Fraternity completes hours

Phi Psi members re-instated at Tech

By Laura Hensley

Members of Texas Tech fraternity Phi Kappa Psi are seeking to wipe clean the tarnish on their image suffered during an incident last December.

With total cooperation, the fraternity has spent the past eight months rebuilding and paying its price.

At a party Dec. 5, 1997, the fraternity vandalized their rental house, located at 2405 Broadway, causing more than $20,000 in damages.

Now, after months of work and cooperation with the dean of students office and the Phi Kappa Psi national office, the fraternity has completed more than 700 hours of community service and has been re-instated as a recognized Greek organization at Tech.

"I think everyone has learned from this chapter's incident," said Bernard Schultz, assistant dean of students for Greek life. "It was highly publicized and tarnished the entire Greek community."

He said the only way now is up for the fraternity.

"We need to move forward from this," Schultz said. "Folks have made mistakes, but the chapter has paid a price. The leadership of the fraternity has done a good job of getting back on track and are now pointing in the right direction."

Schultz said the decision of re-instating Phi Kappa Psi came by evaluating its efforts to comply with sanctions. He also said the fraternity was required to submit a chapter improvement plan.

"Really, it was a number of issues that lead to the re-instatement," Schultz said. "It was an intense process. We had to decide if these guys were doing what they were supposed to and living up to what they needed to."

In addition to the community service ary actions would be taken. hours, Phi Kappa Psi has paid about $8,800 for damages to the home's owner, Don Curry.

Curry, a Lubbock resident, planned to move his law offices into the home in January, but was forced to hold off in order for repairs to be made to the home.

He has agreed not to press charges on the eight individual members indicted on the vandalism charge.

Brian Carr, house corporation officer and Phi Kappa Psi alumni, said he was not sure of the membership status of the eight individuals, but he knew disciplin-

"I think one can be assured that justice will be sure and justice will be swift," Carr said.

Although the fraternity is planning to rebuild its membership by recruiting members through Rush, Thomas Pitts, the fraternity's adviser, said a schedule has yet to be settled on.

"We intend to keep a presence on the campus," Pitts said. "We are here and we are going to stay alive. Right now we have to start from the ground up and regain trust from the university and the respect from the student body."

Faculty Senate discusses garages

By Jonathan Biles Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate Committee convened Sept. 9 to discuss the future of the parking aspect of the Master Plan.

A presentation was made by Doug Mann, vice chancellor for facilities, planning, and construction, along with architect Donal Simpson, to give an update on the Master Plan.

Updates included the status of four parking garages, the English/ Philosophy/Education Complex and the desire to convert the Tech campus into a pedestrian-only campus.

"We told the Board of Regents that we would not move forward on parking without taking that plan of action to the Texas Tech community without getting full consensus on the plan," Mann said.

In the current planning, there will be four new parking garages, in addition to the parking garage across from the United Spirit Arena. While locations have not been confirmed, current locations are between Hulen/Clement and Wall/Gates Residence Halls, in the current Stangel/ Murdough Residence Hall parking lot, the current location of the Tech Bookstore, and the intramural and recreation field off 8th Street between Bledsoe Hall and the tennis courts.

All parking garages will only be accessible through main streets, as opposed to campus streets, Mann said.

Garages currently being investigated for construction include approximately 500-700 parking spaces, excluding the garage planned to be built between Hulen/Clement and Wall/Gates which will hold about 900-1,000 spaces.

"We are looking to provide about 8,000 parking spaces for the main campus, with half of those being in the parking garages," Simpson said.

Only allowing access through the outside surrounding streets of Tech for the parking garages is the first step to making Tech a pedestrian-only campus. Mann said the idea is to keep Tech in one central campus

It takes the team an hour to set up and anchor down the tower. Schroeder said the tower collects wind data five times a second.

Tech, HSC officials create position to protect research

Student and faculty researchers at Texas Tech and the Health Sciences Center soon will have help with the legal protection of their ideas and research. The creation of the position would be designed to aid in technology transfer and legal patents. "Basically, the position was created to help researchers who discover new technologies," said David Schmidly, dean of the graduate school.

"He will be responsible for developing strategic plans for protection of public knowledge."

