Carter: Re-born, scared, confused, out of touch

HEARST

SAN SIMEON -The carnage in the Carter cabinet has left America in a somber mood, I am told by Hearst newsmen throughout the nation. The president changed his palace guard in the crudest manner, and after all his high-falutin' talk about putting aside our petty personal interests, the purge seems starkly politi-

Mr. Carter seems determined to get a windfall profits tax - whenever it comes - to finance the energy needs of the future. There was no mistaking his sincerity in this intent in his Wednesday night speech when he spoke of the public's "crisis of confi-

People ask me, "What's going on down there in Washington?" I suggest it is clearly the launching of the 1980 campaign to nominate the president.

Mr. Carter's performance has not been a good one in the opinion of much of the public, as the polls have shown. Just to list a few weak spots:

• Inflation has mounted and has now reached the two-digit level. • The president's volunteer wageprice control plan has been an utter at the United Nations, yet he, in the opinion of increasing numbers of Americans, is the most expendable of the Carterites.

Mr. Carter promised us solemnly that he would never lie to us. Now he is doing so without a qualm. He had his press secretary, Jody Powell, state positively that Mr. Carter's peculiar behavior had nothing to do with the opinion polls.

Does he suppose for a minute that anyone will believe such a tale? Mr. Carter's latest moves were contrived and master-minded by Rafshoon and Jordan who must believe that the rest of us are not much more than idiots. They were supposed to give us a re-reborn Carter with a lot more zip than the old one.

In my own opinion, the remaking of the Carter presidency may cost the man his job.

Quite simply, he over-reacted to the polls that revealed his sagging popularity. If it was the energy crisis that undercut the public's confidence in him, he has done nothing to rememdy that situation except dish out some bland platitudes about future energy sources.

Why, when he addressed the energy problem, didn't Jimmy Carter say that he would cut through the red tape that ties up the sale of oil leases for many years? Why didn't he say he would open up Alaska and the Alaskan coastal shelf where it is believed there is enough oil to last a century? Why didn't he march down to Mexico, checkbook in hand, and negotiate a deal with our oil-rich neighbor? Why did he feel it was necessary to offer us dream-stuff about solar energy?

All of the evidence indicates that the president is scared, confused, and out of touch with his fellow Americans. He has withdrawn into the cas-

Consumers give ideas on energy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumer and environmental groups presented their concerns Saturday to Energy Secretary-designate Charles W. Duncan Jr. about the effect of President Carter's energy policies on the environment and the poor.

Duncan, the deputy defense secretary whom Carter has nominated to succeed James R. Schlesinger as energy secretary, invited 25 representatives from a variety of orgnizations for a private breakfast meeting at the Pentagon. "I want to learn from you and...to share my thinking with you first-hand," he was quoted as telling Duncan, if confirmed soon by the Senate, probably will take over from Schlesinger in late August or early September. He promised more such meetings in the future.

Although the breakfast meeting was closed to the press, a half-dozen of those attending said there were broad areas of disagreement with the Carter energy plan.

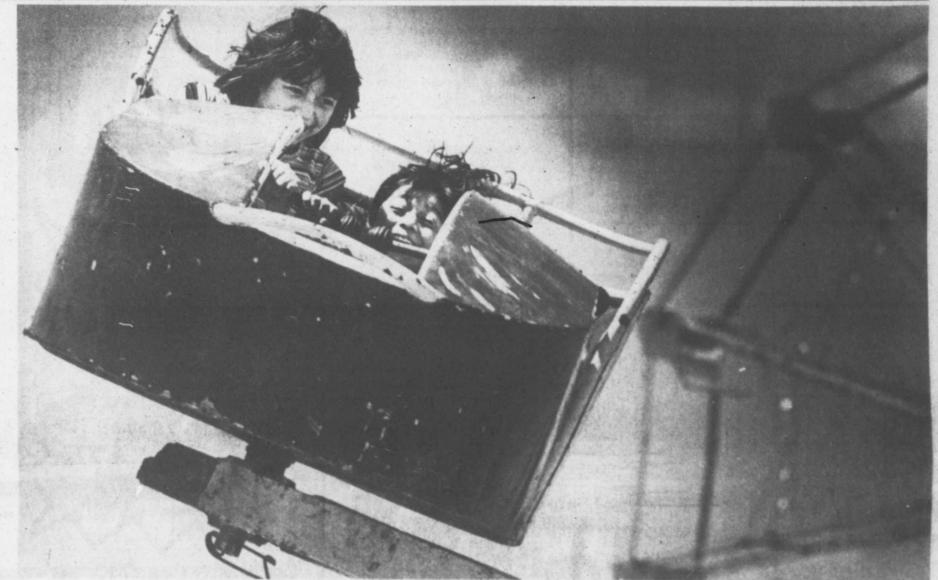

"Everybody made the point that conservation and clean, renewable resources are the most cost effective as both short-term and long-term (energy) alternatives," said Irmgard Hunt, of the New York-based Council on Environmental Alternatives.

She and other participants said they told Duncan that Carter's energy plan places too much reliance on development of synthetic fuels and that more emphasis should be placed on solar and other alternate energy sources.

Jonathan Gibson of the Sierra Club said concern was expressed about the impact that Carter's proposed Energy Mobilization Board will have on environmental laws. The board, if approved by Congress, would be empowered to bypass environmental laws to speed up energy-related Another participant, Dennis E. Eckart, an Ohio state representative, reminded Duncan that the poor and elderly will be especially hard hit by high energy costs. He said greater efforts should be made by the federal government to provide the poor with financial assistance.

Duncan, in opening remarks later released by the Pentagon, called the nation's energy problem "enormous" and "the most critical item on the national agenda.

Midland's lake will have to wait

But environmental learning center plan is taking shape

By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

A 20-acre recreational lake with its own island may stay on the "wish list" for awhile yet, but plans for an outdoor environmental learning center are taking shape and preliminary work should get under way this Sound like notions for improving some other city?

Both projects are part of a 1975 master plan for Midland's Hogan

The 620-acre park in the northwest part of the city was mapped out in 1975 as a recreational oasis in the flat West Texas landscape. In addition to the lake - suitable for sailboats, swimming and fishing

- the master plan calls for a 36-hole golf course, a new clubhouse for golfers, more playing fields, ball diamonds and picnic areas. Nine additional golf holes (to give a total of 27) and the clubhouse now are being completed, but many Midlanders may not know about the lake

Fact is, however, the Town Lake project has been on the drawing board since initial engineering work was done in 1967. And in the meantime, price tag on the 20-acre waterhole has jumped from less than $1 million then to close to $2 million now. Budget considerations probably will keep that project and some of the others on the "wish list" for some time, but the city Parks and Recreation Department already is working to get the environmental learning center and primitive camping areas off the drawing boards and into reali-

Parolee admits he murdered 20

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) - A50-year-old paroled murderer, who says he committed 20 other murders from Maine to California in the past year, was being held in the Dutchess County jail here Saturday, state police said.

"We could be sitting on a mass murderer here," said Senior Investigator John Crodelle of the state police's Bureau of Criminal Investiga-

Joseph Fischer, paroled from a New Jersey state prison in June 1978 after serving 25 years for a murder conviction, was held without bail on a charge of second-degree murder while authorities investigated his claims.

Crodelle said Fischer turned himself into New York City police on Friday and told them he had killed his wife in Dutchess County.

State police said they went to the Wassaic home Fischer had shared with Claudine Eggers, 78, and found her body Friday morning. They said the retired state Department of Mental Hygiene employee had died of multiple stab wounds. Investigators said they found a marriage certificate at the house, but had been unable to authenticate it.

Later Friday, Fischer was brought to Dutchess County where Crodelle said he confessed to "20 more mur-

Crodelle said that warrants for Fischer's arrest have been issued in Arizona and Oklahoma for two murders he said he committed there. He said detectives from the two states are on their way here to question the Officials in Oklahoma said Fischer is wanted in connection with the bludgeoning death this spring of a Moore, Okla., woman. They said he had been dating Betty Jo Gibson before her body was discovered May 25 in a nailed-shut closet in her home.

Authorities in Arizona said Fischer is wanted in connection with the stabbing death of a Mexican-American man in Flagstaff, Ariz., in late March or early April.

Crodelle said authorities are also investigating claims by Fischer that he committed "five or six" murders in the Los Angeles area; three in the San Francisco area, "numerous" in the Bowery section of New York City and single murders in Cooperstown, N.Y.; Portland, Maine; Hartford, Conn.; Newark, N.J., and in New Mexico.

Answer Line

P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702

I noticed the item in Answer Line about cleaning up the alleys in Midland. I have an accumulation of shrubbery limbs, etc., which my yardman piled in the alley behind my house. I realize I am responsible for their removal, but the problem is trying to get someone to do the job. There was a want ad in the paper stating that a man would do yardwork, remove dead trees and stumps and do light hauling. I have tried to get him by telephone to hire him for the job, as well as trying other avenues, but with no luck. Can you help me?-Mrs. W.M.

ANSWER: Yes, I think Answer Line may have been of assistance: We managed to contact the yardman's wife. You have been unable to reach him during the day because members of the family are at work. He will be in touch with you and make arrangements for the job.

What is the Midland Cubs schedule for next week? I have company coming from out of town and would like to take them to a game.—Leah Ger-

ANSWER: The Midland Cubs will be playing in Shreveport today through Aug. 1. The team will be on the road Aug. 2, returning to Midland for a five-game series here against San Antonio, beginning Aug. 3.

Could you find recipes for Low Sodium Pickles, Yellow Squash Relish and Zucchini Pickles? I need these as soon as possible.-Mrs. R.N.

ANSWER: Well, Mrs. R. N., the Midland County extension agent's office came up with a recipe for the Zucchini Pickles, but Answer Line is still waiting for results on "feelers" for Low Sodium Pickles and Yellow Squash Relish. Since you mentioned you are in a hurry, we have the zucchini recipe today, and hope to have the other recipes in the very near future. Answer Line would appreciate any readers with the missing recipes to call, so the information can be made available to Mrs. R.N. Here we go on Zucchini Pickles: Ingredients-1 quart of white or apple cider vinegar, 2 cups sugar, 1/4 cup salt, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 2 teaspoons ground tumeric, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 5 pounds of 5 to 6 inch zucchini, unpeeled and cut into ¼ inch slices and 1 quart thinly sliced

Procedure-Combine the first six ingredients in saucepan, bring to a boil and pour over zucchini and onions. Let stand 1 hour, stirring occasionally. In saucepan, bring mixture to boil and simmer 3 minutes. Continue simmering, while quickly packing 1 clean hot jar at a time. Fill jars to within one inch of top, making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in a boiling water bath.

This makes 6 or 7 pints of pickles.

Is the Fuller Brush Co. still in business in Midland? I have used their products for years, but cannot find them listed in the telephone directory?-Mrs.

ANSWER: The Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin reports they have not received any calls about the company in the Permian Basin since 1978.

For you to find out if the company has a representative in Midland, you can write to the Fuller Brush Co., Westport Addition, Great Bend, Kan., 67530. Or, if you wish to telephone, the number is Area Code 316 792-1711.

Many burglaries reported in rural Midland County

Cooperation of neighbors urged by sheriff's officers

By MIKE SLATON Staff Writer

"Looks like they took everything they wanted," said Dickie Gatlin about the most recent burglary of his rural Midland County home.

"This time the window in the storeroom was broken out," said Gatlin, explaining how the burglars apparently gained entrance to his home. The first time Gatlin's home was broken into "the window was unlocked and whoever it was just slid it open," Gatlin explained.

"This last time I had the window nailed shut so they just broke it out,"

Between June 11 and 13 of this year, the Gatlin residence was burglarized for the first time.

While the Gatlins were out of town two televisions, a shotgun, a .22-caliber rifle, a microwave oven, a reel-to-reel tape deck, an eight-track tape deck and some jewelry were taken from their home.

"This second time (July 20)," said Gatlin, "they took a television we had gotten to replace the one taken the first time and a stereo and television console they missed the first time.

"We're demoralized - it just leaves a hollow feeling in you," said Gatlin. Gatlin's home is not the only one that has been the target of rural burglars lately, according to officials at the Midland County Sheriff's De-

Between 20 and 30 burglaries have been reported in the rural areas of Midland County in June and July, sheriff's department records indi-

Chief Deputy George Thompson and Sgt. Patrick Fuller suggested a few ways Midlanders might aid the department in curtailing the outbreak of rural burglaries. "Report all suspicious acts," said Thompson.

Watching for people, cars or activities that seem out of the ordinary for the area and reporting it, "no matter how unimportant it may seem to you," could help the department's investigation a great deal, said Thompson.

"Watch for suspicious vehicles, such as a car just driving up and down the road or a strange pickup parked in front of a neighbor's house," advised Fuller. "Make a note of it.

"Above all, don't be hesitant to call us if you see anything out of the ordinary," Fuller added.

Rural residents should take inventory of their valuables, the two deputies advised. Law enforcement officers need to have some way of identifying the property if it is taken.

The crime prevention unit of the Midland Police Department has a number of engravers that it will lend to Midlanders wishing to mark their

The homeowner can slow down a burglar through the installation of a two-key deadbolt lock on all outside doors, the deputies advised. Purpose of the deadbolt lock is to prevent a burglar from unlocking a door from the inside and using that as the exit point, Fuller said.

Most of the burglaries that have occurred recently probably have taken five to eight minutes to complete, said Fuller.

"In five minutes, they can haul off a truck load of stuff," he said. "But they are limited to what they can take if they have to move all the goods through a window," he added. Also, said Thompson, "the more difficult it is for the burglars to get in and take property, the greater the chance they may leave evidence. Other methods of slowing rural burglaries suggested by the two de-

- Have neighbors watch your house when you go out of town;

- Stop deliveries such as the newspaper;

- Have someone mow your lawn while you're gone;

- Arrange for someone to pick up your mail; - Leave the house key with someone who can check on the home.

"There was a time when people out in the country felt they could leave their doors unlocked," said Thompson. "That time has passed.

HOUSTON (AP) - homes were damaged, Thousands of weary and at least six deaths Texans, chased from their homes along the upper Gulf Coast by the worst floods in 18 years, returned Saturday and drowned Friday when began placing waterlogged carpets and sofas out to dry.

Meanwhile, in Washington, President Carter declared the six hardest hit counties of southeastern Texas a major disaster area, allowing federal relief funds for housing assistance and low-interest loans. Gov. Bili Clements said damage could total $750 million, and insurance industry officials estimated that privately insured flood and wind losses were $11.4 million. Clements asked Carter to add Matagorda and Hardin counties to the disaster declaration.

"I've lived in Dickinson almost 28 years,' said Bill Brady, Galveston County Civil Defense coordinator. "I went through Hurricane Carla. I've worked every hurricane that has hit here in the past 28 years. And I've never seen water like this. The floods, which were caused by rains of up to 30 inches from the remnants of Tropical Storm Claudette, subsided enough to allow the remainder of an estimated 5,000 refugees to leave Red Cross shelters.

Japan's feminists fume at new song

By JIM ABRAMS

TOKYO (AP) - Feminists are fuming but Japan's male chauvinists are humming along to a hit tune in which the singer commands his young bride to "keep quiet and follow behind me."

The folk-pop record, "Your Lord and Master Proclaims," has vaulted into he Top Ten on the hit parade just weeks after being released, singing the praises of womanly obedience and sweet subservience, traditional virtues rooted in Japan's feudal

"There's something I want to say before you become my bride," vocalist-songwriter Masashi Sada begins. "Hear out my true feelings. Don't sleep before I do. Don't get up after me. Cook nothing but good meals and always look pretty. Keep quiet and follow behind me."

As if that were no enough, Sada goes on to declare that "I probably won't cheat on you, but stupid

One sports newspaper billed it "the song all men have been waiting for." But women throughout the country are loudly complaining that it is a throwback to the distant days when a Japanese woman was expected to be a slave first to her father, then to her husband, and finally to her son.

Sada's representative, Nriyasu Anzai, admitted he and Sada have received hundreds of angry calls and letters from women. But he claimed that the majority of women who responded said, "Thank you for telling it like it should be."

And he said almost every man they heard from expressed approval of the 27-year-old bachelor singer's definition of proper wifely behavior.

Feminists have made some gains in freeing Japanese women from the constraints of a traditional society that consigned them to a silent, supportive role. But "womens lib" has not made as much progress here as it has in the United States and other primitive camping, nature trails and environmental study is expected to be approved by the City Council during an August meeting.

An additional 10 acres of the proposed lake bed also would be provided for use by the conservation service. Once the lake is built, the shoreline will provide a new source of nature study.

Until then, a windmill-powered pump will fill a small pond in the center of the proposed lake bed.

As soon as the lease agreement is completed, the land - bounded on the south by Wadley road between the Midland Women's Club and the new golf course area - will be fenced by the conservation district to keep the

Once the fencing is done, some of the trails already threading through the area from the days when Hogan Park was the city's well site might be used as nature paths, according to Parks and Recreation Department Director Wayne Kohout.

Future plans call for construction of a building to be used for exhibits on the ecology of the area, classrooms and other uses.

Guided and self-guided trails would be added as the area is developed in its natural state, with experimental plots being added when the facility is

"We see this as one more opportunity to offer a recreational and educational experience for the city," Kohout said.

"Principally, it would be another opportunity for understanding and appreciation of this area.

'The more you know about an area, the more you can appreciate how we fit into the scheme of things," he added, noting many new Midlanders, especially, need something to help them appreciate the desolate-seeming West Texas landscape. Full development, however, may be several years down the road, according to Dick Hagelstein, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service.

The service is ready to fence the area now, he said. But funds to construct the building must come from as yet untapped private sources, and many of the plans still are in the preliminary stages.

Plans call for the learning center to be operated much like the city's planetarium, with the soil conservation district building and administering the facility on city-owned park land with staffing provided by Midland's

That proposal, too, still is in the very early stages since the idea has not formally been presented to higher-echelon school officials. "We are just waiting for the pieces to come together," Hagelstein said."

"In the next couple to three years, we could realize the ultimate thing. "We're doing the whole thing for the kids - to teach them about the environment - (how they can) observe it and conserve it." While the 35 acres of natural setting plus the satellite projects on area farms and ranches are only beginning points, Hagelstein said, "it's

"We're losing three million acres of good land every year to cities and airports," the conservationist said. "We can't continue to do that without losing our productivity." 4

Flood 'best thing to hit town

EDITOR'S NOTE: It has been a year since the Medina and Guadalupe rivers churned over their banks and unleashed the deadliest flood to strike the Texas Hill Country this century. AP Correspondent Greg Thompson returned recently and found many of the scars covered by wildflowers and federal money. He also found wounds that may never BANDERA, Texas (AP) - Five minutes. Only five. Art Kitzman still wishes the Lord had given him just that much time to save the four people who died when the floods came to his Peaceful Valley Dude Ranch. It was about 4 a.m., Aug. 2, 1978, when the gentle, picturesque Medina River roared from the rugged limestone hills into Peaceful Valley. Through the blackness, rain, and churning muddy water, Kitzman and his wife rounded up about 30 guests, pushed them atop their house and then into the ancient shade trees.

Army helicopters rescued them a few hours later. But for some reason, Fred and Sandra Champion, their two children and their mothers didn't, or couldn't, leave their flimsy cabin. When the water rushed in, the 11-year-old boy and 16-year-old girl swam out and grabbed a tree. The frothing water swept their parents and grandmothers downstream and to their deaths.

The Medina and the Guadalupe rivers, swollen by up to 3 feet of rains from Tropical Storm Amelia, killed 26 people and destroyed millions of dollars of property that day near Bandera, Center Point and Comfort, But Bandera suffered the most.

Oldtimers who had lived through the Hill Country floods of 1900 and 1919 called it the worst they'd ever seen. A lengthy drought had already qualified the Hill Country for federal disaster relief. Within hours, a flood disaster was declared.

The Hill Country floods struck about 200 miles east of the Houston area, currently reeling from the flooding caused by the remnants of another tropical storm, this one called Claudette.

