Midlander, 88, recalls days as World War I Army nurse

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Her snowy white curls falling primly around her face, the memories of World War I reside in the corners of Ruth Hamblen's mind. With each passing year the memories dig deeper into the abysses, hiding from the spotlight as it passes over every Veterans' Day.

But with some prodding from her daughter, Georgia Reeves, Mrs. Hamblen picks out a few random memories of her two years in Europe as an Army nurse during the World War "that would end all wars."

Confined today to a wheelchair, Mrs. Hamblen was a spirited, independent soul when she struck out on her own after graduating in 1914 as a nurse from Mount Sinai Hospital in New York City. A native of Lake Clear in the hills of New York, she wasn't quite 20 years old when the Army accepted her.

"The Army was begging for nurses" back then, recalled the 88-year-old woman. To her, a job as an Army nurse "seemed exciting. Everyone was talking about the Army then."

She wasn't alone in her adventure. Several of her friends from Mount Sinai Hospital signed up with her. "We went because they needed us," Mrs. Hamblen professed.

Mrs. Hamblen's parents didn't say much about their daughter joining the Army as a Red Cross nurse. "Daddy wasn't too happy," she said.

Mrs. Hamblen and other newly-recruited nurses were shipped across the Atlantic Ocean on an English vessel, which was sunk by the Germans on its way back to the U.S. Squinting her eyes, Mrs. Hamblen looked back on the voyage and remembered seeing some German boats "but not many. They weren't very close."

The nurses had a short respite in England before their trip to France across the English Channel. "There were ends of boats sticking up out of the water everywhere. We weren't sure we could cross safely, but we did."

She was sent to Paris, and then to the front lines where she would work until the Armistice was signed on Nov. 11, 1918. The young woman who had yearned for excitement got more than her share.

Stationed outside of Paris, it was her job to do the first patching up on the men and then ship them out to hospitals. Mrs. Hamblen saw everything — from gaping gunshot wounds to pilots with black burned claws for hands to men suffering from mustard gas.

"That gas was bad," she said, shaking her head. Although there were more doctors than nurses, the white-capped women had to do repair jobs that doctors should have done.

Reflecting on her two-year career as an Army nurse during World War I, 88-year-old Ruth Hamblen shows how she looked in military uniform. (Staff Photo by Edward McCain)

Living conditions were bad. The nurses had a wooden building where they slept, but it had holes, rats and no heat. The bedding was always damp. The working hours were long: 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. with no day off. "I got awful tired," she said.

The weather seemed one long continuous drizzle and Mrs. Hamblen said she seldom saw the sun. The ground was always muddy and she had to wear rubber boots. Today, she is paying for that wet service in the Army with arthritis.

Food wasn't of the gourmet type. They drank coffee all day instead of water, and their meals consisted of a choice — corned beef or salmon.

Nurses didn't have a rank and were considered on the same level as officers. "I knew the generals," she said. One officer she didn't like then and still doesn't have fond memories of is Gen. John J. Pershing.

"He wasn't friendly — you couldn't get him to talk." The signing of the agreement to end the war "was a big deal," she said. In her memory, the sun came out the moment the guns stopped.

With the silencing of the guns, her job wasn't done. Mrs. Hamblen had to go into Germany with the occupation army, but this was better than working on the front line in France, she recalled.

The people were friendlier in Germany, she said with a smile turning up the corners of her mouth. The food was better and the nurses had better accommodations. She spent six months in the defeated country before returning home on a ship.

There weren't very many good times as a nurse in the war, she said. And the excitement may not have been what she wanted. But Mrs. Hamblen claims she is still glad she served.

Labor leader wants car import rule vetoed

DETROIT (AP) — A "bitterly disappointed" United Auto Workers president says the union will ask President Carter to override a federal decision not to limit auto imports — a decision he says could cost more than 100,000 American jobs.

Though conceding such predictions were "awfully hazy," Douglas Fraser said, "You're talking about well over 100,000, minimal" lost jobs.

The International Trade Commission announced Monday it would not propose a tariff increase or quotas on imports of foreign cars or trucks.

Commissioners agreed the rising tide of imports, particularly from Japan, has seriously damaged U.S. automakers, but by a 3-2 vote it ruled that imports were not the sole cause of the domestic auto industry's woes and did not justify the protections sought by the UAW and Ford Motor Co.

Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell criticized the ITC decision, saying, "This country cannot afford the continuing exploitation of our automotive market by the Japanese."

Imports currently have a 26 percent share of the U.S. market, up from about 15 percent in 1975, according to industry figures. Four out of five imports are Japanese-made.

Ford and the UAW asked the ITC to recommend country-by-country quotas on imports at about the 1977-78 level — roughly 1.7 million cars and trucks a year — for three years, with small increases in the following two years. The UAW also asked an increase in the tariff on cars from 2.9 percent to 20 percent.

In its decision, the ITC held that the domestic auto industry had been harmed in part by its own "inefficiency" in converting to smaller cars.

"I certainly can't agree with that," Caldwell said. "The United States has been hurt by a combined unwillingness to face the realities."

Fraser said he would ask Carter to act, but the president's spokesmen have said Carter cannot negotiate a limitation agreement without a recommendation from the ITC. Fraser and Caldwell both said they thought he could, adding Congress could give him the authority if Carter did not have it.

Congress also could approve tariffs or import restrictions. However, Fraser said he saw little hope of action in the post-election Congress, and said he did not know how the new Congress would react to limits on imports.

Fraser said the union would "intensify our efforts to try to convince American consumers before they buy a car that they owe it to the laid-off American autoworker to examine an American car."

Interviewed today on the "Good Morning, America" ABC television program, Fraser was asked if his members, who are among the highest-paid of all U.S. industrial workers, would make sacrifices to help the industry.

Fraser replied that the union had always "faced realities" at the bargaining table, as it did last year to help Chrysler Corp., but added, "It's not really our problem. The auto industry is a high-productivity industry. The productivity of auto workers increases every year. We can compete price-wise. As a matter of fact, we build cars cheaper than they do in Germany."

Some analysts have said Japanese cars have a cost advantage in this country because Japanese autoworkers' productivity is now equal, or almost equal, to that of their U.S. counterparts, while their wages generally run about the average for all Japanese industry.

The union is now running a $200,000 advertising campaign on this theme. Caldwell said one in four production workers employed by U.S. automakers is laid off — around 200,000 in all.

Nissan, maker of Datsuns and the second largest importer, said through its marketing subsidiary it was "heartened" by the ruling.

Honda, another Japanese company, said the decision was consistent with the evidence. It said it will proceed with plans to begin construction next month of a $200 million auto assembly plant in Marysville, Ohio.

Talks on hostages continue in Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher met again today with Algeria's foreign minister to further explain the U.S. response to Iran's terms for releasing the 52 American hostages, Algerian sources reported.

They said the American position was discussed at a luncheon given by Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia and that Algeria would forward the response to Iran following the explanation.

Christopher delivered the American reply in a meeting with Benyahia on Monday for transmission to the Tehran government. Christopher flew to Algiers with Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Carwell and three other U.S. officials from Washington. They planned to remain in the Algerian capital to await Iran's response.

It was assumed that the U.S. reply was forwarded to Tehran within hours of the one-hour meeting. But early today Radio Tehran said: "U.S. and Algerian officials have remained silent on the U.S. reply to Iran's conditions, which is expected to be conveyed to the Iranian government in the next few hours."

Meanwhile, the Algerian Foreign Ministry denied rumors that a high-level Iranian delegation was enroute from Tehran for indirect negotiations with Christopher through the Algerians.

Although the contents of the U.S. message were kept secret, officials in Washington summed them up in general terms.

They said along with the pledge to stay out of Iran's affairs, given repeatedly in recent months by President Carter and other U.S. spokesmen, the note explained the legal obstacles to meeting the Iranian demands for cancellation of all American claims against Iran and the return to Iran of all assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and close relatives transferred abroad.

The fourth condition called for the freeing of more than $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen by President Carter. U.S. officials have said there will be no difficulty in canceling the freeze order, but several billions of the assets are also blocked by legal claims by American firms and individuals against Iran.

"We would like to be as positive as possible, but they have to understand the legal and other complications," one official who asked not to be identified told The Associated Press.

"Generally, it's a positive response," he added. "It's hard to say what flexibility, if any, there is in the Iranian position. Also, how much will there be to end the thing."

Qualified sources said the U.S. reply was "long, detailed and complex."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Christopher delivered it in person "to explain to the government of Algeria several complex legal and financial aspects."

Carter could block tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as a lame-duck president, Jimmy Carter may be able to block Republican efforts to pass a tax cut yet this year, congressional aides say.

Unless Carter abandons his campaign position and endorses the pending tax-cut bill, there is no reason to waste time with such legislation this year because the president could veto it, staffers with the tax-writing committees said Monday.

Delaying action on a tax reduction until early next year would have no practical effect on taxpayers. Any plan for cutting taxes likely would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1981, and would not affect tax returns due next April 15.

The Senate Finance Committee voted in August for a $39.8 billion tax cut in 1981. President-elect Ronald Reagan, who campaigned for a different type of tax reduction, said last week it would be "fine" with him if Congress passes the committee plan during the post-election session beginning Wednesday.

Senate GOP leader Howard Baker and Robert Dole, ranking Republican on the Finance Committee, are pressing for quick action on the tax cut. Dole plans to meet later this week with several members of the House Ways and Means Committee to determine if the measure can be passed this year.

Aides to key senators said while there is strong bipartisan support for passing the bill in the Senate now, there appears little sentiment for what would be a purely symbolic Senate action if there is no chance of moving the measure through the House.

House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., has said he would not hold up action on a tax cut if the House wants to pass it now. But Ullman will have thorough discussions with his Democratic colleagues before making a decision, aide John Sherman said Monday.

Ex-police chief testifies against other defendants

Alpine's ex-chief of police testified in federal court here Monday that he considered committing suicide, leaving the country or covering up his role as a one-time marijuana dealer to find an "out" to a U.S. government indictment against him.

Instead, the ex-chief, D.A. "Ace" Moseley, 44, a former Midland police undercover narcotics detective, opted to turn government witness and testify against his cohorts in the sale of 1,143 pounds in confiscated marijuana to gain immunity from prosecution.

"Did you ever contemplate suicide?" defense attorney James Patterson of Houston asked Moseley.

"Yes, sir, I did," Moseley confessed, as his voice momentarily broke. "I disgraced myself, my family, my friends...law enforcement."

Almost ironically, the former lawman was testifying on behalf of the government in an attempt to convict three others — including one of Patterson's clients — of dealing in marijuana.

MOSELEY WAS INDICTED last May by a federal grand jury in Midland for conspiracy to possess 1,143 pounds of marijuana and to distribute the "pot" for personal gain. He was to go to trial in August, but instead chose to undergo a "debriefing" with a Drug Enforcement Administration special agent, Larry Nichols, signed a statement and agreed to testify as a prosecution witness.

A month later, three men, including Moseley's former business associate in the ill-fated Big Bend Airways at Alpine, were indicted.

Moseley, who was Alpine's police chief from 1975 until he resigned in 1979 to become captain of a shrimp boat on the Gulf Coast, testified that he sold the 1,143 pounds marijuana for $55,000 to some Houston men.

Indicted in September and on trial in federal court this week are Terry Wright, 42, pilot-mechanic for the Alpine Airways; Ricky J. Kornele, whom the government formerly called "John Doe" and who, Moseley said, had agreed to "put some money together" in Houston to buy the Mexican marijuana; and Gary Orsack, 32. Wright currently lives at Crystal Beach near Galveston. Kornele and Orsack are from Houston.

Moseley, who was speaking unhurriedly and quietly, was sporting a moustache and dark suit. He seemed composed and not easily ruffled.

He suggested that the idea to sell the marijuana for personal gain came about by chance. The marijuana was stored in a jailhouse locker in Alpine and was obtained by lawmen in "drug busts."

Moseley, questioned by Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Bock and cross-examined by Patterson and other defense attorneys, said the airways was in financial straits in 1978. Moseley, though no pilot, reportedly had initially invested $10,000 in the airways, which was in operation for about six months before it folded.

Patterson recounted a statement Moseley supposedly made to Wright in 1978.

"I HAVE MARIJUANA that we can sell that can get this airline out of trouble," Patterson quoted Moseley. Moseley admitted suggesting that only "jokingly but not seriously."

However, sometime later, Wright apparently became serious about a possible marijuana windfall to bail the airways out of debt. He had spied the "grass" in the jail.

"My gosh!" Patterson quoted Wright. "There's some marijuana. I think we can make some money out of it."

The defense attorney suggested (See Ex-POLICE CHIEF, Page 2A)

County to apply for federal grant

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners on Monday agreed 3-to-1 to initiate a $2.25 million federal grant to dress up the underdeveloped and so-called "window pane" sections within the city.

But Commissioner Win Brown, who voted against the proposal, later said he was protesting in principle.

"We have seen instances of the (federal) government changing rules in mid-stream on other programs," Brown said in outlining his protest.

However, he said he mainly objected because the nature of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant causes local officials to scramble for a need for money they might get.

"There is no need that has been brought to my attention," the commissioner said. "They get the money first and then go find the need."

He said that the approach was not sound business.

house cleaning at home?" Brown asked. "Why get money that we need to create a need for. This approach violates good management."

Earlier, Commissioners Charlie Welch, Jack Leonard and Durward Wright voted for the plan, which was submitted to the commissioners by Don Hellinghausen, president of the Midland Housing Association. The grant would come from HUD's Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program.

"A neighborhood revitalization program is one of the kinds of programs that could be funded through a comprehensive (HUD) grant," Hellinghausen said in a prepared statement.

The three commissioners agreed to contract with Lubbock engineering consulting firm Parke, Hill, Smith & Cooper to prepare pre-applications for the HUD grant for no more than $2,000. The application is to be submitted to the Dallas HUD office between Dec. 22 and Jan. 5 to be considered.

