Lawmakers, Reagan talk about budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. insisted today that President Reagan had abandoned a controversial freeze on Social Security benefits, despite claims by Republican leaders that talk of settling a long budget impasse may be premature.

Everybody agreed on both sides - the votes weren't out there to touch Social Security in any way, shape or form," O'Neill told report-

O'Neill made his remarks as House and Senate budget conferees gathered at the White House for a bargaining session with President Reagan designed to get the stalled talks moving again

Leaders of both parties emerged from a private meeting with Reagan at the White House late Tuesday claiming that progress was being made toward budget accord on the two main obstacles to agreement -Social Security benefits and defense

But Democrats present at the session had a different interpretation than Republicans of just how much progress had been made. Democratic leaders proclaimed that Social Security limits were now "off the table" in terms of assembling a compromise deficit-reduction plan.

But Senate Majority Leader was no decision to take anything off

"I didn't get the same message that he got," O'Neill said today. "Social Security...cost of living increases were absolutely off the Late Tuesday, Dole said a compromise without scaling back Social Security benefits was "an option," but that before it could be considered, budget negotiators would have to figure out how to come up with the $22 billion over three years that the Senate-passed Social Security freeze would have saved.

There was no mention of making up $22 billion," O'Neill insisted Still, Dole conceded that it was unlikely that a one-year freeze on Social Security benefits like the one in the budget approved by the Repubican-run Senate and endorsed by Reagan could ever win final congressional approval.

And he conceded for the first time that a final compromise dropping the Social Security freeze in exchange for other spending cuts was a distinct possiblity

He added that, while Social Security was not off the table, "it's on the

Dole said budget negotiators would have to look in other places to match the $22 billion that the Social Security freeze would save over the next three years — and said until such savings could be identified, it was too early to talk about a com-

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today, "It is obvious that there is an impasse. It will be difficult to get approval of a Social Security COLA freeze. However, we have got to find something to replace those savings.

The top-level session came only hours after Reagan's budget director, David Stockman, a major participant in the efforts to reach a budget compromise, announced his defense spending

Both budgets call for spending cuts that would reduce the nation's $200 billion deficit by some $56 billion next year — but the Senate ver-sion would include the Social Security freeze while allowing defense spending to rise with the rate of inflation.

The budget approved by the Democratic run House would protect Social Security increases while freezing defense spending at 1985

"Take-offs and landings looked real good to me," his father and flight instructor, 47-year-old Jim Koonce of Midland, told his son. Congratulations, son.

'Great. Glad. I'm proud," said his mother, Jeanie.

At the controlled airport, Jimmy soloed between flights of commercial, corporate and private aircraft. His parents and his girlfriend, Shelly Rumbaugh, 15, gave the student pilot a gift of aviation patches and a sky-blue T-shirt monogrammed with the Pilot's Prayer:

"Lose not thy airspeed lest the ground rise up and smite thee. He donned the T-shirt only after his dad, in the tradition of aviation,

'His tireless effort to bring fiscal discipline to the federal government and ensure economic stability for the country are deeply appreciated," the president added

Stockman's departure sometime this year had been widely assumed.

It is "something that's been in the works for a long time," said Edwin L. Dale Jr., Stockman's spokesman. "He had told them all over there (at the White House) that he would see (it) through one more budget cycle.' With the current congressional budget talks apparently heading for a compromise and the administration needing to begin preparations for the budget it will submit to Congress early next year, this appeared to be the easiest time for Stockman to announce his departure. Salomon Bros., a New York investment banking firm, said that Stockman will become a managing director Nov. 1 with responsibilities for corporate and governmental finance

What was termed a "more liberal" ordinance than what is already on the books for owners of recreational vehicles, boats and trailers was approved Tuesday by Midland City

Although some spokesmen for RV owners reluctantly agreed with the changes, other RV owners argued there should be no ordinance and they should be allowed to park their vehicles where they wish.

In the existing ordinance, RVs, boats and trailers more than 21 feet in length can't be parked in the front driveway. If longer than that, they can only be parked at the house four hours for loading and unload-vehicles, no matter what the length, vehicles, no matter what the length, to be parked in the driveway as long as they are 11 feet back from the curb, and longer vehicles can be parked in front for 48 hour-periods for loading and unloading. RV owners must obtain a 15-year permit from City Hall by September if they want to be allowed to park it in front. After 15 years, all RVs must be parked in the back yard or stored elsewhere.

Mayor G. Thane Akins said he was oncerned about the city code's consistency, since it doesn't allow for dump trucks or tractor-trailer rigs from being parked at one's home. "Why is it all right for an RV versus something that is someone's livelihood? It may be there only at night where an RV might be there

Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community develop-ment, said the approach for keeping dump trucks and eventually eliminating RVs from the front yard is based on the intent to keep the front yards open. In case of trouble, fire-fighters and police officers have easy access to the house.

Councilwoman Katie Heck said commercial vehicles have always been banned, and a committee on which she served tried to work out a compromise with the RV owners.

Players sit around the table where for 25 years, the men of Ben Arnold, Texas have played dominoes.

Domino shack hideout endures for 25 years

By ROBERT CADWALLADER Associated Press

BEN ARNOLD, Texas (AP) - The afternoon sun has chased away a thunderstorm, and now the only sound around Ben Arnold is that of dominoes being slapped on a wooden table at the town's most popular hangout.

It's an old, small shack built from the leftovers of a demolished house about 25 years ago, something to provide shelter for those wanting to play dominoes, chew tobacco and tell jokes with the boys now and

About a dozen men, mostly retired farmers from the Milam County community north of Cameron, are whiling away this afternoon in traditional style.

"Why don't you just pass and get it over with?" one snaps.

'Here, try and play this," responds the other, slamming a domino at the end of the ivory chain. Slam! The other plays a domino on it. "Give me 10." No, they're not mad. They just act gruff and impatient to spice up the game. Slamming the dominoes? Just a little spirit.

"Means the game's getting hot," explains Fred "Pie" Folschinsky, 64, one of the more outspoken and gruff members of the daily gathering. "We don't get mad — what for? We just argue and have fun, pass the time away. Then we go home and garden.'

He got his nickname for stealing an apple pie from his own mother when he was 5 years old.

No criminal records here, though They don't even gamble in this place. Not that there's not an urge occasionally. It's just tradition, established by the founders of the shack to keep the womenfolk from worrying about losing the home-

"There's been more hell raised here than anywhere in the county, says Herman "Foots" Dorner, also 64. "But never has a nickel gone across this table. They decided long ago that there would be no drinking or gambling, because the women would get mad. There's been some drinking of late, but no gambling." Well, there was one time several years ago when Dorner and two friends put up a nickel apiece for a game. "But there wasn't 15 cents difference in our pocketbooks when we got through," Dorner assures.

One of his cohorts in the only recorded gambling incident there was O.S. "Spud" Collins, 80, the only surviving member of the domino addicts who built the domino shack in the early 1950s. (It has never been given a name that could be printed.)

Collins remembers when he and his friends played dominoes at a filling station nearby, probably not long after the game of dominoes was

Black history museum to grow

AUSTIN (AP) - A black neighborhood history museum, the first of it's kind in Texas, has its sights set on expanding under a proposed $4

Leaders of the George Washington Carver Museum in east Austin want to have the surrounding area declared a black cultural district with tax breaks for new businesses and artists.

"The plans are important because the city has made an informal commitment to the economic development of the east side, and this is one of the grandest opportunities it has to reach that objective," said Melvin Wade, a lecturer in Afro-American history at the University of Texas.

Carver curator Louis Hicks said expanding the museum would give it more space, personnel and equipment to preserve and exhibit artifacts from the history of black Aus-

"A lot of times, it's pretty impossible, for instance, to convince people to donate family photographs for exhibits," Hicks said. "They want to know that things are professionally handled and, now, we don't have the

The museum's current home is a small building constructed in 1926 as the city's first public library. The building was moved to its present location in 1933 at the request of members of the black community for a library of their own in the then-segregated city.

When a new library branch was built in 1980, the museum was created and, three years later, it became part of the city Parks and Recreation Department.

Wade said the museum is appropriate because Austin was an educational and cultural mecca for freed slaves in Texas. They founded six communities within the municipal boundaries from 1867 to 1894.

"To the best of my knowledge, there is nothing comparable to the Carver...in the South," Wade said of the 5-year-old museum. "The best examples elsewhere are in Cleveland, Ohio, and Philadelphia and there is a smaller version in Dallas."

"Black legislators, elected during the Reconstruction period, also took residence here after their terms expired," Wade said. "Blacks in Austin as well as blacks in Galveston were considered the most rogressive in the state. They stimu-ated the community's development In every way."

Military joins fighting western fires

Associated Press

Military helicopters hauled water and firefighters for a combined airground assault today on more than a thousand wildfires that are stretching resources to the limit in their march across more than 1 million acres of Western brush, timber and range.

Three more California counties were declared disaster areas Tuesday as flames forced thousands of people from their homes and authorities coordinating the attack on fires in 14 states considered asking for more military help.

Kay Grenke, whose family lives north of Rome, Ore., said flames drove thousands of grasshoppers onto her house and a shop building on Monday.

"The wind started blowing and brought that black cloud over, and it was just like the end of the world,"

Over 1,000 fires burned in the western United States and three Canadian provinces, authorities said. At least 484 burned in Arizona, California, Idaho, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Montana, Oregon, Utah and Washington, according to the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho. Other fires were either contained or controlled in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Wyoming.

As many as 4,500 people were eva-cuated Tuesday in northern California as flames burned tinder-dry brush and trees near 2,000 homes near Los Gatos. That fire added seven homes to the 150 already destroyed in recent firestorms.

About 1,400 people were eva-cuated from Canal Flats in southeastern British Columbia because five fires, which had charred 12,000 acres, circled the town, said Forests Ministry spokesman Ray Wormald.

More than 11,000 U.S. firefighters were stretched across thousands of miles of fireline, while in the Canadian provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba, where 380,000 acres have burned, at least 543 fires raged Tuesday, according to the Canadian forest service.

"Normally if Canada asked for help we would help them out. But they haven't asked and we're just about stretched to our limits," said Pauline McGinty, spokeswoman for the Interagency Fire Center, a coordinating agency for the nation's firefighting agencies.

One option is to ask for military assistance, so we're going to be thinking about that," said spokesman Jim Bishop. "We still have some manpower available, but we're stretched."

California National Guard spokesman Phil Jordan said some 360 Guard members were operating 13 Huey helicopters, three C-130 tankers, jeeps, other vehicles and radiotelephone links between camps in California and Montana.

More than 1,600 square miles of brush, range and timber land have burned in the western United States and Canada since late June, an area 33 percent larger than the state of Rhode Island.

Gov. George Deukmejian declared states of emergency Tuesday in Santa Clara, Santa Cruz and Monterey counties. San Diego, Los Angeles and San Luis Obispo counties already were on the list.

Six National Guard chopers shuttled fire crews around the growing blaze near Los Gatos, 60 miles south of San Francisco. Flames from what authorities said was a deliberately set fire consumed 14,000 acrees of brush, belching smoke over the Santa Cruz Mountains and destroying seven homes.

About 2,500 firefighters were on the lines as helicopters dumped water from the nearby Lexington set this fire," Manning said.

Reservoir, for which the fire has been named.

Eight fires remained out of control Tuesday in California, which has suffered more than a quarter of the U.S. burned acreage. Damage was expected to reach $50 million, auth-

Spotty evacuations continued Tuesday in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties because of a stubborn. 86.500-acre arson blaze 40 miles from President Reagan's mountaintop Rancho del Cielo. But gusts decreased, and the blaze was listed as 52 percent contained Tuesday night after 3,000 firefighters lit backfires.

A San Luis Obispo, Calif., fire that started July 1 was 90 percent contained Tuesday as nearly 2,000 firefighters worked to light backfires to burn 10,000 acres along scenic Highway 101 near Santa Margarita.

About 300 people, including Los Angeles Fire Chief Donald Manning, attended memorial services Tuesday for three people who died July 2 when an arson fire destroyed 48 homes in the Baldwin Hills section of Los Angeles.

"I would like to see the satisfaction of catching the individual who

After heavy lobbying by the National Rifle Association and allied gun owner and dealer groups, senators voted 79-15 for major revisions to the Gun Control Act of 1968, the nation's major gun control statute.

It was the first major gun control debate in the Senate in some 13 years, and the House has not fought over an omnibus gun law since the 1968 act was approved.

The current law bans sale of handguns by a dealer in one state to a purchaser from another, but the Senate-passed measure would allow the interstate sales in faceto-face transactions

Senators voted 69-26 to kill a motion by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would have retained the prohibition on crossstate sales.

By an equally impressive 71-23 vote, the Senate killed a motion by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, that would have installed a 14-day waiting period before a purchaser could take posession of his handgun.

In addition to those provisions, conservative senators and the gun lobby pushed through a large number of changes designed to eliminate red tape for licensed gun dealers and owners — and prevent their prosecution for unwitting recordkeeping errors.

Snyder, chief lobbyist for the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms, which claims a half-million members and supporters, said, "The eyes of tens of millions of American firearms owners will be focused on the U.S. House of Representatives, and particularly its leadership, to see if it too will come through for us."

Michael K. Beard, president of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns, called the Senate action "a day of shame," and said 'tainted blood money" of gun lobbyists "speaks louder than the cries of the victims of handgun violence."

Kennedy, in arguing for the prohibition of interstate handgun sales, said law enforcement organizations wanted the provision continued as a crime control measure.

"From a security perspective, the most important things are the usual - making sure that you vary your routes of travel, not sticking to set schedules, no frequenting outdoor restaurants," he said.

