Reagan undergoes surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will undergo surgery today for a large, potentially cancerous growth in his colon that doctors discovered when they removed a smaller, benign polyp on Friday.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the fleshy intestinal polyp, believed to be "precancerous" but still being studied by doctors, was discovered during a thorough examination of Reagan's intestine at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The three-hour surgery is to be performed by Navy Capt. Dale Oller, chief of general surgery at the military hospital, who was quoted as saying, "The president is in superior condition, and chances for a normal and full recovery are excellent."

Asked if there would be a temporary transfer of power to Vice President George Bush, Speakes would say only that, "We are prepared for any contingency. Whatever needs to be done we can do. Whatever is required to be done we will do."

Bush, who was scheduled to spend the weekend at his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, planned to remain there and was in touch with the White House, Speakes said.

Doctors won't know whether the large growth is malignant until a biopsy — a microscopic examination of a tissue sample — is completed Saturday.

Asked how large the growth is, Speakes refused to be specific, saying only that it is "large."

The smaller, benign polyp that doctors had planned to remove during the procedure was taken out without incident, Speakes said, but the new growth requires more extensive surgery.

The spokesman said Reagan, 74, was told by his doctors of the need for further surgery and given a choice of having it immediately or putting it off for two or three weeks, and he chose to have it done immediately.

Speakes said the president was

Reagan's condition linked to condition of growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The severity of President Reagan's medical condition will depend upon whether the "potentially cancerous growth" found in his colon is actually cancer and how deeply the growth has penetrated his intestinal wall, experts said Friday.

Doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital discovered a large, "precancerous" polyp in Reagan's colon while removing a smaller, benign one. The president elected to have the new growth surgically removed on Saturday.

"resting comfortably" and in "good spirits" after the examination, which took just over an hour. As had been planned, he remained in the hospital overnight.

As a special security precaution, a tractor-trailer truck blocked the hospital's main entrance and Navy police wearing pistol belts patrolled the grounds.

Cancer results from a multi-staged, pathological change in normal cells that leads to the uncontrolled growth known as malignancy.

Early signs of these changes in cells, including changes in their structure and appearance, are called "precancerous" because they portend the progression to full-blown cancer.

Speakes said Reagan would undergo surgery at mid-day Saturday under general anesthesia. If the operation goes as expected, the president will remain in the hospital for a week to 10 days.

The Cabinet and congressional leaders have been informed of the president's condition, Speakes added.

Entering the hospital early Friday afternoon wearing a Western-style sport shirt and casual slacks, Reagan smiled and told reporters he felt "fine." He was accompanied by his wife, Nancy.

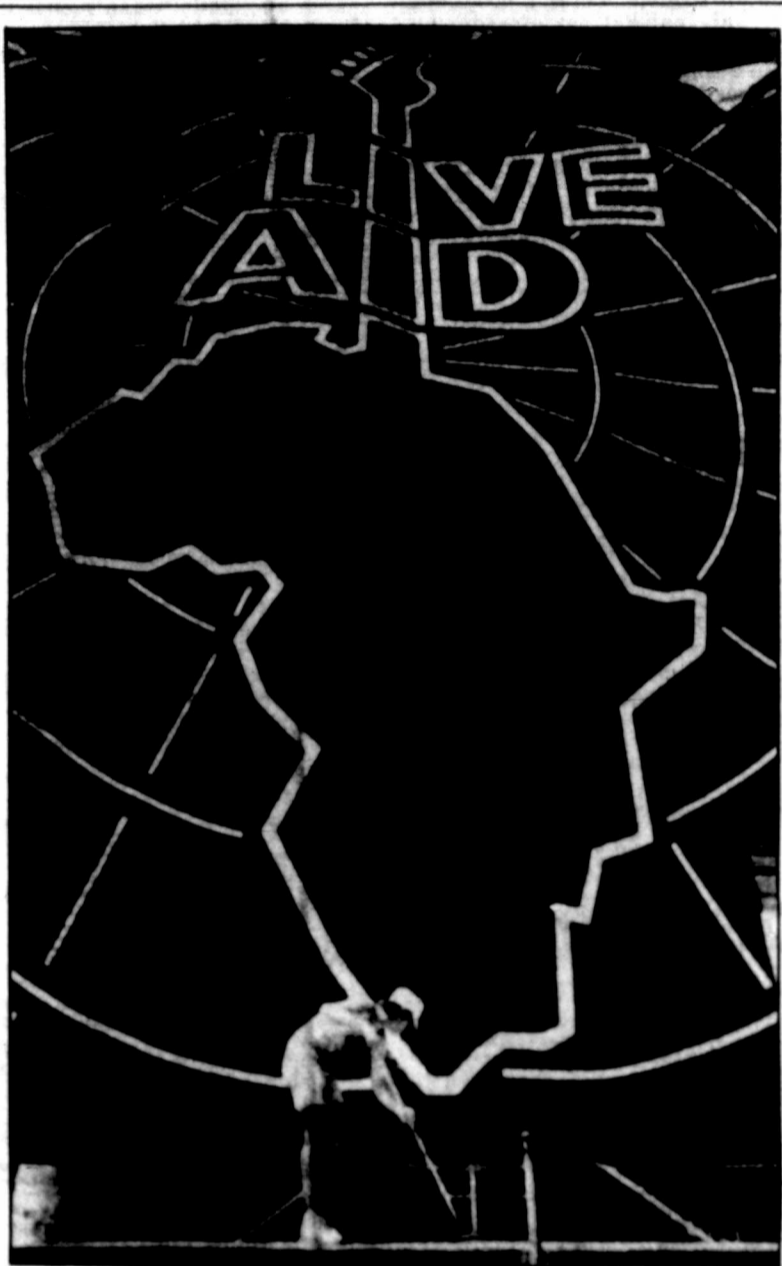

Speakes, who was briefed by Reagan's doctors after the examination, described the growth as a "large villus adenomatous-appearing polyp in the cecum," which is at the top of the large intestine, where the colon joins the small intestine.

To remove the polyp, doctors will make an incision in Reagan's abdomen and cut through the colon on the right side in a procedure known as a "formal right colectomy."

Friday's procedure involved insertion of a long, flexible tube into the colon. The polyp that doctors did remove was discovered during Reagan's physical examination in March. A similar small polyp was found less than a year earlier, and part of it was removed for microscopic examination, which showed the growth was benign, or non-cancerous, Speakes said at the time.

When doctors re-examined Reagan in March, they found no evidence of the first polyp and concluded most of it had been removed during the biopsy and apparently had healed without need for further treatment.

Such growths are fairly common among people over age 50

A worker rolls paint on the walkway leading to the Live Aid concert stage in Philadelphia Friday. The two-story banner, one of two hung on each side of the stage, hides the scaffolding.

'Live Aid' concert readies to go live

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Workmen put the finishing touches on the giant stage, linked electronically to a concert site in Britain, that on Saturday becomes the scene of the world's biggest rock bash to aid the hungry in Africa.

"Worldwide, it's costing $4 million to put on, half for television arrangements, but we expect to net over $30 million," said Larry Magid whose Electric Factory Concerts is one of the local producers of the 16-hour Live Aid extravaganza. Because of higher American costs, the expenses here account for $3 million of the total.

"Already we have some $14.5 million in the till which includes $6.5 million from live gate receipts in Philadelphia and London, plus $8 million from TV, radio rights and corporate sponsors," Magid said Friday.

He said organizers hope that souvenirs, such as T-shirts and buttons, refreshments and appeals for cash pledges over the worldwide broadcast network will bring in an additional $20 million.

Magid, like everybody else, was awed by the magnitude of the project, expected to reach more than 2 billion people.

"It's the biggest thing anybody in this business has ever tried," he said.

The stage at the John F. Kennedy Stadium here is a jungle gym of pipe 107 feet tall, 321 feet wide with a 150-foot revolving performing area lighted by more than 400 spotlights and surrounded by 450 amplifiers that will carry the sound for two miles.

"It's incredible," said David Anderson, 27, of Valley Forge, one of more than 200 carpenters, electricians and sound persons working since July 1 to put together the show.

Engines shut off seconds before liftoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — All three engines on space shuttle Challenger ignited, nearly reached full power, then shut down three heart-stopping seconds before scheduled liftoff Friday. The crew was disappointed, but safe.

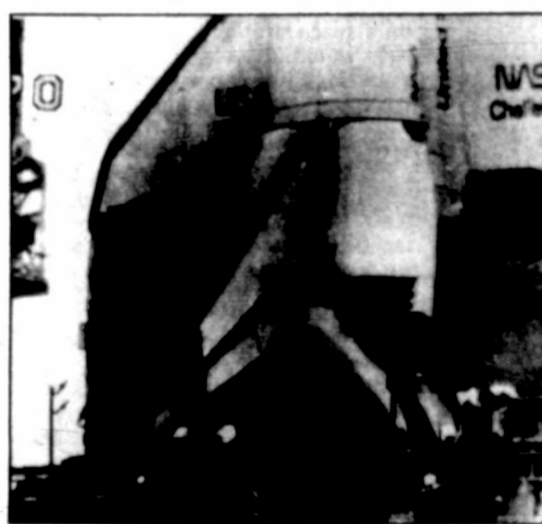

The ship was loaded with more than 500,000 gallons of fuel. A water spray system was turned on immediately, and there was no fire.

Officials said the launch cannot be tried again for at least seven to 10 days, depending what problems engineers find when the No. 2 engine is dismantled. Indications were that the postponement could be much longer.

Robert Lindstrom, a NASA official, said the shuttle's onboard computer sensed a problem with the closing of a hydrogen coolant valve on the No. 2 engine and commanded shutdown of the whole system.

It was a replay of a failure a year ago, which caused a flight delay of more than two months. The June 1984 failure was in a different valve and on a different shuttle, Discovery.

The engines ignite 6.6 seconds before liftoff, so that they can reach full power before the shuttle's attached solid rocket boosters fire. The boosters had not lit when the shutdown occurred.

A backup channel on the engine valve worked properly and would have allowed the flight to continue, Lindstrom said, but NASA rules forbid a liftoff unless all valves of that type have working primary and backup systems.

"We want the redundancy so we that we would not have a problem in flight where we had only one control channel available to us."

The valve, one of five, regulates the amount of hydrogen that goes into the engine chamber to cool it quickly for the main flow of fuel to come.

The officials did not know immediately whether the problem was the valve itself, the electronics that control it, or the wiring to those controls.

It was the second time in 19 launches that a liftoff had been stopped after the engines ignited.

The first time was on June 26, 1984, when Discovery's maiden launch was aborted, with four seconds to go before liftoff.

Then, only one engine had fired and another was starting up. The engines are fired 120 milliseconds apart.

"All three main engines fired and reached full power level," said NASA's Jim Ball soon after the abort. But later, Lindstrom said only two of the engines had reached full power and the third was close to it.

The seven-man crew remained aboard the shuttle while automatic fire sprays engulfed the ship's engines, lest any vapors from the more than 500,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen were to escape and burst into flame.

Challenger was scheduled for a seven-day stargazing flight, described as "the most ambitious scientific mission flown by any government anywhere at any one time."

Mobil taking aggressive position in Permian Basin

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

"Midland is very important to Mobil," said Fines Martin, president and general manager of Mobil Producing Texas & New Mexico Inc., in a press conference at Midland Petroleum Club, Friday. "This producing area generates about $1 billion annually for Mobil."

In Midland to explain the recent restructuring of the firm, Fines said Mobil would be taking an aggressive position in exploration and development in the Permian Basin through the new division office. The company has planned capital expenditures of $250 million and an estimated expense budget of $250 million. The restructuring also involved the relocation of 166 families to Midland and the hiring of 30 additional employees here, following the merger with Superior Oil Co.

"While other oil firms are moving to metropolitan areas to centralise operations, it is very logical that we should be returning to Midland," said Fines. "Midland is the heart of a large array of both Mobil and Superior properties. We have lots of work to be done in existing fields and some exciting exploration opportunities with a large inventory of acreage to be evaluated."

The restructuring marks a return of a Mobil Division to Midland. The company centralized its operations in 1976, moving many employees out of Midland. With the return of a division office to Midland, Mobil will employ 365 at Midland and about 700 in the field to oversee the expanded inventory of oil and gas properties.

Five districts including the Hobbs, Monahans, Snyder, North Texas and Pegasus districts will report to the Midland Division.

Following the acquisition of Superior properties the Mobil inventory includes 15,539 oil wells of which almost 5,000 are operated by Mobil and 1,221 gas wells of which 941 are operated by Mobil. Production includes: 90,000 barrels of oil per day; 330 million cubic feet of gas per day and 16,000 barrels of natural gas liquids.

Mobil also sells about 29 million cubic feet of carbon dioxide daily, being a partner with Shell in the McElmo Dome field of Southwestern Colorado and the pipeline to Denver City.

A.G. Peperone, exploration and production manager of the Midland Division, said the firm's strong position in carbon dioxide would make it an aggressive contender in the move to bring tertiary projects to the Basin. He said Mobil has immediate plans to initiate an enhanced oil recovery project in the H.O. Mahoney lease of the Wasson field, which would involve 640 acres and 32 wells. It will be the second tertiary project for Mobil, which has operated the GMK CO₂ flood for two years.

Peperone said Mobil would increase its exploration efforts for shallow to intermediate oil reserves, but would not put much effort into deep exploration. "We have almost doubled our exploration department. We have a large staff of geologists and geophysicists who can help us look at the complex structures of the Permian Basin. We will also be looking at some of the deeper zones in light of new technology." He said Mobil expects to drill 600 wells by year's end.

Martin said Mobil was encouraged because it had been able to merge two strong staffs with the acquisition of Superior. He said 95 percent of the producing and exploration professionals with Superior Oil had been brought into the organization.

"It's not usual that a merger allows a company to merge two very strong staffs such as this," he said. "Of the 2,900 Superior employees still on the payroll at the time of the merger, only 625 were declared redundant, and 500 of those were in Houston." Martin, who was the former vice president of production for Superior, said all measures possible had been taken to minimize the human pain of the merger.

POLYP

Doctors said they found a "large villus adenomatous-appearing polyp" at the top of the large intestine and were examining a sample of it to see if it is cancerous.

Dr. Gary Gitnick, professor of medicine at the University of California, Los Angeles, said in a telephone interview that this type of polyp is relatively rare, representing only 2 percent to 14 percent of those found in the intestine.

"Based on several series of patients, this type of polyp has been found to be malignant, on average, in about 35 percent of cases," Gitnick said.

Several experts said there was up to a 50 percent chance that the fern-like growth in Reagan's intestine is cancerous, based upon the 74-year-old president's age and history of intestinal polyps. The occurrence of polyps increases with age and the more that are found increases the chances that one or more may be of the cancerous variety.

Villus adenoma-type polyps have a greater chance of becoming malignant than some other varieties. Villus, which means "finger-like," polyps are easily identified because of their feather-like appearance.

