Balloons soar to dedicate Centennial Plaza

CentennialFest events continue

From Staff Reports

Although the giant parade and the formal dedication of the Centennial Plaza have been completed, there are a host of other Centennial-related events slated for the weekend.

Among the highlights will be the serving of the world's largest birthday cake, judging of the beard-growing contest and a street dance Saturday night featuring western swing band Asleep at the Wheel.

Among the more unusual entertainment will be the Golden Nuggets, a group of transplanted Texans who are cloggers and have performed throughout the nation. They will be dancing Saturday and Sunday. Clogging is an intricate mixture of square dancing and tap dancing. The dance form was born centuries ago in the British Isles and Americanized in the mountains of Appalachia. It uses country-western music.

Weekend activities will take place at various spots downtown near the Centennial Plaza. Among the highlights will be:

Midland honored its 100th birthday and the nation's 200th, Thursday evening with a giant celebration.

As a barbershop quartet featuring Mayor Thane Akins performed American favorites, hundreds of red, white and blue balloons were released over the new $1 million Centennial Plaza as its fountains flowed into life and the Confederate Air Force zoomed overhead in patriotic salute.

The event — which drew thousands of Midlanders into the downtown area for daylong activities including the longest parade in Midland's history and the plaza dedication — was a climactic highlight of months of planning by the CentennialFest committees.

For many Midlanders, the Fourth of July began with a chuckwagon breakfast at ClayDesta Plaza, sponsored by Clayton and Modesta Williams. A crowd of more than 1,000 people showed up, surpassing the expected number.

Thousands more lined the streets from Big Spring and Wadley to Lorraine and Wall for the Centennial parade which began at 10 a.m. The parade featured former Midlander and well-known actor Tommy Lee Jones as grand marshal and western movie star and singer Rex Allen as narrator.

More than 150 groups were represented in the two-hour parade, which included a giant calliope, buffalos, countless horse clubs and rides, antique automobiles and two high school bands.

The parade was preceded by the Centennial Children's parade with hundreds of youngsters pedaling their decorated bicycles, tricycles and wagons around the courthouse.

Midland's one hundred years of history parades downtown

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Under cloudless skies Thursday, one hundred years of Midland history marched down Big Spring Street from ClayDesta Plaza, made a triumphant loop around the Midland County Courthouse and retreated with appropriate pomp up A Street before melting away in the vicinity of Midland High School.

At times, it seemed like half the population of Midland was marching or riding in the Centennial Parade, and the other half was lining the route cheering them on.

There were elaborate floats depicting the development of local industries and institutions. There were herds of buffalo, sheep, cattle and politicians. There were stage coaches, buckboards and buggies; horseback riders and horse-less carriages; marching bands and beauty queens; and bringing up the rear were a motorized red lobster and a group of Shriners in go-carts.

There were old firetrucks, old oil-field trucks, and a tractor-driven steam calliope. There were replicas of old churches, old farm houses, old newspaper offices, old banks and old hotels. There was even a man dressed as a smiling trash can.

There was everything a good parade needs, with the possible exception of a few refreshment stands.

"Why aren't there booths where you can buy a Coke?" was a question overheard more than once among the crowd at Centennial Plaza as the sun rose higher in the sky. Even warmer than the spectators were the high-school band members, who clearly were parched after marching several miles with nothing more refreshing than a hot, sun-baked flute or trombone to bring to their lips.

But the bands played on, and the lady dressed as the Statue of Liberty on the Veterans of Foreign Wars float somehow managed to keep holding her torch up, and the drivers of the many antique cars managed to keep their antique radiators from boiling over.

There was a unicyclist dressed in patriotic colors; a dapper young lad in a red cap who circled the floats in his miniature Corvette Stingray; and

Jobless rate at 7.3 percent for fifth month, figures show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment was stuck at 7.3 percent in June for the fifth consecutive month, the Labor Department reported today, the longest period the jobless rate has remained at the same level in more than 15 years.

The overall civilian unemployment rate would have gone up significantly if it had not been for the fact that nearly 600,000 people, mostly teen-agers, dropped out of the labor force last month. That offset generally stagnant job growth in the manufacturing sector, the Bureau of Labor Statistics figures showed.

The service sector continued to add employment in June with 85,000 new jobs.

But total employment, which had hit a record 106.96 million in May, fell to 106.37 million in June. Although total employment plunged by nearly 600,000, the ranks of those officially unemployed held steady at 8.4 million for the fifth consecutive month because of the sharp dropoff in the number of people looking for work.

All these factors, including the less-than-expected surge of youthful job-seekers, combined to produce the net overall seasonally adjusted civilian rate of 7.3 percent. The fifth consecutive month of standstill unemployment was the longest such streak since joblessness was frozen at 3.4 percent of the labor force from the fall of 1968 to the spring of 1969.

An alternate unemployment rate, which combined the 114.7-million-member civilian labor force with the 1.7-million-member armed forces contingent stationed in the United States, likewise remained unchanged last month, at 7.2 percent.

"We feel the weakness in the manufacturing sector is holding the unemployment situation... unchanged," Dorothea Otte, an analyst at the Economic Forecasting Project in Atlanta, Ga., said in advance of today's report.

In testimony prepared for delivery before the Joint Economic Committee today, Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said, "The household survey data for June are especially difficult to interpret because of fairly wide swings each year in the number as well as the timing of young people who leave school and enter the labor market."

■ Unemployment rate up in Texas — Page 2A

"I believe that we will have a better understanding of the summer labor market developments when data for July become available next month," she added.

Manufacturing employment declined by 45,000 from May to June, continuing a slide that has cost the nation 220,000 jobs since January.

In June, there were these developments in unemployment rates for various sectors of the labor market, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics:

—Adult men, 6.5 percent, up from 6.1 percent in May.

—Adult women, 6.7, down from 6.9.

—Teen-agers, 18.3, down from 18.9.

—Whites, 6.5, up from 6.2.

—Blacks, 14.0, down from 15.6.

—Hispanics, 10.8, down from 10.7.

Problems in manufacturing have been caused over the past several years by the high value of the U.S. dollar, which has brought a flood of foreign imports and cut down on U.S. exports. An overvalued dollar makes foreign goods less expensive here and raises the price of U.S. goods overseas. The monthly U.S. foreign trade deficit rose to $11.9 billion in April, the third largest on record.

A separate survey of business payrolls, which is not used to compile the unemployment rate, showed that job growth slowed to around 80,000 in June, after expanding by 286,000 the previous month.

In her prepared testimony to the congressional panel, Ms. Norwood said, "A look at the employment changes over the entire 31 months of the current (economic) recovery underscores the extent of the employment restructuring that has occurred in the nation's factories.

Manufacturing as a whole has recovered about 58 percent of the number of jobs lost during the 1981-82 recession."

During that period, unemployment hit a post-Depression peak rate of 10.7 percent, with over 12 million out of work.

In a positive note, the number of so-called "discouraged workers" — those not counted as unemployed because they have abandoned job-seeking — edged down to 1.1 million in the second quarter, the lowest level in nearly four years.

Economists disagree slightly on the prospects for unemployment the remainder of the year.

David Jones, chief analyst at Aubrey G. Lanston Co. Inc., sees continued drag on the economy from the deepening trade deficit, with sluggish economic growth the result. That could mean an upward drift in the unemployment rate, possibly to 7.75 percent by year-end, said Jones.

Lower interest rates should mean a somewhat brighter outlook for the economy starting in September, with unemployment coming down closer to 7 percent, said Edward Yardeni, chief economist at Prudential-Bache Securities.

Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates says the nation's unemployment rate is not expected to change significantly over the next 2½ years. Wharton economists Nariman Behravesh and Robert Westcott say low inflation and falling interest rates point to an economic outlook characterized by low but sustained growth.

Preparations being made for pipeline in Basin

McCAMEY, Texas (AP) — Permian Basin land is being cleared and ditches dug in preparation for the laying of "the nation's first west to east crude oil pipeline."

The 1,200-mile pipeline is expected to transport about 300,000 barrels of heavy crude a day from wells off the California shore to McCamey, where it will connect with existing lines to the Texas Gulf Coast.

"Basically, we are considering this to be the nation's first west to east crude oil pipeline," said Robert Mercer, a spokesman for All American Pipeline Corp. in Houston. "We want to get this crude into an existing market where it can be refined."

Workmen began digging the 36-inch trench on Wednesday, officials said.

"We won't start laying the pipeline until later this month," Charles Green, chief inspector for Missouri-based All American Pipeline, said. "We have to get the ditching machines and our land cleared before we start laying the main line."

All American is a subsidiary of CELERON Corp., of which Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. is the parent company, he said.

The construction is being carried out under a joint venture called All American West Constructors. Will-bro Energy Services of Tulsa, Okla., will lay about 550 miles of pipe from McCamey east to Oracle Junction, Ariz., where Houston-based Gregory & Cook Inc. will complete the pipeline to Santa Barbara, Calif., spokesmen for the two companies said.

While All American plans to begin piping oil in early 1987, construction of a proposed second West Coast-to-Texas pipeline is mired in red tape.

But Pacific Texas Pipeline Co. should begin building its 1,000-mile pipeline from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland by the first of year, President Cecil Owens said this week.

"We would expect to have all our (rights of way) permits in place no later than November," Owens said from Long Beach. "We'll start construction in December or we may wait until the first of second day of the new year."

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management will conduct "very formal hearings" throughout the last week of this month to draw reactions to Pacific Texas' Environmental Impact Report released in June, agency Public Affairs Director Candy Johnson said Tuesday.

