Festival features variety of events

The Fall Festival sponsored by the Bronte Band Booster and All Sports Booster Clubs will be held Saturday, October 26, from 6:30 until 9:00 in the old gym. The carnival will include all types of events for all ages. The line-up of activities includes all favorites as well as new challenges.

Food booths are to be money raising projects for the junior and senior classes to provide revenue for their class projects.

Game booths planned for this year are ping pong, dart throw, steer roping, basketball throw, football throw, prize and cake walk, sponge throw, and ring toss. Other fun booths are the fishing pond, bean count and hair paint.

Also, a new event to be offered this year is the Spook House under the direction of a local womens group.

This promises to be a thrilling and chilling experience and proceeds from this concession will be used to add to the elementary playground. The Spook House will offer separate levels to appeal to different age groups, so that the younger children may attend and not be frightened, and older students can enjoy the spookier atmosphere.

The sponsors of the carnival wish to invite everyone in the community to attend this fun-filled evening.

Annual cancer auction set

The 1985 Ranchers Against Cancer invite you to our Third Annual Dance and Auction. It is scheduled for Saturday, October 26, at the San Angelo Coliseum from 8:00 p.m. to 12:00 a.m. Music will be by "The Bobby Jenkins Band".

Tickets are $50.00 per couple or a table for eight (four couples) can be reserved for $200. Dress will be country casual.

Senator Bill Sims is the chairman of this year's committee. Representatives for Coke County are Waldon and Judy Millican of Robert Lee and tickets may be purchased from them. Please phone: 453-2387.

Proceeds will go to the American Cancer Society.

Please join with us in this old-fashioned tribute to our loved ones lost to cancer as well as those who now struggle with the dread disease. Research may help those who have not yet contracted cancer.

Buckle roping slated

The Coke County Roping Club has planned their year-end Buckle Roping and Barbecue for this Sunday, October 20, beginning at 2:00 p.m. at the arena in Bronte.

This year's Buckle Roping is open to club members only, as two very nice Gist Buckles will be awarded to the two club members who rope the best this Sunday.

Other ropings are planned to follow the club roping, which will be open to guests and other ropers; so bring your friends and other ropers to join in the fun.

The barbecue is planned to follow the ropings. Those wishing to bring a dish or assist in the barbecue, are asked to contact James or Janell Vaughn.

Cancer program

Shirley Coleman, elementary principal with Bronte schools, will present a program, The Cancer No One Talks About at the Bronte Senior Citizens Center on Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 10:00 a.m. The presentation will include a film and handing out of printed material on colorectal cancer.

The program is open to the public and anyone who is interested in this subject is encouraged to come.

Seniors' dance

Everyone over 60 years of age is issued a special invitation to attend the Senior Citizens Dance each third Thursday night of the month in the Robert Lee building. October 17 is the scheduled night next week. If you do not dance, come visit with friends, and listen to the volunteer musicians play live music for the gathering.

The event will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Senior Citizens Building.

County Hunting, Fishing Guide to be published next week

The annual Coke County Hunting & Fishing Guide will be published in next week's issue of the Observer/Enterprise. This year's hunting season is expected to be excellent, with bow hunters already having good luck in the county, and having an early impact on area businesses. Coke County is also blessed with two fine lakes, Spence, and Oak Creek, which have supplied some of the best fresh-water fishing in the state for Texas anglers.

The Coke County Hunting & Fishing Guide received some well-deserved comments last year as being the best in the Edwards Plateau area, and this year's edition promises to be even better.

Plans are to insert the Guide into the total circulation over Coke County and the surrounding area, with additional copies left at marinas, bait stands, coffee shops, feed stores, grocery and convenience stores, and other hunting and fishing related retail outlets in Coke County, San Angelo and the surrounding area, for free distribution to area hunters and fishermen.

We are in the process of making ad contacts with county retailers concerning the hunting and fishing guide. However, should we miss you, please contact us at 473-2001 in Bronte, or 453-2433 in Robert Lee, to include your advertisement in this very important issue.

Also, if you have any fish or hunting pictures that you are especially proud of, call us by next Tuesday, October 21, to get your picture and story in this year's guide. Time is short; so "holler" at us as soon as possible.

The 4-H club program in Coke County affords youths a chance to become involved in a dynamic array of projects and learning activities. There were well over 100 various projects that 4-H members can "learn by doing".

4-H is open to any youth either nine years old or in third grade up to nineteen years of age regardless of race, origin, religion or socio-economic levels.

