'Last attempt' to convict Davis to begin today in Fort Worth courtroom

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Prosecutors begin what probably will be their last attempt to put millionaire Cullen Davis behind bars today with the opening of jury selection in his second trial on murder-for-hire

Attorneys will try to glean a jury of 12 from 500 prospective panelists called to District Judge Gordon Gray's courtroom. Gray denied a prosecutor's motion for a change of venue last May, but he has said if a jury cannot be found in Davis' hometown, he will not hesitate to move the trial to another Texas city.

The first murder solicitation trial - moved to Houston after a jury could not be seated in Fort Worth - ended in mistrial earlier this year. Observers have speculated that the Tarrant County district attorney's office will not pursue further prosecution if Davis is not convicted at the the conclusion of this trial.

The industrialist is accused of trying to hire the murder of District Judge Joe Eidson, the jurist who was presiding over Davis' drawn-out and stormy divorce from Priscilla Davis. The judge was not hurt and the couple since has been granted a divorce by another judge.

Several bizarre developments have clouded the week preceding jury selection in the already complicated case.

The Dallas Morning News has reported that a witness gave testimony to a Tarrant County grand jury Friday that supports Davis' alibi in a shooting spree unrelated to the present charges. Davis was the prime suspect in the Aug. 2, 1976, shootings at his $6 million mansion that left two dead and two wounded. Davis' then-estranged wife, Priscilla, and a family friend, Gus Gavrel, were wounded in that shooting. Priscilla's daughter, Andrea Wilborn, and her lover, Stan Farr, were killed. Davis was acquitted of the murder of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea, in 1977 by an Amarillo jury. He has not been brought to trial on any other charges stemming from that midnight attack.

Earlier this month, Davis' alibi was entered into court documents for the first time in a deposition taken for a civil damage suit filed by Gavrel. He said in the deposition he went to a movie and a restaurant alone the night of the shootings

There has been no explanation as to why the grand jury witness waited until the week before Davis' second murder solicitation trial to come

Also last week, prosecutors charged that the wealthy Fort Worth man had bought off two witnesses who testified in his behalf in Houston.

Bomb threats stall traffic in Madrid

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Police shut down Madrid's subway system for one hour and 15 minutes today because of telephoned bomb warnings after weekend bomb and gun attacks by Basque separatists killed nine persons and wounded more than 100

There were threats also to the capital's international airport, where a bomb killed one person and injured nine on Sunday, but air traffic was reported normal

A bus station on the southern edge of the city also was closed temporarily because of a bomb warning but none was found, the police said.

They reported an anonymous caller said bombs had been planted on three of the subway system's seven lines. The caller did not say when the bombs were set to go off. The subway resumed service after explosive experts found no bombs.

It was not known if the threats were part of the escalation in the campaign by Basque guerrillas to sabotage the Spanish government's autonomy plan for the Basque provinces.

Five persons were killed and at least 113 were wounded by three bombs that exploded within 15 minutes early Sunday afternoon at two Madrid railroad stations and the airport. Police said they were warned about 30 minutes before the explosions but were unable to evacuate all of the hundreds of travelers in the crowded terminals.

Meanwhile, gunmen in the Basque provinces in northwest Spain shot and killed two policemen Saturday in Bilbao, killed two more policemen near San Sebastian Sunday and wounded three highway patrolmen near Pamplona on Sunday

Officials said two Americans, Eugene and Theresa de Nattei, were among those injured at the airport. They were waiting for a flight to San Francisco, but their home address could not be learned

The telephoned warnings, said the bombs were planted by ETA, or Euskadi Ta Askatasuna, which means Basque Land and Liberty in the Basque language.

ETA has been waging a campaign of assassination, bombing, kidnapping and robbery for the independence of the four Basque provinces since 1968. It has killed more than 200 persons and recently began bombing hotels and bars at coastal resorts to hurt the government by driving foreign tourists away.

An opinion poll late last year indicated only 2 percent of the 2 million Spanish Basques support ETA, but that support is threatened by a government proposal, approved by a parliamentary commission last week, to reinstate the autonomy granted the Basques by the republican government and taken away by dictator

Couple still awaits word of child

By DAN SEWELL

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) -Russell Thompson spent his 34th birthday sitting in a motel room, staring at the Atlantic Ocean. His wife, even under sedation, couldn't keep from sobbing.

Their only child, 5-year-old Caroline, was abducted in a bizarre kidnapping as the couple was beginning a vacation-birthday celebration.

Authorities today said they still had no useful leads to the whereabouts of the blonde, blue-eyed child, the Thompson's 1979 Oldsmobile and two pet dogs in the back of the car when it was taken Saturday.

"I wish I had something to tell you," police Sgt. Charles Sloan said this morning, "but I don't" Sloan said police received a handful of tips from people who believed they saw the car or recognized a police drawing of the suspect. But he said the leads all "petered out."

Also in the car was a homemade birthday cake the family was going to decorate for Thompson's birthday

"I don't know what to think. I just can't believe it," said Thompson, a

"He's not the routine profile of a kidnapper. We feel that the guy did not intend to abduct the child. They had only been there 10 minutes, and he made his decision in that time," Roth said.

Roth said kidnappings are "not unusual" in this resort city filled with transient youth. But "in my 11 years here, we've never had anything like this. And we've never had a child kidnapped," he said.

Thompson said the family was planning a week's vacation at Daytona. He said this was their 11th straight summer of vacationing here. He said it would be their last.

sweeping purge is reported under way in Iraq, with five leading members of the government under arrest for plotting to overthrow President Saddam Hussein. Unconfirmed press reports said 250 persons had been jailed and 34 of them were executed.

The official Iraqi News Agency said the plotters were inspired by a "foreign quarter" and their goal was to end Iraq's opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. A Kuwait newspaper said Egypt was the foreign power. But some diplomats in Beirut speculated that the plotters' aim was to reverse Hussein's movement toward the West and renew close ties with the Soviet Union.

Hussein, long the strong man of the ruling Baath Socialist Party, replaced ailing Hassan el-Bakr two weeks ago as president of the country and head of the ruling Revolutionary Command Council.

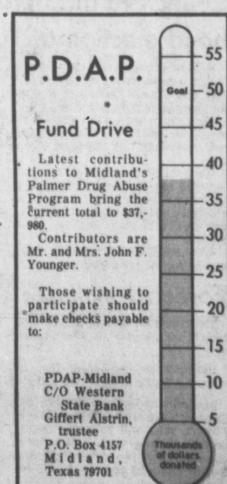

Under his leadership, the government was already cracking down on the Communist Party and drawing away from the Russians. It recently concluded trade pacts with Britain, West Germany and Japan and an arms deal with France, has pledged to merge with Syria after years of bitter feuding and has also grown. much closer to the conservative rulers of Saudi Arabia

The announcement by the Iraqi News Agency said the conspiracy was headed by five members of the Revolutionary Command Council. It said they were arrested and would be tried by a six-man tribunal.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar said the five were Deputy Premier Adnan Hussein al-Hamdani; Education Minister Mohammed Mahjoub, Mohey Abdul-Husseln Mashadi, the former secretary-general of the council; Mohammed Ayesh, a Baath labor official, and Ghanem Abdul-Jalil.

Other press reports said a total of 250 persons had been arrested. The Kuwait newspaper Al-Siyassa said 34 of these, including ranking members of the Baath Party and army officers, were executed in Baghdad last Wednesday. However, these reports could not be confirmed.

Ted Bundy's mom pleads for son's life

MIAMI (AP) - Theodore Bundy's gray-haired mother took the witness stand today to plead for her son's life, saying that to execute Bundy for the murders of two sorority sisters 'would be like taking a part of all of us and throwing it away."

Louise Bundy, dry-eyed as she described with affection her 32-year-old son's life, denounced the death penalty as barbarism.

'I consider it - the death penalty itself - to be the most primitive, barbaric thing that one human can impose on another," she said.

'My Christian upbringing tells me that to take another person's life under any circumstances is wrong. I don't think the state of Florida is above the laws of God.

"And I've always felt that way - it has nothing to do with..." she said, pausing and wincing, "what happened here."

Bundy, a former law student, was convicted of bludgeoning and garroting two Florida State University students and savagely beating three other young women with a club.

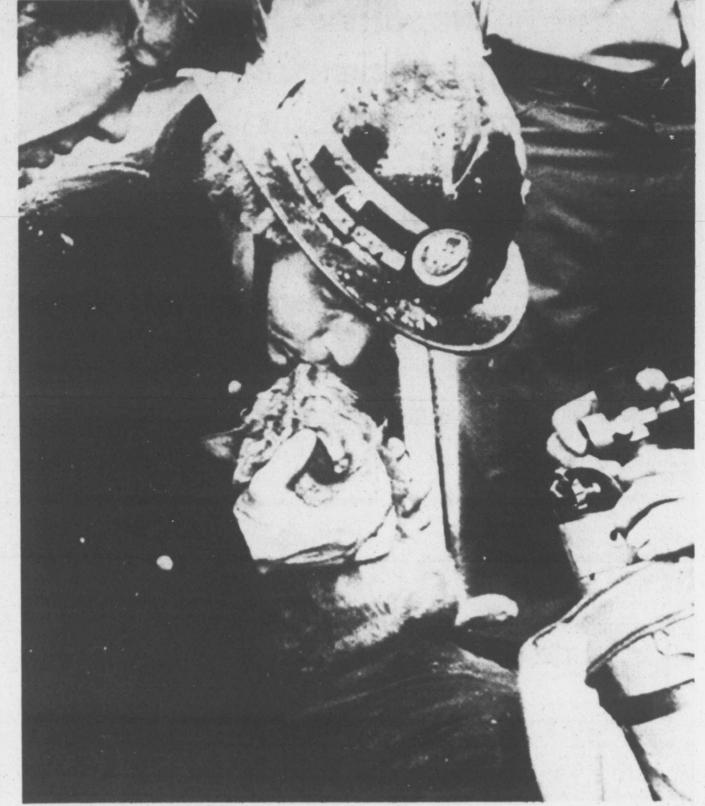

But Mrs. Bundy, a 52-year-old Ta-coma, Wash., resident, urged the jury to let her son live.

"Ted can be very useful in many ways to many people living," she said. "Gone from us, it would be like taking a part of all of us and throwing

Prosecutors, who presented witnesses Saturday, said they would ask that Bundy be sent to the electric chair, recently reactivated in Florida with the May execution of convicted killer John A. Spenkelink.