The second line would originate at the Port of Los Angeles, cross the California-Arizona border near Blythe, Calif., following a southeasterly route through Arizona and New Mexico and end near Midland.

Watermelons tainted with pesticide recalled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California grocers responding to a state-ordered recall stopped selling watermelons during the peak Fourth of July sales season after more than 35 people in three states became ill from melons apparently tainted by pesticide.

AP Laserphoto

Fifteen to 17 people became ill after eating striped watermelons in the Portland, Ore., area, including part of southwest Washington; 21 illnesses were reported in California by people eating green melons, health officials said Thursday.

"The numbers are fluid and they'll probably get bigger," said California Department of Health spokesman Peter Weisser.

The state health department issued the recall late Thursday afternoon during the melon's peak of popularity — the Fourth of July holiday. Officials also urged people not to eat melons already purchased.

Dr. Kenneth Kizer, health department director, said Thursday that he made the move to guard against further illness.

"It's a statewide recall that means all watermelons are recalled as a precautionary measure," Kizer said in a telephone interview from Sacramento. "Occurrences in Oregon came from people who ate striped watermelons, but the ones here in California have been from solid green watermelons."

The illness, which induced symptoms including nausea, diarrhea, dizziness and muscle spasms, was not considered life-threatening, and was consistent with exposure to pesticides, said Dr. Larry Foster of the Oregon Health Division.

The melons may have been contaminated by the pesticide aldicarb, Weisser said.

Traces of the pesticide, sold under the brand name Temik, were found in melons taken from a grocery store and a wholesaler's warehouse, said Dalton Hobbs, spokesman for the Oregon Agriculture Department.

Firefighters continue to battle fires

Associated Press

Armies of battle-hardened firefighters struggled today to control stubborn blazes that have laid waste to more than 150,000 acres of brush and rangeland in 10 parched Western states, forcing the evacuation of thousands of people.

Thousands of firefighters battled blazes today in Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, and California, which has been the hardest hit since the waves of fires began June 27.

Encouraged by reduced winds and temperatures that dropped into the 90s after days in triple digits, 2,700 firefighters worked for a fifth day today to control a blaze that has charred 78,000 acres in Southern California.

"If the weather holds, we should be in pretty good shape," said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Max Reed. "The winds have laid down. It's the first bright spot we've had."

The fire, which was about 40 percent contained Thursday night, rolled into coastal Santa Barbara County after threatening Ojai in Ventura County and forcing cancellation of area fireworks displays.

Traditional fireworks shows in the Hollywood Bowl, the Rose Bowl, Disneyland and other locales went ahead.

The Santa Barbara fire, in the Los Padres National Forest, was a few miles from the outskirts of Carpinteria, a beach town 12 miles east of Santa Barbara and 40 miles east of Unidentified residents of the Baldwin Hills section of Los Angeles mill about the ruins of homes. More than 50 homes were destroyed and three people died in Tuesday's fire, which authorities believe was caused by arson.

Resources had been stretched so thin by the Ojai fire that the Forest Service offered civilian truck and van owners $7 an hour and up to 35 cents a mile to haul supplies. The response triggered a traffic jam of trucks and vans headed toward the ranger station and the offer was canceled two hours later.

Two fires, a 350-acre blaze at Black Mountain southeast of Santa Paula and a 25-acre fire to the north, converged on the city of 20,000 and prompted the evacuation of a few scattered ranches.

A 25,000-acre brush fire was 40 percent contained in San Luis Obispo County but had entered the San Lucia wilderness area, forcing evacuation of 6,000 people before the holiday. Damage was put at $1.75 million.

Numerous other fires burned across California, including a 1,600-acre blaze in Yosemite National park that was about three-fourths contained Thursday, said park dispatcher Darlene Hales. It started Sunday with an unattended campfire.

Man charged with three murders

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A man has been charged with sexually assaulting and killing three women in burglaries in the same apartment.

Jerry Jerome Spraggins, 30, was being held without bail today at the Essex County Jail after Wednesday's indictment.

He was arrested April 9 and charged with killing 68-year-old Sarah McHale, whose body was found Sept. 2, 1983. Police said she was either suffocated with a pillow or strangled by an intruder who climbed through her window.

The discovery of Mrs. McHale's body raised suspicions that two other women who died in the same apartment in 1981 were also victims of homicides. Authorities had at first believed they died of heart attacks.

Brother Phillip Odette, archivist for St. Edward's University in Austin, stands among a portion of recorded history of the university, to which he has tended for 27 years.

Brother's journal chronicles University

By MONTY JONES
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Brother Phillip Odette has spent 27 years keeping track of St. Edward's University.

His files, stacked floor to ceiling on the second floor of the St. Edward's library, can tell about everything from the fire that burned the main building in 1903 to the most recent baby shower for a St. Edward's employee.

They can tell of the volcanoes that formed the campus landscape 80 million years ago, or the tornado that hit the campus 63 years ago, or the Mass this Sunday at St. Ignatius Church.

Brother Phillip has had the job of gathering and organizing the school's historical documents since his appointment as the university archivist in 1958.

But one of the most important documents in the archives is of his own making — a chronicle of events during the past 27 years, a day-by-day account of life on and around the South Austin campus.

The chronicle, neatly typed and kept in binders, reads like almost any diary — except that it is the diary of an institution.

"As the chronicler, I keep a record of basically everything that happens," said Brother Phillip, a quiet and friendly man who is a member of the Congregation of Holy Cross, which established the university in 1885 and still plays an important role on the campus.

"I have full authority for deciding what goes in it," he said.

"The only things I wouldn't put in would be anything that would be damaging to someone or rumors, things I couldn't back up with facts."

One event Brother Phillip included in the entry this spring was the centennial year commencement, with its 450 new graduates, the commencement speech by Cathy Weber, assistant professor, and the honorary degrees conferred on U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle and Brother Elmo Bransby, president of St. Edward's during the mid-1950s.

But no one can predict what else he will put down, because the chronicle goes far beyond recording the usual ceremonies and other official events of academic life.

The entry for July 1, 1959, for example, includes a brief essay on the balance of nature as reflected that summer in the varying populations of cotton rats and snakes near St. Edward's.

Ten days later, Brother Phillip paused to take note of the long-awaited arrival on campus of the new university Chevrolet.

Other entries through the years have recorded weekend camping trips by faculty members, notable hailstorms on the campus, shortages of hot water at a nuns' residence, price increases for lots in Assumption Cemetery, and a Thanksgiving Day card party.

Brother Phillip concluded that Thanksgiving Day entry: "The room echoed with the thrill of the game as the Brothers vied with one another to win prizes of nominal value."

U.S.-backed Radio Free Europe may have broken guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report says federally financed broadcasts to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe may have violated internal guidelines 18 times during the first eight months of last year.

The General Accounting Office, a congressional watchdog agency, said in a report obtained this week that Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty are required to avoid "emotionalism, vindictiveness, belligerency, pretentiousness, or condescension... (or) any programming, the content of which could be legitimately construed as inflammatory..."

The report, dated June 24, quoted the director of the Broadcast Analysis Department of Radio Liberty and Radio Free Europe as saying suspected violations and questionable broadcasts increased last year.

Radio Liberty broadcasts to the Soviet Union, while Radio Free Europe directs its programs to other countries in Eastern Europe. They are run by the Board for International Broadcasting, appointed by the president. The board chairman is Frank Shakespeare, a former CBS executive.

According to the GAO, the department reported 18 potential violations of the guidelines during the first eight months of 1984, including: — "An anatomical obscenity to describe a Polish government official."

— A profile, "in a fashion which could be perceived as anti-Semitic," a Jew who assassinated Russian Prime Minister Pyotr Stolypin in 1911.

— A reference to the Soviet for-

"We didn't find anything that we felt was systematic. When you're on the air in 21 different services and you're streaming out thousands and thousands of words in the period of a year and you have a number of programs that were inappropriate, that's par for the course."

— Frank Shakespeare, broadcasting chairman sign minister as a bandit.

— An interview "suggesting violent action" by Soviet soldiers in Afghanistan against their superiors.

— A comparison of former Soviet officials to Nazi war criminals.

— A description of an unidentified prominent American actress as having a pro-Marxist outlook and "warm sympathies" with the Soviet Union.

Asked about the GAO report, Shakespeare said it contained "no surprises."

"Every allegation was known to the board beforehand through our normal checking system," Shakespeare said this week from his New York office.

He said the problems did not reflect any breakdown in the radio stations' system of checks and balances.

The GAO complained that controls on the stations' broadcasts are inadequate.

For example, it said, after the broadcast that was cited as anti-Semitic, the director of Radio Liberty directed that all scripts discussing Jews or Judaism be submitted to him for approval. Two days later the directive was repealed, the report added.

The report said the directive was withdrawn, according to the director of Radio Liberty, because he did not want to interfere with the authority of broadcasters.

The stations were founded by the Central Intelligence Agency. Their connections with it were severed in 1981 by direction of Congress. For the year ending Sept. 30, Congress provided them with $108 million.

Hot weather forecast for weekend

From Staff and Wire Reports

Hot temperatures will warm the Permian Basin area through the holiday weekend as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport calls for fair skies with a low in the middle 60s, becoming sunny with a high in the mid-80s Saturday. Tonight's southerly winds at less than 10 mph will continue through Saturday.

Thursday's high of 97 was nine degrees below the record set in 1983. This morning's low was eight degrees above the 1972 record of 60.

