U.S. concedes Hussein won't play accord role

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter greeted Jordan's King Hussein today, stressing that there is "a great deal in common" between the United States and Jordan but acknowledging differences about the best route to peace in the Middle East.

Chief among those differences is Hussein's refusal to play the role Carter envisioned for Jordan in the Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt.

The disagreement about Camp David is so deep that State Department officials told reporters before Hussein's arrival that they were under no illusions that the king would change his position after meeting with Carter.

Instead, they said, the president simply hoped to reopen the dialog with Hussein that has been disrupted by the trauma of Camp David.

Both leaders chose to emphasize the positive in their public remarks at a White House arrival ceremony.

"This friendship (between the United States and Jordan) has been tested in crisis and it has withstood all tests without damage," Carter said.

He praised Hussein for his "enlightened rule" and for his "commitment to progress" while working at the same time for the "preservation of the traditional values of his people."

Anderson rejects GM heir; Reagan cuts European trip

By the Associated Press

John B. Anderson says he can do without the ideas of a General Motors millionaire as to what's good for John B. Anderson.

Anderson disowned on Monday the repeated efforts by GM heir Stewart Mott to inject himself into the Illinois congressman's independent campaign for president.

Anderson, who most recently was irritated by Mott's declaration to a Massachusetts newspaper that campaign manager Michael MacLeod should be fired, wrote a letter to the Federal Election Commission saying the maverick magnate's efforts in his behalf were not an "authorized activity."

Mott, according to sources who requested anonymity, wanted the manager's job for himself.

"However well-intentioned, Mr. Mott's activities have proven disruptive," Anderson wrote. The letter was an attempt by Anderson to dissuade the FEC from counting Mott's expenditures, including newspaper advertisements, against his campaign.

The Republican nominee-in-waiting, Ronald Reagan, meanwhile courted the editorial boardrooms of the eastern media on Monday and breezed through another "unity dinner" aimed at paying off the debts of his former GOP opponents.

Reagan lunched at Time Magazine and dined at the New York Times before supping yet again at a $500-per-plate fundraiser at New York's Pierre Hotel, where former Texas Gov. John B. Connally extolled him as the best of all campaigners.

The former California governor planned sessions with the Hearst editorial board and with Newsweek Magazine today. Meanwhile, aides disclosed that he had rejected a recommendation by foreign policy adviser Richard V. Allen that he visit Europe after collecting the Republican nomination next month.

Reagan decided he would rather spend that time developing his positions on domestic issues, they said.

In other developments: —A bipartisan group of 10 members of Congress tentatively agreed to help in any way they can to insure Anderson a part in presidential debates this fall.

In Washington, the rival camps of President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy took their battle over the 1980 Democratic platform behind closed doors, with Kennedy forces expecting a drubbing on the first go-round.

A 15-member drafting subcommittee, of which nine members are solid Carter supporters, began work on its first draft of the party platform in executive session. The drafting session follows a round of public hearings that wound up Saturday.

"Obviously, we're going to be outvoted," said Kennedy spokesman Jim Flug.

But one member of the drafting panel, Carter supporter Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., said she thinks the drafting panel can arrive at a consensus document acceptable to both Carter and Kennedy people.

"I'm not approaching it from a biased point of view," she said in an interview. "I'm sure there will be some clearcut differences. There are always controversies. But I think we'll be able to arrive at a consensus that all Democrats running for office can live with and be proud of."

Kennedy aide Steve Schlesinger said the senator's representatives were submitting a detailed platform statement today, but did not believe a consensus was possible. Schlesinger predicted a floor fight at the Democratic National Convention would be necessary to resolve differences.

Carter was represented by Stuart Eizenstat, his domestic affairs adviser.

Flug said that on losing votes, Kennedy forces would seek to amend the document that emerges from the drafting panel when the full 158-member Platform Committee meets publicly this weekend to work on it.

"Thus I don't think there'll be much excitement in the drafting committee, since everything will be fought all over again before the full committee," the Kennedy spokesman said.

In any case, some of the fights will likely end up on the floor of the Aug. 11-14 Democratic Convention in New York City.

"We're not interested in having controversy merely for the sake of having a fight," said Peter Edelman, Kennedy's chief issues adviser. "We would prefer not to. But if it is necessary to pursue our point of view in an adversary way, we will."

The Democratic rivals differ the most on energy and economic issues, with Kennedy favoring wage and price controls, reimposition of price lids on oil and natural gas and a $12 billion anti-recession program to create jobs — positions all strongly opposed by the president.

Although in terms of delegate strength Carter appears to have the Democratic presidential nomination in the bag, Kennedy has vowed to fight on all the way to the convention — both on his own behalf and in hopes of shaping the platform.

Carter submitted a proposed 75-page platform to the Democratic National Committee last week that offered a continuation of the policies his administration has backed and advanced over the past four years.

The DNC staff prepared a skeleton platform, consisting in part of planks left over from the 1976 Democratic platform and issues on which Carter and Kennedy agree as a starting point for today's meeting.

Midland residents asked to reduce use of water

Midlanders who prefer to drink water or bathe instead of watching the H2O run out onto the lawn should cut back on using water for lawns and other excess uses starting Wednesday, according to Fred Baker, director of public works.

Two water lines along North Midland Drive are being lowered as part of a new drainage facility. This work, however, will cut off use of one line and will reduce water service through Sunday, Baker said.

"We would like to emphasize there is no shortage of water. It's merely a short interruption to a transmission line that makes this request necessary," stated a release from the City Manager's office.

With a 33-inch water line out of service during the installation, there will be a reduction in the amount of water that can be pumped into the city's distribution system. Residents have been consuming 24 to 25 million gallons of water per day recently, and the city can only pump a maximum of 20 to 23 million gallons of water.

Baker said original plans called for the line to be installed in the winter when water consumption is down. But "the best laid plans" often go awry, he added.

The drainage facility that is being installed to accommodate storm water in the northwest drainage channel is part of an upgrading of Midland Drive between Wadley Avenue and Loop 250 being funded by the Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The drainway crosses Midland Drive about halfway between Midkiff and FM 868. Drainage structures at this point will be 4½ feet by 7 feet, 9 inches.

Two large water transmission lines — one 30 inches and the other 33 — are being lowered to construct the drainage facility at the proper level, stated the release.

These lines transport the city's distribution system water from the water treatment plant and the Paul Davis well field.

A contract to lower these lines, concrete steel cylinder fittings had to be made specifically for this job, said Baker. These fittings finally have been received.

Infant goes behind prison bars

Three-week-old joins his inmate mother

(AP) — Three-week-old Marc Stephen Miller, bundled in a bright yellow blanket, has moved into the state prison here after a circuit court ruling that a baby's place is with his mother — even if she's behind bars.

Prison officials say more babies may be on the way.

Marc was reunited Monday with a beaming Elizabeth Miller in the lobby of the Florida Correctional Institution for Women.

"It feels wonderful," Miss Miller said as she cuddled the baby.

A prison guard immediately escorted mother and son to a makeshift nursery and cell at the prison hospital.

Prison Superintendent Bill Booth said five other pregnant women are serving time at the facility.

"I think we can handle one mother and one baby at a time," he said. "But if we have more than that we are going to have to make other arrangements."

Miss Miller, 31, who has refused to identify the child's father, was pregnant when she was sentenced in December to five years in prison for grand larceny.

She will be eligible for parole in January 1982. Marc was placed in temporary foster care after he was born May 22 at a hospital in the neighboring central Florida town of Ocala.

The reunion was made possible June 6 when Marion County Circuit Judge Wallace Sturgis granted Miss Miller's petition to keep the child. Welfare officials had argued a prison was a poor environment for a baby and proposed placing him in a foster home until her parole.

"I can find no compelling reason to take the child from his mother," Sturgis ruled. "An infant should remain with his mother if possible."

The ruling was the first under a 1979 state law that allows judges to determine custody in such cases based on the best interests of the child.

"I wanted him to know that I loved him and that I wanted him and that he is the most important thing in my life," Miss Miller said in a recent interview. "He gave me life. I'm a different person now."

Hester Sims, a child welfare worker for the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, described Marc as "a real good baby who sleeps well and eats good."

Mrs. Sims said the reunion was "kind of sad because I just think that a baby needs to be brought up in a home and not a prison."

Other inmates will not be allowed to visit Miss Miller and her baby, Booth said. But the door to their pale green cell will not be locked because of fire regulations, he said.

Under Sturgis' order, Marc will stay with his mother during the "primary care" period of six months. Then Miss Miller will "return to the prison rehabilitation programs while the hospital staff cares for the child."

The mother will be allowed regular visits with her baby, Sturgis said. After one year, the judge will review the case.

Census Bureau needs help

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

A Lubbock-based Census Bureau official was in Midland Monday and issued yet another plea for workers to help with the census follow-up being conducted here.

