened Zambia 33,000 tons as a gift.

Malawi refused support to the Frelimo guerrillas that won Mozambique's independence from Portugal, but now it maintains careful relations with their Marxist government to protect its only rail links to the sea.

When Malawi was a British protectorate, it was expected to supply Rhodesia and Zambia with cheap labor because it lacked minerals and natural resources. And 12,000 Malawians do work in South Africa's mines.

But since independence in 1964, the country has become an exporter of tobacco, tea, groundnuts and sugar. It also provides neighboring countries with fish from Lake Malawi, which covers 20 percent of the area.

The per capita annual income has risen in the last 15 years from $45 to $200. There is little or no hunger, and the crime rate is low.

President H. Kamuzu Banda, the 73-year-old president-for-life of the nation and its one political party, inevitably is given the credit for the country's success.

Along with total political control, he rules the economy through his 99-percent ownership of Press Holdings, the country's largest commercial enterprise. It cooperates with such government enterprises as the Malawi Development Corp. and the Agricultural Development and Marketing Corp.

Malawi has a good reputation for its use of foreign aid funds and repayment of loans. The World Bank, the Commonwealth Development Fund, Britain, Canada and South Africa all have invested heavily in the nation's development.

"Every penny of aid money given to this country is used as it was intended to be used," one ambassador said. "There's absolutely no corruption or siphoning of funds. The system is totally efficient."

SECTION C

Wildcat work set in West Texas areas

Wildcat operations have been reported in Crane, Motley, Stonewall, Schleicher and Runnels counties, and new tests and wells have been announced in proven field areas.

CRANE TEST

PT Production Co. of Monahans announced plans to re-enter a depleted well in the Tucker field of Crane County and cleanout to 5,500 feet for tests as a wildcat.

The project, the former Cities Service Oil Co. No. 1 Stanton Brunson which was abandoned by Chevron USA, Inc. as operator of the Tucker Unit in 1977, is 1,593 feet from north-east and 720 feet from northwest lines of section 26, block 1, H&TC survey and three miles north of Imperial.

The Tucker field produces at 5,750 feet.

MOTLEY EXPLORER

Transcontinental Oil Corp. of San Angelo No. 1 Payne is to be drilled as a 4,400-foot wildcat in Motley County, 10 miles east of Roaring Springs.

The drillsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 107, block M, Matador Cattle Co. survey. The site is 5/8 mile north and slightly west of a 5,356-foot failure and three miles east of the Roaring Springs (Permo-Pennsylvanian) field.

STONEWALL AREA

WES-TEX Drilling Co. of Abilene spotted location for a 5,800-foot wildcat in Stonewall County, 14 miles northeast of Aspermont.

It will be drilled as No. 2 Baptist Foundation, 1,560 feet from north and 500 feet from east lines of section 2, block D, H&TC survey. The location is 1/2 mile west of the operator's No. 1 Baptist Foundation, a 5,475-foot dry hole, and two and one-quarter miles south of the Kiowa Peak multipay field.

SCHLEICHER RE-ENTRY

Bill Cheek of Eldorado announced plans to re-enter a 6,921-foot wildcat failure in Schleicher County, five miles northeast of Eldorado.

It is the former Tucker Drilling Co., Inc., and Don Woody No. 1 Cheek which was abandoned in 1978.

Cheek will clean out to 6,650 feet and test the project as a wildcat.

It is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 70, block LL, E. C. Cozzens survey.

The site is 1.5 miles south of the depleted Tucker-Wright (Strwn) field and 3.5 miles east of the Regal (Wolfcamp oil) pool.

The Strawn was topped at 5,903 feet and the Ellenburger was entered at 6,707 feet on ground elevation of 2,396 feet.

RUNNELS TRY

Lynn Gillespie of Abilene will re-enter a wildcat failure in Runnels County and test it as a wildcat.

The project was drilled by Roy B. Powers Jr. as the No. 1 Gerstenberg 1/2 mile southwest of the depleted Davis multipay field and 2.5 miles south of Winters.

Gillespie will clean the hole out to 4,300 feet.

Location is 4,450 feet from the most northerly north line and 678 feet from the most easterly east line of EL&RR survey No. 7.

WARD FIELD TEST

MGF Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1-31 University has been spotted 1/2 mile east of one of the three wells in the War-Wink (Delaware gas) pool of Ward County, 10 miles northwest of Pyote.

Scheduled to 7,300 feet to test the Delaware gas pay, it is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 31, block 17, University Lands survey.

WARD AREA

Shell Oil Co. No. 169 Sealy-Smith Foundation is to be drilled 3/4 mile east of a shut-in well in the Monahans (Permian Tub 2) field of Ward County, two and three-quarter miles northeast of Monahans.

Scheduled for a 5,800-foot bottom, it is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 22, block A, G&MMB&A survey. Operator plans to dual complete the well in the Clear Fork and the Tub 2 zones. There are two Tub 2 wells in the field. The site is surrounded by Clear Fork producers.

STERLING WELL

Mesa Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 1-5 Cole has been completed in the W.A.M. (Fusselman) field of Sterling County, 5.5 miles southwest of Sterling City.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 195 barrels of 52.5-gravity oil and 72 barrels of water, through a 14/64-inch choke and perforations from 8,450 to 8,462 feet.

The gas-oil ratio is 2,397-1. The pay was acidized with 17,500 gallons and fractured with 17,000 gallons.

Total depth is 8,646 feet and 5.5-inch pipe is cemented at 8,621 feet. The plugged back depth is 8,850 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 5, block T, T&P survey and one and three-eighths miles northeast of other Fusselman production.

CRANE OILER

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1127 W. N. Waddell and others is a new well in the Sand Hills, North (Ellenburger) field of Crane County, 20 miles northwest of Crane.

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 64 barrels of 36.9-gravity oil and 74 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,006 to 6,010 feet.

The pay was acidized with 2,500 gallons.

Total depth is 6,053 feet, hole is plugged back to 6,050 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 6,052 feet.

The wellsite is 2,080 feet from north and 710 feet from east lines of section 11, block B-21, psi survey and 3/4 mile east of the field's only other Ellenburger well.

CROCKETT RE-ENTRY

American Petrofina Co. of Texas, Big Spring, will re-enter a 9,969-foot failure in Crockett County and attempt to complete it as the second Canyon gas producer in the Baggett-multipay pool.

The project is No. 2-C Baggett, originally drilled by Cosden Petroleum Corp., it is 1,980 feet from north and 2,430 feet from east lines of section 28, block F, GC&SF survey. It is 1.5 miles west of the field's only other Canyon gas well.

The location is 11 miles south of Ozona.

CROCKETT OFFSET

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland No. 2 Williams is to be dug as a north offset to production in the Ecklaw (San Andres oil) pool of Crockett County, 14 miles north of Ozona.

The 1,500-foot test is 2,531 feet from south and 330 feet from west lines of section 38, block OP, GC&SF survey. Ground elevation is 2,565 feet.

GARZA TESTS

The Coulter (Spraberry) pool of Gara County, 12 miles southwest of Post, has gained four new projects, all staked by The Wil-Mc Oil Corp. of Dallas.

The No. 2-A J.F. Lott will be dug 733 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 13, block 1, Jasper Hays survey.

The No. 3-A J.F. Lott is 733 feet from north and 1,657 feet from east lines of section 13, block 1, Jasper Hays survey.

No. 4-A J.F. Lott is 1,933 feet from north and 1,667 feet from east lines of section 13, block 1, Jasper Hays survey.

The No. 2 Mary B. Macey is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 17, block 30, T-7-N, J.B. Massey survey, abstract 391.

Each of the projects will be drilled to 5,400 feet.

TERRY TEST

Eagle Oil & Gas Co. staked location for a 5,500-foot project in the Wellman, Southwest (San Andres) pool of Terry County, three miles south of Wellman.

The project is No. 1 Oscar L. Lewis, 2,173 feet from south and east lines of section 62, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

IRION PROJECT

Indian Wells Oil Co. of Ozona spotted location for a long outpost to the Probandt (Canyon) field of Irion County, 19 miles northwest of Mertzon.

The project, 3.5 miles southeast of production, is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 42, block 6, H&TC survey.

It is contracted to 7,400 feet and the ground elevation is 2,534 feet.

FISHER AREA

Bridwell Oil Co. of Abilene No. 1 W. J. Coffman will be dug one location east of one of the three wells in the Rotan, East (Hope lime) pool of Fisher County, four miles northeast of Rotan.

Scheduled for tests in the Hope zone, it is to drill to 3,900 feet, 1,249 feet from south and 1,000 feet from east lines of section 184, block 2, H&TC survey.

KING STEP-OUT

Taubert, Steed, Gunn & Medeers of Wichita Falls No. 9-GG S. B. Burnett has been spotted as a 6,000-foot test in the Big S multipay pool of King County, 14 miles southeast of Guthrie.

Slated to test the Strawn, it is 3/4 mile northwest of that pay and 660 feet from north and 2,180 feet from west lines of section 48, A. L. Jay survey, abstract 1184.

SCHLEICHER TESTER

T. C. Meador of Eldorado No. 4-22 T. C. Meador is a new test one location south of the discovery well of the oil discovery of the Cody Bell, Southwest (Wolfcamp) field of Schleicher County.

Slated on a 5,400-foot contract, it is 1,720 feet from north and 1,685 feet from west lines of section 22, block LL, TCRS survey. Elevation is 2,461 feet.

YOAKUM TEST

Sun Oil Co. No. 7-A Mattie Powell is a new 8,400-foot Wichita-Albany project in the Ownby multipay pool of Yoakum County, 12 miles east of Plains.

The location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 4, block D, J. H. Gibson survey. Elevation is 3,563 feet.

Rail rates on coal high

By SOLL SUSSMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - San Antonio Mayor Lila Cockrell told a congressional hearing Tuesday it may be cheaper to buy Australian coal than bear the rail freight costs for the domestic variety. After the city decided in 1973 to convert its electric generating plant from oil and gas to coal, it found the rail shipping costs from Wyoming to San Antonio rose substantially.

Mrs. Cockrell told the Joint Economic Committee the coal freight rate rose 133 percent between 1973 and 1979 in order to subsidize the railroads' less profitable operations.

"Frankly, our crystal ball just didn't show anything like that escalation," she said. "This certainly is not going to be an incentive for other cities and utilities to convert to coal."

The mayor said she recently started negotiating with the Mitsubishi Corp. of Japan to find if shipping Australian coal by water routes might be more economical than the Wyoming to San Antonio rail route.

"It seems ridiculous to me that there is even a remote possibility that we can better serve our citizens by importing coal from halfway around the world than we can by using our own resources," she said.

House making another try on standby rationing

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - With raised energy consciousness, the House is making another try at giving the president standby gas rationing authority. This time leaders are confidently predicting approval.

After rejecting the first plan 246 to 159 on May 10, the House today was considering a recycled and expanded version that has become a major piece of President Carter's energy program.

A changed mood in Congress toward energy issues - prompted by the summer's gas lines and given further impetus by Carter's new energy initiatives - is expected to provide the votes needed to overturn the May action.

The House Rules Committee, which picks the bills that will see floor action, approved the measure by voice vote Tuesday, opening the way for its consideration by the full 435-member House.

The legislation may be the only part of Carter's plan with any chance of getting to the president's desk before the congressional August recess, which begins Aug. 3.

On Tuesday, Senate leaders told Carter that final action on his "windfall profits" tax won't come until the fall. And other parts of the plan now moving through Congress also seem unlikely to be enacted until after the month-long recess.

The bill before the House would get the president to invoke rationing if oil or gasoline supplies fell by 20 percent over a 30-day period - or if such a shortage seemed likely. Once invoked, Congress would have 15 days during which either chamber could block the plan.

However, White House lobbyists are unhappy with the 20 percent "trigger" and are encouraging amendments to eliminate or reduce this provision.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicts the House will approve the rationing bill and says there's a good chance the 20 percent trigger will be trimmed. "It was put in only to get the bill out of committee," he recently confided to several reporters.

However, sponsors of the bill say they may try to keep the 20 percent requirement to ensure that rationing is used only in an emergency of the magnitude of another Arab oil embargo.

The legislation would also enable the president to impose lesser measures - including requiring states to meet federally mandated fuel-conservation goals - for shortages not severe enough to warrant rationing.

"Intermediate conservation steps are needed," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., a prime sponsor of the overall bill. "The gas lines can come back at any time."

