Hard-line Islamics in Iran favored to win parliamentary vote

By The Associated Press

Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini dropped his ballot into a box in his home in Tehran today as millions of Iranians turned out to elect the new Parliament that will decide the fate of the American hostages

Meanwhile, it was reported the hostages would be moved from city to city to foil another U.S. rescue attempt, and the Swiss Embassy confirmed Cynthia Dwyer was the American woman arrested in Tehran on charges of being a CIA agent.

The 80-year-old Khomeini, still frail after his recent heart attack, said in hushed tones to nearby reporters he hoped convening the Parliament will make Iran "free forever from foreign domination.

The hard-line Islamic Republican party, which won 50 of the 98 Parliament seats decided in the first round of voting March 14, was favored to repeat its strong showing in the runoff for the 149 seats at stake today. Khomeini has urged voters to elect those who are 100 percent Moslem."

The revolutionary regime postponed the voting for the other 23 seats in the 270-seat Parliament, or Majlis, because of voting irregularities in the

been chosen, that means only 82 must Khomeini has said the Majlis will decide what to do with the 53 Americans held captive since militant students seized the U.S. Embassy Nov. 4. But the legislature, Iran's first since the February 1979 revolution, is expected to deal with procedural and domestic issues before debating the hostage crisis, and Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the IRP's leader, said he does not think the captives will be discussed until mid-June at the earliest The hostages were reported dispersed among 13 cities, including Tehran, following the U.S. attempt to rescue them on April 25, and the conservative newspaper Donya Iran said Thursday the militants plan to rotate them so that "American intelligence will be confused.

The paper said those with the most suspicious backgrounds will be sent to the least pleasant cities. However, the militants denied a report by Italian journalist Oriana Fallaci in the current issue of The New Republic that one of the hostages had tried to commit suicide three times and may be dead.

She said a source she did not identify told her on a recent trip to Tehran that this hostage was one of a group kept in the embassy basement who were "considered unmistakably spies, and some of them are or have been recently tied up because they attacked the students.

Swiss Ambassador Eric Lang confirmed the identity of Miss Dwyer, a free-lance journalist from Buffalo, N.Y. However, he said he has not been able to determine yet where she is being held.

Lang said his embassy, which began handling U.S. consular affairs after President Carter broke diplomatic relations last month, wants permission to visit her, get a lawyer for her and find out what she says about the charges.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - A 609-foot freighter rammed the Sunshine Skyway Bridge at rush hour today, tearing away a large section of the 15-mile span and sending a Greyhound bus plunging 140 feet into Tampa Bay. At least 31 persons were killed, the Coast Guard said.

Coast Guard spokesman Russell Woodall said a bus, two cars and a truck fell into the bay when the phosphate ship Summit Venture crunched into the bridge during a thundershower about 7:30 a.m. He said the ship tore a 1,000-foot gap in one of the twin spans.

Woodall said there were reports that the bus landed on top of the cars in the water

'There were 22 on the bus," said Coast Guard Capt. Marshall Gilbert. 'We know there were no survivors on the bus. We know nine of the 17 bodies were not associated with the bus, so we know there are at least 31 casualties

The victims included a baby, the Coast Guard said.

One man was rescued after his pickup truck fell from the bridge. There were conflicting reports that he was either plucked from the water or landed on the ship. He was treated for a head injury.

One car was seen hanging over the edge of the torn bridge but its four occupants crawled to safety.

Richard Hornbuckle, 60, of St. Petersburg, driver of the car, said, "It was raining cats and dogs. It was dark. The wind was blowing like a hurricane.

In late January, the Coast Guard Cutter Blackthorn sank in the same shipping channel but on the other side of the bridge after colliding with an oil tanker. Twenty-three Coast Guardsmen died Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Paul Scotti said authorities at first believed 90 persons may have drowned because they thought the bus was filled.

But Robert Rodriquez, a local manager for Greyhound, said the bus was carrying 22 passenges and a driver. Rodriquez said the bus left St. Petersburg for Miami at 7:05 a.m. and did not arrive as scheduled in Bradenton, on the other side of the bay.

Authorities said it appeared the passenger car and the bus had just passed a slower moving vehicle on the bridge when they sped onto the torn section. The bus plunged over the edge and into the bay, but the car was able to stop barely in time

AUSTIN (AP) — At first, it seemed as if Gov. Bill Clements was ready to take his casual dress policy one step further than last summer.

'We will have a no-shirt, no-tie proclamation today,'' he told his weekly news conference Thursday.

county conventions first round or because the districts are in Kurdistan and other provinces where ethnic minorities are battling

> By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

Delegates to the Democratic and Republican county conventions will gather at 10 a.m. Saturday to choose representatives and hammer out resolutions to take to their parties' state conventions this summer

The Democrats will meet in Alamo Junior High School, while the Republicans will meet at San Jacinto Junior High.

A continuation of the grass-roots movement that started last Saturday in party gatherings in 28 precincts, the county meetings will hear and vote on resolutions formulated during the precinct conventions as well as others from the floor of the conventions.

Republicans also will hear a keynote address by Railroad Commission candidate H.J. "Doc" Blanchard. Blanchard, an Austin attorney, served in the Texas Senate from 1962 to 1975. While there he served on every major committee and chaired many of them.

Both parties expect to consider resolutions on the Equal Rights Amendment, right to life and other topics.

Democratic County Chairman Darrell Smith noted one resolution expected to come before that party's convention is a commendation for Carter's handling of the Iranian situation.

Republicans also expect to vote on resolutions praising the family unit and Judeo-Christian work ethic along with discussions of gun control and right to work laws.

The delegates to the state convention selected at the Democratic meeting will either be committed to vote for President Jimmy Carter at the state meeting or be uncommitted. And the delegates to the county convention are almost evenly split over the issue, according to Smith.

Twelve of Midland County's 15 delegates to the Democratic State Convention will be chosen in precinct caucuses, and three will be chosen by the convention at-large, Smith said. The three at-large spots likely will be used to fill the party's required quota of minority and women delegates, he added.

The Republicans will choose 46 delegates to their state convention, Delegate are apportioned on the basis of the number of votes the party's candidate received in the last gubernatorial election.

Because of the large Midland County turnout for Gov. Bill Clements, Republicans were to choose 552 delegates and 552 alternates to the county convention in the precinct gatherings Saturday.

Sometimes I don't think there are that many Republicans in Midland County." Shaner said, but added he did not anticipate trouble in gathering 46 delegates and 46 alternates for the party's state convention. Both party's conventions are open to the public.

Leadership dessa couple innocent

Retired Odessa restaurateurs A.B. Price and his wife Mary were found innocent Thursday night on two counts of income-tax evasion by a 12-member jury in federal court in Midland.

The jury had deliberated about nine hours when jury foreman Zaro Foster of Odessa announced the verdict at 8:45 p.m.

Thirty-two witnesses on behalf of the government and 12 defense witnesses testified in the 31/2-day trial of the Prices, who formerly owned The Branding Iron restaurant.

The trial began Monday in the Midland-Odessa Division of the federal court's Western Judicial District. Federal Judge Henry Lee Hudspeth of El Paso presided over the case.

'There was a lot of clashes on issues on both sides," said defense attorney Tryon Lewis of Odessa. "The government did well (in prosecuting), but I think they were wrong...and apparently so did the jury. The Prices were indicted on Jan. 23 on two counts of evading taxes for 1973 and 1974 by filing "false and fraudulent" joint income-tax returns On the first count, the Internal Revenue Service alleged that the defendants' 1973 income-tax return falsely reflected $9,551 in adjusted gross income and no taxes due except for $199 in self-employment tax. However, the IRS maintained that the couple's taxable income for that year was approximately $64,063 and that the income and self-employment taxes amounted to $11,683. In count two, the IRS said that the Prices' 1974 filing reflected taxable money, rather than a product of years income of $22,048 and taxes due at $2,813. But the government contended that the couple's actual taxable income was $44,485 and that the income and self-employment taxes amounted to $12,093.

One issue in the trial was life-time savings which Mrs. Price invested in the restaurant, which the couple operated from 1970 to 1976, in their home and in other areas. The government had suggested that the invested of savings, had been skimmed from the business

Mr. and Mrs. Price were arraigned in February and each was released under a $100,000 personal recognizance bond set by U.S. Magistrate Michael Cunningham of Midland.

The case was prosecuted by Robert Forrest of Washington, D.C., a special prosecutor for the U.S. Justice Department's tax division, and by Assistant U.S. Attorney Elizabeth Rogers of El Paso.

"They were willing to face the relentless desert and the angry mobs to free fellow Americans who can be accused of nothing more than doing their own duty in a hostile place."

The president delivered the eulogy shortly before leaving for Philadelphia on his first speaking trip outside the nation's capital since the hostages

"Your risk, your suffering, your loss are not in vain. I fervently pray that those who are held hostage will be freed without more bloodshed, that all who would use terror to imperil innocent people will see the cruel futility of their criminal acts."

The president extended "the heartfelt sympathy of a grateful nation" to the families of the dead.

"Every American feels your loss. Every American shares your rightful pride in the valor and the dedication to duty of those who died in the dark desert night."

He said that "even for those of us who know that God has a purpose for each human life, it is hard to accept the loss of brave young men in the peak of their lives.

"Yet we know it is not the length of life that determines its impact or its quality, but the depth of its commitment and the height of its purpose." He said the victims "did not ask for recognition, only the opportunity to serve - often at a sacrifice and under difficult conditions, far from the people they loved and the civilization they protected."

"I don't think you'll see most consumer rates coming down soon, and I don't expect further mortgage rate reductions in the next few months from the 12 or 13 percent range," said Irving Geszel, a bank analyst for Bear, Stearns & Co., a New York investment firm.

In a related development, San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, ranked 12th among the nation's banks, reduced its interest rate for new car loans to 17% percent from 19½ percent and for used cars to 18¾ from 20 percent.

Hats off to the British

With the swift certainty of the Angel of Death, British commandos blasted their way into the occupied Iranian Embassy in London earlier this week and rescued 19 persons, mostly Iranians.

One can derive several "messages" from the daring and respectable rescue operation: The British do not plan to sit idly by while terrorists occupy an embassy in their capital city and murder its occupants.

Secondly, it doesn't really matter who is in the embassy. In this instance it was Iranians, who presently are at odds with the people and government of the United States. But that doesn't really enter the question. It's the principle of the thing that really matters.

On yet another point, it reaffirmed for the God-fearing, freedom-loving nations of the world not the least of which is the United States - that swift, sure action, albeit dangerous, can earn a nation the respect of its allies as well as its potential enemies.

The London rescue differed from the Tehran rescue attempt in several important respects and, therefore, the two missions cannot be compared.

For one thing, the government that launched the mission was the government that rules over the country in which the embassy is located. For another thing, there were fewer hostages - and terrorists - inside the embassy building.

The one big difference between the two operations was the time element - the London operation came only six days after the start of the seige while the Tehran incident had dragged on for months before the rescue was attempted. The main point is that some constructive action was taken swiftly, forcefully and with the conviction to end the lives of the Iranian terrorists if that step was necessary. The terrorists had murdered two of their Iranian hostages and threatened to kill another every half-hour.

Britain's Home Secretary, William Whitelaw, noted following the rescue that the assault shows "we in Britain are not prepared to tolerate terrorism."

That is the important first consideration. A nation must become so fearful of terrorism that it refuses to stomach any terroristic act. From that point on, it becomes merely a matter of giving terrorists what they deserve. Our hats are off to the British.

We like their forcefulness and their display of resolve.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND Carter's new hardline policy taking its toll

WASHINGTON - There is an Alice in-Wonderland atmosphere in the back rooms of the White House where a cheerless Jimmy Carter is trying to cope with a deteriorating foreign policy and a flagging economy, without losing his political balance

Under the terrible pressure, the president doesn't explode with temper tantrums. This isn't his style. He just becomes more grave, more gloomy, more secluded. He tends to shut himself off and remain alone with his decisions. These are the times when the phrase, "the presi-dent's burdens," becomes real.

He manages to get along on less

This was the real reason Yet at the same time, the Treasury Carter dropped the conciliatory approach and contemplated military action. This also had the advantage of diverting the American people's attention from their economic woes. Here again, the president has been more proficient at public relations than economic solutions. Secret White House minutes show that he has repeatedly put the stress on political appear-

CHARLEY REESE

The war in this world is a war of great ideas

Jean Paul Sartre, a Frenchman who espoused what is called existentialism, croaked recently and everybody who is anybody rushed into print in praise of his intellect. Sartre was like some magazines; more people put him on their conversation coffee table than actually enjoyed reading him

I don't think he was very smart at all. How smart can a guy be who picks Joe Stalin and Fidel Castro as his heroes and Simone de Beauvoir as his mistress?

Sartre was a good example of the manufactured intellectual which the goons of the left produce to sprinkle tinsel over their barbarism. Sartre served the goons well. As for the rest of humanity, he betrayed them.

Intellectuals are manufactured in this way. A leftist editor spots a young writer with the correct ideology and a flair for words. He buys the manuscript and the book is passed along to leftist reviewers who are thunderstruck by its brilliance. Leftist professors pick up the cue and pretty soon the book is on student reading lists

Eventually, the public concludes the writer must be brilliant because "everybody" says he is. All along the process, however, the determining factor was the ideological message, not the talent or brilliance.

When I was a sophomore in high school, Sartre was really hot with the American smart set and I lost no time reading all of his works which were in print at that time. With maturity came the realization, though, that Sartre's message was very simple: he hated himself, he hated others, and he worshipped the "men of action" like Stalin who actually had the nerve to do to people what he himself was too timid to do.

He spent his life in the service of those who kill and crush humanity. Like a good communist, Sartre followed the party line. His claim to respect for human rights rested on his opposition to fascism which is like one Mafiosa basing his claim for being against crime on his murder of a rival Mafiosa. Spiritual cripples like Sartre are not fit to clean the mud off the boots of intellectuals like Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

Sartre's writing exudes decadence, cynicism, malice and fear while Solzhenitsyn's writings, even when he writes of the most terrible circumstances, vibrate with courage, love and hope.

This is interesting because Sartre spent the majority of his life living in a comfortable bougeoise style while Solzhenitsyn endured unbelievable hardships as a soldier and then a prisoner.

"Everything is gratuitous, this garden, this city and myself," wrote Sartre. "When you suddenly realize" it, it makes you feel sick and everything begins to drift...that's nausea.

Solzhenitsyn said, "It (the world) will demand from us a spiritual blaze; we shall have to rise to a new height of vision, to a new level of life, where our physical nature will not be cursed, as in the Middle Ages, but even more importantly, our spiritual being will not be trampled upon, as in the Modern Era.... No one on earth has any other way left but - upward."

