Optimistic' Reagan awaits test results

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) - President Reagan, described as optimistic and upbeat after an "excellent" first day of recovery, waited today to learn whether there are cancer cells in the growth that doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital removed from his

The president is pretty much of an optimist. He's an upbeat person," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Sunday as Reagan continued what doctors called a remarkable recovery.

"He is very well prepared for any eventuality," Speakes said.

A written statement released by Speakes at 9 a.m. EDT today said Reagan "continues to recover well from surgery. His condition remains good and vital signs are stable."

The statement said Reagan "slept in and his doctors are expected to see him shortly." Later in the morning, the president was to meet with members of his staff.

Reagan had a restful night after reading Sunday evening, the statement added.

The White House spokesman said on Sunday that Reagan was "very comfortable," walked around his room briefly and sat in a chair for about 45 minutes reading a Western novel — Louis L'Amour's "Jubal Sackett" — during his first day after the operation.

"All in all, the president has had an excellent day," Speakes said. He said Reagan's temperature was slightly above normal, a common symptom in a patient who has just had surgery Despite the good reports on the president's recovery, there remained a substantial chance that tests would find cancer in the 2-inch long polyp excised from Reagan's large intestine on Saturday.

would say that if one took a large number of lesions of this type, would estimate that somewhat over half would have malignancy in them," Dr. Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute and a member of the surgical team that operated on Reagan, told reporters after the operation.

Rosenberg added, however, that this "only raises the question as to whether or not, at some point in the future, the disease might recur at another site." He said that in any event there was a "very high level of likelihood" there were no cancer cells within the president's body after the operation.

A laboratory analysis of an outer portion of the polyp showed no cancer and doctors said they saw no signs of any in the surrounding organs. The final answer, however, awaited a pathologists' analysis today of tissue from the tumor.

Reagan is expected to remain in the hospital for seven to 10 days. doing increasing amounts of paper and telephone work, Speakes said. He said Reagan will follow a reduced work schedule for several weeks after returning to the White House, perhaps having meetings in the residential quarters for a while before resuming his Oval Office rou-

Reagan returned to the hospital's presidential suite Sunday after spending the night in a recovery room. Speakes quoted him as saying he was "amazed at how good I feel." "He's always chomping at the bit to do a little bit more than the doctors want him to do," Speakes told reporters. Navy Capt. Dale Oller, chief of the surgical team that performed the three-hour operation, was quoted as saying Reagan was doing better than '99.9 percent (of) all patients who undergo this type surgery.

"That includes all patients, much less one who is 74 years old," Oller was quoted as saying.

Speakes said Reagan asked for the Sunday newspapers after he woke up but told attendants it was "only for the comics." White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan gave him a national security update and the two discussed congressional affairs.

Live Aid pledges hit $70 million

By MICHAEL HIRSH Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA - Telephone pledges continued pouring in a day after the Live Aid benefit as organizers reported that the mega-concert raised $70 million worldwide to aid the starving in Africa.

Even as the 16-hour extravaganza neared its Saturday night finale with a chorus of stars from the last 20 years of rock, performers and fans agreed they could compare the concert to nothing they had known.

The Live Aid programs here and in London were beamed by satellite to between 150 and 170 nations, with a television and radio audience estimated at 1.5 billion, nearly a third of the world's population.

Judge criticized for making DWI 'scarlet letters'

The stickers explain in small print that the driver of the vehicle is on probation for a DWI offense. Culver said he only issues them to secondtime offenders or in cases that he thinks require tougher penalties.

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Hugo Banzer Suarez, a former military ruler, led 17 rivals today in his bid to recapture the presidency by popular vote, but faced the possibility of asking some of his former prisoners to back him in a runoff in Congress.

Both Banzer and Paz Estenssoro declined to comment until more returns were in - a process that could take days because of the problem of handcounting paper ballots and poor communications with remote areas.

He probably had more expense money than the local authorities." Rigler began where Miss Carpenter was last seen, with cab driver Zachary. "I interrogated him maybe five, six hours the first time," Rigler said. "I searched his car, took off his clothes, looked through his Zachary later passed a polygraph under way at a new dining hall examination. He was questioned 10 or 15 more times over the years, but nothing new was learned.

Miss Carpenter's trunk was opened but yielded no clues. Her hand luggage was never found.

Mrs. Carpenter returned to Texarkana June 11. "If Virginia shows up," Mrs. Carpenter told the campus newspaper. The Lasso, "I believe she will come to Texarkana first."

In Denton County, an intense search was under way. Dozens of law officers looked in abandoned wells and combed lakebeds and creeks

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars was spent on the case. Lawmen chased hundreds of leads across the country. One Kansas caller insisted Miss Carpenter was living in the house next door. But the woman turned out to look nothing like her. The world swallowed her up.

Rigler said he believes she is dead. There was no reason," he said, "for her to disappear." He knew from a medical examination taken before her disappearance that she wasn't pregnant. He said she didn't owe anyone money; she had no criminal past, no violently jealous boyfriends.

no lovers urging her to run away with them.

And, had she run away, why did she travel with her trunk all the way to Denton?

Something else bothers Rigler. During the spring and summer of 1946, three couples out on dates were attacked in separate incidents in Texarkana. Five died. The assailant was never found; he was dubbed "the phantom killer."

Miss Carpenter knew three of the victims. That's not unusual in a small town. But Rigler suspects a connection between Miss Carpenter's disappearance and the murders. He has no evidence, just a gut feeling.

Then there were the boyfriends. "She had many," Rigler said. "By that I don't mean she was...(promiscuous). She fell in love, like a lot of young girls." A former boyfriend was in Oklahoma City; the two had recently broken up. Another was in Arkansas. He told lawmen they had discussed marriage. He said Miss Carpenter was "impulsive," fell in love easily and was capable of running away or eloping.

Ten years ago, two Denton detectives reopened the case, and it remains open. The boyfriend, who'd first noticed her missing, Kenny Branam, who Rigler believes had nothing to do with the disappearance, took a polygraph examination. He passed.

Bones were found in Denton County in 1958 and 1960, they were declared not to be Miss Carpenter's.

"If she's alive, I don't know where she is," Rigler said. "If she...(is) dead, she was dead within just a few hours after she disappeared."

Mrs. Carpenter died last year. So did Miss Carpenter's uncle, college president E.C. Dodd.

Her other uncle, Rodolph Carpenter, spoke up last year when a Texarkana Gazette columnist wrote of the case. He challenged the contention that Miss Carpenter was "impulsive.

Nothing could be further from the truth," he wrote the newspaper.

Rigler said Miss Carpenter will never be found, alive or dead. He said all the manpower, money and time in the world, even 1980s technology, will never solve the mystery.

And what if Virginia Carpenter were to appear today? "I'd say, 'Why in the hell did you take up all my 'time?' "Rigler said.

Rigler said he's convinced he'll never know the truth, at least not in his lifetime. "I think if there's a hereafter," he said, "they'll tell me what happened.

UVALDE, Texas (AP) - A 7-yearold who prefers Colgate over Crest toothpaste nonetheless won a Crestsponsored contest and a trip to the 1985 Major League All-Stars baseball baseball fan, either, he said. But he and a girl from Wisconsin were picked from more than 87,300 contest entries for the trip. The contest is sponsored by Crest, Major League Baseball and the American Dental Association

'Crest is OK but my mom likes Colgate better so that's what I use," the boy said.

entry card for the contest. The Buckman family flew to Minneapolis on Sunday where they will be the guests of the toothpaste company and the baseball league for

When asked if he was a big base-ball fan, Aaron replied, "Not really." He did say he had heard about the Texas Rangers.
In May, both contest winners were flown to New York where they appeared on the Good Morning

The boy's father, James Buckman, said the family will visit relatives in the area. "There's no way we could have afforded a trip like this without Aaron's good fortune," he said.

Spotlight on Texas

Texas has become the envy of many other states. And it's not just because of our mouth-watering chili and mesquite-smoked Our state is now attracting more and more businesses to headquarter or locate a major operation here. Corpus Christi was just chosen as the new U.S. Navy base for the battleship Wisconsin. And support warships will be stationed in the Houston-Galveston area. The annual economic impact is expected to top 8250 million.

No longer is our state a land of only oil and agriculture. While those industries still play major roles, they are now part of a varied big picture, which includes the banking, defense, computer, tourism and telecommunications industries, to name a few.

Regardless of their locations within Texas, the influx of new businesses is a boon to the whole state. New businesses increase the state's tax base and create new jobs for all Texans.

Attracting new businesses

Helping to draw new businesses to Texas are the state's abundant resources, good climate, excellent transportation and hard-working residents

For example, good transportation was a dominating reason for Southwestern Bell Telephone's recent decision to locate a major distribution warehouse in Lancaster, south of Dallas. The new 490,000 square foot complex will serve all five of our company's

In addition to transportation, telecommunications facilities are also important in many business relocation decisions. Southwestern Bell Telephone is proud to offer top-notch telecommunications in the 450 towns it serves in Texas. For the eighth year in a row, we are investing more than $1 billion in new construction to meet Texas' growth and to continue adding state-of-the art communications facilities.

Reasonable phone rates

Also, Texas residential telephone rates are among the lowest in the nation. In fact, a recent study conducted by an investment brokerage firm - Smith Barney - found Texans had the lowest average monthly residence bill among the 18 states surveyed.

From 1975 to 1984, the average residential phone service for most Texans increased only 44 percent. During that time, the Consumer Price Index rose 93 percent, gasoline went up 117 percent, medical costs increased 184 percent, while natural gas prices rose 239 percent.

In fact, statistics show it actually takes a smaller percentage of earned income to pay for telephone service today than it did 25 years ago.

Even at our current proposed increases. Texans will continue to enjoy quality communications at affordable rates. What makes Texas grow? It's a lot of factors, from its highways to its telecommunications services to its state government that actively works to promote economic development. It's also good people, including Southwestern Bell Telephone's 35,000 Texas employees. We're proud of our traditions of service in the state since the late 1800s. And we're confident of our abilities to continue meeting the needs of our growing state.

Justice to OK terms of prison reforms

Judge William Wayne Justice, who ordered sweeping prison reforms, said today he will approve terms of the settlement of 13-year-old inmate civil rights suit.

'On balance, terms of the stipulations will be approved by the courts," Justice said following a 30-minute hearing today Prison officials said compliance with the agreement would be difficult, particularly the time con-

Newly appointed prison director Lane McCotter said, "We're going to give it our best effort. I am optimistic because the settlement is good corrections. I'm sure we can do it."

But the attorney for the inmates, William Bennett Turner, forecast three potential hurdles to compliance with the agreement.

Turner said he was concerned whether the state could come up with the money required under the agreement, the competence of the prison bureaucracy and the will of prison employees to comply.

"Oldtimers would like to get back to the good old days," Turner said. "Having that mood inhibits prompt

Title controversy gets ugly at contest

AUSTIN (AP) — A title controversy marred John Kelso's Second Annual Ugliest Pickup Truck in Texas Contest, which was held in a vacant lot next to the Hog Eye Bait Shop Sunday.

The judges named Austinite Leon McMahan's '64 Ford with the bullet hole in the windshield the champion and awarded McMahan the first prize of lunch for two at Don Juan's & Only Taco Palace.

But then, some competitors and spectators pointed out that McMahan's inspection sticker wasn't up to date and said that Doug Celovsky of Bastrop County should be declared the overall champion.

Second place carried a prize of a pair of foam dice.

Aides, doctors portray Reagan as superhuman

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — As they did four years ago when President Reagan was recuperating from a gunshot wound inflicted by a wouldbe assassin, Reagan's aides and doctors are portraying him as an almost superhuman patient making an astonishing recovery from traumatic

They use words such as spectacular, excellent, superior and amazing to describe his condition, and upbeat, optimistic and full of good humor to paint his mood.

No one but his wife, his top aides, his doctors and a few medical other people have seen the president since he entered Bethesda Naval Hospital on Friday, but the reports from his hospital suite are uniformly positive.

Although Reagan is without question a reasonably well-preserved 74year-old, physicians forget their customary caution when discussing his health. And his aides suggest he's been a practicing president every minute, except for those few hours when he was knocked out by anesthesia and relinquished power to Vice President George Bush.

He was said to be doing paperwork Friday night after the trying examination in which doctors discovered the tumor in his intestine, and he met with aides the morning of the operation to discuss the national security and transfer of power before signing the necessary documents.

After the anesthetic wore off enough for doctors to judge he was capable of making a decision, aides asked if he wanted to formally reassume power then or let them come back a little later.

"Gimme a pen," he is said to have commanded them.

On Sunday morning, when Reagan was barely out of the recovery room, White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan was reported to be discussing national security developments and the budget with an alert and well-rested president.

But efforts to portray him as presidential paled when compared to doctors' descriptions of his health.

