Western fires consume 900,000 acres

By DENNIS ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

More than 10,000 firefighters battled lack of sleep and high temperatures as they grappled today with brush, forest and rage fires that have charred at least 900,000 acres - an area larger than the state of Rhode Island - in 11 Western states and Canada.

The fires, many of them caused by lightning, scorched sections of California, Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Montana, Washington, Nevada, Oregon, Arizona, Nebraska and South Dakota and the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba.

Residents of San Luis Obispo. Calif., returned warily to their homes on Monday after eight homes were damaged or destroyed by a 30foot wall of flames. About 5,000 to 10,000 people were evacuated earlier in the day, authorities said.

Gov. George Deukmejian declared a state of emergency Monday for San Luis Obispo County, the third California county to receive that status this month as fires destroyed or damaged more than 150 homes and killed three people in the state.

The San Luis Obispo fire had burned 64,000 acres by early today and was 80 percent contained, fire spokesman Ray Schaaf said. "It is the worst fire in the history of San Luis Obispo County," said Mike Cole, a California Department of Forestry spokesman.

Meanwhile, brush fires closed Highway 1 from San Luis Obispo County to the Big Sur area and one blaze near the Lexington Reservoir sent about 3,000 residents from their homes. Two dozen homes and a trailer park were evacuated because of a 6,500-acre blaze on grassland near King City. The fire in San Luis Obispo gutted seven homes and 14 other buildings in its early stages and, fanned by erratic winds on Monday, swept toward the city of 35,000, destroying another three homes and damaging five, authorities said.

Classes were canceled at schools over 900,000 acres - about 1,400 and youth camps in the hills were evacuated as the fire grew to more than 60,000 acres. Highways and the By comparison, Rhode Island airport closed, phone lines jammed and water pressure dropped as people spraved homes.

Firefighters who saved the city, about 40 miles south of William Randolph Hearst's mansion at San Simeon, suffered 14 minor injuries, Cole said. "Some of them have been on their feet for 48 hours."

Temperatures under the orangetinged sky climbed over 100 degrees. The blaze, which began 130 miles northwest of Los Angeles on July 1, was among the latest and largest of a series of fires that has charred square miles - since June in the western United States and Canada. encompasses 1,214 square miles.

Heat also hampered firefighters battling the biggest California fire, which grew to 85,000 acres Monday in the Los Padres National Forest near Ojai, 65 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The arson-caused blaze no longer threatened the small cities of Ojai and Carpinteria.

It was 50 percent contained, but no control time was estimated, said Forest Service spokeswoman Joanna Guttman. Firefighters consider a fire contained when it has either stopped spreading or when it is sur-rounded by fire lines; a fire is controlled when it is out except for occasional hot spots.

Fires started by lightning also charred thousands of acres in California's Inyo and Fresno counties. Others closed scenic state Highway 1 from San Luis Obispo County to Big Sur and one blaze in the area sent 3,000 people fleeing. Los Angeles and San Diego counties have been declared disaster areas.

In the southeastern British Columbia mill town of Canal Flats, most of the 700 residents were forced to evacuate Monday as dry timber went up in flames.

Executed man labeled society as 'murderers'

South African violence renewed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Police shot dead seven blacks in clashes in a black township east of Johannesburg today hours before more than 10,000 mourners turned out for the funeral for four blacks killed in previous rioting, police and witnesses said.

The violence broke out in Kwa-Thema, about 30 miles east of Johannesburg, police headquarters in the capital of Pretoria said.

A police statement said five blacks were shot dead with birdshot and pistol fire when a crowd attacked and firebombed a black policeman's home, and two others were fatally wounded in a similar incident elsewhere in the township.

But reporters quoted unidentified residents as saying police fired tear gas into a cinema that was being used for an all-night vigil for the four blacks buried today. Police then shot dead seven blacks as they left the vigil, the reporters quoted the residents as saying.

The residents said an eighth victim, also black, was also shot and killed while walking along a street during the night.

The floor of the Gugulethu Cinema was splattered with blood, and walls and steel doors were riddled with bullet marks, according to reporters who visited the building after the clash. Shoes, wool hats and blankets were covered with blood and several tear gas canisters and rubber bullets were strewn around the cinema.

Witnesses said dozens of people at the vigil hid under chairs when tear gas was fired into the hall. They said they stampeded outside when the fumes became unbearable and then came under police fire.

Several hours after the vigil, a huge crowd packed into Kwa-Thema stadium for the funeral service, and witnesses said two more people were shot and wounded in clashes outside the stadium after an attack on the nearby home of the mayor, Rev. James Mzamane.

Members of government-backed councils and policemen have been frequent targets of attacks by black rioters, who see such officials as collaborators with the white-minority government.

Police said 36 youths were arrested in Kwa-Thema after a large mob stoned houses. The mob was dispersed by police tear gas and rubber bullets, police said.

Porter Porter, the seeond Texas prisoner to be given lethal injection in two weeks, insisted to his last breath - at 12:31 a.m. - that the killing of Henry Mailloux was in self defense.

"I want people to know that they called me a cold-blooded murderer, and I shot a man who shot me first. Porter said in a final statement as he was strapped to a gurney in the death chamber.

"I didn't tie anvone down on a stretcher and put poison into his veins from behind a locked door. I call this and I call your society a bunch of cold-blooded murderers."

Porter also said he was a victim of prejudice against Mexican-Americans

"They call it equal justice, but it is your equal justice," he said. "A Mexican life is worth nothing."

He then asked for forgiveness from God and asked a prison chaplain to give his best to his family.

Porter, 43, from San Antonio, is a former painter's helper with a lengthy criminal history that included burglary, robbery, assault, forgery and auto theft. He was a drug addict who said his habit once reached $1,000 a day.

Porter was tried and convicted twice of the Nov. 29, 1975 slaying of Mailloux. The first conviction was overturned. The second was that happened."

He had asked last week that his attorneys halt all appeals. No lastminute attempts were made to stop the execution.

We have exhausted all of our legal avenues," his attorney, Dennis Tor, said last week.

Porter spent his final day visiting with relatives, including his daughter, brother and cousins. For his final meal, he selected steak, refried beans, flour tortillas, salad, ice cream and chocolate cake.

"He told us to be strong. He's already accepted it," said Porter's daughter, Imelda Cortinas. She said she gave her father a picture of Christ and he gave her a taped messsage for his grandchildren.

Ms. Cortinas, who is expecting her fourth child, said she saw no justice in the execution of her father and that her feelings were the same as the slain officer's family

Midlander reviews issues studied at recent LULAC meeting

By JULIE HILLRICHS Staff Writer

High unemployment among minorities, American foreign policy in Central America, bilingual education and civil rights were among the topics of non-traditional conservative debate as thousands of Hispanics nationwide gathered in Anaheim, Calif., recently for the national convention of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Edia Hernandez, one of four Midlanders attending the convention, said she returned from the event feeling "very satisified" despite the conservative viewpoint presented there

"I believe what we're doing here is good," the newly elected local president said. "The discussion was a bit more conservative, but LULAC still feels that human needs are important.

According to Ms. Hernandez, "LULAC still believes in helping the underprivileged, but we do need to be more conservative because we are a nonprofit organization. There has to be a better way of handling money

'Most people are conservative with their own money, so why not be a little more careful with someone else's money too," she added.

Ms. Hernandez said the the weeklong convention, featuring a series of leadership training seminars and workshops, dealt primarily with such issues as civil rights, American foreign policy in Central America and social programs. Regarding civil rights, Ms. Hernandez said, "LULAC feels the Reagan administration is sweeping civil rights under the rug.'

Declining to give specific examples, she said civil rights suffers "a lack of enforcement. from ULAC will continue to fight and fight through the legal system if necessarv

LULAC also will continue to strive to lower the unemployment rate among minorities, Ms. Hernandez said. "We'd like to work with corporations to try to get more minorities employed in upper-level management positions.

Without governmental support, I don't know how effective that will be," she added.

Calling education a "primary interest," Ms. Hernandez said representatives of LULAC must "study and find a remedy for the high dropout rate among Hispanic youth.

"We need to get our students out of high school and prepare them for college. The handful we're getting now is not enough to support our cause," she said. "Education is the key to our advancement."

Concerning other social programs, Ms. Hernandez said, LULAC and the local organization will examine the possibility of applying for federal funding, particularly that which is available to support indigent health care services.

BALLINGER (AP) — Ballinger's newest residents have ruffled a few feathers among their neighbors, but none of the squawking has prompted the newcomers to take light so far.

Between 20 and 30 turkey vultures descended upon a residential neigh-borhood in May, setting up shop on a General Telephone Co. microwave tower and leaving a certain unpleas-antness in their wake.

City Administrator Dennis Jones said some residents have complained about feathers and vulture droppings.

Officials hope to get the upper feather, however, by startling and frightening away the ghoulish birds with noise bombs designed to discourage the birds from taking up permanent residence.

Texas Rodent and Predatory Ani-mal Control Service agent Kirk Gus-tad set off three booming cracker shells and a screeching whistle bomb Monday night, which sent the flock scattering.

"They are usually successful in scaring the predators away," Gustad told the Abilene Reporter-News. "This is the first thing we've tried, and we don't know if it'll work."

He said the noisemakers must be set off for two or three days in a row to force the vultures to pack up and

"We don't know what we'll do if this doesn't work," Gustad said. "There's just no standard way of getting rid of vultures."

The birds begin congregating on the 127-foot tower at about 7:30 p.m. each day, said Melissa Horinek, Gen-Tel spokeswoman.

"We don't know why they chose this tower," she said. "We have a man here who takes a big rod and shakes it against the tower and chases them away. But they come back.'

Ms. Horinek said the company has a backup plan in case the vultures staunchly refuse to leave: installing a horn on the tower which can be set off by calling a phone number.

Iraqi missile ignites Turkish tanker in gulf

Turkish supertanker was attacked and set afire by an Iraqi missile today in the Persian Gulf, forcing the crew to abandon ship shipping sources said.

Lloyd's of London's Shipping Intelligence Department said the 392,799-ton M. Vatan was the largest ship ever attacked in the Iran-Iraq war "and possibly the largest marine casualty ever in tonnage."

Reports of the attack came shortly after Iraq announced that its warplanes raided a "very large maritime target" near Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal.

The vessel, classified as a very large crude oil carrier, put out a dis-

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) - Aurkish supertanker was attacked nd set afire by an Iraqi missile oday in the Persian Gulf, forcing

A shipping source in Kuwait said rescue tugboats that reached the stricken tanker reported the crew had abandoned ship because of fears the vessel might explode. The source said the tanker was fully loaded.

The sources, who spoke on condi-tion of anonymity, said the M. Vatan was attacked by an Exocet missile off the Iranian island of Jabrin, about 100 miles south of Kharg.

The missile hit either a cargo tank or the fuel tank on the starboard side as oil is leaking," said another salvage company executive who spoke on condition he not be identified.

He said there was threat of "heavy pollution" in the gulf waterway as a result.

The Turkish flag vessel is owned by the Turkish company Cerrahogu-liari T.A.S., but was registered in Greece, according to the sources. They had no further details on the damage or possible casualties. Sal-vage tugboats rushed to the vessel's rescue.

An Iraqi military spokesman in Baghdad announced that Iraqi warplanes "successfully raided a very large maritime target near Kharg Island" at 6:45 a.m., the Gulf News Agency reported.

The warplanes returned unharmed to their bases, the spokesman said, warning that Iraq "will continue to hit the targets and interests of the rulers of Iran until they give in to peace." Iraq and Iran have been at war since September 1980, and Iraq in early 1964 announced an air and sea blockade around Kharg Island to choke off its foe's economy and force it to accept a negotiated settlement of the war.

In Iraqi military parlance, a mari-time target attacked in the vicinity Kharg means a ship raided sailing to or from the Iranian terminal.

Iraq has been known to attack ships outside the 50-mile radius it initially marked around Kharg for the blockade.

On Monday, an Iraqi communique said an assault force regained some Iraqi territory in the central sector of its 730-mile border with Iran, killing or wounding 50 Iranian soldiers.

The communique indicated that the battle was for territory occupied by the Iranians since June 1982 when Iraqi forces withdrew to defensive positions zigzagging across the border.

It said another Iraqi force made a hit-and-run attack on "enemy positions" in the same sector and "returned safely after destroying their targets."

Reagan fights economic sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) - With antiapartheid legislation ensnarled by a Senate filibuster, a key U.S. official says the Reagan administration is "dead set" against imposing economic sanctions against white-ruled South Africa.

Chester Crocker, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, said Monday that ecoomic sanctions would not force the Pretoria government to end its policies of racial segregation.

"We are dead set against these efforts to curtail American commercial and economic involvement in South Africa," said Crocker. "They won't work."

Crocker's comments came as the Senate delayed until Wednesday a debate on proposed economic sanctions after conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., launched a filibuster against the measure.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., charged conservative opposition to anti-apartheid sanctions was partially motivated by a "dirty undercurrent of racism.