The point is not to berate Sartre whose talent for writing exceeded both his intellect and his spirit. The point is to recognize that the war in this world is a war of ideas as well as a war of steel and fire and that ideas which can kill a soul are more dangerous than bullets which can only tear

If you have children, you should be concerned about the ideas they are that they are exposed. It seems possi-

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history: On May 9, 1754, the first newspaper cartoon was published in America in Benjamin Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette. It depicted a dissected snake - each part representing a colony and its caption read "Join or die." On this date:

In 1502, Christopher Columbus set out from Cadiz, Spain, on his fourth and last voyage to the New World.

In 1926, Navy Cmdr. Richard Byrd and Floyd Bennett became the first men to make an airplane flight over the North Pole.

In 1978, the bullet-riddled body of Italy's former Prime Minister Aldo Moro was found in a parked car in central Rome, 54 days after his abduction.

Ten years ago, the White House proclaimed the American military drive into Cambodia a success.

Five years ago, more than 8,000 South Vietnamese refugees arrived on the island of Guam, swelling its population.

INSIDE REPORT:

Last year, California began rationing gasoline, an order affecting two out of three state residents.

than six hours of sleep each night. Even this is sometimes interrupted by urgent messages, sometimes by his own troubled mind. During the daylight hours, aides report he is more irritable and brusque than he used to be.

But his angry frustration is detectable more in the cold look in his eye and the clenching of his teeth, as if he were suppressing a quiet, seething rage. "When I get angry," he once told me, "I get quiet. My friends claim - I can't see myself - but there is a muscle in my jaw that moves." The muscle has been twitching a lot lately.

But if Carter has been an indecisive president who has held back from military measures, he is a decisive politican who responds to the public mood. He refrained from military action as long as the majority of voters approved of restraint. But as the public began to lose patience with this policy, he shifted to a harder line

The president simply concluded that his conciliatory policy had become a political liability. "He could no longer afford to be patient. It was ances. Once he happily cited a poll showing that "a majority of the American people now view the Democratic party as fiscally responsible." He promised that "the good work of the administration will begin to be reflected in the polls."

He also called upon his Cabinet officers "to travel around the country to report to the people on what each of them is doing within their department to reduce the rate of inflation." Another time, he asked Cabinet members "to fully cooperate ... with the White House staff when they are asked to speak to groups around the country on the inflation program."

Other minutes quote the president as asking his staff "to consider ways in which he could personally help in enhancing public awareness and unDepartment wants to eliminate an investment tax on the Arabs whose exorbitant oil prices are fueling inflation. An internal Federal Reserve Board document identifies the OPEC countries as the biggest beneficiaries of the tax proposal. "Since 1974," states the document, "the OPEC countries have become the largest net purchaser of corporate equities. The U.S. does not have a tax treaty with the Middle East oil producers, and (the tax proposal) would be of great importance to investors from these countries."

KREMLIN WHISPERS: Soviet leaders are having serious second thoughts about stirring up the Iranian left, according to U.S. intelligence analysts. The deterrent is not American missiles, but Ronald Reagan.

While the Kremlin's election observers aren't exactly enchanted at the idea of Jimmy Carter under the thumb - as they see it - of Zbigniew Brzezinski, they view the election of hardline anti-communist Reagan with even greater distaste. And they figure that if the Iranian situation gets completely out of control, it would increase Reagan's chances for election. So they've reportedly decided to cool it in Iran.

SYNDICATE SUN-LOVERS: The Mob makes most of its illicit millions in the big cities up North, but the crime families like Florida's sunshine as well as the most law-abiding citizens do. By the latest FBI count, there were 81 permanent Mafia residents in southern Florida and another 28 commuters. Of the 25 underworld families in the country, 16 are represented in Florida.

WATCH ON WASTE: If the U.S. Senate sometimes seems complacent about the American motorists' problems, it might be because the august body's high muckamucks travel in government-supplied automobiles. No less than 22 of these vehicles, some with chauffeurs provided, are available for use by Senate bigshots. The free rides, some of which are made in Lincoln Continentals, cost the taxpayers $65,000 a year to lease and maintain. An additional $140,000 pays for the chauffeurs, who ostensibly double as "messengers."

I feel great that conditions are suitable for his coming out. It certainly is hard to believe that things were so rotten just a week or so ago.

He sounds as if he's been looking at. the world through Rose Garden-colored glasses.

Budget resolution bombed by Carter and the Congress

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - As Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill played the role of Madame Defarge and the vote was called on May 1, his fellow Democrats killed the last lingering hope that the Soviet outrage in Afghanistan had truly changed either the president or the House of Representatives.

O'Neill was ostentatiously taking down names of Democrats who dared vote for higher defense spending, dooming them to the congressional guillotine. It had been widely circulated that Democrats who so disobeyed the party whip would be made to pay when juicy committee assignments or subcommittee chairmanships are handed out next January. That coincided with the year's most aggressive lobbying effort by the Carter administration.

The unexpectedly top-heavy vote (246 to 164) against an amendment transferring $5.1 billion from social welfare to defense is important for what it tells about administration and congressional policy. President Carter is not only content with a post-Afghanistan budget that represents less for defense; he will fight for it. Moreover, his will has now been enshrined as a test of regularity for a party whose leaders the past halfcentury have battled for defense preparedness.

With fervent lobbyists for CETA jobs and other social welfare programs invading Capitol Hill, the prevailing attitude toward defense was nonchalance. The infamous militaryindustrial complex did not even growl. Republican support for the amendment was halfhearted.

That opposition to arms would be enforced by the party whip was first suggested by the remarkable conduct of the House Rules Committee when it considered budget amendments for floor debate. The defense amendment sponsored by Republican Rep. Marjorie Holt of Maryland was cleared, but the name of its Democratic cosponsor - freshman Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas - was removed.

Nobody could remember such a personal insult. It was not only to remove bipartisan appeal from the amendment (which, in fact, was mainly Gramm's creation) but to send him a warning. His fellow Texan, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, has made no secret in the cloakrooms that he considers Gramm, a conservative economics professor from Texas A&M, an unacceptable Democrat.

Soon after, President Carter opted for butter over guns. In his unexpected April 22 letter to Speaker O'Neill, he expressed himself as "strongly opposed" to the Holt-Gramm amendment for "providing far more defense spending than is needed or advisable.' That echoed in Pentagon corridors where solid complaints about money shortages for maintenance and technical personnel - long before the fiasco in the Iranian desert - have been rising. There was disbelief when O'Neill announced the Pentagon could not use the extra money it so desperately wanted.

Word circulated on Capitol Hill that Defense Secretary Harold Brown had been asked to write the speaker a letter confirming his ridiculous claim. What would the cool, brainy Dr. Brown do? Follow Cyrus Vance out of the Cabinet on principle? Or join his chief and party in downgrading defense?

Characteristically, Brown split the difference. While not indulging O'Neill's talk about unusable money, he did send the speaker a letter endorsing "a balanced budget to help fight inflation and the proper claims for social programs" and opposing Holt-Gramm. In short, a qualified surrender by the secretary of defense.

That removed the military half of the military-industrial complex. The industrial half was never there. Accustomed to looking out for their own line-item hardware, defense industry representatives did not bother to counter the massive force against defense spending arrayed by social welfare groups, organized labor and the administration. Even Treasury Secretary G. William Miller was pressed into service begging votes against defense.

While only 49 Democrats braved Madame Defarge, expected Republican solidarity disintegrated. Worse even than 34 defecting Republicans (led by the influential Rep. Barber Conable of New York) was the hohum attitude of the opposition.

Over in the Senate, defense-oriented Democrats were appalled. Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, the new budget committee chairman, referred to "monkeyshines" on defense by the administration. Sen. Sam Nunn could not understand how a defense budget supposedly considered inadequate by his fellow Georgian before Afghanistan now had become perfect-

Nixon says Carter ineffective

WASHINGTON (AP) - Richard M. Nixon says President Carter is an ineffective president who invited blackmail by making the safety of the American hostages in Iran his primary concern.

The former president, making a rare television appearance, said Carter should not rule out making another rescue operation but "we should quit talking about it because it is an empty cannon at this time."

Nixon's hour-long appearance Thursday night on the ABC program "20-20" was his first nationally-televised interview since he was paid for five programs by British television personality David Frost in 1977.

"I regret to say this, but I think one of the major errors President Carter made at the outset was to indicate that his primary - and it seemed to me his only concern at the beginning - was the safety of the hostages,' Nixon said of the situation in Iran. "They (the hostages) are impor-tant," he said, "but the moment you do that you are inviting blackmail. They know you'll pay any price in order to save those lives and you can never do that.'

Nixon said that like the Israelis, he would have considered the hostages as soldiers whose lives are expendble in battle.

He suggested that the United ites, along with Japan, France, many and Great Britain offer Ir a carrot - help with the economand unemployment that he says nownumbers more than 4 million peop

"We should not go to Moscow to high-jump with them after they jumped Afghanistan," Nixon said, re-ferring to the U.S.-led boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow. Nixon refused to criticize former

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Watergate burglary mastermind G. Gordon Liddy. Agnew, in a recent book, said he felt his life was threatened if he did not resign and Liddy said he thought he would be ordered by the White House to kill a fellow Watergate conspirator.

Asked whether he ever was emotionally in danger of going under after Watergate, Nixon said, "Never, that is just part of my makeup."

And, asked about the health of his wife, who suffered a stroke a few years ago, Nixon said "if you saw her, you would never know she had a stroke."

Asked at the end of the interview how he thinks history will view him, Nixon replied:

"I would hope it will hold me accountable for mistakes I made, it should. I would hope and perhaps expect that it would also remember that during my administration we ended a war which we had inherited and ended it in an honorable way."

And, to a final question of whether he regretted not burning the Water-gate tapes that provided the final straw toward ending his presidency, Nixon said he should have destroyed them and if he had to do it over again, he would.

flags remained displayed at half-staff throughout Belgrade in drizzling spring showers.

Police security, tightened for the arrival of the dignitaries, remained heavier than usual as the last of the foreign leaders departed.

Belgrade shops reopened. Although they were to have been open during the funeral, many had closed. Tito portraits draped in black remained prominently placed in store windows throughout the city.

Workers coiled up the miles of ropes used to restrain crowds along the funeral procession route, and stacked in piles the metal barricades which were also employed.

Newspapers carried special editions devoted entirely to the four-hour state funeral, with its procession through Belgrade from the Parliament building to Tito's private estate.

The daily newspaper Politika said it printed 720,000 copies, the biggest press run in its history.

State prison site hearings to be held in Starr County AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Starr

The governor told a news conference Thursday the hearings will be held this month and he might attend. The State Board of Corrections wants to buy La Casita Farm in Starr County. However, Clements and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong delaved the deal last month - one day before a purchase deadline set by the owners.

Clements apparently feels the deadline was not a firm one, although the lawyer for the Louisiana owners of La Casita says it was.

"The gentleman who owns this piece of property ... wanted to sell it and still wants to sell it," Clements said.

Clements and Armstrong, members of the approval board that reviews such purchases, were con-cerned that Starr County residents and officials were not told of the plan to build a maximum security prison at the 5,293-acre site.

Attorney William Ladin of Houston, representing La Casita, has said the property is no longer for sale.

But Clements said the farm is "owned by what I consider to be a willing seller."

The governor said "I don't have any hangups" about the location of the prison, but he would not answer questions about putting a prison where local residents do not want it.

He said prison officials are considering other locations.

Also Thursday, Clements blasted President Jimmy Carter for opening the "floodgates" for Cubans who want to come to the United States. He said many Cubans will wind up in Texas.

Clements predicted the Cubans would cause no problems for Texans, but he questioned the Carter policy.

Balloonists heading for 'major hurdle'

By The Associated Press

The Sierra Nevadas safely behind them, Maxie and Kris Anderson today began the second day of their attempt to cross the nation by balloon with a "major hurdle" yet ahead - the soaring peaks of Colorado's Rocky Mountains.

They could have a pretty bumpy ride out there," Jim Mitchell, spokesman for the mission, said early today as the giant balloon carrying the father and son floated toward Milford, in southwestern Utah.

He said the balloon was expected to reach Colorado by dawn.

The Andersons are attempting to become the first to cross the United States by balloon. They hope to bring the helium-filled balloon down near Kitty Hawk, N.C., site of the first successful airplane flight, Mitchell said the 75-foot-high Kitty Hawk went due east after its liftoff early Thursday from San Francisco. But as it neared Las Vegas, Nev., it changed course abruptly, and Mitchell said it appeared the craft could pass north of Denver.

"Apparently some thermal activity turned them in a kind of sharp left-hand run and they went north for awhile before turning again and going sort of northeastward," Mitchell said.

He said thermal activity - the same sort of activity that causes bumpy rides for airplane passengers - could pose a problem as the 20-story-tall craft passed the Rockies.

"It certainly is something that gives you a great deal of discomfort," he said, calling it a "major hurdle." Mitchell said the next problem would be thunderstorm activity over the Plains.

Mitchell-said it appeared the Anderson's direct radio link with the mission headquarters in Boston was out of order, but added the team had made radio contact with persons on the ground. Mission spokesmen said they were not concerned about the problem.

The Andersons, riding in a 41/2-ton gondola, cleared 12,000-foot-high Sierra Nevada peaks and flew over sensitive security areas on the Nevada desert as they headed eastward Thursday. The goverment granted the balloonists permission to fly over the Nevada Test Range. They topped the Sierras about nine hours and 300 miles after liftoff from an army base at the foot of the Golden Gate Bridge. The 2,500-mile flight to Kitty Hawk is expected to take four to six days.

The elder Anderson and two other men two years ago became the first people to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

The 45-year-old Albuquerque mining company president and his 23-year-old college student son have been flying balloons for a number of years.

Mitchell said today that so far, "there's nothing to cause any undue concern." But, he added from his experience in two trans-Atlantic efforts, "you're always nervous."

Parks threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) - Souvenir hunters are hauling away the petrified forest.

Acid rain is killing fish in the Great Smoky Mountains.

Wild goats, pigs and mongooses are running amok in Hawaii. All in our national parks, says the agency that runs them.

What's more, says the National Parks Service's first "state of the parks" report, swelling tourism, pollution and urban sprawl are threatening many of our 326 national parks and monuments.

"Without qualification ... the cultural and natural resources of the parks are endangered by a broad range of threats," said the report, issued Thursday. "No area is immune."

And unless steps are taken soon, the survey warned, the various problems 'will continue to degrade and destroy irreplaceable park resources.'

More than 60 percent of the country's parks face shrinking scenic resources, 45 percent report air pollution problems and more than 40 percent say they are discovering threats to animals, plants and water, the report said.