"I just wish the Lord had given us a few minutes - not even 30, just five - that's all I think we needed. We could have gotten down there and gotten them out," Kitzman said, a trace of pain and weariness in his voicé. "We just simply didn't have five minutes. The water hit us that "We're open again and the flood is behind us, but that still preys on my

Like the Peaceful Valley Dude Ranch, virtually all of this touristranching town of 1,100 is back in business. The dude ranches are again filled to a festive summer capacity; and, ironically, the influx of federal money, the massive rebuilding projects and a growing tourist industry have created a sort of post-disaster boom. "Except for the loss of life, the flood was the best thing to ever happen to this town," said a prominent local attorney, Sam Darden, whose $250,000 riverfront rock house was swept clean from its foundation and disappeared downstream. "Everybody is building back, twice as good as before. It's brought in a lot of money and the tourist business is growing. The economy of this town is in real good shape," Darden said.

Not everyone shares the lawyer's point of view. "It damn sure wasn't a good thing for me," snorted Clint Dowell, who lost more than $400,000 when the river washed away his Chevrolet dealership. But Dowell, too, has rebuilt his business, on the same spot, about 800 feet from the sleeping Medina. Authorities have installed a new warning system upriver and added an improved shortwave communications network. Summer wildflowers help mask the concrete slabs where riverfront homes once stood. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and private contractors have cleaned up much of the Medina and the Guadalupe. But many of the big; centuries-old cypress trees that once canopied the river are forever bowed, growing in a downstream direction in mute testimony to the ferocity of the flood. Stumps line the riverbanks. Several feet of gravel left by the river now cover what was once a profitable pecan orchard. Miles of the river haven't been cleaned at all. You can still find debris, refrigerators, golf clubs, dishes, pillows, up and down the Medina. "The riverfront won't be back to where it was in our lifetime," said

Kitzman with a sigh. The federal government's disaster relief and loan programs have been controversial, especially the decision to use out-of-town contractors and

The spot cleaning means minor floods will bring debris downstream from uncleared areas, said Bandera County Judge Rein Vander Zee. "As far as I'm concerned, we had two disasters," said county commissioner Bob Ashley. "The first was the flood. The second was the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration.' "But the real story of this is in the people," said Vander Zee. "We're rebuilding, going on down the road and putting this all behind us. Unfortunately, there are some people who will never get over it.

"We're not members of the elite. Everybody out here lives pretty close to the realities of life every day. We'll put it behind us. It's just the nature of the people out here."

Pollster feels Carter dealing with problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House pollster Patrick Caddell says President Carter is trying to deal with the roots of America's problems not divert attention from his own difficulties - in claiming a "crisis of confidence" in America

Caddell, whose findings formed the theme of Carter's heavily publicized speech to the nation July 15, said critics who disagree with Carter's assessment have a "simplistic, nar-

The pollster said Carter is not trying to divert attention from his own leadership problems or his difficulties in coping with the energy crunch or inflation.

"Obviously the president has not walked away from the problems," Caddell said in an interview. "He is trying to deal with the roots of the problem, not just the branches.

"Trying to approach the issues without that understanding is like cutting off the top of the weed without getting at the roots. It is a simplistic, narrow view.

Caddell, 29, a Jacksonville, Fla., native who recently improved his personal image by shedding 40 pounds and growing a gray-flecked beard, has emerged as the only non-Georgian in Carter's inner circle.

He is not on the White House payroll. Though he carries a White House pass and often crosses Pennsylvania Avenue from his nearby office to attend White House meetings, Caddell is a private businessman who owns two polling firms.

Caddell's public opinion surveys are said to have had a strong influence on the shape of the Carter speech that followed his 10-day "domestic summit" at Camp David. In the speech, the president told Americans they had lost confidence in a variety of their institutions, including the presidency and the press.

For Caddell, who outlined his findings for Carter last April in a memorandum of 60 to 70 pages, the theme was hardly a new one. He has been discovering and redis-covering a crisis of confidence in America since his student days at Harvard University in the early 1970s

As a polltaker for Sen. George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, Caddell had urged the use of an argument almost identical to that used by Carter - saying then that his surveys had found "a great deal of alienation among the American people that existed on a number of levels.'

And at a 1975 Democratic issues conference in Louisville, Ky., Caddell described what he called a "crisis of confidence in the political process and the future of the nation.

Two weeks ago, Carter declared: "a crisis of confidence...is threatening to destroy the social and political fabric of America.'

Carter's speech also contained a remark that until the murders of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., "we were sure ours was a nation ruled by the ballot, not the bullet."

That line, too, was lifted almost intact from the 1975 speech in which Caddell said, "Americans always believed that this country was ruled by the ballot, not the bullet.'

Caddell insists these similarities of theme and phrase were "more coincidence than design.

The themes, he said, have "some consistency and are not all that earthshakingly unique, but have relevance

Caddell said also that he does not dispute pollster Louis Harris, findings last week that 71 percent of the American people do not believe Carter has the basic competence to be president. "I can't argue with it," he said.

But at the same time, Caddell blamed the media for paying too much attention to polls. He said many polls "are shoddy attempts to take body measurements and don't deal with subtleties or substance."

"There is an obsession in the media that every day we must have the measure of the president's situation," Caddell said. "The reason I don't take weekly polls for the White House, besides the expense, is that they don't serve much purpose.

But Caddell also said it is the "height of folly" for people not to believe pollsters who, like himself, align themselves politically. 'These people are professionals," he said. "They wouldn't be in business if their reputations didn't survive. They won't prostitute themselves for a client. Their view should be given more weight rather than dismissed because they work for Caddell said he was outraged at the national media for not taking Carter's crisis message seriously. He suggested that reporters who don't think people believe Carter should "spend a week on the road and talk to Amerispot clean the river.

"Elites are talking to elites," he said. "The political elites, media elites, talk to one another. We don't talk to the people.

Carter is not Caddell's only customer. One of his polling firms, Cambridge Survey Research Inc., works only for Democrats. Its clients include Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., McGovern of South Dakota and the Democratic National Comports, sells surveys to commercial firms about American attitudes on economic, political and social questions. Caddell says he has about 30 clients, including Exxon, Westinghouse, Citicorp and Sears, Roebuck and Co., which pay about $20,000 a year for the quarterly report. Asked if he thinks his dual role as

Judge blocks Exxon's attempt to purchase manufacturing firm

judge Saturday temporarily blocked Exxon Corp.'s proposed $1.17 billion acquisition of a leading manufacturer of devices that make electric motors more energy-efficient.

U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene, acting on a request by the Federal Trade Commission, granted a temporary restraining order which halts Exxon's purchase of Reliance Electric Co. of Cleveland for at least 10 days. The FTC argued the merger would be anti-competitive. Lawyers for Exxon, the world's largest oil company, could not be reached for comment. At hearings last week, attorney Henry Sailer, representing Exxon, told Greene a delay could kill the acquisition altogether. Exxon already has received commitments from Reliance shareholders for the purchase of 95 percent of the company's common stock and 72 percent of its preferred stock. Greene's order was issued just 11 hours before the midnight Saturday expiration of an FTC waiting period, when Exxon would have been free to begin buying Reliance stock. Michael A. Schlanger, assistant director of the FTC's bureau of competitition, told reporters after Greene's decision, "I feel reasonably confident that we will prevail" in ultimately stopping the Exxon pur-ing producers of electrical products and is listed by Fortune magazine as the country's 262th largest corporation. Exxon is the second largest U.S. corporation.

Of particular interest to Exxon has been Reliance's production and marketing of so-called electronic variable drives. A form of the same technology, called alternating current synthesis, could result in energy savings in electric motors equivalent to one million barrels of oil a day by 1990, Exxon energy experts claimed.

Exxon has been developing the same technology, but says the purchase of Reliance would give it the marketing experience necessary to develop the field. Court documents showed that Reliance now has nearly one-fifth of all sales in the electronic variable drives market.

FTC lawyers have argued that Exxon's takeover of the company would be anti-competitive and could "slow down innovation, invention and cost-cutting" in the field of electronic variable drives.

Furthermore, government lawyers argued, Exxon could enter the field from the "grass roots" and thereby lessen the current concentration in development of such devices. But, it said, Exxon's purchase of the largest company in the field would "foreclose any meaningful opportunity for deconcentration of the market.'

Several fires controlled

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of firefighters struggled through thick smoke and steep terrain Saturday to contain two fires that have blackened nearly 8,000 acres in the mountains of central Idaho.

Some 550 firefighters launched an all-out effort to contain the 1,800-acre Mortar Creek fire where smoke was so thick "the fire boss can't see the fire," a Forest Service spokesman

About 170 men fought a holding action on the 6,000-acre Ship Island blaze 60 miles upstream on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, spokesman Ralph Rawlinson said.

Neither blaze was expected to be contained Saturday, Rawlinson said. Crews in central Oregon began mop-up operations after controlling a fire that charred 4,300 acres of the Cascades and wiped out $6.5 million in federally owned timber, officials said. Two smaller fires in the area were also under control.

Rawlinson said the decision was made to concentrate on the smaller Idaho fire because the terrain in the larger fire was too steep and the blaze was also expected to improve forage for deer and elk.

He said the men were committed to several areas on the 6,000-acre blaze where conditions were not so dangerous or expensive to fight. One firefighter died and another was injured when that blaze jumped a fire line earlier in the week.

In Oregon, officials said the 4,300acre Bridge Creek fire was controlled about 9 p.m. Friday after burning for three days. The cost of fighting the fire neared $1 million.

Forest Service investigators believed the blaze was human-caused, possibly by an unattended campfire that flared up. Arson was first suspected, then ruled out.

Two other fires in the same area destroyed two partially built homes and forced temporary closure of two highways, officials said. A 21-year-old man was arrested and charged with setting those fires. Crews in north-central Washington continued cleaning up after a 7,000acre fire that was set off by hot coals falling from a fish smoker and raged for five days, authorities said. The blaze was controlled on Friday.

Gulf Oil Exploration & Production Co. in Midland has initiated a "vanpooling" program for its employ-

The first of five vans was delivered this week and will begin carrying Gulf's employees to and from According to Gayle Reeves, director of personnel administration and vanpooling coordinator for

Although the vanpooling program is relatively new to Midland, "We're getting more and more response to it with the cost of gas going up," a Gulf spokesman says.

Gulf's Southwest District, all five vans should be in service within the next couple of weeks. A "vanpool" is just a large carpool, Reeves

It isn't a particularly new concept for companies in the United States and Texas.

But Reeves noted that such a program is relatively new to Midland. At least one other oil company has a similar program already in operation here.

Gulf has ordered three 15-passenger vans and two 12-passenger vans. One van will be used solely within the city of Midland. One will be used to travel from Midland to Odessa. One will be used from Odessa to Goldsmith. One will travel from Odessa to Penwell and one will carry Gulf employees from Crane to the company's Sandhills Field Office.

Reeves said the company launched the vanpooling program here in the interest of "conservation of energy, saving of fuel and pollution."

Gulf has been operating vanpools in Houston, New Orleans and other areas of the nation for some time, he said, and have found them well accepted and Individual travel expense to and from work is reduced because several employees can use a van, he noted. Gulf leases the vans and provides the insurance; the employees pay a fee to ride the van based on round-trip mileage.

A Gulf employee handles the driving chore and sees that the vehicle is properly maintenanced and

"We're getting more and more response to it with the cost of gas going up," Reeves noted.

Currently, for the five van routes of Gulf here, two have waiting lists and the other three vans are full, but have no waiting lists.

Reeves believes Gulf's employees will be satisfied with the program. And the savings in energy will benefit employees financially and the nation energy-

Salute to 'Top Lion'

Congratulations most certainly are in order for Everett J. "Ebb" Grindstaff of Ballinger, who last month was elected third vice president of Lions International.

This places him in line for the presidency of the international service organization - the world's largest — in 1982. He will be the first West Texan to serve in that high office, although two or possibly three other Texans have been there.

Thus, from here on through Grindstaff's term as president of the International Association of Lions Clubs, West Texas will have an ambassador of good will traveling the world over, relating the wonders of Wonderful West Texas at every opportunity.

And it couldn't happen to a nicer and more popular person. He is well and favorably known - in fact he is downright admired and highly respected - not only in West Texas and the Lone Star State but elsewhere across the land. Ebb Grindstaff is a former director of Lions International and the excellent job he did in that post place him in a favorable position to gain the vice presidency. People who know Ebb Grindstaff and his good works don't forget

And the fact that Ebb's father, Lion E.C. Grindstaff, also of Ballinger, stepped to the microphone at the Lions International convention at Montreal, Canada, to nominate his son for the vice presidency created quite a favorable stir for the candidate from the ranch and oil country of West Texas. It also was a plus that both senior and junior Grindstaffs are past district governors of Lionism, one of the organization's first father-son teams in that capacity. Both also are practicing attorneys at Ballinger.

Ebb Grindstaff has visited and spoken in Midland on numerous occasions, and Midland Lions, as well as other Texas Lions worked diligently in behalf of his candidacy for the high office.

Ebb also has held all or most of the offices in his hometown club and also is a past president of the Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children at Kerrville.

He is a law graduate of Baylor University and has seen military

In addition to practicing law and serving Lionism, Grindstaff also finds time to serve as city attorney of Ballinger, as chairman of the Upper Colorado River Authority and as chairman of the Water Development Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. He is one of the region's most knowledgeable persons on the subject of water.

He also serves on the Ballinger Library Board and that city's Industrial Foundation. He is a member of the First Baptist Church and formerly taught a Sunday school class there.

But serving through the chairs and as president of the 1.2 million member international service organization, with 32,000 clubs in 150 countries around the globe, undoubtedly will curtail some of Grindstaff's hometown and regional activities. But the residents of Ballinger and of West Texas are most willing to share him with the world during the next several

And let's not overlook his charming wife, Jay, whom he married in 1954, and who has been one of his most effective supporters and campaigners through the years. She has accompanied Ebb on most of his Lions trips in the past and is looking forward to their more frequent and farreaching travels at home and abroad during the next several years. In fact, West Texans probably won't see much of the Grindstaffs for the next several years.

The Grindstaffs have two children, both of whom were on hand in Montreal to see their father and grandfather steal the show, so to speak. Michelle is a junior at Texas Tech and Jeff this spring graduated from Texas A&M University with a degree in agriculture economics.

The Ebb Grindstaffs rank as top West Texans, and all the Lions and other residents of this great region wish them all the happiness and good fortune possible as they expand their activities worldwide in serving humanity through the International Association of Lions Clubs.

CHARLEY REESE Carter unable to treat nation's diagnosed ills

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - The terrible thing about sophisticated mass marketing techniques applied to politics is that they can correctly read the public mind and then provide simulated relief.

It is as if a team of doctors were to diagnose an illness as cancer, announce the diagnosis, and proceed to treat the patient with sugar tablets. The diagnosis would be correct and the patient would recognize that. The need for treatment would be obvious and the patient would applaud the decision to proceed. The deadly sleeper would be that the treatment itself would be a fraud.

This is precisely the kind of moral crime that the Carter administration is committing. President Carter's Camp David bit, the speech and his subsequent actions are a textbook example of government by public re-

Carter's pollsters and strategists correctly diagnosed one of our critical problems: energy dependence on unreliable foreign sources. Of course the problem had been diagnosed years ago by the oil industry which warned in the 1960s of the problems that occured in the 1970s. President Nixon also recognized it. Remember Project Independence?

The only difference between Carter's belated recognition of the problem and the earlier ones is that his coincided with a general recognition of the problem by the public. Thus, Carter won applause for recognizing that something must be done to free the United States from its dependence on the oil cartel.

Carter's pollsters and advisers also recognized that something must be done to shore up Carter's political image. The polls showed that more people thought better of Nixon after Watergate than think well of Carter. The polls also showed that Carter's biggest failure is lack of leadership.

The obvious solution, from the political public relations point of view, is to provide simulated leadership. Why, you may ask, simulated leadership and not the real thing? The answer is that sophisticated marketing techniques deal only with appearances; they cannot change the substance. Carter's lack of leadership is genuine. He lacks the qualities of a leader: a broad knowledge of events, a coherent philosophy, the ability to make tough decisions, and the communicative skills to motivate others.

It is axiomatic in political public relations circles that you cannot change the candidate; you must work with what you've got, and that is exactly what Gerald Rafshoon, Ham Jordan, and Jody Powell are doing.

Carter's 1980 campaign kickoff speech, and that is all it was, was about as good a public relations effort as you could manufacture. Carter's delivery reflected the rehearsals under Rafshoon's critical eye. He began by stating the problem. This is a much-used device because it creates the illusion of credibility. As people listen, they say, "Yes, that's right. I know that's a problem.'

It also included the necessary penitence. With the polls so low, there was no way Carter could avoid admitting that he had made mistakes. So after sifting as much blame as he could to previous administrations and the American people, he confessed to a fictitious mistake. It had to be fictitious because Carter is incapable of admitting to himself that he has made a real mistake. So he said he had been too busy managing government to lead the people. This was diabolical. It is precisely because he has not managed government that the people have no faith in his leadership. Thus he simulated regret and denied his real failure at the same time.

His solution is also simulated. The windfall profits tax is really an excise tax on domestic oil and will discourage domestic production. There is no guarantee at all it will yield the revenue he predicts. Furthermore, it will be paid by the American consumer. Thus it's premeditated demagoguery to pretend as he is doing that his program will be financed by big oil company profits.

He has turned his back completely on free enterprise and opted instead for the socialist approach. He has continued to make the oil industry the scapegoat.

In my book, the Carter administration has committed the unforgiveable sin. At a time of real crisis, they proved they are more concerned with Carter's re-election than with the welfare of the American people. We have no president, only the illusion of a Congress was so moved by Carter's new personality, they plan to delay their vacation from Aug. 1 to Aug. 2.

Can't you see government spending $140 billion to develop synthetic fuels? The only thing they'll learn is how to convert oil into coal.

Did you see Carter clenching his fist in the air during the Kansas City speech? It was a technique he picked up during a three-day cram course with Jesse Jackson.

Next week Jackson will teach him how to unclench his fist.

Media target of Supreme Court.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - In its continuing war with the press, the Supreme Court so far has shied away from infringing on the First Amendment's guaranteed freedom to publish. Instead, its recent decisions have chipped away drastically at the media's freedom to gather the news - a necessary first step that the court majority evidently feels does not warrant First Amendment protec-

Indiscriminate search and seizure of press offices by police, forced disclosure of reporters' sources, secrecy of trials - these are some of the Big Brother tactics the Supreme Court has put its blessing on recently. All have had a chilling effect on the pursuit of facts by the press, and thus on the public's access to news of misbehavior by government officials - including those in the judiciary.

The Warren Burger court also gave victims of press attacks the right to inquire into the state of mind of the reporters and editors responsible for a damaging report. Fair enough.

But what's sauce for the press is sauce for the court, so we decided to examine the state of mind of this most virulently anti-media Supreme Court.

Not only has the Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren Burger become the most secretive agency of the federal government - without even the national-security excuse of the FBI or the CIA - its response to breaches of secrecy is often as overwrought as that of the president who appointed four of its members: Richard Nixon

When ABC reporter Tim O'Brien scooped his colleagues on two pending court decisions, for example, an infuriated Burger summarily transferred an employee suspected of the leak, stationed a uniformed court cop outside the press room each afternoon and declared the court library off limits to unescorted reporters. After initially planning to close the press room at 4:30 p.m., Burger reluctantly agreed to allow reporters to work there until 10 p.m. - still a far cry from its previous 24-hour operation.

These most recent shenanigans are merely extensions of the long harassment of the press practiced by Burger through his information officer, Barrett McGurn. Ironically, this willing tool of Burger's suppression of the media "used to be in the newspaper game myself once," as the old phrase goes. McGurn became a government flack in 1966 after a long and distinguished career as a reporter and foreign correspondent.