Mitzi Jordan, district office manager of the Lubbock regional office, said the follow-up procedure to the census is taking so long in Midland and Odessa due to a lack of census workers that preliminary results of the census are being held up from being released to other area cities.

The Lubbock regional office handles census statistics for 30 counties, including Midland County, she said. Preliminary census figures were to be released to the cities in those counties for local review June 27, but due to the holdup in Midland, Odessa and rural Ector County the figures are being withheld.

She said it is policy of the Census Bureau to release figures to all cities at the same time.

"I would say we're three weeks behind and it would take these people that much longer to finish if we didn't get more workers," said Ms. Jordan.

With an additional 100 workers, "we could finish within 10 days," Ms. Jordan noted. At the current rate, however, she would say only that the census probably will take another three weeks.

The census follow-up has been completed elsewhere in the 30-county area — excluding Midland, Odessa and rural Ector County — for about two weeks. "That shows you how far behind in this area we are and not being able to hire people to complete the task" is the cause, Ms. Jordan pointed out.

At the most, only 75 workers have been hired in Midland-Odessa at any one time during the census, she said. But, she noted, about 200 workers were needed here.

The Census Bureau likes to use local people to conduct the enumeration, but has resorted in this area to using Lubbock residents.

Ms. Jordan noted the Census Bureau has advertised in the local media for workers, but only received five responses.

She continues to blame the poor turnout of potential workers here on the low unemployment rate; there just aren't that many Permian Basin residents needing jobs.

Now she's appealing to the civic pride of local residents.

And, Ms. Jordan says, the Census Bureau will continue to conduct testing for workers here. Anyone interested should contact the Texas Employment Commission office in Midland. They also may contact Patsy Phillips, Census Bureau field supervisor, by calling 687-3368.

Young people — those 18 and older — who have at least a high school diploma are urged to seek the positions, she said.

"Surely in a city this large if you make the right contact you could hire that many (100) people," she added.

Meanwhile, the Lubbock regional census office is supposed to be closed Aug. 8. Now, however, Ms. Jordan says she doesn't know when the office will be closed.

Juneteenth festivities to last through weekend

Juneteenth, which is celebrated each June 19 by Texas blacks in commemorating Emancipation Day of 1865, this year is being recognized for the first time as an official Texas holiday.

Juneteenth events in Midland will start Thursday, but will be highlighted over the weekend with a parade, religious services, gospel singing, jazz concerts, plenty of "soul food" and a Black Cultural Exhibit at the Tall City Lions Club Den.

The event recognizes June 19, 1865, when Union Gen. Gordon Granger, commander of Texas following the downfall of the South in the Civil War, announced the President's proclamation that "all Negroes are free."

That celebrated announcement came 2 1/2 years after President Abraham Lincoln had issued the Emancipation Proclamation, which led to the end of slavery in the United States, on Jan. 1, 1863.

"Still, we're not free," jested Juneteenth booster Roosevelt Campbell, "because we can't get off (of work) on the 19th of June. As a matter of fact, they don't even teach about it (Juneteenth) in the schools."

Juneteenth became an official holiday by an Act of the Texas Legislature in 1979. The bill making June 19 a holiday was sponsored by Texas Representative Al Edwards of Houston.

The nights will be mild, however, with lows expected in the upper 60s. Saturday's high of 95 fell far short of the record 105 degrees set in 1945 and short of the expected 100 degrees forecast. The 65-degree low was much warmer than the 1940 record low of 56 degrees.

Clark to open inquiry into U.S. policy in Iran

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, stepping up his attacks on President Carter's Iranian policy, has pledged to open an inquiry into the United States' involvement in Iran if Congress refuses to do so.

Clark, who returned Sunday from a conference in Iran on alleged U.S. intervention during the regime of the deposed shah, called for a Congressional inquiry as part of a nine-point plan for what he termed the "Iranian solution."

"Every aggressive action we've taken has prolonged the hostage crisis," he told reporters here Monday.

Meanwhile, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters in Washington that President Carter is still concerned over Clark's trip, which violated a presidential ban on travel to Iran. The delegation to the Iran-sponsored conference was unauthorized and Carter has said he would like to see Clark prosecuted.

"The question of whether to ignore it involves questions of national security and foreign policy," Powell said.

The president has not formally told the Justice Department to prosecute, but if a decision is made to do so, "by definition it is a decision in which the president concurs," Powell said.

The Justice Department has not indicated whether Clark will be prosecuted. The maximum penalty would be 10 years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

Clark's Iranian plan, published in the current issue of The Nation magazine, includes a call for the United States to renounce intervention by all nations in the affairs of others, to support the right of nations to seek to extradite wrongdoers, to enact a charter to assure control of the CIA and to repent for the violent deaths of 70,000 Iranian people.

Clark, an attorney general under Lyndon Johnson, also urged the government to end economic sanctions against Iran, to stop harassing Iranian students in the United States, to give thanks that no Americans have been killed in Iran in the past 17 months, and to pray for the hostages and for Iran to "find a new fulfillment."

Tanker leaking liquified gas in freight yard

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — A railroad tank car containing 30,000 gallons of liquified petroleum gas began leaking today at a freight yard in a densely populated area of this small city and police cordoned off the area.

Officials planned to unload the gas and said there was very little danger of an explosion.

Police Chief William E. Warner said a railroad inspector noticed the smell of the leaking fuel about 2:30 a.m. as he made his rounds at the freight yard about a half mile from the center of this town of 15,000 residents.

Witness says doctor was worried about tax misuse

By ED TODD Staff Writer

A prosecution witness in the tax-evasion trial of Dr. Austin B. Tibbetts, a physician-surgeon who managed Lee Optical in Midland, testified Monday in federal court that Tibbetts told him he was not paying income taxes for he was concerned about the alleged misuse of tax dollars by the federal government.

The jury trial is being tried before federal Judge Lucius Buntun.

"He volunteered... that he had some concern about how our tax dollars are being spent and had come upon a way of not paying some of those tax dollars," testified Don Luttrell of Fort Smith, Ark.

Luttrell, who operated Break One-Nine radio shop near Dr. Tibbetts' optical office at 2211 W. Texas Ave. in the mid-1970s, said that the eye doctor had invited him to attend a tax-protest meeting sponsored by the United Tax Action Patriots.

"He (Tibbetts) was not too concerned about the consequences (of not paying taxes) at that time," Luttrell said, "because he had proof of the legality" of a tax-protest 1040 Form. Instead of reporting earned income and deductions to the Internal Revenue Service, the form cited court cases and references to constitutional law.

Officers arrest man FBI wants in Oklahoma

A 22-year-old man, wanted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Oklahoma City, was arrested Monday night at the Rodeway Inn here, after telling officers his brother was wanted.

He remained in City Jail early today.

At 9:05 p.m., officers were dispatched to 3601 W. Wall Ave. on a disturbance. When they arrived, a motel employee said two men had been fighting in one of the rooms, and he pointed out one of the men who had been involved in the fight.

The man identified himself to police officers, using a social security card and birth certificate. He told officers he and his brother had been fighting, and that they should check his brother because he was wanted by law enforcement officials.

Officers checked both men's names and found that the first, the one who accused his brother, was wanted in Oklahoma City for interstate transportation of counterfeit securities.

Kermit sinkhole still growing

Big Spring man held in shooting

BIG SPRING — A 19-year-old Big Spring man has been arrested by police in connection with a shooting that occurred early today in the Northcrest Apartments here during which another man was injured, police reported.

An argument between the two men resulted in a shootout, police reported.

Police were called in about 1 a.m. after Eugene White, 20, had been shot in the lower left arm. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring where he was listed in stable condition this morning.

Detective Sgt. George Quintero said White and another man from the apartments were arguing when both men pulled out pistols. Police said they haven't filed charges against the 19-year-old suspect.

It was not known what the two were arguing about, the detective added.

authorities say cracks appeared about 150 yards outside an oil tank farm.

"We've found cracks about 150 yards from the tank farm," said a Winkler County Sheriff's spokesman. "This would indicate the ground in this area is very unstable and eventually may drop into the crater."

An oil well owned by Petro Lewis Corp. was capped with cement when the crater came within 300 feet of it. A number of Shell Oil Co. tanks also are nearby but were not yet in an immediate danger.

Ms. Moore estimated the abyss measured about 250 yards by 400 yards.

"Is it smart to save at two places?"

Ask the place that knows

Q I've always done my banking at one place and my savings at another because the interest rates paid at this other institution were higher. Yet, I read today that these higher rates don't mean all that much. I'm confused. Is my strategy right or wrong for me and my family's good?