Problems are most serious, it said, at the largest and most famous parks -Yellowstone, Yosemite and the Everglades among them.

'Most of these great parks were at one time pristine areas surrounded and protected by vast wilderness regions. Today, with their buffer zones gradually

Congress denied raid plan details

Harold Brown says he does not want to tell a Senate committee the details of the plan that would have been used to rescue U.S. hostages in Iran because the techniques may later be used against terrorists.

"It is clear that some details of what was planned would, if revealed, compromise our ability to carry out anti-terrorist activities," Brown said Thursday after a closed-door meeting with the Senate Armed Services Committee.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the committee needs more information to assess whether the mission stood a reasonable chance of rescuing the American hostages in Iran.

In a brief interview, Jackson said the committee also should determine whether the mission would have endangered 150 other Americans who live in Tehran but are not hostages.

However, Jackson said he has not decided whether to ask for a committee vote to demand the information.

The commando raid to rescue the hostages from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was aborted April 25 after three helicopters broke down. Commanders said the remaining five could not carry the full rescue force on to Tehran.

Brown said he gave the committee a general description of how the hostages would have been rescued but did not disclose "details of techniques and procedures" that would have been used.

The secretary said, "I am convinced that in a decade when terrorism, kidnapping and a need for special operations to counter them may well become even more important than they have in the past, it would be a mistake to compromise security on such techniques.'

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., the committee chairman, told reporters the panel will vote on demanding the information if Jackson asks for a

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., an occasional critic of defense policies, said he was satisfied with the information the committee received.

Sens. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the committee should not ask for the information.

Goldwater told reporters he has heard there was a 70 percent to 80 percent chance that people would have been killed during the rescue operation. Other senators said the risk of deaths was not

The report noted traffic jams and auto pollution at the most popular parks and said attendance at all parks had more than doubled in the last 10 years to 282 million visitors in 1979.

The report found that:

-Souvenir hunters at Arizona's Petrified Forest National Park are taking up to 12 tons of petrified wood chips a year while cactus collectors at Big Bend National Park in Texas and Organ Pipe National Monument in Arizona are taking so many plants that "the natural scene is being changed."

-At some parks, the animals being protected are themselves causing problems. "Highly aggressive" wild goats, pigs, and mongooses are threaten-ing the ecosystem at Haleakala National Park, Hawaii.

-Acid rain in Great Smoky Mountains Park in North Carolina and Tennessee is killing off brook trout and shovel-nosed salamanders.

-The world's largest hot water lake, at Lassen Volcanic National Park, Calif., is threatened by a nearby geothermal test well. Other, planned geothermal projects may one day affect Bandelier National Monument, N.M., and Yellowstone and Grand Teton in Wyoming. —An open-pit coal mine is planned next to Glacier National Park, Mont., while oil, gas, coal and uranium development threatens "significant resources" at Chaco Canyon in New Mexico.

-Wildlife at Channel Islands National Monument, Calif., could be harmed by offshore oil drilling and the island's seals and rare birds could be frightened by space shuttle flights, the first of which are scheduled to be launched from a nearby military base in 1983.

Problems such as these, the report said, show that the park service needs to spend more money on managing and preventing park degradation. Now, only $12 million - less than 2 percent of the park service budget - goes for such efforts.

U.S. agrees to work on coyote-killing chemical

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Interior Department, relaxing its ban on federal research into a powerful coyote-killing chemical, has agreed to work with Texas A&M University on a test program.

The program between the university and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service would be limited to research on the chemical compound 1080 used in the toxic sheep collar.

The chemical, considered by many sheep and goat producers to be their best weapon against coyotes, was banned in 1972.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus halted federal research on 1080 last fall in announcing a new predator control policy.

In announcing that Texas A&M and the Fish and Wildlife Service are trying to work out an agreement for a research program, Andrus said the program would have to conducted under stringent controls.

We are proposing formation of an ad hoc oversight committee, balanced between representatives of sheep and goat raisers on the one hand, and environmental organizations on the other," he said Wednesday in a statement.

Andrus said preliminary research has raised some doubts about what dosage is lethal to coyotes and whether the chemical has secondary impacts on species other than covotes.

"I still tend to believe that other chemicals, lethal and non-lethal, offer more promise for effective coyote control in the next few years than does 1080," he said.

The interior secretary added that the Fish and Wildlife Service would continue research into other chemicals that could used in the toxic collar.

The collar, filled with poison and placed around the neck of a sheep or goat, would kill any predator going for the throat.

Compound 1080 was used before the ban in open bait stations, where any animal could be exposed to it.

Herman Kallman, a spokesman for the Fish and Wildlife Service, said the decision to work with Texas A&M was made after the university applied to the Environmental Protection Agency for a research permit for 1080.

Man held in deaths of two Monahans women

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Police held a 31-year-old man in lieu of $200,000 bond today on charges he stabbed to death two young West Texas women on a job-hunting trip shortly after they got off a bus.

Police said Larry Norris Mosely of Fort Worth signed a statement admitting he killed Rebecca Hampton, 20, and Penny Cheree Dale, 25, both of Monahans.

Officers said Mosely signed a statement in which he claimed he got into a fight with the two women and stabbed them only after he found them "going through his things.

Bond was set at $100,000 on each of two murder charges by Justice of the Peace Morris Howeth.

Their bodies were found in opposite sections of town Tuesday and Wednesday. An autopsy report released Thursday said the women had been stabbed a total of 20 times with "something like a bayonette" that was at least nine inches long.

The two women had arrived Tuesday on a 5 a.m. bus from West Texas.

"They were just looking for a place to stay," Geeslin said. He said Mosely picked the women up, drove them around town, parked his car and fell asleep. Mosely's statement says when he woke up, he found the two women going through his property. "He didn't like the idea of them going through his things," Geeslin said. At that point, the captain said Mosely stabbed the two women to death and dumped their bodies in different sections of town.

"He admitted he was the responsible party," Geeslin said.

In Monahans, Francis Andrews, Miss Dale's mother, said her daughter had packed some clothes Monday morning and told her family she was going job-hunting. A Greyhound bus driver reported seeing the two women together on the overnight eastbound bus.

Police sources said Mosely was linked to the women's deaths after he appeared at another woman's house later Tuesday wearing bloody clothes and asking for shelter. The man was arrested and his car was impounded. The resident of the house was not harmed.

Livestock price outlook is dim

Producers to bear most of the burden

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department has new projections that show little dramatic improvement is expected soon in the depressed price situation for livestock and poultry.

While that means consumers should be seeing some bargains at meat counters in the coming months, producers will be bearing most of the burden.

The figures showed also that livestock market prices now are expected to be lower this spring and summer than USDA indicated in similar projections six weeks ago.

Big, over-fed cattle are waddling to market, helping depress prices by their excess weights; millions of additional hogs are adding to the pork supply; and poultry slaughters are running above a year ago.

"The large meat supplies and a slowing economy will probably hold down meat price gains during most of 1980," the department said Thursday in a summary of a new "livestock and meat situation" report due later this month

But farmers can take it on the chin just so long before depressed prices have their effect, and the figures indicate that by year's end farmers will be easing back on production, particularly of pork and poultry. The projections showed that by the fourth quarter pork output may be about even with year-earlier levels, with broiler production down 3 percent.

In all, they showed total red meat and poultry output in October-December could be down 1 percent from a year earlier.

At the moment, however, it looks as if consumption of meat and poultry in 1980 will be another, record.

"Further increases in pork production may boost pork consumption about 5 pounds per person, and poultry consumption may be up 1 to 2 pounds, more than offsetting a decline in beef consumption of 2 to 3 pounds," the report said.

Although beef output in the first quarter was down 5 percent from the same period last year, the fed cattle industry - producers who fatten cattle for slaughter - continues to be "burdened by a slow marketing pace, excessive slaughter weights" and depressed prices, it said.

"In April, farmers received the lowest prices for their hogs since June 1974, as a record hog slaughter pushed prices below $30 per hundredweight.

A year ago, even as they were declining, hog prices were averaging about $40 per 100 pounds of live weight.

Current hog inventories and indications that this spring's pig crop may be as large as a year ago "suggest hog slaughter could be maintained at record levels through the fourth quarter, keeping pressure on hog prices," the report said.

meat producers, are currently in a cost-price squeeze. However, broiler producers can adjust production levels faster than beef and pork producers."

Thus, the report said, broiler output may ease back to year-earlier levels by summer and then drop below 1979 levels in the fall.

"A slowdown in broiler output is expected in the second half of 1980," it said. "Poultry producers, like other

The report projected U.S. Choice steer prices for the second quarter at an average of $64 to $66 per 100 pounds, compared to a $68-$72 range in a similar analysis on April 1.

In the third quarter, the new projections call for a range of $68 to $71 against the earlier forecast of $69 to $73. In the fourth, projected for the first time, steer prices were put at $68 to $72 per 100 pounds.

Prices of slaughter hogs in April-May were estimated at $31 to $33 per 100 pounds, compared to projections earlier of $34 to $37. Third quarter prices were projected at $35 to $38 against the earlier forecast of $37 to $40. Hog prices in the fourth quarter were indicated at $36 to $39 per hundredweight.

Israel says Sadat making 'a mistake' and a construction of a contraction of the set of the set

By The Associated Press Israel described Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's decision to suspend the deadlocked Palestinian autonomy talks as "a mistake" today and said the meetings of working committees also will be halted until the ministerial sessions resume.

Sadat's decision was announced Thursday by Sol Linowitz, the special U.S. envoy mediating the negotiations for a plan to give home rule to the 1.2 million Palestinians of the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip, which Israel occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War. The move increases prospects that the May 26 target for agreement will not be met.

Linowitz, who met with Sadat for an hour Thursday in Ismailia, said the Egyptian leader wanted time "to reflect on the results" of the last round of negotiations, in the Israeli resort of Herzlia. The talks lasted a week and ended Tuesday with no sign of major progress. They had been scheduled to resume Monday in Cairo.

Israel's chief negotiator, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, called Sadat's decision to postpone the talks a "mistake" in an interview with Israel Radio, and said he thought the move would act against Egypt.

'Apparently he decided to create a little pressure," Burg said. "But what is interesting is that now, about two weeks before the May 26 target date, instead of making an effort to reach an agreement, he decided on this

Burg said Israel's ambassador in Cairo was informed today that meetings of the working groups also will be suspended until the ministerial meetings resume.

Sadat gave no public explanation for the suspension. Asked by reporters about the impasse, he replied: "The weather is marvelous today."

In Washington, State Department officials said they considered the breakoff to be a dramatic display of brinkmanship and not a permanent or even an indefinite suspension. One official said he expects the talks to resume next week.

A senior member of the Israeli negotiating team was quoted by Israel Television as saying Jerusalem felt the suspension was an attempt to pressure Israel and the United States, and to delay the talks until after the U.S. presidential election in November.

Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, Egypt's chief negotiator, acknowledged Wednesday that "a big gap" remained between Israel and Egypt. Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, who met with Sadat on Thursday, agreed and said he was "not that optimistic" that the May 26 target — the anniversary of the start of the negotations — could be met.

Linowitz pointed out that the 1977 breakthrough on the Panama Canal treaties which he helped negotiate came on the day set as a deadline. According to Khalil, the only things agreed upon in Herzlia were the importance of continuing negotiations and the formation of a ministerial committee to discuss security. But Sadat's action could delay formation of the committee.

The talks are deadlocked over how much authority to grant the Palestin-ian council that would govern the occupied territories. Israel insists the council should have only limited control over municipal affairs, claiming that any more authority would jeopardize Israel's security. Egypt wants the council to have judicial, legislative and executive powers, leading eventually to the creation of an independent Palestinian state.

Israel meanwhile faces a growing rebellion among the West Bank and Gaza Palestinians, who oppose the autonomy scheme and say they will settle only for independence. And on Thursday the Palestinians got new support from the U.N. Security Coun-

Kremlin accuses West, China of Afghan deceit

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov today accused Western "imperialist circles" and China of trying to deceive the world about Moscow's "friendly assistance" to Afghanistan.

Ustinov also claimed Peking was trying to create "a united anti-Soviet front" around the globe.

His comments came in an article in the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda marking the 35th anniversary of Allied victory over Nazi Germany in World War II.

"Imperialist circles do not stop short of calumny of the lowest kind, political speculations and downright deception of the international public," Ustinov wrote.

He said this was illustrated by "attempts of the U.S. administration and its supporters to distort the essense of the friendly assistance of the Soviet Union to the people of Afghanistan, which helped disrupt the plans of internal and international reactionaries to strangle the Afghan revolution."

80 students vie in math contest

Wednesday was math mania day for some 80 Midland school children. At Jones, Emerson and Pease elenentary schools, fourth, fifth and sixth grade students frantically added, subtracted, divided and multiplied series of numbers in the citywide math contest.

When the pencil lead and rubber erasers eroded into dust-like remains, fourth grader David Beatty of Anson Jones Elementary, Phillip Alldredge, fifth grader from Sam Houston Elementary and sixth grader Mack Harrison of Ben Milam Elementary were declared city champs in the arithmetic competition.

This is the second year MISD has held the Midland Intermediate Mathmematics contest. Students practice arithmetic skills at their schools until they are proficient in computation. explained Olessie Moore, coordinator of elementary mathmematics and science.

The goals of the competition, according to Mrs. Moore, are to develop and motivate a student's positive self-concept, awareness of a student's mathematical ability and just for the fun it.

Trophies were presented to first place winners in the city champs division with ribbons given to second and third place winners. Winners in each math category were awarded with ribbons.

Inflation eased in April, Labor Department says

There's no other way to do what WANT ADS do. Dial 682-6222

WASHINGTON (AP) - Inflation's iron grip loosened in April, as wholesale prices rose only 0.5 percent, the smallest increase in 11 months, the Labor Department reported today.

The slowdown was due largely to a 2.8 percent decline in wholesale prices of food, the sharpest drop since June 1974 when prices fell 3.3 percent. In March, food prices shot up 1.1 percent. April's overall 0.5 percent rise in wholesale, or producer, prices compares with a 1.4 percent surge in March and a 1.5 percent increase in both January and February, the Labor Department said.

At last month's pace - the lowest since May 1979 - the composite inflation rate at the producer level would be only 6.2 percent, about one-third the rate of recent months.

The clear slowdown in wholesale prices occurred as the U.S. economy is entering a recession. Unemployment last month shot up from 6.2 percent to 7 percent.

Energy prices went up 3.8 percent last month- a pace far less than the 7 percent-plus figures of Febrary and March - as last year's OPEC oil price increases rippled through the U.S. economy.

