Red Cross officials visit embassy hostages

By The Associated Press

Two representatives of the International Red Cross and a group of Iranian visited the 50 American hostages in the U.S. Embassy today to check on their condition and report their findings to the families of the captives.

The Red Cross representatives were Harald Schmid de Grunneck, the permanent Red Cross representative in Tehran, and Dr. Bernard Liebeskind, a physician. Both are Swiss.

They were accompanied by an official of the Red Lion and Sun, the Iranian equivalent of the Red Cross, and Iranian Health Minister Mousa Zargar.

Hojatolislam Seyyed Ali Khamenei, the Moslem clergyman who leads the weekly Sabbath prayers in Tehran, also was scheduled to be a member of the group, but it was not known if he was already inside the embassy. A spokesman for the militants occupying the embassy since Nov. 4 said he was added to the group at their insistence.

A spokeswoman at the Geneva headquarters of the Red Cross said the Iranian government agreed to three conditions set by the organization that its representatives meet with all the hostages, that they be allowed to make a list of their identities and that they be allowed to notify the captives' families of the state of their health.

Hassan Habibi, a spokesman for the ruling Revolutionary Council, said in an interview broadcast by Tehran Radio that Iran is "ready for a world war" if the United States starts one over the hostages.

Hints of American military action do not appear serious, he said. He dismissed the possibility of an economic blockade at the mouth of the Persian Gulf because, he reasoned, it would cut off oil from Saudi Arabia and other Arab countries as well as Iran.

If the United States is serious about world war, Habibi said, it should seriously consider whether it is worth surviving or not.

Today was the Americans' 163rd day of captivity. The militants' spokesman said the visit was "imposed" on them by the Iranian government. Apparently the government hoped it would help to undercut President Carter's campaign to get Japan and America's major European allies to take the same economic and diplomatic sanctions against Iran that he ordered.

The ambassadors of Japan and the nine European Common Market countries called on President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr last Saturday and relayed demands from their governments for the immediate release of the hostages. A press aide said Bani-Sadr rejected the demand and warned the foreign governments against taking punitive action against Iran. But he said he would ask some international organization to check on the condition of the captive Americans and report to the world on their treatment.

The Americans' last foreign visitors were three American clergymen who held Easter services eight days ago and reported they were in excellent physical and mental shape.

The militants also renewed their threat to kill all the hostages, saying they would "blow them sky-high," if the United States took military action against Iran. They announced last December that they had mined the embassy walls with explosives.

President Carter told a group of European television correspondents on Saturday that if further U.S. action was necessary to free the hostages, it "would be very strong and forceful and might well involve military means." He also had a warning for the embassy militants, saying, "If our hostages are injured or any of them are killed, then we would not delay in taking much stronger action of an incisive nature."

After their meeting with Bani-Sadr, the Japanese and West European ambassadors began returning home for "consultations" with their governments in accordance with a procedure worked out by the Common Market governments at a meeting in Lisbon, Portugal, last week.

French officials said the European Community's headquarters staff in Brussels was examining the legalities of further joint action against Iran. They said the foreign ministers of the nine nations — Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Ireland and Denmark — would meet in Luxembourg April 21 to consider what they would do next.

Afghan rebels capture 600 Soviets, reports say

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — An Afghan rebel group claimed today to have killed 600 Soviet troops and destroyed or captured 280 armored vehicles by triggering a mountain avalanche with dynamite.

The claim could not be independently confirmed and past rebel figures have later proved to be highly inflated.

A spokesman for the rebel group, Jamiat-i-Islami, said the ambush of the Soviet armored column occurred April 1 in the Chapchal Pass near Dar-i-Suf, a coal mining area in Samangan province, about 149 miles northwest of Kabul, the Afghan capital.

He said the dynamite-induced avalanche buried 40 armored vehicles and 240 others were captured.

The rebel spokesman, who identified himself only as Tanim, said in a telephone interview from Peshawar, northwest Pakistan, that insurgents used dynamite taken from nearby coal mines which have been under rebel control for the past 18 months.

The Kremlin poured tens of thousands of Soviet troops into Afghanistan in late December to help the Afghan government in its battle against anti-communist Moslem rebels, who have been fighting government troops since shortly after the first of three successive pro-Moscow regimes seized power in an April 1976 coup.

The United States, along with some other countries, is boycotting the Summer Olympics in Moscow to protest the Soviet intervention in the neighboring Central Asian country.

Meanwhile, Jamiat-i-Islami and another rebel group, Hezbi-Islami, reported a rebel raid last week against Chigha Sarai, an Afghan government stronghold and capital of the eastern province of Kunar.

One report reaching Peshawar said rebel prisoners took 42 Afghan soldiers prisoner, burned houses of known ruling Marxist Party members and stole the equivalent of $9,300 in Afghan currency, 120 Soviet-made Kalashnikov assault rifles and other supplies.

The Jamiat rebel group spokesman said Soviet troops from the nearby town of Sheghal entered the area in strength April 8 to push back the insurgents.

Associated Press photographer Herve Merliac, who returned from Kunar province today, said he saw a village near the border which had been destroyed last month.

He quoted residents of Damgan, located about three miles from the border, as saying that Soviet helicopter gunships firing rockets inflicted numerous civilian casualties in the attack. Many houses suffered collapse roofs and walls.

Tax Appraisal Board divided on who should get job

The city's side: Only one new employee needed

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a three-part series studying the newly formed Midland County Tax Appraisal Board, the complicated and already controversial panel that will assess property values for all Midland County property owners beginning in 1981.

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Only simple arguments have just two sides.

The discussion on who should set values on property to be taxed in Midland County has at least three.

The discussion is based on a law passed by the Texas Legislature requiring all counties to create one county-wide tax appraisal office which will set 100 percent market values on all property to be taxed in the county.

The idea was to simplify the taxing process for both the taxpayer and the taxing districts.

The law allows three options for choosing who will set the values, and the Midland County Tax Appraisal

Board, with one representative for each of the six taxing districts in the county, is split three ways.

Some members want the job done by the county tax office, others see the city tax office as the best place for the job to be done, still others favor creating a separate office with loyal ties to neither existing tax office.

A final decision may be made on the matter at the board's meeting Thursday in the County Commissioners' courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse.

For City Attorney Joe Nuessle, who represents the city of Midland on the board, the solution seems simple enough.

"In my judgment, as a practical matter and a matter of economy, the assessing of all property taxes in Midland County right now is being done in the city office about as well as that sort of program can be done."

The city already handles tax appraisals, assessments and collections for the city, Midland school district, and the county hospital and junior college districts.

The county tax office provides the same service for the county and the Greenwood school district.

Nuessle lists three major advantages the city's office has over the other two alternatives.

The first, he noted, is complete records.

The city office has appraisals for all property in the county because it handles the tax matters for the county-wide hospital district.

Moreover, Nuessle pointed out, the values on those records are 1980 values. While the county has appraisals for all property in the county, the property is listed at 1958 prices — the last time the county did a complete reappraisal.

Of particular importance for the school districts, Nuessle said, is the documentation for property exemptions on the school tax rolls.

"The city already has that on computer tapes, and it's been approved by the State Property Tax Appraisal Board. That's a difficult thing to put together," he added.

Israeli troops withdrawn; U.N. forces still on alert

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel says its troops have withdrawn from southeast Lebanon, but U.N. forces there were put on full alert because of clashes with the Lebanese Christian militia Israeli supports.

An Israeli military spokesman said the troops which crossed into Lebanon last Wednesday "have completed their tasks and have left the area of south Lebanon."

The troops crossed the border two days after a Palestinian attack on a kibbutz in the northern panhandle in which three Israelis and the five terrorists were killed. A U.N. spokesman said the Israeli troops blocked some of the Palestinian infiltration routes into Israel and searched for terrorists. But there was no report that they found any or destroyed any Palestinian installations.

Israeli sources said the troops were blocking Palestinian attacks that might disrupt President Carter's meetings in Washington with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel. But they were not sent into Lebanon until the day Carter's meetings with Sadat ended. And they were withdrawn a day before the beginning of Begin's visit to Washington today.

Meanwhile, hostilities continued between the U.N. peacekeeping force stationed in southern Lebanon and the Lebanese Christian militia there led by Maj. Saad Haddad.

The U.N. command accused the militia of firing on a U.N. convoy Friday, attacking its troops in the village of Tiri, five miles north of the Israeli border, on Saturday and bombarding the U.N. command's headquarters at Naqoura, on the Mediterranean coast, for more than five hours Saturday night with tank cannon, mortars and artillery. The Christians accused the U.N. troops of firing first at Tiri but said nothing about the Naqoura bombardment.

Reports in Israel said a U.N. soldier from Fiji and two Lebanese civilians were killed in the fighting at Tiri, but reports in Lebanon said the Fijian and a militiaman were killed and eight persons were wounded. No casualties were reported in Naqoura, but a U.N. spokesman said two U.N. helicopters and several prefab buildings in the headquarters compound were destroyed and the operations room was badly damaged.

The commander of the U.N. force, Maj. Gen. Emmanuel Erskine of Ghana, met in Nazareth with Haddad and Maj. Gen. Avigdor Ben-Gal, the military commander in northern Israel, to discuss the situation. Israeli TV reported they would confer again next week.

The U.N. forces exchanged two captured militiamen for four Irish soldiers taken by Haddad's men.

The U.N. force was sent into southern Lebanon in 1978 after a large-scale Israeli invasion to drive Palestinian guerrillas well away from the Israeli-Lebanese border. When they withdrew, the Israelis left Haddad in control of a six-mile-wide strip along the border, and he proclaimed it "Free Lebanon," independent of the Beirut government.

The Israelis and their Christian proteges contend that the U.N. troops have failed to prevent Palestinian infiltration.

The U.N. Security Council met for an hour in New York to hear Lebanon's complaint against Israel because of its incursion into Lebanese territory. There was no indication what the council might do about that.

Carter's talks with Begin seen as 'tough encounter'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's arrival today for resumption of summit diplomacy on a self-rule plan for Palestinian Arabs sets the stage for what is expected to be a tough encounter with President Carter on Jewish settlements.

Begin's visit comes on the heels of a similar one last week by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in which the increasingly popular Arab leader blended earnest appeals for peace in the Middle East with accusations that wrong-headed Israeli policies prevent its achievement.

Beneath Sadat's sharp rhetoric, though, were indications a deal could be struck — possibly by the May 26 target date or at least by summer — providing some administrative powers to the 1.2 million Palestinians living under Israeli control.

The compromise would be based partly on deferring some tough issues, such as control over water facilities on the West Bank of the Jordan River, until the Palestinians themselves are willing to join the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations.

Sadat revived the idea of implementing autonomy first in the Gaza district, once controlled by Egypt and much less a security concern for Israel than the West Bank of the Jordan River.

At the same time, the Egyptians are pushing for a special committee to sift security aspects out of other issues and deal with them separately. The idea is to reassure Israel that as it reaches terms on those other issues its security concerns also are being addressed.

Once cool to the idea, the Begin government may now reappraise its position during the prime minister's talks with Carter.

Former Midland man among crash victims

From Wire and Staff Reports

EL PASO — A former Midlander and his wife apparently were among the victims of a plane crash that occurred south of Juarez, Mexico, during the weekend.

Military helicopter crews today began a tedious recovery operation at the mountainside site of the crash that killed five persons south of Juarez, authorities said.

The twin-engine Cessna 320, bound for El Paso, slammed into the side of a 5,800-foot mountain Saturday, officials said. Mexican authorities did not locate the wreckage until Sunday afternoon.

Identities of the victims were being withheld by authorities until the bodies are recovered.

However, a family member, Tony Conley of Carlsbad, N.M., identified the victims as J.W. Miller, 54, a multimillionaire oil man from Carlsbad and formerly of Midland; his wife, Patricia, Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor, friends of the Millers; and Otis Brown, an employee of Globe Universal Sciences, an El Paso-based oil exploration company owned by Miller.

Conley, the Miller's son-in-law, said the group was on a vacation trip. He identified O'Connor as head of an electronics manufacturing company in Houston.

Miller moved to Midland about 1960 with Shell Oil Co. He soon left that to become founder and president of Globe Universal Sciences which had an office located on Andrews Highway. He also was on the board of Gus Manufacturing, which has an office in El Paso.

While in Midland, Miller was involved in numerous civic activities.

served on Midland City Council from 1967-68, and was on the board of directors at Commercial Bank & Trust Co. since January 1968.

A spokesman at the bank said Miller requested last January that his status be reduced to advisory director.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church here where he had taught Sunday School classes.

He held memberships in the Society of Exploration Geophysicists, the European Association of Geophysicists and Ermican Geophysical Union, the Midland Chamber of Commerce and Carlsbad, N.M., Chamber.

He was also one of the original directors of Midland Industrial Foundation when it was formed in 1967.

A graduate of Rice University, Miller held bachelor's and master's degrees in electrical engineering.

About 1972, he moved from Midland to his New Mexico ranch known as Washington Ranch near White City.

LT Col. Larry E. Joyce said a Fort Bliss helicopter team was sent to the crash site Sunday afternoon at the request of the Mexican government.

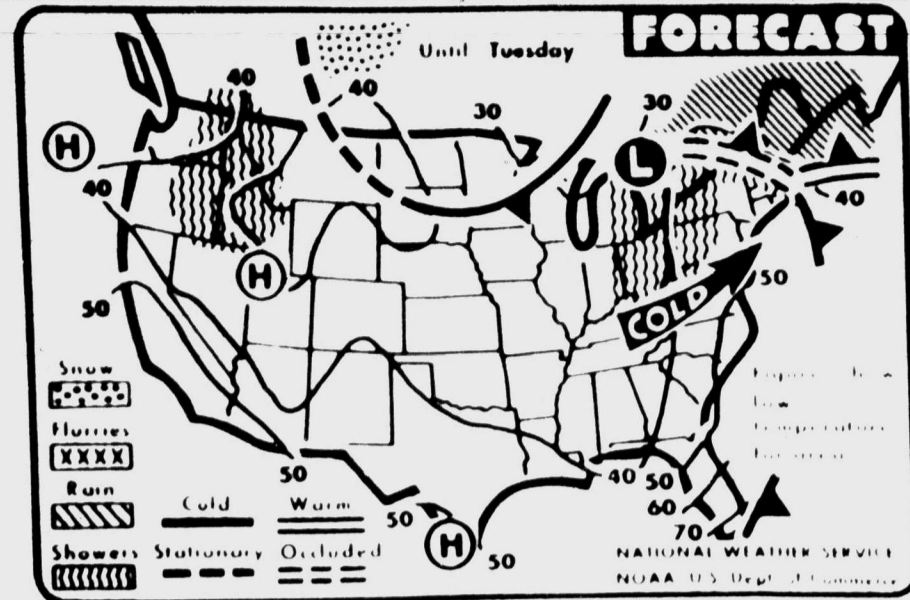

The helicopter pilot, after returning to Fort Bliss, said they located the bodies of four men and one woman, but were unable to reach the crash site on the steep mountainside, about 100 feet below the peak, Joyce said.

Another team will have to hike to the crash site from about a half-mile away to recover the bodies, Joyce said.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Robert Dye said Mexican authorities told him a pilot and four passengers were listed on the flight

Kennedy wins in Arizona

By The Associated Press

Sen. Edward Kennedy claims his victory in Arizona Democratic Party caucuses has unearthed a cactus in President Carter's Rose Garden, but in party meetings in three other states the president found fertile ground for his growing lead in the race for the party's presidential nomination.

In fact, the delegate selection process in South Carolina, Virginia and Washington this weekend added to the president's margin over Kennedy despite the Massachusetts senator's showing in Arizona and a likelihood of similar results in Alaska.

But Kennedy saw his Arizona victory — he seemed assured of gaining 16 of the state's 29 delegates to the Democratic National Convention — as leading to similar results in Pennsylvania, where 185 delegates are at stake in the April 22 primary.

"The Southwest has spoken," Kennedy said Sunday in Philadelphia when he learned of the Arizona results.

"The Northeast has spoken," he said, referring to his earlier victories in New York and Connecticut. "The next state is Pennsylvania and we look forward to carrying the same message — and we're hopeful of getting a similar response."

Then, aiming a barb at Carter's tactic of staying in the White House, Kennedy added: "I think yesterday that Jimmy Carter found that there's a little cactus growing in the Rose Garden."

Carter aides admitted Kennedy had outmaneuvered them in Arizona. Presidential spokesman Jody Powell said Kennedy "had us looking the other way" and added that farm workers leader Cesar Chavez "did a great job in the Hispanic communities" in the state along the Mexican border.

While all this seemed to point to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as the "spoiler" in the party, Carter aides have consistently said it was not up to them to tell Kennedy to get out of the campaign despite his great distance behind Carter in the delegate selection process so far.

Over the weekend, Kennedy emerged with a caucus victory in Arizona, and was leading in Alaska, but Carter picked up a half-dozen delegates in South Carolina, maintained his lead in Virginia, and appeared leading in Washington state.

Kennedy sought to use the Arizona victory, in which he appeared to pick up 16 delegates and Carter won 13, as a psychological edge in the much more important battle in Pennsylvania, where Democrats will go to the polls April 22 in the next major primary election.

During the weekend, White House press secretary Jody Powell said that Carter "is likely a few points lower" than Kennedy in the latest polls taken in advance of the Pennsylvania primary.

Powell refused to cite any specific polls, but told reporters: "We are probably at best about even and more likely a few points lower" than Kennedy.

With Kennedy focusing on his victory in Arizona, the Carter aide, who requested that he not be identified by name, questioned whether the president's rival had a better chance than Carter to retain control of the White House for the Democratic Party.