Through project work and activities such as club officer, council meetings, method demonstrations, judging events and citizenship, 4-H members have the opportunity to gain valuable leadership and responsibility offered by few other organizations.

4-H is not only fun but is very rewarding for both youths and adults. The rewards of being an active 4-H member ranges from recognition, awards and trips to rather large scholarships.

Coke County youth interested in joining 4-H can contact the County Extension Office at 453-2461.

Halloween tips given

Once again the ghosts and goblins are hiding around the corner with their bag full of tricks, while trick-or-treaters anxiously prepare for the annual search for Halloween treats. For many children, the night of October 31 is a fun filled, adventurous experience, but unfortunately, many deaths and injuries result across the nation every Halloween. Liberty Mutual Insurance Company suggests the following precautionary tricks to help make Halloween a treat for all.

When planning a child's costume, make sure that it's flame retardant and allows for free and easy movement with no dragging parts to trip over. The costume should be a light, visible color or reflective tape should be placed on all sides of the costume to help make trick-or-treaters visible to motorists. Facial masks should be avoided as they reduce the field of vision. Make-up for the face should be used instead.

Costume accessories, such as magic wands or swords should be free of sharp, pointed, or jagged edges that could result in a deep cut, or puncture wound. Jack O'Lanterns, candles, or any other accessory that requires an open flame should not be allowed. Flashlights provide more visibility and are easier to carry.

Liberty Mutual also suggests you that children should trick-or-treat in their own neighborhoods or at houses of people they know and only at houses that have their exterior lights on. An unlit house usually means that Halloween visitors are not welcome.

Never send children out trick-or-treating alone. They should be supervised by a parent, other adult or a responsible older teenager. The presence of an adult can stop a problem situation from developing.

Every Halloween we hear horror stories about children who have been cut, drugged, or poisoned. Apples and cup cakes can have razors or pins hidden in them. Any kind of non-commercially packaged edibles can have drugs or other poisonous ingredients added to them. Be sure that candy, gum and other snacks have not been tampered with and if you suspect that they have been, they should be thrown away.

By following these tips, you may give your self a treat by avoiding a haunting Halloween experience.

Annual reunion hosts large crowd

The annual Fort Chadbourne-Hayrick reunion was held Sunday, October 6 at the Bronte Community Center with approximately 112 persons registering for the occasion.

Those present were served a delicious barbecued brisket luncheon, with the Association furnishing the barbeque and Bon and Cloreta Spoons preparing it. The ladies in attendance provided other meats, vegetables, salads and desserts.

During a short business session, Helen Kirkland, Katherine Patterson and Vera Raney were elected to serve as the Program Committee. The Association, after expressing deep appreciation to Bon and Cloreta Spoons for preparing the barbeque, decided to have a potluck luncheon in the future.

Several trophies were presented: Ben Peters, age 90, received a trophy for being the oldest person present, and it was noted that Mr. Peters had driven from Great Falls, Montana to Bronte in September. Receiving a trophy for traveling the greatest distance for the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bennett of Albuquerque, N.M. The "Kingfish" award went to Chester Hallmark.

The group sang "Happy Birthday" to Randy Clark, great-grandson of Mrs. Faye Rawlings, on his 7th birthday.

Traci Shuffield read a poem entitled "My Father's Hands".

A "This Is Your Life" type of skit honoring Mrs. Faye Rawlings was presented, with Mrs. Vera Raney serving as emcee. A large number of Mrs. Rawling's family and relatives were present to honor her on this occasion.

Outgoing association officers are Pete Spoons, president; J.E. McDaniel, vice president; Helen Kirkland, secretary/treasurer. The new slate of officers are: Roy Spoons, pres.; Royce Fancher, v-pres.; Maude Collins, sec./treas.

Former Olsen medalist invited to HSU conference

Merle Este Ash Billingsley of Bronte is one of 61 surviving Olsen medalists invited back to the campus of Hardin-Simmons University for a two-day conference, Nov. 15-16, according to Dr. Charles Robison, coordinator of the event. Billingsley received the award in 1943.

The Julius Nelson Olsen Medal was established in 1914 by the late Dr. and Mrs. Julius Olsen in memory of their son, Julius Nelson, and perpetuated through a bequest by Dr. Olsen, University dean from 1902-1940. The medal is awarded annually at spring commencement to the graduate who has the highest grade average, exemplifies the highest scholarly achievements and has at least 90 hours of HSU credit.