Dr. Marshall Bedine, assistant professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins Medical School and an intestinal cancer expert, said that if Reagan's polyp is cancerous, chances of curing it will depend upon how deeply the malignancy has penetrated the intestine.

"If the malignancy is confined to the lining of the colon, then the cure rate is over 90 percent."

But if the cancer has penetrated the intestinal wall and perhaps spread to the abdominal cavity, he said, the chance of curing it drops dramatically.

FERC says oilmen sold gas illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission on Friday agreed that 35 independent Panhandle oilmen illegally sold natural gas produced from what the Texas Railroad Commission had classified as oil wells.

The commissioners upheld an earlier decision by a FERC administrative law judge in favor of out-of-state natural gas purchasers who said the independents were illegally diverting gas from interstate commerce and federal pricing regulations.

"The Commission finds...that the respondents in the Panhandle West Gas Field are in violation of section 7(b) of the Natural Gas Act for the diversion of dedicated reserves and section 504(a)(1) of the Natural Gas Policy Act for the overcharges," said the commission's ruling.

"We're extremely pleased and gratified and feel that justice at last has been done," said Washington attorney Philip Ehrenkrantz, who represented plaintiff Dorchester Gas Producing Co.

Another hearing will follow to determine remedies, which could include a return of revenues derived from the disputed natural gas, a figure estimated to range into the billions of dollars.

The natural gas under the Panhandle field had been sold in long-term contracts to out-of-state buyers, but the oil leases, sold separately, went wanting.

But when a 1978 federal law said natural gas produced from oil wells could be sold at higher prices than gas from gas wells, the rush to buy up the oil leases was on. While the gas producers were limited to one well per 640 acres, the oilmen could drill a well every 10 acres.

The independents maintain they merely sold "casinghead gas," a natural byproduct of oil drilling, legally theirs to sell. The gas producers said the oil drillers weren't producing oil, only natural gas already promised to the out-of-state buyers.

In a similar case before the Texas Railroad Commission, natural gas buyers accused the oilmen of selling natural gas as liquefied "white oil."

Local officials in the Panhandle have warned that a ruling against the oil drillers could have a severe impact on their communities because of the loss of "white oil" revenues.

The Texas Railroad Commission is caught in the dispute because it is responsible for inspecting and classifying wells as oil wells or gas wells. It ruled in May that the independents' wells must be retested.

The decision "wasn't entirely unexpected," said Houston attorney Charles A. Moore, who had represented many of the independents in the dispute.

Moore said the case was likely lost when the Texas Railroad Commission declined to come to Washington to testify about its definition of casinghead gas.

Competing teachers give NASA 'A double plus'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Ten teachers competing for a single seat on a space shuttle flight said Friday they would give NASA "an A double plus" for their experiences during a rigorous week of medical tests and astronaut training at the Johnson Space Center.

"NASA's training is not just good, it's superb," said Richard Methia, a New Bedford, Mass., high school teacher. "If we were grading them, we'd give those training guys an A double plus."

The teachers, speaking at a news conference, were flushed and excited about their "superman flying" aboard the KC-135 zero gravity aircraft that is used by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for astronaut training.

The group said they were able to do somersaults and twists during brief moments of weightlessness achieved on the jet aircraft when it climbs and then dives sharply.

Barbara Morgan, a McColl, Idaho second grade teacher, said the weightlessness experience "was the ultimate. There is absolutely nothing that prepares you for it. It's a whole new dimension."

Michael W. Metcalf, a former Air Force pilot who teaches geography and government at a Hardwick, Vt. high school, was the only one of the 10 to become ill during the flight on the KC-135, nicknamed "the vomit comet" because about a third of all passengers became ill.

"I got nauseated, but I still had a great time," he said. "It's the granddaddy of all roller coasters."

Robert S. Foerster, a West Lafayette, Ind., sixth-grade teacher, said during the brief periods of weightlessness he was able to float from one end of the aircraft to the other.

"It was like superman flying," he said. "It was like a big magnet pulled you off the floor and held you up there."

The ten are finalists in a teacher-in-space selection process that began with 42,000 applicants. That number was thinned to 118 by state and territorial committees before NASA chose the finalists.

The group endured a week of physical examinations and preflight training at the Johnson Space Center. They will go to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama for a tour and then on to Washington for a final, crucial 45-minute interview by a NASA committee next week. The committee will choose a prime candidate and an alternate for a six-day ride on space shuttle Challenger next January.

Activities this week have included high altitude training in a pressure chamber, learning how to operate a rescue system and undergoing a vigorous medical examination that included a treadmill test.

SHUTTLE

The crew had been aboard, backward in their seats, for more than two hours when the shutdown came. They left a little after 5 p.m., with geophysicist Anthony England getting off first.

The only worry until the shutdown had been the weather. Thunderstorms threatened all afternoon, but did not interrupt the countdown.

Crowding the shuttle's cargo bay was a $72 million array of scientific instruments, including a German-built system to point sensitive experiments with unprecedented accuracy.

The rare afternoon launch, only the third in the 19 shuttle flights, was calculated to satisfy lighting conditions for some of the 10 astronomy experiments.

The mission was to have been the eighth for Challenger. Columbia has made six trips, Discovery five, and Atlantis will have its maiden flight in September.

Gordon Fullerton was to have been the commander of a crew of seven, which included five scientists.

"This is the most ambitious scientific mission flown by any government anywhere at any one time," said program scientist Dan Spicer.

The most publicized experiment on the flight also had the least scientific value. In lockers in the galley were four cans each of Coca-Cola — the "new" formula — and Pepsi-Cola to test carbonated beverage dispensers developed by the archrivals.

Fearing that the mission might be used as an endorsement for one of the products, the astronauts were instructed not to be seen on television drinking either beverage or to make any comments about them.

"If NASA uses a product, the vendor or supplier may advertise that fact, but that ad copy can never be written to imply an endorsement," said spokesman Dick Young.

The astronaut-scientists had hoped to draw a composite portrait of the sun, learn how solar radiation entering Earth's atmosphere influences the weather, probe mysteries of the electrified gas, or plasma, that surrounds the globe, analyze the sources of cosmic rays and better understand infrared radiation sources in our Milky Way and other galaxies.

They also were to examine the causes of bone demineralization and mineral imbalance that occur in humans during weightless flight.

Irish children get reprieve from violence

By GUILLERMO X. GARIA
Associated Press

AUSTIN (AP) — The sma, ruddy-cheeked 14-year-old girl pried her lips, crossed her arms, and ordered the question.

"No, I don't think I'd ever get to know a Protestant, just because there are none where I live," she said in a shy lilting voice.

Her voice was barely a whisper as she shot a nervous glance at the Protestant girl she just met, and with whom she will be spending the summer.

The girl, Marie O'Kane, along with three other youths from Northern Ireland, is spending a summer in Austin living without something that is very much a part of their lives — sectarian violence.

"I don't really take that much notice (of violence) because it goes on every day, all around," she says matter-of-factly.

The serene Irish countryside where Marie lives is a far cry from the battle-scarred camp that is Belfast, but even there, religious hatred and violence are a way of life.

Marie, Amber Brennan, Edwin Johnston, and Frankie McBe live less than 30 miles from one another in the Belfast area, but they are separated more by generations of hatred than distance.

A freckle-faced, green-eyed Edwin says his goal for the summer is "to get to become a good friend" with his new roommate. "We just must get to see that we are all alike. He's no different from me," he says, glancing at Frankie.

The Children's Committee 10 is a 10-year program aimed at bringing Catholics and Protestants together for a summer holiday in the United States. There are 135 Irish children in Texas, most in Houston and Dallas. This summer marks the first year that participants have come to Texas.

Some 197 other Irish kids, aged 12 to 18, are spending the summer in 19 states.

The idea was begun in 1981 by a naturalized American born in Dublin, Vincent Lavery, who witnessed the polarization of families touched by sectarian violence during years of bloodshed.

The four teens are the guests of Austinites Jim and Cheryl O'Connor and Hugh and Joyce Smith. Four Austin churches raised money to cover air fare and related expenses.

"Some of my neighbors try to keep us separated. They don't like Catholics, and they don't want us hanging around them. I say it is nobody's business who my friends are," says Amber, who lists pop musicians Michael Jackson and the British rock group Wham! as her favorites.

Frankie, sporting a right arm cast as the result of a recent soccer accident, would like "to get to know as much of Texas as possible," he said. "This is much more picturesque than I thought. I was thinking this would be semidesert. Although it's hotter here than Belfast, I like it."

His sponsors, Jim and Cheryl O'Connor, joked about his reaction when he learned something about Texas animals.

"We were sitting at dinner when he heard that a scorpion was in my son's room. His eyes got so wide they nearly popped out. We had to tell him that the bite doesn't kill," Jim O'Connor said.

Marie is also interested "in seeing what this way of life is like," she said. "It is quite a difference from my family's farm. It's very small, and your skyscrapers here are so big."

Her trans-Atlantic flight to Houston via London was the first time she had been on an airplane. She answers with country-girl simplicity that the hobby she enjoys best is riding a pony with her girlfriend.

Army discloses criminal probe into Bell Helicopter Textron Inc.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, formally disclosing a federal criminal investigation and allegations of overcharging, said Friday it was slashing in half monthly contract payments to Bell Helicopter Textron Inc.

The decision, announced by Army Secretary John O. Marsh, will cut from roughly $13 million to $6.5 million the payments now being received monthly by the firm for contracts covering a number of Army helicopter programs.

The suspension of payments will remain in effect "until Bell corrects apparent accounting deficiencies, rectifies reported mischarges and satisfies the Army that acceptable internal controls have been established at Bell," Marsh said in a statement.

The Fort Worth-based Bell Helicopter Textron is a wholly owned subsidiary of Textron Inc., a conglomerate based in Providence, R.I., that in fiscal 1984 was the nation's 28th largest defense contractor.

Bell Helicopter Textron currently holds contracts from the Army worth a total of $2.7 billion. They include such major programs as the AH-1 Cobra attack helicopter, the UH-1 Iroquois utility helicopter and the OH-58 Kiowa light copter.

The firm has also been selected as the prime contractor for the Army Helicopter Improvement Program, under which the Army eventually expects to modify more than 550

OH-58 copters for special observation and reconnaissance work.

The federal criminal investigation, disclosed in published reports in May, was formally acknowledged by Marsh. He also said the Pentagon was launching its own investigation of the matter.

"Currently, the U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Texas is pursuing a criminal investigation into these irregularities," Marsh said. "The Department of Defense and the Army are assisting the Department of Justice in this criminal investigation."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald C.H. Eddins, reached at his Fort Worth office by phone, confirmed the Army statement.

Eddins said his investigation was prompted by a Defense Contract Audit Agency audit of Bell's books and had been under way for a year. To date, no grand jury has been empaneled, he said, adding: "We feel it will be completed within six months to a year."

"The investigation was prompted by DCAA audits that uncovered pricing irregularities," Eddins continued. "The substance of the investigation concerns fraudulent billings to the Army for helicopter spare parts."

Asked how much money might be involved, Eddins declined direct comment. Asked, then, about a Fort Worth Star Telegram report in May that the probe involved about $15 million, the prosecutor said: "That's a very conservative estimate."

Efforts to discuss the matter with officials of Bell Helicopter Textron were unsuccessful Friday. A Washington spokesman, George G. Troutman, at one point said he expected to release a prepared statement. But later calls to his office went unanswered.

An Army source who asked not to be named said Friday the defense audit that Eddins cited was "a routine, post-award audit of Bell's financial accounting system" that was completed in March 1984. Less than three months later, by June 1984, the federal criminal investigation was under way, the source added.

The source refused to elaborate on what the auditors found, beyond saying: "We obviously think we're paying them too much. We don't accept their accounting."

Marsh indicated in his prepared statement, however, the overcharges were believed to be substantial.

"The 50 percent suspension reflects an estimate of the percentage that is at issue of total progress payments," the statement said.

The Army declined to elaborate. The statement added that Marsh had designated Under Secretary James R. Ambrose to oversee the Army's probe "into reports of accounting irregularities and deficiencies and the implementation of corrective action at Bell."

California melons blamed in illness of El Paso woman

EL PASO (AP) — California watermelon and California-manufactured cheese have been pulled from El Paso store shelves because of possible contamination, and residents are being warned not to eat one brand of beef jerky linked to salmonella poisoning in neighboring New Mexico.

A 67-year-old woman became ill after eating two slices of a California watermelon last weekend, said Dr. Laurence Nickey, director of the El Paso City-County Health Department.

Contamination of watermelons with the insecticide Aldicarb has been blamed for an outbreak of illness in California. Symptoms include profuse sweating, headache and nausea.

Nickey said the El Paso woman was "doing fine" Thursday, but that an 80-year-old man is the city's second "suspect case."

Nickey said 5,300 pounds of the California product have been picked up at El Paso stores and destroyed. No melons from the Pacific coast state remain in the city, he said.

Meanwhile, a California-manufactured brand of cheese also has been pulled from store shelves in El Paso because cheese from the company was shown to contain the same germ responsible for 51 deaths in California last month.

The cheese, manufactured by Cacique Fine Foods of California, is distributed in Texas through warehouses in Houston and Dallas and has been shown to contain the germ listeriosis.

But state health officials in Austin said Thursday that no cases of listeriosis have been linked in Texas to the Cacique brand of cheese.

Robert Henna of the Texas health department's food and drug division said city, state and federal inspectors were working with Cacique Cheese of Texas in Houston and Rudy's Food Products in Dallas to determine what stores may have stocked the cheese.

"Consumers are warned not to eat affected cheese carrying earlier expiration dates," Henna said in a statement.

Rudy Guerra of Rudy's Food Products said his firm sought the removal of Cacique dairy products from 40 Dallas-area stores as a precautionary measure.

Ten Texas cases of listeriosis, including the deaths of two elderly people, a stillbirth and a miscarriage, have been associated with contaminated cheese, according to the health department. Those cases, however, involved people who ate Jalisco or Jimenez cheese, officials said.

In El Paso, residents also were being advised to avoid eating La Tendita beef jerky, which has been linked to 21 cases of salmonella poisoning in New Mexico. Production of the product at Alcalde, N.M., has been halted.

Agencies work out funding for school

HALTOM CITY (AP) — A school for the mentally retarded will remain open after state and county agencies agreed to work out funding for the Haltom City facility.

The Crossroads Developmental Center has been operated by the Tarrant County Mental Health and Mental Retardation agency under a 30-day court order since June 25.

ARA Devcon Inc., the former owner of the home, decided in early June to close the facility after learning most of its federal funds were to be eliminated.

New Mexico governor likes White's reforms

AUSTIN (AP) — After discussing school reform with Texas Gov. Mark White, New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya said Friday he is ready to push for higher taxes if the money will improve public education.

"To provide any additional increase in funding is going to require a tax increase. That has been a major stumbling block," Anaya said.

