Excited Cuban refugees wave toward land at a pier in Key West, Fla., as they arrived aboard an ocean-going tug boat, "Dr. Daniels," Tuesday afternoon. More than 700 people were aboard, making this the largest single load of refugees since the boatlift began more than two weeks ago. (AP Laserphoto)

Refugees 'elbow-to-elbow' and in need of help

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — With more than 4,000 refugees a day arriving here aboard the "Freedom Flotilla" — most straight from Cuban prisons — another 300 National Guardsmen have been dispatched to Key West.

Elbow-to-elbow crowds swamped makeshift cafeterias and dormitories here and at a "tent city" in the Florida Panhandle, and relief workers pleaded for donations of food and clothing as the unrelenting flood of arrivals swelled past 20,000.

"These people come over here soaking wet from being at sea, the babies have raspy breathing and they need dry clothes," said Red Cross volunteer Anne Hernandez.

Meanwhile, federal officials said supplies and personnel were on the way after President Carter declared a state of emergency, making $10 million available. But volunteer coordinator Arturo Cobo said the federal help was "very slow." The National Guardsmen were to help keep peace and order among the milling refugees.

Prisoners or ex-convicts accounted for four of every five refugees arriving this week aboard small boats from the Cuban port of Mariel, immigration officials estimated. On Tuesday, the first time in the 16-day-old boatlift, the inmates included women.

"I kissed the ground when I arrived here," said Rita Ramos, 24, who had been jailed for putting up anti-government posters. "I don't have the words to explain how I feel ... it's freedom."

Federal officials said 122 "hard-core" criminals had been sent to a prison near Talladega, Ala.

Temper occasionally have flared under the sizzling Florida sun, but there have been "no major problems at all," said National Guard Col. Richard Capps.

Round-the-clock airlifts have carried 3,600 emigrants to Eglin Air Force Base, where they are housed in an overflowing "tent city," hangars, barracks and a gymnasium. Officials said they hoped to begin sending Cubans to sponsors today.

"We're going to have a total of about 10,000 people here in two more days and it's going to take two more weeks to build enough tents to put them in," said Maj. John Toner.

In Miami, two abandoned Nike missile sites are being readied to relieve overcrowding at Eglin, federal officials said.

Immigration and Naturalization Service officers processed 4,005 refugees Tuesday, including more than 600 from the 150-foot salvage ship Dr. Daniels. Reports from still-jammed Mariel say an even larger vessel, the Americas, would soon return with as many as 900 refugees.

All but a few dozen passengers aboard the Dr. Daniels were from prisons or on parole. The Cuban-Americans who chartered the ship said they weren't allowed to take the 158 relatives they set out to retrieve.

The Coast Guard called the Dr. Daniels "grossly unsafe" and said it may charge the operator with criminal negligence for not carrying sufficient life vests and safety equipment.

One arriving prisoner, Elsa Hernandez, said she had been sentenced to four years in jail for being "anti-social" after she unknowingly criticized Cuban President Fidel Castro to a member of his secret police.

Maria Napoles, a 28-year-old mother of six, said she had been in and out of prison for nine years, labeled a "dangerous element."

Carter issues plea for help in dealing with refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a stream of Cubans arriving in uncontrollable numbers, President Carter has no alternative but to grant them all at least temporary refuge in the United States, White House officials say.

"There are questions about the ultimate resolution of this that can't be answered yet," White House press secretary Jody Powell admitted Tuesday.

In the meantime, he made clear that it is unrealistic to set a limit on how many refugees will be accepted.

"We are dealing with a real world situation," Powell said. "If you mean do we plan to tow them back to Cuba, the answer is no."

He issued a plea for help from Latin American countries, saying Carter regards it as an "international problem."

To ease the financial strain on Florida, where most of the Cubans are landing, the president declared a state of emergency in portions of the state Tuesday and made $10 million available immediately from a special refugee fund.

Carter's action came a day after he promised to welcome tens of thousands of Cubans fleeing the regime of President Fidel Castro. And it followed a meeting with Florida congressmen who pleaded for federal help in handling the boatloads of Cubans arriving each hour.

The influx of refugees deposited at Key West, Fla., edged past 20,000 persons Tuesday as food and clothing supplies at a nearby shelter ran short. Security investigations delayed resettlement attempts, which may begin today.

Immigration officials at the scene said many Cubans were simply ordered out of their country, some of them from jail. "These people aren't emigrating, they're being deported," one commented.

Powell assailed Castro for "calculated and cynical exploitation," including jeopardizing lives, charging "exorbitant" fees for water, and forcing Cuban-Americans to transport unrelated Cubans to the United States when they arrive to fetch their relatives.

"Small boat owners are also exploiting the situation through charging exorbitant fees for the chartering of their boats and also chartering boats which are grossly unsafe and unfit," said Powell.

He served notice that "grossly unsafe" boats chartered to transport refugees may be confiscated.

Victor Palmieri, U.S. refugee commissioner, said the administration is considering air and sea lifts to bring the refugees into the United States.

"It's happened before," he said at a White House briefing. "It's clearly feasible. Everything is being discussed."

Palmieri predicted "it's going to take months" before the complicated processing of refugees is completed. "I think there are going to be a lot of problems," he added.

Bill Williams, a spokesman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency, said the emergency declaration for parts of Florida was "the first one ever" for such a purpose. It normally covers such things as snow removal.

The declaration will enable the federal government to reimburse the state for "extraordinary costs." Williams said he had "no idea" how much money ultimately will be involved.

The decision to grant $10 million immediately originally was announced last week. Powell said it will go primarily to voluntary and charitable organizations helping the effort.

After meeting with Carter, Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., told reporters: "It's very, very dangerous what Castro is making happen here. We are trying to see that those who have no family connections (in Florida) are relocated elsewhere."

An estimated 60 percent of the refugees have no relatives in Florida.

Two Florida Republicans, Reps. Richard Kelly and L.A. Bafalis, urged that the exodus be stopped.

"If we are going to accept these people, we have to do it on the basis of a rational plan," Bafalis said. "We have laws in this country and the problem I see is that we are being held hostage again."

Eugene Eidenberg, deputy assistant to the president, described the situation as "very tender."

"For the U.S. government to use force to interfere with families' attempts to reunite would be very difficult," he said.

Iranian gunman shoots Anglican bishop's son

By The Associated Press

An unidentified gunman ambushed the 24-year-old son of Iran's Anglican bishop and killed him with four shots through the head and neck, it was reported today. The young man worked as an interpreter for foreign reporters in Tehran.

Meanwhile, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, a top Iranian revolutionary leader, said the end of the Iranian Embassy siege in London would not speed release of the American hostages. He said a parliamentary debate on the fate of the Americans would not be held at least until mid-June.

In another development, an alleged American woman spy who was arrested two days ago and has not been publicly identified was reported transferred to the custody of the Iranian Foreign Ministry.

Bahram Deghani Tafti, an Oxford graduate, was ambushed Tuesday night as he drove to a hotel in central Tehran from a college in the north of the city where he was a lecturer, according to reports reaching London. The gunman reportedly forced Tafti out of the car before shooting him.

The night before his death, Tafti told foreign reporters his apartment had been broken into and that he was worried about his safety, British newspapers reported.

The British Embassy in Tehran confirmed that Tafti, who held dual Iranian-British citizenship, had been found slain.

Tafti's father, Bishop Deghani Tafti, heads Iran's 4,000-strong Anglican community. Since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution 15 months ago, he, his family and his employees have been targets of violence.

The bishop left Iran after escaping an assassination attempt last October and now resides in Cyprus. A week ago, the bishop's Scottish secretary, Jean Waddell, was shot and critically wounded when gunmen broke into her Tehran home. Last year, the bishop's English-born wife, Margaret, was shot in the hand when gunmen broke into their house in Isfahan, 210 miles south of the Iranian capital.

Informed sources told a Western reporter in Tehran today that an unidentified American woman arrested Monday night and accused of working for the Central Intelligence Agency had been turned over to the custody of the Foreign Ministry.

The militia-like revolutionary guard claimed it had documents proving that the woman worked for the CIA.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said today the department still had no confirmed information on the case. The Swiss Embassy, handling U.S. affairs in Tehran, said it had asked the Foreign Ministry for information but thus far had received none.

Beheshti, secretary of Iran's Revolutionary Council and justice minister, spoke with Western reporters in Tehran.

He rejected a suggestion made Tuesday by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher that the Iranian government might be persuaded to release the American hostages more quickly because of the British success in freeing the Iranian hostages in London in a commando raid Monday.

Carter, Reagan keep winning Challengers insist better days coming

By The Associated Press

President Carter and Ronald Reagan are three-quarters of the way to rival nominations for the White House, and while their challengers insist they still can find openings, the time and the numbers are running out fast.

Democrat Carter and Republican Reagan made big leads bigger with triple landslide victories in Tuesday's Indiana, Tennessee and North Carolina presidential primary elections.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and George Bush both said they have better elections days ahead. But unless those days come soon, they won't matter.

Kennedy and Bush won in the District of Columbia primaries. Kennedy easily outpolled Carter. Reagan wasn't even entered in the Republican election.

All in all, Carter gained 161 delegates Tuesday, running his total to 1,306 of the 1,666 it will take to win renomination. Kennedy picked up 62, for a total of 721.

Thus, Carter needs 360 of the 1,264 delegates still to be chosen in order to fashion a majority.

Kennedy said he has no thought of dropping his challenge to Carter. "I never thought it was going to be easy," he said. "We realize we are the underdogs. But that's going to make us work a little harder, and that's what we intend to do."

In Tuesday's Republican competition, Reagan won 108 delegates, Bush 32. That gives the former California governor 744 votes for nomination, while Bush has 170. It will take 998 to win.

Reagan must win 254 more delegates from 930 still to be contested. "I'll still keep on campaigning," Reagan said in Los Angeles. "I want to see that final figure."

He said he wasn't going to press Bush to withdraw as a candidate, although he already has suggested that his rival is close to the point at which there will be no mathematical excuse to keep going.

Reagan said he might soon start thinking about a vice presidential running mate. Bush said he wouldn't accept if asked. Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said he would. Carter collected 68 percent of the Democratic vote in Indiana, 70 percent in North Carolina and 75 percent in Tennessee to win — as expected — in all three states.

Reagan gained similar runaways. He had 74 percent of the Indiana GOP vote, 67 percent in North Carolina, 74 percent in Tennessee.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, a Republican embarked on an independent presidential campaign, was nonetheless on the GOP ballot in all four primaries. Anderson gained 29 percent of the vote in the District of Columbia, where he and minor candidates were the only opponents to Bush. Anderson got 10 percent of the Indiana vote, 5 percent in North Carolina and 4 percent in Tennessee.

At the White House, Press Secretary Jody Powell said it was all over for Kennedy. He said Carter and Reagan will be the nominees, and suggested that choice may affect the judgment of voters in the 16 remaining primaries.

Powell also said "there is very little doubt" that Anderson's independent campaign would help Reagan.

In Indianapolis, Tim Kraft, deputy manager of the Carter campaign, said the president can count on enough delegates now to be "a little over 200 shy of the number needed to nominate." Kraft said that should give Kennedy second thoughts about continuing the contest.

Donald Michael, a Carter backer who serves as Indiana Democratic chairman, said it would be best for the party if Kennedy quit and worked for unity behind a Carter ticket.

In Reagan's behalf, Senate Republican leader Baker had a similar message for Bush: "The longer he stays in, the longer it'll postpone the day when we can all rally behind the man who, barring extreme unforeseen circumstances, is going to be the Republican nominee."

Bush's campaign manager, James Baker, insisted there was still time for a comeback.

"We've been buried three times in this campaign," he said. "We fully expect to be back."

But the Bush strategist acknowledged that to do it, Bush will have to upset Reagan in the California presidential primary on June 3. That finale is for 168 Republican delegates, winner take all.

OPEC oil ministers open meeting

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The OPEC oil ministers began meeting in Saudi Arabia today in an attempt to resolve their pricing differences and restore the unity that enabled them to dominate the oil market.

"The conference is to examine an overall pricing strategy of OPEC in the light of international changes and individual trends among producing states," the Saudi government radio said in announcing the meeting had begun.

"The conference also will discuss energy problems affecting the future of the industrialized world and explore ways of bolstering relations between OPEC and Third World countries."

The ministers failed at their last meeting, in Caracas, Venezuela, in December, to agree on a uniform price, setting off a free-for-all ranging from the $26 a barrel charged by conservative Saudi Arabia to $45-$50 on spot markets.

The current meeting, in the Red Sea resort city of Taif, "is, essentially, an attempt to give OPEC a new lease on life after the Caracas slump, the most fractious deliberations on prices in OPEC's history," a Saudi diplomat said. The diplomat, who requested anonymity, said the Taif conference has been overshadowed by "discouraging action," with some members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries unilaterally increasing their prices and reducing production.

Libya, Iran, Venezuela, Algeria are among the price hawks, while Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Iraq and the United Arab Emirates are the leading moderates, he said.

To bridge the gap, the ministers in Taif are to consider a Saudi proposal for a floor price adjustable on a quarterly basis in line with an index reflecting the impact of inflation on world trade and an exchange rate adjustment based on a basket of currencies.

The ministers also are to discuss a proposal for increasing the base price proportionately to the growth in real Gross National Product of the industrialized countries of the West.

Industry experts say that for every $1 a barrel increase in average OPEC prices that retail gasoline and heating oil prices in the United States rise by 1.5 cents a gallon. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

Extended forecasts

Friday Through Sunday: West Texas: Chance of thundershowers north Friday; otherwise considerable sunshine most sections into the weekend.

More rain possible

Following a brief, but heavy thunderstorm in the Midland area Tuesday night, the weatherman is calling for a 50 percent chance tonight of more heavy thunderstorms for the Permian Basin area.

The chance for rain and thunderstorms will continue through Thursday, although it drops to a 30 percent chance for Thursday.

About .39 inch of rain was recorded during Tuesday night's storm at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Tuesday's storm brought May's rainfall total up to .91 inch and the yearly total to 2.55 inches.

Midland apparently escaped any damaging wind or hail Tuesday night, although there were some reports of hail falling near Greenwood.

In areas around the Tall City, there were varying reports of precipitation amounts occurring in Tuesday night's showers. Lamesa reported receiving .10 inch, Stanton .60 inch, while Big Spring and Garden City had .80 inch each.

Most of Tuesday night's rainfall in those areas occurred between 8 and 10:30 p.m.

Tuesday's high of 82 fell far short of the record high for that date of 103 degrees set in 1947.

The record low for today is 42 degrees set in 1933, compared to last night's low of 54 degrees.

Winds tonight should be easterly at 10-15 mph.

Midland man injured in mishap

A 46-year-old Midland man was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon for injuries he sustained when the truck he was driving overturned in Martin County.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, Hugh Lavern Blair, 4700 Pleasant Drive, was injured about 2:50 p.m. Tuesday less than a mile east of mile marker 150 in Martin County.

Investigating troopers said Blair was driving the truck east on the south service road of Interstate 20 at that location and was turning left when he apparently ran off the right side of the road, overcorrected and the truck rolled onto its right side.

Blair suffered broken ribs in the accident, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Partly cloudy with a few scattered thundershowers Thursday. Cooler north tonight and most sections Thursday. Highs today, 70s north to mid 80s Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight, 60s north to 80s extreme south. Highs Thursday, 60s north to near 80 Big Bend valleys.

North Texas: Partly cloudy and warm today. Scattered afternoon thundershowers. Cloudy chance of thundershowers and cooler tonight and Thursday. High today in the 80s. Low tonight in the 50s. High Thursday in 70s.

South Texas: Widely scattered showers and thundershowers today, becoming more numerous over northern sections tonight. Continued warm today and tonight, turning a little cooler over northern sections Thursday. Highs today, mid 80s north to low 90s south and along the Rio Grande. Lows tonight, 60s north to mid 70s extreme south. Highs Thursday, upper 70s north to near 90 south.

Upper Texas Coast: South and southeast winds 10 to 15 knots today and tonight, shifting to northeast 10 to 15 knots Thursday. Highs today, 70s north to mid 80s Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight, 60s north to 80s extreme south. Highs Thursday, 60s north to near 80 Big Bend valleys.

Lower Texas Coast: Southeast winds 15 to 20 knots today and tonight, decreasing to near 15 knots Thursday. Seas 5 to 10 feet today and tonight. Isolated showers or thundershowers.

Accident specialist says cycle mangled by beating, not crash

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The motorcycle Arthur McDuffie was riding the night he was fatally injured was battered by blows, not wrecked in an crash, an accident specialist says.

His testimony corroborated that of an earlier witness, Edward Whittaker, commander of the Dade County Public Safety Department crime laboratory.

On trial are Alex Marrero, charged with second-degree murder; Michael Watts and Ira Diggs, charged with manslaughter, and Herbert Evans and Ubaldo Del Toro, charged with trying to cover up the incident.

The state was expected to wrap up its case this week.

In graphic illustration for the six-member jury, Fogarty stretched McDuffie's blood-stained blue jeans over the black vinyl seat of the squeaking, damaged bike as it sat on the center of the linoleum courtroom floor.

One by one, he pointed out the damaged areas to the jurors — the tachometer, the speedometer, license plate, turn signal, fuel tank, spark plugs, the fin area, front fender and a portion of the left side — maintaining they were struck by a hard tubular object.

He said there was no evidence that the bike struck a curb or rolled at any speed.

Earlier, Whittaker, who spent 23 of his 25 years with the department as chief of the crime lab, said he found no evidence that the bike had been in any kind of accident.

'Newcomer' asks recount of 9th district primary vote

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A bus company manager who had never made a political race before was not satisfied with second place in his Democratic primary contest against a 14-term incumbent.

W.L. "Bubba" Pate requested recounts of Saturday's vote in three counties of the 9th Congressional District and made plans to seek a recount in the fourth county.

Pate garnered an unofficial 42.88 percent of the vote while incumbent Jack Brooks collected 50.25 percent.

Theft investigated

Midland police on Tuesday were investigating the theft of a money bag containing $518 in assorted bills.

The theft was reported to police Tuesday by L.F. Green, 1700 N. H St.

In addition to the money bag and the money it contained, thieves also apparently took a ladies navy blue purse, according to Green.

Police seeking robbery suspect

ODESSA — Police here are searching for a person who robbed the Woodcrest Apartments office at gunpoint about 2:40 p.m. Tuesday.

According to an Odessa Police Department spokesman, one person — brandishing a short-barreled pistol — walked into the apartment office Tuesday afternoon, demanded money and then left after Dorothy Michand, the manager, handed over money.

Ms. Michand told police she could not determine the sex nor the race of the robber because the robber had a coat collar turned up to obscure the face.

The robber fled on foot, she said. The amount of money taken in the robbery was not disclosed.

Symphony association sets annual meeting

The Midland Symphony and Choral Association will hold its annual meeting, which is open to all symphony ticket holders, Thursday noon at the First National Room in the First National Bank, 303 W. Wall St.

The meeting will feature election of new directors and officers for the symphony and choral board.

Iranians will seek extradition of lone London embassy survivor

LONDON (AP) — Iran's revolutionary government said it will ask for the extradition of the only survivor of the terrorists who held the Iranian Embassy and most of its staff for six days, but Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was reported determined to resist the request.

The first hostage to talk publicly about the seizure, Simeon Harris, 34, of the British Broadcasting Corp., said several of the female Iranian captives refused to identify the gunman to the police because he was "a good-looking boy" and had been nice to them.

"One or two of the older female hostages were saying things like, 'He's a nice boy and he had been quite pleasant to us. They wouldn't positively identify him as a terrorist,'" Harris, a TV soundman, claimed in a BBC interview.

"I shouted out, 'There is no doubt. He is a terrorist.' He then got carted away from the rest of us."

The terrorist, whose identity police have not revealed, was being held under special armed guard at a London police station. Quoting a spokesman for Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, Radio Tehran said today that as soon as his name was announced, the Iranian Foreign Ministry would ask for his extradition.

But the newspaper The Guardian said any such request will "fall on deaf ears." Home Secretary William Whitelaw told the House of Commons Tuesday the surviving terrorist will be "subject to the due processes of law in this country."

Police sources said he will be tried in Britain for murder and kidnapping.

Meanwhile, firemen using a truck-mounted ladder gingerly made their way through the fire-gutted embassy today and brought out three bodies wrapped in green plastic bags.

Scotland Yard, which earlier put the death toll at four terrorists, one hostage killed before the assault and one Iranian man who might be either a hostage or a terrorist, still had no final count.

Two hostages remained in a hospital. One, Akmed Dadgar, was reported still in serious condition with gunshot wounds. The other, Charge d'Affaires Gholam-Ali Afroz, was said to be in satisfactory condition.

The terrorists, who claimed to be members of the Arab ethnic minority in southern Iran, seized the Iranian Embassy off Hyde Park and 25 hostages last Wednesday and demanded the release of 91 other Arab-Iranians imprisoned by Iran's Persian government.

Iranians will seek extradition of lone London embassy survivor out of the country. But the British refused.

Then the terrorists demanded that he and Constable Trevor Lock, another British hostage, get assurances from the police that they would not invade the embassy.

Harris said all the hostages were "overwhelmed" by the rescue and asked him to thank the British commandos for them.

"They never believed such an operation could be carried out," Harris said. "It's the kind of thing you see only in films."

What happened to Douglas Russell, who won the gold medal for the 100-meter butterfly in swimming in the 1968 Olympics held in Mexico City?

He did live in Midland on South Baird Street.

No one, according to the latest "Book of Facts," has broken his record yet.

He was my swim teacher at The University of Texas-Arlington. — Jerri Young ANSWER: Answer Line has been informed that Mr. Russell is now living in Amarillo and no longer is associated with swimming.

I have a very frustrating situation with the family who lives on the other side of the duplex in which I reside.

I have had to stop delivery of my newspaper because the children, all under 10 years of age, go out before daybreak Sundays and steal my paper.

I have caught them at my mailbox. The children open my front door and walk in without knocking. They throw soft drinks on my windows.

All the while, the mother, who witnesses some of this, does and says nothing to them.

I have mentioned this to the landlord, but he is caught in the middle, since they apparently keep their rent paid. But, so do I.

Do I have any recourse to get this stopped? — PAG

ANSWER: A spokesman for the Midland Police Department says that if the children are under 10 years of age, even juvenile officers are unable to do anything about your situation.

One of your "recourses" is to file on the parent or parents involved.

ATTENTION MARYLYN LEONARD: The Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin was correct in stating that Tom and Linda Sartain, P.O. Box 8585, 79703, are the former owners of Dahkens.

Any complaints about credit should be directed to these persons.

Del-Tex Corp. recently leased the building formerly occupied by Dahkens and has no connection with Dahkens.

Two killed in jet crash

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Lear jet crashed and exploded in flames Tuesday while landing at Byrd International Airport, killing the two persons aboard.

The twin-engine aircraft apparently went out of control after touching down at about 3:15 a.m., said John B. Newell, chief of the Federal Aviation Administration's general aviation district office.

State Trooper E.C. Melton identified one of the victims as pilot George Gary Maul, 29, of Richmond. The co-pilot's name was withheld until his relatives could be notified.

"He (The pilot) may have lost control (after touchdown). All (landing) gear struts were intact," Newell said, adding there was good visibility and only light winds at the time of the crash.

An airport spokesman said the plane cartwheeled 700 to 800 feet along a grassy area next to the runway before coming to rest upside down.

pays? — Ms. R.L.

ANSWER: When a husband and wife sign a note to a creditor, they are jointly liable to the creditor, even if they later divorce and assign the community debt to the husband, so says the State Bar of Texas.

If a creditor successfully sues the husband for payment, but is unable to collect the judgment, the creditor can then seek a judgment against the former wife.

EPA wastes decision pleases some, upsets others

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plumbers, electricians and service station owners are happy, but environmental groups are riled with the government's final decision on how to police the 57 million tons of hazardous wastes the country produces annually.

After 3½ years of work, the Environmental Protection Agency released regulations Monday spelling out what businesses will come under the rules, listing the dangerous chemicals covered and giving the requirements for states to enforce the program.

Stressing the need for a stepped-up enforcement effort, the EPA has said repeatedly that 90 percent of all hazardous wastes are disposed of improperly, leading to disasters such as Love Canal in New York, where 239 families were forced from their homes by chemicals leaking into basements.

