Elmer Norman, wearing a hearing headphone set, talks to newsmen.

$4.5 million won't change his lifestyle

By PAUL SIMON
Associated Press Writer

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Elmer Norman doesn't deny he wants the $4.5 million awarded him in a landmark lawsuit against an insurance company, but the 72-year-old retiree doesn't believe it will change his lifestyle.

Besides, Norman said at a news conference Wednesday, the Colonial Penn Franklin Insurance Co. is likely to appeal the award by a Pomona Superior Court jury, and whatever money he eventually realizes will be eaten up by taxes.

"I've been waiting five to six years to get this suit heard in court," said Norman, nearly deaf and also blind in one eye. "I would not be surprised if it took another five years for the appeals. At my age, the chances are I will never see one cent."

"In other words, my eyes aren't glued on the pot of gold." The insurance fraud suit was launched in 1976 after Colonial Penn initially refused to pay a $48 charge for a hearing examination for Norman, a retired apartment manager now living in Azusa. The action charged that the insurance company fraudulently switched Norman's health insurance policy in 1974 to one providing 40 percent less coverage, despite claiming that the change would result in "substantial improvement" in coverage.

Norman's lawyer, William Shernoff of Claremont, presented evidence that Colonial Penn planned to reduce its claims payment by $4.5 million a year by curbing its coverage to the 2.5 million members of the American Association of Retired Persons participating in the group program.

Norman said he filed the suit to help find a good insurance policy for the elderly, especially those who like himself suffer from chronic illness. "I don't know all the details," he said, "but it seems as though Colonial Penn was able to use the name of the American Association of Retired Persons as a form of camouflage to give themselves a good name."

Colonial Penn has come under fire from consumer advocates who claim the company preys on the elderly through its exclusive contract to provide insurance for members of AARP.

The company said it plans to appeal Tuesday's verdict, which included $70,000 in compensatory damages.

"We are shocked and disappointed by the verdict," said Daniel Crough, senior vice president and corporate counsel for the Colonial Penn Group, the parent company of the insurance business.

Crough said Colonial Penn had been losing money on its out-of-hospital coverage and told AARP that instead of increasing premiums it would reduce benefits.

Shernoff, however, said that the company was making a profit on the five other health policies it offered.

Norman said that if he did end up with lots of money from Tuesday's Superior Court award, he would donate much of it to consumer protection agencies, which preceded him in his battle against Colonial Penn.

U.S. must do more to free hostages, Iran says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said today Iran is taking a positive approach to U.S. proposals for release of the 52 American hostages and "that attitude is welcomed."

Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher.

But he said he has not received a response from Iran to the U.S. proposals transmitted last week through Algerian intermediaries. Depending on Iran's reply, Muskie said he was ready to send a top-level negotiating team back to Algiers.

Reports from Tehran quoted Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai as saying the Carter administration had agreed in principle to the four conditions set by the Majlis on Nov. 2 for freeing the Americans.

These are a pledge of non-interference in Iran's affairs, unblocking of more than $8 billion in Iranian assets, cancellation of all claims against Iran and return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The U.S. response, carried 10 days ago by Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher to Algiers, was not divulged. But administration officials described the proposals as generally positive and including a pledge of non-intervention.

Muskie, seeing Genscher to his limousine outside the State Department, told reporters that "we've said publicly we accepted the four points in principle."

However, he added, "that doesn't tell you much about the details, does it?"

According to the Tehran reports, Rajai wanted clarification of the U.S.

stand on return of the Shah's wealth.

Muskie was cautious in his comments.

"In the first place," he said, "we've not yet received a formal response. Indeed, it is not clear from the reports whether that response is in its final form yet."

"He (Rajai) has indicated that they will seek clarifications. He has not identified those clarifications except to suggest they relate to the Shah's property. I would not think there is enough in the wire service reports upon which to speculate, and secondly I don't think it is useful to try to respond to anything but a formal response when we receive it."

"What he has said apparently indicates we will get a formal response," Muskie added.

But asked if he was encouraged, Muskie said: "I think the way in which the Iranians have handled our proposals is positive. They've discussed it quietly. They've discussed it privately. They've not tried to characterize it publicly or reject it. So they've addressed it seriously, apparently, and are going to continue to do so. That attitude is welcomed."

Today was the 32 Americans' 383rd day in captivity.

President-elect Ronald Reagan's chief foreign policy adviser, Richard V. Allen, said on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program Wednesday night that the hostage crisis will be discussed Friday by Reagan's interim foreign policy advisory board, which includes former President Gerald R. Ford and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

"It is true that plans are being made. Options are being studied. It wouldn't serve any particular purpose for me to go into details now," Allen said when asked what Reagan would do if the hostages are still held when he takes office Jan. 20.

Allen said dealing with the hostage crisis was a "possibility, but certainly not the desired prospect" for Reagan.

Campaign boss likely CIA head

WASHINGTON (AP) — As infighting over prized Cabinet posts builds, Ronald Reagan will begin filling his administration's top jobs this weekend, and his friend and campaign manager, William Casey, is likely to be picked to head the CIA, sources close to the presidential transition say.

Sources said Casey, 67, who had some World War II experience in intelligence, faced virtually no opposition as CIA director, although stiff competition continued for many other Cabinet-level jobs.

Reagan, meeting with President Carter today for the first time since the election, plans to return Friday to California, where he is expected to begin making final choices for his Cabinet. The selections, however, are not expected to be announced for several days.

Transition sources said William French Smith, Reagan's 63-year-old personal lawyer, remained the clear favorite to become attorney general, and William Simon was considered likely to return to his old job as treasury secretary.

Smith, Casey and Simon are leading figures in Reagan's "kitchen cabinet," 19 senior advisers who drafted the list of top Cabinet candidates.

Sources said that while those three positions seemed fairly firm, the rest of the Cabinet selections still appeared fluid, with competing candidates and pressure groups jockeying for position.

Several aides close to the transition also noted that the list of candidates still could change and that Reagan might not follow it strictly.

Casey, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission in the Nixon administration, is one of Reagan's closest political friends and took over the presidential campaign after former manager John Sears was fired last winter.

Casey worked during World War II for the Office of Strategic Services, a forerunner of the CIA.

Although one source said he didn't think "anyone would challenge Casey" for the CIA post because of his close relationship with Reagan, most other Cabinet candidates lacked that clear an advantage.

Sources said the struggle over who will head the State Department was primarily between Gen. Alexander Haig, former NATO commander and President Richard M. Nixon's last chief of staff, and former Treasury Secretary George Shultz. Haig is backed by more hard-line elements within the Reagan camp while Shultz is considered more of a moderate.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, remained a prime contender for defense secretary, sources said. But one source said that choice "was not as solid as some of the others," while another source said Tower "was in the pack" of candidates.

Reagan met with Tower on Capitol Hill on Wednesday, but Tower refused comment on their talk.

Other names mentioned for the Pentagon job included Haig, former Treasury Secretary John Connally and Texas Gov. William Clements.

Midland police arrest Santa

Police officers had an elite guest in the City Jail this morning — Santa Claus, sans reindeer and his bag of goodies.

In fact, sans his red suit, too.

Police said they arrested a young man about 1:55 a.m. today in the 4200 block of West Wall Avenue for being drunk.

When brought to the Police Department to be booked, the man refused to tell officers anything — well almost anything.

He did tell them his name and address.

"He claimed to be Santa Claus and said he lived at the North Pole," said the desk sergeant this morning.

So, police put him where he'd feel right at home. "Santa" was put in the "sweatbox," a cell used to isolate prisoners who are belligerent and uncooperative. It has no beds or furniture, only a cold concrete floor. And, following procedures, officers took his clothing while he "cooled off" a little.

"We let them sleep on the cold concrete floor and we have them take their clothes off and let them stay there until they decide to cooperate," said one officer.

About 9 a.m., "Santa" apparently decided the North Pole wasn't so hot and that it was time to cooperate. He gave officers his name — one that made police a little happier than Santa Claus.

Hospital reports record revenues

Income exceeds $1 million for month of October

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Midland Memorial Hospital's finance committee reported record revenues of more than $1 million from patients for the month of October at the board of trustees monthly meeting Wednesday.

According to Robert Abernethy, assistant administrator of finance, the hospital's patient revenue for October hit $1,452,141,000 — the highest revenue generated in a single month in the history of the hospital.

"A key factor (in the increased revenue) has been the increased census," Abernethy said.

Hospital Administrator Ray Branson told the board members, "At this point, I'd say (the increase) is attributable to the influx of new doctors in this area." He said the increase in physicians servicing Midlanders was resulting in "a continual increase in occupancy."

Branson added that if the hospital could hire more registered nurses, additional rooms on recently renovated wings could be opened for even more occupancy.

Abernethy said the average number of inpatients a day for October was 147.3, compared to a budgeted 127.6 patients a day.

The increased patient revenue allowed the hospital to have an excess from operations for the month of $84,370, compared to a budgeted excess of $20,657, leaving a favorable variance in the figures of $63,713 above budget expectations.

However, Abernethy reported, when the monthly equipment depreciation expense is figured, the excess becomes a deficit of $9,380 compared to an expected deficit of $73,083 for the first month of the 1980-81 fiscal year.

The figures even seemed confusing to board members.

Trustee Gene Abbott told Abernethy he did not understand how the hospital could have such a large revenue month and still end up with a deficit after depreciation is figured in. "I for one have never had a finger on whether we're running a tight ship here," Abbott said.

Operations Committee Chairman and Trustee Roy Campbell answered Abbott, saying, "I feel that progress is being made. . . we're taking them one at a time."

Branson echoed Campbell, saying, "I believe we have a handle on where the money problems are now."

In addition, Abernethy reported the hiring of two additional men to help him in the financial end of the hospital's operation: a comptroller and a materials manager. The comptroller, Dale Miller, is a Texas Tech graduate in finance and came to Midland from a hospital in Atlanta, Ga., where he was also involved in finances. The materials manager, Carson Collins, is from Lake City, Fla., where he served in the same capacity, but he has not arrived in Midland yet.

U.S. is fooling itself on global oil supplies, grim Senate report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a grim report on global oil supplies, the Senate Energy Committee said today the United States is fooling itself if it believes reduced oil imports will insulate the nation from the hardships and possible conflicts resulting from the continuing energy shortage.

The committee, reporting on a year-long investigation into the international implications of the energy shortage, said the U.S. focus on reducing imports ignores the fact that energy self-sufficiency "is highly unlikely within this century, let alone within the next 10 years."

The committee said the stress on long-term energy independence has led the United States to neglect the urgent need to stockpile oil — for both civilian and military needs — to prepare the nation for likely supply disruptions.

Lack of such stockpiles could throw the United States into a panicked world market in a severe disruption, the report said. And the political deals that would be made in such a market — and are being made now by some consuming nations — could threaten the Western Alliance.

"Unless the industrialized countries rapidly develop a common approach to dealing with oil supply stringencies, more intensive competition among the consuming nations could drive ever-deepening divisions among the allied countries, creating new openings to be exploited by potential adversaries and increasing the danger of violent conflict in the Middle East," the report said.

It also said that producing nations have turned oil into a powerful political tool.

"Oil has been used to induce the United States, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and Brazil to trade advanced weapon systems and certain technologies which have military applications to the Middle East," the report said.

It added that, "As competition for oil becomes more divisive and extends deeply into the political sphere, the strains on the free-world alliance are likely to become severe. Such strains will affect all the industrialized countries whether or not they are 'energy independent.'"

The energy status of the Soviet Union also bodes ill for the United States, the committee said, because the Soviets can be expected to seek increased Mideast influence.

"By gaining greater influence over the Middle East producers, the Soviets can obtain leverage over Western Europe, the United States and Japan. . .

"Because the Soviets are not likely to possess the hard currency to buy oil on the world market, they might attempt to secure it through political manipulation, intimidation or use of force. . .

"By exploiting local unrest, giving aid to dissident groups, using diplomatic pressure and supporting revolutionary movements sympathetic to Moscow, the Soviets can substantially expand their influence in the region without having to take overt action."

Another problem with the Soviets, the committee said, is the growing Western European reliance on Soviet natural gas. It noted that France, Italy and West Germany already depend on the Soviets for 15 percent to 20 percent of their gas. Germany has felt obliged to announce it will not allow its dependence to exceed 30 percent.

"To the extent that the USSR is able to increase its gas exports to Western Europe, it can strengthen its economic influence over the West and constrain Western Europe's ability to join the United States in cooperating on political, economic and even military matters," the sturdy said.

The Commerce Department last week approved a proposed sale by the Caterpillar Tractor Co. of Peoria, Ill., of 200 pipelaying machines to the Soviet Union.

The Soviets hope to use the equipment to build a natural gas pipeline from Siberia to Western Europe.

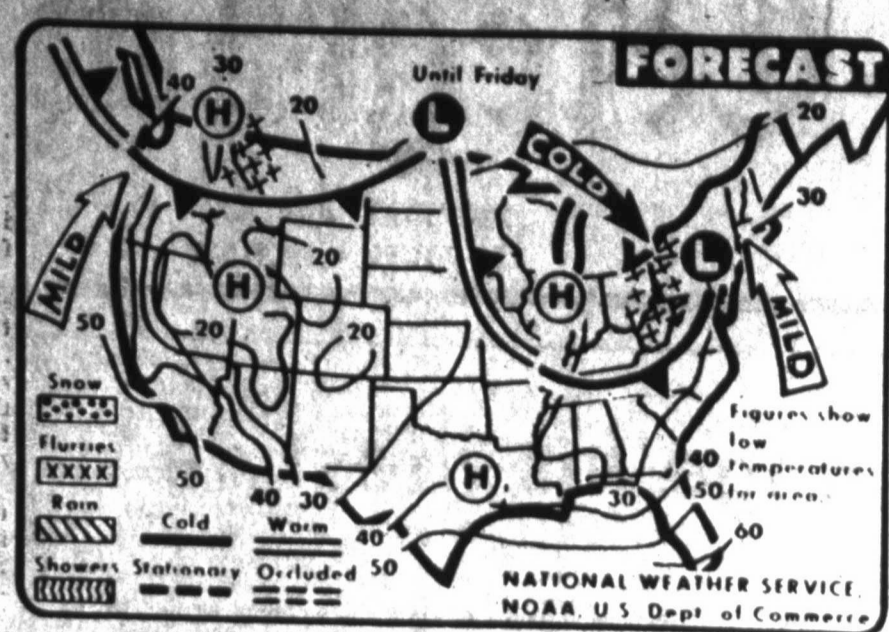

The committee report concluded that the United States "must recognize that the energy problem is not only a long-term issue, but that it is an immediate concern. And we must recognize that the energy problem has many international aspects."

The committee recommended that the United States begin building a Domestic Petroleum Reserve by filling its defense reserve as quickly as possible and by encouraging private stockpiles.

"Although the government should discourage hoarding during a crisis, it should promote, rather than interfere with, private sector efforts to build stocks in anticipation of a sudden shortfall," the report said.

The committee noted that the nation's defense reserve has only about a 20-day supply of oil and has had only sporadic deposits because of the opposition of producing nations. The Senate earlier this week voted to direct the administration to begin filling the reserve at a rate of 300,000 barrels a day, and the report endorsed a "significantly higher rate" than at present.

Protests come between jeans ad, TV viewers

NEW YORK — Nothing comes between Brooke Shields and her Calvin Klein jeans, but a torrent of protest has come between the jeans ad and local television audiences. The Calvin Klein commercial starring the 15-year-old actress has been banned by WABC-TV and WCBS-TV, the flagship stations of the ABC and CBS networks, after they were inundated by complaints about the advertisement's sexual overtones. The two stations broadcast in New York. The ad shows a reclining Miss Shields saying "You know what comes between me and my Calvins? Nothing." It's one of a half-dozen ads that began appearing in August. WABC-TV decided two others in the series can be shown only after 9 p.m. The CBS network said it was reviewing the content of all six ads. The New York Times said today the NBC network, which previously had OK'd the ads, also said it was "re-reviewing" them. The agency for the jeans maker had not bought any network airtime for the series, however, a spokesman said. At both NBC and CBS, the networks usually make censorship decisions and their stations and affiliates often go along with them.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson's real fear during the Vietnam war "was not from the left but from the right — people demanding that we get this thing over with by dropping the deadliest of bombs," says Lady Bird Johnson. In the latest American Heritage magazine, the former first lady said, "He didn't want to be the man ever to have to do it. I just don't think we ever would have gotten over the nightmare. What would we have loosed?" She was referring to the use of a nuclear weapon. Mrs. Johnson said her late husband would have decided against running for re-election in 1968 even without pressures from people dissatisfied with his conduct of the Vietnam War. Opposition to the war generally is considered to have been a factor in his leaving office.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actor Robert Redford didn't support the Indiana politician who's been described as his look-alike. But he got a joking thank-you message from Republican Dan Quayle, who won the senate seat held by liberal Democrat Birch Bayh. Quayle, with his blond-haired, blue-eyed good looks, had been billed as the GOP's answer to the handsome actor. And Redford didn't like that at all. Redford sent a telegram through Warner Communications Inc. in New York, protesting Quayle's use of his name and pictures in the campaign. "I have read articles on the 1980 Indiana Senate race where you are described as my 'look-alike,'" Redford said. "After comparing your record to that of Sen. Birch Bayh, it is clear to me that I am much more supportive of Bayh's views than yours." Unenthusiastic though it was, the telegram helped, Quayle joked. "The 'sting' operation worked," the 33-year-old senator-elect said, referring to the Robert Redford-Paul Newman movie. "By sending that telegram endorsing Birch Bayh, I won an overwhelming victory in Indiana. It was a great plan. Thanks. Everything's jake."

Resumes overrun Reagan offices

By ANN BLACKMAN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As assistant to Ronald Reagan's chief talent scout, Tom Dawson is finding a lot of friends these days he never knew he had. In the it's-who-you-know world of Washington, the president-elect's transition office is flooded with hundreds of resumes a day from people who want a piece of the power in the new administration. "I even get calls at home," said Dawson, 32, a Stanford Business School graduate on leave from a management consulting firm. "And I won't tell you how many resumes I have from my old associates. I certainly seem to have more friends now than I did before." An assistant to an assistant transition director consulted a handwritten list on her desk and said she gets about 25 calls a day from friends, associates and former co-workers interested in political appointments. "I even got a call this morning from someone I hadn't seen since we went to the same school in sixth grade," she said. "It's amazing us," said Dawson, assistant to E. Pendleton James, the executive recruiter who is running the temporary personnel office. "One day last week we got even more than 600. And the vast bulk of them are unsolicited." Every resume is reviewed, and those of candidates for the top jobs are stored in a computer, Dawson said. But most will be disappointed. Dawson said at least 3,000 names will be on the list for the top 300 positions — the under secretaries, assistant secretaries and deputy assistant secretaries who are paid between $50,000 and $60,000 a year. Those are just a few of the jobs available, and the stacks of resumes are likely to grow higher now that the "Plum Book" is out. That's the government's salary-by-salary, department-by-department list of jobs Reagan can fill when he takes office in January — from secretary of state to high commissioner of the trust territory in the Marianna Islands. It was an instant best-seller in Washington on Wednesday. Knowing what the jobs are, of course, is easier than getting them. It helps to know somebody. A good example is Dawson himself. A former foreign service officer who grew up in Washington, he worked for Reagan campaign chairman William Casey when Casey was an under secretary of state in the Nixon administration and then served in the U.S. Embassy in London when transition co-chairwoman Anne Armstrong was ambassador. Dawson said special consideration is given to people suggested by members of Reagan's inner circle, the Reagan-Bush campaign committee and the Republican National Committee. James also has informally asked executive recruiters and personnel directors from various organizations around the country to pay special attention to finding women and minorities, Dawson said. Once Reagan names his Cabinet, Dawson said, the personnel office will help the incoming department heads select their staffs. That's where "The Plum Book" comes in. Officially titled "Policy and Supporting Positions" and published every four years, it lists thousands of $45,000 to $50,000 jobs. The Government Printing Office said 1,700 copies were sold in the first five hours it was on sale Wednesday. For example, an assistant treasury secretary makes about $52,000. A Treasury Department accountant starts at $44,547 and a secretary starts at $13,672. In the Commerce Department, a confidential assistant to the assistant secretary for international economic policy starts at $44,547 while the federal co-chairman of the Ozarks Regional Commission makes $52,750. The private secretary to the administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service starts at $20,000 with annual raises. For the record, secretary of state pays almost $70,000. The Marianna Islands high commissioner makes $50,112.50 a year, same as U.S. representative to New Caledonia.

Housing industry may face more slowing, economists say

By GLENN RITT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The troubled housing industry may face more rough times ahead, economists say, in the wake of a government announcement that housing starts are slowing and the number of building permits issued is off sharply. The Commerce Department said Wednesday that housing starts in October rose 1.6 percent to an annual rate of 1.57 million units. That followed an 8.1 percent increase the previous month. All the improvement came from multi-family construction, which is heavily subsidized by the federal government. Single-family housing starts fell 4.4 percent. But the worst news was the Commerce Department report that building permits — a harbinger of future housing activity — fell 14.8 percent to an annual rate of 1.33 million units in October. That virtually wiped away the 14.9 percent increase in September. "We really don't have much hope for the next four to six months," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders. "Starts do not reflect activity as much as permits," he said. "Starts lag behind current conditions and are distorted by the involvement of the government in multi-family construction," he added.

"The mortgage rate rises are getting alarming," said William Cox, the Commerce Department's deputy chief economist. Sumichrast said he does not envision mortgage rates, which have recently been as high as 15 percent, dropping much below 13 percent through most of 1981. Housing starts dropped to an annual rate of 906,000 in May, before picking up during the summer when interest rates fell in the worst part of the economic slump. In other economic news Wednesday — The Commerce Department reported that the third-quarter upswing of the nation's economy was slightly smaller than first estimated. — The Commerce Department also said corporate profits between July and September improved from their dismal showing earlier this year, but still reflect problems when adjusted for taxes and inflation. The economy — as measured by the real gross national product — grew at a 0.9 percent annual rate between July and September, smaller than its earlier estimated increase of 1 percent.

A rallying point

In the hazy light following the election of Ronald Reagan as president, a sobering thought comes through sharp and clear: The new president is not a miracle worker. He will not wave a wand to make all of this nation's problems merely disappear.

There was ecstasy for Republicans immediately following the election not only because their nominee had won the White House, but also because GOP candidates won in several areas, including recapturing the Senate.

Much has been written and said since the election about the "conservative mandate" issued Nov. 4. It's true that there was an obvious and forceful statement by voters of their hopes and dreams for the future. There is a new hope in the United States. But to avoid being disappointed, all Americans must temper their hope with a nasty dose of reality.

The problems the United States is now encountering — inflation, unemployment, an unhealthy business climate, slow productivity growth — did not come about overnight. Reagan was elected in large part on that count because of what he offered Americans — a reversal of the trend in years past of bigger government, more taxation, more federal controls.

What no American should expect from the Reagan administration is the short-term, quick-fixes of some past administrations. As noted here before, the symptoms this nation is suffering now took a long time to develop. The cure also will take a long time.

It won't be an easy cure. Anyone who believes it will be simply naive. Putting the economy back on track, regaining the lost respect of other nations, rebuilding the nation's once feared and respected armed forces and reasserting our rightful role of a world leader and power will take the efforts of all Americans, not just Reagan or those in his administration.

Americans are proud. We love our heritage. We will refuse to take a back seat to any other nation.

But we must keep in mind where we have been because we never want to take that road again.

And we must rally behind the president because we are the ones who shape our destiny.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Federal drug stockpiles vulnerable to theft

WASHINGTON — Government stockpiles of narcotics, worth billions of dollars on the street, are highly vulnerable to theft because of lax security at federal storage centers, federal investigators concluded after a series of surprise inspections.

A still-secret General Services Administration report details the slipshod measures used to safeguard the large quantities of morphine, codeine and opium stored for emergency use at Denver, Colo., West Point, N.Y., and Fort Knox, Ky.

The report was provided to Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., as part of a continuing investigation of government waste and mismanagement. Here are some of the findings:

- Government employees are allowed to wander without supervision in drug storage areas, which are under the jurisdiction of the GSA and the Treasury Department. At West Point, for example, the investigators found that "police guards do not enter the storage vaults with GSA employees, who are allowed in the vaults alone and unobserved."
- When employees leave the storage vaults, they are subjected to a cursory search — by magnetometers similar to those used at airports to detect metal objects. The search "is not considered adequate to detect the presence of narcotic substances or diamonds, which are stored in the GSA vault and subject to pilferage."
- Regulations intended to assure security of narcotics during shipment have been ignored in some cases. One shipment of opium was transported in unsealed trucks; another was sent without armed guards.
- Incredibly, narcotics shipments are not weighed when they arrive at the storage centers, to make sure that the correct amount was received. In fact, the investigators found several discrepancies between the current inventory and the amounts that were supposedly delivered for storage.
- At one center, a shipment of 201 cases of opium weighed 29,382.15 pounds when it was received in 1951. But when it was sold in 1976, there was 167.93 pounds less of the drug. The shortage was "speculatively attributed to moisture loss, deterioration of packaging, possible decomposition of the opium and inaccurate receiving information," the report states without conviction.

Inventory record cards at the West Point facility were newly typed, with information summarized from the original cards. "Editing and typing new inventory cards is a serious deficiency, and raises a question as to why," the report notes.

Large quantities of individual-dosage packets of drugs were to have been destroyed at four federal storage centers after attempts to sell them failed, but the investigators expressed "significant doubts" that the narcotics were in fact destroyed.

"Accounting controls over stockpiles of narcotics are conspicuously negligent," the report concludes. Furthermore, "inventory records are unreliable and insufficient, physical counts are not performed, test weighing of receipts is not practiced and inventory reductions for destruction or sale lacked adequate controls."

At Denver, the investigators found morphine and codeine stored with quinone sulphate, often used as a "cutting" agent to dilute the drugs, inviting substitution to cover theft. "Considering present inventory and quality maintenance practices," the investigators wrote, "it is unlikely that such a substitution would be found for many years."

"Inspection and quality control procedures are inadequate," the investigators found. Many of the metal tins used to hold the drugs were found to be rusty, and had to be repackaged at substantial cost.

CONGRESS, POLICE THYSELF

If the Guinness Book of Records had a category for the least-enforced federal law, it would have to go to the statute that requires members of Congress to be docked a day's pay, $168.50, for every day they are absent without a good excuse while Congress is in session. The only excuses allowed are official business and either personal or family illness.

But no attendance records are kept, and the 1856 law hasn't been enforced in the Senate since 1865. In the House, it has only been invoked once in the last 10 years, and that was hardly an official crackdown. Rep. James Martin, R-N.C., turned himself in for taking off Oct. 9, 11 and 12, 1979, to attend to personal business. He was docked $505.52.

Martin's self-sacrificing example has not caught on, and his colleagues go right on collecting their full $60,662.50 a year, no matter how many days they play hooky.

FINGER-LICKIN' FOOBARAW

When the Agriculture Department reported that a typical fast-food meal cost Americans almost twice as much as a similar meal prepared at home, it went over like a bag of cold french fries with the folks at Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp.