A Chances are you've overestimated the value of you of the "higher interest" offered by the other financial institution. For example, Federal law permits some institutions to pay 1 1/2% more interest. If you have, say $1,000, in a savings account at one of these institutions, you earn as little as $2.50 more per year (plus perhaps a few extra pennies if interest is compounded). This $2.50 has to be compared to the cost of visiting this other institution many times during the year, reconciling different statements, and dealing with different people. A lot of people are discovering that the added costs are not worth the small difference in interest. Before you make your decision, talk to a Professional Savings Counselor at The Savings Place.

Banks urged to join Chrysler loan program

DETROIT (AP) — A handful of banks are being pressured to join Chrysler Corp.'s bailout plan for fear that any holdout could threaten to sink the company, officials say.

"Everybody is talking to them — other banks, the Loan Guarantee Board staff, we at Chrysler," said a Chrysler executive, who asked not to be identified, on Monday.

Under the agreement by which Chrysler hopes to continue its operation, all of its 400 lenders must agree to participate in the congressionally-approved loan guarantee plan. The plan, calling for the issuance of up to $1.5 billion in federally backed debentures, is primarily a package of interest rate concessions and payment deferrals on the part of the lenders.

However, some banks reportedly believe the plan only delays the inevitable Chrysler bankruptcy.

"We're just not interested in it and haven't been from the start," said David W. Knapp, president of the American National Bank and Trust Co. of Rockford, Ill. "Their (the other lenders') crystal ball tells them this (the loan guarantee) solves Chrysler's problems. Mine doesn't."

Knapp said his bank is just as likely to collect the $525,000 Chrysler owes it by suing as by going along with the loan package. American National seized $125,000 from a Chrysler account in April to reduce its debt.

Chrysler is counting heavily on the loan program. Last week it stopped paying most of its suppliers until it receives the $500 million that the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board conditionally approved on May 10.

Lloyd R. French

Lloyd R. French, 75, 1408 Community Lane and longtime Permian Basin oil pioneer, died this morning at his residence following a lengthy illness.

Graveside services will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Greenleaf Cemetery in Brownwood with the Rev. Sam Hulsey, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Midland, officiating. Services will be directed by Morelock-Funeral Home of Brownwood. Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home handled local arrangements.

French was born Aug. 14, 1904, in Brownwood, where he was reared and attended school. He moved to Odessa, and shortly afterwards founded French Tool and Supply of Odessa. He served as president for many years. He was actively involved in the oil business in Alaska. French moved to Midland in 1950. Recently he was honored by having the oil show dedicated to him. He was the first president of the Permian Basin Oil Show, and one of the co-organizers of the Midland Petroleum Club and of Odessa Country Club.

Survivors include his wife, Elizabeth Williams French; two sons, L.R. French and Kirk French, both of Midland; a daughter, Mrs. Alex (Julie) Patterson of San Antonio; a brother, Joe French of Odessa; eight grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

O.C. Doggett

SWEETWATER — Overton Cleo Doggett, 52, of Midland and formerly of Sweetwater, died Saturday in a San Antonio hospital.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the First Apostolic Tabernacle Church in Sweetwater. Burial will be in Sweetwater Cemetery directed by McCoy Funeral Home.

Doggett was born April 11, 1928, in Blackwell. He married Mary Ann Rogers on Aug. 10, 1952, in Bronte. He was an auto parts serviceman and a veteran of the Korean War.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Ann Doggett of Midland; a daughter, Carolyn Ricks of Austin; two sons, Melvin Doggett and Ronnie Doggett, both of Midland; three sisters, Pearl McFaul and Alice Baker, both of Wichita, Kan., and Dorothy Thomas of Marlin; five brothers, Clarence Doggett of Quana, Wayland Doggett of Grapevine, Oran Doggett of Sweetwater, and John Doggett and Bob Doggett, both of Midland; and a granddaughter.

Body found in isolated cabin

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Sheriff's investigators had no suspects in the execution-style slaying of a 74-year-old man whose body was found sprawled in the doorway of his isolated lakeside cabin.

Hunt County Sheriff's Deputy Rocky Bridges found the body of Sherod Luther Hart while on routine patrol Monday afternoon.

No weapon was found at the cabin, located on Club Lake about 10 miles south of here, but the one-room structure had been ransacked, investigators said.

Police probe fatal fall

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Police are investigating the death of a research scientist who fell from the Cancer Cell Center at Roswell Park Memorial Institute.

Dr. David Pressman, 63, a former associate director of the institute and nationally known researcher, was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital after the fall Monday, officials said.

Chief Leo J. Donovan of the police homicide bureau said Pressman had left at least two notes, but he did not know the contents.

Further details were not available immediately. Pressman came to the Buffalo cancer hospital in 1954 from the Sloan Kettering Memorial Institute in New York City. He was considered an expert in immunology, and had won many awards for his work.

What is Meadowpark?

Meadowpark, a project of Citizens Savings & Loan Association, is a Planned Unit Development of attractive patio home and townhome clusters. Meadowpark will consist of up to 200 attached and detached patio homes and attached townhomes on nearly 60 acres in north Midland. The development is inside the city of Midland and receives all municipal services, including police and fire protection, and water and sewer services.

Meadowpark Owners' Association

Common recreation facilities and park areas are managed by the Meadowpark Owners' Association. Purchasing a patio home or townhome on your own lot automatically makes you a member of the Meadowpark Owners' Association. The Association provides management and maintenance of the common park areas, playgrounds, tennis courts, and swimming pool with cabana, bathhouse and deck area. Homeowners are assessed a monthly maintenance fee.

A low density development.

Meadowpark residents will enjoy a great deal of room and privacy because of the very low density of the development. A low density of 2.5 residences per gross acre allows for privacy. (Many fine residential developments average more than four residences per gross acre.)

The cluster arrangement of Meadowpark restricts traffic flow on residential streets. On-street parking is prohibited, so that streets become areas for family activities.

Patio Homes and Townhomes

Meadowpark residences range in size from a two-bedroom townhome with 1,576 square feet, up to a four-bedroom patio home with 3,600 square feet livable. A total of 17 floor plans are available in one and two story designs, or a buyer may employ his own architect/builder.

As a Meadowpark homeowner, you own the lot on which your home is located, all of the improvements on the lot, and an interest in the common areas and facilities.

Meadowpark homes offer two or more enclosed patios, affording a relaxed, suburban lifestyle. General landscaping includes entrances off of FM 868 (proposed Loop 250) and North "A" Street, berms for noise and visual barriers, trees, ground cover and grass. Clusters of live oaks and red oaks will be used throughout, and poplar and flowering trees will be used at various locations.

Each Meadowpark residence is designed as an energy efficient home and will meet Texas Electric Service Company's strict "E-OK" rating.

What does it cost?

Patio homes and townhomes start in the low eighties and range up to $150,000. Of course, you may request additional features in planning with your builder which may affect the final sales price.

Citizens Savings & Loan Association serves as both developer and permanent lender, and you may wish to visit with one of our loan officers about interim financing and permanent mortgage for your Meadowpark home. We will be pleased to supply a list of reputable builders who will execute your selected Meadowpark plan.

Where is Meadowpark?

Meadowpark is located on 59.91 acres northeast of the intersection of North "A" Street and FM 868 (proposed Loop 250). Nearby are newly developing shopping centers and a regional mall, Midland College, schools and Midland Air Park. Country clubs are close by as well.

Transmitting signals

A Congress awakening from the dreamworld of detente now has begun to take some positive steps in terms of military preparedness.

Those steps will take the United States closer to security in a world threatened by hostilities and unrest.

For too many years now the Congress has been sinking in a pool of false beliefs about Soviet intentions, cutting back military spending, allowing the draft machinery to be dissolved. We have suffered the consequences of our own distaste for war and the instruments of war.

Perhaps the Congress is turning slightly hawkish once again. Only last week it approved the 1981 federal budget, a budget that calls for $153.7 billion in defense spending.

That is a record peacetime defense increase and is $3.2 billion more than President Jimmy Carter had requested.

And the Congress is moving toward renewing peacetime draft registration. Under the funding measure now in the Congress, an estimated four million young men between the ages of 19 and 20 would be required to register for the draft although they would not be required immediately to submit to physical examinations or be issued draft cards.

What the Congress has done by taking these steps is to assure the Soviet Union — and the United States' other potential adversaries — that this nation will not lie back idly while aggressions are mounted against other free nations in the world.

We are transmitting signals to the Soviet Union — subtle though they be — that we do not condone their activities and that we are not afraid of confrontation, even though we do not want it.

We believe these are positive signals; these are the signals that should have been sent long ago before the credibility of the Carter administration was eroded and the respect for the United States' leadership role in the world undermined.

The people of the United States are not "war mongers." We do not pick fights. But neither do we allow ourselves to be pushed into a corner just for the sake of avoiding conflict.

Under the current leadership we have transmitted negative signals far too long. A mistaken impression has been given the Russians of the intestinal fortitude of Americans.