"About 72 percent of all our state budget goes into education, so any increase at all in the education area means a fairly substantial increase, percentage-wise, in our budget," he added.

Because many New Mexico legislators campaigned on a no-new-taxes pledge, Anaya said, it will be a tough fight.

"Now they find themselves in a box that they realize we need additional money, but they campaigned on the issue. So we've got to turn that around. We've got to permit them to get off the hook. Over the next few months, I'm hopeful we can get there," he said.

The New Mexico governor said he picked up several ideas from Texas officials — including soliciting the help of top business leaders — in pushing for school reform.

But Anaya admitted he was a little late in seeking to involve businessmen.

"In retrospect, I wish I had had the perception that Mark White had in terms of being able to bring them on board early. What we're attempting to do is bring them on board at this point," he said.

In a special session last summer, the Texas Legislature passed a sweeping school reform bill. It required teacher competency testing, raised teacher salaries, replaced the elected state board of education with a board appointed by the governor and imposed stringent requirements on students, including passage of a test to graduate and a ban on extracurricular activities for students failing any class.

The package included a $2.6 billion tax increase to fund the changes.

State Board of Education approves new discipline rules

AUSTIN (AP) — Strict new rules to discipline students who bring weapons, alcohol or drugs to Texas public schools were approved Friday by a State Board of Education committee.

The disciplinary measures, stemming from last year's school reform law, would take effect this fall if approved today by the full 15-member board.

Also approved Friday by the board's Committee on Students and set for full board consideration today were:

- Rules against social promotions in Texas schools with special report cards for those who can't make the grade.

— Curriculum requirements that schools teach so many minutes of math and English each week.

Also on the busy agenda will be mandatory final examinations in order to get a high school diploma. The graduation test proposal was approved Thursday.

All proposals resulted from the 1984 school reform law, which followed a statewide attempt by state officials and educators to uplift Texas public school standards.

New magnet coil added to A&M atom smasher

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The addition of a new magnet coil to an atom smasher at Texas A&M University has made the device one of the most powerful of its kind in the country, according to a researcher at the school.

Dave Youngblood, director of Texas A&M's Cyclotron Institute, said the coil allowed researchers on Thursday to test the magnetic field of the school's new $8 million cyclotron for the first time.

The new superconductor, which is still under construction, has a magnetic field three times the size of a similar device built at the school 20 years ago, Youngblood said.

"This new cyclotron will open up new fields of nuclear science for exploration by Texas A&M scientists and students," he said. "New states of nuclear matter can be explored and entirely new types of phenomena may be found."

Only one or two other units in the U.S. can store as much energy as the superconductor at Texas A&M and the device is so advanced only a few are planned worldwide, he said.

Cyclotrons accelerate atomic nuclei to almost the speed of light. The nuclei are then extracted as beams of high-energy particles and thrust toward a target. Scientists use the devices to study transformations that occur during collisions or near-collisions of the particles.

STATE in brief

Escaped kidnaper found

CLEBURNE (AP) — Escaped kidnapper James Wesley Foote was back in a Texas prison Friday, captured after a $2,000 reward prompted an ex-convict to tell authorities Foote was hiding out in his house.

Foote, who escaped from Johnson County Jail July 4 by climbing a 8-foot fence topped with barbed wire, was returned to the jail in Cleburne after his capture shortly before noon Thursday near Blossom, in Lamar County.

He was transferred to Huntsville about 6 a.m. Friday, said Johnson County Sheriff Eddy Boggs.

Foote has been serving a life sentence for kidnapping Amy McNeil, 13, of Alvarado, in January. She was rescued after a high-speed chase and shootout with law enforcement officers.

Her father, Don McNeil, fearing for his family's safety when Foote escaped and frustrated by the lack of progress in finding him, offered a $2,000 reward for information.

The reward money solved the case, he and sheriff's deputies said. A North Texas bricklayer told Lamar County officials he knew where Foote was hiding.

Man searches for son

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Wesley Cox Sr. has traveled more than 10,000 miles in the past year in search of his missing son, Church of Christ minister Barre Cox.

And he has come up with no tangible proof that his son, who disappeared near Abilene last July, is alive.

"We haven't given up and won't until we see that he's not there any more," said Cox, a rancher and oilman from Canyon. "We pray for his return every day."

Barre Cox was studying for his doctorate in art education at Texas Tech University at the time of his disappearance.

He was en route from Lubbock to San Antonio to spend the weekend with his wife, Beth, and baby daughter, Talitha Beth, when he disappeared.

His abandoned and vandalized car was discovered by authorities on a remote road near Tuxedo about 50 miles northwest of Abilene. His clothing and personal belongings were strewn for several yards around the car.

Houston petitions SBOE

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston public school officials want the State Board of Education to approve a plan today that would enable uncertified teachers to instruct students.

The so-called "alternative certification" program is designed to help the district add about 200 teachers to the payroll in time for the start of the new school year in September.

God loves you and so do we at Golf Course Road.

Cooler weather, troops aid weary firefighters

Associated Press

Cooler weather and National Guard troops aided firefighters battling wildfires across the West on Friday, as napalm dropped on a persistent Northern California blaze eased a threat to key mountaintop communications towers.

Firefighters in helicopters dropped flaming blobs of napalm left over from the Vietnam War on the fire near Los Gatos in a gamble that paid off Thursday night.

The napalm started a controlled burn to head off the main blaze and stopped flames from reaching the towers atop Mount Loma Prieta, said fire Capt. Ken Gilbert. The communications towers are vital to coordinating firefighting efforts.

Fires that have scorched more than 1.2 million acres across more than a dozen Western states were still burning Friday in at least seven states, but cooler temperatures and moist air brought some relief. Firefighters were working on blazes in Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Wyoming and in several Canadian provinces, as well as California.

New fires included a 1,000-acre blaze in Wyoming, just west of South Dakota's Black Hills National Forest, and a 600-acre fire in the McKelvey Forest in Nebraska. In British Columbia, around 20,000 people in mountain valleys still faced possible evacuation as fires raged on in the southeastern part of the province.

Did man have legitimate right to shoot suspect?

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — Harry Shelley was parked outside the Southern Bank branch in his pickup truck, helping his son roll up some coins, when he saw a man with a mask and a shotgun about 20 yards away, walking briskly with police in pursuit.

Shelley reached for his deer rifle, and fired one shot which struck Murray Miller in the abdomen. As Miller fell, a dye packet exploded inside a money bag he was carrying, leaving a blotchy red stain on the sidewalk.

According to police, the 25-year-old man had just held up the bank. They also said Miller was walking away from Shelley and the shotgun was unloaded when they recovered it.

"I did what I thought I had to do," Shelley said shortly after the incident. "That man could have shot me."

That shot on July 1 has ricocheted all around this tobacco-rich town of 31,000, which is exactly halfway between Miami and New York City on Interstate 95.

Shelley has been charged with assault and battery with intent to kill, but some people think he acted legitimately in self-defense.

Florence's police chief, Ralph Porter, consulted two century-old laws in bringing the charge.

"It is an issue of a citizen making a judgment call to stop a fleeing felon," said Porter.

Porter said his station has been flooded with calls since the shooting, with public opinion running about "50-50" for and against Shelley's action.

"I don't operate on public sentiment. I don't write the law," he said.

One section of South Carolina law says a citizen who witnesses a felony has the right to make an arrest and bring the suspect before a magistrate. The other says a citizen has the right to arrest a suspect at night, under similar circumstances, "even if the life of such person shall be thereby taken."

"I think the notion of a citizen's arrest is something that is an interesting and fascinating part of our heritage, something that should be prohibited now," said Jon Thames, a law professor at the University of South Carolina.

Police have mixed feelings about such crimefighters, said Donald Baldwin, executive director of the 300,000-member National Law Enforcement Council, an umbrella group for 12 national law enforcement groups.

"You don't want to discourage people, (but) at the same time, you don't want to sanction this kind of thing because it could get out of hand," Baldwin said.

Shelley, a 51-year-old Mullins resident described by his lawyer as a Christian and a family man, has said he and the police officers were in jeopardy.

"No citizen is justified in being a vigilante," said Hicks Harwell, Shelley's attorney, but he says his client doesn't fit that description.

When Shelley spotted Miller leaving the bank with his mask and money bag in one hand and shotgun in the other, he "really knew" he and others were in danger, Harwell said.

"It's got a lot of folks, including me, asking questions in my own mind as to what I would do," Harwell said.

Miller, who was fired from his last job at a pizza parlor, was served with two warrants a week ago in his guarded McLeod Regional hospital room.

National insurance crisis closing birthing centers

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Like many wommn, Mary Klanski intended to have her new baby in the home surroundings of a childbirth center. But now lots of expectant mothers are making other plans as a nationwide malpractice insurance crisis threatens to put such centers and nurse-midwives out of business.

A childbirth center in New Haven, where Mrs. Klanski had planned to deliver her third child, is one of 10 whose malpractice insurance was being canceled this week.

And an official of the 130-center industry said about one-third of the facilities would end or curtail services by year's end, forcing many women to hospital delivery rooms.

"I don't feel that a hospital is any place to have a baby," said Mrs. Klanski, who lives in Plymouth. "Birth is a normal, healthy thing to be doing and a hospital is a place to be sick." At the New Haven center, she received guidance and exercise in natural childbirth, and her husband and two young children were educated about the process of birth.

At the centers, birthing rooms look like bedrooms rather than hospital rooms. Efforts are made to avoid the use of high-technology equipment, and the center staffs can include midwives, nurses and doctors.

Malpractice insurance policies for the New Haven center and nine others were terminated by Mutual Fire, Marine and Inland Insurance Co. of Philadelphia.

The company, which wrote group policies for 40 to 50 birthing centers and half of the nation's 2,900 nurse-midwives, said it has been unable to find risk insurance, the practice used by insurance companies to cover themselves against losses.

Mutual Fire President Richard Guilfoyle said the rise in malpractice claims is forcing insurers out of the birthing field.

Several childbirth centers have closed, and others, like the New Haven center, are curtailing services, said Pam Townshend, director of the Family Childbirth Center.

"They can't write insurance if they can't get reinsurance," Kitty Ernst, director of the National Association of Childbearing Centers in Perkiomenville, Pa., said Thursday of the insurance industry's reluctance to continue offering malpractice insurance.

Ms. Ernst expects that another 30 centers will be "closed or on hold" by Dec. 31 as policies come up for renewal.

Birthing centers, which typically charge about half the cost of a hospital delivery, have delivered about 30,000 babies in the last decade.

There are about 3.6 million births a year in the United States.

In recent years, some hospitals have included wings that cater to women much the way birthing centers do.

Ms. Townshend attributed the problem of liability insurance to litigious consumers, trial lawyers, insurance companies and competition between obstetricians and a growing number of nurse-midwives.

In Connecticut, annual malpractice premiums run more than $30,000 and reach $80,000 in some states. The insurance industry lumps birthing centers and nurse-midwives in with obstetricians when calculating risk of malpractice claims.

This is inappropriate, Ms. Townshend, Ms. Ernst and others claim. Only 8 percent of the nation's nurse-midwives have been sued for malpractice since 1974, compared with 60 percent of obstetricians.

Life of the party often not life of the business world

CHICAGO (AP) — The executive who slaps every back and enlivens every party won't be laughing at one of life's little jokes: That dull clod at the next desk may be climbing right over his back on the way up.

"We found something suspicious about some of these people who get a big bang out of life. In many cases, their careers aren't in such good shape," said David C. Clark, a psychologist at Rush Medical College who headed a study of 88 executives at various corporate levels of Fortune 500 companies.

The serious workers — the ones who don't seem to appreciate the latest joke or to know which magazines published the Madonna nude pix — appear to have executive qualities lacking in their more gregarious colleagues, according to Clark's study.

"People who have what you might call a thin diet of pleasure can deal with setbacks and focus on the qualities that help them get ahead," Clark said in an interview Friday.

"The person who says, 'I'm the life of every party,' frequently turns out not to be not doing as well in their career as the quiet guy who doesn't seem to stand out at all," he said.

Executives who took part in the study were given mental health examinations and written tests, and many of their spouses were interviewed.

"We started out thinking people at the lower end of the scale in terms of pleasure capacity would show up as less successful, overall, as those who were at the high end of the scale," he said.

"We found out that about 10 percent of the sample were at the high end of the pleasure scale, 10 percent were at the low end and the rest were bunched toward the middle."

Scientist says 'Star Wars' program unreliable

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's "Star Wars" defense program, still only in the early stages of research, is attracting more public opposition from the scientific community.

Some physicists at the University of Illinois have launched a drive to convince colleagues around the country not to accept funding from the Pentagon for the program, which Reagan calls the Strategic Defense Initiative.

And a computer scientist recruited to serve on a special advisory panel on "computing in support of battle management" resigned late last month after attending the group's first meeting, concluding it would never be possible to reliably program the vast complex of computers envisioned for the anti-missile system. Professor David L. Parnas, an American citizen who works at the University of Victoria in British Columbia and serves as a consultant to the Office of Naval Research, said in his letter of resignation he was sure that other experts would disagree with him.

"But because of the extreme demands on the system and our inability to test it, we will never be able to believe, with any confidence, that we have succeeded," Parnas wrote. "Most of the money spent will be wasted."

The Star Wars program calls for the development of lasers and other weapons that could be placed in space as well as on the ground to automatically destroy nuclear ballistic missiles fired at the United States. Reagan has pushed the project as offering a possible replacement for the current nuclear policy of both the United States and Soviet Union, which calls for maintaining a sufficiently huge arsenal to mount a retaliatory strike in the event of attack.

Computers and the programs, or software, that would control them are vital elements of the Star Wars program. The Pentagon envisions a system that would have to help orbiting sensors detect and count missiles launched in an attack; sort decoys from warheads; calculate trajectories and track targets; aim weapons, assess hits and misses and then aim weapons again for additional shots.

"In my experience as a physicist who has written some pretty large computer codes, there is no way you could produce a code large enough to handle the job and do it perfectly the first time, which is what you would need," said Larry Smarr, head of the university's new National Center for Supercomputing Applications.

"I can't imagine any developments in computer technology that would make it possible in the foreseeable future," he added.

Fred Lamb, a physics professor serving as a spokesman for the Illinois group, said 47 of the school's 60 physics faculty members have signed a statement that calls the Star Wars program "technically dubious and politically unwise."

Fatal Florida blast still mystery

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Investigators say the blast that killed tobacco heiress Margaret H. Benson and her youngest son remained a mystery Friday as two wills dealing with her $10 million estate were filed six hours apart.

The documents were filed Thursday in Collier County Circuit Court. One gives her children custody over her estate, previously estimated at up to $400 million, and the other names the family lawyer as executor, The Tampa Tribune reported Friday.

Mrs. Benson, 63, widow of a tobacco company executive, and son Scott, 21, a professional tennis player, died when two bombs demolished their station wagon Tuesday in the driveway of their home. Daughter Carol Lynn Kendall, 40, was taken to the burn unit of a Boston hospital where she was listed in critical condition.