They scratched around industriously and came up with a study of their own, done by a professor at Purdue University. The professor concluded that fast-food meals are actually cheaper. What he did was compute into the comparative costs the value of the time the consumers spent in the kitchen preparing the meal.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Nov. 20, the 355th day of 1980. There are 41 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 20, 1945, two dozen Nazi leaders were put on trial before an international war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg, West Germany.

On this date: In 1616, Cardinal Richelieu became the French minister of state for foreign affairs and war.

In 1818, Simon Bolivar formally declared Venezuela's independence from Spain.

In 1893, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the Great Lakes and their connecting waters were high seas.

In 1947, Princess Elizabeth of Britain married Lt. Philip Mountbatten in a ceremony at Westminster Abbey in London.

Ten years ago, a majority in the United Nations General Assembly voted to give China a seat, but the two-thirds majority needed for admission was not met.

Five years ago, Ronald Reagan formally announced he would challenge President Gerald Ford for the Republican Party's presidential nomination.

One year ago, 13 Americans were released by their militant captors in Iran, but Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini declared that the remaining captives would be tried as spies if the United States didn't return the ousted Shah of Iran.

Today's birthdays: Actress Gene Tierney is 60 years old. Senate Majority leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia is 63.

Thought for today: I never give them hell. I just tell the truth, and they think it is hell — President Harry Truman (1884-1972).

HEMISPHERE REPORT

More hopes than fears stirred by election of Ronald Reagan

Ronald Reagan's election has stirred more hopes than fears in Latin America.

The biggest hope is that election of the former California governor means that prosperity is just around the corner for the United States, and consequently for Latin America.

Latin Americans really want Mr. Reagan to succeed in getting the U.S. economy back in order so that the U.S. dollar may once again become as good as gold.

In many of the Latin American nations, economic and financial problems are such that their own currencies are dropping in dollar value. That, of course, is bad enough. But when the dollar, too, is declining in value — as indicated by the rising price of gold or oil, imported automobiles or manufactured goods — their problems are additionally complicated.

Latin Americans also hope that the Reagan administration will stop meddling in their internal affairs.

They fervently desire a reversal of the policy of the government of President Jimmy Carter, which has followed, and is following, toward Latin America.

The Carter administration started out trying to tell Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, Chile and other countries how they should handle their domestic matters.

Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, an articulate intellectual who was treasury minister before being elected president, gave Mr. Carter to understand how unwelcome was unsolicited advice from a foreigner who, by his own tacit admission, could not find any of the rest rooms in Mexico City's Fine Arts Palace and had to jog back to his hotel on his first visit to Mexico.

The Brazilians, Argentines and some others simply rejected the U.S. advice and, as in the case of Argentina these days, occasionally formally protest the actions of such State Department spokesmen as human rights activist, Pat Derian.

The expectation in Latin America is that the Reagan administration will not take any such false steps.

Neither Mr. Reagan nor any of his top advisers has spelled out the details of the president-elect's thinking on Latin America.

At one time, Richard Allen, his foreign policy adviser, said that Mr. Reagan was considering a major address on the United States and the Americas. Nothing came of that, though. In his post-election press conference in Los Angeles, Mr. Reagan touched briefly on the subject of relations with the rest of the hemisphere.

"With regard to the countries of South America, Central America and here on the North American continent, our two neighbors (Mexico and Canada), I have repeatedly made it plain that I think over the years we have let relationships deteriorate. And this should not be.

"And we are going to make every effort to bring together, by way of bilateral agreements and so forth, the peoples of the Americas so that North and Central and South America can be united in their determination to be free," the president-elect said.

Mr. Reagan also explained his position on human rights, saying that "it must be a consistent policy."

"I don't think that you can turn away from some country because here and there they do not totally agree with our concept of human rights, and then at the same time maintain relations with other countries, or try to develop them, where human rights are virtually non-existent," Mr. Reagan said.

With all of that, in principle, at least, the non-Marxist heads of state in Latin America could readily agree.

Lopez Portillo of Mexico, for example, said as much, in other words, in two television interviews he granted the day Mr. Reagan spoke.

The United States "should not intervene" in Central America, Lopez Portillo told the National Broadcasting Co. in the first interview. "All people ought to be respected, small or weak though they may be, just as the powerful people should be respected."

Later the Mexican president told an Italian TV interviewer that "fundamentally what has to prevail is the bilateral relationship between Latin American countries and North America..."

Politically, that is about what Mr. Reagan is promising. That, and a sound dollar.

Only the Marxists, in power in Nicaragua, Cuba, Grenada, and out of power in the rest of the hemisphere, voice fear of a Reagan government. And they do not sound rational.

ART BUCHWALD

Brinkley's next target will be the big enchilada

WASHINGTON — I hadn't seen "Deep Throat" in a long time. He said he had been out on the lecture circuit and didn't get to Washington too often.

"What did you want to see me about?" I asked him.

"I know who shot J.R. on 'Dallas,'" he said. "And it's no one mentioned so far."

"You mean it wasn't J.R.'s alcoholic wife, or his spurned mistress Kristin, or one of his brothers, or one of the long list of men J.R. cheated in deals?"

Deep Throat shook his head.

"What about J.R.'s mother? She could have plugged him to save the rest of the family."

"They're all red herrings," Deep Throat said. "No one on the 'Dallas' show did it."

"Then who did?"

"David Brinkley."

"Brinkley? Our David Brinkley?"

"It's a long story. But believe me, I've got it straight. Tell Katharine Graham she can go with it. When Brinkley decided to give up his chores on NBC's nightly news, the powers that be said they wanted him to head up a magazine show similar to '60 Minutes' and '20/20.' Freddie Silverman, the big enchilada at NBC, told David he could have anyone he wanted for the show and complete control of its content. Silverman said he would back Brinkley 1,000 percent because he wanted to give NBC News the respectability it so richly deserved."

Art Buchwald

"David took the assignment, hired a first-class crew of reporters, editors and producers and was ready to go. Then Silverman broke the news to him that he was putting the program opposite CBS' 'Dallas,' the most popular show on television."

"That must have thrilled Brinkley."

"On the contrary — he got sick. While he was in the hospital he decided he had only one choice: He would have to shoot J.R. to save his show."

"I know Brinkley. He doesn't appear to be a man who would resort to violence."

"TV ratings do strange things to people," Deep Throat said. "Brinkley hated J.R. more than anyone in this country. J.R. was a louse, a rotter, a man who would seduce his own sister-in-law just for laughs. He did terrible things to people — but the nastier he became the more he was looked upon as a cult hero by the two or three hundred million people around the world who watched his show. Brinkley figured if he knocked off J.R. he would not only save his own program but do away with one of the more despicable characters on television."

"OK," I said. "So he had a motive. But how did he manage to pull it off?"

"Brinkley said he was going to Dallas to do a favorable windfall profits story on the oil companies. He called J.R. and told him he wanted to feature the Ewing Oil Co. because it represented everything that was good in the petroleum industry. He made an appointment to film J.R. at his office late at night, when no one was around."

"What about witnesses? Brinkley's face is known all over the country."

"NBC's makeup man supplied Brinkley with Burt Reynolds' toupee and Gene Shalit's mustache. Nobody recognized him."

"So he went to J.R.'s office late at night and plugged him with two shots?" I said.

"You got it. David had it all thought through. By the time the shooting was shown on the air, Brinkley would be doing his show live on the other network. Even if he was a suspect he would have the perfect alibi."

"The only trouble was that J.R. didn't die. The hospital pulled him through, and now the show has bigger ratings than ever." I said.

"That was Brinkley's biggest mistake. He only fired two bullets. Everyone knows it would take more than two bullets to send J.R. to that Great Oil Field in the sky."

"Do the producers of 'Dallas' know David did it?"

"Probably, but they're going to blame it on someone in the show just to hold their audience."

"What's Brinkley going to do now?" I asked Deep Throat.

"It's just a rumor around the NBC shop, but they say that Brinkley keeps muttering that if he doesn't get another time slot for the magazine show he's going to shoot Freddie Silverman."

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

- All Paul's letters (epistles) are fashioned after the manner of his time, yet he shows an individual interest in each church and a special message for all. Romans stresses salvation through faith. What did he want to do for the people of Rome? Romans 1:11.
- Give the definition of faith as written in Hebrews 11:1.
- The word "faith" is very scarce in the O.T. although there were many faithful people including Abel, Abraham, David, Jonathan, Joseph, etc. In Deut. 32:20 a punishment is accorded faithless. What?
- Describe Peter's denial of his savior. Luke 22.
- Name Isaac's twin sons. Genesis 25:23-26.
- Four correct ... excellent, three ... good.

BIBLE VERSE

So thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth and warn them from me. Ezekiel 33:7.

Part five: Of reel films and real war movies

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the fifth in a 10-part series of excerpts from "Where Is the Rest of Me?", an autobiography by president-elect Ronald Reagan with Richard G. Hubler.

BY RONALD REAGAN
with Richard G. Hubler

MGM was sort of the Tiffany of Hollywood, so I was duly impressed when Warner's arranged to "loan" me to the studio for a remake of the old Broadway play, "The Badman."

Wallace Beery was the "Badman," Lionel Barrymore my crotchety uncle, and the very nice Laraine Day the love interest. I was warned that Beery was an inveterate scene-stealer and would even get his face in the camera when it was a closeup on other players. But if I had any ideas about protecting myself I forgot them when I saw Wally operate. In one shot I thought I had him. He was standing beside his horse and I was at the horse's head. We were both profile to the camera, facing each other. But by the scene's end he was full face to the camera, which was virtually shooting over my shoulder.

I'd been warned about Beery but no one had said anything about Barrymore. Let me make one thing plain — it was a great honor to work with him. Lionel was, of course, theater through and through, and you were made better by his great ability — providing you kept from being run over. He was confined to his wheelchair at the time and he could whip that contrivance around on a dime. It's hard to smile in a scene when your foot has been run over and your shin is bleeding from a hubcap blow.

Then there were the pictures with the Dead End Kids. Having heard lurid tales from other actors, I approached my first picture with the kids in something of a sweat, but Jimmy Cagney solved my problem. He understood these kids as no one else could. "It's very simple," Jimmy said. "Just tell them you look forward to working with them but you'll slap hell out of them if they do one thing out of line." He was right.

Finally in 1941 came the picture that meant not only stardom, but still remains the finest picture I've ever been in — "King's Row."

I played Drake McHugh, the gay blade who cut a swathe among the ladies. My key scene was played in a bed. This environment was the result of the plot which had me injured in an accident in the railroad yards. Taken to a sadistic doctor (who disapproved of my dating his daughter and felt it was his duty to punish me), I recovered consciousness in bed — only to find that the doctor had amputated both my legs at the hips.

It was portraying this moment of total shock which made the scene rough to play, and it presented me with the most challenging acting problem in my career. Worst of all, I had to give my reaction in a line of no more than five words. Gradually, acting the affair began to terrify me.

There was the sharp "clack" which signaled the beginning of the scene. I opened my eyes dazedly, looked around, slowly let my gaze travel downward. I can't describe even now my feeling as I tried to reach for where my legs should have been. "Randy!" I screamed. Ann Sheridan, playing Randy, burst through the door. I asked the question, "Where's the rest of me?"

There was no retake. It was a good scene and it came out that way in the picture. Perhaps I never did quite as well again in a single shot. The reason was that I had put myself, as best I could, in the body of another fellow. And since that time, no single line in my career has been as effective in explaining to me what an actor's life must be.

America was in the war by this time, and I have no intention of writing a chapter on "Where Was I on December 7?" I was in bed asleep — how exciting can I make that? I was assigned to a base in Los Angeles — under a "limited service" enlistment because of my poor eyesight — where the Air Force was creating a movie unit.

From a motion picture standpoint, our operation added up to about $200 million worth of talent on the hoof. We would turn out training films and documentaries, and conduct a training school for combat camera units. All of the newsreel film of bombings and strafings was the product of these units.

One of our 30-minute training films cut the training period for aerial gunners by six weeks. Most of the millions of men who never experienced combat had an almost reverent feeling for the men who did face the enemy. In our post this was heightened by the millions of feet of raw film that came back to us from combat. We saw the shots that were edited out before the film could be viewed by the public: A fighter plane cracked up on landing, in flames, the pilot vainly trying to get out of the cockpit and dying before your eyes. His comrades rushing into the flames, vainly trying to save him, until they were pulled back with their own clothing on fire.

My own movie-making role, however, was not entirely confined to narrating training films. Irving Berlin wrote and produced a musical comedy called "This Is the Army." In World War II his production, following a worldwide stage run, was made into a Warner Brothers movie, with all grosses going to Army Relief. I played the lead opposite Joan Leslie.

The first week of shooting I was introduced to Irving five times, and each time he was glad to meet me. Then one day he sought me out. The night before he had seen the film we had shot those first few days. He said, "Young fellow, I just saw some of your work. You've got a few things to correct — for example, a huskiness of the voice — but you really should give this business some serious consideration when the war is over. It's very possible that you could have a career in show business."

I thanked him very much, and began to wonder if he just hadn't seen any movies, or if the war had been going on so long I'd been forgotten.

Rehnquist favors less government regulation of lives

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist says America could find itself in the midst of another civil war if government regulation of private lives isn't slowed.

Rehnquist on Tuesday also called for new controls on courts to prevent "judicial supremacy" where appointed judges rather than elected representatives set policy by arbitrarily declaring laws unconstitutional.

"If we force people by law to do what we would like to see them do voluntarily," Rehnquist told the Vanderbilt University Law School, "we run the risk of another crisis in our society, equivalent to the days of the New Deal or even of the Civil War."

Outside, about 35 members of the Southern Prison Ministry — a group advocating prisoners' rights — picketed, protesting Rehnquist's espousal of the death penalty.

THE SAVING SOLUTION TO A BURNING ISSUE.

With the cost of doing things going up everyday, careful comparisons are becoming a way of life. Especially when it comes to finding the most efficient way to heat your home.

When comparing, take a look at Black Bart. Bart is easily installed — freestanding as a fireplace insert or as the core of a custom built fireplace. Plus, Bart's unique double wall construction and 700 CFM blower with variable speed control are standard equipment. That means more heat gets out into the room with less wood or coal.

A computerized, automated assembly guarantees unsurpassed quality. This labor-saving production method means a better stove at lower costs.

And that's not all. The fan and blower system will heat up to 3,000 square feet and is guaranteed for 5 years. Black Bart has earned the Good House-keeping Seal of Approval and has been successfully tested by Arnold Greene Testing Laboratories to the current standard UL 1482.

Drop in today and compare Bart with any other stove on the market.

Analyst says Brezhnev may not survive next months

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior U.S. intelligence analyst says he believes the chances are about 50-50 that ailing Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev may die or become severely incapacitated during the next few months because of poor health.

The Soviet affairs specialist, who asked that he not be identified, said Wednesday that Brezhnev's basic health condition apparently remains "fairly precarious" despite periodic fluctuations.

"The overall pattern suggests progressive cardiovascular disease," the analyst told a discussion session at the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies.

He noted that Brezhnev, who turns 74 next month, has dropped from view because of health problems in several past winters and now appears vulnerable to cardiovascular bouts which could prove fatal or incapacitating enough to force his retirement.

"I would give him about a 50-50 chance of getting through this winter," the analyst said.

The analyst added that he was expressing his personal views and not necessarily an official U.S. assessment.

Brezhnev's departure in the next few months, if it occurred, would be sure to complicate the already uncertain climate of Soviet relations with the incoming Reagan administration. It also would pose major questions about future Kremlin handling of serious economic problems, friction over Poland's independent trade unions and the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Currently, the average age of the ruling Soviet Politburo's 15 full members is 69. Long-time Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, 76, retired from his government post last month because of failing health but was replaced by a Brezhnev associate only one year younger, Nikolai A. Tikhonov.

Many Western Kremlinologists have speculated that Politburo member Andrei P. Kirilenko, 74, may emerge as an interim successor to Brezhnev.

But U.S. specialists on the secretive world of Kremlin political jockeying say they are puzzled by a recent case in which Kirilenko's rank in the Politburo pecking-order appeared to be lower than expected.

They pointed to an official photograph published Nov. 11 on the front page of Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, showing Brezhnev and Ethiopian leader Mengistu Haile Mariam signing a joint statement at the close of a Mengistu visit.

Among the line-up of Politburo members posed behind Brezhnev, Kirilenko appeared to stand in 7th place — a contrast with his 4th place ranking in pictures of the Soviet leadership standing atop Lenin's Tomb for the Nov. 7 parade.

Also, the Nov. 11 Pravda photo appeared to show KGB security police chief Yuri Andropov occupying 6th place in the status order, compared to 9th place at the Red Square parade.

One U.S. analyst called the shift "really peculiar" and said he had no ready explanation for it. But he noted that the Soviets generally "go to a great deal of trouble to arrange people" in official photographs.

Another American specialist on Soviet affairs, however, said the incident was merely "a straw in the wind" and did not appear to be part of a pattern indicating Kirilenko's position was eroding.

'Gang of Four' trial opens in Peking

PEKING (AP) — The "Gang of Four" and six other former high-ranking members of China's communist regime went on trial today before a special 35-judge court in Peking on charges that could get them the death penalty.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said the trial was declared open at 3 p.m. (2 a.m. EST) in a courtroom at No. 1 Righteousness Road, and bailiffs led Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow, Jiang Qing and the other nine defendants to the dock.

The courtroom, near Peking's main square, the Tien An Men, was filled with 880 spectators invited from all over China, the spokesman said. But Western reporters were barred, because state security matters were involved, officials said earlier.

The first session was expected to be taken up entirely by the reading of the 20,000-word, 48-count indictment against the 10 defendants and six other dead "culprits" of what the government calls the "Jiang Qing and Lin Piao counter-revolutionary cliques."

The 48 counts are grouped into four major charges — that they and their allies were responsible for the deaths of more than 35,000 people during the chaotic Cultural Revolution from 1966 to 1976, that they framed and persecuted top party, government and military leaders in efforts to seize power, that they plotted to murder Mao and stage an armed coup in 1971, and that they plotted an armed uprising in Shanghai in October 1976, a month after Mao died.

Those accused of the Cultural Revolution crimes and the 1976 plot include the four radical party leaders known as the Gang of Four — Jiang Qing, former Vice Premier Zhang Chung-qiao, former party Vice Chairman Wang Hongwen and Yao Wenyuan, a leading party propagandist and theorist — and two former security chiefs, both now dead, Kang Sheng and Xie Fuzhi.

The other defendants are accused of plotting Mao's overthrow with Lin Piao, the former defense minister and Mao's political heir who reportedly was killed in a plane crash in Mongolia in September 1971 after the plot failed.

The six still living are Chen Boda, Mao's former political secretary; Huang Yongsheng, who was the armed forces chief of staff; Wu Faxian, former air force commander; Li Zuopeng, the former political commissar of the navy; Qiu Huiquo, former head of army logistics, and Jiang Tengjiao, who was the air force's political commissar in Nanjing.

The trial is to be divided into two parts, one for the Gang of Four radicals and Chen, and one for the five military men in the "Lin clique." But for the opening, the Foreign Ministry spokesman said, all 10 defendants were brought before the 35 judges of the special court, headed by Jiang Hua, president of the Supreme People's Court.

The official Xinhua news agency reported Wednesday night that five of the 10 defendants asked for lawyers and got them. But it said Jiang Qing turned down three lawyers and decided to defend herself. Xinhua said she wanted lawyers to act as her substitutes in answering questions in court but rejected them when told their only function would be to safeguard her legitimate rights and interests according to the facts and the law.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman said the specially invited representatives from various regions and organizations will be rotated from time to time during the trial so more people can see it.

On the eve of the trial, Xinhua quoted Peking University Law Professor Zhang Youyu as saying the special court will have a free hand to decide the 10 defendants' guilt or innocence.

Manila denies ordering explosives

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A Malaysian Embassy spokesman today denied his government had ordered a plane-load of explosives from the United States that was seized by Philippine authorities when the plane landed in Manila.

"We know nothing about this," Malaysian Embassy spokesman Tarmidzi Bin Hashim told The Associated Press. "The matter is in the hands of the U.S. Embassy. Ask them. We haven't bought those (explosives) and it's not true they are for the Malaysian police."

The two Americans who landed the U.S. registered plane at the Manila international airport on Tuesday told authorities they were taking their cargo to Malaysia, U.S. Embassy spokesman John Foster said.

Foster said the plane and its cargo were seized shortly after it landed, but neither of the two pilots, identified as Duane Heist and Robert Rummel, had been arrested.

Heist, the pilot of the twin-engine Aero Commander, could not be contacted immediately for comment. Co-pilot Rummel refused even to give home towns.

Prior to the Malaysian Embassy denial, U.S. Embassy spokesman Clifford Southard said the American Embassy's economic affairs section has determined the plane's cargo of blasting caps, explosives and 10 powerful claymore mines was "a licensed and legal export consigned to the Royal Malaysian police."

Iraqi jets driven away from trying to bomb city of Qom

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian anti-aircraft batteries drove off Iraqi jet fighters trying to bomb the holy city of Qom, 300 miles east of the Iraq-Iran border and 70 miles south of Tehran, Iran's Pars news agency said today.

It gave no other details of the raid Wednesday, the second aimed at the former headquarters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary and religious leader who moved to Tehran when he had a heart attack in January.

Iran said it also killed 100 Iraqis and destroyed 40 tanks in driving the Iraqis back 2 1/2 miles from positions near the border city of Mehran after pushing them from Susangerd and Abadan. It also said it killed 18 Iraqis in the Gilan Gharb-Naft area north of Mehran.

Iraq said it killed 85 Iraqis when they "tried to attack" Iraqi troops in the northern sector of the 300-mile invasion front Wednesday. But it made no mention of Mehran, which is 150 miles northwest of Susangerd and 90 miles east of the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

Iran did not claim control of Mehran. But it has done so twice before in the two-month-old war, only to have the claim refuted by Western reporters who were escorted to the city from Baghdad by Iraqi troops. Iran, however, has claimed control of Susangerd, which is 35 miles northwest of Ahwaz, capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province. The Iraqis said they killed 880 Iraqis in Susangerd from Sunday to Wednesday and pushed the invaders back several miles from the city.

Iraq said it killed 659 Iraqis in Susangerd during the same period, that its helicopter gunships destroyed 16 tanks there, that its jet fighters attacked Iranian positions in the city and that its forces shot down two Iranian warplanes nearby.

Iraq said Wednesday its forces "tightened the noose" around Susangerd but conceded 28 Iraqi soldiers killed and two Iraqi tanks destroyed. Capture of Susangerd would open the highway to Ahwaz, where the Iraqis said 59 people were killed by Iraqi artillery fire from the south.

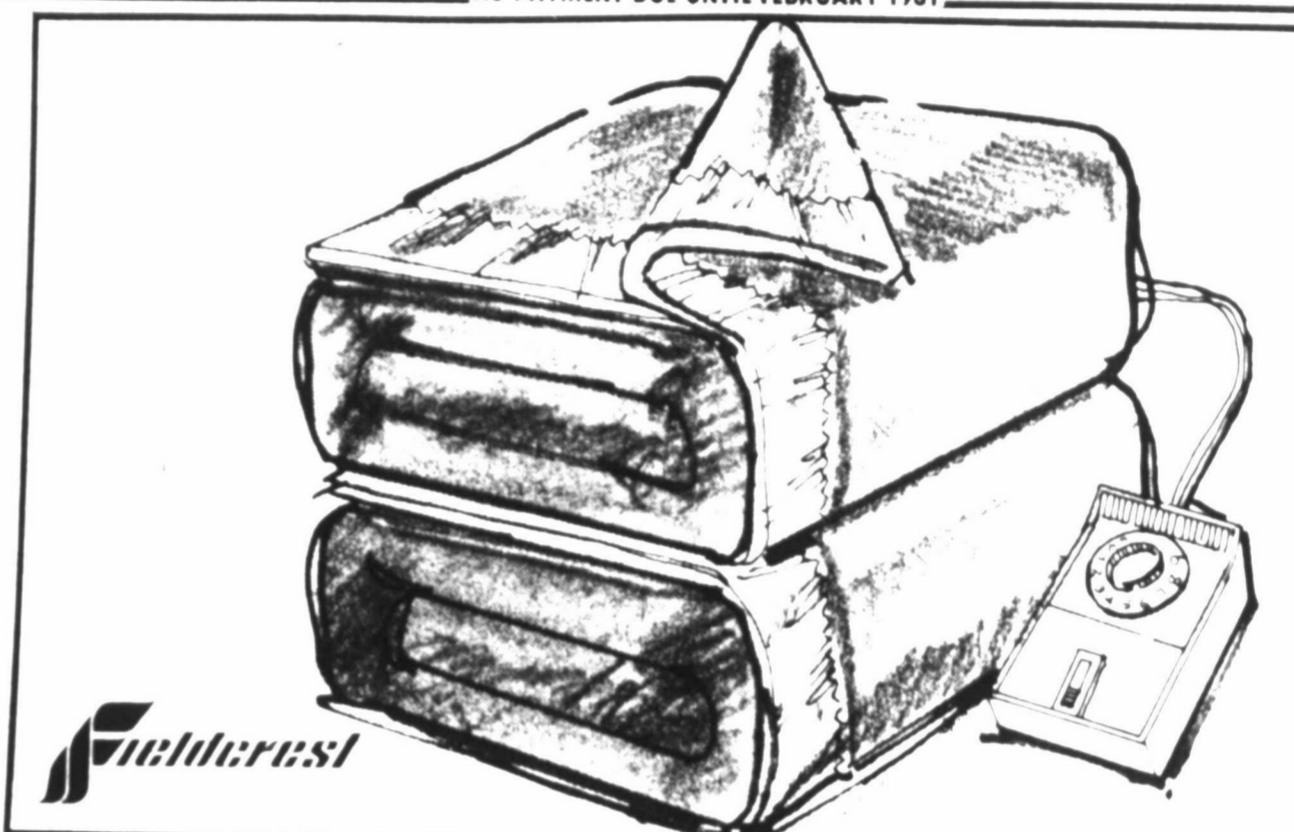

Iran claimed it killed 80 Iraqis Wednesday in Abadan, the refinery city 85 miles south of Susangerd and 65 miles south of Ahwaz. It said the Iraqis were pushed back as much as five miles northeast of Abadan, but said the invaders were shelling both Abadan and Susangerd with heavy artillery.

Olof Palme, Sweden's Socialist Party leader and former prime minister, was to meet in Tehran today with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

Police comb the area near a supermarket in Headingley, Leeds, where the body of student Jacqueline Hill, 20, was found Tuesday. Police confirmed Wednesday that Jacqueline is the 13th victim of the person known as the "Yorkshire Ripper" a killer who has so far eluded capture even though he has sent police tapes confessing to some of the murders. (AP Laserphoto)

Yorkshire Ripper kills 13th victim

LEEDS, England (AP) — Police warned all unaccompanied young women off the streets of England's Midlands at night after announcing the Yorkshire Ripper's 13th killing in five years, a pretty 20-year-old student and Sunday school teacher.

The police said Britain's most notorious modern-day killer was responsible for the slaying of Jacqueline Hill, whose battered body was found Tuesday in bushes 100 yards from her Leeds University dormitory. It was his first killing in 14 months.

Any woman walking alone at night is in danger, West Yorkshire's assistant chief constable, George Oldfield, warned.

