WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the highlights of President Carter's nationally broadcast address Wednesday night. U.S.-Iran

Carter endorsed creation of an international commission "with a carefully defined purpose" as a step toward winning the release of Americans held hostage in Iran.

He declined to be specific, saying he could not "afford at this delicate time" to comment further on strategy for ending the crisis, triggered by the Nov. 4 seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Carter-Kennedy

The president said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's criticisms of administration foreign policy "have not been true, they have not been accurate, they have not been responsible and they have not helped our country.'

U.S.-shah Carter repused to acknowledge any U.S. guilt for restoring the shah to the Iranian throne in 1953.

"That's ancient history," he said, "and I don't think it's appropriate for me to go into the propriety of something that happened many years

U.S.-Olympics

The president said he remains firm in his demand that the Soviet Union withdraw from Afghanistan by next Feb. 20 or risk a refusal by U.S. athletes to participate in the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

U.S.-Soviet

Carter insisted the Russians must be forced to pay a steep price for their occupation of Afghanistan.

'We must convince the Soviet Union through peaceful means through peaceful means — that they cannot invade a neighboring country with impunity," the president said.

Political campaigning

The president said he's anxious to hit the campaign trail as soon as the Iranian crisis can be resolved. "I want the world to know I'm not going to resume business as usual as a partisan campaigner out on the campaign trail," he said.

Draft registration Carter said he felt there has been a "gross overreaction" on the part of much of American youth to his call for reinstitution of draft registra-

Defense budget

"I do not anticipate calling for an actual draft," the president said.

The president said he would strongly oppose any effort in Congress to reduce the defense budget below the level he has recommended for fiscal 1981, for which the administration is proposing a 5 percent increase in spending after discounting for inflation.

U.S.-Yugoslavia

Carter said the administration is confident that Yugoslavia "is a strong, fiercely independent, well-equipped nation that can defend

But Carter also said he would not advocate such a course of action as a continuing federal government policy.

Carter OKs shah probe

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, in a move to gain release of some 50 American hostages, is endorsing an international commission to explore Iran's long-festering grievances against the shah and the United

His declaration, at a news conference Wednesday, appeared to mark a policy change. Carter said there were 'some positive signs" toward ending the 103-day impasse but refused to go into details.

His announcement capped day-long rumors and political duels between his administration and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his chief challenger for the Democratic presidential nomina-

The Massachusetts senator had sought to take credit for the latest move. But Carter called Kennedy's claim - and the senator's litany of alleged U.S. foreign policy mistakes — "damaging to our country."

The president's endorsement of "an appropriate commission with a carefully defined purpose" contrasted with his doubts at a news conference Nov. 28 that any forum would listen to Iranian complaints, justified or not. Carter was careful not to proclaim a breakthrough in the tedious and still unsuccessful negotiations over the Americans seized by militants on Reflecting past disappointments, he said "experience has taught us to guard against excessive optimism." The president did not spell out the kind of commission he had in mind, although he said any settlement must be "consistent with our goals and our

However, a spokesman for the militants who occupy the U.S. Embassy in Tehran reiterated Wednesday their initial and unwavering precondition — return of the shah to Iran to face trial as a war criminal.

Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, the new Iranian president, stressed three demands in a broadcast interview. He said the United States must acknowledge its "crimes," accept Iran's right to extradite the shah and recover his wealth and promise not to interfere in Iranian affairs.

Stiff as his proposals are, Bani-Sadr did not insist on extradition of the shah from Panama, but simply Iran's right to bring him back.

The key to the crisis may be held by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, whose position U.S. officials said privately is not clear. However, Bani-Sadr said Wednesday that Khomeini had accepted his proposals. For his part, Carter struck a conciliatory stance. He did not castigate Iranian authorities or the militants, as he had in the past, and he did not insist that the Americans be set free before the commission could begin its

And yet, the president refused to accept blame for the U.S. role in restoring the shah to the Peacock throne in 1953.

"That's ancient history," he said, "and I don't think it is appropriate or helpful for me to go into the propriety of something that happened 30 years

He also drew a line at home against Kennedy, who has questioned Carter's tactics in the hostage situation and charged that weakness in foreign policy prompted the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan.