Government: Last growth industry

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

BUSINESS MIRROR

NEW YORK (AP) - As the economy drops into recession, with jobs being lost and businesses collapsing, there remains one area of enterprise that is doing well, based on the standard measurements

This area of enterprise reports that it's revenues are up. It is expanding. It is hiring. It is spending. It is lend-

It too may experience a downturn in its revenues, because no piece of the economy structure stands alone. Like an erector set, the parts all fit together, and sometimes they all come down together too.

The expansion, into the lucrative education market, was viewed as indicative of more to come, because the enterprise's other departments have been growing at a pace faster even than any private concern.

The enterprise, of course, is the U.S. Government, which doesn't feel very obligated to watch how it spends its dollars but which is now planning to expand the budget for its Wage and Price Stability Council.

While private enterprises have found themselves shut out of regular debt markets, government hasn't had to worry very much. It gets its money because it can afford to pay. It just passes on the expenses.

In fact, it has money to spare, and ple, including congressional aides and private sector officials, are deeply worried about the practice, but it goes on unchecked because, it seems, the money is there to be lent.

It is accumulated from taxes, which have been growing, and by borrowing, which has been growing. The government now owes about $850 billion, but it has a steady and growing income - taxes - to cover it.

Much has been made recently of balancing the budget, but whatever balance is achieved will be at a very high level. Budget balancing does not require spending cuts. It can be achieved through higher revenues.

Those revenues have been growing at a rate that would pop the eyeballs few weeks, taxes are at an alltime high, measured by almost any device or technique known to the financial experts. And they continue to grow. This year's rrevenues might exceed $611 billion, a level that requires households to pay more than they did the year before. The $4,000 take from the average household in 1976 will likely be double that by 1982. Some envious private sector executives envy the durability of their federal government counterparts. In private industry, a cutback is a cutback; it means reduced revenues, layoffs and painful adjustments.

Which is to say that in the private. sector, a recession is really a recession. Companies fail, a phenomenon

Harry Truman got common sense on the farm

By WES COOK Associated Press Writer

682-5222

SED G

GRANDVIEW, Mo. (AP) - Harry. Truman's mother used to take exception when people called him "The Man from Independence." "It was on the farm that Harry got his common sense," she insisted. "He didn't get it in town."

That farm in Grandview comprises only 13 acres today, compared with 600 acres in 1906 when 22-year-old Harry Truman swapped the suit and tie of a bank clerk to return to his overalls.

Truman - the man who said, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen," and, "The buck stops here" - was born May 8, 1884, and died Dec. 26, 1972, at the age of 88.

A week-long celebration of his birthday is now underway in Indepen-dence and Kansas City. Dr. Benedict

Confederate statue

Zobrist, director of the Truman Library and Museum, says one of the most formative periods of Truman's life was 1906-17 when "he emerged as a farmer, school board member, Mason, soldier and politician." By 1905, he had decided that "every citizen should know something about military, finance or banking, and agriculture." When he became the 33rd president of the United States, Martha Ellen Truman boasted her son "could plow the straightest row of corn in the county.'

Truman's maternal grandfather, Solomon Young, bought the farm for $7 an acre around 1842. Truman said he "plowed, sowed, reaped, milked cows, fed hogs, doctored horses, baled hay and did everything there was to do on a 600-acre farm.

Speaking of plowing, he said, "I've settled all the ills of mankind in one way or another while riding along seeing that each animal pulled his part of the load."

It was the farming community of Grandview that provided Truman his first lessons in practical politics.

Truman's father, John, was appointed an election judge here in 1906. When Harry returned to the farm, his father made him an election clerk. Truman served in every election from then until he left in June of 1917 for World War I.

He got more political experience as road overseer for part of the township, a job his father held from 1910 until his death in 1914.

Truman described his father's work: "He had to fix bridges and culverts, fill up mud holes and try to help everyone in the neighborhood get to and away from his farm in bad weather

"It was my father's job to collect the poll tax and work it out. A man could work three days on the road or he could pay the road overseer $3 and let his road work be done by proxy. One day's work with a team of horses would also give him a clean bill of health."

Truman said his father "made the poll tax workers work for the county just as they worked for themselves. While they'd beef about it on the job, they'd go home and brag about how old man Truman gave the taxpayers a fair break.

"I was taught that the expenditure of public money is a public trust and I have never changed my opinion on that subject. No one ever received responsible unless he gave honest service for it.

Truman joined the Farm Bureau in 1913 and was a township officer in 1914. He joined the Masons in nearby Belton and later helped organize the Masonic Lodge in Grandview, serving as its first presiding officer and then as secretary.

He was appointed postmaster in 1915 but waived his annual salary of $530

"I let a widow woman who was helping to raise and educate her younger sisters and brothers run the office as 'substitute postmaster' and take the pay," Truman said.

He rose rapidly in politics - right to the top.

For many, Truman's image has become somewhat that of a folk hero - the so-called common man from a common background with an uncom-mon touch. Historians describe him as surprisingly bold and decisive.

He was feisty, spirited, confident and almost cocky at times. Loyal to his friends, he inspired loyalty. He loved a good game of poker. He was blunt and, not infrequently, used strong language against opponents.

Most of Truman's farm workers and neighbors described him as a good to excellent farmer, and firm, honest and fair in his dealings with farm hands and suppliers.

Clinic teaches deaf children to speak

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Enrique Armendariz, his 3-year-old face set and serious, placed his open hand on his cheek so he could feel his mouth move. He creased his forehead and said one word: "Open."

His face fairly glowed with happiness.

It was no small accomplishment. Enrique had never heard the word before. He never will.

ENRIQUE IS DEAF, one of about 300,000 Americans who live in a silent world, a world that can become an isolated prison.

But Enrique and youngsters like him are learning speech - the key that can unlock that prison - at an unusual facility called the John Tracy Clinic. John Tracy was the deaf son born to actor Spencer Tracy and his wife, Louise, who founded the center in 1942.

"All our services are entirely free of charge to anybody who walks in here. The only requirement is that there is a need," said James Garrity, director of education services.

Besides its nursery school and tutoring services, the clinic — support-ed by donations — offers tests for hearing disabilities, correspondence courses that have gone to 130 nations and summer programs for out-oftown families. The children are aged 2 to 6.

EMPHASIS AT TRACY, said director Edgar Lowell, is on lip-reading and spoken language rather than the sign language often used by the deaf.

The concept, he said, "is a minority view. But (sign language) is like teaching your kid to speak Chinese. You're either dependent on an interpreter or you can only talk to others who use sign."

Lowell said some of the clinic's most important programs are for parents, "so they know they are not the only ones God did this to."

"My first feeling was guilt," said Judy DeWald, mother of a 14-year-old Tracy graduate and now an assistant teacher at the clinic. "Then I got angry at the world for having done this to me. And I pitied my child. I thought, how is she ever going to make it in the world?"

Today, Mrs. DeWald figures there are few tasks Tina, now in public school, can't handle: "I guess the only thing I can't imagine her doing is being a telephone operator."

TO AN OUTSIDER, the nursery school's 24 youngsters look like any other group of rambunctious preschoolers. The room is noisy.

Then subtle signs appear. Youngsters tap the shoulder or arm of a playmate before talking directly to his face. Nearly all use gestures: some do not speak at all. Others use an indecipherable collection of drawn-out syllables. A few speak very well.

All wear hearing aids, usually one in each ear. The clinic's first step is to install hearing aids, even on toddlers barely a year old.

"We want them making use of whatever hearing they've got," said teacher Pat Schaeffer. "Then you have to get the parents talking to the child — lots and lots of talking. After parents are told that their child is deaf, they often think they can't talk to him anymore because he can't hear them

PERHAPS THE GREATEST tragedy of deafness, say many educators, is de-priving a child of language. While a hearing child of 3 might know several hundred words, a deaf child might not even realize words exist, that things have names

Ms. Schaeffer said a major goal is just to persuade a child to watch moving lips and "to know that this is communication."

Once that groundwork is laid - when the parents are talking and the child is watching — the youngster is ready for nursery school. Jo-Jo Lopez can't talk yet, but he's learning to read lips. Tutor Karen Modzelesky, sitting on a chair as small as Jo-Jo's, sets a paper sack on the table between them. Jo-Jo waits with his hands folded.

WHEN THE TUTOR SAYS "Open," Jo-Jo reaches inside the bag and takes out a little toy. Over and over the drill is repeated, using boxes, plastic jars and the door to the tutoring room.

"I work day by day until I know the child can lip-read that word," Ms. Modzelesky said. "Then I expect the child to say it."

Mrs. DeWald said, "There are times in a deaf child's life when they really want to get their point across and you're just not understanding. 'They're all excited and they're trying so hard. Then they can get really frustrated."

THEN PATIENCE IS THE KEY, as she demonstrated during recess when a youngster charged up with an excited, but mostly garbled complaint.

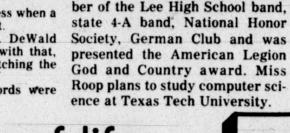

After some gentle prodding, the meaning came clear. Mrs. DeWald knelt in front of the boy and said, "Let me give you some help with that, Jonathan." Holding his palm to her cheek, she said, in tones matching the gravity of the situation: "My ball went over the fence."

Jonathan's hand went to his own cheek and this time the words were clear: "My ball went over the fence."

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) - The deterioration in U.S. relations with Iran, Libya and now Saudi Arabia has put the United States at odds with three of its major oil suppliers, highlighting the nation's sensitivity to foreign pressure on the energy nerve.

October 1973, when the Arab members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries stopped shipments in a bid to influence U.S. policy on Israel.

Despite the long gasoline lines caused by the 1973-74 crude oil embargo, U.S. dependence on foreign crude increased from 18.7 percent in 1973 to almost 36 percent in 1977.

Since then it has leveled off, and even declined slightly to 34 percent in 1979.

But U.S. diplomatic relations with Iran have been broken off; those with U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4 and took the Americans there captive. President Carter then ordered a halt to oil imports from Iran, to free U.S. responses to the situation from that complication.

The nation could probably do without oil from Libya - which provided 3.5 percent of the United States' total oil supply last year - if Washington's current efforts to expel four Libyans were to bring on the loss of those imports.

The State Department has alleged that the four men were responsible

Tulsa firm announces plans for Texas gas line

TULSA, Okla .- Sante Fe Pipeline Company of Tulsa announced intentions to construct a natural gas liquids pipeline system from a Texas location a few miles east of Hobbs N.M., to a termination point at either the Mont Belvieu or Bay City area.

The pipeline would transport natural gas liquids produced in the Wyoming and Utah Overthrust Belt, the Four Corners area (Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah), plus the Per-mian Basin and Austin Chalk areas in Texas.

Need for additional pipeline capacity was confirmed through completion of comprehensive engineering and project feasibility studies.

Originating the line near Hobbs vould make possible a connection with a recently announced pipeline to be built from the Rocky Mountain area and terminate near Hobbs.

The new Santa Fe pipeline also will transport additional volume from new and expanded natural gas liquids production facilities in the West Texas and Austin Chalk areas.

The line will be capable of handling either certain specification products or a demethanized natural gas liquids stream.

Start of construction is expected early in 1981 and will be completed prior to Jan. 1, 1982, subject only to receipt of necessary permit and final approval of the Board of Directors.

China buys drillbit right

HOUSTON (AP) - China has purchased the right to manufacture American-developed oil drilling bits in a $200 million deal hailed as the most significant transfer of U.S. petroleum equipment technology since trade relations resumed in 1973.

Under terms of the agreement signed Thursday, China will be licensed to manufacture oil drilling rock bits developed by Hughes Tool Co.

"It is conservatively estimated this agreement will bring over $200 mil-lion in sales of bits, bit parts, and royalties to Hughes Tool," said Hughes President James R. Lesch.

Lesch, who called the deal the most significant transfer of petroleum equipment technology to China, said the Chinese will spend another $50 million to build a plant at Chengdu in Sichuan Province.

He said a good portion of that will go to other American suppliers of machine tools and equipment.

During the first two years of the 10-year agreement, China will purchase completed bits for use while the plant is being built. During the next 30 months, rock bit parts will be purchased for assembly in China.

Lesch said orders for the first $25 million of such purchases will be signed immediately.

"At the end of 54 months, the plant should be fully operational and complete Hughes bits can be manufac-tured in China," said Lesch. He said Hughes will receive a royalty payment for each bit the plant produces. He said the annual output is expected to be 20,000 to 25,000 bits and the agreement includes no export restrictions

The agreement was signed after the first news conference called by Hughes in 21 years

Signing with Lesch was Madam Wu Xiaolan, vice managing director of the China National Machinery Import and Export Corp.

Madam Wu said Hughes will transfer without reservation up to date techniques.

"The signing of the agreement ushers a new starting point for long, friendly relations between the two sides although a large amount of work will have to be done and many problems will have to be achieved before the agreed objective is achieved," she said.

The agreement is contingent upon Hughes receiving a federal export license. Lesch sees no problems, however, saying Hughes sales to China since 1973 already have approximated $75 million.

The loss of Saudi Arabian oil, however, would hurt more.

Saudi Arabia is the largest single foreign supplier of oil to the United States, providing 7.3 percent of total U.S. oil needs in 1979.

While Saudi Arabia has not threatened to withhold its oil, Saudi objections to the scheduled showing of a television film here have already aroused some nervousness in Washington.

"Death of a Princess" has stirred the anger of the Saudi government, which ordered Britain's ambassador to leave the Middle Eastern country after the film was shown on English television last month.

The two-hour film recreates the circumstances surrounding the 1977 public execution of Saudi Princess Misha'al and her commoner lover. They had been accused of adultery. The movie never mentions Saudi Arabia by name.

Although the State Department has asked the Public Broadcasting Service to give "appropriate consideration" to Saudi concerns, PBS says it still intends to air the film Monday night.

700 attend D&D event

More than 700 persons attended the Desk & Derrick Club of Midland's Annual Industry Appreciation Night meeting Thursday night in the Holliday Inn Country Villa.

Paul N. "Red" Adair, internationally know oil and gas well firefighter, present the program which included films of four of his toughest fire-fighting assignments.

One of them dealt with an oil fire in Borden County in the early 1950s. At the time, Adair was working for M. M. Kinley. Adair said it took the Kinley crew and crews with Pan American 25 days to snuff out the blaze and flow.

He remarked that "in those days workers in the oil industry used the buddy system to get things done. It would please me to see workers of today get back to using that system of cooperation."

Adair was introduced the capacity crowd by Jno. P. Butler, senior chairman of the board of The First National Bank of Midland.

Charlene Hutchison, with University Lands and president of the Desk & Derrick Club, presided at the meet-

The "Spirit of America Singers' from Wayland Baptist College at Plainview provided the entertaiment. The singers drew a standing ovation at the conclusion of their program.