Now, perhaps, that trend is being reversed and the true signal is coming through loud and clear.

It's important to avoid 'information overload'

A person who wishes to survive the coming days of crisis with a reasonable amount of sanity will have to learn how to avoid information overload.

Information overload occurs when you are so bombarded with information, some of it conflicting and contradictory, that your poor old brain just develops static. Clear thought becomes impossible. Confusion and apathy set in, and you begin to function less effectively.

It is a side-effect of the communications revolution which is yet to be fully understood, let alone analyzed, because it is still in progress. But follow yourself through a normal day and think how much information is poured into your brain. Television and radio talk to you at an average rate of 120 words a minute. Your newspaper contains anywhere from the equivalent of one to four novels in terms of numbers of words. You can neither walk nor drive without seeing signs. The plain brown wrapper has become extinct; zillions of containers are plastered with information.

But not only has the volume of information increased, it has been accelerated. You can learn of a rescue attempt in Iran before the helicopters' engines have cooled. Long before the participants had returned to the U.S. and had time to reflect, you were bombarded with special reports, bulletins, TV specials, special sections of the newspapers — all filled with reports, interviews, commentaries, opinions, speculation, analysis, etc. Thanks to the new technology, the pace and demands of news now runs faster than the events being reported.

This is a key concept in learning to avoid information overload: There is more "news" than there are news-worthy events. You see, we get locked in by tradition and economics. A daily newspaper must publish every day whether anything really significant has occurred or not. Broadcast news is in the same predicament.

You would be amazed and probably angry if you picked up your newspaper and there on the front page was a single headline: "Nothing really important happened yesterday." Yet, in reality, there are a lot of days when nothing really important happens. Consequently, we have devised strategies for dealing with such days.

One strategy is to stretch out the few stories we do have. We report an event. Then we report reaction to the event. Then we sometimes report reaction to the reaction. Then we analyze the event. And, finally, we review the event.

Another strategy we employ is to make use of the relativity of news. If, on the same day, there is a crisis close at hand and a crisis in a distant place, we would tell you about the close crisis and very little about the distant crisis. But, if things are quiet in our immediate area, we will tell you a lot about the distant crisis. If you don't understand what we are doing, you might get the impression that the world is in a state of continuing crisis.

So one way to guard against information overload is to learn about the mechanics and customs of the news business so that you will understand that news is, by definition, a reflection of only a narrow band on the broad spectrum of reality.

Another way is to become more selective in admitting information. One man said it is more important to learn what not to read than it is to learn speed reading. The beauty of a newspaper is that it's a smorgasbord — you don't have to eat it all. You don't have to watch quickie-TV specials which are usually just a rehash of the breaking news with a few banal comments tossed in. You don't have to listen to the idle chatter of disc jockeys. You don't have to read junk mail.

Become more selective in what you read and listen to and you'll find yourself calming down and your own thinking becoming more clear. You can't control the generation of information, but you still control the switch on the receiving end.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, June 17, the 169th day of 1980. There are 197 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: in 1972, a break-in was discovered at the Democratic Party headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex — the first hint of the scandal that would topple the Nixon administration.

On this date: In 1579, Sir Francis Drake landed on the coast of California and claimed it for England.

In 1775, the British defeated American revolutionaries in the battle of Bunker Hill.

In 1967, China announced it had exploded its first hydrogen bomb.

In 1973, U.S. Skylab astronauts broke the record established by Soviet cosmonauts as they began their 24th day in space.

Ten years ago, President Richard Nixon appealed to business and labor to keep the lid on inflation by using restraint in contract negotiations.

Five years ago, the people of the Northern Marianas Islands voted to become American citizens and turn the string of Pacific Islands into a U.S. commonwealth.

Last year, on the eve of the signing of the Salt II Treaty in Vienna, President Carter and Soviet President Brezhnev exchanged toasts, and warnings about non-compliance.

Today's birthday: Entertainer Dean Martin is 63.

Soviet military aid boosts Castro's power

WASHINGTON — While the Polyanas insist that the mass flight of Cuban refugees to the United States shows the moral bankruptcy and economic failure of Fidel Castro's Communist regime, the professionals of the American intelligence community paint an entirely different picture.

Secret assessments presented to Congress by the Defense Intelligence Agency warn that Fidel Castro, far from being at the end of his rope, is at the peak of his military efficiency, thanks to the Soviet Union's military assistance.

The refugee exodus exposes Castro's Cuba as a sham. But his Big Brother in the Kremlin supplies him with the practical support to keep him in control. The 100,000 Cuban refugees may have the principles, but Castro has the firepower.

In fact, humiliating as it seems, the Cubans may have achieved — thanks to their Soviet buddies — a military capability that the United States is still just dreaming about: a rapid deployment force that can be rushed into the breach in brush-fire situations short of an all-out nuclear confrontation.

"The Cuban armed forces have graduated from what was a defensive force to one which, with Soviet assistance, can deploy a large number of troops to distant conflicts on short notice," the CIA briefers recently informed the House subcommittee on inter-American affairs, chaired by Rep. Gus Yatron, D-Pa.

Obviously, no one is suggesting that Fidel Castro can successfully attack the United States — although our intelligence has unearthed information that the Cubans in fact can strike targets in Florida with their Soviet weapons. The point is that Castro has the military muscle to attack his Latin American neighbors on quick notice.

Jack Anderson

Thanks to the Russians, Cuba has "the best-equipped air force in Latin America," according to the Pentagon's intelligence experts. Among the Cuban air force's recently acquired planes is the MIG-23 "Flogger" which, fully loaded, "can reach portions of the Southeastern United States, Mexico, Central America and the western islands of the Caribbean," according to the secret transcript.

In addition, Soviet-supplied AN-26 transports have "the capability to air-drop troops in portions of Florida... all of Jamaica, Haiti and the Bahamas, and most of the Dominican Republic," the CIA analysts warn.

But as anyone who has ever done business with the Soviets knows, the Russian bear hug is not a purely affectionate embrace. It requires a certain quid pro quo.

"The Soviets and the Cubans have consummated what you might call an effective marriage," states a Pentagon report obtained by my reporter Lucette Lagnado, "where the Cubans are providing the troops and the Soviets virtually all the equipment."

As a result, the intelligence analysts have concluded, "the Cubans are now able to serve as an important regional military actor in the Caribbean area."

NIXON'S ADVICE — Richard

INSIDE REPORT:

Publication of 'top secret' documents angered Stennis

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The "top secret" Senate Republican staff study of the failed hostage rescue effort, whose leak to the media threatens a full-scale investigation, contains information publicized by the Iranian government after it found the secret documents and plans in an abandoned U.S. helicopter in the Iranian desert.

The report for the Senate Armed Services Committee was stamped "top secret" even though it mainly rehearsed plans captured in the helicopter. This included spy satellite pictures of designated landing places for the rescue teams plus operational plans.

These documents were widely published around the world. Yet, leak of the study infuriated Sen. John Stennis, the austere armed services committee chairman. He has ordered a thorough investigation to find the leaker.

BUSH'S BACKPEDALING

Foes of a Reagan-Bush ticket claim that George Bush would have trouble repudiating his ludicrous primary campaign charges that Ronald Reagan's tax cut would cost 30 percent inflation, but Reagan insiders scoff at the notion.

"Forget it," one of Reagan's oldest advisers told us. "Bush can backpedal better than anybody. His long suit is loyalty, and he can be loyal to the governor (Reagan)." Thus, Bush is probably No. 1 on the Reagan vice presidential list today. However, some Reagan advisers wonder how many votes Bush will really bring to the ticket. They suspect those votes cannot make up for Reagan not getting on the anti-abortion ticket in New York state if Bush is chosen as vice president. That could cost Reagan New York's 41 electoral votes.

CARTER'S REFUSAL

White House insiders are complaining that the office of Anne Wexler, one of President Carter's senior assistants, put the president in a bad light in his reported refusal to appear before the National Council of Mayors in Seattle the same day as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Perhaps reacting to the bad publicity the president got from his dog-in-a-manger attitude, one of Carter's campaign advisers blamed Wexler's office for mishandling the announcement.

What had been planned, this insider told us, was for the mayors to take full responsibility for disinviting Kennedy with Carter playing no role at all in the decision. Instead, the burden was put on the president, making it appear that Carter was afraid of a back-to-back confrontation with Kennedy.

HARMONIZING KEYNOTER

Gov. William Clinton of Arkansas, the early front-runner to be Democratic convention keynoter, lost out to Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona for one reason: The desire by the Carter high command to placate the defeated but bitter Kennedy forces.

The 34-year-old Clinton is an eloquent voice of the future in the party, but he backed President Carter's re-election bid from the beginning. Udall, in contrast, endorsed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge, but never supported it aggressively enough to cause waves. Witty and graceful, Udall was considered the perfect harmonizer as keynoter.