Helms rejected Cranston's charge as "nonsense," saying economic sanctions would only take jobs away from black South Africans.

The Senate bill, less comprehensive than a House-passed bill, would bar the sale of computer equipment to the South African government that could be used for defense or enforcing apartheid laws.

It would also end nuclear cooperation until Pretoria signed a non-proliferation agreement. The bill also seeks a ban on bank loans to the South African government.

A test vote on a motion to end the Senate filibuster was scheduled for Wednesday, although Helms indi-cated he may end the delaying tac-advancement for black South Afritic

Crocker refused to say whether Reagan would veto an anti-apartheid bill if Congress agrees on a final version containing restrictions on U.S. investment and trade with the white-minority regime.

Richard Moose, who was President Carter's assistant secretary of state for African affairs, said the overwhelming support the legislation has won in the House and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee indicates that Reagan probably would accept the sanctions

Crocker joined Moose in a panel discussion held by the American Bar Association and the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank Crocker said American companies

cans and that the pending legislation threatens to force a withdrawal of progressive American companies from the country. We represent — and should not be ashamed to say so - the state-ofthe art of corporate citizenship in South Africa," he said.

Moose said the 295-127 House vote for sanctions and the 16-1 approval of the Senate version by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee indicated there was enough momentum that Reagan would refrain from vetoing the legislation.

The House bill would ban new U.S. bank loans to the South African government, new U.S. investments in South African businesses, and the sale of South African gold coins known as Krugerrands in the United States

Some of the youngsters, ranging in age from 12 to 17, have told police they fear for their lives if they don't deliver cars or other stolen goods to their "Fagin-type mentors," said East Orange police Capt. In addition, Dole said voters seem more concerned about Congress' inability to find a way to cut government red ink than about Reagan proposals to over-haul the tax code.

"A lot of them (voters) think we've gone bonkers because we haven't done anything with the deficit," Dole said.

STATE

HUNTSVILLE (AP) - Deflecting reports of a partisan ouster, Robert Gunn emerged from a prison board meeting saying he will remain at the helm of the corrections system board for at least two months. Published reports over the week-end indicated that Gunn, a Republican appointed by former Gov. Bill Clements, would be ousted as chairman by the Democrat-controlled board because of Gunn's plans to campaign next year for a Republi-can against Democratic Gov. Mark White.

But after the board meeting, Gunn said, "I do not intend to support anyone until such time I'm off the board."

Saying "there never was an effort" to oust him, Gunn said "a consensus" of the board agreed he should stay on during the two-hour, closed-door meeting. No vote was taken, he said.

White, who was campaigning Monday for the Democratic candidate in the 1st Congressional District special runoff election, said he was pleased that the board was "going to continue to work together."

The governor downplayed any political differences with Gunn.

"As long as he's going to work to improve that prison, then there will be no political differences," White said. "I hope that he'll continue to function as a member of that board and will be trying to carry out his responsibilities, which are awesome, and make sure that we have the finest prison system in the country."

Gunn said he was "very anxious to continue as chairman" in order to carry out new prison reforms and planned to remain on the board for at least the next two months. "I am very anxious to get things lined up, to get things running smoothly," the 60-year-old Wichita Falls oilman said. Gunn has chaired the board during a time of upheaval in the Texas Department of Corrections, the nation's second-largest state prison system. Earlier this year, officials agreed to a settlement of a 13-yearold lawsuit filed by prisoner David Ruiz, agreeing to reforms and expansion. The settlement awaits federal court approval.

Most board members refused to discuss the executive session, which preceeded a regularily scheduled prison board meeting. One board member, Robert Lane, said reports of Gunn's demise "totally surprised me." Asked whether he supported Gunn, he replied, "I certainly do."

Another board member, Dennis Hendrix, said Gunn's continued presence on the board was important.

"He's done an outstanding job," Hendrix said.

With Gunn's prodding, the TDC took steps toward modern prison management. Consultants were hired to scrutinize the agency's anti-quated management and accounting procedures, and federal court orders ere obeyed instead of opposed.

During Gunn's tenure, longtime director Jim Estelle resigned under pressure, revelations of financial mismanagement accumulated and a landmark court ruling created turmoil and change in almost every area of prison conditions and inmate

Texas melons aldicarb-free

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas is free of watermelons contaminated with the chemical aldicarb, which have caused numerous cases of pesticide poisoning in California and Oregon, state officials say. The Texas Department of Health said Monday it has conducted a telephone survey of major produce distributors and food store chains within the state. The survey found that no West Coast watermelons have been shipped into the state, officials said.

'Additional investigation indicated that aldicarb, which is not authorized for use on melons, has not been used for that purpose by

Dinosaur-bone discovery hailed

By PETER HECHT

STEPHENVILLE - For several years, Tarleton State University stu-dent Rusty Branch chased the paleontologist's dream, scavenging riverbeds and lake shores for fish and reptile fossils, somehow hoping to uncover a large-scale dinosaur.

MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, TUES. JULY 9, 1985

Last month, when his dream came true, Branch discovered at least six dinosaurs. But they were prehistoric midgets - measuring barely 3 feet

"I was little bit disappointed," he said later. "... These didn't turn out to be the biggies.'

However, on Monday, a team of paleontologists was hailing Branch's discovery of the estimated 100 million-year-old remains as one of the most significant dinosaur finds in several years - one that could fill a gap in natural history.

The skeletal remains of plant-eating creatures called camptosaurs were discovered in muddy rock near Proctor Lake, 20 miles west of Stephenville in North Central Texas. In the last two weeks, research and excavation teams from Southern Methodist University, Tarleton State and the University of Colorado have converged on the site, beginning a methodical process of unearthing and preserving the skeletons skeletons - with bones in the same position as they were when the ani-mal died — have been uncovered and say other dinosaur remains may be found. The findings also include the apparent skeleton of a dromaeosaur, a small meat-eating dinosaur with large curved claws.

The camptosaurs, reptiles that lived on the shoreline, walked on two legs but brought their forefeet to the ground for grazing. Scientists say they are much smaller than more commonly depicted brontosaurus.

The newly discovered fossils are believed to be several million years older than tracks made by giant dinosaurs at the Dinosaur Valley State Park near Glen Rose, east of Proctor Lake.

Branch, 20, who was digging at the site with a geology pick, said he first found some long fossils resembling human arm bones. He later found bones exposed at the surface of eroded gullies and contacted the Tarleton State department of physical sciences.

Subsequent excavation efforts revealed the skeletons.

State may renegotiate reforms of prison suit comes only a week before a fed

DALLAS (AP) - Gov. Mark White and members of the corrections board say they are having second thoughts about some things the state agreed to undertake in settling a long-running After Justice declared confinement in Texas prisons an unconprison lawsuit

White said Monday that the state may want to renegotiate some of the reforms it agreed to at the Texas Department of Corrections.

The governor said he was particularly concerned about agreements on how inmates are disciplined.

'We're not backing off any commitments to improving the quality of the prison, the food, the safety, any of that," White said.

Some members of the prison board have also been talking recently about trying to change some portions of the settlement.

Board member James Parsons, for example, said inmates who are in solitary confinement should be given less food than inmates in the general population. White did not specify what changes he would like to see.

bills could go up because Southwestern Bell sent more than 100 people to the French Riviera for a week. says Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle.

A company executive said the April 1984 trip was a reward for top Yellow Pages salesmen. Increased Yellow Pages ad sales can help keep local rates down, the executive said. Boyle, the state lawyer who represents ratepayers, was not convinced. "It looks like a nice boondoggle on an annual basis for some executives," he said Monday, the start of the second week of a Public Utility Commission hearing on Bell's rate hike request.

The company wants a $277 million annual increase. Boyle says there's fat to be cut and the company could stand a $124 million rate decrease.

'This is another indication of extravagance, of a failure to operate efficiently," he said of the trip.

"If this company is entitled to a rate increase it should show that it is spending wisely and not foolishly. and this is an indication it is not doing that," Boyle said after questioning Bell Texas Vice President

Boyle said any money spent on the trip comes out of Yellow Pages revenue that could be used to offset requested rate hikes.

A company publication touted the trip as a week of "experiencing the lifestyle of the rich and famous.

"This was one of the most luxurious trips I've ever been a part of," said Leonard Bagelman of Austin, a Bell employee quoted in the company publication. "It was one good thing after another.

Bell's top Texas official said the trip is routine in the business world. Texas Bell President Jim Adams called it "the type of trip often set up to motivate people to sell more.'

The more revenue they generate...the more revenue there is to impute to the ratepayers. So, in fact, the better and more successful that kind of a trip is in motivating a sales force, the more net revenue flows through to the bottom line," said Adams.

Neither Adams or Boyle had figures on how much the trip cost. A company publication showed that 43 winners, their spouses and guests" made the trip.

Transsexual loses election to American Legion post

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) - A transsexual Korean War veteran who lost a bid to lead her local American Legion post says the effort helped people to understand the issues and that she'll be "out the issues and that she if be out there fighting" next year. Bridgette Poi lost Monday, 23-13, to incumbent Joseph Ottaviano, who had predicted that he would win the battle of the "Legionnaire of the Year vs. the transsexual" in a landslide. Another candidate, John Cable, got 10 votes. Ms. Poi, 50, said after the results were announced, "I'm glad I've run because if nothing else it's brought out the issue of the transsexual. I hope that I've made people understand what it really means.

Ms. Poi, named Bobby before her operation at age 38, is a decorated Korean War veteran. She also is the post's senior vice president.

Many members of John Coleman Prince Post 9 said before the election that they would vote for Ms. Poi, praising her fund-raising efforts and legion events. Others, however, said they would never support her.

A few hours after the votes were tallied and the swarm of reporters had gone home, Ms. Poi sat quietly in a meeting room as veterans crowded around the bar to toast their new commander.

"Next year, I'll be out there fight-ing," she said. "Anyone can run away from an issue, but I'm not going to.'

Besides, Ms. Poi said, she has received 362 letters of support, including two marriage proposals, and more than 200 telephone calls. She also said she wasn't dis-

Louisiana's creationism law fails

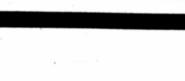

NEW ORLEANS (AP) --- Evolution is just as much a religious belief as creationism, says a former state senator whose legislation requiring their teaching side-by-side in public schools failed a constitutional test.

The nation's only law requiring the teaching of creationism along with evolution was struck down Monday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The law, enacted in 1981, was never enforced and was similar to an Arkansas law struck down in 1982

Attorney General William Guste said he would have to study the opinion before deciding whether to go on to the U.S. Supreme Court.

upheld and expanded on U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier's finding in January that the law was unconstitutional.

The act's intended effect is to discredit evolution by counterbalancing its teaching at every turn with the teaching of creationism, a reli-gious belief," the 5th Circuit said.

They say that creation science is a religious belief, but evolution also is a religious belief," former state Sen. Bill Keith said Monday night.

"It is the cardinal belief of Hindus, Buddhists, Unitarians and theological liberals," said Keith, a 50-year-old Baptist minister who was defeated in 1983 in his bid for re-election and now lives in Jefferson, Texas.

"The obvious question is - if the judiciary considers creation science a religious teaching, why is there no concern among the judiciary that evolution also could be categorized as a religious belief?"

Creationism is the theory that the Earth and everything on it was created all at once thousands of years ago, as outlined in the Bible's Book of Genesis.

The theory of evolution holds that life began billions of years ago and that man gradually developed from simpler forms.

The 5th Circuit said, "Not only does the Act fail to promote aca-demic freedom, it fails to promote creation science as a genuine academic interest. If primarily concerned with the advancement of creation science, the Act, it certainly appears to us, would have required its teaching irrespective of whether evolution was taught."

Martha Kegel, New Orleans director of the American Civil Liberties Union, which fought the law, was jubilant.

"This decision puts the Louisiana creationism law out of its four-year misery," she said. "With the decision today, the federal appeals court made it very clear, abundantly clear, that creationism is religion, that it is not science, and that the courts will not tolerate government promotion of religion in the science classroom.

Last week, the Louisiana House killed a bill that would have forbidden the state from paying any more for appeals.

State Rep. Peppi Bruneau, who handled the bill, said, "The 5th Circuit has done what the Legislature should have done.'

Lawyers for the state had hoped the 5th Circuit would order a full trial of the case, but the court responded with a 15-page opinion.

"Nothing in our opinion today should be taken to reflect adversely against creation-science, either as a religious belief or as a scientific the ory," the court said. "Rather, we seek to give effect to the First Amendment requirement that demands that no law be enacted ring any particular religious

The violence broke out in Kwa-Thema, about 30 miles east of Johannesburg, police headquarters in the capital of Pretoria said

A statement said five blacks were shot dead with birdshot and pistol fire when a crowd attacked and firebombed a black policeman's home, and two others were fatally wounded in a similar incident elsewhere in the township.

