Petroleum Club moving

By SUE FAHLGREN Staft Writer

Over 30 years of tradition will come to an end this week as the Petroleum Club opens Monday at a new location in a newly-constructed, marble-fronted facility at the corner of Marienfeld Street and Wall Avenue.

The club's old residence at 219 N. Big Spring St. has been its only location since the club was chartered in 1947. In 1948, the members of the fledgling Petroleum Club bought the old G.W. Wolcott Home from Henry Black, an oil man who formed his own company in 1946.

The Wolcott Home, built in the late 1920s, was one of the finest residences in Midland's beginnings. The house, orginally built by George Wolcott who later sold to Black, included virtual mansion-quality conveniences for its time. It was later renovated and refurbished several times, but the general feeling for the historic home has remained with the members of the Petroleum Club.

The club itself was begun in 1947 by a group of oil men who met regularly for lunch at the Scharbauer Hotel Coffee Shop. The group wanted to form an oil-related luncheon group that would dedicate itself to the pro-

The Petroleum Club was chartered in Dec. 1, 1947 with about 35 members. On Oct. 7, 1948, the club held its first presidential ball in the Wolcott residence. And by Oct. 8, 1948, the Petroleum Club was in full operation at the Big Spring Street residence.

In 1949, the club elected its first president: John W. House. There's been 32 presidents elected since that time, including the 1980-81 president

Ted Collins. Throughout that time, some well-known names in the oil industry have been elected to the post—one of which was H.E. "Eddie" Chiles Jr., now of The Western Company in Fort Worth, elected in 1954.

The membership has grown to more than 800 oil men since its beginning, with 20 charter members still involved in the Petroleum Club's operation.

The old club closed Nov. 27 and the new club is scheduled to open for lunchtime business on Monday. A winding stairway in the fresh new building may look a little different from the old Wolcott home, but the club will remain traditional.

The club will still be serving lunch Monday through Friday, but will add breakfasts on those days as well. With two dining rooms and a private dining room reserved for parties, there will be plenty of room to eat and talk about the oil trade — as the original members did in the coffee house.

Another tradition that has lived through the sexual revolution is the limited membership to men in the oil trade. As of December 1980, no women members have been permitted to join the fraternity of oil men.

Traditions die hard in Midland and although the place may look a little different, the work the members do will be the same.

SNYDER — A 15-year-old member of Midland High School's junior varsity basketball team died Saturday afternoon after collapsing during a game with the Lubbock Monterey JV in Snyder.

Milt Fitts, coach of the Midland JV team, said Saturday that Theodore "Teddy" Terrazas, son of Fred C. Terrazas and Margie Sanchez of Midland, was playing in the Snyder Junior Varsity Invitational Tournament when the Midland team called timeout about 3 p.m.

"He told me he was hyperventilating during that time — or felt like he was going to — so I sent in another player," Fitts said Saturday night from Snyder. "The game continued, and 5 or 10 minutes later — he was sitting down on the other end of the bench — the boys hollered at me that he had fallen over.

"I went over and several other coaches ran over and we laid him down and made sure his tongue was all right," Fitts said.

"At that time he had a pulse and was breathing and I called an ambulance to come out after him," he added. "They took him to the hospital. I called the game off right then and went on to the hospital as soon as I had the other boys back in the dressing room. I told them someone else would take care of them and headed on to the hospital.

"They worked over him there for a long time but never could get him to breathe," Fitts said.

Terrazas was pronounced dead at the Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room shortly after 4 p.m. The cause of death was unknown and officials at the Snyder hospital said an autopsy had not been ordered as of

Day of Infamy' was 39 years ago

By MICHAEL CARLTON Dallas Times Herald

HONOLULU — They came over the mountains, down the flank of Diamond Head, and along wide, sweeping Waikiki beach on their mission of death and destruction.

They sunk the Arizona and the Oklahoma and the Utah. They killed 2,403 civilians, soldiers, Marines and sailors, many of whom were trapped in the heavy steel hulls of their ships. And they left with the first American blood of World War II oozing into the sands of an early morning in Hawaii.

Although it was exactly 39 year ago
— a time when most Americans were not yet born — the attack on Pearl Harbor is as fresh in the memories of the nation as though it took place yesterday.

Today — Dec. 7, 1980 — Americans will be visiting the site of the attack as they do nearly every day, listening to voices of the past and thinking about wars of the future. A tour of Pearl Harbor remains the most popular visitor attraction in Hawaii, outdrawing the aquariums, Polynesian Cultural Center and the sugar mill tours. Each day the curious come as 13 million have since the Arizona Memorial opened on Memorial Day, 1962.

The free tour of the Arizona Memorial, which used to be little more than a boat ride with stiff commentary by Navy personnel, has improved immeasurably since October when the National Park S3rvice opened its new $5 million visitors center. The center, the newest of the Park Service's facilities, offers a more detailed look at the attack and the consequences of two hours of violence on a peaceful Sunday morning in Hawaii.

Visitors — as many as 3,000 daily —

Although waits can be as long as an hour, the center easily accommodates the crowds on its sweeping verandas or along the inner courtyard with its bubbling fountains. Soon, the center's museum will be open, featuring the events, people and machinery (a Japanese attack plane will be a focal point) of that December morning.

Before boarding the boats that take them to the Arizona, visitors view a

The Arizona. Symbol of Pearl Harbor, of World War II, of man's treachery toward man. Here, lying in 38 feet of water, the men of the Arizona still serve. There are 1,102 of them entombed in the battleship. Only 75 bodies were recovered after the single Japanese bomb pierced the magazine of the ship and sent it flaming to the bottom of its shallow anchorage. The Arizona, flag ship of the proud Pacific fleet, died without firing a shot in anger and with most of her crew still in their bunks as they died. Two efforts have been made to release the bodies from their underwater tomb, but on both occasions gas in the hull exploded, killing the divers working on the ship. So the crew is buried at sea forever, as much a symbol as the rusting hulk of the ship's superstructure.

As visitors enter the memorial and

As visitors enter the memorial and walk up the 10 steps to the broad promenade that bisects the shattered hull of the battleship, their reactions differ. Children race along the rails, parents gawk at the mural of the battle and grandparents, silently perhaps, stand by the number three gun turret, the only piece of the Arizona remaining above water.

But it is inside the chapel of the memorial, where the names of those killed aboard the Arizona are carved into marble, that the true tragedy of war is brought suddenly home. The list of the dead, from Hubert Aaron to Michael Zwarun, Jr. stands starkly black against the whiteness of the marble. The bodies of these men lay just a few feet beneath you. It is here that even little children are still and here that sailors from the Japanese Navy on a recent Friday afternoon stood, their hats over their hearts, and worshipped at this shrine to vio-

Midland jail's isolation cell 'not a dungeon', says chief

By KAY CRITES Staff Writer

Ethiopia and other parts of Africa,

"It's not a dungeon," Police Chief Wayne Gideon said recently about the isolation cell — referred to by many of the officers as the "sweatbox" — in the Midland City Jail.

The isolation cell is a jail cell, slightly smaller than the others, that is used to isolate belligerent, unruly prisoners. It has no furniture, no toilet facilities and no drinking facilities that might be damaged.

Speculation on the legal implications of the cell arose recently after publicity about a man who was arnested and would give officers no information other than his name was Santa Claus and he lived at the North Pole. A police spokesman said the man was placed in the "sweatbox" and his clothes were removed as part of a standard operating procedure.

"I really can't see why you have to remove the clothes — other than humiliation and punishment," Mark Withrow, a local attorney, said when asked about the isolation cell. "I wouldn't want to be in their (the police department's) shoes if someone filed suit. Of course, you would have to look at it on a case-to-case basis, but I am thinking they would surely have to have a darn good rea-

"It's very likely that (removing prisoners' clothes) is not a Police Department policy — that there may be a few who have done that and so far got away with it," Withrow added. "But I think if it was contested they would be hard put to come up with a good reason for it."

Withrow said it would be difficult to prevent that from falling into the category of violation of civil rights. "Even solitary confinement must be done with some discretion.

"I'm sure they'ye (police) prefaced it with saying that (stripped prisoners in the isolation cell) is only for a very short period of time, but even so, I think that would be pretty humiliating and hard to justify.

"But I'm thinking they would have gotten some sort of legal opinion. Someone has done some checking and research and told them they can do it, within reason, and then it's just a matter of whether they are using the proper discretion."

Several officers, who asked to remain unidentified, verified that stripping prisoners before placing them in the isolation cell occurs, but they also pointed out that it may be done for the prisoner's or the officers' safety. Clothing can be used by prisoners to hang themselves or to attack the offi-

"We don't have a 'sweatbox,' " said Gideon. "Of course, we do have such a cell.

"It's a cell where we have to isolate someone, usually for their own safety, for ours and the other prisoners. It's seldom used.

"It is not policy to strip the prisoners. Occasionally it becomes necessary — we have to resort to extreme measures if you have someone hanging themselves.

"There comes that point in time," said Gideon, "when someone has to be controlled and you have to resort to those things occasionally."

Gideon pointed out that there are no single cells in the adult section of the jail for isolating prisoners. Only the juvenile section has single cells.

"When we do get those who are extremely violent, on occasion we have to use it (the isolation cell) to isolate them. They're only left in an isolation-type surrounding for an hour at most.

"It's not a dungeon. It has no furniture or television and they get in there where there's no furniture or television or place to get a drink...You have to ask the jailer if you want a drink while you're in there. When they decide to behave we put them back in with the other prisoners.

"And," said Gideon about stripping the prisoners, "if you have some reason to feel he may try to hang himself, then its better to have him uncomfortable than dead."

Congress

still has work to do

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although most congressmen had thought they would be home on their Christmas recess by now, they are still usy lining up support in preparation of a showown on two civil rights issues early this week. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd on Satur-day said "the time is now" for passage of a housing bill, called by supporters the most important civil rights legislation in a decade.

Negotiators from both the House and Senate are trying, meanwhile, to work out a compromise on legislation containing language prohibiting the Justice Department from seeking court-or-dered school busing.

On the housing bill, Byrd said if he does not get the 60 votes needed Tuesday to end debate on the issue he will with-draw the bill. Republican conservatives agreed to stop a five-day filibuster on the housing bill last week in exchange for the st vote next Tuesday.

Opponents could block action on the measure for up to 100 hours even if debate is ended, but Byrd appeared deter-mined Saturday to see the legislaton to a vote if he is successful in get-ting debate cut off with a cloture vote.
"If cloture is invoked, the bill is going to be acted upon one way or the other before the Senate goes home," the West Virginia Democrat told reporters.

Some observers said that could mean Congress might be in session through the week and Byrd hinted likewise. Congress had been scheduled to recess for the Christmas holidays last

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill also has said he thought the anti-busing forces in the House could not muster the two-thirds vote to override a Carter veto in that chamber. Some sup-porters of the busing pro-hibition appeared confi-dent that even if they fail to get it enacted this year they will be successful next year in a Ronald Reagan administration. ### Blacks to continue boycott of schools

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) - Blacks seeking the dismissal of a white teacher who ordered a black child to wash her mouth with soap say they will continue a boycott of Dougherty County schools this week.

About 450 people — led by 7-year-old Sophia Davis - marched on the school board headquarters in this southwest Georgia community Friday demanding the firing of Jean Dozier, the teacher who administered the punishment Oct. 8.

Protest leader Kenneth Goseer said Sophia developed burns in her mouth and began spitting up blood after being forced to "hold in her mouth a substantial amount of a toxic detergent-like soap used to clean Goseer, labor chairman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the two-day suspension given the teacher was insufficient. He accused school Superintendent Paul Robertson of "not taking the incident seriously."

Absenteeism was about 30 percent in the county schools - about twice the normal rate - during the first day of the boycott Friday. State Rep. John White said the local black ministerial brotherhood agreed to resume the boycott Monday. The black, three-term legislator also said the ministers were considering a boycott of white-owned businesses 'until there is some justice given this matter.'

SIGN LANGUAGE

House For Sale signs can be misleading. For example, a buyer is working with one Realtor in town and sees a For-Sale sign with a different Realtor's name on it. There is a good chance he will not request information about that particular house because he thinks he might be bothering his broker. This is wrong. Under the Multiple Listing Service (MLS), one Realtor can provide them with information on homes listed by another Realtor using the same MLS, or for that for that matter, on nearly Cold weather and snow again may be nipping at Midland today and Mon-

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport has forecast a 20 percent chance of rain or snow tonight and Monday

Snowfall twice blanketed the Midland area last month.

The weatherman forecast partly cloudy skies today, with the temperature peaking into the upper 60s and plunging to upper 30s tonight. The high Monday is to be in the mid-50s.

Saturday high reading was 68 degrees, which was not close to the record high of 79 degrees for the date in 1951. The overnight low was 58. while the record low for the date is 20 degrees in 1976.

Sunset today will fall at 5:44 p.m. Sunrise Monday will be at 7:37 a.m.

Khomeini appeals for national unity

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini appealed for national unity Saturday, saying the superpowers had hatched 'devilish" plots to divide Iran as it battled Iraq.

Iraq claimed its forces downed five U.S.-made Iranian warplanes in Kurdish-populatzd northeast Iraq. A communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said four F-5s and one Phantom F-4 were shot down in dogfights with Iraq's MiG-21 fighters and by antiaircraft fire over Suleimaniyeh and Darbandikan.

Both cities were the targets of six Iranian air attacks Friday and Satur-day. Iran's tactics appeared aimed at cutting supply routes from Iraq's Kurdish provinces to northwest Iran which also has a large Kurdish popu-

In an address broadcast by Tehran Radio, Khomeini blamed the United States and the Soviet Union for causing Iran's internal divisions that surfaced at the start of the Iran-Iraq war 76 days ago.

"The superpowers, who lost hope in the war or a military attack, are now beginning their devilish activities, trying to separate you from each other and cause dissent among you,' Khomeini said. "Our people must wake up and understand those who want to create dissent ... want to invade your country and take away

It was the third time in less than a month that Khomeini sounded the alarm about disunity. Khomeini, a Moslem fundamentalist, said, "If the people are separated from the clergy and the clergy from the people, the superpowers will have a feast."

Khomeini's representative on Iran's Supreme Defense Council, Sayyed Ali Khamenei, declared in Tehran that final victory against Iraq was "within sight," the official Pars news agency said. Both Iran and Iraq claimed gains along the 300-mile battlefront in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan province. Western reporters have not been allowed to approach the war zone for

Iran and Iraq claimed to have mounted fresh helicopter gunship raids against each other's positions in Khuzistan, while fires from air and artillery bombardment gutted oil installations of both countries on the Persian Gulf's northern flank.

An Iraqi communique said its helicopter gunships raided Iranian positions in the refining city of Abadan, the provincial capital of Ahwaz about 85 miles to the north, and the highway town of Susangerd 30 miles east of Ahwaz. It said Abadan was ablaze with Iranian forces unable to break a six-week Iraqi siege of the city.

Iranian broadcast's reported Iranian counterattackers mounted overnight attacks on Iraqi positions along the northeastern and eastern approaches to Abadan, killing 30 enemy infidels.

The morning was beautiful, even for Hawii, and most of the men on Battleship Row on the southeast side of Ford Island were sleeping, or going through the motions on another perfect day in America's paradise.

As the Japanese commander heading the first formation of planes later wrote: "Pearl Harbor was still asleep in the morning mist. It was calm and serene inside the harbor.

That calm was soon shattered as two waves of Japanese warplanes, 353 in all, began to savage the 96 American ships in port. From the first shot, fired at 7:55 a.m. to the last about two hours later, the Japanese had scored their greatest victory. In two hours time the Imperial Navy had killed three times as many men as the American Navy lost in all of the Spanish-America War and World War I combined. The Japanese sunk 18 warships, destroyed 92 Navy aircraft and 96 of the Army Air Corps, killed 2,403 and wounded 1,178. The Japanese lost 29 aircraft and 185 men. One hapless midget submarine operator was captured - the first Japanese

But the Japanese, despite their successful sneak attack, failed in their ultimate goal: the crippling of the Pacific fleet. None of the three American aircraft carriers, the vessels that were to be the heart of America's Pacific attack, was in the harbor and all escaped the attack; the repair facilities on Oahu were not damaged in the attack, and soon 13 of the 18 ships sunk in the attack were once again afloat and battling the Japanese: the United States submarine base on Oahu was untouched and was soon sending out the slim carriers of destruction against the Japanese fleet; the oil storage tanks on Oahu were not hit and the storage tanks supplied the fuel for the furious counterattack by U.S. ships and air-

And, possibly most importantly of all, the raid on Pearl Harbor became a rallying point for a nation going to war. "Remember Pearl Harbor" was a phrase on the lips of Americans throughout the world as they battled the Japanese and the Germans and their allies. This once-peaceful harbor became a symbol that to this day brings chills to visitors of all ages visitors who travel from throughout the world to spend a few minutes to remember that bloody Sunday 39 years ago, a day that will, in the words of President Franklin D. Roosevelt "live in infamy."

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) - A man who telephoned police to claim responsibility for the slayings of seven hikers has now contacted a San Francisco television station, authorities said Saturday.

A spokesman for KRON said a man claiming to be the killer phoned the station four times in a three-hour period Friday beginning around 7 p.m.

"I'm trying to get some help, OK? But they just want to lock me up, the caller said in a tape broadcast Friday night. Police have appealed to the killer to contact them for psychological treat-

KRON assignment editor George Ramirez said Marin County officials confirmed that the man was the same who called a police hotline three times within 25 minutes Thursday night to say he was the murderer in Marin County, an affluent suburb, just north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

"They were able to identify him through a clue he gave them that he also gave us," Ramirez said, adding that he could not divulge the clue. "We played the tape for them, and they also said the voice was the same

Since August 1979, three hikers have been slain on Mount Tamalpais and four people have been killed at Point Reyes National Seashore. The bodies of three women and a man, all hikers, were found last week in thd National Park preserve about 25 miles north of San Fran-

In a tape broadcast Friday night, the man told KRON he wants help but does not want to go to prison.

Sheriff's Capt. Robert Gaddini, while refusing to disclose specifics of the police conversations Friday, said that a psychological profile of the killer fit the caller. The man claimed responsibility for the killings and hung up twice during the conversations.

"He acted as a spoiled child and alleged that he knew more than we did." Gaddini quoted Napa psychologist R. William Mathis as saying.

The profile depicts the killer as a sexually frustrated, intelligent, hyperactive young man who carefully stalks his victims

Congress amended the Fair Labor Standards Act in 1977 so that the minimum wage floor would rise gradually to the $3.35-an-hour rate that becomes effective in January. Prior to the congressional action, the minimum wage was $2.30 an hour.

Carter resisted attempts by business groups to win a delay in implementation of the 20-cent-an-hour pay raise that took effect last Jan. 1. These groups had contended the hike would fuel inflation. During the election campaign, Reagan talked often of the nation's unemployment problem, asserting that the minimum wage was so high that it was causing undue hardships for young people entering the labor market.

"Recent increases in the minimum wage have worsened, rather than improved, the economic wellbeing of the poor and disadvantaged," he said at one point. He even advocated elimination of the minimum wage.

1980-81 cotton harvest resumed

ABILENE - The 1980-81 cotton harvest has been resumed after interruptions by the November snows, according to B.B. Manly of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service here.

Most all of the cotton has been defoliated by the recent freezing weather, and fields have dried sufficiently for the cotton harvest to re-

Local cotton prices ranged from 30 to 37 cents per pound over the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) loan values. Price declined by one-half cent to one cent per pound at mid-week, but advanced about the same

Staple 31 cotton was in greater demand.

Most mixed lots sold from 69 to 79 cents per pound.

Cottonseed prices paid producers ranged from $110 to $125 per ton. Cotton classed during the week was about 6 percent white, 40 percent spotted, and about 54 percent light-spotted. The average micronaire reading was 43. Fiber strength tests averaged 85,000 pounds per square inch breaking strength.

Figures released on cotton usage

LUBBOCK — How much lint cotton is in an ordinary shirt, blouse or pair of blue jeans?

But the Arizona Extension Service did a little checking and found out and then determined just how many pants, shirts, towels, diapers and other garments and articles can be made from a 480-pound bale of cot-

A bale of cotton will make 330 pairs of men's blue jeans and 328 pairs of women's jeans; 764 men's shirts and 896 women's blouses; 1,217 T-shirts; 542 skirts; 782 bath towels, 364 dresses or 3,015 diapers.

Those figures presume that the items are 100 percent cotton, according to the Plains Cotton Growers Inc., which gleaned the calculations from the agricultural extension service.

All told, there's about 11/2 pounds of cotton in pair of blue jeans; six-tenths of a pound in a man's shirt; less than a half pound in T-shirt, nine-tenths of a pound in a skirt, six-tenths of pound in a bath towel, one-half pound in a blouse, 1.3 pounds in a dress and only .15 pounds in a

Siegmund honored for service

FORT STOCKTON - Ray D. Siegmund, retired director of the 22-county Far West Texas district of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, has been honored in ceremonies for TAEX retirees at Texas A&M University at College Station.

He was presented a plaque for his TAEX service by Giles W. Dalby, president of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas and by Dr. Daniel C. Pfannsteil, TAEX director.

Siegmund served as district director for 24 years. Before that, he was county agent in Haskell, Bell and Wheeler counties. TAEX's Far West Texas District is headquartered in Fort Stockton.

Grazing land needs proper care

OVERTON — Due to the high cost of winter pastures, the grazing land needs to be managed properly, according to Dr. Randall Grooms, area livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"With the tremendous expense involved in developing winter pastures, serious consideration should be given to how they are managed," said Grooms, "For example, Don't graze pastures too soon. Allow forage to reach a height of six to eight inches before grazing so that plants will be vigorous and some forage can be stockpiled for the months in which growth is slow.

"If plants are grazed too short too early, forage production will be reduced later in the season," he said. "At the same time, we need to get some grazing off the tops of these plants to promote tillering, development of a strong root system and resistance to freezing.

Thousands mourn Portuguese prime minister

LISBON, Portugal (AP) - Thousands of weeping mourners lined the route of Prime Minister Francisco Sa Carneiro's funeral cortege on Saturday in an election-eve farewell to the political veteran whose death in a plane crash thrust the country into political uncertainty.

Portugal is observing five days of official mourning for Sa Carneiro, but presidential elections, the first since a 1974 revolution, will go on as scheduled. Sa Carneiro died en route to a campaign rally for Gen. Antonio Soares Carneiro, the prime minister's party's candidate. The cause of the crash has not yet been determined.

Sobbing women waved white handerchiefs as the procession wound along the Tagus River and through 10 miles of streets from the 16th-century Jeronimos Monastery to Alto de Sao Joao Cemetery. Many of the estimated crowd of 100,000 fell in line behind the hearse and drivers brought up the

The numbers of mourners was an indication there may be a surge of sympathy votes for the three-party Democratic Alliance led by the moderate rightist Sa Carneiro. Until Sa Carneiro's death Thursday night, President Eanes appeared to be leading among the electorate.

Slogans like "the struggle will go on" and "Sa Carneiro, friend, the people are with you" signalled redoubled efforts by Sa Carneiro's party to get the conservative Soares Carneiro

Eanes had a 19 percent lead in opinion polls before the start of the two-week campaign. He had received 61 percent of the popular vote in June 1976 with the backing of Sa Carneiro's Social Democrats, former Prime Minister Mario Soares' Socialists and deputy Prime Minister Diogo Freitas do Amaral's conservative Social Democratic Center.

Political analysts said the Democratic Alliance's choice of Soares Carneiro narrowed the gap, but still favored the incumbent

U.S. probes possibility of military complicity in killings

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - A U.S. presidential commission headed for San Salvador Saturday to look into possible military com-plicity in the killing of three American nuns and a social worker.

The body of a Salvadoran justice of the peace was found in the same area where the women's bodies had been found, police said, and relatives said they believed gunmen mistook him for another justice who helped identify the women and signed burial

The U.S. group is headed by William D. Rogers, a former assistant secretary of state for Inter-American Affairs with close ties to the incoming Republican administration. Another member is Assistant Secretary of State William Bowdler, a former ambassador to El Salvador.