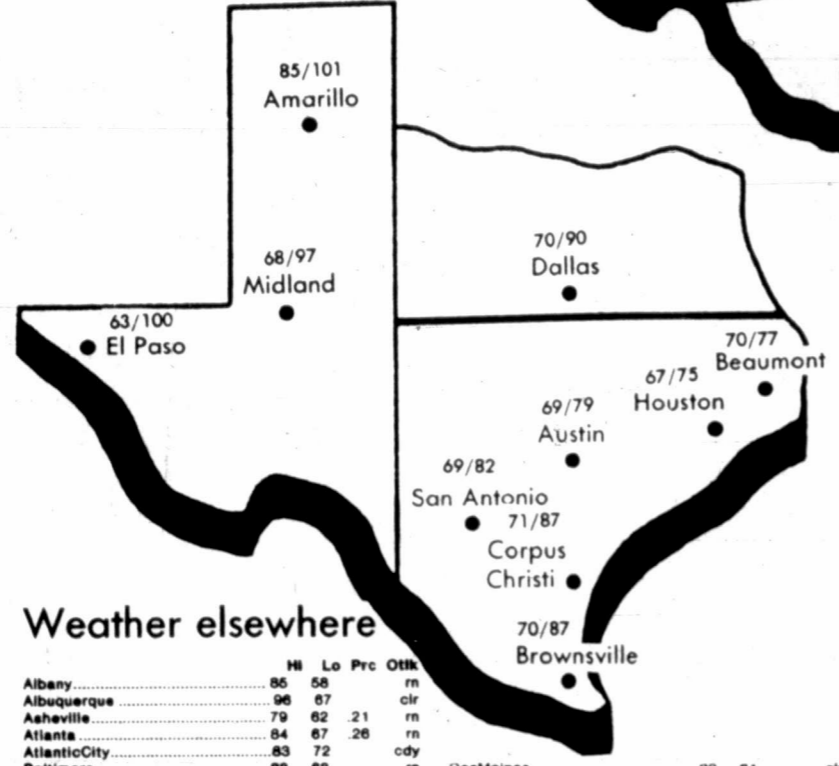

STATE

Scattered thundershowers were weakening over central North Texas this morning while isolated heavy thundershowers rumbled along the upper Texas coast.

Two weak upper-level disturbances were producing the thundershowers in the moist tropical air over North and Southeast Texas early this morning, according to the National Weather Service.

Elsewhere, fair skies were reported from the lower Valley along the Rio Grande into West Texas, while low clouds and patchy light fog blanketed parts of the south.

Temperatures just before sunrise were in the 60s and 70s across much of the state. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 66 at Lufkin to 75 degrees at McAllen.

Extended forecast

Sunday Through Tuesday

West Texas: Partly cloudy with little temperature change Sunday through Tuesday. Isolated to widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers. Permian: South Plains and Permian Basin, lows mid 60s, highs near 90; Concho Valley: Lows near 70, highs in lower 80s; Far West: Lows upper 60s, highs mid 80s; Big Bend region: Lows near 60 mountains to near 70 lowlands.

NATION

A cold front stretching from the upper Great Lakes to the southern Plains touched off hail-packing thundershowers today.

Some of the thundershowers packed high winds and dumped golfball-size hail on Grand Rapids, Mich., and the Lafayette, Ind., area early today.

Showers and thundershowers also were scattered across the middle and southern Atlantic coastal states, the western Gulf Coast and upper Mississippi Valley.

Fair skies prevailed from the Rockies to the Pacific Coast.

Today's forecast called for scattered showers and thundershowers from the central Gulf Coast states across Florida; showers and thundershowers scattered from the Texas coast across Arkansas, the Tennessee and Ohio valleys, the Great Lakes and much of the Atlantic Coast region; and thundershowers widely scattered across the Rockies.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON
Saturday, July 6, 1985
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Straighten out any communication tangles that have hampered progress. Give work top priority, but schedule a much-needed vacation before the fall. A financial situation shows slow but steady improvement. Seek mate's cooperation in building a nest-egg. Romance comes into full bloom when you confide your hopes and plans. Generous and kind, you will go to almost any lengths to avoid discord. Be careful not to compromise your principles. Others respect you for defending your ideas. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: First Lady Nancy Reagan, singer Della Reese, Fred Dryer of TV's "Hunter," actress Shelley Hack, Merv Griffin, "Another World's" Tom Wigin, Sylvester Stallone.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Complete essential tasks during the morning, and you can relax with loved ones in the afternoon and evening. Squabbles can be avoided if you are willing to compromise. Offer a trade.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A superhuman effort may be necessary to solve a family problem. Thinking about someone special gives you all the incentive you need! Put first things first. Good nutrition boosts your energy level.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Plan on spending some time alone with mate. You need those private moments to keep your relationship in good shape. A quiet dinner for two sets the mood for romance. Postpone travel.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Romance is in the air. Dismiss any negative thoughts. Those who are young at heart find what they seek. Positive actions will help you achieve something you thought impossible.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Someone may try to deceive you. Stay those who know you well. A fear will prove unfounded. Welcome change. A child looks up to you. Be generous.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Believe in yourself, and you will be unstoppable. Keep your goals in mind at all times. Family members want to help. Let them know your plans. Consider children's needs when planning a vacation.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A good day for personal pursuits. You have more financial resources than you realize. Search them out. Accept a younger person's help. Romance needs more time to develop. Play a waiting game.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Love is in the air. Keep your temper under control and you enjoy good times. A fear is unfounded. Look to the future with confidence. Something wonderful is about to happen.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Plan to get together with close friends this evening. A phone call brings welcome news. If the sea or mountains figure in your weekend plans, you are in for a great time!
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Put work aside and take a breather. Tailor recreational plans to your special interests. A change in attitude leads to greater domestic harmony. Limit the demands you make on loved ones.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be patient with those who are doing their best. Everyone cannot have your energy and talent! Get older members of the family to help you make this a special day.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may think that you are trailing behind in a competition, but you are not. Follow the dictates of your heart, and you make a wonderful discovery. Keep an eye on a teen-ager.

heart. He returned to hand with a diamond ruff and tried to ruff another heart. East overruffed for down one. With nothing to guide him, declarer had chosen the percentage play.
In the other room, the auction started with a strong one club opening bid and a positive response of two clubs, showing a club suit. East overcalled with two diamonds and North-South got no further than six spades.
Declarer won the opening diamond lead with the ace. Since he was only in a small slam, which was ironclad, and since East was marked with length in diamonds, he opted to play for a squeeze for the overtrick rather than try to ruff a second heart. He drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the king of hearts, came to hand with a diamond ruff and ruffed a heart. After returning to his hand with another diamond ruff, he ran all his trumps. West could not guard both hearts and clubs, and whichever suit he discarded would give declarer his 13th trick.

Belly-flopper wins stinging victory

OTTER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — The competition was a flop, and the 11 contenders were bellyaching about it.

But after two hours of stomach-stinging competition, a Trenton man out-flopped 10 others to win $500, a 4-foot trophy and Florida's spot in this year's world-class Belly Flop Championship.

Gary Tryon ousted two-time champ Randy Williams of Chiefland to earn the state's berth in the world flop-off, scheduled for Labor Day in Otter Springs.

Judged for their height of splash, poise, athletic ability and overall form, contestants got no extra points for bravery, said Lisa Anthony Rowland, an employee of the campground that sponsors the event.

"They have to be brave to enter," Ms. Rowland said of the sixth annual Fourth of July competition. "It's about two hours before the redness goes away, but they don't mind too much. They usually just party afterwards."

Contestants must weigh at least 250 pounds — to make a bigger splash.

Ms. Rowland offered these hints to future floppers: "First, they have to gain weight and get plenty of practice. If they can do a flip (into a flop), it helps them a lot. It shows athletic ability."

BOSTON (AP) — The ex-wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says she feels betrayed by a forthcoming biography written by her former aide that reportedly details her feelings about the death of Mary Jo Kopechne at Chappaquiddick.

Kennedy

Joan Kennedy, 48, told The Boston Globe in an interview published Thursday that she tried to talk her former administrative assistant, Marcell Chellis, out of writing the book, "Living with the Kennedys: The Joan Kennedy Story."

"I told her I felt so betrayed," said Mrs. Kennedy. "I think it is a real breach of confidentiality. In no way have I authorized or contributed to this publication."

The newspaper said Mrs. Kennedy planned no legal action against the book, to be published in September.

The Globe quotes the publisher, Simon and Schuster, as saying the book tells "what really happens when a beautiful, cloistered debutante from a Catholic college...marries into America's most relentlessly ambitious political clan — one whose men were as rampantly acquisitive in their pursuit of women as they were of power."

Simon and Schuster editor Fred Hills said the book describes Mrs. Kennedy's thoughts on Miss Kopechne's 1969 drowning after a car in which she and the Massachusetts senator were riding plunged off a bridge.

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Clint Eastwood, who roams the movie screen muttering "make my day," has as much place in a college classroom as the poet who "wandered lonely as a cloud," says a Miami University professor.

Eastwood

Paul Smith, an assistant professor of English, is offering a course this fall on Eastwood's movies and the American psyche.

He says he doesn't like the characters Eastwood portrays — "I find that macho image revolting" — but "I think I can make an intellectual case for teaching this kind of thing better than my colleagues can make a case for teaching (William) Wordsworth."

Smith, 30, from Great Britain, thinks Eastwood's characters, from his hard-nosed "Dirty Harry" detective to the Western cowboy, dramatize a spirit of individualism peculiar to America.