Anglican Bishop Simeon Nkoane, who lives in the township, said by telephone that police fired guns and tear gas in clashes with residents throughout the night. He also said police fired tear gas into a cinema where people were holding an allnight vigil for the four blacks who died in grenade explosions two weeks ago and were to be buried today.

"They have been shooting without aim, to intimidate and frighten people," said Nkoane. "It is raising the backs of the people up, which is very upsetting

This is maddening," said Nkoane, who has received threats and whose house has been firebombed.

Some 400 people, all but two of them blacks, have died in unrest in South Africa in the past 10 months.

Nkoane said he had tried to contact police to appeal for calm in advance of the funeral, which several thousand mourners were expected to attend.

I was just concerned that the police were going about pointing guns at people. We had shooting last night. Why were the police doing that?" he said. "The authorities just seem to go on the rampage."

PAGE 5A Fraud charges prompt Mexican unrest

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mexico (AP) - Five months after political vio-lence jolted this otherwise sleepy border city, charges of election fraud in recent elections once again have threatened to disturb the Leaders of the National Action Party, or PAN, have charged wide-spread electoral fraud in Sunday's congressional and local elections and predicted Monday that renewed violence could occur.

"There could be protests," said Alfredo Flores Rodriguez, PAN election coordinator

Unofficial tallies early Monday showed the Institutional Revolutionary Party ahead in the seat for the Chamber of Deputies, or lower house of congress, as well as in races for state and local offices.

But leaders of the conservative National Action Party Monday called the elections "dirty" and said they would not concede defeat even if the ruling party is declared the winner when official results are announced Sunday.

We won't concede. We won't accept that we lost because the elections were dirty," said Eleazar Cobos, PAN's candidate for the Chamber of Deputies who had claimed a 4-1 margin of victory going into the election.

About 90 percent of the polling places in the fourth federal congresssional district contained some type of irregularity, Cobos said. "I dont believe PAN lost the elections," Flores said. "I believe there was fraud."

Cobos, whose loss in last December's mayoral election led to charges of election fraud and violent protests, said that Sunday's irregularities ranged from threats on the lives of PAN supporters to ballot box stuffing.

"The party doesn't advocate violence. But what the people do we won't be responsible for," Cobos said.

Flores said PAN leaders would hold a rally in the town square Tuesday to explain upcoming strategy to supporters.

Cobos went into Sunday's national race for congress confident of a victory. On Saturday, local PAN chairman Gabriel Espinoza predicted Cobos would win by a 4-1 margin.

But as unofficial returns trickled in Sunday night, charges of fraud escalated and heavily armed soldiers from the Mexican army dashed from one polling place to the next quell-ing minor disturbances.

Last December following Cobos' narrow defeat in the race for mayor, charges of fraud led to violent protests in which one person was killed and several others were injured during two months of demonstrations that included the burning of the municipal building and a stampede of the international bridge.

About 100 Mexican soldiers brought in to monitor the current elections and their aftermath were expected to remain here until after the results were announced, officials said

U.S officials said Monday that they are prepared in the event of more violence.

"If there is any violence it will probably come Sunday when they announce the vote," said C.E. Cunningham, supervisor of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Eagle Pass. "The U.S. Border Patrol is prepared just in case."

"We will go the legal route first and present our findings (of fraud) to the election commission," Flores said Monday.

"With the documentation we have we will ask that the election be nullified," he said.

Cobos said the party has 72 hours to present its complaints to the election committee.

We're hoping that once our findings are presented we will be shown to be the winners. We will use people and legal channels to present our complaint."

PRI's congressional candidate said he would not declare himself the winner until the official vote has been tallied.

"I can assure you that the elections were clean," said Jimenez, who claimed PRI won by a "vast majority

WORLD IN BRIEF

Refugees pour over Costa Rican border

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) - A rising tide of refugees from wartorn and economically shattered Nicaragua is putting enormous social and economic strains on neighboring Costa Rica. "What we're facing is a potential economic crisis," Eduardo Lizano, Costa Rica's central bank president, said in a recent interview

The government estimates that as many as 500 Nicaraguans cross the border into Costa Rica every day, some seeking legal refugee status but most quietly blending into society as undocumented aliens.

"There has never been such a massive number of refugees enter-ing Costa Rica, even in the last days of the Somoza regime," said Interior Minister Enrique Obregon.

He referred to dictator Anastasio Somoza, whose overthrow by Sandinista guerrillas in 1979 ushered in a leftist regime in Nicaragua and a new round of civil war, this time between the government and U.S.supported rebels known as Contras.

Obregon estimated that 250,000 Nicaraguans are living in Costa Rica, only about 20,000 of them legally, and says he expects the number to double in the next two years.

Carter views summit

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - Former President Jimmy Carter said Monday the November summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will be "beneficial," but does not signify a return to detente. Carter also praised Reagan's han-dling of the TWA hijack crisis and urged him to "use every resource" to secure the release of seven other Americans who are missing after being kidnapped in Lebanon in separate incidents.

In an interview, Carter, who met with the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in 1979 in the last U.S.-Soviet summit, said a top-level meeting would be good "symbolically ... even if it's just a getacquainted session."

"I think many people in the world will breath a sigh of relief just to see the two leaders shaking hands and smiling at the cameras and knowing that they at least are having a conversation," Carter said. "It would be beneficial thing."

Secular Israelis regard the mea sure as one more example of religious coercion and an infringement on civil liberties that threatens the fragile status quo between the religious minority and the secular majority.

All the Fridays dressed in Western garb. The faces of men covered with beards. Looking at all the art, all the crafts. Cowchip throwing. It was all fun. But the memories aren't all that will be around to remind Midlanders of the Centennial celebration in years to come. The focal point around which a majority of the week's Centennial events were centered - Centennial Plaza — will be around for decades in the future and will continue to make Midland's downtown business district an unusually beautiful and special place.

For years, bankers have insisted that "clearing" a deposited check – making sure there are funds to cover it in the bank account on which it was drawn - is a time-consuming process that can't be telescoped without shaking the foundations of the banking industry. The way the law stands now, the bankers are the only ones who can use the float legally. You'll recall the pious horror the banking industry expressed - not heard since the days of Bonnie and Clyde - when the brokerage firm of E.F. Hutton was caught floating checks on a systematic basis to get millions of dollars' worth of interest-free loans at the banks' expense.

A few perspicacious observers pointed out that the bankers' indignation was hypocritical, a self-serving exercise in outrage at the idea that a mere stockbroker had the effrontery to pirate the banking fraternity's exclusive swindling technique.

Such diverse politicians as Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., and Rep. Fernand St Germain, D-R.I., agree that it may be time to put an anchor on the bankers' float. St Germain cited these typical Footnote: The bankers claim they've got to be sure a deposited check is good - even if it's issued by the U.S. Treasury - to keep their customers from writing floods of bad checks.

UNDER THE LABEL: On March 27, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., displayed at a hearing a mislabeled bottle of Sta-Wite, a food antioxidant. The label failed to mention sodium bisulfite among the bottle's contents. The next day, federal inspectors visited the plant that packages and distributes Sta-Wite in Little Ferry, N.J. They reported that the labeling-line employees spoke only Spanish and were attempting to fit labels onto bottles that were too small, so part of the labels had been cut off. Later, 10 cases of the stuff were shipped out despite the inspectors' initials on them - an action attributed by the company attorney to an employee's "silliness." The company issued a nationwide recall order. . . .

Intellectuals frequently forget there are two worlds - one which exists only inside our heads and the other which exists independent of our consciousness. The world inside our heads has no rules. Anything goes. Anything is possible. The world outside our heads is governed by inflexible laws of nature and is finite and limited.

In the physical world, the first priority is survival. Faced with a mugger or an attacker, for example, theories of criminal behavior, not to mention religious and ethical theories of how people ought to relate to each other, are irrelevant.

The immediate priority is survival of one body under attack by another. If your children are starving, the immediate priority is food and it doesn't matter if it comes your way by a socialist or a capitalist system or even by robbery.

The principle applies on a global scale. American intellectuals, because most of us live lives insulated from physical difficulties, can become incredibly arrogant and intolerant, not to mention fatuous, superficial and on occasion downright stupid. We forget that morality is, in the final analysis, a luxury of the safe.

The problem of apartheid in South Africa, for example, is to us a theoretical exercise. We are not physically affected one way or the other. No matter what solution we propose in our arrogance, we do not have to live with the consequences of it. Apartheid for us exists only inside our heads. For South Africans, both black and white, it is a physical problem. Whatever is done

- amateur spy ring allegedly run by John Walker is said to have operated for 20 years but was detected only when his wife decided to turn him in. The leakage may have shifted the balance of the critical strategic tussle by which the American and Soviet navies strive to detect each other's missile-carrying submarines

The Walker story is not unique. More Americans are on trial for espionage than ever before. A Northrop employee is accused of trying to sell Stealth radar technology for $25,000. A former Army cryptographer sold what he knew for $131,000. A Hughes Aircraft employee traded information on radar systems for $110,000. What is the remedy?

Most of the ideas floating around Washington seem dubious. The House wants to restore the death penalty for spies in the armed forces and to use more lie-detector tests. But death is a barbaric penalty and lie detectors are little better than witchcraft. President Reagan advocates reducing the Soviet bloc's officials in America, as if driving accredited intelligence agents underground would make them easier to watch. The real solutions lie deeper.

Since security clearances are performed without charge, agencies and contractors request them in excess. The checkers are overburdened and precautions are laxly supervised. According to an internal Pentagon study, spying on 14,000 private contractors to the military is so easy that "a supermarket employee may encounter far more difficulty stealing a loaf of bread."

Next, reduce the number of secrets to be guarded, by inhibiting government's propensity to overclassify. The method of security checking also needs overhaul, in recognition that greed, not ideology, is the prevailing motive for espionage. Financial statements, examined annually, might give better clues to spies than intensive investigation of political opinions.

But leakage to spies is only one end of the problem of preserving technological superiority. The JAMES RESTON other is to insure that the Pentagon makes fast use of the superior technology available to it. Its procurement process is so cumbersome that weapons take a decade or more to reach the battlefield.

Despite its greater spending for defense, the administration's efforts to preserve superiority have been uneven. It has tried assiduously to keep civilian technology of military value out of Soviet hands. It has even tried to stem a supposed leakage of academic information by demanding that papers be withdrawn public scientific from conferences.

It's no mystery why the bankers cherish the clearance myth. When they can clear a deposited check in a matter of hours but make the customer wait 10 days to two weeks before he can write checks on his deposit, the banks get free use of the idle money for awhile. Multiplied by millions of checks and millions of days, this gives the bankers interestfree loans from their customers amounting to billions of dollars a year

The same is true of Israel's survival and the resolution of the Palestinian question. For us, it's just theory Do this or do that, we can easily say because if by doing this or that the blood begins to flow, it won't be our blood, it won't be our children who are killed, and it won't be our homes which are destroyed.

Simple decency demands that people not physically involved in a problem should refrain from offering unasked for advice, much less attempting to force other people to do what we think they should do. What arrogance to sit here in safety and proclaim that some peasant child in the jungles of Nicaragua must follow the Geneva Conventions. Especially is it unjust for politicians of a government which has never hesitated to kill women and children when it suited our purpose to do so and are fully prepared to do so in the future. The warheads on our submarines are aimed at Soviet civilians, not Soviet military targets.

What arrogance for some well-fed American ideologue to tell a black South African he must lose his job in order to advance the cause of racial justice. Only the man on the ground in South Africa has the right to make that decision.

Though I frequently doubt it, I suppose intellectuals can serve a useful purpose — but only if they remember there is a real world independent of the one between their ears. It is in that real world, finite, with limited resources, ruled by the iron laws of the universe, that the majority of mankind lives and struggles to survive.

'Imagine! Reorders in the middle of the summer," said Calvin Klein when he was told a fur-trimmed hand-knit sweater was selling briskly in Little Rock, Ark. The store had just telephoned his office to ask for more of the same style.

He should not be surprised. As the clearance sales of summer fashions take over, fall merchandise begins arriving, starting last month. The woman who buys a swimsuit to wear the Fourth of July may very well be attracted by a jacket or a coat to wear later on, when the leaves turn.

She may be influenced by an awareness that manufacturers frequently run out of colors and fabrics of popular styles and the jacket she admires now may not be available when she looks for it later. She may be planning a long summer vacation, with no time for shopping, and wants to be ready for the new season when it arrives. She may even be traveling to a cooler climate and toppers will be popular when the days grow nippy. They have been selling briskly. Short jackets, some stopping at the waist, also have been selling, probably as a reaction to last fall's emphasis on longer styles. And all kinds of sweaters are in demand, styles with thick cable stitches, elaborate flower patterns or even paisley motifs. What attracts early shoppers is the newness of a specific design or the fact that it looks different from clothes they already own.

Spurring the early purchases is the phenomenon known as trunk shows. The name dates from the time decades ago when salesmen took their sample cases around the country to show to store buyers. Today, the designer or his assistant and a good part of his staff are often invited by the store to stage a fashion show of an entire collection. They will take special orders on any of the styles. This process enables women to see everything a designer has made for a specific season. Stores rarely order all the styles in any given collection.