But in issuing the final regulations, the agency conceded it was not covering 17 million tons of chemical wastes or 91 percent of the businesses that generate such wastes.

The agency defended its action by saying it believed the 501 chemicals and waste processes covered include the most dangerous. Officials also said they planned to add more chemicals over the next decade as further studies are done.

In the final regulations, the EPA raised the maximum waste a firm can generate monthly without having to report to the government from 220 pounds to 2,200 pounds. Officials said this was done so that 695,000 painters, plumbers, electricians, gasoline stations and small manufacturing firms would be exempt from paperwork requirements. They said this group produced only 1 percent of the wastes and excluding them would give regulators more time to concentrate on the remaining 9 percent of companies, which generate 40 million tons of hazardous wastes.

But the Environmental Defense Fund, which won a court order last year to force the EPA to move faster in issuing the regulations, said it was disappointed in the final result.

Sadat offers friendship

Lost in the hullabaloo after the frustrated attempt to rescue the American hostages in Iran was due notice about the significant support given by Egypt to the United States.

From the beginning of the Iranian crisis, President Anwar Sadat proclaimed to the American people and to the world that the United States was free to mount a rescue operation from Egyptian soil. This affirmative factor was an enormous contribution to U.S. planning. And so when push came to shove and the rescue effort was undertaken, Washington knew it had Egypt's blessings for the takeoff of six military transport planes from an airport near Cairo to the fateful rendezvous in the Iranian desert.

President Sadat's foursquare stand with this country must be doubly appreciated because such support is in vivid contrast with the timid, tentative encouragement from most of our other international friends. As overwrought as the country is just now, this is no excuse why such assistance from such a friend should be taken for granted.

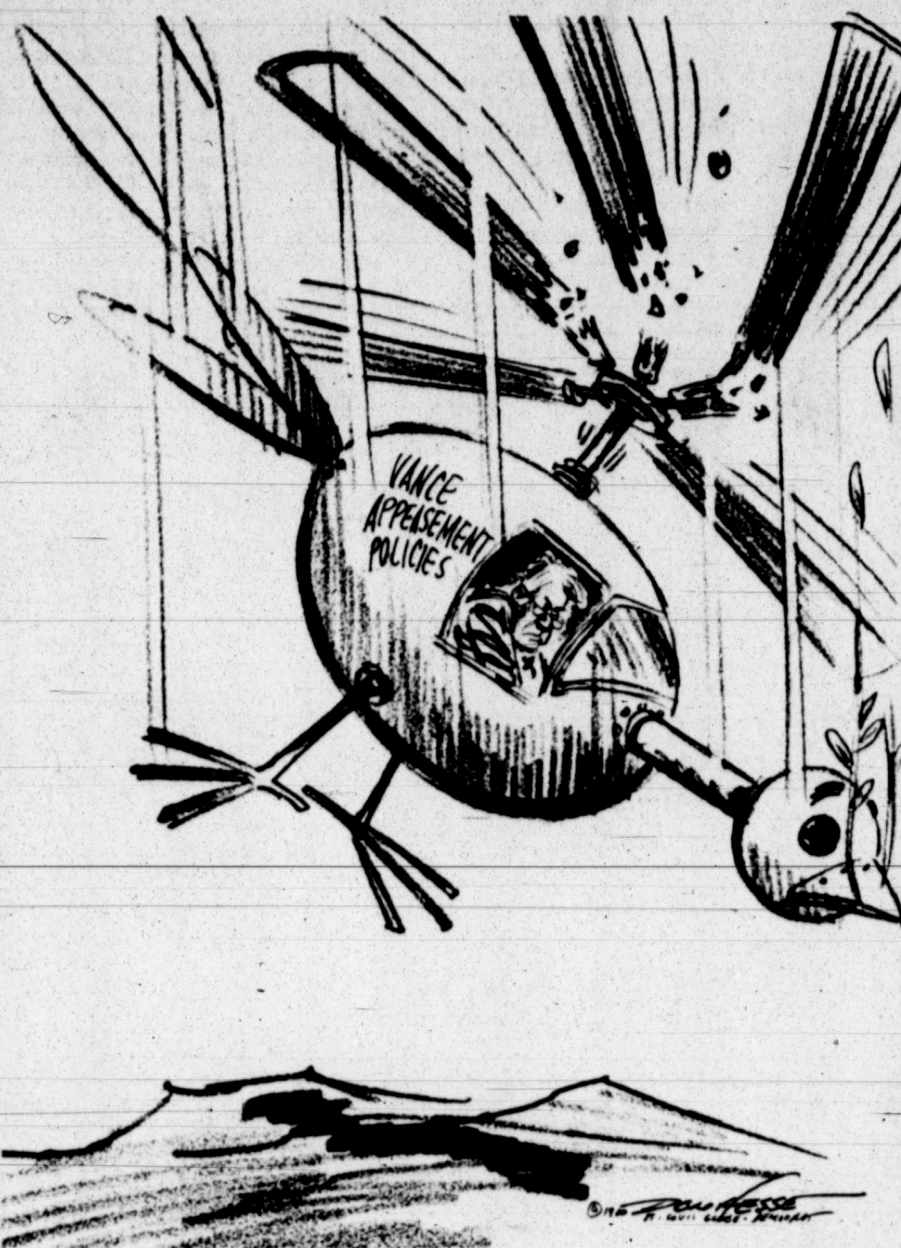

In a world led by all-too-many timorous mediocrities and colorless technicians, Anwar Sadat appears the more remarkable for his vision, courage and dynamism. He seems to be one of the few world leaders who knows where he's coming from, where he is, and where he is going. Almost single-handedly he has become the West's anchor against dangerous drift in the Middle East. He appears as the chief bulwark against the Iranian-type convulsion in Egypt.

This unusual man's character and personality have been manifest most clearly perhaps in the isolated episode of his recent relationship with Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, the deposed shah of Iran. While incendiary propaganda by revolutionary fanatics has made the shah a villain, only Sadat, among world leaders who once courted him, extended the hand of friendship as of old.

This reassured the White House and the Pentagon, had there been any doubts, that Egypt's part in the puzzling rescue equation was a known, certain, and dependable element. Washington knew that, come what may, there would be no betrayal, no recriminations, and no Monday-morning second-guessing by Cairo.

The United States is as fortunate as the shah to have such a friend these days.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Vance saw Carter stance as self-defeating

WASHINGTON — Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance apparently came to the reluctant conclusion that the American hostages in Tehran would never be released so long as Jimmy Carter is in the White House.

Although Vance is too much of a gentleman to spell out his "disagreement in principle" with Carter, I have obtained a secret intelligence analysis prepared by Vance's subordinates that details his reasons for opposing not only the ill-fated rescue attempt, but virtually every step Carter has taken since the hostages were seized last November.

The timing of Vance's resignation — submitted before the rescue fiasco but announced after its failure — has lent a sour-grapes taint to his departure from the Carter Cabinet. But his views were known to the president a week before the rescue mission, and were unanimously supported by the U.S. diplomatic community.

Reflecting Vance's position, the secret intelligence document states that "the focus of American policy should be to restore rationality to Iran." The analysis noted that Iranians are genuinely suspicious that the United States intends to restore the ousted shah to power. It also warned that economic sanctions and other U.S. actions that cause hardship to the Iranian people will undoubtedly "strengthen the determination to hold the hostages indefinitely and increase the prestige of religious radicals, whose strength is martyrdom."

While Vance meticulously observed the diplomatic niceties in his letter of resignation — and the president did likewise in his letter of acceptance, signed "Your friend" — the secret document shows that Vance's private opinion struck tellingly at the White House handling of the Iranian crisis.

Vance believed that it was Carter and his political advisers, with their Rose Garden strategy, who gave Ayatollah Khomeini the idea that he had something of inestimable value in a hard-line stance on the hostages during an election campaign.

By inflating the hostage crisis to the paramount issue in American policy — and in his re-election campaign — Carter has succeeded in lionizing Khomeini as the conqueror of the "American devil," Vance feels. Further pressure from the United States will serve only to unite Iran even more behind Khomeini, the former secretary of state was convinced.

Pressure from the United States, the secret document pointed out, relieves Khomeini from the impossible task of dealing with Iran's internal problems. Without the convenient U.S. scapegoat, the ayatollah would eventually be forced to release the hostages under pressure from other Muslim nations, Vance suggested.

Far from being "soft" on Iran, Vance saw Carter's supposedly hard line as a policy that would be self-defeating in its attempts to resolve the hostage crisis. So he quit.

DIVIDED DEMOCRATS: President Carter's campaign aides boast that rival Ted Kennedy is beaten, that the mathematical obstacle is too great for him to overcome, that they can now write him off. But they may be whistling past the graveyard.

The senator is furious at Carter for the personal slander that was directed against him during the Pennsylvania primary. The president's publicist, Gerald Rafshoon, aired a series of ugly, anti-Kennedy commercials in Pennsylvania. Now Kennedy has

ART BUCHWALD

Test-tube inflation slows down birth rate

WASHINGTON — It isn't just the commercial banks and credit unions that are being tough about loans. The Sperm Banks are also starting to be much more discriminating about their borrowers.

Johnson Masters, president of the First National Sperm Bank of Washington, told me, "The crunch is on. Any woman could come in here six months ago and get a test tube. But now we're in a spot where we can only service our most preferred customers."

"What happened?" I wanted to know. "People are starting to withdraw their deposits and put them in Government Research grants, which pay a much higher interest. We've tried everything to keep our customers happy, but it hasn't worked. We've offered them free subscriptions to Playboy magazine, videocassettes of X-rated movies, and all-expense weekends at out-of-the-way motels. But it hasn't stopped the flood of withdrawals."

"One of the biggest setbacks we had this week was when a Nobel Prize-winner came in and cleaned out his account. We asked him what he was going to do with all the test tubes, and he said he was going to trade them for soybean futures."

"If other Nobel Prize-winners do the same thing your bank could be in a lot of trouble," I said.

"We are already. As you know, our loans are made to women who are shopping around for the best fathers that money can buy. But at present interest rates, most of them can't afford a Fuller Brush man. It's pitiful for one of our loan officers to turn down a perfectly healthy woman and tell her she isn't eligible for a loan."

"But somebody must be still getting them, or you wouldn't be in business."

"In order to qualify, a woman must have at least a 145 IQ, a Ph.D. from Harvard and type 120 words a minute."

"Your terms are tough," I said. "It isn't us," Masters said. "Sperm banks all over the country are facing the same problem. The Federal Test Tube Bank Board keeps raising the rates on what it costs us to borrow from them. We have no choice but to pass it on to the customer."

"But what you're saying is that only the best and the brightest can afford to have a Nobel Prize-winning baby."

"That seems to be the way the Fed wants it. Their intention is to slow down the birth rate in the country by making it harder for would-be mothers to get credit."

"It really is a supply and demand situation. There was a time when someone could walk in off the street and get any kind of baby she wanted at six percent. But those days are gone forever. Men are not going to open passbook accounts with us, when New York Hospital will give 17 percent on a 90-day certificate of deposit."

"What's the answer?" I asked. "We have to think of new ways of attracting Nobel Prize-winning depositors. Tomorrow we're running a full-page ad announcing that if they open an account with us, we will give them either a brand-new calculator, a new microscope, or a white rat of their choice."

Mark Russell says

As of this writing, due to lack of funds, the Federal Trade Commission has closed down. We can assume that the death of the FTC would mean that all big corporations in America would fly their flags at full mast.

Since the FTC has been a relentless critic of the funeral industry, in the past few days funeral parlors must resemble the locker room of a Super Bowl winner.

Imagine a hearse pulling up in front of the church and the undertaker and his assistants, wearing New Year's Eve hats and wide grins, gently carrying in the casket.

No doubt about it — it would take a pretty disciplined funeral director to achieve sobriety at the burial of the FTC.

Some of the commission's other targets included cereal manufacturers and the producers of Saturday morning television shows. Until the FTC is born again, the sugar manufacturers will be saying — "How sweet it is!"

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, May 7, the 128th day of 1980. There are 238 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 7, 1945, World War II ended in Europe as the Germans signed an unconditional surrender at Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters in Rheims, France.

On this date: In 1789, the first presidential inaugural ball was held in New York, in honor of President and Mrs. George Washington.

In 1915, the British liner "Lusitania" was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off Ireland, with a loss of nearly 1,200 lives.

In 1954, a key French outpost in Indochina, Dien Bien Phu, fell to the North Vietnamese communists.

In 1960, the Kremlin said it would try American pilot Francis Gary Powers — shot down over the Soviet Union — as a spy.

Ten years ago, a wave of anti-war demonstrations forced nearly 100 colleges and universities to close.

Five years ago, Washington announced a program mandating the conversion of electric power plants to coal, as part of its campaign to conserve oil.

Last year, the United States and Egypt tried to pressure Israel into ending its attacks on Palestinians in Lebanon, but Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin resisted.

Today's birthdays: Actress Anne Baxter is 57. Retired football star Johnny Unitas is 47.

NICK THIMMESCH

Hypocritical attack levelled against the Jesus bunch

WASHINGTON — The "We love Jesus!" bunch was here last week, 200,000 of them, swarming over the federal greensward, urging us to "repent or perish," crying, "We didn't come here to disco, we came to pray for America," and praising the Lord for the cops — some of whom joined the fervent multitudes in waving their arms heavenward. They were friendly, displayed no vices, and left a good impression.

All right, I am unqualified to throw in with this lot. Dripping with sin as I am, I would be mortified if I stood among them. But I must take their part in the dispute between these hyped-up charismatics and the liberal pecksniffs who denounced them as right-wing fanatics and virtual agents of the devil.

"I find the march borders on manipulation," intoned the Rev. David Eaton, a Unitarian divine. "Many of the organizers have political track records that are not only conservative but almost reactionary." Another critic claimed that "the marriage of the right wing and the church surely wasn't made in heaven." Another huffed that if God saw those 200,000, he would probably say, "Thank God I am not a Christian."

Naturally, the fustibudgets of the National Council of Churches and 20 other mainline religious groups, including the Union of Hebrew Congregations and the American Baptist Churches of the U.S.A., denounced some of them jobs in topless bars, deserve the right to express them. If the convictions have political ramifications, so what? That's what the American political system is about isn't it, giving people a place to express their views and feelings?

Now I wouldn't enter this fray if it weren't for the utter hypocrisy of the ecclesiastical liberals who publicly wall that the fundamentalists might be diddling with politics, an area they feel is reserved exclusively for liberals.

After all, holy liberals organized "The Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights." The National Council of Churches supports gay rights legislation in Congress, and has been an apologist for nearly every radical Third World guerrilla operation going. Social activism is an article of the Council's faith.

"Sojourners," the publication of the liberal and anti-military "People's Christian Coalition," regularly scores the likes of the Rev. Jerry Falwell ("far right spokesman"), the American Conservative Union, and the Moral Majority as pariahs of our system.

The same publication was pleased that Roman Catholic Bishop Francis F. Reh of Saginaw, Mich., ordered schoolchildren in his diocese not to participate in a state art contest sponsored by the U.S. Navy which "Sojourners" said was out to promote the newest Trident submarine, the USS Michigan. Egads.

And so it goes. The righteous of the liberal and conservative sides, whether they are divines or sin-stained devils, are very likely to side up to, or plunge into, politics. It is the nature of the fallen creature.

For the press to swallow the liberal line, however (National Public Radio was downright glib), that only the fundamentalist brethren we saw doing their Jesus numbers here last week, are politicized, reflects an ignorance of how conviction fires action.

How narrow-minded the liberal ecclesiastics and denominations were in denouncing the fundamentalists for doing the very thing — politics — that the liberals thrive on. It's enough to drive a man to the nearest saloon.

Approaching daylight, crash factors in canceling rescue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commanders say planes and commandos had to scramble out of Iran fast after their hostage rescue mission was aborted because they were afraid a fireball from the wreckage of two aircraft would attract Iranian forces, and because daylight was coming.

One congressman said after a closed House Armed Services Committee hearing Tuesday that the commanders were afraid Iranian F-4 Phantom fighters would attack the U.S. C-130 cargo planes carrying the rescue team out. But others said daylight was the main concern.

The mission's top two commanders, Army Maj. Gen. James Vaught and his deputy, Air Force Lt. Gen. Philip Gast, testified to the House committee Tuesday.

They were called before the Senate Armed Services Committee today along with Col. Charles Beckwith, commander of the rescue raid itself, Air Force Col. James Kyle, commander at the Desert One site where the mission was cancelled, and Lt. Col. Edward Seiffert, the senior helicopter pilot.

"Ammunition was going off; the sky was ablaze," Rep. Donald Mitchell, R-N.Y., told reporters. "They were afraid Iranian F-4s would spot the blaze and shoot down the slower-moving C-130s."

The fireball erupted when a helicopter sliced into a C-130 and both exploded, killing eight men and injuring five. The accident happened after the decision had been made to cancel the operation and leave.

But two other House committee members said they understood the commanders to say the rescue team was scrambling to load the C-130s and get out of Iran before daylight.

"This whole operation was to be conducted under cover of darkness and they had a long way to go," said Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.

"Daylight was the whole problem," said Rep. G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss.

Montgomery said the commanders told the committee the reason the helicopters left behind were not destroyed was because that might have slowed down and endangered efforts to get the cargo planes loaded and off the ground.

Mitchell said classified documents on the helicopters were not destroyed because "they all would lose their classification the next day when the mission became news."

The congressmen said the two commanders, who also were mission planners, insisted eight helicopters should have been more than enough for the mission, and would have been had the choppers not run into a huge dust storm.

They said the commanders told the committee the helicopter that had to turn back when its gyroscope went out in the dust cloud could have remained in the mission, flying visually, if the night had been clear as forecast.

The mission then would have had the six helicopters needed to continue the mission, the commanders were quoted as testifying.

Instead two other helicopters broke after the first turned back and the mission was cancelled because the five left were not enough to carry out the mission, the committee had been told earlier.

The commanders said they sent only eight helicopters because the model used have had such a low failure rate, 10 percent, that two extras should have been more than enough.

They said they added one extra for safety and then, just to be sure, they added one more," Mitchell said.

Commandos out of hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After a two-week stay at Brooke Army Medical Center's burn treatment facility, two injured commandos quietly have been released, and they headed for undisclosed destinations.

Marine Maj. John Schaefer, 36, of Los Angeles, and Air Force 1st Lt. Jeffrey Harrison, 26, of Warren, Ohio were among five soldiers injured during last month's aborted Iranian rescue mission.

They had received visits from President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Officials said Tuesday that two men were released Monday, but gave no details on when or how the men left San Antonio or what their destinations were.

The soldiers requested the information be withheld from reporters, a hospital spokesman said. One hospital official said Schaefer was placed on convalescent leave while Harrison was returned to active duty.

Col. Basil A. Pruitt Jr., hospital commander, said two other members of the rescue team remain at the medical center. Air Force Staff Sgt. Joseph Beyers III, 37, of Charleston, S.C., remains in critical condition, and Marine Maj. Leslie Petty, 34, of Jacksonville, N.C., is in serious condition.

Both were responding "nicely" to burn treatment, Pruitt said.

The five injured commandos arrived April 26, following a 20-hour flight from West Germany. Eight men were killed two days earlier in the collision of a helicopter and a cargo plane as the American forces withdrew from an Iranian desert after the rescue mission was aborted.

The other injured soldier, Airman 1st Class William Tootle of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., was released last week from the hospital at Lackland Air Force Base. He had suffered an injured knee.

Crew will testify for teen hijacker

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Seven crew members of a Portuguese jetliner said today they are willing to testify for the 16-year-old boy who hijacked their plane and took 82 passengers on an unscheduled flight to Madrid.

"He never showed himself out of line or violent. He left the crew with the impression that he was intelligent, leading them to believe that family problems could have behind his action," the crew said in a statement read by an airline spokesman.

However, the boy's father, Alexandre Goncalves Rodrigues, said, "What our son has done will kill us," and that he and his wife Idalina had no idea why their son Rui hijacked the plane while it was on a flight from Lisbon to Faro, in southern Portugal.

The mother said her son asked for money to pay the insurance premium on her husband's taxi early Tuesday and that he left the house with $160.

She said he was extremely nervous and kissed her "as though he weren't coming back." She said he had always been a good student and "he's always been a good son."

The youth pulled out a pistol late Tuesday when the plane prepared to land at Faro, and ordered the craft to Madrid to refuel for a flight to Switzerland.

The pilot said the boy asked him if he thought a $10 million ransom was "too much or too little," and if he should demand the money from the Portuguese "government or Air Portugal."

Lisbon's ambassador in Madrid, Joao de sa Coutinho, negotiated

Survivors honored

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Three survivors of the worst peacetime disaster in the history of the Coast Guard have been cited for bravery because of their efforts to help fellow crewmen escape the sinking cutter Blackthorn.

Chief Warrant Officer John S. Miller, 41, on Tuesday was awarded the Coast Guard Medal, the highest peacetime award the service bestows.

Also cited for bravery were Boatswain's Mates Charrels E. Bartell and Larry Clutter. They received the Meritorious Service Medal.

with the boy at Madrid's airport for more than four hours.

He got him to release all women and children aboard the plane, then the men passengers and to give up his gun and fly back to Lisbon with the seven crew members to surrender to police.

Minh soon to become tailor again

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP) — Five years to the day after he fled the fall of Saigon, I found Minh the Tailor, who in his American experience had become Minh the Grocer, ready to embark on still another career.

Minh Van Nguyen is about to open a children's clothing store in Mountain View, Calif., between three ballpoint pens protruding from the upper arm sleeve pockets of an embroidered Minh combat denim shirt and a pair of sunglasses dangling from the epaulets.

Minh departed Saigon on the last plane taking orphans out at the urging of Edward Daly, President of World Airways, who used to order five suits at a time.

MINH HAD AN HOUR to make up his mind, close the shop, collect his wife and eight children and five other relatives.

"It was 7 o'clock in the evening," Minh recalls the decision he never regrets making. "The banks were closed. I could not withdraw our savings, but fortunately my wife like many Vietnamese women had some gold jewelry. There may have been a few suits on the rack, waiting for Americans to call for them but I am not sure."

This was Minh's second exodus. In 1955, he and his young bride had left their native Hanoi, where he worked as a shirt maker in his brother's shop to begin a new life in Saigon.

His daughter Kim has just graduated with an accounting degree from California State at Hayward. No. 1 son Dung, who now calls himself John, graduated from Berkeley with a double major in economics and computer science. Like the others down to 10-year-old Dan, who admits to being a pretty good centerfielder, they had to work four hours a day in the grocery after school and beg their parents for permission to watch television.

"BUT HOW ELSE can we learn English?" they loaded the question.

Minh thinks Northern California's climate is better than either Saigon's or Hanoi's. In fact, he likes almost everything about America except crime and doctor bills.

"In 20 years in Saigon, no crime. Here every day problem," said Minh with a shake of his head. "One evening when my wife and Kim were alone in the store, a man points a gun at them and empties the cash register into a paper bag."

Although all of his children have done well — "always A and A-plus" — Minh thinks California schools could do with more discipline and make the students work harder.

IN SAIGON, MINH the tailor was so successful the children did not have to help out in the shop and even had private tutors to advance them in their lessons. After deciding against a hot dog and hamburger stand, he went into the franchise grocery business in America to make use of the plentiful family labor supply. The youngest collected bottles for deposit and delivered newspapers to help finance the three-bedroom bungalow that is still home for all 10 of them.

Minh the Grocer joined the local Chamber of Commerce and proved to be as adept as Minh the Tailor.

With Oriental serenity and unflinching good humor, he accepts the abrupt changes in life that history has forced upon him.

"Where to next time?" Minh asks himself. "Do you think maybe I will have to go off to the moon?"

Taylor eyeing Rules Committee post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gene Taylor, R-Mo., apparently has the inside track to replace Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., on the House Rules Committee, according to congressional sources.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said Taylor has enough GOP House support to outdistance the other two men interested in the job — Reps. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., and William Thomas, R-Calif.

Taylor, a fourth term congressman, also said Tuesday he believes he has commitments from enough members to get the seat.

Palo Alto and San Jose, and maybe become a bespoke tailor again.

