The council also will decide on reconvening the meeting Thursday to approve an official statement concerning the sale of $7.5 million in bonds for street, water and sewer improvements. These bonds were approved in the September 1979 bond

Bani-Sadr praises aims of militants holding hostages

By The Associated Press

Iran's President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr praised the aims of Islamic militants who were holding some 50 Americans hostage for the 98th day Saturday, but issued them a veiled warning to obey government decisions, according to an interview with a Persian Gulf newspaper. The militants told a news conference they will only obey the orders of Iran's Moslem leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Kho-

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, meanwhile, said in a British Television interview that force might be used if the Iranian government met resistance in trying to take control of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, which the militants seized 14 weeks ago when they took the hostages.

Another top official, arrested and briefly held last week after the embassy captors accused him of being linked to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, urged Bani-Sadr to clean up what he called the various power centers in Iran.

Spokesmen for the militants told a hastily-called news conference that they will continue following Khomeini's instructions, and noted he has said the hostages should not be released until deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his wealth are returned to Iran. The militants said they do not intend to interfere in day-to-day operations of the govern-

The militants complained that the government is not cooperating over the current visit of a group of 49 Americans the embassy invaders invited to Iran to publicize their cause. The Foreign Ministry issued the American delegation four-day visas which are due to expire Sunday. The militants had planned to have the group stay at least a week. Two television correspondents John Cochran of NBC, an American, and Arden Ostrander of CBS, a Canadian - were taken into custody by revolutionary guards early Sunday and were to be expelled from Iran, it was reported by other reporters. Government spokesman Abolghassen Sadegh said Cochran and Ostrander were in the country illegally and had ignored repeated requests to leave.

The government ordered all journalists working for American news organizations to cease operations in Iran in mid-January, and most then left the country.

Cochran and Ostrander were taken from their hotel by the revolutionary guards and were believed to have been driven to Tehran's Mehrabad Airport. They joked with reporters from other Western countries as they left the hotel.

OCAW to end Amoco walkout

Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union members at two West Texas Amoco plants will return to work Monday after members voted to give up their walkout in weekend meet-

The workers had walked out Monday in support of a nationwide strike by the OCAW against Amoco for higher salaries and increased health and vacation benefits. Jonathan Christian, president of the Andrews area OCAW group, noted the 12 remaining striking members there had voted Friday to return to work at the Andrews plant. The same result came in a vote of the 20 striking workers at the Goldsmith Amoco plant, according to Merle Johnson, OCAW shop steward there. In Andrews, where the 26 who had started the strike Monday had dwindled to 12 by Friday, the final vote was made "so we could go back as a group instead of just one or two at a time," according to Christian. Despite the early defections, Christian said he thought the strike had not harmed the union cause in Andrews. "I think it might have helped the union," he said. "People working saw for a good cause.

The walkout had little effect on the 33,000-barrel-per-day production of the plant, where 183 people are employed, according to Charles Powell, district supervisor for Amoco.

While supervisory personnel have filled in at Amoco plants harder hit by the nationwide strike, in Andrews that wasn't necessary since other workers could take up the slack.

The 20 striking Goldsmith workers voted 12-8 to go back as a unit, Johnson noted, mainly for economic rea-

The action was the first strike the Goldsmith workers had participated in, he said, and "it was a learning experience for us.'

'We had several people come by and tell us they were supporting us," he said, including some local townspeople and an AFL-CIO representative. "We found several people we didn't know were supporting us." The effectiveness of the West Texas walkout was a question in their minds, he said.

"We didn't hurt the company in any way," Johnson said. "We inconvenienced a few people."

Russians hint at withdrawal of some troops

By The Associated Press

The Soviet ambassador to Japan said Saturday that some of the estimated 90,000 Russian soldiers in Afghanistan may be withdrawn "in the near future" if the United States and China don't escalate tensions there. But Afghanistan's new strongman said the Soviet troops will remain a while longer.

Ambassador Dimitrii Polyanskii told Japan's Kyodo news service that he had no knowledge of a report that Moscow plans to begin a substantial reduction of its troops in Afghanistan by the end of February. "Much depends on the United States and China," Polyanskii said. "The present situation in Afghanistan can end in the near future unless the two countries try to escalate it." The Kremlin has repeatedly accused the United States and China of interfering in Afghanistan's internal affairs by allegadly arming and training the anti-communist Moslem rebels who have been fighting a succession of pro-Moscow governments in Kabul for the past 21 months.

In Washington, administration officials said they expected the Kremlin to make only a "cosmetic" withdrawal of its troops in an effort to defuse Western opposition. They also said the government was monitoring unusual, unexplained Soviet military activity north of the Iranian border near the troubled Azerbaijan region of

And in Kabul, the Afghan capital, the new Moscow-favored president told an interviewer the Soviet troops would leave his country only when 'all signs of aggression against us are eliminated."

"The day reactionary Pakistan, chauvinist China, imperialist America and Britain and Zionist Egypt are defeated in their ugly plan to dismem-ber Afghanistan the Russians will go-back," Babrak Karmal was quoted as saying in an interview published Saturday in the London Times.

He claimed the United States, China and Pakistan had planned to attack Afghanistan on Jan. 6, but the 'plot" was foiled by the arrival of the Soviet troops.

Guerrilla resistance reportedly has shriveled to sporadic sniper fire and small-scale attacks, primarily in the rugged mountains of the northeast, since the Soviets began pouring troops into its southern neighbor last Christmas.

SALT LAKE CITY - Bob Golka, a loner electronics wizard who wants to build a "fireball thermonuclear fusion reactor" in his World War II aircraft hangar, has been given 15 days to pack 30 tons of equipment and

"I'll stand here until they take me away to jail," he said last week in a telephone interview from his outpost in Wendover, 90 miles west of here. T've got II years in this project. I'm not giving up."

Golka has asked the Department of Energy for $2 million so he can bombard lightning balls with laser beams to try and generate power through nuclear fusion. DOE scientists say they are studying the proposal seriously, but that it takes time.

Meanwhile, the Wendover Town Board ordered him out, and the hangar, once the home of the Enola Gay, the B-29 bomber than dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

Golka, 41, said he offered the Town Board $1,000 to rent the hangar for a year, but it wanted $600 a month, or $7,200 for the year. "I don't have any income right now," he said.

Barry Jones, chairman of the Leasing Board, said the board would lower its rent demand, but, "He's got to be willing to come up a little.'

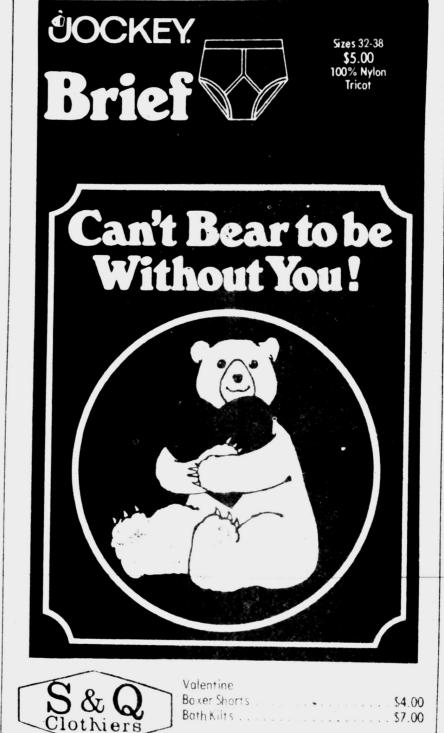

"I really feel that if Bob would come in and negotiate in good faith" the eviction order could be rescinded, Jones said. "If we can't agree then the eviction notice will have to be carried out.

Tooele County Sheriff delivered an lightning on aircraft. But last year the eviction notice to Golka in his 70-foot hangar and surrounding air base were turned over to Wendover.

He wants to build a "fireball thermonuclear fusion reactor," which, Golka says, would be a major breakthrough in harnessing the power of the atom.

The process involves using a laser to spark a fireball that acts as a storage battery inside a large spherical tank. By focusing four more lasers on the marble-sized fireball, the gases within could be heated to 1.5 billion degrees - hotter than the sun - to create continous nuclear fusion reac-

About 1100 fifth grade and 1225 ninth grade Midland students will participate in the first statewide program which measures the basic skills of reading, writing and mathematics.

In the past, the Midland school district conducted the Midland Assessment Program (MAP) which measured essentially the same skills as the state program.

Each student's scores in the project will be reported only to students, parents and educators directly concerned. The results of the testing program will be used to design remedial programs or other special work.

A proposal supporting the concept of secondary on-campus suspension centers will be considered. The on-campus suspension centers would be located at the two Midland senior high schools.

Many school teachers, administrators, police and social welfare organizations have expressed favorable comments concerning the program and the facility.

Also, an official call for election of two trustee positions on the board on April 5 will be announced. Last filing date for the two positions currently held by James H. Ramsoure and Joe H. Dominey will be March 5.

The purchase of ten 71-passenger school buses and two 15-passenger school buses will be considered. The 15-passenger buses are replacements for two buses used in the school's special education program.

Other items before the board include transfer requests, summer school scheduling, the establishment of an early childhood center at Bunche Elementary School, personnel appointments and resignations, taxing matters, action on bids for stage curtains and the clearing and leveling of Midland High School's addition and the consideration of the proposed 1980-81 school year calendar.

Since arriving here, I have learned that on Nov, 30, 1941, the Honolulu Advertiser published a front page story under the headline: "Japanese may strike over the weekend." A week later came the attack of Pearl

A computer list showed there were 1,134 inmates in the main penitentiary on Feb. 1, the day before the facility was seized, Griffin said. Except for ing the past week, he said. In the meantime, the New Mexico Legislature was taking up a bill to spend $82.4 million to repair the damage and build a new prison. The measure authorizes construction of a new $46.6 million maximum security prison and provides $19.4 million to clean up the wreckage and convert the old prison into a medium security facility.

Gov. Bruce King late this week.

The state also was continuing its program of moving prisoners, although Nevada announced Friday it would not take any inmates as previously expected. Prisoners have been moved into federal prisons and into state facilities in Arizona and pay back the stockholders or to pay for new bank buildings, Alstrin said. Money used to pay for the building comes from the stockholders, Alstrin explained. When the building construction is completed, the bank writes a check for the entire cost of the building and it becomes an asset,

However, the service charges on a checking account pay for the bookkeeping procedures, he said.

"COMPUTER EXPENSES alone usually run about $5,000 to $6,000 month for Western State Bank," Alstrin noted. "To have the computer write a person's name across his monthly statement costs about a nickel," Burns noted. And when one adds other costs such as salaries, postage, supplies and so forth to maintain and keep track of a checking account with a balance of $100, the $6-a-month service charge will not cover the costs for this service, he said. According to a study conducted by the American Bankers Association, the average checking account in which the banks can break even in its costs to monitor the account is a $950 balance with a minimum activity of 15 checks written each month, Burns said. However, some people tend to write more than the 15 checks a month for unusual amounts. "We get checks that are written for 38 cents at some local store for a Coke." Alstrin said.

"EVEN IF THE $100 is not used, it still costs the bank to continually monitor the account," he added. The bank's use of the money for investment in a $100 checking account is not enough to offset the charges incurred for the maintenance of the account, Alstrin said. Banks make their money by investing money, Sonnenberg said. Increases in the amount of interest the banks have to pay on various accounts and other increased costs cause "it (to) become more difficult to make the profits that we have done in the prior years," he said. Our only alternative is to charge for the services we offer to people basically a bookkeeping service," Sonnenberg added.

Yet, service on these accounts will be better as a result of the service charges, Alstrin said. It is possible in the future that the customer will be able to receive statements which will itemize payments into different areas such as groceries, utilities, things which are tax deductible and so on, he added.

"The banks are not out to gouge people out of their money," said Carr of MNB.

"Let's say if I gave you $200," said Burns, "and I told you to keep it, to prepare statements, to watch over the account, to send me a record of how I spent the money and to keep it from being stolen," he said.

"Tell me, would you do it for free?"

The situation in the Turkoman city of Gonbad-e-Kavuz was "on the whole critical," it said. Most of the inhabitants of the province are a Turkishspeaking minority that seeks selfrule.

A Tehran radio broadcast said the city was under the control of revolutionary guards and security forces. A representative of Khomeini was in Gonbad-e-Kavuz to investigate the clashes, the radio said.

It reported one man was killed and another injured in a hand-grenade attack by unidentified "suspicious elements," but did give details of the other casualties in Friday's clashes. - The Iranian military announced

According to the newspaper, Bani-Sadr continued:

"The students are acting in order to achieve a high and safe objective. When the revolution and the state are sure that the operation of taking hostages has borne the required results, it would become its (the Iranian government's) responsibility to take the proper decision regarding the question of hostages.

Gen. Shadmehr, chief of Iran's combined general staff, on overall plans for the Iranian armed forces, Tehran radio reported. The military briefing came a day after the State Department in Washington reported Soviet military units along the northwest border of Iran have been engaged in a "high level of activity.

and China. The natives were decimated by the white man's diseases. Within 70 years after Cook's arrival the native population declined from an estimated 300,000 to 70,000. Today there are less than 10,000 "pure" Hawaiians because of inter-marriage with other races. Of the present population of about 770,000, over 200,000 are of mixed blood

With its ethnic components of Japanese, Chinese, Filipino, Korean, Indonesians and westerners, Hawaii has been described by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye as "a haven for a multi-racial society whose mores contain the seed of hope for all mankind."

The people of Japanese ancestry, numbering approximately 30 percent of the population, have played an important and heroic role in the history of Hawaii. Both U.S. senators and the governor are descendants of Japanese immigrants.

Few of us are aware of the patriotism during World War II of the Nisei, as the people of Japanese ancestry were called. I don't recall learning about it at the time, but if I did, I had forgotten about it.

Although treated with suspicion in Hawaii and California because of their ancestry, they proved to be among the toughest and bravest of American soldiers. Immediately after the attack on Pearl Harbor, thousands of them sought to enlist in the armed forces. When the war department called for 1,500 volunteers from Hawaii's Japanese population, nearly 10,000 applied. Of Hawaii's war dead, 80 percent were of Japanese ancestry.

Two units composed of Nisei from Hawaii and the mainland, the 100th Infantry Batallion and 442nd Regimental Combat Team, became the most decorated units in U.S. Army history, winning over 6,000 decorations for fighting against the land of their forefathers.

In reviewing veterans of the 442nd at the White House after the war, President Truman told them: "You fought not only the enemy but you fought prejudice - and you have minded of the strategic importance of these islands and how fortunate we are to have them as the 50th state in the union. Had Hawaii not been the front line of our defense in 1941, California and Washington states would certainly have been targets of major Japanese attacks. When we put this question to Sen.

Spark Matsunaga, he said that after the attack on Pearl Harbor the Japanese navy did not have the immediate capability to launch a major air and sea attack on the U.S. main-

For a short time in the early 19th century, the imperial flag of czarist Russia flew over Hawaii. American seamen helped the natives eject the Russian settlers. One Hawaiian king wanted to marry off his niece, whom he hoped whould succeed him, to a Japanese imperial prince. Had that happened, Hawaii would probably have become part of the Japanese em-

The way America acquired Hawaii goes like this: first, the native monarchy was overthrown by American plantation owners who proclaimed it a republic in 1894. Four years later, during the Spanish-American War, it was annexed by the United States. However, it finally attained statehood in 1959, and is now one of the finest and most beautiful members of our union. It's great promise for the future of thermal, solar, wind and biomass energy will make Hawaii electrically self-sufficient by 1990 at a cost of about $4.4 billion. He also expressed confidence that alternative non-oil sources will make America energy self-sufficient by the turn of the 21st century, "and Hawaii will be at the forefront. It is difficult to conclude without mentioning the beauty of that part of the islands of Hawaii where Joe Kingsbury Smith, our national editor, and I stayed for two days while gathering information.

Named after one of the five volcanic mountains on the "big island," Mauna Kea is nestled in a small crescent-shaped cove on the palm tree-studded, sandy shore on which gentle waves constantly break in foamy white rows. Lush tropical beauty abounds on all sides. Blessed with a temperature that ranges between 70 and 80 degrees throughout the year, it is no wonder that Robert Louis Stevenson said the climate "sweetens one's bones."

Warming trend forecast

The snow which quietly floated onto the Midland area in the wake of a cold front late Friday and early Saturday will be replaced today by sunny weather and an almost balmy 50 degrees.

Monday's high will streak into the mid-60s. The mercury will drop into the mid-20s tonight, but likely will not come close to the near-record low of 16 degrees early Saturday, which kept many Midlanders indoors on a snowy morning. The record low for the date was 13 degrees in 1933, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

For weather record-keepers, Saturday's high temperature was notable. The sluggish mercury rose to 33 degrees, which was a record low maximum temperature for the date. The previous high for the date was

The two-to-three inches of snow which blanketed much of the area converts to about .10 inch of moisture and was a pleasing sight to ranchers, farmers, gardeners and lawn-keepers who need that underground seasoning (moisture) for good crops, range grasses, garden and

"It's good for everybody," allowed Big Lake's Dan West, a Reagan County deputy sheriff. "We needed the moisture."

The snowfall brings the year's official precipitation to 0.59 inch. Winds today will be light and variable, which will be in sharp contrast to the brisk winds of Friday and early Saturday.

Sunset today will come at 6:31 p.m., and sunrise Sunday will be at 7:35 a.m., said the weatherman. A winter storm painted most of North Texas with a blanket of ice and snow Saturday, icing highways as far south as the Hill Country before drifting out of the state toward Arkansas. Skies began to clear from west to east during the afternoon, and forecasters called for warmer weather Sunday with partly cloudy to sunny

Snow that whitened the Hill Country was melting fast during the afternoon as the sun came out and temperatures rose above freezing. But most of the state was in store for a cold night. Lows in Norhthwest

Texas were predicted to dip to 10 degrees before dawn. The moisture in the air, which moved into Texas from New Mexico and collided with very cold air at the surface, formed snowclouds that dumped 3 to 5 inches of snow on the Panhandle and 3 to 4 inches along the area south of the Red River during the day Saturday.

Asserting there is no need to reinstitute draft registration, Connally accused Carter of "engaging in bluff and bravado and I think this registration thing is part of that.'

Connally told reporters that, "I don't think we ought to be talking about war. I'm oppposed to women in the draft. I see no reason to register at the moment.'

If the chiefs of the armed services said they could no longer perform their duties with a volunteer army, then it might be time to reinstitute the draft, but not until then, he said.

Carter had said Friday he is proposing to Congress the registration of women as well as men for the draft, adding that he will seek approval for a $10 million expenditure to finance military registration of men pending a decision on women.

Midland police maintain 61 percent clearance rate

By KAY HORD

Reported burglaries, criminal mischiefs and auto thefts are up in the Tall City, but in response to that demand, the Midland Police Department has maintained a 61 percent clearance rate on all cases reported. And a total of 94.4 percent of murder, rape, robbery and assault cases have been cleared during 1979, according to the Police Department's annual re-

Rapes and forgeries are down for 1979, as compared to 1978. And the city's results in auto thefts are just short of spectacular

The Department considers a case closed when someone is arrested and charged in connection with the case and when it is turned over to the courts for prosecution - unless it's exceptionally cleared

The Uniform Crime Report says a case is exceptionally cleared whenever investigation definitely established the identification of the offender, enough information exists to support turning the case over for trial, police know the whereabouts of the offender for arrest, or something beyond the control of the officer prevents the arrest.

Property loss in 1979 increased $933,856, and recovery was up $551,-

TOTAL PROPERTY lost in robberies, burglaries, thefts and auto thefts during 1979 totaled $2,486,815. Property recovered equaled $1,401,-

Robbery accounted for $21,182 lost with $1,641 recovered. In 1978, $20,608 was lost, compared to $2,171 reco-

Thirty-five robberies were reported last year with 30 cleared. Nineteen adults and one juvenile were arrested in connection with the cases. There was $665,115 lost in burglaries in 1979, and $87,355 was recovered. In 1978, $315,748 was taken, and $77,088 recovered. Reported burglaries totaled 1,064, an increase of 174 from 1978. Police cleared 395 of those burglaries. Adults arrested were 114, with 79 juveniles taken into custody. POLICE CHIEF Wayne Gideon thought the growth in population and inflation was at least partly responsible for the jump in the number of burglaries. "I wish we knew why there were so many more burglaries, except that we have had an increase in population for one thing," he said. "If we knew the correct answer, we would be working in that area right now. I would not be surprised if inflation played a part in it," Gideon said. Gideon said burglaries included any case involving breaking and entering with the intent to commit a theft, and that the area covered residential burglaries, business burglaries, burglaries of automobiles and burglaries of coin-operated ma-

"It might be someone breaking into a car and stealing a CB radio, a purse or a Christmas package," Gideon

"There are many things a person could do to help stop it. If they would do something other than leave things of value on display in the car. Someone passes, sees something of value, breaks the glass and takes it," he

AND CAPT. Billy Ray, head of the detective division, pointed out that entering an open garage and stealing something constituted a burglary.

Gideon and Ray emphasized that often items taken in burglaries are hard to identify as belonging to the victim. The example used was a stolen bottle of water.

In 1979 thefts, $596,958 in property $115,035 recovered

Thefts over $200 totaled 385 compared to 1978's 305. Police cleared 140, with 39 adults and 10 juveniles arrested. There were 332 thefts under $200, compared to the previous year's 321. 156 were cleared.

Property value from stolen automobiles in 1979 made up the bulk of missing property, equaling $1,203,560 with $1,118,035 recovered. In 1978, corresponding figures were $789,471 and $655,647.

IN 1979, 316 cars were stolen and 300 of those cases were cleared. In 1978. 237 cars were stolen. This compares to Odessa's 376 stolen in 1978, Howard County's 116 and Lubbock's 874, both Adults arrested for auto theft were 46, with 52 juveniles arrested.

Gideon and Capt. Ray attribute their exceptional recovery rate to Sgt. gate car thefts, as well as working with car dealers on security and disseminating information nationwide

"He (Ward) really is fantastic," Gideon said. "He works very closely Gideon said. "He works very closely with the two DPS auto theft agents assigned to Midland to clear these Ray said Ward had also worked a few plane thefts.

