Pair kidnapped during robbery

Temple men were back home today after a harrowing weekend robberykidnapping that started when an armed man forced his way into their restaurant and ended seven hours later when they were freed from the trunk of a car.

Temple police said the gunman still was at large early today.

Sgt. Ron Flippo said the two victims were closing up at the Pelican's Wharf restaurant shortly after midnight Saturday when a bearded man brandishing a gun forced his way into the building, taking an undetermined amount of money from the office and the restaurant and bar cash regis-

The two employees, bar manager David Hernandez, 22, and busboy Billy Lynch, 17, told police they were forced into the trunk of Lynch's 1971 Chevrolet and driven to Dallas, where they were discovered by two newspaper deliverymen about 7 a.m. Sun-

Flippo said Lynch's car had been abandoned on the parking lot of a

Dallas apartment complex. Hernandez told police the gunman confronted him as he dumped a load of trash at a large metal bin outside the restaurant. Lynch said Sunday afternoon that the man held a gun to Hernandez's head and ordered the busboy to lie on the kitchen floor.

"If you turn around and look at me, I'll kill you," Lynch said the gunman told him. The men were taken outside and forced into Lynch's trunk, he said in a telephone interview with the Temple Daily Telegram.

"He told us we had best be quiet or he would pull over and kill us," Lynch said. "I didn't really believe him. I figured he was going to take us out somewhere and get rid of us.

He said the bandit stopped in Temple for gasoline, then drove for about 21/2 hours before stopping.

It was really cold, but we got plenty of air through two holes cut in the rear deck for speakers," Lynch said. He and Hernandez remained silent during the drive, he said.

he estimated, when the gunman pulled stopped the car, turned on the radio, left a car door open and abandoned the car.

The two men wrapped themselves in a towel and huddled together to stay warm, he said. Shortly before 5 a.m., they tried to escape, he said.

"About 5 a.m., we started to freeze to death," he said. They tried to pry open the trunk with a tire tool and began shouting for help

Their cries were heard by two unidentified newspaper deliverymen. who called police and firemen when they could not open the trunk.

The two men were freed by fire rescue teams about 7 a.m. and drove back to Dallas in Lynch's car a short time later, Lynch said.

"I'm just glad to be back," said Lynch, a junior at Temple High

Parts of SALT II OK: Percy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Charles H. Percy, returning home after three days of highly publicized talks with top Soviet officials, says there are many parts of the SALT II arms control treaty that can be used as a basis for future negotiations with the Russians

But the Illinois Republican, who is in line to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next year, said Sunday as he did last week in Moscow that there is no chance for Senate ratification of SALT II as it now stands.

"There are many things in it (SALT II) that President-elect (Ronald) Reagan agrees with, and let's start on those things," Percy said upon his arrival at Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

He added that the next round of talks should start as soon as possible, and he believes the Soviets are willing to resume negotiations.

Percy was the first top U.S. political figure to meet with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev since July

The SALT II treaty was withdrawn from Senate consideration by President Carter after it appeared that it would face almost-certain defeat because of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan last December.

Some Reagan cabinet choices made

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ronald Reagan says he has made some of his Cabinet choices, but the presidentelect is keeping up the suspense aboutwho they are. Some of the answers may come late this week. "I'm not going to report or speculate until we have a crew together and an announcement ready to make, Reagan told reporters Sunday as he returned from an overnight stay for a charity dinner in Palm Springs, Calif.

As he left Palm Springs, Reagan said he would spend the first few months of his presidency concentrating on the economy

Asked if he believed he could improve the economy soon, Reagan replied: "I don't know how soon. It took a long time to get in this mess, but we are going to start.

The president-elect planned to continue selecting a Cabinet today, and transition chief Meese said all the choices probably will be announced before Christmas. Lyn Nofziger, Reagan's press secretary who spent his last day on the job Sunday, said some Cabinet selections may be announced as early as Thursday or Friday

But Reagan, Meese and Nofziger all were careful not to drop any hints about who the appointees might be.

Lamesa man dies in Sunday crash

LAMESA — A Lamesa man died Sunday and his wife remains in critical condition after the pickup in which they were riding overturned into a cottonfield near here sometime before dawn Sunday, according to Department of Public Safety officials. Domingo Parraz, 40, of Lamesa was driving his 1974 Chevrolet pick-up north on S.H. 137, when it apparently ran off the road, rolling over into a hearby cottonfield 11 1/2 miles south of Lamesa. Both Parraz and his wife were thrown from the vehicle, according to a DPS spokesman.