His turnabout was swift and decisive. He presided over the "Five O'Clock Follies" - the derisive name given to the U.S. Embassy's daily briefings in Saigon on the "progress" of the Vietnam War. "He was a comical character, extremely hostile to the press," recalled one correspondent who was there. Getting any solid information out of McGurn was like pulling teeth from a rhinocerous.

He has carried his stonewall technique over to the Supreme Court. When we asked for the names of the chief justice's law clerks, for example, McGurn refused to provide them even though they are public employees.

McGurn is also a master of the unresponsive answer to questions he considers inappropriate. And his petty harassment of the media goes to such lengths as forbidding television reporters to film their spots from the court steps without prior permission. Once a New Jersy high school reporter requested permission to sit in the court's press section during a hearing on student rights. McGurn turned down the student, who was obliged to sit in the visitor's gallery, where note-taking is prohibited. Yet the press section was virtually Perhaps the best indication of McGurn's mind-set is expressed in his own words, in an unusual statement of principle added to his lengthy biography in the current "Who's Who" "The newsman and the person who speaks for the government share the same objective of explaining government policy," McGurn wrote. "The spokesman has an added responsibility - to help government policy suc-

If this remarkable admission represents simply the view of one government press agent, it's disturbing enough. But if it reflects the views of McGurn's master, Chief Justice Burger, it marks a singular departure for the Supreme Court - from interpreting the Constitution to supporting the federal government's increasing encroachment on the lives and liberties of all Americans.

WATCH ON WASTE: While American motorists, all but grounded by the scarcity and high price of gasoline, are car-pooling and scrimping on vacation trips, the Air National Guard is burning up high-octane gas at a profligate rate up in the wild blue yonder. Each hour one of the reservists jumbo C-130 cargo jets is in the air means 775 gallons of fuel going up in smoke. The total annual fuel consumption is more than 57 million gallons. The trouble, according to our sources, is that much of the so-called training for the weekend warriors consists of aerial games that accomplish little but waste a lot of gas. -It costs the American taxpayers millions of dollars to keep troops in South Korea. The Koreans are supposed to help defray the expense of our presence there, since it has obvious benefits for the Koreans. But our allies have proven tight-fisted in the extreme. In June 1977, for example, the Pentagon billed the South Korean Air Force for $44,000 as its share of a joint expense. At first, the Koreans pleaded poverty; then they claimed that $20,000 of the bill was not valid. Uncle Sam is still trying to collect.

Israel's air raids on Lebanon akin to terrorism

WASHINGTON - Israel's terrifying bombing raids on camps and villages in Lebanon, with hundreds of civilian casualties, disturbs the Carter Administration and raise the old question whether Israel is violating U.S. law by misuse of weapons purchased from us.

Are the Israelis sending virtually untouchable F-15s and other hot U.S. planes only to wipe out Palestinian guerrilla bases, or are they making political statements to everybody in the region? Has Israel broken its pledge not to use cluster bombs - as charged here last week? Indeed, do these air raids, condemned by the United States and other free nations, do Israel any good in the long run?

There's no question that Israel must retaliate against guerrilla aggression on her soil or on Israelis anywhere. Terrorists have murdered Israeli athletes, teachers and students, tourists and other innocent people in buses, airports and other public places.

The Israeli military is at its best when it responds to such atrocities by sending commando teams into terrorist camps in what are aptly called surgical kill-and-destroy missions. There are daring and heroism involved, and even pacifists secretly cheer. But such raids involve Israeli casualties, and in recent years the government, aware of growing Israeli Isentiment against casualties, increasingly follows the safer course of sending squadrons of sophisticated U.S.built fighter-bombers to do the job.

Within 10 minutes, these planes can lay waste to large areas, as they did recently when, toward dusk, they

Under Prime Minister Menachem Begin, the Israelis have taken many Arab lives for each Israeli killed. According to one observer, "It's a hundred eyes for one eye, and a hundred teeth for each

During the air raids and invasion of South Lebanon by Israel in March, 1978, hundreds of Lebanese civilians were killed, thousands were wounded and some 200,000 more were driven north to Beirut's suburban areas. The chaos caused by the earlier, senseless, bloody war between leftist and rightist Arab forces, with Syrian troops alternating attacks on both sides, was only compounded by the Israeli action - ended by U.S. and U.N. diplomatic intervention. One consequence of the Israeli invasion - ostensibly conducted to destroy terrorist bases - was a suit by the National Assn. of Arab Americans (NAAA) against the U.S. government, charging that Israel's use of U.S.-supplied weapons violated the Arms Export Control Act.

That law limits the use of U.S. provided weapons to internal security and self-defense arrangements. Since 6,000 Israeli troops and many planes had penetrated into Lebanon, the question of self-defense was raised. The NAAA withdrew its suit when Israel withdrew its forces, though there was no connection beween the two actions.

Under the law, the President is required to report any violations of the purchase agreement to Congress, thus making the nation acquiring the arms liable to being declared ineligible for further purchases.

Another consequence of the invasion was a strong protest by Rep. Pete McCloskey (R-Calif.) of reports Israel had used cluster bombs, a cruel and vicious weapon, on Lebanese civilians, contrary to conditions of purchase. McCloskey, who had supported every bill granting military and economic assistance to Israel, urged colleagues to cut off all military aid to Israel if she used CBUs again.

The State Department verified that Israel had misused the cluster bombs. Israel repented and promised not to use them in such fashion any more.

But now, John P. Richardson. NAAA's public affairs director, charges that, "Israel is again using CBUs in Lebanon. We are collecting the evidence." Richardson says the NAAA may again go to court to stop arms shipments to Israel.

It's clear that Israel's bombing raids have not stopped terrorism, indeed, might even increase it. There is reason to believe that these awesome displays of air power are designed to frighten the civilian population out of South Lebanon and away from any notions of sheltering or supporting PLO terrorists. Thus the raids themselves are a form of terrorism. The raids also serve to let Syria know that

There are voices in Israel which not only object to this air terror but also, as Meir Merhav described it recently in the Jersusalem Post, the "wanton pogromism" of raids on Arab bomes on the West Bank by hawkish settlement forces. Some of this aggression smacks of the belligerent "lebensraum" actions of the Germans

In the July 23, 1979, edition of The Midland Reporter-Telegram, County Commissioner Jack Leonard attempted to make it look like I surreptitiously made claim to his elected commissioners seat. Quite the contrary is true.

The purpose of the letter in question was to expose Mr. Leonard's performance as a county commissioner, a charge to which he had no comment.

I signed the letter in question, Brad Patteson, and with reference to my residency which is the recognized format for signing such letters, commissioner precinct 3, in which I reside.

I do not take any pride in the manner in which the Commissioners' Court has been conducting themselves in recent months, and I certainly would not claim any responsibility for their conduct.

Change of heart

To The Editor:

Several months ago there disappeared from a storage room on the back end of our carport a good pair of used men's shoes and a practically new rainbird lawn sprinkler. Last Monday night the sprinkler was returned to our front lawn and I wish to thank the one that returned it.

I thought your readers would like to know of this wonderful change of heart in someone.

Carter's stand

On the evening of July 25, 1979, the President of the United States held a prime time news conference.

During this conference he was asked about an exemption from "windfall profits tax" for the domestic producer His reply which is herein quoted from the conference tran-

"If these exemptions are made, it will be a grant of $54 billion to the oil companies on top of the greatly increased income to the oil companies by the phased decontrol. It is my opinion that the president has lost his sense of direction with regard to the solution to our energy problems, if he ever had any inkling as to what has been the cause.

First and foremost, the increase in domestic exploration and development of our own resources and the increase of our present production is absolutely essential.

It can now be concluded with no uncertainty that the president's proposal of April 15 that the so-called 'windfall profits tax" is only a revenue-raising program to help pay for his programs and indirectly have the American consumer pay the tax and derive absolutely no benefit.

In essence, Mr. Carter is saying that he does not want any increase in domestic production, but only wants the tax money to balance his increased spending habits and to continue to have the country rely on foreign sources of energy.

It may be fortunate for Mr. Carter that he considers the energy problem the "moral equivalent of war" because if it were actually a war condition he could be tried and convicted of treason on charges of "aiding and abetting the enemy."

About 20 years ago I had to drive to Odessa because in the entire city of Midland, admittedly not so large then, there were no diaper pins! By now the stores have likely restocked, but the pattern hasn't changed. Today, my favorite stationery store was "out of" plain, white, gift enclosure cards. Not a hard-to-sell item exactly. I was told, "We just can't keep those in stock. We'll have more in two or three weeks." My favorite kitchen store is now "out of" the new cookware I had begun collecting. I was told they "aren't going to carry it any more because there isn't much demand for it." Well, I for one want it. I just buy it slowly because it's rather

During the past six months I have had to drive to Odessa to buy shoes, plain blue sheets, and a replacement for a lawn tool bought in Midland and made by a major manufacturer. It isn't the fault of the salespeople in the stores. I think they are the nicest and most accomodating that can be found anywhere. I would truly love to "Shop Midland." How?

Let's stand firm

To The Editor:

Caesar wanted to control all religions. A plan was devised to make all reliwanted to remain so, they had to do got a way to make government recoggoing to be licit." One group refused, saying "If we allow Caesar to permit allows us to exist, not Caesar.'

For this, their children were staked out and fed to the lions. Still, they would not take a license. Their women were ravaged and killed, still they stood firm. Finally the men were tormented, tortured to the point that it took some several days to die, but they stood firm...even unto death. Why are we any better? Government has been pushing licensure for such a long time now in the United States that it is a household word. But be not deceived...it is still, as it was at its beginning in the days of Caesar, a method to grab more control.

Here are just a few examples of the how Texas Department of Human Resources (the ENFORCER for the government in the State of Texas) is using the license against us already in press and academic journals for several years. It is most obvious in the prevalence of functional illiteracy, the decline of standardized test scores, the increase of ill-prepared students in colleges and the growing scarcity of qualified and dedicated teachers (too many having been driven out by incorrigible students). This is a matter of great concern to both professionals and parents, one requiring changes in our school systems before they become self-perpetuating parodies of their stated goals. .

Until recognition that an educated, self-fulfilled, productive and happy populace is peferable to a submissive one, calls for change will be ignored by the school systems and the state authorities. Until an outraged citizenry rebels at the polls, it is unlikely that any educational revolution will come about in our schools. #### Pick-up put-down

I have a complaint about the pickup trucks of Midland. Until this last rain I paid little attention to them. Today, Thursday, I was driving through the flooded street of Garfield to Midland College. I almost made it across the drainage ditch, when a pick-up truck went speeding by. The wave from the truck flooded my car. I sat there for over 30 minutes unable to start my car because of pick-up trucks speeding by and washing water into my already wet engine. I would still be sitting there if two very nice young men, walking down the street, had not pushed me and my car into a parking lot. My complaint is that the pick-up drivers of Midland have no consideration of other drivers. Several trucks passed me while I sat there and yet did not help. It seemed they were too busy washing me down the drainage ditch to care. I feel that pick-up truck drivers should be given tickets for running over other drivers and blocking traffic by flooding other cars.

Obvious fallacy

To The Editor:

The federal government has apparently delegated unto itself the power to control well head prices of crude oil by virtue of its authority under the Constitution to regulate interstate commerce. That this reasoning is fallacious, illogical and unwarranted is obvious to anyone involved in production whether he be an operator, investor or royalty owner.

The operations involved in producing crude oil or natural gas and selling it as a point of delivery on the lease to a party owning no share of the production is no more an act of interstate commerce than growing and harvesting cotton or corn on a farm. In my judgment this arrogant assumption of power by those who have sworn to uphold the Constitution of the United States is a violation of their oath of office and should constitute an impeachable offense.

Even if oil producing operations were an act of interstate commerce. the government would have no legal right to control the price below market value. Historically, the Interstate Commerce Commission regulations have served to restrict competition and increase prices from that which would prevail in a free market. Over a long period of time this will be the result of both FPC and DOE regulations. Certain politicians, special interest groups, and bureaucrats having once consolidated their power will eventually react to their snafus, shortages which they created, and regulatory costs by raising prices. The illegality of their initial power grab will then be forgiven by the producers who survive and the government can proclaim the success of its program.

It is suggested that those who value liberty and the pursuit of happiness along with a reasonable cost of living would be better served if the government would abide by the Constitution. If the Constitution will not serve our needs, let us amend it but not ignore

More rivalry?

To The Editor:

Please, news media, inform me if I have misunderstood what I have read

Is Odessa responsible for the trouble about the acceptance of Mrs. Helon Allison's generous gift of a cancer center to the people of the Permian Basin? He have many friends in Odessa that I am sure are not responsible, but who is it?

I am convinced that Odessa is responsbile for the lack of cooperation in our area to make the upper level college truly the Greater Permian Basin; however, that is water under the bridge. Let them cope with that

Why can't we get along with our neighbors? Rivalry is fun and productive for high school students but adults should know working together is more beneficial for everyone. I wonder what our good sister city would say if "x" number of Midlanders should decide to boycott Odessa merchants for a few days -even a week, a month?

Our family contributes only a very small drop in the bucket of the economy of Odessa, but if we were multiplied by a few thousand others it just might make "the powers that be" look up and say let us work together.

Let them know

There are 27 homes in the area the school board plans to take near the Midland High campus. The superintendent and board members (except Mrs. Sherrod) do not care that these are people's homes. They do not care that for the well below market price they will pay there is no way these people can get anything near the value of what they now have. How much has already been spent on "acquiring land near Midland High as it became available?" Two million? Three million? More? Why wasn't some of this money spent on needed repairs?" Will one square foot of land improve the education of one child? If the board is really there to improve education, why don't they stop social promotion (the promotion of a student by age, not ability)? If they are allowed to take this property, what will stop them from deciding they want any property in town. Yours or mine could be next. This is not democracy and our freedom is lost when we simply sit back and do nothing. Would any of these people allow their property to be taken? They were elected to serve the best interest of the students and taxpayers, if they refuse to do so we can let them know we don't have to go along with them. If you do not approve of their actions write a letter to the School Administration Office at 702 N. N St., and tell them, then when the bond election comes up make sure

What now?

To The Editor:

Now that MCAA has died at the hands of petty politics, is the city going to respond to the daily needs of the poor who depended upon that agency for so many services?

Public funds and community development funds are used to improve the quality of life for the many who are rich in this community, e.g., expansion of golf course at Hogan Park. pavement of roads and streets in affluent neighborhoods, etc. Why can't the means be found to help the few who are poor to improve the quality of life for them as well.

Midland is a community of all its people, rich and poor alike. And in community, human beings belong to one another - they bear the wounds and sufferings of one another. This is the Christian ethic by which man was intended to live - one based upon justice and love, the ethic exemplified and given us by the Man from Galilee nearly 2,000 years ago. It is the only way to truly live. Let us begin.

Is SALT II wise?

To The Editor:

The Soviet Union has a list of broken treaties. A few years ago the all-American Conference to combat communism found that the Soviets had broken more than 40 treaties made with other countries.

It is a well-known fact that the Soviet Union has cheated at least five times on the SALT I agreement. Now if they did it on SALT I, what's to keep them from doing the same on SALT II? They've lied and cheated on every treaty they made with the U.S. and other countries unless it worked out to their advantage so that they didn't have to lie and cheat. The Senate Internal security subcommittee found "that in 38 years after the Soviet Union came into existence, its government had broken its word to virtually every country to which it ever gave a signed promise. So is it wise to enter an agreement with the Soviets on a disarmament plan such as SALT II?

Soviet ICBMs carry six times more explosive power than the U.S. ICBMs. Yet SALT II would not permit the U.S. to build "heavy" missiles as the Soviets have done.

Johnson started noticing the flying, running, crawling, burrowing and

The statement his list of wildlife makes is strong: This country is far from barren and does have resplendent wildlife.

Birds he recalls sighting on the ranch include hawks, ducks, finches, ravens, crows, wild turkeys, Sandhill cranes, blue and gray herons, quail, owls, doves, woodpeckers, meadowlarks, scissortails, red-headed blackbirds, grackles, sparrows, mud hens, kingfishes, bull-bats, carrion buzzards, turkey buzzards, geese (including the brant), various migratory birds and the roadrunner.

A Congressional investigations subcommittee will conduct oversight hearings next week into the controversy surrounding the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, a nuclear waste dump proposed for southeastern New Mexico.

According to Michael Olguin, a staff member for Rep. Runnels, that point has led to an impasse on funding for the project in Congress.

Most recently; the House of Representatives voted to end appropriations for the project in the 1980 budget, Olguin said. The Senate agreed to appropriate $25 million to keep the project alive, but only if it remains a repository for militarily-manufactured wastes, the staff member added. The Senate appropriations represents a cut of $30 million in the original DOE request. If the project is confined to military uses, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will forego licens-

The subcommittee has invited a number of officials to testify, including Milton Holloway, executive director for the Texas Energy Advisory Council. In the meantime, the Texas Department of Water Resources has printed a series of maps outlining the

A delegation dispatched by PLO chief Yasser Arafat aided Turk-ish officials in the negotiations. Arafat denied responsibility for the terrorist action.

In ending the two-day embassy siege, the Turkish government declared it made no concessions to the guerrillas, who had demanded Turkish severance of ties with Egypt and Israel, recognition of Palestinian rights and desires for a state, and safe passage out of

The four guerrillas killed two Turkish guards in the initial attack on the embassy. They are also held responsible for the death of an Egyptian chauffeur, Hasan Kamal, who attempted to escape from a third-floor embassy window during the two-day siege and plunged to his death.

Midland County Grassroots

Story and Photos By BRUCE PARTAIN News Staff

Homesteads.

The promise and prospect of "40 acres and a mule" encouraged many a would-be settler to help push America's frontier further west

ca's frontier further west.

Midland County's history is much the same.

First crossed by white men in 1849, the flat prairie-land appeared to be "designed by the Great Architect of the Universe for a railroad," according to Capt. Randolph Marcy, leader of an army scouting expedition.

The Civil War and staunch Indian resistance would slow the progress, but that railroad would, indeed, be built. By the early 1880s, The State of Texas and the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company were practically giving away virgin land in the Midland area, offering four-section parcels for less than a dollar an acre.

WHITE SETTLERS were needed to secure West Texas, the grassy rangeland only recently taken from the Comanches:

Skinny cattle replaced bison on the rich plains, as ranchers shared the "free range," drifting their herds miles to the next waterhole or grazing spot without ever crossing a fence.

By 1881, limits were taken off the acreage a person could own, and in 1883, the first rancher strung barbedwire fencing around his 200,000-acre ranch.

But for years, much of the land remained open country for the adventurous entrepreneur.

"GRANDDADDY CAME OUT here in 1894," said Midland lawyer Jay H. "Timber" Floyd.

"The state had been leasing out a very large ranch here and decided to divide it up and sell it for 50 cents an acre. You had to live on it two or three years and make improvements, which basically meant to build a house.

"He ranched four sections, then his brother moved out here and got three sections," said Floyd. "When someone would move, he'd buy, then lease out what he couldn't handle."

Even in a group of plenegring Tayans, W.B. Floyd

Even in a group of pioneering Texans, W.B. Floyd walked shoulders above the crowd.

"He stood 6-foot 5-inches and was cue-ball bald; they said his hair couldn't grow above the timberline," laughed the 35-year-old Floyd, who inherited both the family nickname and the physical attributes.

THE FLOYDS HAD personal reasons for coming west to Midland County.

"The family had been living out near Lampasas," said Floyd. "They had just lost a range war and it seemed like a good idea to go to new country."

The Floyds settled in Spraberry, 20 miles southeast of The Floyds settled in Spraberry, 20 miles southeast of Midland, although the Tall City wasn't their coordinating point.

"It was closer by road to Big Spring back then," said

Floyd. "In fact, I was born in Big Spring because it was a quicker trip."

word Got OUT about the fine grasses — 18 percent protein compared to East Texas' 3 and 4 percent — and more cattle were brought in.

