A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
Pray that ye enter not into temptation.—St. Luke, 22:40.
Many a dangerous temptation comes to us in fine, gay colors.—Matthew Henry.

CONTROLLED PRINTING
The printing business is going to be no exception in the world of Federal controlled industry and a code of business ethics, schedules for material prices, labor, hours, advertising and job rates, is now being prepared by a committee appointed from a recent nation-wide meeting held in Chicago. Just how it is all going to turn out, like the innovations in other lines of industry, is and will for some time be a moot question.

Newspaper men, as a rule, spend more time in the interest and looking after the welfare of other folks' business than they do of their own. That is one of the functions of the business—only not to record actual news happenings, but to also offer suggestions to the public generally that will be of wide spread benefit to all.

Some of the commercial printing houses, being in business for purely selfish monetary reasons alone have taken more or less advantage of the public interest of newspapers in cutting and slashing prices on commercial printing, frequently to a point on some staple jobs where it is impossible for smaller concerns to meet the competition without a direct loss. Some exclusive printing concerns have even followed the policy of printing one job, which they know the average country printer is not capable of handling in his smaller plant, at an exorbitant price, and then make a cut-throat price on some other job which the local printer could handle at a reasonable price.

Now the Federal government proposes to step in and establish a scheduled rate of prices that will be fair to all printing establishments. It is hoped the plan will work out to the benefit of all concerned. Everyone is entitled to a reasonable profit on his labor. Printers have large investments in their business in proportion to the profits they obtain. They do not object to paying a reasonable profit on the things they buy and are certainly entitled to the same reasonable consideration for what they sell. We'll see what we see!

THE COW'S RIVAL

Hot, dry weather has been ultra-prevalent in this section for some weeks past, being broken only intermittently by light showers; but there is at least one spot in Bailey county that has shown no effects of the drought, that is the court house lawn which is a veritable oasis of beauty. Both farmers and towns people gaze with green-eyed envy upon it, but Alex Paul goes ahead and turns on the sprinklers, looking wise but not saying a word.

So far as Muleshoe folks can determine, Congress under direction of President Roosevelt passed its regulatory acts upon about everything now needed with one exception. It didn't stabilize the weather, or if they did they overlooked some of the country.

ABOUT THE WEATHER

It's the one that earns enough to pay income tax and hasn't enough influence to dodge.

After all, some Muleshoe folks' idea of heaven is a place where there are enough private affairs for them to meddle in.

There's always hope for the Muleshoe boy who fears he may never be as smart as his Dad.

When it comes right down to brass tacks, the first duty of every Muleshoe citizen is to pay his own way.

We've made a good many acquaintances in Muleshoe, but we haven't yet run across the woman who is willing to save money by letting her husband trim her hats.

Pavement Pickups

No doubt Howard Carlyle has reached the de luxe point of expert salesmanship. According to the story going the rounds this week, a customer wanted to buy a new car, but his stove dropped into Hart's one day last week, and Howard showed him one of those "perfection" type cookers that is pretty close to perfection. Comparing it with two or three other brands, Howard declared this particular stove would cut the cost of fuel in half, and so convinced was the customer that he could then pay an income tax. As it is the government is losing a lot of money on his business.

For the past year and a half there have been plenty of people looking for work," says J. L. Alsop, "but now that conditions are improving there will be plenty who desire a position and a salary."

A pretty good one is being told on one of Muleshoe's prominent citizens who is an ex-school teacher. About two weeks ago he returned from a trip back in East Texas. While there he picked up a group of school children attending a summer school. It was so crowded one girl had to sit on his lap "you like school?" he asked. "Yes, sir," she replied. "Do you go to school every day?" "I never miss a day." "Good, little girl. Here's a reward for that," he remarked, kissing her cheek, and do you like your teacher?" "I am the teacher," she replied.

One day last week a mother went to the Muleshoe hatchery to buy some baby chicks and while Ty Young, manager was waiting on her, she took the opportunity of showing her small son, who she had brought along with her, the mammoth incubator. "Isn't it wonderful, dear," said the mother, "how the little chicks get out of the shell?" "That's nothing," answered the small lad. "What I can't figure out is how they got in there." And Ty, usually very accommodating, didn't offer to explain.