Bundy's attorneys say he could have a useful life in prison, perhaps as a clerk in prison law libraries. Bundy once studied law at the University of Utah. During his recent 41/2. week trial, Bundy often directed his Volcker, who now heads the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, said it is possible that his policy on interest rates "might clash at some point" with that of the administration.

In floor action today, the House was taking up legislation that would exempt the five departing members of Carter's Cabinet from "revolving door" provisions of the new government ethics act.

Families return to flood-damaged homes; Federal aid forthcoming

HOUSTON (AP) - Residents of a 10-county area ravaged by floods from tropical storm Claudette took advantage of Sunday's warm weather and hot sun to dry their soaked possessions while federal agencies set up offices to help repair about $750 million in damage from the raindrenched areas.

Gov. Bill Clements has planned a helicopter inspection tour of the area this afternoon. At Clements request, President Carter has declared six of the counties disaster areas.

Hardin County Judge Ray Martin said he would ask Clements to include his county on that list this week. Hardin County also was declared a disaster area when heavy rains flooded Southeast Texas this spring.

About 7,900 families sustained major flood damage in their homes and another 4,400 had minor damage to furniture and rugs, Bill Barron of the Red Cross said. The Red Cross housed just under 600 persons over the weekend.

Barron said a preliminary Red Cross surveys showed 3,300 Houston and Harris County homes sustained major damage while another 1,200 received minor damage.

Officials in Alvin, one of the towns that suffered the most damage, declared the water supply safe for the first time since rain swelled water treatment plants past capacity. A 10 p.m. curfew also was lifted and roads in the area were opened to the public on a limited basis. Bill McAda of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said Sunday that six one-stop offices would be set up in the areas hardest-hit by the flooding to aid victims with temporary housing and assistance grants.

The centers will include representatives of the Internal Revenue Service, Flood Insurance Administration, Social Security office and the Veterans Administration.

Although 58 percent of the phone service in the flooded area has been restored, 27,150 phones were still out Sunday night. Southwestern Bell officials said extra personnel from Dallas and Fort Worth would be brought in to restore service. In Brazoria County, the Red Cross

Brown campaign creating trouble in home state

By JOEL KOTKIN The Washington Post

SACRAMENTO - As California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. gears up his campaign for the presidency he finds his administration plunged into such political turmoil at home that his ability to govern his state effectively may be threatened.

Over the last three weeks, three of Brown's vetoes have been overridden by the Democratic-controlled legislature, the most ever against a California governor in modern times...

Brown also found himself snubbed by the University of California's Board of Regents who refused to adopt his widely publicized proposal to ban nuclear weapons research at the unviersity's Lawrence Livermore laboratory. On top of that, the Senate here rejected his appointment of actress Jane Fonda, a key political ally, to the state Arts Council, a move the governor and Fonda denounced as "small-minded McCarthyism."

"He's never been too popular with the legislature but now it's even worse," said Sen. Alfred Alquist, Democrat who led the battle to override vetoes of two pay raises for state employees in recent weeks. "These overrides show a growing disenchantment with him. I think it shows his general ineffectiveness and his inability to govern.'

The overrides of the pay raise vetoes have been particularly galling to the governor and his aides, who plan to make fiscal responsibility one of the catchwords in their coming attempt to dump President Carter.

Some Brown staffers openly admit that the precedent-smashing rebukes in recent weeks may have been largely engendered by the legislators' widespread personal dislike for the governor and resentment

In trying to block the $220 million payraise, Brown had proposed smaller increases for state workers, who received no raises last year in the wake of Proposition 13. The 80,000-member California State Employees Association (CSEA) successfully demanded retention of the full 14.5 percent voted by the legislature.

"They beat us on this because they really exploited the anti-Brown fervor around here," said Marty Morganstern, director of the governor's office of employee relations. "Without this, they couldn't have gotten as

Brown's chief of staff, Gray Davis, insists the veto overrides have not undermined his effectiveness. By granting the pay increases, Davis maintains, the legislature showed itself to be out of touch with post-Proposition 13 realities.

We're fighting for what we believe in and we're confident the public will be outraged by these increases," Davis said. "I think this is more of a test of CSEA's strength than the governor's strength. This is precisely the type of thing that invites the arbitrary constraints of a Proposition 13 initiative or a balanced budget constitutional amendment.'

Brown lashed out at the regents' refusal to ban nuclear weapons work at Lawrence Livermore, describing his own position as "prophet against the tide, for life and against death." He criticized the Senate's rejection of the Fonda appointment as "an insult to the very idea of artistic

Despite the governor's rhetorical blasts, many Sacramento observers believe the real reason for these setbacks is that Brown has, after 4 1/2 years in office, finally lost his political magic. Many legislators now see him as hopelessly aloof and arrogant, refusing to work seriously with

"Brown won't be able to veto a damn bill this year," said a high-level Senate staffer. "All the kids Jerry's been bullying are seeing him stumble. Now they're all piling on. He has no loyalty from anyone around here. He's shot his wad.'

Perhaps the most immediate factor contributing to Brown's problems on the home front, many here believe, is his impending run for the presidency. There seem to be few enthusiasts here, outside his immediate staff, for Brown's challenge to President Carter, who is also unpopular but is more distant and doesn't stir the kinds of emotions the governor

Senate Republican leader William Campbell, a staunch Brown ally on the pay-raise veto, blames the governor's lack of popularity for the overrides. He says that in his own lobbying of Senate Democrats, Brown support was more a liability than an asset.

There are a lot of votes cast around here recently just to embarrass Jerry Brown. He has problems on both sides of the aisle. He plays to an audience other than the state and that annoys people," Campbell said. "You have a lot of Teddy Kennedy supporters here, you have Jimmy Carter supporters. I don't see many Jerry Brown supporters. People are doing what they can to stop him and help their man.

Carter 'in trouble,' Jackson says

By ROBERT SHOGAN The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Sunday that President Carter was in deeper political trouble than any modern Democratic president and suggested that party leaders should ask him to step aside in 1980 if he loses decisively in the early primaries.

"In my many years in Congress, I have frankly never observed the political situation such as we face now from a Democratic Party standpoint where the opposition is as pervasive as it is to the president." Jackson, who first came to Washington as a member of the House of Representatives in 1941, said on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation."

Jackson promised to help Carter all he could and said he would back him against a challenge for the nomination by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. But Jackson added that if Carter's political difficulties continue, and he is defeated decisively in the New England and Florida primaries, "that's the time when some of us should talk to him. Certainly party leaders would need to do that" to avoid

In the fact of such setbacks, Jackson said, "I don't see how he (Carter) can be viable in November. I don't see how he can really win the nomination without tearing the party apart."

Meanwhile Republican presidential contender John B. Connally said that he believed Carter had hurt himself politically by his Cabinet shakeup and it had increased the chances that Kennedy would be the 1980 Democratic presidential nominee

"He (Carter) certainly hasn't helped himself," Connally said on the ABC-TV program "Issues and Answers." "If anything, I think in a few weeks he'll find that he's lower in the polls than ever.'

Jackson, whose earlier comments about the political difficulties facing Carter in 1980 had prompted a sarcastic rebuff from the president during his Wednesday night press conference, said Sunday he thought Carter could make a comeback. And Jackson praised Carter's new Cabinet appointments as

But Jackson also said that Carter had fired "the best people" who had been in his original Cabinet in the shakeup. And the senator painted a bleak picture of the energy and economic problems confronting the president.

Asked about reaction to Carter's televised appeal for public support of his proposal for taxing windfall oil company profits, Jackson, who is chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said: "We haven't had much response, very little. The public is kind of numb on this. They're not dumb, but they're numb. They want some evidence of action.'

Although Jackson said he supported a strong windfall profits tax, he predicted the legislation that eventually emerges from Congress would permit oil companies to plow back most of their profits themselves into development of new energy resources.

And he also forecast that the inflation rate would continue to accelerate, eventually forcing the government, "if nothing more than out of sheer frustration," to establish mandatory wage-price guidelines, instead of the voluntary guidelines now in effect. "That program is in a shambles now," Jackson

In response to a question, Jackson said that the mandatory guidelines he referred to would differ from full-scale wage and price controls.

Jackson called Kennedy "the strongest alternative" to Carter should the president fail to win nomination. But he said he had not discussed a possible presidential candidacy with Kennedy.

"I believe it's very important not to get into a divisive primary situation," Jackson said. "I hope that would apply to the president and to all other candidates. That could lead to a disaster in Novem-

On the Republican side, Connally said that Carter had engaged in "political theatrics" which had

"I feel sorry for the president," said Connally, a former Democratic governor of Texas who later became Treasury secretary in the Nixon administration. "He obviously is trying his best to overcome some very serious political problems."

Connally said that by following his televised speech on energy with a "huge political upheaval of musical chairs," Carter had diverted public attention from energy and undermined his effort to re-establish his credibility

So far as his own political future is concerned, Connally discounted rumors that references to him in as yet unpublished White House tapes of conversations made during the Nixon presidency could damage his candidacy.

"I don't think there's anything on those tapes that is going to be embarrassing to me in the least," said Connally, who was found innocent of charges he had accepted a cash payoff when he was Treasury secretary to use his influence to raise milk-price Connally said that Nixon and his top advisors had not asked him for advice on handling the Watergate scandal or on the overall management of political strategy. "They didn't discuss politics with me," Connally said; "when I was in the administration I was a Democrat." Connally noted that he didn't officially convert to the Republican Party until

Connally said the best answer to the nation's economic problems was a "substantial" tax cut in January, of $25 billion to $35 billion to benefit "working people," whom he described as those earning $35,000 a year or less.

Connally, whose image as friend of the oil industry poses a potential political liability, was ambiguous in his comments on Carter's proposal to tax so-called windfall oil company profits. At one point Connally said that if the president intended to use revenues from the windfall profits tax to develop new energy resources, "that's fine." And he said he believed that some sort of help should be given to low-income families hard hit by rising prices of gasoline and heating oil. But Connally indicated that he preferred allowing the oil companies themselves to plow back their additional profits into development into energy resources. And he contended that the government could monitor operations closely enough to make sure this was done.

U.S. 'strike force'

The Pentagon, at White House direction, is mapping plans for creation of a 110,000-man "unilateral corps" - a combined ground. sea and air strike force capable of responding to a crisis anywhere in the world in a matter of days, if Officially, the unilateral corps is intended to counter any sudden, overseas threat to vital American interests. In fact, the overriding justification for the corps is represented by a single word — oil. Consequently the force is being specifically tailored to operate in the Persian Gulf area.

The need for such a corps could not be more compelling. Half of the oil consumed in the United States each day is imported. Most of this outside supply comes from the states surrounding the Persian Gulf.