Security officials believe that the Marines, easily distinguishable by their extremely short haircuts, had been targeted for the attack.

On Tuesday, the Marine Corps said in Washington that it had notified its embassy units around the world that Marine guards would be allowed to grow their hair to standard civilian-style length.

Since the attack, the guerrilla leadership has warned that all Americans involved in the "war of intervention" would be considered legitimate targets.

About 200 Americans are attached to the U.S. Embassy, including about 100 advisers and other U.S. military personnel. The strength of the Marine guard contingent is not disclosed publicly, but they are believed to number about 20. Even before the restaurant killings, security at the embassy in cen-

The problem, said the mayor. comes from neighbors who don't like to see the RVs in front.

The 15-year grandfather clause won't be long enough, said Debbie Scarafile, 2700 Wydewood Drive. Taking the RV and children and going camping and fishing is the main thing we do. Fifteen years from now, our children will still be able to do that," she said. The Scarafiles have tried to store the RV in back, but the back yard isn't designed properly, she noted. When the council was questioned as to what an RV owner should do if he looks for a new house, Mrs. Heck said, "If you have eight children, you look for an eight-bedroom house. If you have an RV, you look for a house where you can have it." The ordinance passed on first reading and will become effective after a second reading at the July 23 council meeting.

interviews. Each of the 10 said they believed that had a unque quality that give them "an edge" for the final choice. "I want to de-mystify NASA and space flight," said Sharon McAuliffe, 36, a Concord, N.H., high school teacher. "The astronauts are not really connecting with the average student in the classroom. I want students to see and understand the special perspective of space and relate it to them.

Kathleen Anne Beres, 36, a teacher in Kenwood High School in Baltimore, believes her life of adventure gives her "a real edge in the selection process."

She has climbed mountains in the Andes and Himalyas, gone on an East African safari and sailed across the Atlantic on a 31-foot boat.

'I'm used to traveling with others in small places," she said. "The cabin on the boat was smaller than the middeck (on the space shuttle)."

Peggy J. Lathlaen, 34, a Friendswood, Texas, elementary teacher, believes her ability "to apply problem solving skills to communicating the space experience" is her big advantage.

Richard A. Methia, 40, a New Bedford, Mass., high school teacher, believes his writing skills will earn him a seat on the shuttle

He recently published an article in Newsweek, has sold fiction to a teen magazine and satire to the National Review. He's keeping a detailed journal of his experience in the NASA selection.

"I started out with just a small notebook because I didn't expect to get this far," said Methia. "But now its up to 45 pages and I hope to have lots more.

Judith Marie Garcia is fluent in English, French and Spanish and believes her language skills gives her an advantage the others lack.

'I could carry out communications about my space experience on an international basis," she said. Mrs. Garcia, 44, teaches Spanish and French at Thomas Jefferson High School in Alexandria, Va., and has studied in Europe.

Father says life goes on despite Foote's escape

ALVARADO (AP) - The father of a 13-year-old girl who was kidnapped by a man now loose from jail said he is taking precautions to protect his family but that life goes on. Don McNiel, a 9-mm Colt pistol stuck in his blue jeans, Tuesday offered a $2,000 reward for the capture of the convicted kidnapper who escaped from Johnson County Jail

McNiel said he would pay the money for information leading to the arrest of James Wesley Foote. 34, who was sentenced in March to life in prison for kidnapping McNiel's daughter, Amy

The girl was rescued by law enforcement officers 21/2 days later. 'I want the man caught," said McNiel. He said he began carrying the gun after Foote escaped July 4. McNiel said that at least three sheriff's deputies are posted on his ranch around the clock. But despite the gun and the guards, he said it's almost business as usual at the McNiel household and at McNiel Enterprises, the company he runs in a red barn about 200 yards from the two-story house. "I've heard reports that we're hiding out, but we're going right on with our lives," McNiel said. "Amy's a calm little girl. She's taking it all in stride. It doesn't appear to have her very upset."

McNiel said he doesn't know whether Foote would try to harm his family.

"He's been crazy enough to do those other things," McNiel said. "If he harbors any hatred against my family...we just did what he had to do to gain Amy's safe release. But I can't crawl into his head and know what he's thinking."

Plane lands on Austin highway, crashes into car

AUSTIN (AP) - Two people were hurt when a single-engine plane crash-landed into their car on a busy highway, but Austin officials say the incident could have been far worse.

We could have had an explosion on impact with all that aviation gas. We were just real fortunate there wasn't any fire. He was cool enough to cut all of his power off. That eliminated the danger of a fire," Austin Fire Department Capt. Floyd Barker said.

Pilot David Kemp of Plano was headed back to Austin's Robert Mueller Municipal Airport Tuesday after the engine quit on his plane, according to Barker. The plane and the car collided as Kemp put the plane down on U.S. 290 in east-central Austin, about one mile north of the airport, he said.

Second opinions could save money

By JOAN MOWER Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government's major health providers, Medicaid and Medicare, could save $100 million in 1985 if patients were required to have a second opinion before undergoing elective surgery, a congressional office and sional office says.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated a mandatory second opinion program would slash $20 million from Medicaid, which covers poor people, and $80 million from Medicare, which is for the elderly.

However, the CBO said last week that its figures for Medicare were only rough estimates and the savings might be higher.

The figures were prepared for Sen. John Heinz, R. Pa., chairman of a Senate Special Committee on Aging. Heinz, along with Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, recently introduced legislation requiring Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries to obtain a second opinion before undergoing certain elective surgery.

"A mandatory second opinion will save many older Americans from the personal trauma and risk of unnecessary surgery," Heinz said in a prepared state-

Older people are particularly at risk from unnecessary surgery, said Heinz, adding that some figures show Americans over 65 are subjected to 80 percent more operations than those under that age.

"For those older Americans, the physical risks associated with an operation are compounded with the increase in age," Heinz said.

Unpublished data released by Heinz' aging commit-

Besides health risks, surgery is expensive to the individual and to the federal health care programs, which paid out $20 billion for operations in 1984, Heinz said.

To back up his position, Heinz has the support of Richard Kusserow, the inspector general of the Department of Health and Human Services. In a letter to Heinz, Kusserow said, "I fully support your efforts to Heinz, Kusserow said, "I fully support your efforts to bring about a mandatory second opinion program." The inspector general noted that the department had financed several studies on second opinions and encourages all patients to get them prior to elective But Kusserow said the department's Health Care Financing Administration, which oversees the Medicare and Medicaid programs, does not favor mandatory sec-

The administration believe doctors will be less inclined to operate if they know they'll be scrutinized by their peers.

But Kusserow said he is convinced that professional review organizations do not eliminate the need for mandatory second opinions for Medicare patients.

DENTON — A fragile-looking biplane skids through deep puddles and trundles along the lush grass of a pasture north of Denton, its engine laboring for the speed to propel it beyond gravity's grasp and into the overcast skies.

The ancient craft slowly gathers speed when suddenly, improbably, at a pace lethargic even by the standards of automobiles, a gap appears between the front wheels and the grass and the plane is wondrously

With the faint grumble of the engine drifting across the field, the plane climbs past treetops and pirouettes on its left wing to fly across the grass runway, hundreds of feet higher on this return run, and reach for the horizon.

The scene evokes images of an earlier era, when human flight still seemed to be the stuff of magic and fliers themselves belonged in that pantheon of demigods blessed with mystical powers. But this pilot, Larry Strain, is no barnstormer flying by the seat of his pants and the grace of the not-sobenevolent god of aviators. He holds a commercial pilot's rating and works for the American Airlines

Training Corp. When he puts on his dated flying cap and cranks up the 1930s-vintage Stampe S.V.4, the plane flown by Tom Selleck in "High Road to China," Strain relives a slice of aviation history and immerses himself in a tradition that dates back to an age before instruments more complicated than an altimeter

You get into the cockpit of the Marchetti (a modern plane) and close the canopy and you're in a little envelope," ground crew member Pat Clark said. "This way, you feel the wind and you smell the engine. It's a lot more exciting."

Strain and Clark are vice presidents of the Fighting Air Command, an organization touted by its members as the only aviation museum in the world to fly both World War I and World War II airplanes. Now 140 members strong, the Fighting Air Command was created in 1983 to preserve some of aviation's grandest memories by continuing to fly the planes that are the source of much of its history.

Last year, group members attended or gave 26 air shows across the country. This year, they have opened a museum that eventually will include 17 planes - including the first B-25 ever accepted by the Army Air Corps — and a wealth of memorabilia

The group recently moved its operations to Hartlee Field, a training base during World War II, northeast of Denton, in accordance with its goal of operating rare historic aircraft at an original Army airfield. Since moving to Hartlee, command members have erased traces of its former use as a soaring field in modern aircraft)," he said the 1950s and, more recently, a base for ultralight aircraft.

Markings on the two hangars have been touched up with special mixtures of paint designed to give the appearance of old age. The old parachute tower still stands. The gas pump still is emblazoned with a red Pegasus.

The ghosts of airmen - some 4,000 Army Air Corps pilots who graduated between 1941 and 1943 and two who died — surely cannot be far away. But the most tangible evidence of the past, of course, is the planes themselves.

Some of them — a B-25 "Mitchell" bomber, an SNJ-5 "Texan" trainer, a T-28C "Trojan" trainer, a TBM-3E Avenger" torpedo bomber and a SF-260 Marchetti fighter/trainer aren't based at Hartlee, because they have trouble when rain turns the grass runways into mud.

But the World War I hangar at Hartlee houses three Fokker D. VIIs generally considered to be the finest German fighter of the war and two Pfalz D.IIIs. The group expects delivery of four S.E.5s, a Fokker Dr.I - the triplane flown by Baron von Richthofen - and a Caudron C.277 "Luciole.

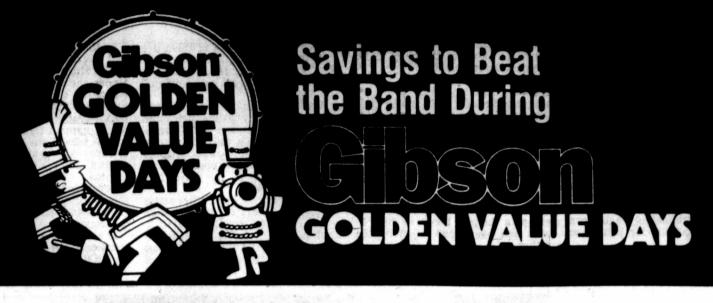

Strain said the planes and parts owned by the organization, all purchases funded by donations, are valued at more than $1 million.

The World War I-type planes, aside from the Luciole, aren't actually originals but are replicas built to original specifications in Ireland for the filming of "The Blue Max" and "Thoroughly Modern Mil-

Although the manufacturers substituted metal tubing for wooden frames and modern Dacron for the original fabric, the planes still look awfully fragile to observers used to metal-hulled 747s.

Strain, however, said they're surprisingly strong and agile. The key, he said, is that the engines produce a relatively small amount of horse power while the twin wings provide a substantial amount of lift.

He said, for instance, that he's been able to loop the Stampe with-out difficulty. There's so much lift that you pull only a G and a half. which you'll pull in a fast turn (in a

States push to collect delinquent child-support payments

By ROBERT PEAR New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON - States across the country are passing laws to crack down on parents who fail to pay child support.

The laws give judges and other state officials stronger tools to enforce orders requiring parents who live apart from their children to contribute to their support.

Among the new measures are provisions for seizing income tax refunds or withholding wages from people who fall too far behind on child support.

There is a tremendous amount of activity in state legislatures addressing the issue this year," said

Fred Schutzman, the deputy director of the Federal Office of Child

The activity reflects state efforts to conform to a federal statute setting standards for child support programs. The statute was approved unanimously by Congress last August, with strong support from the Reagan administration.

A major purpose of the federal law was to assist the growing number of children who live in one-par-ent households. In signing the measure. President Reagan said it would extend a "helping hand" to children who had been abandoned by the Ed Waldron, vice president for financial development for the Florida Sheriff's Youth Fund, said he was impressed by Petraitis' wisdom and gentleness.

"This man definitely was in control of himself and his life. He was a very gentle person. It was very difficult to relate that the person I was talking to had his past," Waldron

Because of his criminal back ground, Petraitis was afraid his donation to the youth fund would be refused Waldron said

"He said the donation was to fulfill a promise he had made to himself" to help youngsters from making the same mistakes he had, said Waldron.

This guy was a real hero for me. He had a certain sense of nobility,' he said. "He left a real impression on

With the help of Waldron, Hartley and Ed Blackburn, a former state legislator and Hillsborough County sheriff, Petraitis was able to regain the civil rights he lost when he went

On June 18, Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet voted to restore Petraitis' rights. Waldron drove to the elderly man's home to tell him.

He held the order in front of him. He must have looked at it for a minute and then he said, 'Oh, my," Waldron recalled A few hours later the elderly man was admitted to Williston Memorial Hospital. Hospital administrator Dave Kendall said Petraitis received cancer treatment for several days before his condition improved. He was allowed to go home June 28. A neighbor who had helped care for Petraitis was at his bedside when he died the evening of June 30.

The sheriff said he had been concerned about Petraitis' salvation and had given him a book about the 23rd

"I talked to him about his eternal affairs. I told him what he had done showed that he had a soul and a life after this," Hartley said

Hartley also asked Petraitis, who'd already said he wanted to be cremated, how he wanted his remains to be disposed of.

"I suggested the Suwannee River that runs through the Boys Ranch and he said that would be perfect," Hartley said.

Justice Powell reluctantly considers retirement from Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell reluctantly has been forced to consider the possibility of retirement as he recuperates from two recent surgical operations, sources close to Powell say.