The two were not found until daybreak, when Justice of the Peace Fred Vera of Lamesa pronounced Parraz dead at the scene. Margie Parraz, 44, was transported to Medical Arts Hospital in Lamesa where she was listed in critical condition this morning with massive head injuries?

Trail killer preying on lone hikers POINT REYES STATION, Calif.

(AP) - A killer who ritualistically makes his victims plead for their lives before slaying them may have killed four people whose nude bodies were found this weekend at a seashore park, police said.

Authorities have tied the man to three other killings over the last 15 months and are workried that what they believe is his compulsion to kill may lead him to strike again.

"He commits his acts in an effort to achieve psychological relief, but the murders will not satisfy him and the problem will get worse," Marin County Sheriff Al Howenstein said Sunday. Without question, this individual is capable of striking again. Authorities found four bodies on Saturday near a hiking trail at Point Reyes National Seashore, 30 miles north of San Francisco. They had been looking for two women who disappeared Friday during separate hiking trips at Point Reyes, and they also came upon the bodies of two other people a half-mile away who had been dead for up to six months. The corpses were so badly decomposed that their sex could not be determined. . Howenstein said the killings were similar to the unsolved slayings of three women who were killed over the last-15 months on hiking trails on Mount Tamalpais, which is about 20 miles south of Point Reyes.

"I would not be surprised if he has killed elsewhere," Howenstein said. He said the Marin sheriff's department plans an aerial search of the entire area from Point Reyes to Mount Tamalpais in an attempt to find more bodies. An infrared camera will aid in the search, he said.

Authorities have come up with a physical description of the man based on information provided by a witness to one of the Mount Tamalpais slayings. He is depicted as being in his late 20s or early 30s and dressed in hiking clothes with a knapsack on his back Authorities have also sketched a detailed psychological portrait of the man based on consultations with a psychologist. Howenstein would not name the psychologist involved, and would give no details on how the profile was constructed. "The thread of similarity (between the slayings) has to do with what appears to be the ritualistic aspect of the killings," Howenstein said. This person is motivated to put his victims through a degree of psychological torture — to put them in very uncomfortable physical positions and make them plead for their lives," he said. All the bodies were found face down, he said, and he said this indicated the victims were being terrorized when killed.

The sheriff said the profile indicat ed that the killer is "beginning to fall apart psychologically

"The killer soon will begin to experience physical deterioration due to his lack of success" in getting relief from killing, said Howenstein. No sexual motive has been established in any of the killings, said Howenstein. He added that it could not be immediately determined if the latest victims had been sexually assaulted

One of the women found at Point Reves was identified as Diana O'Connell, 22, who was said to be from the "East Coast." Earlier, she had been identified as a New Yorker. The second woman was identified as Shana May, 25, who police said recently moved to the San Francisco Bay area from Troy, Idaho

According to Howenstein, the killer shot the two women Friday to draw attention to himself after the first two Point Reyes murders went undetect-

Officials said the March murder of Barbara Schwartz on Mount Tamalpais was witnessed by a woman whose name was not released. They said the witness was drawn to the scene by loud voices.

Miss Schwartz's voice was angry at first, according to the witness, but turned to cries for help. The witness ran after seeing a man strike Miss Schwartz with a flashing instrument, police said.

Two of the Mount Tamalpais victims - Edda Kane of Mill Valley and Anne Alderson of San Rafael - were shot in the head, and Ms. Kane's body, like the bodies of the latest victims, was found nude. Miss Schwartz, who was stabbed to death, was also from Mill Valley.

Six injured in private plane crash

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -The pilot of a private plane that crashed during an emergency landing attempt remained hospitalized today while federal investigators tried to find out why the craft overshot a runway at Mustang Island Airport near here.

Douglas Leagh, 43, of Lilburn, Ga.,

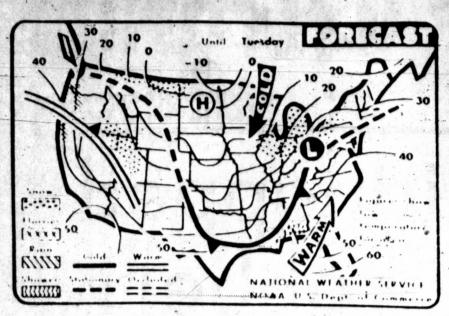

was trapped inside the wreckage for a short time after the twin-engine jet smashed into a mud flat Sunday afternoon, authorities said.

The turboprop jet apparently lost the left engine after making a customs stop at the immigration office in Brownsville, officials said.