However, Udall has not been on the warmest of terms with Kennedy lately. After commenting following the June "Super Tuesday" primaries that the battle seemed over, Udall found it difficult to get his calls to Kennedy returned. Kennedy finally got back to him and chatted cordially, but aides say he did not appreciate Udall's remarks.

KEMP'S WIN

The outcome of the budget resolution fight in the House was a victory for Rep. Jack Kemp of New York that revealed his growing influence but did not improve his cool relations with senior Republican congressmen.

At a dramatic closed-door caucus of House Republicans May 27, Kemp delivered a passionate plea to oppose the budget resolution on grounds that it excluded the Republican tax cut. Senior congressmen led by Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio argued that Republicans must vote for a balanced budget with high defense spending, tax cut or no tax cut.

In the vote that evening, House Republicans overwhelmingly followed Kemp, not the regular leadership under Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona. Kemp was vindicated when the final version kept defense spending high and it became obvious the budget would not be balanced anyway. But feelings toward Kemp among many senior colleagues are bitter.

Suit to halt film showing dismissed

HOUSTON (AP) — "Choosing Suicide," the documentary of a woman's decision to kill herself, was broadcast on public television despite a last-minute lawsuit contending the broadcast could lead to more suicides.

The program was shown on Public Broadcasting Service affiliate KUHT-TV Monday after a federal judge threw out the lawsuit and refused to halt the broadcast.

Dr. Thomas Welu, a Harris County assistant medical examiner, filed for a temporary restraining order to stop the nationwide broadcast less than five hours before the program was to air. But U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton said he failed to find federal jurisdiction in the case.

"I'm not in the business of imposing prior restraint on first amendment rights," Singleton said.

Welu, who later appeared in a local panel broadcast immediately following the program, said he feared possible ramifications of the documentary, which he called "propaganda for suicide."

The hour-long film depicted discussions between New York artist Jo Roman, who had discovered she had cancer, and friends who were told of her plans to commit suicide. The 62-year-old artist died June 10, 1979 after washing down 35 seconds with champagne. Her death was not shown on the program, but her husband described her last hours of life.

Some stations in Connecticut, Maine, Mississippi, Ohio, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida and Utah did not broadcast the program.

"People are pretty upset. It's clear they want to see it," said a woman who answered the phone at KUED in Salt Lake City.

Station WCVE in Richmond, Va., which broadcast the program, reported receiving 20-30 calls, many of them from people asking whether the program was being shown. Station employee John Stewart said more calls were in opposition to the program than in support of it.

The complaint filed against PBS, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, affiliate station KUHT-TV and station owner University of Houston sought to halt broadcast of the program nationwide.

"I know what I will say to the Houston audience," said Welu, "but I can't control what will be said nationwide."

PBS attorney Eric Bernthal said the decision to dismiss the case upheld several Supreme Court decisions against prior restraint, the censorship of material before its release.

"What it boils down to is the plaintiff's personal criticism of the program," he said of the complaint.

"Choosing Suicide" is the second PBS program to raise controversy in two months. And KUHT-TV has been involved in court action over both programs.

In early May the station chose not to air "Death of a Princess," the story of a Saudi Arabian princess who was executed, and a federal suit was filed seeking to force KUHT-TV to show the program.

Judge extends order on Gacy book or movie

CHICAGO (AP) — A temporary restraining order has been extended for the second time to prohibit convicted mass killer John W. Gacy from profiting from book or movie rights to his life story until arrangements are made to compensate the families of his victims.

The extension was granted Monday by Judge George A. Higgins of Cook County Circuit Court. He issued the first order May 27.

The order prohibits Gacy from negotiating with author Clyde Burleson of Houston and Burleson's agent, the Goldfarb-Lewis agency of California. An attorney for Gacy said no literary contracts have been signed and "none are imminent."

Higgins issued the order in connection with a suit filed by the family of Robert Piest, one of Gacy's victims. The suit contends it would be "legally and morally unconscionable" for Gacy to profit from stories about his actions.

Gacy's lawyers, Samuel Amirante and Robert Motta, were dropped from the suit when they agreed to inform the judge if they made any money from the story of their involvement in the case.

Gacy, 38, was convicted and sentenced to death earlier this year for the murders of 33 young men and boys.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON: Steam bath doesn't improve health

Dear Dr. Solomon: I usually spend my Sunday mornings at a local community-center. After a swim, I finish up by taking a steam bath. Does the steam bath have any beneficial effect on health? I find it very exhilarating. — Hal

Dear Hal: There is no objective evidence that a steam bath improves either health or physical capacity. Possibly the exhilaration you experience is related to the relief you feel at leaving what for many people would be an uncomfortable environment.

Dear Dr. Solomon: An aunt of mine has been hospitalized with a diagnosis of myasthenia gravis. What causes the disease and what are the chances for recovery? — Ann

Dear Ann: Myasthenia gravis is a neuromuscular disease whose cause is unknown and for which there is no cure. However, a recently developed procedure is showing great promise in its ability to help many of these patients.

Myasthenia gravis is an auto-immune disease — that is, certain antibodies in the patient's own blood plasma attack and weaken muscles.

The condition is characterized by extreme fatigue, with the slightest amount of exertion leaving many patients exhausted. Conventional treatment with drugs has not been very successful.

More recently, doctors have achieved significant results with a technique that removes the harmful antibodies from the bloodstream. The procedure is called plasmapheresis, or plasma exchange. During a typical treatment, about two liters of blood are drawn from the patient and spun in a centrifuge to separate the various components. After the plasma containing the antibodies is spun off, the remaining blood components are mixed with an artificial plasma and returned to the patient. The treatment takes about three hours.

Although some patients experience an immediate reaction to the treatment, the effects usually are not felt until about two days later. After several treatments, when the patient is almost free of the harmful antibodies, drugs are administered to keep the immune system from manufacturing more.

Dr. James F. Howard, a neurologist who oversees the care of myasthenia gravis patients at the North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, warns that despite its success, the treatment should be regarded with caution. He explains that plasmapheresis is not a cure, and that the relief experienced by patients is not permanent. In fact, in some cases muscle weakness has returned only a few weeks after the end of a plasma exchange series.

Hope for myasthenia gravis patients rests on continued research into its cause and treatment. # Suit to halt film showing dismissed

HOUSTON (AP) — "Choosing Suicide," the documentary of a woman's decision to kill herself, was broadcast on public television despite a last-minute lawsuit contending the broadcast could lead to more suicides.

The program was shown on Public Broadcasting Service affiliate KUHT-TV Monday after a federal judge threw out the lawsuit and refused to halt the broadcast.

Dr. Thomas Welu, a Harris County assistant medical examiner, filed for a temporary restraining order to stop the nationwide broadcast less than five hours before the program was to air.

But U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton said he failed to find federal jurisdiction in the case.

"I'm not in the business of imposing prior restraint on first amendment rights," Singleton said.

Welu, who later appeared in a local panel broadcast immediately following the program, said he feared possible ramifications of the documentary, which he called "propaganda for suicide."

The hour-long film depicted discussions between New York artist Jo Roman, who had discovered she had cancer, and friends who were told of her plans to commit suicide.

The 62-year-old artist died June 10, 1979 after washing down 35 Seconals with champagne. Her death was not shown on the program, but her husband described her last hours of life.

Some stations in Connecticut, Maine, Mississippi, Ohio, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida and Utah did not broadcast the program.

"People are pretty upset. It's clear they want to see it," said a woman who answered the phone at KUED in Salt Lake City.

Station WCVE in Richmond, Va., which broadcast the program, reported receiving 20-30 calls, many of them from people asking whether the program was being shown. Station employee John Stewart said more calls were in opposition to the program than in support of it.

The complaint filed against PBS, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, affiliate station KUHT-TV and station owner University of Houston sought to halt broadcast of the program nationwide.

"I know what I will say to the Houston audience," said Welu, "but I can't control what will be said nationwide."

PBS attorney Eric Bernthal said the decision to dismiss the case upheld several Supreme Court decisions against prior restraint, the censorship of material before its release.

"What it boils down to is the plaintiff's personal criticism of the program," he said of the complaint.

"Choosing Suicide" is the second PBS program to raise controversy in two months. And KUHT-TV has been involved in court action over both programs.

In early May the station chose not to air "Death of a Princess," the story of a Saudi Arabian princess who was executed, and a federal suit was filed seeking to force KUHT-TV to show the program.

The extension was granted Monday by Judge George A. Higgins of Cook County Circuit Court. He issued the first order May 27.

The order prohibits Gacy from negotiating with author Clyde Burleson of Houston and Burleson's agent, the Goldfarb-Lewis agency of California. An attorney for Gacy said no literary contracts have been signed and "none are imminent."