His decision will hinge on how well he recuperates through the summer from last January's surgery for removal of a cancerous prostate and a hernia operation he underwent Monday at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., the sources said. The sources spoke only on the condition that they not be identi-

Powell, 77, has told people at the court he wants to continue his work as a justice but that the decision will

His role through most of his 13 years on the nation's highest court has been that of a "majority maker" - a key swing vote in cases that deeply divide the court along ideological lines. Powell's position at the court's center in its just-completed term led Burt Neuborne, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, to call Powell "the most powerful individual in America."

Asked about Powell's latest surgery, Virginia Eggleston, his secre-tary, said: "The operation was highly successful. His doctors were quite pleased with everything."

Ms. Eggleston said she did not know when Powell would return to Washington. Following his surgery in January, Powell missed two months of the high court's 1984-85

Sources said Powell's wife, Josephine, has urged him to retire now. They said the justice has considered the possibility of serving as a part-time judge on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., when he does retire.

The Powells maintain a home in Richmond, and the justice has returned there each summer since joining the court in 1972 as an appointee of President Nixon. Powell has not discussed retirement with any of the court's eight other members. He has told people it is "a very private decision."

Two more bodies found near survivalist's cabin

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. (AP) — Investigators redoubled efforts to unearth murder victims in a widened search area after discovering two more decomposing bodies, raising to 11 the number found near the cabin linked to Charles Ng and survivalist Leonard Lake.

Calaveras County district attorneys planned to decide today whether to prosecute Ng on two counts of murder relating to two of the first nine bodies that were found, said sheriff's spokesman Jim Stenquist. The bodies exhumed Tuesday "have nothing to do with Ng," Stenquist said.

Authorities have linked at least 22 dead or missing people to the inves-tigation, which was broadened to include a search within five miles of the mountain cabin 130 miles northeast of San Francisco, where Lake planned to survive a nuclear war.

Ng, 24, arrested Saturday in Calgary, Alberta, after an international manhunt, is charged with attempted murder in the shooting of a Cana-dian security guard. He told investi-gators that Lake was responsible for crimes committed at the California compound where searchers have found 11 bodies and 40 pounds of

The decomposing bodies removed Tuesday were in sleeping bags buried about 18 inches deep some 80 feet off a winding road that ends in an isolated Sierra region known as Blue Mountain, police said.

Mischievous move

gress are working to clear the way for a second contras front, extending the battle against Marxist rulers from Nicaragua to Angola. This is a reckless and unwise move, certain to do more harm than good.

The Senate already has approved legislation that would lift the legislative prohibition on U.S. aid to UNITA, the guerrilla force battling the Marxist government of Angola. Some Republicans in the House, fearful that the Senate initiative may not survive a conference committee, plan a similar action as an amendment to the foreignaid bill.

This mischievous move is being encouraged by the administration just as Reagan personally encouraged a conclave last month of anti-communist guerrillas meeting at a rebel encampment in Angola. Both initiatives are serving once again to divert the nations of Southern Africa from the priorities of getting on with independence for Namibia and bringing concerted pressure on South Africa to end its apartheid policy. And they are serving to cloud the American commitment against terrorism and the rule of violence.

The congressional sponsors' motivation is ideological. They seem to see any Marxist government as an instrument of Soviet policy, as the enemy of America. And they see Angola, like Nicaragua, as particularly menacing because both are hosts to Cuban forces. They ignore the fact that the U.S.-supported contras in Nicaragua, like the South African-sponsored UNITA guerrillas

AID 'hid' dangers of IUD

ASHINGTON — Between the Agency for Interna-tional Development and the A.H. Robins Co., a total of 1.7 million Dalkon Shield intrauterine devices were shipped to 79 foreign countries in the early 1970s. But did the women who used them get the word about the Shield's potential dangers which caused Robins to take if off the market in 1974

Some grim

Jack Anderson statistics suggest the answer: 13,000 users of the 2.8 million shields sold in the United States have filed personal injury claims against Robins; only 29 lawsuits have been filed as a result of the 1.7 million exported devices.

Neither AID nor the manufacturer was in any great hurry to warn foreign users of the shield mainly Third World women - that the contraceptive could cause fatal infection and should be removed

It wasn't until 1980 that Robins recommended removal and AID sent a cable to its 67 overseas missions warning of the shield's dangers and urging a removal program. Fewer than half of the foreign governments subsequently responded to the warning

Of those that did, 13 reported that shield users had already been informed of the side effects and removal from the clients was done during 1975-78," according to an AID document. They had learned of the device's dangers from international population organizations.

Belated as AID's action may seem, it was lightninglike compared to the manufacturer's response to the possibility of an international medical disaster. It was only late last year that Robins sent letters to the ambassadors of the 79 countries in which shields had been sold by the company or distributed by AID. The letters described the company's plan to pay for removal of all Dalkon Shields still in use in the United States, and asked what action would be appropriate in the ambassadors' countries. So far, only four countries have asked for Robins' help.

AID's effort to solve the Dalkon Shield problem, meanwhile, began in December 1974 - six months after Robins took them off the market - when it occurred to someone in the agency that large numbers of the devices were stockpiled over-

AID recalled them all, eventually getting refunds for about 300,000. This, of course, did nothing to protect the thousands of women who were, as far as anyone at AID knew, still using their shields.

About a year after the recall order, an AID official reported confidently that "all known worldwide stocks of Dalkon Shields have either been returned ... or have, at the manufacturer's instructions, been

As it turned out, this was not true. Col. Russel Thomsen, a gynecologist on loan to AID from the Army, was in El Salvador recently and heard rumors of a stock of unused shields. Salvadoran officials denied it, but Thomsen and an official of the Centers for Disease Control searched a warehouse and found 7,000 of the devices. Thomsen had them shipped back to this country for destruction.

Thomsen also reported "a hint that isolated insertions (of the device) continued until 1978" despite the recall order of 1974.

AID teams will travel to Costa Rica, Kenya and Tanzania — the largest recipients of Dalkon Shields who failed to respond to AID's warning questionnaires — in hopes of tracking down overlooked stocks and women who are still using the device. But Thomsen told our associate Vicki Warren he is doubtful that all the shield users will ever be found Footnote: Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommittee on criminal justice, will examine whether the suppression of safety information about a product violates criminal law. He will use the Dalkon Shield incident as a case study.

PERSONAL DIPLOMACY: Laird Busse is a man with a mission. Severely wounded as a Marine in Vietnam, he was a physical and psychological wreck when discharged in 1967. But the 40-year-old San Francisco resident says he has improved recently by bathing in water laced with salt from Israel's Dead Sea. Busse says the pain from his spinal injuries has receded to the point where he can not only walk, Busse's hope was to take some of the therapeutic salt to the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev as a token of peace." "I saw that he was ailing just as I was," Busse explains. He'd still like to make the trip, even though the new Soviet boss, Mikhail Gorbachev, is apparently physically fit. So far, the Soviets have been cool to Busse's one-man goodwill mission.

LETTERS 'Welcome' pleasant

I would like to offer my sincerest thanks and appreciation to the City of Midland and the citizens of the Permian Basin for their "Welcome Home" for the Vietnam veterans in the Fourth of July and Midland Centennial Parade recently in Midland.

The warmth and applause of the citizens gave these veterans the most important thing they could have received from their countrymen - purpose. After numerous conversations with the veterans, both before and after the parade, it was genuinely felt by all that they did serve a valuable purpose to this country by answering the call to duty and their hometown showed this appreciation.

In its usual style, Midland turned out to show the veterans and each other that the current wave of patriotism in this country is well and alive in Midland, Texas. The Viet-nam veterans salute Midland and all of the Permian Basin for the honor they were afforded while marching in the parade.

I personally would like to thank everyone who worked very hard to make this a success, to include the Vietnam veterans, the United States Marine Corps Recruiting office in Odessa, the United States Army Color Guard, the National Guard and Army Reserve, Post 19 American Legion of Midland and the Ladies Auxiliary of Post 19 American Legion.

My special thanks go to Robert E. O'Malley, former sergeant, United States Marine Corps and Congressional Medal of Honor recipient from the Vietnam War, whom I was honored to walk beside during the parade and to all my fellow Marines in the Permian Detachment, Marine Corps League who made all of this M.C. # Parade gave pride, honor

I was one of those fortunate many who attended the Centennial Parade on July Fourth. The entire parade was simply first rate and everyone involved in putting it together should know that all Midlanders are indebted to them for their hard work and creativity. What a tremendous way to celebrate our 100th birthday!

I always feel proud and patriotic on July Fourth, but standing there Thursday watching that parade brought an even more heightened feeling of patriotism. And the rea son? It was that group of American Vietnam veterans. As everyone arose with respect and thanksgiving for what they did for us. I felt pride and sadness. Pride for how these men put their lives on the line so that I could continue to watch July Fourth parades and sadness that it had taken over 10 years for these feelings to come forth. But I could see it as they moved toward me people on both sides of the street rising to their feet to say thank you and God bless you or maybe even,

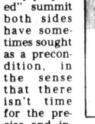

As far as I am concerned, that July Fourth spectacular was not only for Midland but for all those brave guys who gave more than their share. Mark K. Leaverton

Americans experienced in bar gaining with the Russians point out that Moscow's usual approach to applying agreements is to make full use of loopholes and ambiguities. The result, if definitions are less than exact and perfectly lucid, is to increase suspicion and recrimination instead of fulfilling the purpose of easing tensions.

That certainly developed from the 1972 Nixon-Brezhnev accord, which was the heart of d'etente. Instead of establishing general rules of superpower conduct as was supposed at the time, its loose terms were interpreted in flatly contradictory ways by each side.

There are other reasons for the collapse of d'etente, of course. But invoking expectations doomed to disappointment makes an inevitably difficult relationship much harder to manage. Moscow thought U.S. acceptance of strategic "parity" meant recognition of the quality in all senses: political, economic, even psychological. That was not only far beyond American intentions, it was beyond America's capacity to assure. The U.S. thought Moscow had accepted constraints on its ambitions to bring Communists to power in other parts of the world. That would imply a change in Soviet ideology and the fundamentals of its regime, which may or may not come some day but obviously will not derive from a mere declaratory agreement.

To work effectively, accords must reflect currently perceived mutual interest. They do not create trust out of primeval mire. They can only express shared need, essentially to reduce the dangers of superpower

But the fact that there is no prosect of a dramatic reversal in East-West relations at the summit does not mean it would be a mere courtesy call where two men meet to show their amiability. It cannot avoid being a milestone after six years of deterioration. The mere fact of the meeting engages the apparatus of each government and marks a new departure to define what is tolerable what should be considered "normal" in Soviet-U.S. relations.

Reagan had already planned to launch himself on a special cram course of Soviet studies, and that now becomes an urgent priority. No matter how affable the partners, it is evident in every official Soviet-American exchange that minds work differently. The Russians have just as much trouble grasping the assumptions that underlie American ways of thought as we have figuring out the mechanisms that move their secretive society

It is better to be aware of that and not leap to conclusions about basic understanding, whether of friendliss or hostility, because of words and images. This is a point where Reagan's skill in image-making and modern America's audio-visual obsion can be a handicap, not an

What is needed now is a sense of architecture, of design for the long term so that not only the two giants but the whole world can get on with the problems of the age in a certain sense of security. It isn't just smiling

Both sides have already said they seek strategic stability. Neither quite believes the other doesn't really mean military domination. This is not a matter of some devious master plan. The lessons that the Soviet miltary establishment drew from World War II, still the source of its basic doctrine, were "never again to be taken by surprise, never again on our territory

As West European analysts point out, "acceptance would mean if war were to come, we would be the ones to be surprised, and on our territory." By such a definition, the goals of strategic stability are incompatible for both sides. The task then has to be an attempt to work out what stability means in a way both can accept. So far, the focus has been on missile counting, and the results have been disappointing, to say the least. An agreement in principle that arsenals are already much too high for anyone's safety could be a start toward a new search for balance. Further, it is evident that balance must include defense as well as offense. That principle should be reaffirmed. It doesn't mean abandoning Reagan's wish to rely more on de fense than on offense, which may or may not prove feasible. But it does mean full acceptance of the linkage.

Removal of the Soviet Union's veteran foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, from direct negotiating responsibility may signal greater willingness to explore new approaches on Moscow's side. In any case, the chances for making Geneva turn out to be a watershed depend on trying to look well beyond the moment, with hope but without

Israeli court convicts three Jewish settlers of murder

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Israeli court today convicted three Jewish settlers of murder and 12 other defendants of lesser charges in the year-long trial of alleged members of a Jewish terrorist underground.

The three-man tribunal postponed sentencing of the 15 defendents until later this week or early next week.

All were convicted of involvement in one or more attacks or planned attacks against Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, including an alleged plot to blow up the Moslem shrine of the Dome of the Rock in Jerusalem.

The trial, which began in June 1984, was one of the longest and most politically explosive in Israel's history.

The three convicted of murder were Menachem Livni, 35, Shaul Nir, 31, and Uzi Sharbaf, 25. The murder charges stemmed from the July 1983 attack at the Islamic University in the West Bank town of Hebron in which three Arabs were killed and 33 others were injured by assailants wielding machineguns and handgrenades.

Livni was considered the ringleader and was accused of being involved in all the operations.

Israel radio said life imprisonment was automatically imposed on murder charges.

District Court Judge Yaacov Bazak took one hour to read a summary of the verdicts against the 15 defendents, who were considered the core of a loose-knit organization of Jewish extremists who decided to counter Palestinian attacks on Jewish settlers with their own brand of terrorism.