Japan and the NATO countries of Western Europe are even more dependent on Middle Eastern oil.

The supply line which stretches out from wells in Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Iran and the United Arab Emirates hardly could be more vulnerable. The sinking of a single tanker in the narrow Straits of Hormuz at the entrance to the Persian Gulf could virtually close the oil tap.

The governments which control the Persian Gulf's vast oil resources are no less vulnerable.

The Soviet Union's all-too-apparent strategy of encircling the Persian Gulf region and gaining at least indirect control over the Gulf's oil resources provides the clinching justification for the Pentagon's strike force.

This force is not, as some imagine, the first ingredient in the making of "the next Vietnam." The Persian Gulf is not Southeast Asia. The force would be used only in the event of an undeniable, imminent threat to either the oil lifeline or control of the oil itself.

This is something which most certainly should have been done long before now. It is something for which the White House should and must be given credit. How anyone in his right mind could oppose such a sound, well-reasoned action is difficult to under-

WASHINGTON - There was no joy in Washington over the spectacle, of the wounded Jimmy Carter lashing out alternately at the Washington establishment, the Washington press and members of his own Cabinet. It brought only painful reminders, which the mind wanted to reject, of the deposed Richard Nixon.

No one would accuse Carter of committing blunders and crimes of Watergate dimensions. And certainly no one believes he deserves to be driven. Nixon-like, into exile. But during the Cabinet upheaval and the uproar that followed, veteran observers couldn't help but notice some haunting similarities between Carter and Nixon.

After the dust had settled, Carter emerged to assure one and all that he is "serene" and "confident." Talking reflectively to visitors in his soft Southern monotone, he effected a calm mastery of the crisis. But some visitors perceived a tenseness in him, sense of beleaguerment as though he were at war with ubiquitous forces. Just like Nixon.

Although Carter is the most publicized man in America, he still remains a mystery to millions of Americans. There is a remoteness about him that they can't seem to penetrate. He is naturally aloof and inwardly turned, with a superior mind harnessed to an awesome selfdiscipline. Just like Nixon.

Carter is a deeply private person, inaccessible even to those who are granted access, an intense man who undergoes periods of contemplation and searches for inner strength. "I value solitude," he once told me. When I go home to Plains, at every opportunity I go off into a field and make the security men stay away from me, and I walk in the fields looking for arrowheads...I kind of hunger after loneliness." Just like

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

The desire for solitude and craving for an orderly environment, undisturbed by trivial interruptions or internecine discord, extends to the Oval Office. Carter tends to encapsulate himself from unnecessary turmoil, dealing regularly with those select few whose personalities don't jar his sensitive vibrations. He pefers to act through other men, who familiar and comfortable. Just like

The president is defensive and secretive. He is a man who cannot abide disloyalty. He also has a tendency to equate disagreement with disloyalty. Although he keeps no known "enemies list," aides speak privately of his critics as "antagonists" and strike their names off invitation lists to the White House and Camp David. Just

Carter is acutely conscious of the fact that he is an "outsider" who imposed himself upon the Washington establishment. The millions who compose the permanent government, in his mind, are suspect. Even his own appointees, the top few thousand in government, are not entirely trusted. Just like Nixon

The president also distrusts the Washington press corps. He doesn't want the acts and policies of his administration to reach the people through what he considers the distorting prism of Washington columns and commentaries. What he wants known, he would prefer to communicate through television talks, press conferences away from Washington and selective press gatherings. Just

CHARLEY REESE

Nations survive 34 years in thermo-nuclear world

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - July 16 slipped by and most of us forgot to sing, "Happy Birthday," to the atomic bomb. It was 34 years old.

Civilian scientists' gift to the war effort, the first fission explosion in man's history, occurred at 5:30 a.m. July 16, 1945, at a site on the Alamogordo air base in New Mexico.

The explosion which vaporized a steel tower and turned a small patch of desert into glass was the climax of a project which began in 1939 when G.B. Pegram, of Columbia University, arranged a meeting between physicist Enrico Fermi and the Navy Department. The original appropriation of $6,000 made in 1940 had grown to $2 billion by the time the test bomb exploded.

A few days later, on Aug. 6, an atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. It was a 20 kiloton (20,000 tons of TNT equivalency) weapon. Of the city's 343,000 inhabitants, 66,000 were killed and 69,000 were injured. On Aug. 9, another bomb exploded over Nagasaki, killing 39,000 people.

In was not the number of dead which brought the war to an end. Fire bombings in Tokyo had killed over 200,000 people. It was the efficiency of the weapon, the fact that one bomb could do in an instant what before had required hundreds and hundreds of bombs. The atomic bomb was to have a short shelf life, however, for in May 1952, the United States exploded the world's first hydrogen bomb, which derived its power from the process of fusion and which, unlike the fission bomb, is virtually unlimited in the amount of energy which can be packed into one device.

So we have lived now for 34 years with "the bomb." Since 1945, more than 500 nuclear detonations have occurred and the U.S., the Soviet Union, Great Britain, France, Red China and India are known to have nuclear or thermo-nuclear weapons. Certainly several other countries have the capability to produce them.

These are scary weapons and most of us don't like to think about them, but we should. We should learn as much about them as we can because then we would only have to fear what's real and not be subject to exaggerated fears such as the myth that a nuclear war would be the end of the world.

The real military significiance of these weapons is that they make possible — in theory anyway — a war-winning surprise attack which has never before been possible between two opponents of roughly equal size. Other than that, the nuclear weapon is only a more efficient explosive.

For the individual, they are really no more significant than a chemical explosive. The worst thing a 50 megaton bomb can do to the individual is kill him and that can be accomplished with a stick.

The thermo-nuclear weapon does complicate the problem of dodging, but only relatively speaking. If you are safely outside the blast radius, then it doesn't matter if that radius is measured in feet or miles and the opposite is also true. Some people point to the fact that casualties in a nuclear war will be measured in millions, but again that is only a matter of relativity. Casualties were measured in millions in World War II and so far as the individual is encerned it doesn't really matter if you make the trip to the great suburb in the sky alone or in a

The fallout is an added problem, but not an insurmountable one as there is both the capability to build and the incentive to use relatively clean

I am not trying to minimize the risks, only to put them in perspective. We can't go back to the non-nuclear world. We crossed a threshold 34 years ago in New Mexico and the door slammed shut behind us. Nations will never ban the nuclear weapon - it is simply too efficient. In fact, more nations will acquire them and I would bet that eventually they will be used.

But I'm not going to worry about that. We have survived 34 years in a thermo-nuclear world and I believe we will continue to do so because whatever other faults man has, he is one heck of a survivor.

Cabinet purge raises new doubts in New Hampshire

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

NASHUA, N.H. - President Carter's emotional appeal to the nation July 15 gave him a vigorous new start in this crucial presidential primary state, but not nearly enough strength to withstand a challenge from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy particularly after the madcap Cabinet shuffle

The favorable reaction to Carter's speech and energy program was clear from day-long, door-to-door interviewing in a Democratic barometer ward in Nashua, conducted with the help of Patrick Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research. A later telephone check suggested Carter's Cabinet purge, while about evenly dividing voters, raised new doubts about his competence in office.

The overall mood of mild approval mixed with doubt was typified by a 28-year-old cost accountant who voted for Carter in 1976: "It's good that he got tough, but I don't know if he got tough enough. He seemed to have reached the point where he wasn't doing the job. Now, he has to prove he is doing it. I think maybe he can." The harsher view after the purge was expressed by this comment: "It seems like a ploy for his re-elec-

Ward 9 in Nashua is overwhelmingly Democratic (60.3 percent by registration), dominated by young white collar and skilled blue collar workers, living in small suburbanstyle houses. In the 1976 primary, Carter carried Ward 9 with a 28.2

percent plurality, compared with 28.4 percent statewide. In 1972, Ward 9 was also a good statewide barome-

Accompanied by Nancy Morin, Caddell's state polling supervisor, we interviewed there in the rain three days after Carter's dramatic Sunday night speech - just as news was breaking of the Cabinet purge. Of 63 registered voters who voted in 1976, 51 either watched or heard about the president's speech. Of those, voters who feel more favorable toward Carter as a result of the speech outnumber those who feel less favorably

Nevertheless, among registered Democratic voters, Kennedy beats Carter 6-to-1. What's more, although Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is unknown to these voters, he trails Carter by less than 2-to-1, with a heavy undecided total. Kennedy's favorable rating was 65 percent, compared to 44 percent for Carter and 41 percent for Brown. Five days later, after the Cabinet shakeup, we interviewed 60 registered Nashua voters by telephone, with decidedly more negative results for Carter. Among the 50 voters who said they knew about the Cabinet shakeup, there was an almost even division between those who favored the purge and those who did not, with a slight edge to the hegatives. A slight majority also felt less favorable rather than more favorable about Carter 'He should have left the Cabinet alone," commented one Nashua critic. "He should get rid of some of the Georgia crackers, especially Hamilton 'Jerkin." Even some of the praise was diluted: "I have to admire him for taking action, but he's in over his

In our earlier, door-to-door interviewing, a 52-year-old factory inspector praised Carter for being "a little more stern in his (energy) plans,' which he guessed would help "a lot" toward solving the energy problem. But he prefers Ted Kennedy, who would "make a good president if he followed in his brothers' footsteps."

Similarly, a 32-year-old salesman contended Carter was "very forceful" in his energy speech, adding he "came over as an FDR type." Yet, he too prefers Kennedy, as "strong, experienced, knowledgeable.

Carter's speech had some detractors, most taking the line of a retail merchant's 39-year-old wife: "I was very annoyed that after giving the i.npression to the country he was leading, he was turning around and asking the nation to lead itself." Although she is a Republican who prefers Ronald Reagan for president, there was surprisingly little partisan difference here over the president's

Among all voters, "strong" and "forceful" were common adjectives. Specifically, Carter's oil import quota was favored 4-to-1, the margin dropping to 3-to-1 when the voter was warned that might mean a gasoline snortage. Carter's post-speech rating among these voters on handling the energy problem was 57 percent favorable (compared with 72 percent on handling SALT II and 26 percent on handling inflation).

The voice from the New Hampshire weathervane, therefore, sounds remarkably similar to Washington's conventional wisdom. While impressing voters with rhetoric and proposals on July 15, the president dulled the impact in the chaotic week that followed. The added message from Nashua's Ward 9 is that none of this really matters if Teddy Kennedy

BIBLE VERSE

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; and his greatness is unsearchable.-Psalm 145:3.