Police displayed this life size sketch of the man they are looking for in the deaths of seven women in the past 15 months. (AP Laserphoto)

The Austin-based Moeller will talk about other legislation, such as federal crop insurance, she said.

"That's what we're mainly looking Ms. Bryant said. "That's a problem. We can't afford them (crop insurance premiums) in this area. Court to rule on male-only draft

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today agreed to judge the constitutionality of an a male-only military draft.

Some 4 million men were required to register for the draft last July. If e justices uphold a lower court's ruling - and their decision probably will not be announced until sometime next spring or summer - the government might have to destroy all records of that registration.

If an all-male draft is ruled a form of unconstitutional discrimination, Congress will have to amend the Military Selective Service Act to include women as potential draftees.

A three-judge federal court panel in Philadelphia last July 18 struck down the nation's 31-year-old draft law because it excluded women.

"The principal reason the government proffers for a male-only registration is that it provides military flexibility," the panel said. "The record here, however, reveals that women do serve a useful role in the military and provide important skills

That all changed last December when President Carter reinstituted draft registration in the wake of the Soviet Union's intervention in Afghanistan.

The Carter administration's plan for a July 21 registration of all 19- and 20-year-old men was jeopardized by the Philadelphia panel's ruling. But Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan granted an emergency request by the government and allowed the registration to be carried out. Brennan said he believed the government's formal appeal to the Supreme Court would attract the necessary four votes for granting full re-

In that appeal, government lawyers argued that the courts should uphold laws involving national defense if their differing treatment of the sexes is "rationally related" to their objectives - a standard far less stringent than the "substantially related" standard.

But even if the stricter standard is used, the government contended, "the registration provisions, which are a mechanism for implementing induction, are constitutional.

"Conscription serves generally to supplement the volunteer forces with the additional personnel Congress considers necessary to defend the nation, respond to emergency or deter aggression," government lawyers ar gued

"The dominant objective of the act is to raise an army to meet these needs speedily and efficiently. The entire system is, by definition, combat oriented, and plaintiffs have not challenged the validity of current law and policy precluding women from combat and combat-supported roles," the appeal said.

The Pennsylvania men who first challenged the draft law's constitutionality were identified in court records as Robert Goldberg, David Sitman and Owen Jones. They are represented by Philadelphia lawyer Donald Weinberg.

Firefighters work against the last of 11 blazes

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) --Homeowners were surveying the wreckage of their burned-out homes, trying to decide whether to rebuild or move away, as firefighters worked against four blazes, the last of 11 fires that scorched Southern California for a week

Foresters worked feverishly to reseed ground cover, trying to avert the threat of flooding. Officials were worried that the charred, barren ground would not soak up water from overdue winter rains.

And in San Bernardino, police sent out armed patrols to hunt rats that fled into the city from areas hit by the fires. "They're not really dangerous, but they are pests," said Police Lt. Dave Thomas.

The blaze called the Indian fire, still burning out of control in a rugged wilderness area east of Los Angeles, was expected to be contained today. spokesmen for the U.S. Forest Service said. Three other fires were contained, but still burning. An army of firefighters, which reached 7,100 people at its peak, was being partly demobilized and sent home.

Meanwhile, homeowners were coming back to neighborhoods that looked like they had been bombed. The fires destroyed about 320 homes. "Usually, people build right in the same place again, but I just don't know this time," said Forest Service spokesman Gene Knight. "It's still so hard for me to come here," said Mrs. Wayne Woolery; a widow whose home was destroyed. Mrs. Woolery, whose husband died last year, said she'd lived in her San Bernardino house for six years.

'Now I just feel so helpless - so alone," she said.

The disastrous week of fires began last Monday when 100 mph northeasterly Santa Ana winds roared down mountain canyons, fanning 11 major blazes that blackened 140 square

The fires followed others the week before and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s office has put the damage toll since Nov. 15 at more than $64 million and more than 100,000 acres.

Firefighters contained three fires on Sunday: the 12,000-acre Thunder fire in the Mount Baldy area, 40 miles northeast of Los Angeles; the 6,000acre Lockwood fire in Ventura County; and the 2,300-acre Proctor fire in San Diego County

A fire is considered contained when it is encircled with a fire line. It is considered controlled when it is completely out except for mopping up hot

The reseeding of thousands of blackened acres was already under way, as foresters rushed to grow some ground cover on the denuded hillsides before already overdue winter rains began falling.

"Some flooding appears to be inevitable," said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Nancy Curriden. "There is a chance of showers Tuesday and that could cause problems if it is more than just showers.'