THE CURRENT ROUND of trunk shows has resulted in many sound clues to women's fashion preferences for the season ahead.

As far as skirts are concerned, both very long and very short are selling. Designers who showed both lengths have been surprised at the strength of the interest in shorter styles. Pants, of course, continue to winter coats, usually ankle length and in classic shapes.

WHAT IS BEING called a polo coat is in big demand at both Calvin Klein and Ralph Lauren. When Carole Lombard and other Hollywood superstars wore this casual cashmere coat with sunglasses in the 1930s, it always had a wraparound belt. The current version has a double row of buttons and a belt in back only, but it still has dash.

A leather-belted melton coat in cobalt blue, red and magenta is another basic shape at Calvin Klein, plus a classic chesterfield with a fly-front closing and black velvet collar. A slender red cavalry twill hacking coat, part of the emphasis on riding clothes, is important at Lauren.

The most important jacket at Calvin Klein is scarcely longer than waist length and closes with a single button. It is suggested that it be worn with high-waisted pleatedfront trousers. The popular furtrimmed sweater by Calvin Klein can also be worn with trousers or his basic skirt. It too has a high waistband, and a flaring hem that stops just above the ankles. The popular skirt at Lauren drapes to one side in wool or suede.

at most sportswear houses. Mary Ann Restivo has two popular evening styles, both in Angora with a lace ruffle at the neckline. Tapestry jackets, wool jersey chemises and a long skirt with godets at the hem are other early-selling styles at this house.

Among the sweaters selling at Anne Klein, acording to Louis Dell-'Olio, the designer, are those with Navajo or pony patterns as well as styles with diagonal ribbing. Sweaters, he says, are more important than blouses.

KNITS TURN UP in another manner in some of the top-selling styles here: They form cuffs at the waistline of leather pants with stirrups or short straight wool crepe or leather skirts.

Both long and short skirts are in demand at Miss Restivo's and Dell'Olio's companies.

"We get criticized when we don't have both," he said. "It seems the customer wants options."

"I believe there is a need for short and long hemlines," said Miss Restivo. "Some executive women feel they cannot wear long skirts on the job because they look too frivolous, but they like them when they're not working

From Staff and Wire Reports

Fair conditions will continue throughout the Permian Basin with a slight possibility of isolated thunderstorms this evening and late Wednesday afternoon, according to the National Weather Service.

Forecasters expect a low near 60 tonight with southeasterly winds at five to 10 mph. Temperatures will climb back to the 90-degree mark Wednesday as five to 10 mph variable winds breeze through the Midland area.

Monday's 93-degree high was 10 degrees below the record high of 103 set in 1964. This morning's low of 67 was 11 degrees above the 1979 record of 56.

STATE

A high-pressure area anchored over the northwest Gulf of Mexico pushed low clouds into South Central Texas and the Coastal Bend today, and forecasters predicted rainfall from the tropical moisture. Scattered high clouds were visible elsewhere, except for clear skies across northwestern sections of the state.

Winds were mostly southerly at about 10 mph across most sections. Early morning lows ranged from 59 at Marfa to 83 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station. Lows were expected to dip into Drenching thunderstorms prompted flood watches in Pennsylvania today and rain clouds dotted the nation from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast after lightning killed one man and hospitalized two other people in New Jersey. Showers and thunderstorms stretched from the lower Great Lakes across the upper Ohio Valley 32 to the mid-Atlantic Coast and were scattered across the upper and middle Mississippi Valley and central High Plains. The northern Rockies 07 had isolated showers and thunderstorms.

Flash flood watches were issued in west central and southwest Pennsylvania because of heavy thunderstorms.

Strong thunderstorms rumbled across northwest Pennsylvania, pelting western Erie County with golfball-sized hail, the National Weather Service said.

Clear skies prevailed from the Southeast to the southern Plains.

Landry says White has Cowboys' quarterback job

DALLAS (AP) — Returning to his office after a month's vacation, Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said he is leaning toward Danny White as his opening-night starting quarterback, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

Landry said Monday that Gary Hogeboom still is in the running for the starting assignment, but that White will have to falter for Hogeboom to move up. "He's our quarterback," Landry said of White. "He's got the ball. He is going to play until he proves he can't do the job the way I want him to.

"He (White) has got to play poorly (before he loses the job). How poorly? I can't tell you. If in my eyes he's performing as well as he can and the failure is someplace else, l'm not going to penalize him. I'm going to make a decision based on what's best for the team.

Landry is favoring the 33-year-old White over the 26-year-old Hogeboom, he said, because he detects a difference in the way White is perceived by his teammates.

Last year at this time, Cowboys players favored Hogeboom and were down on White for a variety of reasons: White's anti-union stance in the 1982 strike, his reluctance to pal around with his teammates, and an arm that isn't as strong as Hogeboom's.

"It wasn't Danny's ability last year, it was the team and how they felt. The climate was not right, so I made a change," Landry told the newspaper.

We had a problem with morale. We needed solid team unity. So we went with Gary and won the first game. We probably would have won more if our receivers would have stayed healthy.

Then last year he (White) re-established his relationship with the team, and there's a good feeling. If he doesn't make it this year the way we hope he will, it won't be because the team isn't behind him. It will be because he failed on his own. This year our theme is 'Get the job done.' If you get the job done, it's OK

"Now there's nothing to prevent Danny from playing well. Last year I didn't think he could do it. Now I do. It's just a feel I have."

Hogeboom was a surprise first-game starter last season who later lost, regained, then lost the position to White again.

Hogeboom's greatest downfalls were his inexperience and a tendency to force the ball into tight spots, leading to interceptions and incompletions

Landry said he hopes Hogeboom responds positively to the situation.

'It's competitive all the way," Landry said. "Danny knows he's got to work to hold it, and if I thought Gary could do a better job, then I'd switch." Landry said he anticipates keeping both quarterbacks. After last season he had indicated the starting job would be decided in training camp, with the loser likely to be traded.

NFL stars to protest low salaries

CHICAGO (AP) - Some of the National Football League's top stars, including Ron Jaworski, Steve Bartkowski and Dan Hampton, may miss training camp to protest low salaries following a "historic" meeting by a group of player agents.

Frank Murtha, a Chicago agent, said the players would be protesting an attempt by NFL team owners to roll back salaries to 1983 levels.

About 30 agents, representing some of the NFL's top players, met at a Chicago hotel Monday to plan strategy for countering the salary slide. "We concluded our meeting with a unified position that we are not going to accept the rollback in salaries that management is proposing," said Murtha. "We had a historic meeting.

Murtha said the agents are finding a lot of esistance this year as they negotiate contracts for rookies and veterans.

He said there are 127 NFL veterans among the 28 clubs who are, or will soon be, free agents, and NFL rules prohibit them from reporting to camp if they don't have a contract.

"Until management makes reasonable salary proposals, our clients are not going to sign contracts," he said.

Pat Sullivan, General Manager of the New for all the veterans whose contracts are coming England Patriots, indicated in an interview with up. ABC Radio Sports that a mass holdout by players would not only benefit the agents but also might prove damaging to many players' careers.

"Really, it indicates very graphically whose interests are being served," Sullivan said. "I think if players don't show up for training camp - this market is very competitive - players risk a chance of losing their jobs. I think that just shows where the agents' interests lie.'

Most clubs open training camps in mid-July. Murtha, the group's spokesman, said the meeting, which lasted for more than six hours, included all of the agents representing more than 20 of the NFL's first-round picks.

They discussed "what we as a group need to do negotiate better contracts," he said.

to negotiate better contracts," he said. "There is a widespread attempt (by manage-ment) to roll back salaries, on the average, to 1983 levels," said Murtha, adding that salary offers are running about 40 percent less than a year ago. Murtha said the NFL owners were trying to "hold the line on salaries for all 336 newcomers, (and) they are trying to reduce salary escalations

At this point only 69 of the 336 college players drafted in April have signed contracts for the upcoming season, and just three were chosen on the opening round. One year ago 194 players, including 13 first-round picks, had inked contracts.

NFL owners have embarked on a new era of austerity because of the sport's changing eco-nomic climate, brought about in large measure by the United States Football League's lack of competition for talent this year. For two years the USFL competed strongly for the top talent available, but chose to refrain this year. Few layers picked in April's draft had substantial offers from the USFL to consider.

Another factor that now benefits NFL owners is the recent decision to reduce squad sizes from 49 players to 45, a move that will eliminate 112 jobs and save each franchise an estimated $1 million, according to the agents' calculations.

Padres can't spell relief

San Diego looking for answer

By PHIL COLLIER

Copley News Service

CHICAGO - Last winter, the San Diego Padres traded for LaMarr Hoyt, currently a winner of nine straight games, because of ineffective starting pitching that killed them in the World Series last fall.

Now the National League champions are so concerned about their lack of relief pitching depth that they're about to do something about it

General manager Jack McKeon, rebuffed so far in his efforts to trade for veteran Pittsburgh left-hander John Candelaria, will arrive from San Diego this (Tuesday) afternoon to confer with Manager Dick Williams.

It's believed the Padres' most logical first step will be to bring up Roy Lee Jackson, a veteran right-hander they assigned to their Las Vegas farm club after acquiring him 12 days ago in the trade that sent outcast second baseman Alan Wiggins to Baltimore.

Jackson, 31, had a 24-21 record and 30 saves in four seasons with Toronto before turning free agent last winter and signing with the Orioles. Assigned to their Rochester farm club, he had a 1-1 record, two saves and a 3.04 earned run average in the International League.

JACKSON HAS allowed no walks, three hits and one run in the six innings of his first three outings with Las Vegas, where he has a 1-0 record and a 1.59 ERA.

Pittsburgh general manager Joe Brown said by phone that the Padres have offered several young prospects for Candelaria, who has asked the Pirates to trade him.

"We're still seeking the proper renumeration," Brown said. "We've had a number of offers, but we're not really close on anything. Several teams have dropped out."

Brown said he expected to confer with Dodgers general manager Al Campanis Monday night before the Pirates opened a series against Los Angeles. The Dodgers are without a left-handed short reliever since releasing Steve Howe. They're also looking for a third baseman and may be interested in Pittsburgh veteran Bill Madlock

The Padres, who began the second half of their 162game season here Monday afternoon, have a comfortable four-game lead in the NL West. However, it bothers McKeon and Williams that the team is so dependent on Goose Gossage, who has 17 of the Padres' 22 relief pitching saves.

Luis DeLeon (0-3 record, two saves), Craig Lefferts (4-4 record, one save) and Tim Stoddard (1-3 record, one save) have a combined 5-10 record and four saves. Between them, they have an inflated 4.02 earned run average

WILLIAMS APPEARS to have lost confidence in DeLeon and Lefferts, but is exhibiting increased reliance in Stoddard. The 6-foot-7 right-hander hurled 3 and two-thirds scoreless innings Monday to gain credit for an 84 victory over the Cubs. Last year, Lefferts, a former Midland Cub, had a 34 record, 10 saves and a 2.13 ERA with the Padres. Stoddard was 10-6 with seven saves with the Cubs.

Lefferts, one of the Padres' most pleasant surprises in 1984, was a 54 loser in 12 innings Friday night at Pittsburgh and dropped an 8-7 decision to the Pirates on Saturday after taking a 7-5 lead into the ninth inning.

DeLeon had arm problems last season and has fallen on hard times since 1982-83, when he combined for 15 victories, 11 losses and 28 saves. Relegated to Williams' doghouse earlier this season, the Puerto Rican has given up six homers in his first 31 and two-thirds innings and has made only three appearances in the last 23 days. The Padres have been following the progress of 24-year-old Las Vegas reliever Gene Walter, a reliever who has bridged the chasm between Class A and Class AAA in one season. Particularly effective against left-handed hitters, Walter is considered only to need better command of his pitches to make it to the big leagues.

Miller grasps for swing

Record earnings don't show flaw

By GORDON S. WHITE

New York Times News Service

Despite four victories so far this year, including the Nabisco Dinah Shore Tournament, and a Ladies Professional Golf Association one-year earnings record of $318,250, with more to come, Alice Miller still does not whack the golf ball as well as she can, according to her teacher, Ed Oldfield. Miller agrees. That is one reason why the 5-foot-10-inch Californian was at the Glenview Country Club in Illinois recently taking some refresher lessons from Oldfield, the head pro at that course

The 29-year-old Miller once felt she had no chance to succeed as a professional golfer. She is one example of how Oldfield's program for rebuilding a player's game can pay off even after that game has reached the depths of aimless, wild swinging. Another player who has gradually improved under Oldfield is Betsy King, LPGA's top money-winner in 1984. Miller and King will tee off in the 40th U.S. Women's the Open Championship at Baltusrol Golf Club's Upper Course in Springfield, N.J., Thursday. They are among the favorites to win this event, the third of four major events in women's golf for 1985. The Nabisco Dinah Shore; the LPGA Championship, won by Nancy Lopez; and the du Maurier Classic later this month in Montreal are the other major tourneys. Less than eight years ago Miller was ready to give up golf. And more recently, there were other moments of doubt before she gained her first victory on the tour - in 1983. That was her sixth season in the LPGA. Now she travels the tour in her own big, new live-in recreational van, a luxury she can afford and a way of living she prefers to the drudgery of living in motel rooms week after week.