I see they are coming out with a $10 light bulb that will last five years. What we really need is a $10 bill that lasts five days.

A five-year bulb could practically eliminate the thrill of replacing light bulbs in the ceiling. There's nothing like standing on a chair, removing the globe, only to get a mouthfful of dead mosquitos.

It all started with Edison who saw the need for inventing the electric light when the candle in his refrigerator kept going out.

Scientists are working on a refrigerator bulb that turns off when you open the door. It's for food that's afraid of the dark. Edison's first incandescent bulb is still burning - which I think sets a terrible example.

2-30 1-30 So far this year Exxon has earned 726 million dollars from its oil and natural gas operations in the U.S.

To do this we sold the equivalent of 18 billion gallons of petroleum products.

That works out to be a profit of 4 cents per gallon.

In the same period, we invested 833 million dollars in the U.S. to find, produce and deliver petroleum products to our customers in the future.

market loses

NEW YURK (AP) - Stock prices fell in moderate trading today on continued worries about high inflaton, rising interest rates and lower productivity by businesses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks declined 4.01 to 835.75 by midday on the New York Stock Ex-

Losing issues outnumbered gainers by a slim 6-5 margin. Prices had opened mixed with the blue chip index off slightly and gainers leading slightly in the broader market. But the losses gradually deepened throughout the morning.

Big Board volume was a moderate 12.53 million shares, little changed from 12.51 million turnover at midday in the previous session.

Pan American, which over the weekend announced an agreement with Texas International Airlines to buy up additional stock of National, was the most actively traded issue on the NYSE. Midlander enters pleas of guilty

A 38-year-old Midland man has been sentenced to two concurrent prison sentences after pleading guilty in Midland's 238th District Court Friday afternoon. Willie D. Whitfield, 1609 E. Butternut Lane, pleaded guilty late Friday to separate charges of possession of heroin and possession of more than four ounces of marijuana. District Judge Vann Culp sentenced Whitfield to 12 years in the Texas Department of Corrections on the possession of heroin conviction and 10 years in TDC on the possession of marijuana conviction. The terms are to run concurrently.

The two charges stemmed from a July 2, 1979, incident during which Whitfield and two others were arrested at the intersection of Carver Street and Indiana Avenue. Police reported confiscating about half an ounce of heroin and about one and a half pounds of marijuana at that time.

The arrests followed a tip from an informant, police said.

Both of the cases were prosecuted by Assistant District Attorney David Joers. Whitfield was represented by defense attorney Harold B. Jones.

Investment clubs offer way of buying stocks without brokerage fees

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - If you don't like to deal with brokers or pay their commissions, you can still buy stock in some American companies. And pay only $5 or a bit more for the bookkeeping charges.

The way was cleared a few days ago by the National Association of Investment Clubs, which hopes eventually to make shares in as many as 200 or 300 companies available under it's stock-buying plan.

There is a hitch, if you want to call it that: You must belong to the association, which has an annual membership fee of $15, but that might not be a bad idea. Numerous benefits are offered to members.

But first, the details:

Many hundreds of companies have plans that enable their shareholders to buy odd amounts of shares, either quarterly or monthly, by sending in whatever they can afford, in some instances only $10.

With that money, and with dividends from shares already owned, the company or its agent, a bank usually, buys shares or fractions of them at the going price or even at a discount, plus a tiny handling fee.

Once a person is a shareholder, he or she need never again pay a brokerage commission in order to purchase more shares. But initially, in order to become a shareholder you must buy through a broker.

Even if a person bought only one share from the broker in order to qualify for the investment plan, the broker would be compelled by economics to charge a minimum fee, perhaps $20 or $25.

That's where the National Association of Investment Clubs comes in. It already is a member of many plans. Now it offers to buy for members, for a one-time bookkeeping fee of $5 for each company purchased.

So far, the association is offering to purchase stock in 14 concerns, but Thomas O'Hara, chairman, believes the service could become so popular that the list will quickly grow, even to

The plan could become a great promotional tool for the association, especially since it now views itself as spokesman not only for clubs but for all small investors, who sometimes get lost among the bigs.

For the $15 a year membership fee, the association provides an investors manual or learn-by-doing textbook, the monthly magazine Better Investing, low-cost seminars and meetings, and lobbying.

It offers more too: a way of life, or at least a way of investing. Its files bulge with accounts of people who secured their future by following a simple, usually painless investment formula.

The association (1515 East Eleven Mile Road, Royal Oak, Mich. 48067) developed and tested the formula over close to four decades, in expanding economies and receding, in bull markets and bear.

The first rule states, "Invest a set sum of money regularly over a long period of time." A small, regular sum, perhaps $10 or $20 a month, leavened with time and patience, translates into security.

The pace at which the portfolio builds is quickened by adherence to the second rule, "Reinvest your dividends." Don't live off them, at least until you need them. Leave them alone to compound.

The third rule hardly needs to be stated: "Invest in companies that give promise of being more valuable organizations in five years." Well of course, you say. Agreed. Perhaps the rule needs to be fleshed out.

The truth is that successful clubs and NAIC members are successful, averaging compounded annual earnings of 10.46 percent - seek to double their investment in three to five years. And they do it.

A member of one very successful club once explained, "We examine an industry that is growing faster than the economy in general and then we examine the soundest, fastest growing companies in that industry.

The results usually are extremely rewarding. The association tells of a member who saved $20 a month for 37 years. After withdrawing $35,000 for housing and education, he still has $71,000 in shares.

Many club members learn so much International Telephone, but names about investing, and about individual such as Foxboro, Federal Mogul, stocks, that they open personal ac-Dana Corp., Gould Inc., National Lib- counts as well, which is one reason why the NAIC is now expanding to include individual memberships.

Gasoline shortage creates king-size boom in varoom

Glover's description of biking problems faced by highway officers paral-

"They get into chasing a speeder at higher speeds, and then they happen to look down and realize they are indicating quite high, and they start tensing up on the bars... You don't want to tense up at any time. The big thing is relaxing."

Glover said the best advice he can offer bikers is to "be mature about the whole thing. Don't take chances.

Strong storms, heavy rains reported in northern plains

By The Associated Press

Strong storms rolled through the northern plains this morning where winds gusted to 60 miles an hour and reports of heavy rainfall were common with several communities in Nebraska reporting large hail.

Scattered thundershowers were predicted today for the mid and upper Mississsippi Valley through the lower Ohio Valley and into the upper Great Lakes region. A flash flood watch continued over northern Missouri

A severe thunderstorm watch was posted over eastern Nebraska, northeastern Kansas, western Iowa and northwestern Missouri. Showers and thundershowers were expected to be widely scattered along the East Coast, over portions of Arizona and New Mexico and across east Texas.

Mostly sunny skies were expected elsewhere. Temperatures were expected to be seasonably warm to hot across the Gulf Coast and southern plains as well as in California and southern Nevada. The Northern Plains expected mild temperatures and seasonable temperatures were expected elsewhere.

This morning thunderstorms stretched from the plains of New Mexico to the Dakotas. The thunderstorms spread into Iowa and northern Missouri. Rain continued along the East Coast.

Child care home re-investigation set

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Public welfare investigators planned to complete a re-investigation of Rep. Clay Smothers' child care home near Malakoff today while Smothers scheduled a news conference on his side of the controversy.

The Department of Human Resources said Friday that welfare investigator Barbara Bounds of Waco was unable to complete a recheck Friday of the more than 40 violations of state welfare standards she found at St. Paul Industrial Training School in Henderson County on June 21. Smothers was given 30 days to correct the violations or be subject to losing his operating license. A spokesman for the state welfare department said Ms. Bounds would be unable to finish the recheck until some time today, then she will report her findings to Austin. Meanwhile, Smothers called a news conference for Tuesday morning in Austin to discuss the matter. He originally announced a speech on the subject on Tuesday at a shopping center in Dallas. He gave no reason for the Hearing to determine cause of Chicago DC-10 crash opens today

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) - A National Transportation Safety Board hearing to determine the cause of America's worst air disaster is opening today amid reports of still more problems with the DC-10 jetliners.

All 138 U.S.-registered DC-10s were grounded after the crash of an American Airlines wide-bodied jet May 25 that killed 273 persons shortly after takeoff from O'Hare International Airport. More than 50 witnesses are expected to appear before the board in its hearings in this northwestern Chicago suburb. On Thursday, a federal judge refused to order the board to open the hearings to aeronautical experts hired by relatives of the victims aboard American Airlines Flight 191

NTSB spokesman Ed Slattery also said Thursday that statements already had been taken from more than 100 eyewitnesses to the crash, adding that the board had no plans to call them to testify in person.

The cause of the crash never has been formally determined, and evidence at the hearings will be weighed by the board for about three months before it makes a final decision on the "probable cause" of the disaster.

Investigations have centered on why the plane's left engine fell off seconds before the plane nose-dived into an abandoned runway.

The hearings come on the heels of a week of news reports that various DC-10s, newly aloft after the order grounding them was lifted, were experiencing operational problems.

In Fairbanks, Alaska, today, a Northwest Airlines DC-10 bound for Seattle lost power in one engine shortly after-takeoff. It returned safely to Fairbanks International Airport after circling for half an hour.

Tower voicing SALT opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. John Tower is using the Senate Armed Services Committee as a convenient forum for his objections to the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

The committee began its hearings on SALT II last week and the Texas senator is the committee's ranking Republican member.

"We should send this treaty back to the drawing boards and try and negotiate a more favorable agreement," Tower told the panel Wednesday.

He said the treaty would place the U.S. in an vulnerable position for future negotiations. The nation would "have to make decisions from weakness, resulting in concessions even more detrimental than those made in the final stages of SALT II," Tower said.

The armed services committee continues SALT hearings this week, the last before the month-long congressional recess begins.

Bob Krueger, the former congressman from New Braunfels who lost to Tower in the Senate race last fall, apparently will have to wait for his confirmation hearing as ambassador-at-large to Mexico until after the recess.

The House committee report on President John F. Kennedy's assassination drew a bad review from Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, who blasted the report's inconclusiveness.

"The problem which precipitated the need for the so-called assassinations committee was the need to dispel anxiety and doubt about our country after the series of political assassinations rocked the foundations of our democratic form of government," the San Antonio Democrat said in a House speech.

Abelardo L. Valdez, a Texan at the Agency for International Development, traveled to Miami for a speech Tuesday at the Trade Fair of the Americas. "In the 1960s the prevailing theme was 'aid not trade' for Latin American development. Recently the theme has changed. Many now call for 'trade not aid' as the route to prosperity for the region," Valdez

"The fact is that both are needed if we are to achieve our goal of widespread and sustained hemispheric development in the 1980s," he said.