The conference will include a banquet in honor of the medalists on Nov. 15 in the President's Room of Moody Center at HSU. A plaque inscribed with the names of all Olsen Medal winners will be dedicated during a ceremony to be held at 11:30 a.m. on Nov. 16.

Conference leaders will be Dr. Robert A. Neidorf, dean of St. John's College, Santa Fe, N.M.; Dr. Jesse C. Fletcher, HSU president; Dr. Ronald A. Smith, HSU vice president for academic affairs; and Dr. W.T. Walton, HSU vice president emeritus.

Acting as hostesses in conjunction with HSU will be Miss Claudine Olsen and Miss Lena Olsen. The last meeting of Olsen Medal winners, on the award's 25th anniversary, was initiated by the parents of both Miss Olsens.

spotlight on health

HYPERTENSION IN THE ELDERLY

The older a person is, the more apt he or she is to develop hypertension, or high blood pressure. This is why senior citizens are among the majority of hypertension victims.

Diuretic agents are the medications most often prescribed to older individuals with high blood pressure.

Diuretics have been the top recommendation among medical experts because of the simplicity of their use and their relative low cost.

A major drawback to the use of diuretics is that they cause the body to lose an important mineral, potassium. Low potassium can cause complications in certain forms of heart disease.

Diet alone cannot easily replace the amount of potassium lost. For example, some patients on diuretics would have to eat the equivalent of a five-foot banana every day, in addition to regular meals, to compensate for the lost potassium. That is why many physicians frequently prescribe potassium supplements.

A new diuretic on the market helps control high blood pressure while helping to spare the body from potassium loss. The diuretic MAXZIDE - triamterene/hydrochlorothiazide, from Lederle Laboratories, can be taken once a day, which can lower the cost of treatment.

In clinical trials, the new medication has been shown to be safe and effective in reducing blood pressure while demonstrating an excellent safety profile.

Senior citizens should keep in mind that hypertension is a major contributor to cardiovascular disease, the leading cause of death in America.

Bumper pecan crop anticipated

Harvesting of what should be a bumper pecan crop has started in southern Texas counties, say specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. This year's Texas crop is estimated at 61 million pounds, up 44 percent from 1984. Despite the projected large crop, prices should hold firm due to a nominal increase in the nationwide crop and low carry over stocks. Texas pecans should be average to above average in quality and should surpass the quality of the crop in Georgia, the nation's leading producer.

Steers outnumbered by Hornets

by Ronnie Baker

Folks, You have to give the Steers credit; they aren't quitters. They were beat as it was picked, they were out-classed as expected, they were outnumbered as expected, they were also under-rated by the Hornets. They may have won by a good margin, but they didn't get it as easy as they figured. The leather popping was evidence that the Steers are still going to hit you even if they are down on the scoreboard. You may get tired of the excuse that they are young and inexperienced, but that's the way it is and David can't whip Goliath if he can't find a rock. So we got to find some rocks.

1st QUARTER

The Hornets received the opening kickoff and from their 43 they made it look bad, as 3-1st downs and they had a T.D. They kicked their extra point and it was quickly 7 to 0. The Steers took the kickoff and after failing to move, they punt to the Hornet 37. The Steers hold and get the punt on the S.47. The Steers have bad luck as they fumble and in 2-1st downs the Hornets score again as the 1st quarter ends with the score 14 to 0.

2nd QUARTER

The Steers take the ball and move for a 1st down but they fumble again, but they hold the Hornets for little gain and get the ball at their 20. I.C. holds and the Steers punt to the I.C. 33. The Steers then shake the ball loose and Sanchez recovers at the Hornet 20. The Steers get to the 11 yd. line where they are held on downs. But then the Steers hold and I.C. punts to the S.41. The Steers make 2-1st downs to the I.C.27 as the first half ends.

3rd QUARTER

The Hornets kicked off to the Steer 25 with a return to the 38. The Steers made a 1st but then are forced to punt. From their 23, they start a drive that carries for 4-1st downs and another

T.D. They kick the extra and it is 21 to 0. The Steers start from their 49, but they have a pass intercepted at the I.C.30. The Hornets start another drive with 4-1st downs but the time runs out at the 2 yd. line for the end of the quarter.