'Anything that takes a lot of tracking with serial numbers is his specialty," Ray said.

MIDLAND HAD TWO less homicides during 1979 than in 1978. Two were capital murders, five were class sified as murder and one as involuntary manslaughter. Also included in the annual report under homicide were two juveniles charged with attempted capital murder on a peace

Rape during 1979 was down to 15 from 1978's 24.

GIDEON SAID the drop here could be due to a number of factors. He said that some women don't want to report rape because of the rigors of court.

"We would like to think the drop is perhaps due to education in that regard, but it could be a combination of that and that some women are afraid to report it," he said.

Assaults for 1979 were 211, compared with 178 in 1978. A total of 190 Assaults for 1979 were 211, comcases were cleared in 1979. Thirtyseven adults and three juveniles were

1979 with 61 adults and 16 juveniles arrested.

Criminal mischief cases in Midland were one of the areas that showed the greatest increase with 431 reported in 1979 to 256 the previous year. Only 41 percent of the cases were cleared with 23 adults and 37 juveniles arrested.

"OF THESE 431 cases, often times at night, as many as 50 cases may be done by one or two or three perpetrators, just going around slashing tires," Gideon said.

"I know of no reason for just outright malicious destruction, as in most of these cases. Sometimes it's a grudge, but more often than not, it's just someone who decides to go on a rampage and destroy property, which makes it so hard to clear.

"I really think our clearance rate for criminal mischief, compared to the national average, is quite high."

Gideon said. We made a concentrated effort on trying to clear these cases, and I feel we've succeeded," he said.

Overall, the detective division arrested 905 adults and 229 juveniles.

HOWEVER, CAPT. Ray pointed out that many of the cases his division handled may have gone directly to the grand jury, or the county judge may have issued the warrant for arrest directly to the Sheriff's Office to be served.

"Therefore, we would not have made an arrest on that case," he ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Despite a plea from his fiancee, a jury recommended Saturday that condemned killer Theodore R. Bundy be executed for kidnapping and murdering a 12-year-old schoolgirl.

Circuit Court Judge Wallace Jopling set sentencing for Tuesday. He has the option of rejecting the recommendation of the jury. A death sentence would be the third such sentence for Bundy

In asking that he be sentenced to life in prison, Bundy earlier questioned his fiancee, 32-year-old Seattle resident Carole Boone, during a session that ended with an unusual courtroom exchange:

"I want to make this very clear - Will you marry me?" the 33-year-old Bundy asked. "Yes," Ms. Boone replied, giggling

"I do hereby marry you," said Bundy, his face Earlier, Bundy's request to be married here — before being returned to the Florida State Prison in Starke - was rejected by authorities. Before a sobbing closing argument to the jury, Bundy told the panel he declared himself and Ms. Boone married because "it was the only chance for us to be in the same room together where the right

Bundy, a one-time law student from Tacoma, Wash., was convicted by the five-man, seven-woman jury on Thursday of the abduction and murder of 12-year-old Kimberly Diane Leach.

In a rambling, 38-minute appeal to the jury for a life sentence, Bundy said at one point Saturday, "the bottom line is that the person that killed Kimberly Diane Leach is not in this courtroom.

After the prosecution objected, Bundy continued and began to sob when he told the jury, "Please, please be fair ... ask yourself if I'm capable of murdering Kimberly Diane Leach, and if you're wrong, there's no way to correct your mistake.'

Bundy, wearing a bow tie, khaki slacks and a light blue sports jacket, told the jury that he was not "begging for my life" but said that they should attempt to forget his past record.

He is already under two death sentences for convictions in Miami last July in the bludgeoning murders of two Florida State University sorority sisters. He is also under indictment in Colorado in the death of a nurse.

Former addicts help educate public

New methods for attacking Midland's drug problem and for educating elementary school-age children began in 1979, developed by the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department

The Department, feeling the need for a new apinitiate the new programs on drugs and their use. Teen Challenge also offered the use of their counselors for the program in order to present actual experiences from the life of the rehabilitated drug addict to the citizens.

The first program is a film on marijuana, entitled "Why Be Down When You Can Be Up," which was directed at the elementary and junior high school

The second program, geared more toward the high school student, deals with information and awareness of dangerous drugs through the film "11:59, Last Minute to Choose.

The third program is for parents and is called "We Have an Addict in the House.

former drug addicts. In addition to the drug programs, six new programs for elementary school children were started. Task forces laying groundwork for Midland of

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of stories on "Objectives for Midland," a project to design goals for this decade.

> By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

Task forces in the Objectives for Midland program are laying the groundwork for a road the Tall City will travel during the 1980s

The nine task forces studying various areas are about halfway through the discussion and formulation period with some definite ideas beginning to take shape. And one group is even suggesting it be expanded for a tenth task force to study one section of the city.

Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, serves as chairman of the spiritual task force. So far, his group has targeted two areas for work in the future, southeast Midland and the now-developing northwest Midland north of FM 868.

Because southeast Midland is so overwhelming to deal with, we're suggesting a separate task force to study it," Dr. Smith said. "It could consist of members from all other task forces.

THAT PROPOSAL will be taken up during the chairmen's meeting Monday night, he said.

The spiritual task force members spent the first two sessions catalog ing what they perceive as the overall atmosphere in Midland and its quality of life in spiritual terms, according to the chairman.

His group decided to begin eyeing northwest Midland because it is just "beginning to be born. That area probably will be fully developed in the next 10 years," said Dr. Smith.

What his group is proposing — on a general level — is to set up an ecumenical model in that section of the city.

"It would be a common ministry — we could come up with a model whereby all of us could buy into one venture. It would be a center that would focus on that section of the community - the home life, recreation, child care, YMCA and Salvation Army," he explained

"How it could be accomplished we haven't studied," he continued. "But it would be an exciting model if it could be pulled off."

Southeast Midland also would be the target of another model. "We need to set up a ministry in southeast Midland to get a handle on that area,"

Dr. Smith's task force is comprised of ministers from all denominations, races and ages that are trying to develop "objectives to make Midland a model city in its quality of life of all our citizens.

MEMBERS OF Mrs. William (Betty) Sumner's task force on recreation and entertainment have been doing legwork, so far, to gain the necessary background before deciding on specific goals, she related.

Mrs. Sumner is co-chairman of the group with Mickey Cappadonna Subcommittees have been interviewing various persons in the community, she said, and in three weeks will hammer out their goals.

Task force members first are looking at the city park system "because we felt this was the heart of the matter," and then are expanding

General ideas voiced so far include a lake for Midland and more public recreation. The group is looking at agencies that offer recreational facilities for youth and senior citizens. Goals probably will include utilizing existing recreation and creation of new facilities, Mrs. Sumner said.

Already existing recreation includes horseback riding, tennis, golf and spectator sports.

But recreation won't be limited to sports. It also will include entertainment like Summer Mummers productions.

One suggestion has been construction of a performing hall for the Permian Civic Ballet, Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchestra and even Sum-

"WE'RE TRYING TO cover all age groups from youths and families to senior citizens" she added. The education task force still is listening to input from experts in the field, said Walter Hall. He is co-chairing the group with Moak Rollins.

"We've listened to various representatives of the Midland Independent School District board, Midland College, private school boards, administrators, teachers and students," he said.

One area receiving particular attention is in vocational-education, ac-

"For example, are we adequately meeting the needs of vocational-education?" he said. "What would help those who are not pursuing a college education and what can they do to be employable. Another area drawing task force members' attention is in special education, he said. This covers gifted students, bilingual, handicapped and disadvantaged children. Public input into the task forces has been minimal, according to the chairmen. "It seems like more people would be wanting to get their say-so in," Hall remarked. The three chairman commented they are willing to listen to any suggestions from the public

Dialogue, discussion, debate on issues needed to test presidential candidates, says Kennedy

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, campaigning in Maine where polls show him running behind President Carter, said Saturday his challenge of the president will not be truly tested until Carter agrees Kennedy told a news conference that "I don't think it's any mystery to the American people that there has to be a full dialogue and discussion and debate on issues.

"I think my candidacy will be tested truly when we do have such debate and discussion

The Massachusetts Democrat declined to make any predictions on the outcome of Sunday's Democratic caucuses, saying only that "I'm confident we have support in the state.

However, published polls show Kennedy running behind Carter in this New England state

Kennedy said that regardless of the outcome in Maine, "We're going to continue the campaign.

Kennedy long since has backed away from his statement that he "must" win in Maine and New Hampshire, which holds its primary Feb. 26. The senator made that assertion after losing to Carter by a 2-1 margin in the Jan. 21 Iowa precinct caucuses.

Kennedy urged the Democrats to "send a special message to Mr.Carter to come out of the Rose Garden and begin to debate and discuss the important issues of our time.

Carter's refusal to debate has been a major theme of Kennedy's campaign since his Iowa defeat Earlier, Kennedy accused Carter of pursuing "milk toast" economic policies that will keep inflation and interest rates high while more than one million workers lose their jobs this year. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., also seeking to wrest the nomination from the president, spent the day campaigning in Maine, hoping to cut into Carter and Kennedy support. Appearing at a rally in Rockland, Brown said the Maine caucuses shouldn't be a referendum on Kennedy and Carter, but rather a "referendum on the draft, on the militarization of the country and on the bankruptsy of our economic policy.' "A lot of people don't want to register guns," he said. "I hope they don't want to register their teen-agers either."

The Maine spotlight fell solely on the Democrats, with the GOP caucuses taking place over a six-week span. None of the Republican contenders campaigned in the state Saturday.

Among the major GOP presidential contenders, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan stumped for support in New Hampshire and Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennesse campaigned in Puerto Rico.

During a visit to Hooksett, N.H., Reagan called for an immediate program of promotion and incentive enlistment to build the strength of the Army Reserve, and he repeated his opposition to registering women for

"I wouldn't want to belong to a society that would put its women in trenches with men," he said.

Most observers have said they believe Carter will add a victory in Maine to his win in last month's Iowa's precinct caucuses, further damaging Kennedy's already staggering campaign. And a poll published Friday by the Bangor Daily News said Carter leads Kennedy among registered Democrats in the state by 19 percentage points. But Vice President Walter F. Mondale, stumping Maine on Friday on behalf of Carter, said, "This is going to be a very, very close race. Maine Gov. Joseph Brennan, a Kennedy backer, declared, "I think

Sen. Kennedy will come in first." Brown has mounted a late-starting campaign, stumping the state personally and using radio and television commercials. Maine will send 22 delegates to this summer's Democratic National Convention, and Sunday's caucuses are the first step in a two-step selection process. The final step will be when the party holds its state convention on May 16-17.

nice out here. It's nice out here, at Texas National. We have a nice, new modern building. With lots of parking places. And grass and trees. Inside, it's air conditioned year 'round, and music plays. We've got nothing against being downtown, lots of banks are. Of course, there's not much in the way of trees and grass, and if you don't mind parking a block or two away and having a nice, brisk walk to your bank . . But it's nice out here. And if you live around here, why not bank with us at Texas National Bank of Midland? We're on your side.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — At age 79, Walter L. Welch refuses to let the passage of time dull his lifelong passion for sound and recording. Nor will he allow rare recordings to deteriorate with age. Welch, curator of Syracuse University Audio Archives and director of the Thomas A. Edison Re-recording Laboratory, has devoted the past 16 years to development of methods to preserve the sounds of the past for An earnest, bespectacled man who says he won't retire "until I'm dragged out by my heels," Welch found a new career in the audio field in 1964 after retiring as a professor of landscape architecture. As an admirer of Edison's early work, his goal is to preserve the true quality of sounds produced since the dawn of the recording age.

He has invented, and is continually improving, a re-recording system to retrieve the "live" sounds of the original artist without the distortions of artificial amplification. Welch and his assistant, William Storm, spend their days in the basement of one of the university's older buildings surrounded by vast piles of records, miles of cataloged tapes and an antique-lover's paradise of original Edison recording equipment, the earliest model dated 1888.

Welch's patented re-recording process depends on playing the cylinder or disc on the original playback equipment. Using synchronized turntables and a minimum of electronic tampering, Welch and Storm recapture the voices of history, minus the cracks and hisses of age, on tape.

The process results in a clear picture of the aural truth on the original cylinder or disc," explains Welch, who describes his re-recordings as ambinaural - two channel, but not stereo in its current meaning. "Both channels contain the total information from the original source, giving the listener a much closer impression of the original performance.'

The original recordings are carefully preserved and the re-recordings, filed for future use, are the backbone of what may develop into the world's most complete center for the study of sound recording.

Welch says he is encouraged by Syracuse University's support of his work with plans for a new $600,000 facility to house the Audio Archives and Re-recording Laboratory. 'What we are doing is unique because we are the only audio archivists trying to establish re-recording standards for the world," Welch explains. "There is nothing now in the way of a standard instrument for sound reproducing."

Working from more than 300,000 audio items. Welch's pioneer effort is committed to two goals: to faithfully recapture the true sound of the original artists, and to preserve audio history by preserving the sound of an original recording as it was heard by the people of the era.

"In other words," Welch says, "the preserved live sound can only be as good as the audio recording equipment and engineers of the time. The university's Audio Archives began in the early 1960s with the purchase of some 100,000 items from brothers Max and Joseph Bell, owners of Bell Music Box in New York City. They contain some fine examples of early audio engineering art, including works of singers Enrico Caruso and Nellie Melba and pianist

Jan Paderewski. There is also much spoken history: the voices of Many expansion campuses crumbling

EDITOR'S NOTE - The University of Massachusetts, like the nursery rhyme London Bridge, seens to be falling down. Well, if not falling, at least crumbling a little here and there. Similar construction and maintenance problems are causing concern in other colleges in the country as well.

By RICK HAMPSON

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) - While Evan Johnston was on the University of Massachusetts Building Authority in the 1960s he watched proudly as one building after another shot up from the old farm fields of the Connecticut River Valley.

These days he collects rubble, piles of it, and leaves the bits of cement, brick and motar on his desk as a reminder of what's happening to the state university that went up in the 60s and threatens to come down in

After a decade of leaky roofs, cracked walls and mysterious malfunctions, some of the school's 24,000 students are beginning to wonder if their campus is jinxed.

It all began with the leaks in the dormitory walls and ceilings.

Then came the $10-million Tillson Farm "powerless plant" which never has generated any heat because a $3-million pipeline is cracked.

The 17-story Graduate Research Center emits a noisy hum that annoys

At age 10, the $20-million Campus Center is riddled with cracks and leaks, elevators that don't run and poor air conditioning. Its $4 million parking deck is chronically in need of repair.

Anger and frustration peaked at the beginning of the school year when officials closed the 28-story main library, "the tallest in the world" after learning the next sonic boom or high wind might send large sections of its brick facade crashing down. It was reopened three months later, but only on a "pass basis" to students who demonstrate a need for a certain book or books. It remains effectively closed to most students most of the time and many of the basic volumes have been moved to the old library.

As student leader Howard Goldman says, "You have to face it. The place is falling apart.

He and other critics of the school argue that UMass was hastily and sometimes shoddily expanded in the 1960s and not adequately maintained in the 1970s

During the '70s, tighter budgets and rising costs resulted in the deferral of as much as $30 million in maintenance work. UMass officials say $7 million is needed now simply to bring campus buildings into compliance with basic health and safety ordi-

"It's like your car," says planning director Jack Littlefield. "You pay a couple of bucks to change the oil, or you wind up paying a lot to fix the

Meanwhile, the governmental largesse that built UMass up in the '60s has faded. Massachusetts state colleges and universities requested almost $20 million in fiscal 1980 for "urgent" deferred maintenance, but Gov. Edward King recommended only $4.3 million.

'There just isn't any money," Dean of Students William Field tells complaining students. Johnston, who is monitoring construction for school trustees, says it is not just UMass. "It's happening on campuses across the country.

Between the mid-60s and 1977 American colleges and universities, squeezed by tight budgets and rising costs, put off between $22 billion and $35 billion in maintenance work, according to Steven Hychka of the National Association of College and University Business Officers.

And the Chronicle of Higher Education has estimated that as much as $15 billion may be needed for immediate, essential repairs.

In most cases, deterioration born of poor construction and deferred maintenance goes unnoticed for years until things start going wrong, as in the crumbling of UMass.

School officials tend to be "afraid to say anything about it," according to Robert L. Gale of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges until "suddenly faced with multimillion dollar repairs, or when suddenly a roof is going and it's going to cost half a million dollars."

Although schools spend an average of 10 percent of their operating budgets on maintenance, many have fallen further and further behind at a time when rising energy costs make non-porous roofs and walls essential. But deferred maintenance is only part of the problem, according to Paul Knapp, executive director of the Association of Physical Plant Administrators. Deterioration "is traceable less to age than to inadequate specifications, cheap materials and second-rate workmanship," he says. 'I don't think it has much to do with deferred maintenance when roofs leak two or three years after being built," says Johnston. He and Knapp say many college buildings were thrown up in the booming '60s. Now, "they're starting to show their age in a rather ungla-mourous way," adds Knapp. Public institutions have been hit particularly hard. "The public sector tends to construct buildings without proper procedures," says Johnston. 'The private sector is tighter with money.

He points to the Campus Center Garage, where in spots 21/2 inches of five-inch concrete has been eroded by water, exposing reinforcement rods that are several sizes smaller than specified.

Repairs last fall cost $40,000, and Physical Plant Director George Norton says that may become an annual expense.

We've seen a tremendous difference between what was put in and what was paid for," Johnston says. A state commission investigating public building contracts is devoting attention to UMass, including its library.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y: (AP) - The U.S. government will oppose sending an American team to the Olympic Games "in the capital of an invading nation," Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told the International Olympic Committee on

"To hold the Olympics in any nation that is warring on another is to lend the Olympic mantle to that nation's actions," he told the committee, opening a three-day meeting at the Winter Games at Lake Placid

In an earlier address, Lord Killanin of Ireland, president of the IOC, urged that the Olympic Games be kept free of politics, expressed his dislike of sport being used as a political tool, and also admitted "I have never denied or ignored the intrusion of politics into the Olympic movement.

Killanin reiterated his stand that the IOC signed a contract with Moscow in 1974 to hold the 1980 Summer Games there and said it must be honored. 'Solutions to the political problems of the world are not the responsibility of sporting bodies such as the International Olympic Committee, but of the appropriate governmental organizations.

There was long, loud applause for Killanin but when Vance finished speaking, only two delegates applauded. Reporters could not tell which ones they were or which countries they represented. The other delegates, approximately 65 of them, sat with their hands in their laps at the conclusion of Vance's remarks spelling out the U.S. government

President Carter has asked the committee to postpone, cancel or move the Summer Games from Moscow if the Soviet Union does not withdraw its troops from Afghanistan by Feb. 20. If the occupation continues past that date, the State Department officials said, meanwhile, they have received information the Soviet Union is planning to make a "token" withdrawal of troops within the next three or four weeks to defuse Western opposition. The Russians began moving troops into the country in late December and installed a puppet

After the address, Vance told a reporter, "Everyone was very kind and listened. They may have disagreed but they were willing to listen." Vance had met with Killanin before the opening of the IOC meeting and there were reports he implored the secretary not to inject politics into his welcoming

However, a prepared text of Vance's remarks had been shown to reporters in Washington earlier Saturday, and he followed it almost to the letter. After Killanin's plea to Vance had failed, he called Vitaly Smirnov of the Soviet Union to his room and asked the Soviet IOC delegate to do his best to avert what had been rumored as a walkout of the meeting if Vance spoke of

The Associated Press learned that Juan Samaranche of Spain, chief IOC protocol officer and Spanish ambassador to the Soviet Union, canvassed members of the committee and convinced them not to walk out or put up any other kind of demonstration in reaction to Vance's remarks.

The International Olympic Committee is on record as being opposed to any would oppose moving the Games or taking part in any type of boycott. Some members of the committee have said a decision might be delayed until the Winter Games are completed, on Feb. 24, and possibly until April, when the Government energy-saving rules take toll of tropical fish

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government's energy-saving rules may be an inconvenience for people, but for some tropical fish at the National Aquarium the result has been fatal.

When the current cold wave came long we weren't able, with existing facilities, to keep the water warm enough," explained Craig Phillips, quarium director.

Phillips said he had not completed a body count, but there had been a toll among tropical fish accustomed to Complicating the problem is a question of jurisdiction. The aquarium is an Interior Department operation, but it is situated in the basement of the Commerce Department building.

'The aquarium room is heated eight hours a day, but because of energy policy, we don't provide other heating. A waiver for this was requested at end of December. That waiver has been approved and we are heating on weekends now," said a Commerce Department official who asked not to be identified.

Phillips said the biggest problem has come from two long corridors leading to the aquarium. The aquari-um is situated between two loading docks and cold air blows down the hallways.

There is a pair of double doors in the south hall but no doors in the north one, allowing cold air to blow through. Phillips said, and "the tropical freshwater section is right in the area hardest hit."

Some of the smaller fish tanks have heated water, but the large tropical tanks did not, officials said.

A steam-heated work space behind those tanks produces hot air that helps keep them warm. Water temperature in the tanks needs to be kept at 75 degrees to 85 degrees, Phillips

It was too late for some of the fish,

Phillips said a South American pacu was the biggest loss. This 2-footlong fish is a relative of the piranha, he said, although it is not as aggressive and is more of a vegetarian. The fish had been at the aquarium at least Phillips said the lost fish can be replaced, but usually only small ones are available. The fish that perished were all older specimens which had grown to a good size.

Clements denies critics' charges

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says anybody who says he is taking "a meat ax approach" to reducing the state payroll is bending the truth.

He also sought support Friday from University of Texas business students for a state constitutional amendment giving governors power to make sure state agencies spend their money as directed by the Legislature.

"I hope every one of you in here who will participate in the election process in November will yote affirmatively on that amendment," Clements said in a speech at the business school.

Clements said he has started a system of counting state employees based on number of "full-time equivalents" - that is, 40 man-hours per week equal one employee

Comptroller Bob Bullock currently counts only social security numbers of persons on the payroll, no matter how few hours per week they work, and shows "a body count" of about 170,000, the governor

Clements predicted the state would reach his goal of cutting the number of employees by 25, 000 jobs during his four-year term, starting with a reduction of 8,000 between Jan. 31, 1979, and You have undoubtedly heard people talking in terms of a meat ax approach ... Nothing could be further from the truth," Clements said. Employee reductions will take place on a "case by case" basis, with most positions being eliminated by normal attrition, he said. "Some departments will have, indeed, increased and not decreased. So we have very prudently gone about this," he said.