Valdez pointed out that 24 percent of the United States' oil imports now come from Latin America. The Texan is assistant administrator for Latin America at AID.

The upcoming Houston referendum on a new city council plan should be defeated, says Rep. Mickey

The freshman Democrat, long involved in the fight over single-member districts, said the ballot does not give a wide enough choice.

If the new plan is approved, the council would have nine representatives from single-member districts and five members elected at large. All members currently are elected at large. "I am left with no alternative but to support my constituents and join in their fight to defeat the 9-5-1 plan. After this proposal is defeated, we can then work to develop a new proposal that will be truly representative and satisfy the citizens of Houston."

Byrd says delay will speed bill

By JOANNE OMANG The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday he will speed passage of the omnibus energy production bill by delaying it until after the August congressional Byrd, D-W.Va., said he had called in the chairmen of five Senate committees with jurisdiction over various aspects of the measure and had gotten "excellent cooperation" from

The idea, Byrd told reporters, is "to avoid jurisdictional squabbles and sequential referrals" to all the committees by having all of them work on it at the staff level during the recess.

The $88 billion measure would boost the production of synthetic fuels, set up a special mobilization board to slash red tape on non-nuclear energy project planning, and impose a tax on oil companies' windfall profits, among other things. Byrd said he now expects it to reach the Senate floor in early September.

There is the chance of a filibuster by senators opposed to the windfall profits tax, Byrd said, but he asserted the more opportunity senators have now to understand the bill's provisions, the more likely they will be to vote for cloture later.

The Senate leader warned President Carter, however, that the final bill will be different from the one Carter sent to Congress. In his televised press conference last week, Carter asked viewers to write their senators and save his program from the oil lobby.

"Just because a senator votes for a change does not mean that senator is controlled by any oil lobby," Byrd said. "Nobody needs to expect Congress to rubber-stamp any president's proposal on energy. This Congress certainly is not going to."

Byrd refused to outline the changes he expected. He did note that Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, had promised Carter that the president would be pleased with the final shape of the windfall profits tax measure.

Authority to order emergency gasoline rationing, which Carter has requested, could be tacked on to the energy package if it passes the House in time, Byrd said. But he said he would emphatically oppose any attempt to add a tax cut proposal. "I wouldn't rule out at some point in time some kind of tax cut," Byrd said, "but it's too early to enact it now."

Carter's new Cabinet members and new White House adviser Hedley Donovan are "good choices," Byrd allowed, recalling that he had advised Carter to broaden his circle of coun-

Byrd said it was still too soon to assess the effect of the overhaul on Carter's political future. "People don't distrust the man," Byrd said. "He has a lot going for him ... I wouldn't join anyone in writing (his) political obituary.'

Turning to international matters, the majority leader said defenders of the SALT II pact had made "a good case" that its rejection would require the United States to spend far more for defense than if the treaty is approved. However, Byrd added, whether we have SALT II or not, the country is going to have to spend more for defense."

He said he would make his decision on the treaty in September.

Major firms defend profits

NEW YORK (AP) - Representatives for two major oil companies today defended the heavy second quarter profits reported by big oil companies as necessary for development of more petroleum sources.

"It doesn't do any good to be expressing outrage and talking about obscene profits," said William Tell, vice president of Texaco Inc. "Profits are the source of new energy supplies. We're spending our time looking for villains and scapegoats while the rest of the world has faced the problem squarely."

Tell appeared on the NBC-TV "Today" program with another oil executive, John Neafsy, vice president of Sun Co.

Neafsy echoed Tell's remarks on the profits, saying Sun's 57 percent second quarter profit was "still in a competitive league with the rest of American industry.

Tell said Texaco's 132 percent profit was misleading because it represented a continuing recovery from a 28 percent loss in 1978.

"We didn't get much attention at that time," he said, noting that his company skims "1.8 cents a gallon on all petroleum products sold. Neafsy admitted the profits were

"a significant increase" but said they were needed. "If we don't have these kinds of returns on investments, we simply are going to be unable to make the kinds of investments which America must make in order to see our way out of the problem that we have today," Neafsy said.

Tell also also rejected an idea that the federal government take over all importation of petroleum. "The government is not prepared or equipped to take on this type of activity," he said.

Texans warned nation for years on fuel crunch

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - President Carter's emergency energy program may surprise some, but a group of Texas officials and industry leaders have warned of a coming energy crunch for almost three decades.

"I wrote President Johnson a letter in 1967 saying that unless we faced up to excessive imports of oil it could drive the nation into bankruptcy,' says Jim Langdon, former Texas Railroad Commission member and now an Austin attorney Even earlier, in the 1950s, the late former commission member Ernest O. Thompson urged that domestic oil supplies be developed instead of relying on cheap Middle East oil.

> ENERGY OIL & GAS

Dr. John McKetta of the University of Texas was an early crusader for more domestic production.

The Texas pleadings for a workable national energy policy was taken up by Govs. John Connally and Dolph Briscoe and is carried on today by Gov. Bill Clements. Members of the Texas Railroad Commission have become a traveling lobby for increased oil production, making numerous trips to Washington to talk with congressmen and appear before committees.

'The general public has been fed such a fantistic amount of misinformation, wishful thinking, misplaced hopes and plain demagoguery, that Americans have yet to really look their energy future in the eye," said D.K. Davis, staff vice president of Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, in a recent Langdon told President Johnson in 1967, "Quite frankly our nation may be heading for serious trouble if there is not a change in oil policy ... It seems clear to me that unless the downward trend is reversed, this nation can soon find itself in a position in which it can fill neither the gap left by the next Mideast crisis nor even its own growing requirements in an emergency." Langdon, Davis and the others stress that maybe 98 percent of the nation's potential oil and gas supplies never have been tested. "Production has been developed on only 50,000 square miles, less than 2

CIA says Red yield to drop

WASHINGTON (AP) - The CIA believes Soviet oil production will begin to drop next year and, within three years, will turn Moscow from an oil exporter into an oil importer, a Wisconsin congressman said Sun-

"We may be seeing the peak of Soviet oil production right now," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis. Soviet production hit a record high of 11.7 million barrels a day in April and slipped to 11.3 million barrels a day in May. But the chairman of the House intelligence oversight subcommittee discouraged "gloating over Moscow's predicament.

"This also means a cut in worldwide fuel supplies - which in turn means more upward pressure on prices," he said. Aspin said the CIA thinks Soviet production could plummet by onethird in the next six years. 'The CIA says that at the very best, the Russians will be producing 10 million barrels a day in 1985, but if luck isn't with them, production of only 8 million is very likely," the Wisconsin Democrat said. The congressman added that the CIA foresees communist nations as a whole switching from exporting about 1 million barrels a day to importing 700,000 barrels a day by 1982.

Such a reversal could reduce world oil supplies by about 5 percent, about the same amount that resulted from political turmoil in Iran and contributed to the gasoline shortage in the United States, he said.

Poland hikes gas prices

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Poland hiked gasoline prices and imposed speed limits on Saturday to conserve oil and improve road safety, the government news agency PAP reported. It said the price of gasoline was increased about 15 percent to $2.20 per

The communist government set speed limits for automobiles of 55 mph on main highways while the limit for trucks and buses was set at 43 mph. PAP said the limits would both save fuel and increase safety. Poland imports about 16.5 million tons of oil a year, 75 percent from the Soviet Union and the remainder from the free market, the agency said. A Warsaw television commentator told his audience, "We must save fuel as is being done by the whole world. We pay less for Soviet oil than for Arab oil. Thus this (Soviet) import softens the impact of (Arab) price hikes, but does not eliminate it completely." The registration of private autos in Poland has increased from 480,000 in 1970 to 1.8 million, according to official reports?

percent, most of that was relatively shallow," Davis said. "The bureaucrats are determined that we should walk away from the potential of the other 98 percent.'

Geologists have said for years that only about one-third of discovered oil is recovered without expensive special techniques and hugh quantities of new natural gas exist in geological areas deeper than 15,000 feet.

New prices for oil and gas and new techniques make these supplies available, the Texans say. Another idea Texas leaders are trying to sell right now is the fact the Texas has plenty of natural gas for sale, particularly for industries that want to switch from heating oil and Gas is still cheaper and cleaner than coal, which is not available in sufficient quantity. Encouraged by higher prices in unregulated areas, such as Texas, enough new gas wells were drilled the past two years to ease the gas short-

Davis and other spokesmen for

TIPRO have been carrying the messages to Eastern distributors from New England to Florida that Texas has natural gas to sell, if the government keeps hands off. Potential deep gas fields onshore and offshore of Texas and Louisiana contain more gatural gas than the 50-year supply believed to be left elsewhere in the country, they say. "It's calculated to contain up to 105,000 trillion cubic feet of gas," says Davis. "This means that if we used only this one source of energy - no coal, no oil, no nuclear, no solar, no anything - and if we use energy at three times our present consumption, it would still provide all our energy needs in this country for 500 years. We could export gas to Mexico. Davis admits the estimate is optimistic. "But if we more than doubled U.S. consumption of natural gas to 50 trillion cubic feet a year, then only 10 percent of this possible reserve (in Texas and Louisiana) could still provide the needs of the entire country

South Africa's coal program moves ahead

SECUNDA, South Africa - Early next year, if all goes according to plan, South Africa will be producing enough gasoline from coal to meet perhaps 30 percent to 40 percent of

This is the confident prediction of officials of the government-backed South Africa Coal, Oil and Gas Corp., better known as Sasol Their confidence is based on 25 years of improving the coal-to-oil technology at a small plant known as Sasol I, located about 40 miles south of Johannesburg. Gasoline from Sasol I is indistinguishable in look, smell and quality from gasoline refined from petroleum. It already accounts for about 7 percent of the market here, according to informed sources. South Africa is far ahead of other countries in oil-from-coal technology. It has to be. While rich in diamonds, gold, urganium, coal and other minerals, South Africa has no oil of its own. South Africa depends on coal for most of its energy needs, more so than any other modern industrial nation. But it does import some oil, at black market prices because most oil-supplying nations refuse to deal openly with South Africa as a means of protesting racial discrimination here. This year South Africa expects to spend $2.3 billion on imported oil.