Game of business

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Gavin Brackenridge is talkinking a lot about games this Christmas, but he isn't playing games. He is promoting them.

He earns 60 cents for every "Fortune 500" game sold at retail, and more on sales to schools and companies. And for having their names on his game board. 20 blue chip companies have paid him $30,000 each.

That probably isn't half the story, for this isn't so much the tale of a game about business as it is a story of entrepreneurship.

It begins at least four years ago with disribution in France of "Business." a board and dice game devised by Richard Fenwick, like Brackenridge, a 1969 graduate of the Wharton School of Finance.

'Business' was aptly named, since it attempted to create many of the situations faced by the chiefs of major corporations: Prime rate increases, strikes, inflation, acquisition opportunities et al.

"You don't just build houses or take a handout from the 'community chest,' says Brackenridge, perhaps alluding to another vastly popular game called 'Monopoly," introduced nearly 50 years ago.

"You forge empires and face all the challenges and dilemmas along the way unfriendly takeover bids, collapse of credit sources, a squeeze from the cartel that controls your natural resources. There are strikes to contend with, natural disasters, changes in government regulations, stock offerings, ad campaigns. It's everything business'

"Business" sold 250,000 copies in France alone before Fenwick and Brackenridge, a real estate adviser to major crporations decided to take it to the U.S. market under the auspices of Editions Fenwick Inc.

As in the game, problems arose. The two young businessmen sought to call the American edition "Fortune," but found the name already copyrighted by another game company. They selected "Fortune 500." There-was a problem there too, because Fortune Magazine had developed, maintained and for many years promoted its list of the 500 largest companies. It was a prestigious name; and it belonged to Time Inc. For what Brackenridge describes as, "a very small royalty," Time Inc.

agreed to the use of the name, one reason being, Brackenridge suggests, that young players might someday subscribe to Fortune Magazine. In the spirit of nothing is impossible, Brackenridge then suggested to some of the biggest U.S. companies that they pay $30,000 each to have their names and logotypes ensconced on the game's 4-inch panels.

Some, he relates, didn't even bother to answer, and he imagines their chuckles about his audacious suggestion. Others, however, seized the opportunity, seeing National audique new advertising medium.

Alcoa, Chase Bank, Southern Pacific, Mobil, Pan American, Aetna Life & Casualty and others signed and put up their $30,000. "We took in $600,000 before we ever sold a game in the United States," he says

In the same spirit, some of the companies decided to exploit their new and monopolistic (one ad agency, one insurer etc.) position on what Brackenridge says is bound to be the greatest business game ever

H.J. Heinz Co. mentioned "Fortune 500" in its magazine and sold 675 games. W.R.Grace & Co. enclosed a flyer with its Dec. 14 dividend check to 50,000 shareholders offering the game at half the $20 price.

Some 45,000 games have been sold in the United States so far, but they represent but a fraction of the six and seven-digit numbers to which He seriously contemplates the school market, for example, and is now considering four levels of complexity for different classes. And, he foresees big sales in countries such as Canada, where this week he is signing up some of that country's biggest, most prestigious firms. Others business games are being planned. In fact, a stock market game already has been developed and may be introduced in the future. The two entrepreneurs foresee Editions Fenwick becoming a major corporation. For the time being, however, "Fortune 500" occupies most of their time. "It has an enormous amount of drama associated with it," says Brackenridge. Playing it or promoting it? "Both," he replied.

Big budget cut promise headed for graveyard

By OWEN ULLMANN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan's pledge to make deep cuts in the government's 1981 budget seems headed for the graveyard of unfulfilled political promises. That's the place where Jimmy Carter's yow to balance the budget this year was buried.

The president elect has a lot working against him - the calendar, legal barriers, spending projections that keep ballooning, a Congress that preaches more than practices austerity, and interest groups that holler at the first scratch of the budget knife on their special programs.

Reagan promised in September to seek a 2 percent cut in the budget to accompany his proposed 10 percent cut in taxes for 1981. At the time, the budget was projected at $633 billion for the year. Reagan's plan was to eliminate $13 billion that he says is waste.

Now, because of inflation and updated economic forecasts, the budget is estimated at $650 billion and growing. But Reagan's chief budget advisers say the president-elect still wants to hold the line at $620 billion, even if it means finding $30 billion in cuts.

That sounds like an impossible task for Reagan's budget experts. Should they come up with the impossible, Congress is certain to balk.