The course aims to show students how they are influenced by the myth of "The big, strong male (who) can single-handedly do everything that's required to get someone out of trouble, kill the bad guy and run off with the woman."

LONDON (AP) — Princess Diana boogied with her husband Prince Charles in front of more than 8,000 people to raise an extra $650 for a charity that helps young people.

Her impromptu dance took place in the middle of a concert Thursday night by the rock group Dire Straits at north London's Wembley Arena.

During the concert, many of the audience began dancing in the aisles. When police tried to restrain them, the group's leader Mark Knopfler said: "Heavy security, let the people boogie."

Then he threw down the challenge. "If everyone stands up and boogies, and I mean everyone, then I'll take my clothes off."

Removing his jacket, he added, "I've been promised 500 pounds ($655) for the Prince's Trust," a charity that has Charles as president.

Charles was among the first to stand and Diana was not far behind him.

The 36-year-old prince, a classical music buff, bobbed and clapped in time to the rhythm.

But Diana, an avid rock music fan who celebrated her 24th birthday on July 1, danced with abandon in a rare public moment of letting her hair down.

Sacks bumps Elliot from flag

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.— Sports crowds tend to love an underdog and the fans at Daytona International Speedway were quick to jump on Greg Sacks' bandwagon when he moved in front of superstar Bill Elliott midway through the Pepsi Firecracker 400.

"I knew the crowd was behind me," the jubilant Sacks said Thursday after winning his first Grand National stock car race. "Every time I came by the stands after I got near the front there were arms waving out through the fence and people with thumbs up and waving me on. What a feeling."

It was an incredible victory for the 32-year-old driver from Mattituck, N.Y., who had never finished better than sixth in 40 previous Grand National starts and whose own family-backed team ran out of operating money in May.

Sacks, who earned a career-high $45,350 for the victory, was at Daytona as part of a new research and development effort organized by Bill Gardner, who along with his brother, Jim, owns the DiGard team that fields a car for 1983 Winston Cup champion Bobby Allison.

GARY NELSON, who recently took over the research and development effort full time for Gardner, giving up his team manager duties with Allison, headed a rag-tag pit crew that helped Sacks to victory in the group's first race together.

They beat the red-hot team of Bill Elliott and his brother-crew chief-engine builder, Ernie, who had combined for seven victories in the last nine races on super-speedways — tracks one mile or more in length.

"We had one fellow on the crew who is from New Zealand and had never even been to a Grand National race before," explained Nelson, who acted as a tire changer during the event. "It was almost less than a skeleton crew. Greg was just running so good he was able to make up on the track what we cost him in the pits."

Elliott commanded much of the 160-lap race after fellow front-row starter Cale Yarborough went out with a broken transmission after only 24 laps around the 2.5-mile, high-banked oval.

But Elliott eventually succumbed to a fuel pickup problem that allowed him to use only about 17 of the 22 gallons in his tank between pit stops. His stops had to be made earlier than the other contenders, throwing him out of synch and forcing him to give up the lead for a quick fuel stop just nine laps from the end.

EVEN WITH the car that dominated the Daytona 500 in February and started from the pole here Thursday after qualifying at 201.523 mph, he couldn't make up that disadvantage and finished 23.98 seconds behind Sacks.

"It just goes to show you how competitive it is right now," said Elliott, who still leads the Winston Cup point standings. "If you make a little mistake or have a little something go wrong with your car, that's all there is between winning and losing."

Sacks led the first time on lap 45 under a caution flag, but it was on lap 100 when he caused the first real stir in the crowd by catching and passing Elliott's intimidating Ford Thunderbird.

'Shark attack' is back as Norman fires 67

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Greg Norman, the powerful Australian known to his fellow touring golf pros as "The Great White Shark," posed a question, and then provided an answer.

"Is it time to get another shark attack going? I sure hope so."

Norman, slowed by a bout with a virus early this year, made his first big move of the season with a 5-under-par 67 that provided him with a share of the first round lead Thursday in the $650,000 Canadian Open.

"It's nice to feel the adrenalin flowing again. I feel good about my chances. I'm looking forward to the rest of the tournament."

Norman, the defending title-holder, built his score by dominating the par-5 holes on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course. He reached three of them using irons for his second shots, got into a greenside bunker in two strokes on the other and played the long holes five under par with three birdies and an eagle. He missed a second eagle when he two-putted from five feet.

He was tied for the top spot with tour sophomore Jim Gallagher, who plays most of his golf on the Tournament Players Series, a secondary tour, and got into the field for the Canadian national championship by invitation.

"IT'S BEEN kind of frustrating, not being able to get in many tournaments," said Gallagher, 24, who reeled off one string of three consecutive birdies, chipped in for another and had the lead alone until he bogeyed the final hole.

"It's taken a while to get back in the groove. Things seem to be falling into place now," said Gallagher, 24, who has won twice this season in TFS events.

Things were also falling into place for Johnny Miller, a former U.S. and British Open champion who hasn't won in two years.

"I've finished three shots out in my last two starts," Miller said. "I feel like I just have to raise my game one notch to get there. And, to tell you the truth, I've been pointing for this one as a tournament I can win. I'm playing well now and I have a good history at Glen Abbey," Miller said after an eagle-par-birdie finish that gave him a 68, one shot off the pace.

Bruce Lietzke, a two-time Canadian Open winner, led a group at 69. Also at that figure were current leading money-winner Curtis Strange, Allen Miller, Bob Tway, Brett Upper, and Pat McGowan.

TWA takeover tied to future sale of assets

By AGIS SALPUKAS
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Concessions offered by the Air Line Pilots Association to encourage Carl C. Icahn to take over Trans World Airlines are tied to constraints on his ability to sell airline assets and to cut capital spending, documents filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission show.

wants to protect itself from his past practice of selling assets to pay off the debt incurred in his takeovers. One part of the agreement says: "It is understood that it is not the intention of the Icahn group to cause the sale of substantial amounts of the assets of TWA should it acquire control." The agreement stipulated that after Dec. 31, 1988, the Icahn group of investors could sell assets that would yield up to $190 million but only if the sales do not result in the layoff of the union's employees.

The rest of TWA for $18 a share. Three of the carrier's major unions — the pilots, the Independent Federation of Flight Attendants and the International Association of Machinists — have formed a coalition to seek an alternative to an agreement reached by TWA on June 14 to be taken over by the Texas Air Corp. in a cash-and-stock transaction valued at $925 million, or $23 a share. TWA agreed to the takeover to escape Icahn's offer.

many employees at half pay. It is now producing a profit after years of losses. The pilots' union is still on strike against Continental in protest over Lorenzo's tactics. The pact with Icahn would obligate him to seek control only if similar agreements were reached with the flight attendants and machinists. Under the terms of the pact, the machinists must sign their agreement by this Sunday and have it ratified by members within 10 days. If the machinists meet that deadline, the flight attendants would have an additional week to sign their agreement and 31 days to ratify.

CBS stockholders advised to sell shares in takeover

By VARTANIG G. VARTAN
New York Times News Service

COMMENTARY

NEW YORK — In a real-life drama, CBS Inc. has responded to the hostile takeover bid by Ted Turner, the Atlanta broadcasting entrepreneur, with an offer to buy back 21 percent of its stock for $954.8 million in cash and securities. As announced on Wednesday by Thomas H. Wyman, chief executive of CBS, the company is offering $150 million in cash and $110 million in 10-year notes bearing an interest rate of 10.875 percent — for each of the 6,365,000 shares it seeks.

The CBS offer, as now constituted, does not expire until midnight on Wednesday, July 31. Therefore, Bauer said, stock-owners might wait to see if Turner somehow comes up with a new and better offer, although the analyst considers this a remote possibility, at best.

How should the 24,000 CBS shareowners — nearly two-thirds of them institutional investors — respond to management's offer? "I'd say, certainly, tender your shares, because you get a nice package of cash and debentures that yield a pretty attractive rate," advised Edward J. Atorino, broadcasting analyst for Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. "Meanwhile," he continued, "Wednesday's huge trading volume tells you that some people who had bought CBS at $100 or $105 only a few months ago patted themselves on the back and decided to cash in their chips." The stock finished last year at $72.375, and as recently as March it sold as low as $62.375. The following month, after Turner made his long-awaited bid — a package of high-risk notes and securities but no cash — the stock rose as high as $122. Turner valued his offer at $175 a share, but Wall Street analysts estimated its worth between $140 and $160.

Merger fever for broadcasters erupted in March when Capital Cities agreed to acquire American Broadcasting, one of the nation's three television networks.

Japan enters U.S. securities market allowed to enter any kind of banking business in Japan.

TOKYO — Daiwa Securities said Thursday that it would open a trust bank in the United States. Daiwa will be the first Japanese securities company allowed to enter the trust business overseas, and its entry is expected to trigger a rush among its competitors to the U.S. market. The move reflects the gradual financial deregulation now under way in Japan. As in the United States, the line between banking and securities businesses is beginning to erode in Japan, although at a much slower pace.

Just last month, the Finance Ministry gave permission to nine foreign banks to open trust banks in Japan, a path still barred to Japanese city banks as well as securities firms. Daiwa officials said that they believed that the ministry allowed them to enter the trust business overseas partly to compensate for the increase in foreign competition in Japan's domestic market. A spokesman for Daiwa Securities said that its American investment advisory subsidiary, the Daiwa International Capital Management Corp., had applied on Tuesday to the New Jersey Banking Board for permission to establish a wholly owned trust banking subsidiary and that it expected to receive permission in October. Daiwa chose New Jersey, the official said, because it allows asset management firms to enter trust banking — a move some other states forbid.