4th QUARTER

The Hornets take it in for the T.D. on the 2nd play and kick their extra again for a 28 to 0 lead. The Steers then put on a drive that they are capable of as they go from their 37 and in 5-1st downs, they score as Sherrill hits Hood in the endzone with a scoring pass. Then Sherrill lofts one to Ebenstein for the extra point and it is 28 to 8. The Steers kick off to the Hornets and they take over at the S.41. They can't move and they punt to the Steer 2 yd. line. The Steers move to the I.C. 22 where they are held on downs. I.C. made a 1st at the S.33 and from there, they score in one play. They kick the extra point and it is 35 to 8 with little time remaining. They kick off and the Steers are forced to run out the clock at their 29.

The Sterling City Eagles will test the Steers in Robert Lee at 7:30 tonight. The public is urged to show support for the players by their attendance at the game.

Study Club meeting

On Tuesday evening October 8, the '64 Study Club met in the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church. After a short business meeting, Pam Bradford, in keeping with Texas Sesquicentennial, gave an interesting Texas Vignette. Her subject was Honor Codes in Frontier Times, and she read the "Code of Cattle Country", which was written by Eric Samuelson.

The main program was given by Mrs. Eva Walraven from San Angelo, who showed a film "Living With Grace" from Concho Valley Alzheimer's Disease Support Group Inc. Mrs. Beverly McSpadden was a guest.

Hostesses for the meeting were: Olene Sims, Thelma Jo Hinnard, and Jessie Faye Russell.

Horns maintain record over Miles

by Randy Cregar

The Longhorns appear to be taking the 1985 district race very seriously, and proved it again Friday night by crushing Miles 26-7. The win improved Bronte's overall record to 5-1, with a perfect zone record of 3-0.

The Horns won the toss and elected to receive. Todd Brooks fielded the kick at the 10 yard line and made a fine return out to the 37 yard line. From there it took the Longhorns 3½ minutes and 10 plays to drive the ball 63 yards for a score. Ball carriers were Corby Kelso, Duff Kelso, and Stephen Lee, who scored on the drive. The try for two failed.

Miles had the ball 5 plays before Pete Puentez hopped on a Bulldog fumble at the Horns 42 yard line.

Bronte again put together a 10 play drive this time covering 58 yards for another score by Duff Kelso. This drive featured one complete pass from Stephen Lee to Mark Adams for 13 yards. The rest of the yardage was gained by rushing by Joel Sanders, Stephen Lee and Duff Kelso. The kick by Chilo Minjarez was blocked.

Joel Sanders toed the next kickoff as Randy Draper and Shannon Hoffman stopped the return at the Bulldog 31 yd. line. Bowie McGinnis joined the list of tacklers on first down. On the next play a Miles back popped through the line and Stephen Lee made a saving tackle at the Bulldog 45 yard line. Then the Horn defense stiffened and Miles had to punt.

In the second quarter, Bronte took over at their own 17 yard line on downs. On the first play from scrimmage Pete Puentez burst through the line and sprinted 83 yards to paydirt with 8:15 left in the half. Puentez then tossed a pass to Mark Adams for 2 points and the Longhorn's lead was extended to 20-0.

Miles made another serious scoring threat as they took the ball to the Bronte 16 yard line before losing the ball on downs. The drive took 11 plays. Bronte ran the clock out for the end of the first half.

Chilo Minjarez toed the 2nd half into action. Miles brought the ball out to their own 47 yard line before being forced to punt.

Corby Kelso became the work-horse of the next and last Longhorn scoring drive as he carried the ball 8 times for 51 yards and the touchdown. The rest of the yardage was covered by a 3 yard Duff Kelso carry and another 13 yard pass from Stephen Lee to Mark Adams. The try for two points was no good and Bronte led 26-0.

The Bronte coaching staff decided to give the younger players some experience on offense after the Miles punt, however, the Bulldogs were offended by the insert of freshmen and the first team re-entered the game. A bad snap on the punt attempt gave Miles the ball at the Bronte 38 yard line as the fourth quarter got underway.

The Bulldogs took advantage of this mishap and drove in for a TD in seven plays. The kick was good and the score was Bronte 26-7 over Miles with 8:29 left in the game.

Bronte had one more chance to score after Bowie McGinnis blocked a Miles punt which was recovered at the Miles 8 yard line. Kelly Green carried the ball to the 5 yard line, but a penalty and fumble on the next plays gave Miles the ball back.

Bronte played a very good offensive game rolling up 17 first downs and 312 total offensive yards. This week's hit of the week wound up in a three-way tie between Mrs. Joel Sanders and Bowie McGinnis, and Soph. John Morrow.

