Electrical blaze gets blame for MGM fire

trical fire that smoldered for hours between floors before eploding in flames was blamed Saturday for the devastating MGM Grand Hotel fire that killed 83 people and injured more than 500 others, fire officials said.

The second worst hotel fire in the nation's history, which sent lethal clouds of smoke through all 26 floors of the hotel, started quietly above a delicatessen ceiling on the hotel's main floor before dawn Friday, Clark County Fire Chief Roy Parrish told a news conference.

"This was a classic case of a fire that built and burned. It was definitely a killer," Parrish said. "We have determined the origin of the fire to be in the attic (between floors) above the deli. It is electrical in nature." He observed that if most guests had mained in their rooms instead of panicking and attempting to flee, there would be more survivors.

The fire chief said the search for bodies would continue Sunday in the basement but that unless there are hospital deaths or bodies hidden below the main floor, the death toll would remain unchanged at 83.

Clark County Coroner Otto Ravenholt said earlier that he would not be surprised if more bodies were found in elevators which may be in the

Parrish said "a preburn period" of two or three hours allowed the fire to gain sufficient momentum to spread, first downward through the delicatessen's ceiling in a ball of flame, and then upward in a chimney-draft effect through open elevator shafts.

Fire Capt. Mike Patterson said he interviewed the employee who reported the fire at 7:15 a.m. PST and was physically knocked to the ground when the attic let loose.

"He was knocked down by this explosion," Patterson said. If there had been a sprinkler system above the wires, as required by current codes, it would have extinguished the smoldering before the fire broke out, Patterson said.

system didn't function, Parrish said: 'We still don't understand what hap pened to it and we're continuing to investigate." He had previously said the fire apparently caused the alarm system to malfunction.

Bad as it was, Parrish said the fire could have been worse.

"Eight thousand people were in that hotel. Eighty-three people were killed, which is a one percent loss of life," he said. "I was afraid we would lose hundreds of them."

Parrish also said that sprinklers did their job adequately in two showrooms and the halls in the east end of the ground floor.

Earlier Saturday, surviving guests from the hotel returned and collected their luggage from their rooms as outsiders got their first look at the casino's ghostly ruins.

The latest body was found near a slot machine in the casino a few moments before fire officials gave reporters a tour of the darkened, cavernous casino, where a deathly smell of smoke and water hung over the skeletal remains of burned-out gaming equipment.

Encouraging sign

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.

-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspape

NEW YORK -President-elect Ronald Reagan's visit to Washington this week was an encouraging sign that the country is on the threshold of an era of responsible leadership that gives renewed hope of taking us out of our economic mess and restoring confidence in government. It was heartening for many of us to see with what political astute-ness, sensitivity and refreshing con-minality our future president capti-vated Washington.

He radiated charm and a high degree of competence in the way he devoted his first day as presidentelect in Washington to establishing friendly contact not only with his own party's leaders in Congress, but with the Democratic leaders as well. On Wednesday, he visited the justices of the U.S. Supreme Court, the first president-elect in history to do so according to court historians. At the first social dinner he hosted

New round looms in battle between cities

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

It's the same story, but the players have switched roles as Midland and Odessa prepare to take up arms in a battle that has resurfaced concerning cancer therapy treatment. The first fight could take place Dec. 8 when a hearing is scheduled on an application from Odessa for an improved cancer treatment machine.

Two years ago, few West Texans had even heard of a 6MEV linear accelerator. In a few weeks, the machine may become a household word as Midlanders and Odessans gear up to fight for the advanced, "state of the art" cancer therapy machine.

Last Friday, Medical Center Hospital in Odessa made its formal application for a certificate of need to the Texas Health Facilities Commission (THFC) in Austin to replace its current AECL Teratron-80 Cobalt radiation therapy unit with a Varian 6 Million Electron Volt linear accelerator. Discussion of the application, which was first received in early November, was delayed by the Permian Basin Health Systems Agency 12 because the application was incomplete.

The HSA-12 reviews projected improvements for hospitals in the 17-county area served by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. After reviewing materials submitted for improvements, the HSA has a public meeting to hear opposition to the improvements and then gives its recommendation to the THFC on the certificate of need proposal. The current "cold war" is a continuation of the heated battle in 1979 when Midland Memorial Hospital originally applied to the HSA and the THFC for permission to build the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center. Medical Center Hospital opposed the applica-tion because it felt the proposed Center's 6MEV linear accelerator was an "exact duplication" of the services provided by MCH's Cobalt machine. MMH later added additional equipment and plans to the application and MCH withdrew its opposi-

According to THFC standards, no hospital may add services or equipment which will significantly duplicate those of its competitor unless community need warrants additional hospitals to have those capabilities. This point was used by Odessa during the first battle in opposing the Midland cancer therapy center; Midland is using it now to oppose Odessa's application.

In the case of the 6MEV, an additional 6,000 treatments on cancer patients would warrant the purchase of a second machine in the area, according to Mickey Cappadonna, MMH trustee and president of the Regional Advisory Council to the APBCTC. The 6,000-treatments figure came from the certificate of need approved for the Allison Center which showed the population to be served by the center at a level to require 6,000 treatments a year in the 17-county area. In the application MCH submitted, it predicted "an approximate utilization of 6,000 treatments for 240 patients for the next 12 months based upon the utilization figures for the past 12 months and adjusted for the addition of the radiological oncologist to the hospital's staff." However, MCH Administrator Sam Glenner (See CANCER FACILITY, Page 4A)

The president elect had been scheduled to spend only an hour at the meeting with his so-called "kitchen cabinet," but ended up staying much longer.

"It's a long and laborious process of combing a lot of names," he said, adding that he still hopes to announce his decisions by the end of the month or early next month. Asked whether he had slimmed down the list of prospective nominees, Reagan replied, "Oh my goodness, I wish it were down to three (for each of the 13 Cabinet posts).' Press secretary Lyn Nofziger, also asked later if the list had been trimmed, said the process of picking Cabinet officers wasn't being conducted by crossing names off a long list. "The list is kind of a figment of somebody's imagination. There is not a list of names on a piece of paper from which there will be a selection." he said. The meeting took place in an oak-paneled conference room in the office of Reagan's personal lawyer, William French Smith, him self a contender for attorney general.

Asked as he went into the me et in g wh et he r he w ould take the top job at the Justice Department, Smith replied coyly, "It's a

The public hearing here will be at 10 a.m. Dec. 2 at Midland College. It is one of five public meetings around the state sponsored by the two state agencies. Other locations are at Euless, Corpus Christi, Houston and Austin.

Responsibility for industrial waste disposal in Texas rests with the Department of Water Resources, while the Department of Health has jurisdiction over municipal wastes.

Purpose of the hearings is four-fold: To ensure coordinated efforts between solid waste management programs; to define problems; to establish goals and objectives; and to outline strategies, procedures and time tables for their achievement.

human health and the environment from improper management of industrial solid waste; to increase the recovery and re-use of materials and energy from municipal and industrial solid waste streams; provide a coordinated approach to solve industrial solid waste problems; increase public awareness of solid waste issues; and foster understanding of the regulatory program to improve the efficiency of those who must comply with the regulations.

Groups and associations wishing to submit testimony should be represented by one spokesman. Written testimony also may be submitted and should be postmarked by Dec. 17.

May West, Hollywood's legendary sex symbol dies

Hollywood bombshell Mae West who starred in vaudeville, plays and films as a brassy, bosomy sex symbol of the 1920s and '30s - died "very peacefully and painlessly" Saturday at her apartment here at the age of 87, a spokesman said.

"At 10: 30 she just closed her eyes Thank God it was peaceful and there was no pain," said Jerry Martin of the William Morris Agency, Miss West's longtime public relations representa-

The aging sex queen died just three weeks after leaving a hospital where she had spent three months recuperating from a mild stroke that left her speech impaired.

"She'd been home almost a month and she was doing fine," Martin said Saturday. "She was so glad to be home. But this morning when she got up she was having trouble breath

Martin said that Paul Novak, a former muscleman in Miss West's night club act and her companion the last 25 years, called a doctor who examined the actress and said that nothing further could be done. Novak was with her at her death, Martin

LAST RITES WERE performed by a priest who was summoned from a nearby church, Martin said.

The Forest Lawn-Hollywood cemetery was asked to handle funeral arrangements for Miss West. Martin said a memorial service tentatively was scheduled for Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church in Beverly Burial will take place at a cemetery in Brooklyn, N.Y., where Miss West's father, mother and brother are buried. Martin said.

"She always planned to be buried back there," he said.

Miss West had lived in the Ravenswood Apartments since 1932. "when she came out to make a movie and remained there," Martin said

After a 27-year hiatus from filmmaking, she returned to the big screen twice in the 1970s. "Myra Breckenridge" in 1970 was her first picture since 1943, and in 1977 she played a film star on her sixth honey moon in "Sextette.

But for the most part she was rarely seen in public in recent years. She lived in palatial splendor near Beverly Hills — almost a recluse — on enormous wealth resulting from shrewd real estate investments and top salaries in her years as a star. Miss West was with the Morris Agency in her early days of vaudeville and stayed with the agency throughout her career

'She was a lovely lady. She really was," said Martin. "She had a great sense of humor right to the end.

ACTOR ANTHONY QUINN, who got his start from Miss West, said she 'should be remembered as a very special and unique person in the entertainment world, and I'm sure she will go down in the industry's history as such.

Miss West made millions muttering spicy comments, while her chassis moved like a parked car with the motor running.

She had perfected an inimitable style, although many tried: the silken, hip-swinging walk; the languid glance; the lethargic but meaningful gestures, and the tantalizing drawl. And there were her sybaritic phrases such as: "Beulah, peel me a grape" or the famous invitation she issued to Cary Grant in "I'm No Angel" in 1933 — "Come up and see me sometime.'

It was in the 1930s that she made herself a sex goddess and an American institution — a violet-eyed blonde with a figure her press agent said matched the statue of the Venus de It was said that the only person who ever upstaged her in a film was comedian W.C. Fields, who was her partner in several movies, including the comedy classic "My Little Chick-

SHE CLAIMED A contribution to a change in American lifestyles:

"I was the first person to bring sex out in the open," she said. "Before I came along nobody could print the word on billboards.

In fact, she opened on Broadway in 1926 in a play she had written: "Sex." Police raided it, it folded, and she was sent to jail for eight days, but earned national fame wih her demands finally granted — that jailers provide her silk underwear in her cell at Welfare Island

Ironically, Miss West deplored the current trend toward sex and nudity. "I don't approve of it," she said. "It's just not right

She noted she never had to undress to exude sensuality but could give that impression with the most innocent and highest-necked dresses. 'I didn't have to show myself naked, and I never did," she said. Miss West's first hit performance was as the dance hall queen in the 1928 play "Diamond Lil." After she hit Hollywood in 1932, she was a top star from her debut in "Night After Night" to 1940, when she starred with Fields in "Chickadee.

Many of her films have become classics of the late show. To the end of her life she got fan mail — including, she said, proposals of marriage from teenagers who had seen her only on

THE MAE WEST style left its mark. In 1940 Royal Air Force pilots nicknamed their inflatable life jackets Mae West; the name persists. Decades of Hollywood starlets copied her hair, her strut, her decolletage. But, said Miss West:

They don't really know how to imitate me. They don't see the comic side of sex.

At 17, Miss West was married, briefly, to a song-and-dance man named Frank Wallace. They had no children and she never remarried.

In 1964 she told an interviewer, with characteristic candor, that although she had "carried on" over the years with a number of gentlemen, she had suffered neither twinges of guilt nor

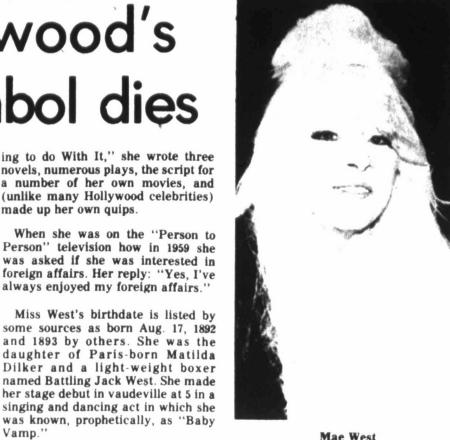

"The score never interested me," she said. "Only the game.

Her autobiography took its title from one of her lines. As she entered a nightclub a hat check girl gasped at her jewelry: "Goodness! What beautiful diamonds!" Replied Miss West: 'Goodness had nothing to do with

ing to do With It," she wrote three novels, numerous plays, the script for a number of her own movies, and (unlike many Hollywood celebrities) made up her own quips. When she was on the "Person to Person" television how in 1959 she was asked if she was interested in always enjoyed my foreign affairs." Miss West's birthdate is listed by some sources as born Aug. 17, 1892 and 1893 by others. She was the daughter of Paris-born Matilda Dilker and a light-weight boxer named Battling Jack West. She made her stage debut in vaudeville at 5 in a singing and dancing act in which she was known, prophetically, as "Baby

Flood warnings lifted

SEATTLE (AP) - Flood warnings were lifted Saturday for the Nooksack and Snohomish rivers as western Washington recovered from heavy weekend swollen rivers in the area were falling, although some areas still had standing water. Lowland areas of the Snohomish, Nooksack and Elwha rivers overflowed their banks Friday when as much as seven inches of rain drenched the state.

Most areas north of Seattle in the western half of the state got three or more inches of rain Friday, the weather service said, and five to seven inches fell on the Olympic Mountains.

The Cowlitz and Toutle rivers — draining the watersheds denuded of vegetation by Mount St. Helens's May 18 eruption — rose by as much as nine feet Friday, but stayed well below flood stage, said meteorologist Jeff Smith of the weather service

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — John W. McCormack, who rose through the tough world of Democratic South Boston politics to become speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, died Saturday at a nursing home. He was

"He went quietly to sleep after lunch and stopped breathing," said his nephew, Edward McCormack. "He was a wake and alert to the very end. He went very peacefully.

McCormack was hospitalized in September for pneumonia. He was recently transferred to the Eastwood at Dedham nursing home where he "He never quite recovered," said his nephew. McCormack's 42-year congressional career, from 1928 to 1970, spanned eight presidencies. He served as majority leader of the House for decades under Sam Rayburn and became speaker in January 1962.

He held the record for unbroken tenure in the speaker's office.

He was a heartbeat away from the presidency for more than a year after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, as the speaker of the House follows the vice president in presidential seccession

Before he was hospitalized, McCormack led an active life, keeping regular hours at an office in the federal courthouse that bore his name. Each night he would dine at Jimmy's Harborside, a popular Boston seafood res-

Peace envoy in Iraq amidst fighting

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran claimed Iraq launched ground toground missiles on an Iranian city Saturday to blunt a counterattack on the heights that command main highway routes from Iran's western border to Baghdad. U.N. peace envoy Olof Palme arrived here after Iranian officials reportedly told him his mediation efforts were "a waste of Iran's official news agency Pars said the Iraqi assault with Sovietmade missiles escalated the running battles by paratroopers for the hills overlooking four Iraqi-occupied villages in the northern sector of the 300-mile battlefront.

The agency said the missiles smashed into residential areas in the Iranian town of Gilan Gharb overnight, killing and wounded civilian inhabitants. No specific figures were

Iraqi communiques reported fresh helicopter gunship assaults on Iranian positions in the northern sector at the Qasr-e-Shirin-Gilan Gharb axis and elsewhere in the oil-rich province of Khuzistan, site of most of the fight-

Tehran radio broadcasts also spoke of helicopter gunship and paratroop raids in the northern and southern sectors of the battlefront, claiming two more strategic hills in the Gilan Gharb area were wrested from the

Iran claimed a total of 1,700 Iraqis killed at the end of the first week of its counter-offensive at all fronts Saturday, and Iraq claimed 1,125 enemy troops killed.

It was the third time Pars has claimed Iraq used surface-to-surface missiles in the war. The previous two attacks were mounted against the ajor Iranian army garrison town of Dezful, 50 miles east of the Iraqi border on the northern edge of Khuzistan. Dezful is 180 miles southeast of Gilan Gharb and Iran claimed 255 of its civilians were killed in the earlier assaults.

Tehran radio's evening communique reported 25 Iragis killed in ground fighting to the west of Dezful.

Iranian officials have said Iran will not respond in kind to the missile attacks because they are contrary to 'Islamic principles.'

Iranian forces have been on the counterattack in the Khuzistan city of Susangerd since Nov. 14 and the city of Abadan since Monday

Pars reported Ahwaz, the capital of Khuzistan, and the oil-refining city of Abadan came under heavy Iraqi artillery fire Saturday. Iraqi forces in the Ahwaz front suffered "considerable losses," Tehran radio said.

The agency said Abadan's defenders pushed Iraqi troops more than a half-mile away from the northeastern and eastern outskirts of the city, whose giant oil refinery provided 60 percent of Iran's fuel needs before the Pars said the closest Iraqi forward line is now 3.6 miles from Abadan. Iran's last major stronghold located at the southern end of the war zone on the eastern bank of the Shatt al-Arab waterway. The estuary is Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

Polish workers back down from rail strike threats said in demanding the release of Jan Narozniak, a graphics worker and volunteer in Solidarity's print shop who on Friday was ordered to report to police.

Zbigniew Bujak, the chapter president, said the 16,000-member work force at the Ursus tractor plant was prepared to strike

Narozniak's detention came the day after authorities searched Solidarity's offices here and found a classified document. Solidarity confirmed it was classified. The union said the 13-page document was from General Prosecutor Lucien Czubinski and "is yet another proof that a huge part of the justice apparatus is ignoring the Gdansk agreement," which ended August's crippling strikes with government approval of free trade unions. Soviet news reports this fall blamed the strikes on anti-socialist forces and weak leadership by Communist Party chief Edward Gierek, who was replaced by Stanislaw Kania. The change was attributed by the official Polish media to Geirek's health problems.

In the fourth major government shake-up since the strikes, the Polish Parliament on Friday named Jerzy Ozdowski, a prominent Roman Catholic, deputy premier for family and social affairs and dropped four cabinet ministers.

Jozef Klasa, a member of Poland's Community Party Central Committee, was quoted Saturday in an interview with the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet as saying Kania had been picked as the party leader because he "refused" to use violence against the strikers. Klasa was also quoted saying that for Poland to avoid future crises, it must "democratize the party and the life of society.'

Solidarity said the document seized by police laid down instructions for "persecuting participants in illegal, anti-socialist activity," "shows numerous cases of arbitrary police decisions, abuse of power and law violations," and "is to show at the same time that the establishment of free trade unions is the result of anti-socialist activities."

Solidarity also demanded that the government make public the role Czubinski played in what it called the violations of legality of the past decade and especially in the torturing of workers at Ursus and Radom' during labor unrest there in 1976.

We won't get the budget balanced for maybe several years to come. The new Presiddent will probably make some mistakes. Linear accelerator due at cancer center here

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

The first piece of equipment for the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center was scheduled to arrive last week for installation in the center, which is slated for operation in late May. However, delivery of the sensitive 6MEV linear accelerator, a waste from a tumor. "major use" piece at the center, was delayed by the hospital until the dust clears at 2200 W. Illinois

According to Mickey Cappadonna, Midland Memorial Hospital trustee and president of the Regional Advisory Council for the APBCTC, the center's construction is on schedule. "The heavy concrete we poured last spring has gone through the curing process and we're ready to put in equipment."

However, Cappadonna said delivery of the 6MEV linear accelerator, which is the machine that most of the center's operation will be focused around, was delayed until February when the outside construction will be complete and the resultant dust won't be a problem for the machine.

The equipment for the center will be some of the most advanced in the field. Aside from the 6 million electronic volt (MEV) linear accelerator which will supply 80 percent of the radiation treatments, the center will have a 20 MEV linear accelerator for deeper penetrating radiation needs, a therapy beam simulator, an Orthovoltage unit and a computerized treatment planner.

Beginning with the simulator, which Cappadonna called "a sophisticated X-ray machine," doctors who use the center will be able to photograph the density of a tumor by taking pictures of it from many different angles. By feeding subsequent information patients," after they leave the center, Cappadonna into the treatment planner, the physician will learn said. When the treatments are given in small dosages at continual intervals over a period of days or weeks, then the body can get rid of the waste and still maintain its normal functions without getting "overloaded."

In addition to radiation treatments, the Allison Center also will have facilities for chemotherapy and surgical therapy.

The center will have a multi-disciplinary approach to the cancer cure," Cappadonna said. The 22,000-square-foot center has 7-feet thick concrete walls to insulate the radiation rooms. With some 15 rooms, the center is designed for a 'ife-expectancy of 50 years.

Everything from the hospital is built on the 50-year construction plan," Cappadonna said.

With picture-size windows and "drive-it" brown plaster exterior walls, the center will have a courtyard in the center, with some room for future expansion. A walk-though tunnel will connect the center to the hospital, as well.

In addition, the Allison Center will house the Permian Basin's first computerized tumor registry, which will identify and track the progress of cancer patients who come to the center. The registry will store "complete records of what happens to the School trustees

School trustees will be considering on Tuesday a proposal hich may require ninth grade students who failed the Texas seessment of Basic Skills examination to retake the test.

That proposal along with 10 other action items and one report will be presented at 1: 30 p.m. Tuesday in the school district administration's board room at 702 N. N St.

Under present guidelines established by the TABS test, the state law gives failing students an opportunity to retake the test each year it is offered. However, board members will decide if they want to make the test a requirement.

A system-wide periodic evaluation of school personnel will be another item for trustee approval. If approved, the superintendent will have the power to develop appraisal instruments and procedures to evaluate the job performance of school employees. Two applications for federal funding of secondary and elementary bilingual programs will need trustee approval.

Purpose of the programs is to improve the English language skills of those students who have limited English skills, which should help their academic performance. Cost of the secondary project for three years is $190,000 while the district will be asking for about $200,000 each year for three years for the elementary program. Other items to be presented during the meeting include

-A report concerning school staffing ratios and class size. -Participation in paving and utility assessment project near a school site.

-Bids for portable classroom buildings, audio-visual equipment, and furniture. -Football game reports for the two high schools

-Personnel appointments and resignations. -Two executive sessions. One of the sessions will be recommending the expulsion of a student.

Midland City Council

Improvements and renovations to city buildings, along with reconstruction of taxiways, will dominate the agenda when the Midland City Council meets at 10 a.m. Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

Also scheduled that day at 7:30 p.m. is a public hearing in City Hall on the Community Development Block Grant pro-

The council will look at a contract with the Federal Aviation Administration concerning a site at Midland Regional Airport for a new control tower. The new building is designed with about 5,000 square feet, will cost about $1.7 million and will feature solar heating.

The lone bid for remodeling the Animal Control Shelter will be reviewed. At the Nov. 13 meeting, the council deferred action on that bid. The panel also will consider awarding a contract for re-roofing the Health Department Building.

Other items from the aviation department include awarding a contract for runway and taxiway reconstruction at Midland Air Park, approving a lease agreement with the Civil Air Patrol at Air Park and a 20-year lease with Tiger Charter.

Council members are scheduled to hear a report from Ed Reed & Associates concerning additional monitoring of wells at the landfill site and to consider a request from Midland County to install city utilities in a county windowpane area east of Cotton Flat Road.

Coming up for a second reading is the ordinance to allow right turns only for eastbound traffic in the south lane of Big Spring Street at Wadley Avenue.

A zone change request by Charles N. Wallace Jr. for a piece of land between West Pine Avenue and West Pecan Avenue and between Oaklawn Drive and North D Street is back on the agenda for the second time. Wallace is asking it be changed from Planned District to Amended Planned Dis-

The council will hear from citizens concerning Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's reluctance to provide a drive-in window or substation to receive payment of telephone bills. In other action, the council will consider a resolution authorizing sale of a tract of land adjacen' to the Shell Street water tower and ponder over the request of Parker and Parsley for the city to offer for lease 1.25 acres of mineral

County Commissioners

Midland County Commissioners will be considering a 10item agenda during Monday's meeting at 1:30 p.m. in the Commissioners' Courtroom at Midland County Courthouse. Grant Billingsley from the Midland Industrial Development Corporation will be presenting a revenue bond application for commissioner approval. Other items up for approval include:

-Hiring a new deputy for the constable's office. -Approval of the tax assessor-collector's state and county bond

-Consider a letter of engagement from Main, Hurdman and Cranstoun for an audit.

-Approval of bids for three cars for the sheriff's office. pick-up truck for the County Extension Office, a buffalo turbine for vector control and a word processor computer for the County Judge and County Court at Law

Other routine matters such as bills and reports will be presented before commissioners go into an executive session pertaining to personnel matters, possible land purchase or pending litigation

Some still can't go home in Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR (AP) - Toxic fumes from a burst gasoline pipeline sent several homeowners looking for another place to spend the weekend, and perhaps the next several weeks, city health officials said.

About 240 families were evacuated Tuesday when an Independent Refining Corp. pipeline burst and poured 28,900 gallons of unfinished gasoline into the middle-class residential neighborhood. Toxic fumes filled the air.

The fumes permeated the eight homes nearest the rupture and city health officials said the level of hydrocarbons in the air was 'in excess of what we consider safe.'

"It may be weeks, months before they can return home," city nealth officer Carl Clark said Friday. "It just depends on the chnology available to remove the gases."

Cecil Fudge, an engineer with the oil and gas division of the Texas Railroad Commission, said the line was the "closest I've ever seen to a house," adding that the pipe was only 4 to 6 feet from some of the homes.

Missing lake refills

DELCAMBRE, La. (AP) — Nine of 11 barges sucked into a hole when a lake bottom collapsed into a Diamond Crystal Salt Co. salt mine popped up like iron corks Saturday when the sea refilled Lake Peigneur, author-ities reported.

However, the crater kept its grip on a $5 mil-lion drilling rig and a small tugboat - the most expensive items that went down when the 11/2-square-mile lake began pouring into the maze of mine tunnels on Thursday.

Despite the potential danger of surface turmoil in the event of the collapse of dissolving mine walls and pillars, a tugboat was sent out to try to moor the barges so they would not ride free on the current.

"The tug went out be-cause the tide could bring those barges over here to ram into our bridge and tear it down," explained Police Chief Jun Delcambre.