"People might look at how the Democratic party would fare" if Kennedy is the presidential candidate, he said.

This official said that Kennedy's chances of successfully carrying his fight for the nomination to the floor of the Democratic National Convention in New York next August were "very slim."

There has been increasing talk that if Kennedy cannot enter the convention with enough delegates to win, he would attempt to succeed by overturning a rule committing the delegates to vote in the first ballot for the candidate they were elected to support.

Demo fight worrying Carter aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's political aides say they are concerned that the continuing fight for the Democratic presidential nomination is damaging the party's chances in the general election campaign.

Should Republicans be able to unite behind frontrunner Ronald Reagan, one Carter aide said, the GOP might be able to conduct successful fundraising drives before the summer.

Such efforts, he said, would allow the Republicans to outpace the Democrats by $15 million to $20 million because once the Democratic race is settled, it would be too late to complete a successful search for campaign contributions.

Asked about the division in the Democratic Party, the source, well acquainted with the Carter campaign and the president's thinking, said: "That is often the case, but it does concern us. It seems to me it would be a thing to look at."

While all this seemed to point to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as the "spoiler" in the party, Carter aides have consistently said it was not up to them to tell Kennedy to get out of the campaign despite his great distance behind Carter in the delegate selection process so far.

Over the weekend, Kennedy emerged with a caucus victory in Arizona, and was leading in Alaska, but Carter picked up a half-dozen delegates in South Carolina, maintained his lead in Virginia, and appeared leading in Washington state.

plan. But Dye said he was not sure where the plane was based, but was checking on reports that it was from El Paso or New Mexico.

The American registered plane was en route from La Paz, at the tip of Baja, Mexico, to El Paso International Airport when it made radio contact with the FAA, Dye said.

"About 10 a.m. MST (Saturday) morning in the snowstorm, the pilot radioed in and reported that the weather was very bad," Dye said. "Before we could provide service, we lost radio contact. The pilot never identified his location."

"There is no indication of why they crashed," Dye said, "but the local weather possibly contributed to it. We were showing three miles' visibility and fog and snow showers and I imagine they were having pretty much the same thing down there."

Tax returns coming in at faster rate than '78

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers, probably inspired by the prospect of higher refunds, have filed their 1979 federal returns in advance of Tuesday's deadline at a faster rate than last year, the Treasury Department reports.

As of April 4, the Internal Revenue Service had received 58.1 million returns of an expected 93 million.

The return rate is 3.3 percent higher than a year ago, and higher refunds may be the prime motivator, IRS spokesman Larry Batdorf said last week.

At the same time last year, the IRS had made 38.74 million refunds totaling $19 billion, or an average of $490 per return.

This year, refunds totaling $23.6 billion, or an average of more than $590, have been sent are up to 39.9 million filers.

"Obviously, this is the result of inflation," Batdorf said of the 20.5 percent increase in the average refund.

The speedy filing has, however, resulted in an increase in errors that will delay refund checks for some taxpayers.

As of April 4, Batdorf said, 6.3 percent of those who filed the 1040 long form made mistakes of one sort or another, compared with 6 percent last year. The error rate on the 1040a short form was 5.6 percent, up from 5 percent as year ago.

The most common error among long-form filers has occurred when "people looked at the wrong tax table to calculate their total liability," the spokesman said.

For those taxpayers who cannot meet Tuesday's midnight filing deadline, the IRS has a safety net known as Form 4868, "Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U.S. Individual Tax Returns."

Fair, warmer in forecast

Mostly fair and warmer weather conditions are expected by Tuesday for Midland residents.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting a high in the low 80s for Tuesday, which should be a welcome change after a cold front brought snow and chilly weather to much of the Permian Basin over the weekend.

Winds are expected to be variable at 5-10 mph tonight, with the overnight low expected near 40.

Sunday's chilly high temperature of 54 degrees fell 43 degrees shy of the record high for that date — 97 degrees set in 1972. But this morning's low of 35 came close to the record low of 31 set in 1933.

city office, the city attorney said, is a virtually complete staff.

City tax assessor-collector Virgil Jones has told the board he could add one clerk to his present office staff and handle the county business.

County tax office Chief Deputy Frances Shuffield has said she could add "three or four of the city's best appraisers" to her smaller staff and do the same job.

For a completely independent third office, Nuessle said, taxpayers would have to fund "new personnel, a building, autos, calculators, contracts for computer work and a lot of reproduction of records."

"I think the intent of the new law is to consolidate some of this activity," he added. One way to consolidate

80 backpackers dramatize need for more trails

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eighty backpackers have begun a trek across the nation to dramatize what they say is the need for more hiking trails.

The backpackers were accompanied across the bridge Sunday by estimated 7,000 other people.

The march marked the first time the 44-year-old double-deck bridge was open to pedestrians, officials said.

Proponents say city best equipped for tax appraisal would be to create one office that would appraise, assess and collect taxes for all six districts. That could not happen, however, until all six districts requested it. And, considering the current problems just picking an appraiser, the day all could agree on an assessor-collector voluntarily seems fairly distant.

"Unless and until that unanimity occurs," Nuessle said in arguing against a third office, "it seems obvious to me it's cheaper to run two offices than to run three."

"And if you can take what you already have and add one clerk, that seems to me to be the most efficient operation," he concluded.

The third major advantage, Nuessle said, is having a non-elected chief appraiser.

Taking a directly opposite stance from the county's position on the matter, Nuessle said he thought the public would be best served with an appointed appraiser responsible to elected officials.

"To me it's inconceivable that a person can go out and do a job of setting realistic, fair market values on people's property and not be influenced by their reaction to some extent," Nuessle said.

"How are you going to go out and tell a man 'I'm going to increase your valuation by 25 percent on the next tax roll' and in the same breath ask for his vote?"

"The person with that job is going to have a hard enough time just doing the job without being embroiled in an election half the time," Nuessle said.

Liddy breaks silence

NEW YORK (AP) — After a long silence, G. Gordon Liddy, the convicted conspirator who allegedly masterminded the 1972 Watergate break-in, has revealed details of his role in scandal — including fears of assassination for failing to carry out the burglary.

In the book, excerpted in this week's Time magazine, Liddy says he believed he was going to be killed on orders from the White House for failure to break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington.

The book also alleges Liddy was planning to kill newspaper columnist Jack Anderson because Anderson had published information which reportedly implicated a U.S. agent abroad.

But the plan was vetoed by Howard Hunt, Liddy's superior in the special White House political sabotage unit.

Liddy says an idea to drop LSD into Daniel Ellsberg's soup at a dinner party was foiled when White House aide Charles Colson delayed in approving the plan. The idea was to discredit the former Pentagon guerrilla war specialist who leaked classified documents on the conduct of the war in Vietnam.

Liddy, the son of a Manhattan attorney and a Fordham Law School graduate, became an FBI agent, then quit to join his father's firm. After he campaigned for Richard M. Nixon in 1968 he was given a job in the Treasury Department where he was recruited for service with the "plumbers," so called because they were supposed to plug news leaks.

Liddy, who refused to plea bargain with prosecutors, served 52 months in jail, longer than any of the other 25 conspirators. He was released in September 1977.

He recounts in the book that while in prison, he persuaded guards to ban TV viewing after midnight because it disturbed his sleep. Liddy says that when he suspected prisoners were going to kill him, he armed himself with the guards' permission before turning in for the night.

"I lay down fully dressed except for shoes, and arranged the covers over me. In my right hand, lying alongside the right side of my body under the blanket, was the big ax handle. I could sweep that handle out in a second and knock two men off their feet by striking directly at their knees. In my left hand was the knife, and the pipe under my pillow. I was ready."

He wrote: "The attack never materialized. No one wanted to be the first to die. They were afraid, never having learned what I taught myself as a boy: defeat the fear of death and welcome the death of fear."

Liddy was known as the "Sphinx" because of his refusal to talk or testify about his role on the White House "plumbers" squad, but said he now felt "a debt of history" to tell his story.

Proceeds of the book may also help pay debts still remaining from his legal defense and from his five years in a federal prison in Allenwood, Pa.

TV repairman held in 'lipstick murder'

DALLAS (AP) — A television repairman convicted twice of sex offenses and once for impersonating an FBI agent has been charged in the strangulation death of a young lawyer's wife, whose body was found near a message scrawled in rosy pink lipstick on a bedroom mirror.

Donald Wayne Hemphill, 30, remained in Dallas County jail today in lieu of $500,000 bond set by Night Magistrate Tom Boardman. He was arrested early Sunday by homicide detectives and arraigned on murder charges before Boardman later in the day.

Investigators said Hemphill had made several repair calls at the Martinson home in the weeks preceding the slaying.

The nude body of Debra Martinson, 28, was found March 31 by her 32-year-old husband in their fashionable North Dallas home.

A macrame rope was wrapped around her neck and her husband, Don Martinson, found a neat trail of her clothing nearby.

The note "Now we are even Don" was emblazoned in lipstick on a bedroom mirror, causing the case to be called the "lipstick murder."

While police said they had not yet determined why the message was left, they theorized it was designed to throw investigators off the trail.

"It's kind of strange, really," said police spokesman Bob Shaw. "Mrs. Martinson's husband's name was Don, but so is the suspect's."

Martinson was not available for police interviews until some time after the slaying, homicide investigators said. He later hired noted Dallas criminal attorney Phil Burleson, who told reporters he gave police records that might aid the investigation.

Officers said Sunday those records showed Hemphill was called to the Martinson's residence March 10 to fix a television antenna. The documents also showed Hemphill returned on March 14 because he previously did not have all the necessary parts, police said.

The records indicated a third appointment on March 22 was not kept, investigators said.

Police records revealed Hemphill previously had served three separate prison terms, Shaw said.

In September 1972, Hemphill was sentenced to two years in the Oklahoma state prison for indecent exposure. He was returned to the prison in August 1974 to serve a three-year sentence for the same conviction, Shaw said.

Hemphill was assessed a three-year term at the Federal Correctional Institution in Texarkana for impersonating a federal officer, he said.

An autopsy indicated Mrs. Martinson, a nurse and mother of a 15-month-old son, had been dead four to eight hours when her husband found her March 31 after he returned from jury duty. Medical examiners said later she died of strangulation and her hands and wrists probably had been tied.

Environmentalists shift focus to energy

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP) — Leaders of many of America's major environmental and conservation organizations say they are shifting their focus from pollution to energy as the primary issue for the 1980s.

Such a shift, they say, is crucial to harnessing the public support necessary to continue the environmental campaigns of the 1970s.

"The big guys can outspend us at every turn, but as soon as we can outvote them we're going to start winning," said Brock Evans, associate director of the Sierra Club.

Evans was among 280 environmental leaders attending an Environmental Decade Conference this past weekend at a YMCA camp in the Colorado Rockies. Also present were ranking officials of Friends of the Earth, the Environmental Defense Fund, the Conservation Foundation and scores of other organizations.

The conference, coming 10 years after passage of the National Environmental Protection Act, was designed to give members of the decentralized environmental movement a chance to map informal strategies for the 1980s.

The conferees made no formal policy decisions as they trudged through a blustery spring weekend wrapped in bush jackets and ski parkas. And they came no closer to a national movement than their fierce independence has allowed in the past.

The only specific action taken at the conference was the drafting of a letter to President Carter asking him to state publicly his opposition to granting the proposed Energy Mobilization Board power to waive existing environmental standards to expedite energy projects. Congress still is debating the issue.

Other issues were raised at the three-day conference, but energy and energy conservation repeatedly surfaced as the No. 1 priority for the coming decade.

The energy challenge must be met in the 1980s or the world economy will be unsustainable, conference participants warned. Several speakers talked of an "either-or" choice — save the world now or don't save it.

Many of the environmentalists suggested technological ways to solve energy woes, favoring "renewables" like solar energy and fuels made from agricultural products.

More extensive development of nuclear power, coal, oil and gas were rejected by speaker after speaker because of their negative impacts.

54 persons die in Brazilian crash

FLORIANOPOLIS, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian jetliner crashed in a rainstorm and exploded, killing 54 of those aboard. But authorities said four people survived because they were thrown clear of the plane before it exploded.

Transbrasil Airlines said all 50 passengers and eight crewmembers aboard the Boeing 727 were Brazilians.

An airline spokesman said investigators had not yet determined the cause of the Saturday night crash, but that a mechanical failure was highly improbable, because the commander of the plane did not report having any problems. He said "probably it was just the bad weather that caused it."

It was not yet known whether workers had recovered the plane's black-box flight recorder.

A doctor at the Caridade Hospital, where the three men and one woman survivors were being treated, said they had been sitting at the front of the plane when it crashed.

"They told us that the plane hit the ground four times before the final crash and explosion," Dr. Luis Antonio said. "They were expelled from the plane and that saved their lives."

He said the men were doing "relatively well," but that the woman was in "more serious" condition.

"She has burns over 50 percent of her body, several broken bones, vascular problems and other difficulties," Antonio said, adding the woman would be moved 740 miles north to Rio de Janeiro for further treatment.

Airline officials said the plane was on its daily flight from Fortaleza in northern Brazil to Porto Alegre at Brazil's southern tip when it crashed shortly before a scheduled stop at the coastal city of Florianopolis.

This city of 150,000 is ringed by mountains and sits on an island linked to the mainland by two bridges.

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas— If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself! Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at no risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. Adv.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Report cites greed as cause for increase

WASHINGTON — A confidential report on gasoline prices prepared by the staff of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., belies the pious protestations of the oil industry that the beating Americans took at the gas pumps last year was the result of short supplies and increased costs triggered by the Iranian revolution.

There was a shortage, all right — but it was artificially induced by massive hoarding of available oil supplies by the oil companies and major customers, plus a drop in production of domestic petroleum, the Kennedy report claims.

As for the steep rise in prices — an average of 19.4 cents a gallon in the first six months of 1979 — less than one-third of the increase could be charged to higher costs of crude oil, the report charges.

The Kennedy study, still unreleased, more than eight months after its completion, quotes from a document submitted to President Carter last year by the Department of Energy, titled "Report to the President on the Activities of Oil Companies Affecting Gasoline Supplies."

The DOE "noted several factors" that created the gas lines, according to the Kennedy report. Among these were "conservative stock management by refiners," a drop in U.S. production, "increased jet fuel yields," problems in the allocation system and a drop in the U.S. share of international crude.

But the Kennedy report adds a factor that DOE somehow overlooked — "the abnormal secondary and tertiary stockpiling of gasoline" — a claim it says is supported by "a large body of circumstantial evidence."

Three examples of this evidence were listed by the Kennedy report: "1. Several brokers and jobbers have told us when they attempted to rent gasoline space in various areas throughout the U.S., they could not find any storage space to rent."

"2. Many large industrial users of gasoline, such as newspapers and car rental agencies, have acknowledged that they greatly increased their stocks for fear of a physical gasoline shortage which would have had a devastating economic impact on them, and

"3. A professor doing research on the gasoline lines found that gasoline stations kept more gasoline in storage during this year than ever before."

Noting that demand for gas was up while data such as highway toll receipts showed that travel was down, the Kennedy staff report deduced: "Either consumers ... changed their driving habits, or between consumption (highway travel) and demand (withdrawal from primary stocks) someone was abnormally stockpiling gasoline."

Turning to the price hikes, the Kennedy report quotes internal DOE memoranda and other sources to shoot down the Carter administration and Big Oil claims that the increases

CHARLEY REESE

U.S. economic disaster will change lifestyles

The mail is full of newsletters and the stores full of books advising people on how to survive the coming hard times. All of them assume you are well off.

But what about the wage-earner who has a home, a modest savings account, and a stack of monthly bills? If you are in that category, you're in no position to open Swiss bank accounts, horde Kruggerands or invest in gold mining stocks. What can you do to protect yourself from the economic winter storm?

Well, first, you can understand that you are not as bad off as you might think. If you have no investment in stocks, you don't have to worry about a stock market crash. If you are not buying and selling municipal bonds, you don't have to fret about the bond market. If you have no great horde of gold or silver, you don't have to worry about price changes in those markets. In other words, the advantage of having less is having less to worry about losing.

Don't laugh. Mental attitude is extremely important. A friend of mine lost $250,000 in the stock market in 1975. In real terms, he was still extremely well-off. He still had $200,000 in stocks, a solid business, a fine home; yet, he darn near ruined his health grieving over his loss. His mind was so tightly focused on what he lost, he couldn't see what he still had.

The majority of Americans have an enormous economic margin. What we really need are shelter, food, some clothes, basic transportation and access to medical care. The wage earner has just as good a chance to hang on to those as the investment types.

Your goal should be the same as the rich man. All of these how-to-survive books are preaching liquidity which in practical terms means giving yourself the greatest flexibility to adapt to changing circumstances.

The way for you to do that is to get as close to being debt-free as you possibly can. Pay off those debts as fast as you can and don't take on any more.

The economy can do only one of two things: continue to inflate or deflate. If it continues to inflate, your income will be reduced in terms of what each dollar will buy. That means the cost of basic necessities will continue to consume a larger and larger share of your paycheck, leaving less to spend on non-necessities. If you obligate your "excess" income, inflation will eventually push you into an unbearable situation.

If the economy deflates, there is the danger of a temporary job loss. If you have only housing, food and clothing to provide, chances are you can stay afloat. It's the credit payments that devastate families when the breadwinner gets laid off.

For the same reason, if you own a home that's paid for or has an old mortgage with those wonderfully low monthly payments, hang on to it. Now is not a good time to be selling your home, job hopping or taking off to the Sun Belt with only vague expectations that jobs and cheap housing will be available. It's much better to weather hard times among old friends and established relationships.