Ms. Hill, a sociology student, apparently was attacked minutes after she got off a bus, dragged under the ramp of a parking garage and beaten to death, police said.

Investigators said her injuries convinced them she was a Ripper victim even though her body was not mutilated. Previous victims were killed by blows to the skull with a 1½-pound engineer's hammer, and the bodies then were slashed and stabbed with a knife or cutting tool. None was sexually assaulted.

The murderer has sent three letters and a tape recording to the police saying he will go on killing and will kill himself if police close in.

Officials again pleaded for help from the public. Oldfield appealed to everyone, "especially women," to consider if any man they know could be the killer.

"Look at your boyfriend, your brother, your husband or your father. Could that be the man we are seeking?" he asked.

Chief Constable Ronald Gregory said there was little hope of catching the Ripper without public help.

"I know that someone, somewhere, knows something about this," he said.

All the Ripper's victims have been women, between the ages of 16 and 42, and the first nine were prostitutes. Four other women survived his attacks.

All the attacks have occurred in the six Midland cities of Leeds, Manchester, Bradford, Preston, Huddersfield and Keighley, an inverted triangle with a 70-mile base. A voice analysis of the recording he sent the police indicated he lives in or was raised in the Wearside district of northeast England.

He was dubbed the Ripper after Jack the Ripper, who killed six prostitutes in London's East End and mutilated their bodies a century ago and was never caught.

"He's obviously very mentally ill," said Oldfield, "and he's got this sadistic killer streak in him. He's intelligent and crafty, but he can flip at any time."

A total of 650 police officers are assigned permanently to the hunt. They have questioned 195,000 people, checked 175,000 vehicles, searched 30,000 buildings and taken statements from 23,000 people.

Copley News Service

CAIRO, Egypt — "The world fears time, but time fears the pyramids."

Spoken anywhere else, those words would seem extravagant. But not here. And especially not now.

In the Cairo suburb of Giza on a brisk Egyptian night, we are watching the sound and light show, where floodlights shine on the pyramids as recorded voices, supposedly emanating from the nearby Sphinx, recount their history.

Although there are 80 other pyramids in Egypt, these three are by far the most important, the last remaining example of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World.

We have time to savor these storied structures now — more than we did the day before, when our bus drove up a two-lane asphalt road to the very foot of the Great Pyramid and unloaded us among scads of other tourists. Then, we were immediately beset by swarms of peddlers and camel drivers eager to make more "baksheesh," or tips, by selling trinkets or posing for photographs.

Those diversions are gone. As beams of green and red lights shift to the pyramid of Cheops — the oldest, largest and greatest of the three — the recorded voice of actor Alec Guinness tells us slowly that "neither the wind nor sand nor centuries can still my voice in the desert. I saw Cleopatra and Antony pass. Alexander and Napoleon."

The pyramid of Cheops was erected about 2600 B.C. and contains an estimated 2.5 million tons of stone, with each block weighing 2.5 tons. The area of its base would hold St. Paul's Westminster Abbey, St. Peter's and the Cathedrals of Florence and Milan at the same time. It would cover the same area as the four city blocks occupied by Lincoln Center in New York.

Next to it stands a slightly smaller pyramid, built by Cheops' son, Chephren, around 2650 B.C.

On our earlier trek here, we ventured inside the third and smallest of the three, named after Menkara and constructed in about 2600 B.C. Nabil M.A. Sweilm, our guide, called it "the perfect pyramid."

Hunched over, we streamed through a small opening a few hundred feet down to the structure's burial chamber, where we saw what Nabil said "was the first arched stone ceiling in history."

Egypt's capital is the largest city in Africa, originally built to accommodate 2 million people, but home now to a population four-and-one-half times that large.

Although its shopping and residential areas appear threadbare by American standards, the city is in the midst of a $3 billion building boom, much of it from U.S. aid — the "peace dividend" that Egyptians expected of President Anwar Sadat's peace initiatives.

Egypt's pyramids still inspire awe of visitors

Expect the unexpected from Finney

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You can expect the unexpected from Albert Finney.

After becoming an international star with the 1963 Oscar-winner "Tom Jones," he vanished on a round-the-world tour. During the 1970s, when fellow British stars like Sean Connery, Michael Caine and Roger Moore were going for the megabucks, Finney appeared in only two major films, "Scrooge" and "Murder on the Orient Express." In each he was so heavily made up as to be unrecognizable.

Now he is in the middle of five back-to-back movies.

"Most Americans have forgotten what I look like," he cracks. "I decided it was time to show them that I am still young and pretty."

Not pretty perhaps, but at 44 still possessed with tousle-haired handsomeness and the broad-shouldered physique of a bar fighter. He is in Hollywood making No.3 of the five films, "Looker," a Ladd Co.-Warner Brothers thriller written and directed by Michael Crichton ("Westworld," "Coma").

The other day Finney was being chased by the bad guys through a lab where live models are duplicated by computer for nefarious use in TV commercials. James Coburn is the tycoon who has devised the means of manipulating the viewing public, Susan Dey ("The Partridge Family") is one of the intended victims of the scheme, which involves sacrifice of live models.

"Eight years ago I decided I wanted to attempt the great classical plays, and I realized I couldn't do that on a part-time basis. It takes supreme concentration when you're playing 'Hamlet,' 'MacBeth' and 'Tamburlaine' in repertory. Not only concentration but great energy. For instance, 'Hamlet,' a 3½-hour performance with a great sword fight at the end.

"So I committed myself to 6½ years at the National Theater, making only one film during the time. That was 'Murder on the Orient Express,' not the easiest of films to make while appearing in the theater at night.

"The Hercule Poirot makeup required two hours to apply every morning. That gave me pause, but I knew that Sidney Lumet is a director who moves fast, and the film had an eight-week schedule. As it turned out, he shot it in seven and a half weeks."

The first two films of the Finney renaissance were "Wolfen," a terror movie, and "Loophole," a caper co-starring Martin Sheen. Next he makes "Shoot the Moon" in northern California with Alan Parker ("Midnight Express"). Then he'll sing and dance as Daddy Warbucks in "Annie," directed by John Huston. To play the comic-strip tycoon he will sacrifice his luxuriant brown hair.

Egan likes constant activity

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

Following the Country Squire Dinner Theatre's performance of "Broken Up," Richard Egan speaks to the audience. He talks of the things which have gone wrong during previous productions and of the difficulties which often arise when a performance is live.

Although the phone rang this Friday night as it was supposed to, on previous occasions it hadn't.

What did happen during the production was an error on one actor's part as to which line he was supposed to say next. The mistake was quite funny because as he said, "My God, you're macho." Egan replied, in a quite relaxed manner, as he was sitting on the sofa, "You know that's not the line."

At that point it was hard to tell who laughed more, the audience or the actors.

"NOTHING IS MORE rewarding than the immediacy of a stage play," Egan said in an interview after the show which is slated to run through Saturday.

Of course, if the audience isn't responding, "you want to escape," he added.

The audience at the Country Squire, which is located just east of Odessa on Highway 80, did respond that night. It was obvious, by the applause and the number of folks who stayed to get an autograph, that they enjoyed the play.

It was also obvious from all the trips to the buffet table before the play that they appreciated the good food.

This three-act play contains a particularly long drunk scene during the second act. As Egan said of it, "If you don't get them (the audience) then, you're not going to get them. The laughter for this act can extend for 10 minutes."

IT IS TO THE actors' and the play's merit that, although the crowd was small, which makes most people hesitant to laugh out loud, the laughter for the second act was prolonged. The act was funny and the actors did a good job of carrying it off.

The size of the crowd doesn't affect Egan's performance, he said. "Setting a high standard is an accomplishment in itself. The cast doesn't let down. If we're not at 100 percent each night, we're nearly there."

"We're not bothered by the size or lack of size," Egan said, explaining that this cast has performed "Broken Up" for as many as 600 in one crowd.

"It's a challenge to see how professional you are and not how egocentric you are," he said. Egan, whose acting has run the gamut from motion pictures to television to live performances, said "I enjoyed most of them."

HE LIKED PLAYING the part of Redigo on the television series Empire because "I had a good supporting cast and it was constant work."

"That's another aspect I like about plays — they keep on going," he said. "It's the deadly in-between time that gets you stale. It's like sitting in the bullpen too long," he said, laughing.

Dinner theatres "employ 60 percent of the actors" and the plays "give you activity practicing your craft. If something in pictures or television comes up, you can do that also" by scheduling the time.

As a longtime member of the acting profession, Egan said often the best movies are not as well known as those that are considered to be "box office draws." The ones studios feel they can sell the best are the ones that get the most publicity and not the ones that are necessarily "artistic," he said.

Although Egan said he thinks this happens more today, he remembers when it happened to him. One of the best movies he starred in was "Voice in the Mirror," which dealt with the formation of Alcoholics Anonymous and was released 22 years ago. It co-starred Walter Matthau, Julie London and Arthur O'Connell.

ANOTHER PROBLEM today, Egan said, is that those who own some of the major studios, such as "Chase Manhattan Bank who owns Fox and Gulf and Western who own Paramount, don't know anything about making a movie."

And the attitude of "we're selling the hour anyway and not the product" that often prevails in television affects the motion picture industry because many of today's heroes come from television and "the size of the screen (movie) is too big for them. The picture becomes very light weight."

Egan, who spent 42 weeks last year working away from home, doesn't seem to have any difficulty staying busy. He lives at Brentwood in Los Angeles where he said, with a laugh, he heard he had "a nice home."

With five children, his problem is missing his family.

"I miss them. I miss seeing them all. Six weeks in a child's life is a lot. They grow and change and I wasn't there to help with the hurts. It's like coaching from the sidelines."

"When I get home, I'm running all over the place, trying to cover all the bases at once."

ABC programmers reOrkanize 'Mork'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mork" is back, apparently recovered from the sloppy, thick-fingered surgery attempted last year by ABC. Unfortunately, a series can't sue for malpractice.

of ABC's tinkering last year was in the actual content and style of "Mork and Mindy." It was as if the network couldn't quite grasp the unique Robin Williams mode, utterly original and delivered from off the wall.

And, "Do you really think Earl Scheib does Ronald Reagan's hair?" Mindy is thinking about a party. Mork wants to stay home and watch "That's Incredible!" "Tonight Bo Derek's gonna try to count to 10," he says.

Clearly, something must be done before Mork succumbs to terminal blandness. Mork and Mindy visit Ork.

There, Orson, the 87-year-old wise-man who looks like a pre-teen, solemnly concludes, "It sounds like you've been afflicted with observer's syndrome." He might have been addressing ABC's programming department.

The video revolution has arrived

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The much-heralded video revolution is finally beginning to look like a revolution. I mean a real revolution, with violent upheaval of the status quo and a reordering of the social structure.

Sir Tube, we called it. It was benevolent because it was there, ostensibly, for our benefit, autocratic because we either accepted what it dished out or lumped it.

Teletext involves the transmission of signals simultaneously with the normal TV signal. A decoder box enables the viewer to block out, wholly or partially, the normal picture and order teletext data — weather reports, news headlines, community calendars, whatever happens to be programmed.

Teletext holds obvious appeal to a commercial network. CBS might be able to have a classified ad "page" or supplement its commercials with a list showing where advertised products can be purchased.

Teletext is a service that allows viewers to order printed information on the home TV. Say you're watching "That's Incredible!" and you want to know the mortality rate of TV stuntmen.

Brazil moves up in film world

By PETER EISNER
Associated Press Writer

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's underfinanced movie industry, encouraged by the reception a number of films has received overseas, is taking steps to go big-time on the international circuit.

Everyone was talking about the violence and sex, especially in the first few days," said Catherine Egan of Penn State University's audiovisual services department, "but I think it was necessary to understand the context and the different temperament of the Brazilian experience.

Nevertheless, Ms. Egan said she was able to find several documentary and feature films that could be used for a planned television course produced by Penn State that will provide segments about Brazilian society and its problems.

Stacy Dam dispute continues

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Colorado River Municipal Water District and Lower Colorado River Authority continued their dispute over construction of Stacy Reservoir in oral arguments before the Third Court of Civil Appeals Wednesday.

LCRA attorney Fred Werkenthin, Austin, contended the permit by the Texas Water Commission for construction of the reservoir should not have been issued because there was no showing of any unappropriated water in the river basin.

Travis County District Judge Herman Jones upheld issuance of the permit in a February ruling.

CRMWD attorney Frank Booth of Austin argued that the permit was properly granted after a determination by the TWC that the reservoir would not threaten prior rights of downstream users.

Werkenthin told the appeals court there had been no showing of need for the reservoir by CRMWD.

When it applied for the permit, he said, CRMWD had no contractors for water and had been attempting to sell its available water to West Teas Utilities Co. and San Angelo.

"The district had more than adequate water to meet the needs of its customers through 1995 or the year 2000," he said.

Rather than attempting to meet water needs, he argued, CRMWD was attempting to take advantage of construction of the reservoir under a contract with Texas Utilities Services, Inc., which would receive most of the project's water.

Werkenthin said the reservoir would provide only 8,900 acre-feet for municipal use, with 30,000 acre-feet for industrial use. TUSI would prevent sale of more than 60,000 acre-feet from the project regardless of the level of the reservoir, he added.

Werkenthin said the reservoir would provide only 8,900 acre-feet for municipal use, with 30,000 acre-feet for industrial use. TUSI would prevent sale of more than 60,000 acre-feet from the project regardless of the level of the reservoir, he added.

Werkenthin said the TWC had not used proper standards in determining whether there is unappropriated water in the Colorado River, and has varied its standards in this case — ignoring prior permits which would reduce the amount of water available at the Stacy site to "little more than 3,000 acre-feet."

Werkenthin also argued TWC Commissioner Dorsey Hardeman, former state senator from San Angelo, should have been disqualified from voting on the application, because Hardeman had represented San Angelo on a prior request for a project at the Stacy site.

Even though the vote to grant the permit was three to zero, he said, Hardeman's participation "tainted" the process.

Werkenthin charged the TWC failed to allow for any growth in the lower Colorado River basin, and reduced future irrigation needs there from current figures while using excessively high figures for growth in the upper basin.

Booth argued the Legislature had provided that beneficial use of water, regardless of the amount appropriated by permit, as the standard to be considered when the TWC determines if additional water is available.

The guiding principle, Booth said, is waste and prevention of waste.

Justice Bob Shannon, in a question to Booth, expressed concern that a "constant state of flux" would exist in attempting to determine whether there was unappropriated water in a river basin if existing permitted rights — whether fully in use or not — aren't considered.

Booth replied that rivers contain varying quantities of water — depending upon flood or drought — and that some users, such as irrigators, may use no water one year, and then may use large amounts in subsequent years.

The TWC, Booth said, must use its judgment in determining how much water is available for use in new projects.

Assistant Attorney General Tim Brown said the 1927 "Waggstaff Act," setting municipal use as the top priority for water, regardless of other prior uses, and the act creating the LCRA, passed in 1934, which provides that its hydroelectric rights are to be inferior to the right of cities to obtain drinking water, support issuance of the permit.

That question, Brown said, should have been settled long ago, but "we are confronted again with this up-river, down-river argument on who is going to use the public waters of the state."

The Stacy Reservoir project is to be located in parts of Concho, Runnels and Coleman counties.

Slit skirt causes homecoming flap

MT. CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — The girls in Clintondale High School's homecoming court should look "All-American" and "wholesome" and slit skirts don't help that image, according to school officials.

So when Margaret Barile, a 16-year-old senior, showed up for the homecoming parade wearing a skirt with an eight-inch slit in the front, a big flap developed.

At first, faculty advisor Risha Rothberger ordered Miss Barile to stitch or tape the slit, change clothes or be thrown off the court.

Miss Barile refused, but an assistant principal overruled Ms. Rothberger, allowing Miss Barile to ride in a car in the parade — but with a blanket over her exposed knees.

Since then, Miss Barile's house has been egged, her life interrupted by obscene phone calls and her lawn decorated with funeral wreaths.

About 200 of the 1,400 students at her high school in Mt. Clemens, a town of 20,000 northeast of Detroit, petitioned to have Miss Barile's name stricken from homecoming records and her homecoming court picture left out of the school yearbook.

The dress code for homecoming court members warns against high heels, slit skirts or heavy make-up, explained Ms. Rothberger.

"It was not the image we wanted portrayed to the community," she said.

Margaret's mother, however, sees nothing wrong with her daughter's skirt.

"She wore the same outfit — top to bottom — last year (when she was) a junior member of the court," Mrs. Barile said. "Why this year are people offended by it when they weren't last year?"

Explosion burns five

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — A leaking natural gas main exploded in flames during repairs, burning five LaClede Gas Co. crewmen who were working in a manhole, authorities said.

"All of a sudden the flames were there, and everyone in the hole was on fire, screaming," said Reginald Wells, a St. Louis County Water Co. supervisor.

Wells, who grabbed a fire extinguisher and sprayed the five men after Wednesday's blast, probably saved the workers' lives, St. Louis County police said.

The leak occurred while the water company was digging a trench near Westport Plaza to work on a water pipe, officer John Verstraete said.

The gas company was notified and the workers capped the leak, but were called back when gas continued to leak, Verstraete said. The explosion occurred during the second attempt, he said.

"There's a possibility that it was caused by static electricity. Static builds up as gas goes through the line," Verstraete said.

The gas company shut off gas for a time after the blast, LaClede spokesman Bill Otto said.

One worker was hospitalized in critical but stable condition with burns over nearly half his body.

Dry times have New England worried

By MIKE STANTON
Associated Press Writer

In the northwestern Massachusetts town of North Adams, a shortage of water means that ice skating rinks won't be flooded this year.

Growers in the state's cranberry belt are worried about enough rainfall to fill their bogs and keep out killing frosts.

In East Greenwich, R.I., townspeople get their drinking water out of a fire hydrant next to the Frenchtown Baptist Church.

Residents in many New England towns are feeling the effects of the worst drought to hit the region since 1965.

"For the first time in my memory, I didn't have to wear my rain suit, and I've been farming since 1941," says Frank Clegg, a Seekonk, Mass., farmer.

The U.S. Geological Survey reports extremely low water supplies in eastern Massachusetts, northwestern Vermont and most of Rhode Island. Rainfall this year is down 7 inches in eastern Massachusetts, 5 inches in central Massachusetts and anywhere from 1 to 4 inches in the rest of the region, according to Weather Service figures.

Things are brighter across the region's northern tier — climatologists say Maine, New Hampshire and much of Vermont have not suffered as much.

But where it's dry, it's plenty dry.

Water restrictions are in effect in about one-quarter of the communities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island as levels in reservoirs and groundwater wells dip to their lowest level in years. Cars are dirty, lawns brown and showers short. People are putting bricks in toilet tanks to cut down their seven-gallon-per-flush gulp.

In communities like Lenox, Mass., a town nestled in the Berkshire Hills, residents have to boil their water because regular supplies are inadequate and emergency water is pumped from lakes where the water is untreated.

A sign in a Lenox hotel orders guests not to drink water. Patrons in a nearby bar are told they can have a scotch — but not scotch and water. Diners at a restaurant down the road must do without the customary glass of ice water.

New England's water troubles are shared by some Mid-Atlantic states. Mandatory conservation has been ordered in northern New Jersey, an emergency has been declared in northeastern Pennsylvania, and in Philadelphia and New York City voluntary conservation has been recommended.

A wet October helped in places. South of Boston, the system supplying Braintree, Holbrook and Randolph had dipped to a 30-day reserve at the end of September. Now it's up to 2½ months.

But beyond ups and downs in precipitation is an underlying lack of long-range water planning coupled with population growth in areas without enough water, officials say.

"Water problems in a lot of towns were just exacerbated by a lack of rain," says Paul Godfrey, head of the Water Resources Research Center at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. "As their populations grew, most towns didn't seek out additional water supplies. Now when communities plan their economic development, they have to take into account the available water."

The Amherst campus itself became a dramatic example of the problem in early September, when nearly 19,000 students were sent home for three days because the water ran out.

"That problem was coming at us for 15 years," Godfrey said. "The university kept expanding, but nobody did anything about getting more water."

George Lagarce, head of the Lenox Department of Public Works, concedes that local officials have not planned ahead because their hands were tied by public apathy and a lack of money.

"Sure, we should have anticipated the water problem in the 1960s, but municipal government reacts to crises and there were always greater crises that needed the money," Lagarce said. "Everyone takes water for granted — the normal guy in Lenox doesn't care if our water supply has one day's reserve left or 100 days, as long as he can still get water out of his tap."

One reason water is taken for granted, officials agree, is that it costs so little in most places. One means of increasing water conservation awareness is to raise rates so they reflect the true cost of water, which is often subsidized by local government.

Rate increases are under review in many water-starved Massachusetts communities.

Roloff case could set precedent

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — For 2½ days Lester Roloff's lawyer echoed the point the preacher has hammered on for seven years — the state has no business licensing his church-run children's homes.

After testimony ended Wednesday, the judge who will decide the fate of the homes agreed the case raises an important freedom of religion question. State District Judge Charles Mathews told lawyers in the case to be ready to argue about where the state's duty to protect children ends and freedom of religion begins.

Mathews, who ruled against Roloff in a previous case, hinted the evangelist might have scored some points with his testimony that state rules conflict with religious freedom.

There are some "things that do not violate the religious beliefs of we liberal Methodists, but do violate the religious beliefs of active members of the Southern Baptist Conference and certainly the religious beliefs of the defendants in this case," Mathews said.

"The state has been playing God," said Roloff.

Attorney General Mark White

wants the Roloff homes closed because the fundamentalist preacher refuses to get a state license. The state also wants $46,000 in civil penalties. Assistant Attorney General David Young tried to show Mathews that children under 18 are housed at Roloff's unlicensed Corpus Christi homes.

However, Mathews, in his closing comments, surprised some observers by saying he is not sure "whether or not the defendant in this case is a child care facility."

The judge also read a portion of the child care licensing law that says the state has "no power to regulate, control, supervise or in any way be involved" in religious instruction.

Final arguments were postponed until attorneys' briefs are filed and the transcript is typed. That could take three months.

Mathews said he visited Roloff's Rebekah Home for Girls about two weeks ago at the request of lawyers for both sides.

"What good it did, I don't know. Nothing I saw will have an influence on me one way or the other," Mathews said.

Roloff's fear of state licenses was countered by church home administrators who testified that rules are needed. Charles Wright, administrator of the Texas Baptist Children's Home in Round Rock, said the state rules protect children from "charlatans" who "go into child care for neurotic and sick reasons."

"There are a lot of sick people who go into it," Wright said, adding he has heard the Roloff homes are good facilities.

Jack Daniels, administrator of the Methodist Home for Children in Waco, said he grew up an orphan in the home he now runs.

"I think probably we have a better program today because of some of the requirements of the licensing standards," he said.

The Methodist and Baptist homes both take state money for specific services they provide. Roloff takes no state money, and cites that among his reasons for resisting a state license.

Counselor makes 9th-grade girls strip during search for missing $10 bill

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A female guidance counselor who made a strip search of 9th grade girls after a $10 bill was reported missing violated school board policy and will be disciplined, school officials say.

"It should never have occurred," said Jim Scaggs, assistant to School Superintendent James Schott. "It was poor judgment and a mistake was made. What more can we say?"

The girls were asked to disrobe Monday by Carol Florence during a search for money believed taken from one student in a 9th grade math class at Westridge Junior High School, Scaggs said.

"It's humiliating for the kids to have to go through this kind of thing," said Geraldine Neal, mother of one of the girls searched. "Ten dollars is not worth the degradation."

Jury recommends life in prison, fine

DALLAS (AP) — A former schoolboy track star faces life in prison and a $10,000 fine for the rape and stabbing of a nurse who testified that the attack left her physically and emotionally scarred.

David Lee Summerville, 23, a star runner at his Arkansas high school, confessed to the Aug. 30 abduction, rape and stabbing of a 27-year-old Dallas nurse. Jurors deliberated one hour Wednesday before recommending the sentence.

State District Judge Thomas Thorne set formal sentencing for Dec. 8, and said he would decide then whether to order Summerville to pay the victim's $25,000 in medical bills.

Summerville still faces charges stemming from the September kidnaping of 7-year-old Matthew Mueller, who was held for 28 hours before he escaped.

Robert Hinton, Summerville's court-appointed attorney, pleaded for mercy for his client.

"Temper all of this with some compassion," Hinton said. "My heart goes out to the victim, but I am not ready to give up on David Lee Summerville. Don't throw him away."

"If you have some Christian compassion, some mercy, please show it," Hinton said.

Assistant District Attorney Doug Mulder asked for the life sentence, saying "His plan did not call for survivors. Dead men and women tell no tales."

In her Tuesday testimony, the nurse recalled the attack on the door of her Oak Lawn apartment after she returned from work at Parkland Memorial Hospital the night of Aug. 30.

The man at the door said he accidentally had hit her car, she said. But when she opened the door, he grabbed her.

"He strangled me until I passed out on the landing. When I regained consciousness, the man who had strangled me held a knife" with a 10-inch blade, she testified.

Summerville led her into her bedroom and forced her to disrobe.

He then undressed, still clutching the knife, and raped her, she said.

She said he then began choking her again.

"I became real weak and felt myself not being able to breathe. It feels like you are dying," she testified.

Summerville revived her and told her to drive him to his apartment, where she was able to break away from him, she said.

She said she screamed for help, but Summerville caught up with her and she was stabbed. Summerville then ran away.

She underwent two operations for punctured lungs and stomach, suffered infections and now bears a scar running the length of her chest and abdomen. She still cannot return to work.

"Scars like this draw up when they heal and so it makes it hard for me to stand up straight ... I was very athletic before. This happened and now I can't do anything that I used to. I get very tired very easily," said the nurse.

California tourists stranded in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — A group of 430 California tourists, most of them elderly and some in wheelchairs, have been stranded here after checks from their tour company began bouncing, officials report.

"They don't have anything. They've been left high and dry," said Vincent G. Panzo, an official with the Hawaii Visitors Bureau.

The group, which booked the tour through Groups West Travel of Beverly Hills, Calif., arrived in Honolulu on Sunday and immediately went to the island of Maui.

Three days later, the visitors were told "the hard facts of life when they arrived here from Maui," Panzo said.

Checks sent to cover hotels, ground transportation and flights back to the mainland started returning from banks with notices of insufficient funds at about the time the tour group arrived.

Officials at Maui Surf Hotel say they have yet to see a good check to cover the group's accommodations and meals.

But at a group meeting Tuesday, Joe Rosen, who said he represented Groups West President Alfred Schwartz, assured them there was no problem.

Rosen said the problem resulted from checks erroneously being drawn on the wrong account.

Frances Black is inviting all of her friends to the opening of the Bah Humbug Herbal Tea Room Nov. 28.

"It has been one of my dreams to have a good tea room in this area," said Mrs. Black. The tea room is located at Plaza Center, Garfield and Wadley.

Some months back, Frances invited some friends of hers, who have an herbal tea room in San Antonio, to visit Midland to see about the possibilities of a tea room in the Tall City. The couple liked the idea, the idea caught on and their daughters from Colorado will be managing the tea room.

Frances will be hostess at what she says is being billed as "the best little tea room in Texas" and invites all of her friends to come for the first day celebration.

MIDLAND ROSE SOCIETY will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in its November meeting.