The office was created to protect public knowledge, attract high-tech companies to the city of Lubbock and to assist in the economic development of Reese Center. Walter Haeussler will fill the administrator position of the newly established Office of Technology Transfer and Intellectual Property, starting Sept. 23.

The office will consist of two positions initially, the director position, which will be filled by Haeussler, as well as an administrative assistant. The two positions will be funded by the income gained from the technology transfers.

"We will grow from there, as intellectual property grows," Schmidly

Tech is one of the few large universities left that doesn't already have a similar position.

"We are basically catching up with other universities," Schmidly

Schmidley said by creating the office, Tech and the HSC will help students, the public and the economic development of the city of Lubbock and surrounding areas.

First, the protection will help to keep research at a local level, which often creates spin-off companies to help develop the technology. Students will benefit from this creation of jobs for them.

Honors program becomes college

By Melody Ragland

Texas Tech University Honors Program became the University Honors College on Sept. 1.

Gary Bell, dean of the honors college, said that the college is here to assist the other colleges and does not offer degrees.

The purpose of the college it to make sure good, serious students are receiving the education they came

Bell said it is important that the honors college make a student's education as broad as possible. "To be effective and enjoy life, students need to know a lot of things about many subjects," Bell said.

Bell said that having an honors college makes Texas Tech University a more prestigious university. Only three universities in Texas have honversity of Houston and the University of Texas at Arlington.

Bell said a lot of other universities are now looking into forming a honors college. "Texas Tech is a little bit

Bell said there are incentives to being a part of the honors college. Students are able to register for classes early, live on honors floors or the honors dorm and participate in social activities specifically for them. For honors students interested in medical school, the honors college offers early admittance.

Bell said even though the honors college does not offer degrees now, there is discussion with the College of Arts and Sciences to offer a general studies degree.

When Bell came to Tech in 1993, there were only eight students in the honors program. This year there are 720 students in the honors college.

Robert Wernsman, coordinator of the honors college, said this is not an immediate change, but a long term developing project.

Affirmative action may bring equality

WASHINGTON (AP) - Racial preferences at top colleges and universities have helped black Americans get ahead, according te a new book by two former presidents of Ivy League institu-

The experience benefited graduates even though many had lowe_ grades or admissions test scores and did less well academically than white students, according to the study by Derek Bok, former president of Harvard University, and William G. Bowen, former president of Princeton University.

The book, published by Princeton University Press, is being released in the midst of intellectual and legal challenges to affirmative action in higher education. The University of California system and Texas state universities have already abandoned preferences, and the University of Michigan's policies are being challenged in court.

Critics argue that the policies deny opportunity to qualified white and Asian students and cause distress for lesser-qualified students who find it difficult to keep up, causing many to drop

But the authors, advocates of race-based admissions policies, said their analysis of records from 45,000 students of all races proved that such policies worked. The study tracked the performance and attitudes of those students, who entered 28 selective colleges in either 1976 or 1989.

'Rather than having been overwhelmed, they clearly appear to have benefited from having gone to these very select schools," Bowen said in a telephone interview from New York.

The 75 percent graduation rate among blacks at those institutions was higher than that for all black college students - 40 percent. It was also higher than the overall 59 percent rate for white students, but lower than for whites at the more select institutions - 86 percent.

The authors reported that black graduates of the select schools were slightly more likely than whites to obtain professional degrees in law, business and medicine "even though they had, on average, lower test scores and grades.'

Black men with bachelor's degrees from those institutions earned an average of $85,000 in 1995, which is 84 percent higher than the average for all black men with bachelor's degrees. Black women who graduated from the institutions earned an average of $65,000, higher by 71 percent than what other black women with bachelor's degrees earned.

The black graduates were satisfied with their college experience and became more active than their white classmates in civic acuvities, including community endeavors, social service activities and politics.

The study estimates that without affirmative action, the percentage of blacks entering selective institutions would have fallen from 7.1 to between 2 and 3.5. Because the numbers of white applicants are so large, a drop in black enrollments would have increased the probability of admission for white applicants only from 25 percent to 26.5 percent.

The data were supplied by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, which Bowen heads. Bok is a political scientist at Harvard's John F. Kennedy school of government. Because the book, "The Shape of the River," was just being released, no one was available to make a fully informed comment.