In addition to the three convicted of murder, defendants were found guilty of attempted murder, sabotage, belonging to a terrorist organization, illegal possession of weapons and damage to army property

Some of the defendants faced charges of attempted murder for car-bomb attacks on three Palestinian West Bank mayors in June 1980. Four were approached by The Associated Press when the court was recessed but refused to comment on their convictions.

Ten other underground members were convicted earlier after plea bargaining for lesser charges. Two army officers were being tried separately and three suspects were still at large.

One of the 10 already sentenced has already been released after serving two-thirds of his 15-month sentence for procuring weapons.

Two of the mayors, Bassam Shakaa of Nablus and Karim Khalaf of Ramallah, were crippled by the explosions, and an Israeli explosives expert was blinded while trying to dismantle the third bomb.

This attack came shortly after the murder of six Jewish students in the West Bank city of Hebron.

The conspiracy to blow up the Dome of the Rock was never carried out, but Israeli commentators said that if the plotters had succeeded, it possibly would have caused a holy war pitting the entire Moslem world against Israel.

Discovery of the underground last year triggered a political storm between Israelis who defended their actions as justifiable self-defense and those who condemned the extremists as no different from Arab terrorists.

The debate escalated after Israel freed 1,150 Arabs, some convicted of murder, in exchange for three Israeli soldiers captured by Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir of the right-wing Likud bloc which supports the settler movement said after the Arabs were released that charges should be dropped against the Jewish underground defendents or that they should be pardoned.

North Korea: Reagan's speech 'declaration of war

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea charged today that President Reagan "made a tacit declaration of war" against North Korea and four other countries when he referred to them as a confederation of terrorist states.

Addressing the American Bar Association Monday, Reagan singled out North Korea, Iran, Cuba, Libya and Nicaragua as states engaged "in acts of war against the government and people of the United States." He added that "any state which is the victim of acts of war has the right to defend itself."

The official North Korean

newspaper Rodong Sinmun responded today, saying, "The recent assertion of Reagan revealed a sinister design to start a brigandish armed invasion of our country and other countries, labeling them as 'terrorists.' This in fact is a tacit declaration of war against them."

Angry bees provoke letters

LONDON (AP) — Bees, angered by a late, wet spring, have disrupted English life and provoked the longest-running debate of the year in The Times letters column.

Recently, spectators at a championship cricket match near London saw players suddenly start rolling on the ground, swatting their arms wildly to deal with a nasty swarm. On the same day, bees occupied the control tower of a Royal Air Force base in Wales for three hours. The air traffic controllers ran for cover, forcing the cancellation of practice bombing runs.

Oxford University entomologist Chris O'Toole told The Associated Press that an unusually late and wet spring this year had made the insects very bad-tempered.

The first indication of trouble came on June 15, when Lionel Kass of London's Hampstead Garden Suburb appealed in a letter in The Times' letters-to-the-editor column for a way to deal with the bees. The newspaper has published responses almost daily since then almost daily since then.

Bee expert O'Toole said there were no more bees around than normal, but that rain had kept the bees inside their nests this year. When bees cannot go out, the nests heat up, causing larvae to die and accumulate. When conditions become intolerable, the bees go angrily in coarse of a new home.

House seeks aid freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is seeking a two-year freeze on foreign aid while voting to earmark $10 million in military assistance to noncommunist and anti-Vietnamese forces inside Cambodia.

The House voted 288-122 for the arms aid on Tuesday after forging a bipartisan compromise that led to a 386-2 decision to hold overall foreign assistance to $12.7 billion for each of the next two fiscal years.

The amendment, which already has been adopted by the Senate in similar form, marks a step toward greater U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia in the aftermath of the end of the Vietnam war. It authorizes $5 million annually in aid for the Cambodian rebels over the next two years.

The action to freeze spending for the next two fiscal years at the level agreed on for the fiscal year ending Sept. 31 amounts to a 2.5 percent reduction from the $13.1 billion recommended by the House Foreign Affairs Committee. The panel had already trimmed $191 million from President Reagan's original request.

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a 14-month delay, the Reagan administration is close to a final agreement with China that would clear the way for the sale of U.S. nuclear reactors and other nuclear technology to the world's largest communist nation, several sources report.

The administration hopes to have the agreement ready for a final signing when Chinese President Li Xiannian visits Washington July 22.

Congress, which could block the accord, still has to be convinced that the agreement adequately protects American interests and the administration still could decide against approving the agreement if a bruising battle with Congress appears likely, said a State Department offi-

Cloudy skies, hot weather to continue

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders can expect tonight's slight chance of thunderstorms to disappear Thursday but partly cloudy skies and hot temperatures will continue in the Permian Basin area, according to the National Weather Service.

The outlook for tonight calls for partly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low in the upper 60s. Light winds are expected to blow from the east.

Partly cloudy skies will continue Thursday as the high warms to the mid-90s and winds become variable at five to 10 mph.

Tuesday's high of 95 was eight degrees below the record set in 1964. This morning's low was two degrees above the 1961 record of 64. STATE

Showers and a few thundershow ers fell this morning across the Texas Panhandle, while light fog formed at McAllen and low clouds hovered over the rest of the Rio Grande Valley and parts of South Central Texas.

Skies were mostly fair across the rest of the state because of a strong high-pressure system aloft that continued to invluence the state's weather, the National Weather Service said. Winds were from the west over the Panhandle, while north to northeast winds were common across the South Plains and Trans Pecos. South to southwest winds prevailed across the rest of the state. Wind speeds were generally in the 5 to 10 mph

Isolated thunderstorms were expected in parts of West Texas this afternoon. Otherwise, the Texas weather picture should be fair to partly cloudy through Thursday with hot afternoons and mild nights. Highs were expected to be generally in the 90s most places. A reading of near 104 was anticipated in the Big

NATION

Drenching thunderstorms rum bled across the nation from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Coast today and high pressure that touched off a western heat wave remained in place.

Strong thunderstorms extended today from the southern Great Lakes through the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast.

Showers and a few thunderstorms spread across the central and southern Rockies and coastal sections of the Florida Peninsula.

Fair skies prevailed across the Southeast and northern Plains.

The newspaper said today that sources close to the club con-firmed that Bell had asked to be traded and that the club was trying to accommodate him.

Bell reportedly gave Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve a list of about 10 teams he would agree to go to, the newspaper said. As a player with 10 years in the league and five with the same team, Bell can veto any trade.

Bell denied early reports that he asked to be traded after efforts to renegotiate his contract for the fourth time in five years fell through.

"This has nothing to do with my contract," Bell told the Star-Telegram Tuesday in Cleveland, where the Rangers lost 7-2 Tues-day night to the Indians. "I have never asked to renegotiate. I have renegotiated (in the past) but I've never asked."

SOURCES CLOSE to Bell said the Ranger third baseman was miffed when owner Eddie Chiles allegedly reneged on a promise to renegotiate.

"He feels he was lied to, that's the crux of it," said one source. "I can't say anything else," Bell said, "but I'm not mad at anybody.'

Chiles, contacted at his home in Fort Worth, declined to comment. According to insiders, Bell's agent, Ed Keating of Cleveland, proposed a three-year package to-taling $5.25 million. The package called for $1.5 million the first year, $1.75 the second year and $2 million the third. "It (renegotiation talks) never got that far," Bell said. "It never got serious. Chiles reportedly was shocked at the proposal and offered Bell an additional $55,000 a year to be added to his current salary of $600,000 a year, the Star-Telegram said in today's editions.

Bell quickly rejected that offer and allegedly accused the Rangers of not being faithful to their promise to renegotiate in good

Bell, club President Mike Stone and Grieve have had several meetings in the past few weeks in an effort to resolve the situation short of a trade. Grieve is thought to be negoti-few days. THE LOS Angeles Dodgers, who have long had an interest in Bell, are believed to be the leadating with several teams in an effort to move Bell and may conclude the trade within the next ing contender in the Bell sweepstakes. There is also talk of a three-way deal with the Dodgers and Pirates in which the Rangers would acquire hard-luck Pittsburgh pitcher Jose DeLeon.

Grieve would not comment on Bell's situation.

"I can't confirm or deny any of it," Grieve said. "I'd rather not comment on any aspect of it right

Stone took a similar stance. "I'm not going to comment on any player's contractual status, Stone said. "I can't do that publicly. I will say that we've kept our (contractual) commitment and will continue to do so with all our Bell, 33, is signed through 1987 with an option for 1988. The Rangers reportedly offered to guarantee 1988, along with the extra $55,000 a year, but Bell also turned that offer down.

Long a mainstay at third base for the Rangers, Buddy Bell's days as a Ranger may be numbered.

Phillies' 'babies' put slumping Astros away with big inning

HOUSTON (AP) - Philadelphia's youthful trio of Juan Samuel, Rick Schu and Kevin Gross, gaining confidence at the expense of the Houston Astros, led the Phillies to their second straight victory in the Astrodome.

The 5-3 setback Tuesday night was the Astros' 10th loss in their past 12 games at home.

Philadelphia, 37-44, erupted for all five runs in the fourth inning off Houston starter and loser Bob Knepper, 8-5, as Samuel drove in two runs and Mike Schmidt, Garry Maddox and Bo Diaz knocked in one apiece.

"I was fortunate to get the bloop hit. We had timely hits even though we didn't hit the ball hard," said Samuel, a second-year shortstop. Schu, a rookie third baseman who opened the inning with a double and scored, is 5-for-9 in two games against the Astros. "I'm adjusting to big league pit-ching," Schu said. "And I've gotten a few hits to build up my confidence."

THE 24-YEAR-OLD Gross, 8-7, won his third straight game after a stint of 6 2-3 innings in which he allowed only one earned run and scattered six hits. Kent Tekulve NL Roundup came on in relief to notch his eighth save and second in as many games. "Right now I'm in good shape and I'm ready to go nine innings every time I pitch," Gross said. "I'm throwing hard and moving my fastball around as well as developing an offspeed pitch.'

Houston's Kevin Bass, Jose Cruz, and Denny Walling each had one RBI, but it was Houston's 12 men left on base and its defensive collapse that concerned Knepper.

Knepper, who allowed eight hits in seven innings, seriously addressed the Houston situation after departing from the dressing room.
"We're just not playing like we want to win ball games. You could say the time is tired or flat. I don't know what's wrong," Knepper said. Houston, 41-42, has left 40 runners on base over the past 37 innings.

"It's frustrating when balls are hit directly at guys and they drop them. We've got to bear down and win. We just have to kick ourselves in the this thing or not," Knepper said, referring to the National League West

Mets 11, Reds 2 George Foster drove in four runs and Dwight Gooden went eight innings to outdo Cincinnati ace Mario

The 20-year-old Gooden is in a groove and the Mets are on the move in the National League East, trailing pacesetter St. Louis by 21/2 games after winning their eighth straight, the longest positive streak in the league this season.

Soto is out of sync, having lost a career-worst six straight decisions, and the Reds have lost seven of their last 10 games to fall from second place to third in the NL West.

"I had my great stuff," Gooden, 12-3, said after pitching eight strong innings Tuesday night as the Mets buried the Reds and Soto.

"I'm just going through hell right now," said the 28-year-old Soto, 8-9, who hasn't won since June 4. "It's hard to win games. Hitters have slumps, and pitchers have slumps. Hitters go 0-for-21, 1-for-30 . . . this stuff's not going to go on the whole

Gooden, who tired in the heat in Cincinnati, struck out five to raise his major-league-leading total to 142. George Foster, who drove in four runs, hit his 14th homer of the season to give the Mets a 1-0 lead in the fourth. In the fifth, Keith Hernandez hit his seventh homer into the second deck in right field, giving him 10 runs batted in during his last Cubs 7, Padres 3

Chicago's Ryne Sandberg, who doesn't want to be thought of as a home-run hitter, got Nos. 11 and 12 in leading a 14-hit Cub attack against Eric Show, 7-6, and two Padre relievers.

"And a good example of why I don't is the early part of this season," said Sandberg, whose homers in the first two innings both came with a man on base. "I started the season thinking I was a home-run hitter and I wasn't hitting much of anything." He also singled in the fourth, stole his 25th base and came around to score his third run of the game. Sandberg, who hit 19 homers in 1984 after totaling just 15 in the two previous seasons, started this year by going 8-for-57 through the first 14 behind St. Louis. Steve Trout, 8-4, held the Padres to vev's 13th homer, a three-run shot in the sixth. Dodgers 8, Pirates 3 Surging Los Angeles, getting 16 hits, won for the eighth time in 10 three hits, one of them Steve Gar-games to move within 2½ games of San Diego in the NL West. The Dodgers have picked up 3½ games over that stretch. Rick Honeycutt, 6-7, and Tom Niedenfuer stopped Pittsburgh on six hits and Steve Sax keved a sixthinning rally with a two-run single. The Dodgers got 12 hits off Pirates starter Rick Rhoden, 5-9, in 5 1-3 innings

"We're for real," said Niedenfuer, who worked the final 3 2-3 innings for his seventh save. "It's been an uphill battle for us but we're a little closer now. The big thing has been our defense . . . we made a lot of errors early in the season, but now we're fielding better."

Expos 5, Braves 1 Montreal, with Tim Raines and Dan Driessen getting four hits each, kept pace with New York, 21/2 games

Striking out a career-high 10 batters, right-hander Bryn Smith raised his record to 10-3. Six of the strikeouts were in succession.

"It got to be a guessing game out there tonight," Smith said. "And I guess they guessed me wrong more than they guessed me right. Montreal beat Atlanta's Pascual Perez, who fell to 0-7, despite striking out a season-high eight batters. Cardinals 3, Giants 1

St. Louis continued to roll, winning for the 28th time in 40 home games, the best record in baseball. San Francisco is the worst road team

The Cardinals' Danny Cox, 10-4, beat the Giants on five hits and Vince Coleman started the first-inning rally by singling and stealing his major league-leading 57th base.