Brazil announces austerity measures

By ALAN RIDING
New York Times News Service

BRASILIA, Brazil — Brazil's new government announced a long-awaited package of austerity measures on Thursday aimed at reducing inflation and preparing the way for a credit agreement with the International Monetary Fund. The $6.5 billion austerity package is expected to result in the loss of some 200,000 jobs as well as postponement or cancellation of a number of major investments in oil, hydroelectric, and nuclear energy, mining, and steel. Thursday's announcement had been repeatedly postponed because of sharp differences within President Jose Sarney's Cabinet over the social and political impact of the cuts, although it is still not known whether they will satisfy the IMF.

This debate was reflected within the Cabinet, with Dornelles favoring tougher measures than the planning secretary, Joa Saad. As a result of Thursday's package, the government hopes to reduce its public sector deficit to $4.5 billion, from $11 billion this year, although officials conceded that the IMF had been pressing for complete elimination of this deficit. The balance would have to be covered by printing new money or fresh borrowings. The reduction in the deficit is to be achieved through $2.9 billion in increased tax revenues and $3.6 billion in spending cuts, principally by the state's numerous huge corporations. These cuts followed an earlier $2.2 billion reduction in the budgets of state enterprises. Thursday morning, Dorothea Werneck, head of the Jobs and Wages Department of the Labor Ministry, said that a $3 billion cut in government expenditures would result in the loss of at least 200,000 jobs, although neither Dornelles nor Saad would comment on the esti-

Young scientists recruited for agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has begun a $2 million drive to recruit 50 promising young scientists for research projects aimed at finding space-age answers to some of mankind's most puzzling questions about the production of food.

Terry B. Kinney Jr., administrator of the department's Agricultural Research Service, said Tuesday that the goal of hiring 50 scientists represents a near doubling of last year's program, in which 26 positions were offered.

"We're looking for the best and the brightest scientists ready to start careers working on challenging research projects," Kinney said.

Typically, the man or woman being sought will be two years or less out of graduate school. The candidates will be eligible for one- or two-year appointments as research associates in the USDA agency in a salary range of about $26,000 to $40,000 per year, depending upon the individual.

Kinney said the 50 will join veteran scientists in laboratories around the country to work on such projects as the genetic coding, physiology and cellular biochemistry of crops and livestock.

The $2 million that this year's program has available is double the 1984 authorization, he said. The additions will boost to 250 the number of post-doctoral scientists engaged in agency research.

One of this year's associates will be recruited to investigate how plant hormones and genes act together to control enzymes affecting plant growth, fruit ripening and aging. That research proposal won the agency's annual award as the outstanding project in the program.

The associate chosen will work under the direction of Fred B. Abeles, a plant physiologist at the agency's Appalachian Fruit Research Station, Kearneysville, W. Va. Abeles submitted the award-winning research proposal.

Other 1985 research associate projects will include:

— Use of monoclonal antibodies to identify genetic causes of disease susceptibility in crops and livestock, and recombinant DNA and other genetic engineering techniques to help develop vaccines against these diseases.

— Biotechnologies for investigating enzymes linked to photosynthesis in plants. Other projects will focus on new biotechnical methods to study the genetics and physiology of plant growth and development.

— Studies of soil-borne microorganisms that affect plants and pesticides.

— Computer simulation models for crop production, erosion control, livestock breeding and other agricultural subjects.

Research associates must be U.S. citizens. Applicants can obtain information from: ARS, Personnel Division, Co. Carlene Russ, Room 569, Federal Center Building, Hyattsville, Md., 20782.

EARNEST KIKER

New plants need extra care

By EARNEST KIKER

Trees, shrubs and vines that have been transplanted this season will be needing extra care this summer. The most critical problem of newly moved plants is providing adequate moisture. Recent rainfalls have temporarily alleviated drought conditions in many areas of Texas but newly set out plants require frequent applications of water.

One way to conserve soil moisture is by the use of mulches. Many organic materials such as pine needles, oak leaves, pine bark, bagasse, gin trash or even grass clippings may be effectively applied. The material selected should be applied several inches deep over an area large enough to cover the spreading root system of new plants. Mulches are also very helpful in controlling weeds which compete with new plants for moisture and nutrients. Some mulches decompose rapidly and use existing nitrogen from the soil in the process. This can cause yellowing of plants that may be corrected by addition of small applications of a fertilizer containing nitrogen.

One of the major causes of plants dying the first season is over-application of fertilizers. For this reason it is usually recommended that no fertilizer be added at planting time and only very small amounts, if any applied during the first growing season. Since the root systems of most new plants are limited in size, they can be easily damaged by even small amounts of fertilizer.

Another cause of failure with recently moved plants is wind damage. This is especially true of trees of shrubs that are several feet or more tall. Most severe damage usually occurs when high winds follow heavy rains and the soil does not support the plant as well as under normal conditions. Movement caused by wind can damage newly forming roots as well as seriously dehydrate the plant.

There are at least two effective methods of preventing serious wind damage. The first is to properly stake any plant that is tall enough to require support. The second method is to prune back tall plants at transplanting time. This pruning reduces the surface area of the plant, making it more wind resistant. It also invigorates the plant by creating a better balance between the above- and below-soil portions of the plant.

For homeowners planning to be away on vacations for more than a few days at a time, it is wise to arrange for someone to water the new plants. If the plants have been properly mulched, staked and watered prior to leaving, a thorough soaking once a week is usually sufficient. By providing some extra care for new plants homeowners are protecting an investment that can provide dividends for the years ahead.

Earnest C. Kiker is Midland County Extension Agent for Agriculture.

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices gained ground today as interest rates tumbled in the credit markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 7.84 to 1,334.23 by noon on Wall Street.

Gainers held a 3-1 lead over losers in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate held steady at 7.3 percent in June.

In the credit markets, prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, jumped by 15 to 20 for every $1,000 in face value.

Prices of short-term Treasury bills dropped 20 to 30 basis points, or hundredths of a percentage point.

Johnson Controls led the active list, up 1/2 at 43 3/4. A 1.77 million share block traded at 45 in the over-the-counter market.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Approving '12b-1' plan can double funds' expenses

Q. I clipped and saved the column you wrote last October, warning about mutual funds with "12b-1 plans."

A. I put that question to SEC Chairman John Shad at a press conference a couple of months ago. In reply, I got a blank stare and a request to "define 12b-1."

However, I recently read that mutual funds can adopt 12b-1 plans "on the quiet as far as shareholders are concerned."

A. Not at all. When the management of an already established mutual fund wants to lay on a 12b-1 plan, it has to get approval by majority vote of the fund's shareholders.

Some mutual funds have been set up with 12b-1 plans, right from the go. The original shareholders are the people who manage those funds.

When a mutual fund has a 12b-1 plan, investors who already own shares pay for the cost of bringing new investors into the fund.

Those expenses can be as much as 1.25 percent of a fund's assets. Boiled down, this means the value of a $1,000 investment could be nicked for $12.50 a year.

Q. My broker says all "no-load" mutual funds use 12b-1 plans to extract "hidden loads" from shareholders. Is his statement true or false?

A. False. Although some no-load funds, which sell shares directly to investors without commission charges, use 12b-1 plans, most do not.

Q. The Securities and Exchange Commission has allowed mutual funds to adopt 12b-1 plans since 1980. Since then, those plans have cost shareholders of funds with such plans many millions of dollars. When is the SEC, the alleged "watchdog for investors," going to do something about this?

Americans are running out of third parties to take the blame

By JOHN CUNIFF, Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans may be running out of third parties.

No, not political parties, but the kind of parties that inspire those tired, cynical phrases such as "Let the government pay," or "The insurance company will take care of it," or "Let business handle the tab."

Third parties in this sense are institutions that pay bills for services that Americans love to have but hate paying for — such as health and education services, retirements, housing and much more.

If you believe Congress represents the will of the people, it follows that the will of the people has been for spending on such things. But if you look at the federal budget deficit you must conclude the people don't like paying.

Government has been the major third party for Americans, but the workplace hasn't been far behind, and fringe benefits in some companies, union and non-union, are now almost as important to workers as the paycheck itself.

Insurance companies are used to the third-party role, as is "the other guy," that anonymous fellow with the weary look and the bowed shoulders who always manages to pay more than his share of taxes.

But a lot could be changing now. Many senators and representatives are very concerned about the budget deficit, and they insist it must be lowered. And the federal government is trying to get rid of a lot of the things it has been paying for.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

1. Call the StockQuote Hotline number listed below. A computer voice will answer and ask you for the Account Code.

2. Enter the Account Code, then depress the star key (*) on your telephone. The computer will then ask you to enter your Stock Code.

3. Enter the Stock Code for the stock you wish quoted, the computer will quote the Ticker Symbol, Current Price and Net Change from the previous day's close.

4. After the stock is quoted, the computer will ask you to enter another Stock Code. You have two options:

A. You may request the quote for another stock simply by repeating Step 3, or...

B. You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more depressing the star key (*), in which case the computer will respond with the Price, Net Change, Volume, High and Low. The computer will then ask you to enter another Stock Code (repeat Step 3).

YOU may enter up to 10 requests per call. STOCK CODES All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by your broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.