The herds grew to enormous numbers, devouring what

As the land sprouted fences, ranchers grazed a given piece of land much harder. Drifting to better forage was limited now by how much land a man owned, and the verdant grassland suffered.

"Back in those early days, all they'd see was mile after mile of lush grass. They didn't know what the potential for grazing was, when they'd be over-grazing," said Dick Hagelstein, district conservationist for the federal government's Midland Soil Conservation Service.

"There was, of course, over-grazing, and after a time, the better grasses went away and the sorrier plants came in," he said.

THE PROTEIN-RICH grasses that could turn flatland into waving prairie after a rain — Sideoats grama, Plains bristlegrass, Arizona Cottontop and the Bluestems — dwindled, and a scrubbier plant flourished.

Mesquite.

"The theory I've heard is the East and South Texas cattle brought the seeds with them," said Hagelstein. "Cattle can't digest the mesquite bean; it passes right through them. Look at the pastures after a rain...you'll see at least four seedlings springing up from every cow nie."

In the past, Indians prevented brush development by starting range fires. The grass grew back, but the yucca and mesquite wouldn't.

According to Timber Floyd, native antelope also help control the scraggly brush.

"They eat the whole mesquite plant, roots and all, and they seem to digest the bean, too," said Floyd. "But the antelope are about all killed off."

DROUGHT, THEN AS now, was the plague of the ranchers, decimating further the available forage.

"The last big cattle drive I know of was in 1914, when a drought caused all the ranchers to let the herds drift north on to what was still open range."

With unfenced land a thing of the past, extended drought now presents ranchers with different options.

"You've got no choice but to sell your cattle," said Floyd. "If it doesn't rain, you won't have grass for grazing. If you don't have grass, then you have to feed them. If you feed them five months out of the year, that's fine. But if it's seven months, well, there goes your profit."

The last long drought in West Texas marked a major change for Midland County and other area ranchers.
"In 1948, Dad (Jay Floyd) decided to sell off most of the herd and give the land a two-year rest," said Floyd.

"Then we had the drought from 1950 to 1957. When it finally broke, there was less grass on our ranch than when Daddy had first figured it was too lean to raise cattle," he said.

That drought was too much for many ranchers, especially the small operators.

But those years also provided a blessing that changed the fortunes of several area cowmen.

ON FEB. 24, 1949, not quite 100 years after Capt. Marcy's trek south of Midland, the county's first significant oil well was completed.

It was the beginning of the massive Spraberry Trend, an oil field that eventually became the largest in the continental U.S.

The field enread over several counties and produced

The field spread over several counties and produced 61,482,939 barrels of oil during the drought years.

For the Floyds, things were looking up. The first well was on their ranch.

"If it hadn't been for oil and gas discovery at that time," said Floyd, "there wouldn't be any ranching at all in Midland County today."

WITH THE DROUGHT broken and bank accounts full, ranchers had one more pleasant surprise comimg up. Eradication of the screwworm.

The larva of a small fly, parasitic screwworms were costing Southwestern ranchers millions of dollars in costing Southwestern ranchers millions of dollars in labor costs and animal loss.

"Anytime a cow would get an open wound, the screwworms would move in," said Floyd. "We'd spend several hours every day checking cattle and treating them," he said. "Three or four cases a day was pretty normal."

A unique "final cure" to the disease came from the federal government.

"A USDA reaseacher in Kerrville discovered the female flies mate once, then die," recalled Charles Green, Midland County Agent.

"Later, they found they could sterilize the males with radiation, then set them loose to mate. The females would then mate and die without producing any new serewworms."

Dropping radiated flies from airplanes to eradicate screwworms seemed pretty far-fetched to conservative ranchers.

"This program was run by the government and Texas A&M, but the ranchers were supposed to help finance it," said Green.

"The first time we asked for money, we didn't collect much. It sort of defied their imagination. Once they saw it work, though, everybody chipped in."

The program began in 1962, and the pest is almost wiped out.
"We still get a case once in a while, especially during

"We still get a case once in a while, especially during the wet seasons," said Green. "Once we help Mexico get under control, we should be free and clear."

TODAY, RANCHING IN the county bears little resemblance to the way it was in the peak producing years.

One boastful account described the county in 1916 as "the largest cattle breeding ground in North America, home of the biggest herd of Herefords."

Of Texas' 10 million head, Midland County now probably has "around 6,000 mature cattle," according to Green.
"The cattle business is a tax write-off for a lot of ranchers now," said one ranch hand. "Their real income is oil and gas.

"The IRS says you've got to try to make a profit on the ranch two out of five years or it's considered sort of a hobby. A few ranchers around here have run into IRS

THE LAST FEW YEARS, low rainfall and lower beef prices have caused ranchers to cut herds to less than half of 1973 numbers, although the market now is looking up.

trouble when they started using the ranch as a place to

"We bought cattle at $550 a head in 1974 and sold them for $175 in 1977," said rancher Floyd.

"We lost a lot of money on that. The guy who bought them sold them for $325, and lately prices have been up to $1,000 for a mother and calf pair."

County Agent Green says the fluctuating prices have some logic behind them.
"The cycle is about seven to nine years," said Green.

"The cycle is about seven to nine years," said Green.
"We've got about two to three years of good prices, then there'll be too many head, and they'll go back down."
Ranchers who sold off their heifers in lean times are building back their herds now, trying to get in on the good market.

So are a lot of other people.

"When the price goes from 50 cents to a dollar a pound, you'd be surprised just who gets into the cattle business," said Green. "There's a lot of wage-earners who'll lease out some land and run a hundred head. All together, they make a pretty big impact; they complicate matters."

HOW LONG THE good times last depends as much on the clouds in the skies as anything.

"As long as it rains enough, the land here is very good for raising cattle," said Floyd.

"The Russian steppe, the Argentine pampas and here—those are the richest grasslands," he said, sounding somewhat like a circa-1916 land promoter.

"What my brother and I would like to really do" be

"What my brother and I would like to really do," he said, waiting for a stubborn Hereford to clear the path, "is to buy us another ranch."

Midland County rancher Timber Floyd, with a law practice and oil interests, still sees his background as ranching.

Rescue mission causing 'boat people' to leave

ABOARD THE USS WABASH, Pattaya, Thailand (AP) - The U.S. Navy's mission to rescue refugees in the South China Sea is encouraging more Vietnamese "boat people" to flee their homeland, rescued refugees said Saturday.

The refugees, brought into port Saturday aboard the U.S. 7th Fleet tanker Wabash, also said ethnic Chinese still are being allowed to leave Vietnam, provided they pay officiais, but ethnic Vietnamese are being

The Voice of Vietnam radio, quoting an official Vietnamese newspaper editorial, said that with its new searescue policy the United States was 'showing off with the 7th Fleet" to dominate the region militarily. It said Carter was using the operation to distract voters from other issues, and that the United States and China were trying to prolong the flow of refugees to "create and explosive situation in Southeast Asia." Malaysia's home affairs minister, Ghazali Shafie, said rescue missions by the United States and other nations were well intended, but would be seen as an invitation to the refugees to get out illegally. "The Vietnamese authorities must be given time to fulfill their promises," to control the refugee flow, he said. "They must not have any excuse later." Vietnam promised its cooperation at an international conference on the refugee situation two weeks

Malaysia, continuing its policy of rejecting new boat people, forced 319 more back out to sea in four wooden boats Saturday.

In Washington, a Carter administration official who was asked whether the rescue operation might prove counter-productive said the policy represents a purely humanitarian effort to save lives and was not intended to encourage the flight of boat people. The official asked not to be identi-

The Wabash and other 7th Fleet ships, acting on Carter's orders to pick up endangered boat people, rescued 65 refugees last week. All the refugees were transferred to the Wabash and were airlifted from the tanker Saturday to the Thai naval port of Sattahip, en route to Laemsingh refugee camp in Chantaburi province. There they will await resettlement in the United States, where they are guaranteed a home.

U.N. refugee officials and representatives of the U.S. Embassy boarded the Wabash shortly after it anchored offshore here and began processingthe Vietnamese.

Carter's order to be on the lookout for boat people came July 23 as the fleet aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk, a cruiser, a destroyer, a frigate and the Wabash were departing the naval base at Subic Bay in the Philippines.

The search area covers 200,000 square miles. It is approximately 1, 555 miles from Subic Bay to this beach resort on the Gulf of Thailand.

The Navy Saturday sent three P-3 Orion aircraft out from Subic to renew the search, but they had reported no sightings by late afternoon, a Navy spokesman said.

Lt. Mike Doubleday, public affairs officer of the Kitty Hawk task force, said the ships rescued two groups of refugees in five days' surveillance. The ships also gave fuel and food to refugees aboard a seaworthy boat, and encountered another boat that did not need help and went on its way, he

The task force is not scheduled to pass through the area again for another five days, and some sailors wondered whether they might miss other boats that had left home hoping to be rescued by the fleet.

Dao was among 45 refugees rescued from a foundering 20-foot boat by the cruiser USS England Thursday. All were young male Vietnamese.

Earlier, the Wabash and the destroyer USS Parsons rescued 19 refugees from a 25-foot open boat.

One Wabash crewmen, apparently thinking a delay in boarding the refugees meant they would not be accepted, jumped into the ocean and refused to come back on board until the ships took the boat people aboard. An officer later said it was a "misunderstanding" - officers were deciding which ship would pick the refu-

A cargo helicopter from the Wabash rescued a 16-year-old boy spotted floating in the sea Thursday. He apparently had been in the water for three days and was suffering from exposure and pneumonia. we will make more active search for the refugees," he said.

Doubleday said the fleet picked up more than 500 refugees at sea in 1978, and has rescued at least that number so far this year.

Minor earthquake hits Maine's coast

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) - A minor earthquake rumbled along the southern Maine coast Saturday night from Kittery to the Portland area, touching off dozens of phone calls to police agencies and the news

State police in nearby Scarborough reported "no damage or injuries at all" from the quake, which was felt about 7:30 p.m.

"It was an earthquake all right," said John Minsch of the National Earthquake Center in Golden, Colo. He said it registered 3.5 on the Richter scale. "I guess you can say it was minor.'

Minsch said his instruments showed the quake was centered at sea about 20 miles east of Portsmouth, N.H., but emphasized that later readings might put the center of the quake closer to Portland.

Dear Roy: Unfortunately, the battle to eradicate malaria has not yet been won. In fact, in many countries the incidence of the disease is rising.

The World Health Organization (WHO) started a campaign in 1955 to wipe out malaria. In its early stages, the effort was fairly successful. For example, by 1968, more than a third of the almost 2 billion people living in the 146 countries where malaria was a problem were free of the disease. After that, however, the program seemed to stall. Within the past five years, the number of cases reported to the WHO has more than doubled. Today the scorecard reads as fol-

Thirty-six of the 146 nations considered to carry a risk of malaria back in 1955 are now free of the disease according to the WHO, 53 countries are pursuing an active malaria-eradication program with varying degrees of success, 27 are engaged in starting programs and 30 have not even begun.

There are a variety of reasons offered for the general lack of success in controlling malaria. In the first place, the mosquite that carries the disease became resistant to

Another approach to combating malaria, in addition to the use of insecticides, is development of a vaccine. Research in this area has been under way for some time, and sufficient progress has been made to warrant testing of a vaccine on humans in the near future. The vac-cine would be employed in conjunction with the spraying of insecticides and the use of drugs.

Malaria is not confined only to the under-developed nations or to areas with tropical climates. The Center for Disease Control has reported that 480 cases of malaria were recorded in the United States in 1977, as compared with 151 cases in 1970. Many of these patients had traveled in areas of the world where malaria was a problem. Even when people heading for a malaria-invested country take drugs as a preventive measure, they often stop before the risk has completely

Separated twins partially paralyzed, father reveals

OGDEN, Utah (AP) - Former Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen emerged from their historic separation surgery partially paralyzed, the twins' father, David Hansen, says in a copyright interview with the Church

"One side was completely paralyzed, with one foot pointing down and the hand clenched," Hansen told the weekly publication of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The twins are coming out of the paralysis by undergoing extensive physical therapy to rebuild muscles necessary for supporting the head and for walking, he said.

The twins, now 21 months old, were separated May 29 after 16 hours of surgery. Doctors said the twins, joined at the top of the head since birth, were the first such twins to be separated with both twins living.

Elisa was admitted to the University of Utah Medical Center on Friday for observation and anticipated surgery early this week to adjust incisions in her head.

"It's not considered serious," said hospital spokesman John Dwan. He said Elisa was admitted in satisfacto-

"Incisions run all across their heads," Dwan said. "When there's that many incisions it's not unusual to have to go in and adjust them."

He said doctors continue to watch the twins very closely. "Because of the seriousness of the operation, they (the twins) still remain vulnerable to potential problems," he said. Hansen said his daughters are adjusting to each other. Elisa is more animated; Lisa is more thoughtful, he

"We are still adjusting to having them home," said the twins' mother, Patricia Hansen. "The first night,

Elisa cried amost all night. She'd turn her head from side to side — you could tell she didn't know where she

"When she saw me she'd quiet down. They were really cross for a day or two," she said.

"It is a miracle that they are se-parated," Hansen said. "A million things could go wrong with that operation. The doctors often told us the chances were near zero that the twins would make it." Hansen said he and his family were always in favor of separation.

"If the doctors hadn't felt there was a chance they wouldn't have operated. They started doing little operations to tie off some blood from a common vein. Everything went perfectly - there was never a setback. Things gradually went the doctors' way until they got more and more courage.

Billing program devised

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Lawyers in the State Attorney General's office aren't punching a time clock, and state agencies aren't receiving a bill for their legal services - yet.

But Atty. Gen. Mark White is developing a billing system to keep better track of how much time his assistants are spending on the various legal chores of state government.

The formal "billing system" was requested by the Legislature.

In fact, it was requested of formery Atty. Gen. John Hill, but never implemented, according to Jim Nelson, who helped devise the system for Nelson says the procedure is done by most private law offices and accounting firms. "It's an excellent management tool," he said.

The "billing" procedure will allow White and legislators to see just how much time the state's lawyers are spending working for government agencies.

And Nelson doesn't discount the notion that the Legislature one day could give state agencies a limited budget to spend on legal help.

Nelson maintains the forms to be filled out by assistant attorneys generally will be as simple as possible, to avoid mounds of additional paperwork for the legal staff. There will be no time clock, he said.

The system should be operational on Sept. 1,

Board members also will review the financial condition of the authority and financial statements for the fiscal year which ended June 30

Reports will also be presented to the board concerning the status of a local home rehabilitation program, which is financed through private contributions, part of a local effort by the Midland Commission for Local Community Devel-

Petroleum Museum official reveals plan for $1 million-expansion wing

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame in Midland has disclosed plans for a $1 million-expansion project.

Maurice R. Bullock, chairman of the museum's board of executors, said approximately $420,000 would be used to build a 9,000-square-foot addition to the present structure.

The museum already has $448,000 to apply toward cost of the project, some of it earmarked by donors for various specific uses, Bullock said.

While exhibit sponsors will be sougth, Bullock said, the museum cannot raise the full amount for the construction of the new wing in this manner. "We need both large and small gifts now, in the next few months, to hurry construction of the building and its exhibits," he said.

Among donors to the project thus far have been Mr. and Mrs. George T. Abell of Midland. Abell was a founder and the first president of the museum. "He and Mrs. Abell have given quite substantially," Bullock

Other donors have included Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Davis, Mrs. Esther Denton, Duane Abell, employees of the Abell companies, and an unidentified foundation.

"All of these volunteered gifts when word of the planned expansion reached them, and the museum is extremely grateful for the confidence shown in this fine way," Bullock said. Bullock said he and Russell J. Ramsland, museum president, believe that plans for the addition are "even more exciting and fascinating than our present building turned out

"The time has come,"Billock said, "to do some of the things we couldn't do at the beginning. We have a proven record, have established ourselves in the Basin as something to take pride in, and are ready to do more."

Angola hikes crude price

LISBON, Portugal (AP) - Angola has hiked its oil prices to $23.23 a barrel, a 10.4 percent increase, the former Portugese colony's official news agency reported.

ANGOP, the Angolan news agency, said the price hike was announced Friday by the Oil Ministry in Luanda, capital of the West African nation. It was Angola's second price rise in two months. Prices jumped 14 percent in June to $21.04 for a 42-gallon barrel of

Schlesinger says gasoline crunch continues to ease

By JOHN M. BERRY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger Friday predicted a continued easing of the gasoline crunch, saying refiners could make available in August 98 percent of the amount they supplied for that month

There should be sufficient gasoline available, he said. "If a family wants to take a (driving) vacation as planned, it could do so." But the only way to avoid all risk of encountering a gasoline shortage is "to stay close to home," he cautioned.

Schlesinger also said "there should be "ample stocks of home heating oil this winter. Inventories of heating oil were 157 million barrels as of July 20 and on track to reach the Carter administration's goal of 230 million to 240 million barrels in October, he

However, Schlesinger said all bets are off if there are any further interruptions in the flow of crude oil. None is expected, but he noted a recent reduction of 300,000 barrels a day in Nigerian oil production somewhat offsets a million-barrel-a-day increase by Saudi Arabia and "undescores the precariousness of sup-

"Any unforseen disruption could cause major difficulties," Schlesinger warned

However, he discounted reports that Algeria is reducing by 20 percent the amount of oil it has been selling under contract. Some countries have cut such sales so that they can sell the oil for higher prices on the spot mar-

None of the reports dimmed the basically optimistic outlook Schlesinger described. Even after the Nigerian cutback, total oil production by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is running more than 31.5 millon barrels a day, he said, about the level forecast last fall before the Iranian revolution threw the world oil market into tur-

Part of today's demand is for oil to rebuild inventories drawn down while Iranian oil exports were halted. Schlesinger indicated the world market would remain "snug" this quarter and that it may or may not be relieved in the fourth quarter.

Many industry experts believe the market will ease once inventories around the world are rebuilt.

One reason for Schlesinger's optimism about gasoline availability is what he termed a "surprising increase in gasoline stocks." For the

Schlesinger, as he has in the past, criticized the oil companies for being 'too conservative' in setting their allocation fractions - the percentage of last year's gasoline delivered to most service stations in the same month this year. More should have been available to motorists, he indi-

Gasoline stocks averaged 231.9 million barrels during June, almost 20 million barrels higher than a year earlier. This June, many parts of the nation was plagued by long lines at gas stations. A year ago, with smaller stocks on hand, there were no lines.

Based on data for the first three weeks of the month, July inventories will be even higher than June's despite larger deliveries by most companies to their retail outlets.

Schlesinger also criticized oil refiners for producing less heating oil and diesel fuel than they could from each barrel of crude, so they can produce more gasoline.

In other matters, Schlesinger said that, if his successors as energy secretary, Charles Duncan, is confirmed before Congress begins a month-long recess on Aug. 3, he will leave his job about three weeks later.

Schlesinger said he had "discussions" about taking another position in the Carter administration, but that he would not. He declined to say what position was involved.

He acknowledged the Cabinet upheaval in which he lost his job and hurt the chances of getting quick passages of President Carter's new energy program. 'The sum of the momentum established by the president's speech a week ago last Sunday may have been lost temporarily," he said. "It is our task to restore that momentum . . .

Emergency move made

AUSTIN - The Railroad Commission of Texas has granted emergency authority to East Texas operators to transfer unproduced July oil and gas allowables from certain leases to other leases.

The move was made in order to prevent the loss of approximately 10,-000 barrels of oil and associated casinghead gas that otherwise could not be produced, a commission spokes-

The commission said the allowable transfer was sought by Atlantic Richfield Co., John G. Soule, chief legal counsel for the commission, said ARCO's piplenine transmission system in the field, shut-in for testing and repairs, will be out of service for the remainder of July, making it impossible for operators connected to the line to produce their full allowables for the month.

Crunch doesn't matter

WASHINGTON (AP) - If Americans' longterm reaction to the current oil crunch is the same as it was to the shortage of 1973-74, they won't change their commuting habits one bit, according to a Census Bureau study released Saturday.