Jim Galyean, consulting rosarian, will present a program on "Building Suitable Soil for Growing Roses: Proportions and Ingredients for Success."

It's to be held in the Midland Room, fourth floor of Midland National Bank.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE to participate in today's Great American Smokeout, now in its fourth year.

It's an educational campaign to get smokers to give up the habit for just one day.

If you're nearing the end of the day and have gone so far without a cigarette but still need help, then try the following:

Have celery, carrots and other "nibbles" with you so you can chew instead of smoke.

Take a series of deep breaths every time you feel the urge to smoke. It helps you to relax.

Keep telling yourself, "I don't really need this cigarette." Then believe it.

Exercise every time you feel the urge to smoke.

If you'd like additional help in quitting, call 683-6374.

MIDDLE EASTERN DANCE ORGANIZATION will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday at the home of Phyllis Dudley, 3204 Bainbridge.

For more information, call Patricia Osborn at 694-3892 or Harriet Horton at 697-6831.

SONIA BELCHER received the Waterford crystal bowl given by Sam L. Majors Jewelers at the Zeta Boutique, and Laura Manulitz was the recipient of a $50 gift certificate from J.E. Borron. Money from this charity goes to Midland Cerebral Palsy Center.

Phone booth has become a status symbol

Copley News Service

Let's see, there's a Mercedes in one garage and a Jaguar in the other, a chicken in every pot and a pot for every kind of chicken dish, a house in Beverly Hills, a condo in Malibu, a time-share plan in St. Tropez and a casita in Mexico.

Now, there is a new status symbol — your own custom-made, stained-glass, hand-rubbed walnut (or, if you prefer, oak) wood, free-standing telephone booth winking at you in the living room.

If you have all of the above, then you qualify as a member of the market that Jerrold Harpe is aiming at with his creations labeled Elite Phone Booths. "A new sensation in conversation."

Harpe makes no bones about where his booths for phones ought to be. "I'm looking for the wealthy home owner who wants something very nice in his nice home. This is for the fancy, expensive house. I'm not doing it for the middle-class Joe Blow who lives in a tract house."

What Harpe is doing, in essence, is fancying up the old-fashioned stall phone booth that once graced street corners, courtesy of Ma Bell.

But Harpe intends no offense. He won't refuse to sell anyone a booth who wants to light up his life.

He just realizes that a guy on a budget might not want to dig down that deep in his pants pocket for the change. Three thousand, one hundred and ninety-five dollars. That's the price of the top model: a 7.5-foot booth, with stained-glass in a choice of color in an original Harpe design executed by Sharon Wright, owner of Picture Windows in La Mesa, Calif.

Brass inlay glitters from the hand-polished walnut. "TELEPHONE" is etched above the ornate doors, which Harpe will build to open either from the left or right, a departure from Bell's former ubiquitous models with accordion spring-lock doors that folded open.

Inside, the caller stands on a 33-by-23-inch teak parquet floor. A mirror overhead creates the illusion of the booth reaching for the sky. A gold and white phone, styled à la old, daintily graces the walnut shelf, phone books are stacked behind a glass-wood rack. And a brass and glass lamp lights the whole thing from within. The same model in oak is $2,920.

"I always wanted to make a giant walk-in lamp, and the booth does that. It lights up the room at night, and it's fun. Mainly, it's fun," Harpe said.

It also allows partygoers a chance to talk privately without leaving the scene of revelry, or tuning down the stereo, cutting down outside noise by 75 percent, according to Harpe.

Harpe, 31, is so confident that his brainstorm will take the country by storm that he gave up his home-re-modeling business to devote time to this unique venture. His silent partner, Douglas Cesar, 33, who operates a forklift company, put up $20,000 and his bartender girlfriend, Helga Wagner, lends a hand sanding the wood and doing the paperwork. Elite has been in business for six months.

Working out of his rented house in Santee, Calif., Harpe claims it takes seven to 10 eight-hour days to make each booth. Which accounts for some of the price. But he freely admits to making "a lot of money on each one." Recently, he shipped two of his creations to "people back East."

Demonstrating techniques make-up artist Beau Wilson discussed during his program at a meeting of the Permian Basin Geological/Geophysical Auxiliary is, far left, Mrs. Jack Goodwin, co-chairman. Watching are Mrs. Jerel Pierce, director and Mrs. Olan Stanley, vice president. Wilson presented his talk before 112 members and guests at the Holiday Inn Country Villa. Co-chairmen of the buffet luncheon were Mrs. Fred Myers and Mrs. Goodwin. Hostesses were Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. David Butthart, Mrs. Jim Deffenbaugh and Mrs. Robert Pervinsek. Wilson gave tips on skin care and a slide presentation on makeup techniques. His studio in Dallas is called "Face to Face." He has trained under Percy Westmore and worked very closely with plastic surgeons. (Staff Photo)

Toys sharpen skills

CHICAGO — Strides in technology during recent years have brought about extensive changes in the toy and game industry, changes which experts say have produced toys which increase an child's capacity to perceive and absorb information about their world and to develop and sharpen skills earlier in life. Expansion in the field of computer and electronic toys alone, for example, has introduced new learning opportunities for all ages.

Yet, according to Susan S. Carter of the University of Chicago Medical Center, coinciding with this rapid growth in technology and innovation has been the birth of a pervasive fear among many other Americans.

DEAR ABBY

Husband only wants their only child

By ANIGAL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for eight years and have a 2 1/2-year-old daughter we are both crazy about.

We have a happy, loving marriage, a nice home, good jobs and a fun life. (I am a school teacher.)

I love children and want another child soon, as I'm not getting any younger. My husband doesn't want any more. He was an only child and prefers peace, quiet and tranquility. He's an excellent father although sometimes he's a bit intolerant.

Before we were married he said he wanted children, but now he insists that one is enough. This is our only area of conflict, and it's a serious one. We both can see the other's point of view but feel too strongly about our own to compromise.

According to our religion (Jewish) we have an obligation to replace ourselves. That's TWO children. I would give him a surprise, but I might end up single.

What do you think? — EWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: If he promised you children, keep reminding him of his promise. And pray he has a change of heart before you have a change of life.

DEAR ABBY: I met this guy at a nightclub, and we were immediately attracted to each other. He's a Virgo and I'm an Aquarian, so our signs are perfect for a lasting relationship. He asked to see me the following night, and to cut a long story short, we soon became very, very close, if you know what I mean. Abby, I never fell in love so fast in all my life!

It turns out that he is engaged, but he's having serious doubts about whether he really wants to go through with it. (His fiancée lives out of state.) He is considering calling it off until he gets his head straight. He says their wedding date has been changed twice because first she wasn't sure, then he wasn't. I wouldn't feel that I was breaking up anything if he calls it off this time.

In the meantime we are seeing each other every chance we get. He treats me like a queen and I am loving it. I keep telling myself, "This is wrong," but the minute I see him, we seem so right for each other.

I'm afraid he's just using me as company until he gets married. He tells me he "cares" for me, but he won't say "I love you."

Where do I go from here, Abby? — STAR GAZER

DEAR STAR GAZER: Quit looking at the stars and look at the record. You're involved with a man who's considering breaking his engagement to another woman. You love him, but he won't say "I love you," even though you are very, very close (and yes, I know what you mean). Tell him goodbye and good luck, and to call you if and when he gets his head straight.

DEAR ABBY: Don't you ever have a problem? I'm sure you must have. If so, would you please share at least one with the millions of people who have shared theirs with you. — FAITHFUL READER, ATLANTA

DEAR READER: I thought you'd never ask. One of my biggest problems is the newspaper that fails to run the tag with my column that reads: "For a personal, unpublished reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. And please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope."

I hear from at least 300 people every week who do not sign their names, or fail to include their addresses or stamped, self-addressed envelopes. Then they chew me out for failing to answer their letters.

I am the easiest person in the world to reach.

Should you lose my address, simply write to "Abby" in care of the newspaper that runs my column.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Caffeine and pregnancy

Prudence...moderation...avoidance...common sense. More and more pregnant women may be hearing, and heeding, those words when it comes to eating and drinking products that contain caffeine. Some doctors have offered such advice for years. More are being encouraged by the Food and Drug Administration to tell their child-bearing patients to avoid or, at least, consume sparingly caffeine containing products because caffeine (like so many other substances) enters the mother's bloodstream and passes through the placenta to the unborn child.

Prodded by FDA, food producers — especially the coffee and soft drink industries — are being encouraged to undertake a wide range of new scientific research on caffeine and its effects on humans, particularly pregnant women and children. The coffee and soft drink industries previously announced their support of more research on caffeine by pregnant women.

There is already evidence from animal tests that caffeine, in doses equal to what a human might consume from 12 to 24 cups of strong coffee a day, can cause birth defects in pregnant rats. It is not known, however, if caffeine affects humans the same way because humans may not metabolize or process the substance in the same manner as animals. However, the tests with pregnant rats offer enough to warn pregnant women about caffeine.

A 1978 report also expressed concern about caffeine's effects on children, primarily from long-term consumption of caffeine-containing soft drinks. The report noted that children were consuming caffeine at "near those levels that are known to cause central nervous system effects in adults."

In addition to being found naturally in some food products, caffeine is added to a number of over-the-counter prescription drugs. It is found in some headache, cold, allergy and stay-awake pills that are available both with and without prescription. It is also used in painkilling and menstrual compounds.

As a stimulant to the central nervous system, caffeine can cause insomnia, nervousness, irritability, anxiety and disturbances in heart rate and rhythm. It also can affect blood pressure, coronary circulation, and the secretion of gastric acids.

Scrambled eggs: The original skillet supper

For busy homemakers with families to feed, having a reliable collection of recipes for wholesome, quick-to-fix main dishes is absolutely essential. There's one item that should go to the front of the recipe file for fast, easy and nutritious entrees — scrambled eggs. After all, they're the original skillet supper.

Supper, lunch, breakfast, anytime, they're simple to make and good to eat. To dress them up and vary their flavor, you can add an incredible number of easy embellishments, such as shredded or cubed cheese, chopped leftover vegetables or meats, herbs or crisply cooked, drained fresh vegetables.

You can give the eggs a foreign flavor, as witnessed in these Mexican tostados. This snappy, colorful main dish consists of scrambled eggs served atop crisp tostada shells and shredded lettuce. You can buy them packaged or fry corn tortillas in about 1/4 inch of hot oil until crisp. To add authentic Mexican flavor, the eggs are flavored with jack cheese, sour cream, ground cumin and a splash of taco sauce. Chopped tomatoes, green pepper, sliced ripe olives and a dollop of sour cream provide traditional tostada toppings.

- cream
- 2 tblsp. bottled taco sauce
- 1/2 teasp. garlic salt
- 1/4 teasp. ground cumin
- 1/2 cup shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese
- 2 cups shredded iceberg
- 8 (6-8 inch) tostada shells
- 2 cups chopped tomatoes (about 2 medium)
- 2 cups chopped green pepper (about 1 medium)
- 1/2 cup sliced pitted ripe olives

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat cook onion in butter until tender but not brown, about 5 minutes.

PERSONAL, to Skinny: I called The Reporter-Telegram to start home delivery, and I'll pay for it! I'm saving not only 40%, but dollars more with all those coupons every week. Gratefully, Mary.

PERSONAL, To Mary: I will not pay for the newspaper unless you subscribe for home delivery to SAVE 40%. Call The Reporter-Telegram. Circulation 682-5311. Your ever-loving Flint.

Beat together eggs, 1/2 cup of the sour cream, taco sauce, salt and cumin. Stir in cheese. Pour egg mixture over onions. As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across the bottom and sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Continue cooking until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist.

Arrange 1/2 cup lettuce on each tostada, spoon about 1/2 cup scrambled egg mixture over lettuce on each tostada. Top with tomatoes, green pepper, olives and remaining 1/2 cup sour cream. *It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

Copycat candy: Fruitcake bonbons

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Here's a recipe for fruitcake bonbons — they are rich in fruit and nuts. You can make them now and store them in your freezer. — C.B.

FRUITCAKE BONBONS

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 3 cups chopped pecans
- 3 cups chopped walnuts
- 1 cup chopped candied pineapple
- 1 cup chopped candied cherries
- 1 cup chopped citron
- 1 cup golden raisins
- 1/4 cup margarine
- 1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1-3rd cup light corn syrup
- 4 large eggs
- 1-3rd cup brandy

On wax paper or in a small bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, salt, allspice and cinnamon. In a large bowl stir together the pecans, walnuts, pineapple, cherries, citron and raisins — all chopped about the size of medium green peas. In the large bowl of an electric mixer at medium speed beat together the margarine, sugar and corn syrup until smooth, beat in the eggs, one at a time, until blended after each addition. Stir in the flour mixture in 3 additions, alternately with brandy, until smooth each time. Pour batter over fruit-nut mixture, stir until fruit mixture is coated with batter. Spoon about 1 tablespoon of the mixture into muffin-pan cups (each 1 1/4 by 1 inch) lined with fluted paper cups that have 1 1/4-inch bases and are 1 inch high. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until lightly browned — 30 to 35 minutes. Cool completely on wire racks. Makes 8 dozen.

Store in one layer in shallow, tightly covered containers in freezer. Before serving, thaw completely at room temperature. If desired, glaze and decorate as follows shortly before serving.

To glaze and decorate: In a small saucepan over medium heat bring 1-3rd cup light corn syrup to a boil and boil 1 minute. With a natural bristle brush, brush glaze over tops of fruit cakes. If desired, garnish with toasted walnut or pecan halves and candied cherry halves; rebrush with glaze.

Note: Don't worry about baking all the bonbons at one time. Use as many small muffin pan cups as you have; let the remaining batter stand at room temperature and bake it as soon as the muffin pan cups are available.

What's cooking?

Mrs. Windell Thomason

President of the Lion Tamers, the women's auxiliary to the downtown Lions Club, Barbara Thomason annually makes her scrumptious Maple Pecan Pound Cake.

"We use the pecans that my husband grows on his pecan trees here and at our ranch in Glasscock County," she said.

In addition to being active in community projects, she also stays busy being a homemaker, too. She and husband Windell are children to Paul, 14, an eighth grader at Midland Christian School, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank (Elizabeth) Alvarado Jr. who is a student along with her husband at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

The Thomason's are members of First Baptist Church. He is an independent oil operator.

Barbara enjoys sewing and gardening, and is also a member of the American Association of University Women.

Her advice for the pound cake? Be sure to use fresh pecans.

MAPLE PECAN POUND CAKE

Place the following in large mixer bowl:
1 cup softened margarine (2 stick)
3 cups sugar
Beat with mixer until well blended. Add:
5 eggs
Beat thoroughly.
Sift together:
3 cups sifted flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
Alternately add the flour mixture, and 1 cup milk.
2 teaspoons imitation maple flavoring to the egg-margarine-sugar mixture.
Beat with mixer until well-blended. Fold in one cup coarsely chopped pecans. Grease and flour well a bundt pan.
Bake 1 1/2 hours at 350 degrees. Cool before removing from the pan.

Cookbooks cater to children

By CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

The 1980 revised paperback edition of "Creative Food Experiences for Children" by Mary T. Goodwin and Gerry Pollen (Center for Science in the Public Interest, Washington, D.C., $5.95) is interesting and worthwhile.

Although it was intended to be used primarily by teachers in pre-schools, daycare centers, and similar groups, a good many parents could gain a great deal from the sound nutritional practices it advocates. One of the authors is a public health nutritionist and a mother; the other, also a mother, is a specialist in early childhood education, with long experience in teaching young children.

The book's great virtue is the guidance it offers in involving children in pleasurable food experiences. Chapters on vegetables, fruits, milk, protein foods, cereals and bread are informative. Another chapter on "Lunches, Snacks and Celebrations" offers practical suggestions parents and children can have fun using. The chapter tells "How to Take the 'Drag' out of Bag Lunches," "Packed Lunches," "Nutritious Snacks," and "Snacks for Celebrations," and has recipes for a "Children's Calendar of Celebrations."

Finally, there's a section of recipes that nutrition-conscious parents may find appealing. Covered are: beverages; salads and salad dressings; soups; main dishes; breads, cereals and pancakes; dips, spreads and sandwich fillings; and desserts.

Dorothy Lara-Braud had a great idea when she gathered together recipes for her recently published book, "Good Food Kids Love" (Quick Fox). She asked a good many mothers — in person, by mail, by phone — "What are your kids' favorite dishes?" As she says, "Almost all the mothers responded quickly, naming from three to six recipes that they use again and again, year in and year out." From these the author chose about 100 recipes that "taste good" and are "good for you."

Dr. Alvin Eden, a professor of pediatrics, contributed a foreword to the book. And Alex Beck, a respected nutrition consultant, wrote an introduction and added the nutrition notes and charts that accompany each recipe.

"Good Food Kids Love" is a spiral-bound book with color illustrations on each page and durable paper that should wear well in the kitchen. The recipes are sensible American ones, from potato and corn chowder to pumpkin chifon pie (with a whole wheat crumb crust). There are also some new combinations: for example, a carrot soup that includes tomato paste, apples, brown rice, honey and raisins. All in all, the dishes should please the whole family.

If you are thinking of bestowing a cookbook on your children that they can use themselves, you might consider "Better Homes and Gardens New Junior Cookbook" (Meredith). It's a hardcover book that offers 75 recipes with easy-to-follow directions and is illustrated in both black and white and color. Although this book originally appeared in 1963, 55 of its 75 recipes are new. Among these are up-to-date offerings — such as Taco Burgers and Easy Muffin Pizzas — as well as tried-and-true favorites such as scalloped corn and no-knead yeast rolls.

If your children love the classic stories of Laura Ingalls Wilder (the "Little House" books), chances are they'll be interested in "The Little House Cookbook" by Barbara M. Walker (Harper & Row). Its recipes are for the frontier foods that were so important a part of Laura Ingalls Wilder's own childhood. Mrs. Walker did extensive historical research that contributes a great deal to her book. Her recipes were tested and they're workable.

Cabbage is a base for tasty dishes

By TOM HOGE

Some vegetables have become such an integral part of our daily diet that we tend to take them for granted.

Such a one is cabbage, one of the most versatile of vegetables, that blends with almost any spice or flavoring.

A number of sauces, such as white cream sauce or a dressing made from cottage cheese, complement cabbage. Personally, when eating cabbage as a vegetable, I prefer it plain with just a little vinegar and pepper. But if you make it the main dish a few more frills are in order, as in this recipe for Cabbage Hawaiian.

CABBAGE HAWAIIAN

1 1/2 pounds white or green cabbage
3 tablespoons butter
3 teaspoons sugar
6 tablespoons canned crushed pineapple, with juice
1/4 cup shredded toasted coconut

Cut cabbage head in half lengthwise, then cut in wedges and remove core. Stack two wedges together so that the thin side of one wedge is on thick side of second wedge. Slice thinly. Repeat till all cabbage is sliced. Put cabbage, butter, sugar and pineapple in covered casserole. Stir. Cook in 300-degree oven till tender, about 30 minutes. Stir in coconut and serve. Serves 4.

Benedictine cloaked in secrecy

By TOM HOGE AP Wine and Food Writer

I have never been a cordial buff, but I do enjoy one liqueur created 470 years ago by a member of France's Benedictine Monastery. Its formula is wrapped today in the secrecy usually associated with the cloak-and-dagger set.

Recently I interviewed the present maker of the elixir known as Benedictine and learned something of its colorful history.

It seems that in 1510 a creative monk, Dom Bernardo Vincelli, was experimenting, distilling various herbs and plants in brandy, when he came up with a liqueur that was so palatable that the Benedictine Abbey located in the Norman fishing village of Fecamp began serving it to weary travelers. Soon the monks were doing a brisk business selling Benedictine locally.

When the French Revolution erupted in 1789, the abbey was destroyed and members of the order dispersed. That spelled the demise of the liqueur since no one remained who knew how to make it.

In 1863, a Fecamp wine merchant named Alexandre LeGrand who made a hobby of collecting religious manuscripts, stumbled upon the formula for Benedictine in a dusty volume.

LeGrand was so intrigued by his find that he rebuilt the abbey and began distilling Benedictine, which eventually won a reputation far beyond the confines of Fecamp.

LeGrand's great-grandson, Alain, who is now managing director of the house, told me that today only three people know the secret formula for distilling Benedictine, a complex blend of 27 herbs and plants.

Begin's government narrowly survives no-confidence test

JERUSALEM (AP) — Anger over Israel's 130 percent inflation and other worsening economic woes brought Prime Minister Menachem Begin's conservative government to the brink of destruction, but it survived a no-confidence vote by three votes.

Begin cut short a U.S. tour, flying back to Jerusalem one day ahead of schedule to vote against the no-confidence motion Wednesday. The 57-54 vote, with two abstentions, was the slimmest margin mustered by his coalition in a parliamentary challenge since he came to power 3½ years ago.

The opposition Labor Party sponsored the motion to capitalize on public frustration over soaring inflation that has prompted the government to cut subsidies on most staples, driving prices up in a belt-tightening drive. Consumer prices jumped 11 percent last month.

Former Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and ex-Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, onetime stars in the Begin Cabinet, dealt the prime minister sharp blows by voting to bring down his government.

Weizman, who quit the government last May in a row over efforts to cut his defense budget, told the Knesset, Israel's parliament, "In an emergency you do unusual things." He demanded the nation be put on a war footing to cope with the economic emergency.

Pilot blamed for Korean jet crash

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The pilot was responsible for the crash of a Korean Air Line's jumbo jet that killed him and 13 other people, including three Americans, South Korean investigators said today.

Witnesses said the pilot, Yang Chan-mo, 49, had time to escape from the cockpit but insisted on remaining inside the crashed and burning plane to the last moment.

Yoon Joo-sun, head of the joint government and airline inquiry team, said an investigation showed the plane's computer, engines and landing gear were functioning correctly before the crash.

He said visibility was estimated at better than the minimum 874 yard limit, and the pilot did not report any trouble when he talked to the control tower minutes before the crash.

The jet, carrying 226 people on a flight from Los Angeles, brushed an anti-aircraft gun emplacement as it landed in dense fog at Seoul's Kimpo Airport Wednesday, and its wing hit a military vehicle parked off the runway, Korean military sources said. The plane then crashed on the runway and burst into flames.

Authorities said six crew members, including the pilot, and seven passengers died in the crash. The 14th victim was identified as an airport security man killed by flying debris. They said 15 people were injured.

An airline spokesman identified the dead Americans as Donald Sailor of Tacoma, Wash., Ms. K. Hammerschlag, a resident of Seoul, and Louise Sander, believed from San Francisco.

Authorities identified the other dead passengers as Mrs. Hong Ok saeng of Seoul, Park Chang-kwon, a South Korean Foreign Ministry official, Mrs. Kim Hwa-suk, a Korean national who lived in Los Angeles, and Miyake Tame of Japan.

The dead crew members were identified as five Koreans and a Hong Kong Chinese. The security man who died was Lee Doo-hwan.

Officials said 11 of the injured remained hospitalized, none in serious condition. The others were treated and released.

Two of the injured were Americans. But authorities identified only one, Sue Hachtmann, 44, of San Antonio, Texas, a native of Korea.

Survivors said the plane circled the airport several times before making the landing approach and plunging to the runway. They said the jet filled quickly with smoke and flames. The upper portion of fuselage was destroyed from the cockpit to the tail section.

Officials credited quick action by the crew in throwing open emergency exits and lowering escape chutes for the survival of most of those aboard. They said the fire did not erupt in full force until most of those aboard escaped.

They said the crash of the Boeing 747, one of 10 operated by Korean Air Lines, was the airline's first major accident.

Weizman, who quit the government last May in a row over efforts to cut his defense budget, told the Knesset, Israel's parliament, "In an emergency you do unusual things." He demanded the nation be put on a war footing to cope with the economic emergency.

Weizman engineered Begin's 1977 election victory and has been touted as a possible successor to the prime minister in elections scheduled for next fall. His vote raised the likelihood he would be drummed out of Begin's Likud Party, weakening its appeal to the electorate.

Dayan, who left the government 13 months ago to protest the prime minister's hard-line policy in peace negotiations with Egypt, claimed the nation's economic problems eroded its bargaining power in the negotiations by making it dependent on American economic aid.

Labor deputy Gad Yaacobi defended the no-confidence motion for the socialist opposition. He described the government as "an unmanned spaceship, with no objective and no map."

Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz, replying for the government, blamed the previous Labor Party governments for the country's economic ills. "We have gotten where we are because of the anarchic spirit that pervaded the previous governments," he said, accusing the Laborites of featherbedding and plunging the nation into multi-billion-dollar debt.

First group of stranded Cuban refugees arrives

MIAMI (AP) — After being stranded in the Cuban port of Mariel when the Freedom Flotilla was halted in September, 117 Cuban refugees were reunited with their families here as the first of a series of Havana-to-Miami airlifts arrived.

"We are so glad to be out," said refugee Yolanda Obregon as others chanted, "Libertad, libertad (Freedom, freedom)."

"We were stranded the whole time at Mariel until we were taken to Havana for the flight," said the former clerical employee of the Science Academy in Santa Clara, whose relatives had fled to Miami in the 1960s.

"After they shut down the port we couldn't go back to our house because it was so far away and also because the authorities had sealed it. At Mariel we slept under tents for awhile and then we only ate twice a day, rice and scrambled eggs, all the time, every day."

Another 476 refugees will arrive here on flights over the next few weeks, according to Roberto Perez, a member of Church World Service, the refugee relief agency that arranged the airlift.

The would-be refugees had been waiting at Mariel since Cuban President Fidel Castro abruptly curtailed the five-month-long boatlift that brought more than 127,000 Cubans to the United States this year.

Unlike the boatlift refugees, those arriving at Miami International Airport Wednesday carried U.S. visas obtained in Havana.

They had been interviewed there by the consular office and immigration officers before receiving visas, Wayne Smith, head of the U.S. Interests Section in Havana, said by telephone.

The Cubans were taken to Tropical Park for immigration processing and, in most cases, reunions with family members.

Myles Frechette, head of the State Department's Cuban Desk in Washington, said this country has decided to take the refugees in "for humanitarian reasons."

A few new arrivals who don't have relatives in the United States were granted permission to enter this country because of "a well-founded fear of persecution in Cuba," he added.

But U.S. officials said Cuban-Americans should be responsible for getting the Cubans to the United States.

The Church World Service has organized the airlift, and the Coordinating Committee of the Cuban Community, which has collected about $45,000 so far, paid for the first flight, Perez said.

Shots fired at acquitted Klansman

Flanked by Nazi guards Mark Conway, left, and Roger Pierce, right, Harold Covington, leader of the national Nazi Party, tells a Tuesday afternoon news conference at the group's headquarters in Raleigh, N.C., the verdict in the Greensboro Klan-Nazi trial is a "triumph for freedom." Covington also announced the formation of a White Power Party to promote a racist state. (AP Laserphoto)

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — An unknown gunman in a passing car fired shots at an auto driven by a Ku Klux Klansman acquitted this week in the deaths of five anti-Klan demonstrators, police said.

The Klansman, Jerry Paul Smith, who was not hit, said he returned the fire. His car then crashed, police said. Smith was not hurt in the Wednesday night incident along a rural Lincoln County road, police said.

The innocent verdict returned in state court in Greensboro Monday for Smith and five other Klansmen and American Nazis has sparked protests from Greensboro residents, blacks and civil rights leaders.