Lower crude price lets some firms profit more

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) - Four major oil companies may be earning more than their competitors, industry officials say, because they are selling products made from lower-priced Saudi Arabian crude oil for as much as those made from higher-priced crude.

The four companies are Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp., Texaco Inc. and Standard Oil Co. of California, the partners in Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), which runs the Saudi oilfields.

While the average price of OPEC crude oil is about $20 a barrel, the four firms are paying $18 a barrel for Saudi oil.

"There certainly is a benefit, and it's good-sized," said E.L. Dow, assistant comptroller for Standard of California, though he added, "I don't think that the huge number is there."

The price of Saudi oil is lower than the average OPEC price because Saudi oil is of lower quality than some other types of oil and because the Saudis have attempted to hold prices down to avoid upsetting the world economy. Nevertheless, the price of Saudi oil has risen 42 percent since the end of last year.

Because the difference between the Saudi price and the average price is about $2 a barrel, the 6.5 million barrels of Saudi oil exported daily by the Aramco companies could be worth an extra $13 million daily, or $4.74 billion annually before taxes—a bit less than the $5.84 billion net income the four companies had last year.

But the effects of the advantage are diluted by a number of factors.

"It's clearly an advantage to these companies, but to quantify it is really a difficult task," said an industry source. "Clearly, it's an advantage to them, but whether it's a bonanza is another thing."

Experts said the advantage is reduced by higher costs of refining lower-quality Saudi oil and by moves made by the Saudis themselves to lessen the advantage. "It gets pretty well watered down," said Dow.

Saudi Arabia recently stiffened its credit terms to Aramco partners, thus effectively making the oil more expensive.

And the Saudis have made their latest price increase — from $14.55 a barrel to $18 a barrel — retroactive to June 1. It was approved at the end of June, and that move cost Exxon about $100 million last quarter.

"If your price goes up $3.50 after the fact, you can't do much about getting that back on oil you've already sold," said Dow. "It certainly soaked up quite a bit."

Price controls also diminish the advantage. In the United States, companies must sell gasoline at a price reflecting crude oil costs, and because companies use oil from several sources, the net difference in gasoline prices between an Aramco company and a non-Aramco company is virtually non-existent, analysts said.

Minnesota line favored

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Department of Energy says a proposed oil pipeline from Washington state to Minnesota offers the greatest economic benefit of four west-to-east pipelines under consideration.

But the department, in a report released Tuesday, reached no conclusion on which pipeline should be picked to move surplus Alaska crude oil to inland markets. The report said the proposed Northern Tier pipeline could provide the greatest economic benefit. It is the only one of the four running entirely within the United States. Other pipelines under consideration are Kitimat, Foothills and Transmountain.

Fire battle continuing

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) - Firefighters and tugs fought flames on the blazing oil supertanker Atlantic Empress today after a fifth tank ruptured, more than doubling the spillage to as much as 15,000 gallons per hour.

But Michael J. Garnett, an oil pollution expert for a consortium of tanker owners, said the oil was either burning or dispersing and posed no threat to Caribbean beaches.

The 1,000-foot ship, last reported under tow about 100 miles northeast of Tobago and 80 miles southeast of Barbados, already has lost a tenth of its 70-million-gallon cargo.

The Empress collided Thursday night with the supertanker Aegean Captain about 20 miles off Tobago. Both ships caught fire, 27 crewmen were missing and presumed dead, and 52 others survived. Only one of the Captain's 20 tanks was damaged.

But four of the Empress's 18 tanks were ruptured in the collision, and a fifth tank blew open early Tuesday. Five firefighters boarded the ship and began hosing down the blaze amidships with foam and chemically treated "light water."

Two tugs also hosed down the fire while a third sprayed foam over blazing oil in the water that kept reigniting the blaze on the supertanker, Phillip Neal, a Mobil Oil Corp. fire specialist said. Mobil owns the cargo aboard the Empress.

The Aegean Captain, meanwhile, has been towed to about 10 miles off the northwestern tip of Trinidad. It received a large gash in its bow, but the spill as been stopped.

Air travel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scheduled airlines now account for 84 percent of intercity public passenger miles in the United States, with more than 300 million passengers expected to fly this year, according to the Air Transport Association.

ATA President Paul R. Ignatius says, "The 1978 air traffic surge has continued through the winter and spring of 1979. There is the prospect that the airlines this year will carry more than 300 million passengers, continuing their predominant role in intercity public passenger service — 84 percent domestically and 95 percent to overseas points.

Fine wines, brandies matter of habit in Rome

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

ROME (AP) — Near Piazza Navona, where the tourists always go to see three of Rome's loveliest fountains, stands a remarkable liquor store that the tourists have been slow in discovering.

But the natives know all about the marvelous medicinal elixirs of Ai Monasteri, as the shop on Corso Rinascimento is called.

Ai Monasteri — literally, at the monasteries — deals only in wines, brandies, liqueurs, etc., distilled, brewed, bottled, barreled, whatever, by the good monks and holy friars in their monastery wine cellars, often from the fruits of their own vineyards.

A browse about the shelves indicates at a glance how busy and versatile these men of God have been at reaping the harvest of the Master's vineyard.

There is Rhum Fantasia, fantastic rum, from the Carmelites; Sambuca liqueur from the Cistercian monks at Certosa, a cloistered order whose members from California were in display, Rome's monastery grog shop does not limit itself to native ecclesiastical produce. Jerusalem's Latroun monastery was represented along with monastic endeavors from Cyprus, Greece, Spain, Portugal, Germany, Austria and, of course, France, where the men of the cloth have almost been in the habit of making miracles from the grape harvest.

Dom Perignon, the father of champagne whose statue looks out over the vineyards, may not have put the fizz into the world's most festive beverage, but he created an industry as well as a taste sensation by inventing a way of tying down the corks with string and keeping the bubbly blessing from exploding.

For 47 years, until his death in 1715, Dom Perignon served as cellar master for the Benedictine Abbey at Hautvillers, little realizing that his name would one day stand for the best of what he and his fellow monks called "vin diablo," the wine of the devil.

Chartreuse, that lovely golden elixir of the gods (or glittering green if you prefer the stronger version), is still brewed with herbs and plants by the cloistered Carthusian monks at Tarragone, Spain and Voiron, France, according to a still secret formula given to the order in 1605 and perfected a short time after that by Father Jerome Maubec.

Benedictine D.O.M., the fabulous toddy that Dom Bernardo Vincelli first brewed up at the Benedictine Monastery in Pecamp, France, in 1510 "to fortify and restore the weary monks" has gone secular and is no longer bottled under religious auspices. It is claimed, however, that the flavor formula of rare varieties of herbs, plants and peels in a base of brandy, is still entrusted to only three people at any given time. The ecclesiastical inscription D.O.M., by the way, does not stand for "Dominican Order of Monks" but "Deo Optimo Maximo," which is Latin for "To God, most good, most great."

This little epistle on the Lord's little old wine makers cannot end without a reverent bow in the direction of Father Juan Ugarte, the Spanish Jesuit who planted the Western Hemisphere's first vineyards in Mexico, and the Franciscan Padre Junipero Serra, whose friars built 21 missions between San Diego and Sonoma, most with vineyards, to launch the California wine industry.

For those who might be shocked at these pleasant gardening activities and cellar recreations of the good friars, Ai Monasteri also features a full line of skin lotions, hair restorers, shampoos, digestive nostrums and dentrifices concocted by the same contemplative cellar masters.

Commuters trying water taxi service

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — With traffic-clogged streets and 17 miles of shoreline within its city limits, Annapolis is proving a receptive home to a new water taxi service.

Instead of facing morning traffic, choking exhaust fumes, crowded parking garages, meter maids with poised ticket pads and soaring gasoline prices, Eastport commuters can walk down to piers on Spa and Back creeks and catch a boat to downtown Annapolis.

"It's simply a delightful way of commuting," said Paul Pearson, one of the commuters who ride to work on the 41-foot Mary Harper. "And let me tell you, it's a beautiful way to start the day off right," he said.

Pearson, the owner of the Maryland Inn, figures that the $1.30 round-trip commuter ticket saves him a bundle on parking fees and gasoline.

The Annapolis Water Taxi Service, begun last summer, is owned by Nick Roper and operated by Ken Keyworth and his wife, Cheryl Phipps, both licensed pilots.

"Still a fledgling operation, the Mary Harper plies the waters of Spa and Back creeks twice in the morning and six times in the afternoon for the new wave of commuters.

There are about 15 regulars who use the boat at least three times a week during the May through October season. "Their numbers are growing as the season moves on," Keyworth said.

"It's a nice cool trip with a good breeze off the water," Roper said. "It's a very relaxing trip."

With a huge St. Bernard on the roof for ambiance, the classic 1930 motor launch also makes runs to freighters anchored in the Chesapeake Bay off Annapolis, delivering supplies to crew members.

Originally built to ferry passengers and mail to the islands off the coast of Maine, the Mary Harper also makes tourist runs during the morning.

have taken the vow of silence; Gin Dry Vallobrosa from an ancient abbey in the Alban Hills; Liguore Sambucaffe del Paradiso, literally the coffee-flavored liquor of paradise, heaven-sent from the cellars of a Benedictine monastery outside Florence. The shop also offers a large selection of medicinal brandies and soothing alcoholic elixirs that take the curse out of ordinary, everyday drinking.

Who could resist one for the road if the drink offered was Liguore del Pellegrino, the liquor of pilgrims?

Closet drinkers would no doubt feel less guilty sipping alone on Elixir dell' Ermita, the drink of hermits.

Elixir de Miele, a potent potion distilled from honey, has a picture on the label of a dozen plump friars beaming down benignly from a monastery balcony while the busy bee doth his thing for the benefit of the order.

For centuries now the Franciscans at Viterbo, 30 miles north of Rome, have been concocting a pin-scented palliative that carries a delightful monastery health warning on the label: "Liquora Amaro che Ti Sana," the bitter drink that makes you well.

From nearby Montefiascone comes a crisp golden wine with the strange name of "Est! Est! Est!!!" that turned out in the long run to be less than healthy for a visiting German bishop. His tomb is in the high altar of the local church. According to the story, which purchasers of the wine will find on a card attached to the neck of the bottle, Bishop Johann Flugger of Augsburg set out to visit Rome in 1111, but he was such an admirer of Italian wines he never got there. He sent his servant ahead to mark the walls of inns and taverns where the wine was good with the word "Est" (it is) or "Non est" (it's not) if the stuff was rotten.

At Montefiascone, the bishop's precursor found such fantastic wine that he scrawled the word three times, with accelerated exclamation points on the inn wall. The result was, as the old Blue Guide to Italy reports, "both servant and master drank overmuch and died," bequeathing their unique rating system as the name of the district's wine to this day.

Protection asked for WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of unions and employers in the leather garment industry, saying their industry faces extinction, asked the federal government Tuesday for trade protection from surging imports of leather goods.

The group petitioned the International Trade Commission for quotas on future leather apparel imports and for higher tariffs.

The value of leather coats, jackets, vests and other apparel imported by the United States last year totaled $318.3 million, a 44 percent increase over 1977, according to the coalition. Currently, three out of four leather garments sold in the country are foreign-made, the group said.

As a result of the stiff foreign competition, employment in the domestic industry has declined 37 percent between 1974 and 1977 — from 11,000 jobs to 7,000, the coalition said in its petition.

"We have a situation where an old, honorable, traditional American industry is facing extinction," said Ralph Edwards, a spokesman for the National Outerwear and Sportswear Association, one of five petitioners to the trade commission.

Other petitioners included the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, United Food and Commercial Workers Union and the Tanners' Council of America.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE The Unnecessary Loser

By Alfred Sheinwold

At the bridge table you owe it to your partner to look pleasant: it's dangerous to let the opponents know when you're in trouble.

Today's South saw that she would probably lose two hearts, a club and a spade. You might say that diamonds were her best friend, but you'd be mistaken (as well as corny).

South played a low diamond from both hands at the first trick, smiling as she let the enemy take an "unnecessary" trick.

FLOUGHS AHEAD

West ploughed right ahead with the ten of diamonds, and South took the ace. She cashed the ace of spades, the king and ace of clubs and the king of diamonds, discarding her last club. The club discard made up for the diamond loser.

Now South ruffed a club and held her breath. Fortunately, both opponents followed suit. South led a trump to the king and cashed the last club to get rid of a heart. West could get his trump then or later, but South lost only one heart and made her contract.