A special guest at the event was Martha Sublett of Pampa, Region V director of the Association of Desk & Derrick Clubs.

f Odessa No. 2-8 Fisher, staked as a wildcat project in the Block A-34 multipay area of Andrews County, has been completed from one of the field's established zones - the San Andres.

The well, 11 miles northwest of Andrews, finaled for a 24-hour pumping potential of 90 barrels of 33-gravity oil and five barrels of water, through perforations from 4,648 to 4,682 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 944-1, and the pay was acidized with 2,500 gallons.

Total depth is 4,700 feet and 5.5-inch pipe is set on bottom. The pay was topped at 4,647 feet on ground elevation of 3.207 feet.

Wellsite is 610 feet from north and 1,900 feet from east lines of section 25, block A-34, psl survey.

Extoril Producing Corp. of Midland No. 4-5 University, four miles south of Andrews, has been completed as the third Pennsylvanian well in the Bakke (Pennsylvanian) pool.

Operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 60 barrels of 41-gravity oil and 110 barrels of water, through perforations from 9,023 to 9,117 feet after a 1,500-gallon acid treatment.

The gas-oil ratio is 933-1. Total depth is 9,200 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom. Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 5, block 1, University Lands survey and one location north of other Pennsylvanian production.

WARD OILER

HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 4-103 Texfel has been added to the Pitzer, South (Delaware) field of Ward County as the pool's sixth well.

Three-quarters mile southwest of the closest other well, it finaled for a 24-hour potential of 17 barrels of 30.5gravity oil and 86 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,404 to 6,564 feet.

The pay was acidized with 1,300 gallons and fractured with 15,000 gallons.

Total depth is 6,650 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

Location is 1,980 feet from south east and southwest lines of section 103, block34, H&TC survey; and 10 miles south of Pyote.

GARZA POTENTIAL

J. C. Stelzer of Post No. 1 O. L. Miller, a re-entry project in Garza County, has been completed in the A.F.G. (Clear Fork) field, 13 miles north of Post.

It completed on the pump for 31 barrels of 38.2-gravity oil and 35 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,435 to 3,495 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid and a 30,000-gallon fracture job.

The old total depth is 3,915 feet. Four and one-half-inch pipe is ce-mented at 3,680 feet which is the cleaned out depth.

The third well in the field, it is 467 feet from north and 2,286 feet from wet lines of section 2, block 3, K. Aycock survey.

oil exports to U.S., Britain

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) - Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy is "seriously thinking" about cutting off Libyan oil exports to the United States and Britain and "withdrawing all assets" from both countries, the official JANA news agency reported

It also said Khadafy will ask for

Thursday to cut short the two-day confrontation as the State Department summoned the self-styled "secretary of the people's committee of the people's bureau," Ali el-Houderi, and "read him the riot act," one

American official said. State Department officials who asked not to be identified said el-Houcharges that can be answered in court.

"But the State Department has unilaterially declared them to be diplomats," thus depriving them of due process, Shadyac said.

FBI agents and police have been posted outside the five-story Libyan mission on the edge of downtown Washington, waiting for the emer-gence of the four.

Officials said a closing of the embassy would probably begin with agents preventing all movement into it and seizing anyone who came out and taking them to the airport to be put on a plane out of the country. They said it was possible that electricity and other utilities would be cut off.

Meanwhile, Shadyac was asked whether he thought a Libyan refusal to honor the deadline would lead the government to decide the "People's Bureau" is not a legitimate diplomatic mission, opening the way for the FBI to enter the building and take the four into custody.

"I have reason to believe the federal government may exercise that option," Shadyac said.

The State Department has not allowed the FBI to enter the building to get the four, on the theory that since the building is a diplomatic mission, it is inviolable under international law.

According to State Department officials, four ex-students who had become members of the "people's committee" were involved in a campaign of harassment and intimidation against dissidents among the 3,000-4,-000 Libyan students in the United States.

Last Friday, the department ordered the four to leave the country within 72 hours. But the Libyans refused, saying they are not diplomats, who can be expelled arbitrarily by a host government.

The government has forecast a mild downturn that would drive unemployment up to a little over 7 percent at year's end. However, some in the administration, including inflation adviser Alfred Kahn, now consider that figure too optimistic. Unemployment jumped from 6.2 percent in. March to 7 percent in April.

The business economists believe the nation's output will fall as much as 3 ercent over the next nine months. And they suggested that despite the That would make the recession recession and continued declines in among the worst since World War II, interest rates, inflation would remain but only about half as severe as the at double-digit levels until late this 1974-75 downturn.

He urged both businesses anc consumers to "exercise due restraint" in their demands for government programs. "If not, the cost of the recession — the human dislocations, the lost output and income - will have been paid in vain," he warned.

But all of them declined to speculate on how much of the tax relief would be for business and how much directly for the public.

President Carter and Congress have so far rejected proposals to cut taxes, arguing that such a move would hamper efforts to fight nearrecord inflation by balancing the budget.

Miller has said it is unfair to

A lean young man, maybe 17, eyed him from the doorway of a hockshop. Across the street an unshaven man, a big man with a big gun, waited, frozen behind a bush on a trash-strewn railroad embankment.

"Critter in white sneaks," whispered the big man as the teen-ager stepped into the sunlight. "Looks like he's

THE OLD MAN STARTED across the street, bent in half now by the wind. The young man followed, his sneakers straightening out the old man's crooked path.

Then suddenly, the man with the gun was running - up the embankment and over the tracks, to the top of steps leading out of a pedestrian tunnel. Crouching, he was ready to spring.

But it didn't go down that day.

The old man emerged from the tunnel. "Something spooked him," he said to the man with the gun. Then he pounded his fist - a mighty smack. "Damn it!" he said. He straightened up and there, for every thug in the world to see, stood this town's most famous decoy cop.

For 10 years, Bobby Hurst has cruised the shady side of the street, some days dressed like the immigrant, others like a granny, a business executive, an insurance salesman, a cabbie, a nun, a bus driver, a sailor, a watermelon vendor, a bum.

Anything to get robbed and mugged.

And always he is shepherded by big men with big guns, undercover cops with .357 magnums and walkie-talkies, moving in at the last second to arrest the thugs and sometimes to save Hurst's life.

HE'S BEEN SLASHED WITH knives and straight-edge razors 38 times, cut badly enough eight times to be hospitalized. He's been shot at 10 times, hit four, had gun barrels stuck in his ear.

He's been beaten senseless, attacked with machetes, scissors, meat cleavers, swords, baseball bats, chair legs, a ball and chain, knocked unconscious with a frozen mackerel wrapped in a newspaper. "Somebody's got to do it," he says. "Somebody's got to get the doers off the streets." So on he walks, a father of four, playing the street like a rodeo clown, luring society's crazed misfits.

At age 41, Hurst has mastered deception. The other night, a beat patrolman shooed him off the corner, not realizing the drunken loiterer was a fellow cop.

On a night not long before that, two men dragged him inside an abandoned house and tried to rape him.

"I was in my granny disguise," he said. "These guys are pulling down my pantyhose and one of them says, 'Damn, this bitch is strong.'

"I said, 'Yeah, ugly as hell, too.' Then I called in the troops and they swamped on them."

HURST HAS BEEN AWARDED 20 merit citations, three more for bravery. Four years ago he received the department's highest tribute, the citation for valor.

He has a gentle face. Pale blue eyes, an auburn beard sprinkled with white, a soft voice. He's 5-foot-10, 160 pounds. He has shot and killed "perhaps 10 people" with the snub-nosed revolver he straps to his ankle. "I don't keep score," he says.

Hurst says there are two kinds of street thieves: "The dipper goes into your pocket and takes what's there. He doesn't like violence.

"Then there's the shark or the critter. ... He will rob you, hurt you, rape you, kill you. That's the shark - that's the one we're after.

At last count, Hurst, a former Green Beret, had been "hit" 274 times, hospitalized 36.

He says to get a conviction, "You're going to have to take your banging. You anticipate you're going to take a beating." Often he does, and the results are a prosecutor's delight.

HURST PROVIDES THESE statistics: 90 percent of those arrested plead guilty; of those who stood trial in the past 10 years, only three have been acquitted; prison sentences average 2-8 years.

For that Hurst has had his hair set on fire, a .25-caliber automatic stuck in his ear, a German Luger shoved down his throat and chains wrapped around his neck. Once he was held up by a man with a cucumber.

hand it back.' So I reached in and gave him the money and he said, 'Now start walking and don't turn around. I'll blow you baby, I'll cap you right here.'

"Then the troops came down and there underneath the pile was the cucumber. And the guy said, 'Well, I didn't have anything else.""

Hurst has no trouble admitting his job makes him scared. "I think I'd quit the job if I wasn't. I'll tell you, some of these people are really brutal, really vicious. You can't fool around with a critter or a shark."

China forcing abortions to control population

HONG KONG (AP) - Forced abortions have been carried out in several areas in southern China's Guangdong province as a way to control population growth, travelers and a Hong Kong newspaper reported today.

Women with more than three children undergo forced abortions even if they are eight months pregnant, one visitor said

"Buckets of fetuses were often seen in front of hospitals," said another traveler to the area, who declined to be identified.

The independent Chinese-language Oriental Daily News reported that in Shiqi, near the Portuguese colony of Macao, some 30 pregnant women were recently hauled onto a truck and taken to a hospital for abortions.

Expectant mothers with more than three children were asked to "get rid of their unborn babies," said Ah Lai, a woman who returned here recently from Guangdong. If the women refused, they were forced to abort them, she said.

"Even mothers in their eighth month of pregancy have to have their unborn babies aborted if they have more than three children," she said, adding that her 28-year-old niece was forced to have an abortion although she was in her eighth month. She said she had not heard of any fatality resulting from a forced abortion:

She said that in one county adjacent to Macao, Communist officials often made routine checks on the number of pregnant mothers in certain areas.

The reports of forced abortions come at a time when Guangdong province is concerned about the growth of its population, estimated at 50 million.

In a broadcast Tuesday, Radio Canton said there were 2,275 more births in the province in the first quarter of 1980 than during the same period last year.

The broadcast gave no total figure of births. It said authorities there had decided to conduct "a major inspection of planned parenthood work in the province."

Department spokesman, Hodding Carter to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) - State Department spokesman Hodding Carter plans to resign and return to journalism after a brief transition period under new Secretary of State Edmund Muskie.

Carter told reporters Thursday he has not spoken to ? Muskie about his tenure in his poast as assistant secretary , of state for public affairs, which made his face familiar to millions of Americans as the voice of the U.S. government during the Iran crisis.

He said he did not know whether or when Muskie plans to name a new spokesman.

Since Cyrus Vance's resignation, however, Carter has told reporters he intends to leave the department and return to some form of journalism. He said he had no . specific plans yet.

Carter is a former editor of the Delta Democrat-Times in Greenville, Miss., a newspaper his family sold earlier this year.-

Striking firemen ignore threats, remain off job

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hun-dreds of striking firefighters ignored threats they would be fired and stayed off the job again today while National Guardsmen were busy dousing blazes, some believed deliberately started.

The city's 1,000 firefighters, paramedics and other Fire Department personnel defied a back-to-work order and walked picket lines while 500 guardsmen manned 11 of the city's 34 fire halls.

Mayor Richard Fulton said Thursday evening he would fire any firefighters still on strike after 6 a.m. today. But an hour and a half after the deadline passed, there was no one in the mayor's office who would say whether thes threat was final.

The walkout is the first firefighters strike ever in this city of 471,000 metropolitan area residents.

"All the reports we get right now is that we're 100 percent," said James Harbin, secretary of the Metropolitan Firefighters Association. "Everybody stayed with us. You may hear of a few coming back but from what we can tell, we're real solid. · Capt. Sam Hatcher, a spokesman for the National Guard, said there were 16 fires and two false alarms between 6 p.m. Thursday and sunrise today. Eleven of the blazes were at unoccupied dwellings, he said. When Guardsmen were unable to get water from a hydrant to extinguish a fire at a small apartment complex, Louis Simpson tried the fight the flames with his garden hose.

"I can't believe this. I just got off work and come home to this," said Simpson, an elderly man, said after dashing into his apartment to save a television set and some clothing.

Capt. Hooper Penuel, another Guard spokesman, said arson was suspected in some cases. A task force of 10 arson investigators from the state Fire Marshal's office arrived in the capital Thursday night.

He said Fire Chief Fred Davis told striking firefighters wanting to return to work to report at the state armory. From there they would be taken to fire halls under escort.

Capt. Gary Sawyer of Smyrna, commander of a National Guard armored company, said his crew fought its fourth fire this morning.

The 1980 racing season at Ruidoso Downs kicks off Saturday with a 12-race program which brings out some of the nation's leading three-year-old quarter horses. The lineup includes 11 elimination trials for the $22,150 Kansas Quarter Horse Dorby Kansas Quarter Horse Derby, the first leg of the Triple Crown for three-year-olds, each of which will cover 400 yards. Post time Saturday and Sun-day is 1 p.m. and Sunday's agenda will be topped by the $6,500 Inaugural Purse at six furlongs plus the $5,000 added Top Deck Stakes. The seasn will cover 66 race days, basically in a Thursday-through-Sunday schedule with the season wrap-ping up on Labor Day.

One of the key stars in Satur-day's trial is Streakin Six will, who draws Jerry Nicodemus. Last summer, Streakin Six won four Ruidoso races including the $500,000 Rainbow Futurity, earning $173,285. Later he sped to a win in the All-America Futurity trials to become the Labor Day classic favorite but was unable to hold off Pie in the Sky in the final yards. Streakin Six had four wins and three seconds in seven starts last year for $360,051.

Ruidoso Downs opens Madlock protests punishment

NEW YORK (AP) - Bill Madlock of the Pittsburgh Pirates doesn't think he deserves "the harshest penalty in baseball" for what he is charged with doing to umpire Gerry Crawford.

That's not what the umpires say, of course.

"It's the most violent action that I know of in baseball in at least the last 30 years directed at an umpire," says Richie Phillips, counsel for the Major League Umpires Association. "We feel that players have to be deterred from those kind of actions."

Both made their disparate views known Thursday at a hearing to consider Madlock's appeal of his fine and suspension. The infielder was suspended for 15 days and fined $5,000 by National League President Chub Feeney for allegedly shoving his glove in Crawford's face during an argument about a third strike in a game against Montreal last Thursday. Madlock has been playing pending his appeal of the penalties.

"Our association has a definite interest in the umpires and what happens as far as this case is concerned." said Phillips during a break in the hearing in Feeney's office.

Umpire Doug Harvey insisted that the case could have historic significance.

"We are basically the police department out there and we have to keep law and order," he said. "Whatever happens at this meeting will have a definite effect.'