Navy Capt. Dale Oller, fresh from the operating room and still in his surgeon's scrub suit, didn't attempt the soothing, confident tone that reassured the nation following the assasination attempt and made Dr. Dennis O'Leary an instant TV star on March 30, 1981

An Analysis

But Oller's cheerful, almost boyish enthusiasm served much the same

"It gives me great pleasure to tell you," he informed the nation in its first look at him, "that the president of the United States is now, postoperatively, doing beautifully. His operation went without incident, and all the findings upon exploration at the time of surgery were normal...The patient — our president is doing very, very, very well." And Dr. Steven Rosenberg, a colon cancer specialist who was called across the street from the National Cancer Institute, was just as exu-

"The operation went absolutely perfectly, as well as I have ever seen an operation of this type go," he Oller, revealing Reagan's vacation plans which had never been announced, told the briefing, "If I recall correctly from his schedule, he's hoping to be in California on the ranch on a horse around the 14th of August. I think that's a very good possibility.

And at the end of a long medical explanation of why it would take time to determine whether the president had cancer, Rosenberg discarded his technical lingo to reas-sure the public in language reminiscent of that used four years ago in describing Reagan's youthful physical condition.

"I would also emphasize from the operation that the president's internal organs, his blood vessels, were remarkably, remarkably healthy, the doctor said after peering into Reagan's abdominal cavity.

And everything you've heard about the president's vigor on the outside is certainly corroborated by the findings on the inside."

What the doctors never volunteered four years ago, and admitted only after Reagan had returned to the White House and gone back to work, was that he nearly bled to death before they opened his chest to repair his wound. And after the surgery last time, he developed a persistent, unexplained fever that doctors refused to acknowledge was caused by an infection until after it had finally gone away.

Tissue studies critical to Reagan's prognosis

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) - Microscropic studies of the intestinal polyp and surrounding tissues removed from President Reagan could have enormous effects on his future health if a malignancy is

After the president's weekend surgery, doctors said it would take 48 hours to prepare and examine the polyp, blood vessels, lymph nodes and intestinal tissue that were removed. Specialists today were looking for any sign of cancer and, if present, the extent of it.

Reagan on Sunday was reported up and around in his suite at the Bethesda Naval Hospital following Saturday's three-hour operation to remove a 2-inch polyp and a sur-rounding 2-foot section of his intestine, including about one-third of his

Medical reports issued by the White House said the president was sleeping well, sitting up and walking in his suite, seeing visitors and showing no adverse reactions from the White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was suffering little discomfort, but had a slight elevation in temperature normal in post-surgery patients. The president is receiving the normal treatment of post-operative antibiotics to guard against infections, he added.

Doctors said after the operation that there were no signs of cancer in the president's abdominal cavity or on nearby organs. But they indicated they removed the polyp cau-tiously because it is a type that sta-tistically has a substantial chance of being malignant and they did not want to spread any cancer cells that might be present.

Dr. Steven Rosenberg of the National Cancer Institute, one of the attending surgeons, said that villous adenoma polyps of the size removed from Reagan's colon are cancerous in about 50 percent of cases. A key question is whether any cancer is confined to the polyp or has also invaded the intestinal wall.

Dr. Marshall Bedine, assistant professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins Medical School, and other cancer experts said that if Reagan's polyp was cancerous, chances of curing it would depend upon how deeply the maligancy has penetrated the intes-

"If the malignancy is confined to the lining of the colon, then the cure rate is over 90 percent," Bedine said.

But if the cancer has penetrated the intestinal wall and perhaps spread to the abdominal cavity, he said, the chance of curing it drops dramatically. In such a case, the five-year survival rate after treatment drops to about 40 percent to 50 percent, experts said.

If cancer cells were found in the polyp, but had not disseminated to other tissue, they said, then removal of the polyp and surrounding tissue likely would be the only treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush, who temporarily held the full powers of the presidency but did not use them, is offering to stand in for President Reagan during his the president's hospital stay and recuperation from major abdominal surgery.

For nearly eight hours on Saturday, Bush was empowered by Reagan to discharge all of his powers and duties as the president underwent intestinal surgery for removal of a large growth in his colon.

For a brief part of that time, Bush apparently was not informed of the fact that he held the presidential powers.

In a letter announcing the unprecedented transfer of power, Reagan had said that Bush should "discharge those powers and duties in my stead commencing with the administration of anesthesia to me."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes made conflicting statements at different times about when the power transfer began.

The letter giving the presidential powers to Bush was signed by the president at 10:32 a.m. Speakes said that once it was signed "and it was effectively delivered to Congress, in effect the vice president was in

Speakes said Bush held Reagan's authority for "just under nine hours," from 10:32 a.m. until Reagan signed a second letter at 7:22 p.m. reclaiming his power. However, Speakes then went on to say that the transfer became effective when Reagan went under the anesthesia

- which was at 11:28 a.m. and would

Sunday evening, Speakes acknowledged that Bush "was informed for-mally afterwards" — following his return to Washington on Air Force II from Maine. But Speakes said Bush had been told earlier in discussions with the White House staff that he probably would be tapped to hold Reagan's powers.

I mean, he was pretty certain what was going to happen. He pretty well knew what was coming down the pike," Speakes said. "I don't think it would have been any surprise to him if they said to him, You're it,' in the course of the flight (from Maine). "I think the surprise to him would have been if they said,

In his letter, Reagan said he was mindful of the provisions of the 25th Amendment, which spells out the procedure for voluntarily surrendering power to the vice president. Although Reagan followed those procedures in transferring power. he said he did not think the 25th Amendment was applicable in this case and did not want his action to serve as a precedent.

Despite Reagan's disclaimer, several constitutional scholars said the only way the president could delegate his authority was by using the 25th Amendment.

"I don't see any basis for doing so without the 25th Amendment and, the point of the matter is, that through all of our history up to the 25th Amendment, presidents did not designate an acting president in situations of inability and there was a great deal of uncertainty about the ight of the president to do so," said Speakes insisted that "I don't John Feerick, dean of the Fordham

Reagan's sword

Stockman announced his resignation on the same day that the president practically admitted defeat in the effort to persuade the Congress to cut the budget deficit.

As budget director, Stockman has been the fiscal conscience of the Reagan administration. He has spoken out against waste and extravagance when no one else in a position of political authority would do so. He has not been afraid to incur the wrath of the powerful recipient groups dedicated to the preservation of all sacred cows. And he even questioned the wisdom of the "supply-side" theory that led the Reagan administration and the Congress down the path of tax reduction in 1981.

The massive budget deficits that have resulted from the tax cuts and continued growth of federal spending must be reduced. But any hope that Congress would accept responsibility for making the painful reductions in the budget has now vanished.

The Senate backed its Budget Committee in postponing cost-ofliving increases in Social Security benefits. The House backed its Budget Committee in refusing any increase in defense spending to compensate for inflation. But in conference neither body would hold to the tough position taken by the other. The upshot is that the House has persuaded the Senate to give up its position on Social Security and the Senate has persuaded the House to give up its position on defense.

The nation is, in effect, back to square one. President Reagan pel. So let him use his sword.

t was fitting that David has acknowledged as much. He is trying to salvage some spending cuts out of the wreckage of the budget process before the Congress proceeds to vote spending bills without ever having agreed on a budget.

But the president does have an ultimate weapon, one he has been reluctant to use. That is his veto pen. He should take it firmly in hand and be prepared to wield it this fall, when the fat spending bills begin to arrive on

Of course, there will be plenty of special interest groups that will scream to high Heaven. No one wants their ox gored, but if the looming problem of deficit spending is to be brought under control someone must lose, for the good of the entire nation.

It's very likely the American people will support Reagan. He's an extremely popular president. And there is general understanding now that something must be done. Our economy could fall into dire straits if we fail to act. It simply is impossible to sustain annual deficits in the $200 billion to $300 billion range.

If the president shows his resolve, Congress may even accept his leadership. The chief executive has the power. All he needs is the will to use it.

The Congress refuses to give the line-item veto to the president, so he could pick and choose his spending cuts — as he did when he was governor of California. Without an item veto, the president must accept spending bills in their entirety or veto them in their entirety.

HUD's homeless figures contrived

7 ASHINGTON — When the Reagan administration announced last year that there were at most 350,000 homeless persons in the United States, the figure was greeted with widespread skepticism. Earlier estimates had put the number of homeless as high as 3 million.

The survey was described by one congressional aide as "a contrived effort to demonstrate that there

Just how contrived the effort was is made clear by Sharon Bell, a former employee of the private research firm that was paid $62,000 to conduct the telephone survey. The total cost of the report, however, was $138,000. Here's what she told our reporter Mark Woolley

She and other employees of Westat Inc. of Rockville, Md., called shelter operators in cities across the country. The interviewers asked how many persons stayed in the shelter on an average winter's night, and then asked the shelter operators to estimate how many homeless there were in their city or metropol-

"We were coached by HUD officials on how to phrase our questions," Ms. Bell said. "We were never allowed to explain or define what we meant by city or metropolitan area. If questioned by the shelter operator, we were only allowed to repeat our standard question.

In fact, Ms. Bell said, "The shelter operators were only told that we were collecting information about shelters; they were never told we were counting heads.

She also charged that HUD officials were selective in the figures they put in their report. A number of cities whose estimates of the homeless were unpalatably high were simply left out, she said.

"I remember calling Galveston (Texas) and the numbers they gave me didn't fit HUD's report, so they weren't used," Ms. Bell said. She said the interviewers were told to jot down in the margin of the survey form any pertinent numbers provided by the shelter operators, but that these figures were never used. "HUD wanted the report in two weeks, and they kept changing the format of the survey," she said. "I feel used because of the report's end result. Ms. Bell said The principal flaw in the HUD sur vev was a statistical error - a deliberate error, critics charge. The survey collected estimates of the homeless in 60 central cities, with a total population of 30 million. But the figures for the core cities were

In Hartford, Conn., for example, HUD got estimates on the number of homeless in the city alone (population: 136,000), and applied it to the entire metropolitan area (population: 1.055,000). This method was used in all 60 cities, and the deceptive results were then extrapolated to give a nationwide figure of 250,000 to 350,000. Some shelter operators have charged that HUD never used the estimates they provided. For example, Valerie Dionne-Lanier, who runs a shelter for homeless women in Boston, said: "We estimate between 5,000 and 10,000 homeless in this city. HUD came up with 2,700 after we gave them our figures."

Subcommittees headed by Reps. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., and Henry Gonzales, D-Texas, are looking into the methods used by HUD in its survey. Weiss has asked HUD for all pertinent records, and has set today (July 15) as a deadline for producing waged and won in the public school classroom by teachers who correctly perceive their role as proselytizers of a new faith: a religion of humanity ... The classroom must and will become a new arena of conflict between the old and the new - the rotting corpse of Christianity, together with all its adjacent evils and misery, and the new faith of Humanism

So who's trying to use the public school system to impose whose religion on whose children?

How about a Vatican threat to United States security? Don't blame this one on some poor, uneducated right-winger. This comes from a Ph.D., another humanist by the name of Stephen D. Mumford whose speech appeared in the current issue "Humanist.

He calls a 1975 Pastoral Plan (to oppose abortion) a holy war against American democracy. He credits the Catholic Church with creating the New Right. That's funny. All the guys I know in the New Right credit Sen. Barry Goldwater, a half-Jew and a protestant.

Like a true conspiracy buff, he lists all the President's appointments who are Catholic and involved in na tional security and then says this can't be just by chance. Well, you know how it goes, when a fellow sees a Catholic under every bed. His logic is childish: population control, ergo the Vatican is a threat to American national security. Gee, I bet when the Sandinistas ridiculed the Pope they didn't know they were ridiculing a Soviet ally and a threat to the national security of their Yankee

But for crudity, vulgarity and non sense, you can't beat Dr. Sol Gordon everybody's favorite humanist and the guru of modern sex education In a discussion on pornography, he made the following brilliant

We sent our people over to Vietnam, and we said to our young men. You rape Vietnamese because rape is okay but not masturbation

The Bible is one of the most masochistic, pornographic things we have in terms of humiliation of the worst, most corrupt ele ments in our society, such as the Ea gle Forum and the Moral Majority Gina Allen, another humanist fem inist, said, "I always steal a Bible out of a hotel. It makes the Gideons very happy You know, they look and they have to replace a Bible and they say. We've got another convert. Ac tually. I take them out of hotels be cause I wouldn't want a child to get hold of this pornographic book

Like most humanists, she really has it in for people who disagree with her. "I have a very special feminist dream," she said. "That dream is that this model feminist ordinance should pass all over the nation. And that every woman who has ever been raped and every woman who has ever been battered and every girl-child who has ever been molest ed will sue under this ordinance the Gideons who distribute this pornographic book, everybody who publishes it, and everybody who preaches from it.

When these characters are not exposing their dogmatism and fanaticism to each other, they pose as ex perts and educators. They have the elitist notion that the superstitious rabble, sometimes known as the American people, should hand over their children to them so these kids can be freed of values imparted by their stupid parents.