For one thing, the fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, will be nearly one-third over when Reagan takes office, and much of the budget will have been appropriated by then. One official who is keeping an eye on federal spending for Reagan says that at the rate money seems to be flowing out so far; the budget will exceed $650 billion

Beyond that, more than a third of the budget goes for defense and paying off federal debt, two areas that are immune to cuts. If anything, Reagan may seek an increase in the $159 billion defense budget approved by Congress, requiring even deeper cuts elsewhere. And he is not about to welch on the national

Social programs such as Social Security and unemployment compensation account for almost half the budget, but any meaningful cuts in these areas require changes in the laws that created the programs. Reagan advisers acknowledge this approach would take additional time that they may not have to draft the legislation and get it through Congress. Congress itself is the major obstacle, for without its approval Reagan's budget proposals go nowhere. Congressional support is easy to obtain when it comes to non-binding commitments to spending reductions, but not when it comes to actual cutbacks in specific programs. Ninety percent of the federal budget is practically uncontrollable given present law and political realities," confesses Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico, who becomes chairman of the Senate Budget Committee when the Republicans take control of the chamber in January. The political realities include the fear of losing votes from teachers if aid to education is pared, or losing labor support if job programs are trimmed, or upsetting hometown constitutents if a planned federal construction project is Reality for Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, one of Reagan's closest economic advisers, is a budget of no less than $630 billion for 1981.

William H. Taft IV, a Reagan aide specializing on the budget, reaffirmed the new administration's determinination to limit spending this year. But he also hinted that the real intention of this exercise is to rein in the budget several years down the road if 1981 is beyond Reagan's grasp. 'Reducing spending is so much easier in four years if you start now," Taft said. The objective, he added, is "getting control of the federal budget." Similar words were uttered four years ago by President Carter and his economic advisers when they moved into the White House. But the budget Last March, Carter abruptly redrafted his proposed budget for 1981 and announced without equivocation that it would be balanced for the first time in a some economists call wishful thinking Several estimates put this year's deficit at $38 billion or higher. And Reagan may be able to little about it.

Parachuting hero fails to show

By BILL CURRY The Los Angeles Times

ARIEL, Wash. - Six streamers of colorful pennants were stretched across the main street of Ariel, a town that is not much more than a wide spot in a dead-end

. The Ariel Store was gaily draped with red, white and blue crepe. A band played and the crowd was in a mood of celebration and anticipation.

It was a hero's welcome, for sure, but the hero never showed, as best as anyone could tell.

At least if he did he wasn't telling. It was the fifth annual D.B. Cooper Party, and for the fifth time, the man who parachuted from a Northwest Airlines 727 on Nov. 24, 1971, with a $200,000 ransom failed to join revelers in one of the nation's strangest

So Cooper was hailed in absentia by the 300-plus revelers as "an underdog," toasted as "an original" and envied as one who "beat the system." But the question lingered: Was he here?

One likely "suspect," an entrant in a D.B. Cooper look-alike contest, dropped cryptic claims to the daring deeds done that Thanksgiving Eve in 1971.

"D.B. Cooper is a big thing up here, but when I jumped out of the plane, I didn't even come down here," said Jim Byrne, a regular at the Ariel Store and Tavern and probably the only man in U.S. history to win a contest for looking like an FBI sketch.

He won $25, a T-shirt and, as one reporter suggested. may also receive a visit from the FBI, which apparently was not here, either.

The gathering each year on the Saturday night after Thanksgiving is a part of the national fascination with D.B. Cooper, believed by some to be America's only successful skyjacker, a puzzle who tumbled out of a jetliner on a rainy Northwest night. He has never been heard from, nor have any remains been found. It was unclear whether Saturday night's larger than usual crowd was swelled by increased publicity in both Washington and Oregon or by the discovery last February of about $4,000 in soggy $20 ransom bills on the banks of the Columbia River near Vancouver, Wash. Only a few of those on hand would admit, as Carl Steinwachs, 30, did, that they would "like to think he's

"But deep down inside I think he's dead," Steinwachs

"People, they think he's alive," said Germaine Tricola, a former owner of the Ariel Store and Tayern who founded the annual party in 1976. She remembers the skyjacking that night in the fall of 1971, a time of year when not many strangers walk the back roads around nearby Lake Merwin on the Lewis River. And she remembers two strangers who came in that 'I think he got away," added Everett Moran, 59, who recalled that a mysterious airplane practiced landings daily on a nearby airfield at about that time, and did not return after Thanksgiving.