But Roger Clegg, general counsel for the Center for Equal Opportunity, a group opposed to affirmative action, said the numbers appear to show that too much emphasis is given to race when the academic records of the minority applicants are considered.

The black students who entered the select colleges in 1989 averaged 2.61 on a 4-point grade scale, compared with 3.15 for whites.

Marines inadequately trained for mission

EL PASO (AP) — Marines involved in the fatal shooting of a West Texas teen-ager were not adequately trained for an anti-drug operation that placed the combat-ready troops among civilians, a military report

In the harshest official criticism of the operation yet released, the internal report also said commanders did not do enough to prevent escalation of the Marines' encounter last year with Esequiel Hernandez Jr.

The mission "appears to have been viewed at every level of Marine Corps command as more of a training opportunity than a real world deployment. The failure to appreciate the difference had tragic consequences," wrote retired Marine Maj. Gen. John T. Coyne, who investigated the shooting.

The report was initially obtained through the Freedom of Information Act by the San Antonio Current, a weekly newspaper.

The report specifically said brief training on the appropriate use of force did not balance combat responses drilled into Marines.

training instills an aggressive spirit while teaching combat skills," Coyne

Military spokesman Lt. Col. Scott Campbell said Wednesday that officials stand by their original statements regarding the report. The Marine Corps has previously rebutted the report in a written response denying the contention that military officials failed to recognize the operation as a real mission. The rebuttal further argues that Coyne arbitrarily concluded the training was inadequate.

"Mr. Hernandez is dead neither because of inadequate training, nor insufficient training time, nor improper adherence to the" rules of engagement, the Marine Corps response said.

Herandez, 18, was killed May 20, 1997, after crossing paths with a fourman Marine team conducting antidrug surveillance in Redford, 200 miles southeast of El Paso, at the request of the Border Patrol.

Hernandez, who was herding goats near the Rio Grande, fired at the

Montford receives honorary medal

Tech chancellor becomes member of Mortar Board

By Apu Naik

Texas Tech's Mortar Board, or Pi Sigma Alpha, recognized the beneficial efforts of Chancellor John Montford toward their organization by naming him an honorary member Wednesday.

The Mortar Board, Inc. is a national honor society that recognizes college seniors for distinguished ability and achievement in scholarship, leadership, and service.

Together with the chancellor, the Mortar Board sponsors the Chancellor fer a Day program in order to raise money for a Presidential Endowed Scholarship.

The program began two years ago when Montford became the chancellor of Tech.

When the society of honor students approached Montford with ideas for the program two years ago, the chancellor had already been familiar with the board.

Chancellor Montford's daughter, Mindy Montford, is an alumni member of the Mortar Board at the University of Texas' chapter.

But more importantly, Montford said he originally accepted the offer because the "Chancellor for a Day" program was beneficial for the uni-

"This program is essential for raising an endowment for bringing in a higher caliber of students to this university," Montford said.

"And even more than that, students can have my job for a day, and I get to take notes and listen to lectures all day.

It really makes me feel like I'm overpaid.

Bible does fulfill its prophecies

Old Testament prediction:

"But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the tnousands of Judah, yet of thee shall he come forth unto me to be the ruler of Israel" (Micah 5:2). New Testament Fulfillment:

"Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the King" (Matthew 2:1).

2. Be preceded by a messenger. Old Testament Prediction:

"The voice of him that in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God" (Isaiah 40:3). New Testament Fulfillment:

"In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom is at hand" (Matthew 3:1-2).

3. Have His hands and feet pierced. Old Testament Prediction:

"The assembly of the wicked have enclosed me: they pierce my hands and feet" (Psalms 22:16).

New Testament Fulfillment:

"And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on his right hand, the other on the left" (Luke 23:33)

4. Be sold for thirty pieces of silver.

Old Testament Prediction: "And I said unto them, If ye think good, give me my price; and if not, fore-

"So they weighted for my price thirty pieces of silver" (Zechariah 11:12)

New Testament Fulfillment: "What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with thirty pieces of silver"

(Matthew 26:15). In this same Book of Law (in which case you devote so much of your scholarly time in sharpening tongue to scorn believers), God challenges the intellectual elite: "Present your case,' says the Lord. 'Set forth your arguments,' says Jacob's King (your pepperoni). 'Bring in your idols, to tell us what is going to happen.