They have a superstitious hostility toward religion and a superstitious faith in secular education. They rather ignore the fact that the creators of gulags and gas chambers and killing fields were and are all educated people - many of them with higher degrees from better schools than these humanists.

The next time you hear a Christian talk about humanists mucking up the public school system, remember these are the kinds of characters they are talking about.

These modern mugwumps are educated buy they aren't wise and they most certainly are not loving and compassionate. It is, of course. plain ignorant to blame women's problems on the two religions, Judaism and Christianity, which raised the status of women from that of poverty to that of individuals with months after his resignation as White House deputy chief of staff. public relations mogul Michael Deaver struck out in advising top White House aides not to switch deputy press secretary Robert Sims to a new job as chief spokesman for Deense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Today is Monday, July 15, the 196th day of 1985. There are 169 days left in the year.

Deaver was politely told no soap. When he pleaded that both President Reagan and national security aide Robert McFarlane "needed" Sims, he was told that Reagan had personally approved the transfer of the former Navy captain whom Weinberger hopes will help him rebuild his image. Deaver's secretary told us he was out of the country and unavailable to answer our questions about other possible White House interventions. His secretary said she did not know where her boss was traveling

REGAN UPGRADES Barring a last-minute change ordered by the president himself, Don Regan will replace outgoing David Stockman in the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) with a lowvisibility numbers cruncher who will be expected to stay in the background.

That would add OMB to Regan's control over most other White House offices, including the Council of Economic Advisers. Still eluding him is the national security office headed by Robert McFarlane. Regan has tried to dominate it, too, but he may now be reconciled to the present arrangement.

been proposed to CIA Director William Casey Move an attack submarine quietly into the Persian Gulf and sink all vessels carrying goods to or from Iranian ports, including Iran's vital oil shipments.

A 1926 treaty gives the Soviet Union the right to intervene in Iran in case of any "hostile action" against it, but the source of submerged submarine attack would be hard to prove.

The plan has two attractive features: It would serve indisputable notice on Iran and the world that the U.S. will not tolerate more terrorism against its citizens; and it would limit the loss of innocent lives to a bare minimum. Casey's reaction is not

COUNTERING DETENTISTS White House summit planners worried about Secretary of State George Shultz's detentist sentiment, which they say is matched by Ambassador Arthur Hartman in Moscow, are trying to arrange a tete-atete between the president and Soviet specialists he is known to respect.

One such specialist is former Reagan foreign policy adviser Richard Pipes, who returned to Harvard last rear and is widely respected for his background and scholarship on the Soviet Union. Another is former president Carter's national security aide, Zbigniew Brzezinski, a Democrat, whom Reagan has consulted on several occasions.

But with Shultz clearly in charge of preparations for the Nov. 19 sum-mit, and presidential aide Robert McFarlane not wanting a bureaucratic battle with him, the prospect is bleak. That may leave it to Reagan himself to block pre-summit optimism in the State Department from soaring far beyond what is actually expected to be accomplished.

House, Senate try again on budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators are renewing their efforts to reach agreement on a 1986 budget, but major differences remain between the two chambers despite President Reagan's personal committee on the budget was to meet today for the first time since Reagan and the budget negotiators announced following a White House meeting last Wednesday that they had agreed to a "framework" for a compromise.

can be completed in so short a time. Reagan discussed the budget dispute with aides on Sunday from his bed at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland. The president is recu-perating from his surgery Saturday when a growth was removed from "The president expressed strong desire to see action on the federal budget this week and the president said — and this is a quote — 'I want to emphasize this week,''' said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The two sides are in sharp disagreement over how deeply domestic programs must be cut to comply with the new "framework," which calls for chopping the government's deficit - now running at just over next year without either a tax the 13 spending bills needed to fund increase or by tampering with Social Security benefits.

The budget - which sets overall spending targets for all government agencies and programs - covers spending for the fiscal year that begins on Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, without waiting for approval of a budget compromise, the House was expected to begin work this week on a variety of appropriations bills needed to actually begin disbursing funds to keep the government operating in the new fiscal year.

The spending bills have been backed up awaiting resolution of the budget dispute. But fearing the possiblity that budget negotiations may again fall through, House leaders gave the go-ahead to start action on the government.

Under the framework endorsed last week by the president, Social Security benefits would be permitted to rise with the rate of inflation, as would defense spending authority. Most other federal programs would be frozen at 1985 levels or cut, under the informal agree-

Because the new framework would scrap a controversial one-year freeze on Social Security and other U.S. pension cost-of-living increases that had been approved by the Senate, the proposed compromise has been better received so far in the Democratic-controlled House than in the Republican-led Senate.

A 20 percent chance of thunderstorms is forecast through Tuesday with a low in the upper 60s tonight warming to a high in the lower 90s. Tonight's southerly winds at five to 15 mph will continue through Tues-

Sunday's high of 96 was nine degrees below the record set in 1933. This morning's low was six degrees above the 1960 record of 64.

Scattered thunderstorms were forecast late today and tonight for sections of the Texas Panhandle and along the coastal plains. Skies were to be clear to partly cloudy and temperatures were to be hot statewide.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 70s and 80s except in the mountains of Southwest Texas where readings will be in the 60s. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 90s, ranging from the 80s along the immediate coast to near 105 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms, some described by the National Weather Service as heavy, were scattered early today across northwest sections of the Texas Panhandle. The showers and thunderstorms were being triggered by a surface based low pressure trough located across northern sections of the Panhandle.

Skies were mostly clear over the southern South Plains, North Texas and East Texas and partly cloudy to cloudy over the rest of the state.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s in the mountains of Southwest Texas and in the 70s and 80s elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 63 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains of Southwest Texas to 85 at Corpus

Drenching thunderstorms rumbled across the nation from Texas into the Midwest and New England

Flash flood warnings were posted across central Ohio after more than 3 inches of rain fell through early

Heavy rain caused scattered flooding in Parkersburg, W.Va., and thunderstorms dumped 3.5 inches of rain in one hour late Sunday night on Pleasant Valley, Ill., the National Weather Service said.

Stars rally to beat Invaders, keep title

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The 1985 United Bojovic and a touchdown following a fumble by Baltimore States Football League Championship wasn't a mirror imrunning back Alan Harvin at his own 24. age of the Baltimore Stars season, but it was a fitting,

The Stars, last year's champions, opened with a 1-3-1 record and struggled through the rest of the season, playoffs and right down to the last two minutes of their 28-24

"Last year it was easy," said Stars quarterback Chuck Fusina. "And it shouldn't have been. We'd have a fumble and it would bounce right into our arms. This year, we had to work for it, grind and spill blood for it.

The Stars ongoing battle carried into the championship. Baltimore took the lead three times in the first half, only to be tied twice and finally overtaken in the third quarter. Kelvin Bryant, the game's MVP with 103 yards on 23 carries, scored two of his three touchdowns in the first 30 minutes to give Baltimore a 21-14 halftime lead. But in the third quarter, Baltimore was showered with trouble, as it had been throughout its season. While the offense managed a paltry eight net yards in the third, Oakland took 24-21 lead on a 19-yard field goal by Novo remaining.

Bryant put the Stars up 28-24 with 8:15 left on another seven-yard run, but the Stars still couldn't win it easily. On the ensuing kickoff, Shawn Faulkner dropped David

Trout's kick and was nailed at his own four-yard line. offs and right down to the last two minutes of their 28-24 "I figured if they could go 96 yards on our defense, they day night." "I figured if they could go 96 yards on our defense, they deserved to be champions," said Baltimore coach Jim Mora. "But they didn't."

But they almost did. It took Oakland nine plays to drive to the Stars' five-yard line. Bobby Hebert hit Derek Holloway with a 10-yard strike that set up a third-and-two situation. John Williams tried to get the two yards but was stopped at the line of scrimmage by linebacker Sam Mills. Baltimore's Jonathan Sutton and Oakland's Tom Newton squared off in the last of a series of altercations that ended up with Newton being tagged for a 15-yard unnecessary roughness penalty.

Hebert overthrew Gordon Banks on the third-down replay. On fourth down, Banks went to the goal line but Sutton just managed to tip Hebert's pass away with 1:59 "No, I don't think the better team won," said Oakland Coach Charlie Sumner. "What I'm saying is in this caliber game you shouldn't settle it on that kind of a penalty." For the Stars, it was one break that went their way in a season where so many have gone the other way.

Following the league's decision to move to a fall schedule last August, the Stars figured it best to play their home games in Baltimore. But Memorial Stadium wasn't available. So they had to pracitice in Philadelphia and play in College Park, Md. Then their offices were thrown out of Veterans Stadium in a rent dispute.

"I didn't think it would be as distractive as it was," Mora said. "We loosened up after we clinched a playoff spot against Orlando. We didn't even get above .500 until the 14th game of the season."

Throughout the mess, the Stars have been able to laugh. "We made a joke of it," said Fusina, who was 15 of 26 for 155 yards Sunday. "(Defensive back) Scotty Woerner said it best when he said 'Hey, I've been thrown out of better places than this."

"But it's been fair," Fusina added, summarizing it all. "We've been the best team. That's been the nice thing. To win with all that."

Kathy Baker breaks the ice

By DAVE ANDERSON

New York Times News Service SPRINGFIELD, N.J. — The others were smiling, but Nancy Lopez wasn't.

Kathy Baker was smiling because she had won the United States Women's Open with a 2under-par 70 at Baltusrol's Upper Course Sunday, her first title as a touring pro-Judy Clark was smiling because she had finished second by four strokes, the best she has ever done in a major tournament. Judy Alvarez was smiling after having finished third. But for Lopez, a tie for fourth place might as well have been a tie for last place. Once again she had been unable to the win the Open that has eluded her now for more than a decade.

At the start of the final round, Lopez had been only one stroke behind Baker, but after nine holes she was six strokes behind. Through the first three rounds. she had registered only six bo-geys. In her 77 Sunday, she had five bogeys. And no birdies. Clark never got started either in trying to win her first title on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour.

During her warmup for Sunday's round. Clark was watched by Gardner Dickinson, her menplanning to mar ry. Now 57. Dickinson was wearing his familiar white cap that labeled him three decades ago as Ben Hogan's protege. In his years on the PGA Tour, he won seven tournaments; he also teamed with Sam Snead in 1978 to win the first Legends of Golf championship. In perating from spinal surgery. Several years ago, Dickinson was known on the LPGA Tour as the tutor of JoAnne Carner, twice a Women's Open champion and a member of the LPGA Hall of

"When we started working together, JoAnne had won one tournament on the tour," Dickinson said. "And when she left, she had won 23 tournaments."

But now Dickinson works with Clark, who has been haunted by her inability to win an LPGA event. But in Saturday's third round here, she shot a 65, a record 7-under-par score for the Women's Open; earlier this year at the S&H Classic in St. Petersburg, Fla., she shot 64-65 for 129, an LPGA record for the first 36 holes of a tournament.

Eight years ago, a 65 for Clark meant her score after about 13 or 14 holes. She had a 13 handicap then. But that year, 1977, she wrote a letter to Dickinson, asking if he would give her golf lessons. He agreed, as long as she agreed to come to North Palm Beach, Fla., where he taught at the Frenchman's Creek course he had designed.

That year Clark won the New Jersey Amateur at the Metuchen

"Later that year she came back down to Florida for some more Dickinson remembered "And a few weeks later she announced she was going over to Bent Tree to get her card. I thought she was talking about a credit card. But she meant her LPGA card for the 1978 tour.

Angels go 12 for win

From Staff Reports

JACKSON, Miss-Reggie Montgomery delivered a go-ahead single in the 12th inning to give the Midland Angels a 7-3 Texas League win over the Jackson Mets to even the series at 2-2.

Montgomery's bad hop hit through shortstop drove in Mark McLemore, who had walked, gone to second on an infield out and move to third on a hit by Kevin Davis. With a 4-3 lead, Midland rallied for three more runs with Billie Merrifield and Juan Madril both driving in runs before it was over. The win went to Todd Fischer, 6-2, Midland's third pitcher. Doug McKenzie started and went 6 2/3 innings, giving up three runs in the fourth and Julian Gonzales went 2 1/3 before Fischer came in Fischer, the winning pitcher with eight innings of a 14-inning game earlier in the season, didn't give the Mets a hit in the final three innings.

McLemore and Kevin Davis had four of Midland's nine hits between them. Davis also batted in two runs.

EL PASO's Bob Schroeck wanted to go out a winner, but it was not to be as Tulsa spoiled his swan song 6-4. Elsewhere Sunday night, Shreveport edged San Antonio, 6-3.

Schroeck was retiring after Sunday night's game against Tulsa. He sa and could have been the winning pitcher had the Diablos been able to continue the rally that Joey Meyer started with a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning.

The Diablos managed to get the tying run on base, but could not move the runners home.