The white-clapboard, shingle-faced Ariel Store and Tayern is a center of Cooper memorabilia, and is now owned by Dave Fisher, 31. Fisher plans to continue the 16-hour beer bashes in honor of Cooper "as long as there's interest

And Richard Purdy, 33, author of "The Ballad of D.B. Cooper," thinks the interest will hold as long as Coopers's whereabouts remain unknown.

"It's the mystery of it all that brings people here," he said between renderings of his ballad. "He's a hero," Purdy said, "He symbolizes the little guy getting away with something against the Establishment. Everybody would like to get back at the big corporations, and that's what happened.

-Although Tricola does not condone what Cooper did, she acknowledges admiration for him. "He's in the same category as Big Foot," she said of another local legend. "He's not a hero. We don't condone what he

Soviet authorities again block Jews from seminar

MOSCOW — For the second time in two weeks, Soviet authorities Sunday blocked Jewish scientists and engineers from attending a scientific seminar in the apartment of imprisoned Jewish activist Victor Brailovsky.

For the last eight years, the informal Sunday seminar has been the intellectual lifeblood for dozens of Jewish researchers who have been denied permission to emigrate to Israel and who also, upon applying to emigrate, lost their jobs.

Eight plainclothes agents and two gray-uniformed militiamen blocked the entrance Sunday to the stairwell leading to Brailovsky's high-rise apartment. One of the agents told Western correspondents that they could not enter because a funeral was taking place in the building, and also, because the Brailovsky apartment was under "sanitary restriction" for fumigation. "You're acting improperly," he told the correspondents. This is none of your affair.'

Mrs. Brailovsky, a 15-year-old mathematician, challengd the 10 men to no avail.

"It is my apartment, these are my guests," she said of the corresponscientists waiting nearby. "This is not your apartment house. Go home," one of the plainclothes agents ordered.

In all, some 35 to 40 scientists and engineers were turned away Sunday, among them former university professors and laboratory directors: Sev eral said that as a matter of principle they would not change the seminar's

No sign to identify Iraqi embassy; only plaqueless wooden frame stands

By DON SHANNON The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - There is no sign to identify the turn-of-the-century orange brick mansion just off Washington's Embassy Row, only a wooden frame to which a brass plaque was once attached.

In what was once the Iraqi embassy, the "Iraqi interests section" has functioned in anonymity for 13

Interests sections are substitutes for embassies when nations have broken formal diplomatic relations but still conduct business with each

In addition to Iraq, which broke with Washington after the Arab-Israeli war of June 1967, and alone among the Arab states has maintained the break, a Cuban interests section was established here in 1977 and the newest, an Iramian interests section, was set up after the expulsion of Iranian Embassy officials last April by President Carter. All three function under the flags of other nations - the Iraqis as a part of the Indian Embassy, the Cubans as part of the Czechoslovak Embassy and the Iranians as part of the Algerian Em-

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has reported that 5,600 Iranian students have left the United States since the war with Iraq broke out. About 70,000 have remained in this country

Nahidian said the section performs mostly consular work. Earlier this year, a U.S.-born Black Muslim named David Belfield, sought in the assassination of an anti-Khomeini Iranian diplomat, was found to have been an employee of the interests section. The Algerian Embassy permitted U.S. law enforcement officials to search the premises and question staff members, all of whom are now Iranians, according to sources at the Department of State.

Justice Department plans busing suit

By THOMAS O'TOOLE. The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department is considering a plan to file a lawsuit to force the busing of students and thus end the segregation-of public schools in Charleston, S.C.

Sources said the plan to sue the Charleston schools is on the desk of Associate Attorney General John H. Shenefield, who must then pass it on to Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti for final approval. Sources said the plan has already been approved Drew S. Days III, who refused to confirm or deny that the plan exists. We have several cases that have been under investigation for some months and may well reach the point before the end of this administration where there's no alternative but to file them," Days said. "We've never taken the position in this administration that when a case was ready to go that we were going to hold it up.

Sources said an investigation of the public school system in Charleston has been under way since March 1979. when civil rights leaders pointed out to the Justice Department that there' were as few as five white students in all but one of the public elementary schools in Charleston. The tremors were recorded by the Vesuvius Observatory and the National Geodynamics Research Council in Naples, but there was no immediate

"Some sent their children running in all directions just to create confusion and delay our operation," said an official outside Salerno.

"Nobody really wants to go, because it would mean leaving their towns, but the weather is ugly and maybe people don't know that it isn't so nice living in a trailer," Giuseppe Zamberletti, the government's special commissioner for the earthquake zone, told The Associated Press.