A year after the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, two out of every three American commuters were driving alone to work, the study found.

The study; "The Journey to Work in the United States," reports that the 1973-74 shortage 'failed to alter the commuting habits of Americans in any substantial way."

The study, focusing on 1975, the year after the oil embargo ended, found that people who switched to public transit systems during the shortage went right back to their cars when gasoline was again

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The National Conference of Weights and Measures has adopted a plan asking state and local governments to mandate gasoline sales by the liter by 1983.

Gasoline priced at $1.07 per gallon, for example, could be sold at 28.2 cents per liter, conference members were told Thursday.

The three-stage plan would have to be enacted by states, counties, and cities. It would legalize sales by the gallon, half-gallon or liter until 1982, when sales would be only by the gallon or liter. By Jan. 1, 1983, the liter would be the only acceptable unit.

Corporate profits show strength during quarter

By KRISTIN GOFF

NEW YORK (AP) - In the face of declining output for the economy, corporate profits for the second-quarter held up rather well.

Big oil companies, led by Texaco's 132 percent leap in quarterly profits from a year earlier, have been the standout industry in earnings gains for the April-June period.

Banks also turned in a strong industry showing, although results from some consumer-oriented industries like autos have been less impressive. Real Gross National Product — the measurement of the nation's production after inflation - fell 3.3 percent in the second quarter. Although many economists see that as a signal a recession is underway, few believe that after-tax corporate profits will show a parallel drop for the same period.

Economist Michael Evans who operates Evans Economics Inc., a forecasting company in Washington, said he expects business, profits to rise about 12 percent to $136 billion in the second quarter from $121 billion a year earlier. And a recent survey of 437 corporations indicates an even stronger 19.6 percent gain.

Neither that survey, conducted by the Wall Street Journal, nor Evans' forecast are adjusted for the effects of inflation, which will take a big bite out of real corporate profits. But even at that the forecasts imply a net gain.

Economists cite some special factors which may over the short term help cushion profits from the full brunt of a recession. Lower federal tax rates for businesses are in effect this year and were not in the comparison 1978 periods.

And many businesses also seem to be benefiting from lowered labor costs both through restraint in wage increases and by hiring fewer new and replacement workers.

Then too, many busineses that got caught with large inventories on hand and a sudden loss of sales as the 1974-75 recession started, appear to be more cautious this time.

Economists do expect profit levels to suffer if a serious recession develops, but some argue that the degree of shrinkage may not be as much as in previous downturns.

don't think profits will decline much more than 10 percent over this recession, even though I see it as a severe one," says Evans, who adds that profits have dropped by 15 percent or so in previous recessions.

"Businesses would rather cut their output than lower prices. Companies are smarter now. They learned their lessons in the last recession," he

Not all earnings reports for the second quarter have been glowing ones. Compared to the first quarter's $140 billion level, a decline in in overall earnings appears to be emerging. With slowing auto sales and gasoline problems, General Motors posted a modest profits gain of 7.4 percent while No. 2 Ford reported a 5.1 percent earnings decline from a year And IBM, the industry giant in office equipment and data-processing equiment, reported a 3 percent earnings decline, the first such dip in years. Among the consumer-oriented companies, Whirlpool said slowing appliance sales were responsible for its 19 percent decline in earnings for the quarter. Even among some of the strongest gainers, special factors are involved. Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, reported a 132 percent gain in earnings over last year's second quarter. No. 2 Mobil's profits were up 38 percent. And Exxon, the

Braniff net shows drop

DALLAS - Braniff International Corp. reported net income for the first six months of 1979 of $16,901,000, equal to 84 cents per share, down 15.8 percent from $20,084,000 or $1 per share, in the same period last year.

Operating revenues and airline passenger traffic soared to record levels, but a "relentless upward spiral in the price of jet fuel, particularly in the second quarter, caused the lowerearnings," Braniff Board Chairman Harding L. Lawrence said that was weak one for the industry, partly because of relatively plentiful supplies and lower prices. In the banking industry, high interest rates and high demand for loans combined to help boost profit levels.

Chase Manhattan reported a 70 percent jump in second quarter earnings and Bankers Trust reported a 44 percent gain. Bank of America, the nation's largest bank, said earnings rose about 27 percent. Citicorp, the second largest, was an exception and reported an 8.6 percent decline.

In other business developments this past week

-President Carter nominated Paul Volcker to head the Federal Reserve Board. Volcker heads the New York Federal Reserve Bank and his nomination generally was praised in financial and business circles. G. William Miller, the current chairman, has been nominated to serve as treasury secretary.

-Consumer prices rose at blistering annual rate of 13.2 percent in the first half of 1979. If inflation continued at that pace for the whole year, 1979 would end up the worst inflation year since 1946 when World War II price controls were lifted. The Labor Department report did have one bit of good news. It showed a slowing in the rate of price increases for food in its latest report for June and a decline in the price of beef and other meats.

-Many of the nation's largest commercial banks raised their prime lending rates by 4-point to 11% per-cent. The prime rate is a bank's charge on loans to top-rated corporate customers. The rate reflects business loan conditions and its movements do not necessarily influence rates on personal loans or home mortages. The fluctuations may serve, however, as a general guide to interest rate trends.

company's earnings. McDonnell said eight DC-10s were delivered in the second three months of 1979, compared with three for the same period a year ago. The scheduled second quarter deliveries of three more DC-10s were delayed by the Federal Aviation Administration's suspension of the aircraft's type certification, he said.

That suspension was lifted July 13.

The FAA's grounding of the aircraft following the May 25 crash of a DC-10 at Chicago in which 275 persons were killed has created "uncertainty" and has caused cancellation of "a few conditional firm property taxes is making investors orders" for the jets, McDonnell said. He did not

The Texas Credit Union Commission plans a meeting in mid-August to consider adoption of new regulations relating to deposit accounts and chartering of credit unions, Commissioner John Parsons reports.

The proposed regulations on community credit unions would place more restrictions on that type of operation than is the case for occupational credit unions, Parsons says.

The State Board of Insurance has sent letters to the 40 largest writers of products liability insurance in Texas, encourageing them to work with the market assistance program designed to help hard-to-place risks. The MAP program, as it is known, is designed to prevent additional governmental involvement in the products liability market, the letter

A statewide publicity program also is being planned in conjunction with the MAP program.

Savings and Loan Commissioner Alvis Vandygriff reports Texas savings associations appear to be having few problems with implementing the new variable rate mortgage and graduated payment mortgage plans approved by the Savings and Loan Section of the State Finance Commis-

Legislation allowing associations to charge up to 2 percent interest above the average rate for 10-year U.S. Treasure notes takes effect Aug. 27, and the Savings and Loan Department has determined that permissible rate will be 11 percent for the final few days of August. But Vandygriff says the availability of money for loans may be hurt by a slowing in the growth of savings at associations in the state, which he feels is due in part to federal provisions allowing banks and savings and loans to pay the same rate for funds when the rate is over 9 percent.

That, he feels, has contributed to the downturn in savings deposits, and 'will curtail the money available for mortgage loans. The U.S.League of Savings Asso-

Chamber, MC again seeking city's leaders

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

WANTED: Effective leaders to get involved in the community. Must have an inability to say no.

Midland once again is on the lookout for potential leaders, and the deadline this time is Aug. 24.

Leadership Midland, sponsored by the Midland Chamber of Commerce and Midland College, is a program designed to identify potential leaders in Tall City and to motivate these leaders to meet the challenges of the city's needs.

Midland's fast growth expresses the first need to develop a leadership program, said Reagan Legg, chairman of the program's advisory com-

"An indication of this fast growth is the tremendous influx of new people arriving in the city.
"The potential for future leadership in Midland is with these people," he said.

Another need Legg cited for the program is that the present "leadership" is getting tired.

"Leadership Midland is not saying that there is something wrong with the present leadership," he said.

"Midland needs a fresh flow of talented people to continue and build on the work the past leadership has begun," he said.

In 1978, the first year of the program, 40 of 67 participants were chosen to undergo "crash courses" which dealt with various aspects of life in Midland.

Selection of these participants was made by nominations submitted to the recruitment committee.

Nominations are usually made by letters sent to local employers or prospective leaders. Final selection for the program is made by the recruitment committee composed of anonymous members.

"We try to keep the number of participants at 40 because the small number allows for better interaction among the students," Legg said.

One of the problems Legg noted in the first year of the program was a lack of female and minority represen-

Legg explained. "The program does not make money. Expenses not covered by the fee are underwritten by various people and organizations."

Participants go to intensive daylong sessions dealing with various aspects of Midland life. Last year, a session on criminal justice was held in the Midland County Jail.

Participants were exposed to the mechanics of the criminal-justice process in Midland. As a part of their exposure, they were served the standard jail fare for lunch.

Other topics introduce the student to the political, economic, cultural, recreational, educational and social aspects of the Midland community.

"At best, the program tries to give each student an exposure to the strengths and weaknesses of Mid-

Participants "graduate" at an endof-the-year banquet following completion of the program.

"One of the benefits of the program is that each student develops close friends among other members of their class," Legg said. Already, a Leadership Midland alumni association is forming. Graduates of the program's first year will hold a luncheon at 12: 30 p.m. Wednesday in The First National Bank. Success in the Leadership Midland program has been measured in a number of ways. Proof of the pudding is that graduates have seemed to want to get involved in the community, Legg said. "We try to impart the feeling to

A family cook-out started with a bang Saturday when a butane bottle connected to a cooking grill outside a Midland residence exploded, blowing out plate glass windows and badly damaging the house's porch.

The fire started when a butane bottle connected to a grill exploded, fire reports said.

Like it or not, a very large equity in a home (such as owning it outright or almost so) is not a particularly good investment. #### Nostalgic evenings waiting with Theatre Midland musical

Several nostalgic evenings await residents of Midland and surrounding area, when "Rodgers and Hart, A Musical Celebration" opens this coming weekend at Theatre Midland, 2000

W. Wadley Ave. The song and dance evenings - 11 in all - pay tribute to Richard Rodgers and the late Lorenz Hart as two of the greatest musical stage collaborators in theatrical history. No one has composed more richly melodic scores than Rodgers, and Hart's lyrics contain a unique blend of sentiment and wit. 'Rogers and Hart, A Musical Celebration," contains more than 60 songs drawn from the 28 stage shows and eight motion pictures on which Rodgers and Hart collaborated. Some of the songs are familiar The Lady Is A Tramp"), some unfamiliar ("Oh, Diogenes") but all are quality offerings.

"Mountain Greenery," "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," "Ten Cents A Dance," "I Didn't Know What Time It Was" and literally dozens more songs that America sang (and virtually the whole world) have never stopped singing.

The Rodgers and Hart musical tribute is not part of Midland Community Theatre's regular season. It is being presented as a special gift to MCT season members.

Beginning Monday morning, the Theatre Midland box office will be open for the sale of tickets to nonmembers. The box office telephone number is 682-4111.

Dissension delays final formation of India's new government coalition

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Charan Singh was sworn in as India's fifth prime minister Saturday but dissension within his coalition kept him from naming a full Cabinet and clouded the prospects for a durable government.

In a nationwide broadcast, Singh, a 76-year-old former country lawyer, called for "a new atmosphere of hope...in place of the present state of uncertainty, apprehension and despair" that he said his predecessor, Morarji Desai, had left in this country

Singh's 15-minute speech stressed economic development and creation of jobs as the main weapon against poverty in India, where the average annual income is about $150.

Making his first statement on foreign affairs, Singh said India would "continue to follow a policy of nonalignment which will not lean on any super power."

This was much milder than a Friday public declaration by Raj Narain, Singh's party lieutenant, that India intends to end what Narain called its "appeasement" of the United States, China and the Soviet Union. In international relations, Singh said, "India, with its glorious heritage and tradition, has a distinctive role to play. It has to spread the message of peace and apply the healing touch at every sore spot.

But Singh's troubles in launching his coalition government overshadowed the new prime minister's first report to the nation. Six of the first 14 members he named to his spinet failed to appear at the sweet of a ceremony in the presidential place and their appointments were later canceled. All six belong to the Congress Party, a major partner in the coalition with Singh's new party of defectors from the Desai government.

Another blow came when the party of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi announced that its continued support of the new government is not guaranteed, now that Singh has taken office. In establishing his claim to form the government Singh drew more than one-fourth of his parliamentary backing from the Gandhi

"Further support to the government by our party would depend on the totality of the picture that will emerge," said C.M. Stephen, leader the 72 Gandhi party members in the lower house.

Congress Party President Swaran Singh said the six proposed ministers refused to be sworn in by President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy because of a party decision that the coalition program and policies first had to be

He said that to avoid the appearance of a Congress boycott, it was agreed that former Foreign Minister Y.B. Chavan, the Congress Party parliamentary leader, alone would take his oath. Chavan, 66, became deputy prime minister and home affairs

Chavan, recently leader of the opposition, had introduced the no-confidence motion in Parliament that forced Desai's resignation July 15. Singh's followers had defected from Desai's Janata Party, stripping him of his parliamentary majority.

Singh named as foreign minister S.N. Mishra, 58, a member of his own "Janata Secular" party of defectors. Like the new prime minister, Mishra is a politician with little past activity in foreign affairs.

H.N. Bahuguna, 60, petroleum and chemical minister of the former government, was sworn in as Singh's finance minister. The five other ministers installed were not immediately assigned portfolios because of uncertainty over the final Cabinet lineup. Some on the Congress Party objections reportedly were directed against the lack of representation in the proposed Cabinet for minorities and members of the Untouchable

Congress dissidents also reportedly objected to their own party nominees, all of whom have held Cabinet posts in the past, and demanded younger rep-

In his speech, Singh said small units must be established in Indian industry and agriculture. But he added that 'wherever necessary, big industries will continue to be established and wherever national interest so demands - established in the public

MEXICO CITY (AP) - The exiled Shah of Iran says the Islamic revolution that overthrew him is "crumbling of its own ineptitude' and that under Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini it is "slipping into the abyss of medieval leader-

"The growing question is for how long ... the people of Iran will tolerate the current regime's revisionist form of government," the exiled monarch said in the statement, which was released late Friday from his rented resort villa in Cuernavaca, 45 miles from Mexico City. He said the government that replaced him in February has "slipped from the edge of the 21st century into the abyss of medieval leadership and mentality.' The newspaper report said Iranian officials charged the shah killed 365,995 Iranians during

30 years in power. "In an effort to kick desert sand into the eye of the observer, the current regime has now stooped to inventing malicious lies where there is not so much as a grain of truth in the so-called information relayed to the Excelsior newspaper,' the shah's statement

The spokesman said the shah felt he had to speak out "to let hundreds of thousands of Iranians around the world who feel the same way know he has not given up on them, forgotten them, or lost compassion for their

Poland ups gas prices

WARSAW; Poland (AP) - Poland hiked gasoline prices and imposed speed limits on Saturday to conserve oil and improve road safety, the government news agency PAP reported.

It said the price of gasoline was increased about 15 percent to $2.20 per gallon.

The communist government set speed limits for automobiles of 55 mph on main highways while the limit for trucks and buses was set at 43 mph. PAP said the limits would both save fuel and increase safety.

Poland imports about 16.5 million tons of oil a year, 75 percent from the Soviet Union and the remainder from the free market, the agency said. A Warsaw television commentator told his audience, "We must save fuel as is being done by the whole world. We pay less for Soviet oil than for Arab oil.

1980 presidential primary not needed, Democrats say

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -President Carter has no active opposition for the Democratic presidential nomination, so Texas Democrats will not hold a Presidential primary in 1980, but both of those conditions are subject to change, state party leaders

The 62-member State Democratic Executive Committee decided Saturday to use a state convention to choose its delegates to the national nomination convention in August

That was the recommendation of the SDEC's rules committee, but rules committee chairwoman Carrin Patman of Ganado said the party will change that position if a valid contest develops. "I call it a look before you leap standpoint," Mrs. Patman said. "It'll perhaps prevent us from being in the foolish-looking position of backing out if there is no race."

The SDEC agreed that if a race develops, they will vote next spring to conduct a non-binding presidential preference primary, which state party chairman Billy Goldberg said would be as good as a binding vote. Goldberg, of Houston, said he would "do all in my power to see that the results of that vote are followed in the delegate selection process." There was lengthy debate over the primary issue, but when it was put to a vote, the delegates adopted the rules committee's recommendation by a two-thirds majority.

Several SDEC members claimed failure to conduct a primary would force conservative party members into the Republican polling booths. The Texas Republican Party already has decided to conduct a presidential preference primary in conduction with the May primaries, and two Texans - John Connally and George Bush — are announced candidates, heightening interest among state Re-

Others at the Saturday meeting argued against a state convention, claiming it would be more easily influenced by special interest groups than a statewide primary.

But Goldberg said voters are not being deprived of a choice by the Texas party. "It's because there is only one candidate in the field," he said. "We can't create the contest. We can't fell Teddy Kennedy or Jerry

The SDEC also adopted an affirmative action plan for 1980, to increase participation in party activities by ethnic minorities, the physically handicapped and other groups described as "traditionally under-represented."

Bailiff in 'serious business' of catering to needs of court

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

"Will everyone please rise?" The voice shatters the quiet of the courtroom and focuses the attention of all those present on the Vann'Culp, judge of Midland's 238th District Court, walks to the judge's bench and sits down. The voice sends the quietness away again. "238th District Court is now in session. Honorable Vann Culp, judge, presiding.

The scene is repeated countless times a year. Those words — or similar ones — are spoken almost

The name of the court may change. The name of the presiding judge may change. But the end result is the same - court is called into session once again at Midland County Courthouse. Even the speaker may change. But in this instance, it's Roy Merket, court bailiff. Merket, one of three deputies for the Midland County Sheriff's Department assigned to the courts, has been a bailiff in Midland County nearly three "I enjoy it very much," smiles Merket, "especially since I was a police officer so long.

Midlander Profile

While a police officer, Merket often was called to testify in cases. In most instances, however, "the rule" was invoked, meaning all witnesses had to remain out of the courtroom during the trial. When 'the rule" is invoked, a witness can be in the courtroom only when he or she is testifying.

Consequently, Merket didn't get to see much of what went on inside the courtroom. That all changed when he became a bailiff.

Bailiffs, according to Merket, primarily are charged with maintaining order in the courtroom and seeing that the "decorum" of the court is respected - proper attire is worn, proper order is followed and dignity is maintained. But, Merket said, duties of bailiffs extend far beyond that. Bailiffs, according to Merket, call the court to order, call witnesses into the courtroom when they are to testify, see that all the instructions of the presiding judge are carried out and "protect" That "protection" includes making certain that jurors do not discuss among themselves the case being tried or discuss it with anyone else, except attorneys involved in the case. If jurors are deliberating a case, a bailiff escorts the jurors to their Bailiffs also are responsible for persons accused of crimes who are on trial. Primary function of the bailiff in such instances, said Merket, is "to see that they (prisoners) don't walk off." Bailiffs also keep courts free of clutter, see that water is available for attorneys in trials and make coffee for jurors. "We try to cater to anything the court needs," Merket said. Merket primarily serves as bailiff in criminal and jurisdiction over rates civil cases in the district courts of Midland. Another within their boundaries.

bailiff, Ed Brackeen, primarily serves in 318th District Court - the court of domestic relations - and a peals of rate decisions third, Don Youngblood, serves in the county courts. Besides serving in district court trials, the bailiffs serve for guilty pleas, swear all witnesses before the weekly meetings of the grand jury and serve during court hearings on pretrial motions, Merket said. One might think that a person who spends as much time in court as a bailiff would be able to forecast what verdict a jury is going to return in a case, but Merket said that isn't so. "It is almost impossible" to predict a jury verdict, he said. "I can't tell what a juror's thinking. There's just no way I can tell." But that doesn't keep bailiffs from guessing at what a verdict will be, he added.