Another son, Steven, 38, was at the house at the time of the blasts. He and his wife were reported later to be under protective custody at a Naples hotel.

Sheriff's Capt. Curtis Mills said investigators have no leads. "It's a mystery," he said. "We have not established a motive. We have not developed any real suspects."

The two-page will naming Mrs. Benson's children as co-administrators was dated Jan. 29, 1985.

NATION in brief

'Mountain man' convicted of kidnapping, homicide

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (AP) — "Mountain man" Don Nichols was convicted Friday of kidnapping, deliberate homicide and aggravated assault in the abduction of a woman athlete and the slaying of her would-be rescuer.

A Madison County District Court jury found Nichols, 54, guilty in the kidnapping of Karl Swenson, a member of the U.S. women's team for the biathlon, an event combining cross-country skiing and riflery. He also was convicted of killing Alan Goldstein, a searcher who found Nichols and his son with Swenson in the mountains near Big Sky last summer.

Dan Nichols, 20, was convicted two months ago of kidnapping and misdemeanor assault and acquitted in the slaying. He is free on bail pending sentencing.

Authorities claimed the two men abducted Swenson, of Bozeman, as a bride for Dan Nichols.

Don Nichols showed no emotion as the verdicts were read, and he was taken from the courthouse immediately afterward.

Nichols faces up to 140 years in prison on the charges, but District Judge Frank Davis said he anticipated it would be at least a month before Nichols is sentenced.

MIA wife: Military lying

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The wife of an Air Force colonel missing in action in Southeast Asia accused military officials Friday of lying about remains found in Laos that they said were her husband's.

Ann Hart, 42, who has refused to accept the remains, said an independent analysis showed the bones cannot be identified with scientific certainty.

Government officials last week announced that the Army's identification laboratory in Hawaii had positively identified bones of 13 Air Force men who died in the crash of an AC-130 "Spectre" gunship in 1972, including Mrs. Hart's husband, Lt. Col. Thomas Hart of Live Oak. The remains were dug up from the crash site in February.

Michael Charney, a certified forensic anthropologist from Colorado State University, voluntarily examined records and bones the government said were those of Mrs. Hart's husband.

"He could only determine that it was human and an adult, period," Mrs. Hart said.

Jet showers city with parts

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Boeing 727 jetliner with engine trouble landed safely at Miami International Airport after raining about 100 bits of debris on a neighborhood, hitting cars and homes but causing no injuries, officials say.

Eastern Airlines Flight 144, a three-engine jet en route from Miami to Washington, D.C., took off Thursday evening and developed engine trouble, causing the captain to shut down the engine and radio the Miami tower that he was returning to land, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Roger Myers in Atlanta.

"It was a normal in-flight engine shutdown" and safe landing, Myers said.

Residents of a several-block area picked up pieces of metal they said had dropped from the sky, said Miami police spokesman Mike Stewart. "We went out and made an information report. A couple of cars were hit, and some rooftops. Fortunately no one was injured. People were picking up pieces right and left. Small pieces, large pieces, maybe 100 total."

Reagan's sense of humor rarely fails to please his audiences

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even discussing the most serious subjects, President Reagan's sense of humor rarely fails him.

As he prepared to address the American Bar Association this week on the nature and scope of international terrorism, Reagan teased his audience of lawyers by welcoming them "to the last tax-deductible ABA convention."

Actually, Reagan's proposal to overhaul the income tax system would only take away the lawyers' right to deduct the costs of attending their annual convention if they hold it aboard a cruise ship, but the obvious reference to the administration's tilting at the tax benefits of luxury lunches and such broke the ice.

"I noticed this morning that even Milt Pitts, the White House barber, has a welcome sign up" for the conventioners, the president joked. "Hair cutting: $10. Hair splitting:

An Analysis

$100 an hour."

He also promised not to talk too long, saying he was scheduled to have lunch "with my wife, the vice president and my chief of staff — or as you would put it, Reagan, Reagan, Regan & Bush."

Members of the White House staff don't like to admit that Reagan's speech writers actually write the president's speeches, much less that he uses gag writers to lace them with laugh lines. He does, of course, but some of the president's best lines are his own, and every now and then he startles his own aides by telling his audience a funny story dredged up from the uncharted reaches of his mind.

But having softened up the crowd of lawyers, the president launched into a deadly serious talk about international terrorism, accusing five nations of sponsoring a murderous campaign.

His tone was so somber that Reagan's speech was interrupted only three times by applause, once when he vowed to defend America, which brought the audience to its feet, and twice when he broke the tension with joking references to her opponents.

Some aides who reviewed drafts of his speech sought unsuccessfully to excise one of his lines as unbefitting the president of the United States, or, as one of them called it privately, "unpresidential."

But Reagan went ahead, calling the leaders of the alleged outlaw governments "the strangest collection of misfits, looney tunes and squalid criminals since the advent of the Third Reich."

If any members of the audience regarded his choice of words to describe the heads of other governments as unseemly, they were drowned out by the laughter and applause.

Lopez leads by stroke

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Lopez rolled in a 20-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole and grabbed a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the 40th U.S. Women's Open on Friday.

Lopez, seeking her first Open title and fourth victory in her last seven outings this year, shot her second straight 2-under-par 70. She had a 36-hole total of 4-under-par 140.

Janet Coles and Vicki Alvarez were one stroke back after firings 66s on the par 72, 6,274-yard upper course at the Baltusrol Golf Club. Those are the only sub 70 rounds so far in the tournament.

There were 10 groups still on the course when Lopez finished her second round but no one in those groups was near the leader board.

Two shots behind the leader was Kathy Baker, who shared the first-round lead with Lopez and 1982 Open winner Janet Anderson. Baker had a second-round 72 that included three birdies and three bogeys.

Anderson, who has not won since her Open victory, had a 73 and was tied with Sally Little at 1-under-par 143.

Besty King, Sherri Turner and 1980 Open winner Amy Alcott were at even par 144. King had a 73, while Alcott and Turner had 72s.

Lopez had an up and down round making five birdies and three bogeys. Her best shot of the day came on the seventh hole when she birdied from the bunker.

Both Coles and Alvarez made their charges on the back nine, both scoring three birdies.

Coles, who has won twice on the LPGA, the last time in 1963, birdied Nos. 12, 13, 15. She did not have a bogey during the round.

Alvarez, seeking her first tournament victory, birdied Nos. 14, 16, 18. She had four birdies and one bogey.

Jan Stephenson, the 1983 Open champion who had an opening day 71, had second-round 74 and was tied at 145 along with NCAA champion Danielle Ammaccapane and Cathy Marino.

Patty Sheehan, fourth on the LPGA money list this year, was at 146. Also two-time Open winner Donna Caponi was at 148; Pat Bradley and Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth were at 149 and Alice Miller, who has set an LPGA record this year for earnings, was at 150 along with two-time champion JoAnne Carner.

Cowboys sign three draft choices

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys on Friday signed three draft choices, guard Crawford Ker and linebackers Neal Delacono and Karl Jordan, a spokesman for the National Football League team said.

Ker, drafted in the third round out of the University of Florida, is 6-foot-4 and 293 pounds, spokesman Doug Todd said. Delacono, 6-0, 219, UCLA, was picked in the 11th round, and Jordan, 6-1, 244, Vanderbilt, was picked 12th.

"Each of these guys signed a series of one-year contracts at undisclosed terms," said Todd, adding that the Cowboys have now signed seven of 15 draft choices.

The first-round choice, defensive end Kevin Brooks of Michigan, is still unsigned.

Rookies report Sunday to training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif. Veteran quarterbacks, receivers and running backs report July 21 and the rest of the veterans July 25.

Padres blank Cards, 2-0

From Wire Reports

ST. LOUIS — LaMarr Hoyt and Rich Gossage combined on a three-hitter, giving Hoyt his 10th straight victory and the San Diego Padres a 2-0 triumph over Joaquin Andujar and the St. Louis Cardinals in a battle of All-Star pitchers Friday night.

Tim Flannery singled home a run in the third inning, then doubled and scored in the eighth, to account for the Padres' runs.

Hoyt, 12-4, did not walk a batter and struck out two over seven innings as the Padres broke the Cardinals' five-game winning streak. Gossage pitched two innings for his 18th save.

Hoyt, who has not given up a run over his last 18 innings, set down 15 straight batters following Tom Nieto's double in the third inning.

Hoyt has walked only 13 batters in his 138 innings this season.

Andujar, 15-4, gave up eight hits in eight innings, striking out three and walking three.

Kevin McReynolds singled in the third and was forced by Garry Templeton's grounder. Templeton moved to second on Hoyt's sacrifice and scored on Flannery's single.

Steve Garvey's single scored Flannery in the eighth.

Before the contest, Andujar told reporters he would not appear in Tuesday's All-Star game, for which he had been selected Thursday. Andujar said he believed he was snubbed for the All-Star starting role.

San Diego Manager Dick Williams, the National League's manager in the All-Star game, said he was considering both Hoyt and Andujar for the start.

Mets 3, Astros 2
HOUSTON — Rafael Santana's 10th-inning single scored Howard Johnson from second base to give the New York Mets a victory over the Houston Astros.

Johnson doubled with two outs and scored, giving the Mets their 10th triumph in 11 games.

Ron Darling, 9-2, pitched nine innings and gave up two runs on seven hits, while Roger McDowell picked up his seventh save.

Ron Mathis, 3-5, was the loser in relief.

Darling was one out from a six-hit 2-1 victory when Alan Ashby drove his fifth home run, tying the game in the ninth.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the second when Darryl Strawberry belted his eighth home run of the season into the right-field stands.

The Astros tied the score in the third. Glenn Davis led off with a walk and took third when Ashby chopped a double over first baseman Keith Hernandez's head. Davis scored on Craig Reynolds' infield out.

With the score tied 1-1 in the fifth, Len Dykstra led off with a double, went to third on catcher Ashby's passed ball and scored on Wally Backman's sacrifice fly.

Starter Joe Niekro, 7-8, gave up two runs on eight hits in seven innings.

Reds 5, Expos 4
CINCINNATI — Third baseman Tim Wallach's throwing error with two out in the bottom of the 11th inning let Eddie Milner score the winning run, handing the Cincinnati Reds a victory over the Montreal Expos.

Milner singled with one out in the 11th off Randy St. Claire, 3-2, the fifth Expos pitcher. Milner stole second, his third steal of the game, and took third on Max Venable's fly out.

St. Claire intentionally walked Pete Rose and Dave Parker to load the bases and bring up pinch-hitter Tony Perez. Perez grounded to Wallach, who threw wildly to second base, giving the victory to John Franco, 6-1, the fourth Reds pitcher.

Montreal took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Vance Law doubled with one out, extending his hitting streak to 10 games. Hubie Brooks singled him home, took second on a throw to the plate, and scored on Dan Driessen's single.

Pirates 3, Giants 1
PITTSBURGH — Right-hander Rick Reuschel won for the eighth time in 10 decisions and singled home a run as the Pittsburgh Pirates handed the San Francisco Giants their sixth straight loss.

Reuschel allowed four hits and one run in six innings before leaving because of a blister on his middle finger. John Candelaria worked the final three innings, yielding three hits, for his ninth save.

Braves 7, Phillies 4
ATLANTA — Dale Murphy's three-run homer capped a five-run ninth inning as the Atlanta Braves rallied to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies.

Murphy drove in five runs in the game, also hitting a two-run single in the first inning.

With the Braves trailing 4-2, Ken Oberkfell opened the ninth by getting hit by a Kent Tekulve pitch. Pinch-hitter Milt Thompson singled and Bruce Benedict sacrificed both runners ahead. Pinch-hitter Chris Chambliss bounced out to second against loser Don Carman, 2-2, scoring Oberkfell.

After a walk to Brad Komminsk, Larry Andersen relieved Carman and gave up an infield single to Rafael Ramirez that tied the game. Murphy then slammed his National League-leading 22nd home run of the season.

Hinkle takes lead with 68

By JOE MACENKA

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Lon Hinkle, who shot a 7-under-par 64 on Thursday, came back with a 68 Friday for a one-stroke lead over Keith Fergus halfway through the $500,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"Overall it was not quite as good a day as yesterday," said Hinkle, "but I'm certainly satisfied with a 10-under 132 total after two days."

Fergus shot a rain-interrupted 64, including five birdies in his first nine holes on the 6,746-yard, par-71 Kingsmill Golf Club course.

"It's just one of those days," said Fergus, who is 42nd on this year's money list. "I didn't make a putt over six feet. I just hit it close all the time."

Five players were tied for third at 8-under 134 — Don Pooley, Roger Maltbie, Wayne Grady, Paul Azinger and Danny Edwards.

The group of four at 135 included Curtis Strange, the leading money-winner on this year's Professional Golfers' Association Tour and the host pro at Kingsmill. Strange, winner of last week's Canadian Open, jumped into contention with a 66 after a 1-under 70 on Thursday.

"Today I hit it better and made a few more putts," said Strange, who needs about $11,000 to break the single-season earnings record of $530,808. "But if you looked at it, you wouldn't think a 66 would come out of it."

Strange, with three wins and a pair of second-place finishes this year, said that if he was playing anywhere else, "I don't know if I would be 7-under-par. At home I want to play well. You got it out."

Hinkle, playing in the morning before the rain, birdied the first and third holes, moving to 9-under, before a poor 3-wood approach shot on the par-4 fourth hole set up his first bogey of the tournament.

He got the stroke back on the 365-yard sixth hole, where a sand wedge to the green gave him a 12-foot birdie putt.

Hinkle three-putted the par-4 10th for his second bogey of the day, but stayed away from trouble the rest of the back nine, putting together back-to-back birdies at the 14th and 15th holes.

"It looks like I may be able to play this golf course," said Hinkle, a 13-year PGA Tour veteran from Dallas looking for his first win since the 1979 World Series of Golf.

USFL owners make decision...to meet Sunday

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — United States Football League owners met for 10 hours Friday to figure out how to remain solvent and in the public eye during a year's hiatus and resolved only to meet again Sunday.

"These decisions are hard, these conversations long and exacting," said Commissioner Harry Usher, whose league will play its final springtime game Sunday night when the Baltimore Stars meet the Oakland Invaders for the championship, then start up again in the fall of 1986.

But nobody — not even the owners themselves — know what teams, what players and what cities will be in the league then. In fact, even the starting date is up in the air.

Much of the day, according to several participants in the meeting, was devoted to discussions on divesting itself of high-salaried players signed during the league's 1982 spending spree.

Houston is one of four teams that has not yet met its final payroll. The Bob Bailor started the Los Angeles sixth with a pinch-single and Dave Anderson grounded into a forceout. Ken Landreaux doubled Anderson to third and, after Cabell had an RBI grounder, Brock homered to make it 4-3.