'Tell us what the former things were, so that we may consider them and know their final outcome. "Or declare to the things to come, tell us what our future holds, so we may know that you are gods'." (Isaiah 41:23). Destroying the Pharisees' law and ideology is what Christ was sent for... destroying your ideology and blasphemies is what the rest of his "fulfillment" will complete.

I sincerely pray that your heart surrender to a Savior who will rescue you from the gloomy gallows of your intellect before this coming day.

Clearly, presenting your case is "where you went wrong."

Painful fads can be extremely puzzling

Karina Aul Columnist

ometimes, I feel like I am surrounded by stupidity. Could someone please tell me why anyone would feel the need to invoke pain on themselves?

Maybe I should clarify what I mean by stupidity. There was a sign at a jewelry store in the mall. It was advertising facial and body rings. I'm sure you have at least one person in your classes or someone that you know who has some kind of facial ring on (or in) their head. So, I guess my question is, "Why?"

And by the way, how does anyone with a tongue ring eat with that thing? For that matter, how does anyone with a nose ring sneeze? The answer? Very, very carefully.

I have just about decided for sure that facial rings are a new sort of torture. See, there is this guy who you know did well on last year's chemistry exam so you would like to get test questions from him.

Ne problem. All you have to do is poke a ring through his eyebrow or lip and before you know it, he is screaming the answers.

I happen to know from experience that you can get an infection in your "holes" from ear rings. So, how do you take care of an infection in a tongue ring? I can't see anyone rinsing their tongue off with hydrogen peroxide. Speaking of peroxide, why do people dye their hair some really weird shade? I don't mind hair dye when it enhances the natural color but, please, purple is not a good color for anyone.

I know that there are a lot of blonds in Lubbock. My reasoning is that no one wants to be blond here so they dye their hair. Unfortunately, from what I have seen, blond hair doesn't dye well. You ena up with multicolored streaks through your hair. And, believe me, that is worse than the original color.

So what is with the facial rings and dyed hair? Since a lot of people are doing it, it is obviously not to look different. Maybe it is to keep people

Or, it could be to provoke someone to call the police just so the person with the dyed hair and 20 facial rings can laugh at them when the police don't find any fenced goods. Unfortunately, the person with the 20 rings may not be the one having the last laugh.

I am pleased to report that I only have pierced ears. And, I only have one hole in each ear. To me, it is too painful to think of piercing my tongue just so I can show people that I am not afraid to starve to death. I only hope that I can talk people who want one out of it. Just imagine yourself not being able to talk because an infection has taken over you tongue. If that doesn't stop you from doing something that I think is stupid, I don't know what will.

Moore returns to Hub City stage

By Sebastian Kitchen

ost musicians regularly take time off from touring to go into the studio and work on recording an album. Ian Moore took time from his heavy touring schedule to record two albums.

The first of the two is scheduled to be released on Moore's own record label Hablador next month. The second album is in production and will likely hit shelves early in 1999.

Fans will get a chance to preview some of Moore's new material and his trademark songs tomorrow at the Depot's 19th St. Warehouse, 1824 Ave. G. Psychic Jive will open the show at 8 p.m. Tickets cost $15.

Moore, whose career as a musician began in Austin, has come a long way since he first picked up a guitar about 15 years ago.

Moore's influences range from Buddy Holly, John Lennon and Elvis Presley to Al Green and Ravah Shankar.

His personal collection includes electronic music, soul, rock and classic music. George Jones, Tricky, Bjork and the Beatles all have a home in Moore's music collection.

"I have so many influences blues, vocal, lyrical - some overlap."

Spending several years as the lead guitarist for Lubbock native Joe Ely, Moore released his first solo CD in his own band for about five years," said promoter Lane Arnold. "He has always been a pretty big draw in Lubbock. He is a killer guitarist."

"Ian has been playing here with was great."

Since the release of his first album, Moore gained the attention of musicians and music fans with his powerful guitar playing and soulful voice.