However, Delcambre said the tug crew decided not to venture over the dangerous crater area of Lake Peigneur, but to lurk in the vicinity, ready to waylay barges that drift their way. Thus far, the freak ac-cident at the nearby Jef-ferson Island salt dome has a remarkable safety record.

All 50 men in the mine rode a slow creaky elevator up to safety Thursday before water trapped them. Seven men on the drilling rig were removed when it gan to lean. The crew on a nearby drilling rig that toppled but was not swallowed up also was removed safely, oilmen

Shallow Lake Peigneur, with an average depth of three feet, re-filled overnight. Sea water poured into it through the Delcambre

Man jailed after long standoff

LONDON (AP) — Police arrested a 35-yearold man on Westminster Bridge today, ending a four-hour standoff during which he threatened to blow himself up, Scotland Yard said.

The Thames River bridge by the Houses of Parliament was closed during the incident, which ended when two police officers persuaded the man to surrender. During the negotiations, the man sat in his car on the south side of the bridge holding a package with wires protruding from it. Police later discovered the package did not contain explosives, as the man claimed.

The Yard said the man made "rambling" demands about peace and the cost of nuclear arms and apparently wanted to broadcast a message.

Police identified him as John Lineham and said he was charged with threatening to cause criminal damage.

I don't know how much my double life had to do with what had happened, but during all this picturemaking I was spending five nights a week at the Screen Actors Guild. For months we had been getting ready for our negotiations with the pro-

The negotiations carried on for five months. They were a whole new experience to me. I suppose I really walked in believing we'd get what we asked because we asked for it. First surprise was discovering that the fellows across the table had ideas of their own

I was also surprised to discover the important part a urinal played in bargaining. When some point has been kicked around a while, someone from one side or the other goes to the men's room. There is a kind of sensory perception that gives you the urge to follow. Then, standing side by side in that room that levels king and commoner, comes an honest question, "What do you guys really want?" No bargaining here - each tells what is the settling point. Back in the meeting, one or the other makes an offer based on this newly acquired knowledge. Then the other returnee from the men's room says, "Can our group have a caucus?" Slowly, point by point, men's room to caucus, you get on with it.

We shook hands over the debris of conference indispensables such as cigar butts, notepaper, chewed-up pencils, etc. Actors had gotten raises. Working conditions had been vastly improved and we had wearily agreed to a stopgap clause that settled nothing with regard to movies someday being reissued on television — but then everyone said they'd be crazy to sell their movies to a competing medium.

We weren't through with the little Red brethren in Hollywood, though, by any means.

Suddenly it seemed we were all going to Washington as guests of the House Un-American Activities Committee

The situation was made to order for the "Commies" — they organized one of the most successful operations in their domestic history: "The Committee for the First Amendment." Literally the whole industry appeared on a giant radio show and, of course, there was the famous planeload of stars to Washington. Today some self-appointed "Red hunters" still use participation on that junket as proof of pro-Communist leanings. The truth is the Communists in their own circles insisted that

Jane Wyman and I met in 1939, making "Brother Rat." We became engaged during a cross-country tour with Louella Parsons.

Divorce happens in every town, but somehow people reserve a special feeling for it when it happens in our town. When we have a domestic problem, we can't tackle it in any atmosphere of privacy. I have never discussed what happened, and I have no intention of doing so now.

The problem hurt our children most. Maureen was born in 1941 and Michael came to us in March of 1945 — closer than a son; he wasn't born unasked, we chose him

Fortunately Warner's put me to work in a picture called "John Loves Mary" with a newly arrived actress, Patricia Neal, Jack Carson, Wayne Morris and my comrade-in-arms, Eddie Arnold.

Warner's next told me I was going to England to play the comic "Yank" in "The Hasty Heart," another smash Broadway hit.

I was less than happy. I still wanted that outdoor epic. The studio knew it couldn't Shanghai me and drop me in England if my sulk persisted, so I was told in the friendliest way that the studio was looking for an outdoor property for me. Maybe they hadn't anticipated how helpful I was prepared to be. I had a story in mind, "Ghost Mountain" by Alan Le May. Twenty-four hours later, Steve Trilling called and said, "We've bought it," and I replied, "Send me the boat tickets.

Soviet's failure to honor pledges draws criticism

By HENRY GOTTLIEB Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Unit-ed States would welcome new agreements to bolster detente but the Soviet Union's failure to live up to ear-lier pledges is causing a roadblock, the chief U.S. delegate to the Helsinki review conference said Friday.

"In the current international climate not much in the way of new growth can be expected," former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell told the 35-nation conference, "but some spe-cific progress is surely possible, and my governmnt would welcome it." But we must be realistic about the prospects for forward movement," he said. "In today's world, in the shadow of Afghanistan, they are fragile."

His reference was to the 85,000 troops sent by the Soviet Union into Afghanistan last December to help crush Moslem rebels and oust President Hafizullah Amin. Babrak Karmal, a Marxist more in tune with Kremlin thinking, became president but most of the Soviet troops remain in Afghanistan.

The European Security Conference is being held to review compliance with human rights and economic accords signed in Helsinki, Finland in 1975 and work toward new agreements to strengthen the pact.

In previous speeches, Bell and other delegates have hit hard on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Discussions in later sessions are expected to focus on compliance with human rights agreements.

Bell reiterated the American view that new agreements have been made difficult to achieve because the Soviets have not complied with those already in force.

"We cannot expect within these cloistered walls to promise things we cannot fulfill outside these walls," Bell said. "The problem, as I see it, is removing roadblocks. The roadblocks are not so much substantive as they are an unwillingness to face up to the solemn commitments made" in Hel-

This was an apparent reference to assertions by the Soviet Union and its allies that the intervention in Afghanistan is an internal question and therefore not relevant to review of the Helsinki agreement.

Bell called this "a curious assertion in view of the fact that solemn international obligations - whether on human rights, or trade, or security cannot be deemed as merely internal affairs by virtue of the very fact they are part of international commit-

"We are asked why it should concern us when a proud and free nation is subjected to the shock of invasion and the tyranny of occupation as long as detente in Europe remains unaffected," he said.

Despite the roadblocks, Bell said, the United States would welcome progress on a range of specific problems. He said they included improved working conditions for businessmen, the right of emigration, family reunification and working conditions for

AUSTIN - Tony A. Martin, president of Midland National Bank, has been elected to the 15-member executive committee of the Texas Research League's board of directors.

Martin's nomination to the league's top leadership came here Friday at the 28th annual meeting of the citizen-supported organization which conducts studies of state and local government operations toward greater efficiency and economy.

Elected to one-year terms on the board of directors were Thomas C. Brown, Tom Brown, Inc.; Ray Herndon, vice president and general manager of Midessa Television Co.; and Charles Priddy, president, Magnatex Industries, Inc.

Remaining in office during 1981 for two-year terms are League Chairman Robert T. Present, board chairman and chief executive officer of Capital National Bank in Austin; Vice Chairman William Slick, senior vice president of Exxon Company, USA, Houston, and Treasurer William B. Frogue, vice president — southwest region for General Electric Company, Dallas.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising interest rates are forcing many people to reconsider buying homes. That situation has led to proposals for new kinds of mortgages, and the government wants your opinion

Industry wants simpler, cheaper, less resrictive clean air laws

WASHINGTON (AP) - The law that protects the country's air is too complicated, too costly and threatens to stymie urgently needed energy projects, according to an industry-financed study released Saturday.

In the opening salvo of what is expected to be the biggest environnental debate of 1981, the Business Roundtable, an association of 200 of the nation's top corporations, made public a $600,000 study attacking the Clean Air Act and urging Congress to make substantial changes when the legislation comes up for review next

The study says that Congress, when it first passed the act in 1970, relied on medical studies that are not "scientifically supportable.

The act's complicated regulations could be loosened — cutting indus-try's compliance costs in half in some cases — without jeopardizing public health, the study says.

"We believe that the way in which the law is currently administered conflicts with other important goals - the need to increase productivity levels, to create new jobs and to spur development of domestic energy sources," said James Evans, chairman of the Union Pacific Corp. and leader of the Roundtable's environmental task force.

The study is likely to get a friendly reception in the new administration since many of the criticisms echo campaign stands taken by Presidentelect Ronald Reagan.

Reagan blamed the Clean Air Act for closing steel plants and putting coal miners out of work. He pledged to appoint government regulators who understand coal and steel problems and said representatives from both industries would be invited to help rewrite the legislation.

Pernaps the most significant environmental change urged by the four-volume report is abandonment of the current law's requirement that health standards be set at levels that prevent even the most sensitive persons from suffering "adverse health

Congress leans toward free market for energy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Breeder reactors are making a comeback. Oil and gas price controls are on their way out. Drilling on federal lands and on the Outer Continental Shelf is in. And gasoline rationing? Don't even think about it.

That's how the energy legislation picture is shaping up as Presidentelect Ronald Reagan prepares to take office and Republicans get ready to take over the Senate in January.

The new, heavily conservative 97th Congress is likely to be far more energy production-oriented than its predecessor and far less sympathetic to legislation designed to force conservation

"We will tend toward those programs that recognize that the government doesn't produce energy and isn't a very good program director," said Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, who takes over from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., as chairman of the Senate Energy Committee in January. "We will reduce the controls. We will tend toward a freer mar-

Reagan is likely to have an easier time getting his energy bills through Congress than did President Carter. Some of Carter's major energy initiatives - including a proposed 50cent-a-gallon tax on excess gasoline consumption in 1977 and a trimmeddown 10-cent-a-gallon version in 1980 were overwhelmingly repudiated on Capitol Hill.

But the energy dilemmas that haunted Carter's four years will confront Ronald Reagan as well - many in the first year of his term.

One important reason is that the basic law governing petroleum prices and distribution and giving the presi- of the cause of the fire.

dent power to deal with energy shortages - the Energy Production and Conservation Act - expires in mid-

Without the law, the ability of a president to manage a serious oil and gasoline shortage would be sharply limited — just around the time that severe shortages stemming from the Iran-Iraq war might begin to develop, if that conflict persists.

And even though Reagan and Republican congressional candidates campaigned for deregulation, it is doubtful they would allow all controls

Many oil companies, for instance, would like to see some form of renewal of the rules for government allocation of fuel in a severe shortage. And small refining companies are sure to ask for some continuation of the controls that put them on a more competitive footing with the major companies in bidding for crude oil.

"The irony is that this antiregulatory crowd that is taking over may come to town and find it's the oil companies who are asking for protection," said a Democratic staff member of the Energy Committee who asked not to be identified.

Rent subsidy program's success changes minds

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

The idea of rental subsidy in Midland has offended some city leaders in the past. But the project was undertaken by the county in 1979, and there was nothing the city could do about

Today, the Section 8 rental subsidy program for existing housing has been in operation for one year and has spread to inside the city limits. During this period, city leaders have done a turn-around and decided to request federal funds, including the required Section 8 program on the applica-

The program falls under the auspices of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. When cities or counties apply for Community Development Block Grant money, they must include a housing project under Section 8. Basically, it supplies money to assist low income people with their rents.

When the county first decided to apply for federal funds from HUD. Betty Sheeler with the Midland Housing Association popped up and volunteered her time to start the program. But she never bargained for what she now has — a job that keeps her busy more than 40 hours a week on a yearly salary of $2,400.

In her year of work, Mrs. Sheeler also has discovered the forebodings of doom cast by city leaders in the past years over the expected outcome of the program have been for naught. Yes, she conceded, there have been occasional problems between tenant and landlord. But they have been the typical problems that arise whenever someone rents from another person.

CURRENTLY, 22 FAMILIES are living in decent, if marginal, housing and receiving assistance from the federal government in paying their rents. During the past year, 30 families have received assistance, she

Of this last total, 19 families have been receiving a salary, two are on Veterans Administration benefits, five on Aid to Families with Dependent Children and three are disabled. Average age of recipients was 37. And the category was broken down to show that 11 were Anglo, eight black and 10 Mexican-American.

For the 22 slots, she has received 265 applications, Mrs. Sheeler said. "There would have been more, but people were made aware at the beginning that the program was for the county. And I don't process applications unless I have reason to believe this person will qualify."

Under the program, the applicant's income must fall below a certain level and the size of the family is considered. If a person qualifies, he or she is charged with locating a rental unit that will qualify under the HUD guidelines of living conditions and rental price.

For example, Mrs. Sheeler pointed out that top rental price for an efficiency is $161; a one-bedroom unit. $196; two-bedroom, $231; three-bedroom, $267; and four-bedroom, $302. This also includes the price of utili-

SUBTRACTING UTILITIES from that rental price, the renter will pay a portion of his income for rent while the rest comes from HUD.

The positive aspects of the program are that it "makes it possible for people with limited incomes to be able to afford to live in decent housing in Midland," said Mrs. Sheeler, "And it encourages landlords to keep their property up in safe, sanitary condi-

There have been times when the landlord's rental property didn't meet HUD's regulations. "I've had landlords objecting loudly when I refused to approve it and the family pleading with me that they have no where else to go," she said.

Approving a unit sometimes is a marginal decision and improvements to be made are pointed out to the landlord, she said.

In some cases, the landlords wanted to get in the HUD program and made the necessary improvements immediately, according to the direc-

"Landlords know that we will pay for damages or rent if the tenant moves without notice," she explained. "The renter signs to take ment of Housing and Urban Development are good care of property and if they don't, they won't receive rental assistance for another unit later. This program also has been an encouragement for renters to take care of the housing — they need any assistance to be able to manage.'

THE RENTER SIGNS a one-year lease and in that time the landlord can't raise the rent, she said. However, the landlord isn't stuck with that price forever nor with that tenant. HUD raises its fair market rent prices each year, she said.

And there is a 30-day termination clause that can be written into the contract in case there is a clash between the two parties. Mrs. Sheeler knows of one instance in Midland where the clause was needed. The tenant was moved to another rental subsidy unit, the landlord-got a new HUD tenant and "everything has been harmonious."

Section 8 also has proven a boon to people buying mobile homes in that they can get their space rent paid by HUD, said Mrs. Sheeler.

Although she has more applications else." than can be filled, Mrs. Sheeler has noticed a trait among the applicants: "People who come in are hesitant;

Discussing rental property under the Section 8 rental subsidy program of the Depart-

they're not sure what will be required of them

And then there are the people who need the assistance for their families, but don't want to take it.

Mrs. Sheeler recalled the situation of a man whose family numbered eight. He worked 10 hours a day at two jobs. It was his landlord who called Mrs. Sheeler and recommended the family for rental assistance.

The man qualified, said Mrs. Sheeler. But he didn't want to take

"I TOLD HIM to think of it as a tax break," she said. "We all sit around getting oil depletion allowances and tax breaks on our houses and we don't think anything about it."

The man finally decided to go with the HUD program "because he owed it to his family."

The applicants are qualified on a first-come, first-served basis, and Mrs. Sheeler said this works better than having to make a decision of 'who deserves it more than someone

There's the example of the disabled man who gets $238 a month on disabled pay. Before HUD, he was paying

$182 of that income for rent; now he pays $31. There's the five women, all with small children and receiving AFDC. Two women work at the highest paid jobs for which they are qualified, but with child care and housing, they couldn't make ends

There's another woman, Mrs. Sheeler continued, who worked all her early years for a church. Suffering from diabetes, she has lost one leg and may lose toes on her remaining foot. She was about to be evicted when her landlord agreed to go on the HUD program and keep the tenant.

What the city will put into its application for federal funds from HUD under Section 8 isn't clear yet. Mrs. Sheeler said she doesn't see the city putting in the same program as the county, unless they combine forces.

SECTION 8 OF HUD includes funding construction of new housing to be used for rental subsidy. But the director expressed some doubt about it. "I feel the Section 8 existing program is well-designed. And it (new construction) depends on how well it's administered.

Working on Section 8 from all angles — from taking the applications to reviewing the people, from inspecting the rental units to paying the rents - has taken a lot of time, but has ence with the program. With larger projects, there usually is one person to handle each function, given Mrs. Sheeler all-around experi-

"I've been here eight hours a day and many weekends," she said of her time spent with the program. "Many people can't come down to the office during working hours" so she meets them after hours or on weekends.

Recently, a woman volunteered some part-time help as a bookkeeper. And she has a fee accountant to keep track of the books.

As it now stands, Mrs. Sheeler feels she could handle 50 to 75 more tenants on the program without having to add more help

Amount of funding for this next year depends upon HUD and how much Congress gives that department. Midland County could receive the budgeted amount of $41,376 or it could receive more.

The line of applicants isn't going to shrink, in Mrs. Sheeler's opinion. "In the last several weeks, I've had as many as 10 people each day come by and ask me if I know of a place where they can live. We just don't have the places to rent.'

Four men charged in train crash

VIBO VALENTIA, Italy (AP) - Searchers cutting through the crumpled coaches of two wrecked passenger trains recovered six more bodies today, bringing to 26 the death toll in the bizarre chainreaction collision near this southern Italian town, police reported. Four railroad employees were arrested and charged with multiple manslaughter, police

More than 110 other people were injured Friday when two high-speed trains slammed into a string of boxcars that had been lost by a passing freight train. Nearby hospitals reported many of the injured were in grave condition.

Police say they believe there are more bodies in the twisted steel wreck-

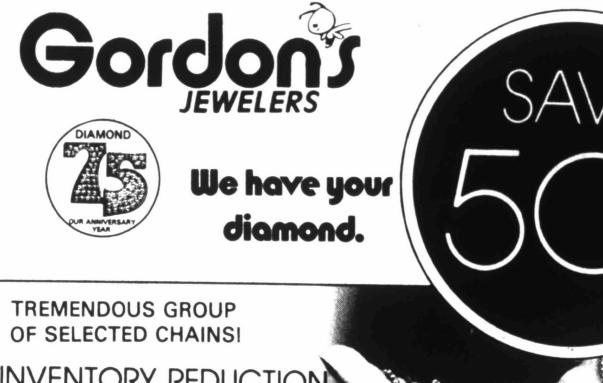

After a preliminary investigation, police on Saturday said they charged four people with multiple manslaughter - two engineers of the freight train and the stationmasters of the two stations the freight passed after losing 28 of the 41 boxcars.

They were taken into custody after being questioned by members of a mixed commission of national railroad and police officials to determine why the boxcars had been detached and why the stationmasters failed to check the number of boxcars when they passed their stations.

A heavy-duty crane was brought in today to lift a 120-ton locomotive which ended up on two passenger coaches, police said, adding that searchers were still using blow torches and crowbars in an effort to retrieve the victims.

The hospitals were packed throughout the night with screaming and crying families of the victims, police said.

It was the worst train wreck in Italy since 1978 when two express trains crashed near Bologna, killing 43 people.

WACO, Texas (AP) — The brawling Baylor Bears were wearing leather helmets the last time they shut out Texas and, until Saturday, they had never won 10 games in a season.

Rankin Red Devils mow down Fort Davis Indians, 48-0

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer

FORT STOCKTON -- Like a well oiled machine, the Rankin Red Devils mowed down the Fort Davis Indians, 48-0, in a Class A bi-district game Saturday afternoon in Fort Stockton's Panther Stadium.

Rankin took command early by scoring the first three times the Red Devils touched the ball.

Fort Stockton kicked off and Naldo Esparza got the Devil machine rolling by returning the kickoff 24 yards to the Rankin 49-yard line. Facing a fourth and three at the Indian 41, Rankin set the tone of the game.

Quarterback Bo Rose took the snap, pivoted, lost the handled to the pigskin, dropped it, picked it up and skirted left end for 12 yards and a first down on the Fort Davis 29-yard line. Five plays later Esparza bolted up the middle for seven yards and the score. Jesse Hernandez added the conversion, giving RHS a 7-0 lead with 8:04 left in the first period.

Bad luck struck the Indians on their first possession. Unable to move the ball, Frank Hartnett dropped back to punt. The snap from center was low and Hartnett dropped the ball. He picked it but was stopped on the Indian 16-yard line; a yard short of the first down.

Rankin immediately went to work. Terry Turner carried for four yards to the 12. Dennis Black burst up the middle for 10 more. Esparza sealed the drive by bulling over from two yards out for the TD. Hernandez missed the PAT but the dazed Indians trailed 13-0 with 5:33 left in the opening stanza.

On their second possession of the day, Fort Davis was forced to punt again. Harnett boomed at 52-yard punt that rolled dead at the Red Devil

Going to work offensively for the third time, the Red Devils marched 68 yards in 14 plays to notch their third TD of the afternoon. Turner scored the TD on a one-yard plunge. Rankin's bid for two came up short leaving the score at 19-0 with 10:43 left in Fort Davis finally got a break.

Forced to punt for the third time, Harnett drilled the ball to Kevin Smith at the Rankin 30. Smith, however, lost control of the pigskin and Joe Salcido recovered at the 31 for FDHS. The break went for naught seconds later when Turner picked off an errant Alonzon Adame pass at the 14.

Never one to waste an opporturnity, Rankin moved to its 42. There the Red Devils resorted to a little trickery to score again. Rose handed off to Turner, who started around right end but shuffled the ball off to Esparza coming from the wingback spot. The double reverse fooled the Indians completely and Esparza breezed 58 yards for yet another RHS score. Black added the two-point conversion as the margin swelled to 27-0 with 2: 34 left in

came storming back in the opening minutes of the second half. Taking the second half kickoff, the Indians picked up two quick first downs and were on the move. A motion penalty on a third and five play slowed the drive and an incomplete pass killed the only serious drive the Indians could muster in the second half at the Rankin wasn't through yet. A 47-yard drive opening the final quarter resulted in another Devil TD. Rose scored on a one-yard quarterback sneak. Hernandez nailed the PAT as RHS pushed the margin to 34-0.

Two more Rankin tallies were to be recorded. Following a 43-yard Hartnett punt, the Red Devils took over on their own 31. One play later Rankin was in the endzone. Again a little trickery did the Indians in. Halfback Black took the handoff from Rose and started to the right, stopped and arched a right-handed halfback pass into the waiting arms of Turner at midfield, who raced the final 50 yards to complete the 69-yard scoring play. Hernandez exercised his foot for another PAT lifting RHS to a 41-0 advantage with 4:57 to play.

The afternoon got worse for the Indians. Two plays after taking the kickoff, Hartnett coughed up ball up on the FHS 28 and Denny Latham was there for Rankin.

One play later, Turner was standing in the endzone for another Red Devil score. Esparza took a handoff from Rose, started left, stopped, spotted Turner streaking down the sidelines and hit him in full stride with a left-handed halfback pass for the score. Hernandez toed the the PAT giving the Red Devils a 48-0 advantage with 4:05 to play.

Black enjoyed a good day on the ground for Rankin by rushing for 127 vards on 22 carries. Turner added 59 yards on 16 carries. Turner was more valuable as a pass catcher with three receptions for 97 yards and two TDs. For the Indians, who were held to 48 yards rushing, Hartnett gained 32 yards on 14 carries.

Mustangs smash Arkansas, 31-7

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Sophomore wide receiver Mitchell Bennett sped 106 yards on three end-around plays, including one for a 55-yard touch-down, as Southern Methodist demo-lished Arkansas 31-7 Saturday in a Southwest Conference game.

Quarterback Mike Ford, seeing his first action in five games, directed the Mustang triumph after freshman Lance McIlhenny was injured in the first quarter.

Holiday Bowl-bound SMU led only 10-7 at the half, but Arkansas punter Steve Cox underthrew a receiver on a fake punt at his own 31 in the third quarter and the Mustangs quickly wrapped up the game. Craig James scored on a 3-yard run four plays later. James added a 22yard touchdown run later in the quarter after SMU took over on downs at the Arkansas 48, and SMU moved 43 yards in six plays after a fumble to score on Eric Dickerson's 4-yard

DICKERSON finished with 107 yards in 18 carries, James with 102 vards in 23 carries and Bennett with 106 yards in 3 carries, marking the first time in SMU history that three rushers have gained more than 100 yards.

Bennett went 21 yards on the end around to set up Eddie Garcia's 23yard field goal in the first quarter, exploded on the 55-yard burst in the second quarter and darted 30 yards to set up James' second touchdown.

Arkansas, headed for the Hall of Fame Bowl, got its score on quarterback Tom Jones' 10-yard pass to Gary Stiggers in the final minute of the first

SMU raised its record to 8-3, its best year since the 1966 SWC cahmpionship team went 8-2. Arkansas fell for the fourth time in five games, evening its record at 5-5 with a game left against Texas Tech next week.

In league play, SMU is 5-3 and Arkansas is 2-5.

Arkansas had the momentum after the late touchdown in the first half included in the first half brought them to within three points, but on fourth and seven at its own 31 elected to gamble in the first two ninutes of the third quarter.

Arkansas fumbled on its first offensive play of the game, letting SMU move in for an early score. Mustang cornerback Charles Bruton jarred Gary Anderson from the ball and defensive end Russ Washington recovered at the Arkansas 48.

McILHENNY, starting his fifth straight game, hit Clement Fox for 14 yards and Bennett went 21 yards on the first of his end-around plays. McIlhenny then carried for 10 yards to the 7 on a quarterback draw, but suffered a bronchial contusion on the tackle and had to be helped from the Bennett's 55-yard, end-around touchdown jaunt on the second play of the second quarter raised the lead to 10-0 but an SMU penalty on a punt let Arkansas back into the game.

Corker leads Hawks

BIG SPRING - Randy Corker

BIG SPRING — Randy Corker tossed in 28 points to lead the Howard College Hawks to an 83-65 win over the Western Oklahoma Pioneers.

Other double figure scorers for the Hawks were Kenneth Jones with 18 and Ron Akins 15. James Scott netted 16 to pace Western Oklahoma.

The victory lifted the Hawks to 5-2 for the season. Howard College's next action will be Monday night when the Hawks tangle with Cisco Junior College at Cisco. This will be a double-header night with the women tipping; off at 6 p.m. and the men to follow at 51 off at 6 p.m. and the men to follow at 5

New Mexico State ended the year with a 1-4-1 record in the MVC and 3-7-1 record overall.

Tulsa drove 58 yards in 10 plays for the winning score after NMSU freshman Mark Ceballos had given the Aggles a 20-15 lead with a 32-yard field goal, his second of the game.

Tigers roll over Tulane

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Quar-terback Alan Risher engineered three second-quarter touchdowns for an opportunistic LSU offense and Chris Williams led a stubborn defense as the Tigers rolled over archrival Tulane 24-7 in a college football game Saturday night.