Higgins issued the order in connection with a suit filed by the family of Robert Priest, one of Gacy's victims. The suit contends it would be "legally and morally unconscionable" for Gacy to profit from stories about his actions.

Gacy's lawyers, Samuel Amirante and Robert Motta, were dropped from the suit when they agreed to inform the judge if they made any money from the story of their involvement in the case.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Steam bath doesn't improve health

Dear Dr. Solomon: I usually spend my Sunday mornings at a local community center. After a swim, I finish up by taking a steam bath. Does the steam bath have any beneficial effect on health? I find it very exhilarating. — Hal

Dear Hal: There is no objective evidence that a steam bath improves either health or physical capacity. Possibly the exhilaration you experience is related to the relief you feel at leaving what for many people would be an uncomfortable environment.

Dear Dr. Solomon: An aunt of mine has been hospitalized with a diagnosis of myasthenia gravis. What causes the disease and what are chances for recovery? — Ann

Dear Ann: Myasthenia gravis is a neuromuscular disease whose cause is unknown and for which there is no cure. However, a recently developed procedure is showing great promise in its ability to help many of these patients.

Myasthenia gravis is an auto-immune disease—that is, certain antibodies in the patient's own blood plasma attack and weaken muscles. The condition is characterized by extreme fatigue, with the slightest amount of exertion leaving many patients exhausted. Conventional treatment with drugs has not been very successful.

More recently, doctors have achieved significant results with a technique that removes the harmful antibodies from the bloodstream. The procedure is called plasmapheresis, or plasma exchange. During a typical treatment, about two liters of blood are drawn from the patient and spun in a centrifuge to separate the various components. After the plasma containing the antibodies is spun off, the remaining blood components are mixed with an artificial plasma and returned to the patient. The treatment takes about three hours.

Although some patients experience an immediate reaction to the treatment, the effects usually are not felt until about two days later. After several treatments, when the patient is almost free of the harmful antibodies, drugs are administered to keep the immune system from manufacturing more.

Dr. James F. Howard, a neurologist who oversees the care of myasthenia gravis patients at the North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, warns that despite its success, the treatment should be regarded with caution. He explains that plasmapheresis is not a cure, and that the relief experienced by patients is not permanent. In fact, in some cases muscle weakness has returned only a few weeks after the end of a plasma exchange series.

Hope for myasthenia gravis patients rests on continued research into its cause and treatment. Researchers are working to achieve a clearer understanding of the disease, and are seeking to refine the procedure for plasma exchange by finding ways of identifying and extracting only the harmful antibodies from blood plasma.

Jury indicts 11 in school probe case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A special Tarrant County grand jury has indicted 11 people, including five Fort Worth School District employees, on a total of 19 charges of theft, bribery and perjury.

Prosecutors also said the investigation may continue for three or four more weeks.

Randy M. Ingle, school district transportation director, was charged with seven cases of felony theft.

The indictments alleged the 53-year-old Ingle stole several items, including a tractor, trailer, cultivator, shotgun, rifle and two airplane tickets.

Other school officials named in indictments were:

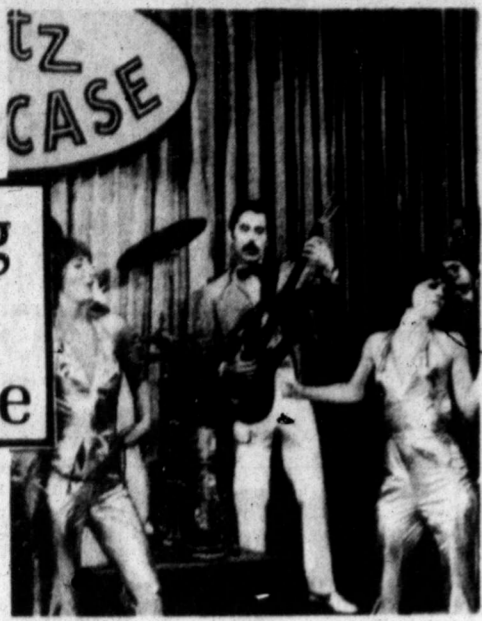

- Metal shop foreman Richard Shelton, indicted on one count of felony theft and one count of aggravated perjury.
- Plumbing shop foreman J.W. Swackhamer, indicted on one count of perjury and one of bribery.
- Lawnmower shop foreman Harvey West, indicted on one count of felony theft.
- Cafeteria machinist repairman Jerry Tate, indicted for aggravated perjury.

Indictments also named six owners or salesmen of companies that sell to the district's maintenance and transportation departments.

School Board President Dr. Richard O'Neal said he expected an emergency meeting of the school board to be called this week to "fine tune" the district's policy for dealing with indicted employees and vendors.

Talent Show

A hilarious toe-tapping look at American history when "Laverne & Shirley" (Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams) and their friends at the brewery swing into action to present the annual talent show at the plant in "Fourth Annual Shotz Talent Show," Tuesday, June 17, on ABC.

The two friends struggle for recognition, financial security and some good, clean fun. Life in the brewery sometimes gets in the way as their male friends try to dazzle them in ways Laverne and Shirley don't always find appealing.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, June 18, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Paul McCartney was born on this date, and you should soon have a song in your heart! Things are starting to look up, and financial gains probably will be better than anticipated. In business, partnerships are unlikely to be as productive as employer/employee relationships. It might be wise to conceal the extent of your ambitions. Those in a position to aid your career aims can feel threatened if you come on too strong! Love relationships flourish so long as you refrain from losing your barbed humor on those nearest and dearest to your heart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be alert to the motives of others. Consult expert about a financial question. Family member can be obstinate regarding a habit of long standing. Show more patience towards loved one's foibles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep all promises even if they involve a lot of self-denial. Routine work is necessary, though boring. Guard against exhaustion by delegating more responsibility. Learn how to get others to give their best effort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): People in authority are sympathetic to your aims. Old friend can provide valuable new insights. Keep in touch with busy relative who has many irons in the fire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Feel free to have a lively exchange of ideas with prominent individual. Teamwork is favored. Look ahead with confidence where special project is concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Now is the time to advance new ideas, methods. Concentrate on improving communication with co-workers. Someone who has been cooperative in the past may act cool towards a special venture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Although routine chores may be boring, stick with them! Resist urge to short-change work in favor of pleasure. Confidential talk opens up new avenues of thought.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Day is apt to be governed by the most practical of considerations. Health and vocation play a part. Hobby could be transformed into a business enterprise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.

21): Finances will benefit from your working closely with an individual behind the scenes. Arrange to spend more time with those you hope to get to know better. Friendship and business mix quite happily this week.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tend to pressing financial matters in the morning. Think about changes in personnel. Someone may challenge your authority. Frank talk clears the air.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tune into the constructive side of associates' thinking. Special invitation may come your way. Consult mate, spouse before making major change in household set-up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be prompt to all meetings, appointments. Higher-up is a stickler for details, accuracy. Be respectful, but not subservient when dealing with influential associate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Act conventionally around conservative co-worker. Hasty words could hurt another's feelings. Do more listening than talking when with loved ones. Offspring may need more supervision.

Usually, the hands that appear in this column have an educational point to make in either the bidding or the play. Today's hand is a departure from this practice and might best be described by that Broadway tune: "Let me entertain you!"

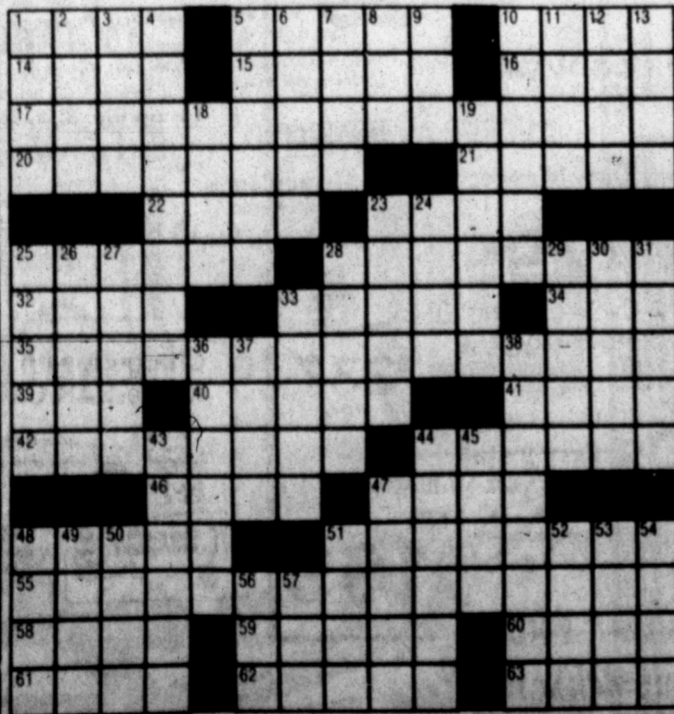

The hand occurred some years ago in the Michigan State Championships, and our senior writer sat in the East seat, partnered with Percy Sheardown of Toronto. Our opponents were two gentlemen who appeared to have wine and dined well, but not too wisely, during the session break. The auction is part of our tale, and no explanation is necessary.