Orioles power past Chisox

From Staff Reports

BALTIMORE — Mike Young's two-run homer and solo shots by Cal Ripken Jr. and Fred Lynn powered the Baltimore Orioles to a 10-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

Rick Dempsey drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Lee Lacy, who extended his hitting streak to 15 games, added two RBIs as Baltimore dealt Chicago its fourth consecutive loss.

After falling behind 2-0 in the second on a two-run double by Dempsey, the White Sox forged a tie on Scott Fletcher's two-run single in the third and went ahead in the fourth on a homer by Carlton Fisk, the major league leader with 23.

But Young's seventh homer, following a leadoff single by Wayne Gross, put Baltimore in front 4-3 in the bottom of the fourth.

Ripken's 14th homer and No. 16 by Lynn finished Gene Nelson, 5-4, in the fifth. Lacy's two-run double off Steve Fireovid, the third Chicago pitcher, made it 8-3 in the sixth, and Dempsey doubled home another in the seventh.

Ken Dixon started after Storm Davis was scratched because of a pulled hamstring muscle and improved his record to 5-3 with four innings of relief from Don Aase, who earned his third save.

Chicago, which has lost 16 of its last 22 games, managed only four hits — none after Fisk's leadoff homer in the fourth. Harold Baines had his 12-game hitting streak snapped.

Yankees 6, Rangers 0
NEW YORK — Don Mattingly extended his major league-leading hitting streak to 20 games with a three-run homer, a double and a single and Dan Pasqua hit two upper-deck homers, powering Ed Whitson and the New York Yankees over Texas.

Whitson, 5-6, won his fourth straight, as did the Yankees, stopping the Rangers on four hits. He walked two, struck out three and has given up just six earned runs over 47 1/3 innings for a 1.14 ERA in his last six starts.

In handing the Rangers their sixth loss in their past seven games, Whitson was backed by four double plays and faced only one batter over the minimum.

Mattingly, who leads the American League with 69 RBIs, hit a three-run homer in the third inning as the Yankees chased Rangers rookie Bob Sebra, 0-2. He doubled as the Yankees scored a run in the first and singled in the fifth.

Rookie Dan Pasqua hit his second homer of the season, into the upper deck in right field at Yankee Stadium leading off the sixth inning against reliever Dave Rozema. He capped the Yankees' scoring with another upper-deck job in the eighth, off Dave Stewart.

Twins 3, Tigers 2
DETROIT — Greg Gagne's RBI single in the seventh broke a tie and the Minnesota Twins extended their record over the Tigers to 6-0 this season.

With the score tied 2-2, Tim Teufel started the Twins' seventh with a walk. Teufel was bunted to second by Tim Laudner and scored on Gagne's line shot to left off Frank Tanana, 4-8.

John Butcher, 6-8, pitched the first 6 1/3 innings for the Twins before getting late relief help. Ron Davis finished up for the Twins, gaining his 12th save. Butcher gave up nine hits, walking two and striking out none.

Tanana allowed five hits in 6 1-3 innings. He walked four and struck out four.

Indians 5, Royals 4
CLEVELAND — Brett Butler singled home George Vukovich from third with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the Cleveland Indians a victory over the Kansas City Royals.

With two outs in the 11th, Vukovich singled off reliever Dan Quisenberry, 4-6, Mike Hargrove then singled Vukovich to third and Butler followed by bouncing his single before first baseman Steve Balboni and second baseman Frank White.

Tom Waddell, 4-5, picked up the victory with 1 2-5 innings of perfect relief pitching after Kansas City had sent the game into extra innings with three runs in the top of the ninth.

The score was tied 1-1 when Brook Jacoby singled with two outs in the Cleveland sixth. Pat Tabler then hit his third home run into the left field seats off Charlie Leibrandt, giving the Indians a 3-1 lead.

Carmen Castillo made it 4-1 Cleveland when he led off the seventh with his third home run, over the left field barrier off Leibrandt.

The Royals knocked Cleveland's rookie pitcher Ramon Romero out of the game in the ninth on Darryl Motley's RBI single, then scored again on Frank White's RBI double and a sacrifice fly by Jim Sundberg off reliever Jeff Barkley.

White had given the Royals a 1-0 lead in the second when he homered into the right field seats, his 11th of the season. The Indians tied the game 1-1 in their half of the second when Tabler singled with one out, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Joe Carter's double.

1934 — Babe Ruth of the Yankees hit his 700th home run in a 4-2 win over Tommy Bridges and the Tigers at Detroit. The shot cleared the right field wall and rolled several hundred feet down a street leading to the stadium. This also was the game where Lou Gehrig of the Yanks left in the first inning with a severe case of lumbago. In the most serious threat to his streak, he returned for one at bat (a single) the next day.

1963 — Early Wynn, at 43 years of age, registered his 300th and last major league victory, pitching the first five innings of Cleveland's 7-4 win over the Kansas City A's.

Bowie closes after 71 years

By GORDON BEARD

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Bowie Race Course, an offbeat track which pioneered winter racing in the East and spawned weird happenings, closes Saturday after 71 years of operation.

Al Karwacki, general manager of the sixth Maryland track to fold since the 1950s, approaches the end with mixed emotions but he doesn't consider his vigil a death watch.

"It's just the end of an era," Karwacki insisted Friday. "Naturally, there's a degree of sadness, but it's tempered with the thought that the closing is for the betterment of Maryland racing. So, let's get it done."

While conceding his brave front may crumble when Auld Lang Syne is played after Saturday's ninth race, Karwacki said memories of Bowie's somewhat bizarre past will help ease off the sadness.

"The major thing I'll remember about Bowie is battling the elements," Karwacki said. "I guess you might call us the track of adversity. But we got great satisfaction out of operating even after big snowstorms."

Bowie's worst storm occurred in 1968, before Karwacki joined the track, but it has become a treasured memory in Maryland racing lore.

The February storm began falling about the time the first race began, and thousands who stayed for the entire program were unable to move their cars from the parking lots.

Those who couldn't squeeze onto the last train to Baltimore stayed overnight in the stands. The track supplied food and the fans provided their own entertainment, including various games of chance of skill.

Three years later, on another February day, six fans died in a train derailed and some of the walking wounded refused immediate medical attention until after they hustled along the snow-covered crossties to place daily double bets.

To top off the bizarre day, a fire broke out in the grandstand and heavy smoke which blocked the view of the stewards forced cancellation of the final race.

"We were closed by snow, by rain which flooded area roads, a broken water main in the town of Bowie, and by a felled tree which hit a line and knocked out the power," Karwacki recalled. "Other than that, it's been a piece of cake."

Milton "Muggins" Feldman, the Runyonesque public relations head who retired last year but is coming back for the final program, also contributed to the Bowie mystique.

He publicized Bowie's winter meets with photos of penguins, and once staged an animal race in which a zebu (a zebra-buffalo hybrid) ridden by Danny Wright defeated a camel, a water buffalo and a llama.

On another occasion, a hand-capped race between a man, a Model-T Ford and a horse came under the Bowie curse for the bizarre.

Veteran starter Eddie Blind, using a flare to signal the staggered start, set it off while the runner was taking off his sweat pants.

But Bowie also presented some of the best competitors in racing, with Kelso, Mongo, Kaul King and Dancer's Image included among its winners.

"The best race I ever saw was when Mongo beat Gun Bow by a nose in the 1964 Campbell Handicap," Karwacki said.

The closing of Bowie, which was purchased by the owners of Pimlico and Laurel, comes at a time Maryland tracks will benefit from a new state law which lowered the state's "take" of the betting dollar from 4.09 percent to 5.0 percent.

But if Maryland is to remain competitive with neighboring states, Karwacki said, not even that tax break would justify the continued existence of Bowie.

"There will be about $10 million more available," he said, "but $4 million will go to the horsemen and a three-way split would not provide sufficient funds for the major improvements the tracks need."

Bowie, which will close with a $900,000 daily mutuel handle, a record for a Maryland summer meeting, will continue to operate as a backup stable facility for Pimlico and Laurel.

Stone to coach on tour of Chile

From Staff Reports

Midland College basketball coach Jerry Stone is off to Chile for a two week basketball tour as head coach of United States players and they will be taking on the National Team of Chile.

According to Stone, "The Argentina National Team may come over and play us also."

The first game of the four-city tour will be in Santiago on July 19. Stone isn't sure how many games his team will be playing in each city but figures to spend about four days at each stop.

Stone, who led the MC Chaparrals to a fourth place finish this past season in the JUCO National Tournament at Hutchinson, Kan., isn't exactly sure how he was picked for this honor, but has an idea.

"I think what happened was the North Carolina State coaches were asked to do it but none of them were available," said Stone. "They recommended me, which I appreciate."

Angry Andujar to skip star tilt

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals right-hander Joaquin Andujar, citing what he considered to be a snub, said Friday night he will not represent the National League in Tuesday's All-Star Game.

Andujar's remarks were delivered before a Cardinals game against the San Diego Padres at Busch Stadium.

San Diego Manager Dick Williams, who on Thursday had selected Andujar as one of 10 National League pitchers but had refrained from naming the St. Louis pitcher his starter, said he was not disturbed by the report.

Andujar, who was to face Padres

All-Star right-hander LaMarr Hoyt in the Friday night game, was not available for additional comment just before game time.

"I don't think I should have to pitch good tonight (Friday) to be the starter. I'm 15-3, I have the second-most complete games in the league, I have a 2.38 earned-run average," the St. Louis hurler said. "How many 15-3 pitchers are in the All-Star Game?"

Williams, who will manage the NL team, had said earlier he would withhold his choice on a starter for Tuesday night's game in Minneapolis until after Friday night's game.

"I better not comment on it," said Cards Manager Whitey Herzog.

Minneapolis eager to impress NFL

By GILES HUDSON

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Civic leaders and city officials, anxious to put on a good show for Tuesday's All-Star Game, hope the extra activities they've planned will pay off in the campaign to attract a Super Bowl game and a National Basketball Association franchise.

"If we do a good job (with the All Stars), it will reflect on us well," said Paul Ridgeway, member of the task force working to bring a Super Bowl to Minneapolis. "We're trying to put our best foot forward so that people will know we can handle the Super Bowl when it comes up..." he said Friday.

Under a resolution adopted by National Football League owners in May, the Super Bowl must be held in a northern city in 1991 or 1992. Minneapolis, Seattle, and Pontiac, Mich., all cities with domed stadiums, are among the bidders. The prize: a $90 million shot for his local economy.

But beyond the monetary considerations, putting on the All-Star Game will show the nation "we're in a position to handle these kind of things," said Norm McGrew, general manager of the Greater Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce.

If the Twin Cities can't be a good host, McGrew said, "we don't have a chance to win the Super Bowl here in the winter."

Amos Martin, president of the St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce, said the All-Star Game, which is expected to bring in 30,000 players, fans, and team officials, will only help the metropolitan area become a center for major sports events.

"We hope that the All-Star Game, if it goes according to plan, will show the NFL owners, 'Hey, this is a major league area that can handle an event of this type...'"

The Twin Cities have been without an NBA franchise since the old Minneapolis Lakers left for Los Angeles in 1960.

"We think that's part of the package deal that will be helped if we handle this (All-Star Game) properly," McGrew said. "We feel that NBA basketball would have a good time in this area."

Becker gets welcome

LEIMEN, West Germany (AP) — More than 25,000 cheering people gave Boris Becker a hero's welcome as the Wimbledon champion rode home in a motorcade through streets festooned with flowers, flags and welcome-home signs Friday.

Signs saying "Leimen Greets Boris" spanned over the route of the motorcade as the 17-year-old tennis sensation rode in an open Mercedes jeep to the cheers of thousands lining the streets.

Another sign declared: "We Know Boris! Who is John McEnroe?"

Leimen, south of Heidelberg, has a population of 17,000 people but police said more than 25,000 had turned up for Becker's homecoming after his Wimbledon triumph last Sunday.

Thousands of flag-waving people lined the route and stood on balconies while the red-haired tennis ace, wearing a white shirt and casual slacks, waved to the crowd. The slow-moving motorcade often stopped to allow Becker to sign autographs and receive flowers from the crowd.

Thousands more crowded in front of the townhall where mayor Herbert Ehrbar presented Becker with Leimen's Ring of Honor.

A specially composed song, "Boris, Boris, in Wimbledon that was a day like never before, Boris King of Wimbledon," blared from loudspeakers installed in front of the town hall.

"He looks a bit embarrassed, but no wonder in this hustle," said a lady in the throng.

"I am not unsure (of myself). I am only very surprised that there are so many people enthusiastic about tennis in Leimen," Becker said.

Virtually all businesses in Leimen displayed on their windows giant posters of Becker in action or welcome-home signs.

Becker on Sunday defeated Kevin Curren to become the youngest player ever to win Wimbledon, the only non-sever to do so and also the youngest ever to win a Grand Slam tournament.

Following his victory, Becker went to Monte Carlo where he keeps a residence.

Mets end Angel streak

From Staff Reports

JACKSON, Miss. — The Midland Angels had their four-game winning streak snapped Friday night as the Jackson Mets posted a 5-4, 10-inning Texas League victory here.

Trailing 4-2 after 7½ innings, the Mets picked up a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to tie the game at four, and punched the winning run across the plate with two gone in the 10th inning.

Angel reliever Todd Fischer took the loss in 1½ innings of duty, giving up only one hit but walking three and throwing a wild pitch. Fischer fell to 5-2 on the year. Jackson's Ed Pruitt, 3-1, claimed the win in relief in no-hit, no-walk fashion while striking out two in two innings on the mound.

Angel James Randall kept his torrid hitting pace from the San Antonio series going by collected a double and single in four at bats. But, he was overshadowed at the plate by Brain Hartsock, an Angel who joined the club during the All-Star game break.

Hartsock, inserted into the lineup as a designated hitter, went 3-for-four, including a double and his first home run in AA ball. He also scored two runs, knocked in one and stole his first base as an Angel.

Also joining the Angels for Friday's game was outfielder Phil Stephenson, who went 0-for-5 in the No. 2 slot in the order, bumping Mike Madril, who has held the spot for some time, to the bottom of the order.

The Angels and Mets will play a doubleheader tonight to make up for Thursday's rainout.

Lamesa outs Tower, 12-9

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — Jeff Casbeer's grand slam home run and two-RBI single went for naught Friday night as Midland Tower was ousted from the Division III tournament by Lamesa, 12-9.

Casbeer's homer came in the five-run second inning for Tower and helped cut Lamesa's 7-0 lead to 7-5. But, Tower could never overcome the Lamesa advantage. The closest Tower came was 9-8 after four, but Lamesa scored insurance runs in the fifth and sixth to hold the Tall City team at bay.

Cody White collected the victory for Lamesa while Clayton Davis was tagged for the loss.

With Tower eliminated with a 1-2 tournament record, that leaves four Tall City teams still alive in the double-elimination action.