Oklahoma: Clear to partly cloudy and warm through Wednesday. Highs 70s and 80s. Lows 50s.

Blanket of fog not here to stay

This morning's blanket of fog stretched to nearby cities including Garden City and Odessa before clearing into a mist and vanishing shortly after 8 a.m.

In fact, the warming temperatures through Wednesday should keep Midland weather feeling like late summer.

High temperatures on Wednesday should reach the mid-70s. Monday's high was 77 — much cooler than the record 85 degrees for the date set in 1964.

Tonight's low will be warmer than in previous days, dropping only to the mid-50s. This morning's low was 42 degrees, much higher than the record low for the date of 16 degrees set in 1950.

Police checking $2,261 burglary of a residence

Police are investigating a $2,261 burglary at 3121 W. Ohio Ave. Monday. G.W. Gray reported that someone broke into his house between noon and 9:27 p.m.

Entry to the house was gained through an open back door. A 17-year-old Midland man was in City Jail this morning after officers found a stolen television in the bed of his pickup.

Police Roundup

was notified that a television-radio set had been placed in the alley behind White's Auto, No. 3 Meta Drive, and that it was to be picked up after the store closed.

Mann reported that he saw a blue and white pickup pull into the alley and stop near a dumpster. Mann said he stopped the pickup as it was leaving and found the television in the pickup bed.

About $400 in vandalism was done to a house at 606 W. Nobles Ave. when a large plate glass window was broken.

Owners of the residence believe the window was broken between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday. The window was broken by an egg-sized rock that was found on the cement walk underneath the window.

ered in the competition for "need."

"I'M OPPOSED," Brown said. Prior to the vote, Midland Chamber of Commerce President Ray Moudy suggested that the grant be pursued.

"We should at least preserve the right to participate in competing for the grant," he said.

Another community leader, developer Charles Fridy, backed the proposal, which may be available to Midland County but not the city.

The grant could upgrade housing, roads, water and sewer facilities in four "window pane" areas between Interstate Highway 20 and U.S. Highway 80 and areas which are not within the city limits, though they are surrounded by the city.

The funds also could be used for improving county facilities, such as the Midland County Library.

"I certainly would like to see us moved forward with the project," Welch said in making a motion to approve the proposal. Leonard seconded the motion, and after some discussion, Wright joined in.

"I'm opposed," Brown said a second time.

OUTSIDE THE COMMISSIONERS' Courtroom, Hellinghausen said a need for the money could be developed.

"I think we could really come up with a solid need" and suggested that those "window pane" areas could be upgraded.

In other business, the commissioners: "Finally, it seemed, got 'squared away' on the courthouse security plan after running through some mild haggling. Welch said that security had been a problem, but "I sure think it's solved." Still, the commissioners seemed somewhat hazy on the ins and outs of the courthouse security plan.

The twice-revised security plan in part calls for the outside courthouse doors to be securely locked in after-work hours. Entrance to the courthouse between 5:15 p.m. and 7:15 a.m. weekdays can be made through the northside basement "jail" entrance at the Sheriff's Office.

Elected officials may, however, obtain outside door keys upon approval of the commissioners.

"The sheriff has care and control of the courthouse, subject" to the action of the commissioners' court, said County Attorney Robert Rendall.

The commissioners also permitted County Tax Assessor-Collector-elect Frances Shuffield to have as many keys as she desires to the Tax Office's east-side outside office entrance. That entrance had become a subject of controversy between Sheriff Dallas Smith and Ms. Shuffield and retiring Tax Assessor-Collector Elmo Linebarger.

"The outside door becomes an inside door," Wright said as if inventing a word game, "and the inside door become the outside door."

Smith, with the commissioners' approval, will maintain control of the entrance ways to the courthouse.

"Each office, that's their deal (to properly secure) — leave themselves wide open," Smith said.

—Approved a revenue bond application by the Midland Industrial Development Corp. to assist in the location of Ducommun Inc., a raw metals finishing manufacturing plant, to Midland. Grant Billingsley, MIDC spokesman, said Ducommun would build a 23,000- to 23,000-square-foot plant, which in the first year would generate a $250,000 payroll and after five years, a $1.3 million payroll.

Wright implied that the new plant would help further broaden Midland's economic base.

"I'm kind of proud of Midland County," Billingsley said.

Construction of the plant is to begin as soon as an appropriate industrial site is found, he said.

that Moseley's earlier statement, however flippant it might have been, was the "idea that put the marijuana (deal) in everybody's head."

Moseley did not deny it. He said that he and Wright made a trip to Brownsville in mid-February 1979 "to look for (shrimp) boats."

Two weeks later, on Feb. 28, Wright and Moseley flew to Houston. There, the marijuana was placed in a storage unit near Hooks Memorial Airport.

AFTERWARD, Moseley met with Orsack, and the two drove to a "high-rise motor inn," where, testimony suggested, they planned to talk about the marijuana sale.

The motor inn clerk initially said the inn had no vacancies due to a rodeo playing that week in Houston.

Nevertheless, Orsack got a room. "Orsack made a big do-do about being a wealthy rancher," said Patterson.

Moseley said, yes, that's what Orsack told him. Moseley said he waited in the car while Orsack got the room reserved.

The defense attorney's ploy apparently was to question the credibility and veracity of Moseley.

The former police chief said the marijuana deal was the first time he had run afoul of the law.

But Patterson asked Moseley if he had given to his friends confiscated firearms held in his control and which, by statute, were to be destroyed after they had been used as evidence.

He acknowledged doing so. "Every chief of police does this," Moseley said. "I don't consider that a violation" of his oath of office. Patterson asked Moseley if he had given guns and handcuffs to Mexican police.

"I have — my own personal guns...my own handcuffs."

THE DEFENSE ATTORNEY noted that Moseley previously had given three contrasting versions to DEA agents on how he came into the money from the marijuana sale.

Shortly after he was indicted, Moseley told the DEA that the money came from his retirement funds and from savings. A second version was that he had — in Patterson's words — "rat-holed" cash. The third version was an account of the marijuana sale.

About 1½ years ago, when Moseley resigned from the Alpine Police Department, he said he was planning to fulfill a "life-long dream" — to become captain of a shrimp boat off the Gulf Coast. "The worst thing that could happen to me is to go broke," he had said, "and I'm already that."

At that time, in May 1979, Moseley told The Alpine Avalanche that he was "fed up" with law enforcement. "I'm tired of risking my life to arrest people like drug dealers — only to have them released by the courts."

The case is being tried before a jury in U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Buntton's court in the George Mahon Federal Building.

Each of the three men being tried could be sentenced to five years in federal prison and fined $15,000 if convicted on each count in the indictment.

In Moseley's case, the indictment against him would be dismissed in a plea-bargaining agreement. He is being represented by Midland attorney Jim Mashburn.

Chicago police vote overwhelmingly to unionize

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago police officers voted overwhelmingly Monday to unionize for the first time in their history, defeating a "no-union" campaign mounted by police officials and the administration of Mayor Jane Byrne, according to preliminary figures.

The figures released by the American Arbitration Association indicated the Fraternal Order of Police received 7,244 votes to 1,744 for "no single representative."

FOP officials claimed victory earlier in the evening, saying the group won the support of about 80 percent of the 9,087 officers who cast ballots.

Police had worked on a handshake basis in the past, making them members of the largest non-union force in the nation. All officers under the rank of sergeant voted from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. at 24 districts and five other locations.

On Oct. 16, competing groups seeking to represent the police outpolled the "no single representative" question by more than three-to-one. The runoff Monday was between the no-union option — which received the greatest single number of votes in that balloting, and the FOP, which ran second.

About 88.5 percent of the 10,274 eligible officers voted, Dineen said. The vote came amid predictions a proposed 86 percent pay raise for the chief would result in a union victory.

Superintendent Richard J. Brzezczek and department officials had urged a vote against unionizing, suggesting that the informal agreement between the city and police has resulted in superior salary and benefits packages. The city says unionization could hurt it and that some benefits could be jeopardized if a union is voted in. Officials also say the aim is to maintain administrative control.

Published reports said Brzezczek, whose salary is $51,036, would receive a $43,964, or 86 percent, raise under increases Mayor Jane Byrne plans for several top city officials.

She also reportedly plans to ask for a 6.5 percent increase for beat officers — bringing the typical salary after 4½ years on the force to $22,927. The disparity didn't please John Dineen, president of the FOP. "I imagine that the superintendent will be very happy with his ... But the police officers won't be very happy with their 6 percent," he said. "They throw us a bone while the top echelon's getting the gravy."

"The consensus is here that it (chief's raise) has had an effect, particularly on the undecideds," said a patrolman on the city's Northwest Side.

Evangelist interprets election as mandate for Moral Majority

By JAMES MANION

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — TV evangelist Jerry Falwell expects the president-elect to "produce" for the Moral Majority and calls Election Day results a "mandate" for the conservative principles of his fundamentalist group. The Moral Majority movement will be "discredited" if Ronald Reagan fails to espouse its conservative principles, Falwell said Monday. "The burden is on Mr. Reagan's shoulders now. If he doesn't produce, all of us will be discredited."

Once in office, Reagan's primary concerns should be dealing with reviving the economy, preserving Israel, dealing with the nation's "military unpreparedness" and passing an anti-abortion "human life amendment," he said.

Falwell appeared here with his "I Love America" college singing group, which ended a 33-state tour with patriotic songs and imprecations against sexual permissiveness, abortion and homosexuality.

He told a rally of some 1,500 people that he wants to enlist 1,000 New Jersey pastors as members of his fundamentalist Christian movement within the next year. The state is one of 17 where Moral Majority movements were to be set up in the coming year.

Sign-carrying protesters from gay rights groups and local religious organizations lined the rear of the rally held at the Statehouse.

Leading one group of protesters was the Rev. David Dahline of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, who said, "I'm here because I don't believe the intolerance of the Moral Majority should speak for all Christians," he said.

But Florence Unger of Williamstown waved her Bible high above her head as the 45-member group sang such songs as "I'm Just a Flag Waving American."

"I love America and I love my Bible — don't you?" she said.

Falwell, 47, chancellor of Liberty Baptist College and pastor of the Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va., said he was a "close friend" of Reagan's, but wanted no official role in the new administration.

"I don't want to be an adviser," he said. "I just want to be a noisy preacher on the sidelines."

Election Day results carried a "mandate to the Moral Majority to move forward," he said, warning liberal politicians to "be prepared to be unemployed."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Roman Catholic bishops says it hopes the new Republican administration will push for a ban on most abortions, but cautions it's not "rushing" to join the new Christian right wing that supported Ronald Reagan's successful bid for the presidency.

"We're all hoping that the results of the election will change the direction concerning abortion," Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee said Monday during the annual meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Reagan has said he supports a proposed constitutional amendment to ban abortions except when the mother's life is in danger, and he will be joined by a horde of conservative lawmakers on Capitol Hill when he takes office next January.

However, the Catholic bishops noted that while concurring with Reagan and the Protestant evangelical groups in opposing abortion, the bishops don't support the Christian right wing's opposition to the proposed SALT II arms treaty and its support for the death penalty.

"I don't think our people are rushing to join with Moral Majority," said Bishop Norbert F. Gaughan of Greensburg, Pa., referring to one activist evangelical group that supported Reagan.

Bishop Michael J. Murphy of Cleveland said the bishops are "not just anti-abortion in a narrow, one-dimensional way," but "pro-life" in a wider sense of being against the arms race and for the poor, weak and victimized.

Regarding abortion, Gaughan said, "We're trying to create a climate so that the child in the mother's womb will not be in the most dangerous place in the world."

Begin wants 'to go forward' with peace accord, Koch says

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, unsure if he will ever meet again with both President Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, has asked New York City's mayor to tell Sadat "to go forward with the Camp David accord," Mayor Edward Koch says.

Koch, who plans to visit Egypt next month, quoted Begin as making that request during his visit here Monday.

The reported request came as Begin told the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations that he would be at the White House Thursday to discuss prospects for such a summit with the outgoing president.

On his first full day of a 10-day U.S. visit, Begin met with Koch and Gov. Hugh Carey and received the Theodor Herzl Award from the Zionist Organization of America.

"I always manage to get honorary degrees without taking the exams. I even got half of the Nobel Prize," Begin said. "But this, this is the dearest of them all."

The late Herzl, known as the father of Zionism, was "my first hero," Begin said.

The award has been given only 14 times in the ZOA's 82-year history. Its recipients include President Harry Truman, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, labor leader George Meany and British statesman Winston Churchill.

In a private, 45-minute address to the conference, Begin reportedly denounced the Palestine Liberation Organization and discussed the Iran-Iraq war and the American election.

Begin called Iraqi President Saddam Hussein the "cruellest of men, unstable as well, who killed some of his best friends to seize power," according to conference spokesman Dick Cohen.

Begin said Iraq had launched a "cruel war of aggression against Iran," Cohen said.

He also expressed concern that Jordan, which is providing supplies to Iraq for its war against Iran, might someday get thousands of tanks and tank carriers from Iraq, Cohen said.

Koch reported that Begin told him Israel was adamant about securing its borders, especially in the disputed West Bank of the Jordan River.

"There is a need for people to understand the Israeli position as it relates to the West Bank and the security of Israel," Koch quoted him as saying. "Israel is in great need of borders to protect Israel."

Begin, sidestepping questions on his feelings about the presidential election, said, "It is the choice of the people and I accept it." "This is the greatness of democracy. Democracy is the stablest regime in the world. In a dictatorship, one bullet could change the whole picture."

No meeting between Begin and President-elect Ronald Reagan is planned, but Begin said, "It would be a pleasure to meet him."

'Shunned' man giving up fight

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Robert Bear, the shunned Mennonite, is giving up.

It's been years since he saw his six children, and last year he risked imprisonment in trying to reunite his family. Now the 51-year-old Bear is going back to farming, full time.

Since his excommunication in 1972, Bear has waged a celebrated battle with leaders of the Reformed Mennonite Church. He has taken out paid advertisements in the Carlisle, Pa., newspaper to explain his grievances with the small, ultra-conservative church.