Finally, beware of the misconception that it's a good thing to buy on credit during inflation. That is only true if you buy an appreciating asset on credit with reasonable interest rates and if you can be assured of the continued cash flow to pay for it and if you can afford to hang on to it long enough to realize a gain. That is mostly a game for the big money guys.

What most consumers buy are depreciating assets — things which wear out or are consumed and lose their value faster than you can pay for them. If your cash flow is cut by a lay-off or your purchasing power is eroded by inflation, you will never be able to sell cars, TVs, stereos, furniture and swimming pools for more than a fraction of what you owe on them.

That's why the best strategy for hard times is to get out of debt and stay out of debt. If you do that, you'll weather any storm. Times will never get so hard that there won't be some work that needs doing and in our great country with its fertile land and good climate, nobody need fear starving.

That's one of the blessings of being an American — the worst any economic disaster can do is change our lifestyle, not kill us.

Stop the gravy train

Three years ago when Congress was studying and implementing reforms to bring the Social Security system back from the brink of bankruptcy, the House Ways and Means Committee voted to require universal coverage starting in 1982. But federal workers, who have their own private retirement program, bitterly opposed this and successfully lobbied a delaying tactic. The reform was way-laid by an amendment providing for a two-year study.

That study, carried forward under the aegis of HEW, has recently been released and its findings do far more than make a case for placing some 7 million workers now outside Social Security into the system. The change is mandated.

Amazingly, the study found that 70 percent of the 1 million civil service retirees are receiving Social Security benefits, or will when they are old enough — in addition to benefits under their own federal or state retirement plans. The study estimates the average windfall for retired federal workers who get Social Security is $1,050 annually.

A large majority of these double-dippers qualify for Social Security as well as government pensions because they worked part time outside their government jobs, or before or after coming under civil service. The study points out that it was possible in 1978 for a 65-year-old retired civil servant who paid less than $70 during his lifetime in Social Security to qualify for SS benefits for 20 years or even longer.

The windfall benefits paid out of the Social Security system to double-dipping government retirees is calculated to reach as high as $1 billion annually — a ripoff of all the 100 million non-government workers who are being taxed at higher and higher rates to keep the system afloat.

Obviously the answer is for Congress to require civil servants to live by the same rules as the taxpayers who support them in this lavish way. This, however, will not be easy. The federal workers' unions have raised a war chest of more than $3 million to fight all efforts to combine the pension systems. And, predictably, the Carter administration has put as much distance as possible between itself and the report's recommendations, disavowing any plan to change Social Security coverage.

It is plain to see that government workers have a lot of political clout or they would not have been permitted to ride their pension gravy train this long. But the taxpayers who have been paying the freight for government workers' pensions as well as their windfall Social Security benefits should be able to force this overdue reform if they became sufficiently aroused.

Of course, the taxpayers don't have a powerful lobby in Washington and a rich war chest. They must rely on their representatives in Congress. And that's been the trouble.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, April 14, the 105th day of 1980. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 14, 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at the Ford Theater in Washington. Lincoln died the next morning.

On this date: In 1775, Philadelphia Quakers under Benjamin Franklin organized the first society for the abolition of slavery.

In 1912, the luxury ocean liner Titanic struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic. The ship sank 2½ hours later, and 1,500 people drowned.

In 1945, in the Pacific war, American B-29 bombers pounded Tokyo, damaging Japan's Imperial Palace.

In 1971, President Richard Nixon eased an American trade embargo on China, permitting export of non-strategic goods to that communist country.

Ten years ago, the Apollo 13 spacecraft aborted its moon mission after an on-board explosion and headed back to Earth.

Five years ago, South Vietnamese soldiers held off the communists at the key provincial capital of Xuan Loc.

Last year, President Carter declared a state of emergency in Mississippi following severe storms, tornadoes and flooding.

Today's birthdays: Actress Julie Christie is 39. Baseball star Pete Rose is 39. Actor Rod Steiger is 55. Actor Sir John Gielgud is 76.

INSIDE REPORT:

Kennedy tax reduction is source of trouble for Reagan

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — During a scathing critique of Ronald Reagan's accuracy on the campaign stump, the CBS Evening News of April 3 repeated an increasingly familiar accusation about a 16-year-old tax cut that has become a source of double trouble for Reagan as probable Republican presidential nominee.

The question seems ludicrous on its face: Did Reagan exaggerate the size of the so-called Kennedy tax reduction passed by Congress in 1964? Behind this seeming irrelevance are efforts both to blunt Reagan's most effective economic issue and portray him as a simpleton incapable of being president. What's more, the controversy is disrupting a Reagan campaign staff wracked by repeated purges.

New York lawyer William Casey, Reagan's campaign manager since the New Hampshire primary, is determined to end at least the internal side of the controversy. That is why he will dine here Tuesday with Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, Reagan's policy coordinator and advocate of his tax-cut strategy.

A determined Bill Casey, who was directing American espionage agents in wartime Germany before many Reagan political operatives were born, may impose order on the economic feudists. But his more important, more difficult mission is to prepare Reagan for tax and other adversarial questions that he is now mulling.

Kemp late last year sold Reagan on the Kemp-Roth tax bill, which would cut income tax rates 30 percent across the board over three years. But not until Reagan's back-to-the-wall February campaign in New Hampshire did it become the cutting edge of Kemp's direction. One spot compares Kemp-Roth with President John F. Kennedy's massive tax reduction; a burst of prosperity followed its passage in 1964 after JFK's death.

Evans

Only after Reagan's New Hampshire victory, where he won votes from blue-collar workers perhaps attracted by his invocation of Jack Kennedy's tax ideology, did this become contentious. His remaining Republican foes, George Bush and John Anderson, began blasting Reagan's tax policy as irresponsible.

On March 16 over ABC's "Issues and Answers," Reagan was asked about attributing the "30 percent" tax cut to Kennedy. "I don't remember saying that because I honestly don't know what the rate of the Kennedy tax cut was," he replied. Soon thereafter, Time magazine reported "the actual Kennedy tax cut was only 20 percent." On March 24, Democratic Sen. William Proxmire claimed the Kennedy tax cut "provided the basis for the worst inflation this nation has ever suffered."

A much larger audience was exposed to more of this on the April 3 CBS Evening News. The Treasury was quoted as putting the 1964 tax cut at 19 percent, not at Reagan's 30 percent — a double thrust at Reagan's veracity and economic sense.

All this riled up senior Reagan supporters suspicious of Jack Kemp personally and of Kemp-Roth ideologically. Casey wanted to know what that Kennedy tax cut was — 30 percent? Twenty percent? Eighteen percent? Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, Reagan's national chairman, was disturbed by Proxmire's attack and wanted Kemp's reply.

Computing the size of the Kennedy tax cut has become an exercise in how to make Ronald Reagan look bad. Carefully briefed after his pathetic bobble on "Issues and Answers," he did on April 3 correctly state that the 1964 cut was 23 percent in the top bracket and 30 percent in the lowest bracket. CBS came back with the Treasury's 19 percent figure. In fact, that figure is a meaningless average; JFK tax bracket cuts ranged from 30 percent to 13.6 percent (though for very poor taxpayers, cut off the rolls, the tax cut was 100 percent).

More relevant is the economic connection between this long-ago tax reform and today's proposal. Responding to Laxalt about Proxmire's attack, Kemp said that blaming the inflationary 1968 budget deficit on the 1964 tax cut is "pure nonsense."

Nor do Kemp's critics inside the Reagan campaign view tax reduction as an inflationary ogre. Rather, Reagan's old hands from California would prefer to avoid controversy in a campaign they see flying high. It is younger political operatives who regard the tax cut as Reagan's invaluable populist weapon. Frank Donatelli, running the Wisconsin campaign, insisted that the Reagan-JFK tax cut spot — shelved nationwide — be televised before the March 25 primary there. Donatelli credits it with Reagan's victory.

Bill Casey's real problem is not to muzzle Kemp or Kemp's critics but to prepare Reagan to defend his tax proposals. While absurdly unable to remember how he himself had described the JFK tax cut, Reagan's greater sin was inability to handle the arguments of ABC's John Laurence on "Issues and Answers" that the Kennedy reduction came at "a different time" of economic recession.

In his reply to Laxalt, Kemp states the tax cut would be just as therapeutic now, pointing out there is "more slack in the economy now than there was in the early 1960s." Unless Reagan becomes familiar with such defenses, his campaign's cutting edge will be blunted and White House strategists will come closer to switching the spotlight from Jimmy Carter's competence to Ronald Reagan's brains.

Thunderstorms sweep Southern states

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

Texans shivered in near-freezing temperatures and French Quarter bar patrons were flooded out in New Orleans after packs of thunderstorms churned across the South, spawning destructive twisters and torrential rains that killed at least seven people.

"Noah said it's got to stop sometime. We're still looking for the dove with the olive branch," said F.M. Pearce, civil defense director in Louisiana's St. Tammany Parish, as the Pearl River rose.

But Jefferson Parish, New Orleans' most populous suburb, was under as much as three feet of water early today after nearly 14.5 inches of rain fell in three days.

Police warned that poisonous water snakes might flee swamps for higher ground, and two persons were treated after being bitten by fire ants from a floating colony.

Civil Defense officials in Gulfport, Miss., estimated $10 million damage after a twister that ripped off roofs, shattered windows, wrecked airplanes and demolished a community center.

Rivers were rising under 6.5 inches of rain in 36 hours, and Wade Guice, director of civil defense for Harrison County, said he expected 50 homes to be flooded before water receded.

"The rain was so heavy you could hardly breathe," Guice said. About 200 houses were damaged, either by flooding or wind, Guice said, adding 17 persons were injured, none seriously.

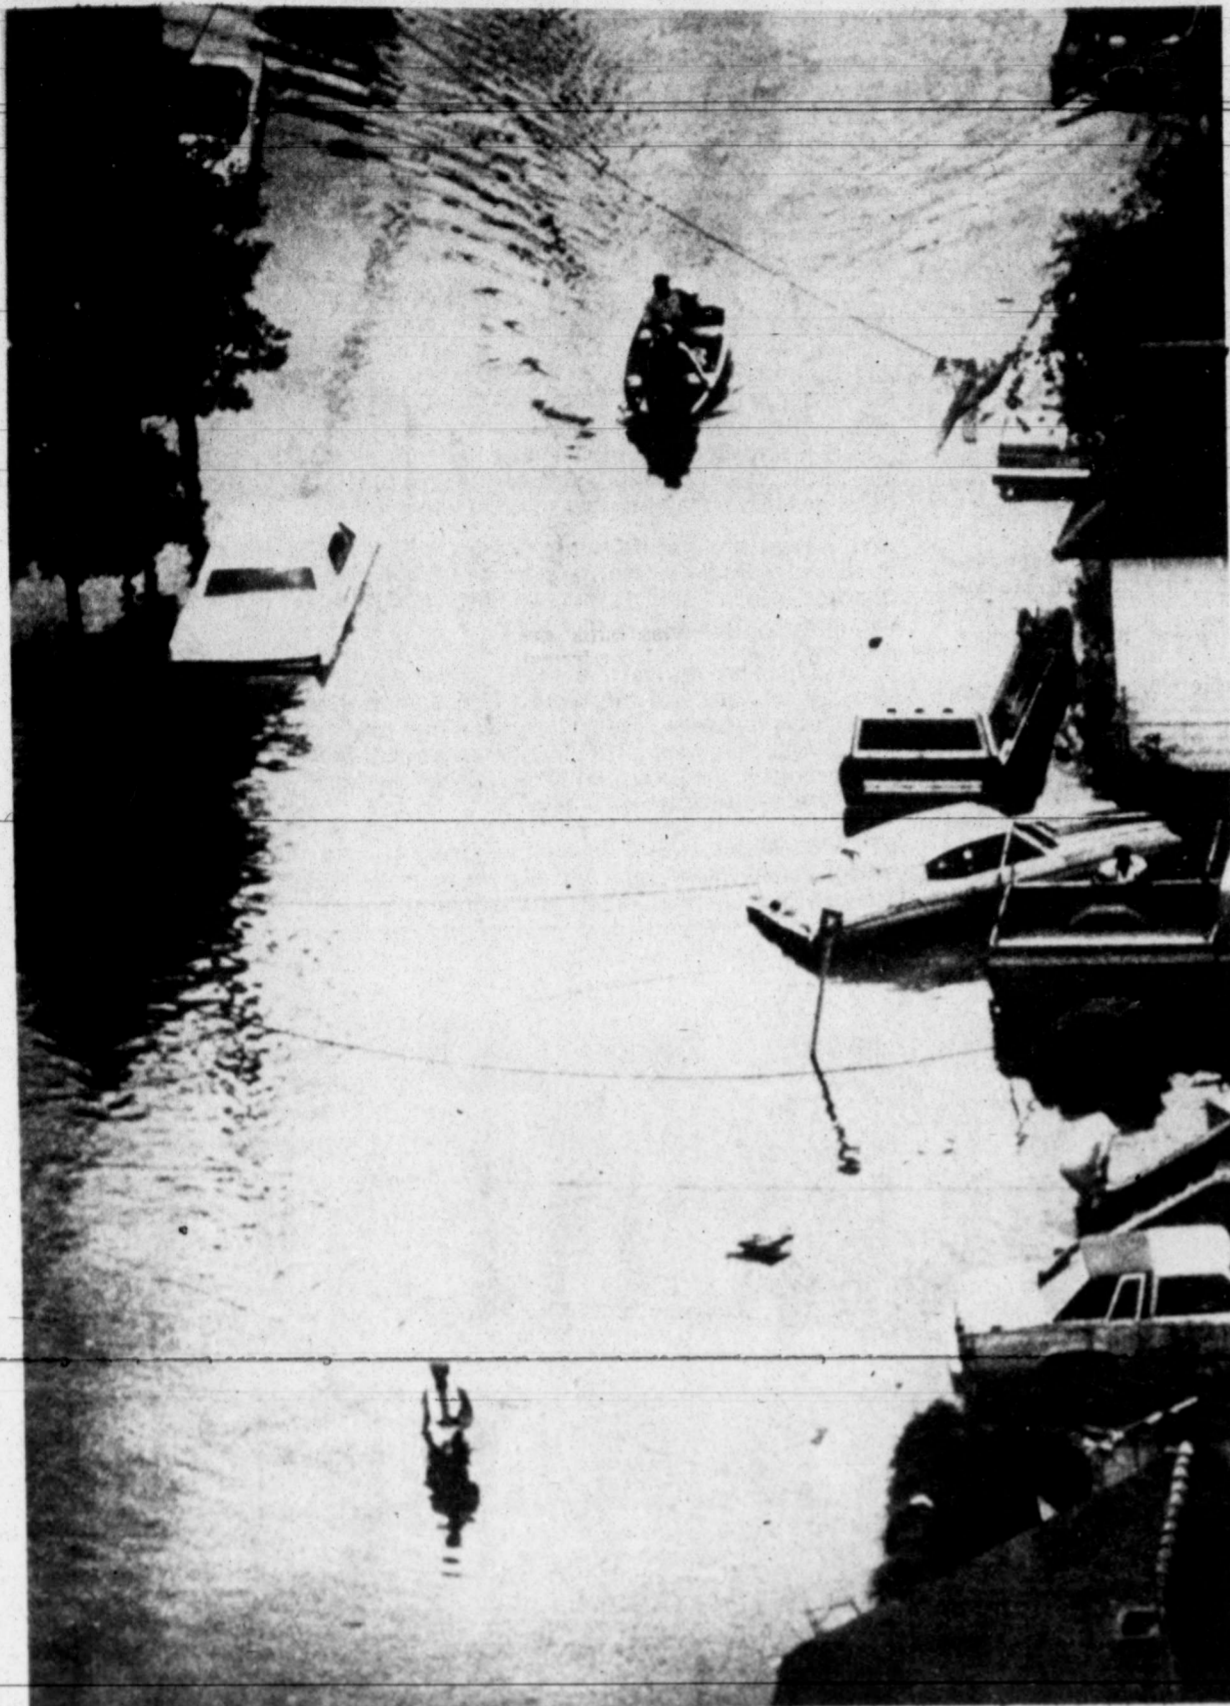

Authorities declared a state of emergency in Gulfport and imposed a 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew. Additional police and deputies were called in to patrol the city.

In Jackson, residents began packing in anticipation of a repeat of last year's Easter flood that drove 17,000 people from their homes. But officials said flooding would not be extensive.

Gov. Brad Dye was among those who worked into the night packing sandbags around their homes.

"Everybody is either moving out or they're moving up," said his wife, Donna. "You can hardly get down the street, there's so much traffic."

Police Sgt. Perry Martin said as many as 120 families might have to be evacuated, but "only a few houses will get water to where people will have to put their furniture up."

This time, it's April snow

By The Associated Press

April's showers were changing to snow in the Midwest early today after spring thunderstorms turned into torrential rains and twisters over much of the deep South, claiming at least seven lives.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected to reach from the eastern Gulf Coast region through the Tennessee and Ohio valleys and to the Atlantic Coast and lower Michigan.

Scattered rain and some snow was forecast from Arkansas to Illinois and rain was expected across the northern and central Pacific Coast.

Early today, rain fell over Georgia and Louisiana, adding a burden to rivers and streams swollen by as much as 10 inches of rain over the weekend. Flood waters were blamed for deaths in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana and tornado damage was reported through the South on Sunday.

Snow was reported early today over Arkansas and southeastern

Missouri. Light rain blanketed parts of Ohio and the mid-Atlantic region while cloudy skies stretched over the Midwest and generally clear skies were reported over the West.