But it was a night Schroeck will long remember. When he got Ruben Sierra on a check-swing third strike. Schroeck walked off the mound into the dugout for the last time as a professional baseball player

"I'm retiring," the Diablo left-hander said. "It's a combination of things. It's something I've thought about for a couple of months. I'm going to summer school to pick up six hours. That way, I'll only lack 28 hours toward my mechanical engineering degree. I can finish next

'All the guys knew," Schroeck said. "They kept asking me how I felt. But I've known this was coming for some time. I'm just glad Bev (Manager Terry Bevington) put me

I was hoping maybe I could get a cheap win," the former Southern Illinois all-American said. "It just didn't work out. I was glad to get that last strikeout. It was a cheap one, but I'll take it.'

SCHROECK was a member of the Diablo starting rotation in 1982 when the club won the first-half Texas League West title. He then underwent shoulder surgery. This was

Bob Estes rallies to win Trans-Miss

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) - Bob Estes of Abilene, Texas, fought back Sunday for a hard-earned, 2 and 1 victory over Bill Spangler of Lincoln. Neb. in the finals of the 1985 Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

Estes, 19, who will be a sophomore at the University of Texas this fall took a 1-up lead after the morning round of the 36-hole final. Spangler mustered a charge on the front nine of the afternoon round, but Estes took control on the back to sweep to victory in the 82nd annual event.

"I came here planning on winning, but you never really expect to win with the caliber of players that they always have," Estes said. There were all kinds of shots that changed the momentum on that back nine, but, fortunately, most of them were in my favor.

Estes lost in a six-hole playoff to Midland's Steve Whiteside in the Men's West Texas Amateur at afternoon round Ranchland Hills Country Club last

Spangler, whose father is a director for the Trans-Miss, was still happy with his finish.

I'm pleased with the way I played. I'm not ashamed of anything," Spangler said. "This is the fifth time I've played in the Trans-Miss. and this is the first time I've even won a match.'

The pair stood even after 11 holes of the first round, but Estes won the next two holes with pars to take a 2up advantage. Spangler birdied the par-3 15th to pull within one, and the morning round came to a close with Estes 1-up.

"I felt pretty fortunate to only be one down," Spangler said. "Bob was playing real solid golf, and I was happy just to stay close to him. But I thought I could come back in the

Spangler did just that. The pair tied the first hole, but Spangler won three of the next four holes to charge to a 2-up lead. The streak started when Estes missed a 2-footer for par on the second hole. Spangler two-putted from some 80 feet to win the hole and knot the match again.

Spangler hit the par-5 third in two and two-putted for birdie, and the 21-year-old took his first lead of the day when Estes' birdie attempt slid Estes got into trouble off the tee on the par 4 fifth, and his 30-footer for par lipped out. Spangler, meanwhile, hit the green in regulation and two-putted to go 2-up.

Spangler's downfall began on the par-5 sixth, however. The Nebraskan missed a golden opportunity when he lipped a six-foot birdie putt that would have put Estes 3-down, and his troubles continued on the ninth when Spangler three-putted to allow Estes to half the hole and stay 2-

Home of Twins is place to be?

By HAL BOCK

CHICAGO (AP) - For baseball's social set, the place to be today is Minneapolis, where the annual All-Star festivities have convened.

Some of the invited guests, like Joaquin Andujar, simply have been unable to squeeze the event into their busy summer schedules. Others will be arriving a little late, de-tained here by the delicate matter of deciding just when they will call a halt to the season.

The players association has been locked in collective bargaining with management since last November, just another extra-inning game. So the union has decided to impose its own curfew on this filibuster by setting a strike date.

If there is to be a settlement, this should speed it up. At least now the two sides will be working against a deadline and the talks can no longer loaf leisurely along, with no particular concern for the calendar.

The exact strike date, union boss Don Fehr said, is secondary. Whether it turns into several days or several weeks or something in between, it's not very much time, especially compared to what we have to do and compared with the remarkable progress we have not been able to make in eight months.'

assembly line. The union says one-third of that TV money belongs to the players, according to a formula established years ago. Management has other ideas since the old one-third wasn't coming out of a pie quite this big. The owners cry poverty, turning their pockets inside out to prove that they are on the road to the poorhouse. They claim to have lost $43 million last year and, just to prove it, imported a New York University accounting professor, who examined the books and said they lost, "Well, maybe $27 million."

Has it ever occurred to baseball's power brokers that part of the reason why management might be losing money is ... shhh, not so loud, now ... poor management?

Omar Moreno, once an intergral part of championship teams in Pittsburgh, is the 25th man on the New York Yankee roster, hidden deep in the recesses of Manager Billy Martin's busy mind. Until he surfaced Sunday with a double and triple, he had batted 59 times this season, contributing 11 hits and two runs batted in. He had not played an inning since July 5.

For this distinctly limited contribution, Moreno is earning $800,000, the fruits of a fancy, free-agent contract signed with the Houston Astros in December 1982 and assumed by the Yankees when they traded Jerry Mumphrey for him.

History loaded against repeaters

By MURRAY CHASS N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK - Recent history reveals these facts: No champion of either National League division or the American League West has repeated since 1978 and no American League East champion has repeated since the Yankees did in 1981. Of the 18 division winners since those respective repeat seasons, excluding the strike season of 1981, only two teams were in first place at the All-Star Game break the following season, the Chicago White Sox last season and the Atlanta Braves in 1983. The San Diego Padres, who have been clinging to a slim lead in the National League West, are trying to become the third of 22 division winners to achieve that status.

One more fact: Of the 18 division winners, 14 were worse off in the standing by the end of the following season than they were at the All-Star Game break. That, of course, includes the two teams that held the lead at the break the following

What does all of this mean for the Padres, the Chicago Cubs, the Kansas City Royals and the Detroit Tigers, who last season became the seventh team in seven years to win the World Series? It means those teams must beware of a second-half slump that would drop them completely out of contention

"It's difficult," said Sparky Anderson, the Tigers' manager, who has had half a season to find out what it takes to repeat. "The Toronto Blue Jays are real good. They're an improved ball club. So are Baltimore and New York. All three are improved, and you have to worry about all of them. If you split with them, you've done well. Our problem is we're not beating the West. You have to win in the West. I'd just as soon play .500 in the East and beat the West. We're going about this

The Tigers, who have the best record among the American League East teams in intradivisional play (24-13), were only at .500 (23-23) against the West after losing to Minnesota Friday night. "We haven't been hitting and I don't know if we are going to hit enough," Anderson said. "At this point, it doesn't look like it. We've hit a lot of home runs; that's what's keeping us in there. We've scored something like 46 percent of our runs by home runs. That's not going to last. The other night we got four hits in an inning for the first time since June 20. The Tigers nevertheless are in a more advantageous position (tied for second, 41/2 games from first) than many other recent division winners were. Last year, Baltimore, at this stage, was 111/2 games out and Los Angeles was 61/2 out. The position of both deteriorated as the season progressed, the Orioles finishing 19 back and the Dodgers 13. The White Sox plummeted from one game in first place to 10 out, and Philadelphia skidded from 3½ back to 15½

For second-half collapses, though, how about the 1983 California Angels, who, in trying to defend their division title, sank from two games behind at the All-Star Game pause to 29 games back, winning an average of only one game in three the rest of the season.

Dave Stieb, who is one of the reasons Toronto is ahead of Detroit, has a chance to be the American League's starting pitcher for the third consecutive All-Star Game, considering his 9-5 record and 1.84 earnedrun average. If the assignment is offered, though, he should say thank you, but no thank you.

Consider what happened to Stieb after he started the All-Star Games in 1983 and '84. Before the All-Star Game in '83, he had a 10-7 record with a 2.54 e.r.a.; after the game, he was 7-5 with a 3.62 e.r.a. Last season, he was 9-3 and 2.42 before the game; after, he was 7-5 and 3.27.

In 1982, when he was not the starting pitcher, his performance improved significantly after the break, from 7-10, 3.97 to 10-4, 2.59.

Stieb was the winning pitcher in e '83 game the first th League had won in 12 years, but he was the loser last year. Gary Carter, then with Montreal, made him the loser by hitting a home run against him and breaking a 1-1 tie. That home run also made Carter the game's most valuable player for the the Mets' catcher, Carter has a shot at another $100,000 Tuesday night. Bill Bergesch, already the general manager, was named executive vice president of the Cincinnati Reds last week, which makes him a leading contender for the executive-of-theyear award. Bergesch would win the award not for any player move he made but for a personal move. Deciding he had tolerated the Yankees' way of operating long

second time, and the designation earned him a $100,000 bonus. Now enough, Bergesch resigned last October as the Yankees' vice president for baseball operations, then joined the Reds after Woody Woodward left the Reds to fill Bergesch's role with the Yankees.

With the Yankees, Bergesch, like all other executives before and after him under the current ownership, moved in and out of the dog house. Now, with the retirement of Bob Howsam, Bergesch has become the No.1 baseball man in the Reds' operation under Marge Schott.

That year Clark earned only $5,330, but she has gradually ascended on the money-winning list to $85,479 last year, which ranked 18th. Prior to the Open, she ranked 13th this year with

"She's played in 19 tournaments this year and she could've won all but two or three, that's how well she's played," Dickinson

Several months ago Clark was practicing at Frenchman's Creek when Jack Nicklaus invited her to play nine holes

She put it inside him eight times in the nine holes," Dickinson said, referring to Clark's shots to the green. "Jack came over to me later and told me what a good player she was, and I told Jack to tell her that.

Much of Dickinson's golf theory is based on that of Ben Hogan, his idol as a young touring pro. "I worked for Ben at Tamarisk in Palm Springs the winter after he won everything in 1953," he recalled, meaning the Masters, the United States Open and the British Open. "He was the best player in the world, no question, and my first day at Tamarisk, he asked me, 'You have to give any lessons this afternoon?' I told him, 'Just one,' and he said, 'You can't hang around here for $5, we got to go play.

'Now here I was playing the best golfer in the world and when we got to the first tee, Ben announced we were playing a $10 Nassau. I asked him, 'How many shots do I get?' and he looked at me and said, 'When you turned pro, you lost your handicap, we're playing belly to belly.' So we went out and we both had 16 pars and two birdies. That night I phoned my father and told him, 'I tied Ben Hogan.

As a young touring pro, Gardner Dickinson, at 5 feet 10 inches, weighed 130 pounds.

'Bob Hope used to say," he re called with a laugh, "that I had to stand up twice to cast a shadow. Sunday, Dickinson was hoping that Clark's shadow would be cast at Baltusrol, but when the Open ended, everybody else was in

Guardian Angel looks after California's Downing

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

California may have had a guardian angel in the stands, ready to commit a little larceny to make sure Brian Downing's home run remained a home run.

With the score tied 3-3, a runner on base and two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning Sunday, Downing hit a line drive toward the left field corner.

Toronto's George Bell appeared to make the catch as he fell over a railing into the seats, but when he pulled himself back on the field, the ball was missing.

Umpire John Shulock signaled home run, and the Angels went home with a 5-3 victory, maintaining a six-game lead in the American League West while the first-place Blue Jays' margin dropped to 21/2 games over New York at the All-Star break.

Bell, Toronto Manager Bobby Cox and several players pleaded for some five minutes that a fan had grabbed the ball out of Bell's glove, but Shulock didn't buy the

He caught the ball out of the park," Shulock said. "If he catches it on the field and his momentum takes him in the stands and someone takes the ball away from him, that's a different situation. My only concern was where he made the catch. He was in the fans' area.'

Rance Mulliniks knocked in all three Toronto runs with singles in the third and fifth innings. Reggie Jackson and Ruppert Jones singled in California's first two runs in the

Tigers 8, Twins 0

Walt Terrell pitched a no-hitter for 6 2-3 innings and Detroit beat Minnesota for the first time in eight meetings this season.

Terrell extended his hitless innings string to 14 2-3 innings over his last two starts before Tom Brunansky got the Twins' only hit with a double off the left-center field wall. Terrell was relieved after 7 1-3 in-nings and Willie Hernandez finished the one-hitter while notching his 19th save.

"As soon as I threw it I knew it was a bad pitch," Terrell said of the long double, the only time Minnesota reached the outfield all day. "Brunansky is known as a mistake hitter and that sure was a mistake. I turned my head to see how far it was going to go."

White Sox 5, Orioles 3 Tom Seaver gained his 297th career victory as Chicago literally squeezed past Baltimore The White Sox scored three of their five runs on bunts - two by Bryan Little and one by Ozzie Guillen — although the Orioles said they were expecting Chicago to use that

With Baltimore leading 2-1 in the fifth, Guillen laid down a suicide squeeze to tie the score, and Little followed with another bunt to give the White Sox a 3-2 lead. Little made it 5-3 with a second suicide squeeze in the ninth.

Seaver allowed seven hits and struck out 11 in 8 2-3 innings, including Fred Lynn four times. Seaver now has fanned 10 or more 71 times in his career, but it was his first time he accomplished the feat in 11/2 American League seasons.