The State Department announced the mission Friday night, saying it had been approved by the Salvadoran government and would report to President Carter and aides to Presidentelect Ronald Reagan this week. The announcement came hours after the State Department said it was suspending U.S. economic and military aid to the country until it could be learned if military forces committed

The delegation's itinerary is being kept secret by the U.S. Embassy here as a security precaution, and it is not known exactly what it will do.

Sporadic violence continued across the capital Friday night. Bombings were reported at the local headquarters of the 3-M Corp., a bank and a fried chicken restaurant. Gunfire was heard across the city. There were no immediate reports of casualities.

The American delegation group is expected to meet with at least some Salvadoran officials, and possibly with Roman Catholic Church sources who say they have indirect evidence that the Salvador military was responsible for the killings.

"Now the time has come to act and we are going to act," U.S. Ambassador Robert White said at a funeral for the nuns on Friday. Local peasants found the bullet-ridden bodies Wednesday southeast of this capital city and authorities said the women were murdered the day before.

No one has claimed responsibility. The ruling civilian-military junta has said the killings were the work of extreme rightists, and the murders follow a pattern of rightist assassination squads that work in El Salvador

Services for the Rev. B.A. "Buck" Rogers, 77, of Greenwood will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Greenwood Baptist Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery directed by Newnie

W. Ellis Funeral Home. Rogers died Friday in a Midland hospital following a heart attack.

He was born July 4, 1903, in Terre Haute, Ind. His early life was spent as a vaudeville actor in a family-owned traveling show business out of Terre Haute. In 1932 he was called to the ministry and pastored in Shawnee, Okla., while at the same time acting as band master at Oklahoma Baptist University. He attended school at the Southern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth and Baylor University at Waco.

In 1934, he met and was married to the late Annie Lee King, daughter of pioneer Midland County rancher J.M. King of Greenwood.

In 1935, Rogers pioneered the Emanuel Baptist Church of Odessa. In 1945 he moved to Whittjer, Calif., and pioneered a church there. He then moved to Lampoc and established a church there. He retired in 1969 and since has served as interim pastor at Ventura, Calif.; Syracuse, N.Y.; Kalispel, Mont., and Riverside, Calif.

He returned to Midland in 1974 and served as interim pastor at Kentucky Street Baptist Church. For the past year he had resided in Brownwood. Rogers was a member of the First Baptist Church of Early.

Survivors include his wife, Gladys Rogers of Midland; a son, Gene Rogers of Riverside, Calif.; a daughter, Violet Orr of Cali, Columbia; two laughters, Pat Franklin of Riverside, Calif., and Tammy Herron of Roby; two brothers, Sigel Rogers of Big Spring and Dick Rogers of Houston; four sisters, Olive Cauble of Big Spring, Jeanette Turnmire and Sun-day Brush, both of Whittier, Calif., and Cherry Jo Wilson of Chester, Calif.; nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — A 44-year-old Minnesota state representative died of natúral causes Saturday while on a horseback trip in the Gallatin Range, officials said Saturday.

Gallatin County Coroner Doris Fisher said no foul play was involved in the death of Marlin "Doc" Nelsen.

Nelsen, a chiropractor from Aitken, Minn., did not run for a third term in Nelsen, who had been staying in Gallatin Gateway for about three weeks, had ridden on horseback Friday with another man to a hunting camp above Gallatin Canyon.

The coroner said that Nelsen became ill about 3 p.m. Friday and his companion was unable to get him back to camp. The Minnesota law-maker was placed in a sleeping bag and sovered with extra clothing before help was sought.

A new machine now available in Midland will open up about 30 hours of programming a week for those who previously got little out of television the hearing impaired.

TeleCaption, a device that can be attached to any television, prints the program's dialogue — or captions on the screen. The captions are white letters on a black background.

The Lions Club and Sears held a oint demonstration of TeleCaption Saturday at Sears, the only outlet for the machine in Midland. The Tele-Caption adapter or converter costs $250, or a television with the equipment built in is available for $530. The TeleCaption converter is in-

According to a Sears' release, "closed captioning is a new television service created for the more than 14 million hearing-impaired Americans, many of whom find it difficult to understand the dialogue of most television programs.

TeleCaption translates that dialogue into captions which appear on the screen.

So far, only NBC, ABC and the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) are involved in the TeleCaption program. CBS, said Lion George Weis, is working on it.

Hearing conservation is one of three programs in which Midland's Lions are involved. The other two are sight conservation and a children's camp in Texas, according to Weis.

In connection with hearing conservation, the Lions have been active in placing teletype communicators in 14 homes in Midland so that the deaf can communicate via telephones.

Continental by strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) Continental Airlines its service cut in half by a flight attendants strike, said Saturday it was losing an estimated $1 million a day in holi-day season business.

About 200 supervisors from various departments were brought in to substitute for the 1,774 striking attendants, who were picketing for a second day in a wage and working condition dispute. Pilots and mechanics were crossing picket

Continental spokesman Julian Levine said normal daily revenue for the airline is $2 million when all 324 scheduled flights carrying an average of 21,000 passengers are operating. Only 147 flights, or 47 percent, were able to lift off for the second straight day Saturday.

The airline normally serves some 40 cities, primarily in the western United States, South Pacific, Mexico and Cana-

Levine said the Los Angeles-based airline was providing at least some flights in virtually all the cities it normally serves. The only exceptions, Levine said, were cancellation of flights at four small feeder airports in the Los Angeles, San Francisco and Miami areas.

"All of our reservations people throughout the country are working with other airlines to readjust," Levine said. He said there was still sufficient room on other airlines to book displaced passengers:

But with the busy Christmas season approaching, other airlines such as Western and American were considering whether to add flights to help absorb displaced Continental pas-

The key issue separating the two sides is wages, negotiators said.

Attendants now earn from about $12,000 a year for first-year workers to $22,000 a year for a 13year veteran. Those scales include premium and overtime pay.

Dalton Byerly, director of the Midland Animal Control, faces death, disease and neglect every day as he helps care for the hundreds of animals brought to the shelter each month. Some 350 dogs and cats are put to sleep each month after being brought to Animal Control. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

He sees animal death, neglect daily

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

Dalton Byerly, director of the Midland Animal Control, has had a lot of experience with death, starvation and neglect — of quite a few animals. Over the years, Byerly has worked in several states setting up several animal care and control centers. And, over the years, he has been involved with the deaths of more than 30,000 unwanted ani-

Having been with the Midland group for a little more than two years, Byerly calls himself an orga-

"I enjoy the management end (of the job)," he said. "I think we have made this one of the best animal control centers in Texas. Since I came, things are coming along," Byerly said.

"I got into animal work because I needed a job," he said bluntly. "I'd always been drawn to animals."
When he was a teen-ager he went to work as a veterinarian's helper.

"I've been an animal control officer since 1949," Byerly said. "You do not necessarily like a job like this." which involves billing a since 1949," which involves killing animals, he said. "But you have to have something to do in your lifetime that's important," he added.

Byerly said the "population of animals has so greatly increased," that animal euthanasia has to become a reality. "One female dog can produce a phenomenal amount of offspring in one year," he said. "And those are the animals we're talking about" when he speaks of killing to control a population, he said. "We're talking about the surplus. Some 350 pets a month are part of the "surplus" that Byerly says has to be controlled. "I just wonder what would happen if they weren't he said, pondering the number of strays, spread of disease and animal starvation caused by over-population of domestic animals. "Our attitude toward what we're doing is what could we do with them if we didn't kill them?" he said.

"We're keeping the birth rate down by 350 a month and we're stabilizing the stray dog problem in Midland," he said. While some might call Byerly a cynic, he feels he is a rationalist. "Walt Disney has done more to hurt animals than help them," he said, "simply because he has made them too human." Byerly said people often feel sorry for animals and get pets they cannot care for many of which later end up at the properly center.

In addition, some people are afraid to take their unwanted pets to the center because most remaining pets are killed after three days there - and take their pets to the country to let them loose, Byerly said. He said he felt letting them loose is more cruel because the pets end up getting run over, starved to death or killed by predators they have no innate fear

Byerly said there is a difference between dogs and cats which are family companions and those that "live at these houses and are not companions." The animals which are companions, he said, are the ones who are cared for and are really part of the family. The others, he said, are the ones which could be at the shelter for a few days before the owners even realize the animals are gone.

It is the population of animals just living at houses that produce the major quantity of "strays" that get loose and end up at the center.

Byerly said some 28 percent of the animals at the center are "adopted" by new owners instead of injected with an overdose of anesthetics. But, the center answers some 500 "complaints" a month on animals in the city and an average of 150 dead animal pick-up calls. But, Byerly isn't discouraged.

"I enjoy this work. We always wish we could put ourselves out of business," he said, "but we couldn't an President Hafez Assad was quoted Saturday as saying Syria's disputes with Jordan could be resolved "without fighting."

Syria leader says war with Jordan unnecessary

In an interview with the conservative Kuwaiti daily newspaper al-Rai al-Am, Assad also claimed credit for containing the Iranian-Iraqi war by persuading Iran not to attack Persian Gulf Arab states sympathetic to Iraq.

Assad said he sent 50,-000 soldiers and up to 1,-200 tanks to Syria's border with Jordan to force Jordanian King Hussein to stop supporting Moslem Brotherhood guerrillas in Syria and to keep Jordan from joining the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations. The fundamentalist Moslem Brotherhood is opposed to Assad's Baath Party.

New search uncovers no evidence in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — A four-hour search of a southwest side neighborhood Saturday turned up some animal bones and clothing but apparently no evidence connected with the deaths and disappearances of 15 black children, authorities said.

About 200 volunteers turned out for the eighth consecutive weekend search of woods and abandoned buildings in low-income

Since July 1979, 11 black children have been killed and four others have disappeared. The victims have been between the ages of 7 and 15. A 35-member police task force assigned to the cases has received help from psychics and out-of-town lawmen, but has reported no breakthroughs in the crimes.

The search Saturday, coordinated by the United Youth Adult Conference, centered on an area of southwest Atlanta where the bodies of two victims — Alfred James Evans and Edward Hope Smith, both 14 - were found. Evans was suffocated and Smith shot to death, officials said.

The animal bones and pieces of clothing collected by the searchers Saturday were similar to items turned over to police in earlier weekend forays.

Among those taking part in the effort were five instructors from a self-professed anti-terrorist school in suburban Powder Springs. Tracking dogs were also used.

In the first search Oct. 18, the body of the 10th victim -7-year-old Latonya Wilson — was found, but subsequent searches have failed to provide police with new evidence.

Martin County Junior Livestock Show Jan. 15

STANTON — The annual Martin County Junior Livestock Show featuring calves, lambs and swine raised by youngsters in the 4-H Clubs and in Future Farmers of America chapters in Stanton and Grady will be held Jan. 15-17 in the Martin County Community Center and fair barns.

The show is sponsored by the Martin County Championship Club, which is dedicated to "youth development" by way of involvement in livestock programs.

"We usually have a lot of good animals in the show," said Sara Blocker, championship club promoter and a 4-H Club-FFA booster.

Traditionally, calves exhibited by Martin County boys and girls win grand championship blue ribbons and "big money" in regional and state

"We enjoy it (livestock showing) so much — maybe that's why we always do good," she said. "We've got a great bunch of people." The championship club's annual Appreciate Dinner to salute contributors to and supportors of the club will be held at 6 p.m. Jan. 17 in the Martin County Community Center.

Transit shutdown strands Bostonians

BOSTON (AP) - The city struggled through its first day of a transit shutdown Saturday that cut off rail and bus service to 200,000 weekend riders and sent holiday sales plummeting. But a legislative group reached a compromise that could get the system running again by Sun-

Some 100 National Guardsmen, called up by Gov. Edward J. King, patroled silent train yards as leaders in suburban communities drew up plans for getting workers into the city on Monday if the system was still shut

The 1,500 buses, trains and subway cars operated by the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority stopped running at midnight Friday when the Legislature was unable to meet a court deadline to supply additional funding to keep the country's fifth largest mass transit system afloat.

Rep. John J. Finnegan, co-chairman of the legislative conference committee, said early Saturday that a compromise had been reached between conflicting House and Senate plans to supply the MBTA with the $41 million needed to make it through the end of the year.

Finnegan said a vote on the plan was scheduled for late Saturday. MBTA spokesman Paul DiNatale said the transit system could resume full operation within six hours of final approval of a bailout plan. Downtown merchants estimated they could lose $6 million daily in revenue from the shutdown. Several shopkeepers, eyeing empty stores, listened to the radio Saturday for news of a settlement.

"Look around you - we have seven employees, and one customer in our first 45 minutes of business," said Steve Vinciquerra, merchandise manager of Bob Smith Sporting Goods. "We'll probably close down early unless there's a settlement or an increase in shoppers.'

Many Boston residents turned to cars, taxis or their own feet to get around Saturday, while several neighboring communities used school buses on some MBTA routes.

"We're just very grateful that our salespeople made it in," Weston Figgins, chairman of the board of Filene's, a major downtown department store, said early in the shopping day

The MBTA, the nation's oldest mass transit system, last month depleted its entire 1980 budget of $302 million. King declared an emergency and authorized additional spending, as he did last year when the transit system ran out of money.

The MBTA advisory board, which controls the transit agency's budget, took King to court. The Supreme Court agreed with a lower court judge that King acted illegally and gave the state one week to come up with additional funding.

The Legislature agreed that $10 million of the needed $41 million could come from additional fare income. But an impasse developed when the House demanded that the 79 cities and towns within the MBTA network pay for half of the remaining $31 million, and the Senate pushed for the state to absorb the full cost.

Health Systems hearing will review four certificate of need applications

The Projects Review Committee of the Permian Basin Health Systems Agency will hold its public hearing on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission at Midland Air Terminal.

Purpose of the public hearing is to receive public testimony on the four certificate of need applications submitted by three area hospitals.

Southern Cal stuns No. 2 Notre Dame, 20-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern Cal Coach John Robinson felt he was sitting atop the world. Notre Dame's Dan Devine felt the world had caved in on him.

"If ever I've seen a team victory, this was it," the jubilant Robinson said Saturday after the 17th-ranked Trojans defeated previously unbeaten and second-ranked Notre Dame 20-3. "That was the greatest exhibition I've ever seen on defense."

"I'm numb," said Devine after his Irish, now 9-1-1, almost certainly lost their chance for the national college football championship. "I've never felt any lower in my life.

"I'M IN a position where I'm very disappointed in myself. I'm frustrated, embarrassed and disappointed," added Devine, who announced earlier that this season would be his last at Notre Dame

Tailback Michael Harper scored a pair of touchdowns, Eric Hipp hit two field goals, and the Chip Banks-led Southern Cal defense overpowered the Irish in the victory.

Harper, a sophomore helping to fill in for the injured Marcus Allen, put the Trojans ahead to stay when he raced six yards for a touchdown with 8:23 remaining in the second period. His second score came on a 10-yard jaunt that climaxed a 70-yard drive with 1:09 remaining in the game.

"It was a USC football team you saw out there," said Robinson. "All along, this has been a great group of men and not once have they lost ASKED ABOUT speculation he may leave Southern Cal now for a National Football League coaching job, Robinson first brushed aside the question, saying he only wanted to talk about the team. But he added, "I'll probably be back at SC next

After the nationally televised contest played before a crowd of 82,663 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, Devine said he was thankful the Irish still have a Sugar Bowl date left with top-ranked Georgia on New Year's

"I don't want this team to be remembered for this game," he re-marked. "We've played some great football, and winners regroup. Hipp added a 22-yard/field goal

later in the second quarter to give Southern Cal, which finished its season with an 8-2-1 record and snapped a two-game losing streak, a 10-0 lead at the intermission.

Harry Oliver cut the difference to seven points when he kicked a 30-yard field goal with less than a minute remaining in the third period. The three-pointer came after the Trojans' defense had twice stopped Notre Dame near the USC goal line, including one stand that began when the Irish had first and goal at the Southern Cal 3-yard line.

BANKS SET up Hipp's second field goal when he intercepted a Mike Courey pass at midfield and returned it to the Notre Dame 1-yard line. A penalty moved the ball back, and the Trojans settled for a 17-yard field goal by Hipp early in the final period.

All the game's scoring except Harper's final touchdown was set up by errors. Safety Dennis Smith recovered a fumble by Notre Dame's Phil Carter at the Irish 31 to set up Harper's first scoring run.

A roughing the kicking call against Notre Dame and a pass interference penalty shortly later that put the ball at the Irish 14-yard line led to Hipp's first field goal.

Oliver's field goal followed Dave Duerson's recovery of a Harper fumble at the USC 5-yard line.

Notre Dame was able to record just one first down in the opening half, that coming with 10 seconds left before the intermission. The Irish now lead the series with the Trojans 27-214, but USC has a 10-2-2 record since

Permian muscles Amarillo, 27-0

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

LUBBOCK - Odessa Permian muscled its way past the Amarillo Golden Sandies, 27-0, here Saturday afternoon in a Class AAAAA state quarterfinal football battle in Jones

Coach John Wilkins' Panther defense chalked up its ninth shutout of the season by choaking off the Panhandle team's bid for an upset by alertly picking off five Sandie passes and picking up a fumble.

Mark Glasscock, Mojo safety, picked off two passes by Sandie quarterback Randy Aufleger and recovered a fumble for his best defensive performance for Permian, which now goes into the semifinals against the Highland Park Scots next weekend at a site to be determined. Linebacker Mike Williams had an interception while Bobby Massey and Jack Kenner also picked off Amarillo aerials.

GLASSCOCK PICKED off a Aufleger pass on the Sandies' second possession of the game and returned it 36 yards for the first touchdown of the afternoon. Roy Dunn booted the PAT and Mojo had enough points for the victory with 7:31 left in the opening period Kenner had intercepted an Aufleger while, ends its season w pass on the third play of the game at the Amarillo 27, but the Sandies reers picked off a Jerry Hix pass at the

While Glasscock, Williams, Massey and Kenner were having field days in the secondary for the Panthers, it was the tough running of tailback Kent Sager and fullback Phillip Crain that moved the Mojo offense.

SAGER SCORED touchdowns on runs of four and 19 yards and rushed for 78 yards on 11 carries and Crain picked up 65 yards in 14 cracks into the tough Sandie line.

Mark Mathiasmeier, a hard-running 190-pounder, cracked for 94 yards in 24 carries to break the Amarillo single-season rushing record, but Mojo's rugged defense was too tough for the Sandies with their deepest penetration coming at the Permian 27 late in the fourth period and that drive was kept alive by the game's only penalty, a two-yarder on the Panthers.

Permian added another touchdown in the second period on Sager's fouryard run which was set up by an 11-yard scamper by Hix to the Sandie four. Dunn's PAT made it 14-0 with 8: 30 left in the first half.

Glasscock picked off a Sandie pass and pounced on an Amarillo fumble later in the period, but the Panthers missed a scoring opportunity when Dunn's 24-yard field goal was blocked with 28 seconds left in the half.

"Our drive at the offset of the second half helped us control the ball and was the key in the second half." said Wilkins afterwards. "Although we didn't score, we held on to the ball and ate up a lot of the clock.

Sager's 19-yard scamper with 1:30 left in the third period more or less drove the final nail in the coffin of the Sandies. Dunn missed the PAT, but Mojo held on to a 20-0 lead going into the final period.

BACKUP QUARTERBACK Coy Brown, who will most likely be at the throttle next season for the Panthers. capped a 36-yard drive with a oneyard plunge and Dunn's PAT made it 27-0 with 5:01 left.

Mojo missed two other chances to score in the final period when Dunn missed a 39-yard field goal and Mike George missed a sure TD pass from Hix in the end zone

Chaparrals smother Tigers

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer

The Third Annual Chaparral Classic ended the same way it started for the Midland College Chaparrels. The Chaps raced past an outmanned St. Phillip's College Tiger crew from San Antonio, 110-80, to capture the firstplace trophy and raise their season mark to 11-0.

The Green and Gold had five players in double figures; led by Charles Johnson, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, with 21. Scotty Tutwiler flipped in 16, Puntus Wilson and Virgil Slay netted 15 each, and big Ernie Tate racked up 10 counters.

Midland took control of the ballgame right from the opening tip. The Chap's aggresive defense forced the Tigers into numerous ball handling errors that led to easy MC buckets.

Johnson and Slay combined for 12 early points as the Chaps built up a 27-11 margin in the first nine minutes of the contest. While MC was scoring at will, St. Phillip's couldn't hit from the field and was losing the war of the boards badly. At the half, MC was on top 60-32.

Midland played perhaps its poorest half of basketball over the last 20 minutes of play. The Chaps missed easy shots, let St. Phillip's control the boards and couldn't get their running game going smoothly.

Actually, the Tigers played MC close the second half; losing only 50-48. But because of the early Chap domination MC rolled to the tournament crown.

MC coach Jerry Stone said, "I'm glad its over, now we can concentrate on the conference games coming up this week. We face three conference teams starting Monday." Stone also stated, "I was glad we could get everyone to play tonight. No, I don't know why we were so flat except this was our third game in three days. But you will see better games."

Eddie Williams led the losers with 17 points. St. Phillip's lost three games in the tournament and take a 3-3 mark back to San Antonio.

IN AN earlier game, the Howard College Hawks survived an Eastern Arizona College comeback to nip the Gila Monsters, 88-86.

Randy Corker, the Hawks main man with 31 points, had a chance to seal the victory with a free throw and only one second left. Corker missed the shot; Bob McBreen grabbed the rebounded and hurled a baseball throw at the bucket; it hit the front of the rim and fell off.

The game was nip and tuck all the way. Howard stormed out to an early 28-17 margin only to see the Gila Monsters stage a rally and go into the dressing room at the half holding a 42-37 advantage.

Corker, who had only seven points at half, rallied the Hawks with 24 second half points. HC ran off eight straight points to open the second half and grabbed a 45-42 lead. EAC tied the game at 45 and 47 but was never able to gain the lead again as the Hawks always came up with the key bucket or defensive play.

With the victory HC raises its record to 9-3. EAC drops to 3-3. A new tournament record was set by Corker. By scoring 92 points in the three games Corker broke the old record of 62 points set by Ron Akins of Howard in the 1979 tournament. Howard also set a new team record with its 128 points Thursday night. The old record was 120 established by Midland College in 1979.

In the first game of the evening Odessa College easily outclassed Laredo Junior College, 99-76. The Wranglers jumped in front early and were never seriously challenged by the slower and smaller Palominos.

Steve Sula lead the Wranglers with 17 points. Craig Ehlo and Danny Ray Wright added support with 17 and 12 points respectfully. Thomas Baker took game scoring honors with 22 points. Dwight Dickey with 14 was the only other Laredo player in double figures.

Named to the All-Tournamet team were: Danny Ray Wright and Craig Ehlo, Odessa; Randy Corker, Kenneth Jones and Ron Akins, Howard; Lamar Jackson and Eric Bradley, Eastern Arizona; Anthony Howell, St. Phillip's; Puntus Wilson, Ernie Tate, Leif Hodges and Charles Johnson, Midland. Johnson was also named the Most Valuable Player. Ron Akins, Howard was the only repeater from last year's All-Tournament team.

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Quarter-back Rob Moerschell hit tight end Glenn Watson on a 28-vard touchdown pass with 28 seconds left in the game as Highland Park scored an amazing 23-21 comeback win over Plano Saturday in a Class 5A schoolboy football quarterfinal clash.

dies near Midland

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - Michael A. Lockett, a former receiver for the University of Texas football team, died about two hours after he was thrown from a car in a one-vehicle accident near Midland Friday.

of Fort Worth apparently lost control of his car as he passed another vehicle on an interstate highway just east of Midland.

The spokesman said the automobile smashed into a dirt embankment and rolled over onto its top. He said Lockett was thrown from the vehicle.

Lockett died at Midland Memorial Hospital at about 7:30 p.m. Friday. He played for the Longhorns in the 1976 and 1977 seasons. He scored Texas' only touchdown in its 38-10 loss to Notre Dame in the 1978 Cotton Bowl. Lockett, the first black student body president at Fort Worth's Eastern Hills High School, was dischared from the Army earlier this year.