"Too long hours in the grocery business, too much crime," explained the honorable Minh, the name by which we always knew him. Nixon's New York office to 'open'

NEW YORK (AP) — The elephants and the rocking chair are ready. On Thursday, former President Richard Nixon, who now calls Manhattan home, moves into his new office on the 13th floor of the downtown Federal Building.

Nixon is expected to visit the office daily, but his telephone numbers will not be available to the public and aide Col. Jack Brennan was quoted in the Daily News as telling building executives "there will be no communications, no contact with the press."

Meanwhile, movers were bringing in the last of Nixon's office furnishings, including photos of the family, a rocking chair and elephants representing the Republican Party.

Nixon, who had been living at San Clemente, Calif., since his resignation from office, recently moved into a townhouse on the smart East Side.

NEW YORK (AP) — Beverly Sills will end her singing career with dinner for 1,300.

Details of Miss Sills' farewell, a fund-raising gala for the New York City Opera on Oct. 27, were announced Tuesday — and ticket prices are from $1,000 to $75.

"Beverly!" will be a 90-minute presentation of the ballroom scene of Strauss' "Die Fledermaus." Celebrities will waltz out of the ballroom crowd to do a turn with Miss Sills.

They include Julie Andrews, Cynthia Gregory, Joel Grey, Danny Kaye, Angela Lansbury, Mary Martin, Zubin Mehta, Ethel Merman, and Bobby Short. Carol Burnett will be mistress of ceremonies and Harold Prince will stage.

There will be a dinner for 1,300 before the performance and a dance for 2,000 afterward at Lincoln Center.

"Beverly!" will be the last of a series of farewell benefit performances Miss Sills, a soprano, is giving around the country. She is general director of the New York City Opera.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It was a misunderstanding that has been embarrassing for all of us," said Sheila Caan in announcing she is dropping a $2.5 million lawsuit against her former husband, actor James Caan.

Mrs. Caan, who was divorced from Caan two years ago, had filed suit contending Caan beat her about the head and arms while she and their son were visiting Caan in Chicago last month.

On Tuesday, a spokesman for Caan released a statement that Mrs. Caan was abandoning the suit and her attorney confirmed it.

"What happened in Chicago just got out of hand and exaggerated," the statement said. "I have the greatest respect for Jimmy and we have been best of friends since the divorce."

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and the FBI say there is no truth to reports that the speaker was a target of the agency's Abscam bribery investigation.

"I don't know any more about it than what I read in Jack Anderson's column," O'Neill said after the columnist reported the FBI had $75,000 in bribe money earmarked for O'Neill and reportedly pressed a middleman to set up a meeting with the speaker.

Said FBI press officer Otis Cox: "His name never came up in that investigation."

Under the investigation, agents posed as representatives of Arab sheiks and offered bribes for legislative favors. One senator and eight House members were implicated.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — British actor Peter Sellers, recovering from a mild heart attack, was reported in good spirits at St. Vincent's Hospital.

The 54-year-old comedian, the bumbling hero of the hugely popular "Pink Panther" movies and most recently of "Being There," was admitted Monday night after he said he felt unwell and was suffering chest pains.

A hospital spokesman said Sellers would remain under care for a few days "for observation."

Candidates join draft opposition

By TERENCE HUNT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Question: On what issue do Republican Ronald Reagan, Democrat Edward M. Kennedy and independent John Anderson stand united in clear disagreement with President Carter?

Answer: Each of the presidential candidates opposes draft registration and has offered ammunition to help defeat Carter's plan in the Senate — the last major hurdle for the program in Congress.

Carter, however, won a victory Tuesday when the Senate Appropriations Committee refused to make any cuts in the $13.3 million needed to begin registration of young men this summer.

The panel voted 17-9 against a proposal by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to reduce Selective Service's appropriation to $4.7 million. That would be enough to upgrade the agency's computers, but not to start actual registration.

By a voice vote, the committee also agreed to send the registration issue to the Senate floor — along with any amendments the committee approves before completing its work on registration.

Hatfield is trying to stall Carter's plan in the committee in hopes of winning more supporters for his side. He says he also will filibuster against registration once it reaches the Senate floor.

The committee was meeting again today on a Hatfield amendment to protect the rights of young persons to declare they are conscientious objectors to military service. He also has prepared an amendment to require registration of women as well as men. Carter originally called for registration of women, but opted not to push that idea because of strong opposition in Congress.

In arguing against Carter's plan, Hatfield produced letters from Reagan, Kennedy and Anderson opposing registration.

"This is not a partisan issue between Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives," Hatfield said.

The three candidates had expressed their opposition to registration previously, but their letters — all signed this week — were the first sign they were willing to work actively with Hatfield to try to kill Carter's program.

Of the major presidential candidates, only Carter and Republican

George Bush support registration. Reagan, Kennedy and Anderson all said registration would not improve military readiness. Kennedy and Anderson also said registration would divide the nation. And Anderson and Reagan both argued against peacetime registration on grounds it is an unwarranted intrusion by government into the lives of young people.

On the other side of the argument,

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., told the Appropriations Committee the armed services are falling short of their enlistment goals. Stennis, who has advocated a military draft, said registration was a "meager start" to correct manpower problems.

Hatfield estimated in an interview that there are 35 "solid" votes in the Senate against registration and about 20 undecided votes.

DOE lists Midland's Chevron stations as lowest in price

Chevron service stations in Midland should have the cheapest prices for gasoline, according to a list of estimated maximum retail prices at independent service stations released by the U.S. Department of Energy's district office in Dallas.

The listing is based on a survey performed April 28 and on the wholesale cost to service stations at that time. It applies to stations not operated by a refiner or jobber.

Chevron stations should be selling gasoline for about 106.4 cents a gallon for regular, 109.6 for unleaded and 112.6 for premium.

Shell's prices should be about 120.4 cents a gallon for regular, 123.4 for unleaded and 127.4 for premium. Exxon should be selling regular for 117.6 cents a gallon, unleaded for 121.6 and premium for 123.4.

Texaco's prices should be 118.1 for regular and 122.1 for unleaded. Gulf's gasoline should cost 122.3 cents a gallon for regular and 125.3 for unleaded.

The district office emphasized this list is intended only as a guide to give consumers a better idea of approximate legal selling prices in their area. A station charging a higher price than this is not necessarily in violation.

Variations and maximum legal selling prices at individual stations can and do exist, reported the DOE district office. For example, higher maximum legal selling prices may be charged by dealers who purchase gasoline through jobbers rather than directly from terminals operated by the companies listed.

However, motorists who believe they have been charged significantly more than the estimated maximum area prices should contact their local DOE Office of Enforcement or DOE's National Office by telephoning a toll-free number, 1-800-424-9246.

Teen held in stabbing

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A 16-year-old Orlando youth was held on attempted murder charges in the stabbing of a 4-year-old boy found sobbing and bleeding beneath a pile of cement blocks and construction debris, police said.

The child, David Shane Harrison, was in fair condition at Florida Hospital, after surgery on a puncture wound in his stomach.

Sheriff's officials declined to identify the youth arrested or give any details other than to say the victim had "a casual acquaintance" with the older boy.

"The whole incident... just makes us sick to our stomachs," said Orange County sheriff's department spokesman Richard King.

Boycott of Florida by ERA backers draws officials' fire

By BILL KACZOR

TALLHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tourism officials say it smacks of blackmail and opponents say it won't work, but backers of the Equal Rights Amendment are asking vacationers to stay away from Florida until the Legislature approves the ERA.

The National Organization for Women announced on Monday it would expand its Florida boycott from conventions to all tourism, and it delivered 4,000 cards from around the nation in support of the boycott to Gov. Bob Graham's office.

"When somebody pulls this kind of nonsense, it smacks of blackmail and I don't like it," said Warren Ericksen, executive director of the Miami Beach Convention Bureau. He said Miami Beach has lost $15 million in tentatively booked convention business and millions in potential business from the previous stage of the boycott.

But the new tactic won't make much of a dent in the state's $16 billion tourism industry or in the Legislature, contends Senate President-designate W.D. Childers, a Pensacola Democrat.

"People who want to come to Florida to go to Disney World are going to come," he said.

"I think it will just go unnoticed as far as the Legislature is concerned. We are not going to vote based on tactics like that. The issue is not going to be decided on squeeze plays," Childers said.

In 1978, Missouri — also the victim of a convention boycott over the ERA — filed a suit against NOW, claiming the boycott was a restraint of trade specifically designed to bring harm to Missouri residents. In its arguments, the state said Kansas City and St. Louis had lost $19 million in convention business because of the boycott.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals found the boycott to be legal.

The ERA has been ratified by 35 state legislatures, but four have voted to rescind that approval. Congress must decide whether the reversals are valid, the Justice Department has said. A total of 38 states must ratify the amendment by June 30, 1982, for it to become part of the U.S. Constitution.

"The state of Florida has lost millions of dollars in convention business since the boycott began a few years ago," Florida NOW President Genece Minshew said.

"However, the current boycott has not prevented certain senators in the Legislature from switching votes on the ERA after being elected to office. The ERA has become a political football in Florida and is even more of an economic issue than before," she said.

ERA supporters are confident the amendment can win in the Florida House, where it has been passed previously. But ratification has been blocked by the Senate, which last defeated it 21-19.

President announces new envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Tuesday he has chosen a mountaineer, Phillip R. Trimble of New York City, to be U.S. ambassador to mountainous Nepal.

Trimble, former deputy mayor of New York, was one of three nominees to fill four vacant ambassadorships in Africa and Asia.

C. William Kontos, director of the State Department's Sinai Support Mission since 1976, was nominated to succeed the resigned Donald C. Bergus as ambassador to the Sudan.

To be envoy to both Kenya and the Seychelles, replacing the resigned Wilbert Le Melle, was William C. Harrop, deputy assistant secretary of state for African affairs since 1977.

Chevron energy report:

Reinvestment

More energy

Chevron's first quarter profit will keep this formula working for America's energy independence.

Profit makes it possible to invest in energy development. For example, Chevron's domestic Capital and Exploratory investments in the first quarter of 1980 were 62% higher than the first quarter of 1979.

Moreover, worldwide investment plans for 1980 have now been increased by an additional $400 million over the record high program announced in January.

Chevron's energy investments have already produced dramatic results in North America recently, such as:

➔ The Tuscaloosa Trend, Louisiana — Huge reservoirs of natural gas — first discovered by extremely deep exploratory drilling by Chevron.

➔ The Overthrust Belt, Wyoming — Potentially the largest natural gas reserves in the lower 48 states — plus oil deposits that could total several billion barrels.

➔ The Santa Barbara Channel, Off-Shore, California — Exploratory drilling continues to expand the potential of these fields which are expected to begin yielding substantial new supplies of oil and gas later this year.

➔ The Hibernia Field, Off-Shore Newfoundland — The first major oil discovery off the east coast of North America. This is the most exciting discovery in North America since Alaska's North Slope Prudhoe Bay field.

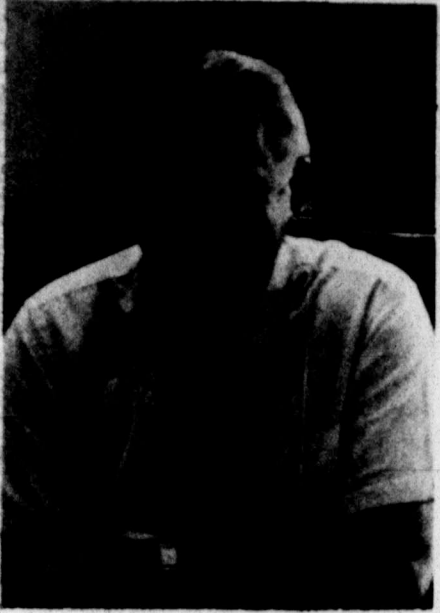

In addition, Chevron is involved in a number of exciting alternate energy investments, including coal, oil shale, tar sands, solar, uranium and geothermal.

1980 FIRST QUARTER REPORT—WORLDWIDE

Profit per Dollar of Petroleum Sales	5.7¢
Profit per Gallon of Crude Oil and Petroleum Products Sold	4.0¢
Total Profit	$627 Million
Total Capital and Exploratory Investment planned for the full year 1980	$3.0 Billion

MOVE trial finally ends verdict is expected soon

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Common Pleas Judge Edwin S. Malmel was cursed and threatened during the five-month trial — the longest criminal trial in Philadelphia history.

Police arrest two at Rome airport

ROME (AP) — Customs police said they arrested two Yemenite-born Americans with two bags bound for Yemen that were filled with arms. Ten rifles, ammunition and 17 pistols were recovered.

Police said the pair, tentatively identified as Nagi Hamed and Mohammed Fadel, were arrested at Leonardo Da Vinci Airport after they arrived aboard a TWA jetliner from New York. They were to have flown to Sana, Yemen's capital, later today, authorities said.

Hamed, 22, and Fadel, 48, were charged with weapons possession and taken to Rome's Regina Coeli (Queen of Heaven's) prison.

Their current addresses were not released.

Today, he was pondering his decision on the fate of nine MOVE members accused of killing a police officer.

The members of the radical, back-to-nature group — who often were barred from the courtroom — are charged in the August 1978 shooting of Patrolman James Ramp, a shooting that climaxed a year of confrontation between the city and MOVE members.

Malmel, who under state law must render a verdict today or Thursday, presided over the trial without a jury, and for the most part without the defendants present in the courtroom.

The defendants were barred for several months for their repeated outbursts and refusal to abide by normal courtroom procedure. Originally acting as their own attorneys, they denied their court-appointed lawyers' efforts to present a defense.

"Only a MOVE member can speak for MOVE," said Delbert Orr Africa, 30, before his ejection.

On Tuesday, the 67-year-old judge, who has been threatened by the defendants, again denied defense pleas for a mistrial.

Pope made symbolic chief by giant crowd in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Pope John Paul II was made a ceremonial tribal chief today, donning African gear and beating on a drum to the delight of hundreds of thousands of Kenyans.

The pope drew exultant whoops from the crowd when he put on a black and white monkey-skin hat shaped like a bishop's miter, grasped an African shield and the staff of a tribal chief, and beat on the drum.

Despite his white robes he took on the appearance of a tribal elder. Kenyans show their appreciation of a foreign visitor by making him a symbolic chief.

The crowd then entertained the Polish-born pontiff by beating out on a drum the Polish song, "May He Live 100 Years," and John Paul responded, "I love you! I love you!"

The pope, on the third stop of a six-nation tour of black Africa, said Mass at an altar constructed in Freedom Park in central Nairobi, and in his homily urged Christians to be political activists for good.

He spoke to a crowd that residents described as the largest ever assembled in Kenya. Unofficial estimates ranged upwards from 250,000. Catholic leaders had expected about 500,000.

The pontiff spoke in English. His message was later read in Swahili, the dominant local language, while African choirs sang and hundreds took communion. The faithful sat on benches, stood in ankle-deep mud left by days of heavy rain around a lake and overflowed on a distant hill.

Many carried umbrellas as protection against the sun during the three-hour service. The crowd included two presidents, Daniel Arap Moi of Kenya and Godfrey Binaisa of neighboring Uganda.

Nearby stood a Masai husband and wife, their two young children and two goats to contribute to the service offering. The pope patted one of the goats on the head. Other offerings included the products of rural Kenya — oak wood, coffee and honey.

Traditional Catholic chants and the vibrant rhythms of African songs echoed across the silent city, where a public holiday had been declared.

In his homily, the pope, who is "opposed to Catholic clergy holding elected office, urged Christians to take part in politics as activists for good.

Jesus did not give the Church an economic or political mission but "it would be a mistake to think that the individual Christian should not be involved in these areas of life," John Paul said.

He said Christians "are called by God to be involved in the world in order to transform it according to the Gospel.

"In the State, citizens have a right and duty to share in the political life. The duties of the good Christian citizen involve more than shunning corruption, more than not exploiting others. These duties include positively contributing to the establishment of just laws and structures that foster human values."

Last Sunday, aides of Rep. Robert F. Drinan of Boston, Mass., the only priest presently in Congress, revealed he had lost an appeal of a decision by Jesuit authorities ordering him and other Catholic priests not to seek elected office. Drinan announced Monday he would not seek a sixth term and was accepting the directive "with regret and pain."

John Paul, in today's homily, also reiterated Catholic belief in the family as "the first and vital cell of any society."

The pope also repeated Catholic opposition to abortion, speaking of "the dignity and worth of human life from the moment of conception."

John Paul's emphasis on Christian political duties followed remarks to diplomats Tuesday night in which he said Africa needed to win economic and ideological freedom, as well as the political independence it has gained from former colonial powers.

"The State must reject anything unworthy of the freedom and of the human rights of its people, thus banishing all elements such as abuse of authority, corruption, domination of the weak, the denial to the people of their right share in political life and decisions, tyranny or the use of violence and terrorism," the pope told the diplomats.

Agent Orange mystery may be solved within two years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans Administrator Max Cleland says GI's exposed to the herbicide Agent Orange in Vietnam should have a good idea within two years whether their health is likely to deteriorate as a result.

Cleland, who is convinced he was exposed himself, says his hunch is that studies just getting under way will establish what no one now can prove: that Agent Orange has no lingering effects to debilitate a veteran years after he brushed against it.

In an interview in his office overlooking the White House, the Jefferson and Washington monuments and the Pentagon, the triple amputee who heads one of the biggest agencies in government said the Agent Orange mystery has become a vexing aftermath of Vietnam.

The reason: a common suspicion among Vietnam veterans that his government is "sticking it to him again."

Cleland said that by 1982 he expects at least some of the answers to be in from an exhaustive study, ordered by Congress, that will compare the health of thousands of Vietnam veterans and thousands of other men who did not serve there. Bids are to be received Thursday and a contract to be awarded by June or July for the study.

Cleland disclosed that the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta will undertake a study to see whether Vietnam veterans are more likely to sire babies with birth defects than other men.

Based on hundreds of hours of discussion, Cleland said, "I still have to go along with what the National Academy of Science said in 1974 — that the chance Agent Orange would provide a negative health effect on Vietnam veterans was 'highly remote.'"

Agent Orange contains 2,4,5-T, which the government has banned for most uses because a byproduct is dioxin, a poison so deadly a teaspoonful could kill millions.

Some veterans claim to be suffering from numbness, skin rashes, liver disorders, cancers, and mood changes, physical weakness and the loss of sex drive as a result of contact with dioxin.

So far, 10,000 have complained of such ailments or sought information at VA hospitals. In a recent month, the VA received 472 Agent Orange-related requests for medical attention and 456 requests for information.

Expelled Libyan diplomats refuse to leave U.S. today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Libyan diplomats refused to leave the country today after they were expelled by the United States. They remained at the Libyan mission building here, the U.S. State Department said.

State Department officials said the four apparently were awaiting instructions from the Libyan government. Richard Shadyac, the lawyer for the Libyans, said the four men want "the allegations against them be spelled out."

Last Friday, the four diplomats were declared "persona non grata" by the United States and were given 72 hours to leave the country.

In addition, the United States ordered its skeleton staff of two diplomats withdrawn from the U. S. Embassy in Tripoli. But the United States is not breaking diplomatic relations with the North African nation.

The U.S. actions came because of what the State Department called the "intimidation activities" against Libyan dissidents in this country that were taken by the four diplomats. But there was no elaboration.

State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said today the visas of the four diplomats were invalidated.

El Paso finally gets Fletcher out

BY TED BATTLES Sports Editor

Midland Cubs second baseman Scott Fletcher was trying to explain what happened in the fourth inning of Monday's nightcap of a doubleheader for a chink-in-the-armor-searching reporter after Midland's win over El Paso's Diablos Tuesday night.

"It was a good pitch and I hit it hard. I got under it and it just went up a little too much," the 19-year-old from Wadsworth, Ohio, tried to alibi.

What was so special about a fly out to centerfield? Well, it ended a streak of eight straight hits and since Fletcher finished with two more Wednesday and then went 4-for-4 Tuesday night for another string of six straight and 14 hits in his last 15 at bats, it's reached the stage where when they get Scott out, it's bigger news than when he gets a hit.

Manager Randy Hundley says that "out" was hit as well as any of Scott's base hits. Seriously though, Fletcher's bash binge boosted his average to .429 for the season and the way he's going, you've gotta wonder if he has a chance at hitting .500. Ridiculous, of course, but enjoy it while you can.

"I went 7-for-7 in one game last year at Geneva," admits the Scooter, "but nothing like this."

THE ONLY bad thing about Scott's streak, which also is nine straight games in which he has hit safely, is that Chicago Cubs farm director C.V. Davis was on hand to see Tuesday's four-hit performance and Midland fans have to be worried that Scott may be whisked away in the night to Wichita.

"I've never done that to Midland, have I?" C.V. pleaded his case and was asked, What about Jim Tracy, last year's Texas League batting champion? "We swapped Jim for Gary Krug, an even up trade."

The second game of the scheduled twinbill was rained out Tuesday, but no one left complaining. The Cubs and Diablos supplied enough hits and runs in their 20-10 slugfest for two games. Besides, they'll make it up tonight with two at 6:30 with Hundley giving starting pitching assignments to Randy Clark, the Cubs' newest addition, and lefthander Tom Spino, the starter in last Friday's tense 5-4 12-inning struggle with Amarillo.

By winning Tuesday, the Cubs not only assured themselves of their first series win of the Texas League season, but stretched their winning streak to three, best of the year.

While Fletcher's base-hit string is amazing, he's not the only one swinging a productive bat for the Cubs. Midland sent 14 batters to the plate in a 10-run first and then batted 13 in an eight-run third.

FLETCHER had two of the five hits in the first inning, including a two-run single the second time up as El Paso starter Joel Chrisler made life rough on himself with four walks. Randy La Vigne powered a three-run homer to climax the rally, his fifth of the year and all off Diablos pitchers.

But the Cubs couldn't afford to coast, Brant Humphry's three-run homer in the second and a two-run homer by Tom Burnansky in the third cut Midland's lead to 10-5 before that eight-run burst in which Javier Fierro poled a three-run homer.

Fierro also had added a two-run single in the fourth to wind up with five RBI for the night.

Brian Harper hit a two-run triple in El Paso's four-run fourth and then added a solo homer in the seventh as Herman Segelke absorbed the Diablos' 11-hit attack in going the distance for his second win.

Although he whiffed in the first to end a 6-for-6 streak, Daryl Sconlers collected a single and double to stretch his streak to 14 games.

As for Fletcher, he admits he is seeing the ball "pretty good", perhaps the understatement of the season. "My concentration is good and, yes, I've seen all kinds of pitches, sliders, fastballs, changeups" and obviously they all look alike, big, fat and juicy. "I've never had a night like the doubleheader Monday," admits Fletcher who was a .310 hitter at Geneva last year, "and I try not to think about it, but just ride the wave."

BRUIN BREWIN'S—Tonight's game winds up the homestand and the Cubs are off to San Antonio for six games starting Thursday...El Paso Manager Jim Saul's return to Midland, where he managed in 1977-78, hasn't been all that pleasant, not with three straight losses, but the Tennessean isn't pushing any panic buttons.

"We're young and when we get the pitching, we don't get the hitting and when we get the hitting, the pitching hasn't been able to hold it. Still, they'll come along and I'm not pressuring them. All I ask is they do their best and hustle." Jim was out of the Texas League last year, serving as a coach for the Oakland A's under Jim Marshall and figures folks can say what they want to about Charley O. Finley, "but he enabled me to get another year in the majors..." Fletcher was hitting .311 when he began his batting streak nine games in which he has collected 23 hits in 40 at bats...

Major baseball woes are still on back burner

penation for signing free agents, an issue which has been viewed as the major stumbling block in the talks so far.

"These are not headline issues, but they're still critical," said Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for management in the talks with the union.

The players have warned that unless agreement is reached by May 22 they will strike the next day, halting the major league season on Memorial Day weekend.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, agreed with that point of view.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said he hoped minor issues could be cleared this week with negotiations set for today and Thursday.

"We're reviewing quite a few issues which are important in and of themselves, but they would have to be characterized as not as important as others," said Miller.

Tuesday's session was the first in almost three weeks but there was no indication that either side had changed its view of the issues during the recess.

On the agenda for today was the definition of exactly what constitutes a salary. That was the issue at the heart of the Bob Horner arbitration case against the Atlanta Braves last year.