Clements said another management tool, zerobase budgeting, has received "only lip service in the past," with agencies continuing to build each legislative session on the budgets they have

He said he wanted each agency's budget "pulled back to zero, then build those programs up as they are justified.

The economy-minded gov rnor found some students were interested in what he was doing personally to keep expenditures down.

"Why not reduce government sending by returning your ($71,400) salary to the government?" asked one student.

Volunteers, donations needed to rehibilitate homes

No. it's not the government's Central Intelligence Agency seeking prospective undercover agents. It's the 8th annual volunteer housing rehabilitation project called Christmas in April, seeking community support in repairing homes of local citizens who own their homes, but are unable to make improvements themselves on their houses in substandard condition. This can be due to either lack of money and/or materials or the help to do it. Christmas in April 1980 is slated April 26.

According to Kimberly Modisett of the Human Relations Council, "the trouble has to actually cause discomfort or is a health hazard. Usually these are homes of the elderly or handicapped."

Repairs are usually made to plumbing and heating fixtures, as well as installation and repairing of electrical circuits and gas lines. Workers also replace shingles on some roofs and replace windows, doors and porches to others, as well as additional painting and sprucing up.

They also have been known to put up railings, replace damaged closet doors or even build a whole

The council, in charge of field research, currently is taking applications for repairs and will soon start surveying the homes and determining the approximate amount of material and number of man hours needed, said Ms. Modisett.

Any civic, social or study group, individuals, or churches can donate their support to this project.

MT. PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) - This is a Valentine's Day love story, filled with hearts and flowers, hisses and rattles.

It's a Valentine's Day story about the love life of snakes; love in cold blood. It will slither right into your heart.

intimately than the average person.

In northern climes, Valentine's Day means the time is near when male snakes turn to thoughts of love. Most snakes in the north mate in the spring. It tems. isn't only because that's when their hormone level is especially high, but because they seldom see each other at other times of the year.

As solitary creatures, snakes usually come together only over the winter, when they hibernate together. As the hibernation period ends in the spring, the males and females are together and, well, the girls all look prettier at closing time.

Courtship is brief, but creative. Most snakes court only 20 minutes to an hour.

But what a courtship! The male initiates the love affair, gently biting, writhing, nudging and caress-

El Paso's present little different from wild past

El. PASO, Texas (AP) - Whiskey, saloons and violence were travelling companions in this West Texas town's wild past. Things haven't changed much.

Murder and mayhem still frequent the bars and booze palaces of El Paso and have taken a deadly toll during the first days of the still-young year. Liquor or taverns were involved in 11 of El Paso's dozen killings since the first of the year. Eight persons were shot in a northside lounge a week ago when a gunman walked in and sprayed the room with bullets. Five died. Around the turn of the century there were plenty of saloon shoot-outs. "There were a lot of them," says Police Lt. Ed Agan, "and this kind of takes you back to the old

"It seems like we are trying to live up to our reputation," adds Agan, the police department's unofficial historian. "I don't think any town in the early days was as wild or wilder than El Paso. Shootings were so mmonplace in the early days that they didn't down in history because there were so many

The policeman says El Paso had only five murders in January 1979. The murder total for the year was 33. All cases have been cleared, Agan says.

A day before the quintuple slaying, 13 persons were injured in a barroom brawl at an El Paso lounge. Patrons were injured by knives and flying tables, pool sticks and numbered balls. The victims did not press charges.

The year's first murder on Jan. 3 came after the victim chased an armed man out of a cocktail

On Jan. 14, a 17-year-old boy was found strangled in an empty apartment. Customers at a bar frequented by homosexuals told police the youth left with a stranger shortly before he was killed.

A 19-year-old died Jan. 25 of stab wounds he received in a bar. The next day a 22-year-old man was shot during a fight with a bouncer at a watering hole featuring topless dancers On Jan. 29 a middle-age man was found strangled after witnesses said he and a stranger walked out of a downtown taproom. A 29-year-old executive was found shot dead in a vacant lot. Witnesses told police the 14-year-old arrested in the case had been drinking beer and whisky

And the five last week make 11.

Leon C. Metz, an author and historian on western gunfighters, says whiskey was involved in many early El Paso killings. "All gunfighters were drinkers," says Metz.

Perhaps the most famous in El Paso was John Wesley Hardin, gunfighter turned attorney.

EDITOR'S NOTE — St. Valentine's Day is just a wrestling hold, and looks like one, too. The male beloved's head to the ground.

> Males do combat for the favors of a lady. Rattlesnakes do a strange ritualistic wrestling match in which a winner and loser is determined. The loser in these mating battles leaves in disgrace, although he is never killed

The mating itself, which Gillingham can explain in much more detail than your family newspaper will allow, takes an average of 20 minutes. With some rattlesnakes, it goes on for 24 hours.

Male snakes are always promiscuous. How does a herpetologist know all this? Gillingh-

This love story comes from Dr. James Gillingham, am, a friendly guy you wouldn't expect to be doing an assistant professor of biology at Central Michigan intimate spying, studies mating behavior in the wild as well as in the laboratory. He's found they do it about the same way in the lab as in the woods or in

He keeps 40 snakes in his home and another 40 in the lab. That's a love affair if ever one existed. And it has led to some interesting findings about how snakes protect the ones they love - and are loving.

For instance, snakes are extremely vulnerable to predators when mating. And the ones who mate in the open, where they are most vulnerable, mate for shorter periods of time than do those who mate undergound, in the water, in a motel, or wherever. There's one last thing you should know about snakes' sexual abilities. Some females can mate once and have litters for five and six years in a row without ever seeing

American oil companies taking plunge off China coast

> PEKING — Sixty years ago, Standard Oil Co. of New York started drilling for oil in China. It struck five dry holes in a row and, disappointed, pulled up its equipment and left for more promising fields elsewhere, declaring there was no oil here. Then, of course, the oil companies had plenty of hot prospects around the world. But now, as petroleum sup-plies elsewhere dwindle and are threatened by political upheaval, most of the world's oil giants are being lured back to China for another look at the country's still largely untested oil potential.

China's National Oil and Gas Exploration Development Corp. has nearly completed a series of agreements with American, European and Japanese oil concerns for comprehensive seismic surveys of what are believed to be its vast offshore oil reserves. The entire Chinese coast from the Gulf of Bohai in the north to the Gulf of Tonkin in the south, off Vietnam — has been opened in recent weeks to foreign ships loaded with geologists and sophisticated seismic equipment. At least a dozen American oil companies are known to be participating in the geophysical survey, which by mid-1981 could be followed by actual exploration and drilling.

The American firms have been assigned what many regard as the most promising offshore area, the South China Sea, where the Chinese already have reported oil discoveries of their

What everyone is after is a share of what Selig S. Harrison, U.S. petroleum expert, calls "one of the last unexplored undersea regions in the world." Another American, an oil executive in business here, says of China, "This is the last frontier for Exploring for oil in China is a risky business, however. The foreign companies, which have put up more than $100 million of their own capital for the seismic work alone, are gambling part of any oil reserves they eventually discover, although the Chinese refuse to commit themselves. The companies hope the Chinese will opt for the same kind of production-sharing contracts that other developing nations have signed. Petroleum Minister Song Zhenming, the mastermind behind China's ambitious oil exploration program, says his ministry will not decide what terms to offer until the seismic studies are finished and analyzed, a year

If everything goes according to schedule, the companies say the first offshore wells could start producing by mid-1983, though the flow is unlikely to be substantial until the late

"None of us know how we're going to get our money back," says an American oil official. "But the potential stakes are so high in this game that nobody can afford to sit it out."

There are political risks, too. The geophysical work in the Gulf of Tonkin is being conducted in waters contested by Vietnam, China's archenemy. The Vietnamese have denounced the contract China signed with a sixcompany, American-led consortium, as "a brazen violation of the territorial integrity of Vietnam" and "an act

Nahn Dan, Hanoi's official newspaper, also warned that the Vietnamese would "resolutely defend," with arms if necessary, "our sovereignty over our natural resources. Both the Chinese and the Americans regard these as empty threats. But for safety's sake, the U.S. consortium, led by Standard Oil of Indiana, has confined its work to the Chinese side of an imaginary line drawn between Hainan Island and the Vietnamese coast. The consortium, which also includes Union Oil of California, Pennzoil Company and Cities Service Company, is reportedly using Chinese rather than American ships on State Department advice.

Despite the unknowns, the companies are hardly flying blind. In the past that China will grant them access to decade China has proven that it has substantial oil resources, at least on shore, and its tentative drilling in shallow coastal waters has produced enough finds to tantalize the world's oil giants.

In defiance of American and Soviet Heilongjiang in the northeast to the experts who once solemnly assured them that China was devoid of oil, the Chinese have discovered and brought into production 26 major oil fields, extending from the frozen wilds of deserts of Xinjiang in the northwest. Their 1978 production of 2.08 million barrels a day almost entirely from onshore wells, trailed far behind the output of such major producers as Saudi Arabia or the United States but put them on a par with Libya, Kuwait and Venezuela — all members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Already, too, China has overtaken Indonesia, another OPEC member, to become Asia's leading oil producer.

Although handicapped by equipment shortages and outmoded technology, the Chinese also have struck oil offshore. Discoveries have been made in the shallow Gulf of Bohai, an underwater extension of an onshore field. In August, Chinese officials disclosed to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that "sweet" crude, low in sulfur, had just been found off Hainan Island, in the south.

Oil also has begun to flow from a new well in the muddy estuary of the Zhu (Pearl) River, downstream from Canton. Foreign petroleum experts are not sure about the quality or quantity of the Zhu River yield, for the Chinese have explored that area entirely on their own, using rigs purchased from abroad. But the New China News Agency, in its announcement of the discovery, said "crude oil has been gushing" from "the highyield well" for two months.

Just how much oil China has is a subject of great conjecture. The Oil & Gas Journal, an industry publication, puts China's known reserves at 20 billion barrels, compared with 30 billion in the United States. Other estimates of onshore reserves alone, however, range as high as 50 billion barrels, which would equal the North Sea and Alaska's North Slope combined. Deposits offshore could add an additional 50 billion barrels to China's oil wealth

But as Jan Olaf Williams, a Norwegian scientist, told an oil industry conference, "The question is not how much oil China has in the ground, but how much it can get out.'

All the evidence indicates that China's capacity to exploit its reserves is limited by primitive tech-noogy, a lack of hard currency to buy more sophisticated equipment and peculiar geological conditions that make extraction difficult. Already, the growth of China's oil production has slowed, as secondary recovery methods have been instituted at the main onshore fields and the rate of recovery has declined. In the first half of this year, oil output climbed only 3.6 percent after increasing 11 percent in 1978. China's movement offshore has been hindered by fund shortages. The U.S. Department of Energy has estimated that starting up offshore production could cost the Chinese as much as $20 billion, a sum that is beyond the reach of a country whose entire national budget was only $66 billion last year.

'Our assumption is that the Chinese turned to foreign companies only when it became apparent that they could never go it alone offshore," says an industry source in Hong Kong.

China's ideological objections to foreign involement disappeared, the experts believe, because the country's post-Mao leadership regards oil exports as the prime source of the hard currency needed to finance its new modernization drive.

But domestic demand for oil in China is growing so fast — oil ac-counts for about 20 percent of the country's energy consumption, up from 3 percent in 1970 - that some American oilmen wonder whether there will be any left over for them even when oil begins to flow from offshore wells

Little is known about the progress of the offshore search so far, because China has insisted on strict secrecy in its dealings with the oil companies and ordered that contract details not be made public. Few company officials will permit themselves to be identified in print. It is known, however, that China has divided the geophysical work basically by nationality.

Statue has correct hat for occasion

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) - Marge McCarthy's "little girl" wears many, many hats while kneeling in front of her Fresno home.

She wears so many, in fact, that the little girl actually a petite cement statue - draws a gander from virtually every passer-by.

Originally dubbed "Little Audrey" for a comic character, the statue is now referred to by the entire neighborhood as "the little girl." And, whatever the occasion, Mrs. McCarthy always sees to it that her little girl wears just the right

On Christmas Eve, she was Santa's helper in a red stocking cap. The next day she wore the Virgin Mary's veil. On fall weekends, the statue sported a football helmet. And her black stovepipe is worn to help denote Lincoln's birthday

Mrs. McCarthy's unusual preoccupation got its start several years ago when her parents gave her $100 to buy something for her house in this central California city.

Remembering a family doctor who used to put a golf cap on a boy in his fountain, Mrs. McCarthy bought the statue, vowing to keep her little girl properly attired with a hat every day.

The collection of hats goes on: a velvet sombrero for Mexican fiestas, a crash helmet for the Indy 500, a dunce cap for the first day of school, a yarmulke for Rosh Hashana and a homburg for Father's

Mrs. McCarthy admits that some people might find her hobby a bit eccentric, but she doesn't mind.

"I really enjoy doing this for the benefit of other people," she says. "One family that car pools through the area came to the door with a tray of cookies."

Not everyone takes kindly to the little girl. In 1978, vandals kidnapped the statue, dragging the 100-pound figure several blocks before finally shattering it on a city street.

Mrs. McCarthy was heartbroken when she found the tiny fragments of the statue being ground up by passing cars. Two friends sent sympathy cards. But, the statue was reborn with a custom-cast twin and Mrs. McCarthy rose above her sorrow, sending birth announcements to family and friends. Now, the little girl has dozens of hats over her head and a large concrete anchor to keep her from wan-

Presidential hopefuls seeing a different South in '80

ATLANTA (AP) - Presidential hopefuls stumping the South in search of delegate support are seeing a different South, politically speaking.

Since 1976, several key figures have

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, a serious challenger to Jimmy Carter in the early 1976 primaries, retired in 1979. Although he remains in the state, the Wallace Era clearly has ended and his influence in the 1980 race is marginal.

Alabama also has lost two powerful U.S. senators since 1976. John Sparkman retired after three decades in Washington, but was replaced by Howell Heflin, a Democrat who is generally considered Sparkmanesque in his liberal-convervative blend. James B. Allen, a staunch conservative, died in 1978. He was replaced by Democrat Donald Stewart, a young state senator.

In Arkansas, long-time Sen. John L. McClellan died in 1977 and was succeeded by former Gov. David Pryor, another Democrat. In Florida, Democratic Gov. Reubin Askew stepped down in January 1979 but was appointed by Carter to serve in a Cabinet-level post as a special trade representative. He was succeeded by Democrat Bob Graham.

In Mississippi, Sen. James O. Eastland, president pro-tem of the Senate and chairman of the Judiciary Committee, retired in 1977. He was succeeded by Thad Cochran, a Republi-

Louisiana lost two powerful legislators in 1976 — Rep. Otto Passman lost his seat to another Democrat, Jerry Huckaby, and Democrat Rep. F. Edward Hebert retired. Scandal then rocked the state's politics when Hebert was succeeded by Rick Tonry, a Democrat who lost the seat a year later after being convicted of accepting illegal campaign contributions. Tonry's successor was Republican Robert Livingston.

Tennessee's governorship changed parties in January 1979 when Democrat Ray Blanton was ousted three days early in a dispute over 11th-hour pardons. He was succeeded by Republican Lamar Alexander.

In Texas, Gov. Dolph Briscoe was defeated in the Democratic primary by Attorney General John Hill, who in turn was beaten by Republican Bill Clements in the general election.

Record cotton crop recorded

AUSTIN — Texas farmers produced 5.7 million bales of Upland cotton in 1979 and thereby put out the state's largest cotton crop in 30 years, according to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V.

The projected value of the yield is $1,545,840,00, Brown said in quoting figures released by the Texas Crop and Livestock and Crop Reporting

The increased cotton production helped raise the total harvested crop acreage to 22,677,000 acres, which is about 10 percent above 1978's total all-crop acreage. Officials in four states probed

Speaker Clayton among those implicated

WASHINGTON (AP) - FBI agents are questioning dozens of public officials and others implicated in bribery and kickbacks during a year-long undercover investigation of organized crime in four states, sources familiar with the probe said Saturday. Beginning late Thursday and continuing through the weekend, agents fanned across Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas to question those suspected of wrongdoing and advise them of their rights, said one knowledgeable source.

The undercover operation, coordinated by a Justice Department strike force in Los Angeles, was designed to gather evidence of corruption in the awarding of labor union health and welfare inurance plans, said the sources who requested anonymity. By the time the undercover phase ended, a source said, FBI agents had evidence implicating high officials in the Texas and Louisiana state governments. Details of the Oklahoma and Arkansas segments of the probe could not be learned Saturday night.

THE INVESTIGATION, which the bureau called "Brilab" for briberylabor, was first reported Saturday by the Los Angeles Times and The New York Times after a Los Angeles federal judge publicly disclosed his unwitting role in it.

The Justice Department and the FBI officially declined comment. Federal officials, already nervous about an internal inquiry to determine the source of news leaks about an FBI undercover operation which has implicated several members of Congress, became even more tightlipped about the latest disclosure.

But information from several sources familiar with Brilab produced this account of the operation:

ABOUT A YEAR AGO, federal investigators persuaded Joseph Hauser, a California insurance promoter twice convicted on federal charges, to turn informant and cooperate with undercover agents.

With Hauser's help, FBI men posed as Prudential Insurance Co. agents willing to pay bribes and kickbacks to obtain favorable treatment from government and union officials responsible for awarding insurance con-

Paris men flee cells

PARIS, Texas (AP) -Two Paris men overwhelmed a jailer while he was cleaning their cell, grabbed his keys and escaped from the Lamar County Jail Saturday afternoon, officials said

The jailer, Shorty Hulen, 70, was taken to a hospital for treatment of possible rib damage.

The escapees were identified as Tracey Stone, 21, and Marvin Dewane Ridley, 22. Officials said a man unwittingly offered them a ride in his pickup truck shortly after the escape, and the man reported letting them off at a house in Paris

Circus carved from imagination

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) - Like other kids, Fred Wagenfuehr carries a circus in his imagi-

But this kid is 63 years old. And he tediously recreated the magical big top of his imagination - in elaborate balsa wood miniatures.

Wagenfuehr, a New Braunfels barber for 40 years. spent nearly 10 years painstakingly carving and painting balsa wood pieces that he fitted together to become the stunning "Francis Waggie" miniature

The 17 colorful circus wagons are each only about 12 inches long. The dozens of elephants, lions, tigers, clowns, lion tamers, trained horses and ringmasters were carved in perfect proportion.

Although Wagenfuehr is self taught, the circus is intricately accurate in detail. So intricate and accurate, in fact, that it caught the attention of historians at the Institute of Texan Cultures in nearby San Antonio

"The Francis Waggie 3-Ring Circus and Wild Animal Show" - named for Wagenfuehr's deceased mother — went on temporary display there this week as an outstanding example of Texas folk art.

"He did a spectacular job," said Dr. Phil Hewitt. an institute historian and exhibits manager. "It is as authentic a job as I've ever seen. It is accurate down to the nuts and bolts on the wagons. It is really

The circus was fueled by Wagenfuehr's childhood jewelry he now loves to make. He once even conmemories of the circus' annual visit to New Braunfels. Wagenfuehr would sneak off to the railroad yard to watch the circus unload. Then he'd pester the roustabouts as they set up the big top and fed the elephants. And he never missed a show

How I did love that circus," he recalled. "It used to be really something when the circus came to town," he said. "When I became an adult, I kept going to the big circuses when they started coming to he coliseums in San Antonio.

Wagenfuehr might have become an adult, but he admits that he's never quite grown up.

He started constructing balsa wood model airplanes when he was in his 20s. He had a few informal painting lessons from a neighbor and later graduat ed to model ships and cars.

In fact, the dozens of circus models are only a few of the thousands of models Wagenfuehr has built and still builds.

The painted models - some wood and others plastic - overflow showcases and hang from the ceiling of his downtown barber shop. There's ships, cars, planes, soldiers and dinosaurs everywhere. When you lean back in a barber chair for a shave, you are confronted by a model of a U.S. Navy zeppelin hanging above.

His house next door is brimming with more models, a doll collection and other toys, and the rock structed a tiny replica of his church in New Braunfels, complete with the rock walls.

"We'll never grow old this way. We'll never grow up," said Wagenfuehr's patient wife, Eleanor. They married 18 years ago and have no children - just Wagenfuehr

"My, my, I don't know how many models I've built," said Wagenfuehr. "Several thousand, I'm sure. I have just about every one I ever built. I don't like to turn loose of them.

"I guess it's unusual. People around here have known me for years and don't think anything about my hobbies. I'm happy doing what I'm doing," said Wagenfuehr. "I don't know what makes me do it. I just love to build them. Whenever I feel depressed or anything, I go to work on one of them and I forget everything.

He began the circus in 1950. It was nearly 1960 before it was completed.

"It took awhile. I couldn't even begin to count how many hours I spent on it," he said. "We didn't have TV then. I would just listen to the radio when I was at home and work on the circus. I didn't know what else to do during the winters but work on that stuff. I'd also work between customers at the shop.

His customers unknowingly contributed. The manes and tails of the horses and the hair on human figures came from hair snippings he collected. The horns on a longhorn steer were once leg spurs on a

He consulted a friend at a harness shop to make sure his tiny wooden horses were hitched properly. The horses were painted and then flocked to resemble a real horse's coat. Most of the tedious carving was done with razor blades.

When the circus was finally finished, it took its place in the barber shop showcases with all of the other models

It was nearly 20 years later that officials of a local museum convinced Wagenfuehr to display his circus there. "I hated to do it because it was so much · trouble to load and cart up there," he said.

An Institute of Texan Cultures historian was passing through one day and spotted the treasure of folk art. Officials there quickly convinced Wagenfuehr to lend them the circus

"I had no idea they would be interested in it," he said. "I never intended to make it for show. I just showed it to people who came in the shop. I just enjoyed doing it.