The Longhorns travel to Eden this weekend for a key game with the Bulldogs which will have a big impact on Bronte's playoff hopes. Let's get out and support those Horns at 7:30 Friday.

The Freshmen overpowered the CC Freshmen by scores of 15-5 and 15-12.

BJHS volleyballers saw action Monday eve versus Water Valley. The B team played 3 games and won all three 15-5, 15-0 and 15-10.

The A team lost their first game by a close score 13-15 and fell in their second game 6-15.

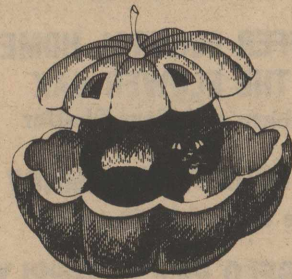

Lady Horns split wins

Lady Longhorns split games with Colorado City when they went on the road Oct. 8. The varsity trailed in their first game 9-15, turned the score around and defeated CC 15-9, but couldn't pull it out in the final game, 11-15.

The Bronte JV lost both their games to the Colorado City JV by identical scores of 5-14 and 5-14.

Former teacher writes about travels in Bolivia

[Editor's Note: Mr. and Mrs. Chism Brown of Robert Lee received a letter from his sister, Mrs. Chanda McBroom, on her travels. Mrs. McBroom, long-time elementary school teacher in Robert Lee Schools, is living in Buenos Aires, Argentina with her daughter, Marilyn, in connection with Church of Christ projects in that area.]

Sept. 12, 1985

Dear friends and family,

Any trip to a foreign country is exciting, but when the opportunity arises one day and you leave the next, it is especially exciting. That is what happened to me the week of Aug. 20-27.

We were having our regular team meeting at the home of Jacob and Marilyn Vincent, and simultaneously surprising Reece and Jacquie Mitchell with a party to celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary. After lunch, Jake turned to me and said, "Chanda, why don't you go to Bolivia with us?" (Now I had heard that Jake was going there to preach for a short campaign, but I didn't know Marilyn was going. As a matter of fact, she hadn't heard until that minute that the funds were available for her.) My question was "When?" The answer, "Tomorrow. Be in Aeroparque at nine o'clock." Could I go? Yes, I could and did. (Russell had trained me well in going places on a moment's notice.)

We had a flurry of excitement in the airport at La Salta. The official asked the man ahead of us for his "Certificado de Viaje" — permission to travel, and I didn't have one, having been told at the American Consulate that it was no longer needed. Anyway, after arguing awhile, they let us go.

We were met in Santa Cruz, Bolivia by Kenneth Hines, one of the missionaries to La Paz, and spent the night there before taking a local flight to La Paz the next day.

Santa Cruz is in the plains area at the border of the mountains. In many ways it reminded me of Mexico, with its narrow streets and tile roofs. In other ways it reminded me of suburban areas of Greater Buenos Aires, with a scattering of tall buildings of modern design. Most of the traffic lights had been turned off as an economy measure. The city of about million people is growing so fast and spreading out over such a wide territory that many streets have not been named. Certain streets forming concentric circles have numbers and some spokes of the wheel have names. We found the church meeting place in one of the new areas following this type of directions: take this street south to the third concentric circle; turn left on it and go about three kilometers until you come to the railroad tracks, then turn right and go about two blocks. We found it, but not before we had waded ankle-deep dust down two wrong streets. They had neglected to tell us that the streets formed a V at the tracks.

The next day was a long one, Marilyn set her alarm to wake us at 5:30 to go to the airport, but she forgot the time change. So she really got us up at 4:30. It was getting light before we got to the airport, but we didn't leave there until 9:30, and this time they didn't even serve coffee on the plane. (I prefer the Coca Cola, anyway, but most people don't, especially in the morning.)

We made a detour around a huge thundercloud, passing close to Mt. Illimani, a mountain so rugged that an airplane that crashed and burned there was never located, although the fire could be seen from La Paz.

As we dropped down toward the airport, I noticed what appeared to be ruins of a city with only foundations left, but which turned out to be adobe houses with adobe fences around them. I learned later that the fences served more as windbreaks than anything, but of course also served to keep animals from straying. Some of the fences were topped with straw and tile to prevent erosion.

The airport is on a high plain, with snowcapped mountains far away on the horizon. Suddenly you find yourself at the rim of a huge canyon, and below, in all its breathtaking beauty, lies the city of La Paz with its million inhabitants.