"I THINK I was one who needed to hit rock bottom in order to know I had to rebuild my swing," Miller said

She reached that depth during her senior year at Arizona State (1977-78). She had been a member of the Sun Devils' national women's golf championship team when she was a freshman in 1975. She played No. 1 on the team as a junior and couldn't make the squad as a senior.

"I was hitting them sideways by then," Miller said. "I wanted to be on the tour. But I didn't feel I could make it and even when I started out in 1978 I didn't believe I could do it. I just felt I'd give it a shot and work hard. I might not be the best player but it was what I wanted to Miller, from Marysville, Calif., took up golf at 13. "I couldn't play football and baseball and such with the boys anymore because they were going into organized team sports where girls weren't allowed. A smattering of local amateur success and the scholarship to Arizona State gave her hope for a pro career. Soon came the years of disappointing performance. "One day I could shoot 72 and then suddenly I couldn't break 80," Miller said. Finally it all began to come together, and in 1981 she was somewhat satisfied with her progress, with $48,779 in earnings "That was the year of the big change, when things began to show results," Miller said. "It was a successful continuation of my work. I had turned my first profit on the tour in 1961 when I at least covered expenses. I had said I would give myself three years out on tour and see where I was. That was the third year.

"I hadn't won yet. But I had been so erratic for so long that consistency was a goal in itself and I found some in 1981."

Eventually the first victory came in 1983 at the West Virginia Classic. There were two triumphs last year, but an eye infection interfered with her play.

Asked why some tour golfers find immediate success and others take years before hitting that rich pay dirt, Oldfield said, "Some are good athletes and they by happenstance start off with a good golf swing. But then you can't say somebody like Nancy Lopez has a good golf swing. She is strong, a good athlete and has a marvelous touch.

"Patty Sheehan is another natural as are JoAnne Carner and Pat Bradley. They are all good athletes and born with a sense of touch.

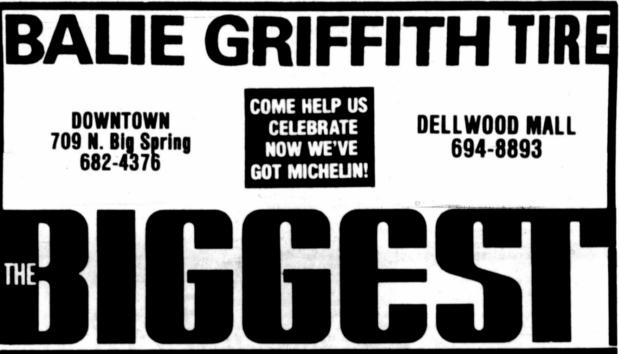

"Others like Alice are born with the same physical talents, but they just did not stumble upon the right technique or swing for them. As a result their swings got worse as they went along. "Alice has great physical ability. She's strong with good coordination, a good mind and she concentrates well. She had all the attributes to be a winner but had such poor mechanics that her coordination couldn't overcome the margin of error in her golf swing."

At that stage of her game Oldfield took over. He began to teach Miller at Phoenix in the winter of 1978. Oldfield, 51, tutors many of the women's tour golfers.

"From where Alice started, it was a gradual process of making changes," Oldfield said. "First there is one change and then you go on to the next change. Meanwhile, you have to teach them to chip and putt and get out of sand traps. Then on again to the next step.

"When I knew her first, Alice Miller was getting worse all the time. It was her last year in college and she was bad. Now she has no weakness

Pressure awaits try at

By PHIL ROGERS

Mike Boddicker looked terrible. His face was ashen, out of the race, it's awful. There's a lot of pressure, and as though he had not been outside since before Jim nobody can help you out." Palmer began posing in underwear. His eyes were ringed with black circles, as though he was looking at years old. The best hitters in baseball only occasionally the world from inside two small caverns. He was not a pretty sight.

Boddicker's temperament wasn't peaches and cream, either. His patience was zero. He avoided reporters. He naive that I didn't know what winning 20 games was for snapped at teammates. He became the resident hermit a pitcher. It is the ultimate for a season," said Blue, who in the Baltimore Orioles clubhouse.

Pressure of a pennant race?

in the American League East, 20 games behind the Detroit Tigers

What preyed on Boddicker was worse than trying to pitch the Orioles into the playoffs. Much worse. He had won 19 games and was trying to become a 20-game winner for the first time - on a team that was going nowhere Boddicker finally acted so strangely that trainer Ralph Salvon thought his problem might be medical.

Ralph came to me and asked what was wrong with Mike," teammate Scott McGregor said. "He said he had no idea. I said, 'That's because you've never pitched for

"I was a wreck," Boddicker said. "I got really nervous, so nervous I was worn out," Boddicker said. "It affected me, affected my pitching."

McGregor, himself a former 20-game winner, understood the anguish a pitcher can experience on the fringe of that breakthrough.

Especially these days.

It does not take long to call roll of all the pitchers who have won 20 games in any of the last three seasons. There were fewer 20-game winners between 1982 and 1984 than in any three-year period in the history of the major leagues.

Steve Carlton went 23-11 in 1982. Jack Morris went 20-13 in 1983. Ron Guidry went 21-9 in 1983. Rich Dotson went 22-7 in 1983. LaMarr Hoyt went 24-10 in 1983. Joaquin Andujar went 20-14 in 1984.

Boddicker got his 20, too, beating the Boston Red Sox on the next to last day of the season to finish the '84 season 20-11.

What a relief.

"It's a great accomplishment," Boddicker said. "It is so tough. There's nothing anybody can do for you. You have to do it yourself. It's not like trying to win the division or playing in the World Series. You can be part of a team then. Your teammates can help you out. But when you're trying to win 20, especially when you're Vida Blue didn't understand that in 1971. He was 22 caught up to his fastball. He was breezing - all the way to a 24-8 season with a 1.82 ERA.

"The first time I did it, in '71, I was so young and had three 20-win seasons with the Oakland A's. "The other two years I realized what was happening. You Forget it. At the time, the Orioles were in fifth place start to run out of season. You don't have that many more attempts to do it. Hopefully you get it the first shot. If not, oh, no.

"I don't know why it's so tough. It just is," Boddicker said. "I wasn't pitching 20 years ago, so I don't know what it was like then, but it's tough now. The toughest thing I've ever done.

One mark of the degree of difficulty involved in winning 20 games in the 1980s is that it's the toughest thing Fernando Valenzuela has never done. Despite a career ERA of 3.01 and an average of 35 starts between 1982 and '84, Valenzuela fell short each year.

Twenty-game winners were once a staple of the World Series. Not any more. There hasn't been a single one in the Series since 1980.

Starting pitchers have hardly broken out the party hats just yet, but - barring a players' strike or too much second-half slippage — there's a good chance that more than a couple will break out the party hats at the end of the season. It could be a boom year for 20-game winners. At least given the 1980s standard, 1985 could be a boom year.

San Diego's Andy Hawkins' 11-1 start got the most attention, but he was hardly the only starter to make a strong showing in the first three months of the season. Andujar, Dwight Gooden, Mario Soto, Rick Mahler, Danny Cox and Hoyt have gotten off to starts that give them a chance to win 20 games in the National League.

In the AL, Dennis Boyd, Petry and Morris have decent shots at winning 20. Hawkins may be the most interesting to follow. His major-league record was 16-21 before this season. How might he react to the pressure of going for No. 20? "How would I know," Hawkins said. "I've never won more than eight before.

tee in case some players decide to sit out a year," said Murtha, "And we're going to discuss antitrust litigation as well. We haven't decided to sue. Right now, we're just going to dis-sport," Modell told ABC Radio Sports. "On one hand, we have col-Sports. On one hand, we have con-lective bargaining with the union. Now we seem to have another col-lective bargaining with agents. "Last year, 1984, was a disaster," Modell continued. "We over-reacted to the competition of the U.S. Foot-to the competition of the U.S. Pool-ball League and we went sky-high on bonuses and salaries. I know we did in Cleveland, and other teams did the same thing... "We would like to get back to the (salary) level of 1983, which wasn't chopped liver either, I might add."

Cuss II." Murtha said the agents are con-vinced the NFL is a "very healthy business," pointing to the recent $00 million sale of the Dallas Cowboys. "Under those conditions, there are no traditional reasons for accepting

Baseball talks fail 29th time

NEW YORK (AP) - Don Fehr, the head of the major league baseball players union, and Lee MacPhail, chief negotiator for the club owners. met for more than two hours Monday, reviewed individual franchise financial stataments and scheduled another meeting for Wednesday. The owners and the union also said they would each conduct a separate "briefing" Tuesday. Neither side would say whether any progress toward a collective bargaining agreement was made during the 29th negotiating session Monday. "We are going through the routine of ana-lyzing financial information, which is a job that has to be done," MacPhail said.

Fehr once again questioned whether MacPhail and his aides are empowered by the owners to make a deal. "If they can't speak on behalf of people like (Atlanta Braves owner) Ted Turner, I don't know what they are doing here." Fehr said, "because they are supposed to make an agreement on behalf of Ted Turner that is going to bind Ted Turner. ... If they can't speak for him, they'd better let him come or get someone else who can.'

Fehr also insisted that the owners have yet to maker a specific proposal.

"If you say to the employees, 'We need conces-sions,' and if you say, 'We don't want to slow down the raises, we don't want to stop the rise in player salaries, all we want to do is slow it down,' we think it's then incumbent upon you to say what you want to slow it down from to what you want to slow it down to. Only then can you get a handle on it," Fehr said.

Boxing

Unbeaten Willie deWit, who is partially backed by Midland's Ben Tamney, will stage his sixth professional fight against Penn-sylvania's Earl Lewis (5-2-1) Thursday in a scheduled six-round heavyweight bout at the Trump Casino in Atlantic City. The fight is scheduled for a live broadcast over ESPN and is set for 8 p.m., CDT. DeWit, the Canadian who won the silver medal in last summer's Olympics, owns a 40-1 record. He is training in Burnet, Tex.

Lewis, 6-2, 210 pounds, previous-won the 1982 U.S. National Golden Gloves title as a light heavyweight and has since moved up into the heavyweight division. Lewis' main victory in his brief career is a decision over Mike Perkins in a six round bout on Oct. 9, 1984. Perkins (14-6-1) had previously fought to a draw on April 25, 1984, with Alex William-son of Miami. Williamson fought to a draw with deWit on the undercard of the Hagler-Hearns fight this past April 15.

DeWit, the former two-time World Amateur Heavyweight boxing champion, has been training for this fight for the past three weeks and plans to be ready for what will probably be his last six-round fight.

Mark Tessman, who trains deWit, said, "Anyone who wins a National Golden Gloves championship has proven that he can fight. We think Earl Lewis could be a dangerous opponent and expect a hard fought contest.

DeWit has already planned another fight for Houston on Aug. 7. An opponent for that fight has not been announced, but that fight should be lined up and announced on the week of July 15.

John has agreed to join the Oakland A's and will be in uniform Monday night, the team announced.

> John, 42, will work out in the A's bullpen, but won't be able to sign a contract with the team until certain details of his contract with the California Angels are resolved.

> "We might have it all worked out (with the Angels) by tonight," said A's spokesman Mickey Morabito. "Tommy's basically agreed. There's no problem between us and him.

John, who hasn't pitched in a month and probably won't pitch for the A's until after the All-Star break, must settle a salary and loan dispute with the Angels before signing the A's pact.

"I've still got a few years and a lot of wins left in me. I thought about taking the rest of the year off with pay, but I realized I still love to play baseball too much to quit," John said during an afternoon press conference

The A's and John contend that the Angels owe him his salary for another year and a half, through the 1986 season. John, who was released by the Angels last month, also has loans with the team reportedly totaling $200,000 to $300,000.

"He can't actually sign with us until he works out the loan situation," Morabito said. "There's a conflict of interest if a player is playing for one team while he owes money to another team.

"I should be ready to pitch by the All-Star break, or shortly thereafter," John said over the weekend from his home in Anaheim.

"The only thing standing between us are some administrative details that have to be worked out between the parties involved and the commissioner's office," A's executive vice president Sandy Alderson said.

John, who will be paid only a minimum salary of $40,000 by the A's, will be getting paid from three teams once he signs his new contract.

"Unfortunately, logic in baseball does not always prevail," he said. "The Yankees are paying me deferred money through 2003, and that's not a conflict of interest. The Angels are paying me this year and next year, and that's not a conflict of interest. But they say me having a loan is."

The 20-year veteran has been on five major league teams and has a career record of 257-201. He had a 2-4 record with a 4.70 earned run average when the Angels released him.