Neither do the bailiffs always agree with a jury's verdict in a particular case. "I've seen people who I thought should have been turned loose that were sent to the pen," Merket

But while he doesn't always personally agree with a verdict, Merket is quick to add that the fate of any accused person on trial is totally the domain of the jurors deliberating the case. That's the way of the American judicial system. Merket was in law enforcement before becoming a bailiff and he said most bailiffs are since judges want bailiffs who have had at least some courtroom

He was a Dallas police officer from 1945 until 1952 and was with the Midland Police Department about

Because of his law enforcement experience, Merket said he is a strict judge of police officers who testify in trials.

"In my opinion a man who's been a police officer for 10 or 15 years would be harder on a police officer than the average citizen.' Merket said if a police officer "messes up" on the witness stand it shows that he has not prepared his case properly.

Merket sees real life drama in Midland's courts nearly every weekday - from the elation of the wrongly accused person being set free to the dejection of criminals sentenced to pay society for

But while the Colorado City native sees the drama, he noted there aren't many instances of humor in the

"It's very serious business."

Reports due Wednesday

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says his department "will be reasonable" in carrying out penalties against foreigners who do not report their U.S. holdings of farm land by the deadline Wednesday.

Under a law passed by Congress last year. foreign owners of land used for agriculture, forest- County. ry or timber production in the last five years must report their holdings by that deadline. Foreigners who bought land recently have 90 days from the date of purchase to report. Owners of less than one acre that produces less than $1,000 in annual farm sales are exempt. The law says failure to report land ownership can lead to penalties of up to 25 percent of the land's

Bergland said some foreign owners of small tracts of U.S. farmland "have had difficulty in obtaining information and forms on the reporting requirement."

Those who fail to report by the deadline are technically in violation of the law, he said. However, Bergland added, "The department will be reasonable in dealing with those who hold small tracts of agricultural land.

"The purpose of the act," he said, "is to gather information on how much farm, forest and timberland is owned by non-U.S. citizens. It is not to prevent ownership or to penalize foreign owners. We will give every consideration to late filers, based on circumstances causing the delays."

Information on the reporting requirements is available from county offices of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Foreign owners should contact the agency office serving the county in which the property is located, Bergland said.

Reeves County survey set

AMARILLO - A survey of landowners and farm operators in the Reeves County Water Improvement District 1 is scheduled to begin Wednesday for the environmental impact statement on the proposed rules and regulations for acreage limitation on Federal Reclamation projects.

89.3 million bushels redeemed

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Farmers have redeemed 89.3 million bushels of corn from the government's reserve program, some 12.2 percent of the 732 million bushels intitially stored, says the Agriculture Department.

The reserve, which includes other grain - mainly wheat - allowed farmers to store part of their crop for up to three years or until market prices rose enough to trigger release of the commodities. Corn has been in a release status since June 19.

The grain can be redeemed at the option of farmers by paying off loans made by USDA when it "Bart" Cardon, chairman of the Arizona Feeds was put into the reserve. After that, farmers can sell their grain if they choose.

Officials said that wheat farmers have redeemed about 133.9 million bushels of their grain, some 32.4 periment Stations for the University of Georgia at percent of the 413 million bushels initially put into

New 4-H Council president

HOUSTON - Robert L. Lastovica of Bell County took the reins as the 1979-80 president of the Texas 4-H Council recently in Houston.

Kyle Rowland of Nolan County and Lisa H. Hoff of Archer County were elected council vice presidents. Wilma Jackson of Jones County was named secretary, and Chuck Ruesink of Brazos County is public relations chairman.

Council representatives from 4-H Distict VI, which includes Midland County, are Les Hale of Crockett County and Alfcia Williams of Winkler

Good accounting suggested

COLLEGE STATION - Correct income tax accounting requires separation of farm business deductions from non-business ones. This means good record-keeping of expenses throughout the year.

Since much of the 1979 work and labor-expenses lie ahead, Texas farmers and ranchers should give particular attention to proper accounting procedures," says Dr. Ashley Lovell, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Services.

USDA schedules meetings

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland plans to hold meetings in 10 cities, including Wichita Falls on Dec. 6, from Vermont to California late this year to gather information about the economic and social issues affecting rural America.

Since Bergland first called for a national debate on the "structure" or changing character of U.S. agriculture earlier this year, he has mentioned it frequently as one of his top priorities in the next couple of years.

The idea, according to Bergland, is that traditional farm programs and policies have not served y should, and they have the country as well as the not protected the smaller family farms from being eroded and gobbled up by big super-farmers and other powerful financial interests.

Bergland said anyone who wants to comment at any of the public meetings should sign up in advance or, if not able to attend, file written comments. Both can be done by contacting: Project Coordinator, Structure of Agriculture, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

U.S. consumers not reaping benefits of passing declines

WASHINGTON (AP) - Middlemen have been passing along to consumers some of the recent declines in the farm prices of meat animals — but not as fast as they should, says a senior Agriclture

Department official.

Howard Hjort, the department's chief economist, said Thursday retail prices of beef and pork still are too high, considering the lower prices farmers get for

"At least some of the decreases in farm prices for meat and pork ... are finally being passed through to consumers," Hjort told a news conference. The price reductions at meat counters helped soften the increase in overall food prices in June, he However, he said, the price spreads between the

Palm oil imports smallest in years

WASHINGTON (AP) - Imports of palm oil, which compete with domestic soybean oil in the U.S. market, may be the smallest in eight years, according to the Agiculture Department.

Officials said Thursday palm oil imports for the year ending Sept. 30 may drop to about 300 million pounds from 361 million in the 197-78 market year. According to USDA records that would be the lowest level of imports since 207 million pounds entered the U.S. market in 1970-71.

Palm oil imports, mainly from Malaysia, have been a sore point with American soybean producers for some years. Imports increased sharply seven years ago and rose to a record peak of 933 million pounds in 1975-76. But officials cautioned in a new report on the fats prices.

and oils situation that "palm oil output is increasing in Malaysia and world demand is strong. "However, palm oil prices at 31 cents a pound (on the West Coast have not been competitive with soybean oil," the report added. "U.S. palm oil demand increases (mainly for shortenings) when prices are below or nearly equal to the price of

The report said soybean oil prices at Decatur, Ill., rose from about 25 cents a pound last fall to about 28 cents in June. This summer, it may average around 27 cents a pound, the report said.

than could be justified and pork 10 cents higher. The preliminary figures for June and early July show those margins were trimmed but still averaged about 1 cents a pound higher for beef and five cents higher for pork than need be.

A report showing the latest developments in middleman price margins is being sent to the Council on Wage and Price Stability for review. The council has been contacting supermarket chains and others about the meat price margins in what Hjort described as "very friendly conversations" aimed at relieving some of the pressure on food costs.

The National Cattlemen's Association, meanwhile, said "there have been further decreases in cattle and wholesale beef prices" since June and predicted that those may result in further declines in retail beef prices in the near future. Hjort said that for all of 1979 he expects retail food they were last year. The department had been projecting food prices at "around 10 percent" higher than last year but officials for some weeks have cautioned that those could be moderately above 10 percent, depending on the middleman margins for meat and other fac-

Hjort said middleman price margins still are among the uncertainties that will determine what happens to food prices the rest of this year, along with what happens to the farm production of broilers, hogs and cattle. Rising coffee prices and the demand by the Soviet Union and other countries for U.S. grain also will have an effect on conumer food bills in coming months, he said. Hjort said retail food price increases in the second quarter "moderated significantly" and averaged an annual rate of 7.5 percent, compared to the first quarter's annual rate of 17.7 percent as shown by the Consumer Price Index.

Further, he said, the increase in April-June was "fundamentally different" from the sharp boost in the first three months, with marketing costs being the main cause rather than rising farm commodity

Egg production up

WASHINGTON (AP) - Egg production last month rose 2 percent from a year earlier to about 5.57 villion eggs, says the Agriculture Department. The number of hens in laying flocks on July 1 totaled 280 million, also up 2 percent from a year ago,

Hens laid an average of 66 eggs per 100 birds on July 1, compared to a rate of lay of 65.4 a year ago.

Cowboys lose 20-13 to Oakland Raiders

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - Two field goals by Errol Mann and a 63-yard return of a blocked field goal by rookie Henry Williams helped the Oakland Raiders to a 20-13 National Football League preseason victory over the Dallas Cowboys Saturday in the annual Pro Football Hall of Fame

THE RAIDERS, with David Humm starting at quarterback, built a 20-6 lead in the first half with the help of two pass interceptions and Williams' touchdown run on the last play of the second quarter.

The Cowboys controlled most of the second-half action in the NFL's preseason opener, making it close with a 56-yard drive capped by rookie Ron Springs' 1-yard touchdown scoring plunge with 6:36 left.

The Raiders took the opening kickoff and marched 79 yards in 17 plays to a take the lead for good on a 1-yard run by Art Whittington. Safety Charles Phillips intercepted a pass by Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach five plays later, running it back 24 yards to the Dallas 15 and setting up Mann's 27-yard field goal.

THE COWBOYS charged right back, scoring on Staubach's 1-yard dive that capped a 66-yard drive early in the second period. The march was highlighted by Staubach's 27-yard pass to Jay Saldi. The Cowboys were called for holding on the first extra point try and Rafael Septien was wide to the right on the second try

Danny White pass late in the half to set up Mann's second field goal, a 22-yarder that came with 26 seconds remaining.

The Cowboys quickly moved upfield on a 29-yard White-to-Saldi pass and Septien tried a 53-yard field goal with three seconds left.

Defensive tackle Charles Philyaw blocked the low kick and Williams, a cornerback from San Diego State, caught it in mid-air and raced untouched into the end zone as time ran

A RECORD Fawcett Stadium crowd of 20,648 sat through rain showers and basked in bright sunshine during the fourth quarter as Dallas kept the pressure on the

The Cowboys had the ball twice in the last two minutes, 15 seconds, failing to cross midfield on the first possession but driving from their own 27 to the Oakland 30 in the final 1:12.

White's 11-yard pass to tight end Billy Joe Dupree gave Dallas a first down at the 30 with 15 seconds remaining. White threw three more times, but one was batted down, one was incomplete and the last try sailed over the end zone as time ran out.

Humm and Jim Plunkett shared the quarterbacking duties for Oakland as regular starter Ken Stabler, a late arrival for training camp, watched in uniform from the sidelines. The tight end Dave Casper, who is attempting to renegotiate his contract.

STAUBACH SAW action only in the first two Dallas possessions, with White and Glenn Carano sharing the job the rest of the way.

Whittington led game rushers with 43 yards in 10 carries while teammate Terry Robiskie added 32 yards in five carries. Scott Laidlaw topped Dallas with 28 yards in six tries and White led the passers with 11 completions in 23 attempts for 150 yards. Humm hit 6 of 12 for 69 yards.

Odessa teams grab national tourney berths

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

Odessa teams captured two of the four national tournament berths up for grabs at Lancaster Park Saturday as the four division United Girls Softball Association State Tournament wound down to conclusion after three stirring days of competition.

Odessa won national tournament berths in Division IV (girls ages 17 through 19) and Division II (girls 11-13). Midland picked up the Division III (girls 14-16) berth and Snyder won the Division I (girls 8-10) title.

Only Division IV, however, was pushed to the maximum in the double elimination torunament. It was there that Midland carried Odessa to the maximum number of games. But Midland, playing its third game of the day Saturday, just couldn't keep up the momentum they had built on their roller coaster ride.

In the finals of Division IV, Odessa's Rosa McKenzie hit a Dave Kingman-like blast over the left field fence into the teeth of the wind in the fourth inning for a two-out grand slam game winner. The blast came with the

Navratilova takes win

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Martina Navratilova, in top form following her second straight Wimbledon singles title, defeated Billie Jean King 6-3, 6-4 Saturday night to win the Obras '79 indoor tennis tournament.

The 22-year-old Czechoslovakia exile, who lives in the United States, needed only 61 minutes to vanguish her 36-year-old American rival in the final of the eight-player tournament before 4,000 fans at Obras Sanitarias Sports Club.

Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia beat Virginia Wade of Britain 6-1, 6-0 for third place in the tournament, in which Argentina's top four women players competed.

Brewers top Yankees, 9-2

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Sixto Lezcano, Ben Oglivie, Sal Bando and Jim Wohlford slammed run-scoring doubles in a six-run Milwaukee fifth inning, powering the Brewers to a 9-2 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday night.

Lezcano, on an 11-for-25 tear, had three RBI doubles as the Brewers tied a club single-game record with seven

A single by Cecil Cooper and RBI doubles by Lezcano and Oglivie broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth and chased Luis Tiant, 7-5.

Bando doubled home another run off Ken Clay and Robin Yount walked. Wohlford followed with an RBI double and Buck Martinez with a sacrifice fly. Wohlford scored the final run of the inning on two wild pitches as the Brewers led 8-2.

teams knotted at 4-4 and the result held up for a final 8-7 victory and the

Midland had taken a 5-4 lead in the third on an RBI single by Susan Shoemaker, but McKenzie's bases loaded homer rubbed out the lead. In the fifth, Midland's Sandy Alvarado had a two-run single to narrow the margin to 827, but the locals could score no

Midland started the day with a 6-3 victory over Snyder in a loser's bracket game. Deborah Ledbetter and Caren Sharp both drove in two runs and Jane Truitt went the distance to pick up the win.

Later, Midland defeated Odessa, 6-3, to force the final and fatal showdown of the day. In that contest, Midland scored five funs in the first with Libby Watson getting the only hit of the inning. Blanche Overton got the victory with a two-hitter, both coming in the three-run third of Odessa. McKenzie, however, was there to save the day in the nightcap.

Midland's Division III title was like a cake walk since they went undefeated in their bracket. The championship came on a 4-2 victory over Odessa in the finals. Midland scored three runs in the seventh with the big blow an RBI single by Rozena McCabe.

Odessa led the game most of the way after two runs in the second inning, but Janice Littlefield came in to win the game in runless relief.

Midland missed another berth in Division II when Odessa Red skipped through the tournament undefeated, beating Midland Blue decisively, 13-5, in the finals. Midland Blue gained the finals with a 6-5 win over Odessa Green Saturday morning, but that took eight innings. Jada Parker scored the winning run on a single by Belinda Duke.

Snyder walked away with the Division I crown undefeated. Their championship came behind the pitching of Michelle Osborn. Osborn went the distance to defeat Odessa, 4-0, in the finals. Osborn ended the game with a two-hitter and had allowed only three runners to reach base, two singles and a walk. The 10-year-old has pitched a perfect game in league play this year in Snyder.

The four division winners now move to Big Spring for the national UGSA tournament Aug. 8-10. They will compete against teams from New Mexico, Virginia and East Texas.

Wadkins takes stroke lead in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Bobby Wadkins, who has spent ears struggling with a recogn tion problem because of golfing brother Lanny, shot a 4-underpar 67 Saturday to take a onestroke lead after three rounds in the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf

Wadkins, who celebrated his 28th birthday Thursday, put together rounds of 67, 69 and 67 for a 54-hole total of 203, one stroke better than Australia's David

GRAHAM SHOT a 1-underpar 70 Saturday and held second alone at 204.

J.C. Snead, who led going into Saturday's round, carded a 1over-par 70 Saturday. He slipped into a third-place tie with Mark Hayes, each at 205. Then came Tommy Valentine at 206, and Gene Littler, Doug Tewell, Bill Rogers, and Ben Crenshaw at 207.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus carded a 4-under 67 in the third round and was in a group at 209 in the tight scramble for the $45,000 first prize. Nicklaus, who tied for second in last week's British Open, said the key for him was making some putts.

Wadkins, who joined the PGA tour in 1974 and has career earnings of $138,134, hasn't won yet but came close this year when he finished second at Tucson and third at Tallahasse said the East Tennessee graduing to putt better. I just hope I can keep it up tomorrow (in the final round Sunday)," Wadkins Wadkins trailed the pacesetting Graham by four strokes starting the third round on a hot, humid day at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course. He had a 6-under-par 136 to Snead's 36-hole total of 132. There were four others to overcome, but the 28-year-old native of Richmond, Va., did the job.

The 6-foot-1 Wadkins played the first three holes in par, then took a bogey on the tough 235yard par-3 fourth. He dropped a 30-foot putt for par 5 on the next hole.

WADKINS ROLLED in a 12footer on seven for a birdie-3, parred eight and nine and made the turn in 1-under 36.

Wadkins made three birdies on the back nine, parring the rest. He made one of those birds on a 40-foot shot out of bunker.

"It's been a consistent week for me," Wadkins said. "I started out (Wednesday) with a 67. I'm driving it well and I'm making some putts," said Wadkins, who missed only two greens in Saturday's round.

"This is my fifth year out (on the tour) and I'd like to say it's hard work and more experience. It's taken time for the turnaround but it has been a positive turnaround.'

HE IS finally convinced that people now expect the name, "Bobby Wadkins" when they ask for an autograph, not "Lanny," who has won five touraments since joining the tour in 1971, including the PGA, World Series of Golf and The Tournament Players' Champi-

Graham made just one bogey Saturday, that on the first hole. "Anybody got a putter?" Gra-ham asked. "I could use it to-

"I played a good solid round of golf and I had putted well I could have shot a lower score," he said. "If I expect to win the tourmament, I'll have to make some putts. I'm hitting my irons better than I have in two years.

SNEAD BOGEYED the first hole and never really recovered. He had five other bogeys. Four birds helped keep him in conten-

Others still in the chase over the 6,687-yard course include Tommy Valentine at 206 and veteran Gene Littler, Doug Tewell, Bill Rogers and Ben Crenshaw, each with 207.

Nicklaus claims he still has a good chance of catching Wadkins and those ahead to retain

Happy winners from Midland's Division IV team mob each other after polishing off Odessa, 6-3 in the morning game in the West Texas State United Girls Softball Association Tournament at Lancaster Field. Odessa had beaten Midland, 8-7 on Friday, so the win was a sweet one for the Tall City gals. Midland and Odessa met in the championship game Saturday evening. (Staff Photo by Mike Kardos).

Sisler won't take Yank job

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - George Sisler, general manager of the Columbus Clippers of the International League, will not accept the job of president of the New York Yankees, The Columbus Dispatch reported Friday.

"That's very clever," Sisler said when told of the report. "He didn't get it from me," he said of the story by reporter John McNeely. "I have no comment.

"It sounds like it ought to be a signed editorial.' Sisler added.

Sisler is reported to be one of several candidates being considered for the Yankees job left vacant when Al Rosen resigned. Sisler talked with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner about the position when the latter attended a Clippers' game here last week.

"I have not told anyone pro or con about that job for one simple reason,' Sisler said Friday. **************

FORT WORTH - Lightning pert near struck twice here Saturday night at Amon Carter Stadium.

The first bolt came when the flash from Sealy, halfback Eric Dickerson, zipped 43 yards at 11:03 of the fourth quarter for a touchdown that appeared to be for a while the game's only score. Craig James of Houston Strafford kicked the extra point and gave the South All-Stars a 7-0 bulge.

But late in the contest, the South tried their darndest to give the game away. Halfback Ernest Jackson of Lamar Consolidated was trapped behind the South line, fumbled the football, and quicker than you could say lightning never strikes twice, Ricky Sanders of Breckenridge scooped up the ball. The North was alive and well at the South 7-yard line with 27 sec-14. onds left in the game.

The North managed to score on one play when quarterback Rick McIvor of Fort Stockton found tight end Dewey Turner for seven yards with 23 seconds left.

Gambling for a two-point conversion, the North came up short and that in a nutshell was how the South squeaked out a 7-6 victory in the North-South Coaches All-Star game. The contest was played before 12,071 fans, but the North still leads the series, however, 25-16 with four ties. Linebacker Larry Twardowski of Aldine emerged the hero as he broke up the two-point attempt with a pass from McIvor to Turner. Dickerson, considered by most the finest player in Texas last fall, finished with 64 yards rushing on 15 carries. Named the game's outstanding halfback, he showed his stuff earlier with another 43-yard gallop, but that play was called back on off set-

HILVERSUM, Netherlands (AP) -Fifth-seeded Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia upset top-seeded Uli Pinner of West Germany 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 Saturday to gain the finals of the $75,000 Dutch Open Tennis Champion-

In Sunday's finals, Smid will face the No. 2 seed, defending champion Balasz Taroczy of Hungary, who overcame unseeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-7, 6-3 in an exiciting semifinal match that lasted well over three hours.