Gem-Studded Exotic Woods Used for Custom Pool Cues

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — He fashioned his first custom pool cue from a 2-by-4 and a broomstick handle and earned $35 for his handiwork. Today, Bob Meucci creates them from exotic woods inlaid with precious and semiprecious stones and they command as much as $5,000

"Our cues are the most beautiful in the world," the owner of Meucci

Meucci, 36, went to work in his father's tool and die shop in Glenview, Ill., when he was 12. About seven years later he became shop foreman and discovered custom pool-cue making.

"One day I went with a friend to pick up his custom pool cue," Meucci said. "He paid a guy $65 and it started me to thinking, 'Here he's getting $65 for a 57-inch piece of wood.' Right then, I knew that was for Meucci said "by my fourth cue I was as good as the master cue makers." News of his skill spread by word-of-mouth and he worked for six custom-cue companies before he moved to Memphis five years ago. Meucci and a seven-man staff turn out more than 10,000 standardmodel two-piece cues a year ranging in price from $35 to $700.

The custom-made cues - like a $5,000 one recently ordered by Minnesota Fats - are created by Meucci himself. He turns out about 100 a year from ebony, zebra, cocobolo, mozambique, îppi, osage and orange woods and intricately inlays them with ivory, silver, gold, opals, rubies, sapphires and diamonds.

But who shells out $1,000 or more for a pool stick?

'Eighty percent of the world champs use our cues," said Meucci, who has customers as far away as Italy and Japan.

Pool great Willie Mosconi and the reigning kings of the billiard table, Larry Hubbart and Buddy Hall, are among his clientele.

But big-spending "Common Joes" out to make an impression also buy, Meucci said. "I had one guy who came to buy a' $300 cue, but then he saw our $700 cue and decided that's what he wanted," he said.

Coronary care unit scares heart patient

Dear Dr. Solomon: I recently returned home after being hospitalized with a heart attack. Since I am now recovering, I suppose that whatever was done at, the hospital was effective. I must say, though, that give me a heart attack. Are specialized units like this the best way to treat patients? - Russ.

Dear Russ: You raise a question that troubles many people within the medical profession. Despite the fact that the first coronary care unit (CCU) in this country was opened almost 17 years ago, its presumed benefits have never been documented. Some physicians now question the value of the

Some complaints directed against it echo your own concerns. The CCU can be a frightening place, with its bright lights, lack of privacy, intermittend alarms and discomforting procedures. Critics contend that these experiences can even delay a patient's recovery. Moreover, one study has suggested that the psychological stress associated with the CCU can even provoke potentially fatal arrhyth-

In one British research project, Dr. Harold G. Mather studied 450 patients who had acute heart attacks, assigning them randomly for treatment at home or in a CCU. After almost a year, it was found that 27 percent of those treated in the CCU had died, compared with only 20 percent of those treated at

A similar but retrospective study of heart attack patients was conducted at the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. Researchers who reviewed the records of more than 1,000 patients found that the the coronary care unit almost scared me enough to adjusted mortality rate among CCU patients was almost twice that of patients treated in the hospital but not in the CCU

On the other hand, those who defend the CCUs can also cite studies supporting their point of view. A Danish study of 421 heart attack patients showed a mortality rate of 17.6 percent for CCU patients, but 41.6 percent for those treated in other parts of the hospital. And Dr. Milford G. Wyman, a California cardiologist, has reported that mortality from myocardial infarction dropped from 34 percent before the establishment of a CCU at San Pedro and Peninsula Hospital to 10 percent today

There has been no randomized study in the United States comparing the effectiveness of the CCU with treatment in a regular hospital bed - and competent physicians disagree as to whether such research is possible. Some claim such a study would be completely ethical and should be undertaken. They note that CCU care is expensive and that this adds to the need to establish whether it does any good.

Other doctors say that a randomized study is neither possible nor ethical. They contend that the CCU makes it possible to treat arrhythmias and to resuscitate patients when they go into ventricular fibrillation. They also claim a well-run unit is unlikely to produce extreme stress and, in fact, can be reassuring to the patient

Cats have $40,000 home

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Watt McLeroy had to be driven to the rural outskirts of Memphis to visit his cats after he moved to a nursing home here. Now he tries to see them twice a day — he's bought them a $40,000 home in the city.

McLeroy, 84, who moved to the nursing home in 1968 after suffering a stroke, bought his six cats a house when he just couldn't get used to the separation. The cats, the only occupants of the house, play, eat and sleep in the kitchen-den area of the home near the Rosewood Nursing Cen-

Speech to women's club started McCarthyism

By BARRY RENFREW Associated Press Writer

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP)1- It began as a speech to a women's political club, a charge of communist subversion in the highest levels of government. It swept the nation into an era of torment and fear.

Thirty years ago, on Feb. 9, 1950, Joseph McCarthy, the junior senator from Wisconsin, was met at Wheeling Airport by two local Republican Party officials and a reporter from The Intelligencer

Several weeks before, worried about re-election and his obscurity after four years in office, McCarthy had asked GOP officials to arrange several speaking engagements for Lincoln's birthday. Almost indifferently, McCarthy was offered Wheeling; Salt Lake City; Reno, Nev., and Huron, S.D.

That night, the Ohio County Women's Republican Club, anticipating traditional pleasantries, instead heard a speech that was to launch a bitter chapter in American political history and make "McCarthyism" a byword — even today — for hate-mongering and political purges

In a pose seared on the memory of modern history, McCarthy waved a sheaf of papers and said, "I have here in my hand a list of 205 that were known to the secretary of state as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless are still working and shaping the policy of the State Department.'

Eva Lou Ingersoll, who listened to the speech, today remembers the fear invoked by McCarthy's words. "We were afraid of communism. We were just sleeping at a time when terrible things were going on in the country," she said.

Intelligencer reporter Frank Desmond hurried to his office with the account of McCarthy's sensational charges. Managing editor Norman Yost phoned the story to the Charleston bureau of The Associated Charles Lewis, the AP's night editor, was finishing

A Gallup Poll in January 1954 showed that 50 percent of the American people supported McCarthy, while 29 percent opposed his efforts.

In Congress, McCarthy found eager supporters. Others, despite mistrusting his charges and abhorring his methods, kept silent for fear of being accused themselves. Appeals to the White House to intervene were ignored. It seemed no one was safe from the senator.

Yet despite almost five years of investigations and hearings, the McCarthy witchhunt failed to uncover a single communist. An investigation by The Associated Press in 1954 found that of 2.5 million federal employees, 75 could be accused of communist activities. All 75 had been investigated before 1948.

Commercialized wildlife big business in Montana

By JOHN KUGLIN

HELENA, Mont. (AP) - Hunters who want to bag an elk without much hunting can do it in Montana, where they can shoot a fenced one on a game farm for up to $4,000 a head.

Some hunters don't consider that a sporting proposition. It's commerce. And so is the "harvesting" of elk antlers, which bring a pretty penny in the Oriental drug market, where they're esteemed as aphrodisiacs, among other things.

Some Montana Fish and Wildlife officials complain they have practically no control over Montana's 230 licensed game farms, which range from a few cages to nearly 2,000 fenced

"All the law allows us is the opportunity to inspect the fences," says Robert Wambach, the state's Fish and Wildlife director.

That suits game farmer Glen Childers, who sees no difference "between a domesticated animal like a cow and a domesticated elk. I'd like to ask the Fish and Game Department if they're going to tell me how to dispose of my worn-out saddle horse?"

Hugh Zacheim, executive director of the Montana Wildlife Federation, doesn't care much for game farm hunting. "A very non-sporting proposition," he says. "This sort of thing gives ample ammunition to the anti-hunting forces who want to characterize the sport as an unfair contest."

Childers doesn't see it that way. "This is a sporting enough hunt for persons who want to finish out their trophy room and aren't capable of a strenuous hunt," he says. 'I say if they want that head, they're entitled to it

'Guaranteed hunts' for elk, buffalo, and several exotic wildlife species are offered at Childers' and other farms in Garfield and Richland counties. Childers guarantees a bison, elk, or fallow deer from his 800-acre enclosure on the 7-V Ranch northwest of Jordan.

He won't discuss prices. But the tab comes to $4,000 for a seven-point elk on the 450 and 1,000-acre areas fenced by Henry Stip near day, Montana Parks administrator, says he deer for $500-$800, and a mouflon sheep for selling velvet moose antlers for $66 an ounce. $500. No license is needed because the quarry is privately owned.

"It's sporting. You can shoot an elk from 1,000 yards if you want-to," says Stip's son-in-law, Pat near Livingston.

But there's more to elk antlers than a trophy, and that's another thing that has state game officials worried, their value in the Oriental Johnny Wang, a San Francisco dealer, says he pays as much as $80 a pound for elk antlers, though the price can range down to as little as $4, depending on the grade. The antlers are most valuble in the velvet stage, when they are covered with spongy, furry skin.

Wang has contracts with several Montana game ranchers which harvest the antiers by sawing them off at the velvet stage.

Welch Brogan, who pens 130 privately-owned elk on 40 acres a few miles north of Yellowstone Park, says there's another reason for cutting the antlers off the domesticated elk -- to prevent them from goring each other during the mating

"They don't bleed very much when I cut them off," says Brogan. "They seem happy to have them come off their head.

Brogan's neighbor, rancher Leonard Sargent, agrees. "I don't believe the elk feel pain when the antlers are taken off," he says. "But it's pitiful to see what should be gorgeous animals trying to charge each other with pathetic little stubs during mating time.'

Wang deals in all kinds of antlers, figuring his worldwide volume at 100 to 200 tons, much of it shipped directly to the Orient from sources like Alaska reindeer and red deer from New Zea-

Wang says he doesn't know about antiers as aphrodisiacs, but they are prized for medicinal and other concoctions. "Lots of misconceptions about them," Wang says. "They aren't ground, they're sliced, then perhaps boiled with herbs. You drink the brew.

He pays $6 a pound for dry antlers, the kind the elk naturally discard, while the sawed-off, velvety sort bring 10 or 12 times more. Wang says he doesn't know the retail price, but Ron Holli-Sidney. You can shoot a cow elk for $930, a fallow found two Chinatown shops in San Francisco

The possible profits in elks antlers bother state game officials. "You can make more money knocking off an elk than robbing the corner convenience store," says James Posewitz, the Corbett, who runs Safari Country, a private zoo. Fish and Wildlife Department's environmental administrator,

More oil to soil Texas beaches

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Coast Guard Adm. Paul Yost says the beaches of South Texas will get another layer of Mexican oil in June if the runaway Bay of Campeche well is not capped by Yost said flights over the well this past week showed "visibly less oil coming from the well." Officials have said the well could be capped within days.

"With the possibility now of Ixtoc oil returning during 1980, equipment has been staged at Port Isabel and Port Mansfield. Contingency plans are now completed for the systematic redeployment of all pollution response equipment by stages as oil moves towards the Texas coastline,' Yost told the Senate Natural Resources Committee Friday.

He said he has asked federal authorities to make available $8 million for the potential second battle against the oil

Committee Chairman A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, suggested the state might be able to provide, a quicker anti-spill effort than the Coast Guard. Schwartz has been critical of Coast Guard efforts in the Mexican oil spill and the November collision of two ships - including an oil tanker - near Galveston

"It's possible we ought to take a stronger first response role and then acceede to the Coast Guard or the owners," Schwartz

But Yost said getting containment equipment to the area is not the hard part. The problem is chartering vessels from owners who may not want oil slop in their barges," he said.

The Coast Guard does not have the tugboats and barges needed for an oil spill battle, the admiral testified. Yost also said the Coast Guard has very limited firefighting capability. Schwartz has critized the firefighting effort after a November ship collision that killed 32 men near Galveston.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first satellite designed to be retrieved by ference. the manned space shuttle will be launched this week to study the sun, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported.

The spacecraft, named SMM for solar maximum mission, is to be lofted into orbit Thursday from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to make the most extensive study yet of those violent explosions on the sun called solar

"It is important to understand the sun because it is the dominant energy source in our solar system," Harold L. Glaser, director of NASA's Solar

"A flare can release as much as one million kilotons of energy," he said. "That affects all the planets, and on Earth it affects our weather, our communications and our atmosphere."

SMM is being launched as the sun is entering a period of peak explosive activity in an 11-year solar cycle.

The satellite is expected to provide data for about two years, and then the space agency will determine whether to retrieve it with a space shuttle and return it to Earth for possible refurbishment and re-launch.

Joseph Purcell of NASA's Goddard

Space Flight Center, said SMM is the first of several satellites to be built specifically for recovery by a manipulator arm carried aloft in the shuttle. The standard design includes size and shape and attachment points for the Purcell said the SMM retrieval is scheduled for the 15th space shuttle mission in late 1982 or early 1983. It would be attempted after the shuttle crew had completed its main job of placing another payload in orbit.

Even if scientists determine there is no practical need to bring back SMM, Purcell said the satellite might be retrieved anyway as a demonstration of the pickup system.

Building permits soar

Building permits for last week broke the $1.7 million mark as recorded by the city's building and inspections department.

About $200,000 of the week's $1,777,750 came from the foundation construction of the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center near Midland Memorial Hospital.

New residential construction totaling $1,257,000 accounted for the largest group total last week. Clyde C. White accounted for $275,000 in five new residences in the McDonald Drive area. 'People protectors' have new safety invention

Nixon leaves seaside estate for New York City

Schlesinger.

By ED TODD

Morris Biffle, a self-described "town tinker" who has been "boll weevilroughneck to driller" in his 45 years in the petroleum industry, has come up with an invention to save lives and, at the same time, help to increase the flow of oil and gas.

"We're people protectors. That's our whole purpose," said Morris, an innovative inventor and practical engineer who, with his son, John, has developed a system — a giant vacuum cleaner — which removes toxic gases, such as hydrogen sulfide, from the drilling site before workers could be felled by sickness or death, or burned or rocked in an explosion. It's marketed as "Gas-E-Vac.

"We're extremely proud of it," said Biffle. "It's our 'little turkey." So far, Biffle and son, who manufacture the device under The Innovators logo in Midland, and their machinist, Art Dobbs, and crew have produced five Gas-E-Vacs; three are working in the field.

The invention is a continuously-operating safety device used while a well is being brought in or re-worked. And its need was spawned (1) by the oil industry's increasing emphasis on the safety of its employees, (2) by the new emphasis on bringing in wells which heretofore were deemed too dangerous to bring in because of deadly gases associated with drilling and (3) by the affordability of developing difficult oil fields. The latter was made possible by rising oil and gas prices.

The Gas-E-Vac system, powered by a three-cylinder, 40-horsepower diesel engine, runs continually in the field and handles 2 million cubic feet of gas and/or air a day. Purged gas is rapidly piped away from the drill site and

"At a gas well or oil well or anything..., Mister, it doesn't take much hydrogen sulfide to kill you that quick," Biffle said with a snap of his

The Biffle system, which is a take-off of an earlier McHenry patent, is the "sole" device for quickly removing lethal gases from the well head, said son John Biffle

"This is it. This is the sole device right now that achieves this goal, and we're the only ones that can make it. We have the patent. The Gas-E-Vac in no way would replace the gas-warning detectors, alarms and masks drillers and crews use at drill sites. The system is not required by law, as are gas-detecting and warning

The industry itself is very concerned about the safety of its people," said Morris Biffle. "The industry has become quite safety conscious...(and) is coming on strong with protective measures, and I respect them for it.

Wayne McClung, a Midland staff member of the regulatory Railroad Commission of Texas, witnessed a demonstration of the Gas-E-Vac. The two Biffles placed smoke bombs in the Gas-E-Vac's system, and smoke billowed. Then, the young Biffle fired up the engine, which quickly "sucked in" the smoke and shot it away

"It looks good," McClung said. "I'd like to see it at a drilling site." McClung speculated that the Gas-E-Vac would be "a real good unit to use for a safety precaution, but it will not be required.

"There have been lots of lives lost to hydrogen sulfide," he said. "I wouldn't hazard a guess as to how many have been killed by it. It's the same thing that killed those people at Denver City" in the mid-1970s They (drill-site workers) are required to wear (gas) detectors, but that detector isn't going to save their lives unless it works right and they (workers) react properly.

Eventually, the Biffles plan to license a company to manufacture the Gas-E-Vac, and then have another company market it; the system is either leased or sold outright.

"We're interested in research and development, not the marketing part," Morris Biffle said.

The Biffles foresee a prosperous future for their device - a future possibly as well received and profitable as their "bread-and-butter" rotary blow-out preventer. "I think in time that it's going to be a very popular product," the son said.

"It's got lots of possibilities."

Anti-draft marchers arrested

NEW YORK (AP) Isolated scuffles broke out near President Carter's re-election campaign headquarters after a march to the building by about 2,500 chanting, singing demonstrators opposed to Carter's proposal to register young people for the draft.

A rock was thrown through a second-story window at 535 Madison Ave., one floor below Carter's campaign offices. No injuries were reported.

Police said three men were arrested, two after they burned a Carter reelection poster and a small American flag. A third man was charged with obstructing governmental administration.

The rally's organizers called for the immediate dispersal of the group after the rock-throwing incident.

During the trial, the prosecution played a confession in which Justus said he picked up Mrs. Hawkins, a sunglasses distributor in the Tampa area, at gunpoint at a Tampa shopping center and forced her to drive northeast into Pasco County.

She cashed a check for $50 at a drug store and they drove to a secluded spot where they had sex, Justus said. She was accidentally shot in the head afterward when they struggled over his gun, he said. He shot her a second time to put her out of her misery, his lawyer claimed in final arguments.

Justus had been sentenced to death for the slaying of a pregnant nurse in Virginia just three days before the disappearance of Mrs. Hawkins on Oct. 6, 1978. He also faces trial on murder charges in the death of a suburban Atlanta housewife.

A traveling companion, Dale Dean Goins, 20, has been sentenced to death for the Georgia murder and is scheduled for trial here March 3 for the killing of Mrs. Hawkins, the mother of a 4-year-old boy.

crowd of some 4,000 loyal California supporters greeted him with cheers and tears. "Having completed one task, does not mean that I am going to sit in this marvelous California sunshine and do nothing," Nixon said. But at first, Nixon was a recluse. When he emerged months later he was a sick man ravaged by a bout with phelbitis. He was hospitalized, operated on and nearly died. During his long recuperation, Nixon began writing his memoirs. His book, R.N. - Memoirs," reportedly was sold to a publisher for more than $1 million.

In July, 1976, Pat Nixon suffered a stroke. Her recovery is now said to be complete, although she was hospitalzed in November with a brief bout of bronchial pneumenia. Little is known of her life at the seaside estate. Friends said she liked to putter in the garden.

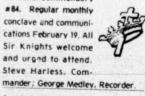

In the past two years, the Nixons gradually emerged from their isolation. They held five major parties at La Casa Pacifica - a book publication party, a reception for Vietnam prisoners of war, a 10th anniversary gathering for America's astronauts, a party for the California Angels baseball team and a fund-raising brunch for Republicans.

They even allowed the city to conduct a one-time bus tour of their grounds to raise money for a San Clemente birthday celebration. But Nixon spokesman Jack Brennan said the place had become too burdensome to care for, and the Nixons wanted to be with their daughters and grandchildren. Tricia Nixon Cox lives in Manhattan, and Julie Nixon Eisenhower recently moved to Pennsylvania.

As a former president, Nixon will be given an office in Manhattan's federal building. He reportedly has agreed reluctantly to pay the government $33,295 of the money it spent improving the California estate. Nixon claims the $700,000 in improvements were ordered by the Secret Service,

"If It's Borden's It's Got To Be Good

Serving Midland 35 Years to 1880, Lum Medlin, a hunter who was traveling alone, made what was later to become Midland his home. Local history tells us that Lum was one of the first white men to settle in the area. Early in 1880, R. N. Garrett arrived here with a herd of sheep destined for market. Like so many of those who followed, Garrett took an immediate liking to the surroundings and made it his home. Soon, thereafter, his California family joined him.

MIDLAND IS NOW 95 YEARS OLD. A few years prior

In those early days the railroad people dropped off a box car to serve the growing community as a depot, post office and general store. On February 2, 1885 Midland County was established; 26 days later the City of Midland became a reality.

The old, middle-aged and young enterprises of Midland have contributed immeasurably to the progress, pride and prosperity of our city. You will be interested in reading this list of leading firms and organizations whose names have been arranged by the number of years they have served Midlanders and other West Texas residents.

Custom Homes

A Unique Idea-In 1946. Capp Homes created the Finish-It-Yourself HouseTM program. Since then, over 60,000 Capp families have built their dream home and saved a bundle. You can too. Whether we build from your plans or ours, you get exactly what you want. Flexibility in custom-design is

You Become the General Contractor-General contractors buy the basic materials to build a home. They do some of the work themselves and hire sub-contractors for the rest. They mark up all their costs and pass it on to the buyer. They manage the project. We say you can do the same Maybe

After Capp custom erects and encloses your home on the lot and foundation you provide, you take over. Do the finishing you want, and hire tradesmen for the rest. Of course, the more you do, the more you save.

Quality Finishing Touches-The kitchen cabinets are magnificent. Appliances and bathroom fixtures are coordinated to your taste. The lighting, carpeting and everything you select from Capp will say quality. And they're all included in the price you sign for.

Midland fighters sparkle during Golden Gloves

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

ODESSA - Heading into the Junior High Football finals Saturday night, the torrid pace of the Midland Boxing Club in 34th annual Regional Golden Gloves Tournament in the Ector County Coliseum had slowed to a crawl, but the Tall City entry did win two of four fights.

Several Midlanders were still on the late docket for the Junior High finals, but they didn't even begin until after 10 p.m.

Midland boxers went into Saturday's action with 21 wins in 28 starts, but their mark stood at 26 of 36 fights going into the junior high bouts. Midland had an opportunity to pick up six wins in that division, howev-

It is the strongest showing for Midland in many years of Golden Glove

THE OPEN DIVISION semifinals furnished most of the action Saturday night with nearly every fight being a good one. It was in this division, however, that Midland failed to come up with a winnner when Midland Open Division fighter Jimbo Elliott suffered a TKO to Abilene's chuncky, but hard-hitting Joe Curial. Elliott also suffered a knockdown before the fight was stopped after 1:52 of the second round when he went down for the second time.

ALso in the Open Division, Odessa's Cheto Ramos produced a secondround TKO over Steve Joyce of San Angelo and Abel Mata of Pecos reorded a TKO over Larry Kirby of San Amgelo.