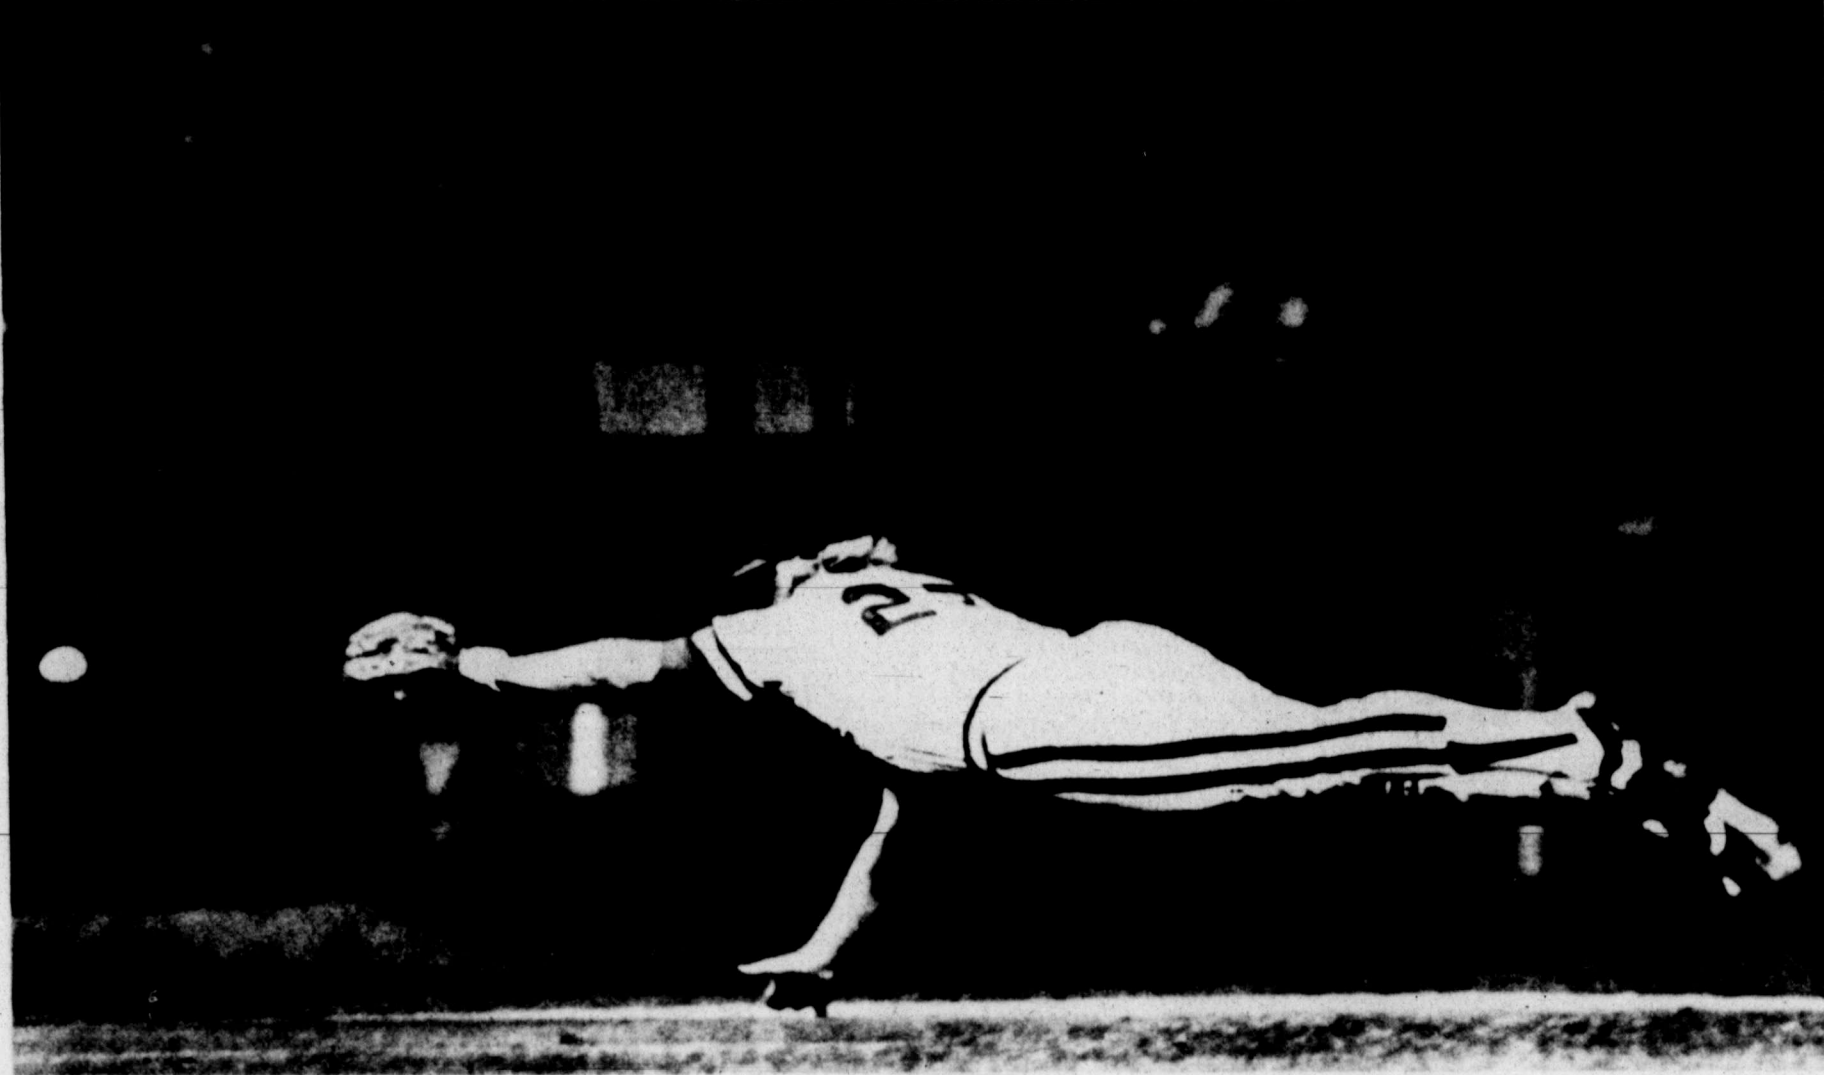

"Nothing has changed," said Moffett. "The positions of the two sides remains the same."

Arbitrator Raymond Goetz ruled that bonus payments had to be included when figuring a player's salary but barred Horner from free agency.

Miller disclosed a Monday meeting with Grebey at which the management negotiator reported that the owners' position remained solid.

Out for practice for the first time this week were four-time winner A.J. Foyt, who turned in a disappointing 173 mph lap, and Danny Ongais, clocked at 182.667.

Qualifications for the May 25 race will be on May 10-11 and May 17-18.

Comedy of errors sink Twins, 10-3

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch was on his way out of the Twins' clubhouse Tuesday night when he met members of the media coming in. "You guys got more guts than I do," Mauch said. "I could never go into anybody's place after a traumatic experience like this and ask questions."

during a seven-run second inning capped by Benny Ayala's two-run homer. The Twins also were victimized by a double steal, they allowed Baltimore's Al Bumbry to escape a rundown and Eddie Murray to advance a base on a foul pop caught near home plate while two outfielders collided on a two-run bloop double by Doug DeCinces.

inning. Another scored when Smalley bobbled a grounder and still another crossed when catcher Butch Wynegar's throw struck Bumbry as he slid into third on the front end of a double steal.

Red Sox rookie Bruce Hurst had a four-hitter and a 2-1 lead going into the sixth but Al Oliver and Buddy Bell singled and Sample doubled, giving Texas the lead. Bell led the Rangers' 14-hit attack with four singles. In five games against Boston this season, Bell is 13-for-24 — a .542 average — with three home runs, four doubles and 10 runs batted in.

'Scrap Iron' chop lifts Bucs

There isn't a lot of visual artistry in his game; that's why Phil Garner is called "Scrap Iron." The Pirates second baseman participated in two of Pittsburgh's four double plays in a defensive struggle with Los Angeles Tuesday, but it was his Baltimore chop through the infield that proved the inartistic highlight of the night.

right fielder Reggie Smyth threw Foli out at the plate in the first inning, and Rudy Law and Dusty Baker each made fine running catches in the outfield for Los Angeles. "You figure between these two teams, there would be more runs scored," Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said.

games. Jones worked his first complete game and earned his first shutout with four strikeouts, no walks and a lot of ground balls. "He reminded me of Tommy John (of the New York Yankees)," said Chicago Manager Preston Gomez.

Pinch hitter Roy Howell's two-out, two-run homer in the seventh inning lifted Toronto to its fourth consecutive triumph. Howell, who didn't start because of a touch of the flu, connected off Don Aase after Damaso Garcia singled.

Mike Squires, who usually plays first base for the Chicago White Sox, bumps into umpire Larry Barnett while playing catcher Sunday against Milwaukee. He became the first left-handed catcher in the majors since 1958. (AP Laserphoto)

Chisox go left-handed on whim of Bill Veeck

CHICAGO (AP) — It was apparent to those familiar with the creative mind of White Sox President Bill Veeck that the sometimes impish club boss was probably behind the substitution of left-handed first baseman Mike Squires as catcher in the ninth inning of Sunday's game.

"You might say I had something to do with it," Veeck admits. "Why not a left-handed catcher? Why not a left-handed shortstop, or third baseman? The only position I'd rule out is second base for the obvious throwing disadvantage."

"I'd say a left-hander at short breaks even and while a left-handed third baseman might be at a disadvantage on a slow roller, he has the advantage in the ninth inning when he has to protect the line," said Veeck. "He doesn't have to play as close to the bag because his glove already is there."

When Squires went behind the plate against Milwaukee in an 11-1 loss, he became the first left-handed catcher in the major leagues since 1958, when Dale Long, another first baseman, took the position briefly for the Chicago Cubs.

The Milwaukee Brewers did have runners on base, first Paul Molitor, a base-stealing expert, and then Mark Brouhard, but no attempt was made to steal on Squires.

"What for?" said Milwaukee Manager Buck Rodgers. "We were leading 11-1. Why should I risk an injury just to test him? If they put him there in a one-run game, which I don't expect they'd do, yes, we would test him."

Veeck insists there aren't that many disadvantages to having a left-handed catcher, although most baseball people insist he would be at a disadvantage on the throw to second base with a right-handed batter at the plate. And there are more right-handers hitting than left-handers.

"But the left-handed catcher has the advantage when the left-hander is batting," said Veeck.

"The reason you don't see left-handers catching or playing short or third is that kids are taught left-handers can play only certain positions, and that's the way it remains," said Veeck. "But you do see some right-handed first basemen and there have been some pretty good ones, too."

The experiment of Squires catching began in spring training after the Sox were unable to trade for a catcher during the winter, and before Bruce Kimm nailed down the job. Why Squires?

"Because he's a good athlete and he was willing," said Veeck. "He's such a good athlete that I might even try him at shortstop or third base just to prove a point."

What point? "The point that the entire world is designed to the needs of right-handers," said Veeck. "Did you ever try to wind your watch in a phone booth?"

"Well, it's impossible," said Veeck, himself a left-hander who is obviously frustrated.

Kratzert takes LaJet crown

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — For 33 holes, Bill Kratzert was satisfied just to play golf and let the score take care of itself.

But on the 16th hole — a water-guarded par 3 — of a $170,000 benefit golf tournament, Kratzert made birdie Tuesday and looked up to find himself within striking distance of the lead.

"After 16, I thought I better take note of what I was doing and buckle up," Kratzert said. He parred 17, then canned a 25-foot birdie putt on 18 for a final-round 65 — a course record — and a two-day total of 134, good enough for a one-shot win and the $30,000 first prize.

Kratzert fashioned the win with five birdies on the last nine holes, but first-round co-leader J.C. Snead found nothing but trouble on the back nine. He bogied 13, then double-bogied 16 when his tee shot found the water, and his second-day 69 gave him a 135 total.

Texan Ben Crenshaw finished third at 137 and former University of Texas teammate Tom Kite tied with Bill Rogers for fourth at 138.

Snead took home $18,000 for his second-place finish in the PGA-approved benefit tournament.

CBS hires Roger Staubach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roger Staubach, the standout quarterback who recently retired from the Dallas Cowboys after 11 seasons, has been signed as a football analyst for CBS, it was announced Tuesday by Frank Smith, president of CBS Sports.

Harrelson replaces Norman

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Veteran shortstop Bud Harrelson will join the Texas Rangers tonight, replacing 21-year-old Nelson Norman, who has been told to report to the Rangers' Class AAA Charleston, W.Va., farm team.

Harrelson, a 35-year-old switch hitter, broke into the major leagues with the New York Mets in 1966 and played with them until 1978, when the Philadelphia Phillies signed him.

He played with the Phillies for part of 1978 and 1979 and went through spring training with them this year.

Rangers president Eddie Robinson, in announcing the acquisition of Harrelson, said Tuesday night he still considers Norman "our future shortstop."

Club officials were disappointed in what they felt was lackadaisical play by Norman in spring training.

When the Major League Players Association walked out in the final week of exhibition play, Norman was the only Ranger who did not attend voluntary workouts, and he made a team-leading four errors in the 17 games he played before he was benched last week.

Norman cried in a towel after Corrales told him after Tuesday night's 7-2 victory over Boston that he was being sent to the minor leagues.

"It's not doing Nellie any good not playing. I told him I didn't even know if the other guy (Harrelson) could play, but Nellie has got to get his confidence back," Texas Manager Pat Corrales said.

"I still think he (Norman) can play in the big leagues, but this is something we felt we had to do. We'll know by the June 15 trading deadline if Harrelson can play."

Robinson said Pepe Frias, obtained at the start of the season from Atlanta, "is the starter. How much Bud plays depends on how Pepe holds up." Frias made one error in 16 games and is hitting .233, compared to .219 for Norman.

"I've been talking for several days with people. We felt of the guys we could get, Harrelson was the best available. He has a lifetime fielding average of .970, which is excellent. He's never been a great hitter, but we're not getting him for that," Robinson said.

Harrelson's best year was 1973, when he hit .258 for the Mets. He won a Gold Glove in 1971 and played on the Mets' 1969 and 1973 World Series teams.

Madlock appeals suspension

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Madlock, who remains in the Pittsburgh Pirates' lineup pending an appeal of his 15-day suspension, says he hopes to get a hearing Thursday in New York before National League President Chub Feeny.

"I hope so. I hope it happens as soon as possible," Madlock said Tuesday night after he helped the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Feeny imposed the suspension and a $5,000 fine against Madlock Monday in connection with a dispute here last week between the Pirate third baseman and plate umpire Gerry Crawford.

Called out on strikes with the bases loaded, Madlock argued with Crawford.

Holding his glove in his right hand, Madlock pushed the leather into Crawford's face.

Madlock claims he was not trying to "hit" the umpire. He said that Crawford pointed his finger in his face, so he responded by pointing his glove in the umpire's face.

"There was no intent on my part to injure," said Madlock.

Madlock and his Los Angeles-based attorney, Steve Greenberg, hope to meet with Feeny Thursday, an off-day for the Pirates.

Buffalo finds motivation

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Millions of dollars worth of hockey talent sat in the Buffalo dressing room, very much aware of the task ahead. The Sabres knew they were one game from elimination. They knew two teams in National Hockey League playoff history have won a best-of-seven series after losing the first three games.

Before Tuesday night's game against the New York Islanders, it would have seemed words were the last thing needed. Associate Coach Roger Neilson said some, anyway. "We just pointed out to them that since 1975, when Buffalo made it to the finals, the Sabres' record in the playoffs isn't too great. We pointed out that every year, it seems other teams are always saying they'd like to play Buffalo in the playoffs," he said. Neilson's words stung the Sabres, who defeated the Islanders 7-4 — snapping an 11-game streak of Buffalo losses to New York in the playoffs. On three goals by Gil Perreault and two more (plus two assists) by Derek Smith, the Sabres relocated their long-lost offense and earned sudden life in Stanley Cup competition.

"Today we had a meeting and decided enough had been said — now it's time to see what's left inside us," said Buffalo Captain Danny Gare. "We felt we were not a team that deserved to be beaten in a sweep, by any team, no matter who. We had to show that."

And although the scene seemed stolen from a movie writer's concept of sports drama, it worked. The Sabres surmounted a 3-1 deficit, shelled Islanders goalie Bill Smith from the game, recorded their first playoff victory over New York since April 13, 1976, and sent this series back to Buffalo — to the fury of at least one New York player.

"There's no way we should have let them off the hook when we had them down," said Nystrom, who scored twice (as did Bob Bourne) for the Islanders. "When they're down, you've got to kick them."

Instead, the Islanders were kicking themselves — for losing the chance of reaching the playoff finals before the home fans, for the slim support they provided the goalie who had carried them.

"But we shouldn't make too much of this," said Glenn Resch, who hadn't played since April 9 but started the third period with the Islanders trailing 5-3. "This should be a lesson."

The Sabres also learned. "This sure lets us know he (Billy Smith) is not inhuman," said Gare. They learned they could take a lead — their first since the first goal of the first game — and defend it.

North Stars look for help

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Philadelphia Coach Pat Quinn figures the Minnesota North Stars are getting all the assistance they need from the officials, but Glen Sonmor is looking for aid from another source.

"We need a little help from above," said the North Stars coach after his team dropped a 3-2 decision to the Flyers Tuesday night in their National Hockey League semifinal playoff series.

Philadelphia now leads the best-of-seven series 3-1 and can wrap it up Thursday night at the Spectrum. Game 6, if necessary, is slated for the Met Center in Bloomington on Sunday.

"They're getting the help from above," added Sonmor. "We need to be a little luckier. Look at that second goal of theirs. (Bill) Barber shoots and it's stopped, but one of our guys knocks it off the goalie's skate and into the net. It's just not bouncing our way."

Minnesota rookie Tom McCarthy and Philadelphia's Reggie Leach had traded first-period goals before the fluke tally midway through the second period.

Barber, who had scored four goals against the North Stars on Sunday night, was credited with his eighth and ninth of the playoffs. But only the ninth was legitimate.

Just 10 seconds after Minnesota goalie Gary Edwards had stopped a clean breakaway by Ken Linseman, Barber let fly with a shot from the point. Edwards made the save, but defenseman Brad Maxwell, trying to steer the puck behind the net, bounced it off Edwards' skate and into the goal for a 2-1 Flyers' lead.

"Gary and I got our signals crossed," explained Maxwell. "I tried to clear it between he and the net, but I don't think he saw what I was doing."

"It was just one of those things. If I had one of those down at my net, I probably wouldn't have scored."

Barber's second goal, also unassisted, made it 3-1, but Mike Polich cut the margin to 3-2 at 13:56 of the final period and the Flyers then had to kill off a hooking penalty on Leach in the final three minutes to secure the victory.

It was the last of 13 penalties for the Flyers, compared to seven called against Minnesota.

"It's almost like someone is trying to give something to somebody," suggested Quinn, whose club had to face 12 power play situations by the North Stars.

"It's unfortunate that we have to play a game like that," he said. "I am totally frustrated by it. There is no other way to put it."

"I have no idea what to do in a game where there are penalties like that except go ahead and kill them off. What else can you do?"

Conrail reports drop in losses

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail) has reported a loss of $84.8 million for the first quarter of 1980, an improvement over the $125 million loss it reported in the same period last year.

The first quarter figures mark Conrail's fourth full year of operations since April 1976, when it was created by Congress to consolidate and reorganize six bankrupt Northeast railroads. Conrail noted in its statement Thursday that its loss declined, despite reduced freight traffic.

The most significant declines involved shipments of motor vehicles and motor vehicle equipment, which fell 34 percent and 24 percent, respectively.

"Current traffic trends indicate a continuation, and even an acceleration, of these declines as the result of economic conditions which are affecting the nation and particularly the geographic area served by Conrail," according to the statement.

"The adverse effect on Conrail will be substantial in the period ahead," it added. The fall in traffic, along with the current high cost of capital, has caused Conrail to defer planned equipment acquisitions, the statement said.

The loss per share of common stock was reported as $3.41, compared to a $5.02-per-share loss in the first three months of 1979.

Cook's Pantry for good food, buffet service

Good food and lots of it is just what hearty West Texas appetites need. At Cook's Pantry, 2001 N. Big Spring, diners may serve themselves to all they want to eat, and children eat for less.

Breakfast is served from 6:30 until 9:30, and consists of almost anything anyone could wish for for breakfast.

Lunch is also a sumptuous spread. Three meat items, plus all the trimmings. Service from 11-2.

Dinner, 5-8, is a variation of the lunch menu.

For the small appetites, soup is 35 cents and salad is 35 cents per bowl or $1.50 per plate.

Cook's uses purified water for drinking, ice, brewed tea, coffee, and all cooking.

Fried shrimp, chicken fried steak, pork chops, roast, baked liver and onions are just a few of the entrees served in abundance at Cook's Pantry.

At the drive-in window, all the menu items are available to go. Call 683-1463 if you like.

Visit the Stone's fine eatery, Cook's Pantry, 2001 N. Big Spring, as soon as you feel hunger for "something different" coming on. You will be made welcome.

Serving in the line at Cook's Pantry buffet are Mr. and Mrs. Chet Stone and their sons, Chet and Richard. Derrell Beaty, filling his tray, smiles in anticipation of a good meal. Carry-out meals, bulk items, and daily specials make Cook's Pantry a favorite dining spot for Basin residents. Free seconds and a warm welcome can be found at Cook's Pantry, 2001 North Big Spring.

Tax proposal draws yawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — If it's fair to withhold part of a working person's paycheck for federal taxes, the Carter administration asks, why not treat interest and dividend income the same?

Because, says the Credit Union National Association, "It will discourage consumers from saving."

And because "it would be extremely costly to the taxpayer and our economy," says the American Bankers Association.

And because "it will impose unwarranted difficulties on 33 million to 43 million taxpayers," adds the Chamber of Commerce.

Such was the reception Treasury Secretary G. William Miller got Wednesday when he urged the House Ways and Means Committee to approve President Carter's proposed withholding plan as a way to catch tax cheaters and to help balance next year's federal budget.

But the committee was only slightly more receptive to the idea than were the opposing witnesses. Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., told Miller: "If you can sell this sow's purse to this committee, I'm going to give you the Harry Houdini award."

As part of his plan to fight inflation by balancing the budget, Carter asked Congress to authorize withholding 15 percent of interest and dividend income. The proposal, by catching tax cheaters, would raise collections $2.1 billion in calendar 1981, $2.3 billion in 1982 and $2.6 billion in 1983.

The money would be withheld by banks and other investment firms and turned over to the federal government, much as a portion of most workers' wages is withheld by employers.

The proposal allows an exemption from withholding for people who expect to owe no taxes.

They have many items for a snack or light meal, with a fine sandwich menu, soup and salad bar, and ice cream creations. Their latest addition to the tempting selection is the Hawaiian Delight. It is half a fresh pineapple filled with white grapes and orange sherbert, ringed with huge fresh strawberries. A delight indeed for the eyes as well as the palate, for $2.95.

Auto production drops

DETROIT (AP) — Auto production by four of the five major U.S. automakers dropped 20 percent in April, compared to the same month a year ago, according to company reports.

The total for the Big Three — General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. — was put at 602,321 cars for the month, according to reports released Thursday. Volkswagen of American did not report.

For the first four months of the year, production was down 24 percent from last year, at 2,482,982 cars compared with 3,267,193.

The reports came hours after massive layoffs were announced for the industry. GM, Ford, Chrysler and AMC plan to have 263,000 workers on furlough next week, one worker in three. That's the highest figure in the year-long slump.

VW has no layoffs.

Ford suffered the largest production decline, as its April output plummeted 30 percent from the same period last year. The No. 2 automaker so far this year has built 43 percent fewer cars than in the first four months of 1979 — 473,561 against 824,391.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Regular foods good for snacks

Dear Dr. Solomon: What kinds of foods should be served as an after-school snack to a 9-year-old boy? My son has a good appetite with almost no food dislikes. — Mrs. F.S.