A funeral will be held at 2:30 p.m Tuesday at Good Hope Missionary Baptist Church in Fort Worth.

Roy Hartsfield to pilot M-Cubs

Former major league manager Roy_ Hartsfield has been named to pilot the Midland Cubs in the 1981 Texas League race. Hartsfield's previous managerial assignement was three seasons with the Toronto Blue Jays of the American League While the 55-year-old Georgian couldn't do a whole lot with the expansion club, he comes to Midland with impressive managerial credentials, nevertheless. What's more, he is no stranger to West Texas, having managed Odessa's Sophomore League club in 1958.

HARTSFIELD'S baseball career began with Atlanta of the old Southern Association and eventually took him to the Boston Braves for three seasons. His first managerial assignement was with Des Moines in the Class A Western League and his eighth place finish that year was the low mark of his career.

He finished first with Panama City in the D Alabama-Florida League in 1960 won the Florida State League pennant at St. Petersburg in 1964 and in 1965 won the Texas League West at Albuquerque in 1965 before beating Tulsa in the playoffs.

Before going to Toronto, the 5-9 170 pound Hartsfield spent seven seasons in the Pacific Coast League, winning West Division firsts at Spokane in 1967 and 1968 and then winning division and PCL pennants at Hawaii in 1975-

Seminoles holding national title hopes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Coach Bobby Bowden faced his third-ranked Florida State football team at halftime Saturday.
"Men," he told them, "we're only down one point less than we were against Nebraska."

Thoughts of a possible national championship were far from Bowden's mind. Instead, he was concerned about just winning the game from arch-rival Florida, which led 13-3 at the intermission.

BUT THE Seminoles, who overcame a 14-3 deficit to beat Nebraska 18-14 two months ago, pulled off another second-half rally, nipping Florida 17-13 on touchdown passes of 19 and 20 yards from Rick Stockstill to Hardis Johnson

"We played the first half like we had been off for four weeks," said Bowden, whose team had been idle for almost a month. "I was scared to death with that four-week layoff. If we had to do it again, I would still have delayed this game. You just can't turn down $300,000."

In the girls finals, Monahans took a 48-33 victory over Crane. Tela Ames led the Loboes to the title with 14 points while Crane was paced by Gloria Gonzales with 14.

The girls meet was a double elimination meet with Cohaoma beating Van Horn, 59-46, for third place.

While Stockstill generated some life into the Seminoles' offense, which was limited to 89 yards in the first half, the rugged Florida State defense, which surrendered 226 yards in the first two periods, held Florida's Gators to just 31 in the final 30 minutes and preserved its brilliant record of not yielding a point in the fourth period all season.

"The key to the game was the third quarter, when we came out and stuck it to them," Bowden said. "We made several adjustments in the second half defensively, and that helped turned the game around."

TANGERINE BOWL bound Florida, a two-touchdown underdog, stunned a record Doak Campbell Stadium crowd of 53,772, along with a national television audience, by taking a 13-3 halftime lead on a 53-yard pass play from Wayne Peace to Tyrone Young in the opening period and second-quarter field goals of 38 and 36 yards by Brian Clark.

Florida Coach Charley Pell said Florida State "came back after the half with excellent adjustments, beat us on one drive, got a turnover, and then we busted a coverage on a touchdown pass, and that was pretty much it for them."

The second half clearly showed Florida State's experience. The Seminoles started 15 seniors, more than Florida has on its entire travel

"I've never been so happy to see a graduation take place," Pell said. We should come and cheer at the FSU graduation ceremony.

No roses for Lee, MHS girls

AMARILLO - Midland Lee finished fourth and Midland High placed seventh here Saturday in the Amarillo Invitational Girls Basketball Tour-

Lee started the tournament Friday with a 62-55 win over Amarillo Caprock as Gale Wilson hit for 28 points, her season high. But the Rebels then suffered back-to-back loses, losing to Lubbock Monterey, 84-54, as Wilson hit for 13, and then ended up fourth in the tourney after losing to Amarillo, 59-27, as Wilson hit for nine points. Lee is now 3-5 on the season.

with a 69-31 loss to Amarillo High with Diane Hogan hitting nine and Julie Guyton scoring eight. Tracey Adams had 16 for the winners

In the second game, MHS fell to El Paso Burgess, 50-46, despite 22 points from Janice Littlefield. Kristin Ulmer had 25 for the winners. But MHS got another 21-point showing from Littlefield in a 54-40 win over El Paso Austin in the final game to move its season record to 2-6.

Both local teams ended up with 1-2 records in the tournament.

Howell may ink with Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Roy Howell, a free agent third baseman who played for Toronto last season, said Saturday that chances are good he will sign with the Milwaukee Brewers within a few days.

"I think by Monday or Tuesday, something should be decided, Howell said by telephone from his Shell Beach, Calif., home.

Howell said his agent, George Kalafatis, and Brewers' General Manager Harry Dalton have been meeting. Howell said that when he last heard from Kalafatis, "things seemed to be pretty close."

Dalton, in Dallas for major league ed he and Kalafatis "are about 75 percent along."

"I think Milwaukee has the most to offer," Howell said. 'I like what they have to offer, the team and what they can do. After playing with the ballclubs I did the last five years, my objective is to win. I'd like to play on a team that has a chance to win."

Howell, who will be 27 Dec. 18, batted .269 for Toronto last season. He broke into the majors with Texas in 1974 and was traded to the Blue Jays

Texas rips Long Beach

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Longhorns used 30 points from Henry Johnson and a 16-point first half spurt to beat Long Beach State 92-67 here

Saturday night.
Texas led throughout the game, stretching the lead to as much as 30 points in the second half. The Longhorns put the game away in the first half by scoring 16 unanswered points in 41/2 minutes. A tight zone defense anchored inside by center LaSalle Thompson, who added 15 points, smothered the 49ers inside game and held the visi-tors to six points in the last 10 minutes of the first half.

Johnson, a 6-6 junior forward, found repeated openings and hit a variety of strong inside shots to run up his game-high 30 points.

Craig Dykema, a 6-7 forward, led Long Beach with 16. Ray Reeves and David Johnson added 14 each for the outmanned 49ers.

The win was Texas' third in a row after a season opening loss. Long Beach fell to 1-2.

Kentucky survives Hoosiers, 68-66

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) -Fred Cowan and Sam Bowie scored 14 points apiece Saturday and Dirk Minniefield hit three free throws in the final minute to lift second-ranked Kentucky to a 68-66 college basketball victory over fifth-rated Indiana.

Kentucky trailed by six points midway through the second half but rallied with a string of 10 straight points and stayed in front on free throws in the closing minute.

A pair of foul shots by Minniefield put the Wildcats ahead to stay at 66-64 with 46 seconds to go. Indiana worked the ball for another half-minute before forward Charles Hurt stole the ball, and Kentucky called time out with 14 seconds left.

Bowie was then intentionally fouled and hit one free throw for a 67-64 lead. Indiana's Isiah Thomas, the game's leading scorer with 20 points, then drove for an uncontested layup with five seconds left. Minniefield was fouled on the inbounds pass and he sank the final free throw with two seconds to go.

Kentucky, now 3-0, held a slim 37-33 halftime lead.

Thomas, the Hoosiers' sophomore guard, then keyed a rally that gave Indiana a 47-42 advantage just four minutes into the second half. In that stretch. Thomas had three baskets, three assists and two steals, all of which scores for the Hoosiers, who

The lead reached 22 points on a basket by Smith before TCU scored eight straight points, six by Darrell Browder to cut the lead to 34-20.

But Illinois scored six of the last eight points of the half, all by Johnson, to take a 40-22 halftime lead.

Illinois extended the lead to 20 points at 44-24 before TCU, scored six straight points and 10 of the next 12 to make it 46-34.

But the Illini came back with nine straight points to extend the lead to 55-34. From then on, the Hornfrogs could come no closer than 19 points of the lead as the Illini coasted. • Illinois is now 2-0 and Texas Chris-

Rotan advances with 31-6 win

VERNON, Texas (AP) - Running back Kip Pease scored on three short runs and quarterback Byron Weathersbee threw a pair of touchdown passes to David Thorton to lift Rotan to a 31-6 Class 2A quarterfinal schoolboy football victory over Panhandle

Rotan, now 11-1-1, intercepted Panhandle quarterback Todd Mayfield four times in the game and advances to the Class 2A semifinals this week against Pilot Point.

Pease scored on runs of 2 and 15 yards and Weathersbee hit Thorton for a 29-yard scoring pass as Rotan bolted to an 18-0 halftime lead.

After Rotan upped its lead to 24-0 on a 5-yard pass from Weathersbee to Thorton in the third quarter, Panhandle scored its only touchdown on a 20-yard pass from Mayfield to end Keith Gill with 6:19 left in the third

Rotan iced the game on the first play of the fourth quarter with a 2-yard run by Pease, who finished the game with 72 yards in nine carries. Panhandle ended its season at 11-1ended Eldorado's bridesmaid role in the championship game. Three previous times, in 1975, 1978 and 1979, Eldorado had lost in the title game. But Everett, the 6-foot-5 made to order quarterback who is expected to draw considerable attention from major college recruiters, carried the Eagles to the win with touchdown passes of 9 yards to Jeff Dunn in the second quarter and 5 yards to fullback Steve Williams.

The touchdown pass to Williams came with 5:56 left in the game and rallied the Eagles from an 11-8 deficit. Everett and Williams teamed up on the game winning pass on a fourthand-two situation.

Clovis, which was seeking its fourth state title since 1973, got its points on a 5-yard run by quarterback Joe Newton and a 21-yard field goal by Franklin Taylor.

For the Wildcats, the loss was only the second this season. Clovis finished with an 11-2 record.

East Texas State rallies to win

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) - Tailback Cary Noiel's fourth-quarter touchdown run snapped a 21-21 tie and carried East Texas State to a 27-21 football victory over University of Central Arkansas in a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics first-round playoff game Saturday.

A bad punt and a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct call against the Central Arkansas Bears put the ball at the Bears' 31-yard line late in the fourth quarter. Noiel scored the winning touchdown with 5: 39 to play and James Porter kicked the extra point.

East Texas State — which entered the game ranked No. 8 in the NAIA Division I poll — raised its season record to 8-2-1 and advances to the second round of the playoffs. UCA was ranked No. 1 in the NAIA and ended its season at 9-1.

UCA trailed 21-14 at halftime but tied the score early in the fourth quarter. Quarterback Randy Huffstickler dumped the ball off to Nakita Robertson

Schooler places second

ARLINGTON - Midland Lee's Robert Schooler placed second here Saturday in the 5,000 meter Southeast Regional Kinney Cross Country Championship to earn a Dec. 13 berth in the national finals in San Diego. Houston's Guane Gui, the 1980 800 meter state high school champion, won the event with a time of 15:27.8, beating Schooler in the last five yards. Schooler posted a 15:28.5 and had the lead with 600 yards left in the race. Forty of the best runners from Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Colorado were invited for the meet. Thirty-five runners will earn a berth in the nationals in San Diego. Schooler recently won second in the Texas state cross country high school championships under the direction of Coach Sam Volpe. Schooler is a senior at Lee and is the defending District 5-5A who raced 49 yards for a touchdown. Tony Nassar's kick made the score 21-21.

The Lions took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards for a score. Quarterback Wade Wilson ran in from the 1, but the extra point failed.

UCA scored moments later after a fake field goal from the Lions' 33-yard line. Mark Taylor picked up the ball and fired a pass to Robertson, who carried to the 5. Phil Caldwell scored from that distance four plays later.

Cowboys, Falcons, Rams can gain NFL playoffs today

Atlanta, Dallas and Los Angeles bid this weekend to join Philadelphia in the National Football League playoffs as the regular season moves into its final three weeks.

Twenty teams remain playoff eligible, but a number of those could fall by the wayside as the schedule begins to run out on them. There are nine postseason berths still available, but only three teams — the Falcons, Cowboys and Rams — are in position to secure spots Sunday. All three face formidable tasks, though, matched against other strong teams.

Atlanta, leading the National Football Conference West with a 10-3 record, faces Philadelphia, whose 11-2 mark is the best in the NFL. Los Angeles, 9-4 and one game behond the Falcons, travels to Buffalo to face the Bills, who also are 9-4 and one game in front of New England in the American Football Conference East. Dallas, 10-3 and one game behind Philadelphia in the NFC East, travels to Oakland to play the 9-4 Raiders, who are tied with San Diego for first place in the AFC West.

In Sunday's other games, Baltimore plays at Cincinnati, Denver visits Kansas City, the New York Jets are at Cleveland, Detroit plays at St. Louis, Green Bay goes to Chicago, Tampa Bay entertains Minnesota, New Orleans plays at San Francisco, the New York Giants are at Seattle, and San Diego plays at Washington.

Angeles-Buffalo contest is rated as even by the oddsmakers. Dallas comes into the Raiders' game with nine days of rest while Oakland will have had only six days off. The Cowboys, seeking a 14th playoff berth in 15 years, last played on Thanksgiving Day, beating

Seattle 51-7. Oakland defeated Denver 9-3 last Monday night. The Raiders' game starts a tough stretch for Dallas which must face Los Angeles and Philadelphia after Oakland.

"We're going up against teams that could be in the Super Bowl in the next three weeks," said Coach Tom Landry. "How we perform against them will pretty much determine where we are. It's nice to be in the playoff position, but what we really want to do is play well. If we can play well the next three weeks against that kind of competition, then I think we'll be ready for a playoff shot."

Bay City is out of playoffs

By The Assoicated Press

An unbelievable comeback by Huntsville in the closing minutes destroyed top-ranked Bay City's hopes for a state championship in Class 4A Friday night, while Falls City saw its bid for a crown ended by a shortage of first downs.

David Reynolds tossed a pair of scoring passes to Benny Bryant in the final 2: 16 to rally Huntsville to a 13-10 comeback win over Bay City in their 4A semifinal clash at Rice Stadium in

MEANWHILE, Valley View advanced past highly regarded Falls City on the basis of having four more first downs. The score was tied at 7-7 and penetrations were even at two each, making Valley View's 16-12 first down advantage the deciding factor.

Trailing 10-0 with less' than five minutes to play, the Huntsville quarterback completed six passes on a 75-yard drive that ended on a 3-yard scoring strike to Bryant with 2:16 to Huntsville then attempted an onside kick, which rolled slowly toward the 50-yard line and, when it nearly stopped, barely crossed the midfield stripe and was recovered by Huntsville's Larry King.

nute remaining, Reynolds found Bryant wide open in the end zone on a 41-yard TD pass that stunned the crowd of 18,000 and knocked off Bay City, which had made the state semifinals for the third straight year.

The comeback sets up a 4A championship match between Huntsville and the winner of Saturday afternoon's clash between Lubbock Estacado and Paris at Wichita Falls.

QUARTERBACK Alan Kassen scored the tying touchdown on a 5yard run in the third quarter for Valley View will meet Rankin, a 19-8 winner over Valley, for the Class A state championship.

Rankin's Dennis Black raced for 200 yards, including a 30-yard touchdown, and quarterback Bo Rose tossed a 26-yard scoring pass to Naldo Esparza.

In a 5A quarterfinal battle, Keith Lawson rushed for three touchdowns to lead San Antonio Holmes to a 23-14 win over Alice at Austin's Memorial

The Dayton Flyers jumped to a-13-point lead in the first quarter, added 15 in the second and piled up 35 more points in the fourth period against the previously unbeaten Bombers.

Ithaca suffered seven turnovers, including four interceptions and three fumbles - and all of them resulted in Dayton touchdowns.

Scott Boyer set up Dayton's first touchdown at 7:28 in the first quarter when he intercepted an Ithaca pass and returned it 28 yards to the Ithaca 36. The Flyers scored five plays later when Jim O'Hara ran in from the 9-vard line.

Mike Langford's fumble recovery on the Ithaca 22 set up Dayton's second touchdown, and Pruitt scored from the 15 four plays later.

CHUCK DAVIS OUTDOORS His first rifle important choice

He asked you once and you told him you didn't think he was old enough. But now, we're in the midst of hunting season and you know what he wants - his own rifle. Still, you hesitate. This is a big decision and one that should be carefully considered.

A youngster in a family of avid shooters and hunters might be ready for a gun at a very early age, maybe even eight or nine. Don't say yes just because your son or daughter pleads with you. Some youngster might not be ready for their first gun until they are 14 or 15.

The only measure possible is the individual's responsibility. Ask your self if you can trust him of her with a gun? Does the young person require constant attention and supervision. Let him prove to you he is ready to have a firearm and be willing to accept all responsibilities connected

ONCE YOU'VE come along with that decision, you must ask yourself some other important questions, and then answer them truthfully

You can't expect to buy your youngster a firearm, hand it to him and then sen him out on his own. You must spend hours teaching the proper way to handle a gun in the field, proper care of the firearm, proper methods of sighting in and many other rules of safe gun handling. Will you have the time to handle these responsibilities? If not, maybe a grandfather or uncle with the necessary know how can be pressed into

If you don't have the time to spend with your youngster, you should hesi-tate about buying him a firearm. However, if you can and if you believe the youngster is ready, then start looking for a suitable gun

A rule of thumb when purchasing a firearm for a youngster is to make sure it is simple and that it fits the shooter. A single-shot, bolt-action makes a fine beginners rifle. If, however, you should opt for a BB, Co2 or pneumatic air gun as a teaching tool, never take the attitude they aren't for real. Thise little guns deserve the same respect a big game rifle or shotgun is given.

A YOUNGSTER 12-years-old has a lot of growing up to do, so the rifle should be small and lightweight for handling ease. A deer rifle, such as a Winchester or Marlin 30-30, would be a suitable choice. A gun too large or heavy often causes problems in practicing safe gun handling and may deter a youngster's interest in shooting. If you rely on a salesman in making you selection, explain your needs so he can help.

This big country has some wideopen spaces where a person can shoot and feel safe about it. A safe area, if a developed shooting range isn't available, would be a rural area with a rock-free hill for a backstop. If you plan to shoot on private land, receive

If available, a prerequisite to shooting would be satisfactory completion of a National Rifle Association sanctioned Hunters Safety Course. I recommend all target shooters use some sort of hearing protection. Headset type aural protectors, or the small foam rubber type which fit into the ear canal, work well. There are many hard of hearing older shooters who could have benefited from some type of hearing protection.

MY SEVEN-YEAR-OLD daughter uses the foam rubber type while my wife, son and I use the headset style. If it weren't for the aural protectors, my wife wouldn't shoot at all. But, largely as a result of them, she was able to compete in the postal matches with a team of women shooters from the Bitter Root Women's Gun Club, which brought hom the gold.

My kids began shooting with the simple single-shot .22 rifle with boltaction ad single-shot shotguns as well as lever-action Winchester .30-30s. The kids shot up countless bean and beer cans and many squirrel tails adorned thier rooms while they were learning shooting techniques. Generally they learned well. They had their good days and bad ones as most folks do and it took a lot of lead to satisfy their shooting demands. But it was worth it all.

Reitz kills key trade

ST. LOUIS (AP) - "I ain't going to Chicago," St. Louis third baseman Ken Reitz said this weekend, killing a proposed deal which would have sent him to the Cubs for relief ace Bruce Sutter.

The Cardinals were ready to send Reitz, Leon Durham and another player to Chicago for Sutter. Reitz's approval was required because of a no-trade clause in his Reitz said his agent, Larue Harcourt, recommended he accept the deal after talking with Cardinal General Manager Whitey Herzog a month ago.

But the third baseman, who set a National League record by committing only eight errors last season, said it was a challenge to stay in St.

Louis.
"It's a challenge for me to stay here because Herzog has pretty much tried to force me to go, Reitz said. "I've been in the Cardinal organization for 12 years. I feel I've been good to the orbe aced out like this.

"It bugs me. In the latter stages of the 1980 season, the Cardinals moved second baseman Kenny Oberkfell over to third with Tommy Herr filling in for Oberkfell. The moves add speed to the lineup. Reitz, with four years maining on a $1.4 milon contract, said Chicaneral Manager Bob "wants me to

Wild turkey is hardest game to bag

Have you often wondered what the hardest of all Texas game bird and animals to bag is? This is the question answered in many ways by many different hunters. But the concensus majority would have to vote on the wild turkey as the most difficult specie of game bird or animal in Texas to consistently and successfully bag.

Why do hunters rate this grand bird the toughest hunting challenge of all?

Here again you get as many reasons from as many hunters as you talk with. But the biggest talk centered around hunting the wild turkey is that they are totally unpredictable. At times all game birds and animals are unpredictable, but the wild turkey ranks number one within the ranks of

TO BE successful at turkey hunting the hunter must know where the turkeys inhabit in the region you are hunting, their habits throughout various portions of the day and what a turkey does in variable weather con-

Veteran turkey hunters must go to great lengths in keeping tabs on the majestic birds long before the season opens. You must know where the birds water, where they scratch and feed, where they roost, and the likely spots to which they can be called in close for a shot. However, calling turkeys in the fall and winter doesn't prove to be as effective as the wild turkey spring seasons. This is when the birds are mating, therefore gobblers will respond to artificially blown turkey calls.

Once having located a turkey feeding area, or a run used going to water, patience is the successful turkey hunter's chief stock in trade. The hunter may elect to wait out the grand birds beside such a natural thoroughfare between roost and food and water, or he can flush them in a feeding area, the more wildly the better. Then, when the birds are confused and scattered, the hunter selects a choice spot from which he can command a reasonable view in at least two directions, builds himself a quick, low blind, and settles down for an extended bout with patience

WAITING IS important. For hunting this time of year, this is by far one of the best methods of bagging a wild turkey.

After a time the scattered birds will begin to call, with a view to again flocking up. Here's where the expert caller is reasonably certain of being able to entice one of the flock members within gun range and getting his Christmas turkey. The prized old gobblers are as cagey as the old whitetailed buck and the gunner who bags one of the feathered land giants can take vast pride in a well-executed hunting coup. Sometimes, of course, the birds take cover with a wariness comparable to that of an old cock pheasant and are flushed within gun range in the most improbable places, but such happenstance does not often put turkey on the hunter's table.

After placing himself in a well-built and well-located blind in an area which wild turkeys use, the hunter must keep perfectly still to avoid giving away his whereabouts. His blind is best built against a tree trunk to help conceal his outlines and he then waits until the scattered birds begin calling to each other, with an eye to again assembling the flock. As the birds call, wait for an answer, and work toward the nearest call, the smart turkey hunters inserts his own call in the medley of turkey voices. The most important warning is: don't call too much.

EVEN WHEN answering the most expert calling the wary old birds do a lot of listening and looking and their advance is of the stop-and-go variety, with the emphasis on stop! Sometimes they appear our of nowhere and take the hunter by comlete surprise, but most times they will come plodding through the woods with all the sound effects of a man casually walking the woods. Here's where we determine just how unpredictable the

Sometimes they come in a straight line to the caller; again, if they are suspicious of the calling, they may stop calling and circle around to come in from an unexpected direction.

Another important thing to remember is that turkeys are deceptive in appearance according to how they approach. Coming directly at the hunter they may look almost black, since most of the visible portion of the body is shadowed. If going away from the hunter they may appear to be ashy-gray in color. Sometimes intervening shubbery conceals the body of the bird so that only the head comes in view, again the bird can be sighted in a clearing so it is silhoutetted against a sun-splashed black drop.

Turkeys are generally so difficult to approach within gun range, regardless of the means employed, that they are taken whenever and by whatever means the hunter has at his disposal. Sportsmen who would never think of potting any of the more plentiful species of game on the ground, gleefully pound away at any gobbler that shows himself within gun range. In a way this is an unfortunate atttude but, when such opportunities offer only once or twice during the season, it is readily understandable.

ONE FINAL tip might prove profitable to you on your next turkey hunt. If turkey tracks are located in relatively open areas leading away from their known roosting grounds they sometimes fly back to the roost over the same route. The hunter or hunters who conceal themselves along this route thus place themselves in a potential turkey flyway and if they wait long enough are in position to get a shot as the great birds pass enroute to their night roost. Of course, it's a chancey matter, for the birds may pass out of gun range due to some unforseen change in direction, but it is a gamble well worth taking.