Statistics relating to Sasol's production and costs are not made public. They are in fact secret, as is most information in the energy field. Under

"It's not a government-protected industry," a Sasol spokesman said. "It's a profit maker. It's a tribute to South Africa's ingenuity and initia-

Gasoline costs about $2.43 a gallon at the pump here, more than twice what it costs in the United States. Comparisons are difficult, because of the number of factors involved, among them the cost of coal, construction and labor. American oil industry sources estimate that oil could not be produced from coal in the United States for less than $27 a barrel and perhaps as much as $45. compared with the $18 minimum currently charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Some industry sources estimate that gasoline refined from such oil would cost $1.04 to $1.47 a gallon at the pump in the United States. Others put the figure at $1.50 to $1.75. (According to a Fluor spokesman in ild cost $1.00 to $1.30 a gallon at the refinery gate, depending on the plant's location, the type of coal used and the financing available.) Whatever the cost of producing gasoline from coal, Sasol officials de-

Chip Carter predicts re-election for father

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Chip Carter said Sunday night he believes his father will be "president for about 51/2 more years."

Young Carter attended the Young Democrats national convention here as a stand-in for President Carter.

He said he doesn't discount possible opposition, but he told reporters at a $25-dollar-a-person reception: "I think he's going to win the nomination and re-election. I think he's going to be president for about 51/2 more

Asked about the movement to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as a presidential candidate, the president's son said:

"I'm not saying it's not serious. What I'm saying is that in the long run, I expect these people to end up working for us and I don't expect Senator Kennedy to run and if he does, we'll beat him.'

Rep. Richard Nolan of Minnesota, a leader in the movement to draft Kennedy for the 1980 presidential race, will address the convention Tuesday

Kennedy, a Massachusetts Democrat, has said he expects Carter will be the party's nominee in 1980, and that he supports him. But Kennedy supporters have taken heart that Kennedy has not publicly ruled out a run for the presidency as he did in 1972 and 1976, and they have launched a movement to get him into the race.

The keynote speaker for the conference, expected to draw 800 to 1,000 persons between the ages of 16 and 35, will be Democratic National Committee Chairman John White. He will speak Thursday night.

Connally charms Indiana crowd

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) - John Connally is a charmer.

The white-haired, former Texas governor charmed a gathering of Indiana Young Republicans right off their feet here Saturday as he lectured them on America's place in the world, chastised the White House and congressional Democrats for the nation's energy problems and apologized for the problems caused by his generation.

"There's nothing wrong with this country," the GOP presidential hopeful told a crowd of some 600 persons at the Indiana Young Republicans convention in the Hulman Center.

"We shouldn't apologize for what we haven't done," he said. "We should take great pride and satisfaction in what we've been able to do as a Mixing hard-nosed politics with down-home humor, Connally won the applause of the already-partisan crowd early in his talk with his proposed remedies for the nation's ills. On defense: "The important decision facing this country is not whether we ratify or do not ratify the (SALT

II) treaty, but whether we're going to commit our resources to gaining parity if not superiority to the Soviets in terms of nuclear weapons.'

On Congress: "The Democrats in Congress haven't done anything for the people that they haven't already done TO them.

On inflation: "First, we have to cut the rate of federal spending, and secondly, in the next 18 months to two years we ought to balance the federal budget.'

On energy: "We have to open more coal mines. We have to open public lands, both offshore and onshore, for exploration of oil and natural gas. We have to shorten the time it takes to build a nuclear plant. It takes us 13 years, it takes the rest of the world

On nuclear power: "I admit I'm a little afraid of nuclear power. But I'm afraid of electricity too, it's dangerous and can kill you. I'm a little afraid of airplanes too, and they can kill you. But there's no point of living with

Connally saved some of his best material for President Carter, whom he predicted will lose the Democratic presidential nomination in 1980 to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. A candidate for the presidency has to do three things, he said. "He has to be nominated. He has to get elected and then he has to perform has to deliver." "Jimmy Carter was nominated and got elected," Connally said, then paused for several seconds before adding "but I can't finish it." "He hasn't delivered," the former Democrat who switched parties in 1973 said to thunderous applause. "I don't like to criticize the president too much," he said grinning, 'just a little.

"Remember in 1976, when he ran for president, Carter promised he'd close down Camp David? He said it was unnecessary. It cost too much. Connally said. "Now it looks like he's taken up residence there and I believe he going to auction off the White House.

Connally said Carter used up enough gasoline bringing advisers to Camp David during his domestic summit to "light this auditorium so we could all come and watch Larry Bird for a year play basketball."

"I admit I'm a little afraid of nuclear power. But I'm afraid of electricity too, it's dangerous and can kill you.' - John Connally

New law threatens ETS' veil of secrecy

By DAVID BIRD

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) - For more than two decades, Educational Testing Service has operated in strict secrecy at its quiet 400-acre campus near this university town.

ETS is responsible for most of the tests exams used in deciding who goes to what college and who is admitted to law school or medical school in the United States.

Questions and answers for the estimated 7 million exams administered each year by the testing industry giant are guarded as if they were classified government documents. The $80-million-a-year non-profit operation does not hesitate to take legal action against anyone suspected of leaking test information.

But a New York "truth-in-testing" law signed by Gov. Hugh Carey earlier this month has caused a rip in ETS' veil of secrecy that threatens to affect testing programs across the

Under the law, answers and forms for every standardized test given in New York after Jan. 1 must be made public after 30 days. Test makers also are required to explain how the exams were devised and what they are designed to measure.

The standardized testing industry, which devises exams for everyone from golf-shop managers to gynecologists and Peace Corps volunteers to CIA agents, has come under increasing criticism in recent years.

Consumer groups argue that the public has a right to see their tests and studies on the validity of exam questions. Minority spokesmen accuse test makers of cultural biases that favor the white middle-class.

Educators complain tests often are

ETS disputes those charges, contending it has been accountable to the academic community.

They say the New York disclosure law will force them to create a battery of new tests to replace those that must be taken out of circulation as a result of making the information pub-

Now, questions are often repeated from one set of exams to another, both to save the expense of preparing new questions and to provide a basis for comparison among different groups of test takers.

'The effect of the law is that a test given in New York can never be given again - anywhere," said ETS spokeswoman Mary Churchill.

The sharpest reaction to New York's disclosure law has come from an organization representing the nation's 125 medical schools and 60 den-

Test administrators for the Association of American Medical Colleges and the American Dental Association said they would stop giving admission exams in New York rather than comply with the law. There is a limit to the number of relevant questions that can be used in

000 prospective medical students and 1,000 prospective dental students in New York. ETS officials also contend the quality of testing may be compromised. "It's a little like the Environmental" Protection Agency," ETS Vice President Robert Solomon said of the disclosure law. "The EPA passes acts in the interest of people, but it costs something to have scrubbers in smokestacks.

The costs of extra test preparation are expected to boost testing fees by as much as 50 percent. For example, the fee for the Scholastic Aptitude Test, given annually to 1 million college-bound students, could rise to $12 from the current $8.25 per test.

Herbert Marcuse, guru of student rebellion, dead at 81

STARNBERG, West Germany (AP) - Philosopher Herbert Marcuse, a guru of the student rebellion in America and Europe in the 1960s, died Sunday night after a short illness, a spokesman for his family announced today.

He had celebrated his 81st birthday July 19. A hospital spokesman said he died of a stroke

Marcuse, who retired in 1970 from the University of California at San Diego, was visiting his native Germany as a guest of the Max Planck Institute, a scientific organization.

Despite his official retirement, Marcuse in recent years went almost daily to a small office at the San Diego campus from his home in nearby La Jolla, and he occasionally taught small groups of post-graduate students on a volunteer basis.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Actress Farrah Fawcett-Majors, best known as the former star of ABC's television series "Charlie's Angels," and actor Lee Majors have announced they are separating after six years of marriage.

Jay Bernstein, their manager, said the couple hoped to reconcile and blamed the trial separation on stress from conflicts in their acting careers. It is the first marriage for the 32-year-old actress and the second for Majors, 39, who starred as television's "Six Million Dollar Man."

A 75th tribute to Marcuse written by Jean Amery for the Cologne newspaper Stadt-Anzeiger said "his extremism was greater than the world understood in the late '60s when he was fashionable.

"The main thing that probably marked him off from conventional Marxism was that he considered the work force had long since been absorbed into the system by means of 'repressive tolerance' and that they therefore were incapable" of rejecting society's enticements, Amery wrote. William Creager of Midland received the 1979 Presidential Scholar Medallion at a special ceremony held recently on the south lawn of the White House.

Mary Berry, Acting Secretary of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, presented the medallions to the 1979 Presidential Scholars, 121 graduating high school seniors chosen on the basis of academic excellence, leadership, and accomplishments in the visual and performing arts.

President Carter has stated he views the Scholar Award as a great honor, but also as a major challenge for the youthful recipients to do even more in the future and "to recognize those who are not so fortunate as you, who haven't been blessed with a good educational opportunity or a sound, stable family life or a freedom to explore new dimensions of one's mind and one's heart.'

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) - She was lonely and shy. He was eager to make friends. While others danced inside, they met outside in the moonlight and fell in love.

Later this year, Kathy, 28, and Victor, 30, will marry. Both are retarded. It would have been unthinkable a few decades ago, when most states banned marriages between "imbeciles," "morons," "retardates" or "idiots," and many of those judged "mentally deficient" were sterilized.

Planning to marry next year are Bob and Shirley. He's 44 and she's 50. Bob has spent 25 years in an institution for the mentally retarded.

"I've been waiting 25 years to get married," said Shirley, who is mildly retarded. "Good grief. We love each other." She was never institutionalized but spent her childhood and most of her adult life caring for a sick

Both couples asked that their full names not be used.

Today, a growing number of physically and mentally handicapped people are marrying, having children and beginning to share in mainstream American life. Now more aware of their rights and needs and moving away from institutionalization toward integration in the larger community, the retarded are demanding equal treatment from society.

But they must still contend with the widely held belief that two mentally handicapped people will produce a mentally retarded child. They also are subject to certain state laws prohibiting or restricting their marriages. According to the Public Interest Law Center of Philadelphia, there are still 30 states prohibiting "lunatics," "idiots," "imbeciles" or the retarded from marrying. In many of the states which permit such unions, there is little, sometimes no housing for those married retarded couples who live in institutions. A class action suit has been filed on behalf of four residents of the Southbury Training School in Southbury, Conn., in an attempt to have that state create special facilities for married

"Mentally retarded adults have the same right to marry as anyone else," said Ronald Soskin, an attorney with the National Center for Law and the Handicapped in South Bend, Ind. "Marriage is a fundamental right. To pass a law that says because of function, ability or mental IQ a person has no legitimate right to marry is unconstitutional

Such restrictive laws were based on "an implied assumption among the American populace that retarded people weren't entirely human," said Dr. Philip Roos, executive director of the Arlington, Texas-based National Association for Retarded Citizens.