The Midland Reporter-Telegram

Feeney listened to 41/2 hours of testimony from involved parties and de-layed decision on Madlock's appeal.

'The Players Association has requested that we interview other witnesses," said Feeney. "We will ac-cede to that request. I have no idea when a final judgment will be handed down.

Among the witnesses Thursday were the four umpires on the scene during the Montreal game, Crawford, Harvey, Andy Olsen and Nick Colosi; Pirate Vice President Harding "Pete" Peterson and Manager Chuck Tanner; Stephen Greenberg, Madlock's attorney; Phillips and Don Fehr, attorney representing Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association.

Madlock expressed hope that the penalty might be softened.

"If I am going to get the harshest penalty in baseball, I want to do something harsh enough to deserve it," he said. "I don't think I did in this case.

Madlock said that, besides interviewing the parties, Feeney looked over film of the incident.

"I don't know how they could tell anything from the pictures," Madlock said. "You know our ballpark (Three Rivers Stadium). Our cameras are in left field. You can have a glove 10 inches from a guy's face and it might look like it's right up against it."

Madlock said he didn't know whether he actually touched the umpire or not. Crawford, however, insisted that Madlock did touch him with the glove and has said he thought at first that he had a bloody nose.

Janet Guthrie

not satisfied

SECTION

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Her crash helmet and uniform are in the Smithsonian Institution. One of the race cars she has driven is in the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Museum. But Janet Guthrie isn't satisfied.

Guthrie, the first and only woman to compete in the Indianapolis 500. feels she can't do better than a fifth place finish in the May auto racing classic because she isn't getting enough work.

The Indy 500 is only the second race she's driven in this year and the first championship car race. Guthrie said no one can run near the leaders at Indy after racing only once a year.

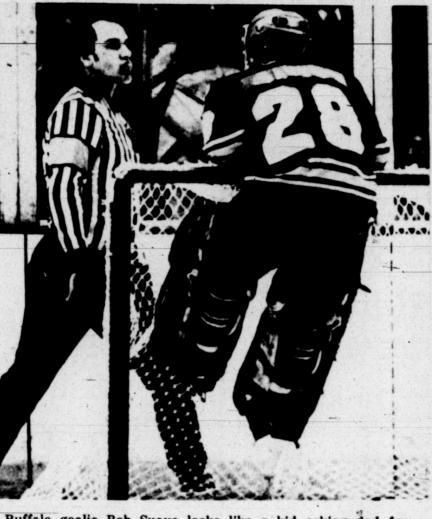

When she came to the Speedway four years ago, Guthrie had trouble gaining acceptance in what previously had been a men-only sport.

Her ninth place finish in 1978 brought her respect and acceptance, -But she she still had problems finding a sponsor who would enter her in more than just a few races.

By RALPH BERNSTEIN PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Bill Barber has been waiting a year to vent his frustration. The Minnesota North Stars felt his fury.

Barber scored two goals and one assist, set two records and tied two in triggering the Philadelphia Flyers to a 7-3 victory over Minnesota and into the National Hockey League's Stanlev Cup finals.

The Flyers now sit back and wait for a winner to emerge from the semifinal between the New York Islanders and the Buffalo Sabres. Then the Flyers can start the final best-ofseven set for the silver cup first awarded in 1893. Buffalo won Thursday night and trails the Isles, 3-2.

Barber scored nine goals in the series with the North Stars, tying the NHL record established by teammate Reggie Leach in 1976. He also tied the record of three shorthanded goals in a playoff year set in 1969 by Derek Sanderson.

The Flyers' veteran winger set a mark of three shorthanded goals in one playoff series, and established a new club mark of 12 points (nine goals and three assists) in one series.

"I remember going home frustrat-ed last year," said Barber, recalling finals. "I was disappointed. I wished the trouble they were having on a power play that went 0-for-17 before the string was broken in Game Three of this series. Over the last two games, it has produced four goals in seven tries - a little more to Buffalo's liking.

"It wasn't important to score early. It was important to score first," said Sabres defenseman Jim Schoenfeld. That's what happened at 1:52 of the contest, when Van Boxmeer powered a 30-foot shot past Resch's right arm. "If you score first, they've got to score twice to beat you. If you score again, they've really got to open up.

Buffalo scored again at 14:45 of the second period, when Dunn took Van Boxmeer's pass and rifled a 40-footer past Resch. Then Sauve held the Islanders to snap New York's string of seven road playoff victories this spring.

Negotiators wasting time

By WILL GRIMSLEY. AP Special Correspondence

Negotiations for a new Major League Baseball Players Agreement drones on in a 17th floor suite of a New York hotel as the May 22 deadline for 'a players' strike grows more imminent.

"Tougher than negotiations between U.S. Steel and the Steel Workers Union?" responded Marvin Miller, director of the Players Association, to a reporter's query. "No, I wouldn't say so. Just more boring and more frustrating.

"We're wasting our time with trivialities. This brought a sharp retort for his adversary, C. Raymond Grebey, representing baseball. "If they are trivial issues, Marvin must remember they are his issues, not ours," said the voice of the major league clubs.

"Since the first of April we have done nothing but discuss the players' issues - some 100 of them at the start. We haven't even put ours on the table yet."

NERVES ARE naturally growing taut as time sifts away like sand in an hour glass, drawing closer to a shutdown of the ball parks, which neither side wants.

Daily, the negotiators pore over sheaths of typewritten papers spread over a large conference table - the give and take, the nuts and bolts but not the guts of their differences.

If there is a strike, it won't be on the matter of a hazardous wooden fence in the outfield of Texas' Arlington Stadium or a player's right to refuse to travel on the team charter if he doesn't like the length of the run-

The "gut" issues are the length of free agent eligibility (now fixed at six years with players urging a reduction to four or five) and compensation for talent lost in the draft. The pension plan is next in importance.

Miller, a tough and skilled negotiator who once represented the steel workers, accuses baseball of seeking to destroy the players' newly gained free agency, arguing, "Players should not have to ransom their own

Grebey, a graying, fiftyish veteran of labor negotiations who once represented General Electric, regards such allegations as merely rhetoric for headline purposes.

REFERRING to himself as a old Cub fan out of Chicago, he tends to duck lobby news conferences, saying he prefers not to negotiate in the nation's media.

"There are two things I can't understand," he said. "First, why the players would want to strike. Secondly, what are they striking for? They have the best wages and best playing conditions in all sports. I don't see why they can't continue playing until these issues are resolved - even if takes a year.

"Basketball did it."

The players' position has been well enuniciated by Miller. Here, in thumbnail, is the other side of the coin - the owners' stance:

-More equity in compensation, which now consists of an amateur draft choice regardless of the value of the property lost.

then that I was in the other guys shoes."

Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor took his team's elimination gracefully. 'Nobody likes to lose, but we lost to the best team in the league. We kept trying and trying. Nobody threw in the towel. They were best over the season and should prevail in the finals," Sonmor said.

The Flyers lost the first game in this series, 6-5, then won four straight, including two in Minnesota for their 4-1 decision. They played like the team which put together a 35-game unbeaten streak and led the league with 117 points.

Minnesota had a 1-0 lead after just 44 seconds Thursday night on a goal by Craig Hartsburg. But it was their last hurrah. Rick MacLeish tied it at 2:33, and Barber sent the Flyers ahead 2-1 at 6:26 with a shorthanded goal eight seconds into a Minnesota power play. They never trailed. It was 4-2 after one, and 7-3 at the end of two.

BUFFALO (AP) - Though it seemed he had played much more than half the game, John Van Boxmeer was chipper and fresh after

SAN ANTONIO-It rained so hard here early Thursday that they had to bring in a heliocopter to dry out the infield so that San Antonio Dodgers and Midland Cubs could play their Texas League game Thursday night.

As far as the Cubs were concerned, there was no need to go to that much trouble. The Dodgers made it fiveout-of-seven over Midland this season with an 8-2 thumping in the opener of the six-game series here.

The Dodgers jumped on Midland starter Henry Mack for four unearned runs in the third and then clinched it in the fourth when Mike Zouras hammered his second homer of the season with two mates aboard to make it 7-0. By this time, Mike Wright had relieved the unfortunate Mack.

Midland averted a shutout in the seventh, but only after San Antonio starter Steve Shirley, 3-0, had left with "something pulled" in his back. Shirley had pitched six innings of four-hit ball without the hint of a Midland run.

Relief pitcher Jim Nobles, however, was more vulnerable. He walked Dave Stockstill and Javier Fierro and would have walked catcher Mike O'Berry if he hadn't gone fishing for a bad ball on a 3-2 pitch. Mel Hall then singled off the glove of first baseman helping keep the Buffalo Sabres alive. Mike Marshall to plate one run and then after Dave Owen fanned, Nobles walked Scott Fletcher and Tom Grant to force in Midland's other run.

The teams resume hostilities tonight at 7:30 with Jon Perlman, 3-2, going for Midland while Brian Holton, 3-2, will hurl for San Antonio.

The Dodgers paraded 10 batters to the plate in the third as John Shoemaker opened with a single, Jesse Baez walked and Midland shortstop Owen booted Mike Marshall's double play ball. Bill Swope later doubled home two runs and Larry Fobbs singled in another. Even so, the Cubs got off lucky for the night. The Dodgers stranded 15 runners during the game.

Switzer promises Tall City Sooners lots of offense

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

Barry Switzer paid a visit to the Tall City Thursday night.

Speaking before a large crowd of OU Alumni at the Midland Country Club, the Sooner football coach had some good news and bad news for Oklahoma followers for the 1980 season.

The good news is that OU will again have an highpowered offense, but the defense is very young for the up-and-coming campaign.

We should be able to move the ball real well again, especially with quarterback J.C. Watts back to guide the Wishbone offense again along with halfback David Overstreet.

"Replacing Billy Sims is another matter, however," said Switzer who will be starting his ninth year as head football coach at the Norman school. "I've been on the OU staff for 15 years which shows you how rapidly time passes by," commented the relaxed coach. Switzer planned to spend the night in Midland before flying to Los Angeles today for another speaking engagement.

Of course, Sims was the Heisman Trophy winner in 1978 and runnerup to USC's Charles White this past season.

Darrel Shepherd, former Odessa High standout, has two more years of eligibility at OU. "Shephed is a good athlete, but we worry about his size. He will be the backup quarterback behind Watts, " stated Switzer.

"I am proud to be a Sooner, even though I am originally a country boy from Arkansas and I'll always be s Sooner as long as they want me."

'Looking back at OU football fortunes for the past decade, Switzer points with pride to a 102-13-3 record which is the best in the nation

HIS SOONERS were also the top-scoring college football team in the nation during the past 10 sea-

Scott Hill accompanied Switzer on his trip to West Texas which happens every other year. Hill is a former quarterback and defensive back and helps to recruit the California area. In fact, Hill has signed four athletes from California for this coming fall.

"We had another great recruiting year but then so did Texas A&M and the University of Texas. We have to be able to recruit well every year in order to compete with the other powers in the nation, quipped Switzer. He punctuated how good recruiting has been by stating that there are 37 former OU football players now playing in the National Football League. "We are right up there with Notre Dame and USC in that respect.

OU has had 19 of it's 23 starters off the 1978-79 teams drafted into the pro ranks. The reason for the 23rd starter is of course, field goal kicker Uwe von Schamann

BEFORE TURNING to this year's prospects, Switzer pointed out that last week, Sims reported to the Detorit Lions, ran a 4.5 40-yard dash, benchpressed 390 pounds and this really had the NFL organization excited. "I asked Sims the other day why he came up with a $4.5 million contract request and he said, because I run a 4.5 40. I reminded him that the slower he ran the 40, the higher the salary would be, but he said that isn't quite true coach." This brought the house down as the crowd was busy polishing off desert following the buffet-style meal.

Compared to recent years, Switzer feels that the 1979 Sooner football team wasn't as talented as some in the past, but with the exception of the Texas game, chalked up an 11-1 record including a 24-7 Orange Bowl victory over previously unbeaten Florida State.

The difference this year will be that we have no Billy Sims, Joe Washingtons or Greg Pruitt, the kind that is a difference-maker. They were the kind that could break open a close game in the last seconds with a long run or punt return, " said Switzer.

Prior to the Orange Bowl game, Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said when he heard J.C. Watts preach, he would hate to see if he could play that well or better and the Eufala, Okla. star was named Most Valuable Player of the game afterwards, ending Bowden's curiosity.

Switzer still believes you have to win with a solid defense and the Sooners are green at the linebacker, defensive end and secondary slots. "We will be starting sophomores at those key positions and maybe even a freshman or two, said Switzer who is a little bit more than concerned about his defense.

"WE RECRUITED 10 players from Texas, and let's face it, we could't win without them.

Switzer went on to say that 1975 was the best recruiting year at OU and of the 26 players signed that year, 13 of them were drafted into pro circles. "This is probably the best recruiting year since 1975, but it will take time for these youngsters to mature for us, " he quickly added.

Out of the top 12 players in Oklahoma, the Sooners signed 10 of them, losing one to Oklahoma State and the other to the University of Texas.

Another thing that Switzer is proud of is the fact that OU had a 6-3-1 record against arch-rival Texas during the 1970s.

During a question-and-answer period, Switzer reported that Owen Field will now seat 76,000 fans and the athletic dorm is one of the best in the entire country. "It didn't use to be that way. When I cam to Norman 15 years ago, the facilities were horrible, but now they are among the best anywhere. We plan to resurface the playing field next year. We have one weight room that is more than 5,200 square feet in size POINTING TO the 1980 schedule, Switzer says that OU will play the University of Kentucky, Stanford, North Carolina and Texas. And of course, the tough Big 8 schedule. "When we play Kentucky, they will have already played two games and Stanford will have four games under it's belt to our one which should give them a big advantage.'

In the future, OU plays USC in 1981 abd 1982 and then Ohio State in 1983 along with Pittsburgh. "Whoever drew up our schedule is crazy, " chuckled Switzer.

When asked if he planned to change his offense any, Switzer said: "We have a 95-9-2 record since we started running the Wishbone and don't plan to stop now. We beat Alabama with it and then the Crimson Tide also turned to it and you could say that OU and 'Bama have been highly-succesful because of the Wishbone.

Before showing the 1979 OU Football Highlight Film, Switzer stated the lowest that OU has been rated in the past 10 years is seventh in the football polls. Following the film, Switzer thanked the audience and wrapped up things by by saying: "See ya in two years.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer Robert Burns composes his poetry on the pitching mound but he uses his middle name anyway and prefers to be called Britt Burns.