Gilbreath's grocery has got in some kind of new-fangled washing powder and Rufus, salesman de luxe, was trying to sell a package of it to a feminine customer. "Do you think this will really take out all the dirt," she queried. "Sure it will madam," replied the accommodating salesman. "Only yesterday I rubbed some of it on a copy of 'Scandalous Stories' and when I got through I had the Sunday School Gazette."

SNAP SHOTS

If Europe won't cooperate for prosperity then it won't be a good idea for America to resort to the old expedient of minding her own business.

Nations are like men. The only thing that makes them peaceful is the realization that they are easy to lick.

Looks now like "holding companies" won't do much business hereafter, unless it is holding the bag.

No wonder SNAP on the chin nubs the brain when the mere wagging of one can effect thousands that way.

It's some consolation to realize our ancestors didn't live long enough to see what a mess we've made of things.

Perhaps if everybody would take their own medicine this country would soon get well; but alas, they won't!

Shoe dealers say women's feet are growing larger. Yet what else can be expected when they persist in trying to fill men's shoes.

LYLE CASE IS AFFIRMED

Plainview.—The case of C. A. Lyle vs. D. H. Collier, et al, was affirmed by the Court of Civil Appeals Seventh District, at Amarillo.

This is the case in which Judge Clements, in Plainview District Court enjoined J. P. Slier, Justice of Peace, from trying the case, and ordered it transferred to Justice Court at Hale Center. The decision of the higher court holds Judge Clements correct in his orders, and affirmed the case.

Politeness Misunderstood

Mad Tunkins says politeness may be misunderstood. He says "howdy-do" to a stranger and a policeman thought he must be some kind of a smooth villain looking for a victim.—Washington Star.

PRICE PARITY FOR FARMERS
Every once in a while folks are running across words that are new to them. It may perchance be an old word they have frequently seen or heard but didn't pay much attention to its meaning. Just now the word "parity" is being used largely in connection with prices and products. Here are some illustrations of its meaning:
"Parity" of fair exchange value of farm prices, is a situation in which the prices of farm products will enable the farmer to buy on the average the same amount of goods and services with the same amount of farm products that he could buy in the pre-war period. The base period which is fixed by the Farm Act is in general the pre-war period August, 1909, to July 1914 (for tobacco, August, 1919, to July 1924).

Since that 1919-1914 period, farm prices were above "parity" for only two years during the World War. In the depression of 1920 farm prices drop so much lower and quicker than prices of other products that 23 per cent disparity resulted. It has continued ever since, and in intensified form in the past three years.

In order that farm products be on a parity with goods that farmers buy, prices of farm products must be doubled even if the prices of other products do not rise. As prices of non-agricultural goods rise, farm prices must rise even more to come to a parity level. It is not the plan of the administrators of the act to accomplish complete parity at once.

Although farm prices were above the pre-war level during the period 1920 to 1930 a constant disparity continued. This disparity was smallest in 1925, due to small crops. Then the ratio of prices received to prices paid by farmers was 92. A decline in farm prices then followed, making this ratio as low as 48 in February, 1933, the lowest point on record.

The long continued disparity since 1920 has prevented farmers making repairs and replacements to such an extent that the condition of their buildings and machinery has seriously declined. Prices must continue for some time at a parity level at least in order to make up for the losses of the post-war years and to restore agriculture to the same condition relatively that it held during the 5 years 1919 to 1914.

Texas reported 105.58 taxable incomes in 1932, amounting to $48,849,717, upon which a total of $8,633,146 taxes were paid.

Texas wealth in 1930 was $52,740,000. In 1933 the estimated wealth of the state was $10,280,000,000, showing an increase of 194 times in 83 years.

The contract with the Moore Gas Supply Co., for supplying gas to the City of Lubbock which some months ago was extended, was last week turned down by the City Commission.

Hale County Farmers and Home Owners Protective Association will hold a picnic at the city park in Plainview Thursday, July 20. Milo Reno, organizer will be principal speaker.

There are 2,718,240 insured policies in force in Texas, carrying a total of $3,176,316,478 in insurance, the number of policies in force having been doubled during the past eight years.