A coalition of black groups was to stage a "prayer march for freedom and justice" in downtown Greensboro today to "express citizens' concerns" over the acquittals.

The four-mile march, sponsored by local civil rights activists and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was to end at the Guilford County Courthouse, where the 23-week trial took place.

Federal prosecutors, meanwhile, said they were investigating the possibility of charging the six Klansmen and Nazis with civil rights violations. But U.S. Attorney H.M. Michaux said Wednesday he was unsure the evidence would justify such charges.

The five anti-Klan demonstrators, who were associated with the Communist Workers Party, were slain at a "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro on Nov. 3, 1979. The six Klansmen and Nazis had been charged with murder and felonious rioting.

The details of the shooting incident involving Smith were sketchy and he was not available for comment.

Police said they had not apprehended anyone.

"Nobody's really sure what happened," said Bill Hoover, a spokesman for the Lincoln County Sheriff's department.

"Some shots were fired and there was an accident. We're not sure if it really was an attempt on his life or it could have been a prank," Hoover said.

State Highway Patrol Trooper David S. Jarrett said Smith trooper officials that someone in a passing vehicle shot at him, causing him to wreck, and that he returned fire.

Officials at Lincoln County Hospital were asked to tell police whether anyone sought treatment for bullet wounds or cuts from broken glass, a spokesman said.

Lincolnton is about 90 miles west of Greensboro. Smith is from Maiden in Catawba County, which borders Lincoln County.

Smith, in an interview published earlier Wednesday, had said while he still believes in the Klan and fighting communism, but would not have gone to the Greensboro rally if he had it to do over.

"It's a hard thing when a man's life is lost. ... They (the victims) had families just like us, they've got children just like us. The only difference between them and us is our political beliefs," Smith said.

In another development, federal officials planned to meet Friday with state and local justice officials to discuss the possibility of federal prosecution for civil rights violations.

But U.S. Attorney H.M. Michaux said Wednesday, "We've got a problem. We have to find a federally protected civil right that these people violated."

The Justice Department can bring federal charges when a person's civil rights are believed to have been violated, but jurisdiction in the Greensboro case was unclear. Federal prosecutors brought civil rights charges in Florida this year against a policeman after former Dade County policemen were acquitted in the death of a black businessman.

Mistrial declared in rape case

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A mistrial was declared in the rape trial of former Texarkana School Board member Allen Eugene Rogers in Miller County Circuit Court after inadmissible evidence mistakenly was shown to the jury.

Special Judge John Lineberger made the ruling Wednesday after it was discovered that a report of a polygraph test Rogers had undergone was mixed in with other evidence shown to the 12-man jury.

Lineberger ordered the jury polled and four members said they had read the polygraph report. Lineberger had ruled the report inadmissible.

Lineberger said he would reschedule the trial of the 42-year-old Rogers at a future date. Defense attorney Damon Young said he would ask for a change of venue.

Rogers is charged with the rape of a 39-year-old Wake Village, Texas, woman in February 1979. He is free on bond.

John Young and the late Wade K. Smith, both of Texarkana, also were charged with rape. Smith was found shot to death in March, 1979, and Rogers and Young both were charged with capital murder in connection with the death.

Rogers has entered a plea of innocent to the murder charge, but has not yet been brought to trial. Young pleaded guilty to the murder charge and is awaiting sentencing in Miller County Jail.

Rogers was cross-examined Wednesday by assistant prosecutor Kirk Johnson. He stuck to his earlier testimony that he had sex with the woman twice, once in a motel room and again in an apartment, both times with her consent.

Johnson finished his cross-examination, and defense attorney Young made a motion to dismiss the trial for lack of evidence. As Johnson was responding, Young noticed the results of the polygraph test in a stack of evidence given to the jury for examination.

Young showed the item to Lineberger, who then declared the mistrial.

Two gay bars sprayed with machine gun fire

NEW YORK (AP) — A spray of machine gun fire outside two Greenwich Village gay bars has left one man dead and seven wounded, and police have charged a former transit policeman who had an "intense" dislike for homosexuals.

"The shots just never stopped," said a bartender. "They just kept coming and coming....The bullets came right over the bar and hit a couple of bottles."

The former transit policeman, Ronald Crumpley, 38, of Manhattan, had been cruising Village streets Wednesday night in a blue Cadillac belonging to his father, a minister, police said. Crumpley was dressed in a dark wool topcoat and a black, red-feathered fedora, police said.

Crumpley was charged with murder, attempted murder and illegal possession of a dangerous weapon.

"He has a dislike for homosexuals, a rather intense one I would say, under the circumstances," Lt. John Yuknes said.

The first shots were fired from the Cadillac shortly before 11 p.m. at Sim's Deli, where at least three people were wounded and the front plate-glass window was shattered with slugs from an automatic handgun, police said.

The weapon was one of three purchased in the South a few days ago, minutes later, the man drove to Christopher Street, left the car and gunned a man down at the curb with an Israeli-made Uzi machine gun, police said. He shot at another man and then leveled the weapon at Sneakers and Ramrod, two gay bars next door to each other, police said.

"The man in the Cadillac...stepped out of the car calmly, walked up to the curb and shot a man standing on the curb waiting for a cab," said Dann Hedges, 30, who was in Sneakers at the time.

"The man fell to the ground, then he (the gunman) shot another guy who ran around the corner. He started spraying both bars through the plate-glass windows. Then he got back into the car and drove off," said Hedges, who scribbled the car's license plate number on a dollar bill and gave the number to police.

John Ganrecki, who suffered a shattered bone in his finger, said, "I heard a noise up front....It sounded like a string of firecrackers. People were falling on the floor and there was a screaming and yelling...."

"It was like something in Al Capone; there is a row of bullet holes across the glass behind the bar," he said.

The fatally wounded man died on the operating table, said spokeswoman Rita Conyers at St. Vincent's Hospital. He was not immediately identified.

One victim was in critical condition, another was in serious condition.

Prison site protests continue

NAVASOTA, Texas (AP) — Grimes County residents who vehemently oppose selection of a site near here for a new prison farm should air their complaints at public hearings on the matter, a Texas Department of Corrections spokesman told the irate group.

Rick Hartley said the TDC "wants to be good neighbors wherever it settles and does not want to locate where it is unwanted."

The TDC board approved the Grimes County site earlier this month after a frustrating two-year search, but the final decision will be made by Gov. William P. Clements Jr., state Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and TDC board Chairman James Windham.

The prison system's proposal to build a facility on a 5,900-acre site has brought angry protests from many residents of the area.

Charles Coates, who owns 146 acres near the site, said an organization has been formed to fight the plan and money collected to buy newspaper advertisements and to mail letters to state officials.

Vietnam veteran Chris James, 33, of Wichita Falls, shown here with his wife Terry, is convinced his life has been permanently scarred by the affects of a defoliant with which he was sprayed in South Vietnam in 1968. In addition to his own medical problems, his wife has had two miscarriages and three premature babies. Only two children survived, and they have birth defects. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Former POW says Garwood not surprised by commission

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A former prisoner of war testified Wednesday that Marine Pfc Robert Garwood didn't seem surprised when he was commissioned a lieutenant in the North Vietnamese Army and was given the Vietnamese name "Brave Freedom Fighter" while being held at a POW camp.

Army Sgt. 1st Class Isiah McMillan also testified that Garwood delivered a "sucker punch" — later described as more of a slap to the ribs than a blow — to another American in the prison camp.

Garwood, 34, spent nearly 14 years in Vietnam after disappearing in 1965. He claims he was held captive until his return to the United States last year.

The government contends Garwood stayed in Vietnam voluntarily and is trying him on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy.

McMillan told the five-man military court that Garwood was commissioned as a North Vietnamese officer in front of his fellow inmates, and was given the Vietnamese name Nguyen Chin Dao. Earlier testimony indicated the name means "Brave Freedom Fighter."

McMillan said, "There wasn't a surprised look on his face, it was more that he was aware of what was going on. When the interpreter told us, he (Garwood) had a kind of smile on his face."

McMillan, a career soldier now stationed at Fort Gordon, Ga., said he later talked to Garwood. "He said he crossed over. They told him he would be released, liberated. That's why he crossed over."

McMillan also told the court that Garwood struck Pfc David Harker during a dispute after the camp commander's pet cat had been killed by hungry POWs.

McMillan said the prisoners were called into formation and berated. Marine Lance Cpl Russell Grissett later confessed and was taken away to be beaten, McMillan testified.

At a subsequent formation, McMillan said Garwood yelled at the other prisoners, "You're supposed to be all Americans. Why do you let Russ take all the blame?"

"That's when he (Garwood) hit Harker," McMillan said.

His children are 'casualties'

Veteran blames Agent Orange for deaths, defects

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Chris James says his children are casualties of the war he fought 13 years ago in the jungles of Vietnam.

He is convinced his life has been permanently scarred by the effects of a defoliant he fears has damaged his children and will send him to an early grave.

The contaminant, James says, is Agent Orange, a herbicide and defoliant that many veterans blame for a range of physical problems. Widely used in Vietnam, Agent Orange was banned for use in the United States 20 months ago after the Environmental Protection Agency found there was no "safe" level of the dioxin chemical in the substance.

James said he suffers a rash on his face, a tingling sensation all over his body, severe pain in his thighs, open sores, shooting pains in the kidney area, an ache in his wrist like a sprain, chest pains and headaches. And he says both of his children were born prematurely with birth defects.

He said he was sprayed with Agent Orange about a mile outside Khe Sanh, in South Vietnam in 1968 as his company marched down a road to help an ambushed convoy.

"All of a sudden, there were two tremendous, large explosions," said the 33-year-old James, an employee of an oil field supply warehouse.

The explosions were sonic booms from two F-4 Phantom II jets flying at tree-top level, leading the way for defoliation planes, he said.

"Everybody was just completely saturated. We knew it was defoliant, but we didn't know any of the names," he said. "It was everywhere in the jungle."

He said they washed off in a creek about two miles away, but is sure the creekwater also was contaminated.

"They didn't tell you anything to decontaminate you and you didn't know what you were sprayed with," he said Wednesday. "I thought it was like crop dusting here in America, and if you washed it off, you would be all right."

Soldiers had been warned against drinking water or eating plants in the jungle, James said, but it often was their only source of water and food and his company once went as long as 53 days without new supplies.

James said he did not suspect until about two years ago that the chemical he was sprayed with was Agent Orange.

Between 1962 and 1970, about 12 million gallons of Agent Orange were sprayed over South Vietnam and government records indicate the dioxin level in that substance was about 20 times higher than the Agent Orange banned in the U.S.

The Veterans Administration has formed a task force to study the effects of Agent Orange on humans, but has linked only one disorder — a skin disease called chloracne — to the chemical, said the chief of staff at Dallas' Veterans Administration Hospital.

"There are studies going on to find out if any other conditions can be linked to Agent Orange, but so far, there is nothing conclusive," Dr. George A. Edwards said Wednesday.

"I think they (veterans who believe they have been contaminated) are bitter because they sincerely believe they have trouble because of Agent Orange."

James' wife, Terry has had two miscarriages and three children were born premature. Only two survived, and they have birth defects, Mrs. James said.

"Two things make me maddest," she said. "One, I'm probably going to be a widow at a very young age and two, we can't have any more children."

Tracy, 8, was born with an enlarged colon and Renee, 4, was born with an unusually small colon and suffers from a blood disorder, severe anemia and several eye problems, Mrs. James said.

Her husband has taken out a $150,000 life insurance policy and says he expects to die at a young age.

"I don't want to be a statistic," he said.

"I can see his health going downhill fast," Mrs. James said. "If we could get disability it would help him, the kids and their children."

But James said he was treated in mobile units traveling around South Vietnam and cannot remember the dates and locations necessary for disability claim records.

"I don't think it's right," said James, who also was hit with shrapnel several times during his 13-month stint in Vietnam.

"If I start getting real bad and they haven't done anything, I'm going to buy a can of Agent Orange and go to Washington and spray it all over Congress and say, 'Don't worry folks, it won't hurt you, it's just a little wet.'"

Edwards said he was aware of one study that found no increases in birth defects in mice saturated with Agent Orange, but said other studies still continue.

"It's amazing the spectrum of symptoms they (veterans) attribute to Agent Orange. They feel the V.A. is not doing anything, and in the sense they were are not adjudicating a lot of claims, I guess we're not. We've adjudicated very few, only those connected to chloracne."

"We have tried to downplay the scare aspects of it. It does the veteran no good to get him anxious about it because he feels, 'Well, they got me all worried and now they aren't doing anything.'"

James said he also was frustrated by a two-day visit to the V.A. hospital in Dallas, where a doctor ran blood and urine tests, made a chest X-ray and noted on the chart that Agent Orange contamination was doubtful.

"That might have been written down, but it shouldn't have been," Edwards said.

New York couple now teaching Indians crafts

By GARY R. PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

SANTA CLARA, Mexico (AP) — Former New Yorker James Metcalf has opened a school in this village to help the people preserve their pre-Columbian copper techniques and learn new ones. His wife teaches women a craft, but to do so she had to break strict Tarascan Indian tradition.

At the Metcalf school, residents are taught reading, writing, photography and jewelry-making, the latter primarily for women.

The male-dominated culture had kept women in the home for hundreds of years here, but Mrs. Metcalf's jewelry classes brought them out.

"There were a few black eyes at first," said Metcalf, explaining that some men initially beat their wives, but finally relented.

"Before, they (women) didn't have a craft. Now they are learning one and we think this is important, although it was quite difficult at first."

The government felt the Metcalfs' efforts were important, too, because it came up with a grant for the school and has provided some teachers to aid them.

Like the Greeks, the Tarascans believed the first man was made of metal, and Metcalf, 55, sought out this village, 250 miles west of Mexico City, when he arrived in Mexico in 1966, moving from his metal sculpture studio in Paris.

"I never dreamed I'd find this incredible technique here," he said, referring to the way artisans take a single chunk of copper and laboriously hammer it into pitchers, kettles, pots and frying pans.

Copper articles from Santa Clara grace shelves and walls around the world, bought by visitors to Mexico. The copper comes from cast-off wiring of U.S.-made auto generators, which might rankle with some buyers, but the technique and designs are authentic, says Metcalf.

"They still make a kettle of the design brought here by the Spanish, but when I got here they were still using stone anvils, and those certainly predate the Spaniards."

Santa Clara is just a wide spot in the road on a lush hillside surrounded by dense forest that for hundreds of years has provided fuel for ancient-style forges. About 16,000 persons live in and around the village.

"Before we came, there were about 150 artisans here. Now there are 3,000. Most of the people work their land about 100 days a year to feed themselves and we wanted to give them something to do for the rest of the year," he said.

"The idea is to foment creativity so people can work without losing the capacity of art and creating."

Metcalf's parents once taught at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, and while he was living there he met a college professor interested in self-contained communities, something he said the United States was losing.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Drug could have side effects

Dear Dr. Solomon: I saw on television where athletes and others are using a drug to relieve a variety of aches and pains. When I asked my doctor about it, he told me that the Food and Drug Administration has warned that it might be harmful, and he would not prescribe it for me. Is this another example of bureaucratic foul-up? If something has been shown to be beneficial, why not let people use it? —Cary

Dear Cary: Experience has shown that while a drug may provide immediate relief for some conditions, its long-term use may produce side effects that were not apparent or even suspected when the medication was first introduced. The tragic experience with thalidomide is probably as good an example of this as any. Those who use a drug before both its safety and effectiveness have been demonstrated are playing a very dangerous form of Russian roulette.

The drug you are probably referring to is dimethyl sulfoxide, or DMSO. While, as you say, some people have started using it to treat arthritis and bursitis, the Food and Drug Administration is concerned about the possibility that it may produce adverse long-term side effects. At present, the FDA approves the use of DMSO only for treatment of a bladder condition known as chronic interstitial cystitis. As yet, the drug has not been shown to be useful for any other condition.

According to the FDA, which is continuing to test DMSO, research with animals has indicated that the drug may damage the eyes, and can cause such side effects as nausea, headaches and skin rash. It also may carry harmful substances into the blood stream.

Experimental drugs occasionally are used for patients with a terminal illness who have not been responsive to the more conventional forms of treatment. The use of DMSO to alleviate aches and pains that are not life-threatening may bring temporary relief, but at a future cost that no one can yet estimate.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father has been under treatment for a heart condition for a number of years. He is very independent and refuses to be accompanied when he goes to the doctor for his check-ups. By the same token, he is very close-mouthed about what his doctor tells him. However, he did mention recently that he has "unstable" angina. Can you explain what that is and what causes it? It seems to me that any condition involving the heart must be unstable. —Mr. F. L.

Dear Mr. L.: The word "unstable" has a special meaning when used to describe angina pectoris. It refers to a condition of progressive angina that is increasing in frequency of severity or both. Another term often used to describe the syndrome is "accelerated angina."

Why angina pectoris becomes unstable is not clear. One possibility suggested is that it reflects a worsening of the coronary disease that gave rise to the original symptoms in the first place. He is wise to work with his physician.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Football season concludes

By VICKI MADDEN, KATHY WOOD and JULIE GUYTON

Well Bulldogs, Friday night was the last game of the season. Even though we were defeated, the spirit of Midland High supporters was higher than ever. A special thanks and a hand goes to all of you hard-working players because we are very proud of you.

To Coach Pat Culppepper and all the coaches, we appreciate all of your dedication and enthusiasm for

Two men paroled to Midland area

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Two persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area have been paroled by Gov. Bill Clements on recommendations of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Robert M. Lewis, convicted of robbery by assault, prior conviction, in Midland County April 10, 1970, was paroled to Midland County after serving and earning 21 years and six months of a life sentence.

Ramiro M. Ramirez Jr., convicted of possession of marijuana in Andrews County April 8, 1980, was paroled to Lubbock County after serving and earning 11 months of a two-year sentence.

our teams and all the work you put in to make fantastic teams. Our mighty Bulldog JV remained undefeated throughout the season. Congratulations guys!

The Packbackers also merit recognition for their importance to the spirit of Midland High.

The basketball season has begun so all you fans of our great team show your support. Remember our mighty Roundballers are rated second in state and will no doubt count up number 1 this year.

The MHS band did its usual great job last Saturday in Odessa at the UIL contest. The band received a rating of 1 for the 10th year in a row. Way to go. The twirlers got an overall rating of 2, which is terrific.

Congratulations to Tammy Locklar and Angi Rasco who receive a 1 on their solos. Laura Shelton, Karen Kuykendall, Shelia Hibbits, Christy Squyres and Darci Daehling all got ratings of 2. Great job girls.

Rasco's news: The dance Friday night was very unsuccessful, but the people who came had a great time. Since there is "nothing for teenagers to do" in Midland, I just cannot understand it.

Tuesday, Nov. 25, the 100 Club and Junior Council have a meeting at 7:15 a.m. Anyone interested in signing up to work at lunch needs to be present.

To the 100 Club: Most of you need more points and since there are only few dances left, you need to show up for the meetings and afterschool work to gain those points.

McCamey, Plains tilt to feature high-octane offenses

By MIKE CRUVER
R-T Sports Writer

Friday night's (7:30) Class AA bi-district clash between the McCamey Badgers and the Plains Cowboys will feature a high-octane offense meeting an unyielding defense.

"We are real proud to be in the playoffs for the second year in a row; it's good for our program," said McCamey second-year mentor Larry Nabors. Last season the Badgers went 8-1-1 and lost in a bi-district clash to Seagraves. This season the Badgers advanced to the playoffs by going 8-2 and winning District 6-AA.

PLAINS FIRST-year coach Gerry English was just as happy, saying, "Our kids worked hard, we didn't have much depth so we had to stay healthy." Plains won the District 5-AA crown with a 7-2-1 mark. By winning, the Cowboys snapped Seagraves' playoff appearances at seven straight years.

English noted, "We will have to move the ball and play tough defense. Defense is what got us here." Right he is. Plains gave up only 60 points in 10 games. The Cowboys were real tough in district games, allowing only 12 points to six opponents.

ON THE other side of the pigskin is a McCamey squad, who averaged 30.1 points per game. And if they can get their running and option game together, the Badgers could be a handful for the Cowboy defense.

Badger right halfback Ben Ferguson, a slippery 170-pound senior, rolled up 1,281 yards rushing, averaging 8.3 yards a crack. Ferguson racked up 12 touchdowns on the season. Helping out in the backfield is B.J. Terry, 155-pound senior, who averaged nine yards a tote and gained 1,034 yards with 11 TDs. Defenses can't forget fullback Mike Hanks and his 409 yards and four TDs.

NABORS said, "We expect a tough game, they (Plains) are bigger than we are but perhaps we are quicker." Nabors added, "We may have to throw the ball a little more. During the district race we didn't have to pass but Friday night we may fill the air with balls."

If the Badger go to the air, senior quarterback

Ernest Velasquez can get the job done. For the season Velasquez has thrown 81 times, completed 31 for 537 yards and six touchdowns.

Asked about his offense, Black stated, "We are a balanced team in rushing and scoring and I can't say for sure who lead the team." Black noted that no one in his backfield, quarterback James McElroy, tailback Mike Cheatham, fullback David Huerta and flanker Dexter Baker or Wade Gass, should be taken lightly and they can hurt you in many different ways.

MCCAMEY'S losses this season were to Rankin, 17-13, and Seagraves, 31-24. Plains lost to New Deal, 14-10 (when its top two quarterbacks were hurt) and to Bovina, 20-15.

What's the key? Said English, "Adjust, play our game, don't make a lot of mistakes, we can't afford to beat ourselves." McCamey's Nabors said almost exactly the same, "Don't beat ourselves. We can't make a lot of mistakes."

There you have it. Come 10 p.m. Friday, one of these teams will have made one too many mistakes.

Roberto Duran
...first fight left scar on Sugar Ray?

Duran, Sugar learned from first World War

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Good fighters learn by experience. So what did Roberto Duran and Sugar Ray Leonard learn about one another in Montreal that will help them in their rematch for the World Boxing Council welterweight championship Tuesday night in the Superdome?

Duran, who won the title on a close but unanimous decision June 20, is cagey when asked. "I learned a lot," said the Panamanian Wednesday. "I'll show you at the fight."

As for what Leonard learned that might be useful in the rematch, Duran said, "I don't think he can do anything more than he did in the first fight. If he does anything more, I'll be ready for it."

"There have not been any drastic changes," Leonard said of battle plans. "I just found out I have a left jab. I'll just pace myself more carefully this time."

"The left hand will be in play this time," said Angelo Dundee, who trains Leonard. Dundee and Janks Morton, another Leonard aide, feel Leonard didn't jab and move enough in the first fight and that he shouldn't have tried to fight it out in the early rounds when Duran gained his winning edge.

"We're going to fight him, but this time later on when Ray has taken the steam out of Duran," said Dundee.

Freddy Brown, who helps train Duran, doesn't think it matters what strategy Leonard employs. "Duran will fight the other guy's fight," said Brown. "When Duran walks into the ring, he's the boss."

Ray Arcel, another of Duran's strategists, feels the first fight might have left a scar on Leonard. "It affected Leonard mentally," said Arcel. "It took all the guts out of him. It's a boy in against a man."

"The 15 rounds with Duran is all he needed," said Dundee. "He knows Duran now. He's seen Duran. Duran doesn't punch a lot ... two-punch combinations and everything else is a foul. He does everything in there."

Morton chimed in that Leonard "learned he butts a lot. He learned he holds a lot. That's the main thing. He learned he uses his head more than he punches."

The Leonard camp was not happy with referee Carlos Padilla in Montreal, claiming he let Duran maul and wouldn't separate the fighters. There also was dissatisfaction over the judging. One judge scored 10 even rounds and the other two called five rounds and four rounds even, respectively.

"I'm not concerned about the referee or the judges," said Leonard. "My main concern is Sugar Ray Leonard. I have to make the results happen."

"I'm here to fight and to defend the championship, and this time Mr. Leonard is going to kiss the floor of the ring," said Duran. "I want a referee who knows how to count from one to 10."

Martin landslide manager pick

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Billy Martin, the firebrand of the Oakland A's, who led an almost anonymous team to a remarkable second-place finish, was named American League Manager of the Year for the third time by The Associated Press today.

Martin was an overwhelming choice in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, receiving 400 1/2 votes to 108 for runner-up Jim Frey, who took the Kansas City Royals to the American League pennant in his first year on the job.

Dick Howser, who succeeded the combative Martin as manager of the New York Yankees and won the East Division title in his rookie year, finished third with 20 1/2. Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles was fourth with 10.

Martin did an amazing job with the A's, taking a team which finished in last place, 34 games behind first place in 1979, to contention in 1980. Using virtually the same club which had lost 108 games the year before, Martin turned the team around, finishing with an 83-79 mark, 14 games behind the Royals in the West Division race. The 29-game improvement was one of the best any team has ever enjoyed.

The A's are the fifth American League club Martin has managed, following stints at Minnesota, Detroit, Texas, and New York twice. He has been named AP Manager of the Year twice before, in 1974 when he led Texas to a second place finish in the West, and in 1976 when he won the pennant with the Yankees.

Martin went to Oakland just before spring training and was the main attraction for the A's in the early part of the season.

He was available after being fired by the Yankees following a fight in Bloomington, Minn. hotel with a marshallow salesman last October. That was the latest in a string of off the field battles for the manager who carried on a celebrated running feud with owner George Steinbrenner during his two terms with the Yankees.

Perhaps his most famous war with Steinbrenner came in 1978 when he called both the Yankee owner and superstar right fielder Reggie Jackson liars. "One's a born liar, the other's convicted," the manager said, referring to Steinbrenner's conviction for illegal political campaign contributions. Within days, he was gone, replaced by Bob Lemon. Then, just as suddenly, Steinbrenner announced that Martin would return as Yankee manager in 1980, with Lemon becoming general manager.

That scenario never developed. Lemon took the Yanks to the 1978 world championship and was named AP Manager of the Year. But when the team got off slowly in 1979, Steinbrenner brought Martin back for a second term. The club staggered to a fourth place finish — the lowest any Martin-led club has ever finished — and after the bar room fight, Steinbrenner fired the manager.

But three months later, he was back again, leading the A's to one of the most amazing form reversals in recent baseball history.

Bill Virdon of the Houston Astros was named National League manager of the year earlier this week.

BATTLE SCENE

Pardee headed back to A&M?

One thing and another while wondering who, besides Notre Dame, Bear Bryant has never been able to beat.

Latest rumor has Jack Pardee going from the Washington Redskins back to Texas A&M to succeed Tom Wilson as head coach.

TCU wobbled under a deluge of criticism for firing public address announcer Bob Barry for revealing the score of the SMU's victory over Texas a few weeks back. TCU at the time was giving Baylor more than it wanted, but once the Bears heard what was happening in Austin, they took charge at Fort Worth.

Angry fans accused TCU of trying to blame an innocent PA man for ineptness of an inferior program. There was one voice of protest, who agreed the PA man should have been fired, even if it was at the wrong time for the wrong reasons. The critic asserted that the PA man should have been canned a long time ago as a public service. Just didn't like the sound of his voice...

WHEN RICE SID Bill Whitmore heard that there were 210,000 Baptists living in Houston, he indicated the Owls would be happy if just one out of every four of them found their way to Rice Stadium for the Baylor game last Saturday.