West led the queen of diamonds, and the play took a strange course. Declarer won the king of diamonds, cashed the ace and ruffed a diamond in dummy. Next he led a spade to his queen and cashed the ace of clubs, playing dummy's last spade. When it was pointed out to South that he must follow

AT WIT'S END

Cherishing giveaways

By ERMA BOMBECK

Gail Sheehy, who wrote "Passages," was one of the first writers to put our lives into predictable cycles: the traumatic 20s, the illusion-shattering 30s, and the restless 40s. Heaven knows I'm trying to keep on schedule, but it isn't easy. One of my contemporaries said to me the other day, "Of course you know what cycle we're in now, don't you?" When I looked puzzled she added, "We're in our giving-the-jewelry-and-goodies-away-to-our-children-before-we-go." Well, if I wait for one of my children to show interest in anything I've got, I'll be too old to make the trip!

The past is not that important to our children. I got out a box of jewelry the other night and showed it to my daughter. "Just think. Someday all of this will be yours." I hung a necklace around her neck like an Olympic gold medal.

"What is it?" she asked.

"Just a little bauble I got in the Greek islands. Do you like it?"

"It looks like the glass they use in canning jars."

"Don't you and your brothers care about things that have defied time and endured far beyond their expectancy?"

"We love you and Dad. We always have."

"I was not referring to our longevity. I was talking about material things. Like my fur jacket. I'm leaving it to you, you know."

"The one with the feet and the diseased toenails?"

"They're not diseased. That coat is a classic."

"I hate it. It always looks like it's running away from home."

The "legacy cycle" must have been on my mind the other night when I fell asleep, because I had a dream about it. I was at a garage sale when I picked up a piece of my Waterford crystal that the kids had marked 25 cents. My autographed copy of Anne Morrow Lindbergh for 10 cents, and a cup and saucer that I lugged 4,000 miles in my handbag from Easter Island with a magic marker figure of 15 cents on it.

DEAR ABBY

'I don't care' may mean 'yes'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Was I ever glad to see that letter in your column about the girl who would never say yes or no—she always said, "I don't care." I had a very good friend who did the same thing. No matter what I asked her, she'd say, "I don't care." It used to just drive me up a wall.

Once I asked her if she wanted a cup of coffee, and she gave me the same old, wishy-washy "I don't care," so I said, "Well, I don't care either. Do you want a cup of coffee, or don't you?"

It was as though a light had turned on in her head. She said, very positively, "Yes, I would like a cup." I gave her a big hug and congratulated her.

Then she said she realized how stupid she must have sounded all those years saying "I don't care." She admitted that she was just shy and afraid she'd come across as too bold or eager.

Abby, print this for all those people who need to know that it's important to be positive and assertive. I have another friend who, when I ask how he is, always says, "All right—I guess." Next time he "guesses" how he is, I'm going to tell him to find out for sure and let me know.—DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Much to my surprise, many readers wrote to inform me that in certain parts of the country, "I don't care" means "Yes." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I can tell by your answer to that man whose girlfriend answered every question with "I don't care" that you have never been to southern Indiana.

The country children in Hoosier territory are taught to say, "I don't care," meaning, "I don't mind if I do." In other words, "Yes."

When we retired down here, a farm boy did some lawn work for me, and when I asked him if he'd like a cold drink, he replied, "I don't care." I was puzzled and looked at my husband. He said, "Go ahead and give it to him—he means 'Yes.'"

DEAR ABBY: Shame on you for using that old joke about the nun who had a sex change operation. It represents a shocking departure from your use of original material. I thought you had more resistance.

Let me tell you another one: Question: "Why does electricity shock people?" answer: "Because it doesn't know how to conduct itself."—ELECTRONICS PRO IN DENVER

CONFIDENTIAL TO BORN AGAIN IN ATHENS, GA.: No one said it better than Harry Emerson Fosdick: "Vital religion is like good music. It needs no defense, only rendition. ## Altrusans conduct final business meeting of year

Altrusa Club of Midland Inc. held its final business meeting of the year in Midland Hilton.

Purpose was to hear final reports from committee chairmen and the president's summarization of the year's activities.

Chairmen reporting their activities were Beverly Dyer, community services; Robert Wornell, vocational services; LaVerne Saunders, international relations; and Elizabeth Grimm, president-elect, who reported on the information committee in place of Anne Kendall.

Mrs. Dyer noted that the games conducted by Altrusans at the nursing home will continue and members are urged to include this project in their summer plans. The Crime Check block parties will also continue. Anyone interested in holding a block party should contact Mrs. Dyer.

Mrs. Grimm announced a joint meeting of all outgoing and new officers and committee chairmen at her home, 201 N. 'B' Saturday at 11 a.m. She will conduct orientation and participants will exchange materials.

Visitors welcomed were Ann Carpenter of the Abilene club; Libby Evans and Jane Dyer.

Installation of officers will be June 26 at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Hospitality hour begins at 7 p.m., with dinner to be served at 7:30 p.m. Reservations are $7.50 and should be sent to Janis Petty, 2604 W. Dengar Ave., as soon as possible.

When Nibble is half a byte

BOSTON (AP)—"Bus," "ram" and "nibble" have special meanings in the computer industry.

For example, a "bus" is a group of circuits that carries information from one location to another. "Ram" is shorthand for Random Access Memory, a type of information storage. And "nibble," as might be expected, is half a "byte," a basic unit of information, says American Computer Appraisal here.

LIFESTYLE

Pool speed

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Why is one swimming pool "faster" than another?

"One reason is that the faster pool will create less turbulence from the water splashed and pushed against the walls," says Ray Essick, administrator for U.S. Swimming, which is supported by Phillips Petroleum.

"One of the fastest pools in the U.S. is at the Walter Schroeder Aquatic Center here, because its 14-foot to 17-foot depth eliminates much turbulence," Essick said.

New Hebrides natives block airfields, stall negotiators

PORT VILA, New Hebrides (AP) — Rebellious natives on the island of Espiritu Santo blocked airfield runways with oil drums and trucks today to keep government negotiators away. The government warned its effort at bargaining was the last before military intervention.

Three high-level government negotiators, accompanied by three plane-loads of reporters, were forced to turn back from the island after the control tower radioed that the runway had been blocked.

The tower said the negotiators could not land because they did not have the permission of the Vemerana Republic, as rebel leader Jimmy Stevens has named his secessionist island.

Stevens, leader of the bow-and-arrow rebellion by natives and French planters who are backed by wealthy American businessmen seeking a tax haven, indicated in a radio message to Port Vila Monday night he would allow the negotiators to land. No reason was given for his change of mind.

The New Hebrides government reversed an earlier decision Monday and offered to negotiate with both the rebels on Espiritu Santo, the largest and richest island in the archipelago, and those on the southern island of Tanna. Espiritu Santo is about 180 miles north of Port Vila, capital of the New Hebrides; Tanna is some 110 miles to the south of here.

Rebels on Tanna include members of a cargo cult who believe an American GI named John Frum is the Messiah and will someday emerge from a volcano bringing them refrigerators, radios and other worldly goods. Stevens' group seized Espiritu Santo on May 28; the Tanna cultists made an unsuccessful attempt the same day and then seized the island last Wednesday.

It was not known if a government negotiator was able to land in Tanna as scheduled. A government spokesman said today the attempt at negotiations on both islands would be the last before implementing force.

Chief Minister Walter Lini was "anxious for further negotiations to be explored before military intervention is needed on Santo and Tanna," spokesman John Bessant had said before the Espiritu Santo mission was forced to turn back.

"What we want to do is to make one more attempt at reconciliation," he had explained, adding the government still wanted a joint British-French force in the New Hebrides to keep the peace.

The political standoff between Lini and Stevens has created tension between Britain and France, who have jointly administered the island chain for 74 years. The archipelago is scheduled to become independent on July 30th.

Britain has had 200 Royal Marine commandos in Port Vila for two days. But the British have not said whether they would commit the troops to restore government authority on pro-French Espiritu Santo, despite pleas for action from Chief Minister Lini, whose government comes from the New Hebrides' majority English-speaking population.

Police fire on colored, black mobs

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — At least 35 black and colored South Africans — including children as young as 7 — were wounded when police opened fire with shotguns on mobs of looters and demonstrators hurling stones and firebombs on the fourth anniversary of the bloody Soweto riots.

Scores of buses and police vehicles were also set afire or stoned as violence erupted Monday in black and colored, or mixed race, areas throughout white-ruled South Africa.

The country was reported quiet today.