Under any name, Burns is proving to be one of baseball's top rookies. He pitches like a 30-year-old with a 20-year-old arm, which is his real age since he won't turn 21 until June 8. The former Birmingham, Ala., prep star - his high school earned run average was an outrageous 0.12 with 292 strikeouts and only 30 hits in 139 innings notched his first complete-game victory in the majors Thursday night, scattering nine hits as the Chicago White Sox whipped the Kansas City Royals

8-2. His American League ERA is a sizzling 1.60. Actually, it was Burns' third consecutive routegoing effort, but the previous two were 1-0 and 4-1 setbacks. "A complete game is just sort of a bonus," Burns said. "I feel good any time I'm able to go out and give the club a chance to win. To me, that's doing my iob

Burns got some offensive support from Claudell Washington, who rapped a pair of RBI singles. The first came in a three-run second inning and the second one highlighted another three-run uprising in the fifth when the White Sox chased loser Paul Splittorff. Meanwhile, Burns walked one and struck out eight. He allowed a home run to Frank White in the second inning and an RBI single to White in the ninth.

"If you look at Burns out there, you'd think he was 30 years old and a 10-year veteran instead of a 20-year-old rookie," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa. "He's got a tremendous amount of poise and he knows how to pitch in certain situations. It's not common to find that much poise in a pitcher as young as he is."

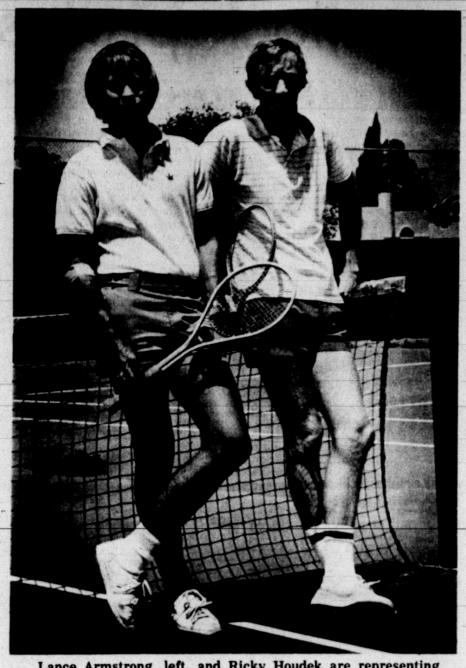

Blue Jays 9, Angels 2-The Blue Jays not only set a club record by winning their sixth game in a row but also gave them undisputed possession of first place in the AL East, one-half game ahead of the idle New York Yankees. Paul Mirabella and Joey McLaughlin combined to pitch a six-hitter while Damaso Garcia drove in Toronto's first two runs, John Mayberry hit a two-run homer and Otto Velez collected three singles and a double.

Brewers 9, Orioles 1-Don Money belted a threerun homer while Gorman Thomas added a two-run shot and Sixto Lezcano homered with the bases empty as Milwaukee ended a three-game losing streak. Money and Lezcano cracked succesive homers in a five-run first inning and Moose Haas and Bob McClure combined to pitch a four-hitter.

nine hits in their previous 85 times at bat, with Thomas 5-for-48 before his homer.

"You get those three guys hitting again and we'll win our share of games. We'll be in business," said Manager Buck Rodgers.

Mariners 4, Tigers 3-The Mariners, blanked for eight innings by Jack Morris, rallied for four runs in the bottom of the ninth to make unbeaten Rick Honeycutt the first six-game winner in the majors. Rodney Craig started the rally with a one-out single, Bill Stein walked and Ted Cox singled to score Craig. Morris walked Bob Stinson to load the bases before giving way to Aurelio Lopez.

years. "I feel fortunate to have found some one with Katharina's enthusiasm for baseball," Rigney said. "It takes a certain type person to work in sports, pri-marily because of the long hours involved, and Katharina fits the bill. She has followed baseball as a spectator since she was a child and has worked in and around the game for several years.

Katharina's primary duties will be to supervise the downtown business office and promotion and sales.

 SMU had planned to drop the program after all current scholarships had run out, but Potts said he met with the team Thursday and was told most players wanted to transfer to other schools."

"If we discontinue the team now they won't have to sit out a year when they transfer. There is no point keeping a skeleton team and having them hurt by it as well, so we will drop the sport now and honor our financial aid commitments," said Potts.

Baseball coach Steve Adair will remain on the SMU staff indefinitely, said Potts.

SMU decided to cut baseball and men's golf two months ago as part of a tightening of athletic expenditures. The Southwest Conference school had planned at the time to continue baseball while current scholarships were still in effect.

Guillermo Vilas dominated Corrado Barazzutti 6-3, 6-3 as Argentina defeated Italy 2-1 to win a semifinal berth in the Nations Cup tournament at Dusseldorf, W.Germany.

GOLF-Britain's Ian Mosey and Scotland's David Ingram both carded 6-under-par 66s to share the lead after the opening round of the 64th French Open. One stroke back were England's Maurice Bembridge. Spain's Francisco Abreu and Australia's Greg Norman: Johnny Miller was five strokes behind at 71.

Eamonn Coghlin gives Irish something to cheer about

BY JIM MURRAY Los Angeles Times

Whenever you meet Eamonn Coghlin, your first temptation is to ask him how are things in Gloccamorra, and to wonder if he came by rainbow.

There is no need to ask, did your mother come from Ireland? Aye, you can see, and his mother's mother's mother -- and so on, all the way back to Brian Boru. The eyes are as blue as the waters off Donegal, and when he talks you can hear the ripple of the trout stream, all right, and when he runs, he's the original barefoot gossoon from the turf fire in the cabin.

Ireland is a poor country, and there's not much to cheer about in its benighted provinces these days, but Eamonn Coghlan is the nearest thing to an all-Ireland hero since Danny Boy. From the Liffey to the Bogside, O'Connell Street to Drumlin Jail, he's done more for Ireland than Gladstone and Home Rule. As the man in the pub on Galway Bay puts it, "If he was any more popular, they'd have to hang 'im!"

RUNNING has always been a national sport in Ireland where the natives got plenty of practice leaving the scenes of exploding troop trains, or house-to-house searches by the dreaded "Black And Tans" of English constabulary, but the country was not electrified by the sport till 1956 with the winning of the gold medal in the Olympics by Ron Delany, a native of the Ould Sod, who beat the mighty John Landy, the Swede Murray Halberg

(to avenge the Battle of the Boyne) and, saints be praised! the representative of Perfidious Albion itself, master Brian Hewson.

But Delany had caught the country by surprise. He had earlier emigrated Ireland -- not in the coffin ships as in the Great Famine, but in a great winged aeroplane -- to learn the tricks of international running at Villanova University.

Eamonn Coghlin is a runner who came into Irish consciousness much more gradually. He followed much the same route as Delany but, by the time the Montreal Olympics rolled around in 1976, he was as popular a topic of Irish conversation in the late-night pubs as The Throuble in Ulster itself. Eamonn Coghlin had twice won the American NCAA mile championships that year and had stepped off a near-record 3: 53.3.

WHEN the Africans defected the Olympics at Montreal, Ireland got the shamrocks out and, when Eamonn won both his mile heats breezing, they made ready to break out the good stuff along the Shannon. Alas! The hope of Ireland tied up in the last 300 meters at Montreal, even losing a bronze medal in the closing strides to the German, Paul-Heinz Wellmann, whom he had safely beaten in the heats. Coghlin had not faced the ultimate gold medal winner, John Walker, in the heats, but he had beaten the second-place finisher Ivo Von Damme, of Belgium, and it was popularly thought on the eve of the finals, that Walker had burned himself out in his blistering 3: 36 heat.

When Eamonn lost, Ireland was philosophical. "He may not have won," a policeman in Dublin told his father. "But, by Jove, for four minutes he united all of Ireland!" "That in itself is a record," a bystander observed.

Eamonn himself was less consolable. "You know," he told a friend, "fourth place is the absolute worst place to finish in an Olympics. Far better to be last.

He then had a choice: to take to Irish dreaming of what might have been, adopt a stream of Celtic fatalism, and to brood on a fate that let him finish 310ths of a second off a gold medal -- or to get back on a track and see if he could whittle those three seconds down in four years. He could go back to social running with the bansmore Harriers -- or he could come to America and challenge the world again.

YEARS OF running on Villanova's outdoor board track had made Eamonn the undisputed bull of the woods, master of the indoor track, or, as track writers had it, Chairman of the Boards. He put up the world indoor record at 3: 52.4, prompting an Irish journalist to remark, "If the Olympics were moved indoors, we could have another gold medal at last."

For Eamonn, the Olympics just may have been moved to the moon. On the surface, he would seem to be the safest of world-class runners in the boycott controversy. The head of the International Olympic Committee, Lord Killanin, is an Irishman, nee William Morris. "That cuts no ice with the Irish," notes Eamonn sadly.

With Wellmann out of the running, John Walker plagued with calf injuries, Ivo Von Damme tragically killed in a traffic accident, and Africa's Filbert Bayi toying with the notion of running the 5,000 meters, and the rest of the top 1,500-meter contenders either boycotting or about to boycott, Eamonn wouldn't even need the boards to win at Moscow. "But," he gloomily admits, "the Irish government is applying pressure on the Irish Olympic Committee." The chances of Ireland being united for four minutes again this summer appear dimming.

This Sunday, at the UCLA Pepsi Invitation track meet at Drake Stadium on the Los Angeles university campus, Eamonn will don the green and gold of Ireland once again and meet up with four other forlorn athletes for whom Moscow is as long gone a dream as Camelot. Steve Scott, who chased Britain's Sebastian Coe to his record 3: 49 mile at Oslo, running 3: 51.2 himself, Craig Masbach who was third to Scott and Coe in 3: 52.1, Don Paige, who is the current NCAA mile champion, and Steve Lacy, who ran a 3: 54.7 indoors, will run in a great What-Might-Have-Been race. If Eamonn wins, and then doesn't go to the Olympics, it may turn out to be worse than finishing fourth. And, there'll be no loud singing in the public houses along the Liffey this summer and the banshees will be heard as usual in that troubled land.

Tisdale homer paces Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Fred Tisdale belted a two-run homer and rapped two singles to highlight a 14-hit Arkansas offensive assault Thursday that gave the Travelers a 8-5 Texas League win over Shreveport. San Antonio thrashed Midland 8-2 in another Texas League game and Jackson rolled over Tulsa 10-4. El Paso at Amarillo was postponed because of wet grounds.

Tisdale's shot into the right field screen gave Arkansas a 2-0 lead in the first inning. The Travelers added a run in the second.

Shreveport pulled to within one at 3-2 in the third inning, but Arkansas added a run in the fourth, three in the fifth, and one in the eigth.

Shreveport scored its final two runs in the bottom of the eighth.

Arkansas reliever Jeff Little, 1-0, got the victory, which kept the Travelers on top of the Eastern Division with a 14-0 record. Scott Budner, 0-3, took the loss for Shreveport.

Paul Cacciatori limited Tulsa to four hits in eight innings while his teammates unleashed a 16-hit attack that lifted cellar-dwelling Jackson to a 10-4 romp over Tulsa.

Cacciatori walked four, struck out three and gave up an unearned run en route to his second win against one defeat. Dave Crutcher, 1-2, got the loss. Left fielder Sergio Beltre drove in three runs and scored twice himself and Archie Amerson went three-for-five including a solo homer in the fourth to led the Jackson attack.

the pinnacle of men's tennis'

What's happened to Jimmy Connors? Have a marriage and the experience of becoming a father cooled the fieriest temper in the game and transformed Peck's Bad Boy into a Frank Merriwell honest and true, subdued, ready to regain lost honors while the whole world cheers?

What's happened to Bjorn Borg? Will the frozenvisaged Swede continue to spurn most American tournaments and leave it to McEnroe and Connors to decide between themselves which should be top contender for his throne?

Such are the conundrums as pro tennis faces the decade of the Eighties.

"I'm not thinking of No.2, I'm only interested in No. 1," says a determined Connors, the southpaw court assassin who ruled the sport for five years. "I've had some problems," insists McEnroe. "I'll be okay.'

BORG remains characteristically silent. He hasn't lost a tennis match since Roscoe Tanner beat him in the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open last September. He is indisputably the best. No one else - not Connors, not McEnroe, not Guillermo Vilas, not anybody - is close. This summer he goes after his fifth straight Wimbledon and takes a bride, marry ing Romania's Mariana Simionescu, in a lavish Riviera ceremony.

At age 23, he has the world by the ear-lobe. Meanwhile, Connors and McEnroe are prepared to square off for the second straight week - this time in the finals of the $500,000 WCT Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills.

Last week it was Dallas - the showdown of Lamar Hunt's WCT tour - and Connors was the victor in four sets, rallying to crush "The Kid" with a savage,

Protection of cactus raises legal questions

- When three 12-yearold boys allegedly chopped down 10 century-old saguaro cactuses, they faced charges for the vandalism. But there is no penalty when mining companies bury hundreds of them while developing land, and the different legal treatment is fueling a public controversy over protection for Arizona's state symbol.

Court wants to split its territory

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals wants to split its six-state territory into two separate courts, and its 24 circuit judges have asked Con-, gress to divide the court.

The proposal was an-nounced Wednesday by the Judicial Council for the 5th Circuit. It called for a new autonomous court - the 11th U.S. Cicuit Court of Appeals — to handle Georgia, Ala-bama and Florida from headquarters in Atlanta: There was no estimate in the Judicial Council's announcement of the affect of the split on judicial costs.

There he golfs, sails, fishes and hunts. A favorite indoor hobby is carpentry. Another is sewing — a skill he learned from his father, who came to this country as an immigrant Polish tailor. An immigration official at Ellis Island changed his name from Marciszewski to Muskie.

Muskie has repeatedly described his father as his greatest hero.

"Pa wasn't cranky," he once wrote, "he was just intense. I guess he and I were somewhat alike - he had a temper, but for the most part he controlled it.'

Muskie was born, the second of six children, in the textile mill town of Rumford, Maine and was a quiet, timid pupil in primary school. Some family friends thought he would grow up to be a priest. He was a high school basketball player and a debater at Bates College in Lewiston, Maine.

At age 34 he married Jane Frances Gray, a clerk in the leading dress shop in Waterville, Maine. The Muskies have five children — Stephen, Ellen, Mewlinda, Martha and Edmund Jr. One of Stephen's hobbies is taking pictures of his dad when he finds him relaxed. He took all the pictures on this page.

decent shape

It happened, though, that Carson wasn't in the mood for paying higher tribute. In fact, he wanted to pay less. After 17 years of doing the 90-minute talk show, he felt tired, stifled, perhaps a little bored. He had asked permission a couple of years ago to juice up "Tonight" by going live, but the notion was nixed.

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, FRI., MAY 9, 1980

between Johnny Carson and NBC, it might be asked, who won?