"I've been in and out of bands since I was 18," Moore said. "I like playing music as long as it is music and creative."

The song "Harlem" caught the attention of rapper, director and actor Ice Cube, who directed the video for the song. Moore has opened tour dates for world famous bands including the Rolling Stones and Bob Dylan.

Modernday Folklore, the artist's second release, included another strong and broad range of songs including the single "Muddy Jesus."

In addition to his music, Moore also played the part of a musician in Billy Bob Thornton's "Sling Blade."

Although he enjoyed his brief stint in the movies, Moore said he is not using his career as a musician as a stepping stone to become an actor.

"It was a great movie," Moore said. "I was just there for a second, but it

Hub City to host annual Cowboy Symposium

By Matt Benacci

According to the Lubbock Convention and Tourism Bureau, economically speaking, this weekend will be one of the city's biggest.

Nicole Robinson, marketing director for the bureau, said this will be as big a weekend as the Texas Tech graduation and home football games.

This big weekend is centered around the 10th annual National Cowboy Symposium and Celebra-

Alan Davis, chairman of the symposium said it is the largest show in the country on ranching, cowboys and all things western.

Davis said even though this event is not the first of its kind, it is definitely the most comprehensive.

The symposium kicks-off at 8:30 a.m. today with a trail ride. The symposium will be at Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Even though the symposium is sponsored by several groups and companies, an admission fee of $5 will be charged for an all-day ticket, good from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. A two-day ticket for Friday and Saturday's shows is being offered for $7.

The symposium will have five separate stages, with a different performer or group on each stage every hour. Davis said people who stay the whole day will get about $300 in shows for $5.

Davis said the "can't miss event" will be the American Cowboy Culture

Theatre needs plays

Any aspiring playwrights are encouraged to submit original scripts to the Texas Tech Department of Theatre and Dance. The scripts will be considered for production in the Raider Red's One-Act Play Spectacular. The plays will be presented on campus April 12-18 in the Laboratory Theatre. Deadline for entry is Oct. 1. Plays should be 45 minutes to an hour. No children's plays or musicals will be accepted.

Selected plays will receive a full production. The plays will be directed, designed and performed by Tech theatre students. For more information, call Beth Wintour at 742-3601.

HOUSTON (AP) — For Cheryl Patrick, the choice seemed painful and terrifying: either divorce her husband, David - or kill herself. "I was kind of suicidal at that point," said Patrick a Kingwood homemaker. "It was going to be either suicide or divorce, one or the other.' David Patrick, a CPA, was equally desperate in December 1989. He was frantically trying to save his marriage. The couple had already divorced in 1979, partly because of David's workaholic ways. But the couple re-years and three children later, the marriage was again imploding because many of the couple's problems remained unresolved, including David's long work hours.

"She actually decided to divorce me again," said David Patrick, 43. "I was pretty quick to realize I didn't want a divorce, but I didn't know what to do.'

Marriage counseling wasn't working for the Patricks, members of Kingwood United Methodist Church. But through their involvement in Developed in Quebec, Canada, in 1977, Retrouvaille (French for rediscovery) begins with a weekend retreat program for troubled couples who want to restore their marriages. Even separated and divorced couples attend the weekend and a six-week, follow-up program learning to communicate and develop skills for fulfilling relationships. Retrouvaille claims an 85 percent success rate for couples completing the program. Its success has made the program popular in the United States and world-

Winnie Honeywell, diocesan director of family life ministries, said more couples now want to fix their marriages rather than end them. "Divorce is not the answer some people think it is," said Honeywell, who introduced Retrouvaille into the diocese 15 years ago.

Danolic making waves on court

Texas Tech's men's tennis player Petar Danolic, a native of Sarajevo, Bosnia, does not have many fellow countryman at Texas Tech.

After living in Florida, Danolic journeyed to Tech to join the Red Raider tennis program. West Texas life was a drastic change from

"It was a surprise," Danolic said. "I am used to it now."

Life in Lubbock has made an impact on Danolic, and when he hit the courts for the Red Raiders, he made an impact on the program. He was the first Red Raider to play in the United States Tennis Association Clay Court Championships and was named to the final All-Southwest Conference tennis team in 1996.