Texas Tech finds itself in the same spot it was in a couple of years ago when the Raiders finished with a rush, but because of a poor start wound up watching others play in bowl games.

This year, Tech could finish with victories over four of the five SWC teams who will be appearing in bowls, yet once again will be uninvited. Of course, Tech would have to finish with wins over Houston and Arkansas, which won't be that easy...

SEVERAL years ago when Texas Tech agreed to play host to the now defunct Coaches All-America Game each June, a new lighting system was installed to TV specifications and it gave Jones Stadium one of the brightest gridirons in the nation.

Unhappily, they've stopped making the lights that were used and last summer Tech officials had to scour the land digging up replacements for the now-outmoded lamps. They concentrated on the east side standards and next year will concentrate on replacing the burned out west side lights. After that, who knows...

It has been a long season for Colorado, but one of the few bright spots has been Bobby Humble, the former Midland Lee athlete, who is rated the Buffs' best defensive player. He had 22 tackles against LSU and 19 against Nebraska...

AFTER that rematch in the Orange Bowl against Oklahoma a couple of years back, one wonders how the Cornhuskers might react to a similar replay against Florida State in the Orange Bowl. There's one big difference. The Huskers won against Oklahoma in the regular season game and then was buried in the rematch. This time, Nebraska will have the "make amends" incentive on its side after losing an early season game to the Seminoles...

Eddie Mullens of UTEP describes his deer hunting trip into the wilds of Colorado. "I jumped up and took two quick shots and before I could recork, the deer was gone." Would you believe that Bryant, the second winningest coach of all time, has never beaten Colorado, Oklahoma State, Santa Clara or William and Mary?

Earl finally complains about late hits

Purdue quarterback Mark Herrmann was picked as quarterback on the Football Writers Association All-America football team. (AP Laserphoto).

BY BRUCE LOWITT
NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Campbell finally complained Wednesday about the late hits he has taken during his brief National Football League career — and labeled Chicago's Doug Plank as one of the worst offenders.

"The Chicago Bears do it worse than anybody," the Houston Oilers' league-leading running back said in a telephone interview. He also mentioned New England as another prime example of a late-hitting team.

And when pressed to name any individuals on those teams who do more late-hitting than other players, Campbell replied without hesitation: "Both of their weak safeties."

They're Plank and Tim Fox of the Patriots.

It was a tackle by Plank in the third period of last Sunday's 10-6 Houston victory which knocked Campbell out of the game for one series with a bruised calf muscle.

Even more interestingly, Campbell's complaint came one day after Plank was in New York, appealing a $2,000 fine assessed by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle for a spearing violation against Tampa Bay tight end Jimmie Giles earlier this year.

"I don't want to sound like a crybaby, because I know if a guy doesn't catch hold of me and make sure I'm down, I'm gonna get loose from him," said Campbell. "I know I'm not gonna stop until I know a guy's got me down — but every now and then I'll be down and I'll feel somebody else coming. I don't think that's fair at all."

"I didn't say anything to the guy who hit me," Campbell went on. "But I told the ref, 'I wish you'd watch that No. 46 or whatever.' I said, 'Man, please give me a chance. That's all I ask.'"

Plank wears No. 46.

"I think teams have been getting into more of the late-hit stuff this year, which I wish the refs would pay closer attention to. I've been getting hit more after the whistle this year."

May Outland winner

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mark May has become the University of Pittsburgh's first player to win the Outland Trophy as college football's outstanding interior lineman.

The Outland winner wasn't scheduled to be announced by the Football Writers Association of America until Saturday night.

But the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette made the disclosure in today's editions in a copyrighted story by sports writer Marino Parascenzo. A Pitt spokesman confirmed the report.

"I'm ecstatic," responded the 6-foot-6, 280-pound May.

"It's something that I can give back to the university because they have given me so much. Now, future Pitt linemen know that the Outland is not just a dream."

As a pass-blocker, the mammoth May has not allowed his man to sack the Pittsburgh quarterback back since his sophomore season. And he is nicknamed "May Day" because he is the blocker Pitt calls upon in those distressing third-and-short running situations.

"But this is not a one-man show," May said. "It's a team effort all the way, and I'll be honored to accept it on behalf of my team. I'm also very happy for my parents."

May, who will receive the award at a dinner in Seattle in February, was a high school standout in Oneonta, N.Y., and he has been a starter at Pitt since he was a freshman.

Herrmann heads picks

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Purdue's Mark Herrmann was named quarterback on the Football Writers Association of America's 37th annual All-America team, which was announced Wednesday.

Georgia, Southern Cal, Pittsburgh and Purdue furnished two players each for the 24-member team. Georgia running back Herschel Walker was the first freshman ever named to the team.

Offense members are receivers Ken Margerum of Stanford and Dave Young of Purdue; center John Seully of Notre Dame; Linemen Nick Eyre of Brigham Young, Mark May of Pittsburgh, Louis Oubre of Oklahoma and Keith Van Horne of Southern California; quarterback Herrmann, and running backs Freeman McNeil of UCLA, George Rogers of South Carolina and Walker of Georgia.

Defense team members are linemen Hugh Green of Pittsburgh, E.J. Junior of Alabama, Derrie Nelson of Nebraska, Kenneth Sims of Texas and Hosea Taylor of Houston; linebackers David Little of Florida, Mike Singletary of Baylor and Lawrence Taylor of North Carolina, and backs Ken Easley of UCLA, Ronnie Lott of Southern California and John Simmons of Southern Methodist.

Specialists are punter Rob Stark of Florida State and placekicker Rex Robinson of Georgia.

Billfishing you can afford? Head for Mexico's west coast

Economics have all but eliminated those private, big, offshore boat operators. Rising fuel costs, the tremendous increase in heavy duty saltwater fishing tackle and a declining offshore fishery due to commercial fishing pressure from the Japanese and Russian fleets have forced many weekend "salts" to sell boat and gear.

It is not uncommon for an avid billfisherman to travel more than 40 miles offshore in pursuit of his favorite billfish or other deep sea gamester. By doing this it costs nearly an arm and leg for fuel, plus the heavy abuse taken by the fishing vessel and tackle. Bluntly, it costs $300 to $400 for a weekend jaunt.

That's incredible! And the average angler can't even afford the boat, much less the gasoline or diesel to operate it. And what about the first-time angler who has always dreamed of catching a leaping sailfish or battling a marlin. It's almost out of the question along the Gulf Coast.

I RECEIVE as many letters and phone calls from people inquiring about billfishing as anything. I tell them to head for Mexico. Not Mexico's East Coast, the Japanese and Russian long-liners have all but destroyed the billfish populations. But the western most coastline of Mexico still offers some fabulous billfishing and rates are still within reason.

We'll also have to name our favorite sportfishing locale. Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico can't be beat for catching sailfish and striped marlin. And when conditions are right, it's not uncommon to hang on a giant blue or black marlin. For that once-in-a-lifetime billfish, let's go to Mazatlan.

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

For instance, Flota BIBI Fleet, one of the oldest sportfishing fleets on Mexico's western Pacific shore, caters to the first-timer and experts alike. Chartering a boat from the fleet runs $150 per eight hour day, which includes experienced captains and deckhands. Heavy duty saltwater rods and reels are included in the price. During summer, boats can be chartered for $120.

FROM NOW until mid-March you can expect to catch sailfish ranging from 80 to 120 pounds. Striped marlin are abundant, averaging 130 pounds. There's an occasional blue and black lurking the clear blue depths, while dorado (dolphinfish) and yellowfin tuna are common. Even an occasional big shark and wahoo are taken. But don't go to Mazatlan now and expect to catch a 500-pound plus blue or black marlin. Actually this isn't the season.

The weather is perfect from now until mid-March and sailfishing is good while striped marlin is normally excellent.

Recently, outdoor writer friend, Andy Anderson of the Dallas Morning News and this columnist visited the Mazatlan region last week. In two days of offshore fishing, we boated eight sailfish, lost two marlin, caught two dolphinfish and about 40 yellowfin tuna. And we weren't fishing the best times. More billfish move into the Mazatlan waters to forage on sardines and mullet. The warm Japanese current reaches offshore Mazatlan each winter and myriads of schools of deep sea gamesters follow the warm water current in search of food.

Fish are located by sight. The captain and deckhand, atop the fishing bridge are constantly in search of finning or sunning billfish. Once a fish is spotted, the captain lets the hammer down and moves in for the strike. They circle the fish, hoping to entice it to strike. On most occasions, they will strike, but sometimes don't keep the bait.

Excitement mounts. When the initial strike occurs, the deckhand grabs the occupied rod. Whether he sets the hook once the fish inhales the mullet or you get the honors, it's very important to perform the proper thing at the proper time.

A FREE spool for about 20 seconds, a scream to the captain to put the diesel-powered boat in gear, reel placed back in gear and a heavy duty hook set. Three out of five strikes are legitimate hookups. The others are just stories.

Once the fish is on, the battle is underway. Spectacular aerial leaps by the billfish, powerful surging runs accompany the battle before the fish is reeled along boatside. The average battle takes 30-minutes on the Paw while the striped marlin can be boated in about 45.

It's an inexpensive trip with two Mexican airlines arriving Mazatlan each day. Mexicana departs Dallas once daily and AeroMexico departs Houston twice daily. Hotels and restaurants are still within reasonable prices and the scenery is splendid.

CHUCK DAVIS OUTDOORS

Makes hobby of OLBC picks

Man is an acquisitive being. A collector of paintings, of land, of money or items and things which strike his interest. I am particularly interested in items which relate to my outdoor recreation interests.

My number one chase is for outdoor recreation related books. I've acquired several hundred during the past 15 years. The quest began simply enough—a membership card filled out which brought a steady flow of Outdoor Life Book Club selections. Most all OLBC selections were and remain good reading. Authors and titles included Jack O'Connors' Complete Book of Rifles and Shotguns, The Art of Hunting Big Game in North America, Clyde Ormond's Complete Book of Hunting, Hunting Across North America, Byron Dalrymple, Joe Brooks' Fly Fishing. All good reading while relaxing before the fireplace during an early season snowstorm.

MY SERIOUS collecting began 10-years ago quite by accident. I stopped by a flea market and for a half-dollar picked up a copy of American Duck Shooting by George B. Grinnell. I didn't realize its value until I became acquainted with Jim Ford, Missoula, Montana, who is one of the preeminent sheep hunters in this country. At last count, Jim had taken thirteen separate species of sheep worldwide. Jim is also a book collector. He buys any book that has even a reference to sheep hunting. He has many catalogues which offer out of print hunting and fishing books for sale.

Today, American Duck Shooting is worth in the neighborhood of $400 according to Jim's catalog. That discovery got me going.

Respected authors of well written books create the value when the titles go out of print. Just as with firearms, or well built knives, good books are a good investment. Values are appreciating rapidly for the better authors.

THE AMERICAN Wild Turkey by Henry B. Davis, published by the Small-Arms Technical Publishing Company in 1949 is a classic work on the wild turkey. It is bringing about $100 on the market. I paid 75-cents for it at a yard sale.

Big game hunters—those who pursue quality horns when hunting a good animal—are interested in how the horns score according to records compiled by the Boone and Crockett Club. The records have been published periodically in book form since the first edition in 1933. My earliest edition is a 1939 printing which was giving to me. The 1939 edition is the first edition to introduce the standardized scoring systems in use today. Its value is $150. I have a 1971 issue of B & C's North American Big Game, which is the record book. I picked this one up for two-dollars at a women's guild sale in Boise, Idaho. It is valued at $65.

Another of my valued books is Hunting in Many Lands, published in 1895 by Forest and Stream Publishing Company, under the auspices of the Boone & Crockett club, it is edited by none other than Theodore Roosevelt and George B. Grinnell. I've got about $40 in it in a trade which involved my Remington 788 and his two books of collectible books. Hunting in Many Lands is worth about $100.

ANOTHER book which came as a part of that trade is Daniel Boone and the Hunters of Kentucky by W. H. Bogart. I don't have a value for this neat little book published in 1857 but it is good reading.

I have concentrated on certain authors while collecting. I favor Charles Sheldon, Theodore Roosevelt, Jack O'Conner, Elmer Keith, Howard Hill and George Bird Grinnell. But I also buy by subject matter. I go for archery, Alaska, bass fishing and big game hunting. I try to purchase the first copy available then trade it off later on an earlier edition of the same title.

Dealers who specialize in outdoor recreation books from which I purchase are: Anglers and Shooters Bookshelf, Goshen, Conn., 06756; Catalogue of Sporting Books, Howard and Janet French, 284 Redwood Drive, Pasadena, Calif., 91105; Sporting Service, Ranococas, New Jersey U.A.S.

ESPN offers turkeyweek glut for football fans

By FRED ROTHENBERG
BRISTOL, Conn. (AP) — ESPN, the 24-hour sports turn-on for the Athletic Addicts of America, considered changing its call letters because TV Guide only takes three letters in its listings. AAA would have been a perfect fit, except somebody already had those initials.

In its infinite wisdom TV Guide solved the problem by shortening the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network to ESPN, as in Every Single Night. "Whadda ya mean, football's on every single night," is a typical reaction among America's TV widows, who haven't had good field position since ESPN extended its programming to 24 hours a day, seven days a week Sept. 1.

This nightly sports concept will get a real workout next week. ESPN, or ESPN, whichever you prefer, will serve up 99 hours of football from Sunday to Friday, what it calls "a Thanksgiving feast of a different sort."

SUNDAY'S schedule, beginning at 12:30 a.m. will start with Stanford-California, followed by Indiana-Purdue. At noon, ESPN will have a live broadcast of the Grey Cup, the Canadian Football League's championship game, and then the Oklahoma-Nebraska and Michigan-Ohio State games.

Rebroadcasts of these games for people who chose to eat or sleep on Sunday, plus Arkansas-SMU and Houston-Texas Tech, will be offered throughout the rest of the week.

Except for the live Grey Cup, this football feast will be strictly college fare on tape delay. But come January, ESPN subscribers can get a full menu of the National Football League — replays of all XIV Super Bowls, a game every single night for two full weeks leading to the one ESPN doesn't have, Super Bowl XV Jan. 25 game in New Orleans.

IF GRANDMA'S turkey starts to get cold from neglect next week, the man to blame is Chet Simmons, the visionary president of ESPN who has the NFL's regular season schedule firmly in his sights, as well as the other major pro and college sports events.

"I want to have some part of the NFL. We've already done the NFL draft this year and plan to do it again next year," said Simmons. "By 1990, 60 percent of the homes should be cabled. By then, I don't think advertisers will be able to generate the kind of money pay cable will offer for rights. We've already seen that people are willing to pay for movies and sports."

"My role right now is to keep the major promoters aware of what's happening with cable in sports. I tell the major events to go make the best deals you can. Eventually you'll be coming to me for five times more on pay cable."

Next Tuesday's fight between Roberto Duran and Sugar Ray Leonard on closed circuit TV is a good indication that Simmons, the former president of NBC Sports, is in the right place at the right time.

LAST WEEK, NBC agreed to pay $7.2 million for the 1983 Rose Bowl, a big jump from the $3.3 million the network has been paying since 1978. But what happens if ESPN gets into 50 million homes someday and takes $1 from each subscription fee in January to pay for Rose Bowl rights? That's seven times more roses, and you can be sure the NBC Peacock will become an extinct species in Pasadena.

"For the premier events, it's the next thing in sports," Simmons said during an interview at ESPN's modern headquarters this week. "The big events are going to be on pay cable. They will be part of the regular subscription. We'll keep the customer cost down with commercials, just a couple of premier advertisers, as a supplement."

Already Anheuser-Busch, with its eye on thirsty sports fans, has lined up to be one of those premier, near-exclusive sponsors. The beer company signed a five-year, $25 million contract with ESPN last month. Simmons predicts that this type of commercial connection and increased

NAIA-8 team picked

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Seven repeaters, including All-American Chris Luper and Ty Quick of Austin College, are among 25 gridderes selected to the All-District 8 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics 1980 football team.

Others on the squad are kicker/punter Gene Branum of Austin College, defensive lineman LeRoy Duncan of McMurry, linebacker Rey Hinojosa of Trinity, tight end Rory Dukes of Austin College, wide receiver Chise Nicholson of Trinity, lineman Ricky Nolly of McMurry and Matt Stobandke of Trinity, center Lake Taylor of McMurry, quarterback Larry Shillings of Austin College, running backs Kenny Sykes of Trinity, and a tie between Dudley Woodard of McMurry and Kelly Hyde of Austin College.

Also defensive lineman Mike Gollan of Austin College, Carlton Nelson of Bishop College and Sammie August of Prairie View A&M, who tied with Gardner, linebacker David Sanchez of Sul Ross, and defensive backs Horace Robbin of McMurry and Jody Sawyer of Trinity.

Other holdovers include offensive lineman Harold Norfleet of Prairie View A&M, running back Rickey Bush of Tarleton State, defensive lineman Paul Gardner of Austin College and linebacker Mark Howeth of Austin College. Garry Wright of Tarleton State made the 1978 squad but was out last season with a knee injury.

Spud Aldridge of McMurry was selected coach of the year for the second time. McMurry's 9-1 record this year won the school a ranking as No. 7 in the nation.

subscriptions will make ESPN profitable in 1982.

SIMMONS, renewing old acquaintances, met recently with his friends on the Rose Bowl committee. "Right now our penetration is too light," he said. "Money isn't the problem. I could write any check I want (Getty Oil is backing ESPN with big bucks). But I can't do business yet because we don't have the viewers."

According to its Oct. 25 figures, ESPN has 6,160,000 homes and 1,024 cable systems picking up its programming. Some 78 million homes receive regular commercial TV, according to Nielsen ratings figures.

While cable homes are still relatively low, ESPN's immediate aim is to supplement the sports programming on the major networks while becoming the major force on cable. ESPN is considering buying Los Angeles Summer Olympics events in 1984 that don't get on ABC.

This fall, ESPN averaged five college football games a week but was restricted to tape telecasts, Sunday morning at the earliest, by ABC's $120 million deal with the NCAA. That four-year agreement moves into its final year next season, and Simmons is looking for one night a week of live football. "I'm gonna give it my best shot," he says.

THE NCAA doesn't control college basketball in the same way, and ESPN did many live games last year, including 22 NCAA playoff games. NBC has first crack at the basketball schedule, but there's plenty to go around, even though cable's growing USA Network has the inside position with Notre Dame, UCLA, Maryland and several key conferences.

On the pro front, USA has cable contracts for weekly national broadcasts in major league baseball, pro basketball and hockey, and Simmons says he's ready to go after them, particularly baseball.

"I want major league baseball so bad I can taste it," he said. Which means someday ESPN viewers may be tasting baseball and its 162-game schedule. Every single night.

Captures five races

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Carmine Abbatiello, the third leading driver in harness racing history, captured five races on Wednesday's card at Yonkers Raceway.

The feat marked the first time in Abbatiello's career that he has won that many races in one night.

Abbatiello, 44, captured the first race (Red Gent), fifth (Hidden Secrets), seventh (Anderson's Fella), ninth (Sunbest Honover), and tenth (Big Al Jay).

Rosen's part in casino scam keeps pot boiling

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros, who fought adversity to win the National League Western Division title last season, were still battling today — this time in the boardroom.

The Astros suffered a severe blow during the regular season when All-Star pitcher J.R. Richard suffered a stroke and was lost for the season.

Houston fought on to win the division title and then took world champion Philadelphia to five games in the tense National League championship series.

BUT MORE fireworks came after the season ended when General Partner John McMullen fired popular President and General Manager Tai Smith and replaced him with Al Rosen.

Angry limited partners, who own a 67 per cent interest in the Astros, were expected to quiz McMullen today about Smith's dismissal and a report that Rosen's name was mentioned in connection with a million-dollar casino scam in New Jersey.

Rosen, who has not been charged in the case, said as vice president of Bally's Park Place, a casino, he approved $2.5 million in bad credit at the casino but added he was only guilty of poor business judgment.

A spokesman for Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the commissioner planned a check into Rosen's casino dealings.

Smith had just completed a successful five-year tenure in which he lifted the Astros from a cellar team to the NL Western Division title in 1980.

losers. But neither do they want to go broke. But, now, comes forward a Vegas operator named Herb Pastor, owner of the Treasury Hotel and Casino there, who has actually invited Uston to teach his patrons how to beat the house at blackjack. It's part of the old Western policy of making the roughest, toughest guy in town the marshal. I mean, give Wyatt Earp the tin star, and you clean up Dodge City in a hurry.

WILL KEN Uston become Establishment? And teach his pupils how to lose? Ken Uston shakes his head emphatically. "A math teacher who teaches his classes two-and-two make five isn't going to be a math teacher very long," he argues.

Besides, counting cards is not illegal. Neither is recruiting a squad to count cards, although it's interesting that Uston's own rules for his team provide that team members periodically take a lie detector test. To be sure they're trying for the home team, as they say around the race track.

It's hard for anyone who never even got a cherry on a slot machine to drum up any sympathy for the casinos, even though Uston's team ripped the $145,000 out of an Atlantic City resort in a night. Personally, I would rather Vegas ban losers, not winners. I would really rather they barred me. And not because I want to be a big glamorous mysterious international Raffles. Just because I can use the money elsewhere.

Eskimos favored by 10 points

TORONTO (AP) — The Hamilton Tiger-Cats are 10-point underdogs in Sunday's Grey Cup game against the Edmonton Eskimos, and they like it that way.

"I think we all love going into the game as underdogs," said veteran Hamilton center Henry Waszczuk, who played his college ball at Kent State. "We know they are the favorites and that'll make it that much easier for us to prepare."

Besides, we owe them one from the last time we played them when we thought they tried to rub our noses in it."

The "last time" was Sept. 7 in Edmonton when the Eskimos won 53-18.

This time the two teams will meet in the 68th Grey Cup, the Canadian Football League's Super Bowl, on Sunday in Toronto's Exhibition Stadium. The game, scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. EST, will be televised in Canada, the United States and Mexico. ESPN, the all-sports network, will show the contest in the United States.

It will be Hamilton's first Grey Cup appearance since 1972, when it edged the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Edmonton will be making its fourth consecutive Grey Cup trip and going after its third straight championship.

A crowd of 54,649 will jam Exhibition Stadium, which also is home to the CFL's Toronto Argonauts and baseball's Toronto Blue Jays. That's a long way in 50 years, when only 3,914 showed up in Toronto's Varsity Stadium to see the Regina Roughriders take on the Toronto Balmy Beach.

Regina, which later changed its name to the Saskatchewan Roughriders, lost that game 11-6 but scored the first touchdown in Grey Cup history.

It also was the only time in Cup history that the fans got a doubleheader.

Welters recall days of Homicide Hank, Basilio

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

There's excitement and gold in those welterweight hills.

The 147-pound division once ruled by Homicide Hank, Sugar Ray and the Keed from Cuba is thriving under Hands of Stone, another Sugar Ray, the Hit Man and Pipino, who draw the kind of attention and purses once reserved for top heavyweights.

Sugar Ray Leonard reportedly earned $10 million when he lost the World Boxing Council welterweight title June 20 to Roberto Duran. Duran, "Hands of Stone," made $1.5 million — tax free. The fight in Montreal was a gigantic closed-circuit television success, reportedly gross-ing about $30 million. For their rematch in the Louisiana Superdome Nov. 25 in New Orleans, Duran is getting anywhere from $6 million to $10 million and Leonard anywhere from $4 million to $7 million, depending on who's doing the talking.

BUT THE gold rush doesn't stop with these two. Wilfred Benitez got a $1 million payday, as did Leonard, when he lost the title to Leonard, and Pipino Cuevas was very well paid when he got knocked out in the second round to lose the World Boxing Association title to Tommy "Hit Man" Hearns.

A Hearns-Benitez fight is a lucrative bout and a universal title fight involving Hearns, Duran or Leonard would be another gold mine. Cuevas, a devastating puncher, still is very much in the money and title pictures. It seems a Duran-Hearns match is more likely because it wouldn't be surprising if Leonard retires after the Duran rematch ... win or lose.

Below the Big Five welterweights are other solid pros such as Randy Shields, Pete Ranzany and Adolfo Viruet.

Is the division the most competitive in boxing? "Absolutely," said Gil Clancy, who once managed Emile Griffith, who three times ruled the welterweights in the early 1960s. Clancy now is matchmaker for Madison Square Garden and a boxing commentator for CBS.

CLANCY also noted that light-weight division, ruled by Hilmer Kenty and Jim Watt, and the light heavyweight class, ruled by Matthew Saad Muhammad and Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, also are highly competitive. But no division in boxing can match the welterweight for overall talent and none, except the heavyweight, can come close in matters of money.

It's difficult to compare fights of one era with those of another — but for argument's sake, Clancy was asked to compare the top fight welterweights as listed by The Ring magazine in its December issue of 25 years ago with today's top fighters.

Carmen Basilio was the champion in 1955. "He would be competitive," Clancy said of the brawler who twice held the welter championship and split middleweight title bouts with Sugar Ray Robinson. "Basilio would beat Leonard because of his strength but Duran is tough and smarter."

IT IS because of Duran's ring smartness and of his pressure style, that Clancy gives the 5-foot-7½ Panamanian a good chance against the 6-foot-1 Hearns. "Duran's not as easy to hit as it looks and he'd get inside those long arms," said Clancy.

Clancy feels that Duran, Leonard, Hearns, Benitez and Cuevas would beat the top four ranked welterweights of 1955, the weakest of which was Vince Martinez, rated No. 4. But the other three were considered tough fighters in their day. They were Tony DeMarco, Johnny Saxton and Virgil Akins.

DeMarco was a power puncher who won the title in April 1955 by knocking out Saxton, then lost it about two months later when he was knocked out by Basilio.

Saxton won the title on a decision over Kid Gavilan in 1954, lost it to DeMarco then won it again from and lost it to Basilio in 1956.

Akins won the title, which was left vacant when Basilio left it to go after the middleweight crown, by knocking out Martinez in 1958 and then lost it on a decision to Don Jordan later the same year.

They were good, those welters of 1955, and so were a lot of their successors. But none caught the public imagination or picked a promoter's pockets like the Duran and company.

Just picking promoters' pockets makes them great.

Dublin ends season, but memories linger

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

They're packing away the football equipment and getting out the basketball gear at Dublin this week following a season that ended one touchdown short of the district title.

But Coach Bill Bryant, his sons, Bill Boy and Blake, receiver Sammy Taylor and the rest of the team won't be packing away memories of their season finale last Friday against Ranger.

"They'd like to look at them a little longer."

Dublin was trailing 9-0 in the first quarter when Bill Boy decided it was time for action. Bryant returned a Ranger kickoff 57 yards for a touchdown and when Ranger was forced to punt on its next possession, Bryant returned the punt 56 yards for another touchdown.

Bryant finished by completing 37 of 55 passes for 334 yards, including a state record 22 passes to Taylor for three touchdowns en route to a 42-16 victory. Bryant threw another 16 passes to Blake, a freshman.

The performance earned the trio mention in the final Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll of the season.

Taylor's 22 receptions, which broke the record of 18 by Mike Coomer of McCamey in 1970, went for 216 yards and he had touchdown catches of 2, 2 and 10 yards.

The total in Taylor's final schoolboy game gave the 5-9, 180-pounder 71 catches for the season for 756 yards and eight touchdowns.