Louisiana State University's three second-quarter touchdowns came on short drives of 22 yards, 8 yards and

Freshman walk-on kicker James Wagner booted a 20-yard field goal in the fourth quarter in a game that LSU had already won.

Split backfield lifts Aggies over TCU

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M broke a five-game losing streak by edging Texas Christian 13-10 in Southwest Conference football Saturday using what coach Tom Wilson said is the A&M offense of the future.

A&M's last victory was Oct. 4 and Wilson said Saturday, "It feels great to win a game - it's been a long time.

Wilson said A&M had changed its offense from the "I-formation" to a split backfield. "We are now a split back team and will be a split back team next year. It is better suited for our personnel...and I could just not see wasting these last two games when we could be preparing for the future," said Wilson.

A&M drove 99 yards in a steady drizzle, with Johnny Hector sprinting the final 32 yards for a touchdown in beating Texas Christian for the eighth

"From the beginning, I was kind of worried and nervous, with it being a new offense...but after the game started, I started to adjust to the blocking and picking the holes," Hector said.

On first down A&M quarterback David Beal threw 44 yards from his own end zone to halfback Earnest Jackson. After Beal kept the drive alive by catching his own bobbled snapback in the air at the TCU 32. Hector exploded on fourth down behind a block by center David Bandy to score. Hector, a 189 pound sophomore, gained a career high 191 yards on 37 carries in surpassing 100 yards rushing for a fourth consecutive game. A&M scored its winning points after Leandrew Brown intercepted a pass by TCU quarterback Steve Stamp and returned it 12 yards to the TCU 35. On fourth down David Hardy kicked a 21-yard field goal to clench the vic-

TCU scored its only touchdown with about three and a half minutes remaining in the fourth quarter when Stamp threw 34 yards to Phillip Epps in the end zone. Aggie linebacker Bobby Strogen also intercepted Stamp in the second half and had a key first half tackle that enabled the Aggies to gain possession of the ball and kick a field goal for a 3-3 halftime tie.

The victory raised A&M's season record to 3-7 and its SWC mark to 2-5. TCU has won only one game against conference foe Texas Tech and lost 10.

A&M finishes its season next week at Austin against Texas.

Talley also nailed A&M on its two and six yard lines with his high punts. The kick to the A&M one was the fourth time he has done that to opposing teams.

After one of his punts died on the A&M two, Hector popped for 28 yards to give A&M running room. On third and three, however, Beall's pitch to Hector was fumbled and Darrell Patterson recovered for TCU at the Aggie On first down Stamp threw to Epps for the score. A&M held the ball for the final 3: 24 with Hector and Beall driving the Aggies to the TCU 38. The TCU gamble that failed enabled A&M to tie the game 3-3 late in the second quarter. With fourth and one at the A&M 49, Strogen dropped J.C. Morris for a four-yard loss and A&M took over at the Texas Christian 47. Hector dashed 25 yards to the TCU 11, and after Beall threw three incomplete passes into the end zone, Hardy kicked a 28-yard field goal with 12 seconds left in the half. TCU scored first on Greg Porter's 36-yard field goal after Kenneth Bener blocked a 25-yard field goal attempt by Alan Smith of A&M. The blocked kick halted a 60-yard A&M drive that took 19 plays and consumed 9 minutes and 23 seconds.

Despite the drizzle, neither team had a turnover in the first half and the fumbled pitch-out was A&M's only miscue for the entire game.

Notre Dame survives, 24-10

Carter's 2-yard touchdown run capped a self-propelled 76-yard, tiebreaking drive in the third quarter Saturday to lead second-ranked and Sugar Bowl-bound Notre Dame to a 24-10 victory over Air Force.

Carter gained 71 of the 76 yards in 13 carries to finally put the Irish team simply tired out

Jim Stone's 7-yard touchdown run in the closing seconds of the third quarter gave the undefeated but once-tied Irish breathing room.

Brigham Young runs wild

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon threw for three touchdowns and scooted for another as 13th ranked Brigham Young crushed upstate rival Utah 56-6 Saturday, earning the Cougars their third straight Holiday Bowl berth.

The victory, Brigham Young's 10th straight after one loss, boosted the Cougars to their fifth straight Western Athletic Conference title. BYU will play Southern Methodist in the Dec. 19 bowl in San Diego.

McMahon, the nation's total offense and passing leader, connected on touchdown pass plays of 5, 11 and 76 yards. McMahon's first scoring toss broke the NCAA season touchdown pass record of 39 set by Dennis Shaw of San Diego State in 1969. McMahon also broke Shaw's record of being responsible for 45 touchdowns in a season Brigham Young scored on its first possession of the game on the first of two 1-yard scoring runs by Eric Lane. Utah then held BYU's potent offensive attack in check until late in the first half when McMahon scored on a 7-yard quarterback draw play. McMahon's 5-yard pass to Clay Brown with 1:47 remaining in the half made it 21-0 at halftime

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - Phil struggle until the smaller Air Force quarter after Johnny Jackson intercepted a Blair Kiel pass and returned 26 yards to the Irish 21.

The Irish clinched it on Stone's second touchdown of the game, a 2-yard run with 1:51 left to end an 80-yard

The Irish boosted their record to 9-0-1 and have a Dec. 6 date against Southern California before going on to the Sugar Bowl to meet top-ranked

Until Carter, who finished with 181 vards in 29 carries, put on his oneman show in the third quarter, the Irish had been hard-pressed. Carter carried five times before John Sweeney broke the spell with a 5-yard run. Carter then carried the final eight times to put the Irish ahead

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne may have sensed what was coming.

"When we went ahead 17-14, I took the offense aside and told them to get ready to score again. Oklahoma has the potential to score quickly," Osborne said Saturday.

Osborne's fourth-ranked Cornhuskers had gone in front 17-14 when quarterback Jeff Quinn plunged across from less than a yard out with 3:16 left to play. When the ensuing kickoff went through the end zone, Oklahoma was 80 yards away with a stiff breeze in its face.

But Osborne's words were prophetic when the ninth-ranked Sooners stormed the length of the field, capped by freshman Buster Rhymes' 1-yard run with 56 seconds remaining that lifted them to a dramatic 21-17

Rhymes set up the touchdown with a 43-yard gallop to the Nebraska 14 five plays earlier.

It was Oklahoma's ninth victory in the last 10 meetings with Nebraska in one of college football's great rivalries and gave the Sooners at least a tie for their eighth consecutive Big Eight championship with a 6-0 record. However, they are 8-2 overall to 9-2 for Nebraska, which finished its regular season Saturday.

The Sooners must defeat Oklahoma State next week to represent the Big Eight against Florida State in the Orange Bowl. That would send Nebraska to the Sun Bowl against Mississippi State.

"I'll tell you what, this may be the best one yet," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. "We don't have any jinx on Nebraska. I've never believed in that. But we came up here, everyone said we were the underdogs, and we just made so many big plays.

This is one of the great, great victories. Oh, boy, this is sweet. We played great defense the entire ballgame. We almost killed ourselves in the third quarter with two fumbles, but overall we kept the mistakes to a

The last-minute touchdown brought Oklahoma from behind for the second time in the game. The Sooners earlier overcame an 89-yard touchdown dash by Nebraska's Jarvis Redwine and erased a 10-0 deficit on 3-yard scoring runs by J.C. Watts and Chet Winters late in the second period.

Oklahoma moved crisply down the field for its winning score, covering the 80 yards in eight plays that used up two minutes and 20 seconds.

"We had three minutes left," Switzer said. "I thought we could score. Rhymes has played pretty good as a roooie. He has great speed. We got the ball to the right guy and he

A 2-yard run by Rhymes, a personal foul against Nebraska and a fumble by Stanley Wilson, which tackle Louis Oubre recovered for a 6-yard gain, put the ball on the Oklahoma 43. Rhymes then took a pitchout from

Watts, circled right end and made it to the Cornhusker 14 before Sammy Sims bumped him out of bounds.

Two running plays failed to gain but Watts fired a crucial 12-yard pass to Bobby Grayson at the 1 and two plays later Rhymes took another pitchout around the right side for the winning touchdown.

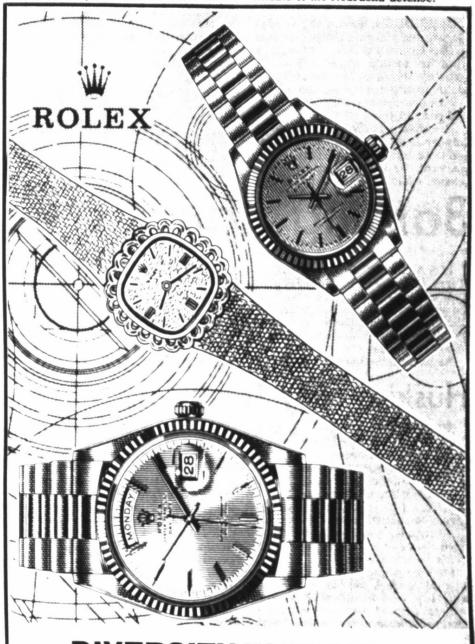

Oklahoma failed to take advantage of two horrible Nebraska third-period punts into a wind that swirled up to 30 miles an hour. The Sooners surrendered their 14-10 halftime lead four plays after Michael Keeling shanked a 14-yard punt out of bounds at the Oklahoma 17 with 4: 26 left.

Redwine, who rushed for 152 yards on 21 carries, lugged a pitchout to the 7. Two smashes by Andra Franklin, who carried 20 times for 122 yards, plus a personal foul penalty against Oklahoma, put the ball a foot from the goal line. Quinn then rammed over

Nebraska, favored by more than a touchdown, threatened to turn the game into a rout. Redwine sped 89 yards for a 7-0 lead with 6: 17 gone and Kevin Seibel kicked a 47-yard field goal with 43 seconds remaining in the opening period.

Redwine's touchdown run brought a shower of oranges from the partisan crowd of 76,322. But after yielding 126 yards to Redwine in six first-period carries, the Sooners shut him down with a mere 9 yards on six rushes in the second quarter.

The Sooners began their first comeback with 8: 23 left in the second period. They drove 68 yards in 10 plays. The march included a 13-yard run by Rhymes, a 13-yard pass from Watts to Steve Rhodes, and a 20-yard dash around left end by Wilson, who cut to the outside after bouncing off the middle of the Nebraska defense.

Hurricanes rip North Texas State

MIAMI (AP) — Dan Miller kicked a school-record four field goals and quarterback Jim Kelly threw for 182 yards and one touchdown Saturday as Miami, hoping for an invitation to the Peach Bowl, took a 26-8 college football victory from North Texas State.

It was the third victory in a row for the Hurricanes, 7-3, and an Orange Bowl crowd of 20,293 roared its approval when it was announced that Indiana and Stanford, also being considered for the Jan. 2 bowl game in Atlanta, were losing.

Miller, a junior from Clewiston, Fla., booted field goals of 42, 29, 41 and 42 yards, becoming the first kicker in Miami history to make more than three in one game. Sophomore quarterback Kelly, of East Brady, Pa., completed 12 of 20

passes, many of them to wide receiver Larry Brodsky, who made eight catches for 143 vards.

Brodsky, who had only 18 yards during the first half, grabbed a 37yard scoring strike from Kelly to cap a hot third quarter for Miami. The Hurricanes' other touchdown came on a 1-yard plunge by junior halfback Chris Hobbs in the first quarter.

Freshman quarterback Greg Carter scored the Mean Green's lone touchdown on a 1-yard sneak late in the final quarter and Whit Smith ran a two-point conversion.

In the first quarter, Kelly moved the Hurricanes 55 yards in nine plays, including a pair of 17-yard passes to sophomore halfback Mark Rush on their first possession, which was capped by Hobbs' touchdown dive.

Aguirre's big 24 sinks national champs, 86-80

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) -Mark Aguirre scored seven of his game-high 34 points to lead a decisive 13-3 burst late in the second half as DePaul whipped Louisville's defending national champions 86-80 in the second annual Hall of Fame Tipoff Basketball Classic Saturday.

The two Top Ten powers never were more than six points apart before the second-ranked Blue Demons broke the game open against the third-ranked Cardinals behind their superstar forward.

With the score tied 61-all at the 9: 23 mark of the second half, the Blue Demons moved into a 74-64 lead with their 5%-minute game-breaking burst. The closest the Cardinals could come to the Midwest powerhouse was

The victory in the 97th renewal of this series boosted Yale's overall record to 8-2, and conference mark to 6-1. Harvard, 7-3 overall and 4-3 in the league, could have tied for the title.

six points at the final buzzer. With the score tied following a basket by Louisville's Jerry Eaves, De-Paul rattled off seven straight points, with Aguirre hitting a field goal and a foul shot. Louisville then broke the spell with three quick points by Eaves, trimming DePaul's lead to 68-64 before the Blue Demons scored six more in a row, with Aguirre pitching in four.

Along with his team-high point total, Aguirre also chipped in with a team-leading 14 rebounds. The Cardinals were led by Derek Smith's 25 points and 13 rebounds. Smith almost singlehandedly kept the Cardinals in the game in the second half by scoring 18 points after intermission.

Aguirre scored 12 of points in the first half and Skip Dillard also had 12, helping DePaul mount a 41-37 lead at intermission. The teams then were never more than four points apart and there were six ties in the second half. before DePaul broke it open.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Quarterback Tom Flick fired three touchdown passes Saturday as the 16th ranked Washington Huskies overcame a 14-0 deficit late in the first half to beat Washington State 30-23.

Flick, a fifth-year senior from Bellevue, completed 20 of 32 passes for 311 yards for the Pacific-10 Conference champions. He was intercepted twice, both in the first half.

Flick teamed with Paul Skansi for a 22-yard scoring toss in the second quarter, combined with Aaron Williams for a 41-yard scoring pass in the third quarter and connected with

Anthony Allen for a 47-yard bomb in the fourth period. The Rose Bowl-bound Huskies finished the regular season with a 6-1 Pac-10 record, tops in the conference and a 9-2 overall mark. It was their fourth straight victory.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) - North Carolina's tailback due of Ames Lawrence and Kelvin Bryant combined for four touchdowns and each went over the 1,000-yard mark for the season as the 15th-ranked Tar Heels beat Duke 44-21 and won the Atlantic Coast Conference football title Satur-

Both backs rushed for more 100 yards against the Blue Devils. Lawrence rushed for 140 yards and one touchdown, becoming only the second man in NCAA history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in four consecutive seasons. Bryant had 199 yards and two touchdowns.

Lawrence went over the 1,000 mark with a 56-yard touchdown run. Bryant broke loose for 44 yards in the final period to pass the magic mark. Lawrence finishes the regular season with 1,117 and Bryant finishes with

The game had the looks of a rout early as North Carolina jumped out to 16-0 lead and then scored again early in the second to make it 23-0. But Duke came back to score before the half, and in the second half the Blue Devils scored twice more after North Carolina fumbles to pull within 23-21. But North Carolina's Steve Streater came up with a clutch interception and North Carolina drove 59 yards in 10 plays. Quarterback Rod Elkins then went over from 4 yards out to put the game out of reach, and North Carolina added two more touchdowns in the final period to wrap it up.

The tie gives East Texas State a final season record of 7-2-1. The conference mark of 4-2-1 leaves them in fourth place. Angelo State took second place in the conference with a 5-1-1 mark and ended their pass to Curtis Bennett. SIU's Paul Molla then kicked a 23-yard field goal to make it 7-3.

West Texas poured it on in the second quarter, with Patterson tossing a 46-yard scoring strike to Ricky Collingsworth and Clark kicking field goals of 40 and 32 yards. SIU fought back in the third quarter. Running back Walter Poole scored on an eight-yard touchdown run and quarterback Rich Johnson got another TD on an eight-yard keeper around right end. A 30-yard Molla field goal tied the score.

Neither team scored in the fourth quarter until Clark booted his gamewinning field goal.

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Running back Marcus Bonner scored his second touchdown of the day from the 1-yard line with 1:37 left in the game Saturday to give Texas A&I a 17-14 Lone Star Conference victory over Southwest Texas.

> Freshman quarter back Harold Hardaway, who had seen little action, engineered the game-winning drive which left Texas A&I with a 5-2 conference record and a 7-4 season

Southwest Texas won the conference crown despite the loss. The Bobcats finished with a 6-1 LSC mark and an 8-3 record for the year. The Javelinas finished third in the conference.

Bonner was the game's leading rusher with 143 yards in the win, the eighth straight for the Javelinas over Southwest Texas.

The Bruins complete their season against Oregon State next Sunday in the annual Mirage Bowl at Tokyo, Japan. Southern Cal, 4-2-1 in conference action and 7-2-1 for the season, winds up its campaign against second-ranked Notre Dame on Dec. 6.

The Bruins drove 80 yards in six plays for the winning touchdown, following a missed 29-yard field goal attempt by Eric Hipp of USC with 4:22 remaining. The Trojans had taken a 17-14 lead on Marcus Allen's 1-yard dive with 12:23 remaining. The score capped a 43-yard, 10-play drive in which Allen carried on all but one play.

Allen, the nation's leading rusher coming into the game, was held to 72 hard-earned yards in 37 carries.

Wolverines land amid Roses, 9-3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Michigan quarterback John Wangler said he called an audible that provided the 10th-ranked Wolverines with their decisive touchdown Saturday in a 9-3 victory over Ohio State for the Big Ten conference football title and a Rose Bowl berth.

'The touchdown was an automatic. I called it on the line of scrimmage. I saw them playing man-to-man coverage and Anthony (Carter) did a good job of getting open." Wangler, facing a third-and-11 situation at his own 13-yard line, found his sophomore wide receiver open just over the goal line in the third quar-

MICHIGAN Coach Bo Schemblecher says he is enjoying this championship more than any of the previous eight he has piled up in 12 seasons with the Wolverines.

"This team has come far beyond all our expectations,." he said. "They gave us up for dead earlier in the season, but we vowed to come back and win the Big Ten title. Our defense was unbelievable.

Bruce said the defeat keeps a fifthranked Ohio State from having what it considers a good year. "This is the game that makes the season, isn't it?" he asked reporters afterward. 'Our offense was sputtering. Our defense had to do a great job of containing them like they did.

The Wolverines, running their winning streak to eight games after a 1-2 start this season, will carry a 9-2 record against Pacific-10 champion Washington in the New Year's Day classic in Pasadena, Calif.

The Buckeyes wound up 9-2 and will face Penn State in the Flesta Bowl Dec. 26 in Tempe, Ariz.

An all-time Ohio Stadium crowd of 88.827 and millions more on regional television watched Wangler find Carter for the game's lone touchdown on a third-and-11 situation.

The Wolverines' quarterback found Carter just inside the end zone. The Michigan sophomore wide receiver jumped and caught the ball as Ohio State defensive back Bob Murphy cut in front of him, trying for an intercep-The bitter rivals traded first half Michigan's effort over a four-game stretch was the best for the school since the 1931 squad posted six straight shutouts.

Michigan survived a final minute Ohio State drive that took the ball to the Wolverines' 32. The Buckeyes had begun their last-ditch effort with 1:08 from their own 32. A 36-yard pass from Art Schlichter to Doug Donley gave the Buckeyes the ball deep in Michigan territory with 51 second re-

More waterfowl than usual could be in the state for the duck hunting season if current habitat and weather conditions in the midwestern states

The midwestern states are generally dry, critically dry in some areas, and the lack of water should made for a swift passage of ducks to Texas. Also, the early onset of harsh winter weather in the midwest could further speed the migration

If the situation continues, we could have more ducks down than normal, even though duck production has been low this year.

THE ARRIVING waterfowl will find excellent habitat conditions on the upper Texas coast with plenty of water in the marshes and abundant waste grain in the rice fields.

Similar conditions exist in the middle and lower coastal regions where rains came in time to fill the freshwater ponds and promote the growth of vegetation for waterfow! forage.

Reports from all along the coast indicate huntable numbers of ducks with more arriving every day.

The first portion of the duck season in the eastern half of the state is now open and will run through Nov. 30, with shooting hours from 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. The late segment of the split season will be Dec 13 through Jan 18, 1981

AS IN previous seasons, the daily bag limit for ducks is reached when the point value of the last bird taken added to the total value of all other ducks reaches or exceeds 100 points The season's point system is as fol lows 100 point ducks canvasbacks, 70 point ducks- mottled ducks, mallard hens, wood ducks, Mexican-like duck, redheads and hooded mergan sers, 10-point ducks gadwalls, pintails, teal, scaup, shovelers, widgeon and common mergansers; 20-point ducks all species and sexes not list

For the remainder of the state, the duck season is now open and will continue through Jan 31, 1981

The goose hunting picture looks somewhat bleak at the present. Goose season is now open in both halves of Texas, with the closing dates set for Jan. 18, 1981 in the east half of Texas, east of U.S. Highway 81 and Jan 31, 1981 for the other half of Texas.

THERE'S an ample goose population now wintering on the Texas coast, but nothing comparable to last year's population at this time. On the High Plains of Texas in corn country good numbers of geese are there, but water is in short supply. It's anyone's guess, how long the honkers will stay before moving on south. For sandhill crane hunters, the season in Zone A is now open and will continue through Jan. 31. Daily bag limits on sandhill or little brown is three per day with six in possesion. There's already a good population of cranes near Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge, located 20 miles south of Muleshoe. According to refuge officials' reports, there's already more than 15,000 birds on the refuge with more arriving daily.

TEXAS waterfowl hunters probably have the best duck, goose and crane hunting in the country. But not many hunters take advantage of this fine waterfowl sport. Reasons being are mostly due to lack of waterfowl hunting knowledge. Jumpshooting ducks and pass shooting geese and cranes are the most popular methods, but by far the least Decoying ducks, cranes and geese are normally productive and certainly exciting. And decoying waterfowl is usually simple

For ducks, it takes two to three dozen good, tough decoys, set in a tear drop pattern on a pond or lake to provide you with plenty of shooting. A duck call is helpful, but for those inexperienced callers, it is best not to call at all if you don't know what you

For cranes and geese, decoying this wise old bird is more difficult than decoving ducks, but more exciting. In white or snow goose country, it takes several hundred white diapers or rags spread out over grain stubble. And the hunter must be concealed perfectly For the darker geese species, gray rags must be set out in grain patches for successful shooting. And decoying cranes is just like decoving dark geese. The grav rag method will

NOW, YOU just can't say that place ing rags over mile stubble will attract geese or cranes or placing several dozen duck decoys will attract ducks They have to be placed perfectly. Wind plays an important factor in decoying any type of waterfowl. Cold fronts play havoc while trying to decoy waterfowl and the hunters must have some general knowledge of the waterfowl specie he's after

In future columns, we'll go into great detail on the exciting art of decoying. It's certainly a challenge. But once you've got the pattern down "pat" you'll begin to enjoy the waterfowl shooting

Another reason some hunters don't the clinic pursue waterfowl is because they don't think they like to eat ducks, cranes and geese. They are not dirty, do taste good and are very nutritious We'll exaimine some secret recipes in

Cautious coyote returns hunter's beckoning call

It didn't take the coyote long to answer this time--no more than five minutes.

This was the second coyote to respond to my call. But the first came in an hour earlier and had responded slowly. It had taken him nearly 20-minutes to get to where I was concealed. He came slowly and stopped often, obeying his cautious nature. But he did respond and he was bagged, and now this coyote came in a hurry.

I could have shot him if I had been more alert but I was fiddling with my camera when he burst through the mesquite brush off to my left. As it was I was caught flatfooted, he was still more than two-hundred yards away but he had my location pinpointed. I couldn't move without him seeing the

AS HE slowed and looked around I mouthed my Circe Call, completely covered it and began to blow a muffled series to try and coax him in closer. I put all the feeling into the wails and squalls that I could muster. I wanted that scream to sound as though an injured rabbit was uttering his last earthly sounds.

The notes had to give the coyote the certain feeling for the taking. He had to understand that the teeth sinking into this rabbit I was suppose to be belonged to a fox, smaller than him, and easy to frighten away. The crys had to be realistic.

As I was camouflaged, he could only make out the bush and dark movements in the brushy shadows. I wore a full camouflage suit and my hands and face were darkened with charcoal seen this coyote yet. Earlier, he had busted a big desert dog that I hadn't seen and the report his Winchester model 70, 22-250 set off when he fired had really startled me. Ruben was above me a few yards. His coyote had been slow responding too. It had taken 12 minutes to respond.

THE COYOTE was moving again. He set off on a slow trot directly for my concealed position. I stopped calling when the coyote was within 50-yards and he kept coming. I let my Winchester Model 12, 12 guage shotgun lay, in my lap.

We were hunting using our usual methods. When hunting with a partner, one carries a flat-shooting varmint rifle, the other a shotgun. With the combination we have a good chance whether we are hunting brushy or open country. Also, we can often get a 360-degree view of the country with two hunters.

We had decided upon these tactics after many predator calling trips into desert and brushy hill country such as we have in south-central and West Texas. These tactics have worked for us throughout Arizona, Utah, flatland, and even mountainous Montana. They have been successful in the country near Cisco and had worked this morning in the hilly country near Lake Spence.

Ruben had not seen this coyote that was coming to me. When the coyote was within 25-yards of me, Ruben shifted positions to stretch his stiff joints.

The covote didn't see Ruben move, but he heard Ruben's loud expletive when Ruben sat on a nearly concealed barrel cactus.

"Oh fudge " Ruben stated in a loud tone of voice. The startled coyote switched ends when he heard the noise that did not necessarily sound like 'oh fudge'. Before I could recover the coyote was out of range. I put my call away, Ruben swore away, and that was

Quail hunting off at Chaparral

Quail hunters on the Chaparral Wildlife Management area in Dimmit and LaSalle counties in South Texas had poor hunting during the early days of the season, according to Ernie Davis, area manager for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Some 512 huntes harvested 304 birds or an average of little over half a quail per person. Davis said it took an average of 11 hours of hunting for each bird to be bagged.

Last year the first weekend of hunting was much more productive with 835 hunters taking 3,822 quail or 4.6 birds per day of hunting.

Dove hunting proved to be just the opposite. This year 512 hunters bagged 1,638 doves, averaging more than three birds per hunter. Last year dove hunting on the Chaparral was

'The hurdles are a challenge to me," he said. "I think I have a world record within my grasp.