"I think I can still pitch, and pitch effectively," John said.

Asked whether he thought he would be used as starter or a reliever, John said, "It's up to them.

"I've pitched out of thew bullpen a few times but in my 21 years in baseball, my strength has been as a starter.'

"I feel I've pitched as well in my last six starts in California as I have in the last two or three years.'

Spend a Buck retirement set

NEW YORK (AP) - Spend a Buck's return to and future in racing are not definite, but plans for the Kentucky Derby winner's retirement are set

"An assessment will be made at the end of this year as to whether or not Spend a Buck will race next year," trainer Cam Gambolati said.

If the 3-year-old colt doesn't race after this year, he will be retired for breeding on William S. Farish's Lane's End Farm at Versailles, Ky. Farish has purchased a share of Spend a Buck for an undisclosed sum from owners Dennis and Linda Diaz, it was announced Monday.

'Hot Rod' trial date set

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A judge refused Monday to throw out sports bribery charges against John "Hot Rod" Williams and set an Aug. 5 trial date for the former Tulane University basketball star.

State District Judge Alvin Oser also ruled that Williams will be the first of five remaining defendants to be tried.

Former point guard David Dominique, 19, and student Gary Kranz, 21, will be tried together later, Oser said. Convicted bookie Roland Ruiz, 48, and alleged courier Craig Bourgeois, 23, will stand together in a third trial, Oser said. And Kranz will be tried separately on a separate cocaine possession count, he said. No dates were set for the other three trials. A videotaped statement made by Williams after his arrest could harm the chance of a fair trial for the other defendants, so the trials will be separated, Oser said on Monday.

Williams, 23, faces trial on two counts of sports bribery and three counts of conspiracy to commit brib-

He is now playing for the Rhode Island Gulls and made the all-star team of the U.S. Basketball League. He was a second-round draft choice of the Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association.

The allegations say five players conspired to shave points in three Tulane games last season and actually carried out the plot on two of the games - the ones against Memphis State and Southern Mississippi in February.

Three of the players are testifying for the prosecution under grants of immunity, and one in a plea bargain.

Defense lawyers had asked Oser to throw out the charges against the remaining defendants on several grounds, among them their contention that Edward F. "Ned" Kohnke IV was an unauthorized visitor in grand jury chambers while evidence was being presented

Oser said Kohnke, the man who broke the case, was acting as a volunteer assistant district attorney and was therefore legitimately in the grand jury chambers.

Dollar retreats

LONDON (AP) - The dollar retreated for a second straight day today because of widespread pessimism about the American economy. Gold prices were steady.

The dollar's troubles started last Friday, when the U.S. government reported unemployment in June unchanged at 7.3 percent, dealers said. They deepened Monday when the U.S. currency breached the important psycho-logical barrier of three West German marks. The break was followed by a wave of heavy selling.

Trading today was light, but dealers said pessimism about the strength of the U.S. economic recovery was spreading and there were fears for upcoming indices.

"The market is looking ahead to next week's revision of the flash Gross National Product estimate, and at this point everyone is assuming that the figure will be sharply revised downward," said a Frankfurt trader.

The second-quarter estimate, released last month, was that the U.S. economy had grown by 3.1 percent.

A principal beneficiary of the dollar's weakness was the British pound, underpinned by relatively high interest rates. Sterling gained another cent early and was quoted at $1.3493, its highest level since July 2 of last year. That compares with Monday's late rate of $1.3393. Other dollar rates at midmorn-

AUSTIN (AP) - The Railroad Commission has tightened its con-trol of the Panhandle Fields by voting to notify all operators that they must get their oil and gas produc-tion records up-to-date and in compliance with commission rules and state law.

The commission's decision Monday put operators on notice that they are not free to produce from any level they please.

Some viewed the commission's 3-0 vote as yet another effort to halt "white oil" production but commission general counsel Susan Cory said that was not the case.

Ms. Cory said, however, the order would apply to oil operators who produce gas from a gas-only zone, which is prohibited by commission rules and state law.

White oil operators chill vapors to liquid which they count as oil for purposes of classifying wells as an oil or gas well. A commission order prohibiting this practice is pending in state district court.

The Monday memo, which was recommended by the commission case," said legal examiner Patrick staff, would require information on Thompson. "They are not free, and all wells that have been reworked to be submitted to the oil and gas regulatory agency. "It has come to the attention of the commission that many wells have been completed in the Panhandle Fields in a manner which does not comply with current field rules," the memo said.

It noted that a 1938 commission special order stated that "no gas well or oil well shall be permitted to produce gas from different levels, sands or strata at the same time through the same string of casing." Also, the memo reminded operators that a 1941 special order had instructed operators that no oil well could produce more than 500,000 cubic feet of gas a day.

The memo ordered oil and gas operators to submit within 30 days any changes in production records on file. Hearings would be set in cases where a well appeared to be improperly completed.

"Some operators feel free to perforate (wells) anywhere in the Panhandle Field, and that is not the

we want to make that clear at the outset.'

Thompson said the order was proposed after reports of "recurring regulatory problems" in the 1.5 mil-lion-acre Panhandle Field, which has attracted much attention in recent months.

On Monday, Commissioner Jim Nugent asked, "If we've got rules out there we haven't enforced for the last 20 or 25 years, are you say-ing you're going to invoke them?" J.H. Morrow, director of the Oil and Gas Division, replied: "It's been a problem ... we've attempted to obtain compliance in the past, done a lot of testing and asked operators to report well completion conditions, so possibly we have not enforced them but that's what we're trying to do now.

'Obviously, we haven't done as good a job as we would like to." Ms. Cory said, "I don't think it's so much a question of knowing of violations and choosing not to do anything about it, because we have continually - even as recently as 1977 - directed the operators as to what we thought the rules were and told them to stay in compliance with those rules.

'Most of the operators, from what we can tell, who have added or changed their interval open to production have not reported the changes to us."

George Singletary, senior technical examiner, underscored the value of the Panhandle Field by estimating its reserves at 1.37 billion barrels of crude oil and 5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

He acknowledged that as many as 10,000 Panhandle wells might be 25years-old or older, some with casing that might have corroded, which could give a false reading on production, and he added:

'I wouldn't be hesitant one minute to call a hearing to review all the rules and all of the special orders that apply to the Panhandle Field, and if nothing else, bring them up to date.'

Commission Chairman Buddy Temple said the commission vote puts it on record as saying the agency "wants information that we should have had all along, that has not been reported, and we want to know about it."

If there are violations, Temple said, the commission would take steps to correct them. "If we don't do that, why gather the information?

Don Boucher, a Borger attorney who represents Panhandle independents, said Railroad Commission staff members are "talking out of both sides of their mouth."

Commission examiners "truly believe there is a rule that says you can't produce from different strata,' according to Boucher.

He maintained the Railroad Commission adopted a rule in the 1930s that "clearly" allows production on different levels.

"They are saying if you have an oil well and you are drilling into another formation then you are illegal," Boucher told the Amarillo Globe-News. "It's downgrading the idea of a common reservoir."

Boucher said the commission and Commissioner Jim Nugent appear to be of different minds regarding field perforation. Commission examiners and some members apparently believe "the Panhandle independent producers are stealing oil from the field," Boucher said.

Pennzoil, Texaco trial awaiting court ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — Jury selection in a Pennzoil Co. lawsuit against Texaco Inc. was put on hold pending a ruling from a state appeals court on a Texaco motion to disqualify

The company is not asking that the $10.1 billion Texaco-Getty merger be dissolved, but it wants Texaco to pay $7 billion in actual damages and $7 billion in punitive damages for what Pennzoil calls "tortuous interference.

A ruling on was expected today on Texaco's appeal of a pretrial decision by state District Judge Anthony J.P. Farris. Farris had been asked to deny Texaco's request to disqualify Baker & Botts, the Houston law firm that is representing Pennzoil.

The measure is a blend of business leaders' expectations about the future and their appraisal of current economic conditions, based on responses from about 1,500 U.S. chief executives from all types and sizes of companies.

Fed may lower interest rates today in meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) - Interest rates, which have been headed down for most of the year, are likely to fall farther in coming weeks, many financial analysts are predicting. Their forecast is based on a belief that the Federal Reserve Board will soon ease credit conditions further in an effort to spark a rebound in the depressed industrial sector of the U.S. economy

The central bank's policy-making arm, the Federal Open Market Committee, planned to meet today and Wednesday to plot monetary strategy for the coming months.

While the deliberations take place behind closed doors, many analysts who monitor the Fed's activities were predicting the central bank would vote for actions to push interest rates lower in an effort to insure that the economy does not tumble into a recession.

The central bank has engaged in one round of looser policy already this year in an effort to perk up an anemic economy. That effort resulted in a drop of about 2 percentage points in a variety of interest rates.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Labor Relations Board is celebrating its 50th anniversary amid a torrent of criticism from organized labor, directed primarily NLRB chairman Donald L. Dotson.

Dotson, a management attorney, has been a target of labor leaders almost from the day he took over the board as a Reagan appointee more than two years ago and began authoring decisions that overturned long-standing NLRB policies.

In some cases, Dotson's decisions favoring employers simply reversed rulings issued by former President Carter's appointees, but other opinions reversed policy of even Republican-dominated boards. A recent AFL-CIO study of 1,200 decisions issued in 1975-76, for example, revealed that the NLRB found employers guilty of unfair labor practice claims 84 per-cent of the time. The Dotson board in 1983-84, however, found them guilty just 51 percent of the time. On Monday, Dotson, smiling and soft-spoken, pre-

INVESTOR'S GUIDE Plan would tax investors, savers By BILL DOYLE

Q. In his pitch to get me to sign and send three postcards to Washington - handily addressed to my congressman and senators — my insurance agent claims the cash value of my life insurance policies will be taxed if Pres-ident Reagan's tax plan goes through as proposed.

I don't follow the agent's reasoning. I'm not so dumb as to buy whole, universal or variable life insurance, all of which have cash values. I have only term life insurance, which has no cash value - and is much less expensive. Can you give me any reason why I should mail those postcards? A. None at all. That agent goofed when he tried to get you in on his industry's grass roots lobbying act. The insur-ance business has been more successful with other customers. Congress has been deluged with more than a million pieces of mail on this greatly misunderstood portion of the Reagan tax plan. One section of the presi-

14% policies and annuities would not be affected. And there would be absolutely no tax impact on term life insurance policies such as you have which provide straight protection for your bene-1 16% 17 9% 4%+ % ficiary and have neither cash surrender nor loan values.

The inside buildup on most cash value policies results from interest earned on investments insurance companies make on behalf of policy holders. With some cash value policies, part is invested in mutual funds and the inside buildup comes from dividends and capital gains distributions. Either way, that money now accumulates tax free.

It's no secret that many people use cash value 2%- X policies and annuities as savings and investment 0%- % 17%- % 16 11-16 121%+ % vehicles, rather than as insurance protection. They avoid paying tax on the inside buildup until they withdraw the money

But folks who receive interest, dividends and 3%- % 8 10 38%+ % capital gains on other types of savings and invest-ments have to pay income tax as that money accumulates.

The Reagan proposal aims to take away what the U.S. Treasury Department calls an unfair tax advantage and treat more investors and savers equally.

The very thought of this has the insurance industry hopping mad. It will be awfully hard to sell new cash value policies and annuities if the inside buildup is taxed. One insurance executive I know says, "The dogs won't eat it." He means the customers won't buy. ...

You don't get any tax shelter on those premiums. Only the growth in the policy's cash value is deferred from income tax, until withdrawal time. For tax and retirement purposes, an IRA is far and away a better deal than a life insurance policy. ...

Q. On the advice of an account executive at a big brokerage firm, we invested $30,000 in a single premium deferred annuity with an insurance company. How can we find out if this is a sound operating company? A. A quick way is to look it up in Best's Life Insurance Reports, published annually by Alfred M. Best Co. You'll find that book in the ref-erence sections of most big public libraries. A note of caution must be added here. Best gave an A rating to insurance subsidiaries of Baldwin-United Corp. in 1982. That conglomerate went into bankruptcy in 1983. In that ongoing sorry saga, many annuity holders are still waiting to get their money.

STOCK CODES

All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by your broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.

To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember: The first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1, " "2" or "3" indičating that letter's position on its own key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 22 61"; "BX" = "22 92." Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

LOCAL Ector County sets in on budget

By FRANK TROMBLEY Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ector County commissioners Monday afternoon began a series of preliminary budget hearings with county department heads. Judge Jan Fisher said the county's overall goal this year will be to provide the maximum amount of services possible without increasing taxes.

The county's new fiscal services director, Tom Pace, said it appeared departmental budget requests amounted to about $25 million, but he and auditor Dan Ramirez were recommending a 1985-86 budget of slightly under $23 million.

Noting that the top expenditure in the county budget goes for salary and fringe benefits, Pace said the budget he and Ramirez were recommending included "no across-theboard pay increase."

Meeting in regular session Monday morning, commissioners cleared the way for the relocation of the county law library from the basement. where it was moved last December. to the third floor.