More storm than air museum

By DEBORAH MESCE

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — Bradley Air Museum officials were just getting comfortable with the idea of charging admission to their display of vintage aircraft. Then the tornado struck.

The twister, a freak storm for these parts, ripped through Windsor Locks, Windsor and Suffield on Oct. 3, claiming 3 lives and causing destruction estimated at more than $250 million.

The force of the winds flipped aircraft weighing up to 100 tons and ripped wings and tail sections from their fuselage. A few planes, including a C-124 that could carry 100 fully-equipped troops, were reduced to heaps of twisted, crumpled metal.

These days, the museum's few visitors are more interested in seeing the destruction than what's left of the nation's fourth largest aircraft collection.

"It's more of a storm museum than it is an air museum," says Philip O'Keefe, museum director. "It's a graphic illustration of the awesome power of Mother Nature."

Twenty-three of 63 aircraft that were on display were destroyed. Most of those beyond salvage were among 30 in the outdoor exhibit, while many of the aircraft inside a hangar escaped serious damage.

O'Keefe estimated the cost of the devastation at more than $10 million, but added that historic value made some of the destroyed aircraft priceless. Some were one of a kind, he said.

One of the museum's earliest pieces — an 1896 hang-glider built and flown by a 14-year-old boy who'd seen the plans for it in Popular Mechanics magazine — survived the storm.

"As of the day of the tornado, things were really looking up," said museum conservator Don Murray. "It was starting to look more like an exhibit than a display. We actually got to the point that we felt we were worth what we were charging."

Aeronautics is a major industry in Connecticut. United Technologies, based in Hartford, includes the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft and Sikorsky Aircraft divisions. Nearby are Kaman Aerospace and other companies in the aeronautical business.

The non-profit Connecticut Aeronautical Historical Association had been collecting aircraft since 1959. It opened the museum in 1967, but the display is now outdoors only and open just on weekends.

The 60,000 visitors a year have dropped to about 100 to 150 on a good weekend, O'Keefe said. Admission of $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children has been reduced to 99 cents for all "to keep the wolf from the door," he said.

A fall fund drive raised $75,000 to supplement the meager donations.

Carter seeking support for Olympic games boycott

By The Associated Press

Fresh from a home-court victory, backers of a boycott of the Summer Olympics today turned their attention to an international effort to determine how many countries will join the United States and stay away from the Moscow Games.

The U.S. Olympic Committee supported President Carter and voted by a margin of 2-to-1 Saturday in Colorado Springs, Colo., not to field an Olympic team for the first time in modern history.

And Douglas F. Roby, one of two Americans on the International Olympic Committee, said the organization responsible for the Games might cancel the competition if the U.S. wins the support of major nations.

Albania, Honduras, China, Chile, Egypt, Haiti, Kenya, Malawi, Malaysia, Papua New Guinea, Sudan, Yugoslavia and Zaire have announced they will not attend the Games — some of them in support of Carter and some of them for anti-Soviet reasons of their own.

Others have indicated they will follow an American lead and many European nations are awaiting a pan-European stand.

"If they can get the important ones, it is my opinion the IOC will cancel the Games," said Roby, mentioning Great Britain, France, West Germany, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. "The IOC doesn't want to see any half-baked Games."

The Games may be near another setback. The New York Daily News reported today that NBC will announce a decision to pull out of its contract to broadcast the Moscow Olympics. It bid $87 million for the rights, and most of the money already has been paid.

The Daily News, quoting industry sources, said NBC executives are arranging alternate programming for the July 19-Aug. 4 period. An announcement was expected today or Tuesday, the newspaper said.

Insurance would cover most of the network's investment, officials have said previously.

New Zealand opposes a boycott, and the British Olympic Association, despite strong government support for Carter, has decided to field a team. But Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said he believes an effective boycott will emerge.

Today, West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said the Bonn government will recommend that the West German Olympic Committee not send a team. The committee meets next month.

Koos Idenburg, chairman of the Netherlands Olympic Committee, called the USOC decision, "a black day in the history of the Olympic movement," and said he feared it could have a "snowball effect" on other nations. He said a decision on whether to attend the Games will be made May 7.

Kurt Moeller, president of Denmark's Olympic Committee repeated his panel's determination to field a team — unless all Common Market nations follow the U.S. lead.

"President Carter has done international sports great harm which it could take 10 years to repair," he said.

The fielding of teams is left to the national Olympic Committees, which are independent and responsible only to the IOC.

The vote of the USOC House of Delegates came after Vice President Walter Mondale presented Carter's arguments. Carter had said the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan threatened national security and argued that a boycott would embarrass a government that hoped to use the Games as a propaganda tool.

"I feel a lot of delegates voted with inflated data, and with some intimidation," said Fred Newhouse, a gold and silver medalist in track four years ago.

Three-time Boston Marathon winner Bill Rodgers said the USOC members should "lose their jobs because they are supposed to be impervious to such influences as politics."

But John Crist, a decathlon competitor, said, "I'm more willing to accept the boycott than I am to go to war."

Meanwhile, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Sunday that Soviet generals in Afghanistan are asking for more troops, and the Soviet news agency Tass said the Carter administration had used "unprecedented pressure and blackmail" against the USOC.

Italy's largest circulation newspaper, Corriere della Sera of Milan, said the USOC vote "probably represents the first step toward the end of the Olympic Games" by limiting interest and content.

"I cannot imagine Olympic Games without U.S. athletes' participation, as they always were the main protagonists giving high contribution to the Olympic ideals," said Primo Nebiolo, vice president of the Italian Olympic Committee, which will send a team.

But Japanese officials, nervous about relations with the United States over imports and defense issues, indicated that nation would join the boycott. Talks between the government and the Japan Olympic Committee are to begin this week. JOC Chairman Katsuji Shibata said the group would like to hold a decision until the IOC meets April 21 and after West Germany's committee meets in May.

F. Don Miller, USOC executive director, said the national sports governing bodies have rejected any attempt at holding alternative games, although U.S. Olympic teams still will be selected.

Gandhi escapes assassination try

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi escaped assassination today when a knife hurled at her in a crowd outside the Parliament building narrowly missed her, a New Delhi police official said.

Three police officers overpowered the assailant and arrested him, and he was charged with attempted murder, Deputy Police Commissioner Gurcharan Singh said.

He was identified as Ram Bulchand Lalwani of Baroda, in western India, but his motive was not immediately learned.

Lalwani was about six feet away from Mrs. Gandhi when he threw the stiletto-type knife with a four-inch blade at her, Singh said. The knife grazed one of her police bodyguards, but he was not injured, Singh reported.

The attempt was made on the 62-year-old prime minister as she was on her way to her car after attending a ceremony in the Parliament building in honor of the late Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, a leader of the Untouchables, the lowest caste of Hindu society.

Today was the 88th anniversary of his birth, and Mrs. Gandhi placed floral garlands on his statue.

During the ceremony, Untouchable leaders asked her to declare the birthday a public holiday. She agreed and issued the order effective immediately, even though it was late morning and all offices had opened for business.

After the attack, Mrs. Gandhi was driven to her official residence and apparently went ahead with her schedule of appointments.

New Liberian rulers plan trials

By The Associated Press

Liberia's new military rulers announced today that they were putting senior officials of the late President William Tolbert's regime on trial at once on charges of high treason, corruption, violation of civil and human rights and misuse of public office.

Radio Monrovia said a six-man military court named by the new president, 28-year-old former Master Sgt. Samuel K. Doe, was starting its work today, two days after Doe's coup in the West African nation.

The number of former officials and their identities were not announced. But the broadcast denied a report by Liberian diplomats in West Germany that the rebels beheaded Tolbert's son, A. B. Tolbert, who was considered a possible successor to his father.

Radio Monrovia said the younger Tolbert "is still at large and there is a search out for him."

The diplomats also reported that the rebels shot and killed the late president's son-in-law, Defense Minister Burrell Holder, and Justice Minister Joseph Chesson. Radio Monrovia made no mention of this report.

No resistance was reported in Monrovia, the capital. But diplomats there said the new government closed the borders and the airport, declared a dusk-to-dawn curfew and arrested a number of Tolbert's associates, including his wife, Victoria, and Chief Justice James A. Pierre.

Tolbert, 66, was reported shot and killed early Saturday morning in an army assault on the presidential palace led by Doe.

Doe, unknown outside Liberia, proclaimed himself president and named a 19-member cabinet which includes seven soldiers and the leader of a banned leftist party who was jailed last month after an abortive coup attempt.

Tolbert had been president since 1971, succeeding William S. Tubman on his death after 27 years as chief executive. Both were members of the true whig party, which has ruled Liberia for 100 years and is dominated by the descendants of the freed American slaves who founded the country in 1847.

These "americo-liberians" constitute only 3 percent of the population of 1.7 million people, but they have controlled the country and given a warm welcome to some $500 million in American investments. The chief American investor is the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., which has a concession on a million acres, and there are about 5,100 Americans in the country.

The state department said all the Americans were believed safe and the U.S. government would continue normal diplomatic relations with the new government.

Doe, who calls his government the people's redemption council of the armed forces of Liberia, said in a broadcast he overthrew Tolbert because of his "continuous failure" to deal with the nation's problems and to end corruption. His coup had the support of some of the army's generals, but one of his first acts was to order an immediate shakeup of the military and to raise the monthly wage of army privates to $250. A broadcast said the minimum wage for other government workers would be $200.

Peter Mills, a member of the British parliament who left Liberia the day before the coup, told reporters in London he "sensed the army was all over the place.... Opposition members I spoke to hinted that things were not well."

Last month Tolbert foiled an attempted coup by the Leftist People's Progressive Party, banned the party and arrested 73 leaders and supporters of the party. They were to have gone on trial today on treason charges.

Doe named one of the 73, Gabriel Baccus Mathews, to be his foreign minister. Other members of the party were given cabinet posts, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

More than 30,000 mourners clogged Bedford Ave., in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, New York Sunday for the funeral of Rabbi Levi Grunwald, 86, who died Saturday. Grunwald was among the first leaders of the Hasidic sects to come to America and help make it possible for his own followers to come to America and be able to worship according to their strict standards. The Rabbi's will directed that no eulogy be made at his funeral because he felt he was not worthy. (AP Lasrphoto)

Tito has developed hepatitis

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Broz Tito's liver is deteriorating and he has developed hepatitis, his doctors announced today. The eight-doctor panel said Yugoslavia's 87-year-old leader was suffering "damage of the liver which has shown deterioration in the past days, accompanied by hepatitis." The bulletin was the first to mention liver trouble since Tito first entered Ljubljana's clinical center 94 days ago. But the announcement said the liver condition had been present for a number of days. Tito is also suffering from kidney failure, heart weakness, pneumonia and a tendency toward internal bleeding. The medical panel said the pneumonia, which was first reported Feb. 23, was showing no signs of spreading. The advisory made no mention of any of the other ailments. The doctors continued to describe Tito's condition as "very grave" and said they were continuing intensive treatment to keep him alive. The description of his condition and the reference to intensive treatment used what has become standard phrasing in the daily government medical bulletins, whose accuracy was thrown into question by disclosure of the liver infection.

The new arrival weighed 7 pounds, 7 ounces and "will probably be skiing and playing basketball in a couple of years," according to the proud father, a former New Mexico State University basketball star and now assistant athletic director at the United States Air Force Academy.

DEAR ABBY

Readers' defense takes bull by horns

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in protest of your ignorant evaluation of a time-honored art which you labeled "the brutal and bloody business of torturing and killing animals for sport and entertainment — bullfighting."

What an outrageously ethnocentric remark! Bullfighting first appeared as early as 2,000 years before Christ. Since then it has flourished in Spain, Portugal and Latin America. For centuries, kings and noblemen as well as commoners have involved themselves in that sport.

Abby, as a foreigner, it is unfair for you to criticize the customs of another country. In Spain, bullfighting is considered an art, not merely a sport. When you say the animals are "tortured," it shows that you don't know anything about bullfighting. The bulls used in the arena are bred especially for their ferocity to kill men! It takes enormous skill and courage for a 175-pound man armed with only a cape and sword to face a wild bull weighing 2,000 pounds. And when the time comes to kill the animal, the men often kill the bull with a single thrust of the sword! (Tell me that chasing a fox with a pack of trained dogs, riding on horseback and using guns to kill is more sporting! The same can be said of your hunting birds and animals!)

In conclusion, I wish to inform you that in most cases the meat of the bulls killed in the arena is sold cheap to the city's poor or given to orphanages. — C. FERNANDEZ

DEAR C.: Many wrote to defend bullfighting. In fact, to my amazement, a high-school teacher of Spanish in Delavan, Ill., instructed the entire class to write to me to protest my answer and defend the "art" of bullfighting.

Read on more about the controversy:

DEAR ABBY: What have you against bullfighting? OK, so it's outlawed in the U.S. But how about the brutal and bloody sport that's making millions of dollars — called boxing?

Those in the ring are not animals, they are human beings, and they are in there to kill each other for sport, entertainment — AND MONEY! And when you get right down to it, ice hockey is a "brutal and bloody business," too. And so is football. Think about it, Abby. — NORTH DAKOTA FAN

DEAR FAN: I've thought about it, and I still disapprove of any sport (spectator or contact) in which blood (animal or human) is spilled.

DEAR ABBY: I must commend you for speaking out against bullfighting. Unfortunately, there are

MHS Choir will perform

"Music for Munching" will be provided for the Lunch Bunchers this Tuesday at 11:45 a.m. The Midland High School A Capella Choir is presenting a program for all tastes.

They will sing two numbers which placed the group in the first division of the Interscholastic League competition: "Erope est Dominus" and "Go Lovely Rose."

Don McCartney, choir director, said that the current nostalgic fascination for the '50s and '60s will be reflected in the "Golden Age of Rock and Roll" selections. And lest older eyebrows be raised, remember, the venerable Boston Pops performs now "all Beatie" concerts.

This mini-concert for the brown-baggers can be heard in the old American Legion Building, 206 S. Colorado Ave. Coffee is provided by Luby's Cafeteria.

Sponsors of the Lunch Bunch are the Friends of the Library, who purchased the initial record collection for the library. Annual Book Sale monies buy additional audio equipment.

Last Tuesday more than 100 Midlanders viewed with heightened interest Sue Snelson's slides on the news-making regions of Afghanistan, Russia and Mongolia. Her amusing and insightful comments on everyday life brought closer the reality of the happenings now on the TV news.

DAR chapter hears speaker

Dr. Gordon Bronitsky, assistant professor of anthropology at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin at Odessa, was the speaker for a meeting of the Lt. William Brewer Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution held at the Midland Woman's Club.

His subject was "Native Americans," and he spoke of the various Indian tribes and their culture.

Dr. Dorothy Wyvell, Mrs. Lee B. Park, Mrs. James V. Hardwick and Mrs. W. Earl Chapman gave reports from the state conference of the Texas Society, DAR, held in Austin in March. The regent, Mrs. John N. Parker announced that the chapter received a regent's certificate and been named to the Honor Roll. The "Constitution Week" and "Assistance to American Indians" committees also received certificates.

Mrs. S.N. Thams of Plymouth, Mich., was a guest. Hostesses were Mrs. Yale E. Key, Mrs. George Thomas and Mrs. Ernest J. Owens.

people in the world who believe it is good entertainment to watch dog-fights, cockfights, etc. There are even people who condone using live rabbits for training greyhounds (for dog racing). The rabbits are put onto the track with no chance of escaping, and although exhausted, the terrified creatures run until they are caught and torn to shreds!

There is absolutely no justification for these barbaric acts against animals. They demoralize human beings and lower us to the days of the gladiators when animals were pitted against each other as the crowd roared in excitement and amusement.

Keep up the good work, Abby. The world needs more people like you. — MS. JERI ZUPANCIC

DEAR ABBY: I don't see anything wrong with bullfighting. They feed the bulls well, let them live for years and then put them in the ring where they are killed instantly. I think putting animals in a zoo is more cruel. — SPANISH STUDENT

DEAR ABBY: In your country you fatten up your bulls, run them up a chute at the stockyards and hit them over the head with an ax before they become hamburger or steaks.

Your bulls have no chance to fight for their lives. Ours have. Ole! — MAD IN MEXICO

Rose Society sets meeting

Mrs. J.A. VanAuken, rose show chairman, will review the schedule and rules for entering the May Rose Show when the Midland Rose Society meets at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Midland Room at The Midland National Bank.

The Rose Show is scheduled May 4 and will be judged in accordance with the rules of the American Rose Society.

Anyone interested in entering roses or arrangements in the show are encouraged to attend this meeting.

'Family Day' featured during Family Life Week

EDITOR'S NOTE: In conjunction with Family Life Week, Family Services of Midland and Midland College are co-sponsoring a "Family Day" April 26 at Midland College.

This is the first in a five-part series which will examine all facets of the family relationship. Authors are members of the Family Services staff. The following is by Karen Wickwire, counselor, who will present a workshop on "Intimacy and Separateness—Where's the Balance."

By KAREN WICKWIRE

Much attention is being focused these days on communication in relationships. Books have been written on the subject, newspapers and magazines have done feature stories on it, and workshops have been started to improve it.

One reason for this increased interest in good communication lies in the fact that communication is the process by which intimacy is achieved. The need for intimacy resides in everyone and with increasing sociological changes in our society, it is becoming more and more difficult to achieve.

Many times partners in a relationship have very different ideas about what it means to be intimate. When partners do not meet the expectations of the other in regard to quality and quantity of time spent together, feelings of frustration, anger, emotional isolation and insecurity can ensue.

This workshop will explore the individual intimacy needs and expectations, communication skills and compromises.