The hurdles event was Gist's specialty in school. A native of Brownfield, Texas, he moved to California and attended Anaheim High School and Fullerton Junior College.

Although he never went higher than 6-0 in th high jump during his school days, Gist found that he was ahead of everyone in the event in his 50s. His world records are at single age levels of 57 (5-2), 58 (5-2), 59 (5 0 3-4) and 60 (5-1). He also holds the mark for the 60-64 age groups (5 2 1-2).

GIST, a former city engineering inspector who is now retired, took the plunge back into track after quitting smoking nine years ago.

"Mentally, track's the same now as it was when I was in college," he said. "You're always trying to psych the other guy out. The main difference is practicing. Wh3n you were in school you could g3t out and train after classes. Now I have to kick myself to get out and work out by myself. It's

Meanwhile, Gist, who plans to compete for the rest of his life, is looking forward to Feb. 1.

"I'll turn 61," he said, "then I can get the 61 world high jump record held by a Norwegian. He's gone 5-2 and I've already gone 5 2 1-2. All I have to do is jump it again."

Motherless Mays capture Dallas

DR. J. and Magic, nine-point losses, atrocious center play, and enough turnovers to start a fried pie factory.

They've endured some of the highest prices in the National Basketball Association, a maddening parking scheme that funnels all the traffic into one lane, and 30-minute delays because nobody knew how to fix the basket at the correct height.

They've shown up 5,000 strong on presidential debate and election hts and jammed Reunion Arena to the rafters to watch Julius Erving and Magic Johnson put on a show.

The NBA's newest fans have taken their motherless calves, the worst team in your program, the Dallas Mavericks, to heart.

"I've been so impressed with the fans here," said General Manager Norm Sonju. "They understand what we're trying to do.

WHAT THE expansion Mavericks are attempting is to build for the future with young players and the hoarding of draft picks.

"In the expansion draft we could have taken more veteran players and it might have meant a few more wins," said Sonju. "But look at Cleve-land and New Orleans and Utah. All the veterans they took are gone.

"We're going to bite the bullet here. That means we're going to crawl, walk, then run. It's going to take patience and it's going to be tough. And I don't like to lose.

The Mavericks have beaten San Antonio, Seattle and Portland and lost 17 other games. We promised the fans intensity and bloody noses," said Sonju. In Texas, that's football talk, podnuh, and the fans love it.

The fans have taken to scrappy guard Geoff Huston, exciting forward-guard Jim Spanarkel and gritty power forward Tom LaGarde, who either gets a split lip or hyperventilates every game because he plays so hard.

DICK MOTTA, who two years ago directed the Washington Bullets to the title and is the second winningest active coach in the NBA, came to the Mays because he felt he was getting stale. He said he wanted to be able to teach again with a young team.

"I told the team the other night after we lost 110-102 in Los Angeles that they're getting to laugh at you now," Motta said. "But we're going to get some first-round draft picks in here and in a couple of years we'll be doing the damn laughing. "I just want to find out who can play and who can't this year.'

Owner Don Carter, Sonju and player personnel director Rick Sund have done an admirable job of collecting draft picks.

Dallas has traded players obtained in the dispersal draft to obtain Atlanta's No. 1 pick in 1983 and Cleveland's No. 1 picks in 1984 and 1986.

The Mavericks also have Phoenix's No. 2 pick in 1981 and Utah's No. 2 choice in 1983 and either 1984 or 1985. That gives Dallas 18 draft choices in the first two rounds over the next six years

Stormin' Norman — as Sund fondly calls his boss - has been talking with the Los Angeles Lakers about the possibility of trading unsigned 1980 No. 1 draft pick Kiki Vandeweghe to the Los Angeles Lakers. Dallas wants Cleveland's 1982 No. 1 pick which the Lakers possess but Los Angeles has offered $500,000 and its No. 1 and No. 2 choices in the 1981 draft. "We do not have a deal with the Lakers and I do not see it happening quickly," said Sonju.

The Mavericks have made their

No. 1 draft pick Vandeweghe refused to sign and No. 2 pick Roosevelt Bouie went to Italy. Of the 10 May college draft picks, only fifth-rounder Darrell Allums still is with the team.

"It's obvious we're short on talent," said Sund. "We've lead eight games at halftime then lost. In the NBA, the talent beginsto tell in the second half.'

The Dallas fans don't seem to mind.

"They cheered as loud for the Lakers when they came to town as they have for us," said Sund. "And we've yet to be booed.

Sonju even sent a telegram to Philadelphia's Erving for "playing hard in their exhibition game down here. It meant a lot to our fans. I just wanted to thank him.

The lowly Mavericks are having a honeymoon in a town used to the winning Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League

"Philadelphia was the worst team in NBA history with nine victories but they became one of the powers," said Sonju. "It's going to take patience from the fans. We're building just like the Cowboys did starting back in 1960 with draft choices. The fans down here understand that

The Dallas Mavericks haven't won many games in their maiden voyage in the NBA, but players like Abdul Jeelani (11) have captured the hearts of Dallas fans with this kind of action. (AP

Astros prepare to go to court

HOUSTON (AP) - While most major league baseball clubs are preparing for the winter meetings and trying to sign the best free agent talent available, the Houston Astros are preparing to go to court.

The limited partners in the Astros' ownership agreement, primarily the 20 partners based in Houston, voted last week to dissolve the partnership and move Monday to try and oust John McMullen as general partner.

McMullen, the strong-willed New York shipbuilder who purchased the team last year, angered the limited partners Oct.27 when he fired President and General Manager Tal Smith and replaced him with Al Rosen. After acquiring the 60 percent voting interest necessary to dissolve the partnership, the limited partners asked McMullen to step down. When he refused, Houston attorney Joe Jamail filed suit in federal court.

A hearing on the suit is scheduled Monday before U.S. District Judge

The dispute comes at a time when the Astros should be polishing their National League West Divison trophy and looking for ways to improve the team that came within one run of reaching the World Series.

But instead of seeking a power hitter to boost their on-field strength, the Astros are trying to bolster their ownership.

The attempted reorganization, however, has given Rosen little chance to chase any of the free agents. An example of the Astros' dilemna came over the weekend when free agent Dave Winfield was in town to attend a benefit. It would have been a good time for the Astros to seek Winfield's

But with whom would he negotiate?

McMullen, whose reign as general partner seems to be nearing an end? Rosen, whose status as president and general manager is unclear? Or Smith, who could be reinstated as president and general manager?

If the ownership problem is not settled soon, the Astros will face a similar situation at next month's winter meetings in Dallas.

Rosen also faces another challenge because his name was linked with a gambling scam at an Atlantic City, N.J. casino where he was a vice president before coming to the Astros.

He said he approved $2.5 million in bad credit but claimed he was not guilty of wrongdoing.

"He takes his lion for a walk "He hugs the lion, and the lion hugs him," says Freddy Brown, another of Duran's trainers.

A pet lion suits the image of the man who has used him. his fists to fight his way out of a Panama City slum to the lightweight and welterweight championships of the world. He is a jungle cat in the ring, a fighter who asks no quarter, gives none. "He's the most colorful fighter who ever lived," says the 73-year-old Brown, who has been in the fight game most of his life.

BUT DURAN has a pet rabbit, too, which is cuddly and cute — those kinds of adjectives, if you applied them to Duran, could get you a punch in the nose. "He's a unique individual," says Arcel, who has been around fighters for more than 50 years. "He is a - joke split peronality. Inside the ring, he'll break your back. But he's a very sensitive kid. 'I don't like to see clowns in the ring," said Duran.

"I like to see boxers. You don't win by being a clown. To fight and beat me, you have to come into the ring and fight me. He (Sugar Ray Leonard) goes into the ring and tries to imitate Ali. But an imitator is a loser

Pace stuns Gregory-Portland

By The Associated Press

The mystery of "Who shot J.R." may be solved, but at least a few South Texas schoolboy football fans are shaking their heads and asking 'Who shot Gregory-Portland?'

Was it the wet, rain-soaked field at Portland? Was it a fateful decision to go for a two-point conversion that backfired? Or perhaps was it the process of odds catching up with a team that has won 11 straight bi-district championships?

Whatever the reason, Brownsville Pace pulled off a major bi-district upset in Class 4A Friday night with a 7-6 victory over Gregory-Portland.

BATTLING A water-logged field as well as a determined Pace defense, Gregory-Portland scored its only touchdown in the first quarter on a 4-yard run by quarterback Keith George. But a pass attempt for a two-point conversion failed.

Pace finally scored in the third quarter on a 4-yard jaunt by quarterback Sal DiGrazia. But the underdogs didn't make the same mistake Gregory-Portland did. Roman Reed booted the extra point for the one-point margin that stood

The loss was the first for Gregory-Portland in bi-district play in the last dozen years.

In Class 5A, powerhouse Plano, who got to the playoffs only because Greenville was caught using an ineligible player during its first five games, trounced Longview, 23-7.

But San Antonio East Central, who moved to bi-district after South San Antonio was stripped of the district championship for using a player that lived outside its district, suffered a 35-7 shellacking at the hands of San Antonio Holmes

Houston Washington edged Houston Yates, 8-6, in what could be the thriller of the first playoff weekend. Leading 8-0 with 11 seconds left,

Artesia decoy baffles Raton

By The Associated Press

Artesia sophomore quarterback Scott Runyan, normally the star in the Bulldogs' wishbone offense, has proven he can play a supporting role with equal success.

Artesia made the long trek north Friday to play Raton in a Class AAA high school football playoff and from the start, it was apparent Raton's defense was keyed to stop Runyan.

Runyan, the catalyst for Artesia's offense this season, assumed the role of decoy and let his teammates foot-8, 185-pound fullback Israel Carrera and tailback Richard Chase, do the damage in the Bulldogs' 35-3

CARRERA ROLLED for 135 yards on 11 carries, including touchdown runs of 2 and 70 yards while Chase scored on a 32-yard run and on a 46-yard pass from Runyan.

After the game, Artesia Coach Mike Phmpps said Runyan did what a good wishbone quarterback is supposed to

"They were going to take Runyan out of our offense, so he read the defense welll and started handing the ball off to Carrera and Chase,' Phipps said. "He (Runyan) is such an unselfish player that we are just glad he is living in Artesia. Carrera and Chase lived in the

Raton secondary most of the night as the Bulldogs' offense totaled 346 vards, most of it on the ground. Runyan chipped in with 98 yards on 15 Artesia's defense also prevented

Raton fullback Billy Fanelli from scoring. The 200-pound Tiger running machine managed to pick up 134 yards on 25 carries and accounted for Raton's only points with a 32-yard field goal late in the game.

THE VICTORY sends Artesia into the semifinals next week against the winner of the Socorro-Shiprock quarterfinal game on Saturday.

In the two other AAA quarterfinal games, Bloomfield outslugged Portales 33-31 and Silver City eliminated Las Vegas Robertson, 34-12. Bloomfield will be at Silver City next week in that semifinal matchup Brothers Rick and Bob Allcorn combined for two touchdowns and quarterback Rich Gurley accounted for three more as Bloomfield ran its record to 10-1 for the year with the win over the defending state champion Rams. Bob Allcorn returned a Portales kickoff 82 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter and brother Rick scored the game winner with about three minutes left in the game on a 12-vard run. The two teams exchanged the lead throughout the game. Gurley ran for one touchdown and receiver Rex Higgins with TD passes of 15 and 5 yards.

Portales, which finished the season with a 7-4 overall mark, got a pair of touchdown passes from quarterback Eddie Poe to Greg Speck and Joe Loehr and two more touchdowns from halfback Randy Eakins. Bloomfield Coach Jim Cromartie indicated the offense is what will have

next week. "We feel we can score on anybody," said Cromartie.

Silver City, the runnerup last year to Portales, moved a step closer to another shot at the championship behind halfback Jerry Gerleve's three touchdowns and a tough defense that held Robertson's explosive offense in

The Colts had 347 total yards, with Gerleve coring from 6, 2 and 1 yard

Washington lined up in punt formation at its own 12-yard line. But kicker Michael Smith was tackled for a 5yard loss after trying to run.

YATES CASHED in as quarterback Thomas Ledet lofted a touchdown pass to Keith Barnett in the right corner of the end$zone as time ran

But the trio of Glen Olive, Timothy Riggs and Joe Jackson sacked Ledet on the two-point conversion try to preserve the victory.

In other 5A playoffs, Alice mashed McAllen, 26-7; Amarillo scored its first bi-district win since 1957 by edging Plainview, 10-9; Dallas South Oak Cliff bombed Dallas Carter, 38-0; El Paso Bel Air blanked El Paso Coronado, 28-0; and Fort Worth Richland beat Fort Worth Wyatt, 31-20.

Houston Stratford won over Houston Madison, 27-7; San Antonio Churchill outgunned San Antonio Houston. 21-7; and Stafford Dulles ambushed Austin LBJ, 15-9.

In 4A contests, Bay City crushed Kerrville Tivy, 43-8; Brownwood whipped Wichita Falls Hirschi, 27-7; Georgetown romped by Waco Connally, 27-12; Huntsville shot down Beaumont Hebert, 16-8; Lubbock Estacado edged Andrews, 14-7; and Paris defeated Mount Pleasant, 28-14. Class 3A Allen ended four frustrating years with a 48-20 win over Cedar Hill. The Eagles had posted a 37-3 record, but lost three times in a row to longtime powerhouse Wylie. Allen beat Wylie, 12-7, in this year's show-downed Marble Falls, 20-6; Childress edged Slaton, 22-15; Decatur popped Jacksboro, 28-6; Edna outplayed Refugio, 13-12; Hamshire-Fannett whipped Woodville, 16-7; and Littlefield creamed Perryton, 35-6.

PITTSBURG whitewashed DeKalb, 21-0; Port Isabel won over Hebbronville, 7-2; San Antonio Randolph brushed Hondo, 14-9; Stamford overran Sonora, 37-15; Van Vleck beat Elgin, 20-7; Waller clipped Barbers Hill, 7-3; and West embarrassed Rusk. 49-7

Van and Gilmer tied 7-7, but Van earned a quarterfinal berth on penetrations

In 2A, Big Sandy blasted New Diana, 28-6; Boyd beat Whitewright, 34-27. Charlotte defeated Sabinal 22-10; Garrison blanked Waskom, 28-0; Mart edged Groveton, 10-7; Mason eliminated Eastland, 29-12; and Moody whipped Clifton, 17-6.

Panhandle rolled to a 48-0 win over Clarendon; Pilot Point downed Cooper, 14-3; Plains shut out McCamey, 21-0; Shallowater slapped Springlake-Earth, 9-6; Shiner outran Rogers, 29-20; Tidehaven beat Deweyville, 14-6; and Woodsboro edged Poth, 13-12.

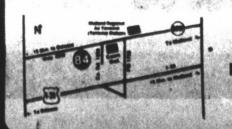

Forney and Rotan advanced to the next playoff round on penetrations. Forney tied Troup, 27-27, while Rotan played Quanah to a 14-14 deadlock.

In Class A, Colmesneil whitewashed Italy, 21-0; Falls City bombed Bruceville-Eddy; 48-7; Klondike beat Knox City, 20-12; Meridian edged Santa Anna, 22-21; Valley crushed Booker, 34-7; and Valley View rolled to a 59-26

Running a kennel is very fulfilling

By BILL MODISETT

Ann Brickner isn't an ordinary dog-lover.

For one thing, she's a former secondary mathematics teacher who happens to hold her doctorate. For another, she used to conduct research on people with reading disabilities for a couple of prestigious publishing firms.

But after 11 or 12 years in the publishing industry, she decided to forego her lucrative and promising career for a greater love — dogs

Ms. Prickner was employed about nine years with McGraw-Hill, a well-known publishing firm. And she was with SRA, the publishing subsidiary of IBM, for about three years.

Those jobs took the Tulsa, Okla., native throughout the nation and to some interesting cities - Chicago, New York and Los Angeles, just to name a few.

Embargo, draft sign-up defended

Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd urged President-elect Ronald Reagan on Saturday to keep intact draft registration and the Soviet grain embargo two Carter administration policies heatedly attacked by candidate Rea-

Both policies have been successful in substance and as symbols of national resolve, said Byrd, D-W.Va.

And he said that revocation by Reagan "would be inconsistent with his expressed views on a strong defense and on a strong and firm foreign Speaking at his weekly news conference, Byrd also said he hoped Reagan 'would abandon the fiscal radicalism" of his plans for 10 percent across-the-board tax cuts in each of the next three years.

Byrd said such a plan would cause worse inflation and would mainly help the rich while throwing "minimal crumbs to the poor.'

Reagan has vowed to end draft registration, which President Carter ordered last summer. But Byrd said he hoped the president-elect "would have second thoughts.

Byrd said that the registration pro-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate gram would be vital in a sudden national emergency, that it is "very important" in showing national resolve to allies as well as the Soviet Union and that "it has strong support among the American people as evidenced by the high percentage of registrants" since it was ordered.

In farm-state campaigning, Reagan spoke harshly against the grain embargo, which Carter ordered in retaliation for the Soviet military incursion into Afghanistan.

But Byrd said the embargo on grain sales has hurt the Soviet Union, and backing away now - with Soviet troops still entrenched in Afghanistan — "would be a sign of weakness." "I don't think we should feed the Soviets while they kill Afghans," he

Byrd disputed Reagan's contention that American farmers have had to pay a great price because of the embargo, saying the price of grain is up and the lost Soviet sales have been made up by exports to other nations. On another matter, Byrd said Reagan "needs to be reminded of his promises" not to harm legitimate participants in government entitlement programs as he tries to fulfill other promises to cut federal spend-

High-powered game under way

By OWEN ULLMANN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A high-powered game is being played in Washington with the change in the White House. It might be called Cabinet Coy-

The rules are simple. If you're reported to be under serious consideration for a Cabinet job, you say you're not interested. Or, that you're unlikely to accept. Or, that you can't afford to give up a six-figure salary in private business for a paltry $69,630 a year.

But be careful not to rule yourself out. President-elect Ronald Reagan might take you at your word as he makes his Cabinet choices.

Take William Clark, Reagan's first chief of staff in the California statehouse and later a Reagan appointee to the state's Supreme Court. A source on Reagan's transition team reports that Clark emerged as a strong contender for attorney general this past week after letting it be known he was interested in the Justice Department post.

Clark confirmed he was under consideration for the job but added in a carefully worded statement, "I have expressed no interest in the position ... I am going to do a job here, and I have no other terests at this time."

Clark refused to say if his interests might

William Casey, a close Reagan adviser who chairs the president-elect's transition office, wants very to be CIA director and is Reagan's likely choice for the job, several sources say. Casey's reply to inquiring reporters: "I'm going to look after my law practice for a few days."

secretary in the Ford administration, is the front-runner for his old job, according to just about everyone but Simon, who says he hasn't been offered the position or talked with Reagan about it.

"I've never had a desire to return to Washington" and won't in January, "if I've got anything to do about it," he said in an interview.

But when he was asked if he would refuse the treasury post if offered, he replied, "I've never said that."

Close associates say Simon, now a wealthy investment consultant, is genuinely reluctant to return to his former government job. He is not alone. Lots of people listed as prime candidates for Cabinet posts are said to be similarly reluctant. Most of them are close Reagan advisers and former government officials.

There's former Treasury Secretary George Shultz, now a business executive, who doesn't want to head the State Department; former budget director Caspar Weinberger, a Shultz associate, who doesn't want to return to his old post; Reagan's personal attorney, William French Smith, who some say is healtant to account attorney general.

But then again, it's the reluctant people that Reagan wants, the president-elect said two weeks ago, the kind of people "who don't want a government job but who would be willing to sacriment job but who would be willing to sacriment." fice and step down to serve their country."

If asked to serve, how many could turn down a

There's also a group of Cabinet prospects who are said to be campaigning fervently for posts in private while all along proclaiming no burning interest or refusing comment.

Congressional sources said retiring Sen. Richard Schweicker of Pennsylvania, who met with Reagan this past week, arranged the session to ask to be named secretary of health and human services. Schweicker's press secretary said in response: "We haven't put ourselves in the running and we haven't taken ourselves out of the running." Sen. John Tower of Texas is reported to be comoting himself for secretary of defense.

LULAC wants Reagan to name Fernandez to administration post

Latin American Citizens called Friday for President-elect Ronald Reagan to include in his administration Benjamin Fernandez, a Hispanic who unsuccessfully sought the Republican presidential nomi-

Ruben Bonilla, president of the social activist organization, said Fernandez should be appointed secretary of commerce or, if all Cabinet positions already have been determined, Cabinet-level trade ambassador

"Fernandez is, of course, an independent businessman who will bring to the Commerce Department a high degree of knowledge with the business world," Bonilla said by phone from Corpus Christi, Texas. "He has worked nationally and internationally in the world of commerce." Bonilla said telegrams were sent to Reagan and to two high ranking Texans on the transition team -Anne Armstrong, former ambassador to Great Britain, and James A. Baker III, who will become White House chief of staff.

Fernandez, a millionaire who lives in Los Angeles, made his fortune setting up banks and savings and loans associations for Hispanics. During his campaign, he said the private sector instead of the federal government should be the source of solutions to economic problems.

"Fernandez, we believe, has proven his compe tence and his qualifications not only as a Hispanic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The League of United but as a national figure," Bonilla said. "He has paid his dues to the Republican Party by virtue of a very arduous campaign.

The LULAC chief said appointing a Hispanic to a Cabinet-level position would prove Republicans are willing to broaden their appeal to all sections of the nation as well as reassure Hispanics who are apprehensive about the new party in power.

Bonilla said he had not talked yet to Melvin Bradley, Reagan's black aide helping to hire minori-

"Let's make it very clear that the Hispanic community must be contacted and must have direct liason," he said. "I do not think there should be a buffer between the Hispanic community and the highest levels.'

In an interview earlier this week, Bradley said he considered looking for jobs for Hispanics to be one of his duties.

Concering competition among minorities, especially between blacks and Hispanics, Bradley said, I'm familiar with that, having worked in California. It's a difficult and genuine problem. But my feeling is that there's enough there for everybody. 'If you're going to work with minorities, one has to be fair. You have to encourage the idea that there is enough for everyone," Bradley said. He added, smiling, "That is not always successful."

Bullet-proofing done in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - For $50,000, Safeguard Security Services, Inc., can take a Mercedes Benz or other automobile and make it into a virtual rolling fortress which will resist 7.62 NATO ammunition, grenades, bombs and dynamite. On some cars, the firm also installs hidden gun ports in the door panels, reflectors that release tear gas, smoke screens, remote control bomb scans, a steel rim inside the tires that enable the car to travel although its tires are shot, and souped-up engines for fast getaways.

SSS recently completed a fleet of six new Mercedes that were shipped to an unidentified Latin American country. The firm also received a recent visit from an unidentified rich customer who flew to San Antonio in a Lear Jet to make an order, and has been contacted by a U.S. government agency to bulletproof some cars for use overseas.

SSS grew out of a former bullet-proofing operation that went bankrupt earlier this year and was purchased by Sigmor Corp., the nation's largest independent retailer of gasoline. One of its top priorities is to protect the identity of its customers and to disguise the armored vehicles so only an expert can tell them from a factory model.

Now SSS officials report they are bullet-proofing an average five cars a month, noting consididerable interest from Mideast potentates and wealthy South American government officials and industrialists, especially since former Nicaragua President Anastasio Somoza was ambushed and killed in Paraguay earlier this year.

"Corporate executives, heads of state, industrialists, check your pulse the next time you're attacked by terrorists," says an advertisement the con says it will be placing in periodicals soon. "It might last another 15 seconds. Or, it might last a normal lifetime if you're safeguarded with the ballistic material illustrated above. "It's a shame this type of service is even needed," says Tom Turner Jr., Sigmor owner who said he got into the security business "through the back door." The bullet-proofing business was started three years ago by Richard Medlin, who also provided anti-terrorist training to certain clients. A heavily armored shooting range in a warehouse where Medlin's clients practiced firing at humanshaped targets now is used to demonstrate the toughness of the company's lightweight ballistic material that will withstand a point-blank shot from a .357 Magnum weapon. Turner said his firm discontinued the anti-terrorist training because it was the least profitable part of the operation and also because, "we don't get into the 007 stuff any more than necessary."

Turner said his gasoline firm bought the security business from a bank because the security business has invented bullet-proof "kiosks." Kiosks are security glass-enclosed cashier's cages which Sigmor is installing at its service stations to protect person-

The kiosks cost about $10,500 each, but Turner said, "we weren't worried about the cost. The way we looked at it, it would pay for itself by getting good personnel and keeping them.

Since installing the kiosks, Turner said robbers, 'don't have a chance" at his stations and several have turned tail and run when they discovered personnel inside the bullet-proof cages were immune

One robber in Houston fired a bullet at one of of the cages and it never penentrated further than the outer layer of glass, according to Rod Marriott, a ballistics materials expert who developed the light-weight bullet-proof material.

Marriott said other gasoline and grocery chains, banks, foreign embassies and individuals were beginning to show an interest in the kiosks as a method to defeat robbery attempts and give peace of mind to

The firm also developed a thick armored glass that can replace bars in jails and prisons. Marriott exhibited a piece that withstood an hour-long beating with a 16-pound sledge hammer and a seven-pound axe at the Southwest Research Institute.

Ron Kimball, the SSS employee in charge of the vehicle bullet-proofing operation, said the material developed by Marriott adds only 700 to 900 pounds of weight to an automobile, whereas the steel bulletproofing used in the president's limousine weights up to 2,800 pounds and affords no more protection.

Kimball said about 5 percent of the firm's sales were armored vehicles in delivered in Texas, New York and California, mostly for companies that carry large amounts of money. The other 95 percent of the business is done in foreign countries, he said, and some foreigners have their cars bullet-proofed as a "status symbol."

Col. Sanders improving

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Col. Harland Sanders' pneumonia is improving but he still was listed in serious condition Friday at a local hospital, according to a Kentucky Fried Chicken spokesman.

Spokesman John Cox said Sanders, the founder of Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants, was "more than holding his own in his fight against pneu-

He said doctors reported that Sanders was eating better and his fever was down.

Sanders, 90, has been improving since last week when he contracted pneumonia while in the hospital, where he was being treated for kidney and bladder

Last Friday, Cox said Sanders' prognosis was day he was taken off the critical list and his idney infection cleared. He developed a low-grade fever on Thursday.