In his latest message, to be published in the Carlisle Sentinel on Wednesday, Bear explains he has given up hope: "I now realize that as much as I want to come to my wife and children, I cannot. I intend to no longer try." He told the Sentinel: "I've been using one arm to battle the Mennonites and the other to farm. I intend to get busy farming."

Bear called his announcement "a public confession of guilt."

He was excommunicated after criticizing Bishop Glenn Gross, his wife's brother, for giving communion to her feuding parents. Bear said one had accused the other of being unfaithful, making it unlawful for them to receive sacraments.

Afterward, Bear was shunned — a 400-year-old sanction that bans church members, including relatives, from having any contact with him.

"They condemn you to hell...it was just as if I was condemned to death. I am the living dead," Bear said.

Gross was unavailable for comment Monday.

Bear tried various ways to be reunited with his family, which moved from his 400-acre vegetable farm. Last year, he forced a legal showdown by abducting his wife, Gale, from a farmer's market.

A day to remember

Today is Veterans Day and, as in the past, we should pause to think about what this observance really means.

Veterans Day originally was known as Armistice Day and commemorates the end of fighting in World War I on Nov. 11, 1918.

Speeches will be made today, parades will wind down city streets and special services will be conducted throughout the land. Through it all we should not forget that the celebration was intended to remind Americans of the tragedies of war.

Since President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed Nov. 11 as Armistice Day in 1919, there have been more wars: World War II, the second global conflict; the misunderstood Korean War; and the most recently concluded Vietnam War.

The lessons of war apparently have been wasted on some countries and some peoples. And Americans have paid the price with American blood on foreign soil.

The last Americans returned from Vietnam only five years ago. But not all the Americans who served in Vietnam came home. In all, 58,000 Americans perished in that war.

Furthermore, 300,000 were wounded in Vietnam and another 75,000 were disabled. Many more Americans still carry profound psychological scars because of that war.

The war divided the United States and, sadly, some of the repercussions still are being experienced today.

Today we all should strive anew to understand the true meaning of Armistice Day or, if you prefer, Veterans Day. We should realize that it is to honor all of those who gave their lives for the glory of their nation.

We also should realize that war always is a ghastly experience to be avoided at all costs if possible. There have been numerous wars in which the United States has become involved. Undoubtedly there will be more.

The United States alone cannot prevent wars and it's a sad fact that aggressors in this world of ours do not seek to live in peaceful coexistence.

It's fitting that we observe Veterans Day, though, just so we never forget the horrors of war and that we come to appreciate fully the precious times between wars when the world is at peace.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 11, the 316th day of 1980. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 11, 1918, World War I ended with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany.

On this date: In 1620, the Pilgrims signed the Mayflower Compact, setting basic rules for their new settlement in Massachusetts.

In 1933, the first of the great dust storms of the 1930s swept across North Dakota.

In 1942, Nazi Germany completed its occupation of France during World War II.

And in 1965, Ian Smith declared Rhodesia's independence, despite British claims that his regime was illegal.

Ten years ago, the Soviet Union launched a spacecraft on a voyage to the moon.

Five years ago, the U.S. Congress voted to reassess America's relationship with the United Nations after a General Assembly vote equating Zionism with racism.

One year ago, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, Iran's new top man at the foreign ministry, said there'd be "no compromise and no negotiation" over Iran's demand that the U.S. extradite the ousted Shah in exchange for the American hostages.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Jonathan Winters is 55 years old. Former movie star Pat O'Brien is 81.

Thought for today: The world war after the next one will be fought with rocks — Albert Einstein, German-born physicist (1879-1955).

INSIDE REPORT

Democrat Richard Stone eyed for State Department post

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Now being considered for No. 2 man in Ronald Reagan's State Department is outgoing Democratic Sen. Richard Stone, defeated in his primary election run-off in Florida, whose name was successfully used by the Reagan campaign to juice up the Jewish vote in late October.

Stone was named, in an intentional premature mid-October press release, to Reagan's post-election transition team, along with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who also has top credentials in the Jewish community. Stone had flatly ruled out use of his name until after the election.

But worried about a last-minute fall-off in the pro-Reagan Jewish vote, Reagan's operatives pumped out their press release and planted stories in the Jewish press that both Stone and Jackson had been tapped by Reagan. That word spread like wildfire to Jewish voters, giving Reagan a late lift in Jewish communities. Reagan admires Stone's foreign policy, particularly in Latin America. A top State Department post for the senator could result.

CHAIRMAN BRADEMAS?

In the hours following their traumatic defeat, many Democrats mentioned one of the most prominent victims of the carnage as a leader for the trying times to come: Rep. John Brademas of Indiana as Democratic national chairman to succeed John White (who may fight to keep the job.)

The names mentioned from the White House were Los Angeles lawyer-banker Charles T. Manatt, ex-California state chairman and currently the party's national finance chairman, or Housing Secretary

Evans

Novak

Moon Landrieu. But there is massive resistance to any future chairman like White or Manatt who has the Carter imprint. Brademas, articulate and well-respected, might match the outstanding performance by William Brock as Republican national chairman after his defeat for re-election in 1976 as a senator from Tennessee.

The one negative against Brademas is his enthusiastic support for liberal programs that cannot be disconnected from the Democratic demise. A more conservative choice would be Rep. Tom Foley of Washington, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. But the national chairmanship is now a full-time job, and Foley would not likely be willing to resign from Congress after beating off a determined Republican challenge this year.

REAGAN TAPS WILLIAMS

Eyebrows lifted at word that Ronald Reagan had tapped Edward Bennett Williams, the famed trial lawyer who used to be the Democratic Party's chief fund-raiser, to advise the incoming Republican administration how to handle national security and intelligence affairs.

The explanation goes to the heart of Reagan's view of the Soviet Union, Reagan remembers when Williams offered his services as counsel to "Helsinki dissidents" in Russia through into jail for demonstrating against their government's violations of its human rights pledges in the Helsinki agreement of 1975. Reagan and his national security advisers were deeply impressed.

Reagan personally asked Williams to join the transition team. He said that Williams' work on President Ford's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, abolished by Jimmy Carter, gave Williams special insights into how Reagan should organize an expanded, hard-hitting intelligence system.

A footnote: Some Reagan insiders see Williams as an ideal U.S. ambassador in Moscow. "He talks straight and hard," one told us, "which is just what Reagan wants."

BEWARE OF BEGIN

President-elect Reagan is being wisely advised to put out a fat welcome mat for Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin when he arrives on a visit here next week, ostensibly to see President Carter but in reality to lobby Reagan on his Mideast policy.

Reagan ducked a direct question during his Thursday press conference whether he planned to see Begin, saying he would do nothing to usurp Carter's role as president until Jan. 20. Reagan won an unusually large percentage of Jewish votes on Nov. 4.

Israel's friends in the U.S. feel that Begin wants pictures of himself with Reagan for political advantage in next year's Israeli election. But most politicians here with close ties to Israel are hoping that Begin loses the election to the far more moderate Labor Party, setting the stage for a more flexible Israeli posture on the dangerous West Bank and Jerusalem problems.

DEBATER REAGAN

Ronald Reagan's Cleveland debate performance, which won him the presidency, was markedly better than his showing in any of the dry runs leading up to the real thing.

That duplicated Reagan's earlier experience against Rep. John Anderson. In fact, it was Reagan's poor showing in the Anderson rehearsals — not his impressive performance in the actual Anderson debate — that led many senior advisers to counsel against accepting President Carter's debate challenge. Reagan is simply not a practice player.

However, Reagan did fall short of his dry run in the Cleveland debate on a point carefully rehearsed to handle Carter's predictable raising of nuclear proliferation. He should have pointed to the president's decision to send nuclear fuel to India, despite that country's development of nuclear weapons. But despite his rehearsals, Reagan forgot to raise the Indian issue.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Special prosecutor needed in Vesco case

WASHINGTON — Now that Jimmy Carter has been defeated and cannot manipulate the Justice Department for another four years, a special prosecutor should be appointed to tie together the tangled threads of the Robert Vesco scandal.

I began reporting more than two years ago that Vesco, an international swindler, had offered multimillion-dollar bribes to presidential cronies. First he tried to buy his way out of his legal difficulties; then he sought the release of embargoed U.S. transport planes for Libya. Vesco was also involved in the Libyan attempt to corrupt the president's brother, Billy Carter.

Several people of impeccable credentials have examined the evidence and have concluded that the Carter administration is guilty of "stonewalling" in every sense of the Watergate term. They range from U.S. senators to federal investigators, from a grand jury foreman to a federal judge.

There are three main threads to the Vesco-Carter story:

First Thread — Just weeks after Carter was inaugurated, Vesco offered $12 million in stolen stocks to Georgia cronies of the new administration. A $10,000 advance was paid to Spencer Lee IV, a close friend of White House aides Hamilton Jordan and Richard Hardin.

Lee then set up a corporation in the Bahamas — Vesco's chosen refuge from extradition attempts — to launder the $12 million. Lee apprised Hardin of the bribery scheme, and

Jack Anderson

Harden told the new president of Vesco's hopes for assistance. Incidentally, Carter did not report the incident to the Justice Department. Instead, he penned a mysterious note to Attorney General Griffin Bell, asking him to see Lee.

Both Lee and Harden have testified under oath that they immediately pulled out of the conspiracy. But the Justice Department has locked up evidence — including appointment schedules, telephone logs and lie detector tests — that they may have committed perjury.

When a federal grand jury was disbanded without indicting anyone, the jury foreman, Ralph Ulmer, accused the Justice Department of coaching witnesses and orchestrating a cover-up. He used such words as "duplicitous" and "manipulation" to characterize the department's handling of the case.

A Senate investigation, conducted by Sens. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, has confirmed many of his allegations. Both senators have accused the Justice Department of "stonewalling." The

'Grafters' in public office are not the most dangerous

The videotapes of the FBI's abscon affairs have shown the public the grubby world of grafters, but there are men in public office who are far worse morally than the thieves, drunks and sexual perverts.

These worse men may lead lives of impeccable respectability, of sobriety, of money honesty, and of sexual propriety, but their souls are destined for the inner pits of hell if there is justice in the universe.

They have sold, not a mere vote on an inconsequential matter, but their nation's welfare and not for cash but for temporary political gain. They barter liberty and human lives for mere applause from the press gallery. They are intellectual crooks.

I believe in individual responsibility. A human being is responsible, if he is sane, for what he says and for what he does and for what he does not say and for what he does not do.

A man who seeks and obtains public office has a responsibility to know what his duties are, to know what the world's about, and to know where the interests of his country lie and then to act accordingly.

The 20th Century, which is now staggering bloodily toward its finish, has been characterized by one elementary conflict — the war between collectivism and individual liberty. For a while, two versions of collectivism — fascism and communism — struggled for supremacy. Fascism lost, but communism gained new strength and power, in devouring it with the help of the democracies.

Today communism is a great mass of festering evil. It gathers strength for its final assault on the remaining free nations, most of which have already surrendered spiritually and are merely trying to buy off the inevitable. Since World War II, over 100,000 Americans have died on the battlefield, fighting what most politicians are now afraid to even mention in public lest they be branded a kook or an extremist.

This then is the present context of public life, a nation under siege and threatened by a malevolent force armed with the world's mightiest array of weapons, battered around the clock by vicious propaganda, spied upon and subverted.

Yet, look at the record of the recent Congresses. They have not provided for the common defense, in direct violation of their constitutional duty. Today, the United States lacks the military power to deal effectively, either by force or by diplomacy, with the Soviet Union.

Congress has gutted, with its stupid legislation, its politically motivated investigations and with its leaks, both the internal and external intelligence apparatus. Congress has left the American people virtually defenseless against terrorism, subversion and espionage.

Congress has wounded our economy. It has allowed amoral corporations to disperse our industrial base and to trade with our would-be executioners. It has devalued our currency by recklessly catering to the mobs and by exercising no fiscal responsibility whatsoever.

Congress has callously sacrificed whole peoples to communism. The men who voted to cut off all U.S. aid to Southeast Asia bear a direct responsibility for the two million slaughtered Cambodians and for the hundreds of thousands of murdered or imprisoned Vietnamese and Laotians. The men who voted to cut off aid to the non-communist insurgents in Angola bear a direct responsibility for the lives lost there.

Those who condoned the Helsinki Accords, which sanction permanent communist tyranny over all of Eastern Europe, bear a direct responsibility for crushing the hope of freedom for millions of people.

I hate the public men responsible for this. You may think that harsh, but when I look at my children and realize what perils they have been needlessly exposed to by these opportunistic politicians, the temperature of my heart drops to absolute zero.

They have placed the lives and liberty of the American people in great jeopardy and that is unforgivable. What is so disgusting is that they did it for the pettiest of reasons — to gain a pork barrel project, to gain a newspaper headline, to win votes for their own re-election, to cater to popular but uninformed opinion.

These men are worse "criminals" than the grafters. Stolen money can be replaced, human life cannot, and most often neither can freedom, once lost to modern totalitarianism.

Inflation takes its toll on housing, retail sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Americans on an economic treadmill and purchasing power at a virtual standstill, rising interest rates and persistent double-digit inflation are taking a new toll on sales of houses and retail goods.

The Commerce Department reported Monday that new-home sales fell 14 percent in September, while October retail sales edged down for the first time in five months.

This overall downturn was attributed heavily to the recent upsurge in interest rates, a trend that was underlined Monday when 13-week Treasury bill rates rose to 13.514 percent, the highest level since early April.

Six-month Treasury bills dipped slightly, but they still stood at 13.231 percent. As a result, starting Thursday, banks will pay savers as much as 13.481 percent on popular six-month money market certificates.

That rate forces banks and thrifts to charge steeper interest rates for consumer loans.

"Rising interest rates are hurting retail sales," said Robert Gough, vice president of Data Resources Inc., the Massachusetts economic forecasting firm. "If rates continue to go up, we can expect further softening in sales...during the pre-Christmas season."