The other side of the intimacy coin is separateness. The time we spend away from our partners, our interests and the values we form are all things that we bring to relationships to contribute to intimacy. This workshop will explore this side of the issue, also. We will discuss how the time we spend apart affects the intimacy of a relationship.

These issues, as well as others pertaining to intimacy, will be discussed. All interested persons, whether currently involved in a relationship or not, are invited to attend.

Losing my thick waist gave me back my modeling career.

Marilyn Minchen may not look as if she ever had a figure problem, but after 6 pregnancies and 7 children (one set of twins), she was getting pudgy around the waist and hips. And that just wouldn't do if she wanted to continue her work as a fashion model.

"Holding in your tummy gets to be very uncomfortable when you're modeling all day," Marilyn says with a laugh. "If a model doesn't fit the sample size B's, she's not going to be called often."

Never able to stick with exercising at home, Marilyn didn't like the idea of exercising in a class full of women either. Was there any other way to get her figure in shape again?

Her husband's gift to her for her 40th birthday last spring was the answer: she'd go to Pat Walker's.

The peaceful way to perfect your figure

Marilyn was immediately impressed with the serenity of her Pat Walker's salon. There's no hubbub... no gym atmosphere. Even when you're using the Symmetricon unit—Pat Walker's exclusive passive exerciser—you're in a private room. Two or three times a week, you relax for a half hour or more while the Symmetricon exercises and tones your body. It's no-sweat exercise, so you don't even change your clothes or muss your hair.

"The treatment rooms are cool, quiet, softly lit," Marilyn says, "I really appreciate the chance to lie back and think and relax. With a husband, 7 children, and a career, I need that kind of time to myself."

Sensible eating—not strict dieting

With 3 years of home economics in school, and lots of talks with pediatricians behind her, Marilyn thought she knew all she should about nutrition. But Pat Walker's taught her what combinations of food to eat, and when, to stay healthy and in good shape. Since she's been practicing Pat Walker's principles in her cooking, her husband has lost 26 unneeded pounds.

And Marilyn? Well, her husband said it best, "Marilyn, your waist is so tiny!" She's trimmed 11 1/2 inches in all the right places—3 1/2 inches from her tummy, the rest from her thighs. Happily, she's also lost 6 pounds and now weighs 126, ideal model weight for her 5 feet 9 inches. It's the best birthday gift she's ever had.

Maybe your weight problem is bigger than Marilyn's. Probably you're not worried about modeling—you just want to look good in your own clothes. That's fine with us. We want you to look terrific no matter what you do.

Let us show you how. Make an appointment for a free, no-obligation consultation at a Pat Walker's salon. We'll tell you in detail about the entire program... how much you can lose, how long it will take, how much it will cost. And we'll treat you to a session on the Symmetricon unit, so you can see how relaxing it is.

Join the Hike-Bike happening

The people of Midland and the area who join together for the Hike-Bike-Ride happening for the mentally handicapped people of the Tall City help support many programs and services of the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, sponsors of the event.

Hike-Bike-Ride is slated April 26 and persons turning in the largest amount of money after the event will be eligible for many prizes including a trip to Six Flags Over Texas. One participant will win, but he or she can take along five other persons of his or her choice — in a private plane to be provided by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Blanks of Midland.

Other prizes include watches, radios, a color TV, a 10-speed bike, plants and more.

Hikers, bikers, joggers, horseback riders, unicyclists, marathon runners — all of these can participate.

The object of Hike-Bike-Ride is to have sponsors pledge so much a mile for each mile walked or ridden.

There will be Hike-Bike T-shirts for all who take part and these can be picked up the day of the event so they can be worn while participating.

Persons taking part can tell prospective sponsors how the event is organized and how their pledge will help the mentally retarded. For instance, pledges collected will help send the retarded to camp and to Texas Special Olympics, run the Opportunity Center, help support Teens Aid the Retarded (TARS), and help in the prevention of retardation through research and public awareness.

On the day of the ride or walk, it is suggested by officials that a good breakfast be consumed. Other words of wisdom urge that hikers wear a pair of good walking boots or comfortable sturdy shoes. Sandals are not a good idea, nor is walking barefoot.

Other logical suggestions include wearing a long sleeved shirt, and halters or shorts will only get you a bad case of sunburn, said officials.

Cars will patrol the Hike-Bike route to pick up participants wishing to drop out, and a telephone will be available all day for participants to call home.

The 10-mile route begins at the Opportunity Center, 2701 N. A St. and ends at Wallace Grocery, but participants can go as far as they wish, according to officials. Those wishing to cover only 20 miles can turn around at the grocery store.

The starting point for horseback riders is Wallace Grocery. Horses will travel the service road bar ditch to the rest stop near Stanton and back for the 20-mile route.

There will be a lunch stop along the way, with MARC furnishing the lunches. Rest stops and check points also are scheduled.

The all-day event begins at 8 a.m. April 26 at the Opportunity Center. Pledge forms can be obtained at the MARC office, 2701 N. A St. or by calling 682-9771.

A word to the sponsors — all paid pledges are tax-deductible.

Other MARC programs to benefit are the Learn-to-Swim summer programs; Pop Bottle, weekend socials for the retarded; summer camp week; Sitter-Companion Services; a loan library of publications on retardation, and "Helping Hands" newsletter.

In the mini-library, a collection of more than 100 books and magazines is available at the MARC office.

The newsletter is published monthly and has a circulation of approximately 1,200. It has won state recognition for its content and style.

The current grant for the Sitter-Companion Service will expire May 31. Interim funding is being sought for a six-month period, during which time every effort will be made by MARC to secure long-term financial support for the program that supplies trained sitter-companions who care for handicapped persons while parents or guardians are away from home for a few hours or a few days. Objectives for Midland '80 includes a recommendation that the service be expanded to serve the elderly and handicapped of all ages.

A new project of MARC is the Parents' Support Group. MARC members are on call to provide moral support and useful information to parents of newborns diagnosed as retarded.

Together, we can do more through the Hike-Bike-Ride.

Some facts on mental retardation

Mentally retarded persons are those who develop at a below average rate and experience unusual difficulty in learning, social adjustments and economic productivity.

One out of every 10 Americans has a mentally retarded person in his family.

Three percent of the United States population is estimated to be mentally retarded to some degree.

Of the 30 mentally retarded for each 1,000 population: 25 can be useful, self supporting citizens; four will need continuous supervision and one will need life-long care.

Over 250 causes of mental retardation have been identified, but these probably account for no more than half of all known cases.

There is considerable overlap among the developmental disabilities: A significant number of autistic children and those with cerebral palsy are also mentally retarded.

Likewise, many retarded individuals have some form of epilepsy. Brain injuries causing one type of disability frequently extend to cause multiple handicaps in the same individual.

Of prime importance in the prevention of mental retardation is the health of the mother before and during pregnancy; constant attention to the development of the child during the pregnancy and through delivery and the provision for physical and mental growth opportunities during childhood.

Three levels of mental retardation are usually identified:

Mildly retarded: Such a person may be hard to identify, often being physically indistinguishable from the average population. In school, mildly retarded individuals are able to learn academic skills up to approximately sixth grade level, and, as adults, they can usually acquire the vocational and social skills necessary for independent living. Eighty five to ninety percent of all mentally retarded individuals are mildly retarded.

Moderately retarded: A person whose intellectual functioning is such that achievement in academic subjects is significantly impaired, but who can learn self-care, social and some vocational skills.

Severely or profoundly retarded: A person who, with special training, is capable of a significant degree of self-care and may learn to function in a sheltered employment setting, but who will probably require supervision throughout life.

Despite relief efforts, majority of Cambodians remain hungry

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Correspondent Denis D. Gray has just completed a three-week tour of 10 of Cambodia's 18 provinces. In this dispatch, he reports on the desperate food situation that continues despite an international relief program.

By DENIS D. GRAY

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Despite a multi-million-dollar international aid program that has been operating for eight months, most Cambodians are still getting starvation rations or nothing at all from the communist government which is supposed to be distributing the aid throughout the country.

In a three-week tour of 10 of Cambodia's 18 provinces, this reporter found the rural population receiving an average of 1 to 4 1/2 pounds of rice per person each month. International aid sources, confirming this figure, said conditions away from the main roads were often much worse and that pockets of famine probably exist.

"The distribution is eaten in one day," said Uy Muth, a widow supporting six children in Prey Ho. The villagers, living only 10 miles by good road from Phnom Penh, the capital, received a pound of rice and a pound of corn each last month, she said.

The U.N. relief target is 15 pounds and the government's own Agricultural Ministry considers 46 pounds a proper diet.

The central province of Kompong Chhnang in January received 1,200 tons of rice to feed its 250,000 people. This should have provided every resident with 8.8 pounds, but a survey of villagers conducted by one Western relief official showed the average ration had been only a fourth of that.

Villagers at Ang Kuoeh Key, in northeastern Cambodia, said they received nothing or rations ranging from 1 to 4.5 pound of rice per month over the past few months. Half a mile away, six trucks loaded with grain and emblazoned with the UNICEF seal of the U.N. Children's Fund were surrounded by black-market traders and their bicycles. One truck carried armed Vietnamese troops.

"We are extremely unhappy about the distribution," said one aid official who asked not to be quoted by name. "You wonder just how much priority the government is placing on the countryside. I'm not saying they are consciously neglecting it, but one simply doesn't see the results where they should be seen."

The government says the distribution system is slowly improving. The foreign food comes to Phnom Penh by air, through the seaport of Kompong Som or up the Mekong River through Vietnam. From the capital it goes out to the provinces, districts, communes and finally the villages. Ox carts are often used for the last leg of the journey.

Cambodian officials admit to problems — lack of transportation, poor roads and bridges, dearth of trained manpower and weak coordination. But some of the excuses, the lack of transportation, for example, are questionable. Not counting what the Vietnamese army can provide, the government has at least 1,200 trucks provided by the International Red Cross, UNICEF, the British relief organization Oxfam and the Soviet Union.

Some food is certainly lost through theft, seepage into the vast black market and spoilage in warehouses. But it is impossible to determine how much.

One foreign expert believes much of the gap between donations and distribution is due to inexperience.

"There is no concept of logistics here," he said. "The stuff sits in warehouses, trucks will go long distances carrying nothing, or they'll suddenly mount a convoy and dump hundreds of tons on an unprepared local official."

Politics undoubtedly is a factor also.

The government, which the Vietnamese installed after ousting Pol Pot and his Khmer Rouge regime, is only 15 months old and still depends on the Vietnamese army to keep it in power. One of its highest priorities is to build a loyal central administration in Phnom Penh and a reliable network of officials in the provinces. Maximum resources are devoted to this task, and this reporter did not meet one official who had not received an average of about 45 pounds of rice a month plus other foodstuffs. Historical patterns also appear to be reasserting themselves. Phnom Penh prospers while the countryside suffers. Bureaucrats are ignorant of life among the peasants. Personal loyalties take precedence over national aims.

Says one especially critical aid official: "The rules of distribution are simple. First you take for yourself, then for your ministry and friends, and if there's anything left you divide it up among the rest."

But even the most critical doubt that the 200,000 Vietnamese troops occupying the country are siphoning off large amounts of food aid.

Vietnamese Foreign Ministry sources in Phnom Penh say their government is doing its best to aid rural Cambodia and realizes that another famine would be blamed on it since its officials serve as "advisers" to the pro-Hanoi government.

"If the Vietnamese allowed starvation there would be resentment against them. But a strong, healthy rural population might also give them problems," one aid official theorized. "So they steer a middle course and they also don't give it a high priority."

A train from northwestern Cambodia is jammed with passengers as it arrives in the capital city of Phnom Penh. Some of the passengers are traffickers doing business at the Thai border, others come to the city to find food and work. (AP Laserphoto)

Convicted slaver sees smuggling of aliens into U.S. as 'service'

By The Associated Press

While immigration officials say profits from the smuggling of Mexican aliens are soaring, a convicted "slaver" says he was performing a service by secretly transporting aliens across the border.

"The farmers and ranchers were crying for somebody to work," said Jerry Pettijohn, now serving time at a Federal Correctional Institute in Bastrop for alien smuggling. "And the Mexicans were down at the border begging for a chance to come over — not to go on welfare, but to work and pay their own way."

Pettijohn said he first began importing labor for himself, but his operation soon grew statewide. Shortly before his arrest in February of 1979, Immigration and Naturalization officers said he had become "the biggest alien-smuggler in North Texas."

When sentencing Pettijohn 10 months ago, U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon said, "you sold human beings like they were cattle." Mahon then handed Pettijohn a three-year prison term and a $2,000 fine.

He will soon be released to a halfway house in Fort Worth.

INS agents said profits from smuggling operations have risen into the millions, but Pettijohn said he never took money for transportation when bringing labor in for himself.

"You could call it a form of slavery," said Immigration and Naturalization Service Director Paul B. O'Neill in Houston.

He said the aliens have to pay $250 to $300 to book passage with the smugglers, called "Coyotes," and many have to sell all they have just to make a downpayment on the one-way fare into Texas.

"Then when they get here, they're detained until someone — a relative or an employer — pays enough to get them out. The smuggler makes money on both ends," O'Neill told The Dallas Morning News.

"If I worked them myself, I didn't charge them for the ride," Pettijohn said. "If they were for someone else, I charged the employer $100 each for their transportation."

He would give me the money, then withhold some every week from their checks until he got his money back."

Houston, said O'Neill, has become a final destination for some aliens and a major way station for others using the underground railroad to escape from the poverty of Mexico to the promise of jobs in the United States.

The newspaper said smugglers have warehoused as many as 60 aliens in cramped, dilapidated and abandoned shacks in barrios on Houston's near-north side.

"This is a very big business," said O'Neill. "Some drophouses have probably had $1 million in people go through in one year."

INS officials told the newspaper that one ring operating out of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, smuggles as many as 1,000 Mexicans into Texas a month — each paying at least $250.

The Nuevo Laredo ring is one of 10 to 15 such underground railroads that smuggles aliens into Houston and then on to such cities as Dallas, Fort Worth, Chicago or Detroit, the newspaper said.

INS Director William Chambers in Dallas called the drophouse arrangement a relatively new innovation in alien smuggling.

"All activity is burgeoning," he said. "Initially, smugglers would use a car or two to bring two or three into the U.S. at a time."

"But that got to be so productive, they went to vans that could haul more. Within the last year, they reached the point of needing warehouse space to hold them until they could dispose of them," he said.

But Pettijohn says after thinking the issue over during his prison term, he's still not convinced he broke the law.

"Is the government telling me that I break the law by bringing a man five illegal aliens, but it's legal for the man to have 70 or 80 illegals working for him?"

"And why would the Mexicans even come over here — if the employers didn't create the market? If smuggling is against the law, who is the victim? The farmer's happy and the Mexican's happy. "Who's the victim?"

Plans for flotilla to Cuba cancelled

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Cuban leaders canceled plans early today to launch a flotilla of small boats from Key West to deliver relief supplies for thousands of would-be exiles at the Peruvian Embassy in Havana, a police spokesman said.

"They said they were canceling because of bad weather," said Police Lt. Danny Lastres of Key West, 150 miles to the south of Miami. "The weather was bad and they were not going to be able to risk it."

He said seas were at six to eight feet with winds gusting to 25 mph. Lastres said he saw about 50 Cubans, "maybe more," assembled at dawn in a parking lot, preparing for the ocean crossing.

"I heard them say they were going to turn over whatever food and supplies they had to the Red Cross," he said.

Police reported earlier that 60 to 70 vessels had assembled for the trip to Cuba 90 miles away.

Meanwhile, South Florida officials, already struggling to absorb a growing tide of refugees, worried about accommodating as many as 2,000 of the embassy refugees.

Exile leaders said the boats would not enter Cuba's 12-mile territorial waters, but would offer to transfer food and medical supplies to Cuban vessels at sea. "There will be no weapons and there will be a white flag on every boat. They can only tell us that we have to go back," said Julian Alfonso.

Myles Frechette, head of Cuban affairs at the State Department in Washington, told The Miami Herald the venture could jeopardize efforts to evacuate the Cubans who fled to the embassy 10 days ago.

"They could complicate the international efforts which are now being made on behalf of the people in the Peruvian Embassy," Frechette said.

Coast Guard officials said they would not accompany the exile flotilla or make special rescue arrangements.

"We can't stop them from doing it," said Lt. Joseph Conroy. "We don't really recommend it because boats going that far is not considered a safe venture. They could break down, get lost or run out of fuel."

While Miami exiles were organizing the flotilla, 14 Cubans landed in nearby Hollywood, Fla., aboard an 18-foot boat.

Immigration officials said the refugees, including 10 children, were in good condition.

Carter administration officials have asked Congress for permission to accept 3,500 of the embassy refugees into the United States. They would be in addition to the 7,000 refugees from Cuba the federal government already has agreed to resettle over the next six months.

If the pattern continues, more than 60 percent of the Cuban exiles permitted to come to the United States eventually will live in South Florida.

Refugees from Haiti, Nicaragua and Indonesia have already helped swell Miami's population by 25,000 this year.

The first trickle of Cuban exiles fleeing Castro's communist regime arrived in 1959. It became a torrent when some 260,000 landed on the Cuban Freedom Flights from 1966 to 1973.

Plans made to fly 500 Cubans to Lima, Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian government said the first 500 of the thousands of Cubans seeking asylum in Peru's embassy in Havana will be flown here as soon as Cuba approves, probably before Wednesday.

Peru has agreed to accept 1,000 of the 10,800 Cubans who crowded into the embassy grounds more than a week ago. Foreign ministry officials said Sunday they were working out departure details with the Cuban government.