A witness said Millie Swyers filmed the fatal parachute jump by her husband, Kenneth, 33, but police spokesman Sgt. James Prost later said he could not confirm that.

Witnesses said Swyers nearly succeeded in landing at the apex of the monument before a gust of wind blew him down the north leg of the arch, which dominates the city's Mississippi riverfront.

"His chute collapsed, said Prost, "and he apparently didn't fall with enough speed to get his reserve chute out."

Swyers, an employee of the Westinghouse Electric Co. plant in St. Louis County, had been parachuting

Police said Swyers told his wife only that he was The man's wife witnessed the accident from below going to come down "near the arch." But members the stainless steel arch, which celebrates the na- of area parachute clubs said that Swyers was a skilled jumper and easily could have avoided the monument if he had wanted to. A witness, Peter Loehr of Ohio, said Swyers apparently aimed for the peak of the arch, where there is a trap door leading to the interior.

"He landed very well," said Loehr. "I guess he had no footing. He just slid down, fast. Where he landed was out of our field of vision, but I knew he was dead.'

The arch, which is 75 feet taller than the Washing ton Monument, has been the target of many thrillseekers since the exterior was completed in October

"I was driving down the highway when I saw the chute coming down," said James Spears of St. Louis. "He landed on top and then just slid down the side

Oil blown away from shore

ROCKLAND, Maine (AP) - Wind shifted Saturday and pushed an estimated 60,000 gallons of home heating oil and gasoline, spilled from an oil tanker which ripped its hull on an undersea ledge, away from shore, Coast Guard and state environmental officials said Saturday. Authorities had warned Friday that some of the cargo leaking from the Christian F. Reinauer would float ashore during the night, and advised fishermen to pull in their nets, traps and other

But on Saturday, heavy wind was reported breaking up the floating fuel and pushing it out to sea, and authorities said the tanker appeared to have stopped leaking.

The tanker was bound for Bangor when it struck the ledge early Friday, opening an 8-foot gash in its hull and leaking gasoline and heating oil into Penobscot Bay.

The Coast Guard said a barge began removing more of the tanker's cargo Saturday afternoon and had taken off about 16,000 gallons by 5 p.m. Barges removed about 40,000 gallons Friday night, but the operation was dealayed Saturday morning because of high seas and strong winds.

Richard Baker of the state Department of Environmental Protection said he did not believe there would be much damage

Baker said a floating oil containment boom had been set up around a lobster pound near Tenants Harbor, and other booms were ready if needed.

The Boston-based tanker was moved on its own power from a spot near White's Head Island to a calmer area about six miles east of Camden, near the southern tip of Islesboro island, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The Boston Fuel Corp. of Massachusetts, owner of the tanker, hired four commercial divers to examine the tanker's hull and to try to apply temporary patches. Coast Guard divers also were on

Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Richard Griggs said Saturday that investigators had not yet determined why the tanker strayed

The Houston Chronicle in a copyright story reported from 12 to 30 Explorer Scouts and CAP cadets have been instructed in guerrilla warfare tactics by Joe Bogart, a Ku Klux Klan adviser, and convicted

Several parents have said their sons told them the two men had made frequent racial slurs about blacks and had given frequent lectures on guerrilla warfare, the Chronicle said However, Bryant contends, "We're not teaching these boys how to snipe. They only shoot a few rounds, not proficiently by any means. Bryant was convicted in Memphis last January of illegal sale of automatic weapons and under terms of his probated sentence is not permitted to handle guns, said probation officer Rick Espinosa.

Bogart, who joined the KKK two years ago, recalled that during his four years of service in the Marine Corps he choked other Marines into unconsciousness during boot camp training

However, he added, "We didn't have the boys choke each other, we just showed them how to do Paramilitary training is conducted by the two men at Camp Puller near Anahauc in Chambers County. The camp is operated by Robert J. Sisente, of Deer Park, and Louis Beam, of Pasadena, Grand Dragon of the Texas KKK. Sisente has denied any affiliation with the Klan. CAP Maj. Paul Renfro said he relieved Sisente from his duties as leader of the La Porte, Texas, CAP squadron Oct. 20 after learing about the paramilitary training of the Scouts and CAP cadets. Bryant asked Bogart the same day to form the

Some youths participaing in the Explorers program said Bryant urged them to recruit other students from their schools

"He wanted us to recruit more people, especially the people in ROTC courses, because they tended to more gung-ho, anything to with the military," said Joseph Walters, 17, a Clear Creek High School junior in nearby League City.

Walters said he dropped out of the program after the first meeting when Bryant said he was going to teach the troop how to "hijack an airplane.

Youths say they should be able to keep money

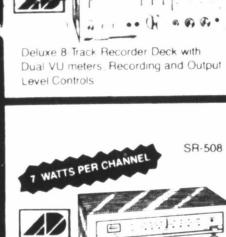

HOUSTON (AP) - Three Houston teen-agers who found a hidden cache of drugs and $22,400 cash said Saturday they should be allowed to keep the money unless the state proves it came from the sale of illegal drugs.

Assistant District Attorney Paul Mewis, however, argued the money should be declared state property and used to fight crime.

The three unidentified youths were rabbit hunting in northwest Harris County on Sept. 29, when they found human footprints leading into a barn. The trio followed the footprints inside to an old freezer, where they found a new, locked suitcase.

Inside the case was the money, some marijuana, cocaine, Valium and methoqualone pills.

From "A," as in apples and automobiles, to "W," as in wine and wallpaper, the Consumer Price Index measures the ups and downs of the U.S. economy. But the fractional change that hits the headlines every month tells only part of the story.

The index involves thousands of prices for hundreds of items in dozens of cities across the country

It includes products whose prices really haven't changed - the cost of a television set, for example, has risen only 5 percent since the index base period of 1967. And it includes those items whose prices have soared - fuel oil is almost 500 percent more expensive today than it was 13 years ago. The Consumer Price Index does not really measure the cost of living. It doesn't include income taxes, for example. It doesn't take into account the fact that people change their spending habits to adapt to price increases and decreases. And critics claim it overemphasizes housing

A rise in the Consumer Price Index does not necessarily mean your spending will go up directly or indirectly. If you are not buying a car, for example, an increase in automobile prices won't affect you although it will help boost the index. If you live in Kansas City, you won't be bothered by a higher New York City transit fare, but the index will change ever so slightly. The incomes of millions of Americans, however, are directly linked Consumer Price Index. Labor contracts include clauses known as "cost-of-living adjustments" - sometimes called "COLAs" - which provide for wage increases when the rate of inflation hits a specific level. Social Security payments and many other government benefits also are tied to the

Today's index dates back to a labor agreement in the shipbuilding industry during World War I. The original index was based on the spending of urban wage earners and clerical workers, but it has been expanded to cover all urban consumers, including professionals, the unemployed and retired people.

The Consumer Price Index was revised in the late 1970s to reflect changing spending patterns. The old index reflected spending habits in 1961-62; items that appeared on the market after that were not included. The revised index, issued in December 1977, reflects spending habits in 1972-73. Categories were broadened to make it easier to include new products. The old index, for example, had separate listings for men's heavyweight slacks, men's lightweight slacks and men's work trousers. The revised version has a single line for men's dungarees, jeans and trou-

Wright creates sculpture 'by feel'

By GEORGIA TEMPLE Staff Writer

They were running late. The invitation read from 5 to 9 p.m. and, although it was after 5, the people weren't ready.

It was important that each individual piece was set in the display cases as attractively as possible. As they picked up the necklaces, rings, bracelets and earrings one at a time out of the boxes on the floor and placed them in the cases, the workers' backs were turned to the door.

Periodically, one of the group would half turn around and say, "Hope this esn't inconvenience you too much. We're just running late." Then, the person would smile and, without wasting a moment, be back at work.

Working together with a minimum of talking the four managed to accomplish in less than 30 minutes what normally took more than an hour. They were ready almost before the first guests arrived.

Once it looked as if things were under control, Donald Wright, sculptor and creator of the jewelry and sculptures on display, talked about his work

Wright, who now lives in Santa Fe, N.M., where his works are displayed for sale at The Selective Eye, likes "to imagine these pieces as miniature chunks of architecture, around which you can walk and sit, but which serve no ordinarily useful purpose." His works are "made to be felt" because he makes them by feel. "Some molds have been sitting around for years" at his studio and

Lost French painting is found

CLEVELAND (AP) - Art historians at the Cleveland Museum of Art were startled to learn that a 19th century French painting they thought lost was hanging in the library of a Catholic boys school 10 miles away.

The 1861 "Le Pardon de Kergoat" by Jules Breton depicts a pilgrimage called the Pardons in a village in the northern French province of Brit-

Gabriel Weisberg, museum curator of art history and education, wrote about the painting in an essay for the current issue of Arts Magazine and listed its location as unknown.

"All of a sudden to find it in Cleve

Weisberg received a telephone call Tuesday from Brother Robert Lavelle, headmaster of the Gilmour Academy in suburban Gates Mills. Lavelle asked him whether a Breton painting in the school's library might be the lost masterpiece mentioned in

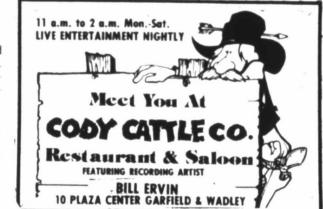

"I said, 'My goodness, I'll be right out," said Weisberg, who identified the painting that evening.

Country singer Slim Whitman is back in big way

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Newsfeatures Writer

Country singer Slim Whitman is back, with big acclaim, two new records out, sold-out concerts and fan clubs popping up all over. It's due to one of those record offers on TV.

Whitman was a genuine country star once. He cut his first record in 1948 and says he has cut at least one LP and had it released in the United States every year for the past 30 years. Lately, his records have been virtually unnoticed in this country — though selling in Britain. When he did a show on May 3 in Watertown, N.Y., it was his first performance in the United States in eight years.

He hadn't intended anything like that. He'd just received bookings abroad, mostly in Britain, and he'd done them. All of a sudden it was eight years. He wasn't bitter, he says. He made a living, He says with a smile that he built his swimming pool before the unexpected events of 1980.

Now he's following his sudden splurge of fame with the same equanimity with which he met the earlier becalmed wind of fortune. He's happy about it, not wildly excited, taking the bookings that come and not trying to predict the future.

Suffolk Marketing, which sells TV record packages, knowing that Whitman was big in Britain, got rights to some of his old masters and made up an LP, "All My Best," to offer for sale on TV.

"They called me to help," Whitman says. "They said there was no better way to launch it than with the guy up there doing it. They were going to do it, with me or without me, using still pictures or whatever. I decided to go up and help them.

"I went to Pittsburgh and in six hours did seven little inserts into the film, a little bit of talking and singing." The sound heard is the records, not the Slim Whitman of today, though he sounds remarkably the same. He says one woman sent $5 to Suffolk Marketing asking them to take the Slim Whitman TV ads off. She'd seen them enough.

Suffolk says it's their biggest-selling album. Whitman says, "I'm making more money now with United Artists Records than when I was with them and I was with them 25 years." And what did he expect to happen with the TV album?

'Nothing. I've seen other guys on TV. They didn't excite me. I didn't expect to excite them.

"As far as the splash it made, I didn't have any idea it would happen. Everything that has happened this year has been a bonus. Steve Popovich, president of Cleveland International Records, called and said he wanted me with his company. It's good when a guy wants you. It's distributed by Epic.

Whitman cut two albums, "Songs I Love To Sing" and "Christmas with Slim Whitman." The first is No. 33 and climbing on the country best-selling charts of Nov. 8 and No. 166 and climbing on the pop charts of that date.

The singer was born Otis Dewey Whitman Jr. in Tampa on Jan. 20, 1924. He had the image of a singing cowboy when he began, from the westernstyle clothes he has always worn and from his singing style. He says, "I never was connected with a cow." The first record he cut was "I'm Castin' My Lasso Toward the Sky."

He also recorded early "Love Song of the Waterfall." He says, "It was by Bob Nolan of the Sons of the Pioneers, written for them. I put kind of a yodel to it. We used steel guitar - 'shooting arrows' we

"We were looking for material to follow up that song. 'Indian Love Call' fit right in there and 'Rose Marie.' They were songs with which we could use the steel guitar and yodel. I don't think they'd been sung country before.'

John DesJardin and his staff were faced with the task of "laying off" the various conventions and tour groups scheduled for the MGM Grand to other hotels in Las Vegas, one of the nation's busiest convention cities.

Friday's fire at the hotel claimed at least 83 lives and fire fighters continued searching the 26-story hotel Saturday seeking more bodies. The fire was mostly confined to the lower two stories, but smoke welled up through the other floors, causing most of the

The Grand, one of the city's busiest convention hotels, had been scheduled to host the upcoming annual meeting of the International Association of Fairs & Exhibitions, a meeting expected to draw 1,500 delegates. The hotel already had an estimated 4,250 delegates attending five other conventions in November.

Las Vegas hotels are customarily close-mouthed about their income and there was no indication how much revenue the hotel would lose because

The fair and exhibitions conference was scheduled to begin Nov. 30 and DesJardin and his staff were working "People were hanging from balconies by sheets tied together," said Dennis Casey, a Pittsburgh advertising executive who carried an elderly woman down 21 flights of stairs to safety. The makeshift ropes didn't always hold, dropping some people to their death.

"I awoke to find my room filled with smoke," Casey said. "I went to the window ... and saw a woman fall just outside.

"It was death, absolute death there. I knew people were dying," said Keith A. Beaverton of Woodland Hills,

Beaverton said he heard screaming and opened the door of his 17th-floor room to find the hallway filled with smoke and disoriented people milling around, not knowing what to do. 'The smoke was so thick that I was having trouble breathing," he said. "I was twitching. I thought maybe I was going to die. But Beaverton was lucky. Firemen found him and carried him outside.

He was revived with oxygen and sent to the hospital. Vincent Goodman and his wife, of New Orleans, were watching an early newscast when the fire broke out. They dashed down five flights of stairs with hundreds of other people. 'We saw a lot of unconscious people in the hall ... I'm shaking now. My knees are shaking." At a survivor center, a young Mexican man who made it to safety with his wife, said in Spanish, "It's a miracle we are alive, mama. I'm crying

Other hotels different, they claim

By the Associated Press

Most major hotel-casinos in Las Vegas were reviewing their fire safety systems Saturday after the MGM Grand Hotel blaze, but officials at the other gamblingentertainment centers weare quick to point out differences with the giant MGM facility

Officials at the Union Plaza, Caesars Palace, Hilton and Flamingo hotel casinos all said they had fire sprinklers on every floor of their hotels, while the MGM Grand had sprinklers only in the basement, first and 26th floors.

Those sprinklers failed to operate when the fire erupted Friday, claiming more than 80 lives and injuring 500 people The Dunes Hotel has a limited sprinkler sys tem, officials there said.

They're beginning to ask:how did it happen?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The neon-splashed Vegas night had turned to sun-drenched morning, but the gamblers in the MGM Grand hotel-casino were lost in their softly lit, timeless cocoon where hours were measured by the size of your stack of chips or the weight of slot machine coins in your palm. All their luck ran out in less than a minute.

"At 7:35 (Friday morning), the front end of the casino blew out like a World War II flamethrower," said Charles MacGregor, assistant security supervisor of the Barbary Coast Hotel across the street.

Then this series of events compounded what fire officials said might therwise have been another contain-ble kitchen fire:

— The hotel alarm system, located in the kitchen level, burned out.

The sprinkler system in the kitchen on the ground-floor - one of only three floors that had such equipment - was ineffective in putting out

- Choking clouds of black smoke poured up the elevator shafts and into every floor, panicking guests who awoke to find acrid fumes seeping into their rooms.

- Fire doors on the inside stairway could not be opened from the inside, and fleeing guests propped the doors open so that even greater volumes of the suffocating fumes were spread throughout the building.

- The ventilation system, which could have been turned off, spread smoke into rooms leading many of the guests to break sealed windows in panic and in escape attempts.

Five major writers named to receive awards

LOS ANGELES — Five major U.S. riters were named Friday as recipints of the first Los Angeles Times Book Prizes for literary excellence in Novelist Walker Percy won the fic-tion prize for his book, "The Second Coming.' In the history-biography category, Ronald Steel was chosen for "Walter Lippman and the American Century."

Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist
Harrison Salisbury was named winner in the general interest category for "Without Fear or Favor" and poet Robert Kelly was selected for his collection of poems titled, "Kill the

Wallace Stegner, author of numerous books and 1972 winner of the Pulitzer Prize for fiction, was given the Robert Kirsch Award in the special category of outstanding body of work by an author from the West or featuring the West.

The winners were selected from more than 300 books nominated by more than 70 outside contributors t the Los Angeles Times Book Review. Any book published in the United States between September 1979 and September 1980 was eligible, excluding those written by employees of the newspaper.

No publishers were asked to submit books and no Times staff members participated in the nominating process. Times book editor Art Seidenbaum said that winners were chosen by a distinguished judge in each category from a list of final nominees. The awards, which will be presented annually, grew out of an idea conceived four years ago by Associate Editor Jean Sharley Taylor, and the late Robert Kirsch, literary critic for more than 25 years. After Kirsch's death last August, the special award for outstanding body of work was named for him by Times Editor William F. Thomas.

In announcing the awards, Seidenbaum said they reflect the paper's "desire to honor those writers whose works have profoundly enhanced the reading pleasure of our audience and the entire American literary commu-

writes about two returnees from different twilight zones, one a disaffected millionaire intent on the "first scientific experiment in history to settle once and for all the question of God's existence." The two recover with each other's help. Percy, 64, won the 1962 National Book Award for his first novel, "The Moviegoer." He lives in Louisiana.

Salisbury's "Without Fear or Favor" is a study of The New York Times and the society it covers and reflects. It begins with the paper's 1971 decision to publish the Pentagon Papers, an act the author considers an unprecedented example of institutional courage. Salisbury won the Pulitzer Prize in 1955 as a New York Times Moscow correspondent.

"vulnerable, shy, lonely and reverential in touching, being touched and keeping in touch with," a Times reviewer said. A New Yorker, Kelly, 45, teaches writing courses at Bard College in upstate New York.

Of Steel's book on political columnist Lippmann, a Los Angeles Times reviewer wrote that Steel "succeeds admirbly in presenting the unfolding of the 20th century as Lippmann experienced and understood it." Another reviewer called the book "a rare portrait of a great mind at work...and a first-rate intellectual history of the Cold War." Steel lives in New York. New toxic syndrome figures released

ATLANTA (AP) — Toxic shock syndrome, the sometimes fatal illness linked to use of tampons, has affected a total of 652 people and caused 63 deaths, according to an updated count released Friday by the National Centers for Disease Control.

The latest figures give the disease a 9.7 percent case-fatality ratio, said CDC spokeswoman Betty Hooper.

The CDC receives weekly reports of new toxic shock cases from state health departments around the country. Friday's report showed an increase of three deaths and 23 cases over the 60 deaths and 629 cases reported as of last Friday, the CDC said.

Most of the cases have occurred in 1980, but some stretch back to as early as 1975. Although the disease usually affects menstruating women who use tampons, some cases have involved women who have not used tampons and there have been rare cases in men.

The CDC reported last summer that its studies had established a substantial link between the use of tampons - particularly the Rely brand — and the disease.

Toxic shock syndrome is characterized by a fever, rash and rapid drop in blood pressure, often resulting in shock, vomiting, diarrhea, muscle aches, peeling skin, sore throat or eye infection.

Shuttle to link with its fuel tanks

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -With its launch date about three years behind schedule and costs running nearly $4 billion over estimates, the Space Shuttle orbiter Columbia finally emerges from its hangar Sunday for a crucial linkup with its fuel tanks.

The operation in the Vehicle Assembly Building at Kennedy Space Center is one of the final steps before launching the ungainly spacecraft designed to make roundtrip journeys to

After several weeks of systemscompatibility tests in the assembly building, Columbia is to move to the launch pad shortly after Christmas and is to undergo a brief flight-readiness test firing on February 7.

the date will be kept. "Nothing but a major trauma would push the date 30 days beyond March," said Dr. Stanley Weiss, associate administrator for Space Transportation Systems for the National Aeronautics and Space Administra-

However, other officials have said they would be happy if the first flight goes off by June.

Late Sunday, the ungainly, deltawing aerospace craft is to take a slow, 300-yard journey behind a tow tractor to the cavernous assembly building. Handlers will attach a cradle-like

The current launch target date is sling around its white-and-gray belly and hoist it into a vertical position. They will then retract its landing gear, pull it high overhead and gently lower it into High Bay No. 3 for attachment to its huge external fuel tank and twin rocket boosters. Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen, who will ride the Columbia on its maiden flight, have been flying practice landing approaches at the Kennedy Center and at Edwards Air Force Base in California, where the orbiter will make its first descents. Among numerous problems of funding, technical breakdowns and delays, one of the biggest headaches with Columbia has been the installation and testing of 31,000 lightweight silica tiles that will protect crew and cargo from the scorching temperatures of re-entry.

The original cost estimate of $5.1 billion has soared to more than $8.8 billion, according to NASA officials.

Most of the tiles were to be in place by the time the orbiter arrived at the Kennedy Space Center from the California-based builder, Rockwell International, in March 1979.

But after 20 months of testing, stripping and re-installation of most of the tiles, the job had not been completed by this weekend.

"The tile work is the only item we're still concerned about," said NASA spokesman Dick Young.

lexas cancer rate increasing faster than population

By JACK KEEVER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Cancer cases are increasing nearly twice as fast as the population in Texas and state health department officials say children possibly face the same dangers at school as refinery workers on the job.

David Cochran, chief of environmental health, disclosed Thursday that nearly half of the construction samples taken recently from 184 Texas schools showed the presence of cancer-causing asbestos.

Cochran said health officials have tried for years to control asbestos in the work place, and he added, "Recently the focus on asbestos exposure has moved to the schoolhouse.

Dr. George Anderson Jr., consultant for occupational medicine, said the state's population has increased 18 percent over the past 10 years but cancer deaths have increased 32 percent. Over the next decade, he said, cancer deaths in Texas will increase an additional 21 percent.

"Some 18 industrial chemicals or processes have been identified with increased carcinogenic risk in workers, most of which are found in Texas industrial settings, particularly in counties where petroleum refining is carried out," said Anderson.

The health officials addressed an advisory committee on cancer con-

Cochran said the health department is cooperating with the Texas Education Agency in investigating the use of asbestos in Texas schools.

He said 184 schools submitted 623 samples to the health department, and 595 analyses have been completed, with 291 showing the presence of asbestos. Many new schools were built in the 1950s, he said, and asbestos was widely used in walls and ceilings because it retards fire and has good insulating acoustical quali-

New program underway

The Midland YMCAs and the Midland Explorers are initiating a Leadership-Exploring Club for persons interested in coaching and officiating sports as well as those interested in participating in activities such as hiking and canoeing.

The YMCA will furnish training opportunities involving sports officiating, coaching and scorekeeping. Participants then will be given the opportunity to apply these skills in a variety of ways with actual youth sport teams. Also involved are summer recreation programs, day camps, fun clubs, sailing, explorer olympics, and additional events planned by the YMCAs and the Explorers.

Participants will meet on a monthly or bi-monthly basis and attend not only training events but free social events such as trips to Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington; Astroworld in Houston; Ruidoso, N.M., for skiing; Buffalo Trail Scout Ranch in the Davis Mountains for camping; and various places for sailing.

An organizational meeting is set for Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Central YMCA, 800 N. Big Spring St. For further information, call Richard Galle or Bob Smith at 682-2551; or Doug Palmer or Gene Lantrip at

Three major airlines revise rates

Faced with fierce criticism and a dissenting competitor, three major airlines Friday moderated their planned sharp increases in transcontinental discount fares.

The three airlines acted almost simultaneously to match fares announced earlier this week by Trans World Airlines, the fourth major carrier vying for passengers on flights linking New York with Los Angeles and San Francisco.

TWA had proposed new "super saver" round-trip fares, which impose restrictions and are sold in limited quan-

"It would appear that these people are using a drug issue as a last resort effort to halt the one-day bear season," said Pennsylvania Game Commission spokesman Lance Hoffman in Harrisburg.

Game officials have estimated that, depending on the weather, 100,000-200,000 hunters in 29 counties would turn out for Monday's dawn-to-dusk hunt and bag approximately 1,000 bears. Last year, hunters took 736 bears during the one-day hunt that is intended to control the state's black bear popula-

Pennsylvania — with the nation's largest number of licensed hunters, about 1.25 million — is home to 4,000-6,000 black bears, officials say. The game commission, which oversees the annual hunt, tries to keep the bear population to levels Pennsylvania's woodlands can support.

The commission estimates that the bear population could withstand the taking of 1,000 bears.

"We have a sizable bear population, and we have been receiving numerous nuisance complaints. Hoffman said.

Just how does a healthy family act?

- Family members are appreciative of each against another member. other and express this appreciation openly.
- Family members communicate with each other directly and spontaneously.
- Family rules and expectations are clear and negotiable; the family operates out of "want to" rather than "should."
- Respect for each other is evident.
- Parents are presented as a team or coalition; they do not take sides against each other or collude with one or more of the children are unique to that family.
- A religious/spiritual orientation exists.
- There is a commitment to societal issues and an involvement in community affairs.
- Sense of humor.
- Systematic process in decision-making
- A sense of unity and belonging.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Family Week is being celebrated this week throughout the nation. In conjunction with the special week, Sara Ellingson, counselor with Family Services of Midland Inc., and the Family Services staff tells "what is right" about today's family.)