And be sure to remember this. The head and neck region of the turkey's body is the most vulnerable. Do as in goose hunting, lead 'em. Approximately 90 per cent of all misses on flying targets are due to insufficent lead of the game, so adding an extra foot or two to that lead will automatically lower your chances of missing.

Paddletails could help produce dream catch

One of the deadlest all-species lures to come along in the past decade is the family of paddletails.

Many companies make these, most have a lead head with a soft minnowlike boby and paddle-shaped tail which wiggles like a fish swims. They come from bluegill to muskie sizes and can be cast, jigged or trolled. If you aren't fishing them, you're missing a lot of catching.

One effective way to keep your minnows cool, but eliminate the shock to them by putting ice in the water, is to put ice in a burlap bag on top of your minnow bucket, and let it drip into the bucket as it melts. The soggy bag also helps cool things through evaporation

When fishing after a rain, look for the dividing line where muddy water joins clear water. Small fish will dart in and out of the mudy water to keep from being eaten by big fish coursing the dividing line. Work your lure in and out, like the minnow, and you men dream about. Here are three Sports Afield tips guaranteed to brighten the day of the occasional fisherman: 1) practice casting at home for at least an hour before going; 2) know how to tie a knot that won't slip or break easily; and 3) set the drag on your reel so that the line pulls off easily but under tension.

Bass are hard to come by for fishermen at Oak Creek

Several bass clubs have fished tournaments at Oak Creek Lake the last two months and all have found the bass tough to come by.

Snyder was the first and, by comparison, did rather well, but this was before the water temperature took a nose dive. The water is cold now, as it normally is by late December, and it happened so quick, the fish were put in a state of shock. Working with the brood fish in the hatchery makes it easy to see what effect a sudden change has on these fish and there is no reason fish in the lake would not be affected just as much.

During the summer, the fish were fed around mid-morning and always were ready to eat. But after the cold weather brought the snow a few weeks ago, late evening is the only time the fish fespond and accept

On cold days, the fish will not feed at any time. On cool days with sunshine to warm the water, they respond and accept some food. On warm days they are aggressive, taking food as it reaches the water. If fish in the lake react the same way, you can draw your on conclusion when and where you need to fish in areas other than warm water

The turn out was light for the Swee twater Bass Club tournament last weekend. Ronnie Parsons won it all, catching the only bass that would qualify. Friday, Tommy Hood and Bill Collier of Snyder caught more fish in a few hours than the entire Sweetwater Club did all weekend Tommy got two at five pounds, six ounces and 2-0 and Bill got two at 15-4

The look is what distinguishes this fine suit in depth of pattern, in fashion feeling. A concept that has that handsome look. Special tailoring method keeps you comfortable in motion or standing still because the suit is pre-fitted on a designer's living model.

Quartet members in tune as if they were one body

Theatre Midland's lobby last Sunday afternoon contained around 200 quiescent Midlanders who appeared to be almost in a trance. The lobby was so still that the sound of a door being carefully opened, which would ordinarily be only faintly audible, was startlingly loud.

Once again the Thouvenel String Quartet held its listeners captive during its second Midland concert of the season.

The quartet, which has just returned from the first in its season of four performances scheduled at Carnegie Hall, was joined by guitarist Ja-vier Calderon of Bolivia. He performed several selections alone before oining the quartet mem-ers for Haydn's "Quartet in D Major" and Vivaldi's "Concerto in D

Major."
His performance was well received by the audience which gave all five deserving artists a standing ovation

Quartet members, all of whom perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony, are Eugene Purdue, violin; Teresa Fream, violin; Sally Chi-sholm, viola; and Jeffrey Levenson, violincello. The Thouvenel's Carnegie Hall concerts all contain works by the 20th century composer Kren-ek, but none were includ-

Movie execs say business practices work fine

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the hectic world of Hollywood business dealings, millions are often committed by memos of agreement, handshakes and lots of faith - even as the cameras roll and before any contracts are drawn up.

Such practices were criticized by the district attorney last week as "shoddy," but industry spokesmen defend them as "necessary" to the "unique" business of entertainment.

Los Angeles County District Attorney John Van de Kamp leveled his criticism in announcing that a long investigation had failed to produce evidence that Spelling-Goldberg Productions tried to defraud its

Art works on display at bank

The painting "Newborn" by Gary Lynn Roberts will be on display at Midland National Bank Monday through Friday as a tribute to veterinary medicine's commitment and contributions to animal health.

The Texas Veterinary Medical Foundation is sponsoring the display as part of a public education program reflecting the profession's contributions to public health and medical science.

The artist, who lives in San Marcos, is the son of western artist Joe Rader Roberts.

The public is invited to view the painting and learn nore about veterinary medicine.

Secondary students in Midland schools are able to "parlez vous francais" or "habla espanol" better because of the district's unique foreign language

And, as a result, the program's spinoffs have benefited students in Recently the American Council of Teaching of Foreign Languages convention in Boston cited Midland Independent School District's foreign language program as one of the top 50 programs in the nation.

The program was recommended as a model for teaching languages in

The Midland and Fort Worth programs are considered the best in Texas, according to Dr. Robert A. Carter, coordinator of the district's foreign language and social science division.

HE NOTED THAT individualized instruction is the key to the program. However, individualized instruction does not mean one teacher instructing a student, he pointed out.

Instead, it means the use of the classroom setting where students are assigned to several areas in a room and the teacher can move around helping students perform several tasks.

These tasks include the nuts and bolts of reading, writing and speaking German, French, Spanish or Latin, Carter said.

Also, management of the program was cited as another reason for the district's exceptional performance, he added.

Basically, the management plan in Midland's foreign language instruc-tion includes written objectives, assessment of the student's progress using national foreign language testing programs and inservice teacher training programs.

"MOST OF OUR students score average or above average nationally," Carter said of the testing program.

But another interesting aspect of the foreign language program was revealed in October when Scholastic Aptitude Test results showed that students taking a foreign language scored higher than their monolingual counterparts on the SAT's verbal section.

"(Foreign language) students have the ability to comprehend the meaning of words and sentence structure on a comparative basis with English," he said in explaining the reason for better SAT scores.

Foreign language students are exposed to different positioning of words in a sentence. Since other languages have unusual sentence structures, English students become more aware of basic English language structure.

AND, AS A RESULT, have a better understanding of English, he added. Other benefits of learning a foreign language include an appreciation of literature and improvement of self-esteem. When students begin to learn a different language, they are more selfconscious. "Nobody wants to make a mistake," Carter explained.

However, one has to project themselves by manipulating vocal and facial areas and thus "overcome the sense of shyness. Although the best way to learn a language is by living in the country where it is spoken, Carter said the next best thing is to provide learning opportunities inside and outside the classroom. Foreign language labs provide structured opportunities in listening and mimicking the way the language is spoken.

"WE ENCOURAGE students to join French, Spanish or German clubs," he said of the other means of giving students a chance to use what they learn. Interaction with native speakers in the area are also provided by the school's foreign language division.

As for the future of students specializing in a foreign language, Carter noted that more multi-national businesses are requiring their employees to speak a second language before doing business in that country "The man who ususally gets the contract to do business in a country is the one who speaks the language." Also, he pointed out that ever since Mexico discovered large reserves of oil, Mexicans feel they do not have to converse in English and require businessmen to speak Spanish

Carter said this is related to national pride.

ALSO, IN THE area of national defense, foreign language interpreters are needed to accurately monitor radio transmissions in other countries. But, more than anything else, Carter said that learning a second language in

Abscam proceedings 'tainted'

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The government's Abscam prosecutions have netted 12 convictions with the quest for more continuing, but the victories have already been tainted with a potentially major loss in the first post-trial ruling.

The government was dealt its first Abscam loss Nov. 26 by U.S. District Judge John P. Fullam in Philadephia, who ruled invalid the convictions of two city councilmen there on the grounds of entrapment and "governmental overreaching amounting to a violation of due process of law.

"What the government succeeded in proving was, not that the defendants were corrupt city officials, but that, exposed to strong temptation, they could be rendered corrupt," Fullam wrote in a 64-page deci-

In Abscam, undercover FBI agents posed as representatives of wealthy Arab sheiks supposedly seeking to make large investments while at the same time trying to buy politicians.

The Fullam ruling has no direct effect on the other cases since they are being conducted in Brooklyn and Washington, D.C., but at least one of the congressmen convicted, Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., eaded entrapment and all of those tried thus far have lodged due-process protests.

The undercover sting operation has played a major role in ending the political careers of five congressmen — all from Eastern urban states. The one indicted congressman re-elected, Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., will probably be expelled if he is convicted next month

The lone senator indicted, Harrison A. Williams Jr. of New Jersey, will not stand trial for several months. His term expires in 1982.

Jurors in all the trials conducted so far have concurred that the actions of the politicians on secretly made videotapes have been overwhelmingly convincing.

And the defendants' stories - alcoholism, play acting, "I was just discussing business investments for my district" - have failed every time.

The tapes even played a major role in the complicated Brooklyn trial of Reps. John Murphy, D-N.Y., and Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., which ended last week in conspiracy convictions for both, and a bribery conviction against Thompson. Neither man was shown on the videotapes directly taking the bribe money or acknowledging its receipt by a bag-man associate.

Even a denial on videotape by Murphy did not convince the jury of his total innocence. The jury acquitted him in connection with his actions at an Oct. 20, 1979, meeting at a Kennedy Airport hotel, but convicted him on a lesser bribery charge, accepting an unlawful gratuity.

Ironically, the bribery conviction against Thompson was for his sharing in the money passed at the so-called Murphy meeting, which he didn't even

That chain of trial events appears to be taking the Abscam saga down the exact road many legal experts predicted when the influence-peddling scandal was revealed last February, namely that the final question will be: "Did the government overstep its bounds, overreach its authority in establishing the crime and the setting, even to the point of using a convicted con man to help pull in the congressional marks?"

In a technical sense, the trial process hasn't ended for the congressmen convicted, since motions on whether their due-process rights were violated by the government have yet to be decided.

Williams's contention that his due-process rights were violated by the government's creation of the setting that led to his alleged bribery is expected to be heard before he goes to trial.

That hearing in Brooklyn before U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt may be held simultaneously in February with due process motions by Lederer, Murphy, Thompson and former Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., who was expelled following his conviction in August.

An adverse ruling on those motions could disintegrate the government's efforts in one swoop. There are other potential major appeals issues, such as double jeopardy in the case of co-defendants indicted in several cases and whether the Constitution's speech and debate clause for members of Congress precludes their being charged with any of the crimes alleged.

But the due process and government misconduct issue figures to be the final battleground.

The Fullam decision in Philadelphia takes apart much of the FBI's undercover tactics, citing case law - generally narcotics cases - where similar enticement actions have been found to be improper by higher courts.

Interestingly, government officials have main-

Students may face phone bills

Some American University students were ordered to appear at a hearing to determine if criminal prosecution is warranted, and students at Georgetown University and George Washington University also may have used the long-dis-tance line assigned to Rep. Bob Stump, the Washington Post report-tained the Abscam bribe offers were made to congressmen predisposed to accepting them, but testimony at the trials thus far has produced little, if any, evidence in support of that point.

Fullam said in his decision that ordinarily if the government induces a defendant to commit a crime. the government cannot establish predisposition merely by showing that the defendant did commit

Further, Fullam said, under a series of Supreme Court rulings on the entrapment subject even a predisposed defendant must be acquitted of "the conduct of the government agents was so outrageous as to violate fundamental concepts of fairness.

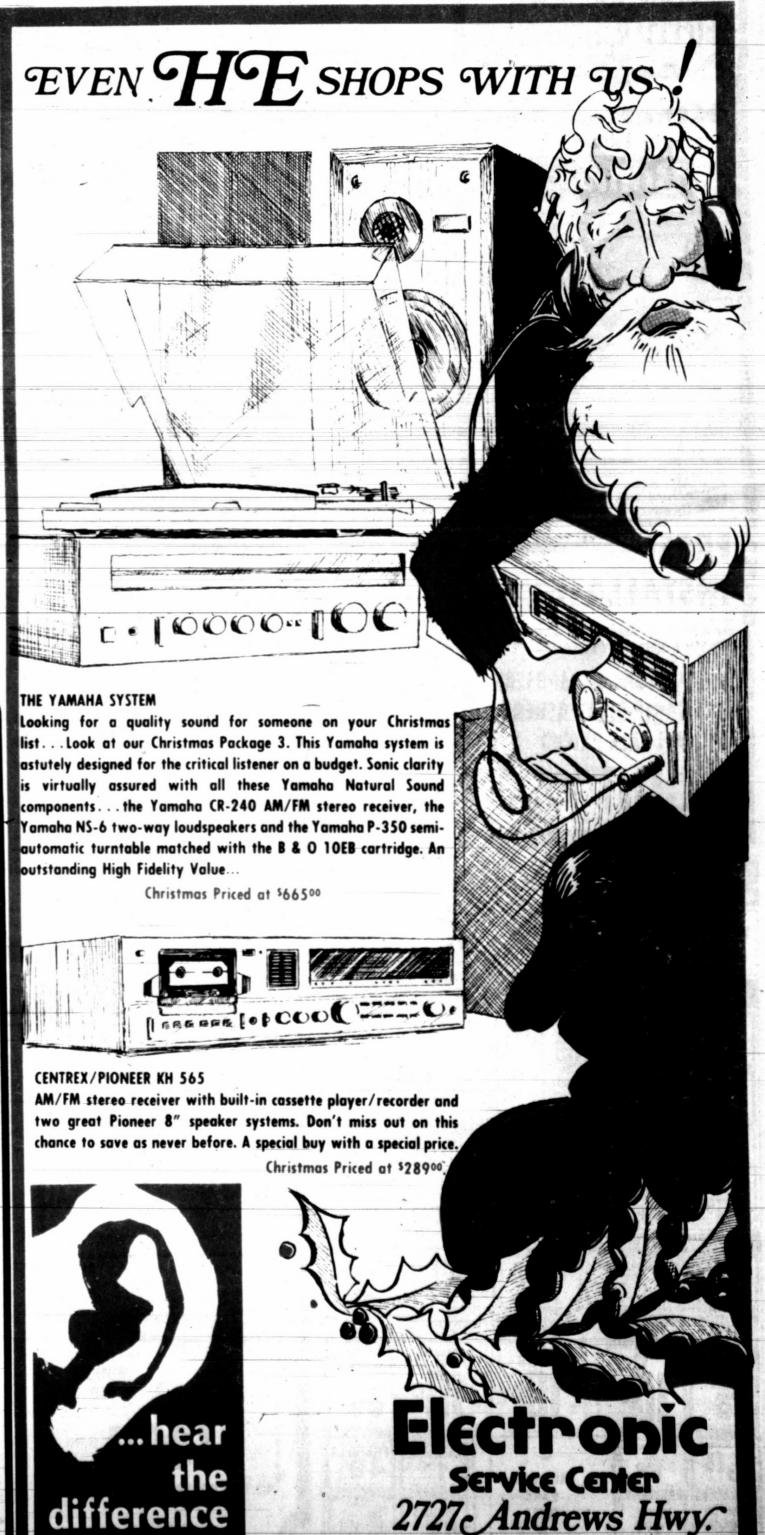

Likewise, in a 1925 ruling made by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals - where an undercover agent offered and paid $20 to a customs officials to facilitate illegal importation of whiskey - it was determined that entrapment does not exist merely because a government agent offers a bribe to a public official.

So, even as the trial of Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla. enters its second week in Washington, D.C., the ethical and moral battle over Abscam goes on in the judicial arena - and will continue perhaps for several years.

As Fullam said when he first heard the dismissal motions on the Sept. 15 jury verdicts against then-Council President George X. Schwartz and Councilman Harry P. Jannotti: "This case simply bristles with difficult and novel legal issues."

He predicted then that "whatever decision is made by this court (it) will not be the final word on this subject. It will come from on high.'

Terminal real estate — a trend, not a disease

By RUTH RYON The Los Angeles Times

Terminal real estate. It's not a disease. It's an infatuation. It's also an obsession. And it's an

It's symbolic of what is happening today in real estate-related offices throughout the United States from glgantic conglomerates to appraisers working out of their own houses.

To borrow a phrase, people in real estate are letting their fingers do the walking.

Punch a button and a computer might print out a listing, a plat map, rental information, sales comps or real property ownership data. Punch another and the information might appear on a screen. Videotapes and cassettes are part of the trend.

THE INVENTION of video has led to the recent formation of at least two companies: TREK, The Real Estate Key, of Dallas, a franchise company that emphasizes use of video equip-ment in marketing homes; and Real Estate Video Educational Institute Inc. of Woodlan Hill , Calif., which offers California Department of Real Estate-approved courses on video cassettes.

More common than videotape in real estate circles, though, are computers. The San Fernando Valley Board of Realtors in suburban Los Angeles, the nation's largest board, is taking a lead.

On Dec. 1, it initiated its Valley Production Center, called "the valley's newest, most complete, independent videotape production facility." Actually, the video screen is an option. The computer and its print-outs are the thing.

"This board has had a computer center for a good many years, at least 15," said Bob Adamson, executive vice president of the board, "and we have done our MLS (multiple listing service) with it, but as of Dec. 1, we started terminal service in member offices and cut off all outside vendors to do it all internally.

"There are some boards that have a similar situation but with an outside company. We are unique because we are doing everything and, I think, at half the cost.'

THE BOARD BOUGHT two more computers for a total of six and 25 terminals. The budget for the project is $2.6 million, Adamson said. And how will it work? The agent or broker calls the board on the phone. After giving a password, the caller is "logged on" and begins communicating with the computer. There are several programs: for instance, up-to-date listings, invest-ment analysis, what a potential buyer qualifies for in financing, and costs of home ownership compared with rent-

On listings, sales agents have access to information about far more than price, size and address. Listings also include, for example, details on features, general location, loan terms, new financing and local

Another type of information system is exemplified by Previews Inc., based in Greenwich, Conn. Less concerned about MLS or other data systems, Previews concentrates more on such features as:

video cassettes.

FOUNDED IN THE 1930s, Previews showed movies then of listed properties. "We were the first real estate clearing house in the United States, previewing properties,' James P. Retz, a vice president in the Los Angeles branch, said. "Of course, we didn't have video in 1933.'

Now the company, which specializes in higher-priced properties all over the world, maintains video equipment and cassettes in each of its nine branch offices in the United States and with each of its affiliate and-or regional delegates in about 40 foreign countries.

Previews loans out the cassettes to potential buyers and other real estate agents, Retz said. Cassettes carry marketing one step beyond brochures, said Retz, "because you have a captive audience.

With major land offerings and farms, he explained, "the buyer often doesn't physically inspect. He has someone else do that." With a cassette, the buyer can get a look at the property himself.

AT THE MOMENT, his branch library has about 25 cassettes.

There is one for a 424-acre "gentleman's ranch" in North San Diego county with several barns and a grove of approximately 250 trees, primarily citrus, for $2.25 million.

There is one for a thoroughbred horse farm in Ocala, Florida, for $12.5

There are ones for resorts in the British Virgin Islands for $5.15 million, Honduras for $1.8 million.

House refuses to relax auto safety standards WASHINGTON (AP) - A move to aid the beleaguered U.S. auto industry by weakening federal automobile seat restraint standards failed in the House on Friday.

It was a victory for lameduck Rep. Bob Eckhardt D-Texas, who charged in an emotional speech that the bill was a "disgrace — a complete surrender to the automobile industry and anybody who wants to make inefficient bumpers."

The bill, endorsed by automobile manufacturers was defeated by 205-126.

Its principal sponsor was Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., who led a successful fight Thursday against another measure that would have forced major auto manufacturers to phase in air bags.

The defeated Dingell bill would have delayed for one year federal standards that require large domestic and foreign automobile manufacturers operating in the United States to install passive seat

To comply with existing safety standards, the automakers have a choice of whether to install automatic seat belts or air bags. Automatic belts usually extend from a door to a seat and protect a rider when the door closes. Air bags - installed in dashboard or steering wheel compartments - automtically inflate on impact.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Heart murmur not serious in children

Dear Dr. Solomon: At my child's ast examination, the pediatrician remarked tht he detected a slight heart murmur, but that it was nothing to be concerned about. I can't understand how something which is not normal. especially something involving the heart, is not a cause for concern. Was he simply trying to get me not to worry? I'd appreciate a discussion of the significance of heart problems in children. - Mrs. A.W.

Dear Mrs. W.: While heart murmurs indicate a serious problem more often in adults, in most children probably more than 90 percent — they pose no risk to health and gradually disappear. Dr. Norman J. Sissman, professor of pediatrics and director of pediatric cardiology at the Rutgers Medical School, says that heart murmurs generally are not a symptom of childhood heart disease, and chest pains are almost never associated with childhood heart problems.

In years gone by, heart disease in children was a frequent complication of rheumatic fever, a disease that may follow some cases of untreated strep throat infection. Today, however, with early treatment of these in-fections and better medical care and nutrition, rheumatic heart disease is not as prevalent in the United States as it once was.

The most common forms of heart problems in children today are congenital - that is, existing at birth. Very often the cause of these defects is not known, although infections such as German measles in the mother early in pregnancy have been implicated. Other conditions affecting the mother, such as excessive use of alcohol, are also known to be associated with heart defects in children. Heredity also may be a factor, but its exact role is not known.

Methods of diagnosing and treating heart problems have improved considerably over the years. Diagnostic techniques now include X-ray, electrocardiograms, and echocardiograms, which use sound waves to provide an image of the heart. Other special tests permit the type and location of the defect to be pinpointed with greater accuracy. At the same time, the development of the heartlung machine has made it possible to repair these defects with a high degree of success.

On occasion, a physician may decide to postpone surgery to permit a child to mature and grow stronger and, therefore, be better able to withstand the stress of an operation. This often is possible since childhood heart problems usually develop gradually, and their effects can be controlled with medication. The average operation requires the child to spend two weeks in the hospital and one to two months recovering at home. Following surgery, most children are able to look forward to normal life expectancies. They can participate in athletics and social activities as freely as any of their peers, and eventually marry and have families.

In emergencies, even newborn infants can undergo surgery. This often is the case with "blue babies" who are suffocating because of an obstruction to the artery that carries oxygen.

In brief, while I assume your pediatrician undoubtely was trying to alleviate your concerns, his reassurance was based on fact. In the large majority of children, a heart murmur is not a cause for concern.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Gannett planning national daily

WASHINGTON (AP) The Gannett Co., the nation's largest newspaper company, is planning to use satellite technology to begin publishing a national daily newspaper next year, according to an industry newsletter.

The newsletter Satellite Week, which is published by Television Digest Inc., printed a special edition Friday quoting sources as saying the new paper would be based in Washington and transmitted via satellite to many of Gannett's 81 newspapers for printing and distribution throughout the country.

A growing number of buyers are cutting their own Christmas trees, but McNeil said the number of places where this type of operation is feasible is limited. He said the

"choose-and-cut" segment of the market now accounts for about 9 percent of all Christmas tree sales. An additional 1 percent of sales, he said, are the "balled-and-burlap" variety — live trees that can be planted outside after the holiday.

As prices rise, it becomes more and more important to shop carefully. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a voluntary grading program for Christmas trees. Participating growers tag trees with their name and address, with the species and with the grade - U.S. Premium, U.S. No. 1 and U.S. No. 2.

Among the major clubs without casino sprinklers, according to the report released Thursday, are the Las Vegas and Flamingo Hilton hotels, the Desert Inn and the Riviera Hotel.

County Manager Bruce Spaulding said the report was aimed at assessing the impact of a proposed county ordinance that would require installation of sprinklers in hotels presently

"There's no question they have adequate fire protection, although more might be desirable," Spaulding said of the resorts. "But until you know the scope of your problem you don't know the inmpacts of a solution.

The MGM Grand Hotel, where a fire last month killed 84 persons and injured more than 700, had no sprinkler system in the casino which was hardest hit by the blaze.