Egypt training Afghan rebs to fight Soviets

By The Associated Press

Egypt is training Afghan rebels, as claimed by the Soviet Union, and will arm them before sending them home to fight Soviet intervention in their nation, Egyptian Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said.

He did not disclose the size or location of the camps or how many Afghans were involved, but told reporters in Cairo on Wednesday, "Egypt is training some of them to some extent," and that President Anwar Sadat had approved the project last Diplomatic sources in Lmndon, meanwhile, said Moscow had advised key Asian, European and African nations that it will start pulling some of its estimated 90,000 troops out of Afghanistan and open talks with Pakistan as soon as the situation stabilizes along the Afghan-Pakistan border.

However, Indian officials said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko had given them little or no hope for an early troop withdrawal from the landlocked Central Asian country on the Soviet Union's southern flank.

Gromyko, attending a New Delhi banquet to honor his Indian counterpart, warned Pakistan it must end 'intrusions into the territory of Afghanistan" if it wants peace along the border. He returned to Moscow today after a 40-minute meeting with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Shortly after Gromyko left, Indian government spokesman J.N. Dixit said the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan should be viewed in perspective of the U.S. naval presence in the Indian Ocean.

He said New Delhi and Moscow had different interpretations of the Soviet intervention, but that Gromyko had 'taken note" of the Indian position "that there should be non-interference in the internal affairs of sovereign countries and that frontiers should be inviolable.

However, their joint communique made no reference to Soviet action in Afghanistan. Moscow poured tens of thousands of troops into Afghanistan in December in an effort to crush the 21-month-old Moslem rebellion against the communist regime and to back the Dec. 27 coup that eliminated President Hafizullah Amin and replaced him with Babrak Karmal, regarded as a more pro-Soviet leader.

Soviet Defense Minister Dmitry F. Ustinov defended that action Wednesday, repeating the Kremlin's claim it intervened following "the launching of an undeclared war on Afghanistan

It also might not hurt to check before you buy. One florist sells a dozen for $45 and a half dozen for $20.

But the prices haven't dampened demand, according to Midland florists. In fact, one was out of roses by Wednesday.

Most of Midland's florists said they noticed no real decline in the demand for roses and that the prices were about the same as last year, although one said prices were up about $10 due to inflation. Another said the increase in price was due to higher gasoline prices

"During the month of February, roses are very hard to get, and florists who order 1,000 may only get 300," another florist added. Several florists said spring bouquets are becoming a popular item, although they pose no real threat to roses.

"The high prices for roses," said a local florist, "comes from the wholesaler, not the florist. Florists hate to raise prices that way, but we might have to pay one wholesaler more than another. critical condition

Tito in

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) -Doctors reported today that President Josip Broz Tito was in "critical" condition despite "intensive measures" to save the 87-year-old Yugoslav leader's life.

Tito's eight doctors said his "general state of health" worsened Wednesday and included a "further weakening" of his kidneys and heart. "Intensive measures of treatment are being administered," they said.

The bulletin was the grimmest since Tito was admitted Jan. 12 to a clinic in the Slovenian capital of Ljubljana, 300 miles northwest of Bel-

Doctors there removed his left leg Jan. 20 to prevent fatal gangrene stemming from blocked arteries.

Tito had been reported making a marvelous recovery until Sunday, when doctors first said he was suffering from "kidney and digestive problems." A bulletin the following day spoke of "a weakening" in the heart.

Meanwhile, the National Defense Council called for intensified defense preparations. The council, drawn from the same group that will run the nation if Tito dies, met Wednesday and "discussed the implementation of a program of development of the Yugoslav armed forces and the level of their capability," the official Tanjug news agency

"The need was also stressed for intensifying efforts in implementing the tasks for development of the armed forces and the country's defense preparations according to established plans."

Despite the council's emphasis on readiness, there was no evidence of special military activity around the capital, as there was during the amputation of Tito's left leg last month. There were reports, however, that government offices were again on 24-hour call.