The ministry "has given Cuban authorities the first list of 500 persons whom our diplomatic mission has been authorized to grant visas for Peru," a spokesman said.

"Why so many savings plans?"

The Savings Place

Ask the place that knows

"Every time I open a newspaper I see some kind of new savings account or certificate of deposit. To me it's very confusing. And I don't know what's best for me. Can you tell me why there are so many savings plans, and how can figure out which is best for me?"

"The reason there are so many savings plans is because different people have different savings needs. For example, people near retirement often want to liquidate some of their non-earning assets, like their lake cabin, and put the funds into a long-term, high yielding certificate of deposit which will provide them with monthly income. Younger families may prefer the flexibility of a regular savings account so they can withdraw funds in case of an emergency. The point is, everyone has a different set of savings needs. Ask one of our Professional Savings Counselors for advice on the right plan for you."

IF YOU HAVE A SAVINGS QUESTION, BRING OR SEND IT TO "THE SAVINGS PLACE."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Review cash situation and investments. New and better deals could be available now. Pay more attention to needs of loved ones. You may have neglected someone due to heavy workload. Make amends. Plan fun evening with mate or partner. Go along with his or her ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Business associate may be in contrary mood and attempt to block project. Be alert to possibility of interference. Do not lose temper. Find way to help friend or relative who is having difficulties.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Strive to know your mate or romantic partner better and you reduce tensions on home front. Mental outlook and productivity are favorably affected. Long-distance phone call could lead to some new travel plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study, research project helps you reap increased profits in near future. Let go of what is past. Be aware of present opportunities! You have much potential and determination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Confusion reigns at work. You have chance to catch your breath. Beneficial agreement can be finalized now. Household chores, repairs demand attention. Get several estimates for any work you must have done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Advance your views clearly and calmly. Others are impressed with the logic of your arguments. Raise or promotion is in the works. Friend can give important information about a vacation opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work hard to enlarge base of operations. Expect small gains at first. Influential person is apt to do you a good turn. Conserve assets, resources. Make inquiries.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your ability and willingness to adjust personal plans in time of emergency is tested. Keep cool head and make right decision. You face some realities and come through with flying colors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Self-confidence counts for much today. Sometimes style does win out over substance. Make sure you know how to present ideas with appropriate fanfare. Conditions are favorable to solving cash dilemma.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep on with the good work you started yesterday. Business negotiations should be kept strictly confidential if they are to have maximum effect when made public. A slip of the tongue could jeopardize desired agreement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Better organization will increase profits. Some new contacts make employment situation more interesting. Romantic relationships are enhanced this evening. Do not overreact to news from abroad.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Save time, energy by making phone calls before going out on errand. Secret shared with wrong confidant could lead to future embarrassment. Exercise discretion. Do not repeat everything you hear.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A2 ♥10872 ♦J95 ♣AK53
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 1 ♣ Dble. Pass 3 ♣
 Pass 7
 What action do you take?
 A.—Don't make the mistake of thinking that North's jump to three hearts is forcing—it is only invitational. North is saying that if you have a better than minimum double, you should go on to game. Since you have as little as the law allows for a takeout double at this vulnerability, pass.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠A83 ♥J952 ♦KJ652 ♣8
 Partner opens the bidding with two hearts. What do you bid now?
 A.—There is little doubt that you are going to slam, but you want to leave yourself room to investigate grand slam possibilities. If you bid diamonds now, the rest of the auction could get out of control. The first thing you should do is fix the trump suit, so we recommend a bid of three hearts now. You will have plenty of time later to show the other features of your hand.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠K7 ♥8652 ♦A93 ♣KQ76
 Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?
 A.—An awkward hand. If you held an honor in hearts, there would be no problem. But now if you respond one heart and partner raises, you might get to the wrong spot. We suggest a one diamond response. If partner has four hearts, he can still bid them. If he does not, then you have missed nothing. Two no trump is also a possibility, but you are a point shy for that action.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦AQJ5 ♥J1076 ♦6 ♣AKQ7
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♥ 4 ♣ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—East's preempt has accomplished its purpose—an orderly investigation of the possibilities is out of the question. The alternatives left to you are a jump to six hearts or a cue-bid of five diamonds. The cue-bid runs a slight risk that, after you bid six hearts, partner might go on to seven thinking that you have first-round diamond control. Therefore, we would protect against that "accident" by bidding six hearts.

major suit, you have a balanced hand. Therefore, you should raise to three no trump. A bid of three hearts by you would tend to show a six-card suit in an unbalanced hand. With your holding, you shouldn't even think that a suit contract might be superior to no trump.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠QJ762 ♥92 ♦AJ5 ♣K83
 Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?
 A.—This is the case of the lesser of evils. You are too strong for a simple raise to two spades, yet a whit too weak for a jump to three spades—you have a lot of losers. However, a waiting bid of two of a minor does not appeal. All in all, the vulnerability favors the slight stretch to three spades—the rewards for making game are great.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Free! Free! Completely free!

Then many of the Jewish leaders who heard Him say these things began believing Him to be the Messiah. Jesus said to them, "You are truly My disciples if you live as I tell you to,

And you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free."

"But we are descendants of Abraham," they said, "and have never been slaves to any man on earth! What do you mean, 'set free'?"

Jesus replied, "You are slaves of sin, every one of you. And slaves don't have rights, but the Son has every right there is!

So if the Son sets you free, you will indeed be free— (Yes, I realize that you are descendants of Abraham!) And yet some of you are trying to kill Me because My message does not find a home within your hearts.

I am telling you what I saw when I was with My Father. But you are following the advice of your father."

"Our father is Abraham," they declared.

"No!" Jesus replied, "for if he were, you would follow his good example.

But instead you are trying to kill Me—and all because I told you the truth I heard from God. Abraham wouldn't do a thing like that!

No, you are obeying your real father when you act that way."

They replied, "We were not born out of wedlock—our true Father is God Himself."

Jesus told them, "If that were so, then you would love Me, for I have come to you from God. I am not here on My own, but He sent Me.

Why can't you understand what I am saying? It is because you are prevented from doing so!

For you are the children of your father the Devil and you love to do the evil things he does. He was a murderer from the beginning and a hater of truth—there is not an iota of truth in him. When he lies, it is perfectly normal; for he is the father of liars.

And so when I tell the truth, you just naturally don't believe it!

Which of you can truthfully accuse Me of one single sin? [No one!] And since I am telling you the truth, why don't you believe Me?

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Low back pain real, far from psychological

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been treated for low back pain for the better part of a year, but with very limited success. What bothers me even more than the pain is the fact that my husband is beginning to think I'm a hypochondriac. How can a person convince someone that a problem such as this is not a figment of the imagination? — Mrs. J.B.

Dear Mrs. S.: Low back pain is not a rare complaint. About three-quarters of all Americans — mostly women — experience the condition at some point in their lives. Although it often is difficult to demonstrate the basis for the pain, these patients are no more prone to psychological problems than any other group of patients, and it is manifestly unfair to label them hypochondriacs.

Two physicians at the University of Rochester School of Medicine compared two groups of 83 women each. One group had sought medical help for low back pain; the second group presented other medical problems. The researchers found that the women with low back pain brought many more complaints to the attention of their physicians during the course of a year; however, the incidence of anxiety and depression in the two groups was essentially the same.

It appears from the results of this study, and I also find it true with my own patients, that people with low back pain are as psychologically healthy as other patients, but more apt to inform their physicians of their physical problems.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am pregnant and am not planning to breast-feed my baby. I would do so, however, if I were convinced that it would be beneficial. Is there any reason why carefully prepared formula should not be as satisfactory for an infant as human milk? — Mrs. L.I.

Dear Mrs. L.: Breast-fed infants enjoy certain health benefits not shared by those who are formula-fed. Infants grow more rapidly during their first four to six months of life, and commercially prepared formulas, no matter how skillfully designed, simply do not measure up to human milk in meeting their needs.

Nutrient absorption, particularly of fat and iron, is generally better from human milk than from formula. In addition, the amino acid composition of breast milk is especially suited to the newborn infant's metabolic requirements. Finally, breast-feeding provides immunological advantages and protects babies against the introduction of foreign substances to which they may be allergic.

Whether or not to breast-feed is a very personal decision that each mother must make for herself. Obviously the large majority of infants raised on formula grow up to be healthy children and adults. But it is the consensus of medical opinion, supported by the American Medical Association, that full-term newborn infants should be breast-fed in the absence of specific contraindications, or except when attempts at breast-feeding have been unsuccessful.

Academy expecting many stars for Oscar ceremony

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tonight is Oscar night, and they'll all be there — from Christopher Reeve to Mickey Rooney, Bo Derek to Persis Khambatta.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences promises a stellar cast for the 52nd awards, with a better than usual turnout of the acting nominees.

All of those nominated for best actress of 1979 will be present in the audience of the Los Angeles Music Center: Jill Clayburgh, "Starting Over"; Sally Field, "Norma Rae"; Jane Fonda, "The China Syndrome"; Marsha Mason, "Chapter Two," and Bette Midler, "The Rose."

Waiting on camera for the announcement of best actor will be Dustin Hoffman, "Kramer vs. Kramer"; Jack Lemmon, "The China Syndrome," and Roy Scheider, "All That Jazz." Declining the Academy's invitation: Al Pacino, "And Justice for All" and Peter Sellers, "Being There."

Predictions indicate a sweep for "Kramer vs. Kramer," but there could be surprises. The other nominees for best picture: "All That Jazz," "Apocalypse Now," "Breaking Away," and "Norma Rae."

Las Vegas oddsmaker Bob Martin has made "Kramer vs. Kramer" the favorite for best picture, and Dustin Hoffman and Sally Field favorites for best performers.

All but favorite Melvyn Douglas ("Being There") will appear for the supporting actor award. The others: Robert Duvall, "Apocalypse Now"; Frederick Forrest, "The Rose"; Justin Henry, "Kramer vs. Kramer," and Mickey Rooney, "The Black Stallion."

Awaiting the envelope for supporting actress will be Barbara Barrie, "Breaking Away"; Candice Bergen, "Starting Over"; Mariel Hemingway, "Manhattan," and Meryl Streep, "Kramer vs. Kramer." A no-show is Jane Alexander of "Kramer vs. Kramer."

Producer Howard W. Koch has assembled a crew of presenters that symbolize Old Hollywood and New. Among the veterans: Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Charlton Heston, Kirk Douglas, Gene Kelly, Ann Miller, Walter Matthau. The newcomers include Bo Derek, Farrah Fawcett, Richard Gere, Kristy McNichol, Olivia Newton-John, Ben Vereen, as well as Persis Khambatta, whose hair has grown back since "Star Trek — The Motion Picture."

Dustin Hoffman will present an honorary award to Sir Alec Guinness, who won best actor in 1957 for "The Bridge on the River Kwai." A second honorary award will be given to Academy treasurer Hal Elias by producer Walter Mirisch.

Kirk Douglas will present the Irving G. Thalberg Award to producer Ray Stark, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. will present the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award posthumously to Robert S. Benjamin, who once served as chairman of United Artists.

The telecast has been scheduled on ABC at 9 p.m. (EST), an hour earlier than usual. Johnny Carson returns as emcee.

Long running 'Grease' closes

By LARRY STRIEGEL

NEW YORK (AP) — The Burger Palace Boys have hung up their leather jackets: The Pink Ladies' all-night pajama party is over. Goodbye, Danny Zuko and Sandra Dee, Rizzo and Kenickie, Frenchy and the Teen Angel.

"Grease," Broadway's longest running musical, has closed.

Sunday's performance was the 3,388th and last for the rock 'n' roll celebration of high school life in the 1950s.

But the nostalgia craze it helped spark lives on in such television hits as "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley," and rock groups like Sha Na Na.

And some of the young actors that it brought to the spotlight are stars today: John Travolta went from greaser to disco king in "Saturday Night Fever," Richard Gere, from teen heartthrob to "American Gigolo" and the acclaimed Broadway drama "Bent," and Adrienne Barbeau from bobby socks to liberated woman in television's "Miaume" series.

The closing of the musical, which opened Feb. 14, 1972, had been expected since it surpassed "Fiddler on the Roof" in musical longevity on Dec. 8 — performance No. 3,243.

The closing was blamed on New York's 11-day transit strike, which prevented the musical's primarily young audience from reaching the theater.

Lynne Guerra, production stage manager, said advance sales dropped with the collapse of public bus and subway service, "and with no advance we couldn't continue."

After the last show, the crew — including many from casts dating back to the original — hugged, sang and occasionally wept at a backstage party.

"This is a weird day, a very sad day," said producer Ken Weisman, "we always knew this day would come, but we're very proud today."

"Grease" began in 1971 in a basement theater in Chicago, where the husband-and-wife producing team of Weissman and Maxine Fox first saw it. It was then a play with music, but the producers persuaded authors Warren Casey and Jim Jacobs to revamp it as a full-scale Broadway musical.

The show cost $150,000 to produce and grossed more than $8 million from ticket sales, a cast album and a hit movie — starring Travolta and Olivia Newton-John — which brought the New York show to teen fans around the world.

"Grease" has been called the Harvard of our industry because of the stars it has produced," said choreographer Pat Birch. "But we never saw our cast as stars — we saw them as terrific."

Many of the graduates came back when "Grease" became Broadway's longest-running musical last December. They didn't arrive for the glittering party in Levis, button-down collars, leather jackets, bobby socks and ponytails — it was a black-tie affair.

"We're not closing the show because we broke the record," Weisman told the cast on Sunday. "Other long-running shows closed two weeks after they broke the record. We broke the record in December and now it's April."

"I see a lot of old faces here and we had a lot of good times. And like the song says, 'We'll always be together.'"

Niehaus diary details life of man held for 40 months

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — When William F. Niehaus escaped from the leftist guerrillas who had held him captive in the Venezuelan jungle for more than three years, he left behind his diary.

For most of the 40 months the Owens-Illinois executive was kept hidden away by his kidnapers, he was allowed to keep a journal. In the three looseleaf notebooks, he described his living conditions, his hopes of release and other thoughts and emotions.

Niehaus escaped last June 29, when Venezuelan police looking for rustlers stumbled on the shack where he was being held. After police killed his guards, Niehaus fled into the jungle, where he was later found. In his haste, he left behind the 194-page diary, which was recovered the next day by units of the Venezuelan army.

The diary was kept by Venezuelan authorities, who are reportedly using it in the secret military trials of some persons accused in the kidnapping. But with the assistance of syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, who earlier attempted to arrange for his ransom, Niehaus, eventually received a photocopy of the diary.

Anderson, with his assistant Jack Mitchell, reported excerpts from the diary in Sunday's Parade magazine.

Niehaus, who had headed Venezuelan operations for Toledo-based Owens-Illinois, began the journal several months after he was taken from his Caracas home on Feb. 27, 1976. The entries, largely in the form of letters to his wife, Donna, and other members of his family, reflect his alternating moods of hope and despair as the weeks of captivity stretched into months, then years.

In August 1976, he wrote: "During the initial portion, time passed very slowly. Nothing to occupy my time. Later I was given newspapers (censored), books and magazines, finally a little bit of radio time. I had a deck of cards...."

"I first thought in terms of hours, then days, then weeks. And now, after more than five months, I wonder when and how it will all end. I spend many long hours, days and nights, wondering...."

In January 1978, Niehaus learned of Anderson's offer to act as an intermediary between the guerrillas and Owens-Illinois. The guerrillas had increased their ransom demand from $3.5 million to $7 million.

The negotiations dragged on, and by the summer Niehaus was despondent over the prospects of his release. "I have lost what little hope I had to get out alive to see you all again. I now know it will not be," he wrote on Aug. 27, 1978.

Anderson, in Sunday's article, wrote that he received a ransom demand for $7 million in May 1979, but that Owens-Illinois executives were reluctant to put up the money. Anderson said he told the guerrillas that he wanted to renegotiate the ransom demand, but they refused.

He said that a week before Niehaus' escape, he began efforts to raise the money on his own.

Niehaus now lives in Toledo.

A spokesman for Owens-Illinois said Sunday night, "At this point, the company has no comment" on Anderson's article.

Don't blame the lemon

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — When it comes to cars, everyone loves to hate a lemon. But sometimes it's not the lemon's fault.

The Better Business Bureau has found that only about one of every three dissatisfied General Motors customers has been vindicated in third-party arbitration hearings run here since December 1978.

The program is part of a pilot project sponsored by the company and administered by Better Business Bureau offices in Minnesota, the San Francisco Bay area, Buffalo and Philadelphia.

In Buffalo, there were 309 complaints between December 1978 and March 28. Of these, 208 were resolved or being resolved through negotiated compromises.

Of the 78 cases that went to an arbitrated conclusion, 23 — or 29 percent — were settled in favor of the consumer; 48 — 62 percent — were settled in favor of GM; and seven — 9 percent — resulted in split decisions.

The consumer selects an arbitrator from among the bureau's nearly 80 unpaid volunteers, including "housewives, retirees, attorneys, educators, busy owners of Buicks, Cadillacs, Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, and GMC trucks that are less than three years old and have been driven less than 36,000 miles.

"Most of the people who come here have been to their dealers and contacted the GM zone offices," said Cynthia Sinnott, who manages the bureau's dispute settlement department.

"They have had to pay very costly repair orders, but feel some parts should last a lifetime, rather than give out at 10,000 miles, right after the warranty expires."

She said the bureau tries first to mediate the problem through the Automotive Consumer Action Program, a service of the Niagara Frontier Auto Dealers Association.