All of the TKOs came in succession after a slow start.

Tall City boxers got off to a fast start in the College Division finals, as Gilbert Cervantez won a title by defeating Eric Beaird of Jal, N.M., but Johnny Jackson of Midland lost his finals bout to Jal's Jamie Hernandez. A bad second round ruined Jackson...

RICHARD ROBERTSON was given the title in his college finals against Van Horn's Monroe Elms. Elms was unable to compete.

In the Regular High School Division semifinals, Midland's Joel Abila, fighting for the Odessa Boxing Club, won a tough decision over Mike Flores of Abilene with a thundering flury of on-the-mark-punches.

Midland's Emilio Menchanca followed Abila with a close decision over Abilene's Sam DeLaCruz.

Midland made up for its slow start by winning three of their first four bouts in the Junior High Football Division. Felix Munoz defeated Steve Godines of Andrews and Benny Long defeated Roy Juarez of Pecos-Barstow and Kevin Taylor took a win over Crockett's Chuck Roberts in a hard-hitting match. The only Midlander to lose was Jerry Collazo, who lost to Danny Gonzales of Andrews. Midland still had two fights left on the card late Saturday night, but were assured of picking up one point in the

LSU topples Georgia behind Scales' 31 points

Forward DeWayne Scales hit 31 points Saturday night to lead sixthranked Louisiana State to a 96-77 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Georgia. The victory keeps LSU abreast of Kentucky in the SEC race. Each team has an 11-3 conference mark.

LSU was in control of the game all the way and never trailed.

Five minutes into the game, Georgia pulled to within five points at 12-7, but LSU outscored Georgia 10-2 over the next four minutes and opened up a 44-31 halftime lead.

Scales got 23 points in the second half. When Georgia narrowed LSU's lead to seven points with 12 minutes left in the game, it was Scales and freshman guard Howard Carter who again opened the contest.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Rudy Woods hit a pair of free throws with 13 seconds remaining to secure a 55-53 victory for Texas A&M over the upset-minded Rice Owls Saturday night in a Southwest Confer-

Buddy Bell, the most valuable play-

at the Midland Sports Banquet Thursday to give an optimistic report of his team's chances in 1980. After all, that's why players like Bell go to banquets in the off season.

Bell tried his best, but ended up

times, it's probably for good reason because the Rangers have a lot of question marks that need answers.

And the fact wasn't lost to Bell, who could make any girl's legs go weak, started by saying, "I think the Rangers have the best starting nine of

But when he was asked why Ranger second baseman Bump Wills was criticised for his defensive play by the front office during the off season, Bell replied, "Well, Bump was playing two positions last year with Nelson Norman at shortstop. Nelson was supposed to be in the lineup for his defensive skills, but I think he lost his confidence in the field when he couldn't hit. The kid (Norman) has good hands, but I don't think he was up to the job last year. Bump ended up covering for him on a lot of plays

But isn't Norman one of the starting nine that is supposed to be so good?

from Atlanta with a trade and that could help us a lot at shortstop," Bell

Pitching is also on the question

"I think it would be a little foolish to mark list, one of the other nine posisay that our pitching situation didn't need some help," Bell said. "The key is Jon Matlack. He is going to have to

And David is only 24 years old and already gone through so much. He looks 40

Bell, however, is not one of the Rangers' problems. His first year with the Rangers was a total success and the fans love him. He is easy to love with all that blonde hair and blue eyes and he loves being in Texas. "Coming to Texas from Cleveland is like being in another world. At least, we are in the fight for the pennant and that's not going to happen soon in Cleveland. And Arlington Stadium was made for me. I'm a gap hitter and Arlington is the place to play if you hit the ball hard and not up in the air. They talk about how hard it is to hit homers at Arlington, but I'm not really a home run hitter anyway. People in Texas think I am home run hitter since I hit more homers than I have in all the eight years I've been a

Asked if he sets goals during the off season, Bell said, "I don't like goals. I just want the team to win and I just try to go out every night and help win the game. It would tear me up if I set a bunch of goals and couldn't live up to them. I had my best season in 1979. I had the most homers I had ever hit and I drove in over 100 runs. And I hit for a good average. But none of that made any difference because we were

The Ohio State star was timed in 8.17 seconds in beating Katya Smirnova of the Soviet Union in one of the highlights of the evening. The old meet mark of 8.2 was set in 1977 by Deby LaPlante and the American indoor record was 8.25, also by La- half.

Hightower came here from New York where she set a 60-yard indoor record Friday evening.

John Walker, a tall musuclar New Zealander, held off a challenge by Ireland's Ray Flynn to win the mile in

3 minutes, 57.7 seconds. Alejandro Casanas, 110-meter high hurdle silver medalist in the 1976 Olympics, won the men's 60-meter high hurdles, beating Aleksandr

Puchkov of the Soviet Union. Cindy Bremser of the Wisconsin United Athletic Club set a meet record of 4:37 in the women's mile. She beat out Brenda Webb of Knoxville, Tenn., who had set the previous mark

Evans White, running for Prairie View A&M, captured the men's 1,000meter in 2:25.1, holding off Dan Fusitting home when the playoffs began. It doesn't help very much to look at your statistics when the team, in general, stunk up the place.

"We had some problems as a team. We never did get very close it seems. Something was missing and we are going to have to correct some of that. The coaches have looked at the mistakes and maybe we will be more set this year. For instance, Pat Putman will be the first baseman fulltime and he should have been last year. Pat is going to be great. Billy Sample is going to play a lot more in the outfield and he is going to be a good one. And with Al Oliver, Mickey Rivers and Jim Sundberg, we are going to have some punch.

Bell made note of Sundberg's $5 million contract that was issued by owner Brad Corbett only to be turned down by the other board members. "Well, it's going to take a lot of fans to pay for Sundberg, but what are they going to do, let him go? From what I've seen, that might be the end of the Texas Rangers because the fans really love Sundberg. I think they are going to have to pay him."

Corbett's sometimes zany moves in the trading wars have brought him to ridicule, but Bell has no gripes. "I've heard all the stories about Brad, but I must say he has been good to me. Some of his trades have been good, haven't they? After all, he got me out of Cleveland and I'm certianly not going to knock that."

Bell may have been wearing many faces during his visit to Midland, but his honesty will not be questioned. He may never be a politician until he learns to dodge a question. But as a ball player, things are still black and white for Buddy Bell.

Two share lead in Hawaiian golf

HONOLULU (AP) — George Burns and Andy Bean continued their battling deadlock Saturday in the third round of the $325,000 Hawaiian Open, each scoring 6-under-par 66s and 200 for 54 holes.

Predictions were that the tournament record of 267 would fall Suriday with several golfers in position to do

Burns, at the top from the tournament's start, stayed there with a 20foot putt on the 13th hole while Bean, who equalled the course record 63 on Friday, needed and got a birdie on the 18th to continue the deadlock.

Bean reached the green of the par-5, 555-yard finale in two and then two putted for his birdie.

Bean scored seven birdies and a bogey while Burns, winner of his first PGA tournament in the Crosby last Sunday, went under par six times and never went over.

Two strokes back, at 202, came former pro tennis player Frank Connor, with a third-round 67 and Ed Sneed with a 66.

Lee Trevino, the two-time U.S. Open champion and making his first start in 1980, fired a 65. The tournament's surprise, Don Pooley, shot a 67 to deadlock at 203. Both Trevino and Pooley carded eagles; Trevino's came at the 13th when he hit a No.4 wood shot to within 8 feet of the hole and sank the putt. Pooley, who came in as a replacement for Grier Jones when the latter suffered an elbow injury, eagled No. 18 with a 20-foot putt.

Sportsmen turn to photography

KENNY REDIN'S

As seasoned hunters, trappers and wildlife photographers will tell you, in most cases it is the human scent that alerts game to man's presence afield and allows them to win the age-old game of hide 'n seek.

Even outdoorsmen who have painstakingly developed and polished their ability to get through the woods like the game are often given away by a swirling wind current that drifts the human scent through the woods and alerts the would-be game of danger. And let's face it, in their natural habitat with all their senses alerted to danger, game animals will nearly always outwit man.

This bit of information will come in handy for those of you sportsmen now finished hunting. Although most all Texas hunting seasons are over, there's still predator hunting and photographing wildlife in store for those who just can't stand sitting

Part of the planning will be centered around the improvement of basic hunting skills. In order to call in a varmint for shooting or photographing takes the "art of getting close." Since time is of the essence and few hunters will be able to afford the extra time afield needed to develop that would get them closer to the Tex Isbell's "Skunk Skreen" is precisely the aid outdoorsmen are looking for to help them get in close to the game. This unique hunting scent has been field tested and proven for more than four years to be highly effective

in masking the human odor. Coyotes, bobcats and foxes are acutely tuned in to the situation around them. The noise coming from a predator call often alerts the incoming varmint or game to the point of over reacting. In those cases, it isn't that important to have the human scent gone from the region. But that only happens on rare occasions, especially in the fall months when young animals are on the loose. But February and March hunting is much more complicated and sophisticated. Animals that have survived the hunting seasons are much smarter. In this case, it calls for some extra help. That's where "Skunk Skreen" comes

We know that skunks range in most sections of North America. In Texas, skunks are everywhere. So the 'Skunk Skreen' scent is a natural for the animals' surroundings.

In order to get a crack shot at a varmint such as a coyote or fox, no one can argue the point that a hunter on foot in wide open country is at a big disadvantage

However, let's suppose a hunter is in a deep canyon, header, or arroya and a game animal is bedded down above and can't see or hear the hunter approach. In most instances, the rising, swirling wind and currents of the wind would warn the game and allow a quick escape.

In this type of situation, "Skunk Skreen" can indeed benefit the hunter or photographer, because most types of game will accept the smell of skunk as part of the natural setting.

The final benefit of "Skunk Skreen" to hunters in many types of geographic or physical setting is what may be termed "shape dissociation."

This simply means animals are usually very confused about the upright stature of man, which normally warns them of danger.

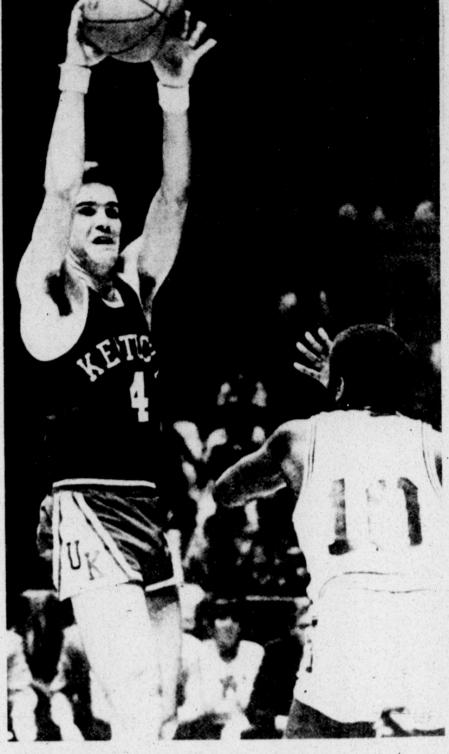

All types of animals that see a man and smell a skunk, will normally become confused and frustrated to hesitate just long enough for the hunter to gain that split-second advantage.

The best method to deploy "Skunk Skreen" is to first determine the direction the wind is blowing. Next, find a piece of rotted wood, cloth or dried cow chip on which to mix equal quantities of the two solutions. Alternatively, the two solutions may be mixed in the depression in a rock or in a small bottle or other container. If, for instance, the wind is blowing straight from your back, mix 20 drops of each of the two solutions and place the mixture about 10 yards from you and about 45 degrees to the left of your line of sight. If the wind swirls in all directions or if there is a dead calm, you'll have to decide whether you will use it and run the risk of being detect-

If you are on a tree stand, put some "Skunk Skreen" on the ground around the tree and also on one or more of the tree limbs downwind of you. Remove only one bottle cap at a time and replace it before removing the other cap. For still or stalking hunting, find an old walking stick and tie a rag impregnated with "Skunk Skreen' to the lower part of the

Kimball sets record

By JON CHASE It took 36 years and a crappie fisherman to do it. The state record for black bass, or largemouth bass, set at in 1944, has finally been broken. Last Saturday, Jimmy Kimball of Pittsburg, Texas, was crappie fishing on Lake Monticello and the crappie weren't very cooperative. A frustrated Kimball tied onto a crawfish colored, Rebel-Mini-R, crankbait and began to cast. Shortly therafter, Texas had a new largemouth bass

Medina Lake near San Antonio back

The fish, already certified by the state, weighed in at 14 pounds, one ounce, and replaces a 36-year-old record of 13 pounds, eight ounces.

Robert Kemp, State Fishery Management director, said that the new record bass had a huge head and the length was 28 inches. The monster bass could have weighed up to 141/2 pounds, according to Kemp, and the sow's eggs were only partially developed

One thing for sure about Kimball's record is that it won't last for 36 years. His prodigous fish was of the Florida variety and was estimated to be around seven years old. It wouldn't surprise me a bit to see the record broken several more times before the spring spawn is over. I don't think that a 15 pounder is out of the realm of possibility, and I think that it will come from Calaveras or Monticello.

As I have mentioned before, don't even attempt to fish Calaveras or Monticello on a weekend. The crowds are unbelievable, and during the week, there are more people on the lake than you would care to see. The best bet is to fish both lakes at night, and that is exactly what Jon Godfrey of Austin was doing when he recently caught a 13-pound, eight ounce bass on Calaveras.

Speaking of record size black bass, it won't be too long before we have some of that kind of action fairly close to Midland. Last year, several thousand Florida largemouth bass were placed in Oak Creek lake and this lake has always been a producer of trophy

S.V. Box of Roscoe came within four ounces of the lake record on Spence a couple of weeks ago when he landed a 25-pound, six ounce striper. Gene Berry of Big Spring landed three stripers to 14½ pounds and two blue cats to 161/2 pounds.

The crappie fishing remains fair to good on West Texas lakes with Don Gordon of San Angelo stringing 60 crappie to 4-pound last Saturday on Twin Buttes. The crappie fishing has been hit and miss on Lake Spence with the best fishing in the brush up the Colorado River. Brady Lake is in bad need of some rain, but the chan nel cat and crappie are cooperating for those who can find them. A.L. Dryer of Abilene put 42 crappie in the boat last Tuesday that weighed up to 11/2 pounds. Mike Clark of Austin strung 28 channel cats up to 31/2 pounds while rod and reel fishing with peeled shrimp. NORTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) - Jane Blalock scrambled home with a 1-over-par 73 Saturday but managed to hold a four-shot lead entering the final round of the $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association classic at Turnberry Isle Country Club.

Blalock started Saturday's third round at 8-under leading by five strokes after setting a women's course record Friday with a 6-underpar 66 on the 6,211-yard layout.

She fell to 6-under after 16 holes, but birdied the difficult 485-yard, par-5 18th hole to get back to 209 and increase her lead to four strokes

Tied for second at 3-under 213 were 1979 U.S. Open champion Jerilyn Britz, who had a par-72, and Joyce Kazmierski, who shot 71. Three players - Sandra Spuzich, Mary Dwyer and Bonnie Bryant - were in at 214, followed by the trio of Debbie Massey, Sally Little and Peggy Conley at 215.

Nancy Lopez Melton had her second straight subpar round, a 70 that left her at even-par 216 for 54

Blalock, who lives in Delray Beach, Fla., just missed birdies on four consecutive holes, starting at No. 11. She bogeyed the 10th, 15th and 16th.

"That just shows you what can happen," said Blalock, who tied for third last week at Deer Creek. "I felt like I could have done anything out there today, but it just didn't happen. I don't feel the least bit comfortable with the lead.

Spuzich and Little both made early runs at Blalock, each shooting a course-record 31 on the front nine. That put them at 5-under before they struggled home on the final nine holes.

At home and on the road, crowds are turning out to watch the 6-foot-6 Drake University forward, who has been among the nation's top three rebounders and scorers all season.

A New Mexico Military Institute standout last year, Lloyd scored 37 points in his second game, including the winning free throws, as Drake beat Oral Roberts 82-81. Afterwards, he was carried off the floor by his teammates as the crowd shouted, "Magic Man, Magic Man."

On the asphalt playgrounds outside Philadelphia's Overbrook High School, "They used to say I played like Earl the Pearl," said Lloyd. "When I came here (to Drake), they started calling me Magic Man.

Lloyd's "worst game" was 18 points in a 75-70 loss to Bradley, but he grabbed 19 rebounds that night. Since then, he hasn't finished a game with less than 18 rebounds.

THE BRAWNY junior usually finds two or three players around him every time he makes a move. But he eventually explodes out of the crowd for a rebound, a tip-in or the 10-foot baseline jumper he loves to shoot.

"Even though teams are playing me real close, it's still fun. They just make me work for it. I'd rather they play me man-to-man, but when they put a lot of people on me, it shows me they've got respect.' Lloyd has earned that respect by rolling up a 30.8 scoring average, second best in the country. He has 11 games of 30 points or more and his high is 47 against Wisconsin-Superior, an effort that broke the Des Moines Veterans Auditorium record held by Larry Bird. Lloyd, who wears a gold earring in his left ear, also is tied for second nationally in rebounding, averaging 15.1 per game. Only one other player in the country — Michael Brooks of La Salle - is among the top 10 in both scoring and rebounding. With success comes pressure from opponents, fans and the media-but Drake Coach Bob Ortegel said Lloyd has handled it well.

"I think it's worked on him a little, but as a sign that he has learned to handle it, he continues to produce," said Ortegel, whose team is 12-6 and averages 90 points per game. "He hasn't reached a point of egotism or conceit, yet he's an exceptionally confident player.'

Decker sensation during Millrose Games in Garden

NEW YORK (AP) - Mary Decker, a sensation as a teen-age prodigy in her Broadway debut six years, has returned to even more rave reviews.

"Incredible!" "Amazing!" "Stupendous!" "Colossal!" were among the critics' assessments of the now mature Decker's stunning performance Friday night in the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

Decker, who last appeared in the Garden in 1974 as a 14-year-old wearing pigtails and wowed her audiences with some remarkable efforts, shocked the indoor track and field record crowd of 18,310 by winning the woman's 1,500-meter race in 4 minutes, eight-tenths seconds.

The fans gave Decker a standing ovation for the overwhelming showing that made them quickly forget the disappointing men's mile, run only a few minutes earlier, and won by Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan in the respectable time of 3:58.2.

However, the fans booed during the first-quarter mile, in which frontrunner Ray Flynn was timed in 63.5 and during the opening half-mile, with John Gregorek the pacesetter in Coghlan had said there was a possibility he might break his indoor record of 3:52.6, but after such a slow pace, there was no chance - and the crowd voiced its displeasure.

The tune was much different for the woman's metric mile.

Decker broke out in front immediately and just kept pulling away from her opposition. Instead of running against the field, she was running against the clock. And the crowd

The fans knew'she was on a record pace, and they kept urging her on. The crowd helped tremendously, said Decker. "I couldn't have set the record without it. I thought my pace was too fast, but this was a much stronger race than my mile record." Decker had set the world outdoor out a little slower than she did, then turn on the speed.

But after one quarter, her time was 60.3, more than three seconds faster than Flynn's in the men's mile. And her 2:05.9 clocking at the half was faster than any woman ever had run a half-mile race in the Garden.

"I'm used to running outdoors in New Zealand and the smaller track here (11 laps to the mile) had me going," admitted Decker. "It was hard to pace myself."

Stephen F. Austin in 56-52 win

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) -Karl Godine and Alan Howard hit two free throws each in the final 25 seconds to give Stephen F. Austin a 56-52 overtime victory over Angelo State Saturday afternoon in a Lone Star Conference basketball game.

Angelo State, which fell to 1-10 in league play, had a chance to win the game in regulation. Jeff Burdick hit the first half of a 1-and-1 with 6 seconds left to tie the game at 48-all, but missed the second shot and the game went into overtime.

Mike Peppercorn followed his own shot to break a 50-50 tie with 31 seconds left. Godine's two free throws after an offensive foul made it 54-50. Dan Klier scored with 4 seconds left to make it 54-52, but Howard made two free throws for the final points with 1 second remaining.

GGS planning traditional Shakespeare Festival

ODESSA — The Globe of the Great Southwest is planning its traditional Shakespeare Festival.

But this 12th annual event will takeplace in late winter and early spring, rather than during the summer.

Since its inception in 1969, the annual Shakespeare Festival has brought to the Permian Basin professional-quality productions of Shakespearean dramas and comedies — productions which have been entertaining as well as educational. The Globe Theater planned its 12th festival for late winter and early spring so that students of area schools and colleges may attend festival performances in conjunction with their classroom studies of Shakepeare.

Opening the festival on Feb. 27 will be the National Shakespeare Company's production of the Bard's "Much Ado About Nothing. The festival will continue through March 22 with productions of "Julius Caesar," also by the National Shakespeare Company, and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," produced by the drama department of North Texas State University,

A special feature of the festival will be "An Evening of Madrigals," to be presented by the Odessa College Madrigal Singers, the Chorale da Camera of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale, and madrigal ensembles of Odessa High School and Permian High School.

In selecting the National Shakespeare Company to present the bulk of its annual festival, the Globe has acquired the talents and services of one of the world's foremost Shakespearean performing ensembles. The Theatre Two of MCT to present new drama 'The Poker Session'

"The Poker Session," an absorbing new drama by same mental hospital as Billy. playwright Hugh Leonard, opens Friday night in Theatre Two, the smaller, more intimate performing area inside Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

The drama will have 10 performances through March 8, with presentations at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays, 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 2:30 p.m. Sundays. Seating may be reserved through the Midland Community Theatre box office, 682-4111.

"The Poker Session" is described as a play of detection. It contains elements of farce, mystery thriller, tragedy, allegory and black comedy. It is a study of characters, with challenging personality and plot developments interlacing the plot.

"The Poker Session" title may seem deceptive, inasmuch as poker is scarcely played at all during the course of the drama. However, the characters react to each other as through they were in a real-life poker game. It is not just a "whodunit" mystery but, rather, "who did what to whom?"