Yankees 7, Rangers 1
Ron Guidry, who declined a chance to join the AL All-Star team because he was pitching Sunday, won his 11th straight decision with a four-hitter as New York completed a four-game sweep of Texas.

Guidry, 12-3, whose hasn't lost since the Rangers beat him on April 29, allowed only one runner past first until Toby Harrah doubled in the ninth. Harrah scored on Buddy Bell's sacrifice fly. The Yankees, who have won 10 of 11, scored five runs in the second inning, keyed by Dave Winfield's solo homer, RBI singles by Mike Pag-liarulo and Bobby Meacham, a runscoring double by Omar Moreno and Willie Randolph's sacrifice fly.

Red Sox 6, Mariners 2

Wade Boggs extended his hitting streak to 20 games, tying Don Mattingly for the longest in the majors this season, with two singles and a two-run homer as Boston handed Seattle its seventh loss in eight games. Boggs' homer, his third of the season, came in the eighth. Dennis Boyd, 11-7, took a four-hit shutout into the eighth inning, retiring 15 straight batters at one stretch. before the Mariners scored their two game losing streak and Kansas City scored three runs in both the third and ninth innings to beat Cleveland. Hal McRae had a two-run single and John Wathan a two-run double for the Royals, who finished with 15 hits, four of them by Willie Wilson.

A's 11, Brewers 2 Mike Davis, an early-season sensation with his power hitting, slammed his first homer in 32 games in the first inning, leading an Oakland rout of Milwaukee.

Davis' three-run homer, his 15th, came off Moose Haas, 7-5, after Carney Lansford hit a solo shot earlier in the inning. The A's, who finished with 13 hits, got five runs in the fifth, highlighted by Dave Kingman's two-run double, and Bruce Bochte added a two-run homer in

Dodgers surprise leaders Put '84 NL playoff replay on hold

Just a few weeks ago, National League fans were contemplating a replay of the 1984 championship series. The Chicago Cubs held down first place in the East and the San Diego Padres were the best in the My, how times change!

As they head into the All-Star break, the Padres are only No. 2, albeit just one-half game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers, and the Cubs are reeling in fourth place, 742 games behind the first-running St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cubs buried the Dodgers 10-4 Sunday, giving the Padres a chance to retake the West Division lead, but Terry Pendleton and Tito Landrum of the Cards did them in 2-1 in St.

"Am I surprised to be in first?" Dodgers Manager Tommy Lasorda said, repeating a question. "Well, yes and no. Yes, because if you'd said this a while back, I wouldn't have believed it. And no, because we started to play good baseball.

Lasorda said he'd figured his Dodgers would gain some ground on the Padres this past week. "San Diego came in to play the Cubs (the Padres lost two of three in Chicago) and then they had to play the Cardinals (who won three of four from San Diego). "We felt if we could win we could gain ground because Chicago and St. Louis could give them a

On Sunday, the Cubs gave the Dodgers a good old-fashioned whipping as Keith Moreland drove in four runs, three on a homer, and Ryne Sandberg hit two home runs to lead a 15-hit attack that ended LA's six-game winning streak.

Cardinals 2, Padres 1 Pendleton homered in the seventh inning to lift St. Louis into a 1-1 tie with the Padres, then Vince Coleman doubled and Landrum singled in the eighth to untie it snd give the Cardinals their seventh victory in eight games.

Tommy Herr, comparing these Cards to the 1982 world champions, reflected: "This club is better day in and day out. That team never lost more than three games in a row. This team has played better over longer periods of time."

Giants 7, Pirates 3 Laskey, 2-11, ended a slide that stretched back to May 6, when he also beat the Pirates. He allowed two first-inning runs, then retired 15 consecutive batters before leaving the game in the sixth inning with a strained lower back David Green and Chili Davis homered for the Giants.

The game was delayed briefly by a bench-clearing fight. The Giants' Dan Gladden tackled pitcher Rick Rhoden after being hit with a pitch. Gladden and Rhoden were the only players ejected.

Wiebe wins despite missed putt on 72

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) Mark Wiebe said a putt that didn't fall was probably the critical stroke in his first professional victory, a sudden-death triumph over John Mahaffey in the $500,000 Anheuser Busch Golf Classic

Wiebe could have won the tourna ment on the 72nd hole, but a 16-foot putt to save par just slid by the hole. Wiebe made up for it on the first extra hole by sinking a 15-foot birdie putt that quickly ended his battle with Mahaffey

"I really felt it had a lot to do with the playoff," Wiebe said of his missed putt on the final hole Sunday. "My first thought was, 'you hi, a good putt on 18, and you missed it. So hit another good one here and you can make up for it."

"I was real happy with the way I hit that second putt. I didn't dog it. I didn't leave it short. I gave it a good

'Mark played very, very well,' said Mahaffey, the 1981 Anheuser-Busch winner. "He deserved to win the tournament. When you birdie the first hole of a sudden-death playoff, it takes care of most people. He took care of me. Wiebe, with a final 70, and Mahaffey, who had a 69, finished regulation play at 11-under-par 273 over the 6,746-yard, par 71 Kingsmill Golf Club course.

WIEBE, ONLY 117th on the mon ey list this year, said he felt little pressure heading into the playoff. "If I lose, the worst that could happen is I'm not going to have to go to tour school next year. I either win or win more," said the 27-year-old Escondido, Calif., golfer, who added that he'd been through the PGA school "seven or eight times."

Thanks to the victory, worth $90,000, Wiebe "can live my life out. don't have to play every single week. I can play whenever I want' because of the exemption granted players who win tournaments. Wiebe's tee shot on the 408-yard,

AUSTIN (AP) — The boomtown growth in the state's capital city has finally slowed to a steadier pace, with job growth at just under 6 percent for the first five months of this

Although it is robust expansion, it is also only about half last year's job growth rate of 11 percent, the Austin American-Statesman reported

Austin's high-tech community has seen jarring shutdowns, small layoffs and austerity measures. Bank lending has slowed, and residential real estate construction and home sales are well behind last year's pace. But economic forecasters and business leaders say that 1985 looks anemic only in contrast with 1983 and 1984, when the metropolitan area compiled impressive growth numbers, adding more than 30,000 jobs a

Gas prices continue to rise as crude drops

coup losses and pay for cleaning lead from gasoline pushed up already-rising pump prices over the past two weeks, says oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg

"This will continue right straight through to next January," Lundberg said Sunday. "The public is going to have to pick up this increasing tab for the luxury of getting poisonous lead out of our blood streams."

Gasoline prices nationwide rose an average 0.52 of a cent a gallon for all grades of gasoline since June 21, said Lundberg, who surveys 17,000 gasoline stations in 50 states every other week for his Lundberg Letter.

The largest increase was for selfserve, leaded regular, which rose 0.77 of a cent to an average price of $1.12.53 a gallon, he said. Regular unleaded was at $1.20.31, up 0.48 of a cent, and premium unleaded hit $1.31.91, an increase of 0.38 of a cent

The addition of lead is a relatively inexpensive way to boost the octane of gasoline.

Recent crude oil price cuts may not have had time to be fully reflected at the pump, but some of the potential savings to consumers is being absorbed by gasoline retailers, Lund-

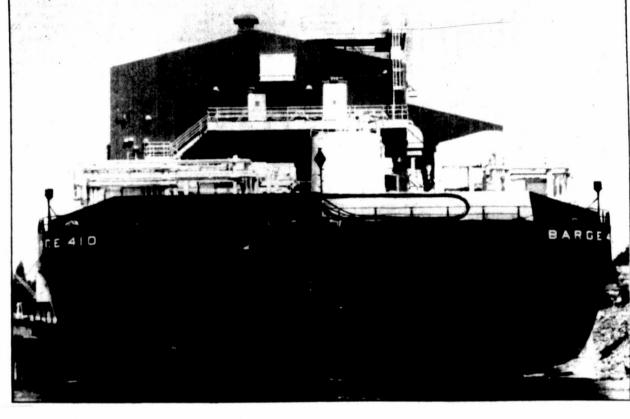

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Oil-glutted berg said. Those retailers were ungasoline dealers scrambling to reable to quickly pass on wholesale gasoline price hikes to the public earlier in the year.

"The dealers' overall gross profit margin remains 34 cents lower than it was at beginning of year, and the dealers are strongly motivated to recover the lost markup," he said.

"If international and domestic crude oil get into a deeper glut, anything resembling a free fall in crude oil price will also cause gasoline prices to fall," Lundberg said. "But if international and domestic prices increase, then gasoline prices will zoom up as we try to get the lead out of gasoline no matter how much it

The crude oil prices continued their three-month fall as Mexico cut its export prices last week and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Nations was still in disarray, Lundberg said.

The price of crude oil on the international spot market dropped approximately $1 a barrel since last April. Domestic crude prices have not dropped in accordance with the international market, but exact fig ures were not available. Lundberg

FCC approves use of trusteeships BUSINESS BRIEFS in broadcast company takeovers

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON - The Federal Communications Commission approved Friday for the first time the use of a trustee in takeovers of broadcast companies.

The device will give bidders a way to amass take certain other actions quickly - which can be crucial in hostile takeovers - instead of having to wait for the FCC's approval of their request for a transfer of broadcast licenses.

By a vote of 3-1, the commission approved a proposal by Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Washington Redskins, to have a trustee buy stock in Multimedia Inc. on his behalf while he waits for FCC permission to take control of the company. Cooke intends to hire as his trustee. Eugene J. McCarthy, the former U.S. senator from Minnesota and 1968 candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Cooke had sought expansion of the commission's trustee rules in light of a recapitalization plan under way at Multimedia that could make bids by outsiders financially impossible. Cooke argued that if he were not given a vehicle to pursue his takeover before the Multimedia recapitalization plan advanced further, shareholders of the company would be barred from enter taining all possible offers for their stock.

Shortly before the commission acted on Cooke's application, lawyers for Ted Turner, the Atlanta broadcast entrepreneur who is trying to take over CBS, filed papers with the commission seeking approval of the appointment of a former U.S. senator, William D. Hathaway of Maine, as trustee.

Under Turner's proposal, which differs significantly from Cooke's, the trusteeship would hold the licenses of the regulated radio and TV stations now owned by CBS. while Turner would take control of the network, toy and music divisions and other unregulated parts of the corporation. The arrangement would be an interim step in his effort to take control of the entire company.

Time is also of the essence in the Turner and CBS battle. Turner's lawyers said. CBS is trying to block Turner's bid by offering to purchase 21 percent of the company's stock, an offer that is good until July 31. Turner's lawyers requested action by next Monday, but James McKinney, chief of the FCC's Mass Media Bureau, advised them in a letter Friday that no action could be taken by then. McKinney told reporters the commission probably could not act before midnight next Wednesday

The use of a trustee in fights for control of broadcast properties marks a departure for the FCC. Historically, trustees have been limited to serving in instances where a licensee has gone into bankruptcy or died.

The commission set forth several conditions govern ing the conduct of the trustee, the most important of which is that the trustee must sell the stock acquired on behalf of the bidder if the bidder is ultimately rejected by the commission.

Airline proposes suit settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government and American Airlines have proposed a settlement of a 1983 civil suit which charged that the airline and top official had sought to monopolize airline passenger service.

Under a consent decree filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Dallas, American and Robert L. Crandall, now chairman and president of the carrier, agreed to refrain from any future discussions with other airlines about fares, except under very restrictive circumstances

Without admitting any violations of provisions of the Sherman Act, Amer ican and Crandall also agreed that Crandall would keep a written record of any conversations or communications with executives of other carriers. The settlement, which will become final upon approval by the court, stems from a civil complaint filed by the Justice Department's Antitrust Division against American and Crandall in February 1983. The complaint charged that Crandall, who was president and chief executive officer at the time, had sought to fix prices with Braniff Airways in February of 1982.

The complaint said at the time that Howard Putnam, then president of Braniff International, had rejected the offer.

Scott Rombach, a company spokesman, said Friday that Campbell's has been testing the product for three years in four different states under the trade name "Comin' Home." Paul Masaracchio, general manager of the dry foods business unit at Campbell's, said the total sales by all manufacturers of prepared soups, both canned and dry, increased 9 percent to more than $2 billion in the last year.

Fed to stay 'alert' to new needs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Policymakers at the Federal Reserve Board left unchanged their controls on the nation's money supply at a meeting in late May, according to minutes of the meeting. However, a majority of the Fed policymakers agreed to be "alert" to the need for a further easing of monetary controls should economic conditions warrant, according to the minutes released Friday. The discussion took place during a May 21 meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee, the policymaking arm of the central bank. The FOMC met again this past Tuesday and Wednesday and some analysts believe they voted at that time to allow for further easing of monetary controls in light of continued sluggish economic growth. But other economists contend that the Fed will not ease further given the current slide in the value of the dollar and the rapid growth this year in the most closely watched measure of the money supply, M1.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Exchange rate detailed

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My brother lives in Canada and recently paid off a debt to me in Canadian dollars. He suggested I hang on to this money, for the possibility that a change in the exchange rate could make it worth more than it is now. If that happens, I could make a profit.