"He's just a great athlete, but the thing about him is he has super hands," Coach Bryant said. "He's very intelligent and a good leader. He's student body president."

Bryant said of Bill Boy, "He's just a winner, that's all I can say. Since he's been player, he's always found a way for his team to win."

Like any proud father, the elder Bryant can tell you that Bill Boy's teams have posted a 67-6-1 record since the boy started his career in the Pop Warner leagues.

Bryant said the entire team relished in the record.

"They're all proud of it," he said.

Even with 6 stars out, Canadiens return to life

By Associated Press

Take away Guy Lafleur, Larry Robinson, Pierre Larouche, Doug Risebrough, Yvon Lambert and Mark Napier and what do you get?

A depleted Montreal Canadiens team ... and a victorious one.

Even though the Canadiens were minus six regulars, they had enough pluses to outscore the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 Wednesday night, a fact that non-plussed Leafs Coach Joe Crozier.

Elsewhere Wednesday in the National Hockey League, it was Chicago 5, Buffalo 2; Philadelphia 5, the New York Rangers 1; Quebec 2, Detroit 1; Los Angeles 7, Winnipeg 2; Minnesota 3, Pittsburgh 2, and Vancouver 6, Edmonton 4.

Montreal now has won four of five games on its current road trip, with the other ending in a tie. Despite being undermanned, the Canadiens are beginning to look like, well ... the Canadiens.

"With all those injured players, it proves one thing," said Montreal Coach Claude Ruel. "Like last year, I'm getting those guys who are healthy to give 100 per cent."

Black Hawks 5, Sabres 2

Chicago built a 4-0 lead en route to snapping an eight-game winless streak. Rookie Denis Savard had a goal and two assists and Reg Kerr scored twice for the Hawks.

Flyers 5, Rangers 1

Philadelphia used a three-goal first period to subdue New York, then got a pair of second-period, power-play goals just 38 seconds apart to finish off the Rangers. Bill Barber had a goal and two assists for the Flyers.

Nordiques 2, Red Wings 1

Quebec won its second straight game — its first such streak this season — while the Wings lost their 12th road game in a row. Michel Goulet netted the winner after taking a pass from Dale Hunter, who had just won a faceoff. Marc Tardif also scored for Quebec and Errol Thompson got Detroit's tally.

Kings 7, Jets 2

Marcel Dionne continued his hot scoring with a goal — the game-winner — and three assists. Dionne has six goals and five assists in the last five games. Charlie Simmer added a goal and two assists and rookie Larry Murphy set up three goals.

The loss extended the Jets' winless skid to 15 games. They are 1-12-5 for the season.

North Stars 3, Penguins 2

Steve Christoff's first goal of the season gave Minnesota the triumph and moved the North Stars, 11-3-3 overall this season, to 4-2-2 on the road.

Canucks 6, Oilers 4

Dave Williams scored twice and Bobby Schmautz broke a 4-4 deadlock with less than six minutes to play as Vancouver dropped Edmonton's home record to 1-5-4.

Reggie just glad he's not involved

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson has one thing to say about the New York Yankees' managerial situation: "I am just glad I am not involved."

Very much involved are owner George Steinbrenner, General Manager Gene Michael and Manager Dick Howser. Although Howser guided the Yankees to 103 victories and the American League's East Division title in his first season as manager, his status for next season remains in doubt, with published reports insisting that Steinbrenner will dump him in favor of Michael.

"I am distressed over all the hubbub and to do made over the matter, but it's understandable," Jackson said Wednesday. "First it's the city, second the Yankees and third the owner. Nobody is bigger in this town than the Yankees."

Jackson called himself "a Howser man. Dick made some mistakes, but he couldn't have made too many when we won 103 games and our division. Sure there were times his strategy may have been questioned, but the guys on the club made concessions for it. They knew that Dick's heart and head were in the right place."

Jackson said the Yankees were the kind of club who needed a manager like Howser.

"Most of the key guys are over 30, guys like Bob Watson, Tommy John and myself," said Jackson. "We appreciated a low-key, easy-going manager. I told that to Steinbrenner."

On other matters, Jackson said he wasn't disappointed to finish second to Kansas City's George Brett in balloting for the American League's Most Valuable Player, and that he hoped the Yankees would land Dave Winfield in the free agent market, even though Winfield has said that with his new club he'd like to play right field — Jackson's position.

"I think there's a spot on the team for a man who has hit 40 home runs and had 100 runs batted in," said Jackson.

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — The basketball team at the State University College at Utica-Rome is looking for a few good men. Like maybe enough to play a five-on-five scrimmage.

The Wildcats of the College of Technology went into their season opener against Bard College last weekend with precisely seven players.

The only repeater from last season flunked his physical and sat out the game. One of the guards missed the pre-season, showed up for the game and walked out without knowing any plays.

Then the game began. Two players nearly fouled out — forward Brian Hegney racked up four personal fouls and two technicals — and another missed most of the second half with an elbow injury.

"We were getting down to bare bones," Athletic Director Lee Ellis said. "I was really scared, especially when the T's (technical fouls) started flying.

The coach was going to have to go in."

But the Wildcats managed to keep five men on the court and rolled over Bard, 90-59.

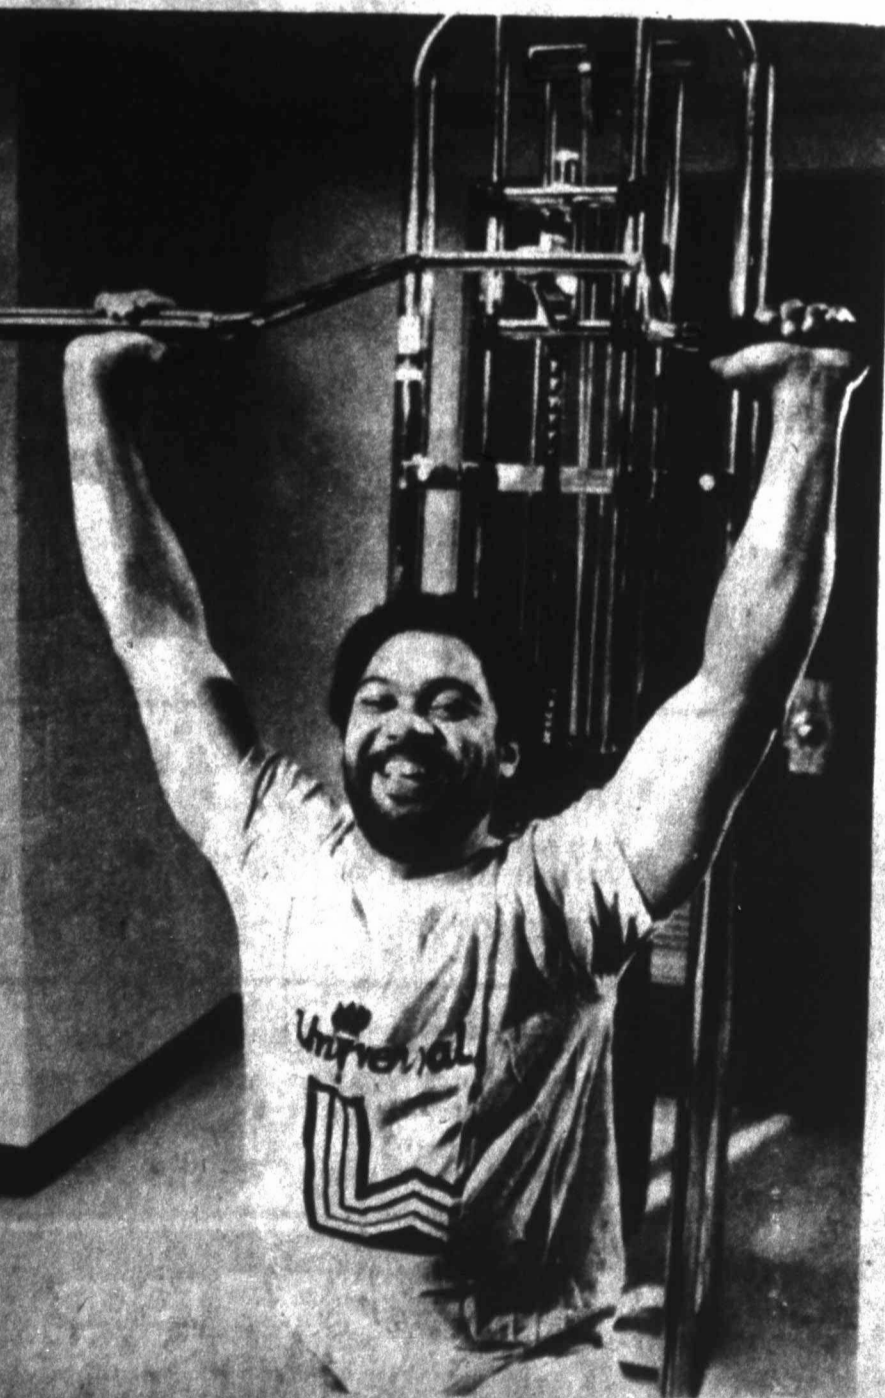

Piotrowski, whose squad went 3-9 in its first season last winter, seems unconcerned about his lightly populated bench.

"I have only seven kids, but they're all players," he said last week before guard Jim June suited up. Now there are eight.

When they needed 10 players for a scrimmage, Piotrowski got out on the court. So did the assistant coach. So did the manager.

"Don't give up," Piotrowski tells them. "You're all going to get to play."

The team's next game is Friday at the Albany College of Pharmacy.

Yankees' Reggie Jackson declares he's a Howser man as he works out on exercise machine. (AP Laserphoto).

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Carter seems more likeable

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A different Jimmy Carter has emerged since his election defeat. In contrast to the hard-driving, almost self-righteous Carter of the past, he now appears more humble and seems to be no longer trying so hard to impress. He is considerably more likeable, human and accessible.

From the moment he conceded defeat the night of Nov. 4, the president has borne his pain in a graceful, self-deprecating way that has aroused empathy even among some people who may not have been fans of his.

In the past, Carter seemed unable to poke fun at himself, taking most things very seriously. But the jokes come more easily and the pain shows through, too.

This changed Jimmy Carter has been evident in his public appearances since the election — with reporters, with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, at the First Baptist Church.

For the first time in his presidency, he appeared unannounced last week in the White House press room to answer questions. It was the second time since the election that he'd met informally with reporters.

A press aide announced on a loudspeaker, "The briefing is about to begin." Reporters filtered in, expecting White House press secretary Jody Powell. Instead, Carter appeared.

"I thought since Jody hadn't done so well with his job, I'd come down and see if I could do it any better," the president told his surprised audience.

Prisons not only answer: criminologist

HOUSTON (AP) — A California criminologist says he believes an effort should be made to convince people that prison is not the only answer to crime.

James L. Galvin, an official of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency in San Francisco, said Tuesday, "We do have to take a role concerning social program and social change."

"We should be advocates for resources and public understanding."

Some 93 criminologists from 44 states attended a seminar in Houston and listened to a barrage of criticism of the nation's penal system.

Alvin Bronstein, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's National Prison Project, said, "The real issues of race, education, housing, unemployment" are never considered.

"In this country we have the attitude that it is all right to lock up all these people and then we don't have to address the underlying problems," he said.

Arthur Pearl, a University of California at Santa Cruz education professor, told the group that if society wanted to reduce crime, it should provide jobs that yield "a gratifying existence" and eliminate discrimination throughout the criminal justice system.

Another panel member, Edward Hammock, chairman of the New York Division of Parole, said the increasingly tough laws in his state have sent to prison many offenders who should have received other forms of correction.

The art of transition...

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan get together today, with great civility and almost a sense of ceremony, it will be a far cry from past transitions.

John Adams found it expedient to sneak out of the White House at midnight because he did not want to meet Thomas Jefferson, the incoming third president, on the day of his inauguration.

Harry Truman thought Dwight Eisenhower "had a chip on his shoulder" when they met, post-election, in the Oval Office. Eisenhower's demeanor, Truman wrote, was one of "frozen grimace."

William Howard Taft rode with Woodrow Wilson to Wilson's inauguration but did not fill him in on any government business.

HERBERT HOOVER privately confessed that in 1932 he tried to trap Franklin D. Roosevelt into decisions that would have forced the incoming president to abandon "90 percent of the so-called New Deal" and adopt the Republican administration's major programs.

Carter, on the other hand, coupled his telephoned congratulations to Reagan on election night with a vow to do everything in his power to smooth the transition.

The practice of formally helping the new president hit the ground running dates back only to 1952 and Truman, who thought it was "an omission in our political tradition that a retiring president did not make it his business to facilitate the transfer of the government to his successor."

AFTER EISENHOWER won the Republican nomination in 1952, Truman invited the general to Washington for foreign policy briefings. In a new book, "Off the Record: the Private Papers of Harry S. Truman," author Robert H. Ferrell writes that Ike refused because "his advisers evidently thought it would hurt his campaign."

Truman wrote in his diary, "the president-elect has been coy about co-operating for the turnover... Ike and his advisers are afraid of some kind of trick. There is no trick."

Eisenhower, by all accounts, was warmer when he turned over the government to John F. Kennedy. "I don't think we have asked for anything that they haven't done," Kennedy said after their two pre-inauguration meetings in the White House.

Kennedy made transition plans long before the election, saying "if I'm elected, I don't want to wake up on the morning of Nov. 9 (Election Day) and have to ask myself, 'What in the world do I do now?'"

ONE OF THE MAJOR benefits, but also one of the biggest headaches, of any new administration is the power to fill jobs. In Kennedy's day those jobs were listed in "the Green Book" and totaled 1,200. Nowadays the shopping list is in "the Plum Book" and the positions number more than 2,000.

Once, during the transition, Kennedy exclaimed: "People, people, people! I don't know any people! I only know voters. How am I going to fill these 1,200 jobs?"

Then, as now, there was no trouble. The transition from Richard Nixon to his appointed vice president, Gerald Ford, in one of the most traumatic periods of the nation's history, was greased through the foresight of Ford's friend Phil Buchen.

MONTHS BEFORE Nixon resigned, Buchen — without telling Ford or anyone else — formed a sub rosa transition team, which met on a regular basis.

"They realized that had I known of their activities, I would have demanded that they stop," Ford said later. "If Nixon or any one of his supporters found out, it would have been construed as an act of disloyalty on my part, and the results could have been disastrous. It was a dangerous and questionable undertaking."

Congress urged to consult with Reagan on Trade Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's special trade representative says Congress should consult with President-elect Ronald Reagan before changing the Trade Act, a law interpreted by the Carter administration as barring negotiation with Japan for a reduction in auto imports.

Trade Representative Reubin Askew suggested Tuesday to the House trade subcommittee that congressmen should seek Reagan's views before taking action.

It will be "up to the incoming administration to determine whether this presidential authority should be used," Askew said.

United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser, Ford Motor Co. Vice President Will Scott and several members of Congress urged passage of a resolution to authorize the president to negotiate import restrictions.

Askew said Carter would accept a bill clarifying the presidential authority as long as it affected all imports, not just Japanese autos.

The hearings were scheduled by Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, in the wake of last week's International Trade Commission ruling that imports were not the cause of the slump in the U.S. auto industry.

Askew said that without a ruling pinning the blame on imports, the Carter administration could not negotiate import limitations.

Fraser said the growing strength of Japanese imports in the domestic market had caused permanent damage to the U.S. auto industry. Fraser contended other nations restrict Japanese imports and said a tougher stand by the Carter administration could have brought import limitations.

"The Japanese 'don't take us seriously,'" said Fraser. "They think we're patsies."

"We ought to be thinking about dealing with the compression of the (auto industry) work force in a more civilized manner," Fraser said. He noted that in Japan, when the steel industry "went into a slump, they provided for the orderly transfer of workers into the auto industry."

Committee members generally appeared to favor passage of the resolution for negotiation of temporary limitations on Japanese imports.

Career in crime paid off for this con man

MIDDLETOWN, N.J. (AP) — For five years, Frank Abagnale posed as a pilot, a pediatrician, an assistant attorney general, an FBI agent and a stockbroker. Now he's parlayed his law-breaking career into a $10 million crime-prevention business.

By the time he was 21, he had made $2.5 million and was a grand master of fraud, counterfeiting, forgery and credit card manipulation.

Wanted in every state and 26 countries, he finally was captured by French police and spent five years in prison in France, Sweden and the United States.

Abagnale, 32, is now president of a crime-prevention consulting business based in Colorado and Texas.

"I would never cash a bad check in 'mom and pop' stores," he told a Brookdale Community College audience this week. "but rather against banks and the airlines where I thought it really wasn't hurting them."

His criminal career began when he ran away from his Westchester County, N.Y., home before he finished 10th grade. Lying about his age, he forged bank deposit slips with his checking account number and placed the slips on bank counters where unsuspecting customers would deposit their paychecks into his account.

Abagnale said he traveled more than 3 million miles in 86 countries, posing as Pan Am pilot Capt. John Black. But when the airline began to receive complaints, he moved to Atlanta where, at 18, he assumed the role of Dr. Frank Williams, a California pediatrician on a one-year personal leave.

He spent four hours a day reading medical journals so he could talk with a neighbor, a chief resident pediatrician. He parlayed his medical knowledge into an interview with a medical board that granted him a temporary permit to practice medicine in Georgia.

He served at a hospital for a year without ever examining or treating a patient.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

They begged us to take their money

NOW I want to tell you what God in His grace has done for the churches in Macedonia.

Though they have been going through much trouble and hard times, they have mixed their wonderful joy with their deep poverty, and the result has been an overflow of giving to others.

They gave not only what they could afford, but far more; and I can testify that they did it because they wanted to, and not because of nagging on my part.

They begged us to take the money so they could share in the joy of helping the Christians in Jerusalem.

Best of all, they went beyond our highest hopes, for their first action was to dedicate themselves to the Lord and to us, for whatever directions God might give to them through us.

They were so enthusiastic about it that we have urged Titus, who encouraged your giving in the first place, to visit you and encourage you to complete your share in this ministry of giving.

You people there are leaders in so many ways—you have so much faith, so many good preachers, so much learning, so much enthusiasm, so much love for us. Now I want you to be leaders also in the spirit of cheerful giving.

I am not giving you an order; I am not saying you must do it, but others are eager for it. This is one way to prove that your love is real, that it goes beyond mere words.

You know how full of love and kindness our Lord Jesus was: though He was so very rich, yet to help you He became so very poor, so that by being poor He could make you rich.

2 Corinthians 8:1-9

Cerebral palsy victim rises above handicap, helps others

EDITOR'S NOTE: For most people, a pair of shoes and the coming and goings of a small restaurant are unremarkable. Not so for Buster Robertson, for whom the one is a challenge, the other a liberation from loneliness. In his restricted world, nothing is mundane.

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer

BATH, Maine (AP) — Buster Robertson has endured more than his share of heartaches in his 44 years.

Rejection and loneliness. Sticks and stones. Roaming houses and baked beans.

It's the price he paid for being born with cerebral palsy, a disorder of the central nervous system that makes him walk like a drunken man and slur his speech.

But he's risen above it, devoting his life to helping the handicapped, to making people laugh, and to God. Although his body is imperfect, his mind is keen and perceptive.

HIS PERSEVERANCE and humor have earned him affection instead of pity, respect instead of scorn, a new job with a non-profit agency as an advocate for the handicapped, and an apartment of his own. He serves on two state committees for the handicapped.

A Christian, he knows his Bible from one end to the other and preaches it to his neighbors. Although life has been unfair to him, he does not question God's motives.

"What's 70 years (on earth) compared to eternity?"

The only thing he fears about death is the last few minutes. "Maybe there will be pain."

A lot of people have helped him and he wants to help others.

"When I meet people for the very first time, things are mostly bad because of my speech," Buster said before a rehabilitation council less than a year ago in the first public speech of his life. "I am scared and so are they. But after they get to know me, they become friends, some of them best friends."

WHEN CHILDREN first see him, they are frightened. Some throw rocks at him, mistaking him for a drunkard.

"Then after a week or so, they don't feel this way anymore," says Buster. "They begin to say, 'Hi, Buster.' I love kids, the ones that are well-behaved."

"And there is the other side. Some parents are with their kids and the kids ask their parents, 'What is the matter with that guy?' And they say,

'He is sick. Don't talk to him.'"

In his new job, Buster travels to boarding homes to advise the handicapped residents — many of them mentally retarded — of their rights. He has been assigned an aide, Rick McKellar, 23, who acts as a driver and an interpreter because at first meeting it is so difficult to understand Buster.

Buster is well qualified for the job. He spent nearly 16 years in boarding homes after his mother died when he was 24. He had bouts with despair and frustration. Even today he is at war in his own mind on how to reach the severely mentally retarded.

HE WAS BORN Harlan Longfellow Robertson in Rumford, Maine. His mother was adopted by a man named Longfellow and gave her son that middle name. He was nicknamed Buster by his father.

When he was a baby, his mother helped him by moving with his hands and feet. She kept a meticulous medical history of him. She was also his teacher until he was 10 years old, when a certified teacher tutored him at his home for an hour each day. He didn't start walking until he was 9 years old. He was 26 years old before he found out about sex.

"When I was old enough, I asked my mother about women and why couldn't I go out with one. She told me that was not for me and that no one would want me because I am handicapped."

The loneliness used to bother him, but he says there are so many broken homes that he feels very fortunate that he's never been married.

Still, he misses most not having a wife and children, especially when he sees a nice family.

After his mother died and his father told him he was unable to care for him, Buster began living in boarding homes where newspapers were used for a tablecloth and the dinner was baked beans, macaroni and pea soup out of cans. He had to walk a mile to the laundry.

THREE YEARS AGO, he moved into a first floor apartment designed for the handicapped in a senior citizen high rise.

A widow, Nellie Erickson, 73, who lives across the hall, cooks his meals, does his laundry, shaves and dresses him. Without her help, it would take him between an hour and an hour-and-a-half to dress.

He has no use of his left hand and his right hand flops. His left leg is paralyzed and it takes him three times longer to walk the same distance as a normal person. He used to wear out a pair of shoes every three weeks because of his shuffling movement, but five years ago surgeons inserted a pacemaker in his brain that he says has improved his coordination. A pair of shoes now lasts six months.

Pity is the last thing in the world he wants. His message is that the handicapped should be treated as normal people.

"We have the very same feelings as normal people. We would like a mate, the right one. We cry and laugh the same way you do. Our parents may think that they know what is best for us but never ask us."

FOR THE PAST 10 years, Buster has been selling morning newspapers at a restaurant near the Bath Iron Works. He does it as a hobby because it allows him to mingle and joke with the shipyard workers.

"I feel that I have benefited a great deal just from being able to watch the men come and go," he wrote in his personal journal. "I can observe things that a normal person might miss, or might never take the time to think about. Before I had this job, I felt as though I was sheltered from the masses."

Libraries across the nation are celebrating Children's Book Week now through Sunday. The original slogan, "More Books in the Home," used in 1919, has been replaced by "Book's Alive," an invitation to children to escape into other places, times and lives.

The Young People's Department in the Midland County Public Library is a potpourri of paperbacks, hardbound books, periodicals, records, book and record set and books with cassettes for checkout. The department serves preschool through eighth grade with a Young Adult section and paperbacks for all ages.

Mothers often select their reading from paperbacks while their children are checking out books. The popularity of paperbacks has extended into the lower grades and new paperbacks are available for kindergarten through sixth grade.

New books recently were added to the collection of hardbound books.

"Fudge is back in 'Superfudge,'" by Judy Blume, a favorite children's author. It is a continuation of the humorous book, "A Fourth-Grade Nothing." This book is about Peter Hatcher and his little brother, Fudge, whose antics keep Peter, the kindergarten room and the Hatcher family in stitches.

Also available is "The Berenstain Bears and the Missing Dinosaur Bone," by Jan and Stan Berenstain. When a dinosaur bone is missing from the museum, the three bear detectives and their hound dog, Snuff, try to solve the case.

In Paddington's new adventure, "Paddington Takes the Test," Paddington learns to drive and takes his driving test.

Michael Emberley's "Dinosaurs: A Drawing Book," shows anyone how to draw realistic dinosaurs.

"Bagdad Ate It," by Phyllis Green, is a humorous book about a dog who eats everything in sight — even the bread dough. Will he explode?

For older readers, Boeckman's "Surviving Your Parents' Divorce" is ideally suited for children who must cope with divorce and is arranged for quick, easy access to information about specific situations.

"Demetrius and the Golden Goblet," by Eve Bunting, is a beautifully told parable about the prince who worshipped the sea, with exquisite illustrations.

"Cheerleading and Songleading," by Barbara Ebert, has step-by-step pictures and easy to follow instructions that will make this easy to learn.

E. W. Hildick's "The Case of the Snowbound Spy" puts the McGurk detectives' lives in danger when they become unwitting accomplices in a high-level industrial espionage scheme.

"Giants, Giants, Giants," by Helen Hoke, is a book of 16 stories about everyone's favorite giants.

"Katie John and Heathcliff," by Mary Calhoun, is a humorous story of first love and a teen-ager's unpredictable, real-life romance.

In "Space Travel in Fact and Fiction," by Keith Deutch, the author explores the past and future of space travel, including the moon space walk and plans for space labs. He discusses the works of famous science fiction writers.

Step-by-step projected demolition of the Empire State Building, if such an event should occur in the future, is demonstrated in David McCauley's "Unbuilding."

New Christmas books are "The Berenstain Bears' Christmas Tree," by Jan and Stan Berenstain; "Christmas," by Cass R. Sandak; "Danny Loves a Holiday!," by Sydney Taylor; "Holly Hobbie's Christmas Book," "Karin's Christmas Walk," "The Legend of Old Befana," retold by Tomie De Paola;

"The Perfect Christmas Picture," by Frank Marshall Davis; "Poems for Christmas," by Myra Cohn Livingston; "Merry Christmas, Henrietta," by Sid Hoff; and "Santa Rat," by Betty Baker.

'American Dreams' both stirring and insightful

AMERICAN DREAMS: LOST & FOUND. By Studs Terkel. Pantheon, 470 Pages. $14.95.

This is a stirring book and it's worth reading. "American Dreams" rings with laughter and sadness, with stolidity and insight, with indifference and with passion.

In a book resounding with American voices, Studs Terkel has frozen us in a moment of time. And he's left us there — out of context and a bit bewildered, but kicking at the dust and ducking our heads to cover our confusion.

It is probably not proper to complain about this. It is, after all, Terkel's way and he warns us in his introduction.

"In this book are a hundred American voices, captured by hunch, circumstance and a rough idea. There is no pretense at statistical 'truth,' nor consensus. There is, in the manner of a jazz work, an attempt, of theme and improvisation, to recount dreams, lost and found, and a recognition of possibility."

This is what we get: One by one, Americans line up, speak their minds and file away, leaving us on Page 470 with a powerful feeling that we've been somewhere, seen new things, learned new ways of thinking and striving and winning and falling.

Some of those we hear from are famous: Joan Crawford, former Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich, body builder Arnold Schwarzenegger.

But most are not famous, and many don't appear to be discussing the American Dream, or their own hopes and fears, at all. They chatter about their neighbors and their brothers-in-law and their bosses and their parents.