Dear Mrs. S.: Snack foods generally should be the same as those served at regular meals, but in smaller portions. They include fruit, juices, milk, peanut butter or cheese on crackers, raw vegetables, nuts and cereals, among others. These foods are rich in protein, vitamins and minerals.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is the significance of the daily dietary allowances printed on cereal boxes? I know there are many times when I do not meet these standards. Does this mean that my diet is inadequate of that I am more susceptible to illness? I feel well and received good grades on my annual physical examination a few months ago. — Ken.

Dear Ken: The daily dietary allowances (or RDAs) are goals, not absolutes that must be achieved. They are not at levels high enough to assure satisfactory nutrition for almost all healthy people in the United States. Individuals with lesser dietary requirements can therefore enjoy satisfactory diets even if they do not meet the standards. The facts that you feel well and had an uneventful physical examination are more important indications of good health than success in meeting an arbitrary standard for nutrient consumption.

Of course persons not in good health may have increased nutritional needs and may have far greater nutritional needs than someone in good health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: We are constantly being warned that the typical American diet is excessively high in fat. But isn't it impossible to have a balanced diet that does not include some fat? — Phil.

Dear Phil: It is neither possible nor desirable to eliminate all fat from the diet. Everyone needs some fat; however, the total amount consumed should be kept at a moderate level, and some foods containing polyunsaturated fat should be included in the diet.

Fats are concentrated sources of energy and supply the fat-soluble vitamins A, D, E and K. In addition, they comprise part of the structure of cells; help cushion vital organs; supply linoleic acid, an essential fatty acid, and by providing energy, fats permit protein to be used for body building and repair.

Linoleic acid is obtainable from a number of oils that come from plants, particularly corn, cottonseed, safflower, sesame, soybean and wheat germ, all of which are polyunsaturated. Margarine, salad dressings, mayonnaise and cooking oils generally are made from one or a combination of these oils. Animal fats rank low in linoleic acid, providing less than do poultry or fish.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

THE NEWSPAPER, BIBLE

Peace of mind: the perfect gift

Anyone who doesn't obey Me doesn't love Me. And remember, I am not making up this answer to your question! It is the answer given by the Father who sent Me.

I am telling you these things now while I am still with you.

But when the Father sends the Comforter to represent Me—and by the Comforter I mean the Holy Spirit—He will teach you much, as well as remind you of everything I Myself have told you.

I am leaving you with a gift—peace of mind and heart! And the peace I give isn't fragile like the peace the world gives. So don't be troubled or afraid.

Remember what I told you—I am going away, but I will come back to you again. If you really love Me, you will be very happy for Me, for now I can go to the Father, who is greater than I am.

I have told you these things before they happen so that when they do, you will believe (in Me).

I don't have much more time to talk to you, for the evil prince of this world approaches. He has no power over Me.

But I will freely do what the Father requires of Me so that the world will know that I love the Father. Come, let's be going.

Explosion in chemical plant drives residents from homes

SAUGUS, Calif. (AP) — An explosion and fire rocked a chemical plant early today, releasing toxic fumes into the air and forcing several hundred residents to leave their homes.

No injuries were reported in the accident at the Keycor Century Plant, officials said.

The plant manufactures polyvinyl chloride, which "emits a highly toxic fume and we are evacuating on the advice of the fire department," said sheriff's deputy Doyle Campbell.

Several businesses and about 300 homes within a 1/2-mile radius of the plant were evacuated after the 1 a.m. explosion in this community 35 miles north of Los Angeles, Cambell said.

Authorities did not know if anyone was at the plant when the blast occurred.

Other chemicals and railroad tank cars stood near the scene of the blaze but did not appear to be threatened, firefighters said.

Authorities stopped traffic in the area and shut down a nearby Southern Pacific rail line.

County firefighter Charles Gibson said the evacuation was precautionary and residents were taken to nearby Emblem Elementary School.

Eight fire companies were at the scene, along with a helicopter that can be used to drop either chemicals or water on the flames.

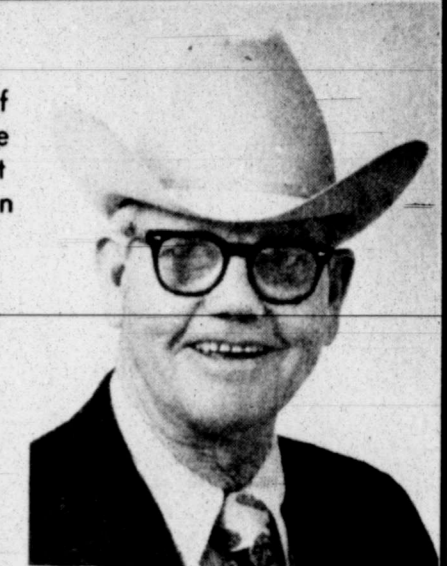

Polyvinyl chloride, commonly called PVC, is used to make such items as plastic pipes.

Retirement of Drinan might further delay criminal code

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The announced retirement of Rep. Robert F. Drinan, on the orders of Pope John Paul II, may delay further the long-drawn-out congressional battle over rewriting federal criminal laws.

Unless the drive to enact the proposed criminal code succeeds in the current Congress, Drinan's departure next January could damage future chances for passage, sources involved in the effort said Monday.

But the same sources, who requested anonymity, said Drinan's announcement Monday could foster a now-or-never effort by the measure's backers.

Efforts to rewrite the existing patchwork of federal laws on crime have been underway for 13 years. The Senate passed a bill in the last Congress, but the proposal made no headway in the House until the current Congress, when Drinan took over the criminal justice subcommittee.

Under his prodding, the subcommittee has approved the bill and sent it to the full House Judiciary Committee, which resumes deliberations Thursday. A different version has been approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee and is awaiting floor action.

Drinan, the only Roman Catholic priest in Congress, announced in Boston that he would accept a papal order banning members of the clergy from political activity.

Liz Bankowski, a Drinan aide, and William Ryan, a press officer for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said the order would apparently not interfere with Drinan's work as a congressman for the rest of his term.

But Rep. Thomas Kindness of Ohio, ranking Republican on the subcommittee and a supporter of the code revision, said the papal directive would add to the troubles the measure faces.

"There are a combination of circumstances that don't look very good for the criminal code's possibilities, and this development is one of them," Kindness said.

Opponents of some proposed provisions of the code have been delaying House Judiciary Committee action by insisting that the lengthy measure be read in full.

In addition, Kindness and other sources said opposition to the bill has been growing in the Senate, which is expected to take it up on the floor next month.

"If it doesn't reach the House floor before June, it will be difficult to enact it in this Congress," Kindness said.

Anti-inflation guides to soften effects of economy felt by poor, unemployed

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the government's anti-inflation policies apparently have begun to work — cutting deeply into sales of houses, cars, furniture and appliances — the pressure is on to soften the side effects a bit.

"Fiscal actions of the government should be directed to countering the recession and to softening the economic crunch felt by the unemployed and the poor," the AFL-CIO's executive council said Tuesday.

The pressure is coming as the economy slips into what some economists think may be a deeper recession than the one that occurred in 1974-75.

There is still no proof that inflation has been brought under control. And there are no signs that President Carter and Congress are willing to abandon their goal of a balanced budget next year — a goal that was announced in hopes of breaking the "inflationary psychology" that helped push prices up.

But there are signs that the Federal Reserve Board has eased the tight money policies that helped bring on the recession. Interest rates have been allowed to drop rapidly during the last few weeks and on Tuesday the Fed lifted a surcharge it had imposed on loans it makes to major banks.

"The Fed is pulling back from an all-out crunch," said David Jones, an economist with the Wall Street firm of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

The Federal Reserve has succeeded in virtually choking off growth of the nation's money supply this year. Economists think that success will start to show up in inflation reports soon, but it is clear it has already played a role in slowing the economy.

"The freefall in economic activity may be without precedent in the post-war period," said Allen Sinal, an economist with Data Resources Inc., an economics forecasting firm. Unemployment has hit 7 percent — the kind of statistic that generally goes with fighting inflation.

An early casualty of the recession could be the controls on consumer credit, which were imposed in March in an effort to make it more expensive to extend such credit.

After borrowing and spending at a record level for several years, consumers were already cutting back when the controls were announced, and it is possible the government will decide the controls are unnecessary.

"Especially sharp falloffs occurred in discretionary purchases such as those at furniture, appliance, apparel and general merchandise outlets," said a report by Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

Auto sales are at their lowest levels since 1975, and layoffs in the industry have spread to suppliers. Auto executives met with 20 U.S. senators Tuesday to discuss what Washington can do to help the ailing industry.

The drop in interest rates is unprecedented for its speed. It less than two months, the rate on six-month Treasury bills has fallen from 15.7 percent to 9.495 percent at this week's auction. Rates charged by banks have declined more slowly as banks have tried to boost profits.

The average mortgage rate is down to about 15 percent, from about 18 percent, and a panel of economists at a homebuilders' conference predicted Tuesday that mortgages could go as low as 12 percent by the end of the year.

As the interest rates have fallen, the dollar has come under increasing pressure. It has lost about 4 percent of its value against major currencies in the last month. The Federal Reserve has indicated some concern about that, but has taken only tentative steps to slow the slide in rates.

There are limits to how much the government can ease its anti-inflation policies, no matter how bad the recession becomes. Memories of rampant inflation are still fresh, despite President Carter's declaration the nation has "turned the corner" in the fight against higher prices.

"If Washington eases up on fiscal or monetary policy at the first sign of economic pain while inflation continues to rage, the financial markets will go through the wringer once again," warned Irwin Kellner, an economist with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York.

Federal Reserve eliminates discount-rate surcharge

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of tightening credit, the Federal Reserve Board has begun loosening its vise-like hold on loaning money at a time it could help the nation's foundering economy.

Starting today, large commercial banks that borrow frequently from the Federal Reserve no longer will have to pay a three percentage point interest surcharge.

The discount-rate surcharge — which pushed the borrowing costs of many large banks to 16 percent — began March 14.

Its elimination will lower commercial banks' borrowing costs, and the "savings" then can be passed along as somewhat lower lending rates to the banks' corporate customers.

The Federal Reserve left unchanged its 13 percent basic discount rate, which has prevailed since mid-February for most bank borrowing.

Market analysts do not expect Tuesday's decision by the Federal Reserve to have a marked effect on consumer lending rates, which have been declining in recent weeks.

But most agreed that the action was a signal that the Federal Reserve believes the nation's economy has begun to cool and that less special restraint is needed.

"I think it is a sign that they think their monetary aggregates are under control and they are no longer looking for extra gimmicks to control bank lending," said George Perry, a senior economist at the Brookings Institution.

Added Kevin Hurley, director of financial forecasting at Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.: "It has to be a little bit of a support, a stabilizing influence, because it tells how the wind is blowing ... They wouldn't have taken this surcharge off if they expected rates to go back up."

The surcharge was designed to help stem the boom in corporate borrowing. The Federal Reserve also put controls on many forms of consumer credit to reduce borrowing.

The result has been a slowdown in the nation's overall economy, with the developing recession likely to help curb the near-record inflation rate. At the same time, however, more than 1 million workers may lose their jobs.

Hurley said he did not think the Federal Reserve was yet ready to begin stimulating the economy to help it out of the recession.

"This is not pump priming, but loosening the noose," he said.

Still, it was the first action that even remotely could be termed "loosening" since the Federal Reserve began its attack on inflation last October.

The discount has risen steadily since late 1976, and the Federal Reserve increased the pace of increases as inflation worsened.

On Oct. 6, the central bank boosted the discount rate from 11 percent to 12 percent. The rate went to 13 percent on Feb. 15. The surcharge — the first such special interest charge in the nation's history — and consumer credit restraints were put in place March 14.

The surcharge had applied to borrowings by commercial banks with deposits of $500 million or more if they borrowed from Federal Reserve Banks more than one week in a row or more than four weeks in any quarter. Some 270 of the nation's banks have deposit totals of this magnitude.

House, Senate stop social spending plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican plan to ease the nation's economic woes by slashing 1981 social spending and cutting taxes has won few converts in Congress.

The House and Senate Tuesday decisively rejected GOP proposals to cut deeply into domestic spending to pay for tax cut of roughly $30 billion.

Instead, Congress seems determined to press ahead with more modest proposals to balance the budget for the first time in 12 years while making some cuts in domestic spending and providing a $10 billion tax reduction.

The House was expected to complete action today on a $611.8 billion balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1. The Senate was to enter its third day of work on a $612.9 billion balanced budget.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, May 8, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Many of you have watched "Ricky" Nelson grow up on TV and in concert without realizing that he shares your birthday. Like Rick, you are a loyal friend, and sometimes you let personal affection influence career, business decisions. Loved ones cannot always live up to your expectations and they may resent you for putting them on the spot. Taking a gamble in a business situation this summer may win you extra income. Your romantic antennae are especially sensitive in October and November. Choose partner with great care! When your love life is unhappy, your work suffers too.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Use special care if starting new project today. Follow instructions to the letter. Keep mind on work. Do not let pride, egotism blind you to the truth where career, business decision is concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Look forward to busy, satisfying day. Distant affairs require careful handling. Rely on advice of experts. Insist on getting facts, figures in writing to protect your reputation. Romantic partner is turned off by display of jealousy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow intuition where career, business opportunities are concerned. News from friend, relative may take you away from home for a few days. Family life is more harmonious than in recent past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your special talent or knowledge is in demand; seize opportunity to impress higher-ups. Too much modesty can cause you to be overlooked. Something that once caused gloom can now be put behind you. Make effort to widen circle of friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Postpone journey. Seek more facts, figures before completing business deal. Be sure to let subordinates know what you expect from them. Mate, spouse gives you some help in making a difficult decision.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work can pile up now but others will pitch in and help. New plan of attack is needed to increase profits, income. Base decisions, policies on what is best for the majority. Discuss situation with mate, romantic partner. Avoid dramatizing!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent is on special relationship, development of partnership with someone who will expand your horizons. Home atmosphere lightens if you employ more tact. Distant affairs are now easier to handle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.

21): A combining of forces is indicated. Emphasis is on partnership, marriage. Binding agreements require further study, research. Mark time. Do not confide hopes, ambitions to too many people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Meetings prove disappointing today. Concentrate on projects, deals you can handle on your own. Be tolerant of interruptions. Associate may turn to you for advice. Platonic relationship could blossom into romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Handle important unfinished business. You may soon reap rewards for past efforts. Domestic obligations may conflict with busy work schedule. Do your best to handle both. Show more appreciation towards romantic partner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emotional ups and downs could affect your output at work. Career-related changes are possible. Artistic venture could result in improved finances in near future. Discuss hopes, ambitions with one who can help you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good day to enter into negotiations with those at a distance. A romantic encounter leaves you breathless. Concentrate on strengthening relationship that means much to you.

diamonds, declarer won the opening lead in dummy as East followed with the two and promptly led the ten of diamonds! East and declarer followed with low cards and West won the jack.

It was difficult for West to diagnose that the best line for the defense was to continue diamonds. Since East's play at trick one indicated a dislike for hearts and those four spades in dummy dissuaded a spade shift, West decided to search for more fertile fields by returning a low club. Declarer captured East's jack with the king and promptly ran the ten of clubs. With three club tricks in the bag and declarer's total up to eight, a club to the ace and a spade to the king enabled declarer to bring home nine tricks. We admire South. Without his bold play at trick two, it seems reasonable to assume that the defenders would have found the diamond shift.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Answer on Markets Page

When a hand cannot be made by legitimate means, you may have to resort to subterfuge. But this is, by no means, soul-wrenching. It seems to us that most players get more satisfaction from stealing a contract than from superior play. Witness South's bit of deception on this deal.

Although the bidding cannot be faulted, declarer found himself in a three no trump contract that had little play. South's opening bid was beyond reproach and North had the prescribed 8 points necessary for a raise. Since South was a point better than minimum with good intermediates, he correctly accepted the invitation.

West led the ten of hearts, and declarer was not greatly thrilled with his prospects. Off the top, he could count four heart tricks, a diamond and two clubs, and one spade trick could surely be established. But once declarer started playing on spades, the defenders would realize the necessity of attacking diamonds, and that would sound the death knell for the contract.

Deborah Raffin was determined to become a serious actress

By Fred Yager
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — She could have been another Bo Derek. But Deborah Raffin had another goal in mind: she was determined to become a serious actress.

After Miss Raffin appeared in Jacqueline Susann's "Once Is Not Enough," Hollywood reporters thought they had a new sex-symbol to exploit.

But that was five years ago, and within a year, the bright young star had faded from the scene.

"The roles I was being offered then were rather insipid," Miss Raffin recalled. "They had no substance whatsoever. Pretty girl roles."

"I quickly became aware of what I really wanted from life and from my career and what was making me so unhappy. I realized that what I wanted most of all was to eventually gain the respect of my peers."

That meant dropping out of the limelight for nearly five years, playing small dinner clubs, taking acting lessons, and accepting parts on television that expanded her acting range more than her familiarity quotient.

"It was hard work," said the 27-year-old actress. "But I feel I've grown as an actress."

When most serious actors and actresses seemed to shy away from television, Miss Raffin found her best opportunities on the tube, especially in miniseries like the upcoming "Haywire," and "The Last Convertible."

"If I waited for films," she said, "I'd work once every five years. There are very few roles for someone who's not a superstar. This is a business and most of studios are run by businessmen."

"The reality is you have to get well-known enough to get the roles. But in TV, they'll give an unknown a demanding, good role more frequently than theatrical films."

Her first theatrical film in five years is "Touched By Love," in which she has a completely different role than the persuasive vamp of "Once Is Not Enough."

For her new film, based on a true story, Miss Raffin played down her looks, cut her long hair and concentrated on her vulnerability to create the character of a woman lost and lonely at a school for handicapped children.

She plays a nurse's aide helping a young girl with cerebral palsy who is confined in a world no one has penetrated.

"It's a film we're proud of," said Miss Raffin. The "we" she refers to is she and her producer husband, Michael Viner, who discovered the book from which the film was made, "To Elvis, With Love."

"He was moved terribly and broke down crying," she said. "He said I should read it. I did and had the same reaction. I broke down sobbing. We felt it was potentially entertaining and at the same time could educate the public and hopefully change their life in some way."

For Miss Raffin, making the film was an education.

"I had the natural intimidation everyone has when they go to work with handicapped children," she said. "You feel like you have to talk differently and treat them differently."

"Eventually, I was able to look beyond the handicap and accept each one as an individual. It's our hope that by the end of the movie, the viewer also looks beyond the handicap."

Miss Raffin said her desire to become an actress had nothing to do with prospective stardom.

"I took up acting because I was shy and thought it would help me come out of my shell," she said. "And it did. I found I could do and say things I was far too embarrassed to say as Deborah. But I could do it as another character and say, hey, it wasn't me."

"It was an emotional release. From that it developed into something I wanted to pursue. I enjoyed creating characters and pieces of others lives. It allowed me to be totally vulnerable. Totally open. That's why I like it so much."

TV censors burdened by thoughts of nation

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is an awesome enough responsibility to keep one's own thoughts and fantasies in some sort of acceptable order; imagine the burden borne by TV network censors, who must mind the thoughts of a nation.

Consider the case of CBS and the Tahitian breast: Last week, CBS aired a fine movie based on the life of Paul Gauguin, the 19th century businessman who chucked the bourgeois existence for art, which he sought in the primitive life of Tahiti.

Good stuff for a TV drama, but the artist's life is a rich and varied one, and the eccentricities of art are not always suitable for television. An artist is likely to run with loose crowds and, depending upon his style, even paint nudes. Thus was posed the challenge for the CBS censors.

Among Gauguin's circle of friends was Vincent Van Gogh who, betrayed by Gauguin, severed his left ear and delivered it to a lady friend. A jarring scene, to be sure, but we viewers could handle it, the censor decided.

The real challenge — three of them, actually — came later, when Gauguin (played by David Carradine) was in Tahiti. One of the sights he took in was a ritual dance in which a young native woman removed her outer garment and danced, nude from the waist up.

"To us," said CBS censor Don O'Brien, "it was a gratuitous scene. All she had on was a sarong, and she was doing a rather vigorous dance."

The female breast, when the body to which it is attached is involved in a vigorous dance, may give rise to naughty thoughts, CBS decided. The scene was cut, showing her shaking from the stomach down.

That same organ, the female breast, was not deemed lascivious in the next challenge. In this one, the breast belonged to a native girl who was serenely posing for Gauguin. No bounce, no problem.

The third challenge was stickier. Again, the breast belonged to a native model, but she was imprudent enough to swat at some flies that were buzzing around her. Three times. This caused her breasts to jiggle, in a manner, presumably, not dissimilar to the movement caused by vigorous dance. The censors flinched.

Robert Wood, former president of CBS, happened to be the producer of "Gauguin the Savage," and, according to a TV Guide report, threatened to withhold the film if CBS didn't allow the fly-swatting scene. The scene was allowed, and Wood reportedly commented:

"Breasts don't mean anything to the networks. It's the nipples they're worried about. The girl was slapping herself and her nipple was shown."

To which O'Brien responds: "He should know better. He was president of the CBS Television Network when 'Papillon' was shown on the network, and there were naked breasts (including nipples) on that. It's all a matter of how it's done."

When is a breast offensive? Not, apparently, on the body of a native girl ("Papillon") who doesn't know better, or on the body of a model placidly posing for an artist, or when it is thinly veiled and belonging to the body of any of a number of the women in "Dallas."

The breast is deemed offensive, apparently, when the female to whom it belongs is swatting flies or dancing vigorously, or, one must assume, doing both simultaneously.

Which eliminates one of my nagging fantasies. Thank you, CBS.

DEAR ABBY

Gay isn't the same as happy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to the heartbroken parents of a gay daughter. Thank you for recommending Parents of Gays. They have been a godsend to us and other parents who ask themselves, "Where have we gone wrong?"

My husband and I are very grateful that our gay daughter has found a warm and stable relationship with a person she loves and who loves her.

Her housemate is as welcome and accepted into our family as the man who married our other daughter. Because being gay has caused our daughter so much pain, I will be the first to admit I wish she were not gay, just as I wish my hair wasn't curly and my husband didn't smoke. But these are things I cannot change, so I have learned to live with them.

I hope the parents of that gay daughter will accept her and the girl she loves, and get on with living the rest of their lives. — CONTENT PARENT

DEAR PARENT: Curly hair can be straightened and your husband can quit smoking if he really wants to, but in my opinion, the fundamental CAUSE of homosexuality is biological — either genetic or hormonal. Otherwise, how can one account for the fact that homosexuals have brothers and sisters who are straight though raised in the same environment? However, it is possible for psychological factors to influence one's natural sexual preference after birth.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a European-born gentleman (Hungarian) who, upon greeting a woman, always gently kisses her hand. I think this is a lovely gesture. Can you tell me where the custom of kissing a lady's hand originated, and the reason for it? — ANNETTE IN BURLINGAME

DEAR ANNETTE: It originated in France. And although there is nothing in literature explaining the reason for it, I suppose a man has to start somewhere.

DEAR ABBY: The other day you had a letter in your column from a woman who signed herself PRETTY FEET. She said her husband was crazy about her feet and was really turned on by them. She wanted to know if maybe he was some kind of "nut."

You told her that he was no nut; he had a foot fetish, and it was nothing to worry about.

Well, Abby, you'll never know how much that explanation meant to me. You see, ever since I was a little kid, I'd get real excited over girls' feet. I never understood why. I used to feel ashamed when I'd ask a girl if I could kiss her foot. I'm sure a lot of girls thought I was weird.

I'm a grown man now, and I'd still rather hold a girl's foot than her hand. Thanks for printing that letter. It's a great relief to know I'm not alone. — ANOTHER FOOT LOVER

Hapsburg Empire inspires fall collections

By NINA S. HYDE
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Fashion designers on Seventh Avenue have called on the entire Hapsburg Empire for inspiration for their fall collections. And because they are smarter about hemlines than history, they have mixed in a little Victorian and Colonial America at the same time.

Jackets and coats with passementerie embroidery on the front, frog closings, fur trims, high ruffled and lace-trimmed necklines, loden and velvet are in the current scheme of clothes for fall. And when they are done well, the effect is decorative and cheerful. Other times, it is pure costumery.

The Hapsburg influence is hardly a surprise. Mainly it's because of the current show, Fashions of the Hapsburg-era, at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, the eighth annual exhibit generated by Diana Vreeland, special consultant to the costume institute at the Met.