In Buenos Aires, the people are stacked on top of one another in highrise apartment buildings—mile after mile of them. In La Paz, some are stacked the same way. (We stayed with the Ken Hines family in their 18th floor apartment.) But the impressive thing about La Paz is the houses piled almost on top of each other all the way up the canyon walls. In the lower reaches they are like split-level houses, but higher up the canyon walls are even steeper, so the paths going up are almost like stairways. I didn't see any streets in the higher places, but it is possible that they are there. A taxi driver told us that there were buses, available in all those places, speaking of buses— all I saw were small buses, so that any American would have to bend over to stand in one, and I never saw one that didn't have people standing and even hanging out the door.

On rare occasions in Buenos Aires, one may see Gypsies in their colorful distinctive dresses, but here almost everyone dresses European style. In La Paz, at least half the people are dressed in their native Indian styles. (Half of the others are Indians who have adopted modern dress.) Marilyn commented after one encounter with a distinctive style that you could distinguish different tribes by their odor as well as their clothes.

Visiting a market proved interesting. For one thing, it had everything from farm produce to clothing, fresh meat, cured meat, beverages — alcoholic and otherwise, a kitchen with a bar and stools, all arranged haphazardly in little stalls with hardly room to walk between them. Many stalls were double deckers or split-levels, with one woman seated beneath the counter with her wares all in reach, and another above. Since it was lunchtime, many of them had plates of food that they were eating without taking any time off from their work. The food, evidently that being prepared in the kitchen, smelled good, but we didn't sample it. We were expected at the Hines.

As is Jake's custom, we visited a large cemetery high up on the canyon wall. As in Argentina, they have mausoleums which hold entire families, but it seemed to me that they had more individual graves in the ground. But we came across one thing of special interest — an area where trash had been burned, including bodies. There were skulls and other bones that were only scorched. Apparently somebody had failed to pay the rent. (The more I see of that, the better I like the idea of cremation!)

The purpose of our trip was to help the church celebrate its first anniversary. I found their meeting place very attractive and comfortable. It was an apartment on the floor in downtown La Paz. The living-room, windows on three sides, was large enough to seat a hundred people fairly comfortably. Then there was the kitchen and maid's quarters for a nursery, and three bedrooms, two of which were used as classrooms, and one for an office for the missionaries. All were painted, curtained, and lovely. Jake preached on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday morning to from sixty to eighty-three people, including the 10 Americans and Bolivians of European background and Indians. The lessons were on love and peace, citing not only the 15 nationalities in the original church in Jerusalem, with the resulting problems and solutions, but also the differences among the apostles, such as fishermen, a rebel against the Romans, and a tax collector for the Romans. The campaign ended at noon Sunday with a pot-luck dinner. I found the Bolivian food interesting and tasty.

We took advantage of our free time Sunday afternoon to hire a taxi to drive us to Lake Titicaca, about 40 miles away, because we may never again have a chance to see the largest fresh-water mountain lake in the world. It is really beautiful, surrounded by mountains, many with their caps of snow. They told us nobody swims in it, but we don't know why. The water is not nearly so cold as that in Inks Lake near Austin, even if it is

Bundle UP Your Home Today

And Help Keep Energy Bills DOWN This Winter.

Upgrade Your Insulation.

Insulation comes in rolls, loose fill or batts. The "Resistance-value" or "R-value," indicates the ability of a material to keep heat from passing through it. The higher the "R-value" the more heat the insulation will keep inside in the winter and outside in the summer. WTU recommends R-30 insulation in the ceiling and R-16 in the walls.

Keep Weatherstripping & Caulking in Good Condition.

Seal cracks around doors, windows, pipes and wiring to help you save on both heating and cooling costs. Polyurethane or similar caulking, plus felt or foam-rubber products, come in an easy-to-install form at most hardware stores and will help you draft-proof your home.

Call Your Heating Serviceman.

Have your heating unit checked NOW by a qualified specialist to put it into top operating condition. Not only will you minimize the possibility of a costly and uncomfortable breakdown in the middle of winter, you will also help keep down home operating costs.

...Bolivian trip

mainly snow water. I wonder if it could be warmed by thermal springs. Our Taxi driver - guide was an Indian from the area, so he made the trip more interesting. The villages around the lake were a blend of tribal and modern structures and ways. The population is divided about 50-50 between Catholics and Evangelicals, but still hold on to their tribal customs.