Before I decide whether to exchange my Canadian dollars for U.S. dollars now or speculate by waiting for a better price I'd like to know two things. What has been the trend in the exchange rate? What forecasts are being made about the direction in which the exchange rate might go?

A. In the foreign exchange market — where currencies of different countries are swapped the trend of the U.S. dollar has been mostly onward and upward for about four years. As a result, each U.S. dollar now buys more units of foreign currency than it used to. And foreign currencies fetch fewer U.S. dollars.

However, the rise of the U.S. dollar has not been in a straight line. At times, the value of this nation's currency has dipped in relation to most other currencies — as has happened over the past several months. Unfortunately for you, the Canadian dollar has not joined in that recent turnaround. Its value is still near an all-time low in relation to the U.S. dollar. What forecasts are being made about foreign exchange rates? That depends on which forecaster you read and, more importantly, whether you're willing to put your faith and your money behind any of those prognosticators. As 1985 dawned, the majority of foreign exchange "experts" predicted the U.S. dollar would remain strong for the whole year. They were right for about three months - and very wrong after that. You're correct in saying you would "speculate" by holding on to that Canadian money in hopes in will rise in value. That's a straight craps shoot. You might come out a winner or a loser. For your sake, let's hope you have that money in a Canadian bank earning interest. If you have it in currency - folding Canadian dollars - it's costing you lost interest.

Q. I have some Canadian dollars and would like to keep track of their value. I got the current quotation one day from a teller at my bank, but it would be a nuisance for the tellers if I were to call daily.

I don't understand the quotations in the newspaper's "Foreign Exchange" table. Can you explain those numbers?

A. That table gives two quotations for each for-eign currency. The first is the value of a unit of the foreign currency in U.S. money. The second is the cost in U.S. money of buying units of the foreign currency

On a recent day, those numbers were ".7332" and "1.3639" for the Canadian dollar. That meant the Canadian dollar was worth 73.32 cents in U.S. money and the U.S. dollar was worth $1.3639 in Canadian currency

Let's look at another currency, the French franc, quoted at ".1070" and "9.3500" the same day. The franc was worth 10.7 U.S. cents and the U.S. dollar was worth 9.35 francs. Caution! This does not mean you could walk into a bank or foreign exchange dealer's office with 100 Canadian dollars that day and get $73.32 in U.S. money. Nor could you buy 935 francs with $100 of Quotations in the foreign exchange market are for transactions of $1 million or more. When you deal in smaller amounts, you get fewer units of foreign currencies for each U.S. dollar. And when you swap relatively small amounts of foreign currency for U.S. money, you get fewer of our nation's dollars.

Q. The members of our poker club have a new bet on. Because your name is Doyle, you should have no trouble settling it. Is the official name for Irish currency "pound" or 'punt"?

A. It's "punt" and has been since 1979, when the link between the Republic of Ireland's currency and the British pound sterling was severed. That coincided with Ireland joining the European the over-the-counter market, up to a maximum of If they choose, they can put part of their money in Treasury bills, and they may sell short

Monetary System. Despite that official change, there are spots in where you're still quoted the "old currency" when you settle your bill for a pint or a "large. Q. A friend of mine is giving me the hard sell to buy term life insurance, which is far less expensive than whole life insurance. He urges the land of scholars, sinners, saints and bards me to invest the money saved on insurance premiums in mutual funds, which he also sells.

The figures and graphs he shows me deal with astronomical amounts of money that he says I could accumulate. This seems too good to be true. Can I believe the literature my friend has given me? A. Yes, if that literature shows the results of investing over some past period of time in a specific mutual fund. In that case, the figures will be accurate. Even though the Securities and Exchange Commission has relaxed its rules on mutual fund sales literature, no fund can "cook the books" with numbers that lie. But you had better be aware that a mutual fund's past performance is no assurance of its future results. Except for money market mutual funds, the values of all other mutual funds can move up or down. Just because a particular fund has done well in the past, you're not guaranteed it will be a successful investment in the

Also, some mutual fund sales organizations are playing fast and loose with sales literature. Instead of printing the investment results of specific funds, they show the past performance of unnamed funds. Don't fall for that dodge.

This column has always favored the "buy term and invest the rest" theory of protecting your beneficiaries with low-cost term insurance and embarking on a steady program of putting the money saved into good investments. Over the years, most mutual funds have been excellent investments. In general, I go along with your friend. However, if he tries to put you into a mutual fund contractual plan, my firm advice is

In a contractual plan, up to half of your first year's investment goes to pay commissions. The mutual fund shares purchased with that bite would have to double in value for you to get If you make your mutual fund investments through your friend, tell him you want to do it through a voluntary accumulation plan, so that

8.5 percent commission is taken out of the money Of course, you could avoid commissions entirely by investing in one of the many no-load mutual funds. But your friend doesn't sell them.

Q. In February 1984, I invested $10,000 in each of three mutual funds. I also have $12,000 in a money market mutual fund and an individual retirement account with still a different fund. I reinvest all dividends, as I presently live on my salary.

I plan on working another eight years. My investments are for my retirement. Is this sound planning, or should I be investing in

A. All the mutual funds you named in your letter have good investment records. If they continue to do well, you should have a sizable nest egg by retirement time. You might do better with individual stocks; you might do worse. With a mutual fund, you turn investment over to the fund's professiona management, which buys and sells securities for the fund. That relieves you of the chore and wor ries of managing your own investments.

Unless you can put a lot of time and effort into studying the economy, the market and specific stocks, my advice is to stay with the mutual

Investor contests entice with prizes By CHET CURRIER

Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) - The real-life bull market on Wall Street seems to have created a vogue for amateur investing contests. Barron's magazine this month is starting a contest for stock-pickers that runs through Jan. 10, 1986. "There are no cash prizes in this rather improbable contest, and no trips to Europe just gloating privileges," the magazine says. Value Line, the large investment advisory and management firm, has scheduled an investing competition to run from Dec. 2 through next May 30. Unlike Barron's, it is offering cash prizes totaling $150,000.— for the top finishers. The idea is by no means new. For some time, the Securities Industry Association, a Wall Street trade group, has sponsored "stock market game" competitions for elementary and high school stu-Nor is it confined to small investors playing with imaginary money. The Financial Traders Association of Marina Del Rey, Calif., runs regular trading championships in which brokers, investment advisers and individual traders compete on the basis of actual transactions. The minimum starting capital required for these contests is $5,000, or $2,000 in the division for traders in put and call options. Some participants operate with accounts of $50,000 and up. It's apparently a lot easier to stir up interest in this kind of venture than it was a few years ago, when stock prices were depressed and public interest in the market was cool, if not dormant. The organizers of trading competitions do so at least partly out of self-interest. They naturally want to stimulate interest in the information or services in which they specialize. Nevertheless, these contests can serve as an educational and entertaining exercise in the art of managing money. And in those cases where there is no entry fee and investments are made only on paper, what does anyone have to lose beyond a little time and the cost of a few postage

Entries for Barron's contest must be postmarked by midnight July 11, and sent to: Hulbert Financial Digest Inc. Attn: Barron's Contest Department

P.O. Box 15447

Washington DC 20003-0447. The rules, as outlined in the magazine's current issue, are simple. Entrants can choose any stocks traded on the New York or American stock exchanges or in the National Market System in that is, take a position seeking to profit from a decline in a stock's price. But options, futures, warrants and bonds are off limits.

Bakeries in the United States produce over 41 million pounds of bread daily — about $31/2 billion worth of bread per year.

Locally, Frost's Bread Company of Odessa, one of a few scattered across the Permian Basin, produces in excess of 50,000 loaves of Farm Pack Bread daily and ships to 88 distribution centers in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Production manager Abel Molinar, who oversees a crew of 45 to 50 employees, said bread baking today is primarily a mechanized operation; with many companies using great mixers, large fermentation rooms, huge dough troughs and ovens able to bake thousands of loaves at one time.

Still, the steps in mixing and baking the bread "remain similar to those used years ago," he added.

For the best results, Molinar say, bakers use flour that has been aged, or ripened, by the miller.

Textbooks 'improved' over ones from past

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas coordinator for People for the American Way said today that most of the United States history books up for adoption are "far improved over anything available in the past."

Michael Hudson of the national anti-censorship organization said American Way was appearing before the State Textbook Committee to protect the history books from fundamentalists' attacks.

Hudson and two members of the American Way's book review panel held a news conference today prior to the opening of the hearing on $92.9 million worth of textbooks proposed for use beginning in the 1986-87 school year.

Also up for adoption are proposed texts in English language and composition, life science and journalism, and other courses.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the textbook committee, Hudson said, "In essence, the debate you will hear today involves a clash between two different philosophies about the nature and purpose of history and for that matter the role of education itself. One advocates education, the other indoctrination."

Hudson said American Way advocates education, "fundamentalist critics" indoctrination.

Texas State University, a review panelist, said, "The fundamentalists' search for villians (usually) and heroes (sometimes) oversimplifies the behavior of historical figures.'

Ponder said the proposed history texts are "commendably better, on the whole, than similar books of the mid-to-late 1970s. Texas' system of statewide adoption of books, which was started in 1923, is considered one of the most restrictive of any major state. The Texas Education Agency is the single largest textbook purchaser in the nation, and this has led to complaints from other states that Texas has undue national influence over what type of books are presented for adoption.

Some critics have suggested that Texas do away with statewide adoption of textbooks and let educators choose them at the local level as almost 30 other states now do.

Until 1983, only those protesting books could testify before the 15member Texas textbook committee. That year the Legislature approved a proposal to allow favorable comments, too. In 1984 much of the textbook debate focused on proposed biology

The State Board of Education on Saturday approved mandatory math and English exams for graduation hopefuls. Officials expect about 24 percent will fail the language arts tests this fall and 25 percent will flunk the math quizzes.

Kirby predicted the passing average would rise rapidly the next two years due to the state's increased stress on academics in schooling.

Odessa accident injures four people

From Staff Reports

A two-car accident on Odessa's east side at the intersection of University Boulevard and Bonham Street early this morning resulted in injuries to four people and citations of both drivers involved.

According to Odessa police sargeant Sid Lyle, a vehicle driven by Michael James McDonald, 2201 Rocky Lane, was headed south on Bonham Street and ran a stop sign at the intersection of Bonham and University Blvd. and collided with a car driven by Vincent McClinton, 4326 Delwood.

Lyle said investigating officers found 45 feet of skid marks on Bonham before the McDonald vehicle rolled over and stopped against the south curb of University. Treated and released after being taken to Medical Center Hospital were McDonald, Robert Courtney and Russell Evans. Courtney and Evans were passengers in the McClinton vehicle. Pedro Flores was admitted to MCH and, at mid-morning, was described as being in stable condition, slated for surgery. Flores was a passenger in the McDonald vehicle.

Now she is in a thigh-high blue satin costume with matching stockings that shimmer under the spotlight as she tap-dances across a stage in front of a roomful of cheering

The rhinestone tiara glitters in her reddish blonde curls and her blue eyes dance with excitement.

Laverne never dreamed she would become a beauty queen. Especially not at age 64.

The timid Toms River, N.J. grandmother whose girlhood daydreams were about being a Rockette is the reigning Ms. Senior America. The title comes complete with the dainty crown, two free nights at this Catskills resort and a casino weekend in Atlantic City.

IT DOES NOT COME with any of the scholarships, prize money, fur coats, luxury cars, lucrative contracts or other booty showered on beauty pageant winners 45 years

This year's Miss America, 21-yearold Sharlene Wells of Salt Lake City, is expected to earn $140,000 in personal appearance stipends during her reign, in addition to a $25,000 scholarship. Pageant officials say Miss Americas always get the royal treatment staying in luxury hotels, flying only Laverne drove to the Catskills in her old maroon Cadillac with a broken air conditioner to make her first public appearance as Ms. Senior America at Brown's Resort, where she lunched on liver in the family style dining room.

AGE DISCRIMINATION? "Sur-Laverne concedes, but she's not really complaining. Pageants, especially winning them, have changed

Right from the start, it made her more assertive. When Laverne told her husband of 42 years, Eddie, that she was entering the local Ms. Senior pageant, Eddie put his foot down.

"You'll embarrass me," he moaned.

"Oh, yeah?" . orted Laverne. "What're you going to do about it, divorce me?"

Laverne decided to tap-dance for the talent segment of the pageant even though she hadn't tried it since high school. As a girl, she taught her-self to dance from musicals and daydreamed about becoming a Rockette.

'I would go home, put on my radio and shoes and copy their steps," Laverne recalled. Her first date with Eddie was a movie at Radio City Music Hall. She was awestruck by the Rockettes but too shy and, at 5-feet-4, two inches too short to be one.