The defense meeting was chaired by Lazar Kolisevski, who would become chairman of the Presidency Council in the event of Tito's death. The Presidency Council, which includes representatives from the six republics and two autonomous provinces, would succeed Tito as head of state.

Meanwhile, the official Tanjug news agency said Premier Veselin Djuranovic would end the visit to East Berlin he began Wednesday. The trip had been scheduled to last until Friday, and cutting it short was another indication of Tito's failing con-

Agency conflicts spilling over into Regional Planning Commission meet

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

The conflict between the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood and Odessans for Life spilled from Tuesday's Odessa City Council meeting to Wednesday's Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission meeting at Midland Regional Airport.

And a new conflict started between the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation and the Ector County and Odessa city governments.

Rev. Bill Price, president of the anti-abortion group Odessans for Life, requested the regional planning commissioners table a proposal which would continue the family planning operations of the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood agency.

The agency's total grant request from the federal government is $282,-555, part of a total Planned Parenthood budget of $807,300.

One item in the agency's budget which drew objections from Price allowed a salaried public information coordinator to be used to "punish the opposition," Price said.

'Why must my tax dollars be used to punish people who oppose this agency?" asked Price.

The position, Price said, would be used to lobby in state and federal capitals for Planned Parenthood and against right to life groups such as Odessans for Life.

According to the job description of the public information coordinator, the "information section would be responsible for projecting our true image to offset the half-truths and innuendos generated by those opposed to Planned Parenthood." The agency's representatives did admit that the description could have misled one into believing what Price did. However, the position, they explained, was intended to educate the Ector County Judge Gary Watkins and Odessa City Councilman Frank Childs voted to table the agency's proposal until the next meeting. They contended that the MH-MR agency had not communicated with them in the past on various items being requested by the agency.

However, the action by the commissioners does not kill the agency's grant funding since by law the commissioners have 45 days to pass the grant with favorable or unfavorable comment.

Therefore, it is possible the funding for the MH-MR proposal could be authorized without the commisssion's action, the commission noted.

The other resolution by the MH-MR agency for a continuation of the Drying Out Program in Odessa passed with favorable comment despite moves by Watkins and Childs to table the proposal.

Midland County Judge William Ahders told the commissioners he was completly satisfied with the agency's attempts to service the area and the reasons for tabling such a motion were not that accurate.

Other proposals which passed with favorable comment by the commissioners included community development block grant funds for Odessa, head start programs for Reeves county, juvenile probation project and the establishment of a district attorney investigator for Winkler County.

'Boy in box' case, missing parents still haunting ex-medical examiner Rem Bristow after 23 years

EDITOR'S NOTE—He was 3 or 4 years old when strangest disappearance case in Philadelphia police they buried the boy, "the boy in the box." He has yet records." to be identified. Yet, visiting the grave of the unknown boy has become a ritual for some. It has been so for Rem Bristow since 1957.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - For 23 years, Rem Bristow has been searching for a name to put on the "Heavenly Father Bless This Unknown Boy, February 25, 1957," reads the headstone, jutting from weeds next to a tangled hedgerow in Potter's Field.

"The good Lord looks down. He knows who that boy is," says Bristow. "He is not unknown to him. He's unknown to us, to me, to the police department, to the people who visit him all the time, who cry and who pray for this boy.

"To his parents he's known, and perhaps to a sister who if she would look back, might ask, 'Where is that little brother of mine?"

Feb. 26, 1957, was cold and rainy. Bristow was working the overnight shift at the city medical staring at the little grave. examiner's office where he was an investigator. That day they brought in the body.

It was a naked child, maybe 3, 4 years old, found by a rabbit hunter in a thicket on the city's fringe. The youngster had been dead about a day, thus the date on the headstone. He was lying in a cardboard box, covered by a cotton flannel blanket, his little arms crossed upon his chest. Bristow got the case.

But lead after lead died out. That July, "The Boy in the Box," as he came to be known, was buried in the city's cemetery for the unclaimed. Six homicide bury him showed. detectives served as pallbearers, carrying the little chipped in and bought the tombstone, the only one in all of Potter's Field

Winter came again and Bristow stayed with the for that boy.