On Monday morning, one of the Christians, a retired colonel in the Bolivian air force, drove us to the airport for our return to Argentina. The flight to Santa Cruz was without incident, but we were excited to see all the little Indian villages nestled in hidden valleys high in the mountains, with such twisted roads leading to them that from above they looked like piles of string.

When we landed in Santa Cruz for a six-hour wait, we found that we needed more Bolivian currency to eat lunch and pay the airport tax, so we took a bus to town to exchange currency and eat. Typically, they told us it was about six blocks from the bus station to the central plaza, but it was more like sixteen. On finally reaching the plaza, we found the exchange house closed for siesta, but there were men on the sidewalk ready to help. Out of necessity, Jake took a chance with them, expecting to get ripped off. Surprisingly, he wasn't.

But how do you locate a good place to eat in a city that size without a guide? We found a way. There were four Mormon boys on the corner, two of whom looked American -- and were. They directed us a block away to the London Restaurant. They were right. The food was good, the atmosphere was excellent -- and they spoke English.

On our way back to the bus station, we accidentally took a route that led us through a street market, with little stalls where they sold everything from buttons to baked goods, and from handknit sweaters to toilet articles imported from the States via Brazil and the black market. We also walked through the wholesale markets in a building that covered a whole block. There too, everything was in its own little private cubbyhole.

Back at the airport, I had a new experience. After we entered the "Departure" area and had opened our carry-ons for inspection. Marilyn and I were asked to follow a woman to a private room where we were searched for drugs etc. (Jake had been frisked as he came through the door.) Marilyn thanked the woman for her concern, but I had ambivalent feelings about it. Logically I am glad they are trying to curtail the drug traffic, but emotionally I resented the invasion of my privacy and the implied suspicion.

I must have been very tired, because I cannot remember what happened in Salta on our return. But I know we stopped there and picked up passengers, and I can vaguely remember Marilyn starting to the bathroom and being ordered not to leave the room. But that is all.

On leaving Santa Cruz, I had a whole row of seats to myself. In Salta, three people came in speaking German and occupied three of those seats. Some time later, the one near me tried to turn on the light and got the wrong button. His "Oh, no!" was so surprising I had to ask him if he were an American. No, he is German, but he spent four years in, of all places, TCU, getting his Masters. He is now living in Buenos Aires, having arrived here about the same time I did. His friends across the aisle were visiting him in Argentina before going to Denton to study in North Texas State. How's that for a small world?

Marilyn (McBroom) had told me many times how pretty Buenos Aires is from the air at night, but this as my first time to see it. We had been flying over a solid overcast, but evidently it was very high, because we broke through it at the outskirts of the city and were all excited at identifying various places as we passed. The first I could identify was the Buen Aire at Carrefour, then the hippodrome, etc. It was a beautiful ending to a very pleasant trip.

Of course the trip was even more pleasant because of the people involved. Ken and Sherry Hines and their three-year-old Kelly were our very special hosts. We had met Ken in January at the campaign in Cordoba, but it was the first time we had met Sherry and Kelly. They are very special people. The other missionary family is that of Earl and Denise Fultz and their children, four-year-old Jordan and their infant. We really enjoyed getting to know them. The Fultz family left the day after we did for their furlough in the States, so the Hines are alone in the work now. Well, so Christians are never really alone, but they sure can feel that way.

Halloween safety precautions

Modern-day Halloween can be more hazardous for the "tricker" than the "treater".

Certain safety precautions taken by parents, motorists, and homeowners can help prevent accidents, says the Texas Medical Association.

Parents should check all costumes and wigs for flame-proof labels. Apply a natural mask of cosmetics or grease paint rather than have a child wear a mask which might restrict breathing or obscure vision.

Make sure a costume is not so long that a child can trip on it, or so loose that it may catch on fences or other obstacles.

Since dark costumes are difficult for motorists to see, insist tricksters wear light-colored or reflectorized costumes. Children also should carry flashlights to see, and be seen, more easily.

Parents should accompany young tricksters on their rounds while it is still light, and older children should travel in groups. Make sure children have enough change with them to call home if necessary.

As an alternative, parents might encourage home parties and celebrations in place of trick-or-treating.

Motorists should slow down and drive with extra caution while in residential areas on Halloween.

Homeowners receiving trick-or-treaters should have outside lights on as a sign of welcome. Remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns, and porches.

Finally, parents should emphasize that tricksters return home with their treats untouched until all candy has been thoroughly inspected for foreign material. Only wrapped candy and packaged baked goods should be eaten. Fruit should be thoroughly washed and cut open before being consumed.