"It's important for us to get on top early," said Tom Herr of St. Louis, whose two RBIs gave him a major-league-leading 65. "When we can get a lead, it makes it easier for our starting pitcher and it makes our running game a lot more effective." San Francisco's Bill Laskey lost for the 11th time in 12 decisions.

Namath, who guaranteed the Jets would win Super Bowl III against the Baltimore Colts in January 1969 and then delivered, will join O.J. Simpson and Frank Gifford beginning with the Aug. 3 Hall of Fame Game from Canton, Ohio, the same day he and Simpson will join Gifford

"One reason I took it," Namath said, "is that I'm married now, and we're going to have a child, and I'd like to have a steadier base. I've traveled around quite a bit, not only playing football, but since I've played football. I find now that I'd rather base out of a house a little more, and that's part of it, plus I like

Angels' star McLemore drives in game-winner

BEAUMONT (AP) - Midland's Mark McLemore doubled in the eighth inning to break a 44 deadlock Tuesday night as the West took a 6-4 victory over the East in the 1985 Texas League All-Star Game.

A crowd of 4,014 at Vincent-Beck Stadium saw the Midland Angels' second baseman double off the right field wall to plate the go-ahead run and McLemore then scored the final run on the third hit of the night by El Paso's Billy Joe Robidoux.

McLemore was the Angels only selection to the West Divison All-Star

The switch hittng McLemore's game-winning hit followed a single by San Antonio's Jon Debus and a walk to the Beaumont Golden Gators' Tom Brassil. It made a winner basketball.

AUSTIN (AP) - Coaches once were the summer students of such teaching legends as Knute Rockne in football and Adolph Rupp in

But in increasing numbers, athletes and would-be athletes are absorbing the summer teaching of such college coaches as Eddie Sutton and Dean Smith in basketball, Barry Switzer in football and Cliff Gustafson in baseball.

In other parts of the nation, summer camps have been prominent for two decades or more, providing fivefigure annual incomes to North Carolina's Smith and to Sutton, who recently moved from Arkansas to Summer camps are not big business in Texas — yet. High school football, basketball and volleyball players for two de-cades were banned from camp attendance; a rule change last year allowed non-varsity athletes to sign up. And not until the late 1970s did most Texas colleges allow coaches to conduct such schools on campus. But University Interscholastic League rules are changing, and col-leges are jumping into the market that's opening up.

SINCE THE University of Texas hanged its policy on facilities and oaches' work schedules in 1979, the coaches' work schedules in 1979, the school and its men's and women's coaching staffs have developed camps in basketball, women's volleyball, swimming, track and field, tennis, baseball and strength conditioning. Doug Messer, UT's assistant athletic director for financial affairs, says the camps are set up partly to complement coaches' salaries. But Messer emphasizes the community service concept, "to allow boys and girls of every age to have an educational and athletic experience.'

Camp directors at UT receive rentfree use of such facilities as Memorial Stadium, Gregory Gymnasium and Disch-Falk Field to house their operations — all of them, that is, except for swimming Coach Eddie Reese, who pays the Texas Swimming Center about $5,000 for use of the pool for six weeks.

All the camps, Messer said, have such expense items as room and board for resident campers, adver-tising and awards and T-shirts for campers who enroll.

Women's athletic department policy is that the camps cannot lose money, because there is no money in the budget to cover deficits," said sports information director Chris Plonsky. "But the ones that Jody Conradt (basketball), Mick Haley (volleyball) and Eddie Reese (swim-ming) have are all moneymakers."

MESSER SAID that in 1984, the last year for which full accounting is available, all camps sponsored by the men's athletic department made money.

Bob Weltlich's basketball camp took in $46,652 and spent $43,876.
Gustafson's baseball operation had $23,756 in enrollment fees and spend $23,357, the track and field camp received $14,136 and spent $13,919 and strength camp receipts were $12,399 against expenses of $11,685.

Instructors' salaries are included in the expenses; Messer said some coaches are paid a flat fee, while others receive a percentage of the While camp income induced Sutton and Smith to settle in at their schools, Messer does not see such revenue as critical to retaining UT's men's coaches. But women's swim coach Richard Quick came to UT three years ago partly because of the income potential from Reese's summer camp.

administration at Mississippi State, Florida State and Kansas, says UT's approach to camps is, contrasted to those schools, conservative. "At all three of those schools the biggest camp is the football camp.

Messer, who has been in athletic

Some people may visualize a football camp as pushing a blocking sled around in the July heat, but they're fun camps. Kids learn fundamentals, but there are other activities." Messer says camps have the poten-Messer says camps have the poten-tial to be long range recruiting tools and that "a 14-year-old athlete three or four years later might remember the pleasant associations he had at a camp and pick that school for his sport."

GUSTAPSON SAID two 1985 Longhorns, shortstop Coby Kerlin and third baseman Dodd Johnson, went through the UT baseball camp, and football Coach Fred Akers sees a recruiting benefit to the camp he hopes to launch next summer.

"We would expect it to be twoway, as far as benefits go," Akers said. "It's possible that some of them might be in a Longhorn uniform some day.

Are sports camps worth the money?

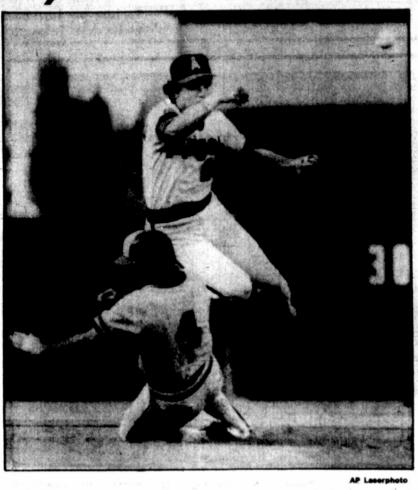

Dennis Seale, who produced a 1984 Class 2A state baseball runner-up at Dripping Springs, says he thinks they are, especially to younger

"Once I get a boy into my program as a freshman, I like to have control of him," Seale said, "but a fifth-grader, say, has an excellent chance to learn correctly fundamentals from qualified coaches. He's paid his money and he's listening to coaches he respects, so he's probably going to remember what they say."

Elgin baseball coach Glenn Bacak also likes what summer camps can do for young athletes.

"One big benefit is, if an athlete goes to a camp, he is thinking about that sport," Bacak said. "He's there because he wants to be, and that's the best learning situation you can

Asked if some youngsters go into camps with unrealistic expectations of the benefits, Messer said, "Some parents might have that illusion about their kids, but I don't think many kids do. Maybe a few kids are pressured to go to camp, but I do think most of them are there for four days, a week, or whatever, because they want to learn and to have fun."

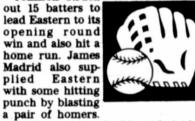

California shortstop Dick Schofield goes for the double play on Milwaukee's Paul Molitor. The Angels won for the second straight night over the Brewers, 5-4.

Terrell gave up just three hits in 8 2-3 innings, all in the first when the White Sox scored three runs.

Orioles 11, Twins 6 John Shelby and Alan Wiggins drove in two runs apiece during a six-run rally in the fourth inning and Eddie Murray hit a grand-slam homer in the sixth as Baltimore

The Orioles trailed 4-0 before rallying to take the lead for good in the fourth off Ken Schrom, 7-8. Murray was 8-for-45 when he hit his 10th career slam, and 13th homer of the season, off Curt Wardle in the sixth. Nate Snell, 3-1, allowed one hit in 2

Red Sox 6, A's 3 Steve Lyons' infield hit scored the deciding run and highlighted a three-run Boston rally in the ninth inning as the Red Sox defeated Oakland.

After Lyons drove in the winning run, the Red Sox scored two more with the help of an Oakland error and Marty Barrett's RBI single.

Trailing 3-1 in the eighth, the A's had rallied to tie the game on Mike Davis' two-out, two-run single off the flamboyant Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd. Boyd, 10-7, scattered seven hits and pitched his 11th complete game. Steve Ontiveros, 0-1, the third of four Oakland pitchers, was the loser

The Nets said during their pursuit of Villanova coach Rollie Massimino that they would like to hire a college

Massimino turned down the Nets job just hours before a news conference was to have been held to announce his hiring. The Nets reportedly offered Massimino $350,000 a Bliss said he did not contact the Nets first.

"I don't think college coaches approach pros. I find it all intriguing. The only other interview I've been on this year was at Kentucky, which is another intriguing situation," Bliss

"The standpoint of my interest is more out of curiosity than anything else. I really don't know much about the situation up there. It's a different game, in a different part of the country," he told the Times Herald.

Bliss is from New York. He was born in Binghamton, N.Y., attended college at Cornell, was later drafted and became an assistant coach at Army under Bobby Knight. Bliss followed Knight to Indiana University in 1971 before taking the head coaching job at Oklahoma in 1975.

SMU is 48-18 for the past two seasons, advancing to the NCAA tour

Orleans, won the honor in 1983.

NEW YORK (AP) - Rollie Dotsch, who guided the Birmingham Stallions to the Eastern Conference championship, today was named the United States Football League's Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

Dotsch, whose team finished with a regular-season record of 13-5 before being eliminated in the second round of the playoffs last Sunday by the Baltimore Stars, received 14 votes in the balloting by two writers from each USFL city, to 10 for runner-up Charlie Sumner of the Oakland Invaders.

Pepper Rodgers of Memphis received two votes and Mouse Davis of Denver and Jim Mora of Baltimore one each. Mora was Coach of the Year last season and Dick Coury of Boston, now Portland through New DOTSCH, ONE of only five coaches to make it through all three USFL seasons, has posted a 36-18 regularseason record with the Stallions, although his team has been eliminated the last two years a game away from the league championship. "It's a very nice honor, one that I'm very pleased with," Dotsch said

A 52-year-old native of Michigan who played college football at Michigan State, Dotsch's coaching career, like many of his contemporaries, has been a trip around the map.

After serving as defensive coordinator at Northern Michigan College, he moved to jobs as an assistant at Colorado and Missouri before getting his first head coaching job - at Northern Michigan, where in five years his teams went 33-15-1.

Slugging Kingman an unlikely member of elite 400-club

By DARRELL CHRISTIAN AP Sports Editor

The name seems almost out of place. Yet any day now, there be-tween Al Kaline and Duke Snider, on a list headed by Hank Aaron and Babe Ruth, will be Dave Kingman.

Kingman's next two home runs for the Oakland Athletics will give him 400 for his career, a level reached by just 20 players in major league history.

His place among them, though, may be as solitary as he has often

The record books will show it, but the historians may never accept it. To them, Kingman will stand out for different reasons. With him, the similarities stop with the home runs.

He has been prolific, certainly, but not as productive as others, al-though his 14 grand slam homers are tied with Gil Hodges for seventh on the all-time list behind 400-homer men Lou Gehrig, Willie McCovey, Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams, Aaron

Kingman has the lowest batting average and lowest home run-toruns batted in ratio in the 400 club. Only twice has he driven in 100 or more runs. In 1975 and 1976, he hit 36 and 37 home runs, respectively, but had only 88 and 86 RBI.

OF THE 20 players ahead of him on the all-time homer list, 14 are in the Hall of Fame. Three others, McCovey, Willie Stargell and Carl Yastrzemski, haven't been retired long enough to be eligible yet. Billy Williams is getting closer, fourth on the last ballot, 45 votes short. Reggie Jackson and Mike Schmidt, like Kingman, are still active.

If Kingman seems out of place, that's the way his entire 13-year career has gone.

He is a one-dimensional player, a designated hitter, who more often than not has worked in his own private world, irritating teammates, reporters and fans along the way. Baseball, in fact, is not first on his list of things to do.

"I'm having a lot of fun hitting baseballs right now," Kingman says.
"But it's not what I want to do forever. I've got a lot of things I like to do besides that, like fishing, any kind of fishing."

During the season with Oakland, he lives aboard his 43-foot yacht in Alameda, Calif.

HE HAS played with seven different teams, including the New York Mets twice. In a space of three months in 1977, he played for four teams in four different divisionsYankees. He homered for each of them and is the only man in history to complete that odd combination. But if his power has not been questioned, his desire has. Joey Amalfitano, now a coach with the Los Angeles Dodgers, was Kingman's manager for 11/2 seasons with the Chicago Cubs and before that was a coach on Kingman teams in San Francisco and San Diego.

It was with Chicago in 1979 that Kingman enjoyed his best season — 48 home runs, 115 RBI and a .288 batting average.

"He's a very private person," Amalfitano says. "He's really into boating and fishing and it seems at times that baseball isn't his No. 1. priority. Don't get me wrong. I like the guy and got along with him real well. But sometimes it didn't seem baseball was No. 1.

"Sometimes, you could get him going for three weeks at a time, and then all of a sudden, mentally he wouldn't be there. He's a complex guy, but I've always liked him and always kind of followed him. I was pretty close to him, but sometimes he was pretty hard to figure out, and he still is.

TOM SEAVER, who played with Kingman on the Mets, and A's manager Jackie Moore say the surliness and frequent refusal to talk to reporters are misunderstood.

"He's a very intense person," Seaver says. "He's very demanding, especially on himself. He's also a very sensitive guy, which most peo-ple don't suspect. His being surly is a defense mechanism.

Adds Moore: "He's a little bit shy sometimes, but he's a quality individual. He jokes around some, has his fun. But when it's time to get down to winning games, he's all business. It's a pleasure having him on our ball club.