William Cox, the Commerce Department's deputy chief economist, made the same point about mortgage rates, which now exceed 15 percent in many markets.

His department said new-home sales during September stood at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 554,000, compared with a 643,000 pace in August. The drop was most pronounced in the South and Midwest.

Sandra Shaber, a senior economist at Chase Econometrics Associates in suburban Philadelphia, said retail sales will continue to be sluggish because people's incomes, particularly their wages and salaries, are not keeping up with inflation.

Government figures released over the weekend showed total personal income from April through June rising an average of 1.1 percent. At the same time, inflation rose 2.6 percent.

Consumer prices are rising at a 12.7 percent annual rate. Moreover, food prices are moving up with particular force, and this is one family expense that cannot easily be avoided.

"Real income has grown imperceptibly, and credit or not, consumers don't have purchasing power," Ms. Shaber said.

Cox said, "We've had, at best, marginal income growth since July. Judging from employment and earnings numbers, this is not likely to change" soon.

He described the current economy as a "neck-and-neck race between people's pay gains and inflation." This has brought purchasing power to a "virtual standstill," he added.

The retail sales performance in October broke a four-month improvement that paralleled the nation's climb from recession.

That positive trend occurred as interest rates were working their way down from levels that reached 20 percent last spring.

In recent weeks, however, these rates have begun climbing again, and the prime rate banks charge now stands at 15.5 percent. Car loans — if they are even available — will carry even higher interest.

Hardest hit right now are retailers who sell durable, big-ticket items such as automobiles.

All durable goods sales fell 1.1 percent in October, after rising 3.9 percent the month before. Auto dealers reported a 2.1 percent falloff last month, following a 5.2 percent increase in September.

"Durables are being hurt most because they are typically financed," Gough said. "October's figures show just how quickly the economy can be moved around by movements in interest rates."

Former Dallas assistant DA wounded with his own gun

DALLAS (AP) — A former assistant district attorney for Dallas County, Charles H. "Buddy" Erwin, was hospitalized today after suffering a single gunshot wound to the chest in a shooting at his office, police said.

He was listed in critical condition at Parkland Hospital's emergency room. Erwin, 39, was working in his Dallas law office about 2:30 a.m.

when two men entered the office, said police investigator J.W. Johnson.

"He tried to get them to leave," Johnson said, "but they wouldn't so he pulled his pistol and tried to force them out. A fight ensued and he was shot."

Johnson said Erwin apparently was wounded with his own weapon. He said the two men who entered the office have not been arrested or identified.

300 firefighters battle school fire in Alvarado

ALVARADO, Texas (AP) — More than 300 firefighters had to stand by and watch as flames roared out of control when a water main broke at the Alvarado Middle School.

"It's still burning, but it's pretty well under control," Fire Chief C.T. Richardson said late Monday. Early estimates placed damages between $1.5 and $2 million. No one was injured in the fire, which broke out about 7 p.m. Firefighters from about a dozen communities watched the flames blaze out of control after a water main broke about 8 p.m.

Pressure was restored in about 20 minutes, but Richardson said the temporary lack of water "made a big difference" in firefighting efforts.

The destroyed building contained all 6th- through 8th-grade classrooms, administrative offices, the library and cafeteria.

Firefighters had not determined the blaze's cause by late Monday.

School board members in Alvarado, about 40 miles southwest of Fort Worth, scheduled an emergency meeting for this evening.

School Superintendent Sid Pruitt said students in Grades 6 through 8 would not have to attend school until Nov. 17. Administrators would try to work out arrangements with local churches for classrooms before then, he said.

A bond election in March 1979 earmarked $475,000 for renovating the middle school, but the bonds have not been sold, Pruitt said.

The middle school was rebuilt in the mid-1950s after it was destroyed by lightning.

Soldier killed at Fort Bliss

EL PASO (AP) — A Fort Bliss soldier was killed Monday when the Soviet-made grenade launcher he was demonstrating exploded, officials said.

Pvt. Carl Roberts McCuan, 20, of Lavonia, Mich., died instantly when the launcher exploded as it was fired on Fort Bliss property near the White Sands Missile Range, according to military authorities.

McCuan had volunteered to fire the shoulder antitank weapon before about 60 soldiers of the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment, said Lt. Col. Edward McDonald.

Students mourn griddler's death

SMITHVILLE, Texas (AP) — Students at Smithville High School were excused from class today for the funeral of a football player electrocuted on a weekend job he took to help support his young family.

Bryan Campton, 17, worked at a dairy to bring home money for his wife and three-week-old son. He died Sunday while he, a brother, and a friend, tried to chase a skunk from an irrigation pipe.

"Bryan and Darrell (his 14-year-old brother) were both holding onto the pipe, lifting it," said Mrs. W.L. Dawson, an owner of the dairy. She said her 12-year-old son Steve was ready to shoot the skunk when it fell out.

When the brothers stood the pipe up it hit a powerline and, "Steve said he saw this big shower of sparks. The next thing he knew, Bryan was lying there on the ground and Darrell was saying, 'We've got to get him to the hospital quick.'"

Former school official stands trial for theft in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP) — Former school district transportation supervisor Randy Ingle went on trial Monday, charged with stealing more than $10,000 in goods and services.

Ingle was indicted following a lengthy grand jury investigation into the Fort Worth Independent School District's business practices. Ingle was accused of arranging deals for personal gain with companies that provided goods and services to the school district.

Among the witnesses prosecutors said they might call is Mrs. Otto Stepp, widow of a school employee who worked with Ingle and committed suicide when allegations about the transportation department became public.

Former school superintendent Gerald Ward also will be called to the witness stand, prosecutors said.

The indictment says Ingle accepted merchandise from commercial suppliers in exchange for approving payments to those companies for supplies that were not delivered.

If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Attorneys said the trial could last three weeks.

Greenwood Optimists turkey shoot scheduled to be held November 22

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Optimist Club will sponsor a Turkey Shoot from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 22 at a caliche pit off the Garden City Highway near County Road 120 East, according to Pat Anderson.

The Optimists will furnish the .410-gauge shotguns and 7 1/2-shot shells to be used in the contest. Each shooter handing over $3 will get three shots to win a turkey.

"You're going to have to be pretty good to hit the (clay) pigeons" in the match, he said, due to the small spread of the 7 1/2-shot shells.

Safety was a factor in selecting the caliche site for the Turkey Shoot. "There won't be any stray shells going wild or hitting anybody," said Anderson.

Winners in the Turkey Shoot will be awarded 12-to-14-pound dressed turkeys, he said. Fee for entering the shoot is $3 per shooter.

The Turkey Shoot site is eight miles east of Midland, and signs indicating location of the shoot will be posted along the Garden City Highway (Texas 158) for shooters and spectators alike, Anderson said. No admission will be charged to spectators at the shoot, he said.

Strong quake reported in Prince Edward Islands

GOLDEN, Colo. (A) — Officials at the U.S. Geological Survey Center said a strong earthquake shook the Prince Edward Islands region south of Africa early today.

The earthquake registered a 6.9 on the Richter scale at about 3:37 a.m. MST today, said Don Finley, information officer at the U.S. Geological Survey office.

The islands are about 1,000 miles south of the southern tip of Africa and belong to South Africa, Finley said.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 7.9 on the Richter scale.

Quake damage less than $2 million

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Less than $2 million in damage was caused by a powerful earthquake that jarred this area of rural northern California over the weekend, officials say.

The earthquake, which measured 7.0 on the Richter Scale when it hit early Saturday, was the largest in the contiguous 48 states in more than 20 years, officials said.

"I would say damage will run less than $1 million and certainly less than $2 million," William Chambers, Humboldt County disaster official, said Monday.

The only reported injuries during the tremor involved six people hurt when two vehicles ran off a freeway overpass that collapsed onto Northwestern Pacific railroad tracks.

Top homicide detectives join hunt for child killer

ATLANTA (AP) — While a self-proclaimed psychic predicted a break in the case, five of the nation's top homicide detectives began pooling their talents to help Atlanta authorities solve the slayings and disappearances of 15 black children.

The five converged here Monday from Los Angeles, Stamford, Conn., New York, Detroit and Oakland, Calif.

In Nutley, N.J., Dorothy Allison predicted that investigators could expect a major break in the investigation soon. Mrs. Allison, 35, said Atlanta authorities were following clues she provided on a four-day visit two weeks ago and she expected to hear from them Wednesday.

Water rationing possible in Pennsylvania this week

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Water rationing could begin in parts of northeastern Pennsylvania this week as continuing lack of rain and depleted reserves have created near-crisis conditions in some areas, authorities said Monday.

umberland County community, has been without water reserves for two months. Water is being shipped in.

The plan basically asks for curtailment of all water uses," he said. "It sets up allotments for each customer — so many gallons per capita per day would be allowed."

Court ordered to restudy ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today told the highest court in Washington state to restudy that court's ruling giving persons stopped for suspected drunken driving a right to a lawyer's immediate help.

The Washington Supreme Court ruled last May 1 that such a right exists, and that drunken-driving charges must be dropped against persons whose demands for immediate legal help are ignored.

Today, the justices set aside that ruling and told the state court "to consider whether its judgment is based upon federal or state constitutional grounds, or both."

The state Supreme Court's ruling struck down the conviction of Edwin Fitzsimmons, who was stopped for suspected drunken driving near Blaine, Wash., the night of Sept. 27, 1977.

When state patrol trooper Ken Kneis stopped Fitzsimmons, the suspect immediately requested a lawyer's help but said he could not afford to pay for such assistance.

The state trooper told Fitzsimmons that a lawyer would be appointed for him at his first court appearance but that "you're not going to get anything for free tonight."

In overturning Fitzsimmons' subsequent drunken-driving conviction, the Washington Supreme Court said persons stopped on such charges have a right to immediate legal help — even if they cannot afford it.

"Nothing prevents the officer from carrying and providing the defendant with a list of organizations or attorneys willing to be called after regular hours to assist individuals arrested and charged with driving while under the influence," the court said.

"Often telephone consultation alone at this stage in the proceedings ... will provide the defendant with adequate legal assistance to assure his basic rights to a fair trial. The state must insure that the defendant can immediately contact counsel who can help him make the decision as to how his defense will be structured, and whether that defense requires the attorney's physical presence at the scene of the charging," the court said.

Hyperactive child has much potential

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter has a hyperactive youngster who will soon be entering the first grade. Do you think he will be able to do the schoolwork? He is currently receiving medication, which seems to have helped him a great deal. — Mrs. E.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: Intelligence generally is not impaired in hyperactive children; however, some are emotionally immature. If your grandson's behavior is under control as you suggest, there is no reason why he should not be able to work up to his potential in school.

Dear Dr. Solomon: For the past few months, I've been one of the statistics you hear about so much — one of the laid-off workers who help make up the unemployment rate. And the way the conditions are in my field, I'll probably be out of work for some time. Since losing my job, I've been having stomach pains and have not been able to sleep very well. I know the symptoms are related to losing my job, so I haven't bothered going to a doctor. What I'm wondering is whether others in my position are affected the same way. With several million people out of work, there must be an awful lot of sick people walking the streets. — John

Dear John: Unfortunately, a downturn in the economy often does make for an awful lot of sick people. Dr. M. Harvey Brenner, a professor of operational research and behavioral science at Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, has spent several years studying the effect of the economy on people. And he has some pretty depressing predictions.

As a result of the economic recession in which we find ourselves, Dr. Brenner foresees an increase in the number of suicides, homicides and deaths from heart attacks, strokes and cirrhosis of the liver. In 1970, for example, when the rate of unemployment rose 1.4 percent, the number of people with mental disorders doubled; alcoholism increase by about a third; and the rate of suicides, heart attacks and strokes went up from 15 to 25 percent. Even these figures are considered to be on the conservative side since for every person who commits suicide, there undoubtedly are many more who are seriously depressed.

For many people, the stress of losing a job and the need to become re-established lead to increased drinking and smoking, forms of behavior that eventually further affect the mortality rate. Thus, the adverse effects attributable to an economic recession may continue even after the economy improves.

As for your symptoms, I suggest you arrange an appointment with your doctor. Even if, as you believe, they are related to your concern of loss of a job, they should not be ignored. After all, a psychosomatic illness is still an illness. On the other hand, there is always the possibility that the onset of symptoms and the loss of your job were only coincidental. In either case, a discussion with your physician would be very much in order.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Whoosh-whoosh is from roller skates

PARIS (AP) — The soft whoosh-whoosh of wheels over pavement being heard in Paris these days isn't coming from bicycles. More likely than not, it's coming from le patin a roulettes. Roller skates.

The roller-skating renaissance has hit Paris. But it bears little resemblance to its precursor — which appeared in the late 1800s and inspired relatively placid rolling along the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne by the chic-est of the chic.

The new renaissance is of a livelier sort. Disco skating is definitely in, as the more agile of the population perform leaps of terrifying velocity. And, defying past traditions of haute couture, the skaters tend toward flashing satins, winged caps and glittering metallics.

Out on the streets, however, one is more likely to see Paris skaters wearing the garb of Anytown, U.S.A. — just plain jeans. But it is somehow inevitable that in this most elegant of the world's cities, roller-skating has risen to new heights.

Take the case of Florian Pinter, for instance. A bellboy of utmost decorum at the ornate, old-world Paris Inter-Continental Hotel, the 19-year-old youth has a passion for le patin a roulettes. Not content only to practice his skills after working hours, he brought in roller skates (the kind that attach to your shoes, a conservative gesture) to speed him on his appointed delivery rounds.

On young Pinter's days on duty, one is likely to see him rolling out of the hotel, bag in hand, pulling it all off with graceful aplomb. As he disappears around the corner, there is a silent pause from guests, delighted smiles all around, and a lot of people left wondering if it is possible to try a spin around Paris on skates.