A district attorney's opinion earlier this week held that sprinklers weren't required in the casino, but the Los Angeles fire safety expert who wrote the section of the national building code covering such facilities says it was his intent that casinos be in-

RINGING THE BELL

Encourage youths, others to take pride in themselves

By BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience - Casting Down Our Buckets Where Are We - This new emphasis, or priority, will have to involve getting all of our black community organizations and institutions together to encourage our youth and others to take pride in preparing themselves early to be our community's economic builders. As the Black Monitor states, this means new forms of massive training to take over our black community's needs for black brick layers, black carpenters, black electricians, black street sweepers, as well as black policemen, black teachers, black firemen, black doctors, black lawyers, black merchants, etc.

It also calls for new forms of partnerships, whereby we, simultaneously, can encourage the black community to selectively support those white-owned businesses and institutions which have policies that tend to build our long-denied communities in an equitable manner.

This new priority, of rebuilding our communities from within, calls for new roles for all in the black community. It means that the black-owned press and church as well as others will have to examine every possible way we can "pull our communities by whatever bootstraps" we have, as we seek the long overdue and deserved support required of the white community. However, leadership to make our communities the responsible and self-sustaining homes and market places they should be, must come from within our communities. The National Business League (black-oriented) seeks to encourage and assist minorities to enter business and to maintain themselves in business, elimination of the effects of racial discrimination and providing technical assistance.

Minority companies currently own and control roughly 120 of the nation's 7,700 commercial radio stations. Ten of the 746 commercial television stations in the U.S. are controlled by minorities. Two television stations in West Texas are controlled by Prima Inc., a company owned by blacks, it was reported by our Bellringer sources.

Dear Ms. D.K. - For some forty years, we have worked in the mission fields in Oklahoma, Kansas, Tennessee, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Mexico and Texas. There has been much joy as we struggled to help and inspire our fellow man and of course some suffering too but even as Paul would-say there was joy even in our distress.

Perhaps now, the crowning experience of our years of ministry, will be mortagage burning services that

Encourage youths, others to take pride in themselves

By BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience — Casting Down Our Buckets Where Are We - This new emphasis, or priority, will have to involve getting all of our black community organizations and institutions together to encourage our youth and others to take pride in preparing themselves early to be our community's economic builders. As the Black Monitor states, this means new forms of massive training to take over our black community's needs for black brick layers, black carpenters, black electricians, black street sweepers, as well as black policemen, black teachers, black firemen, black doctors, black lawyers, black merchants, etc.

It also calls for new forms of partnerships, whereby we, simultaneously, can encourage the black community to selectively support those white-owned businesses and institutions which have policies that tend to build our long-denied communities in an equitable manner.

This new priority, of rebuilding our communities from within, calls for new roles for all in the black community. It means that the black-owned press and church as well as others will have to examine every possible way we can "pull our communities by whatever bootstraps" we have, as we seek the long overdue and deserved support required of the white community. However, leadership to make our communities the responsible and self-sustaining homes and market places they should be, must come from within our communities.

The National Business League (black-oriented) seeks to encourage and assist minorities to enter business and to maintain themselves in business, elimination of the effects of racial discrimination and providing technical assistance.

Minority companies currently own and control roughly 120 of the nation's 7,700 commercial radio stations. Ten of the 746 commercial television stations in the U.S. are controlled by minorities. Two television stations in West Texas are controlled by Prima Inc., a company owned by blacks, it was reported by our Bellringer sources.

Dear Ms. D.K. — For some forty years, we have worked in the mission fields in Oklahoma, Kansas, Tennessee, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Mexico and Texas. There has been much joy as we struggled to help and inspire our fellow man and of course some suffering too but even as Paul would say there was joy even in our distress.

Perhaps now, the crowning experience of our years of ministry, will be mortagage burning services that will be held within a few weeks, at the Friendship Community C.M.E. Church in Pecos, Texas. We are in the midst of preparing a series of programs for this service and we pray that you will be able to attend at least one of them.

We may call this experience as "the miracle in Pecos" because for some 15 years this small congregation of mostly retired and sick people has struggled beneath the load of a debt that just wouldn't go away. God used us to do the "impossible" and to Him we are grateful.

Our Black Heritage Library will be enclosed within the structure that includes a parsonage and sanctuary with fellowship halls, valued at today's market at between 75 and 80 thousand dollars. Thanks, Bellringer, through the years for your donation. Others desiring to share in this "miracle" may do so by addressing your letters and donations to: Christian Call Mission Fund, P.O. The House by voice vote agreed to Senate changes in a Tahoe protection bill. The action sends the bill to the White House The bill is intended to safeguard the fragile environment around the scenic alpine lake on the Nevada-California border by authorizing the government to buy key land and put it into the national forest system. In accepting the Sen-

House agreed to what some sponsors said was a weaker bill than the House originally passed. But Congress is on the verge of adjournment, so tittle time was left for efforts to negotiate con-flicts between the House and Senate versions.

If Congress had failed to act, the entire legislative process would have started over again next

"In the waning moments (of Congress), I do reluctantly take the Senate amendments," Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., told the House. "This is a less adequate bill than we sent to the Senate, but

More and more women are entering the work force every year, and many of them are going into fields that were traditionally thought of as "men's professions."

Midland women are no excep-tion, and no where is this fact more evident than in the field of petroleum geology.

According to statistics from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, approximately one-third to one-half of the students in geology classes there are women. In the field course, which all geology majors must which all geology majors must take, two out of 12 students were women in 1974. In 1980, 9 out of 19 students were women.

Mary Vanderloop is a geologist with Monsanto Oil Co. She received her degree in geology from the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

A native of northern Wisconsin, she came to Midland when Texaco hired her fresh out of college. She worked for Texaco for two years before going to Monsanto, where she has been for three years.

She says her work involves studying samples, electical logs and maps to find oil well prospects. By studying the geological formations at different levels, a geologist can determine whether oil is likely to be found. It involves a lot of imagination. The next time you want to serve something truly unusual for dinner or for a party, think of falafels. While these spicy Mid-Eastern chick pea croquettes may be unfamiliar to you now, once you've tried them they are likely to become a regular feature inyour kitchen as they are in mine. Serve them on pita bread, that marvelous round "pocket bread," which you can either purchase at the store or make at home from the recipe that follows, and top them with sesame tahini sauce.

Sesame tahini is a thin paste made only from ground sesame seeds. It is sold in natural foods stores and those supermarkets which have a Greek or Middle Eastern specialty section, and is a very versatil condiment. Mixed with lemon juice, yogurt and seasonings, it is just the right topping for the

As a crowning touch, the falafel sandwich should be topped with sliced stomatoes, cucumbers, and alfalfa sprouts, and garnished with Greek olives. Served with a soup of your choosing, a dry retsina wine, and a sweet dessert, falafels will provide a delicious cross-cultural experience for your family or guests. The combination of garbanzo beans, sesame seeds, and yogurt packs a large portion of complete protein, too.

Look for more international recipes in the weeks to follow. Most cultures of the world have a diet that relies mostly on non-meat sources of protein, and have many delicious traditional meatless recipes. If you have any requests, please write to me, care of Copley News Service, care of this

If you're hard pressed for time and have a craving for falafels, the easiest thing to do is to use a falafel mix.

Many natural food stores and Middle Eastern food stores sell falafel mixes. Try making up a large batch of your own mix someday when you have free time. Then when you want falafels, all you have to do is take a cup of the mix and add water. A falafel mix can be made by zipping garbanzo beans through a "meat" grinder and adding spices such as cayenne, parsley, salt,

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vernon Syler, 612 Ruby Dr., celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with a reception recently at Temple Baptist Church, 4301 Thomason.

Mrs. Syler is the former Ethel Joyce Morgan. The couple was married Dec. 2, 1955, at Temple Baptist Church here. They have lived in Midland since then.

The Syler's have two children. Charles Michael Syler and Matthew Lynn Syler, and one grandchild, Mandy Lynn Syler, all of Midland. Mr. Syler is employed by Basin, Inc. and they are members of Temple Baptist Church.

Hostesses for the reception were Maude Farris, Toni Vickers, Sheila Cook, Nixie Bagwell and Margie

Christmas cards help make season warm and memorable

Maybe writing an incorrect title on your Christmas cards is not so disturbing as painting Santa in a blue suit — but it can create a wrong impression. Tradition counts a lot at Christmas, and a properly addressed and signed card is one of the familiar touches that helps make the Christmas scene warm and memorable. You may already be thinking about imprinted, "personalized". greeting cards this year. The stores have a fine selection, and usually their staff can guide you on correct usage of titles. But if you like to have things worked out in advance - and to walk in with typed or neatly written "copy", your store will be delighted, and there will be fewer chances for mistakes.

Here are the basic rules for the imprint of your cards and enveloped, as suggested by the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. Remember, the printed envelope with zip code is appreciated by the post office as well as by friends who try to keep their address lists up-to-date.

printed name on the card permits you the warmth of a handwritten 'Joe' or "Donna" without any ambiguities.

WHEN TITLES ARE used, the husband's name usually appears first: Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Cortez; Doctor and Mrs. Raphael Cortezz. If both parties have titles. or if the wife holds a title and the husband does not, the senior title should appear first: Colonel Maria Cortez and Major Raphael Raphael Cortez; Doctor Maria Cortez and Raphael Cortez. Without titles, either name may come first: Maria name may come first: Maria and Raphael Cortez or Raphael and Maria Cortez.

A father's name appears first when children's names are added The Cortezes - Raphael, Maria, Francisco, Mercedes, and Jaime; Raphael, Maria and the Children; The Raphael Cortez Family; Mr. and Mrs, Raphael Cortez and

Most often for a single person, woman or man, informality is the rule: Tina Verde or Paul Zebrowski. A widowed or married woman uses her husband's name first: Mrs. Norman Forrest; a divorced woman uses her name first: Mrs. Harriet

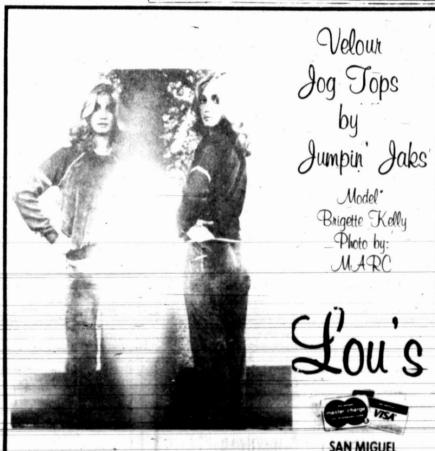

Some people tend to add an apostrophe to last names to make them plural. For instance: The Morgan's. Use of an apostrophe is incorrect. Simply add an "s" to all last names except those ending in "s". With names ending in "s" add "es". The name Corliss, for instance, becomes The Corlisses.

Titles are always spelled out: Doctor, Captain, Lieutenant. Officers of the Army, Marines and Air Force use titles with the grade of Lieutant Commander or above. In all services, of ficers of junior rank use 'Mr.' with the grade and organization on a second line: Mr. James Duggan, Second Lieutenant, U.S. Marine Corps.

IT IS ALWAYS appropriate to send a Christmas card to your pastor, for both Protestant clergy men and Roman Catholic priests, the proper address is "The Reverand John B. Jordan", or, if he has a degree of D.D. or L.L.D., "The Reverand Dr. John B. Jordan". If your minister is married, it's "The Rev. and Mrs. John B. Jor-

Women in geology

ately male field, but that there is still some

"A woman has to prove her ability to perform, more than a man does," said Ms. Vanderloop. Once a woman has proved herself, however, there aren't many obstacles in achieving acceptance, she believes.

"We have a real good working environment here," she pointed out of her company. The geological staff consists of eight men and two

Diana McEwen was the other woman on the staff until she moved recently. She grew up in the Rio Grande Valley and was graduated from UTPB. She had worked for Monsanto for about three months.

She thinks that although women are being accepted more and more, there are still some problems with discrimination.

Mrs. McEwen illustrated her point with an experience she had recently at a luncheon for geologists. She said she ran into a man she had one to school with and hadn't seen for several years. When she told him she was working for donsanto, he replied, "Oh, I didn't know they let their secretaries come to these luncheons.

Gail Kettenbrink, who works for NRM Petroleum, has been in the petroleum geology field for 61/2 years. She received her degree in geology from the Missouri School of Mines in 1967. When she began school in 1963, there were approximately 3,200 students enrolled, only 34 of which were women. She was the only woman at the school majoring in geology. She was graduated from the University of Iowa with a master's degree in science

After graduation, she taught science for several years. Her husband, Ed, was also a teacher. They moved to the Permian Basin when he took a job as a professor at UTPB.

Mrs. Kettenbrink taught for one year after ey moved here, and before taking a job with Gulf. After a year with Gulf, she worked at Geomap for three years and then went to work

The biggest changes she has noticed since she has been in the business is the increased number of women geologists and that salaries have increased astronomically.

She credits the women's liberation movement with the fact that so many women are now choosing to work as geologists.

"It's an exciting business to be in," she said. She compared petroleum geology to a mystery novel, looking for clues and narrowing odds to find oil. She said that there is always an element of the unknown, and a geologist can do every-thing right and still not find oil.

In addition to searching for wells herself, she said she spends about 75 percent of her time "screening deals" that independent geologists bring in. If she thinks it's a good prospect, her company will offer to pay the independent a certain amount for his ideas, plus a percentage of the profits if the well becomes a producer.

To complete a producing well, it may cost as much as half a million dollars, depending on how deep the well is, according to Mrs. Kettenbrink. So there is a big element of risk. "We are gamblers," she noted.

Virginia Monaghan began working as a geologist 25 years ago, long before companies had to hire women to meet government regulations.

An Arkansas native, she was graduated from the University of Arkansas with a bachelor of science degree in geology. She said she hadn't originally planned to major in geology, but that a scholarship she won required that she start out in that field. After taking several geology courses, however, she decided that it was the kind of work she wanted to do.

She said she mainly wanted to work in a field in which she could make a "good living."

While at school, she received a lot of pressure to take secretarial courses so she would have something to fall back on if she couldn't find a job in geology, but she refused to do so. She felt that if she could do clerical work, she would probably be called on to do typing, filing, etc, when she could be looking for well prospects.

Mrs. Monaghan was hired by Humble Oil right out of college to work in their Midland office. "I thought I'd come to the end of the earth." she remembered of the first time she saw Midland 25 years ago. "It's home now, though," she

She said there were only a couple of women geologists in Midland back then, but she really wasn't aware of any discrimination. "There was a lot of good-natured kidding," Mrs. Monaghan explained, but no real problems.

After working for Humble for several years. she met and married Bob Monaghan, an engineer who had his own independent oil company, and she went to work with him. They have kept the business small, with the two of them the major employees, plus a bookkeeper

The couple has two children, Patrick, who is in the ninth grade, and Bobby, a sixth grader. When the children were young, she quit work to be at home with them.

"My family comes first," she said. When her boys began school, she went back to work on a part-time basis, and only recently began working full-time again.

'I've had the best of both worlds," she admitted. Since her husband was the company head. she could be at home when she needed to be and have a job waiting for her when she was ready. All of these women have various backgrounds, ideals and attitudes, but they also have several things in common when it comes to their work.

They all consider themselves fortunate to be in a profession they think to be challenging and important. They feel that they have an opportunity to make just as much money and have just as much chance for advancement as their male counterparts. And they are optimistic about the future of the petroleum industry in the Permian

They're all proof that women can make it in a

Cotton Mather. Bradford, the second governor of the Puritan colony in Massachusetts, opposed any form of Christmas celebration because of the prevalent, severe puritanical attitudes toward any type of "frivolous" celebrations. It was not until the latter part of the 17th century that these restrictions were relaxed. Cotton Mather, the noted clergyman and author, carried Bradford's policies a step further several decades later when he denounced Christmas as a "popish" holiday. Among the abuses cited by Mather were "reveling, dicing, carding, masking and mummering."

Our children: Kids speak a different language

interesting that we as parents often use exactly the same words as our children do, but we sometimes mean something different. It's almost as if we're not speaking the same language.

"Good", "bad",
"hard", "easy", "fat",
"thin" and lots of other descriptive words that seem so clear are far from it. I see this especially with my teen-age son, but it all pertains to my younger children too. A. The area of "semantics" seems to be what you're talking

A parent who says to a teen-ager, "Come home early," may mean 10 or 11 p.m., but their youngster who replies, "Yes, I will" could be thinking about "just before dawn." "Clean hands" to parents and 9-year-old boys are as different as not water and soap when compared with a few drops of cold water and the dirt rubbed off on the bathroom towel.

At issue is the fact that our experiences are different from those of our children (as they also are from other adults, by the way). Communication isn't easy even under the best circumstances. We were children a long time ago, and our environment was different, so we have difficulty seeing through their eyes. It helps us be a little more patient and understanding if we recognize that factor.

B&PW 'Young Career Woman'

An area search has begun to find that special woman who will be honored as "Young Career Woman" by the Uptown Chapter of Business & Professional Women's Club.

The "Young Career Woman" program (YCW) is an annual event and is open to all women between the ages of 21-30 years. The candidate must be a veteran of her career field for at least one year prior to selection. Various YCW candidates at local, state and national levels have listed such career fields as sales, public relations, banking, education, geology, engineering, medical, legal, administrative and many

The Midland YCW recipient will go on to compete on district level. District winners will vie for the state title in June, and a national winner will be selected from state candidates.

Sandra Waisley, 1979-1980 YCW winner, is a geologist with Exxon Corporation. Last year, she went on to win the District Eight YCW title and won first runner-up at state competition. She gained both company and public recognition throughut the year as Midland's "Young Career

Winner of the 1981 YCW honor will be named during a dinner set for 7 p.m. Jan. 22 at Ranchland Hills Country Club. Also, during the dinner candidates will each deliver a three-minute prepared speech on a topic of her choice. A roundtable discussion among the candidates will be an added highlight. Judging will also be based on resume and transcripts must accompany all applications.

Obesity prevention

An obesity prevention program should start with the newborn infant, according to Pennsylvania physician Francine D. Camitta, MD. Writing in a journal for occupational health nurses, Dr. Camitta recommends watching infants and children for rapid weigh gain. "Reward them with hugs and kisses rather than food," she also suggests.

A knowledge of nutrition enables individuals tary habits such as watching TV, which encourages snacking. She also states, "We can support and help the female patient whose weight loss, regardless of how well she adheres to diet, is slower than the male counterpart, and to remember how it will vary so much with the menstrual cycle."

Club soda makes light pancakes

DEAR HELOISE:

I was wondering if you could modify your scrumptious waffle recipe with club soda for pancakes, which are my family's favorites?

I make my pancakes from scratch and need to know if substituting soda for the milk would be the same as with a waffle mix. — Elizabeth Long

Not only does club soda make the waffles crisper and lighter, it'll do a dilly of a job on pancakes. Why, you'll have to weigh them down on your plate so's to be able to eat them.

And for those of you who might have missed this easy recipe, here

Use 2 cups of a good biscuit mix, 1 egg, ½ cup of oil and one and onethird cups of club soda.

space needed for a cer-Mix well and pour on your griddle for pancakes or into your waffle iron for a delicious treat.

Now you can't keep this batter once it's mixed up like you can regular mixes because of the effervescent soda. So cook 'em all, and freeze the leftovers for another day. Pop them in the toaster and bet you'll think they're even better the second time around.

Ornament collecting

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Stars, bells and other decorations for the family Christmas tree may spend 11 months of the year stored in an attic or closet, but they are becoming collectors'

"It's unbelievable how much ornament collecting has grown," says Tony Hoffman, Hallmark product manager who renorts that 65 percent of those who answered a company survey last year said they considered themselves ornament collectors.

Many have personal collections from childhood years, but nearly all of those queried purchase new ornaments to add to their collections each year. Dated ornaments are among the most popular ..

By CAROLYN ANDERSON The Prescott Courier

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — "I am an artist," says Clutch Massengale, 'and I require a perfectly still canvas.

A little hard to obtain, perhaps, when the "canvas" is a human body.

Mark Massengale of Prescott — or Clutch as he prefers to be known is a tattoo artist. He finds that, contrary to traditional belief, his work is in greater demand by women these days than by men.

"People from all walks of life come in here for tattoos," he said in a recent interview in his shop. "Secretaries, laborers, construction workers, lawyers, nurses, housewives it's no longer restricted to military people.

"Over 50 percent of my customers are women, Clutch added. "They usually start with a small tattoo — such as a rose - and often return for a more elaborate or original design.

They use a shoulder tattoo as they would a piece of jewelry," he said. "Depending on the clothing, it can be completely covered or exposed. It's different for men. They want something that will be seen, so they usually start with their arms.

Since women are notorious for changing their fashion minds, why would they opt for nonremovable jewelry?

The designs are often original, either their own or worked out with me,' said Clutch, "and no two tattoos are applied exactly alike. They are really works of art that stand the test of time.

"It's the use of color, detail work and subtle shadings that make tattooing a work of art," he said, "and that's what makes each artist's work

It's simple to trim tree

BARBARA MEYERS AP Newsfeatures

You may not believe this if you are knee deep in Christmas lights, garlanding and ornaments, but there is a simple way to trim a Christmas tree.

If you follow a few rules, you will do the job more quickly than usual with far better results, says Don Warning. Warning, an executive with a manufacturer of Christmas decorations and artificial trees, considers Christmas decoration his pleasure as well as his business.

He is a man who advocates Christmas trees year-round, trimmed for the season. And while he has never festooned one with cherry blossoms in the spring, he has managed a tree for practically every room in his house for some years.

According to Warning, the first rule for success is to accumulate enough material to do the job right. The number of decorations needed for a full effect increases more than numerically with every foot of

So take this into consideration before opting for the tallest tree you can find. A 3-foot, tabletop tree, for example, is estimated to need a minimum of 70 miniature lights, 24-feet of garlanding and 35 to 50 additional ornaments. A 6-foot tree, however, will require at least 200 lights, 75 feet of garlanding and from 100 to 150 ornaments.

Trimming the tree properly starts with arranging the lights, proceeds to garlanding and winds up with the final ornament trim. Icicles (not advocated by varning) go on last. A rule of thumb to remember lights start at the top; garlands start at the

For best results, use the same style light and work with the bulbs lit in order to judge their placement and effect. The first bulb goes very near the top of the tree. Wind it around a branch and begin working your way downward and around, zigzaging from side to side and in and out. Do not hang any bulbs in mid-air between the branches. And conceal the centered directly over the valleys of the previous row. Depending on the size of the tree, you will probably have from five to seven rows of garlanding. Swags are generally between 12 and 18 inches wide, depending on the circumference of the

There are several alternatives to the horizontal swagging effect. You can garland vertically from the top of the tree to the bottom, swagging only the bottom row horizontally. Another idea is to start at the top and work your way down in spiral fashion so that the garland is on the diagonal.

For an interesting two-toned look, twist two strands of different colored garland together before swagging.

Your tree trim will show up better if you follow an organized plan, according to Warning. An easy way to provide symmetry is to collect a quantity of a single ornament and place one each at the peaks of the garlands. Fabric bows in a bright Christmas plaid or solid color are very effective. So are solid-

Once the basic decorations are attached to the tree, fill in with other ornaments. Add the tree topper, cover the base with fabric or, if preferred, set the entire tree in a harmonious container, and step back. Your tree is ready to be enjoyed. Most families in the United States decorate a tree with ornaments collected over the years. But, if you are just starting out or are creating a second tree, you may wish to consider a themed tree.

According to Warning, about a fifth of American families have two or more trees. The additional trees are often decorated in a single theme - say one or two colors only or all birds.

Ornament manufacturers appear to provide the major impetus towards new Christmas decorating themes. American Tree and Wreath, Warning's. firm, for example, introduces about five new treedecorating themes each year. Each tree has between 5 and 10 decorative elements.

Ideas for new themes come from popular culture, travel and the arts and are developed at least a year and a half ahead of time. Warning's firm has already completed its 1981 Christmas decoration line and ideas for 1982 will be discussed and chosen by next Midland City Council Ta won an award for Outstanding VIPS Program" in Texas PTAs.

VIPS (Volunteers in Public Schools) was headed by Nell Furgeson, chairman. Her coworkers were Patti De-France and Fran Polston and 19 elementary volunteer chairmen. This. award was given by the Texas Elementary Principals Association.