"There's only been a recent recognition that retarded people are human, are citizens and are covered by the Constitution," he said. "Certain class action suits, involving the right to education and the right to humane treatment in state institutions, were major forces that led to a re-examination of laws and civil

"It seems like it's 'Romeo and Juliet," Kathy said with a giggle. "I went to a dance and didn't know anybody. I'm very shy and very lonely. So I went outside and sat by the beautiful moon and I started to talk to the moon. I wanted to talk to somebody and the moon was so beauti-

Retarded demanding equal treatment

In an Indiana case, for example, the parents of a 15-year-old retarded girl had her sterilized. She discovered she could not conceive when she married in 1975. Her suit against the judge who permitted the operation resulted in a 1978 U.S. Supreme Court ruling which said judges in such cases cannot be sued for damages.

"There long was the fear that the retarded would reproduce retarded children," said Linda Carelli, program coordinator for developmental disabilities at the Rutgers University Graduate School of Social Work in New Jersey. "But to get a retarded person sterilized today using public

"Increasingly we are moving toward an idea that it is the quality and quantity of life experiences that is most potent in the determination of later cognitive development," Tjossem said.

"If we rear children at home in positive, rewarding and nurturing environments, then we expect them to do better than if reared in a deprive environment.

Roos, of the National Association for Retarded Citizens, said retarded people face the same problems in marriage as anyone else. "For some, it's a good thing," he said. "For others, it's utter disaster. A retarded couple may find it difficult to cope with the complexities of child rearing and may be at a disadvantage to provide intellectual stimulus.

In 1975, the marital status of mentally retarded individuals who had lived at the Elwyn Institute in Philadelphia was examined. The study, which involved 54 couples, found only one case in which a child was removed because of neglect.

"While the care of some of the childen would be questionable by middle class standards, there are others who appear to be receiving proper medical attention and affection from both parents," the report said.

The survey found that in 31 percent of the marriages, the partnership was maintained satisfactorily. Twenty percent were satisfactory but showed signs of stress; 6 percent were unsatisfactory; 15 percent were divorced or separated; and the status was unknown in 28 percent of the mar-

"One time I cooked lasagna," Bob said, a huge grin splitting his red beard. "I had a bet with another man. And we had a race to see who could cook it the fastest. I won."

Bob, who limps and has a shriveled right arm, proudly described his work - counting employee tips. Shirley, ever the supportive wife-to-be, reached into her purse and pulled out a bag to show how Bob seals it.

They said they had a lot of friends coming to their wedding. But not Shirley's sister.

"I told my sister I had found a boyfriend and was getting married," Shirley said rapidly, as she relived the conversation.

"She said I'm not picking the right one, and I shouldn't get married. She cursed me out. 1 don't care. She don't call me. I don't call her.'

There was silence. Shirley kept her head lowered. Bob furled his brow. "I don't care," she said. "It just feels good to be alive."

Jaycee prison project a winner

COLMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Converting a bleak open courtyard into a colorful day-care facility for visiting children has earned the Kirkland Correctional Institution Jaycee chapter here a national award as 'the most outstanding Jaycee project of the year." In winning over some 3,600 other Jaycee projects submitted, the South Carolina prison Jaycees worked about 4,000 hours - after completing their assigned jobs - on building the center for the children. The room is staffed with inmates carefully screened and trained to help the youngsters learn, using techniques and videotapes from the Sesame Street educational TV series.

The group developed the project after reading a news story circulated by Kirkland's Warden James L. Harvey about a similar center at a federal prison in Lompoc, Calif.

'Econocot' system could resolve cotton problems try" of West Texas, where cotton is of a problem than selling it at an unrivaled and undisputed king of an adequate profit. Over-production and agricultural empire, there's an inten- world markets sometimes drove sive struggle by farmers to keep from being swept into economic bondage.

They still have a way to escape being forced off their land — if they

These farmers are victims of devastating inflation, which is sweeping across Trans-Pecos Texas and sending costs of everything they use swirling sky high. Primary costs are in natural gas to fuel irrigation pumps, diesel fuel for tractors, fertilizer and insecticides.

In the aftermath, farmers are spending about 70 cents to produce a pound of cotton that brought them only 50 cents when they sold it. The loss is about $100 per 500-pound bale. Many farmers have gone broke and moved away.

Cotton production toppled from a peak of about 150,000 acres in an eight-county area to some 20,000. Cotton gins went out of business. The drastic and sudden drop in cash flow dealt a severe economic blow to the overall economy

However, the "natives" will tell you quickly, "Don't write off farming in West Texas...yet!"

THEY'LL ALSO TELL you that a high percentage of farmers who "bit the dust" were "come latelys," who were not equipped with the know-how necessary to handle cotton farming with success. Particularly under adverse conditions, not the least of which are rapidly esculating costs and high risk.

They'll also agree that a higher level of skilled, almost scientific, management will be a must - if farmers survive raising cotton.

"In the past, farming was kinda' taken for granted to produce the maximum," commented Ray D. Siegmund, district extension agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Fort Stockton, "but we found out that that 'extra' yield cost money, rather than make a profit."

Although two farming philosophies are practiced - "go for broke" versus "less input, reduced risk and less potential profit" - farmers will concede that there simply isn't any future for non-professionals in cotton production in Pecos Country.

With a mandate for more highly skilled management, scientists such as Dr. Luther Bird, cotton breeder at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and Leon New, irrigation engineer, and Dr. Ken Lindsey, agronomist, for TAES, blended weather, varieties, growing season, irrigation, fertilizers, insecticides and potential costs and profits into a new package labeled "Econocot."

"Everything in this program is built around economics," said Gary D. Condra, TAES district management economist. "If a crop can't be grown at a profit, why grow it?"

Linsey described Econocot as "a system of management to do precisely the right thing at precisely the right time to make a cotton crop - and some profit."

"THIS SYSTEM of farming was developed specifically for the Trans-Pecos Country. It works. This has been demonstrated, but a lot of farmers went broke before they would switch to it," said Dr. Perry L. Adkisson, Texas A&M University's vice president for agriculture and renewable resources.

Farming in West Texas was relatively easy-come, easy-going, until the first money pains of an energy crunch reared its ugly head in 1973-74, fashioned after an Arab oil embargo.

Irrigation water was abundant, and cost of pumping it to the surface to supply cotton, grain sorghum and other crops was also relatively

The biggest requirement of farmers was to take advantage offered by the elements, and to beat the bollworms in the annual tug-of-war over whether the bugs or the farmers would end up with the cotton.

St. Lawrence community farmer Clifford Hoelscher is turning to the 'Econocot' system of raising cotton and crop rotation.

tights to keep chimps

University has filed suit to prevent the government from sending 47 of the school's chimpanzees to Texas.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court last week, stems from a government decision to end a university hepatitis research contract and transfer it and the chimpanzees - to the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education in San Antonio, Texas.

The university contends the government decision was "arbitrary, capri-'cious and an abuse of discretion" and

Meanwhile, as most farmers in Pecos Country continue with the historical philosophy that if a little bit does some good, then use a lot (of fertilizer, water and insecticide) in hopes of higher yields and more profit, another group is reducing its gamble with lower input and is expressing satisfaction with lower net profit but at least some profit semi-guaran-

"I FIGURE I'm better off to spend $500 (per acre) and make 1,000 pounds (two bales) of cotton than to spend $300 and make 500 pounds," said Mike Burkholder, a veteran of some 20-crop years at Pecos. "My objective has been toward the quickest way to reduce cost of unit of production. The problem with this concept, however, is higher risk.

A newer generation farmer, Clifford Hoelscher of the St. Lawrence community in Glasscock County, said, "I projected profit where production was limited to no more than one bale per acre.

'My input was woven around half the bale's worth being out-of-pocket cost, and the other half to pay for land and equipment. Anything left over would be for management.

While farmers talked in terms of how much water, fertilizer and insecticides to apply and make profit, the Texas A&M scientists and specialists discussed varieties of cotton to fit into weather patterns, irrigation, prevention of stress on plants, timing of growth of plants for hardiness and resistance to bugs.

"The key to the Econocot system," assured Charles Neeb, TAES entomologist, "is timing of irrigation water. It's the most critical management factor, because the water dictates plant responses and degree of infestation of bollworms."

'We've got water," Burkholder assured. "It's just that it's expensive." "We don't count on rainfall. Can't afford to," Hoelscher added. "Irrigation is a must to raise crops in this

RAINFALL averages about nine inches per year at Pecos, and up to 11 to 14 inches in Hoelscher's community some 100 miles east of Pecos, but it's Hoelscher has been successful with the Econocot system. He said that when he projected for his crop, he planned for 20 inches of irrigation water, compared with 40 and as high as 50 inches applied under traditional management.

"Instead of eight to 12 applications of insecticide by airplane, which is the conventional system, I projected no applications," Hoelscher said. "Instead, I'll rely on A&M's pest management program for information regarding egg lay by insects. Then with proper timing of irrigation, I can prevent optimum habitat for insects to lay eggs, thereby controlling insects.'

Hoelscher said that he does not plan to apply fertilizer. Rather, he will be entering a crop-rotation of cotton, followed by grain sorghum, followed by

Rotation, he said, would eliminate need for commercial fertilizer in the Econocot system.

He's one of many younger farmers who are venturing into the Coyanosa area, which went boom in the 1950s and bust since the energy crisis.

"This system worked in the St. Lawrence area," Hoelscher said. "Why not in the Coyanosa area? Coyanosa has ample water and rich soil. Also about the future of water, Econocot not only requires less water, but with exodus of so many farmers, the water table has had a chance to

NEW YORK (AP) - New York asked the court to set it aside. Last Tuesday, 24 of the 71 chimpanzees were removed from the NYU medical research center in Sterling Forest, Tuxedo Park, N.Y., for transfer to the Texas institution. The university said the transfers of the hepatitis-infected chimpanzees could destroy its scientific research and cause potential contamination to humans and animals. It asked the court to enjoin removal of the remaining animals pending resolution of its suit.

PECOS COUNTRY farmers can either raise cotton under irrigation or get out of crop production and return the land to cattle

A cattle economy appears unlikey because about 80 acres of native rangeland now is required to support one There has been a sudden flurry-type return to grazing because of pure economics. Price of feeder cattle has Alfalfa has been a profilic crop for grazing and hay, but many farmers are quitting its production. Cantaloupes, bell peppers, onions and other produce crops provide an alternate income to cotton. Quality is excellent, and the market has been established.