Darrell Ward has the part of Billy, the central character in "The Poker Session" who has just been released after a year in a mental institution. This poker session is Billy's game — he and he alone knows the rules, yet his philosophy about himself is "when you're as easily pleased and as eager to please as I am, you're happy to live in whichever and whatever world is inflicted upon you." Is Billy sane, or is he not?

Billy's brother Kevin, an aggressive but not particularly intelligent businessman, is portrayed by Bill Schneider. Lori Skelton plays Kevin's wife, Fran, who has been bullied and coarsened by her hus-

Billy's mother is played by Pat Voss, the essence of suburban respectability, and MCT intern Beth Thomas has the part of Irene, a friend of Billy's deceased sister who married Billy's best friend,

Mame' launching bright, profitable '80 season for MCT

A bright and bountiful new membership season at Midland Community Theatre is presently being launched by a bright and brassy production of "Mame."

The hit musical from Broadway made its bow at Theatre Midland a few nights ago and will play through the remainder of February, with a distinct possibility of some holdover performances being scheduled.

A matinee of "Mame" at 2:30 today will be followed by a Tuesday night performance at 7:30. Then the musical will take a breather for the remainder of the week while many of the instrumentalists in the "Mame" orchestra attend the convention of Texas Music Educators Association.

Performances will resume with a 2:30 matinee on Feb. 17, with additional presentations on Feb. 19-24, Feb. 26-29 and March 1. Information on availability of seating for a specific performance is obtainable from

"Mame" is a "fun" show — warm, witty and, of course, highly melodic But it's hardly a blockbuster like "Sound of Music" or "Hello, Dolly!" or "My Fair Lady." And in its local production, I cannot in truth say that I consider "Mame" one of MCT's better musical efforts.

"You have to take the bad with the good," goes the old saying, and I suppose that is exactly what we have to do in the case of "Mame."

However, I'm glad to say that the "good" (a dedicated and mainly talented cast) does much to overcome the not-so-good aspects of the show, such as the rather drab and commonplace sets, not-very-interesting costumes (except in the case of the principal players) and unsteady orchestral accompaniment. (Hopefully, this latter weakness has improved in recent performances.)

Coila Morrow has the pivotal role of Auntie Mame and she does well as that indomitable, free-spirited lady.

She has to share honors, however, with Fredda Durham as her wisecracking bosom buddy, Vera Charles; David Slaughter as her young nephew, Patrick: Mark Skrabacz as grown-up nephew Patrick, and Suzanne Brien as

And others in the cast who do well in their respective assignments include Mana Ratanasavetavadha as Mame's loyal servant, Ito; Sumner Boyd as Dwight Babcock; John Taylor as M. Lindsey Woolsey; Dick Vivion as Mame's husband, Beauregard Burnside; Peggy Howell as Sally Cato;

Marg Samples as Mother Burnside; Jim Galyean as Uncle Jeff; Sherry Elliott as Pegeen Ryan; Billy Cook as Ralph Devine; Dean McLain and Susie Hitchcock as Mr. and Mrs. Upson; Julie Hafer as daughter Gloria; Kelly Patterson as Junior Babcock and Karen Freeman as Cousin

Many other performers lend support to the production as dancers, singers and party guests.

To my way of thinking, the best musical numbers include "My Best Girl," done very well by Mame and young Patrick; "We Need A Little Christmas," sung with spirit by Mame, Patrick, Agnes, Ito and Beauregard; the peppy "That's How Young I Feel," sung and danced with relish and gusto by Mame and Junior Babcock and cast; the ballad-like "If He Walked Into My Life," done very well by Mame; and "Saint Bridget," sung by young Patrick and Agnes. "Open A New Window," sung by Mame and Patrick, is done with great effect in front of a photo montage of windows.

Humorous numbers include the wickedly witty "Bosom Buddles," in which Mame and Vera Charles cattily tick off each other's faults, by saying. that no one else would tell "the whole stinking truth," and "The Man In the, Moon," effectively done by Vera Charles on a stage set-within-the-stage set," while Mame, as a showgirl, swings from a stage moon. "Gooch's Song" ("I've Lived!") is wittily done by Agnes Gooch. "The Fox Hunt" is a kind of patter-song describing Mame's wild sidesaddle ride during a fox hunt.

'Mame' has been staged and directed by MCT executive director Art Cole, assisted by Tracey Whitley. The technical director was John Michael Warburton, assisted by Bill Larkin. Musical director is Shirley Ward Hansen and the choreography was provided by Cherry Allison. Max Howard is stage-managing the production, assisted by Jeanne Haralson.

Drug program supports attempts of young people to 'go straight'

By PATSY GORDON Lifestyle Writer

He stepped up to the "fist" and out of a life of anger, pain and loneli-

Today, after 12 years of being a chemical abuser and alcoholic, he wears that "fist" about his neck and is leading others living his former lifestyle to reach this achievement.

The "fist" that means so much to Bob Savage, the director of the Midiand Palmer Drug Abuse Program, is a symbol that he has gone more than 30 days without the use of drugs or alcohol — a sign of sobriety. In fact, Savage passed that milestone more than three years ago.

Like Savage obtaining his goals, the local PDAP is gaining momentum. Approximately 160 teenagers, young people and parents are participating weekly in the non-profit drug treatment activity going on in three Midland churches.

National PDAP has come under fire in recent weeks concerning their association with certain hospitals. PDAP readily acknowledges those

However, Savage points out that each city operates apart from National PDAP and any money spent here goes for local expenses. Local growing pains include having four more staff members than was expected when the initial $50,000 was raised to bring the program

Savage currently is assisted by three other trained counselors. The staff also includes Beverly Alstrin, a parttime parent-coordinator; a counselor-in-training, who will return to Midland in July, and a receptionist, Mindy Smith. A request is in for another senior counselor. All PDAP counselors are former drug and-or alcohol abusers who have remained sober for at least a year.

Savage explained, "In this program, we help parents realize things they can do for themselves that will help their kids. The biggest thing the kids can do for themselves is to help themselves.'

Based on the 12-steps of Alcoholics Anonymous and designed primarily for teen-agers and young adults between the ages of 13 and 25, PDAP was founded in 1971 by Bob Meehan of Houston, an ex-heroin addict and

The program came to Midland Sept. 1 after a group of Midlanders banded together and raised about $50,000 in contributions from local businesses and private individuals.

Savage pointed out that in July, the funds will be depleted. As of Dec.

31, approximately $28,000 has been spent on salaries, training and operational expenses.

In PDAP, the young people seeking to avoid temptation to use mind-changing chemicals or alcohol are told by Savage, "I will get the heat off of you if you come into this program. If the parents are on you, I'll get them to back off. If there's a curfew on you, we'll see about getting it set

He guarantees them the program will work. "That's why the groups are so large today in this city. They (the kids) understand it (PDAP) is working," said Savage.

Savage admits there are a few that have left the program and are out there "getting with it again." But "it's because they didn't get what they were promised. But the people who don't get what they are promised didn't do the right things at the right time in their lives."

This is taught in PDAP group meetings.

Savage also tells them, "If you're still getting high on the side, your're notgoing to get what I got. If I smoked any dope today, it's all over. It's not that I'm going to be strung out - it's all over in attitude. I'm going to

"That's what's happening in Midland today. The parents aren't reinforcing the fact that there's something they need to look at," said Sav-

"Don't wait until they (the kids) are strung out or are stuck in a state hospital somewhere," he pleaded.

The chemical abuse in this town is incredibly high. The young people in this town have stated that 80 percent of the students in junior high and up are turning on to something on a regular basis.

"My daughter goes to one of the better grade schools in town. She tells me of incredible things going on there.

"It used to be that two percent of the population was exposed" to the drug scene. Now "it's 80 percent. When I grew up, everyone who smoked pot was a bad, bad dude. And no one knew about" because it meant "a penitentiary term for life."

"In the very early sixties, you might have heard of a beatnik smoking dope in some coffee house and that was it. Now, if you haven't smoked pot, you're a strange person. You're really different. And teenagers don't want to be different.

Peer pressure is the primary reason kids turn to chemicals. There are other factors such as pressures at home, and a desire to be accepted. It's a fact that if you don't have a Trans-Am, a Mustang or a car of some sort

Church is no escape from the drug scene

"Doing it in church is like an extra adventure," said the Rev. Charli Dodd, youth minister at the First Baptist Church. Dodd's church is the third and newest satellite of the Midland Palmer Drug Abuse Program.

Other satellites are located at the First United Methodist Church and the First Presbyterian Church.

The young minister, in the Tall City since April, was discussing the known fact that Midland young people have drugs in their possession even while attending church functions.

There is no magic formula as far as the drug problem is concerned, said Dodd. "No home is immune from it happening. This is the sad thing. But Dodd also talked about PDAP and what he thought the drug treatment program for abusers of mind-changing chemicals and alcohol had going for it that other failing drug programs "PDAP shows love and concern and has spiritual guidance other drug programs don't have," said Dodd, who previously worked with a crisis intervention program in Oklahoma City. He also was instrumental in getting his church to open its arms to the PDAPers.

When Dodd was in high school, "Alcoholism was the big problem, but you could buy drugs at 12:30 a.m. at a certain service station" in his home town.
"When I started working with youth and administering to their needs" — his first appointment was Georgetown, near Austin —

"both drugs and alcohol were the problem," said Dodd, who was graduated from high school in 1969. After Georgetown, he went to Temple, where drugs again were

'At first, I thought you could judge it on the home." But then, said Dodd, "I found out the abusers come from both Christian homes where there are standards and from those where there is no concern and discipline present.'

In Oklahoma City, he has a friend, a clinical psychologist, who is trying to zero in on the drug problem there, but his hands are tied. He is not allowed to use "the religious aspect," said Dodd.

This is why Dodd opened the crisis intervention program in that city.

This is why he wanted the officials of his church to allow the

"There are a lot of young people making it, but there are considerably more that aren't than are."

There are symptoms that parents can look for if they suspect their child is into drugs or alcohol, said Savage.

"If you see a young person whose grades are cratering and all of a sudden they have absentees, or their peer groups have changed — all of a sudden the boys and girls coming over to the house to pick them up are a different crowd — or things are showing up at the house that weren't there before, or their clothes habits change, or they are angry and not rational, it's a pretty good chance you've got drugs or alcohol," said Savage.

"If parents suspect chemical or alcohol abuse, it doesn't cost anything for them to come to PDAP and talk to a counselor," Savage added.

According to Savage, "We give them, the group, tools to stay sober with, such as the nightly meetings. Discussion is geared around the 12-steps, patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous, for turning their life around. It may deal with anger, pressures on the job or everyday problems.

staying on the program. They are asked to stay at least 30 days. After that, it's their business.

"PDAP," said Savage, "understands there are many people who can drink and there are many people who can use drugs without problems, but there are considerably more who cannot. Let someone else be the judge," advised Savage.

Savage first became aware of PDAP through a late-night talk show. "I caught glimpses of this man with long, blond, straggly hair (Meehan) talking about how his life went, how he had been in the penitentiary. I couldn't relate to this, but I could relate to his going to jail. I had been in jail three times for public intoxication and assault, stuff like that.

"I could feel the loneliness he was talking about. My wife had left me

SAVAGE WENT THROUGH a drug overdose and an attempted suicide before PDAP was able to get him to "go straight" and become a counsel-

In the meantime, Savage and his wife had reconciled and Michele was offered a job with Houston PDAP, Savage spent some time working with parolees, until it "got to him." He then was transferred to Pasadena to work with addicts until he was asked to come to Midland.

"Lots of parents and young people," said Savage, "wait until the barn is burned down before calling the fire department" chain of events," he added.

Savage explained that his wife didn't know he was smoking pot or was into speed and barbiturates until he went straight under PDAP. "She just thought I had a violent temperament. She didn't see drugs and alcohol as the problem. She saw the way I lived as the problem. At that point in time everybody did drugs and she didn't identify this as a problem."

ONE OF THE PRINCIPLES of the program is "one person who had a drug problem carrying his message to help another with a similar problem." It can work in reverse, too, said Savage. "A person with a problem can sink another person."

"This town has taken a turn. We're not getting the whole town sober. We're not setting out to do that. We'll never change this town. But we will be affecting people for the better.

PDAP has a saying, said Savage.
"If you want to get high, that's your business. If you don't, that's our business."

Another saying reads: "If you want to learn to play baseball, you don't go to a tennis pro. If you want to get straight, go to someone that's doing it."

TUESDAY: Parents tell of their children's drug abuse problem.

Residents concerned

CONDON, Mont. (AP)

— Residents of northwestern Montana's remote Swan River Valley say officials "don't like the questions that are being asked" about a rash of miscarriages that the residents blame on herbicide spraying.

In a one-year period, nine of 10 pregnant women along a 10-mile stretch of Montana Highway 83 in Lake County suffered miscarriages. County health officer Ralph Cambell says the 10th woman became pregnant while attending school out of state and only returned to the area to have her baby.

Local residents say they are increasingly frustrated by "the hohum attitude of the bureaucracy" toward the situation.

"They just don't seem concerned, and they don't like the questions that are being asked," said Virginia Polsen, whose miscarriage in the fall of 1978 was the first.

Lake County Commissioner Bill Burley said the Swan Valley residents have not contacted the commission directly, but that Campbell had reported their concerns. Commissioner Don Corrigan said he was sure the county would start an investigation if the residents asked.

Campbell said it has been almost impossible to find out who has been spraying in the area, and with what chemicals.

The state Highway Department contracts with counties to spray "noxious" weeds along roadsides, and the department specifies 2,4-D, said Bill Hebert, field maintenance chief in the Kalispell office. The herbicide is not restricted and may be bought by the public, he said.

Hebert said he is certain that Lake County sprays in the Swan Valley area where the miscarriages occurred, probably each May and

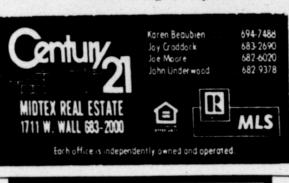

Campbell said he is convinced 2,4-D is the culprit, "but it's like all these cumulative poisons — how do you prove it?"

Campbell used questionnaires to interview the families after he and Virginia Reber, county health nurse, met with them last spring.

"We found these people to be living the pristine life, growing their own food and watching their eating habits," Campbell said. "They came to live in that area to be away from the hazards of the civilized world."

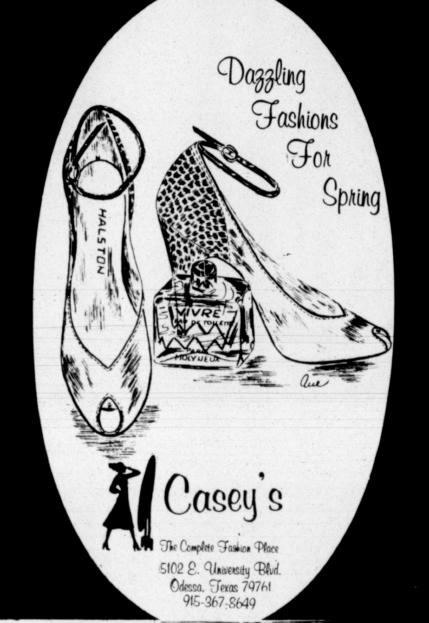

He said the families had been eating vegetables grown in their own gardens, and beef, wild meat and eggs produced in the area, and drinking milk from cows that grazed along the roads.

"They feel a real sense of disappointment that even in the Swan they can't escape the technocracy that's running wild," he said. "These aren't militant environmentalists. Some of those stories would bring tears to your eyes."

Father ordered to pay support for dead child

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Dwayne Jackson has been ordered to jail for failure to continue to pay child support for a daughter who died two years ago.

The 30-day jail term, to be served on 15 consecutive weekends, was ordered by Clay County Circuit Court Judge Stephen R. Pratt. The judge ruled Jackson was in contempt of court for refusing to pay $1,855 in delinquent child support.

His daughter, Cindy, was killed two years ago when struck by a car when she ran into a street in an effort to save an injured dog. The accident occurred three months after Jackson, 38, and his former wife, Ms. Mary Ann King, were divorced in December 1977.

With the death of Cindy, Jackson cut his $70 weekly child support payments in half, with $35 payments continuing for the support of his son. He aid he did so on the advice of his attorney.

"I'm not against child support — I just don't believe in it for a child that's not alive," Jackson said this week as he and his family continued a vigil at the Clay County Courthouse in opposition to Pratt's decision. "We'll lose everything we've got."

Jackson, who was employed irregularly the past year, said he doesn't have enough money to pay overdue and current support payments. He said he and his wife, Sharon, have had to sell their furniture and a pickup truck to raise money for the payments. Mrs. Jackson's 8-year-old daughter lives with her grandparents because the Jacksons cannot afford to feed and clothe her, they said.

The case is on appeal to the Missouri Court of Appeals, but meanwhile, Jackson must continue the $70-a-week payments.

NEWCOMER'S

O R MARILYN DYER

Are you on a crash diet with the determination of a prohibitionist, and shopping for a jazzy new gown? Are you toying with the idea of trying to wear contact lenses and a whole new hairstyle? Is your husband talking about "starting to exercise" while looking in the mirror and "sucking it in" so he feels he really doesn't need to? Is he pretending he really only needs his glasses for work? I'll bet I know where you're going! You've just received an invitation to your Class Reunion.

This can either be the most fun you've had in years, or a very painful experience - depending on how you feel about yourself. If you are aging gracefully and are well, and if you feel reasonably successful, then you can relax and enjoy it.

If, on the other hand, you hope to look like you did on graduation day, or at least younger than most of the others; if you really don't feel well, or have had some disappointments along your road to success and aren't where you had hoped to be at this point in your life, then it can be a trial for you.

I wish all high school seniors could have the power of precognition for a moment and see themselves and their classmates as they will look at their class's tenth reunion. What a change it would make in their social life and their value system.

The gorgeous hunk of man who is currently the team fullback will be balding and paunchy. The skinny little quiet guy no gal wants to date will be trim, well-dressed and cosmopolitan.

The boy who grew too fast and is gangly, awkward, warm-hearted and shy will be a noted brain surgeon. The girl who is beautiful, blond, well-endowed and 'Miss Everything' will be fat, over made-up and the mother of a dozen kids.

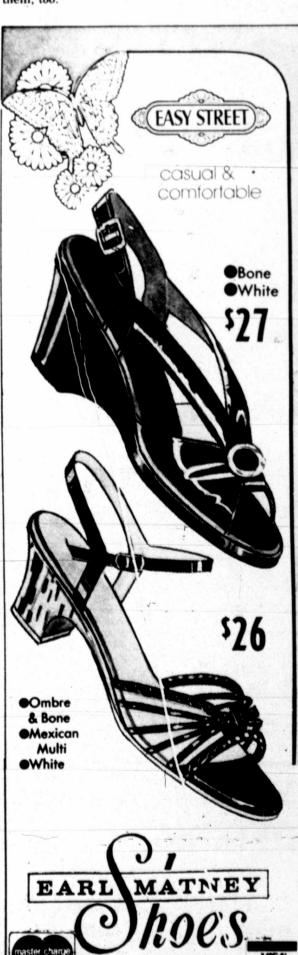

The quiet little country girl who rides the school bus and wears homemade clothes will be so stunning that everyone whispers and wants to know were she was when they went to school.

The class's twentieth reunion is interesting, to say the least. Now everyone is showing pictures of their children-a few are even grandparents. By now, everyone has to look hard at your name tag to make certain it's really you.

There are many divorces by now, and some couples are now a half-couple with a new face for the other half. Then there are the new singles who are trying desperately to look like "free is fun" and are coming on strong to old attractions. There is also the "memorial page" in the program and you realize that you're no longer kids.

The class's thirtieth reunion is at the same time sad and funny. You might as well laugh because everyone knows how old you are anyway. You all wear name tags, but no one can read them - even with their glasses on - but there are still the faces you'd know anywhere. Both the fellows and the girls are broader, grayer, slower on the dance floor and don't tablehop as before, but find an old, close friend and just sit and talk.

The women are menopausal and the men are climacteric, and the jokes include hemorrhoids and bad hearing. The teachers who are present don't school, but you know that 30 years has gone by for

Our theory is simple. We take the time to know your house, price it correctly, and discover its distinctive features. Because when we're sold on it, it's much easier to find the right buyers and close the sale.

Then, we even save you time after the sale by helping with the time-consuming paperwork. It's all a matter of spending our time wisely so it doesn't waste yours. Should Washington share revenues?

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON -- Should states that enjoy vastly increased revenues from taxes on decontrolled oil produced on state-owned lands share any of that tax bonanza with Washington?

After all, argued Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., during the Senate's long debate in December on windfall profits taxes on private oil companies, if the government feels the companies have no right to keep all the additional profits, why should the Danforth, an aide said, believes the formula should be changed to reflect the suddenly increased wealth of certain oil producing states. These states, he thinks, should not receive as much money as non-oil states. He admits it's a "fuzzy"; concept at this point, an aide said.

When it comes to producing oil, California, Texas, Louisiana and Alaska collect 83 percent of the taxes that oil companies pay states for the right to pump on state-owned lands, most of which are within state offshore territorial limits.

There are 18 other states that collect the balance of 17 percent. As the price of oil rises to world levels as a result of the removal of federal price controls, the states' tax revenues will rise at the same rate. California, for example, receives roughly $100 million a year today from its tidelands oil fields production, or $1 billion over the next 10

Richard J. Shoemaker has been elected vice president - Refinery Operations by Texas American Oil Corp. William F. Judd, president of the Midland-based company, made will pour $6 billion more into the state treasury over the decade.

The U.S. Treasury Department estimated that California's tax windfall would reach nearly $22 billion, but state officials said Friday the government's figure is based on an assumption of far more drastic increases in the world oil price.

An aide to Sen. Cranston said Friday the Treasury Department also failed to take into account declining production from the state's oil fields. A spokesman for the Treasury Department declined to comment on that assertion.

The estimates, however, are not considered central to Danforth's argument, although he repeatedly made the point that California, Texas, Louisiana and Alaska would reap a government-estimated $128 billion over

His rejected amendment would have reduced that amount to $117.5 billion, with the remaining $10.5 billion coming to Washington.

Exempting the states from sharing some of its windfall tax revenue with the rest of the nation "does not prodcue an additional barrel of oil, or and additional barrel of the equivalent of lead to an additional inch of insula-. tion," he said.