To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember: The first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1," "2" or "3" indicating that letter's position on its own key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 22 61"; "XYZ" = "22 92." Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

Rain won't stop Willie Nelson's picnic

Associated Press

From Willie Nelson's "picnic" near Austin to Sweetwater's impromptu, first-ever Fourth of July parade, millions of Texans braved a mix of rain and sunshine to help celebrate the nation's 200th birthday.

Some 12,000 people muddled around in a rain-soaked Austin field for Nelson's concert Thursday, but at least one problem usually associated with the event — heat prostration — never cropped up as the city tied its coolest July 4 high-temperature record of 79 degrees.

"The rain don't matter a bit," said Steve Johnson, a soaked Oklahoman standing in the middle the soggy field to hear Nelson and a couple of his friends — Neil Young, Kris Kristofferson, Johnny Cash, Jerry Jeff Walker and Waylon Jennings — perform at Nelson's 13th picnic since 1971.

And in Sweetwater, with less than three days notice, more than 100 people turned out to join in an impromptu Independence Day parade in this West Texas town Thursday morning.

The parade was the brainchild of Dr. Al Densmore, a Sweetwater resident who, disappointed that the town was planning no festivities for the Fourth of July, decided late Monday to plan a parade himself.

But Densmore, a dentist who is also a World War II veteran, never expected the parade to be as popular as it was.

"This is about 100 more (people) than I thought," he said. "I'm very thrilled."

Parades also trooped down main streets in scores of other Texas cities, but scattered showers and thunderstorms interrupted many celebrations as unstable moist air moved in from the Gulf of Mexico.

In San Antonio, officials said cloudy skies may have kept many away from the largest military procession held there since World War II. About 3,000 people turned out for the first-ever Independence Day Veterans Parade.

Skies were clearer in Dallas, where motorists jammed highways for hours to make their way into Fair Park for a spectacular fireworks show next to the Cotton Bowl.

In El Paso, a 50-gun salute at Fort Bliss honored the nation's 50 states. And at Chamizal National Memorial, a fireworks display topped events that included an arts festival and a rodeo.

About 500 spectators watched as 13 men and 13 women competed in the Eighth Annual Sun City Sultana Showoff Contest at an El Paso shopping mall. With judging based on contrast between tanned and untanned spots, contestants drew thunderous applause when showing tan lines.

As many as 10,000 turned out for a day at Lake Casa Blanca in Laredo. Highlighting the day's events were a concert by local performers, a pie contest, a fajita cook-off and bikini contests for men and women.

Wichita Falls, meanwhile, hosted a bike and antique-car parade that traveled from downtown to the his-

Willie Nelson, performing at the historic Kell House, a former residence of city pioneers that has been converted to a museum.

Holiday accidents kill 15 in Texas

Associated Press

At least 15 people had died in Fourth of July holiday accidents on Texas highways by this morning, two shy of the 17 traffic fatalities the Texas Department of Public Safety was predicting.

The DPS count ended at midnight Thursday because today is considered a normal work day for many, DPS spokesman Mike Cox says.

Among the victims: —David Wade McGuire, 18, of Kermit, was a passenger on a motor cycle that went into a skid and hit an embankment at 4:30 a.m. Thursday a mile north of Kermit on County Road 306 in Winkler County.

Pecos Rodeo 'world's finest'

PECOS (AP) — The Pecos Rodeo has continued its 102-year-old tradition of drawing cowboys from across Texas and the nation to show off some high falutin' riding, roping and steer wrestling.

And organizers aren't shy about saying their annual Fourth of July event going on at the Pecos Rodeo Arena this week was "the world's first" when it got going in 1883.

"Back in 1883 some of the local cowboys pooled their money and decided they were going to have a little contest, and it's been going on ever since," said Larry Fleming, Pecos Rodeo Association president.

Fleming said his rodeo's pre-eminent status once reached the pages of The Encyclopedia Britannica — until competing rodeos disputed the claim and editors struck the entry.

"I think Prescott (another Fourth of July rodeo in Prescott, Ariz.) has that claim, too — something about being the first rodeo with timed events," Fleming said.

"But we still stick by our claim." Fleming said the rodeo has grown into a major regional attraction, prompting a week of events prior to rodeo performances Wednesday through Saturday.

This rodeo has drawn four of the top 10 cowboys around the country for every event except steer roping, according to Fleming.

He estimated this year's prize money at $141,000, which should help Pecos keep its status despite a decline in the number of participating cowboys.

Unlike many other rodeos, the Pecos event lacks big name entertainment, a fact organizers say is a way to avoid becoming commercial.

"They're still trying to do it like they used to," agreed rodeo judge Bud Lytle. "They're still trying to sell rodeo and not (country music singer) George Strait or somebody like him."

'Chili-cookoff' vote delayed in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials put off a vote on a controversial city health code amendment that would exempt from certain health regulations charitable operations including chili cookoff participants.

The Houston City Council voted Wednesday to delay action for a week on the proposed amendment until another one can be prepared that would exempt "charitable operations of all types and street vendors" from certain health regulations.

The disputed rules require each charitable group to obtain a $20 permit, place a three-sided barrier, such as tables, between the cooking areas and the public, and place a roof or a tarpaulin over the cooking area.

The requirements had not been enforced until recently when a cookoff participant applied for a permit.

Kidnapper escapes

CLEBURNE (AP) — A man condemned to life in prison in the kidnapping of an Alvarado girl was still at large today after he scrambled over a barbed wire-tipped fence to freedom, authorities say.

James Wesley Foote, 34, scaled an eight-foot fence around the Johnson County Jail Thursday after being transferred there earlier this week for questioning in a robbery, Johnson County Chief Deputy Malcolm Southerland said.

Before that, Foote had been held in a Texas Department of Corrections unit after receiving a life sentence March 28 in the kidnapping of 13-year-old Amy McNeil.

Teen's body identified

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen-ager whose body has been in a Houston morgue for 12 years since he was killed in a mass murder spree that claimed 27 lives has been identified by his sister, a medical examiner said.

Harris County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk said the body of William Karmon "Rusty" Branch Jr. was identified by his sister, Susan McLemore on Wednesday.

Branch, son of a former Houston Police officer, was 18 years old when his family reported him missing in 1973.

He was the 23rd victim identified in the case surrounding the mass murder ring headed by Dean Arnold Corli. Remains of four other young white males are in special containers at the county morgue waiting to be identified, Jachimczyk said.

Cat burglar strikes

ARLINGTON (AP) — Arlington police say it may be an ego problem that's making a cat burglar the bane of their lives.

They say he has struck at least 40 times in south Arlington since May, boldly entering homes while people sleep, slipping off with up to several hundred dollars in cash and jewelry — or with nothing at all.

No one has heard the burglar, even when he crawled over a drain full of dishes to get into a kitchen. Police say they don't have a clue as to when he'll strike next.

Couple helps unmanageable animals become loving pets

Copley News Service
ESCONDIDO, Calif. — There is the case of the cat that thinks it is a trapeze artist.
 And the dog transformed from an Oso Blanco, a horrid Mr. Hyde, into an Oscar, a delightful Dr. Jekyll.
 Such are case histories in the files of Peter J. Vollmer, who insists he is not a dog and cat psychiatrist or psychologist.
 "I have never put Fido or Mr. Whiskers on a couch," he says.
 The troubles of pets, say Vollmer, 45, and his wife, Nancy, 36, are mostly the woes of their human masters.
 Folk whose pets have made a dog's breakfast of their lives carry the animal to the Vollmers. The Vollmers offer advice to the owners. They sometimes let the offending beast share their home, for special tutoring.
TAKE THE CASE of Oso Blanco. A couple, both fresh from heart operations, had been advised by their physician to get a dog. The man of medicine said the pooch would sweeten their lives, add warmth and ease stress.
 From a pet shop they bought Oso Blanco, Spanish for white bear; the dog is white and a mass of hair and appears to be a bleached lilliputian Smokey the Bear. It is a Samoyed, a sort of Nordic sled dog.
 "It is a puppy," Vollmer said. "It is normal. It was untrained. Instead of subtracting stress, it added stress to the lives of the couple. They took it to their veterinarian and their veterinarian pointed them to us and here came the couple and would we please take Oso Blanco for a couple of days?"
 "What they really meant was, would we take their bundle of joy from them for good?"
 The Vollmers agreed to add Oso Blanco to their household. They have no kennels. Visiting pets have the run of the house. The Vollmers went to work on Oso Blanco.

 "Now he lies down, stays, comes on command," Vollmer said. "He is obedient on a leash. He does not leap onto laps unless asked to. Oso Blanco is so gentle, calm, affectionate, so much an eager and quick learner that I thought, 'He is no Oso Blanco, he is an Oscar.'"
THE VOLLMERS say names are important. Nancy once baby-sat a house with a 20-pound cat. The cat apparently remembered that its ancestors were worshiped in olden Egypt.
 "The cat did not walk; it marched," Nancy said. "It did not meow and beg; it commanded. I was not its mistress; the cat rather obviously figured I was blessed to be in its presence."
 "The cat was properly named — Oliver."
 Contrary to rumor, dogs, certainly, and even cats can recognize names. They are not big on spelling.
 "Grammar is not their bag. But the tone of the name, the feeling behind the sound voiced by the human master, are important," Vollmer says.
 Sometimes nothing is in a name. Take the trapeze puss.
 "The owners noticed that the cat would go onto the roof of the house. Then it would drop down onto a clothesline. It would, paw ahead of paw, walk the rope all the way to a tree.
 "The cat would then climb down the tree, go to the house roof and repeat the feat. Again and again. What, in heaven's name, to do about a cat being a trapeze artist?"
 Vollmer says he gave the matter deep thought. His solution: Do nothing.
 "After all, the cat is a good performer on the high rope."
HE SAYS THE WAY to educate a pet is to instruct the owner how to train the dog or cat.