'Each and every one of our volunteers deserve recognition for this achievement," said Mrs. Furgeson. "Ours was the only program that was districtwide and so strongly supported by the school administration, the community, local banks and media services in the area.'

District 17-which includes Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Pecos, Grandfalls and Alpinewon the district member sip award for having the argest membership gain or 1980-81.

DISTRICT 17 was the only district in Texas to have a membership gain this year.

The PTA City Council here also received two honor roll awards: The Texas PTA Communicator Honor Roll (for promoting the publication by ordering a bulk order for distribution at City Council General Meeting and for holding a publications workshop) and the Council Membership Honor Roll (for having a membership workshop to promote membership on the local level).

Fifteen Midland schools received the state membership award for having a ten percent or more increase Twelve of those schools were represented at the state convention.

The schools receiving the awards were Jones, Long, Milam, South, Travis, Washington, West, Bowie, Burnet, Midland Freshman, Emerson, Goddard, Henderson, Houston and

City Council also received a membership award for having over 10 per cent membership

"Our total figure for last year in councilwide membership gain was 6,- 506 and this year is 7,209,said Gayle Dodson, city council president. 'Many thanks to all the 26 PTAs as it took all of them to win this award," she said.

At the state convention, Mrs. Dodson was asked to speak to the bylaws amendments workshop, the district caucus and the general session concerning the method used for PTA memberships in Midland's cluster system.

Midland has received state recognition in its process of implementing the method of paying at one school in the cluster and having a PTA card honored at the other two schools, which has brought about a membership gain instead of a decrease the past four

BURNET ELEMEN-TARY received a certificate as one of the five state finalist in the beautification contest.

Pacifier significant contribution

One night we were all sitting around and someone suggested we list the ten most significant con-tributions to the quality

Most of them were quite predictable. Elec-tricity, fire, the automo-bile, television and penicillin were mentioned. Some were quite person-al and included the Pill, polyester, 10-foot phone cords and locks for bathgerms were fought oneroom doors. on-one, the pacifier was I thought the whole considered a temple that conversation was quite superficial. What we were talking about was the one thing that made an impact on your life and indeed made it possible for you to survive on this planet. For me, there was no question. The No. 1 choice was the pacifier. How many women would not be with us today were it not for that little rubber/plastic nipple that you jammed in a baby's face to keep him from crying?

Today, it's as much a part of a baby's face as his nose or ears, but 30 years ago the pacifier was considered a maternal crutch: a visual that announced to the world, was a closet pacifier advocate. So were most of my friends. Unknown to our mothers, we owned 30 or 40 of those little suckers which were placed strategically around the house so that a cry could be silenced spite the fact that bottles were boiled, rooms were disinfected, toys were hermetically sealed and proof and above steril-Despite the fact that we found them under beds, buried in sofa cushions, thrown in ashtrays and buried in the garbage, no child ever got sick from "fooler around the mouth." I shall never forget the day my mother dropped by unexpectedly and found a pacifier in her granddaughter's mouth.

"What is this?" she de manded, waving the flattened nipple on the plastic ring before my eyes. "An ugly fever blister?" I offered.

"It's a pacifier! Where did you get it?

French experts don't pop their corks over China's version of champagne

By CAROLYN LESH Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — French champagne experts are less than bubbly over China's announcement that it has developed its own version of the celebrated wine.

"It may taste good and even look like champagne, but it is definitely not champagne and should not be labeled as such," said Irene Lasserre, a spokesman for the Comite Interprofessionnel du Vin de Champagne, the association of growers and bottlers.

French law allows only wine made from an exclusive type of grape grown in the northeast Champagne region to be labled champagne and the French have gone to court against imposters.

"China does not have the right to call their version champagne," Mrs. Lasserre asserted. "They should call it a sparkling wine instead."

She acknowledged there is no way to make China honor the French law.

Mrs. Lasserre said some countries such as Britain and Spain.

Mrs. Lasserre said some countries, such as Britain and Spain, signed an accord in 1891 under which they agreed to honor French labeling laws. Mrs. Lasserre said other countries, such as the United States and the Soviet Union, have never signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration announced Friday it will allow the importing of 200 million pounds of peanuts in the first half of 1981 to ease a critical shortage caused by the summer's drought.

The emergency action was prompted by layoffs in peanut-using food industries, particularly manufacturers of peanut butter, candy and related products. The peanut shortage also has caused wholesale the accord and allow the sale of "imitation" champagne.

"There is nothing we can do about it," she said from the Comite's office in Epernay in the heart of Champagne country. In France, heavy fines are imposed for violation of "appellation controlle," the strict wine production and labeling conditions laid down and enforced by the semi-official Institut National des Apellations d'Origine.

The Comite has made several unsuccessful attempts to force other nations to obey its "appellation controlle," and has filed many lawsuits against individual producers in Europe and abroad.

Champagne is said to have been invented in France early in the 18th century by the monk Dom Perignon, who described it as "stars in a bottle."

The Comite had not heard of the Chinese claim. It was announced Wednesday in the Peking newspaper Guangming, which said the new wine had long-lasting bubbles, a fresh fruit aroma, a refined taste and a unique Chinese style.

The newspaper said Chinese wine experts were urging that it go into full-scale production to "satisfy the needs of domestic and foreign markets."

China's announcement came as French vineyards reported their 1980 champagne production would be cut about 60 percent because of bad weather.

Groups fighting Klan resurgence

By DAVID TREADWELL The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan, marked by a dramatic increase in racist and anti-Semitic killings, beatings, harassment and vandalism over the past five years, has spurred a Klan terror has struck communities from Greensboro, N.C., where five members of the Communist Workers Party, both black and white, were slain during a shoot-out involving Klansmen and Nazis, to Fontana, Calif., the scene of repeated cross burnings and death threats.

The Klan revival - some estimates say membership has doubled since 1975 — has reawakened fears of the hooded night riders whose acts of terrorism form some of the darkest chapters of U.S. history.

BUT THIS TIME blacks, Jews and other traditional targets of Klan violence are mounting an all-out offensive against the Klan, using a variety of tactics: legal maneuvering, direct protest, political pressure, outreach programs and educational mate-

"This is no 'new' Klan like some of the Klan leaders are saying, but the same old racist Klan that preys on people," said Akinshiju Ola, coordinator of the National Anti-Klan Network. "They may not be wearing sheets and lynching people, but they're just as dangerous in commando fatigues and carrying automatic weapons.'

The anti-Klan movement, which includes veterans of the civil rights and anti-war turbulence of the 1960s and early 1970s, is moving on several fronts and through a variety of organizations.

"We're fighting back with everything and in every way possible," said Leah Wise of the New York-based Interreligious Foundation for Community Organization, which is in the forefront of anti-Klan activities. "We can't fall into the old rut of just talking to ourselves or ignoring the Klan in hopes it will go away."

HERE IS A SAMPLE of current anti-Klan activi-

-In Montgomery, Ala., the Southern Poverty Law Center is documenting Ku Klux Klan actions throughout the nation, using methods devised by the Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies to track down Nazi war criminals.

-In New York City, the National Anti-Klan Network is drawing up plans for a national conference next month and mapping strategy for a campaign to pressure Congress to open hearings into the Klan

-Also in New York, the Council for Interracial Books for Children is preparing a model lesson plan on the Klan that public school teachers can use in high school social studies classes.

—In cities such as Detroit, Wrightsville, G$., and Decatur, Ala., aid is pouring in to support lawsuits designed to end Klan murders, beatings and harass-

GROUPS INVOLVED in anti-Klan work cover a broad political and ideological spectrum - from the Communist Workers Party to mainline civil rights groups, such as the NAACP and National Urban League, both long-time Klan foes. Organized labor also is playing a strong role. And Hispanic, feminist, Third World and gay activists are also involved in

A "Stand Against the Klan" rally last October in the westen Pennsylvania community of Uniontown illustrates the diversity of the anti-Klan movement. Members of the committee organizing the event included the United Mine Workers, Urban League, YWCA, National Organization for Women, Third World Alliance and Center for Constitutional

One of the most prominent anti-Klan organizat8ons is the National Anti-Klan Network, a loose coalition of more than 100 groups formed last year to bolster individual strengths, coordinate anti-Klan activities and provide a forum to spread the anti-Klan mes-

Headquartered in New York, member organization of the coalition range from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, founded bythe Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., to the lesser known Nuclear Information and Resource Service.

Marilyn Boydstun Clement, director of the New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights, conceived the idea for the anti-Klan network following an anti-Klan protest march last year in Decatur,

AS THE MARCHERS wound their way from a small Baptist church in Decatur's black community to downtown City Hall, they were suddenly confronted by a band of 200 to 300 white-robed Klansmen, several of whom brandished clubs or carried concealed weapons.

"I had been in many, many marches before in my life," Clement said, "but this was the first time I had ever seen the Klan in person. For about 30 seconds, I experienced stark fear. I asked myself, 'What the hell am I dong here?'

"Then I began to grow outraged that the Klan was growing and developing so openly — and that few-people in this country seemed to really know about it. I decided something must be done."

Clement and C.T. Vivian of the Southern Christian

Leadership Conference laid the groundwork for a meeting last December in Atlanta that gave formal birth to the anti-Klan coalition. The concerns of the anti-Klan movement have been heightened recently by the acquittal of six Klansmen and Nazis charged with murder in a shootout last year in Greensboro that claimed the lives of five Communists. Daniel Sheehan, an attorney with the Washington-based Christic Institute, said the incident was symptomatic of a long-standing feud between racist groups, such as the Klan and Nazis, and blacks and whites attempting to organize textile workers. "The Klan is and always has been notoriously anti-labor," Sheehan said. "The Greensboro verdict is, in a sense, nothing but a green light for them to continue their attempts to break the back of the labor movement there and elsewhere.' Sheehan is chief counsel for plaintiffs in a lawsuit pending in federal district court. It alleges, among other things, that the Greensboro police helped recruit the Klansmen and Nazis who went to the site

KLAN LEADERS ATTEMPT to portray their organizations as comprising a "new" Klan that disavows the night-riding terrorist methods of the of the ill-fated "Death to the Klan" rally in Novem-

But a Klan official in Florence, Ala., expressed frequently heard sentiments when he said during a rally last August: "White people have become second-rate citizens in their own nation because we have not gotten our Bibles and guns out of the closet."

Many anti-Klan activists see parallels between the current Klan revival and the rise of the Klan during the post-Civil War reconstruction era.

Now as then, says Bradford Chambers, director of the Council for Interracial Books for Children, the Klan is serving as advance guard of the backlash against gains made by blacks.

"The Klan set the stage for the dismantling of Reconstruction reforms and the beginning of the harsh Jim Crow laws," Chambers said.

Housing market still in slump

By KRISTIN GOFF AP Business Writer

The "For Sale" signs in front of many American homes are beginning to show signs of age as the prolonged housing slump grinds on.

Economists were hopeful of a recovery in the poor housing market only a few months ago. But the sudden surge of interest rates changed that outlook

Many now expect housing to remain in a vice through at least next spring. Even then sales and construction are not expected to rise rapidly enough to make 1981 a normal year.

Interest rates are the major culprits. Mortgage rates started the year around 12 percent and climbed as high as 18 percent last spring as the government announced a program of credit controls. As those controls were disbanded, rates dropped back to around 12 percent for a time last support around 12 percent for a time last summer.

But hopes for a housing recovery were left behind in the latest interest rate spiral, which recently sent mortgage rates above 15 percent in some markets and as high as 16 percent in California.

A SIMILAR INCREASE in interest rates earlier this year brought home construction and sales to a virtual standstill. Sales picked up in June and July but have turned down again.

"We are right back to where we were in early spring," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders.

"We only had about three months of good sales and that wasn't enough to bring in the cash builders need to survive," Sumichrast said.

The latest figures on new housing construction and sales of existing homes both showed a drop from previous months and economists look for no im-

Not only are high rates scaring off — or disqualifying — potential buyers, but they've made lenders

Many have been hurt by old mortages still on their books at rates well under 10 percent. Carrying those loans is costly, and many are reluctant to make fixed-rate mortgages now. At the Home Savings & Loan Association of Los Angeles, the largest savings and loan in the country, mortgage lending is down to about 10 percent of normal volume, says President Richard Deihl.

HOME SAVINGS LISTS its best mortgage rate at 14 percent — lower than those elsewhere — but loan conditions are so tight it really doesn't matter

"It's a question of whether you don't get a loan at 14 percent or you don't get one at 16 percent," Deihl

Like other major lenders, particularly on the West Coast, mortgage lending at Home Savings is res-tricted to sales involving a mortgage already held by the savings and loan. Lenders generally are not seeking new customers.

Thomas Harter, chief economist for the Mortgage Bankers Association in Washington, estimates that nationwide mortgage lending has dropped 40 to 50 percent from volume in September and early October and is down by as much as 70 percent from lending levels in the summer months, when rates were running about 12 percent.

Harter predicts that the national average of conventional mortgage rates will stay in the 14 to 15 percent range for some months. While rates may dip by spring and summer, housing economists generally only look for rates to drop to the 12 or 13 percent range at best.

For anyone seeking a new mortgage, the implications are stark.

The average price of all homes sold in October was $71,700 and the average mortgage rate on deals preliminary figures from the Federal Home Loan

TO A BUYER ABLE to come up with funds for a 20 percent down payment, that amounts to $14,400 up front and a monthly payment of $624 on a 30-year mortgage. At the 15 percent rate now prevalent on the West Coast, in Chicago and elsehwere, that monthly payment would jump to $728.

But many potential buyers have already been squeezed out of the housing market by rising housing costs and interest rates and concerns about making a big commitment when the economy is sluggish.

For those in the housing industry, 1980 has been a disastrous year. Housing construction typically falls during years when the economy hits a recession, but the interest rate squeeze and length of the housing slide make this one different.

"For the resale market, the 1979-80 crunch is almost twice as severe as the previous two in the 1970s decade," says Kenneth Kerin, economist for the National Association of Realtors in Washington.

Measuring from the highest sales month to the lowest one, he calculates that housing sales dropped 20 percent in the 1969-70 credit crunch and 19 percent in the 1974 crunch. But from late 1978 - when the housing boom ended — to last April, housing sales

"We really got beat up quite handily this time," comments Kerin.

FROM ONE PERSPECTIVE, the fact that the latest interest rate spiral is developing late in the year is good. Housing sales and construction are always slowest in the winter months, so high rates don't hurt as much as they would in the busy spring and summer months. Still, construction of new homes has slowed dramatically in recent months. And when buyers do return to the market, some economists think the pent-up demand for houses will drive prices much

New housing starts this year are expected to total about 1.2 million, according to Harter of the Mortgage Bankers Association. That's about 30 percent lower that housing starts last year and down 40 percent from the 2.03 million in 1978, the last good year for housing.

Next year, if the drag of high interest rates continues until spring, the Mortgage Bankers Association expects only about 1.5 million new housing units to be built, an improvement from this year but still far below the 2.2 million or so units that housing experts think would be needed to meet demand.

Sales of existing homes are following a similar pattern. The National Association of Realtors expects sales this year to total about 2.9 million, down 22 percent from sales last year. Next year an improvement to about 3.7 million sales is expected, but that still would be slightly below the last good housing year of 1978 when sales totaled 3.86 mil-

Death rate for young worse, new report says

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Death rates for American young adults and adolescents are worse today than 20 years ago, and mixing alcohol and drugs with driving is to blame for much of that toll, Surgeon General Julius B. Richmond reported.

Dr. Richmond released a 463-page volume entitled "Health United States — 1980." It showed that death rates are down since 1960 among every U.S. age group except those 15

Richmond, a pediatrician, said,

"Violent death and injury, alcohol and problems among the nation's 40 million adolescents and young adults. His agency recently issued a report that the young by 20 percent by 1990.

To do that, he said, "We must identify better ways of bringing violence.

Richmond also expressed concern about the rising carnage on the na-tion's highways among all drivers. The motor vehicle death rate, which fell steadily from 1968 to 1976, has climbed back up again, and the 1978 eath toll of 53,610 was the highest in

Richmond said health authorities were over-optimistic in assuming that the nationwide 55-mph speed limit imposed in 1973 as a fuel-conservation measure would keep auto deaths

He said relaxed enforcement of that limit has played a part in the rising auto death rate, but he also blamed smaller cars on the road and less use of seat belts.

Transportation Department studies have shown "some of the compacts don't stand up as well in accidents," particularly since they share the road with heavy vehicles, Richmond said. Vans "may not have quite as good a safety record," he added. Richmond said alcohol abuse plays a large part, with "more and more young people drinking alcohol at ear-lier and earlier ages."

The report, compiled by the De-partment of Health and Human Services, charts progress the nation has made against heart disease and stroke. Richmond said it serves as a compass for future efforts to fight disease and to discourage unhealthy life styles. Other statistics highlighted in the School for the Deaf in Washington, Roth said.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — A judge has ruled that a woman who worked to put her husband through medical school is entitled to some of the value of his medical degree even though the couple is now divorced

Superior Court Judge Conrad W. Krafte, in an opinion issued Thursday after a three-week trial, set value of $306,000 on the medical degree of Dr. Robert Lynn and said 20 percent of it belonged to his ex-wife, Bonnie Lynn, who did library research for a pharmaceutical company while her husband studied at Rutgers University.

In addition to her more than $60,000 share in the degree, Ms. Lynn was entitled to alimony, the judge

The couple met when they both were pre-medical students. Ms. Lynn supported her husband and re-searched his papers while he completed medical school, according to court testimony.

After he received his degree in 1975, Ms. Lynn 'was then to pick up the pieces of her educational aims and pursue what, in present reality, has become her elusive dream," the judge said. But, in June 1976, Ms. Lynn become deaf after contracting Meniere's disease. The couple separated and in January 1978, the doctor filed for a divorce. Stephen Roth, Ms. Lynn's lawyer, argued the doctor's education was a valuable asset which should be considered in dividing the couple's property.

The judge agreed. He said the woman's "contribution, both financially and emotionally, to the furtherance of plaintiff's educational goals and attainment of his dream - a license to practice medicine and surgery - was crucial, substantial and incontrovert-

Amoco's Engvold well marks the Northeast Oakdale field north of Killdeer, N. D., in the Williston Basin. The wagon is a relic of ranch life on these grasslands in the 1880s.

Almost 100 work Williston's center

CHICAGO, Ill. - Nearly 100 rigs are now drilling the center of the Williston Basin in western North Dakota, where interest has been re-ignited in the past three years.

Significant oil discoveries, better oil prices, and improved technology are three of the reasons for the renewed interest in the area, which last experienced an oil boom in the 1950s.

Amoco Production Co., one of the companies involved in the current revival, will probably drill 35 wildcats and five development wells in the Basin during 1980 and another 50

Since 1977, Amoco has completed 12 company-operated producing wells and has varying interests in 16 other producers in widely-separated areas of the Basin, which stretches into parts of Montana, South Dakota and Canada

Amoco Production, the U.S. exploration and production subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), is evaluating acreage within a geological area covering 100,000 square miles. Amoco's interest in the Basin is highlighted in an article in SpaN, a quar-terly publication for shareholders and employees of Standard.

"Considering the size of the area the number of wells per square mile is still quite low and much of the Basin not been adequately explored, said Neil Allen, assistant district superintendent at Amoco Production's office in Dickinson, N. D. Amoco, which now has about 6,000 barrels a day of oil production in the Basin, says North Dakota is one of the few states where oil production is increasing. Gordon Henderson, division geologist in Amoco's Denver region, said the Basin has all the incentives for a major oil play for Amoco: large blocks of acreage, reliable seismic information, relatively shallow drilling, multiple pay zones, high drilling success ratio, the potential for substantial reserves, and adequate oil

"Multizone completions are common in parts of the Basin," said Henderson. "There are more than 15 different producing horizons with the Mission Canyon, Red River, and Duperow being the most prolific. Well depths range from 2,000 to 14,000

Henderson said better seismic techniques have been a major factor in the high success ratio of discoveries in the Basin. "Nationally, the ratio of discoveries to dry holes in wildcat drilling is from 10 to 15 percent," he said. "Comparatively, our company has averaged 30 to 35 percent success over the past two years on wildcats in the Williston Basin.

Amoco Producion acquired a large block of North Dakota acreage in the early 1970s. But in spite of record exploration budgets, the company had more prospects in the U.S. than it could effectively explore.

The Williston Basin was given a lower princity than other areas, principally because government-controlled prices for oil and gas were too low to justify the expense. But with gradual decontrol of prices, more and more of the industry's attention began to be focused on the area.

Amoco and Gulf Oil Corp. both had extensive leases in the center of the Basin and agreed to explore the prospects, with Gulf carrying out the drilling program. The Little Knife field was discovered in 1979, and today the field produces about 15,000 barrels of oil daily.

In the meantime, Amoco made a discovery some 15 miles east of the Little Knife discovery and drilled five other wells to confirm the boundaries of the new Killdeer field.

To further explore the area, Amoco in 1979 entered into a joint exploration agreement with Tucker & Snyder Exploration, Inc., whose interest was later assumed by Williston Basin Ltd., a limited partnership.

During a three-year period, the partnership will spend $150 million on drilling, acquiring seismic data, and lease rentals on undeveloped acreage. Amoco is the project's operating part-

Capital is growth key

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Gaining access to the investment capital so necessary to provide more gas energy for consumers is the key to gas industry growth, the chairman of the American Gas Association said.

Speaking before the A.G.A.'s Gas Industry Bankers Conference, Robert H. Willis pointed out that over the next 20 years the gas industry could increase natural and supplemental gas supplies by 50 percent, but that this would require more than $400 billion in investment capital.

"Solving the financing problems will require a combined effort by the gas industry, the financial community and federal and state agencies," Willis said.

McGhee believes Canadian cash will finance U.S. wells

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) - Ed McGhee says the warning cry of "The Canadians are coming, the Canadians are coming!" is going up throughout the U.S. oil patch.

The executive vice president of the International Association of Drilling Contractors says the modern day invaders are fleeing from Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the new federal tax and national energy policies revealed in late Octo-

McGhee said the United States in 1981 will see a lot of wells financed by Canadian money and a lot drilled by Canadian rigs.

"Coming they are - rigs, trucks, men, know-how, and money, McGhee said.

How much money and how many men, he said, remain to be deter-

"No one can say until the dust settles on the fight between Trudeau and the rebellious leaders in Canada's western provinces," he said. "In the meantime, many investors and contractors say they don't wish to hang around to see the outcome. They remember the recession of the mid-1970s when Trudeau last decided to bring the petroleum industry to heel. This time, the premier aims straighter to the heart — he's talking nationalization.

Reporting to the trade group membership in the December edition of "Drilling Contractor," McGhee said the bulk of 1980 Canadian petroleum budgets probably were irrevocably committed before Trudeau announced his programs.

"Most rigs have work that will carry them past Jan. 1," he said.

"The crisis is building as 1981 budgets, already in shambles, must be drawn upon. The point-of-no-return coincides with the annual 'break-up' when thawing roads make rigs moves not only impossible but also illegal. Many operators and contractors will elect to cut losses by suspending Canadian operations prior to that time. And, barring unforeseen political miracles, the still frozen roads will be filled by equipment moving south."

McGhee said most of the rigs will head first for the northern U.S. Rockies or the U.S. Williston Basin in the Montana-Dakotas area.

"Once there, their owners hope for an operator farther south to finance the long haul into the heart of the U.S. oil patch," he said.

McGhee said the Canadian drilling fleet now includes about 600 rigs. "A month ago, almost all were fully employed," he said. "Now, owners of perhaps 200 of these units are talking of moving out soon. He said some of the rigs will go to South America, Southeast Asia or Africa but most will carry a U.S. destination "The reasons are simple," he said.