Government sources in Naples said nearly 1,000 of the homeless were bused to tourist hotels along the Naples Bay on Sunday, and that thousands more

In the Avellino suburb of Caposele, a 49-year-old man who lost his three children in the earthquake committed suicide by firing a shotgun blast into his head, police reported.

Two strong aftershocks jolted the quake area Sunday, arousing new fears among the survivors. But the only casualty reported was a 62-year-old man who rushed from his shaking house with two children-

With snow, sleet and sub-freezing temperatures threatening the health of those in tent camps, Zamberletti's office announced that 12,000 beds were available in resort hotels along the coasts.

The government said it would pay the hotels their usual rates, pay for the food and other living expenses of the refugees and get them out by April 30, before the start of the tourist season.

Interior Ministry officials said temporary housing would be built.

Iran claims but Iraq denies capture of big oil terminal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iran claimed its commandos captured one of Iraq's major oil shipping terminals in the biggest naval battle of the Persian Gulf war, but Iraq said its forces repulsed the attack and sank a frigate and three other warships. Iran said its naval forces occupied the giant Mina

An Iraqi communique said in addition to the four Iranian warships sunk, Iraqi forces shot down three of Iran's Phantom jet fighter bombers and two helicopter gunships.

Iran said one of its gunboats was badly damaged but admitted no other losses.

Tehran Radio said the battle began Friday with Iranian raids on Mina al-Bakmand the port of Fao, 12 miles to the north. Fao, at the mouth of the Shatt al-Arab estuary, is the site of the pumping stations that send crude oil to Mina al-Bakr and Khor al-Amaya, another offshore loading terminal nearby.

Abscam trial in final phases

NEW YORK (AP) - The federal Abscam bribery conspiracy trial of Reps. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., and John M. Murphy, D-NeY., is entering its final phases with lengthy closing arguments expect-

Last-minute testimony was scheduled today from an FBI technician, who was to be questioned about a back-up audio tape of an Oct. 20, 1979, meeting between Murphy and undercover agents. Federal prosecutor Thomas Puccio was then to begin closing arguments to the jury. The two lame-duck representatives, both chairmen of powerful House committees, are accused of sharing portions of $100,000 in bribe payoffs from undercover FBI agents in return for promising to assist bogus Arab sheiks with immigration mat-

Last week Puccio told U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt in Brooklyn that his summation could take as long as three hours, including his allotted 30 minutes for rebuttal. Stephen Kaufman, Thompson's main attorney was granted a three-hour period for summation. Michael Tigar, attorney for Murphy, said he would take no longer than 90 minutes. Much of the evidence presented during the trials was in the form of videotapes secretly recorded by FBI agents as the defendants held meetings. Videotapes showed money-laden briefcases leaving meetings in the hands of Howard Criden, a co-defendant whose case was severed.

chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries

Criden was convicted with then-Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., in an earlier Abscam trial. The government contended that Murphy, former Committee, and Thompson, chairman of the House Administration Committee, both knew there was money in the briefcase and that Criden carried the loot out by prearrangement.

Both Thompson and Murphy, with a combined 44 years service in the House, deny they ever received any money. During the trial they attempted to suggest that Criden, a Philadelphia attorney who faces several other Abscam trials, was taking the money in the names of the unsuspecting politicians, but keeping it for himself.

When he took the stand, Thompson said he agreed to meet with the agents posing as representatives of the sheiks only because the Arabs were supposedly interested in making huge investments in his Trenton, N.J., congressional district.

Thompson said the immigration matters raised at his first Oct. 9, 1979, meeting were a surprise to-him. He said that when he met the agents again later in the day he assumed the briefcase Criden left with contained immigration forms.

Murphy never explained what he thought was in the briefcase Criden carried out of their Oct. 20, 1979, meeting with an undercover agent.

Tigar rested Murphy's case without calling a single witness, apparently feeling the government's case was crippled by its inability to show any money went directly into Murphy's pocket.

Murphy and Thompson are the third and fourth congressmen to be tried on Abscam charges. In August Myers was convicted in Brooklyn along with Criden and two others. Myers was then expelled from the House, and lost an election bid to regain his South Philadelphia seat.

Rep. John Jenrette, D.S.C., was convicted in Washington, D.C., in October on similar charges. He was not expelled, but also failed in a bid to regain his Three other congressmen - Reps. Raymond Le derer, D-Pa., Richard Kelly, R-Fla., and Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J. — face Abscam trials. Last week, a federal judge overturned the Abscam convictions of two Philadelphia city officials, ruling that the government had entrapped the defendants.