 "Yelling at a pet or doing worse will do no good," Vollmer said.
 "Use eye-to-eye contact and body language. Take Fido's head in your hands, holding the scruff of his neck, and look into those big wet eyes and say in a commanding tone that Fido is to do that or this no more. No more."
 If such tactics do not work, he says, there is another cure: Get rid of the pet. For, he says, in this cruel world some dogs and cats are simply not trainable.
 But most pets are trainable, the Vollmers say. There is the case of the dog that growled and snapped.
 The dog lived with a family of mother, father and children. It thought mother was Mommy Darling. It growled and threatened when the children or the father came near mother. The Vollmers found the reason in the family history.
 The mother had been abused by her father as a child. As a result, the mother did not discipline her children. She also did not discipline the dog. The dog was given no boundaries of action. It did as it pleased.
 Under the Vollmers' tutoring, the mother began to apply discipline. It worked. The dog became a pet.
THE COUPLE SIT in their living room. Their dogs, Raven and Kiss, sheepdogs and as nicely mannered as anything aboard the Good Ship Lollipop, sit and listen and make what is said to be dog grins.
 Someone knocks on the door.
 It is the man who owns Oso Blanco, aka Oscar.
 He speaks. He has come to suggest maybe the Vollmers have found a new pasture, another home for the dog.
 The Vollmers show him the Dr. Jekyll. On comes the dog. On com-his changed pet.

 The tail moves like an upside-down clock pendulum.
 The owner lifts the dog.

 Stress is gone.
 "Oscar is no Oliver," says Nancy.

DEAR ABBY

Giving parents key opens door to trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents live next door. We gave them a key to our house in case of emergencies. This was the worst mistake we ever made. Before they had the key we had a good relationship, but no more.
 His father is a very early riser, so he lets himself into our home while we are still in bed. He reads our mail and invades our privacy. His mother also lets herself in and looks around. Last Sunday morning I walked into our kitchen stark naked and my father-in-law was standing there! We never know when they are going to surprise us. When we have company, they walk in as though they lived here.
 We hate to hurt their feelings, so we haven't said anything to them, but we will not feel comfortable until we get our key back.
Have you any suggestions? — NEEDS PRIVACY
DEAR NEEDS: Yes. With as much diplomacy as he can muster, your husband must tell his parents that their surprise visits are disturbing and often inconvenient, so would they please return the house key. It won't be easy, but it's the only way you can regain your privacy.

DEAR ABBY: A good friend came to visit me with her two children, both under 3 years of age. By the time they left, my stereo was damaged, my carpet stained, an antique clock broken — and that was just in the living room. The rest of the house looked like a tornado went through it. All this occurred while my friend sat and talked, apparently oblivious to the whole thing.
 I was afraid if I asked her to control her kids or leave, our friendship would be over because she is very sensitive about her kids.
 Please don't think I'm an old fuddy-duddy who hates kids. I'm not. I love kids, and hope to have my own someday. However, my husband and I have worked hard to furnish our home and don't appreciate it being destroyed by kids like hers. I'm beginning to wonder if the friendship is worth it.
 Surely I'm not the only one with this problem. A printed solution might help. — READY TO SCREAM
DEAR READY: Screaming will not restore your clock, repair your stereo and clean your carpet. Kids usually tear around like tornados because they are bored. A few toys and some coloring books in full view of you and their mother might be helpful. And should the child get out of line, a firm reprimand would not be out of order.

DEAR ABBY: I have one child who is 8 years old. We live next door to a family with six kids. (I'll call them the Joneses.) My daughter plays with the Jones girl, who is also 8. Whenever I give the girls a treat and one of the other Jones kids sees it, the news spreads like wildfire, then Mrs. Jones sends one of her kids over here to get treats for the rest of her kids who are in the house watching TV or whatever. They say, "Our mom says one of us can't have anything unless we all have it, everything has to be fair and equal!"
 Abby, I came from a family of nine kids, and when a playmate's parent gave one of us a treat, we said "Thank you" and felt grateful; we'd never dream of asking for eight more for the kids at home!
 I am raising my daughter to know that she can't have everything her playmates have — that life is not always "fair and equal," but Mrs.

Jones is putting me in a terrible position.
 So how do I handle this? — FRUSTRATED
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Tell Mrs. Jones that you admire her for treating all her children equally, but a neighbor who gives one child a special treat should not be expected to provide all the brothers and sisters with identical treats. And if Mrs. Jones doesn't understand, don't give her child treats where she will be seen and envied.
 (Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (3¢ cent) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Grab shells can lodge in lungs

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service
 "For those of us who live in the vicinity of the Chesapeake Bay," three doctors write in The New England Journal of Medicine, "eating hard-shell crabs is a social event... In our zeal to ingest the meat, we sometimes ingest bits of attached crab shells as well."
 Mix all that with beer and conversation, the doctors warn, and the little bits of attached crab shells can lodge in the lung for several months.
 They reported two cases of "crab lung," in which the patients complained of coughing spells. In both cases, pieces of shell less than a centimeter across were found in the lungs.

Waterbeds sometimes occupied by real animals

Hearst News Service
SAN DIEGO — When two cold-blooded Komodo dragons of the opposite sex failed to get the hots for each other, the San Diego Zoo took a page straight out of Cosmopolitan magazine: It bought the giant lizards a waterbed.
 The rare Indonesian reptiles, which grow up to 10 feet long, are the only two of their species in the Western Hemisphere. Zoo officials hoped they would get to know each other in the biblical sense and multiply.
 But the lizards weren't exactly lepin', so zookeepers decided a king-size, heated waterbed might help.
 "We'd install hot tubs and mirrors on the ceiling if we thought it would help," said Andy Phillips, a comparative physiologist at the zoo and inventor of the animal waterbed.

 The waterbed hasn't done the trick yet, but officials say the dragons are definitely getting friskier.
 Now about 50 animals at the zoo are lulled to sleep each night on waterbeds, which are similar to those used by people.
 Among those floating these nights are macaque monkeys, mangabey monkeys, Siberian dhole dogs, hyenas, jaguars, leopards and other big cats.
 A custom-made waterbed has even been installed in an artificial tree limb used by iguanas, who apparently have had more luck at mating on them than have the dragons.

Phillips said he got the idea while doing postgraduate work at Colorado State University in 1979-80 on the metabolism of lizards.
 "I was looking for a method of holding their temperatures at a constant level and discovered that heated water in a flexible container worked quite well," he said.
 Phillips realized he had just reinvented the waterbed. He installed his first bed at the zoo in 1982, using standard materials donated by a local waterbed store. The only major modification is an aluminum covering to prevent claws from puncturing the mattress.
 The waterbed's primary non-mating purpose is to help mothers take care of newborn, he said. Newborn animals have died during the critical first hours after birth at the zoo because their mothers — many of whom were themselves raised in captivity — didn't know how to keep them warm.

 It happened recently when an entire litter of rare dholes died of hypothermia shortly after being born.
 "With heated waterbeds, we can keep the newborn animals warm, even when their mothers aren't taking care of them," Phillips said.
 "We're batting a thousand so far when mothers keep their young on the waterbeds."
 Pregnant animals also seem to sleep better on waterbeds, getting six to eight hours of uninterrupted sack time a night, according to zoo officials. Pregnant animals who sleep on bare concrete, on the other hand, rarely go more than a few hours without waking up.

Waxman is 'Cagney & Lacey' commuter

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Al Waxman came straight from the airport after a flight from Toronto, a route he travels regularly between his home in Canada and his role in CBS' "Cagney & Lacey."

Waxman, a round-faced, balding man who carries a huge cigar, plays Lt. Bert Samuels, the guy with the basso profundo bark who keeps Tyne Daly (Mary Beth Lacey) and Sharon Gless (Chris Cagney) hopping.

"Some guys take a bus to work," he said. "I take a plane. I go back to Toronto at least twice a month for long weekends. Sometimes I go back three times a month."

The role is Waxman's first full-time job in this country, although he has appeared in U.S. movies for many years and studied acting in New York. In Canada, he starred in his own series, "King of Kensington," for five years and won that country's equivalent of the Emmy.

Oddly enough, his role in the drama about two policewomen came about because he wrote a script for a Western movie.

"I was putting the movie together down here, and Ted Post was going to direct," he recalled. "But Westerns fell out of favor and the picture was never made. But my friendship with Ted Post flourished."

"Years later he came up to Toronto to direct the 'Cagney & Lacey' movie and he said he wanted me to be in it. He offered me a choice of roles and I picked Bert Samuels. The producer said he had someone else in mind, the actor who had played Louis B. Mayer in a Canadian picture. That was me."

The movie, which featured Loretta Swit and Tyne Daly, was shown in October 1981 as a one-time TV movie. But then CBS ordered six episodes. Since Miss Swit was doing "M-A-S-H," the Cagney role was taken over by Meg Foster. Miss Foster was later replaced by Miss Gless.

"I had a feeling it was going to be more than a movie," Waxman said. "That's one reason I chose the role I did because if it became a series it would be a continuing part."

He was not discouraged, either, when CBS canceled "Cagney & Lacey" because of poor ratings. "I knew this show wasn't over," he said. "We had more stories to tell."

He was right. CBS bowed to the demand of fans and returned the show to the schedule. It quickly became a hit.