And now, Silverman wanted him to appear on the 90-minute show four times a week? He bolted. He not only refused to increase his number of appearances, he got his lawyers (Henry "Bombastic" Bushkin & Co.) to find an exit for him.

The war erupted, with armies of lawyers on both sides engaged in a weird battle to determine whether Carson's NBC contract (which yielded $3 million annually) was valid.

In the meantime, as war correspondents tried to surmise the progress of the war, Carson had time to think. What was his objective? There was talk about a prime time show, about specials and TV movies, and there was that reported $5 million offer from ABC to do anything he wanted. He began to realize, almost reluctantly, it seemed, the power he wielded.

NBC, for its part, also had time to think. The network that had made a habit of failing in prime time competition, was faced with losing one of its biggest assets because of a tactical blunder.

By late January, when the Moscow Olympics really began to fall apart, the Silverman corps had reason to be desperate over the Carson matter. Silverman was in the middle of his contract with NBC and had yet to perform magic. NBC had held affiliates with the promises of Olympicswrought good times. Losing Carson on top of everything else would not have made this month's meeting with the affiliates a fun party.

Fortunately for NBC, Carson had decided what he wanted to win in this contest. After causing the big stir by declaring he wanted out, it occurred to Carson that he didn't really want to leave "Tonight" at all. He just needed some excitement, some change.

Why would a guy who makes $3 million a year (an estimated $4.5 million in his new pact, by the way), a guy who makes another $12 million in nightclubs, leave a job that almost anybody else in TV would kill to have? To do TV specials or TV movies?

Miss Hartley, as she approaches her 40th birthday, finally is breaking away from what she calls "my frigid doctor roles."

She heads an all-star cast in "The Love Tapes," which airs Friday night on ABC. She recently fin-ished a theatrical movie and is developing movies for her own production company.

"The Love Tapes" is about the pairing of couples through computers and video tapes. The story in-volves a number of couples in a two-hour movie that is obviously a series pilot.

Hartley plays an independent and opinionated lawyer, and she is matched with Martin Balsam, a businessman whose wife has left him.

"Our relationship goes deeper than most of the others," she said. "The stuff that Martin and I do -Oh, God I'm now doing middle-aged lovers! Marty comes up to my navel and is kind of pudgy, but he has a sexy charm."

Miss Hartley, who stands 5-foot-8½, sometimes has had a problem finding leading men taller than she is. She was a frequent guest on "Gunsmoke" during its long run and was thankful that James Arness towered over her. So does Garner, and last fall she went a round with him as a guest on "The Rockford Files.'

On "The Incredible Hulk," she played the bride of Bill Bixby. She said, "Bill is tiny. I felt like his mother. I was heavier then because I'd just had a baby — and he'd just lost 30 pounds." Miss Hartley is only now finding great success as an actress, despite an auspicious start in movies 18 years ago. That was in "Ride the High Country," a classic Western directed by Sam Peckinpah.

She should have been on her way, but a routine insurance medical examination for her next movienearly ruined her career and her health. A doctor incorrectly diagnosed a minor ailment as hepatitis and undertook a radical method of treatment.

LOUNGE

She lost the role and didn't work for a year. She later landed a part in the ABC series "Peyton Place," during what she called her "frigid-wife, frigid-doctor period." That soon turned into "my plain-passive-sister-always-loses-the-guy-to-myprettier-sis ter period."

At one point Miss Hartley quit acting to become a saleswoman in boutiques and stores. She starred briefly with Richard Mulligan in the line.

NBC comedy series "The Hero."

Thanks to the resurgence in her career, she has just finished starring with Adam Arkin in a zany comedy called "Proper Channels." She has her own production company and is preparing four or five movies for independent production. She credited her newfound success to the commercials, which she said did three things for her.

"They gave me visibility - without doing a series, which I refuse to do now because of my family," she said. "I get just the right amount of visibility. It's had an extraordinary effect on women's image. Here is a woman who doesn't take any guff from a man.

"It's given me security. I don't have to take every job that comes along. And finally, it's show that I have a sense of humor. It's so nice to play funny roles after all those frigid doctor-frigid wife parts."

Miss Hartley, who's married to director Patrick Boyriven and has two children, is philosophical about her late success.

"I was so young," she said. "I'm so much readier now. Even getting the Emmy at 39 - it's like going to the moon. You're out of touch for about four days. If you don't have a head on your shoulders it can ruin

"I have a solid base now. But at 21 - how could I have handled it? Whatever is going to happen to me - and I feel a great deal is going to happen - I'm glad it's happening now."

Good movie books for spring reading

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Movie books for spring reading:

"My Side Of The Road" recounts the life story of Dorothy Lamour, the beauty in the sarong who proved the perfect foil for Bing Crosby and Bob Hope in their seven journeys down those famous roads.

She was born Mary Leta Dorothy Slaton in New Orleans on a December day in 1914. Later she took the name of her stepfather, Lambour.

She was singing with the dance band of Herbie Kay (whom she later married) at the Baker Hotel in Dallas when a sign maker misspelled her name. Said Kay: "You know something, that looks pretty good. Let's keep it that way."

Writes Miss Lamour: "Such a simple statement changed my whole life. 'Dorothy Lamour' has 13 letters in it, and 13 seemed to be my favorite number. I even signed my contract with Paramount on the 13th after I had done a screen test on the 13th. (Superstitious? Not me).'

"A View From A Broad" tells of the travels of a more recent singer-actress. Bette Midler is as uninhibited in a book as she is on a concert stage. The volume is both handsomely illustrated and R-rated, Midler's wit sparing no target, including herself and several nations.

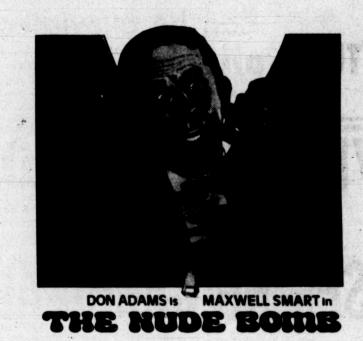

Among her observations:

"There is no food in Australia. Not as we know it. The natives do, of course, on occasion put matter to mouth, but one cannot possibly call what they ingest

DALLAS (AP) -Texas International Airlines, caught in an industry-wide profit decline, will reduce its discount ticket prices - which it calls "Peanut Fares" to 50 percent of normal coach fares, chairman Frank Lorenzo has announced.

"You didn't choose me"

You didn't choose Me! I chose you! I appointed you to go and produce lovely fruit always, so that no matter what you ask for from the Father, using My name, He will give it to you. I demand that you love each other,

For you get enough hate from the world! But then, it hated Me before it hated you.

The world would love you if you belonged to it; but you don't—for I chose you to come out of the world, and so it hates you.

Do you remember what I told you? 'A slave isn't greater than his master!' So since they persecuted Me, naturally they will persecute you. And if they had listened to Me, they would listen to you!

The people of the world will persecute you because you belong to Me, for they don't know God who sent Me.

They would not be guilty if I had not come and spoken to them. But now they have no excuse for their sin.

Anyone hating Me is also hating My Father.

If I hadn't done such mighty miracles among them they would not be counted guilty. But as it is, they saw these miracles and yet they hated both of us-Me and My Father.

This has fulfilled what the prophets said concerning the Messiah, 'They hated Me without reason.'

But I will send you the Comforter—the Holy Spirit, the source of all truth. He will come to you from the Father and will tell you all about Me.

And you also must tell everyone about Me, because you have been with Me from the beginning.

Dry, itchy skin can be alleviated

Dear Dr. Solomon: My skin frequently becomes dry and itchy. Is this something I must learn to live with or can something be done about it?--Peg.

Peg. Dear Peg: While the degree of dryness of one's skin differs from person to person, there are steps you can take to alleviate the condition. Dr. Lowell Goldsmith, professor of dermatology at Duke University, says many people do not realize that it is water, not oil, that keeps skin moist. Thus, anything that removes water from the skin will promote dryness.

Soaps and detergents, for example, can dissolve small molecules of fat, amino acids and other acid substances that help retain water in the skin. It is important, therefore, to rinse off all soap after bathing. Dr. Goldsmith recommends blot-drying rapidly after a bath, and then using a commercial skin conditioning cream. A person with a dry skin would probably benefit more from baths than from showers, since a bath would provide longer exposure to water. Adding oil to the water, however, may do more harm than good since it tends to make the tub slippery, creating a possible hazard. In addition, most of the oil eventually goes down the drain instead of remaining on the skin.

ways possible. A patient may even have completely normal results on physical examination and resting electrocardiogram, and still suffer from angina. The physician may then resort to an exercise test in an effort to make the diagnosis, but this may not be conclusive either.

In such cases, coronary arteriograms -- that is, X-ray movies of the coronary arteries after a dye has been injected -- may be necessary to show the diseased coronary arteries.

Dear Dr. Solomon: When I was quite a bit younger, my mother used to use mineral oil as a laxative. Is there any reason it is not being used today?--Sid

Dear Sid: Mineral oil is still used as

Necrologist keeps Doomsday Book

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) -

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — In a town that has a thing about death — Forest Lawn, "The Loved One," doggie mortuaries and all that sort of funeral thing — Evelyn Mack Truitt is happy as a grave digger with a new shovel whistling the March of Saul.

People call her up late at night with the news of a famous one's sudden demise or rumors of a six-car pile-up out on the Freeway that may have claimed the life of a forgotten silent screen cowboy or his horse, which would be suspicious information because horses don't hang in there that long.

Aging members of the movie colony, however, tend to cross the street at her approach or hide behind their menus when she enters a restaurant. By day, Evelyn Truitt is a space age career woman, a vice president for corporate services of the Signal Companies, one of those conglomerates that is into everything from Mack trucks and aerospace engineering to the California Angels baseball team.

By night and every available spare weekend, Evelyn Truitt is movieland's leading necrologist, keeper of the Doomsday Book, now in the death throes of putting together her third edition of "Who Was Who on the Screen," a major reference work on departed screen personalities. The Truitt necrology of Tinsel

The Truitt necrology of Tinsel Town, covering more than 9,000 obituaries back to 1905, is found on the shelves of most film libraries and on the coffee tables of film buffs and movie fans around the globe. Over lunch at La Scala on Santa Monica Boulevard, which all the guide books say is a gathering place for live movie stars, there was noth-for five movie stars, there was nothing mournful or lugubrious about author Truitt, although her gaze may have fallen a trifle speculatively on a venerable character actor dining nearby, as if mentally measuring him for a future paragraph.

She chatted cheerfully about movie tough guys and villains like Edward G. Robinson, Peter Lorre, Sydney Greenstreet and Bela Lugosi, all of whom died natural, non-violent deaths. Lugosi, by the way, so identified himself with Count Dracula he asked to be buried in his red satinlined vampire cape.

But poor Albert Dekker, whose movie career went from "The Great Garrick" in 1937 to the "The Wild Bunch" in 1969, was found with the shower curtain cord trussed around his neck behind a bathroom door locked from the inside.

"The coroner called it accidental death," said Vice President Truitt, who set aside his verdict in quotations and parenthesis by way of inferring her scepticism in her master work. "In the case of Marilyn Monroe,"

she added, "I listed the death as a t suicide but added a question mark." Somerset Maugham, Sen. Everett Dirksen and Picasso all joined the biographical ranks in "Who Was Who on the Screen" because at one time or other in their careers they did appear in a film.

Truitt's death lists are open to any star, supporting actor or actress, bit player, stuntman or stuntwoman and animal star who actually appeared on the movie screen, whether in feature, short or serial. Maugham, who wrote a number of screen plays of his own novels and short stories, qualified by appearing as narrator in "Trio," a full length film based on three of his stories.

Dirksen, the Republican senator from Illinois with the organ-like voice and leonine profile of a retired matinee idol, appeared in a 1969 film called "The Monitors."

Picasso actually appeared in two films, "La Vie Commence Demain" (Life begins Tomorrow) in 1952 and "Testament of Orpheus" in 1962.

Necrologist Truitt draws the line at film made for TV, although those later shown abroad in movie houses may cause her to have second thoughts here. Porno films also caused her some soul searching, but she decided to include departed practitioners of that controversial art form as performers in "cinema verite."

Lunch with a corpse collector might not be everyone's cup of formaldehyde, but it does evoke a fascinating thanatopsis of theatrical trivia, especially where filmdom's animal stars are concerned.

Tony, Tom Mix's horse, lived to the ripe old age of 33, with a career that stretched from "Four Big Stakes" in 1922 to "My Pal the King" a decade later. Trigger, Roy Roger's Palamino, also lived to be 33.

Petsy, the dog with the cosmetic-ally applied ring around his eye in the Our Gang comedies, also played Tige in the Buster Brown comedies. Peter the Great, another famous canine celluloid performer, was shot to death in 1926 by a perpetrator, as the police say, mad at its owner. Later Lassie films used the platoon system: a different dog to weep, nuzzle, jump fences, rescue maidens tied to the railroad tracks, whatever the script called for. Several of these Lassies actually were laddies. Flipper, the wonder dolphin of screen and television, succumbed to a heart attack at age 22 in Grassy Key, Fla.

A movie buff since her pre-school days, Evelyn Mack Truitt got the idea for her reference work when a relative died and bequeathed her several scrapbooks of clippings about old silent screen stars. She haunted the back issues of Variety and the Hollywood Reporter to list every movie ever made by the deceased thespians marshaled in alphabetical order on her mountains of 3 x 5 cards. High school and college students were called in to help with the research.

For a hobby, when not engaged in corporate vice-presidential affairs or communing with the dead, she collects old movie posters, the standard 27 x 48 inch size on display outside bygone movie palaces.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had a complete physical examination after experiencing some chest pain while playing tennis. My doctor then told me that he "thinks" I had an anginal attack. Why couldn't he "know" whether the pain I described was due to angina?--Herb

Dear Herb: Although angina generally can be diagnosed on the basis of a medical history, this is not ala laxative by some older people and in some nursing homes. However, it can interfere with the absorption of vitamin D. vitamin K and carotene, which is converted by the body into vitamin A.

Dear Doctor Solomon: Good writings oft times are not properly acknowledged. Your recent column about podiatrists was excellent and I want to both thank and congratulate you. The information was not only accurate in every detail but was written in clear terms. You provided a unique service to our profession, given the fact that many providers and patients are not aware of the role of podiatric medicine. -- James E. Baltes, D.P.M., Philadelphia, Pa.

The 11-year-old lowland gorilla, long the prime attraction at the Houston Zoo, died Tuesday of kidney failure and bacterial colitis. He was buried on zoo grounds near his home.

"I thought he was a ham," said zoo director John Werler. "He was one of the biggest attractions at the zoo."

Je-Je, a primate who belonged to an endangered species, entertained the crowds by splashing in the water and occasionally cuffing his mate, Vanilla. The female gorilla