Both Midland Eastern and Midland North Central hold 2-0 tourney records while Midland Mid-City is 1-0. Midland Western is still alive at 0-1, but faces an elimination game tonight at 8 p.m. when they take on Big Spring International, 1-1.

McGee, Rose join NL All-Star squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, Willie McGee and Ryne Sandberg were added as reserves to the National League All-Star team Friday, while perennial choices Reggie Jackson and Rod Carew were left off the American League squad and Mike Schmidt missed out in the NL.

"I'd love to have made it, but the fans picked some deserving fellows," said Jackson, who has been selected to 14 All-Star Games, including the last eight. Jackson, with 15 home runs and 44 RBI, finished fourth in the fan voting for starting outfield spots.

Carew, a teammate of Jackson with the California Angels, failed to make the team for the first time since 1967. Eddie Murray of Baltimore will start at first base this year. "No, I'm not disappointed," said Carew, hitting .275. "Murray is having a great year and he deserves to be there."

Schmidt is having a particularly tough season, batting just .237 with 10 homers and 37 RBI for Philadelphia. Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson, who will guide the AL in Tuesday night's game in the Minneapolis Metrodome, added outfielders Harold Baines of Chicago; Phil Bradley of Seattle; Gary Ward of Texas; and Tom Brunansky of host Minnesota; infielders Wade Boggs of Boston; Cecil Cooper and Paul Molitor of Milwaukee; Damaso Garcia of Toronto; Don Mattingly of New York; and Alan Trammell of Detroit; and catchers Carlton Fisk of Chicago and Ernie Whitt of Toronto.

San Diego Manager Dick Williams, who will handle the NL, filled out his roster by naming 10 players, including McGee, a St. Louis outfielder who is leading the league with a .340 average, Cincinnati Player-manager Roger Rose, who will be making his 16th All-Star appearance, and second baseman Sandberg, last year's Most Valuable Player.

Also picked by Williams were outfielders Pedro Guerrero of Los Angeles, who is batting .312 and tied for the NL home run lead with 21, Tim Raines of Montreal, Dave Parker of Cincinnati and Jose Cruz of Houston; and infielders Jack Clark of St. Louis, Garry Templeton of San Diego, Tim Wallach of Montreal; and catchers Tony Pena of Pittsburgh and Ozzie Vergil of Philadelphia.

"It's about time, don't you think?" Cruz said after being selected. Cruz, who has hit over .300 five times in his career, was named to play in his second All-Star Game. He was also selected in 1960, but was the only one of the 20 NL non-pitchers not to play in the game.

"I'm pleased to be going. It's an honor," said Cruz, batting .306 this season. Among those also left off this year's AL team were outfielder George Bell of Toronto, batting .291 with 18 homers and 57 RBI; Oakland's Dave Kingman, a designated hitter with 21 home runs; and New York pitcher Ron Guidry, who is 11-3. Guidry requested to be left off the AL team because he was scheduled to start for the Yankees on Sunday.

In the NL, those passed over included Philadelphia outfielder Glenn Wilson, fourth in the league with 60 RBI; and pitchers Andy Hawkins of San Diego, who is 11-2, and Atlanta's Rick Mahler, at 12-7. "I felt I had a legitimate chance, but I suppose a lot of guys did," Mahler said.

Sweeten leads West

AUSTIN, TEXAS (AP) — Most valuable player Shawn Sweeten led the West All-Stars to a come-from-behind victory Friday night over the East team in the 17th Annual Texas Girls Coaches Association Volleyball Tournament.

The West stars dropped the first game 15-9 before sweeping the next three games — 15-12, 15-13 and 15-11. Sweeten, a recent graduate of San Angelo Central High School — got four kills in the final game. Teammate Kim Wright of New Braunfels added four kills and aggressive defense in that game.

East standout Sue Scheifhout's hard hitting gave her squad a solid lead in the first game. The East led 14-3 before Sweeten tightened the score with three kills. Scheifhout ended that game with a well-placed dip.

The state's top girls high school basketball players meet Saturday night in the 27th Annual North-South All-Star game. The games coincide with the Texas Girls Coaches Association annual convention.

Players get fair warning

All right, Miss America, take a letter to the commissioner of all baseball, if you will. Watch out for the spelling of his name. It's a toughie. Mark it eyes only. Ready?

"Dear Commissioner: It's only fair to warn you that there are some people in baseball that I'm not talking to this season. I'm putting them -and you - on notice.

"I'm not talking to Steve Carlton. George Hendricks. Maybe Dave Kingman. I haven't made up my mind yet. Cecil Cooper. A couple of guys on the Rangers. I can't think of their names right offhand.

"And, now, Brian Downing of the Angels. This last is kind of tough because I've always gotten along well with Brian Downing. Kind of liked him, really.

"I'm still talking to Pete Rose and Reggie Jackson. I ask Steve Garvey how the kids are all the time. With Cecil Cooper, I'm sorry it had to come to this, but, well, Cecil asked for it.

"YOU SEE, these are on a list of guys who have announced they are not talking to the press and I think it's about time they found out this is a two-way street.

"I mean, you think writers don't have a slump? You think there aren't nights when we think 'Oh, Lord, do I have to go to a locker and talk to these guys again when they don't know how it is?' Only, we don't have any training room to hide in. Let me tell you something, Commissioner. Ballplayers aren't the only ones who have off-days. The thing is, we can't take ours out on the press.

"You think there aren't nights when I can't get around on a couple of easy adjectives? You think we don't pop up a hanging adverb? Right in our wheelhouse and we get under it? You think we don't dribble a modifying clause back to the pitcher? Get good wood on a transitive verb only to have it die at the warning track?

"You think our prepositional phrases don't pull a hamstring? Some columns limp in like Pete Guerrero. I once got in such a slump I used two semicolons in one sentence. On my bad days, I run out of commas.

"YOU THINK it's tough when a manager comes out to yank the pitcher when he's got good stuff? What about when the editor says: 'Wait a minute, don't you want to rewrite this junk?' And you say: 'Hey, I got good stuff today. I had a no-hitter going when that banjo-hitting predicate was guessing curve on me.'

"We can't sulk in the shower, can't get dressed in the trainer's room and sneak out the back. We got to suck it up and go downstairs and say: 'OK, Slug, what kind of a pitch was it you hit?' Or missed, as the case may be.

"I may add other people I'm not talking to as the season unwinds. I've got my eye on the whole left side of the Cleveland infield, for example, and one of these days when George Steinbrenner calls, I'm going to say 'No comment,' and hang up.

"I'm fed up with these guys, Commissioner. I never once in my whole life said 'Take a hike' to an athlete who wanted to talk to me and this is the thanks I get for it.

"Let me ask you something - let me ask them something: Where do you think baseball would be today if Babe Ruth had refused to talk to reporters? What if you couldn't find out what Mickey Mantle had eaten for breakfast, what Willie Mays thought of the redscount rate, how Ty Cobb felt about the infield fly rule in your paper in the morning?"

"I'll tell you where it would be - about where soccer or softball are in this country.

"Baseball owes a lot to Babe Ruth, but it owes a lot to Ring Lardner, too.

"You think Dizzy Dean would have jammed all those ballparks if J. Roy Stockton hadn't let the world in on what a wonderfully wacky character we were dealing with?"

"DOES GEORGE Hendricks think all these million-dollar contracts are handed out because the world needs people who can manage three hits every 10 times at bat? It may come as a shock to him, but the world doesn't even need another .400 hitter.

If he thinks the game itself is so intrinsically interesting, have him drop in on a twilight league game in Visalia some night. Or even a triple-A game in Pawtucket. Nobody would even notice whom George Hendricks wasn't speaking to.

"Americans have a right to speak or not speak to whom they choose. My point is, there's this symbiotic relationship between press and player that works well for both - better, usually, for the player. Publicity is part of a player's pay, often convertible later on in life when he can't hit the curve anymore.

"But, quite apart from that, there is the obligation to the industry. Talk or perish.

"Television gives the game the big bucks. But television cannot make a sport. Lord knows, it's tried. It did everything it could with soccer. Also, the USFL.

"Without the daily reams of free copy, the daily chronicling of star slugger as a friend of the family, television might as well beam test patterns.

"So, I want it to be known that it's not that these guys are not speaking to me. I'm not speaking to them.

"And, one other thing: I may strike this summer, too. Tell them that. And see how they like it."

Sincerely,
Seasoned Scribe

LA's Steve Young may take talents to NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Young, the $40 million quarterback who is thinking about taking his talents to the National Football League, says he has received no assurances from United States Football League Commissioner Harry Usher that the foundering Los Angeles Express franchise will be more stable in 1986. Young's agent, Leigh Steinberg, said the second-year pro from Brigham Young whose NFL rights are held by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, has an option to leave the USFL because of what the attorney said was "a breach of contract."

Steinberg also said Young might be more inclined to stay with the Express if the USFL could assure him that the team — which played in the virtually vacant 90,000-seat Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, then switched to tiny Pierce Junior College — would find new ownership and stability.

Texans Estes, Smith reach Trans-Miss semis

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Lamar University senior-to-be Mike Smith rolled in a 29-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to defeat Bob McDonnell 1-up Friday in the quarterfinals of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Championship.

Smith, of Conway, Ark., holed his long putt moments after McDonnell missed a similar putt by inches.

Smith will face Bill Spangler of Lincoln, Neb., in one semifinal match Saturday while Abilene's Bob Estes, who finished runner up to Midland's Steve Whiteside in the Men's West Texas championship a couple of weeks ago, takes on Ron Richard of Fort Smith in the other semifinal. The 36-hole final is Sunday.

Spangler beat Kevin Whipple 1-up when he made a five-foot birdie on the first extra hole. Estes slipped by Greg Cesario of Redlands, Calif., 1-up and Richard defeated Alex Galvin of Los Angeles, 5 and 4. McDonnell defeated defending champion John Pigg of Austin, Texas on Thursday while Cesario took out medalist Tim Crockett of Fayetteville, Ark.

Smith, third in the Southland Conference tournament, fell behind McDonnell when the Atlanta resident birdied No. 11. Smith, who uses a baseball grip and had Lamar Coach Gregg Grost as his caddy, parred No. 15 to pull even.

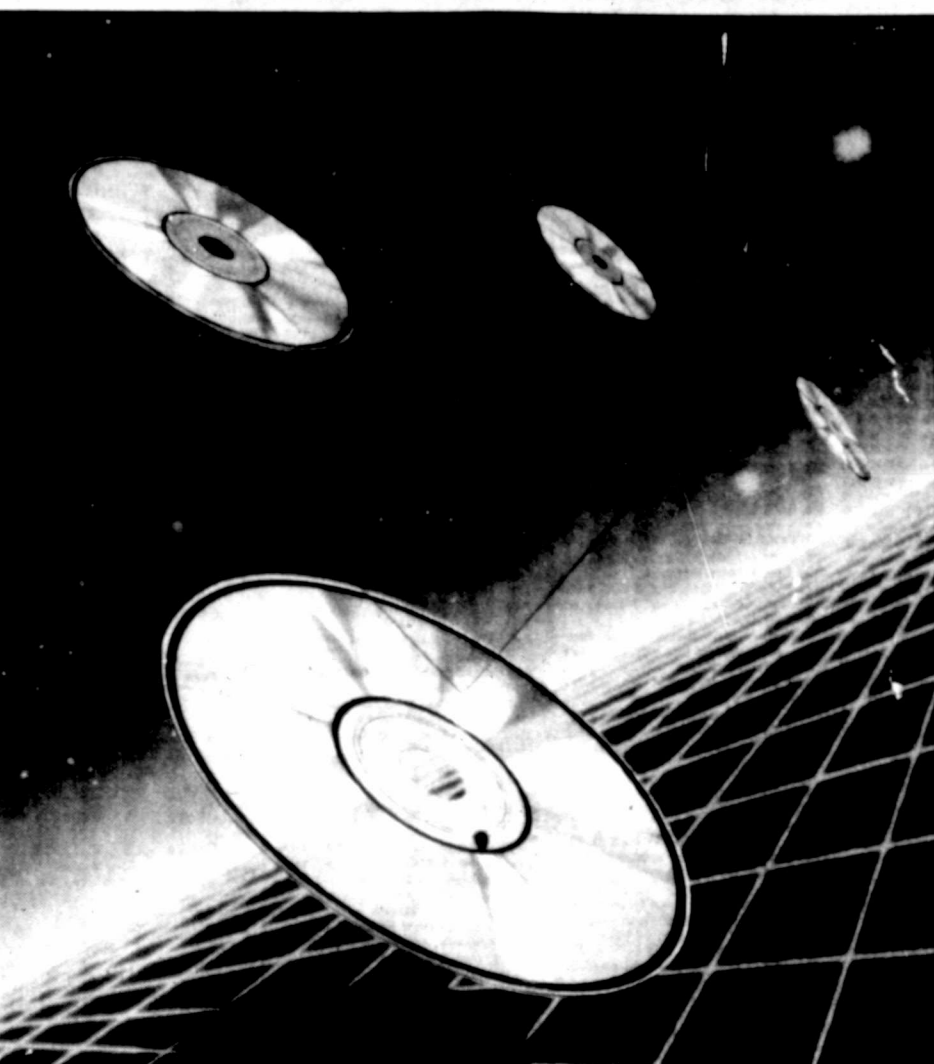

Smith's birdie on No. 18 put him under par for the round.

Spangler, 23, a member of the University of Nebraska golf team, was even with Whipple, of Duncan, Okla., at the turn. Spangler went ahead with a birdie on No. 14 and both parred the next three holes. Whipple won No. 18 when Spangler had tree trouble and eventually missed a five-foot par putt. Spangler was even par for the day.

Estes, 19, recently completed his freshman year at the University of Texas where he played No. 1. The winner of the Pan-American Intercollegiate tournament, Estes went ahead to stay with a birdie on No. 16. He and Cesario split the final two holes with pars.

Trotters look at USC girls

McGees figure they can't lose

By MARK McDONALD
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) — When the Harlem Globetrotters open tryouts Sunday in Charlotte, N.C., searching for their first female team member, Paula and Pamela say they can't lose.

The McGees, the talented 6-2 twins from the University of Southern California and the defunct Dallas Diamonds, say they could be overlooked in favor of some hot All-America. Even if that were to happen, they figure the camp will be a positive step for women's basketball.

"The biggest problem in (women's basketball) right now is the lack of exposure," said Paula, 22, who has lived with her twin in a Highland Park apartment since the Diamonds opened their season last autumn.

"We have no platform to display our skills. The Globetrotters opening up a spot or two on their roster to women will provide that. We may not be chosen, but we all stand to gain because it will showcase women's basketball."

Pamela said if the McGees — and it is a package deal, both or none at all — make the team, "it comes at a great time in our lives."

"There is no pressure because you don't have to win. Pressure was the NCAA tournament and the Olympic tryouts. With the Globetrotters, you are on the court as ambassadors of the game and this country. You are there to entertain."