Just a few years ago, it looked like Kingman would not get the chance

After being injured much of the 1980 season, he was traded back to the Mets. This was going to be the new Kingman, and his arrival was celebrated by a gala press conference in training camp where he handed out gold-plated pens to beat

The era of good feeling was short-lived. He started sulking when crit-ics pointed to his low batting average, and stopped talking again. He often refused to take fielding

THE NEXT year he led the league in home runs with 37 but batted only .204, managing just 72-non home run hits in 535 at-bats.

On June 15, 1983, the Mets acquired first baseman Keith Hernandez from St. Louis, and that essentially ended Kingman's days with the club. He played only occasional-ly after that, almost always as a pinch hitter. Again, he sulked.

The Mets tried to trade him, but there were no takers, primarily because of a guaranteed contract worth a reported $800,000. The Mets offered to pay part of it and would have accepted anything in trade, but still no one wanted Kingman.
Finally, the Mets released Kingman on Jan. 30, 1984, and two months later he was signed by the A's to a one-year contract. Oakland paid just $40,000, the major league minimum, and the Mets paid the Now, Kingman says he is happy.

"These past years have been the most enjoyable of my entire career," he says. "Being out West here, closer to home, has made a big difference to me. But I'm not thinking of going on like this forever. I'm not really concerned with my longevity. I'm satisfied with my career, and just happy to be where I am right now."

THE A'S are happy to have him. Moore says Kingman has "been awfully productive for us. Whenever you have a guy who can put two or three runs on the board with a swing of the bat, you're naturally going to make other teams worry. Kingman's next homer will tie him at 399 with Hall of Famer Kaline. Then will come the milestone

And then, says Moore, "he's got the chance to hit a lot more than 400 as far as I'm concerned.

choice Walker unanimous MV

NEW YORK (AP) — Herschel Walker of the New Jersey Generals, whose 2,411 yards shattered pro football's single-season rushing record, was the Pro Football Writers of America's unanimous choice Tuesday as the United States Football League's Most Valuable Player. Walker, in his third pro season after winning the Heisman Trophy as college football's premier player and then leaving the University of Georgia before his senior season, also broke pro records with 11 consecutive 100-yard games and 14 games of more than 100 yards rushing. His 22 touchdowns — 21 of them rushing - and 132 points in the 1985 season, and his 233 yards rushing in one game, established USFL records. He also led the Generals in receiving with 37 for 467 yards and a

Stars and Houston quarterback Jim

WALKER'S SIGNING of a threeyear, $5 million contract, then pro football's richest contract, before the completion of his college eligibility created a firestorm of controversy and brought massive attention to an infant league seeking credibility as an "off-season" counterpart to the established National Football League. For the first two seasons, Walker was the Generals' sole star. This year he was joined by Boston College quarterback Doug Flutie.

Doug made things a great deal easier for me," Walker said. "He took a lot of the pressure off me, and he gave me an opportunity to learn a lot more about offense. I got a chance to read defenses like a quarterback and got a chance to become a receiver. You never see an NFL running back line up as a receiver and go deep. You see that in the Walker's contract now runs through 1989. The Dallas Cowboys, guessing or hoping that the USFL won't be around that long, made him their fifth-round pick in last April's NFL draft.

Asked whether he could envision himself in the same backfield with the Cowboys' Tony Dorsett, the 6foot-1, 222-pound Walker replied: "It'd be an honor.

He said he didn't experience any resentment when he and his huge contract arrived at the Generals' camp. "There were a lot of older guys on the team at that time. I think they were able to understand it a lot better.

DESPITE WINNING the rushing title with 1,812 yards as a rookie with virtually no break following his final year at Georgia - and finishing third in the league with 1,339 yards last year, Walker was considered by many to be a disappointment. Critics said he wasn't running with abandon, as he had in college.

Yields decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - Yields on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auctions, with rates once again nearing the fiveyear low set last month.

The Treasury Department sold $7.2 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 6.92 percent, down from last week's 7 percent. Another $7.2 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 7 percent, down from 7.08 percent last

The rates were the lowest since June 17 when three-month bills averaged 6.73 percent and sixmonth bills sold for 6.90 percent. Both of those rates were the lowest in five years.

The new Treasury bill discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 7.14 percent for three-month bills and 7.36 percent for six-month bills.

Dollar mixed

LONDON-(AP) - The dollar French currencies early today and turned in a mixed performance in Europe amid expectations that U.S. interest rates will fall. Gold prices were mixed. The French franc and the British pound have been the principal beneficiaries of the dollar's setbacks since Friday over speculation that the American economic recovery is slowing.

The pound sterling rose in London to $1.3920, its highest level since June 11 of last year. That compares with Tuesday's late rate of $1.36675.

In Paris, the dollar fell below nine French francs for the first time since last Sept. 4. It was quoted at 8.9300 francs, compared to 9.0350 francs late Tuesday

Expectations of lower U.S. interest rates continued to pressure the dollar. Dealers predicted that the U.S. Federal Reserve will move soon to cut its 7.5 percent discount rate to 7 per-

The dollar's troubles started last Friday, when the U.S. government reported unemployment in June unchanged at 7.3 percent, dealers said, and deepened this week when the U.S. currency fell below three West German marks on Monday, sparking a wave of heavy selling.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell from Tuesday's 246.05 yen to a closing 244.60 yen, its lowest level since ast Nov.22. Later, in London, it fell further to 243.50 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday: -2.9640 West German marks, up from 2.9560. -2.4505 Swiss francs, down from 2.4745. -3.3405 Dutch guilders, up from 3.3320. -1,897.50 Italian lire, up from 1.889.50.

-1.3520 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3536.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $313.00 an ounce, compared with late Tuesday's $315.25. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $314.70. In Zurich, the bid price was $315.50, up from $315.25 late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell at a bid $314.34.

Saudi threatens to quadruple oil production

PARIS (AP) — Saudi Arabia has threatened to more than quadruple oil production, a move that would likely trigger a price war that would send oil prices plummeting, unless OPEC colleagues renounce cheating on the group's price and production quotas, a senior Western official

The threat, said to be relayed by the Saudi oil minister to several governments after OPEC's inconclusive meeting last weekend, was more severe than an earlier warning from the kingdom last month.

The Western official, who spoke with reporters Tuesday during a meeting of the International Energy Agency, said Saudi Arabia is prepared to increase production from the current 20-year low of about 2 million barrels a day to as much as 9 zation of Petroleum Exporting duction quotas. Countries agree to its terms.

The official spoke only on the condition he not be identified and said he had no doubt about the authenticity of the Saudi message.

OPEC oil ministers ended three days of meetings in Vienna, Austria, on Sunday with a pledge to end cheating, but with no specific agreement on how to defend oil prices, which have been slipping because of oversupplies on world markets and widespread discounting by producers in and out of OPEC.

The organization is to meet again on July 22 in Geneva, Switzerland, and Saudi Arabia, which faces another huge deficit if oil income continues to slide, is seeking guaran-million barrels a day by year's end tees that the 13-nation group will unless other members of the Organi-

Saudi Arabia's first warning on stepped up production came during a meeting of nine OPEC ministers in Prudential Pipeline Co. a whollyowned, crude oil gathering subsidiary of Pride Refining Inc., has been reorganized into a new entity, Pride Pipeline Limited Partnership, ac-cording to Pride Refining officials.

Under the new arrangement, effective July 1, the Prudential Insurance Co. of America will have a limited partnership interest of slightly under 50 percent, while Pride Pipeline Co. will be the general partner conducting its crude oil gathering business under the same name and from the same Abilene offices on the 11th floor of the First State Bank Tower, 500 Chestnut. No changes in personnel are planned, officials said. Wayne Malone is chairman of the board; Bill Catlett, president; and Kent Finley, vice president.

UAW-Saturn pact offers glimpse into automotive industry future

WARREN, Mich. (AP) United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. are battling over GM's Saturn plants, but their leaders agree on a crucial point: the Saturn labor contract would change the U.S. auto industry forever.

For several months, the UAW and GM have been at work on a letter of intent that would form the basis for labor contract bargaining after the plant opens.

A tentative agreement was reached last week, but the 25-member UAW Executive Board, the union's ruling body, rejected it and sent the bargainers back to the table, where they remain this week.

Details of the pact were not released until Tuesday, when Peter Kelly, a dissident prominent within the union and president of Local 160 in Warren, gave copies of the 31page document to reporters and denounced it. Although not in its final form, the document shows that the UAW is willing to let go of union traditions that have grown deep roots in the industry. Those include the shop committee considered the heart of UAW locals, traditional grievance procedures and seniority rights. Also vanishing at the Saturn plant would be the array of job classifications which prevent one worker from doing another's job. At Saturn, there would be just one basic job class and a few other skilled trades

In their place would be unionmanagement committees. On the shop floors, workers would be assigned to teams and could switch chores. Such systems have been refined by the Japanese, and U.S. companies like GM say they must follow to remain competitive.

"For the last 50 years in the UAW we have had basically the indepe dent democratic right as trade unionists and as members on the floor to make our own decisions in relation to represented members," Kelly protested. "We are now supplanting that with a union-manage ent concensus system in Saturn.

Texas may still be in running

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - After another testing of the waters, U.S. Sen. Phill Gramm now says Texas may still be in the running as the location of the new General Motors Corp. Saturn plant.

Recounting a conversation with General Motors sources in Washington. Gramm, R-Texas, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Texas still is a contender for the economic plum pursued by several other states. Last week, Gramm said Texas more than likely would not be chosen as the site for the plant. Lack of positive signs from GM — and Texas' right-to-work laws — indicated the $5 billion Saturn project would go elsewhere, he said then.

Twe talked with GM every day to remind them the Lone Star flag is still flying," Gramm said Tuesday. "I'm proceeding on the assumption we're still in the hunt.' Gramm said he had maintained daily contact with General Motors officials in Washington for the past month as part of the state's bipartisan effort to bring the high technology plant to Texas. General Motors, which has seen the Saturn odyssey wind through six months of courting from nearly three dozen states, plans to employ 6,000 workers inside the plant. About 14,000 jobs will be created in related industries, GM officials have said Gramm tempered his optimism about the state's chances, saying he would have expected information to leak from various state agencies involved in the site selection as General Motors officials attempted to finalize arrangements to locate to Texas.

Several sites in Texas are reportedly under consideration, including tracts near Sherman, Longview and Fort Worth. Other states mentioned as prominent Saturn contenders are Michigan, Kentucky and Tennes

"I see inherent in this agreement $15.49, a few pennies higher than the demise of the UAW and the that made by current GM productrade union movement as we know tion workers

However, UAW officials who side with union President Owen Bieber said Kelly's is the way of the past and the union must accede to Japanese-style work environments to keep automakers from moving jobs to cheaper places overseas.

A union official who spoke on condition of anonymity responded to Kelly's charges of a sellout by pointing out that the $13.45 an hour for Saturn workers and the job security and benefits in the document "doesn't sound like a sellout to me." Skilled technicians would make

A company source close to the Saturn project said GM is unlikely to budge from its insistence on a revolutionary set of work rules for the plant.

The document gave no indication where GM might build the plant, except that provisions have been made for supplier companies to be active in running the plant complex and it would appear that GM wants to be near the suppliers.

The automaker has received lucrative bids from three dozen states and a decision is expected this month, according to GM sources.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Glasscock strike flows 93 barrels

From Staff Reports

UNION TEXAS PETROLEUM CORP., Midland, has completed the No. 2 TXL "3", a Glasscock County wildcat, to flow 93.5 barrels of crude, 61 Mcfd and no water on a 16/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 205 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 652:1. The well is flowing through perforations 7,286 to 7,310 ft., which had been acidized with 3,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Scheduled as a 10,800 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to a total depth of 10,025 ft. and plugged back to 7,335 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 7,366 ft.

Formation tops, on ground eleva-Ation of 2,706 ft., include the Strawn at 9,335 ft., Woodford at 9,751, Devonian at 9,796, Fusselman at 9,917, and the Sylvan at 10,001 ft. Pay was topped at 7,286 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from south and 1,560 ft. from west lines of Section 3, Block 33, T-5-S, T&P survey, 10 miles southeast of Garden City

Turkey burglar sentenced

LUBBOCK (AP) — A man convicted of stealing 16 frozen turkeys faces up to 75 years in prison after a state district court jury recommended the stiff sentence.

Harold Mackey, 31, of Lubbock was found guilty of burglarizing $200 worth of turkey from a tractor-trailer rig in November. The minimum sentence was raised by prosecutor Bill Sowder by showing Mackey's two prior burglary convictions.

The seven-man, five-woman jury took only 12 minutes Monday to find Mackey guilty of taking the birds from the refrigerated trailer parked near a South Lubbock restaurant about 1:30 a.m. Nov. 5.

Step 3). You may enter up to 10 requests per call. STOCK CODES

All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by your broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.

To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember: The first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1, " "2" or "3" indicating that letter's position on its own key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 22 61"; "BX" = "22 92." Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

"You haven't changed a bit!" Don't think you can look a potato in the "eyes" and get away with that old line. What a turn-off for your potatoes. After all, this versatile vegetable has literally given the skin off its back to accommodate eating in the eighties.

Nor could the popular potato use that same tasteless cliche on today's consumers. Why not? Because we've changed plenty too. Demographics are decidedly different this decade. They are impacting the way we shop, select recipes, prepare foods and plan menus. A look at today's lifestyles reveals that:

The teen market is no longer a "futures market." It is immediate. Those customers of tomorrow have been transformed into consumers of today. In addition to shopping for their own needs, many teens are making product and brand decisions for the entire family. Potato Skin Snacks are a new favorite food of the younger generation.