Estimates indicate cost of the move, with local attorneys helping move some 1,000 volumes, will be about $3,856.

selected MCI to provide long-dis-tance service for the county despite the fact the two other bidders, Transamerica Telecomunication Inc. and ClayDesta Communications, might have saved the county money initially.

Data Processing manager Mike Holden said that, while there would be an initial outlay for a direct line to Air Terminal if MCI was selected, he would recommend that company because it appeared to offer the best service for the county. Neither Clay-Desta nor TTI would have required any initial installation costs.

Commissioners also approved a budget amendment from District Attorney Eric Augesen in the amount of $3,000 to cover travel expenses for trials that have been transferred to other areas on changes of venue. Assistant District Attorney Preston Stevens, speaking for Augesen who was unable to attend Monday's session, said the travel budget had been depleted to slightly more than $300, which would not cover expenses for the trial of John Skelon in Fort Worth on charges of capital solicitation of murder or the San Angelo trial of Reginal Timothy O'Neill on charges of aggravated sexual assault.

Commissioners also finally

Police seek man, woman as material witnesses in murder

ODESSA - During the past nearly two and a half months, Ector County sheriff's investigators have doggedly sought clues in the murder of 27year-old Lois Ann Lloyd, whose body was found about five miles north of Andrews on April 23, about 10 days after she was discovered missing.

Clues in the investigation have been virtually non-existent, but wit-nesses have been found who have helped deputies produce composite pictures of a man and woman who were at Ms. Lloyd's mobile home, at 2915 Judy, the night before her burned-out car was found in Midland County.

According to Ector County sheriff's Lt. Jerry Davis, the man and woman are believed to have been among the few who saw Ms. Lloyd before she disappeared, about 9:30 p.m. April 12.

Davis said if the man and woman can be located they may be able to can be located they may be able to described as a dull, dark brown com- ite pictures were released late Monday evening. provide information concerning Ms. Llovd's activities before she was pact Chevrolet pickup truck, possiapparently killed at a pumpjack site bly a LUV-type. The man has dark, collar-length hair, a full beard, mustache and bushy eyebrows, and was wearing a baseball-type cap, with a blue bill and front panel and white mesh rear. He was wearing dirty looking blue jeans and a white

THE WOMAN IS believed to be 23 to 26 years old, of small build, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 120 to 130 pounds. Her hair is described as dark or black shoulderlength, pulled behind her ear on the left side. She is said to wear a "star" earring in her left ear and has high cheekbones. When seen at Ms. Lloyd's home, she was wearing blue jeans and a light-collared blouse described as baggy looking.

The man and woman were first seen at the Lloyd mobile home about 6 p.m., April 12. At the time they were there, witnesses said they saw them driving a white 1975-77

The man and woman depicted in the composite pictures produced from witness descriptions are sought as material witnesses in the investigation of the April murder of 27-year-old Lois Ann Lloyd, whose body was found April 23, in Andrews County. An autopsy revealed she had been severely beaten and run over by her car, in the bar ditch between Interstate 20 and the north service road, about 23, Ector County authorities two miles west of Loop 250 in Midland County.

AFTER THE FIRE was extinguished, Midland sheriff's deputies found fragments of skull, brain matter and hair in the trunk of the vehicle found to be registered to Ms. Llovd in Ector County.

The Midland sheriff's office notified Ector County authorities of the incident. About 10:30 that same morning, the sheriff's office received a call from an oilfield worker who had been checking a well site north of Interstate 20 and about a half mile east of FM 866 in far west Ector County. The man said he had found a quantity of blood and what appeared to be human body parts near the pumpjack at the well site.

Subsequent comparison of hair and blood samples, along with hair from a brush found at Ms. Lloyd's home, strongly indicated she had been the victim of foul play.

Ector and Midland sheriff's

JUST BEFORE NOON on April received a call from the Andrews County sheriff's office reporting a body found about five miles north of that city.

The body, badly decomposed after nearly 12 days of exposure to the elements, had been dumped onto a cactus bush, where it was found by oilfield workers.

Ector County authorities took custody of the body and sent it to the Dallas Forensic Institute for autopsy and identification. Within a few days the body was positively identi-fied as that of Ms. Lloyd from fingerprints and dental records.

Evidence gathered by sheriff's deputies in Midland and Ector counties indicate Ms. Lloyd was killed at the far west Ector County well site. According to sheriff's investigators, Ms. Lloyd was severely beaten before she was run over by her own car. Her skull is believed to have been crushed under the right front wheel of the vehicle, based on quantities of blood found on the vehicle's

Crying, caterwauling babies can't resist a single man

Crying babies like me. It's true.

Of course, living in Midland has something to do with it, as well. With all the young families trans-ferred here, I wouldn't hesitate to guess that Midland has the highest amount of babies per capita. You could count every last one of them, too, if you just followed me around for a day. Before you dismiss me as a heart-less grump, hear me out.

But when they started crying, I drew the line. The problem is, what do you do with a crying baby? If they were five years old, you could spank them. If they were 10, you could withhold their allowance. If they gave you a rough time at 16, you could just lock the garage door and pour on the homework. But, HOW do you quiet a red-faced, decibel-breaking brat who doesn't know that he's spoiling your $60 romantic dinner? Spanking is out. They wouldn't understand why they were being beaten against their will, and even I, champion crying-baby-avoider, have to concede that it's a bit cruel to redden the rear of a defenseless infant. Sure, there's all the normal things. Change the diaper, feed the for-mula, rock the baby, stop rocking

"Yes, dear," replies Pops. After swinging the kid into my cocktail with pendular movements for several minutes, he abandons the

New sewer excavation uncovers ancient oyster fossils

William H. Matthews III, head of the geology department at Lamar University, said the shells unearthed here are similar to those found near Winnie when crews dug a large "borrow pit" to obtain fill dirt for the construction of Interstate 10 in that area.

The find near Winnie attracted the attention of a number of paleontologists as well as Exxon Corp. The firm arranged for carbon 14 tests at a laboratory at Princeton. The tests showed the shells were about 50,000 years old.

Texas was under water several times," Matthews said, and at one point was completely submerged. Marine fossils found in the Austin area are as much as several million years old.

The newly found shells look just like recently formed shells. They were well-preserved during the 50,000 years they rested in the ground.

In the excavation near Winnie, which took place in 1960, geologists found 30 species of marine clams and oysters, 10 species of marine snails, coral, barnacles, worms, crabs, sponge and bones probably from a porpoise.

John R. Sands, a private investigator, ponders a question during an interview at his Commerce, Texas, office.

INVESTIGATOR

Sands and Vandiver were employed to track down and interview 250 people who had graduated from the school ten years earlier. He said that he and his partner managed to locate most of them.

"We had a captive audience with some who were now in prison," Sands said.

At the end of the court battle, the state of Texas was not found negligent in the closing of the school, Sands said.

Sands has had more than a decade of experience in law enforcement, working as a patrolman and detective with the Commerce police and as an investigator with the Greenville and Sulphur Springs district attorneys. He has a degree from East Texas State University in sociology with an emphasis in criminal justice, and he has attended an FBI course on fingerprinting. Since 1980, he has run Sandiver Investigations.

Sands and his partner handle many types of cases, including divorces, child custody, locating ous case? "In early 1984, I was employed to work on a murder case down in East Texas around Hawkins and Big Sandy," Sands said. "I was working for the attorney of a man being tried for murdering another man. Our client admitted to killing the other man but said it was in self-defense. I was trying to find out information about the character of the man killed to support my client's case.

Sands said he was having a hard time getting anyone to talk to him because of racial barriers and the attitudes of small town people when asked questions by strangers

In order to talk to some friends of the murdered man, Sands hired a known, local man who accompanied him to a bar where the friends hung out

Sands said he felt out of place in the surroundings. "I was nervous, but asked some of the murdered man's friends what kind of guy he was.

The manhunt by Texas Rangers and several sheriff's and police departments continued today for James Wesley Foote, 34, who escaped from the Johnson County Jail on Thursday.

Alvarado rancher and businessman Don McNiel said he has begun carrying a pistol, and his daughter Amy has been moved to a hiding place. Armed deputies have begun guarding the family

"I don't know how long it's going to last," said McNiel on Monday. 'The only saving grace this time (compared with the kidnapping) is that I know where everybody is but him

Amy McNiel's grandfather said Foote told family members after he was sentenced that he would get revenge against them.

"He's possibly armed himself, and I would consider him dangerous," said Don McNiel. "He could be within two miles of where I am right now. I'm a little apprehensive, knowing about him as I do."

"He's possibly armed himself, and barbed wire and fled into the woods would consider him dangerous," last Thursday He was sentenced in March to life said Don McNiel. "He could be within two miles of where I am right in prison for the girl's Jan. 11 kidnow. I'm a little apprehensive, knownapping. We've had no signs of him," said ing about him as I do.'

One of five people accused in the girl's kidnapping in January, Foote climbed over a fence topped with Officials said Gregory Lewis, who had worked at the facility since March 1984, was distracted by other inmates during Foote's escape. 'I have charged one other inmate with helping Mr. Foote escape,' Southerland said.

Southerland said his investigation revealed that Lewis let jail inmates in the exercise yard "con him into going over to get the water hose" so they could sprinkle themselves to cool off.

"Then they asked him to go back and turn the water on. He was out of their sight for no more than a minute," Southerland said.

"He felt real bad about the thing, he really did," he said.

The prisoner, Melvin Clark, 20, of Cleburne, was accused of giving Foote a boost to climb over the fence, he said

"Since West took over (at Darring-

The classification committee reviews security ratings throughout the 36,000-plus inmate prison system, assigning inmates to units with varying degrees of security. Guthrie said a member of the committee makes the same as a warden.

Assistant Warden Michael Wilson will be acting warden at Ramsey II until a replacement for Moore is chosen, Guthrie said.

"We carry the Polynesian portable spas," said Robert Watts, The Redwood and Water Company owner. This brand is top of the line and these spas are an investment that homeowners can take care of. And since they are portable, any of these spas can be easily stored indoors during the cold winter months; they're quite mobile. Or owners can leave them outside during the winter months by maintaining a very warm water temperature to avoid freezing and placing the protective cover on the spa when not in use." Watts explained that these tubs are beautifully self-contained in a redwood cabinet finish.

"They're so easy to set up that the average homeowner can complete the task with minimum instructions. We deliver and set up the spas though for those who would like," Watts continued.

The Redwood and Water Company is branching out in the spa accessory line also. The staff can custom build accessories entirely of top-grade redwood including: planter boxes, steps leading up to the spa and accent tables for drinks and snacks.

"Each of these accessories adds convenience for the spa user while adding to the investment," Watts said

The store owner emphasized that he urges potential portable spa owners to shop around and then come into The Redwood and Water Company

We have seven styles of spas available in six beautiful colors. If we don't have a particular style or color in stock, we can order one and have it here within four days," Watts continued.

The firm also carries top quality Toro sprinkler systems and parts.

Watts explained, "We can save deal of money."

The Tackle Shack now open offering fishing, camping equipment

The Tackle Shack, recently opened in Dellwood Mall, is operated with fishermen in mind. Whatever your fishing needs- rods, reels, camping equipment, lures, or most importantly someone who understands what you are talking aboutthis is the place to go.

Owner Jerry Rinehart has been fishing since he was a boy. He says that he saw a need in Midland for a store like The Tackle Shack- a place especially for fishermen.

As a fisherman, Jerry says that through the years he has experienced great frustration when trying to shop for equipment. "The main thing that always aggravated me about discount stores was nobody knew what I was talking about." Other stores, he says, always seemed to be over priced.

That's what prompted Jerry to leave the oilfield and open The Tackle Shack in the south wing of Dellwood Mall on April 15. "I want to offer people something that I know how hard it is to work for- I know how hard it is for the working man to be able to have fishing tackle or camping equipment."

Jerry has a nice selection of the popular Kunan rods, Berkley Lightening Rods, Diawa, Shimano, and Zebco rods. Along with this is a fine variety of major brand reels such as Garcia, Diawa, and Shimano. A general selection of fishing tackle is constantly being added to at The Tackle Shack. Hunting and fishing licenses can be purchased at The Tackle Shack.

There are plenty of tackle boxes, life preservers, heads up vests, fishing vests and bamboo poles from which to select. In addition, Jerry is delighted to sell old fishing equipment on consignment. You can even turn your rod and reels in at The Tackle Shack for repair.

Whether you are a serious fly fisherman or salt water fisherman or just a lazy day fisherman, Jerry will be glad to help you make the wisest selection possible. He says, "I don't think there's anything anywhere in this store that I haven't used- tried and tested." And in case there's something you may need that is not already in the store, Jerry says, "If I don't have it - I can get it." The Tackle Shack is also to serve as an information center for area fishermen. Jerry tries to keep up with what has been caught recently, where, on what, and at what depth. Plans are being made for a cork board to display area fishing and hunting pictures.