"Little time will be lost in shipment or in finding work. Operations can be conducted virtually year-round." McGhee said most U.S. contractors do not know whether to view the invading Canadians as a threat or a godsend "The choice would be easier to make if anyone knew how large the backlog of undrilled wells in the United States really is," he said. "Everyone knows all U.S. rigs are working. No one knows how long it would take U.S. contractors to drill up the backlog if left to their own de-Even without the Canadian imports, he said, the U.S. industry added a net of 490 rigs to its domestic fleet the past year. Predictions for another 600 rigs before next August, he added, would boost the domestic fleet to about 4,400

But, McGhee said, even those U.S. contractors who believe there is enough work for everyone still resent the Canadian invasion. "The reason is the street is one

Probably only four U.S. contractors have managed to clear the bureau-cratic hurdles necessary to get permission to operate rigs above the 49th

But, he added, part of the potential damage to U.S. contractors is offset by the influx of Canadian exploration funds even though the exact amount is difficult to assess

"Some say it exceeds an annual rate of $1 billion," he said. "If so, Canadian money will be financing an equivalent of about 100 of the Canadi-

CALGARY, Canada - Quasar Petroleum Ltd., an 81-percent-owned Canadian subsidiary of American Quasar Petroleum Co., has announced successful completion of the Quasar et al Murray B-99-E, an exploratory well on the Quintette prospect in northeastern British Columbia.

The well flowed gas at a rate of 11.6 million cubic feet through a 40/64-inch choke opening on a fourhour production test.

The Triassic Pardonet and Baldonnel carbonates were perforated at various depths between 7,490 and 7,756 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was 1,646 pounds per square inch; shut-in tubing pressure is 2,597 pounds. Calculated absolute open flow came to 15.7 million cubic feet per day.

Oil Industry Notes

FORT WORTH - Southland Royalty Co.'s board of directors has ap-proved a $163-million capital expenditure budget for 1981, an increase of 16 percent fro the 1980 budget of $140

Also, the board declared a cash dividend of 1 cent per share, payable Dec. 15 to stockholders of record Dec. 4. The dividend rate was reduced fron 10 cents per share following the creation of the San Juan Basin and Permian Basin Royalty Trusts.

The most significant budget increases are for exploration, where $69 million is budgeted compared with an estimated $50 million in 1980. Included in the exploration budget is $40 million for acquisition of undeveloped acreage, $20 million for wildcat drilling and $9 million for geological and geophysical activities.

HOUSTON - Moran Bros., Inc., has changed its name to Moran Energy, Inc. The firms corporate headquarters are in Houston.

Moran officials said the new name emphasizes the expansion of the company's operations into oil and gas exploration and production, gas gathering and processing, as well as its historical role as a leading contract driller onshore and offshore.

DALLAS - Quanah Petroleum, Inc., announced the appointment of H. Raymond Dubuisson as land manager and Douglas F. Wallace as controller.

Dubuisson previously was in the land departments of Aminoil USA, Inc., and Chevron USA, Inc.

Wallace most recently was assistant controller with Edwin L. Cox of Dallas and worked with C. F. Braun & Co. and Shell Oil Co.

Both men are located in the firm's corporate headquarters in Dallas.

HOUSTON - John Smith, formerly sales manager in the Houston Sales office of Fluor Oil Field Supply Co., has been promoted to general manager of sales.

Previously, he was Dallas district manager for the company. He joined Fluor Oil Field Supply in 1979.

CHICAGO, Ill. - Peoples Energy Corp. announced it will significantly incrase capital spending in fiscal 1981, particularly in the non-regulated areas of its business. More than $450 million in capital spending has been planned for 1981, more than half again the total fo $287.6 million so invested

O. C. Davis, chairman of the company's board, said more than $175 million of 1981 capital spending will be devoted to oil and gas exploration and development, with about 60 percent of this amount directed to devel-

DALLAS - If initial test results hold true, a $222,000 "frac job" will increase the daily gas flow 10-fold from a Sun Gas Co. well.

About 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas is flowing daily at 1,800 pounds tubing pressure since Sun Gas engineers in the Lafayette district pumped some 100,000 gallons of polymer gel and 165,000 pounds of bauxite (called Super Prop) into the No. 2 C. A. Antrim "D" well near Sarepta, La. Before fracturing, the well released only 100,000 cubic feet of gas per day at 60 pounds tubing pressure.

Fracturing is an attempt to improve the flow of gas or oil within a formation by cracking or propping open the rock. The frac job at the Antrim well took nearly five hours and was performed at a depth of 11,600 feet. Sun Gas spent $1.5 million to drill the well earlier this year.

FORT WORTH - The Western Co. of North America announced that its wholly owned ofshore drilling subidiary, Western Oceanic, Inc., has signed a new drilling contract for its semi-submersible offshore rig, Western Pacesetter II.

The rig will work for the London & Scottish Marine Oil Co., Ltd., in the United Kingdom sector of the North Sea, commencing during the second half of 1982 at the conclusion of existing drilling contracts. The contract calls for th rig to work for two years, with the customer having the option for one additional year.

Western also announced that it has entered into contracts for the construction n Taiwan of two new offshore jack-up drilling rigs.

The new Western Apollo III and Apollo IV rigs will be capable of drilling to more tha 25,000 feet in up to 300 feet of water. They will cost more than $40 million each, with delivery expected around May and June 1982. Both rigs are similar to the Western Apollo I and II jack-ups, which will be delivered in 1981k.

Drilling contract negotiations are presently underway for the two new

CORPUS CHRISTI - Matagorda Drilling and Exploration Co. announced the election of directors and officers at the company's annual shareholders' meeting.

Re-elected to the board were David J. Butters, senior vice president of Shearson Loeb Rhoades, Inc.; Celso M. Gonzalez, a partner in the law firm of porter, Gonzalez and Rogers; and C. T. Wells, president of Gulf Interstate Co. Butters was renamed chairman of the board.

Newly elected to the board were W. Douglas Bailey, vice president of Kel-loil, Inc. and C. R. DeLay, management consultant for several drilling contractors and oil purchasers.

Douglas E. Brown was elected president and chief executive officer of the company, in addition to being named a member of the board. James H. Price, Jr. was re-elected vice president - Finance and secretary; and James H. Robertson was elected vice president and treasurer.

HOUSTON - John D. Platt, president and chief executive officer of Geosource Inc., announced the company has entered into a letter of intent to acquire Superior Electric Wireline Co., a Lafayette, La., well logging and perforating services company.

The acquisition, which will involve an exchange of stock, is subject to a numbe of conditions, including the approval by the boards of directors of both companies.

Superior, a privately owned company, has five operating locations in the Louisiana and Texas Gulf Coast area. They provide both land and offshore wireline services to the petroleum

kehart, manager Drilling and Production. Both are employees of Samedan in Ardmore, Okla.

Samedan Oil completes Phase I

SEMINOLE - Samedan Oil Corp. has completed construction of Phase I of its South Central Robertson Unit waterflood project in Gaines County.

Construction of the water injection plant, oil gathering and treating facilities, associated pipelines and accessory equipment was begun in February.

The installation is comprised of all new equipment, with consideration given to safety, efficiency and environmental protection.

Corrosive resistive materials were used to prolong the life of the equipment and to reduce failure contributing to pollution. Initial cost of construction was more than $5.5 million.

The South Central Robertson Unit comprises 1,600 acres of land and will have 44 wells initially. Infill drilling is being considered which will add an-

Samedan formed the unit to waterflood the Glorieta, upper Clear Fork, middle Clear Fork and Clear

The unit is nine miles southwest of Seminole.

Samedan will develop the South Central Robertson Unit in two phases. Phase I includes 11 injection wells in which 17,000 barrels of water per day will be injected. An additional nine injection wells will be activated in Phase II and will allow an injection rate of 27,000 barrels of water per day. Phase II construction will begin late in 1981

Daily oil production from the unit now is about 850 barrels. Waterflood operations should recover an additional 7.8 million barrels from presently deveped producing intervals.

Undeveloped intervals should contribute additional primary and secondary oil. Peak waterflood performance is expected to yield in excess of 2,500 barrels of oil per day.

Operations of the waterflood are under supervision of the Midland Division of Samedan. Jim Trott is production superintendent. Dixon Lowther was in charge of construction for Samedan and Rob Frizzell was in charge of drilling and workovers. Richard Massengill is the project engineer.

The new incentive price category, effective Dec. 15, will allow producers to renegotiate intrastate contracts in exchange for initiating expensive and risky production enhancement procedures such as recompletions; repair or replacement of damaged casing, tubing or downhole equipment; acidizing; fracturing; installation of compression equipment; workover duction; and injection of "inert" gas into reservoirs to recover addition-Sun Gas, the nation's

The Sun Gas vice president says his company is evaluating a list of other potential projects to determine which may qualify under the new FERC price category. Intrastate pipeline purchasers will then be contacted to determine interest in additional production and the price they will pay for it.

"One project under consideration," says Hamilton, "involves compression work that, if completed, could produce an additional 1.8 billion cubic feet of gas reserves."

RRC certifies two tertiary projects

AUSTIN - The Bailroad Commission has certified Gulf Oil Corp. operations in Ward and Brazos Counties as qualified tertiary oil recovery projects under the federal crude oil Windfall Profits Tax Act.

The enhanced recovery programs in portions of the Ward-Estes, North Field in Ward County and the Kurten (Woodbine) Field in Brazos County, the operator estimates, will result in additional production of nearly 3.5 million barrels of oil. Under the federal tax act, production from qualified tertiary projects can be sold at uncontrolled market prices and taxed at alower rate than oil produced by primary and secondary techniques. In the East Flats Area of the Ward-Estes, North Field, Gulf expects to recover some 2.25 million barrels of additional oil from Queen Sand over a 14-year period through the operation of an in-situ combustion project. Such a volume represents 29 percent of the original oil in place in the field. Oil recovery using the in-situ combustion method involves the heating of the oil in the formation by igniting the oil and keeping the combustion alive by injecting air into the formation. te heat breaks down the oil into coke and light oil, as the coke burns, lighter, less viscous oil is pushed ahead to the well bores of producing wells.

In the East Flats Area, the Queen sand, discovered in 1969, is encountered at an average depth of 3,140

The RRC certification of the Brazos County project involves the Jones Enhanced Recovery Unit in te Kurten (Woodbine) Field. The 672-acre unit has four exisiting producing wells.

Gulf estimates that the initiation of a carbon dioxide augmented waterflood project ther will increase ultimate recovery of oil between Sept. 1981 and Oct. 1986 by 1.2 million barrels. the unit has produced 1 million barrels.

Gulf plans to drill four new injection wells and one new producing well on the unit by April 1981. Then, Gulf will repressure the reservoir, encountered at 8,100 feet, with 40 tons per day per well of CO2 for about nine months. Thereafter, alternate slugs of CO2 and water will be injected for three-month periods until about 1986.

Investing in our future

With the announcement of the formation of Midlanders Against Drugs this week, Midland got another drug-combating organiza-

Both the newly formed Midlanders Aganist Drugs and the well-established Palmer Drug Abuse Program are important to Midland's society today, as is the work of other organizations. All are needed here, unfortunately.

While the goal of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program primarily is to help Midlanders free themselves of the bonds of drug use and abuse, the goal of Midlanders Against Drugs is prevention never starting to use drugs in the first place.

Although we may not like to admit it - and some of us don't -Midland does have a drug abuse problem. Look around you; it does exist! We can't deny it.

In fact, we think we can safely say that the Tall City's drug problem is more serious than that of many other cities of comparable size, due in large part to its level of affluence and its proximity to the Mexican border. Many of our young people thus have both the money for and the source of

It's difficult to determine exactly what has pushed today's youngsters to drug use. Is it a result of the liberalism and permissiveness of the 1960s and early 1970s? Is it the lack of a unified purpose in society today? Is it an off-shoot of relaxed standards in our schools and churches, deteriorating parental guidance or moral degeneration?

In all honesty, the problem may be a direct result of all those plus many more.

The devastating results of this societal change are all around us. Drop-outism, a plague that isn't unique to Midland by any means, is virtually at an all-time high. And we aren't only talking about drop-outs from our schools. We are referring to drop-outs of society - in general, those listless, half-hearted souls who always seem to be around but appear to be headed nowhere.

A lot of Midland's young people, as elsewhere, seem to be lowering their sights. They don't seem to reach for the stars. Despite the availability of Junior Achievement of Midland and many other youth incentive programs, we seem to be beset with an unusually high number of underachievers and unachievers. At the same time, it must be said that Midland has a large number of outstanding young people who are talented, gifted, ambitious.

Even so, the use of drugs and drop-outism are serious problems here. The two appear to be interrelated and one is just as damaging as the other.

The Midlanders Against Drugs organization will help, just like Palmer Drug Abuse Program helps. We're glad to have such organizations here.

But Midland needs more. It needs the active involvement of all its citizenry and all its institutions. The drug and drop-out problem is a big one that will take a major effort to defeat.

And we have to all be interested. After all, ultimately it's our future we're talking about

Television football games helping consumers survive

WASHINGTON - It appears that the fortunes, hopes and dreams of everyone in this country this Christmas are based on only one person -"the consumer." For better or for worse, he or she controls the destiny of multi-billion dollar corporations whose fourth-quarter earnings will depend on what the consumer does between now and Decmber 24th. If the consumer decides to sit this Christmas out, the country will continue to be in a recession, unemployment will increase, managerial heads will roll, and Ronald Reagan will walk in as president with one helluva mess on his hands.

Millions of dollars are being spent every day to get the consumer off his butt and into the stores. But so far it doesn't seem to be working.

I went to visit a consumer the other day, and found him watching a football game.

'Harvey," I said, "it's a beautiful day. Why aren't you jamming the stores and helping them ring up record sales so the economists can announce that the recession is over?" "I can't afford it," Harvey said.

The prices are out of sight. "But Harvey," I protested, "everyone is counting on you to get them healthy again. The stores are staying open until ten every night, just for you. They're not even closing on Sundays. You can make or break everyone's Christmas.

"I'd rather watch this football

WASHINGTON — The Russians are

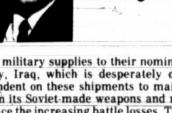

U.S. intelligence analysts are watching with a mixture of trepidation and exasperation to see if the Kremlin gets away with its latest double-dealing. Some of our experts think the Soviets may bring it off;

others don't see how they can. Despite their announced hands-off policy, the Russians are supplying both sides with armaments, though not in amounts great enough to let either side win decisively. It's a delicate business, and the Soviets could wind up alienating either or both of the antagonists. But the manipulators in the Kremlin evidently feel the stakes are worth the risk, and they are playing their cards with their usual skill. Some experts conclude the Soviets will simply try to continue their dangerous balancing act between the two adversaries in the hope that when the shooting is over, they will be on the winning side - no matter who is the

But there are some analysts who discern a Soviet "tilt" toward Iran which is strategically and economically more valuable to the Russians. Several times a week, transport planes fly from North Korea to Iran carrying Soviet-made military hardware: sophisticated surface-to-air missiles, anti-tank rockets, ammunition and spare parts. North Korea is held so tightly in the Soviet grip that the arms flights probably have Moscow's acquiescence.

By THOMAS E. WHEELER

Unlike any other industry, cable television is the best representation of ow growth and progress can be mutually beneficial to both industry and consumer. Specifically, cable can provide people with something they have demanded for years - better

The 1980s will find cable reaching nore consumers and providing more services than would have seemed possible just a few years ago. This ew surge will come with the realizaion of a host of new service options; he wiring of the major urban marcets; further technological advances and, it is hoped, further elimination of egulatory constraints.

Cable currently has 4,272 systems serving 17 million subscriber homes. This base covers 10,316 communities in all 50 states. Industry revenues for the end of 1981 are projected at $3.2

The base of the provision of extendd cable services will sprout from the dustry's continued massive urban pansion. In the next several years, ble construction will be completed in several major urban areas including Portland, Pittsburgh, Minneapo-lis and Dallas. The franchising process is expected to be initiated in hicago, Sacramento, Detroit, Boston and Milwaukee. The potential televilence in these latter cities has lysts projecting a cable subscrib-

Thimmesch

With a strong subscriber base, the industry will strive to increase its financial springboard as well. The major boost here will be the growth of advertising. Major advertisers, including Xerox, Proctor & Gamble, Bristol Meyers, Philip Morris, Toyota and Anheuser-Busch have already made commitments to cable. The incentive for these major companies to join the cable bandwagon stems from cable's ability to offer unique programming not found on the public airwaves. Cable is, additionally, cost effective, allowing the advertiser an opportunity for diversity and innovation. Projected 1985 advertising revenues should climb to the $350 million Technological expansion has been, in many respects, the backbone of the industry, allowing for a multitude of services not available from the broadcast community. Major growth will be seen in the following year in cable's plant capacity. In particular, 400-megahertz service, permitting the provision of 54 channels, will be refined. Two-way capabilities allowing security, information-retrieval and shop-at-home services will also

During the past several years, the major limit to cable industry growth and the expansion of consumer services has been excessive regulation by the federal government. These regulations were based on the erroneous assumption that the established broadcast television community mission disbanded major rules governing cable — the syndicated exclusivity rule and the distant signal

The distant signal rules limited the number of TV signals a cable system could bring in from another city. Cable systems, at the request of local broadcasters, had to black out syndicated programming if the local stations claimed "exclusive contract" rights to show these programs in their areas. This was known as the syndicated exclusivity rule. For example, a cable system importing "Star Trek" from a broadcast station could have been required to black it out if "Star Trek" was also carried local-however, by a three-year inquiry and rule-making proceeding by the Federal Communications Commission, and, as a result of this inquiry, the Comly.

The broadcast community claimed that the absence of these restrictions affected the supply and price of syndicated programming, causing grave economic harm. The FCC found no evidence to support these claims. In fact, what the Commission stated was that the existence of these rules artificially restricted competition and denied consumers diversity in program services. The Commission also observed that the question of program values was a copyright issue, solved by Congress when it established a compulsory license system for cable in the Copyright Act of 1976. It was not, the Commission ruled, a communications policy issue.

To summarize, it is the interaction of these issues and advancements that will enable cable to maintain its momentum and continue its unprecedented growth. The 1980s will see continued growth in these areas, with the utmost attention being paid to the very important recipient of these services - the consumer.

Water importation may again spring up as issue

AUSTIN — Speaker Bill Clayton's call for creation of a trust fund using surplus state revenues to finance water development projects in Texas marks the start of what appears to be another major campaign to convince Texans that they must invest in additional water reserves.

But other areas of the state may require a significant selling job, particularly in regard to any attempts to import water to West Texas.

That import question isn't a new issue in Texas politics, and it's been the dominant issue in water development in Texas for some three dec-

Originally, it was hoped that water could be brought from the Mississippi River to the High Plains - but federal studies concluded that project was far too expensive for the benefits it would

More recently, planners have been eyeing Arkansas as a possible source of surplus waters - and giving the issue a regional approach, with the federal government pitching in to help out several southwestern states.

Clayton, speaking to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Lubbock last month, noted Arkansas has indicated it's not adverse to working out some sort of a quid pro quo arrange-

But one long-time observer of water development in Texas remains unconvinced that any import plan will be feasible, because of the rapidly increasing costs of energy.

When the Mississippi River plan was proposed, with costs of energy at two mills per kilowatt, the plan had only a "bare outside chance" of success — and costs now are ten times or more for power.

Even with the shorter distances which might be involved in getting water from the Arkansas River, energy costs are far too high to make the project economically feasible, he

Even if the water was delivered to the area, he says, no one could afford to pay for it, if the calculations of $600 an acre-foot made several years ago

But talking about import, he concludes, "is one way to keep those people on the High Plains from committing suicide.

To many folks on the High Plains, however, it's the rest of the state that may be committing suicide - or at least self-mutilation.

Most readily admit that the costs of imported water are likely to be quite high, and that some sort of regional or federal subsidation - directly or indirectly - will be needed.

They argue that keeping agricultural production on the High Plains and in West Texas will be more and more vital in coming years, due to predicted world shortages in food and

And American consumers also would be faced with higher domestic prices if the vast agricultural lands which depend on irrigated agriculture aren't available to produce.

Whether the federal government will decide that there is a national interest in maintaining West Texas agricultural production - as part of the so-called "food weapon" approach - remains to be seen.

The Carter Administration angered many water development interests in Texas with its approach to a national water policy which stressed conservation and down-played new projects, and which aimed at shifting additional development costs from the federal to the state level.

Undue influence

To The Editor:

The National Council of Churches voted on November 25 to rewrite parts of the Bible in order to substitute words with no "male-female" reference in order to expand the Creator's "range of images." This demonstrates to the degree the influence the so-called ERA movement has forced upon our society. "Strictly and theologically speaking, no statement about God as Lord, King, Father or He, expresses a male reality over against a female reality. The sense of God as Father has no meaning of fatherhood as over against motherhood." (direct quotes)

Does your church support The Na-tional Council of Churches? If they do through your giving and contributions you are contributing to the killing of innocent people by the Council's contribution of approximately $100 thousand in the South African Civil War.

What has the National Council of Churches done to spread the "Good News" of Jesus Christ? They are puzzled as how to handle references to Jesus. "We would like to overcome the undesired suggestion that the incarnation makes Christ's maleness crucial in such a way to overshadow the primary import of the word having become flesh and the Divine having become human." (direct quote) I guess they will have to rewrite the Bible or go back and have "Bible

Who are they?

To The Editor:

We have heard a lot this fall about the so-called "Moral Majority." Several fundamentalist religious groups have taken this label upon themselves, in connection with their new conservative political activism. The press is now beginning to use the term without explanation and without quotation marks. I object. They have no rightful claim to either word. Ironically, these Bible-wavers are copying a propaganda tactic invented by V.I. Lenin; he named his tiny band of revolutionaries "Bolsheviks," which means "majority" in Russian.

Actually, this neoconservative movement is not surprising, when one considers the phenomenal growth, over the last decade, of fundamental Christianity. It is only natural that these people start trying to flex some political muscle. They are dismayed by the license and permissiveness of our pluralistic society. there is nothing unconstitutional about groups working to elect those

However the opposite of permissiveness is control. Unfortunately, tolerance has never been a particularly Christian virtue. The born-agains advocate what would amount to a tyranny of the Moral Majority; they want to impose their morals on others. They would have the state censor pornography, prohibit legal abortions and teach religious mythology in Biology I.

The First Amendment does not prohibit Christians, or anyone else, from being politically active. It does prohibit government from legislating religion, which is what the so-called "Moral Majority" would seem to

Poor planning To The Editor: Talk about ridiculous planning, this has got to be it. The street at Garfield and Wadley is now being torn up halting traffic from both directions. A real emergency This could have been done in the spring or summer and taken but a couple of weeks, but no, now it is winter and the weather forbids getting the job done quickly so we on the north side must continue making the route through the college or detouring up to Ward Street. I protest because all this delay is unnecessary. It is ridiculous.

Mrs. M.R. MacCurdy

Until job's done

To The Editor:

In reference to the article on Midland's "Clean-up Campaign" in Monday's (Dec. 1) paper, I would suggest that the celebrations of a "job well done" be held in abeyance until the job is completed.

My campaign donations have been in my alley, since November 20. Although I've been assured that my discarded items will be picked up "as soon as possible," I feel that offering congratulations to the city of Midland and Chamber of Commerce is a bit premature.

James R. Hess

Slow down!

To The Editor: I live three miles south off Rankin

Highway. I drive to and from work five days a week. I wonder how we survive the traffic on this road. Company pickups, personal pickups, cars and trucks drive as if their lives depend on getting to where ever they might be going. What is the speed limit on this road? Who knows? And they sure don't.

The school bus makes several stops on the three miles I drive. The driver turns his red light on when he stops to pick up the children. Some drivers never stop. Do they not know you are supposed to stop when the bus is loading and unloading? Where and how did they get their driver's license? When it comes to the blinking light on south Big Spring Street, that's something else again. The light is from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is a 20 mile per hour zone, but if you slow down the people will change lanes and pass you at about 30 or 40 miles per hour. Once or twice this year I have seen a policeman on the south side of town during this period. Do we not have enough men to patrol at this time? If one was only in sight it might slow down the traffic. After all, our children on the south side deserve protection. To us they are as important as any other child, even if they are bused half-way to Andrews. So, to our people in Midland and to the people from Odessa driving to the interstate, SLOW DOWN. The life you save might be your own, or one of your children.