DANFORTH APPEALED to his colleagues to agree that since decontrolling oil prices was intended to give oil companies additional revenue to plow back into exploration and production for the good of the nation, so should the state tax revenue off such increased profits be devoted to the furtherance of national energy poli-

His opponents, led by Sen. Russell Long, a Democrat from the oil-producing state of Louisiana and chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, reflected a variety of po-

Some felt a federal grab of state taxes would be unconstitutional.

Some represent states with taxable natural resources, such as timber and coal, that they feared could attract federal desires if the Danforth precedent were adopted.

And some, with Chrysler plants and parts suppliers in their states, got Long's clear message that if the Danforth amendment were adopted, Long would filibuster the windfall profits tax bill and thus delay Senate action on the desperately needed Chrysler bailout bill.

DANFORTH ALSO raised fears that the "Big Four" windfall tax states would suddenly have so much money that they could offer industries irresistible incentives to move to those states and thereby cause great economic harm to the states they would leave.

Cranston said the argument was hogwash. He pointed out that California's economy is dynamic enough already to attract industries.

Furthermore, the California State Legislature soon will have to divide up the tidelands oil revenue, and the Brown administration's proposal does not include economic warfare on other states.

Under current state law, California allocates 62 percent of the tidelands tax revenue to public education and 38 percent to water projects. Gov. Brown has suggested that a new formula allocate roughly one-third each to education, energy development and the state's general fund.

Texas, which today has no personal income or corporation tax, put all of its tidelands oil revenue into public

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, knowing the Danforth proposal was dead, played to the galleries and to Long with this argument for letting Louisiana keep its new riches:

"The state of Louisiana has a per capita income substantially lower than the state of Missouri (Danforth's state). I have great respect for the people of Louisiana. They are neighbors and I know them well.

Phillips chairman explains pitfalls of misnamed oil tax

AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - W.F. Miller says the crude oil tax now being finalized by Congress came from a negative action.

"It is now government's responsibility to see that revenues from the tax are used for positive results," Martin said.

The chairman of Phillips Petroleum Co. said that since the tax will affect all Americans it is important to understand what it will do and to consider where revenues from it should go.

Martin said the point has been made many times but it still is not widely known that the tax is mis-

"It is not a 'windfall profits' tax," he said. "It is a tax on the additional revenues resulting from gradual price decontrol of U.S. crude oil. The tax has nothing to do with whether a company makes a profit.'

Writing in the February edition of Philnews, a monthly publication for active and retired Phillips employees, Martin said the distortion of the true nature of the tax has had harmful

"By falsely implying that the tax is needed to penalize or punish America's oil companies, the proponents have further confused and divided the public about the energy problem," he

"They have cast the oil industry as part of the energy problem, when the industry is really the best hope for a

The tax is being designed to provide government with an additional $227 billion over the next 10 years but Martin said the total tax revenues that will accrue to government from oil production during that time will in fact be much higher.

"Under present tax laws and royalty agreements, nearly 60 cents of every additional dollar resulting from decontrol already goes to government and royalty holders," he said.

"Under the new tax, the government will get a large share of the remaining 40 cents.

Martin said the tax is being designed so different tax formulas will apply to different categories of oil, with newly discovered oil and harderto-produce oil not as heavily taxed.

But the key point is that all oil production will be taxed more heavily," he said.

Furthermore, if past experience is an indicator, the tax will bring on new, complex regulations that will confuse producers, stimulate more bureaucracy to oversee producers' actions and waste more valuable time while our energy problems worsen.' "More confusion and delay is just what we don't need at this critical period when our energy future has never been more vulnerable," Martin

"The crisis in Iran and the disturbing actions of the Soviet Union in the Middle East have painfully under-

Texaco finals two openers

PORT ARTHUR - Texaco Inc. announced two significant discoveries in the old Sour Lake area where the company made its historic first petroleum discovery 20 miles from Spindletop in 1903.

A gas-condensate discovery, the Texaco No. 1 Lee Gas Unit, has been completed in Hardin County, seven miles southeast of the city of Sour Lake. It flowed at a rate of 1.785 million cubic feet of gas and 507 barrels of condensate per day from perforations at 11,656-11,680 feet in the Yegua formation

About two miles south of No. 1 Lee Gas Unit, the Texaco No. 1 Westbury Farms in Jefferson County, tested 1.8 million cubic feet of gas and 240 barrels of condensate from perforation at 14,326-14,346 feet opposite the Yegua. Both wells now are on produc-scored the need to more fully develop U.S. energy resources.' Martin said the excise tax works directly against the national goal of increasing fuel supplies at home. 'The $227 billion taxed away from the petroleum industry means $227 billion taken away from direct investments in finding and developing U.S. energy resources," he said. 'Thus, the true effect of the tax is not to penalize oil producers but to penalize oil consumers. In other words, the American public.'

Martin said that since the tax will be taking investment dollars away from direct energy production it is his hope the funds will be used at least indirectly to help overcome the energy problem.

Blair & Sons Leasing; New name, old service

Consideration of the possibility of leasing an auto or some other equipment should lead you to look into the possibilities and advantages. When you deal with a firm such as Blair & Sons, it will be explained to you in such a way that you will understand, and you can be sure of the integrity and expertise of the people with whom you are dealing.

Leasing is for many the most convenient way to have what they need and want for business or personal

AMC to present Eagle with four-wheel drive

DETROIT (AP) - American Motors Corp. will hatch another Eagle - a four-wheel drive car — this fall.

Chairman Gerald C. Meyers told the annual shareholders' meeting Wednesday the company has given the project the code name "Eaglet." Although Meyers would not provide details, a director who did not want to be identified confirmed trade reports that the new car would be based on AMC's subcompact model, the Spirit. The Eagle, introduced last fall, is a compact. It is largely responsible for AMC sales gains in recent months running 40 percent or more ahead of the same months a year earlier. The chairman did confirm that the new model would be made in Kenosha, Wis., AMC's only U.S. plant handling cars now. "We really have got to pull the curtain down on this, so I'm not going into dimensions, weight, fuel economy or anything else," Meyers told

Meyers told reporters the company expected to be profitable for the fiscal year ending in September but would not be more specific. The company earned a record $86 million in the last fiscal year.

President W. Paul Tippett said AMC was negotiating joint ventures with partners he declined to identify to begin Jeep manufacture in Indonesia and Malayasia. AMC would hold a "very small equity" in what he said would be relatively small companies.

Outside North America, Jeeps are made in Venezuela and Egypt.

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The longstanding investment principle that rising interest rates mean falling stock prices is being severely tested in the early weeks of 1980.

Since the start of the year, longterm rates in the bond market have risen sharply as bond prices fell.

But instead of attracting money from the stock market, the bond market's troubles seem only to have contributed to a feverish rally in stock

Analysts at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. point out that traders in the bond and stock markets seem to be looking at the same set of economic issues through opposite ends of a telescope.

Both evidently see continued inflation and an economy that remains stubbornly strong, repeatedly postponing, a long-forecast recession. "A moderation in economic activity just hasn't occurred," said Hugh Johnson, an analyst at First Albany Corp.

that as positive news, while those in bonds have seen it in a decidedly negative light. While the bond market was nosediving this past week, stock prices advanced for the fifth consecutive week on continued heavy trading.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index, up 1.49 at 67.57, and the American Stock Exchange market value index, up 11.22 at 288.79, both reached record highs.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 14.25 at 895.73, reached its highest level in four months. In the last five weeks the average has risen 66.89 points.

Big Board volume averaged 50.49 million shares a day, against 54.56 million the week before.

"Can the assumptions on the outlook for business activity, inflation, interest rates and profits fit such a pessimistic attitude for bonds while the stock market thrives on them?" Dean Witter analysts asked.

"The economic case which calls for continued growth in real business activity and high inflation and interest rates would appear to have the ingredients to satisfy the optimism for equities while feeding the bears in the

"Corporate profits would be maintained, and it is assumed that companies will be successful in passing along inflationary costs."

But as Dean Witter analysts and others point out, there is a big question mark in that view of the economic outlook: The future behavior of consumers, who up till now have been keeping the economic fires burning by spending, rather than saving.

"The decision to spend in the face of virulent inflation marked a reversal of old attitudes," economists at New York's Morgan Guaranty Trust pointtended to reduce spending and increase saving when inflation wor-

"Whether the new attitudes toward spending and saving will persist is crucial to the pace of business activity in the months just ahead."

At Dean Witter, Lee H. Idleman, senior vice president and director of research, concluded: "We remain concerned that the consumer, the ultimate recipient of higher prices, has a finite tolerance already stretched by high personal debt burdens and a very low apparent savings rate.

'It occurs to us that the ingredients still favor a recession, which is not likely to be forestalled. If, however, fiscal and monetary policy is aimed at delaying the recession until after the election (we're not convinced that is the case), then pain postponed is likely to be more acute.'

believed deceptively strong reports coming out in recent weeks show a patchwork effect.

Corporate profit numbers

Exxon, for instance, reported a 60 percent earnings jump in the final quarter of 1979, bringing last year's total earnings to a record $4.3 billion, more than any other industrial concern last year and a 55 percent increase from 1978.

Fellow industrial giant General Motors showed a decline in earnings of almost as much - 57 percent in the fourth quarter. GM's earnings for the year were $2.9 billion, off 18 percent from the year before.

But financially ailing Chrysler Corp. turned in a grim record, announcing a $1.097 billion loss last year, the largest operating deficit for a company in the nation's history.

Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass.-based economic forecasting firm, says its survey of 25 industry group shows a fairly broad range of industries showing strong results as fourth quarter profit reports come

"Interestingly enough, although pe-troleum profits have been getting a lot of attention, there are at least four other industries with bigger profits,' said Lee Phillips of Data Resources.

Based on samplings of profit reports out so far, Data Resources calculates that petroleum profits were up about 31 from the previous year. But rail companies' profits were up about 32 percent; aluminum, copper and non-ferrous metals producers' rose 59 percent, and a small sampling of farm equipment manufacturers posted gains of more than 900 percent, Phillips said.

Still, he notes that sagging profits in auto, steel and some other industries are likely to spread next year if, as Data Resources and many economists predict, a recession develops in

Even the results of the last quarter, Phillips says, are less impressive when inflation is taken into account. "Inflation was in fact eating up quite a bit of profits," he says. On an inflation-adjusted basis, th company says overall after-tax profits rose just

3.3 percent, instead of 12.9 percent

Continental Bank of Chicago, in a recent report, upholds that view, citing not only the effects of inflation but also a reduction of two percentage points in the corporate income tax level as special factors tending to support profits.

Data Resources predicts that slow-ing demand for goods and services this year will cause the deepest drops in profits in the last half of the year. For 1980 as a whole, the company is forecasting a 2.3 percent decline in aftertax profits to $141.3 billion from $144.7 billion in 1979.

But when adjusted for inflation, the forecasting company says that works out to a much steeper 10.5 percent

Rose pruning season is here

By CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent - Agriculture

Land preparation - stalk shredding, disking, chiseling, breaking and listing — is the major activity on area farms. Moisture conditions are generally good as a result of December and January rain and snow, and these activities are proceeding on schedule. Livestock is in generally good condition in the West Texas area for this time of year.

TO BETTER SERVE and educate ranchers and producers, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has in the past worked closely with industry groups to co-sponsor educational programs in artificial insemination and pregnancy testing. Because of the increasing interest by Texas ranchers, a series of statewide educational clinics have been set for Companies participating in the jointly sponsored programs include American Breeders Service (ABS), Central Ohio Breeding Association (COBA) and Medina Valley. In addition to the actual field training in artificial insemination (AI) and pregnancy determination, participants devote half of their time to intensive instruction in management.

Topics to be covered in the classroom: Anatomy and physiology of reproduction, principles and techniques of AI, semen handling and thawing techniques, management application and techniques of pregnancy testing, successful feeding and mineral programs for the breeding herd, genetic selection and record programs, programs for developing heifers, techniques used in handling calving problems, and effective herd health programs.

Time is devoted to other subjects and students are provided with a comprehensive manual on AI and an information folder containing numerous Extension publications and papers relating to AI and breeding herd management. Several of the clinics will be located in the West Texas area. Anyone desiring more details concerning the clinics, dates and locations can contact any county Extension office.

IN MOST AREAS of Texas, roses will become too large and difficult to care for unless they are severely pruned each year. In West Texas, hybrid tea roses should be pruned in late February or early March. A good set of hand shears, a sharp pruning saw, a pair of long-handled loppers, pruning paint and a pair of heavy leather gloves are essential tools when pruning old, well extablished rose bushes

The gloves will protect the hands from the sharp, woody thorns. The saw is the only way to remove the heavy basal canes over two years old. Use loppers on the large canes of the past season, and the shears for the smaller branches. Cover all cuts and ends of the canes with the pruning paint to prevent entry of disease and insects.

Cut back the top growth to 12 to 15 inches above the ground. Retain from 4 to 6 of healthy canes arising from the graft or bud union or within 4 to 6 inches above the union. Remove all dead, diseased and injured twigs and branches as well as all of the thin, spindly growth frequently at the base of an old established plant

MOST CLIMBING ROSES produce a great abundance of flowers in early spring with some of the hybrid tea climbers and hybrid perpetual roses producing a few additional flowers throughout the summer. These should receive their major pruning after the spring flush of bloom.

On healthy, vigorous climbers, any cane over two years old should be removed or cut back severely. Last season's growth should be thinned at least one-half and cut back to within several feet of the base to encourage new growth. Roses will usually start growing within two to three weeks after prun-

Be ready to start your preventive disease control program against black spot at this time. Remember, three or four properly cared for rose bushes will provide all the cut flowers needed in the average home. Determine the size of your rose bed by the time you can devote to their care and not by the space available

Grady Nutt admits his name fits well

By GEORGE W. HACKETT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - While everyone else in high school was sowing wild oats, Grady Nutt was still hunting for the feed store. "I never did find it," said Nutt, a minister-comedian who says the second "t" in his name makes him different from the rest of us.

Now a regular on the "Hee Haw" television show. the humorist from Louisville keeps audiences howling with stories about Southern Baptists and the Southern way of life.

Nutt began playing to audiences at 4 when his mother hoisted him onto a chair to take part in a gospel-singing hour over KGNC Radio in Amarillo, Coached by his mother. Nutt had mastered more than 300 hymns by the time he started school. She also taught him that a quip or a pun could turn aside his father's wrath. Two weeks after his 13th birthday, Nutt was licensed as a Baptist minister. "According to Texas law, I could perform marriages when I was in the eighth grade," he said. "I never did but the fact that I could made me popular in high school.' Nutt completed four years at Baylor University in Waco, Texas, became a church youth director and in 1960 moved with his wife and two small sons to Louisville, where he enrolled at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. "After graduation, they gave me a job as assistant to the president," Nutt said. "I loved the public-relations part of the job, but couldn't get the hang of being an administrator.' His reputation as a speaker led to 11 appearances on "The Mike Douglas Show" and opened the doors to entertainment. 'When I told my congregation at Graefenburg, Ky., that I was leaving the ministry, they stood up and cheered.

"For a moment, I thought they were happy to see me go, but they explained they were behind me 100 percent," he said. Nutt's mixture of religion and comedy has worked well. In addition to the TV show, he averages 18 to 20 speaking engagements a month. Weekends are kept free to be with his family in Louisville. Nutt's fourth book, an autobiography, "So Good, So Far," is a "tribute to people in my life who have been patient with me," he said.

At 45, Nutt doesn't believe his present career has diminished his responsibilities to be a practicing

Insurance called lawsuit lottery

EDITOR'S NOTE — Jeffrey O'Connell was one of the driving forces behind the no-fault car insurance plans of the 1960s. Now, he has launched a new crusade, one he refers to as "The Lawsuit Lottery."

By JANE SEE WHITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeffrey O'Connell is an unlikely crusader. He looks instead like a gray, even bland scholar. That is, in fact, what O'Connell is: professor of law, scholar, author.

Yet this compact, 50ish man — with his close-hewn hair going gray at the temples, his slightly rumpled conservative blue pin-striped suit and his deliberate courtroom way of speaking - is an indignant, even impassioned crusader.

As a crusader, O'Connell got his start in the 1960s when he and Robert Keeton of Harvard, now a Boston federal judge, proposed in a series of books and articles a no-fault car insurance scheme. No-fault, they argued, would assure that all parties in an auto accident are paid their losses without painful, lengthy and costly negotiations or court-room dramatics to decide who was at fault.

Today 15 states have adopted no-fault auto insur-ance plans and personal injury payments amount to about 25 to 30 percent of car insurance premiums. When no-fault was proposed 15 years ago, about 60 percent of the premiums went to pay personal injury, O'Connell says.

HE SAYS THE PRICE of car insurance hasn't declined because the cost of property damage coverage - to which no-fault does not apply - has increased rapidly. He attributes that increase to car manufacture techniques, the growing number of people who own and insure two and three cars and to inflation.

Now, Jeffrey O'Connell has launched a new cru-

He proposes a form of no-fault insurance that could cover all accidents. He's written a book about it: "The Lawsuit Lottery: Only The Lawyers Win."
His message, in a typically tidy O'Connell verbal nutshell:

"It is cruel to litigate any accident. Your tort rights are a ticket to misery. Win or lose, you're going to be miserable."

O'CONNELL CALLS the "tort" — or fault-finding — system of settling claims of medical malpractice, product liability or injury from simple slips and falls capricious and expensive and inhumane.

The tort system works this way: If Smith breaks a leg on Jones's stoop, he files a claim against Jones's insurance company. If the company's settlement offer doesn't suit Smith, everybody goes to court to decide who was at fault. If the jury agrees with Smith that Jones was negligent, then Smith is paid. If not, he collects nothing.

Connell says this system amounts to "a haphazard lottery." It's an expensive, unpredictable system, he says, "that ends up injuring the injured while supposedly trying to help them."

The average tort litigation takes 11/2 years or more; attorneys end up keeping from one-third to one-half of the money awarded. The odds that money will be awarded in court are not terrific and all kinds of things can go wrong.

This makes this deliberate, professorial soul hopping mad; his polka-dotted bow tie fairly bobs in

O'CONNELL QUOTES a federal study that found that 55 percent of those seriously injured in traffic accidents collect precisely nothing.

"For injuries from malfunctioning products or medical malpractice, the percentage of those paid from liability insurance is far less," he writes. But while many, especially among the more seriously injured, go unpaid, many others, especially among the less seriously injured, are overpaid."

O'Connell, a law professor at the University of Illinois, came to New York recently to lobby for his "elective no-fault" proposal, which would operate

If you bought O'Connell's no-fault insurance, you'd be guaranteed immediate payment for economic losses suffered if you're hurt in an accident, or through a medical blunder, or through a hurtful encounter with a defective product. You'd be paid whether or not it was your fault.

IN RETURN FOR immediate payment, you'd give your insurance company your right to sue for "pain and suffering" money. The insurance company could sue the other guy and, if they collected or settled out of court, you'd get part of that money if all your losses weren't covered by your policy.

O'Connell says his plan is "far more helpful than an insurance scheme that haphazardly dumps large amounts of money on occasional victims after years of fighting and frustration." Under his plan, he says, insurance money now spent on pain and suffering awards and court costs would be used more equitably to pay benefits to everyone injured, at fault or not. "Look, if I get in an accident, I don't want to have to worry about who was at fault," he says. "I don't want to gamble with my destiny. Now a tort claim is so uncertain that you sell one-third to one-half of it to your attorney.

"WHY ARE LAWYERS the only ones who get to buy into a claim? Why can't insurance companies, in return for assured payment, buy it?"

Most tort cases don't go to court; the insurance companies negotiate and a settlement is reached.

But the five to ten percent that end up in court "are incredibly painful experiences," O'Connell

'My own polling indicates that even people with good claims will decide to collect their losses on the spot if they know the case is only 80 percent sure and it'll take three years and the lawyer will keep one-third or more of the money."

IN A STUDY 50 years ago of the then 20-year-old Massachusetts workers compensation system, O'Connell says, "they found not one worker had opted to keep his tort rights rather than collect immediate workers' compensation payments."

O'Connell says some insurance companies are studying his plan.

"It wouldn't be fair to name them. They are still exploring it," he says. "More important by far is the hope of exciting employers to write elective no-fault on a group basis to cover employees."

He reports interest, too, in his "third-party elec-tive no-fault" plan: A ski resort or restaurant, for in-stance, could buy insurance that would pay immediate losses to anyone injured — at fault or not — i they agreed not to sue. He expects lawyers, especially those who rely on tort claims for their livelihood, to oppose his plan. But he notes that an elective plan — simply another option offered by insurance companies would be tough to block.

"I think the tort liability system is so incredibly cumbersome, so incredibly corrupt, that it's bound to topple of its own weight. I think this proposal will catch on," the unlikely crusader said.

"If this book doesn't catch on, I'll write another I'll try again."

Watch the spending

Now that the so-called windfall profits tax is a reality, the members of a House-Senate conference committee are sitting down to figure out how to spend the spoils of their victory.

That's too bad, really. Although the Eastern Establishment would scream "ripoff," the $227 billion or more that tax is expected to raise for the government by 1990 certainly could have been used by the oil industry to plough back into exploration and production.

We opposed the windfall profits tax because it will not result in more oil for the United States. We also believe that private industry can spend money more efficiently than the federal government - a fact proven countless times by the Congress itself and the vast federal bureaucracy.

Now we have a suggestion for our nation's leaders to consider as they contemplate how to spend their new found financial re-

First, the money generated by the windfall profits tax should be used to help balance this nation's ballooning budget.

Secondly, the money definitely should not — that's SHOULD NOT - be used to further expand the oversized and unwieldy federal bureaucracy

The federal budget already appears to be nearly out of hand with the total public debt approaching the $1 trillion mark. That's a staggering, mind-boggling sum.

In fact, by 1981, the federal debt is expected to reach $4,148 for every man, woman and child in the United States

A balanced federal budget is wanted and needed. The Congress money as though the well could WEST

It's a simple economic fact: If you spend more money than you take in, you are operating at a deficit. Sooner or later your creditors - in this case the American public - will refuse you additional funds.