Rogers favorite today in bid for Hesiman Trophy

NEW YORK (AP) - George logers of South Carolina, the nation's leading rusher, was the favorite for the Heisman Trophy but freshman tailback Herschel Walker of Georgia and defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh were bidding to end the award's domination by senior running backs and quarterbacks.

Also expected to finish high up when the voting for the 46th annual Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding college football player wass nnounced today were quarterbacks Mark Herrmann of Purdue, Jim McMahon of Brigham Young and Art chlichter of Ohio State; running backs Jarvis Redwine of Nebraska, Freeman McNeil of UCLA and Marcus Allen of Southern California; linebackers Mike Singletary of Baylor and Lawrence Taylor of North Carolina and defensive back Kenny Easley of UCLA.

Schlichter was the top returning finisher. He was fourth last year behind running backs Charles White of Southern Cal and Billy Sims of Oklahoma — the 1978 winner — and Brigham Young quarterback Marc Wilson, all seniors.

Other returnees from last year's top 10 were Rogers, who was seventh; Herrmann, eighth, and Florida State middle guard Ron Simmons, who finished ninth but had an injury-plagued off-year in 1980

Undefeated Chaparrals open WJCC play here

Midland College opens its Western Junior College Conference season at 8 p.m. today against Clarendon College at the Chaparral Center and the Chaparrals bring a glittering 7-0 record into the game.

What's remarkable is that six of those victories have come on the road. What's more they have come in two major tournaments, the Quarterback Classic at Hutchinson, Kan., and the Amarillo Classic, where the Chaps repeated as champions over the weekend.

One of the victims in the latter was Clarendon, 96-68, in an opening round game, which probably doesn't make Coach Jerry Stone feel any more comfortable going into tonight's game. It's all a matter of a tendency toward over-confidence.

Also on tap at the Center this week is the Chaparral Classic, a six-team invitational in which WJCC members MC, Howard College and Odessa College will mix it with Western Arizona, St. Philip's of San Antonio and

At Amarillo, MC encountered its toughest games of the season, beating Trinidad by six Friday and then rallying down the stretch to hold off Amarillo, 102-100, for the title.

"I felt it was time for the seniors to take charge," pointed out Johnson, who scored the last five points of a 14-2 burst as the defending Pac-10 champions roared into a 65-54 lead in the late going.

RAY BLUME WAS another senior who helped the Oregon State cause in the second half, scoring 19 points overall. "They are a truly great team," said BYU Coach Frank Arnold. "I said it

The Bruin tailback ran for three touchdowns and set a school career rushing record Sunday as the Bruins belted Oregon State 34-3 in the fourth annual Mirage Bowl at Tokyo's National Stadium.

McNeil rushed for 109 yards in the first half as UCLA, which finished the season 9-2, roared to a 31-0 halftime lead over its Pacific-10 conference rival.

Oregon State, it turned out, flew across the Pacific Ocean to clinch the worst season in its history.

Still, Coach Joe Avezzano of the 0-11 Beavers praised his team, which had only nine seniors on the 70-man roster, for refusing to quit.

"They could have rolled over and been beat as bad as possible," said Avezzano. "I don't have any reservations about looking my players in the eve and feeling good.

If Avezzano was feeling good, then Bruins Coach Terry Donahue should have been euphoric. Instead, Donahue mentioned the players he'd be losing to graduation.

Donahue said that the 18 fourthyear men on the UCLA squad playing their final game Sunday, comprised "one of the top senior classes in the history of the school. Their loss will be a severe blow.'

Especially the loss of McNeil. The speedster, who sat out the second half, ended his four-year career with 3.195 yards rushing, surpassing the record of 3,181 yards set by Wendell Tyler, now of the Los Angeles Rams.

OSU picked up three first downs on its first offensive drive and penetrated to the Bruin 32 before missing a field goal attempt.

From that point on, it was all Bruins. McNeil scored on a 2-yard plunge with 7:39 left in the quarter and came back with a 10-yard run around the left side 56 seconds later after UCLA safety Tom Sullivan recovered Beaver Quarterback Ed Singler's fumble on the OSU 21.

Norm Johnson made it 17-0 with a 35-yard field goal before the quarter

'Notre Dame has a super team and we can't play sloppy," said Walker, adding that he didn't know how he would do against one of the nation's top defensive teams but "hopefully I can do better against Notre Dame.

Quarterback Buck Belue, who another, also was anxious to face the Irish.

"It's Notre Dame now. That's our final goal. We want to be No. 1 on Jan. 2 to prove we deserve the No. 1 rank