A few sniff at the notion of an American Dream. A housewife, mother of nine, told Terkel:

"I don't like the word 'dream.' I don't even want to specify it as American. What I'm beginning to understand is there's a human possibility. That's where all the excitement is. If you can be part of that, you're aware and alive. It's not a dream. It's possible. It's everyday stuff."

ERA among novel's subjects

THE ENTWINING. By Richard Condon. Marek, 275 Pages. $12.95.

Richard Condon's latest novel deals with women's lib and indirectly with the roadblocks the Equal Rights Amendment has run into.

Condon does it in a thriller that pontificates about the slow progress of the ERA on one page, then throws in liberal doses of sex and violence on the next.

The central figure is Jean Spano, a beautiful and brilliant young woman who has inherited an enormous fortune from her parents. She is guided into the political arena by secret diaries she has inherited from her mother. They dictate her every move and bristle with hatred for men in general, including the mother's own father and husband.

Soon the heroine emerges as a powerful political figure and gives luster to her image by marrying the Rev. Ames Spano, a handsome clergyman whose prime interests are helping the destitute, engaging in sex and sampling fine wines.

It is not long before Jean, aided by her fortune, is named lieutenant governor of her state and finally is tapped for U.S. attorney general. But she has just begun the climb toward the goal her late mother set for her — the presidency of the United States.

Jean's path becomes rocky, however, when she finds herself involved in two mysterious murders and is linked to a sordid sex liaison.

At this point the plot begins to be implausible. For one thing, it seems unlikely such a woman would engage in a shabby and not-too-well-concealed affair with a former vice-squad cop.

It is also hard to believe that so shrewd a woman would blindly follow the dictates of her late mother, whose edicts in the diaries are often reduced to hysterical ranting.

The book builds to a dramatic and unexpected climax, but here again its plausibility is strained.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, November 21, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The great French writer and philosopher Voltaire was born on this day, as was bubbly American actress Goldie Hawn. Your quiet air of self-confidence and strong sense of responsibility make you a natural administrator, destined to find considerable prominence in your chosen field. In the year ahead, be careful not to take on more work than you can comfortably handle. At times, you may have to be apart from loved ones for business reasons. Realize this sacrifice is both necessary and temporary, and that the end results will bring happiness to all involved. You are not a big spender, and inventive thinking resolves any minor money worries.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't turn your back on routine responsibilities in order to pursue romance. Keep your promises and all of the other facets of your life will fall into place.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Try an original approach when attempting to resolve an unusual problem. You receive help when you least expect it. Shop for clothes, antiques this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some job frustrations may soon be a thing of the past. A love interest can complicate family plans. Finances require closer scrutiny. Strike a balance between work and play.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stick to the facts when discussing a family situation. Financial transactions should be kept confidential. Unfavorable decision may be reversed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Yesterday's upward financial trend continues. Experts reveal ways to cut down on both business and personal expenditures. Make better use of social contacts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take stock of where you stand in career, business. Older person may offer financial assistance, but you will have to pay interest. Review your successes and failures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Furthering a pet project is your top priority now. Consult mate before making final decision regarding travel. You have chance to recoup recent losses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A new romantic interest or creative pursuit adds excitement, glamor to your life. Heart-to-heart talk strengthens a family bond. Large purchases are best postponed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A financial surprise could be in store for you. Unexpected schedule revision can mean extra hours of work. Be a good sport, don't complain.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Provide for the future by saving as much as possible of an unexpected windfall. You can get an important business venture under way if willing to work long hours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The gains you make in the next few days will be lasting. Your intuition is on target regarding co-worker's attitude. Expressions of understanding help resolve money crisis.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If leaving town for the holiday, rest at home tonight and start out fresh in the morning. Today's activities may have been more taxing than you realize.

 4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Sometimes it is obvious that the play of a high card will reveal your holding. In that case, the sensible thing to do is to pull some wool over declarer's eyes.

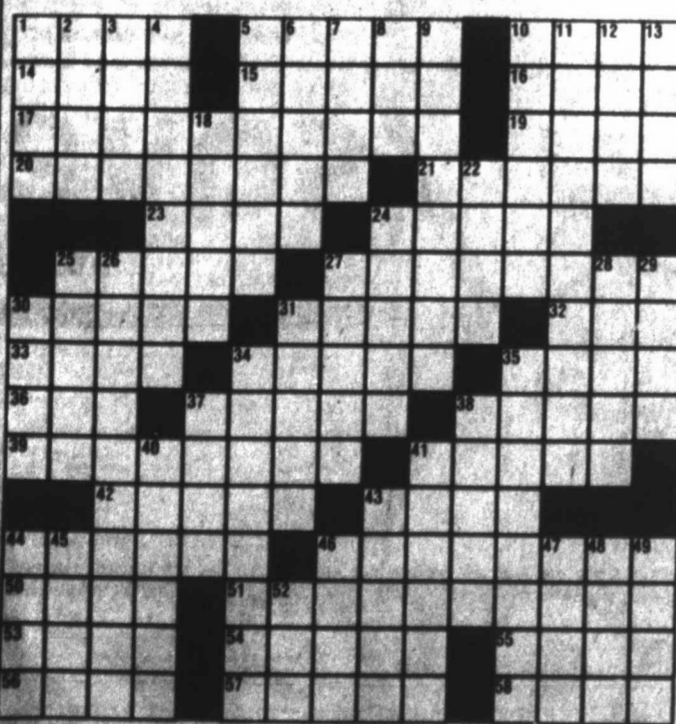

After he received a spade raise, South judged that if his partner had help in hearts, the combined holding might stretch to game. He, therefore, made a game try in the suit where he needed help. Since South might have had a real suit for that action, North accepted by raising hearts to game, and South corrected to four spades.

West led a club, and the defenders took two fast tricks in that suit. East shifted to a diamond. Since declarer was faced with a certain heart loser and needed to pick up trumps as well, prospects were not good. He won the diamond in hand and led a low heart. West inserted the jack and declarer won with the ace. His only problem now was to avoid a trump loser, so he led a low trump from dummy.

100 and still counting

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer

LUVERNE, Minn. (AP) — His wife says he's "all business" but John Engebretson disagrees. "I like fun, too," he chuckles. If the work-fun combination is a formula for longevity, it worked well for Engebretson. At the age of 100, he still labors daily in Rose Dell Mutual Insurance Co. office. And for a woman of 94, wife Susie also is doing fine. She has no housekeeping help, does the laundry herself and tends a large garden. Engebretson, who has an ailing right knee, has used a cane for a couple of years but he says "Susie gets around like a kitten." Because his sight started failing a year ago, Engebretson says he's had to "cut down" on work. He quit driving his Cadillac last year. "But outside of my knee and eyes, I don't feel elderly," he says. "The only thing that bothers me is I don't know what I'd do if I go blind." Engebretson gives no thought to retiring. A director of Rose Dell for 65 years, he was re-elected last year to a three-year term as treasurer. This year he was named to another term as a director of a larger firm, North Star Mutual Insurance Co. of Cottonwood, Minn. At times, he's also served North Star as vice president, treasurer and president. The least he can do now, Engebretson laughs, is to live out his three-year term so that he doesn't disappoint the people of two companies who re-elected him. He tried retiring once, but it didn't take. When he was 67, he liquidated the Kenneth, Minn., State Bank, and moved to Luverne. "But I got lonesome not having anything to do," he says. Engebretson started to sell insurance and dabble in real estate, principally farms. That started his fourth career. The first was school teaching. Born in Rock County to immigrant farmers who always spoke Norwegian, Engebretson "couldn't talk a word of American" until he was 9 and started school. After completing school, he taught all grades in a one-room country school near Kenneth at a salary of $35 a month. One of his pupils, Engebretson says, was "a little girl" named Susie Olson. She and John Engebretson celebrated their 68th wedding anniversary last Dec. 20. He quit teaching to manage the Kenneth Farmers Elevator Co. for $90 a month. Career No. 2 came to an end four years later, Engebretson recalls, "when they found someone to do the job for $75 a month." Engebretson helped his parents build a new home, then returned to Kenneth. A major stockholder in the bank asked if he would be interested in becoming the banker. "I knew what debit and credit was, and I must have said 'yes,'" Engebretson says. He bought the bank for $1,500, "a lot of money in those days," and was president for 37 years.

Bread war hits bottom price

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) — Shoppers who thought prices in a bread price war had hit rock bottom at two loaves for a penny were in for a pleasant surprise Wednesday. The Sioux City Hy-Vee stores were paying customers a penny to take away a one-pound loaf of bread. Fred Wickman, general manager of the Food 4 Less store, countered that with the offer of a "travel size" bottle of shampoo — worth $1 — and two loaves of bread for the price of one penny. Terry Brown, a Hy-Vee official, said he hoped the war would end sometime Wednesday. The bread war began last week when one store lowered prices to 19 cents a loaf.

Who won?

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP)—Two weeks after the general election, Collin County residents still don't know who their new county clerk is.

The two contenders for the post, vacated when James Webb retired in May, have asked for still another recount — the third since Nov. 4.

Original election results showed Democrat Helen Starnes, a former chief deputy clerk, had defeated Republican Margie Craft by a 261-vote margin.

Mrs. Craft demanded the first recount, which turned up 300 uncounted votes in one precinct and 50 uncounted absentee ballots. The added votes gave Mrs. Craft a 90-vote margin of victory.

That winning margin was confirmed in a second recount.

Mrs. Starnes still was not convinced. She requested a third recount — by hand, this time.

As of Tuesday, nine of the county's 56 boxes had been counted, said Sherry Robbins, an employee in the county's election administrator's office.

Bonds approved

PALESTINE, Texas (AP)—Residents of this East Texas city have passed a $9 million bond issue by a vote of 1,130 to 978.

The bonds will finance construction of a middle school, football stadium and athletic facilities. It will also enable the school district to consolidate nine schools into six.

Construction should start in March or April, school officials said.

Course may be given

HOUSTON (AP)— If the Houston City Council agrees, some employees at the Houston Intercontinental Airport may soon seem a lot nicer.

Frank Ward, assistant director of the city's Department of Aviation, said a proposal has been made to offer Dale Carnegie courses to city workers assigned to the airport.

He said the project is an attempt to improve the first impression visitors have of Houston.

"The first impact is the airport and this course can improve the image of the city employee who deals with the public on a day-to-day basis," he said.

The City Council must give its approval to the $7,000 agreement between the airport department and the Dale Carnegie Institute.

Ward said the airport generates its own revenues and that no tax money would be spent on the courses.

Participating in the courses would be airport police, information specialists and parking lot cashiers.

Even some porters may enroll, Ward said, "because they get stopped and asked questions, too."

The program is designed to improve self-confidence, communications and problem solving skills.

Tot electrocuted

AMARILLO, Texas (AP)—Funeral services are scheduled Wednesday for a 2-year-old girl who was electrocuted when a hair dryer fell into a bathtub.

Akysha A. Gray's death was ruled an accidental electrocution Monday night by Justice of the Peace Roy E. Byrd.

Police said the girl's grandmother, who had momentarily left the bathroom, heard a splash and returned to find the girl submerged and the hair dryer in the bathtub.

The other two children in the house may have accidentally knocked the hair dryer into the tub, authorities said.

Airport cabbies cheating taxpayers, says consultant

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Cab drivers at Dallas-Fort Worth airport are fleecing metroplex tax-payers of a possible $125,000 a year by not anteing up required airport fees, a consultant's report says. Consultants with Kimley-Horn and Associates said that cab drivers not associated with Surtran Taxicabs, Inc., must pay a $1.75 fee when leaving the airport. Surtran, a ground transportation system owned by the two cities, should receive 75 cents of the fee and the remainder goes to Surtran Taxicabs. But the consultants said many cab drivers have found a way to avoid paying the fee. Fees from a normal month should amount to $14,000 to $15,000, but cab fees during October totaled only $4,500, the 55-page report released Monday said.

The report said some cab drivers also are violating the agreement by directly soliciting airline passengers to use their vehicles instead of Surtran buses. "Steps should be taken immediately to establish and enforce regulations which would require taxicab operators to stay near their cabs while waiting at the airport and not allow them to solicit passengers in the luggage claim area," the report said, adding security officers could enforce the regulations. The consultants said some drivers approach groups of passengers waiting to board Surtran buses and invite them to share the cost of cab rides. In addition, the consultants said, airport officials should consider letting cab drivers charge more when carrying passengers between terminals. But because of pending court cases, the consultants said, officials should wait to consider a major revamping.

Alien files discrimination lawsuit

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal court has been asked to decide if aliens with legal resident status are entitled to the same protection from job discrimination as U.S. citizens receive. The suit, filed in Laredo, Texas, stems from the U.S. Employment Opportunity Commission's refusal to investigate the firings of Julia V. Marinez and Mariela Mollan of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, according to officials with the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund. The two women told a news conference here Tuesday that they lost their jobs with a Laredo clothing manufacturer after they refused a supervisor's sexual advances.

MILNOT'S HOLIDAY FAVORITES

Heleen Pruett, MILNOT HOME ECONOMIST

PUMPKIN PIE

- 1 cup brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup cooked pumpkin
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 9-inch unbaked pastry shell
- 2 cups MILNOT

Mix sugar, flour, salt and spices together and stir into pumpkin. Add MILNOT and eggs. Pour into pie shell and bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350 degrees and continue baking for another 25 to 30 minutes or until filling is firm (when knife inserted in pie comes out clean). Garnish with whipped MILNOT topping.

MARSHMALLOW CREME FUDGE

- 3 cups sugar
- 1 cup MILNOT
- 1/2 stick margarine
- 1 12-oz. package Chocolate Chips
- 1 7-oz. jar Marshmallow Creme
- 1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

Mix sugar, MILNOT and margarine together and cook until mixture comes to a boil stirring frequently. Boil this mixture for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and stir in chocolate chips and marshmallow creme. Stir ingredients until mixture is creamy and smooth. (An electric mixer may be used.) Pour into buttered 9" x 9" pan. Allow to cool and cut as desired. Yield approximately 2 1/2 pounds. NOTE: For delightful change use Butterscotch or Caramel Chips instead of Chocolate Chips.

Discover for yourself the special rich flavor and texture Milnot will give to your holiday cookies, cakes, pies and candy. And Milnot is virtually cholesterol free... the butterfat has been replaced with pure vegetable oil.

Loan bias banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consent order obtained by the Justice Department prohibits Beneficial Corp. from discriminating against prospective borrowers because of age or marital status. A government suit said Beneficial's lending policies violated the Equal Credit Opportunity Act. The company, which has more than 1,500 offices, is the country's second-largest consumer loan operation. Without admitting guilt, Beneficial agreed: —To make credit available to elderly applicants as easily as it does to younger applicants. —Not to deny credit to elderly applicants because they do not qualify for life insurance. —Not to require spouses of borrowers to co-sign applications for individual unsecured loans. —Not to ask prospective borrowers to indicate their marital status. The Justice Department, in papers filed with the court earlier, said partial review of Beneficial's credit application files indicated that during a three-year period, perhaps as many as 60,000 people nationwide had been denied loans illegally because of their marital status. The government papers also said the limited review suggested that perhaps as many as 360,000 people nationwide in a three-year period had been required to supply information about their marital status, which is prohibited by law. The consent order was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J.

Gulf lease sale hits $1.4 billion

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Energy companies that want to search for oil and natural gas in the western Gulf of Mexico have committed more than $1.4 billion to win federal leases.

The new exploration area covers 458,308 acres from High Island, near the western Louisiana border, west to Padre Island, and south to South Padre Island, just north of the Mexican border.

Superport for Texas given new life

HOUSTON (AP) — Hopes for Texas to match Louisiana by having a crude oil terminal off its coast have been revived by a new four-company consortium.

The formal TOP announcement Wednesday in Bartlesville, Okla., ended long speculation and came just five days after the collapse of a two-year effort by the Texas Deepwater Port Authority to build a state-owned $1.2 billion terminal 27 miles offshore.

acceptance date for a federal license expired Saturday when Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt refused to grant an extension and ruled that any scaled-down plan would require a new application.

The extension request had been designed to keep the project alive and permit time to develop plans for a 500,000-barrel-a-day port 12 miles off shore.

With similar objectives, the new TOP group said Wednesday it has advised the DOT it plans to submit a license application by late December.

The TOP plan, starting with one unloading buoy, would transfer 40,000 barrels of crude an hour to a 20-mile, 56-inch pipeline linked with a 5.7 million barrel onshore storage terminal.

Existing pipelines then would move the oil to coastal area refineries, the Strategic Petroleum Reserve storage site at nearby Bryansound, and to Seaway's storage terminal at Cushing, Okla.

The Texas Offshore Port group plans to apply by late December for a federal license for a $150 million, 500,000-barrel-a-day facility 12 miles south of Freeport.

The Wednesday announcement followed unsuccessful efforts for a much larger facility initially proposed by a larger consortium and then by a state agency.

As Texas efforts floundered, Louisiana proceeded with its plan and the $600 million, privately owned LOOP terminal is scheduled to open in early 1981.

Backing the new Texas plan are Phillips Petroleum, Continental Pipeline, Dow Chemical, and Seaway Pipe Line. They said other firms might join later.

Authorized by the state legislature in 1977, the Texas Deepwater Port Authority was activated in 1978 when the Seadock consortium abandoned a $700 million plan. Seadock died when Mobil, Gulf and Exxon dropped their combined 52 percent interest, blaming federal red tape.

The final Seadock group — that at one time involved 13 companies — included Phillips, Continental Pipeline, and Dow Chemical. The three companies, along with Seaway, later backed the ill-fated state project.

The state agency plan basically was the same as the 2.5 million-barrel-a-day Seadock project but the agency's

Geologists to hear Adams

Duane R. Adams, senior petroleum geophysicist in Midland for Aminol USA, Inc., will be the speaker for the Tuesday meeting of the West Texas Geological Society.

The Texas application that expired Saturday would have required a minimum throughput commitment of 1.5 million barrels a day to back $1.2 billion in revenue bonds.

The meeting will get underway at 11:30 a.m. in the Midland Hilton. Persons planning to attend the meeting are asked to contact the West Texas Geological Society office in Midland for reservations by 5 p.m. Friday.

On 24-hour potential test it pumped 107 barrels of oil, gravity and gas-oil ratio not reported, and 30 barrels of water. Completion was through perforations from 9,030 to 9,052 feet.

Adams' topic will be "Electrical Prospecting Methods."

The speaker is a graduate of the Colorado School of Mines with a B.S. degree in Geophysical Engineering. He worked for Gulf Oil Corp. in Midland as a geophysicist from 1975 to 1978. He joined Aminol in 1978.

One significant statistic disclosed at the commission hearing was that crude and petroleum products imports into the United States averaged 6,240,000 barrels a day for the four-week period ending Nov. 7.

Adams is a member of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, the WTGS, Society of Exploration Geophysicists, the Permian Basin Geophysical Society and the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Chairman John Poerner noted that imports were down more than 1.5 million barrels per day from the same period last year.

All-out yield still routine

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission today routinely set the statewide oil allowable for December at 100 percent. It will be the 46th consecutive month for all-out production.

One significant statistic disclosed at the commission hearing was that crude and petroleum products imports into the United States averaged 6,240,000 barrels a day for the four-week period ending Nov. 7.

Chairman John Poerner noted that imports were down more than 1.5 million barrels per day from the same period last year.

Mesa Petroleum holding first meeting in Midland

Mesa Petroleum Co., headquartered in Amarillo, for the first time in its history is holding a board of directors meeting in Midland, today through Friday.

Mesa has achieved phenomenal growth during its 16 years of existence. Pickens describes the company's success as "unique."

The company maintains its Permian Basin Division headquarters in the Tall City.

Historically, Mesa has enjoyed exploratory drilling success significantly above the industry average, Pickens said.

At the time of the Eubco Petroleum Corp. and Mesa Petroleum Co. merger in 1973, there were eight employees in the Permian Basin Division.

Pickens reports that Mesa discovered oil and gas on four of the first five offshore tracts in which the company purchased an interest in 1970.

Today, there are 54 employees in the division, with 37 of them working out of the Midland office.

Mesa gained worldwide recognition in 1978 with its discovery of the Beatrice field in an area of the North Sea.

The remainder of the division's employees work out of the following New Mexico cities: Hobbs, seven; Artesia, three; Roswell, two, and Carlsbad one.

Recently, Mesa joined Texaco Inc. and Sequoia Ventures, Inc., an affiliate of the Bechtel group of companies in the formation of a limited partnership, MTS Limited. Mesa, with a 65 percent interest, is the operator of MTS, with Texaco owning a 25 percent interest and Sequoia 10 percent.

Here for the board meeting are T. B. Pickens Jr., president and chairman of the board of directors, and Jack K. Larsen, executive vice president, both of Amarillo.

Mesa has total assets of $1.2 billion, and with only 672 employees, the company has one of the highest ratios of assets per employee among Fortune 1000 companies, Pickens said.

Other Mesa officers here are John F. Boros, vice president, treasurer and secretary; Joe S. Farmer, vice president — Gulf Coast Division (Houston); James L. Godfrey, vice president — Finance, Amarillo; James O. Upchurch, vice president — Engineering, Amarillo; David H. Batchelder, controller, Amarillo; M. E. Causey, division manager — Permian Basin Division.

During the 1980 third quarter Mesa participated in 40 wells, including 21 which were operated by the company. Of these, 10 were deep wells drilled or drilling toward objectives below 15,000 feet.

And, R. W. King, division manager — Rocky Mountain Division, Denver; J. G. Blankenship, division manager — Mid-Continent Division, Oklahoma City; Ronald D. Bassett, administrative assistant to the president, Amarillo; Barry F. Cannady, general attorney; Bill R. Alexander, Personnel and Administration manager, Amarillo, and Randal B. McDonald, managing partner, Arthur Anderson & Co.

In the Gulf of Mexico, an oil discovery was announced on Vermilion 273, the first discovery by property contributed to MTS. Mesa has a 48.8 percent interest. The well tested at a daily rate of 451 barrels of oil, through a 14 3/4-inch choke and perforations at 7,344-7,356 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was 475 pounds.

A drilling and production platform, which is expected to commence production during the fourth quarter of 1981, has been contracted for. At the Sept. 30 federal offshore lease sale, Mesa was successful bidder with lease bonuses totaling $11.4 million for three tracts (M-100 percent), including East Caticron 43, Vermilion 238, and South Timberler 24.

When state government needs help, hire a consultant

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When state government can't — or won't — do it itself, the usual answer is hire a consultant.

Since January, state agencies have signed consultant contracts worth more than $6.5 million. Millions of additional dollars have been paid for other outside professional services.

In past years, those services have included part-time priests and country singers for the Texas Department of Corrections, dentists and doctors for poor children and special investigators for at least two agencies.

UNLIKE SOME states and federal agencies, however, Texas seems to have gotten a handle on the hire-a-consultant syndrome, although there is room for improvement.

"Reports of abuses have dropped off a whole lot," says Sally Watkins, aide to Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Doggett was the chief campaigner for legislation aimed at stopping such abuses as "brother-in-law" contracts without competitive bidding. The governor now has a veto over any consultant contract costing over $10,000, and agencies must issue public invitations to bid.

Consultant contracts got a lot of attention in 1978 when it came to light that Gov. Dolph Briscoe was keeping his payroll down by hiring a firm to staff the Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs. Briscoe also hired a number of his ex-employees as consultants.

STATE LAW now requires disclosure if a consultant has worked for a state agency within two years before receiving a contract.

Legislation passed last year authorized a heavy state investment in energy research. The Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council has commissioned 19 studies, ranging from lignite gasification to solar cooking.

The solar cooking contract went to the Oscar Mayer Co. — as in Oscar Mayer wieners — at Sherman.

McGraw-Hill holds this year's biggest consultant contract, $1,975,000 to conduct the statewide Texas Assessment of Basic Skills testing of school children.

Sometimes, a consultant contract offers a way out of a knotty personnel problem.

Service and Brown's old boss. But Hutchison couldn't draw both a state paycheck and a state retirement check.

So Brown got Gov. Bill Clements' approval of a $100-a-day consultant contract for Hutchison to "help develop guidelines to make Texas No. 1 in agricultural income and profitability."

Hutchison got an office down the hall from Brown's and advised Brown on such things as gasohol.

"I would say he almost works full time. ... Somebody is trying to hire him every day from us," Brown said. Within a week, he announced that Texas A&M had hired Hutchison. An agency may hire consultants only if there is a "substantial need" for their services and the agency cannot do the job with its own people.

Dr. Maurice Dutton, president of ARBEC, said the commission will get "a total training program," including reference manuals, group exercises, slide shows and trainers' guides.

Dutton said he welcomes the new competitive bidding requirements.

"It has made no difference in our company's success," he said.

Audits of the 10 largest state agencies indicate fairly heavy reliance on outsiders for services not covered by the consultant rules.

The Texas Department of Corrections paid between $1,200 and $1,800 each to three Catholic priests and fees up to $10,000 to country singers Tammy Wynette, Tom T. Hall, Larry Gatlin and Freddy Fender.

TDC SPOKESMAN Rick Hartley said the singers were paid from gate receipts for performing at the Prison Rodeo.

Hartley said the priests were hired because "we don't have enough chaplains to fully carry out religious programs."

In recent years, the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and the Parks and Wildlife Department hired former officials as special investigators. Parks and Wildlife paid former director Henry Burket $9,892 for an investigation in 1979. MHMR paid its retired attorney, Earl Scott, $5,554 to look into problems at Rusk State Hospital.

THE DEPARTMENT of Human Resources pays millions of dollars yearly to dentists and physicians for early check-ups and treatment of poor children. In 1979, eight dentists received more than $100,000 each.

Dr. C.C. Chandler, senior dental consultant, said the dentists and doctors receive less than their usual fees and are a bargain compared with establishing state-run clinics.

"It is more economical to pay a fee for service and let the dentist ... pay for all supplies, materials and office overhead out of the fees paid for his services," Chandler said.

Doggett says there are too many exemptions to the consultant law to suit him — notably those for lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects and accountants.

"We yielded to political realities. ... It became clear that if we didn't exempt them, we couldn't pass any bill at all," he said.

Doggett says he has no plans to bring professional services under such consultant requirements as competitive bidding because "I don't think we can pass it."

Watch out for solon's sculpture

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you visit Sen. Carl Levin in his office, watch out. Your words and movements are being monitored electronically by that device on the wall.

But don't worry. It's not a Watergate-style voice-actuated recorder eavesdropping on your confidences. It's a sculpture.

Levin, a Michigan Democrat, and his wife, Barbara, showed off the appropriately red, white and blue creation at a Senate reception.

It is the work of Jim Pallas, a Michigan artist who received the Michigan Foundation for the Arts Award this year for similar works.

Levin, a lawyer from Detroit, and his wife have another Pallas sculpture in their Washington home. It is designed to respond to Mrs. Levin's harpsichord playing.

"Actually, it will respond to anything," Mrs. Levin said.

Other Pallas sculptures, in galleries and on a street near the Detroit waterfront, respond to passersby, weather and other stimuli.

Levin said that when he was elected to the Senate two years ago "the first thing that hit me was that we had the debate in the Senate being piped in here and maybe he could put his mind to something that would respond to that."

It's hard to describe.

The Senate Piece is actually three pieces. The main one consists of a structure of white-painted wire with ladders leading up onto it, topped by a white-columned building with "E Pluribus Unum" written on it.