Most cases are settled at that stage. The remainder go to arbitration, which is legally binding on General Motors but, in Buffalo and San Francisco, not on the consumer. Elsewhere it is binding on both parties.

"I think it's a great program," said Herbert F. Keough, regional director of the agency, which has been supplying seven "trained, expert mechanics with at least five years of experience" as "unbiased witnesses."

The seven include specialists in electrical components, body work, motors and cooling systems, said Keough, whose office monitors new and used car dealers and the state's auto inspection program.

"We like the program very much because it's giving the consumer one more chance to make sure his car is proper," he said.

Chrysler loss estimate at $750 million

DETROIT (AP) — Struggling Chrysler Corp., blaming its plight on "the deteriorating economy," raised its 1980 loss estimate to $750 million — just hours after a government board reported the automaker would seek new ground rules for obtaining $1.5 billion in needed federal loan guarantees.

The new loss projection released Thursday is $100 million more than previous estimates and $250 million higher than Chrysler's forecast of just two months ago.

According to the board report, the No. 3 automaker "seriously underestimated its need for federal assistance" and will not be able to meet the requirements for $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees in the way Congress designed the program.

Chrysler said it needs more of its medicine now, asking that a full third of those guarantees be given this year, up from the $200 million the automaker estimated in February.

Chrysler last year lost $1.097 billion, the largest corporate loss in U.S. history.

The company blamed its troubles on "the deteriorating economy" and tight money that has kept dealers and customers from buying.

The government's opinion came in a report to Congress that said Chrysler "has made considerable progress" in recent months at operating and financing plans to correct problems, but "the seriousness of its situation is not to be underestimated."

The 21-page report was the first by the Chrysler Corp. Loan Guarantee Board since Congress approved the bail-out in December. The board must approve Chrysler's program before the loan guarantees can be issued. It has the authority to change the requirements.

The board said Chrysler's ideas on how it would stand up to its competition "may be too optimistic."

Chrysler's market share fell in the first quarter, from 10.6 percent in the same period of 1979 to 9.5 percent. In March, however, the share was 10.5 percent, the amount the company says it must maintain to stay afloat. In the final 10 days of March, it got 11.5 percent.

That was Chrysler's best showing since last summer, but analysts attributed the boost to a customer rebate program which has been continued. And market share means less when the market is in a slump.

Chrysler said it will ask the Carter administration to change the rules so it can qualify for the federal loan guarantees. The company wants to cut from $400 million to $209 million the amount it must get from banks that have been unwilling to extend new credit.

In exchange, the corporation said it would sell $210 million more in assets than the $300 million the loan-guarantee law requires. Chrysler also said it would raise $169 million in cash through new loans and loan concessions from foreign creditors.

The company last week said its 150 lenders had given "preliminary concurrence" to its refinancing proposals.

The financing plan projects cash needs through 1983 of approximately $3.5 billion plus a $1 billion financing contingency.

Under the law enacted by Congress, some $1.43 billion of the company's cash needs were to be met with non-federal financing. Chrysler has proposed increasing that total to nearly $1.7 billion by steps that would include:

— Increasing the assistance it gets from state and local governments by $49 million to $299 million

— Asking suppliers and dealers to increase their direct contributions and concessions by $100 million to $230 million.

— Increasing its new borrowing and concessions, such as interest-rate deferral, from foreign creditors by $169 million to nearly $320 million.

Ballesteros demonstrates character

By ED SHEARER

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A potential rout turned into a test of character and courage for Seve Ballesteros. "This was my toughest week in golf," the dashing young Spaniard said Sunday after losing eight shots of a 10-shot advantage before recovering to win the 44th Masters golf tournament.

"I have a lot of heart," he said. "You must have a lot of heart to stand up under the pressure I have had this week."

"My ambition was to win the (British) Open, but I feel this is the hardest to win. There's so much pressure. Maybe I feel more at home in Europe."

The reigning British Open champion appeared headed for a record-setting victory under leaden skies Sunday, touring the front side of the 7,040-yard Augusta National Golf Club course in 3-under 33 to take a 10-stroke edge over the field.

Then came a bogey at No. 10, but there was no concern.

Worry began to enter his mind at No. 12, the treacherous little par 3 guarded by water, which caught his tee shot. He dropped, and then needed two putts to get down. It was double bogey and only a 5-shot lead after playing partner Jack Newton of Australia sank his second straight birdie putt.

It got even tighter. He went to the par 5 13th, a hole he birdied the first three days, and found water again, ultimately missing a 10-foot par putt.

Newton had another birdie, and further along the course, Gibby Gilbert was within two shots of the lead, after playing the 16th.

Seve said he started talking to himself.

"You are so stupid. What are you doing here. You were in a comfortable position. Now you are in trouble. You are going to lose the tournament."

He parred the 14th and then applied the clincher, two-putting from 20 feet for a birdie 4 on the 520-yard 15th.

It was over, and he knew it.

So did everyone else.

Ballesteros parred out, finishing with a par 72 that left him with a 13-under 275 total, good enough for a 4-shot victory over Newton, the 1979 Australian Open champion, who closed out 68-279, and Gilbert, who went 67-279.

It made the handsome Spaniard, who celebrated his 23rd birthday last Wednesday, the youngest Masters champion ever — about three months younger than Jack Nicklaus when he won the first of his record five Masters.

Seve also had a shot at the course record of 271 set by Nicklaus in 1965 and tied by Raymond Floyd in 1976, but that ended with the double bogey-bogey on the back side.

The victory earned him $55,000 and gave him the 24th victory of his career, and his second major conquest.

It also produced an inevitable question — could he break Nicklaus' mark of 17 major victories?

"Seventeen big salmon is a lot," he said. "I will try my best, but I don't think I can get that far."

It capped a week in which Ballesteros survived an erratic driver, often finding himself in the pine trees that line every fairway on this course.

He was asked how he was able to get out of danger so often.

"Very simple," he replied. "The more you go into the trees, the more you practice."

Ballesteros kept his cool on the hot, humid day when he had to play his final round under a forecast of heavy thundershowers that never developed.

He settled what had started to look again like a tight contest with the birdie at No. 15, ending all hope for Newton and Gilbert, the only two left with any chance of beating him.

Hubert Green, the former U.S. Open champion, closed with a 5-under 67 to finish alone at 280 and Australian David Graham, a winner on five continents during his career, went 70-281.

Six others were grouped at 283, including South African Gary Player, a three-time Masters winner who now has company among foreigners to win here. Player, who had a closing 70, was the only one before Sunday.

Severiano Ballesteros holds off the pack.

Cubs, Dodgers go for two tonight

After two cold weather postponements, the San Antonio Dodgers and Midland Cubs resume action with a doubleheader at 6:30 p.m. today in Cubs Stadium.

The Cubs trail in the Texas League series, which winds up with two games Tuesday, 0-2. After Tuesday's action, Midland will be on the road for 12 days for games at Amarillo and El Paso.

Henry Mack, the bullet throwing righthander who was 10-4 for Midland last season, and rookie Tom Spino, a lefthander from Niles, Ill., who was 9-9 at Quad Cities last year will be Manager Randy Hundley's probable starters for the Cubs.

Manager Ducky LeJohn will counter with lefthander Fernando Valenzuela and Ubaldo Heredia.

General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., said Advertisers Night tickets will be honored for both doubleheaders, tonight and Tuesday. The promotion was supposed to have ended with tonight's game, but because of the postponements was extended.

It has been a hitters' series with San Antonio winning 17-15 and 9-6. For San Antonio, outfielder Mike Bradley has wielded a smoking bat with four hits in nine trips and five rbi and one home run. Centerfielder Tom Beyers is 4-for-6 with three rbi and a double and triple while is 5-for-9 with five rbi. Shortstop Alex Traveras has four hits in 11 trips and one homer.

For the Cubs, outfielders Tom Grant and Mel Hall each are 6-for-9. Grant has two homers, two doubles and seven rbi. Hall has a double and triple. Javier Fierro has played in only one of the games, but is 2-for-3 with a three-run double.

Austrian driver dies
HOCKENHEIM, West Germany (AP) — Austrian driver Marcus Hoeninger died Sunday of internal injuries suffered in a two-car smashup at the Jim Clark Memorial Formula Two race.

The 22-year-old Hoeninger's Mauer-BMW slammed into a spinning racer driven by Britain's Derek Warwick.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Alcott survives downpour to win

GOLF— Amy Alcott braved a torrential downpour and fired her 3-under-par 69 for a 206 total to win a $100,000 LPGA event by four shots over Donna Caponi Young at Raleigh, N.C. Taiwanese pro Kuo Chih-sung fired a one-under-par 71 for a 72-hole total of 277 and won the $60,000 Taiwan Open Golf Tournament by four strokes over Mike Krantz and Taiwan's Lu Liang-huan. Masako Sasaki of Japan sank a three-foot putt on the fifth hole of sudden death to beat Tatsuko Ohsako in the $60,000 World Women's Professional Golf Tournament in Tokyo. Roger Maltbie had shot a 5-under-par 65 to lead after 18 holes of play Thursday, and was awarded $4,500 as rain and soggy course conditions forced cancellation of play for the Magnolia Classic Golf Tournament and PGA officials declared the tournament concluded.

Amy Alcott beats wind, rain and field.

AUTO RACING— Joe Ruttman captured the USAC late model stock car American 250 at Trenton International Speedway, finishing 9.1 seconds ahead of Bay Darnell. David Pearson, enduring a heavy rain and some hail which delayed the Rebel 500 Grand National for two hours and 18 minutes, won the shortened 258-mile race at Darlington Raceway. Pearson averaged 155.866 mph on the 1.366-mile track to take the $21,430 first prize.

TENNIS— Jimmy Connors used his speed and power to beat John McEnroe 7-5, 6-3 in the finals of a $250,000 Tokyo tournament. Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl defeated Eddie Dibbs 6-1, 6-3 in the finals of the Houston WCT tournament. Tracy Austin came from behind to defeat Regina Marsikova 4-6, 6-1, 6-0 in the finals at Hilton Head, S.C. while in the doubles final, Kathy Jordan and Anne Smith defeated Candy Reynolds and Paula Smith 6-2, 6-1. Heinz Günhardt of Switzerland upset Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina 6-3, 6-4 and Victor Amaya beat Brazil's Carlos Kirmayr 7-6, 6-3 in the semifinals at Johannesburg, So. Africa. Ken Rosewall downed Cliff Drysdale 6-4, 6-3 and John Newcombe beat Tony Roche 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, setting up an all-Australian final in at Sydney. Burton Jr. to claim his first PBA tournament in 12 years on the tour.

BASEBALL— Chicago Cubs slugger Dave Kingman was given a reprimand but was not penalized by NL President Chub Feeney as a result of a spring training incident in which Kingman doused a sports writer with a bucket of ice water.

"Dave is aware of the gravity of the incident and obviously there will be no repetitions in the future," Feeney said in a prepared statement. "There will be a bulletin sent out to all National League players emphasizing that any physical activities taken against media people will be subject to penalty."

Rutherfordford coasts home

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — It's a rarity when an Indy car driver is able to relax during the course of a race.

Texas charger Johnny Rutherford got that chance during an almost leisurely Sunday drive to victory in the Twin 200 championship auto race at Ontario Motor Speedway.

After an early challenge by Bobby Unser was short-circuited by a hole in his car's radiator, Rutherford had it all to himself and his radical ground effects Chaparral.

"You really should never do it, but I guess I did relax a little," Rutherford said. "During a yellow (flag) late in the race, I pulled up alongside the pace car and signaled to Ruby (former champ car driver Lloyd Ruby), making like I wanted to race him."

"Under other circumstances, we might have gone at it right there," he said with a laugh.

Unser, who started alongside Rutherford in the front row of the 25-car field, passed the canary yellow Chaparral in traffic on the eighth lap. He held the lead until the leaking radiator ended his bid six laps later.

Rutherford inherited a nearly 30-second edge over the rest of the field and it was never again a contest over the rest of the 80 lap, 200-mile race. He finished a full lap ahead of second-place Tom Sneva, winning $15,500.

Jim Hall, another Texan and the builder of the innovative car, already was looking ahead to the Indianapolis 500 in May, a race which Rutherford has won twice for other owners.

"I wouldn't have minded seeing Bobby (Unser) stay in a while longer so we could have run this car a little harder. But we feel it's ready for Indy."

Hall brought the first full ground effects car — taking advantage of new aerodynamics developments to force the car to stay virtually glued to the ground — to the champ car circuit last year.

Al Unser drove the car to victory at Phoenix in the last race of 1979, and Rutherford picked up right where the younger of the Unser brothers left off.

"We're a little ahead of the other guys because this team has been working at it for a year," the 42-year-old Rutherford said. "We've still got a couple of ideas and theories we'd like to kick around before we go to Indy. But, really, I feel we're ready now."

Defending Indy champ Rick Mears was eliminated by an engine fire that started as he was taking on fuel early in the race. Al Unser, in a new ground effects car, had ignition problems and finished 16th.

Four-time Indy winner A.J. Foyt, the defending champion here, withdrew before the race. He gave no reason, but race officials speculated he did not feel he had had enough practice time to iron out some mechanical problems.

O's make changes

BALTIMORE (AP) — When the Baltimore Orioles open their 1980 home season Tuesday, handicapped fans will find expanded restroom facilities as well as additional seating space at Memorial Stadium.

The changes are the result of an agreement signed Friday by Orioles management, the city, Disabled in Action of Baltimore and Thomas J. Turner, 23, a paraplegic who was arrested last season for blocking a stadium aisle with his wheelchair.

The agreement provides for more than 80 seats in four sections for wheelchair-bound fans, 15 toilets equipped for the handicapped and 30 special parking places.

This Week's Games
Today—Ablene at Big Spring, 4 p.m.
Tuesday—San Angelo at Midland, 10 a.m.
Wednesday—Ablene at Midland, 10 a.m.
Thursday—Odessa at Midland, 10 a.m.

Bad weather has played havoc on the opening of the second half of the District 5-4A baseball race.

Four games were postponed Saturday with three of those to be made up on three separate days this week. Today, Ablene tries Big Spring in Big Spring while two more makeup games will be played on Wednesday and Thursday. Lee entertains Odessa High on Wednesday and Midland travels to Odessa to face Permian Thursday and OHS is at Central. The Cooper-Central game will not be made up until April 24.

OHS has the toughest slate with games on three consecutive days — Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The Thursday game was reset earlier in the year, but the Bronchos won't play on Saturday.

Ablene Cooper, winner of the first half of the 5-4A race with a 6-1 mark, doesn't play until Tuesday when the Cougars face OHS in Odessa. The Cougars, with a 12-4 season mark, can enter the Class AAAA state playoffs for the second straight year if they either win the second outright or tie for the second half title.

Lee wound up 5-2 in the first half with disappointing losses to Big Spring and Midland after posting wins over Cooper, Ablene and Permian. The Rebels stand 9-9 on the year after an impressive 21-10 victory over a good Dallas Jefferson team last Wednesday.

Midland High could be the darkhorse in the second half after the Bulldogs polished off Lee, 5-2 to end a 14-game losing streak to the Rebels.

MHS is 7-8 on the year and finished 4-3, the same as Ablene and Permian in the first half of the race.

Besides Cooper's 12-4 reading, Permian has a 10-7 season mark and Ablene is 8-6.

Lee Coach Ernie Johnson has some decisions to make in his pitching rotation this week with three district games on tap. Alan Koonce and Wade Cartwright have been his two starters and Johnson most likely will throw Koonce against San Angelo Tuesday, come back with Cartwright against OHS on Wednesday and then Koonce again on Saturday when the Rebels play Cooper in Ablene. Lee took a 5-4 10-inning victory over the Cougars in the first half of the race.

Johnson now has Clay Bateman he can call upon to come in a throw as a reliever now that he has overcome an earlier knee injury. Speaking of injuries, Cartwright had a ball hit him in the cheek bone while warming up for the Dallas Jefferson game Wednesday, but he should be ready to play this week.

MHS Coach Tim Whalen has Paul Cox and Mark Hewitt to throw along with reliever Doug McLean this week as the Pack plays Big Spring Tuesday, Permian Thursday and Ablene Saturday. Hewitt threw five innings of no-hit ball against Lee in last mound appearance.

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Sports Writer

For a pitcher to throw a shutout, he must shut out negative thoughts, as well as keep the opposition from scoring. Confidence then was as important as the curveball for the three pitchers behind the three blankings in the National League Sunday.
 Rookie Charlie Liebrandt found faith in his fastball as he fired a five-hitter in the Cincinnati Reds' 5-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves. Pete Falcone believed in himself and pitched six scoreless innings in the New York Mets' 5-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs. And Jim Rooker stopped the St. Louis Cardinals on five hits over 6 1/3 innings in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 3-0 win.

 "Nothing worries me now," said Falcone, who said he found religion in the off-season. "I have no fear of fear itself or of failing in my career. This organization has shown a lot of faith in me and I intend to repay it."
 "I'm ecstatic. Other than that, words don't describe how happy I am," said Liebrandt, who only two years ago was pitching for Miami (Ohio) University. "I got off on the right foot, got the confidence going, and I was able to put the nervousness out of my mind."
 Rooker had confidence in his pitching, not his hitting, but both were instrumental Sunday. He slugged his seventh career homer, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, off a bad pitch.

 "It was actually out of the strike zone. If it had been a good pitch, I probably wouldn't have hit it," he said. "As soon as I hit it, I knew it was gone. I was shocked. I kept saying, 'I don't believe it. I don't believe it.'"
 Falcone, who left the game with a two-hitter after suffering a pulled hamstring running the bases in the sixth, didn't win his first game last year until June 25 in the Mets' 6th game. On Sunday, he was aided by Neil Allen's three-hit relief pitching and Joel Youngblood's two runs batted in.
 "Falcone is a different pitcher this spring than last year," said Met manager Joe Torre. "He keeps his cool...Baseball is a game of confidence and he seems to have it now."