Regarding his character, Waxman said, "In order for a character to be of interest to me and the audience, he must go through some changes. If you consider each episode like an act in a long play, then Bert Samuels has changed. What's been exciting for me is seeing Samuels change from a male chauvinist who resented any women on his elite homicide squad.

"First he developed a grudging respect for Cagney and Lacey. Then he said they were doing a good job. What's it matter if they're women? Now I see him having a feeling of protectiveness for his people. During this time his marriage fell apart because of his dedication to his job."

Waxman, a man who admits he likes food, made a good choice in real-life marriage. His wife, Sara, is restaurant critic and food columnist for The Toronto Sun. She's also the author of one published cookbook, "The King's Wife's Cookbook," a reference to his role as "The King of Kensington," and another soon to be published, "Back Roads and Country Cooking."

They have a 14-year-old daughter and a 12-year-old son.

Waxman has directed several episodes of "Cagney & Lacey" and on a recent stay in Toronto directed an episode of "Night Heat" for CBS. At one time he seriously considered giving up acting to direct full-time.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

Viewers pick 'Heat' for Emmy submission

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The viewers have made their choice. The "Heat" episode of the CBS series "Cagney & Lacey" will be submitted for Emmy consideration.

Executive producer Barney Rosenzweig had arranged for the show's fans to screen 12 episodes and select one to be entered in the Emmy awards competition.

In "Heat," Det. Mary Beth Lacey (Tyne Daly) is trapped in a boxcar and learns how it feels to be a prisoner in a life-threatening situation. The series also stars Sharon Gless.

Besides four nights of screenings at a Santa Monica theater, the fans also took part in question and answer sessions with Rosenzweig, members of the cast and writers.

Warriors Inc. consults

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood has frequently had a problem portraying the military, but Dale Dye has left his job as executive editor of Soldier of Fortune magazine to get things shipshape and squared away.

Dye is setting up Warriors Inc., a consulting company to work with writers on scripts, with actors on how to wear uniforms and handle weapons and with producers and directors on just getting it straight.

"It's a long shot," said Dye, who rose through the ranks of the Marine Corps from private and retired last June as a captain after 20 years. "It's officially a one-man operation, but I have a loose network of people who are familiar with all the services and many foreign services."

Dye said he finds many errors in films. "They wear uniforms wrong or handle weapons wrong," he said.

For instance, in "Rambo: First Blood Part II," Sylvester Stallone fires an anti-tank weapon from a helicopter to destroy another helicopter. The backblast from such a weapon would destroy his own helicopter.

'Nobody knows' Vinton

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Who recorded more No. 1 hits between 1962-72 than Frank Sinatra or Elvis Presley? Bobby Vinton.

Still, it was often "Who is Bobby Vinton?"

"I was the Prince of my day, but I couldn't get a job in Vegas," Vinton says. His autobiography, "The Polish Prince," was a best seller and his syndicated TV series was seen in 140 cities in the U.S. and Canada.

"I've been around a long time, but nobody knows me," he said. "I can put on one of the best shows in Vegas. I'll be there for three weeks and by the time I finish I'll be drawing more people than when I started."

Fireworks display upstages Beach Boys, Mr. T

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Beach Boys wound up playing second fiddle to a dazzling fireworks display in a sudy Fourth of July celebration on the Mall that drew more than a half-million revelers.

The free concert was to have ended before the fireworks started, but Mike Love and his sidekicks arrived late from an earlier gig in Philadelphia and took the stage more than an hour behind schedule.

Ten minutes into the Beach Boys' set of "California Girls," "Rhonda" and other standards from the 1960s, the first rocket boomed over the Reflecting Pool.

Fireworks impresario George R. Zambelli kept the skies ablaze over Washington for nearly half an hour while the music played on.

Even Mr. T, the semi-bald strongman actor, was no match for the pyrotechnics as he banged drums for the Beach Boys. The bandstand on the Washington Monument grounds was only a few hundred yards from where Zambelli's crew fired their 4,800-shot, $29,000 barrage.

The National Park Service estimated the crowd at 550,000 — the biggest on the Mall since the Bicentennial. Earl Kittleman, the Park Service spokesman, said 72 people were arrested, mostly for intoxication or disorderly conduct. More than 1,100 were treated at first aid stations, chiefly for heat exhaustion and minor cuts.

Forty-two were taken to area hospitals, including one man flown out by helicopter after an apparent heart attack.

President and Mrs. Reagan watched part of the fireworks from the balcony of the White House, where they spent a quiet holiday and dined with friends.

Mrs. Reagan, who will turn 64 Saturday, was serenaded with a chorus of "Happy Birthday, Dear Nancy," by White House staffers and their families on the South Lawn.

Many in the sun-baked crowd of young people on the Mall spent all day waiting for the concert. The Four Tops and other groups played into the early evening, but the crowd had to endure a 90-minute delay before Joan Jett and the Blackhearts and the Oak Ridge Boys warmed them up for the Beach Boys.

Love, the Beach Boys' lead singer, apologized for being late and said, "The Park Service has asked us to end this show as quickly and quietly as possible." But after imploring the crowd to "be nice to each other...so we can get together every year like this," Love and the Beach Boys played for nearly 40 minutes.

While the area around the Washington Monument was strictly for a beer keg and cooler crowd, the wine-and-cheese set was picnicking outside the Capitol a mile away and enjoying a National Symphony concert, with Leonard Bernstein conducting his music from "West Side Story."

Zambelli said his Newcastle, Pa., company was putting on 1,400 shows across the nation on and around the Fourth, but the one on the Mall is "the number one display...The pride, the prestige, the recognition is here."

And with a nod toward the rock music blaring behind him, he said, "They're all here, really, for the fireworks as we all know."

Tom Walsh, 21, came from his home in Livingston, N.J. "I didn't even know the Beach Boys were playing," said Walsh, a Union College student who spent part of the afternoon juggling five balls.

Daniel Smith, 23, of Wauwatosa, Wis., was there with his bagpipes, kilts, and a 60-pound backpack he is carrying on a trek across America to raise money for cancer research. Smith has raised $5,000 since setting out from Maine in April.

The Beach Boys had originally planned a "sea-to-shining-sea July 4 tour" with further stops in Dallas and San Francisco. But the Dallas show was cancelled and San Francisco postponed, turning it into a trek from the Delaware River to the banks of the Potomac.

One firecracker misfires, one goes off with bang

Associated Press

A 150-pound firecracker meant to fill a square mile of Independence Day sky with stars misfired, torching its launch site in Washington, but a 160-pounder in Pennsylvania went off as planned — with a shot heard 'round Shamokin.

Meanwhile, a homemade cannon in New Jersey turned out to be "a little more powerful" than expected, smashing a hole in a house a half-mile away, and a display rack tipped over in Kansas, showering a crowd with fireworks and injuring at least six people slightly.

About a half-mile of brush was ablaze early today on the 2-mile-long sand jetty in Everett, Wash., where Thor, a 150-pound, 24-inch-wide shell, misfired Thursday night at the end of the city's fireworks display.

Twenty members of the Evergreen Fourth of July Association and volunteers were fighting the flames with a pumper truck and shovels.

The $3,000 shell was to have shot 2,700 feet into the sky with 10 smaller shells and burst into a flower-shaped rainbow of jets over a square mile with a boom heard in Seattle, about 15 miles away.

"The lift charge was either too much, not enough, the time fuse didn't work properly — we don't know for sure, but when it went, it didn't lift out of the tube the way it should have," said Mike Sea, who worked on the display.

In the central Pennsylvania coal mining town of Shamokin, however, a 160-pound "chrysanthemum" shell six feet around went off as planned Thursday with a colorful display seen 24 to 30 miles away, officials said.

The shell burst 1,200 feet over the center of the town at the end of a 390-shell finale. It was touched off electrically by an operator in fire-resistant clothing, ear protectors and a hard hat — standing nearly a half-mile away.

The largest shell ever was a 720-pounder in Titusville, Fla., in 1977, according to the Guinness Book of World Records.

In Hamilton Township, N.J., Francois Guillemin's 2-foot-long homemade cannon "was a little more powerful than he expected it to be" and sent a 1½-inch cannonball through the wall of Harriet Stout's house a half-mile away, said Sgt. William McDougal. Guillemin was charged with criminal mischief.

The cannon, touched off for the first time at a party held by the Johnson Atelier Technical Institute of Sculpture, was supposed to shoot the ball about 300 yards and land on a former fairgrounds, McDougal said.

SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA
NEVER CHANGE.

SOME DO.

U.S. Savings Bonds now pay like money market accounts! At the current rate—10.94%—you could double your money in less than seven years.

Just hold your Bonds five years or more and get the new higher variable rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more—but never less than 7½%. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

But some of the best things about Savings Bonds haven't changed. They're still as safe as ever. They're still exempt from state and local income taxes. And since Bonds cost as little as $25, they're as affordable as ever. What's more, Savings Bonds remain a great way to keep our country strong.

You can purchase Bonds almost anywhere. At neighborhood banks, savings and loans and credit unions.

Or easier still, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Today, more than 5.5 million Americans are saving the easy way—through Payroll Savings. Isn't it time you joined them? That's a sure way to appreciate how much Bonds have changed for the better.

For your free booklet, write: "50 Q&A," U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Washington, DC 20226. U.S. SAVINGS BONDS Paying Better Than Ever

Variable rates apply to Bonds purchased on and after 11/1/82 and held at least 5 years. Bonds purchased before 11/1/82 earn variable rates when held beyond 10/31/87. Bonds held less than 5 years earn lower interest.