Police reported 20 persons wounded Monday near Johannesburg, most of them in the mixed race township of Noordgezicht where mobs looted a grocery store and a meat market.

A spokeswoman at Johannesburg's Coronationville Hospital, where some of the injured were treated, said children as young as 7 and 10 were among the injured. She said others were in their 20s.

Authorities said the other 15 wounded were hit during fighting in black townships near Bloemfontein, the capital of the Orange Free State 230 miles southwest of Johannesburg, when mobs threw gasoline bombs and stones at police.

In contrast to the automatic rifles police used to kill hundreds of demonstrators four years ago, police fired birdshot from shotguns Monday and aimed low to minimize the chance of fatalities when the mobs refused to disperse. The shotgun fire was preceded by tear gas barrages.

Turn tax dollars into savings with your own Survival Kit™

Taxes wreak havoc with traditional methods of saving. They can ruin your plans for your financial future, for your retirement.

Federal and state income taxes combine to take 35%, 50%, 70% and even more of the interest earned by your savings.

But the Survival Kit provides long-term deferral of those taxes. The dollars that otherwise would go for taxes are left to compound and to earn interest on themselves. Depending on your tax bracket and the length of time you keep your money working, your savings can grow twice as fast. Or more.

Putting tax dollars to work for you can make all the difference in your planning for your future or your retirement years.

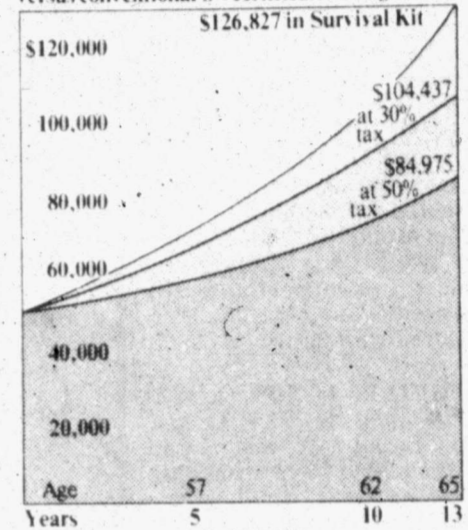

The Survival Kit can offer you this lifesaving advantage in growth because it is a group annuity plan underwritten by American Life and Casualty Insurance Company. But it is nothing like the traditional annuity which holds funds at a low, fixed rate of return.

Instead, the Survival Kit combines the advantages of a modern, high-return certificate savings account with the advantages made possible by this group annuity plan. In addition to the all-important deferral of taxes, you gain surprising withdrawal privileges, a variety of estate-planning benefits, and the option of choosing between lifetime retirement income payments or any other form of withdrawal that meets your needs. You are the one who decides how to withdraw your funds, and when.

Call us today for full information on all the ways the Survival Kit can brighten your financial future.

Compare the growth of $50,000 in a Survival Kit versus conventional 8% certificate savings.

$41,852 greater increase in savings over an ordinary savings plan for a person in a 50% tax bracket.
$22,390 greater increase even at a 30% tax bracket. That's what would happen for a saver, age 52, who deposits $50,000 at 8% and saves to age 65 in the example above. Come in today for the Survival Kit that can dramatically increase your savings.

Airline to cut staff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Continental Airlines, citing the "realities of the current recession," has announced it will pare its passenger capacity by 20 percent this fall and lay off about 1,200 workers beginning in September.

The 10 percent cutback of its 12,000-member workforce is the largest in Continental's 46-year history, the carrier said Monday, and the first across-the-board layoff this year.

United Airlines said last Friday it would lay off 800 flight attendants by September and 360 pilots by the end of the year to coincide with a 9.4 percent service cut.

UAL Inc. said it would drop 122 of its 1,303 daily departures in September. It blamed a seasonal decline in east-west air travel and a general slump in air traffic.

Los Angeles-based Continental said tentative plans call for the lay-off of about 400 flight attendants and 225 pilots along with a "commensurate" number of ground-based and management personnel. It said exact totals would be announced later this summer.

Installation scheduled

Installation of officers for Toastmasters International area clubs will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Ranchland Hills Country Club.

District Governor-elect Bill Keaton will conduct the ceremony. City Councilman Steve Davidson will be guest speaker.

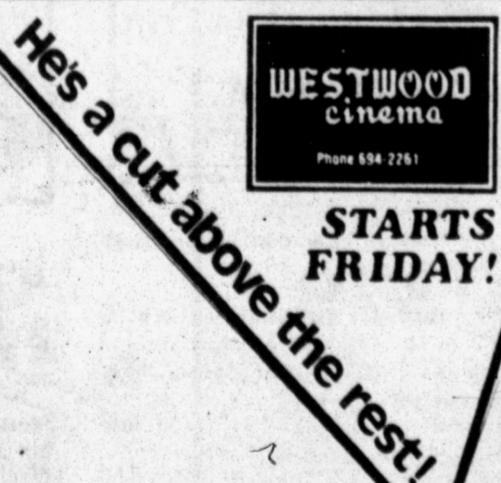

Midland clubs which will be represented in the installation ceremonies are Tall Town, Permian, Wall Street and Pop-Up. Also, special recognition will be given to the new Texas Instruments Toastmasters club during Wednesday night's activities.

LA's Lopes first player to break million mark

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

The votes keep pouring in and on the night of July 8 at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, the second baseman for the National League All Star team will be Davey Lopes of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lopes now has 1,047,577 votes, the first player in the All Star election to go over the 1 million mark this season. He is a runaway choice at his position, leading runner-up Willie Randolph at his position, leading runner-up Willie Randolph at his position, leading runner-up Willie Randolph at his position.

Midlander captures doubles

Midlander John Kirwan, Jr., now of Denton, teamed up with Don Campbell of North Texas State to win the Tyler Men's Doubles over Roger Weintz and Derrick Crosser of Longview, 6-1, 6-2, but lost to Tim King of Tyler JC in the men's singles quarterfinals 7-5, 5-7, 6-4. Kirwan also teamed up with Tom Grissack, a North Texas State assistant, to win the Garland Open over Jim Grubert and Carl Fassvender by default. In singles, Kirwan lost to Johnny Foster of Dallas in the semis.

NETTERS MISBEHAVE

TENNIS—Butch Waltz and Howard Schoenfeld faced possible disciplinary action after making controversial first-round exits in the $50,000 Surrey Grass Courts Championships.

GOLF—Mark Hayes sank a 50-foot putt for a birdie on the final hole to tie Larry Ziegler at 67 for the championship of the VIP Pro-Am Golf Tournament at Iowa City.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Stallings wins at Levelland

Midlander runners made their presence felt in the West Texas Running Club's weekend races at Levelland with Steve Stallings, 28, first mile champion for Stanton back in 1969, took state overall and in the open division with a time of 33 minutes, one second in the 10,000 meter run. Robert Scholer, who will be a senior at Midland Lee this fall, ran a 33:34 to take second overall and first in the high school class.

Lawyer contends Ellenberger really meant well

Defense attorney Leon Taylor told a Roswell, N.M., federal court jury Monday that evidence in the trial of Norm Ellenberger will show the former University of New Mexico basketball coach, on trial for five counts of mail fraud, one of wire fraud and one of interstate travel in aid of racketeering, did not intend to defraud anyone.

Philadelpha Eagles' football coach Dick Vermeil testified Monday that he thought about quitting after a bank temporarily gained financial control of the NFL team. "I considered it beyond the scope of my contract," Vermeil told a federal court jury after he was called as a witness in a lawsuit filed by his boss, Leonard Tose. Tose is suing three banks and three individuals for $23 million in damages because of an alleged conspiracy to oust him as the Eagles' owner.

Tony Pederson, 29, has been named as sports editor of the Houston Chronicle, succeeding Dick Peables, who died last week of a heart attack.

Bjorn Borg and Martina Navratilova, the reigning singles champions, were given the No. 1 seedings for this year's Wimbledon tennis tournament, with John McEnroe No. 2 and Jimmy Connors No. 3.

Pittsburgh's Mike Easler, who hit for the cycle and batted .619 with 13 hits in 21 trips, was named NL player of the week. The bat binger raised Easler's average to .407. Cleveland's Toby Harrah and the Yankees' Reggie Jackson shared the AL player of the week. Harrah was 11 for 21 for .524 with four doubles, a triple and homer and batted in seven runs Sunday against Minnesota. Jackson batted .419 on 13 of 31 with three doubles and five homers to drive in 13 runs

USSSA slates tourney play

The United States Slo-Pitch Softball Association will hold a qualifying tournament at Midland's Hogan Park complex Saturday and Sunday. On tap are the Men's Class C divisional qualifying tournament; the men's Class C state qualifying tournament; and the women's B and C world and state qualifying tournament. All three are double elimination with a consolation bracket.