 So does Liebrandt, who rose quickly through the Reds' farm system, jumping from Class A to Class AAA in 1978, his first professional season. He spent another year of minor league seasoning in 1979 and made his first major league start Sunday.
 "As every inning went by, I got more and more confident," the 23-year-old left-hander said. "I got them to hit it on the ground most of the time, and the guys made some great plays."
 Johnny Bench also helped with his first homer of the season. The Reds swept the season-opening four-game series from Atlanta.
 The world champion Pirates, normally slow starters, took three of four games from the hard-hitting Cardinals. The only setback was the 1-0, opening day defeat.
 "This is the best start we've gotten off to since I've been here," said manager Chuck Tanner. "When you hold the Cardinals down the way we did, you have to have outstanding pitching period."
Giants 3, Padres 1—Vida Blue wasn't hurt last year, but a 14-14 season was not vintage Blue. He was sharp against the Padres, spacing four hits over seven innings. Gary Lavelle picked up the save. San Diego's Dave Winfield dropped a fly ball in right field that allowed the winning run to score. The victory was the Giants' first of the season after three losses to the Padres.
Expos 5, Phillies 4—The Expos also recorded their first victory of the season on Ellis Valentine's leadoff homer off Lerrin LaGrew in the 10th after the Phillies had tied the game on three runs in the ninth. Valentine's homer was well-timed for himself and his team. He was 1-for-9 going into the game.
 "My shipment of bats hasn't arrived," he said, "and I've been scratching with anything I could get my hands on. I used the same bat the last two times up."

Bucks square Seattle series

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

After four games, the Milwaukee Bucks and Seattle SuperSonics are right back where they started — and the Sonics couldn't be happier.
 "We've got to be favored now, going back to our home," said Seattle forward John Johnson after the Sonics beat the Bucks at Milwaukee 112-107 Sunday to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series at two victories apiece. The Sonics will be at home when the series resumes Tuesday night and also for the seventh game, if necessary.
 "They thought they were going to win two here (in Milwaukee)," said Johnson. "They had played well for four quarters in every game and we had played only sporadically well. But we're the world champions and this team has a knack for rising to the occasion."
 The Sonics led all the way Sunday, scoring the first 10 points of the game and building the lead to as many as 18 points before turning back a late Milwaukee rally. Seattle guard Gus Williams led all scorers with 32 points.
 In the other Western Conference second-round series, the Phoenix Suns staved off elimination by beating the Los Angeles Lakers 127-101. Los Angeles, leading 3-1, will get another chance to wrap up the series Tuesday night on its home floor.
 In the East, Boston and Philadelphia both moved within one victory of advancing to the conference finals by winning Sunday. The Celtics clobbered the Houston Rockets 100-81 to go up 3-0 and the 76ers beat the Hawks at Atlanta 107-83 to take a 3-1 lead. Both can end their series at home, Boston playing tonight and Philadelphia Tuesday night.
 Besides Williams' 32 points — and 22 points and 15 rebounds by forward Lonnie Shelton — the Sonics also got 20 points from guard Dennis Johnson and 15 from reserve backcourtman Fred Brown.
 "I don't think all three of their guards — Fred, D.J.

and Gus — should be capable of shooting that well at the same time," said Marques Johnson, who led the Bucks with 31 points.
 "If they do, we're going to lose," he added. "There was nothing we could do. We played good defense, but they shot jumpers from 20, 25 feet right in our face."
 Seattle led 106-91 with 3:55 remaining before the Bucks put on a 13-2 surge to pull within four. A pair of free throws by Brown with 36 seconds left clinched the Sonics' victory.
 Williams crashed into Milwaukee center Bob Lanier with 2:47 remaining and was forced to leave the game with a bruised neck. "He's a little sore and it will be a little sore tomorrow, but we think he'll be all right," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens.
Suns 127, Lakers 101 — Paul Westphal scored 25 points and six other Phoenix players hit double figures as the Suns beat Los Angeles to stay alive. Phoenix went ahead early in the first period, built the lead up to 25 points in the third quarter and was never threatened.
Celtics 100, Rockets 81 — Larry Bird and Nate Archibald led a 14-4 Boston surge in the final 4:44 of the third quarter as the Celtics pulled away from the Rockets. Archibald finished with 20 points, Cedric Maxwell 19 and Bird 18 for Boston, which has won all nine of its games against Houston this season.
 Before the game, fans entering the Summit in Houston were given signs reading "Go Rockets" on one side and "Defense" on the other. "I wish they had changed that to say 'Offense,'" said Houston Coach Del Harris, referring to his team's 41 percent shooting. "We can't expect to win by shooting the way we have."
76ers 107, Hawks 83 — Darryl Dawkins opened the third quarter with an 18-foot jumper. Maurice Cheeks hit three straight field goals and Philadelphia went on to outscore the Hawks 35-17 in the period to move from a 46-46 halftime tie to a commanding 81-63 lead going into the final period.
 Reserve forward Bobby Jones and Cheeks led the Sixers with 20 points apiece.

Heart Association sets benefit tourney

The American Heart Association will hold a benefit scramble golf tournament Friday at Hogan Park to raise money for the association's research projects.
 It will be a four-man ABCD format. Entry fee is $35 which will include green-fee, cart, lunch and refreshments.
 Les Riek, co chairman of the event, said, "The $35 fee is one of the best investments you'll ever make. Not only do you get to compete in a good tournament, but you also will be helping conquer one of the greatest killers of our time, heart disease."
 Entry deadline is Monday. For information, contact Les Riek (682 3505 or 683 5407) or Gene Shumate (687 5373 or 684 7411).

Bruins pound Penguins, even series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The first 20 minutes belonged to the Boston Bruins. The final 40 minutes were a formality.
 "That first period was the hockey game," Pittsburgh goalie Greg Miller said Sunday night after a five-goal Boston barrage in the opening period carried the Bruins to an 8-3 Stanley Cup playoff victory over the Penguins.
 Boston's do-or-die victory tied the best-of-five, first-round series at two, triumphs per team. The final game, set for tonight in Boston Garden, will decide the series and the pairings for the National Hockey League quarter-finals that begin Wednesday night.
 Boston took a 4-1 beating here Saturday night, but Peter McNab scored two goals Sunday night to lead the Bruins' game-breaking first-period assault.
 "If we had lost, it would have been the earliest summer any of us have ever had," said McNab, who helped Boston reach the semifinals a year ago. "We didn't want that. We had a lot of discussion before this game."
 The Bruins, who had the league's

No Sale for Cavs

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland businessman Ted Stepien, the new principal owner of the Cleveland Cavaliers, says he has no intention of moving the team out of the city.
 Stepien has become the fourth major owner of the National Basketball Association franchise in two months. He bought 275,000 shares of stock in the team late Saturday from Joe Zingale, giving him 37 percent ownership of the club.
 "I like all the ingredients," said Stepien, 54, who paid $2 million for his Cavaliers' stock. "I do not have a group. I'm one single owner and I'll say right now, this team will stay in Cleveland."
 There was speculation during the regular season that the Cavaliers might be sold and moved away from Cleveland, in light of sagging attendance figures at the Coliseum in Richfield. However, the team put on a strong finish and drew more than 19,000 fans to one late-season game against the Boston Celtics.
 "My goal is to reach the playoffs next season and win the NBA title in three years," said Stepien, who also owns the Cleveland Competitors professional softball team.
 Stepien purchased the shares from Zingale at a price of $7.50 per share. Zingale, in turn, had paid $4 a share to Columbus banker Lou Mitchell for the stock.
 Mitchell had become the major stockholder in February by buying out Nick Mileti's 155,000 shares at $9 apiece.

Seven Basin regions gain wildcat sites; strikes final

A Tenneco Inc. worker eyes one of his company's offshore platforms as the supply boat in foreground nears the structure, which is in the East Cameron area of the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Louisiana. The platform is a supply point for Tennessee Gas Pipeline Co., a major division of Tenneco.

Seven Permian Basin counties have gained wildcat operations, and discoveries have been reported in Hockley and Eddy counties.

Exxon Corp., operating from Midland, spotted No. 5 Longfelly Corp. as a 10,000-foot wildcat in Pecos County, 27 miles southeast of Fort Stockton.

It is 3,180 feet from north and 1,140 feet from west lines of section 11, block 139, T&SL survey.

There is no nearby production. The location is five and one-quarter miles northeast of a 24,470-foot dry hole.

ANDREWS RE-ENTRY William E. Hendon Jr. of Midland announced plans to re-enter the former Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. No. 1-18 University in Andrews County and cleanout and attempt completion at 3,500 feet.

The project was abandoned at 8,470 feet in 1944. It is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 18, block 11, University Lands survey. It is two and one-quarter miles southwest of Yates gas production in the Three-Bar multipay pool. It also is 3/4 mile west of Devonian oil production.

STONEWALL WILDCAT Hanson Corp. and OMNI-Exploration Inc. of Midland No. 1 W. M. Jones has been spotted as a 6,750-foot wildcat in Stonewall County, eight miles southwest of Aspermont.

Drillsite is 990 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 270, block D, H&TC survey. It is 2,310 feet south of a 6,450-foot dry hole, Dow Chemical Co. No. 1 Jones, which was abandoned in September 1978.

The location also is three and one-quarter miles northwest of the depleted Frankirk, Northwest (Canyon) field.

CROCKETT TEST Robert M. Wynne of Midland No. 1 Gulf-Williams is a 1,600-foot wildcat in Crockett County 10 miles north of Ozona.

Location is 2,387 feet from south and 868 feet from east lines of section 14, block OP, GC&SF survey.

The drillsite is one location north-east of Ellenburger oil production in the Holt Ranch field and one and seven-eighths miles southeast of the Troylaw (San Adres) pool.

It also is two and three-quarter miles east of the Ecklaw (San Adres and Queen oil) field.

CONCHO PROJECT

MEG Petroleum Corp. of San Angelo staked No. 1 G. M. Rainwater as a 3,100-foot wildcat in Concho County, four miles southwest of Millersview. It is 1,200 feet from north and 1,960 feet from east lines of section 99, block 72, T&NO survey.

The prospector is 3/4 mile northwest of the two-well Janor (Caddo gas) pool and 1,650 feet southeast of a 3,565-foot failure.

RUNNELS COUNTY

D. G. Becker of Midland spotted No. 1 Allar Co. as a 4,500-foot wildcat in Runnels County, eight miles northeast of Winters.

The prospector is 700 feet from south and 1,800 feet from east lines of BBB&C survey No. 347. Ground elevation is 1,965 feet. The location is one and one-quarter miles northeast of the Clarke (Gardner) field and one location southeast of a 4,679-foot dry hole.

HOCKLEY STRIKE

Wheeler Properties of Wichita Falls No. 32-13 A. A. Slaughter Estate (originally reported as No 30-13 A. A. Slaughter Estate) has been completed as a discovery in Hockley County, 1.25 miles south of Clauene. Operator reported a daily pumping potential of 69 barrels of oil and 2 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,424 to 7,460 feet. The gravity is 30 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 362-1.

The pay was acidized with 9,000 gallons. Total depth is 10,850 feet, 5/8-inch pipe is set at 7,610 feet and the plugged back depths 7,610 feet.

Identify of the formation has not been reported.

Locatio is 660 feet north and west lines of labor 13, league 36, Zavalla County School Land.

EDDY OPENER

Southland Royalty Co. of Midland No.-25 State Communitized, scheduled as a Morrow test in the Turkey Track field of Eddy County, has been completed as a Strawn oil discovery.

The well finished for a daily flow of 14 barrels of oil and two barrels of water with a gas-oil ratio of 4,642-1. Completion was through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations from 10,564 to 10,732 feet. The zone was acidized with 4,000 gallons.

Total depth is 12,040 feet and 4/5-inch casing is set on bottom.

The following tops were called on ground elevation of 3,339 feet: Yates 1,575, Queen 1,642, San Adres 3,030, Wolfcamp 9,480, Strawn 10,168, Atoka 10,845, Morrow 11,120 and Mississippian 11,970.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 2,130 feet from west lines of section 24-19s-28e.

TAOC files for company

Texas American Oil Corp. of Midland announced it has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission relating to the proposed formation of a holding company.

The stockholders of Texas American will be asked to vote on the proposed reorganization which will result in Texas American becoming a subsidiary of Texas American Energy Corp., a newly-formed holding company.

The holding company stock will be owned by the present stockholders of Texas American Oil Corp.

William F. Judd, the president of Texas American said the purpose of the proposed corporate restructuring is to provide the Texas American group of companies greater flexibility to foster the development of its various businesses and to pursue the acquisition of new businesses without the loss of certain tax benefits now available.

Retail gasoline increases slowing

By JAY ARNOLD

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After rising this year at an average rate of 1.5 cents per gallon a week, retail gasoline price increases have slowed dramatically in the last three weeks, possibly foreshadowing a drop in prices at the pump, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

The average price of all grades of gasoline nationwide from March 21 through April 11 rose only 0.36 cents a gallon to $1.237, an indicator of an overall cooling of the U.S. economy, said the publisher of the weekly oil industry Lundberg Letter.

In an interview Sunday, Lundberg said the slackening pace of gas price increases will probably lead to a roll-back in prices. He said the overall economy will determine how far and how fast gas prices will drop.

"There is a slight but clear turnaround in the price acceleration to an actual deceleration," Lundberg said. That turnaround, according to Lundberg, reflects a "price sensitivity" by motorists which demonstrates the American consumer's growing resistance to price increases in all areas of the marketplace.

"This deceleration in price increases, both at wholesale and retail levels, is not a price sensitivity that should be judged in a single frame of reference. What motorists are paying for all things — food, rent, clothing — is reflected in their price sensitivity to gasoline."

Lundberg said the gasoline price turnaround is a potential indicator for the economy as a whole.

"Perhaps we have nationally peaked on the inflationary cycle. That may indicate that that is the direction of the whole economy."

The slowdown in gasoline price increases, Lundberg pointed out, has actually been developing over a period of weeks. Prices, which jumped markedly early in the year from the average $1.021 price at the end of 1979, have increased at a lower rate recently.

"The rate slowed in late March and has decelerated further in April," the analyst said. "This may actually mark the beginning of gas prices coming down."

He attributed the cooling off to "a mix of a marked deceleration in wholesale increases and the continuing tendency of the past eight weeks of dealers to fail to pass on all of their legal margins."

Margins are the differences between the wholesale price charged to the service station operator and his retail price. The federal government has established a 16.1-cent maximum margin.

"The dealers on average are now about three cents under the 16.1 maximum fixed-cent margin," he said.

Increasing price sensitivity on the part of consumers and general conservation of gasoline is making it harder for dealers to sell all of the allocations that are delivered to them, Lundberg explained.

"The pressure of the plentiful supply, at least for the time being, is causing them to be extremely competitive with each other," the analyst said, adding that dealers have been "sacrificing" for about eight weeks in a row at prices below the legal maximum.

Center slates three sessions

"Oil and Gas Fundamentals—" will be offered in three sessions by the Permian Basin Graduate Center. They are scheduled on Tuesdays starting this week and continuing through April 29.

The instructor will be Jack G. Elam, consulting geologist and chairman of the board of the Permian Basin Graduate Center, and Albert L. Stanford, petroleum engineer with Adobe Oil Corp.

The course is designed for office managers, secretaries, production clerks and other personnel — especially those new to the oil industry.

The series will cover an overview of the oil business, including exploration, drilling procedures, and production operations.

The feet is $50. A textbook "Oil from Prospect to Pipeline" will be available for $6.95.

Possible merger of unions in works

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The possible merger of three major labor unions — the United Rubber Workers, the United Paperworkers International and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers — is under discussion, URW President Peter Bommarito says.

Preliminary talks between the three labor organizations have already been held, according to Bommarito, who said that more discussions are planned during the next AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting in Washington in May. The presidents of the three unions are members of the council.

A 1975 proposal to merge the URW and the Denver-based OCAW collapsed before the rank-and-file members of both unions had an opportunity to vote.

A merger between the three unions would result in a membership force of about 653,000 members.

"It would be a matter of the rubber workers and oil workers dusting off and implementing the 1975 plan," said Bommarito. "I'd imagine that could be accomplished with one or two meetings of the top officers from both sides."

Sources from all three unions envision a linkup between the URW and the OCAW followed two to five years later by the New York-based paperworkers.

"Merger would benefit all of us," Bommarito said. "When you get bigger, the union can provide much better service to its members."

Recent announced plant closings by tire manufacturers have caused a sharp decline in the URW and it's believed the membership will level off at about 152,000.

The OCAW has 176,000 members while the United Paperworkers places its membership figure at just over 325,000.

"I am a strong pro-merger person and I am openly committed to this," said OCAW President Robert Goss. "If you are going to play in the ball game with these big multinational companies, you've got to have a strong team."

Reed rotary survey logs slight Permian Basin hike

A slight increase in rotary rig activity in the Permian Basin of West Texas and New Mexico was logged last week by Reed Rock Bit Co. in its weekly survey.

The county was 309, compared to 305 the previous week. One year ago there were only 224 rotary rigs making hole in the two-state area.

Lea County, N.M., continued as the Basin leader with 37 units going, five less than one week earlier.

Eddy County, N.M., was tied for second spot with 24, five less than the previous total, and Pecos County was the Texas Leader with 29, tying Eddy.