The Precision Haircut
(And why it might be right for you.)
If you hate the way your haircut disappears the day after... come to Command Performance where we specialize in the precision haircut.
Precision haircutting is our technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. So as it grows, it doesn't lose its shape. And because the hair is cut to fall naturally, you don't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.
The precision haircut with shampoo and blow-dry costs just fourteen dollars for guys and gals. We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. No appointment is needed, just come in. And you'll see that precision is right for you.

General Electric, are growing kelp and hoping to turn it into synthetic fuel. (AP Laserphoto)

Kelp may help provide energy

By TOM HARRIGAN

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The tangy, smelly seaweed that wraps itself around swimmers may some day help them get home from the beach and warm them up when they get there. So don't curse the stuff — it could be part of the answer to the nation's energy crisis.

Scientists are now seriously considering the development of seaweed farms for conversion of the plant into methane — a possible substitute for natural gas. If the idea proves realistic, there could be a giant seaweed gasification industry along U.S. coasts before the year 2000.

With current technology, the millions of years of natural biological processes needed to produce gas from organic matter can be reduced to just days. And scientists feel seaweed, because of its fast growth and hydrocarbon content, is ideal for this accelerated process.

But growing the large amounts of weed necessary to feed the gasification plants is a problem, and an ambitious project sponsored by General Electric of the Southern California coast is seeking the solution.

The $7 million-a-year effort has become especially significant in light of President Carter's call for energy independence.

The program involves a "test farm" about five miles off this coastal resort where GE researchers are learning to manage the growth of kelp near the ocean surface. Although this seawater spread is only a quarter-acre now, scientists think it could become part of a giant industry.

"There's no chance we can replace all of it, but kelp conversion may end up supplying a significant part of U.S. natural gas needs, perhaps 15 to 20 percent or higher," says project manager Armond J. Bryce.

"The basic process of kelp conversion is trapping solar energy and storing it in the form of plant tissue, then fashioning a gaseous product and delivering it through the existing distribution system," says Bryce.

Some of the new money promised by Carter for alternative fuels could speed development of kelp conversion by a few years, Bryce says, moving it into the mid-1990s. Current GE research schedules call for a 1,000-acre demonstration farm in 1985 and a commercial-size demonstration project in 1992.

To supply all the nation's current natural gas needs, research indicates that kelp farms 25 to 100 miles off the nation's East, West and Gulf coasts would have to total 400,000 square miles — about two-thirds the size of Pennsylvania.

But such farms just below the waves would create none of the environmental unsightliness of strip-mining for coal.

For cost effectiveness, production facilities would have to be nearby, but they could be huge, floating factories that extract methane and some other useful byproducts.

"The methane in this process, unlike barnyard methane (from animal waste) has no odor. With the whole thing contained indoors, we're not going to be venting anything. There's really nothing to throw away," Bryce says.

The main problem with the controlled growth of kelp is the hostile environment of the sea and the limited depth range where the kelp can grow. Requiring sunlight, the plant can't grow more than 80 to 100 feet below the surface.

Anchored by wires to the seabed 1,850 feet below, the GE kelp farm is actually a submerged horizontal trellis to which 100 transplanted kelp sprouts were connected last December. Supported by the metal trellis, the plants grow up some 50 feet to near the surface.

Meanwhile, a long, red and white striped cylinder runs up from the core of the trellis to the surface, protruding above the water like a giant barber pole as a warning to navigation.

A pipe stretches 1,500 feet down from the core to near the ocean bottom, and nutrient-rich water from the dark depths is drawn up by a diesel pump to nourish the plants.

Early this year, just two months after the kelp transplants were affixed to the trellis, a curtain designed to protect the test farm from the pounding of the ocean was itself pounded to pieces by powerful storms and all 100 plants washed away.

Price of gas still climbing toward $1

HOUSTON (AP) — The price of gasoline is still climbing toward $1 a gallon, and this week it increased an average of 1.7 cents per gallon in Texas, the American Automobile Association reports. Last week the average increase was 1.3 cents.

In its weekly survey of 420 Texas service stations, AAA also found slightly fewer service stations are open at night and more are limiting purchases or are out of at least one grade of fuel.

Statewide 23 percent of the stations are open after 8 p.m. weekdays, while 39 percent will be open after 6 p.m. Saturday. Last week, 26 percent were open week nights, with 43 percent open Saturday night.

Talking with service station owners, AAA reports the decrease in night availability is partly caused by stations operating longer during the day. Others say they are closing nights to save gas for Saturday and Sunday.

Although the statewide figure for Sunday fuel availability stayed the same this week — 30 percent of the stations expected to be open — several cities, such as Austin, Corpus Christi and Houston show an increase in Sunday availability.

Twenty percent of the stations in Austin, 50 percent in Corpus Christi and 21 percent in Houston say they will be open this Sunday. The corresponding percentages for last week were 14, 45 and 19.

As July fuel allocations begin to run out, 7 percent of the stations surveyed reported that they are out of at least one grade of fuel, compared to 3 percent last week.

Also, 8 percent of the stations say they are limiting purchases (not counting stations under the odd-even sales plan), compared to 2 percent last week.

AAA reports stations along Interstate highways in small towns and rural areas still have good fuel supplies, and travelers should have few problems finding gas, except at night in big cities.

Gasoline prices continued their upward spiral, with self-service premium gas showing the highest increase, up 2.5 cents to 91.4 cents per gallon.

FAA probe establishes 'reliability of DC-10'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent investigation of the DC-10 proved the reliability of the aircraft at a time when America's leadership in aviation was at stake, says the head of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"The accident in Chicago threatened that leadership," Langhorne M. Bond told a meeting of the Aero Club of Washington Tuesday. "If our certification procedures were un sound, if one of our wide-body jets was unsafe, then the effects would spread far beyond the DC-10."

He said the probe established "once and for all, throughout the world, the reliability of the DC-10." The investigation was ordered after the May 25 crash of a DC-10 after an engine fell off during a takeoff from Chicago. It was the worst aviation disaster in American history, killing 273 persons.

All 138 DC-10s operated by U.S. airlines were grounded for 37 days until Bond released them to fly again on July 13. He said the jets' engine support pylons must be inspected frequently and redesigned within two years; control cables must be checked at short intervals; and some cockpit warning systems must be rewired.

Bond said Tuesday that the probe "not only uncovered and corrected certain weaknesses in a particular aircraft, it also uncovered certain weaknesses in the maintenance and certification procedures followed by the industry and by the FAA."

"The investigation set us on the path to eliminate those weaknesses," he said. Bond said leaders of the nation's aviation industry were fully aware that America's leadership in this field was on trial and he praised their support in the investigation.

Midlander pleads guilty to charge of burglary

Levi Duson of Midland pleaded guilty at noon Tuesday to a burglary of a building charge in 238th District Court, according to the Midland County District Attorney's office.

Duson was sentenced to 10 years in the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville. Duson's trial was scheduled to start Tuesday, but was postponed because one of the jurors was ill and had to be hospitalized.

He was charged in connection with the March 11, 1979, burglary of a building in Midland owned by Bill Isbell.

The case was prosecuted by Assistant District Attorney Charles Seltzer. Defense attorney was Rusty Wall.

Illegal aliens pouring into Northeast
NEW YORK (AP) — Illegal Mexican aliens, who once limited their search for jobs to the farms of the Southwest or the factories of the Midwest, are now pouring into Northeast cities, where jobs are plentiful and Latin populations provide a cloak of anonymity, officials say.
Mexicans seeking jobs have been streaming for the past two years into northeastern cities, especially this one, according to Catholic clergymen and investigators for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.
Illegal Mexican aliens are able to "disappear" into the diverse mix of Latin and Central American groups living in New York. No one will even venture a guess on how many Mexicans have arrived in New York and in other eastern cities in the past couple of years. Indeed, federal authorities have balked lately at giving estimates on any aspect of the problem of illegal or undocumented aliens.
But the evidence of the new Mexican presence is unmistakable: —Jack Ricciardi; assistant district director of investigations for the INS in New York City, says that as recently as two years ago, 95 percent of his cases involved aliens who had entered this country legally but stayed in the United States beyond the time limit on their visitor or student visas.
Now, says Ricciardi, "approximately half our cases are people who enter surreptitiously across the Mexican border." Many are Mexicans. But they also include other nationalities like Ecuadorians, Colombians, Salvadorans and Dominicans.
Bevilaqua insists that those who have migrated from Latin America "did not come here to exploit this country. Most are working. They are most reluctant to go on welfare. They are fearful and want nothing to do with anything official unless they're absolutely desperate."
In fact, Bevilaqua and others who defend the rights of undocumented aliens contend that their presence is filling an economic need.

Looking For A Nice Place To Live That Fits Your Lifestyle...

"CHANDELLE" at 2100 West Wadley is the place for you. Our residences have one, two, and three, professionally designed bedroom plans that will allow maximum usage with minimum care.

"CHANDELLE'S" location is one of the most desirable in Midland. You can enjoy elegant living within minutes of downtown, recreational areas, schools, churches, Air Terminal, and Airpark. You can walk to the Midland Community Theatre, Midland College, the Racquet Club, shopping areas, and to some of the finest eating places in town.

At "CHANDELLE" you have all this, plus the financial rewards of home ownership, greater control over your housing costs, and no maintenance worries. "CHANDELLE" is the only real housing alternative for those who enjoy living in luxury at down to earth prices.

"CHANDELLE" is a Winston Property located at 2100 West Wadley... call 684-7884 to find out how you can live in luxury.

Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. daily, except Monday.

The floorplan above is a 2 bedroom-2 bath studio "J" model, and it can be yours for $6500 down and monthly payments of approximately $680. This $680 includes your monthly mortgage charge, taxes, insurance, water, sewage, and association fees.

Carl Yastrzemski watches as his 400th homer run head for the right-center field seats Tuesday against the Oakland A's in Boston. Yastrzemski became the 18th player in Major League history to reach the 400-homer plateau. (AP Laserphoto).

Tanner loses cool during loss

By The Associated Press
The Pittsburgh Pirates lost a 35-minute argument to the umpires and a 6-5 decision to the Cincinnati Reds.
Then Chuck Tanner lost his cool.
"The umpires changed the whole game," said the angry Pirate manager after Tuesday night's controversial loss. "Maybe we'd get beat anyway, but you don't know."
Tanner filed an official protest after a freak fourth-inning call short-circuited a Pirate rally.
Here's what happened: With Pittsburgh losing 4-3, Phil Garner was at third base and Lee Lacy at first as Cincinnati left-hander Fred Norman fired a 3-1 pitch to Omar Moreno. Lacy took off for second as Norman delivered. Moreno took the pitch, and catcher Johnny Bench fired the ball to shortstop Dave Concepcion.
"I didn't hear the call," said Bench. "I just had to make some kind of throw."
Concepcion tagged Lacy at second and second base umpire Dick Stello made an emphatic 'out' call. So Lacy got up and headed toward the dugout.
But then both sides realized that plate umpire Dave Pallone had called ball four on the pitch to Moreno. Lacy tried to dive back to second, but Concepcion tagged him again.
The umpires ruled Lacy out a second time, and the Reds left the field. But Tanner, his coaches and assorted players spent the next 35 minutes speaking their piece to the umpires.
"He (Stello) should have watched the play. He should have looked into home plate," Lacy said calmly after the loss.

"Instead of saying I was out, he should have said ball four."
But Stello and umpiring crew chief Bob Engel said the burden in that moment of confusion was on the batter-runner.
"When Bench comes up throwing, I'm not looking to see if it was a strike or a ball," said Stello. "I can't lie. I called a man out and it was ball four, so it's got to be a mistake on my part, inadvertently...but there isn't anything in the rulebook in that situation that rectifies an umpire's mistake, if it is a mistake."
In other National League games, the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 6-1; the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Atlanta Braves 7-3; the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the Philadelphia Phillies 15-3; the New York Mets edged the San Francisco Giants 6-5 in 12 innings and the San Diego Padres stopped the Montreal Expos 4-3 in 14.
Ken Griffy smashed a two-run homer among his three hits to lead Cincinnati's victory. In addition to the two-run blast in the seventh inning, Griffey had two singles, one of which helped Cincinnati to a 4-0 lead in the opening inning off Pirate pitcher Bruce Kison, 6-5.
Norman raised his record to 7-8 with late relief help from Doug Bair, who gained his 14th save.
Astros 6, Cubs 1
A two-run double by Julio Gonzalez highlighted a 15-hit Houston attack while Ken Forsch pitched a four-hitter to lead the Astros over the Cubs. Gonzalez hit capped a three-run Astro burst in the fourth and Forsch went on to even his record at 6-6. Dennis Lamp, 7-6, was the loser.