Fishermen and other campers will enjoy the camping equipment selec-tion at The Tackle Shack. Right now, Jerry has Outdoor Brand tents from The Best Pro Shop. Soon he hopes to have Coleman and Camel tents in stock. He does carry Coleman stoves, lanterns, and ice chests, along with Gott ice chests. Quality flashlights and batteries are available at this friendly shop.

The Tackle Shack caters to all area Bass Clubs. In fact, any Bass club member which presents a valid Bass Club membership card will receive a 10 percent discount.

Jerry says the remodeling of Dellwood Mall has been completed so "Come on in. Let's have a cup of coffee and talk fishing.'

The store is open Monday-Saturday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and until 9 p.m. on Thursday. "I accept Visa, Master-Card, American Express and I even take money.

Jerry Rinehart, owner of The Tackle Shack in the South wing of Dellwood Mall, has a good selection of fishing and camping equipment.

MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, TUES. JULY 9, 1985

In 1948 The Fitzgerald Company had a shop at 101 S. Colorado. M. J. Fitzgerald saw the opportunity which Midland afforded a skilled air conditioning dealer and knew it was time to leave the security of a pay-check from the Carrier Corporation back in Dallas and start his own business in West Texas.

Leonard "Runt" Evans, a previous acquaintance of Fitzgerald, moved to Midland to be the company's shop foreman soon after the business opened. Pedro Rangel and John Woody were two of the sheet metal workers during those days.

Fitzgerald took on a partner in 1949 and the company continued to grow. Then, during the winter of 1950-51 The Fitzgerald Company built a new shop at 2906 W. Wall, This shop is still in use today. However, the name has changed to Fitzgerald Weather-Mart. This change was made when Fitzgerald bought his partner out in 1956. One thing that has never changed at Fitzgerald's business is their dedication to quality and innovation. That's why Fitzgerald has been a Carrier dealer for 15 years. And that is also why Fitzgerald was asked to become a member of the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning Engineers, an honor held high in that professional field. Always anxious to offer his cusomers the latest, most innovative and efficient products, Fitzgerald is really excited about ground source heat pumps.

Carrier heat pumps, he explains, utilize "the world's most efficient solar collector - the earth." Fitzgerald maintains that Midlanders who have been depending on direct resistance heat and air conditioning can operate a heat pump for 50 percent of their current cost. Fitzgerald has watched the development of ground source heat pumps and suggests that Carrier offers the most queen won. Declarer cashed two more spade tricks, discarding a diamond from hand while West parted with two diamonds. Now declarer threw West on lead by cashing the ace of clubs and exiting with a club.

> West won and cashed his last club, and declarer had to find a crucial discard. He eventually decided to play West for a 2-3-3-5 distribution and discarded a diamond, blanking his king. West cashed two diamond tricks and the ace of hearts for down one.

The Rule of Restricted Choice applies here. Had West held A J 10 of hearts, he could have played either the jack or ten when the suit was first led. The fact that he plays one specific honor tends to deny that he has the other. Therefore, it was cor rect for South to bare his king of hearts and keep the guarded king of diamonds.

Texas beauties to sharpen their talents

FORT WORTH (AP) - Local beauty queens sporting talents from rope tricks to saxophone solos are preparing to compete for the title of Miss Texas

1985. The 64 contestants began gathering here this past weekend for rehearsals and poolside publicity photos. The pageant begins Wednesday at the Tar-rant County Convention Center and climaxes night Saturday when the new Miss Texas will be crowned. This year's pageant pits veterans against new-comers, blondes against brunettes and big-city girls against small-town beauties.

against small-town beauties.

Sonna Warvel, Miss Haltom-Richland Area, is competing for the third year in a row. Her talent is rope tricks, "like the ones that made Will Rogers famous."

Many of the contestants have musical talents. such as Lorna Pruitt, Miss Lake Worth Area, who will play 'Yakety Sax' on the saxophone.

The stakes are high.

The winner will make numerous public appearances and compete in the Miss America Pageant. Miss Texas is also eligible for college and university scholarships ranging from $500 to $3,000, said Richard Poe, the pageant's scholarship chairman.

NEW YORK (AP) - John Travolta may have danced his way to fame and fortune in "Satur-day Night Fever," but he was only acting and can't be sued by a man who claims the film was his life story, a court ruled.

Eugene "Tony" Robinson, a dancer at the Brook lyn discotheque that was the setting for the 1977 Travolta film, claims the movie and the 1976 magazine article it was based on are really about him.

But the Appellate Division of the state Supreme Court on Monday upheld a lower court's decision to drop Travolta from Robinson's $20 million suit.

State Supreme Court Justice Gerald Adler had ruled in 1983 that Robinson could not sue Travolta or the film's producer, Robert Stigwood.

Robinson is suing Paramount Pictures, New York magazine and the authors of the screenplay and magazine article.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pop artist Andy Warhol, famous for paintings of Campbell's soup cans and Brillo boxes, is taking on the Cincinnati Reds' Pete Rose as his next subject.

The Cincinnati Art Museum has commissioned Warhol to paint a portrait of the Reds' player-manager to be shown at the museum in September, to commemorate Rose's expected breaking of Ty Cobb's all-time record of 4,191 hits.

"Do I know who he is?" Rose asked Monday. "Sure, he's an artist... I haven't met him or anything. They just asked me to do it and I said I would."

Asked if he would retain the authority to keep the portrait from being unveiled if he didn't like it, Rose said, "No, I just put all my faith in War, Warhaw, Warhall? What is it? Oh, yeah, Warhol. I think he's a well-respected artist. Somebody told me he did Muhammed Ali."

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) Singer Billy Joel is donating the proceeds from his single "You're Only Human" to a teen-age suicide prevention program after the son of a friend killed himself

Joel's unsolicited contribution also was prompted by recent publicity surrounding the cluster of teen-age suicides in the suburbs north of New York City, said Alfred DelBello, the former New York lieutenant governor Youth Suicide Prevention.

Miss Texas contestants posing at a pool-side. press party in Fort Worth Monday are (from left) Miss Wayland Univ., Marca Ford; Miss Howard County, Ronda Fowler; Miss Lubbock, Leslie Chambers; and Miss West Texas, Rhonda Lewallen

"He said he was doing it because the teen-age son of a close businesss associate had committed suicide and he indicated he himself had considered it when he was a teen-ager," DelBello said of Joel's contribution Monday.

Nineteen people aged 13 to 20 have taken their lives in the area in the past 18 months.

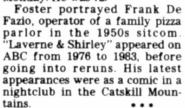

Joel, 34, did not want to comment on his action.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Screen giant Charlton Heston will star in his first TV series, ABC's "Dynasty II: The Colbys," network executives say.

The Academy Award-winning actor will play Jason Colby, patriarch of the California-based Colby family, in a spinoff of the highly successful prime-time soap "Dynasty" this fall, said executive producer Aaron Spelling. Heston is just back from directing and starring in "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial" on stage in London.

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) - Phil Foster, a comedian best known as the father of Laverne De Fazio on the television comedy "Laverne and Shirley," died Monday. He was 72.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal magistrate says actor Dan Haggerty, star of the "Grizzly Adams" TV series, has until October to file income tax returns and avoid a possible two-year prison sentence.

The tall, bearded 41-year-old Haggerty pleaded guilty Monday to two counts of failure to file returns on more than $500,000. It was part of an agreement in which two other counts were dropped.

Haggerty faces up to two years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

The actor was convicted in March of selling cocaine to undercover officers. He is free pending appeal of a 90-day jail sentence and three years' probation.

In 1948 Burl H. Self and John Mas-sey compiled the fatest calling card in the oil industry, otherwise known as the Permian Basin Oil Directory. That first directory consisted of 84 pages. (Its present size is 832 pages of text.)

With the boom of the industry increasing during that period, there was a definite demand for a personnel directory. Mr. Self's partner did not agree and sold his interest to Mr. Self the following year. Mr. Self's belief and determinatin to see his dream come true prompted him to continue the directory as a sideline. As directory work increased he As directory work increased he began working on the directory full time, and the TEX-OK-KAN Oil Directory was started in 1952. Mr. Self became one of the largest oil directory publishers in the world. Reagan labels terrorism 'acts of war

By TERENCE HUNT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Reagan says the United States is the target of "acts of war" in the form of terror-ism from five countries ruled by "the strangest collection of misfits, looney tunes and squalid criminals since the advent of the Third Reich."

Reagan singled out Iran, Libya, North Korea, Cuba and Nicaragua on Monday as members of a "confederation of terrorist states" that represent "a new, international version of Murder. Inc."

Without spelling out specific steps, the president declared, "the American people are not — I repeat, not — going to tolerate intimidation, terror and outright acts of its, looney tunes and squalid criminals since the advent of the Third Reich," Reagan said.

Reagan spoke before thousands of attorneys attending the annual convention of the American Bar Association. They gave him a standing ovation when he said Americans will always defend their country, and they laughed and applauded at his description of the leaders of the five outlaw states."

While mentioning the hijacking of TWA Flight 847 and the slaying of four Marines in El Salvador, Reagan did not announce any retailatory action or military steps being considered by the United States.

He said his purpose was to "simply state the facts about the nature of international terrorism and affirm America's will to resist it." Oddly, Reagan's list of countries did not match the list published by the State Department of states that support errorism. The State Department includes Syria and South Yemen, along with Iran, Libya and Cuba. It does not nclude North Korea and Nicaragua, as Reagan did.

While saying that his list was not complete, the president said, "I submit to you that the growth in terrorism in ecent years results from the increasing involvement of home."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan promised a week ago not to forget the seven kidnapped Americans still held in Lebanon.

But in his tough-talking, anti-terrorism speech Monday, he cited a dozen terrorist incidents without ever mentioning the victims sometimes referred to by relatives as "the forgotten seven.

And his spokesman shifted abruptly from talking about efforts to win freedom for the other seven to declining to talk about them at all.

"There are promises to be kept," Reagan reminded his listeners as he welcomed the former hostages from TWA Flight 847 back to the safety of American soil just one week ago.

Saying "there will be no forgetting" the murder of one of the American sailors aboard the plane, the president added: "Nor will we forget the seven Americans who were taken captive before you and who are captive still.... The homecoming won't be complete until all have come goal is to expel America from the world. "That is the real reason these terrorist nations are arm-ing, training and supporting attacks against this nation. And that is why we can be clear on one point: these terror-ist states are now engaged in acts of war against the gov-ernment and people of the United States. "And under international low" Roman added tion

"And under international law," Reagan added, "any state which is the victim of acts of war has the right to defend itself.'

Char-ley Goss, President, James Whitt, Secretary. So far, there have been no retaliatory strikes during the Reagan administration for the many terrorist actions directed against Americans. Reagan called for united action by "the community of civilized nations," and said, "We must act against the criminal menace of terrorism with the full weight of the law both domestic and international.

We will act to indict, apprehend, and prosecute those who commit the kind of atrocities the world has witnessed in recent weeks," the president said. "We can act together as free peoples who wish not to see our citizens kidnapped, or shot, or blown out of the skies - just as we acted together to rid the seas of piracy at the turn of the last century

He added, "We must act together or unilaterally if necessary to ensure that terrorists have no sanctuary - anywhere.

Reagan noted he has urged allied governments to close the Beirut International Airport, which the administration says has figured in 15 percent of the world's hijackings says has figured in to percent of the world's injucting since 1970. So far, the United States has failed to win firm backing from allies for the plan. In discussing sponsors of terrorism, Reagan said the

When the prospective jurors promised they could do that, Davis concluded, "That's all we can expect."

The battle between White and Davis was expected, since the judge last week rejected White's request to dismiss all charges due to extensive

For a chance to share a bit of Waring's music - first popularized in the 1920s - fans from as far away as Florida, Texas and Canada paid $195 to spend a week in dormitories on the ennsylvania State University campus for the fifth annual Fred Waring-Elderhostel music workshop

Waring died last July, and the Pennsylvanians have since disbanded.

'When I lived in New York I went to many of Fred Waring's broadcasts," said Helen Hertsch of Lancaster, whose family sent her to the first of two weeklong programs for her 81st birth-

NATION IN BRIEF

Stockpile sale planned

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government plans to sell $2.5 billion in surplus materials, part of a huge cache of strategically important substances that have been stockpiled in case of war, the White House nnounced.

In the Monday announcement, the White House claimed the Carter administration grossly overestimated the nation's need to stockpile such critical materials.

The report did not specify which materials would be declared surplus and sold off.

But an administration official, eaking on condition he not be dentified, said the plan would nclude the eventual sale of nearly 50 million troy ounces of silver now neld in reserve.

Watermelons destroyed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -Store owners in two states started smashing California watermelons as an agriculture official said he believed the illness of more than 200 people was caused by deliberate misuse of pesticides, not residue from old applications.

The destruction of melons in Cali-fornia and Idaho on Monday was ordered by the California Food and Agriculture Department after a rash of illnesses in Alaska, Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho and Brit-ish Columbia.