But it is also a way of faking some favorite classics — like the Chanel jacket, or little fitted jackets, suits and coats — and gussying them up a bit.

Oscar de la Renta, who with a delicate hand has done the most literal translations from the Hapsburg show, is quick to give full credit to the source. "I loved the men's court costumes in the show. And I've always like the idea of loden for city or country." De la Renta tips his hand to the costumery with a true alpine hat that is part of the traditional dress of Austrian men and women. Of the parade hat of a soldier or drum majorette, obviously meant just for the show.

De la Renta uses the Hapsburg theme effectively for daytime and evening, in both instances with embroidered jackets that could jazz up everything else a woman has in her closet.

Bill Haire, on the other hand, was swept away with Hapsburg lore strictly for evening. His jacket has embroidered sleeves, and was shown with suede pants or knickers and a white lace-ruffled collar blouse.

Authentic loden shows up in the Glöira Sachs collection, the made-in-Tyrol (Austria) variety. But while many others are opting for the olive bronze color, Sachs uses a blue-green that is far more flattering and easier to wear than the traditional color. And for the Passementerie embroidery, hers is not a seasonal innovation. One of her best-selling suits this spring was white with just that embroidery. For fall she has teamed her suits with a high collar blouse she aptly calls the Byron Blouse.

When Ralph Lauren was fitting models earlier this week she kept asking his assistant, Buffy Birretella, "It isn't to costumery, is it?"

Lauren isn't sure whether his clothes look Edwardian, Victorian or Hapsburg. It's a mix of it the three, says Lauren. He says the biggest boost to his current collection was the success of his lace blouses this spring. Now he has moved this look forward to fitted velvet dresses and jackets worn with lace blouses, of course.

"I want you to be my best friend so I can wear these clothes all the time," teased model Connie Cook as she was fitted for the show.

Diana Vreeland's shows at the Met have always had an influence on Seventh Avenue designers, who are permitted to study all of the garments. The repercussions of those shows spin off into collections all over the world, including Yves Saint Laurent's much-touted Russian collection several seasons back.

The current Hapsburg show, which continues through August, starts with a nobleman's coat of the 17th century, and includes many lavishly decorated uniforms worn by Austrians and Hungarians at the imperial court of Franz Joseph.

Woman awarded $52,500

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal jury has awarded $52,500 in damages to a woman who claimed she had to resign as Washington district sales manager for World Airways to avoid sexual advances by the airline's president, Edward J. Daly.

The U.S. District Court panel of four women and two men deliberated about 2½ hours this week before awarding $2,500 in compensation and $50,000 in punitive damages from the airline to Bonnie A. Clark, who held her job for only a week.

Lawyers for World contended that the verdict was contrary to the evidence presented during the week-long trial and said they would ask Judge Harold H. Greene to set aside the award.

Ms. Clark, 35, contended that on three separate occasions during trips to San Francisco, Daly pat- tered her on the right hip, rubbed her leg and tried to touch her without her consent.

She said she resisted Daly's alleged advances at all times, and on the third occasion managed to get away after she promised to accompany Daly to Reno, Nev.

In rebuttal, lawyers for the airline claimed that Ms. Clark "flirted and encouraged sexual advances" and had "fabricated" her charges.

Daly did not testify at the trial. Ms. Clark has filed a separate suit against him, and a trial in that case is pending.

CULTURAL BRIEFS

Art fellows

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Employees of a multinational company here have increased their financial support of culture, the arts and education.

Workers at Emhart Corp. donated over $137,000 in 1979, an increase of 54 percent in their philanthropy over 1978. Sixty cultural institutions — from symphony orchestras to literary societies and public broadcasting — received 81 gifts, and 193 educational institutions, ranging from secondary and private schools to colleges and technical schools, received 250 individual gifts.

Emhart is one of a number of firms that match employee gifts to cultural institutions with equal donations.

Museum show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An exhibition of French 19th-century sculpture, "The Romantics to Rodin," is being shown at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art through May 25.

It consists of 202 bronze, marble, plaster and terracotta works by 60 artists, drawn from public and private collections in North America.

The museum says the show is the first major re-evaluation of French sculpture from 1830 to 1890 and allows viewers to examine "the enormous diversity of styles and broad historical interests characteristic of French sculpture of the last century..."

Cesarean birth classes offer couples support

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

Cesarean birth classes will be offered in a four week series beginning today at 7:30 p.m. Anyone anticipating a Cesarean birth may contact Sharon Kohout at 697-2651 or Sharon Yorek at 683-4504 for more information.

These classes are sponsored by the Childbirth With Preparation group. They are available to those couples who are planning to have a Cesarean birth.

Topics to be discussed including relaxation-breathing techniques, surgical and hospital procedures, recovery and postpartum periods.

Films on Cesarean birth and breastfeeding will be shown. A hospital tour is also part of the class plan.

"These classes are designed to help couples who have questions or fears about the Cesarean birth process to better prepare for the event," said Mrs. Kohout, a certified childbirth educator who teaches the class with Mrs. Yorek, a registered nurse.

SHE REMEMBERS that her first child was born by the Lamaze method, a natural participating labor and birth (usually the husband) who are trained to work with the doctor in preparation for the event.

"My last baby was born breech and I had to have a C-section," she added.

Mrs. Yorek had also taken Lamaze classes and only found out three weeks before her child's birth that she would probably have to have a Csarean birth. "The rate of babies born by the Cesarean method is rising," said Mrs. Yorek. "We have been told that 20 per cent of the deliveries at Midland Memorial Hospital are Cesarean."

Mrs. Kohout and Mrs. Yorek said that this method of childbirth was once considered a risky operation, but that is not as true as it used to be.

"A LOT OF OUR teaching is emotional preparation," said Mrs. Yorek. "You'd be surprised at the amount of mothers who think they are failures because they can't have a vaginal delivery."

"But times have changed," she said, "and the medical field is so accommodating to a Cesarean birth that the experience can be as fulfilling as a natural childbirth."

"Mothers who experience the C-section birth aren't treated so differently anymore," she said.

For example, the father can be present at the delivery if the mother is awake and he has attended a Lamaze or Cesarean class. Also, the couple's physician must approve each individual case.

The father's participation at the classes is strongly encouraged, according to the instructors.

TOPICS OVER THE four week series cover a wide range. A slide presentation showing a delivery is shown. Hospital admitting, surgery and recovery procedures are thoroughly covered.

In addition, the post partum stay in the hospital is discussed, and expectant mothers are taught exercises that will help her after the Cesarean delivery. "They're quite simple, such as showing how to get out of bed, how to move in bed, etc.," said Mrs. Kohout.

ALSO DISCUSSED are the baby's and mother's care at home. "It takes much longer for a mother with a Cesarean delivery than a mother with a natural childbirth to recover from the operation—about four to six weeks before she's well again," said Mrs. Yorek.

Another topic is the newborn—its routine in the hospital and the very important issue of bonding.

Films are also shown on the post partum stay and breastfeeding.

And the myths of a Cesarean are included.

The CWP group has recently begun a Cesarean support class which meets on the fourth Friday of each month. It is for mothers who have recently undergone the Cesarean operation.

"A lot of mothers feel the need to discuss their experiences," said Mrs. Kohout. "The class is individualized for each student," she said.

REGISTRATION FOR all classes is by telephone.

While Lamaze classes are usually scheduled about seven weeks before the anticipated birth, Cesarean classes are scheduled as early as the mother's sixth month of pregnancy.

"That is because we want the students to read a book we distribute, discuss the situation with their doctor and have time to think it over," said Mrs. Yorek.

Mother's Day began in West Virginia

ENRRHRINED MOTHER

Every day is Mother's Day in Grafton, W. Va. Grafton is the site of the International Shrine to Motherhood. The shrine is actually the Andrews Methodist Church, where the first public Mother's Day observance was held in 1908. The church has since been converted into a museum and memorial to Anna M. Jarvis, the founder of Mother's Day.

er goddess of nature. Worship of Cybele spread to Rome about 250 B.C. as the festival of Hilaria, a three-day period of dancing and feasting that began on the Ides of March. Ancient German tribes considered all mothers divine and worshipped them as living goddesses.

NOBODY'S MOM

The founder of Mother's Day was never a mother herself. In fact, she never married.

Anna M. Jarvis founded Mother's Day 72 years ago in Grafton, W. Va. She requested that a church service be held to honor her mother, who had died in 1905. By 1911, every state in the union observed Mother's Day on the second Sunday in May.

MOTHER'S GLORY

Mother's Day in the United States is 72 years old, but the idea behind it goes back to the ancient Greeks, says researcher Sally Hopkins of Hallmark Cards. In Greece and Asia Minor, a spring festival was held each year to honor Cybele, the earth-moth-

AT WIT'S END

Just tell me where it is

By ERMA BOMBECK

You want to know how to get every mother in the world on her feet and moving?

Just stand in front of her and say, "Don't get up! Just tell me where it (whatever she's looking for) is."

I have seen women pull themselves out of bed three hours out of surgery following that line. It's like waving a red flag in front of them.

For some weird reason the entire family seems to feel that the mother is a walking Dewey Decimal System for every item in the entire house.

I figured out once that I spent 23 hours a week looking for things — I knew where they were all the time but in the words of the family "just wanted to feel important."

Why do mothers do it? Why don't they just sit there and give directions? I thought you'd never ask.

Men suffer from a congenital disease called "front-of-the-shelf-paralysis." It's a curious malady where the vision remains at eye level and freezes. The arms remain motionless at their sides and they are incapable of moving anything to see what is stored behind.

Watch them sometimes when they're looking for something in the refrigerator, medicine chest, or shelf in the garage. They survey the contents in a blink, then yell to wherever you're sitting. "IT'S NOT HERE!"

It's only after you are standing at their right side and pushing aside a single item in the front row that their eyes show recognition. Then they turn to you and ask, "Why do you have to hide things?"

Children, on the other hand, suffer a different set of symptoms. They carry a disease called, "Convenient Blindness." It comes and it goes. They see what they want to see. If they're looking for a laxative, boots, report card, or garbage to take out, their faces go blank, their eyes become set and they see nothing.

It's the same look they reserve for when they're told that the first one who sees the dog's contribution to indoor pollution has to clean it up. On the other hand, if they're looking for your tennis racket, change in the lining of your purse, or Easter candy that is hidden, they are capable of seeing through doors and walls.

I said to the family the other night, "I'd like to run away from home. Where is Cleveland? Don't get up. Just tell me where it is."

They didn't get the joke.

In 1960 there were 3 million Americans age 65 and over accounting for 4 percent of the population.

By 2030 there should be 50 million Americans age 65 and over accounting for 17 percent of the population.

Carl Hagenbeck, the founder, was the first to use the reward method instead of punishment in animal training and also developed the concept of exhibiting wild animals in an environment like that of their natural habitat.

The movie business is still booming — box office for 1979 reached $2.8 billion, a record.

Also, the highest number of new films, 186, were distributed since 1976.

Sew what's new

By SANDRA KELLY

Dear Sandra Kelly: Can you suggest a window treatment that will allow light, give privacy during the day and completely block all views from the outside at night? We live close to a busy street.—Mrs. D.K.

Dear Mrs. D.K.: Make two sets of draperies, and mount them on a double rod. The first set should be of an airy, casement-type fabric. This is a very loosely woven fabric that often has vertical stripes. Or sheers can be used as your first set. The second set, hung directly behind the first, is of a lining fabric. With the energy problems of today, I would suggest an insulated lining. During the day you can draw your sheer or casement drapes. This will give you some degree of privacy while they let in light. At night, draw the lining closed for complete privacy.

Dear Sandra Kelly: When making my blouses, no matter how exactly I try to place the buttons, my blouse always seems to open—with the buttons leaving the buttonholes. Or, if this doesn't happen, the buttons seem to be misplaced, and the result is a front closing that has bunching between the buttons. What is the correct way to locate the button placement?—Mrs. D.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: You begin by putting on your blouse and pinning it closed. Be sure that you have enough ease across the bust. A blouse that is fitted too tight will never stay buttoned.

To locate the button placement on vertical buttonholes while the blouse is on, place a pin through the top of the buttonhole. On horizontal buttonholes, place a pin through the end of the buttonhole nearest the front edge. The buttons are then sewn in place on these pin marks. Be careful not to sew the button so tightly to the blouse that the buttonholes edges cannot fit comfortably under the button.

Apple pie next?

The U.S. Senate is on record as voting against mom.

The Senate voted 33 to 14 against a national Mother's Day in 1908, say researchers at Hallmark Cards. Anna M. Jarvis, the founder of Mother's Day in America, then began a six-year crusade for an official Mother's Day. In 1914, Woodrow Wilson signed the bill designating the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day. Today, Mothers are similarly honored in Africa, Britain, Canada, China, Japan, Mexico and South America.

Midland's Miss Texas arrives on Gulf Coast

MISSISSIPPI GULF COAST — The youngest of eight children, Miss Texas USA Barbara Buckley of Midland, Texas, looked like she felt right at home when she arrived on the Mississippi Gulf Coast for the 1980 Miss USA Pageant.

The brown-haired, brown-eyed beauty danced with a member of the jazz band that greeted the 51 contestants as they arrived at the airport. Laughing, she threw back her head and said, "I'm very, very excited about being here. I know it sounds like I'm a kid, but I have an uninhibited joy for life."

The pageant will be telecast live by the CBS network on Thursday, May 15, at 9 p.m. ET and Barbara said most of her family is coming to see her in the pageant. "People are coming to see her in the pageant. People are coming from all over the country to see me," the 22-year-old said. "I have a brother coming from Connecticut and another brother coming from Colorado. My family is so happy for me."

The Angelo State University drama graduate plans to be a professional entertainer one day. "What I really hope to be is a musical comedy actress," Barbara said. "Right now I feel like modeling is an open field for me and I may even tryout for a Broadway show next year. I'm waiting to see what happens here," she said.

Barbara entered the Miss Texas USA Pageant last August and won. Since then she said she has been traveling around Texas meeting people and representing the Lone Star State at various functions.

AAUW GOURMET GROUPS

"Hawaii at Home" was the theme for the Bon Appetit and Couples Gourmet groups of the Midland Branch of the American Association of University Women's joint luau.

The luau were held in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Cary Geron, 3205 Reo Drive, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeanfreau, 3111 Auburn Place.

As the 50 guests arrived a lei was placed around their necks by Becky and Ann Marie Geron.

RHCC LADIES ASSOCIATION

Jan Blanchard and Dorothy Campbell were hostesses for the Ranchland Hills Country Club Ladies Association May bridge and luncheon meeting.

High guest in bridge was Ruby Lee Castle and Ruth Walker was high for club members and Edythe Pugh placed second.

OLD TIMERS BRIDGE CLUB

Mary Jane Kemp won first place at the Old Timers Bridge Club meeting at the Helon Y. Allison Bridge Center.

Lu Fisher won second place and Helen Owen received third.

Hostesses were Edith Garst and Mary Lou Bishop. Cris Kauffman won special prize and Lara Heinze was guest.

Higher restaurant prices increase doggie bags

Nobody pretends about doggie bags anymore. Once restaurant customer looked nobly straight in the eye and explained about the hungry hound at home. And restaurant owner nodded sympathetically and wrapped up the leftover T-bone in a bag that said "bow-wow" on the front.

But dining tastes changed, and everyone knew that nobody believed anyone's dog was mad for sweet and sour pork, fettucine alfredo, vegetable quiche, or most of the other unadorned edibles customers are now carrying home. Prices changed, too.

Dining out is costly, especially for diehard beef-and-potato people. You can bet your Milk Bones that when sirloin tops $16 per portion, not many extras are going to the dogs.

Although it's also a more diet-conscious public dining out these days, many restaurants still cook as if Paul Bunyon were coming to dinner.

With waste-not rightness on their side, customers are more forthright about the leftovers. "Please wrap this up," they instruct the waiter as casually as if he were the butcher. For its part, the restaurant is more candid, too. Food is wrapped carefully, sometimes in aluminum foil pans with tight-fitting lids and sometimes quite artfully in snug little bundles fashioned into dainty swans. Many restaurants have even switched to people bags.

Holleb & Co., a major Chicago area restaurant equipment supplier, introduced one 1 1/2 years ago. Instead of the pet motif, it bears a sketch of a chef.

bags have been receiving "absolutely rave reviews" from the restaurants, according to Brill.

But what of the bags once they've gone home? The roast duck a l'orange that lured you off your diet yesterday may tempt only the trash can after congealing a few nights in the refrigerator.

Some foods hold up better than others on the leftovers circuit. Lobster, served cold the next day in a well-seasoned salad is the best, says a food savvy woman. Trouble is, she laments, she can no longer afford to order it the first time around.

Whether it will hold up is not the question when half of a $25 meal still lies on the plate. Bag it now, and worry about logistics later is the code.

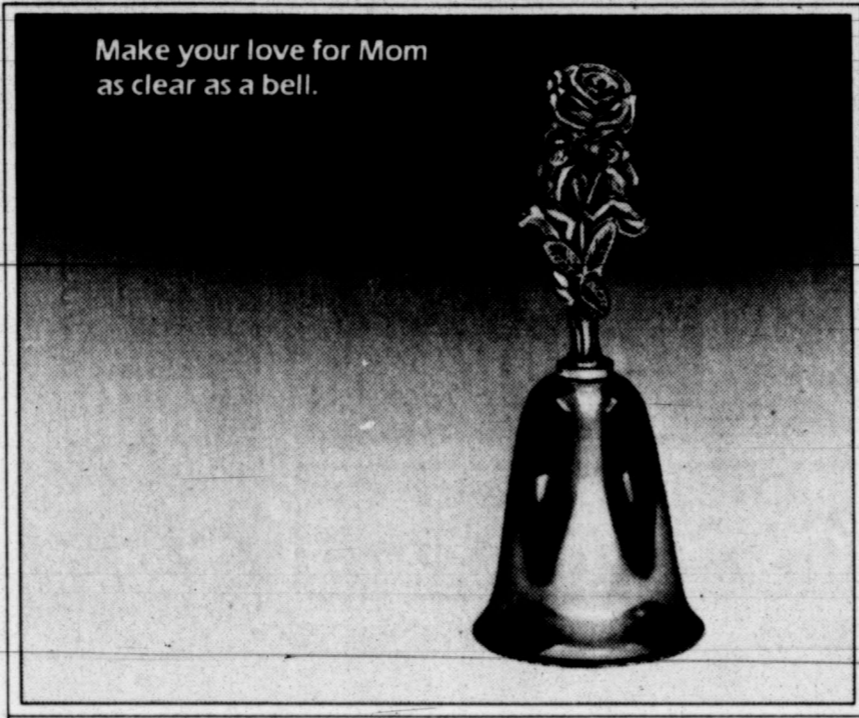

Unfortunately, nobody writes cookbooks about doggie bags, but some people keep scrap books. So in the interest of inflation-wrought diners everywhere, here's one gleaner's guide to the good, bad and the ugly among doggie-people bag pickings.

STEAK They offer piano bars and trendy trappings, but steak restaurants are actually one of America's last remaining vestiges of caveman times. Future generations may one day laugh in disbelief that their ancestors eagerly sat down to two pounds of steak. As one restaurant observer says of these oversized meals, "It's a crime if you finish them and a crime if you don't."

Steak suffers from battle fatigue the second time around. If it was rare in the first place it still has a fighting chance. Slice thinly and reheat quickly in hot skillet or under broiler. Camouflage the dismal entree with leafy green vegetables, or for the professional chef's touch, use parsley.

South Jersey: the 51st state?

By PETER MATTIACE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — West Virginia did it to Virginia. Maine did it to Massachusetts. Would South Jersey secede from New Jersey to become the 51st state?

Low rumblings in New Jersey's southland threaten, only half jokingly, to tear the state apart at its waist. And the more some South Jerseyans talk about it, the more serious they get.

"Sure we can do it. We have the smarts," said Albert Freeman, 66, a retired Mount Holly newspaper publisher who leads the rebel cause as self-proclaimed "provisional governor of South Jersey."

"There's nothing smarter than a dumb farmer," Freeman said. "And that's North Jersey's opinion of us, that we're a bunch of yokels."

Seaside Heights Mayor George Tompkins has been trying for years to unite South Jersey mayors on statehood.

"I'm very serious about it," Tompkins said. "Oh, it started off as a joke after a couple of things came down the pike from Trenton I didn't like. After a while, though, I talked to a number of mayors about it and they liked the idea."

From Bordentown to Cape May, the rebels' cry is the same: too much South Jersey tax money goes to North Jersey in return for too much control by Trenton (read "North Jersey") bureaucrats.

"They're carpetbaggers," said Freeman. "They come down here just the way northerners went to the South right after the Civil War."

The problem is largely one of image. To most northerners, South Jersey is a weekend at the beach, a sail on the bay, a drive through the Pine Barrens and roadside vegetable stands run by country folk.

To many southerners, North Jersey is a metropolitan blur of Newark, Jersey City, Paterson and Rahway. It seems all state funding goes to Meadowlands Stadium, where the New York Giants play football and harness horses race, to Rutgers in New Brunswick, considered New Jersey's state university, and to webs of jammed North Jersey highways.

"I think we take the brunt of the taxation and we don't get anything for it," said Tompkins. "The state spends all its money on the cities of North Jersey. Eventually, South Jersey will be a giant park for the people of North Jersey."

Freeman said state staffs and agencies are stacked with North Jerseyans from such alien-sounding places as Hackensack, Hoboken and Ho-Ho-Kus.

Gov. Brendan Byrne's staff is 20-1 North Jerseyans, according to Freeman. All seven Supreme Court justices are North Jerseyans, and the state Board of Education is stacked 21-4, Freeman said.

These city slickers, Tompkins said, control South Jersey's beaches, bays, farms and pinelands through a network of agencies created by, of course, a hostile Legislature run by North Jersey politicians.

Freeman proposes that South Jersey's eight counties secede along the northern borders of Ocean and Burlington counties, freeing more than 1.8 million South Jerseyans from Trenton's grasp, leaving 5.4 million in North Jersey.

"There's a natural barrier. Monmouth and Mercer counties are both New York-oriented. We're more Philadelphia-oriented. We're an entity and we're a viable entity," Freeman said. "We have everything we need to sustain ourselves."

Camden would be the capital of the new state. But doubters exist even among South Jersey's biggest supporters.

Paul Merkoski of The Atlantic City Press once wrote sarcastically that the capital should be not at Camden but at Ancora, site of a state psychiatric hospital.

Vineland Mayor Patrick Fiorilli, who has battled Trenton often, says secession is out of the question.

"Vineland is 19 miles south of the Mason-Dixon line. If we wanted to secede, we would have done it in the 1800s," Fiorilli said. "We've been neglected, but we think New Jersey's a great state and we're getting a little recognition now."

Freeman launched his campaign in January 1976 with an off-the-cuff editorial in the Burlington County Herald. To foster the idea, he has handed out more than 4,200 certificates of South Jersey citizenship.

Tompkins has written to Maine and West Virginia officials to ask how their states did it in the 1800s. It all sounds like fun — until talk turns serious about county committees gathering petitions to force the question on a statewide referendum.

Gas leak lands five in hospital

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Toxic chlorine gas leaked while being loaded on a barge in this Washington city's tide-flats area, sending 11 people to the hospital. Five were admitted.

Some 400 pounds of poisonous liquified chlorine escaped as gas Monday night through a broken seal on a pressure valve, officials said.

Five people were hospitalized in stable condition today. Six others who breathed the fumes were treated at Tacoma General Hospital and released, said Bruzetta McFarlane, nursing supervisor.

Chlorine gas, which dissolves in water to become hydrochloric acid, can be lethal in large doses, said Dr. Mike Doman. Lesser amounts of the gas act as an irritant.

Other people exposed to the gas were given oxygen at the scene, police said.

The liquid chlorine formed a poisonous cloud after leaking while being loaded on the Canadian barge Seaspan at the Penwald Chemical Co. on Hylebos Waterway, said Tacoma Fire Department Capt. LLOYD Hanson.

Pentagon says time is running out for MX missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials say time is running short for Congress to approve a start of the MX mobile missile system for it to be ready when needed.

Led by Defense Secretary Harold Brown, the officials told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Tuesday that their schedule is tight.

They said congressional inaction on a basic design beyond this fall, when environmental impact statements on possible MX sites will be ready, could delay the 1982 target for construction to begin.