By SARA ELLINGSON

Too often families are viewed from a point of pathology or "what's wrong" In view of the fact that strong communities are made up of strong, healthy families, the Family Services staff and the Family Service Association of America has begun to look at what makes our Family strength is evident in the ability of adults to continue their interpersonal and individual growth. The adults or parents share the power

They are not in the relationship to win or lose, or to make points against the other by colluding with an outsider. The feeling of respect for each other is present, even though their opinions may differ—yes, they can

The health of a disagreeing couple is that they do not try to undermine or humiliate, but they allow each other room for expression and

Above all, they listen to each other. Strong families are also characterized by the ability of adults to show affection openly and spontaneously to each other. In essence, the first step in a strong family is for an honest

In a single-parent family, the adult is confident of her/him self and is able to move in the direction of growth-rather than self-pity or

And then there were three! How well we know the cliches and problems which families have experienced when the first child comes, whether it be through the nine-month pregnancy or adoption. When child number two arrives, we hear of sibling rivalry. But, there are some families who grow through these experiences with less stress than other families. It is this family which we see as functioning with strength and en-

The family, like the marriage, learns about power and decision making. When children are present, the strong family finds a pattern or routine for making decisions. Perhaps the decision-making powers are shared equally among all members or only between parents. Another pattern may be when one parent is the dominant individual and makes most of the decisions or at least has the final say or veto power.

The strong family has developed a pattern which is accepted by all members. If no pattern for power or leadersip is present, conflict and confusion may seem to be ever-present.

Communication is a common problem in families. It is not that there is no communication, but, rather, the communication is unpleasant or undesirable. The more spontaneous and nurturing a family's communication, the stronger and more unified it will be. A family whose members feel a freedom to honestly express themselves tends to be strong.

Each individual takes responsibility for his/her own thoughts, feelings and actions. The language of responsible families avoids such phrases as "he made me feel," "you should," or "you have to."

Instead, individual members take on the responsibility for his or her own feelings and thoughts and accepts other family members as individuals with their own thoughts and feelings. There is an element of respect for each other.

A strong family also has a set of values which is shared and understood. The family may not frequently speak of these values, but they are present. The values may be based in a common religious or spiritual orientation. The phrase, "the family that prays together, stays together" reflects this characteristic of family strength.

This is not to say that all families who are strong have such a Christian orientation, for indeed, other cultures and value systems have similar strengths depicting a familial unity, but with an atheistic or agnostic

In addition to these characteristics, trends indicate that healthy families have a strong feeling of commitment which goes beyond the family. They may manifest this commitment through community services as a volunteer or members of an active civic group. The family may openly support and work for a social concern or political issue they

A sense of humor also seems to be an asset within family life. If a family can live with and not at its members and their life struggles, strength and cohesiveness can be enhanced.

In essence, the strong and healthy family works as a unit for the betterment of its individuals and its society. It is the work of such families and the individuals which evolve from these families that helps our nation and community to be strong and unified.

Family Services of Midland offers counseling services to troubled individuals and families and educational activities to strengthen family life and prevent family problems.

Problems they deal with include family violence, marital difficulties, teenage pregnancy, parent-child relationships, alcohol and other drug problems, bereavement, stress management, couple communication, divorce adjustment and many others.

The need for services from an agency such as Family Services of Midland comes when help from relatives, friends, neighbors, churches or other community groups is not enough. Even though such supportive environments are present, they, at times, must be supplemented with the special expertise of the staff at Family Services.

They gathered together to ask the Lord's blessing and that's just what the children at Tuesday's Story

Hour at Midland County Library got. About 40 children filed in and as they did, 'pilgrims' and 'Indians', members of the Junior Woman's Club, which sponsors the weekly program, placed pilgrim-styled white caps on the girls and black, tall hats on the boys.

As fur-trimmed, hooded jackets were removed. children joined in the singing of a record of "If you're happy and you know it your smile will surely show

With the undiluted attention of the audience, the first Thanksgiving story was told. A 'pilgrim' explained how the pilgrims and Indians shared their food and helped one another several hundred years ago in what was basically a new, barren land.

An 'Indian' then told of the plight of the Indian before the landing of the pilgrim and how they helped the newcomers adapt to the new country. 'Red Feather', a young 'Indian' boy was then introduced. and while he hid behind her, a member of the club passed the tomahawk around so all the children could feel and see the Indian's weapon.

With each program not lasting more than five minutes, Junior Woman's Club members did a good job of keeping the children's attention with various activities during the hour-long program which also featured a song on snow, which was decorating the

'If all of the snowflakes were Hershey bars and milkshakes, oh what a snow it would be," got louder with each chorus. Then the ever popular, "one little, two little, three little Indians," song started and before it was over, the little Indian girls had been

Songs seemed to be popular with the group and they also sang and clapped (almost performing) a song about going to grandma's on the bus for Thanksgiving and the classic, "The Three Bears" was also sung.

"I'm a little teapot short and stout," was chorused and the attentive children also heard how the young turkey was sad that he did not have tail feathers until he learned he would get them when he

The importance of sharing concluded the program. The children saw a short film on a little boy that would not let anybody play with his football and then could not understand why no one would play with him; a little girl who would not share her big bag of cookies with the neighborhood children and cried when the children left and a boy who had a solution to how to get a big item in the dollhouse, but would not share it and then got mad when the others figured out how to get the item in the dollhouse without him.

Children's Story Hour has been sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club for the last three years and is held during the school year from 10-11 a.m. on Tuesdays. It is open to all three-five year olds who are not enrolled in school, is held on the second floor of Midland County Library, corner of Missouri and Colorado, and is free.

Mothers are entertained during the hour in another part of the library with films and reading materials are available. Large groups are welcomed, said Mrs. Burkett, but must make reservations through the children's librarian.

According to Karen Burkett, chairman of the

For celebrities whose every malady must be shared with the free world, there should be a code name for hemorrhoids.

Although it's a condition that seems too "common" to be associated with presidents and third basemen in the World Series, it does occasionally happen and the results are always the same.

Everyone tries to be serious about it and sympathetic, but there's an unmistakable twinkle in Cronkite's eye, a headline that is catchier than most. and you just know that somewhere the sufferee will receive two or three anonymous Titanic Lifesavers to sit

Maybe I'm too sensitive about this, but I never permitted my children the heartbreak of diarrhea. Whenever they returned to school after an absence and needed a note of explanation I prudently opted for "upset stomach." One teacher circulated a rumor that it was because I did not know how to spell diarrhea, but she was quite vicious and thank goodness did not have tenure.

To be honest, hemh...that word... gives the celebrity a humanness I am not ready to admit to. In my heart, I have never believed that Miss America sweats, Robert Redford bleeds when he shaves, the Pope steps in chewing gum, or Sophia Loren gets an anchovy stuck in her front teeth.

Why, you ask, does the press have to print it at all? Because, you silly duck, according to the First Amendment, it is your God-given right to know if your hero is sitting on a whoopie cushion from the waist down and acting like all is well with the world from the waist up.

Also, there is an unwritten law that hemorrhoids sell papers. I have personally admired the people who have visited Mexico and come home with constipation. It doesn't sell as many papers as diarrhea, but it's class...real class. I'm not kidding about the code word. One of these days celebrities will be spared the humiliation of headlines, news bulletins, and eight seconds of a Carson monologue. The word will go out that the celebrity will not appear at an event because of a case of...I don't know...Creative Sitting, the Third Baseman's Disease, or something.

Maybe Washington could come up with a name for it. After all, people who call a defeat a "winning streak in remission" or refer to a scam as a "shift in power and resources" can come up with something.

Water may be the cause of disputes

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) -Water, not oil, may trigger international disputes, an executive of a multinational company here recently told a meeting of environmentalists.

By the year 2,000, population growth will double the world's need for water and outstrip the rate of natural replenishment of water, said Hugh M. Peters, director of oil detection systems for Emhart Corp.

Too many nations are now sharing the best river basins, he told delegates at an oil-pollution prevention conference in Hamburg, West Ger-

For example, 148 of the top 200 river basins in the world are shared by at least two nations, and of the next 52 top river basins, 3 to 10 countries share the resource.

When E. J. and Gloria Bellemeur got married, liking dope was their most common denominator. Today, believing Christ is their most common denominator.

"When I would go to the drug got a letter from Gloria store to buy the needle, the man that sold me the needle would also give me a spoon to cook the heroin in," said the one-time heroin addict who had to have a 'fix' every day. "I had a good paying job as a salesman, but after a while, I wasn't making enough to buy the heroin, so I started stealing.

BELLEMEUR WAS ON a methadone program designed to help heroin addicts stop their habit when he was caught stealing. Study shows estrogen protects womens' bones

BOSTON (AP) — By taking estrogen during menopause, women can protect their bones from growing brittle and avoid much of the risk of broken arms and hips that develops late in life, a study shows.

Many women in their 50s and 60s use estrogen, a female sex hormone, to relieve "hot flashes" and other unpleasant side effects of menopause. The report, published in today's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine, says that these women face only about half the usual risk of breaking arm

But the estrogen pills also increase the odds of uterine cancer, and the report says the newly identified advantages of the medicine do not appear to outweigh the cancer risk.

After menopause, women are far more likely than men of their age to suffer broken hips, forearms and

The researchers, who worked at the University of Washington, found that the risk of fractures was 50 percent to 60 percent lower than usual in women who had used estrogen for six years or more. Today about half your electricity is made from lignite coal.

And a good thing, too, because our biggest contract for low-cost natural gas (which we also use to make your electricity) expires this year.

This contract has been in effect for almost 20 years. It's helped us keep the cost of electricity lower here than in many other parts of the country.

Next year when we have to start paying much more for natural gas, electricity is going to cost more. There's no way around it.

But your bill won't be as high as it would be if we weren't making about half your electricity with economical, abundant lignite coal

Follow stoves' safety rules take steps to assure their safety."

LONG GROVE, Ill. — Woodburning stoves can be a real energy saver as well as add charm to a home, but they also can mean disaster if certain safety measures are not followed, warns a major insurer.

James Green, personal lines underwriting officer for the Kemper Group, said woodburning stoves which are misused or improperly installed and maintained are an increasingly serious hazard to life and property.

"If properly installed and maintained, woodburning stoves can offer warmth and service," said Green. "They are an ideal supplementary heat source. But the homeowner must

Green said that many of the fires that occur in woodburning stoves could be prevented by following a number of safety measures:

— The stove should be free of large cracks or broken parts.

- The stove should be cleaned thoroughly, including the grate, so that it is free of built-up deposits.

— The stove should be located on non-combustible floor material.

- The floor protection should extend at least six feet from the sides and back of the stove and 18 inches from the front.

It features a south-facing wall of plexiglas, a brick floor, and insulated walls and ceiling, says Greenwood. The combination of these features allows the sun's energy to enter the dog house and be absorbed in the flooring for later release as temperatures fall. Is this call a serious threat or a malicious but harmless — joke? Is it an isolated occurrence or the beginning of a nightmare? How does the terrified victim know?

Dr. Stephen Golder, clinical psychologist who did his research at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas, has studied abusive phone calls from the standpoint of a professional and, ironically, that of a victim - him-

While many abusive callers fit the category of the lonely, socially maladjusted person seeking outlets for pent-up feel-ings and planning no sub-sequent violence, other callers definitely are dangerous, Dr. Golder

In studying police rec-ords in one large southern city, Dr. Golder found that one sixth of callers apprehended pre-viously had been convicted of sex crimes or other offenses. Often the victim felt that she — and sometimes he, since embers of both sexes nake abusive calls knew the caller.

Abusive phone calls— a general term which in-cludes joke or prank calls, silent callers and cene, threatening or harrassing ones — are a Class B misdemeanor a Class B misdemeanor in Texas, punishable by a fine up to $1,000 and from one to six months in jail. According to the Texas penal code, a person commits an offense if "he intentionally com-municates by telephone in vulgar, profane, ob-scene, indecent or threaening language and by his action intentionally, mowingly or recklessly alarms or intends to alarms or intends to alarm the recipient; or if the caller places one or more telephone calls anonymously...and by this action recklessly annoys or alarms the recipient or intends to do so."

Definite personality differences showed up in the police and the college groups. Contrary to the profile of the lonely, socially inept person without sufficient outlets for his feelings, Golder found the college caller quite different. The col-

A common target of abusive callers is the telephone operator. The psychologist recently did a training film for Southwestern Bell's state opon handling phone calls courteously. Frustration on the part of the customer seems to be the cause of some of the abuse suffered by the operators who are also prime targets of many obscene calls. call, Golder reminds us, is a product of the twentieth century. Its predecessor was the anonymous letter. Use of the telephone for abusive calls really took off in the early 60s when private lines replaced party lines all over the country. For the first time, callers could be assured of complete anonymity, something certainly not possible in a small town where Aunt Sallie might be listening in on the party line. According to the

Tunnel walker

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) - Traffic in the Prague subway was interrupted during the afternoon rush hour recently when a 72-year-old woman carefully climbed down to the tracks and disappeared into the darkness.

Electric current was cut off and all traffic stopped until the woman emerged, unharmed, at the next subway stop.

She explained that she had always liked walking through tunnels.

BORGER, Texas (AP) - Kenny O. Klepper, an analyst at a refinery here, knew his energysaving idea for using exhaust steam could pay big money, such as $2,-500, because his idea puted to be unemotional, wasn't rejected by his company right away.

After all, he had already picked up $730 for five of his 17 suggestions in the past seven years.

Klepper was right and wrong. He got a big award, but Phillips Petroleum made it even bigger by adding a zero - making the prize $25,-

Bach to be shown again

NEW YORK (AP) - "The Joy of Bach," last year's Christmas salute to the musical genius of Johann Sebastian Bach, is to be re-telecast as an early holiday special by the Public Broadcasting Service network Dec.

The hour-long program, funded by Honeywell, traces Bach's career and his influence on the music of two centuries. Focusing on both the serious and popular sides of the renowned German composer, the show demonstrates the continued appreciation of his creations today in concert halls, churches and even discos.

Performances in five countries by famous artists and musical groups, including violinist Yehudi Men pianist Rosalyn Tureck and the Berlin Chamber Orchestra, exemplify the classical treatment given Bach's

Wheels are essential to lakeside campers

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (AP) - Brodie Lockard' silver wheelchair turns orange in the glow of lakeside campfire. Behind him, friends follow guitarist in song. Others play backgammon or remi nisce about previous outings.

In the middle of this bucolic setting, Lockard i discussing inflatable bladders, respirators and se vered vetebrae. The 20-year-old paraplegic is trying to relax a reporter who awkwardly asks what he thinks of 50 paralyzed patients spending two days and a night camping.

"It's nice to see the staff outside of the hospital,"

Lockard says after sucking air from a respirator. He turns his head — one of the few parts of his body he can move — and surveys the group of patients, friends, family and hospital staff.

As his motorized wheelchair whirs, Lockard glides to rejoin his companions. He has good news. That morning he moved his toes for the first time since he fell off a trampoline eight months ago.

"JUST BECAUSE SOMEONE'S a quadriplegic, there's no reason why he can't sleep on the ground in a sleeping bag," says Sandy Mayfield, the recrea-tional therapist who organized the outing for Santa Clara Valley Medical Center.

The hospital makes two camping trips to Pinto Lake each year, one for patients with severe spinal cord damage and the other for those with serious head injuries. The San Jose center also sends severely handicapped patients to Disneyland or Lake Tahoe to ski. Ms. Mayfield radiates the feeling that there isn't much the staff thinks impossible for the patients, some of whom have just emerged from comas.

"If we can get in (to a place), they can get in," is the guideline of the physical, occupational and re-creational therapists at the hospital, Ms. Mayfield

She says the camping trip is the first to be run by a hospital for the acutely disabled, but similarly ambitious undertakings are not unique. Travel companies advertise canoeing and rafting trips and other wilderness adventures especially for the handicapped.

SUCH EVENTS ARE part of a growing national effort, spurred by the disabled, to get them into the "mainstream" of life.

Ms. Mayfield says tests show patients' verbal skills are stronger and attendance at therapy improves after the trips. The patients also seem to accept the disabilities better, she added.

"They find out it's OK to take time out to be catheterized, it's OK to take medicine in front of others," she says. "That's the breaking point, that's when they realize they're human beings.

Some of the campers are former patients who come back each year. "A lot of them told us the trip was really what made them believe life will go on," Ms. Mayfield says. Families are invited so they can see that there is very little that a handicapped person can't do.

One such alumnus wheeling himself down a bumpy dirt path waves to Ms. Mayfield and shouts that he would talk later about why he enjoys camping. He wanted to see old friends first. Later, all he wants to do is tell a reporter what a good skier he is.

HRLEN WEEMAS, WHO breathes with the help of an unwieldy respirator, was bundled in blankets and carried in a wheelchair down to the lake where a motorboat, owned and modified by a former patient, was docked.

The trip was her first time outdoors in months. To earn her doctor's permission, Ms. Mayfield says, Mrs. Weemas had to make herself sit up for six hours at a stretch.

Frittata uses leftover turkey

A day or two after the holiday turkey dinner, refrigerators all across the country have the same things: the remains of the holiday bird and a small bowl containing all that is left of its wonderful oz.) boned chicken, undrained bread dressing.

These certainly cannot be enough leftovers to make a family meal, right? Wrong! Here's a way to stretch those dibs and dabs into a delicious meal that will easily feed the family — Post-Feast Frittata.

This frittata, which is simply an open-faced omelet, is rich with the unbeatably good flavors of turkey and herb-seasoned stuffing. To accent those tradi-tional tastes you add chopped onion and celery, plus butter until tender but not brown, about 5 mi-

Ross Perot, Texas businessman and contributor to numerous charitable organizations, will highlight the drug seminar program to be presented from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Dec. 3 at Theatre Midland.

Other speakers will include Vern Martin, district attorney; Parker Humes, chairman of the board for the Midland Independent School District; Marsha Keith Schuchard, Ph.D., a consultant to the National Institute on Drug Abuse; and Richard Salwen, attor-

Perot is chairman of the board of Electronic Data Systems Corporation, a computer service com-

After working for IBM for five years, he founded EDS and today it is a multi-national company with more than 9,000 employees.

EDS operates its business through 60 offices throughout the world and is actively engaged in designing, building and operating information systems in the life insurance, banking, health care, manufacturing and public utility industries. In addition to EDS, Perot's other business interests are in oil and gas and real estate. For four years, Perot was involved full time, working closely with the United States government, in a successful effort to change the treatment received by our prisoners of war in North Vietnam. He was awarded the Department of Defense Medal for Distinguished Public Service, the highest award given to a civilian by the Defense Department.

EDS and Perot ar probaby best known throughout the electronic industry for the careful attention given to the selection and training of personnel, and his keen personal interest in each employee. In 1979, Perot personally directed a team of EDS volunteers in the successful extraction of two EDS employees who were being held as hostages in Iran.

Since 1976, Dr. Marsha Keith Schuchard has been a consultant to the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA). She is also author of "Parents, Peers and Pot," published by HEW in 1979.

What are the chances of a kidney being rejected, and is there any research under way at the present time to try to overcome this

Dear Mrs. L.: About 4,000 kidney transplant operations are done each year in the United States. If the kidney is donated by a close relative, the operation is successful about 80 percent of the time; however, if the kidney comes from someone unrelated to the patient, only about half of the transplant operations are successful.

Mrs. B.N.L.

There is a good deal of research under way to try to find methods of overcoming this rejection phenomenon, and some of the findings seem promising. For example, an experimental drug known as lymphocyte immune globulin, antithymocyte globulin (equine), or ATGAM, has been shown to increase the one- to-two year survival rate for kidney transplants by almost one-third. The drug is given to the patient either at the first sign of rejection or at the time of transplantation. An application to have ATGAM marketed has been submitted for approval to the Food and

RINGING THE BELL

Carter carried vote of blacks

Black officials and civil rights leaders, reacting to the election of Ronald Reagan as President and the Republican takeover of the Senate, have declared that blacks must start developing strategies to build on gains that have been made in the past.

According to a New York Times-CBS poll taken election day among more than 12,000 voters after they cast their ballots, the President received 82 percent of the black vote, compared with 14 percent for Rea-

The figures were in accord with a poll by the NAACP, which showed that 80 to 85 percent of black voters cast their ballots for Carter, while 15 percent opted for Reagan. In 1976 Carter won more than 90 percent of the black vote. So there have been Republican inroads, it seems.

Other black leaders are talking of the need to use "massive non-violent resistance" reminiscent of the 1960s, if their gains are threatened. The group called Black Leadership Forum has asked for a discussion with president-elect Reagan on the concerns of Black Americans.

Spokesmen voiced concern that the social programs millions of blacks, other minorities and the poor depend on for daily survival or advancement would be cut or scrapped to enhance the national military budget. Others said that although Reagan had pledged to be the President of all Americans, he might not view Blacks as his constituients because they mained, generally, loyal to President Carter

Two veteran civil rights activists who endorsed Reagan, the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of SCLC and Hosea L. Williams, a Georgia state representative, said they would organize a national committee to develop a black agenda to present to Reagan. They believe it is the government's responsibility to further human rights and protect the poor.

'What Makes Earl Campbell Go?'' There was a time when Earl, the Houston Oilers' star running back, was running a different road, and the odds weighed heavily against his ever making it big — or making it at all. He was "Bad Earl," a confused teenager caught up in drinking, smoking and fighting, with no idea what he wanted out of life. But, states Sam Blair in November's "Christian Herald," he did have a support system that would not let him go - his family, coaches, his girl friend, people who believed in him and helped him see that there ws more for him in life than honky tonks and pool halls.

"Although it took a long struggle within himself, Earl listened. And today he believes he is what he is because of faith, family and football - most of all, his mother, Ann Campbell, who exudes strength, warmth and a genuine concern for people Earl's faith runs as deep as his talent. It is part of his heritage from his mother and it is the other dynamic force in his life that drives him forward. At the same time, his faith keeps him on a steady keel.

Bellringers and friends of this column that will be coming to Hobbs, N.M., anytime in the near future, should by all means arrange to pay at least a brief visit to the Washington Heights Nursery School, Inc., located at 203 E. Texas St. in the city. No doubt it is one of the finest and best equipped of its kind in Eastern New Mexico or West Texas.

We recall that some 25 years ago, it was this correspondent's privilege to name the school, that started from such humble beginnings. It is a story of working together and cooperation between citizens of black, brown and white and the unlimited courage of one who has stood as its director from its beginning - Mrs. W. O. Gray. And much credit goes to the Lovely Ladies Federated Club of Hobbs, that has stood by and labored for the school's ongoing because somebody cared.

Free trade with Mexico urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A first step toward an inter-American common market could be a free trade area on both sides of the U.S.-Mexican border, White House protocol chief Abe-lardo L. Valdez proposed today.

The native of Floresville, Texas, said it could take the form of a foreign trade zone extending 100 or 200 miles into both nations.

"I believe that such a zone would help to attract industry to both sides of the border and to provide badly needed jobs on both sides," Valdez said in remarks prepared for delivery in San Antonio, Texas. "If proper incentives were provided, it might be possible to distribute industrial parks on a uniform basis throughout the zone and thus eliminate a bunching of industry exclusively along the bor-

He noted that the suggestions presented to the annual conference of the Partners of America represented his own views and not those of the State Department or the White House.

Valdez said a pilot project could start for perhaps a 10-year period in only one state, such as Texas. "If the free trade area could prove feasible, then this trade zone could be extended throughout the U.S.-Mexico border, perhaps widened to include a greater territory on both sides of the border," he said

Valdez suggested that the free trade area eventually could include all sections of the two nations and expand to other countries in the hemisphere as well.

He added that the early advocates of a European common market were dismissed as "impractical men with dangerous ideas."

Another way to start small would be to develop common markets for certain sectors of the economy only, such as for agricultural products or energy resources, Valdez said.

Chrysler resumes rebate program

DETROIT (AP) - In a move aimed at boosting sluggish sales, Chrysler Corp. is offering $250 rebates on its 1981 domestic cars and trucks to a limited group of consumers.

Chrysler's offer of "special purchase payment" is being made to stockholders, pensioners, employees and employees of its vendor companies. It is the first time in many years that stockholders have been included in such a deal by any auto company.

The rebates are the first of the 1981 model year, which has been a disappointment for the auto industry as rising interest rates discourage

Cotton harvest still shut down by moisture

By CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent-Agriculture

The heavy snow received last week shut down cotton harvest in the area and even though most of the week was sunny, drying has been slow and farmers have not been able to resume harvest.

The weathering could cause some grade reduction on a crop already low in quality. Weather conditions have been very unfavorable, for the most part, for crop production during the entire season. The one bright spot in the agriculture picture at this time is the good soil moisture reserve going into the next season.

The Midland County Pecan Harvest Festival will be held Tuesday, December 2, in Midland Center. The annual county pecan show (this will be the fourth) has been expanded to include a food and pecan arts division and a Queen's Pageant to select a county pecan queen.

The event is a joint effort of Midland Pecan Grower's Association and the Agricultural Extension Service. Current officers of the Midland Pecan Grower's Association include:

David Harris, president; C. A. Gray, vice president; Mrs. Marge Shaw, secretary-treasurer, and Morris Davis, pecan show chairman Other show chairmen are Mrs. Jon Whisler, food and arts division, Cathy Harris, Queen's Pageant, and R. B. Henderson, publicity.

The pecan show is open to anyone who likes to cook with pecans and prizes will be awarded to the winner in each category. Nineteen of Midland's young ladies between the ages of 16 and 22 years are vying for the honor to represent Midland County as Pecan Queen. The pecan show is open to anyone who has grown pecans on his property in Midland County in 1980. Both commercial orchards and home yard production are eligible.

A pecan entry consists of 40 nuts of each variety. Pecans must be exhibited in their natural state; no artificial alterations or polishing. Entries must be received by 5 p.m. Nov. 29. Four receiving points are established: County Extension Office, 218 W. Illinois St.; CA & L Pecan Co., Rankin Highway; Village Barber Shop, 2-B Meta Drive, and Marge

Shaw, Route 4, 40 Lavera Drive. The pecan entries will be processed and judged on Sunday afternoon and Monday and placed on display at Midland Center Monday afternoon. All winning entries will advance to the West Texas Regional Pecan Show to be held in Odessa Dec. 10-11. The Pecan Foods Department will be divided into Adult and Youth (Grades 1-12) Divisions. Pecans i'or food exhibits do not have to be grown by the exhibitor. However, pecans must be part of the recipe ingre

Food categories for both Adult and Youth Divisions include: Appe tizers, Non-Sweet; Appetizers, Sweet; Quick Breads; Yeast Breads; Cakes;

Midlander awarded American Farmer Degree

John Jones of Midland was awarded the American Farmer Degree recently at ceremonies held during the 53rd National Convention of the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City, Mo.