Flyers with the child's post-mortem photograph were posted in liquor stores, race tracks and orphanages, even sent home with the city gas bills. The search for the boy's identity and for his parents reached across the country, and into Canada, Mexico and Europe

Bristow offered $1,000 of his own money for clues. Obsessed now, he worked his days off, vacations, prowling the garish midways of honky tonk carnivals, searching trailer camps and Army posts and other spots where the earth's restless bunk down.

He carried a death mask of the child in his car, visited a psychic who held in her hand the staples from the cardboard box as her brain tried to outwit the unknown. More dead ends. More winters.

'After years of thinking about it, of putting myself in the parents' place, of driving the roads they may have driven to reach the field where they left him, I think I know how they feel," Bristow says now,

"They must have gone through 22 years of hell. Scared, on the run, looking over their shoulder, waiting for someone to tap them on the back and say, 'Is this your son?'

The cause of death is unknown. There were bruises on the body. Yet Bristow says he does not believe the child was murdered.

"He was neglected, yes, and undernourished, and this could have caused a fall. No, I don't think he was beaten, and the love of the person who tried to

"If they didn't love him, why did they clean his white casket to the grave. In October, detectives fingernails, cut his hair, bathe him, close those blue eyes, and place him, covered with a blanket, in a box big enough to be a casket? These are all signs of love

"I think they were going to bury him. But they were frightened off, maybe by a car. I think these were poor people, uneducated, confused. They could have been alcoholics, I don't know. But they didn't kill him. If they did, they'd have put him a gunny sack and thrown him alongside the road."

Bristow still visits the grave often, bringing flowers and tidying up. He's on disability now, in his late 50s with a bad heart.

Two ex-convicts visit too, on Christmas morning. They heard about the boy while in prison and were haunted by his loneliness.

Whitey and Eddie - they guard their last names take off their hats and bow their heads and lay a wreath on the grave. Then-Eddie, who robbed banks and railroads and payroll trucks and served 30 years in prison, reads the third and final verse of Houseman's "The Isle of Portland":

"Lie you easy, dream you light, And sleep you fast for aye. And luckier may you find the night, Then e'er you found the day.

Now another winter has arrived and Rem Bristow carries on the search, hoping someday he will meet the parents at the grave.

Yes, I believe they've been here," he says, tugging at a weed. "How could they not come? And maybe this is the reason why they haven't stepped

What more could they do for him? The grave is marked, even though it says 'unknown.' It is cared for. What more could they do now?

"If I do nothing else I hope to dispel the idea it was a homicide. Then maybe the parents, no longer afraid, will come forth and make their peace with God and say, 'Yes, this is our son.

"It's heartbreaking to know there's a little boy buried here that the mother and father don't claim.

"I know him much better than his parents do. They had him three or four years. I've had him for 23."

Parents promise not to press charges against woman who abducted daughter

Victoria and Efren Santos, immigrants from Mexico, are pleading with the woman who posed as the infant's aunt at Children's Memorial Hospital.

"We ask the lady to please bring our baby back to any hospital," Mrs. Santos, 23, said through an interpreter. "We don't want to punish her or press any charges. We just want our baby back. Just take good care of the baby. We're very worried because she's sick."

The FBI and Chicago police said the woman is white, 21 to 24 years old, 5-feet-7, 180 to 190 pounds, with brown or black hair and blue eyes. She wore a blue T-shirt bearing the slogan, "I am Italian.

An artist composed a sketch of the woman from descriptions. Authorities issued 10,000 copies of a special bulletin and distributed them to every hospital in the city, hoping the child would be brought in for

Police said they have not apprehended any suspects.

Santos, 23, explained that Caroline had been admitted to the hospital vomiting flecks of blood. Although tests had not been completed, doctors said her health was a definite risk.

- Funeral directors learn how to manipulate grieving consumers to unnecessarily expensive bills, a Texas embalmerturned-dentist has told a congressional panel.

Dr. James Reveley of San Antonio said Wednesday he once attended a one-month funeral management course where he was taught "a very subtle hard sell.'