It's long past time for the federal government to begin to clean its financial house.

From the standpoint of the federal bureaucracy, it's ridiculously large now and threatens to become top-heavy.

Only one example of the inefficiency of this government is the federal Department of Energy. For 1980 the DOE's budget was an enormous $8.4 million - and the department hasn't improved the energy situation of the United States one bit.

Reducing the federal budget and bringing it into balance would be the wisest use of the money generated through the windfall profits tax - at least the wisest alternative since that money is being taken out of the private sector.

The use of that money to further expand the federal bureaucracy would be adding insult to injury.

Selling family jewelry can prove too revealing

WASHINGTON - The newspapers and airwaves are filled with commercials urging people to bring in their gold and silver jewelry to stores and dealers. Jewelers are not selling but buying these days, and the public is showing up in droves with everything from diamond pendants to silver salt and pepper shakers.

While it is true that the buy-back value of these items has never been higher, there is a danger involved which I believe everyone should be warned about.

McCloskey's wife decided to cash in on some valuable pieces of jewelry that her husband had given her through the years. She was under the impression — and McCloskey had never denied it — that everything he bought her was worth a fortune. Accompanied by her friend, Melba, "for protection" she took it all down to a jeweler who was guaranteeing the highest prices in Washington.'

The man behind the counter picked up one piece at a time, said "junk," and threw it down.

Mrs. McCloskey was not only shattered by the man's contempt for her earthly possessions, but mortified that Melba was a witness to the embarrassing scene. Melba promised she wouldn't say a word to anyone. What she really meant was that she wouldn't say a word to anyone until she could get to the nearest telephone.

When McCloskey got home that evening, his martini was warm and his wife was cold

"That's the stupidest thing I ever heard. We've been married for 15 years, and just because some greedy jewel broker tells you your baubles aren't worth what you thought they were, there is no sense in thinking our marriage is on the rocks. Brezhnev outmaneuvered his rivals Declares a top-secret analysis: "Among the juniors - a relative term at best - are able men already on the WASHINGTON - Leonid Brezhnev, a tired, tough old walrus, hasn't vet been dislodged from the Soviet icecap. But he is being crowded by the younger bulls who dare not challenge him separately but threaten him col-

By JACK ANDERSON

This is the assessment of the Central Intelligence Agency whose topsecret reports portray Brezhnev as a wary but wily old manipulator who has stayed on top by outmaneuvering his rivals.

If he can't be pushed aside just yet, he will give ground to underlings who gather enough strength to budge him. He pulled back from detente, for example, under pressure from the hardheads who prodded him into authorizing the Afghanistan aggression.

Intelligence reports suggest the move into Afghanistan may be part of a strategic offensive aimed at securing a stranglehold on the Western world's lifelines. Through Afghanistan, the Soviets are closing in on the Persian Gulf, which pumps oil into the lifelines

Their new Afghan air bases already put them within easy striking distance of Hormuz Strait at the Persian Gulf exit. This is a vulnerable choke point where the Soviets could block the flow of oil.

The intelligence reports warn that they are now preparing to strengthen their hold on Yemen and Ethiopia, two other choke points that could block oil tankers from entering the Red Sea. From their base in Angola, Soviet planes and subs could also harass any tankers that tried to reach the Atlantic by rounding the African

There is also disturbing evidence that the Soviets are behind a drive to destabilize and subvert Guatemala. This would give them a base that they could use to threaten the nearby Mexican oil fields.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

If the Russians should gain control of the oil routes, they could bring the Western industrial nations to their knees. The effort will intensify, intelligence sources predict, as Brezhnev weakens.

Illness and exhaustion have already sapped him of his vitality. He disappears for weeks at a time to recuperate from his various ailments. Even when his health holds up, he is seldom able to spend more than three hours a day at his desk. Yet at 73, he is middle-aged by Politburo standards. Five of the 14 ruling members are older than he is. The dean of the Politburo, Arvid Pelshe, will be 81 years old this month. Still, the power structure is controlled by these aged men. The six senior members, reports a national intelligence bulletin, "function as a small inner collective within the Po-

This has caused frustration at the lower levels of the Kremlin, particularly among the younger Politburo members who feel stifled by the gerontocracy. "There is little or no devolution of authority to the juniors on the Politburo," declares the intelligence bulletin.

Yet another secret report notes: There undoubtedly are many younger men who have become increasingly restive at their inability to advance themselves because of the gerontocracy." They have been held down by Brezhnev, who has always been able to outmaneuver any potential rivals before they gained enough power to threaten him

Politburo, as well as others waiting on the threshold. None of them has established a special claim to consideration as a contender for the position at the top.

Four years ago, the impatient, ambitious younger leaders succeeded in stirring up some mild criticism of Brezhnev's "cult of personality." The CIA picked up reports, according to one secret dispatch, that "Soviet party members in several institutes have written letters complaining of a budding Brezhnev cult. The tenor of these letters reportedly was that the party had suffered under Stalin's personality cult and Khrushchev's 'subjectivism' and should not allow such errors to be repeated under Brezh-

This campaign was inspired apparently by some junior Politburo members. "It is not clear," related an April 15, 1976, intelligence report, whether any senior member of the Soviet leadership is critical of Brezhnev's toleration of - if not fondness for - personal acclaim."

The ancient and ascetic Mikhail Suslov, the Kremlin's ideological witch doctor, was suspected. But Brezhnev's hand has always been quicker than any rival's eye. He not only suppressed the criticism; he wound up increasing his power. Like everything else under Brezhnev's rule, this was accomplished by con-

In June 1978, the Supreme Soviet gathered in the Grand Kremlin Palace to install Brezhnev, already the party leader, as head of state as well. Under the cold, marble eye of a Lenin statue, Brezhnev was nominated to the Soviet presidency.

'All in favor raise their hands," intoned the presiding official. All hands went up. "All opposed." No hands were raised. "All abstaining." Again no hands. The intelligence reports suggest that the senior Politburo members rallied around Brezhnev for their own preservation. States a top-secret report: "Those of his generation in the senior leadership would probably like him to stay on so as to preserve their own positions.' Beneath the Kremlin's opaque surface, meanwhile, the undercurrents are seething. There is "no lack of aspirants," declares a secret analysis, for the policymaking seats. The younger leaders "know that they will rise only in part because of what they know as opposed to whom they know, for some of the most important Soon the patronage front. Concludes another report: "There is still no sign of preparations for succession when Brezhnev eventually leaves office."

The House Ethics Committee would whip into action and investigate the 'sting' operation were it not for one thing - one of the alleged stingees is on the House Ethics Committee.

Now we know why more members of Congress are not running for president - they can't afford the pay cut.

Most of those reported to be involved are Democrats, and I guess the only lesson they learned from Watergate is that they would have to wait their turn.

The FBI had a TV camera hidden behind a wine rack taking pictures of the FBI sheiks handing money over to the stingees. One agent almost blew it when he said, "Before I make the payoff, we have to break for this commercial message.

a gross offense against civil liberties. is insulting to Arabic people, poses right-to-privacy questions about government leaks to the media and brings back Watergate's foul vapors. For the FBI to spend an enormous amount of time and hundreds of thousands of dollars to, in effect, set up seems to be an abuse of power. Even elected officials have rights. Oh, in the next few weeks, we'll hear about "entrapment" until we're sick to death of it. Thus far, the local experts argue that entrapment is difficult to prove in court, so these poor political souls might be in big trou-

I know that I would hate to have the feds wiring houses for sight and sound, luring me with big money and deploying the relentless power and resources of governemnt to make a catch. I confess to being amused that some of the same people voicing outrage over the FBI's use of tricks in Abscam were on the other side of the fence when similar tricks were performed against the Nixon crew by vengeful people in Congress and in government during Watergate. the FBI's choice of character to play the role of briber, namely, the mythical Kambir Abdul Rahman (the name does not mean "Deep Throat" in Arabic). To cause congressmen and others to take bribes, the FBI reasoned, choose an Arab name for the low character offering the money. Describe this "sheik" as "rich," or 'wealthy," invest him with selfish motives, i.e., trying to cheat immigration laws or seeking to make a new bundle of cash in the United States. Stereotyping of Arabs as low, evil, rich fellows is as bad as the stereotyping of Jews, blacks, Irishmen, Poles or anybody else. I wonder how a former federal judge, William H. Webster, our FBI director, and Atty. Gen. Benjamin R. Civiletti, a seemingly intelligent man, would consciously allow the FBI to use such a stereotype without reflecting on how officials in Arab nations would react if the story got out. For weeks, President Carter has been making stern warnings on how the United States would take military action in the Gulf states (Arab) if the vital interests (oil) of the United States were threatened there. He did this without consulting the governments of those sovereign nations, and apparently ignoring the truth that the oil belongs to them, not us. Unsurprisingly, officials in those oil states announced that they didn't need the U.S President to speak so possessively about their land and their oil.

For years, Arabs and Arab-Americans have felt disgust at the stereotyping of these people in American cartoons, TV programs, films and even in advertising. My hunch is that as news of the official U.S. government use of "Abscam" sweeps across the Arab world, the sensitive folk there will just throw up their hands and say, "What else do you expect from America?"

Webster, Civiletti and President Carter should be advised that: while there are free-spending Arabs, there are far more who are working to improve the health, welfare and education of their once-backward nations; Arabs account for only about 3 percent of the foreign investment in the United States, contrary to conventional misinformation; and that no Arab has ever been named

"Abdul" in that form. Finally, on the Arab matter, if President Carter was aware of the use of mythical Arab perpetrators, and didn't stop it, then he is, indeed, insensitive to foreign policy.

FBI to rent the home of a newspaperman for use as a trapping site for money-hungry congressmen? Newspapermen have a way of finding

And wasn't it sleazy that somehow one of the networks had learned that FBI agents were to be on Sen. Harrison Williams' doorstep at a certain time, so he could be shown in his first moment of shame? Guilty or not, he deserves privacy, as we all do.

I carry no brief for the elected officials involved in this sorry mess. Once again, as in Watergate and during the Korean scandals, some people will be vilified, others will escape, still others will affect great piety.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

State's Democratic officials may be party to many challenges in 1980

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Final reports won't be in until Valentine's Day, but it appears that Texas Republicans are fielding quite a few challengers to Democratic office holders throughout

That's a situation which, says State Democratic Party Executive Director Garry Mauro, delights him.

Not that he's that impressed with the GOP effort, Mauro adds.

According to the GOP, the candidates filing for various congressional, judicial and legislative posts reflect voter unhappiness with the Democrats, and herald a new day for the

"I find it kind of amusing," Mauro says, reporting he hears the GOP talking about "recruiting" good candidates who can defeat Democrats.

"They're out recruiting candidates, and we're trying to find secretaries to handle all the candidates trying to

Nor will he be disheartened if the Republicans take a few matches this

"They have four percent of the elected officials in Texas; we have 96 percent," he notes. They can win a heck of a lot of races" without changing that very much, he adds. Mauro doesn't think that's likely to state government, with low taxes compared to other states.

"I see no great move to throw the Democrats out; I think people want to keep things as they are.' Mauro believes the larger number of candidates at the local level will result in a greater turnout among voters - which will work to the Democrats' advantage.

In 1978, he says, there was "real complacency among the Democrats" - leading to the election of Gov. Bill

That isn't likely to be the case in 1980, he comments. "There are more of us than there are of them," Mauro reasons, "so all we have to do is excite our people, and they'll get out and vote.'

Last year, a poll taken by the Demo-

Texans described themselves as Democrats, Mauro says, but a recent "Texas Monthly" poll showed 58 percent now refer to themselves by that "I personally hope they file some-body in every race," Mauro adds. Some Democratic candidates have expressed unhappiness that there is at least as yet - no presidential preference primary on their ballot. Mauro agrees that "if we had a primary we would have a little bit larger turnout," but he argues that use of the caucus system "generally strengthens the party machinery, and will involve "backbone" local

For whatever reasons, a number of conservative lawmakers (and some liberal and moderate ones as well, for that matter) have decided not to run for re-election, including newly-converted Republican Sen. Bill Braecklein, Dallas — whose action has raised some questions about what value such political "about faces" may have for other candidates, and whether other candidates will want to switch from the Democratic label.

All that will be subject to additional analysis after the May 3 primary but it already appears that while the Republicans may make some gains, the Democrats aren't likely to worry too much about it - either before or

'Good job'

To The Editor:

The past 33 years have been just great and when the "Permorama" edition of The Midland Reporter-Telegram arrived armed with a cup of coffee I spread it out on the dining room table, not knowing what a really great treat was in store.

It was a magnificent effort on the part of the entire staff. Such breathtaking photos by Bruce Partain, Brian Hendershot and Mike Kardos all through the special edition, I learned the names of buildings going up. Time was, when I worked in the air conditioning business with my husband, I was keenly aware of the growth we were experiencing. When we moved here in 1947 my mother, who worked for an oil company, said: "Midland is a young man's town!" These fabulous young men have built, and are continuing to build a spectacular monument to their joint efforts in the Permian Basin. The many new buildings going up really are superb, architecturally. Downtown Midland, once thought to be dying, residential areas, shopping centers, Midland Memorial Hospital, Midland College, the country clubs and schools and churches and The Community Theatre must tell visitors that this is, indeed, a great place to live!

Mine has been a lifelong fascination with religion, politics, nutrition, in that order. People who cannot discuss them intelligently really have nothing very substantive to talk about. This is going to be an exciting, even crucial

The same charge

To The Editor:

Many Midland banks have recently decided to begin a service charge on checking accounts. It is obvious in these times of soaring interest rates and structural additions that the poor bankers are really up to their necks in financial difficulties. These new charges will be assessed according to your balance. For example, if you keep $600 or more in your checking account, or you happen to have $4,000 or more in your savings account, you have earned the privilege of being exempted from the charge. The less money you have in the bank, the more money you will pay. The less fortunate who retain only $100 or less in their accounts pay $6 a month. A local banker says the charge is essential to keep up with the paperwork.

This reverse logic irks this longtime Midlander. The charge is being assessed against those who really can't afford $72 a year, rather than the more wealthy bank clientele. The banks are afraid to upset their rich customers. Oh yes, the charge is assessed against your lowest balance during the fiscal month. It seems these days that everyone has lost respect for those who work hard at a decent job, but who do not have eough meony to invest in diamond-studded planters. Those who are barely getting by are the backbone of this country. We are the ones that democracy is made for, not the lavish bureaucrats whose heads are so full of money that they sometimes forget to be human. They will learn that the indigent not only have guts, they have pride. If we lived in a democracy, I would not be paying taxes and service charges while some chairman of the board for a yo yo company doesn't pay a cent. We should all pay the same tax and the same service

Time to teach

To The Editor:

What is communism? Why are we afraid of the communists? These questions were asked of me by my 14-year-old eighth-grade daughter. I was shocked that she had reached this age without having been taught the different types of governments in existence in our world today.

Is there no place in the curriculum of our public schools where this is taught? My belief is that our children should be taught the perils of communism at an early age. And, also the benefits of a free enterprise system and Capitalism. Maybe our country wouldn't be in the mess it is in now if our children were "brainwashed" with Capitalism as children in Russia

If our children don't know what communism is how can they understand newscasts? Why are we boycotting Russia because they have gone into Afghanistan? Why are the communists trying to take over everywhere? These questions should be answered them through school and home. Maybe the generation that is now of voting age would better know how to vote if they had been taught how communism sneaks into our lives some way everyday in the U.S.A.

Hardly a man

To The Editor:

"On the eighteenth of April, in Seventy-five;" (hardly a man is still alive) our forefathers embarked upon a perilous adventure, against formidable odds, over far less provocation by government than we endure

It is hoped that come November the voters of America will go to the polls and elect a candidate who will re-establish the aims and goals of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and the framers of our Constitution instead of blindly following political party jingoism. Neither President Carter nor Senator Kennedy can accomplish those ends. Nor for that matter can some of the other overly ambitious me-too candidates.

James Carter is piously ineffective even giving due to his belated awakening and Edward Kennedy should be denounced as a Democrat and exposed for what he is: an out-and-out Socialist.

"When people who know better, but for political or other reasons, charge that the level of business profits is 'obscene' or 'excessive' (as if there were some magic number that profits should not exceed) it's time to get back to the basics. Such talk clearly ignores the reality of what profits are...and what they perform in our "Simply put, profits are the busi-ness equivalent of personal savings; the excess of revenue over expenditures...the primary source of capi-tal...and...capital is the vital force that energizes our economy, nurtures the system that creates millions of American jobs and sustains our nation as the most productive on earth. Increased business profits mean more American jobs, a more effective American system, and a more prosperous American society.

"If more people understood this basic fact, it would not be politically expedient to attack business profits. Profits are the lifeblood of our American economic system. They should be celebrated, not condemned; encouraged, not assailed. To castigate record-level profits as being 'obscene' is the kind of rhetoric that threatens to lead to misguided measures that would constrain profits, make us less competitive, and, ultimately, lessen the quality of life not only for us today, but for our children tomorrow, and that, we think you'll agree would really be 'obscene.'

It's 'our' air, too

To The Editor:

In response to John Paul Pitts' letter to the editor of Jan. 27, 1980, we the smokers, Mr. Pitts, do not blow smoke in the air to personally offend

Do you classify us with the person who blows his nose in a public restaurant, uses loud profanity or belches? Isn't it wonderful that in this free United States of America we can still smoke in a section restricted to us because we do smoke. Yes, Mr. Pitts, until it does become against the law we will pollute "your" air, not because we are trying to aggravate your allergies or pollute your child's air, but because until we are told different it's "our" air too! Until we can't smoke in public places maybe you wouldn't be offended if you stay at home, we won't

On Jan. 25, 1980, my wife and I went to the airport to meet a flight from Dallas. I had been told that the meters on the northside of the parking area were not marked at night. I parked and at 9:45 after waiting for a late plane I found a $5 parking ticket. I personally think the parking situa-tion at the Midland airport is the biggest ripoff of the citizens of Midland that we have anywhere. Five dollars for a parking ticket is ridiculous. If we have to pay for this mud-dled up airport which we have with parking tickets, I hope it closes.

Also, I think instead of out hunting tickets, they might look for a man two-thirds under the weather staggering around over the airport. However, this might make sense.

But rather than deal with Ruth and Naomi, this romance involves two principals - Karen and Judy and, occasionally Tere, and their thoughts on Steve, Bobby, Mike, Jimmy, Kent, Charlie and Sandy. It's a story of friendship and love. The tale, apparently involving teenagers, is scribbled on offering envelopes and worship bulletins in an abandoned Good Book, which Roustin' About came upon in the Salvation Army's thrift store and picked up for 15 cents. Chances are the notes were exchanged during worship services.

'Karen, pray every chance you get!" Judy advised in her pennings on an Easter offering envelope. "Which is more important, God or him?"

On the same side was this thought. "Judy," wrote Karen, "don't worry. I wouldn't let him do anything to me! Even (if) it meant losing

Also penned on another envelope between Leviticus 9 and 10 was this

"Steve was spending the night over at Mike's. They had it all planned to take the station wagon. Steve was already out and Mike was crawling out the window and he knocked over this big metal chest, which woke up everyone. Mike ran back to his bedroom, and Steve decided that he'd better hurry back there, too. So he grabbed hold of the windowsill and jumped. He has a big gash in his head, where he went through the window. Steve can't tell his parents, 'eaz he was sneaking out, too. I'm so dumb."

The tale resumes between Judges 6

"I'm getting tired of Kent, 'cause I' thought I'd never get him, and that's why I like him. And now that I've got him, I don't want him. But I don't want to hurt him. And if I did break up, I'd never get Jimmy back." Penciled on the flip side was this

"...I just waited and waited for Charlie. I love Charlie, even to go through all that. Do you love Steve that much? It may be more than just waiting for Steve, Karen. I waited five months!!"

A flip to St. Matthews reveals this: Yea, but at least he likes you. Mike likes me just for a friend. I guess I'll give up and just wait and see what

In the book of Esther comes this: 'He knows or thinks you're breaking up! Don't do it! He's too great of a guy, but if you think you ought

A crisis seems in the making in Psalms. Judy wrote to Karen: "Karen, he could have overpowered you. He is big, you know. If you went riding around with (him), you could have gotten into more trouble than (you) could get out of! Doing a stunt like that could ruin your reputation, and whatever you do, don't get a bad reputation. Watch who you run around with. I'm probably sound(ing) like an old hag or something, but it's pure true. Stay sweet. — Judy."

And grateful Karen replied on the same offering envelope:

"Judy, I'm glad I've got such a good friend as you, 'cause if I didn't, I'd probably (be) in more trouble than ever. Thanks."

A FLOSSY IDEA SOLVES A PROBLEM

DEAR HELOISE:

I read your hints every Sunday and I think they are very helpful. Now I am sending you a hint which I hope will be just as helpful to someone else. My buttons were always popping off my slacks. Just as soon as I sewed them on, they popped right off. Then this friend of my mother gave me a very good dea. She said that she sews buttons on with dental floss because it is tough and will not break easily.

Sure enough, now I don't have any more problems with my buttons popping off each time I go out to play. Heather Wilson, Age 9 MAKE YOUR OWN COMIC BOOK

BANGS, BANGS

DEAR HELOISE:

Those who cut their own bangs and get hair into their eyes should try taping a piece of clear plastic wrap or wax paper across the brow.

The paper will keep cut hair from getting into the eyes and allow them to see what they're doing.

This is an especially great trick to use when cutting children's bangs.

Mrs. Charles Metzler CAKE IN A CONE

DEAR HELOISE: For your next festive party for a child, try something a little different.

Fill an empty ice cream cone half full of cake batter, then bake 15 minutes at 350F. You'll have cupcakes that can be eaten down to the last crumb, with no messy baking paper liners to discard.

This is a good way to use up stale cones because the baking makes them crisp.

DRAW A LIST

DEAR HELOISE: As I was getting ready to pack luggage for a vacation trip, my children, 3 and 5, were getting unruly so I decided to put them to work. I made two lists of things that should be put in their suitcases but, because they couldn't read, 1 drew the lists. Believe it or not, each understood and put in everything that was on the list - folded, too. Of course, then Mommy could do her packing without interruptions. We all finished much faster and Mom, at least, had a much easier time.