Danolic helped Tech knock-off UNLV hy defeating Luke Smith, the No. 34ranked player in college tennis.

"Beating UNLV my freshman year is one of my fondest memories of Tech tennis," Danolic said of the

His high level of play earned him the No. 1 position on the men's squad

Looking to improve on this record, Danolic concentrated on physical training as opposed to heavy tennis training this off-season.

"I tried to stay fresh," Danolic said of his training method. "I worked hard on my physical training."

Having trained hard in the offseason, Danolic failed to pick-up a racquet until the first part of August,

Danolic said he has set team goals

> "We want to make the Top 30 or Top 25 in the nation," Danolic said. "My goal is to give my best and win every match I can."

> Tech's Director of Tennis Tim Siegel said he has high hopes for Danolic this season.

Danolic will not be the No. 1 singles player at the start of the season for the Red Raiders.

Sophomore Borut Martincevic will be eligible this year and will be the top man on the squad, Siegel said.

"If I have to play the No. 3 position to help the team win a match, then that is what I will do," Danolic said.

Whether in Sarajevo, Bosnia or in Lubbock, Danolic feels right at home on the tennis courts.

Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

By Brent Dirks

No, Mia Hamm does not have a sister playing for the Texas Tech soccer team, and Red Raider midfielder Jennifer Hamm likes it that way.

"There's not a day that goes by that somebody doesn't ask me," Hamm said of mix-ups with the famous U.S. soccer national team member.

"Everybody thinks that. And yet I think it would be kind of fun to joke around with them and tell them that I am. But actually I like the fact that I'm not. It would kind of hard living under her.'

Even though she's not related, Hamm, who transferred to Tech after her freshman season at Hawaii, has recorded some spectacular numbers before coming to Tech.

While at Hawaii, she led the team as a freshman in almost every statistical category with three goals, three assists and 36 shots on goal. Her performance earned her honorable mention All-America from Soccer Buzz while the Rainbows finished with seven wins, their most successful season ever.

But Hamm decided to leave the school and Red Raider coach Felix Oskam came calling.

"As soon as I got the release, I went to (Tech midfielder) Jamie Woods and said 'Jennifer Hamm, do you know her?' and she said 'coach you need get her," Oskam said.

"So I got a hold of her that night in Hawaii, actually. I was the first coach to call her, and I've beer on her since she said she would come here.

Hamm said Oskam and Woods, her teammate at Sandia High School in Albuquerque, helped her make the choice to be a Red Raider.

During Hamm's senior year she was named 1997 New Mexico Player of the Year along with being named to the NSCAA/Umbro and Parade All-American squacks.

"When I was looking to transfer from Hawaii, I sent out my release and got immediate response from Felix," Hamm said.

"He talked to me about the program, and it was something I was really interested in. He had everything that I was looking for to offer.

"I knew a couple of girls here, and they talked to me about the program. They said their program was building up to the next level, and it was something I definitely wanted to be

Former Lobo indicted

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) --Former New Mexico football player Kawika Ordenstein was indicted Tuesday by a grand jury on one count of aggravated battery with great bodily harm for allegedly beating another student-ath-

If convicted, Ordenstein could face up to three years in state

The charge stemmed from an April 23 fight outside the school's athletic complex.

UNM football coach Rocky Long dropped Ordenstein, a wide receiver, from the team when an arrest warrant was issued April 24 for Ordenstein.

The former Lobo, who is from Kailua, Hawaii, is charged in the beating of UNM track sprinter James Marin. He is accused of repeatedly slamming Marin's head against a car, according to the arrest warrant, causing Marin to suffer an inner-ear hemorrhage, a ruptured eardrum and a broken cheekbone.

Ordenstein, who was 20 at the time, had been charged in April with attempted murder, a second-degree felony that carries a basic sentence of seven years in prison upon conviction. Lt. Jay Daniels of the campus police said at the time the attempted murder charge was filed after officers investigated and talked to wit-

Sometimes what they don't say says it all.

Whether you want to screen calls while you're in or keep track of who called while you're out, Caller ID has got you covered. It stores the details - name, number, and time - whenever someone dials your digits. So even if they don't leave a message, you'll still get one (or more). So get Caller ID, and connect your world.