The only run off Forsch came on a home run by Ken Henderson in the eighth.
"I lost the shutout," said Forsch. "but I got the complete game. 'I don't want to get cocky.'"
Cardinals 7, Braves 3
Garry Templeton hit two doubles and a triple, collected two RBI and scored twice, leading St. Louis over Atlanta behind Pete Vuckovich's six-hitter.
The contest marked the return to the St. Louis lineup of catcher Ted Simmons for the first time in a month. Simmons doubled home the Cards' second run and later singled.
Bob Horner drove in two of Atlanta's runs, with a double in the first off Vuckovich, and a homer in the ninth. Vuckovich struck out eight.
"Vuckovich was the whole game," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. "He's outstanding. He's one of the best pitchers in the game, as far as I'm concerned."
Dodgers 15, Phillies 3
Dusty Baker slugged a grand slam homer and Ron Cey hit a three-run shot as Los Angeles routed Philadelphia with a season-high 22-hit attack.
Winner Burt Hooton gave up Greg Luzinski's 10th home run, a three-run shot in the first inning for the Phillies' runs.

The Dodgers came back with three runs in the bottom of the second and then scored five in the bottom of the third, highlighted by Cey's 18th home run. Baker's slam keyed a five-run sixth.
Mets 6, Giants 5
Alex Trevino's two-out single in the 12th inning drove in the tie-breaking run, leading New York over San Francisco.
Joel Youngblood started the winning rally off Pedro Borbon with a single. Frank Taveras sacrificed and, after Steve Henderson grounded out, Trevino lined his tie-breaking hit to right. John Stearns later capped the rally with an RBI single for the eventual winning run. Reliever Wayne Twitchell was the winner with last-inning relief help from Tom Hausman, who gave up a run-scoring bounce to Darrell Evans.
Expos 4, Padres 3
Paul Dade singled home Ozzie Smith from second base with one out in the 14th inning to give San Diego its victory over Montreal.
David Palmer walked Smith and Dave Winfield to set the stage for Dade's game-winning hit. Steve Mura, the fifth Padre pitcher of the night, pitched the last inning to gain the victory.

Dodgers topple Travelers

By The Associated Press
Don Crow's RBI single with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night lifted the San Antonio Dodgers to an 8-7 Texas League baseball victory over the Arkansas Travelers.

In other Texas League games, Tulsa whipped Midland, 13-6, Shreveport blasted Amarillo, 11-1, and El Paso swept a doubleheader from Jackson, 2-1 and 10-1.

Crow's late single drove Leo Hernandez home with the winning run.
Arkansas got back-to-back homers in the second inning when Gene Dotson blasted a two-run homer and was followed to the plate by Tye Waller, who hit a solo homer.
Mickey Lashley, 4-5, was the winning pitcher. Ray Williams, 7-3, was the loser.

The Shreveport Captains hammered out 16 hits and Fred Breining allowed only five hits and struck out 11 in the 11-1 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox.
Breining, 1-0, lost his bid for a shutout in the ninth inning when Greg Pastors tripled and scored on a wild pitch.
First baseman Wayne Pechek had a shortstop Tom Rannels had three hits each for Shreveport.

Eric Mustad, 9-8, was the losing Amarillo pitcher.
A two-run homer by Mike Bishop provided all the scoring as the El Paso Diablos took the first game of a doubleheader from the Jackson Mets, 2-0.
Ken Schrom, 6-7, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Greg Harris, 7-9.

Fagel nabs tennis win
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Unseeded Rick Fagel probably got a lot of satisfaction out of beating 14th-seeded Hans Gildemeister 7-6, 6-3 in the $175,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic Tuesday.
It was only last week that Gildemeister handed Fagel a loss in the Washington Star International tournament in Washington, D.C.
The turning point of Tuesday's match came when Fagel broke Gildemeister's service as Gildemeister double faulted, tying the match at 4-4. Fagel broke Gildemeister's serve to tie it at 6-6 and send the match into a tie breaker that Fagel won 7-2.

Coaching School opens activities in heat, humidity

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer
FORT WORTH — To the untrained observer, the Texas High School Coaches Association's 47th annual coaching school, which got into high gear today, is supposed to be an endless barrage of Xs and Os.

Nothing, however, could be further from the truth, especially in Fort Worth. And not just for coaches, but also for the media types who are invited to wallow in the athletic orgy.

Since no activities are planned until Wednesday, Tuesday proved a chance to check out the town. On the first day, one learned that the location of the East-West expressway is a better kept secret than the hydrogen bomb. Ditto for the Tarrant County Convention Center and the Hilton and Blackstone hotels.
Then there is the crash course in drag racing that one discovers after finding the expressway. With traffic signal lights smack dab in the middle of most entrance ramps, the Don Garlits seems to come out in every-one.

All this, not to mention bus fumes and intolerable humidity. And one Dallas Times Herald vending machine that gobbles coins without rendering a product.
But everything didn't go wrong. The room reservations were right, and perhaps best of all, there is a very funky jazz station on the AM dial (KNOK) that somehow makes you forget the heat and demolition traffic.

In the days ahead, things should get even better. Brian Briscoe, a Midland Lee grad headed for the University of New Mexico, will be a center for the North All-Star football team while the 6-foot-3 Lance McCain of Andrews will be a member of the North cage team. Plus, there are countless interviews with SWC football coaches and meetings with prep coaches from all levels.

When you get right down to it, the good outweighs the bad in Cowtown, but what they don't tell you in the press guide can be horrifying.

SCHOOL NOTES: The largest crowd to ever view the All-Star football game was 39,100 in 1964. Guess where the game was played? That's right — Fort Worth. The second largest basketball crowd (9,715 in 1971) was also in Fort Worth. Fort Stockton quarterback Rick McIvor, who is headed for the University of Texas, was "looking much better" in drills Tuesday, according to North grid coach Frank Bevers.

Leeper scores first hole-in-one at MCC

Al Leeper sank a hole-in-one Tuesday at the Midland Country Club, according to Club Pro George Clark.
Leeper, playing with his wife, sank the ace on the 16th green which is 159 yards, using a No. 5 iron.
It was Leeper's first hole-in-one.

 after a walk to Jerry Narron and Chris Chambliss' single. Ron Davis, 9-1, was the winner, allowing just one hit in four innings after starter Luis Tiant was tagged for long home runs by Willie Aikens, Rod Carew and Dan Ford. Willie Randolph drove in two runs for New York with an infield hit and a double. The loss was the fifth in seven games for the Angels since the All-Star break, but they remained two games ahead of Minnesota in the AL West.

Bartkowski signs contract
 ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Bartkowski has signed a four-year contract to play quarterback for the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.
 Bartkowski, who set Falcon records for passes attempted and yards completed, and yards gained passing last year, will get nearly $1 million, the Atlanta Constitution reported in Wednesday's editions.
 "It's nice to be under contract," Bartkowski said Tuesday. "I think having your quarterback under a longer term contract gives them (management) the stability they need and gives me the opportunity to see into the future for myself. It lets you know what they think of you."
 He declined to discuss figures, as did Falcon General Manager Eddie LeBaron, who did confirm it was a four-year pact.
 "We feel he's a quality quarterback and he's being paid in the area we feel a quality player is worth," LeBaron said.

Brewers 5, Tigers 4
 Gorman Thomas and Buck Martinez homered and Paul Molitor and Dick Davis hit RBI triples as the Brewers recorded their 11th victory in 12 games and handed rookie sensation Pat Underwood his first major league defeat in six decisions. Lance Parrish belted two solo homers for Detroit while Tom Brookens hit his first major league homer.
Indians 4, Twins 2
 Cliff Johnson slammed a tie-breaking two-run homer in the top of the ninth and Rick Wise won his seventh straight decision with a seven-hitter. Mike Hargrove singled before Johnson's 437-foot blast over the center field fence off Jerry Kosman. The Twins took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on Roy Smalley's 18th homer. Cleveland's Andre Thornton tied it with a two-run homer in the fourth.
Royals 11, White Sox 6
 Jamie Quirk's two-run pinch triple keyed a seven-run eighth-inning rally as Kansas City won its third game in a row and climbed within 7 1/2 games of first place in the AL West. Trailing 6-4, the Royals tied the score on singles by George Brett, Al Cowens and Darrell Porter and a passed ball before Quirk delivered his tie-breaking triple and then scored on a squeeze bunt by Frank White. Another run scored on a fielder's choice and Brett closed the big inning with an RBI triple.

McEnroe tames Connors in exhibition net action

By The Associated Press
 The setting, so many have seemed especially suited for the two temperamental tennis stars who met head-on Tuesday night — they played in a bull ring.

John McEnroe again played the role of matador, taming fellow American Jimmy Connors 6-4, 6-3 for his second victory in the $75,000 four-man all-star tennis exhibition series.
 In the other match, played in the Frejus, France, bull ring, which was converted for the series, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeated Romanian Ilie Nastase 6-1, 6-1.

The winner of the exhibition, which moved to Aix-en-Provence for matches tonight and Thursday night, will receive $30,000, while the second-place finisher will collect $20,000. Third place will draw a $15,000 purse and the fourth man will win $10,000.
 Connors, who beat Vilas Monday night, also had lost to McEnroe in the World Championship Tennis tourney held in Dallas.

After a hard-fought first set Tuesday, Connors rebounded briefly to take the first three games of the second set. But McEnroe then reeled off six straight winning games to take the match.
 Austrian ace Peter Feigl and Tom Okker of the Netherlands were the only seeded players who were eliminated Tuesday in the opening round of their respective tournaments.
 In Hilversum, Netherlands, all the seeds in the $75,000 Dutch Open advanced to the second round except Okker, who lost 1-6, 2-6 in a 40-minute match to unseeded Angel Jimenez, Spain's No. 6 player.

 Among the seeds who survived Tuesday's first round was top-seeded Uli Pinner of West Germany, who topped Richard Lewis of Britain 6-4, 7-5. Also, No. 2 Balazs Taroczy of Hungary downed Sweden's Tenny Svensson 6-4, 6-0, and fifth-seeded Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia overpowered Per Hjertqvist of Sweden 6-1, 6-0.

Qualifying Monday were fourth-seeded Buster Mottram of Britain and No. 6 Peter McNamara of Australia. Feigl was eliminated in the first round of a $75,000 Grand Prix tournament at Kitzbuehel, Austria, by Antonio Munoz of Spain. The scores were 1-6, 6-3, 1-6.
 The seeds to advance to the second round were Americans Vitas Gerulaitis and Arthur Ashe. No. 1 Gerulaitis easily defeated Czechoslovakia's Stanislav Birner 6-3, 6-3, while second-seeded Ashe beat Fernando Dalla Fontana of Argentina 6-1, 6-3.

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — "It's only my fourth year, but I feel like a war-torn veteran," says Los Angeles Rams quarterback Pat Haden on the start of another trip over the heavily-mined road to the Super Bowl.
 It is less than three years since Haden became the Rams quarterback in a storm of controversy over his replacing James Harris and Ron Jaworski.

It seems like a lot more time than two years since the Rams brought in Joe Namath to be the missing ingredient for a team of winners who couldn't win the big one. In the fourth regular season game, Haden was put back in the lineup and the surgery-scarred Namath knees never suffered through another down.

In three seasons, Haden directed the Rams into the playoffs each time. But divisional playoffs had crushing disappointments in store for the Rams each year. The Minnesota Vikings twice shocked the Rams. Then Haden came out of last December's 28-0 National Conference championship loss to Dallas with a broken thumb — although the issue was decided before his injury.
 "In some ways I'm 26 going on 72," Haden said at the Rams' pre-season training quarters at Fullerton State. "But life in a fishbowl is very tough. Sometimes I wonder what I have to do to satisfy people. It (taking criticism) might be the toughest part of the job."