And that, the officials said, would mean that much of the MX would still be under construction after the aging Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile system becomes dangerously vulnerable to Soviet attack.

The Pentagon would like to have at least part of the system operating by 1986.

Brown, Undersecretary of Defense William Perry and Air Force Undersecretary Antonia Chayes presented the arguments at the hearings, which continued today.

The officials said they have abandoned the controversial plan to base the MX in huge oval-shaped "race tracks" in the desert valleys of Utah and Nevada.

Although those valleys are still the most likely spots for the system, they said, the race track plan has been dropped in favor of "lineal tracks" — straight desert roads lined with reinforced missile shelters.

Other technical changes have made the race tracks unnecessary, Perry said. Asked by Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, if the concept was dead, Perry replied: "Yes."

He said defense planners have calculated that the change could shorten by 20 percent the roads that would have to be built by 20 percent; would make the system less obtrusive; would allow more missiles to be deployed in each valley; and, with other design changes accepted by the Pentagon in recent weeks, could save as much as $2 billion.

The racetrack concept has been opposed by many Utah and Nevada residents, who say it would take vast amounts of land unnecessarily.

Nevada's elected officials were lukewarm in their reaction to the Pentagon's "race track" decision.

Gov. Robert List said the decision indicated defense officials were listening to complaints, but he said he still opposed putting the missile system in his state.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, a Republican, called the decision "a step in the right direction." But Democratic Rep. Jim Santini said Nevada is "still faced with the ominous prospect of hundreds of missiles, thousands of miles of roads and a tremendous drain on our resources."

Perry said the MX system has been thoroughly evaluated by the Pentagon. "Our studies have concluded that the MX is needed for national security, that the design has been completed and that it is ready for approval," he told the subcommittee.

"Whatever changes we make in the coming months will be in the nature of fine tuning," Perry added. "From a design point of view, we're ready to proceed."

The Senate panel is considering an authorization of $17.1 million to build MX test facilities at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California and $97 million for planning and design of the 200-missile system, which officials say will be the largest public works project in history.

Father, son walk from house, end 32-hour siege

Man, distraught over impending divorce, feared losing children

By GEORGE TIBBITS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The father dressed his younger sons in good clothes and sent them from the house. Then, 32 hours after he first threatened to blow up himself and the boys, he walked out hand-in-hand with his oldest son and surrendered to police.

Officials said 7-year-old Kevin Lehman had refused to leave his father, who was described as distraught over an impending divorce, before the incident came to a peaceful end Tuesday.

Two younger children were released five hours before Lehman's surrender. The youngest reportedly also had begged to stay with his father.

Kevin was led away to relatives as Kim Lehman, 28, was taken to jail and booked for investigation of aggravated burglary and aggravated assault.

No bond was set.

The incident, the sixth involving hostages in Utah this spring, began Monday when Lehman threatened to blow up himself and his three sons in the suburban home of his father-in-law, Norman Garrett, officials said.

Authorities said Lehman, who recently resigned as service manager for Garrett's auto dealership, claimed to have a bomb strapped to his waist and he was armed with a pistol and other weapons.

Sheriff's Capt. Bob Jack said the bomb was a fake — three 12-volt batteries bound together with silver tape. Monday, deputies detonated a black powder bomb found at Lehman's home on the other side of the county, leading them to believe Lehman's threat was genuine.

Lehman, estranged from his wife, told officers he took his children hostage because he feared he wouldn't see them if he and his wife were divorced, said psychiatrist Dr. Lane Smith, who helped negotiators. Garrett, his wife, Marilyn, and Lehman's wife, Jo Lynn, were at the home Monday morning, but were able to escape unharmed.

Jack said Lehman was "apologetic" after the incident. "He wanted to come out. It was just getting over that step and fear," he said.

Lehman had warned he would kill himself and his boys if news of the siege were broadcast. Local radio and television stations complied with police requests not to broadcast the story until Jack lifted the embargo about midnight Monday.

But Jack said Lehman was concerned about his and his sons' appearance before television cameras when they emerged from the house.

Scientists still watching unpredictable volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Scientists are keeping a wary eye on a growing bulge on Mount St. Helens but cannot predict what it will do, U.S. Geological Survey officials say.

"We don't know the strength of the materials within the mountain, so we can't do an analysis" on what the bulge will do, Donal R. Mullineaux, a USGS geophysicist, said Tuesday.

An explosive eruption remains more likely than a lava flow, he said, but the USGS has no way of determining if either will occur.

"The hazard on the north side of the mountain is greater than at any time" since the 9,677-foot volcano began erupting steam and ash nearly six weeks ago, said USGS geologist Dan Miller.

"As long as the (bulging) continues, the hazard will continue to increase," he said.

Mullineaux said scientists could not tell how unstable the bulging was.

Weather prevented scientists from measuring the bulge Tuesday, but in the 11 days ending Monday, the Goat Rock area had moved northward horizontally 40 to 50 feet, he said.

Forest fire set on 'high risk' day

MIO, Mich. (AP) — The fire that blazed across 25,000 acres of northern Michigan timberland and killed one firefighter had been set to prepare the habitat for the rare Kirtland's warbler on a "high risk" day, officials say.

The blaze was dying out today, two days after forest officials started it, authorities said.

It had been started intentionally by the U.S. Forest Service on a day state officials called "high risk" for setting such "controlled fires."

But state Department of Natural Resources spokesman Tom Hillman called the Forest Service's decision a matter of "judgment" and said professionals occasionally set fires on high-risk days.

The fire, which began about 10 a.m. Monday in the Huron National Forest, still was smoldering early today. But Forest Service spokesman Dick Klade said light rain on Tuesday helped contain it, and it was expected to be under control later in the day.

The fire was intended to prepare 200 acres of natural habitat for the rare songbird. The bird, which numbered 422 at last count compared with 1,000 in 1961, is nicknamed "bird of fire" because it nests beneath jack pines whose seeds are spread when a fire's heat opens the cones.

The half-ounce, blue-and-yellow bird winters in the Bermudas, but the Huron National Forest is the warbler's only summer habitat.

Gusting winds whipped up the flames about two hours after the controlled burn began, and flames broke out of the control area and swept east.

James L. Swiderski, 29, of Alto, a forest service biological technician, died fighting the fire.

Ron Wilson, a fire specialist in the DNR's Roscommon office, said he thought Monday's weather was too questionable to begin any planned burns.

"We did not burn because of the weather forecast, I'll tell you that much. We have several prescribed burns we want to get done, and we didn't do it because of the weather forecast."

The forecast had called for winds of 6 to 10 mph, but predicted winds could increase to 10 to 15 mph, with 20 mph gusts.

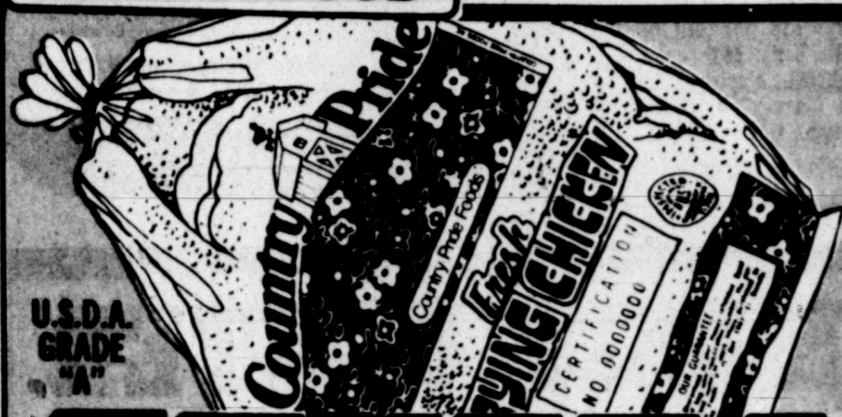

The Huron National Forest blaze was one of three forest fires that burned for more than a day in the sparsely populated northern half of Michigan's Lower Peninsula.

A blaze in the Mackinaw State Forest, about 50 miles south of the Straits of Mackinac, claimed 1,500 acres and another fire destroyed nearly 1,000 acres of the Au Sable State Forest — formerly called Tittabawassee River State Forest — about 25 miles west of Saginaw Bay. Both were under control Tuesday, state officials said.

RINGING THE BELL

At-large voting upheld

With BOB TIEUEL
Our metroplex area Bell Ringers can be happy in the fact that a recent ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court will not affect the redistricting of council seats that gives blacks and browns an opportunity to be ably represented.

By a 6-3 margin, the court ruled that the people of a city have a constitutional right to elect their city councilmen at-large if they so desire.

Thus the Burger court continues to dash cold water on the progress that has been made by blacks and other minorities toward complete social and political and economic freedom.

The Lubbock Avalanche Journal, in complimenting the decision, said:

"The U.S. Court breathed new life into hopes for survival of local democratic self-government recently. . . . The decision, handed down in a case out of Mobile, Ala., should have direct impact on Lubbock, where the election of city councilmen and school trustees by the at-large method also has been under attack.

"The trouble begins when politicians or the courts start trying to divide voters up by race and wind up gerrymandering the lines in order to give either the majority or the minority an advantage. . . . Nevertheless, as part of the affirmative action hysteria sweeping the country, the trial court and the liberal 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ruled that Mobile, Alabama's, at-large system had discriminated against blacks there. That same 5th Circuit Court now has before it an appeal of a class action suit brought by blacks and Mexican Americans seeking to force a single-member district or ward system on Lubbock."

THE AVALANCHE Journal apparently is not aware of the low voter turnout in many areas of this great country. Many elections are held with only a 15 or 20 percent voter action and in some cases even lower. It is the disgrace of America and we are leaders in this respect among the few remaining democracies in the world today.

Texas representative Semos of the Dallas area called forth some of the present election results in the Dallas area as he spoke before a service club and said our voting structure needs a reordering. There can be little doubt that the present low voter turnout in so many elections gives unfair advantage to the established and to the well-to-do voter, and in many cases the election can be manipulated.

If, as the Avalanche Journal states, it is inconceivable that the courts would deny the people the right to decide by what method they will govern themselves, then by the same token, it is inconceivable that the Journal would be opposed to a system that has been tried and worked in some of Texas' largest cities and a system that will bring a few more thousand voters to the polls at election time.

Who was it that once said there is nothing more painful than a new idea? It would seem that the time has come for American cities and towns everywhere to revamp the voting procedures so that more of the people would believe they had a stake in the outcome.

What do Bell Ringers think? Let me hear from you on this vital question.

Carter strategists now worrying about Anderson as independent

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Carter's campaign strategists are beginning to think about the general election and they are worried, afraid that John Anderson will pull enough potential Carter votes to make the next president a Republican.

There are good reasons for that concern. But the GOP candidate — Ronald Reagan or whoever — should be keeping a careful watch on the Illinois congressman's independent candidacy as well.

Anderson's bid to become the first independent candidate ever elected to the White House adds a wild card to the American political deck. This nation has little experience with three-way races for the presidency. Thus, much of the discussion of the impact of an Anderson bid is speculation.

Recent poll results do, however, shed some light on the potential impact.

One must add, quickly, that neither Reagan nor Carter has yet wrapped up their parties' nominations. But both are well on the way to doing so.

Several national polls have shown Anderson getting about one in five votes in a mythical matchup with Reagan and Carter. And the same polls show Anderson's support coming equally from the other men's supporters.

Carter backers will find little to be glad about in the results of an Associated Press-NBC News poll taken in late April.

Almost a third of those questioned nationally said they might vote for Anderson in November. Liberals were one fertile group for Anderson to mine for support — 38 percent said they might vote for him. And 36 percent of the moderates said they might.

Such a pattern of support — if it materialized in November — would not be good for Carter. Liberals are not expected to vote in any significant numbers for Reagan — long the bearer of the conservative banner in the GOP. And Carter will have to do well among the moderates to have a chance of winning in November.

But there was bad news for Reagan in the poll as well.

The former California governor would normally be expected to be the beneficiary of disenchantment with Carter's work as president. Those people who are most unhappy with Carter's work would be the least likely to vote to return him for four more years.

But those voters will have another option in November besides voting for Reagan. They can vote for Anderson.

The AP-NBC News poll found an indication that this theory could hold up in November — the less they think of Carter's work, the more likely they say they might be to vote for Anderson.

Nearly two in five of the people — 38 percent — who say Carter is doing a poor job said they might vote for Anderson. Thirty-six percent of those who rated Carter's work only fair said they might vote the independent line. And only 22 percent of those who marked Carter's efforts good or excellent said they might back Anderson.

Refugees detained in prison

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — A group of 90 Cuban refugees detained at the request of immigration officials have arrived at a federal correctional facility here, and more may be on the way.

Warden R.J. Verdeyen said today that the refugees, who arrived from Florida on Monday, "spent a very restful evening and took part in our recreation programs."

He said Spanish-speaking people on his staff were called in to talk to the refugees "and alleviate their concerns on where they are and why they are confined."

Asked if his staff is looking into any possible criminal backgrounds among the refugees, Verdeyen said, "We don't make that type determination. All we do is detain them at the request of the Immigration and Naturalization Service."

Verdeyen's assistant, Bill Key, said the Cubans were sent to the medium security camp.

Alcohol from grain seen as farm's future fuel

ROCKDALE, Texas (AP) — The commissioner, the legislator and the former linebacker huddled around the clear flame burning atop a can of alcohol distilled from milo in the converted hog barn.

It was, they said, the energy future for American's farmers.

State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown and Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, were the hosts Tuesday at the small-scale refinery now being tested in A.R. Garza's little metal building. The plan is to show that alcohol — to be used straight or mixed with gasoline to form gasohol — can be produced economically at farms from crops at the farm.

"The farmer can make it himself," said Brown. "He can use watermelons, sugar beets, sugar cane, potatoes, artichokes, almost any crop.

"If the bottom falls out of the market for that crop, he can use it for fuel. It's the insurance plan they have always needed," he said.

Lee Roy Caffey, former Green Bay Packer and Texas Aggie line-backer, is among the directors of Alcohol Technology Inc., a group of local businessmen who got together to get the project started. Caffey is a Rockdale native and now has an auto dealership in this Central Texas city.

Brown and Kubiak are longtime gasohol and fuel alcohol cheerleaders.

"Some of the others are more like typical moonshine units," Kubiak, D-Rockdale, said, adding the ATI operation is like a small refinery. The system is still in the testing stage, but once perfected, it will produce up to 1,200 gallons of 190 proof alcohol per day.

Kubiak said the alcohol now is produced here for about $1.05 a gallon. The cost could drop to 70 cents when uses are found for all the byproducts. Some of the grain now used is passed along to local pigs after it's been used.

"The only thing we are taking out of the grain is that which is not good for us anyway, starch and sugar," said Kubiak.

ATI is trying to develop a system a farmer — or group of farmers — can buy for about $150,000. It would pay for itself in five years, Kubiak said.

But he warned that red-tape roadblocks provide sizeable obstacles than the technology.

Kubiak complained that federal bonding requirements are prohibitive. The ATI system is operating under a $100 bond as an experimental operation. When it hits full stride the bond will be about $250,000.

He also said state licensing of such plants should be switched from the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission to the Department of Agriculture.

"This is an agriculture fuel, it's not a beverage," he said. "If anybody drank it he'd have to see a doctor immediately."

Caffey said he has received about 500 inquiries from farmers who want to know about the process.

"We could sell 50 today," he said.

USDA sees stronger corn prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although many farmers are being sorely pressed by sagging corn prices, the Agriculture Department says there is a brighter time ahead.

Prices of feed grain at most major markets "are around the levels they were" before exports to the Soviet Union were partially embargoed by President Carter Jan. 4, the department said Monday.

"Corn prices at the farm have averaged about $2.40 per bushel since January but are expected to strengthen into the summer as more grain is removed from the market through the reserve program and government purchases," it said.

The comments were in a brief summary of a new "Feed Situation" report scheduled for release later this month. It is prepared by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

In an effort to help relieve depressing effects on the market, the USDA has been buying corn that earlier was destined for the Soviet Union. About 100 million bushels have been purchased so far.

Another action, authorized by Congress in the wake of Carter's partial embargo, has been to open the federal grain reserve program to corn producers who otherwise would not have been eligible — producers who did not participate in the 1979 acreage set-aside program.

Up to 295 million bushels of the previously ineligible corn will be accepted in the reserve on a first-come, first-serve basis until the limit is reached, or until the May 15 cutoff date occurs.

By late April, the report said, about 14 million bushels of corn that otherwise would not qualify were put into the reserve.

The reserve program let farmers hold grain in storage under federal loans for up to three years, or until market prices rise enough to trigger its release.

But, according to the latest five-day average of corn prices at the farm, corn was bringing about $2.35 a bushel, well below the reserve program's release level of $2.63 a bushel.

The new analysis, however, said the expanded reserve and the government purchases of grain will have an effect on prices in the coming months.

"Domestic use (of feed grain, mainly corn) may be record large, and exports will exceed last year's record by nearly a fifth," it said.

By the time the new corn marketing year begins Oct. 1, the report said, carryover stocks of old-crop corn and other feed grains "will be substantially larger" than last fall. However, it said, supplies of old-crop feed grain available to the market will be about one-third smaller because so much will be tied up in the reserve program and in government-owned stocks.

Looking at prospects further down the line, the report lost some of its optimistic edge.

It noted farmers in a survey on April 1 said they intend to boost corn plantings further this year.

"With larger acreage and favorable weather, 1980 feed grain production would again be large," the report said.

AGRICULTURE

Higher sugar prices expected as world supply declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pinched by a declining world supply, sugar prices are expected to continue climbing at least gradually in the foreseeable future, says the Agriculture Department.

Although U.S. farmers indicate they will boost production of sugarbeets this year, it will not be enough to offset the higher prices, the department said Tuesday.

Officials said the world crop for 1979-80 is estimated at 85.4 million metric tons of raw sugar, down 6.1 percent from the 90.9 million produced in 1978-79.

The new estimate also is down 2.6 percent from the department's initial forecast last November of 87.7 million metric tons.

On Feb. 6, however, USDA warned that this year's output would be less than the forecast of last November, possibly by "as much as one million" metric tons. The new figure actually was a drop of 2.3 million.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

The report said the Soviet Union's beet sugar production "is sharply reduced from last season and cane sugar output is down considerably among some major producers — Brazil, Cuba, India and Thailand."

Potato farmers to be paid to feed spuds to livestock

FORT KENT, Maine (AP) — Maine potato farmers, who blockaded Canadian border crossings in March to call attention to their financial troubles, will be paid by the U.S. Agriculture Department to divert surplus potatoes to cattle feed in a $1.1 million program.

The federal government will buy 500,000 hundredweight at $2.25 each, state Agriculture Commissioner Stewart Smith told farmers Tuesday at the Fort Kent Town Hall.

The program, which takes effect early next week, is intended to boost Maine's financially ailing potato industry, which is expected to suffer a third straight year of severe losses.

The farmers had demanded a $15 million diversion program and a ban on Canadian imports.

"It's going to make the end of the marketing season much better as far as cleaning out the crop," said Smith, who had been in Washington this week trying to convince the USDA to approve the diversion program.

This is the second consecutive year Maine has been awarded a diversion program, but Smith said the USDA would be very reluctant to grant Maine another program next year.

"One of the reasons we had such a problem this year (getting approval) was because we had a diversion program last year," said Smith. "That's why they're so insistent at the USDA that we restructure" the marketing program.

To be eligible, farmers must join a voluntary marketing order, proposed by Smith this week, aimed at developing centralized markets and quality control standards for Maine potatoes, said Eileen Roach, assistant press secretary to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

Potato farmers, in a recent referendum, narrowly killed a proposed marketing order which, if it had been approved by a two-thirds majority, would have bound all of them.

Under Smith's proposal, farmers could voluntarily enter into two-year marketing agreements with the state Agriculture Department.

This commodity well over parity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not all farm commodity prices are falling short of full parity, the controversial indicator that is supposed to help measure farmers' buying power.

At 100 percent, the indicator theoretically reflects a price that would give producers the same purchasing power they had in 1910-14.

The Agriculture Department's weekly Farm Paper Letter notes that in April prices of limes averaged $49.72 a box. That was 315 percent of the parity price of $15.80, says editor Ed Curran.

Ed McMahon, left, offers handshake to "Tonight" show host Johnny Carson during Tuesday night's taping at NBC studios in Burbank, Calif. Carson, during the show, announced that he had signed a three-year contract with the network and will remain as host for a revamped, one-hour version of the popular late-night talk show next season. 'Tonight Show' to go on for three more years

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC and its biggest star, Johnny Carson, have declared a truce in their year-long battle over "The Tonight Show" with both sides claiming victory. Carson gets a shorter show and more money, and NBC gets its chief humorist more often each week for another three years.

"I'm very happy, just delighted," Carson told his Tuesday "Tonight" audience. Then he quipped: "I was tricked. Fred Silverman (NBC's president) told me I was signing a petition to get 'Sheriff Lobo' off the air."

Carson's new salary was said to be more than $5 million a year, The New York Times reported today.

The three-year contract trims the 90-minute show to an hour — Carson's chief demand — but boosts Carson's appearances from three to four times a week — the network's main requirement.

NBC also will get a late-night news show out of the deal, it was learned. The network is expected to announce the news program, to air after "The Tonight Show," at the NBC affiliates convention here next week.

The announcement of the good news coincided with some bad corporate news — the network's decision not to televise the 1980 Moscow Olympics this summer, which will mean a loss of at least $22 million.

In New York, Edgar Griffith, chairman of the board of RCA, NBC's parent company, told RCA stockholders the decision was made "because the U.S. team is not scheduled to participate and because the president of the United States has so desired" in protest of the Soviet presence in Afghanistan.

The Olympic coverage was intended to boost NBC's sagging ratings. The network finished behind CBS and West Germans riot in protest joining NATO

BREMEN, West Germany (AP) — About 50 policemen and 50 rock-throwing demonstrators were injured, many seriously, and dozens of vehicles went up in flames during a riot to protest a swearing-in ceremony for 1,500 recruits on the 25th anniversary of West Germany's joining NATO.

The riots began late Tuesday in this North Sea port city and continued into the early hours of today.

The protesters prevented Federal President Karl Carstens and other dignitaries from reaching the stadium by car.

Butch Cassidy's sister dies, 96

CIRCLEVILLE, Utah (AP) — Lula Parker Betenson, younger sister of the legendary cowboy outlaw Butch Cassidy, has died of natural causes in a Panguitch hospital. She was 96.

Mrs. Betenson, 18 years younger than Butch Cassidy — born Robert LeRoy Parker — died Monday.

She co-authored with Dora Flack "Butch Cassidy, My Brother," a book published in 1975. She said stories about her notorious brother were exaggerated and most people remembered him as a kind man.

"He would have quit (crime) long before he did if they had let him. But like he told us, when a man gets down, they like to keep him there," she once said of Cassidy, who was the eldest of 13 children.

ABC in the A.C. Nielsen ratings for its most recently completed season. NBC hated to pare 30 commercial-rich minutes off "Tonight," which brings in about $30 million a year in revenues. But Carson, 54, who said last year he was bored after 17 years as "Tonight" host, argued that a shorter "Tonight" was the only thing that would keep him at NBC.

"We're going to do a half hour less starting in September, which I think — at least for me — will be a lot easier," he said. "I think we can have better shows, I think we can show a little more energy, do a show with a lot better pace. It's much easier to do an hour than 90 minutes."

His old three-day work week schedule for much of the year also was at the heart of the six-month Carson-NBC battle.

NBC President Fred Silverman, who noted that "Tonight" ratings fell when Carson was gone, had asked him to put in more appearances. But Carson reportedly revolted and asked for his release.

Carson technically won his legal battle with NBC. His lawsuit against the network, filed last September, was resolved out of court last week, according to one of the attorneys involved in the case.

Enemies gather for Tito's funeral

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Enemies old and new among the world's leaders are gathering in Belgrade for the funeral of President Josip Broz Tito, setting off speculation of secret meetings and putting a heavy strain on security forces.

When Tito's body is buried Thursday in a corner of his garden overlooking the city, the mourners will include Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng, archenemies in the Communist world.

It was Tito's defiance of Soviet dictator Josef Stalin in 1948 that first cracked the Communist monolith a decade before the Sino-Soviet split, and there was speculation Brezhnev might try to use the funeral to ease the Moscow-Peking rift.