WITH THE LOCAL Ms. Senior

pageant just two months away, Laverne began taking dance lessons for the first time, a half-hour a week. She borrowed a costume, sewed her own evening gown and won. Rehearsing for the state pageant put Laverne's kitchen linoleum to the test. Taptappity TAPTAP tappity TAPTAP, Eddie would hear while puttering in his cellar workshop.

For the state contest, Laverne wore a black leotard, tails, a top hat and a cane — borrowed from an elderly man in the audience because she forgot hers — and danced to a pop version of "Puttin' on the Ritz"

by Taco. She won again.

Facing the national pageant, Laverne was frantic for a new number. "If they see my picture in that penguin suit again, that's not right, because people will think that's all I can do," she fretted.

When a record store clerk found to Cheek," Laverne was so grateful for the salesgirl.

AT THE FINALS, Laverne thought she was all washed up when a 72-year-old challenger in a green rocking chairs on front porches. mini-skirt did the twist. Another of the 10 hopefuls, wearing bangles on her wrists, did a modest belly dance (she didn't bare her stomach) and someone else performed a slow hula.

Contestants in the 5-year-old pageant also were judged on a private interview, evening gowns and a three-minute speech on their philosophy of life.

Laverne, wearing a rose satin gown she had finished sewing the night before, said her philosophy was giving. "Friendship, compassion and love all come back to us when we least expect it and from the person we least expect," she said. "There goes the kitchen floor," Eddie was heard to say when they crowned Laverne Ms. Senior America 1985. Laverne describes it as the happiest day of her life, next to getting married.

The title helped her wangle an invitation to join a senior citizens' dance troupe. A mother of four chil-dren and "Grandma" to two, Laverne considers herself a late-blooming liberated woman.

Some things Ms. Senior America hates, besides worms: Slugs, snakes, marijuana and crotchety old people

"There's no reason a senior should be lonely, overweight or smoke," she another bouncy Taco tune, "Cheek declared. "And crankiness. I can't see them cranky. I guess seniors who she went home and baked cupcakes are cranky were cranky young people, too.

> LAVERNE CONSIDERS it something of a mission to dispel the no-tion that elderly people belong in She made her point while riding on a "junky float" in some rinky dink parade at the Jersey shore. Riding along were some Miss Teenybopper types.

There weren't enough seats on the float, and someone suggested that Laverne, being older, deserved to sit

No way, Toots. Laverne insisted on standing "so people out there won't think seniors are all decrepit."

Laverne swims an hour every day in the bay that laps against her backyard, maintaining that as long as she stays on the surface the pollution in the water won't get her. She also loves to roller skate, but Eddie won't take her.

During her Catskills visit, Laverne skipped most of the organized activities like shuffleboard, grand slam bingo and flower arranging. She took sunset walks with Eddie

At Brown's, Laverne was part of the entertainment during a state senior pageant. Also appearing was the original Ms. Senior New York, whose talent is sewing a caftan in three minutes. While the ex-Ms. Senior New York madly stitches onstage, her grown daughter stands by in a leotard to model the finished product and her 9-year-old granddaughter belts out "Dear Mr. Gable" with a set of Ethel Merman lungs.

When Laverne comes on, Eddie watches her with 42 years worth of love in his eyes and a smile about 42 miles wide.

nurse, married to a trucker. When I'm not working, I enjoy riding with him. It may be illegal to solicit over a CB, but that doesn't stop the hookers. Truckers are besieged with offers from hookers everywhere - not only in Nevada.

Many truckers have beds built into the cab of their trucks and prefer to sleep there instead of a motel. Law enforcement officials try to keep these hookers out of the parking areas. In some instances, the areas are fenced to keep the hookers out. I once had a hooker knock on our truck door to offer her services. As long as there are truckers who use their services, the oldest profession in the world will continue to thrive. Truckers' wives will just have to trust their men. There are plenty of decent truckers on the road. I married one. - BILLY'S QUEEN

Inventor continues creating new products at age 86

Elmore does not have a job in the common sense of the word, but he is busier than many people.

"In over 70 years, I've never asked for a thing to do," said the 86-yearold Scottsdale man. Elmore holds 51 patents for items ranging from refrigerated trucks to powdered soap dispensers. He created pens that are attached to their holders, the curse of bank customers ever since.

He invented special motor scooters and cars that have helped handi-capped people enjoy the freedom of being able to go almost anywhere. And, starting while he was still in the hospital recuperating from can-cer surgery in 1966, he made dozens of improvements to colostomy bags that have made life easier for himeinat nave made life easier for him-self and thousands of other people. Elmore said everything he invent-ed was created because it was need-ed. People would come to him with problems, and he would try to solve them, he said.

"If I couldn't solve that need, I went out and found somebody smarter than me that could help me solve it," he said.

Another invention, the Doze Alarm, was created to keep long-distance truck drivers from falling asleep at the wheel, he said. The small alarm clips on to a driver's glasses or hat and rings if the driver's head falls forward.

Elmore obtained his first patent in 1922 for an internal combustion soldering iron. Soldering irons originally had to be heated externally, he said, but telephone linemen were having trouble getting the instrument all the way to the top of a tele-phone pole before it cooled. His most famous invention probably was the refrigerated truck.

Elmore was acquainted with many of the famous people of the century. Names like Henry Ford, Will Rogers and Amelia Earhart figure frequently in tales of his past. He has always worked hard, from the time he had to quit school in seventh grade. Elmore is working with local doctors on several projects, although he said he prefers to keep the details secret for now.

Circus parade 'page of history'

By P.B. SEYMOUR

Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE — It was a page out of history, a spectacle that would have made P.T. Barnum proud.

For two hours on Sunday, Milwaukee took a step back in time as horses pulled 75 brightly painted ornately decorated circus wagons past an estimated 750,000 people in a modern-day tribute to the "Greatest Show on Earth.'

Barnum, the master showman who said "There's a sucker born ever minute," made the wagons famous in the 19th century, when he converted otherwise drab freight wagons into advertisements for his show.

The wagons, covered with wooden sculpture, gold leaf, mirrors and bright paint, are survivors of wood piles and rot, owned by or on loan to the Circus World

On Sunday, they gained a new lease of life when they rolled along a 33-block route lined by a crowd estimated by police at 750,000 to 775,000 spectators more than the total population of the city, which was listed at 636,000 in the 1980 census.

"It's incredible," Dominique Jando, a French circus historian, said while viewing the parade. Richard Whitmarsh, director of the South Shore Circus Concert Band that came from Massachusetts to play circus music near the reviewing stand, called the parade "the ultimate in circus." "I never saw anything like this." Whitmarsh said

"It epitomizes mid-America," said Don Booth, one of the throng lining the parade route. "It's family entertainment, like baseball for the young and old.

"It's the nostalgia," businessman Ben Barkin said when asked why so many visitors would turn out.

The State Historical Society founded the circus museum in Baraboo, just north of Madison, at the former home of harness maker August Ringling, whose sons in the 1880s organized what eventually became the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, the "Greatest Show on Earth.

"This parade," Barkin declared, "is now the greatest Barkin said the committee he organized last year to sponsor the event had little difficulty raising the $750,000 to cover costs, much for shipping in teams of horses to pull the wagons as tradition requires. Former museum director C.P. "Chappie" Fox said it is wholesome family entertainment. 'It's honest," Fox said. "The circus has never been censored. What about theater and movies today? Until a want of funds led to abandonment of the annual event after 1973, Milwaukee borrowed as many as 65 museum wagons for the parade for each of 10

Land Manor helps mentally restored adults re-enter society

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Lawrence Dunlap and Ronald Coward are only two faces among 30 at Land Manor's halfway house for mentally restored adults.

Articulate and witty, Dunlap has been at Land Manor four months, having come from Houston and a strained family relationship. He has two years of college and job experience with a state agency in Houston.

Coward is a rough, tattooed 19year-old former drug and alcohol abuser on parole for trying to steal a car. He came to Land Manor to make a new start, to escape a gnawing cycle of homelessness, alcohol and marijuana.

They are worlds apart to the casual observer, but Dunlap and Coward share a critical bond - they are hard-to-place people yearning for hard work during hard times. Though they've found the firm hand of adult supervision at Land Manor helpful to their re-entry into society, they've also found some employers whose stigmas about social rehabilitation keep these residents at arm's length from a paycheck. But it isn't for lack of trying.

"Once they're here, they're not babied and coddled anymore," says Annie Lester, Land Manor job placement coordinator. "They are given responsibility. They are given a certain amount of freedom, for which they are accountable, and they are given the chance to get a job. They've got to get out there, be competitive..

"...and be reliable," says Ace Davenport, a 27-year-old resident who has recently acquired a job. On parole from the Texas Department of Corrections for attempted burglary, Davenport has Land Manor, his employer and his own honesty to thank for putting him back in circulation after three years behind bars. Referrals to Land Manor halfway house come from various state and local agencies, including the Texas Employment Commission and Texas Rehabilitation Commission. Private citizens can refer family members here; doctors can send clients.

Davenport, now realizing that "it's easy getting in (to prison) and not easy getting out," did not wait for his employer to ask about his past; he volunteered the information. The reward: admiration among his coworkers and from his boss for his honesty. Ms. Lester credits the dayto-day respect for authority at Land Manor as part of Davenport's suc-

Ronnie O'Neil never got in trouble with the law, but a stressful family life and a weakness for "blowin" money on chicks" brought the dark, reserved 20-year-old to Land Manor. Now, for the first time, O'Neil has a savings account, thanks to the job he landed by thumbing through the phone book two days after his previous job folded.

But most jobs don't come that easily, especially to residents here, although they go through employment evaluation and job search orientation before they hit the streets. The final word belongs to the employer. "For the employer, it is a risk," Dunlap says. "But it is also a

Spouting good corporate sense like a chairman of the board, Dunlap explained point-by-point how employers can benefit from hiring a mentally restored person and suffer in the long run if not, by continuing to support through tax dollars agencies that send people who are halfway there to halfway houses like Land Manor.

Says Dunlap: "If there's no job, then it's on to another transitional program, and that's no good

Vietnam Veterans Memorial has space for almost 300 more names

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Vietnam Veterans Memorial has room for the estimated 300-plus names of dead or missing servicemen omitted from the monument due to a technicality, and the additions could begin by Veterans Day, says the chairman of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial

The memorial, a series of black granite panels currently inscribed with the names of 58,022 dead or missing from the Vietnam war, was dedicated on Veterans Day, Nov. 11,

The Memorial Fund, which built the memorial from private donations, had asked architects to determine how many more names can be added after an Oklahoma man learned his son's name and many others were not on the memorial because they died outside the official combat zone.

"It's possible we'll add some names on or before Veterans Day,' John Wheeler, chairman of the Memorial Fund, said Thursday.

The Pentagon says at least 330 servicemen died in circumstances similar to Leo Broadhead's son, Air Force Lt. Larry Broadhead, whose bomber crashed on takeoff from Guam. Those casualties were left off official casualty lists because they died outside the combat zone designated in executive orders signed by Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

Under Johnson, the combat zone included Vietnam and its contiguous waters. Nixon expanded the zone to include Cambodia.

Architects have completed estimates of how many names can be fitted among those already etched on the walls, but the Memorial Fund is awaiting a cost figure and a firm number of the additional casualties or loosening them from the Pentagon, Wheeler said. We know we can add at least 500 names. We're sure of that," he said. We just feel a sense of stewardship and we want to be as thorough as possible." Some room was left on the memorial purposely so that veterans who may yet die from wounds received in Vietnam can have their names inscribed on the memorial.

Meanwhile on Thursday, engineers were measuring incremental expansion of the granite panels in the muggy Washington heat on the suspicion that such "bowing" is causing tiny cracks in some of the memorial's panels.

Wheeler said if heat expansion is causing the cracks in the granite, the solution may lie in either tightening the panels against the concrete backing to stop the expansion

Women's group urged to avoid some topics

By BARRY SCHLACHTER Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya — The U.N. Secretary General today cautioned some 3,000 delegates at the U.N. conference on women that they should not try to tackle the divisive political issues being discussed in other U.N.

Javier Perez de Cuellar's statements at the opening session came amid signs that political issues like South African racial segregation, the plight of Palestinian women in Israeli-occupied territory and the call for a new international economic order already were splitting the conference.

The two-week conference marks the end of a decade dedicated by the United Nations to women It is to review the decade and map strategies for the next 15 years.

'It is recognized that women's issues cannot be dissociated from the political, economic and social problems which beset countries and peoples," Perez de Cuellar said. But he cautioned the delegates from 120 countries against trying to tackle long-standing issues that are being discussed in other U.N. forums.

You owe it to all women in the world, and to yourself, to approach the work of this conference in a manner that will lead to positive and enduring results," he said. "It's my belief that despite understandable differences in views, there is a shared concern and common desire to ensure a successful outcome."