Following these guidelines will help children enjoy a fun-filled yet safe Halloween.

Celery should be avoided by those on low-salt diets. Substitute raw carrots, cauliflower, green pepper and radishes.

The P.W.A. workers are giving Coke County something to be proud of later on. In future years, we can look back and say "this is what Coke County did with their money while we were helping people." Go by the school house and see the work on the grounds there. The work is now coming to a finish at the court house. New plaster has been put on the walls, the board floor has been taken out and replaced with concrete and new wood-work all over the building. The old vault in the county clerk's office has been replaced with a fire-proof vault. The sherriff's office has been enlarged and the courtroom is ready for court. After 40 years the building and yard are in better shape than they have ever been. An 18 inch cobblestone wall around the courthouse adds to the appearance, too. Around the outside of the wall will be a curb for parking.

The main topic of conversation on the street for the past several days has been the reported finding of a large sum of gold and silver coins supposed to have been dug up from underneath some liveoak trees on the R.E. Hickman place near where the Butterfield trail crosses the river. What there is to it, we are unable to say but next week we purpose to show photographs of the scene and history to back up the story in connection with the treasure and interviews of those who found the gold. There is considerable mystery surrounding this pot of gold, supposed to be found by the Elkins brothers, J.D. and B.F.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

The playground for the "deer and the antelope" is in poor condition on more than half of the Nation's Federal and privately owned rangeland and this is cause for great concern, said Wilson Scaling, Chief of USDA's Soil Conservation Service.

Wildlife share with livestock the almost one billion acres of rangeland that is an important asset to agriculture, to the economy, and to the quality of our environment.

Although some of the poor condition is caused by shallow soil and low rainfall much of the rangeland productivity can be improved by good management, Scaling emphasized.

Often in the same general area, poorly managed rangeland provides little forage for livestock and poor feed and cover for wildlife, while well managed rangeland provides adequate forage for livestock and supports healthy populations of wildlife.

Wildlife can mean additional income from hunting fees for ranchers. The kinds

COUNTRY AGENTS NEWS

by Tommy Antilley

Tick populations can increase dramatically with wet fall weather, causing inconvenience and health hazards for homeowners and pets.

Ticks are biting, blood-sucking parasites, and their bites may become inflamed and infected due to toxic secretions. Tick paralysis, tularemia and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever may be transmitted through tick bites.

Brown dog, American dog and Lone Star ticks are the most common in Texas home landscapes. Brown dog ticks are reddish-brown while American dog ticks yellowish-brown when unfed and slate grey when engorged. The brown dog tick rarely occurs in rural areas; instead, it hides in crevices around buildings. American dog ticks are most often found along roads and trails. The Lone Star tick has a characteristic white spot on its back and is commonly referred to as a spot backed tick.

A female tick may lay several thousand eggs, beginning a two to four-month life cycle. Remaining stages -- six-legged larve (seed tick) and eight-legged nymph and adult -- generally develop on separate host animals. After each feeding the tick drops off the host and temporarily hides until the next developmental stage.

Regardless of the species, control is basically the same for all ticks. Heavy infestations in the home may require treatment by a professional pest control operator. Spot treatments with household sprays containing diazinon, chlorpyrifos (Dursban), Baygon, resmethrin or Vapona will provide excellent control of light infestations.

Outside the home where vegetation is thick, use 5 percent carbaryl (Sevin) dust at 20-25 pounds per acre. Increase the rate as vegetation thickens. If using a spray, mix five tablespoons of 25 percent diazinon emulsifiable concentrate (EC) in one gallon of water. Apply one gallon of spray per 1,000 square feet of treated area.

Chlopyrifos (Dursban) is also suggested for tick control. Apply 1.5 ounces of material per 1,000 square feet of treated area. When spraying, pay particular attention to roadsides, animals trails, paths and pet resting areas. Retreatment may be necessary if tick populations continue to be observed.

As with any pesticide, always read the label on the container for application instructions.

Pet owners should examine their animals frequently. Light infestations can be controlled by rubbing carbaryl (Sevin) dust into the pet's hair. Also, treat the animal's sleeping quarters every week until ticks are controlled.

If a tick becomes attached to the skin, remove it with a slow, steady pull. Be careful not to break off its mouthparts. A drop of chloroform, isopropyl alcohol, ether, acetone or fingernail polish remover rubbed over the tick may help remove it. This will reduce the tick's oxygen supply so that the pest can be removed a half-hour later with less damage to the skin.