Mais oui — but of course. With the dedication only an intrepid skater could provide, Pinter has supplied the hotel staff with a list of skate rental stores and has personally tested out several routes around the city. His helpful pointers and map of recommended routes have even been printed in English and French by the hotel and are distributed to every room.

The routes take those who dare down the Champs-Elysees and Rue St. Honore for a little window shopping — but, "try not to be too distracted as Hermes, St. Laurent and Gucci slide by," the guide cautions, "particularly on the Champs-Elysees, where the slope is deceptive and can leave one gathering unexpected speed."

DEAR ABBY

In this case, charity began at home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please continue to emphasize the fact that charities should not waste money. When I give blood to the Red Cross, I don't want a thank-you letter. When I walk door-to-door collecting for another charity, I don't need to be invited to a formal ball for dinner and dancing to be officially thanked for my help. If the public knew of this kind of waste they would be up in arms.

Those of us who work hard for charities want ALL the money to go where it can help the cause.—HELEN IN SAN PEDRO

DEAR HELEN: Right on! The best example of using every cent to "help the cause" reminds me of a wonderful fund-raising idea used by Goodwill Industries of South Florida a few years ago. They sent invitations that read:

"The annual Goodwill Industries dinner will NOT be held this year at the Americana Hotel. NO cocktails will be served at 7 p.m. NO dinner will be served at 8 p.m. The master of ceremonies will NOT be Jackie Gleason. The invocation will NOT be read by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale, and the guest speaker will NOT be Dear Abby.

"Stay home and have a restful evening, but please send $50 per person or $100 per couple."

Needless to say, it was hugely successful.

P.S. The moral to that story is: Many people are so bored with fancy fund-raising bashes, they'd cheerfully pay to stay home!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's family. We get along for the most part, but when it comes to politics and related social issues, we disagree violently. In order to keep every family get-together from erupting into a noisy battle, I just keep my mouth shut.

However, my childre are now old enough to understand the talk, and I don't want some of the erroneous, bigoted statements made by my husband's family to go unchallenged. (They are the kind of people with whom one cannot have an intelligent, quiet discussion; they just yell a lot.)

My husband's family always initiates these political discussions. How in the world can I remain silent without destroying my children's belief in my ideals?—KEEPING THE PEACE

DEAR KEEPING: A noisy battle involving politics and related social issues is much healthier for children than the choked-off silence you're maintaining in the interest of peace and quiet. Speak up. Silence implies agreement.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter wants to wear a chain around her ankle. We decided to go with whatever you said.

When I was growing up (I'm 37), only females of ill-repute wore them. "Nice" girls didn't wear ankle bracelets—as we called them back in those days. Is this still true?—SEEKING INFORMATION

DEAR SEEKING: It wasn't true then, and it still isn't.

Dead bodies provide needed growth hormone

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — Eight-year-old Leslie Lynn Olsen is growing up — thanks to precious human growth hormone available only from dead bodies.

She needs hormone from 120 donors a year because her pituitary gland does not produce it. Although she was a normal 20½ inches at birth, and grew four inches in six months, she then stopped. At age 4, she was 30 inches tall — the height of an average 1-year-old.

Her parents, Tony and Sandi Olsen, took her to doctors and it was learned she lacked growth hormone and also had a rare, unrelated neurological disorder — caused by a minor stroke before birth — that hampered her motor skills and speech.

That was in Miami, where the couple lived at the time, and where Leslie began getting growth hormone. They later moved to this Washington community, and in 1975, Leslie was chosen as one of 15 children in a research program at Children's Orthopedic Hospital in Seattle.

And here, Leslie became the patient of Dr. Nikom Wannarachue. She's grown 16½ inches, and is now only three inches shorter than the average child her age.

"WE NO LONGER go through life asking 'Why?' We're just thankful for all her progress," Mrs. Olsen said.

She gives her daughter hormone shots three times a week. Every six months, they go to Seattle for a checkup.

Wannarachue has spent 10 years trying to determine why there are "little people." Until two months ago, when he qualified to receive growth hormone from the National Pituitary Agency in Baltimore, he had to send patients with growth hormone deficiencies to Seattle for treatment.

But from now on, he can treat what he calls "children of short stature" in his office until they stop growing "or reach 5 feet, whichever comes first," the doctor said.

Wannarachue, a pediatrician, specializes in endocrinology — the science of the endocrine glands. Diabetes and thyroid disorders can also result from endocrine abnormalities.

"BECAUSE THE AMOUNT of human growth hormone is very limited, patients must be screened carefully to determine that they will be helped by its use," Wannarachue said.

The hormone is free to those in the research project.

Growth hormone enters the blood and helps the body accumulate amino acids needed to build proteins, among other things, the doctor said.

"Nobody wants to go through life like Tom Thumb and that's why research and the donation by people of their pituitary gland is so important," he said.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Make Christmas tree stars

Dear Heloise: I wonder if you or some of your friends can help me.

Each year has its memories and mine go far back to when I was a child of 8 or 10.

I can recall my mother teaching me to make paper stars. We would buy rolls of paper of different widths and colors, cut the paper in lengths, then twist the paper and run the end through the plaited one-inch or more squares.

When finished, we had four standing points on each side, or an eight-pointed star.

Dad loved to help trim the tree and it was generously covered with these paper stars of different sizes and colors. I can see that tree now...touching the ceiling, with wooden birds hanging on different lengths of string nesting in among the stars. Such memories — and that was over 80 years ago.

I know this letter is long, but perhaps someone will recall how to make them. Thanks anyway. — Catharine Wanner

She'd stir the flour, dump the eggs in, all while I was trying to clean the flour off the counter. I'd then remove the egg to re-measure the flour, only to have her stick her finger into the butter or frosting.

Needless to say, we both made it through the holidays, but Santa brought her a set of cookie cutters, measuring scoops and spoons, rolling pin and plastic bowls.

Her grandmother even made her a little cover-all apron so at least her clothes would stay clean.

Now, when she wants to help, I just set everything up for her on the kitchen table and does she have a ball! We bake and decorate her creations. She's so proud, and I love it!

She still makes a mess on the floor and counter, but cleaning it up is a little price to pay for such priceless memories. — Ann Dickinson

DEAR HELOISE: For a fast spool change on your sewing machine (sometimes you want to change a color or type of thread), break the thread close to the spool already on the machine, then tie on the new color with a square knot and change the spools.

Gently pull the thread through all the tension stations and through the eye of your needle, and you're ready to continue sewing. — Mary.

AT WIT'S END

How to look honest

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't cheat on my income tax. I don't lie about my age on my driver's license.

I don't tell my dentist I floss when I don't.

So how come I have trouble looking honest?

Ever see me going through customs? You can't miss me. I always look like a poodle who has just missed the paper.

I contend you can always tell when a person is lying. He looks you directly in the eyes and with a sincerity that belongs in the pulpit says, "You can believe me." Maybe it's because people have more riding on a lie than they do on the truth.

I try too hard with the truth... especially when I bear the burden of it.

When my husband asks, "How did that dent get in the car door?" I approach the car like a bullfighter with irregularities... a little stiff-legged, a little hesitant. Don't be too quick to find the spot... nor too dumb to recognize it when you see it. Now, run fingers over it slowly, clear throat, and say in an even voice, "I don't know. This is the first time I've noticed it. Who could have done such a thing? I didn't do it! I certainly would have remembered. Did someone say I did it? They lie!"

Don't talk too much. Go for more indignation. "That's a terrible thing to do and then run." Look him in the eyes. He's getting suspicious. "I suppose I could have done it, but..."

Ten minutes later, I am making a full confession for something I didn't do. I've seen honest people wrestle with the problem for years — people who feel like Jack the Ripper because they mistook a $1 for a $5 when they paid their bill, or who were stopped going through airport security for a piece of foil wrapped around their gum.

My Armageddon occurs when my charge is called in for verification. It only takes three or four hours, but it seems longer. First, I try to look bored like it's just a formality. Then in a move of self-assuredness I begin arranging the package under my arm like it's only a matter of seconds. When the salesperson is not looking at me, I search her eyes for some sign of panic or mistrust. My eyes lack coordination (like Marty Feldman) and my throat becomes dry. Sometimes I hum. If I have to go to the credit office, will I make a joke out of it or pass out?

Honesty... it's painful. Trust me. You have to believe that...

Well, that was a little before my time but surely someone out there has seen and remembers how to make those stars.

Sounds intriguing to me, what with so many people wanting to enjoy nostalgic memories by dressing their trees with homemade decorations.

So, dear readers, if you have any ideas or background on Mrs. Wanner's childhood memory, write me pronto in care of this newspaper.

I'll love you for it, and so will she. — Heloise

Histiocytosis gives victim hard time

By KARREN MILLS

Associated Press Writer
NEW HOPE, Minn. (AP)—When Ronya was 8 months old, her body was swollen like a balloon, she could hardly open her eyes and one of the glands in her neck was the size of an orange.

She had a high fever, was vomiting and had diarrhea, when she was admitted to Minneapolis Children's Health Center April 22.

Doctors were stymied. They tested her blood, urine and bone marrow, but the tests didn't show anything wrong.

Finally they took tissue from Ronya's glands and ran further tests which showed she had histiocytosis, a fairly rare disease in which scavenger cells called histiocytes multiply rapidly in the body.

Once the doctors knew what was wrong with Ronya, they began treatment immediately.

"In one, night the swelling went down. After two days she laughed and she started to play with me," said Ronya's mother, Zi Zi Nadquor, 31, New Hope.

"Four days after the treatment began the kid was just super. That was amazing to everybody. Nobody thought she would live. She was in just terrible condition," Mrs. Nadquor said.

Ronya spent three weeks in the hospital, her mother with her the entire time. And the time away from home was beginning to wear on the family.

"My 5-year-old son, Tamer, really suffered," Mrs. Nadquor said. "He came to the hospital to see us, and he'd cry and ask us to come home. He knows his sister's sick and Mommy's with her. But he also sees every-one giving attention to the baby."

Ronya was able to leave the hospital much sooner than would have been possible otherwise through a program offered by Children's Health Center to families who are able to care for a sick child at home.

Because Ronya's veins were very difficult to locate, doctors inserted a small tube in her right arm and ran it across her chest into a large vein near her heart.

Now when Ronya goes in for her biweekly shot, her doctor just uncaps the tube in her arm and gives the medication, which must go directly into a vein.

The line could also be used for a blood transfusion, if necessary.

Mrs. Nadquor had to be taught how to keep the tube clean and free of bacteria before Ronya could be sent home.

"We've never put such a contraction in an infant so small before," said Becky Bedore, a nurse who directs the hospital's home care program.

Tamer is encouraged to help. He gathers supplies, holds his one-year-old sister during the procedure and cheers her up.

Mrs. Nadquor and her husband, Mohamed, 43, meet with someone from the hospital every other week, and if they have questions in between they can confer by telephone with doctors or nurses.

The Nadquors understand there are no promises, even though Ronya now is a chubby, smiling baby who appears normal.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

No tricks, just truth

It is God Himself, in His mercy, who has given us this wonderful work [of telling His Good News to others], and so we never give up.

We do not try to trick people into believing—we are not interested in fooling anyone. We never try to get anyone to believe that the Bible teaches what it doesn't. All such shameful methods we forego. We stand in the presence of God as we speak and so we tell the truth, as all who know us will agree.

If the Good News we preach is hidden to anyone, it is hidden from the one who is on the road to eternal death.

Satan, who is the god of this evil world, has made him blind, unable to see the glorious light of the Gospel that is shining upon him, or to understand the amazing message we preach about the glory of Christ, who is God.

We don't go around preaching about ourselves, but about Christ Jesus as Lord. All we say of ourselves is that we are your slaves because of what Jesus has done for us.

For God, who said, "Let there be light in the darkness," has made us understand that it is the brightness of His glory that is seen in the face of Jesus Christ.

Writer finds it's 'hard work,' completes his third novel

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Daniel Keyes is a writer who tries not to write.

"Writing is hard work for me," says Keyes, "because I have to find a subject that interests me. And finding a subject that resonates with my personality is not easy."

"The subject has to seek me out and even then I try not to write it. But, if it's a good subject, if it keeps coming back to me, then I say, 'OK, I'll write you.'"

Noting that he has published only three novels in 14 years, the 53-year-old Keyes adds with a smile that "obviously this doesn't happen frequently."

The idea for his latest novel, "The Fifth Sally," nagged at him for years and went through numerous changes, he says, before he finally sat down and wrote a book about a young woman with multiple personalities — five of them.

It came to him, he says, after his first and best-known novel, "Flowers for Algernon," was published in 1966. "That book, 'Flowers,'" Keyes says, "also took a long time to germinate. I got the idea for it when I was teaching retarded children and one day one of them came up to me and said, 'I want to get smart.'"

"That boy's words haunted me for years, and I kept thinking what would happen if it were possible to increase human intelligence artificially? I tried character after character, maybe 50 of them, and then years later a magazine editor asked me to write a short story and I sat down and wrote it in three weeks.

"But even when it was finished I never stopped thinking about the character, Charlie Gordon, a retarded man made highly intelligent, and so I spent about three years turning the story into a novel."

Keyes says he wrote the novel while teaching at Wayne State University in Detroit. He did his second, "The Touch," a story about a couple contaminated by radiation, while teaching at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, a position he still holds.

But, he says, his first novel kept haunting him over the years.

"I thought of doing a sequel to 'Flowers,'" says Keyes, "but it wasn't working. However, it did give me the idea of writing about a dual personality, and that's the genesis of 'The Fifth Sally.' She started out as a man with a dual personality and ended up a woman with five personalities.

"I had a couple of reasons for changing the character's sex. One was that I felt that if I was going to write seriously I would have to write about a believable woman because more women suffer from multiple personality than men.

"Another was my feeling that if I could write about a woman successfully — and I think I did this — then let's make it even harder and turn that woman into a metaphor of our time — the divided self. Whether I succeeded or not is up to the readers to decide."

Keyes is now working on a non-fiction book. He says he became so interested in the multiple personality that he decided to do a book about a real man who has "at least 10 personalities. It's difficult to write, but it's fascinating."