Pinner, who had lost a match to Smid at the Stuttgart tournament in West Germany last week, lived up to his seeding only in the first set Satur-

With the score 3-3 in the second set, Smid came to the net, winning his own serve and breaking for 5-3. He followed up by taking the set on his own serve with a love game.

In the final two sets, Smid dominated pay with hard serves and fast drives to the corners. The young Czech served seven aces.

In the other semifinal, Taroczy had to go all out to defeat Kodes, the 1973 Wimbledon champion.

Kodes began by winning the first game on Taroczy's service and, ably defending his lead, took the set to the applause of the 2,500 spectators.

The Hungarian, 10 years Kodes' junior, won the following two sets with aggressive play, but lost the fourth after a thrilling tiebreaker, won by Kodes 13-11. Taroczy's stamina proved to be the deciding factor.

Hafeman captures Western crown

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - It came down to the final hole once again here Saturday, and, just as she did on Friday, Mary Hafeman dropped a difficult putt for a victory that gave her the Women's Western Amateur Golf Association championship.

Hafeman, 22, of West Bend, Wis., rallied to defeat Honolulu's Lenore Muraoka 1-up on the 36th hole of the championship match at the Maple Bluff Country Club.

Hafeman had reached the finals with a 1-up victory over Judy Oliver of Sewickley, Pa., making an 18-foot downhill birdie putt on the 18th hole. Saturday's putt wasn't quite as long

- about 10 feet - and it was for a par, not a birdie. But again, it was going downhill and tricky "I just wanted to get close," said first 18 holes, and she went 2-up on the first hole of the second round. She maintained that advantage through most of the front nine. Her bogey-6 on the ninth allowed Hafeman to cut the lead, but Muraoka was 2-up again

Both golfers had trouble on the 11th, but Hafeman won it with a bogey-4. Muraoka dropped a 15-footer for a birdie on the 14th but Hafeman stayed with her by sinking a tricky sevenfooter, and then pulled even on the next hole with a birdie-4.

Woodhead Oberkfell enjoys captures Cardinal success three gold

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Cynthia Woodhead collected three more gold medals and dominated the women's swimming events Saturday at the National Sports Festival.

The 15-year-old high school sophomore from Riverside, Calif., breezed to the 100-meter freestyle and 400meter freestyle victories and anchored the winning West team's 400meter medley relay.

Woodhead, this country's best hope in the 1980 Moscow Olympics, was far off her record times in winning the 100 and 400 freestyles. The Californian, who said Friday she was having difficulty adjusting to the Colorado altitude, won the 100 freestyle with a time of 57.36, way below her American record of 55.80. ### Will organize GARMISCH-PARTENKIRS-CHEN, West Germany (AP) - This Bavarian Alpine resort, site of the 1936 Winter Olympics, wants to organize the world's biggest winter sports festival again in 1988, a town spokesman said Saturday.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — They were born and raised only a county apart, making it easy for Red Schoendienst — now a coach — to identify with the young player.

And just as Schoendienst's nimble play captured the hearts of St. Louis Cardinals fans three decades ago, so increasigly this summer are the performances of Ken Oberkfell.

Oberkfell, largely unacclaimed, ranks among the National League's most promising newcomers following an unspectacular 1978 season.

He journeyed to home plate only 50 times in a St. Louis uniform last year. In between, he spent two months on the bench. But what he learned there has served him well.

At the start of this season, the Cards' second base position belonged to Mike Tyson, an adroit fielder who carried a .246 lifetime batting mark. But in early May, as Tyson's of-fense dwindled, the insertion of the 23-year-old Oberkfell into the lineup produced some of the punch which Manager Ken Boyer was seeking.

Impressively, Oberkfell's first major league home run came May 13 off a knuckleball pitcher, the Atlanta Braves' Phil Niekro. Soon Boyer was platooning Oberkfell, a left-handed hitter,-with Tyson, a right-hander. And now, with a .324 batting average, Oberkfell has pretty much taken Schoendienst, a native of nearby Germantown, Ill., remembers his first look at Oberkfell, a Troy, Ill., resident who lives even closer to St.

"I was here when we signed him up," recalled Schoendienst, the Cards' pilot until 1977. "Joe Mathis (scout) had him out there at shortstop. He didn't fumble the ball. He was in the batting cage, and he hit about 10 out of the park."

Oberkfell played in 1975 at Johnson City, Tenn., and St. Petersburg, Fla. and a year later, it was at Arkansas. Afterward, his minor league stops were New Orleans and Springfield, Ken Reitz, the St. Louis third baseman, sees a marked difference be-tween the Oberkfell who hit .120 last year and this year's player.

"Last year, he was more to him-self," oberved Reitz. "Then, when he started to hit the ball the way he has, he started to show more confidence. He's got a good career ahead of Oberkfell's range afield, his improving pivots, his strong throws and probably, most of all, his bat have made coaching him special for Schoendienst.

Dickinson Amarillo winner

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Gary Dickinson rolled five straight strikes midway through the championship match, turned back the challenge of rookie Mike Aulby and won the $8,000 first prize Saturday in the Amarillo Open professional bowling tournament, 248-216.

Dickinson of Fort Worth, Texas, fell seven pins behind through the first three frames of the championship match but threw strikes on his next five shots. He clinched victory with a double in the 10th frame of the nationally televised match.

"I had confidence I could hit the pocket, especially on the TV lanes," Dickinson said. "It's been so long since I won that I wanted the win real bad. It's as big a victory as I've ever

It was Dickinson's sixth career PBA win and his first since 1976. Aulby, 19, of Indianapolis, Ind., started the finals in fifth place and had to beat three opponents to reach the title match. He earned $5,000 as Aulby began the stepladder finals by beating Frank Ellenburg 279-234. He then rolled past Earl Anthony 235-192 and beat second-seeded Fred

Benefit tilt for Stokes

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) - A tennis tournament featuring National Basketball Association players will be held in conjunction with the 21st Maurice Stokes Benefit Basketball Game next month.

The tournament, which Golden State Warriors guard John Lucas, a former professional tennis player, is favored to win, begins Aug. 14 and ends the next day. The basketball game will be held the evening of Aug. 14. Both events will take place at Kutsher's Country Club.

Twelve players who will participate in the basketball game will take part in the tennis tournament as well. The winner of tennis competition will get Stokes, an NBA star whose career was shortened when he contracted encephalitis in 1958, died in 1970. The basketball game is held each year to benefit the Maurice Stokes Foundaat a speed of 148.712 mph for today's NASCAR Grand National 500 race at Pocono Raceway.

It was the first pole position ever for Gant, of Taylorsville, N.C., driving a 1979 Chevrolet Impala.

Gant, who has won $19,960 this year, said he had handling problems early in the morning, then had to solve an ignition difficulty before time trials. Cale Yarborough was second fastest at 148.633 mph and Darrell Waltrip was next quickest at 148.171. Waltrip won the race here last summer and in 1977 was the polesitter.

Gant said he followed Cale Yarborough during warmups to "learn how to drive the track" and then huddled with another rookie driver, Dale Earnhardt, who suggested taking a low route through each of the

"So I went down low, nearly getting into the dirt on the apron of the track on the turns," said Gant. "I noticed Cale was also running low through the turns and Dale said he could get through it better driving it deep. So I just went out and drove it as deep and low as it would go and everything worked out good.

Dale Earnhardt qualified for fourth place, Bobby Allison for fifth, Earnhardt complained of handling difficulties and noted "the track had changed because of temperature."

Neil Bonnett, one of the quicker drivers during practice on Friday in the Purolator Mercury, was in eighth

"We ran faster earlier in the morning," Bonnett said. "But when the sun came out and it heated up, we lost some of our power. It happened to a lot of the cars.

"The pole position was our first priority," he said. "But not getting it doesn't dampen my thoughts for the race. Our car is plenty capable of winning on Sunday.

NASCAR tech officials rejected dozens of cars just before qualifying, noting that the cars were too low to the ground. Mechanics had to wrench front and rear wedge bolts to raise the car from the chassis.

"There have been some complaints about cars being too low," driver Richard Childress said. "I guess NA-SCAR is tightening its rules about

Surprising statistics

By JON CHASE

A Texas Fishery biologist survey for the first half of 1978 has turned up some surprising statistics.

The biologists monitored 377 bass tournaments across the state and compiled results involving 10,000 fishermen and 18,000 bass caught.

The much advertised bass lakes, such as Toledo Bend, Livingston and Sam Rayburn were a long way from being the top fish producers, based on pounds of fish per man per day. The big three lakes produced an average of around 1.5 pounds of bass per day

The big surprise was Hawkins Lake, west of Longview. This lake, unheard of by most fishermen, produced an average of 3.4 pounds of bass per day per man. Eddie Marberry, a Lake Palestine guide, had told me about Hawkins a couple of years ago and his high opinion of this impoundment is obviously well found-

Another sleeper was Casa Blanca Lake at the Laredo City Park. Casa Blanca turned in an average of 2.6 pounds, which is a full pound more than our nationally famous bass lakes

The lake that really surprised me, however, and one that I am so apt to criticize, was Colorado City Lake. Colorado City produced better than 2.7 pounds of bass per fisherman, and for Midlanders, it is right in our own backyard. This one left me a little red in the face because I have always thought that Colorado City was more of a carp factory than anything else.

The number one big bass lake in the survey turned out to be Lake Palestine, my favorite lake (with the possible exception of Brady). Out of 377 tournament, 19 per cent of all bass over six pounds were taken from Lake Palestine. Lake Conroe also beat the nationally publicized lakes in the over six pound category.

This survey doesn't prove that Colorado City Lake is a better bass lake than Toledo Bend or that Casa Blanca is superior to Lake Livingston. What it does is enhance the reputation of the state's lesser known bodies of water and provides some legitimate options to those who are unable to fish the more famous bass lakes in

I reported a few months ago that the Texas Fishery biologists had found that Brady Lake was one of the state's best producers of bass over six pounds per man hour of fishing. The reason this statistic didn't show up in this latest survey is that bass tournaments are outlawed on Brady, so no data was available.

Heavy rains this past week over the Eastern and Coastal portions of the state have really shut down the bass fishing and the salt water fishing. The cat fishing has, of course, gone wild, with everyone catching fish on the East Texas reservoirs.

Last Wednesday, Butch Jordon and Henry Allen of Tyler caught 48 channel cats to 7½ pounds on Lake-O-The Pines. They were trotlining in the timber, using worms and shrimp for bait. Roosevelt Brown of Houston caught an 18 pound and 21 pound yellow cat on a trotline on Lake Summerville. He was baiting with live

Steve Reynolds of Dallas caught an 834 pound black bass last Thursday on Lake Palestine. He took the lunker on a purple creme worm in 20-feet of water. John Nance of San Antonio caught a 61/2 pounder the same day from Palestine on a Lunker Lure in 41/2 feet of water near the river chan-

Area lakes have been turning up some good fish with Clyde Moore of Lamesa catching a 51/2 and 41/2 pound black pass on Lake Spence last Saturday. Both fish hit bass minnows drifted in 35-feet of water.

A 171/2 pound striper went to Oscar Ortiz of Laredo. He caught the lunker on Lake Amistad last Sunday, trolling a sliver Hellbender in 25-feet of water. Oscar also strung an 8 pounder on nave recently been heavily stocked with Florida Bass and threadfin shad. This should cause some real excitement in three or four years as the combination of Florida Bass and shad should produce some huge fish in the near future. The threadfin shad will also produce some bragging size crappie. Oak Creek has always been a big bass lake and the introduction of Floridas will guarantee that the reputation continues.

Speaking of Florida Bass, a few weeks ago, Neal Smith of San Antonio caught a Florida Bass on Lake Calaveros. The fish weighed in at 10 pounds on his De-Lair fish scale. Neal strung his trophy and tied it to a treelimb on the bank. When h was ready to head for home and do some heavy bragging, he pulled in the stringer and stared at all the turtles had left - a head and skeleton.

It kinda makes you want to cry.

Elderly widow, brother restoring old water power plant

By RICK HAMPSON

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) -While the nation talks about energy, 75-year-old Mary Heather is getting ready to generate some of her own parlaying a $5,000 investment into a mom-and-pop power company.

Mrs. Heather and her kid brother -Joseph Guerrieri is only 70 - are restoring and refitting a vandalized, abandoned hydroelectric power plant that hasn't produced a spark since

Years of lobbying, cleaning repairing and rebuilding could start paying off this fall, when the determined septuagenarians expect their old plant to begin generating between 250 and 500 kilowatts.

"That may not be much, but if we can generate enough for 100 homes, I'll feel we're doing our part," says Mrs. Heather, a retired school teacher who lives right off Main Street in this pretty old town in the Berk-

The Massachusetts Electric Co. has agreed to buy power from the tiny power company at a rate based on what it would cost to generate its "Plants like this were given up years ago because they were too small to be efficient. But now, with the higher price of oil, they can make money if they keep overhead costs down," says John Carney of Massachusetts Electric.

Carney said Mrs. Heather could receive up to $30,000 a year from the utility - "not a killing" - but he added aesthetic and environmental concerns were what made the project worthwhile. Oil costs and worries about nuclear energy are making hydroelectric power an increasingly attractive alternative, and Washington is granting funds for projects like Mrs. Heather's. But so far she and her brother have avoided Uncle Sam's largesse.

"Mary Heather is exceptional," says Theresa Theobold of the staff of Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., who visited the power station last month.

"Most people want to know 'What can government do for me.' But she's ahead of government. She won't even wait for grants," Ms. Theobold says.

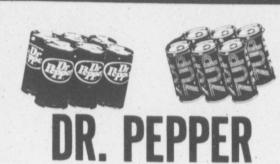

Mary Heather's quest for power began in 1975, when another of her brothers heard about plans to demolish the 73-year-old power station on the Housatonic River. She persuaded the town to sell her the plant, its dam and land for $5,000.

The energy association opted for authenticity in its restoration, trudging across New England to find turbines and generators that were period pieces, not new replacements.

For Mrs. Heather, "It all was great fun," until her husband died last August, leaving her alone to care for their retarded son. Now, she says, the job seems harder.

It is also expensive. She says she and her brother have spent at least $150,000 on equipment and repairs, not including their time.

DIRT, SQUIRT & QUIRT

Severe weather kills apricot trees

CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent -- Agriculture

Crops, native pastures, gardens and ornamentals generally made excellent growth in the Midland area last week. The good rainfall and higher humidities following have been a boon to plant life. We are continuing to monitor insect activity in crops and have found no economic damage occurring.

Cotton fleahoppers averaged 4 per 100 terminals, bollworm eggs 4 and worms 2 per 100 terminals. Beneficials are present in light numbers. Alfalfa has light numbers of aphids and caterpillars and moderate numbers of lygus and stinkbugs, but no conomic damage.

About mid-summer in most areas of Texas, gardeners begin wondering what's wrong with their cucumbers. If they have not already died, they have quite producing or those cucumbers that they do produce are misshapen and often bitter. The answer to what happened is probably a multitude of Chances are the problem began with the onset of high tempuratures. Cucumbers, although a warm season crop, do best under fairly mid temperatures with adequate moisture and relatively high levels of fertility. Consequently, cucumber production is generally highest early in the season and begins to taper off as the season progresses and temperatures increase.

Also, with the occurance of higher temperatures, diseases and insects become more of a problem. Powdery mildew can literally destroy a cucumber planting during hot, dry conditions if preventive fungicides are not applied.

The "gourdy" or misshapened fruit can be brought about by plant stress as a result of low moisture, poor fertility, or insects and diseases, but probably the most common cause is poor pollination. Fruit set will not occur if pollen is not transfered from the male bloom to the female bloom, primarily by bees. Hot weather causes poor pollination. If partial or inadequate pollination occurs, then the fruit set will often be misshapen.

In general, anything that causes the plant to stree rather than grow rapidly can result in misshapened fruit. Bitterness is a widely occurring problem which is not well understood. Bitterness, as well as misshapened fruit, is often associated with plant stress and/or high temperatures and low moisture.

Invariably fruit from early pickings in the spring or from late pickings in the fall (those that mature under cooler conditions) lack bitterness. It is relatively safe to say that the best way to help pre-vent bitterness is maintain the plant in a rapid state of growth, free of diseases and insects and well watered and fertilized. yet, even, under ideal conditions, bitterness has been known to occur.

Cucumbers can be one of the most prolific garden crops, but at the same time can be one of the most troublesome. Good variety selection along with proper disease and insect control and good cultural practices can prevent many problems.

Many apricot trees have died this spring and summer in the Midland area and West Texas in general. Others have many dead limbs and appear to be declining. Most of the deaths appear to be caused nainly by severe weather and improper care rather han disease organisms.

Many people watered and fertilized their lawns, and indirectly their trees, late into the fall because of the mild weather well into November. The trees did not harden off and the succulent growth was killed in the first hard frost, appearing as dieback in the spring. Many of the dying apricot trees were not pruned during the winter. Our area horticulturist, Vernon Skies, recommends that approximately 40 percent of the limbs should be pruned out each winter to keep the trees vigorous. Most homeowners did not thin the heavy fruit set that was common throughout the area, counting on the wind or hail to do it. Many trees that were not thinned by the weather may have died from the stress of trying to fill too many fruits.

In come cases root problems, such as root knot nemat odes and/or bacterial gall added to the stress. We have information, free for the asking, in the County Extension office on proper care and pruining

'Being blind is a whole new world'

Rene Dimney, who is blind, sweeps her kitchen floor with her electric sweeper. Mrs. Dimney does all her housework without the aid of a maid. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

cards, her partners better be prepared. (Staff

Lifestyle Writer "I tell you, being blind is no fun. It's like a whole new world," says Rene Dimney who has been blind for nine years.

By SANDI BREEDEN

"There are no advantages. However, you do find out who your friends are," the lively woman stated.

Mrs. Dimney became blind because of diabetes. In 1968, while living in Denver, Colo., she suffered from a detached retina. The doctor then told her within two years she would be blind. "I didn't just wake up blind one morning. At first I could see normal. Then I could see an outline of things and then just a bare outline," she said. By the end of 1970, with a husband and two teenage children, she was totally blind.

"I was the only person in the world who was blind," she said about her first experiences as a blind person. "I was self centered. It especially was a trying time for my daughter Melissa, who was 16 at the time, because she was at an age where she needed someone. But I thought I needed someone more.

"WHEN I FIRST BECAME BLIND, I thought all I could do was sit on the couch and wait for someone to come tell me when it was time to eat. Finally, a homeworker in Denver from the rehabilation center for the blind said, 'You can do anything you want to do.' I got to thinking about that and then I started going to the rehab center. Although my family didn't go, what I learned, I taught them. Most states have rehabilation centers for blind people, said Mrs. Dimney. "They teach all aspects of housework. They teach you how to cook and sew. They teach you how to use a cane and mobility.

As she gracefully walked through her living room with a couch away from the wall and furniture arranged in a way no one would believe a blind person lived there, the self-assured woman told of her mobility

"They start you out with a cane and make you walk in a residential area with little traffic. Then you progress to streets with heavier traffic," she said. "Towards the end of mobility, I had to cross Sante Fe Street in Denver, which is a very busy street. Let me tell you, I lost 10 years," she laughed.

'On the last test my teacher let me out across the street and told me to go to the pet store on Sante Fe Street. I was like a little kid staggering," she grinned. "Once I found a point of similarity, mine was a laundromat I could smell which was by the pet store, I almost ran to the pet store. It made me feel so good," she stated.

MRS. DIMNEY SAID SHE WOULD be able to see again if man-made retinas were available. "When I became blind there was nothing they could do to stop the blindness once it started. Now I think they have medicine to prevent the blindness caused by diabetes." she said.