- 1 to 11/2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese (4 to 6 ounces)
- 8 slices bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled Dairy sour cream, if desired

Heat oven to 425°. Lightly grease cookie sheet. Prepare potatoes as directed on package for 4 servings exceptdecrease water to 1 cup. Stir in flour. Refrigerate until cool enough to handle, about 10 minutes. Divide dough into 16 equal parts. Shape each part into ball. Flatten balls to 4-inch thickness into oval shapes on cookie sheet; prick each several times with fork. Bake until edges and bottoms are dark brown, 20 to 25 minutes. Sprinkle cheese and bacon over tops. Bake until cheese is melted, 1 to 2 minutes longer. Serve with sour

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): Bake 25 to 30

More and more men are feeling at home pushing a grocery cart and making meals. Shopping and cooking are no longer "woman's work." By choice and out of necessity they are seeking foods and recipes, like Cheesy Potato Patties; quick and easy to prepare, with "gourmet" flair in taste and appearance.

Divide into 6 equal parts; shape each into patty. Coat patties with dry potatoes. Heat margarine in 10-inch skillet until melted. Cook patties over medium heat until golden brown, 3 to 4 minutes on each side. 6 patties.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): No adjustments are necessary.

The singular sensation of the 80's is changing food production and packaging more than any other lifestyle. From young singles to seniors, those cooking for one or a few are seeking nutritious, quality products and recipes with convenient preparation and minimal clean-up. One-Pan Chicken Fiesta and Potatoes Italiano are elegant meals for two or three diners.

Shortbread goes to reunion

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

As you would expect, food pro-vides special pleasure at family re-unions. Members of a "clan" often bring old standbys and new

When I heard that a friend of mine baked Almond Shortbread Cookies to take to a recent North Carolina reunion, I asked her for the recipe. With it she sent this delightful account of her memories of the foods served.

"When I was young, our family reunions were Sunday affairs that took place on my Granddaddy's farm where long tables, covered with snow-white tablecloths, were set up under the oak trees. In those days I was more interested in playing with my dozens of cousins than in the vast expanse of food. Howev-er, I remember vividly the sandwiches my mother brought, easily picked out from others because my mother cut off all the crusts. And her fillings were always the same some pimiento cheese, some cream cheese with chopped stuffed olives or with crushed pineapple. "After I moved to New York, married and had children, I seldom had a chance to attend the annual reunions. But two years ago, after more than three decades of missed reunions, I made the pilgrimage. Would any of the old familiar foods be there? Yes, fried chicken, of course. And an aunt brought a North Carolina favorite called North Carolina favorite called Chicken and Dumplings but topped with pastry strips. Another aunt made her old standby, Banana Cake, looking exactly like the Banana Cake I first tasted as a teenager.

"The recipe for the Almond Shortbread Cookies came from The Carolina Collection," a fine regional cook.

lina Collection,' a fine regional cookbook. It was published by The Junior League of Fayetteville, N.C., in 1978 and is still available."

We have on many occasions expressed our dislike for the Unusual No Trump convention. We feel it should be used only in those cases where you think you can buy the contract or where you are reasonably sure that a profitable sacrifice is available. This hand from the recent International Team Trials bears out our contention.

At this vulnerability, it is highly doubtful that East-West would want to sacrifice, and West certainly has no reason to think that he can buy the contract at the three-level or higher. Nevertheless, West elected to overcall two no trump, thereby drawing a blueprint of his hand for declarer.

South won the opening heart lead in dummy, led the jack of spades to his king, then crossed back to the table with a successful club finesse. He led the ten of spades to pick up both outstanding trumps, conceded two diamond tricks and claimed his contract.

Mayor won't be giving Madonna key to city because of nude photos

CHICAGO (AP) — While Playboy tries to skin Penthouse in a race to publish nude pictures of Madonna, the mayor of the sultry singer's hometown says he is withdrawing an offer to give her a key to the city because of the photos.

Playboy's September issue, featur-ing nude poses by Madonna, will be on newsstands in major cities by Tuesday. Outlets in the rest of the country are to receive the issue by the end of next week.

Penthouse had announced its plans Sunday to publish in an unspecified issue nude photos of the rock star, known for her risque costumes and suggestive caressing onstage.
"No key to the city for Madonna,"
Mayor Timothy Sullivan of Bay City,

Mich., said Tuesday. "We'll give her a warm welcome, but the key represents the citizens of the community, and it would not be in good taste to give her the key given certain circumstances. Madonna Louise Veronica Cic-

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Director Peter Bogdanovich says he will abide by an ethics committee recommendation to drop his lawsuit against Universal Pictures if the company agrees to go to arbitration in a dispute over editing of the film "Mask." The recommendations were made Tuesday by the Professional Standards Committee of the Directors Guild of America. Bogdanovich said through a spokesman that he believed the committee "has done a fair job" and was "prepared to abide by its recommendations."

The dispute centered on last-minute changes in the film that Bogdanovich contends were made

No oxen perished at 'Sonoma Ox-Roast'

By MERLE ELLIS

It's called an "Ox-Roast." They don't actually roast an ox anymore.
They probably never did. But it has such a nice ring to it, doesn't it—
The Sonoma Ox-Roast.
Held in the historic Sonoma Plaza

on the first Sunday of June every year, the Sonoma Ox-Roast is one of the many gastronomic events in the California wine country, and like the city of Sonoma itself, it has a long and illustrious history.

According to George Sutter, head cook at this year's roast (and, incidentally, descendant of the man who owned the mill where gold was discovered in California), the event dates back to the days when the flag of Spain flew over the plaza. Ranchers would come in for a spring fiesta, put an ox on a spit over the coals and then take turns turning it while everybody sang and danced and drank a little tequila.

"WE STOPPED roasting a whole ox a few years back," George told me. "It's not really very practical." The loin and ribs get done before the rounds get cooked through and there is a great deal of difference in the degree of tenderness from one part of the animal to another.

Copley News Service

If you wanted to cover your nudity, you could do better than fig leaves, for their raspy surface would make them uncomfortable to wear. However, they do keep their moisture for a long time and are used for wrapping goat's cheese and fruit.

Midland Park Mall 697-5621

"It used to be a lot of fun, though," George added. "We'd start about 5 p.m. on Saturday, build the fire, spike the meat and season it with our special ox-roast seasoning, then we'd roast it all night long."

"You know how we used to tell when it was done?" one of George's helpers asked, as he leaned on the handle of a rake they use to smooth out the coals. "We'd put out four quarts of tequila and when the cooks had finished that 'sauce', the ox was done."

They roast boneless beef rounds these days, 3000 pounds of top round, bottom round and round tips (sirloin tips). The hunks of meat, 8 to 12 pounds each, are rubbed well with a special ox-roast seasoning. It's a secret blend, of course, and available only in Sonoma at the Sonoma Cheese Factory (2 Spain Street, Sonoma, CA 95476). The recipe that follows is my own adaptation.

THE MEAT is grilled over hardwood charcoal briquets. The pieces are first cooked 30 minutes on each side to sear in the juices, then they are turned every hour 'til done, usually about four hours.

The beef is served very simply, unadorned by any fancy sauce, with an ear of buttered corn, a tossed salad are two of the cuts they use in Sonand a thick slice of Sonoma French oma that I would recommend. The bread. It's a marvelous meal.

Having a small version of the Sonoma ox-roast in your own backyard is fun and a fairly simple way to entertain on almost any summer Sunday or holiday. You can duplicate, on a smaller scale, what they do on the plaza in Sonoma, with almost any type of barbecue grill, but my preferance is for one with a spit so I can roast my piece of ox the old-fashioned way.

Any one of several cuts of beef may be used. The best by far, however, is a rib-eye roll. They don't use that to feed the masses at the Sonoma Ox-Roast - it is a bit too expensive for that - but for the best in a backyard ox-roast, that is the cut I would recommend. It is just the boneless heart of the standing rib. It is uniform in thickness from one end to the other, cooks evenly and turns nicely on a spit.

IT IS well-marbled with streaks of fat inside the meat, which bastes the roast as it turns. If you're using a grill without a rotisserie, be sure to put a drip pan under the meat to minimize flare ups.

The top-ground and the sirloin tip bottom round, however, is a little on the tough side cooked over open coals. In a covered cooker, with a lot of tender loving care, it can be okay, but notfor an ox-roast. The same is true of the shoulder cuts, chuck and shoulder clod. Any roast cooked over coals will come off better, more juicy and fla-vorful, if cooked long and slow over moderate heat. So don't use enough charcoal to cook a whole ox just for a piece of one.

OX-ROAST SEASONING tablespoons salt tablespoons coarsely-ground black epper tablespoon garlic powder

tablespoon paprika tablespoon hickory smoked salt tablespoon curry powder tablespoon celery salt

tablespoon parsley flakes

teaspoons thyme teaspoons tarragon teaspoons oregano Mix all ingredients together. Puncture roast all over with a fork. Sprinkle on seasoning and rub into the meat well. Let sit at room temperature for 20 minutes before putting the meat on the spit or the grill. Corn on the cob is a must when serving up an ox, and traditional at the Sonoma Ox-Roast. The best way I have found of doing it, however, I did not find there. This is the way we used to do it at fourth of July picnics at the city park in Ponca, Nebraska, when I was a kid.

Buy corn with the husks still intact and snug up around the ear.

Don't do anything to them in the way of trimming or husking or anything. Make asolution — enough to cover the corn in a big pan (we used to use a wash tub) - using a cup of salt per gallonof water. Soak the corn for 30- to 45-minutes in the salt water, then drain the ears and place them on the grill over the coals. Cook for 15 to 20 minutes, turning often 'till the husks are charred all

Using heavy gloves, take the corn off the grill and peel back the husks to form a handle (the silks come off much easier after cooking). Using the husks as a handle, rub the ear of corn across a block of well-chilled butter, sprinkle on a little salt and gnaw away.

Brandy Cherries sweet BRANDY CHERRIES

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

Brandying cherries is a favorite way to "put up" sweet red cherries in early summertime in many American homes. If you have not yet giv-en yourself the pleasure of doing this, you may want to try it this year. We suggest you grab the moment — the fresh cherry season is short.

Over the years we have made Brandy Cherries in various ways, altering the proportions of sugar and brandy, using pitted or unpitted cherries, removing the stems or not. Finally we settled on the formula given here. Followed to the letter, it will produce a wonderful concoction to serve over ice cream, custards, rice and bread puddings.

Rinse and drain 14 pounds dark red sweet cherries; stem and pit, leaving whole — there should be about 4 cups. Into a straight-sided crock turn cherries, 2 cups sugar and 1 cup brandy. Do not stir. Store, covered, in a cool dark place. Weigh down with a wad of saran and a glass paperweight so as to have cherries submerged — this way they will keep their pretty color. Each day keep their pretty color. Each day, using a large spoon, turn cherries over, but resist all temptation to stir into the sugar quickly. Continue this process - it should take weeks and weeks — until sugar is dissolved and cherries are as brandied as you like. When ready, store weighed down and covered in a cool dark place or

Health agencies unsure of impact of cuts

By RON GILMORE Staff Writer

A recent decision by the Reagan administration to cut an additional $225 million from Medicare spending has local home health agencies unsure of what to expect.

The cut, following past Reagan policies reducing Medicare spending, will impose new limits on pay-ments for home health care and for medical education and could affect up to 70 percent of home health care specialists.

Reaction has been mixed.

"It will have a wide-reaching effect on the home health care industry in general," said John Schmidt, of Contact Medical Service. There are some things that are Schmidt indicated that Contact would be affected "very little if at all" by the cuts.

"We're almost 100 percent privately insured," he said. Schmidt predicted that increasingly tighter Medicare budgets would force more home health agencies to honor mostly private insurance.

"I think that's the way the industry is going," he said.

Two other agencies did not expect to suffer from the decision.

"To the best of my knowledge, the Health Care Finance Administration has not yet decided how the cuts will be done," said Maureen Cox, Medicare director for Nurses Unlimited. "I'm assuming that they will lower some ceilings.

"However, if a home health care agency is well-managed and cost-effective, there shouldn't be too much of a problem." which have interns; Midland has no such facility.

The two areas were included in

According to Ms. Cox, Nurses Unlimited is already examining alternate plans, should the cuts have an impact.

"Unfortunately, we often don't hear about these things until the press does," she said. "We're looking at several ways of handling it."

Tom Harrell, owner of Healthcare Services Inc., appears confident that the spending cuts will not harm his business.

'We don't feel that this will have any effect on us," he said. "We are already operating at one-half the cost of the limits that they have at this time. Since 1972, we've operated so low we don't feel we'll have a direct effect."

The spending cuts also affect medical education, primarily at hospitals

The two areas were included in Reagan's 1986 budget plan to trim the growth in Medicare spending by $3.9 billion and hold spending for the health insurance program for the nation's elderly and disabled to $77.2 billion, said a July 6 Dallas

Morning News article. The largest proposal, freezing Medicare payments to hospitals at their 1985 levels, was formally offered as a regulation last month and carried an estimated saving of $1.8 billion. The home health regulation affects payments to specialists in six fields — skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech pathology, occupational therapy, medical social services and health aides.

"I want to emphasize that these rules do not impose any new costs for beneficiaries, nor do they affect the number of visits an agency may furnish to Medicare patients," said Health and Human Services Secretary, Margaret Heckler. But they will indeed apply needed pressure on the higher-cost home health agencies to bring their costs into line.

However, the department noted that, if present billing practices continue unchanged, about 70 percent of the 5,640 home health care agencies participating in Medicare would violate the new cap and would be denied full reimbursement.

HHS said it expected most of those specialists to trim their rates to match the new caps, said a spokes-

But according to Chairman of the House Aging Committee Edward Roybal, D.-Calif., they would instead pull out of the program leaving Medicare patients without care.