The techniques included lighting and arranging caskets to make the cheaper ones look less attractive.

"They keep the lowend units looking as un attractive as possible," Reveley, who now operates a no-frills funeral business as a sideline, said.

Reveley testified before the House commerce subcommittee on

After having been all but ignored through most of the market's early-1980 rally, many of the glamors began to move up strongly in the last hour of trading Tues-day. That enabled the Dow to gain more than 9 points on the day and move to the threshold of the 900 level.

On Wednesday, brokers said the rally fed on itself for a while, attracting new buyers impressed by the market's strength. As the session passed it began to fade, however.

The late pullback left many of the energy issues, standout gainers last week, in the minus column. Texaco was down 11/4 at 38; Mobil 1/2 at 64; Tesoro Petroleum 1/4 at 26%, and Valero Energy 1 at 211/4.

An exception was Stan-dard Oil of Indiana, up 2 at 1101/4. Late Tuesday the company reported a flow of gas and light oil from a well in Uinta County, Wyo., that has attracted a lot of attention from investors. The session featured dwo

Barber recalls serving greats

By JOSEPH P. MASTRANGELO The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Alfonso di Batista was locking up his barbershop in the basement of the old Powhatan Hotel. "I was the last one to leave the shop, I had just changed my shoes," the 88-year-old Di Batista said, "I just put the key in the door when this man came to me saying he wanted a haircut.

"I said, I'm sorry I'm closed. Then I realized it was Thomas Edison so I opened again. He didn't have much hair to cut."

While snipping the inventor's hair Di Batista re-called asking, "Has Marconi ever come to see you?" and Edison said, "We all see each other a lot." A resident of Washington since 1910, Alfonso works the third chair at the Federal Bar Barber Shop. He drove a car until a year ago when he failed to pass a written test for his license renewal.

'He takes the bus to work every day and never misses a day," said owner Vito Cortese, who pulled the switch of being born in Boston and raised in Italy, returning to America just prior to Italy's entering World War II.

Di Batista has no idea how many pounds of hair he has scattered over barbershop floors in his 71 years of cutting hair but laughed and said, "A whole lot."

Among the stand-out celebrities he has snipped, trimmed and shaved were Henry Ford, and Charles Lindbergh, whose name he was unable to recall. "You know, the man who made the jump across the ocean," he said

Di Batista was born a few miles north of Rome, and came to Philadelphia in 1904 at the age of 13. He began cutting hair two years later.

A widower with four married children and seven grandchildren, Di Batista was resting in a chair in the sunlit window of the shop. "I used to be a tailor My brother was a barber, he taught me the trade

Haircuts were a quarter, then 50 cents and now they are $9 and up. Cutting hair is the same.

"I was 43 years in the Transportation Building and for awhile at Union Station," he said.

The biggest day he could remember was Truman's inauguration when he was at the shop in Union

"I gave 55 shaves that day. The men would come off the train and into the shop, every one in a hurry, Di Batista said.

"The job is easier nowadays," he added, "a lot of new equipment. Years ago we had the cake soap and brush; steady customers had their own mugs. "Now I average about 75 haircuts a month." His preference in music leans more toward the long-haired as he said, "I have never heard a barbershop quartet. I enjoy classical music; I enjoy opera. 'Tosca,' 'La Boheme,' 'Rigoletto,' '' but he wasn't sure about Rossini's "The Barber of Seville." He likes to read and said Gabriele D'Annunzio is one of my favorite writers. That guy, he could write beautiful. A stamp collector, Di Batista is proud of letters he received from FDR and Jim Farley and told how it came about. "The Vatican issued a new stamp years ago, and I wrote to them and they sent me a sheet so I sent one to the president and one to Farley and they wrote thanking me. Di Batista remembered an embarrassing incident that happened one day, and retelling it amused

"It was years ago and I went to Constitution Hall to listen to a tenor. I think his name was Lugi, but 18 can't remember his last name.

'The next day this man sits in my chair and I tell him about the tenor and how beautiful he sang and the man turns around and says, 'That was me!