His biggest defender has become his own record, 25-7-1 in the regular season games. He's a better record than Super Bowl quarterbacks Roger Staubach, Terry Bradshaw, Fran Tarkenton or Ken Stabler mustered for the same period.
 Stabler, 33, was offered to the Rams recently by the Oakland Raiders, and the Rams' reaction of the chance too-

Bass becomes Spurs' new GM
 SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio Spurs Assistant Coach Bob Bass, once a head coach and general manager in the old American Basketball Association, will become general manager of the Spurs on Sept. 1, officials have announced.
 Bass, 49, was head coach of four ABA teams, including two years as head coach of the Spurs, and served as general manager of the ABA's Miami and Memphis teams. He also served a stint as director of ABA officials.
 The announcement was made Tuesday by officials of the National Basketball Association's Spurs.
 Bass replaces John Begzow, who will become general manager of the NBA's Kansas City Kings on Sept. 1. Begzow has been general manager of the Spurs since 1974.
 In addition to serving as an assistant coach last season, Bass was also the Spurs' assistant to the president.

Big Spring faces Elcor

Big Spring ran over Sweetwater, 7-2, Tuesday night at Cubs Stadium to move into the finals of the Senior Teenage League playoff tournament against Midland's Elcor Chemical today at 7 p.m.
 Larry Smith went the distance and tossed a nifty two-hitter at Sweetwater to pick up the victory. He also struck out eight batters. Mark Warren led the Big Spring bats with a two-run double. Sweetwater's Glen Ellison picked up the loss.
 Elcor is undefeated in the tournament, and can move to the state tournament in Tyler, July 30, with a victory tonight. If Elcor loses the first game, a second game will follow to determine the championship.

Optimists blast New Deal, 9-1

ODESSA — The Midland Breakfast Optimists blasted New Deal, 9-1, in the District Sophomore Baseball Tournament here Tuesday night.
 Jose Carrasco was the winning pitcher for the Tall City team which plays Odessa Northwest at 7 p.m. today in the tourney's semifinals.
 Barry Blackwell and Tim Davis led the attack for Midland with a triple and home run.
 Ernest Adams absorbed the loss for New Deal which was its first defeat in the double elimination tourney which winds up play on Thursday night with the winner advancing to the state tournament next weekend.

Koonce halts Crane in tourney

MONAHANS — The Midland O'Neill Shamrocks, behind the three-hit pitching of Alan Koonce and the hitting of Jerry Zachery, blanked Crane, 7-0 here Tuesday night in the District II Junior Baseball Tournament.
 Koonce struck out 13 in throwing his three-hit gem while Zachery had a perfect night at the plate, going four-for-four with all of the hits being singles. Teammate Doug McLean went two-for-three as the Midland team had eight hits off losing pitcher Wayne Chism.
 Monahans blanked San Angelo, 8-0 Tuesday and will face the Shamrocks in the 6 p.m. contest today with San Angelo and Crane squaring off in the other game with the loser being eliminated from the double elimination tourney.

Toon endorses SALT II treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Malcolm Toon, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, today discarded an initial reluctance and endorsed the SALT II treaty, calling it "the best that could have been obtained."

Toon originally had said that concern over the loss of U.S. intelligence listening posts in Iran might cause him to oppose the treaty on grounds that Soviet compliance with its terms could not be adequately verified.

But he said today it was both verifiable and militarily sound.

He said that after receiving the same briefings given President Carter he has concluded that "no militarily significant violations of SALT II could take place without detection."

"I would not be here today to recommend this treaty if I did not believe that," Toon told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Toon, who has submitted his resignation, remains as ambassador pending Senate confirmation of former IBM executive, Thomas J. Watson Jr., who has been named to succeed him.

Meanwhile, Helmut Sonnenfeldt, once a State Department deputy to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, said he believes it essential that before ratifying the treaty Congress "firmly establish" programs to deploy the mobile MX missile and to remove doubts about the transfer of U.S. cruise missile technology to the European allies.

Toon gave these arguments for Senate ratification:

"I think it will introduce a substantial element of stability in our relations with the Soviet Union.

"In my view it is important that the treaty places equal ceilings on the strategic arsenals of both sides, thereby ending a previous numerical imbalance in favor of the Soviet Union.

"It preserves our options to build the forces we need to maintain the strategic balance.

"It enhances our ability to monitor Soviet actions and it is adequately verifiable — an essential feature in any agreement with the Soviets since we cannot rely on good will.

"It leads directly to the next step in controlling nuclear weapons and establishes a basis for further cooperation with the Soviet Union in this important field." Toon said U.S. negotiators could not have gotten a better deal from the Soviets on any specific issue covered by the treaty "without having to pay an unacceptable price in another part of the agreement."

And he said that if the Senate were to insist that negotiations be reopened, the Soviets would either insist on reopening issues that had been resolved in the favor of the United States, "or they would turn us down flat."

"In either case this would kill the treaty," Toon said.

In testimony Tuesday before the Senate Armed Services Committee, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff denied the nation's military leaders traded their endorsement of the SALT II treaty for a promise to build the MX missile, or that their support resulted from any pressure from the White House.

But Air Force Gen. David Jones said he and the other heads of the uniformed services believe there is an urgent need to modernize the nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines which compose the U.S. strategic strike force.

Jones said the chiefs are "disappointed the treaty did not achieve more than it did."

However, he repeated previous testimony calling the pact a "modest but useful step." He said the Senate should ratify it.

Jones said improvements in strategic forces should include deployment of the $30 billion MX mobile missile system, installation of air-launched cruise missiles on B-52 bombers, modernization of submarine ballistic missile systems and development of a new aircraft for carrying cruise missiles.

"There are some who say the chiefs are being bought off by the MX," Jones told the committee. But he vigorously denied the accusation.

However, when asked directly if he could endorse the treaty if he knew MX would not be deployed, there was a long pause.

"That is a very hard question to answer," Jones replied.

"If the United States did not proceed with the MX, we'd be in serious trouble in the 1980's, more serious than anything we do on SALT," Jones said.

Visiting prior to the start of testimony before the panel on the SALT II treaty are, from left, Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Gen. Robert H. Barrow, Marine Corps Commandant; Gen. Lew Allen, Air Force Chief of Staff; John Stennis, D-Miss., Senate Armed Services Committee chairman, and Gen. Edward C. Meyer, Army Chief of Staff. You can hear Nixon tapes — in four years

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be at least four years before the public can hear the Watergate scandal unfold on Richard Nixon's White House tapes.

National Archives' attorney Steven Garfinkel says archivists need the time to separate public recordings from private conversations that will be returned to the former president.

Garfinkel's prediction Tuesday followed a legal victory for the government's plan to make the tapes available at a dozen archives centers across the country.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. issued a one-page order upholding public access to the tapes. He rejected claims by Nixon's lawyers that "dissemination of one's voice, one's mannerisms" violates privacy rights.

Robinson also ruled government archivists can review and make public some of the dictated recordings that Nixon called his "personal diary." The ex-president contended his "innermost thoughts and feelings" were on those tapes and sought their return.

Nixon lawyer R. Stan Mortenson said he would ask Robinson to reconsider his ruling. If the motion is denied, he could appeal to a higher court.

Garfinkel said the diaries are far less important than tapes from the sound-activated White House system that recorded Nixon and his aides discussing Watergate.

If government plans survive further legal obstacles, it is this system that would enable the public to listen to the cover-up as it developed. Garfinkel said work on the tapes would proceed "simultaneously with court challenges."

"Realistically, we're talking about at least four years," Garfinkel said.

"We're going to be working on two groups of materials: the tapes and Nixon's 'special files.'"

"These are sensitive materials and any materials related to abuse of power would be in those files. The special files could be available in two years."

Garfinkel said the tapes would be screened as a unit and not released piecemeal. There's a possibility, however, that tapes already heard by jurors and spectators at the Watergate cover-up trial of top Nixon aides would be available earlier than others, he said.

The case before Robinson centered on Nixon's challenge to some government regulations issued under a 1974 law. The statute directed the General Services Administration to seize Nixon's papers and tapes, remove personal materials and determine public access for the remaining items.

Nixon's suit challenged regulations dealing with the listening centers and the dictated recordings. Other regulations, dealing with the way archivists processed Nixon's tapes and papers, were agreed to earlier this year by lawyers for Nixon and the government.

Under current plans, listening centers for the tapes would be located in the National Archives building in Washington and the following regional centers: Atlanta; Chicago; Philadelphia; Waltham, Mass.; Bayonne, N.J.; Kansas City, Mo.; Fort Worth, Texas; Denver; Seattle, and two sites in California, San Bruno and Laguna Niguel.

The tapes would only be available at those centers to individuals. There are no current provisions for commercial reproductions of the recordings.

Continued use of saccharin depends on Senate decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dieters and others who consume low-calorie soft drinks are now depending on the Senate to complete action to block the government from prohibiting the sale of saccharin products.

The House voted 394-22 Tuesday to allow beverages and foods containing the artificial sweetener to remain on the store shelves until June 30, 1981.

And congressional sponsors called upon the extension to develop a substitute for saccharin which will be both safe and low in calories.

However, the legislation that prohibits the ban on saccharin from taking place may face some delays in the Senate.

According to congressional sources who asked not to be named, key leaders in the Senate have held back to see what the House would adopt, and to get a feel for what compromises might be acceptable.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of a Human Resources subcommittee, has turned a sympathetic ear to Food and Drug Administration warnings that saccharin may be particularly hazardous to children and pregnant women.

In 1977, the FDA proposed banning saccharin as a food additive because it was linked to bladder cancer in male rats in research studies.

But since saccharin is the only remaining general use artificial sweetener on the market, there was wide opposition to the ban.

Congress stopped the prohibition from going into effect by passing an 18-month moratorium that expired May 23. It also ordered warning labels placed on all saccharin products.

Fighting for congressional action to delay the saccharin ban is the diet food and soft drink's lobbying and publicity arm, the Calorie Control Council of Atlanta.

Council president Robert H. Keilen said of Tuesday's House vote: "It shows widespread recognition by congressmen of saccharin's importance to many millions of American consumers."

Bundy convicted by Florida jury

MIAMI (AP) — Theodore Bundy, a quiet law student who never forgot Mother's Day, waved at the courtroom crowd after a clerk read the verdict — guilty of murdering two women and trying to kill three others at Florida State University.

Bundy's mother slumped backward and his lawyer paled at the verdicts late Tuesday, but Bundy waved and smiled, and later told a friend he was simply perplexed.

Prosecutors promised to ask for the death penalty. The same 12-member jury that convicted the 32-year-old Tacoma, Wash., resident will remain sequestered to hear arguments on sentencing Saturday and Monday. A simple majority vote is needed to recommend life or death. Judge Edward D. Cowart can overrule the jury.

The jury deliberated six hours to end the 4½-week trial that saw Bundy often act as his own attorney and argue bitterly with his lawyers. One attorney quit the case after the defense presentation was under way. Another tried to walk out.

Bundy was found guilty of first-degree murder in the deaths of Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, both of St. Petersburg, Fla.

They were beaten with a crude oak club as they slept in the Chi Omega sorority house at Florida State University in Tallahassee, Fla., on Jan. 15, 1978. Both were garrotted with pantyhose.

Bundy also was convicted of attempting to murder Kathy Kleiner DeShields, 20, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Karen Chandler, 21, of Marietta, Ga., both Chi Omega members, and Cheryl Thomas, 22, a student from Richmond, Va., who was attacked in her apartment.

In addition, Bundy was found guilty of two counts of burglary.

State prosecutors argued that Bundy's crooked teeth left a crude wound on Miss Levy's body, eyewitness Nita Neary said she saw Bundy leave the sorority house and hair similar to Bundy's was found in a pantyhose mask in Miss Thomas' duplex.

The defense argued the case was built on shoddy police work and shaky dental evidence.

Bundy's 54-year-old mother, Louise, fell against the back of her courtroom seat as the verdicts were pronounced. She has called Bundy "the kind of son who never forgets Mother's Day."

"I can't believe it," she said. "This isn't the end. There will be appeal upon appeal... I know and the family knows that he isn't guilty and that he didn't do those terrible things."

She sobbed as she walked down the hallway and out of the courthouse.

Said prosecutor Larry Simpson: "It was a common-sense jury and they used their common sense. We certainly will ask for the death penalty."

Bundy's long-time friend and supporter, Carole Ann Boone of Seattle, said Bundy called her from jail after the verdict.

"More than anything he was perplexed," she said. "He was really baffled at the short amount of time the jury was out and the evidence they chose to review."

The jury asked once to see sketches made by an artist who interviewed Miss Neary, then for clarification of testimony about the hair found in the pantyhose mask.