"The change would translate into millions of denied home health visits to elderly Americans," he said.

"The administration is only kidding itself if they think the 70 percent of all providers affected...can and will simply pull in their belts to absorb the budget cuts," he said. "Many of these will be forced to pull out of Medicare. In the end, the squeeze on providers is squeezing out people from the care they

Savings from the home health care changes are uncertain, said the article. Mrs. Heckler's statement pegged the savings at $102 million over three years, the low estimate. Tables in the regulation itself offered a high estimate of $443 million over five years.

Midland council denies permits to two churches

Tuesday just wasn't the day for religion in City Hall.

Two requests by religious organizations were denied by Midland City Council during a regular session in City Hall after neighbors voiced their objections.

In one public hearing, Christian specific use permit for a day nursery and in the other the Seventh-day Adventist Church was asking for a permit to hold a tent revival.

Sam Listi, city planner, said the Christian Church at 2608 Neely had purchased a house adjacent to the church property and was converting it for use as a day nursery. It would handle 22 children and operate from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Fri-

Heritage School has been located at the Christian Church since 1980 and has had permits from the state. "We set this up as a function of the church. It's a break-even cost for us," he said of the $75 per month per child fee.

The nursery already has been operating in the church building, according to Vaughan. "The property was purchased for church expansion, not for the school. We felt it would be more economical to move the children into this house. We also use the house for Sunday School classes Objecting was John Oschner, 2215 Huntington, who opposed what he called "the commercial venture. It is a commercial venture in a residential area. You can make a nice profit by operating a day care nursery." If the permit was granted, said Oschner, the council would be setting a precedent for a church to buy any property at any location and open a business.

Mrs. Bill Kimball, 2513 Neeley, said she felt "a commercial enterprise like this will tear our neighborhood down so people won't want to come in and raise their children."

This is a very difficult question because of the special relationship we like to see with a church and neighborhood. But we don't want churches involved in something disruptive to the neighborhood setting," said Akins. He disagreed with the argument that the nursery is a profitable venture.

Odessa murder trial continues

ODESSA - The murder trial of 35-year-old Danny Fletcher McCubbin continues in 161st District Court this morning, and District Attorney Eric Augesen was expected to rest the state's case before the noon

A jury of eight men and four women Tuesday afternoon began hearing testimony in the trial of McCubbin, accused of the Sept. 5. 1984, killing of 47-year-old Curtis

The second witness to testify was pathologist Dr. Robert Bright. McCubbin is alleged to have fired three shots into Smith as he lay on the ground near his vehicle after being shot twice with a shotgun by 32-year-old Kenneth Wayne Richards, who has been convicted of the crime and sentenced to 99 years

Responding to questions from Augesen Tuesday afternoon, Bright explained that the two shotgun blasts hit Curtis in the neck and temple area of the head and that bullets from the handgun hit in some of the same areas. He couldn't tell which of the shots killed Smith, after jury selection was completed Bright said, because "all of the shots occurred when the victim had a pumping heart," thus any one of the five shots could have killed Smith.

McCubbin's defense attorney, G. David Smith, had been expected to argue McCubbin shouldn't be charged with murder, contending Smith was already dead when the final three shots were fired.

Apparently anticipating Smith's strategy, Augesen sought to blunt that argument by allowing Bright to explain in detail that any of the gunshot wounds would have been fatal.

prohibited from leaving campus during the school day.

The committee, headed by assistant superintendent Garland Chapman, resulted after about 40 persons signed petitions requesting that school trustees close the campuses to help curb congested traffic and substance abuse problems which are reportedly associated with students leaving the school grounds.

The movement has been supported by local law enforcement officials, leaders of various substance abuse programs and the majority of school board members. In a random interview with various Midlanders, several expressed displeasure over closing the campuses, noting that such a proposal would be "adverse,"

"They're (students) going to do that (use drugs and alcohol) anyway," he said.

Midland High teacher-coach wins trip to Europe at CentennialFest

From Staff Reports

Midland schoolteacher-coach Johnny Williams and his wife, Margaret, are in a quandary about just where to go when they go abroad.

What to do will come next. Williams, one of 50-plus Midland Centennial Citizens, won a free trip for two to Europe after his name was drawn from a hat at the close of Midland's CentennialFest.

'It'll be an experience for us." Williams, 59, said Tuesday from his cabin in Ruidoso, N.M.

"We're excited about it," said his wife, a counselor at Midland's Robert E. Lee High School. "We've been looking at brochures."

The reason they're pursuing brochures is that American Airlines has expanded its offering by affording them a choice of round-trip flights to one of three European cities: London, Paris or Frankfurt. At the outset, the prize was to be a free trip to London, but the airline added the options of Paris or Frankfurt.

"That's a hard choice," said Mrs. Williams. "I've been sitting here all afternoon reading about all three of them. We just think it's fantastic. It just puts us in a quandary. Now, it's which city to choose."

BIG SPRING (AP) — State leaders including Gov. Mark White are expected to be on hand tonight for a celebration for law-makers who helped fight for the Stacy Dam and Reservoir.

Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District in Big Spring, said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and legisla-tors also plan to attend the "lighthearted get-together" at the Big Spring Country Club.

The party will "celebrate a hard-fought victory to get the reservoir approved," said state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock. "I think it obviously has political Montford and legislators had tied approval of the dam's water rights permit to their support for a sweeping, statewide water bill passed earlier this year.

"West Texas in general is going to be unwilling to sign on to a water package if they don't get this lake (Stacy Reservoir) built," Montford has said.

In April, after a seven-year fight by the Big Spring water district, the Texas Water Commisorado River water rights necessary to fill the reservoir.

Another water district, the Austin-based Lower Colorado River Authority, had opposed the reservoir and filed suit to stop construction after the permit won initial approval in 1978.

Last November, the case reached the Texas Supreme Court, which overturned the permit and instructed the two water districts to forge a compromise.

The reservoir, to be constructed near Ballinger about 140 miles east of Odessa, will cover 31 square miles, surrounded by a 200-mile shoreline, Ivie has said

Anti-abortion, pro-choice groups face off in Dallas on eve of debate

DALLAS (AP) — On the eve of a debate on restricting protests at abortion clinics, demonstrators on both sides of the issue turned out in a boisterous display after an antiabortion group met to dedicate a sign atop an abortion clinic.

About 200 people, some carrying signs depicting aborted fetuses and shouting slogans, demonstrated at the Routh Street Women's Clinic Tuesday, with one group protesting the clinic's existence and the other supporting its right to be there.

planned the gathering Tuesday to dedicate a billboard reading "Abortion Is Murder" on top of the building that houses the clinic.

In response, a group of people who support free choice for women also gathered at the clinic to stage a "silent vigil" for their viewpoint.

Although Dallas police officers enforced distance between the two factions, a bomb threat telephoned to the clinic temporarily forced the groups away from the building as a safety precaution, although no bomb was found, police said.

And the faceoff, while not the first between the two groups, mirrored the increasing debate over abortion in Dallas that has brought regular picketing of area clinics, repeated bomb threats and heated public speechmaking, spokesmen "Our posture now is to just moni-

The group of about 200 was separated by about 30 police officers, but their shouted slogans and brightly painted signs — some depicting aborted fetuses — bridged the distance during the approximately two-hour event.

An anti-abortion member held a loudspeaker aloft, which played the sound of a crying baby — the "cries of the unborn," he said, calling the pro-choice contingent "wretches. "One of the things we wanted to protest," Ms. Hellman said, "was the pro-life people using builhorns to scream incredibly obscene things in the windows of the clinic.' The clinic was not opened Tues-of this until some time after Smith had been killed. During Richards' trial in May, his attorney, Michael McLeaish, alleged that Smith and Richards had gotten into an argument because Smith wanted to buy another load of stolen diesel fuel and Richards purportedly told him he couldn't get any more, that he was under suspicion, that he only wanted his money for what had already been delivered. The two men allegedly fought and Smith was killed in what McLeaish described as a falling out among thieves. Other witnesses called to testify by the prosecution include Ector County Sheriff's Identification Officer Mac McCray, who gathered evidence at the crime scene and Lt.

Jerry Davis, who headed up the investigation.

Thomas: 'Miami Vice' is 'alchemy on film'

By CHARLOTTE PORTER Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Philip Michael Thomas bent over an envelope, working out the numerological charts of a visitor, and mused, "My life is so interesting."

With that gem of an understatement, the co-star of NBC's hit series, "Miami Vice," proceeded to spend the next 20 minutes discussing what the charts showed him about his vis-

It's not that Thomas is reticent. "This helps me stimulate my mind," he explained.

So what do his calculations show him about himself?

"I am on such a strong power. I just turned 36, which is a nine — three plus six is nine — and after this year it's like ones and eights. power, power, power, all the Thomas, who says he never had to follow the path of many actors and wash dishes for a living, now finds himself at the center of a hurricane of attention created by "Miami Vice," a series he likens to "alchemy on film.'

If it is sometimes scary, it comes to him as no surprise after a career that began at age 19 when he won a part in the San Francisco production

"I MUST ADMIT I get taken aback sometimes but I knew it would happen, and knew it would happen when I first got in the business because I've never settled for less than 100 percent."

Thomas is a man of contagious self-confidence. His energy is almost palpable; his mind flashes at Mach speed from subject to subject, ranging in the span of a few minutes from computers to ancient Egypt to space travel to television. He's brimming with plans for his new album, a possible TV special and a line of women's clothing, full of praise for his co-workers on "Miami Vice" and eager to show others a path they can follow to suc-

"It has been like a life and death struggle almost every day," he said in an interview. "Music to me was life. At any point, the thought of not being able to continue as a pianist was a terrifying one. I felt I must go on; it was horrendous but I did." "I thought, 'I may not be able to play much any more.' The thought occurred to me that there is one thing to do, to help others. I have, after all, done this for 12 years and that in itself I think would be of help to others, to know what you can do under such a circumstance."

THOMAS PLAYS Ricardo Tubbs, a New York beat cop who follows his brother's killer to Miami and winds up staying to work with vice detective Sonny Crockett, played by Don

"Philip has immense natural talent, immense grace," said "Miami Vice" executive producer Michael Mann.

Mann said Thomas represents "a new kind of black man on television, and movies as far as that goes" - an extremely sophisticated, urbane black man who's proud of and draws from black culture...without making it into his identity.'

"That's very nice," said Thomas. "I couldn't have said it any better." For his part, Thomas calls himself "American gumbo" — part American black, part American Indian, part Irish and part German. It's a combination that hasn't always been irresistible to imagemakers. Thomas, who has green eyes and coppery skin, recalls making the rounds of modeling agencies only to have them say, "Uh...what are you?"

"Isn't it interesting the way times change?" he asked. When he first went after the role of Tubbs, "they thought I was a ter-rific actor but I wasn't right for the part.

"I was in the last 10 of the Tubbses and Don was in the last 10 of the Crocketts." Thomas was almost out the door when he was called back to read with Johnson. "The magic was there and they saw it...and the rest

NOW, THE RATINGS are way up and he's being mobbed by fans. "The phenomenon that is taking place across the board on all dimensions, not only just the covers of magazines but what is happening in the hearts of people that watch it every Friday night, it blows my mind," he said.

Thomas sees "Miami Vice" as a stepping stone in his five-year plan to win each of the major entertainment awards - the Emmy, the Grammy, the Oscar and the Tony.

"It feels so good to know that you're there," he said. "It's no longer a dream...I am living it.

Meanwhile, "I'm still learning to work harder than ever, to keep it moving," he said. "It's been fantastic, but I recognize that I've got to go back to the drawing board, continue to be creative, continue to let the light shine and continue to be multidimensional.

'Jockocracy' commentates on commentating

Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Howard Cosell may be gone from a regular high-visibility role in network television, such as ABC's "Monday Night Football," but his words live on in mem-

Cosell and words go together like beer and potbellies. One of the words the lawyer-turned-sportscaster coined was "jockocracy," which he used to put down ex-athletes who leap into the broadcasting booth on the basis of their on-the-field reputations, rather than any announcing or journalistic expertise.

In so doing, Cosell earned himself a permanent place in the hall of shame of his former Monday-night colleagues — jocks all — and among other broadcasters who once played the game. NBC, holding its previews of new fall TV shows here, brought in several of its sports commentators and executives. There among them was a former jock - former NFL wide receiver Ahmad Rashad, now a commentator for NBC - so inevitably the fairness and accuracy of Cosell's nasty words were brought up.

"Cosell takes a position that is largely self-serving," Bob Costas, host of NBC's NFL pregame shows each fall and winter, said.

It's fairly easy to guess that Rashad would agree: "When I watch sports, I enjoy listening to someone who has played the game, even if he doesn't have perfect English or is illiterate." Ouch, Ahmad.

The network sports people agreed that sports play-by-play people and commentators in this land of ours ought to lighten up.

Sports are taken too seriously in America," Costas noted soberly, and I think the NFL is the worst offender. They think it's so much a matter of life and death to win games on a playing field...They put Roman numerals on the Super Bowl as though it's the end of the world."

Sports producer John Filippelli agreed: "We're not doing the SALT talks in Geneva, or the Ten Commandments. We're here (in the broadcasting booth) to have fun...We're a little irreverent at times, but by and large we have been good for the NFL...and good for the network...I certainly wouldn't want sidebar humor to overshadow covering the game. being perceived as flesh-and-blood mortals these days instead of heavenly heroes, opted for the first view: "The majority of players get some relief over not having people think they're gods and having to act as though they are."

Pete Axthelm, commentator and prognosticator, said he doesn't think his often-inaccurate predictions on the outcome of NFL games hurts him professionally.