He was one of 781 FFA members selected to receive the American Farmer Degree, the highest degree of membership in the FFA. As a holder of the American Farmer Degree, he joins a select group representing about one percent of all the nation's FFA members.

Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Jones Jr. of Route 2, Box 111.

Each American Farmer Degree recipient is presented a gold key and certificate in recognition of their accomplishment among the nearly onehalf million FFA members across the country. They also receive a cash award for travel to Kansas City and attend a special breakfast in their honor.

The American Farmer program is sponsored through the National FFA Foundation by Amoco Oil Co. of Chicago, Ill.; J.I. Case Co. of Racine, Wisc.; the Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corp. of Warren, Mich.; Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., of Des Moines, Iowa; Production Credit Associations throughout the United States; and the 12 Federal Land Banks of the United States.

The American Farmer Degree is the highest degree of membership in the FFA. It is presented only by the national organization of the Future Farmers of America to members who in the state. The 781 members awarded the American Farmer Degree this year represent the highest achievement of more than 481,676 members in almost 9,000 high school vocational agriculture departments.

All FFA members who receive the American Farmer Degree begin as "Greenhands." After at least one semester of vocational agriculture, members may be advanced by the local chapter to the degree of "Chapter Farmer." The third degree, that of "State Farmer," is presented by the State FFA Association. Only students who have earned the state Farmer Degree are eligible for the American Farmer Degree.

Each advancement is based on proficiency in combining classroom learning, practical "hands-on" experience and leadership.

In addition to having earned the State Farmer Degree, candidates for the American Farmer Degree must have been active members of the FFA for at least three years. They must have a record of participation in local and state FFA activities and they must have completed all of the vocational agriculture instruction offered in their high school. Grand jury won't indict woman for 4-year-old murder

HONEY GROVE, Texas (AP) — fad it not been for a son-in-law's conscience, the Wilson family secret may have remained buried under 18

Many of them said his reputation was that of a surly drunk who routinely beat his wife Dolores and their 13

"The evidence is that he was a bad. drunk son-of-a-bitch. The kids say he had beaten on all of them at one time or another," said Assistant District Attorney Dan Meehan.

"He didn't work in June because it was too hot, and he didn't work in August because it was too wet from the rain," Meehan said.

One day in the fall of 1976, the

45-year-old man "came in there and started beating on them again," Meehan said. "Everybody was scared."

That's when Mrs. Wilson took matters, as well as a .22-caliber pistol, into her own hands. She shot her husband twice in the back of the

Some of the children helped wrap Wilson in a bedspread and bury him beneath a shed behind the small outside town.

"One of the boys said they read a few Bible pages over him. I guess they had a little ceremony before they rolled him in," Meehan said.

Just when the town had about forgotten about Wilson, a son-in-law who never met him confessed to the slaying, saying his conscience wouldn't allow him to sleep. He directed police to the grave.

Carl Wilson, who happened to have the same name as the family, apparently learned of Wilson's demise from a brother-in-law

He was arrested Monday, but when his wife Penny learned what he had done, she told officers it was really her mother who shot J.B.

Meehan said he believes the man confessed to the slaying in hopes it would help him in his legal problems. Carl Wilson recently completed probation on a felony burglary conviction

Vatican defends infant baptism

VATICAN CITY (AP) - The Vatican defended the practice of baptizing infants immediately after birth and challenged arguments that baptism should wait until children are old enough to decide for them-selves whether they want it.

Roman Catholic priests in several Western countries, especially France, the Netherlands and some parts of Italy and Germany, have allowed or urged parents to delay baptism until adulthood, Vatican sources said.

A document approved by Pope John Paul II and eleased Friday said it was "an illusion" to think hat parents unfairly impose a religion on their baby such thing as pure human freedom,

Windfall tax crowds IPAM producers

DENVER Colo — In the first six months since enactment of the "Windfall Profits" tax on produced crude oil last March, independent oil producers in the Rocky Mountain area have paid an average tax of $5.93 per barrel, according to Kye Trout, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of the Mountain States (IPAMS). Quoting figures gathered by an area crude oil purchaser, Trout said, "This confiscatory tax alone is nearly twice as much as the price for an entire barrel of crude oil seven years ago." "It shows the kind of money that is necessary but no longer available to the oil industry for plowing back into the search for new domestic oil. "Counting all oil production in the 11-state IPAMS region, this tax means our domestic oil industry is losing $11 million a day, or about $4 billion a year, in working capital that is badly needed to explore for and develop new domestic oil in the Rocky

"No wonder it is impossible for the oil industry to make any headway in finding and producing new domestic oil," Trout said. "That amount of money would be spent locally in our 11-state IPAMS area and would drill 35 new averagesized wells per day, and given the normal historical success ratio of such new wells, the tax causes loss of a potential production of 1,000,000 barrels of new domestic oil per year in our area.'

'With this tax, there is little wonder our domestic oil industry has such a tough time finding and producing new oil and increasing our domestic sup-

Trout pointed out that the 11-state area covered by IPAMS produces about 12 percent of the nation's domestic oil. The area contains two of the nation's largest regional exploratory areas where new oil is being found and developed: the Overthrust Belt that runs the entire length of the western flank of the Rocky Mountains, and the Williston Basin of North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana

"There is only one true source of wealth for any nation, and that is the land and what it contains, including minerals. The gold-rich nations have proven this in the past, and the oilrich nations are proving it now.

"The domestic independent oil producers, who drill 90 percent of this nation's wildcat wells, could be proving it now if it were not for this horrendous tax that confiscates the working capital necessary for doing so." Trout said

"That is why IPAMS and 30 other independent organizations across the nation must continue to fight this tax law. If we can repeal it or change it, the public which we serve will benefit, and our nation will become more energy sufficient and will prosper again," said Trout.

Public expected to throw brickbats

COLLEGE STATION — Oil and gas companies can expect more brickbats than bouquets from the public in the next two decades, says a major energy company executive.

"Our environment for the next 10 to 20 years doesn't look too good," said W. W. "Woody" Madden of Exxon U.S.A. "The price of oil will go up. There's a finite supply, demand is increasing and therefore the price will rise faster than inflation.'

"Nobody will be very happy with us," Madden predicted.

Speaking to engineering graduate students at Texas A&M University last week, Madden said only new energy sources could change the situ-

"An adequate supply of energy at what the public deems reasonable prices would alter the outlook," he said. Declining supplies of domestic oil and gas and uncertainty of foreign supply, more than offsetting gains through conservation, dictate otherwise, he indicated.

Exxon analyses show a 20 percent increase in U.S. energy demand to just over 50 million barrels per day oil equivalent by 2000. Madden said hydroelectric, geothermal and solar will provide five percent of the total, nuclear 13 percent, coal 33 percent, imported oil and gas 13 percent and domestic oil and gas 11 percent.

The biggest gains will be in nuclear and coal, Madden projected. Nuclear is predicted to rise from five percent and coal from 19 percent to account for 46 percent of consumption by the year 2000. Declines in imports and domestic oil and gas show the latter down 35 points to 11 percent. Social and political factors are the key to big oil's problem and the energy crisis, Madden told the Aggie engineers. "Constraints on energy development are not technological," he said. 'The societal climate in which we operate dictates the solutions we at-

The Exxon official said a company survey found that the average American thought a company should be able to make uo to 19.5 cents on the dol-

"We asked if that was reasonable and the reply was 'no' but 12.75 cents is reasonable," Madden said. "Actually, profit for all U.S. business last year was 5.3 cents on the dollar. Oil did a little better last than average, at 5.9 cents. That's all revenue, divided by net profit after taxes.'

He said oil's return before taxes was 11 cents and that if allowances are figured for replacement capital of inflation, all profit disappears.

"People think we're making more than we are. Actually it's half what they think is reasonable for a typical

ne big tax obstacle out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says a big obstacle is out of the way for his amendment to exempt small royalty owners from the "windfall" profits tax.

"I'm optimistic that we've cleared the last big hurdle to enactment of this important legislation," the Texas Democrat said Friday.

The break came when a House-Senate conference committee reached agreement on the budget reconciliation bill containing the senator's amendment for a one-year tax cred-

the chances the budget reconciliation bill has for final approval before the current lame-duck congressional session ends.

The exemption would take the form of a $1,000 tax credit for 1980 to individuals paying the "windfall" tax designed to reclaim some of the revenue headed for oil companies as a result of deregulated domestic oil prices.

HOUSTON (AP) - Jimmie R. Bowden says the time to start commercial synfuels plans in this country

The president of Conoco Coal Development Co. says Conoco and many other energy companies already have made significant contributions to synthetic energy techology by spending hundreds of millions of dollars on coal gasification and liquefaction.

'We now feel much of our R&D work is behind us," Bowden said. "We see full commercialization as the next logical and pressing step to be accomplished.

Bowden commended the objectives of President Carter's synfuels program but said the equity participation and loan guarantee incentives provided by the newly legislated Energy Security Corp. are simply not adequate to meet the needs of a synfuel

"Private business is well able to finance such a plant independently,' he said. "What we need are incentives on the order of investment tax credit and accelerated depreciation."

Boyden said Carter has targeted 500,000 barrels a day of synthetic fuels by 1987 and 2 million a day by 1990. Achieving such a lofty goal may appear unrealistic, he said but adding that, on the positive side, the energy industry has acquired the technical knowledge necessary to begin commercial plant operations today. But, he continued, the Department of Energy is currently supporting eight major research and development programs of four direct liquefaction and four gasification

'Note that I said R&D and not commercial," he added.

Bowden said the four coal liquefaction plants could produce as much as 200,000 barrels a day by the end of the decade "and that is a very generous and optimistic estimate."

"As far as the government-industry gasification program is concerned. the four major projects are still on paper," he said.

There is presently little assurance that more than one high British theral unit gas demonstration plant will be built, but moves to address this situation are being made.' Using what he termed as "generous" figures, Bowden said there is indication the available supplies of such fuels by 1992 may total 700,000 barrels a day - 250,000 for both liquefaction and gasification, 350,000 in shale oil, and 100,000 in gasohol.

"That figure is just over a million short of the President's energy goal of 2 million barrels per day," he said. If the nation has the commercially available technology and abundant coal supplies, Bowden said, "why aren't we embarking on a logical plan toward commercial coal-based energy now! 'While acknowledging the value of R&D, it seems to me we are wasting our own and our nation's valuable time." Bowden said "The ambitious and comprehensive energy goals of the Energy Security Corp. certainly will accomplish much, but I am convinced the most prudent course to pursue is rapid synfuel commercialization now using established, proven technology." Bowden said that one of the driving forces that simultaneously makes him enthusiastic and impatient with synthetic plant commercialization "is seeing first hand the results of commercial synfuel plants operating in other countries today. "Observing the success of these programs, it is difficult to ignore the fact these countries are doing something now to help offset the devastating effects of importation of costly and volatile foreign energy supplies,

'These foreign countries are practicing, in effect, the urgent message of our own president . . . Bowden said South Africa today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp. formally invited companies Friday to submit applications for up to $20 billion in financial assistance the corporation will dole out to spur energy development. The corporation issued three pages of guidelines for companies to follow in making bids for the loan guarantees and price supports the corporation can make to encourage production of synthetic fuels from coal, shale oil, tar sands and other substances. The three-page application compares with 450 pages of guidelines the Energy Department issued earlier this year for companies seeking the $5 billion that department has for synthetic fuel development.

"We will not straightjacket the industry nor stifle innovation by requiring proposals to meet rigid requirements during this initial solicitation phase," said Synthetic Fuels Corp. Chairman John Sawhill. The guidelines ask companies to

tions of their synthetic fuel projects, of 500,000 barrels of synthetic fuels by 1987 and 2 million barrels in 1992. There currently are no commercial synthetic fuel plants operating in this country, but the Great Plains Coal Gasification plant in Beulah, N.D., won conditional approval for a $1.5 billion loan guarantee this week from the Energy Department.

Economics course scheduled

"Practical Economics for Oil and Gas Production" will be offered by the Permian Basin Graduate Center in cooperation with RIKE Services Dec. 1-5 at the graduate center's headquarters, 105 W. Illinois St. in Classes will meet from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Dr. Robert A. Shapiro, faculty memeber of the University of Oklahoma since 1964, will be the instructor. The course is designed for geologists, engineers, attorneys, accountants, financiers and management. It will provide broad coverage of business and economic analysis, including methods for determination of minimum cost, maximum profit, and optimum investment strategies under risk and uncertainty prevailing in oil and gas exploration and production.

AMC expects to lose big money for next two years

DETROIT (AP) - American Motors Corp. has told its stockholders it expects to lose money for the next two years but to make "significant" profits in 1983 and beyond.

The No. 4 automaker did not say how much it expects to lose, except that next year's loss will be "considerably reduced" from the $156 million lost in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. For the 1982 fiscal year, it said the loss should be still smaller.

For the year ending Sept. 30, 1983, AMC expects a "significant net profit" that should "increase substantial ly" the following year.

While warning that sales fluctuations made financial projections highly uncertain, AMC said it expected 'virtually (to) break even" over the three years ending Sept. 30, 1983.

The projections came in a proxy statement at a special meeting of AMC shareholders scheduled for Dec. FOR SALES ACTION IN A HURRY NOTHING WORKS LIKE A

Signals emerge that price calm over

By RICHARD M. WEINTRAUB JOHN M. BERRY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Despite brimful oil tanks throughout the industrialized world, the first signals have emerged that the carefully nurtured atmosphere of calm over prices and supply in the wake of the Iran-Iraq war may be breaking down.

Over the past two to three weeks. prices on the so-called "spot" market have jumped to more than $40 a barrel, eliciting a warning from Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Zaki Yamani earlier this week that the world faces the possibility of "another sharp incr3ase" in prices.

With the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries scheduled to hold its next meeting in just three weeks in Bali, Indonesia, leading Western oil and economic officials have isued a new round of appeals to their oil companies to draw upon their extensive reserves rather than put added pressure on prices by trying to buy more oil.

Underlying the increasing spot prices, Yamani's warning and the appeals to the companies is the fact that the Iran-Iraq war has lasted far longer than anyone had anticipated, stripping away the cushion of supplies that existed before the war began and forcing companies and countries alike to live with a prolonged period of uncertainty.

Easing short-term pressures some-that Iraq has informed nine countries that it is planning to resume exports of up to 600,000 barrels a day via a pipeline through Turkey, but this would still be about 2.5 millions barrels a day less than Baghdad had been exporting before outbreak of hostili-

WHEN THE WAR first broke out two months ago, officials around the world were quick to point out that stockpiles were enormous and there likely would be no gasoline lines, no shortages of home heating oil and no industrial disruption as a result of the

Those same officials are just as confident today about the coming winter, but they are beginning to voice some doubts about the longer term.

"For the time being, there is no fear for oil consumption," Keiya Toyanaga, a leading Japanese energy ocfficial said this past week. "Our problem is how long the war will continue. If it ends this year and the oil starts up again in two or three months, it will be no problem. But if it continues next year, it will have an effect on the world market.

Toyanaga's assessment was echoed by U.S. Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs Richard Cooper, who said "some measures" would have to be taken if the war continues for a prolonged period of time.

While there is no available consensus on the "measures" that might be taken, there is little feeling among

RRC approves recovery rules for two oil pools

AUSTIN - The Railroad Commission has approved the initiations of secondary recovery operations in southwest and west central Texas fields that are expected to result in the production of more than 2.6 million barrels of additional oil.

The commission acted on applications of thhe Getty Oil Co. and Sands Energy Corp., Inc., to unitized and operate waterflood programs in portions of the Camar (Strawn-Oil) and the S.L.C. (Tannehill) Fields. Sands Energy is based in Abilene.

The Getty-operated unit in Schleicher County consists of 3,200 surface acres of which 1,680 are considered productive. Since first production in March 1959, the unit area has yielded more than 2.9 million barrels of oil. Some 1.9 million barrels of additional oil are expected to be recovered as the result of direct injection of salt water under Getty's secondary recovery program.

Camar currently has 36 producing wells, averaging three barrels of oil per day from the Strawn formation that is encountered at approximately 4,300 feet. Getty plans to use 19 injection wells that will be cased and cemented so that all fresh water zones are protected. Maximum injection rate will be 8,000 barrels of salt water

Sands Energy's Pastura Unit in the S.L.C. (Tannehill) Field will consist of some 386 surface acres. Since production was first opened in early 1959, the area has yielded 110,642 barrels of oil. There is no production in the area

The newly approved secondary recovery program is expected to result in the recovery of an additional 754, 975 barrels of oil.

Plans for the new unit call for the drilling of 12 producing wells and one injection well at this time. Also, four additional wells will be re-entered and completed as injection wells. Salt water will be in injected at the maximum rate of 750 barrels daily.

experts following the course of the war that it is likely to come to an end anytime soon.

It is this assessment - that the war is likely to continue for some time and with it the uncertainty about future supplies - that could well cause what one expert called a shifting "psychology" toward the oil market.

"IF YOU ARE AN oil company uncertainty means that you keep hold of what you have got and go out to try to buy more oil rather than drawing down your supplies," this expert

It was toward this perceived shift in atitude that Yamani directed his remarks earlier this week and which exemplifies the looming problems for the international consensus on how to deal with worldwide oil emergen-

Yamani accused the oil companies of manufacturing what he termed an unnecessary crisis by building up oil stocks. "If the oil companies resist de-stocking (using their stockpiles) ... then we will see another sharp increase in prices ...," Yamani said.

Companies, on the other hand, say they are reluctant to reduce their inventories as long as the war continues because they cannot be certain they will get new supplies when the present ones are gone.

Put another way, one oil analyst said, "There is no real shortage of oil right now, but there is a glut of uncertainty and this uncertainty is pushing up spot prices.'

Close watchers of U.S. oil companies also have picked up signals of nervousness about OPEC price increases, noting that prices for gasoline and home heating oil have increased by one to two cents a gallon across the board in the pat week. Such increases often anticipate price jumps by OPEC.

AT THE CORE OF these increasing signs of nervousness is some basic arithmetic. Before the Iran-Iraq war, there was a worldwide surplus of some 2 million barrels a day. When the war began, almost 4 million barrels a day suddenly disappeared.

A million barrels of this subsequently has been made up by production increases by OPEC countries, and reports that Iran and Iraq are resuming some exports — up to 700,-000 barrels daily — brings supply and demand roughly into balance. But it is a balance that leaves absolutely no room for any future emergency, a prospect bound to create unease among oil companies and strategic planners, according to long-time oil analysts.

Up until now, the United States and other major oil-consuming nations have managed to stave off talk of another devastating round of oil price increases. By cajoling, they have kept major companies off the spot market and they have arranged enough deals and production increases by other OPEC countries to see that countries most dependent upon Iran and Iraq for their supplies were not hurt.

France, for example, received 500, 000 barrels a day from Iraq before the war. It has made up 390,000 barrels of that by diversifying its sources of supply, getting 70,000 barrels daily from Venezuela, 100,000 from Mexico. 120.000 from Saudi Arabia, 50,000 from Abu Dhabi and 50,000 from Qatar. Paris now has the prospect of getting 70,000 from Iraq via the Turkey pipeline.

In the French case, the problem primarily was one of supply, a problem solved when countries with extra oil offered it for sale and when Saudi Arabia and others in the Gulf region responded to appeals and increased production.

For Somalia, the problem was one of both supply and price. The Somalis were almost completely dependent upon Iraq for oil, and it was oil they received at a special rate of $26 a barrel. The Somalis managed to replace the Iraqi oil with supplies from elsewhere - mainly Kuwait and Egypt — but the price rose to at least $32 a barrel, the going OPEC rate. Saudi Arabia generally charged $2 a barrel extra for replacing oil lost from Iraq, while the Kuwaitis tacked

WITH A LITTLE HELP from international relief agencies, the Somalis have managed to make up the difference in what they have had to pay, but countries like India and Brazil, dependent upon Iran or Iraq for large percentages of their imports, suddenly have faced a huge jump in their hard currency payout for vitally needed petroleum supplies.

In 1974, Brazil had a total bill of $12 billion for all imports, with oil taking up 14 percent of that. This year, it will take $12 billion to pay for oil alone with petroleum 55 percent of the total. The alternative supplies to make up for loss of Iraqi oil alone meant an unanticipated $2 billion jolt in the past

With inventories worldwide running 400,000 to 500,000 barrels higher than normal for this time of year, and with economic recession and already higher prices sharply dampening demand, the shuffling around of available supplies was handled with relative ease. The officials who labored so hard to avoid a panic at the onset of the war have succeeded, so far.

The United States wants to keep the oil rerouting on a strictly informal basis to avoid having any of the 21 members of the International Energy Agency trigger the selective sharing part of the agreement under which available oil supplies are shared on a more formal basis. Officials fear that this would only give impetus to a renewed scramble for oil at any LONDON (AP) - ABritish linguist fed one million words into a computer and came out with a surprise: Americans use the English language more correctly than the British.

Based on a comparison of everything from newspapers to novels and government documents, Lancaster University professor Geoffrey Leech said that, strangely enough, Americans seem to pay more attention to the rules.

He said his computer study of transatlantic texts also turned up some intriguing cultural differences in the way the language is used.

"The British tend to assume they are the guardians of the language and we let the language take care of itsaid Leech interview.

'The evidence is that the Americans are more careful than we are, perhaps more guilt-ridden about the language." Among other things, he said, Americans are less likely to begin a sentence with "and" or "but," to match a singular noun with a plural verb, or to begin a sentence with the word "firstly." The findings come from a preliminary analysis of parallel computer studies — of one million words each — carried out at Lancaster and at Brown University in Providence, R. I.

"The English language is the last great cultural legacy of the British empire," Leech said. "It is essential that we should be as fully informed as possible about the way English is being used in practice."

After feeding American and British texts into computers, the researchers found that the British tend to more frequent use of words associated with gentility and aristocracy, such as sir, madam and gentleman. An American is more likely to say grandma. Americans use male words like he, boy and man more often than she, girl and woman, the study found.

Quality of foreign medical school education questioned in study

By JANET STAIHAR Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government report expressed concern on Friday that Americans who attend foreign medical schools and return to the United States to practice are not as well prepared as U.S.-trained physicians.

Gregory J. Ahart, director of the General Accounting Office's Human Resources Division, told a House health subcommittee that the most serious shortcoming of some foreign medical schools is a lack of adequate clinical training facilities.

In testimony accompanying the GAO report, Ahart said his office's study looked into questions raised by Congress about the quality of medical education in those foreign medical schools most willing to accept

Many Americans who apply to foreign schools are not accepted for study in the United States because of intense competition for a limited number of positions. Ahart estimated that up to 11.000 Americans are now enrolled in foreign medical schools.

GAO officials, for their report, visited six foreign medical schools in the Caribbean, Mexico and Eu-committee's health subcommittee.

The report from the GAO — Congress' investigative arm — said that there are no adequate means of evaluating the education and training provided by foreign medical schools.

Several remedial steps were suggested by the —Setting up a worldwide accreditation system for all medical schools.

-Establishing a better examination for students wishing to enter graduate medical education or to receive medical licenses in the United States.

—Establishing an accrediting body in the United States responsible for determining whether students who attend foreign medical schools are properly prepared.

Aplex, Inc., manufacturers of precision power pumps for oil field enhanced recovery, has opened headquarters production facilities in Midland.

Aplex delivered its first pump in June of this year and has since begun taking orders on a regular basis. Pump production is steadily increasing with present ouput at 8-10, A-50 Triplex plunger pumps per week. In addition to the A-50 Triplex line, Aplex produces and has in stock 85 and 125 horsepower low and medium pressure Triplex plunger pumps.

They are also designed and manufacture sectional billet fluid ends which are available in 4340 or 316 stainless steel. These special billet fluid ends are available for each of the three sizes of pumps, and offer working pressures of up to 10,000 psi.

Aplex, Inc., was founded by Bruce McKague of Applied Mechanics, Inc., and local independent oil operator Marshall S. McCrea. For production purposes, McKague and McCrea have purchased five CNC (Computer Numerical Control) machines which were intalled and are currently engaged in production at their Midland facility.

Aplex has incorporated two structural innovations in the design of its Triplex pumps. First, the addition of an eye-bolt attachment allows the pumps to be easily transported with a small forklift. Second. the incorporation of mounting lugs on the pump securely accommodates an electric motor or lubrication

Court ruling may give banks tax break

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Banks in Texas may end up with a tax break, if the Texas Supreme Court agrees with a Dallas appeals court's decision overturning the method used in assessing the value of

Bank of Texas and Wynnewood Bank & Trust attacked Dallas County's taxation of bank stock for 1979, losing at the district court level, but winning on appeal.

The two banks argued that banks are discriminated against by being the only type of financial institution which has its capital stock subject to ad valorem taxes.

The appeals court decision doesn't reach that argument (although it does note that there is statutory authority for such

It does say, however, that Dallas County erred in the way in which it calculated the value of the bank stock, because it included the value of federal securities held by the banks.

The appeals court said federal law "exempts United States obligations from being considered in the computation of any state or municipal or local tax.'

'The tax here in question is illegal because United States obligations were included in determining the actual cash value of the property to be taxed," the court commented.

Officials in Dallas say they're appealing the decision to the Texas Supreme Court, adding that the ruling would mean that banks - which aren't taxed on their inventories or equipment would be taxed only on real estate.

Banking officials say the tax for banks would be reduced overall but that effects would vary from bank to bank, depending upon the amount of federal obligations they hold.

Houston Rep. Frank Hartung has pre-filed two bills to increase the number of citizen members on the State Depository Board and State Banking Board from one each to three each.

Public hearings are planned in Austin, Houston and Odessa Dec. 11 by the Texas Air Control Board on proposed revisions to the 'State Implementation Plan' for meeting federal air quality standards.

Proposed major revisions include simplified public notice procedures for persons seeking construction permits, and allowing facilities unable to meet curent limits on opacity emissions to apply for alternate opacity standards.

The requirement for control of volatile organic compounds in Ector County is to be deleted, because recent measures of air quality indicate levels no longer exceed the national standard for

Also to be considered is a so-called "bubble policy" to allow facilities to control alternate sources of emissions instead specified sources, with each plant being considered as a single source — instead of having each source within a plant being required to meet certain specifications.

TACB says most of the changes are in response to the request by Gov. Bill Clements that agencies "review and, if necessary, revise their rules and regulations for efficiency and effectiveness."