The McGees, and the other women on the list, are raw rookies when it comes to showboating. At USC, Paula shot 52.7 percent from the floor and Pam 59.5. Pam was also a member of the Olympic team that won a gold medal. On the court they have always been strictly business. Meanwhile, Candy Lucas of North Carolina-Charlotte has told reporters she can shoot baskets through her legs and behind her head, so the McGees' playing style may have to loosen.

"If you hang around the playgrounds long enough," said Paula, "you pick up some stuff."

THEIR former coach on the Diamonds, Greg Williams, said Paula may have a style suited for the Globetrotters.

"Paula is more fluid in the open court," said Williams, who works in public relations for the Southern Methodist University athletic department. "Pam is a strong post-up player ... But she doesn't quite have the all-around game."

Paula said she is a tad taller and a couple pounds lighter than her twin, facts Pamela does not deny. Indeed, neither appears to weigh close to their listed weights: 175 pounds for Pamela, 170 for Paula.

The McGees, who are from Flint, Mich., said they have no idea what to expect at the tryouts, but the Globetrotters said they will select six or eight women to bring to the club's

Los Angeles training camp in September.

"It'll be hardcore basketball," said Nini Finkelstein, a spokesperson for the Globetrotters. "They will be working out, showing their style." "I think it will be a lot of full-court drills, then some scrimmages," said Pamela. "I think they want a credible basketball player. They can teach you the tricks later."

Said Paula: "I know some of the girls who have been invited, and they are good, but I don't think the tryouts will be any worse than the Olympic tryouts."

If the McGees are not chosen from the list of athletes invited to the camp, they might pursue their craft in a women's pro league in Italy, they said. Several of the top players coming to the camp already have chosen that alternative.

"IN ITALY, the Americans are stars," Paula said. "The Italians are about like good high school players here. It's good tax-free money, a car and it's only eight months out of the year."

"At the tryout, I plan to go out there, work hard and have fun."

As far as becoming the first women, Pamela said, "We would be a part of history in the making. That's what is so exciting about the opportunity."

Parker long gone, but Pittsburgh memories linger

By MICHAEL MARTINEZ
N.Y. Times News Service

CINCINNATI — He is nearly two seasons removed from the bitter-sweet years at Pittsburgh. But when Dave Parker remembers, everything still seems painfully alive, still seems to tug annoyingly at him. And he can't forget.

Parker is home now, back here where he grew up and played high school ball before signing his first professional contract. He says he has found contentment again, that he can come to the stadium and play baseball without a backdrop of boos.

Here, Parker is producing as he once did in Pittsburgh. Pete Rose, his manager, believes the 34-year-old right fielder is capable of winning another batting championship, as he did in 1977 and '78. Parker says he could be a legitimate candidate for enshrinement in the Hall of Fame with three or four more creditable seasons.

But none of it would be thinkable had he remained in Pittsburgh, where interest in the Pirates is waning and the franchise is up for sale. "By the end," Parker said, "my heart wasn't in it. Pittsburgh just wasn't a practical place for me to play. The family atmosphere we had in '79 was gone and playing the game was boring. I made a big contribution toward establishing baseball in the city, but no one ever gave me credit. My last three years there were total torment."

Parker, who signed a two-year agreement with the Reds as a free agent after the 1983 season, has found renewed happiness in Cincinnati. He hit .285 last season and negotiated a new contract that will pay him $1.2 million per year from 1986 through 1988. He even spurned overtures from George Steinbrenner, the Yankee owner, who had hoped to bring him to New York.

Now, Parker is enjoying his best all-round season in six years. Going into Wednesday's game with the Mets, he was hitting .307 and ranked among the National League leaders with 14 home runs, 86 hits, 20 doubles and 57 runs batted in.

"He is the only guy who has played every day and produced every day," said Rose. "He's been steady, consistent. Day in and day out, he's done the job. He's having an m.v.p. year."

Parker sees nothing unusual about his new vitality, except that he has left Pittsburgh for "the friendly confines of Cincinnati, my home." He has established a rapport with the fans at Riverfront Stadium and is playing like a youngster again. He has already gone through six pairs of uniform pants, having torn the others through typically reckless play. He hurt his shoulder making a diving catch in right field not long ago, then pronounced afterward, "Unless there's a bone sticking out, I'll be in the lineup tomorrow."

He fully believes he is capable of recapturing the magic of his glory years in a Pirate uniform.

"I'm healthy and content, and the ability is still there," he said. "I can do it."

Parker came into the season with a .303 career batting average and 1,652 career hits. "With three or four more good years," he said, "I think there are people who would consider my credentials for the Hall of Fame. I want to maintain what I already have, which is my .300 average, and try to stay healthy for a while longer. If I can get 2,500 hits, I'm damn well gonna look for 3,000. And right now, 2,500 is a piece of cake.

Before he arrived here, Parker had fallen to the professional depths in Pittsburgh. His seasons of triumph — five consecutive years of a .300-plus batting average, the most valuable player award in 1978, the World Series title in 1979 — were followed by a period of turmoil. He had knee surgery after the 1980 season, gained 25 pounds.

Texas publisher wants people to apologize for picking on New Jersey

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Everybody loves to dump on poor old New Jersey, not just the trucker with the toxic waste or a gangster with a dead body.

Much maligned, its major industry reputed to be "the distance between New York City and Philadelphia," New Jersey just sits there and takes it.

No, New Jersey's official state bird is not the mosquito — it's the Eastern Goldfinch.

And no, the finch doesn't prefer to live out of state and commute.

New Jersey Rep. James Saxton says he's tired of hearing jokes like, "If this is New Jersey, just imagine what old Jersey was like."

Now comes a Texas humor publisher to the Garden State's defense, proposing that this week be declared "Be Nice to New Jersey Week," in which Americans atone for their put-downs.

"We have determined after lots of intensive studies that New Jersey is the most picked-on state in the country," says Craig Scharf of Lone Star Publications of Humor.

"No place could be as bad as the jokes say," said Scharf, who happens to be a New Jersey native. "New Jersey is a great place to be from, just ask all the people who have moved away."

His San Antonio-based firm, which has a combined nationwide circulation of about 3,000 for its newsletter, joke book and a digest of humorous stories and drawings, has asked readers to write friends or relatives in New Jersey and apologize for "picking on their great state."

What is there to apologize for? Jokes like, "The Mafia is feeling the recession — they laid off four judges in New Jersey."

Or, "Swine flu was discovered in New Jersey — where else?"

Or, "The state gem is concrete. The state flower is swamp algae. The state tree is dead."

Lone Star says if readers don't know anyone in the state, they should apologize directly to Gov. Thomas H. Kean.

On Thursday, Saxton endorsed the idea of a "Be Nice To New Jersey Week" by entering a complaint into the Congressional Record: "Our great state never asked for the wild assortment of unfair humor which has been directed our way over the years."

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., heard about the tongue-in-cheek campaign to restore New Jersey's reputation and responded in kind.

"San Antonio doesn't know anything about New Jersey and that's the way (I) want to keep it," he said. "If people knew how wonderful New Jersey is we would be deluged with an influx of people dying to live there."

One reason for New Jersey's image problem may be its status as the most densely populated state in the nation. Another may be that many people never see any more of it than the heavily traveled stretch of New Jersey Turnpike that passes near foul-smelling chemical refineries.

But state Commerce Commissioner Borden Putnam says the New Jersey shore, the state's historical sites and scenic beauty make it a top attraction for tourists, who pump $10 billion into the state's economy annually.

"This was the cockpit of the American Revolution," Putnam says. "There were more revolutionary battles fought in New Jersey than anywhere else."

Scharf has an appropriate comeback: "During the Revolutionary War, 100 battles were fought on New Jersey soil, and in every case both sides lost."

Not everybody appreciates a good New Jersey joke.

Last year when U.S. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., was vying for the presidential nomination, he jokingly complained about being stuck campaigning in New Jersey while his wife stumped in California.

"The good news for her is she campaigns in California and I campaign in New Jersey," Hart said.

Mrs. Hart said she got to hold a koala bear and he responded, "I won't tell you what I got to hold — samples from a toxic waste dump."

Hart finished a distant second to former Walter Mondale, carrying only two counties.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

McInnis class teaches 'living without attack'

Noel and the Rev. Rita McInnis will present a seminar on "Living Without Attack" from 2 to 5 p.m. July 21 at the Midland Ramada Inn.

The couple is on a tour of four member churches of the Lone Star Association of Religious Science. Other seminars are scheduled in San Antonio today, Houston on Wednesday and Fort Worth-Dallas on Thursday.

Participants are invited to bring a metal spoon or fork and during the workshop most will have the experience of bending their spoon or fork, McInnis said.

"Our purpose in introducing people to the metal-bending experience is to show how the power of centeredness relates to the quest for peace," said McInnis. "Such metal bending does not depend upon esoteric powers peculiar to persons of special psychic endowment, but rather upon being centered in one's own being."

The McInnis' came to a realization of how the human species has blocked itself from the expression of its full potential. "Complete emancipation of our inner powers is not possible so long as we are distracted by the mentality of attack," McInnis said.

The workshop is open to all interested persons. To cover expenses a $25 fee is charged and may be made by advance reservation or at the door. For additional information go by The Book Store, No. 11 Town and Country Shopping Center, or call 697-4188.

Doctor treats 'holditis'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If the switchboard operators and receptionists at your company are rude and cut off callers abruptly, it may be time to call the doctor — The Telephone Doctor.

Nancy Friedman guarantees she has the cure to ailments such as "holditis," "emotional leaking" and the dreaded "non-support statement."

Mrs. Friedman — calling herself The Telephone Doctor — travels to companies nationwide presenting her 3 1/2-hour program on telephone manners.

Her talk has nothing to do with electronic gadgetry, long-distance service or call-waiting. Instead, it deals with attitude, tone of voice and language.

"The telephone is the lifeline of a business," she said. "Every question is a sales opportunity. When a person says, 'He's not in, can I take a message,' you've just lost a sales opportunity."

Mrs. Friedman said that rather than a general question such as "Can I take a message?" the response should be: "He's not in, but he'll be back at 2. Let me take your name and number and I'll have him return your call."

Proper telephone technique applies to everyone who uses a company phone, Mrs. Friedman said, "from the top executive to the guy who sweeps the floors. There's nobody that's exempt from losing a sale."

Mrs. Friedman said one of the most common problems is "holditis," when a person tells a caller he will be put on hold. "Don't order your customers to hold," she said. "Ask them if they are able to hold. They're calling to give you orders, not take them."

"Emotional leaking" occurs when a person having a bad day takes it out on an unsuspecting caller. "How do you avoid it?" Mrs. Friedman asked rhetorically. "You shift gears. You regain your professional composure. A phony smile is better than a real frown."

"Those are bad habits, but not as bad as 'non-support statements. They're the worst," she said.

In fact, it was a non-support statement — a response such as "no" without elaboration — that turned Mrs. Friedman into one smooth operator.

She called her insurance agent three years ago and told him she was dropping her policies. When he asked why, she said it was because she could not stand dealing with the people who answered the telephones at his office.

"I told him, 'We treat our wrong numbers better than you treat your customers,'" Mrs. Friedman said. "It was in such an uncaring manner. I'd ask if he was in, and they would say 'no,' or 'he's out to lunch,' or 'he's gone.' I'd say, 'When did he die?'"

The insurance man invited Mrs. Friedman to talk to his office personnel, and he was impressed by the points she made. She was struck by everyone's lack of phone etiquette.

Her big break came when she related the story to a newspaper editor in Davenport, Iowa.

Report cards cross country

SHELTON, Conn. (AP) — When it comes to mailing report cards on time, the U.S. Postal Service gets an F.

But give Shelton Postmaster Richard Sutkowski an A for effort in trying to figure out how more than 1,800 report cards mailed here two weeks ago turned up in Oakland, Calif.

"This is definitely not funny," Sutkowski said after the cards reappeared in his town this week.

"We deal with a lot of mail and this is an error. But I can say at the least that this is out of the ordinary."

Family of six lives, sleeps in two-door Ford

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The head of a six-member family that lives with two dogs in a car since being evicted nearly five months ago says "we don't want to live like this," but the eviction has soured landlords on taking them in.

Members of the Kirby family keep their clothes and possessions in the trunk of their 1981 two-door Ford Fairmont.

They eat in restaurants and wash in public restrooms. At night, the six family members and their two dogs cram into the car built for four people, sleeping sitting up and pressed against each other.

"We're not street bums," said James W. Kirby Jr., the family's 64-year-old patriarch who is crippled with emphysema. "We don't want to live like this, but we can't find anyone to rent to us."

The Kirbys started using the car as a house in February when they were evicted from the home where they had lived for seven years. They were three months behind on the $200-a-month rent.

Kirby said the eviction judgment has dogged the family, making landlords reluctant to rent to them even though they maintain that they can pay the rent.

The family consists of Kirby; his wife, Mary, 61, who has heart trouble; their son, John, 28, who is under treatment for a nerve disorder; their daughter, Marilyn, 30; Marilyn's husband, Ralph Lunsford, 36; and another daughter, Patricia, 24.

The family is rounded out by mixed American spitz and terrier dogs — Panda and Boogy Bear.

They have moved around a shopping center area, from parking lot to parking lot. Their address is a post office box.

It is cramped inside the car when everyone is inside. It is hard to sleep there. But they say they have to make do.

"You'd think we'd have gotten on each others' nerves so bad now we couldn't stand it, but we've been able to get along," said James Kirby.

"You only get a few hours of sleep at night, and there are some nights when we drive around all night because we can't sleep," said Patricia.

"You can't change clothes, and it's hard to find places to wash up. Once or twice a month we scrape up enough money to go to a motel for a night so we can get ourselves together."

The Kirbys say they are not destitute. James Kirby receives $600 a month from Social Security, while Patricia and Marilyn are cashiers at discount stores, making $125 a week each.

Your horoscope

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

Sitting around and envying others is a dead end. Pull up your socks and go after what you want! Hard work will win you the financial backing you need. Approach influential people with a specific plan in mind. Show how your creative ideas can be put to practical use. Although you are most comfortable relying on family members, you would benefit from working with friends. Romance becomes more fulfilling. CELEBRITY BIRTH-DATES: former President Gerald Ford, actress-cosmetic executive Polly Bergen, news commentator John Chancellor, Oakland A's pitcher Chuck Rainey, athlete-entertainer-preacher Roosevelt Grier, "St. Elsewhere's" Eric G. Laneville, Swedish director Ingmar Bergman.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Do not despair if you discover someone has deceived you. In the end, you win big! Postpone business discussions until tomorrow. Call a family member and catch up on all the news.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Try to ignore someone who does not even try to communicate. You have your own responsibilities. Keep an open mind if seeking a financial solution. An innovative approach pays off handsomely!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20). Unless you talk about your deeper feelings, mate will never know where you are coming from. Make a special effort to seek out old friends at a social event.