After reading the Thursday evening, Dec. 4, 1980, edition concerning the suit filed against Midland Memorial Hospital, I felt it necessary to express my concern regarding the "negligent care" Mrs. Thomas received from the 3rd floor nurses (i.e. Ms. Ruth Dawson and Ms. Court-

Recently I was involved in a car accident in which both bones in my arm were broken. From the moment the paramedics arrived at the scene of the accident to the ambulance trip to the hospital including the x-ray and emergency room procedures, the care and attention I received from the nurses (including the above mentioned) and hospital staff could not have been better.

During my stay at Midland Memorial, although it was not a picnic due to my injuries, I was made as comfortable as possible by those who are now being condemned.

Considering some patients' negative attitudes at being hospitalized, I wonder how many times nurses have to bite their tongues to keep from retorting to constant complaints such as "the sheets are too stiff," "the hospital food could be better" or "why won't you call a doctor ... I really don't trust nurses?"

It is unfortunate that these accusations have been made, but I, for one, would like to praise the nurses on the 3rd floor for their dedication to their profession as well as their concern that EACH patient receives the best of care. My special thanks to Ms. Courtney and Ms. Dawson for their kindness and reassurance given to me during my stay in the hospital.

One jokingly said, "Better take up milking!" Teams, Leagues & Tournaments

During the year there will be co-ed power leagues, recreation leagues and at least one tournament for men's & women's teams. Again tournaments and power leagues will be played by international rules. Our recreational league will be for the less fanatical players and rules will be at a minimum. Leagues will usually be played on Tuesday nights and our tournaments will be played on Saturday or Friday and Saturday. Starting this Fall teams may practice at the Y from noon to 2 p.m. on Saturdays, however teams must contact Guy Fish before Saturday to be sure there is space available.

Recreation Volleyball & Basketball

As much time as practical has been provided for volleyball and basketball. Power volleyball will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays everyone is welcome but they must be able to play powerball or interested in learning

Basketball players must rotate other players in or rotate teams when a game has reached 21.

SPECIALTY PROGRAMS

The "Art of Self Defense", "Martial Arts" 'Karate' all these names are used to describe the Oriental form of hand and foot fighting that is taught by Curtis Abernathy at the Alamo 'Y'. Curtis has been instructing Karate for Several years, both at Alamo and the central 'Y'. He is a Black-belt in Karate and his classes concentrate not only the skill of using hands and feet, but also on the rules and philosophy of the sport as well.

Carefully plan Christmas buying

Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc.

Celebration is the key word in describing the Christmas season. It is also the time when many of us throw caution to the wind and indulge ourselves and our family and friends.

With inflation shrinking our dollar's purchasing power, the same caution we use to purchase goods and services the rest of the year needs to apply to the Christmas season - even when purchasing gifts.

By carefully planning your purchases and using the following guidelines, the gift you give should be a delight to the person who receives it.

-Analyze the person who will receive the gift. What are the person's values, goals and interests? Is he a trend-setter and only interested in owning well-known brands or will a no-name brand please him just as

Do you know the correct measurements of each person you are considering buying clothing for? Remember, there is no standard for sizes of manufactured clothing; therefore, even if you buy the correct size it may

From the analysis, make a list of gifts you feel each person would

-Budget your plan. Determine the total amount you can spend on gifts this year and the amount you want to spend on each person. From your gift list select those closest to staying within the budget. If you will select several possibilities for each person and prioritize them you will have an alternative if the gift at the top of the list is unavailable.

-Review the literature. If you are considering purchasing a major product as a gift, collect as much information as possible before you make a selection. In particular, you will need to find out what features and construction materials are considered most important. Sources of information are consumer product rating magazines, manufacturer brochures and the experiences of friends and

-Comparison shop. Not only is it important to compare price, but warranties, service records and store policies need to be compared as well. What is the store's policy concerning refunds and exchanges? Does the store have a good service reputation? If you are not sure, ask the store for references. If a salesperson makes a verbal promise that you consider important, make sure to get the statement in writing. In the rush to make a sale, often things are said that cannot be recalled later.

By planning your purchases instead of buying on impulse, the things you buy for yourself and others will be more useful and bring more satisfac-

New study says boys are better at math WASHINGTON (AP) — Boys are better at mathematical thinking than girls, according to a new study by researchers at Johns Hopkins

The study, by Camilla Benbow and Julian Stanley, maintains the differences in ability are not simply the result of sex-biased training and concludes that "sex differences in achievement in and attitude toward mathematics result from superior male mathematical ability. ... Their study was published in the current edition of Science maga-

The researchers did not claim that the differences between the sexes are necessarily genetic, saying the results probably come from a combination of genetic and social factors.

In their study, they found that at age 12 boys were superior to girls by an average of about 40 points, out of an average of 475 scored. The difference was even greater among top-scoring boys and top-scoring

However, Dr. Elizabeth Fennema of the University of Wisconsin, who also has studied the subject, said the results have no practical importance. "The overlap in girls' abilities and boys' abilities is very great, so almost all females can learn almost as well as all males," she said. "And few of us come near our potentials anyway. So, in practical terms, genes are not the things determining whether women will succeed in engineering or some other subject."

Watson, it has been 100 years

By MARLENE AIG Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - "You have been in Afghanistan, I perceive."

So Sherlock Holmes, the world's first and foremost consulting detective, greets his future roommate and chronicler, John H. Watson, M.D., in the pathology lab of St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London.

The remark capsulizes the deductive character of Holmes and sets the stage for one of literature's greatest, and most enduring, relationships.

Sherlockians — folks who study Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's 56 stories and four novels about Holmes as closely as others study the law — tend to put the date of the momentous meeting as Jan. 1, 1881.

And although nothing in the writings, called the "Canon" by Sherlockians, actually sets this date as historic fact, conjecture has been strong enough to warrant a plaque at the still-standing pathology lab that reads:

"At this place New Year's Day, 1881 were spoken these deathless words: 'You have been in Afghanistan, I perceive' by Mr. Sherlock Holmes in greeting to John H. Watson, M.D. at their first meeting.' And for most people, historic plaques are as

Holmes, of course, is the dominant character, but Watson deserves his due.

"Watson is all of us," contends author Michael Hardwicke, whose recent Sherlockian venture is "Prisoner of the Devil: Sherlock Holmes and the Dreyfus Case."

"Without Watson, Holmes wouldn't have to explain his solutions. We, like Watson, look in awe as Holmes explains his deductions."

Sherlockians, when pressed, agree that the plots of the stories can be mechanical and contrived. What makes them great — and they all agree that they are great — is the telling of them.

"I am lost without my Boswell," Holmes tells Watson, knowing that without his friend's discreet recounting of his adventures, he would probably have remained another Bohemian oddball in Victorian London.

While Boswell sought to chronicle the life of the already-famous Johnson, the coming together of Holmes and Watson was a bit more mundane.

"It was all a matter of economics," declares New Mexico-based Sherlockian John Bennett Shaw. "Watson was trying to live on 11 shillings and sixpence à day, and Holmes needed someone to split the rent at these great digs on Baker Street."

Watson had just returned from serving his queen in Afghanistan, had recuperated from a wound, and had little interest in starting a medical practice. Life as a dashing young blade in London was getting expensive and he chanced upon a friend, Stamford, in the Ritz Bar (there's a plaque there, too. Sherlockians leave nothing to doubt) who offered to introduce him to a man "a little queer in his ideas," who was looking for a man "a little queer in his ideas,"

It was off to Bart's — and literary history.
It wasn't ideal at first. "They were the late Victorian version of Oscar Madison and Felix Unger," says Virginian Sherlockian Jon Lellenberg. "But it became mutually beneficial. Writing about Holmes gave Watson something to do — and some money — and gave Holmes much-needed publicity for his struggling practice."

The anniversary of the great meeting is almost ironic. The copyright protection outside the United States runs out Dec. 31, 1980. But in this country several works remain protected by the U.S. Copyright Law

So, the barrage of take-offs and pastiches, which reached such a high point in the mid-'70s, will probably continue at an alarming rate.

For Sir Arthur left so many unanswered questions — whether Holmes went to Oxford or Cambridge, were his abilities inherited, how many wives Watson had (if he, himself, was not really a woman), where Watson's bullet wound really was — that latter-day Watsons will keep trying to find the real answers behind that seemingly harmless introduction in Bart's 100 years ago.

And, as Holmes, puffing his pipe in the coziness of Baker Street, would say, "Some day the true story

Goats clearing out forest underbrush

MAYHILL, N.M. (AP) — Goats have never been a particularly beloved species.

Cattlemen, in particular, have traditionally shunned the shaggy beasts, known for voracious and eclectic appetites.

But Elmer Curtis and his herd of 100 goats may be about to change all that.

about to change all that.

If Curtis' experiment in the Lincoln National Forest turns out right, he may even endear the little critters to forest rangers.

A hundred goats have been herded into portions of the southern New Mexico forest where pesky underbrush hampers firefighting efforts and keeps grass from growing.

from growing.

Cows, deer and other animals won't eat the wavy leaf oak brush, but goats love it, and Curtis hopes his herd will eat enough of the hardy plant to persuade the U.S. Forest Service to let him put even more goats in the forest.

Forestry rangers refer to Curtis' goats as "biological vegetation manipulators."

"They've done a wonderful job" so far. "I'm real happy," said Curtis, whose Angora goats have been grazing for three months in a 30-acre area about 60 miles north of the New Mexico-Texas border.

The same range is also used as pastureland by 36 cattlemen with grazing permits, although the goats, unlike the cattle, are not allowed to roam freely. They are kept inside a movable fence electrified with a solar-recharged, 12-volt battery.

The animals are penned in to keep independentminded goats from running away and starting wild herds

"We already have wild horses and wild burros," said Walt Snyder, chief of game management in Santa Fe.

The "hot" fence also keeps out wolves and mountain lions and allows forest rangers to see how effective the goats are at controlling the under-

Analysts say Soviet Union still hasn't decided

Military intervention in Poland still a possibility

By SETH MYDANS Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — If the Soviets decide to intervene militarily in Poland, how will they do it, and what resistance, if any, will they face?

Although some Western analysts believe the Soviet Union has made the necessary preparations for military action to put down widespread labor unrest in Poland, most believe the political decision on intervention has not been

"I don't think there is any evidence at this time that they are planning a military intervention," said Col. Jonathan Alford, deputy director of the London-based International Institute for Strategic Studies

'On the other hand, they are quite clearly signaling to the Polish workers that they should not overstep the bounds of responsibility.

Poland is surrounded by heavy concentrations of Soviet men and armor. Two Soviet tank divisions with about 30,000 soldiers are already based in Poland, clustered around Legnica in the southwest and Szeczin in the northwest. They are not considered to be strong enough, however, to carry out a major operation on their own.

Bordering Poland, the Soviets have 19 divisions in East Germany, four in Czechoslovakia and four in Hungary to the West.

But Western analysts see the Kremlin as likely to rely most heavily on about 30 divisions within its own western military districts near Poland with headquarters at Riga, Minsk and Lvov.

As with the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, it may want to involve detachments from other Warsaw Pact countries. This would ironically include the Czechoslovaks themselves. The Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia brought an end to a liberalization movement there.

But the moment East Germans cross the border into Poland, old World War II animosities are likely to come to a boil. One analyst suggests that if Germans are used at all, it will be in token numbers only, and they will be hidden by surrounding deployments of Soviet troops.

At the same time, Alford points out that the Soviet quarrel currently is not with the Polish Commmunist Party leaders, as it was in Czechoslovakia, but with the independent workers. An occupying force of Soviets alone could be brought in with the rationale of aiding a fraternal party.

Soviet tanks could be readied to roll into Poland within a week after a political decision is taken, analysts in Washington say. Any Soviet preparations are likely to be evident within two days before a move. If the Soviet tanks do roll, how are the Poles likely to react?

"Violently," says one observer who has made repeated visits to Warsaw. Poland has a long history of fighting Russian and German occupiers, and the Poles today are jealous of their borders as a nation and proud of their resistance in World War II.

The Poles like to say of themselves that they fight to die, not to win. But most analysts believe they would be foolish to make a suicidal attempt to stop Soviet forces crossing their borders from both east and west.

"However, if they think now in terms of prolonging resistance, they could organize themselves well for long-term opposition," Alford said.

Poland has a regular armed force of about 306,000 men, the largest in the Warsaw Pact outside the Soviet Union. It also has some 522,000 paramilitary personnel including border guards, riot police, policemen and internal security

It is not clear whether Poland's officer corps would hold against the Soviets, but in contrast to the Czechoslovaks 12 years ago, many analysts believe there would be a strong resistance. The willingness of the Polish army to support resistance is said to have been a factor in a Soviet decision not to intervene in Polish politics when Wladyslaw

Gomulka was appointed first secretary after "bread and freedom" riots in In 1970, according to a report in the Institute of Strategic Studies journal "Survival," Polish troops ignored an order to use "repressive force" in riots in the port city of Gdansk, and took "defensive action" to assure that Soviet troops remained neutral In addition, in assessing the outcome of military intervention, the Kremlin must take into account the likelihood of widespread industrial disruption

In addition they would have to count the political costs among their Warsaw Pact allies, who could bridle at yet another Soviet occupation, and in the West, where the result, as The Times of London put it, "would be like having another Afghanistan in the center of Europe.'

Reagan expected to take tough anti-Castro stance

By STEPHEN C. SMITH Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) - The sun-drenched but mostly poor islands of the Carib-bean can expect greater aid and coop-eration from the incoming adminis-tration of Ronald Reagan, observers

The president-elect gained the sup-port of the Cuban-American commu-nity during his campaign by vowing to stop Cuban President Fidel Castro from "exporting communism." He also promised to increase economic assistance to the Caribbean.

Hints about a possible Reagan poli-cy emerged just before the election from Roger Fontaine of the American Enterprise Institute, a senior Reagan adviser mentioned frequently as a likely choice for a high State Depart-

"Caribbean countries in trouble friendly to the United States and in trouble economically — would get our support in the Caribbean and Central America, but the Caribbean in particular would receive higher priority than the previous administration Reagan's chief foreign policy adviser, Richard V. Allen, last week put a gag on the president-elect's foreign affairs advisers, suggesting they postpone meetings with reporters and foreign visitors because of "the distortions that might result from your conversation. However, a story in Thursday editions of The New York Times detailed a transition team report recommending a reduction in the influence of "social reformers" and human rights advocates in the State Department's Bureau of Inter-American Affairs, which deals with the Caribbean and Latin America.

The report criticized President Carter's advisers on the National Security Council and the role played by some ambassadors, specially Robert White, ambassador to El Salvador.

Ambassadors "are not supporsed to function in the capacity of social reformers and advocates of new theories of social change" in the countries to which they are accredited, said the report. White has supported land redistribution and nationalization of the banking system in El Salvador, now ruled by a military-civilian coalition fighting against extreme leftists. In regard to human rights, the report said the Reagan administration should avoid confrontations with governments accused of violations. In contrast, Carter has actively encouraged other nations to improve their records on this issue and has sometimes threatened to withhold aid from countries who abused human

Despite the silence of Reagan's advisers, a consensus emerging from interviews with State Department experts, scholars and Republican Senate sources on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is that Reagan, like Carter, will concentrate on providing economic aid to friendly governments, while taking, a much harder line toward Castro.

"The Carter administration has tended to ignore Cuban activities in the last four years and tried to adopt a warm relationship with Castro," said a Republican source on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who asked not to be identified.

"I think it would be fairly safe to say those sorts of relationships are not likely under President Reagan. I think Cuban involvement in places like Angola, Ethiopia, Nicaragua and other countries will be looked upon more seriously and with grave concern by the Reagan administration," he said

Under the Reagan presidency, U.S. immigration laws will likely be toughened to stop the flow of refugees, which in 1980 alone brought more than 125,000 Cubans and some 25,000 Haitians into the country.

American companies might be offered incentives to invest in U.S.leaning nations like the Dominican Republic, Haiti and Jamaica

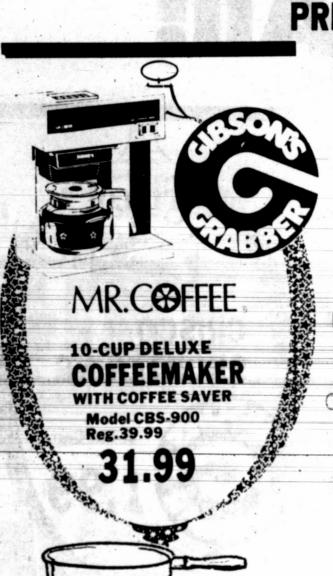

And money will likely continue flowing into hurricane-ravaged Windward Island countries such as Dominica and St. Lucia to revive their one-crop economies. Hurricane David in 1979 and Hurricane Allen this year virtually destroyed the banana crop on Dominica and heavily damaged crops on other islands. U.S. aid to the Windward islands for fiscal 1981 is $193 million.

Franklin Knight, a professor of Latin American history at Johns Hokins University and a Caribbean expert outside Reagan's sphere of advisers, suggested the new president might find it easier to work with new governments in the Caribbean because of the conservative tilt of recent elections there.

Conductors learn 'feel' in water

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — A-one — a-two — a-

Frederick Fennell teaches the art of conducting under water - for the "resistance.".

The woodwind performer encounters resistance blowing into an instrument, the violinist finds it in moving a bow across strings, and the resistance a drummer confronts is obvious, Fennell says.

But a conductor's baton meets only thin air, so a musician may perform wildly if moving from pit to podium. Fennell believes a dip in the pool can prevent such calamity.

Fennell, conductor in residence at the University of Miami, demonstrated his techniques at the Northwest Conductors Symposium sponsored by Washington State University's music department recently.

Fennell spent 30 years at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., where he organized and directed the Eastman Symphonic Wind Ensemble. "I use the water to transfer the feeling of resistance," said Fennell, who discovered his water technique when he moved to Miami and bought a swimming

Tonight Show trumpeter and former Eastman musician Doc Severinson went to Fennell for help on his first conducting effort.

Moving from playing to serious conducting troubled Severinson, so Fennell put him in the pool. It worked, Fennell said.

'The water makes the conductor aware of how to operate without an instrument in hand," he said. The tip of the baton is the focal energy field in which he or she operates.

The water gives the hand that feeling of intensity because the muscles have to work so much harder, he

Being in the pool makes the conductor more aware that we are part of the music, that the body has to become the instrument," he said.

William Nicholls, director of bands at WSU and coordinator of the symposium, said, "When you get under water and try to drag the stick, all energy flows

"So you want to simulate that on the podium, to translate the feeling. Just as the tip of the stick becomes the focal point under water, it should become the focal point out of water. 'You should sort of feel as though you are conducting in molasses. Just as you pull a stick out of water, so does the feeling of restraint or resistance on the podium pull music better out of musicians," Nicholls said.

Preventive health care could cut cost

WASHINGTON (AP) - Heart disease, stroke, cancer, accidents, poisonings and violence — the leading causes of death in the United States are costing Americans at least $110.8 billion a year, the surgeon general

In an annual assessment of the nation's health status, Surgeon General Julius B. Richmond said today some of those costs could be reduced if Americans just undertook more preventive health-care measures.

"The same relatively few diseases and conditions that account for a huge proportion of all deaths in the United States also account for a lion's share of the economic burden," the report said. "If preventive actions were successful in cutting direct and indirect cost expenditures by only 10 percent, reductions would still equal billions of

The total cost of illness was placed at $238.9 billion for 1975, the last year for which a complete estimate was available. Heart disease, stroke, cancer, accidents, poisoning and violence accounted for 46 percent of the overall

Yield, grade of cotton lower than expected

By CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent

Midland cotton producers were able to get into their fields the first of the week to proceed with the task of 'harvesting this year's cotton crop. As harvest proceeds, reports from growers indicate the yield and grade of the 1980 crop may be even lower than anticipated. The snow and resulting wet conditions have contributed to further quality loss and has caused turnout to drop.

The Midland County Intensified Soil Fertility Program initiated by our Extension Crop Committee this year resulted in a 300 percent increase in soil testing by Midland farmers.

A soil test provides information about the nutrient status of soil. With fertilizer costs on the upswing, this means that the value of soil nutrients also increases. Thus efficient and profitable fertilization depends on a good evaluation of the nutrient-supplying capacity of soil.

We are going to continue our emphasis on soil testing again this year. With the poor yields realized on most fields, there may be nutrient carryover on areas fertilized this past season. Thus, it may be important to re-test those same fields this fall. There are still many fields that haven't had a good soil test for a number of years. I would like to encourage growers to collect soil samples now or right after harvest so they can have an accurate game plan for the 1981 season. With the cost-price squeeze becoming more and more of a problem a grower has to explore all avenues in ways to cut costs and increase efficiency. A sum total of several possibilities for small savings can result in significant help for

able at the County Extension Office. The following tips will aid in selecting a good quality, cut Christmas tree for this holiday season. Selecting the tree should be a family affair. Children can help by holding the branches down to check the overall shape of the tree. The tree need not be perfectly symmetrical. This is especially true if it is to be placed in a corner. Remembering this will save money and time when selecting a tree suitable for your family's needs. Select a tree that is fresh. Check this by gently shaking the tree or tapping the trunk on the gound. Also, needles should bend rather than snapping in half. Check trees in this manner before purchasing them. Even though some of the trees checked may have been of good quality, there can always be a dry one that slips by the lot operator.

There is usually no purpose in waiting until Christmas to select your tree. Trees on the lots now will generally be the same ones present later. Get your tree now and care for it yourself rather than leaving it up to the lot operators. Know the maximum size of your space. A tape measure can be helpful. Trees are classed by heights, but there will always be a few inches of variance within these categories. Allow a little extra height as you need to cut off the base. Be sure to allow for the extra height provided by the tree stand you use.

When you arrive home with your tree, make a fresh cut on the base removing an inch or so of the dried base end. Place the tree in a protected area outside or in a cool garage or storage shed until you are ready to bring it inside.

Trees do continue to require water after they are cut and their useable life can be extended by checking the stand's reservoir regularly. Also, there is no scientific information to support the use of preservatives, either commercial or homemade, in the water supply of a cut tree. A tree can use as much as a quart of water or more per day.

Keep the tree away from heating units and flames. Check all wires for frays or abused areas before placing on the tree. The covering on tree lights can become brittle with age and expose the wire.

Finally, remember that this is a particularly important time of the year to test your smoke alarm.

DEAR HELOISE

While preparing for the holidays, I decided to write and tell you of a sure way to make children's faces light up at Christmas time. It could apply to birthdays or other occasions, but I think Christmas is such a beautiful time of the year

What I do - all through the year - is save change in a small pitcher. Any container would do. Then at Christmas, after all the gifts have been opened, I bring out the pitcher and let each child - youngest first - reach in with one hand and take out what that hand can hold.

It's such a heart-warming thrill to see their eyes shine when that hand comes out of the pitcher. (And, it won't break you, 'cause it's not that

LAURA'S TIP FOR FLYAWAY HAIR

DEAR HELOISE: When I comb my hair mornings before school, too often it has so much static electricity, it just "flies away" and makes styling impossible. So, my mother and I put our heads together and great to get rid of the static. Laura Kay

THRIFTY NIFTY DEAR HELOISE:

I hate to throw away those pretty, square boxes facial tissues come in.

So I insert a small plastic bag inside the box, fill it with cotton balls and have a pretty container to keep on the bathroom vanity. Keeps the cotton balls handy too.

M. Wilson RUB-A-DUB TUB

DEAR HELOISE:

To clean an old, dingy bathtub with a white porcelain finish which has mostly lost its shine, fill the tub with warm water and add about two cups of chlorine bleach and one cup powdered laundry detergent. Stir it around a bit and allow this to stand in the tub for a few hours.

Drain the water and scrub gently with a wad of nylon net. Results? A cleaner, whiter tub surface.

So, he asked me if I had any red fingernail polish he could use. I did, and the job was perfect. It only took a small amount and saved buying a can of red paint.

FREEZE A CANDLE DEAR HELOISE:

We recently had our 50th wedding anniversary and I put the gold candles in the freezer until we were ready for them.

Three hours after they were lit, the 12-inch candles were still 8 inches long, and had burned so evenly there was no measurable difference between them.