In telephone interviews on the eve of the verdict, Bundy predicted a hung jury but said he anticipated a death sentence if convicted. "He doesn't expect to die," Ms. Boone said Tuesday.

Bundy also faces trials on charges of murdering 12-year-old Kimberly Leach of Lake City, Fla., and Dearborn, Mich., nurse Caryn Campbell, 23, in Aspen, Colo., in 1975. He has been convicted of kidnapping in Utah, where he was arrested in 1975 while attending law school.

Except for the Utah, Colorado and Florida indictments, however, Bundy was never charged.

Theodore Bundy, center, listens without expression as the verdict is read in his murder trial in Miami late Tuesday night. They returned a guilty verdict on all seven counts, including two counts of first degree murder. (AP Laserphoto)

There's a darker side to this All-American boy

MIAMI (AP) — With his sharply cut features, strong build, and wavy brown hair, Theodore Bundy looks like the All-American boy.

He has the credentials, too: Republican Party activist, social worker, college honors graduate, crime commission researcher, law student. Once, he was even honored for catching a purse thief.

But there is another, darker side: "He's a psychotic killer," a Utah sheriff's captain has said. "He's the most vicious killer in history." His conviction Tuesday in the 1978 murders of two Florida State University students in Tallahassee and savage attacks on three others marked the second in a string of trials for the 32-year-old from Tacoma, Wash.

He had been convicted of kidnapping a 23-year-old woman in Utah and had escaped from a Colorado jail while awaiting trial on charges of killing a young nurse. He has been charged with the rape and murder of a 12-year-old girl in Florida. And the FBI once said he was wanted for questioning in 36 sex-related murders.

Bundy once admitted fearing that he might spend the rest of his life fighting a reputation he says has made him a "convenient" target. He is already one of America's best-known criminals. But his looks and background contrast with the gruesome murders.

He intrigues many. The 100-seat Miami courtroom was filled during his 4½-week trial. Many of the seats were taken by young women.

"He has a look in his eyes, an angry look, an insane look. Those girls at Florida State were just sleeping there..." said Vivian Casademt, a teacher in her mid-20s.

Bundy was born Theodore Robert Cowell in a home for unwed mothers in Burlington, Vt., on Nov. 24, 1946. As a child, he moved with his mother, Louise, to Tacoma, where she married John Bundy in 1951.

He entered the University of Puget Sound in 1965, transferred to the University of Washington the next year and later studied Chinese at Stanford University.

After quitting college, he worked at odd jobs. In April 1968, he worked for a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor in Washington and was Seattle chairman of the New Majority for Rockefeller.

He also worked on the re-election campaign of former Washington Gov. Dan Evans, who once praised Bundy for catching a purse thief on a Seattle street. In 1968, he attended the GOP convention in Miami as an alternate delegate.

Four years later, he graduated from the University of Washington with an A-minus average, then helped design a county program for dealing with habitual criminals.

In September 1973, he enrolled at the Puget Sound Law School in Tacoma but dropped out two weeks before final exams. He enrolled at the University of Utah Law School after moving to Salt Lake City in Aug. 1974. It was there that he was convicted of kidnapping Carol DaRonch.

Louise Bundy's belief in her son's innocence unshaken

MIAMI (AP) — Louise Bundy watched with pride as the child she gave birth to in a Vermont home for unwed mothers grew into a handsome, hard-working and ambitious young man.

He was "a good baby," and later a good son, "the kind who never forgot Mother's Day," Mrs. Bundy said.

When Theodore R. Bundy was accused of a 1974 kidnapping in Utah, her reaction was quick. No, she said, Ted would never do anything like that.

She steadfastly defended him as more charges came — charges that accused him of murdering four young women and a preteen girl in three separate incidents.

When a Miami jury found her son guilty Tuesday night of the brutal murders of two Florida State University coeds and attempted murders of three others, her belief in Theodore Bundy remained unshaken.

"I just can't believe the jury," said the small, gray-haired Mrs. Bundy, tears misting her eyes.

"They didn't get enough time to deliberate. Plus they even asked questions and took time out to eat dinner... I can't understand it."

She was reminded that Florida recently resumed execution of convicted murderers with the May 25 electrocution of John A. Spenklink. Spenklink was 30. Bundy, 32, could be sentenced to death.

"I don't even want to think about it. I know it's possible," she said.

But she admitted she had already thought about it, a lot.

"I think Florida is a terrible state," said Mrs. Bundy, 54, a mother of five in Tacoma, Wash., who does secretarial work at the University of Puget Sound.

"She winced, fighting back tears as she left the courtroom, but squared her shoulders and refused to let her anguish show as she walked to the end of the hallway to confront reporters and television lights.

"Needless to say, I think the jury is very wrong. They didn't deliberate long enough," she said firmly in a high-pitched voice.

"This isn't it. We're by no means finished. There'll be appeal upon appeal."

"The family is devastated... But we will stick by him because we know he is innocent."

As she reached the bottom, she broke into wracking, gasping sobs.

Toon endorses SALT II treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Malcolm Toon, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, today discarded an initial reluctance and endorsed the SALT II treaty, calling it "the best that could have been obtained."

Toon originally had said that concern over the loss of U.S. intelligence listening posts in Iran might cause him to oppose the treaty on grounds that Soviet compliance with its terms could not be adequately verified.

But he said today it was both verifiable and militarily sound.

He said that after receiving the same briefings given President Carter he has concluded that "no militarily significant violations of SALT II could take place without detection."

"I would not be here today to recommend this treaty if I did not believe that," Toon told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Toon, who has submitted his resignation, remains as ambassador pending Senate confirmation of former IBM executive, Thomas J. Watson Jr., who has been named to succeed him.

Meanwhile, Helmut Sonnenfeldt, once a State Department deputy to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, said he believes it essential that before ratifying the treaty Congress "firmly establish" programs to deploy the mobile MX missile and to remove doubts about the transfer of U.S. cruise missile technology to the European allies.

Toon gave these arguments for Senate ratification:

"I think it will introduce a substantial element of stability in our relations with the Soviet Union.

"In my view it is important that the treaty places equal ceilings on the strategic arsenals of both sides, thereby ending a previous numerical imbalance in favor of the Soviet Union.

"It preserves our options to build the forces we need to maintain the strategic balance.

"It enhances our ability to monitor Soviet actions and it is adequately verifiable — an essential feature in any agreement with the Soviets since we cannot rely on good will.

"It leads directly to the next step in controlling nuclear weapons and establishes a basis for further cooperation with the Soviet Union in this important field." Toon said U.S. negotiators could not have gotten a better deal from the Soviets on any specific issue covered by the treaty "without having to pay an unacceptable price in another part of the agreement."

And he said that if the Senate were to insist that negotiations be reopened, the Soviets would either insist on reopening issues that had been resolved in the favor of the United States, "or they would turn us down flat."

"In either case this would kill the treaty," Toon said.

In testimony Tuesday before the Senate Armed Services Committee, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff denied the nation's military leaders traded their endorsement of the SALT II treaty for a promise to build the MX missile, or that their support resulted from any pressure from the White House.

But Air Force Gen. David Jones said he and the other heads of the uniformed services believe there is an urgent need to modernize the nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines which compose the U.S. strategic strike force.

Jones said the chiefs are "disappointed the treaty did not achieve more than it did."

However, he repeated previous testimony calling the pact a "modest but useful step." He said the Senate should ratify it.

Jones said improvements in strategic forces should include deployment of the $30 billion MX mobile missile system, installation of air-launched cruise missiles on B-52 bombers, modernization of submarine ballistic missile systems and development of a new aircraft for carrying cruise missiles.

"There are some who say the chiefs are being bought off by the MX," Jones told the committee. But he vigorously denied the accusation.

However, when asked directly if he could endorse the treaty if he knew MX would not be deployed, there was a long pause.

"That is a very hard question to answer," Jones replied.

"If the United States did not rely on the MX, we'd be in serious trouble in the 1980's, more serious than anything we do on SALT," Jones said.

Visiting prior to the start of testimony before the panel on the SALT II treaty are, from left, Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Gen. Robert H. Barrow, Marine Corps Commandant; Gen. Lew Allen, Air Force Chief of Staff; John Stennis, D-Miss., Senate Armed Services Committee chairman, and Gen. Edward C. Meyer, Army Chief of Staff. You can hear Nixon tapes — in four years

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be at least four years before the public can hear the Watergate scandal unfold on Richard Nixon's White House tapes.

National Archives' attorney Steven Garfinkel says archivists need the time to separate public recordings from private conversations that will be returned to the former president.

Garfinkel's prediction Tuesday followed a legal victory for the government's plan to make the tapes available at a dozen archives centers across the country.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. issued a one-page order upholding public access to the tapes. He rejected claims by Nixon's lawyers that "dissemination of one's voice, one's mannerisms" violates privacy rights.

Robinson also ruled government archivists can review and make public some of the dictated recordings that Nixon called his "personal diary." The ex-president contended his "innermost thoughts and feelings" were on those tapes and sought their return.

Nixon lawyer R. Stan Mortenson said he would ask Robinson to reconsider his ruling. If the motion is denied, he could appeal to a higher court.

Garfinkel said the diaries are far less important than tapes from the sound-activated White House system that recorded Nixon and his aides discussing Watergate.

If government plans survive further legal obstacles, it is this system that would enable the public to listen to the cover-up as it developed. Garfinkel said work on the tapes would proceed "simultaneously with court challenges."

"Realistically, we're talking about at least four years," Garfinkel said.

"We're going to be working on two groups of materials: the tapes and Nixon's 'special files.'"

"These are sensitive materials and any materials related to abuse of power would be in those files. The special files could be available in two years."

Garfinkel said the tapes would be screened as a unit and not released piecemeal. There's a possibility, however, that tapes already heard by jurors and spectators at the Watergate cover-up trial of top Nixon aides would be available earlier than others, he said.

The case before Robinson centered on Nixon's challenge to some government regulations issued under a 1974 law. The statute directed the General Services Administration to seize Nixon's papers and tapes, remove personal materials and determine public access for the remaining items.

Nixon's suit challenged regulations dealing with the listening centers and the dictated recordings. Other regulations, dealing with the way archivists processed Nixon's tapes and papers, were agreed to earlier this year by lawyers for Nixon and the government.

Under current plans, listening centers for the tapes would be located in the National Archives building in Washington and the following regional centers: Atlanta; Chicago; Philadelphia; Waltham, Mass.; Bayonne, N.J.; Kansas City, Mo.; Fort Worth, Texas; Denver; Seattle; and two sites in California, San Bruno and Laguna Niguel.

The tapes would only be available at those centers to individuals. There are no current provisions for commercial reproductions of the recordings.

Continued use of saccharin depends on Senate decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dieters and others who consume low-calorie soft drinks are now depending on the Senate to complete action to block the government from prohibiting the sale of saccharin products.

The House voted 394-22 Tuesday to allow beverages and foods containing the artificial sweetener to remain on the store shelves until June 30, 1981.

And congressional sponsors called upon the food and beverage industries to use the extension to develop a substitute for saccharin which will be both safe and low in calories.

However, the legislation that prohibits the ban on saccharin from taking place may face some delays in the Senate.

According to congressional sources who asked not to be named, key leaders in the Senate have held back to see what the House would adopt, and to get a feel for what compromises might be acceptable.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of a Human Resources subcommittee, has turned a sympathetic ear to Food and Drug Administration warnings that saccharin may be particularly hazardous to children and pregnant women.

In 1977, the FDA proposed banning saccharin as a food additive because it was linked to bladder cancer in male rats in research studies.

But since saccharin is the only remaining general-use artificial sweetener on the market, there was wide opposition to the ban.

Congress stopped the prohibition from going into effect by passing an 18-month moratorium that expired May 23. It also ordered warning labels placed on all saccharin products.

Fighting for congressional action to delay the saccharin ban is the diet food and soft drink's lobbying and publicity arm, the Calorie Control Council of Atlanta.

Council president Robert H. Kellen said of Tuesday's House vote: "It shows widespread recognition by congressmen of saccharin's importance to many millions of American consumers."

Bundy convicted by Florida jury

MIAMI (AP) — Theodore Bundy, a quiet law student who never forgot Mother's Day, waved at the courtroom crowd after a clerk read the verdict — guilty of murdering two women and trying to kill three others at Florida State University.