Interest has been renewed for production of guayule for rubber and jojoba, another desert plant, for a fine oil (similar to sperm-whale oil) but it is not cold-tolerant.

Grape production is being revaluated. Grapes from the Trans-Pecos won a blue ribbon at the world's fair in However, cotton most likely will remain "the cash crop" in the foreseeable future in Pecos Country. More and more farmers are making the transition to Econocot, but many others are cautious and suspicious of a new system of crop production.

Tickner rallies for skating win

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Charles Tickner, flashing the lyric grace and abandon that made him the world men's figure skating champion in 1978, isn't quite ready to step aside for the younger American skaters snapping at his heels.

In Tickner's view, his daring comefrom-behind performance in the National Sports Festival's individual skating competition serves notice that the three-time national champion has no plans, at age 25, to call it a career.

"I think I do well under pressure, and I was under pressure today," said the Littleton, Colo., native, his gold medal securely around his neck.

Tickner trailed 19-year-old Scott Cramer of Colorado Springs going into the free skating portion of the competition Sunday. But he changed that, despite a sore ankle, by whirling through a dizzying four triple jumps, combined with five minutes of the classical precision that marks his

The athletic Cramer was good, but Tickner, thought by some to be on the decline since finishing fourth in the last world championships, was brilliant, scoring mostly 5.8 and 5.9

judges' marks. 'I don't emphasize totally the jumps or totally the style," Tickner said, unlacing his skates. "I try to do everything well and be consistent."

Being older than most of your rivals has its drawbacks, he says. "When you're 13 or so you don't know fear. But by the time you're 18 or 19 you realize, 'Gee, I could fall down.'"

Unlike some of the 31 sports being contested at the six-day Festival, figure skating offered - with one notable exception - what many believe will form the nucleus of America's Olympic skating team in Lake Placid,

N.Y., next February.
As expected, Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner won the pairs, and pretty 18-year-old Lisa-Marie Allen claimed the women's gold medal with a careful but near-flawless perfor-

Allen, a stunning, statuesque blonde from Garden Grove, Calif., said her free skating program included no triple jumps because "I didn't feel I needed it and I haven't been skating much.'

Allen may have been forced into a more acrobatic performance if world champion Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., hadn't had to scratch from the festival with an ankle injury.

In the dance competition, favorites Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert thrilled their hometown audience by winning the gold medal handily.

SHREVEPORT — The two Texas League division leaders clashed again, last night, and the East prevailed over the West by two runs. East leader Shreveport overcame a five-run lead with a six-run outburst in sixth inning and beat the Midland Cubs 8-6.

getting along, it's just that the enthusiasm has been missing," said Cromartie, who, with the rest of his teammates, had watched the Pirates vault into first place in the National League East with a 5-3 victory Saturday.

Dave Parker's two-run homer, combined with superb pitching by starter Jim Bibby and reliever Kent Tekulve, highlighted Pittsburgh's third straight victory over the Expos.

The players' meeting preceded a 10-minute encounter with Manager Dick Williams, who told them to "Keep playing the way you were. Keep doing your job and executing properly. That's the way you got where you are today."

Taking the message to heart, the Expos mauled starter Bruce Kison, 6-6, for four first-inning runs on Andre Dawson's bases-loaded triple and a run-scoring single by Rusty Staub.

Despite the setback, Pirate manager Chuck Tanner was satisfied with the play of his club

Fight boycott urged

SOWETO, South Africa (AP) - Militant South African blacks, backed by American civil rights activist Jesse Jackson, are calling for a boycott of the October heavyweight title bout between black American John Tate and white South African Gerrie Jackson, who led several thousand wildly cheering blacks in chants of "no rights, no fights," on Sunday, joined three influential South African leaders in opposing the World Boxing Association fight. The one-time adviser to the late Dr. Martin Luther King was skeptical concerning the offer of promoters to allow blacks to attend the fight in a whites-only rugby stadium.

The fight is to be staged Oct. 20 in Loftus Versfeld Rugby Stadium, which seats up to 85,000, in Pretoria. Percy Qoboza, editor of the black newspaper Post. said, "Loftus Versfeld is the high altar of your people's (the Africans) rugby. Of all the holy altars Loftus and Voortrekkerhoogte are the ones that people of my color should tremble when they put their black little feet on."

Voorstrekkerhoogte is the site of a monument to white pioneer farmers in South Africa.

Qoboza said he would have attended the fight if it had been held in one of the stadiums that is regularly integrated. "I insist on 24-hour dignity, not just window dressing dignity." Dr. Nthato Motlana, chairman of the unofficial committee that represents the more than one million blacks who live in this satellite city of Johannesburg, noted that a week after the fight "Northern Transvaal plays Western Province and no black may watch in that place.'

He said he objected to those who believe that Loftus "suddenly become suitable for blacks because Bob Arum says so."

Arum, who heads the American fight promoting firm of Top Rank Inc., has demanded that blacks be allowed to see the fight, and that some tickets be offered at prices blacks could afford.

Bishop Desmond Tutu, general secretary of the South African council of churches said, "This fight just highlights the whole problem. You can't have normal sports in an abnormal society."

Cedeno's triple nips LA

By The Associated Press

Cesar Cedeno's third hit of the game, a triple, scored J.R. Richard with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth Sunday as the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 Sunday night.

Cedeno's hit off reliever Terry Forster, 1-2, kept Houston's National League West lead at 31/2 games.

Richard, 9-11, scattered five hits and struck out eight as he defeated the Dodger for the ninth consecutive time going back to 1976.

Richard increased his major league leading strikeout total to 182.

Houston opened the scoring in the second when Craig Reynolds walked and scored on a double by Jose Cruz. Cruz scored on Enos Cabell's single to give the Astros a 2-0 lead.

In the third, Richard was touched for a run when he walked John Oates and Dave Lopes and gave up a RBIsingle to Bill Russell.

Los Angeles tied the game in the sixth when Lopes singled, stole second and scored when Cedeno misplayed Reynolds' throw on a grounder by Russell.

The Astros scored in the bottom of the sixth when Cruz doubled, took third on a grounder and beat Russell's throw to the plate on a grounder by Jeff Leonard.

Darrel Thomas, who struck out his first two times at bat, tied the game in the seventh inning with a home run.

Cruz was 3-for-3 and reached base all four times that he batted. He doubled in the first and sixth scoring both times, walked in the second inning and singled in the fourth.

The Dodgers missed a chance to take the lead in the ninth when Houston second baseman Rafael Landestoy snatched a grounder by Thomas and prevented Dusty Baker from scoring from second base.

The crowd of 46,754 boosted the Astros' attendance total against the Dodgers to 152,406, the largest fourgame series in the 18-year history of the Houston franchise.

Expos 5, Pirates 3 Andre Dawson drove in three runs with a bases-loaded triple and Rusty Staub stroked a pair of run-scoring singles as the Montreal Expos defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 to regain first place in the National League's East Division.

Carew, Ford deal Twins misery in 9-3 victory

By The Associated Press

For Rod Carew, it wasn't anything personal. For Dan Ford, it was. But any way you cut it, both of those California Angel players made life miserable Sunday for their former team, the Minnesota Twins.

Carew had four hits in the game, the 40th time he's done that in his storied career and the second time this year against the Twins. And Ford belted a two-run homer among three hits to help the Angels beat Minnesota

"I don't get up over any ballclub," said Carew, the seven-time American League batting champion who is playing for the Angels this season after a long career with the Twins. "I

Day baseball aids Kingman

NEW YORK (AP) — Playing base-ball in Wrigley Field has really opened up Dave Kingman's eyes.

"Day ball has helped me, no doubt about it," says the Chicago Cubs' top power man. "It's a situation where I can see the ball very well. I'm very comfortable there.

Kingman's comfort has been reflected in his performance so far this season, which includes 35 home runs and 79 RBI. He hit two homers on Friday and three more on Saturday to tie a major league record with five roundtrippers in two games.

Until now, the strong, silent-type slugger has been grimly secretive about his greatest major league season. But he opened up Sunday in a rare public interview with New York Mets broadcaster Ralph Kiner.

"Wrigley Field has been perfect for me," Kingman said during the interview, which was held on television during a rain delay in a game with the Mets. "I've hit a few home runs in that park that would never have gone out of other parks. "Also, the fans have helped.

They're a great bunch of fans, creating a lot of enthusiasm. And they've rattled opposing pitchers.'

Kingman, who almost never talks to newsmen about his hitting, dissected his success in that area. Not only is Kingman hitting home runs, as expected, but he's also batting .303 quite an accomplishment for a lifetime .232 hitter.

He says he owes it to "maturity." 'After eight years of experimenting with stances and such, and talking to a lot of hitting coaches, I'm finally putting it all together," said Kingman. "I guess the key was learning myself - learning what type of pitches I can handle and what type I can't. Now I go up to the plate looking for pitches I know I can hit — and I hit

Technically speaking, perhaps the most significant change has been a new stance. The gangly, 6-foot-6 Kingman has widened his stance in the batters' box so that he has better body control and$is not lunging as he used to in his days with several other teams, including the San Francisco Giants and Mets.

Also, he's not moving his head as much as he used to, and sees the ball

"I opened the season with a wider stance than I have now," Kingman pointed out. "In the past three weeks, 've shortened the stance a little. But the point is, I'm waiting on the ball .. it's just a matter of having pa-

And a matter of profound concentration.

"When I'm in the batters' box, I don't think about anything else except seeing the location of the ball," Kingman explained. "I'm just trying to pick up the ball. Most of the time, I don't even know what kind of a pitch I'm hitting.

Kingman also called batting practice "overrated" and agreed with Kiner that it was only useful when a hitter needed to correct a flaw or break out of a slump, problems which are obviously foreign these days to the rangy Chicago star.

wanted to get out of town. "I think Danny likes to beat these guys," said Carew. "I know he likes to beat Gene (Manager Gene Mauch) and he likes to stick it to Calvin (Twins owner Calvin Griffith.)"

Still mindful of his unpleasant time in Minnesota, Ford noted after Sunday's game:

"Even though it hurt me, I felt the experience (of playing with the Twins) has helped me over the long run. It's been a benefit for me playing in the Twins' organization. It was my first chance to play in the majors and the experience helped me become the player I am today. Carew and Ford teamed up for the

The heavy hitting helped rookie Steve Eddy post his first major league victory.

"I really just wanted to get a base hit (in the first inning)," noted Ford. "When I got the home run, it really topped things off. If I didn't get a hit the rest of the day, I was going to be satisfied.'