Being blind, said Mrs. Dimney, does not mean just seeing black and white. "I see red and black and sometimes it seems like I'm seeing through blood; the eye does hemorrhage," she stated.

The two worst things about being blind is not being able to get in your car and go when you want and not being able to read the women's news in the newspaper, according to Mrs. Dimney. "I listen to the news on television for an hour every morning and listen to Walter Cronkite in the evening, but I never know about women's news." she

Although many seeing Midlanders have maids, Mrs. Dimney does her housework without one. She cleans, mends clothes and does her own cooking. Her electric stove with a double oven appears to be a stove for a normal person. And it almost is. The only difference is her oven knobs have grooves filed where the various degrees are printed. However, the knobs to the top burners on the stove have no grooves. "I know from off to the right is high. From there I listen to the food cooking and decide whether to turn the temperature up or down. If you're memory is gone, you're dead," she laughed.

Accidents while cooking happen to Mrs. Dimney not any more often than they do to the seeing housewife. "One Thanksgiving I was putting a turkey in the oven and misjudged the door and it threw me off balance. The turkey fell to the floor and I threw myself to the side so I wouldn't hit that hot door. I broke my hip. My husband said 'Why didn't you call one of us' — after 30 years of doing something yourself, you don't want to ask for someone elses help," she stated.

VAN doing good

By PATSY GORDON Lifestyle Writer

With proper guidance, the visually handicapped person can be taught many things.

They can learn to use their existing cooking, laundry and telephone facilities through a marking system. They can be taught to take messages, make a shopping list, walk unaided by using a cane and even learn braille.

There is a Midland organization called Visual-Aids News Mobile (VAN) that can help the handicapped to do all of these things and more. What is VAN?

VAN is a non-profit organization dedicated to to helping the visually handicapped with aids and services not available by other means.

This work is centered about a mobile unit which can travel in an approximate 80-mile radius of Midland, as well as the Tall City itself.

VAN, under the direction of Mrs. Mamye Kroenlein Martin, helps the visually and physically handicapped to adjust to their home or institutional environment by marking stoves, clocks, canned goods, cooking equipment, medicine, cosmetics, clothing, in a way that can be identified by the handicapped without help.

It also orders appliances and aids such as braille writers, canes, raised lined paper, prism glasses, talking book equipment and more.

Another service of VAN is enrolling those needing help in the federal talking book or big print book program. The organization teaches beginning braille, and if progress is shown, enrolls them in Hadley School for the Blind at Austin for correspondence courses, such as touch typing and almost any high school or accredited college courses.

Van strives to supply handicrafts so the handicapped can earn money for Martin.

themselves. Van lends the necessary equipment so the handicapped can make finished products to be sold without profit by participating stores in the area.

One of the largest endeavors of Van, according to Mrs. Martin, is to educate the public to accept and absorb the totally blind or partially handicapped persons into civic activities. "It is no disgrace to be blind," said Mrs. Martin, who has lost a portion of her eyesight. "It's inconvenient, but this doesn't mean the blind can't be good, useful citizens."

The organization is not subsidized by United Way or the federal government, said Mrs. Martin. "Van is supported solely by contributions and memorials. There are no paid workers and the directors and administrators receive no salary. Contributions are used for supplies, materials and services.

Miscellaneous items carried in the mobile unit for demonstration purposes are playing cards, bingo cards, board games, braille rules, needle threaders, cooking and household equipment, medicine dispensing equipment as prescribed by a physician and as listed in the American Foundation for the Blind catalogue or other suppliers. Also available to the visually impaired through the AFB catalogue is a clock with a time switch to turn on and off light household appliances, such as televisions, radios and tape recorders.

Mrs. Martin has just returned from New York City, where she purchased magnifying glasses of various power, made possible by donations from the Terminal Lions and Delta Gamma Alumnae of Midland. These recently were displayed at Trinity Towers and will be available at VAN office at 2008 Princeton Ave., also the home of Mrs.

Van was begun in 1973 by Mrs. Martin, who has lived in the Tall City since 1939

In 1940, Mrs. Martin, faced with the prospect of raising two small daughters after being widowed, founded the Kroenlein Geological Records Service, which she operated until 1962.

Mrs. Martin's background well prepares her for the position of director of VAN. Her education background includes courses at the University of Colorado, nurse's training at the University of Chicago, McCormack Presbyterian Theological Seminary, business education in Roswell, N.M. and, has completed courses in rehabilitation for the blind and advanced braille at the Hadley School for the Blind.

Besides her professional work, Mrs. Martin has given much to the community in volunteer work. In 1945, she was honored by being named the Midland Business Woman of the Year; in 1969, she received the "Tallest in the Tall City" award from the Texas Republican Women and in 1971, was again honored by them at the state level with the Tops 'N Texas award. After educating her daughters, Mrs. Martin retired from the business world, having developed a visual problem, thereby faced with eventual blindness. She began investigating services that might be helpful to her, and soon decided to share her findings with others who had similar prob-

The idea of a Tape Lending Library was conceived, also started in her home, and the service is still operat-

In 1978, Van had approximately 40 volunteers who worked 800 hours with 40 clients. The service area of VAN covers 19 counties.

Society has shown it prefers putting the blind in the closet, ashamed of them. But they have a true friend in Van and Mayme Martin.

Women in religion—as shepherds or sheep?

By WANDA MOUTON Lifestyle Editor

Women's role in the church has traditionally been that of Sunday School teacher, cake baker and fund raiser.

But these stereotyped roles no longer satisfy many women in the various denominational reli-

Views on the changing role of women in the church vary widely from one church to the next, even from one individual to the

In Midland, women are slowly working into the leadership roles of the church

"Methodists have been in the forefront of this for a number of years," said Dr. Charles Lutrick, pastor of the First United Methodist church. "For example, we've had great participation by our laywomen not only in the local church, but also in denominational leadership.'

THE QUESTION of women in the pulpit has not been an issue for some time in the United Methodist Church. Women were officially granted full clergy rights in 1956. As early as 1829 Amanda Way was licensed to preach in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"For many years, the United Methodist Women (UMW) organization has had a strong leadership role, largely through development of the missions program," said Dr. Lutrick.

"In 1968, UMW became united with the United Methodist Board of Global Ministry, with approximately one-third of that board reserved for women of UMW,"

OF 205 PASTOR appointments in the West Texas area, six are women. "This isn't a very good ratio, but it has all occurred in the past eight years," said Dr. Lutrick.

An example of the growing acceptance of women as leaders in the church is shown by enrollment at the Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, which has more than 70 women registered out of approximately 425 students.

'I would say that the involvement of women in religion has more than doubled in the past four or five years," said Dr. Lutrick. "Many churches in the area have increased the number of women on the various committees, including finance, trustees, and membership in the administrative board," he said.

'All of this reflects the ability of women to become part of program development, policymaking, coordination and implementation of local church programs and activities," he

He feels that this is a contrast to the previous stereotyped roles of women baking cakes, serving meals and participating in only those roles relating to missionary efforts.

In the Southern Baptist faith, views vary widely from one church to the next.

Generally, however, a woman is not welcome in the Southern Baptist pulpit.

"WHAT IS RIGHT for one church may not be right for another," said Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor of the First Baptist Church here.

He challenges the stereotyped role of Sunday School teacherbake sale operator

'The First Baptist Church has always been characterized by strong leadership of women-in missions, education, music and on the church committees," he

"Our view of leadership is that of being a servant because Jesus, the greatest leader who ever lived, was also the greatest servant," he said.

"All of our church committees have women members and they are very active, working committees," he added. None of the committees, however, are chaired by women.

"I have the conviction that God calls women to full-time ministry as much as He calls men," said Dr. Vestal. "In fact, we have one full-time minister on our staff who is Doris Bruce, music associate.

"I do have a difficult time seeing a woman as a pastor because that has to do with a woman having authority over a

The basic scriptural premise (against women as preachers) is in a writing to Timothy. where Paul gives the requirements for both deacons and preachers. And the requirements are given to men, exlained Dr. Vestal.

'I have friends who disagree, who believe that this was simply the culture of the time, but 1 don't see that. I think it is part of the divine plan," he added.

HE BELIEVES THAT the role of women in the church here, as well as in most Baptist churches, has taken two directions-in teaching and missions. He said that he doesn't believe the role of women at First Baptist Church will change dramatically "because women have always been strong here. I see that as continuing and growing," he said.

'Generally speaking, I believe that throughout the denomination there will be more involvement in the lay ministry.'

PERHAPS THE ONLY FE-MALE pastor in the area is the Rev. Betty Mendizza, pastor of The Church of Religious Sci-

She considers herself not so much a preacher as a teacher, however.

'We emphasize classwork, learning, workshops and not preaching", she said. She thinks that about half of the pastors in the Religious Science church are women. 'There really is no issue of men or women leadership in our church," she said. "We're all the same spiritually, so it's an irrelevant issue.'

"THERE ARE WOMEN teachers in every field, so why should ours be any different, she

She is fairly new to the pastorate, having only been in Midland with the church for a year and a

The church is referred to as a New Thought Movement, but the movement is as old as the teachings of Jesus, she said. "We believe that God is life. We know that we have life in us. As the highest form on the evolutionary scale, we know that we can be in control of our lives. 'We believe that everything in a unit is one

'This church wasn't established in the beginning as a church, but more as a philosophy of religion from a scientific angle," she said. "It's a new philosophy, but we study a combination of science, the rules of philosophy and religion and how those three work together in our everyday lives."

The Rev. Mendizza is from California, the international headquarters for the Church of Religious Science.

"After 30 years of being a wife and mother, the rug was suddenly pulled out from under me," she said. "I had spent all of my life raising a family and suddenly I had to ask myself what do I want to do.

SHE HAD ALREADY attended many workshops sponsored by the Religious Science Church. She took a few college courses and somehow ended up in Ministerial School, "not because I wanted to be a minister but because I wanted to know more, she said.

She is a graduate of the threeyear School of Ministery in Los Angeles. After her graduation, she was called by the congragation here in Midland.

"Women are finally being recognized as real persons," said. "They are having to learn their identity. As for myself, I know that I was at first some-

"He is ready to operate through us, whoever we are,"

he said. "The role of women in the church is a controversial issue,' he said. "There are a lot of strengths in this area that we want to use for the glory of God. I know it's threatening because it's something new and differ-

He believes that the changing role of women is one of the exciting dimensions of life in the church at the moment. The Episcopal Church three years ago decided to officially accept women as members of the clergy, though final decisions are still left up to the local bishop and the church congrega-

"We have some women in leadership roles where they hadn't been before," said the Rev. Hulsey. "Some of the men are also participating in roles formerly held by women. For example, at our last Lent, men prepared the soup supper, a duty formerly taken by the women of our church.

IN ADDITION, one of the most important roles in our church here is Junior Warden, a position now held by a woman. She is responsible for the operation of buldings and grounds.

"For some years, we have had women on the Vestry, or governing board. We continue to have a vital program led by the women of the parish, who still do the traditional tasks. And many of the traditional tasks are still done by the men. We're not really trying to concentrate on one particular area," he added.

The Rev. Hulsey said that he feels that in many ways, women in modern times have been denied their true rights and have not been given a real chance. "In a church of Christ, if we are to follow a sense of justice, we must be sensitive to that, he said. "A church wants to be a one's daughter, then someone's wife, then someone's mother. I think it's time for women to stretch themselves, and I don't think it should be treated any differently in the church."

THE HOLY SPIRIT isn't limited by gender, according to the Rev. Sam Hulsey, pastor of the model institution as much as possible. Women have tremendous gifts to offer and they must be allowed to offer those gifts.

"I want to approach the matter theologically, psychologically and scientifically, and, at the same time, want to remember the complex traditions of our culture in the church."

Being blind does not keep Rene Dimney from knowing what time it is. She just lifts the face on her watch and feels the dots, starting with the two dots designating 12 o'clock.

She's a person with insight (Continued from Page 1G)

ALTHOUGH SHE CAN, SHE DOESN'T fry or boil much. "I cook roasts, meat loaf and chili rellenos, things that don't require heat. I could do that but my husband does it for me."

Mrs. Dimney, a volunteer for Visual Aids-News Mobile. said her family has been great since she became blind. "They never move things without letting me know. I'm sure when I first became blind was a very bad time for both children. And my husband could have left me nine years ago. But now that I can take care of myself more, he can relax more," she said.

Although she can sew, Mrs. Dimney says she doesn't because it's not fun anymore. "You can't see what you've sewn," she said. "I still repair seams and things like that.'

Blindness may have been a handicap to Mrs. Dimney nine years ago, but she has obviously overcome any handicap she might have had. Not only does she do her own housework, she also goes shopping, with a friend who drives, goes to listen to the orchestra, enjoys herself at parties and wins and loses money at bridge, a favorite pasttime of

At first glance the cards look like the average playing cards a lot of American's pacify their time with. However, on every card in the deck Mrs.

and top corner are several dots showing what the card is. "The outside dots show the number of the card and the inside dot is what suite the cerd is in," she said with a twinkle in her eye. She has her own brailler and does her own cards, although they are available at stores. "I play with my cards under the table so no one can see when I'm out of a suit," she chuckled. "In braille there are no numbers, so if you have an 8, the dots on the outside would be braille for 'H'. Jacks, queens, kings and aces are their first letter.'

Dimney plays with, on the lefth-

IS blind, get up in the morning, put their makeup and clothing on and spend the day at home? Mrs. Dimney said not being able to see to put her makeup on was no problem because before she became blind she never used a mirror while applying her makeup. "But after I had put it on, I would look in the mirror and make sure it was all right. Now I just ask my husband, son or whoever picks me up if my makeup is all right. I do the same thing with clothes," she

HOW DOES SOMEONE WHO

She does go shopping for clothes but while other women are eyeing clothes she is feeling and asking whoever is with her what the blouse or dress looks like. "When I was first blind my friends would try not to hurt my feelings when I would call and ask if they wanted to go shopping. They wouldn't say they couldn't, but now they say they can't and we go on another day.

Knowing what time it is is not a problem with Mrs. Dimney either. She wears a wrist watch that has a dot for every hour and two dots for 12 o'clock. The face of the watch gracefully comes off so she can feel the dots. "Jewlery stores in Midland clean watches for blind people free of charge and that really helps," she said. She also has a timer with grooves marked at every five second intervals.

Reading is another pleasure Mrs. Dimeny hasn't given up because she cannot see. "I don't read braille well, so I use cassette tapes and talking books (records) to read. I read "The Godfather" when it first came out and I've read other books I had read a long time ago.'

Not denying herself the pleasure of being an outgoing woman, Mrs. Dimney keeps a file box with index cards with names and numbers of friends and important numbers that she does with her brailler. And every Christmas she types and mails out 40 Christmas letters. "I've always been a good typist," she stated.

How to remove gasoline stains

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q .- Our concrete garage floor has some gasoline stains on it. I have tried hosing it down without too much result. The mark gets a little lighter, but it seems that I would have to do it 100 times to remove the entire stain. Is there some special way these stains could be removed? A.— Such stains usually are from oil or some auto fluid other than gasoline, unless your tank is leaking, in which case you had better get it fixed in a hurry. Whatever the marks are, they are not always easy to remove. You can buy one of the driveway cleaners that are on the market or use trisodium phosphate or another heavyduty cleanser and follow the instructions on how to apply it. Or you can cover the stains with sand or dry Portland ce-ment until the liquid is absorbed. But whatever you use, the chances are it will take several treatments before any results are obtained.

"The Midland High School Student Concil has a unique program that was begun in 1957 by the late Jack Mashburn, a long time administra-tor at the school," said Mrs. John Mills, president of the Midland AFS Chapter.

"The program is unique in that the council, as a group, raises the money to send a Midland student to participate in the summer AFS program," she explained. In other communities, all funds are raised by the local chapter.

CLAIRE IS visiting Greece and staying with a family there as a representative of Midland High School and the city of Midland.

"The country and family are carefully selected by the AFS organization," said Mrs. Mills. "The student is not only a representative of our country, but is a return ambassador for the country visited.'

All money used for the program is raised through the sale of magazine subscriptions by students at Midland High

In addition, the council also provides funds for a foreign student to visit Midland for a year, to live with a selected host

That was nine years and 36 round-trips to the hospital ago.

"I'd never seen another (heart) like it,' said Dr. Stanley Higashino, chief of cardiology at Children's Hospital Medical Center. "It was so small it was barely enough to keep her alive, and there was nothing we could do about it."

Higashino also discovered a hole in the right side of her heart and high blood pressure in a lung

Old jerky jogs modern West Texas appetites

West Texans tuned to the past shouldn't be surprised to find jerky, that nutritious hand-medown from pioneer-day diets, enjoying revived popularity these days as an appetizer and handy snack foods. For, as jerky fans say, it was simply too good to stay buried in the past.

When the West was young and grub was wherever a man could find it, venison, buffalo, beef and other meats were jerked all the way across the advancing frontier by hearty men who chewed while they conquered. In the absence of refrigeration and other preservatives those days, it was fresh meat, jerky, or no meat. Thus, dried meat became the number one food.

The Indians, who developed the art of preserving meat by drying it in the sun, were not as concerned about the kind of meat they jerked as its availability, and they obligingly shared their secrets.

Jerky proved highly portable, durable and nourishing, and could be eaten on the run with no fuss or muss, which made it a staple in the frontier diet and a prized item of early commerce.

These same attributes made jerky a handy answer to nour-ishment problems today, be it out in the country, in the back-yard, or in front of the TV set. Sportsmen, legislators, judges, lawyers, kids and just plain folks out for a good time agree that jerky makes a good chew. Even planet-hopping astronauts found it so on their journeys up

Jerky is available commercially these days in most food and snack stores, and annual sales run into the millions. Try some. And, if your pulse quickens to the challenge of making your own, welcome to the club.

your own, welcome to the club.
Old hands at jerky making often have their own secret formulas for coming up with just the right blend of tooth-tension and taste delight. The bold and adventurous try the old Indian sun-drying method, with excellent results, especially when the weather is dry and sunny.

However, it is recommended that the novie, who tackles jerky making for the first time, follow these simple procedures:

First, select the cuts of beef or venison to be used as jerky. The fact that the meat may have been frozen makes no difference. Just let it thaw out first, though you may want to do your slicing while the meat is still firm in a partially-frozen state. In the case of beef, flank or round steak are preferred. Just be secure it is very lean. For venison jerky, use the same cuts you ordinarily would lay aside for making into sausage or hamburger. Whichever meat you use—and this is important—be sure to trim away as much of the fat and gristle as possible, for these can become rancid and spoil the finished product.

Remember, jerky is all lean.

That's why some of the more fancy cuts of well-marbled meat, for instance, will not do.

After trimming the meat, cut it into strips of five or six inches in length, or longer if possible, and about a quarter-inch thickness.

Into a bowl or dish that can be covered, place your first layer of slied meat, sprinkle it lightly (liberally, if you like it salty) with hickory smoked salt and, if you like, add a pinch of garlic or onion salt for seasoning.

Then a second layer goes over the first, salt and season as before, and repeat the process until you have treated all the slices of meat.

Next, cover the dish and place in your refrigerator overnight or for about eight hours. This gives the salt and seasoning time to permeate and flavor the meat.

Next morning, drain and pat strips dry with paper toweling. Arrange individual strips, with space between, on a rack in a shallow baking pan or on a cook-

Then pop them into the oven of your kitchen range at a very low heat—150 to 200 degrees—for four or five hours. Check periodically for desired dryness. Allow more time for hard, brittle jerky and less time for the chewy

Slow, steady heat only dehydrates the meat by removing all moisture. The meat then shrivels and shrinks, as it is supposed to do, and will be almost black in color.

When it cools, your jerky is ready to eat. Stored in tightly covered jars, it will keep a long time. On field trips, carry some with you in plstic bags or wrapped in foil to keep out mois-

You will find jerky to be good old-fashioned fare that adds an authentic touch of frontier gastronomy to any venture.