President Danial Arap Moi of Kenya, who opened the conference, carefully avoided sensitive political Differences of opinions are bound to arise," he said, adding that he hoped that issues important to women are not neglected as a result.

"A start has been made and we cannot afford to slow down the momentum of a matter so crucial to the well-being of all mankind" equality of the sexes, the Kenyan leader said. "Our efforts to redress the plight of women have achieved less than what we had the ability to accomplish.

The audience broke into several minutes of applause when Moi said it was "time we see women as a vital part of the human race.

The opening sessions of Forum '85 were primarily to map strategy for lobbying the U.N. delegates.

The American delegation has tried to block discussion of political topics, arguing they will take time away from "genuine concerns of

Third World and East Bloc nations argue that political questions are legitimate women's problems and were included in previous U.N. women's meetings. They accuse the United States of trying to dictate the conference's agenda to prevent the adoption of policies opposed by Washington. The United States has found backers for its position among moderate developing countries and some members of the Commonwealth, an organization of former British territories which includes several African nations.

Delegations still had not agreed on voting procedures today, with the United States and most pro-Western nations urging adoption of resolutions by consensus. Third World countries, composing the single largest voting bloc, want passage by a simple majority.

The composition of the U.S. delegation has been attacked as unrepresentative by Angela Davis, an American communist, and Coretta Scott King, a civil rights activist. The delegation includes blacks, Hispanics,

Shultz critical of New Zealand

By RICHARD BILL Associated Press Writer

CANBERRA, Australia — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz today chided New Zealand's government for staying away from the annual ANZUS defense talks for the first time in 34 years, but said he hoped the differences would be resolved.

New Zealand failed to attend today's meeting of the alliance link-ing it with the United States and Australia because of a dispute over its ban on nuclear-powered and armed warships entering its ports.

"Fortunately, the United States and Australia have not sought to opt out of our commitment to one another and to all those responsibilities essential to peace and security of the West," Shultz said. The pact, known as ANZUS, takes its name from the first letters of the three

"Escapism and isolation are phenomena which are well known in the United States. These lingering urges in the West to flee from common responsibility have been exploited continually by our adversaries," Shultz said.

"I share with you the hope that as time goes on, we will be able to rectify our differences with New Zea-

Official resigns over Belgian soccer riot

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Deputy Premier Jean Gol resigned today to protest the interior minister's refusal to step down after the Brussels soccer stadium riot in which 38 people were killed.

The surprise move put in question the future of Prime Minister Wilfried Martens' four-party coalition government, raising the possibility that other member's of Gol's Conservative Party could leave their cabinet positions in sympathy with him.

That would leave the government without a majority positions and lead to a general election before the one scheduled for Dec. 8.

Gol, 43, the most prominent member of the French-speaking conservative wing of the faction, offered his resignation in a letter to Martens, who passed it on to King Bauduoin.

A brief statement from the Royal Palace said the King "holds this resignation in suspension." The palace did not elaborate.

Gol's move came two days after a parliamentary debate on the government's handling of the May 29 riot at a European Cup soccer final in Brussels. Gol and other members of his party had called for the resignation and Nothomb, who is in charge of all

police forces

Nothomb refused to step down and Martens won a 109-3 vote of confidence in the full government, with four abstentions. Most members of the opposition parties walked out before the vote was held.

What happened Saturday in Parliament is horrible," Gol, also justice minister, said in the letter in which he submitted his resignation to Martens. A bipartisan committee issued a report a week ago charging police with failure to prevent the violence. in which British fans attacked Italian rivals at a European Cup final.

Most of the casualties came when a wall collapsed under pressure from the mob. The riot was denounced around the world, and English teams were barred from playing in matches outside Britain.

Most conservatives wanted Nothomb to resign but Martens supported his interior minister, saying: No political error can be blamed on the interior minister or any other government member

The state, the authority, was seriously damaged by a refusal to accept responsibilities, which unfortunately has characterized the Belgian state for very many years and which I never stopped denouncing." Gol wrote in his letter to Martens.

The unjustified refusal of the interior minister to assume his political responsibilities, the obstinance some groups of the majority to transform into a government problem the individual responsibility of a minister forced members of my party to prefer the survival of the government to the clear expression of their conscience," Gol said.

For some of them, among whom are men of extraordinary nobility, it was an agonizing and atrocious choice," he wrote.

"I cannot stand this situation," the deputy premier went on. "Nor the insinuations of some newspapers which are incapable of ever imagining politicians acting without political motives.

Therefore, I have decided to ask ou to hand my resignation to the king," Gol said. "Nobody is irreplaceable. For me, the idea I have of my duty and the idea I had of our government are irreplaceable." A parliamentary committee report said the British soccer fans involved in the riot were primarily responsible, but that the game organizers and the Belgian security forces also were partly to blame.

Gol is one of three deputy prime ministers. The two others are Frans Grootjans of the Flemish-speaking conservatives and Nothomb of the French-speaking Christian Democrats. Gol also is justice minister.

In his letter to Martens, Gol said the government's refusal to accept responsibility for the soccer riot had weakened the public's confidence in the authority and credibility of the

"I cannot stand this situation," Gol

The opposition parties moved quickly to raise questions about the future of the Martens coalition, which took office in 1981 and has survived longer than any Belgian government in more than a decade. Belgium has had 32 governments since the end of World War II.

Politically it seems difficult for Wilfried Martens to continue without Jean Gol and without the conservative ministers who must show solidarity with him," said Alain Van der Biest, leader of the Frenchspeaking Socialist members of the House of Representatives.

The Martens government has survived several important tests. including the political turmoil associated with his decision to carry out a 1979 decision to install 48 U.S. made cruise nuclear missiles on Belgian soil as part of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization program.

WORLD IN BRIEF

PRI retaining control?

MEXICO CITY - The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party kept a tight political grip on Mexico by winning a strong majority in the Congress in midterm balloting. according to incomplete returns announced today. But leaders of the opposition National Action Party, a conservative group known as PAN, claim there was widespread fraud in the July 7 election and races for state authorities.

Still incomplete Federal Electoral Commission returns indicated the Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, won at least 210 of the 400 seats in the lower house of Congress.

Three-hundred of those seats are filled by direct election and the rest alloted to minority parties in proportion to the number of votes they get. In the outgoing House, the PRI held 299 seats and PAN just one.

The PRI - which has been in power for 56 years - also holds the entire 64 seat Senate.

PEKING (AP) - Rescue teams are searching today for three coal miners still missing in a blast that killed 52 miners over the weekend, an official from Guangdong prov-

He Zhiquan, a spokesman for the foreign affairs office in Canton, said 109 miners were at work Friday night when the blast ripped through Meitian Pit No. 3 in Guangdong's Shaoguan district, 170 miles north of Canton. Guangdong province borders Hong Kong.

Earlier, a report by the Hong Kong newspaper Wen Wei Po had said 47 miners were killed and eight were missing in the disaster, which was not immediately reported in China.

According to the Canton newspaper Nanfang Daily, the explosion was caused by gas, but the official Xinhua news agency said the cause remained under investigation.

Large amounts of gas and crushed coal gushed from the workface of the mine, which is in a coal-producing area bridging several counties and bordering Hunan province to

Embezzlement alleged

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party daily Pravda reported Sunday that several senior officials in Kazakhstan were punished and fired after allegedly squandering or embezzling at least $16.4 million in public funds.

The report, apparently aiming to reinforce Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's drive for party discipline, detailed embezzlement in industry, agriculture and construction in Chimkent, the second largest administrative region in the southwestern republic of Kazakhstan.

Are U.S. soldiers still being held in Asia?

By TIM AHERN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Were the people lifted off the roof of the U.S. Embassy in Saigon more than a decade ago the last Americans to leave Vietnam? Or are American soldiers still being held prisoner in the jungles of Southeast Asia?

The questions have been raised anew in recent weeks, partly in the aftermath of a hit movie, and particularly by Vietnam's announcement last week that it would return the remains of 26 missing U.S. service-

There are still 2,464 men and women listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia, including the 26 promised by Vietnam.

Officially, the Pentagon's position is that it cannot rule out the possibility that Americans are still being held captive, although many U.S. officials will say privately that they doubt there are any POWs.

None of the 26 sets of remains has actually been given to the United States and no such transfer is likely for at least a couple of months, say U.S. officials.

But some of the names on the list of 26 have been turned over, including some Americans known to have been "in some form of captivity at one time." said Richard Armitage. assistant secretary of defense for international security

That raises again the possibility that the 591 American prisoners who returned home to a joyous welcome in 1973 weren't the last of the POWs.

The MIA issue received relatively little publicity until President Reagan took office in 1981 and proclaimed that a full accounting would be "the highest national priority.

Since then, it has been received more attention, in part because of the administration's efforts and in movies about the Vietnam War.

The latest movie, "Rambo - First Blood, Part II," stars Sylvester Stallone as a Vietnam veteran who returns alone to Vietnam and rescues a group of POWs. The film has been one of the biggest box-office hits of the summer.

But despite the popular belief that a number of POWs still are being held, several investigations have concluded that none are in captivity. And most U.S. officials familiar with the issue say they think it highly unlikely that prisoners still live in the jungles.

The MIA list maintained by the Pentagon includes 2,422 military personnel and 42 civilians. The 26 remains to be turned over will leave 1,794 MIAs in Vietnam, 556 in Laos, 82 in Cambodia, and six in China. An Analysis according to the Pentagon's figures. That number is relatively small compared to the two most recent wars before Vietnam. There are still 78,751 American soldiers listed as missing or unaccounted for from World War II and 8,177 MIAs from the three-year-long Korean War.

The number of Vietnam MIAs is partly due to the Pentagon's accounting process. All but one of them has been declared legally dead and that one, an Air Force pilot shot down over Laos 20 years ago, is carried as alive chiefly as a symbol of the Pentagon's commitment to resolving the issue.

The term MIA implies that the United States doesn't know what happened to the men on the list, but that is wrong in most of the cases.

After the war ended, the Pentagon list of POWs or MIAs was less than 800, but the Defense Department later added the names of all those men who were considered killed but whose bodies were never recovered. More than 81 percent of the men classified as MIAs were pilots whose planes crashed into thick jungles or the South China Sea Vietnam maintains it has no POWs and has turned over to the United States all the information it has on MIAs.

But officials familiar with the situation note that the Vietnamese have regularly turned up information and note that the 26 sets of remains promised in the latest statement is the largest group yet provided.

The United States has no diplomatic relations with Vietnam, but has been sending "technical teams" to the area six times a year to evaluate any information turned up.

The Pentagon follows up what it classifies as "live sightings," or reports from people who say they may have seen someone who could be a captive. Since the end of the war, there have been 774 such reports and 84 percent were found to either be false or involve men or remains returned to the United

But that leaves 16 percent, or 123 reports, still under "active investigations," according to the Pentagon, although many are so vague that they cannot be disproved.

The National League of POW MIA Families still thinks Americans are being held.

We firmly believe that there are still men being held as prisoners of war," said Mary Louise Scott, spokeswoman for the private group.

Administration to ask court to overturn abortion decision

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration was poised today to ask the Supreme Court to overturn its landmark 1973 decision lega lizing abortions, according to Justice Department sources.

The administration, which has long been critical of that Roe v. Wade decision, was prepared to intervene in a case involving Pennsylvania's 1982 abortion control law, said the sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity

The anti-abortion brief the Justice Department lawyers planned to file with the Supreme Court today argued that the justices did not intend to make their 1973 decision so broad that it would block even modest attempts by the states to control

President Reagan has long complained that the 1973 Supreme Court ruling infringes on states' rights to imit abortions.

Two years ago, the high court oted to strike down several local gislative restrictions, upholding constitutional right to obtain an bortion. The membership of the igh court has not changed since

When Meese succeeded William French Smith as attorney general in February, many lawyers' organizations and civil liberties groups said they expected the department to get more involved in such social issues as abortion and separation of church and state.

Abortion rights groups blasted the Justice Department earlier this year for refusing to conduct FBI investigations into a spate of bombings and threats at abortion clinics nation-

Meese and FBI Director William H. Webster said the incidents were appropriately being investigated by the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Meese claimed "there isn't a scin-tilla of evidence" that the incidents stemmed from conspiracies, and said there was no need to assign FBI agents to the case.

Why you should look for a real estate agent before you look for a house.

There are a lot of homes out there. Great ones. Could be great ones. Nowhere near great ones. That's why when you're ready to look, you need the right real estate agent to help you find the right home.

So it's important you choose a real estate company with people you can trust. People who know the neighborhood like the back of their hand. People who offer you professional advice, hard work and support. People who are there for you from start to finish. People who do the job right.

The kind of people you find at Coldwell Banker Real Estate.

We've grown to be America's largest full service real estate company because we have different and better ways to help people find and buy the right home. We know buying a home is prob ably the biggest investment you'll make in your life. Just finding the right one is a big job.

But at least now you know where to start.