Bundy's mother slumped backward and his lawyer paled at the verdicts late Tuesday, but Bundy waved and smiled, and later told a friend he was simply perplexed.

Prosecutors promised to ask for the death penalty. The same 12-member jury that convicted the 32-year-old Tacoma, Wash., resident will remain sequestered to hear arguments on sentencing Saturday and Monday. A simple majority vote is needed to recommend life or death. Judge Edward D. Cowart can overrule the jury.

The jury deliberated six hours to end the 4½-week trial that saw Bundy often act as his own attorney and argue bitterly with his lawyers. One attorney quit the case after the defense presentation was under way. Another tried to walk out.

Bundy was found guilty of first-degree murder in the deaths of Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, both of St. Petersburg, Fla.

They were beaten with a crude oak club as they slept in the Chi Omega sorority house at Florida State University in Tallahassee, Fla., on Jan. 15, 1978. Both were garrotted with pantyhose.

Bundy also was convicted of attempting to murder Kathy Kleiner DeShields, 20, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Karen Chandler, 21, of Marietta, Ga., both Chi Omega members, and Cheryl Thomas, 22, a student from Richmond, Va., who was attacked in her apartment.

In addition, Bundy was found guilty of two counts of burglary.

State prosecutors argued that Bundy's crooked teeth left a crude wound on Miss Levy's body, eyewitness Nita Neary said she saw Bundy leave the sorority house and hair similar to Bundy's was found in a pantyhose mask in Miss Thomas' duplex.

The defense argued the case was built on shoddy police work and shaky dental evidence.

Bundy's 54-year-old mother, Louise, fell against the back of her courtroom seat as the verdicts were pronounced. She has called Bundy "the kind of son who never forgets Mother's Day."

"I can't believe it," she said. "This isn't the end. There will be appeal upon appeal... I know and the family knows that he isn't guilty and that he didn't do those terrible things."

She sobbed as she walked down the hallway and out of the courthouse.

Said prosecutor Larry Simpson: "It was a common-sense jury and they used their common sense. We certainly will ask for the death penalty."

Bundy's long-time friend and supporter, Carole Ann Boone of Seattle, said Bundy called her from jail after the verdict.

"More than anything he was perplexed," she said. "He was really baffled at the short amount of time the jury was out and the evidence they chose to review."

The jury asked once to see sketches made by an artist who interviewed Miss Neary, then for clarification of testimony about the hair found in the pantyhose mask.

In telephone interviews on the eve of the verdict, Bundy predicted a hung jury but said he anticipated a death sentence if convicted. "He doesn't expect to die," Ms. Boone said Tuesday.

Bundy also faces trials on charges of murdering 12-year-old Kimberly Leach of Lake City, Fla., and Dearborn, Mich., nurse Caryn Campbell, 23, in Aspen, Colo., in 1975. He has been convicted of kidnapping in Utah, where he was arrested in 1975 while attending law school.

After Bundy escaped from a Colorado jail in 1977, the FBI described him as wanted for questioning in 36 sex-related slayings.

Except for the Utah, Colorado and Florida indictments, however, Bundy was never charged.

Theodore Bundy, center, listens without expression as the verdict is read in his murder trial in Miami late Tuesday night. They returned a guilty verdict on all seven counts, including two counts of first degree murder. (AP Laserphoto)

There's a darker side to this All-American boy

MIAMI (AP) — With his sharply cut features, strong build, and wavy brown hair, Theodore Bundy looks like the All-American boy. He has the credentials, too: Republican Party activist, social worker, college honors graduate, crime commission researcher, law student. Once, he was even honored for catching a purse thief.

But there is another, darker side: "He's a psychotic killer," a Utah sheriff's captain has said. "He's the most vicious killer in history."

His conviction Tuesday in the 1978 murders of two Florida State University students in Tallahassee and savage attacks on three others marked the second in a string of trials for the 32-year-old from Tacoma, Wash.

He had been convicted of kidnapping a 23-year-old woman in Utah and had escaped from a Colorado jail while awaiting trial on charges of killing a young nurse. He has been charged with the rape and murder of a 12-year-old girl in Florida. And the FBI once said he was wanted for questioning in 36 sex-related murders.

Bundy once admitted fearing that he might spend the rest of his life fighting a reputation he says has made him a "convenient" target. He is already one of America's best-known criminals. But his looks and background contrast with the gruesome murders.

He intrigues many. The 100-seat Miami courtroom was filled during his 4½-week trial. Many of the seats were taken by young women. "He has a look in his eyes, an angry look, an insane look. Those girls at Florida State were just sleeping there ...," said Vivian Casadement, a teacher in her mid-20s.

Bundy was born Theodore Robert Cowell in a home for unwed mothers in Burlington, Vt., on Nov. 24, 1946. As a child, he moved with his mother, Louise, to Tacoma, where she married John Bundy in 1951.

He entered the University of Puget Sound in 1965, transferred to the University of Washington the next year and later studied Chinese at Stanford University.

After quitting college, he worked at odd jobs. In April 1968, he worked for a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor in Washington and was Seattle chairman of the New Majority for Rockefeller.

He also worked on the re-election campaign of former Washington Gov. Dan Evans, who once praised Bundy for catching a purse thief on a Seattle street. In 1968, he attended the GOP convention in Miami as an alternate delegate.

Four years later, he graduated from the University of Washington with an A-minus average, then helped design a county program for dealing with habitual criminals.

In September 1973, he enrolled at the Puget Sound Law School in Tacoma but dropped out two weeks before final exams. He enrolled at the University of Utah Law School after moving to Salt Lake City in Aug. 1974. It was there that he was convicted of kidnapping Carol DaRonch.

Louise Bundy's belief in her son's innocence unshaken

MIAMI (AP) — Louise Bundy watched with pride as the child she gave birth to in a Vermont home for unwed mothers grew into a handsome, hard-working and ambitious young man.

He was "a good baby," and later a good son, "the kind who never forgot Mother's Day," Mrs. Bundy said.

When Theodore R. Bundy was accused of a 1974 kidnapping in Utah, her reaction was quick. No, she said, Ted would never do anything like that.

She steadfastly defended him as more charges came — charges that accused him of murdering four young women and a preteen girl in three separate incidents.

When a Miami jury found her son guilty Tuesday night of the brutal murders of two Florida State University coeds and attempted murders of three others, her belief in Theodore Bundy remained unshaken.

"I just can't believe the jury," said the small, gray-haired Mrs. Bundy, tears misting her eyes.

"They didn't get enough time to deliberate. Plus they even asked questions and took time out to eat dinner.... I can't understand it."

trocution of John A. Spengelink. Spengelink was 30. Bundy, 32, could be sentenced to death.

"I don't even want to think about it. I know it's possible," she said.

But she admitted she had already thought about it, a lot. "I think Florida is a terrible state," said Mrs. Bundy, 54, a mother of five in Tacoma, Wash., who does secretarial work at the University of Puget Sound.

She winced, fighting back tears as she left the courtroom, but squared her shoulders and refused to let her anguish show as she walked to the end of the hallway to confront reporters and television lights.

"Needless to say, I think the jury is very wrong. They didn't deliberate long enough," she said firmly in a high-pitched voice.

"This isn't it. We're by no means finished. There'll be appeal upon appeal."

"The family is devastated.... But we will stick by him because we know he is innocent."

She smiled bravely into the cameras. A young man gently took her arm and escorted her down the un-moving courthouse escalator. As she reached the bottom, she broke into wracking, gasping sobs.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a broad advance today in response to President Carter's nomination of Paul Volcker for the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was up 5.89 at 835.67.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 3-1 margin in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The White House announced the selection this morning of Volcker, currently president of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, to succeed G. William Miller as chairman of the Fed.

Analysts said investors were pleased with the choice of Volcker because of his experience in domestic and international economic matters and his reputation as a conservative on monetary affairs.

Miller was named last week to become Treasury secretary. Since then, weakness in the dollar in foreign exchange markets has been attributed partly to uncertainty over the future direction of the Fed's monetary policy.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .38 to 58.36. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.19 at 196.66.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.26 million shares at noontime, up from 12.81 million at the same point Tuesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — As energy prices rise and people become conscious of the potential depletion of natural resources, conspicuous consumption has been given an ignominious bum's rush.

It will be resurrected some day, but probably never again in the style of the past 30 years, when automobiles, for example, were rated on their useless horsepower and their parlor-like interiors.

It came to an embarrassing end. It was like the uncle who dressed like a banker but who never did a lick of work in his life, and who was eventually thrown out of the house. It was designed to impress rather than to perform. It was pride, snobbery, idleness.

It ingratiated itself into our houses, too. Over the past 20 years, they grew larger and more elaborate, with extra bedrooms, a family room that might never be used, an extra half bath, a heated garage and a pool.

Any real estate agent will tell you that many such houses were sold on the basis of appearance rather than structural quality, ease of living, or suitability. To afford such lavishness meant you had arrived.

Conspicuous consumption is always associated with such an abundance of something or other that it leaves the owner puzzled about demonstrating it. A bank account shows little; a big house shows a lot.

It was in part the motivation behind the scraggy miner who hit it big and built a castle on the biggest hill in town. Or the mill owner. Or the person who could afford to buy into an overpriced subdivision.

But now, the real estate people say, the size of houses is likely to shrink. So important have operating costs become, they contend, that even the conspicuously rich may have to reconsider.

The extra rooms are being closed off. The heat to the garage is being shut off. And some people with extremely conspicuous manses are selling them to institutions and moving to pied-a-terre in town.

The changes already are observed by the analysts. Advance Mortgage Corp. commented last week that henceforth "luxury will be conveyed less by footage and more by quality of finish and amenities."

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.26 million shares at noontime, up from 12.81 million at the same point Tuesday.

Boris, Aristotle make fortune for Chafitzes

By JERRY KNIGHT
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — At first there was only Boris.

A nice walnut box, nothing fancy, but the best chess-playing computer that $300 could buy.

Steve Chafitz sold tons of 'em, literally, and spawned a Boris dynasty: a $400 rechargeable Boris, a $119 traveling Boris and an $895 Boris Grand Master that plays chess better than its grandfather and lets you cheat.

And now — while the calculator geniuses of Texas Instruments and the toy tycoons of Mattel are starting to sell their own Boris clones — the little Rockville, Md., company that brought you Boris is introducing Aristotle.

Aristotle plays backgammon. Not only plays backgammon, but plays it with enough class to qualify as one of the high tech toys that Neiman-Marcus will offer its customers next Christmas.

Undeterred by Aristotle's shipping magnate price tag — $2,500 retail — merchants from Beverly Hills to Broadway placed orders by the hundreds when Aristotle debuted at the Consumer Electronics Show last month in Las Vegas.

Between Aristotle and Boris, salesmen for Chafitz Inc. of Rockville "wrote more business in 3 1-2 days at the show than we did in the first 3 1-2 years we were in business," said president Steven Chafitz.

Chafitz and his wife, Arleen, went into business in 1971 dealing in used office machines. With the help of Boris and now Aristotle they are carving what next year will be a $20 million niche in the electronic specialty business.

Though they sell video games and "dumb" electronic playthings at their store, the Chafitz specialty is making and selling "smart" electronics, games that have what computer people call "artificial intelligence." Nearly 1,500 retail stores sell Chafitz games.

South attracts married men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of the 50 million married men in the United States, the largest concentration — 32 percent — lives in the South, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The council says, "The North Central region follows with 27 percent of the husbands. Next is the Northeast with 22 percent and last is the West with 18 percent."

The brains of Boris and Aristotle are electronic chips, the kind that run calculators, but the two Chafitz machines have learned their games from professionals.

Aristotle's program is the effort of backgammon professional Paul Brill and Carnegie Mellon University professor Hans Berliner. Boris' latest chess lessons were taught by Dan and Kathie Spracklen, whose $5,000 home computer beat a million-dollar Amdahl 470 V-6 in the North American Computer Chess Championship.

But it is the marketing skill of Steve and Arleen Chafitz and their product development chief Dan Neumayer that is making Boris and Aristotle millionaires.

The couple started out buying old office furniture and selling it via the want ads, and loading up station wagons with old typewriters in New York and driving them back to Washington. On one such trip Steve saw his first pocket calculator. It cost $400 and Chafitz bought it on the spot.

The next step was selling calculators at a discount, by mail at first and then from a tiny Rockville store.