He says his teaching does not interfere with his writing. "I'm very lucky. I have afternoon classes which leaves the morning for me. I'm usually at my desk at 6 a.m. and I stay there until 11, and then I go and teach — literature and creative writing.

Cab ride was rather wild for veteran TV newsman

CHICAGO (AP) — CBS newsman Dan Rather has "been in and out of Chicago taxicabs" plenty of times, but this time he says he had some trouble getting out.

Rather than take the veteran reporter where he wanted to go, a cabbie allegedly refused to let him out and raced south on Lake Shore Drive at speeds up to 75 mph until an off-duty corrections officer forced him to the curb.

The driver, identified as Eugene Phillips, 38, of Chicago, was charged Monday with disorderly conduct and refusing to let a passenger out. He was released on $35 bond, police said.

Phillips said later he hadn't recognized Rather, who will succeed Walter Cronkite as CBS News anchorman next year, and refused to let the newsman out because Rather wouldn't pay his fare. In a television interview, he said keeping a non-paying customer in the cab was "standard procedure."

But it looked out of the ordinary to the off-duty Cook County Corrections Department officer who saw Rather "screaming and waving" and pursued the speeding cab.

Rather called the incident "a very minor thing."

"I've been in and out of Chicago taxicabs seemingly most of my life. Most of the time it's not a problem," he said in an interview with WBBM-TV, a CBS-owned station.

The incident began when Rather caught a cab at O'Hare International Airport and asked to go to the home of author Studs Terkel near Lake Shore Drive. Rather was to interview Terkel for a segment of the "60 Minutes" news program, said Jack Smith, Midwest bureau chief for CBS News.

Smith quoted Rather as saying the driver became "verbally abusive" during the ride and refused to turn off Lake Shore Drive when Rather pointed out his destination.

Corrections officer Marthie Lee was driving to work at the Cook County jail complex when she saw the taxi racing south.

"The passenger seemed extremely agitated," said Miss Lee, 30. At first she thought it was "probably just another tipsy passenger" until she noticed he was "screaming and waving" at every car.

The cabbie allegedly failed to stop when Miss Lee flashed her badge, so she and an unidentified driver began chasing the cab, forcing it to the curb several minutes later, six miles south of Rather's intended destination.

"The taxi driver was ranting and raving and cursing us out" and complaining his passenger had not paid the fare, said Miss Lee.

Phillips said he and his passenger began arguing because Phillips was having trouble getting to the address.

When they finally arrived, Phillips said Rather refused to pay the fare until he saw Phillips' license. But the driver said he couldn't produce the license because he had surrendered it pending a traffic court appearance. He was permitted to drive "on a ticket," or temporary license, until the hearing.

After trying unsuccessfully to collect the fare again, Phillips said he sped toward his garage.

Police said Rather at one point offered to pay the fare, but Phillips refused to take it.

Phillips was scheduled to appear in traffic court on Jan. 23.

Voyager I moves into Saturn's realm

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After a 38-month, billion-mile journey, Voyager I was hurtling just 2,500 miles above Saturn's moon Titan today, snapping photographs of its dense orange atmosphere as the unmanned probe sped toward the golden planet's shimmering rings.

"Titan is getting a little bit better (in Voyager's cameras) every day," Bradford Smith, head of the Voyager camera team, said Monday as photographs revealed an orangish ball with a dark cap over the north pole.

The photographs also showed a rather sharp boundary near the moon's equator and a uniformly brighter surface in its southern hemisphere.

On Wednesday, the ship will reach the climax of its voyage, sailing under Saturn's rings to explore the planet's churning clouds from less than 80,000 miles away.

Its cameras, radios and other scientific instruments also will probe the complexity of the rings and the mysteries of Tethys, Mimas, Enceladus, Dione and Rhea, five of the planet's 15 moons.

One of the biggest hurdles for Voyager's radio signals is not its distance from home, but the weather on Earth. Some five hours of data were lost Saturday when a rainstorm inundated a tracking station in Spain.

During critical close encounters today and Wednesday, the robot ship will store its data collection on tape recorders.

Voyager's discoveries already have scientists happily puzzled.

Photographs Monday showed a gigantic cloud of hydrogen gas swirling around the ringed planet. The cloud is shaped like a flattened doughnut several hundred thousand miles thick, William Sandel of the University of Southern California said at a news conference.

"The presence of hydrogen in the atmosphere of Saturn has been known for some time... but the shape (of the huge cloud) doesn't conform well at all to what was expected," Sandel said.

The size of the hydrogen ring "means some mechanism, which we don't know, is operating to spread the hydrogen over a much larger region of space than we thought."

Beside providing close-ups of never-before-seen details of Saturn's cloudy surface, Voyager's photographs also showed unsuspected complexities in the rings, frozen debris only a mile or so thick but stretching nearly 300,000 miles from the planet. What most astronomers had considered six broad rings actually are filled by dozens, perhaps hundreds, of small but distinct ringlets.

And Voyager has revealed new Saturnian moons and glimpses of their surfaces.

Photographs of Rhea showed mixed patches of light and dark, with a bright spot. And Dione has what looked almost like a giant, bright starfish on its side.

The moons seem to be mostly water-ice, though they may have a rocky core, scientists say. As Voyager moves closer, Smith expects sharp, interesting photographs, not "just bland, snow-covered or frosty surfaces with no detail at all."

Voyager, which left Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Sept. 5, 1977, and sailed past Jupiter in March 1979, will journey out of the solar system after exploring the sixth planet, beginning an endless cruise among the stars.

An almost identical sister ship, Voyager 2, will reach Saturn in August and continue on to Uranus in 1986 and Neptune in 1989.

Jeanne may become hurricane

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Jeanne strengthened today as it moved slowly through the Gulf of Mexico, and forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said it could grow into a rare November hurricane.

"There is a possibility that it will be upgraded to a minimal hurricane" with winds of perhaps 75 mph, public service forecaster Alvin Samet said. Tropical storms attain hurricane status if their winds top 74 mph.

At 5 a.m. EST, Jeanne's highest winds were estimated at 60 mph. The storm was about 425 miles southeast of New Orleans — near latitude 24.4 north, longitude 87.1 west — and was moving north-northwest at about 6 mph.

At least seven persons were killed and many more injured in a fog-caused accident in the south-bound lanes of I-15 near Fontana, Calif. early today. Involved were seven cars and at least that many trucks. (AP Laserphoto)

Dense fog causes fatal traffic pileup

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — As the minutes ticked by, vehicle after vehicle entered the fog and slammed into a growing heap of twisted, smoking metal.

When the fiery chain reaction stopped, seven people lay dead and 17 injured in a half-mile of wreckage that included two dozen vehicles, police said.

The chain-reaction pileup, which involved eight tractor-trailers, began about 7:10 a.m. Monday as near-zero-visibility fog hung over Interstate 15, the California Highway Patrol reported.

So tangled was the wreckage that a snowplow had to be used to clear the mass of metal described by coroner-investigator Nelda Britton as looking like "a junkyard."

"People were nuts," said Christopher Short, 20, of Rialto, one of those injured. "They didn't even hit the brakes ... just wham, wham, wham. It was awful."

One or two of the victims may have been trying to flag down traffic as fog-blinded motorists kept plowing into the wreckage, witnesses said.

"I'm pretty sure two guys were run over waving traffic," said Jeff Maxson of Bellflower.

County Chief Deputy Coroner Leo Reyes said two victims "were burned to a crisp." Five men and two women died.

Four of the victims were identified as Linda Ann Schulz, 37, of Hesperia; Edward James Waroway, 38, of Apple Valley; Jean Rene Pariseau, 46, of Victorville; and Mary Helen Young, 54, Chino.

Also killed was a couple from Ontario and a person thought to be from Tennessee. Their names were withheld pending notification of relatives.

Truckdriver Jerry Nevins, 35, of Lodi, was trapped in his cab for 1 1/2 hours. He was in critical condition in an Upland hospital. The other 16 hurt were believed to have been less seriously injured.

The accident apparently began as motorists descended a long, clear visibility grade from Cajon Pass and suddenly encountered dense fog, officials said.

About 7:10 a.m., one car slowed down in the far right-hand lane of the freeway and a pickup truck struck it from the rear, California Highway Patrol officers said.

Soon, they said, vehicle parts, blood and clothing littered the pavement. It took two hours to get the last body out of the wreckage.

William Nitti, southbound on I-15 in a semi-trailer, said he slowed his rig and it was hit from behind by a pickup truck. Nitti, who was not injured, got out and ran over to the pickup but its two occupants appeared to be dead.

He said that for the next "five to 10 minutes" he stood at the roadside as vehicle after vehicle slammed into one another.

The accident shut down 12 miles of the southbound lanes of the freeway at the northern end of San Bernardino, 60 miles east of Los Angeles, for about five hours.

Four Americans arrested in Madrid in Helsinki protest

MADRID, Spain (AP) — An American punctured his arms and bled on a Soviet flag today and three other Americans were reported arrested in an anti-Soviet demonstration as diplomats tried to draft an agenda for a conference to review compliance with the Helsinki agreements on human rights and detente.

Meris Kirsons, a 40-year-old preacher from Philadelphia, staged his demonstration in front of the main entrance of the Madrid convention hall where diplomats from 35 nations were trying break the stalemate over the agenda for the East-West conference, which was scheduled to begin today.

He spread a Soviet flag about 4 1/2-feet square on the pavement, then a friend helped him remove bandages revealing needles stuck in his forearms. Blood immediately began pumping from his arms and through plastic tubes onto the flag. Kirsons spread his arms and said he was spilling blood "for all the oppressed people of the Soviet Union."

A policeman stepped forward and asked him if he was all right or wanted help. Kirsons said no, and after about 10 minutes a police car with plainclothed officers took Kirsons away. Uniformed police took away the blood-soaked flag.

Police said they had no record that Kirsons was arrested, but three other Americans, not further identified, were reported arrested in several demonstrations outside the convention hall, including one by a group demanding a "Free Latvia."

Kirsons and the others are natives of Latvia, a Soviet republic that is predominantly Christian. Exiled Soviet dissidents want to use the Madrid conference as a forum to denounce human rights violations inside the Soviet Union, including persecution of Soviet Christians, Jews and intellectuals.

There was no sign of a breakthrough in the conference hall, a Western spokesman reported after all-night marathon talks ended just before dawn. The Soviets are trying to limit debate on human rights and blunt an expected Western attack on the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Instead, they are pressing for more time to debate detente and arms reduction.

Nearly 10 weeks of preparatory talks to try and agree on an agenda or the rules to govern the review meeting of the European Conference on Security and Cooperation have failed to overcome the disagreements.

Diplomatic sources refused to speculate on when or even if the main meeting to review compliance of the Helsinki agreements of 1975 would begin moving.

Signs of optimism earlier in the day diminished, with one American delegate saying he was "rather pessimistic" about solving the procedural problem.

Switzerland, whose delegation was appointed to mediate the dispute, had all the clocks in the conference hall stopped at one minute before midnight Monday to postpone symbolically today's scheduled conference opening.

Sources from neutral nations said if behind-the-scenes meetings did not resolve the procedural problems, a small committee representing Eastern, Western and neutral nations would be asked to seek a compromise.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko accused the West of trying to turn the Madrid meeting into a "verbal bullfight."

Iran threatened with destruction

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein threatened Iran with destruction if it did not surrender its claim to the disputed waterway between the two countries, but Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr claimed his forces have "effectively stopped" the Iraqi invaders.

"We were not happy to see Iran destroyed (before). But since Iran became our enemy, we shall be very happy to see it destroyed," Hussein said Monday in response to written questions from more than 150 journalists.

"We may find it necessary to increase twisting Iran's arm until we wrench our rights," he said. "If the amount is not sufficient, we shall exceed it to the limit until they are ready to negotiate..."

"No matter how long the war takes, we are prepared for it. We are ready for future battles next year or in two years."

Kuwaiti newspapers said Hussein was sending Vice Premier Tarek Aziz to Moscow to seek arms, spare parts and ammunition under the Iraqi-Soviet friendship treaty. Iraq has ordered 60 Mirage jet fighters from France but deliveries are not expected to start until early next year.

Iraq invaded Iran Sept. 22 to regain sovereignty over the eastern half of the Shatt al-Arab estuary, which forms part of the border between the two countries and is Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf, and to expel the Iranians from three tiny islands at the mouth of the gulf which the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi seized in 1971.

Pars, the Iranian news agency, said Bani-Sadr reported Iran's armed forces "effectively stopped the enemy and are hoping to begin the second stage of the fighting, which is the pushing back of the enemy to where they came from."

With the war in its 51st day, Tehran Radio reported that Iran's Supreme Defense Council decided at a meeting Monday night to seek clarification of peace proposals conveyed by Cuban Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmierca.

The broadcast said one of the points Malmierca suggested was for Iraq to withdraw from Iranian territory if Iran accepted the

I-15 near Fontana, Calif. early today. Involved were seven cars and at least that many trucks. (AP Laserphoto)

1975 agreement that gave half the Shatt al-Arab to Iran. But Iraq abrogated this pact a week before it invaded and now apparently is seeking territory on the Iranian side of the waterway as well as all of the estuary.

Iraq said its forces downed two Iranian jets Monday in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province. Iran said its paratroopers killed 100 Iraqi soldiers near the provincial capital of Ahwaz, and that its helicopter gunships attacked Iraqi positions near the refinery city of Abadan.

At the northern end of the 300-mile invasion front, Iran said its artillery destroyed Iraqi positions near Qasr-e Shirin, killing about 30 Iraqis and wounding more than 50. It said Iranian anti-aircraft fire downed an Iraqi transport helicopter in the same area, killing about 20 troops.

Neither government allows Western reporters to visit the battlelines to any extent, but their communiqués indicate the front lines have been unchanged in two weeks since Iraq took most of the port of Khorramshahr and completed encirclement of Abadan, the oil refinery city 10 miles to the southeast.