Now Merrill Lynch has solved these problems for you with an excitingly innovative package of financial services available to anyone with investments and/or cash totaling $20,000 or more. We call it the Cash Management Account

You have many investment choices.

Here's how it works. Once you have signed up for the PMA service, you invest in any securities you wish, and trade as you wish. You may buy and sell securities on credit or for cash, and borrow a percentage of the market value of your marginable securities if you desire. (Remember, trading on margin has its risks and is not suitable for all

You have immediate access to your money—whenever you want, and anywhere in the world. To draw against the assets in your account, just write one of the bank cheeks we provide, made out to anyone you want! Merrill Lynch is not a bank and does not hold itself as one.

All such checks are repaid from your Merrill Lynch Cash Management Account service in whatever way is least costly to you. If there is cash in your account, this is drawn against first. Then, if necessary, additional funds are obtained by liquidating the required number of shares of the Money Trust. Of course, no money is deducted until your check clears. Your money is kept working until the last possible minute.

You can even write checks for more than you actually have in your account. The difference automatically becomes a loan against the Money Trust and the margin limits of your securities portfolio. You may pay off the loan whenever you wish - there is no time limit and there are no required. monthly payments. And any cash appearing in your brokerage account (dividends, sale proceeds, etc.) automatically reduces the principal amount of the loan. Special VISA card too.

What if an establishment won't take your check? Draw through a special VISA card. It looks like the regular VISA card and will be honored wherever VISA cards are taken. You can also use the card for instant cash at 80,000 banks

What about paper work?

You'll hardly have any. Anytime you want to learn how much money is available to you, just call our toll-free number. And once a month you get a comprehensive statement listing all security transactions, all dividends (taxable and nontaxable), check-writing and VISA card activities, and a reconciliation of your account day by day.

WASHINGTON - Two years ago,

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

the overthrow of Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza by the rag-tag Sandinista rebels seemed to be no more than a revolutionary pipe dream. I sent my reporter Bob Sherman to look into the situation on the spot and find out who the Sandinistas and their supporters were.

He reached them through neighboring Costa Rica, which had offered refuge to the rebels. The Sandinistas were not only given the wherewithal to train their fledgling army in Costa Rican jungle encampments, but were provided sanctuary after hit-and-run raids across the border into Nicara-

Sherman's first contact with the Sandinista directorate was in San Jose, the Costa Rican capital. From there he traveled north to the province of Guanacaste, where he visited a rebel camp well within Costa Rican

Although the Costa Rican government formally denied knowledge of the Nicaraguan camps, the Sandinistas were operating quite openly in Guanacaste. My reporter stayed with them. Once, he saw a Costa Rican policeman arrive with a truckload of food for the Nicaraguans.

The Costa Ricans' not-so-secret support of the Sandinistas was an act of political courage. Somoza repeatedly condemned Costa Rica for its role, and threatened to invade his neighbor. It was no idle threat: Costa Rica has no army, only a civilian police force. Somoza's Americantrained, American-equipped National Guard could have crashed across the border with no trouble at all. Nuisance raids on Nicaraguan army outposts, which served as valuable training for the Sandinista guerrillas, were sometimes launched by rebels who would cross the border in civilian clothes, then pick up arms aragua to enter the competition for and uniforms hidden on the Nicaraguan side. After the attack, they would stash their military gear at a safe house and take the bus back to Costa Rica

Cuba's back-stabbing puts countries at odds

The government in San Jose not only turned a blind eye to this clearly provocative, illegal behavior, but also offered refuge to several of the Sandinista leaders in exile. In short, the Nicaraguan revolutionary government owed a heavy debt to Costa

But such political debts are quickly forgotten when a government finds amnesia expedient. The Costa Ricans have recently found out just what the new Nicaraguan government's friendship is worth.

To the disgust of many in Latin America and other Third World countries, Nicaragua turned on its old ally, Costa Rica, in a shabby scheme engineered by its new ally, Cuba. The Nicaraguans played cat's paw for Fidel Castro at Costa Rica's ex-

Israel experiencing the best of times, the worst of times

WASHINGTON — These have to be the best and worst of times for Israel. Just when Free World nations, cool toward Israel for its Palestinian policy, were once again reminded by the Iraq-Iran war that Israel lives at a dangerous address, well, Israeli troops shoot at Arab students, wounding 11, and making it all look like Kent State University.
So Prime Minister Menachem

Begin, visiting the U.S. to build good will, hurried home to see what is the matter now. An Arab refugee leader, reputed to be an Israeli stooge, has murdered. Unarmed Arab teenagers are fired on by trigger-happy Israeli troops. The Labor Party threatens to unravel Begin's rightwing, "Moral Majority" coalition government. Israel is hardly a stable

And yet, there is validity in Begin's argument on Meet the Press that the Iraq-Iran war punctures the myth that the Arab-Israeli conflict is the sole cause of instability in the Middle

The Arab andor Muslim nations do not need Israel around in order to fight like cats and dogs. The Middle East seethes with religious and tribal conflict, and nowadays, the oil bonan-za finances the heavy ambitions of swashbuckling Arab strong men like Libya's Moammar Kadafi and Iraq's nt Saddam Hussein. So, jet planes zoom over oil fields, fities, towns and villages, spraying utilets and bombs made in the U.S.A., ance or Communist nations, dies of fellow believers in Islam pile dies of fellow believers in Islam pile their toll. Arab unity is a joke, as the radical Arab states line up with Iran, and the more moderate states stand with Iraq

Still, 16 Arab nations plan to attend a summit conference scheduled for Amman, Jordan's capital, next week, though Yasser Arafat is running around trying to get it postponed. Such a meeting can only result in a ruckus, and maybe even cause more tension and hostile actions.

For Israel, the meaning of all this turmoil, fighting and bloodshed is renewed recognition that their small nation exists in a volatile region. Israel must be able to defend itself against any reckless assault, including nuclear. The U.S. has made sure that Israel has that defense capability, and France has probably provided e nuclear means. When Israel looks around the Middle East, it can only see shifting sands, perishable alliances and constant squabbling. True, Israel is the focus of much of this belligerence, but the feuds and spats would occur even if Israel were located in the middle of

So, while Israel can correctly point out this fact of life to the U.S. and to

European nations which have become increasingly less sympathetic to the Jewish state because of its policy toward the occupied Arab lands, Israel could score even another point by taking actions to diminish the notion that it is turning into an essentially military state. Last week, Begin went on about how the PLO is a terrorist organization and how Israel must combat terrorism. But those Arab students who threw rocks at well-armed troops of the Israeli occupying force are not terrorists. Those Arab youngsters are probably much like the Jewish youngsters who threw rocks at British troops in Palestine 35 years ago, but weren't shot at by the Brits. The world knows this, and wearies of Begin's tirades about terrorism. It is the harsh policies of the Begin administration which cause Arab youngsters - and some oldsters as well — to rise up against their military occupiers, even though the odds are lopsided against them. No people want to live under an occupying army, and what goes with it - lack of freedom, censorship, arrests and jailing without warrants, and, sometimes, beatings and bullets.

Indeed, the PLO thrives on this occupation. The PLO perversely loves the Begin government, as do all real enemies of Israel. The truth about Israel today is that it is a society torn by the promise of peace and the siege mentality, plagued by 150-200 percent inflation, organized crime and corruption, and debilitated by a sizable out-migration of citizens, who are fed

Israel has become to dependent on U.S. foreign aid and weaponry that its morale, courage and pioneering spirit have been sapped. Dr. Nahum Goldman, former president of the Jewish World Congress, was one of the pioneer Zionists and a great believer in Israel. In recent years, from his selfimposed exile in Switzerland, he has become increasingly pessimistic about Israel, calling it a "travesty" and "the antithesis of the heroic character of Jewish history. But pessimists like Dr. Goldman. estimable scholar that he is, can be proven wrong. The Jewish people have been knocked around enough through the centuries that they have the wisdom to end the corrosive militarism which inevitably accumulates during a long occupation such as that conducted on the West Bank and Gaza Strip. There are Israelis possessing good minds and hearts who know what to do. Wrong-headed, hard-line fervor is not the answer.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Texas may not be two-party state—but it's not one-party state

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle called members of the State Democratic Executive Committee to Austin over the weekend for a post mortem of the election results — which he called "disap-pointing."

But the Sherman attorney, in a memo announcing the meeting, said Texas "is still Democratic," and that victories in the Railroad Commission races, the Supreme Court races and the large majority of local races prove this.

Well, there's still debate as to whether Texas is a two-party state or

But it seems pretty clear Texas no longer is a one-party state.

Texas always has had Republicans," one observer says, "It's just they didn't used to call themselves that in public.'

Another popular theory is that it's all those folks moving into Texas who don't know about local folkways and customs, and just vote for Republicans because they aren't as enlightened as Texans.

Another popular theory - particularly among Republicans - is that the Democratic Party has moved away from the mainstream, in Texas and nationally, and is now reaping a bitter harvest for having done so.

Whatever the reason, the GOP in Texas is alive and well — and kicking vigorously.

And prospects appear good for the party's continued growth, particularly in the legislature.

Republicans remain a minority in the House of Representatives and the Senate, but in 1981 they stand a chance of making their influence felt to a greater extent than has been the case in the past.

In the House, the GOP holds 36 of 150 seats — a fairly sizeable block — while in the Senate, Republicans hold seven of the 31 chairs.

Speaker Bill Clayton, running for his fourth term as the House's highest officer, enjoys the support of most of those 36 in his re-election attempt.

There's been speculation that Gov. Bill Clements has aided in herding that support over to Clayton; certainly, Clements and Clayton's only challenger, Rep. John Bryant of Dallas, have little love for one another - as they've noted on several occasions.

At least some of the GOP members should find themselves in chairmanships once the session gets under way, and presumably their voices will be heard as well — at least to whatever extent is possible — during the crucial redistricting efforts.

GOP officials have made no secret of the fact that they regard the redistricting effort as vital to their party's well-being for the next decade — and that they intend to see that "Republican" districts get as much consideration as "black" and "Hispanic" districts.

Redistricting, of course, is bound in this time with a multitude of federal requirements and guidelines and restrictions — but there is some latitude and discretion, and political practicalities dictate that when latitude can favor a friend or a non-friend, it will be the former who benefits.

Interestingly, the minority groups in the House will come close to being the size of a majority in 1981 — and that is likely to have some impact on

Counting the members of the Black Caucus and the Mexican-American Caucus and adding in the GOP shows a total of 64 — with 76 a majority in the House.

In many cases, the interests of those groups don't and won't intersect - but redistricting is one area where some otherwise unlikely alliances are

One key question may be how redistricting divides up along rural and urban lines - since that could help throw the political minorities and the ethnic minorities, which are predominantly urban, up against the largely white, male Democratic rural

But, of course, the rural group also tends to be more conservative, taken as a whole, which raises the question of how far the GOP members might want to go in helping to create districts which might be likely to elect members whose political philosophy differs from theirs.

It will be a curious balancing act but it appears that the GOP does have enough weight that it can tilt matters in its favor (while avoiding upsetting the whole system.)

The Senate is, and always has been, a different breed of cat from the House — and it appears that the tone of the Senate will be more uniformly conservative in 1981.

Since senators have fewer colleagues to deal with, they generally manage to run things in a more efficient manner - or at least make it look more efficient.

The GOP should fare comfortably in the Senate's redistricting as well.

One of the more interesting aspects of the Senate for the next session will be trying to decide which members will be running for Lieutenant Governor - with Sen. Bill Meier of Euless. who headed up Democrats and Independents for Reagan-Bush, thinking about converting to the GOP and becoming a candidate.

Tyler Sen. Peyton McKnight says he's dropped his plans to take on Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, but there are bound to be some other potential candidates lurking around that green wool carpet and the outcome of redistricting could make some of them decide one way or another.

Crime Watch

To The Editor:

The Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department and the Altrusa Club of Midland have joined forces in a neighborhood crime prevention program to reduce crimes against individuals and homes in Midland. Police Sgt. Lalo Camarillo stated that people helping people, and aware of home crime deterrents, can make a tremendous difference in our community. Midland Altrusa Club and the Astra Club it sponsors are emphasizing their Neighborhood Crime Watch program to help.

Every day's news broadcast or issue of the newspaper tells of breakins, attacks, thefts and vandalism. Crimes of this nature are on the increase in our community. Neighborhood block parties are being planned where neighbors meet together to learn how to reverse these statistics by denying the opportunity for crime. The police department will provide materials to mark property and make an appointment to show (at no charge) how homes can be secured. The purpose of the block parties is to encourage neighbors to share in the effort to solve the crime problem in Midland, at the same time they learn how to protect themselves, their valuables and their families.

People in each neighborhood over the city working with others in their neighborhoods can make a difference. A block party will only take an hour or so. A representative of the police department and the Altrusa Club will help set up meetings and be there with a planned program and materials to help neighbors take effective steps against crime. $13 fine could not be that important to the city budget.

This practice of the Traffic Division of the Midland Police Department is ridiculous and must stop. Apparently, some of the officers in the Traffic Division have no judgment at all. It is this type of conduct by police officers that diminishes respect for law enforcement at all levels

This is not intended as a criticism of our police department as a whole or of Chief Gideon, who is my friend; rather, it is a criticism of a few officers working the Traffic Division who are adversely affecting public opinion by their actions. It is hoped that this practice will stop immediately.

This is to say a very special and sincere thank you for the excellent treatment I received at Midland Memorial Hospital the five days I was there. The room was immaculate. I have listened via television and read several publications on the positions of Moral Majority and while I disagree with some aspects of their efforts, I find the main thrust of their program acceptable. What concerns me is the tone and reasoning of those who object so strongly

In past letters to this column, Sulli van, October 26, 1980, who finds perversion and violence, and would have us lay ourselves prostrate at the feet of Godless opressors, to the recent Rev. John S. In the love of Our Lord Jesus Christ there is no majority or minority, there is only "Oneness.

It's easy today to accept the humanistic concept of changing values and morals, but nobody ever said being a Christian was easy. It's a challenge every day and the good Lord knows we fail so often, but it is in this challenge, this striving that we find the abundance of love and guidance from our Lord Jesus Christ. J. M. 'No Ball At All'

To The Editor:

The time has come to start thinking about the forthcoming holiday season with its festive round of balls, open houses, debutante parties and other gala social events that make up the annual seasonal spree. What a pleasant prospect for those who can go to

But let us not forget that there are many less fortunate people in our affluent city who will not share in such self-indulgent festivities. So, with the thought that perhaps something can be done to make life a bit happier for them let's have a "No Ball At All Ball." What is that, you ask.

Let me explain. Firstly, a night in the holiday season is selected — any night at all and everybody attends the "No Ball At All Ball" merely by staying home. During the course of the evening (and perhaps after a glass of Gallo instead of Dom Perignon) each ball-goer prepares a list of what expenses would have been had one attended a really top-dog blowout.

For the lovely ladies this would include such essentials as a new ball gown, perfumes, flowers, cosmetics and related jizzums, the hairdresser and furs. In similar fashion the male list would include provision for subscription tickets, booze, a floppity store-tied tie, transportation, ruffled shirt, haircut, rental of one of those curious garments now passed off as a dinner jacket and other such expenses that fall the lot of men in such situations. And then to bed for a good night's sleep!

But the party is not over yet. On awakening one writes a check equivalent to the listed expenses not spent (it won't be a paltry sum) and mails it to any one of the numerous worthwhile Midland charities. Everybody wins the ball-goer has a warm feeling of having done something helpful and Midland's poor have a happier holiday season. Try it, you'll like it.

Of many needs

To The Editor:

If Midland County's application for a $2,250,000 Comprehensive Grant is approved by HUD, it will not be as a result of "scrambling around for a need," but rather of selecting one among many.

The reason there is a citizens' participation component of the program is to be sure the people themselves are given the chance to tell the county commissioners for what purposes they think the money should be spent. Only after their input can the county decide how to use the funds. It is required by HUD that these meetings be held, and a complete plan must be submitted with the application, not put together after the grant is ap-

The Midland Housing Association already had one plan in mind when we recommended that the county apply for a Small Cities Block Grant; b are aware of other needs for which the money could be well spent.

We urge Midlanders to attend these meetings. If you cannot be there, write to the county commissioners, but let them know what you think. Meetings are scheduled on Dec. 3 at Edison School and on Dec. 15 in the commissioners court. The meeting on Dec. 3 is to hear your recommendations. Money from this grant must be spent outside the city limits - in any direction.

There will be meetings for the city of Midland's CDBG application and the Midland County CDBG application. Make a note of the dates (city meetings - Nov. 24 and Jan 12), and take part in local government decision making. For more information about the Small Cities Grant, for which the county will be competing, call the Midland Housing Association between 8:30 a.m. and noon. Betty Sheeler Midland Housing Association Board Member

POSITIVE THINKING

Thanksgiving should be more than day of year

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

On Thursday, Americans all over the world will again be observing our great national day of Thanksgiving. The purpose of Thanksgiving Day is to remind us to be grateful for God's bounty, which has permitted us to grow as a nation from humble, threatened and often starving settlements on the shores of New England and Virginia to our present size and pros-

But there are other important aspects of Thanksgiving of which we should also be reminded. One is to cultivate the attitude of gratitude for personal blessings. Just suppose you did not have them! I remember Dale Carnegie told how he had once tried an experiment of deliberately imagining that he had lost everything: his health, his job, his family, all his friends. Mentally he pictured that he had lost everything. Then in his thoughts he dwelt upon the sad state of affairs into which he had fallen. And the more he thought about it the more unhappy it all seemed. Then, he said to himself: "The wonderful truth is that I do have all these things. I haven't lost them at all. I do have my health. I do have my job. I do have my family and my friends." Instantly he felt a great burst of happiness and realized how grateful he should be. He became intensely thankful for the everyday blessings

he had been taking for granted. Actually this is excellent psychological procedure and I recommend it to you when you get to feeling that life is treating you badly. It is a good exercise for Thanksgiving Day. Take your own inventory of your everyday blessings, either mentally or in writing, and then consider how terribly bereft you would be without them. You will gratefully find that you have so very much to be thankful for, not only on Thanksgiving Day but all the year round. I remember one night on a trip to the West Coast, I had a terrifying dream. I dreamed thay my wife had died and I went through all the agony of losing her. I awakened in abject agony of spirit. Then my mind cleared and I realized that it was only that I immediately put through a long distance call to her. When the operator finally got her, I asked, "Is that you, Ruth?

"Yes, of course. Why did you call me so early in the morning?'

"You know, Ruth," I said, "you have the sweetest voice in the world. Just talk to me. I called only because I wanted to hear your sweet voice."

"Norman," she asked, "what in the world happened to you? Why so romantic...wanting to hear my voice?" The she frugally commented, "This coast-to-coast call is costing money." But the call was more than worth its cost to me. How ecstatically grateful I felt for her in my life.

You see, the simple things, the things we take for granted in our everyday lives, are never quite that simple, and should never be simply taken for granted. They are very precious and very wonderful. We should be everlastingly grateful for them. Let this Thanksgiving season, then, be for each of us a time to count our blessings and to be really grateful for them. Let it also be a reminder that thankfulness to God is not a metter for Thanksgiving Day alone, but for every day of every year. There is a fine Thanksgiving Day prayer written by the great English preacher of Elizabethan time, Lancelot Andrewes. Although more than 300 years old, it expresses thoughts which each of us may profitably use today. Perhaps you might like to read it for the family when you sit down to Thanksgiving dinner.

"O Lord my God, for life and reason, nurture, preservation, guidance, education; for Thy gifts of grace and nature, for Thy calling, recalling, manifold recalling me again; for Thy forbearance, long-suffering, and long long-suffering toward me, even until now; for all from whom I have received any good or help; for the use of Thy present good things; for Thy promise, and my hope, of good things to come; for all these things, and for all other, which I know, which I know not, manifest or secret, remembered or forgotten by me, I praise Thee, I bless Thee, I give Thee thanks; and I will praise, and bless, and give thanks a dream — and what a relief that all the days of my life. Amen."

The offense?

On a balmy day, the late-model Volkswagen is southbound on Big Spring Street headed toward downtown Midland. Nearing downtown, one of the patrol cars of the Midland Police Department falls in behind the Volkswagen, tailgates it, changes lanes with it and otherwise pursues it down Big Spring Street with rotating lights flashing and sirens wailing. The Volkswagen is stopped in the downtown area where parking is not permitted on Big Spring Street, thus creating a traffic hazard (the rotating lights are still flashing.) The driver, as is customary, identifies himself and the police radio is used to determine if the driver is a wanted criminal or if the vehicle is stolen. All of this consumes about fifteen minutes of time. The offense? Armed robbery? Child molesting? Bank robbery? Excessive speed? No, an expired inspection sticker. Certainly the > never cried in front of anybody When I came home with torn clothes, cut knees and bleeding elbows after rollerskating, my mother would clasp her hands and run for the band-aids. Father only smiled approvingly. His smile helped me to forget the pain.

> But I liked being a girl. The new Easter dress with the pink ruffled sleeves distracted from the hateful short haircut, and the pleats falling softly over my knees almost hid the scabs completely. When I turned suddenly on one foot like a ballerina, the skirt opened up like a bellflower, and I wished that my hair could also open up and fly freely with the turn.

Father wrinkled his nose in disgust at anything pink, soft or lacy. So I was both boy and girl. I won the school's track race that summer. He glanced briefly at the trophy, then slapped my shoulder awkwardly (I wanted him to hug me) and told me to stop crowing. The softening of his steel-blue eyes as he scanned the shiny statue was almost as good as a hug, but I could not stop crying like a girl. So I thought, the hell with trees and cuts and bruises, and I let my hair grow shoulder-length and wore bellflower dresses even on ordinary days.

The other impediment to our relationship was that conversation tended to be onesided. Father liked to talk, but didn't care to listen. Sometimes he shared his wartime experiences. Then his face would lose the usual cautious expression of worry (Father owned a large contracting business, which allowed little reason for relaxing.) He often described the cold winter he spent in Poland and the Soviet Union as a foot soldier during World War II. His recollections were very eerie and vivid. I could hear the snow crunch under his heavy army boots, and I could see the ugly ditches and hear the distant gunshots; I could even sense the presence of the enemy in the uneasy stillness of alien ter-

After Father had finished, I often would remain spellbound for a minute or two. Then I would eagerly tell him about the latest adventure story I had read in which Winnetou, the bravest Apache Indian ever, endured similar experiences as he tried to save his people from the White Man's vengeance. But Father didn't care to listen; he told me that he had read the same book when he was younger, and that the stories were only make-believe. So I thought, the hell with the ugly ditches in Russia, and in the privacy of my room I went off on another adventure with Winnetou.

I grew up and went away. Father never answered the letters that I wrote from California, but we stayed in touch by telephone on birthdays and holidays.

Finally, it was time for my homecoming. Father didn't seem to have changed during the past six years. He wore the same baggy suit, he drove the same make of automobile, and his eyes were as steel-blue and clear as ever. But he had changed, and so had I. Now he was willing to listen. But I had nothing important to say. I told him about the sunny Christmas we had, and he told me about carrying the tree through four feet of snow. told him how happy I was to see him, and he admitted that he missed the sound of my quick footsteps racing up the stairs. When I asked him whether he had ever been a child, he said no. Then I cried like a little girl, and he gave me a hug. So I thought, the hell with the sunshine in California, and I stayed at my father's house much longer than planned.

Father had learned about children late in his life, but not too late. When his first granddaughter came for a visit, he talked babytalk to her. Then he let her climb on his lap even tho she was crying for no reason at all.

DEAR FRIENDS

Thanksgiving's just 'round the corner. Some of us are jumping ahead of the game by preparing as much as we can ahead of time so we can enjoy more of the festivities.

Just the thought of loved ones coming in - some we haven't seen since last year sets our heads to spinning with anticipation and joy. Such a blessing!

Truly we do have a land of plenty with more blessings than we could ever count.

Sometimes we feel no one is as bad off as 'little ole me,' but look around. There's always someone.

So, as Thanksgiving draws closer, take time out each day this week to count your blessings, and thank the Good Lord for each one of them. 'Cause, believe you me, we sure can't thank Him for all in just one day! And you can be sure that each and everyone of you will be at the top of my list of bless-

DECK THE WALLS

DEAR HELOISE This idea I learned from a friend.

She had one wall in her bathroom papered in a pretty stripe pattern. The rest of the walls were painted in a complementing color.

SHAY'S BED-MAKING TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

Thanks for writing.

I sometimes find it hard to make my bed as neat as my mother would like it to be. So, for children with neat minded mothers, I have a hint.

If you are making your bed in the morning and find it hard to get all the wrinkles from the bed, turn off the light and, presto! Instantly, you can see all the mishaps to correct!

If you use this method, your mother will be happy with your neat bed and you will be happy, because you don't have to redo the job.

HOORAY FOR CRAFTY JOHN DEARHELOISE

I like to put together models made out of other parts. So when I don't have axles for the wheels, I cut up a coat hanger with wire cutters.

John Lowell, Age 11 Maybe someday you'll be designing the real thing.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER DEAR READERS:

This is unusual for ME to be giving YOU a letter of laughter, but this one I couldn't pass up.

As some of you may know, two of my secretaries are mother and daughter and, believe it or not, even in "Heloise's office," there is the inevitable communication

While trying a hint of repairing a broken zipper (i.e. loosen the zipper just enough to cut the end off, rethread the pull tab onto the zipper teeth, then sew a new stop on the end and retack the zipper in place), the telephone rang (doesn't it always!). "Mother" went to answer the telephone, asking "Daughter" to fix the zipper. Daughter, not knowing exactly what Mother had in mind, proceeded to rip out the entire

Ever try sewing a zipper BACK into a garment? Yuk! You can imagine the panicked look! Oh, well - all's forgiven

LOOP A ROLLER

DEAR HELOISE:

I've found a comfortable curler to sleep on. I bought those soft sponge hair rollers and removed the plastic rod and clasp.

Using a bobby pin, I threaded the stocking strips through the hole in each roller. This left me with a loop extended out each end of the curler.

Now I roll up my hair on the curler and slip the loops over opposite ends of the curler.

They stay securely in place. The first few times you try this, you may get in a hurry and not get each loop unfastened and think you have a tangled up mess, but with a life tle practice and care, you won't have any trouble.