Vice President Walter Mondale will be at the funeral, along with Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, a key figure in the U.S.-Iranian hostage crisis. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher also will attend but President Carter will not, and two British newspapers criticized his absence.

The independent Times of London said Carter was "not just muddled but in some ways blind to whole areas of reality. In the clearest possible way, he has conveyed the message that Yugoslavia is more important to the Russians than to him." The conservative Daily Mail said, "Once again the White House has blundered."

Also absent will be Presidents Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, Fidel Castro of Cuba and Anwar Sadat of Egypt, whose predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, helped Tito and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India found the movement of non-aligned nations. There was speculation that Castro, the president this year of the non-aligned movement, was staying away because Tito opposed his attempt to swing the movement behind Soviet policy.

Nehru's daughter, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, will be on hand. And President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq of Pakistan, India's traditional enemy, cut short a visit to China to come to Belgrade.

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany and East Germany's leader, Erich Honecker, were also coming.

Belgrade's Surcin Airport was equipped with two red carpets and two sets of honor guards to cope with the flood of dignitaries. Troops lined the 10-mile route from the airport into Belgrade, and police with rifles and submachine guns guarded the Federal Parliament building where Tito's body lay in state as hundreds of thousands of mourners filed by the closed casket.

Battalions of plainclothesmen guarded diplomatic residences where the foreign VIPs were to stay and the leading hotels where lesser-ranking official visitors were being lodged.

RK Petroleum finals well in Dawson

RK Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. 1 O. F. Davis has been completed as an unidentified discovery in Dawson County, four miles north of Lamesa.

The project, 1 1/8 mile southeast of the Cornett (Spraberry) field and 2.5 miles east of the Schmidt (Wolfcamp) field, finalized for a daily pumping potential of 40 barrels of oil and 15 barrels of water.

Gravity of the oil is 36 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 1,875-1.

Completion was through perforations from 7,866 to 6,874 feet after a 1,000-gallon acid treatment.

Total depth is 7,905 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 66, block 35, T-6-N, T&P survey.

LEA PRODUCER

Marathon Oil Co. No. 12 Lea Deep Unit has been completed as a Devonian well in the Lea multipay pool of Lea County, 15 miles southwest of Monument.

It was reported earlier in error that the project was finalized as a discovery.

It is the eighth Devonian well in the field.

It finalized for a daily flowing potential of 151 barrels of 53-gravity oil and 119 barrels of water, natural, through an 8/64-inch choke and perforations from 14,345 to 14,351 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 13-2-S-34e.

LEA LOCATOR

Getty Oil Co., operating from Hobbs, spotted location for a 13,400-foot project in the Grama Ridge, East (Morrow gas) pool of Lea County, 20 miles southeast of Halfway.

It is No. 2-2 Getty-State, 2,080 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 2-22s-34e. The project was reported earlier without the well number and fee name.

KING WILDCAT

Bass Enterprises Production Co. of Midland No. 3 C. N. Havis is to be dug as a 6,450-foot wildcat in King County, 5/8 mile southeast of the Stesscott (Atoka oil and gas) field and 15 miles northeast of Guthrie.

It is 1,000 feet north of an active project and 660 feet from south and 2,381 feet from west lines of section 41, J. V. Savage survey.

The Stesscott field produces at 6,228 feet. The project was reported earlier without the well number and fee name.

FISHER WELL

A new well has been completed in the Raven Creek (Canyon field) of Fisher County, six miles northwest of Noodle.

It is Stroube Production Co., Inc., and G. F. Reiff Inc., of Abilene No. 2 fields.

The fifth well from that pay in the multipay field, it finalized for a daily pumping potential of 102 barrels of 39-gravity oil and 60 barrels of water, natural, through perforations from 4,186 to 4,298 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 490-1.

Total depth is 5,033 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented at 4,479 feet.

Well site is 467 feet from south and west lines of section 1, block K, T&P survey.

NOLAN TEST

F. E. Long Jr. of Midland No. 1 Rawls Bennett will be dug 5/8 mile southwest of the lone Long (Ellenburger) field west three miles south of Roscoe in Nolan County.

The 7,000-foot test is 660 feet from south and 752 feet from east lines of section 63, block 23, T&P survey.

Wildcats, strikes announced in Permian Basin counties

A shallow pay wildcat has been spotted in Andrews County, a replacement wildcat was spotted in Sterling County and a new field has been opened in Nolan County.

Other wildcats were staked in Crockett and Stonewall counties.

Exxon Corp. U.S.A. staked No. 7 H. M. Wilson "A" as a 3,200-foot shallow pay wildcat in the Fullerton multipay area of Andrews County.

The project, 17 miles northwest of Andrews, is 1,500 feet from north and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 16, block A-32, psl survey.

STERLING PROJECT

The replacement wildcat is HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 3-2-A Wilkinson in Sterling County, 10 miles northwest of Sterling City.

The new location is 2,450 feet from north and 760 feet from west lines of section 3, block 23, H&TC survey. It is contracted to 8,800 feet. The new site is 50 feet south and 100 feet east of the original location.

The drillsite is 1/2 mile north of Credo, East (Cisco upper) field production and one mile northeast of a 7,190-foot dry hole.

CROCKETT WILDCAT

Joe McGuire of Midland No. 3 Joe F. Bean, South as an 8,000-foot wildcat in Crockett County, 14 miles northwest of Ozona.

The prospector is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 34, block UV, GC&SF survey. Ground elevation is 2,456 feet.

Drillsite is 1 1/4 miles south of the Todd, Deep (Cinoidal and Ellenburger) field and one mile northwest of the Howard Draw, Northeast multipay field.

STONEWALL EXPLORER

Ike Lovelady Inc. of Midland No. 1 Terry is a new 6,200-foot wildcat in Stonewall County, seven miles northeast of Aspermont.

Location is 2,710 feet from north and 1,667 feet from west lines of Ell Chandler survey, abstract 60.

Site is one location southwest of one of the three wells in the Ashmore (Conglomerate) field which produces at 6,025 feet.

NOLAN DISCOVERY

Mobil Production Texas and New Mexico Inc., operating from Abilene, has completed its No. 1 J. D. Maddox as an Ellenburger discovery 22 miles south of Sweetwater in Nolan County.

On 24-hour potential test it flowed 166 barrels of 48-gravity oil and 37 barrels of water through perforations from 7,105 to 7,126 feet which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons.

The gas-oil ratio is 1,446-1.

Total depth is 7,220 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

Location is 760 feet from north and 746 feet from east lines of section 41, block 1-A, H&TC survey. It is 2 3/8 mile miles northeast of the Bast (Canyon) field.

WARD OPER

MGF Oil Corp. filed potential test on its No. 1-31 University "E" as a discovery in the War-Wink area of Ward County, 10 miles northwest of Pyote.

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 22 barrels of 40.5-gravity oil, no water, through perforations from 6,570 to 6,574 feet after a 100-gallon acid treatment. The gas-oil ratio is 1,062-1.

Originally staked in the War-Wink (Cherry Canyon) field, it is 1,320 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 31, block 17, University Lands survey.

Total depth is 7,200 feet and 5.5-inch pipe is set at total depth.

GOOD WARD WELL

Texaco Inc., operating from Midland, filed a 1,014-barrel-per-day potential test on its No. 2 State-of-Texas "DL", new well in the War-Wink, South (Wolfcamp) field of Ward County.

The producer, six miles northwest of Pyote, was completed through a 30/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,748 to 11,883 feet after a 10,000-gallon acid treatment.

The gas-oil ratio is 789-1. Gravity of the oil is 47 degrees. No water was produced on the potential test.

Total depth is 11,972 feet, 5-inch liner is set on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 11,950 feet.

The pay was topped at 11,748 feet on ground elevation of 2,702 feet.

The location, one-half mile east of the other Wolfcamp production in the multipay field, is 933 feet from north and west lines of section 3, block 18, University Lands survey.

4-40 Todd is to be dug 5/8 mile northwest of one of the six wells in the Howard Draw, Northeast (Queen gas) pool of Crockett County, 16 miles northwest of Ozona.

Drillsite for the 850-foot test is 1,775 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 40, block WX, GC&SF survey. Ground elevation is 3,336 feet.

It is a twin to Grayburg-San Andres gas production.

STEPOUTS STAKED

Blue Ridge Oil & Gas Exploration Inc. of Detroit, Mich., spotted a trio of stepouts to the Adams-Baggett Ranch (Canyon gas) pool of Crockett County, 24 miles south of Ozona.

Each will be drilled to 5,500 feet.

No. 49 A. Phillips, 1/2 mile north of production, is 1,320 feet from north and 4,110 feet from west lines of section 36, block OOO, Mrs. E. Reese survey.

Blue Ridge No. 47 A. Phillips is 1/2 mile west of production and 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 7, block OOO, GC&SF survey.

The operator spotted No. 48 A. Phillips 5/8 mile west and 1/2 mile south of production and 976 feet from north and 1,530 feet from east lines of section 7, block OOO, GC&SF survey.

El Paso Natural Gas Co. No. 6 Halbert is a 5/8-mile south stepout to the Sonora (upper Canyon gas) pool of Sutton County, 4.5 miles west of Sonora.

The 7,300-foot test is 1,100 feet from south and east lines of section 124, block B, HE&WT survey.

Ground elevation is 2,304.5 feet.

SUTTON TRY

El Paso Natural Gas Co. No. 6 Halbert is a 5/8-mile south stepout to the Sonora (upper Canyon gas) pool of Sutton County, 4.5 miles west of Sonora.

The 7,300-foot test is 1,100 feet from south and east lines of section 124, block B, HE&WT survey.

Ground elevation is 2,304.5 feet.

HOWARD OILER

Sayers Operating Co. of Midland No. 1 Helen has been completed in the Coahoma, North (Fusselman oil) pool of Howard County, four miles east of Coahoma.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 207 barrels of 49.1-gravity oil and no water, through perforations from 8,791 to 8,810 feet. The pay was acidized with 2,000 gallons and the gas-oil ratio is 920-1.

The flow was through a 1/4-inch choke.

Total depth is 8,880 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 8,878 feet.

The Fusselman was topped at 8,791 feet on Kelly bushing elevation of 2,396 feet.

Location is 520 feet from north and 533 feet from west lines of section 4, block 30, T-1-S, T&P survey.

PECOS WELL

C. F. Lawrence & Associates of Midland No. 3-67 Half has been finalized as the third 1,400-foot gas well in the Noelke multipay pool of Pecos County, 11 miles south of Iraan.

It completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 940,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 1,254 to 1,376 feet.

The pay was acidized with 20,000 gallons.

Total depth is 1,570 feet, where 4.5-inch pipe is set, and the plugged back depth is 1,529 feet.

The well is one location south and slightly east of other 1,400-foot production and 660 feet from north and 2,300 feet from east lines of section 67, block 1, I&GN survey.

CROCKETT SITE

James L. Lamb Jr. of Midland No.

Adair to talk at D&D meet

Paul N. "Red" Adair of Houston, famous oil and gas-well firefighter, will be the speaker for the Desk & Derrick Club of Midland' annual Industry Appreciation Banquet Thursday in the Holiday Inn Country Villa.

The event will get underway at 7 p. m.

Adair will present a motion picture film on some of his most important and dangerous jobs.

He and his assistants average controlling 38 fires and blowouts per year.

Entertainment will be provided by the "Spirit of America Singers" from Wayland Baptist College at Plainview.

Knox finals Morrow gas producer in Lea County; field work reported

Knox Industries, Inc., of Midland No. 1 New Mexico State has completed eight miles southwest of Buckeye in Lea County.

The project, originally filed in the La Rica (Morrow) field, finalized for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 8.1 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations opposite the Morrow from 13,571 to 13,585 feet.

The operator may file for discovery designation.

On a preliminary test, through a 13/64-inch choke, the project flowed gas at the rate of 4.3 million cubic feet per day, plus 308 barrels of condensate per day, with flowing tubing pressure of 3,000 pounds.

Total depth is 13,675 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

Well site is 1,784 feet from north and 1,650 feet from west lines of section 2-19s-34

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market headed higher again today, aided by a continuing decline in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 4.44 to 820.48 in the first two hours. But gainers outnumbered losers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Tuesday the Federal Reserve ended the 3-percent surcharge for large banks that it had imposed on the discount rate—the charge on bank borrowings from the Fed. The basic discount rate remained at 13 percent.

The Fed said it took the step simply because the recent decline in other interest rates had made the surcharge unnecessary to discourage borrowing by banks at the so-called "discount window."

But some analysts nevertheless said it as evidence that the Fed was seeking to stimulate some renewed growth in the money supply after the recent slowdown in the economy.

Today New York's Chase Manhattan Bank cut its prime lending rate to 17 percent, putting the basic charge on business loans 3 points below its recent peak.

Among stocks sensitive to interest rate trends, Great Western Financial rose 1/2 to 20 1/2; American Telephone & Telegraph 3/4 to 54 1/4; First Charter Financial 1/2 to 16 1/4, and Federal National Mortgage 1/4 to 16.

The NYSE's composite index rose .40 to 60.89. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .50 to 255.33.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 18.05 million shares at noon, up from 15.57 million at the same point Tuesday.

Recession no inflation cure

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Ask the person next to you what recession means to the economy and he will probably begin by saying it means fewer jobs. But he'll probably conclude, it means that we'll cure inflation too.

So often has the belief been restated that many millions of Americans, maybe even the President, take it for granted. Recession and inflation are said to be opposites, offsetting and correcting each other.

But it might not be so, and economists are busily if belatedly seeking to counter the notion. It is entirely possible, they say, for Americans to suffer the worst of both worlds—inflation and recession together.

Confusion wasn't lessened last week when President Carter, amid signs of economic deterioration, declared that his administration had "turned the corner" in fighting inflation. Had he confused the two?

No question at all that the economy is weaker. Indexes of economic activity are down, unemployment is sharply higher, and interest rates are falling. Some say the recession will be worse than expected.

But prices? Except for interest rates, which must be figured in the pricing of any product, little evidence has developed of any sustained downturn. So far, even the rate of increase hasn't slowed perceptibly.

Even when the rate of increase slows, economists point out, it may still leave us with double-digit inflation. The President's own adviser concedes that 10 percent might be the best we can expect for a while.

Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, used that figure in a talk with business leaders last week. The recession won't correct what he called the underlying rate of inflation, he said.

What is needed, said Kahn, is an improvement in productivity, some of it to be accomplished by greater competition and through encouragement of new investments in research, plant and equipment. Presumably, goods would then be produced at lower cost, and prices would stabilize.

Muskie says he'll be top foreign policy architect

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, his nomination as secretary of state virtually assured, said today he will assert the full authority of his position as the principal architect of U.S. foreign policy.

"President Carter has made it clear that he expects me to play this role and I intend to do it," the Maine senator said.

Several members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told Muskie that the open highly publicized rivalry between former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski seriously damaged the ability of U.S. foreign policy to speak to the world with a single voice.

"I will do my best, not to pitch a battle (with Brzezinski), but to assert the authority of the secretary of state as I see it," Muskie said.

"The secretary of state is the principal adviser to the president on foreign policy issues," Muskie said. "He must have the primary responsibility for recommending our foreign policy course, and seeing that the president's decisions are then implemented."

The committee was expected to vote to approve the Muskie nomination later today and to send it to the Senate floor, where speedy confirmation was predicted.

In response to questions, Muskie said it would be "useful and constructive" for him to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko when both men are present in Vienna on May 15 at ceremonies commemorating the 25th anniversary of Austrian neutrality.

He said he would not expect the meeting to produce significant results but that it would still be an important first step since it would represent the first meeting between senior American and Soviet officials since the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Muskie said he is inclined to believe that the Soviets would reject out of hand the suggestion from some European nations that Afghanistan be made a neutral zone to end the continuing Soviet military occupation.

Nonetheless, he said the idea offers an opportunity for an initiative which could eventually yield positive results.

Muskie also promised to keep Congress fully informed about major foreign policy decisions saying he believes it must be "a full partner" with the White House in the field of foreign affairs.

"It's conceivable, of course, that I may change my view after I have been exposed to the new atmosphere, but I don't think so," Muskie said.

He said that while there may be some corrections of course when he becomes secretary of state, "I would not be here now if I did not support the central elements of the foreign policy now in place."

Most senators praised Muskie highly and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman, said he wanted him to know "how proud we are that a member of this committee has been named secretary of state."

"You're running with our colors," said Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, the panel's ranking Republican. "So do us proud."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., interrupting what was otherwise a love feast, told Muskie that he could not support his own brother for secretary of state if he had followed Muskie's lead in voting for the Panama Canal treaties and supporting the SALT II agreement with the Soviet Union.

And as for Muskie's agreement with the general thrust of Carter administration foreign policy, Helms said, "Some of us think that foreign policy is an unmitigated disaster."

In an opening statement, Muskie sketched his foreign policy philosophy, generally endorsing the course the administration has taken.

He said he believes in a strong national defense, strong alliances, regular consultation with the nation's allies and "a firm and balanced policy toward the Soviet Union."

"The search for common ground has been disrupted not by American preference but by Soviet action," Muskie said, referring to the Soviet military move into Afghanistan.

"While aggression continues we must not relent in imposing a heavy price," Muskie said. "As Soviet policies allow, we must never be blind to opportunities to work for peace."

Muskie endorsed the SALT II nuclear arms-limitation agreement, contending that it is "no gift to our rivals" but is a balanced accord that "can serve our own interests by limiting the threats we face."

Muskie, Gromyko to meet in Vienna

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State-designate Edmund Muskie will meet in Vienna next week with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, State Department sources said today.

Gromyko accepted a U.S. proposal for a meeting presented in Moscow this morning by U.S. Ambassador Thomas Watson. Gromyko and Muskie will be in Vienna next week for ceremonies marking the 25th anniversary of the treaty that gave Austria its post-war independence.

The meeting will be the first U.S.-Soviet encounter at the ministerial level since the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan began last December.

Muskie, testifying at a Senate confirmation hearing before the meeting was announced, said he did not think a meeting would provide an opportunity for substantive negotiations on the issues dividing the two countries.

Rather, he said, "I would expect each side to undertake to lay out its perception of the other's policies." Muskie said "the burden lies very heavily on them" for improving relations.

"Nevertheless, the mere fact of a meeting of this kind might take place could be a constructive first step," he said. If Muskie knew as he testified that Gromyko had agreed to the meeting, he did not say so.

The Carter administration officials debated among themselves for several weeks about whether to seek a meeting. In times of more cordial relations with the Soviets, a meeting would have been routine.

According to State Department sources, who asked not to be identified, former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance favored a meeting, arguing that it was imperative that high-level communication with the Soviets not be cut off indefinitely.

Industry should bear the burden of oil spill: Coast Guard official HOUSTON (AP) — Private industry should bear the burden of dealing with offshore oil spills because the Coast Guard can't afford to, a Coast Guard official says.

Vice Commandant Robert R. Scarborough, the Coast Guard's second-in-command, said Tuesday the Coast Guard has long held "the primary responsibility for (oil) cleanup rests with industry."

Scarborough made his remarks during a press conference at the Offshore Technology Conference in Houston.

"We need more resources to respond to the responsibilities laid on the Coast Guard," Scarborough said, adding that the service had a "minimum" amount of equipment on hand to deal with offshore spills.

He said a shortage of funds had created a policy of "calculated risks" in the Coast Guard's effort with spills, then added the policy wasn't always satisfactory because "every once in a while, when you do that, you get caught."

Rear Admiral Paul Yost, commander of the Coast Guard's 8th District, which includes much of the Gulf Coast, said the Coast Guard had generally relied upon contracts with private industry to move oil spill equipment into place.

He said "it would be very nice" if the Coast Guard could afford to keep the needed vessels on a standby basis, but "it would also be very, very expensive."

Using the collision of the freighter Mimoso and the tanker Burma Agate last year as an example, Scarborough said the needed equipment was on hand within eight hours to help fight the spill, but a shortage of local boats prevented the equipment from being taken out to sea.

"If you can't do it in Galveston," he said, "where can you do it?" Yost said the Coast Guard's role in cleaning up the oil that flowed from Ixtoc 1 after it blew out June 3 last gave the Coast Guard its first chance to test heavy duty oil collecting equipment designed for use in the open water.

He said the equipment "worked beautifully," but added that the distance to the well caused some problems in operations.

Asked if the Coast Guard learned anything from its experience with Ixtoc 1, Scarborough replied "yes. A blown well can turn loose a helluva lot of oil over a long time."

"We're not," Scarborough said, "going to be able to keep every ounce of oil from hitting the beaches in this country...ever."

Phillips Petroleum cited for serious violations

BORGER, Texas (AP) — Safety inspectors cited the nearby Phillips Petroleum Co. refinery for "serious" violations of government safety standards because of a Jan. 20 explosion, according to published reports.

It marked the second time in five months the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration has cited the plant for safety violations. The first citation was issued in December 1979 for an October gas leak that killed two workers and injured 13 others.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported today that OSHA levied another citation against the plant for failure to provide a safe working area.

The January explosion injured at least 41 persons and did substantial damage to every house in the adjacent company town of Phillips.

The company has since offered financial help to any Phillips residents who lease company land but want to move away from the refinery.

Kenneth Hubbell, of the Lubbock OSHA office, said the $1,000 fine was the maximum penalty that could be levied under the agency's "serious" violation category, which means working conditions might lead to the death or serious injury of an employee.

Goddard students place in UIL contest in Odessa

ODESSA — The Goddard Junior High School orchestra, directed by Karen Walker, recently competed in the University Interscholastic League Concert and Sightreading contest held here at Permian High School.

The seventh grade orchestra received a Division II in concert and a Division I in sightreading. The orchestra competed against other orchestras composed of seventh, eighth and ninth grade students.

The contest program included "Allegro from Corelliana, Suite for Orchestra," "Three Rustic Dances," and "Hornpipe." This is the first year that the Midland Independent School District has had the strings program in the secondary schools.

Lee choir presents program

The Lee High School Choir Department will present the musical program "Rebel Review" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the LHS auditorium.

The first half of the program will include a few classical chest numbers performed by the chorale, the mixed choir and the girl's choir.

The second half is a variety show featuring soloists and skits from the musical "The 1980 Origin."

Tickets are $1 for adults and 75 cents for children and will be sold at the door.

Midland choirs receive various ratings in contest

ODESSA — Choirs from Midland's junior high schools received various ratings when they participated here recently in the University Interscholastic League choral concert and sightreading contest.

The Goddard Treble Choir, directed by Marilyn Jones, received a Division I rating in concert and Division II rating in sightreading.

The girls sang "Simple Gifts," "Easter Allelui" and "Praise the Lord."

The Goddard Mixed Choir received a Division II rating in concert and sightreading. They presented a program of "My Heart is Offered Still to You," "Sing Joyous Christians" and "All Ye Saints Be Joyful."

Planes have 'close call' at O'Hare

CHICAGO (AP) — An American Airlines DC-10 and a Britt Airways plane had a "close call" during a six-second air traffic control computer failure at O'Hare International Airport, investigators say.

The Federal Aviation Administration was investigating the incident, in which the two aircraft came within 1 1/2 miles of each other as they approached the airport Tuesday.

"On a scale of 1 to 10, the close call ranks as about a 5 as far as near-miss are concerned," said an FAA official.

The agency said American Airlines Flight 184 was descending Tuesday afternoon to land on runway 32 Left and the Britt Swearingen twin-engine turboprop was also inbound.

Mandel gets prison choice

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel and two co-defendants, convicted of political corruption charges, will serve their sentences at the prison of their choice in Florida.

Mandel, Harry W. Rodgers III and Irwin Kovens, have until May 14 to surrender to begin their three-year sentences at Eglin Air Force Base Federal Prison Camp, U.S. Bureau of Prisons officials said Tuesday.

W. Dale Hess, another co-defendant convicted of mail fraud and racketeering, will serve his three-year sentence at the Maxwell Air Force Federal Prison Camp in Montgomery, Ala., said Mike Aum, a bureau of prisons spokesman.

William A. Rodgers will serve his 366-day term at the Volunteers of America work release center here.

Last week, U.S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor reduced the 18-month sentence of the sixth defendant, Ernest N. Cory Jr., to probation.