Meanwhile, an official at the Iranian Embassy in Rome reported that former Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh was freed from Tehran's Evin Prison Monday. Ghotbzadeh, a member of Bani-Sadr's moderate faction in the power struggle with militant Islamic clerics, was jailed last week after a television speech criticizing government officials and the Islamic militants holding the 52 American hostages.

Today was the 374th day in captivity for the Americans, and the United States on Monday replied to Iran's four conditions for their release. Officials in Washington said the reply, delivered in Algiers by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher to Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia, contained the pledge of non-interference in Iranian affairs demanded by Iran and an explanation of the legal and financial obstacles to meeting the demands for cancellation of all American claims against Iran and return of the fortunes which the shah and his close relatives transferred abroad.

Jury views fatal shootout films again

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The jury in the murder trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and Neo-Nazis is taking another look at videotapes of a shootout last November that left five communists dead.

The jury, which spent most of Monday looking at television news films of the violent confrontation at a "Death to the Klan" rally, asked to see a third tape when deliberations resumed for a third day today.

Each defendant is charged with five counts of first-degree murder and one count of felonious rioting. All have pleaded innocent to the charges.

The jurors asked Superior Court Judge James M. Long for a complete list of evidence introduced in the trial and a list of witnesses who testified. They also asked to again view videotapes of the confrontation.

Long denied the request for a list of evidence and witnesses, saying he could not give them the items without the unanimous approval of all nine attorneys in the case. However, he said the jurors could examine the hundreds of pieces of evidences displayed on a table in the courtroom.

Long also allowed them to view the videotapes. Monday afternoon jurors watched intently on monitors set up in the courtroom as the confrontation was replayed on two television films.

The tapes showed demonstrators singing and practicing their chants before the rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party began.

Jurors began deliberations in the trial last Friday after 21 weeks of jury selection, testimony, evidence presentation and final arguments.

Still to be tried are eight Klansmen who were arrested in connection with the Nov. 3 violence. Eight followers of the CWP also face trial on charges related to the rally confrontation. Harold Covington of Raleigh, national commander of the American Nazi Party, said Monday in an impromptu news conference outside the courtroom that he will announce a new strategy for the party 24 hours after the verdict comes in for the trial.

Covington said he did not want to say anything before the verdict to "in-flame the jury."

However, Covington said if the Nazis are ever challenged again by the CWP, "They'll get the same thing we gave them in Greensboro."

Judge orders jury to continue deliberations in Mafia trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Saying that 4 1/2 days "is not that long," a federal judge ordered the jury weighing the case against five reputed Mafia leaders to continue deliberations.

The jury reported Monday it had reached decisions on some counts and was deadlocked on several charges. U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter told jurors to return Wednesday, after today's federal court holiday, and try again.

The decisions reached by seven women and five men were kept secret. Hatter said he would not take the verdicts until all the counts were resolved.

Defendants and attorneys who rushed to the courtroom Monday expecting a verdict were visibly shaken when they found no verdicts would be announced.

The judge said he was impressed with the jury's dedication and hard work, but he added, "Very frankly, 4 1/2 days is not that long."

"I hate to impose upon you further," Hatter told the jurors. "But I must urge you to go back on Wednesday and look at the counts again. Give it a bit more of your conscientious effort and try to reach a decision."

First word of the jury's impasse came in a note to the judge which said: "As to our reaching a unanimous verdict, there are several counts we have not been able to agree upon. We have tried for four days to reach a unanimous decision, and we cannot."

Evidence in the case, however, did not link all five defendants to the same alleged crimes. Each man is charged in four counts, and the jury must render 20 separate verdicts.

The defendants, reputed to be leaders of the Los Angeles family of La Cosa Nostra, are Dominic Phillip Brokkler, 66; Samuel Orlando Scior-tino, 62; Louis Tom Dragna, 59; Michael Rizzitello, 52 and Jack LoCicero, 68.

The government has fought for three years to bring the complicated case to trial in spite of repeated delays and legal tangles.

Slugging infielder outdistances Carlton

Phils' Schmidt named NL's top player

By HAL BOCK
NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Schmidt, the slugging third baseman who led the Philadelphia Phillies to their first world championship in 97 years, was named National League Player of the Year by the Associated Press today.

Schmidt easily outdistanced the field, leading a Philadelphia sweep of the first four places in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

He received 368½ votes, finishing far ahead of Philadelphia pitcher Steve Carlton, who last week won the National League Cy Young Award. Carlton received 81½ votes. Phillies bullpen ace Tug McGraw was third in the balloting with 13, followed by peppercorn first baseman Pete Rose, who had nine.

SCHMIDT SET a major league record for third basemen with 48 home runs, breaking the mark of 47 set by Hall of Famer Eddie Mathews in 1953. It was the fourth time in the last seven seasons that Schmidt has led the NL in homers.

He also won the National League runs batted in crown with 121. A perennial Gold Glove third baseman, Schmidt was selected to the All Star team for the fifth time last season and either led or was among the NL leaders in several other batting categories, including total bases, sacrifice flies, slugging percentage and runs scored.

SCHMIDT WAS the driving force in the Phillies' pulsating race to the National League East Division crown and had the game-winning RBI in each of his team's last five regular-season victories. It was his home run in the 11th inning on the next to the last day of the season in Montreal that ended the Expos' chances and clinched the division title for the Phillies.

Schmidt was named Most Valuable Player in the World Series after batting .381 with two home runs, seven runs batted in and six runs scored against Kansas City.

THE 31-year-old Schmidt is a favorite to be named National League Most Valuable Player when the Baseball Writers Association of America announces its selection later this month.

Other players receiving more than one vote were Dale Murphy, Joe Morgan, Garry Templeton, Keith Hernandez, Bill Buckner, Steve Garvey, Jose Cruz, Dave Parker, Ron LeFlore, Gary Carter, Andre Dawson, Dusty Baker and George Hendrick.

The AP American League Player of the year will be announced Wednesday night.

Oilers revert to character

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers almost forgot who they were Monday night when they jumped to a 24-6 halftime lead against the New England Patriots.

But the Oilers, who prefer a good cliffhanger to a blowout, quickly got back in character in the second half when they almost blew the lead and treated fans to their weekly chamber of horrors before pulling out a 38-34 thriller.

IT WASN'T decided until cornerback Greg Stremick intercepted a Steve Grogan pass in the end zone with 20 seconds left to play.

And it took a couple of Monday night specialists, quarterback Ken Stabler and running back Earl Campbell, to lead the Oilers through.

Stabler, who has posted a 10-1 record in Monday night games, completed 15 of 17 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns.

Campbell, in his fifth consecutive 100-yard performance in Monday night games, gained 130 yards on 30 carries and scored on runs of three and seven yards.

"It's not a matter of 'I' but 'We,'" said Stabler when asked about his Monday night success. "We've got an outstanding offensive team with a lot of talent."

Campbell, who had only 46 yards rushing in the first half, said he was trying too hard.

"A LOT of the problem in the first half was my fault," Campbell said. "I was trying to push things too much. In the second half I just slowed and let the offensive line do their work. Their defense came at us very hard. They've got a great club. There's nothing you can say bad about them."

The Oilers took an unaccustomed 24-6 halftime lead on a 45-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch, Stabler's touchdown passes of 79 yards to tight end

Mike Barber and 4 yards to tight end Dave Kasper and Campbell's 3-yard run.

New England could muster only field goals of 45 and 26 yards by John Smith.

But Grogan, who finished with 25 completions on 39 attempts for 374 yards, brought the Patriots to life in the third quarter with a 39-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson and Don Calhoun's 1-yard run.

The race really heated up in the fourth quarter with Campbell scoring on a seven-yard run and Grogan matching it with a 21-yard touchdown pass to tight end Russ Francis.

Stabler came back with a 16-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Mike Renfro, but Grogan had one more shot, a 15-yard scoring pass to Francis with 1:28 left in the game.

But it still wasn't over. New England's Mose Tatupu recovered an onside kick and the Patriots reached Houston's 19-yard line before Grogan threw into the end zone and Stremick ended the threat with his interception.

"I was looking for the corner on the interception," Stremick said of his first interception of the year. "I was taking a chance on thinking corner, but I acted like a receiver and I went up and shielded him from the ball."

New England Coach Ron Earhardt, who saw his team drop to a 7-3 record, was disappointed at his team's missed scoring chances.

"We had plenty of chances to win tonight, but the best team did not win," he said. "We're just as good as they are and we had plenty of opportunities to prove it. I feel very proud of our football team."

OILERS Coach Bum Phillips was equally proud of his team. "We played as good offensively as we possibly could have," Phillips said. "You all may not think our defense played well, but I'm telling you those people have put points on the board against everybody."

Rangers gives up on Howser

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The majority owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team has given up on attempts to get permission from New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner to talk to Dick Howser.

"I've turned everything back to Eddie (Robinson) and told him to get us a manager as quick as he could," Texas board chairman Eddie Chiles said Monday.

The search for a new Texas manager to replace Pat Corrales has been delayed while Chiles waited for four days for Steinbrenner to return his call.

"I certainly hope we have a manager by this week, and I don't see how we can wait around another minute on Dick Howser," said Chiles.

Steinbrenner has indicated he may replace Howser as Yankee manager, but he refused to talk to Chiles.

Robinson, the Rangers' vice president for baseball operations, apparently has narrowed the list of candidates for the Texas job to Howser, former Boston Manager Don Zimmer and former Yankee Manager Bob Lemon.

Neil Lomax...another Staubach?

What's a Neil Lomax?

By BOB BAUM

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — If you rate a college football quarterback by sheer statistics, then Neil Lomax might be the one of the best who ever played.

Dallas Cowboys scout Gil Brandt compares Lomax with Roger Staubach, who now is retired.

It is not unusual for Lomax to throw 50 to 60 passes a game for Portland State, a NCAA Division I-AA school.

He holds 42 NCAA offensive records and has passed for more than seven miles in his college career.

He threw seven touchdown passes in the first quarter of Portland State's 105-0 victory over Delaware State last weekend.

No other quarterback has ever thrown for more than four touchdowns in one quarter.

Two weeks earlier, Lomax led Portland State, now 6-3 for the season, to a 93-7 victory over Cal Poly-Pomona.

"Neil Lomax will have an impact in the National Football League," Brandt said after a recent trip to Portland to see Lomax in action. "Unless I'm completely off base, this is the kind of guy you can go with into the playoffs in three or four years."

Brandt says Lomax will be a first-round draft choice — possibly the second or third quarterback chosen.

That's heady praise for a youngster who wasn't recruited by a single major college team when he was a quarterback who almost never threw the ball at Lake Oswego High School in suburban south Portland.

At the last minute, Coach Darrell "Mouse" Davis of Portland State offered Lomax a scholarship.

With two games left in his collegiate career, the 6-foot-3, 212-pound Lomax has thrown for 12,298 yards. By comparison, Mark Hermann of Purdue holds the major college record of 9,205 yards.

Lomax has completed 58 percent of his 1,506 passes and has thrown an NCAA record 98 touchdown passes, breaking the old mark of 93 by Doug Williams of Grambling.

You would think his arm would get tired, but not so.

"During twice-a-day practices, I probably throw 500 or 600 passes a day," Lomax said. "I could keep throwing it all night."

Lomax has been trying to keep all of this in perspective, at the same time dodging an onslaught of agents begging to represent him in contract negotiations.

"They've been around a lot," Lomax said of the agents. "Mouse has done a good job of screening a lot of them before they get to me."

"It's really been difficult," Lomax said. "People have been trying to make me think about after-season things, like what team do you want to play for? I've got to concentrate on these last two games."

"You talk about size or arm strength or anything you want. This guy is a player," Brandt said. "He throws 40-yard deep outs that are something to behold."

Lomax operates the pass-oriented "run-and-shoot" offense invented by Davis. The quarterback is usually on the move in the offense and some scouts have wondered about Lomax's ability to drop directly back into a pocket as most NFL teams require.

Most of mystery gone heading into WT's final week

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

With one week to go in the regular football season district titles in West Texas football are usually still up for grabs.

This season is a little different. With the results of last weekend most teams know where they stand in the way of advancing into the playoffs.

District 2-AA
Van Pearcy scored three second half touchdowns to lift Andrews to a 29-8 win over Sweetwater. The win assures Andrews of advancing to the playoffs against Lubbock Estacado no matter what the results of Friday's clash with Snyder.

The Andrews-Estacado game will be played in Mustang Stadium in Andrews at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Nov. 21. Andrews won the toss of the coin. Estacado chose Jones Stadium on the Texas Tech University campus as its home field.

Monahans staked a claim for third place with a 12-0 win over Lake View. Sweetwater, with the loss, sinks to third place with a 5-3 district mark, 6-4 overall.

In a battle of cellar dwellers, Lamesa topped Ector 28-21 to assure the Eagles of finishing the season in last place. It was a long fall for Ector, winners of the league championship last season. Lamesa vaulted into seventh place as Snyder was whalloped by Fort Stockton, 57-0.

District 6-AAA
In a game of turnovers, Seminole won for the second time this season, first in the district by dumping Crane 16-0. Crane surrendered the ball four times on fumbles and four on interceptions in going down to their eighth defeat in nine outings. Seminole tried to give the game away, losing nine fumbles. Both teams now stand 1-1 in the district.

Denver City, 2-0, moved into the driver's seat of the district with a 6-3 win over Coahoma.

Denver City and Crane tangle Friday at Crane to determine the district winner.

District 6-AA
McCamey clinched a tie for the district crown by blasting Van Horn 34-0. With the victory McCamey is 7-2 on the season, 2-0 in league play.

The league championship will be determined Friday night when Clint and McCamey battle in McCamey. Clint raised its record to 6-4, 1-1 in district with a 25-7 drubbing of Marfa.

District 5-AA
Stanton has never been able to overcome the handicap of having Seagraves in the same district. Then, early this season Stanton dumped the Eagles 27-21 giving the Buffs hope this might be their year.