CANCER (June 21-July 22). Sharing responsibilities brings you closer to your mate and children. Show more respect for tradition. Your magnetic personality brings you the kind of attention you desire.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Mate may not share your affectionate mood. Back off a bit. Time is on your side. A dramatic meeting helps solve a financial problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A family discussion produces positive feedback. Have more respect for yourself. It is time to stop talking and put your ideas into practice. You find a way to settle a lingering dispute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Keep an open mind regarding a vacation suggestion from a family member. A pet could influence your final decision. Regular exercise helps you feel and look your best. Be consistent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). A communications snafu could make family members irritable. A smile works magic. Be patient. Job leads could result from a cocktail party conversation. Show more respect for a child's wishes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Mate knows how to separate the wheat from the chaff. Listen carefully. Acting too ambitious could turn off a potential ally. Devote more time to romance or risk losing the object of your affections.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The time is right to make a major family or financial decision. Confer with a trusted adviser. Travel proves richly rewarding. Stop fighting your instincts. Your intuition is right on target!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). A comment made in haste could upset a family member. Choose your words with greater care. A financial discussion is best postponed until all the facts and figures are available.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Prayer and negotiation can repair the damage that one family member has inflicted on another. Good friends mean well, but may not understand what is really going on. Romance begins to bloom.

Former reform-minded UMW head Miller dies in Charleston hospital

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Former United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller, swept into office by a reform movement and credited with bringing democracy to the rank-and-file, died Friday in a Charleston hospital. He was 62.

Arnold Miller

Miller, after spending 20 years in the mines, climbed through the ranks to lead the union from 1972 to 1979, when he resigned amid falling health and troubled relations with UMW officials.

"Arnold Miller brought an era...of democracy," said Sam Church, who succeeded Miller as president. "He gave us many rights the miners over the years thought had been denied. He probably negotiated the best contract that's ever been negotiated, with floating vacations and sick pay."

Miller, who had been living in Charleston, died at 1:45 a.m., said hospital spokeswoman Karen Frashier. Miller's son, Larry, said his father had pneumonia and had suffered a stroke-like illness.

Miller, the son and grandson of coal miners, was born at Leewood and spent much of his adult life in Cabin Creek working as a miner.

"I worked in low coal the more than 20 years I was in the mines," he said during a 1978 interview. "The last two years of that time, I worked in mud and water and that, really, is what wiped me out. It was always cold and wet down there. I developed spinal arthritis and it got so bad, finally, I couldn't even sleep at night."

In addition to arthritis, Miller suffered from black lung disease and high blood pressure. Those ailments forced him to quit mining in 1969.

It was then that the soft-spoken Miller, who was trying to support his wife and two children on a $108 military disability pension, began devoting all of his time trying to improve conditions for coal miners.

Miller's work on behalf of miners began with his efforts to have black lung recognized as a compensable ailment. In three years, he was catapulted from obscurity to the presidency of the 270,000-member United Mine Workers of America, the major union representing coal miners.

Miller was swept into office by a reform movement to bring democracy to the UMW. But before his first five-year term had expired, critics said Miller was becoming more and more authoritarian. Some called him an ineffectual leader, saying his ninth grade education left him ill-prepared to guide the union.

AUSTIN (AP) — Larry Hagman, star of television's "Dallas," will appear in a feature film to be shot here next spring, the producer of the project says.

The film, "By Hunter Williams," will feature Hagman as the title character, a drinking novelist whose wife supports them both. One of his novels plots the perfect murder of his wife, and the film will find the author acting out the last chapter, said the producer, Pat Wolfe.

"The picture is set in Austin, but there are absolutely no car chases or fat-bellied sheriffs," said Wolfe, a former director of the Texas Film Commission.

The independent production will be funded by Austin investors, Wolfe said, and will cost a reported $4 million.

LONDON (AP) — Lauren Bacall has returned to the London stage in a revival of Tennessee Williams' "Sweet Bird of Youth," and most British critics applauded her performance as the fading screen star Princess Kosmonopolis.

Lauren Bacall

The production of the sultry, sexually charged 1959 drama marks Miss Bacall's first stage appearance here since 1972, when she repeated her Tony-winning role in the Broadway musical "Applause!"

CHICAGO (AP) — Former TWA hostage Simon Grossmayer was released from the hospital Friday after surgery to remove a potentially fatal skin cancer that was discovered in examinations in West Germany after he was freed, his wife said.

"He's coming home today and we just want to get back to our normal lives," said Elaine Grossmayer. The surgery was performed Wednesday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital where doctors removed a dime-size tumor.

The tumor was discovered when Grossmayer was examined in West Germany after he and 38 other Americans spent 17 days in captivity. Doctors at Northwestern said the examination by Army doctors in West Germany probably saved Grossmayer's life.

CHICAGO (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb, whose recantation of a rape story led to freedom for her alleged attacker, is writing a book, entitled "Forgive Me," that should reach bookstores in October, her publisher said Friday.

"She will not get one dime from the writing of this book," said her attorney, John McLario of Menomonee Falls, Wis. "It's always been my intention to give everything...to Gary Dotson," the man she once accused.

Dotson's attorney, however, says he has nothing in writing from Mrs. Webb and complained that her book will hurt the market for the "more scholarly" book which Dotson intends to write.

Shortly after she came forward with her recantation last March, Mrs. Webb said: "I wish I was wealthy, I wish I could give him six years, and I wish I had $1 million I could give him to start his life over with, but I don't. I'd give him anything I have..."

Dotson's attorney, Warren Lupel, said initially he assumed Mrs. Webb wasn't planning to give Dotson any money from her book because he had received no communication on the matter.

He noted her book would beat Dotson's to press because his is to be "a much more scholarly and detailed work," possibly "a year in the making." As a result, Lupel said, her book will mean less public interest — and less money — for Dotson's.

Singer Bailey 'resurrected' with 'Easy Lover,' 'Chinese Wall'

By DIVINA INFUSINO
Copley News Service

When he recorded "Easy Lover" with Phil Collins in 1984, "Philip Bailey rose from the dead," said the vocalist-songwriter himself in a recent phone conversation. Through the '70s, Bailey was the featured vocalist for one of the 70s biggest R&B groups — Earth, Wind and Fire. "But," said Bailey, "More people know me from that one song than from my entire career with Earth, Wind and Fire."

"Because Phil Collins was involved, 'Easy Lover' was a pop record and got pop radio play," continued Bailey, who met the British pop star through the Earth, Wind and Fire horn section, which Collins has used frequently on recordings.

"And that gave it exposure which, ordinarily, I wouldn't have had — even with the same song. In reality, 'Easy Lover' would have been the same record with or without Collins. But I bet you $100 that, without Collins, it wouldn't have done as well as it did."

Bailey speaks from his experience with Earth Wind and Fire, which despite expansive music, an upbeat message, beautiful vocals and millions of albums and concert ticket sales to its credit, met with resistance from mainstream media even when the group was at its peak in the mid '70s.

"I remember that we were denied a spot on a television broadcast, not because we weren't popular enough, but because we were an all-black band," Bailey recalled. "The programmers felt white America didn't want to see an all-black group."

While the inequities of the music business still rankle Bailey, he is now struggling with another problematic area of pop music — Christian rock.

He now performs largely Christian and gospel music with some secular songs, like "Easy Lover," thrown in during his concerts. He and Amy Grant, another Christian rocker, are touring together.

"I started doing gospel concerts with Deniece Williams and some others in 1981," said Bailey. "Amy Grant and I are on the same label and so we decided to tour together."

Bailey, who has been a Christian since 1975, says that he is not so much a Christian artist as "an artist who is a Christian." And that's no small task said the Denver-born musician.

"It's hard to be a Christian who is vocal. I really do believe that Jesus Christ is our lord and savior. And I proclaim that in my music. Jesus is part of my life and I, like a lot of other musicians, sing about what's important to them.

"But I'm not trying to steer people into Christianity. I'm not using music to establish a ministry. I'm just trying to incorporate Christianity in my art form."

Bailey directs only part of his work toward Christian-based music. The rest, like his second solo album "Chinese Wall," is just plain pop. Not that radio has treated it as such.

"Chinese Wall" could have been a bigger record. But all those radio stations that played "Easy Lover" to death wouldn't give it a shot."

Turkey arrests alleged accomplice of Agca

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)— Authorities on Friday announced the arrest of Bekir Celenk, who is being tried in absentia by Italy as a Soviet-sponsored accomplice in the attempt to kill the pope.

Celenk, 50, a reputed mobster, had been in Bulgaria under house arrest and was sent home last Sunday. The charges against him were not specified, but dealt with smuggling and currency violations.

Unless Turkey changes its policy, there is no possibility of extradition to Rome, where Celenk is one of seven defendants on trial for complicity with Mehmet Ali Agca in the assassination attempt May 13, 1981.

Another Turk and two Bulgarians also are being tried in absentia. Celenk was sent to a military prison in Ankara's Mamak suburb.

Agca, the state's star witness in the Rome trial, claims Celenk acted as intermediary for a Soviet official in Bulgaria and offered $1.2 million to Agca and his two alleged accomplices, Musa Serdar Celebi and Oral Celik, to shoot Pope John Paul II.

At the trial, Agca on Friday identified a man filmed by a Rome bank's security camera as Celik, the alleged second triggerman. If the man proves to be Celik, it would be the first solid evidence presented in the trial that puts one of Agca's purported accomplices in Rome around the time John Paul was shot.

The film was taken on May 11, 1981, two days before Agca shot and wounded John Paul in St. Peter's Square. It shows Agca and a second man inside the Banca Commerciale D'Italia.

The three defendants in custody all testified they did not know Celik and could not identify the man in the film. Judge Severino Santapichi ordered special tests on the film, including enhanced enlargements, to try to determine the man's identity.

It is largely due to Agca's statements to investigators that the four Turks and three Bulgarians were ordered tried for complicity in the assassination attempt.

Celenk, Celebi, Celik and Omer Bagci are the four Turkish defendants. Celebi and Bagci are in custody in Rome. Celik's whereabouts is unknown.

The arrest order for Celenk was issued after preliminary questioning by a prosecutor of martial law court No. 4, which has jurisdiction in smuggling cases.

In December 1982, after Agca started naming alleged accomplices in the attack on the pope, Celenk went to Bulgaria and was kept under house arrest there.

Mexican opposition party leader begins hunger strike

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)— With the announcement of official election returns due this weekend, members of one of Mexico's opposition parties, including the mayor of this border city, have begun a hunger strike to protest what they contend is electoral fraud.

Mayor Francisco Barrio Terrazas announced at a Thursday night rally that he has taken a temporary leave of absence to stage the protest, which is his second such fast in eight months.

Barrio said his party, the National Action Party, or PAN, was victorious in last Sunday's Mexican elections in races for three federal and one state representative seats.

The country's dominant Institutional Revolutionary Party, known by its Spanish initials as PRI, also has claimed victory in the same races.

Official election results are to be announced Sunday by the Federal Electoral Commission.

"I wish this wasn't necessary," Barrio said Thursday. "I wish the PRI had sufficient maturity to recognize its losses, or that any of their candidates were big enough to admit their losses."

Despite the contention that PAN has won the four seats in question, party officials fear their victories will be stripped away because the electoral commission is managed by the PRI-controlled federal government.

Barrio said he and his fellow fasters would not eat until 200,000 signatures are collected from registered voters, protesting electoral fraud.

Last December, Barrio staged a similar protest when he claimed electoral fraud by the Chihuahua State House of Representatives.

During that hunger strike, the mayor sought 44,000 signatures in support of a PAN candidate for state representative. His goal was achieved less than 24 hours after he began his fast.

Barrio was elected mayor of Ciudad Juarez, a city of more than 1 million people just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, in July 1983.

The city is the largest in Mexico with a mayor that does not belong to the PRI, which has controlled state and national government in Mexico since 1929.

Maureen Reagan arrives in Nairobi

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)— Maureen Reagan, the president's daughter, arrived in Nairobi on Friday at the head of a large American delegation to a U.N. conference marking the end of a decade dedicated to women.

"We are very proud to be representing our country at this conference," Ms. Reagan declared on the tarmac of Nairobi's Kenyatta International Airport, surrounded by the 27 other women and one man in the delegation.

A spokeswoman for Ms. Reagan said others would try to join the team in Africa next week.

The conference opens on Monday and ends July 26. Reagan administration officials have said they want it to steer clear of divisive political issues, which have long been discussed in other forums, and stick to what could be considered the real concerns of women.

The task of the conference is to review successes and failures in promoting women's rights over the past 10 years and map strategy to continue the job for the next 15 years.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Israel used fugitive Nazis

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)— Israeli agents used fugitive Nazis in South America to track down war criminal Josef Mengele, and in return promised not to take action against them, retired spy master Isser Harel said Friday.

"There was an understanding that we wouldn't harm them if they helped us," Harel told the Associated Press in a telephone interview.

"These were small fry who were also after money."

Harel, a former head of Mossad, Israel's intelligence agency, said the Nazis led Israeli agents to Mengele twice in 1962, once in the small Paraguayan town of Encarnacion near the border with Argentina and Brazil, and later in an area 25 miles from Sao Paulo, Brazil.

But the Israelis could not get close to the "Angel of Death" because he was surrounded by armed guards in secluded jungle estates, and was aided by Paraguayan authorities and the close-knit colony of German immigrants in South America, Harel said.

An international team of pathologists ruled last month that the exhumed bones of a man who drowned in Brazil in 1979 were those of Mengele.

African countries to buy Indian wheat, a government spokesman said Friday.

Salman Haidar, spokesman for the Ministry of External Affairs, told reporters that the fund will be administered by the Organization of African Unity.

India has already contributed about 100,000 tons of wheat for African relief.

Once a major recipient of foreign food aid, India now produces a surplus of wheat and other food grains and had been attempting to sell its produce on world markets.

Jazz fans ready to bebop

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)— Tens of thousands of jazz fans gathered here Friday for the North Sea Jazz festival, featuring such musical giants as Ella Fitzgerald, Dizzy Gillespie and Miles Davis.

For three days this quiet diplomatic capital will be alive with music featuring more than 100 jazz and blues bands from the United States, Europe, Asia, Poland and the Soviet Union.

The talent at the 10th annual festival covers the whole range of jazz style.

On Saturday, the festival will be part of "Live Aid," the marathon rock concert to be broadcast live simultaneously from London's Wembley Stadium and Philadelphia's John F. Kennedy Stadium.

Copter crash kills four

TOKYO (AP)— An American helicopter on a training flight crashed in Okinawa Friday, killing the four Marines on board, a Marine Corps spokesman said.

A witness said the aircraft spouted gray smoke, then exploded in flight and crashed on a wooded hillside at Camp Butler, the main Marine facility on the southern Japanese island, police spokesman Masahiro Nakamura reported.

It was the third fatal accident involving a CH-53D Sea Stallion helicopter in Asia in the past 18 months. The Marine spokesman, Capt. Dan Trout, said the cause of the crash had not been determined.