The couple learned how to market high ticket electronics and when Steve heard about some Texas computer specialists who had a machine that played chess, he went off to see it. That was Boris; the rest is the history of the chess computer business.

Aristotle is the result of all that Boris taught the Chafitzes. The original Boris had to have its chess moves punched into a little calculator keyboard using the standard, but awkward chess code.

Opponents of the Boris Grand Master simply move their pieces across his electronic board. Boris flashes little lights to indicate his own moves. Aristotle works the same way, but is all electronic. To move a marker from one point to another the player simply touches the starting point and the destination and the electronic board flashes the moves and feeds it into the computer. The dice roll automatically and electronically.

Aristotle is good enough that beginning players will win only one game in 10 or 20 — mostly through luck — and even the best player will lose often enough to stay interested. Boris can be set to play at 10 different skill levels and in the top-of-the-line version has a reset button that allows up to three plays to be replayed. It's not cheating, it's teaching, insists Arleen, who designed Boris and Aristotle's cabinets.

Players can also sharpen their skills — or turn chess and backgammon into spectator sports — by setting the games on automatic and letting the computer play against itself.

Carriers asking permission to add fuel adjustment charge

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Carriers of all types of goods across the state are seeking fuel adjustment charges from the Railroad Commission to compensate for the rising cost of gasoline and diesel fuel, a Railroad Commission spokesman said.

Harold Bariz, assistant rate director for the RRC's Transportation Division, said the high cost of fuel is driving shipping rates up in all forms of transportation, including railroads, bus lines and motor carriers.

Goods hauled by these carriers included sand and gravel, household goods, chemicals, lumber, plywood, livestock and numerous other commodities.

The railroads originally asked for a 1.2 percent increase for fuel costs, and are now seeking an additional 1.4 percent, Bartz said. Total increases sought by the bus lines are 3 percent while the motor carriers are seeking an overall increase of 4 percent.

The specialized carriers, which include most independent operators, are seeking increases based on the distance they travel, the type of goods they carry and other factors, Bartz said.

Increases for the owner-operators have averaged three cents per running mile during the first three months of 1979 and are now increasing to about six cents per running mile, Bartz said.

"Every order issued (by the RRC) contains the clause that the increase goes to the person who buys the fuel," Bartz said. Under this system, the owner-operators get the increase, instead of the company they are hauling for.

Most of the applications for fuel adjustments received by the RRC have come from the owner-operators, Bartz said.

The large urban areas such as Houston, Dallas

Fort Worth and San Antonio can expect to be hit hardest by the increases because those cities have the heaviest carrier traffic, Bartz said.

But the whole state will be affected by increases in rail-and-bus-rates, he said.

Funding veto to have little West Texas effect

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — General Land Office officials expect Gov. Bill Clements' veto of the 1981 funding for the Environmental Management Section to hurt their efforts to manage state coastal land, but do not expect any significant effect on state land in West Texas.

Mike Hightower, director of the General Land Office Environmental Management Section, said there will be no significant impact on West Texas lands.

"We put the majority of emphasis on coastal lands because that is where most of the industrial development is," Hightower said.

Hightower said the state owns 4.25 million acres of submerged land within 10.35 miles off the coast plus additional acreage of dry land along the coast.

One project that Hightower's division does operate, and which could be hampered by the veto, concerns revegetating lands along the banks of the Rio Grande River.

In 1970, the United States and Mexico entered into a treaty to establish actual boundaries between the two countries.

Several boundary disputes had arisen because of the shifting course of the Rio Grande, Hightower said.

Work being conducted by Hightower's section is designed to re-establish vegetation along the river banks and prevent it from shifting its course. The revegetation would cut the amount of sediment washing into the river, Hightower said.

Hightower said his participation in the project will have to drop to allow him to concentrate on more important programs once the funds are gone. "My priorities will go elsewhere with the lack of funding," Hightower said.

Hightower said there are about 4,000 acres of state land in Midland, Upton, Crane, Reagan, Martin and Andrews counties that should not be affected by the demise of his division.

Those lands are leased for grazing and other purposes and the leases conduct their own environmental management, Hightower said.

Hightower said it appears the veto will result in the extinction of his division, even though that division conducted all of the environmental assessment studies for more than 4,000 permits issued for the use of state land in 1978.

Most of those permits were for coastal land, but the Land Office will, after 1980, have no division to conduct the environmental assessments whether future permits are sought for the coastal or West Texas lands.

"We (the Land Office) are the only state agency that permits these things (state land use)," Hightower said.

"If the state doesn't manage its lands, the federal government will come in and do it for you," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Activities, aging affect food needs

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 38 years old, and I don't eat any more today than I did 20 years ago; yet, I'm putting on weight. Does this make any sense? — Don

Dear Don: If my arithmetic is correct, you were 18 years of age 20 years ago — and probably a lot more active than you are today. If you were as active as a lot of 18-year-olds are, and possibly still growing at the time, you could have tolerated a diet that provided 4,200 calories. But how active are you today? If you sit at a desk all day, and in front of a television set at night, you may need no more than 2,000 calories a day; anything over that would simply mean added weight.

There is another factor that must be considered as well, and that is the change in metabolism that occurs as we grow older. This causes a decrease in caloric requirements, so that even if exercise and food intake remain constant, obesity may develop with advancing age. It is important to reverse this process by arriving at a good balance, increasing physical activity and decreasing caloric intake. It is estimated that 35 percent of persons over 40 are overweight to a degree that jeopardizes their health and longevity. There is a close association — one which cannot be ignored — between obesity and serious diseases of the heart, blood vessels, kidneys, liver, lungs, and other organs. The risks associated with being overweight make weight control a top priority for everyone interested in good health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If over-processed foods really are detrimental to health, it seems this would have been evident long ago. When did people find out about the value of unrefined flour in the diet? — Ms. E.J.

Dear Ms. J.: Awareness of the benefits of eating bread made from whole wheat flour goes back a long way — in fact, Hippocrates, the father of medicine, recommended it to promote healthy bowels. And in ancient Rome, some of the athletes ate only coarse wheat bread, rather than the refined white bread eaten by the aristocrats, because they believed it helped them build up their strength.

In the 19th century, Sylvester Graham was a leading advocate of food reform in the United States. He claimed that indigestion, a common complaint of the time, was the result of a diet that was too concentrated, and that it could be corrected by putting bran back into wheat flour. His name, incidentally, lives on in graham flour and the graham cracker.

In more recent times, there has been a growing interest in the theory that foods high in fiber can prevent a variety of digestive problems. It should be borne in mind, however, that merely adding fiber to a poor diet can cause more problems than it solves. A properly balanced diet is the only healthy one.

Texas senators agree on nuclear measures

HOUSE

VIETNAM: By a vote of 291 for and 122 against, the House adopted an amendment preventing U.S. funds from being used by the World Bank to aid Vietnam. Since the World Bank cannot accept U.S. funds bearing restriction on disbursement, the amendment would disallow the U.S. contribution to the bank. The amendment was part of HR 4473, a foreign aid appropriations bill headed for final passage and the Senate.

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Phil Gramm, D-4, Bill Archer, R-7, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Eika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23 and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Jim Mattox, D-5, Bob Eckhardt, D-4, James Wright, D-12 and Mickey Leland, D-18, voted "nay."

METRIC SYSTEM: The House defeated, by a vote of 122 for and 280 against, an amendment to kill the U.S. Metric Board by eliminating money for its operation in fiscal 1980. The Metric Board was established in 1975 to expedite the nation's voluntary conversion to the metric system.

The amendment was proposed to HR 4392, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate with $1.6 million for the Metric Board part of its total price tag.

Members voting "yea" want to eliminate the U.S. Metric Board.

Hall, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Wyatt, de la Garza, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler and Paul voted "yea."

Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, White, Leland, Gonzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "nay."

Brooks did not vote.

SHIP SUBSIDY: The House rejected, 135 for and 272 against, a $69 million subsidy for construction of three dry-bulk ships by American shipyards. The money was in addition to $32 million already in a fiscal 1980 appropriations bill for the U.S. Maritime Administration's subsidy program. The bill (HR 4392) was passed and sent to the Senate.

The subsidy program is designed to keep the U.S. merchant marine independent of foreign countries in time of emergency. It provides U.S. shipbuilders with 50 per cent of the cost of building a ship, so that they can better compete with foreign builders.

Members voting "yea" wanted to appropriate more money for ship-construction subsidies in fiscal 1980.

Wilson, Wyatt and Frost voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Gramm, Archer, Eckhardt, Pickle, Leath, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Stenholm, Leland, Hance, Gonzalez, Loeffler, Paul and Kazen voted "nay."

Brooks did not vote.

SENATE

NUCLEAR POWER: The Senate rejected, 35 for and 57 against, an amendment to impose a six-month moratorium on new construction permits for nuclear power plants. The moratorium would have begun with the Oct. 1 start of fiscal 1980. The six months would have been used to consider regulations limiting nuclear plant construction in populous areas. The amendment was offered to a bill (S. 562) authorizing operations of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. It was later passed and sent to the House.

Senators voting "yea" favored the moratorium.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D and John Tower, R, voted "nay."

NUCLEAR WASTE DISPOSAL: By a vote of 55 for and 37 against, the Senate killed an amendment giving states power to reject any federal plan to dump nuclear-power waste within their boundaries. The amendment was proposed to S 562 (see vote above).

The vote left unresolved the issue of where and how radioactive waste from nuclear power plants is to be permanently stored. Such wastes now are temporarily stored in the state where generated.

Senators voting "nay" want states to be able to veto the permanent disposal of nuclear wastes within their boundaries.

Bentsen and Tower voted "yea."

SENATE OFFICE BUILDING: The senate voted, 49 for and 46 against, to appropriate an additional $57.4 million to continue construction of a third Senate Office Building. The vote came during consideration of HR 4388, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House. Since Congress last year halted construction, little work has been done on the steel shell of the proposed Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building.

Senators voting "yea" favor construction of a third Senate office building.

Floridian would rebuild shipwreck on ocean floor

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Sonny Cockrell, an underwater archaeologist from Florida, says he regrets that treasure-hunters have stripped most of the ships that sank along Florida's coast before 1800.

But the outspoken Cockrell says he's got a plan to guarantee that future generations will have a chance to see an underwater wreck — he wants to reconstruct a shipwreck off the Florida Keys.

"The majority of Spanish shipwrecks are on Florida's coral reef, but they've been destroyed," Cockrell says. "The people don't have any left to dive on and see."

Historians estimate that about 5,000 ships may have gone down in the shallow waters along Florida's coast, victims of the powerful Gulf Stream and erratic disturbances that swept the vessels onto sand bars and sharp coral reefs.

So what Cockrell wants to do is move some old cannons from a wreck near Fort Pierce down to a still-undetermined site in the John Pennekamp State Park near Key Largo, and rebuild a wreck on the sea floor.

Cockrell says there are 30 to 50 iron cannons on the ocean floor off Fort Pierce, where the Spanish fleet went down in a hurricane in 1715. The nine salvaging firms working under state contract to remove much of the valuable artifacts, gold and bronze cannons from the fleet apparently have little interest in the cannons, Cockrell says.

Five West Texas cities ask designation for new route

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—A task force of five West Texas cities told the Texas Highway and Public Transportation Commission Tuesday that a proposed north-south limited-access four-lane highway should be designated along Interstate 27 from Amarillo to Lubbock, then south along U.S. Highway 87 through Lamesa, Big Spring and into San Angelo.

Charles Graves, chairman, Committee for Primary Highway from Lubbock to Interstate 10, Sonora

Fireman's lost watch recovered

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — During a fire at a produce store a couple of months ago, Bloomington assistant fire chief Gene Ploense lost his digital wristwatch.

It was found at the scene recently.

Chamber of Commerce, said the designated route south from San Angelo to Interstate 10 should follow Highway 277-S through Christoval, Eldorado and Sonora.

According to information prepared by the West Texas task force, the Highway 277 route would involve 66 miles of construction compared to 97 miles and 170 miles for two alternate proposed routes.

Estimated cost by 1981-82 of this four-lane highway is set at $1 million per mile "and possibly much more." This means a minimum distance savings of $31 million for the Sonora route," supporters said in material distributed at the meeting.

Graves said there were fewer major water crossings, lower costs involved in gaining land rights and the terrain between San Angelo and Sonora is flatter requiring fewer cuts through rock mountains.

Asked how long it might take to acquire the designation, Graves said, "In this particular case I don't think anybody can predict."