But, another foe popped into the picture. Plains, after losing two games early in the year, matched Stanton win for win in the league race. Three weeks ago Stanton and Plains battled to a scoreless tie.

At the time the tie didn't appear to hurt the Buffs as much as it did the Cowboys.

Plains still had to play Seagraves on the Eagles' field. Plains met Seagraves Friday.

When the smoke had cleared the Cowboys were 10-0 winners. Martin Hueta kicked a field goal and safety James McElroy plucked a fumble out of midair and zipped 82 yards to paydirt in leading the Cowboys to victory.

Plains and Stanton could end district play 5-0-1 if both win Friday night. But the championship would go to Plains because the Cowboys recorded 11 first downs to the Buffs 10 in their scoreless battle.

It was a bitter loss for Seagraves. The Eagles, now 3-2 in district, will miss the playoffs for the first time in seven years.

District 9-AA
Reagan County traveled to Mason with hopes of snapping a seven-game losing streak and slowing down the Punchers. No such luck.

Mason rambled past the Owls 39-7, dropping Reagan County to 1-8 for the year and 0-5 in the district.

With the win, Mason clinched a tie for the district crown. The Punchers end their season at Junction Friday and if they lose would tie Ozona for the title. Ozona stayed in the district hunt with a 13-0 win over Menard.

District 6-A
State-ranked Rankin bombed Grandfalls-Royalty, 49-0, Friday to claim the loop title.

Rankin earned a bi-district spot against Fort Davis, the District 5-A

Crow tastes good this fall

As we were saying Friday, the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech series isn't what it once was... After Saturday's 3-3 tie that cost the Irish their No. 1 ranking, they probably wish the series was still what it used to be.

It has been one of those years when flip remarks come out of the closet to haunt one... and haunt and haunt...

Another classic, "Webfoots pay for Arizona's effrontery," a reference to what UCLA would do to Oregon last weekend.

Or, "We don't believe Hogs can lose three in a row." Thank you, Baylor, for proving otherwise.

"Hogs have depth and Rice can't come up with two strong performances in a row." How about three strong performances?

"TIDE will remember last year when Emory Ballard's Bulldogs gave 'em a scare." Elephants just can't remember nothing, can they?

"Bruins will be out to better Notre Dame's margin of victory." Unbeaten UCLA preparing to devour Arizona.

Then, there was "It's one thing to switch horses in mid stream. It's possible but not against Texas. Especially when the switch is to a freshman quarterback." The wisdom accompanied the forecast of SMU's demise at the hands of Texas.

Or how about, Iowa State 40, Colorado minus 67... It's all very eerie, hearing those words come out of the closet, but it's what's making this season so much fun. The underdogs just don't believe the prophets or oddsmakers anymore.

DALLAS Cowboys' fans may not like George Allen, but as a TV analyst he's a genuine "tell it like it is" guy with a ring of authority... Did you hear that the TCU public address announcer was fired a couple of weeks ago for announcing a score during a game. Thought that was what they were paid to do, eh? Well, in this instance, winless TCU was down to Baylor 7-6 and making upset gestures when the PA man revealed that SMU had just beaten Texas, 20-6. After that it was "turn out the lights, the party's over" time for the Frogs...

The young man who introduced himself in the Tech press box before the Texas-Texas Tech game at Lubbock a couple of weeks back was David Spangler, son of Al Spangler, the Midland Cubs' first manager back in 1972-73. David is a sophomore in journalism at UT...

After the Oklahoma game, North Carolina Coach Dick Crum was heard to mutter, "How did these people lose two?"...

When the Denver radio announcer quizzed Houston Oilers' coach Bum Phillips after his performance against the Broncos a couple of weeks back, he began, "About Earl Campbell..." Bum interrupted, "You just said it all..."

Captain ended Hagerman's reign in Class A NM football with a 7-6 upset and meets unbeaten and top-rated Reserve for the state championship. The AA and AAA fields are set with eight teams in AA squaring off this week and the AAA teams Nov. 21-22. The 4A playoffs begin Nov. 21. In AA, Cuba eliminated Clayton 7-0 in one pre-playoff matchup while top-ranked Moriarty ousted Thoreau in a 32-7 decision. The quarterfinals will pit Cuba-Estancia, McCurdy-Jal, Moriarty-Escalante and Dexter-Lordsburg.

It took a pair of votes by the district members in 1AAA and 2AAA to complete the field for the playoffs in that division. In 1-AAA, Shiprock joins district champ Bloomfield in the playoffs. In 2-AAA, Raton upset Las Vegas Robertson to tie Robertson and St. Michael's for first with Raton and Robertson getting the playoff berths. Quarterfinals will see Robertson-Silver City, Portales-Bloomfield, Artesia-Raton and Shiprock-Socorro.

Unbeaten and top-ranked Albuquerque Eldorado clinched a playoff berth for the eighth straight year with a 43-20 win over Albuquerque Valley in District 2AAAA. The tightest is 1AAAA, where Santa Fe, Farmington and Gallup are deadlocked with 5-1 records.

TCU, not bowls, worries Fred

"Prime Time College Basketball," a national TV series signed up by stations in many major markets, will feature eight games, including Kentucky-Indiana, Kentucky-Indiana, the series' leadoff game 3 p.m. Dec. 6, Michigan-Purdue (Jan. 5), Texas-Arkansas (Jan. 12), Fordham-Notre Dame (Jan. 19), Providence-Louisville (Jan. 27), Kansas-Missouri (Feb. 9), Louisville-Marquette (Feb. 14), and Marquette-DePaul (Feb. 21) are all slated for 8 p.m. starts...

Texas Coach Fred Akers is more concerned with TCU than with the bowl scouts. "The bowl people are talking to us, but I'm concentrating on one thing and one thing only - TCU right now. We'll have our bowl opportunities, but the most important thing is getting our football team moving at a good, confident pace."

The 15-13 win over Houston was costly in that top scorer A.J. "Jam" Jones was knocked out of action, four to six weeks, with a dislocated collarbone...

SWC picks Singletary

DALLAS (AP) - Mike Singletary doesn't get as much business as he used to at the Baylor middle linebacker spot. When he does, the all-American still gives the business to the opponent.

Saturday's homecoming game against Arkansas was a prime example. He made 16 tackles, 10 of them unassisted and 3 behind the line of scrimmage in the Bears' 42-15 victory. It earned senior Singletary the fourth Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week award in his career.

TCU duo get Offensive award

DALLAS (AP) - The scene was out of a Latin America soccer riot. Stanley Washington, the back of his jersey torn away, had somehow escaped into the Texas Tech end zone with an 82-yard touchdown pass from Steve Stamp with 1:29 to play to give Texas Christian its first victory of the year.

Then the hard part started. Washington was mobbed and pounded and mauled by the entire TCU team, including coaches, trainers, and water boys.

Hours later TCU Coach F.A. Dry was carrying a piece of Washington's jersey which he had retrieved from the 25-yard line where Washington had caught the ball and tore away from three Tech tacklers.

The play, and several others like it, earned Washington and Stamp The Associated Press Southwest Conference Co-Offensive Players of the Week award.

Stamp completed 10 of 18 passes for 252 yards in the 24-17 victory, including a 33-yarder to Washington, who made a fantastic diving catch and knocked himself out.

51 go into FA draft Padres Dave Winfield heads list

By HAL BOCK NEW YORK (AP) -

Fifty-one players - the second highest total ever available - will be up for grabs in baseball's free agent re-entry draft next Thursday.

Headed by San Diego outfielder Dave Winfield, the draft class includes some high quality talent that should generate enthusiastic bidding as teams go shopping in the market place which has revolutionized the salary structure of their industry.

Winfield is on record as asking for a 10-year, $13 million package and even those high numbers haven't scared teams away. In fact, the New York Yankees were so concerned that he might be selected by the maximum 13 teams before they get a chance to draft him that they attempted to arrange a trade with San Diego to get Winfield before draft day.

That sent a few tremors through the Players Association and Player Relations Committee, guardians of the basic agreement under which the draft is conducted. But Winfield's decision to go ahead with the free agent process helped scotch the deal and he'll be available Thursday, along with some other attractive talent.

For those teams who believe in shopping in high-priced neighborhoods but might not be able to afford Winfield's numbers, there are other commodities. Outfielders Dusty Baker of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ron LeFlore of the Montreal Expos should attract plenty of attention along with pitchers Tug McGraw of the world champion Philadelphia Phillies and Don Sutton of the Dodgers.

Just below that level but still highly attractive are pitchers Bill Travers of Milwaukee and Dan Spillner of Cleveland, catcher Darrell Porter of Kansas City and third baseman Roy Howell of Toronto.

- AMERICAN LEAGUE: BALTIMORE ORIOLES - Pat Kelly, outfielder; Lee May, designated hitter; BOSTON RED SOX - Jim Dwyer, outfielder; first baseman; Dave Rader, catcher; CHICAGO WHITE SOX - Glenn Borgmann, catcher; CLEVELAND INDIANS - Dan Spillner, pitcher; KANSAS CITY ROYALS - Marty Pattin, pitcher; Peter LaCock, first baseman; Darrell Porter, catcher; Jose Cardenal, outfielder; MILWAUKEE BREWERS - Bill Castro, pitcher; Vic Harris, outfielder; Bill Travers, pitcher; designated hitter; Geoff Zahn, pitcher; Mike Cubbage, infielder; NEW YORK YANKEES - Gaylord Perry, pitcher.

Rookies will find the Golden Dome

By DICK BRAUDE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP)—The location is an old coal cellar in what was once a residential hotel where John F. Kennedy kept an apartment.

"The place still is fueled by hot air," says John Curran, who tends bar every night at the Golden Dome pub.

The Golden Dome is the political hotspot in Boston, a few yards from the Statehouse and named for the gold-leaf crown atop that building.

Statehouse newcomers elected last Tuesday will find the Dome a home away from home come January when they take office. Thousands of politicians and their cronies have spent many happy hours in the little bar-and-restaurant on Bowdoin Street.

"It's a good business, a very good business," says Leo Higgins who, with his brother Jim, bought the pub 4 1/2 years ago. "Jim says his grandchildren will have this place."

The Dome's managers may change but the clientele won't.

The Dome is a cozy den that serves food and drink, including cups of "coffee" when the Legislature works late. It's really a political clubhouse.

"It's a neighborhood bar that caters to politicians," says Curran. "It's a woman's land, neutral territory, a political melting pot. It's where they can talk shop."

When Higgins bought the Dome from an absentee owner, he asked old high school chum Curran to come along and tend bar. Both men are 39. Unlike many of their politician customers, both men also have an aversion to being photographed.

"It's turned out to be easier to run this business than I thought it would be," says Higgins. "It's a pleasure."

The pals were surprised by the pols.

"These are good people, a beer crowd, nothing fancy," says Curran, "and very good tipplers. To be elected, a guy has to be decent. Then it's a question of how he handles power."

"This is their back yard; if they're going to foul up, they go out of their territory."

"Neither of us had done much work with political people," says Higgins. "We met these guys and said, 'Hey, he's not the bum I thought.' It was a shock."

"I expected a smoky back room," Higgins says. He found one in the Dome but removed a sliding screen that had given the pols special privacy.

"Guys with $10 bills falling out of their pockets and women hanging around—that's part of Boston political history," he says. "It's a far cry from reality these days."

The reality is that the Dome is a political place. Curran is phoned by legislative clerks when a roll call is in progress. Tipplers need time to return to their legislative chambers.

Higgins concedes some of the politicians drink too much, but not at the Dome.

"If a guy has a problem, he's not going to throw his anchor out in one place. He'll have one here, another there, two more somewhere else."

"They're just representative of the people who vote for them. People hate that 'pack of legislators' but they like their own guy."

"We see them in human terms. Across the street, it's 'Mr. Chairman'. Here it's 'Hey you!'"

Curran says the Dome's customers include about half the 200 lawmakers, along with their aides and the horde of lobbyists. About 90 percent of the pols on Beacon Hill have made at least an occasional stop for a nip, Curran claims. Women are welcome and many are regulars, he says.

But there are "rules" for politicians who, effectively, can't come in—the big shots.

Gov. Edward King and his straight arrow predecessor, Michael Dukakis, are outsiders.

Former Gov. Francis Sargent did stop by—"to be a regular guy." But, Curran says, "It's hard. Once you're on top, you're not a pal anymore."

Exxon reports record volume gas discoveries

CORPUS CHRISTI—A record volume of natural gas is being discovered by Exxon USA in South Texas at a time when U.S. reserves are steadily decreasing.

The Company's South Texas Production division is drilling at its highest level in the past 20 years, according to W. A. Seard, division manager.

"Because of higher oil and gas prices," Seard said, "the Division has been able to drill deeper, improve recovery techniques, and develop the smaller, harder-to-find reservoirs that have proved so costly in the past."

Mature producing areas are once again in limelight as elusive and often small reserves become profitable to seek and extract. Last year, the South Texas Division drilled more than 200 wells, sears expects 20 working rigs to drill a record 224 wells this year, about three times the number drilled three years ago.

A fast-paced workover program has also helped add to production capability. "Workovers on older wells include a number of techniques to get more crude or gas out of a well," Seard said. "Sometimes we can boost production by repairing the tubing and casing in the well or by pumping fluids into the well at high pressures and fracturing the reservoir rock to stimulate the flow of oil or gas. We also try many completions to new reservoirs when existing zones are no longer capable of producing."

The South Texas Division completed 740 workovers last year and plans about the same number in 1960.

Exxon Co., U.S.A. is using "low profile" oil well pumps to minimize interference with the irrigation systems of cotton farmers in the Midland area. Because the new pumping units are less than 10 feet tall — compared with 35 to 40 feet for conventional units — farmers' pivotal sprinklers can pass over them. Bob James, left, with Exxon's Mid-Continent Production Division here, examines the cotton crop with farmer Bennie Nichols as a sprinkler passes over a "low profile" pump in the black circle.
